Criminal Law- Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 27 - Recovery of alleged danda employed by the accused after two months of the incident from an open field- What is important is discovery of the material object at the disclosure of the accused but such disclosure alone would not automatically lead to the conclusion that the offence was also committed by the accused. In fact, thereafter, burden lies on the prosecution to establish a close link between discovery of the material objects and its use in the commission of the offence. What is admissible under Section 27 of the Act is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution.

Mere discovery of the alleged weapon of assault, pursuant to disclosure of the same by the accused, is in itself not sufficient to bring home the charge against the accused. The burden lies on the prosecution to establish that the recovered article was employed in the commission of the offence. (Para 23)

Judgements/ Case law relied upon:-

1. Augustine Saldanha Vs St. of Kar. (2003) 10 SCC 472

2. Surinder Kumar Vs U.T, Chandi.(1989) 2 SCC 217

3. Mustkeem @ Sirajudeen Vs St. Of Raj. 2011 (11) SCC 724

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sunil Singh and Sri Vivek Singh, learned counsels for the appellants and Sri Vikas Goswami, learned counsel appearing for the State and perused the lower court record with the assistance of the respective counsels.

2. The instant appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 3 January 2018 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Kanpur Dehat, whereby, appellant has been convicted under Section 302 IPC and sentenced to life imprisonment with fine of Rs.20,000/-. On default of deposition of fine, appellant shall serve additional six months rigorous imprisonment.

3. The incident is of 6.3.2016, at about 9:00 p.m. and F.I.R. came to be lodged after the death of the deceased on 10.3.2016, at about 12:30 p.m. The informant/complainant (P.W.-1) is the brother of the deceased. It is alleged that his younger brother Ajay (deceased), aged about 20 years, on the day of terhavi ceremony, on 5.3.2016 all brothers had assembled for the ceremony. His elder brother Sanjay with the intention to kill the deceased assaulted him with danda in front of the house at the municipal tap; deceased incurred severe head injury on the head, face and back; deceased was carried to the hospital at 2:00 a.m.; on 10.3.2016 he succumbed to the injuries. Scribe of the report is Rohit Singh who was not examined by the prosecution. The post-mortem on the body of the deceased was conducted on 10.3.2016 at 4:15 p.m. The following anti-mortem injuries on the dead body of the deceased are noted:

External examination−

Deceased was of average built, his height at 160 cm. Dried blood was present inside left ear. Rigor mortis was present in the upper and lower part of the body.

External Injuries−

1. 4 cm stitched wound going through left ear bone towards posterior part of the head, bone on the back part was found to be fractured when stitch was opened. Temporal bone on the back of the nose was found to be fractured.

2. Abrasion measuring 2 cm x 1 cm at a distance of 2 cm from the right eye

3. Abrasion measuring 7 cm x 3 cm present towards left part of the back along with swelling.

4. Abrasion measuring 2 cm x 2 cm on the front part of left leg one cm below the knee.

Internal Examination−

swelling present in brain membrane, brain was lacerated and clotted blood was present, 16/16 teeth present, mouth, tongue, internal part of the neck, larynx, thyroid cartilage were normal. Wind pipe was having a hole for inserting tube. Ribs and food pipe were normal, lung membranes and lungs were congested. Right part of the heart was filled with blood, left part was empty, big blood vessels were normal, 100 grams of liquid food was present in the stomach, digested food was present in small intestine along with gases, gases and faecal material was present in the large intestine. Liver was congested, gall bladder was semi filled, spleen, pancreas and both lungs were congested, urinary bladder was empty. Reproductive organs were normal.

The death occurred due injuries on the head, approximately one day ago.

The ante mortem injuries are possible by a hard and blunt object. Post mortem commenced at around 4.15 in the afternoon and ended at 4.45.

4. The panchayatnama was conducted on the body of the deceased on 10.3.2016 at 12:30 p.m. As per panch witnesses, elder brother (accused) of the deceased caused injury with danda. After investigation, charge sheet came to be submitted. The accused was summoned under Section 302 IPC to stand trial.

5. The prosecution examined in all six witnesses, Vinod Kumar (PW-1) brother of the deceased, Smt. Shanti Devi (PW-2) mother of the deceased, Head Moharrir Dhruv Chandra (PW-3), Dr. Avadhesh Kumar (PW-4), S.I. Anoop Kumar Dubey (PW-5) and S.H.O. Ravindra Kumar Tiwari (PW-6). PW-1 and PW-2 are the witnesses of fact and rest of the witnesses i.e. PW- 3 to PW- 6 are formal witnesses.

6. The following documents were exhibited:

1.	F.I.R.	10.03.16	Ex. Ka. 2
2.	Written Report	10.03.16	Ex. Ka. 1
3.	General Diary		Ex. Ka. 3
4.	Recovery Memo of Blood Stained & Plain Earth	10.03.16	Ex. Ka. 5
5.	P.M. Report	10.03.16	Ex. Ka. 4
6.	Panchayatnama	10.03.16	Ex. Ka. 6

7.	Final Form/Report	04.06.16	Ex. Ka. 13
8.	Site Plan with Index	10.03.16	Ex. Ka. 4
9.	Site Plan with Index	10.05.16	Ex. Ka. 12

7. The accused on being confronted with the prosecution evidence, in his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., denied the charge; he further stated that he has been falsely implicated as he had earlier lodged FIR against the accused for having caused injury to his wife. He demanded trial.

8. The informant/complainant (PW-1) in examination-in-chief stated that on 5.3.2016, on the terhavi ceremony of his father he had come from Delhi; he is employed in a company at Delhi; accused is his younger brother and rickshaw puller; deceased, the youngest brother, also had come from Delhi. On 6.3.2016 at about 9:00 p.m., deceased Ajay had gone to the municipal tap to fetch water; at that moment, accused came on the spot with danda, with an intention to kill the deceased, consequently, caused several assault on the deceased. He further stated that wife of the accused had died two years back, accused suspected that she succumbed to burn injuries due to the deceased. After 10 months of the incident accused had lodged FIR against the deceased. This is the reason that accused was inimical towards the deceased. He further stated that the injured was carried to the hospital where he succumbed to the injuries at about 2:00 a.m. Thereafter, a report was lodged, scribed by Rohit Singh.

9. In cross-examination, PW-1 stated that he along with two other brothers had come to the village to attend terhavi ceremony of his father. There was no dispute amongst the brothers on the day of the ceremony. He further stated that the incident is of 7.3.2016 at about 9:00 p.m. The municipal tap is at 40 steps from the house; it was a dark night and there was no electricity; deceased had gone to fetch water from the municipal tap. He (PW-1) was at his house. He further stated in his cross that on reaching the spot, 30-40 people were present; there was some dispute going on between the deceased and the accused; he further stated that he reached the spot after the on going dispute and saw that his brother Ajay (deceased) lying unconscious. PW-1 placed his unconscious brother on his lap. On specific query, he stated that he had not seen as to whether the accused was present at the spot or not. He further stated that he had not seen accused of having caused injury with danda upon the deceased. Thereafter, he stated that he carried the injured to Akbarpur govt. hospital where he stayed for an hour, thereafter, injured was carried to a hospital at Kanpur on reference. He further stated that scribe of the report, Rohit Singh had not read out the report to him; PW-1 stated that he merely put his signature on the report. He further stated that the police officials had not recorded his statement and if it has been recorded then he is not aware. On a suggestion he stated that he signed the report on the asking of Rohit Singh; while writing the report he was not in a stable mental state.

10. In nutshell, the statement and cross-examination of PW-1 reflects:

i) the alleged incident occurred at the municipal tap;

ii) PW-1 reached the site of the incident post occurrence;

iii) accused was not present;

iv) it is a dark night, no electricity;

v) 30-40 residents of the locality present;

vi) PW-1 states the probable motive.

11. PW-2, Shanti Devi, mother of the deceased stated that she has four sons, three of them work at Delhi; on 5.3.2016 her family assembled for terhavi ceremony of her husband; on 6.3.2016, younger son Ajay (deceased) while fetching water form municipal tap, accused and the deceased entered into an altercation; deceased fell down on the brick road and incurred injury. She further stated that wife of the accused died two years earlier suffering burn injury; accused suspected the deceased and had grudge against him; it is for this reason that on the night of 6.3.2016, at about 9:00 p.m., accused inflicted injury with danda; she then stated that deceased succumbed to the injury due to falling on the brick road. She further stated that police officials has not recorded any statement of hers.

12. In cross examination, PW-2 stated that she is an illiterate lady; she resides in a thatched hut separately from the house of her sons which is 10 houses away, outside the village. At the time of incident she was at her hut; some unknown person informed her that some altercation took place between her sons; she further stated that around 10:00 p.m. she reached the spot, deceased was not present; none of her sons were present. She further stated that she had not seen the accused and deceased indulging in maarpeet. On query by the court, she stated that her deceased son received several injury on the right side by falling on the ground. However, she had not seen him falling. On information form others she reached the spot and found her son lying on the ground. Her sons Vinod and Pramod had taken the injured son to the hospital; she further stated accused had not gone to the hospital as he had committed the offence.

13. The statement and cross-examination of PW-2 shows:

i) statement of PW-2 is on hearsay information;

ii) she reached the spot after the incident;

iii) she did not find any of her sons;

iv) the cause of death of her son is by falling on the brick road;

v) she states the probable motive.

14. Dr. Avadhesh Kumar (PW-4), conducted the post-mortem on the body of the deceased. The injuries found on the body of the deceased has already been noted earlier. In cross-examination, PW-4 stated that ante-mortem injuries was received by the deceased one day earlier, possibly caused by hard and blunt object. It is noted in the impugned judgment that the defence counsel did not appear to examine the witness, nor seek adjournment. Accordingly, examination of PW-4 was closed.

15. The Trial Court upon considering the statement of prosecution witnesses and documentary material convicted the accused under Section 302 IPC.

16. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the ingredients of the offence under Section 302 IPC is not made out taking the prosecution evidence on face value; motive set up by the prosecution is that death of the wife of the accused that occurred two years prior to the incident and accused suspected deceased for the death of his wife. As per prosecution case, it is proved that the incident took place while fetching water form municipal tap at a public place; it could be a case of sudden quarrel; the intention to cause injury to kill deceased is not borne out from the prosecution evidence taken on face value. It is further submitted that neither PW-1 nor PW-2 were present on the spot at the time of incident; they clearly stated that they had not found the accused present on reaching the spot; PW-1 categorically stated that he had not seen the accused causing injury with danda upon the deceased. PW-1 and PW-2 reached the spot post occurrence of the incident. In this backdrop it is urged that even taking a case that the accused had caused injury by hard and blunt object, finding could not travel beyond Section-304 Part-II IPC. It is further urged that the finding returned by the trial court is per-se perverse, the presence of the accused on the spot at the time of the incident is not proved; the fatal injury on the head of the deceased could have been caused by falling on the brick road as testified by PW-2.

17. In rebuttal, learned A.G.A. submits that conviction of the accused has been proved by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt; witnesses of fact deposed that the accused had caused injury with danda at the municipal tap; motive had been clearly spelled out; conviction is based on statement of occular witness which is duly corroborated by medical expert opinion.

18. We have given our thoughtful consideration to the rival contentions and have carefully gone through the record with the assistance of learned counsel for the parties. On careful reading of the testimony of prosecution witnesses of fact, it is evident that in examination-in-chief one of the witness (PW-1) stated that injury was caused by the accused with "danda'. The other witness (PW-2) stated that the injury was caused by falling on the brick road. The motive assigned is that accused suspected the deceased being the cause for the death of his wife. In cross-examination both witnesses admitted of having reached the spot of the incident after the injury was caused to the deceased; PW-1 found the deceased lying unconscious. He further stated that 30/40 persons of the locality had assembled on the spot but accused was not seen on the spot. In other words, PW-1 had not seen the incident, nor the accused of having caused injury, nor, was he present on the spot. PW-2, mother of the deceased, stated that she lives separately outside the village in a thatched hut. Some unknown person informed her of the incident, followed by a quarrel between the brothers. She stated in cross-examination that on reaching the spot neither the deceased nor the accused was present on the spot; she reached after an hour of the incident. She, however, stated that injury was caused as the deceased fell down on the ground and his head hit the brick road. It is a dark night and no electricity. No independent witness was examined.

19. Learned counsel for the appellant has placed reliance on the decision rendered in Augustine Saldanha Vs. State of Karnataka1, wherein, it has been held:

"In the scheme of the IPC culpable homicide is genus and 'murder' its specie. All 'murder' is 'culpable homicide' but not vice-versa. Speaking generally, 'culpable homicide' sans 'special characteristics of murder is culpable homicide not amounting to murder'. For the purpose of fixing punishment, proportionate to the gravity of the generic offence, the IPC practically recognizes three degrees of culpable homicide. The first is, what may be called, 'culpable homicide of the first degree'. This is the greatest form of culpable homicide, which is defined in Section 300 as 'murder'. The second may be termed as 'culpable homicide of the second degree'. This is punishable under the first part of Section 304. Then, there is 'culpable homicide of the third degree'. This is the lowest type of culpable homicide and the punishment provided for it is, also the lowest among the punishments provided for the three grades. Culpable homicide of this degree is punishable under the second part of Section 304."

20. In Surinder Kumar Vs. Union Territory2, it has been held that:

"To invoke Exception 4 to Section 300 I.P.C. four requirements must be satisfied, namely (i) it was a sudden fight; (ii) there was no premeditation; (iii) the act was done in a heat of passion, and

(iv) the assailant had not taken any undue advantage or acted in a cruel manner. The cause of the quarrel is not relevant nor is it relevant who offered the provocation or started the assault. The number of wounds caused during the occurrence is not a decisive factor but what is important is that the occurrence must have been sudden and unpremeditated and the offender must have acted in a fit of anger. Where, on a sudden quarrel, a person in the heat of the moment picks up a weapon which is handy and causes injuries, one of which proves fatal, he would be entitled to the benefit of this Exception provided he has not acted cruelly."

21. Admittedly, as per prosecution case, injured/deceased was carried to government hospital at Akabarpur, PW-1 along with injured stayed for one hour and on reference by the government hospital, injured was carried to the hospital at Kanpur. Prosecution has not produced the examination report of the injured so as to prove whether injury caused upon the deceased was by a blunt object or sharp weapon or by any other weapon. As per post-mortem report conducted after four days of the incident, stitched wounds were found on the body and the report is based on examining the external and internal injury after opening the stitched wounds. In the circumstances, it is urged that opinion of the medical expert that injury possibly could have been caused by hard and blunt object cannot be taken as a definite opinion. Injury could have been caused either by a sharp weapon or by falling on the bricks as per testimony of PW-2.

22. Further, it is urged that the recovery of alleged danda employed by the accused was recovered on 10.05.2016 i.e. after two months of the incident from an open field. In the circumstances, it is urged that danda being very common in a village, therefore, it cannot be said that the recovered danda from an open place, after two months, was employed in commission of the offence. Further, even taking the prosecution evidence on face value, the ingredients of the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. is not made out. It could be a case of sudden quarrel at the municipal tap, but that is not the prosecution case. Further, as per testimony of the prosecution witnesses, there was no electricity and it was a dark night; the prosecution witnesses admittedly were not present at the site. None of the residents of the locality (about 30-40 person) who had gathered at the place of incident, was examined to corroborate the prosecution case. The finding reached by the trial court is not sustainable in the backdrop of the prosecution evidence. We, therefore, find that the prosecution has utterly failed to prove the case beyond reasonable doubt.

23. With regard to Section 27 of the Act, what is important is discovery of the material object at the disclosure of the accused but such disclosure alone would not automatically lead to the conclusion that the offence was also committed by the accused. In fact, thereafter, burden lies on the prosecution to establish a close link between discovery of the material objects and its use in the commission of the offence. What is admissible under Section 27 of the Act is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution. (Refer: Mustkeem @ Sirajudeen vs State Of Rajasthan3)

24. Suspicion, however, strong is not sufficient to be taken as proved. The conviction and death sentence imposed on the accused is totally unsustainable in law, therefore, appeal is liable to be allowed and the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence is liable to be set aside.

25. That apart, in the case of circumstantial evidence, two views are possible on the case of record, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other his innocence. The accused is indeed entitled to have the benefit of one which is favourable to him. All the judicially laid parameters, defining the quality and content of the circumstantial evidence, bring home the guilt of the accused on a criminal charge, we find no difficulty to hold that the prosecution, in the case in hand, has failed to meet the same. (Refer:Devi Lal vs The State Of Rajasthan4)

26. The jail appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence is set aside. The appellant Sanjay is directed to be released forthwith, if not required in any other offence.

27. The appellant on being released the mandate of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. to be complied.

28. Let the lower court record be sent back to court below forthwith along with a copy of this judgment, for ascertaining necessary compliance.

Chatthoo Chero ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
From Jail, Sri Mohit Behari Mathur (A.C.)

Counsel for the Opposite Party:
A.G.A.

Criminal Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Sections 102 & 106 – Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 313- The burden not being discharged by the accused and no explanation given by him in Section 313 Cr.P.C. St.ment is concerned, it is trite law that only after the prosecution discharges its burden of proving the case beyond reasonable doubt, the burden would shift on the accused. The fact that a defence may not have been taken by an accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. again cannot absolve the prosecution from proving its case beyond all reasonable doubt. If there are materials which the prosecution is unable to answer, the weakness in the defence taken cannot become the strength of the prosecution to claim that in the circumstances it was not required to prove anything.

The burden of proving a fact said to be especially within the knowledge of the accused shifts upon him only after the prosecution has discharged its initial burden of proving its case beyond any reasonable doubt and merely because the accused has failed to give any credible explanation in his St.ment u/s 313 Cr.Pc would not absolve the prosecution from its burden to prove its case.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Sections 106 & 26 - The homicidal death of the deceased had taken place in the room in which the appellant, admittedly, as per the testimony of the witnesses of fact, was not present at the time of occurrence. The appellant came to be convicted on his confessional St.ment and the recovery of the assault weapon on his pointing out. The confessional St.ment will not be read against the appellant and the conviction would not rest on the recovery of the assault weapon alone in the backdrop of the St.ment of the witnesses and the cite plan showing that the room of the deceased was accessible to one and all, including, strangers. The door of the room was open being summer month. Grown up children i.e. sons and daughters were also present; the witnesses of fact and independent witnesses have not been able to prove that the relation between the appellant and his wife was strained.

Where it is not proved that it was only the accused who was present inside the home at the time of commission of the alleged offence, then the accused cannot be convicted on the basis of his confession recorded before the police as the same is inadmissible in evidence.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 8- Motive- There is no motive for commission of the offence. In this backdrop to shift the burden upon the appellant under Section-106 of Evidence Act, on mere suspicion to explain how the incident happened, prosecution has primarily shifted the burden of proof upon the accused to prove his innocence. In a case based on circumstantial evidence, motive assumes great significance. It is not as if motive alone becomes the crucial link in the case to be established by the prosecution and in its absence the case of prosecution must be discarded. But, at the same time, complete absence of motive assumes a different complexion and such absence definitely weighs in favour of the accused.

Although motive forms an important link in a case based on circumstantial evidence but complete absence of motive would be a relevant fact in favour of the accused.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 27- Conviction only on the basis of recovery-The conviction of the appellant rests on recovery of the assault weapon on his pointing out. The knowledge of the accused that he has hidden the crime weapon and recovered it in the presence of the Investigating Officer (I.O.) and other witnesses, followed by his information is not sufficient to link the appellant with the commission of the offence without there being a motive and the link/ connection of the appellant at the relevant time he being present in or around the room of the wife- Section 27 of the Evidence Act, what is important is discovery of the material object at the disclosure of the accused but such disclosure alone would not automatically lead to the conclusion that the offence was also committed by the accused. In fact, thereafter, burden lies on the prosecution to establish a close link between discovery of the material objects and its use in the commission of the offence. What is admissible under Section 27 is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution. The recovery of the crime weapon in the facts of the case in hand was made after five days, though the accused is the complainant and was present throughout the investigation but the crime weapon has not been linked with the commission of the offence.

Settled law that only that part of the disclosure of the accused will be read which distinctly refers to the subsequent recovery. Where there is absence of motive and the accused is found to be absent at the place and time of the commission of the offence, then merely upon a part of his disclosure, his conviction would be illegal. (Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mohit Behari Mathur, Amicus Curiae, for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The instant appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 22.06.2019 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court, Sonbhadra, in Sessions Trial No. 66 of 2014 (State Versus Chatthoo Chero) under section 302 I.P.C., convicting the appellant.

3. As per prosecution case, the appellant/complainant lodged F.I.R. being Case Crime No. 120 of 2014, under section 302 I.P.C. on 30.04.2014, at 10.05 a.m. alleging that as per usual routine the family after taking dinner retired to sleep. The wife of the complainant/deceased (Shakuntala Chero), aged about 42 years, alongwith infant child, aged about three years, went to sleep at the DHABA behind the house. The complainant and his other two sons and two daughters slept in the DHABA on the opposite side of the house. In the morning, his son Kamlesh went behind and saw his mother (deceased) lying dead on the cot; there was blood all over and he ran and informed the complainant.

4. It is alleged that some unknown person caused injury on the neck by a sharp weapon. The incident occurred in the night of 29/30.04.2014. The panchayatnama was conducted on the same day commencing 11.10 a.m. The complainant is one of the witnesses to the Panchayatnama.

5. As per the opinion of the Panchayatnama witnesses, some unknown person caused injury on the neck by a 'tangi' (axe). The Station House Officer (SHO) Ravindra Bhushan Maurya alongwith two constables visited the site of the incident on 04.05.2014, he found the complainant present. On interrogation, the appellant/complainant confessed having committed the offence at about 3.00 a.m. in the morning of 30.04.2014 by Kulhari (axe) slaughtering the neck of his wife. The accused/complainant informed the Investigating Officer (I.O.) that he is prepared to recover the crime weapon which he had hidden nearby after the incident. Accordingly, the accused/appellant was taken into custody at 13.00 hours, the I.O. and other officials alongwith independent witnesses followed the accused who recovered the axe. Post Mortem on the body of the deceased was conducted on 01.05.2014 at 3.00 p.m. The injuries noted are as follows:-

Anti-mortem injury

1. lacerated wound 7 cm x 2 cm on left neck, depth 9 cm. and 6 cm. below the left ear; neck bone fracture;

2. urinary bladder empty, uterus empty; dal and rice 200 gm. was found in the stomach, body weight 50 kg, aged about 42 years;

6. Forensic lab report notes that human blood was found on axe (kulhari), Kathari (thick Blanket), cord of cot, blouse, broken piece of glass bangles.

7. The prosecution to prove the charge in all examined 11 witnesses, 7 witnesses of fact and rest formal witnesses. The documentary evidence relied upon by the prosecution is marked Ex.-Ka-1 to Ex.-Ka-8.

8. Rajpati (P.W.-1) aged about 22 years, daughter of appellant- accused, reiterated the F.I.R. version and stated that the incident is of 29/30.04.2014, she alongwith her sister (Savita) was sleeping in a room, in another room her mother along with her younger brother (Vimlesh) was sleeping which is on the rear of the building. Her father (accused) alongwith her two brothers Santosh and Kamlesh were sleeping at the Dhaba on the opposite side of the building. Her brother went to pick mahua in the morning. P.W.-1 further stated that she proceeded towards the hilly area for answering nature's call; after sometime, her sister and brother returned and they saw her mother lying on the cot, and blood on the floor. Some unknown person had caused injury on the neck with an axe. In cross-examination, she stated that she was unaware as to who caused the injury. She, however, stated that there was some quarrel with her neighbour Rajnath Bharti. She further stated that the door of the house was open being the month of summer.

9. Savita (P.W.-2) aged about 28 years, daughter of the appellant-accused stated that the incident had occurred two years earlier, it was summer month. She and her brother Kamlesh were sleeping with their father in open place in front of the house; her mother (deceased) and younger brother Vimlesh were sleeping at the rear portion of the house. Before sunrise, she and her brother Kamlesh went on the western side of the house to pick mahua; on return, she found the neck of her mother slit and there was blood everywhere; mother had died. She expressed her ignorance about the person who could have caused the injury. She was declared hostile. In cross-examination by the prosecution, she stated that some quarrel took place with Rajnath Bharti @ Raju, their neighbour.

10. Kamlesh (P.W.-3), aged about 15 years, son of appellant-accused, stated that he has two brothers and two sisters. He further stated that in the morning, he saw that his mother was lying dead; blood was flowing from her neck; the neck was cut; his father was also present. He further stated that it transpires that Raju had committed the offence; Raju is resident of the same village; wife of Raju and his mother used to quarrel and fight; the family of Raju is involved in the crime. He further stated that his father has been falsely implicated and is in jail. In cross examination, he stated that his family lives together happily and there was no quarrel between his mother and father.

11. Santosh Kumar (P.W.-4), son of Nageshwar Vishwakarma, aged about 21 years an independent witness, stated that he knew the deceased and the appellant; she died at her home; he visited them in the morning and saw the deceased lying on the cot; neck was cut; on the floor there was pool of blood; axe was employed in causing the injury; the appellant was present at the house; he was not aware as to who could have caused the injury.

12. Anil Kumar (P.W.-5), independent witness, on hearing hue and cry, went to the house of the appellant; the deceased was lying dead in the house of the appellant; when he reached Santosh (P.W.-4) was present along with appellant/accused.

13. Jai Kumar (P.W.-6) stated that the appellant is his Mama, the deceased his Mami; on receiving information of the incident, he went to their house; body of the deceased was lying; Administration was present; he further stated that he saw that the neck of the deceased was cut; panchayatnama was prepared in his presence; the appellant was also present. Sharp weapon was employed in causing injury.

14. Asha (P.W.-7) wife of Jai Kumar, stated that the appellant is her Mamiya Sasur (Maternal Father-in-Law), she received information on mobile; she accompanied Jai Kumar (P.W.-6), on reaching the house of the appellant she saw the body of the deceased; appellant was present; she was not aware as to who caused the injury; she had signed the panchayatnama but was not aware what was written in the document.

15. The statements of the witnesses of fact and independent witnesses reflect:

(i) the deceased succumbed to homicidal death;

(ii) the incident occurred in the night between 29/30.04.2014;

(iii) appellant along with his family members were present in the premises;

(iv) the neck of the deceased was injured by a sharp weapon;

(v) no motive has been spelled rather the relation between the husband and wife was cordial;

(vi) the witnesses of fact suspected their neighbour;

16. Head Constable Radhey Shyam Maurya (P.W.-8) stated that he registered the F.I.R. on 30.04.2014 (Crime Case No. 120/2014) under section 302 I.P.C. on a written complaint of the appellant against unknown person. He prepared the chik F.I.R. The information was duly recorded at 10.15 a.m. In cross examination, he stated that F.I.R. was promptly registered; the appellant himself had delayed in informing the Thana.

17. S.O. Indra Bhan Singh Yadav (P.W.-9) claims to be the scribe of the report as informed by the appellant. After reducing the information in writing the appellant put his thumb impression. He also put his signature on the Tehrir (information). In cross-examination, he stated that he visited the site, the appellant is illiterate, therefore, on his request, he reduced the complaint to writing.

18. Dr. Sanjeev Verma (P.W.-10) deposed that he conducted the post-mortem on the body of the deceased on 01.05.20214 at 3.00 p.m.; deceased was aged about 42 years; rigor mortis was present; lacerated wound 7cm x 2cm on the left side of the neck, 9 cm in depth, 6 cm below the ear-neck bone fractured; sharp cut injury found; time of death is approximately 36 hours earlier; cause of death is due to shock and haemorrhage resulting from excessive bleeding. In cross-examination, he stated that a single assault was caused; repeated assault was not made.

19. Inspector Ravindra Bhushan Maurya (P.W.-11) stated that he received the investigation of the crime on 30.04.2014 and on the said date the formalities i.e. copy of chik, copy of report, Panchayatnama, statement of appellant-complainant, inspection of site, collecting blood stained soil and plain soil, piece of Kathari (thick blanket) was done and statement of witnesses was recorded.

20. Investigating Officer, P.W.-11, further, deposed that he recorded the statement of the witnesses who informed that on 22.04.2014 appellant attempted to hang himself and his daughter was screaming; Santosh Kumar Vishwakarma (P.W.-4) and Anil (P.W.-5) persuaded the appellant to climb down the tree. The rope was removed from the neck of the appellant; appellant was taking the extreme measure as there was some dispute with his wife with regard to his earnings; wife was not returning Rs. 2,400/- and Rs. 1,500/- of his earnings; similar statement was recorded of P.W.-4 and P.W.-5 with regard to the incident of attempt to suicide. He further stated that Gauri Shanker Chero informed him that the appellant and his wife was not having cordial relationship. The appellant was a moody person; he attempted to commit suicide but was rescued by the villagers; the appellant could have done anything on not receiving his money from his wife; it can be said that appellant caused injury to his wife. Appellant could have caused injury under the influence of alcohol/ ganja.

21. P.W.-11 further stated that on 04.05.2014 supplementary statement of the appellant was recorded, he confessed commission of the offence stating that at about 3.00 a.m. between the night of 29/30.04.2014, he caused injury to his wife on the neck with an axe. The appellant was taken into custody, the crime weapon was recovered at his pointing out from the rear Dhaba hidden between the wall and covered roof (Chhajan/Chhajja). Crime weapon was recovered in the presence of independent witnesses; the statement of the accused and other witnesses was videographed; some of the witnesses to the Panchayatnama (Ganga Yadav) stated that the appellant was habitual consumer of ganja; for quite some time accused was having strained relationship with his wife. Appellant confessed the commission of the crime. After investigation on 06.06.2014 charge-sheet was filed against the appellant under Section 302 IPC. He further stated that after confession and discovery of the crime weapon the appellant accused was formally arrested and brought to Thana at about 3.15 p.m.; the site plan was prepared; other recovered items like clothes etc. was sent to Forensic Science Laboratory (FSL) for examination. In cross-examination, he stated that the crime weapon was recovered after 5 days of the incident.

22. The appellant-accused on being confronted with the prosecution evidence and the incriminating documentary material, in statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. denied the charge stating that he has been falsely implicated; wrong investigation was done; a false charge-sheet was filed; recovery of crime weapon was wrongly proved. He further stated that he had not killed his wife; he has been implicated falsely; the entire trial is based on wrong and false documents. He declined to produce any evidence in defence.

23. The trial court on considering the statement of the witnesses of fact, the documentary evidence and the recovery of the crime weapon at the pointing out of the appellant from his house, the presence of human blood on the axe and the clothes and other accessories of the deceased, was of the opinion that the prosecution proved the charge beyond reasonable doubt. Accordingly, convicted and sentenced the accused for life.

24. On closely and carefully analysing the statement of the witnesses of the fact the following circumstance is duly proved:

i. that the deceased, wife of the appellant succumbed to injury caused on the left side of the neck by an axe;

ii. that her body was found in the room where she went to sleep along with her younger son;

iii. that the crime weapon (axe) was recovered on the information and pointing by the accused;

iv. that children, including, adult children (P.W.-1 and P.W.-2) of the deceased and her husband were present on the premises in the night of the incident between 29/30.04.2014;

v. that the cause of death by a sharp weapon has been duly proved by the medical expert opinion P.W.-10;

vi. FSL report shows presence of human blood on the axe.

25. The time of death as per the confessional statement of the accused (3.00 a.m.) corroborates with the medical expert opinion i.e. 36 hours prior to the post mortem.

26. The trial court convicted the appellant and held him guilty of the offence placing reliance on Section 106 of the Evidence Act. It is noted in the impugned judgment that since the offence was committed in secrecy within the house of the appellant and his presence at the relevant time is proved, the onus would shift upon the appellant to explain as to how the incident had occurred. Since no explanation was forth-coming in the statement of the appellant recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the trial court convicted the appellant.

27. The burden not being discharged by the accused and no explanation given by him in Section 313 Cr.P.C. statement is concerned, it is trite law that only after the prosecution discharges its burden of proving the case beyond reasonable doubt, the burden would shift on the accused. It is not necessary to reiterate this proposition of law with authorities.

28. The fact that a defence may not have been taken by an accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. again cannot absolve the prosecution from proving its case beyond all reasonable doubt. If there are materials which the prosecution is unable to answer, the weakness in the defence taken cannot become the strength of the prosecution to claim that in the circumstances it was not required to prove anything.

29. In Sunil Kundu v. State of Jharkhand1, Supreme Court observed :

"28. ... When the prosecution is not able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt it cannot take advantage of the fact that the accused have not been able to probabilise their defence. It is well settled that the prosecution must stand or fall on its own feet. It cannot draw support from the weakness of the case of the accused, if it has not proved its case beyond reasonable doubt." (Refer: Anand Ramachandra Chougule v. Sidarai Laxman Chougala and others2)

30. If an offence takes place inside the privacy of a house and in such circumstances where the assailant has all the opportunity to map and commit the offence at the time and in circumstances of his choice, it will be extremely difficult for the prosecution to lead evidence to establish the guilt of the accused if the strict principle of circumstantial evidence, is insisted upon by the Courts.

31. In such circumstances, in view of the Section 106 of the Evidence Act, there will be a corresponding burden on the appellant to give a cogent explanation as to how crime was committed. The corresponding burden would also be on the inmates of the house, as to how the crime was committed.

32. As pointed out that Section 106 of the Evidence Act, is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt, but the section would apply to cases where the prosecution has succeeded in proving facts for which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of special knowledge regarding such facts failed to offer any explanation which might drive the court to draw a different inference.

33. Similarly, in Vikramjit Singh v. State of Punjab3 Supreme Court reiterated: (SCC p. 313, para 14)

"14. Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not relieve the prosecution to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt. Only when the prosecution case has been proved the burden in regard to such facts which was within the special knowledge of the accused may be shifted to the accused for explaining the same. Of course, there are certain exceptions to the said rule e.g. where burden of proof may be imposed upon the accused by reason of a statute."

34. The question that arises is as to whether prosecution was able to prove the incriminating circumstances beyond reasonable doubt. The prosecution case is based on circumstantial evidence. The homicidal death of the deceased had taken place in the room in which the appellant, admittedly, as per the testimony of the witnesses of fact, was not present at the time of occurrence. A close scrutiny of the cite plan shows that appellant alongwith his two children was sleeping at the southern end of the thatched house which is marked "C". Moving further immediately south of the building the daughter was sleeping at spot marked "B", further south of the premises is the thatched house and still further extreme south is an open space where goats are tied and beside it is a room where the deceased was found murdered on the cot. Further, south of the room is road followed by open land and a house. On East, West and North, the thatched house is surrounded with open land and towards extreme North the hilly area is depicted. The room where the body of the deceased was found is adjacent to a road; ingress to the room is through a single door from outside the building; the room is not connected through the house. The room where the accused was sleeping and the room where the deceased was sleeping is not interconnected through the thatched house. The accused would have to cover the distance from outside the house i.e. through the open land to reach the room of the deceased. As per the cite plan, room of the deceased was accessible to any person being adjacent to the road and surrounded by open land; the door opens to the surrounding open land. Further, the prosecution evidence shows that the building is a Dhaba, meaning thereby, that the place is accessible to public and the deceased was sleeping at the outer Dhaba adjoining the public road. There is no boundary wall; the open space (land) around the house leads to the hilly area accessible to public/strangers.

35. In the backdrop of the cite plan, the prosecution has not been able to establish the missing link i.e. connecting the presence of the appellant at the time of commission of the offence at about 3.00 a.m. in the night between 29/30.04.2014. As per prosecution case several persons were present in the house along with the appellant. The appellant came to be convicted on his confessional statement and the recovery of the assault weapon on his pointing out. The confessional statement will not be read against the appellant and the conviction would not rest on the recovery of the assault weapon alone in the backdrop of the statement of the witnesses and the cite plan showing that the room of the deceased was accessible to one and all, including, strangers. The door of the room was open being summer month (per P.W.-1).

36. The circumstance proved by the prosecution is that the appellant was not alone with his wife in the house when she was murdered. Admittedly, grown up children i.e. sons and daughters were also present; the witnesses of fact and independent witnesses have not been able to prove that the relation between the appellant and his wife was strained; the theory of strained relationship driving the appellant to commit suicide few days earlier of the incident for money was not proved by the witnesses examined by the prosecution, including, independent witnesses. The motive has not been proved nor assigned for commission of the offence.

37. The position of law is well settled that the links in the chain of circumstances is necessary to be established for conviction resting upon circumstantial evidence. This has been articulated in one of the early decisions of the Supreme Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda v. State of Maharashtra4. The relevant paragraphs reads thus:

"153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned "must or should" and not "may be" established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between "may be proved" and "must be or should be proved" as was held by this

Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobadev. State of Maharashtra where the observations were made: [SCC para 19, p. 807: SCC (Cri) p. 1047]

Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between "may be' and "must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty,

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency,

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence.

38. In the present case, it is not the case of the prosecution witness that accused was seen either at the room of the deceased or moving towards the room where his wife was lying or the appellant moving out of the room of his wife at about 3:00 a.m. This material circumstance was relevant which the prosecution did not prove having regard to the location of the room of the deceased as shown in the cite plan. As noted earlier, the deceased was sleeping in a room which was not connected from within the house; the room was accessible to any person, including, all the family members. The room has single door opening in the open and the road. Appellant was not seen around the room of the deceased at the time of the alleged incident. There is no motive for commission of the offence. In this backdrop to shift the burden upon the appellant under Section-106 of Evidence Act, on mere suspicion to explain how the incident happened, prosecution has primarily shifted the burden of proof upon the accused to prove his innocence. The recovery of the weapon on the pointing out of the accused is one circumstance in the chain of circumstances, but that should connect the accused with the offence, which is missing. The prosecution failed to prove that in the night between 29/30 April 2014, he alone had accessed the room of the deceased. In absence of such an evidence there is scope/room for several probabilities. Suspicion, however, grave cannot take the form of proof.

39. In a case based on circumstantial evidence, motive assumes great significance. It is not as if motive alone becomes the crucial link in the case to be established by the prosecution and in its absence the case of prosecution must be discarded. But, at the same time, complete absence of motive assumes a different complexion and such absence definitely weighs in favour of the accused.

40. Now so far as the submission on behalf of the appellant/accused that in the present case the prosecution has failed to establish and prove the motive and therefore the accused deserves acquittal is concerned, it is true that the absence of proving the motive cannot be a ground to reject the prosecution case. It is also true and as held in Suresh Chandra Bahri v.

State of Bihar5, that if motive is proved that would supply a link in the chain of circumstantial evidence but the absence thereof cannot be a ground to reject the prosecution case. However, at the same time, as observed by the Supreme Court in Babu v. State of Kerala6, absence of motive in a case depending on circumstantial evidence is a factor that weighs in favour of the accused. In paras 25 and 26, it is observed and held as under :

"25. In State of U.P. v. Kishanpal7, this Court examined the importance of motive in cases of circumstantial evidence and observed :

"38. ... the motive is a thing which is primarily known to the accused themselves and it is not possible for the prosecution to explain what actually promoted or excited them to commit the particular crime.

39. The motive may be considered as a circumstance which is relevant for assessing the evidence but if the evidence is clear and unambiguous and the circumstances prove the guilt of the accused, the same is not weakened even if the motive is not a very strong one. It is also settled law that the motive loses all its importance in a case where direct evidence of eyewitnesses is available, because even if there may be a very strong motive for the accused persons to commit a particular crime, they cannot be convicted if the evidence of eyewitnesses is not convincing. In the same way, even if there may not be an apparent motive but if the evidence of the eyewitnesses is clear and reliable, the absence or inadequacy of motive cannot stand in the way of conviction.'

*26. This Court has also held that the absence of motive in a case depending on circumstantial evidence is a factor that weighs in favour of the accused. (Vide Pannayar v. State of T.N.8,)"

12. In the subsequent decision in Shivaji Chintappa Patil vs. State of Maharashtra9, this Court relied upon the decision in Anwar Ali1 and observed as under:-

*"27. Though in a case of direct evidence, motive would not be relevant, in a case of circumstantial evidence, motive plays an important link to complete the chain of circumstances. The motive... ..." (Refer: Anwar Ali vs. State of Himachal Pradesh10)

41. The conviction of the appellant rests on recovery of the assault weapon on his pointing out. The knowledge of the accused that he has hidden the crime weapon and recovered it in the presence of the Investigating Officer (I.O.) and other witnesses, followed by his information is not sufficient to link the appellant with the commission of the offence without there being a motive and the link/ connection of the appellant at the relevant time he being present in or around the room of the wife. The cite plan clearly shows that the room where the wife was sleeping is not connected through the house, the room is accessible from open land on three sides of the house, as well as, from the road. In other words, the room of the deceased can be accessed by any person just not the appellant or the other inmates residing in the house.

42. With regard to Section 27 of the Evidence Act, what is important is discovery of the material object at the disclosure of the accused but such disclosure alone would not automatically lead to the conclusion that the offence was also committed by the accused. In fact, thereafter, burden lies on the prosecution to establish a close link between discovery of the material objects and its use in the commission of the offence. What is admissible under Section 27 is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution.

43. The various requirements of Section 27 of Evidence Act, can be summed up as follows:

(1) The fact of which evidence is sought to be given must be relevant to the issue. It must be borne in mind that the provision has nothing to do with question of relevancy. The relevancy of the fact discovered must be established according to the prescriptions relating to relevancy of other evidence connecting it with the crime in order to make the fact discovered admissible.

(2) The fact must have been discovered.

(3) The discovery must have been in consequence of some information received from the accused and not by accused's own act.

(4) The persons giving the information must be accused of any offence.

(5) He must be in the custody of a police officer.

(6) The discovery of a fact in consequence of information received from an accused in custody must be deposed to.

(7) Thereupon only that portion of the information which relates distinctly or strictly to the fact discovered can be proved. The rest is inadmissible.

44. As observed in Pulukuri Kotayya Versus Emperor11, it can seldom happen that information leading to the discovery of a fact forms the foundation of the prosecution case. It is one link in the chain of proof and the other links must be forged in manner allowed by law. To similar effect was the view expressed in K. Chinnaswamy Reddy versus State of Andhra Pradesh and another12.

45. Under Section 27 of the Evidence Act, mere recovery of the blood stained weapon (axe) cannot be construed as providing acceptable proof for the murder without there being any substantive evidence. The Supreme Court considered this aspect in the case of Mustkeem @ Sirajudin Versus State of Rajasthan13, as under:

"23. The AB blood group which was found on the clothes of the deceased does not by itself establish the guilt of the Appellant unless the same was connected with the murder of deceased by the Appellants. None of the witnesses examined by the prosecution could establish that fact. The blood found on the sword recovered at the instance of the Mustkeem was not sufficient for test as the same had already disintegrated. At any rate, due to the reasons elaborated in the following paragraphs, the fact that the traces of blood found on the deceased matched those found on the recovered weapons cannot ipso facto enable us to arrive at the conclusion that the latter were used for the murder." (Refer: Jeeva Versus State of Rajasthan14)

46. The recovery of the crime weapon in the facts of the case in hand was made after five days, though the accused is the complainant and was present throughout the investigation but the crime weapon has not been linked with the commission of the offence.

47. Having regard to the prosecution evidence and the testimony of the independent witness, the trial court committed an error in convicting the appellant merely on the strength of recovery of the crime weapon on the pointing out of the appellant. The finding reached by the trial court is perse perverse, no reference or reliance was placed on the cite plan i.e. the room of the deceased was accessible to the public and not connected from inside the house. The offence, having regard to the cite plan cannot be set to have been committed in secrecy of the house by the appellant. The prosecution was unable to prove that appellant alone was accessible to the room of the deceased, further, whether he was seen either accessing the room of the deceased or leaving the room at the alleged time of the commission of the offence by any other person. This was a relevant material circumstance to connect the appellant in commission of the offence. Further, motive has also not been proved which was relevant in the given case solely based on the circumstantial evidence.

48. The jail appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order of the conviction and sentence is set aside. The appellant Chatthoo Chero is directed to be released forthwith, if not wanted in any other offence.

49. The appellant on being released the mandate of Section 437A Cr.P.C. to be complied.

50. Let the lower court record be sent back to the court below forthwith along with a copy of this judgment, for ascertaining necessary compliance.

51. We record our appreciation in assistance rendered by the learned Amicus Curiae. The counsel fee assessed at Rs. 20,000/- to be released to the learned Amicus Curiae.

Counsel for the Respondent:

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Section 3- Case of circumstantial evidence - In a case which rests on circumstantial evidence, the law postulates two fold requirements; Firstly, that every link in the chain of circumstances necessary to establish the guilt of the accused must be established by the prosecution beyond all reasonable doubt; Secondly, that all the circumstances must be consistent only with the guilt of the accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence.

Settled law that in a case resting upon circumstantial evidence the prosecution has to prove all the links in the chain of circumstances, which should establish the guilt of the accused beyond any reasonable doubt.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Sections 3 , 7 & 106- Last seen theory- The principle is based on the provisions of Section 106 of the Evidence Act which lay down that when any fact is established within the knowledge of the person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Thus, if a person is last seen with the deceased, he must offer an explanation as to how and when he parted company. He must furnish an explanation which appears to the Court to be probable and satisfactory. If he does so he must be held to have discharged his burden. If he fails to offer an explanation on the basis of facts within his special knowledge, he fails to discharge the burden cast upon him by Section 106 of the Evidence Act. However, Section 106 does not shift the burden of proof in a criminal trial, which is always upon the prosecution- If the prosecution has succeeded in proving the fact by definite evidence that the deceased was last seen alive in the company of the accused, a reasonable inference could be drawn against the accused and then only onus can be shifted on the accused under Section 106 of the Evidence Act.

The last seen theory rests upon Section 106 of the Evidence Act in as much the burden of proof is cast upon the accused to explain the facts especially within his knowledge to explain the homicidal death of the person last seen in the company of the accused but the prosecution has to first establish that the deceased was last seen in the company of the accused beyond all reasonable doubt.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Sections 3 , 7 & 106- Last seen theory- P.W.-1 was told by someone that the deceased was seen with some persons on the date of his missing- His statement of last seen of the deceased in the company of the accused is not found clinching as it cannot be said that the deceased was exclusively in the company of the accused persons. The lapse of time between the point when the accused and the deceased were seen together with an unknown person and when the deceased was found dead is not so minimal as to exclude the possibility of any supervening event involving the death at the hands of another. The possibility of any person other than the accused appellants being the author of the crime cannot be ruled out.

In order to establish that the deceased was only in the company of the accused, it has to be proved that the time interval between last having seen the deceased in the company of the accused and his death was so minimal that would exclude the possibility of any other person being involved in the death of the deceased.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 24 - Extra judicial confession is a weak piece of evidence. There must be some very good reason for making the disclosure by the accused to the witnesses for the Court to place reliance on such an evidence.

Settled law that extra judicial confession is a weak type of evidence and the same cannot be relied upon for convicting the accused.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 114(g) - In the matter of non-examination of the Investigating Officer, the legal position is that there can be no universal straight jacket formula that the non-examination of the Investigating Officer per se vitiates the criminal trial. It would depend upon the facts of the particular case as to whether the non-examination of the Investigating Officer had caused prejudice to the accused. The accused appellants have been seriously prejudiced on account of non-examination of the Investigating Officer and this omission has created a deep dent in the prosecution case.

Non examination of the investigating officer would not be fatal for the prosecution unless it is shown that the same has resulted in serious prejudice to the defence.

The cumulative effect of the prosecution evidence, thus, is that the witnesses of the prosecution have not been found trustworthy; the contradictions in their testimony remained unexplained for non-examination of the Investigating Officer; the chain of circumstances putforth by the prosecution has many loose links which could not be connected to each other. (Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sunita Agarwal, J.

1. Heard Ms. Neelam Giri and Sri Himanshu Giri learned counsels for the appellant Rajpal Singh, Sri Kunwar Ajay Singh learned Amicus Curiae appearing on behalf of appellants Manoj and Munna Ram @ Baba in the connected appeals and Sri Rajan Prasad Mishra learned A.G.A for the State respondents.

2. These appeals are directed against the judgment and order dated 08.05.1997 passed by the IIIrd Additional District & Sessions Judge, Kanpur Dehat in S.T. No.104 of 1992 and S.T. No. 417 of 1992 arising out of Case Crime No.191 of 1991 under Section 302, 201, 120-B IPC, P.S. Rasoolabad, District Kanpur Dehat whereby three accused/appellants namely Manoj, Rajpal Singh and Munna Ram @ Baba have been convicted of the offence under Section 302 read with Section 34 & 120-B IPC and punished for life imprisonment. The accused/appellants have also been convicted under Section 201 IPC and punished for additional five years rigorous imprisonment. Both the punishments are to run concurrently.

3. The first information report is in the nature of a written report submitted by Jeet Singh (P.W.-1) on 27.12.1991 at about 10.30 A.M. reporting that the dead body of his brother Vijay Pal Singh was found on the Chakroad near the field of Shambhu Pandit hidden in a 'paddy Payar'. It was stated therein that the deceased Vijay Pal Singh used to work in Rasoolabad and to come back daily from the workplace in the evening. On 23.12.1991, when he did not return home, he was looked after everywhere. At the time of search, the first informant came to know that the deceased had consumed liquor with some people on 23.12.1991 near the Usri Nursery and after that he had never been seen. The blood stained body cloth (अँगोछा) of the deceased was found on the Chak road near the field of Shambhu Pandit and besides that the 'Paddy Payar' was lying. Being suspicious, when 'Paddy Payar' was turned over, dead body of Vijay Pal Singh was found hidden in it. The injuries on the body of the deceased seem to have been caused by an object like Axe (कुल्हाड़ी).

4. On the said report, the police had reached the spot, recovered blood stained and plain earth on 27.12.1991. The inquest was conducted on the same day which commenced at about 11.15 AM and concluded at about 12.20 PM. The postmortem was conducted on 28.12.1991 at about 01.00 PM. The injuries found on the person of the deceased were lacerated wounds on the forehead 6 cm x 2 cm left upper arm, chin, elbow and multiple abrasions on whole of the body. The proximate time of death was reported about 4-5 days and the cause of death was hemorrhage due to ante-mortem injuries.

5. At the outset, we may note that the genuineness of the police papers namely the chik report, the recovery memo of blood stained and plain earth, inquest report, the recovery memo of blood stained clothes of the deceased, the charge sheet as also the postmortem report was admitted by the defence and an endorsement to that can be found on the said documents. The formal proof of these documents was, thus, dispensed with and they were exhibited as Exhibit Ka-6, Exhibit Ka-10, Exhibit Ka-16, Exhibit Ka-17, Exhibit Ka-18, and Exhibit Ka-19; respectively.

6. Apart from the above papers, other documentary evidences on record are two written reports; one given by Laakhan Singh son of Mulayam Singh and another allegedly given by Chatrapal Singh son of Jaahar Singh as also a recovery memo dated 09.01.1992. The genuineness of these documents was not admitted by the defence and they are sought to be proved by the prosecution witnesses in their oral testimony. The Investigating Officer of the case and other formal witnesses had not entered in the witness box and the prosecution sought to prove its case by five witnesses of fact.

7. The charges were framed against the accused persons namely Manoj and Rajpal under Section 302 read with 34 IPC Section 201 IPC and Section 120-B IPC, whereas by a separate order, charge had been framed against the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba of hatching a conspiracy to commit the murder of Vijay Pal Singh alongwith Manoj and Rajpal in furtherance of common intention of all accused punishable under Section 120-B IPC. The accused appellants denied the charges and demanded trial.

8. Amongst five witnesses of fact, PW-1 Jeet Singh (brother of the deceased) is the first informant; PW-2 Rakesh Awasthi is the witness of last seen of deceased Vijay Pal Singh with appellants Manoj and Rajpal Singh and one more person; PW-3 Vishwa Nath Singh entered in the witness box as a witness of Extra judicial confession of appellants Manoj and Rajpal Singh who met him before the incident on 23.12.1991 at about 04.00 PM; PW-4 Chatrapal Singh is another brother of the deceased and PW-5 Laakhan Singh entered in the witness box to prove the conspiracy and a recovery allegedly made at the instance of appellant Munna Ram @ Baba.

9. The written report given by PW-1 in the police station on 27.12.1991 after discovery of the dead body of his brother Vijay Pal Singh, had been proved by him being in his handwriting and signature as Exhibit Ka-1. In the examination-in-chief, PW-1 stated that on the fateful day, deceased Vijay Pal Singh had left his house for his workplace at about 07-7.30 AM but did not return home. They kept on searching for him and then one boy Mahesh of the village informed PW-1 that he heard screams of "Bachao Bachao" near the Nursery of village Usri. All of them, then, went to search the said place. The blood stained body cloth (अंगौछा) belonging to deceased Vijay Pal Singh was found lying at the chak road near the field of Shambhu Pandit. The dead body was found hidden in the 'Payar' of paddy in the field of Shambhu Pandit. There were injuries of a sharp edged weapon on the forehead and chin. After the recovery of the body, PW-1 went to the police station to lodge the first information report and then he met Pradeep, Rakesh Awasthi (PW-2) who told him that they had seen deceased Vijay Pal Singh alive in the company of appellants Rajpal Singh and Manoj near the Nursery and both the appellants were carrying sharp edged weapons in their hand which was like kulhari (axe).

10. PW-1 then narrates the motive of the appellant Rajpal Singh to commit the crime by saying that deceased Vijay pal Singh had mortgaged his field to Rajpal about two years back and Rajpal made him a Guarantor in a loan taken by his friend Vinod Kumar Singh. Vijay Pal Singh had received notices from the bank as the loan remained unpaid. On account of that fact, the mortgaged land was occupied by deceased Vijay Pal Singh. The appellant Rajpal was carrying grudges against the deceased due to that fact. The papers pertaining to the mortgage of the field of Vijay Pal Singh were filed in the Court and the signature of deceased Vijay Pal Singh on the same was proved as Exhibit Ka-2.

11. A separate motive was assigned to appellant Manoj that he had purchased the bicycle of the deceased for Rs.160/- but did not pay the sale consideration nor returned the bicycle.

12. In cross, PW-1 was questioned on the information given to Chatrapal, his another brother and when crossed on the alleged report given by Chatrapal to the police officer, PW-1 further stated that he had given the written report (Exhibit Ka-1) to the police officer on 22.12.1991 at about 09-10 AM and no one told him to have witnessed his deceased brother between 23.12.1991 and 27.12.1991. The report was lodged by him after discovery of the body and after lodging of the report, he came to know that his brother had consumed liquor with some people near the Usri Nursery and, thereafter, he went missing.

13. Noticeable is the deposition of PW-1 when he says that the Investigating Officer had never recorded his statement in relation to the incident and that the Investigating Officer had recorded statement of his brother Chatrapal Singh. PW-1 had denied the suggestion that the murder was committed by some other person than the accused appellants.

14. From the statement of PW-1, it is evident that he had proved the factum of lodging of the first information report after recovery of the dead body of his brother Vijay Pal Singh on the information given by some villager, which was concealed near the Usri Nursery and also assigned motive to accused Rajpal Singh and Manoj for committing the crime.

15. PW-2 Rakesh Awasthi is the witness who stated that he had seen the deceased Vijay Pal Singh alongwith appellants Rajpal, Manoj and one more person. As per the statement of PW-2 in the examination-in-chief, while he was going his home from Rasoolabad alongwith one Pradeep Dubey in a tempo, at about 07.00 PM, he had seen Rajpal, Manoj, Vijay Pal

Singh (deceased) alongwith one more person standing near the Nursery. They were talking and Rajpal and Manoj were carrying Kulhari. He could identify the fourth person who was standing with them if came before him. Vijay Pal Singh was carrying his bicycle while talking to the appellants. PW-2 stated that he had seen them in the light of tempo. In the morning of 27.12.1991, he came to know that Vijay Pal Singh was murdered and his body was found near the Nursery. He and Pradeep then went to the house of Vijay Pal Singh and from there they went to the Nursery where the body was discovered. The fact that they had seen the deceased alive with the appellants before he went missing was intimated by them to Chatrapal (another brother of the deceased). A report was then scribed by Chatrapal on the dictation of Pradeep. The said report was then signed by PW-2 Rakesh Awasthi and Pradeep as also Chatrapal. This report was shown to PW-2 who had proved it being the same report and it was exhibited as Exhibit Ka-3.

16. In cross, PW-2 was confronted on the point that two caretakers were residing in the Nursery which was a government Nursery and the road wherefrom they had allegedly seen the appellants alongwith the deceased was a busy road. The reason for PW-2 and another witness Pradeep traveling together in the tempo was explained by him. PW-2 when confronted as to why he did not intimate the fact of last seen to the first informant Jeet Singh, it was explained by PW-2 that when he came to know about the discovery of the dead body on 27.12.1991 at about 06.00 AM, he reached the house of Vijay Pal Singh at about 07.00 AM where he met Chatrapal and the first informant Jeet Singh was not there. He then went to the place of recovery of the dead body alongwith Chatrapal and there also he did not meet Jeet Singh. He remained at that place uptill 12.00-01.00 PM. When he reached at the spot police was already present, he was made the inquest witness. After the dead body was sealed and sent for the postmortem, the report Exhibit Ka-3 was scribed. PW-2 then stated that he had informed of having seen the appellants and the deceased together to Chatrapal when they were in the village. PW-2 stated that the Investigating Officer had interrogated him on 27.12.1991 and two and three times thereafter. He could meet the first informant Jeet Singh around 10.00-10.30 AM on 27.12.1991. PW-2 denied having information of the motive assigned to the accused Rajpal and also that he was not travelling in the tempo on 23.12.1991 and did not cross the place at about 07.00 PM. He had denied having not seen the appellants and the deceased together near the Nursery.

17. PW-3-Vishwa Nath Singh is the witness who stated that on 23.12.1991 while going somewhere, when he reached near the Nursery, he found appellants Manoj and Rajpal standing on the Medh of the field of Vijay Pal Singh. They both called him and told that Vijay Pal Singh would die from their hands as he was not paying their money. The appellants Rajpal and Manoj also told that if they caught Vijay Pal Singh on that day he would not be spared. PW-3 stated that on hearing that he did not give much attention and without saying anything to them he proceeded to his destination which was Malkhanpur. The reason given by PW-3 for not confronting the appellants Rajpal and Manoj is that they were carrying Kulhari in their hands. In the evening, he came to know that Vijay Pal Singh did not reach home and later his dead body was found near the Nursery.

18. This witness, in cross, admitted that his house was opposite the house of Vijay Pal Singh and he and Vijay Pal Singh belong to one family. He did not disclose the reason for going to Malkhanpur and stated that when he reached back home from Malkhanpur,Sun was already set. He came to know at about 10.00 PM on that day itself that Vijay Pal Singh did not reach back home but stated that he did not talk to the first informant Jeet Singh. He had denied having information that villagers were carrying searches for Vijay Pal, the deceased. The explanation for this was offered by PW-3 with the assertion that he went to Hardoi to meet his daughter on the next morning, at about 06.00 AM, and returned back to his village in the evening of 27.12.1991. He then came to know about the recovery of the dead body from the place near the Nursery and immediately went to the said place where he met the first informant Jeet Singh.

19. PW-3 then stated that he stayed near the dead body throughout the whole night. The Investigating Officer had sealed the body at about 04.00 AM (in the morning) and then he alongwith the first informant Jeet Singh, Chatrapal and other persons went with the dead body which was sent to Kanpur around day time. After the dead body was sent to Kanpur he came back to the village. PW-3 stated that he did not talk to the Investigating Officer at the place of the incident and for the first time he disclosed the confession of the appellants to Jeet Singh. The statement of PW-3, according to him, was recorded by the Investigating Officer after 10 to 12 days of the incident.

20. PW-4 is Chatrapal Singh, another brother of the deceased who was living in Kanpur at the time of the incident. He stated that he came to know about the death of his brother Vijay Pal on 27.12.1991 and then reached the village alongwith the person who gave him information. When he reached near the Nursery, the police was preparing papers relating to the body. He met Pradeep Singh at that place who had disclosed him of having seen the deceased with the appellants. Later, he came to know that the conspiracy for murder was hatched by appellant Munna Ram @ Baba and that fact was disclosed to him by Laakhan Singh on 09.01.1992. They all then went to the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba on 09.01.1992 who confessed that he could make recovery of bicycle and Shoes of the deceased. PW-4 Chatrapal stated that at the time of the recovery of shoes and bicycle of the deceased at the instance of appellant Munna Ram @ Baba, the Investigating Officer was present and the memo of recovery was prepared by the Investigating Officer at the spot. After preparation of the same, it was read over to them and he and other witnesses then put their signatures. This recovery memo was proved by PW-4 as Exhibit Ka-4. The report given by Laakhan Singh in the police station on 09.01.1992 was also proved by him having written before him and bearing his signature as Exhibit Ka-5.

21. In cross, PW-4 stated that an application was given by him to the investigating officer on 27.12.1991 at the spot before the dead body was sent for postmortem, which was written by him at about 09.00-9.30 AM but the said application was not proved by this witness saying that it was not available on the record.

22. PW-4, in cross, had shown ignorance about the time when he gave the report dated 27.12.1991. He, however, clarified that he did not include the name of Munna Ram @ Baba in his report given on 27.12.1991 as he was not aware of the conspiracy hatched by him by that time.

23. We may note at this juncture, that the prosecution did not show the application 'Exhibit Ka-3' to PW-4 Chatrapal in the Court and the said application was exhibited on the statement of PW-2 as a signatory. The discussion in this regard will be made in the later part of the judgment.

24. PW-4 further stated that he remained in the village for about 15 to 20 days and reiterated that on 09.01.1992 while he was talking to Laakhan Singh (PW-5), they all went to the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba which was barely 2 to 2.5 km from the village. The Investigating Officer also reached at the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba at about 06.30 AM and from there they all went to the place wherefrom bicycle and shoes were recovered. The recovery was made from a place which was about 150 to 250 meters away from the road, whereas the body was found from a place about 100 meters away from the road. When confronted about the recovery and that the recovery memo was prepared in the police station, PW-4 admitted that the entire proceeding was conducted in the police station. The report regarding recovery was given by Laakhan Singh on 09.01.1992 which was signed by him. PW-4 then stated that the Investigating Officer had recorded his statement on 09.01.1992 itself at the spot of the recovery and before that day the Investigating Officer did not interrogate him. When confronted as to why the fact of recovery being made in the presence of the Investigating Officer had not been mentioned in his previous version under Section 161 Cr.P.C., PW-4 stated that the reason was not known to him.

25. PW-5 Laakhan Singh is the witness who was produced by the prosecution to prove the conspiracy hatched by three appellants namely Rajpal, Manoj and Munna Ram @ Baba.

26. As per the statement of PW-5, he went to the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba on 23.12.1991 at about 10.00 AM to meet him. On that day, he gave donation on the asking of Baba for the construction of his hut which was Rs.50/-; 2-3-4 persons were sitting in the hut of Baba and they were having Charas. Amongst them, he could identify Manoj, Rajpal and Baba and one more person was there who was not known to him. PW-5 had also identified appellants Manoj & Rajpal present in the Court. He then stated that he evesdropped on the conversation of appellants Manoj, Rajpal with Munna Ram @ Baba when they were saying that they had agreed to the suggestion of Munna @ Baba that they would kill Vijay Pal Singh on that very day but they had no weapon with them; the accused Munna Ram @ Baba then told that he had Kulhari and it was enough to kill Vijay Pal Singh and that they can come in the evening to take Kulhari. PW-5 stated that after hearing that he went to Rasoolabad from where he had to go to Kanpur for some business purpose. When he came back to the village, he came to know about the murder of Vijay Pal Singh, he then disclosed the above noted facts to the family members of the deceased. They all then went to the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba where he could not be found. They then kept on making enquiry privately and on 09.01.1992 when they met Baba in his hut, they nabbed and threatened him that he would be killed. It was then Baba disclosed about the place where bicycle and shoes of deceased Vijay Pal Singh were concealed. The recovery of the above two articles was made at the instance of appellant Munna Ram @ Baba who was nabbed by PW-5 alongwith Chatrapal, Puttan Khan, Vijay Bahadur and many other villagers and was then taken to the police station. The report exhibited as Exhibit Ka-5, was proved by this witness (PW-5) being in his handwriting and signature carrying thumb impression of the witnesses.

27. PW-5 stated that the said report was prepared by him and given in the police station alongwith the recovered articles namely bicycle and shoes of the deceased. The accused Munna Ram @ Baba was also handed over to the police at the same time. The recovery memo exhibited as Exhibit Ka-4 was then shown to this witness and he had proved his signature on the same. Lakhan Singh (PW-5) stated that his house was located in front of the house of PW-1 Jeet Singh. On being confronted as to why he did not disclose the conspiracy hatched by three accused persons to anyone prior to 09.01.1992, PW-5 explained that he did not mention the said fact as he thought that the accused persons were talking under intoxication of Charas and could not think that they would actually commit murder. PW-5 also stated that he went to Kanpur on 23.12.1991 and after coming back to village on 27.12.1991 when he met Chatrapal he was not aware that the report of the murder had already been lodged in the police station and that against whom the said report was lodged.

28. On being confronted about his version in the written report exhibited as 'Exhibit Ka-5' that he knew about lodging of the first information report of the incident, PW-5 had denied his statement in the said report. PW-5 then stated that he was interrogated by the Investigating Officer and denied the suggestion that he knew that Munna Ram @ Baba was interrogated by the police earlier. PW-5 had denied suggestion of enmity or fight with accused Manoj and Rajpal and also denied the suggestion that he did not hear anything on the date of the incident and that the report 'Exhibit Ka-5' was written by him being of the community of the deceased. PW-5 had also denied the suggestion that he did not go to the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba and that he was making statement at the instance of Jeet Singh, the brother of the deceased.

29. It may be relevant to note, at this juncture, that the alleged recovered articles namely the bicycle and shoes of the deceased were not produced in the Court and as such were not identified by those persons in whose presence they were allegedly recovered at the instance of accused Munna Ram @ Baba.

30. After going through the statements of the prosecution witnesses, it may also be pertinent to note, at this stage itself, that the entire case rests on circumstantial evidence of last seen, extra judicial confession, recovery of certain articles belonging to the deceased at the instance of one of the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba and the written reports regarding the last seen and recovery of articles given to the Investigating Officer by PW-4 and PW-5, during the course of the investigation.

31. Before dealing with the arguments of the learned counsel for the appellants, we also find it apposite to go through the case diary as the Investigating Officer of the case had not been produced in the witness box. The reason being that in a case of circumstantial evidence, the evidence collected by the Investigating Officer to crack the case assumes significance. We have already noted above that the papers prepared and proved by the prosecution witnesses (PW-1 to PW-5) were not admitted by the defence and were exhibited on the testimony of these witnesses. As to what extent the witnesses have been able to prove those documents would be subject matter of further deliberation while analyzing their testimony.

32. It is pertinent to note, however, that the case diary reveals that the Investigating Officer at Parcha No.'1' extracted the Chik report, the written report dated 27.12.1991 of the first informant and a written report given by Chatrapal (in the margin) that two witnesses namely Pradeep Kumar Dubey and Rakesh Awasthi had lastly seen the deceased with the accused persons namely Manoj and Rajpal and noted that the copy of the written report given by Chatrapal had been enclosed in the case diary. It further discloses that the statement of the first informant was recorded before the inquest and preparation of the site plan as also the recovery of the blood stained and plain earth on 27.12.1991. The case diary dated 27.12.1991 also disclose that the accused Munna Ram @ Baba was interrogated as his hut was located near the Nursery. His version there is that the accused Manoj & Rajpal used to come to his hut to have Charas in the evening and he used to borrow money from them to buy Gaanja. On 23.12.1991, the accused Rajpal and Manoj came to his hut and told him to provide Chillam. He had seen two Kulharis in the hands of Rajpal and Manoj which were blood stained and when he asked they confessed that they had killed Vijay Pal, their enemy and also told him not to tell anyone about that. The appellant Munna Ram @ Baba also stated that he did not disclose that fact to anyone as he had fear that Rajpal would kill him. The Kulharis/axe were also taken by the assailants with them. It is then recorded in the case diary of that date that the police had searched for the accused persons but could not find them. The statement of Vishwa Nath Singh (PW-3) under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded on 03.01.1992 in the case diary, whereas statement of Laakhan Singh was recorded on 09.01.1992 and lastly on 14.01.1992, the statements of Chatrapal, Pradeep Dubey, Rakesh Awasthi and other witnesses of inquest were recorded before completion of the investigation and submission of the charge sheet on 26.01.1992. The facts noted above will be analyzed with the statements of the prosecution witnesses at the appropriate stage of this judgment.

33. It is vehemently argued by Ms. Neelam Giri learned counsel for the appellants Manoj and Rajpal that they had been falsely implicated. The allegations of enmity was only against Rajpal for the reason of mortgaged land, the deed of which was filed as Exhibit Ka-2. Different motives had been assigned to two appellants Rajpal and Manoj and the motive, in any case, are very weak. As per the statement of PW-1, one village boy Mahesh had informed PW-1 that he heard screams of "Bachao Bachao" near the Nursery and on getting alert by the said information they went to the Nursery to search for the deceased. Whereas in his deposition before the Court, PW-1 stated that when he returned to the place of the incident after lodging the report, two persons namely Pradeep and Rakesh Awasthi (PW-2) had intimated him that they had seen his deceased brother alongwith the appellants Manoj and Rajpal who were standing near the Nursery carrying Kulharis (axe) in their hands.

34. The contention is that this submission of PW-1 is an improvement based on the information given by those persons after recovery of the dead body. PW-2, the witness of last seen could not explain as to why prior to the recovery of the dead body, he did not inform the first informant (brother of the deceased) that the deceased was last seen with the assailants. As per own statement of PW-2, he knew the first informant Jeet Singh and deceased Vijay Pal Singh being resident of the same village. The deceased had gone missing on 23.12.1991 and his dead body was recovered from an open place by the first informant on 27.12.1991. PW-1, the first informant had stated that the entire village knew that the deceased had gone missing and that they kept on searching for him for about four days. No missing report however, had been lodged. In the above circumstances, after lodging of the first information report against unknown persons subsequent implication of the appellants Manoj and Rajpal assigning them different motives, is nothing but a result of afterthought that too on deliberations of the witnesses with the police. Moreover, the witness of last seen namely PW-2 is not a reliable witness, in as much as, he stated that he had seen the accused persons standing with the deceased and talking to him while carrying murder weapons in their hands. PW-2 also admitted that the Tempo was crossing the Nursery on the road and it did not stop near the place of last seen. The statement of PW-2 that he had identified accused Manoj and Rajpal with the deceased in the light of Tempo while passing through the road is unbelievable.

35. It is contended that the witness of extra judicial confession broughtforth by the prosecution namely PW-3 Vishwa Nath Singh cannot be trusted, in as much as, the prosecution could not prove that PW-3 had a relationship of trust with the accused persons. Moreover, PW-3 lived in front of the house of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh and there was no reason as to why he would not have disclosed the statements of the accused persons namely Manoj and Rajpal prior to the incident to warn Vijay Pal or his brother. It is vehemently argued that PW-3 is a got up witness in an effort of the prosecution to add one more circumstance in the irregular chain of circumstances. Further, the evidence of PW-4 is a hearsay evidence and is a result of his own imagination, it does not carry any weight as such.

36. It is vehemently argued that the prosecution had tried to connect many loose links in a zeal to complete the chain of circumstances so as to falsely implicate the appellants. The evidence collected by the prosecution, however, could not be proved to unerringly point towards the guilt of the accused persons namely Manoj and Rajpal. The alternative hypothesis of someone else coming on the scene of the occurrence and committing the crime cannot be ruled out in the circumstances brought forth by the prosecution.

37. Sri Kunwar Ajay Singh learned Amicus for the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba while adopting the arguments of the learned counsel for appellants Manoj and Rajpal with regard to the flaws in the chain of circumstances, vehemently argued that there was absolutely no evidence against Munna Ram @ Baba of participation in the crime. The allegations of conspiracy hatched by Munna Ram @ Baba and providing Axe (Kulharis) (projected as Murder weapon) to the accused Manoj and Rajpal are based on the statement of P.W.-

5, Laakhan Singh whose house was in front of the house of the first informant, the brother of the deceased. From the statement of PW-4, Chatrapal (another brother of the deceased) and P.W.-5, it is evident that they both solved the crime on their own by interrogating appellant Munna Ram @ Baba on 09.01.1992. As per own statement of P.W.-5, they threatened appellant Munna Ram @ Baba with dire consequence before making alleged recovery of bicycle and shoes allegedly belonging to the deceased Vijay Pal Singh on his pointing out. Though there is contradiction in the statement of P.W.4 and 5 as regards the manner in which alleged recovery memo of bicycle and shoes was prepared but it is evident from the record that the alleged recovery was made by these witnesses alongwith other villagers and appellant Munna Ram @ Baba was handed over to the Investigating Officer in the police station who put him behind the bar. The implication of appellant Munna Ram @ Baba is not proved by any other incriminating circumstance such as recovery of murder weapon etc. at his instance. The alleged recovery of bicycle and shoes at the instance of Munna Ram @ Baba was not proved by the prosecution by producing the recovered articles in the Court. The recovery memo exhibited as Exhibit Ka-4 had been proved by P.W.-5 who had signed it alongwith other prosecution witnesses namely P.W.4 Chatrapal. The genuineness of this document was not admitted by the defence and in this circumstance, the examination of the Investigating Officer became relevant. The manner in which the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba had been arrested by the Investigating Officer could not be explained by the prosecution for non-examination of the Investigating Officer. All the above documents such as Exhibit Ka-3, Exhibit Ka-4 & Exhibit Ka-5 namely the report submitted by P.W.-4 Chatrapal and P.W.-5 Laakhan Singh and the recovery memo; could not have been relied upon to implicate the appellants, in as much as, genuineness of these documents were not admitted. The proof of these documents is only by the prosecution witness of facts who deposed that they gave those documents/reports to the Investigating Officer. In the event of Non-examination of the Investigating Officer, he could not be confronted on the statements of the witnesses of fact to point out inconsistencies, to cull out truth, with regard to the mode and manner in which alleged recovery was made at the instance of the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba and the contents of the reports. In absence of cogent evidence, conviction of the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba for the offence under Section 302 with the aid of Section 34 and Section 120-B IPC cannot be sustained. The conviction of appellant Munna Ram @ Baba for the offence under Section 201 IPC for destruction of evidence suffers from patent illegality. There is no evidence, much less cogent evidence that the accused Munna Ram @ Baba was involved in the crime of murder and concealment of the dead body at the place of its recovery. It is vehemently argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba had been implicated only on the suspicion of the prosecution witnesses for the reason that his hut was located near the place of recovery of the dead body and the entire prosecution story is concocted.

38. It is lastly argued by the learned counsels for the appellants that there is no recovery of murder weapon; the motive assigned to the accused namely Manoj is very weak and no motive at all could be assigned to appellant Munna Ram @ Baba. It was a case of circumstantial evidence and hence examination of the Investigating Officer was necessary so as to bring before the Court as to how investigation had proceeded and in what manner evidence was collected by him. The date and place of arrest of the accused persons namely Rajpal and Manoj also becomes relevant in the facts of the present case, which was not brought before the Court. The appellant Munna Ram @ Baba was admittedly nabbed by the prosecution witness themselves and handed over to the police on 09.01.1992. Three different time of giving report by PW-4 Chatrapal (Exhibit Ka-3) to the police, about the evidence of last seen could be found in the statement of three witnesses. PW-1 stated that Chatrapal had reached the place of recovery on 27.12.1991 at about 03.00 PM and at that point of time, the dead body was being sealed to send it for the postmortem. The report Exhibit Ka-3 of the incident was given by PW-4 Chatrapal in the police station after the dead body was sealed whereas the written report was lodged at about 09.00-10.00 AM. PW-4 Chatrapal, to the contrary, stated that he prepared the written the report at about 09.00-09.30 AM and the body was sent for the postmortem at about 10.00-10.30 AM in his presence. He says that he got the information of the incident in Kanpur at about 05.00 AM and when he reached the spot, police was making enquiries. As per the statement of PW-3, the dead body was sealed at about 4.00 AM and he was present near the dead body throughout the night. There is, thus, material contradictions in the testimony of these witnesses who had introduced the witnesses of last seen and conspiracy. This contradiction coupled with other material inconsistencies in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses is proof of the fact that these witnesses were lying in the Court. This is a case of absolutely no evidence at all and three appellants deserve acquittal.

39. In rebuttal, learned A.G.A. vehemently argued that non-examination of the Investigating Officer has no bearing on the case, in as much as, once the genuineness of the documents were not disputed by the defence, the formal proof of the documents prepared during the course of investigation was not necessary and all such documents can be read in evidence in the trial without proof and the signatures of the persons to whom it purports to be signed, in view of the categorical provisions of Section 294 (3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The trial court, therefore, cannot be said to have erred in reading the documents admitted in evidence, genuineness of which had been admitted by the defence, against the accused/appellants.

40. On the merits of the case, it is submitted by the learned AGA that the evidence of last seen of the accused persons with the deceased alive is categorical and PW-2, the witness of the last seen had entered in the witness box to prove that the deceased was lastly seen with the accused Munna Ram @ Baba. The first informant, the brother of the deceased had assigned the motive of enmity to the accused Rajpal. Appellant Manoj had also grudges against the deceased which has been proved by the defence by the evidence of PW-1, brother of the deceased. With the statement of PW-3 Vishwa Nath, it was proved by the prosecution that the accused Manoj and Rajpal had conspired to kill the deceased Vijay Pal Singh on account of the grudges carried by them. As regards appellant Munna Ram @ Baba evidence of PW-5, according to the learned AGA, is sufficient to convict him. It is argued by the learned AGA that since it is a case of circumstantial evidence, it was not possible for the prosecution to collect any direct evidence and the only requirement was to complete the chain of circumstances leading to the guilt of the accused persons.

41. In the instant case, according to the prosecution, the chain of circumstances had begun with the evidence of the last seen and concluded with the evidence of PW-5 who had proved the recovery of bicycle and shoes of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh on the pointing out of appellant Munna Ram @ Baba. The witnesses are natural witnesses who were living in the vicinity of the house of the deceased. Their testimonies cannot be discarded as unreliable. Minor contradictions in the statement of the witnesses are not such which would break the chain or create a dent in the prosecution story.

42. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record, we may note that this is a case of circumstantial evidence. In a case which rests on circumstantial evidence, the law postulates two fold requirements; Firstly, that every link in the chain of circumstances necessary to establish the guilt of the accused must be established by the prosecution beyond all reasonable doubt; Secondly, that all the circumstances must be consistent only with the guilt of the accused and totally inconsistent with his innocence. The principles as summarized by the Apex Court in a recent decision in Nizam @ another Vs. State of Rajasthan1 taking note of its previous decisions, be noted as under:-

"16. In the light of the above, it is to be seen whether in the facts and circumstances of this case, whether the courts below were right in invoking the "last seen theory." From the evidence discussed above, deceased-Manoj allegedly left in the truck DL-1GA-5943 on 23.01.2001. The body of deceased-Manoj was recovered on 26.01.2001. The prosecution has contended the accused persons were last seen with the deceased but the accused have not offered any plausible, cogent explanation as to what has happened to Manoj. Be it noted, that only if the prosecution has succeeded in proving the facts by definite evidence that the deceased was last seen alive in the company of the accused, a reasonable inference could be drawn against the accused and then only onus can be shifted on the accused under Section 106 of the Evidence Act."

9. 9 There are no eye-witnesses to the crime. In a case which rests on circumstantial evidence, the law postulates a two-fold requirement. First, every link in the chain of circumstances necessary to establish the guilt of the accused must be established by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt. Second, all the circumstances must be consistent only with the guilt of the accused. The principle has been consistently formulated thus :

"The normal principle in a case based on circumstantial evidence is that the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established; that those circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the accused; that the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and they should be incapable of explanation on any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused and inconsistent with his innocence".

43. The last seen theory i.e. evidence that the deceased was last seen alive in the company of the accused is an important link in the chain of circumstances that would point towards the guilt of the accused with some certainty. As noted in Nizam & others (supra), the "last seen theory" holds the courts to shift the burden of proof to the accused and the accused to offer a reasonable explanation as to the cause of death of the deceased. The principle is based on the provisions of Section 106 of the Evidence Act which lay down that when any fact is established within the knowledge of the person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Thus, if a person is last seen with the deceased, he must offer an explanation as to how and when he parted company. He must furnish an explanation which appears to the Court to be probable and satisfactory. If he does so he must be held to have discharged his burden. If he fails to offer an explanation on the basis of facts within his special knowledge, he fails to discharge the burden cast upon him by Section 106 of the Evidence Act. In a case resting on circumstantial evidence if the accused fails to offer a reasonable explanation in discharge of the burden placed on him, that itself provides an additional link in the chain of circumstances proved against him.

44. However, Section 106 does not shift the burden of proof in a criminal trial, which is always upon the prosecution. It is well-settled that it is not prudent to base the conviction solely on the "last seen theory". "Last seen theory" should be applied taking into consideration the case of the prosecution in its entirety and keeping in mind the circumstances that precede and follow the point of being so last seen. The principle is that when the accused does not throw any light upon facts which are specially within his knowledge and which could not support any theory or hypothesis compatible with his innocence, the court can consider his failure to adduce any explanation, as an additional link which completes the chain. Thus, in any case, the burden to prove the guilt of the accused is always on the prosecution. If the prosecution has succeeded in proving the fact by definite evidence that the deceased was last seen alive in the company of the accused, a reasonable inference could be drawn against the accused and then only onus can be shifted on the accused under Section 106 of the Evidence Act.

45. It is noted in Ganpat Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh2 after taking note of the decisions of the Apex Court that the last seen evidence assumes significance when the lapse of time between the point when the accused and the deceased were seen together and when the deceased is found dead is so minimal as to exclude the possibility of a supervening event involving the death at the hands of another. The law as summarized therein noticing the decision of the Apex Court in Bodhraj @ Bodha v. State of Jammu and Kashmir,3 and various other decisions, in paragraph No.10 of the report, is as under:-

"10 Evidence that the accused was last seen in the company of the deceased assumes significance when the lapse of time between the point when the accused and the deceased were seen together and when the deceased is found dead is so minimal as to exclude the possibility of a supervening event involving the death at the hands of another. The settled formulation of law is as follows :

"The last seen theory comes into play where the time gap between the point of time when the accused and deceased were seen last alive and when the deceased is found dead is so small that possibility of any person other than the accused being the author of crime becomes impossible. It would be difficult in some cases to positively establish that the deceased was last seen with the accused when there is a long gap and possibility of other persons coming in between exists. In the absence of any other positive evidence to conclude that accused and deceased were last seen together, it would be hazardous to come to a conclusion of guilt in those cases."

46. Keeping in mind the above principles, we have to first see as to whether the prosecution has succeeded in establishing by definite evidence that the deceased was seen alive in the company of the accused in such close proximity of time so as to exclude the possibility of a third person entering in the scene of crime in all reasonableness, and, thus, enabling the Court to draw a reasonable inference against the accused to shift onus on the accused to explain the circumstance in accordance with the provisions of Section 106 of the Evidence Act.

47. In this process, analyzing the oral testimony of the witnesses, we find that PW-1 had proved the first information report and the motive of the crime. The first information report was written by him in his own handwriting and after signature it was lodged in the police Station Rasoolabad at about 10.30 AM. As per the version of the first informant (PW-1), the deceased Vijay Pal Singh had gone missing since the evening of 23.12.1991 when he did not return home from his workplace. The version is that during search, PW-1 came to know that the deceased had consumed liquor with some people near Usri Nursery on 23.12.1991 and, thereafter, he was never seen. In the examination-in-chief, PW-1 stated that when he returned to the place of incident after lodging of the first information report, Pradeep and Rakesh Awasthi met him there and told that on 23.12.1991 at about 07.30 to 08.00 PM they had seen the deceased Vijay Pal Singh in the company of Rajpal and Manoj when they were talking and they had also seen sharp edged weapons in their hands, which was like Kulhari.

48. The report of the last seen of the deceased in the company of accused Rajpal and Manoj was allegedly lodged by Chatrapal Singh, another brother of the deceased on 27.12.1991 under the signatures of Pradeep Kumar Dubey and Rakesh Awasthi, the witnesses of last seen. It was stated by PW-2 in his examination-in-chief that the report dated 27.12.1991 shown to him in the Court was dictated by Chatrapal to Pradeep who scribed the same and the said report was signed by him. PW-2 had identified his signatures on the report which was exhibitd as Exhibit Ka-3. In this regard, it may be noted that the signatures of Chatrapal on the said report had not been proved by him in his deposition as PW-4. In cross for Manoj and Rajpal, PW-4 Chatrapal stated that the report which he gave to the Investigating Officer on 27.12.1991 was written by him at about 09.00-09.30 AM and that report was not available on the record. By the statement of PW-2, only his signatures on the document was proved as Exhibit Ka-3.

49. The said report on which PW-2 proved his signature was not shown to PW-4 during his cross examination. There is apparent contradictions in the statements of PW-2 and PW-4 as to the manner in which the said report was prepared. As the Investigating Officer of the case had not entered in the witness box, the report allegedly given by PW-4 could not be put to him. The prosecution, however, has not been able to prove that the said report on which signature of PW-2 was exhibited as Exhibit Ka-3, was the same application which was given to the Investigating Officer by PW-4, Chatrapal and was entered in the case diary.

50. Apart from this, there are contradictions in the statements of PW-1 and PW-4 about the time when the written report was given by PW-4 Chatrapal to the Investigating Officer. PW-1 stated that the first information report was given by him on 27.12.1991 at about 09.00-10.00 AM in the police station and his brother Chatrapal (PW-4) who was living at Kanpur reached to the place of the incident at about 03.00 PM. At that time, the body was sealed and was being sent for postmortem. PW-1 then stated that the report was given by Chatrapal on his own in the police station after the body was sealed. Whereas PW-4 Chatrapal stated that the report written by him was given in the morning on 27.12.1991 at about 09.00-09.30 AM before the dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem. As per the statement of PW-1 and PW-4, the intimation regarding the incident was given to Chatrapal only on 27.12.1991 and then he came from Kanpur.

51. PW-2, the witness of last seen also stated that he did not inform anyone prior to 27.12.1991; i.e. before the dead body was recovered that he had seen the deceased alive in the company of the accused persons. The reason given by him was that he came to know about the murder of Vijay Pal Singh only on 27.12.1991 when his dead body was found near the Nursery. He alongwith another witness Pradeep then went to the house of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh and from there they went to the place of recovery of the body. PW-2 had denied the suggestion that there was talk in the village of missing of deceased Vijay Pal Singh and stated that he did not know the fact of missing of Vijay Pal Singh till his body was found. This witness is resident of the same village and he deposed to have seen the deceased on 23.12.1991 at about 07.00 PM in the company of accused while traveling in a tempo crossing a road besides the Nursery near the place of recovery of the body.

52. Further, in cross, PW-2 had admitted that the tempo wherein he was traveling from Rasoolabad to the village was crossing the road and that when he had seen the deceased alive with the accused Manoj and Rajpal in the light of tempo, there were Kulharis (Axes) in the hands of accused Rajpal and Manoj; and further that there was one more person with them who could be identified by him if he came before him; and that the deceased Vijay Pal Singh was carrying bicycle while talking to the accused persons.

53. Analysing the statement of P.W.-1, it is evident that he was told by someone that the deceased was seen with some persons on the date of his missing, having liquor near the Nursery where his dead body was found. There is no disclosure as to who told that fact to P.W.-1 the first informant, who gave report of missing of his brother on the fourth days, after recovery of the dead body. P.W.-3 stated that he started search for his brother from 23.12.1991 and kept on searching for three days. Everyone in the village knew about the fact of missing of his brother but before recovery of the dead body between 23.12.1991 and 27.12.1991 no-one told him that he had seen his brother alive with the accused.

54. Another witness of last seen Pradeep had not entered in the witness box. The statement of the witness of last seen P.W.-2 does not inspire confidence of the Court for two reasons; firstly, that he had disclosed the deceased having been seen in the company of the accused Manoj and Rajpal only after recovery of the dead body on 27.12.1991 when he had reached at the place of recovery though he was resident of the same village. P.W.-1, the first informant was also present on the spot after lodging of the first information report, but no supplementary report was given by him naming the two accused persons on 27.12.1991. The written report allegedly given by P.W.-4 Chatrapal, brother of P.W.-1 had not been proved by him. The Exhibit-3 proved by P.W.-2 cannot be treated as proof of the supplementary report given by Chatrapal as P.W.-2 could not have proved that it was the same report which was given to the Investigating Officer by P.W.-4. The PW-4, to the contrary, stated that the report scribed by him and given to the Investigating Officer was not on record.

55. The second reason for discarding the evidence of last seen of P.W.-2 is the manner in which he described having seen the deceased alive in the company of the appellants Manoj and Rajpal. The statement of P.W.-2 that he had seen three persons talking with the deceased Vijay Pal Singh and two of them were Rajpal and Manoj who were carrying Kulharis (axes) seems unbelievable. It could not be explained as to why the accused persons would carry murder weapon in their hands while talking to the deceased on the road side when they already had plans to kill him. Further the prosecution is completely silent about the third person who was seen by P.W.-2 alongwith two accused Manoj and Rajpal and deceased Vijay Pal Singh. For the additional fact stated by P.W.-2 that he had seen above mentioned four persons standing on the road side while traveling in the tempo, his statement of last seen of the deceased in the company of the accused is not found clinching as it cannot be said that the deceased was exclusively in the company of the accused persons.

56. Further, the lapse of time between the point when the accused and the deceased were seen together with an unknown person and when the deceased was found dead is not so minimal as to exclude the possibility of any supervening event involving the death at the hands of another. The identity of the third man who was seen with the accused persons while they were talking with the deceased had not been fixed by the prosecution.

57. From the statement of P.W.1, the deceased Vijay Pal Singh was seen lastly in the company of some people consuming liquor near the Nursery on the day he had gone missing. Neither the identity of those persons in whose company the deceased was seen consuming liquor nor the person who gave the said information to the first informant P.W.-1 had been established by the prosecution. A statement has come up in the site plan that it was told that the deceased was seen consuming liquor in the hut shown at the eastern side of the Nursery. In the index, as per observation of the Investigating Officer, at the time of preparation of the site plan, at the place marked as (C) at the eastern side, the hut of the Nursery existed wherein Ramesh Kachi Maali was residing. It is the same hut which has been mentioned as the place of consumption of liquor by the deceased. In the cross-examination of P.W.-2, it has come up that in the Nursery a caretaker in the name of Ramesh Kushwaha was residing as also that one more person Lala Ram Srivastava was also deputed as caretaker of the Nursery at the time of the incident. As per the site plan, the dead body was found at place (A) on the Chak road towards the South, diagonally in the South-West direction, from the place shown as (C) distance of which has been indicated as about one furlong. The place (B) as indicated in the index of the site plan, on the pakka road, has been shown as the place where the deceased was allegedly seen with accused Rajpal and Manoj having Kulhari in their hands by the witnesses. The distance of place (B) and (C) has not been shown in the site plan whereas distance of place (A) and (B) is mentioned at 93 paces. There is nothing on the record which indicates that the occupant of the hut where the deceased was seen having liquor namely Ramesh Kushwaha or Ramesh Kachi Maali (as shown in the site plan) had been interrogated by the Investigating Officer. From the above circumstances also, the possibility of any person other than the accused appellants being the author of the crime cannot be ruled out.

58. It is also not believable that P.W.-2 being the resident of the same village was not aware for about 3 to 4 days that deceased Vijay Pal Singh had gone missing, when P.W.-1 deposed that the entire village knew about the missing of Vijay Pal Singh. Another witness of last seen who was allegedly traveling with P.W.-2 had not been produced in the witness box. Moreover, the testimony of P.W.-2 is found untrustworthy and it also could not be corroborated by the surrounding circumstances. It is a case where the prosecution has not been able to prove the fact of last seen of the deceased alive in the company of the accused in close proximity of time, leaving all possibilities of any supervening event so as to draw a reasonable inference against the accused Rajpal & Manoj to shift onus upon under Section 106 of the Evidence Act. Both the accused persons namely Rajpal and Manoj in their examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. in reply to the question No.5 relating to the circumstance of last seen had refuted the statement of the witnesses Pradeep and Rakesh Awasthi being "false".

59. Moreover, the 'last seen theory' is only a link in the chain of circumstances though an important link but even if it is established the mere circumstance that the deceased was last seen alive in the company of the accused is an unsafe hypothesis to convict on a charge of murder. In a case like this where the prosecution found it difficult to positively establish that the deceased was last seen with the accused as there was a long gap and possibility of other persons coming in between exists, without any other positive evidence to corroborate by mere concluding that the accused and the deceased were last seen together, it would be hazardous to come to the conclusion of guilt. The corroboration of the circumstance of last seen with other evidence on record so as to form chain will be necessary in such a case.

60. In the instant case, the other circumstances which the prosecution brought in support of its theory of last seen in order to form a chain are:-

and they themselves told him that Vijay Pal Singh would be killed from their hands in case he met them and would not be spared on that day. In the examination-in-chief, PW-3 stated that prior to the fateful day, Rajpal did not tell anything to him nor they met. He then stated that when Rajpal and Manoj met him they were carrying Kulhari (Axe) in their hands. PW-3 states that after talking to the accused, he went to Malkhanpur and in the evening when he came back, he came to know that Vijay Pal Singh did not return home. The dead body was found near the Nursery at a distance of one furlong concealed in the Payar of Paddy.

In cross, this witness has admitted that his house was located in front of the house of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh and he and deceased belong to the same family. The purpose of visiting Malkhanpur which was a distance of about 03 Km from the village was not disclosed by PW-3 saying that it was a private work which could not be disclosed. On a suggestion PW-3 denied that he did not enter inside the Nursery and, therefore, could not tell as to whether two employees of the Nursery were residing there. He then stated that he reached Malkhanpur within five minutes by bicycle and stayed there for 15-20 minutes and his work was finished by then. When he returned from Malkhanpur, sun was set and that accused Rajpal and Manoj did not meet him at the field of Vijay Pal Singh after he returned from Malkhanpur. In the cross, PW-3 further stated that he got to know, at about 10.00 PM in the night on the same day, i.e. 23.12.1991, that Vijay Pal Singh did not return home from Rasoolabad, but gave an explanation that he could not tell as the brother of the deceased namely Jeet Singh was not met. He further denied the suggestion that search for Vijay Pal was being made in the village and the nearby places. PW-3 further goes on to tell that on the next day, he left at about 06.00 AM for Hardoi to meet his daughter and before he left, he could not talk to Jeet Singh about Vijay Pal Singh. He returned to his village from Hardoi on 27.12.1991 in the evening and when he came back, police was not in the village. He then came to know that the body of Vijay Pal was found concealed in the Payar. After hearing the said news he straightway went to the place where the dead body was discovered and reached there at about 09.00 PM. PW-3 further stated that he stayed besides the dead body for the whole night and the Investigating Officer (Daroga Ji) also reached there. The dead body was sealed and taken away from the place of recovery in the morning at about 04.00 AM. He also went to the police station alongwith the sealed body and after it was sent to Kanpur in the morning, he came back to the village. PW-3 categorically stated that he did not give any statement to the Investigating Officer at the spot where he reached at the night and further stated that he was not interrogated. For the first time, he passed on the relevant information to Jeet Singh, the first informant. This witness has lastly stated that his statement was recorded by the Investigating Officer after 10 to 12 days in the village and he did not tell the officer about him going to Hardoi. He, thus, has stated that he did not tell about the meeting with the accused Rajpal and Manoj in the field of Vijay Pal in the evening of 23.12.1991 or before 27.12.1991.

Analyzing testimony of this witness, first and foremost point noticeable is that this witness has admitted being the member of the same family of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh and that his house was located in front of the house of Vijay Pal Singh though he did not disclosed his relationship with the deceased Vijay Pal

Singh. The accused Manoj and Rajpal were also resident of the same village. For the reason of PW-3 being a relative, member of the family of the deceased, it is unbelievable that the accused Rajpal and Manoj would make any confession before him that too while carrying Kulharis (Axes) in their hands so as to alert him that they would kill Vijay Pal Singh on that very day if he met them. The reason for going to the field of Vijay Pal Singh in the evening at about 05.00 PM given by this witness is that he was going on a bicycle for his private work from Usri to Malkhanpur. There is no explanation as to why this witness would go to the field of Vijay Pal Singh which was located besides the Pakka road on the northern side opposite the Nursery (as shown in the site plan). The distance of Malkhanpur from the village Usri is disclose as 03 km by PW-3, how he had reached there within 5 minutes from bicycle also remains explained. The purpose of visit to Malkhanpur had not been disclosed by PW-3. This witness admittedly did not disclose the factum of meeting the accused persons till the time of the inquest as according to him he met Jeet Singh, the first informant, after coming back from Hardoi on 27.12.1991 when he reached at the place of recovery of the body at about 09.00 PM. The statement of PW-3 that he reached at the place of discovery of the dead body on 27.12.1991 at about 09.00 AM and the body was sealed and sent from the spot at about 04.00 AM where he remained for the whole night is in clear contradiction to the documents on record. The inquest report and the site plan clearly indicate that the inquest commenced on 27.12.1991 at about 11.15 hrs (after the first information was lodged at about 10.30 hrs) and was completed by 12.20 hrs on 27.12.1991 and the body was sent for the postmortem which was conducted on 28.12.1991 at about 01.00 PM. Other witnesses proved that after inquest body was sealed and sent for postmortem. Further this witness had admitted that he did not make any statement to the Investigating Officer about going to Hardoi. The explanation given by this witness for keeping quiet for four days till the dead body was discovered is not convincing. His statement is full of contradictions, inconsistencies and embellishment on material particulars. Even otherwise, he was not in a relationship of trust with the accused persons and being a relative of the deceased living opposite his house, it seems highly improbable that the accused would make this kind of confession to him so as to alert the deceased to save himself from their clutches.

Moreover, it is settled that extra judicial confession is a weak piece of evidence. There must be some very good reason for making the disclosure by the accused to the witnesses for the Court to place reliance on such an evidence. Reference be made to Pakkirisamy Vs. State of T.N. 1997 (8) SCC 158; Sahadevan & another Vs. State of Tamil Nadu 2012 (6) SCC 403. In the instant case, we do not find any reason to accept the evidence of PW-3 as a reliable and trustworthy one.

(ii). The next link in the chain is the statement of PW-5 who had been introduced as a witness of conspiracy hatched by the appellants Munna Ram @ Baba, Manoj and Rajpal. PW-5 Laakhan Singh, a resident of the same village, admitted that his house was in front of the house of the first informant Jeet Singh who also belong to his community. As per the version of this witness, on 23.12.1991 the fateful day, at about 10.00 AM, while he was going to Rasoolabad, on the way, he reached at the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba. At that time, 2-3-4 persons were having Charas in the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba and amongst them Manoj and Rajpal were present alongwith one more person whose name was not known to him. PW-5 had also identified the accused persons namely Manoj, Rajpal and Munna Ram @ Baba present in the Court during his deposition. He then narrated that he evesdropped these persons hatching the conspiracy to kill Vijay Pal Singh and Munna Ram @ Baba agreed to provide Kulhari (murder weapon) to commit the murder. PW-5 then stated that he went to Rasoolabad by bicycle and then had gone to Kanpur and after 5-6 days when he returned back to the village on 27.12.1991 in the evening he came to know that Vijay Pal was killed.

On getting information, he went to the house of Vijay Pal but no one other than female family members were present therein and Chatrapal was not met. He also stated that he intimated them raising a suspicion that Munna Ram @ Baba might be having information of the murder of Vijay Pal, he alongwith the family members of deceased Vijay Pal, then, went to the hut of Baba who was not found there. They made a private enquiry and on 09.01.1992, they could catch hold of Munna Ram @ Baba in his hut. They threatened him that he would also be killed and then Munna Ram @ Baba disclosed that the bicycle and shoes of Vijay Pal Singh were concealed in a Payar in the field of Jairam on the southern side of the road. The recovery of bicycle and shoes of Vijay Pal was then made at the instance of Munna Ram @ Baba and PW-5 alongwith Chatrapal (PW-4), Puttan Singh, Vijay Bahadur and other villagers, took Munna Ram @ Baba to the police station after the recovery. A report of the enquiry (Exhibit Ka-4) had also been written by PW-5 Laakhan Singh, at the crossing of Rasoolabad, in his handwriting and submitted the said report in the police station after getting signature and thumb impression of the witnesses. According to him, the recovered articles bicycle and shoes were also deposited in the police station by them and Munna Ram @ Baba was handed over to the police. The memo of recovery of bicycle and shoes was prepared at the police station and read over to him which is Exhibit ka-4.

At this juncture, it is relevant to note that Exhibit Ka-4, the recovery memo of bicycle and shoes of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh was exhibited at the instance of PW-4 who had identified his signature on the said document. The contradiction in the statement of PW-4 & 5 on the recovery memo Exhibit Ka-4 would also be noted at the appropriate place of this judgment.

Noticing further, we may note that PW-5, in cross, had stated that the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba was at a distance of 25 to 30 paces from the Nursery. The location of the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba has not been shown in the site plan. On a suggestion given to PW-5, he had denied that he went to the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba to have Charas but said that he used to go there to have Darshan of Munna Ram @ Baba. For non disclosure of conspiracy before 09.01.1992 an explanation has been given by PW-5 that he did not give much weight to the conversation of Rajpal, Manoj and Munna Ram @ Baba as he thought that they were in the state of intoxication and did not think that they would really commit murder. This witness admittedly returned to the village on 27.12.1991 at about 03.00-04.00 PM after the body of Vijay Pal Singh was discovered but he denied that the body was discovered on 27.12.1991 and stated that he went to the house of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh in the evening at about 05.00 PM and then about 07.00 PM but neither he could meet Jeet Singh (first informant) nor Chatra Pal (PW-4). He denied having knowledge of the report of the murder having been lodged in the police station and the names of the person against whom the said report was lodged. He then stated that when the report of conspiracy of Munna Ram @ Baba Exhibit Ka-5 was given by him, the Investigating Officer had recorded his statement but he did not know at that time that the police had earlier interrogated Munna Ram @ Baba. On the suggestion as to why he had mentioned the said fact in his report, this witness gave a vague answer.

From the analysis of the statement of this witnesses, the story set up by him is not found convincing for the contradictions in his statement with regard to the time of reaching the village and passing of the information to the family members of the deceased about the conspiracy of three accused. This witness being a resident of a house located in front of the house of the deceased seems to be a got up witness set up by PW-4 Chatrapal Singh, brother of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh. The manner in which enquiry was done by this witness on his own and the statement given by him to the Investigating Officer on 09.01.1992 after the alleged recovery of bicycle and shoes of the deceased at the instance of Munna Ram @ Baba indicated that this witness acted more as a detective taking all credits to solve the crime. He is not found to be an independent witness, an impartial person. PW-5 has very conveniently excluded the presence of the first informant Jeet Singh from the scene to buy time to create evidence about the whole conspiracy chapter against the accused persons.

(iii). The last witness PW-4 brought in the chain of circumstance is Chatrapal Singh, brother of the deceased Vijay Pal Singh. He has stated that he came to know about the death of his brother about 05.00 AM and reached at the place of discovery of the body straightway where the police was making the necessary investigation. An application was given by him, at about 09.00.-09.30 AM in his own handwriting, to the Investigating Officer before the dead body was sealed and sent for postmortem but that report is not on record. He did not remember as to the time when he wrote the report. The body was sent for the postmortem at about 10.00-10.30 AM in his presence and, thereafter, he went to his house. This witness then stated that he stayed in the village for about 15 to 20 days and before 09.01.1992 PW-5 Laakhan Singh did not disclose anything to him about the incident. For the first time on 09.01.1992, he had a talk with Laakhan Singh (PW-5) at about 05.00-06.00 AM in the village. Thereafter, they alongwith other villagers accompanied with the Investigating Officer had reached at the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba within 20 minutes. He then stated that the Investigating Officer had reached at the hut of Munna Ram @ Baba at about 06.30 AM and then they all went to the place wherefrom bicycle and shoes were recovered. The place of recovery was about 150 to 250 meter from the Pakka road at the southern side of the road. On a question put to PW-4, he admitted that the memo of recovery of bicycle and shoes was prepared at the police station but his statement was recorded by the Investigating Officer on 09.01.1992 at the spot. They all went to the place of recovery of bicycle and shoes alongwith the Investigating Officer and the report was written by Laakhan Singh (PW-5) and then signed by him.

Analyzing the testimony of this witness, he is not found to be trustworthy because of the material contradictions in his statement about the recovery of bicycle and shoes of the deceased from near the place of the incident at the instance of the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba. From the memo of recovery, Exhibit Ka-4 proved by this witness, it is evident that it was noted therein that one bicycle and one pair of shoes were brought to the police station by Laakhan Singh (PW-5) and the memo of the same was prepared at the police station in the presence of PW-4 Chatrapal. Another important feature of his testimony is when he states that Laakhan Singh conveyed the information about conspiracy to him only in the morning of 09.01.1992.

From the statement of this witness and that of Laakhan Singh (PW-5), it is evident that PW-5 opened up only on 09.01.1992 when he gave a report in writing as 'Exhibit Ka-5' after nabbing the third appellant Munna Ram @ Baba from his hut. PW-5 though stated in his deposition that he did not meet Chatrapal (PW-4) on 27.12.1991 at about 07.00 PM when he went to the house of the deceased after discovery of the dead body but he remained silent about the date and time when he had disclosed his information of the incident to Chatrapal (PW-4).

From the analysis of the above evidence, it is proved that the prosecution had concocted a story for implicating Manoj and Rajpal at the instance of Chatrapal (PW-4), the brother of the deceased, who himself was not a resident of the village, after he reached the village on 27.12.1991. The accused persons namely Rajpal and Manoj were introduced in the scene of crime after the discovery of the body when a report allegedly was given by PW-4 Chatrapal naming them as the suspected accused. The alleged report given in the handwriting of Chatrapal (PW-4) had not been proved by him. The report namely Exhibit Ka-3, as is available on the record, had been exhibited by PW-2 Rakesh Awasthi, the witness who could have simply proved his signature on the same. The scribe of the said report who had entered in the witness box as PW-4 did not prove the same, rather stated that the report given by him to the police was not available on the record. No reliance as such can be placed upon the document namely Exhibit Ka-3 so as to treat it as a supplementary report of the crime.

61. From the extract of the case diary, noted above, it could be seen that the first statement of PW-1, the first informant, was recorded on 27.12.1991 at the place of recovery of the body as soon as the police reached at the spot alongwith him, after registration of the first information report. In Section 161 Cr.P.C. statement of PW-1, he had introduced Pradeep Dubey and Rakesh Awasthi as witnesses of last seen of the deceased alive with accused Manoj and Rajpal. He, thus, came to know on 27.12.1991 that Manoj and Rajpal were behind the crime. This witness (PW-1) has very conveniently stated that the Investigating Officer did not record his statement with regard to the incident at any point of time and the statement of his brother Chatrapal was recorded.

62. The above contradictions, inconsistencies in the statements of witnesses show that they were all made up or got up witnesses. Three witnesses namely PW-2 the witness of last seen; PW-3 the witness of extra judicial confession and PW-5 the witness of conspiracy came to know that accused Manoj and Rajpal were behind the crime when the deceased had gone missing on 23.12.1991. They all are either related to the deceased or were his neighbour, but everyone surprisingly, had left the village on the same day or the next day and, thus, explained why they did not pass on their information to the family members of the deceased/missing person between 23.12.1991 to 27.12.1991 when the search of the deceased was going on. All of them together entered in the scene (though at different times) after discovery of the body on 27.12.1991.

63. From the case diary, it may be noted that on the first date of discovery i.e. on 27.12.1991, the statement of PW-1, the first informant Jeet Singh and Munna Ram @ Baba was recorded by the Investigating Officer, before and after making the spot inspection of the site of the discovery of the body. The place where the deceased Vijay Pal Singh was seen in the company of the accused Manoj and Rajpal is also indicated in the site plan as place (B). The witnesses of last seen Pradeep Dubey and Rakesh Awasthi were present on the spot of discovery as they are witnesses of inquest, but the Investigating Officer despite the information of last seen (an important one) received by him did not record the statement of these two material witnesses for the reasons best known to him. The statement of Vishwa Nath (PW-3) was recorded in the case diary on 03.01.1992 after accused Manoj was arrested by the Investigating Officer as is evident from the Parcha No.III of the case diary dated 03.01.1992. The statements of Lakhan Singh was recorded on 09.01.1992 after the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba was handed over to the police by the prosecution witnesses. The statement of Chatrapal (PW-4) as also Pradeep and Rakesh Awasthi (as both witnesses of last seen and inquest) were recorded on 14.01.1992 in the case diary at Parcha No.IV.

64. There is no recovery of the murder weapon. As per the statement of the witnesses, one Axe used in the murder was provided by the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba but from the statement of the witnesses (PW-2 & PW-3) it seems that both the accused persons were seen having Axe in their hands that means two Kulharis were introduced by the witnesses of last seen. There is no clarity about the second weapon.

65. On the implication of the third appellant Munna Ram @ Baba, there is no evidence of last seen of the deceased alive in his company. Only evidence against appellant Munna Ram @ Baba is the report dated 09.01.1992 submitted by Laakhan Singh (PW-5) which was based on a private enquiry made by the prosecution witnesses.

66. As analysed above, the entire story presented by PW-5 is proved to be a concocted story for his unbelievable version of the events after 27.12.1991 and for the contradictions in the statement of PW-5 and PW-4, PW-5 is proved to be an unreliable/untrustworthy witness. Moreover, the alleged recovery of bicycle and shoes by PW-5 and PW-4 is proved to be planted one as it was not made by the Investigating Officer at the instance of the accused Munna Ram @ Baba.

67. With regard to the recovery memo, Exhibit Ka-4, it was prepared at the police station and not at the spot. A site plan of the place of recovery of these articles is also on the record which contains a signature bearing the date as 26.01.1992. In view of non-examination of the Investigating Officer, it could not be ascertained as to when and where the recovery was made and how the site plan of the place of recovery was prepared by the Investigating Officer on 26.01.1992. The PW-4 though tried to suggest that the Investigating Officer was accompanying them at the time of recovery but it is evident from the record that the appellant Munna Ram @ Baba was not arrested by the Investigating Officer prior to the recovery and he was handed over to the police by the prosecution witnesses namely PW-4 and PW-5 alongwith the alleged recovered articles namely the bicycle and shoes. The recovery memo namely Exhibit Ka-4 is, thus, liable to be rejected.

68. From the above discussion, it is evident that the prosecution witnesses who were either related to the deceased or his neighbours made lots of enquiries on their own to find out the culprit and in that process many different stories were concocted. The contradictions in the statement of the witnesses arose as they made improvements to prove them right. The prosecution has tried to form the chain by connecting loose links from here and there. Three prosecution witnesses namely PW.2, PW.3 and PW-5 had seen or met the accused persons namely Rajpal and Manoj at different times on the very day when he had gone missing, i.e. 23.12.1991, but all of them had left the village for one or other reason and entered in the scene only on 27.12.1991 after the discovery of the dead body. The explanation offered by these three witnesses for their absence in the village between 23.12.1991 and 27.12.1991 is not convincing. These witness namely PW-2, PW-4 and PW-5 are unreliable and untrustworthy.

69. As far as the motive is concerned, though a mortgage deed was presented in the Court by PW-1 and the signature of his deceased brother on the same was proved as Exhibit Ka-2 but beyond that no other evidence was brought before the Court to prove the dispute of deceased with the accused Rajpal. Only PW-4, another brother of the deceased, in his examination-in-chief, had stated the motive being the mortgage of his field by the deceased Vijay Pal Singh. The 'Exhibit Ka-3' which has been placed on record as the report given by Chatrapal (PW-4) to the Investigating Officer, had not been proved by him, as noted above. The contents of the said report, therefore, cannot be seen.

70. With regard to another accused Manoj, the motive assigned by PW-1 is too weak. Moreover, both the accused had been assigned different motives and there is no evidence on record about meeting of mind of these persons to kill the deceased, except the testimony of PW-3 & PW-5 who have been found to be unreliable witnesses. No motive has been assigned to the third accused Munna Ram @ Baba who has been convicted by the trial court under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC.

71. All the above circumstances put together raised many questions about the manner in which the investigation was conducted and evidence was collected by the Investigating Officer to submit charge sheet against three accused persons namely Manoj, Rajpal and Munna Ram @ Baba, but it is one of those cases where the Investigating Officer had not entered in the witness box. All the questions, therefore, remain unanswered.

72. The next issue, thus, to be examined is as to whether the non-examination of the Investigating Officer caused prejudice to the accused appellants.

73. In this regard, it may be noted that though the defence had admitted the genuineness of papers of investigation such as Chik FIR, recovery memo, Exhibit Ka-

16, postmortem report Exhibit Ka-18, the inquest report Exhibit Ka-10, the charge sheet Exhibit Ka-19 and Ka-20 as also the site plan Exhibit-8 & 9 but did not admit the papers prepared by the prosecution witnesses and given to the Investigating Officer. Though with the acceptance of the genuineness of the chik report, the written report Exhibit Ka-1 also stood admitted, but other reports such as Exhibit Ka-3, Exhibit Ka-5 and the recovery memo Exhibit ka-4 had not been admitted as genuine documents by the defence. For non-examination of the Investigating Officer, it could not be proved as to how and in what manner these papers were included during the investigation. In absence of the Investigating Officer, the defence has been deprived of the opportunity to cross examine him on the documents entered in the case diary namely the recovery memo Exhibit Ka-4 and the reports Exhibit Ka-3 and Ka-5, allegedly given by PW-4 and PW-5.

74. The question as to how the site plan Exhibit Ka-8 was prepared on 26.01.1992, the date of submission of the charge sheet, remained unanswered. The delay in recording the statement of material witnesses of last seen (namely Pradeep Dubey and Rakesh Awasthi) by the Investigating Officer remained unexplained in his absence. The contradiction in the statement of the prosecution witness PW-4 with regard to giving of the report naming the witnesses of last seen could not be put to the Investigating Officer so as to get his version. The contradiction about the preparation of the recovery memo Exhibit Ka-4 in the statement of PW-4 and 5, the witnesses of the said recovery memo, could not be put to the Investigating Officer. The defence has, thus, been seriously prejudiced in the instant case for the non-examination of the Investigating Officer.

75. We may note that in the matter of non-examination of the Investigating Officer, the legal position is that there can be no universal straight jacket formula that the non-examination of the Investigating Officer per se vitiates the criminal trial. It would depend upon the facts of the particular case as to whether the non-examination of the Investigating Officer had caused prejudice to the accused. It has to be shown by the defence that the accused had been prejudiced and was deprived of the opportunity to bring out contradiction in the statement of the witnesses for the prosecution before the police. It is held in State of Karnataka Vs. Bhaskar Kushali Kotharkar & others4 that as part of fair trial, the Investigating Officer should be examined in the trial cases, especially in a sessions trial. The reason being that if any of the prosecution witnesses give any evidence contrary to their previous statement recorded under Section 161 Cr. P.C. or there is any omission of certain material particulars, the previous statement of these witnesses could be proved only by examining the investigating officer who must have recorded the statement of these witnesses under Section 161 Cr. P.C.

76. In Ram Dev & another Vs. State of U.P.5 it was observed that it was desirable for the prosecution to produce the Investigating Officer at the trial notwithstanding the fact that various documents which were to be proved by the Investigating Officer were accepted by the defence as genuine documents and were not disputed.

77. Whether non-examination of the Investigating Officer in any way create any dent in the prosecution case or affect the credibility of the witnesses would depend upon the facts of the case. In any case, it has to be shown as to what prejudice has been caused to the appellants for such non-examination (reference Bahadur Naik Vs. State of Bihar6).

78. Keeping in mind the above discussion in light of the principles noted above we find that in the instant case, the accused appellants have been seriously prejudiced on account of non-examination of the Investigating Officer and this omission has created a deep dent in the prosecution case. The cumulative effect of the prosecution evidence, thus, is that the witnesses of the prosecution have not been found trustworthy; the contradictions in their testimony remained unexplained for non-examination of the Investigating Officer; the chain of circumstances putforth by the prosecution has many loose links which could not be connected to each other. The result is that the complete chain of the circumstances could not be formed by the prosecution to unerringly point towards the guilt of the accused persons excluding every possible hypothesis except one to be proved.

79. The prosecution has failed to establish every link in the chain of circumstance beyond all reasonable doubt to establish the guilt of the accused, leaving reasonable grounds for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused. It could not be shown that in all human probabilities the act must have been done by the accused persons and no on else.

80. Further none of these documents, Exhibit Ka-3, Ka-4 and Ka-5 were put to the accused persons in their examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C. For the site plan, a general question was framed as question No.'19' but the site plan exhibited as Exhibit Ka-8 and Ka-9 were not put up to the accused persons.

81. The trial court had, thus, erred in relying upon these documents to draw inference against the appellants and to accept the submission of prosecution witnesses for conviction of the accused persons.

82. For the above discussion, we find that the trial court namely the IIIrd District & Sessions Judge, Kanpur Dehat has committed a manifest error of law in convicting three accused persons namely Rajpal, Manoj & Munna Ram @ Baba only on an untrustworthy last seen evidence.

83. Accordingly, the judgment and order dated 08.05.1997 passed by the IIIrd Additional District & Sessions Judge, Kanpur Dehat in S.T. No.104 of 1992 and S.T. No. 417 of 1992 arising out of Case Crime No.191 of 1991 under Section 302, 201, 120-B IPC, P.S. Rasoolabad, District Kanpur Dehat, is set aside.

84. The accused-appellants are entitled to be acquitted of all the offences of which they were charged. Their conviction is liable to be set aside.

85. The appeals are hereby allowed.

86. The appellant Rajpal and Munna Ram @ Baba are on bail. Their sureties shall stand discharged.

87. The appellant Manoj is in jail. He shall be released forthwith, in case he is not needed in any case.

88. Sri Kunwar Ajay Singh learned Amicus Curiae rendered valuable assistance to the Court. The Court quantifies Rs.15,000/- to be paid to Sri Kunwar Ajay Singh, Advocate towards fee for the able assistance provided by him in hearing of this Criminal Appeal. The said payment shall be made to Sri Kunwar Ajay Singh Advocate by the Registry of the Court within the shortest possible time.

89. The office is directed to send back the lower court record along with a certified copy of this judgment for information and necessary action.

90. The compliance report be submitted to this Court through the Registrar General, High Court, Allahabad.

Criminal Appeal No. 1171 of 2006

Charan Singh ...Appellant (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Umesh Shankar, Sri Subedar Mishra

Counsel for the Respondent:
A.G.A.

Criminal Law- Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 318 - Trial of a deaf and dumb person- No bar to proceed against a deaf and dumb accused on a charge of a criminal offence. But, whenever a criminal proceeding is drawn against a deaf and dumb person, the endeavour should be that he understands the proceedings. If the court finds that he understands the proceedings, the trial must proceed in the ordinary way. However, while doing so, courts have to see to it that the trial is fair and the accused gets a chance of putting up such defences as he may have.

The only requirement before the court while trying a deaf and dumb person is to ascertain as to whether he understands the proceedings.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Illustration (e) to section 114 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 318 - There is a legal presumption that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed. In these circumstances once the court had recorded its satisfaction with regard to the ability of the accused to understand and communicate, and there being no application before that court questioning its satisfaction or praying for services of a sign language interpreter for the accused, in our view, an unrebutted legal presumption with regard to the regularity of the judicial act would operate against the accused-appellant. Thus, keeping in mind the legal presumption as also the statement of PW-4 that the appellant is in a position to understand and communicate and is not of weak mind, we are satisfied that the trial did not vitiate for lack of appointment of a sign language interpreter for the accused-appellant.

Where the court records its satisfaction that the accused is able to understand the proceedings against him and the said satisfaction remains unchallenged then the trial cannot be held to be vitiated.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Non-examination of children and other family members of the deceased- Where the accused is ones own family member, witnesses of that family are reluctant to give evidence. More over, children rarely go against their parents. Therefore, their non-examination, in the facts of the case, is not fatal to the prosecution case.

Non- examination of the family members of the accused will not be fatal for the prosecution as the family members may be reluctant to depose against the accused.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 302- Indian Evidence Act, 1872 Section 106 – Death of wife due to strangulation- Appellant is that he is admittedly the husband of the deceased and there is no denial of the appellant with regard to him residing with his wife at the time and place of the incident. Most importantly, the deceased died due to strangulation - The appellant had escaped from the spot and for several days he was absconding.

The appellant, being the husband of the deceased had failed to discharge the burden of proof explaining the homicidal death of his wife and had absconded after the commission of the crime and therefore an adverse inference may be drawn against him. (Para 22, 23, 27, 28)

4. In re: Padmanabhan Nair Narayan Nair, AIR 1957 Ker. 9

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Misra, J.)

1. This appeal is against the judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 12.01.2006 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court), Court No. 1, Pilibhit in Sessions Trial No. 695 of 2004 whereby, the appellant has been convicted under section 302 I.P.C. and sentenced to imprisonment for life with fine of Rs. 5,000/- and on default of payment of fine, additional six months imprisonment.

INTRODUCTORY FACTS

2. On a written report (Exb. Ka-1), lodged by Surendra Singh (PW-1), the brother of the deceased, on 28.06.2004, at 17:35 hours, a Chik FIR (Ex. Ka-4) was prepared by PW-5, giving rise to Case Crime No. 54 of 2004, under Section 302 I.P.C., at P.S. Hazara, District Pilibhit. The prosecution case, in brief, is that informant's elder sister Banso Bai (the deceased) was married to the appellant (Charan Singh) twelve years ago; she had five daughters and a son; the appellant used to suspect and taunt the deceased of being unchaste and treated her with cruelty; in the evening of 27.06.2004, the deceased and the accused had a fight; in the night of 27/28.06.2004, deceased's neighbours Darshan Singh (PW-3) and Parsa Singh (PW-4), at about 2.00 am, heard noises; upon which, PW-3 and PW-4 went to the spot to notice that the appellant was strangulating the deceased; that, by the time they could come to the rescue of the victim, she was dead and the appellant escaped. It was claimed that after receipt of the above information from PW-3, PW-1 (informant) went to the house of the deceased to confirm the news and, upon finding her sister dead, the report has been lodged.

3. The inquest was conducted by 19:50 hours on 28.06.2004, which was witnessed by PW-1 (Surendra Singh-informant); Jarnail Singh (not examined); Satnam Singh (not examined); Puran Singh (not examined) and Resham Singh (not examined). The inquest report (Exb. Ka-2) was prepared by PW-6.

4. Autopsy of the body of the deceased was conducted at about 4 pm on 29.06.2004. The autopsy report (Exb. Ka-3) prepared by Dr. K.K. Sharma (PW-2) notices as under:

External examination: Female body of average build and muscularity; face swollen, cynosed, eye-balls prominent (sic) congested. Tongue swollen, bitten by the teeth. Frothy blood coming out of mouth and nostrils. Rigor mortis had passed off from both upper limbs, passing off from lower limbs. Signs of decomposition present. Foul smell coming out of body. Abdomen distended.

Ante-mortem injuries:

(a) Contusion 6 cm x 4 cm on upper part of neck, left side;

(b) Contusion 5 cm x 3 cm on upper part of neck, right side.

On deeper dissections:,

Underlying tissues are ecchymosed; larynx, trachea, bronchial tubes are congested (sic) frothy blood and mucous.

Internal Examination:

(i) Both lungs congested;

(ii) Stomach had 150 ml of fluid; small intestine had fluid and gases; and large intestine had faecal matter and gases.

Cause of death -Asphyxia due to throttling.

Estimated time of death: About one and a half day before.

5. Charge-sheet (Exb. Ka-11) was submitted on 18.08.2006 by S.O. Rajendra Prasad (not examined) but it was proved by PW-6. After taking cognisance on the police report, on committal of the case to the court of session, on 03.03.2005, charge of the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. was framed against the appellant, which was denied and a trial was claimed.

PROSECUTION EVIDENCE

6. During the course of trial, the prosecution examined as many as six witnesses. PW-1 (Surendra Singh) the informant; PW-2 - the Doctor who carried out autopsy; PW-3 (Darshan Singh) and PW-4 (Parsa Singh) - eye-witnesses; PW-5 (Virendra Kumar Srivastava) is the constable clerk, who made G.D. Entry of the FIR (Ex. Ka-5) and prepared the Chik FIR (Ex. Ka-4); and PW-6 (Narendra Singh Tiwatiya) - the first investigating officer (I.O.) who carried out initial stages of the investigation including preparation of the site plan, inquest report, etc but was, later, transferred and replaced by Rajendra Prasad, who was not examined. PW-6, however, proved the charge-sheet submitted by Rajendra Prasad.

7. At this stage, it would be appropriate to notice the testimony of the prosecution witnesses in some detail.

(i) PW-1 (Surendra Singh). He stated that the deceased Banso Bai was married to the accused-appellant 13 years ago. Out of the wedlock, she had five daughters and one son; that his brother-in-law (the accused) used to level allegation of unchastity on his sister and also used to treat her cruelly. In respect of the incident, PW-1stated that Darshan Singh (PW-3) came and informed him that in the evening, preceding the night of the incident, the appellant and the deceased had a fight and, at 2 am in the night, on hearing shrieks, PW-3 and PW-4, who were neighbours of the deceased, woke up and witnessed that the accused was pressing the neck of the deceased but, by the time they could save her, the deceased had died and the accused escaped. PW-1 stated that upon getting the above information, he went to the house of the deceased at village Tatarganj, found body of the deceased lying on a cot; thereafter, PW-1 dictated the report to Jarnail Singh (not examined), who wrote the report, read it over to PW-1, which, PW-1 signed. On this statement, the written report was marked Exb. Ka-1. PW-1 also proved that at the time of inquest proceeding, he was present and had signed the report, which was exhibited as Exb. Ka-2. {Note: At the time when the statement in chief of PW-1 was recorded, the accused was not represented by a lawyer and, therefore, the court appointed an Amicus Curiae to represent the accused and assist him in cross-examining the witnesses. The Court, accordingly, fixed 14.07.2015 for cross-examination of PW-1. However, the cross-examination of PW-1 was held on 28.07.2005}.

(i-a) In his cross-examination, PW-1 stated that, initially, the relations were good between the accused and the deceased; that when he heard that the accused used to level allegations of unchastity on the deceased, he took no step, thinking that bickering between husband and wife is common. He admitted that his sister had not told him that her husband was treating her cruelly, perhaps, she used to hide all those things. But, through her neighbours, he came to know that she was being harassed by her husband. In respect of the incident, he stated that he came to know about the incident in the morning, between 7.30 and 8.00 am, through PW-3 (Darshan Singh). This information came to him while he was staying with his elder sister at Bazaar Ghat. When PW-1 got information from Darshan Singh, he and his elder sister, namely, Surno Bai went to the house of Banso Bai (the deceased). He stated that it took them one and a half hours to reach the house of the deceased. He stated that deceased's children are being looked after by their 'Tau' (father's elder brother) and that PW-1 is not looking after them. In respect of the incident, PW-1 stated that when he had reached her sister's place in the morning, he did not see any policemen there, though her neighbours were there; after staying there for one and a half hours, PW-1 went to the police station with his other sister to lodge report. PW-1 stated that he saw his sister's body lying on a cot. He stated that near the hut of her deceased sister, at a short distance, there were huts of PW-3 and PW-4. The hut of the deceased and her husband had three shades (Chhappar). Two shades were joint and one was separate. Under the two joint shades there was a kitchen and a Baithak (a platform for sitting purposes), partitioned by a Tatiya (straw mat). Under the third shade, animals of the accused used to be tied, which was at a distance of five to six paces. In respect of writing the report, PW-1 stated that he met the scribe of the FIR, namely, Jarnail Singh, at a Tea Stall, outside the police station. By the time the report was scribed, it was 4:30 to 5 pm. He stated that he had gone to the police station on a bicycle and it must have taken two and a half to three hours to reach the police station. He stated that when he returned from the police station it was evening and while he was returning on his bicycle, he saw the police proceeding in a Jeep to the village. By the time PW-1 arrived at the village, the police had already reached there. PW-1 stated that the police had prepared documents in his presence; that he and his sister had arrived from the police station by about 7 pm; that the first information report must have been lodged between 4:30 pm to 5 pm.

(i-b) In respect of the condition of his sister's body, PW-1 stated that when he had noticed his sister's body, she was wearing a Kurti and Salwar and her eyes were shut and her hands were on her chest. He had not noticed any injury on her hands though, there were old injury marks on her leg. He stated that on exposed parts of her body, he had not noticed any injury though, blood was oozing out from her nose and mouth. He also stated that she had glass bangles. PW-1 stated that at the time of inquest there were many persons; that the body of his sister was taken for autopsy in the night, between 1.30 am to 2 am. He denied the suggestion that there was animosity between the accused-appellant and his neighbours Darshan Singh and Parsha Singh in respect of some land dispute. He also denied the suggestion that the deceased and the accused-appellant had good relations. He also denied the suggestion that he is telling a lie.

(ii) PW-2 (Dr. K.K. Sharma). He proved the autopsy report and accepted the possibility of death of the deceased to have occurred at about 2 am on 28.06.2004.

(ii-a) In his cross-examination, he admitted that the estimated time of death can vary by nine hours and it is also possible that the injuries found on the body of the deceased could be on account of use of hard and blunt object.

(iii) PW-3 (Darshan Singh) - Eye witness. He stated that he knows the accused-appellant as his hut is near the hut of PW-3; that the accused-appellant is deaf and dumb; that there used to be fights between the accused-appellant and the deceased as the accused-appellant used to level allegations of unchastity on her; that in the evening, preceding the night of the incident, the accused and his wife (the deceased) had a fight; that in the night of the incident, while PW-3 was in his own hut, at about 2 am, he heard noises coming from the hut of the accused-appellant; on hearing the noise, PW-3 and his brother Parsa Singh (PW-4) went towards the hut of the accused and saw the accused strangulating his wife. Seeing PW-3 and PW-4, the accused ran away but by the time they reached there, the deceased had died. PW-3 stated that he gave information about the incident to the informant.

(iii-a) In his cross-examination, PW-3 stated that the accused is his relative; PW-1 is also his relative; his relationship with the accused is through PW-1; the accused has no agricultural holding though, PW-3 has two acres of land; whereas, his brother Parsa Singh (PW-4) has one and a quarter acre of land; that the deceased, in relation, is PW-3's 'Mausi' (mother's sister); that deceased is a cousin of PW-3's uncle; that the deceased had four daughters and a son and the eldest, amongst the daughters, is 11-12 years old whereas, youngest would be 3-4 months old; that deceased and the appellant had been fighting with each other since last two to three months before the incident; that PW-3 had not given information about their fights to Surendra Singh (PW-1); that Surendra Singh (PW-1) had not visited the deceased in the last 2-3 months, though PW-1's father used to visit, who is 60-70 years old; that in the night of the incident, PW-1's father (Makhan Singh) was not there as he was away; in PW-3's village, there is no electricity; that PW-3's hut is about 10 paces away from that of the accused; that PW-3's brother Parsa Singh's hut is towards east of his hut and the distance between his hut and his brother's hut is about 12 paces; that in the evening, preceding the night of the incident, the accused-appellant had not assaulted the deceased with danda (stick) or slaps; that accused-appellant can neither speak nor listen; PW-2 denied the suggestion that there use to be no fight between Charan Singh (appellant) and Banso Bai (the deceased).

(iii-b) On further cross-examination, PW-3 stated that Charan Singh can communicate with the help of signs, through his fingers, and can also understand what others wish to communicate. He admitted that earlier, relationship between Charan Singh and Banso Bai was cordial and that, out of their relationship, they had six children.

(iii-c) On further cross-examination, PW-3 stated that the night of the incident was a dark night. When he heard noises, he rushed to the spot from his own hut and his brother also arrived there; that deceased's children were there and were crying; that Banso Bai's mother and father were also sleeping there. PW-3 stated that Charan Singh was pressing the neck of Banso Bai and when PW-3 and PW-4 reached the spot and were just about 5-6 paces away, seeing them, accused-appellant ran away. PW-3 stated that after Charan Singh ran away, several others arrived at the spot; that he went to inform the informant (PW-1) at about 6 am on a cycle; that PW-3 reached informant's house by 7 am and after giving information to the informant, PW-3 returned back. PW-3 stated that the police had arrived by 12 (noon). PW-3 stated that he does not remember as to what happened thereafter. PW-3 also clarified that deceased's children were young therefore, they could not save their mother.

(iii-d) PW-3 denied the suggestion that thief/dacoit/robber killed Banso Bai in the night. PW-3 also denied the suggestion that he has a dispute with Charan Singh (the accused-appellant) and therefore he is lying with a view to grab Charan Singh's land. He also denied the suggestion that because Surendra Singh (informant) is his relative, therefore, he is lying.

(iii-e) PW-3 told the Court that when he went to the hut of Banso Bai, he had a torch and in the light of the torch, he had spotted Charan Singh strangulating the victim. He also stated that he had screamed at Charan Singh but, he did not respond. Rather, he ran away. PW-3 stated that the torch which he had, he has not brought. He also could not remember whether he had shown the torch to the I.O. He also stated that the cot where the deceased was lying was outside the shade. He denied the suggestion that he is telling a lie.

(iv) PW-4 (Parsha Singh)- another eye-witness. In his statement in chief, he narrates the same story as narrated by PW-3 (Darshan Singh) including that the accused is deaf and dumb. He also stated that the incident was witnessed in the light of a torch.

(iv-a) In his cross-examination, he stated that the informant, in relation, is his 'Mama' (maternal uncle) and the deceased is his 'Mausi' (maternal aunt). He also stated that deceased had six children and her son is about 10-11 years old. PW-4 stated that he had disclosed to the I.O. that Banso Bai was of bad character but this was not disclosed to Surendra Singh (PW-1) and Banso Bai's mother and father. He stated that at present Banso Bai's children are being looked after by their grand parents.

(iv-b) On further cross-examination, he admitted that Charan Singh (the accused-appellant) held about two acres of land, which is being ploughed by him. He also stated that, after marriage, Charan Singh and Banso Bai had good relations though, since two months before her death, they used to have fights. PW-4, however, admitted that he never informed Surendra Singh (PW-1) or mother and father of Banso Bai about their fights. PW-4 stated that a day before the incident, the appellant had assaulted Banso Bai with a lathi though it had left no injury mark. PW-

4 stated that he had not informed brother, father and mother of Banso Bai about this incident.

(iv-c) In respect of the incident, he stated that that night was dark; that night, Banso Bai had cried 2-3 times and on hearing her cries, he and his brother (PW-3) went to the spot. Charan Singh's children had also raised alarm but, as they were very young, they could not save their mother. PW-4 stated that outside the shade (Chhappar), there was just one cot where Banso Bai was lying. Rest were sleeping inside the shade. He stated that other cot was at some distance from the cot of Banso Bai. When questioned about distance of the other cot, PW-4 stated that it must have been 20-25 hands away. On further cross-examination, PW-3 stated that in that separate cot Charan Singh's mother and father were sleeping but they did not make any attempt to save the deceased.

(iv-d) On further cross-examination, PW-3 stated that when he had reached the spot, he had seen Charan Singh on top of the cot and pressing the neck of Banso Bai. Banso Bai was screaming but in low volume. When he and his brother (PW-3) arrived, Charan Singh left and ran away. PW-4 further stated, that when they examined Banso Bai from close proximity, she was found dead. He stated that he saw the incident from a distance of 6-7 paces in torch light.

(iv-e) To Court - PW-3 stated that Charan Singh cannot speak clearly but can speak little bit and can communicate by hand gestures. PW-4 also stated that Charan Singh cannot properly hear but has good eye sight and is not insane or of weak mind.

(iv-f) On further cross-examination, PW-4 stated that he had shown to the I.O. the place where the cot was lying and from where he and his brother (Darshan Singh) had challenged Charan Singh and the direction in which he ran away towards the jungle but, if this fact was not mentioned by the Investigating Officer, then he cannot tell the reason. PW-4 stated that after the incident, he had stayed overnight at the spot whereas the police had arrived in the morning at 9 am and had prepared documents and had also got his thumb impression. He stated that the police had not taken thumb impression of Jarnail Singh or anybody else in his presence. PW-4 stated that the police had lifted the body by about night. He denied the suggestion that he had not witnessed the incident and he is telling a lie because of being a relative of Surendra Singh (PW-1).

(v) PW-5 (Constable Clerk-Virendra Kumar Srivastava). He proved lodging of the first information report at 17:35 hours on 28.06.2004 of which GD entry no. 20 (Exb. Ka-5) and Chik FIR (Exb. Ka-4) was prepared by him.

(v-a) In his cross-examination, he stated that he is not aware as to how and by what conveyance the informant came to the police station. He stated that Chief Judicial Magistrate had seen the Chik FIR on 02.07.2004. He further stated that at the time of lodging the first information report, the Investigating Officer was there and papers were handed over to him; and that he left immediately. PW-5 stated that the body had not come to the police station. He denied the suggestion that first information report was ante-timed under the influence of the informant.

(vi) PW-6 (S.I. Narendra Kumar Tivatia). He is the investigating officer, who conducted investigation in the matter up to 09.08.2004 whereafter, he was transferred. PW-6 stated that after the FIR was lodged, he took the informant with him on official Jeep to village Tatarganj (the village in which the crime was committed) and, upon reaching the spot, at the behest of the informant, he inspected the spot, prepared site plan (Exb. Ka-6), conducted and prepared inquest report (Exb. Ka-2) as well as letter for the CMO and other documents in respect of post-mortem etc. and, thereafter, recorded statement of the inquest witnesses and made an effort to search out the accused. He stated that on 29.06.2004, he made an effort to arrest the accused but could not find him in his house. Thereafter, on 30.06.2004, he got copy of the post-mortem report which was incorporated in the case diary. On 01.07.2004, he made efforts to arrest the accused but the accused could not be found. On the same day, he recorded statement of witnesses Parsha Singh and Darshan Singh. Again, on 02.07.2004; 04.07.2004; 07.07.2004; and 10.07.2004, he made effort to arrest the accused-appellant Charan Singh but he could not be found. Finally, on 11.07.2004, he submitted an application in Court, stating Charan Singh has absconded therefore, proceeding under Section 82 and 83 Cr.P.C. be initiated on which, on 14.07.2004 he got information from the Court that the application will be considered on 17.07.2004. On 17.07.2004, he obtained processes, under section 82 Cr.P.C. as also non-bailable warrants. On 21.07.2004, he searched for the accused and took steps under Section 82 Cr.P.C. On 31.07.2004, again, raid was conducted to arrest Charan Singh but he could not be found. On 09.08.2004, he came to know that Charan Singh had left Uttar Pradesh for Uttranchal and is in district Udham Singh Nagar. PW-6 stated that, thereafter, he was transferred and the remaining investigation was conducted by Rajendra Prasad. PW-6 stated that Rajendra Prasad arrested Charan Singh and after recording his statement, submitted charge-sheet. PW-6 proved the writing and signature of the second I.O. on the charge-sheet, which was marked Exhibit Ka-11.

(vi-a) In his cross-examination, PW-6 stated that he had not disclosed in the site plan the route which Charan Singh took to escape from the spot. He stated that witnesses Darshan Singh and Parsha Singh did not inform him the direction and the route which the accused take to escape from the spot. He, however, stated that huts of the witnesses and the accused were at close proximity to each other.

(vi-b) He denied the suggestion that Surendra Singh (the informant) was crossed by the police while he was on a cycle, 5-6 kms away from the village. PW-6 stated that when he had gone to prepare the inquest report, deceased's mother-in-law and children were there. Children were young though, he could not recollect their age. PW-6 stated that he had enquired from the mother of the accused but had not recorded her statement. The children had no clue about the incident as they were sleeping. He stated that he had not questioned the children at the time when he was preparing the inquest report. He stated that when he had visited the spot, he had seen only one cot lying there where there was dead body. He stated that the witnesses had not shown any torch to him. He denied the suggestion that he reached the spot at noon. He also denied the suggestion that he found the body of Banso Bai in an open field. He stated that the witness Parsha Singh had not informed about the bad character of Banso Bai though, Parsha Singh had told him that Charan Singh, by gestures, did communicate that his wife is not of good character. On being shown paper no. 11/35, PW-6 stated that this was a letter written by Station Officer Rajendra Prasad to the Chief Medical Officer in respect of accused being deaf and dumb. He stated that since he had been transferred by then, he did not investigate in that regard. PW-6 stated that from the entry in the case diary, it appears, that the investigating officer, namely, Rajendra Prasad, had interrogated the accused with the help of gestures though, he could not find any report of the Chief Medical Officer on the record. He denied the suggestion that charge-sheet was submitted by conducting a bogus investigation.

8. After the statement of the prosecution witnesses were recorded, on 21.12.2005, the statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The order-sheet of the court below reflects that the trial court on 21.12.2005 passed following order:-

आज प्रस्तुत अभियुक्त मय अधिवक्ता उपस्थित। अभियुक्त साफ नही बोल पाता किन्तु बातों को समझ लेता है व तुतलाकर व इशारे से अपनी बात कह लेता है। उसके विद्वान अधिवक्ता व ।क्लb के समक्ष व उनके सहयोग से बयान 313 लिखा गया।

9. The incriminating circumstances appearing in the prosecution evidence were put to the accused-appellant while recording his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and at the bottom of that statement, following note was put:-

"उक्त पृच्छा मेरी उपस्थिति एवं श्रवणगोचरता मे की गयी, जिसमें अभियुक्त द्वारा किये गयेकथनों की पूर्ण व सही हाल अन्तर्विष्ट है।"

10. After 21.12.2005, on 24.12.2005, a written explanation was also submitted on behalf of the accused, duly thumb marked by him and signed by his lawyer, which reads as follows:-

11. The trial court, by the impugned judgment and order dated 12.01.2006, held that from the prosecution evidence it is established that in the night of the incident, the appellant killed his wife by strangulating her and that the appellant being husband of the deceased, living with her, has given no explanation as to in what other manner the deceased was killed, accordingly, the appellant is liable to be convicted and sentenced, as above. While writing its judgment, in paragraph no.16 and 17 of the judgment, the trial court dealt with the plea of the appellant that, because he was deaf and dumb, he could not put his defence properly. In this context, the trial court held that the accused was not mentally weak and could communicate verbally, in a stuttering manner, as well as by gestures and, therefore, could defend himself. While holding so, it relied on its own observations, the record and the statement of PW-4.

12. We have heard Sri Subedar Mishra for the appellant; Sri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A., for the State; and have perused the record.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE APPELLANT

13. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant is that it was proved on record that the appellant is a deaf and dumb person as this position is admitted to the prosecution witnesses of fact, namely, PW-1, PW-3 and PW-4, and a letter was also written by the Investigating Officer to the Chief Medical Officer for medical examination of the accused as he was deaf and dumb. The said letter dated 17.08.2004 is there on record as Paper No. 11/35 and it was put to PW-6 during cross-examination wherein, he admitted that the said letter was sent by the I.O. to the Chief Medical Officer, Pilibhit. The letter dated August 17, 2004 is being extracted below:-

14. By citing the above letter, the learned counsel for the appellant submitted that despite the said request and a clear-cut statement made before the trial court that the accused is deaf and dumb, no medical examination of the accused was conducted and no sign language interpreter was provided to the accused either for getting his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. or to enable him to communicate with his lawyer for setting up proper defence, and to enable an effective cross-examination. This, therefore, caused serious prejudice to the appellant, thereby, vitiating the trial. It has been submitted that the whole case turns on the ocular evidence of PW-3 and PW-4. Admittedly, the children who had reached the age of understanding were not produced. The eyewitnesses stated that the mother and father of the accused were there, but they have not been examined. Noticeably, the body of the deceased carried no injuries except on her neck which is suggestive of the fact that she might have been strangulated with the help of others, who might have held her hand and legs so that she could offer no resistance. He further submits that it is quite possible that if the facility of a sign language interpreter had been provided to the accused, the accused might have explained that on the night of the incident he was not even there at the house and was elsewhere. Thus, not providing an interpreter to the accused has resulted in serious miscarriage of justice.

15. It has further been submitted that the entire prosecution story does not inspire confidence as the prosecution case is that the accused used to accuse the deceased of bad character but, if the accused was deaf and dumb, how would he be able to level those allegations and, if he did level those allegations, how would others come to know of it. Further, the prosecution case that the accused used to suspect and taunt his wife is not substantiated; because, PW-3 and PW-4 have not informed the informant or anybody else in respect of such accusations. He submitted that at the spot only one cot was noticed; if there was just one cot there, where was the accused sleeping because the other cot, according to PW-4, was of father and mother of the accused. This suggests that the accused was not even there at home when the deceased died. It has also been submitted that the investigating officer, who arrested the accused, has not been examined because he could have disclosed as to from where and in what circumstances the accused was arrested. As, admittedly, the accused was not given the benefit of sign language interpreter, which ought to be available to a deaf and dumb person to enable him to render his explanation, the accused was seriously prejudiced as he was not able to disclose the circumstances in which he was arrested and whether he was there at the spot or elsewhere. Equally, at the time of framing of charge, the accused did not have a counsel to represent him because when the witness PW-1 was tendered for cross-examination, the Court discovered that the accused was unrepresented therefore, the Court offered and provided him services of an Amicus Curiae. Under the circumstances, even the recording of statement of the witnesses in accused's presence was meaningless as how will he understand as to what the witnesses were saying. Similarly, if the benefit of a sign language interpreter was not provided to the accused at the time of recording his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., how would he be able to understand as to what incriminating circumstances appeared against him. It has been submitted that, it appears, by guess work, the statement of accused has been recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. This vitiates the entire trial.

16. On merits, it was argued that the prosecution story does not inspire confidence inasmuch as, admittedly, the village had no electricity, the witnesses are stated to have seen the incident in the light of a torch which was never produced before the Investigating Officer and was never part of the record. Further, the site plan did not disclose the route taken by the accused to escape from the scene. Meaning thereby that the eye-witnesses had not seen the incident and, therefore, it is a case, where, with ill motive, to grab the land of the appellant he has been implicated, which is borne out from the statement of PW-4, where he admits that PW-4 is ploughing the field of the appellant. Thus, in a nutshell, the submissions of the appellant could be summarised as follows:-

(a) The FIR is highly delayed; the prosecution has suppressed evidence by not examining vital witnesses, namely, mother and father of the accused-appellant as well as her children, who were all sleeping at the place where the deceased was killed. More so, when, according to own case of PW-3 and PW-4, the children were there and crying. Even according to I.O. (PW-6), the children were sleeping there. Yet, their statement was not recorded which means that the investigating agency did not try to verify the allegations;

(b) The ocular evidence does not inspire confidence inasmuch as, admittedly, the incident occurred on a dark night, the body of the deceased showed no marks of resistance, suggesting that she was caught hold by someone and some other person strangulated her. This circumstance renders the ocular account untrustworthy;

(c) That the appellant was deprived of the right of defence as he was not provided services of a sign language interpreter despite the fact that he was deaf and dumb and, that too, to the knowledge of the Court yet, despite application and information to the Court that he was deaf and dumb, the Court did not direct for his medical examination to ascertain whether he was in a position to understand and communicate; and

(d) That the endorsement at the bottom of the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. that it was recorded with the help of gestures after being satisfied as to what the accused wanted to communicate, is contrary to the order recorded on the order-sheet that the accused could communicate in low tones and that his statement was recorded with the help of his counsel and the ADGC. All of this would suggest that there was no serious effort to understand the disability of the accused and to record his statement.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE STATE

17. Per contra, the learned A.G.A. submitted that though PW-1, PW-3 and PW-4 stated that the accused was deaf and dumb but, from their testimony it is clear that the accused could communicate in low tones and was not of a weak mind. Moreover, the court recorded accused's statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. after being satisfied that what the accused wanted to communicate, he had communicated. Hence, there was no miscarriage of justice even if there had been no formal medical examination of the accused to ascertain whether he could hear and communicate. He further submits that even if the facility of sign language interpreter was not provided to the accused that, by itself, would not vitiate the judgment and order of the trial court as there is a legal presumption that all official acts have been performed in accordance with law unless proved otherwise. He submits that since there is an endorsement of the presiding officer of the court that the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded with the help of the advocates after understanding the gestures and the utterances made by the accused in low tones and in a lisping manner, there was substantial compliance of the legal provisions in that regard and, therefore, the trial did not vitiate.

18. On merits, the learned A.G.A. submitted that this is a case where the wife had died in the night on account of strangulation; that the presence of the appellant is proved by ocular account, burden was heavy on the accused to explain the circumstances in which she had suffered injuries but there appears no explanation in what other manner she suffered the injuries and, in fact, there was not even a denial in respect of his presence there, therefore, the trial court was justified in recording conviction.

19. Having noticed the rival submissions, before examining the merit of the prosecution case, we deem it appropriate to first examine the merits of appellant's counsel's submission that the trial vitiated because, firstly, no medical examination of the appellant with regard to his speech and hearing disability was conducted to ascertain whether, without the help of a sign language interpreter, the trial could have proceeded against the accused and, secondly, whether in absence of the facility of a sign language interpreter to the appellant, the appellant was seriously prejudiced in setting up his defence, resulting in complete miscarriage of justice. Before we proceed to test the aforesaid submission, we must first examine whether the appellant is deaf and dumb, if so, to what extent; and whether, in the facts of the case, without medical examination of the accused-appellant in respect of his disability, the trial court could have proceeded on court's own understanding of the issue, if not, whether it vitiates the trial.

20. Before we proceed to ascertain whether the accused-appellant was deaf and dumb and the consequences of him being so, it would be useful to first examine the law governing trial of deaf and dumb accused. Section 318 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, which is pari materia section 341 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (old Code), provides as follows:

"S. 318. Procedure where accused does not understand proceedings.- If the accused, though not of unsound mind, cannot be made to understand the proceedings, the Court may proceed with the inquiry or trial; and, in the case of a Court other than a High Court, if such proceedings result in a conviction, the proceedings shall be forwarded to the High Court with a report of the circumstances of the case, and the High Court shall pass thereon such order as it thinks fit"

21. Interpreting section 341 of the old Code, in Emperor V. Deaf and Dumb, AIR 1917 Bombay 288, it was observed that though great caution and diligence are necessary in the trial of a deaf and dumb person yet, if it be shown that such person had sufficient intelligence to understand the character of his criminal act, he is liable to punishment. In Emperor V. Ulfat Singh, AIR 1947 Alld 301, a single judge Bench of Allahabad High Court, interpreting section 341 of the old Code observed: "It would appear from the section that the Court has first to find whether the accused can be made to understand the proceedings. If the Court finds that he cannot it may proceed with inquiry or trial, but proceedings have to be forwarded to the High Court with a report of the circumstances of the case for suitable orders by the High Court." The court went on to observe that there is no provision in the Indian Penal Code under which accused could be exempted from punishment merely because he is deaf and dumb. The court further observed that in such kind of cases, the Courts have to do their best to see that the trial is a fair trial and the accused gets a chance of putting up such defences as he may have. The above view has been noticed and followed by a Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in State V. Radhamal Sangatmal Sindhi, AIR 1960 Bombay 526, wherein it was observed that: "the Court trying such an accused will be directed to see that he has the necessary legal assistance, that the trial proceeds on the basis that the accused has pleaded not guilty to the charge, and that all possible defences open to him in the circumstances of the case are considered." A Division Bench of Kerala High Court In re: Padmanabhan Nair Narayan Nair, AIR 1957 Kerala 9, in respect of holding trial of a deaf and dumb person clarified the law further, by observing that "it is court's duty to make a proper endeavour to see whether the accused can be made to understand the proceedings. If the Judge finds that the accused can be made to understand the proceedings the trial must proceed in the ordinary way. If the trial proceeds in the ordinary way the court can pass sentence if the accused is found guilty and convicted. However, if it is found that the accused cannot be made to understand the proceedings the court can convict him if the evidence warrants it, but it cannot pass sentence against him. The court must forward the proceedings to the High Court to pass such orders as the High Court thinks fit."

22. From the decisions noticed above, the law as it stands is that there is no bar to proceed against a deaf and dumb accused on a charge of a criminal offence. But, whenever a criminal proceeding is drawn against a deaf and dumb person, the endeavour should be that he understands the proceedings. If the court finds that he understands the proceedings, the trial must proceed in the ordinary way. However, while doing so, courts have to see to it that the trial is fair and the accused gets a chance of putting up such defences as he may have.

23. In the case at hand, the court below had satisfied itself that the accused could communicate, though in low lisping tone, and could understand the proceeding. This satisfaction is reflected in the order sheet of the trial court as well as the impugned judgment. The finding returned by the trial court in that regard has not been questioned in the grounds of appeal. No doubt, during the course of cross-examination, the I.O. (PW-6) was confronted with an application moved by the second I.O. for medical examination of the accused in respect of his disability, but, during trial, no application for medical examination of the accused in respect thereto has been made, or, at least, brought to our notice, even though the appellant was represented by a counsel. Interestingly, after oral examination, under section 313 CrPC, the appellant submitted a written statement. In that written statement, dated 24.12.2005, he stated that he is deaf and dumb therefore, he could not place his defence properly before the police. This written statement no where stated that he could not understand the evidence led against him during the course of trial or that he needed a sign language interpreter to place his case properly before the court. There is also no prayer in that written statement for his medical examination. Notably, prior to submission of written statement, dated 24.12.2005, the court, after personally examining the accused, on 21.12.2005 had recorded its satisfaction that the accused is in a position to understand and can communicate with the help of gestures and in a low lisping tone. We also notice from record that at the instance of the appellant all the prosecution witnesses were cross-examined at length, on various aspects, negating the possibility of him not being able to properly instruct his counsel because of his professed disability. Further, there appears no application of the counsel representing the appellant to provide a sign language interpreter to enable the counsel to communicate with the appellant or for the appellant to communicate with the court. Under illustration (e) to section 114 of the Evidence Act, 1872 there is a legal presumption that judicial and official acts have been regularly performed. In these circumstances once the court had recorded its satisfaction with regard to the ability of the accused to understand and communicate, and there being no application before that court questioning its satisfaction or praying for services of a sign language interpreter for the accused, in our view, an unrebutted legal presumption with regard to the regularity of the judicial act would operate against the accused-appellant. Thus, keeping in mind the legal presumption as also the statement of PW-4 that the appellant is in a position to understand and communicate and is not of weak mind, we are satisfied that the trial did not vitiate for lack of appointment of a sign language interpreter for the accused-appellant or for any other like reason. In addition to above, we notice from the record that the appellant has extensively put forth his defence not only by undertaking gruelling cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses but also by making his statement, both oral and written, under section 313 CrPC. Consequently, we reject the defence plea that the appellant was seriously prejudiced in putting forth his defence on account of his disability and non appointment of a sign language interpreter to assist him.

24. Now, we shall examine the merit of the prosecution case. In this regard, the submissions on behalf of the appellant are that it was a night incident, other than torch light no source of light is professed, whereas, the torch has not been shown to the I.O.; the FIR is delayed; family members of the deceased including children, who were there, have not been examined; and all of this, coupled with the delay in lodging the report, would suggest that no body witnessed the incident, the prosecution story is contrived with ill-motives to grab the property of the appellant.

25. In so far as the delay in lodging the FIR is concerned, the explanation offered is that the eye witness went to inform the brother of the deceased who resided elsewhere. After receipt of information, the brother went to deceased's place to confirm the news. When he confirmed the news, he went to lodge the report. The explanation offered is not an eyewash. It appears realistic considering that the informant, the witnesses and the accused are men of ordinary means. Notably, the informant travelled from one place to the other on a bicycle carrying his other sister. No doubt, the eye witnesses could themselves have lodged the report but, ultimately, it is their outlook. Ordinarily, people do not like to interfere in others' family matter. Indisputably, the incident was post mid-night and early morning the eye witness went to inform the brother of the deceased. In these circumstances, though the FIR may be a bit delayed and could have been lodged much earlier but, in the facts of the case, where husband of the deceased is an accused for the murder of the deceased, it does not, by itself, give rise to an adverse inference against the truth of the prosecution case.

26. In so far as absence of light to enable the witnesses to witness the incident is concerned, no doubt, neither the torch used, as a source of light, was shown to the I.O. during investigation, nor was taken into custody, but we must not be oblivious of the fact that the eyewitnesses and the deceased resided in their respective huts in close proximity to each other. Notably, the proximity of the hut of the deceased/accused with those of the eye witnesses have not been disputed rather, it is proved by oral evidence as well as the site plan prepared by the I.O. on the basis of spot inspection. The witnesses came out of their huts on hearing noises and from close proximity they witnessed the accused pressing the neck of the deceased. The deceased died due to strangulation. Further, the incident is of the year 2004, by then, presence of torches in areas where there is no electric supply, as was the village concerned, is a common feature. In these circumstances, the oral deposition in respect of use of torch is not liable to be discarded merely because the I.O. did not question the witnesses with respect to the source of light.

27. In so far as non-examination of children and other family members of the deceased is concerned, suffice it to say that where the accused is ones own family member, witnesses of that family are reluctant to give evidence. More over, children rarely go against their parents. Therefore, their non-examination, in the facts of the case, is not fatal to the prosecution case.

28. Having dealt with the arguments advanced on behalf of the appellant, what clinches the issue against the appellant is that he is admittedly the husband of the deceased and there is no denial of the appellant with regard to him residing with his wife at the time and place of the incident. Most importantly, the deceased died due to strangulation. There is no serious challenge to the incident occurring at the time set out by the prosecution. Even the autopsy surgeon accepts the possibility of death occurring at the time set out by the prosecution. Though, a feeble attempt is there to point out that body was found in the field but that is not substantiated by any evidence. The body was noticed on a cot at a place where the hut of the accused was there, which fact was proved by the oral testimony as well as the site plan prepared by the I.O. after inspecting the spot. Further, from the statement of I.O. it is clear that the appellant had escaped from the spot and for several days he was absconding. In fact, a search had to be made for him and, ultimately, after recourse to coercive processes, appellant's arrest could be secured. All these are highly incriminating circumstances which, by themselves, complete a chain of circumstances pointing towards the guilt of the appellant and in absence of cogent explanation, could form the basis of conviction. Whereas, to explain this chain of incriminating circumstances, nothing has come, either through cross-examination, or by way of explanation under section 313 CrPC, that the appellant resided elsewhere or worked for gain elsewhere and was not present at the scene of crime in the night of the incident. Notably, accused-appellant in the written statement under section 313 CrPC has admitted that the deceased was his wife and they had cordial relationship out of which they had several issues, which, in absence of any specific statement of separation, or claim of residing elsewhere in connection with work, would give an impression that the appellant, as husband, resided with the deceased. Thus, we do not find a good reason to disbelieve the prosecution case or to discard the prosecution evidence which proves the guilt of the appellant in the murder of his wife beyond reasonable doubt.

29. Consequently, we affirm the judgment and order of the trial court and the appeal is, accordingly, dismissed. The appellant is in jail and shall serve out the sentence awarded to him without prejudice to his right to apply for remission.

30. Let the record of the court below along with certified copy of this order be sent to the trial court below for information and compliance.

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SHREE PRAKASH SINGH, J.

Kamran ...Appellant

Versus

State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Anil Kumar Pandey

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A.

Criminal Law- Narcotic Drugs And Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985- Section 8/21(b)- Conviction for a sentence of five years imprisonment and with fine of Rs. 25,000/- Application for confession of the aforesaid offence - Quantum of sentence- Doctrine of proportionality- The judicial trend in the county has been towards striking a balance between the reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out a criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformative approach underlying in our criminal justice system. In our country, the reformative and corrective approach has been adopted in criminal justice administration and thus so far as the instant case is concern, there is nothing on record to show that the accused-appellant is incapable for being reformative - Conduct and behavior of the appellant shows that he is liable to be reformed and there is no threat to the society from the appellant- Sentence of five years rigorous imprisonment awarded to the appellant is reduced by four years and as such one year sentence as well as the fine of Rs. 25,000/- and in case of default further six months additional rigorous punishment is being upheld.

Settled law that the reformative and corrective approach of criminal justice has been adopted in our country and the same has to be balanced with the proportionality of the punishment imposed, hence the conduct and behaviour of the accused would be a relevant factor in modifying the sentence of the accused. (Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anil Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Anirudh Kumar Singh, learned AGA-I for the State and perused the record.

2. The present criminal appeal has been preferred by the appellant against the judgement and order dated 13.08.2021 and punishment order dated 25.08.2021 passed by Special Judge (N.D.P.S. Act), Court No. 10, Barabanki in Special Sessions Trial (Special Criminal Case) No. 28/2014 (State of U.P. vs. Kamran) arising out of Case Crime No. 358/2013 relating to P.S. Zaidpur, District Barabanki, whereby he was convicted with sentence under Section 8/21(b) of N.D.P.S. Act for a period of five years rigorous imprisonment and with fine of Rs. 25,000/- and in case of default of payment of fine further six months additional imprisonment is awarded.

3. As per prosecution story, present appellant including one other co-accused person namely Anwar was arrested on 17.11.2013 and a contraband narcotic drug i.e. 100 gm of morphine was recovered from each of the accused. He submits that infact two FIR's were lodged one is bearing No. 357 of 2013 and the next one is bearing no. 358 of 2013. The aforesaid recovery was shown from both the accused persons by a common recovery memo. Common investigation was done and charge sheet was filed bearing no. 13 of 2013. He submits that trials were separately done and one of the trial, which was proceeded in the matter of Anwar i.e., Sessions Trial No. 27/2014, wherein, Anwar had confessed the guilt and was awarded a punishment of one year rigorous imprisonment and with fine of Rs. 15,000/-. So far as the present appellant is concerned, the trial proceeded in S.S.T. No. 28/2014. During the trial appellant was enlarged on bail. At the level of framing of the charges, the present appellant denied the charges and chose to contest the case and in such an event, trial proceeded in respect with the present appellant.

4. The learned counsel for the appellant contended that infact since 2013 no witness was produced by the prosecution up till 2021 and the appellant was running on each and every date and appeared before the court as and when the case was fixed. He also added that prosecution had failed to produced any witness and as such it is a case where there is no any witness was produced for examination. He also submits that later on, when under the compelling circumstances, he moved an application for confession of the aforesaid offence, the trial proceeded in view of the application of confession so submitted.

5. He submits that on 11.08.2021, statement of present appellant was recorded under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. and after considering the statement of the present appellant as well the material on record the trial court has passed the judgement dated 13.08.2021 and punishment order was passed on 25.08.2021. By the aforesaid judgement the sentence of 5 years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 25,000/- was awarded against the appellant.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant has argued that the trial court has failed to appreciate the evidences which was adduced before it. It was also not considered by the trail court that there is non compliance of mandatory provision of Section 50 of N.D.P.S. Act as the appellant was not produced before the Gazetted Officer or Magistrate for his search. The said occurrence was taken place on 17.11.2013 and after framing of the charges, not a single witness or evidence was produced before the court by prosecution in spite of full co-operation of the appellant. The quantum of sentence has also been fixed harshly. It has also not been considered by the trial court that the appellant had no criminal history and the identically situated co-accused who confessed his guilt was awarded one year sentence in the similar circumstances. Learned counsel for the appellant further argued that provision of Section 52, 55 and 57 of the N.D.P.S. Act was not complied with and the prosecution had failed to prove that the alleged contraband substance was under the safe custody. The place of occurrence was also highly suspicious and the provision provided for search and seizure in Notification No. 1/88 and 1/89 issued by the Central Government was also not been complied with. Further the alleged contraband substance was not sent for chemical examination within 72 hours from the time of occurrence and sampling is not done as per law. He submits that infact there is no any independent eye witness of the alleged recovery to support the prosecution version and there is lack of chain of evidences to prove the link of offence.

7. It was further contended that infact there is no minimum punishment prescribed under Section 8/21 (b) of N.D.P.S. Act though that can be extended up to 10 years of imprisonment. There are several authorities of the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as of this Hon'ble Court that in case of confession of the guilt, the liberal view would be adopted by the Court's. He also argued on the issue of proportionality of the sentence awarded as he has drawn attention towards one of the identical co-accused namely Anwar who had confessed his guilt at the level of framing of charges and therefore awarded a punishment of one year rigorous imprisonment as well as Rs. 15,000/- fine but so far as the present appellant is concerned after running about more than seven years from Court to Court, he chose to confess the guilt and thus after confession of the guilt, the court awarded five years rigorous imprisonment and Rs. 25,000/- fine which is a hard blow and it is not in consonance with the settled principles of reform of the prisoners.

8. Further he added that in fact the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of S.K. Sakkar vs. The State of West Bengal in Criminal Appeal No. 1661 of 2010 has held that it's manifest from Section 20 (i) of N.D.P.S. Act (as it stood in 1997) that even though a maximum sentence of five years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 50,000/- was prescribed but there was no minimum mandatory sentence and as such the legislature had its own wisdom left it to the discretion of a court to award the minimum sentence albeit guided by the well known principles on the proportionality of sentence which is extracted below:

10. We find some merit in the submission noticed above. It may be noted that the appellant committed the crime in the year 1997, i.e., much before the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances (Amendment) Act, 2001 came into force. The punishment for contravention in relation to cannabis plant or any other provision of the NDPS Act, in his case, would thus be regulated by the unamended Section 20 of the NDPS Act, as it stood before the amendment of 2001 and which reads as follows:

"20. Punishment for contravention in relation to cannabis plant and cannabis. Whoever, in contravention of any provision of this Act or any rule or order made or condition of license granted thereunder.

(a) cultivates any cannabis plant; or

(b) produces, manufactures, possesses, sells, purchases, transports, imports inter-State, exports inter-State or uses cannabis, shall be punishable,

(i) where such contravention relates to ganja or the cultivation of cannabis plant, with rigorous imprisonment for a term which may extend to five years and shall also be liable to fine which may extend to fifty thousand rupees;

(ii) where such contravention relates to cannabis other than ganja, with rigorous imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than ten years but which may extend to twenty years and shall also be liable to fine which shall not be less than one lakh rupees and which may extend to two lakh rupees:

Provided that the court may, for reasons to be recorded in the judgment, impose a fine exceeding two lakh rupees." (emphasis supplied)

11. It is manifest from Section 20(i) of NDPS Act (as it stood in 1997), that even though a maximum sentence of five years RI and a fine of upto Rs. 50,000/- was prescribed but there was no minimum mandatory sentence. The Legislature had in its wisdom left it to the judicious discretion of a court to award the minimum sentence albeit guided by the well known principles on the proportionality of sentence. Taking into consideration the peculiar facts and circumstances of this case, it appears to us that the ends of justice would be adequately met if the appellant's sentence is reduced to the extent of the period he has already undergone. We order accordingly.

9. Referring the aforesaid learned counsel has argued that infact there is no minimum punishment prescribed and therefore the proportionality of the sentence is to be looked into by the court concerned as the legislature has in its own wisdom left it to the discretion of a court concerned. He also referred one of the case Shanti Lal vs. State of M.P., reported in (2007) (2) EFR 702 wherein Hon'ble Apex Court reduced the sentence in lieu of fine of three years to six months. He further added that in fact the arguments on quantum of sentence is to be heard and in fact it should be as per the doctrine of proportionality as per various settled proposition of law.

10. The learned counsel has also placed reliance in the case of Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, reported in AIR 1977 SC 1926, explaining rehabilitary & reformative aspects and while sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court, extracted as follows:-

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by re-culturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

The Hon'ble Supreme Court has basically focused that anti social behaviour cannot be all time countered by civil laws but by being mild through re-culturization, the same can be achieved. Further the punishment to the injured person and the improvement cannot be adhered with causing injury.

11. After the aforesaid contention, learned counsel for the appellant argued on the quantum of sentence and has submitted that the accused appellant has been in jail prior to trial, for six months and after the trial he is in jail since 13.08.2021. He further submitted that accused has been convicted for a sentence of five years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 25,000/-. He submits that appellant has served a substantial period and as such accused-appellant should be released on undergone or substantial reduction in sentence may be done.

12. Countering the aforesaid learned AGA-I has very vehemently opposed the contention of the appellant's counsel and submits that learned trial court has rightly appreciated the statements of the witnesses and the evidences adduced by the prosecution and has passed the judgment and order. He also added that though there is no maximum punishment provided under Section 8/21-b but the same may be extended upto 10 years. He submitted that this is an offence which is against the society and as such the court may be harsh even applying the reformative theory of punishment.

13. In support of his contention learned counsel appearing for State has placed reliance on the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in case of State of Punjab vs. Bawa Singh in Criminal Appeal No. 90 of 2015 arising out of SLP (Crl.) No. 5382 of 2014, wherein it is held that liberal view while imposing inadequate sentence would have an impact of more harm to the justice system and the public confidence in the efficacy of law shall be undermined and there must be a serious threats to the society. The relevant part of the aforesaid judgement is extracted as under:-

8. Therefore, undue sympathy to impose inadequate sentence would do more harm to the justice system to undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law and society could not long endure under such serious threats. It is, therefore, the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed, etc."

16. A three-Judge Bench of this Court in Ahmed Hussein Vali Mohammed Saiyed vs. State of Gujarat, (2009) 7 SCC 254, observed as follows:

"99. ... The object of awarding appropriate sentence should be to protect the society and to deter the criminal from achieving the avowed object to (sic break the) law by imposing appropriate sentence. It is expected that the courts would operate the sentencing system so as to impose such sentence which reflects the conscience of the society and the sentencing process has to be stern where it should be. Any liberal attitude by imposing meagre sentences or taking too sympathetic view merely on account of lapse of time in respect of such offences will be resultwise counterproductive in the long run and against the interest of society which needs to be cared for and strengthened by string of deterrence inbuilt in the sentencing system.

100. Justice demands that courts should impose punishment befitting the crime so that the courts reflect public abhorrence of the crime. The court must not only keep in view the rights of the victim of the crime but the society at large while considering the imposition of appropriate [pic]punishment. The court will be failing in its duty if appropriate punishment is not awarded for a crime which has been committed not only against the individual victim but also against the society to which both the criminal and the victim belong."

17. We again reiterate in this case that undue sympathy to impose inadequate sentence would do more harm to the justice system to undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to the nature of the offence and the manner in which it was executed or committed. The sentencing courts are expected to consider all relevant facts and circumstances bearing on the question of sentence and proceed to impose a sentence commensurate with the gravity of the offence. The court must not only keep in view the rights of the victim of the crime but also the society at large while considering the imposition of appropriate punishment. Meagre sentence imposed solely on account of lapse of time without considering the degree of the offence will be counter-productive in the long run and against the interest of the society.

18. Recently, in the cases of State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Bablu, (2014) 9 SCC 281 and State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Surendra Singh, 2014 (12) SCALE 672, after considering and following the earlier decisions, this Court reiterated the settled proposition of law that one of the prime objectives of criminal law is the imposition of adequate, just, proportionate punishment which commensurate with gravity, nature of crime and the manner in which the offence is committed. One should keep in mind the social interest and conscience of the society while considering the determinative factor of sentence with gravity of crime. The punishment should not be so lenient that it shocks the conscience of the society. It is, therefore, solemn duty of the court to strike a proper balance while awarding the sentence as awarding lesser sentence encourages any criminal and, as a result of the same, the society suffers.

19. Perusal of the impugned order passed by the High Court would show that while reducing the sentence to the period already undergone, the High Court has not considered the law time and again laid down by this Court. Hence the impugned order passed by the High Court is set aside and the matter is remanded back to the High Court to pass a fresh order in the revision petition taking into consideration the law discussed hereinabove after giving an opportunity of hearing to the parties. The appeal is accordingly allowed with the aforesaid direction.

14. He has further placed reliance in case of Sham Sunder vs Puran, reported in (1990) 4 SCC 731, where the high court reduced the sentence for the offence under section 304 part I into undergone; the Supreme Court opined that the sentence needs to be enhanced being inadequate. It was held as under:-

"The court in fixing the punishment for any particular crime should take into consideration the nature of offence, the circumstances in which it was committed and the degree of deliberation shown by the offender. The measure of punishment should be proportionate to the gravity of offence."

15. Considering the contention of the counsel for the parties and after discussing the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as by the other High Courts, it emerges that basic tenant of criminal law is based on social contract theory that a crime is always against the society and not just against the victim. While prosecuting the perpetrators is necessary to prove his guilt. It is to ensure that the ends of justice are met. There are four established theory in the criminal jurisprudence with regard to awarding punishment i.e., Retributive theory, Deterrent theory, Preventive theory and Reformative theory. Reformative theory is based on concept that every person is capable of being reformed and reintegrated into the society. This is internationally the most acceptable theory of punishment in light of the International Human Rights Law. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Mohd. Giasudding (supra) has held that the reformative or the restorative theory of punishment states that the aim of the penal system of a state should be reforms of the criminals and not to purely punish them.

16. The judicial trend in the county has been towards striking a balance between the reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out a criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformative approach underlying in our criminal justice system. In our country, the reformative and corrective approach has been adopted in criminal justice administration and thus so far as the instant case is concern, there is nothing on record to show that the accused-appellant is incapable for being reformative.

17. In the instant matter, the accused-appellant is in jail since 13.08.2021 and prior to that he has served six months of imprisonment and there is no any other criminal antecedent of the appellant. It is also considerable that every convict is entitled for the advantage of reformative and corrective jurisprudence. Further the appellant was on bail during the pendency of the trial and he did not misuse the liberty of bail so granted. He also kept on appearing on each dates fixed by the trial court and never jumped the bail. All these conduct and behavior of the appellant shows that he is liable to be reformed and there is no threat to the society from the appellant.

18. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and the submission of learned counsel for the parties, the judgement and order dated 13.08.2021 and order dated 25.08.2021 passed by Special Judge (N.D.P.S. Act), Court No. 10, Barabanki in Special Sessions Trial (Special Criminal Case) No. 28/2014 (State of U.P. vs. Kamran) arising out of Case Crime No. 358/2013 relating to P.S. Zaidpur, District Barabanki whereby the accused-appellant was convicted under Section 8/21(b) of N.D.P.S. Act for a sentence of five years imprisonment and with fine of Rs. 25,000/- and in case of default of payment of fine further six months additional rigorous imprisonment is hereby modified and sentence of five years rigorous imprisonment awarded to the appellant is reduced by four years and as such one year sentence as well as the fine of Rs. 25,000/- and in case of default further six months additional rigorous punishment is being upheld.

19. With the above modification, the appeal is accordingly disposed off, finally.

20. Office is directed to send the certified copy of this judgment along with lower court record to the court concerned for information and necessary action.

THE HON'BLE MOHD. ASLAM, J.

Mohammad School ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Syed Irfan Ali, Sri Mohd, Naushad, Smt. Beena Mishra, Sri Praveen Kumar Srivastava, Sri Vijay Prakash Chaturvedi, Sri A.K. Rai

Section 8/20 of NDPS Act

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 3131- The statement of the accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is not a substantive piece of evidence. It can be used for appreciating evidence lead by the prosecution to accept or reject it. The statement of accused-appellant as stated in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. will be taken into consideration in appreciating the evidence of prosecution and in arriving at a conclusion regarding the truthfulness and falsity of the prosecution case.

Settled law that statement of the accused recorded u/s 3131 of the CrPc is not substantive evidence but the same can be used to appreciate the evidence of the prosecution and the truthfulness thereof.

Criminal Law - Narcotics Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985- Section 50- The Charas was recovered from the bag which was in his right hand not from his personnel search, therefore, the compliance of Section 50 of NDPS Act was not needed.

Where the recovery of the contraband is made from the bag of the accused and not from his person, then Section 50 of the Act will not be attracted.

Criminal Law - Narcotics Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985- Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 118, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 100 (4) – Absence of public witnesses- effect of- The recovery was made from the accused-appellant without prior knowledge by the police personnels that accused-appellant has Charas and recovery was made all of sudden in a lonely place of grove where no public witnesses were present. In above circumstances, non-joining of public witnesses in search will not affect the prosecution case. Police personnels are competent witness to adduce evidence before the learned court below, therefore, there is no substance in the argument of the learned counsel for the accused-appellant that in absence of independent witness no reliance can be placed.

Where the recovery is sudden and from a desolate spot where independent public witnesses may not be available to the prosecution, then merely because only police personnel were examined as witnesses will not affect the case of the prosecution adversely as police personnel are also competent witnesses.

Criminal Law - Narcotics Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985- Section 52-A - Sending of the entire contraband for chemical examination will not render the recovery of contraband and chemical examination report of forensic science laboratory Ex.Ka-11 as inadmissibility.

Section 52-A of the Act merely provides for the disposal of the seized contraband and lays down the procedure for the same. Hence, sending the entire seized contraband to the FSL will not make the recovery doubtful. (Para 17, 19, 20, 23, 24, 30, 36)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mohd. Aslam, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the accused-appellant, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. The instant appeal has been filed by accused-appellant under Section 374(2) of Cr.P.C. against the impugned judgement of conviction and order of sentence dated 29.4.2013 passed by Additional Sessions Judge (ECP), Siddharth Nagar in Special Case No.9 of 2011 (State Vs. Mohd. School), arising out of Case Crime No.11 of 2011, under Section 8/20 of NDPS Act, Police Station- Shohratgarh, District Siddharth Nagar, by which the accused-appellant was convicted under Section 20(b)(ii)(C) of NDPS Act, 1985 and was sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of 10 years with a fine of Rs.1,00,000/-, in default thereof, to further undergo imprisonment for two years.

3. The brief facts of the prosecution case are that PW-1 S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav, In-charge SOG along with his companion police personnels was busy in patrolling duty near Nepal border for taking care of the area and for preventing of smuggling by a Government Specio Jeep No.UP55-G-0030 and on the way he took along with him S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar and Ct. Shriram Sharma from the police booth Shohratgarh. As soon as they reached near the north of grove in Village Dhanaura Mustahkam, they saw a person in the light of Jeep coming from Nepal side with a bag and suddenly he started hiding himself in the grove to avoid the light of vehicle. On suspicion, he was apprehended with the help of his companion personnel. On being asked the reason of hiding, he told that he is having narcotic substance 'Charas' and told his name as Mohammad School. He was informed that it is his legal right to be searched before Magistrate or Gazetted Officer, thereupon, he stated that he may be searched by him and given his consent for being searched after execution of consent letter Ex.Ka-1. The yellow plastic bag which was in his right hand, was searched and from it four packets of beige coloured plastic on which J.O.R. was written and two packets of yellow plastic were recovered. On tearing the packets, Charas was found and on being weighed by the scale kept in vehicle, it was found to be 5 Kg and 150 gm along with plastic packet. In respect of authorisation for keeping Charas, he could not show any authorization letter. Thereafter, he was told that his act is punishable under Section 8/20 of NDPS Act and was taken in police custody on 4.1.2011 at 19:50 p.m. He was arrested and the arrest memo was prepared Ex.Ka-2. After keeping the recovered narcotic substance Charas in the same bag, it was stitched and was sealed and the sample seal was prepared. On enquiry, it was also told by the accused-appellant that the said Charas was given to him by Thapa at Nepal Taulihwa Border. He has also told that a year ago, he was escaped by digging tunnel from Taulihwa Jail from Nepal along with eight more prisoners. Recovery memo of Charas was ascribed by S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar (PW-2) on dictation of S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav, which was read and explained to accused-appellant and police perssonels. Thereupon, all police personnels put their signatures on recovery memo (Ex.Ka-3) as witness. The information regarding arrest of accused-appellant was given to the family member of the accused-appellant. He was taken to the police station Shohratgarh and was handed over along with contraband and recovery memo to H.C.P. Dharambir Shahi at 20:30 p.m. On 4.1.2011, H.C.P. Dharambir Shahi has ascribed the Check Report (Ex.Ka-9) at 22:30 p.m. at Police Station Shohratgarh and after making necessary entry in GD (Ex.Ka-10) vide report No.48 , the case was registered as Case Crime No.11 of 2011, under Section 8/20 of NDPS Act and the contraband was kept in the Malkhana after making necessary entry in Malkhana Register (Ex.Ka-6).

4. The investigation of the case was undertaken by S.O./S.I. Anoop Kumar Shukla (PW-5). He copied the check report and GD entry in the case diary. He also copied the consent letter signed by accused-appellant and recorded the statement of informant S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav and inspected the place of occurrence and prepared site plan Ex.Ka-7 at the pointing out of S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav. The entire contraband recovered from the accused-appellant was sent to Forensic Science Laboratory, Lucknow along with sample seal and docket Ex.Ka-4 by Ct. Babban Singh (PW-3) and entry in this respect was made in Case Diary on 16.1.2011 (Ex.Ka-5). Contraband was received on 17.1.2011 at Forensic Science Laboratory, Lucknow at Sl. No. 347. On physical and chemical analysis vide report dated 17.1.2011 Ex.Ka-11, the contraband was found to be Charas. He recorded the statements of accompanying police personnels as witnesses of recovery and after completing the investigation, the charge-sheet (Ex.Ka-8) was submitted against the accused-appellant Mohd. School.

5. The cognizance of offence punishable under Section 8/20 NDPS Act was taken by the then learned Sessions Judge, Siddharth Nagar on 30.3.2011 against the accused-appellant and the copies of police papers were given to the accused-appellant in compliance of Section 207 Cr.P.C. After hearing learned counsel for the parties, charge of the offence punishable under Section 20(b)(ii)(C) of NDPS Act was framed against the accused-appellant to which he has pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

6. In order to prove its case, prosecution has examined informant SI Dinesh Kumar Yadav as PW-1 and S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar as PW-2 to prove factum of recovery of contraband, recovery memo Ex.Ka-3, consent letter Ex.Ka-1 and memo of arrest Ex.Ka-2. Prosecution has also examined Ct. Babban Singh as PW-3 to prove carrying of contraband along with sample seal and docket Ex.Ka-4, safe custody and entry of GD Ex.Ka-5. Prosecution has also examined Ct. Ram Agya Prasad as PW-4 to prove the safe custody of the contraband at police station and its entry in Malkhana Register Ex.Ka-6. Prosecution has also examined I.O./S.I. Anil Kumar as PW-5 to prove site plan Ex.Ka-7, charge-sheet Ex.Ka-8 and step taken in investigation. He proved by secondary evidence the check report Ex.Ka-9 and GD entry registering the case Ex.Ka-10. The report of Forensic Science Laboratory Ex.Ka-11 was also tendered by prosecution.

7. The statement of the accused-appellant under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. was recorded by learned court below, wherein he has stated that the witnesses are deposing falsely against him. Regarding deposition of Ram Agya Prasad (PW-4) relating to entry made by him in Malkhana Register, the accused-appellant has stated that false entry was made in the Malkhana Register. With regard to the Investigation, he stated that fake charge-sheet was filed by conducting fictitious investigation against him. It is stated that he was picked up from Sukrauli Bazar by police in presence of public and was kept there for two days and had taken his mobile and cycle. Thereafter, he was sent to police station Siddharth Nagar, where he was kept for four days and thereafter, he was taken to the police station Jogiya where he was kept for 22 days. After that by planting false recovery, he was booked in this case. The accused-appellant has not examined any witness in his defence.

8. After hearing learned counsel for the parties and appreciating the evidence on record, learned court below has held that the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses are liable to be relied on and it is proved beyond reasonable doubt that on 4.1.2011 at 19:50 p.m. in the grove in the north of Village Dhanaura Mustahkam 5 Kg and 150 gm of Nepali Charas was recovered from the accused-appellant for which he has no authorization letter and convicted him for offence punishable under Section 20(b)(ii)(C) of NDPS Act and sentenced him to undergo rigorous imprisonment for 10 years with a fine of Rs.1,00,000/-, in default thereof, to further undergo imprisonment for two years by impugned judgement of conviction and order of sentence. Feeling aggrieved by it, the instant appeal has been preferred by the accused-appellant Mohd. School.

9. It is contended by learned counsel for the accused-appellant that recovery memo does not bear the signature of the witnesses of the recovery. It is further contended that no independent witness was made by the police party to join the search of the accused-appellant, therefore, the recovery is doubtful. It is further contended that accused-appellant has not signed on the consent letter and his signature on recovery memo does not match with his signature on consent letter. It is further contended that on the recovery memo there is over writing on number 20 of 8/20 NDPS Act as earlier it was written as 8/22 NDPS Act which indicates that recovery memo is fabricated and doubtful. It is further contended that before search procedure the provision of Section 50 of NDPS Act was not followed. It is further contended that the sample seal, by which the contraband was sealed at the time of recovery, was not produced before the court below, therefore, it is not proved that the contraband, which is alleged to have been recovered from the accused-appellant, was produced before the court below and on this ground alone the accused-appellant is entitled for taking the advantage of acquittal. He relied on the law laid-down by Hon'ble High Court Allahabad in "Mohammad Mustafa Vs. State of U.P. MANU/UP/0220/2014". It is further submitted that the impugned judgement of conviction and order of sentence dated 29.4.2013 passed by learned court below is against law and is liable to be set aside. It is further contended that the sentence awarded to the accused-appellant is too severe and excessive. It is further contended that the accused-appellant has neither committed the alleged offence nor the charges have been proved against him beyond reasonable doubt, and therefore, the court below has committed manifest error and illegality in convicting and sentencing the accused-appellant in the present case. It is further contended that the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt. It is further contended that there are so many doubts and suspicion regarding the alleged recovery of the contraband from the accused-appellant, therefore, the benefit of doubt might have been extended in favour of the accused-appellant by the learned court below. It is further contended that police has prepared a forged and fabricated consent letter by putting a forged signature of the accused-appellant because the accused-appellant has not signed the consent letter. It is further contended that from the recovery memo it transpires that nothing was recovered from his personal search except alleged recovery of contraband from the bag which is alleged to have in his right hand. It is further contended that the case against accused-appellant was not proved beyond doubt and the impugned judgement of conviction and order of the sentence passed by learned court below is liable to be set aside and accused-appellant is liable to be acquitted.

10. Learned A.G.A. for the State has opposed the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for accused-appellant and has contended that the recovery of contraband from the possession of the accused-appellant is proved from the statements of S.I. Dinesh Yadav (PW-1) and Ram Samujh Prabhakar (PW-2). It is further contended that from the statement of PW-1 it is proved that the recovery memo was prepared on the spot on his dictation to S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar (PW-2) and was witnessed by companion police personnels. It is further contended that the safe custody of keeping the contraband after entering in the Malkhana Register is proved by the statement of Ct. Ram Agya Prasad (PW-4). He had also proved the extract of Malkhana Register Ex.Ka-6. It is further proved from the statement of Ct. Babban Singh (PW-3) that he had brought the contraband along with docket Ex.Ka-5 to the Forensic Science Laboratory for its chemical analysis. It is further contended that he has also proved the entry of GD dated 16.1.2011, by which the contraband was taken out from the Malkhana and brought to Forensic Science Laboratory. It is also contended that on physical and chemical examination of the contraband was found to be Charas which is a narcotic substance. It is further contended that the accused-appellant was apprehended all of sudden with a bag containing the contraband in his right hand, therefore, there was no necessity for compliance of Section 50 of NDPS Act. It is further contended that the accused-appellant was searched after giving his consent by signing the consent letter stating therein that he does not want to be searched before Magistrate or Gazetted Officer and he has trust upon the informant and wants to be searched by him. It is further contended that after drawing proforma of the consent, the accused-appellant has signed on it, thereafter he was searched. He has further contended that the accused-appellant has deliberately missed "0' in between 'Mo' and 'School' on the consent letter so that he may create false defence. It is further contended that the contraband was recovered from the accused-appellant in the lonely place so no independent witness was available to join the search. It is further contended that the recovery of the contraband is corroborated by the testimony of SI Ram Samujh Prabhakar (PW-2). It is further contended that the contraband was produced by S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav (PW-2) in the court and got it exhibited as material exhibit. It is further contended that the safe custody of the contraband in Malkhana of the police is proved by the prosecution as well as sending the contraband to Forensic Science Laboratory is also proved by the prosecution. It is further submitted that learned court below has rightly held the accused-appellant guilty and convicted and sentenced him in accordance with law. It is further contended that the minimum sentence prescribed by law was awarded to the accused-appellant. It is further contended that the judgement of conviction and order of sentence passed by court below suffers from no illegality, therefore, the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

11. I have given thoughtful consideration to the contentions raised by learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the record. After considering the submission of learned counsel for the parties and perusing the lower court record as well as the record of appeal, the following questions are necessary to be determined for deciding this appeal:-

(i) Wheather the 'Charas' which is alleged to have been recovered from the accused-appellant has been falsely planted by the police officer and accompanying police personnels upon the accused-appellant and the signature of the accused-appellant on the consent letter was forged by the police personnels?

(ii) Whether the compliance of Section 50 of NDPS Act is needed and if it is so whether the compliance of Section 50 of NDPS Act has been made?

(iii) Whether the signature of the accused-appellant on the consent letter Ex.Ka-1 is forged?

12. In this case S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav (PW-1) in his testimony has stated that on 4.1.2011, he was posted as Incharge of SOG at Siddharth Nagar and was going towords the border of Nepal on patrolling duty for taking care of his area by Government Spacio Jeep No.UP50-G-0030 along with his companion Ct. Ravindra Mohan Pandey and Ct. Panna Lal for prevention of smuggling and on the way he took along with him S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar and Ct. Shriram from police Booth Shohratgarh. When they reached near the north of the grove of Village Dhanaura Mustahkam, in the light of the vehicle they saw a person with a bag in his hand coming from the side of Nepal, who started hiding himself in the grove to avoid the light of the vehicle. On being suspicious, he was apprehended from the grove with the help of his companion police personnels and on being asked his name and address as well as the reason of hiding himself, he disclosed his name as Mohd. School son of Rahmatullah resident of Baldia Chilha Bazar, Police Station- Chiliha, District- Siddharth Nagar and also told that he was having narcotic substance 'Charas' and that is why he was hiding himself from the light. When the police personnels came to know that he is possessing 'Charas'. S.I. Dinesh Yadav informed his right of personal search before the competent Magistrate or Gazetted Officer, thereupon, he desired to be searched by them. Thereafter, the police party searched each other and on being satisfied that no one has any objectionable thing, he drew written consent of Mohd. School and he put his signature on it. After execution of consent letter Ex.Ka-1, he searched the bag which was in his hand and inside the bag four packets of Beige coloured plastic packets and two packets of yellow colour were recovered and being opened 'Charas' was found wrapped in white polythene in each packet and on weighing from scale it was found 5 Kg and 150 gm Charas. Thereafter, accused-appellant Mohd. School was arrested after informing him the grounds of arrest that his act is punishable under Section 8/20 of NDPS Act at 19:50 p.m. Thereafter, recovery memo was prepared by S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar on his dictation and the recovery memo was signed by the police party. The copy of the same was given to the accused-appellant and the packets were again kept in the bag and sealed it and prepared sample seal, recovery memo Ex.Ka-3. He further deposed that before arrest the arrest memo Ex.Ka-2 was prepared and he proved the consent letter, recovery memo and arrest memo. He further deposed that the accused-appellant along with contraband and recovery memo was brought to the police stations Shohratgarh and the contraband was handed over to Constable/Clerk who deposited the contraband in police Malkhana after making necessary entry in Malkhana Register and registered the case against accused-appellant and lodged into the lock up. S.I. Dinesh Yadav (PW-1) has deposed and proved the contraband article in the court and got exhibited as material exhibit. The contraband article and the sealed bag related to this case was produced by Ct. Ram Agya Prasad from Malkhana Police Station- Shohratgarh in sealed condition to which the case was registered under Section 8/20 of NDPS Act, Police Station- Shohratgarh, District Siddharth Nagar, was written and having signature in English which is illegible and he stated and identified the handwriting as well as signature of S.I. Ram Samujh. On opening the sealed packet before the court, four packets were found beige coloured plastic and two packets in yellow plastic from the bag. Individually each of the six packets, it was found written as 178 -C-111. The cylindrical rod shaped charas was found wrapped in golden and white plastic foil in each packet. Witness S.I. Dinesh Kumar has deposed that these contraband articles were recovered from the bag possessing by accused-appellant in his right hand at the time of search. From which one yellow packing in which two packets of Charas was found, one is found in white packing and material containing charas as Material Ex.-1, and other in yellow colour packing containing Charas Material Ex.-2 and yellow packing in which the above two packets were found was exhibited as Material Ex.-3. Likewise, in beige packet in which four packets of Charas wrapped in golden plastic foil charas as Material Ex.4, packet of Charas as Material Ex.-5, beige packet Charas as Material Ex.-6, and black packet charas as Material Ex.-7 were produced in the court and got exhibited. He also deposed that the seal on the bag was found intact at the time of producing it before the court.

13. Witness S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav was cross-examined whereby he has admitted that the sample seal by which the bag containing contraband was sealed was not available before the court. He has further stated on oath that prior to this case he has not sent the entire recovered contraband for testing to Forensic Science Laboratory. He has further deposed that he could not remember that there was no public way adjacent to the place of occurrence. It is further deposed by him that each packet of Charas which he has produced in the court was opened from corners at the time of production before the court when the sealed packet was opened. He has further deposed that he does not know that who had opened the packets. He has also stated that the packets of Charas are not in sealed condition. He has denied the suggestion of the counsel for accused-appellant that Charas was not recovered from the accused-appellant Mohd. School. He has also denied the suggestion that Mohd. School has been falsely implicated in this case and no recovery has been made from him. At this point, it is relevant to refer the statement of the accused-appellant recorded under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. the purpose of which is elucidated by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of "Mohan Singh Vs. Prem Singh AIR 2002 SC 3582" are as under:-

".....The statement of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is not a substantive piece of evidence. It can be used for appreciating evidence led by the prosecution to accept or reject it. It is, however, not a substitute for the evidence of the persecution. As held in the case of Nishi Kant (supra) by this Court, if the exculpatory part of his statement is found to be false and the evidence led by the prosecution is reliable, the inculpatory part of his statement can be taken aid of to lend assurance to the evidence of the prosecution. If the prosecution evidence does not inspire confidence to sustain the conviction of the accused, the inculpatory part of his statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. cannot be made the sole basis of his conviction."

14. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "Dehal Singh Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh (2010) 9 SCC 85" has observed as under:-

".....We do not find any substance in this submission of Mr. Mishra. Statement under section 313 of the code of criminal procedure is taken into consideration to appreciate the truthfullness or otherwise of the case of prosecution and it is not an evidence. Statement of an accused under section 313 of the code of criminal procedure is recorded without administering oath and therefore said statement cannot be treated as evidence within the meaning of section 3 of the Evidence Act. Appellants have not chosen to examine any other witness to support this plea and in case none was available they were free to examine themselves in terms of section 315 of the Code of Criminal Procedure which, inter-alia provides that a person accused of an offence is a competent witness of the defence and may give evidence on oath in disproof of the charges. There is reason not to treat the statement under section 313 of the code of criminal procedure as evidence as the accused cannot be cross-examined, with reference to those statements. However, when an accused appears as witness in defence to disproof the charge, his version can be tested by his cross-examination. Therefore, in our opinion the plea of the appellant Dinesh Kumar that he had taken lift in the car is not fit to be accepted only on the basis of the statements of the appellants under section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure."

15. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of "State of MP Vs. Ramesh (2011) 4 SCC 784" has held as under:-

".....Statement of the accused made under section 313 Cr.P.C. can be taken into consideration to appreciate the truthfulness or otherwise of the prosecution case. However, as such a statement is not recorded after administration of oath and the accused cannot be cross-examined, his statement so recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. cannot be treated to be evidence within the meaning of section 3 of Indian Evidence Act 1872. Section 315 CRPC enables an accused to give evidence on his own behalf to disprove the charges made against him. However, for such a course, the accused has to offer in writing to give his evidence in defence. Thus, the accused becomes ready to enter into the witness box, to take oath and to be cross-examined on behalf of the prosecution and/or of the accomplice, if it is true required."

16. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "Dharanidhar Vs. State of UP (2010) 7 SCC 759" has held as under:-

".....The proper methodology to be adopted by the court while recording the statement of accused under section 313 CRPC is to invite the attention of the accused to the circumstances and substantial evidence in relation to the offence, for which he has been charged and invite his explanation. In other words, it provides an opportunity to an accused state before the Court as to what is the truth and what is his defence, in accordance with law. It was for the accused to avail of that opportunity and if he fails to do so then it is for the court to examine the case of prosecution on its evidence with reference to the statement made by the accused under section 313 CRPC."

17. The statement of the accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded, wherein he has stated that the witnesses have given false testimony against him. Regarding deposition of Ram Agya Prasad (PW-4) with respect to entry made by him in Malkhana Register, he has stated that the false entry was made in the Malkhana Register. With regard to the investigation, he has stated that fake charge-sheet has been prepared by fictitious investigation. He has further stated that he was taken away from Sukrauli Bazar by police of police station Mohana in presence of public and was kept there for two days and his mobile and cycle was taken in police custody. Thereafter, he was sent to the police station of Siddharth Nagar, where he was kept for four days and was taken to police station Jogiya, where he was kept for 22 days. After that by showing false recovery, he was booked in this case. But in cross-examination nothing was asked from the witnesses S.I. Dinesh Yadav (PW-1) and S.I. Ram Samujh (PW-2) regarding his arrest from the Sukrauli Bazar openly and keeping him in different police station for 22 days, and thereafter, he was booked in this case. From the law laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court as discussed above, it is quite evident that a statement given by the accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. can be taken into the consideration for appreciating the evidence of the prosecution with reference to the statement made under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The statement of that accused-appellant made under Section 313 Cr.P.C. can be taken into consideration to appreciate the truthfullness or otherwise of the prosecution case. The statement of the accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is not a substantive piece of evidence. It can be used for appreciating evidence lead by the prosecution to accept or reject it. Witnesses of the recovery, S.I. Dinesh Yadav (PW-1) and S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar (PW-2) were cross- examined by learned counsel for the accused-appellant in the lower court in reference to the statement given by accused under Section 313 of Cr.P.C., which lead assurance that the recovery of the Charas as alleged by them is truthful and reliable and inspires confidence.

18. In this regard, it is also pertinent to mention that S.I. Ram Samujh (PW-2) in his statement before the court has stated that on 4.1.2011, he was posted at Police Station- Shohratgarh. He has further stated that on that day he was present near the Police Booth Shohratgarh at about 07:00 p.m. in connection with law and order duty along with Ct. Shriram Sharma Ram. Meanwhile, S.I. Dinesh Yadav SOG incharge arrived there in company with Ct. Panna Lal Yadav, Ct. Ravindra Mohan Pandey with Government Jeep and all of them proceeded for taking care of his area and for prevention of smuggling and as soon as they reached near the north grove of the village Mustahkam, in light of the Jeep, a person was found coming from Nepal side with a bag in hand, he started hiding himself to avoid the light of Jeep. On being suspicion, he was stopped by companion police personnels in the grove and on being asked the name and address and also the reason of hiding himself, he became stunned. Again on being asked for reason of hiding by applying tactics, he told his name as Mohd. School son of late Rahmatullah resident of Chilha and told that he is in possession of narcotics. He was told that he has right to be searched before competent Magistrate or Gazetted Officer, if you so desire they will be called or he will be taken before them for search. He has stressed upon them that they may search him. After obtaining the consent of Mohd. School on consent letter, he has stated that he was caught by them and even if it is searched before the Magistrate or Gazetted Officer, Charas will come out before them also. Thereafter, consent and memo were prepared and got it signed by accused-appellant. After which police party searched each other, then no suspicious object was found with anyone. After that Mohd. School was searched and a bag was found in his right hand inside it two plastic packets one yellow colour and one beige plastic packets were recovered and inside the yellow colour plastic packet two small packets of Charas wrapped in white and yellow plastic foil and four packets were found in beige plastic. Inside the packet, Charas in shape of cylindrical rod was found wrapped in plastic polythene. The charas was weighed by scale which was kept in Jeep and its weight was found 5 Kg. and 150 gm of Charas. The accused-appellant was asked to show the authorisation for possession or carrying Charas but he could not show it and started apologizing for his mistake again and again. Charas was taken in custody at about 19:50 p.m. and recovered Charas was put in the same bag and was sealed and sample seal was prepared. Thereafter, accused-appellant was asked about the source of the charas received, it was told that narcotic substance Charas was given by a Thapa at the Tawliwa border in Nepal the name is not known. On enquiry he told that one year ago he fled by digging tunnel from of Tawliwa in Nepal and along with him eight other prisoners were also escaped. He has further stated that S.I. Ram Samujh (PW-2) scribed the recovery memo Ex.Ka-3 on dictation of S.I. Dinesh Kumar and has read over to informant and accompanying police personnels and thereafter S.I. Dinesh Kumar informant signed it and police personnels also signed on recovery memo as witnesses and the copy of it was given to accused-appellant Mohd. School. He has further deposed that S.I. Dinesh Kumar Yadav had taken to police station the recovered contraband along with accused-appellant and recovery memo and got the case registered at Police Station-Shohratgarh. It was further deposed that the recovery memo, consent memo in compliance of Section 50 NDPS Act and the memo of arrest of the accused-appellant was prepared in light of torch and headlight of the Jeep. In cross-examination, he has stated that SOG incharge S.I. Dinesh Kumar though met him in Shohratgarh Town at 07:00 p.m. He has further corroborated that the place of occurrence is 6 kilometer from Shohratgarh police booth. He has further corroborated that they reached at the place of occurrence at 07:40 p.m. and had seen the accused-appellant hiding from headlight of Jeep at the same time. He has further corroborated that it took two hours in completing the entire proceeding at the place of occurrence. He has further stated that the Charas was sealed and sample seal was prepared at the place of occurrence. He has further corroborated that the Charas was sealed in that bag from which it was recovered. He has denied the suggestion of counsel for the accused-appellant that he had apprehended the accused-appellant from his house. He has also denied the suggestion of counsel for the accused-appellant that Mohd. School was doing business of firecrackers by preparing it manually and because of not greasing the hand of SOG incharge he was falsely implicated.

19. As discussed earlier that the counsel for accused-appellant has not asked any question regarding apprehending the accused-appellant from Sukrauli bazar in broad day in public view and later he was kept for 22 days in illegal police custody and later on he was challenged by planting false recovery. Therefore, in above circumstances the statement of accused-appellant as stated in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. will be taken into consideration in appreciating the evidence of prosecution and in arriving at a conclusion regarding the truthfulness and falsity of the prosecution case. Nothing came in their cross-examination which indicates that false recovery was planted on accused-appellant. In above circumstances, it is proved that the depositions of the witness S.I. Dinesh Kumar (PW-1) and S.I. Ram Samujh (PW-2) is unimpeachable and liable to be relied. From their consistent statements, it is proved beyond doubt that on 4.1.2010 a bag was recovered from accused-appellant in which two packets were recovered out of one packet two packets and out of another packet four packets of contraband were recovered.

20. From above unimpeached testimonies of S.I. Dinesh Kumar (PW-1) and S.I. Ram Samujh (PW-2), it is proved beyond reasonable doubt that accused-appellant was apprehended at 07:40 p.m. on 4.1.2021 in the lonely place from grove. There is no evidence on record, which proves that they have any previous knowledge regarding possession and carrying of contraband by the accused-appellant. From the evidence on record, it also transpires that the accused-appellant stopped on suspicion all of sudden and he told that he has Charas in his bag in his right hand, therefore, no public witness can be procured which is quite natural. Therefore, non-joining the public witnesses in search is not in any way adversely affect the prosecution case. It is further proved by the evidence on record that the Charas was recovered from the bag which was in his right hand not from his personnel search, therefore, the compliance of Section 50 of NDPS Act was not needed although it is proved beyond reasonable doubt from an unimpeached testimonies of S.I. Dinesh Kumar (PW-1) and S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar (PW-2) that he was informed about his legal right to be searched before competent Magistrate or Gazetted Officer but accused-appellant has stated that Charas will be recovered before Gazetted Officer or Magistrate and it will make no difference and has authorised S.I. Dinesh Kumar to search him and signed on consent letter Ex.Ka-1 which is proved to be ascribed by S.I. Ram Samujh Prabhakar (PW-2) and thereafter search was made. The signature of Mohd. School and recovery memo and consent letter were proved by above witnesses. So far as absence of zero in between मो and School on consent form and presence of zero (0) in between मो and School on recovery memo is concerned, it appears that it was deliberately done by accused-appellant to create the defence. He has not moved any application for comparing his signature on consent form with the recovery memo or by giving specimen signature to handwriting expert, but that was not done. From above, it appears that it was deliberately done by accused-appellant to create the defence. Therefore, in above circumstances, it is proved beyond reasonable doubt that accused-appellant Mohd. School has executed the consent form and deliberately omitted '0' from मो. Therefore, it cannot be said that some other person has signed the consent form and I find the argument of counsel for accused-appellant is devoid of merit.

21. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of "State of Rajasthan Vs. Parmanand and others (2014) 85 SCC 662" has held as under:-

"....Thus, if merely a bag carried by a person is searched without there being any search of his person, Section 50 of NDPS Act will have no application. But if the bag carried by him is searched and his person is also searched, section 50 NDPS act will have application. In this case respondent no.1 Parmanand's bag was searched. From the bag opium was recovered. His personal search was also carried out. Personal search of respondent no.2 Surajmal was also conducted. Therefore, in light of the judgement of this Court mentioned in the preceding paragraph, section 50 of NDPS act will have application."

22. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "State of Himachal Vs. Pawan Kumar with State of Rajasthan Vs. Bhanwarlal AIR 2005 SC 2265" has observed as under:-

"....A bag, briefcase or any such article or container etc. can, under no circumstances, be treated as body of a human being. They are given a separate name and are identifiable as such. They cannot even remotely be treated to be part of the body of a human being. Depending upon the physical capacity of a person, he may carry any number of items like a bag, a briefcase, a suitcase, a tin box, a Thaila, a Jhola, a Gathri, a holdall, a carton etc. of varying size, dimensional or weight. However, while carrying or moving along with them, some extra effort or energy would be required. They would have to be carried either by the hand or hung on shoulder or Back or placed on the head. In common parlance it would be said that a person is carrying a particular article, specifying the manner in which it was carried like hand, shoulder, back or head etc. Therefore, it is not possible to include these articles within the ambit of the word "person" occurring in section 50 of the Act. "

23. In case in hand, the contraband was recovered from the bag carrying by the accused-appellant in his right hand, therefore, the compliance of Section 50 of NDPS Act was not needed although it was complied as precaution.

24. So far as the argument of learned counsel for accused-appellant regarding non-joining of public witnesses in the search is concerned, it is proved from evidence on record that the recovery was made from the accused-appellant without prior knowledge by the police personnels that accused-appellant has Charas and recovery was made all of sudden in a lonely place of grove where no public witnesses were present. In above circumstances, non-joining of public witnesses in search will not affect the prosecution case.

25. The exposition of law regarding the evidence of police personnels, the Division Bench of Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Sama Alana Abdullah Vs. State of Gujarat (1996) 1 SCC 427 has held as under:-

".....Only P.I.B.B. Dwivedi and P.S.I. Gohil have stated that the map was found from the house from a tin trunk kept on a cupboard. Therefore, in the absence of any independent evidence the High Court ought not to have held that the appellant was in conscious possession of the said map particularly when at the time of the raid he was not present in the house. In support of the submissions that the evidence of P.I. Dwivedi and P.S.I. Gohil should not be regarded as sufficient it was also submitted that they had taken two persons of Bhuj as Panchas to witness the raid instead of taking independent witnesses from the locality i.e. Village Nana Dinara and does it becomes apparent that they were selected Panch witnesses and therefore to that extent the investigation was not fair and impartial. Even on close scrutiny of the evidence of P.I. Dwivedi and P.S.I. Gohil, we see no reason to disbelieve this explanation. It cannot, therefore, be said that the investigation was not fair and therefore independent Corroboration was necessary. Again their evidence cannot be rejected only on the ground that they are police witnesses and were members of the raiding party. Their evidence receives corroboration from the Punchnama. It may be stated that the other panch witness could not be examined by the prosecution because he had expired before his evidence could be recorded."

26. A Division Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of "Anil @ Andya Sadashiv Nandoskar Vs. State of Maharashtra (1996) 2 SCC 589" has held as under:-

".....Indeed all the 5 prosecution witnesses who have been examined in support of search and seizure were members of the raiding party. They are all police officials. There is, however, no rule of law that the evidence of police officials has to be discarded or that it suffers from some inherent infirmity. Prudence, however, requires that the evidence of the police officials, who are interested in the outcome of the result of the case, needs to be carefully scrutinised and independently appreciated. The police officials do not suffer from any disability to give evidence and the mere fact that they are police officials does not by itself give rise to any doubt about their Creditworthiness."

27. It inspires confidence and learned counsel for the accused-appellant has not been able to point out any serious infirmity in their evidence. The Division Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "Pradeep Narayan Madkoonkar Vs. State of Maharashtra (1995) 4 SCC 255" has held as under:-

"..... The evidence of the officials (police) witnesses cannot be discarded merely on the ground that they belong to the police force and are, either interested in the investigating or the prosecuting agency but prudence dictates that their evidence needs to be subjected to strict scrutiny and as far as possible corroboration of their evidence in material particulars should be sought. Their desire to see the success of the case based on their investigation, requires greater care to appreciate their testimony."

28. The Division Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of "Mohan Singh Vs. State of Haryana (1995) 3 SCC 192" has held as under:-

"..... In these facts and circumstances when the police officials deliberately avoided to join any public witness or railway officials though available at the time when the appellant was apprehended the evidence of Heera Lal who is nothing but a chance witness and the evidence of police officials PW6 and PW7 has to be closely scrutinised with certain amount of care and caution."

29. The three judges bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of "PP Beeran Vs. State of Kerala AIR 2001 SC 2420" has held as under:

"....The case alleged against him shows that he was found in possession of 23.5 grams of opium at the time when he was intercepted and searched by PW2, sub-inspector of police. We have noticed that two witnesses were called by PW2 at the time of search out of whom one was examined as PW1 and the other was not examined. But even the one examined (PW1) did not support the prosecution and hence he was treated as hostile. Though an argument was addressed by Mr. R.

Venkataramani, learned senior counsel for the appellant that the evidence of PW2, sub-inspector of police remained uncorroborated, and therefore, that should not be made the sole basis for conviction, it is too late in the day for us to reject the testimony of PW2 on that ground alone. Even otherwise, it cannot be said that evidence of PW2 remains uncorroborated because the fact that opium was recovered from his person and also Exhibit P2 which is an endorsement containing the signature of the appellant could be treated as circumstances corroborating the testimony of PW2."

30. The police personnels are competent witness to adduce evidence before the learned court below, therefore, there is no substance in the argument of the learned counsel for the accused-appellant that in absence of independent witness no reliance can be placed. Other police personnels who are the persons by whom and by whose presence the recovery of Charas and on Charas a yellow packet Material Ex.-2 was marked and Charas was found in white packet Material Ex.-3 was marked on Charas found in yellow packet.

31. The witness Anoop Kumar Shukla (PW-5) has stated on oath that the investigation of this case was undertaken by him on 5.1.2011. He copied the check report and GD registering the case in CD. He also recorded the statement of S.I. Dinesh Kumar and prepared site plan Ex.Ka-7 on pointing out of S.I. Dinesh Kumar. He also deposed that entire recovered contraband was sent to Forensic Science Laboratory for chemical examination.

32. Ct. Baban Singh (PW-3) deposed that he was posted on 16.1.2011 at Police Station- Shohratgarh and on that day he left Shohratgarh for going to Forensic Science Laboratory at 18:45 p.m. by getting docket made with specimen seal and sealed bag of Crime No.11 of 2011, under Section 8/22 of NDPS Act pertaining to accused-appellant Mohd. School and handed over the same to Forensic Science Laboratory, Lucknow on 17.1.2011 along with specimen seal at Receipt No.347. He further deposed that he took the contraband in sealed condition and handed over to Forensic Science Laboratory in safe custody along with specimen seal in intact sealed condition. He had also proved docket Ex.Ka-4. He further desposed that he has taken the contraband in sealed condition from the Malkhana Moharir and proceeded to FSL, Lucknow and entry in this regard was made in GD Report No.36 on 16.1.2011. He also proved the photo copy of entry of GD Report No.36 dated 16.1.2011 Ex.Ka-5. In cross-examination, he has stated that the contraband was handed over to him by incharge Malkhana. He has further stated that he received the contraband in sealed condition and sealed was found intact. He further admitted the suggestion of learned counsel for the accused-appellant that on specimen seal Mohd. School was written. He further stated that the contraband with sample seal was handed over to FSL for its analysis. Nothing came in his cross-examination which makes his statement unreliable. In above circumstances, his statement can be safely relied on and from it, it is proved that he has obtained the contraband from Malkhana of Police Station- Shohratgarh along with specimen seal in intact condition and had handed over it to FSL along with specimen seal in safe custody.

33. Ct. Ram Agya Prasad was also examined as PW-4 to prove the safe custody of the contraband in police Malkhana and he has stated that he came with Malkana Register of Police Station Shohratgarh of the year 2011 wherein at Serial No.1 the details of the contraband along with Crime No.11 of 2011 under NDPS Act (State Vs. Mohd. School) is entered. He further deposed that entry of this register begins from the year 2010 and contained the entry up to 7.6.2011 and Goshwara was appended at the end of each month. He further deposed that the entery was signed by Head Muharir and officer-in-charge of the station Shri Anoop Kumar Shukla along seal. He has proved the entry and the signature of S.I. Anoop Kumar Shukla and has filed the photo copy of relevant entry pertaining to this case as Ex.Ka-6. In cross-examination he has admitted that he is working at Police Station Shohratgarh from 8.9.2011, therefore, he could not tell as to who has made entry in the register. No other question was put in cross-examination. From the deposition of Ram Agya Prasad (PW-4), it is proved that the Malkhana Register was produced from proper custody and it was also proved from the statement of Ct. Babban Singh (PW-3) that he received the case property to be conveyed to FSL which was kept in safe custody at Police Station Shohratgarh. From the statement of PW-3 and PW-4, safe custody of the contraband is proved beyond reasonable doubt. It is pertinent to mention here that S.I. Anoop Kumar Shukla (PW-5) was also examined, but he was not cross-examined to contradict PW-3 regarding entry and safe custody of the contraband. It is proved from the statement of PW-3 that S.I. Anoop Kumar Shukla (PW-5) was the Station House Officer of Police Station Shohratgarh, therefore, the statement of Ram Agya Prasad (PW-3) is liable to be relied on, and therefore, it is proved that the case property was kept in Police Station in safe custody. It is also proved from the statement of Ct. Babban Singh (PW-3) that the contraband was carried to FSL for chemical analysis in safe custody and thereafter was kept in Police Station in safe custody and later was produced before the court from the Police Station in safe custody.

34. It is submitted by learned counsel for the accused-appellant that no sample was taken from the contraband and entire contraband was sent to FSL for its chemical analysis, therefore, on this count for violation of provision of Section 52-A of NDPS Act, the forensic science report is in accordance with the evidence. It is further submitted that due to a reason, it is not proved that the contraband alleged to be recovered from the accused was Charas, therefore, offence under Section 8/22 of NDPS Act is not proved against the accused-appellant.

35. A co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of "Devendera Kumar Mishra Vs. State of UP" reported in 1998 Crl (J) 2348 (at page 2350 in paragraph 3) has observed as under:-

".....The learned Counsel for the applicant then switched gear to another submission of there being no compliance with the requirements of section 52-A of the Act. The submission of the learned counsel too is sans any substance. Section 52-A of the Act postulates disposal of seized Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances and lays down the procedure therefor. Non-compliance, if any, of section 52-A of the Act, would not render the search and seizure illegal, nor will it degenerate the recovery of contraband into one being inadmissible in evidence...."

36. Therefore, sending of the entire contraband for chemical examination will not render the recovery of contraband and chemical examination report of forensic science laboratory Ex.Ka-11 as inadmissibility. From analysis and appreciation of evidence led by prosecution, it is proved beyond reasonable doubt that the contraband recovered from the accused-appellant was found to be Charas and for possessing of which he has no authorisation letter.

37. So far as the argument of learned counsel for accused-appellant regarding non-production of specimen seal of the contraband in the court is concerned, it is proved beyond reasonable doubt that the recovered contraband was sent to FSL for chemical examination and it was opened after comparing with specimen seal and was after taking sample for chemical examination and was resealed by FSL authorities and there is a presumption that public authorities will discharge their duties according to law. There is no evidence on record which establishes that the accused has complained to higher authorities regarding illegal planting of the contraband by PW-1 and PW-2.

38. In above circumstances, I find no substance in the argument of learned counsel for the accused-appellant that the law laid down by High Court of Allahabad in Mohammad Mustafa (supra) is applicable in this case being distinguishable from the fact and circumstances of this case. Therefore, it is proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused-appellant has signed the consent letter Ex.Ka-1 and deliberately omitted '0' after "Mo", which is written in Hindi to mislead the prosecution and the court as well. From the evidence on record, it is established that the contraband Charas 5 kg and 150 gm was recovered from accused-appellant. It is also proved beyond reasonable doubt that the search was made without prior information as surprise in secluded place grove in the late evening, therefore, non-joinder of the such by independent witness will not affect the prosecution case. Point of determination (i) to (iii) are decided accordingly. Therefore, it is held that learned court below has rightly held the accused-appellant guilty for offence punishable under Section 20(b)(ii)(C) of NDPS Act. The court has awarded the minimum punishment that is rigourous imprisonment for 10 years with a fine of Rs.1,00,000/-, therefore, it cannot be said that the sentence awarded by the learned court below was severe. This appeal is liable to be dismissed and, accordingly, the appeal is dismissed. Consequently, the impugned judgement of conviction and order of sentence dated 29.4.2013 passed by court below is hereby confirmed.

CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MANOJ KUMAR GUPTA, J.
THE HON'BLE OM PRAKASH TRIPATHI, J.

Sunita & Ors. ...Appellants

Versus

State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri Pankaj Kumar Tyagi, Sri Abhishek Kumar Srivastava, Sri Ajay Singh, Sri Amar Nath Mishra, Sri Indra Bhan Yadav, Sri R.S. Kushwaha, Smt. Archana Tyagi, Ms. Sushma Devi, Sri V.K. Rai, Sri V.K. Shukla, Sri V.S. Shukla

Counsel for the Respondent:

A.G.A.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 24- Extra-judicial confession made by the accused Sunita before near relations was without undue influence, coercion or pressure. It was voluntary, no suggestion was made in the cross-examination that such extra-judicial confession are tempted or non-voluntary. Thus, the said extra-judicial confession is reliable and admissible evidence being trustworthy and accepted as a whole. There is no enmity of Sunita against Raju & Amit Chopra.

Where the extra- judicial confession made by the accused is voluntary and without any undue influence, inducement or coercion, the same can be relied and accepted by the court.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 8- Conduct- From the cogent & trustworthy evidence, it is proved that accused Sunita, wife of the deceased, who was present in the room, at the time of incident, did not interfere or made struggle with the other accused to save the life of her husband. She had not made any noise or even hue and cry/scream; she was not only silent spectator of the incident but also offered assistance in commission of the crime. Thus, the inaction shown by the accused Sunita indicates that she has mala fides and knew everything about murder of her husband.

The conduct of the accused, who was the wife of the deceased, at the time of commission of the offence would be a relevant fact for being considered by the court.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 106- Burden of proof where the facts are especially in knowledge of the accused- From the evidence, it is proved that at the time of incident, accused Sunita was in the room with her husband, so Sunita is the best witness for the murder of her husband. Section 106 of the Evidence Act lays down that "when any fact is established within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him." Thus, how the husband of Sunita had been murdered is especially within her knowledge that who has killed him and she has not made any noise to save the life of her husband. Accused Sunita failed to discharge the burden of proving these facts. This fact also goes against Sunita and indicates that she knows the actual assailant, which has been disclosed by her in her extra-judicial confession.

Settled law that the burden of proof lies upon the person where the facts are especially in knowledge of that person and failure to discharge the said burden with a credible explanation is bound to draw an adverse inference against the accused. (Para 43, 46, 48)

1. Heard Ms. Sushma Devi, learned amicus curiae, counsel for appellant nos. 1 & 2, Sri Abhishek Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for appellant no. 3, Sri A.N. Mulla, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 21.08.2008 passed by the Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Saharanpur in Sessions Trial No. 294 of 2004, arising out of Case Crime No. 206 of 2004 (State Vs. Sunita & others), Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Saharanpur convicting and sentencing the appellants to undergo life imprisonment under Section 302/34 of India Penal Code (for short "IPC') with a fine of Rs.10,000/- each, in default thereof, to undergo three months additional imprisonment.

3. The prosecution case in brief is that complainant, Om Prakash lodged the first information report on 18.04.2004 at Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Saharanpur with the allegation that on 18.04.2004, at 07:15 am, wife of Charan Jeet @ Babbu told the informant that last night, at 11:30 pm, four persons who came from Delhi, were very well known to her husband, administered him intoxicating material, on account of which, he became unconscious. On the next morning, she found her husband dead. She also said that two days ago, two men had come to inquire about her husband. On the basis of written report, Ex.Ka.1, police registered FIR being Case Crime No. 206 of 2004, under Section 302 IPC against four unknown persons. During investigation, Investigating Officer prepared site plan and recorded the statements of the witnesses. After completion of investigation, Investigating Officer submitted a charge sheet, Ex.Ka.17, in the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Saharanpur under Section 302 IPC. Cognizance of offence was taken by the Magistrate concerned. Thereafter, case was committed to the Court of Sessions for trial.

4. The case was transferred to the Court of Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Saharanpur and charge was framed against the appellants under Section 302/34 IPC on 09.08.2004. Accused-appellants pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

5. In order to prove the charge framed against the appellants, prosecution has examined (PW-1) Om Prakash, (PW-2) Raj Rani, (PW-3) Sudhir Pal, (PW-4) Raj Singh, (PW-5) Dr. R.K. Agrawal, (PW-6) Sandeep, (PW-7) Bina Devi, (PW-8) Mukesh Rawal, (P.W.-9) Iqbalujama Khan. Prosecution has proved written report Ex.ka.1, Panchayatnama Ex.ka.2, letter loss Ex.ka.3, Photo loss Ex.ka.4, letter CMO Ex.ka.5, letter R.I. Ex.ka.6, recovery memo table leg Ex.ka.7, recovery memo wrapper of medicine Ex.ka.8, recovery memo by which legs and hands of the deceased were tied Ex.ka.9, blood stained and simple earth Ex.ka.10, recovery memo of clothes of deceased Ex.ka.11, recovery memo of blood wiped clothes Ex.ka.12, Chick FIR Ex.ka.13, GD Ex.ka.14, post-mortem report Ex.ka.15, spot map Ex.ka.16, charge sheet Ex.ka.17, report FSL Ex.ka.18 as documentary evidence.

6. P.W.1 complainant Om Prakash stated that deceased was his cousin. On 18.04.2004, at about 07:00am, Sunita came to his house and stated that on 17.04.2004, at about 11:30 pm, four persons came from Delhi and administered her husband intoxicating material. Sunita went to another room. They all assaulted Charanjeet on his head by leg of table due to which he has sustained injuries on his head as a result of which he died. Charanjeet has two children, who are mentally disabled.

7. Charanjeet was doing job of Conductor in Delhi. He had been living in Delhi since six years. On the day of the incident, he came along with his wife and children from Delhi. Sunita is lady of bad character. Six years ago, at the house of Sunita at Sharanpur, Charanjeet caught Sunita red handed with one person. Parents of Sunita came, made apology, after accepting the said apology, Charanjeet pardoned his wife. At the house of Charanjeet, Ashok Kumar, his wife Bina and their children lived as tenant. Sunita told the name of Amit Chopra, Raju and Dinesh, who were neighbours at her paternal home in Delhi. Sunita told that all the four children, who born from the wedlock of her and Charanjeet, were handicapped. Two are alive and two died. Sunita told that she had made illicit relations with three accused, so that, the coming generation would be hale and hearty.

8. P.W.2 Rajrani has stated that the deceased was his nephew. Her sister's name was Prakash Rani, who died. Charanjeet @ Babbu was only son of her sister Prakash Rani. Earlier, Charanjeet lived in Numaish Camp at Saharanpur, after that, he lived at his in-laws' house in Delhi along with his wife and children and doing job of conductor. Her sister Prakash Rani was living with P.W.2 Rajrani and at the time of incident also, her sister was with her in Ludhiyana. Charajeet @ Babbu died about two years and nine months ago. When she knew about the murder of Charanjeet, then she came along with her sister Praksh Rani at Saharanpur from Ludhiana. On third day of the incident, P.W.2 and her sister sat at her room. All relatives have gone. Her sister Prakash Rani was very sad and was lamenting due to murder of his son. Sunita fell on the legs of Prakash Rani, apologizing that "she had developed illicit relationship with Amit Chopra (friend of his brother). Charanjeet began to suspect on her and used to be angry with her and forbades her to meet Amit Chopra. Due to this, Sunita became annoyed, she and Amit Chopra made a plan in Delhi to remove Charanjeet from their way. Amit, Raju, Dinesh came from Delhi, on 17.04.2004, at about 09-10 pm and came at the house of Charanjeet. She administered intoxicating pills in the sikanji of Charanjeet and he became unconscious. Thereafter Amit, Raju, Dinesh and she killed Charanjeet jointly." This statement was given by Sunita before PW2 and her sister and also stated that if she is not pardoned then she will commit suicide with children.

09. P.W. 2 has stated in her cross-examination that she has problem of hearing and vision. Her sister Prakash Rani died one and a half year ago. She had been living with her since three years. Om Prakash is son of her sister-in-law (nand). She has stated that Charanjeet died on 17th April but she does not remember the year of his death. She has stated that she has no knowledge of her hearing and vision problem. Charanjeet had been living in Delhi since 3-3½ years before the incident. He comes to Saharanpur occasionally. She got the information of murder of Charanjeet from Om Prakash by telephone. Om Prakash told her that three persons came from Delhi and murdered Charanjeet. Sunita apologized on 20th April, 2004, at that time, P.W.2 and her sister were present there. Her sister was weeping. On the day of the incident, she came from Ludhiana.

10. She stated that she came from Ludhiana to Saharanpur at about 02:00-02:30 pm on 18.04.2004. After the incident, she went back to Ludhiana. Her sister Prakash Rani sold his house. She heard that at the house of Charanjeet, some persons came at about 09-10 pm. Sunita had apologized to her mother-in-law.

11. P.W.3 S.I. Sudhir Pal has stated that on 18.04.2004, at about 10:00 am, he has prepared inquest report, letter CMO, letter R.I., photograph of dead body, recovery memo of one wooden table, wrapper of medicines. Recovery memo of clothes by which legs and hands of the deceased was tied with white patti on his head, one pink dupatta by which his legs were tied. Recovery of blood stained earth & plain earth, blood stained clothes, green trouser of the deceased, brown undergarment etc. were sealed.

12. P.W.4 Constable Raj Singh deposed that on 18.04.2004, he has written chick FIR, Ex.Ka.13 and GD, Ex.Ka.14. Witness has proved FIR and G.D.

13. The postmortem examination, Ex.ka.15, was conducted on the dead body of the deceased, Charan Jeet @ Babbu by Dr. R.K. Agarwal on 18.04.2004 at 03:00 pm. The cause of death was shock and haemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem injuries at about half day before the time of postmortem. Post-mortem report was proved as Ex.ka.15 by P.W.5.

14. P.W.6 Sandeep deposed that he lives in the same locality where Charanjeet @ Babbu died. Charanjit had gone to Delhi. On 17/18.04.2004 at around 11:00 pm, he had forbidden three persons from ringing the bell of his house, in front of Police Inspector, he did not even recognize the three persons. He also denied having witnessed the culprits. He is hostile witness.

15. P.W.7 Bina Devi deposed that when the murder took place, she was the tenant in that house and Sunita told about the murder; the people who came on the night of the incident did not saw them. On questioning by the police, she has told that three people had come, whom the landlord had disclosed as her relatives, who had come from Delhi. At 07:00 am, Sunita told her that four men had killed her husband and all made him unconscious. She also denied having witnessed the culprits. She is hostile witness.

16. P.W.8 Mukesh Rawal deposed that Sunita is his sister, she was married to Charanjit Singh, who worked as a conductor in a private bus in Delhi. Amit Chopra lived in a rented house near the house of the deceased and this witness. Sunita has an illicit relationship with Amit Chopra. This witness has forbade Amit Chopra to meet Sunita. When he told the deceased Charanjit about Sunita's illicit relationship, he came to Saharanpur with Sunita and his children.

17. PW9 Investigating Officer Iqbalujama Khan along with SI Sudhir Pal and other police personnel has visited the spot on 18.04.2004. Wooden table, nitrogen, medicine cover and clothes to which the head, legs and hands of deceased Charanjit were tied, blood stained clothes and other clothes were recovered and prepared recovery memo. During investigation, he came to know that Sunita is a woman of bad character. He tried to take statement of the wife of the deceased, but he was unsuccessful. On 19.04.2004, statement of Witnesses, namely, Sandeep Soni, Smt. Bina, Lal Bahadur, SI Sudir Pal were recorded. On the same day, statements of the deceased's mother and aunt (mausi) were also recorded. With the help of Sunita and Sandeep, accused Amit, Raju and Dinesh were arrested from Saharanpur bus stand and their statements were also recorded. Charge sheet, Ex.ka.17, Report of the Vidhi Vigyan Prayogshala, Ex.ka.18, broken wooden table, Ex.ka.1, Dupatta, Clothes etc., Ex.ka2, Ex.ka.13 were proved by the witness.

18. Statement of accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C was recorded, accused Sunita has denied her illicit relations with anyone and also stated that her husband Charanjeet @ Babbu had come to Saharanpur for taking rented money. She denied the incident dated 17.04.2004 and also denied having given any intoxicating tablet to her husband. She has stated that she had not told Om Prakash about the incident. Lastly, she stated that the prosecution witnesses are deposing falsely only because of property dispute. Statement of the accused Raju under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded, he denied the incident dated 17/18.04.2004 and he also denied the illicit relations of Sunita with anyone. Statement of the accused, Amit Chopra under Section 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded. He has denied having knowledge about Sunita and her family and he also denied the illicit relations with her and denied the incident dated 17.04.2004. He has stated that Investigation Officer has arrested him from his house and he also stated that the prosecution witnesses are totally false.

19. Accused had examined DW-1 (Aruna) in his defence. She stated that her sister Sunita had no illicit relation with accused and some unknown persons came on 17/18.04.2004 and murdered Charanjeet @ Babbu.

20. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that they have been falsely implicated in this case and has also contended that the case is based on circumstantial evidence. There is no eye witness of the incident. There is no evidence of illicit relationship of Sunita, Amit Chopra and Raju. There is no motive established by the prosecution for causing this serious offence. Evidence given by the witnesses are not reliable and accused are innocent and liable to be acquitted.

21. These arguments were opposed by learned AGA and submitted that accused Sunita had given natural and unambiguous extra-judicial confession before near relatives, which is trustworthy. Chain of circumstantial evidence is complete and case against the present appellants is proved beyond reasonable doubt.

22. So far as the FIR of the case is concerned, incident took place in the fateful night on 17/18.04.2004. FIR was lodged by Om Prakash, who is cousin of the deceased. On 18.04.2004, at about 08:45 am, under Section 302 IPC Crime No. 119 of 2004, P.S. Kotwali Nagar, District Saharanpur. The incident took place in the intervening night of 17/18.04.2004 from 11:30 pm till morning. The place of incident is 2km far from the police station. It is alleged in the FIR that at about 07:15 am, wife of the deceased Sunita told him that at about 11:30 pm, four persons came from Delhi; all were very well known to her husband; they administered her intoxicating material. Sunita found her husband Charanjeet @ Babbu dead in the morning. Murder had been committed by those persons. This written report was prepared by the complainant Om Prakash and given to the police station within two hours. He had not mentioned the name of the assailants. He had reported only on the basis of what was told by Sunita (wife of deceased). Written report was proved by PW1 as Ex.Ka.1 and Chick FIR has been proved by PW4 (Constable Raj Singh), Ex.ka.13 and Kayami GD Rapat No.17, Ex.ka.14, there is nothing in the cross-examination of PW4, which shows that FIR is ante-time. It is apparent that FIR has been lodged promptly without any consultation.

23. The main question for determination is that what was the motive for the incident by the accused, why they killed the deceased Charanjeet @ Babboo. P.W.1 has stated that Sunita and Charanjeet had two children, both are mentally retarted and physically handicapped. Charanjeet was doing the job of conductor for the last six years in Delhi. Charanjeet and Sunita along with their children came in the evening on the date of the incident. Sunita is a woman of loose character. About 6-6 ½ years ago, deceased caught Sunita in his home with a male in an objectionable condition. The members of parental side of Sunita and her father came and tendered apology. Charanjeet accepted the apology and pardoned his wife. Ashok Kumar along with his wife Bina and their children lived as tenant in the house of the deceased. Sandeep is neighbour. Sunita told the name of Amit Chopra, Raju and Dinesh, who were neighbours at her paternal home in Delhi. Sunita told that all the four children, who born from her wedlock with Charanjeet, were handicapped. Two are alive and two had died. Sunita told that she had developed illicit relations with three accused, so that, the coming generation would be hale and hearty. There is nothing contrary in the cross-examination of the witness PW1.

24. P.W.2 (Raj Rani) is the maternal aunt, aged about 75 years, she also deposed that deceased was the only son of her sister Prakash Rani. Prakash Rani used to live with her in Ludhiana. She was in Ludhiana with her at the time of incident. Sunita made extra-judicial confession before her that "she had illicit relationship with Amit Chopra. Charanjeet began to suspect her and used to be angry and forbade her to meet Amit Chopra. Because of this, she made a plan in Delhi with Amit Chopra to end Charanjeet. She mixed intoxicating pills in juice (sikanji) and served to Charanjeet. Thereafter, with the help of Amit, Raju and Dinesh, all the four have committed the murder of Charanjeet." Nothing adverse came in the cross-examination of the witness.

25. PW.8 Mukesh Rawal, adopted brother of the accused Sunita, had stated that there was illicit relationship between Amit Chopra and Sunita, then, he forbade Amit Chopra from meeting Sunita. Charanjeet also came to know this fact, so he went to Saharanpur along with her wife Sunita and children. Sunita was detained in jail with her children. About four years ago, Sunita met him in court and repented that she had committed a mistake and she with the help of Amit Chopra, Raju and Dinesh killed Charanjeet, kindly help her. He has not seen Raju and Dinesh ever. Amit Chopra had also told the name of co-accused Raju and Dinesh.

26. Although this fact was denied by the accused in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. but on the basis of corroborated and credible evidence, it is proved that accused Sunita and Amit Chopra had illicit relationship. It is also proved that Sunita gave birth to four disabled children from the wedlock of Charanjeet. Two died and two are alive. They are in jail with Sunita.

27. Prior to the incident, deceased came to know that Sunita had illicit relationship with Amit Chopra and Raju due to this, they came from Delhi to Saharanpur, where, the deceased was brutally murdered. The motive for causing murder was begetting of healthy offspring. That's why, the accused Sunita, Amit Chopra and Raju planned to get rid of from deceased Charanjeet. Thus, the prosecution had succeeded to establish the motive for the present crime against Sunita, Amit Chopra and Raju.

28. P.W.-5 Dr. R.K. Agrawal had performed the post-mortem report of the deceased on 18.04.2004, at about 03:00 pm. The report is as under :

29. Accused was about 33 years old, healthy body, eyes and mouth were closed. Rigormortis was present in both the hands and legs after the death. Following injuries were found on the body of the deceased :

(i) torn wound on right side of head of size 5cm x 1cm x muscle deep.

(ii) torn wound at the centre of the forehead of size 7cm x 1cm located deep bone injury.

iii) torn wound on left of head 6cm x 1cm x muscle deep.

iv) torn wound on left of head 4cm x 1cm x muscle deep.

v) torn wound on left-back side of head of size 10cm x 1.5cm x bone deep x broken bone under the injury.

vi) torn wound on top of the head size of 7cm x 1cm x muscle deep.

vii) torn wound on left of head of size 8cm x 1cm x muscle deep.

viii) torn wound on top of the head of size of 6cm x 1.5cm x bone deep and broken bone of injury.

ix) torn wound on right side of head of size 6cm x 1cm x muscle deep.

x) torn wound on right side of head of size 2cm x ½ cm muscle deep.

xi) torn wound on right side of head of size 4cm x 1cm x muscle deep.

30. The cause of death is due to ante-mortem injuries, excessive bleeding and shock half day earlier caused by blunt object as piece of wood.

31. Deceased had 11 injuries on the head. The bones of the head had been injured from many points and there was no other injury except head. Injuries only on the head, vital part of the body shows only intention to kill Charanjeet.

32. The main question before us is that whether accused Sunita, Amit Chopra and Raju had killed Charanjeet on 17/18.04.2004 in the night. This case is based on extra-judicial confession made by the accused Sunita and circumstantial evidence. She had made extra-judicial confession before PW2 (maternal aunt), aged about 75 years and PW-1 Om Prakash, who is cousin of the deceased and in presence of her mother-in-law Prakash Rani, who died later on. PW-8 Mukesh Rawal adopted son of his father. On the point of extra-judicial confession, following rulings are mentioned as under:

33. State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. M.K. Anthony (1985) 1 SCC 505, it has been held that :

"an extra-judicial confession was made by the accused to his friend. The court found that the statement was made by the accused was unambiguous and unmistakably conveyed that the accused was perpetrator of the crime. Testimony of friend was true, reliable and trustworthy. Confession of accused on such extra-judicial confession was proper and no corroboration was necessary which importance should not be given to minor discrepancies and technical error. Generally, extra-judicial confession is made before an unbiased person, not the enemy of the accused and that person has not such motive to speak false statement. It should be voluntarily unambiguous and clear. No fact has been concealed with regard to the incident."

34. Satish and others vs. State of Haryana (2018) 2 SCC Cr. 652, it has been held that :

"Extra-judicial confession is a week piece of evidence, normally by itself, it can be corroborative only. It should be proved like other evidence. It is not necessary that witness should speak the same about as told by the accused."

35. State of Himachal Pradesh vs. Raj Kumar (2018) SCC Cr. 452, it has been held that :

"circumstantial evidence of prosecution establishing circumstances by cogent and convincing evidence. Circumstances cumulatively taken, form accompanied, general pointing out that murder was committed by accused and none else, burden under Section 106 Evidence Act not discharged by the accused. Accused should explain incriminating circumstances against him."

36. Ishwari Lal vs. State of Chattisgarh 2020 (1) SCC Cr. 13, it has been held that :

"extra-judicial confession is a weak piece of evidence but at the same time, if the same is corroborated by other evidence on record such confession can be taken into consideration to prove the guilt of the accused."

37. Sahoo vs. State of U.P., 1966 AIR 40, 1965 SCR (3) 86, it has been held that :

"an extra-judicial confession may be an expression of conflict of emotion, a conscious effort to stifle the pricked conscience; an argument to find excuse or justification for his act; or a penitent or remorseful act of exaggeration of his part in the crime." Before evidence in this behalf is accepted, it must be established by cogent evidence what were the exact words used by the accused. The Court proceeded to state that even if so much was established, prudence and justice demand that such evidence cannot be made the sole ground of conviction. It may be used only as a corroborative piece of evidence. The High Court did not interfere with the conviction observing that the evidence of extra-judicial confession is corroborated by circumstantial evidence.

Pyara Singh Vs. State of Punjab (1978) 1 SCR 661,

Apex Court observed that the law does not require that evidence of an extra-judicial confession should in all cases be corroborated. It thus appears that extra-judicial confession appears to have been treated as a weak piece of evidence but there is no rule of law nor rule of prudence that it cannot be acted upon unless corroborated. If the evidence about extrajudicial confession comes from the mouth of witness/witnesses who appear to be unbiased, not even remotely inimical to the accused, and in respect of whom nothing is brought out which may tend to indicate that he may have a motive for attributing an untruthful statement to the accused; the words spoken to by the witness are clear, unambiguous and unmistakably convey that the accused is the perpetrator of the crime and nothing is omitted by the witness which may militate against it, then after subjecting the evidence of the witness to a rigorous test on the touchstone of credibility, if it passes the test, the extra-judicial confession can be accepted and can be the basis of a conviction. In such a situation to go in search of corroboration itself tends to cast a shadow of doubt over the evidence. If the evidence of extra-judicial confession is reliable, trustworthy and beyond reproach the same can be relied upon and a conviction can be founded thereon.

Palvinder Kaur Vs. State of Punjab AIR 1952 SC 354,

"if extra-judicial confession was not acceptable in part, it has to be rejected completely. It could be held to be discredited for some purpose, and yet accepted as evidence for other purpose."

38. In the present case, extra-judicial confession was made by accused Sunita, first time on the day following the incident i.e. 18.04.2004 at 07:00 am, before PW-1 complainant (cousin of the deceased) who was residing nearby. Extra-judicial confession is as under :

"first of all intoxicating pills were administered to Charanjeet, then she went in another room, Sunita told that they inflicted head injury to Charanjeet by leg of the table and he died due to the injury received."

39. In the cross-examination, no question has been asked about the said extra-judicial confession, but it was suggested that it is wrong to say that Sunita accused had not stated such fact. FIR was lodged against four unknown persons but it will not affect the prosecution case.

40. PW.-2 Raj Rani was 75 years old and in relation she is aunt (mausi). Sunita made extra-judicial confession before her after third day from the incident as under:

"Her sister Prakash Rani was very sad and was weeping due to death of his son. Sunita fell on the legs of Prakash Rani and apologizing that she had developed illicit relationship with Amit Chopra (friend of his brother). Charanjeet began to suspect on her and angry with her and forbades her to meet with Amit Chopra. Due to this, she became annoyed, she and Amit Chopra made a plan in Delhi to remove Charanjeet from their way. Amit, Raju, Dinesh came from Delhi, on 17.04.2004, at about 09-10 pm and came at the house of Charanjeet. She administered intoxicating pills in the sikanji of Charanjeet, thereafter Amit, Raju, Dinesh and she killed Charanjeet jointly."

This statement was given by Sunita before PW2 and her sister and also stated that if she had not pardoned her then she will suicide with children.

41. Mother of the deceased Prakash Rani died later on. P.W. 2 Raj Rani is about 75 years old. She is impartial and has no enmity with the accused, she has no motive to give a false statement. P.W. 1 has also no motive to give false statement. The said statement of the accused is clear and unambiguous and unmistakably conveyed that accused Sunita and other appellants are the only perpetrator of the crime. Testimony of aunt PW2 and cousin PW1 is true, reliable and trustworthy. Both the witnesses PW1 and PW2 corroborated the extra-judicial confession made by Sunita. The extra-judicial confession was made by Sunita before PW1 on the first day of the incident and third day of the incident before PW2.

42. Such extra-judicial confession was also made before the Investigating Officer by Sunita which was also heard by Raj Rani and Prakash Rani. This will not affect the prosecution case as extra-judicial confession made by Sunita was given before PW2 and later on before police which was also heard by the PW2. Such extra-judicial confession is also made by the accused Sunita before PW8 Mukesh Rawal, who is adopted son of Indrasen. He is brother of the accused Sunita. This witness was neither charge-sheeted nor permitted by court to be examined and he has stated that when he went to meet Sunita in jail/Court three and a half years ago and she had made above confession is not relevant because it is not clear that when the extra-judicial confession has been made before PW8 and why he has not disclosed this fact to the Investigating Officer.

43. Thus, it is evident that above extra-judicial confession made by the accused Sunita before near relations was without undue influence, coercion or pressure. It was voluntary, no suggestion was made in the cross-examination that such extra-judicial confession are tempted or non-voluntary. Thus, the said extra-judicial confession is reliable and admissible evidence being trustworthy and accepted as a whole. There is no enmity of Sunita against Raju & Amit Chopra.

44. Spot map of the case has been proved, Ex.Ka.16, which is not challenged by the defence. This shows that on the point A dead body of Charanjeet was lying near double bed and sofa and this shows that it was the living room of Sunita. It is also admitted fact that one tenant Sandeep (PW-6) was also residing in the same house. This shows that the deceased, Sunita, Amit Chopra and Raju were present in the same room where the dead body of the deceased was lying and no other living room is shown in the spot map or suggested by the defence that Sunita was sleeping in another adjoining room. After the incident, Sunita had not made any hue and cry or scream for protection of her husband. She was silent throughout the night. PW-6, neighbour of the same premises has also stated that Sunita had not told about the murder of Charanjeet in the intervening night of 17/18.04.2004. She had also not told about the incident to the tenant Bina Devi PW.7. Accused Sunita told about the incident to P.W.1 Om Prakash at 07:15 am and in the meantime, she was silent about the incident.

45. It is true that every person has distinct reactions during/after incident. Some make interference in the incident, some become silent spectator and some flee from the spot to save her life. On the point of reaction, following rulings are necessary to be mentioned here:

Marvadi Kishore Paramanand Vs. State of Gujarat (1994) 4 SCC 549,

"Different persons react differently in different situations and circumstances. No hard and fast rule of universal application with regard to the reaction of a person in a given circumstance can be laid down. Most often when a person happens to see or come across a gruesome and cruel act being perpetrated within his sight then there is a possibility that he may lose his equilibrium and balance of mind and therefore he may remain as a silent spectator till he is able to reconcile himself and then react in his own way. There may be a person who may react by shouting for help while others may even choose to quietly slip away from the place of occurrence giving an impression as if they have seen nothing with a view to avoid their involvement, in any way, with the occurrence. Yet, there may be persons who may be so daring, hazardous and chivalrous enough to come forward unhesitantly and jump in the fray at the peril of their own life with a zeal to scare away the assailants and save the victim from further assailants."

Leela Ram Vs. State of Haryana (1999) 9 SCC 525,

"Reaction of eye witness, different witnesses react differently. There cannot be any set pattern of or a rule of human reaction on the basis of non-confirmity where with a piece of evidence may be discarded."

46. From the cogent & trustworthy evidence, it is proved that accused Sunita, wife of the deceased, who was present in the room, at the time of incident, did not interfere or made struggle with the other accused to save the life of her husband. She had not made any noise or even hue and cry/scream; she was not only silent spectator of the incident but also offered assistance in commission of the crime. Thus, the inaction shown by the accused Sunita indicates that she has mala fides and knew everything about murder of her husband.

47. Ex.ka.8, is recovery memo of wrapper of medicine nitrogen 10mg from the place of occurrence. It was administered in juice (sikanji) to the deceased by Sunita, due to which, he became unconscious. This was necessary for the accused, because in conscious position, they were not in a position to kill the deceased silently. How the empty wrapper of the said medicine was found from the place of occurrence is not explained by the accused in the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. No suggestion was made in cross-examination that this wrapper was planted. Due to this, deceased was not in position to defend himself, unable to make any hue & cry. It is the case of prosecution that injury on the head of the deceased was inflicted through leg of the table. Recovery memo of wooden table was proved as Ex.ka.7. The wooden leg of the table was recovered from the spot. From the evidence, it is apparent that the wooden leg of the table has not been sent for chemical examination to FSL and on the leg of the table, presence of blood is not proved. This will not damage the prosecution case. Sunita herself stated that Charanjeet was inflicted injury on his head with the leg of the table. There was no injury on the body of the accused Sunita, this shows that she had not made any intervention to save the life of her husband, who was murdered by the accused.

48. From the evidence, it is proved that at the time of incident, accused Sunita was in the room with her husband, so Sunita is the best witness for the murder of her husband. Section 106 of the Evidence Act lays down that "when any fact is established within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him." Thus, how the husband of Sunita had been murdered is especially within her knowledge that who has killed him and she has not made any noise to save the life of her husband. Accused Sunita failed to discharge the burden of proving these facts. This fact also goes against Sunita and indicates that she knows the actual assailant, which has been disclosed by her in her extra-judicial confession.

49. From the perusal of inquest report, Ex.ka.2, it reveals that dead body of the deceased Charanjeet was lying near the bed. Both legs were tied up with chunni, both hands were tied up with rosy chunni from the back side. There was bandage of white clothes on the head of the deceased. There were clothes full of blood near the dead body. There were sandal in both the legs. Zip of pant was found open. There were injuries on the forehead and back side of the head. From the post-mortem report, there was no other injury except head of the deceased. This shows that injuries has been inflicted on the vital part of the deceased in helpless condition, when hands and legs of the deceased were tied up by the Chunni. This Chunni relates to Sunita and this fact was not denied by her. The bandage of white clothes on the head of the deceased shows that stranger will not put such sort of bandage on the head of the deceased. Clothes full of blood found near the dead body also shows that there was profused oozing of blood from the injuries of the deceased. Such act cannot be expected from a stranger/outside killer. The stranger killer will never keep the clothes tied on the head of the deceased and will never wipe the blood spilled on the floor. The said topography only indicates that accused had clear-cut intention to kill the deceased and none else. From the perusal of FSL report, Ex.ka.18, viscera report, no chemical poison was found in the stomach of the deceased. Sandal was found on the feet of the deceased. This shows that the incident took place before bedtime. No person will wear sandal on his feet while sleeping. This also shows that the murder was committed before sleeping.

50. Defence taken by the accused Sunita in her statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. is that informant Om Prakash lodged this report that she may not demand her share in the house. She also stated that due to dispute of property, informant has given false evidence. But the accused Sunita had not submitted any documentary evidence with regard to dispute between Om Prakash and Sunita. Deceased is the son of maternal uncle of Om Prakash. From the evidence of PW2, it reveals that Prakash Rani mother of the deceased has sold the house of her husband that is father of the deceased. It also reveals that Om Prakash had helped Prakash Rani in selling that house. It is admitted fact that Charanjeet and Sunita came to Saharanpur to collect the rent of his house from Delhi. This shows that the defence taken by the accused Sunita is not believable or probable. Informant/PW1 has no enmity to implicate accused falsely. The next defence taken by Sunita is that PW8 Mukesh Rawal wants to usurp the property of her father in Delhi. From the evidence, it is apparent that Mukesh Rawal is adopted son of Indrasen. Indrasen has no son, so he had adopted Mukesh Rawal, the son of his sister. After death of Indrasen, property of Indrasen was inherited by Mukesh Rawal and in that house Sunita and deceased also lived during their service.

51. PW8, who alleges himself as brother of Sunita also came to see her in Court Saharanpur. D.W.1 Aruna, sister of Sunita also stated that Mukesh has taken possession of the house of her father, but it is not clear that what sort of enmity Mukesh Rawal had with Sunita. It was not established by the defence, so this defence taken by Sunita is not probable. Accused Raju has taken the plea that he has been falsely implicated in the case and he has been arrested at his house.

52. It is also submitted that PW8 has stated that police has arrested the accused from Delhi after two days. Accused Amit Chopra had taken the defence that he has been falsely implicated. Jija of Sunita came with the police and arrested him at his home. Brother of Sunita lives in his mohalla. Contrary to this, PW9, Investigating Officer of the case has deposed that at the pointing of Sunita and Sandeep, he arrested Amit, Raju and Dinesh from roadways bus stand Saharanpur nearby Neelam Hotel. It is also submitted that place of arrest of the accused is suspicious, but this will not affect the prosecution case. Place of arrest is not so material. Main question is the role of the accused in committing the crime.

53. It is also submitted that prior to the incident, two persons also came at the house of the deceased who want to know about Charanjeet. Investigating Officer has not traced those two persons. This fact will not damage the case of prosecution.

54. PW6 Sandeep is the neighbour of Sunita. He is a hostile witness. He has not seen any person in the intervening night of 18.04.2004 at 11:30 pm and he also denied that accused were arrested before him. He has not supported the case of prosecution. But his evidence is not in a position to support the defence.

55. P.W.7 Bina Devi is tenant in the house of the deceased and she has stated that it is true that the information of murder was given by Sunita to her about 3-3½ years ago. She has not seen the persons who came in the night. But in the cross-examination, she has stated that she has given statement to the Investigating Officer that three males had come, whom Aunty (Sunita) was stating to be her relative from Delhi. She has also given statement to the Investigating Officer that at 07:00 am, landlady Smt. Sunita came in her room and told that four criminals came in the night, they made her unconscious and committed murder of her husband. Although, this witness is hostile witness but in the cross-examination, the said evidence is also relevant and supports the case of prosecution.

56. On the basis of above discussion, we are of the view that chain of evidence is complete in this case. Extra-judicial confession made by the accused Sunita is corroborated by the other circumstantial evidence. The only hypothesis is that accused Amit Chopra, Raju and Sunita has committed gruesome murder of Charanjeet with planning and cool mind. Thus, prosecution has proved beyond reasonable doubt that accused Sunita, Amit Chopra and Raju has committed the murder of Charanjeet in intervening night of 17/18.04.2004.

57. In our opinion, the guilt of appellants has been established by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt and their acquittal would result in grave miscarriage of justice. There is no manifest error or illegality in the finding of the trial court.

58. In the result, the judgment and order of the trial court dated 21.08.2008 passed by the Special/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Saharanpur in Sessions Trial No. 294 of 2004, arising out of Case Crime No. 206 of 2004 (State Vs. Sunita & others), Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Saharanpur convicting and sentencing the appellants to undergo life imprisonment under Section 302/34 of India Penal Code with a fine of Rs.10,000/- each, in default thereof, to undergo three months additional imprisonment, is hereby confirmed.

59. During appeal, appellants Sunita, Amit Chopra and Raju had remained in judicial custody. They are directed to serve out the remaining period of sentence.

60. The appeal under Section 302/34 is devoid of merits and accordingly dismissed.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 3- The site plan does not disclose PW-1's presence but shows him to be emerging from the dwelling unit- PW-2 is not reliable; firstly, because he has a separate residence and is a chance witness, secondly, his location is not disclosed in the site plan and, thirdly, he has faulted on directions. Rather, it appears to us, PW-2 arrived at the spot, as a neighbour and brother of the deceased, after he heard the gunshot.

Where it is shown from the own evidence of the prosecution that the witnesses of fact are chance witnesses who had arrived after the commission of the offence and their testimonies stand contradicted by other material, then no reliance can be placed upon the testimony of such witnesses.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 154- FIR being ante-timed- the FIR is being lodged at 00.30 hrs in a typed format by claiming that it was got typed by about mid night - the inquest was conducted after day break at 10.30 hrs. even though the body was at the chowki- lodging of a typed report at 00.30 hours creates a strong suspicion with regard to the FIR being ante-timed-GD Entry/ Chik maker not examined- the Diwan who, allegedly, accompanied the informant to the police station to lodge the FIR has not been examined. This coupled with the delay in conducting the inquest lends credence to the defence suggestion that the FIR was lodged in the morning after getting it typed. Once this is the position, the prosecution case gets shrouded in suspicion throwing multiple possibilities including a strong probability of the incident being a hit and run kind of an incident, witnessed by none, and the prosecution story developing on guess-work based on strong suspicion with implication of those with whom the deceased had enmity. Probability of such guess-work becomes stronger also from the circumstance that as against a solitary gunshot injury three persons have been roped in, out of which, two have not been assigned any major role except that they came with weapons and escaped with the assailant.

When the prosecution fails to give any credible explanation for the suspicious circumstances attending the lodging of the FIR and the same is found to be ante-timed and ante- dated, then the story of the prosecution cannot be relied. (Para 26, 28, 29, 30)

1. This appeal is preferred against the judgment and order dated 24.08.2007/25.08.2007 passed by Sessions Judge, Rampur in Sessions Trial No. 496 of 2005 convicting the appellant no.2 (Tej Pal) under Section 302 I.P.C. and appellant no.1 (Birnami) under Section 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C., and sentencing them to imprisonment for life and fine of Rs. 10,000/- each with a default sentence of one year R.I.

INTRODUCTORY FACTS

2. On a typed written report (Exb. Ka-1) submitted by PW-1 (son of the deceased - Sitaram) at 00.30 hours, on 07.07.2005, Case Crime No. 227 of 2005 was registered at P.S. Milak, District Rampur of which Chik FIR (Exb. Ka-15) was prepared. The allegation in the FIR is that on 06.07.2005, at about 9 pm, when PW-1's father (the deceased) was sitting on a cot, smoking a Beedi, the accused-appellants along with one unknown person came and, before the deceased could react, appellant no.2 (Tej Pal) fired a shot at the deceased. Upon which, PW-1, his brother- Sompal (not examined) and his uncle Indraman (PW-2), who were present there, and many others who arrived on hearing gunshot, made an attempt to apprehend the accused but they ran away, brandishing their weapons. It was alleged that the informant recognised the two named accused in the light of lantern and torch but could not recognise the third person. It was also alleged that the deceased was taken on a cart for medical attention but by the time they could cross the river the deceased expired therefore, he was brought to Police Chowki Param.

3. Inquest was completed on 07.07. 2005 by about 10.30 hrs at Police Chowki Param whilst the body of the deceased was on a Dunlop cart (a bullock cart with tyres). The inquest report (Exb. Ka-3) was prepared by S.C. Tyagi (PW-4). The inquest report notices that the body was wrapped in a bed spread / mattress and was lying in a supine position on that Dunlop cart.

4. Autopsy was conducted by Doctor M.A. Ali (PW-3) on 07.07.2005 at about 4.30 pm. Autopsy report (Exb. Ka-2), in respect of body condition and injuries, recites:-

(i) External Examination:-

Rigor mortis passed off in neck but present in both upper and lower extremities. No sign of decomposition.

(ii) Ante-mortem injuries:

Firearm wound measuring 5.5 cm x 4 cm x 16 cm situated over right side of upper part of abdomen, 12.5 cm below right nipple. Margins abraded and blackening present (wound of entry). The tract of wound directed inwards and upwards. No wound of exit found.

(iii) Internal Examination:-

(a) Seventh and Eighth ribs, on right side broken;

(c) Right lung lacerated. 10 pellets recovered from right lung. Two litres of clotted blood present in right pleural cavity. Six pellets and one cock recovered from right pleural cavity. Left lung -NAD and Pale. Pericardium- NAD and pale.

(d) Heart - NAD and empty.

(e) Cavity- about 1 litre of clotted blood present in abdominal cavity.

(f) Stomach: NAD, 150 ml of semi-digested food matter present.

(g) Small intestine - NAD - digested food matter and gases present.

(h) Large intestine - NAD, faecal matter and gases are present.

(i) Liver - lacerated, 12 pellets recovered from liver.

(j) In all 28 pellets recovered from the body

(iv) Cause of death: Haemorrhage and shock due to ante-mortem firearm injury.

(v) The estimated time of death - About one day before.

5. After completion of the investigation, two persons, namely, the appellants, were charge-sheeted by PW-4 vide charge-sheet dated 22.07.2005 (Exb. Ka-14) on which cognisance was taken on 11.08.2005 and the case was committed to the Court of Session where, vide order dated 02.01.2006, the appellants were charged for offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C. The accused-appellants pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

PROSECUTION EVIDENCE

6. During the course of trial, the prosecution examined four witnesses, their testimony, in brief, is noticed below:-

(i) PW-1 - Surendra (informant - son of the deceased). He stated that on 06.07.2005, at about 9 pm, while the deceased was smoking Beedi at the Baithak (sitting place) in front of his house and PW-1 was returning to the house, after serving water to the deceased, the accused - Birnami and Tej Pal, along with an unknown person, came and, before the deceased could realise, Tej Pal (appellant no.2) fired a shot at the deceased. All of this was witnessed by Sompal (younger brother of PW-1) and Indraman (PW-3 - brother of the deceased) and they made an effort to nab the accused but they ran away brandishing their weapons. PW-1 stated that he and the witnesses saw and recognised the accused in the light of lantern and torch though, they could not recognise the third unknown person. PW-1 stated that thereafter the injured was taken on a Dunlop cart for medical attention but, by the time they could cross the river Naurah, he expired. Therefore, they took the body on that Dunlop Cart to the police chowki Param. PW-1 stated that after parking the Dunlop cart there, he went to police station Milak where, on getting the report typed, he lodged the report after signing the same. The typed report was exhibited as Exb. Ka-1. PW-1 stated that accused were inimical to the deceased because government tap was installed in the premises of the deceased.

(ia) In his cross-examination, PW-1 stated that his house and PW-2's house are separate from each other. The deceased and PW-1 stayed in one house. The 'Baithak' where the deceased was sitting at the time of occurrence is on the outer side, below a shade (chhappar), open from three sides and towards north of the house. The distance between that 'Baithak' and the house is 8-10 paces. When PW-1 was about 5 paces away from the deceased, he heard gun shot, before that he could sense someone coming and when he turned, simultaneously, gun shot was heard and he saw three persons holding pistols in their hands. PW-1 stated that the shot was fired in his presence; and that shot was fired from a distance of about 1 feet and, immediately thereafter, the accused ran away. PW-1 stated that they chased the accused for 2-4 paces but returned to attend to the deceased who was lying injured. PW-1 stated that upto the Chowki he was accompanied by his brother (Sompal), his mother and PW-2 but other villagers, due to fear, did not accompany them though they had arrived at the spot. They reached Chowki at 10.30 pm where they informed Diwan about the incident but the report was not written. They stayed there for half an hour, whereafter, PW-1 went to P.S. Milak along with Diwan. They reached there by quarter to twelve. By that time the Bazaar was closed. At the police station, PW-1 met Daroga (I.O.) and informed him about the incident. Daroga told PW-1 to get the report in writing. Next to the police station, at the Tehsil, he found a man who got the written report typed. Prior to that, he had never seen that typist. That at that time there was just one typist available. The typist did not type his name in the report. The typed report was given at the police station at about 00.30 hrs. He denied the suggestion that the report was typed in the morning after sunrise and thereafter was given at the police station. He stated that the I.O. did not ask him as to from where he got the report typed. At this stage, the witness was confronted with his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. where he had not stated that the report was got typed at the Tehsil.

(ib) In respect of position of the deceased when the shot was fired, PW-1 stated that the shot had hit the deceased while he was sitting on the cot; the shot was fired from the right side. Blood had dropped on the cot.

(ic) In respect of conveyance used to lodge report, PW-1 stated that from Chowki Param, he went on a cycle with Diwan and returned back to the chowki on the same cycle; and that night they did not return back to the village.

(id) In respect of the time he served food to the deceased- PW-1 stated that that night he had served food to the deceased about 15 minutes before 9 pm. The deceased had consumed Roti and Sabji (vegetable) and after that meal he had gone to serve water to the deceased.

(ie) In respect of animosity- PW-1 stated that though there was animosity between the accused and his family but there was no pending litigation.

(if) In respect of source of light, PW-1 stated that he had a torch; and a lantern was hanging from the Chhappar. He had disclosed to the I.O. the spot where the lantern was hanging from the Chhappar but the I.O. had not taken the lantern into custody. He stated that he had also shown his torch to the I.O. but the torch was not taken into custody by the I.O. He denied the suggestion that he had not seen the incident in the light of torch/lantern as they were not there. He also denied the suggestion that he had not shown the torch and the lantern to the I.O.

(ig) In respect of the third accused, PW-1 stated that he did not know him. PW-1 also could not describe him by his height and body structure. He stated that all the three accused came together and were standing together at one place when they fired at the deceased. He denied the suggestion that it was dark therefore, he could not recognise the third person. He also denied the suggestion that it was dark at the place of occurrence. He also denied the suggestion that it was dark and he could not recognise any person. He denied the suggestion that the accused were not involved but have been falsely implicated on account of enmity. He further denied the suggestion that the accused-appellants neither brandished their weapons nor extended threats.

(ii) PW-2 - Indarman (younger brother of the deceased and uncle of PW-1). He stated that while he was standing on the rasta, in front of his house, he saw the accused-appellants and one another coming out of their house and going towards the house of the deceased. Seeing them together, PW-2 also went towards the house of the deceased when he saw accused (Tej Pal-appellant no.2) firing a shot at the deceased. Thereafter, PW-2, PW-1, PW-1's brother (Sompal) and PW-1's mother challenged the accused and tried to catch them but the accused ran away brandishing their weapons and extending threats. PW-2 stated that, at that time, there was a lantern hanging from the Chhappar and he had a torch in his hand and in the light thereof, he saw the incident and could recognise the accused. He stated that after the incident, they took the deceased on a Dunlop cart for medical attention at Milak but the deceased died on way and, therefore, they took the body to Param Chowki. From Chowki, PW-1 went to the police station to lodge the report.

(iia) In his cross-examination, PW-2 stated that his house and the house of the deceased are separate with separate entrance. He stated that soon before the incident, the deceased has had his food. At the time of the incident, PW-2's wife and children were inside the house. He stated that, during investigation, he had informed the I.O. that he was standing on the rasta at the time of the incident but when confronted with the omission in that regard, he stated that if that was not written, he cannot tell the reason for the same. He denied the suggestion that he is lying that he was standing on the rasta at the time of the incident and therefore he had not made disclosure of this fact to the I.O. He admitted that he had not informed the I.O. that there was lantern hanging from Chhappar and that he had a torch in his hand. He, however, denied the suggestion that he did not make disclosure of the lantern hanging from Chappar and about the torch in his hand because they were not there. Immediately, thereafter, he stated that he had informed the I.O. about the lantern and the torch. When PW-2 was confronted with the omission in his statement in that regard, he stated that if that was not mentioned in his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C., he cannot give its reason.

(iib) On further cross-examination, he stated that at about 9 pm, on the day of the incident, he had come out to urinate, then he spotted the accused roaming and by the time he could finish urinating, he heard gun shot. As soon as gun shot was fired by accused-appellant (Tej Pal), he arrived at the spot where he saw deceased's both sons and wife and other than them there was no one else there. PW-2 stated that after being hit by the gun shot, the deceased fell there. Thereafter, the deceased was taken on a Dunlop cart. He stated that the distance between Param Chowki and the spot is 3-4 kilometer. He stated that he had accompanied the cart up to police chowki Param. Thereafter, as the body of his brother was kept at the Chowki, he remained at the Chowki, whereas, PW-1 went to police station Milak to lodge the report. He stated that from the spot to Chowki Param, it took them about 45 minutes. He stated that from Milak, police personnel had arrived in the night between 12.00- 1.00 pm and they were there at the Chowki till day break. Thereafter, they brought the body to the police station by about noon. He stated that when PW-1 had gone from Chowki Param to Police Station Milak, a constable had accompanied him.

(iic) On being queried as to whether the accused had covered their faces, he stated that their faces were not covered. He stated that since before the incident there were disputes between the deceased and accused-appellants (Tej Pal and Birnami); and that a month before the present incident, there was a fight though no one had received any serious injury; that incident had occurred at 8-9 am in the morning but that incident was not reported and no information of that incident was given to the I.O. In respect of the present incident, his statement was recorded next day of the incident. He stated that he had also informed the police personnel of the police chowki about the incident but when they were informed, the I.O. was not present. He stated that he was not asked by the I.O. to handover the batteries (should be read as torch) therefore, he had not shown the batteries to the I.O.

(iid) In respect of the direction in which the deceased was sitting at the time of the incident, he stated that the deceased at the time of the incident was sitting on a cot smoking a Beedi; deceased's face was towards East and deceased's house was towards West; whereas, the Chhappar was overhead. PW-2 stated that deceased was shot from the Galliyara (lane) located towards East of that Chhappar. When he was questioned as to whether he is aware about directions, PW-2 stated that he is aware of the directions. He denied the suggestion that there is no Galliyara towards the East of the Chhappar of the deceased. He stated that Chhappar of the deceased joins his house towards North. He stated that in between his and deceased's house there is Kothri and near the Chhappar, apart from his house, there is no other house. He denied the suggestion that he did not witness the incident and as the incident involved the murder of his brother, he has told lies.

(iii) PW-3- Dr. M.A. Ali. He proved the autopsy report which was marked as Exhibit Ka-2. He stated that death of the deceased could have occurred in between 9 pm to 11 pm on 06.07.2005.

(iiia) In his cross-examination, he stated that the position from where the shot was fired at the deceased must have been lower than the position at which the deceased was when he was hit by the shot. He stated that if shot is fired from a distance less than 2 feet blackening would be noticed though it depends upon the nature of the gun powder in the bullet as also the clothes worn by the deceased. He stated that scorching and tattooing would be noticed if the shot is fired from a distance between 1 to 2 feet but it all depends upon the nature of the firearm.

(iiib) In respect of his estimation with regard to the time of death, he stated that there could be a variation of plus-minus 4 to 6 hours.

(iiic) In respect of presence of semi-digested food material in the stomach of the deceased, he stated that this suggests that the deceased might have had his meal 4-6 hours before. He stated that if the deceased had died about 10 pm, he might have had his meal at around 4.30 pm and if he had died at about 4.30 pm then he might have had his meal between 10-10.30 am.

(iv) PW-4-S.I. S.C. Tyagi (Investigating Officer). He stated that on the date of lodging the first information report he was posted at P.S. Milak as Sub-Inspector and he took over the investigation of the case under the direction of the Station House Officer. After taking over the investigation of the case, he recorded the statement of Chatrapal Singh, who had prepared the Chik FIR and the GD Entry of the receipt of the written report; thereafter, he recorded the statement of the informant. Vide GD Report No. 2, he left for police chowki Param along with other police personnel where he saw the body of the deceased. The body of the deceased was inspected but as it was late night, the inquest was deferred to morning and was, accordingly, conducted in the morning. He proved the inquest report. He stated that after the inquest, the body was sealed and papers in respect of autopsy were prepared. At the time of sealing the body, pieces of bed-sheets and mattress were taken whereafter, he proceeded to the spot. At the spot, the site plan was prepared on the instructions of PW-2. The site plan was exhibited as Exb. Ka-10. PW-4 stated that he took blood stained pieces of the cot where the deceased was sitting and prepared a memorandum thereof, which was marked Exhibit Ka-11. He stated that in that cot there was bed sheet and mattress which were blood stained and he took their pieces of which seizure memo (Exb.Ka-12) was prepared. He also proved lifting of blood stained and plain earth from the spot of which seizure memo prepared was exhibited as Exb. Ka-13. He stated that the accused - Birnami was arrested on 09.07.2005; whereas, the accused-Tej Pal was arrested in PW-4's absence on 16.07.2005. He stated that after he recorded the statement of the eye-witnesses including Sompal (other son of the deceased) and Premwati (wife of the deceased), charge-sheet was prepared and submitted, which was exhibited as Exb. Ka-14. He stated that the articles seized were sent for forensic examination. He stated that at the time of inquest, the deceased was wearing a Kurta, Aangocha and an underwear which were sealed and sent for forensic examination. He produced plain earth/blood stained earth, clothes etc. which were made material exhibits. He proved the signature of Chhatrapal - constable, who prepared the Chik FIR, and stated that Chhatrapal could not be produced as a witness because he is on VIP duty and there is no possibility of him being available. On PW-4 recognizing the signature of Chahtrapal, the Chik FIR and the GD entry of the report were exhibited as Exb. Ka-15 and Exb. Ka-16, respectively.

(iva) In his cross-examination, he stated that the FIR was registered in his presence. At the time of registration of the first information report, 2-3 persons had come for lodging the first information report. He, however, could not tell the conveyance used by the informant to reach the police station. He stated that the FIR was scribed at the police station. Immediately thereafter, he stated that it was already written. He stated that from village Koop (place of occurrence) if one comes to the police station, Param Chowki falls in between. PW-4 stated that the informant had informed that the body of the deceased was lying at Param Chowki. He stated that he left the police station at 12.30 am (0030 hours) to reach Param Chowki; the informant had accompanied them; and police personnel had gone on a Jeep. He stated that the statement of Chik maker and the informant was recorded at the police station. He stated that the distance between Param Chowki and the police station would be 8-10 kms. PW-4 took about an hour to reach Param Chowki as the road was very bad. On reaching Chowki, the body of the deceased was seen and PW-4 stayed overnight at the Chowki where family members of the deceased were also present. Amongst villagers, Kripal and others were also there; that there must have 10-15 people there. He stated that though PW-2 was present at the Chowki but his statement was not recorded then, and no step in furtherance of investigation was taken there. He stated that no separate order was passed for him to investigate the case, in fact the SHO (Amrit Lal) was also present at the time of lodging the FIR and the order in respect of investigation of the case by PW-4 was written in the Chik FIR itself.

(ivb) In respect of the investigation being assigned to him, PW-4 stated that the investigation was assigned to him because the incident occurred within his Halka (circle). He stated that he does not remain at the Chowki during night but is either on round or at the Thana. He stated that, that entire night the body remained on Dunlop Cart and the proceedings commenced in the morning between 8 and 9 am. He stated that sun rise must have occurred between 6.00 and 6.15 am. He stated that at the time of inspection of the body, the body was on a mattress and a bed-sheet, which were soaked with blood, but there was no blood on the dunlop cart. He could not tell as to what mode of transport was used for carrying the body from the Chowki to Sadar Hospital. He stated that uncle of the informant, namely, PW-2, took him from police chowki to village Koop i.e. the place of occurrence.

(ivc) In respect of the description of the spot i.e. the place of occurrence, PW-4 stated that a cot was seen at the Baithak. The Baithak was covered by Chappar. He could not tell whether mattress/ bedcover was there on the cot but the cot had blood stains. He could not tell the exact portion of the cot in which blood stain was present but stated that there was blood also on the floor in a dimension of 2-3 inches as was on the cot. He stated that the informant did not have a separate room but the entire family used to reside at one place in the house.

(ivd) In respect of various other steps during investigation, he stated that eye-witnesses of the incident were informant (PW-1), his brother Sompal, his uncle (PW-2) and informant's mother and no other. He stated that the statement of deceased's wife was recorded on 22.07.2005 because earlier, when he visited the spot, she was not found. He denied the suggestion that on the day of the incident, wife of the deceased was not present. He stated that he had prepared the site plan on the instruction of (PW-2). He stated that on 09.07.2005, he had arrested Brijmani from his house. He denied the suggestion that he completed the investigation while sitting in his office. He reiterated that he recorded the statement of the informant in the night of the incident itself at the police station but the time of its recording was not entered in the general diary. He stated that at the time of recording statement of the informant, PW-2 was not present.

(ive) In respect of typed report of the written report (FIR), PW-4 stated that when the informant had come to lodge the report he had a written report with him which was seen by him. PW-4 stated that copy of the report and the copy of the Chik was provided to him. He stated that he does not know from where the informant got the report typed. He also stated that he does not know whether the typed report was given at police station Milak in the morning. He stated that he did not record the statement of the person who typed the first information report and he cannot tell the reason for the same. He stated that he did not ask the informant as to from where he could get the written report typed in the night. He also did not ask any question as to the name of the typist.

(iv f) In respect of the time when he left the police station for investigation, he stated that after completing the formalities, he left at 1.30 hours for Chowki Param.

(iv g) In respect of the time when he reached village-Koop (the place of occurrence), he stated that he reached there at 10.30 hrs in the morning but before that he had reached Param Chowki. He stated when he had reached village-Koop then PW-2 was with him.

(iv h) In respect of describing the surroundings of the spot - He stated that the house of the informant (PW-1), PW-1's brother (Sompal) and PW-1's wife (Premwati) was common; whereas, the house of PW-2 is separate and PW-2 resides separately. He stated that though the two houses are separate but there is no boundary in between. He stated that in the house of the deceased, there are 2 or 3 rooms facing North. All three rooms are Pakka. At the time of occurrence, informant (PW-1) and the deceased used to stay in the same house but in different rooms. He stated that in the site plan the house of the accused is across the road. He stated that towards north of the house of the deceased there is Chappar and there is a gap between the Chhappar and the house (where the deceased and other members of his family resided). PW-4 stated that in the site plan he had not shown the three rooms separately but has shown the location of the entire house. On being shown the site plan prepared by him, he stated that in the site plan he has shown the direction from where the informant (PW-1) and PW-1's mother (Premwati) and PW-1's brother (Sompal) had come out of their house to the spot. He stated that the place where the incident occurred (Point 'A') is about 7-8 paces from the house of the informant.

(Iv i) In respect of the presence of lantern and torch, when PW-4 was questioned, he stated that at point 'A' where the cot was laid on which the deceased was present at the time of the incident there was no lantern shown in the map and that no such lantern was recovered. The informant (PW-1) and his uncle (PW-2) had also not given their torches to the custody of the police. The informant had also not disclosed the presence of lantern at the spot. He admitted that at Point 'A' he had not shown presence of blood. He stated that neither PW-1 nor PW-2 in their statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. had disclosed to him the distance from where the deceased was shot at. That he had not noticed any bullet at the spot nor he could notice any pellet marks. He also stated that the two eye-witnesses had also not disclosed to him as to how they could recognise the assailants. He stated that at the spot he did not notice any empty cartridge. He denied the suggestion that investigation was completed sitting at one place. He stated that he had collected pieces of the cot from the spot but he had not mentioned the length of those pieces and he had also not mentioned in the case diary as to how many pieces were sent to the forensic laboratory. He denied the suggestion that the recovered articles were not properly kept and entered in the records before being sent for forensic examination. He stated that recovered articles were sent for forensic examination after submission of charge-sheet. He denied the suggestion that the forensic report is bogus.

7. The incriminating circumstances appearing in the prosecution evidence were put to the accused-appellants. They denied the incriminating circumstances and claimed that they have been falsely implicated on account of land dispute.

8. The trial court found that the FIR was promptly lodged, the ocular account of PW-1 and PW-2 was reliable and consistent with the medical evidence, accordingly, convicted the appellant no.2-Tej Pal under Section 302 I.P.C. and appellant no.1 Birnami under Section 302 read with Section 34 I.P.C.

9. We have heard Sri Vinay Saran, learned senior counsel, assisted by Sri Pradeep Kumar Mishra, for the appellants and Sri H.M.B. Sinha, learned A.G.A., for the State and have perused the record.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE APPELLANT

10. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the incident is of late night; existence of electricity light is neither alleged nor proved; incident is stated to have been witnessed in the light of lantern and torch whereas, neither lantern nor torch was shown to the I.O. and their existence was not confirmed during investigation therefore, in the darkness of night no one could identify the assailant; whereas, the FIR was lodged by guess-work, implicating three suspects against one injury; that the FIR was ante-timed; and that the trial court failed to properly test the prosecution evidence, particularly, when a close scrutiny was required as the ocular account was coming through interested witnesses.

11. It was contended that the place of incident, as per the site plan, was adjoining Aam Rasta (public lane). Admittedly, the deceased was seated underneath a Chhappar which was open from three sides including lane/ road-side, therefore, anybody from the road could have fired a shot at the deceased from close range and run away. It is thus a case of hit and run, giving no opportunity to the witnesses to identify the assailants. Moreover, the incident occurred without altercation or dialogue. It was a split second affair. When the testimony of PW-1 is carefully scrutinised, it would appear that he rushed out from his room on hearing gun shot and, therefore, possibility of his witnessing the actual firing is not there. Notably, the site plan discloses arrows/ directions from where the witnesses arrived and not the spot from where they witnessed the incident.

12. There is a strong suspicion with regard to the FIR being ante-timed as it is not at all probable that at 12 midnight a typist would be available to type the report. This suspicion has not been dispelled by examination of the scribe / typist of the written report or the constable who prepared the Chik FIR/ GD Entry in respect of its receipt. Rather, the suspicion gets amplified by non-disclosure of the identity of that typist despite questioning. It is therefore a case where the report was lodged on guess-work and suspicion in the morning by ante-timing the same. This is corroborated by the inordinate delay in conducting the inquest. All of this raise a strong suspicion with regard to the truthfulness of the prosecution case entitling the accused to the benefit of doubt.

13. It was next argued that in so far as PW-2 is concerned, he appears to be a chance witness whose presence at the spot, at the time of the incident, appears doubtful because1-33 the reason that he discloses for his presence is that he had been out to urinate. This reason is not disclosed by him in his statement recorded under section 161 CrPC. Other than that his presence is not natural because he has a separate house. Moreover, the site plan, which is prepared at his instance, does not disclose his location from where he witnessed the incident. Further, the disclosure by him with regard to the direction in which the deceased was sitting i.e. with his face towards east, is at variance with the spot position including the site plan because, if the deceased was facing east then had the shot been fired from lane, which is towards north, as shown in the site plan, the deceased would have been hit on the left side, whereas the shot had hit the deceased on the right side.

14. In so far as PW-1 is concerned, it appears, he rushed out of the house on hearing the gun shot. Further, PW-1 is not reliable because, according to him, he had served dinner to the deceased just 15 minutes before the incident; whereas, semi-digested food was noticed in deceased's stomach, which, according to the doctor, might have been eaten about 4 hours before. This also suggests that the incident might have occurred late night and not as suggested by the prosecution.

15. Further, it is a case where there is no corroboration to the ocular account from recovery of the murder weapon or from any independent witness, hence, conviction of the appellants, under the circumstances, would not be safe and, therefore, it is a fit case where the benefit of doubt be extended to the appellants.

16. Lastly, there existed no strong motive for the crime. If there was any, there appeared no motive for three persons to join hand. Even the two named persons belong to different families though they both reside near the house of the deceased across the road.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE STATE

17. Per contra, the learned A.G.A. stated that PW-1 was a co-resident with the deceased and PW-2 resided next door, thus, their presence at the spot is natural. Their ocular account is consistent with medical evidence and the first information report was promptly lodged in the night itself; that source of light has been disclosed in the FIR as well as in the testimony. Therefore, merely because the investigating officer was not vigilant in effecting recovery of lantern and torches, non production of lantern/ torch would not prove fatal to the prosecution case.

18. Absence of a strong motive for the crime would not be material as the case is based on ocular account which is consistent with medical evidence. Importantly, the place and time of occurrence has not been challenged by putting suggestions to the eye-witnesses therefore, once it is established that the incident occurred in close proximity to the dwelling unit of the witnesses, their presence becomes natural on the spot and their testimony cannot be discarded merely because they are not independent witnesses.

19. No presumption can be drawn that a typed report cannot be prepared late in the night. Similarly, if the inquest was deferred till day break, an inference cannot be drawn that the FIR was not in existence by then because in villages where there is no facility of electric light, inquest usually awaits day break. Thus, there is no logical reason to assume that the first information report is ante-timed.

20. Presence of semi-digested food in the stomach of the deceased does not render the ocular account of PW-1 in respect of the incident doubtful because his presence in the house at the time of the incident has not been challenged. The learned AGA thus prayed that the appeal be dismissed.

ANALYSIS

21. Having considered the entire prosecution evidence and the rival submissions, we are of the view that the prosecution has been able to prove beyond doubt the following:

(i) The place of incident i.e. where the deceased was shot at. The place of occurrence is the Baithak of deceased's house, just in front of the house of the deceased, adjoining public lane, covered by a Chhappar (a shade), which is open from three sides including the lane side, and is 7-8 paces north of the dwelling units of deceased's house. Notably, there is no suggestion to the eyewitnesses to dispute the spot. Further, there is no serious challenge to the deceased sitting on a cot, placed on that Baithak, at the time he was shot. This is also confirmed by collection and production of blood stained pieces of cot etc found on that 'Baithak'.

(ii) The time of the incident. Though, presence of semi-digested food matter in the stomach of the deceased has been highlighted by learned counsel for the appellants to develop an argument that if food had been served 15 minutes before the incident, as is the testimony of PW-1, there would be undigested food and not semi-digested food in the stomach therefore, it appears, the incident was of late night but, interestingly, there is no suggestion to the eye-witnesses PW-1 and PW-2 that the incident occurred at some other place or at some other time.

22. As the prosecution has been able to fix the place of occurrence, we shall now closely scrutinise the spot described in the site plan (Ex. Ka-10) prepared by I.O. after inspection of the spot on the guidance of PW-2, the alleged eye witness of the incident. The site plan (Ex. Ka-10), indicates that the entire area of the deceased's house is in three parts. First being the main dwelling unit, which is towards South. Second is the Baithak - Point A (the place of occurrence), underneath a Chhappar (a shade), which is located north - east of the dwelling unit, at a distance of 8 paces from the dwelling unit; and the third, namely, Point B is open space located in front, towards north, of the dwelling unit and towards west of the Baithak. Notably, this is the open area in respect of which, as per item no.2 in the index of the site plan, there is a dispute. The place of occurrence i.e. 'Baithak', which has been marked by alphabet "A', adjoins the Aam Rasta (public lane) located north to it. Across that public lane, further north, there are separate houses of Parmi (father of appellant no.2) and Chunni (father of appellant no.1). What is important is that the houses of accused-appellants are across the road in front of the residential area of the deceased. The house of PW-2 (Indraman) is located east to the house of the deceased.

23. According to PW-3 (autopsy surgeon who conducted autopsy and prepared the autopsy report Ex. Ka-2), the bullet travelled in a direction lower to upper, that is, the shot was fired at the deceased from a level lower to that at which the deceased was positioned. As per prosecution evidence the deceased was sitting on a cot placed at the 'Baithak'. Ordinarily, 'Baithak' is higher than the adjoining ground level. The site plan reflects that the 'Baithak' in question adjoins Aam Rasta (public lane). The arrows in the site plan (Ex. Ka-10), indicate the direction from where the accused arrived and escaped. These arrows suggest that neither the accused entered the residential area of the deceased nor stepped on to that Baithak. Rather, they fired from the margin of the public lane, adjoining the Baithak, and escaped. Putting all these circumstances together, in our view, it appears to be a case where the shot was fired at the deceased from the adjoining public lane and the assailants escaped using that lane. The incident is, therefore, a hit and run kind of an incident. More so, because it is not the prosecution case that there was an altercation or exhortation preceding the shot.

24. In these circumstances, what we have to examine is whether PW-1 and PW-2 had the opportunity to witness the incident in the darkness of night or it is a case where they came out on hearing gunshot and by the time they could come out, the assailant had vanished; whereafter, on strong suspicion, or guess-work, a named FIR was lodged. Notably, PW-1 is the son of the deceased and he resides in the same house. But, the dwelling unit of that house is separate from the Baithak where the deceased was seated at the time when the shot was fired at him. Admittedly, in the house there were deceased's wife and the other son who carried the deceased to the police chowki yet, they have not been examined. PW-1 (the informant), the other son of the deceased, to show his presence at the spot for the purposes of witnessing the incident, claims that 15 minutes before the incident, PW-1 had served Roti - Sabji (food) to his father (the deceased) and to serve him water thereafter, he had come out and when, after serving water, he was returning to the dwelling unit, he could sense some one coming and by the time he turned, shot was fired. In that small span of time, he noticed as to who fired the shot and who were the others present. Interestingly, he claims to have noticed two persons, namely, the two appellants with whom, according to PW-1, there was some dispute in respect of the land. He, however, could not recognise the third person and could not describe his physical attributes despite being questioned on that aspect. At this stage, to test the above story, the statement of PW-3 (the autopsy surgeon) need be noticed. According to PW-3, he noticed semi-digested food in the stomach of the deceased which, in his opinion, would suggest that the deceased had his meals 4 to 6 hours before. This throws two possibilities, that is, either the occurrence was late in the night or, the story narrated that the deceased had meals 15 minutes before the incident is contrived as a ploy to justify PW-1's presence at the spot in the nick of time. Both possibilities would have to be ruled out even if we assume that medical evidence cannot, with precision, determine the time when the meal was taken inasmuch as much would depend on the digestive power of the person and the nature of the food consumed. But as these possibilities have arisen, to rule out all doubts, we would have to carefully scrutinise and test the prosecution evidence. A careful scrutiny of the prosecution evidence is otherwise also required because it flows from witnesses who are closely related to the deceased and the deceased admittedly had a dispute with the two named accused and, in the past, they have had a fight.

25. As a first step in our endeavour to test the prosecution evidence, we shall notice the site plan (Ex. Ka-10). When we notice the site plan (Ex. Ka-10), item No. 3 of its index, would suggest that the informant and the witnesses had arrived together from the dwelling unit to witness the incident. Notably, the dwelling unit comprises of three rooms and is 8 paces away from the spot where the deceased was shot at. Admittedly, the incident is of night and the prosecution has not taken up a case that there was electric light in the area. To prove the source of light, the burden was on the prosecution. To discharge that burden, the prosecution story was that there were torches and a burning lantern hanging from the Chhappar under which the deceased was sitting. Neither the lantern was shown to the investigating officer nor the place where the lantern was hanging was shown to the I.O. The site plan does not disclose the spot where the lantern was hanging. Even the torches were not presented before the I.O. and, admittedly, there was no custody or seizure memo of either the torch or the lantern. These circumstances may not be sufficient to discard the testimony of the eye witnesses of the incident as they may be on account of lapses in investigation but they are of consequence to the extent that the ocular account in respect of the presence of those objects i.e. lantern and torch does not get support from any material collected during investigation. Consequently, the ocular account would have to be tested independently.

26. Before testing the testimony of PW-1, as a second step, we shall test the testimony of PW-2 i.e. the brother of the deceased. In so far as PW-2 is concerned, he has a separate house and, notably, the site plan, though is prepared at his instance yet, it does not disclose as to from where PW-2 witnessed the incident. Further, PW-2 appears to be a chance witness, who was out of his house to urinate when he got the opportunity to witness the incident. Importantly, when PW-2 was questioned as regards the direction in which the deceased was sitting when he was shot at, PW-2 stated that the deceased was facing East at the time when he was shot. Had it been so, the shot fired from northern side of the deceased (as is according to the site plan) would have hit the deceased on the left side whereas the post-mortem report suggests that the deceased suffered injury on the right side. In our view, PW-2 is not reliable; firstly, because he has a separate residence and is a chance witness, secondly, his location is not disclosed in the site plan and, thirdly, he has faulted on directions. Rather, it appears to us, PW-2 arrived at the spot, as a neighbour and brother of the deceased, after he heard the gunshot.

27. Now, we arrive at the testimony of PW-1 to find out whether it is reliable and trustworthy. Before we proceed to test the testimony of PW-1, we may observe that there are no cut and dried formulae to test the reliability and credibility of a witness. The reliability of a witness not only depends on his consistency but also on surrounding facts and circumstances of the case. As a first step, the court must test whether the presence of the witness at the spot at the crucial time is natural or is by chance. If it is natural, then whether he had the opportunity to witness the incident. If the presence is by chance, then there ought to be an acceptable explanation for his presence there. Ordinarily, when there is a prompt reporting of an incident based on an ocular account of a witness, that ocular account is considered truthful because he gets lesser opportunity to embellish the account by guess work or ill motives. Therefore, to make the prosecution story look truthful, at times there is an effort to ante-time the FIR. We shall therefore proceed to test the ocular account rendered by PW-1 not only on its own merit but also by examining the possibility of the FIR being ante-timed.

28. As regards the presence of PW-1, we notice that the incident occurred in the night at the Baithak of the house of the deceased with whom PW-1 resided. Considering that by night hours, after finishing day's chores, one would return to the comfort of his house, the probability of PW-1 being present in the house at the time of the incident is quite high. Under the circumstances, the presence of PW-1 in the house at the time of the incident is natural. Moreover, no suggestion has been given to PW-1 that he was elsewhere at the time of the incident. But that, by itself, is not sufficient for us to accept that PW-1 had witnessed the incident. Notably, the site plan prepared by the I.O. would suggest that the dwelling unit of the house of the deceased had three rooms. Admittedly, the deceased had two sons and a wife residing with him. The dwelling unit comprising of three rooms was separate from 'Baithak' (where the deceased was seated on a cot at the time when he was shot), which was about 8 paces away from the dwelling unit. Notably, this 'Baithak' adjoins the Aam Rasta (public lane). Instant case, is a case of single gun shot which, from the site plan, appears to have been fired from the public lane and which fact is corroborated by medical evidence as the direction of the shot was from lower to higher level, as already discussed above. Notably, there was no altercation or exhortation preceding the incident and there was no scuffle before or after the incident. No doubt, PW-1 stated in the FIR that the accused had brandished their weapons to threaten the witnesses while escaping but has not disclosed about their utterances. Further, during cross-examination on 21.11.2008, he stated that PW-1 could chase them to a distance of only 2 to 4 paces thereafter he returned to his father (the injured, who died later). It was thus a hit and run kind of an incident and therefore, what needs to be examined is whether in that short time span PW-1, in the darkness of the night, had the opportunity to identify the assailants or whether it is a case where the assailant fired and ran away and on hearing the gunshot, the inmates of the house rushed out from their dwelling units. Notably, in the site plan the presence of PW-1 is not specifically shown. Rather, direction is given from where the witnesses emerged to arrive at the spot. The site plan no doubt is not prepared at the instance of PW-1 therefore, it cannot be used to contradict him but what is important is that it does not disclose PW-1's presence but shows him to be emerging from the dwelling unit. Importantly, even PW-1 does not say that he was sitting with his father at the Baithak. Rather, to show his presence, he sets up a story that his father had eaten his meals 15 minutes before the incident and, therefore, to serve him water PW-1 had come out and, after serving water, when he was returning to the dwelling unit he could sense some one coming and as soon as he turned, he saw three persons including the appellants and Tejpal firing a shot at his father whereafter they ran away. The story of serving meal 15 minutes before the incident is not supported by medical evidence as semi-digested food was found and, according to PW-3, the autopsy doctor, meal might have been taken 4 to 6 hours before. Though this piece of circumstance might not be sufficient to outright discard the account as being not truthful, but it does throws some doubt on it. More so, when the source of light i.e. presence of lantern hanging from the Chhappar has not been confirmed during investigation and torches were also not shown to the I.O. But assuming that that could be a lapse on the part of the I.O., we do not propose to use it to discard the prosecution evidence. However, what clinches the issue for us is an important circumstance, which is, whether the first information report was lodged at the time alleged by the prosecution.

29. According to the prosecution, the FIR was lodged by PW-1 at 00.30 hours. According to PW-1, when the deceased was shot, the deceased was taken on a Dunlop Cart for medical attention but by the time they could cross the river, the deceased expired. Therefore, they took the body of the deceased on that cart to the police chowki Param. They reached the chowki by about 10.30 pm. At the chowki, PW-1 stayed for half an hour and thereafter, PW-1 went with Diwanji (a constable) posted there, on a bicycle, to the police station to lodge the FIR. They reached the police station at quarter to 12 (midnight). PW-1 found Daroga (I.O.) there. At that time, the entire bazaar had shut and when he disclosed the incident to the I.O., the I.O. told him to submit a written report. Near the police station, at the Tehsil, he found a man who typed the report, which was handed over by PW-1 to the police. The defence challenges this part of the evidence as completely unacceptable and, consequently, questioned PW-1 about the typist. PW-1 replied by stating that he does not know that man and earlier also he had never seen that man. He stated that he had informed the I.O. that he had got the report typed at the Tehsil but the I.O. had not written in the report that the first information report was got typed before being lodged. Notably, suggestion was given to PW-1 that he got the report typed in the morning and that the report was lodged in the morning. PW-1 denied the suggestion. The learned counsel for the appellants submitted that this a strange case where the I.O. insisted for a written report at midnight and did not bother to check as to from where the informant got it typed. Importantly, the name of the typist is also not disclosed to enable the defence to verify as to who typed it at midnight. It is argued that the inquest was conducted at 10.30 hrs, late in the morning, even though the body was at the Chowki where artificial light is expected. Thus, it is a clear cut case where the FIR was lodged in the morning and was ante-timed.

30. In our view, the circumstances noticed above do raise a strong suspicion with regard to the FIR being ante-timed. This suspicion could have been dispelled had the prosecution examined the constable who made GD Entry of the receipt of the written report and had prepared the Chik report. It could also have been dispelled if the name of that typist had been disclosed either in the typed report or in the testimony. Notably, from the testimony of PW-4, it appears, the GD Entry /Chik maker was alive but he was not produced under the excuse that he was attending to VIP duty. Further, the Diwan who, allegedly, accompanied the informant to the police station to lodge the FIR has not been examined. In that backdrop, the defence put several questions to the I.O. (PW-4) to demonstrate that the FIR was not lodged at the time when it is purported to have been lodged. In fact, during cross-examination, PW-4 (I.O.), in an answer to one such question, stated that he is not aware whether the report was got typed and delivered at the police station in the morning, which is in stark contrast to what he had stated earlier that the report was registered in his presence. In fact, PW-4, at one stage of his cross-examination (i.e.

dated 20.03.2007), stated that when PW-1 had come to lodge the report, at that time, he had a written report with him. If that was so, what was the occasion for PW-4 to be evasive to the specific suggestion that the FIR was got typed and submitted in the morning. Importantly, PW-1 stated that it was the I.O. who requested him to bring a written report. From the above discussion it appears that the prosecution was searching for answers to disclose the reason for there being a typed report at that odd hour of the night. In ordinary circumstances, this issue would not have been material but it assumes importance in this case because the FIR is being lodged at 00.30 hrs in a typed format by claiming that it was got typed by about mid night. In this kind of a situation, submitting a typed report at 00.30 hrs is an unusual circumstance which needed explanation, particularly, when the admitted case is that the entire Bazaar had closed down by that time. This circumstance is also unusual for the reason that there is no prohibition in law in accepting an oral information to lodge a first information report. In that background, the explanation offered by PW-1 as to why he got the FIR typed appears to have no basis. This explanation is there, only to explain a strange circumstance of getting the report typed around mid-night when otherwise there was no need to submit a typed report or even a written report. When we notice this strange circumstance in conjunction with another circumstance, which is, that the inquest was conducted after day break at 10.30 hrs. even though the body was at the chowki, we get a strong feeling that the FIR had not come into existence in the night. Rather, it was got typed and lodged in the morning after day break, as is the defence suggestion, and, only thereafter, the inquest was conducted. Ordinarily, in night occurrences, an inquest might be deferred to morning hours, particularly, where the source of light is not available or the place where the inquest is to be conducted is far off from police establishment. But, here, the body was at the Chowki where light sources, in ordinary course, are expected. Moreover, it is not the specific case of the prosecution that there was no source of light at the police chowki. Further, no police witness from that police chowki has been examined to clear our doubts as to why the inquest could not be conducted in the night hours or in the early hours of the morning, earlier than 10.30 hrs. In this background, lodging of a typed report at 00.30 hours creates a strong suspicion with regard to the FIR being ante-timed. This coupled with the delay in conducting the inquest lends credence to the defence suggestion that the FIR was lodged in the morning after getting it typed. Once this is the position, the prosecution case gets shrouded in suspicion throwing multiple possibilities including a strong probability of the incident being a hit and run kind of an incident, witnessed by none, and the prosecution story developing on guess-work based on strong suspicion with implication of those with whom the deceased had enmity. Probability of such guess-work becomes stronger also from the circumstance that as against a solitary gunshot injury three persons have been roped in, out of which, two have not been assigned any major role except that they came with weapons and escaped with the assailant.

31. The upshot of the discussion above is that there is a cloak of doubt shrouding the prosecution case and, therefore, the prosecution has failed to prove its case against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt. Consequently, the appellants are entitled to the benefit of doubt. As a result, the appeal is allowed. The judgment and order of the trial court is set aside. The appellants are acquitted of the charges for which they have been tried. The appellant no.1 (Birnami) is on bail, he need not surrender subject to compliance of section 437-A Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the court below. The appellant no.2 (Tej Pal) is reportedly in jail. He shall be set at liberty forthwith subject to compliance of the provisions of section 437-A Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the court below.

32. Let the certified copy of the judgment and the record of the court below be sent to the trial court for information and compliance.

1. दाण्डिक अपील संख्या 6711/2011 दोषसिद्ध अभियुक्त यशपाल यादव व दाण्डिक अपील संख्या 6975/2011 दोषसिद्ध अभियुक्त संजय कुमार विश्वकर्मा द्वारा भारतीय दण्ड संहिता की धारा 374 (दोष सिद्धि से अपील) की उपधारा (2) के अंतर्गत दाखिल की गई है, जिसके द्वारा अपर जिला व सत्र न्यायाधीश कक्ष संख्या-20, कानपुर नगर, द्वारा सत्र परीक्षण संख्या 432/09, में पारित निर्णय व आदेश दिनांक 19.10.2011 व 21.10.2011 को आक्षेपित किया गया है, जिसके द्वारा दोनों अपीलार्थीयों को आरोपित अपराध अन्तर्गत धारा 20 (ख) (ii) (ई), स्वापक ओषधि और मनः प्रभावी पदार्थ अधिनियम, 1985, (संक्षेप में "अधिनियम 1985') में दोष सिद्ध किया गया व अपीलार्थी यशपाल सिंह यादव को 15 वर्ष का सश्रम कारावास व 3 लाख रुपये के अर्थ दण्ड से दण्डित किया गया व अर्थदण्ड की अदायगी न किये जाने की दशा में 2 वर्ष का अतिरिक्त कारावास भुगतने का आदेश भी दिया गया व अपीलार्थी संजय कुमार विश्वकर्मा को 18 वर्ष का सश्रम कारावास व 4 लाख रुपये के अर्थदण्ड से दण्डित किया गया व अर्थदण्ड की अदायगी न करने की दशा में 3 वर्ष का अतिरिक्त कारावास भुगतने का आदेश भी दिया गया।

अपीलार्थी का पक्ष

2. अपीलार्थी यशपाल सिंह यादव की ओर से विद्वान अधिवक्ता श्री उत्कर्ष सिंह (अपीलार्थी के अधिवक्ता श्री राजेश कुमार सिंह द्वारा निर्देशित) ने प्रारम्भ में ही कथन किया कि अपीलार्थी दोषसिद्धि के आदेश को चुनौती नहीं देना चाहता है तथा वो मात्र दण्डादेश के कारावास की अवधि व अर्थदण्ड की मात्रा को ही चुनौती देना चाहता है।

3. विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने जेल अधीक्षक, कानपुर नगर द्वारा, अपीलार्थी के कारावास की अवधि संबधी प्रमाणपत्र, जो पूरक शपथपत्र के द्वारा इस अपील की पत्रावली पर प्रस्तुत किया गया है पर इस न्यायालय का ध्यान आकर्षित करवाया कि प्रमाणपत्र की तिथि (21.01.2022) तक अपीलार्थी द्वारा 15 वर्ष के कारावास दण्ड में से 12 वर्ष 11 माह व 29 दिवस व्यतीत कर चुका है। अर्थात करीब-करीब 13 वर्ष कारावास में व्यतीत कर चुका है अतः दण्ड के प्रतिस्थापित सिद्धान्तों के तहत 15 वर्ष के कारावास के दण्ड को अब तक कारावास में व्यतीत 13 वर्ष के दण्ड में परिवर्तित कर दिया जाये व अर्थदण्ड की मात्रा जो रु0 3 लाख निर्धारित की है उसको कम करके न्यूनतम कर दिया जाये, तो न्याय के उद्देश्यों की प्राप्ति के लिए उचित रहेगा।

4. विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने दण्ड के सिद्धान्त के सम्बन्ध में उच्चतम न्यायालय द्वारा रफीक कुरैशी प्रति नारकोटिक्स कंट्रोल ब्यूरो ईस्टर्न जोनल यूनिट : (2019) 6 एस सी सी 492, मध्य प्रदेश राज्य प्रति उधम व अन्य : (2019) 10 एस सी सी 300, अभियुक्त 'X' प्रति महाराष्ट्र राज्य (2019) 7 एस सी सी 1, गुरुदेव सिंह प्रति पंजाब राज्य: (2021) 6 एस सी सी 386 के मामलों में पारित निर्णयों व इस न्यायालय द्वारा कल्लू व अन्य प्रति उत्तर प्रदेश राज्य (क्रिमिनल अपील संख्या 741/1983, निर्णय दिनांक 10.07.2020) के मामले में पारित निर्णय को प्रस्तुत किया।

5. विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने उपरोक्त निर्णयों का हवाला देते हुए कथन किया कि किसी अपराधी को दण्ड देते समय तीन कारकों का परीक्षण करना होता है वो हैं- अपराध परीक्षण, आपराधिक परीक्षण व तुलनात्मक आनुपातिकता परीक्षण, जिसका वर्तमान प्रकरण में सत्र न्यायालय द्वारा विचार नहीं किया गया। इसके अतिरिक्त अधिनियम 1985 की धारा 32 ख (न्यूनतम दंड से उच्चतर दंड अधिरोपित करने के लिए विचार में लिए जाने वाली बातें) के अंतर्गत उच्चतर दंड अधिरोपित करने के कारकों का वर्णन करते हुए विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने कथन किया कि वर्तमान प्रकरण में 3 अभियुक्त (अपीलार्थी को मिलाकर) को एक महिन्द्रा पिकअप वैन के साथ अवरोधित किया गया था व जांच के दौरान पिकअप वैन की फर्श में बनाये गये गुप्त स्थान जो गाड़ी के फर्श के नीचे था, वहाँ से चरस के एक-एक किलोग्राम के 100 बण्डल बरामद हुए थे, जिसकी मात्रा वाणिज्यिक मात्रा से 99 गुना अधिक थी। परन्तु धारा 32 ख में उल्लेखित कारक (क) लगायत (च) में से कोई भी कारक उपस्थित नहीं था, अतः सत्र न्यायालय के पास न्यूनतम दंड से उच्चतर दंड अधिरोपित करने का कोई न्यायसंगत कारण नहीं था तथा सत्र न्यायालय द्वारा दिया गया कारण कि पिकअप वैन से एक गुप्त स्थान से भारी मात्रा में चरस का मिलना व अभियुक्तगण की अपराध में संलिप्त होना, अपराध को और भी गंभीर बनाता है, अपीलार्थी को दिया गया दंडादेश को न्यायसंगत नहीं बनाता है। अपीलार्थी को 15 वर्ष का दण्ड, प्रकरण के तथ्य व परिस्थितियों में अधिक उच्चतर है तथा अपीलार्थी जिसने अबतक13 वर्ष का कारावास व्यतीत कर लिया है प्रकरण की परिस्थितियों में उक्त अपराध का उचित दण्ड माना जा सकता है। विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने यह भी कथन किया कि अपीलार्थी वर्तमान में 37 वर्ष का है अर्थात् अपराध कारित करते समय उसकी उम्र मात्र 24 वर्ष थी तथा दण्ड के सुधारवादी सिद्धान्तों को भी ध्यान में रखते हुए, अपीलार्थी के दण्ड को अबतक कारावास में व्यतीत अवधि में परिवर्तित करा जा सकता है तथा अर्थ दण्ड की मात्रा को भी यथोचित कम किया जा सकता है।

6. अपीलार्थी संजय कुमार विश्वकर्मा का पक्ष रखते हुए उसके विद्वान अधिवक्ता श्री राजनरायण ने यह कथन किया कि वो भी मात्र दंडादेश पर बहस करना चाहते है। उन्होने निवेदन किया कि अपीलार्थी संजय कुमार विश्वकर्मा को 18 वर्ष के कारावास व 4 लाख रुपये के अर्थदण्ड को आदेश देने का एक मात्र कारण है कि वो अपराध में उपयोग की गई पिकअप वैन का मालिक था। अतः उसका अपराध और भी गम्भीर प्रकृति का हो जाता है। यह कारण धारा 32 ख में उल्लेखित कारक व अन्य कोई न्याय संगत कारक पर आधारित नहीं है तथा कारावास की अवधि व अर्थदण्ड की मात्रा तय करने में सत्र न्यायालय ने मनमाना रवैया अपनाया है। विद्वान अधिवक्ता के अनुसार इस अपीलार्थी ने भी अपीलार्थी यशपाल सिंह यादव के समान ही 13 वर्ष का कारावास व्यतीत कर लिया है अतः उसको भी उक्त कारावास में व्यतीत अवधि व अर्थदण्ड की मात्रा को कम से कम कर, न्यायहित में आदेश पारित करने का निवेदन किया।

राज्य का पक्ष

7. राज्य की ओर से श्री मुन्ना लाल, अतिरिक्त शासकिय अधिवक्ता ने पक्ष रखा। उन्होने कथन किया कि, वर्तमान प्रकरण में 100 किलोग्राम चरस एक पिकअप वैन में बनाये गये एक गुप्त स्थान से प्राप्त किया गया था। चरस की वाणिज्यिक मात्रा 1 किलोग्राम है अतः बरामद हुई चरस की मात्रा उक्त वाणिज्यिक मात्रा से 99 गुनी है। दोनों अपीलार्थी को पिकअप वैन से गिरफ्तार किया गया। अतः उनको इस तथ्य की जानकारी थी कि पिकअप वैन में इतनी अधिक मात्रा में चरस छुपाई गई है। विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने रफीक कुरेशी (पूर्व में उल्लेखित) मामले में निर्णय का हवाला देते हुए कथन किया कि 'अधिनियम 1985' की धारा 32 ख में उल्लेखित कारक के अतिरिक्त जिन्हे न्यायालय ठीक समझें उन कारक को विचार में ले सकता है, अतः बरामद की गई चरस की अत्यधिक मात्रा (100 किलोग्राम) भी एक विचारणीय कारक हो सकता है। अतः सत्र न्यायालय ने बरामद की गई चरस की मात्रा को ध्यान में रखते हुए अपीलार्थी यशपाल सिंह यादव को 15 वर्ष का कारावास का दण्ड व तीन लाख रु0 का अर्थदण्ड का आदेश पारित करने में तथा अपीलार्थी संजय कुमार विश्वकर्मा को पिकअप वैन के मालिक होने के नाते उसके विरुद्ध अपराध की अधिक गंभीरता को ध्यान में रखते हुए 18 वर्ष का कारावास

व चार लाख रु0 का अर्थदण्ड का दंडादेश पारित करने में भी कोई विधिक त्रुटि नहीं करी है।

8. मैंने अपीलार्थियों व राज्य के विद्वान अधिवक्ताओं को ध्यानपूर्वक सुना व पत्रावली का सम्यक परिशीलन किया।

दण्ड के सिद्धान्त

9. भारतीय विधायी ने दंडादेश के सम्बंध में कोई नीति निर्धारित नहीं करी है, परंतु मालीमथ समिति (2003) व माधव मेनन समिति (2008) ने दंडादेश नीति निर्धारित करने की आवश्यकता पर जोर दिया व नीति बनाने के लिए सिफारिश भी की है।

10. दंडादेश के सिद्धांत या दंडादेश की नीति क्या हो, उच्चतम न्यायालय इस विषय पर चिंतित रहा है और समय-समय पर अपने विभिन्न विधिक उद्धरण के द्वारा इस विषय पर स्पष्टता लाने का प्रयास भी करता रहा है तथा जिला न्यायालय व उच्च न्यायालय द्वारा दंडादेश पारित करते समय लापरवाही होने से रोकने के लिये सचेत भी करता रहा है।

11. उच्चतम न्यायालय की तीन सदस्यीय पीठ द्वारा पारित निर्णय मध्यप्रदेश शासन बनाम ऊधम और अन्य : (2019) 10 एस सी सी 300 के माध्यम से पुनः दंडादेश के सिद्धांत पर प्रकाश डाला गया है और अभिनिर्धारित किया गया :-

"8. आरंभ में, यह ध्यान रखना उचित है कि वर्तमान प्रत्यार्थीगण-अभियुक्तगणों की अपीलों को आंशिक रूप से स्वीकृत करने और आक्षेपित आदेश को पारित के लिए उच्च न्यायालय का तर्क सम्मत विचार केवल दंडादेश तक ही सीमित है। उच्च न्यायालय अपने आदेश में कहता है कि अपराध की प्रकृति, यह तथ्य कि प्रत्यार्थीगण का प्रथम अपराध है और उसके द्वारा पहले से व्यतीत सजा की अवधि को देखते हुए आक्षेपित आदेश पारित किया गया।

9. इस स्तर पर, इस न्यायालय के अभियुक्त ('X') बनाम महाराष्ट्र राज्य (2009) 7 एस. सी. सी. 1, जिसमें हम में से दो सदस्य पीठ के भाग थे, की टिप्पणी भारत में सजा के संबंध में प्रांसंगिक है-

"49. आपराधिक प्रतिबंधो का उचित आबंटन, जो कि ज्यादातर न्यायिक शाखा द्वारा दिया जाता है। {निकोला पैडफील्ड, रॉड मॉर्गन और माइक मैगुइयर "न्यायालय से बाहर, दृष्टि से बाहर" आपराधिक प्रतिबंधों और कोई न्यायिक निर्णय नही", ओक्सफोर्ड, अपराध शास्त्र की पुस्तिका (5 वां, संस्करण)}। विचारण के अंत में होने वाली यह प्रक्रिया अभी भी आपराधिक न्याय प्रणाली की प्रभावकारिता पर बड़ा प्रभाव डालती है। यह स्थापित है कि सजा एक सामाजिक-विधिक प्रक्रिया है जिसमें एक न्यायाधीश तथ्यात्मक, परिस्थितयों और ओचित्य पर विचार करते हुए अभियुक्त के लिए उचित दण्ड तलाशता है। इस तथ्य के प्रकाश में यह आवश्यक हो जाता है कि विधायिका ने न्यायाधीशों को सजा देने के लिए जो विवेकाधिकार प्रदान किया, उसका उपयोग एक सैद्धांतिक रुप से किया जाये। हमें यह मूल्यांकन करने की जरूरत है कि सजा देने में एक सख्त निर्धारित दण्ड की सोच मान्य नही हो सकती है, कि न्यायाधीश को पर्याप्त स्वविवेक की भी आवश्यकता होती है।

50. इस प्रकरण का परीक्षण करने से पूर्व, हमें सजा देने की प्रक्रिया में तार्किकता के प्रभाव के प्रश्न को संबोधित करने की आवश्यकता है। विचारण न्यायालय की तार्किकता, कारित किये गये अपराध की सजा के लिए सामान्य स्तर और तथ्यों व परिस्थितियों के बीच की कड़ी के जैसे कार्य करती है। विचारण न्यायालय सजा देने के लिए तर्कों को देने के लिए बाध्य है,क्योंकि प्रथमतः नैसर्गिक न्याय का मूलभूत सिद्धांत है कि न्यायकर्ता को निर्णय तक पहुंचने के कारण अवश्य प्रदान करने चाहिए, और द्वितीय कारण अधिक महत्वपूर्ण हो जाता है, क्योंकि अभियुक्त की स्वतंत्रता उपरोक्त वर्णित तर्क के अधीन होती है। इसके आगे, अपीलीय न्यायालय के समक्ष, सजा की मात्रा को चुनौती देने पर आदेश की यथार्थता का आकलन करने के लिए बेहतर रुप से सक्षम हो जायेगा, यदि विचारण न्यायालय ने उसे कारणों सहित न्यायोचित ठहराया है ....." (जोर दिया गया)

10. X X X

11. हमारी यह राय है कि अवर न्यायालय द्वारा अपर्याप्त या गलत सजा दिये जाने के कारण इस न्यायालय के समक्ष बड़ी संख्या में प्रकरण दायर किये जा रहे हैं। कतिपय प्रकरणों में दंडादेश देने में लापरवाही बरतने के विरुद्ध हमने बार बार चेतावनी दी है। इसमें कोई दो राय नही है कि सजा देने के पहलुओं को हल्के में नही लेना चाहिए, क्योंकि आपराधिक न्याय व्यवस्था का यह भाग समाज पर निर्णायक प्रभाव डालता है। इसके प्रकाश में हमारी राय है कि हमें इसको और स्पष्टता प्रदान करने की जरूरत है।

12. अपराधों के लिए सजा को तीन परीक्षण अर्थात अपराध परीक्षण, आपराधिक परीक्षण और तुलनात्मक अनुपातिकता परीक्षण के मापदण्ड पर परीक्षण किया जाना है। अपराध परीक्षण के कारकों में जैसे अपराध की योजना की सीमा, अपराध में इस्तेमाल हथियार का चुनाव, अपराध का तरीका, अपवहन का तरीका (यदि कोई हो), अभियुक्त की भूमिका, अपराधी की असामाजिकता या घिनौना चरित्र, पीडित की दशा सम्मलित रहते है। आपराधिक परीक्षण में कारकों का मूल्यांकन जैसे अपराधी की आयु, अपराधी का लिंग, अपराधी की आर्थिक स्थिति या सामाजिक पृष्ठभूमि, अपराध के लिए प्रेरणा, प्रतिरक्षा की उपलब्धता, मानसिक स्थिति, मृतक के समूह में से किसी के द्वारा उत्प्रेरण, विचारण में पर्याप्त रूप से प्रतिनिधित्व, न्यायाधीश द्वारा अपीलीय प्रक्रिया में असहमति, पछतावा, सुधार की संभावना, पूर्ववर्ती आपराधिक अभिलेख (लंबित प्रकरणों को न लेकर) तथा कोई अन्य सुसंगत कारण (यह एक विस्तृत सूची नहीं है) के आधार पर होना चाहिए।

13. इसके अतिरिक्त हमें यह ध्यान दे सकते है कि अपराध परीक्षण के अंतर्गत गंभीरता को सुनिश्चित किये जाने की आवश्यकता है। अपराध की गंभीरता को (i) पीड़ित की शारीरिक सम्पूर्णता; (ii) भौतिक समर्थन या सुख-सुविधा की हानि; (iii) मानभंग की सीमा; और (iv) निजता के उल्लघंन के द्वारा निर्धारित की जा सकती है।

"(उपरोक्त https://main.sci.gov.in/ Supremecourt vernacular/ 2013/ 10532_2013_3_1501_ 17728 Judgement_22_Oct_ 2019_ HIN. pdf से अधोभारण (download) किया गया है, जिसमें यह 'खंडन' लिखा गया है किः- "क्षेत्रीय भाषा में अनुवादित निर्णय से आशय केवल पक्षकारों को उनकी अपनी भाषा में समझने के लिये है एवं इसका प्रयोग किसी अन्य उद्देश्य के लिये नहीं किया जा सकेगा। सभी व्यवहारिक एवं कार्यालयीन उद्देश्य के लिये निर्णय का अंग्रेजी संस्करण ही प्रमाणित होगा और निष्पादन तथा क्रियान्वयन के उद्देश्य के लिये प्रभावी माना जायेगा।" अधोभरण के उपरान्त इस न्यायालय ने स्वयं के स्तर से अनुवाद में कुछ संशोधन भी किये हैं)

12. उच्चतम न्यायालय के एक और निर्णय जो मध्य प्रदेश शासन प्रति सुरेश : (2019) 14 एस सी सी 151 के मामले में पारित किया है का उल्लेख करना समीचीन होगा। इस निर्णय में उच्चतम न्यायालय के ही पूर्व में दिये गये आलिस्टर ऑन्थानी परेरा प्रति महाराष्ट्र शासन (2012) 2 एस सी सी 648, मध्य प्रदेश शासन प्रति घनश्याम सिंह (2013) 8 एस सी सी 13 और रवजी प्रति राजस्थान शासन (1996) 2 एस सी सी 175 के मामलों में पारित निर्णयों का उल्लेख करते हुए यह प्रतिपादित किया दोष सिद्ध अपराध में दोषी को उचित व पर्याप्त दंड देना न्यायालय के कर्तव्य का भाग रहा है। किसी मामले में पारित दंडादेश अपराध की गंभीरता के साथ साथ प्रासंगिक तथ्य व परिस्थितियों के अनुरुप भी होना चाहिए। निस्सन्देह गंभीरता बढ़ाने व घटाने वाले कारको के मध्य नाजुक संतुलन भी बनाये रखना होगा। इसी के साथ किसी मामले में दंडादेश के प्रश्न पर ध्यान करते समय विधि के समाज की सुरक्षा के प्रति स्वीकृत उद्देश्य और न्याय के लिए समाज की आवाज के प्रति भी उत्तरदायी होना होगा। अन्तिम विश्लेषण में अपराध एवं दंड का अनुपात बनाये रखना होगा और इसी क्रम में आगे अपराधी, पीड़ित व व्यापक समाज के अधिकारों का संतुलन भी बनाये रखना होगा।

जैसे अपराध की प्रकृति व उसका समाज पर होने वाला असर को अनदेखा नहीं किया जा सकता है।

14. 'अधिनियम 1985' की धारा 20 (कैनेबिस के पौधे और कैनेबिस के संबंध में उल्लंघन के लिए दंड) की उपधारा ख (ii) (ई) के अनुसार जहाँ उल्लंघन, वाणिज्यिक मात्रा से संबंधित हो वहाँ कठोर कारावास, जिसकी अवधि दस वर्ष से कम नहीं होगी, किन्तु बीस वर्ष तक की हो सकती है और जुर्माने से भी, जो एक लाख रुपये से कम नहीं होगा, किन्तु जो दो लाख रुपये तक का हो सकेगा और लेखबद्ध कारणों के साथ दो लाख रुपये से अधिक का जुर्माना अधिरोपित भी किया जा सकता है। संदर्भ के लिए धारा 20 निम्न उल्लेखित की जा रही है।

"20. कैनेबिस के पौधे और कैनेबिस के संबंध में उल्लंघन के लिए दंड-जो कोई, इस अधिनियम के किसी उपबंध या इसके अधीन बनाए गए किसी नियम या निकाले गए किसी आदेश या दी गई अनुज्ञप्ति की शर्त के उल्लंघन में, -

(क) किसी कैनेबिस के पौधे की खेती करेगा; या

(ख) कैनेबिस का उत्पादन, विनिर्माण, कब्जा, विक्रय, क्रय, परिवहन अन्तरराज्यिक आयात, अन्तरराज्यिक निर्यात या उपयोग करेगा;

(i) जहां उल्लंघन खंड (क) के संबंध में है वहां, कठोर कारावास से, जिसकी अवधि दस वर्ष तक की हो सकेगी और जुर्माने से भी, जो एक लाख रुपए तक का हो सकेगा, दंडनीय होगा; और

(ii) जहां उल्लंघन खंड (ख) के संबंध में है, -

(अ) और अल्पमात्रा से संबंधित है, वहां कठोर कारावास से, जिसकी अवधि (एक वर्ष) तक की हो सकेगी, या जुर्माने से, जो दस हजार रुपए तक का हो सकेगा, अथवा दोनों से,

(आ) और जहां वाणिज्यिक मात्रा से कम किंतु अल्प मात्रा से अधिक मात्रा से संबंधित है, वहां कठोर कारावास से, जिसकी अवधि दस वर्ष तक की हो सकेगी, और जुर्माने से, जो एक लाख रुपए तक का हो सकेगा,

(इ) और जहां वाणिज्यिक मात्रा से संबंधित है, वहां, कठोर कारावास से, जिसकी अवधि दस वर्ष से कम की नहीं होगी किंतु बीस वर्ष तक की हो सकेगी, और जुर्माने से भी, जो एक लाख रुपए से कम का नहीं होगा किंतु जो दो लाख रुपए तक का हो सकेगा,

परंतु न्यायालय, ऐसे कारणों से, जो निर्णय में लेखबद्ध किए जाएंगे, दो लाख रुपए से अधिक का जुर्माना अधिरोपित कर सकेगा।"

15. उपरोक्त से यह विदित है कि वर्तमान प्रकरण में जहाँ वाणिज्यिक मात्रा से 99 गुनी चरस बरामद हुई है, वहाँ दंडादेश कठोर कारावास जिसकी अवधि दस वर्ष से कम नहीं हो सकती परन्तु बीस वर्ष तक हो सकती है तथा लेखबद्ध कारण से अर्थदण्ड दो लाख रुपये से अधिक भी हो सकता है। परन्तु एक लाख रुपये से कम किसी भी दशा में नहीं हो सकता है।

16. 'अधिनियम 1985' की धारा 32 ख (क लगायत च) के अनुसार न्यूनतम दंड से उच्चतर दंड आरोपित करने के लिए विचार करने के कुछ कारक वर्णित किये गये है परन्तु उन कारकों के अतिरिक्त न्यायालय अन्य उचित कारकों पर भी विचार कर सकता है। जैसा कि उच्चतम न्यायालय के रफीक कुरैशी (पूर्व में उल्लेखित) के मामले में निर्णय में निर्धारित किया गया है। संदर्भ के लिये धारा 32 ख निम्न उल्लेखित की जा रही है।

"32ख. न्यूनतम दंड से उच्चतर दंड अधिरोपित करने के लिए विचार में लिए जाने वाली बातें-जहां इस अधिनियम के अधीन किए गए किसी अपराध के लिए कारावास की कोई न्यूनतम अवधि या जुर्माने की रकम विहित है, वहां न्यायालय, कारावास की न्यूनतम अवधि या जुर्माने की रकम से उच्चतर कोई दंड अधिरोपित करने के लिए ऐसी बातों के अतिरिक्त जिन्हें वह ठीक समझे, निम्नलिखित बातों को विचार में ले सकेगा, अर्थात्: -

(क) अपराधी द्वारा हिंसा या आयुध का उपयोग या उसके उपयोग की धमकी;

(ख) यह तथ्य कि अपराधी लोक पद धारण करता है और उसने अपराध करने में उस पद का लाभ उठाया है;

(ग) यह तथ्य कि अपराध द्वारा अवयस्क प्रभावित होते हैं या उस अपराध के किए जाने के लिए अवयस्कों का उपयोग किया जाता है;

(घ) यह तथ्य कि अपराध किसी शिक्षा संस्था या सामाजिक सेवा संकाय में या ऐसी संस्था या संकाय के ठीक निकट या ऐसे अन्य स्थान में, जिसमें विद्यालय के बालक और छात्र शिक्षा, क्रीड़ा और सामाजिक क्रियाकलापों के लिए आते-जाते हैं, किया जाता है;

(ङ) यह तथ्य कि अपराधी संगठित अंतरराष्ट्रीय या किसी ऐसे अन्य अपराधी समूह का है जो अपराध करने में लगा हुआ है ; और

(च) यह तथ्य कि अपराधी अपराध करके सुकर बनाए गए अन्य अवैध क्रियाकलापों में लगा हुआ है।"

17. उपरोक्त उल्लेखित विधिक विश्लेषण की पृष्ठभूमि में यह निर्धारित करना है कि आक्षेपित दंडादेश में पारित कारावास की अवधि व अर्थदंड की मात्रा को वर्तमान प्रकरण के तथ्य जैसे घटना का 13 वर्ष पूर्व में कारित होना, दोनों अपीलार्थियों द्वारा 13 वर्ष का कारावास व्यतीत कर लेना, अपीलार्थी यशपाल की वर्तमान उम्र करीब 37 वर्ष व अपीलार्थी संजय की वर्तमान उम्र 52 वर्ष का होना तथा यह भी ध्यान में रखना होगा की वर्तमान प्रकरण में पिकअप वैन में एक गुप्त स्थान से 100 किलोग्राम चरस (वाणिज्यक मात्रा से 99 गुनी) बरामद की गई थी तथा यह अपराध एक समाजिक अपराध है तथा ऐसी स्वापक औषधियों और मनः प्रभावी पदार्थों के अवैध व्यापार का समपहरण करने के कड़े उपबन्ध करने के लिए ही 'अधिनियम 1985' अधिनियमित किया गया है। वर्तमान प्रकरण में दोनों अपीलार्थी ने समान अपराध कारित किया है अतः दोनों को समान दंडादेश से दण्डित करना चाहिये था। अपीलार्थी संजय को मात्र इस कारण से कि वो पिक अप वैन का मालिक है, अपीलार्थी यशपाल से अधिक कारावास की अवधि व अधिक अर्थदंड की मात्रा का आदेश पारित करने का कोई यथोचित कारण नहीं माना जा सकता।

18. वर्तमान प्रकरण में अपीलार्थियों को दोषसिद्धि के उपरान्त दस वर्ष से बीस वर्ष का कारावास व अर्थदंड एक लाख रुपये तक तथा विशेष कारण से 2 लाख रुप से अधिक भी हो सकता है परन्तु किसी भी दशा में एक लाख रुपये से कम नहीं हो सकता है। अपीलार्थियों को अर्थदण्ड रु0 तीन लाख व रु0 चार लाख निर्धारित करने का कोई विशेष आधार, आक्षेपित आदेश में नहीं दिया गया है।

19. दोनों अपीलार्थी अब तक 13 वर्ष का कारावास व्यतीत कर चुके हैं। जैसा पूर्व में उल्लेखित किया गया की दोनों अपीलार्थी समान दंडादेश के अधिकारी है। अतः दोनों अपीलार्थीयों द्वारा अबतक 13 वर्ष का कारावास पूर्ण किया जा चुका है तथा दोनों अपीलार्थियों की उम्र को भी ध्यान में रखते हुए एवं इस अपराध से पूर्व कोई और अपराध का इतिहास न होने व कारावास में रहते हुए कोई प्रतिकूल टिप्पणी का भी न होना, ऐसे उचित कारण है, जो दंड के सुधारवादी सिद्धान्त व पूर्ण में वर्णित दण्डादेश के सिद्धान्तो के अनुसार व न्यायहित के उद्देश्य की प्राप्ति के लिए दोनों अपील निम्न आदेश के साथ निस्तारित की जाती है।

20. अपीलार्थी यशपाल सिंह यादव व अपीलार्थी संजय कुमार विश्वकर्मा के विरुद्ध उपरोक्त वर्णित दोषसिद्धि के आदेशों को मान्य करते हुए उपरोक्त वर्णित संबंधित दंडादेश में पारित कारावास की अवधि, उनके द्वारा आज तक व्यतीत कारावास की अवधि में परिवर्तित किया जाता है तथा संबंधित अर्थ दंड की मात्रा को न्यूनतम करते हुए दोनों अपीलार्थी पर अलग अलग एक-एक लाख रुपये का अर्थदण्ड निर्धारित किया जाता है, जिसकी अदायगी न करने पर दोनों अपीलार्थी को अलग अलग एक-एक वर्ष का अतिरिक्त कारावास भुगतना पड़ेगा।

21. उपरोक्त वर्णित दोनों अपील उपरोक्त आदेशानुसार आंशिक रुप से स्वीकार की जाती है।

A. Constitution of India, 1950 - Article 21 - Under-trials cannot indefinitely be detained pending trial. (Para 24)

If the trial is being delayed unnecessarily and for such delay there is no fault on the part of the accused, rather, it is on the part of the prosecution and the period of incarceration of such accused is long, his/her bail application may be considered subject to his previous criminal records. Bail Application Allowed. (E-10)

List of Cases cited:-

1. U.O.I. Vs K.A. Najeeb AIR 2021 Supreme Court 712

2. Paras Ram Vishnoi Vs The Director, Central Bureau of Investigation Criminal Appeal No. 693 of 2021

3. Gokarakonda Naga Saibaba Vs St. of Mah. (2018) 12 SCC 505

4. Saudan Singh Vs The St. of U.P. Criminal Appeal No. 308 of 2022 (@ SLP (Crl.) No. 4633 of 2021)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ramakar Shukla, learned counsel for the applicant, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and Ms. Shobha Rajpoot, Advocate holding brief of Sri Shiv Shankar Singh, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 i.e. the complainant/informant.

2. Learned Additional Government Advocate has filed counter affidavit, today in the Court, the same is taken on record.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant has filed supplementary affidavit, today in the Court, the same is taken on record. Sri Shukla has also filed certified copy of the F.I.R. and the order-sheet of learned trial court showing the status of trial on various dates, the same are also taken on record.

4. This is the third bail application. The first bail application has been rejected on 26.02.2015 by Hon'ble Surendra Vikram Singh Rathore, J. (since retired). The second bail application has been rejected on 20.09.2017 by Hon'ble Ravindra Nath Mishra-II, J. (since retired).

5. The first bail application of the present applicant was rejected on merits and the second bail application of the applicant was rejected on the ground that no knew facts have been pointed out to consider the second bail application, therefore, such bail application has been rejected.

6. Sri Ramakar Shukla, learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that he is cautious about the fact that while arguing third bail application, he may not raise any ground which could have been taken at the time of arguing the first bail application or the second bail application. Therefore, he is not arguing on merits of the present case. He has submitted that he shall argue the present bail application on the ground that about seven years and eight months period have passed, to be more precise with effect from 17.08.2014 the present applicant is in jail, and there is no possibility to conclude the trial in near future so considering the dictum of Apex Court in catena of cases his period of incarceration may be considered to release him on bail. Further, since the complainant and the prosecutrix have already been examined, therefore, if the present applicant is released on bail there would be no apprehension on his part to influence the star witnesses i.e. the complainant/ informant and the prosecutrix.

7. Only for the purpose to apprise the fact in brief Sri Shukla has submitted that the present applicant is languishing in jail since 17.08.2014 in Case Crime No.417 of 2014, under Section 376 & 323 I.P.C. r/w Section 3/4 of Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act (in short POCSO), Police Station-Chanda, District-Sultanpur. He has further submitted that as per the prosecution story so narrated in the First Information Report (in short F.I.R.), the prosecutrix was said to be a minor girl, aged about 12 years at the time of incident in question, and her radiological age was 16 years. She had levelled allegations against the present applicant in the statements recorded under Sections 161 Cr.P.C. and 164 Cr.P.C. As per medical examination report, no injury was found on her body and due to some quarrel took place in the year 2012, in the month of August, 2014 when the cattle of the applicant entered into the field of the complainant, the false F.I.R. has been lodged and he has been falsely implicated.

8. Sri Shukla has drawn attention of this Court towards Section 309 Cr.P.C. with its 1st proviso, which reads as under:-

"309. Power to postpone or adjourn proceedings. [(1) In every inquiry or trial the proceedings shall be continued from day-to-day until all the witnesses in attendance have been examined, unless the court finds the adjournment of the same beyond the following day to be necessary for reasons to be recorded.

Provided that when the inquiry or trial relates to an offence under Section 376, [Section 376-A, Section 376-AB, Section 376-B, Section 376-C, Section 376-D, Section 376-DA or Section 376-DB of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), the inquiry or trial shall] be completed within a period of two months from the date of filing of the charge-sheet.]"

9. Sri Shukla has submitted that in the present case, the trial relates to Section 376 I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act, therefore, the trial must be completed within a period of two months from the date of filing the charge-sheet. However, the charge-sheet has been filed on 06.10.2014 and the learned court has taken cognizance on 20.10.2014, as shown in the charge-sheet filed along with the counter affidavit as Annexure No.CA-5 but there is no good progress in the process of trial. Therefore, the same aspect may be considered as disobedience of mandatory and statutory provisions enshrined under the proviso of Section 309 Cr.P.C.

10. Sri Shukla has drawn attention of the certified copy of the F.I.R. and the order-sheet of the trial court from 21.09.2019 till 16.03.2022 and perusal thereof reveals that the prosecution witnesses are not co-operating with the trial proceedings. As a matter of fact, with effect from 21.09.2019, more than two dozen dates have been fixed for examination of the prosecution witnesses but those witnesses have not appeared. The court has taken coercive steps issuing warrant but to no avail. Orders dated 21.01.2021, 17.02.2021 and 01.04.2021 reveals that the Doctor and the Investigating Officer were summoned and the warrants were issued against them but no one has appeared. Further, vide orders dated 04.09.2021, 28.09.2021 again the Doctor and the Investigating Officer, PW-3 and PW-6 were summoned but to no avail. The last date of the aforesaid order-sheet reveals that on 16.03.2022 the case was fixed for 30.03.2022 for examination of the aforesaid prosecution witnesses.

11. Sri Shukla has further drawn attention of this Court towards Annexure No.SA-1 of the supplementary affidavit dated 13.04.2022 to show that PW-1, (complainant/ informant), was examined on 19.02.2016 and he was cross-examined on 23.06.2016. PW-2 (prosecutrix), was examined on 20.10.2016 and her cross-examination was done on 30.05.2017 and finally concluded on 24.07.2017.

12. In view of the above, Sri Shukla has submitted that PW-1 (complainant/ informant), and PW-2 (prosecutrix) were finally examined by 24.07.2017. Thereafter, couple of dates have been fixed till 16.03.2022 but no other prosecution witnesses have been examined despite the learned trial court issued warrants.

13. As per Sri Shukla, for all practical purposes the prosecution witnesses are not co-operating with the trial proceedings and the trial proceedings are unnecessarily held up for no fault on the part of the present applicant.

14. Sri Shukla has also drawn attention of this Court towards order dated 30.03.2022 passed by this Court in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No.6869 of 2019 (Anokhi Lal (Second Bail) vs. State of U.P.) whereby this Court considered the dictum of Apex Court in re: Union of India vs. K.A. Najeeb AIR 2021 Supreme Court 712 and Paras Ram Vishnoi vs. The Director, Central Bureau of Investigation passed in Criminal Appeal No.693 of 2021 (Arising out of SLP (Crl.) 3610 of 2020 granted bail to such accused Anokhi Lal while allowing his second bail application on the ground that there was no good progress in the trial and there was a long incarceration of that accused, therefore, he was entitled for bail. Para-16 of the case K.A.Najeeb (supra) is being reproduced here-in-below:-

"This Court has clarified in numerous judgments that the liberty guaranteed by Part III of the Constitution would cover within its protective ambit not only due procedure and fairness but also access to justice and a speedy trial. In Supreme Court Legal Aid Committee Representing Undertrial Prisoners v. Union of India, it was held that undertrials cannot indefinitely be detained pending trial. Ideally, no person ought to suffer adverse consequences of his acts unless the same is established before a neutral arbiter. However, owing to the practicalities of real life where to secure an effective trial and to ameliorate the risk to society in case a potential criminal is left at large pending trial, Courts are tasked with deciding whether an individual ought to be released pending trial or not. Once it is obvious that a timely trial would not be possible and the accused has suffered incarceration for a significant period of time, Courts would ordinarily be obligated to enlarge them on bail."

15. The Apex Court in the case of Paras Ram Vishnoi (supra) has observed as under:-

"On consideration of the matter, we are of the view that pending the trial we cannot keep a person in custody for an indefinite period of time and taking into consideration the period of custody and that the other accused are yet to lead defence evidence while the appellant has already stated he does not propose to lead any evidence, we are inclined to grant bail to the appellant on terms and conditions to the satisfaction of the trial court."

16. Sri Shukla has further drawn attention of this Court towards the dictum of Apex Court rendered in re: Gokarakonda Naga Saibaba vs. State of Maharashtra reported in (2018) 12 SCC 505 wherein the Apex Court has observed that if the material and fact witnesses have been examined, the bail of the accused persons may be considered.

17. Sri Shukla has placed reliance upon the recent judgment of Apex Court dated 25.02.2022 in re: Saudan Singh vs. The State of Uttar Pradesh passed in Criminal Appeal No.308 of 2022 (@ SLP (Crl.) No.4633 of 2021), wherein the Apex Court has held that period of long detention of the accused may be considered even if the issue is pending consideration before the Appellate Court.

18. Therefore, to sum up his arguments Sri Shukla has vehemently submitted that about seven years and eight months period have passed since the present applicant is in jail, the informant/ complainant (PW-1) and the prosecutrix (PW-2) have already been examined in the year 2017 and since then the prosecution witnesses are not co-operating with the trial proceedings, therefore, the trial could not be concluded. On the side of the present applicant, the proper co-operation is being given to the trial court as no unnecessary adjournment has been sought from his side but it is on account of unwarranted attitude and approach of the prosecution not to co-operate in the trial properly the trial is still pending. The present applicant has got no previous criminal history, therefore, he may be enlarged on bail. If the present applicant is enlarged on bail, it has been submitted by Sri Shukla that he shall co-operate with the trial proceedings and shall abide by all terms and conditions of bail order.

19. Learned counsel for the applicant has undertaken on behalf of the present applicant that the applicant shall not misuse the liberty of bail, if so granted by this Court and shall abide by all terms and conditions of the bail order and shall cooperate with the trial proceedings.

20. Learned Additional Government Advocate as well as learned counsel for the complainant/ informant have vehemently opposed the prayer for bail of the present applicant by submitting that since two bail applications of the present applicant have already been rejected, therefore, this bail application may not be entertained.

21. However, on being confronted on the point, on the basis of material available on record, that the prosecution witnesses are not co-operating with the trial proceedings, resultant thereof, the trial could not be concluded, both the learned counsel for the opposite parties have submitted that since this is matter of record, therefore, they have nothing to say.

22. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the material available on record.

23. At the very outset, there is displeasure in my mind towards approach of the trial court for the reason that the star witnesses i.e. PW-1 (informant/ complainant) and PW-2 (prosecutrix) have already been examined finally by 24.07.2017 but since then no positive efforts have been taken to conclude the trial despite the clear cut statutory and mandatory provisions enshrined under Section 309 Cr.P.C. which provides that the trial in the cases of 376 I.P.C. etc. shall be completed within a period of two months from the date of filing of the charge-sheet. In the present case, what is to say about the period of two months, more than four years and three months period have passed after examination of both the star witnesses and despite noticing the fact that other prosecution witnesses are not co-operating, no appropriate coercive steps have been taken by the learned trial court for which they are properly armed with. If the prosecution witnesses were not properly co-operating in the trial proceedings, the learned trial court must take coercive steps strictly in accordance with law so that the trial could be concluded at the earliest. In the present case, Covid-19 Pandemic may not be the reason of delay in proceeding the trial inasmuch as both the star witnesses have been examined finally on 24.07.2017 and Covid-19 sparked in the country in the month of March and April, 2020.

24. Since there is no report that there is any unnecessary delay on the part of the present applicant/ defence, rather, the order-sheet reveals that no adjournment has been sought from his side before the learned trial court and it is deliberate delay on the part of the prosecution, resultant thereof, the trial is unnecessary held up, therefore, the benefit thereof should be extended to the present applicant in terms of his right enshrined under Article 21 of the Constitution of India as the fundamental rights enshrined under Article 21 is available to the accused/ detenu also. It is also trite that under-trials cannot indefinitely be detained pending trial.

25. In view of the various dictum of Apex Court to the effect that if the trial is being delayed unnecessarily and for such delay there is no fault on the part of the accused, rather, it is on the part of the prosecution and the period of incarceration of such accused is long, his/ her bail application may be considered. The facts and circumstances of the present case qualifies such test. Besides, the fact that the present applicant is not having any previous criminal history, may also be considered to release him on bail.

26. Therefore, in view of the above and without entering into merits of the issue, I find it a fit case for grant of bail.

27. Let the applicant-Pankaj, be released on bail in the aforesaid case crime number on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned with the following conditions:-

(i) The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(ii) The applicant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, without sufficient cause, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iii) In case, the applicant misuses the liberty of bail during trial and in order to secure his presence proclamation under Section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the applicant fail to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iv) The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the applicant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

(v) The applicant shall not leave the country without prior permission of the Court.

28. Before parting with, it is expected that the trial shall be concluded with expedition in terms of Section 309 Cr.P.C. Further, the learned trial court may take all coercive measures as per law if either of the parties do not co-operate in the trial properly.

A. Bail - Second Bail - The grounds subsequent to the rejection of the first bail application has come up which was considered by the court as fresh ground for considering second bail application. (Para 25)

Bail Application Allowed. (E-10)

List of Cases cited:-

1. U.O.I. Vs. K.A. Najeeb AIR 2021 Supreme Court 712 (followed)

2. Paras Ram Vishnoi Vs. The Director, Central Bureau of Investigation Criminal Appeal No. 693 of 2021 (followed)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arun Sinha, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Balkeshwar Srivastava, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State.

2. This is the second bail application as the first bail application bearing Bail Case No.7160 of 2018 (Anokhi Lal vs. State of U.P.) has been rejected by Hon'ble Anant Kumar, J. (since retired) on 23.04.2019.

3. While rejecting the first bail application, the Hon'ble Court was pleased to observe as under:-

"However, at this stage, learned counsel for the applicant states that a direction may be given to the trial court for expeditious disposal of the trial. Accordingly, trial court is directed to expedite the trial and make an endeavour to conclude the trial, within a period of five months."

4. Sri Sinha has submitted that despite the specific direction of this Court vide order dated 23.04.2019 to conclude the trial within a period of five months, about three years period have passed but the examination of PW-2 has not been concluded inasmuch as such prosecution witness is a fact witness, who is not co-operating with the trial proceedings.

5. Sri Sinha has filed certified copy of orders of trial court for the last one year, the same are taken on record. Those certified copies shall be kept properly with this paper-book.

6. Sri Sinha has submitted that the present applicant is languishing in jail since 15.04.2018 in Case Crime No.36 of 2018, under Sections 498-A & 304-B I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station-Khargupur, District-Gonda. He has further submitted that in the impugned First Information Report (in short F.I.R.), the entire family of the in-laws of the victim has been implicated. The present applicant is not a direct family member of the in-laws of the victim as he is a cousin brother of husband of the victim and such fact has been shown in the pleadings as well as in the family register which has been annexed in the bail application.

7. Sri Sinha has further submitted that in the dying declaration, the allegation has been levelled against the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi) and the present applicant. However, as per statement of the family members of the victim the main allegation has been levelled against the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi).

8. As per the prosecution story, the victim had been brought to the hospital by her husband (Vinay Kumar Awasthi), and the victim died in the hospital. As per the family members of the victim, all the family members including the husband of the victim were involved.

9. Attention has been drawn by learned counsel for the applicant towards Annexure No.5 of the bail application, which is a bail order of mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi) dated 05.07.2019 passed by this Court in Bail Case No.2035 of 2019 (Smt. Munni Devi vs. State of U.P.) whereby this Court granted bail to the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi).

10. Further attention has been drawn by learned counsel for the applicant towards Annexure No.6 of the bail application, which is a bail order of the husband of the victim dated 20.02.2019 passed by this Court in Bail Case No.6236 of 2018 (Vinay Kumar Awasthi vs. State of U.P.).

11. Sri Sinha has submitted that if the allegations of the family members of the victim are considered on its face value, then all the family members were involved but the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi) and the husband (Vinay Kumar Awasthi) have been granted bail. Further, if dying declaration is considered on its face value, then despite having similar allegations the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi) has been granted bail. Besides in various statements of family members of the victim the main culprit was the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi).

12. Sri Sinha has submitted that however all the aforesaid arguments were available at the time of rejection of first bail application of the present applicant but since the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi) has been granted bail subsequent to the rejection of the bail application of the present applicant, therefore, this may be considered as fresh ground.

13. Sri Sinha has further drawn attention of this Court towards supplementary affidavit filed on 12.07.2021 showing Annexure No.SA-3, which is a statement of PW-2 dated 04.04.2019 to show that despite the specific direction being issued by this Court on 23.04.2019 to conclude the trial within a period of five months, there is no progress in the trial. On last date of hearing of the present bail application on 24.03.2022 Sri Sinha prayed sometime to show the current status of trial, therefore, he was granted time. Today, he has provided the certified copy of the orders of the trial court for the last one year to show the progress of trial.

14. As per the certified copies of orders of the trial court, PW-2 is absent since 03.04.2021 and on 03.04.2021 a bailable warrant of Rs.10,000/- has been issued against him for his appearance. The latest order dated 23.03.2022 provides that for evidence/ examination of PW-2 the next date has been fixed for 07.04.2022. The perusal thereof clearly reveals that the examination of PW-2 could not be completed since April, 2019.

15. Sri Sinha has shown the charge-sheet which indicates that there are 19 prosecution witnesses. Presently, the examination of PW-2 has not been completed.

16. Therefore, Sri Sinha, learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that despite the specific direction of this Court vide order dated 23.04.2019 to conclude the trial within a period of five months, there is no possibility to conclude the trial in near future inasmuch as out of 19 prosecution witnesses even examination of PW-2 has not been concluded. Therefore, this ground may be considered as a fresh ground to consider the second bail application. Besides, after rejection of first bail application of the present applicant on 23.04.2019 the main accused (Smt. Munni Devi) i.e. mother-in-law of the victim has been granted bail on 05.07.2019, therefore, this may also be considered as a fresh ground.

17. Sri Sinha has placed reliance upon the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court rendered in re: Union of India vs. K.A. Najeeb reported in AIR 2021 Supreme Court 712. Para 16 of the judgment is being reproduced herein below:-

"This Court has clarified in numerous judgments that the liberty guaranteed by Part III of the Constitution would cover within its protective ambit not only due procedure and fairness but also access to justice and a speedy trial. In Supreme Court Legal Aid Committee Representing Undertrial Prisoners v. Union of India, it was held that undertrials cannot indefinitely be detained pending trial. Ideally, no person ought to suffer adverse consequences of his acts unless the same is established before a neutral arbiter. However, owing to the practicalities of real life where to secure an effective trial and to ameliorate the risk to society in case a potential criminal is left at large pending trial, Courts are tasked with deciding whether an individual ought to be released pending trial or not. Once it is obvious that a timely trial would not be possible and the accused has suffered incarceration for a significant period of time, Courts would ordinarily be obligated to enlarge them on bail."

18. The Apex Court in the case of Paras Ram Vishnoi vs. The Director, Central Bureau of Investigation passed in Criminal Appeal No. 693 of 2021 (Arising out of SLP (Crl) 3610 of 2020) has observed as under :

"On consideration of the matter, we are of the view that pending the trial we cannot keep a person in custody for an indefinite period of time and taking into consideration the period of custody and that the other accused are yet to lead defence evidence while the appellant has already stated he does not propose to lead any evidence, we are inclined to grant bail to the appellant on terms and conditions to the satisfaction of the trial court."

19. In the aforesaid cases the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that if there is no possibility to conclude the trial in near future and the accused applicant is in jail for a substantial long period then a period of incarceration may be considered as a fresh ground.

20. Sri Sinha has submitted that since the charge-sheet has already been filed in this case and the present applicant is co-operating with the trial proceedings and if there is any lapse in not concluding the examination of PW-2 it is no fault on the part of the present applicant but on the part of the prosecution, therefore, he may be released on bail.

21. Learned counsel for the applicant has undertaken on behalf of the present applicant that the applicant shall not misuse the liberty of bail, if so granted by this Court and shall abide by all terms and conditions of the bail order and shall cooperate with the trial proceedings.

22. On the other hand, learned Additional Government Advocate has opposed the prayer for bail by submitting that since the specific allegations has been levelled against the present applicant by the victim herself, therefore, his bail application may be rejected.

23. However, on being confronted on the fact that on the basis of statement of family members of the victim as well as of the victim the allegations have been levelled against the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi) who has been granted bail and the family members of the victim have also levelled allegations against the husband, who has also been granted bail, the learned Additional Government Advocate has submitted that those orders being a matter of record, therefore, he has nothing to say.

24. Having considered the fact that despite the specific direction being issued by this Court vide order dated 23.04.2019 to conclude the trial within a period of five months but about three years period have passed and the progress of trial is the same as it was in the month of April, 2019 when the first bail application was rejected. As a matter of fact, there is no progress of trial as such. The PW-2 is not co-operating with the trial and has absconded for quite sometime. The period of incarceration of the present applicant in jail since 15.04.2018 is also worth considering at this stage when there is no possibility to conclude the trial in near future inasmuch as out of 19 PWs the examination of PW-2 is going on. Besides, all the family members of the victim including the victim herself have levelled specific allegation of torture etc. to the mother-in-law (Smt. Munni Devi), who has been granted bail subsequent to the rejection of the first bail application of the present applicant. Hence, these grounds may be considered as fresh ground to consider the second bail application.

25. Therefore, in the given circumstances and considering the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: K.A. Najeeb (supra) and Paras Ram Vishnoi (supra), the aforesaid grounds are considered as fresh to consider the second bail application, therefore, without expressing any opinion on merits of the case, the instant second bail application of the present applicant is allowed.

26. Let applicant -Anokhi Lal, be released on bail in aforesaid case crime number on his furnishing a personal bond and two reliable sureties each of the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned subject to following conditions:-

(i) The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(ii) The applicant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, without sufficient cause, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iii) In case, the applicant misuses the liberty of bail during trial and in order to secure his presence proclamation under Section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the applicant fail to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iv) The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the applicant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

(v) The applicant shall not leave the country without prior permission of the Court.

27. Before parting with it is expected that the trial shall be concluded with expedition. Further, the learned trial court may take all coercive measures as per law if either of the parties do not co-operate in the trial properly. The learned trial court shall fix short dates to ensure that trial is concluded at the earliest.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Singh Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anil Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel for the applicant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This case was listed on 15.3.2022 and on that date this Court has passed the following order :

"Heard Sri Anil K. Tripathi, learned counsel for the applicant and learned AGA.

Sri Anil K. Tripathi has filed a questionnaire dated 12.2.2020 in the present case to apprise the Court that no prosecution witness has been examined, however, charges have been framed on 13.11.2018, the same is taken on record.

This is the third bail application. First and second bail applications have been rejected by Hon'ble Prashant Kumar, J. on 22.2.2017 and 17.5.2018 vide Criminal Misc. Bail Applications No.7312 of 2015 and 7137 of 2017 respectively.

On being confronted on the point as to what is the fresh ground to consider the third bail application, Sri Anil K. Tripathi has submitted that the present applicant is in jail since 27.5.2015 in Case Crime No.840 of 2015, under Sections 302, 504 & 506 IPC, Police Station Ikauna, District Shrawasti and there is no possibility to conclude the trial in near future, therefore, considering the fundamental right of the applicant enshrined under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, he may be released on bail.

I have noted that vide order dated 17.5.2018, the Hon'ble Court has directed the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bahraich to commit the case to the Court of Session immediately within a period of one month. It appears that after the aforesaid order, the case has been committed to the Court of Session, who has framed the charges on 13.11.2018.

List this case on 31.03.2022 to enable the District and Sessions Judge, Bahraich to provide the status report of the trial. Such status report should be exhaustive indicating therein about the relevant dates of the trial.

The Registry of this Court shall intimate this order to the District and Sessions Judge, Bahraich within three working days for compliance of the direction.

On the next date, after considering the status of the trial, the present bail application may be disposed of finally and learned counsel for the applicant as well as learned AGA shall prepare the case on the point as to whether inordinate delay in concluding the trial may be considered as one of the fresh grounds to consider the bail application if two bail applications have already been rejected."

3. In compliance of the aforesaid order the District Judge, Bahraich has provided a detailed and exhaustive status report dated 28.3.2022 relating to the trial proceedings.

4. The learned counsel for the applicant has fairly submitted that he is aware about the fact that he cannot take any ground in third bail application which was available with him at the time of first bail application or second bail application. Therefore, he has restrained himself to raise factual arguments and grounds of the bail except that the present applicant is in jail since 27.5.2015 in Case Crime No. 840 of 2015 u/s 302, 504, 506 IPC, P.S. Ikauna, District Shrawasti. He has further submitted that the present applicant has been falsely implicated as he has not committed any offence as alleged by the prosecution in the F.I.R.

5. Sri Tripathi has submitted that he has also received instructions in respect of status of the trial and as per his information after the committal of the trial to the sessions on 7.8.2018 the fact witnesses remained absent till 28.10.2021 and the bailable and non-bailable warrants were issued against them. He has further submitted that after the issuance of bailable warrants and Non-Bailable Warrants on several dates the fact witnesses namely, Bablu Pandey Raj Kumari and Kanhaiya Lal Pandey appeared before the learned trial court. Besides, one more witness Dharam Raj also appeared before the learned trial court.

6. So as to verify the aforesaid submission of Sri Tripathi, I perused the status report dated 28.3.2022 which clearly reveals that all the fact witnesses i.e. P.W. 1 Bablu Pandey, P.W. 2 Raj Kumari and P.W. 3 Dharam Raj have been finally examined. Further, the chief-examination of another prosecution witness no. 4 Kanhaiya Lal Pandey has been completed and his part cross-examination has also been completed. Further, the prosecution has shown its willingness not to examine witness Umesh Kumar Pandey and Yugal Sharan Pandey. It has been further indicated that the examination of some more prosecution witnesses is yet to take place, thereafter the formal witnesses e.g. Doctor who has done postmortem examination, chick writer of the F.I.R. and investigating officer are to be examined. After their examination the defence witnesses would be examined and the trial would be finally concluded adopting legal requirements.

7. Sri Tripathi has submitted that since all fact witnesses have been examined and there is no possibility that the trial would be concluded in near future, therefore. the period of incarceration of present applicant i.e. w.e.f. 27.5.2015, about seven years may be considered to grant bail.

8. Sri Tripathi has also drawn attention of this Court towards para 23 of the bail application wherein he has categorically indicated that the present applicant is having no criminal history and such fact has not been disputed in the counter affidavit. Therefore, the fact that the present applicant is not a past criminal may be considered while granting him bail. In support of his aforesaid submission the reliance has been placed in para 4 of the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Gokarakonda Naga Saibaba v. State of Maharashtra, (2018) 12 SCC 505, has held in para-4 as under:-

"4. Having given our thoughtful consideration to the submissions advanced at the hands of the learned counsel for the rival parties, specially the undisputed position that the petitioner has never been accused of having misused the concession of bail, we are of the view, that the submission made by the learned counsel for the respondent is extremely unfair. Since all the material witnesses have been examined and cross-examined, the release of the petitioner on bail ought not to have been opposed, especially keeping in mind the medical condition of the petitioner."

9. Besides, the reliance has also been placed on a recent decision of this Court in re; Anokhi Lal vs. State of U.P. passed in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 6869 of 2019 wherein almost aforesaid facts and circumstances were considered while granting bail in second bail application. In the aforesaid order the dictum of Apex Court in re: Union of India vs. K.A. Najeeb, AIR 2021 Supreme Court 712 and in re: Paras Ram Vishnoi vs. The Director, Central Bureau of Investigation passed in Criminal Appeal No. 693 of 2021 (Arising out of SLP (Crl) 3610 of 2020) have been followed.

10. Sri Tripathi has placed reliance on the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Union of India vs. K.A. Najeeb reported in AIR 2021 Supreme Court 712. Para 16 of the judgment is being reproduced herein below:-

"This Court has clarified in numerous judgments that the liberty guaranteed by Part III of the Constitution would cover within its protective ambit not only due procedure and fairness but also access to justice and a speedy trial. In Supreme Court Legal Aid Committee Representing Undertrial Prisoners v. Union of India, it was held that undertrials cannot indefinitely be detained pending trial. Ideally, no person ought to suffer adverse consequences of his acts unless the same is established before a neutral arbiter. However, owing to the practicalities of real life where to secure an effective trial and to ameliorate the risk to society in case a potential criminal is left at large pending trial, Courts are tasked with deciding whether an individual ought to be released pending trial or not. Once it is obvious that a timely trial would not be possible and the accused has suffered incarceration for a significant period of time, Courts would ordinarily be obligated to enlarge them on bail."

11. Sri Tripathi has further placed reliance on the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in re: Paras Ram Vishnoi vs. The Director, Central Bureau of Investigation passed in Criminal Appeal No. 693 of 2021 (Arising out of SLP (Crl) 3610 of 2020) wherein the Hon'ble Court has observed as under :

"On consideration of the matter, we are of the view that pending the trial we cannot keep a person in custody for an indefinite period of time and taking into consideration the period of custody and that the other accused are yet to lead defence evidence while the appellant has already stated he does not propose to lead any evidence, we are inclined to grant bail to the appellant on terms and conditions to the satisfaction of the trial court."

12. Sri Tripathi has also submitted that there is no fault on the part of the present applicant in not concluding the trial at the earliest and the specific fault is attributable to the fact witness and other witnesses who remained absent till 28.10.2021 w.e.f. 7.8.2018 when the case was committed to the sessions, therefore, while considering bail application of the present applicant this fact may also be considered. However, Sri Tripathi has given undertaking on behalf of applicant that the applicant shall not misuse the liberty of bail and shall cooperate with the trial proceedings and shall abide by all terms and conditions of bail, if granted.

13. Learned A.G.A. opposed the prayer for bail by submitting that since two bail applications of the present applicant have been rejected by this Court, therefore, present third bail application may not be allowed as no new ground has been shown to this Hon'ble Court to consider his bail.

14. However, on being confronted on the point that present applicant is in jail for almost seven years and the fact witnesses and other prosecution witnesses were not cooperating with the trial proceedings, resultant thereof the trial could not be concluded despite being committed on 7.8.2018 and the status report was provided by the District Judge does not indicate any fault on the part of the applicant, learned AGA has submitted that since the aforesaid situation being a matter of record, therefore, he has nothing to say.

15. Without entering into the merits of the case and considering the period of incarceration of the present applicant w.e.f. 27.5.2015, almost seven years and there are total 15 prosecution witnesses out of them all fact witnesses have been examined and examination of other witnesses is almost complete except the examination of formal witnesses and there is no likelihood of conclusion of trial in near future and the non-cooperation of the fact witnesses / prosecution witnesses is apparent on the status report of the trial dated 28.3.2022, therefore, the aforesaid grounds may be considered as a fresh ground to grant bail to the present applicant while deciding his third bail application. Besides, the dictums of Apex Court in re : Gokarakonda Naga Saibaba v. State of Maharashtra, (supra), Union of India vs. K.A. Najeeb (supra) and Paras Ram Vishnoi vs. The Director, Central Bureau of Investigation (supra) are being considered as those judgments, to me, are supporting the submission of learned counsel for the applicant.

16. Accordingly, the third bail application of the applicant is allowed.

17. Let the applicant Rameshwar Pandey, involved in aforesaid case crime be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned with the following conditions which are being imposed in the interest of justice:-

(i) The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(ii) The applicant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, without sufficient cause, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iii) In case, the applicant misuses the liberty of bail during trial and in order to secure his presence proclamation under Section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the applicant fails to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(iv) The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the applicant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

(v) The applicant shall not leave the country without permission of the Court concerned.

18. Before parting with it is expected that the trial shall be concluded with expedition. Further, the learned trial court may take all coercive measures as per law if either of the parties do not co-operate in the trial properly. The learned trial court shall fix short dates to ensure that trial is concluded at the earliest.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Krishan Pahal, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Brijesh Sahai, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Zia Naz Zaidi, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Ajeet Kumar Singh, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Vibhav Anand Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. This bail application under Section 439 of Code of Criminal Procedure has been filed by the applicant seeking enlargement on bail in Case Crime No. 0583 of 2020, under Section 8/21 N.D.P.S. Act, 1985 at Police Station Khatauli, District Muzaffar Nagar.

3. Rejoinder affidavit filed today is taken on record.

4. In compliance of the order dated 9.11.2021, S.S.P., Muzaffar Nagar, namely, Mr. Abhishek Yadav has filed an affidavit wherein it has been stated that the order dated 4.10.2021 was not communicated by the office of Government Advocate as well as the deponent was not aware of the said order and as such he could not file his affidavit.

5. In the compliance affidavit, it has been stated that there are 49 criminal cases registered against the applicant. As per DCRB report, out of 49 cases 48 cases have been registered at P.S. Khatauli, District Muzaffar Nagar and one case i.e., Case Crime No. 420 of 2011 under Section 60 Excise Act r/w Section 272, 273 I.P.C. was registered at P.S. Mansoorpur, District Muzaffar Nagar. It is further stated in paragraph No. 7 of the said affidavit that due to typographical error Police Station of Case Crime No. 420 of 2011 has been typed as Mansoorpur in place of Khatauli. The report provided by DCRB has been annexed as Annexure No. 2 to the compliance affidavit.

6. The explanation referred in the affidavit is found plausible and accepted. The personal presence of S.S.P. Muzaffar Nagar is hereby dispensed with.

7. Now coming to the merits of the case.

8. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the applicant has been falsely implicated in the present case. The applicant has been arrested by the police and from his possession 102.66 gram Alprazolam is said to have been recovered. He has further submitted that nothing has been recovered from the possession of the applicant and the alleged recovery is false and fabricated. It is further submitted that there is no chemical analysis report to prove that the recovered contraband is actually the Alprazolam powder or something else. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that at the time of arrest, mandatory provisions of Section 50 of NDPS Act have not been complied with. Lastly, it is also been submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that he has been implicated in several criminal cases by the police for the reason that the father of the applicant has made several complaints against the police officials of District Muzaffar Nagar.

9. It has been vehemently argued by Mr. Brijesh Sahay, learned Senior Counsel for the applicant that the animus of the police towards the applicant is evident from the fact that the recovery of 102.66 gram Alprazolam has been deliberately shown from the possession of the applicant to make it fall in the category of commercial quantity. The recovery of more than 100 gram Alprazolam falls in the category of commercial quantity. The recovery is a sham.

10. It has been assured on behalf of the applicant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required. The applicant is languishing in jail since 29.12.2020. He undertakes that he will not misuse the liberty, if granted, therefore, he may be released on bail.

11. On the other hand, learned Additional Advocate General opposed the application on the ground that applicant has criminal history of 48 cases and most of them have been lodged before filing of the said complaint against the police officials. He further submits that criminal antecedent of the accused is to be seen while granting the bail. Their relevance cannot be totally ignored.

12. Per contra, learned counsel for the applicant submits that applicant has already been acquitted in five criminal cases whereas the prosecution in 17 has already came to an end. It is also submitted that the applicant has already been granted bail by this Court as well as by the lower Court in 21 criminal cases after considering the merits of the case. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that criminal history attributed to the accused applicant is due to the application dated 26.4.2002 which has been filed by the father of the applicant against the police officials. It has also been admitted in the compliance report filed by the S.S.P. that the then Senior Superintendent of Police, Muzaffar Nagar directed the Circle Officer, Khatauli to inquire into the aforesaid matter and submit a report. It has also been fairly admitted by the learned counsel Additional Advocate General that an investigation into the allegations levelled by father of applicant was also taken up by the C.B.C.I.D. against the police officials.

13. In support of his contention learned counsel for the applicant also placed reliance on the case of Pawan Kumar Pandey Versus State of U.P. reported in [2007 (1) JIC 680 (Allahabad)] where the accused was allegedly involved in the commission of murder punishable u/s 302 I.P.C., it has been held by the Court that if the accused is otherwise entitled to bail, the same should not be refused simply on the ground of criminal antecedent. It is also argued that the accused in the said case was wanted in 56 criminal cases. Further more the said criminal history of the applicant has already been explained in the supplementary affidavit filed on 23.8.2021.

14. The matter of foisting of frivolous cases against the applicant has already been dealt with by this Court in order dated 9.11.2021. The same is not being reiterated to avoid repetition.

15. The object of grant of bail to an accused of an offence is neither punitive nor preventive in nature. The true object behind granting of bail is to secure appearance of accused during trial. The courts owe more than verbal respect to the principle that punishment begins after convictions and that every man is deemed to be innocent until duly tried and found guilty. From the earlier times, it was appreciated that detention in custody pending completion of trial could be a cause of great hardship. Apart from the question of prevention being the object of a refusal of bail, one must not lose sight of the fact that any imprisonment before conviction has a substantial punitive content and it would be improper for any court to refuse bail as mark of disapproval of former conduct whether the accused has been convicted for it or not.

16. It has been opined by the Apex Court in AIR 2012 SC 830 Sanjay Chandra vs. Central Bureau of Investigation that if bail to an accused under Section 437 or 439 Cr.P.C. is refused by the Court and he is detained in jail for an indefinite period of time and his trial is likely to take considerable time, the same would be violative of his fundamental right as to 'Personal liberty' guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India. It has also been opined that seriousness of the offence should not be treated as the only ground for refusal of bail.

17. At the stage of consideration of bail it cannot be decided whether offer given to the applicant and his consent obtained was voluntary. These are the questions of fact which can be determined only during trial and not at the present stage. In case of prima facie non-compliance of mandatory provision of Section 50 the accused is entitled to be released on bail within the meaning of Section 37 of N.D.P.S. Act.

18. Interpreting the provisions of bail contained u/s 437 & 439 Cr.P.C., the Supreme Court has laid down following considerations for grant or refusal of bail to an accused in a non-bailable offence:-

(i) Prima facie satisfaction of the court in support of the accusations.

(ii) Nature of accusation.

(ii) Evidence in support of accusations.

(iv) Gravity of the offence.

(v) Punishment provided for the offence.

(vi) Danger of the accused absconding or fleeing if released on bail.

(vii) Character/criminal history of the accused.

(viii) Behavior of the accused.

(ix) Means, position and standing of the accused in the Society.

(x) Likelihood of the offence being repeated.

(xi) Reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with.

(xii) Danger, of course, of justice being thwarted by grant of bail.

(xiii) Balance between the rights of the accused and the larger interest of the Society/State.

(xiv) Any other factor relevant and peculiar to the accused.

(xv) While a vague allegation that the accused may tamper with the evidence or witnesses may not be a ground to refuse bail, but if the accused is of such character that his mere presence at large would intimidate the witnesses or if there is material to show that he will use his liberty to subvert justice or tamper with the evidence, then bail will be refused.

19. While disposing of bail applications u/s 437/439 Cr.P.C., courts should assign reasons while allowing or refusing an application for bail. But detailed reasons touching the merit of the matter should not be given which may prejudice the accused. What is necessary is that the order should not suffer from non-application of mind. At this stage a detailed examination of evidence and elaborate documentation of the merit of the case is not required to be undertaken. Though the court can make some reference to materials but it cannot make a detailed and in-depth analysis of the materials and record findings on their acceptability or otherwise which is essentially a matter of trial. (See: CBI vs V. Vijay Sai Reddy, (2013) 7 SCC 452and Kanwar Singh Meena vs. State of Rajasthan, AIR 2013 SC 296.)

20. According to Halsbury's Laws of England - " the effect of granting bail is not to set the defendant (accused) free, but to release him from custody of law and to entrust him to the custody of his sureties who are bound to produce him to appear at his trial at a specified time and place."

21. According to Law Commission's 268th report (2017), "Bail' essentially means the judicial interim release of a person suspected of a crime held in custody, on entering into a recognizance, with or without sureties, that the suspect would appear to answer the charges at a later date; and includes grant of bail to a person accused of an offence by any competent authority under law.

22. In Kamlapati Trivedi vs. State of West Bengal, 1979 AIR (SC) 777, the Supreme Court of India observed that bail is devised as a technique for effecting a synthesis of two basic concepts of human values, namely the right of the accused to enjoy his personal freedom and the public interest; subject to which, the release is conditioned on the surety to produce the accused person in Court to stand trial.

23. The Apex Court in the Case of Union of India vs. Shiv Shankar Keshari, (2007) 7 SCC 798 has held that the court while considering the application for bail with reference to Section 37 of the Act is not called upon to record a finding of not guilty. It is for the limited purpose essentially confined to the question of releasing the accused on bail that the court is called upon to see if there are reasonable grounds for believing that the accused is not guilty and records its satisfaction about the existence of such grounds. But the court has not to consider the matter as if it is pronouncing a judgment of acquittal and recording a finding of not guilty.

24. Considering the facts of the case and keeping in mind, the ratio of the Apex Court's judgment in the case of Union of India vs. Shiv Shankar Keshari (spura), larger mandate of Article 21 of the constitution of India, the nature of accusations, the nature of evidence in support thereof, the severity of punishment which conviction will entail, the character of the accused-applicant, circumstances which are peculiar to the accused, reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at the trial, reasonable apprehension of the witnesses being tampered with, the larger interest of the public/ State and other circumstances, but without expressing any opinion on the merits, I am of the view that it is a fit case for grant of bail.

25. Keeping in view the nature of the offence, evidence on record regarding complicity of the accused, larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the dictum of Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh Vs. State of U.P. and another reported in (2018) 3 SCC 22 and without expressing any opinion on the merits of the case, the Court is of the view that the applicant has made out a case for bail. The bail application is allowed.

26. Let the applicant- Gaurav @ Gaura, who is involved in aforementioned case crime be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned subject to following conditions (Further, before issuing the release order, the sureties be verified):-

(i) The applicant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the date fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in Court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the Trial Court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(ii) The applicant shall remain present before the Trial Court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, without sufficient cause, the Trial Court may proceed against him under Section 229-A IPC.

(iii) In case, the applicant misuses the liberty of bail during trial and in order to secure his presence proclamation under Section 82 Cr.P.C., may be issued and if applicant fails to appear before the Court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the Trial Court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A IPC.

(iv) The applicant shall remain present, in person, before the Trial Court on dates fixed for (1) opening of the case, (2) framing of charge and (3) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the Trial Court absence of the applicant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the Trial Court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

27. In case of breach of any of the above conditions, it shall be a ground for cancellation of bail.

28. It is made clear that observations made in granting bail to the applicant shall not in any way affect the learned trial Judge in forming his independent opinion based on the testimony of the witnesses.

A. Criminal Law - Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 - Section 12 - The Court after considering the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the likelihood of early conclusion of trial and also the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and considering that the prosecution has not produced any single witness against the revisionist who actually seen the incident, the fact that the case rests on circumstantial evidence and in view of the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Indian Constitution, granted bail to the revsiionist. (Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. This revision is directed against the judgment and order dated 19.11.2021 passed by learned Special Judge (POCSO Act)/ Additional Sessions Judge, Ghaziabad, dismissing Criminal Appeal No. 101 of 2021 (Sneha Kumari @ Gungun versus State of U.P.), filed under Section 101 of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (for short "the Act') and affirming an order of Juvenile Justice Board, Ghaziabad dated 12.01.2021 refusing bail plea to the revisionist in Case Crime No. 67 of 2020, under Section 302 IPC, Police Station Link Road, District Ghaziabad.

2. Heard Shri Prashant Rai, the learned counsel for the revisionist, learned A.G.A. for the State and Shri Pradeep Kumar Rai, the learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and perused the record.

3. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that it is a case of circumstantial evidence. There is no independent eye witness of the alleged incident. The name of the revisionist surfaced in the statement of eye witness, namely, Smt. Naina Devi, who also in her statement had stated that she is not assured but there is some relations between the revisionist and co-accused, Jitendra, and they must have killed the deceased, who is the mother of the revisionist. The informant is the father of the revisionist who was in the State of Bihar at the time of incident and on the basis of statement of witness, Naina Devi, the F.I.R. was lodged against the revisionist and the co-accused, Jitendra.

4. Leaned counsel for the revisionist further submits that according to the postmortem report of the deceased cause of death is due to compression of neck by ligature.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that no eye witness took the name of the revisionist that she was involved in the present crime. The alleged recovery of rope made by the police is not from the possession of the revisionist.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that it is a case based on circumstantial evidence. The revisionist has been roped in by the police on the basis of statements of Smt. Naina Devi, Satyanarain and Urmila Devi, who have also not seen the incident. The recovery memo is totally false. It is also argued that there is no incriminating evidence available on record about the revisionist's involvement in the commission of alleged offence.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Balakrishna Tukaram Angre Vs. The State of Maharashtra in Criminal Appeal No. 1704 of 2017. In the said decision, the Hon'ble Supreme Court was pleased to observe that case of the prosecution rests on circumstantial evidence and the accused has been in custody for fifteen months.

8. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that the present case is a case of the circumstantial evidence. It is well settled law that where there is no direct evidence against the accused and the prosecution rests its case on circumstantial evidence, the inference of guilt can be justified only when all the incriminating facts and circumstances are found to be incompatible with the innocence of the accused. In other words, there must be chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused. All the links in the chain of circumstances must be complete and should be proved through cogent evidence. In the present case there is no continuing chain of evidence.

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that the revisionist is juvenile and there is no apprehension of reasoned ground for believing that the release of the revisionist is likely to bring her in association with any known criminals or expose her to mental, physical or psychological danger or her release would defeat the ends of justice. He further submits that except this the revisionist has no previous criminal history. The maternal uncle (Mama) of the revisionist is giving his undertaking that after release of the revisionist on bail, he will keep her under his custody and look after her properly. Further, the revisionist undertakes that she will not tamper the evidence and she will always cooperate the trial proceedings. There was no report regarding any previous antecedents of family or background of the revisionist. There is no chance of revisionist's re-indulgence to bring her into association with known criminals.

10. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that it is not in dispute that the revisionist is a juvenile as she already been declared juvenile by Juvenile Justice Board, Ghaziabad vide order dated 05.11.2020. The revisionist was a juvenile aged 15 years, 11 months and 02 days on the date of occurrence. She was, thus, clearly below 16 years of age. She is in detention since 14.02.2020 in connection with the present crime and has completed a substantial period of sentence out of the maximum three years institutional incarceration permissible for a juvenile, under Section 18(1)(g) of the Act.

11. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that thereafter the revisionist applied for bail before the Juvenile Justice Board, Ghaziabad, upon which a report from the District Probation Officer was called for. The bail application was rejected vide order dated 12.01.2021, being aggrieved, the revisionist preferred an appeal under Section 101 of the Act, which was also dismissed vide order dated 19.11.2021. Hence the present criminal revision has been filed before this Hon'ble Court mainly on the following amongst other grounds:

(i) That the revisionist is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case due to rivalry/village partibandi.

(ii) That the revisionist is juvenile and there is no apprehension of reasoned ground for believing that the release of the revisionist is likely to bring him in association with any known criminals or expose him to mental, physical or psychological danger or his release would defeat the ends of justice.

(iii) That the revisionist has no criminal history except the present case.

(iv) That the law has been laid down by this Court as well as the Apex Court that the seriousness of the offence is no ground to reject the bail of the juvenile and only three contingencies have been provided to be considered at the time of consideration of the bail application and those are if the release is likely to bring him into association with any known criminal or would expose him to moral, physical or psychological danger or that his release would defeat the ends of justice.

(v) That the father of the revisionist is giving his undertaking that after release of the revisionist on bail, he will keep him under his custody and look after him properly.

(vi) That the revisionist undertakes that he will not tamper the evidence and he will always cooperate the trial proceedings.

(vii) That both the courts below have committed gross illegality by rejecting the revisionist's bail prayer after declaring him juvenile.

(viii) That both the courts below have given wrong findings without any material available on record.

(ix) That there was no report regarding any previous criminal antecedents of the family or background of the revisionist.

(x) That there is no chance of revisionist's re-indulgence to bring him into association with known criminals.

(xi) That the impugned orders passed by the courts below are totally arbitrary, illegal and bad in law.

(xii) That the findings given by the courts below are based on conjectures and surmises.

12. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the revisionist have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the revisionist that she is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make herself available before the court whenever required and is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon her. It has also been pointed out that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

13. Learned counsel for the revisionist has pointed out that the revisionist has by now done a substantial period of institutional incarceration. The maximum period for which a juvenile can be incarcerated in whatever form of detention, is three years, going by the provisions of Section 18(1)(g) of the Act. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex Court judgment in the case of Kamal Vs. State of Haryana, 2004 (13) SCC 526 and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under :-

"2. This is a case in which the appellant has been convicted u/s 304-B of the India Penal Code and sentenced to imprisonment for 7 years. It appears that so far the appellant has undergone imprisonment for about 2 years and four months. The High Court declined to grant bail pending disposal of the appeal before it. We are of the view that the bail should have been granted by the High Court, especially having regard to the fact that the appellant has already served a substantial period of the sentence. In the circumstances, we direct that the bail be granted to the appellant on conditions as may be imposed by the District and Sessions Judge, Faridabad."

14. Learned counsel for the revisionist has also placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex Court judgment in the case of Takht Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2001 (10) SCC 463, and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under:-

"2. The appellants have been convicted under Section 302/149, Indian Penal Code by the learned Sessions Judge and have been sentenced to imprisonment for life. Against the said conviction and sentence their appeal to the High Court is pending. Before the High Court application for suspension of sentence and bail was filed but the High Court rejected that prayer indicating therein that the applicants can renew their prayer for bail after one year. After the expiry of one year the second application was filed but the same has been rejected by the impugned order. It is submitted that the appellants are already in jail for over 3 years and 3 months. There is no possibility of early hearing of the appeal in the High Court. In the aforesaid circumstances the applicants be released on bail to the satisfaction of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sehore. The appeal is disposed of accordingly."

15. Learned A.G.A. as well as Shri Pradeep Kumar Rai, the learned counsel for opposite party no.2 have opposed the revisionist's case with the submission that the release of the revisionist on bail would bring her into association of some known criminals, besides, exposing her to moral, physical and psychological danger. It is submitted that her release would defeat the ends of justice, considering that she is involved in a heinous offence.

16. This Court has carefully considered the rival submissions of the parties and perused the impugned orders. The juvenile is clearly below 16 years of age and does not fall into that special category of a juvenile between the age of 16 and 18 years whose case may be viewed differently, in case, they are found to be of a mature mind and persons well understanding the consequences of their actions. The provisions relating to bail for a juvenile are carried in Section 12 of the Act, which reads as under:

"(1) When any person, who is apparently a child and is alleged to have committed a bailable or non-bailable offence, is apprehended or detained by the police or appears or brought before a Board, such person shall, notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or in any other law for the time being in force, be released on bail with or without surety or placed under the supervision of a probation officer or under the care of any fit person:

17.Provided that such person shall not be so released if there appears reasonable grounds for believing that the release is likely to bring that person into association with any known criminal or expose the said person to moral, physical or psychological danger or the person's release would defeat the ends of justice, and the Board shall record the reasons for denying the bail and circumstances that led to such a decision.

(2) When such person having been apprehended is not released on bail under subsection (1) by the officer-in-charge of the police station, such officer shall cause the person to be kept only in an observation home in such manner as may be prescribed until the person can be brought before a Board.

(3) When such person is not released on bail under sub-section (1) by the Board, it shall make an order sending him to an observation home or a place of safety, as the case may be, for such period during the pendency of the inquiry regarding the person, as may be specified in the order.

(4) When a child in conflict with law is unable to fulfil the conditions of bail order within seven days of the bail order, such child shall be produced before the Board for modification of the conditions of bail."

17. A perusal of the said provision show that bail for a juvenile, particularly, one who is under the age of 16 years, is a matter of course and it is only in the event that his/her case falls under one or the other disentitling categories mentioned in the proviso to sub-Section (1) of Section 12 of the Act that bail may be refused. The merits of the case against a juvenile acquire some relevance under the last clause of the proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 12 that speaks about the ends of justice being defeated. The other two disentitling categories are quite independent and have to be evaluated with reference to the circumstances of the juvenile. Those circumstances are to be gathered from the Social Investigation Report, the police report and in whatever other manner relevant facts enter the record.

18. What is of prime importance in this case is that the juvenile, who is a young girl, less than the age of 16 years, has no criminal history. There is nothing said against the juvenile, appearing from the Social Investigation Report that may show her to be a desperado or misfit in the society. The two courts below have held the juvenile disentitled to bail on account of her case falling under each of the three exceptions enumerated in the proviso to sub section (1) of Section 12, for which no reason has been indicated. That finding, in both the orders impugned, is based on an ipse dixit, in one case of the judge and in the other of the Board. Even if it be assumed that the offence was committed in the manner alleged, it would be rather strained logic to hold that release of the juvenile on bail would lead to the ends of justice being defeated.

19. This Court in the case of Shiv Kumar alias Sadhu Vs. State of U.P. 2010 (68) ACC 616(LB) was pleased to observe that the gravity of the offence is not relevant consideration for refusing grant of bail to the juvenile.

20. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, the unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also in the absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and considering that the prosecution has not produced any single witness against the revisionist who actually seen the incident, and the fact that the case rests on circumstantial evidence, and in view of the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the dictum of Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh vs. State of UP and another, (2018) 3 SCC 22 and the view taken by the Apex Court in the cases of Kamal Vs. State of Haryana (supra), Takht Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (supra) and Shiv Kumar alias Sadhu Vs. State of U.P. (supra)., this Court is of the view that the present criminal revision may be allowed and the revisionist may be released on bail.

21. In the result, this revision succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and orders dated 12.01.2021 and 19.11.2021, are hereby set aside and reversed. The bail application of the revisionist stands allowed.

22. Let the revisionist, Sneha Kumari @ Gungun, through her natural guardian/ maternal uncle (Mama), Rajesh Kumar, be released on bail in Case Crime No. 67 of 2020, under Section 302 IPC, Police Station Link Road, District Ghaziabad, upon her maternal uncle furnishing a personal bond with two solvent sureties of his relatives each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the Juvenile Justice Board, Ghaziabad subject to the following conditions:

(i) That the natural guardian/ maternal uncle (Mama), Rajesh Kumar will furnish an undertaking that upon release on bail the juvenile will not be permitted to come into contact or association with any known criminal or allowed to be exposed to any moral, physical or psychological danger and further that the maternal uncle will ensure that the juvenile will not repeat the offence.

(ii) The revisionist and her maternal uncle (Mama), Rajesh Kumar will report to the District Probation Officer on the first Wednesday of every calendar month commencing with the first Wednesday of May, 2022 and if during any calendar month the first Wednesday falls on a holiday, then on the next following working day.

(iii) The District Probation Officer will keep strict vigil on the activities of the revisionist and regularly draw up his social investigation report that would be submitted to the Juvenile Justice Board, Ghaziabad, on such periodical basis as the Juvenile Justice Board may determine.

(iv) The party shall file computer generated copy of such order downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad or the certified copy issued by the Registry of the High Court, Allahabad.

(v) The computer generated copy of such order shall be self attested by the counsel of the party concerned.

(vi) The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court Allahabad and shall make a declaration of such verification in writing.

23. However, considering the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the court below is directed to make every possible endeavour to conclude the trial of the aforesaid case within a period of four months from today without granting unnecessary adjournments to either of the parties.

A. Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Section 125 - The Court after careful analyzing the evidence on record observed that concubinage can be presumed from mobile phone and compact disc submitted as an evidence. This establishes familiarity to the extent of intimacy of the respondent with the revisionist and her family members. Therefore, the Court directed that the children of the revisionist are entitled to maintenance from respondent till their respective marriages and marriage expenses will also be borne by the respondent. (Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mohd. Arif Khan, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Mohiuddin Khan, learned counsel for the Revisionists and Sri Lokendra Kumar Gupta, learned counsel for the respondent.

2. Kahkashan, the Revisionist No. 1 alongwith her three minor daughters filed an application under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. on 3 August 2009 claiming maintenance from the respondent of Rs.20,000 per month for herself and 10,000 per month each for her three daughters i.e. a total of Rs.50,000 per month. The facts as mentioned by her were that the Applicant had married the Respondent Umesh Kumar Gupta @ Abbas Hussain "Khun Khun' on 24 October 2002 as per Muslim rites and rituals at the residence of the Applicant. The Nikahnamma had been filed as an annexure to the application. After such wedding the applicant started living in the Respondent's home and three daughters, namely, Neha aged about seven years,Kiran aged about five years, and baby Hina aged about two months, were born out of the wedlock. Initially the Respondent took good care of the applicant and her children but later on started neglecting them as three daughters were born to her one after another and he wanted a son. The youngest daughter baby Hina was born on 15 May 2009 and the Respondent left the Applicant 20 May 2009. Because of financial difficulty faced by the Applicant she had to withdraw her daughters from City Montessori School and get them admitted in a cheaper school. She was facing great hardship as she did not have any skill and no income of her own, whereas the Respondent was a very well-known businessman having a factory for manufacturing of batteries by the name of Kaali Power and he earned about Rs.4 lakhs per month. As such the Respondent was having sufficient means to look after his wife and children i.e. the applicants.

3. The Respondent filed an objection to such Application Paper No. Kha-9, where he denied having converted to Islam and marrying the Applicant. It was stated that a forged Nikahnama had been produced in court by the Applicant and her father. Since there was no wedding performed, there was no question of the Applicant going and living in his home or three daughters being born out of the wedlock. The Applicant had herself stated that the wedding took place on 24 October 2002. However the eldest daughter was seven years old at the time of filing of the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. in August, 2009, which was not possible. It was alleged that the Respondent had no concern at all with the children of the Applicant. The Respondent was a staunch Hindu by birth. He had got married some eighteen years ago and his wife was still alive and he had two children from the said wedlock and they were living a happy family life. The Application had been filed by the Applicant as a result of a conspiracy between her and her father, Mohd. Raees Hussain. Forged documentary evidence like receipts of school fees had been produced. The names of all three daughters were of Hindu origin whereas the applicant herself stated that she was Muslim and the Respondent had converted to Islam and performed Nikaah with her. The Applicant was a scheming lady of loose character who had been caught by the police for immoral flesh trade. The news regarding the same was also published in the newspapers on 24 March 2001 much before the alleged marriage on 24.10.2002 and Case Crime Number 18 of 2001 under section 3 (1) 5/7 of Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1986 had been registered and Charge sheet had been filed against her and other accused in the competent court. A certified copy of the FIR and also the news item published in the newspapers were filed along with the objections by the Respondent. The Respondent was never named Abbas Hussain, Khun Khun and he had never converted to Islam. The Applicant and her father were used to extorting money from people, On the basis of threats to lodge false cases against them. The Applicant had also mentioned wrong residential address of the Respondent only to prevent the Respondent from coming to know of the filing of the application for maintenance and responding to the same appropriately and on time. The Application was filed with deliberate concealment and misrepresentation of facts and ought to be dismissed on this ground alone.

4. The Applicant filed her reply, Paper Number 15, and also documentary evidence. Most of the documentary evidence that were filed were photocopies. One Compact Disc and One Mobile Phone, and several photographs were however also filed as originals.

5. In the documentary evidence filed by the Respondent were certified copies of the Chargesheet and FIR filed in the case under a Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act, 1986. A certified copy of a Sale Deed of a property bought by the Applicant subsequently showing herself as daughter of Raees Hussain was also filed.

6. After taking evidence of the Applicant and the Respondent the learned Trial Court proceeded to consider the matter on merits. The Trial Court noted that the very first issue that needed to be determined was whether there was any actual marriage performed between the parties. The Applicant had stated that such marriage had taken place on 24 October 2002 as per Muslim rites and rituals. Although Nikaahnama had been filed in original by her as evidence, the same had not been proved as per Section 75 of the Evidence Act. As per the Applicant, the Respondent at the time of marriage, had converted to Islam and had adopted the name of Abbas Hussain Khun Khun. The Applicant got herself examined as PW-01. In her Examination in Chief the Applicant stated that they had a love marriage and that before such marriage the Respondent had already married one lady by the name of Ragini Gupta and from her two daughters had been born to him. Ragini Gupta had also filed FIR against the Respondent and sent him to jail for having married the Applicant.

7. In her cross-examination the Applicant had admitted that her Nikaah had been performed with Abbas Hussain "Khun Khun", but the Respondent continued to be a Hindu and the Nikaahnama was not in the name of Umesh Gupta. She also admitted in her Cross-Examination that she had not gone to the house of the Respondent to live with him as his wife and she continued to live with her parents. The Applicant had not filed any documentary evidence for example, Identity Card or any proof of residential address to show that she started living with Umesh Gupta who after conversion to Islam came to be known as Abbas Hussain "Khun Khun". The learned trial court noted several contradictions between what was stated on affidavit in the support of the Application filed under Section 125 Cr.P.C. by the Applicant and in her Examination in Chief and Cross-Examination conducted in Court. In support of the allegation of the Applicant that Respondent had been sent to jail on a complaint being made by Ragini Gupta his first wife, the Applicant had filed a photo copy of a newspaper item only without submitting any proof of the same. The Respondent on the other hand stated that the Applicant had been accused of flesh trade and news regarding her arrest by the police on 24 March 2001 was published in the Newspapers. Newspaper cutting in this regard was also filed. Certified copy of the FIR in the Case Crime Number 18 of 2001 under section 3 (1), 5/7, of the Immoral Traffic (Prevention) Act and the certified Chargesheet filed therein were also brought on record. The competent court had taken cognizance of such offence and the trial was still pending before the CJM.The contentions raised by the Respondent No.1 was denied vaguely by the Applicant.

8. The learned Trial Court thereafter also recorded his findings from the documentary evidence produced by both the parties and discussed three things that are necessary for a claim under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. to succeed. Firstly, the claimant has to prove that the respondent had married her. Secondly, she had to prove that she had no independent source of income to maintain herself. Thirdly, she had to prove that the respondent had enough income to give maintenance to the Claimant.

9. The learned Trial Court found from evidence on record that initially the claimant had stated in her application that she got married as per Muslim Rites and Rituals to Umesh Gupta who had converted to Islam and changed his name to Abbas Hussain Khun Khun. She also claimed that she went to the matrimonial home and started living with the respondent as his wife. However in her cross-examination she had admitted that she had not left her paternal home and continued to live with her parents and two brothers although in a different house. The Nikahnama being a private document, had also not been proved as required under Section 75 of the Indian Evidence Act.

10. The Learned Trial Court observed on the basis of Sections 101, 102 & 103 of the Evidence Act, which he quoted in the order impugned, that whoever desires any Court to give judgement as to any legal right or liability dependent on the existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist and when a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact, it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person. Also, that the burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the Court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any law that the burden of proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person. In this case the Burden of Proof lay upon that person who would fail if no evidence at all were given on either side.

11. Learned Trial Court thereafter referred to the only facts that could be proved by the claimant during the course of hearing. Firstly, that the respondent was familiar and friendly towards the claimant, her parents and daughters, and secondly, that he also used to converse with her parents on phone even during the pendency of the claim under Section 125 Cr.P.C. It could not be proved by her that the respondent had converted to Islam and changed his name to Abbas Hussain Khun Khun. She could also not prove that she had started living with him as his wife in the matrimonial home and that the three children were born out of the wedlock. She also could not prove that she was recognized by the Society at large as the wife of Umesh Gupta. She also could not prove that she had no knowledge of the respondent being already a married person with two children before her alleged marriage with him.

12. The Respondent had stated that the Nikahnama produced before the Court did not bear his name as Umesh Gupta but had noted the name of one Abbas Hussain "Khun Khun' whereas he continued to use the name of Umesh Gupta and had remained a Hindu. The Applicant had filed photocopies of few fee receipts issued by City Montessori School and also Birth Certificate issued by the Nagar Nigam but such photocopies were of no consequence. The Applicant had also filed photocopies of documents relating to New St John's Inter College where Kumari Neha Gupta and Kiran Gupta were allegedly studying. In such papers the trial court noticed interpolations in the surnames and the name Abbas Hussain was easily visible which had been scored out and "Khun Khun Gupta" was written in a different handwriting. In the column meant for noting the name of the father of the child initially "Khun Khun" was mentioned but later on struckoff. Such documentary evidence being only photocopies was also not admissible as evidence. The Applicant in her cross-examination had stated that photographs of the Respondent and the Applicant had been filed to show that they were married. However, the learned trial court observed that only because a man and a woman were shown in a close proximity in the photographs, would not prove that they were married. The photograph showing the Respondent with Appellants' daughter in his arms would also not determine that the Respondent was the actual father of such a child. Only because the Respondent was standing with a girl child in his arms, the Nikaah with Applicant could not be proved. The Applicant had referred to a CD (Compact Disc) being filed as evidence which allegedly recorded a conversation between the respondent and the Applicant to prove that they were living together. The trial court observed that only because a man and woman were living together would not prove beyond doubt that they were living as husband and wife. It only established a live-in relationship. For the presumption of marriage to arise it was necessary that the man and woman should be recognised as a couple by the society at large. The applicant had not produced any evidence to show that in the eyes of the general public the Applicant and the Respondent were treated to be husband and wife. As such, neither the Applicant's case of having married the Respondent, nor the case set up later on of a live-in relationship between the parties could be proved by the Applicant. Also, admittedly the first wife of the Respondent was alive and if the Respondent was living in adultery then he would be guilty under Section 494 IPC, but he would not be liable to give maintenance to the Applicant.

13. The learned trial court has observed that even if the Respondent had been arrested for Bigamy, it would not prove the Respondent's Nikaah with the Applicant as per Islamic law. Even if any Nikahnama was actually signed by both the parties, such marriage would be void, as the Respondent never converted to Islam, and continued to remain a Hindu. He had married one lady by the name of Ragini Gupta in 1992 and the said marriage was still subsisting. If any physical relations had been established by the Respondent with the Applicant, it would not raise the presumption of a valid marriage but would rather be a live-in relationship. Having a live-in relationship with another woman or living in adultery, would not make the Respondent liable to pay maintenance to such other woman or her children.

14. The learned Trial Court thereafter discussed Muslim law specifically Surah No. 2.221 of the Quran which said that if a Muslim of Shia belief marries a person who is an idol worshipper or a fire worshipper such marriage would be void. Although the claimant had not stated in her application initially that she was a believer in Shia Sect during her cross-examination it had come out that she was a Shia. The Learned Trial Court thereafter referred to judgement of the Supreme Court given in Sarla Mudgal Versus Union of India reported in (1995) 3 SCC 635; wherein it was held that Hindu Marriage Act only recognized one marriage and during the subsistence of first marriage and during the lifetime of the first wife, if a Hindu married a second time, such marriage would be void and that person would be liable to be prosecuted under Section 494 IPC. Such law would be applicable also in cases where a Hindu converts to Islam and marries a second time. It also meant that if a person continues to be a Hindu and marries a Muslim then also he would be liable to be prosecuted under Section 494 IPC. If such a person converts to Islam and marries a second time then also he shall be liable for conviction under Section 494 IPC and the second marriage would be void. The Learned Trial Court also referred to the judgement rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of Lily Thomas Versus Union of India reported in (2000) 6 SCC 224, holding that the Hindu Marriage Act does not recognize more than one marriage and if a person marries a second time during the lifetime of his first wife then such marriage would be void under Section 11 of the Hindu Marriage Act. The learned trial Trial Court having found that the claimant was unable to prove a valid marriage with the opposite party, has rejected the claim of the Revisionist.

15. Sri Mohd. Arif Khan, Learned Senior Advocate for the Revisionists has argued that the trial court had granted an order of interim maintenance dated 03.08.2009 giving Rs. 200/- per month to the Revisionist no.1 and, Rs.100/- per month each to the two minor daughters, yet not even a single penny was paid by the Respondent. A distress warrant was also issued on 12.10.2011. The Respondent had denied the marriage and fatherhood, despite ample documents being submitted before the learned trial court showing that the respondent had married the revisionist no. 1 after conversion to Islam and during the subsistence of his first marriage with one Ragini Gupta. Learned counsel for the revisionists has referred to the documents on record summoned from the lower court i.e. papers no. C37/7, C37/8, C37/2, C38/2 and A16/3. He has also referred to a CD and mobile phone submitted before the learned trial court, which was not appreciated at all by the learned trial court. It has also been argued that an application for a DNA test of the daughters was also moved, but it was kept pending and the case disposed of by the learned trial court. Referring to certain judgments of the Supreme Court and it was argued that a hyper technical view was taken by the learned Trial Court whereas it is settled law by the Supreme Court that even if the children are illegitimate, they are still entitled to maintenance and that even if a marriage is not proved, live-in relationship itself, if recognized by the society at large, would entitle the revisionist no.1 for an order granting maintenance.

16. Sri Lokendra Kumar Gupta, learned counsel appearing for the respondent has pointed out from the pleadings on record, in the Application under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. that the revisionist No.1 had claimed marriage with the respondent according to muslim rites and rituals, but the Nikaahnama was never proved. The Nikaahnama was itself doubtful as the name of Abbas Hussain has been written in Hindi and thereafter, in a different handwriting altogether the word "Khun Khun" in English has been added. Four witnesses were alleged to have attended the Nikaah, but none of these witnesses were produced.

17. It has been submitted by Sri Lokendra Kumar Gupta that all other documents that were filed, for example, Birth Certificates and copies of Scholar Register, etc., were filed as photocopies and not in their original, because in the original Birth Certificate, the Revisionist no.1 has been shown as W/o Khun Khun Gupta and not W/o Umesh Kumar Gupta. In the High School certificate that has been produced in its original during the course of the arguments by the learned counsel for the revisionists, there is a mention of the child being the daughter of Khun Khun Gupta and not Umesh Kumar Gupta. The revisionist could not prove before the learned trial court that she was living with the respondent as husband and wife in a live-in relationship which was recognized by the society. She could also not prove that Umesh Kumar Gupta was the person she had married i.e. Abbas Hussain was the same as Khun Khun Gupta who was the same as Umesh Kumar Gupta, the respondent to this Revision.

18. Sri Lokendra Kumar Gupta, learned counsel for the respondent says that there is no application on record allegedly moved by the Revisionist for getting DNA test conducted of her three daughters. He has vehemently argued that there was a conscious attempt at concealment of evidence, as the original certificates were in the possession of the Revisionist no.1, which were not produced intentionally before the learned trial court as the original certificates showed that Kahakashan was the wife of Khun Khun Gupta and Hina Gupta, Kiran Gupta and Neha Gupta were the daughters of Khun Khun Gupta and not the Umesh Kumar Gupta. The Revisionist also could not prove that Khun Khun Gupta was the same person as Umesh Gupta and she ever shared the same matrimonial home with the respondent.

19. On a specific query being made by this Court as to whether, the learned trial court could not see that the Revisionist no.1 may have been kept as a concubine, the Learned counsel for the respondent has pointed out that the trial court had only to see whether the applicant had proved her pleadings as mentioned in the application under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. It was the applicant's duty to prove the CD and the Mobile Phone that were produced as evidence, and to connect and prove that evidence during her statement recorded by the learned trial court. The Revisionist No.1 had stated about marriage with the respondent which she could not prove. She had not pleaded concubinage. She had also not proved that Umesh Kumar Gupta was living with her for a long period and they had been living openly in such a relationship and had been recognized as a married couply by the Society at large. He has pointed out that the case laws that has been cited by the learned counsel for the Revisionist all relate to persons who were living together for a long time and were recognised by the society/public at large as husband and wife. He has pointed out that the sale deed was executed by the revisionist no.1 and she had bought property as daughter of Rahees Hussain and not as wife of Umesh Kumar Gupta.

20. Sri Lokendra Kumar Gupta, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 has read out from the plaint and from the Examination-in-chief and cross-examination of the applicant that she failed to prove that her marriage with Umesh Gupta took place on 24.10.2012 and for getting married to the applicant the respondent had converted to Islam and changed his name to Abbas Husain. She had also failed to prove that she was ever living with the applicant in his home or was recognized as his wife by the public. According to the counsel for the respondent no.2, the applicant was involved in flesh trade and was arrested alongwith her father and seven other persons in 2001, and a Charge Sheet has been filed before the Competent court against the applicant and her father as also seven other accused for immoral trafficking.

21. It has also been argued by the learned counsel for the respondent that neither the Nikaahnama was proved nor was any other documentary evidence which was filed alongwith Application by the applicant. It is evident from the order passed by the learned trial court that except for the Nikahnama, all other documents that were filed were only photocopies which are inadmissible in evidence. Nikahnama being a private document, was not proved as per Chapter V of the Indian Evidence Act

22. It has also been argued that the applicant is quite well off and had bought property and a certified copy of the sale deed was also filed before the learned trial court showing herself to be the daughter of Rahees Hussain and not as wife of Umesh Kumar Gupta or Abbas Husain the alias which was allegedly adopted by the respondent to get married to the applicant.

23. Sri Mohd. Arif Khan, learned Senior Counsel after going through the record relating to the lower court has very fairly submitted that there is no application on record for the DNA test of the children and he has been wrongly instructed in the matter. He however, says that the CD and the Mobile Phone are also on record which remained in a sealed cover and those should have been seen by the learned trial court before coming to a conclusion that there was no relationship between the revisionist no.1 and the respondents. He has also pointed out that the charge of bigamy and of Umesh Kumar Gupta being sent to jail on the complaint of his first wife, Ragini Gupta, has not been denied anywhere by Sri Umesh Kumar Gupta in his written statement or in his statement before the learned trial court. Therefore, it could not be said that the respondent had not been sent to jail on the complaint of his first wife with regard to bigamy being lodged at Police Station Thakurganj. He has referred to photocopies of newspaper cuttings filed as evidence.

24. Sri Lokendra Gupta has denied the evidentiary value of photocopies of newspaper cuttings submitted before the learned trial court. He says that there was no complaint ever lodged against his client by any person, let alone his first wife, regarding bigamy and that he was never arrested. There is no evidence on record that Umesh Kumar Gupta had ever been sent to jail or was granted or released on bail by the competent court.

25. After having heard the learned Counsel for the parties and having perused the order impugned, this Court considers it appropriate to consider the case law referred to by Learned counsel for the revisionists. In Sumitra Devi versus Bhumikan Chaudhry AIR 1985 Supreme Court 765, the Supreme Court was considering an appeal against an order passed by the High Court rejecting the revision of the appellant against an order passed by the District Judge. The Revisional Court had reversed the grant of maintenance under section 125 Cr.P.C. given to the appellant by the Judicial Magistrate. It was the case of the appellant that she had been married to the Respondent in 1971 and out of the wedlock, a child had been born. The respondent was already a married man, which fact was not known. Relations between the parties soured and the appellant had no option left, but to ask for maintenance for herself and also for her child. The respondent did not dispute their marriage as a fact, though he pleaded that such marriage was void, being a result of concealment and fraud, and also for non-performance of religious rites necessary for a valid Hindu marriage. He also pleaded that the child was not his, as the appellant was already pregnant for about three months before the marriage with the respondent.

The Supreme Court observed that it was impressed by the fact that the respondent had not seriously disputed the fact of marriage but had taken the stand that such marriage was void. It also observed that the Sessions Judge and the High Court adopted a hypertechnical approach while considering the question of marriage which was not denied by the respondent himself. The Sessions Judge as well as the High Court did not consider the fact that for about a decade the parties had lived together. Public records including Voters List, described them as husband and wife, and competent witnesses of the village of the wife as also of the husband had supported the factum of marriage. Witnesses had also spoken about the reputation of the appellant being known in the locality as wife of the respondent. No doubt performance of certain religious ceremonies/rites were essential for traditional Hindu wedding but in the case of the appellant whether or not such rites were performed had also not been determined by the Sessions Judge and the High Court. The matter was remanded to the Learned magistrate for a fresh enquiry regarding evidence of both sides already on record and also both sides being given an opportunity to lead further evidence in support of the respective stands.

The Supreme Court observed in paragraph 4 that "under section 125 of the CRPC even an illegitimate minor child is entitled to maintenance. Even if the fact of marriage is discarded, the minor child having been found to be illegitimate daughter of the respondent would still be entitled to maintenance." The Supreme Court observed in paragraph 5 that in such matters "the role of the court is not that of a silent spectator or of a passive agency - - - particularly - - - when maintenance of a neglected wife or a minor child is in issue, the court must take genuine interest to find out the truth of the matter - - ."

26. In Chaturbhuj versus Sita Bai (2008) 2 SCC 316, the Supreme Court was considering the Appellant's case that the deserted wife had personal income which was sufficient to maintain herself under section 125Cr.P.C. The trial court had directed payment of Rs.1,500/- per month to the respondent as maintenance. Revision filed against such order was rejected. The Appellant filed an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. which was also dismissed by the High Court, noticing that conclusions had been arrived at by the trial court on the basis of appreciation of evidence. It was argued by the learned counsel for the Appellant that he was a retired Assistant Director of Agriculture and he had bought a house and land in the name of the respondent. The land had been sold off by the respondent and she had also let out the house on rent and was residing with one of their sons. The Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the language of section 125 Cr.P.C. and observed that the object of maintenance proceedings is not to punish a person for his past neglect but to prevent vagrancy by compelling those who can provide support to those who are unable to support themselves, and who have a moral claim to such support. The phrase "unable to maintain herself" would not take within itself the efforts made by the wife after desertion to survive somehow. Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a measure of social justice and is specially enacted to protect women and children. The objective is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. It provides a speedy remedy for supply of food, clothing and shelter to the deserted wife and children if any. Under the law the burden is in the first place upon the wife to show that the means of her husband are sufficient. Secondly the Applicant has to show that she was unable to maintain herself. These two conditions are in addition to the requirement that the husband must have neglected or refused to maintain his wife. Only because the wife was earning some income was not sufficient to rule out the application of Section 125 Cr.P.C. It has to be established that with the amount she earned, the respondent wife was able to maintain herself in the way she was used to in the house of her husband. In Bhagwan Dutt versus Kamla Devi 1975 (2) SCC 386 the Supreme Court had observed that the wife should be in a position to maintain a standard of living which is neither luxurious nor penurious, but what is consistent with the status of the family. The expression "unable to maintain herself" does not mean that the wife must be absolutely destitute before she can apply for maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C.

27. In Chanmuniya versus Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha (2011) 1 SCC141, Supreme Court was considering a matter where the appellant had been married as per Kushwaha community customs by Katha and Sindoor to her brother-in-law after her husband"s death in 1996. They started living together as husband and wife but after sometime the first respondent stopped looking after her and refused to discharge his marital obligations. As a result she initiated proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. for maintenance. This proceeding remained pending. She also filed a Suit for restitution of conjugal rights under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act. The trial court decreed the suit for restitution in 2004. The first respondent preferred an appeal under Section 28 of the Hindu Marriage Act saying that there was no evidence that the appellant after being widowed had remarried the first respondent. The High Court in its judgement reversed the order of the trial court on the ground that the essentials of a valid Hindu marriage as required under Section 7 of the Hindu Marriage Act had not been performed. The appellant"s Review was also dismissed in 2009. The Appellant thereafter filed appeal before the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court observed in Para 7, thus :-

"One of the major issues which cropped up was whether or not presumption of marriage arises when parties lived together for a long time, thus giving rise to a claim for maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. In other words the question was, what is meant by "wife' under section 125 CRPC, specially having regard to explanation under clause (b) of Section. Thus the question that arises is whether a man and woman living together for a long time, even without a valid marriage, would raise, as in the present case, a presumption of a valid marriage entitling such woman to maintenance."

28. The Supreme Court relied upon English case law on the subject and the observations made by the House of Lords that the question of validity of a marriage cannot be tried like any other issue of fact, independent of presumption. The Court had held that law will presume in favour of marriage and such presumption could only be reverted by strong and satisfactory evidence. The House of Lords had observed that "cohabitation, with required repute, as husband-and-wife proved that parties between themselves had mutually contracted the matrimonial relation. A relationship which may be adulterous at the beginning may become matrimonial by consent. This may be evidenced by habit and repute." Quoting the decisions of the House of Lords the Supreme Court observed that since the appellant and first respondent were related and lived in the same house and by social custom were treated as husband and wife by their community, there was a very strong presumption in favour of marriage. "The presumption of marriage is much stronger than a presumption in regard to other facts. Where a man and woman are proved to have lived together as man and wife, the law will presume, unless contrary is clearly proved, that they were living together in consequence of a valid marriage, and not in a state of concubinage." Referring to Indian case law also the Supreme Court observed that "continuous cohabitation of man and woman as husband and wife may lead validly to a presumption of marriage which is rebuttable on evidence to the contrary being led. A heavy burden lies on him who seeks to deprive the relationship of legal origin."

29. The Supreme Court referring to its earlier judgement in Vimala versus Veera Swamy,1991 (2) SCC 375, that Section 125 of the CRPC is meant to achieve a social purpose and the object is to prevent vagrancy and destitution.

It observed in paragraph 3 that ".... the term "wife' in Section 125 of the Code includes a woman who has been divorced by her husband or who has obtained a divorce from her husband and has not remarried. A woman not having the legal status of a wife is thus brought within the inclusive definition of the term "wife' Consistent with the objective."

The Supreme Court observed in paragraph 24 :-

"...24. Thus in those cases where a man who lived with a woman for a long time and even though they may not have undergone legal necessities of a valid marriage, should be made liable to pay the woman maintenance if he deserted her. The man should not be allowed to benefit from the legal loopholes where enjoying the advantages of a de facto marriage, without undertaking the duties and obligations. . Any other interpretation would lead the woman to vagrancy and destitution, which the provision of maintenance in section 125 is meant to prevent.."

30. The Supreme Court also observed that in a subsequent decision in Dwarka Prasad Satpathy versus Vidyut Prava Dixit (1999) 7 SCC 675; the Supreme Court had held that "the standard of proof of marriage in a section 125 proceeding is not as strict as is required in a trial for an offence under Section 494 IPC." The Court explained the reason for the aforesaid finding by holding that an order passed in an application under Section 125 does not really determine the rights and obligations of the parties, as the Section is enacted with a view to provide a summary remedy to the neglected wives to obtain maintenance. The Supreme Court held that "maintenance cannot be denied where there was some evidence on which conclusion of living together could be reached."

31. The two Judge Bench in Chanmuniya (Supra), however observed a contrary note struck by a two Judge Bench of the Supreme Court in Yamuna Bai Anant Rao Aadhav versus Anant Rao Shivram Adhav 1988 (1) SCC 530, where it was held that an attempt to exclude altogether the personal law of the parties in proceedings under section 125 is improper. The Division Bench had held that the expression "wife' in Section 125 of the Code should be interpreted to mean only a legally wedded wife. Similarly in Savita Ben Soma Bhai Bhatiya versus State of Gujarat (2005) 3 SCC 636, the Supreme Court had observed that however desirable it may be to take note of plight of an unfortunate woman, who unwittingly enters into wedlock with a married man, there is no scope to include a woman not lawfully married within the expression of "wife'. The Bench had held that this inadequacy in law can be amended only by the legislature. While coming to the aforesaid finding the judges had placed reliance upon the decision in Yamuna Bai's case.

The Supreme Court after noting the two judgements of Yamuna Bai and Savita Ben (supra), in Chan Munia's case observed that there was a divergence of judicial opinion on the interpretation of the word "wife' in Section 125 of the Code and referred the matter to the Chief Justice of India to refer the following questions to be decided by a Larger Bench:

"(i) Whether the living together of a man and woman as husband and wife for a considerable period of time would raise the presumption of a valid marriage between them and whether such a presumption would entitle the woman to maintenance under section 125 Cr.P.C.? (ii) Whether strict proof of marriage is essential for the claim of maintenance under section 125 CRPC having Regard to the provisions of Domestic Violence Act 2005? (iii) Whether a marriage performed according to customary rites and ceremonies, without strictly fulfilling the requisites of Section 7(1) of the Hindu Marriage Act 1955, Or any other personal law would entitle the woman to maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C.?"

32. The Division Bench in Chan Munia's case however expressed a prima facie opinion on the basis of various sections of Protection of Women From Domestic Violence Act 2005, that assigns a very broad and expansive definition to the term "domestic abuse' to include within its purview even economic abuse i.e. deprivation of financial and economic resources. It observed that Under Section 20 of the Act of 2005 the Magistrate may direct the respondent to pay monitory relief to the aggrieved person who may be a harassed woman for expenses incurred and losses suffered by her, which may include, but is not limited to, maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. In addition to this, some compensation may also be granted to the aggrieved person. Such relief can be sought in any legal proceedings before a Civil Court, a Family Court, or a Criminal Court, and the Act gives a very wide interpretation to the term "domestic relationship', to take it outside the confines of a marital relationship, and even includes live-in relationships in the nature of marriage within the definition of domestic relationship under section 2(f) of the Act. Therefore women in live-in relationships are also entitled to all the reliefs given in the Domestic Violence Act. It observed in paragraph 39 thus:

"39. We are thus of the opinion that if the above mentioned monitory relief and compensation can be awarded in cases of live-in relationships under the Act of 2005, they should also be allowed in the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. It seems to us that the same was confirmed by Section 26 of the said Act of 2005."

33. In Badshah versus Urmila Badshah Godse (2014) 1 SCC 188, the Supreme Court was considering the claim of maintenance by the second wife having been upheld by the High Court. The appellant had married the respondent No. 1 during the subsistence of the first marriage. Appellant had performed marriage with the respondent as per Hindu rites and rituals, in a temple, and lived for some time with the respondent. Respondent No.2 was born out of the wedlock. Later on one lady Shobha came to the house of the petitioner and claimed herself to be his wife. Respondent No.1 confronted with such a situation filed an Application claiming maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. The appellant contested the petition by filing his written statement wherein he denied having ever married the Respondent and claimed that he was not the father of the Respondent No.2 either. According to the Appellant, he was married to Shobha a long time ago and he had two children out of the wedlock and Respondent No.1 was not and could not be his wife during the subsistence of his first marriage and she had filed a false petition claiming a marital relationship with him. The Judicial Magistrate Ist class, allowed the application. The learned Additional Session Judge dismissed the Revision. The High Court affirmed the orders passed by the lower courts. The Appellant approached the Supreme Court thereafter. Counsel for the Appellant referred to the judgement of the Supreme Court in Yamunabai Anant Rao Adhav Versus Anant Rao Shivram Adhav; and Savita Ben Somabhai Bhatiya versus State of Gujarat, where the Supreme Court had observed that the expression "wife' in Section 125 Cr.P.C. cannot be stretched beyond the legislative intent and would mean only a "legally wedded wife". The appellant submitted that since the petitioner had proved that he was already married to Shobha and the said marriage was subsisting on the date of marriage with Respondent No.1, such second marriage, if any, was void and the Respondent No.1 was not his legally wedded wife and, therefore, had no right to move an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. The Supreme Court dealt with the judgements rendered in Dwarka Prasad Satpathy (supra) and Chanmuniya versus Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha (supra), and observed that no doubt the Division Bench had referred the matter to a Larger Bench framing three questions formulated by it, but it noticed that the facts in the case were different from those in Chanmuniya. The Supreme Court in Badshah versus Urmila Badshah Godse was dealing with the situation where marriage between the parties had been proved. However the appellant was denying his responsibility to pay maintenance on the ground that the second marriage during the subsistence of the first marriage was void. The Supreme Court observed that he could not be allowed to take benefit of his own wrong. The Court observed in paragraph 13.1 that "firstly in Chanmuniya case, the parties had been living together for a long time and on that basis question arose as to whether there would be a presumption of marriage between the two giving rise toa claim of maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. by interpreting the term "Wife' widely." The Supreme Court had observed in Chanmuniya (supra) that even if there was no valid marriage, the man and woman had been living together for a long time and such a woman would be entitled to maintenance. In the case of Badshah

(supra), however, the Respondent No.1 had been able to prove by cogent and strong evidence that the petitioner and the Respondent No.1 had been married to each other. Secondly, when the marriage between the Respondent No.1 and the petitioner was solemnised, the petitioner had kept the Respondent No.1 in the dark about his first marriage. A false representation was made that he was single and competent to enter into wedlock. The petitioner could not be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong and turn around and say that the respondents are not entitled to maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and say that the Respondent No.1 is not the legally wedded wife of the petitioner. The Supreme Court therefore observed that at least for the purpose of Section 125 Cr.P.C. the Respondent No.1 would be treated as the wife of the petitioner going by the spirit of the two judgements rendered in Dwarika Prasad Satpathy (Supra) and Chanmuniya (Supra). The Supreme Court held that the judgements in Adhav (supra) and Savita Ben(supra) would apply only in those circumstances where a woman married a man with full knowledge of the first subsisting marriage. In such cases, she should know that the second marriage with such a person is impermissible and, therefore, she has to suffer the consequences thereof. The said judgement would not apply to those cases where a man marries a second time by keeping that lady in dark about the first surviving marriage. The Supreme Court also observed that in such cases purposive interpretation needs to be given to the provisions of Section 125 Cr.P.C. While dealing with the application of a destitute wife or hapless children or parents under 125 Cr.P.C., the Court is dealing with marginalised sections of the society. "The purpose is to achieve social justice which is the Constitutional vision enshrined in the Preamble of the Constitution of India. - - - - - it becomes the bounden duty of the Court to advance the cause of social justice. While giving interpretation to a particular provision, the Court is supposed to bridge the gap between the law and the society... Of late, and in this very direction, it is emphasised that the Courts have to adopt different approaches in social justice adjudication which is also known as social context adjudication as mere adversarial approach may not be very appropriate. - - - in such a situation the judge has to be not only sensitive to the inequalities of parties involved but also positively inclined to the weaker party if the imbalance were not to result in miscarriage of justice. The provision of maintenance would definitely fall in this category which aims at empowering the destitute and achieving social justice or equality and dignity of the individual. While dealing with cases under this provision, a shift in the approach from adversarial litigation to social context adjudication is the need of the hour...".

34. It further observed that in Ramesh Chandra Ram Pratapji Daga versus Rameshwari Ramesh Chandra Daga (2005) 2 SCC 33, the right of the other woman in a similar situation was upheld. Here the Court had accepted that Hindu marriages have continued to be bigamous despite the enactment of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. The Court had commented that though such marriages are illegal as per the provisions of the Act, they are not immoral and hence financially dependent woman cannot be denied maintenance on this ground. The Court invoked the doctrine that where alternative constructions are possible the Court must give effect to that which will be responsible for the smooth working of the system for which the Statute has been enacted rather than one which will put a roadblock in its way. "If the choice is between two interpretations, then one which would fail to achieve the manifest purpose of the Legislation should be avoided. We should avoid a construction which would reduce the Legislation to futility and should accept the bolder construction based on the view that Parliament would legislate only for the purpose of bringing about an effective result. If this interpretation is accepted it would amount to giving a premium to the husband for defrauding the wife. Therefore, at least for the purpose of claiming maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C., such a woman would be treated as the legally wedded wife".

The court referred to the judgement rendered by it in Captain Ramesh Chand Kaushal versus Veena Kaushal (1978) 4 SCC 70, where it was observed: - "...,the brooding presence of the constitutional empathy for the weaker sections like women and children must inform the interpretation if it has to have social relevance. So viewed, it is possible to be selective in picking out that interpretation out of two alternatives which advances the cause - the cause of the derelicts."

35. Now this Court has to see whether the argument made by the learned counsel for the Revisionist on basis of judgements cited by him entitles the Revisionists to maintenance.

36. This Court has also gone through the the record of the Lower Court which was summoned earlier. Paper No.16/2 is a copy of photo copy of the Scholar Register/Admission Certificate of Neha Gupta and Kiran Gupta. The name of the child Neha has been followed by scoring out of two words and the writing of the word "Gupta" thereafter. Similarly, the father"s name and occupation also shows scoring out of several words and writing of "Khun Khun Gupta" instead. Paper No.16/3 is a photo copy of the Birth Certificate issued by Lucknow Nagar Nigam wherein the name of the child has been shown as Heena Gupta and the name of the mother has been shown as Smt. Kehkashaan w/o Shri Umesh Kumar Gupta but the words "Khun Khun" have been added later on in a different Handwriting. Paper No.16/4 is a photocopy of a news item published in the newspaper. Paper No. 16/7 are two photographs of the respondent holding a girl child in his arms on the terrace of a house. Exhibit No.C-37/2 is a Compact Disc/CD which has been taped to the record. Exhibit No.C-37/3 is a copy of a complaint made to the Chief Minister and the S.S.P., Lucknow on 24.06.2008 by the Revisionist. Paper No. C-37/7 is a photograph of the respondent standing with the Revisionist No. 1 by his side. Exhibit No.C - 37/8 is a photograph of the respondent. Exhibit No.38/7 is a mobile phone set in a yellow envelope sealed with a Cello Tape, which the learned counsel for the Revisionist says was not opened by the learned Trial Court to find out the truth of the Revisionist's claim regarding it containing conversations between the Revisionist and the respondent.

37. This Court has found from the evidence on record, which has been considered in great detail by the learned Trial Court, that:-

(a) There was no proof of marriage by Muslim rites and rituals of the Revisionist no.1 with the Respondent. She may have married one Abbas Hussain Khun Khun but she could not prove that the Respondent, Umesh Kumar Gupta was also known as Abbas Hussain Khun Khun.

(b) The Revisionist could not prove even a live-in relationship in a separate matrimonial home, and of the revisionist being recognized as wife of Umesh Gupta by the public at large.

(c) There was no proof of the first marriage having been concealed by the Respondent before alleged marriage to the Revisionist No.1.

(d) The photographs submitted in original and the CD and mobile phone set submitted by the Revisionist No.1 could however prove familiarity to the extent of intimacy of the Respondent with the Revisionist No.1 and with her family members.

(e) Hence, concubinage can be presumed from careful examination of the mobile phone set and Compact Disc submitted.

38. In such a case the children, i.e. the Revisionist No.2, 3 and 4 are entitled to maintenance of Rs. 10,000/- per month each from the Respondent from the date of this judgment till their respective marriages. The Respondent shall also be responsible to bear all their wedding expenses.

39. The Criminal Revision is disposed of with such modification of the judgment and order impugned.

2. Special Director Vs Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse, (2004) 3 SCC 440

3. Pandharinath Shridhar Rangnekar Vs Commr. of Police(1973) 1 SCC 372

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vikram D Chauhan, J.)

1. The present writ petition is filed by the petitioner challenging the show cause notice dated 3rd July 2020 said to be issued by the respondent no. 2 - District Magistrate, Jaunpur.

2. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned AGA on behalf of the State.

3. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the petitioner has been subjected to a show notice issued under Section 3(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970 (U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971). The impugned show cause notice is illegal as the general material allegation under Section 3(1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 has not been stated in the impuned show cause notice. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further relied upon the Full Bench judgment of this Court in Bhim Sain Tyagi Vs. State of U.P. and others, reported in 1999 (39) ACC 321 (FB) and submits that the writ petition against the show cause notice is maintainable as has been held by the Full Bench of this court and as such the impugned notice is liable to be quashed.

4. The learned AGA for the State has raised objection with regard to the maintainability of the present writ petition and has stated that in the writ petition the prayer is made for challenging the show cause notice whereas petitioner can always submit a reply to the show cause notice before the concerned authority and as such, the writ petition is premature and is liable to be dismissed.

5. The writ petition involves challenge to the alleged show cause notice dated 3rd July, 2020 said to have been issued by the District Magistrate, Jaunpur. As per the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner, the aforesaid notice being Annexure 1 to the writ petition, is a show cause notice issued under Section 3(1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971. A perusal of the impugned notice would demonstrate that except mentioning of the criminal cases pending against the petitioner, the general material allegations in respect of the petitioner has not been stated in the impugned notice and on the strength of the aforesaid, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the notice is bad in law and as such is liable to be quashed.

6. It is to be seen that the alleged notice dated 3rd July, 2020 is annexed as Annexure No. 1 to the writ petition at page 17. A perusal of the aforesaid document would demonstrate that the document is a requisition issued by the Superintendent of Police, Jaunpur and is addressed to the District Magistrate, Jaunpur wherein the details as to why the proceedings under Section 3(1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 be issued against the petitioner is stated, with a further request to the District Magistrate, Jaunpur to initiate proceedings under Section 3(1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971.

7. On the aforesaid requisition by the Superintendent of Police there is an endorsement by the District Magistrate, Jaunpur directing for registering the aforesaid case and transferring the aforesaid matter before the Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue for disposal.

8. In the present case, the dispute pertains to Section 3 of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 and for convenience, the same is reproduced herein-below :-

"3. Externment, etc. of Goondas. - (1) Where it appears to the District Magistrate :

(a) that any person is a goonda; and

(b) (i) that his movements or acts in the district or any part thereof are causing, or are calculated to cause alarm, danger or harm to persons or property; or

(ii) that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is engaged or about to engage, in the district or any part thereof, in the commission of an offence referred to in sub-clauses (i) to (iii) of clause (b) of Section 2, or in the abetment of any such offence; and

(c) That witnesses not willing to come forward to give evidence against him by reason of apprehension on their part as regards the safety of their person or property.

The District Magistrate shall by notice in writing, inform him of the general nature of the materials allegations against him in respect of clauses (a), (b) and (c) and give him a reason-able opportunity of tendering an explanation regarding them.

(2) The person against whom an order under this Section is proposed to be made shall have the right to consult and be defended by a Counsel of his choice and shall be given a reasonable opportunity of examining himself, if he so desires, and also of examining any other witness that he may wish to produce in support of his explanation, unless for reasons to be recorded in writing the District Magistrate is of opinion that the request is made for the purpose of vexation or delay.

(3) Thereupon the District Magistrate on being satisfied that the conditions specified in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) exist may by order in writing -

(a) direct him to remove himself outside the area within the limits of his local jurisdiction or such area and any district or districts or any part thereof, contiguous thereto, by such route, if any, and within such time as may be specified in the order and to desist from entering the said area and such contiguous district or districts or part thereof, as the case may be, from which he was directed to remove himself until the expiry of such period not exceeding six months as may be specified in the said order;

(b) (i) require such person to notify his movements, or to report himself, or to do both, in such manner at such time and to such authority or person as may be specified in the order;

(ii) prohibit or restrict possession or use by him or any such article as may be specified in the order;

(iii) direct him otherwise to conduct himself in such manner as may be specified in the order.

until the expiration of such period, not exceeding six months as may be specified in the order."

9. A bare perusal of Section 3 (1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 would demonstrate that the aforesaid authorises the District Magistrate to issue a notice in writing informing of the general nature of the material allegations against the petitioner in respect of clauses (a), (b), (c) and Section 3(1) of U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 and to provide a reasonable opportunity to the petitioner for tendering an explanation and thereafter on being satisfied pass an order under Section 3(3) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 including an externment order.

10. Under Section 15 of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971, the State Government has been authorised to make Rules for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Act. In pursuance thereof, the State Government has notified Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Rules, 1970. Under Rule 3(1) it is provided that the action under Section 3(1) will not ordinarily be taken by the District Magistrate except on the information in writing received from the Superintendent of Police of the District or Magistrate in-charge of the sub-division or on information in writing received from two respectable citizens of the locality in which the person to be proceeded against is ordinarily resident or is active. In this respect, the Rule 3(1) is quoted hereinbelow :

"3. (1) Action under sub-section (1) of Section 3 will not ordinarily be taken by the District Magistrate except on information in writing received from the Superintendent of Police of the District or Magistrate in-charge of a sub-division or on information in writing received from two respectable citizens of the locality in which the person to be proceeded against is ordinarily resident or is active. It will not be necessary for the District Magistrate to disclose the identity of the informants and particulars from which such identity can be ascertained to the person proceeded against but only the general nature of the material allegations shall be intimated to such person."

11. Rule 4 of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Rules, 1970 further provides that the notice to be issued under Section 3(1) shall be, as far as, may be in conformity with the Form I provided along with the said Rules. It is to be seen that a specific Form has been provided in the Rules for initiating proceedings/show cause notice under the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971. The FORM I prescribed under the Rules is extracted herein-below :

"SCHEDULE

FORM I

Notice under Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970

(See Rule 4)

Whereas it appears to me on basis of information laid before me that-

(a) Sri.....son of Sri.....ordinarily residing in.....is as "goonda", that is to say, he either himself or as a member or leader of gang, habitually commits, or attempts to commit, or abets the commission of offences punishable under Chapter XVI, Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the Indian Penal Code has been convicted under the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956/* has been convicted not less than thrice under the U.P. Excise Act, 1910/* is generally reputed to be a person who is desperate and dangerous to the community; and that

(b) his movements or acts in.....are causing or are calculated to cause alarm, danger or harm to persons or property/* there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is engaged or about to engage in the district or any part thereof, in the commission of any offence punishable under Chapter XVI/ Chapter XVII/* or Chapter XXII of the Indian Penal Code, or under the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956 or under the U.P. Excise Act, 1910,* or in the abetment of any such offence, and that

(c) witnesses are not willing to come forward to give evidence against him by reasons of apprehension on their part as regards the safety of their person or property ;

And whereas the material allegations against him in respect of the aforesaid clauses (a)/(b)/(c) are of the following general nature :

3. .....

The said Sri.....is hereby called upon to appear before me on (date) at (time) in my Court-room and if he so desires, to tender an explanation in writing regarding the said material allegations showing cause why an order under sub-section (3) of Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Act, 1970, may not be made against him, also intimating me whether he desires to examine himself of any other witness (if so, their names and address) in support of his explanation.

The said Sri.....is hereby informed that if he fails to appear in aforesaid or if no explanation or intimation is received with the time specified it will be presumed that Sri.....has no desire to tender any explanation/examine any witness in regard to the said allegations and I will proceed to pass the proposed order.

Seal of Court
District Magistrate/
Additional District Magistrate."

12. A perusal of the aforesaid would demonstrate that under Section 3(1) it is the District Magistrate who is authorised to issue the show cause notice under the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 and the District Magistrate is obliged under Rules to issue notice in FORM I giving details of the general nature of material allegations against the person to be proceeded with.

13. In the present case, a perusal of the alleged impugned show cause notice, at page 17 of the writ petition, would go to show that the aforesaid is information/requisition received from the Superintendent of Police, Jaunpur by the District Magistrate, Jaunpur, for proceeding under Section 3 of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 and on the aforesaid information so received, the District Magistrate has directed registration of the same and has further transferred the matter to the Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, for disposal. The aforesaid document, at page 17 of the writ petition, is neither in FORM I as prescribed under the Rules for issuance of the show cause notice nor the same can be said to be a show cause notice as it is only an information that has been received from the Superintendent of Police, Jaunpur to the office of the District Magistrate, Jaunpur for initiation of proceedings. Under the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 the aforesaid document at page 17 of the writ petition is relatable to Rule 3(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Control of Goondas Rules, 1970 and cannot be said to be a notice under Section 3(1) of U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971.

14. Once the show cause notice itself is not before this Court, it would not be proper for this Court to exercise the writ jurisdiction as the basic principle for quashing any order under writ jurisdiction is that the aforesaid order ought to have been placed before the Court and that no order under writ jurisdiction can be passed without such document being brought on record by the petitioner.

15. In so far as the issuance of show cause notice under Section 3(1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 is concerned, the notice can be issued when the conditions prescribed under Section 3(1) of the aforesaid Act are fulfilled and on the basis of the aforesaid, a notice in writing has been issued to the person concerned informing him of the general nature of material allegations against him and a reasonable opportunity of tendering an explanation regarding the same is provided. It is to be noted that the show cause notice so issued by the District Magistrate under the Act is for the purpose of calling an explanation in order to ascertain whether the proceedings under Section 3 of U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 may be proceeded with against the person concerned or not.

16. It is to be seen that against a show cause notice, the writ petition may be premature as the show cause does not give rise to any cause of action as no adverse order which affects the right of the party is in operation and unless the same is issued to the person concerned, the litigant have no right to challenge the show cause notice. It is also the settled law that the writ petition would lie when some right of the party is infringed. Further, where the show cause notice alleged to have been issued without jurisdiction of the authority, to do so, the writ petition would lie.

17. The Apex Court in Special Director v. Mohd. Ghulam Ghouse, (2004) 3 SCC 440 has deprecated the practice of entertaining writ petition against the show cause notice and in paragraph 5 has held

"This Court in a large number of cases has deprecated the practice of the High Courts entertaining writ petitions questioning legality of the show-cause notices stalling enquiries as proposed and retarding investigative process to find actual facts with the participation and in the presence of the parties. Unless the High Court is satisfied that the show-cause notice was totally non est in the eye of the law for absolute want of jurisdiction of the authority to even investigate into facts, writ petitions should not be entertained for the mere asking and as a matter of routine, and the writ petitioner should invariably be directed to respond to the show-cause notice and take all stands highlighted in the writ petition. Whether the show-cause notice was founded on any legal premises, is a jurisdictional issue which can even be urged by the recipient of the notice and such issues also can be adjudicated by the authority issuing the very notice initially, before the aggrieved could approach the court. Further, when the court passes an interim order it should be careful to see that the statutory functionaries specially and specifically constituted for the purpose are not denuded of powers and authority to initially decide the matter and ensure that ultimate relief which may or may not be finally granted in the writ petition is not accorded to the writ petitioner even at the threshold by the interim protection granted."

18. It is also to be noted that the Full Bench decision in the case of Bhim Sain Tyagi (supra) has held that a show cause notice which fails to indicate the general nature of material allegations may be challenged and quashed on that ground under Article 226 of the Constitution of India with liberty to the respondents to issue fresh notice in accordance with law. In this reference, attention is drawn to paragraph no. 17 of the aforesaid judgment and the same is quoted hereinbelow:-

"17. The aforesaid anxiety of the Division Bench should be taken due note by the Executive and whenever a show cause notice is issued it should strictly comply with the provisions of the Act and rules. Once the decision of Ramji Pandey has held the field in this State for more than 18 years there does not seem to be any necessity of taking a contrary view for the simple reason that all that the District Magistrate was expected by that decision to do is that the proposed Goonda should be made aware of "general nature of material allegation" against him, which is the requirement of the law. By asking the respondents to furnish to the proposed Goonda the general nature of material allegations against him, the Full Bench in Ramji Pandey only required the law to be followed. None should doubt that once in the show cause notice the general nature of the material allegations exists, no Court interference with such a show cause notice is called for. Challenge to a valid show cause notice complying with the requirement of law has always failed and no scope of exercising provisions under Article 226 of the Constitution of India exists in such matters. On the contrary, whenever general nature of material allegations are absent and the proposed goonda raises a grievance through a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, this Court's interference to the extent of the illegality of the notice being examined has been rightly upheld in Ramji Pandey but simultaneously it must be added that, always ensuring that, fresh notice may be issued by the District Magistrate in accordance with law. It has already been noticed above that in Subas Singh (supra) the respondents right to issue fresh notice in accordance with law was upheld and even in Harsh Narain (supra) subsequent proceedings alone were quashed due to the defective notice."

19. In the present case, it has to be seen whether the alleged show cause notice, as impugned in the present writ petition, is within the four corners of Section 3(1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 or the general nature of material allegations are missing in the alleged notice.

20. The alleged notice dated 3rd July, 2020 specifically states that the petitioner is a Goonda and there is a terror; fear in the mind of the ordinary citizens; the petitioner is having connection with other persons having criminal antecedents; is involved in abatement of the crime and there is an atmosphere where no ordinary citizens is ready to be witness against the petitioner. Further, the Superintendent of Police, Jaunpur has also reported seven cases of crime or offence pending against the petitioner and on the basis of the aforesaid, the Superintendent of Police, Jaunpur has recommended for action under the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971 against the petitioner.

21. The meaning of the words "general nature of material allegations" has not been provided in the Act and the same has to be considered in light of the object of the Act. A plain reading of the above referred provision of law would indicate that what is required to be informed in writing is only the general nature of the material allegations in order to give the person proposed to be externed a reasonable opportunity of tendering an explanation regarding the allegations. When it is said that the material allegations against the person be communicated to him generally or in a manner as to give an idea of the general nature of material allegations, it necessarily means that the material allegations with all their details regarding the date, place and specific facts of the incident must not be disclosed and only as much indication of these allegations be made in general terms as is sufficient to give notice to the proposed extemee about what he has to face and explain in the enquiry. Such information must contain in general terms the main allegations made against the proposed externee and not all the details of the allegations. In all these proceedings, the notice to be issued under section 3(1) should contain as much of material allegations stated in general terms as would be necessary for constituting a sufficient notice contemplated under the Act. If the show-cause notice were to furnish to the proposed externee concrete data like specific dates of incidents or the names of persons involved in those incidents, it would be easy enough to fix the identity of those who out of fear of injury to their person or property are unwilling to depose in public. If such details are to be given, it would defeat the very purpose of an extemment proceeding.

9.These provisions show that the reasons which necessitate or justify the passing of an externment order arise out of extraordinary circumstances. An order of externment can be passed under clause (a) or (b) of Section 56, and only if, the authority concerned is satisfied that witnesses are unwilling to come forward to give evidence in public against the proposed externee by reason of apprehension on their part as regards the safety of their person or property. A full and complete disclosure of particulars such as is requisite in an open prosecution will frustrate the very purpose of an externment proceeding. If the show-cause notice were to furnish to the proposed externee concrete data like specific dates of incidents or the names of persons involved in those incidents, it would be easy enough to fix the identity of those who out of fear of injury to their person or property are unwilling to depose in public. There is a brand of lawless element in society which is impossible to bring to book by established methods of judicial trial because in such trials there can be no conviction without legal evidence. And legal evidence is impossible to obtain, because out of fear of reprisals witnesses are unwilling to depose in public. That explains why Section 59 of the Act imposes but a limited obligation on the authorities to inform the proposed externee "of the general nature of the material allegations against him". That obligation fixes the limits of the co-relative right of the proposed externee. He is entitled, before an order of externment is passed under Section 56, to know the material allegations against him and the general nature of those allegations. He is not entitled to be informed of specific particulars relating to the material allegations."

23. In the present case, the general nature of allegations have been stated in the alleged notice dated 3rd July, 2020 and the factual foundation in general terms have been laid down by the authority concerned in the impugned order. The correctness or sanctity of the aforesaid allegations are not subject matter of enquiry before this Court at this stage. Once the general nature of material allegations is provided by the concerned authority in the impugned order, it would not be open for this Court to examine the correctness of the general allegations on merit in the writ jurisdiction specifically when the authority concerned is seized of the matter and the petitioner has an opportunity to file an explanation before the authority concerned. Even if an order has been passed under Section 3 (1) of the U.P. Act No. VIII of 1971, the person concerned has a right of appeal under Section 6 of the aforesaid Act.

24. In view of the aforesaid, since the nature of the general allegations are provided in the impugned order. This Court under extraordinary jurisdiction decline to interfere with the impugned order at this stage and liberty is granted to the petitioner to approach the authority concerned for appropriate redressal.

25. It is made clear that we have not addressed the issues raised by the petitioner on the merit of the allegation in the impugned order dated 3rd July, 2020 and it shall be open for the authority concerned to independently apply its mind to the facts and circumstances and material available and come to a logical conclusion in accordance with law.

26. Accordingly, the writ petition lacks merit and is dismissed with liberty to the petitioner to approach the authority concerned in accordance with law.

2. UP Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Vs. Swasthya Enclave Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. & ors. Civil Appeal No.9088 of 2015

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vishnu Singh, learned counsel for appellant and Sri Chandra Shekhar Singh, learned counsel for respondent.

2. This appeal under Section 96 of Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 has arisen from judgment and decree dated 16.2.2019 passed by Additional Civil Judge (Senior Division), Court No.6, Ghaziabad dismissing the suit being original Suit No.679 of 2014 of the plaintiff. The parties are referred as plaintiff/appellant-respondent/ defendant.

3. The brief facts as they are culled out from the record and for deciding the sole issue raised for on consideration namely whether demanding interest at the rate of 18% and panel interest at the rate of 21% is bad and the dismissal of suit challenging this demand is bad in view of decision of this High Court in Writ Petition No.15950 of 2002 decided on 10.8.20211 and SLP decided by the Apex Court in Civil Appeal No.9088 of 2015 (UP Avas Evam Vikas Parishad Vs. Swasthya Enclave Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. and other) decided on 16.12.2016 are that the appellant is the cooperative society registered under U.P. Co-operative Society Act, 1965 (hereinafter refereed to as "Act, 1965"). The suit was instituted on the ground that two acres plot was given to the appellant being Plot No.05 GH, 4 Vasundhara Ghaziabad on 19.11.1998 for a sum of Rs.2,67,06,537/- . The appellant had to make payment by way of installments. In the year 2000, the respondent decreased the area of the land making it to 1.25 acres and that the price of the said area is Rs.1,72,56,624/-. The plaintiff took the possession of the said land on 21.6.2021 and the lease deed was also executed.

4. The main grievance in the plaint was that the appellant deposited the amount for five years but could not pay installments. The respondents claimed 18% rate of interest and 21% as penalty interest for unpaid amount which was challenged as being unreasonable and against principles on which such interest could be demanded. The appellant showed readiness to pay 14% simple interest as according to them the said rate of interest which was approved by Hon'ble Supreme Court in a similar matter where facts were identical. A reference requires to be made to a later judgment of this Court passed on 12.5.2015 in Writ C No.13223 of 2002 (Swasthya Enclave Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. and Another Vs. D.M. Ghaziabad & Others) wherein a stand was taken by the respondent that grant of 14% rate of interest by the Supreme Court should be granted. The court refused the same as the said order of the Apex Court was not to be treated as precedent. The respondent was asked to convey whether they still wanted to place reliance on their statement of relying on the said judgment which was refused.

5. It is submitted by learned counsel that the case of Assistant HNG Commissioner, Ghaziabad and others Vs. Shri Krishna Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. has fixed the rate of interest to 14%. This fact was brought to the notice of learned Judge but the said finding is negatived.

6. The issue about demand of interest as demanded by defendant framed was answered against the plaintiff and suit was dismissed.

7. Learned counsel for the plaintiff has heavily relied on the decision in First Appeal From Order No. 662 of 2004, judgment dated 16.3.2004 wherein in similar facts, 8% interest has been considered to be just and proper where 8% rate of interest granted has attained finality.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant has relied on the judgment of Supreme Court in SLP (CC) No. 2376 of 2012 decided on 13.3.2012 arising from FAFO No.662 of 2004 and contended that similar treatment be accorded to the plaintiff - appellant herein but not granting the same is bad in eye of law. This Court requested the respondent to mediate or re-conciliate but the proposal was rejected.

9. It is further submitted by counsel for appellant that the Court below has illegally reached to the conclusion that the judgment and order dated 13.3.2012 passed by Apex Court in SLP (CC) No. 2376 of 2012 between Assistant H.N.G. Commissioner, Ghaziabad and others Vs. Shri Krishna Sahkari Awas Samiti Limited is not binding precedent and the ratio of the said judgment cannot be applied in the facts and circumstances of the present case and dismissed the suit.

10. It is submitted by counsel for the appellant that the Court below has failed to consider the ratio of judgment dated 13.3.2012 passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in SLP (CC) No. 2376 of 2012 between Assistant H.N.G. Commissioner, Ghaziabad and others Vs. Shri Krishna Sahkari Awas Samiti Limited, while dismissing the suit of the plaintiff. It is further submitted that the Court below has also illegally reached the conclusion that the plaintiff - appellant has not approached the Court with clean hands. The said conclusion of the Court below is illegal and against the pleadings of the plaintiff as well as the material evidence adduced by the plaintiff available on record, hence the findings recorded by the Court below are vitiated by law and deserves to be set aside. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the plaintiff - appellant was required to pay said amount in 8 quarterly installments w.e.f. 01.10.1998. It is totally wrong to assert that in case of installment, the society was supposed to pay 8 installments of Rs.41,83,900/- each. The allotment letter dated 19.11.1998 specifically provides that above mentioned amount either by cash / cheque or draft would be deposited in the Allahabad Bank, Branch Vasundhara, Ghaziabad. In case the amount of installment was not deposited within stipulated period of time then from the date of deposit of first installment, what additional interest would be liable to be paid by the society was not fixed. It is further submitted that an amended allotment letter dated 2.11.2000, the defendant Awas Vikas Parishad has reduced the area of the plot in question from 2 acres to 1.25 acres and the cost of the land has also been reduced to the tune of Rs.1,72,56,624/- only but strange enough the repayment scheduled as provided in the initial allotment letter dated 19.11.1998 was neither changed nor amended in pursuance of the amended allotment letter dated 2.11.2000 whereby the area and the cost of the land allotted to the appellant - plaintiff has been reduced and there is no new re-schedule plan issued by the defendant - respondent for assuring the payment of the land in dispute. The society has already deposited a sum of Rs.98,74,877/- upto 8.6.2001 which is more than 50% of the cost of land. The possession of the aforesaid allotted land was handed over to the appellant society on 21.6.2001.

11. It is submitted by learned counsel for the respondent that enhanced liability fastened is just and proper. The rate of 18% interest and 21% panal interest on plaintiff has already been enhanced and the plaintiff was obliged to pay the amount with interest . The judgment of Supreme Court passed in SLP (CC) No.2376 of 2012 (Assistant H.N.G. Commissioner, Ghaziabad and others Vs. Shri Krishna Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd.) cannot apply to the facts of this case.

12. For the reasons mentioned herein below, we cannot concur with the judgment of the Court below and it is bad on facts and law.The amount of interest recoverable, at any one time cannot exceed the principal as per judgment in Dhondu v. Narayan, (1863) 1 Bom HC 47. Law of Damdupat says that a creditor is not entitled at any one time to recover interest exceeding the amount of principal. It doesn't say that a creditor shall not in any case be entitled to interest exceeding the principal.

13. The suit could not have been dismissed. The reasonings and finding on most of eleven issues are not only the perverse but there is no discussion whether there was any contract to the contrary by and between the parties for demanding 18% interest and the panel interest would be 21%.

14. The learned Judge has failed to appreciate the fact that the Apex Court has decided the appeal holding that rate of interest would be 14% was in pursuance of order passed in First Appeal From Order No.662 of 2004 whereas this High Court in Writ Petition No.13223 of 2002 a copy of which is produced by way of additional evidence under Order XXXXI Rule 27 of the Cr.P.C.. The said judgment relies on the Division Bench judgment passed on 10.8.2011 in Writ Petition No.15950 of 2002. The Division Bench headed by Hon'ble Mr. Justice Krishna Murari (he was then) was in the said decision granted 8% rate of interest. If we apply it, can the submission of counsel for the respondents is accepted that the decision of Apex Court be relied. The subsequent decision holds the rate of interest as per repo rate would be 8% as the earlier judgment passed in Writ Petition No.15950 of 2002, on similar facts has attained finality as nothing has been brought to our notice as to in the said matters where the respondents are involved and the interest at the rate of 18% on delayed payment and 21% panal interest has been quashed and the interest is fixed at 8%. This Court as in the year 2016 again decided that the correct rate of interest would be 8% as decided in Writ Petition No. 15950 of 2002 but in our case we would be obliged to follow the same, we were taking a liberal view and hold that the appellants would be liable to pay 14% rate of interest, on the unpaid amount (which has been objected by the learned counsel for respondents), till the amount is paid on the basis that the appellants had prayed that they may be permitted to pay balance amount at the rate of 14% as per decision of Apex Court not accepting this has obliged us to decide the matter on merits and rely on the Division Bench judgment passed in Writ C No.13223 of 2002 on 12.5.2015 which reads as under :

" Heard Sri G.K. Singh, learned senior counsel, assisted by Sri G.K. Malviya, appearing for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State respondent no.1 & 2 and Sri Shri Kant, appearing for the respondent no.3.

By this writ petition, petitioner has challenged the recovery proceedings initiated at the instance of respondent no.3, whereby a sum of Rs.2,58,87,731/- including 21% interest on delayed payment to the concerned respondent has been claimed.

Learned counsel for the parties do not dispute the fact that the dispute involved herein stands adjudicated by a Division Bench vide judgment dated 10.8.2011 passed in Writ Petition No.15950 of 2002. The said writ petition was dismissed by making following observations:-

"16. Besides this, it is to be noted that since this court has stayed the impugned order dated 27.3.2002 passed by respondent vide interim order dated 23.4.2002, therefore, in event of recovery sought to be made from the petitioner as intended by the impugned order dated 27.3.2002 or otherwise on the basis of fresh decision in pursuance of our this order, in that situation, we are of the further opinion that on the amount sought to be recovered only 8% simple interest per annum shall be charged from the petitioner during the period of pendency of instant writ petition and/or till the fresh decision is taken as directed by this court, such interest, in our opinion would meet the ends of justice and also balance the equity between the parties."

In view of the above, this writ petition also stands disposed of in the same terms.

In the end, it was submitted by Sri Shri Kant, learned counsel for respondent no.3, that against the aforesaid judgment, a special leave petition was preferred, wherein interest payable was made 14% instead of 8%, vide judgment dated 13.3.2012, a copy of which has been placed before us, where from we find that Apex Court has held that this order shall not be treated as precedent in another identical matter. Moreover, perusal of the judgment dated 13.3.2012 goes to show that this is on the consent of the parties before the Apex Court and since parties have not consented before us, for disposal of matter upon similar terms, we are not inclined to pass said order. "

15. The earlier judgment will enure for the benefit of the appellant herein and we direct that 8% rate of interest would be the interest. We direct the same to be paid within 12 weeks from today. The appeal is partly allowed . The respondent is directed to first calculate the amount already paid by the appellants herein towards the principal amount and then calculate interest at the rate of 14% and assign the statement to the appellants herein within four weeks from today. The appellants will have eight weeks thereafter to deposit the amount, failing which the respondents would be at liberty to take legal proceedings as permitted under law as it is seen that the appellants have misused the liberty given time and again.

16. We really obliged that the respondents did not accept our proposal to settle the matter and accept 14% rate of interest. While going through the record, we are covered by the later judgment passed on 10.8.2021 in Writ Petition No.15950 of 2002 which hold the fact that the plaintiff has requested that they may be permitted to pay 14% rate of interest is on the decision of Apex Court which according to the respondent is not applicable. The dismissal of the suit is absolutely without any basis. There was no contract for 18% rate of interest. The Committee has also not given any reasons why they are charging this high rate of interest for this commercial transaction. The suit could not have been dismissed as the demand itself is without any reasons against the mandate of law of Damdupat and even against the principles of Indian Contract Act.

17. We, therefore, are obliged to allow the appeal and hold that the rate of interest would be 8% as per the judgment granted in Writ C No.13223 of 2002 dated 12.5.2015.

18. We set aside the order of the Court below and decree the suit holding that the demand is bad in eye of law. The appellant -plaintiffs would be obliged pay the remaining amount with 8% rate of interest. Record and proceeding be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith. Fresh modified decree be passed.

19. We are thankful to learned counsel for the parties for assisting the Court very ably whereas we are pained to mention that the respondent in one matter pressed into service the order of the Apex Court directing 14% whereas in this matter they contended that it was in peculiar facts of the case there are two matters where the precedent was granting 8% interest.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. The husband, who has failed before the two Courts below to secure a decree of divorce, has appealed under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, asking those decrees to be overturned and a decree of divorce granted.

2. The fact giving rise to this appeal are these:

3. Deepak Bose, the appellant here, instituted a petition for divorce against Smt. Shrabonee Bose, the sole respondent, before the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Ghaziabad, seeking a decree for divorce under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. The petition was registered as Marriage Petition No.1098 of 2010. It was pleaded in the petition, inter alia, that Deepak Bose and Shrabonee Bose were married according to Hindu rites on 11.07.2001. In course of time, two sons were born to the parties. Deepak Bose, who shall hereinafter be referred to as "the appellant', says that he discharged his duties as a husband faithfully. It is asserted by the appellant that at the time of marriage, it was represented that Shrabonee Bose, who shall hereinafter be called "the respondent', was of the same age as that of the appellant. It was also represented to the appellant that the respondent was unmarried, though, in fact, she is a divorcee. The appellant came to know of the fact that the respondent was a divorcee six years after the parties' marriage in the year 2001.

4. It was pleaded that the respondent is three years' older to the appellant. Upon further inquiry, it came to the appellant's knowledge that the respondent was first married in the year 1990, and she and the man she had earlier married, divorced in the year 1996. It was asserted that in the aforesaid manner, the appellant and his family members were defrauded by falsehood into marrying the respondent. The respondent was also castigated as a woman of questionable character, inasmuch as after the appellant would go to sleep, she would be busy on her phone until late in the night and exchange e-mails and SMSs. It is said that when the appellant asked the respondent to desist from this kind of interaction, she refused and remained firm on her stand. It is pleaded that the respondent wants to stay away from the appellant. The respondent did not serve the appellant's old, ailing and dependent mother in any way. The respondent is said to have exerted pressure upon the appellant to forsake his mother and in that endeavour of hers, she had the support of her family.

5. It is the appellant's further case that despite persuasion by him that the respondent ought to take care of his mother, she stuck course. After the appellant would go away to work, the respondent never served meals to his mother on time or gave her medicines. Any persuasion would lead the respondent to fight the appellant. It is the appellant's case that the daily bickerings mounted so much of anxiety that it resulted in him suffering from diabetes. It is the appellant's further case that it was heightened pain for him when the respondent and her family asked him to resign his job and move over to Jamshedpur forsaking his old mother. The appellant is employed with a company, that manufactures computers, on a good position. He draws a handsome salary. He takes care of his mother and cannot forsake her. It is pleaded that any attempt by the appellant to persuade the respondent to be amiable towards him and his mother would lead her to fight the appellant, to the extent of assaulting him. The respondent's behaviour is claimed to be casting an ill-effect upon the parties' sons.

6. It is the appellant's further case that in the backdrop of all that has been indicated, the respondent suddenly left her matrimonial home on 22.11.2007, along with her father and brother, quietly and without informing the appellant. The appellant went over to the respondent, asking her to come back along with her children a number of times, but to no avail. The appellant, upon visiting his in-laws, was insulted and turned away. The appellant had also addressed letters to the respondent, which have led to no positive answer. It is also pleaded that on 22.11.2007 the respondent fought the appellant on the foot of unreasonable demands and refused to continue in matrimony, that is before she left the appellant along with her father and brother. It is on these facts that the appellant asked for a decree of divorce petitioning the Court under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act.

7. The respondent put in a written statement and denied the appellant's allegations. She has pleaded that parties' marriage was solemnized according to Hindu rites, with the appellant being lavished with gifts etc. The parties have two sons, who were then aged six years and five years . The respondent dutifully discharged her obligations as a wife, but the appellant was an aggressive man. In the evenings, he would return home drunk and beat up the respondent. It is also pleaded that the parties' marriage was solemnized according to the socially acceptable form of an arranged marriage, where the respondent had clearly disclosed her age and the factum of her previous marriage to the appellant. It is elaborated that the respondent had informed the appellant about her previous marriage in all detail as also her age. It is only after the appellant had agreed that the family members spoke about settling the matrimonial alliance. It is also pleaded that the appellant is a drunkard and a man described in her pleadings by the respondent as "बुरे चरित्र का व्यक्ति", that would most closely translate into English, for a philanderer. He would abuse the respondent in vulgar language.

8. It is also pleaded by the respondent that the appellant has a number of women friends who have been described in the pleadings as "Mahila Mitra". The appellant would bring them home along and upon the respondent asking him not to do so, would beat her up. It is also pleaded that the appellant is an experienced hand at computers and has doctored e-mails in her account to serve his purpose. The respondent has blamed the appellant and his mother of demanding dowry from her father and in connection with the demand, treating the respondent to vulgar abuses, besides inflicting violence. It is pleaded that fed up with the appellant's behaviour, the respondent called her father over telephone to Ghaziabad and on 22.11.2007, lodged a report with the Indirapuram Police Station. It is also pleaded that the respondent requested the appellant a number of times to permit her and the children to stay with him, but he refused. Left with no other option, the respondent has brought proceedings for maintenance before the Court at Jamshedpur, that were pending until the respondent put in her pleadings.

9. The Trial Court on the pleadings of parties framed the following issues (translated into English from Hindi):

"(1) Whether the opposite party tortured the petitioner physically and mentally, amounting to cruel behaviour, on account of which, it is not possible for the petitioner to stay together with the opposite party?

(2) Whether the petitioner is entitled to a decree of divorce against the opposite party?

(3) Whether the case is undervalued and the court-fee paid insufficient?

(4) Whether the petitioner is entitled to any other relief?"

10. The appellant, in support of his case, filed fourteen documents through a list, Paper No.7ग and another twelve through a separate list, bearing Paper No.43ग. The appellant examined himself as PW-1, filing for his examination-in-chief a duly sworn affidavit, marked Paper No.27क1. He appeared in the dock to face cross-examination.

11. The respondent examined herself in support of her defence as DW-1, and in lieu of her examination-in-chief in the witness-box, filed an affidavit bearing Paper No.41क1. She entered the witness-box to face cross-examination as DW-1. Likewise, another witness, DW-2, Gajendra Tyagi was also examined, who filed his evidence on affidavit that he supported in the witness-box under the grill of cross-examination.

12. The Trial Court did not find on Issue No.1 a case of cruelty established and while returning finding on Issue No.2, held that a case for annulling the marriage on ground that the respondent's consent to it was secured by fraud as to a material fact concerning the respondent, to be not open in view of the bar of limitation under Section 12(2)(i) & (ii) read with Section 12(1)(c) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. So far as the ground urged under Section 13(1)(i) of the Hindu Marriage Act is concerned, the Trial Court opined that there was no evidence to show that the respondent had violated the aforesaid mandate of the law. On these findings broadly, the Trial Court dismissed the petition.

13. The appellant carried an appeal to the District Judge under Section 28 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. The appeal was numbered on the file of the District Judge, Ghaziabad as Civil Appeal No.167 of 2012, where in the grounds of appeal together with cruelty, a case of desertion on the pleaded facts was also raised. It appears that when the appeal was argued before the Lower Appellate Court, a case for divorce as also a decree of annulment was argued, based on act(s) of adultery by the respondent under Section 13(1)(i); a case based on cruelty and desertion under Sections 13(1)(ia) and 13(1)(1b) of the Hindu Marriage Act; a case for annulment based on fraud practiced by the respondent in obtaining the appellant's consent to the marriage under Section 12 of the Hindu Marriage Act; and, a case for divorce based on irretrievable breakdown of marriage on foot of the provisions of Section 13(1)(1A) of the Hindu Marriage Act. It is on the aforesaid grounds that the Lower Appellate Court extensively examined the evidence led by parties, both oral and documentary, and dismissed the appeal.

14. Aggrieved, this appeal from the appellate decree has been preferred.

15. The appeal was admitted to hearing vide order dated 28.05.2013, when the following two substantial questions of law were formulated:

"(A) Whether the opposite party leaving the Matrimonial home for more than five years amounts also to leaving the appellant, thereby amounting to desertion under Section 13(1)(b) of Hindu Marriage Act, 1955?

(B) Whether desertion without a reasonable cause and without the consent of the party aggrieved during the wedlock shall amount to cruelty under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act?"

16. Before commencement of hearing, a further substantial question of law, marked (C) was formulated on 06.08.2021. It reads:

"(C) Whether it is open to the High Court to pass a decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage in a petition brought for divorce under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955?"

17. The respondent, despite all efforts to serve her, did not appear. Those efforts included substituted service by publication. Service was held sufficient vide order dated 04.07.2019. From 2019 till the appeal proceeded to hearing, no one appeared on behalf of the respondent. The appeal was, therefore, heard ex parte and judgment reserved.

18. Heard Mr. Anand Kumar Srivastava, learned Counsel for the appellant.

19. So far as Substantial Question of Law (A) is concerned, it is to be seen whether the five years that the respondent completely forsook her matrimonial home amounts to desertion within the meaning of Section 13(ib) of the Hindu Marriage Act. The Lower Appellate Court in examining the question of desertion, coupled with cruelty, has assessed it on five parameters, to wit, (i) the factum of separation; (ii) animus deserendi or intention to desert; (iii) desertion should be without consent of the appellant; (iv) desertion should be without any reasonable cause; and, (v) the statutory period of two years of desertion, should elapse immediately preceding the presentation of the petition. The Lower Appellate Court has held, on appreciation of evidence, that the factum of separation, desertion being without the consent of the appellant and the desertion continuing across a period of more than two years preceding the presentation of the petition are well established. The Lower Appellate Court, however, has held that animus diserendi and further that the desertion is one that is without reasonable cause, are not established. In reaching those conclusions, the Lower Appellate Court has evaluated the conduct of the respondent to hold that she did not harbour an intention to desert and was impelled by the appellant's conduct into withdrawing from his company. What conduct of the appellant, the Lower Appellate Court and the Trial Court too have taken into account, in order to reach that conclusion, would be shortly noticed.

20. Before the substantial question of law involved is answered, it is imperative to examine the law governing actionable desertion under the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and the standard by which it is required to be proved. There is a classic statement about the law relating to desertion to be found in Savitri Pandey v. Prem Chandra Pandey, (2002) 2 SC 73, where it has been held:

"8. "Desertion", for the purpose of seeking divorce under the Act, means the intentional permanent forsaking and abandonment of one spouse by the other without that other's consent and without reasonable cause. In other words it is a total repudiation of the obligations of marriage. Desertion is not the withdrawal from a place but from a state of things. Desertion, therefore, means withdrawing from the matrimonial obligations i.e. not permitting or allowing and facilitating the cohabitation between the parties. The proof of desertion has to be considered by taking into consideration the concept of marriage which in law legalises the sexual relationship between man and woman in the society for the perpetuation of race, permitting lawful indulgence in passion to prevent licentiousness and for procreation of children. Desertion is not a single act complete in itself, it is a continuous course of conduct to be determined under the facts and circumstances of each case. After referring to a host of authorities and the views of various authors, this Court in Bipinchandra Jaisinghbai Shah v. Prabhavati [AIR 1957 SC 176] held that if a spouse abandons the other in a state of temporary passion, for example, anger or disgust without intending permanently to cease cohabitation, it will not amount to desertion. It further held : (AIR pp. 183-84, para 10)

"For the offence of desertion, so far as the deserting spouse is concerned, two essential conditions must be there, namely (1) the factum of separation, and (2) the intention to bring cohabitation permanently to an end (animus deserendi). Similarly two elements are essential so far as the deserted spouse is concerned : (1) the absence of consent, and (2) absence of conduct giving reasonable cause to the spouse leaving the matrimonial home to form the necessary intention aforesaid. The petitioner for divorce bears the burden of proving those elements in the two spouses respectively. Here a difference between the English law and the law as enacted by the Bombay Legislature may be pointed out. Whereas under the English law those essential conditions must continue throughout the course of the three years immediately preceding the institution of the suit for divorce, under the Act, the period is four years without specifying that it should immediately precede the commencement of proceedings for divorce. Whether the omission of the last clause has any practical result need not detain us, as it does not call for decision in the present case. Desertion is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of each case. The inference may be drawn from certain facts which may not in another case be capable of leading to the same inference; that is to say, the facts have to be viewed as to the purpose which is revealed by those acts or by conduct and expression of intention, both anterior and subsequent to the actual acts of separation. If, in fact, there has been a separation, the essential question always is whether that act could be attributable to an animus deserendi. The offence of desertion commences when the fact of separation and the animus deserendi coexist. But it is not necessary that they should commence at the same time. The de facto separation may have commenced without the necessary animus or it may be that the separation and the animus deserendi coincide in point of time; for example, when the separating spouse abandons the marital home with the intention, express or implied, of bringing cohabitation permanently to a close. The law in England has prescribed a three years' period and the Bombay Act prescribed a period of four years as a continuous period during which the two elements must subsist. Hence, if a deserting spouse takes advantage of the locus poenitentiae thus provided by law and decide to come back to the deserted spouse by a bona fide offer of resuming the matrimonial home with all the implications of marital life, before the statutory period is out or even after the lapse of that period, unless proceedings for divorce have been commenced, desertion comes to an end and if the deserted spouse unreasonably refuses the offer, the latter may be in desertion and not the former. Hence it is necessary that during all the period that there has been a desertion, the deserted spouse must affirm the marriage and be ready and willing to resume married life on such conditions as may be reasonable. It is also well settled that in proceedings for divorce the plaintiff must prove the offence of desertion, like and other matrimonial offence, beyond all reasonable doubt. Hence, though corroboration is not required as an absolute rule of law the courts insist upon corroborative evidence, unless its absence is accounted for to the satisfaction of the court."

9. Following the decision in Bipinchandra case [AIR 1957 SC 176] this Court again reiterated the legal position in Lachman Utamchand Kirpalani v. Meena [AIR 1964 SC 40] by holding that in its essence desertion means the intentional permanent forsaking and abandonment of one spouse by the other without that other's consent, and without reasonable cause. For the offence of desertion so far as the deserting spouse is concerned, two essential conditions must be there (1) the factum of separation, and (2) the intention to bring cohabitation permanently to an end (animus deserendi). Similarly two elements are essential so far as the deserted spouse is concerned : (1) the absence of consent, and (2) absence of conduct giving reasonable cause to the spouse leaving the matrimonial home to form the necessary intention aforesaid. For holding desertion as proved the inference may be drawn from certain facts which may not in another case be capable of leading to the same inference; that is to say the facts have to be viewed as to the purpose which is revealed by those acts or by conduct and expression of intention, both anterior and subsequent to the actual acts of separation.

10. To prove desertion in matrimonial matter it is not always necessary that one of the spouses should have left the company of the other as desertion could be proved while living under the same roof. Desertion cannot be equated with separate living by the parties to the marriage. Desertion may also be constructive which can be inferred from the attending circumstances. It has always to be kept in mind that the question of desertion is a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of each case."

21. The Lower Appellate Court, while appreciating the evidence of parties, has acknowledged the fact that it is a case where the parties have traded allegations of immorality and soiling the marital bond against each other. It is true that these allegations have figured in the evidence of both parties. But the Courts below, particularly the Lower Appellate Court, has accepted it for a reasonable cause for the wife to leave her matrimonial home, her case about the husband being a drunkard, a wife-beater and a man given to the vice of illicit relations with women. The Lower Appellate Court has been impressed by the fact that some women have been named by the wife, who were brought home by the appellant to gratify his immoral needs.

22. There are allegations, on the other hand, by the appellant against the respondent about speaking to men over social networking sites etc. These allegations have been discarded, for the documentary evidence about them being not proved according to Section 65-B(4) of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. The respondent has emphasized somewhere that up to the month of August, 2007, it was the respondent alone, who was at the receiving end of the appellant's beating, but the children were not the victims of it. Therefore, the respondent was suffering the violence until then. Later on, the children too would be beaten up. From all this evidence, the Courts below have concluded that the respondent had reasonable cause to leave her matrimonial home.

23. This Court is of opinion that approach of the Courts below, particularly the Lower Appellate Court, that has attempted a more wholesome appraisal of the evidence, suffers from fundamental errors of a kind that bordering on perversity. The reason is that the allegations of the wife in the witness-box have been accepted to be proof of themselves, ignoring glaring circumstances that are essential to judge the veracity of the parties' statements in the dock in a matter like the present one. It is a case where the strained spouses have come up with nothing more than allegations said on oath. The Courts below have not been wrong in discarding the appellant's allegations about the respondent's fidelity; but they are wrong to the extent of defiance of logic in accepting every word that the respondent has said in justification of her action in leaving the matrimonial home. The most crucial point, that appears to have been missed by the Courts below, is that there is nothing on record to suggest that there was any particular event on 22.11.2007 when the respondent left her matrimonial home and went over to her parents. On that date, she left an information with the Police, that was never registered as a case, saying that she was subjected to violence by the appellant, not permitted to speak to anyone, even her parents and had been attempted to be throttled to death on two occasions. Thereafter, she somehow managed to leave her matrimonial home along with the two sons, informing the Police. However, much by contrast in her dock evidence during cross-examination, the respondent has said that she was thrown out of her matrimonial home on 22.11.2007, and, therefore, while leaving, she had informed the Police. It is not this essential contradiction in evidence that troubles this Court, for we are not a Court of fact. The crucial point, that the Courts below have completely ignored to reach an illogical and perverse conclusion from this evidence, is that about all these violent happenings that the respondent alleges, there is no circumstance or contemporaneous evidence that may lend any support to it. There is no evidence like a complaint to any Authority at any time prior to 22.11.2007 about all this physical violence or even some kind of a correspondence, electronic or in ink, exchanged by the respondent with her parents about this distress in her life. Prior to 22.11.2007, there is hardly anything on record to show that the respondent was ever battered or attempted to be throttled, or that she was in great distress because the appellant was a drunkard or a man given to a lecherous way of life. There is not an iota of evidence about all this. The only inference, therefore, from the allegations traded on both sides that can be drawn is that the couple have not got along, despite being blessed with two children and have not been able to overcome the wear and tear of married life. The fact that the respondent and the appellant could not get along in matrimony, is by itself not a reasonable cause, justifying the respondent's action in leaving her matrimonial home.

24. The way the evidence appears in this case, there is not a hint of evidence to show that the appellant has indulged in the immoral way of life, as the respondent alleges. The appellant in his cross-examination has stoutly denied any amorous relationship with woman/women. He has not been confronted with any fact during his cross-examination, requiring him to explain any circumstance going against him on this count. It is well reputed that it is difficult to prove a negative fact. In the absence of the respondent placing on record some evidence to show the waywardness she alleges for the appellant, he cannot be saddled with the burden of establishing that he is not a drunkard, or a man of immoral character or a wife-beater. In accepting the wife's oral testimony as proof of itself, the Courts below have virtually placed burden upon the husband to prove the non-existence of these blameworthy facts, that would justify the wife's action in withdrawing from the husband's company. This approach of the Courts below is fundamentally flawed and perverse.

25. On the other hand, the appellant's case that the respondent has not been serving meals to his mother on time or giving her her medicines, may show a mindset that does not accord well with contemporary social values and the marital roles for spouses. Likewise, the appellant suspecting the respondent for interacting on social media with a long list of friends, may also be the pitfall of a value gap between the spouses, or the appellant and the respondent representing two different social outlooks in a society that is in the throes of transition about gender roles generally, particularly, in matrimony. But, all these differences, that have marred the parties' marriage, would not, by a reasonable standard, serve as a justification for the wife to permanently forsake the husband's company. These truly do not go beyond what is conventionally called "wear and tear of marriage'.

26. The course of events in this case show that the respondent has not ever made any effort or taken any step to resume her matrimonial life with the appellant. She left her matrimonial home on 22.11.2007, never to return. We think that it would be unreasonable to assume that the wife must come back to her husband's home always, as if it were the employers' premises. The integrity of marriage lies in the husband and wife being together, even if they are separated by distance. The matrimonial home has to remain intact to sustain a marriage and not a matrimonial house, as if it were. Here, the animus deserdendi, by no possible approach, can be found to be wanting in the respondent's conduct, a conclusion that the Lower Appellate Court has drawn on a perverse approach to the evidence. The respondent left home on 22.11.2007 and ever since, it has been a complete disjunct between the spouses. The appellant has said in his evidence during cross-examination, in answer to a recorded question, that during the six months after the respondent left her matrimonial home, he made efforts to re-unite, but ceased to do so upon the respondent launching a prosecution under Section 498A IPC etc. against him. The Lower Appellate Court, however, has concluded against the appellant about the fact that he never attempted a restoration of the parties' matrimonial bond, going by the fact that he admittedly did not bring a petition for restitution of conjugal rights. It must be remarked that mere failure to institute a petition for restitution of conjugal rights is no index of the lack of will or intention of a party to the marriage, who says that he/ she tried to restore the ruptured bond. The appellant here has not been contradicted about the assertion that during the six months before commencement of prosecution by the respondent against him, he made efforts towards reunion. The only question put to him appears to be about his failure to institute a petition for restitution of conjugal rights, that he had not done. The fact remains that by now, it has been a period of fourteen years since the respondent withdrew from matrimonial life, forsaking the appellant's company. Ever since, there has been no resumption or revival of the matrimonial ties. In the face of all this evidence to conclude that there has been no desertion within the meaning of Section 13(ib) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, is an approach that is fundamentally flawed and impossible to countenance.

27. This Court, in the exercise of powers under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 is not completely denuded of jurisdiction to go into questions of fact, howsoever perversely determined by the Courts below. Decisions that are fundamentally flawed and illogical by all demonstrable standards can be corrected by this Court in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 100 of the Code, as held by the Supreme Court in K.N. Nagarajappa and others v. H. Narsimha Reddy, AIR 2021 SC 4259.

28. In the circumstances, this Court is of opinion that Substantial Question of Law (A) has to be answered in the affirmative, holding a case of desertion established within the meaning of Section 13(ib) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.

29. The next question that falls for consideration is Substantial Question of Law (B), which is to the effect, "Whether desertion without a reasonable cause and without the consent of the party aggrieved during the wedlock shall amount to cruelty under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act?". To this, it may be added that this question would have to be judged with reference to the provisions of Section 13(ia) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.

30. It has been mooted by the learned Counsel for the appellant that an unduly longed separation brought about by the offending spouse, evidencing no concern about the other, would qualify for mental cruelty. This Court has found elsewhere that the evidence is unmistakable that the respondent is now staying away from the appellant for a period as long as fourteen years. To this may be added the fact that during these fourteen years, there has been nothing of the kind happening that the relationship of matrimony between parties evidences. During all these fourteen years the emotions that are the hallmark of a marriage have become extinct, with the parties not knowing what has become of the other. It has been found elsewhere that it is the respondent who walked away never to return or resume the pious relationship.

31. The concept of 'mental cruelty' has received a most comprehensive consideration in the context of Section 13(ib) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 by the Supreme Court in Samar Ghosh v. Jaya Ghosh, (2007) 4 SCC 511. In expositing the concept of mental cruelty, their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Samar Ghosh (supra) have observed:

"98. On proper analysis and scrutiny of the judgments of this Court and other courts, we have come to the definite conclusion that there cannot be any comprehensive definition of the concept of "mental cruelty" within which all kinds of cases of mental cruelty can be covered. No court in our considered view should even attempt to give a comprehensive definition of mental cruelty.

99. Human mind is extremely complex and human behaviour is equally complicated. Similarly human ingenuity has no bound, therefore, to assimilate the entire human behaviour in one definition is almost impossible. What is cruelty in one case may not amount to cruelty in other case. The concept of cruelty differs from person to person depending upon his upbringing, level of sensitivity, educational, family and cultural background, financial position, social status, customs, traditions, religious beliefs, human values and their value system.

100. Apart from this, the concept of mental cruelty cannot remain static; it is bound to change with the passage of time, impact of modern culture through print and electronic media and value system, etc. etc. What may be mental cruelty now may not remain a mental cruelty after a passage of time or vice versa. There can never be any straitjacket formula or fixed parameters for determining mental cruelty in matrimonial matters. The prudent and appropriate way to adjudicate the case would be to evaluate it on its peculiar facts and circumstances while taking aforementioned factors in consideration.

101. No uniform standard can ever be laid down for guidance, yet we deem it appropriate to enumerate some instances of human behaviour which may be relevant in dealing with the cases of "mental cruelty". The instances indicated in the succeeding paragraphs are only illustrative and not exhaustive:

(i) On consideration of complete matrimonial life of the parties, acute mental pain, agony and suffering as would not make possible for the parties to live with each other could come within the broad parameters of mental cruelty.

(ii) On comprehensive appraisal of the entire matrimonial life of the parties, it becomes abundantly clear that situation is such that the wronged party cannot reasonably be asked to put up with such conduct and continue to live with other party.

(iii) Mere coldness or lack of affection cannot amount to cruelty, frequent rudeness of language, petulance of manner, indifference and neglect may reach such a degree that it makes the married life for the other spouse absolutely intolerable.

(iv) Mental cruelty is a state of mind. The feeling of deep anguish, disappointment, frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of other for a long time may lead to mental cruelty.

(v) A sustained course of abusive and humiliating treatment calculated to torture, discommode or render miserable life of the spouse.

(vi) Sustained unjustifiable conduct and behaviour of one spouse actually affecting physical and mental health of the other spouse. The treatment complained of and the resultant danger or apprehension must be very grave, substantial and weighty.

(vii) Sustained reprehensible conduct, studied neglect, indifference or total departure from the normal standard of conjugal kindness causing injury to mental health or deriving sadistic pleasure can also amount to mental cruelty.

(viii) The conduct must be much more than jealousy, selfishness, possessiveness, which causes unhappiness and dissatisfaction and emotional upset may not be a ground for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(ix) Mere trivial irritations, quarrels, normal wear and tear of the married life which happens in day-to-day life would not be adequate for grant of divorce on the ground of mental cruelty.

(x) The married life should be reviewed as a whole and a few isolated instances over a period of years will not amount to cruelty. The ill conduct must be persistent for a fairly lengthy period, where the relationship has deteriorated to an extent that because of the acts and behaviour of a spouse, the wronged party finds it extremely difficult to live with the other party any longer, may amount to mental cruelty.

(xi) If a husband submits himself for an operation of sterilisation without medical reasons and without the consent or knowledge of his wife and similarly, if the wife undergoes vasectomy or abortion without medical reason or without the consent or knowledge of her husband, such an act of the spouse may lead to mental cruelty.

(xii) Unilateral decision of refusal to have intercourse for considerable period without there being any physical incapacity or valid reason may amount to mental cruelty.

(xiii) Unilateral decision of either husband or wife after marriage not to have child from the marriage may amount to cruelty.

(xiv) Where there has been a long period of continuous separation, it may fairly be concluded that the matrimonial bond is beyond repair. The marriage becomes a fiction though supported by a legal tie. By refusing to sever that tie, the law in such cases, does not serve the sanctity of marriage; on the contrary, it shows scant regard for the feelings and emotions of the parties. In such like situations, it may lead to mental cruelty."

(Emphasis by Court)

32. In the facts here, the separation between parties has been fourteen long years after the respondent left the matrimonial home on 22.11.2007. All signs of life have been snuffed out of the marriage leaving behind nothing more than a legal skeleton of obligations, and of course, the parties' children. The long separation of fourteen years between parties would lead to an inference of mental cruelty within the meaning of Section 13(ib) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. The Courts below have overlooked this obvious conclusion on facts that admit of no other inference.

33. Substantial Question of Law (B) is, therefore, answered in the affirmative to hold that the long desertion and separation of a spouse would constitute mental cruelty within the meaning of Section 13(ib) of the Hindu Marriage Act.

34. Now, Substantial Question of Law (C) has been addressed at great length by the learned Counsel for the appellant and he submits that whatever be the conclusion on the other two questions, this question ought to be decided.

35. The submission is that the marriage between parties has irretrievably broken down. Given the facts and evidence that we have noticed elsewhere in this judgment, and conclusions already recorded, there is no manner of doubt that it is a dead marriage. The relationship between parties is extinct and no amount of pretense of the marriage surviving by refusing a decree of divorce would bring it back to life. The question, however, is that can this Court pass a decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage? There is some cleavage of opinion amongst various High Courts on the point, and in this Court too, there is division of vote.

36. The question fell for consideration before a Division Bench of this Court in Smt. Shashi Bala v. Rajendrapal Singh, 2020 (2) AWC 149. In Smt. Shashi Bala, Rajeev Misra, J., speaking for the Division Bench, opined:

"20. The issue relating to irretrievable break down of marriage has been considered by a Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal No. 525 of 2006 (Smt. Kavita Sharma Vs. Neeraj Sharma) decided on 7.2.2018, wherein it has been observed as follows in paragraph 28:-

"28. The above findings recorded by Court below could not be shown perverse or contrary to record. Having considered the fact that parties are living separately from decades, we are also of the view that marriage between two is irretrievable and has broken down completely. Irretrievable breakdown of marriage is not a ground for divorce under Act, 1955. But, where marriage is beyond repair on account of bitterness created by the acts of the husband or the wife or of both, Courts have always taken irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a very weighty circumstance amongst others necessitating severance of marital tie. A marriage which is dead for all purposes cannot be revived by the Court's verdict, if the parties are not willing. This is because marriage involves human sentiments and emotions and if they are dried-up there is hardly any chance of their springing back to life on account of artificial reunion created by the Court's decree. On the ground of irretrievable marriage, Courts have allowed decree of divorce and reference may be made to Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli (2006) 4 SCC 558 and Rishikesh Sharma Vs. Saroj Sharma, 2006(12) SCALE 282. It is also noteworthy that in Naveen Kohli v. Neelu Kohli (supra) Court made recommendation to Union of India that Act, 1955 be amended to incorporate irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for grant of divorce. "

21. Similarly this Court in First Appeal No. 792 of 2008 (Ashwani Kumar Kohli Vs. Smt. Anita) decided on 17.11.2016 has also considered this question and observed as follows in paragraphs 7, 8, 10, 11, 12 and 13:-

"7. Therefore, point for adjudication in this appeal is "whether a decree of reversal can be passed by granting divorce to the appellant on the ground which was not subject matter of

8. Under the provisions of Act, 1955 there is no ground like any "irretrievable breakdown of marriage", justifying divorce. It is a doctrine laid down by judicial precedents, in particular, Supreme Court in exercise of powers under Article 142 of the Constitution has granted decree of divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage.

10. This aspect has been considered by this Court in Ram Babu Babeley Vs. Smt. Sandhya AIR 2006 (All) 12 = 2006 AWC 183 and it has laid down certain inferences from various authorities of Supreme Court, which read as under:-

"(i) The irretrievable break down of marriage is not a ground for divorce by itself. But while scrutinizing the evidence on record to determine whether the grounds on which divorce is sought are made out, this circumstance can be taken into consideration as laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Savitri Pandey v. prem Chand Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73 and V. Bhagat versus D. Bhagat, AIR 1994 SC 710.

(ii) No divorce can be granted on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage if the party seeking divorce on this ground is himself or herself at fault for the above break down as laid down in the case of Chetan Dass Versus Kamla Devi, AIR 2001 SC 1709, Savitri Pandey v. prem Chand Pandey, (2002) 2 SCC 73 and Shyam Sunder Kohli v. Sushma Kohli, (2004) 7 SCC 747.

(iii) The decree of divorce on the ground that the marriage had been irretrievably broken down can be granted in those cases where both the parties have levelled such allegations against each other that the marriage appears to be practically dead and the parties can not live together as laid down in Chandra Kala Trivedi versus Dr. SP Trivedi, (1993) 4 SCC 232.

(iv)The decree of divorce on the ground that the marriage had been irretrievably broken down can be granted in those cases also where the conduct or averments of one party have been so much painful for the other party (who is not at fault) that he cannot be expected to live with the offending party as laid down in the cases of V. Bhagat versus D. Bhagat, (supra), Ramesh Chander versus Savitri, (1995) 2 SCC 7, Ashok Hurra versus Rupa Bipin Zaveri, 1997(3) AWC 1843 (SC), 1997(3) A.W.C. 1843(SC) and A. Jayachandra versus Aneel Kaur, (2005) 2 SCC 22.

(v) The power to grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable break down of marriage should be exercised with much care and caution in exceptional circumstances only in the interest of both the parties, as observed by Hon'ble Apex Court at paragraph No. 21 of the judgment in the case of V. Bhagat and Mrs. D. Bhagat, AIR (supra) and at para 12 in the case of Shyam Sunder Kohli versus Sushma Kohli, (supra)."

11. The above authorities have been followed by this Court in "Pradeep Kumar Vs. Smt. Vijay Lakshmi' in 2015 (4) ALJ 667 wherein one of us (Hon'ble Sudhir Agarwal,J.) was a member of the Bench.

12. In Vishnu Dutt Sharma Vs. Manju Sharma, (2009) 6 SCC 379, it was held that under Section 13 of Act 1955 there is no ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage for granting decree of divorce. Court said that it cannot add such a ground to Section 13, as that would amount to amendment of Act, which is the function of legislature. It also referred to some judgments of Supreme Court in which dissolution of marriage was allowed on the ground of irretrievable breakdown but held that those judgments do not lay down any precedent. Supreme Court very categorically observed as under:-

"If we grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown, then we shall by judicial verdict be adding a clause to Section 13 of the Act to the effect that irretrievable breakdown of marriage is also a ground for divorce. In our opinion, this can only be done by the legislature and not by the Court. It is for the Parliament to enact or amend the law and not for the Court. Hence, we do not find force in the submission of learned counsel for the appellant."

13. The above view has been followed in Darshan Gupta Vs. Radhika Gupta (2013) 9 SCC 1. Similar view was expressed in "Gurubux Singh Vs. Harminder Kaur' (2010) 14 SCC 301. This Court also has followed the above view in Shailesh Kumari Vs. Amod Kumar Sachan 2016 (115) ALR 689."

37. There is a contrary view expressed by another Division Bench of this Court sitting at Lucknow in Puneet Kumar Trivedi v. Smt. Nikita Pathak, First Appeal No.76 of 2014, decided on 29.04.2020. In Puneet Kumar Trivedi (supra), their Lordships opined in favour of granting a divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown marriage, though, it must be said that no principle was laid down there that it is open to this Court to grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown. In Puneet Kumar Trivedi, after considering the decision of this Court in Shailendra Kumar Singh v. Reeta Singh and another, 2019 SCCOnline All 5316, it was held:

"Taking into consideration the above said position of law on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage and the facts of the present case including the fact that admittedly the parties are living separately since 17.02.2006 till date, meaning thereby that the parties are living separately for more than fourteen years and litigation between the parties was initiated by filing divorce suit by the appellant in the year 2008, as also the observation made by the trial Court, quoted above, to the effect that the efforts to continue with the marriage have been failed and there is no possibility of reunion between the parties and the statement of counsel for the appellant to the effect that even at this stage there is no hope of settlement or reunion between the parties and no fruitful purpose would be served in maintaining the matrimonial relations between the parties as the matimonial bond is beyond repair and the relations between the parties are sufficiently spoiled and for all practical purpose there is an irretrievable break down of marriage, we are of the considered opinion that the finding given by the trial Court that the appellant is not entitled for decree of divorce on the ground of long separation/irretrievable breakdown of marriage is liable to be interfered and the judgment passed by the trial court is liable to be set aside and the appellant is entitled to decree of divorce. In addition to above, we have also observed, herein above, that while recording the finding with regard to the fact related to consumption of pesticide (poison) the Trial Court committed an error of law and fact both as while giving the finding the Trial Court did not consider the statement of P.W.-2 and P.W.-4."

38. The controversy has arisen in the context of the law, which does not provide for irretrievable breakdown of marriage as a ground for divorce. The Hindu Marriage Act does not envisage such a ground. However, their Lordships of the Supreme Court, in a number of cases have proceeded to grant divorce in those cases where the marriage was absolutely extinct. But in those cases, the power was exercised under Article 142 of the Constitution in order to do complete justice. The decisions in cases decided by the Supreme Court would be of little assistance to parties before this Court, who are able to demonstrate on facts a case of irretrievable breakdown. The obvious reason is that the power available to their Lordships under Article 142 of the Constitution is not available with any other Court, including this Court, whatever be the nature of jurisdiction exercised. It is for the said reason that in Munish Kakkar v. Nidhi Kakkar, (2020) 14 SCC 657, their Lordships of the Supreme Court, while exercising the power to grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown administered a word of caution, reminding other Courts of not being possessed of like authority. In Munish Kakkar (supra), it was remarked:

"19. We may note that in a recent judgment of this Court, in R. Srinivas Kumar v. R. Shametha [R. Srinivas Kumar v. R. Shametha, (2019) 9 SCC 409 : (2019) 4 SCC (Civ) 522] , to which one of us (Sanjay Kishan Kaul, J.) is a party, divorce was granted on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage, after examining various judicial pronouncements. It has been noted that such powers are exercised not in routine, but in rare cases, in view of the absence of legislation in this behalf, where it is found that a marriage is totally unworkable, emotionally dead, beyond salvage and has broken down irretrievably. That was a case where parties had been living apart for the last twenty-two (22) years and a re-union was found to be impossible. We are conscious of the fact that this Court has also extended caution from time to time on this aspect, apart from noticing that it is only this Court which can do so, in exercise of its powers under Article 142 of the Constitution of India. If parties agree, they can always go back to the trial court for a motion by mutual consent, or this Court has exercised jurisdiction at times to put the matter at rest quickly. But that has not been the only circumstance in which a decree of divorce has been granted by this Court. In numerous cases, where a marriage is found to be a dead letter, the Court has exercised its extraordinary power under Article 142 of the Constitution of India to bring an end to it.

21. The provisions of Article 142 of the Constitution provide a unique power to the Supreme Court, to do "complete justice" between the parties i.e. where at times law or statute may not provide a remedy, the Court can extend itself to put a quietus to a dispute in a manner which would befit the facts of the case. It is with this objective that we find it appropriate to take recourse to this provision in the present case." (Emphasis by Court)

39. There are some pertinent remarks in this connection to be found in a decision of this Court in Pooja Suri v. Bijoy Suri, 2016 SCC OnLine All 300, where it has been very pertinently observed:

"25. Although "irretrievable breakdown of marriage' is not a ground specifically mentioned in Section-13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, but it, in fact, is the basis of the principle underlying decree of divorce under this provision, as is evident from the meticulous appreciation of the provisions of this Section. The grounds like cruelty, desertion of not less than two years, conversion to another religion, unsoundness of mind, mental disorder, suffering from incurable leprosy, or venereal disease in a communicable form, or renouncement of world, not been heard of as being alive for seven years; or (as incorporated by U.P. State Amendment) reasonable apprehension of harm or injury, non-cohabitation after judicial separation mentioned in Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act leads to inference that when such situation has arisen that parties cannot live as spouse and there appears no chances of their re-conciliation, which means the marriage has irretrievably broken down of marriage and there is no chance of it being repaired, then under provisions of Section 13, divorce should be granted. But as Hon'ble Apex Court held that this cause, in its isolation, being not mentioned in Section 13, cannot be taken as ground for granting the divorce. Therefore, although the lower courts had granted the divorce on two independent grounds of cruelty and irretrievable breakdown of marriage, but the second ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage is exclusive within jurisdiction of Hon'ble Apex Court and is beyond jurisdiction of any other Court in India; therefore, second substantial question of law is decided in affirmative and in favour of appellant.

26. When it is obvious that the marriage between the two cannot, under any circumstances, continue any further and the marriage becomes practically dead, then considering the matters of "irretrievable breakdown of marriage', or where the repair of broken marriage becomes impossible, it appears appropriate that such grounds may be accepted as ground for divorce. Therefore, this Court suggests the Law Commission of the State to take appropriate steps to consider for incorporating the ground of "irretrievable breakdown of marriage' as grounds of divorce in Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act." (Emphasis supplied)

40. There is very recent decision of a Division Bench of this Court in Reeta v. Ankit Kumar, AIR 2021 All 225, where it has been categorically held that the power to grant divorce on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage is not available to this Court or any other Court under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. The power can only be exercised by the Supreme Court under Article 142 of the Constitution. In Reeta (supra), it has been held:

"26. When we go through Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, we find that there is no such ground as 'irretrievable breakdown of marriage' of divorce and, thus, the Family Court could not have granted the divorce except on the grounds mentioned in Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955

32. The power exercised by the Apex Court under Article 142 of he Constitution being extraordinary, no benefit can be taken by the respondent-husband from the said decision."

41. The decision, therefore, of the Division Bench of this Court in Puneet Kumar Trivedi must be held confined to its own facts and not a binding precedent.

42. In the circumstances, Substantial Question of Law (C) is answered in the negative and it is held that this Court has no power to grant a decree of divorce under Section 13 of the Hindu Marriage Act on the ground of irretrievable breakdown of marriage.

43. In view of the answer to Substantial Questions of Law (A) and (B), this appeal must succeed.

44. In the result, this appeal succeeds and is allowed. The impugned decree dated 19.02.2013 passed by the Lower Appellate Court and that dated 12.09.2012 passed by the Trial Court are set aside and reversed. The divorce petition is allowed. There shall be a decree dissolving the marriage between the appellant and the respondent forthwith.

45. Costs easy.

46. Let a decree be drawn up accordingly.

47. The lower court records shall be sent down at once to the Family Court along with a certified copy of this judgment.

THE HON'BLE J.J. MUNIR, J.

Second Appeal No. 657 of 2003

Babu Ram & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
Om Singh & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri U.K. Mishra, Sri A.K. Mishra, Sri Ashutosh Mishra, Sri I.B. Yadav, Sri K. Mishra, Sri V.K. Mishra

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri Y.S. Bohra, Ms. Pooja Agarwal

A. Civil Law - Specific Relief Act, 1963 - Section 16 - Bars to relief - Specific performance of a contract cannot be enforced in favour of a person who fails to prove that he has performed or has always been ready and willing to perform the essential terms of the contract, which are to be performed by him - Issue - Whether a suit for specific performance can be decreed without an issue about readiness and willingness being framed where the issue is substantially suited between parties? - Held - a suit for specific performance can be decreed without an issue about readiness and willingness being framed, provided readiness and willingness are substantially pleaded and proved by the parties' evidence, where the parties have gone to trial conscious of the plea, with opportunity to the defendants, to dispel the same - decree would not vitiate where the parties had notice of the case about readiness and willingness and had opportunity to lead evidence about it, with no prejudice being occasioned to the defendants on account of the failure to specifically frame that issue (Para 39, 40)

B. Civil Law - Specific Relief Act, 1963 - U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 - Section 30 - Transfer of Property Act, 1882 - Section 54 - Whether specific performance can be granted in relation to agricultural land that has been the subject matter of consolidation operations where the vendee has been moved to different plots, different from those that are subject matter of the suit agreement ? - Held - where agricultural land, subject matter of consolidation, that is agreed to be sold, is consolidated and the defendant-vendor is moved to different plots, the contract would frustrate; but it would not frustrate where substantially, the subject matter of the suit agreement remains the same, with minor or negligible changes - Once the chak allotted to the defendant-vendor is substantially the same land, that is subject matter of the suit agreement, the contract would not frustrate - Minor adjustments in the area of the plots or exclusion of a plot number of negligible area from the consolidated holding would not, in any manner, change the identity of the subject matter (Para 45, 46)

C. Civil Law - Specific Relief Act, 1963 - Section 20, Substituted performance of contract - Transfer of Property Act, 1882 - Section 52, Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto – lis pendens - a transfer pendente lite confers title upon the purchaser, who takes the risk subject to the rights of his vendor - If the vendor fails in the litigation, the purchaser pendente lite has no right of his own or equities to plead - There is only one eventuality under which the transferee pendente lite may acquire rights that would not be affected by the decree, and that is if the transfer has been made with permission of the Court, where the suit about rights of parties is pending, Else, a purchaser pendente lite has no rights under the law (Para 50, 51)

Suit was instituted by the plaintiff-vendees on 20th August, 1998 for specific performance of contract, to execute sale deed - the defendant- vendor executed a registered sale deed relating to the suit property in favour of the defendant-purchasers on 16.09.1998 - the sale deed hit by the principle of lis pendens - defendant-purchasers have not taken the suit property through a sale deed that was executed with the permission of the Court - suit property have been transferred very shortly after the suit was instituted - Sale dded have been executed to defeat the rights of the plaintiff-vendees - discretion to grant specific performance has been rightly exercised by the two Courts below (Para 51)

1. This is a defendants' second appeal, arising out of a suit for specific performance of contract.

2. Om Singh and Jay Bhagwan, who are the two respondents to this appeal, instituted Original Suit No. 769 of 1998 against Bhawar Singh, Suresh Pal, Rajpal, Tejpal, Babu Ram and Jagpal, all of whom are the appellants here, seeking a decree for specific performance of contract. It was the plaintiffs' case that defendant no. 1 to the suit, Bhawar Singh is the bhumidhar of agricultural land comprising plot no. 248(M) admeasuring 0.008 hectares, plot no. 250 admeasuring 0.010 hectares, plot no. 251(M) admeasuring 1.354 hectares, plot no. 252/1 admeasuring 0.086 hectares, plot no. 252/2 admeasuring 0.020 hectares and plot no. 253 admeasuring 0.089 hectares, aggregating an area of 1.567 hectares, situate at Village Harchandpur, Tehsil and District Baghpat. Out of the said plots, he had sold away on 15.06.1994, a substantial part in favour of the plaintiffvendees, leaving a residue of 0.237 hectares. The defendant-vendor Bhawar Singh executed a registered agreement to sell, relating to the remainder of 0.237 hectares of land in the plots above detailed, in favour of plaintiff-vendees Om Singh and Jay Bhagwan, covenanting to sell the said property for a total sale consideration of Rs. 48000/-. Bhawar Singh received in earnest a sum of Rs. 5000/- out of the contracted sale consideration.

3. The agreement to sell was admitted to registration by the Sub-Registrar on 15.06.1994. It was covenanted that the conveyance in terms of the suit agreement shall be executed by Bhawar Singh (hereinafter referred to as the "defendant-vendor') within a period of 1 year and 3 months, that is to say, by 15.09.1995. The plaintiffs, Om Singh and Jay Bhagwan pleaded that they have been ever ready and willing to get a conveyance executed and registered in accordance with the suit agreement and have never neglected to perform their part of the contract. Om Singh and Jay Bhagwan shall hereinafter be referred to as the "plaintiff-vendees'.

4. The plaintiff-vendees requested the defendant-vendor many a times over by word of mouth to come forward and execute the sale deed as covenanted after receipt of the balance sale consideration of Rs. 43,000/-, but the defendant-vendor would ward off responding to his obligation. The plaintiff-vendees, faced with inaction, caused a registered notice dated 14.08.1995 to be served upon the defendant-vendor through their learned Counsel Mr. Chashmveer Singh, an Advocate at Baghpat, calling upon the defendant-vendor to appear before the Sub-Registrar's office at Baghpat on 15.09.1995 and execute the requisite sale deed in terms of the suit agreement, upon receipt of the balance sale consideration. The notice aforesaid was served upon the defendant-vendor in due time and on 15.09.1995, the plaintiff-vendees attended the office of the Sub-Registrar at Baghpat, but the defendant-vendor did not appear to fulfil his obligation under the suit agreement. The plaintiff-vendees, on 15.09.1995, reached the Sub-Registrar's office at Baghpat, along with balance sale consideration and waited outside the office throughout the day for the defendant-vendor. The plaintiff-vendees got their attendance marked with the Sub Registrar in accordance with rules. The defendant-vendor got the plaintiff-vendees' notice dated 14.08.1995 replied to through his Counsel vide a memo dated 23.08.1995, carrying incorrect facts. The defendant-vendor's reply to the notice dated 14.08.1995 assured the plaintiff-vendees that the former had turned dishonest and was disinclined to execute a sale deed in terms of his obligations under the suit agreement.

5. Accordingly, the plaintiff-vendees instituted Original Suit No. 769 of 1998 before the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut on 20.08.1998, seeking a decree of specific performance, ordering the defendant-vendor to execute the requisite sale deed in terms of the suit agreement after receipt of the balance sale consideration. It was further prayed that in the event the defendant-vendor does not comply with the decree within the time provided by Court, sale deed be executed in favour of the plaintiff-vendees through process of Court in accordance with law and actual physical possession over the suit property be delivered to them. The plaint, as originally drawn up, arrayed the defendant-vendor alone as the defendant and it was against him alone that the relief was sought.

6. A written statement dated 23.11.1998 was filed by the defendant-vendor, traversing the plaintiff-vendees' case. He denied executing the suit agreement or receiving any earnest. It was pleaded that on 15.06.1994, that is to say, the date when the suit agreement is said to have been executed, the defendant-vendor had executed a sale deed of all his agricultural holding in favour of the plaintiff-vendees, under the pressure of his son. The suit property was all that had been left with him. The defendant-vendor's son was given to vices and had subjected the defendant-vendor to undue influence, asking him to execute a conveyance on 15.03.1994 in favour of the plaintiff-vendees. In deference to his son's wishes, the defendant-vendor executed a sale deed in favour of the plaintiff-vendees, but was not paid any sale consideration. All that is shown as consideration in the sale deed would have been paid to the vendor's son. The vendor did not receive anything towards consideration. It was denied that any notice was served upon the defendant-vendor, asking him to appear before the Sub-Registrar and further that he never caused a reply to that notice to be sent to the plaintiff-vendees through his Counsel. He never instructed any Counsel to answer the plaintiff-vendees' notice. It was the defendant-vendor's case that he never instructed any Counsel and if a reply had been sent to the plaintiff-vendees, it was a got up one, which the plaintiff-vendees got served upon themselves through Counsel, set up on the defendant-vendor's behalf, without the latter's authority.

7. It was further pleaded that the defendant-vendor is an illiterate and a poor man. He has a lone son, who is given vices and stays away from the village. The son brought undue influence to bear upon the defendant-vendor, forcing him to sell his land. Acting under his son's pressure and influence, the defendant-vendor parted with 16 bighas (kachcha) of his agricultural holding in favour of the plaintiff-vendees through a registered sale deed dated 15.06.1994. The sale consideration set forth in the sale deed was never received by the defendant-vendor. He does not know how much money was paid. Whatever consideration was paid by the plaintiff-vendees was received by the defendant-vendor's son, who never accounted for it. It is pleaded that the defendant-vendor had a total of 19 bighas (kachcha) of agricultural holding, out of which he had a remainder of three bighas after execution of the sale deed last mentioned. He had retained the said land in order to feed his cattle. On the date the sale deed was executed in favour of the plaintiff-vendees, they had got a number of papers thumb marked by him and out of those papers, some were utilised to manufacture the suit agreement. The defendant-vendor came to know of all this transaction carried in the suit agreement, when he was served with the Court's summons dated 19.08.1998 on 16.10.1998, asking him to appear and put in his written statement.

8. It is the vendor's case that the plaintiff-vendees had got the suit agreement executed by playing fraud, taking undue advantage of his lack of understanding. They got the papers carrying the suit agreement thumb-marked by practising fraud and on the basis of that fraudulent agreement, they have instituted the present suit. The vendor never consciously executed the suit agreement nor did he come to know of this fraud in good time. It is also the defendant-vendor's case that he is a humble farmer and had no occasion to purchase land or so to speak, experience of transacting sale/ purchase of land.

9. The plaintiff-vendees are natives of village Sunheda. They had their land in Village Harchandpur, which they have sold off and purchased land from the defendant-vendor worth the proceeds that they received from the sale of their land. The defendant-vendor agreed to sell that land in deference to his unworthy son's wishes. He never wished to sell his land, but did not have the courage to disoblige his son. He was left with three bigha (kachcha) land (the suit property) that he utilizes to earn his livelihood. He owned a buffalo that yielded milk, but the same was not sufficient to feed himself and his ageing wife. He has purchased, therefore, a bullock-cart after selling off his buffalo to make his ends meet.

10. It appears that pending suit, on 16.09.1998, the defendant-vendor sold off the suit property through a registered conveyance in favour of Babu Ram, Jagpal, Tejpal and Rajpal, all sons of Preetam Singh and Suresh Pal son of Dalel. In order to avoid any legal complication, these defendant-purchasers pendente lite were applied to be impleaded as defendants to the suit by the plaintiff-vendees and necessary amendment sought to the plaint, both of which were granted. Accordingly, appellant nos. 1 to 5 to this appeal were impleaded as defendant nos. 2 to 6 to the suit. The defendants-appellant nos. 1 to 5 shall hereinafter be referred to as the defendant-purchasers. It appears that pending suit, the suit property, in relation whereto, the suit agreement was executed, was the subject matter of consolidation, in consequence whereof the plot numbers mentioned in the suit agreement were assigned a new number bearing khasra no. 530. Therefore, along with the amendment sought to implead the defendant-purchasers and bringing on record facts about the sale deed in their favour, an amendment was also sought to the plaint, pleading that the old plot numbers, subject matter of the suit agreement, have been assigned a new khasra number bearing no. 530 during consolidation with an identical area.

11. The written statement filed by the defendant-vendor was amended twice; once on 12.10.2000 and the other on 11.04.2001. By the amendment of 12.10.2000, it was pleaded that the plaintiff-vendees never expressed their willingness to purchase the suit property and never demanded execution of a conveyance on the basis of the suit agreement.

12. By the other amendment dated 11.04.2001, it was pleaded that the defendant-purchasers have purchased the defendant-vendor's entire land comprising plot no. 530 admeasuring 0.237 hectares, whereof the defendant-vendor was the sole bhumidhar, the said land being allotted to him under Section 30 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, exclusively, and in relation whereto, he had complete rights under the law to transfer in favour of the defendant-purchasers. It was pleaded that the transfer made in favour of the defendant-purchasers was valid and the said conveyance does not entitle the plaintiff-vendees to any compensation from the defendant-vendor. A plea was further incorporated to the effect that the suit is barred by limitation.

13. A separate written statement was filed on behalf of the defendant-purchasers jointly on 10.04.2000, in substance, pleading a case that they were the bona fide purchasers for value without notice. The other pleadings raised are the same as those raised by the defendant-vendor that the suit agreement was secured by the plaintiff-vendees through the practice of fraud etc. which does not confer any right upon them.

14. On the pleadings of parties, the Trial Court framed the following issues (translated into English from Hindi):

"1. Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to get a sale deed executed in their favour on the basis of the disputed agreement to sell dated 15.06.1994 as pleaded in plaint?

2. Whether the disputed agreement was executed by Bhawar Singh in favour of the plaintiffs is without consideration as pleaded in paragraph no. 11 of the written statement bearing paper no. 18 ka-1, if yes, its effect on the suit?

3. Whether the disputed agreement to sell dated 15.06.1994 was got executed by the plaintiffs by defrauding the defendant, as pleaded in paragraph no. 13 of the written statement?

4. Whether defendant nos. 2 to 6 are bona fide purchasers for value without notice as pleaded in paragraph no. 18 of their written statement bearing paper no. 31 ka-1?

5. Relief, to which the plaintiffs are entitled?

6. Whether the suit is time barred?

7. Whether defendant no. 1 has exclusive right to the suit property?

8. Whether defendant nos. 2 to 6 in their capacity as the transferees of the disputed land have exclusive right to it, if yes, its effect?"

15. The plaintiff-vendees, in support of their case, have led documentary evidence that inter alia includes the suit agreement in original, marked Ex. ka-2, the notice dated 14.08.1995 in original, marked as Ex. ka-1, registered postal receipt paper no. 10-ga, the A.D. Card paper no. 11-ga, the reply to the notice dated 23.08.1995, paper no. 12-ga, a certified copy of the application for attendance, paper no. 13-ga Ex. ka-3, a certified copy of the application for attendance Ex. ka-4, a certified copy of CH-Form Ex. ka-1, a certified copy of CH-Form-41, Ex. 2. In addition, oral evidence was led on behalf of the plaintiff-vendees comprising PW-1 Om Singh, PW-2 Shiv Charan and PW-3 Virendra Kumar.

16. The defendant-vendor and the defendant-purchasers filed the sale deed in original executed by the defendant-vendor in favour of defendant-purchasers dated 16.09.1998 paper no. 43-ka. In their oral testimony, the defendant-vendor and the defendant-purchasers examined DW-1 Bhawar Singh and DW-2 Babu Ram.

17. The Trial Court, by its judgment and decree dated 08.05.2002, decreed the plaintiff-vendees' suit for specific performance of contract, ordering the defendant-vendor to execute the requisite sale deed in favour of the plaintiff-vendees within a month after receiving the balance sale consideration.

18. The defendant-purchasers and the defendant-vendor together carried an appeal to the learned District Judge, Meerut from the Trial Court's decree. The appeal was numbered as Civil Appeal No. 130 of 2002 and came up for determination before the learned District Judge, Meerut on 11.02.2003. The learned District Judge, Meerut dismissed the appeal with costs, affirming the Trial Court.

19. Aggrieved, this appeal from appellate decree has been carried by the defendant-vendor and the defendant-purchasers together. The appeal was admitted to hearing on 22.05.2003 and by a separate order of the said date, operation of the decree for specific performance was stayed. Since the order of admission made on 22.05.2003 did not formulate the substantial questions of law involved, but admitted the appeal with reference to the question no. 9-B as framed at the foot of the appeal, this Court, before the opening of hearing, proceeded to formulate the substantial questions of law involved vide order dated 01.09.2021. The substantial questions of law involved in this appeal read:

(1) Whether a suit for specific performance can be decreed without an issue about readiness and willingness being framed?

(2) Whether a suit for specific performance can be decreed without an issue of readiness and willingness being framed where the issue is substantially suited between parties?

(3) Whether specific performance can be granted in relation to agricultural land that has been the subject matter of consolidation operations where the vendee has been moved to different plots, different from those that are subject matter of the suit agreement

(4) Whether the Court while granting specific performance ought to exercise discretion according to the principles settled under Section 20 Specific Relief Act?

20. Heard Mr. Ashutosh Mishra, learned Counsel for the defendant-vendor and the defendant-purchasers. Ms. Pooja Agarwal, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the plaintiff-vendees, has been heard in answer.

21. Substantial Questions of Law Nos.1 and 2 are essentially the same, with the second question carrying the essence of the proposition involved to its last detail. As such, both the questions are being dealt with together.

22. It is submitted by Mr. Ashutosh Mishra, learned Counsel for the defendants that in a suit for specific performance, it is essential that the plaintiffs must show their readiness and willingness at all times. Readiness connotes financial capacity of the one who seeks to enforce specific performance, whereas willingness distinctly refers to his personal or mental inclination to enforce performance of the contract. Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 mandates 'readiness' and 'willingness' on the plaintiffs' part and is a condition precedent to the grant of relief of specific performance. The law requires that the plaintiffs must allege and prove a continuous 'readiness' and 'willingness' from the date of the contract till the institution of the suit. It is emphatically argued that the Trial Court's failure to frame an issue with regard to the plaintiffs' 'readiness' and 'willingness' renders the decree passed by the two Courts below unsustainable in law. It is pointed out by the learned Counsel for the defendants that failure of the Trial Court to frame a proper issue with regard to 'readiness' and 'willingness' and the resultant failure of justice was culled out as a ground in the memorandum of appeal lodged before the Lower Appellate Court, that has been asserted in Paragraph No.8 thereof.

23. Elaborating these submissions, it is argued that the plaintiff-vendees have failed to establish their 'readiness' in view of the specific averments carried in Paragraph No.14 of the written statement filed on behalf of the defendant-purchasers. In support of his submission on this score, Mr. Ashutosh Mishra has placed reliance on the decision of the Supreme Court in M/s. J.P. Builders and another v. A. Ramadas Rao and another1. It is next submitted that without framing an issue about readiness and willingness, the Trial Court has returned a finding about willingness alone, with nothing said on the point of readiness. To this end, learned Counsel for the defendants has drawn the attention of the Court to the findings of the Trial Court recorded on Issue Nos.1 and 2.

24. It is submitted by Mr. Mishra that the plaintiff-vendees have failed to prove their readiness and willingness from 15.09.1995 (the date when they appeared before the Sub-Registrar) to 20.08.1998 (the date of institution of the suit). The Courts below, in the submission of the learned Counsel for the defendants, have failed to take into consideration the plaintiff-vendees' failure to prove their "readiness' and "willingness' throughout the aforesaid period of time. Instead, the Lower Appellate Court has returned a perverse finding that the suit can be filed even on the last date of limitation with a remark that people tend to avoid litigation. It is urged that the Lower Appellate Court has committed a manifest error of law in not appreciating the fact that "readiness' and "willingness' had to be established on the last day of limitation also. The Lower Appellate Court, according to the learned Counsel for the defendants, has confounded the limitation prescribed for instituting the suit with the requirement of readiness and willingness to get a conveyance executed in terms of the contract, a matter generically different from limitation. In support of his contention, learned Counsel for the defendants has further placed reliance on the decision of the Supreme Court in Atma Ram v. Charanjit Singh2, the decision of this Court in Dhanu v. Ajai Kant and others3 and the authority of the Karnataka High Court in Channayya & another v. Annapurna4.

25. The learned Counsel for the plaintiff-vendees, Ms. Pooja Agarwal, has refuted the submissions advanced on behalf of the defendants on the questions under consideration. She submits that a perusal of the record indicates that the plaintiff-vendees have categorically averred in the plaint that they are ever ready and willing to perform their part of the contract and had given notice to the defendant-vendor to appear in the Office of the Sub-Registrar, Baghpat on 15.09.1995 to execute the covenanted sale deed. It was the defendant-vendor, who was in breach and did not turn up all through the day before the Sub-Registrar. It is pointed out that oral and documentary evidence have been led by the plaintiff-vendees to establish the twin facts of readiness and willingness. She submits that by deciding Issue No.1 along with Issue No.7, the Trial Court has wholesomely tried the issues of readiness and willingness. Upon consideration of the relevant evidence, the Trial Court has found the plaintiff-vendees ready and willing to perform their part of the contract under the suit agreement. It is the learned Counsel's submission that a finding has been recorded by the Trial Judge that the notice dated 14.08.1995 was received by the defendant-vendor, but he did not appear before the Sub-Registrar on 15.09.1995 to execute the sale deed. It has also been found that the plaintiff-vendees had appeared and their attendance was recorded by the Sub-Registrar, Baghpat on 15.09.1995.

26. It is urged that the Lower Appellate Court has also recorded a finding of fact that the plaintiff-vendees were ready and willing to perform their part of the suit agreement. The learned Counsel for the plaintiff-vendees has relied upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Official Liquidator, Supreme Bank Ltd. v. P.A. Tendolkar (dead) by LRs and others5 and further upon the authority of their Lordships in P. Purushottam Reddy and another vs. Pratap Steels Ltd.6 It is submitted by Ms. Pooja Agarwal that failure to frame a specific issue on "readiness' and "willingness', may be an irregularity, but in a case like the one here, where both parties have led oral and documentary evidence, bearing on the issue directly, which has been adjudicated by both Courts of fact below, the decree of specific performance, resultant on those findings, cannot be held vitiated.

27. This Court has given a thoughtful consideration to the very detailed submissions addressed by both the learned Counsel.

28. It is true that generally, in a suit for specific performance, an issue about readiness and willingness ought to be framed so that parties lead evidence in support of and against the case. The substantial requirement, however, is that the plaintiff-vendees, who seek relief of specific performance of contract must aver and prove their readiness and willingness to perform their part of the contract throughout from the date the performance falls due under the contract and until the decree is passed. If the parties go to trial, conscious of the other side's case and wholesomely lead evidence on the point of readiness and willingness, mere failure to formally frame an issue about readiness and willingness would not be fatal.

29. The submissions of the learned Counsel for the defendants that "readiness' and "willingness' is an issue that is imperative to frame, draw support from the following remarks of the Karnataka High Court in Channayya (supra):

"9. It is well-settled that in a suit for specific performance, the person who is seeking specific performance should aver and prove that he has performed or has always been ready and willing to perform the essential terms of the contract, which are to be performed by him, other than terms the performance of which has been prevented or waived by the defendant, in view of the provisions of Section 16(c) of the Act and in the absence of proof of the said fact, specific performance of the contract cannot be enforced in favour of the person seeking specific performance. It is clear from the issues framed by the Trial Court that no specific issue has been framed regarding the readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff in performing his part of the contract. Similarly, the first Appellate Court has also not framed any point for determination regarding the readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff in performing his part of the contract. However, both the Courts below have proceeded on the basis that in view of the fact that Rs. 7,162-50 Ps., was paid in the execution of the decree in O.S. No. 181 of 1980, the plaintiff has paid the consideration amount. The said reasoning of the Courts below without framing an issue or point for determination regarding the readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff in performing his part of the contract and without considering the question as to whether it was stipulated in the agreement of sale that the plaintiff should pay the amount due to the Bank and as to whether the said payment of Rs. 7,162-50 Ps., is pursuant to the agreement of sale, is erroneous and cannot at all be sustained. The decisions relied upon by the Courts below lay down that if the plaintiff was ready and willing to perform his part of the contract, he is entitled to decree for specific performance and readiness and willingness cannot be treated as a strait-jacket formula and the same have to be determined from the entirety of facts and circumstances relevant to the intention and conduct of party concerned and when the entire consideration amount has been paid after obtaining receipt of last payment, necessary allegations have to be presumed and literal compliance of language of provision of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act is not imperative. However, in view of the fact that both the Courts below have not framed any issue or point for determination regarding readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff in performing his part of the contract, it is clear that they were not justified in decreeing the suit of the plaintiff without framing an issue on the said condition precedent required to be satisfied for entitlement of decree for specific performance, which has caused prejudice to the defendant as parties have not led any evidence regarding the said issue. Therefore, it is clear that the substantial question of law has to be answered in the affirmative by holding that the Courts below were not justified in decreeing the suit of the plaintiff for specific performance without framing an issue or point for determination regarding the readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff in performing his part of the contract in the absence of any issue and finding on the basis of the evidence led on the said issue, it is clear that the decree passed for specific performance cannot be sustained in view of the provisions of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act....."

30. The principle in Channayya has been laid down in the context that on account of the failure of the Trial Court to frame an issue regarding readiness and willingness, prejudice had been caused to the defendants, as parties did not lead any evidence regarding the said issue. This is not the case here. The Court has framed Issue No.1 in the following terms (translated into English from Hindi):

"1. Whether the plaintiff are entitled to get a sale deed executed in their favour on the basis of a disputed agreement to sell dated 15.06.1994 as pleaded in plaint?"

31. This issue has been tried together with Issue No.7. The Trial Court on this issue has recorded a finding about readiness and willingness of the plaintiff-vendees and the circumstances attending it in the following words:

"उक्त मुहायदाबय में दिनांक 15.9.95 तक प्रश्नगत् 3 बीघे कच्ची जमीन का बैनामा भवर सिंह को वादीगण के पक्ष में कर देना था। भवर सिंह ने उक्त जमीन का बैनामा वादीगण के पक्ष में करने हेतु कभी कोई इच्छा जाहिर नहीं की जिसके कारण दिनांक 14.8.95 को अपने अधिवक्ता के माध्यम से वादीगण ने नोटिस भवर सिंह को प्रेषित किया जिसकी प्रति

प्रदर्श क-1 को साक्षी ओम सिंह बतौर पी.डब्लू.1 ने सिद्ध किया है। उक्त नोटिस भवर सिंह को भेजी गई जिसकी रसीद शामिल मिशल है। उक्त नोटिस भवर सिंह को प्राप्त हुआ जिसकी बावत शामिल मिशल 11ग है। जिसे ओम सिंह साक्षी ने अपनी मुख्य परीक्षा में तसदीक किया है। इस साक्षी ने बतौर पी.डब्लू. 1 अपनी मुख्य परीक्षा में कहा है कि यह एग्रीमेंट दिनांक 15.9.95 तक हुआ था। इस बीच में मेरे हक में बैनामा नहीं किया तो मैंने एक नोटिस दिनांक 14.8.95 को चश्मवीर एडवोकेट बागपत द्वारा दिलवाया। इस गवाह ने कागज संख्या 9ग को देखकर कहा कि यह वही नोटिस है जिसे उसने अपने अधिवक्ता से दिलाया था जिसे उन्हें लिखते-पढ़ते देखा है और उसे तसदीक किया। यह नोटिस भवर सिंह को प्राप्त हुआ।"

32. It has been recorded by the Trial Court in its finding on Issues Nos.1 and 2 thus:

"प्रतिवादपत्र की धारा 17 में कहा गया है कि कथित इकरारनामे के विषय में उसने नोटिस नहीं भेजा। परन्तु उक्त नोटिस के फर्जी होने की बावत उसने कोई भी उल्लेख कहीं नहीं कहा। वादीगण द्वारा उसे प्राप्त प्रतिवादी सं0 1 का उन्होंने पेपर संख्या 12ग को तस्दीक किया है कि उक्त नोटिस उनके नोटिस दिनांकित 14.08.95 के उत्तर में उन्हें प्राप्त हुआ था। उक्त नोटिस के द्वारा उन्होंने प्रतिवादी सं0 1 से यह अपेक्षा की थी कि दिनांक 15.09.95 को रजिस्ट्री ऑफिस में आकर प्रश्नगत भूमि का बैनामा कर दें जिसकी बावत इकरारनामा प्रदर्श क-2 में तय पाया गया था। दिनांक 15.09.9 को वादीगण सबरजिस्ट्रार कार्यालय में उपस्थित हुए, उन्होंने अपनी हाजिरी दर्ज करायी जिसकी बावत प्रलेख प्रदर्श क-3 व प्रदर्श क-4 निष्पादित किया गया। प्रलेख प्रदर्श क-3 व प्रदर्श क-4 दिनांक 15.6.94 को उपनिबन्धक बागपत में रजिस्टर्ड कराई गई जिससे सिद्ध होता है कि ओम सिंह व जयभगवान प्रश्नगत् विवादित संपत्ति का इकरारनामा महायदा बय दिनांक 15.6.96 के आधार पर बैनामा कराने हेतु उपस्थित रहें। परंतु प्रतिवादी सं0 1 उपस्थित नहीं हुआ। ओम सिंह वादी बतौर साक्षी पी.डब्लू.1 ने अपनी मुख्य परीक्षा में कहा है कि दिनांक 15.9.95 को हम रजिस्ट्री बागपत गए और भवर सिंह का इंतजार करते रहे। जब वह नहीं आया तो हमने रजिस्ट्री में अपनी हाजिरी कराई। पहले 11-12 बजे करायी फिर 3 बजे करायी। इस साक्षी का कथन कि उसके द्वारा दाखिल प्रलेख प्रदर्श-3 व प्रदर्श-4 से भी सिद्ध होता है कि वह प्रश्नगत भूमि की रजिस्ट्री कराने दिनांक 15.8.94 को उपनिबंधक कार्यालय में उपस्थित हुआ, जिस दिन उक्त इकरारनामा की मियाद खत्म हो रही थी। परंतु भवर सिंह रजिस्ट्री कराने उपस्थित नहीं हुआ। उक्त इकरारनामे के आधार पर अपनी हाजिरी की बाबत निष्पादित प्रदर्श-3 व प्रदर्श-4 प्रलेखों से यह स्पष्ट होता है कि वादीगड़ हमेशा बैनामा कराने के लिए इच्छुक रहे। परंतु भवर सिंह बैनामा कराने हेतु सबरजिस्ट्रार कार्यालय बागपत में उपस्थित नहीं हुआ। जबकि उसके व वादी गण के मध्य 5,000/- रुपये प्रतिफल की धनराशि प्राप्त करते हुए दिनांक 15.6.94 को इकरारनामा में मुहायदा बय उपनिबंधक कार्यालय में पंजीकृत हुई थी, जिसकी मियाद दिनांक 15.9.95 तक थी। इस प्रकार दिनांक 15.9.95 तिथि तक वादीगण उक्त संपत्ति के बैनामा कराने के हमेशा इच्छुक रहे और वह प्रश्नगत् संपत्ति का बैनामा प्रतिवादी सं0-1 से कराने के हकदार रहे।"

33. In his examination-in-chief, PW-1 Om Singh, who is one of the plaintiff-vendees, has testified on oath as follows:

"मैं इस एग्रीमेंट वाली जमीन को लेने के लिए सदैव तैयार रहा हूं और समय-2 पर इन्हें बैनामा करने के लिए भी कहता रहा हूं तथा आज भी बैनामा कराने को तैयार हूं।"

In his cross-examination, this witness has stated about his financial means on the date he purchased the larger part of the defendant-vendor's holding, that is on 15.06.1994, and also on the day that he went to the Sub-Registrar's office to get a sale deed executed, after calling upon the defendant-vendor in terms of the suit agreement. He has clearly mentioned that on the date he went to the Sub-Registrar's office and got his attendance marked, he had with him a sum of Rs.48,000/- that his brother had brought along from Delhi. These facts are recorded in the cross-examination of PW-1, in the followings words:

"हमारे हक में भवर सिंह का बैनामा 15-6-94 को हुआ था। स्टेट बैंक बागपत में मेरा खाता है। भवर सिंह से जो बैनामा हमने लिया था उसका रुपया हमने अपनी जमीन बेच कर दिया था। हमारी जमीन ढाई लाख की बिकी थी उतने का ही बैनामा कराया था। जिस दिन हमने बैनामा किया उस दिन हमारे पास 212000/- फालतू थे। यह कहना गलत है कि उस रोज हमारे पास जितने का बैनामा लिया हो उससे ज्यादा रुपया न हो। भवर सिंह का बैनामा व मायदा भवर सिंह का एक दिन पहले बैनामा हुआ फिर उसी दिन इकरार नामा हुआ। हम उस दिन भी तैयार थे उसने कह दिया था कि बोने को चाहिये कुछ दिन बाद बैनामा करूंगा। रजिस्ट्री हाजिरी पर हम 43 हजार उसे देने को तथा 5000/- खर्च के लेकर गए थे। उस दिन हम जब जयभगवान, शिवचरण, वीरिंद्र प्रीतव गए थे। उस दिन 48000/- मेरा भाई दिल्ली से लाया था। भाई इकट्ठे करके लाया था। वह मांग कर लाया था या उसके पास थे। मुझे उसके खाते के बारे में नहीं पता किस बैंक में है।"

34. The aforesaid evidence is eloquent about the fact that the parties were not at all prejudiced about the plaintiffs' case of readiness and willingness for the Trial Court's failure to specifically frame an issue, mentioning those words. The parties went to trial conscious of the case about readiness and willingness, where evidence was also led on the point and the plaintiff and his witnesses were subjected to cross-examination. Therefore, the principles enunciated in Channayya would not be attracted at all to the facts here. Likewise, the decision of the Supreme Court in Atma Ram (supra) also does not apply to the facts obtaining here. In Atma Ram, the remarks of their Lordships bearing on the point, which the defendants moot, read:

"9. Coming to the second aspect revolving around Section 16(c), a look at the judgment of the trial court would show that no issue was framed on the question of readiness and willingness on the part of the petitioner-plaintiff in terms of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. The fact that the petitioner chose to issue a legal notice dated 12-11-1996 and the fact that the petitioner created an alibi in the form of an affidavit executed before the Sub-Registrar on 7-10-1996 (marked as Ext. P-2) to show that he was present before the Sub-Registrar for the purpose of completion of the transaction, within the time stipulated for its performance, was not sufficient to conclude that the petitioner continued to be ready and willing even after three years, on 13-10-1999 when the plaint was presented. No explanation was forthcoming from the petitioner for the long delay of three years, in filing the suit (on 13-10-1999) after issuing a legal notice on 12-11-1996. The conduct of a plaintiff is very crucial in a suit for specific performance. A person who issues a legal notice on 12-11-1996 claiming readiness and willingness, but who institutes a suit only on 13-10-1999 and that too only with a prayer for a mandatory injunction carrying a fixed court fee relatable only to the said relief, will not be entitled to the discretionary relief of specific performance."

35. Atma Ram was a case, where the plaintiff had instituted a suit after a delay of three years, which carried a relief for mandatory injunction alone, though court fee for specific performance without amending the suit to bring in a relief of specific performance was sought. It was in that context that the absence of an issue about readiness and willingness to a plea under Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act was held fatal. Here, the facts are absolutely different, where the suit was instituted properly framing a relief of specific performance. There is a clear averment in the plaint to the effect that the plaintiff-vendees, in accordance with the suit agreement, have always been ready and willing to get a sale deed executed. This averment and related facts are specifically pleaded in Paragraph No.5 of the plaint. The omission by the Trial Court, therefore, to frame an issue about readiness and willingness, is no more than an irregularity arising from oversight or the Court's casual approach. However, the issue substantially is part of Issue No.1 and parties have consciously gone to trial, bearing in mind the case about readiness and willingness urged by the plaintiff-vendees. The parties, particularly the plaintiff-vendees, have led evidence on the point of readiness and willingness and have been cross-examined. Thus, by application of no principle or yardstick, can it be said that it is a case where failure to frame an issue about readiness and willingness has prejudiced the parties' case, particularly of the defendants.

36. Further reliance that has been placed by the learned Counsel for the defendants on the decision of this Court in Dhanu (supra) does not also lead to a favourable perspective for the defendants on the substantial questions of law under consideration. In Dhanu, I held:

"24. This Court is not unmindful of the well established legal principle that "readiness' and "willingness' are matters that have to be proved substantially and not left to mere ceremony and form. About readiness also, therefore, it has been said on high judicial authority that there should be consistent proof of capacity to pay the sale consideration, which this Court thinks should be there throughout, and it is not necessary that the plaintiffs should be carrying around requisite money with him at all times after performance falls due and till such time that a decree is passed. But those authorities do not absolve the plaintiffs of proving their capacity at all times after performance has fallen due, by leading appropriate evidence in the circumstances obtaining. The aforesaid principle of substantial compliance in the matter of establishing readiness and willingness is most eloquently exposited by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in A. Kanthamani v. Nasreen Ahmed 3, where their Lordships held thus in paragraphs 24, 25 & 26 of the report:

"24. The expression "readiness and willingness" has been the subject-matter of interpretation in many cases even prior to its insertion in Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. While examining the question as to how and in what manner, the plaintiff is required to prove his financial readiness so as to enable him to claim specific performance of the contract/agreement, the Privy Council in a leading case which arose from the Indian courts (Bombay) in Bank of India Ltd. v. Jamsetji A.H. Chinoy [Bank of India Ltd. v. Jamsetji A.H. Chinoy, 1949 SCC OnLine

PC 81 : (1949-50) 77 IA 76 : AIR 1950 PC 90], approved the view taken by Chagla A.C.J., and held inter alia that "it is not necessary for the plaintiff to produce the money or vouch a concluded scheme for financing the transaction to prove his readiness and willingness."

25. The following observations of the Privy Council are apposite: (Jamsetji case [Bank of India Ltd. v. Jamsetji A.H. Chinoy, 1949 SCC OnLine PC 81 : (1949-50) 77 IA 76 : AIR 1950 PC 90], SCC OnLine PC)

"... Their Lordships agree with this conclusion and the grounds on which it was based. It is true that Plaintiff 1 stated that he was buying for himself, that he had not sufficient ready money to meet the price and that no definite arrangements had been made for finding it at the time of repudiation. But in order to prove himself ready and willing a purchaser has not necessarily to produce the money or to vouch a concluded scheme for financing the transaction. The question is one of fact, and in the present case the appellate court had ample material on which to found the view it reached. Their Lordships would only add in this connection that they fully concur with Chagla A.C.J. when he says:

"In my opinion, on the evidence already on record it was sufficient for the court to come to the conclusion that Plaintiff 1 was ready and willing to perform his part of the contract. It was not necessary for him to work out actual figures and satisfy the court what specific amount a bank would have advanced on the mortgage of his property and the pledge of these shares. I do not think that any jury--if the matter was left to the jury in England--would have come to the conclusion that a man, in the position in which the plaintiff was, was not ready and willing to pay the purchase price of the shares which he had bought from Defendants 1 and 2.'

For the foregoing reasons, their Lordships answer Question (4) in the affirmative." (emphasis supplied)

28. The decisions above referred are expressions of high judicial opinion, and for whatever is said there, there cannot be any quarrel. But, it has to be seen on the facts obtaining in the case in hand, which includes pleading as also the evidence, in what manner the principles relating to substantial compliance with the requirement of proving readiness and willingness would operate. It is for the Courts of fact again to determine this question. Illustratively, in A. Kanthamani (supra) the agreement to sell was executed between parties on 5th March, 1989 for a total sale consideration of Rs. 3,43,200/-. A sum of Rs. 1,30,000/- was paid by the vendee to the vendor as earnest. Close on heels, a sum of Rs. 20,000/- was further paid towards sale consideration on 03.04.1989, Rs. 10,000/- on 04.05.1989, Rs. 15,000/- on 03.07.1989, Rs. 15,000/- on 06.07.1989 and Rs. 16,000/- on 16.08.1989, aggregating a sum of Rs. 76,000/-. This figure added to the initial earnest of Rs. 1,30,000/-, would make the advance payment, a figure of Rs. 2,06,000/-. It was also found there that the vendor orally agreed to transfer to the vendee, an additional area of 132.25 square feet, at the ground floor, and, an undivided share. In relation to the additional property covenanted to be sold, the vendee paid his vendor a sum of Rs. 46,000/-, as earnest. Upon the total advance money paid, the Courts of fact in that case found that the vendee had paid more than Rs. 2 lacs to the vendor, of the total agreed sale consideration, where a balance sum of Rs. 1,47,200/- remained to be paid. Added to it was the conduct of the vendee, sending the vendor, a draft sale deed on 10.11.1989, for an area admeasuring 847.25 square feet and one ½ undivided share. It is also noticed that the vendor had orally agreed to sell an additional area of land, but on receipt of the draft sale deed, she refused to do so and returned the draft sale deed to the vendor on 04.12.1989 for his approval, asking him to treat the sum of Rs. 46,000/- paid by him for the additional area, as further advance, paid in relation to the registered agreement dated 05.03.1989. Thereafter, on 15.12.1989, the vendor sent another draft sale deed for approval of the vendee, effecting necessary changes there."

37. Admittedly, there are two Courts of facts here, who, after consideration of evidence about readiness and willingness, have reached a plausible conclusion about it. Moreover, Dhanu was not a case where the Court was confronted with the proposition about the effect of a formal failure of the Court to frame an issue about readiness and willingness, notwithstanding its substantial consideration with parties pleading about it and leading evidence. The principles there were laid down in the context of what readiness and willingness occurring in Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act oblige a plaintiff to prove, before he can get a decree of specific performance. The said decision, for the aforesaid reason also, is not of much assistance to the defendants on the substantial questions of law under consideration.

38. The principle that governs the answer to the substantial questions of law under consideration finds eloquent enunciation in the holding of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in P. Purushottam Reddy (supra), where it has been observed:

"11. ..... It is true that a specific issue was not framed by the trial court. Nevertheless, the parties and the trial court were very much alive to the issue whether Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act was complied with or not and the contentions advanced by the parties in this regard were also adjudicated upon. The High Court was to examine whether such finding of the trial court was sustainable or not -- in law and on facts. Even otherwise the question could have been gone into by the High Court and a finding could have been recorded on the available material inasmuch as the High Court being the court of first appeal, all the questions of fact and law arising in the case were open before it for consideration and decision.

12. Assuming that there was any deficiency in the pleadings and also an omission on the part of the trial court to frame a specific issue, the present one is a case where the applicability of the law laid down by this Court in Nagubai Ammal v. R. Shama Rao [AIR 1956 SC 593] was squarely attracted. In Nagubai case [AIR 1956 SC 593] this Court was called upon to examine if the plea of lis pendens was not open to the plaintiff on the ground that it had not been raised in the pleadings. Neither the plaint nor the reply statement of the plaintiff contained any averment that the sale was affected by the rule of lis pendens. There was no specific issue directed to that question. However, evidence was adduced by the plaintiff on the plea of lis pendens and not objected to by the defendants. The question was argued and tested by taking into consideration the evidence that the proceedings were collusive in character with a view to avoid operation of Section 52 of the TP Act. This Court felt satisfied that the defendants went to trial with full knowledge that the question of lis pendens was in issue, had ample opportunity to adduce their evidence thereon and fully availed themselves of the opportunity. This Court formed the opinion that in the circumstances of the case, absence of a specific pleading on the question was a mere irregularity which resulted in no prejudice to the defendants. After having noticed the rule of pleadings as applicable to civil law that "no amount of evidence can be looked into upon a plea which was never put forward", this Court held: (AIR p. 598, para 12)

"The true scope of this rule is that evidence let in on issues on which the parties actually went to trial should not be made the foundation for decision of another and different issue, which was not present in the minds of the parties and on which they had no opportunity of adducing evidence. But that rule has no application to a case where parties go to trial with knowledge that a particular question is in issue, though no specific issue has been framed thereon, and adduce evidence relating thereto."

39. Thus, the principle on which the answer to these questions would turn, given the way the parties have pleaded their case and led evidence on the issue of readiness and willingness, is that a substantial compliance with the requirement of proving readiness and willingness at the trial by the plaintiff in a suit for specific performance would not vitiate the decree for the mere failure of framing a specific issue; of course, this would be so where the parties had notice of the case about readiness and willingness and had opportunity to lead evidence about it, with no prejudice being occasioned to the defendants on account of the failure to specifically frame that issue.

40. Therefore, Substantial Question of Law (1) is answered in the affirmative, in terms that a suit for specific performance can be decreed without an issue about readiness and willingness being framed, provided readiness and willingness are substantially pleaded and proved by the parties' evidence, where the parties have gone to trial conscious of the plea, with opportunity to the defendants, to dispel the same. Substantial Question of Law No.2 is also answered in the affirmative, accordingly.

41. So far as the third substantial question of law is concerned, the same appears to be fairly well crystallized that where, in relation to the agricultural land subject matter of consolidation operations, the plaintiff-vendees have moved to different plots different from those that are subject matter of the suit agreement, the contract would frustrate. Learned Counsel for the defendants has placed emphatic reliance upon the decision of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Piarey Lal v. Hori Lal7 to submit that once consolidation takes place and the subject matter of the contract moves out of the plaintiff-vendees' hands, who are given a different parcel by allotment of a chak, the contract frustrates under Section 56 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872. In Piarey Lal (supra) interpreting Section 30 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 together with Section 54 and 55(1)(d) of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, it has been held:

"5. As is obvious, clause (a) of Section 30 does not bear on the question in controversy because it only provides for the cessation of the rights, title, interests and liabilities both of the tenure-holder to whom the "chak" has been allotted, and of the former tenure-holder of the plots comprising the "chak" in their respective

"original holdings". There is no controversy that this was so in the present case. It is also nobody's case that the rights, title, and interests of the tenure-holder entering into possession of his "chak" have any bearing on the controversy relating to the specific performance of the agreement for sale, for all that has been urged before us is that the defendant, as the tenure-holder of the new holding or "chak" had the same "liabilities" in that "chak" as he had in the original holding. What therefore remains for consideration is whether, on the defendant's entering into possession of his new land or "chak", there was the same liability "in" the new land as "in" the original holding. It has therefore to be examined whether, by virtue of the agreement for sale, any liability accrued "in" the original holding?

6. A cross-reference to Section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act shows that a contract for the sale of immovable property is a contract that a sale of such property shall take place on terms settled between the parties. It has however been specifically provided in the section that such a contract "does not, of itself, create any interest in or charge on such property". It would therefore follow that the agreement for sale in the present case did not give rise to any interest "in" the original holding of the defendant as the tenure-holder. That being so, there could be no occasion for the transfer of any such liability "in" the new land or "chak" of the defendant so as to attract clause (b) of Section 30 of the Act. In fact what the defendant was bound to do under Section 55(1)(d) of the Transfer of Property Act was to execute a proper conveyance of "the property" which was the subject-matter of the contract for sale, and not of any other property. So when he lost that property as a result of the scheme of consolidation and his rights, title and interests ceased in that property by virtue of clause (a) of Section 30 of the Act, the agreement for sale became void within the meaning of Section 56 of the Contract Act, and it is futile to urge that they were saved by clause (a) or clause (b) of Section 30 of the Act."

42. As already noted, there is little quarrel about the proposition that if the entire identity of land changes in consequence of consolidation, the suit agreement would frustrate. But the moot question is whether there has been such a change of identity of land between what was contracted to be sold by the defendant-vendor to the plaintiff-vendees through the suit agreement and what has remained with the defendant-vendor post consolidation, when the action came up for trial. While Mr. Ashutosh Mishra submits that the identity of the plot, subject matter of the suit agreement, is completely different from what has been allowed to the defendant-vendor, as a result of consolidation, Ms. Pooja Agarwal urges the contrary case. She submits that in consequence of consolidation, there has been a marginal or slight change to the identity of the land that is subject matter of the suit agreement. According to her, the land remains substantially unchanged. The only change is that for the six plot numbers, that are subject matter of the suit agreement, five from amongst the same have been allotted, slightly varying their areas, but maintaining the total area of 0.237 hectares. Both the learned Counsel, in this connection, have drawn this Court's attention to the plots that are subject matter of the suit agreement and those that figure in CH Form-41, where out of the six old plot numbers with their specified areas, five are shown allotted, with a slightly individual plot-wise adjusted area, to the defendant-vendor as part of his consolidated holding/ chak and assigned a new number, being Plot No.530. The total area remains unchanged. It would be of immense profit to compare the plot numbers subject matter of the suit agreement and those allotted to the defendant-vendor post consolidation, that figure in CH Form-41 relating to the defendant-vendor. This comparison can best be depicted in tabular form as shown below:

Plot nos. of agreement to sell		Plot nos. constituting new plot no.530
Plot No.	Area (in hectares)	Plot No.	Area (in hectares)
248M	'0.008	250/1
250	'0.010	252/1	'0.086
251M	'1.354	252/2	'0.005
252/1	'0.086	251M	'0.131
252/'0.237	'0.020	253M	'0.010
253	'0.089
Total	minus the area earlier sold = 0.237		'0.237

43. Now, a comparison of the plots that are subject matter of the suit agreement and those left back in the hands of the defendant-vendor post consolidation, would lead one to notice the following facts:

Out of the land that was subject matter of the suit agreement, one Plot No.248M alone has been omitted. The other five have remained back with the defendant-vendor. Plot No.250 shown in the suit agreement and 250/1, where the area has been reduced from 0.010 to 0.005 hectares, are essentially the same plot with a subdivided number. Plot No.251M continues as such in the consolidated holding with a reduced area. Plot No.252/1 is there in CH Form-41 without any change. Plot No.252/2 is part of the consolidated holding. Plot No.253 also continues with the defendant-vendor. No doubt there is a change in area, but this is also attributable to the land already sold by the defendant-vendor to the plaintiff-vendees. The total area of the consolidated holding as shown in CH Form-41, also remains the same.

44. It is not a case where the land that was agreed to be sold through the suit agreement has gone out of the defendant-vendor's hand as a result of consolidation operations and a new holding allotted to him, relieving him of his earlier obligations by virtue of Section 30 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953. Once the chak allotted to the defendant-vendor is substantially the same land, that is subject matter of the suit agreement, the contract would not frustrate. The above principle has the endorsement of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Baikunthi Devi and others v. Mahendra Nath and another8. The facts and holding in Baikunthi Devi (supra) read:

"3. In the present case, the facts are brief and the law is clear. One Jeewa Ram, who had a half share in a tract of land Ac. 6-00 in extent with a small house thereon, had entered into an agreement to sell his share for a consideration of Rs 3000 to Respondent 1. This agreement dated June 16, 1960 was sought to be enforced by a suit for specific performance although by that time Jeewa Ram had passed away and his daughter, the present Appellant 1 became his legal representative. The demand for specific performance was made by the plaintiff-first respondent who, incidentally, happens to be the nephew of the late Jeewa Ram. The suit itself was filed after the consolidation proceedings had come to a close. It so happened that as a result of the consolidation proceedings precisely the same land which was the subject-matter of the agreement to sell, less a tiny bit of Ac. 0-06, was included in the chak allotted to Jeewa Ram and the first respondent.

4. The High Court took the view that since substantially the same land as was the subject-matter of the agreement to sell (plus some other plot with which we are not concerned) has been allotted in the consolidation proceedings to Jeewa Ram there was no difficulty at all in enforcing specifically the agreement which was the basis of the suit. Nor do we see any valid objection to the view on the law and the facts taken by the High Court.

5. The only contention urged before us by Shri B.R.L. Iyengar, appearing for the appellants, is that on account of the consolidation proceedings even though the same lands may have been allotted in the new chak there was nevertheless a loss of identity, the emergence of a new character, the incarnation of a new entity as it were. On account of this consequence, he urged that specific performance could not be granted as a discretionary relief. We are unable to perceive any force in this submission. Actually, a tiny bit of Ac. 0-06 of land was also due to the first respondent which he gave up. Section 12(2) of the Specific Relief Act covers such a situation. The result is that the first respondent is entitled to enforce specifically the contract in his favour. The consolidation proceedings having concluded there is no bar to a decree being granted in his favour. In this view, there is no merit in this appeal."

45. The principle, to the understanding of this Court, is about the substantial identity of the land subject matter of the suit agreement remaining unchanged in consequence of consolidation, that would save the contract from frustration. Minor adjustments in the area of the plots or exclusion of a plot number of negligible area from the consolidated holding would not, in any manner, change the identity of the subject matter, so as to frustrate the contract by virtue of Section 30 of the of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 read with Section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

46. In the opinion of this Court, therefore, Substantial Question of Law No.3 must be answered in the negative, in terms that where agricultural land subject matter of consolidation, that is agreed to be sold, is consolidated and the defendant-vendor is moved to different plots, the contract would frustrate; but it would not frustrate where substantially, the subject matter of the suit agreement remains the same, with minor or negligible changes.

47. So far as the fourth substantial question of law is concerned, it is submitted by the learned Counsel for the defendants that grant of relief of specific performance is discretionary with the Court, where all circumstances should be taken into consideration, before a decision is taken about granting the said relief. Learned Counsel points out that defendant-purchasers are bona fide purchasers of the suit property, which is now a new plot bearing No.530, admeasuring 0.237 hectares. They had no knowledge of the suit agreement when they entered into the transaction of sale. The sale deed in favour of the defendant-purchasers was executed by the defendant-vendor on 16.09.1998 for a total sale consideration of Rs.68,000/- and ever since, they are in possession. It is pointed out that this Court protected their possession, initially by an interim order dated 22.05.2003 on an absolute basis, which was subsequently modified on 23.07.2004, directing the defendants to deposit Rs.6500/- annually with the Trial Court pending appeal. It was further ordered that the deposit so made shall be subject to final orders, that may be passed at the hearing of this appeal. It was also ordered that the first annual deposit shall be made by the defendants by the 1st of September, 2004 and subsequent annual deposits shall be made by the 1st September of each succeeding year.

48. It is submitted that the said sum of money can be utilized to refund the earnest paid to the plaintiff-vendees in lieu of specific performance. It is urged that the value of the property has increased manifold over the period of time that the suit was instituted and has remained pending through appeals, whereas the relative value of money has dwindled. It is argued that execution of the sale deed, at this stage, would result in great injustice to the defendant-purchasers, who are in possession of the suit property after bona fide purchasing the same from its recorded bhumidhar, that is to say, the defendant-vendor. It is submitted on behalf of the plaintiff-vendees that the decision to grant specific performance is essentially a question of fact, where discretion has to be exercised by the Courts of fact on the evidence available. It is pointed out that unless the discretion has been perversely exercised, the same ought not to be interfered with.

49. This Court must remark that the exercise of discretion in the matter of specific performance, according to the current trend of authorities, has been the subject matter of consideration in higher and limited jurisdiction of this Court and their Lordships of the Supreme Court on subtle principles about adjustment of equities. Particularly, there is much emphasis about the legal principles that are designed to eschew arbitrariness in the exercise of discretion under Section 20 of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. So far as the present case is concerned, this Court is of opinion that it does not pose much of a problem about adjustment of equities that invariably arise when a suit for specific performance goes through a long period of pendency to reach its terminus. Here, there is one fact that is very different, and that is that the suit was instituted by the plaintiff-vendees on 20th August, 1998 and the defendant-vendor executed a registered sale deed relating to the suit property in favour of the defendant-purchasers on 16.09.1998. Thus, the sale deed here is hit by the principle of lis pendens. Section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 reads:

" 52. Transfer of property pending suit relating thereto.--During the pendency in any Court having authority within the limits of India excluding the State of Jammu and Kashmir or established beyond such limits by the Central Government any suit or proceeding which is not collusive and in which any right to immovable property is directly and specifically in question, the property cannot be transferred or otherwise dealt with by any party to the suit or proceeding so as to affect the rights of any other party thereto under any decree or order which may be made therein, except under the authority of the Court and on such terms as it may impose.

Explanation.--For the purposes of this section, the pendency of a suit or proceeding shall be deemed to commence from the date of the presentation of the plaint or the institution of the proceeding in a court of competent jurisdiction, and to continue until the suit or proceeding has been disposed of by a final decree or order, and complete satisfaction or discharge of such decree or order has been obtained, or has become unobtainable by reason of the expiration of any period of limitation prescribed for the execution thereof by any law for the time being in force."

50. It is clear that a transfer pendente lite confers title upon the purchaser, who takes the risk subject to the rights of his vendor. If the vendor fails in the litigation, the purchaser pendente lite has no right of his own or equities to plead. In this connection, reference may be made to the decision of the Supreme Court in A. Nawab John and others v. Subramaniyam9, where it has been held:

"18. It is settled legal position that the effect of Section 52 is not to render transfers effected during the pendency of a suit by a party to the suit void; but only to render such transfers subservient to the rights of the parties to such suit, as may be, eventually, determined in the suit. In other words, the transfer remains valid subject, of course, to the result of the suit. The pendente lite purchaser would be entitled to or suffer the same legal rights and obligations of his vendor as may be eventually determined by the court.

"12. ... The mere pendency of a suit does not prevent one of the parties from dealing with the property constituting the subject-matter of the suit. The section only postulates a condition that the alienation will in no manner affect the rights of the other party under any decree which may be passed in the suit unless the property was alienated with the permission of the court." (Sanjay Verma v. Manik Roy [(2006) 13 SCC 608 : AIR 2007 SC 1332] , SCC p. 612, para 12.)"

51. There is only one eventuality under which the transferee pendente lite may acquire rights that would not be affected by the decree, and that is if the transfer has been made with permission of the Court, where the suit about rights of parties is pending. This is the direct consequent words in Section 52 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, which say "except under the authority of the Court and on such terms as it may impose". If a purchaser pendente lite has purchased with permission of the Court and subject to the terms that it imposes, some kind of a right independent of the result of the suit pending between parties, may be claimed. Else, a purchaser pendente lite has no rights under the law. He has no equities either. Admittedly, the defendant-purchasers have not taken the suit property through a sale deed that was executed with the permission of the Court. The date of the sale deed is certainly one after institution of the suit. In fact, the suit property appears to have been transferred very shortly after the suit was instituted. The temporal placing of events almost suggest an unsavoury hurry on part of the defendant-vendor, that is reminiscent of the typical case of a debtor transferring property to defraud creditors. As soon as the suit here was instituted on 20.08.1998, the sale deed in favour of the defendant-purchasers was executed by the defendant-vendor. It appears to have been executed to defeat the rights of the plaintiff-vendees in the situation that obtains here.

52. This Court is of clear opinion that the discretion to grant specific performance has been rightly exercised by the two Courts below.

53. So far as the defendant-vendor is concerned, there is hardly any right based on law or in equity that arises in his favour. He has sold off the suit property to the defendant-purchasers for a valuable sale consideration of Rs.68,000/-, as would be evident from a perusal of the registered sale deed dated 16.09.1998. He has nothing to lose by the approval of a decree of specific performance passed by the Courts below. Of course, anything said here would not affect the rights and liabilities inter se the defendant-vendor and the defendant-purchasers on the basis of conveyance dated 16.09.1998, that would stand effaced in consequence of the decree of specific performance passed in favour of the plaintiff-vendees.

54. Substantial Question of Law (4) is answered in the aforesaid terms.

55. In the result, this appeal fails and stands dismissed with costs throughout, to be borne equally between the defendant-vendor and the defendant-purchasers.

56. The interim order dated 22.05.2003 in the terms made absolute on 23.07.2004, is hereby vacated. The sum of money deposited by the defendant-purchasers shall be paid to the plaintiff-vendees together with any accrued interest, if earned, within a period of three months from the date of receipt of a copy of this order by the Trial Court.

57. Let a decree be drawn up accordingly.

58. The records of the Courts below shall be sent down at once along with a certified copy of this judgment.

6. Tej Kumari Sharma Vs Chola Mandlam M.S. General Insurance Co. Ltd., F.A.F.O. No.2871 of 2016

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. These two appeals are preferred against the same judgement one FAFO No.265 of 2022 on behalf of the claimants for enhancement of amount of compensation and another FAFO No.100 of 2014 by United India Insurance Co. Ltd. for setting aside the impugned judgement.

2. The impugned judgement was passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.3, Saharanpur on 7.10.2013 in MACP No.146 of 2012, Smt. Sonia and others Vs. Jaleel and others by which the claim petition of the claimants was allowed and Rs.4,79,000/- compensation was awarded with 6% per annum rate of interest.

3. The brief facts of the case are that aforesaid claim petition was filed due to the death of deceased Subhash Chand @ Subhash Kumar in a road accident. It is submitted in petition that on 24.06.2012, the deceased was going from his village with his Bhabhi-Smt. Rachana by Motorcycle No.UP-11 AD 9794. At 07:30 PM when he reached near village Chhibna, a tractor trolley No. UP 11 AC 8341 came from the opposite side which was driven by negligently and rashly by its driver. Deceased stopped his motorcycle at the left side of the road but the tractor driver hit the motorcycle. In this accident, deceased sustained fatal injuries and died on way to the hospital. Owner of the tractor and Insurance Company filed their respective statements. Learned Tribunal allowed the petition and awarded Rs.4,79,000/- with 6% rate of interest as compensation.

4. First of all, we take up the contention of the appeal preferred by the Insurance Company. Insurance Company has preferred the appeal merely on the two grounds. One is that at the time of accident, a trolley was attached to the tractor but the trolley was not insured and second ground that at the time of accident, the tractor was being driven by Muntazir but in order to avoid his liability the owner of the tractor produced Mohd. Farmaan as driver of the vehicle. Learned counsel for the Insurance Company submitted that in fact the driver of the tractor have not having a valid license. First information report was lodged against Muntazir showing him the driver of the tractor but the charge sheet was submitted against Mohd. Farmaan due to collusion of the owner of the tractor and the investigating officer. Learned counsel next submitted that it is the admitted case of the claimants that the trolley was attached to the tractor and the trolley was not insured hence at the time of accident, the tractor was being used for commercial purpose and it was being applied in breach of the condition of insurance policy. This contention of Insurance Company is vehemently opposed by the learned counsel for the claimants, who submitted that this provision of law has been settled by this Court in United India Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Smt. Suman and Others in FAFO No.611 of 2013 dated 06.03.2013. Shri S.D. Ojha, learned counsel for the claimants submitted that this case is covered by the aforesaid case. It is further submitted by Shri Ojha that it is on record that at the time of accident, trolley was vacant and trolley was not being used for any commercial purpose.

5. So far as the question of driver of the tractor is concerned, we are not convinced with the submission made by the Insurance Company. Charge sheet was submitted by investigating officer against Mohd. Farmaan and not against Muntazir. Charge sheet was submitted after making thorough investigation, hence, now it would not be open for the Insurance Company to contend that it is not liable as the charge sheet is submitted against Mohd. Farmaan and not against Muntazir. Submission of Insurance Company is that the trolley should have been insured but once the tractor is insured, the Insurance Company cannot wriggle out from its liability as held by this Court in United India Insurance Co. Ltd. vs. Smt. Suman and Others in FAFO No.611 of 2013. The submission of Insurance Company that tractor was being used for commercial purpose cannot be accepted in absence of any such evidence because nothing was loaded in the trolley at the time of accident and it was vacant. Hence, in our considered opinion, the learned Tribunal has not committed any error in law or in facts in holding that appellant-Insurance Company is liable to pay the amount of compensation to the claimants.

6. Now we come to the point of amount of compensation awarded by the Tribunal.

7. Learned counsel for the claimants submitted that Tribunal has assessed the income of the deceased as Rs.3,000/- per month, which is very low because deceased was having agriculture income. Hence at least Rs.6,000/- per month income should have been assessed. It is not disputed by Insurance Company that deceased was not agriculturist. Hence, we assess the income of the deceased at Rs.5,000/- per month. Learned Tribunal has not awarded any sum towards future loss of income. In National Insurance Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093, compensation will be awarded for future loss of income also. The age of deceased was 27 years at the time of accident, hence according to the aforesaid judgement 40% will be added for future prospects. The deceased was survived by his wife and three children and father. Therefore, keeping in view the number of dependents ¼ of income should be deducted towards personal expenses of the deceased. Since the age of the deceased was 27 years, therefore, as per the judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Sarla Verma and Others Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation and Another, 2009 ACJ 1298, a multiplier of 17 will be applied. Learned Tribunal has awarded Rs.10,000/- for loss of consortium, Rs.5,000/- for loss of estate and Rs.5,000/- for funeral expenses under the head of non-pecuniary damages, which are on lower side. As per judgement of the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (supra) claimants shall be entitled to Rs.15,000/- for funeral expenses and Rs.15,000/- for loss of estate. Apart from it, the wife of the deceased shall be entitled to get Rs.40,000/- for loss of consortium. Non-pecuniary damages are with 10% increase every three years. Hence, we grant Rs.1,00,000/- in the head of non-pecuniary damages.

8. Hence, the total compensation payable to the claimants is computed herein below:-

i. Annual Income : Rs.5,000/- x 12 = Rs.60,000/-

ii. Amount towards future prospects : 40% = Rs.24,000/-

iii. Total Income : Rs.60000+ Rs.24,000/- = Rs.84,000/- iv. Income after deduction of ¼ = 84,000-21,000 = Rs.63,000/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 17

vii. Total loss of dependency Rs.63,000/- x 17 = Rs.10,71,000/-

viii. Amount under non-pecuniary heads : Rs.1,00,000/-

ix. Total compensation : Rs. 10,71,000 + Rs.1,00,000 = Rs.11,71,000/-

9. As Insurance Company has conciliated the matter, 6% per annum rate of interest should be paid. The insurance company shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 6% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

10. Accordingly, the appeal of claimants is partly allowed and appeal of the Insurance Company is dismissed.

11. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansagori P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291 and this High Court in total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimants to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) and in First Appeal From Order No.2871 of 2016 (Tej Kumari Sharma v. Chola Mandlam M.S. General Insurance Co. Ltd.) decided on 19.3.2021 while disbursing the amount.

12. The record and proceedings be sent back to the Tribunal for disbursement.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Heard Shri A.K. Shukla for Vishesh Kumar Gupta, learned counsel for appellants; Shri Radhey Shyam, learned counsel for respondent-insurance company; and perused the judgment and order impugned.

2. This First Appeal From Order has been filed under section 173 of Motor Vehicle Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to 'Act, 1988') by appellants, being aggrieved by judgment and award dated 20.12.2008 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Court No.3, Moradabad (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in Claim Petition No. 326 of 2006 awarding a sum of Rs.55,363/- with interest at the rate of 6% to the injured.

3. The accident having taken place is not in dispute. A young boy of 16 years in the year 2006 met with an accident, the learned Tribunal granted a sum of Rs.55,363/- only. The tribunal considered contributory negligence of child to be 10%. The appellant having suffered loss of income besides other grievous injuries in whole of the body and had sustained compound fractures, various operations were carried out on appellant by doctors at Shri Sai Hospital and All India Medical Institute of Delhi whereby his one kidney was removed due to injuries.

4. The vehicle being insured with insurance company and there is no breach of policy condition is not in dispute. The accident occurred way back in the year 2006 is not in dispute. The involvement of the vehicle is not in dispute and it is proved before the Tribunal that the driver of the vehicle was negligent.

5. The appellant challenges the findings being bad on facts against the record as far non grant of compensation and negligence is concerned. A factual data is not adverted to except that the accident occurred on 8.7.2006 at about 9.00 p.m. when the driver of motor cycle rashly and negligently drove Motorcycle No.UP 21 Q 2563 and caused accident injuring the appellant, when the appellant was going on his road side by moped which is proved by appellant by oral and documentary evidence as such appellant sustained injury on right side kidney and lever was badly damaged in the said accident. The appellant (minor) was about 16 years of age when the accident occurred and his one kidney was removed and he would be by now 32 years of age. Unfortunately tribunal has awarded only Rs.55363/- with 6% rate of interest in which medical Rs.14,000/- is for permanent disability and Rs.29,363/- for medical expenses and Rs.7000/- for special diet and Rs.5000/- for pain and suffering only.

6. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant claimant that the Tribunal has materially erred in calculating the compensation. Learned counsel for appellant has heavily relied on the judgment of Kajal v. Jagdish Chand and others reported in AIR 2020 SC 776 and has contended that the principles for grant of just compensation has not been followed by the tribunal though the appellant proved that the claimant was operated and one of his kidneys got damaged due to accidental injuries had to be removed. According to learned counsel for appellant it was because of the fault of the opponent driver, that the appellant suffered the injuries. According to the learned counsel for the appellant notional yearly income of the injured should be considered Rs.60,000/- per annum; and 40% be added towards future loss of income; multiplier of 18 be granted; loss of earning be calculated at 30% disability; and Rs.1,00,000/- towards pain and suffering; and Rs.75,000/- for all other non pecuniary damages be granted which would be just and proper and would be adequate compensation. Learned counsel has relied on decision of Apex Court in case titled Kajal (Supra), paragraphs 15 and 16 of the (Kajal Supra) judgment quoted herein below:

"15. In R.D. Hattangadi v. Pest Control (India) Pvt. Ltd.6, dealing with the different heads of compensation in injury cases this Court held thus:

"9. Broadly speaking, while fixing the amount of compensation payable to a victim of an accident, the damages have to be assessed separately as pecuniary damages and special damages. Pecuniary damages are those which the victim has actually incurred and which are capable of being calculated in terms of money; whereas nonpecuniary damages are those which are incapable of being assessed by arithmetical calculations. In order to appreciate two concepts pecuniary damages may include expenses incurred by the claimant: (i) medical attendance; (ii) loss of earning of profit up to the date of trial; (iii) other material loss. So far as non pecuniary damages are concerned, they may include:

(i) damages for mental and physical shock, pain and suffering already suffered or likely to be suffered in the future; (ii) damages to compensate for the loss of amenities of life which may include a variety of matters, i.e., on account of injury the claimant may not be able to walk, run or sit; (iii) damages for loss of expectation of life, i.e. on account of injury the normal longevity of the person concerned is shortened; (iv) inconvenience, hardship, 5 1980 ACJ 55 (SC) 6 (1995) 1 SCC 551 discomfort, disappointment, frustration and mental stress in life."

16. In Raj Kumar v. Ajay Kumar and Others, this Court laid down the heads under which compensation is to be awarded for personal injuries.

"6. The heads under which compensation is awarded in personal injury cases are the following:

Pecuniary damages (Special damages)

(i)Expenses relating to treatment, hospitalization, medicines, transportation, nourishing food, and miscellaneous expenditure.

(ii) Loss of earnings (and other gains) which the injured would have made had he not been injured, comprising: (a) Loss of earning during the period of treatment; (b) Loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability.

(iii) Future medical expenses.

Non pecuniary damages (General damages)

(iv) Damages for pain, suffering and trauma as a consequence of the injuries.

(v) Loss of amenities (and/or loss of prospects of marriage).

(vi) Loss of expectation of life (shortening of normal longevity).

In routine personal injury cases, compensation will be awarded only under heads (i), (ii) (a) and (iv). It is only in serious cases of injury, where there is specific medical evidence corroborating the evidence of the claimant, that compensation will be granted under any of the heads (ii)(b), (iii), (v) and (vi) relating to loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability, future medical expenses, loss of amenities (and/or loss of prospects of marriage) and loss of expectation of life." 7 (2011) 1 SCC 343"

7. Recently the Supreme Court had an occasion of deciding a similar matter relating to a minor who had become practically crippled. The principles of just compensation have been laid in the said judgment.

8. The Tribunal held that claimant/appellant to be negligent to the tune of 10%. The counsel has submitted that appellant was not at all negligent.

9. The issue of negligence has to be decided from the perspective of the law laid down by the Courts.

10. The term negligence means failure to exercise care towards others which a reasonable and prudent person would in a circumstance. Negligence can be both intentional or accidental which can also be accidental. More particularly, term negligence connotes reckless driving and the injured of claimants must always prove that the either side is negligent. If the injury rather death is caused by something owned or controlled by the negligent party then he is directly liable otherwise the principle of "res ipsa loquitur" meaning thereby "the things speak for itself" would apply.

11. The principle of contributory negligence has been discussed time and again. A person who either contributes or is author of the accident would be liable for his contribution to the accident having taken place.

12. The Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal From Order No. 1818 of 2012 (Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Smt. Renu Singh And Others) decided on 19.7.2016 has held as under :

"16. Negligence means failure to exercise required degree of care and caution expected of a prudent driver. Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon the considerations, which ordinarily regulate conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence is not always a question of direct evidence. It is an inference to be drawn from proved facts. Negligence is not an absolute term, but is a relative one. It is rather a comparative term. What may be negligence in one case may not be so in another. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which would be reasonably foreseen likely to caused physical injury to person. The degree of care required, of course, depends upon facts in each case. On these broad principles, the negligence of drivers is required to be assessed.

17. It would be seen that burden of proof for contributory negligence on the part of deceased has to be discharged by the opponents. It is the duty of driver of the offending vehicle to explain the accident. It is well settled law that at intersection where two roads cross each other, it is the duty of a fast moving vehicle to slow down and if driver did not slow down at intersection, but continued to proceed at a high speed without caring to notice that another vehicle was crossing, then the conduct of driver necessarily leads to conclusion that vehicle was being driven by him rashly as well as negligently.

18. 10th Schedule appended to Motor Vehicle Act contain statutory regulations for driving of motor vehicles which also form part of every Driving License. Clause-6 of such Regulation clearly directs that the driver of every motor vehicle to slow down vehicle at every intersection or junction of roads or at a turning of the road. It is also provided that driver of the vehicle should not enter intersection or junction of roads unless he makes sure that he would not thereby endanger any other person. Merely, because driver of the Truck was driving vehicle on the left side of road would not absolve him from his responsibility to slow down vehicle as he approaches intersection of roads, particularly when he could have easily seen, that the car over which deceased was riding, was approaching intersection.

19. In view of the fast and constantly increasing volume of traffic, motor vehicles upon roads may be regarded to some extent as coming within the principle of liability defined in Rylands

V/s. Fletcher, (1868) 3 HL (LR) 330. From the point of view of pedestrian, the roads of this country have been rendered by the use of motor vehicles, highly dangerous. 'Hit and run' cases where drivers of motor vehicles who have caused accidents, are unknown. In fact such cases are increasing in number. Where a pedestrian without negligence on his part is injured or killed by a motorist, whether negligently or not, he or his legal representatives, as the case may be, should be entitled to recover damages if principle of social justice should have any meaning at all.

20. These provisions (sec.110A and sec.110B of Motor Act, 1988) are not merely procedural provisions. They substantively affect the rights of the parties. The right of action created by Fatal Accidents Act, 1855 was 'new in its species, new in its quality, new in its principles. In every way it was new. The right given to legal representatives under Act, 1988 to file an application for compensation for death due to a motor vehicle accident is an enlarged one. This right cannot be hedged in by limitations of an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1855. New situations and new dangers require new strategies and new remedies.

21. In the light of the above discussion, we are of the view that even if courts may not by interpretation displace the principles of law which are considered to be well settled and, therefore, court cannot dispense with proof of negligence altogether in all cases of motor vehicle accidents, it is possible to develop the law further on the following lines; when a motor vehicle is being driven with reasonable care, it would ordinarily not meet with an accident and, therefore, rule of res-ipsa loquitor as a rule of evidence may be invoked in motor accident cases with greater frequency than in ordinary civil suits (per three-Judge Bench in Jacob Mathew V/s. State of Punjab, 2005 0 ACJ(SC) 1840).

22. By the above process, the burden of proof may ordinarily be cast on the defendants in a motor accident claim petition to prove that motor vehicle was being driven with reasonable care or that there is equal negligence on the part the other side."

13. The aforesaid judgment would apply to the facts of this case just because the injured did not have licence to drive moped when the accident occurred would not permit us to concur with the tribunal.

14. While going through the record, it is proved that the victim was 16 years of age and was a minor. In our case, the tribunal on the basis of evidence held that accident had taken place due to rash and negligent driving of the motorcyclist and held the minor was also negligent. The tribunal relied on the decision of the Apex Court in Bishan Dass v. Himachal Road Transport Corporation (hrtc) And Ors, AIR 2014 ACJ 1012 and, therefore, the findings of fact that the child was negligent and accident was between the Scotty which was being driven by the injured is upheld. The driver of the motorcycle did not even appear before the tribunal as the witnesses have been examined who have deposed in favour of the minor.

COMPENSATION

15. We now decide the compensation the right side kidney of the appellant was damaged is an admitted position of fact which is borne out from the records and the judgment, he was treated by several doctors he was treated in All India Medical Institute, Delhi who was opined as oath as

PW-7 (Dr. Loti P.) just because the respondent has contended that treatment was on Government expenses. The injuries suffered by the appellant go to show that his one kidney had to be removed. The learned tribunal has taken a hyper technical view in the matter. The medical treatment papers also go to show that the liver was damaged, there was lot of blood which had to be drained. Dr. Arun and Dr. R.S. Gupta had also examined the juvenile, Dr. Mohit Agarwal who was working with Sai Hospital has also treated him his left kidney have to be removed. There was blood Clots in the stomach and therefore he had to be operated his health though Dr. Mohit Agarwal has been examined as PW-4, who has stated that there was grade-4 injuries to the damage and grade-4 injury means that the kidney was damaged to a great extent.

16. The learned tribunal has not taken sympathetic view which is required by tribunal in such matters when the child has suffered such a great loss of body part. Theories of just compensation has also been overlooked by the tribunal while adjudicating this matter, just because no disability or injury report was filed. Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 reads as follows:-

166. Application for compensation.--

(1) An application for compensation arising out of an accident of the nature specified in sub-section (1) of section 165 may be made--

(a) by the person who has sustained the injury; or

(b) by the owner of the property; or

(c) where death has resulted from the accident, by all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased; or

(d) by any agent duly authorised by the person injured or all or any of the legal representatives of the deceased, as the case may be: Provided that where all the legal representatives of the deceased have not joined in any such application for compensation, the application shall be made on behalf of or for the benefit of all the legal representatives of the deceased and the legal representatives who have not so joined, shall be impleaded as respondents to the application. 1[(2) Every application under sub-section (1) shall be made, at the option of the claimant, either to the Claims Tribunal having jurisdiction over the area in which the accident occurred, or to the Claims Tribunal within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the claimant resides or carries on business or within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the defendant resides, and shall be in such form and contain such particulars as may be prescribed: Provided that where no claim for compensation under section 140 is made in such application, the application shall contain a separate statement to that effect immediately before the signature of the applicant.] 2[] 3[(4) The Claims Tribunal shall treat any report of accidents forwarded to it under sub-section (6) of section 158 as an application for compensation under this Act."

17. We reproduce the evidence of doctor, as PW-7 (Dr. Loti) has categorically mentioned that "मरीज के पेट में 600 ml खून जमा था, राइट किडनी को बहार निकल दिया था". The patient was admitted from 9.7.2006 to 15.7.2006, thereafter also he was under constant treatment and it is opined that he would need treatment in future despite that the tribunal has granted a meagre amount of Rs.55,633/- out of Rs.

29,363/- is for medical expenses, and Rs. 5000/- for pain and suffering. This shows the perversity in non granting what is known as just compensation.

18. Victim was 16 years of age. As per the medical report, he has suffered 30% disability for the body as a whole which means it would be 30% disability for earning. The accident occurred before a decade, namely, 2006. Hence he would be at the age of 32 years as of today.

19. We, therefore, would rely on the judgment in case titled Kajal (Supra) and in this backdrop let us evaluate the income in view of the decisions of the Apex Court titled Hdfc Ergo General Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Mukesh Kumar, 2021 (0) AJEL-SC 67851 and Jithendran v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd., 2021 (0) AIJEL-SC 67944 and, the recalculate the compensation which would be as follows:

i. Income =3,000/-p.m.

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 40% namely = Rs.1200/- iii. Total income : Rs.3000+1200 = Rs.4200/-

iv. Loss of earning capacity: 30% namely Rs.1260/-

v. Annual Loss : Rs.1260 x 12 = Rs.15,120/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 18

vii. Total Loss : Rs. 15,120 x 18 = Rs.2,72,160/- viii. For pain & sufferings : Rs.1,00,000/-(as his one kidney has been removed)

ix. All other heads for non pecuniary damages = Rs.70,000/-

x. Total compensation (vii+viii+ix): Rs.2,72,160 + Rs. 1,00,000 + Rs.70,000 =4,42,160/-

20. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

21. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansagauri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

22. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

23. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount along with additional amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

24. We are thankful to learned counsels for the parties for ably assisting the Court

25. The lower court record be sent back, if here, to the tribunal for disbursement.

26. A copy of this order be sent to Shri P.C. Mishra, Additional District Judge/MACT, Court No.3, Moradabad, if he is in service so that he may be more careful in future.

First Appeal From Order No. 1179 of 2007

Gopi Charan ...Appellant
Versus
Smt. Rekha Dwivedi & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Anurudh Chaturvedi

Counsel for the Respondents:

(A) Torts Law - Motor vehicle Act,1988 - Section 173 - Contributory negligence - Composite negligence - Pillion rider - Principle of " res ipsa loquitur" - " the things speak for itself" - Mere failure to avoid the collision by taking some extraordinary precaution, does not in itself constitute negligence - Two Pillion riders did not mean that the rider has contributed in the accident - vehicle which is being driven should show more care and caution (Cardinal principle).(Para - 16, 23, 27)

(B) Torts Law - Principle of Contributory negligence - a person who either contributes or is co author of the accident would be liable for his contribution to the accident having taken place - that amount will be detected from the compensation payable to him if he is injured - to legal representative if he dies in the accident .(Para - 17)

(C) Torts Law - Principle of Composite negligence - liability is joint and several - claimant entitled to seek compensation either from the driver of both the vehicles or he may seek entire compensation from any of the drivers .(Para - 28)

(D) Tax Law - The Income Tax Act, 1961- Section 194A (3) (ix) - total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis - if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/- - insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' - if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year - registry of Tribunal is directed to allow the claimants to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income-Tax Authority. (Para - 39)

Elder son of appellant - along with his mother and younger brother aged 6 were going by motorcycle - Tata Jeep came from opposite direction - driven by its driver - rashly and negligently and dashed with the motorcycle - caused accident, 3 persons scummed to the injuries sustained due to the accident - died on the spot - claimant (father of two deceased and husband of third) - filed claim petition.(Para - 7)

HELD:-Vehicle of the deceased did not meet with the accident because the minor child was accompanying the diseased as a pillion on the vehicle. Accident cannot be said to have occurred because of negligence of the rider of two vehicles. Mother who was riding on the bike as pillion sustain injuries . Husband is entitled to compensation as he is class II heir and , non joinder of the owner and deduction of the amount does not arise . Claimants entitled to Rs 2,25,000/- for deceased (Avanish) , Rs. 5,59,000/- for deceased (Savitri) and Rs. 49,00,000/- for deceased (Manish Singh) . Appellants entitled to the rate of interest at 7.5 % per annum. (Para - 25,35)

Appeals partly allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
&
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anurudh Chaturvedi, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri S.K. Mehrotra, learned counsel for the respondent-Insurance Company and perused the record. None appears for the owner or driver of offending vehicle.

2. These appeals, under Section 173 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (hereinafter referred to as "Act'), are preferred at the behest of the claimant challenging the judgment and award dated 12.01.2007 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.3, Kanpur Dehat (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in M.A.C.P. Nos.398/2005, 399/2005 and 400/2005 (the Tribunal has passed separate awards).

3. The challenge to the decision regarding negligence of deceased and compensation for the death of two children of the appellant and his wife in the road accident which occurred on the fateful day are the twin issues posed for our decision. The finding of Tribunal about liability of insurance company has attained finality and there is no dispute about the same. The accident having caused death of three persons is not in dispute. The involvement of two vehicles is not in dispute. The age of deceased is also not in dispute before us.

4. The parties are referred to as claimant/appellant and the respondent/Insurance company.

5. The Apex Court in UPSRTC Vs. Km. Mamta and others, reported in AIR 2016 SC 948, has held that all the issues raised in the memo of appeal are required to be addressed and decided by the first appellate court.

6. The issues before us are to decide the twin issues posed for our consideration namely (1) Whether deceased driving motorcycle had contributed to the accident having taken place and, therefore, the deduction of the compensation for death of all three by the Tribunal is justified or not? (2) (a) The quantum of compensation awarded requires any re-computation (b) Whether percentage of interest granted requires interference by this Court or not?

7. The brief facts as culled out from record and necessary for our purpose are that on 17.5.2005 at about 4:30 p.m. elder son of appellant along with his mother and younger brother aged 6 were going from their house to Bangarmau by motorcycle, bearing no.UP70AU-2377. The deceased along with his mother and younger brother was plying his motorcycle and when he reached near Udaipur crossing in the district Kanpur Nagar, Tata Jeep, bearing no.UP77C-3262 came from opposite direction which was being driven by its driver rashly and negligently and dashed with the motorcycle and caused the accident, 3 persons scummed to the injuries sustained due to the accident and died on the spot. The claimant, who is father of two deceased and husband of third, filed claim petition. Owner of the Jeep and its Insurance company filed their respective written statements which were of denial.

8. The claimant examined himself as PW1. The documentary evidence was filed and proved so as to prove that accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of Jeep driver. The Tribunal after framing issues and on conclusion of evidence returned the finding that as there was head on collision, both were equally negligent.

9. The appeal, being appeal no.1176 of 2007, pertains to the death of younger son of the appellant Avanish whose age was between 6 - 7 years at the time of accident. Learned Tribunal has considered contributory negligence of driver of the offending Jeep and motorcycle to the tune of 50% each. The Tribunal awarded Rs. 2,25,000/- but deducted 1/2 from the calculated compensation and ultimately has awarded Rs. 1,14,500/- as compensation. The deduction of 1/2 or 50% was on account of contributory negligence of the driver of the motorcycle. These two aspects are under challenge. The appeal no.1177 of 2007 relates to wife of appellant and appeal no.1179 of 2007 is preferred by the father of the deceased, who was driving the vehicle.

10. Learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that there were three deaths in the accident. The deceased was younger brother of the driver of motorcycle. The minor child was pillion rider and he had not contributed to the accident having taken place, hence, there was no justification for deduction of 50% compensation to be granted to claimant by the Tribunal. It was not a case of contributory negligence qua deceased child. It is next submitted by the learned Counsel that the Tribunal has not awarded any sum for love and affection and mental agony to the appellant/claimant, who was the father of the child. The mother of the deceased was also not a contributory to the accident having taken place qua her, it was a case of composite negligence despite that the Tribunal deducted 50% from the compensation awarded which, according to the learned Counsel for the appellant, is bad in the eye of law.

11. Learned Counsel also submitted that the Tribunal has directed that no interest shall be paid if payment of compensation is made by the Insurance company within 2 months from the date of award and in case if the same is not deposited within 2 months, then the appellant would be entitled to 6% interest from the date of filing of claim petition. Learned Counsel submitted that 18% interest should have been awarded and this conditional order is against the mandate of Section 171 of the Act and the said direction requires to be modified.

12. Learned Counsel for the Insurance company in F.A.F.O. No.1176 of 2007 vehemently objected to the submission advanced by the Counsel for appellant and submitted that the deceased was a child of 7 years of age and he was not earning member. It is further submitted that the Tribunal has rightly assessed his notional annual income at Rs. 15,000/- per years and damages for funeral expenses are also granted by the Tribunal. Learned Counsel submitted that as per II Schedule of Act, the Tribunal has calculated just compensation which does not call for any interference by this Court.

13. The learned Counsel for appellant has submitted that learned Tribunal has lost total sight of the fact that it was not a case of contributory negligence qua 2 persons. As far as the younger son and wife of appellant are concerned, it was a case of composite negligence and not contributory negligence.

14. It is further submitted by the learned Counsel for Insurance Company that In this case, it is an admitted position of fact that there was collusion between motorcycle and Jeep. It is further submitted that learned Tribunal has fixed contributory negligence of both the drivers to the tune of 50% each. It is not in dispute that the deceased child and mother were pillion riders on the motorcycle. They were not driving the motorcycle yet the Tribunal deducted 50% amount from total compensation payable, which is not bad and not against the principles of composite negligence.

15. While dealing with submission on issue of negligence raised by the learned counsel for the appellant, it would be relevant to discuss the principles for deciding contributory negligence and for that the principles for considering negligence will also have to be looked into.

FINDINGS ON ISSUE OF NEGLIGENCE

16. The term negligence means failure to exercise care towards others, which a reasonable and prudent person would in a circumstance or take action which such a reasonable person would not. Negligence can be both intentional or accidental though it is normally accidental. More particularly, it connotes reckless driving and the injured or the claimants namely legal representative of deceased must always prove that the either side is negligent. If the injury rather death is caused by something owned or controlled by the negligent party then he is directly liable otherwise the principle of "res ipsa loquitur" meaning thereby "the things speak for itself" would apply.

17. The principle of contributory negligence has been discussed time and again. A person who either contributes or is co author of the accident would be liable for his contribution to the accident having taken place and that amount will be deducted from the compensation payable to him if he is injured and to legal representatives if he dies in the accident.

18. Reference to certain judicial precedents would make things clear. The Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal From Order No. 1818 of 2012 (Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Smt. Renu Singh And Others) decided on 19.7.2016 has held as under :

"16. Negligence means failure to exercise required degree of care and caution expected of a prudent driver. Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon the considerations, which ordinarily regulate conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence is not always a question of direct evidence. It is an inference to be drawn from proved facts. Negligence is not an absolute term, but is a relative one. It is rather a comparative term. What may be negligence in one case may not be so in another. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which would be reasonably foreseen likely to caused physical injury to person. The degree of care required, of course, depends upon facts in each case. On these broad principles, the negligence of drivers is required to be assessed.

17. It would be seen that burden of proof for contributory negligence on the part of deceased has to be discharged by the opponents. It is the duty of driver of the offending vehicle to explain the accident. It is well settled law that at intersection where two roads cross each other, it is the duty of a fast moving vehicle to slow down and if driver did not slow down at intersection, but continued to proceed at a high speed without caring to notice that another vehicle was crossing, then the conduct of driver necessarily leads to conclusion that vehicle was being driven by him rashly as well as negligently.

18. 10th Schedule appended to Motor Vehicle Act contain statutory regulations for driving of motor vehicles which also form part of every Driving License. Clause-6 of such Regulation clearly directs that the driver of every motor vehicle to slow down vehicle at every intersection or junction of roads or at a turning of the road. It is also provided that driver of the vehicle should not enter intersection or junction of roads unless he makes sure that he would not thereby endanger any other person. Merely, because driver of the Truck was driving vehicle on the left side of road would not absolve him from his responsibility to slow down vehicle as he approaches intersection of roads, particularly when he could have easily seen, that the car over which deceased was riding, was approaching intersection.

19. In view of the fast and constantly increasing volume of traffic, motor vehicles upon roads may be regarded to some extent as coming within the principle of liability defined in Rylands V/s. Fletcher, (1868) 3 HL (LR) 330. From the point of view of pedestrian, the roads of this country have been rendered by the use of motor vehicles, highly dangerous. 'Hit and run' cases where drivers of motor vehicles who have caused accidents, are unknown. In fact such cases are increasing in number. Where a pedestrian without negligence on his part is injured or killed by a motorist, whether negligently or not, he or his legal representatives, as the case may be, should be entitled to recover damages if principle of social justice should have any meaning at all.

20. These provisions (sec.110A and sec.110B of Motor Act, 1988) are not merely procedural provisions. They substantively affect the rights of the parties. The right of action created by Fatal Accidents Act, 1855 was 'new in its species, new in its quality, new in its principles. In every way it was new. The right given to legal representatives under Act, 1988 to file an application for compensation for death due to a motor vehicle accident is an enlarged one. This right cannot be hedged in by limitations of an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1855. New situations and new dangers require new strategies and new remedies.

21. In the light of the above discussion, we are of the view that even if courts may not by interpretation displace the principles of law which are considered to be well settled and, therefore, court cannot dispense with proof of negligence altogether in all cases of motor vehicle accidents, it is possible to develop the law further on the following lines; when a motor vehicle is being driven with reasonable care, it would ordinarily not meet with an accident and, therefore, rule of res-ipsa loquitor as a rule of evidence may be invoked in motor accident cases with greater frequency than in ordinary civil suits (per three-Judge Bench in Jacob Mathew V/s. State of Punjab, 2005 0 ACJ(SC) 1840).

22. By the above process, the burden of proof may ordinarily be cast on the defendants in a motor accident claim petition to prove that motor vehicle was being driven with reasonable care or that there is equal negligence on the part the other side."

19. If we uphold the finding of negligence of the deceased in those circumstances, the judgment of Khenyie (infra) will have to be interpreted in a different manner. It was the wife, who was riding on the back as pillion and she sustained fatal injuries. It is husband of the deceased, who is entitled to the claim as he is the sole survivor. It has not been brought on record whether the motorcycle owned by the deceased or his father namely the claimant-appellant, then as per the judgment of Khenyie, no doubt it is the right of the claimant to claim any of the tortfeasors, who were the tortfeasors, would be the rider of the motorcycle and, therefore, the Insurance company cannot be directed to recover from the said tortfeasor and, therefore, the amount has to be deducted from available corpus.

20. The extent of the share of the husband should be deducted. However, this would depend on the fact whether we hold the deceased liable for contributory negligence or not. We are fortified by our view in the case of Patel Roadways and another Vs. Manish Chhotalal Thakkar and others, 2001 ACJ 180, and decision of the Gujarat High Court in United India Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Kiritikumar Tulsibhai Patel, First Appeal No.1450 of 2016, decided on 1.9.2016.

21. As we are even concerned as to whether qua the death of two pillion riders whether deduction is proper or not reference to case titled Khenyei Vs. New India Assurance Company Limited & Others, 2015 LawSuit (SC) 469, is necessary wherein the Apex Court has held as under:

"4. It is a case of composite negligence where injuries have been caused to the claimants by combined wrongful act of joint tort feasors. In a case of accident caused by negligence of joint tort feasors, all the persons who aid or counsel or direct or join in committal of a wrongful act, are liable. In such case, the liability is always joint and several. The extent of negligence of joint tort feasors in such a case is immaterial for satisfaction of the claim of the plaintiff/claimant and need not be determined by the by the court. However, in case all the joint tort feasors are before the court, it may determine the extent of their liability for the purpose of adjusting inter-se equities between them at appropriate stage. The liability of each and every joint tort feasor vis a vis to plaintiff/claimant cannot be bifurcated as it is joint and several liability. In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between tort feasors for making payment to the plaintiff is not permissible as the plaintiff/claimant has the right to recover the entire amount from the easiest targets/solvent defendant.

14. There is a difference between contributory and composite negligence. In the case of contributory negligence, a person who has himself contributed to the extent cannot claim compensation for the injuries sustained by him in the accident to the extent of his own negligence;whereas in the case of composite negligence, a person who has suffered has not contributed to the accident but the outcome of combination of negligence of two or more other persons. This Court in T.O. Anthony v. Karvarnan & Ors. [2008 (3) SCC 748] has held that in case of contributory negligence, injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong doer separately. It is only in the case of contributory negligence that the injured himself has contributed by his negligence in the accident. Extent of his negligence is required to be determined as damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries have to be reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence. The relevant portion is extracted hereunder :

"6. 'Composite negligence' refers to the negligence on the part of two or more persons. Where a person is injured as a result of negligence on the part of two or more wrong doers, it is said that the person was injured on account of the composite negligence of those wrong-doers. In such a case, each wrong doer, is jointly and severally liable to the injured for payment of the entire damages and the injured person has the choice of proceeding against all or any of them. In such a case, the injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong-doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong-doer separately. On the other hand where a person suffers injury, partly due to the negligence on the part of another person or persons, and partly as a result of his own negligence, then the negligence of the part of the injured which contributed to the accident is referred to as his contributory negligence. Where the injured is guilty of some negligence, his claim for damages is not defeated merely by reason of the negligence on his part but the damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries stands reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence.

7. Therefore, when two vehicles are involved in an accident, and one of the drivers claims compensation from the other driver alleging negligence, and the other driver denies negligence or claims that the injured claimant himself was negligent, then it becomes necessary to consider whether the injured claimant was negligent and if so, whether he was solely or partly responsible for the accident and the extent of his responsibility, that is his contributory negligence. Therefore where the injured is himself partly liable, the principle of 'composite negligence' will not apply nor can there be an automatic inference that the negligence was 50:50 as has been assumed in this case. The Tribunal ought to have examined the extent of contributory negligence of the appellant and thereby avoided confusion between composite negligence and contributory negligence. The High Court has failed to correct the said error."

18. This Court in Challa Bharathamma & Nanjappan (supra) has dealt with the breach of policy conditions by the owner when the insurer was asked to pay the compensation fixed by the tribunal and the right to recover the same was given to the insurer in the executing court concerned if the dispute between the insurer and the owner was the subject-matter of determination for the tribunal and the issue has been decided in favour of the insured. The same analogy can be applied to the instant cases as the liability of the joint tort feasor is joint and several. In the instant case, there is determination of inter se liability of composite negligence to the extent of negligence of 2/3rd and 1/3rd of respective drivers. Thus, the vehicle - trailor-truck which was not insured with the insurer, was negligent to the extent of 2/3rd. It would be open to the insurer being insurer of the bus after making payment to claimant to recover from the owner of the trailor-truck the amount to the aforesaid extent in the execution proceedings. Had there been no determination of the inter se liability for want of evidence or other joint tort feasor had not been impleaded, it was not open to settle such a dispute and to recover the amount in execution proceedings but the remedy would be to file another suit or appropriate proceedings in accordance with law.

What emerges from the aforesaid discussion is as follows :

(i) In the case of composite negligence, plaintiff/claimant is entitled to sue both or any one of the joint tort feasors and to recover the entire compensation as liability of joint tort feasors is joint and several.

(ii) In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between two tort feasors vis a vis the plaintiff/claimant is not permissible. He can recover at his option whole damages from any of them.

(iii) In case all the joint tort feasors have been impleaded and evidence is sufficient, it is open to the court/tribunal to determine inter se extent of composite negligence of the drivers. However, determination of the extent of negligence between the joint tort feasors is only for the purpose of their inter se liability so that one may recover the sum from the other after making whole of payment to the plaintiff/claimant to the extent it has satisfied the liability of the other. In case both of them have been impleaded and the apportionment/ extent of their negligence has been determined by the court/tribunal, in main case one joint tort feasor can recover the amount from the other in the execution proceedings.

(iv) It would not be appropriate for the court/tribunal to determine the extent of composite negligence of the drivers of two vehicles in the absence of impleadment of other joint tort feasors. In such a case, impleaded joint tort feasor should be left, in case he so desires, to sue the other joint tort feasor in independent proceedings after passing of the decree or award."

22. The decision of the Apex Court in Khenyei (Supra) has laid down one further aspect about considering the negligence more particularly composite/ contributory negligence. The deceased or the person concerned should be shown to have contributed either to the accident and the impact of accident upon the victim could have been minimised if he had taken care.

23. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in K. Anusha Vs. Regional Manager, Shriram General Insurance Co. Ltd., 2021 (4) TAC 341, has observed that mere failure to avoid the collision by taking some extraordinary precaution, does not in itself constitute negligence.

24. Reference to the decision of the Apex Court in Archit Saini and Another Vs. Oriental Insurance Company Limited, AIR 2018 SC 1143, can be made wherein the finding of the Tribunal was upheld by Apex Court holding that driver of scooter was not negligent. The findings are verbatim referred as they are very important for our purpose would be very relevant for our purpose so as to decide whether driver of motor cycle has been rightly held to be negligent to the tune of 50%:

"5.The respondents had opposed the claim petition and denied their liability but did not lead any evidence on the relevant issue to dispel the relevant fact. The Tribunal after analysing the evidence, including the site map (Ext. P-45) produced on record along with charge-sheet filed against the driver of the Gas Tanker and the arguments of the respondents, answered Issue 1 against the respondents in the following words:

"21. Our own Hon'ble High Court in a case captioned Lakhu Singh v. Uday Singh [Lakhu Singh v. Uday Singh, 2007 SCC OnLine P&H 865 : PLR (2007) 4 P&H 507] held that while considering a claim petition, the Tribunal is required to hold an enquiry and act not as criminal court so as to find whether the claimants have established the occurrence beyond shadow of any reasonable doubt. In the enquiry, if there is prima facie evidence of the occurrence there is no reason to disbelieve such evidence. The statements coupled with the facts of registration of FIR and trial of the accused in a criminal court are sufficient to arrive at a conclusion that the accident has taken place. Likewise, in Kusum Lata v. Satbir [Kusum Lata v. Satbir, (2011) 3 SCC 646 : (2011) 2 SCC (Civ) 37 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 18 : (2011) 2 RCR (Civil) 379] the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in a case relating to motor accident claims, the claimants are not required to rove the case as it is required to be done in a criminal trial. The Court must keep this distinction in mind. Strict proof of an accident caused by a particular bus in a particular manner may not be possible to be done by the claimants. The claimants were merely to establish their case on the touchstone of preponderance of probability. The standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt could not have been applied.

22. After considering the submissions made by both the parties, I find that PW 7 Sohan Lal eyewitness to the occurrence has specifically stated in his affidavit Ext. PW 7/A tendered in his evidence that on 15-12-2011 at about 20.30 p.m. he along with PHG Ajit Singh was present near Sanjha Chulha Dhaba on the National Highway leading to Jammu. All the traffic of road was diverted on the eastern side of the road on account of closure of road on western side due to construction work. In the meantime a Maruti car bearing No. HR 02 K 0448 came from Jammu side and struck against the back of Gas Tanker as the driver of the car could not spot the parked tanker due to the flashlights of the oncoming traffic from front side. Then they rushed towards the spot of accident and noticed that the said tanker was standing parked in the middle of the road without any indicators or parking lights.

23. The statement of this witness clearly establishes that this was the sole negligence on the part of the driver of the Gas Tanker especially when the accident was caused on 15-12-2011 that too at about 10.30 p.m. which is generally time of pitch darkness. In this way, the driver of the car cannot be held in any way negligent in this accident. Moreover, as per Rule 15 of the Road Regulations, 1989 no vehicle is to be parked on busy road.

24. The arguments of the learned counsel for the respondent that PW 7 Sohan Lal has stated in his cross-examination that there was no fog at that time and there were lights on the Dhaba and the truck was visible to him due to light of Dhaba and he was standing at the distance of 70 ft from the truck being road between him and the truck and he noticed at the car when he heard voice/sound caused by the accident so Respondent 1 is not at all negligent in this accident but these submissions will not make the car driver to be in any way negligent and cannot give clean chit to the driver of the Gas Tanker because there is a difference between the visibility of a standing vehicle from a place where the person is standing and by a person who is coming driving the vehicle because due to flashlights of vehicles coming from front side the vehicle coming from opposite side cannot generally spot the standing vehicle in the road that too in night-time when there is neither any indicator or parking lights nor blinking lights nor any other indication given on the back of the stationed vehicle, therefore, the driver of the car cannot be held to be in any way negligent rather it is the sole negligence on the part of the driver of the offending Gas Tanker as held inGinni Devi case [Ginni Devi v. Union of India, 2007 SCC OnLine P&H 126 : 2008 ACJ 1572] , Mohan Lal case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Mohan Lal, 2006 SCC OnLine All 459 : (2007) 1 ACC 785 (All)] . It is not the case of the respondent that the parking lights of the standing truck were on or there were any other indication on the backside of the vehicle standing on the road to enable the coming vehicle to see the standing truck. The other arguments of the learned counsel for Respondent 3 that the road was sufficient wide road and that the car driver could have avoided the accident, so the driver of the car was himself negligent in causing the accident cannot be accepted when it has already been held that the accident has been caused due to sole negligence of the driver of the offending stationed truck in the busy road. The proposition of law laid down in Harbans Kaur case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Harbans Kaur, 2010 SCC OnLine P&H 7441 : (2010) 4 PLR 422 (P&H)] and T.M. Chayapathi case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. T.M. Chayapathi, 2004 SCC OnLine AP 484 : (2005) 4 ACC 61] is not disputed at all but these authorities are not helpful to the respondents being not applicable on the facts and circumstances of the present case. Likewise, non-examination of minor children of the age of 14 and 9 years who lost their father and mother in the accident cannot be held to be in any way detrimental to the case of the claimants when eyewitness to the occurrence has proved the accident having been caused by the negligence of Respondent 1 driver of the offending vehicle.

25. Moreover, in Girdhari Lal v. Radhey Shyam [Girdhari Lal v. Radhey Shyam, 1993 SCC OnLine P&H 194 : PLR (1993) 104 P&H 109] , Sudama Devi v. Kewal Ram [Sudama Devi v.Kewal Ram, 2007 SCC OnLine P&H 1208 : PLR (2008) 149 P&H 444] andPazhaniammal case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Pazhaniammal, 2011 SCC OnLine Ker 1881 : 2012 ACJ 1370] our own Hon'ble High Court has held that "it is, prima facie safe to conclude in claim cases that the accident has occurred on account of rash or negligent driving of the driver, if the driver is facing the criminal trial on account of rash or negligent driving.'

26. Moreover, Respondent 1 driver of the offending vehicle has not appeared in the witness box to deny the accident having been caused by him, therefore, I am inclined to draw an adverse inference against Respondent 1. In this context, I draw support from a judgment of the Hon'ble Punjab & Haryana High Court reported asBhagwani Devi v. Krishan Kumar Saini[Bhagwani Devi v. Krishan Kumar Saini, 1986 SCC OnLine P&H 274 : 1986 ACJ 331] . Moreover, Respondent 1 has also not filed any complaint to higher authorities about his false implication in the criminal case so it cannot be accepted that Respondent 1 has been falsely implicated in this case.

27. In view of above discussion, it is held that the claimants have proved that the accident has been caused by Respondent 1 by parking the offending vehicle bearing No. HR 02 AF 8590 in the middle of the road in a negligent manner wherein Vinod Saini and Smt Mamta Saini have died and claimants Archit Saini and Gauri Saini have received injuries on their person. Shri Vinod Saini, deceased who was driving ill-fated car on that day cannot be held to be negligent in any way. Accordingly, this issue is decided in favour of claimants." (emphasis supplied)"

25. We are fortified in our view by the judgment of the Apex Court in Mohammad Siddique and another Vs. National Insurance Company Limited and others, 2020 (3) SCC 57, wherein it has been held that two pillion riders did not mean that the rider has contributed in the accident. In our case, if we see the site map, it is clear that the vehicle of the deceased did not meet with the accident because the minor child was accompanying the deceased as a pillion on the vehicle. The accident cannot be said to have occurred because of negligence of the rider of two vehicles. The mother, who was riding on the bike as pillion, sustained injuries. Her husband is entitled to compensation as he is class II heir and as we upturn the finding of fact as far as negligence is concerned, non-joinder of the owner and deduction of the amount does not arise. The motorcyclist was not negligent which is proved by (a) oral testimony (b) F.I.R. (c) Site Plan (d) Chargesheet (e) evidence by best witness i.e. driver of Car if Car was a bigger vehicle (g) strayed from its path came and dashed with motorcycle which was driven on its correct side.

26. The appellant has examined himself. He was not an eye witness. PW2 - Sarvesh Kumar is the person, who has lodged the F.I.R. The chargesheet was led against the driver of Tata Spacio and PW-2 in his oral testimony has categorically mentioned that the accident occurred due to rash and negligent driving of Tata Spacio. The Tribunal has relied on the decision of Bijoy Kumar Dugar Vs. Bidyadhar Dutta and others, 2006 (1) TAC 969, so as to come to the conclusion that as the accident occurred and as it was a head-on-collision, both the drivers are held to be equally negligent. The learned Tribunal has not given any cogent reason as to why it held both the drivers to be equally negligent. One of the reasons given is that the vehicle was carrying more persons than its capacity of sitting.

27. While going through the F.I.R., the chick F.I.R. and Chargesheet of the site plan, it is clear that the accident did not occur because the vehicle was having three persons but, it was because of the tata scorpio which was being plied on the same direction, came and dashed the motorcyclist from behind. It is cardinal principle that the vehicle which is being driven should show more care and caution. The driver and owner of the Car tata spacio have not stepped into the witness box. Having a minor child on the motorcycle was itself not a cause of the accident. This finding of fact by the Tribunal is absurd. This takes us what was the negligence of the motorcycle. He stayed trying to save the dash from another vehicle and from truck.

28. The factual scenario in this case goes to show that the deceased pillion riders were not at all responsible for the accident in question and it was a case of composite negligence qua them. In case of composite negligence, the claimant is entitled to seek compensation either from the driver of both the vehicles or he may seek entire compensation from any of the drivers because in case of composite negligence, the liability is joint and several. Hence, we upturn the finding of the learned Tribunal regarding contributory negligence as far as the petition regarding the death of pillion riders is concerned.

29. This takes us to the issue of quantum of compensation and directions for grant of interest which are as under:

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO.1176/2007

30. As far as deceased-Avanish is concerned, he was minor and the Tribunal has considered Rs.2,25,000/- as compensation which is just proper even in view of the decision in Manju Devi's case, 2005 (1) TAC 609 = 2005 AICC 208 (SC) of this High Court. The claimant would be entitled to Rs.2,25,000/- with interest.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO.1177/2007

31. As far as deceased-Savitri is concerned. The Tribunal has considered the notional income of deceased at Rs.3000/- per month in view of the decisions of the Apex Court and High Courts, we are also of the considered view that the notional income of the deceased can be assumed at Rs. 3,000/- per month as the deceased was house wife and accident took place in 2005. To which, 40% should be added towards future loss of income. The multiplier applicable would be 15 in view of the decision in Sarla Verma (supra). Deduction of 1/3rd towards personal expenses decided by Tribunal is just and proper. Further, the appellant is also entitled to a sum of Rs. 40,000/- for filial consortium for loss of wife and Rs. 15,000/- for funeral expenses. Hence, the appellant is entitled to following amount towards compensation:-

i. Monthly Income Rs. 3,000/-

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 40 % namely Rs.1200/-

iii. Total income : Rs. 3000 + 1200 = Rs. 4200/-

iv. Income after deduction of 1/3rd: Rs. 2800/-

v. Annual income : Rs.2800 x 12 = Rs.33,600/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 15

vii. Loss of dependency: Rs.33,600 x 15 = Rs. 5,04,000/- viii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.40,000 + 15,000 = Rs.55,000/-

ix. Total compensation : Rs. 5,59,000/-

32. The claimant would be entitled to Rs.5,59,000/- with interest as decided herein after.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER NO.1179/2007

33. As far as deceased-Manish Singh is concerned, the deceased was 24 years of age and was an Engineer in Infosys Technologies Ltd. Bangalore and was earning Rs. 38,778/- per month. The Tribunal has considered his income to be Rs. 8,470/-.

34. The income of the deceased was to be assessed as Rs.38,778/- per month and deduct 20% (as Income Tax from the same and other deductible allowances). We consider allowable amount for grant of compensation to be Rs.30,000/- (round figure) per month. To which 50% will have to be added towards future loss of income as he was salaried person in view of U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules 2011 amended and decision of Pranay Sethi. The deduction towards personal expenses would be 1/2 instead of 1/3rd as granted by the Tribunal as the deceased was bachelor. The Tribunal has granted multiplier of 11 considering the age of the parents which is bad and it should be 18 looking to the age of the deceased and in view of the decision in Sarla Verma (Supra) and *Munna Lal Jain and another Vs. Vipin Kumar Sharma and others, 2015 (4) AWC 3845 (SC). The claimant would be entitled to Rs.40,000/- towards filial consortium as per the decision in Pranay Sethi (Supra). Hence, the total compensation would be as follows:

i. Monthly Income Rs.30,000/- (rounded up)

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 50% namely Rs.15,000/-

iii. Total income : Rs.30,000+ 15,000 = Rs.45,000/-

iv. Income after deduction of 1/2 : Rs. 22,500/-

v. Annual income : Rs.22,500 x 12 = Rs.2,70,000/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 18

vii. Loss of dependency: Rs.2,70,000 x 18 = Rs. 48,60,000/-

viii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.40,000/-

ix. Total compensation : Rs.49,00,000/-

35. We hold that in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Mannat Zohal and others, 2019 (2) TAC 705 (SC), the appellant shall be entitled to the rate of interest at 7.5% per annum in all the three appeals.

36. In view of the above, all the three appeals are partly allowed. The award and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent - Insurance company shall deposit the difference amount within 8 weeks from today with interest @ 7.5% per annum from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

37. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any.

38. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment shall not be passed by Tribunal as 17 years have elapsed and appellant is in prime of life.

39. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

40. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

41. Registrar General to circulate a copy of this order with request to the Tribunals to decide matters arising out of same accident by a common judgment and award and not by separate awards which may cause disparity.

42. The claimant-appellant is not an illiterate person and the matters are pending since 2007 before the High Court and since 2005 before the Tribunal, hence, the purpose of keeping the money in Fixed Deposit would not serve any purpose as the amount can be disbursed as per the judgment in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India and others, vide order dated 27.1.2022. The appellant may give his accounts detail so that the money can be directly disburse to him as and when the Insurance company deposits the same.

43. We hope this direction would be circulated by Registrar General after obtaining permission from Hon'ble the Chief Justice so that in future the Tribunal will follow this direction of disbursement of amount.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
&

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellants; Shri Nagendra Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondents; and perused the record.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgment & order dated 28.1.2008 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.3, Mathura (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in Motor Accident Claim Petition No.437 of 2005 awarding a sum of Rs.3,67,000/- with interest at the rate of 6% as compensation.

3. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is not in dispute. The respondent concerned has not challenged the liability imposed on them. The only issue to be decided is, the quantum of compensation awarded.

4. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the Tribunal has not granted any amount towards future loss of income of the deceased which is required to be granted in view of the decision in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050. It is further submitted that amount under non-pecuniary heads granted and the interest awarded by the Tribunal are on the lower side and require enhancement. Learned counsel for appellant submitted that deceased was Business partner of M/s Sri Devi Pustak Bhawan, Agra by profession and was getting Rs.1,37,087/- per annum as per the ITR of the year 2004-05. It is also submitted that as the deceased was survived by his widow and three minor children and hence the deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased as 1/4 is not in dispute. The multiplier has to be as per age of deceased should have been granted 15 is also not in dispute.

5. Learned counsel for the respondents, has vehemently objected the contentions raised by the learned counsel for the appellants and has submitted that the compensation awarded by the Tribunal is just and proper and does not call for any enhancement and it is also contended that the multiplier has to be as per age of deceased should have been granted 14 in place of 15.

6. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and considered the factual data, this Court found that the accident occurred on 24.10.2005 causing death of Anil Kumar Gupta who was 42 years of age and left behind him, widow and three minor children. The Tribunal has assessed the income of the deceased to be Rs.2000/- per month. The deceased was Business partner of M/s Sri Devi Pustak Bhawan, Agra by profession, the tribunal has committed grave error in not considering that the appellants had proved the income of the deceased by proper evidence. The witness was also examined so as to bring whom the contention that the deceased was a Business partner of M/s Sri Devi Pustak Bhawan, Agra by profession. The evidence of the witnesses has not been accepted which is also against the Judgment in the case of the Apex Court in Vimla Devi and others Vs. National Insurance Company Limited and another, (2019) 2 SCC 186, and, therefore, we are obliged to hold that the deceased died due to the accidental injuries.

7. The judgment of the Apex Court in Anita Sharma v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (2021), 1 SCC 171 would also apply to the facts of this case.

8. As far as beneficial difference of limitation is concerned, the strict rules of civil procedure and evidence act are no required to adhered to.

9. In our case, prima facie it was proved that his income was Rs.11,424/- as ITR of the year 2004-05. In view of the judgment of Vimal Kanwar and others v. Kishore Dan and others, AIR 2013 SC 3830 except income Tax no amount could have been deducted by the tribunal in the year of question, i.e., 2005. The tribunal has erred itself in not considering the income of the deceased and has deducted amount which it could not deduct holding that they were personal benefits to the deceased. We cannot concur with the tribunal as far as holding that the deceased was earning Rs.11,424/- per month. The income has to be considered to be Rs.11,424/- per month, would be the income of the deceased. The deceased was age bracket of 40 to 50 years as Business partner, 25% of the income will have to be added as future prospects in view of the decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050. The multiplier of 14 granted is just and proper and not 15 as per the judgment in Pranay Sethi (supra) where awarded sum of Rs.70,000+30,000 interest, we round up the same figure Rs.1,00,000/-.

10. In this backdrop were evaluate the income in view of the judgment of National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050 and Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121 and, the recalculation of compensation would be as follows:

i. Income Rs.11,424/- p.m.

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 25% namely Rs.2856/-

iii. Total income : Rs. 11,424 + 2856 = Rs.14,280/-

iv. Income after deduction of 1/4 : Rs.10710/-

v. Annual income : Rs.10,710 x 12 = Rs.1,28,520/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 14 (as the deceased was in the age bracket of 41-45 years)

vii. Loss of dependency: Rs.1,28,520 x 14 = Rs.17,99,280/-
viii. Amount under non pecuniary heads (Rs.70,000+30,000) = 1,00,000/-
ix. Total compensation (vii + viii): Rs.18,99,280/-.

11. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

12. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguti P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

13. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

14. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount along with additional amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

15. We are thankful to learned counsels for the parties for ably assisted the Court.

16. Record be sent back to court below forthwith, if any.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
&

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the injured-claimant challenges the judgment and award dated 27.10.2016 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.5, Meerut (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in Claim Petition No. 1151 of 2014 awarding a sum of Rs.2,30,000/- as compensation with interest at the rate of 7%.

3. We do not burden the judgment with unnecessary facts except the facts needed for computing the compensation as all other issues have attained finality as neither Insurance Company nor the owner has filed any cross-objection and/or appeal. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is not in dispute. The respondent-Insurance Company has not challenged the liability imposed on them. The only issue to be decided is, the quantum of compensation as the Tribunal very strangely did not grant any amount for future loss of income, actual loss of income though the claimant who was 22 years of age on 29.5.2014.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant, so as to challenge the order of the Tribunal has relied upon the following decisions :

(i) Sanjay Kumar Vs. Ashok Kumar and another, (2014) 5 SCC 330;

(ii) Syed. Sadiq and others Vs. Divisional Manager, United India Insurance Company Limited, (2014) 2 SCC 735;

(iii) V. Mekala Vs. M. Malathi and another, (2014) 11 SCC 178; and

(iv) Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011.

(v) Hari Babu Vs. Amrit Lal and others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 718 (All.).

5. As narrated above, the accident is not in dispute. The negligence of the driver is also not in dispute. The injured sustained 53% injuries on his different parts of body is proved by evidence of Orthopaedic Surgeon, Dr. R.P. Mishra, who has given the disability certificate as the treating doctor did not give any disability certificate. The injured had to go to a private doctor. The petitioner was hospitalized from 29.5.2014 to 12.6.2014. It is an admitted position from prescription and the injury certificates of the hospital that he was treated by Dr. Atul Rastogi and Dr. Nitin Gupta at Jaswant Rai Speciality Hospital. He was an indoor patient from 29.5.2014 to 12.6.2014. Several time he was subjected to different kind of C.T. Scans. He was having crushed injuries on his left hand. He had injuries on the lower limb also. The Tribunal very strangely granted medical expenses but as the certificate was given by private Doctor, refuse to grant any amount for loss of income despite the fact that there was X-ray report which shows fixation device. There was healed fracture of superior ramus of right pubis and inferior rami of both pubis. X-ray report of right leg shows that there are old healed fracture (with callus formation) of lower 1/3rd of shaft of right tibia is seen, fixation of device was seen and there are old healed fracture with callus formation of upper 1/3rd of shaft of right fibula is seen. X-ray report of left thigh shows there are old healed fracture (with callus formation) of lower 1/3rd of shaft of left femur is seen and fixation is seen in situ.

6. The Tribunal while deciding the issue of compensation payable has come to the conclusion that the injuries are non Scheduled injuries. The Tribunal considered that the disability given by the doctor was not acceptable as he was not the treating doctor and only for taking certificate of disability he had approached Dr. R.P. Mishra and he brushed aside the evidence of Dr. R.P. Mishra and came to the conclusion that the injured cannot be said to have contracted any permanent partial disablement and, therefore, he was not entitled for any amount as the certificates did inspire confidence. In our view, this finding is against the contours of beneficial piece of legislation. Dr. R.P. Mishra had also referred the patient to get his X-ray done. In his medical certificate, he has considered all this facts and, therefore the judgment of Apex Court in Anthony Alias Anthony Swamy v. Managing Director, K.S.R.T.C., 2020 (0) AIJEC-SC 66306 and Anita Sharma v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd., 2020 (0) AIJEL-SC 66810 will apply in full force as the certificate speaks about history, examination, latest x-rays. The x-ray dated 29.4.2014 was also evaluated by him. From the X-rays, nailing was done in left femur and right fibia bone screw fixation was done medial malleolus. There was fracture in the pelvic region and his left hand flap surgery by a plastic surgeon. could this be brushed aside on the basis that the doctor had not treated him. Dr. R.P. Mishra, holds the degree of Orthopaedic Surgeon and was retired medical superintendent. He has even withstood the cross examination by the counsel for the Insurance Company. Even in the discharge summary of the claimant, all these facts are mentioned and, therefore, the finding that it cannot be conclusively said and held that he had any kind of disability is absurd. All the witnesses have proved the injuries on the appellant namely P.W.1 injured himself, P.W.2 Doctor, P.W.3, the clerk of the hospital where the appellant was treated, P.W.4 Arun Goel, owner of Medical Store. The Insurance Company has not produced any witness to show that the medical certificate could not be read into evidence. Decision in Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pankaj, 2014 (2) TAC 240 All, states that it would not be proper to hold that disability certificate cannot be given by a qualified doctor who examined injured/claimant subsequently to assess extent of his permanent disability, the Tribunal returned correct finding on all issues involved in the case.

7. Thus, the finding of the Tribunal is against the contours of grant of compensation for injuries. The judgment of the Apex Court in Shivdhar Kumar Vashiya v. Ranjeet Singh and others, 2022 (0) Supreme (SC) 40 will enure for the benefit of the appellant. Hence the judgment would have to re-evaluated for grant of compensation.

8. The record goes show that the injured was serving with Impression Service Pvt. Ltd. NOIDA and where he was getting salary Rs.18,200/- per month and due to these injuries he lost his job. In that view of matter the inured being 22 years of age at the time of accident and in view of the decision in Raj Kumar Vs. Ajay Kumar and another, reported in (2011) 1 SCC 343, wherein it has been held that if the injury is not specified in Schedule on such percentage of compensation would be payable in case of permanent total disablement proportionate to loss of earning capacity. In our case we can consider his functional disability to be 25%. The Tribunal has not considered any of the decision cited before it and has brushed aside all the authoritative pronouncement. The claimant was earning Rs.18,200/- to which being 22 years of age, 40 will have to be added towards future loss of income and as we hold that his functional disability would be 25%, to which he would be entitled to Rs.50,000/- towards pain, shock and suffering. Looking to the age of the deceased, the multiplier applicable would be 18. The Tribunal has given a meagre amount of Rs.5,000/- as per Section 163 A of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 though the petition was under Section 166 of the Act. We grant the said amount as there were multiple surgeries and multiple foreign instruments were inserted in the body of the young man. To this we grant Rs.2,30,500/- granted by the Tribunal for medical expenses. We grant a sum of Rs. 50,000/- for other non pecuniary damages.

9. Hence, the total compensation payable to the appellant is computed herein below:

i. Income : Rs.18,200/-

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 40% namely Rs.7280/-

iii. Total income : Rs. 18,200 + 7280 = Rs.25480-

iv. Loss of earning capacity : 25% namely Rs.6,370-

v. Annual loss : Rs.6,370 x 12 = Rs.76,440/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 18

vii. Total loss : Rs.76,440 x 18 = Rs.13,75,920/- viii. Medical expenses : Rs.2,30,500/-

ix. Amount under pain, shock and suffering : Rs.50,000/-

x. Amount under all other non-pecuniary heads : 50,000

xi. Total compensation : 17,06,420/-

10. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

11. No other grounds are urged orally when the matter was heard.

12. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and award passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

13. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

14. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguti P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

15. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

1. This appeal has been preferred by the claimants-appellants against the judgement and award passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/XI Additional District & Sessions Judge, Bulandshahr dated 27.09.2018 in MACP No.404 of 2016 (Smt. Munni & others Vs. M/s Ahmadabad Bangal Roadways Pvt. Ltd and others), by which the Tribunal has awarded compensation Rs.7,77,500/- with interest at the rate of 6% per annum.

2. Heard learned counsel for the appellants and learned counsel for respondents.

3. Brief facts of the case are that appellants filed a motor accident claim petition for seeking compensation of her husband, who died in a road accident. As per averments in the petition, on 20.06.2016 at about 3:00 pm-4:00 pm, the deceased along with Anand, Mahesh and Arun was going from Nachkauli to Dadari Mandi on a Vehicle bearing No.UP 13 T 5479. After sometime, when they reached at Payal Family Dhaba, their tyre got punctured. Teetu and his colleague were repairing the puncture of the vehicle by parking the vehicle on the left corner, a truck bearing No.H.R. 38 U 2577 2023, which was being driven by its driver very rashly and negligently, hit the aforesaid vehicle from behind. In this accident Teetu @ Mahendra got injured. Teetu died on the spot.

4. The accident is not in dispute. The insurance company has not challenged the judgement and award of the Tribunal nor it has challenged the liability to pay compensation. The issue of negligence has attained finality as no appeal or cross objections are filed by the insurance company. Hence, the only question remains to be decided in this appeal is with regard to the quantum of compensation and hence, additional facts are avoided.

5. Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the learned Tribunal has not awarded just compensation. Learned counsel submitted that the deceased was an agriculturalist. The learned Tribunal did not consider the actual income of the deceased and rather assumed his earning only Rs.6,000/- per month. It is next submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the learned Tribunal has awarded only Rs.5,000/- for loss of love and affection, Rs.2,500/- for loss of estate and Rs.2,000/- for funeral expenses, which are on lower-side and not granted as per decisions of the Apex Court. With regard to the rate of interest, it is submitted that the Tribunal has awarded 6% per annum rate of interest which is even lower then the statutory rate of interest stipulated in U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (amended in 2011).

6. Per contra, learned counsel for the insurance vehemently submitted that appellants have not led any evidence regarding the income of the deceased. It is submitted by learned counsel that learned Tribunal has rightly assessed the income of the deceased as Rs.6,000/- per month because it is not proved that the deceased was an agriculturist. It is further submitted that the amount under the head of non-pecuniary damages is properly granted. It is submitted by learned counsel that there is no infirmity or illegality in the impugned award which calls for any interference by this Court.

7. While considering the compensation, the Tribunal has not considered the income of the deceased. The deceased was also selling whole-sale vegetables for which documentary evidence as Ext.-31C2/1 & 31C2/65 and likewise documents were produced. The counsel for the appellants before the Tribunal also had relied on the decision of this Court in III (2017) ACC 68 (DB) New India Assurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Reshma Devi & others. The Tribunal brushed aside the documentary evidence. The Tribunal relied on State of Harayan & Others Vs. Jasveer Kaur & Others ACC 2004 (4), Divisional Controller K.S.R.T.C. Vs. Mahadev Sethi & Others 2003 (2) 326 and New India Insurance Co. Ltd Vs. Satendra & others 2007 (324) and held that compensation should not be bonanza to the claimants nor should be such a meager amount and relying on the judgement of Reshma Devi (supra), the Tribunal considered the income of the deceased to be Rs.6,000/- per month. On what basis, Tribunal came to the conclusion that the income was Rs.6,000/- per month cannot be fathomed. The notional income cannot be considered when there was documentary evidence. Documentary evidence goes to show from the record that from wholesale business of the deceased he used to earn at least Rs.8,000/- per month as the bills range from Rs.10,000/- for 21.03.2014 & 23.07.2014 and therefore, he was in the business cannot be brushed aside. Hence, this Court considers the income of the deceased to be Rs.10,000/- and just because the documents were xerox copies the same could not have been brushed aside. This is supported in its view by decision of the Apex court in cases titled (i) National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050 and (ii) Vimla Devi and others Vs. National Insurance Company Limited and another, (2019) 2 SCC 186 as the documents go to show that even for the year 2014 and 2016 the income of the deceased can be considered to be Rs.10,000/- per month at least for a month from the documentary evidence. On which, reliance is laid, therefore this Court holds that the income of the deceased would be Rs.10,000/- per month. The Tribunal has misinterpreted the word "self-employed' and has not granted any amount for future of loss of income. The term "self-employed' would mean a person doing his own business. We clarify this aspect as we have come across many judgements in which this apparent error on the face of the record is found. We would clarify that in Pranay Sethi (supra) and the judgement of the Apex Court in decision, namely, Smt. Meena Pawaia & others Vs. Ashraf Ali and others 2021 0 Supreme (SC) 694, has also considered the term employment. The term "self-employed' is being explained by us and therefore, the income is held to be Rs.10,000/- per month plus 40% as the judgement of Pranay Sethi (supra) would apply and as the deceased was below 40 years this Court further has come across error on the part of the Tribunal which is and we would like to emphasize upon the Tribunals in the State not to go by the Second Schedule as it is meant for compensation under Section163A of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 and not claim for Section 166 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. As far as Section 166 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 is concerned, the judgement of the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (Supra) has to be followed and the later judgements which lay down grant of non-pecuniary damages. As far as rate of interest is concerned, the Tribunal could not have granted 6% which is even less than statutory rate of interest as per Section 220 of the Uttar Pradesh State Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (amended in 2011).

8. The learned Tribunal has rightly deducted 1/3 for personal expenses in accordance with the judgement of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121 . We are not convinced with the multiplier applied by the Tribunal. The learned Tribunal has applied multiplier of 16 while it should have been of 15 as the deceased was in the age bracket of 36-40.

9. Under non-pecuniary heads, learned Tribunal has awarded only Rs.5,000/- for loss of love and affection, Rs.2,500/- for loss of estate and Rs.2,000/- for funeral expenses, which is not in consonance with the judgement of Apex Court in National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050 , hence, the appellants shall be entitled to get Rs.70,000/- for non-pecuniary heads. The deceased had three minor children, they would be entitled to consortium of Rs.50,000/- each as they have lost the affection of father at a very tender age.

10. Hence, the total compensation, in view of the above discussions, payable to the appellants-claimants is being computed herein below:

i.	Annual Income	Rs.10,000/- x 12	Rs.1,20,000/-
ii.	Percentage towards Future-Prospects (40%)	Rs.1,20,000 /- x 40%	Rs.48,000/-
iii.	Total Income	Rs. 1,20,000/- + Rs. 48,000 /-	Rs.1,68,000/-
iv.	Income after deduction of 1/3	Rs.1,68,000/- - Rs.56,000/-	Rs.1,12,000/-
v.	Multiplier applicable	15
vi.	Loss of dependency	Rs.1,12,000 /- x 15	Rs.16,80,000/-
vii.	Amount under Non-pecuniary Heads	Rs.1,50,000/- +Rs.70,000/-	Rs.2,20,000/-
ix.	Total Compensation	Rs.16,80,000/- +Rs.2,20,000/-	Rs.19,00,000/-

11. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under:

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

13. Learned Tribunal has awarded rate of interest as 6% per annum but we are fixing the rate of interest as 7.5% on enhanced compensation in the light of the above judgment.

14. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and award passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The insurance company shall deposit the additional amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

15. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansagori P. Ladhani vs. The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., [2007(2) GLH 291] and this High Court if total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to any claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 but if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimants to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) and in First Appeal From Order No.2871 of 2016 (Tej Kumari Sharma v. Chola Mandlam M.S. General Insurance Co. Ltd.) decided on 19.3.2021 while disbursing the amount.

16. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Privae Ltd. vs. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. Since long time has elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Bank Account of claimant(s) in a nationalized Bank.

17. We request the Registrar General to place a copy of this Judgement before the Hon'ble the Chief Justice for circulating it to the Tribunals for their guidances, so that, the Tribunals may not commit the same error as committed in this litigation.

First Appeal From Order No. 1530 of 2008

NTPC ...Appellant

Versus

ESIC, Sarvodaya Nagar Kanpur & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:

Sri Santosh Kumar Tripathi, Sri N.C. Rajvanshi, Sri Piyush Bhargava, Sri Vivek Ratan Agrawal.

Counsel for the Respondents:

(A) Civil Law - Employee State Insurance Act,1948 - beneficial peace of legislation - Applicability of the Act - Section 45A - Determination of contributions in certain cases ; Section 75,75(g),75(2B) - matters to be decided by the Employees Insurance court - Court has power to waive or reduce the amount where the dispute goes to the root of the dispute that the appellant is not liable, the jurisdiction and powers of the Court were with them - provisions of law demanding of 50% would be a directly order but provisions of Section 75 (2B) are not mandatory. (Para - 5,12)

Order of Commissioner and subsequent order - under challenge - grounds - no final order under Section 45-A of Act passed against plaintiff/Appellant - amount mentioned in show cause noyice cannot be treated as amount due against - direction to deposit 50% of amount - provisions of Section 75(2B) of Act not applicable - refused to decide application for grant of temporary injunction - reliefs sought - set aside order - direction to decide applicability of Act upon it without insisting for depositing anything .(Para - 1,2)

HELD:-Matter remanded back to E.S.I court who shall not insist for any amount to be deposit . Direction to E.S.I court to decide the deleted issue no. 4 which is deleted without any application and decide the matter in view of the prevailing law and the provisions of Section 75 (2B) , Section 75(1) (g) and proviso of Section (1)(4) of the Act. Orders passed are bad in eye of law. Question of law decided in favour of appellant and against the respondent.(Para - 9,10,11)

Appeals allowed. (E-7)

List of Cases cited:-

1. D.L.F Power Ltd. Vs Regional Director, (2009) 123 FLR 964 (P&H)

2. ESI Corpn. Vs C.C. Santhakumar, (2007) 1 SCC 584: (2007) 1 SCC (L&S) 413

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
&
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vivek Ratan Agarwal, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Brahmdev Dwivedi, learnd counsel for the respondent who due to physical ailment has joined through video conferencing.

"The reliefs sought in the aforesaid Appeal are that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to allow this Appeal, set aside the order dated 22.08.2003 passed by the court below in ESI case No. 4 of 2003 with costs throughout, direct the court below to decide the question raised by the appellant about the applicability of the Act upon it without insisting for depositing anything, and/or may grant such other and further relief which Hon'ble Court may deem just, fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the cases to meet the ends of justice."

2. Facts:- The appellant has challenged the order of the Commissioner challenging 1st order and then subsequent order on following grounds:-

"A. Because as yet no final order under Section 45-A of the Act has been passed against the plaintiff/Appellant and as the amount mentioned in the show cause noyice dated 20/23.06.2003 cannot be treated as amount due against the plaintiff/Appellant and as such the court below was not justified in passing the impugned order directing the Plaintiff/Appellant to deposit 50% of the amount mentioned in show cause notice dated 20/23.06.2003 and further holding that only thereafter the application for grant of temporary injunction and other pleas raised by the Plaintiff/Appellant would be considered.

B. Because in the facts and circumstances of the case, the provisions of Section 75(2B) of the Act are not applicable and as such the court below acted illegality and with material irregularity in refusing to decide the application for grant of temporary injunction unless 50% of the amount shown in the show cause notice dated 20/23.06.2003 is deposited by the Plaintiff/Appellant."

3. Both the appeals requires to be allowed for the reasons as below:-

4. The provisions of Section 75(g) plays a pivotal role as jurisdiction of Insurance Court is obliged to decide the issue as to whether any organisation is covered by Employee State Insurance Act,1948 ('Act' for short). Object of Act is to provide certain benefits to the employees and there is waive power to predeposit. All these aspects were to be decided by the Court. The Employees State Insurance Act though being beneficial peace of legislation:-

"A plain reading of this Section provides that a dispute between the principal employer and Corporation in respect of any contribution or any other dues could not be raised by the principal employer in the 'Employees' Insurance Court only after depositing 50% of the amount claimed by the Corporation. The only relief is provided in the Proviso of the said section is that the Court may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, waive or reduce the amount to be deposited. As per the proviso recording reasons in writing would arise in a situation where the Court decides to waive or reduce the amount to be deposited. In case the Court is not waiving off or is not reducing the mandatory deposit of the amount of 50%, the Court is not required to record reasons in writing, D.L.F Power Ltd. V. Regional Director, (2009) 123 FLR 964 (P&H). ESI Corpn. v. C.C. Santhakumar, (2007) 1 SCC 584: (2007) 1 SCC (L&S) 413."

5. The Court has power to waive or reduce the amount where the dispute goes to the root of the dispute that the appellant is not liable, the jurisdiction and powers of the Court were with them. Obligations to adjudicate as per the judgement of Modi Steels Unit-A v. ESI Court, (1984) 2 LLN 655 has been not adhered to.

6. We are not going into the merits of the matter as there is no adjudication that the appellant is under duty to pay the amount claimed. They have raised objections as their liability is also not there as they have their own rules which covers their employees which are much better than the Act. We are not going into this aspect.

7. We also hope that the respondent will also look into this issue as the medical benefits given to the employees according to the appellant is much more than the benefits which would accrue under the Act. We are not going into the same. The appropriated Government would look into this issue also.

8. Appeals allowed.

9. Matter be remanded back to the E.S.I court who shall not insist for any amount to be deposit as the National Thermal Power Corporation Ltd. has raised an issue that they are not covered by Employees State Insurance Act and N.T.P.C as a better came for its employees. All these contentions have not been considered by the court below while rejecting both the applications, i.e set aside.

10. The E.S.I court will decide the issues. We direct the E.S.I court to decide the deleted issue no. 4 which is deleted without any application and decide the matter in view of the prevailing law and the provisions of Section 75 (2B) relied by Sri. Brahmdev Dwivedi, learned counsel for the respondent and Section 75(1) (g) and proviso of Section (1)(4) of the Act.

11. With all these observations, we prima-facie hold that orders passed are bad in eye of law. This question of law is decided in favour of the appellant and against the respondent.

12. Record be send back to the E.S.I court to decide the matter within 12 week's from today as they are pending since long.

We make it clear that the provisions of law demanding of 50% would be a directly order but provisions of Section 75 (2B) are not mandatory.

13. We are thankful to both the counsels for ably assisting us.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.
&
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sharve Singh, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Dinkar Mani Tripathi, learned counsel for the respondent.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgment and award dated 31.5.2010 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No.14, Varanasi (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in M.A.C.P No.84 of 2008 awarding a sum of Rs.2,21,500/- as compensation with interest at the rate of 6% against Rs.60,00,000/- claimed by the claimants-appellants.

3. The accident took place on 12.12.2007 at 12.00 noon on Varanasi-Jaunpur Road near Reliance Petrol Pump within Police Station Bara Gaon, District Varanasi. Bus of U.P. State Road Transport Corporation is alleged to have knocked down the Motorcyclist who died in the said accident. It is an admitted position of fact and not disputed that the deceased died on the spot. The deceased at the time of accident was a medical officer namely Senior Territory Executive and was aged about 38 years of age. He was getting Rs.7500/- along with Rs.200/- allowance per day if he went out of headquarter. While deciding the claim petition, the Tribunal has granted sum of Rs.2,21,500/-. The Tribunal took the income of the deceased to be a notional income of Rs.3,000/- only as according to the Tribunal, it was not proved that he was in service. The salary certificate, Income Tax Returns and appointment letter which was not even rebutted by the respondent, was brushed aside by the Tribunal. Tribunal in the year of accident was governed by the judgment by the Apex Court in General Manager, Kerala S.R.T.C. vs. Susamma Thomas, 1994 SCC (2) 176, this fact was also not looked into. The decision in Sarla Verma and others Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation and Another, 2009 LawSuit (SC), though pressed into service by the appellants-claimants was not considered.

4. The Tribunal hold the deceased to be 50% negligent. This twin issues are posed for consideration namely whether the deceased was contributed to the accident having taken place if yes, to what extent and what is the compensation to be paid to the claimants.

5. While dealing with submission on issue of negligence raised by the learned counsel for the appellant, it would be relevant to discuss the principles for deciding contributory negligence and for that the principles for considering negligence will also have to be looked into.

6. The term negligence means failure to exercise care towards others which a reasonable and prudent person would in a circumstance or taking action which such a reasonable person would not. Negligence can be both intentional or accidental which is normally accidental. More particularly, it connotes reckless driving and the injured must always prove that the either side is negligent. If the injury rather death is caused by something owned or controlled by the negligent party then he is directly liable otherwise the principle of "res ipsa loquitur" meaning thereby "the things speak for itself" would apply.

7. The principle of contributory negligence has been discussed time and again. A person who either contributes or is co author of the accident would be liable for his contribution to the accident having taken place and that amount will be deducted from the compensation payable to him if he is injured and to legal representatives if he dies in the accident.

8. The Division Bench of this Court in First Appeal From Order No. 1818 of 2012 (Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Co.Ltd. Vs. Smt. Renu Singh And Others) decided on 19.7.2016 has held as under :

"16. Negligence means failure to exercise required degree of care and caution expected of a prudent driver. Negligence is the omission to do something which a reasonable man, guided upon the considerations, which ordinarily regulate conduct of human affairs, would do, or doing something which a prudent and reasonable man would not do. Negligence is not always a question of direct evidence. It is an inference to be drawn from proved facts. Negligence is not an absolute term, but is a relative one. It is rather a comparative term. What may be negligence in one case may not be so in another. Where there is no duty to exercise care, negligence in the popular sense has no legal consequence. Where there is a duty to exercise care, reasonable care must be taken to avoid acts or omissions which would be reasonably foreseen likely to caused physical injury to person. The degree of care required, of course, depends upon facts in each case. On these broad principles, the negligence of drivers is required to be assessed.

17. It would be seen that burden of proof for contributory negligence on the part of deceased has to be discharged by the opponents. It is the duty of driver of the offending vehicle to explain the accident. It is well settled law that at intersection where two roads cross each other, it is the duty of a fast moving vehicle to slow down and if driver did not slow down at intersection, but continued to proceed at a high speed without caring to notice that another vehicle was crossing, then the conduct of driver necessarily leads to conclusion that vehicle was being driven by him rashly as well as negligently.

18. 10th Schedule appended to Motor Vehicle Act contain statutory regulations for driving of motor vehicles which also form part of every Driving License. Clause-6 of such Regulation clearly directs that the driver of every motor vehicle to slow down vehicle at every intersection or junction of roads or at a turning of the road. It is also provided that driver of the vehicle should not enter intersection or junction of roads unless he makes sure that he would not thereby endanger any other person. Merely, because driver of the Truck was driving vehicle on the left side of road would not absolve him from his responsibility to slow down vehicle as he approaches intersection of roads, particularly when he could have easily seen, that the car over which deceased was riding, was approaching intersection.

19. In view of the fast and constantly increasing volume of traffic, motor vehicles upon roads may be regarded to some extent as coming within the principle of liability defined in Rylands V/s. Fletcher, (1868) 3 HL (LR) 330. From the point of view of pedestrian, the roads of this country have been rendered by the use of motor vehicles, highly dangerous. 'Hit and run' cases where drivers of motor vehicles who have caused accidents, are unknown. In fact such cases are increasing in number. Where a pedestrian without negligence on his part is injured or killed by a motorist, whether negligently or not, he or his legal representatives, as the case may be, should be entitled to recover damages if principle of social justice should have any meaning at all.

20. These provisions (sec.110A and sec.110B of Motor Act, 1988) are not merely procedural provisions. They substantively affect the rights of the parties. The right of action created by Fatal Accidents Act, 1855 was 'new in its species, new in its quality, new in its principles. In every way it was new. The right given to legal representatives under Act, 1988 to file an application for compensation for death due to a motor vehicle accident is an enlarged one. This right cannot be hedged in by limitations of an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1855. New situations and new dangers require new strategies and new remedies.

21. In the light of the above discussion, we are of the view that even if courts may not by interpretation displace the principles of law which are considered to be well settled and, therefore, court cannot dispense with proof of negligence altogether in all cases of motor vehicle accidents, it is possible to develop the law further on the following lines; when a motor vehicle is being driven with reasonable care, it would ordinarily not meet with an accident and, therefore, rule of res-ipsa loquitor as a rule of evidence may be invoked in motor accident cases with greater frequency than in ordinary civil suits (per three-Judge Bench in Jacob Mathew V/s. State of Punjab, 2005 0 ACJ(SC) 1840).

22. By the above process, the burden of proof may ordinarily be cast on the defendants in a motor accident claim petition to prove that motor vehicle was being driven with reasonable care or that there is equal negligence on the part the other side."

emphasis added

9. The Apex Court in Khenyei Vs. New India Assurance Company Limited & Others, 2015 LawSuit (SC) 469 has held as under:

"4. It is a case of composite negligence where injuries have been caused to the claimants by combined wrongful act of joint tort feasors. In a case of accident caused by negligence of joint tort feasors, all the persons who aid or counsel or direct or join in committal of a wrongful act, are liable. In such case, the liability is always joint and several. The extent of negligence of joint tort feasors in such a case is immaterial for satisfaction of the claim of the plaintiff/claimant and need not be determined by the by the court. However, in case all the joint tort feasors are before the court, it may determine the extent of their liability for the purpose of adjusting inter-se equities between them at appropriate stage. The liability of each and every joint tort feasor vis a vis to plaintiff/claimant cannot be bifurcated as it is joint and several liability. In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between tort feasors for making payment to the plaintiff is not permissible as the plaintiff/claimant has the right to recover the entire amount from the easiest targets/solvent defendant.

14. There is a difference between contributory and composite negligence. In the case of contributory negligence, a person who has himself contributed to the extent cannot claim compensation for the injuries sustained by him in the accident to the extent of his own negligence;whereas in the case of composite negligence, a person who has suffered has not contributed to the accident but the outcome of combination of negligence of two or more other persons. This Court in T.O. Anthony v. Karvarnan & Ors. [2008 (3) SCC 748] has held that in case of contributory negligence, injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong doer separately. It is only in the case of contributory negligence that the injured himself has contributed by his negligence in the accident. Extent of his negligence is required to be determined as damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries have to be reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence. The relevant portion is extracted hereunder :

"6. 'Composite negligence' refers to the negligence on the part of two or more persons. Where a person is injured as a result of negligence on the part of two or more wrong doers, it is said that the person was injured on account of the composite negligence of those wrong-doers. In such a case, each wrong doer, is jointly and severally liable to the injured for payment of the entire damages and the injured person has the choice of proceeding against all or any of them. In such a case, the injured need not establish the extent of responsibility of each wrong-doer separately, nor is it necessary for the court to determine the extent of liability of each wrong-doer separately. On the other hand where a person suffers injury, partly due to the negligence on the part of another person or persons, and partly as a result of his own negligence, then the negligence of the part of the injured which contributed to the accident is referred to as his contributory negligence. Where the injured is guilty of some negligence, his claim for damages is not defeated merely by reason of the negligence on his part but the damages recoverable by him in respect of the injuries stands reduced in proportion to his contributory negligence.

7. Therefore, when two vehicles are involved in an accident, and one of the drivers claims compensation from the other driver alleging negligence, and the other driver denies negligence or claims that the injured claimant himself was negligent, then it becomes necessary to consider whether the injured claimant was negligent and if so, whether he was solely or partly responsible for the accident and the extent of his responsibility, that is his contributory negligence. Therefore where the injured is himself partly liable, the principle of 'composite negligence' will not apply nor can there be an automatic inference that the negligence was 50:50 as has been assumed in this case. The Tribunal ought to have examined the extent of contributory negligence of the appellant and thereby avoided confusion between composite negligence and contributory negligence. The High Court has failed to correct the said error."

18. This Court in Challa Bharathamma &Nanjappan (supra) has dealt with the breach of policy conditions by the owner when the insurer was asked to pay the compensation fixed by the tribunal and the right to recover the same was given to the insurer in the executing court concerned if the dispute between the insurer and the owner was the subject-matter of determination for the tribunal and the issue has been decided in favour of the insured. The same analogy can be applied to the instant cases as the liability of the joint tort feasor is joint and several. In the instant case, there is determination of inter se liability of composite negligence to the extent of negligence of 2/3rd and 1/3rd of respective drivers. Thus, the vehicle - trailor-truck which was not insured with the insurer, was negligent to the extent of 2/3rd. It would be open to the insurer being insurer of the bus after making payment to claimant to recover from the owner of the trailor-truck the amount to the aforesaid extent in the execution proceedings. Had there been no determination of the inter se liability for want of evidence or other joint tort feasor had not been impleaded, it was not open to settle such a dispute and to recover the amount in execution proceedings but the remedy would be to file another suit or appropriate proceedings in accordance with law.

What emerges from the aforesaid discussion is as follows :

(i) In the case of composite negligence, plaintiff/claimant is entitled to sue both or any one of the joint tort feasors and to recover the entire compensation as liability of joint tort feasors is joint and several.

(ii) In the case of composite negligence, apportionment of compensation between two tort feasors vis a vis the plaintiff/claimant is not permissible. He can recover at his option whole damages from any of them.

(iii) In case all the joint tort feasors have been impleaded and evidence is sufficient, it is open to the court/tribunal to determine inter se extent of composite negligence of the drivers. However, determination of the extent of negligence between the joint tort feasors is only for the purpose of their inter se liability so that one may recover the sum from the other after making whole of payment to the plaintiff/claimant to the extent it has satisfied the liability of the other. In case both of them have been impleaded and the apportionment/ extent of their negligence has been determined by the court/tribunal, in main case one joint tort feasor can recover the amount from the other in the execution proceedings.

(iv) It would not be appropriate for the court/tribunal to determine the extent of composite negligence of the drivers of two vehicles in the absence of impleadment of other joint tort feasors. In such a case, impleaded joint tort feasor should be left, in case he so desires, to sue the other joint tort feasor in independent proceedings after passing of the decree or award."

10. The latest decision of the Apex Court in Khenyei (Supra) has laid down one further aspect about considering the negligence more particularly composite/contributory negligence. The deceased or the person concerned should be shown to have contributed either to the accident and the impact of accident upon the victim could have been minimised if he had taken care. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case we hold the deceased to be 25% negligent as the evidence of D.W.1 goes to show that the death of the deceased occurred on the spot. We are even fortified in our view by the decision of the Apex Court in Archit Saini and Another Vs. Oriental Insurance Company Limited, AIR 2018 SC 1143 wherein the finding of the Tribunal was upheld by adverting to the same more particularly the Apex Court has upheld the finding in paragraph 21 to 27 in its judgment. The paragraph 5 of the said Apex Court's judgment is reproduced hereinbelow:

"5.The respondents had opposed the claim petition and denied their liability but did not lead any evidence on the relevant issue to dispel the relevant fact. The Tribunal after analysing the evidence, including the site map (Ext. P-45) produced on record along with charge-sheet filed against the driver of the Gas Tanker and the arguments of the respondents, answered Issue 1 against the respondents in the following words:

"21. Our own Hon'ble High Court in a case captioned Lakhu Singh v. Uday Singh [Lakhu Singh v. Uday Singh, 2007 SCC OnLine P&H 865 : PLR (2007) 4 P&H 507] held that while considering a claim petition, the Tribunal is required to hold an enquiry and act not as criminal court so as to find whether the claimants have established the occurrence beyond shadow of any reasonable doubt. In the enquiry, if there is prima facie evidence of the occurrence there is no reason to disbelieve such evidence. The statements coupled with the facts of registration of FIR and trial of the accused in a criminal court are sufficient to arrive at a conclusion that the accident has taken place. Likewise, in Kusum Lata v. Satbir [Kusum Lata v. Satbir, (2011) 3 SCC 646 : (2011) 2 SCC (Civ) 37 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 18 : (2011) 2 RCR (Civil) 379] the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in a case relating to motor accident claims, the claimants are not required to rove the case as it is required to be done in a criminal trial. The Court must keep this distinction in mind. Strict proof of an accident caused by a particular bus in a particular manner may not be possible to be done by the claimants. The claimants were merely to establish their case on the touchstone of preponderance of probability. The standard of proof beyond reasonable doubt could not have been applied.

22. After considering the submissions made by both the parties, I find that PW 7 Sohan Lal eyewitness to the occurrence has specifically stated in his affidavit Ext. PW 7/A tendered in his evidence that on 15-12-2011 at about 20.30 p.m. he along with PHG Ajit Singh was present near Sanjha Chulha Dhaba on the National Highway leading to Jammu. All the traffic of road was diverted on the eastern side of the road on account of closure of road on western side due to construction work. In the meantime a Maruti car bearing No. HR 02 K 0448 came from Jammu side and struck against the back of Gas Tanker as the driver of the car could not spot the parked tanker due to the flashlights of the oncoming traffic from front side. Then they rushed towards the spot of accident and noticed that the said tanker was standing parked in the middle of the road without any indicators or parking lights.

23. The statement of this witness clearly establishes that this was the sole negligence on the part of the driver of the Gas Tanker especially when the accident was caused on 15-12-2011 that too at about 10.30 p.m. which is generally time of pitch darkness. In this way, the driver of the car cannot be held in any way negligent in this accident. Moreover, as per Rule 15 of the Road Regulations, 1989 no vehicle is to be parked on busy road.

24. The arguments of the learned counsel for the respondent that PW 7 Sohan Lal has stated in his cross-examination that there was no fog at that time and there were lights on the Dhaba and the truck was visible to him due to light of Dhaba and he was standing at the distance of 70 ft from the truck being road between him and the truck and he noticed at the car when he heard voice/sound caused by the accident so Respondent 1 is not at all negligent in this accident but these submissions will not make the car driver to be in any way negligent and cannot give clean chit to the driver of the Gas Tanker because there is a difference between the visibility of a standing vehicle from a place where the person is standing and by a person who is coming driving the vehicle because due to flashlights of vehicles coming from front side the vehicle coming from opposite side cannot generally spot the standing vehicle in the road that too in night-time when there is neither any indicator or parking lights nor blinking lights nor any other indication given on the back of the stationed vehicle, therefore, the driver of the car cannot be held to be in any way negligent rather it is the sole negligence on the part of the driver of the offending Gas Tanker as held inGinni Devi case [Ginni Devi v. Union of India, 2007 SCC OnLine P&H 126 : 2008 ACJ 1572] , Mohan Lal case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Mohan Lal, 2006 SCC OnLine All 459 : (2007) 1 ACC 785 (All)] . It is not the case of the respondent that the parking lights of the standing truck were on or there were any other indication on the backside of the vehicle standing on the road to enable the coming vehicle to see the standing truck. The other arguments of the learned counsel for Respondent 3 that the road was sufficient wide road and that the car driver could have avoided the accident, so the driver of the car was himself negligent in causing the accident cannot be accepted when it has already been held that the accident has been caused due to sole negligence of the driver of the offending stationed truck in the busy road. The proposition of law laid down in Harbans Kaur case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Harbans Kaur, 2010 SCC OnLine P&H 7441 : (2010) 4 PLR 422 (P&H)] and T.M. Chayapathi case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. T.M. Chayapathi, 2004 SCC OnLine AP 484 : (2005) 4 ACC 61] is not disputed at all but these authorities are not helpful to the respondents being not applicable on the facts and circumstances of the present case. Likewise, non-examination of minor children of the age of 14 and 9 years who lost their father and mother in the accident cannot be held to be in any way detrimental to the case of the claimants when eyewitness to the occurrence has proved the accident having been caused by the negligence of Respondent 1 driver of the offending vehicle.

25. Moreover, in Girdhari Lal v. Radhey Shyam [Girdhari Lal v. Radhey

Shyam, 1993 SCC OnLine P&H 194 : PLR (1993) 104 P&H 109] , Sudama Devi v. Kewal Ram [Sudama Devi v.Kewal Ram, 2007 SCC OnLine P&H 1208 : PLR (2008) 149 P&H 444] andPazhaniammal case [New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Pazhaniammal, 2011 SCC OnLine Ker 1881 : 2012 ACJ 1370] our own Hon'ble High Court has held that "it is, prima facie safe to conclude in claim cases that the accident has occurred on account of rash or negligent driving of the driver, if the driver is facing the criminal trial on account of rash or negligent driving.'

26. Moreover, Respondent 1 driver of the offending vehicle has not appeared in the witness box to deny the accident having been caused by him, therefore, I am inclined to draw an adverse inference against Respondent 1. In this context, I draw support from a judgment of the Hon'ble Punjab & Haryana High Court reported asBhagwani Devi v. Krishan Kumar Saini[Bhagwani Devi v. Krishan Kumar Saini, 1986 SCC OnLine P&H 274 : 1986 ACJ 331] . Moreover, Respondent 1 has also not filed any complaint to higher authorities about his false implication in the criminal case so it cannot be accepted that Respondent 1 has been falsely implicated in this case.

27. In view of above discussion, it is held that the claimants have proved that the accident has been caused by Respondent 1 by parking the offending vehicle bearing No. HR 02 AF 8590 in the middle of the road in a negligent manner wherein Vinod Saini and Smt Mamta Saini have died and claimants Archit Saini and Gauri Saini have received injuries on their person. Shri Vinod Saini, deceased who was driving ill-fated car on that day cannot be held to be negligent in any way. Accordingly, this issue is decided in favour of claimants."

11. The evidence of P.W.2 and D.W.1 read with each other goes to show that the Motorcyclist while trying to save a cyclist dashed with the bus of U.P.S.R.T.C. Had the driver of the bus of U.P.S.R.T.C. which was a bigger vehicle taken more caution, the accident could have been avoided but as there was head on collision, the Tribunal has apportioned the liability on the basis of head on collision. Rather the driver of U.P.S.R.T.C. Bus has taken stand that his vehicle did not dashed with the motorcyclist. Injury goes to show that the impact was such that the deceased died due to accidental injuries cause by the big vehicle. The driver driving bigger vehicle on the highway is supposed to take more caution. We, therefore, hold the driver of the Bus of U.P.S.R.T.C. 75% negligent and the deceased to be 25% negligent.

12. This takes us to the issue of quantum of compensation awarded. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the finding of fact of the Tribunal that Income Tax Return of earlier years cannot be considered which was just preceding the year when the deceased died is perverse. The accident occurred in the month of December, 2007, the Income Tax Return, Pay slip and other material were before the Tribunal. The Tribunal has not properly scrutinized the same, and has wrongly considered the minimum amount as income and considered that the deceased was earning only Rs.3,000/- per month. The income was below the taxable limit but as he was service personnel, the income tax return was filed which is on record. The finding is not only perverse finding but absurdity has percolated in the award of the Tribunal. The salary certificate shows the income of the deceased to be Rs.7,500/- per month.

13. This Court is unable to accept the submission of Sri Dinkar Mani Tripathi, learned counsel for the respondent that this salary certificate cannot be taken in evidence. We are fortified in our view by the decision in Anita Sharma v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (2021) 1 SCC 171. It is also an admitted position of fact that for each day when the deceased would go in the territory, he would be entitled to a sum of Rs.100/- per day as allowance. We do not consider the same. We consider the income of the deceased to be Rs.7,500/- per month. To which as the deceased was below 40 years and was salaried person 50% to be added towards future loss of income of the deceased in view of the decision in Smt. Meena Pawaia & others Vs. Ashraf Ali and others 2021 0 Supreme (SC) 694 and National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093.

14. The deceased was survived by widow, two minor children and parents. The Tribunal has deducted 1/3rd towards personal expenses of the deceased. Learned counsel for the appellant states that it should be 1/4th but the same is objected by Sri Dinkar Mani Tripathi, learned counsel for the respondent. We are in agreement with learned counsel for the respondent that deduction of 1/3rd towards personal expenses is just and proper. Tribunal has granted multiplier of 16, which according to learned counsel for the respondent would be 15. We accept the same looking to the age of the deceased.

15. As far as amount under non-pecuniary heads is concerned, the appellants would be entitled to Rs.70,000/- + 10% rise in every three years in view of the decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others, 2017 LawSuit (SC) 1093, hence, we grant Rs.1,00,000/- (rounded figure) towards non pecuniary damages. We award Rs.50,000/- each to minor children of the deceased towards love and affection who have lost their father at a very prime age.

16. Hence, the total compensation payable to the appellants is computed herein below:

i. Monthly Income: Rs.7,500/-

ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 50% namely Rs.3,750/-

iii. Total income : Rs.7,500 +3,750 = Rs.11,250/-

iv. Income after deduction of 1/3rd towards personal expenses : Rs.7,500/-

v. Annual income : Rs.7,500 x 12 = Rs.90,000/-

vi. Multiplier applicable : 15

vii. Loss of dependency: Rs.90,000 x 15 = Rs.13,50,000/- viii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.1,00,000 + Rs.50,000 + Rs.50,000 = Rs.2,00,000/-

ix. Total compensation : Rs.15,50,000/-

x. Amount payable to claimants after deducting 25% negligence of the deceased : 11,62,500/-

17. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under :

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

18. No other grounds are urged orally when the matter was heard.

19. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Award and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-U.P.S.R.T.C. shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

20. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment be passed by Tribunal..

21. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

22. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

23. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As 15 years have elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

24. This Court is thankful to both the counsels for getting this old matter decided.

First Appeal From Order No. 3192 of 2017

National Insurance Co. Ltd., Ashok Nagar, Kanpur ...Appellant
Versus
Smt. Archana Singh & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Radhey Shyam, Sri Sushil Kumar Mehrotra

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri Mohd. Naushad Siddiqui, Sri Shirish Srivastava

(A) Torts Law - Motor Vehicle Act,1988 - Sections 163-A ,166 & 173 - quantum of compensation - juxtaposition - U.P. Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011 - Rule 220-A(2)(ii)and(iii) , Rule 220-A 3(iii) , Rule 220-A (3) - for the deduction towards personal and living expenses of a married person (deceased), a minor dependent will be counted as half - Principle of standardisation - when a person is in a permanent job, there should be an addition of 15% if the deceased is between the age of 50 to 60 years and there should be no addition thereafter - in case of self-employed or person on fixed salary, the addition should be 10% between the age of 50 to 60 years. (Para - 3,4,12)

Deduction of 1/4th for personal expenses of deceased - dependent family members of deceased - claim petition and noted by the Tribunal - are five (5); wife, two minor children, mother and father of the deceased - deceased was admittedly more than 31 years of age on the date of the accident - multiplier of 17 applied by tribunal .

HELD:-Deduction of 1/4th towards personal and living expenses of deceased cannot be said to be unjust or in contravention of Rule 220-A(2)(ii) and (iii) . Court cannot curtail the benefits provided by the Statute to the claimant/respondent when the statutory provision was very much available in the statute book . Declined to interfere in the decision of the Tribunal in applying multiplier of 17 as per the Second Schedule while computing the compensation payable to the dependent of deceased/claimants herein.(Para - 4,15,16)

Hon'ble Krishan Pahal, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sushil Kumar Mehrotra learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Shirish Srivastava, leaned Advocate holding brief of Mohd. Naushad Siddiqui learned counsel for the claimants-respondents.

2. The challenge to the award passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No. 7, Kanpur Nagar is confined to the issue of quantum of compensation, i.e. the alleged illegality in the computation made by the Tribunal. The issue no. 5 in the decision of the Tribunal under challenge is on the quantum of compensation.

3. The arguments of the learned counsel for the appellant-Insurance Company are two folds: the first is that the Tribunal had wrongly made deduction to the extent of 1/4th for personal expenses of deceased in ignorance of U.P. Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011 (In short as "the Rules, 2011) which provides in Rule 220-A (3) that for the purposes of calculation of number of family members as per Clauses (ii) and (iii) of the said sub-rule (2), i.e. for the deduction towards personal and living expenses of a married person (deceased), a minor dependent will be counted as half.

The contention is that as the deceased was survived by two minor children apart from his wife, total number of dependent family members would be two (2). The Tribunal, therefore, ought to have made deduction of 1/3rd in the said category.

4. To deal with this submission, suffice it to note that the dependent family members of deceased as narrated in the claim petition and noted by the Tribunal are five (5); wife, two minor children, mother and father of the deceased. A categorical statement has been made in the claim petition that the claimant wife, her children and parents of deceased were wholly dependent upon him. Nothing contrary could be brought before us. Considering the number of dependent family members being five, we find that the Tribunal had correctly applied the ratio given in Rule 220-A(2)(ii) of the Rules, 2011.

Even if the arguments of the learned counsel for the appellant-Insurance Company regarding application of sub rule (2)(iii) are accepted in this regard, counting minor dependents as half, the total number of dependent family members would be four (4). In both the eventuality, the dependent family members being between four(4) to six(6) in number, the deduction of 1/4th towards personal and living expenses of deceased cannot be said to be unjust or in contravention of Rule 220-A(2)(ii) and (iii).

The first ground of challenge is, therefore, turned down.

5. The second limb of argument of the learned counsel for the appellant is on the multiplier chosen by the Tribunal.

The contention is that the deceased was admittedly more than 31 years of age on the date of the accident. As per the principle laid down by the Apex Court in Sarla Verma and others vs. Delhi Transport Corporation and another1, the multiplier in the table in paragraph '40' was to be applied as against the multiplier mentioned in the Second Schedule for claims under Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act. As per Column (4) of the table given in Sarla Verma (supra), multiplier of 16 had to be applied for the deceased his age being in the bracket of 31 to 35 years. The Tribunal has erred in choosing the multiplier of 17 from the table in the Second Schedule to the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (In short as "the Motor Vehicles Act").

6. To contradict this submission, learned counsel for the respondent has placed reliance on a decision of the Apex Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Urmila Shukla and others2, wherein the decision of this Court in a First Appeal against the order passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal was challenged on the ground that Rule 3(iii) of U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 is contrary to the conclusions drawn by the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi3

The challenge in the said appeal was to the quantum of compensation on the premise that addition of 20% of the salary in the future prospects of deceased, more than 50 years of age was illegal.

It was contended therein that by application of sub-rule 3(iii) of Rule 220-A of the Rules 1998, the Tribunal has committed an error in taking decision in contravention of the conclusions arrived by the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court wherein it was held that there should be an addition of 15% in case of the deceased between the age of 50 to 60 years and there should be no addition thereafter.

The Apex Court, however, had turned down the objection of the appellant-Insurance Company noticing that the validity of the Rules was not in question in the said matter and the Court cannot restrict the scope of the Rules which afford a favourable treatment to the claimant.

7. Based on this decision, it is vehemently argued by the learned counsel for the respondent claimants that on the date of the decision given by the Tribunal, the Second Schedule was very much in existence on the statute book. The Tribunal, therefore, cannot be said to have erred in giving benefit of the multiplier provided in the Second Schedule.

8. In rejoinder, learned counsel for the appellant, however, asserted that the table given in paragraph '40' of the decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (supra) is final and binding on the High Court and submits that in any case, the Tribunal or this Court cannot deviate from the said decision.

9. To deal with the above contentions, we would be required to go through the decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (supra), specifically paragraphs '13' to '42' which contain the discussion on the question of selection of multiplier. The Apex Court had noticed therein various discrepancies/errors in the multiplier scale given in the Second Schedule table and found that it prescribes a lesser compensation for cases where a higher multiplier of 18 is applicable and a larger compensation with reference to cases where a lesser multiplier of '15', '16' or '17' is applicable. It was, therefore, inferred that a clerical error has crept in the Schedule and the multiplier figure got wrongly typed therein.

Another incongruity which was noticed therein is that the table prescribed the compensation payable even in cases where the annual income ranges between Rs. 3000/- to Rs.12000/- whereas the notional minimum income of non-earning persons is prescribed therein as Rs. 15,000/- per annum. This has led to a situation where the compensation will be higher in cases where the deceased was idle and not having any income than in cases where the deceased was already earning an income ranging between Rs. 3000/- and Rs.12,000/- per annum.

10. The Apex Court, thereafter, considered its earlier decisions in Kerala

SRTC vs. Susamma Thomas4, U.P. SRTC vs. Trilok Chandra5 and New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Charlie6 to consider the multiplier indicated therein for claims under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, in juxtaposition with the multiplier mentioned in the Second Schedule for claims under Section 163-A of the Motor Vehicles Act for carving out the table in paragraph '40' of the decision in Sarla Verma (supra). It was, thereafter, stated that in order to avoid any inconsistency in the cases falling under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, the multiplier to be used should be as mentioned in Column (4) of the table given in paragraph '40', which was prepared by applying Kerala SRTC vs. Susamma Thomas (supra), U.P. SRTC vs. Trilok Chandra (supra) and New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Charlie (supra).

It is evident from Column (4) of the table in Sarla Verma (supra) that multiplier of 16 for age bracket 31 to 35 years has to be applied whereas Second Schedule to Motor Vehicles Act provides multiplier of 17 for this age bracket. There is no dispute about the age of deceased and that he was above 31 years on the date of accident.

11. We may further note the decision of Apex Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (supra) dated 6th August, 2021, wherein categorical challenge was to the percentage of salary applied for the future prospects of deceased more than 50 years of the age. The percentage of 15% of salary towards future prospects has been carved out by the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi (supra). Some of the observations of the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi (supra), specifically paragraphs '31' and '55' to '58' were noted by the Apex Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (supra).

12. From the careful reading of the extracted paragraphs of National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi (supra), it is evident that while applying the principle of standardisation, the Apex Court while dealing with the issue of fixation of future prospects in cases of deceased who are self-employed or on a fixed salary has held that though the decision in Sarla Verma (supra) says that where the age of deceased is more than 50 years, there should be no addition on future prospects, however, taking judicial notice of the fact that the salary does not remain the same, to lay down as a thumb rule that no addition be made after 50 years will be an unacceptable concept. It was, therefore, held that the Court found it appropriate that when a person is in a permanent job, there should be an addition of 15% if the deceased is between the age of 50 to 60 years and there should be no addition thereafter. Similarly, in case of self-employed or person on fixed salary, the addition should be 10% between the age of 50 to 60 years. It was then stated that the aforesaid yardstick has been fixed so that there can be consistency in the approach by the Tribunals and the Courts.

13. It is this observations in the Constitution Bench judgment of the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi (supra) which was the bone of contention of the appellants in Civil Appeal No. 4634 of 2021 decided on 6th August, 2021. As against the direction of the Apex Court, the Tribunal had relied on sub-rule 3(iii) of Rule 220-A which provides addition of 20% of the salary for the future prospects of deceased more than 50 years of age. It is in this context the Apex Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (supra) has observed in paragraphs '10' and '11' as under:-

"10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid."

The crux of the decision of the Apex Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (supra) to our understanding is that if the statutory instrument affords a favourable treatment, the decision of the Court cannot limit the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under challenge. In other words, if the formula devised by the statutory instrument affords better or greater benefits, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless it is otherwise found to be invalid.

14. Applying the same principle, we may note that the table carved out in Sarla Verma (supra) was to remove the discrepancies in the multiplier scale with reference to the quantum of compensation given in the Second Schedule table where lesser compensation for higher multiplier and larger compensation with reference to lesser multiplier has been applied. The clerical mistake in the Second Schedule as per the observation made by the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (supra), has been corrected. However, it may be noted that the Second Schedule in Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 was very much on the statute book when the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal gave the decision under challenge. The multiplier of 17 applied by the Tribunal is in conformity with the Second schedule. As per Sarla Verma (supra), the multiplier of 16 should have been applied in the age bracket of 31 to 35 years. The formula as provided in the Second Schedule is found to be beneficial to the claimant/respondent herein.

15. Applying the principle laid down by the Apex Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. (supra), we are of the considered view that the Court cannot curtail the benefits provided by the Statute to the claimant/respondent herein when the statutory provision was very much available in the statute book.

16. Applying the above principle, we are not inclined to interfere in the decision of the Tribunal in applying multiplier of 17 as per the Second Schedule while computing the compensation payable to the dependent of deceased/claimants herein.

17. In view of the above discussion, on both the above counts, we do not find merit in the appeal.

No other ground has been pressed.

The appeal is dismissed being devoid of merits.

(A) Torts Law - Motor Vehicle Act,1988 - Section 166 - Application for compensation , Section 173 - Appeals - extent of care/diligence expected of the employer/insured while employing a driver - Mere absence, fake or invalid driving licence or disqualification of the driver for driving at the relevant time are not in themselves defences available to the insurer against either the insured or the third parties - To avoid its liability towards the insured the insurer has to prove that the insured was guilty of negligence and failed to exercise reasonable care.(Para - 19,22)

(B) Torts Law - Motor Vehicle Act,1988 - Section 140 - Liability to pay compensation in certain case on the principle of no fault , Section 149(2)(a) - breach of conditions , Section 149(2)(a)(ii) - conditions regarding driving liscence - claim for compensation - open to the insurer under Section 149(2)(a)(ii) to take a defence - driver of the vehicle involved in the accident was not duly licensed - onus is on the insurer - if the owner was aware of the fact that the licence was fake and still permitted the driver to drive the vehicle, then the insurer would stand absolved - mere fact that the driving licence is fake, per se, would not absolve the insurer. (Para - 20,21)

Deceased S/o claimant - returning home from his office by motorcycle - truck driven by its driver rashly and negligently dashed - causing injuries - died same day - sum of Rs.12,70,406/- alongwith 6 % interest awarded as compensation - driver of offending vehicle had no valid license at the time of accident - liability for payment of compensation cannot be fastened with insurance company - compensation payable by owner of the offending vehicle - M.A.C.T. held - insurer was liable even though the driver had a fake license.(Para -2 to 11)

HELD:-Not proved by appellant that owner/respondent no.3 had not taken adequate care and caution to verify the genuineness of the driving licence of the driver at the time of his employment and that the owner was aware or had notice that the licence was fake or invalid and still permitted him to drive the offending vehicle.Cannot be said that the insured/owner is at fault in having employed a person whose licence has been found to be fake by the insurance company. Appellant/Insurance Company liable to indemnify respondents.(Para - 24,25)

Appeal dismissed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anand Kumar Sinha, learned counsel for the appellant- National Insurance Company, Sri S. Shekhar, learned counsel for respondent nos.1 & 2 and Ms. Nirja Singh, learned counsel for the respondent no.3.

2. This appeal under Section 173 of Motor Vehicle Act has been filed by the National Insurance Company/opposite party no.2/appellant challenging the judgment and order dated 28.09.2009 passed by Additional District Judge/Special Judge (SC/ST)/M.A.C.T., Ghaziabad by which a sum of Rs.12,70,406/- alongwith 6 % interest has been awarded as compensation on account of death of deceased against the appellant.

3. Facts in brief are that an application u/s 166 & 140 M. V. Act was filed by the claimant/respondent no.1 & 2 seeking compensation to the tune of Rs.42,66,000/- alongwith 18% interest alleging that on 09.03.2005 deceased Vikas Arora S/o claimant was returning to his home from his office by motorcycle and when he reached near Mohan Nagar police outpost, Ghaziabad at 7:00 P.M. a truck bearing no. AS 01 F 4749 driven by its driver rashly and negligently dashed him from behind causing injuries to him as a result he died on the same day in the hospital. F.I.R. in this regard was lodged by the brother of deceased on the same day at police station concerned against unknown driver of the said truck bearing no. AS 01 F 4749 as Case Crime No.189 of 2005, under Section 279, 304A I.P.C.

4. Deceased was aged about 26 years and was earning Rs.9500/- from Kamdhenu Inspat Ltd. and Rs.3000/- from accountancy in Agarwarl Timber and Bans Company. Truck owner as well as insurance company contested the proceedings by filing written statement and denying the allegations made by the claimant/respondent nos.1 & 2.

5. Learned tribunal on the basis of pleadings and after appreciating the evidence brought on record by the parties, both oral and documentary determined that incident took place due to rash and negligent driving of the driver of offending vehicle. It recorded finding on the basis of oral testimony of eye-witness PW-2 Kamal Arora who proved the manner and mode of accident. It was stated by him that he was waiting for his brother at the police outpost Mohan Nagar and accident took place in his presence on 09.03.2005 at about 7:00 P.M. A truck bearing no.AS 01 F 4749 was coming from the opposite direction and driver of the truck was driving it rashly and negligently which dashed the motorcycle of deceased from behind in which deceased got injuries and was taken to the hospital where he died. He informed to the police station and lodged F.I.R. PW-1 Kewal Krishna Arora is father of deceased who had not seen the incident. The testimony of PW-2 was found to be unshakable in cross-examination. F.I.R. was lodged by PW-2 who had seen the incident and this was also taken into account by the learned tribunal.

6. On the question of quantum, learned tribunal found that deceased who was working as accountant in Kamdhenu Ispat Ltd. from where he was earning Rs.9500/- per month as salary and was also working in Agarwal Timber and Bans Company from where he earned Rs.26,500/- per year. In this regard statements of PW-3 Sushil Bhardawaj, Assistant Regional Manager, Sales & PW-4 Puneet Agarwal care taker of his father's business were recorded and relied on. Deceased filed I.T.R. in assessment year 2004-05 in which he showed his income as Rs.1,05,700/- on the basis of which his income was assumed to be Rs.1,05,700/- out of which 1/3 of the annual income was deducted as personal expenses of deceased and after applying multiplier of 18 on the age of the deceased determined the compensation to the tune of Rs.12,68,406/- and further awarded a sum of Rs.2000/- for funeral expenses. In this way, a total sum of Rs.12,70,406 was determined as compensation payable to the claimant/respondent nos.1 & 2.

7. Learned tribunal found that at the time of accident driver of the truck causing accident, had no valid driving license, even though liability was fastened against the insurance company the appellant.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the learned tribunal has wrongly assessed the income of deceased on the basis of income as shown in the I.T.R. filed by the deceased in Income Tax Department and assessed the compensation on higher side.

9. Learned counsel for respondent nos.1 & 2 urged that the argument made by learned counsel for the appellant is not tenable regarding income of deceased and amount of compensation as determined by the learned tribunal but said nothing about the liability for payment of compensation.

10. In this regard it is to note that learned tribunal has not added any amount under the head of future prospects and conventional head as provided in the case of Sarla Verma and Pranay Sethi, so it cannot be said that the amount of award is on higher side. Since learned counsel for claimant/respondent nos.1 & 2 has made no any objection relating to the awarded amount, therefore, this Court is not inclined to disturb the assessment of amount of compensation as determined by the learned triubnal.

11. It is further submitted that driver of the offending vehicle had no valid license at the time of accident, therefore, liability for payment of compensation cannot be fastened with the insurance company and compensation was payable by the owner of the offending vehicle. In this regard, learned tribunal has recorded its finding while deciding issue no.3 & 4. that owner of the vehicle has committed breach of conditions of insurance policy, therefore, insurance company is not liable for making payment of compensation but fastened the liability on the insurance company which is illegal. Learned tribunal has also mentioned in the judgment that if owner of the vehicle makes breach of conditions of insurance policy, insurance company is entitled to recover the amount of compensation from owner of the vehicle even though in the operative portion liability has been fastened on the insurance company without giving it right to recovery.

12. Learned counsel for the respondent no.3 (owner of the vehicle) has contended that in this case driver of the vehicle held driving license at the time of accident which was issued from Transport Authority, Muzaffarpur but during investigation by the insurance company it was found to be fake which was not in his knowledge. The driving license was valid at the time of accident and he employed the driver with due care and caution as having valid driving license, therefore, he cannot be held liable for making payment of compensation.

13. The main question involved in this appeal is whether the M.A.C.T. was not right in holding that insurer was liable even though the driver had a fake license.

14. To understand the correct legal position regarding liability of the insurance company where the driver of the offending vehicle possessed a fake driving license, I have to go through the provisions u/s 149(2)(a) & 149(2)(a)(ii) Motor Vehicle Act, 1988 and various pronouncements made by Hon'ble the Apex Court in this regard.

15. Section 149(2)(a) and Section 149(2)(a)(ii) are as under:-

"(2) No sum shall be payable by an insurer under Section (1) in respect of any judgment or award unless, before the commencement of the proceedings in which the judgment or award is given the insurer had notice through the Court, or in respect of such judgment or award so long as execution is stayed thereon pending an appeal; and an insurer to whom notice of the bringing of any such proceedings is so given shall be entitled to be made a party thereto and to defend the action on any of the following grounds, namely:-

(a) that there has been a breach of a specific condition of the policy, being one of the following conditions, namely:-

(i) a condition excluding the use of the vehicle-

(a) for hire or reward, where the vehicle is on the date of the contract of insurance a vehicle not covered by a permit to ply for hire or reward, or

(b) for organised racing and speed testing, or

(c) for a purpose not allowed by the permit under which the vehicle is used, where the vehicle is a transport vehicle, or

(d) without side-car being attached where the vehicle is a motor cycle; or

(ii) a condition excluding driving by a named person or persons or by any person who is not duly licenced, or by any person who has been disqualified for holding or obtaining a driving licence during the period of disqualification;"

16. Breach of conditions under Section 149(2)(a) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 absolves the insurer of its liability to the insured. Section 149(2)(a)(ii) deals with the conditions regarding driving licence. In case the vehicle at the time of accident is driven by a person who is not duly licensed or by a person who has been disqualified from holding or obtaining a driving licence during the period of disqualification, the insurer is not liable for the compensation. In the instant case, we are called upon to deal with a situation where the driver allegedly possessing only a fake driving licence.

17. In United India Insurance Company Limited vs. Lehru and others (2003) 3 SCC 338, a two-Judge Bench of Hon'ble The Apex Court has taken the view that the insurance company cannot be permitted to avoid its liability only on the ground that the person driving the vehicle at the time of accident was not duly licensed. It was further held that the willful breach of the conditions of the policy should be established. Still further it was held that it was not expected of the employer to verify the genuineness of a driving licence from the issuing authority at the time of employment. The employer needs to only test the capacity of the driver and if after such test, he has been appointed, there cannot be any liability on the employer. The situation would be different when the employer was told that the driving licence of its employee is fake or false and yet the employer not taking appropriate action to get the same duly verified from the issuing authority. We may extract the relevant paragraphs from the judgment:

"18. Now let us consider Section149(2). Reliance has been placed on Section149(2)(a)(ii). As seen in order to avoid liability under this provision it must be shown that there is a "breach". As held in Skandia and Sohan Lal Passi cases the breach must be on part of the insured. We are in full agreement with that. To hold otherwise would lead to absurd results. Just to take an example, suppose a vehicle is stolen. Whilst it is being driven by the thief there is an accident. The thief is caught and it is ascertained that he had no licence. Can the Insurance Company disown liability? The answer has to be an emphatic "No". To hold otherwise would be to negate the very purpose of compulsory insurance. The injured or relatives of the person killed in the accident may find that the decree obtained by them is only a paper decree as the owner is a man of straw. The owner himself would be an innocent sufferer. It is for this reason that the Legislature, in its wisdom, has made insurance, at least third party insurance, compulsory. The aim and purpose being that an insurance company would be available to pay. The business of the company is insurance. In all businesses there is an element of risk. All persons carrying on business must take risks associated with that business. Thus it is equitable that the business which is run for making profits also bears the risk associated with it. At the same time innocent parties must not be made to suffer or loss. These provisions meet these requirements. We are thus in agreement with what is laid down in aforementioned cases viz that in order to avoid liability it is not sufficient to show that the person driving at the time of accident was not duly licensed. The insurance company must establish that the breach was on the part of the insured."

"20. When an owner is hiring a driver he will therefore have to check whether the driver has a driving licence. If the driver produces a driving licence which on the face of it looks genuine, the owner is not expected to find out whether the licence has in fact been issued by a competent authority or not. The owner would then take the test of the driver. If he finds that the driver is competent to drive the vehicle, he will hire the driver. We find it rather strange that insurance companies expect owners to make enquiries with RTOs, which are spread all over the country, whether the driving licence shown to them is valid or not. Thus where the owner has satisfied himself that the driver has a licence and is driving competently there would be no breach of Section149(2)(a)(ii). The Insurance Company would not then be absolved of liability. If it ultimately turns out that the licence was fake, the insurance company would continue to remain liable unless they prove that the owner/insured was aware or had noticed that the licence was fake and still permitted that person to drive. More importantly, even in such a case the insurance company would remain liable to the innocent third party, but it may be able to recover from the insured. This is the law which has been laid down in Skandia, Sohan Lal Passi and Kamla cases. We are in full agreement with the views expressed therein and see no reason to take a different view."

18. The matter was subsequently considered by a three-Judge Bench of Hon'ble the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Limited vs. Swaran Singh and others (2004) 3 SCC 297. The said Bench was of the view that in case the insured did not take reasonable and adequate care and caution to verify the genuineness or otherwise of the licence, the liability would still be open-ended and will have to be determined on the basis of facts of each case. The relevant discussions are available at paragraphs 92, 99, 100 and 101, which are extracted below:

"92. It may be true as has been contended on behalf of the petitioner that a fake or forged licence is as good as no licence but the question herein, as noticed hereinbefore, is whether the insurer must prove that the owner was guilty of the wilful breach of the conditions of the insurance policy or the contract of insurance. In Lehru case, the matter has been considered in some detail. We are in general agreement with the approach of the Bench but we intend to point out that the observations made therein must be understood to have been made in the light of the requirements of the law in terms whereof the insurer is to establish wilful breach on the part of the insured and not for the purpose of its disentitlement from raising any defence or for the owners to be absolved from any liability whatsoever."

"99. So far as the purported conflict in the judgments of Kamla and Lehru is concerned, we may wish to point out that the defence to the effect that the licence held by the person driving the vehicle was a fake one, would be available to the insurance companies, but whether despite the same, the plea of default on the part of the owner has been established or not would be a question which will have to be determined in each case."

"100. This Court, however, in Lehru must not be read to mean that an owner of a vehicle can under no circumstances have any duty to make any enquiry in this respect. The same, however, would again be a question which would arise for consideration in each individual case."

"101. The submission of Mr. Salve that in Lehru case, this Court has, for all intent and purport, taken away the right of insurer to raise a defence that the licence is fake does not appear to be correct. Such defence can certainly be raised but it will be for the insurer to prove that the insured did not take adequate care and caution to verify the genuineness or otherwise of the licence held by the driver."

19. Swaran Singh's case (supra) was subsequently considered by Hon'ble the Apex Court in National Insurance Company Limited vs. Laxmi Narain Dhut 2007 (3) SCC 700. It was explained that:

"Mere absence, fake or invalid driving licence or disqualification of the driver for driving at the relevant time are not in themselves defences available to the insurer against either the insured or the third parties. To avoid its liability towards the insured the insurer has to prove that the insured was guilty of negligence and failed to exercise reasonable care in the matter of fulfilling the condition of the policy regarding use of vehicles by duly licensed driver or one who was not disqualified to drive at the relevant time..."

20. In the case of Pepsu Road Transport Corporation vs. National Insurance Company (2013) 10 SCC 217 Honb'le the Apex Court after considering the law as laid down in aforementioned cases, has held in para 8 which is as under:-

8.In a claim for compensation, it is certainly open to the insurer under Section 149(2)(a)(ii) to take a defence that the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident was not duly licensed. Once such a defence is taken, the onus is on the insurer. But even after it is proved that the licence possessed by the driver was a fake one, whether there is liability on the insurer is the moot question. As far as the owner of the vehicle is concerned, when he hires a driver, he has to check whether the driver has a valid driving licence. Thereafter he has to satisfy himself as to the competence of the driver. If satisfied in that regard also, it can be said that the owner had taken reasonable care in employing a person who is qualified and competent to drive the vehicle. The owner cannot be expected to go beyond that, to the extent of verifying the genuineness of the driving licence with the licensing authority before hiring the services of the driver. However, the situation would be different if at the time of insurance of the vehicle or thereafter the insurance company requires the owner of the vehicle to have the licence duly verified from the licensing authority or if the attention of the owner of the vehicle is otherwise invited to the allegation that the licence issued to the driver employed by him is a fake one and yet the owner does not take appropriate action for verification of the matter regarding the genuineness of the licence from the licensing authority. That is what is explained in Swaran Singh's case (supra). If despite such information with the owner that the licence possessed by his driver is fake, no action is taken by the insured for appropriate verification, then the insured will be at fault and, in such circumstances, the insurance company is not liable for the compensation.

21. In the case of Ram Chandra Singh vs. Rajaram & others, A.I.R. 2018 SC 3789, Hon'ble the Apex Court by considering the judicial precedents in the case of Pepsu Road Transport Corporation (supra) & Premkumari vs. Prahlad Deo (2008) 3 SCC 193 ruled in para 11 which is given as under:-

11. Suffice it to observe that it is well established that if the owner was aware of the fact that the licence was fake and still permitted the driver to drive the vehicle, then the insurer would stand absolved. However, the mere fact that the driving licence is fake, per se, would not absolve the insurer. Indubitably, the High Court noted that the counsel for the appellant did not dispute that the driving licence was found to be fake, but that concession by itself was not sufficient to absolve the insurer.

22. Again in a recent case of Nirmala Kothari vs. United India Insurance Company Ltd. 2020 (4) SCC 49 Hon'ble the Apex Court considered the aforementioned position of law and explained about the extent of care/diligence expected of the employer/insured while employing a driver. The relevant para no.9, 10 & 11 are as under:-

9. While the insurer can certainly take the defense that the license of the driver of the car at the time of incident was invalid/fake however the onus of the proving that the insured did not take adequate care and caution to verify the genuineness of the license or was guilty of willful breach of the conditions of the insurance policy or the contract of insurance lies on the insurer.

10.The view taken by the National Commission that the law as settled in the Pepsu case (Supra) is not applicable in the present matter as it related to third-party claim is erroneous. It has been categorically held in the case of National Insurance Co. Ltd vs. Swaran Singh & Ors.

"110. (iii).... Mere absence, fake or invalid driving licence or disqualification of the driver for driving at the relevant time, are not in themselves defences available to the insurer against either the insured or the third parties. To avoid its liability towards the insured, the insurer has to prove that the insured was guilty of negligence and failed to exercise reasonable care in the matter of fulfilling the condition of the policy regarding use of vehicles by a duly licenced driver or one who was not disqualified to drive at the relevant time."

11. While hiring a driver the employer is expected to verify if the driver has a driving license. If the driver produces a licence which on the face of it looks genuine, the employer is not expected to further investigate into the authenticity of the licence unless there is cause to believe otherwise. If the employer finds the driver to be competent to drive the vehicle and has satisfied himself that the driver has a driving licence there would be no breach of Section 149(2)(ii) and the Insurance Company would be liable under the policy. It would be unreasonable to place such a high onus on the insured to make enquiries with RTOs all over the country to ascertain the veracity of the driving licence. However, if the Insurance Company is able to prove that the owner/insured was aware or had notice that the licence was fake or invalid and still permitted the person to drive, the insurance company would no longer continue to be liable.

23. In the present case opposite party no.1/respondent no.3 owner of the offending vehicle had stated in his written statement that on the date of accident Ram Naresh was driver on his vehicle. He had valid dirving licence. It was issued from the office of District Transport Officer, Muzaffarpur. On investigation by the Insurance company/appellant, this driving licence was found to be fake as per report of Investigator Mr. Arvind Kumar Misra but he had not entered into the witness box to prove the contents of his report which was based on the observation of dealing assistant. Even the dealing assistant of the office of District Transport Officer, Muzaffarpur has also not been examined to prove that the seal and signature of District Transport Officer in the xerox copy of driving licence were not found to be correct.

24. Further it was also not proved by the appellant that the owner/respondent no.3 had not taken adequate care and caution to verify the genuineness of the driving licence of the driver at the time of his employment and that the owner was aware or had notice that the licence was fake or invalid and still permitted him to drive the offending vehicle. In such circumstances, it cannot be said that the insured/owner is at fault in having employed a person whose licence has been found to be fake by the insurance company before the learned tribunal. Therefore, there exists no any cause to disturb the findings recorded by learned tribunal in this regard.

25. In view of the above, this appeal is dismissed. The appellant/Insurance Company is liable to indemnify the respondents. Claimants be given the same without keeping in the fixed deposit as more than 16 years have elapsed.

26. There is no order as to costs.

Government Appeal No. 1450 of 1989

The State of U.P. ...Appellant
Versus
Dharmu @ Dharam Singh ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
A.G.A.

Counsel for the Respondent:
Sri Vinay Saran, Sri Virendra Saran, Sri Ajay Kumar Srivastava

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 378 - Indian Penal Code,1860-Sections 376-challenge to-acquittal-victim aged about 9 years did not budge from the prosecution version, she identified the accused, she stated time and place of accident which has been duly testified and proved by the informant (PW-1)-blood stained underwear was recovered-Moreso, she declined the specific query whether she has been tutored-testimony of the victim duly corroborated by the medical expert opinion, merely for the reason that the supplementary medical examination report that the offence was committed 24-30 hrs and the same was not noted by the medical expert while examining the prosecutrix would not reject the testimony of the victim-The conviction of the accused can rest on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix provided she is a sterling witness; her testimony is credible, truthful and trustworthy-Further the shortcoming of the prosecution, if any, would not benefit the defence-The sole testimony of the victim was sufficient to have convicted the accused.(Para 1 to 25)

B. The sterling witness should be of a very high quality. to test the quality of such witness, what would be more relevant would be the consistency of the statement right from the starting point till the end, it should be natural. The witness should be in a position to withstand the cross-examination of any length and howsoever strenuous it may be and under no circumstances should give room for any doubt as to the factum of the occurrence, the persons involved, as well as the sequence of it.(Para 18)

The appeal is allowed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vikas Goswami, learned Additional Government Advocate and Sri Ajay Kumar Srivastava learned counsel appearing for the accused respondent.

2. The instant appeal is directed against the judgment and order dated 25 February 1989 passed by the Sessions Judge, Farrukhabad in Sessions Trial No. 784 of 1988 (State vs. Dharmu alias Dharam Singh) arising from Case Crime No. 183 of 1988, under Section 376 IPC, Police Station Kannauj, District Farrukhabad, whereby, accused-respondent was acquitted.

3. As per prosecution case FIR came to be lodged on 21.05.1988 at 18:40 hours, alleging that daughter of the complainant, aged about 10 years, had gone out at 10:00 a.m. to graze goats, accused reached at the field where accused caught hold of his daughter and dropped her on the ground holding her mouth and committed offence of rape. The persons passing nearby exhorted the accused, he thereafter ran away. It is further alleged that the victim was bleeding from her private part; on return, to the house after selling bangles, complainant was informed of the incident.

4. The victim was medically examined on 22.05.1988 at 3:00 p.m. Supplementary medical report was prepared after receiving the x-ray report; age of the victim was assessed 9 years; in the opinion of the medical expert, rape was committed 24 to 30 hours earlier.

5. The charge-sheet came to be filed against the accused respondent under Section 376 IPC. The accused respondent was summoned to stand trial. In defence, he denied the allegations and demanded trial. No defence witness was produced. The Trial Court acquitted the accused as the prosecution failed to prove the charge beyond reasonable doubt. Trial Court reached a finding that the victim was tutored and that the time of the alleged incident as per the medical expert opinion does not corroborate with the alleged time of the incident.

6. Prosecution to prove the charge examined in all 5 witnesses of fact; complainant, Ram Sewak (PW-1), father of the victim, victim (PW-2), Dr. P. Singh (PW-3), S.I. A.K. Singh (PW-4), Head Moharrir Ganga Prasad (PW-5).

7. The following documents were exhibited:

1.	F.I.R.	21.05.1988	Ex. Ka. 8
2.	Written Report	21.05.1988	Ex. Ka. 1
3.	Recovery Memo and supurdginama of ''Under-Wear'	21.05.1989	Ex. Ka.7
4.	Injury Report	22.05.1988	Ex. Ka. 2
5.	Supplementary Report	24.05.1988	Ex. Ka. 3
6.	Site Plan with Index	22.05.1988	Ex. Ka. 6

8. PW-1, father of the victim, in Examination-in-Chief stated that when he returned home at 3:00 p.m. on the day of incident he saw that the physical condition of his daughter was in bad state; private part of the prosecutrix was bleeding, blood was visible on her underwear. He further stated that he was informed by the victim that accused had committed the offence of rape. He further stated that he got the report transcribed by Jeetan Lal on his dictation. He further stated that at 4:00 p.m., he alongwith his daughter and other villagers had gone to the police station. In cross-examination, he reiterated the FIR version and stated that on returning to his house at 3:00 p.m., 3-4 persons of the village had assembled and were talking with his daughter, she informed him of the incident; he denied the suggestion that he had reported the incident after due consultation.

9. PW-2, victim stated that she is aged about 9-10 years, the Trial Court assessed her intelligence by putting several question to ascertain as to whether victim understood the questions. On specific query of the court, she stated that she is not educated, she was aware of her father's earning by selling bangles, 4 bangles are sold for one rupee; 8 bangles in 2 rupee. On specific query, she recognised the accused respondent present in the court and narrated the incident stating that accused had caught hold of her and dropped her on the ground, removed her underwear and committed the offence. She incurred injuries; blood had come out and stained her underwear, thereafter, accused escaped from the spot. On specific query, she stated that she narrated the incident to her father, thereafter, report was lodged. She further stated that she accompanied her father to the police station. On query she stated that the incident had occurred at the agricultural field of Jhabba. On specific query by the defence as to whether she had been tutored, she denied and answered in negative.

10. Dr. P. Singh, PW-3, stated that she examined the victim on 22.05.1988; she did not find injury on the body of victim on external examination; on internal examination injury was found on the private part and it was bleeding; to ascertain the age of the victim she advised x-ray; supplement report was prepared on 24.05.1988 after receiving the x-ray report. In her opinion, the victim was aged about 9 years; incident of rape occurred 24 to 30 hours; she prepared the supplementary report; x-ray report dated 24.05.1988 was prepared by Dr. S.K. Rathour.

11. On specific query by the Trial court as to why she did not give her opinion of rape on examining the victim on 22.05.1988; the witness replied that she was awaiting the x-ray report, therefore, she did not give any opinion. She further stated that normally the information of rape is given after receiving the x-ray report; in this case there is no report of pathology otherwise opinion is generally given after receiving either x-ray report or pathology report. She further stated that the x-ray of the victim was done for the purposes of determining the age and not to ascertain whether offence of rape was committed. On drawing the attention of the witness (PW-3) with regard to her opinion that "I came to conclusion that her age is about Nine Years. Rape has been done. Duration of injury about twenty four to thirty Hrs". On query she stated that victim was not produced on 24.05.1988; opinion of the approximate time of the crime of offence is based on medical examination report dated 22.05.1988 when the victim was produced for medical examination and the opinion is based on the injury report dated 22.05.1988. On suggestion as to whether the victim could have incurred injury on her private part by falling from a cot or any other manner, the witness declined and answered in negative. The witness categorically stated that injury could not have been caused by falling from a cot.

12. S.I. A.K. Singh, (PW-4), deposed that the investigation was entrusted to him on 22.06.1988. He recorded the statement of the victim and the complainant on 16.07.1988. On 12.08.1988 he recorded the statement of the accused in jail. The site plan was prepared on 22.05.1988; recovery memo of underwear of the victim was prepared by the constable Ganga Prasad. Charge-sheet was filed on 12.08.1988.

13. Head Moharrir Ganga Prasad (PW-5), deposed that he had taken the underwear of the victim on 21.05.1988 at police station.

14. The Trial Court rejected the testimony of the victim on being tutored, hence, not trustworthy. The opinion of the medical expert (PW-3) was also rejected as in the opinion of the court in the supplementary examination report dated 24.05.1988, it was opined that rape has been committed on the prosecutrix and duration of injury was 24 to 30 hours. The probable time recorded in the supplementary affidavit does not corroborate the time of the alleged incident of rape. It is further noted that PW-3, Dr. P. Singh was unable to submit plausible explanation as to why she did not record her opinion on the point of rape on 22.05.1988 itself when she examined the victim as also the duration of injury. According to the Trial Court, negligence on the part of the medical expert was considered fatal to the case of the prosecution. Further, the court directed District Magistrate and Chief Medical Officer to inquire into the circumstances under which PW-3 failed to give proper opinion on the point of rape and duration of injury on 22.05.1988. The relevant portion of the judgment is extracted:

"A perusal of the aforesaid statement of the prosecutrix reveals that the reply which the prosecutrix gave to the questions put to her by the Public Prosecutor was probably the result of tutoring. ..... In the instant case before this court, I find that even the Investigating Officer S.I. A.K. Singh had examined the prosecutrix after a lapse of a period of one month and 22 days, the occurrence having taken place on 21.05.1988 (wrongly mentioned as 21.06.1988) and the statement of the prosecutrix having being recorded on 16.07.1988. The circumstances that even the Investigating agency never bothered to record the statement of the prosecutrix promptly fully go to show that the answers to the questions which the prosecutrix has given in reply to the questions put to her by the Public Prosecutor is the out come of her tutoring.

"Now coming to the evidence of Dr. (Smt.) P. Singh (P.W. 3), Medical Officer, Women Hospital, Fatehgarh, I find that on 25.05.1988, Dr. (Smt.) P. Singh never gave any opinion on the point of rape. She mentioned in her supplementary medical examination report dated 24.05.1988 that rape has been committed upon the prosecutrix and the duration of injury was 25 to 30 hours. Dr. (Smt.) P. Singh was unable to submit any plausible explanation as to why she did not state her opinion on the point of rape right on 22.05.1988 as also the duration of injury. When Dr. (Smt.) P. Singh had medically examined the prosecutrix on 22.05.1988 and when the prosecutrix was referred to her for examination as a case of rape by the Police, it was her bounden duty to have given her opinion on the point of rape right on 22.05.1988. She ought to have mentioned the duration of injury right on 22.05.1988. The negligence on the part of Dr. (Smt.) P. Singh in this behalf is considered fatal to the case of prosecution. I leave it to the discretion of the District Magistrate and the Chief Medical Officer to enquire into the circumstances under which Dr. (Smt.) P. Singh failed to give her proper opinion on the point of rape and duration of injury on 22.05.1988 and under what circumstances she wrote after two days in her injury report that rape had been committed and that the duration of the injury was about 25 to 30 hours".

15. It is settled legal position that the evidence of rape victim stands at par with the evidence of an injured witness. Injury of the rape victim being physical, as well as, psychological in the form of traumatised assault and ravishment of her chastity and womanhood. It is also settled that if the evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence and appears to be trustworthy and natural, no further corroboration by an independent eye-witness is required. Corroboration from medical evidence varies from case to case as it depends upon the circumstances of each case.

16. We have gone through the cross-examination of the victim. It runs into 9 typed pages; the Trial Court, the defence counsel and the prosecution, severely grilled the victim, aged about 9-10 years. However, we find that the victim did not budge from the prosecution version; she identified the accused; she categorically stated that the accused respondent commited the offence; she further stated the time of incident; site of the incident; and on specific query as to whether she has deposed on being tutored, she declined. The court after examining the witnesses of fact and considering the circumstances was of the opinion that the victim is intelligent enough and is able to understand the questions. It is to be noted that there is no major contradiction in her statement with regard to the incident; and her testimony is truthful, credible and trustworthy having regard to the fact that victim is illiterate/villagers, coming from marginalised section of society and is not worldly-wise; statement of the victim supports the prosecution case which has been duly testified and proved by the informant (PW-1). The site plan prepared on 22.05.1988, as per the persecution version i.e. agricultural field of Chhabi Nath.

17. The fact that witness being a tutored one should be reflected from the over all style of deposition and all the attending circumstances. A tutored witness normally sticks to his/her earlier statement very faithfully. This is also not the case in the present matter because the testimony of the witness before the court is silent about a few facts.

18. Who can be said to be a "sterling witness', has been dealt with and considered in Rai Sandeep v. State (NCT of Delhi)1. In para 22, it is observed and held as under:

"In our considered opinion, the "sterling witness' should be of a very high quality and caliber whose version should, therefore, be unassailable. The Court considering the version of such witness should be in a position to accept it for its face value without any hesitation. To test the quality of such a witness, the status of the witness would be immaterial and what would be relevant is the truthfulness of the statement made by such a witness. What would be more relevant would be the consistency of the statement right from the starting point till the end, namely, at the time when the witness makes the initial statement and ultimately before the Court. It should be natural and consistent with the case of the prosecution qua the accused. There should not be any prevarication in the version of such a witness. The witness should be in a position to withstand the cross- examination of any length and howsoever strenuous it may be and under no circumstance should give room for any doubt as to the factum of the occurrence, the persons involved, as well as, the sequence of it. Such a version should have co-relation with each and everyone of other supporting material such as the recoveries made, the weapons used, the manner of offence committed, the scientific evidence and the expert opinion. The said version should consistently match with the version of every other witness. It can even be stated that it should be akin to the test applied in the case of circumstantial evidence where there should not be any missing link in the chain of circumstances to hold the accused guilty of the offence alleged against him. Only if the version of such a witness qualifies the above test as well as all other similar such tests to be applied, it can be held that such a witness can be called as a "sterling witness' whose version can be accepted by the Court without any corroboration and based on which the guilty can be punished. To be more precise, the version of the said witness on the core spectrum of the crime should remain intact while all other attendant materials, namely, oral, documentary and material objects should match the said version in material particulars in order to enable the Court trying the offence to rely on the core version to sieve the other supporting materials for holding the offender guilty of the charge alleged."

19. In the case of Sham Singh v. State of Haryana2, it is observed that testimony of the victim is vital and unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty to act on the testimony of the victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. The courts should not get swayed by minor or insignificant contradictions/ discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix. In paragraphs 6 & 7, it is observed and held as under:

"6. We are conscious that the courts shoulder a great responsibility while trying an accused on charges of rape. They must deal with such cases with utmost sensitivity. The courts should examine the broader probabilities of a case and not get swayed by minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix, which are not of a fatal nature, to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. If the evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence, it must be relied upon without seeking corroboration of her statement in material particulars. If for some reason the court finds it difficult to place implicit reliance on her testimony, it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony, short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice. The testimony of the prosecutrix must be appreciated in the background of the entire case and the court must be alive to its responsibility and be sensitive while dealing with cases involving sexual molestations or sexual assaults. [See: State of Punjab v. Gurmit Singh3].

7. It is also by now well settled that the courts must, while evaluating evidence, remain alive to the fact that in a case of rape, no self-respecting woman would come forward in a court just to make a humiliating statement against her honour such as is involved in the commission of rape on her. In cases involving sexual molestation, supposed considerations which have no material effect on the veracity of the prosecution case or even discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not, unless the discrepancies are such which are of fatal nature, be allowed to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. The inherent bashfulness of the females and the tendency to conceal outrage of sexual aggression are factors which the courts should not overlook. The testimony of the victim in such cases is vital and unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. Seeking corroboration of her statement before relying upon the same, as a rule, in such cases amounts to adding insult to injury. (See: Ranjit Hazarika v. State of Assam4).

20. Further, the testimony of the victim is duly corroborated by the medical expert opinion, internal medical examination notes the injury on the private part including blood seen therein; blood stained underwear of the victim was recovered on the date of incident at the police station (per PW-5). The factum of injury and the blood present on the private part is duly corroborated by statement of the informant, victim and medical expert opinion. The contents of the report has not been doubted by the defence. The medical opinion was doubted merely for the reason that in the medical examination report the expert has not mentioned the probable time of rape. The Trial Court committed serious error in rejecting the testimony and the report of the medical expert (PW-3), merely for the reason that the supplementary medical examination report notes that the offence was committed 24-30 hours and the same was not noted by the medical expert while examining the prosecutrix on 22.05.1988. The short coming of the prosecution, if any, would not benefit the defence, nor can the defence take any advantage. The prosecution case has to stand on its own legs, and the incriminating circumstances has to be proved beyond reasonable doubt.

21. The conviction of the accused respondent can rest on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix provided she is a sterling witness; her testimony is credible, truthful and trustworthy. Further, the accused cannot take any advantage that there was some short coming in the investigation i.e. the statement of the victim not recorded promptly by the Investigating Officer or the medical expert not recording her opinion that rape was committed on the report when the victim was examined.

22. We have no hesitation, in the given facts, and having regard to the testimony of victim (PW-2) and medical expert (PW-3), the charge against the accused respondent stands proved beyond reasonable doubt. The sole testimony of the victim was sufficient to have convicted the accused respondent. In our opinion, the finding reached by the Trial Court is per-se perverse and against the testimony of the victim, duly supported by medical evidence.

23. The courts are expected to try and decide cases of sexual crime against women with utmost sensitivity. Such cases need to be dealt with sternly and severely. A socially sensitized Judge is a better armour in cases of crime against women than long clauses of penal provisions, containing complex exceptions and complicated provisos.

24. Once a person is convicted for an offence of rape, he should be treated with a heavy hand. An undeserved indulgence or liberal attitude in not awarding adequate sentence in such cases would amount to allowing or even to encouraging 'potential criminals'. The society can no longer endure under such serious threats. Courts must hear the loud cry for justice by society in cases of heinous crime of rape and impose adequate sentence. Public abhorrence of the crime needs reflection through imposition of appropriate sentence by the Court. [Refer: State of M.P. v. Babulal5 and Dinesh Vs. State of Rajshtan]6

25. In view thereof, government appeal is allowed. The order dated 25 February 1989, passed by the Sessions Judge, Farrukhabad in Sessions Trial No. 784 of 1988 (State vs. Dharmu alias Dharam Singh) arising from Case Crime No. 183 of 1988, under Section 376 IPC, Police Station Kannauj, District Farrukhabad, is set aside.

26. Accused-respondent Dharmu alias Dharam Singh is, hereby, held guilty. He is convicted under Section 376 IPC and sentenced to 10 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.25,000/-, on default of deposition of fine the accused respondent shall serve one year simple imprisonment. Rs.20,000/- of the fine so realized, shall be given to the victim towards compensation. The accused, Dharmu alias Dharam Singh, is on bail. His bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. He should be taken into custody forthwith to serve out the sentence awarded to him. The office is directed to communicate this order to the CJM concerned within a week for compliance.

27. The trial court record, along with the copy of this order, be returned forthwith.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Saroj Yadav, J.)

1. This Criminal Appeal has been filed by the appellant- State of U.P. against the judgment and order dated 02.012.2005 passed by Additional Sessions Judge Court No.1, District Kheri in Sessions Trial No.797 of 2003 under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 201 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (in short I.P.C.) and Section ¾ of Dowry Prohibition Act (in short D.P. Act), whereby the accused/respondents were acquitted.

2. The facts necessary for disposal of this appeal as culled out are as under:-

i. A First Information Report (in short F.I.R.) was registered at Case Crime No.443 of 2002 under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 201 of I.P.C. and Section ¾ of Dowry Prohibition Act on the basis of written report submitted by the complainant Mustakim. it was described in the written report that the complainant married his daughter Parvin aged about 24 years in June 1996 to Lallan son of Asgar. After the marriage Lallan and other family members i.e. Asgar (mother-in-law) Sahnoor (Jeth), Khanney (jeth), Laddan (dewar), wife of Sahnoor (jethani) and wife of Khanney (jethani) started complaining about the less dowry given in the marriage and used to demand Passion Motorcycle. The complainant gave dowry in the marriage according to his status and capacity, but due to scarcity of money he could not give motorcycle. For this reason, Lallan and other family members used to beat his daughter. Just eight days ahead of the incident Lallan came to take his daughter and when he left the house of the complainant he asked him to arrange the motorcycle within eight days otherwise that will not be good. On 24.12.2002 at about 2:00 P.M. Vasir informed to the complainant that his daughter Parvin had died in the night. On this information he reached the matrimonial home of his daughter and found the dead body lying in the home and all accused persons fled away. Only the mother-in-law of the deceased was present there. The villagers and Gram Pradhan who were present there tried to allure him by offering Rs.20 thousand and not to report to the police, when complainant refused the offer, they did not even gave the dead body to him. Thereafter the complainant went to the police station Oel district Kheri, but his report was not lodged and he was asked to present a written report that his daughter was killed by the accused persons in the night of 23/24.12.2002.

After investigation the chargesheet was submitted against all the accused persons in the Court. The concerned Magistrate after taking cognizance committed the case to Sessions Court for trial. Sessions Judge framed the charges against all the accused persons on 07.07.2004. All the accused persons denied the crime and claimed to be tried.

In order to prove its case the prosecution examined the following witnesses:-

(i) P.W.1 Mustakim, complainant.

(ii) P.W.2 Mubarak Ali, brother of the deceased

(iii) P.W. 3 Mr. Vijay Vardhan Tomar, Naib Tehsildar who prepared the inquest report and send the dead body for post-mortem alongwith necessary police papers

(iv) P.W.4 Dr. A.K. Malik, who conducted the post-mortem on the cadaver of the deceased.

Apart from the above oral evidence, documentary evidence Exhibit-Ka 1 to Exhibit Ka-9 were also proved. These exihibits are as under:-

(i) Exhibit Ka-1, written report,.

(ii) Exhibit Ka-2 inquest report.

(iii) Exhibit Ka-3 Police Form 13.

(iv) Exhibit Ka-4 Police Form 33.

(v) Exhibit Ka-5 Photo Nash.

(vi) Exhibit Ka-6 report of R.I.

(vii) Exhibit Ka-7 report to C.M.O. for conducting postmortem.

(viii) Exhibit- Ka-8 specimen seal.

(ix) Exhibit Ka-9 post-mortem report.

After close of evidence by prosecution the statement of accused persons were recorded under Section 313 of Code of Criminal Procedure (in short Cr.P.C.), wherein they denied the crime and stated that marriage of the deceased with Lallan was solemnized in the year 1995 and the deceased was ill, so she committed suicide by hanging. Accused Lallan examined herself as D.W.1 after seeking permission of the trial Court and proved two documents, Exhibit Kha-1 marriage card of the deceased with accused Lallan and Exhibit Kha-2 prescription of a doctor who treated the deceased.

The trial court after hearing the arguments of both the sides on the basis of evidence available on record reached on the conclusions that the marriage of the deceased with accused/appellant Lallan was solemnized in the year 1995 and incident did not take place within seven years of marriage. The trial court also concluded that deceased was mentally ill as has been proved by Lallan examined as D.W.1 and evident from Exhibit Kha-2 the prescription of treatment by Dr. Dinesh Dua of the deceased. P.W. 1. Mustakim, the father of the deceased has also stated in his cross examination that Pravin was ill and he incurred all expenditure of treatment till the deceased was alive and treatment was going on in Laherpur. Exhibit Kha-2 shows that the deceased was suffering from 'fits of unconsciousness', so she committed suicide. As far as demand of Passion Motorcycle is concerned learned trial Court has observed that at the relevant time Passion Motor Cycle was not launched in the market, hence the allegation of demand of Passion Motorcycle is also false, hence the learned trial Court acquitted all the appellants/accused persons of the charges levelled against them. Being aggrieved by this acquittal this appeal has been filed by the State Government.

3. Heard Mr. C.S. Pandey, learned Additional Government Advocate/ (A.G.A.) for the State-appellant.

4. Learned A.G.A. submitted that the impugned judgment is against facts and evidence available on record. Learned trial Court has not appreciated the evidence in right perspective and has committed the grave error by acquitting the appellant/accused persons. The factum of demand of dowry has been proved by the witnesses of facts, the complainant and the brother of the deceased, but the trial court has wrongly disbelieved them and also wrongly disbelieved the evidence that marriage of the deceased was solemnized with the accused/appellant Lallan in the year 1997, hence the impugned judgment should be set-aside.

5. Considered the submissions made by learned A.G.A. and perused the original record.

6. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Achhar Singh Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh : (2021) 5 SCC 543, has laid down as under (para 16) :-

"16. It is thus a well crystalized principle that if two views are possible, the High Court ought not to interfere with the trial Court's judgment. However, such a precautionary principle cannot be overstretched to portray that the "contours of appeal" against acquittal under Section 378 CrPC are limited to seeing whether or not the trial Court's view was impossible. It is equally well settled that there is no bar on the High Court's power to re-appreciate evidence in an appeal against acquittal. This Court has held in a catena of decisions (including Chandrappa v. State of Karnataka, State of Andhra Pradesh v. M. Madhusudhan Rao, And Raveen Kumar v. State of Himachal Pradesh) that the Cr.P.C does not differentiate in the power, scope, jurisdiction or limitation between appeals against judgments of conviction or acquittal and that the appellate Court is free to consider on both fact and law, despite the self-restraint that has been ingrained into practice while dealing with orders of acquittal where there is a double presumption of innocence of the accused".

7. Before moving forward, it appears appropriate to go through Section 304-B I.P.C. and Section 113-B of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872.

Section 304-B IPC reads as under:-

"304B. Dowry death.--(1) Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death', and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death.*

Explanation.--For the purpose of this sub-section, "dowry' shall have the same meaning as in Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 (28 of 1961).

(2) Whoever commits dowry death shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life."

Section 113-B of the Evidence Act, 1872 reads as under:-

"113-B. Presumption as to dowry death.--When the question is whether a person has committed the dowry death of a woman and it is shown that soon before her death such woman has been subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, the Court shall presume that such person had caused the dowry death. Explanation.--For the purposes of* this section, "dowry death' shall have the same meaning as in Section 304B of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860)."

Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Maya Devi and Another Versus State of Haryana (2015) 17 Supreme Court Cases 405 has laid down as under:-

In order to convict an accused for the offence punishable under Section 304B IPC, the following essentials must be satisfied:

(i) the death of a woman must have been caused by burns or bodily injury or otherwise than under normal circumstances;

(ii) such death must have occurred within seven years of her marriage;

(iii) soon before her death, the woman must have been subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relatives of her husband;

(iv) such cruelty or harassment must be for, or in connection with, demand for dowry.

When the above ingredients are established by reliable and acceptable evidence, such death shall be called dowry death and such husband or his relatives shall be deemed to have caused her death. If the above mentioned ingredients are attracted in view of the special provision, the court shall presume and it shall record such fact as proved unless and until it is disproved by the accused. However, it is open to the accused to adduce such evidence for disproving such conclusive presumption as the burden is unmistakably on him to do so and he can discharge such burden by getting an answer through cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses or by adducing evidence on the defence side."

8. Thus to hold guilty the person accused of offence under Section 304-B it must be proved that the death of woman was caused by any burns or bodily injury or she died an unnatural death within seven years of her marriage. It should also be proved that soon before her death the deceased was subjected to cruelty or harassment in connection with any demand of dowry. In the present matter the deceased died an unnatural death in her matrimonial home. Though it has been alleged in the FIR as well as in the statement of the complainant that the marriage of the deceased with the accused/appellant Lallan was solemnized in June 1996, but that fact could not be proved by the prosecution because P.W.1 and P.W.2 in this regard have given contradictory statements. P.W.1 has stated that marriage was solemnized in June 1996, while the P.W.2 brother of the deceased has stated that marriage of the deceased was solemnized in June 1997. The accused/appellant Lallan as D.W.1 has stated that his marriage with the deceased was solemnized in June 1995. To prove this fact he (Lallan) produced marriage card Exhibit Kha-1 and the trial Court has rightly relied on that evidence and came to the conclusion that marriage of the deceased with accused/appellant Lallan was solemnized in June 1995. The incident took place on 24.12.2002, thus the incident did not occur within seven years of the marriage of the deceased, but after seven years. Further the accused/appellant Lallan has proved that the deceased was mentally ill by producing the Exhibit Kha-2 the prescription of the doctor Dinesh Dua, wherein it has been recorded by the doctor that the deceased was suffering from 'fits of unconsciousness'. The factum of illness of the deceased has also been corroborated by P.W.1 the father of the deceased, as in his cross-examination he has stated that her daughter was being treated in Laherpur and he incurred all the expenses of treatment. Further the learned trial Court has rightly reached to the conclusion that at the time of alleged demand Honda Passion Motorcycle was not launched in the market as the letter of the concerned Agency has been filed by the appellant on the record in the Court, wherein it has been mentioned that Honda Passion Motorcycle was launched in the market in the year 2001: Hence the learned trial Court has rightly came to the conclusion that the ingredients required under Section 304 B have not been established as to raise the presumption under Section 113-B of Indian Evidence Act against the appellants / accused. In such a situation the learned trial Court rightly acquitted the appellant/accused persons. There appears no error in the findings of the learned trial Court further more the view taken by the learned trial Court is a possible view. Thus there appears no convincing reason to interfere with the acquittal recorded by the learned trial Court. Hence this appeal deserves dismissal and is dismissed accordingly.

In re: Civil Misc. Delay Condonation Application No. Nil of 2022

1. This is an application filed under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 1963") seeking condonation of delay in filing the review application, which is reported to have been filed with a delay of 1900 days i.e. about six years.

2. The review-applicants are co-share holders and they have preferred the instant review application under Section 114 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 read with Chapter V Rule 12 of the Allahabad High Court Rules. The judgment under review was passed on 06.10.2016 in First Appeal Defective No. 817 of 2000 (Malhan v. State of U.P. and another). It is stated that they were not in a position to file the review as they were not aware of the legal provisions. The appeal came to be partly allowed way back in the year 2016 and the appellants-applicants were awarded compensation of Rs.297/- per square yard. Just because in Village Kakrala, the Apex Court had determined compensation of Rs.449/- per square yard, the applicants preferred this review application. The applicants have also stated that they could not file the review application within time due to the blockage of public transportation on account of COVID-19 guidelines.

3. The appeals were disposed of by the Apex Court in the year 2016. The pandemic struck India only in 2020-2021. It cannot be said as stated in Paragraph No. 8 of the affidavit filed in support of the delay condonation application that due to the guidelines of the Central Government and the State Government the public transportation was blocked, therefore, the applicants could not come to Allahabad to file the review. The decision in Narendra and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, (2017) 9 SCC 426, cannot be of any avail to the appellants. The delay in filing the review application is absolutely deliberate. There is no reason why the appellants, who are sixteen in number, waited for six long years.

4. We have heard Sri Madan Mohan Chaurasiya, learned counsel for the review applicants, and requested him to explain the delay in filing the review application, to which he gave a strange reply that he advised his clients that they may take a chance by filing this review application after a period of six years. We are pained to note that an advocate should not give such an advise when there is no error apparent on the face of record nor was there any other reason that why the matter be re-agitated after it was finally decided.

5. In the present case, not only the appeal was heard and decided on merits but the legal heirs of the deceased appellants were also gracefully permitted by the Court to be substituted. The facts of the case will not permit us to condone the delay in filing the review application for the reasons which are given in the undermentioned paragraph.

6. Recently, the Apex Court has held that after transfer or retirement of a Judge, it is not good to file a review application without any rhyme or reason. In the instant case, the delay in filing the substitution application was condoned on 06.10.2016, and by the same order the appeal was also decided as the identical issue arising out of same reference order was involved in First Appeal No. 31 of 2011, which came to be decided with the same directions way back in the year 2014. We do not find any reason to condone the delay of six years, which is not explained as to why this review application is filed after such an inordinate delay. It is not even pointed out that other litigants had moved the Supreme Court or there is any other order, which can be followed by us, or which may be a subsequent order of the Apex Court that may guide us.

7. The expression "sufficient cause" in Section 5 of Act, 1963 has been held to receive a liberal construction so as to advance substantial justice and generally a delay in preferring appeal may be condoned in interest of justice where no gross negligence or deliberate inaction or lack of bona fide is imputable to parties, seeking condonation of delay. In Collector, Land Acquisition Vs. Katiji, 1987(2) SCC 107, the Court said, that, when substantial justice and technical considerations are taken against each other, cause of substantial justice deserves to be preferred, for, the other side cannot claim to have vested right in injustice being done because of a non deliberate delay. The Court further said that judiciary is respected not on account of its power to legalise injustice on technical grounds but because it is capable of removing injustice and is expected to do so.

8. In P.K. Ramachandran Vs. State of Kerala, AIR 1998 SC 2276 the Court said:

"Law of limitation may harshly affect a particular party but it has to be applied with all its rigour when the statute so prescribe and the Courts have no power to extend the period of limitation on equitable grounds."

9. The Rules of limitation are not meant to destroy rights of parties. They virtually take away the remedy. They are meant with the objective that parties should not resort to dilatory tactics and sleep over their rights. They must seek remedy promptly. The object of providing a legal remedy is to repair the damage caused by reason of legal injury. The statute relating to limitation determines a life span for such legal remedy for redress of the legal injury, one has suffered. Time is precious and the wasted time would never revisit. During efflux of time, newer causes would come up, necessitating newer persons to seek legal remedy by approaching the courts. So a life span must be fixed for each remedy. Unending period for launching the remedy may lead to unending uncertainty and consequential anarchy. The statute providing limitation is founded on public policy. It is enshrined in the maxim Interest reipublicae up sit finis litium (it is for the general welfare that a period be put to litigation). It is for this reason that when an action becomes barred by time, the Court should be slow to ignore delay for the reason that once limitation expires, other party matures his rights on the subject with attainment of finality. Though it cannot be doubted that refusal to condone delay would result in foreclosing the suiter from putting forth his cause but simultaneously the party on the other hand is also entitled to sit and feel carefree after a particular length of time, getting relieved from persistent and continued litigation.

10. There is no presumption that delay in approaching the court is always deliberate. No person gains from deliberate delaying a matter by not resorting to take appropriate legal remedy within time but then the words "sufficient cause" show that delay, if any, occurred, should not be deliberate, negligent and due to casual approach of concerned litigant, but, it should be bona fide, and, for the reasons beyond his control, and, in any case should not lack bona fide. If the explanation does not smack of lack of bona fide, the Court should show due consideration to the suiter, but, when there is apparent casual approach on the part of suiter, the approach of Court is also bound to change. Lapse on the part of litigant in approaching Court within time is understandable but a total inaction for long period of delay without any explanation whatsoever and that too in absence of showing any sincere attempt on the part of suiter, would add to his negligence, and would be relevant factor going against him.

11. We need not to burden this judgment with a catena of decisions explaining and laying down as to what should be the approach of Court on construing "sufficient cause" under Section 5 of Act, 1963 and it would be suffice to refer a very few of them besides those already referred.

12. In Shakuntala Devi Jain Vs. Kuntal Kumari, AIR 1969 SC 575 a three Judge Bench of the Court said, that, unless want of bona fide of such inaction or negligence as would deprive a party of the protection of Section 5 is proved, the application must not be thrown out or any delay cannot be refused to be condoned.

13. The Privy Council in Brij Indar Singh Vs. Kanshi Ram ILR (1918) 45 Cal 94 observed that true guide for a court to exercise the discretion under Section 5 is whether the appellant acted with reasonable diligence in prosecuting the appeal. This principle still holds good inasmuch as the aforesaid decision of Privy Council as repeatedly been referred to, and, recently in State of Nagaland Vs. Lipok AO and others, AIR 2005 SC 2191.

14. In Vedabai @ Vaijayanatabai Baburao Vs. Shantaram Baburao Patil and others, JT 2001(5) SC 608 the Court said that under Section 5 of Act, 1963 it should adopt a pragmatic approach. A distinction must be made between a case where the delay is inordinate and a case where the delay is of a few days. In the former case consideration of prejudice to the other side will be a relevant factor so the case calls for a more cautious approach but in the latter case no such consideration may arise and such a case deserves a liberal approach. No hard and fast rule can be laid down in this regard and the basic guiding factor is advancement of substantial justice.

15. In Pundlik Jalam Patil (dead) by LRs Vs. Executive Engineer, Jalgaon Medium Project and Anr. (2008) 17 SCC 448, in para 17 of the judgment, the Court said :

"...The evidence on record suggests neglect of its own right for long time in preferring appeals. The court cannot enquire into belated and state claims on the ground of equity. Delay defeats equity. The court helps those who are vigilant and "do not slumber over their rights."

16. In Maniben Devraj Shah Vs. Municipal Corporation of Brihan Mumbai, 2012 (5) SCC 157, in para 18 of the judgment, the Court said as under:

"What needs to be emphasised is that even though a liberal and justice oriented approach is required to be adopted in the exercise of power under Section 5 of the Limitation Act and other similar statutes, the Courts can neither become oblivious of the fact that the successful litigant has acquired certain rights on the basis of the judgment under challenge and a lot of time is consumed at various stages of litigation apart from the cost. What colour the expression 'sufficient cause' would get in the factual matrix of a given case would largely depend on bona fide nature of the explanation. If the Court finds that there has been no negligence on the part of the applicant and the cause shown for the delay does not lack bona fides, then it may condone the delay. If, on the other hand, the explanation given by the applicant is found to be concocted or he is thoroughly negligent in prosecuting his cause, then it would be a legitimate exercise of discretion not to condone the delay. In cases involving the State and its agencies/instrumentalities, the Court can take note of the fact that sufficient time is taken in the decision making process but no premium can be given for total lethargy or utter negligence on the part of the officers of the State and / or its agencies/instrumentalities and the applications filed by them for condonation of delay cannot be allowed as a matter of course by accepting the plea that dismissal of the matter on the ground of bar of limitation will cause injury to the public interest."

17. In our view, the kind of explanation rendered herein does not satisfy the observations of Apex Court that if delay has occurred for reasons which does not smack of mala fide, the Court should be reluctant to refuse condonation. On the contrary, we find that here is a case which shows a complete careless and reckless long delay on the part of applicants which has remained virtually unexplained at all. Therefore, we do not find any reason to exercise our judicial discretion exercising judiciously so as to justify condonation of delay in the present case.

18. Even on merits, we find no reason to interfere with the well reasoned judgment of the Court. Hence, the review application is also liable to be dismissed.

19. In view of the above, we dismiss the delay condonation application with a token cost of Rs.10,000/-.

20. Consequently, the review application is also dismissed as we have refused to condone the delay.

1. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed with a prayer to pass an order or direction thereby quashing the impugned order dated 22.2.2022 S.T. No. 674 of 2001 (State Vs. Pramod Kumar Singh and others) initiated on the basis of case crime no. 64 of 2001 under Sections 498-A, 304-B I.P.C. and 3/4 of the D.P. Act Police Station- Saraini, District- Raibareli.

2. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that marriage of the sister of the respondent no. 2 namely Smt. Suman Singh was solemnized on 19.4.2000 and due to an accident she was died while cooking on 25.5.2001 and due to which respondent no. 2 has lodged an F.I.R. as case crime no. 64 of 2001 under Sections 498-A, 304-B and 3/4 of the D.P. Act. Police Station- Saraini, District- Raibareli. After recording the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. trial was fixed for defence evidence. During the pendency of this trial an application under 311 Cr.P.C. for summoning and cross examination of P.W.-1 i.e. respondent no. 2 was moved on 7.2.2022. Learned counsel for the applicants submitted that specific question was framed under Section 311 Cr.P.C. but the trial court without giving opportunity for re-examination of the P.W.-1 wrongly rejected the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C.

3. The main contention of the learned counsel for the applicants is that in the interest of justice an application under Section 311 should be allowed.

4. Learned A.G.A. submitted that there is no illegality in the order passed by the trial court, as every aspects has been touched in the order of the trial court.

5. Being aggrieved with the order of the trial court this petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicants.

6. The provisions of the Section 311 Cr.P.C. is quoted herein below:-

"311. Power to summon material witness, or examine person present. Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re- examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re- examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case."

7. The relevant paragraph no. 23 of the Judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Rajaram Prasad Yadav Vs. State of Bihar and others; AIR SC 3081.

23. From a conspectus consideration , while dealing with an application under Section 311 Code of Criminal Procedure read along with Section 138 of the Evidence Act, we feel the following principles will have to be borne in mind by the Courts:

a) Whether the Court is right in thinking that the new evidence is needed by it? Whether the evidence sought to be led in under Section 311 is noted by the Court for a just decision of a case?

b) The exercise of the widest discretionary power under Section 311 Code of Criminal Procedure should ensure that the judgment should not be rendered on inchoate, inconclusive speculative presentation of facts, as thereby the ends of justice would be defeated.

c) If evidence of any witness appears to the Court to be essential to the just decision of the case, it is the power of the Court to summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person.

d) The exercise of power under Section 311 Code of Criminal Procedure should be resorted to only with the object of finding out the truth or obtaining proper proof for such facts, which will lead to a just and correct decision of the case.

e) The exercise of the said power cannot be dubbed as filling in a lacuna in a prosecution case, unless the facts and circumstances of the case make it apparent that the exercise of power by the Court would result in causing serious prejudice to the accused, resulting in miscarriage of justice.

f) The wide discretionary power should be exercised judiciously and not arbitrarily.

g) The Court must satisfy itself that it was in every respect essential to examine such a witness or to recall him for further examination in order to arrive at a just decision of the case.

h) The object of Section 311 Code of Criminal Procedure simultaneously imposes a duty on the Court to determine the truth and to render a just decision.

i) The Court arrives at the conclusion that additional evidence is necessary, not because it would be impossible to pronounce the judgment without it, but because there would be a failure of justice without such evidence being considered.

j) Exigency of the situation, fair play and good sense should be the safe guard, while exercising the discretion. The Court should bear in mind that no party in a trial can be foreclosed from correcting errors and that if proper evidence was not adduced or a relevant material was not brought on record due to any inadvertence, the Court should be magnanimous in permitting such mistakes to be rectified.

k) The Court should be conscious of the position that after all the trial is basically for the prisoners and the Court should afford an opportunity to them in the fairest manner possible. In that parity of reasoning, it would be safe to err in favour of the accused getting an opportunity rather than protecting the prosecution against possible prejudice at the cost of the accused. The Court should bear in mind that improper or capricious exercise of such a discretionary power, may lead to undesirable results.

l) The additional evidence must not be received as a disguise or to change the nature of the case against any of the party.

m) The power must be exercised keeping in mind that the evidence that is likely to be tendered, would be germane to the issue involved and also ensure that an opportunity of rebuttal is given to the other party.

n) The power under Section 311 Code of Criminal Procedure must therefore, be invoked by the Court only in order to meet the ends of justice for strong and valid reasons and the same must be exercised with care, caution and circumspection. The Court should bear in mind that fair trial entails the interest of the accused, the victim and the society and, therefore, the grant of fair and proper opportunities to the persons concerned, must be ensured being a constitutional goal, as well as a human right.

8. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the order dated 22.2.2022 of the learned trial court. From the perusal of the order of learned trial court it indicates that while passing order on application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. it is clearly mentioned that the chief examination of the P.W.-1 was conducted on 16.7.2003 and the accused persons were cross examined on 16.7.2003, 2.8.2003 and 13.8.2003. Thus, the evidence of P.W.-1 was concluded on 13.8.2003 apart from P.W.-1, the witness of fact and other witnesses had already been examined and other witnesses did not support the version of the prosecution and they had already been declared hostile. This application has been filed after lapse of 20 years. Calling of witnesses for cross examination after long gap depricated by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Vinod Kumar Vs. State of Punjab (2015) 3 SCC 220.

9. In the application for re-examination of witness P.W.-1 certain questions framed by the applicant before the trial court and trial court clearly discussed each and every point raised by the applicant. Learned trial court opined that the question framed by the applicant in which the applicant want to cross examination of the P.W.-1, which has already been done. The P.W.-1 was already cross examined before the trial court before 20 years ago. The case is pending for the last 20 years and the occurrence is of the year, 2001. The order dated 22.2.2022 passed by the learned trial court is well reasoned and well discussed, thus learned trial court has rightly, rejected the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. to recall the witness, P.W.-1 for further cross examination. Thus, there is no illegality, irregularity or perversity in the order passed by the learned trial court.

10. In view of above, the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed.

11. The application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is, accordingly, dismissed.

12. Order of the this Court be communicated to learned trial court for necessary compliance.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 482 - Indian Penal Code, 1860-Section 364-A/34-quashing of charge-sheet-Informant PW-1 lodged an FIR against the unknown persons that accused abducted his brother PW-3-three witnesses, PW-1 (informant), PW-2 (niece of abductee) and PW-3(abductee) himself denied the prosecution case stating that nobody abducted him nor any ransom was demanded-All three accused persons were exonerated of the charges-Later, Investigating Officer intentionally filed charge-sheet ignoring the judgment passed by trial court-no criminal proceeding can be sustained against co-accused on the same set of witnesses-In the present case too, there is no separate witness and on the basis of testimony of same prosecution witnesses, main accused was acquitted by the court below-The principle of stare decisis will apply in the present case and the criminal proceeding cannot be sustained-Hence, quashed.(Para 1 to 14)

B. If two persons are prosecuted, though separately, under the same charge for offences having been committed in the same transaction and on the basis of the same evidence, and if one of them is acquitted for whatever may be the reason and the other is convicted, then it will create an anamalous position in law and is likely to shake the confidence of the people in the administration of justice. Diwan Singh Vs St. (1964) Lawsuit (All) 182

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for petitioner, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. By means of this petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. the petitioner has sought following reliefs:-

"Wherefore it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to quash the impugned charge sheet no. 02 of 2018 dated 4.12.2018 submitted by the police relating to Case Crime No. 372 of 2016, under Section 364-A/34 IPC, Police Station Lambhuwa, District Sultanpur against the petitioner and summoning order dated 18.01.2019 passed by learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 16, Sultanpur in Criminal Case No. 141 of 2019 (State of U.P. Vs. Anand Deep Dubey and others) and the entire proceedings of aforesaid case may also be quashed."

3. Brief facts giving rise to the present petition are that opposite party no. 2 - Matadeen lodged an FIR on 08.10.2016 against the unknown persons bearing Case Crime No. 372 of 2016 under Section 364 IPC, Police Station Lambhuwa, District Sultanpur with the allegation that some unknown accused abducted his brother Sikander. During investigation, the name of five persons, namely, Jitendra Pandey alias Chintu, Jitenra Pathak, Dharam Raj Nishad, Anand Deep Dubey alias Ashu Deubey and Anan Mishra (present applicant) came into light. Thereafter the police submitted charge sheet against JItendra Pandey, Jitendra Pathak and Dharam Raj Nishad and they were arrested. The trial against three persons were commenced before the learned Additional District Judge Court No. 3 Sultanpur vide Sessions Trial No. 111 of 2017 in which statement of PW-1 complainant Matadeen was recorded on 06.03.2018.

4. Learned counsel for petitioner has submitted that in this case three witnesses were examined. PW-1 Matadeen is the first informant, brother of the abductee has not supported the prosecution case. PW-2 Monu alias Dilip Kumar, who is niece of abductee, has clearly stated that no one had called him on mobile phone for ransom of Rs.25,00,000/- and he also did not support the prosecution case. PW-3 is the abductee Sikander. He also did not support the prosecution case. He clearly stated that nobody abducted him nor any ransom was demanded. Thus PW-3 has also not supported the case of the prosecution. Therefore, all the three accused persons were exonerated of the charges levelled against them under Section 364-A IPC and they have been acquitted by learned IIIrd Additional Sessions Judge, Sultanpur vide order dated 28.09.2018.

5. Further submission of learned counsel for petitioner is that after passing the judgment of trial court dated 28.09.2018, this fact was within the knowledge of Investigating Officer but the Investigating Officer intentionally filed charge sheet on 24.12.2018 before the court concerned ignoring the judgment passed by trial court dated 28.09.2018.

6. It is further submitted that since the witnesses were examined in Sessions Trial No. 111 of 2017 and they did not support the prosecution case, so it will be futile exercise to face the trial. In support of his submission, learned counsel for petitioner has relied upon a judgment of this Court in the case of Diwan Singh Vs. State reported in 1964 Lawsuit (All) 182, in that case also the accused were discharged on the ground of acquittal of co-accused, which are having the similar allegation and same prosecution witnesses.

7. Learned counsel for petitioner has submitted that in the case of Diwan Singh (supra) it was held that if the allegation and witnesses are same and after examination of witnesses one accused is acquitted, then other co-accused can be punished or not. this Court has clearly held that under such circumstances the conviction of co-accused cannot be sustained.

8. Learned AGA for the State has opposed the prayer made by learned counsel for the applicants, but could not dispute the fact of acquittal of other co-accused persons.

9. I have considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties, perused the record and the judgements relied upon by learned counsel for the applicant.

10. In the matter of Diwan Singh (Supra), this was the issue that if allegation & witnesses are same and after examination of witnesses one accused is acquitted, then other co-accused can be punished or not. This Court has clearly held that under such circumstances the conviction of co-accused cannot be sustained.

11. Relevant paragraph Nos. 4, 5 & 6 of the judgment of Diwan Singh (supra) are quoted hereinbelow:-

"4. Learned counsel for the applicant has argued that both Manohar and the applicant were arrested together, searched together and as a single recovery list was prepared about the articles alleged to have been recovered from them and as the same witnesses were examined. by the prosecution in both the trials before the Magistrate, it will be incongruous to convict one of them on the basis of the same evidence and to acquit the other. I find force in this contention,

5. The judgment of the learned Sessions Judge in Criminal Appeal No. 262 of 1963 setting aside the conviction and sentence of Manoliar was not challenged by the State by filing an appeal and, as such, has become final. It is no doubt true that the learned Sessions fudge acquitted Manohar on a technical ground because, in his opinion, "the prosecution suffers from a patent infirmity creating reasonable doubt regarding the identity of the alleged fire arms". He did not disbelieve the evidence of the prosecution on facts. The reasoning given by the learned Sessions Judge in acquitting Manohar is not very appealing but the fact remains that Manohar who was arrested along with the applicant on the same charge and against whom the same evidence has been produced by the prosecution, has been acquitted, while the appeal of the applicant against his conviction was dismissed by the learned 1st Additional Sessions Judge of Etawah. In view of the acquittal of Manohar on the same facts and on the same evidence which has become absolute, it is not possible to maintain the conviction of the applicant.

6. If two persons are prosecuted, though separately, under the same charge for offences having been committed in the same transaction and on the basis of the same evidence, and if one of them is acquitted for whatever may be the reason and the other is convicted, then it will create an anamalous position in law and is likely to shake the confidence of the people in the administration of justice. Justice is not only to be done but also seem to be done. Therefore, I am clearly of opinion that as has been held in the case of Pritam Singh v. State of Punjab. (S) AIR 1956 SC 415, the principle of stare decisis will apply in the present case and the applicant's conviction cannot be sustained."

12. After going through the judgements relied by learned counsel for the applicant, it is very much clear that Court has held that considering the testimony of witnesses, if one accused is acquitted, no criminal proceeding can be sustained against co-accused on the same set of witnesses and in the present case too, there is no separate witness and on the basis of testimony of same prosecution witnesses, main accused was acquitted by the court below, Whenever there is no prospect of the case ending in conviction, valuable time of court should not be wasted for holding trial only for the purpose of completing the procedure to pronounce the conclusion on future date. Therefore, criminal proceeding cannot be permitted to continue against the applicant.

13. Therefore, under such facts and circumstances of the case as well as law laid down by the Apex Court, criminal proceeding against the applicants in Criminal Case No. 141 of 2019 (State of U.P. Vs. Anand Deep Dubey and others), arising out of Case Crime No. 372 of 2016, under Section 364-A/34 IPC, Police Station Lambhuwa, District Sultanpur cannot be sustained and is hereby quashed.

14. With the aforesaid observation/direction, this petition under Section 482 Cr.PC. is allowed.

15. Office is directed to communicate this order to the trial court concerned for necessary action and compliance.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 482 - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 409-quashing of impugned order-embezzlement of public money-re-investigation-FIR lodged by first informant in his official capacity as a public servant-After submission of final report, protest petition filed by first informant-Concerned magistrate rejected the final report and directed for re-investigation-this order challenged by one of the accused and was ultimately set aside by revisional court, matter was remanded with a direction to concerned Magistrate to pass fresh order-thereafter, first informant showing his agreement with final report filed an affidavit and the same was accepted, which order was challenged by first informant himself by means of criminal revision wherein impugned order has been passed-no estoppel can be pleaded by accused against first informant-Concerned Magistrate in complete ignorance of

Section 190 Cr.P.C. to see that offence complained of which is cognizable and non-bailable offence is duly investigated, accepted the consent of first informant showing his agreement with the police report which otherwise he was not competent to give-More so, the sanction from competent authority would be required to take cognizance and no such sanction had been obtained in respect of the officer-Thus, concerned magistrate committed a jurisdictional error-first informant brought to the notice this mistake to the Revisional court by himself-Revisional court rightly allowed the revision-quashing of impugned order is refused and the same may be further investigated by a different Investigating Officer.(Para 1 to 41)

B. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 -Section 197 -seeks to protect an officer from unnecessary harassment, who is accused of an offence committed while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties and, thus, prohibits the court from taking cognizance of such offence except with the previous sanction of the competent authority. Public servants have been treated as a special category in order to protect them from malicious or vexatious prosecution. the yardstick to be followed is to form a prima facie view whether the act of omission for which the accused was charged had a reasonable connection with the discharge of his duties.(Para 37)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajeev Misra, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Satish Trivedi alongwith Mr. G. S. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Sheshadri Trivedi, learned counsel for applicant and learned A.G.A. for State.

2. Perused the record.

3. Present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed challenging order dated 17.02.2021, passed by Sessions Judge, Maharajganj, in Criminal Revision No. 8 of 2021 (Bhanu Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others), whereby aforesaid revision preferred by first informant/opposite party-2 against order dated 25.10.2019, by which Chief Judicial Magistrate, Maharajganj, accepted final report no.20 of 2015, dated 17.2.2015 (submitted in Case Crime No. 1223 of 2014 under Section 409 I.P.C, P.S. Kotwali, District-Maharajganj), has been set aside and matter has been remanded to concerned Magistrate to pass a fresh order on aforesaid final report in the light of observations made in above mentioned order of Revisional Court.

4. Record shows that an F.I.R. dated 26.8.2014, was lodged by first informant/opposite party-2, Bhanu Pratap Singh, which was registered as Case Crime No. 1223 of 2014, under Section 409 I.P.C, P.S. Kotwali, District-Maharajganj. In the aforesaid F.I.R., three persons namely, R. S. Verma (the then Executive Engineer), Pateshwari Prasad Singh (contractor) and Smt. Asha Singh (contractor) have been nominated as named accused.

5. In brief, as per prosecution story as unfolded in F.I.R., it is alleged that F.I.R. has been lodged in compliance of letter dated 6.8.2014 issued by State Government. The F.I.R. further states that accused persons are guilty of embezzlement of public money to the tune of Rs. 26,82,300/-.

6. Subsequent to aforesaid F.I.R., Investigating Officer proceeded with statutory investigation of above mentioned case crime number in terms of Chapter XII Cr.P.C. After completion of investigation, Investigating Officer submitted a police report under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. (final report no.20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015) on the grounds that F.I.R. has been lodged without obtaining permission of Law Department, Government of U.P., no sanction as required under Section 197 Cr.P.C. has been obtained. As such, proceedings of above mentioned case crime number cannot continue. F.I.R. has been lodged on account of prejudice and ill-will and therefore, proceedings are being terminated by submitting a final report.

7. Upon submission of above noted final report, concerned Magistrate issued notice to first informant/opposite party-2. Thereafter, first informant/opposite party-2 filed an application dated 18.05.2015, in terms of Regulation 122 (3) of Police Regulations stating therein that final report dated 17.02.2015, be rejected and directions be issued for further investigation.

8. Concerned Magistrate upon examination of record concluded that Investigating Officer has not investigated the crime in question according to law. As such investigation so conducted becomes suspicious and doubtful. Accordingly, concerned Magistrate, vide order dated 19.02.2016, rejected final report dated 17.02.2015, with a direction to Superintendent of Police, Maharajganj to appoint a new Investigating Officer for re-investigation of above mentioned case crime number.

9. Feeling aggrieved by above noted order dated 19.02.2016, one of the named accused namely Smt. Asha Singh (contractor) filed Criminal Revision No. 25 of 2016 (Smt. Asha Singh Vs, State of U.P. and others) before District and Sessions Judge, Maharajganj. Same was allowed vide order 06.08.2016, passed by Sessions Judge, Maharajganj. Revisional Court concluded that concerned Magistrate could not have passed an order of fresh investigation, but only re-investigation. Accordingly, it remanded the matter before concerned Magistrate with direction to pass fresh order in the light of observations contained in above order of revisional court.

10. Subsequent to order dated 06.08.2016, first informant opposite party-2 appeared before concerned Magistrate and filed a protest petition dated 11.06.2019, (Annexure 7 to the affidavit) against final report dated 17.02.2015.

11. Thereafter, on 17.08.2019, first informant/opposite party-2 filed an affidavit dated 17.08.2019, before concerned Magistrate (Annexure 8 to the affidavit filed in support of present application) stating therein that he is satisfied with the final report dated 17.02.2015 and therefore, he does not wish to contest the case. An endorsement to that effect was also made by him on 11.06.2019

12. In view of above, concerned Magistrate, vide order date 25.10.2019, accepted the affidavit dated 17.08.2019, filed by first informant/opposite party-2. Consequently, final report dated 17.02.2015, was also accepted at the risk of first informant/opposite party-2.

13. The Court is astonished as to how Magistrate could have proceeded to pass the order dated 25.10.2019, whereby he virtually accepted the consent of opposite party showing his agreement with final report which otherwise opposite party-2 was not competent to give. Concerned Magistrate in exercise of jurisdiction under Section 190 Cr.P.C. was required to examine that offence complained of, which is a conizable, non-bailable offence has been duly investigated or not. This aspect shall be further dealt with in later part of this judgement.

14. Contrary to the stand taken by first informant/opposite party-2 before concerned Magistrate, first informant/opposite party-2, thereafter challenged order dated 25.10.2019, passed by Magistrate (whereby final report no. 20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015 was accepted) before District and Sessions Judge, Maharajganj by filing Criminal Revision No. 8 of 2021 (Bhanu Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. and two others). Record shows that one of the named accused namely Pateshwari Prasad Singh (contractor) was not impleaded as an opposite party in aforesaid criminal revision.

15. Notices were issued on aforesaid revision by revisional court to the two accused, who were impleaded as opposite parties therein. Revisional Court, thereafter, vide judgement and order dated 17.02.2021, allowed above noted criminal revision and remanded the matter before concerned Magistrate with a direction to pass fresh order on the final report dated 17.02.2015, submitted by Investigating Officer, in the light of observations made in the order aforesaid.

16. Perusal of order dated 17.02.2021, goes to show that court below examined allegations made in F.I.R. dated 26.08.2014, and also the material on record. Thereafter, Revisional Court referred to the following judgements:

1. M/s India Caret Pvt. Ltd Vs. State of Karnatk and others, AIR 1989 SC 885

2. Gangadhar Janardan Mahtre vs. State of Maharastra (2005) SCC Criminal 404

3. Minoo Kumari Vs. State of Bihar (2006)4 SCC 359

4. Sanjay Bansal and othrs Vs. Jawahar Lal Bats and others 2007 (59) SCC 1050

After noticing aforesaid judgements court below held that upon submission of a police report (under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C.) which in this case was a final report, concerned Magistrate has following four options:

1. Magistrate can accept the police report.

2. Magistrate can disagree with the police report and take cognizance on the basis of material appended alongwith police report under Section 190 (1) (b) Cr.P.C.

3. Magistrate can direct police for further investigation under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C.

4. Magistrate can treat the protest petition submitted against police report as a complaint and thereby take cognizance under Section 190 (1) (a) Cr.P.C.

17. Having taken note of Case Law on the point and Section 190 Cr.P.C., Revisional Court proceeded to examine the veracity of order dated 25.10.2019. Upon consideration, court below held that F.I.R. dated 26.08.2014, was lodged by first informant/opposite party-2 herein namely Bhanu Pratap Singh in compliance of letter dated 06.08.2014, issued by Deepak Singhal, Principal Secretary, Government of U.P. As such, F.I.R. dated 24.09.2019, was lodged by first informant (who was at that time working as Executive Engineer) as a public servant and not in his private capacity.

18. Revisional Court further held that after submission of protest petition by first informant/opposite party-2 against final report dated 17.02.2015, Magistrate examined the matter. Concerned Magistrate specifically enquired from first informant/opposite party-2 as to whether protest petition dated 11.06.2019, (Annexure 7 to the affidavit) was filed by first informant/opposite party-2 in his personal capacity or on behalf of Department of Irrigation. First informant/opposite party-2 categorically submitted before Magistrate that same has been filed on behalf of Department of Irrigation as an embezzlement of Rs. 26.82 Lacs is involved.

19. On the basis of above, court below concluded that first informant/opposite party-2 had lodged F.I.R. not in his personal capacity but as a public servant. Protest petition dated 11.06.2019, was filed on the direction of Department of Irrigation. However, without obtaining written permission from Department of Irrigation/Government of U.P. to file an affidavit disclosing agreement with final report, first informant/opposite party-2 has himself filed subsequent affidavit dated 17.08.2019, stating therein that as first informant/opposite party-2 is satisfied with the police report (final report no. 20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015), therefore, he does not wish to contest the case any longer. As such, matter be decided in light of aforesaid. Revisional Court thus came to the conclusion that first informant/opposite party-2 has no right or authority to herself file the application dated 17.08.2019.

20. In view of above, court below allowed criminal revision filed by first informant/opposite party-2 vide order dated 17.02.2021, whereby order dated 25.10.2019, passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Maharajganj, in F. R. No. 497 of 2015 (accepting final report no. 20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015) was set aside and matter was remanded to concenred Magistrate to pass fresh order on the final report so submitted in accordance with law after hearing State Government/Department of Irrigation .

21. Thus, feeling aggrieved by order dated 17.02.2021, one of the named accused namely R. S. Verma (the then Executive Engineer) has now approached this Court by means of present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

22. Mr. Satish Trivedi, learned Senior Advocate alongwith Mr. G. S. Chatruvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Sheshadri Trivedi, learned counsel for applicant submits that order impugned in present application is manifestly illegal and without jurisdiction. Consequently, same is liable to be quashed by this Court. It is then contended that once first informant/opposite party-2 had filed an affidavit dated 17.08.2019, wherein he had categorically stated that he is satisfied with the police report (final report no.20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015) and on basis thereof, Chief Judicial Magistrate, Maharajganj, passed order dated 25.10.2019, accepting final report, consequently, first informant/opposite party-2 was estopped from challenging order dated 25.10.2019, by filing a Criminal Revision. It is also contended by learned Senior Counsel appearing for applicant that admittedly present criminal proceedings have been initiated against applicant for certain acts which are alleged to have been committed in discharge of his official duty. Since no prior sanction was obtained in terms of Section 197 Cr.P.C. before lodging the F.I.R., no illegality was committed by Investigating Officer in submitting police report (final report no.20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015) by taking above also as a ground for submitting the same. Till today, no sanction in terms of Section 197 Cr.P.C. has been granted by competent authority for prosecution of applicant. Therefore no criminal proceedings pursuant to order of remand passed by Revisional Court, by means of impugned order dated 17.02.2021, can be allowed to continue. Revisional Court while passing impugned order has completely ignored aforesaid aspect, which has vitiated the impugned order. On the cumulative strength of aforesaid submissions, it is vehemently urged that impugned order dated 17.02.2021, passed by court below cannot be sustained and therefore, liable to be quashed by this Court.

23. Per contra learned A.G.A. has opposed this application. Learned A.G.A. has invited attention of Court to the impugned order dated 17.02.2021. On the basis of same, it is urged by learned A.G.A. that court below has exercised it's jurisdiction under Section 397 Cr.P.C. with due diligence. Court below has neither committed any jurisdictional error nor has exercised it's jurisdiction with material irregularity, as such no interference is warranted by this Court. Court below has categorically recorded that protest petition dated 11.06.2019, (Annexure 7 to the affidavit) was filed by first informant/opposite party-2 on behalf of Department of Irrigation, Government of U.P. and not in his personal capacity. The Magistrate had duly ascertained aforesaid fact as is evident from order dated 06.01.2016, passed by Magistrate. On the aforesaid premise, learned A.G.A. contends that informant/opposite party-2 could not have taken a summer-sault and filed the subsequent affidavit dated 17.08.2019, (Annexure-8 to the affidavit). The prosecution of applicant and two others was set in motion with the lodging of F.I.R. dated 26.08.2014, by first informant/opposite party-2, pursuant to letter dated 06.08.2014, issued by Mr. Deepak Singhal, Principal Secretary, Government of U.P. Lucknow. As such, aforesaid F.I.R. was lodged by first informant/opposite party-2 in compliance of order of higher authority which he was bound to comply as first informant/opposite party-2 was working as Executive Engineer and under the control of Principal Secretary Department of Irrigation. As such F.I.R. was lodged by first informant in his official capacity and not in his personal capacity. In the absence of any written permission from State Government/Department of Irrigation, Govt. of U.P., not to challenge the final report dated 17.02.2015, first informant/opposite party-2 had no right or authority to file the subsequent affidavit dated 17.08.2019 himself. In the submission of learned A.G.A. above mentioned affidavit dated 17.08.2019, is void ab-initio and therefore could not have been considered by Magistrate. As such, no illegality has been committed by court below in allowing the revision. Consequently, present application is liable to be dismissed.

24. Having heard learned counsel for applicant, learned A.G.A. for State and upon perusal of record, the Court finds that following issues arise for determination in present application.

i. What is the procedure, which shall be followed by Magistrate upon submission of a police report under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C.

ii. The concept of re-investigation/further investigation with reference to Section 173 (8) Cr.P.C.

iii. Whether estoppel can be pleaded against informant/opposite party-2 in the facts and circumstances of the case.

iiv. Whether sanction as required under Section 197 Cr.P.C. is to be necessarily granted/obtained before lodging of F.I.R. or same has to be granted /obtained before taking cognizance, by court concerned.

(v) Whether order impunged in present application is liable to be quashed.

25. Taking the first issue first, the Court finds that same is no longer res-integra and stands concluded by the judgement of Apex Court in Vishnu Kumar Tiwari Vs. State of U.P. and another (2019) 8SCC 27, wherein Court after considering the entire gamut of Case Law on the point has observed as follows in paragraphs 20, 21 and 27, which are reproduced herein-under:

20. In Gangadhar Janardan Mhatre v. State of Maharashtra, this Court reiterated that Magistrate can, faced with a final report, independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from investigation and take cognizance under Section 190 (1)(b), and in this regard, is not bound to follow the procedure under Sections 200 and 202 of the Code for taking cognizance under Section 190(1)(b). It was, however, open to the Magistrate to do so.

21. In regard to the filing of protest petition by the informant who filed the First Information Report, it is important to notice the following discussion by this Court:

"6. There is no provision in the Code to file a protest petition by the informant who lodged the first information report. But this has been the practice. Absence of a provision in the Code relating to filing of a protest petition has been considered. This Court in Bhagwant Singh v. Commr. of Police [(1985) 2 SCC 537:1985 SCC (Cri) 267 : AIR 1985 SC 1285] stressed on the desirability of intimation being given to the informant when a report made under Section 173(2) is under consideration. The Court held as follows: (SCC p. 542, para 4) 4 (2004) 7 SCC 768 "There can, therefore, be no doubt that when, on a consideration of the report made by the officer in charge of a police station under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173, the Magistrate is not inclined to take cognizance of the offence and issue process, the informant must be given an opportunity of being heard so that he can make his submissions to persuade the Magistrate to take cognizance of the offence and issue process. We are accordingly of the view that in a case where the Magistrate to whom a report is forwarded under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173 decides not to take cognizance of the offence and to drop the proceeding or takes the view that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against some of the persons mentioned in the first information report, the Magistrate must give notice to the informant and provide him an opportunity to be heard at the time of consideration of the report."

9. When a report forwarded by the police to the Magistrate under Section 173(2)(i) is placed before him several situations arise. The report may conclude that an offence appears to have been committed by a particular person or persons and in such a case, the Magistrate may either (1) accept the report and take cognizance of the offence and issue process, or (2) may disagree with the report and drop the proceeding, or (3) may direct further investigation under Section 156(3) and require the police to make a further report. The report may on the other hand state that according to the police, no offence appears to have been committed. When such a report is placed before the Magistrate he has again option of adopting one of the three courses open i.e. (1) he may accept the report and drop the proceeding; or (2) he may disagree with the report and take the view that there is sufficient ground for further proceeding, take cognizance of the offence and issue process; or (3) he may direct further investigation to be made by the police under Section 156(3). The position is, therefore, now well settled that upon receipt of a police report under Section 173(2) a Magistrate is entitled to take cognizance of an offence under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code even if the police report is to the effect that no case is made out against the accused. The Magistrate can take into account the statements of the witnesses examined by the police during the investigation and take cognizance of the offence complained of and order the issue of process to the accused. Section 190(1)(b) does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the investigating officer gives an opinion that the investigation has made out a case against the accused. The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit, exercise his powers under Section 190(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused. The Magistrate is not bound in such a situation to follow the procedure laid down in Sections 200 and 202 of the Code for taking cognizance of a case under Section 190(1)(a) though it is open to him to act under Section 200 or Section

202 also. [See India Carat (P) Ltd. v. State of Karnataka [(1989) 2 SCC 132 : 1989 SCC (Cri) 306 : AIR 1989 SC 885] .] The informant is not prejudicially affected when the Magistrate decides to take cognizance and to proceed with the case. But where the Magistrate decides that sufficient ground does not subsist for proceeding further and drops the proceeding or takes the view that there is material for proceeding against some and there are insufficient grounds in respect of others, the informant would certainly be prejudiced as the first information report lodged becomes wholly or partially ineffective. Therefore, this Court indicated in Bhagwant Singh case [(1985) 2 SCC 537 : 1985 SCC (Cri) 267 : AIR 1985 SC 1285] that where the Magistrate decides not to take cognizance and to drop the proceeding or takes a view that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against some of the persons mentioned in the first information report, notice to the informant and grant of opportunity of being heard in the matter becomes mandatory. As indicated above, there is no provision in the Code for issue of a notice in that regard." (Emphasis supplied)

27. It is undoubtedly true that before a Magistrate proceeds to accept a final report under Section 173 and exonerate the accused, it is incumbent upon the Magistrate to apply his mind to the contents of the protest petition and arrive at a conclusion thereafter. While the Investigating Officer may rest content by producing the final report, which, according to him, is the culmination of his efforts, the duty of the Magistrate is not one limited to readily accepting the final report. It is incumbent upon him to go through the materials, and after hearing the complainant and considering the contents of the protest petition, finally decide the future course of action to be, whether to continue with the matter or to bring the curtains down."

26. In view of aforesaid authoritative pronouncement of Apex Court, it cannot be said that concerned Magistrate had no jurisdiction to reject the police report. and direct for further investigation.

27. Learned A.G.A. contends that unfortunately, in present case the Magistrate, while passing order dated 19.2.2016, directed for re-investigation. Consequently, this order dated 19.2.2016, came to be challenged by one of the accused namely Asha Singh (contractor) on the ground that Magistrate had no jurisdiction to direct re-investigation. Revisional Court by means of order dated 6.8.2016, allowed the revision and directed the Magistrate to pass a fresh order on the final report dated 17.2.2015. Subsequently, vide order dated 17.02.2021, passed by revisional court, which has been impugned in present application, court below again directed concerned Magistrate to pass fresh order on final report no. 20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015. Once, the order of Magistrate dated 25.10.2019, was set aside, court below could have itself directed for further investigation as the tenor of the term re-investigation has now to be construed as further investigation.

28. The issue that arises for consideration in the context of above is regarding meaning of the terms "further investigation" and "re-investigation". This issue need not detain this Court as it now stands settled by Apex Court in Chandra Babu @ Moses Vs. State Inspector of Police and others, reported in 2015 (8) SCC 774, wherein Court considered the earlier judgement in Vinay Tyagi Vs. Irshad

Ali @ Deepak and others, (2013) 5 SCC, 762 and held as under in paragraphs 16, 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21:-

"16. We have referred to the aforesaid authorities to reiterate the legal position that a Magistrate can disagree with the police report and take cognizance and issue process and summons to the accused. Thus, the Magistrate has the jurisdiction to ignore the opinion expressed by the investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts that have emerged from the investigation.

17. Having stated thus, we may presently proceed to deal with the facet of law where the Magistrate disagrees with the report and on applying his independent mind feels, that there has to be a further investigation and under that circumstance what he is precisely required to do. In this regard, we may usefully refer to a notable passage from a three-Judge Bench decision in Bhagwant Singh v.Commr. of Police[(1985) 2 SCC 537 : 1985 SCC (Cri) 267] , which is to the following effect:

"4. Now, when the report forwarded by the officer in charge of a police station to the Magistrate under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173 comes up for consideration by the Magistrate, one of two different situations may arise. The report may conclude that an offence appears to have been committed by a particular person or persons and in such a case, the Magistrate may do one of three things:

(1) he may accept the report and take cognizance of the offence and issue process, or (2) he may disagree with the report and drop the proceeding, or (3) he may direct further investigation under sub-section (3) of Section 156 and require the police to make a further report.

The report may on the other hand state that, in the opinion of the police, no offence appears to have been committed and where such a report has been made, the Magistrate again has an option to adopt one of three courses: (1) he may accept the report and drop the proceeding, or (2) he may disagree with the report and taking the view that there is sufficient ground for proceeding further, take cognizance of the offence and issue process, or (3) he may direct further investigation to be made by the police under sub-section (3) of Section 156. Where, in either of these two situations, the Magistrate decides to take cognizance of the offence and to issue process, the informant is not prejudicially affected nor is the injured or in case of death, any relative of the deceased aggrieved, because cognizance of the offence is taken by the Magistrate and it is decided by the Magistrate that the case shall proceed. But if the Magistrate decides that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding further and drops the proceeding or takes the view that though there is sufficient ground for proceeding against some, there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against others mentioned in the first information report, the informant would certainly be prejudiced because the first information report lodged by him would have failed of its purpose, wholly or in part. Moreover, when the interest of the informant in prompt and effective action being taken on the first information report lodged by him is clearly recognised by the provisions contained in sub-section (2) of Section 154, sub-section (2) of Section 157 and sub-section (2)(ii) of Section 173, it must be presumed that the informant would equally be interested in seeing that the Magistrate takes cognizance of the offence and issues process, because that would be culmination of the first information report lodged by him. There can, therefore, be no doubt that when, on a consideration of the report made by the officer in charge of a police station under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173, the Magistrate is not inclined to take cognizance of the offence and issue process, the informant must be given an opportunity of being heard so that he can make his submissions to persuade the Magistrate to take cognizance of the offence and issue process.

We are accordingly of the view that in a case where the Magistrate to whom a report is forwarded under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173 decides not to take cognizance of the offence and to drop the proceeding or takes the view that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against some of the persons mentioned in the first information report, the Magistrate must give notice to the informant and provide him an opportunity to be heard at the time of consideration of the report. It was urged before us on behalf of the respondents that if in such a case notice is required to be given to the informant, it might result in unnecessary delay on account of the difficulty of effecting service of the notice on the informant. But we do not think this can be regarded as a valid objection against the view we are taking, because in any case the action taken by the police on the first information report has to be communicated to the informant and a copy of the report has to be supplied to him under sub-section (2)(i) of Section 173 and if that be so, we do not see any reason why it should be difficult to serve notice of the consideration of the report on the informant.

Moreover, in any event, the difficulty of service of notice on the informant cannot possibly provide any justification for depriving the informant of the opportunity of being heard at the time when the report is considered by the Magistrate."

18. Relying on the said paragraph, a two-Judge Bench in Vinay Tyagi v. Irshad Ali [(2013) 5 SCC 762 : (2013) 4 SCC (Cri) 557] , has opined thus:

"37. In some judgments of this Court, a view has been advanced, [amongst others in Reeta Nag v. State of W.B.[(2009) 9 SCC 129 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1051] , Ram Naresh Prasad v State of Jharkhand [(2009) 11 SCC 299 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 1336] and Randhir Singh Rana v. State (Delhi Admn.) [(1997) 1 SCC 361]] that a Magistrate cannot suo motu direct further investigation under Section 173(8) of the Code or direct reinvestigation into a case on account of the bar contained in Section 167(2) of the Code, and that a Magistrate could direct filing of a charge-sheet where the police submits a report that no case had been made out for sending up an accused for trial. The gist of the view taken in these cases is that a Magistrate cannot direct reinvestigation and cannot suo motu direct further investigation.

38. However, having given our considered thought to the principles stated in these judgments, we are of the view that the Magistrate before whom a report under Section 173(2) of the Code is filed, is empowered in law to direct ''further investigation' and require the police to submit a further or a supplementary report. A three-Judge Bench of this Court in Bhagwant Singh has, in no uncertain terms, stated that principle, as aforenoticed.

39. The contrary view taken by the Court in Reeta Nag and Randhir Singh do not consider the view of this Court expressed in Bhagwant Singh.

The decision of the Court in Bhagwant Singh in regard to the issue in hand cannot be termed as an obiter. The ambit and scope of the power of a Magistrate in terms of Section 173 of the Code was squarely debated before that Court and the three-Judge Bench concluded as aforenoticed. Similar views having been taken by different Benches of this Court while following Bhagwant Singh , are thus squarely in line with the doctrine of precedent. To some extent, the view expressed in Reeta Nag ,Ram Naresh and Randhir Singh, besides being different on facts, would have to be examined in light of the principle of stare decisis."

And eventually the Division Bench ruled:

"40. Having analysed the provisions of the Code and the various judgments as aforeindicated, we would state the following conclusions in regard to the powers of a Magistrate in terms of Section 173(2) read with Section 173(8) and Section 156(3) of the Code:

40.1. The Magistrate has no power to direct ''reinvestigation' or ''fresh investigation' (de novo) in the case initiated on the basis of a police report.

40.2. A Magistrate has the power to direct ''further investigation' after filing of a police report in terms of Section 173(6) of the Code.

40.3. The view expressed in sub-para 40.2 above is in conformity with the principle of law stated in Bhagwant Singh case by a three-Judge Bench and thus in conformity with the doctrine of precedent.

40.4. Neither the scheme of the Code nor any specific provision therein bars exercise of such jurisdiction by the Magistrate. The language of Section 173(2) cannot be construed so restrictively as to deprive the Magistrate of such powers particularly in face of the provisions of Section 156(3) and the language of Section 173(8) itself. In fact, such power would have to be read into the language of Section 173(8).

40.5. The Code is a procedural document, thus, it must receive a construction which would advance the cause of justice and legislative object sought to be achieved. It does not stand to reason that the legislature provided power of further investigation to the police even after filing a report, but intended to curtail the power of the court to the extent that even where the facts of the case and the ends of justice demand, the court can still not direct the investigating agency to conduct further investigation which it could do on its own."

19. We have reproduced the conclusion in extenso as we are disposed to think that the High Court has fallen into error in its appreciation of the order passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate. It has to be construed in the light of the eventual direction. The order, in fact, as we perceive, presents that the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate was really inclined to direct further investigation but because he had chosen another agency, he has used the word "reinvestigation". Needless to say, the power of the Magistrate to direct for further investigation has to be cautiously used. In Vinay Tyagi it has been held:

"The power of the Magistrate to direct ''further investigation' is a significant power which has to be exercised sparingly, in exceptional cases and to achieve the ends of justice. To provide fair, proper and unquestionable investigation is the obligation of the investigating agency and the court in its supervisory capacity is required to ensure the same. Further investigation conducted under the orders of the court, including that of the Magistrate or by the police of its own accord and, for valid reasons, would lead to the filing of a supplementary report. Such supplementary report shall be dealt with as part of the primary report. This is clear from the fact that the provisions of Sections 173(3) to 173(6) would be applicable to such reports in terms of Section 173(8) of the Code."

20. In the said case, the question arose, whether the Magistrate can direct for reinvestigation. The Court, while dealing with the said issue, has ruled that:

"At this stage, we may also state another well-settled canon of the criminal jurisprudence that the superior courts have the jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code or even Article 226 of the Constitution of India to direct ''further investigation', ''fresh' or ''de novo' and even ''reinvestigation'. ''Fresh', ''de novo' and ''reinvestigation' are synonymous expressions and their result in law would be the same. The superior courts are even vested with the power of transferring investigation from one agency to another, provided the ends of justice so demand such action. Of course, it is also a settled principle that this power has to be exercised by the superior courts very sparingly and with great circumspection."

And again:

"Whether the Magistrate should direct ''further investigation' or not is again a matter which will depend upon the facts of a given case. The learned Magistrate or the higher court of competent jurisdiction would direct ''further investigation' or ''reinvestigation' as the case may be, on the facts of a given case. Where the Magistrate can only direct further investigation, the courts of higher jurisdiction can direct further, reinvestigation or even investigation de novo depending on the facts of a given case. It will be the specific order of the court that would determine the nature of investigation.

21.We respectfully concur with the said view. As we have already indicated, the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate has basically directed for further investigation. The said part of the order cannot be found fault with, but an eloquent one, he could not have directed another investigating agency to investigate as that would not be within the sphere of further investigation and, in any case, he does not have the jurisdiction to direct reinvestigation by another agency.

Therefore, that part of the order deserves to be lancinated and accordingly it is directed that the investigating agency that had investigated shall carry on the further investigation and such investigation shall be supervised by the Superintendent of Police concerned. After the further investigation, the report shall be submitted before the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate who shall deal with the same in accordance with law. We may hasten to add that we have not expressed any opinion relating to any of the factual aspects of the case."

29. It is thus urged by learned A.G.A. that in view of aforesaid authoritative pronouncement of Supreme Court, Revisional Court instead of directing Court below to pass a fresh order on final report should have directed further investigation in continuation of order dated 19.02.2016, earlier passed by Magistrate. This is on the ground that earlier order dated 19.02.2016, was set-aside only on the ground that concerned Magistrate could not have passed an order of re-investigation.

30. Taking aid of observations made by Apex Court as noted herein above, learned A.G.A. contends that a period of almost seven years has rolled by from the date of F.I.R. dated 26.8.2014 but the same has not yet been investigated. He, therefore, contends that this Court in exercise of it's jurisdiction under section 482 Cr.P.C. as well as Article 227 of the Constitution of Inida can modify the orders dated 6.8.2016 as well as 17.2.2021, passed by Revisional Court and direct for further investigation of concerned case crime number by a different Investigating Officer.

31. Whether in the facts and circumstances of case, submission urged by learned A.G.A. is liable to be accpted or not shall be dealt with in the concluding part of this order.

32. This takes me to the third issue which arises for consideration as to whether estoppel can be pleaded against first informant/opposite party-2. Facts of the case shall be repeated but of necessity they are being repeated for the sake of coherency. Admittedly, the F.I.R. dated 24.09.2018, was lodged by first informant/opposite party-2 in his official capacity i.e. in discharge of his duties as a public servant. After submission of final report, first informant/opposite party-2 had filed protest petition dated 17.02.2015, praying therein that final report so submitted be rejected and directions be issued for further investigation. Concerned Magistrate on the basis of above and further upon evaluation of record rejected the final report and directed for re-investigation vide order dated 19.02.2016. This order came to be challenged by one of the accused namely Smt. Asha Singh (Contractor) and was ultimately set aside vide order dated 06.08.2016, passed by revisional court, whereby order dated 19.02.2016, was set aside and matter was remanded with a direction to concerned Magistrate to pass fresh order. It is, thereafter, that first informant/opposite party-2 on his own filed an affidavit dated 17.08.2019, showing his agreement with final report dated 17.02.2015. Same was accepted by concerned Magistrate and consequently, the final report dated 17.02.2015, was accepted, which order was challenged by first informant himself by means of criminal revision no. 8 of 2021, wherein order impugned in present application has been passed.

33. On the aforesaid factual premise, learned Senior Counsel contend that once first informant/opposite party-2 had himself filed an affidavit dated 17.8.2009, showing his agreement with Police report dated 17.2.2015. Concerned Magistrate acted upon same and accepted, final report dated 17.02.2005. However, subsequently, first informant/opposite party 2 could not have taken a somersault and filed a criminal revision challenging order dated 25.10.2019, whereby final report so submitted was accepted by concerned Magistrate.

34. Learned A.G.A., on the other hand, contends that first informant/opposite party-2 on his own could not have filed the subsequent affidavit dated 17.08.2019, showing his agreement with the police report i.e. final report no. 20 of 2015 dated 17.02.2015, in the absence of any permission having been granted by State Government/Department of Irrigation in this regard. Admittedly, F.I.R. was lodged by first informant/opposite party-2 in his official capacity and in the absence of any authorization/permission from Department of Irrigation/Government of U.P. to file an affidavit showing agreement with final report so submitted. First informant/opposite party-2 had no right or authority to file the subsequent affidavit dated 17.8.2019. Since aforesaid affidavit was filed by first informant/opposite party-2 himself, it was thus in his personal capacity which capacity he did not possess for filing aforesiad affidavit. Consequently, subsequent affidavit dated 17.8.2019, filed by first informant/opposite party-2 on the basis of which order dated 25.10.2019, was passed, is not only illegal but void ab initio. It is thus urged that in view of above, no estoppel can be pleaded, by accused against first informant/opposite party-2.

35. Rule of estoppel is basically a Rule of Evidence embodied in Section 115 of Indian Evidence Act. What is sought to be urged before Court by learned Senior Counsel appearing for applicant, is basically estoppel by conduct aginst first informant/opposite party-2. Essentially estoppel is a Rule of Civil action. It has no application to criminal proceedings though in such proceedings it would be prejudicial to set up a different story. Consequently, this Court comes to the firm conclusion that no estoppel by conduct can be pleaded by accused applicant against first informant/opposite party-2.

36. At this statge, reference may also be made to the judgements of Apex Court where the distinciton and effect of informant in his official capacity and informant in his private capacity have been explained in Municipal Corporation of Delhi Vs. Jagsish Lal and another, 1969 (3) Suprement Court Cases 389, wherein following observations have been made at page 392:

"In the present case Shri Sham Sundar Mathur, Municipal Prosecutor filed the complaint under s. 20 of Act 37 of 1954 under L14Sup.C.I/69-8 the authority given to him by the resolution of the Municipal Corporation. Since the Municipal Corporation, Delhi, is a local authority within the meaning of S. 20 of Act 37 of 1954 and since it conferred authority on the Municipal Prosecutor the complaint was properly filed by Sham Sundar Mathur. The question is whether the Delhi Municipal Corporation or Shri Mathur was the complainant within the - meaning of S. 417(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure. It was argued on behalf of the respondent that the complainant was Shri Sham Sundar Mathur, the Municipal Prosecutor and the Delhi Municipal Corporation was not competent to make an application for special leave unders. 417(3), Cr. P.C. We are unable to accept this argument as correct. It is true that Shri Sham Sundar Mathur filed the complaint petition on August 29, 1960. But in filing the complaint Shri Mathur was not acting on his own personal behalf but was acting as an agent authorised by the Delhi Municipal Corporation to file the complaint. It must, therefore, be deemed in the contemplation of law that the Delhi Municipal Corporation was the complainant in the case. The maxim qui per alium facit per seipsum facere videtur (he who does an act through another is Jeemed in law to do it himself) illustrates the general doctrine on which the law relating to the rights and liabilities of principal and agent depends. We are, therefore, of opinion that Shri Mathur was only acting in a representative capacity and that the Delhi Municipal Corporation was the complainant within the meaning of S. 417(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the petition for special leave and the appeal petition were properly instituted by the Delhi Municipal Corporation. For these reasons we allow the appeal, set aside the judgment of the High Court dated April 9, 1965 and direct that the appeal should be remanded to the High Court for being heard afresh and disposed of according to law."

37. To the similar effect in the judgement in National Small Industries Corporation Limited Vs. State (Nct of Delhi) and others, (2009) 1 Supreme Court Cases 407, wherein Court has observed as under in paragraph-13:-

"13. When an employee of a Government company or statutory corporation, who is a public servant, acts or purports to act in the discharge of his official duties, it necessarily refers to doing acts done or duties discharged by such public servant, for and on behalf of his employer, namely, the government company/statutory corporation. Any complaint by a public servant (if he happens to be an employee of a government company) acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties, can only be in regard to the transactions or affairs of the employer company. When an offence is committed in regard to a transaction of the Government company, it will be illogical to say that a complaint regarding such offence, if made by an employee acting for and on behalf of the company will have the benefit of exemption under clause(a) of the proviso tosection 200 of the Code, but a complaint in regard to very same offence, if made in the name of the company represented by the said employee, will not have the benefit of such exemption. The contention of the second respondent, if accepted, would mean that a complaint by `The Development Officer, NSIC' as the complainant can avail the benefit of exemption, the same complaint by `NSIC represented by its Development Officer' as complainant will not have the benefit of exemption. Such an absurd distinction is clearly to be avoided."

Iv. The last issue as to whether sanction as required under Section 197 Cr.P.C. is to be necessarily granted/obtained before lodging of F.I.R. or same has to be granted /obtained before taking cognizance stands settled by Apex Court recently in Indra Devi Vs. State of Rajasthan and another reported in 2021 (3) RCR (Criminal) 621. For ready reference paragraphs 9, 10, 11 of aforesaid judgement which are relevant for the controversy in hand are reproduced herein-below:

" 9. We have given our thought to the submissions of learned counsel for the parties. Section 197 of the CrPC seeks to protect an officer from unnecessary harassment, who is accused of an offence committed while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties and, thus, prohibits the court from taking cognisance of such offence except with the previous sanction of the competent authority. Public servants have been treated as a special category in order to protect them from malicious or vexatious prosecution. At the same time, the shield cannot protect corrupt officers and the provisions must be construed in such a manner as to advance the cause of honesty, justice and good governance. [See Subramanian Swamy Vs. Manmohan Singh4]. The alleged indulgence of the officers in cheating, fabrication of records or misappropriation cannot be said to be in discharge of their official duty. However, such sanction is necessary if the offence alleged against the public servant is committed by him "while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty" and in order 2 (1979) 4 SCC 177 3 (1993) 3 SCC 339 4 (2012) 3 SCC 64to find out whether the alleged offence is committed "while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty", the yardstick to be followed is to form a prima facie view whether the act of omission for which the accused was charged had a reasonable connection with the discharge of his duties. [See State of Maharashtra Vs. Dr. Budhikota Subbarao]5. The real question, therefore, is whether the act committed is directly concerned with the official duty.

10. We have to apply the aforesaid test to the facts of the present case. In that behalf, the factum of Respondent No.2 not being named in the FIR is not of much significance as the alleged role came to light later on. However, what is of significance is the role assigned to him in the alleged infraction, i.e. conspiring with his superiors. What emerges therefrom is that insofar as the processing of the papers was concerned, Surendra Kumar Mathur, the Executive Officer, had put his initials to the relevant papers which was held in discharge of his official duties. Not only that, Sandeep Mathur, who was part of the alleged transaction, was also similarly granted protection. The work which was assigned to Respondent No.2 pertained to the subject matter of allotment, regularisation, conversion of agricultural land and fell within his domain of work. In the processing of application of Megharam, the file was initially put up to the Executive Officer who directed the inspection and the inspection was carried out by the Junior Engineer and only thereafter the Municipal Commissioner signed the file. The result is that the superior 5 supraofficers, who have dealt with the file, have been granted protection while the clerk, who did the paper work, i.e. Respondent No.2, has been denied similar protection by the trial court even though the allegation is of really conspiring with his superior officers. Neither the State nor the complainant appealed against the protection granted underSection 197of the CrPC qua these two other officers.

11. We are, thus, not able to appreciate why a similar protection ought not to be granted to Respondent No.2 as was done in the case of the other two officials by the Trial Court and High Court respectively. The sanction from competent authority would be required to take cognisance and no sanction had been obtained in respect of any of the officers. It is in view thereof that in respect of the other two officers, the proceedings were quashed and that is what the High Court has directed in the present case as well."

38. In view of the discussion made above, this court has no hesitation to conclude that Court below has allowed criminal revision by recording cogent findings. Court below has neither committed a jurisdictional error nor has it exercised it's jurisdiction with material irregularity. The facts noted for allowing the revision could not be disputed by learned Senior Counsel. On the basis of above, findings recorded in impugned order passed by Court below could not be dislodged by learned Senior counsel appearing for applicant as being illegal, perverse or erroneous. Once the findings could not be dislodged, the conclusion cannot be altered.

39. Apart from above, it is apposite to mention here that order dated 25.10.2019, passed by Magistrate was itself illegal as concerned Magistrate was under legal obligation by virtue of Section 190 Cr.P.C. to see that offence complained of which is a cognizable and non-bailable offence is duly investigated (vide paragraph 27 of judgement in Vishnu Kumar Tiwari (Supra). Concerned Magistrate in complete ignorance of above, accepted the consent of first informant/opposite party-2 showing his agreement with the police report (final report dated 17.02.2015), which otherwise he was not competent to give. Thus, concerned Magistrate had clearly committed a jurisdictional error. It is this mistake which was brought to the notice of Revisional Court in the Revision filed by first informant/opposite party-2, himself. Revisional court has, therefore, rightly allowed the revision.

40. In view of above, no case for quashing of impugned order dated 17.02.2021, passed by Sessions Judge, Maharajganj in Criminal Revision No. 08 of 2021 (Bhanu Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others) has been made out. Consequently, the prayer for quashing of impugned order is refused.

41. However, for the facts and reasons noted above, particularly, paragraphs 26, 27, 28, 29 and 30 of this order, I am of the view that order impugned in present application needs to be modified by this Court in exercie of jurisdiction under section 482 Cr.P.C./Article 227 of Constitution of India. The F.I.R was lodged on 26.8.2014 and a period of almost seven years has rolled by from the date of F.I.R. but same has not yet been investigated. Considering the totality of facts and circumstances, the orders dated 6.8.2016 and 17.02.2021, passed by Revisional Court, I am of the view that interest of justice shall be served in case aforesaid orders are modified to the extent that Case Crime No. 1223 of 2014 under Section 409 I.P.C. P.S. Kotwali, District-Maharajganj shall be further investigated by a different Investigating Officer, by examining all concerned.

42. With the aforesaid modification, this application is finally disposed of.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Aftab Husain Rizvi, J.)

1. This criminal misc. application under section 482 Cr.P.C. is filed challenging the order dated 16.04.2021 passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri and order dated 02.09.2021 passed by Sessions Judge, Mainpuri in criminal revision no.28 of 2021 (Akhilesh Kumar vs. State of U.P.) in crime no.165 of 2021 under Sections 60/72 Excise Act and Section 272, 420 IPC, P.S. Kotwali, District Mainpuri.

2. In brief the facts are that an FIR crime no.165 of 2021 was lodged on 16.03.2021. According to prosecution case on 16.03.2021, the police party on information received from informer, intercepted 3 four wheelers and on search recovered 200 ltrs adulterated illicit liquor contained in five jerrycans and seized two vehicles Mahindra Marazzo, Registration No. UP 84 CA 5621 and a Toyota Qualis bearing no. UP83 AR 4994. The police also arrested seven persons who are named in the FIR. The applicant moved an application before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri for release of vehicle No. UP 84 CA 5621 Mahindra Marazzo, on the ground that he is the registered owner of the vehicle. On 15.03.021 his driver has took away the vehicle in marriage of his relative. The police seized the vehicle from the house of the driver and implicated it in this case. This release application was dismissed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri by the impugned order dated 16.04.2021. Aggrieved with it, the applicant preferred criminal revision no.28 of 2021 which has also been dismissed by the Sessions Judge, Mainpuri vide impugned judgment and order dated 02.09.2021.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that applicant is the owner of the vehicle and GPS system clearly shows that the vehicle in question was not present at the spot as told by the prosecution. The applicant has filed release application during pendency of the confiscation proceedings. The vehicle is standing in the open space and there is chance of natural decay. The vehicle is a court property and court has power to release it in favour of the registered owner during pendency of the trial. The property is mechanical in nature and if it remain unused and not taken due care, it may became useless. It is also contended that no offence under section 60/72 Excise Act and Sections 272 & 420 IPC is made out. The impugned orders passed by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mainpuri and Sessions Judge, Mainpuri are wholly illegal and bad in the eyes of law. Learned counsel also contended that the learned Magistrate has rejected the application on the ground that he has no jurisdiction as confiscation proceeding is pending. The view taken by the learned Magistrate is erroneous. The revisional court has adopted the same view and relying on the citation of State (NCT) of Delhi. vs. Narendra 2014 (13) SCC 100 and Mustafa vs. State of U.P. Civil Appeal No.6438 of 2019 (arising out of SLP (Civil) No.1111 of 2018) and Virendra Gupta vs. State of U.P. 2019 (6) ADJ 432 Division Bench Allahabad High Court has dismissed the revision also. Both the courts below have misinterpreted the aforesaid citations and have failed to apply the correct law. The jurisdiction of the Magistrate is not barred. Learned counsel placed reliance on the case of Murad Ali vs State of U.P. decided on 23.11.2021 in application U/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.21547 of 2021 and the case of Chandra Pal vs. State of U.P., application U/s 482 Cr.P.C No.1325 of 2021 decided on 12.02.2021.

4. Learned A.G.A. contended that the vehicle is involved in a crime under Excise Act. Police has seized the vehicle and has reported the seizure to the District Magistrate. Confiscation proceeding is pending and the learned Magistrate has rightly held that as the confiscation proceeding is pending, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction with regard to release. Learned revisional court has also upheld it. There is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned orders.

5. It is undisputed that vehicle Mahindra Marazzo registration no.UP 84 CA 5621 has been seized by the police in crime no.165 of 2021 under section 60/72 of U.P. Excise Act and Section 272, 420 IPC. The confiscation proceedings has been initiated. Revisionist is the registered owner of the vehicle and he moved release application before the concerned Magistrate during confiscation proceeding. Learned Magistrate rejected the aforesaid application on the ground that during pendency of the confiscation proceedings under section 72 of U.P. Excise Act, the Magistrate has no power to release the vehicle. The revisional court also upheld it.

6. Now the question is whether during confiscation proceedings under section 72 of U.P. Excise Act, the Magistrate is empowered to release the vehicle. In case of (Nand vs. State of U.P.) 1997 (1) AWC 41 and (Rajeev Kumar Singh vs. State of U.P. and ors) 2017 (5) ADJ 351, the learned Single Judge of this Court held that the Magistrate has jurisdiction while in the case of Ved Prakash vs. State of U.P. 1982 AWC 167 another Bench of this Court held that the Magistrate has no jurisdiction in the matter. The matter again came before another learned Single Judge of this Court and taking notice of the conflicting views the learned Single Judge referred the matter to Division Bench. The Division Bench in (Virendra Gupta vs. State of U.P). 2019 (6) ADJ 432 (DB), on the aforesaid reference formulated the following question:

"Whether pending confiscation proceedings under Section 72 of the U.P. Excise Act before the Collector, the Magistrate/ Court has jurisdiction to release any property subject-matter of confiscation proceedings in exercise of powers under Sections 451, 452 or 457 of the Code of Criminal Procedure?"

7. The Division Bench interpreting the various provisions of Cr.P.C. and U.P. Excise Act and the law laid down by the Apex Court in (Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai vs. State of Gujarat), 2002 (10) SCC 283 and (State GNCJ of Delhi) vs. Narendra (2014) 13 SCC 100 answered the aforesaid question in para no.20 of the judgment which is reproduced as below:

" In view of the foregoing discussion, we find that the case of Ved Prakash (supra) lays down the correct law on the subject-matter of this reference and neither Nand vs. State of U.P., 1997 (1) AWC 41 or Rajiv Kumar Singh vs. State of U.P. and others, 2017 (5) ADJ 351 nor Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai vs. State of Gujarat, 2002 (10) SCC 283, can be said to be authorities on the power of the Magistrate to release anything seized or detained in connection with an offence committed under the ''Act' in respect of which confiscation proceedings under Section 72 of the U.P. Excise Act are pending before the Collector."

8. So the law has been settled by the Division Bench of this Court which has held that during confiscation proceeding, the Magistrate has no power under sections 451 or 457 Cr.P.C. to release the vehicle.

9. Learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance on the case of Chandra Pal vs. State of U.P. in Application U/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.1325 of 2021 decided on 21.02.2021 and Murad Ali vs. State of U.P. and two ors in Application U/s 482 Cr.P.C. No.21547 of 2021 decided on 23.11.2021. In the aforesaid case, the learned Single Judge has held that Magistrate has jurisdiction to release the vehicle during confiscation proceedings but in view of the law propounded by the Division Bench of Allahabad High Court this view cannot be adopted.

10. From the aforesaid discussion, it is clear that during confiscation proceedings, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to release the vehicle seized under section 72 of U.P. Excise Act. The findings recorded by the learned Magistrate and upheld by the revisional court are according to law. There is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned order and the application U/s 482 Cr.P.C. is liable to be dismissed.

11. According the application U/s 482 Cr.P.C. is hereby dismissed.

A. Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 482 - Excise Act, 1910- Sections 60/72-release of vehicle-vehicle in question has been confiscated by the District Magistrate and the applicant has not challenged the order of confiscation before the Appellate Court-As per Section 72(7) of U.P. Excise Act, Civil appeal would lie before the District Judge against the order of confiscation passed by the District Magistrate-thus, the instant application is not maintainable on account of having alternative statutory remedy available to the applicant.(Para 1 to 12)

The application is dismissed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjay Kumar Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicant, learned AGA for opposite party no. 1 and perused the record.

2. The instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been preferred by the applicant to quash the order dated 08.10.2021 passed by Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Mainpuri whereby an application for release of Vehicle No. UP-84-AH-0198 of the applicant has been rejected mainly on the ground that Vehicle No. UP-84-AH-0198 of the applicant which was seized in Case Crime No. 144 of 2021, under Section 60 Excise Act, Police Station Ghiror, District Mainpuri has been confiscated by the order of District Magistrate in favour of the State, therefore, application under Section 457 Cr.P.C. for release of the said vehicle by the applicant is not maintainable.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that aforesaid vehicle of the applicant is lying in police station and in case, the same is not released in favour of the applicant, the condition of the vehicle will be deteriorated, therefore, no useful purpose would be served in keeping the said vehicle in the police station.

4. Learned AGA submits that in view of the alternative remedy available under the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 for filing civil appeal against the order of confiscation of vehicle, the instant application is not maintainable and there is no illegality in the impugned order dated 08.10.2021.

5. Having examined the matter in its entirety, it is relevant to mention that clause (e) of sub-Section (1) of Section 72 of U.P. Excise Act, 1910 provides that whenever an offence is punishable under this Act, every animal, cart, vessel or other conveyance used in carrying such receptacle or package shall be liable to confiscation. The power of confiscation of vehicle has been given to the Collector of the District and sub-section 7 of Section 72 provides appeal against the order of confiscation under sub-section 2 or sub-section 6 of Section 72 to the Judicial Authority as the Government may appoint.

6. Sub-section 7 of Section 72 of U.P. Excise Act, 1910 is being reproduced as under:-

"(7) Any person aggrieved by an order of confiscation under sub-section (2) or sub-section (6) may, within one month from the date of the communication to him of such order, appeal to judicial authority as the State Government may appoint in this behalf and the judicial authority shall, after giving an opportunity to the appellant to be heard, pass such order as it may think fit, confirming, modifying or annulling the order appealed against."

7. It is noteworthy that for the purpose of section 72(7) of U.P. Excise Act vide Notification No.4986 (E)/XIII-517 dated June 4th, 1978 of आबकारी अनुभाग , appellate judicial authority appointed by the State Government is "District Judge" and an appeal should be regarded as Civil Appeal (not Criminal) and is required to be decided by the District Judge himself.

8. In view of the above, there is no dispute that as per provisions of Section 72(7) of U.P. Excise Act, 1910, against the order of confiscation passed by the District Magistrate, Civil Appeal would lie before the District Judge of the respective District.

9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, I find that learned counsel for the applicant does not dispute the aforesaid fact that vehicle in question has already been confiscated by the District Magistrate and the applicant has not challenged the order of confiscation before the Appellate Court.

10. Accordingly, the instant application is not liable to be entertained on account of having alternative statutory remedy available to the applicant as mentioned above.

11. The application lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

12. However, it is open for the applicant to file civil appeal as per the provisions of U.P. Excise Act, 1910 before the competent Civil Courts, the District Judge, Mainpuri subject to law of limitation.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. On 4th February, 2021, this Court passed following order:

"On 5th December, 2016, a Coordinate Bench of this Court passed following order:

"The present application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed with the prayer to quash the entire proceedings of case no. 8008 of 2016, under Sections 31 Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 (hereinafter referred to as the Act), Police Station Civil Lines, District Allahabad pending in the court of Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 10, Allahabad. Further prayer has been made to stay further proceedings of the aforesaid case.

Heard learned counsel for the applicant as well as the learned AGA.

It is submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that during the pendency of the appeal filed against the order under Section 12 of the Act an application under Section 31 of the Act was moved by the aggrieved party. Concerned Magistrate exceeding the jurisdiction passed the orders dated 4.11.2016 and 8.11.2016. In the original order passed passed under Section 12 of the Act no relief/protection of right to residence was given. Since Section 31 of the Act is related to the execution of the order passed under Section 12 of the Act, no further order could be passed under Section 31 of the Act. It was further argued that Section 31 of the Act only deals with the penalty for breach of protection order by respondent. It was further argued that the impugned order passed by the court concerned in the proceedings under Section 31 of the Act are not appealable.

Matter requires consideration.

Learned AGA has accepted notice on behalf of the opposite party no.1.

Issue notice to opposite party no. 2.

Steps be taken by Registered Post A.D. within a week.

All the opposite parties may file counter affidavit within four weeks. Rejoinder affidavit may be filed within two weeks thereafter.

List this matter on 30.1.2017 before the appropriate Bench.

Till the next date of listing, effect and operation of the orders dated 4.11.2016 and 8.11.2016 shall remain stayed."

On 26th August, 2019, the same Coordinate Bench of this Court passed following order:

"Present application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed with a prayer to set-aside the order dated 4.11.2016 passed by the Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.10, Allahabad in the proceedings under section 31 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act.

Perusal of the record reveals that no such relief was granted in the order dated 22.8.2016 passed in case no.1362 of 2013 (Smt. Priyanka Vs. Arvind Kumar Upadhyay) in the proceedings under section 12 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act as allowed on 4.11.2016 in the proceeding under section 31 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act.

Keeping in view the above facts, I find it necessary to call for a report from the court concerned / Addl. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.10, Allahabad whether the order dated 4.11.2016 could be passed in the petition under section 31 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act beyond the relief granted vide order dated 22.8.2016.
Thus, office is directed to send copy of this order to the court concerned within three days from today through Fax for submission of report.

List this matter on 18.9.2019.

In the meantime, rejoinder affidavit may be filed by the learned counsel for the applicant.

Interim order, if any, is extended till the next date of listing."

On 27th November, 2019, an another Coordinate Bench of this Court passed following order:

"Learned counsel for the applicant is present.

He has mentioned that in compliance of Court's order, dated 6.11.2019, Arvind Upadhayay is not in a position to attend this Court because he is missing and a missing report has been lodged at Police Station, concerned, wherein, a report of Police, dated 16.5.2018, in form of certified copy, has been filed to the court, concerned. The same has been produced before this Court, too, though it is not supported by any affidavit. As the same is certified copy of Civil court, hence, perusal of it, reveals above situation. But, this report is of 16.5.2018, whereas, the order is of 6.11.2019. What was the situation, in between, has not been brought on record.

This Court has directed Arvind Upadhayay for being present before this Court, but, he failed to appear in person before this Court. Hence, let Bailable Warrant be issued against Arvind Upadhayay, through, the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi, for ensuring presence of Arvind Upadhayay before this Court on the next date fixed.

Smt. Priyanaka Upadhyay, Opposite party no.2, who is present in person, has vehemently argued that Arvind Upadhayay is not missing, rather, for avoiding implementation of order of this Court, this step has been taken by him. Order, passed by the Magistrate, under Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, is not being complied with, whereas, stay order has been obtained and the same is being misused.

In view of above contention, it would be appropriate that let the matter be placed on the next date, fixed, to consider as to why stay order, if any, may not be vacated.

Inspite of repeated direction of this Court, calling for explanation from the concerned Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No.10, Allahabad, compliance report, in the form of explanation, has not been received as yet.

District & Sessions Judge, Allahabad, is being directed for ensuring submission of explanation, in the form of compliance report, by above Court, at the earliest, otherwise, presence of the Presiding Officer, concerned, in person may be directed to be procured, by this court.

List this case, for hearing, on 8th January, 2020."

On 8th January, 2020, the said Coordinate Bench of this Court passed following order:

"Learned counsel for both sides are present.

Report-cum-explanation by Judicial Magistrate, Allahabad, has been filed and taken on record.

Perusal of report reveals that previous report was also submitted but it was not there on record, copy of same has been filed. Impugned order has been passed by the then Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-X, Neeraj Kumar Garg and present Magistrate, who has filed reply, was of no concern. Even, she was not in service on above date. Hence, District and Sessions Judge, Allahabad, was directed to ensure submission of explanation of Magistrate, who had passed order under Section 31 of Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005. But the explanation by the Magistrate concerned has yet not been filed. District and Sessions Judge, Allahabad, is being directed to ensure submission of explanation of the then Magistrate, over query made by this Court, regarding passing of order, over an application moved under Section 31 of the Act, beyond the order given under Section 12 of the Act.

Arvind Upadhyay was directed to be present before this Court and it has been mentioned by his counsel that he is missing. A missing report was got lodged. The other side Priyanka Upadhyay, in person, had vehemently opposed this fact and had argued that he is at his parental residence and avoiding process of law. If he is missing, then how he is in contact with his counsel, who is arguing in this case. This seems to be a forceful argument. Hence, learned counsel for the applicant to ensure presence of Arvind Upadhyay before this Court.

Let N.B.W. be issued against Arvind Upadhyay, through, C.J.M., Varanasi, for ensuring his presence before this Court.

List in week commencing 24.2.2020.

Interim order, if any, shall continue till the next date. "

Today, on the matter being taken up, learned counsel for the applicant is present and he states that the applicant, namely, Arvind Upadhyay is missing and he has not been traced out. He, therefore, prays that the matter may be posted for some other date and till then, the interim protection granted earlier to the applicant be also extended.

On the other-hand, opposite party no.2, namely, Smt. Priyanka Upadhyay, who is present in person states that the applicant is not missing and deliberately he is disobeying the orders of the Court and enjoying the benefits of the interim order granted earlier to him in collusion with the officials and officers of the Police Department. It is impossible to believe that if the applicant is missing, then how he is in contact with his counsel, who is arguing in this case.

On perusal of the order of the Coordinate Bench of this Court dated 27th November, 2019 quoted herein above, this Court finds substance in the submission made by opposite party no.2 that the applicant is not missing and he has been avoiding the order of this Court and process of law deliberately and due to the same, the Coordinate Bench vide order dated 27th November, 2019, has directed the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi for issuing bailable warrant against the applicant so that he may be appeared before this Court but he has not appeared. On 8th January, 2020, the said Coordinate Bench has not only directed the Chief Judicial magistrate, Varanasi to issue non-bailable warrant against the applicant for ensuring his presence before this Court but also directed the learned counsel for the applicant to ensure the presence of the applicant before this Court. Despite bailable warrant and non-bailable warrant having been issued and more than one year and two months from the date of the order dated 27th November, 2019 and one year and one month from the date of order dated 8th January, 2020 having been elapsed, the applicant has not appeared before this Court. Learned counsel for the applicant has also not ensured the presence of the applicant before this Court.

In view of the aforesaid, this Court has no other option but to discharge the interim order dated 5th December, 2016 granted to the applicant and to direct the Senior Superintendent of Police, Varanasi for ensuring the presence of the applicant before this Court on the next date.

The interim order dated 5th December, 2016 is, accordingly, discharged. The Senior Superintendent of Police, Varanasi shall ensure that the applicant, namely, Arvind Upadhyaya, son of Shri Lakshmi Prasad Upadhyaya, resident of 7/5A, Benipur Pahadia, Police Station-Sarnath, District-Varanasi is brought before this Court on the next date.

The status report about the issuance of bailable warrant and non-bailable warrant by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi is not on record. The Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi is directed to file the same before this Court on the next date.

The explanation of the then Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 10, Allahabad,namely, Neeraj Kumar Garg (now Additional District and Sessions Judge, Khurja, Bulandshahr), dated 27th January, 2020, who has passed the order dated 4th November, 2016 under Section 31 of the Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act and the order dated 22nd August, 2016 has been sent to this Court through the District Judge, Allahabad and the same is on record, which is marked as Flag-D of the order-sheet.

Before expressing any opinion on the explanation given by the then Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, the reply of the learned counsel for the applicant is required.

Office is directed to provide a copy of the explanation dated 27th January, 2020 to the learned counsel for the applicant within three days. On receipt of the same, the learned counsel for the applicant shall file reply to the same by means of a supplementary affidavit.

Opposite party no.2 shall also file counter affidavit on or before the next date.

Put up this case on 22nd February, 2020 in the additional cause list.

The Registrar General is directed to sent a copy of this order to the Senior Superintendent of Police, Varanasi and the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Varanasi for necessary compliance at their end within 48 hours."

2. When the applicant was not being traced out, this Court on 8th September, 2021 passed following order:

"On the matter being taken up, Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. assisted by Mr. Gaurav Pratap Singh, brief holder for the State and Mrs. Priyanka Upadhyaya, opposite party no.2 (in person) are present. Mr. Rajiv Upadhyay, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Rahul Mishra, Advocate who has filed an intervention application on behalf of one Laxmi Prasad Upadhyay, who happens to be the father of the applicant is also present. However, neither Mrs. Alka Singh and nor Mr. Vipin Kumar Singh, Advocates who have filed the present application on behalf of the applicant and also appeared before the Court earlier, are not present in the Court today, even in the revised reading of the list.

At this stage, this case has turned into a strange case, in which, being wife i.e. opposite party no.2 filed a case against her husband i.e. the applicant herein under the provisions of Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 before the court below and the court below passed order dated 4th November, 2016 directing the husband to provide a separate living room to wife and daughter as also to give Rs. 1000/- for their maintenance. On the application filed by wife i.e. opposite party no.2, the court below passed another order dated 8th November, 2016 that if the husband i.e. applicant does not comply the order dated 4th November, 2016, the Station House Officer, Sarnath shall ensure the compliance of the said order. Against both the orders, the present application has been filed by the husband i.e. applicant, who obtained an interim order dated 5th December, 2016 ex parte, whereby the orders dated 4th and 8th November, 2016 were stayed till the next date of listing. Thereafter the wife i.e. opposite party no.2 appeared in the present case to defend her case in the present application. When the Court asked the learned counsel for the applicant to ensure production of the applicant before the Court, it has been informed by the learned counsel for the applicant that he is missing since 9th April, 2017 and a first information report about his missing has also been lodged on 16th May, 2018 at Police Station-Sarnath, District-Varanasi. Learned counsel for the applicant has further informed the Court that now he has no instruction on behalf of the applicant, as he is not in his contact. Thereafter Court passed various orders directing the learned counsel for the applicant as well as District Police Varanasi to ensure the production of the applicant before the Court but the applicant has not been produced before this Court either by the learned counsel for the applicant or by the District Police, Varanasi.

In compliance of the order of the Court dated 28th March, 2021, an affidavit sworn by Mr. Vikrant Vir, Deputy Commissioner of Police, Varuna Zone, Varanasi has been filed today in the Court on behalf of the State, which is taken on record. In paragraph nos. 4 to 6, it has been stated as follows:

"4. That in compliance of the order passed by this Hon'ble Court the earlier Incharge of Police D.I.G./Senior Superintendent of Police, Varanasi has constituted a team for the search of applicant namely Arvind Upadhyay vide order dated 26.02-2021.

5. That the team constituted vide order dated 26.2.201 has with great effort tried to search the whereabouts of the applicant on various dates and places, which has been entered in G.D. record and the same can be produced before this Hon'ble Court as and when the Court wishes to peruse, however, the entire gist with regard to the efforts made by the searching team is being placed before this Hon'ble Court by way of progress report dated 02.04.2021 through the answering respondent. A Photostat copy of the progress report dated 02.04.2021 is being annexed herewith and marked as ANNEXURE-2 to this affidavit.

6.That the police team constituted earlier is still searching the applicant namely Arvind Upadhyay with serious efforts and the same will be produced as and when recovered without wasting any time in compliance of the orders of this Hon'ble Court."

This Court is sorry to record that the affidavit filed on behalf of the District Police of Varanasi is too flimsy to be accepted by this Court. The story made out in the affidavit from the side of Police is highly improbable, which is nothing else but a scene of drama. A person, who is missing since 9th April, 2017 and whose missing report has been lodged on 16th May, 2018, is not traceable inspite of all the efforts of the police. The same appears to be fishy as stated by the wife of the applicant i.e. opposite party no.2 herein. In today's modern era, where the policemen have got all the facilities, yet the police is not able to find out a person, despite several orders of this Court. This creates a doubt in the mind of a common ordinary person. Either the police can say that they have not got full powers or facilities or they are not able to find out the person, who is missing since 9th April, 2017 and this case should be given to some other agency.

The opposite party no.2, wife of the applicant, who is present, states before this Court that she has disclosed to the Police regarding whereabouts of the applicant but the Police reaches the place after giving space to the applicant to flee from there. It has also been brought to the knowledge of the Court that several cases, wherein maintenance has been awarded by the orders of the court, are pending and even notices have not been served upon the parties due to which women are suffering, as in the present case, which is the best example of harassment faced by the women even after passage of nearly five years from the date of orders in her favour.

An Intervention Application has been filed by Mr. Rahul Mishra, Advocate on behalf of one Laxmi Prasad Upadhyay, who happens to be the father of the applicant. In the affidavit filed in support of the intervention application, it has been stated that it is only because of the applicant's mental imbalance induced due to long standing acrimony, differences, disputes with opposite party no.2 that he went missing and could not be found till date despite Gumshudagi Report lodged in the year 2017 itself. It is further stated that neither he nor any of his relatives have any knowledge about the whereabouts of the applicant-Arvind Kumar Upadhyay and therefore, he and his wife who are ailing senior citizens may be rescued from the police authorities, who are harassing and victimising them on the pretext of complying with various orders of the Hon'ble Court. In the intervention application, it has also been stated that during the pendency of the present application, the applicant-Arvind Kumar Upadhyay suffered with mental imbalance and was subjected to treatment at Mental Hospital, Varanasi and while he was receiving treatment, he left the house and went missing since 9th April, 2017, true copies of medical treatment from Mental Hospital, Varanasi has been enclosed as Annexure-1 to the affidavit accompanying the Intervention Application.

To the averments made in the affidavit accompanying the Intervention Application, opposite party no.2 submits before this Court that the applicant is not missing anywhere, he has deliberately left his house and is hidden somewhere. The father and other family members of the applicant have also helped him only in order to disobey the orders of the court below dated 4th November, 2016 and dated 8th November, 2016. Opposite party no.2 further submits that after the orders of the court below dated 4th and 8th November, 2016, father of the applicant (Intervenor before this Court) has deliberately sold his properties only for harassing opposite party no.2 and her female child as well as to disobey the orders of the court below and this Court. Opposite party no.2 further submits that the averment made in the intervention application that the applicant was suffering from some mental imbalance for which his treatment was going on in Mental Hospital Varanasi, is also incorrect, because the medical prescriptions, which have been enclosed along with the affidavit accompanying the intervention application, do not establish as to the exact mental ailment of the applicant. Lastly, opposite party no.2 submits that the conduct of the father of the applicant (Intervenor) and other family members of the applicant is doubtful.

Prima facie, the submissions made by opposite party no.2 appears to be correct.

Opposite party no.2 may file response, if any, to the aforesaid intervention application on or before the next date.

In this case, there is a question of maintenance of a married woman and her small daughter in these hard days. Now when the husband of a woman (applicant and opposite party no.2 herein) is not available, then her mother-in-law and father-in-law, who are like her father and mother, also become their responsibility. After marriage, a woman's husband and in-laws are everything. In this case, there is a question of peaceful life, safety and education of a girl child, who is none other but grand-daughter of the parents of the applicant. In-laws of a woman or grand parents of a girl child cannot leave her daughter-in-law or grand daughter alone if the husband of said woman or father of the said girl child, is missing.

In view of the present facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is left with no option but to direct the Commissioner of Police, Varanasi to appear before this Court for explaining the fair conduct of the Police of District Varanasi. However, seeing the intricacies, this Court constrains itself in passing such orders without affording one opportunity to such a Senior Officer of the Police Department at Varanasi. This Court, therefore, directs the Commissioner of Police, Varanasi to file his personal affidavit categorically explaining as to why the applicant is not traceable by the Police, despite the fact that a first information report about the missing of the applicant has been lodged on 16th May, 2018 at Sarnath Police Station, Varanasi and various orders have been passed by this Court for production of the applicant before the Court. In the affidavit it shall also be disclosed about the prima facie observations made by this Court herein above. In the affidavit, it shall also be indicated as to how many days, the applicant shall be traceable by the Police. The affidavit shall be filed on or before the next date i.e. 29th September, 2021.

Seeing this pitiable predicament of a woman, who has been grappling from pillar to post and getting hoodwinked by multifarious impediments, which are purportedly for the objective of harbouring the applicant from the shrewdness of this Court, excogitated by the family of the husband, is an archetype illustration of the loopholes in way of our criminal justice system. To counteract and proscribe kindred occurrences in future and to safeguard the right to maintenance of wives, this Court directs the Commissioner of Police, Varanasi also to find out properties/whereabouts of the applicant as well as in-laws of opposite party no.2 promptly and after searching the same, in any one of the property/whereabout, he shall ensure that opposite party no.2 and her daughter are permitted to stay, so that the orders of the court below dated 4th and 8th November, 2016 may be complied with, as interim order granted earlier by this Court staying the operation of the same has not been extended and same stood discharged earlier. He shall also take assistance of opposite party no.2 i.e. wife of the applicant in tracing him as well as finding out the properties of the applicant and his father.

On the next date, the District Judge, Varanasi as well as the Commissioner of Police Varanasi, shall inform the Court of the similar cases, where the maintenance has been awarded by the courts but the same has not been executed, as summons have not been served till date.

On earlier occasions, the Court has been informed that the applicant is not missing and he is in contact with his counsels, who are not present in the Court today. On the last occasion also i.e. 1st March, 2021, learned counsels for the applicant were not present.

The appearance of Mrs. Alka Singh and Mr. Vipin Kumar Singh, Advocates, who have filed their vakalatnama on behalf of the applicant in the present application and also appeared earlier, before the Court on his behalf, are necessarily required in the present strange case.

The Secretary, Allahabad High Court Bar Association, Allahabad shall ensure that Mrs. Alka Singh (A/A-0060/16) and nor Mr. Vipin Kumar Singh, Advocates, (En. No.-04687105, AOR No.-A/V.-0438/12, Mobile No. 9415630302), resident of 148A, N.B. H.C., Allahabad, appear in the Court on the next date i.e. 29th September, 2021.

Put up this case on 29th September, 2021 at 02:00 p.m.

A copy of this order shall be provided to the learned A.G.A., who shall communicate the same to the District Judge, Varanasi, Commissioner of Police, Varanasi as well as to the Secretary, Allahabad High Court Bar, Association for necessary compliance by Wednesday i.e. 15th September, 2021.

The party shall file computer generated copy of this order downloaded from the official website of the High Court, Allahabad, self attested by the party concerned along with a self attested identity proof of the said person(s) (preferably Aadhar Card) mentioning the mobile number(s) to which the said Aadhar Card is linked.

The concerned Court/Authority/Official shall verify the authenticity of such computerized copy of the order from the official website of High Court, Allahabad and shall made a declaration of such verification in writing."

3. Thereafter on 6th October, 2021, 27th October, 2021, 17th November, 2021 and 16th December, 2021, this Court passed orders for tracing out the applicant, namely, Arvind Upadhya. Ultimately, when the matter was taken up on 10th March, 2022, the Court has been informed by Mr. J.K. Upadhaya, learned A.G.A. for the State that the applicant has been recovered by the Police in compliance of the orders of this Court passed earlier. On the said date, for amicably settling the dispute between the applicant and opposite party no.2, this Court passed following order:

"Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A for the State submits that in compliance of the order of the Court dated 16th December, 2021, he has received instructions and the same has been placed before this Court, which is taken on record.

Pursuant to the order of this Court dated 16th December, 2021, the applicant, namely, Arvind Upadhyaya, has been found by the team of the Police so constituted by the Commissioner of Police, Varanasi in compliance of the earlier orders of this Court. Since the applicant and his parents have misled the government officials and police in order to avoid the orders of this Court as well as court below, a first information report has been lodged by Sub-Inspector, Police Station- Sarnath, District Varanasi on 4th January, 2022,against the applicant and his father and mother, namely, Laxmi Shanker Upadhyay and Radhika Devi, which has been registered as Crime No. 0006 of 2022 under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 182, 188 and 120-B I.P.C., Police Station-Sarnath, District Varanasi pursuant to which the applicant has been taken into custody and sent to jail. At present, the applicant is in District Jail, Varanasi.

From the perusal of the entire material available on records of the present application, it is apparently clear that the applicant along with his parents is tried to disobey the orders of this Court and the court below and have also misled the authorities concerned and this Court, hence the appearance of the applicant is required for appropriate adjudication of the matter.

Accordingly, the Commissioner of Police, Varanasi and the Superintendent of District Jail, Varanasi are directed to ensure the appearance of the applicant before this Court on 23rd March, 2022 in the judicial custody.

On the basis of instructions so received by Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. Gaurav Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the State, it is also clear that the parents of the applicant, namely, Laxmi Shanker Upadhyay and Radhika Devi had also helped the applicant in running away from the Police authorities and in disobeying the orders of this Court and the court below. As such, the presence of the parents of the applicant is also required.

Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. Gaurav Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the State are directed to make all endeavour to ensure that the parents of the applicant, namely, Laxmi Shanker Upadhyay and Radhika Devi, are appeared before this Court on the next date for which they shall take help of the concerned Police authorities.

For proper adjudication of the present matter, Mrs. Anjali Upadhyay, opposite party no.2, who is present in person, is also directed that on the next date, she shall appear before this Court along with her parents.

List this case on 23rd March, 2022 at 02:00 p.m.

A copy of this order be provided to Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. Gaurav Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the State by tomorrow i.e. 11th March, 2022, who shall communicate the same to Commissioner of Police, Varanasi and the Superintendent of District Jail, Varanasi for necessary compliance of this order henceforth.

The Registrar General is also directed to communicate this order to the Commissioner of Police, Varanasi and the Superintendent of District Jail, Varanasi for necessary compliance."

4. While exercising its extra ordinary power under Section 482 Cr.P.C., seeing the fact that woman along with her daughter i.e. opposite party no.2 filed a case against her husband i.e. the applicant herein under the provisions of Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 before the court below and the court below passed order dated 4th November, 2016 directing the husband to provide a separate living room to wife and daughter as also to give Rs. 1000/- for their maintenance. On the application filed by wife i.e. opposite party no.2, the court below passed another order dated 8th November, 2016 that if the husband i.e. applicant does not comply the order dated 4th November, 2016, the Station House Officer, Sarnath shall ensure the compliance of the said order. Against both the orders, the present application has been filed by the husband i.e. applicant, who obtained an interim order dated 5th December, 2016 ex parte, whereby the orders dated 4th and 8th November, 2016 were stayed till the next date of listing. Thereafter the wife i.e. opposite party no.2 appeared in person in the present case to defend her case in the present application. When the Court asked the learned counsel for the applicant to ensure production of the applicant before the Court, it has been informed by the learned counsel for the applicant that he is missing since 9th April, 2017 and a first information report about his missing has also been lodged on 16th May, 2018 at Police Station-Sarnath, District-Varanasi. Learned counsel for the applicant has further informed the Court that now he has no instruction on behalf of the applicant, as he is not in his contact. Thereafter, this Court had come to a conclusion that the applicant is escaping from his wife and daughter only in order to avoid the orders of the Court, whereby he has been directed to pay maintenance to his wife and daughter. Therefore, this Court only in order to ensure that maintenance is provided to a woman and her daughter in accordance with law, for the same various orders have been passed including the order discharging the interim order passed in the present application dated 5th December, 2016. In between, on the discharge application made by both the learned counsel appearing for the applicant that neither they had any instruction on behalf of the applicant nor they were in contact with him, this Court discharged the appearance of both the counsel in the present application and only for ensuring the maintenance for being provided to opposite party no.2, this Court did not dismiss the present application and proceeded further. Therefore, this Court wanted to resolve the matters relating to Family and Marital Disputes arrived between the parties, who are none other than the husband and wife, who have a daughter.

5. This Court very well knew that if any dispute arrives between the husband and wife, the challenge is mostly faced by females because they are assumed to handle the age-old responsibility of taking care of the family and children, it is more of a challenge for a female because when she is earning it becomes even more difficult because she is entrusted with two responsibilities that is of taking care of the house and the children and also to take care of the work and the career they have persuade. One of the major reasons in India for the marital conflict or even dispute to arise is when a woman is married to a man and a man is married to a woman then it is not just enough that they have married just each other but they actually get married to each other's family too. Especially in India, there is a lot of involvement of each other's family into the marital life which can sometimes create a problem. Another reason that can create a problem in the marital relations is dealing with each other's habits and addictions. For example, addiction to alcohol, smoking, television and so on, or the habit of simply coming late back home. These habits might not just give a way to a conflict but can cause disputes for the same. The major objective of this paper is to highlight what problem a woman faces or how domestic violence is a stigma to the society but it is to see how our legal system handles the above-mentioned problems with the tool called Mediation.

6. Considering the aforesaid facts, when the applicant has been recovered by the respondent-Police in compliance of the orders of this Court passed from time to time, this Court vide order dated 10th March, 2022 directed the authorities concerned to ensure the presence of applicant and his parents before this Court on the next date. The Court has also required the opposite party no.2 to remain present on the next date.

7. In compliance of the order of the Court dated 10th March, 2022, the applicant, namely, Arvind Upadhya has been produced before this Court today in the judicial custody from District Jail, Varanasi by Mr. Shabir, Sub-Inspector, Mr. Anvaar Ahmad, Head Constable and Mr. Ram Kumar, Constable of Police Lines, Commissionerate, Varanasi. Signatures of the applicant has also been identified by the said Police Personnels.

8. Pursuant to the order dated 10th March, 2022, the father and mother of the applicant, namely, Laxmi Shanker Upadhyay and Radhika Devi have also been produced by Mr. Sudhakar, Sub-Inspector, Police Station-Sarnath, District-Varanasi and their signatures have also been identified by Mr. Sudhakar.

9. Mrs. Anjali Upadhyay, opposite party no.2 is also present in the Court today. Despite the fact that this Court on 10th March, 2022 has orally directed Mrs. Upadhyay to appear on the next date along with her father or brother so that a concrete mediation may be done between the parties, she has not brought her father or brother to this Court.

10. Since the dispute between the parties is matrimonial in nature, this matter has been taken up in the Chambers of the Court.

11. To arrive at a amicable settlement between the parties, this Court first called the applicant and his parents to have their say in the matter and this Court asked them as to why they are not keeping the opposite party no.2 Anjali Upadhyay and her daughter and they are not giving money for the house and alimony for his wife and child for their livlihood as maintenance. This Court also asked the applicant as to why he was running away from his wife i.e. opposite party no.2 on which they told that they want to keep Anjali and her daughter but the opposite party no.2 did not live with her in-laws. Opposite party no.2 is not a normal woman. She used to harass, abuse and beat the applicant and his parents. She also calls them stupid, idiots and beggars. She creates one or the other kind of problems to make their lives difficult. The applicant and his parents said that instead of living with her, they would prefer to die. The applicant, with tears in his eyes and and with folded hands, also prayed that he be sent to jail again as he does not come out of jail, because it is better to stay in jail than to live with opposite party no.2.

12. When this Court called opposite party no.2 to talk to her husband and in-laws, so that the matter may be settled amicably, she misbehaved and threatened them to be prepare to go jail, as she will lodge various cases and will make their lives difficult. As this happened in the presence of the Court and the Court and Staff tried to stop her but she stared misbehaving with all present. When this Court warned her, she caught hold of Court's hand and even after repeated warning of the Court, she was not leaving the hands of the Court. This Court tried to convince her again and again so that the differences between the opposite party no.2 and the applicants and her in-laws may come to an end and they may live a happy life but for the reasons best known to opposite party no.2 she was not convinced and she interfered in the administration of justice.

13. Somehow the Court called the Police and got opposite party no.2 Anjali out of the Chambers of the Court.

14. Our intention was only that by calling everyone together, a settlement may be arrived at between the husband and wife who have a child and everyone may live a happy life. Because fighting gives nothing and everyone's life becomes hell.

15. Mr. J.K. Upadhayay, learned A.G.A. has also submitted before the Court that opposite party no.2 harasses and misbehaves with the Police Officers and threatens that if they do not do of her choice, they would face evil civil consequences as she will not leave them Scott free.

16. Looking at all this, it seems to the Court that the opposite party no.2 does not want to live a happy life with her husband and in-laws. She is a confused/troubled woman herself and wants to trouble her husband and in-laws too.

17. Seeing the facts that even after making all efforts, the Court has failed to bring the husband and wife together along with their daughter, so that they may live happy life, as the disputes between the parties have not been settled amicably, interim order granted earlier dated 5th December, 2016 and appearance of both the counsel appearing for the applicant have already been discharged by this Court, referred to above, as well as the fact that the applicant, who has been produced before this Court in the judicial custody, has prayed that this application be dismissed as not pressed, this Court has no other option but to dismiss the same. It is ordered accordingly.

18. However, it is made clear that both the parties i.e. the applicant and opposite party no.2 shall avail their remedies, which may be permissible under law.

19. It is a different matter that the dispute between husband and wife i.e. applicant and opposite party no.2 could not be resolved in the present case as the no dispute can be brought to its logical end without the consent of the parties, but this Court appreciates Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. as well as Police Officers of Varanasi, who have done a commendable job in bringing this case to this point and finding the applicant, who has been missing for more than two years.

20. At the end, this Court is of the opinion that several cases, wherein maintenance has been awarded by the orders of the court, are pending and even notices have not been served upon the parties due to which women are suffering, as in the present case, which is the best example of harassment faced by the women even after passage of nearly five years from the date of orders in her favour. seeing this pitiable predicament of a woman, who has been grappling from pillar to post and getting hoodwinked by multifarious impediments, which are purportedly for the objective of harbouring the applicant from the shrewdness of this Court, excogitated by the family of the husband, is an archetype illustration of the loopholes in way of our criminal justice system. To counteract and proscribe kindred occurrences in future and to safeguard the right to maintenance of wives, this Court directs the Director General of Police, State of U.P. at Lucknow to ensure that the summons are served upon the person concerned, which have been issued, in execution of the maintenance allowance granted by the courts in favour of a married women.

21. This application stands dismissed, accordingly.

22. Since this application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has already been dismissed, no further orders are required to be passed in the Intervention Application filed by Mr. Rahul Mishra, Advocate on behalf of one Laxmi Prasad Upadhyay, who happens to be the father of the applicant and is present in the Court.

23. Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. Rahul Mishra, Advocate appearing for Laxmi Prasad Uapdhyay, who filed the intervention application are present in the Chambers of the Court

24. Mr. Shabir, Sub-Inspector, Mr. Anvar Ahmad, Head Constable and Mr. Ram Kumar, Constable of Police Lines, Commissionerate, Varanasi are directed to take the applicant Arvind Upadhyay to Central Jain, Varanasi in the judicial custody today itself.

25. A certified copy of this order shall be provided to Mr. J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State to communicate the same to the the Director General of Police, State of U.P. at Lucknow and the Commissioner, Varanasi Division, Varanasi.

A. Practice & Procedure - The Court directed that all Judicial Officers in State of U.P. shall strictly and literally comply with the circulars issued by this Court. (Para 11)

Application Disposed of. (E-10)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suresh Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Mohammad Irfan Siddiqui, learned counsel for petitioner/applicant, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. By means of this petition under Section 483 Cr.P.C., the petitioner has sought following reliefs:-

"Wherefore, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to direct the opposite party no. 2 to release the accused immediately impugned Case Crime No. (FIR No._ 93 of 2020, under Sections 409, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 120-B IPC Police Station Gomti Nagar, District Lucknow (State Vs. Anoop Kumar) as per circular (C.L. No.3/Admin.(G) dated 16.02.2009, Allahabad) issued by Hon'ble High Court for subordinate court, contained as Annexure No. 1 to this petition.

3. It is further prayed that this Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to conduct the inquiry for unnecessary delay to release accused from the jail just for disobedience the circular clear cut and also compensate to accused for unnecessary detention from the responsible authorities i.e. opposite party no. 3 of present petition."

4. Learned counsel for petitioner/applicant has submits that bail was granted by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 5 Lucknow on 30.11.2021. In compliance of bail order, the applicant filed two sureties before the court concerned on 08.12.2021. Thereafter the court below sent the sureties bond for verification to the concerned Police Station and Regional Transport Office, Lucknow but when the verification of surety is not completed by the concerned Police Station and Regional Transport Office then thereafter the petitioner approached the concerned court and filed application dated 22.12.2021 along with circular of this Court with prayer to accept the bail bonds for provisional release of the applicant in the light of circular issued by this Court.

5. On 20.12.2021 both the sureties were present before the court below but the trial court failed to comply the direction issued by this Court vide Circular (C.L. No.3/Admin.(G) dated 16.02.2009) as court below neither provisionally accepted the bail bonds nor passed any order nor assigned any reason. It is further submitted that on 13.01.2022 suo motu passed the order "permitted" without any knowledge of petitioner. It is further submitted that till date the verification of the surety is still pending before the trial court regarding which the questionnaire was filed by the applicant. As per information folio, it indicates that surety Dharam Singh status verification received from Police Station Talkatora, Lucknow on 22.03.2022, and verification of surety Shiv Bihari received from A.R.T.O., Lucknow on 22.03.2022. But the status verification of surety Shiv Bihari is still pending from Police Station concerned. Thus the verification of status is still pending since lapse of 102 days. The trial court did not call any explanation for the delay from the concerned authority nor take any suitable action against the delinquent official so, learned counsel for petitioner prays for taking appropriate action against the official in default.

6. In this regard, a detailed comments of Judicial Magistrate-I, C.B.C.I.D., Lucknow through District Judge, Lucknow was called within seven days on 08.03.2022 and the date was fixed for 21.03.2022. Again on 21.03.2022 the case was fixed for hearing but no report from the court below was received on the said date to this Court. Thereafter again a reminder was issued to trial court concerned and the report of Judicial Magistrate-I dated 16.03.2022, which was duly forwarded by District Judge, Lucknow was received but the explanation of Judicial Magistrate-I C.B.C.I.D. Lucknow was received in the office on 24.03.2022. Thus it is desirable that the District Judge, Lucknow to look into the matter and fix the responsibility of official in default.

7. As per circular, it is clearly mentioned that if the verification report is awaited within time, and the application filed for provisional acceptance of the bail bonds along with surety and prayer for provisional release of the accused then it is the bounden duty of the learned Magistrate concerned to literally comply the order of circular issued by this Court.

8. This is very sorry state of affairs. The explanation submitted by the Judicial Magistrate, C.B.C.I.D. is not convincing. Perusal of the explanation shows that the court below did not assign any reason why the provisional bail bond was not accepted. The conduct of the Judicial Officer is deprecated and warn be careful in future.

9. The District Judge, Lucknow is hereby directed to circulate the circular (C.L. No.3/Admin.(G) dated 16.02.2009, Allahabad) issued by Hon'ble High Court for subordinate court and among other official with the direction that they do their duties as per aforesaid circular and always take action against the official in default.

10. At the outset, it is necessary to reproduce the Circular (C.L. No. 3/Admin. (G)/Dated : Allahabad: 162.2009) reads as under:

"Upon consideration of the direction of Hon'ble High Court in Criminal Misc. Case No. 4356/08 Shiv Shyam Pandey versus State of U.P. and others and in the wake of receipt of representation of the Bar complaining against considerable delay taking place in respect of verification of the address and status of the sureties filed before the Subordinate Courts, the Hon'ble Court has been pleased to direct that in super session of earlier Circular Letter No.44/98 dated 20.8.1998 and Circular Letter No. 58/98 dated 5.11.1998, the following guidelines shall be followed by the Judicial Officer of Subordinate Courts:-

1. In serious cases such as murder, dacoity rape and cases falling under NDPS Act, two sureties should normally be directed to be filed and the amount of the surety bonds should be fixed commensurate with the gravity of the offence.

2. The address and status verification of the sureties shall be obtained within reasonable time, say seven days in case of local sureties, 15 days in case of sureties being of other district and one month in case of sureties being of other State, positively from the concerned Police and revenue authorities and in case of non receipt of the report within given time, the concerned Court may call for explanation for the delay from the concerned authorities and take suitable action against them and at the same time may consider granting provisional release of the accused person in appropriate cases subject to the condition that in case of any discrepancies being reported by the verifying authorities, the accused shall surrender forthwith.

3. The Courts must insist on filing of black and white photographs of the sureties which must have been prepared from the negative.

4. The copies of the title deeds filed in support of solvency of status should be verified.

5. In cases where the Court feels that there are chances of plantation of drugs to implicate a person in a case covered under the NDPS Act, the amount of surety bonds may be suitable reduced.

I, am therefore, to request you to kindly bring the contents of the Circular Letter to all the Judicial Officers, working under your administrative control for strict compliance of the directions."

11. Keeping in view the direction as issued in the aforesaid circular by this Court, it is desirable that all the Judicial Officers in State of U.P. shall strictly and literally comply the circular issued by this Court. Therefore, it is hereby directed that all the District Judge of Uttar Pradesh shall ensure monthly review in Monitoring Cell Meeting for pending verification of the bail bonds and sureties beyond prescribed time and also ensure whether the proper action was taken against the delinquent official.

12. With the aforesaid observations/ directions this petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is disposed of.

13. The Registrar General of this Court is also hereby directed to circulate the order of this Court as well as circular (C.L. No. 3/Admin. (G)/Dated : Allahabad: 162.2009) among all the Judicial Offices of Uttar Pradesh, all the revenue authorities of U.P. through District Magistrates and D.G.P. of Uttar Pradesh also directed to circulate the order of this Court to all the Police Stations of Uttar Pradesh for strict compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pritinker Diwaker, J.
Hon'ble Ashutosh Srivastava, J.)

1. This intra Court Appeal under the Rules of the Court has been filed questioning the order of the learned Single Judge dated 20.01.2022 passed in Writ-C No.771 of 2022 (Gajraj Singh vs. State of U.P. and 2 others) whereby the second prayer pressed i.e. to issue Mandamus to the second respondent to consider and decide the objections of the appellant/writ petitioner dated 16.11.2021 and 30.11.2021 before finalizing the list of members of the General Body of the Society in question and holding the elections u/s 25(2) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860, has been declined leaving it open for the appellant/writ petitioner to ventilate his grievances at the appropriate stage before the appropriate forum.

2. The record reveals that the registration of the society in question had been renewed till 10.10.2013. The Sub Registrar, respondent No.2, while considering the rival claims for renewal of the registration of the Society came to the conclusion that no elections of the Committee of Management of the Society had been conducted and there were no valid members of the General Body of the Society amongst whom the elections could be held. The Sub Registrar vide order dated 09.09.2021 required the alive members/office bearers who had signed the list of office bearers at the time of registration to undertake the task of enrolling new members by making publication in the daily news papers. Pursuant thereto, an advertisement is alleged to have been published in the News Daily "Dainik Jagran" New Delhi edition on 21.09.2021. The appellant/writ petitioner is stated to have applied for life membership of the Society. A total of 967 applications so received were found in order and the applicants were inducted as members and the list of such inducted members was forwarded to the office of the Sub Registrar, Meerut. The other applications including the application of the appellant/writ petitioner were found defective and accordingly rejected by the Committee of Management in its special meeting held on 31.10.2021. The rejection has been communicated to the appellant/writ petitioner vide communication dated 15.11.2021 of the respondent No.2 requiring him to take back the 1070 forms submitted.

3. In the aforesaid backdrop the appellant/writ petitioner is stated to have filed the objections dated 16.11.2021 and 30.11.2021 and prayed for decision on the same.

4. It is vehemently contended by the counsel for the appellant that the prayer for decision on the pending objections was liable to the considered but the learned Single Judge committed grave error in declining the said relief. The appellant/writ petitioner could not be termed a 'stranger' in the circumstances so as to refuse the relief prayed for. It is contended that the respondent No.2, Sub Registrar, was under obligation to decide the objections in exercise of the statutory power conferred upon him u/s 4-B of the Societies Registration Act, 1860. Since the objections were not being decided which the Sub-Registrar was duty bound to decide, a writ of Mandamus lay but the learned Single Judge has proceeded to hold otherwise. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of a coordinate Bench rendered in Writ Petition No. 58426 of 2017 (T.P. Singh vs. Registrar/Asst. Registrar, Firms Societies and Chits, Teliyarganj and others) decided on 10.10.2018 and reported in 2018 (11) ADJ 586.

5. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have perused the record.

6. Much emphasis has been laid by learned counsel for the appellant/writ petitioner upon Section 4-B of Societies Registration Act, 1860, as applicable to the State of U.P. (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act'), inserted by U.P. Act No.23 of 2013 which reads as under:-

"4-B (1) At the time of registration/renewal of a society, list of members of General Bodyof that society shall be filed with the Registrar mentioning the name, father's name, address and occupation of the members. The Registrar shall examine the correctness of the list of members of the General Body of such society on the basis of the register of members of the General Body and minutes book thereof, cash book, receipt book of membership fee and bank pass book of the society.

(2) If there is any change in the list of members of the General Body of the society referred to in sub-section (1), on account of induction, removal, resignation or death of any member, a modified list of members of General Body, shall be filed with the Registrar, within one month from the date of change.

(3) The list of members of the General Body to be filed with the Registrar under this section shall be signed by two office bearers and two executive members of the society."

7. The above quoted Section 4-B was inserted by the legislature realising that there was no provision of filing of list of General Body of Society and a large number of disputes in Societies arose due to non existence of correct list of General Bodies with the Registrar. It was noticed that in several cases an illegal person fraudulently produced before the Registrar incorrect list of General Body of Society and claimed to be member and office bearer of the Society.

8. A list of members of the General Body of the Society has to be filed at the time of registration or renewal of Society. List must mention names, father's name, address and occupation of members. Registrar is under a statutory obligation to examine correctness of list of members of the General Body of such Society on the basis of register of members of General Body and minutes thereof, cash book, receipt book of membership fee and bank pass book of the society. Apparently, it shows that members included in the list, whether included correctly, has to be examined by the Registrar. If a member is not included in the list, whether such non inclusion also can be examined by Registrar is not very clear from Section 4-B(1) of the Act, but this is made clear by sub-section (2) which says that if there is any change of list of members of General Body of Society referred to in sub-section (1) on account of induction, removal, resignation or death of any member, a modified list of members of General Body shall be filed with Registrar within one month from date of change.

9. A plain reading of the above provision shows that at the time of registration or renewal, a list of members of General body of Society has to be filed before the Registrar. Thereafter whenever there is any change in the said list, same has to be informed to Registrar by submitting a modified list of members of General Body. When such a modified list is submitted to Registrar he is under an obligation to examine the correctness of list of members of General Body as contemplated under sub-section (1), change having arisen on account of induction, removal, resignation or death of any member.

10. The extent of authority of the Registrar to undertake such examination i.e. whether an indepth examination which may be termed as adjudication of dispute or whether a summary enquiry subject to adjudication of dispute by a Court of law came to be examined by a coordinate Bench of this Court in Writ Petition No. 58426 of 2017 (T.P. Singh vs. Registrar/Asst. Registrar, Firm Societies and Chits, Teliyarganj & others) reported in 2018 (11) ADJ 586. The said decision has been relied upon by the appellant/writ petitioner. This Court examined various judicial precedents on the scope of enquiry by Registrar under Section 4-B of the Act and concluded as under:-

(a) The scope of enquiry by Registrar is to see validity of enrollment of members on the basis of documents referred in Section 4-B and to ensure that outsiders may not be able to control the affairs of Society on the basis of fake documents.

(b) The Registrar is not supposed to make adjudication of dispute of correctness of membership like a court but whenever a list is submitted or there is any change in the list of members and any objection is raised or otherwise, Registrar has to prima facie satisfy himself that change has been made in accordance with provisions of bye laws and prima facie genuine. For this purpose the Registrar may examine agenda, minutes of meeting and other relevant steps take by the Society. To this extent an enquiry can be made by Registrar to find out whether list of members or change in list of members is correct or not.

(c) The Registrar is obliged to examine the question of correctness of alteration or change or modification in the list of members when an objection is taken. Cancellation/termination/removal of membership is a mode of alteration of list of members which can be examined by Registrar. Documents which are supposed to be furnished to Registrar are also specifically mentioned and from those documents whatever facts discern may be seen to find out whether Society in a bona fide manner has followed its own procedure laid down in the bye laws.

11. The claim of the appellant/writ petitioner regarding the membership of the Society in question along with 1070 other applications has been rejected by the Special Meeting of the Society convened on 31.10.2021 for approving/disapproving the induction of new members. The proceedings of the Meeting held on 31.10.2021 which are on record as Annexure -8 reveal that applications for membership were invited between 23.09.2021 upto 01.10.2021. Out of the applications so received a total of 967 applications were scrutinized in terms of the order dated 9.9.2021 of Registrar and found in order in meeting of the Society held on 2.10.2021 whereafter the 967 were inducted as members of the society. The list of members was forwarded to the office of Registrar, Meerut on 6.10.2021. Now, the office of the Registrar vide letter dated 12.10.2021 has intimated to collect 1070 forms received in the office on any working day. The 1070 forms were collected in five bundles, processed and found incomplete and consequently rejected. The findings of the Meeting dated 31.10.2021 is reproduced below:-

"और अब पांच बण्डलों में अहस्ताक्षरित सूची के साथ कार्यालय को आवेदन फार्म किसके द्वारा दिये गए हैं, जिसकी रजिस्ट्रार कार्यालय में प्राप्ति भी नहीं हैंA फिर भी रजिस्ट्रार कार्यालय के आदेश दिनांक 12.10.2021 के अनुपालन में इस पर अपने विचार रखते हुए समिति के आजीवन सदस्य श्री बंशी सिंह जी ने कहा कि इन पांचों बण्डलों के फार्मों की अलग-अलग गणना कर ली जायें A इसके पश्चात ही एक-एक फार्म की जांच की जाये A पांचों बण्डलों को क्रमवार खोला गया तो पहले बण्डल में 199, दूसरे बण्डल में 167, तीसरे बण्डल में 242, चौथे बण्डल में 185 तथा पांचवे बण्डल में 259, आवेदन फार्म प्राप्त हुए, पांचों बण्डलों में कुल 1052 आवेदन फार्म हुये A फिर एक-एक फार्म की जांच की गयी, जिसमें सभी फार्म रजिस्ट्रार कार्यालय के आदेश दिनांक

12. The appellant/writ petitioner has not challenged the above resolution of the society. He, however, has preferred objections dated 16.11.2021 and 30.11.2021 before the Registrar. By way of the objections the relief of recall of the order dated 15.11.2021 by which the 1070 forms were returned and compliance of order dated 09.09.2021 has been sought.

13. Having examined the extent of the power of the Registrar under Section 4-B of the Act, we find that the list of members has been finalized and the same has been sent to the office of the Registrar on 06.10.2021. The Registrar in order to examine the correctness of the list of members under Section 4-B of the Act is only required to see the inclusion and deletion of the members and to modify the list accordingly. He is not enjoined upon to go into the validity of the list of members already finalized except for deleting some of those members who may have died or ceased to be the members otherwise, which is not the case at hand. The claim of the appellant/writ petitioner that he along with the 1070 applicants have been denied the membership of the Society cannot be gone into summarily and would require appropriate examination after oral and documentary evidences are led by the parties in a Civil Suit.

14. The reliance placed by the appellant/writ petitioner on the decision rendered in Writ Petition No. 58426 of 2017 (supra) is misplaced in as much as in the said case the membership of the petitioner therein was terminated which resulted in change in the list of members of the Society. Since the petitioner therein had been removed from membership of General Body of the Society without following procedure laid down in the bye laws, this Court held that it was within the domain of the Assistant Registrar to consider the objections of the petitioner therein in exercise of powers under Section 4-B of the Act. This is not the case here as the appellant/writ petitioner has not been inducted as a member of the General Body of the Society. In our opinion the appellant/ writ petitioner is required to establish his rights as a Member of the General Body of the Society before the Civil Court and only thereafter approach the Registrar under Section 4-B of the Act.

15. The learned Single Judge has rightly observed that for issuance of a writ of mandamus pre-existing statutory duty must be shown to exist and failure to discharge such statutory duty must also be shown to exist. That stage has yet not come.

16. Accordingly, no interference is warranted in the impugned decision of the learned Single Judge. The Special Appeal lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

(Arising out of Contempt Petition No. 716 of 2004)

Dr. J.S. Yadav ...Appellant
Versus
Dr. Anil Kumar Upadhyay & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Mr. Amit Bose, Senior Advocate with Mr Abhishek Bose, Advocate

Counsel for the Respondents:
Sri Vishal Kumar Upadhyay

A. Contempt of Court Act, 1971 – Sections 12 & 20 – Order could not be complied with, however an order dismissing the contempt proceeding as it become infructuous was passed– An application to recall this order was filed – Maintainability of application challenged – Jurisdiction of contempt court, extent thereof – Order dismissing contempt as infructuous was recalled – Validity challenged – Held, the learned Single Judge rightly passed the order dated 02.12.2021 Ex-debito justitiae. The inherent powers of the Court can very well be utilized to undo a wrong and ensure that the path of justice remains un-polluted and the orders passed by it are taken to its logical conclusion, which in turn reinforces the faith of the public. (Para 34)

B. Constitution of India – Article 215 – Plenary jurisdiction – Court of record – Power of High Court to punish for contempt. Extent of – Source explained – Held, High Court is a court of plenary jurisdiction. The High Court being the court of record has the power to punish for contempt under Article 215 of the Constitution of India. A court of record being a court of superior jurisdiction is entitled to consider the question of its own jurisdiction raised before it. Article 215 specifically confers upon the Court of record such powers including the power to punish for contempt of itself. (Para 20)

C. Practice and procedure – Order passed by the Court of law, compliance thereof – Liability not to leave any order to become a futile order – Public faith in judicial system, liability to maintain it – Held, the Courts of law do not pass futile orders– Once an order is passed, the same is binding on the parties and must be capable of being executed and complied with – The orders passed by the Court have to be taken to their logical conclusion so that the faith of the public at large remains intact and the orders of the Court are not to be taken lightly by those who are bound to comply with the same. (Para 23)

D. Maxim 'Actus Curiae neminem gravabit' – Meaning and scope – It means that the act of the Court shall prejudice no man – The High Court being a court of record by its very constitution and composition is invested with inherent powers. All courts are vested with inherent powers to undo a wrong which may have occurred on account of a mistake of the Court causing prejudice to a party. (Para 25)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. This instant intra-court appeal has been preferred under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 against the order dated 02.12.2021 passed by the learned Single Judge whereby two applications for recall bearing C.M. Application No. 80976 of 2021 for recall of order dated 26.04.2012 and C.M. Application No. 160117 of 2021 for recall of order dated 28.08.2012 passed in Contempt Case No. 716 of 2004 (Ajay Kumar Pandey and 29 others Vs. Dr. J.S. Yadav) have been allowed and as a result the contempt proceedings have been revived against the appellant.

2. Mr. Amit Bose, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Abhishek Bose has assailed the impugned order primarily on two grounds:-

(i) It is urged that the learned Single Judge had no jurisdiction to recall the orders, inasmuch as, once the contempt application is disposed of/dismissed, there is no provision for recall of such order. It is urged that in the instant case by means of order dated 28.8.2012 the contempt petition was dismissed as infructuous and the learned Single Judge while exercising powers of the Contempt Judge had no power to recall the said order.

(ii) It is also urged that the said application for recall was also hit by Section 20 of the Contempts of Court Act and for the said reason as well the application for recall was not maintainable as by recalling the order on application which otherwise had been rendered otiose could not be revived.

3. Learned counsel for the respondent on the other hand has submitted that an order was passed by the Writ Court which was affirmed in Special Appeal and almost 20 years have lapsed but the order has not been complied with and for one reason or the other, the appellant has been raising technical objections only to ensure that the order passed by the Court is not complied with.

4. It is further urged that the necessity to file the recall application arose on the ground that on mis-apprehension of facts, the contempt-petition filed by the petitioner was dismissed as infructuous. Elaborating his submissions, it is urged that the contempt petition was preferred by 29 petitioners, however, only in respect of two such petitioners who were being represented by a counsel namely Shailendra Singh Chauhan made a statement that the parties have entered into an amicable settlement and the learned Contempt Judge relying upon the aforesaid statement dismissed the contempt petition as a whole.

5. It is also submitted that the counsel who had made a statement before the Contempt Court was not representing the other contempt-petitioners and at best the statement could have been accepted only in respect of two such contempt-petitioners who did not wish to press the contempt petition but in the garb thereof the petition of the remaining parties could not be dismissed as their right to prosecute the contempt petition was unhampered.

6. It is further submitted that the private respondents had preferred a Special Leave Petition before the Apex Court and where liberty was granted to approach High Court and in furtherance thereof initially a fresh contempt was filed which was thereafter withdrawn and an application for recall was filed which after hearing the parties has been allowed by the learned Single Judge and in the aforesaid facts and circumstances where the order passed by the Writ Court has yet not been complied with, it is not open for the appellant to raise such technical objections and even otherwise the order of recall has not prejudiced any party and the appellant has a right of raising the objections on merits before the Contempt Court. It is urged that if an order has been passed on mis-representation or on incorrect facts, the Court is duly vested with ample powers to recall such an order as an act of Court cannot prejudice any party. In view of the aforesaid, the appeal deserves to be dismissed.

7. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and also perused the material available on record.

8. Before adverting to the respective submissions, it will be worthwhile to take a glance at the facts leading up to the passing of the impugned order of recall dated 02.12.2021.

9. The matter in controversy relates to the admissions of students in pursuance of pre-medical test held in the year 1998. 56 students were admitted in the First Year Course of Bachelor of Dental Science in Chaudhary Multan Singh Memorial Dental College on the basis of marks obtained by them. Some of such students were granted the admission on the basis of their merit obtained in the pre-medical test but some of the students were admitted against the management quota. Later, it revealed that Chaudhary Multan Singh Memorial Dental College, Tundla did not have the approval from the Dental Council of India to admit the students after the first year and it is in the aforesaid backdrop that the aggrieved students preferred several writ petitions before this Court.

10. A bunch of writ petitions bearing No. 1312 (MS) of 2001; 1313 (MS) of 2001; 1909 (MS) of 2001 and 1915 (MS) of 2001 were decided by the learned Single Judge of the Court by means of judgment and order dated 06.08.2001. This judgment came to be challenged in Special Appeal No. 347 of 2001 which was connected with another Special Appeal bearing No. 368 of 2001. Both the Special Appeals were decided by means of the judgment dated 09.11.2001. In the Special Appeal preferred by the Director/Secretary of Chaudhary Multan Singh Memorial Dental College, Tundla, District Firozabad, the Division Bench of the Court while dismissing the appeal directed the Authorities of Chaudhary Multan Singh Memorial Dental College to refund the fee of 60 students who had deposited the fee either for the free seats or the seats under the Management Quota.

11. It is this order passed by the Division Bench in Special Appeal dated 09.11.2001 which was pressed for compliance in Contempt Petition No. 716 of 2004 as the Authorities of Chaudhary Multan Singh Memorial Dental College failed to refund the fee.

12. The record further reflects that the Contempt Petition remained pending since 2004. On 26.04.2012 the contempt petition was dismissed having become infructuous. The order passed by the Contempt Court dated 26.04.2012 reads as under:-

"In pursuance to the earlier order dated 03.04.2012 passed by this Court, the contemnor Dr. J.S. Yadav as well as Sri Vivek Chauhan & Sri Amit, petitioners are present in person.

Sri Shailendra Singh Chauhan, learned counsel for the petitioners as well as Sri Amit Bose, learned counsel for the contemonor jointly submit that the settlement between the parties have reached amicably and now no contempt exists. Hence, they pray that the contempt petition may kindly be dismissed being infructuous. Notice for personal appearance is discharged.

In view of above, the contempt petition is dismissed being infructuous. "

13. Thereafter C.M. Application No. 51213 of 2012 and 57607 of 2012 were filed by the remaining petitioners seeking recall of the order dated 26.04.2012. The said application for recall was rejected by the Contempt Court noticing that the counsel for the petitioners had given a statement in the open Court that the present contempt petition had become infructuous as the parties had entered into an amicable settlement. Since the said order was passed in open Court, hence, there was no reason to recall the order, consequently, the applications were dismissed.

14. The private respondents being aggrieved preferred a Special Leave Petition before the Apex Court which came to be disposed of by means of order dated 05.07.2019 granting liberty to the petitioners before the Apex Court to move the High Court. The order passed by the Apex Court dated 05.07.2019 reads as under:-

" Heard the learned counsel for the parties.

The order has been passed by the High Court on the basis of the submissions made by the learned counsel that there is a settlement between the parties and now no contempt exists.

It is submitted that the matter was not settled completely and the order of the High Court has not been complied with.

If that be so, the only remedy lies with the petitioners is to approach the same court, instead of filing a Special Leave Petition in this court. The petitioners, if so advised, may move the High Court in case there is some fraud played upon them.

In view of the above, the Special Leave Petitions are disposed of.

Pending interlocutory application (s), if any, is/are disposed of."

15. It is thereafter that the private respondents filed a fresh Contempt Petition bearing No. 878 of 2021 which was withdrawn by them with liberty to pursue the remedy as available to the respondents by filing the Recall Application.

16. It is in the aforesaid backdrop that the recall applications were moved by the private respondents which have been considered. After assessing the entire matter, the learned Single Judge allowed the applications for recall and directed the appellant to appear before the Court on 14.12.2021 for framing of charges.

17. The foremost issue that requires consideration is whether the said application for recall was maintainable before the learned Single Judge. The learned Senior Counsel Mr. Amit Bose making his submissions has urged that once the contempt petition was dismissed and the notices were discharged, the Contempt

Court does not have the jurisdiction to recall the order and as such the order passed by the learned Single Judge is beyond jurisdiction, accordingly, is liable to be set aside.

18. In support of his submissions, he has relied upon a Division Bench decision of this Court in the case of :-

(i) State vs. Baldev Raj in 1991 SCC Online (Allahabad) 1070;

(ii) Durga Nagpal Vs. Committee of Management, Patronage Institute of Management Studies and others in 2013 SCC Online All 13298

(iii) Mahavir Prasad Verma Vs. Central Administrative Tribunal, Lucknow and others in 2013 SCC Online All 13904.

19. Placing reliance on the aforesaid decisions, it is urged that it is no more open to contend that no power to recall has been conferred on the Court under the Contempt of Court Act, consequently, upon the dismissal of the application for contempt, in view of the statement made by the learned counsel for the respondents that the parties had arrived at a settlement the recall application was not maintainable.

20. It will be apropos to examine and look at the entire scenario with a multifocal lens. It is now well settled that the High Court is a court of plenary jurisdiction. The High Court being the court of record has the power to punish for contempt under Article 215 of the Constitution of India. A court of record being a court of superior jurisdiction is entitled to consider the question of its own jurisdiction raised before it. Article 215 specifically confers upon the Court of record such powers including the power to punish for contempt of itself.

21. The contempt jurisdiction of the High Court is not only to ensure the compliance of the orders passed by the Court but also to strike at such acts which tend to adversely affect the administration of justice or has a tendency to impede the course of justice which may shake public confidence in the judicial institution.

22. Thus, it can take note of such act and pass such orders under the contempt jurisdiction where the acts adversely affects the majesty of law or dignity of the Court. However, at the same time, it must be well remembered that the jurisdiction is not to protect the dignity of an individual judge but to protect the administration of justice from being maligned.

23. The Courts of law do not pass futile orders. However, once an order is passed, the same is binding on the parties and must be capable of being executed and complied with. It will be of no value if the Court is unable to get its orders complied with or else, the public shall loose faith and it would reflect most inappropriately on the judicial system. Thus, the orders passed by the Court have to be taken to their logical conclusion so that the faith of the public at large remains intact and the orders of the Court are not to be taken lightly by those who are bound to comply with the same.

24. There is another angle with which the issue at hand can be viewed with. Whether the statement given by a counsel for some of the parties can be treated to be a statement on behalf of all even though they are not represented by such counsel and what would be its effect ?

25. It will be valuable to refer to the maxim "Actus Curiae neminem gravabit". In simple words, it means that the act of the Court shall prejudice no man. The High Court being a court of record by its very constitution and composition is invested with inherent powers. All courts are vested with inherent powers to undo a wrong which may have occurred on account of a mistake of the Court causing prejudice to a party.

26. Applying the aforesaid principles, the Apex Court in South Eastern Coalfields Ltd. Vs. State of M.P. (2003) 8 SCC 648 in para 28 held that the principle "that no one shall suffer by an act of the Court" embraces within its sweep all such acts as to which the Court may form an opinion in any legal proceedings that the Court would not have so acted had it been correctly appraised of the fact of law.

27. A perusal of the order dated 26.04.2012 would indicate that the said order was passed on the basis of statement made by Sri Shailendra Singh Chauhan, counsel appearing for the petitioners and Mr. Amit Bose, learned counsel for the contemnor. It could not be disputed by the learned Senior Counsel for the appellant that the settlement, reference of which is made in the order dated 26.04.2012 did not relate to all the contempt petitioners rather it was confined to only two of such contempt petitioners. Mr. Bose also could not dispute the fact that Mr. Shailendra Singh Chauhan whose statement is recorded in the order dated 26.04.2012 by the Contempt Court did not represent all the said contempt petitioners and the statement of Mr. Shailendra Singh Chauhan, learned counsel could not relate to all the contempt-petitioners.

28. The order passed on 28.08.2012 dismissing the recall applications by the Contempt Court, as already reproduced hereinabove first, would indicate that it did not enter into the merits of the matter as to whether the statement as given by Mr. Chauhan on behalf of all the contempt-petitioners was valid and actually whether the alleged settlement was between all the contempt-petitioners and the contemner. It also could not be disputed that the Apex Court in its order dated 05.07.2019 had granted liberty to the respondents to approach the High Court in case if some fraud was played upon them.

29. At this stage, it will be apposite to evaluate the effect of the statement given by the said counsel who was not authorized to make the statement on behalf of all the contempt petitioner and in effect it could not bind such parties. It is not even the case of the appellant that amount of fee had been refunded to the respondents. He has not even apprised the Court about the settlement arrived at between the parties

30. The meaning of the word fraud and misrepresentation has been noticed by the Apex Court in Ram Chandra Singh Vs. Savitri Devi and others reported in (2003) 8 SCC 319 wherein paras 16 to 22 it has been held as under:-

16. Fraud is a conduct either by letter or words, which induces the other person or authority to take a definite determinative stand as a response to the conduct of the former either by word or letter.

17. It is also well settled that misrepresentation itself amounts to fraud. Indeed, innocent misrepresentation may also give reason to claim relief against fraud.

18. A fraudulent misrepresentation is called deceit and consists in leading a man into damage by wilfully or recklessly causing him to believe and act on falsehood. It is a fraud in law if a party makes representations which he knows to be false, and injury ensues therefrom although the motive from which the representations proceeded may not have been bad.

19. In Derry v. Peek [(1889) 14 AC 337 : (1886-90) All ER Rep 1 : 58 LJ Ch 864 : 61 LT 265 (HL)] it was held:

In an action of deceit the plaintiff must prove actual fraud. Fraud is proved when it is shown that a false representation has been made knowingly, or without belief in its truth, or recklessly, without caring whether it be true or false.

A false statement, made through carelessness and without reasonable ground for believing it to be true, may be evidence of fraud but does not necessarily amount to fraud. Such a statement, if made in the honest belief that it is true, is not fraudulent and does not render the person making it liable to an action of deceit.

20. InKerr on Fraud and Mistake, at p. 23, it is stated:

"The true and only sound principle to be derived from the cases represented by Slimv. Croucher [(1860) 1 De GF & J 518 : 29 LJ Ch 273 : 2 LT 103 : 45 ER 462] is this: that a representation is fraudulent not only when the person making it knows it to be false, but also when, as Jessel, M.R., pointed out, he ought to have known, or must be taken to have known, that it was false. This is a sound and intelligible principle, and is, moreover, not inconsistent with Derry v. Peek [Arising out of SLP (C) No. 20273 of 2000] . A false statement which a person ought to have known was false, and which he must therefore be taken to have known was false, cannot be said to be honestly believed in. "A consideration of the grounds of belief', said Lord Herschell, "is no doubt an important aid in ascertaining whether the belief was really entertained. A man's mere assertion that he believed the statement he made to be true is not accepted as conclusive proof that he did so.' "

21. In Bigelow on Fraudulent Conveyances, at p. 1, it is stated

"If on the facts the average man would have intended wrong, that is enough."

It was further opined:

"This conception of fraud (and since it is not the writer's, he may speak of it without diffidence), steadily kept in view, will render the administration of the law less difficult, or rather will make its administration more effective. Further, not to enlarge upon the last matter, it will do away with much of the prevalent confusion in regard to "moral' fraud, a confusion which, in addition to other things, often causes lawyers to take refuge behind such convenient and indeed useful but often obscure language as "fraud upon the law'. What is fraud upon the law? Fraud can be committed only against a being capable of rights, and "fraud upon the law' darkens counsel. What is really aimed at in most cases by this obscure contrast between moral fraud and fraud upon the law, is a contrast between fraud in the individual's intention to commit the wrong and fraud as seen in the obvious tendency of the act in question.

22. Recently this Court by an order dated 3-9-2003 in Ram Preeti Yadav v U.P. Board of High School & Intermediate Education [(2003) 8 SCC 311 : JT 2003 Supp (1) SC 25] held: (SCC pp. 316-317, paras 13-15)

"13. Fraud is a conduct either by letter or words, which induces the other person or authority to take a definite determinative stand as a response to the conduct of the former either by words or letter. Although negligence is not fraud but it can be evidence on fraud. (See Derry v. Peek [Arising out of SLP (C) No. 20273 of 2000] .

14. In Lazarus Estates Ltd. v. Beasley [(1956) 1 All ER 341 : (1956) 2 WLR 502 : (1956) 1 QB 702 (CA)] the Court of Appeal stated the law thus: (All ER p. 345 C-D)

"I cannot accede to this argument for a moment. No court in this land will allow a person to keep an advantage which he has obtained by fraud. No judgment of a court, no order of a minister, can be allowed to stand if it has been obtained by fraud. Fraud unravels everything. The court is careful not to find fraud unless it is distinctly pleaded and proved; but once it is proved it vitiates judgments, contracts and all transactions whatsoever;'

15. In S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu v. Jagannath [(1994) 1 SCC 1] this Court stated that fraud avoids all judicial acts, ecclesiastical or temporal."

31. In the aforesaid backdrop if the statement made by Sri Chauhan is seen it would lead the Contempt Court to satisfy itself as to veracity of the statement regarding the settlement arrived at between all the contempt petitioners and the contemnor and only once the said fact was verified could the petition be dismissed as infructuous. Even otherwise once the contempt Court takes cognizance of the matter then it is a matter between the contemner and the Court. In this view of the matter, it was all the more important for the Contempt Court to have verified all the facts before discharging the contempt notice.

32. In the instant case, once it is not disputed that the order passed by the Division Bench of the year 2001 had not been complied with, the petition could not have become infructuous. The statement of the counsel, which was beyond his competence and yet made before the Court on behalf of such contempt-petitioners who had not entered into any settlement and it gave an impression to the Court that all the contempt-petitioners had settled the matter with the contemnor, is nothing short of a misrepresentation amounting to fraud, especially when the settlement, if arrived at, by only two of such contempt petitioners could at best be not pressed on their behalf but not on behalf of other co-petitioners and the petition as a whole ought not have been dismissed as having become infructous.

33. It is a case where the appellant has taken recourse to the judicial proceedings to thwart the course of justice and a direction which was issued by the Division Bench in the year 2001 has not been complied with till date. This in itself is a shocking state of affairs which does hurts the judicial conscience and has a deleterious effect on the public at large.

34. In the aforesaid circumstances, the learned Single Judge rightly passed the order dated 02.12.2021 Ex-debito justitiae. The inherent powers of the Court can very well be utilized to undo a wrong and ensure that the path of justice remains un-polluted and the orders passed by it are taken to its logical conclusion, which in turn reinforces the faith of the public.

35. It will be worthwhile to notice the observations made by the Apex Court in Indian Bank Vs. Satyam Fibres (India) Pvt. Ltd. (1996) 5 SCC 550 in para 20, 22 and 23, it held as under:-

20. By filing letter No. 2775 of 26-8-1991 along with the review petition and contending that the other letter, namely, letter No. 2776 of the even date, was never written or issued by the respondent, the appellant, in fact, raised the plea before the Commission that its judgment dated 16-11-1993, which was based on letter No. 2776, was obtained by the respondent by practising fraud not only on the appellant but on the Commission too as letter No. 2776 dated 26-8-1991 was forged by the respondent for the purpose of this case. This plea could not have been legally ignored by the Commission which needs to be reminded that the authorities, be they constitutional, statutory or administrative, (and particularly those who have to decide a lis) possess the power to recall their judgments or orders if they are obtained by fraud as fraud and justice never dwell together (Fraus et jus nunquam cohabitant). It has been repeatedly said that fraud and deceit defend or excuse no man (Fraus et dolus nemini patrocinari debent)

22. The judiciary in India also possesses inherent power, specially under Section 151 CPC, to recall its judgment or order if it is obtained by fraud on court. In the case of fraud on a party to the suit or proceedings, the court may direct the affected party to file a separate suit for setting aside the decree obtained by fraud. Inherent powers are powers which are resident in all courts, especially of superior jurisdiction. These powers spring not from legislation but from the nature and the constitution of the tribunals or courts themselves so as to enable them to maintain their dignity, secure obedience to its process and rules, protect its officers from indignity and wrong and to punish unseemly behaviour. This power is necessary for the orderly administration of the court's business.

23. Since fraud affects the solemnity, regularity and orderliness of the proceedings of the court and also amounts to an abuse of the process of court, the courts have been held to have inherent power to set aside an order obtained by fraud practised upon that court. Similarly, where the court is misled by a party or the court itself commits a mistake which prejudices a party, the court has the inherent power to recall its order. (See:Benoy Krishna Mukerjeev.Mohanlal Goenka[AIR 1950 Cal 287] ;Gajanand Sha v. Dayanand Thakur [AIR 1943 Pat 127 : ILR 21 Pat 838] ; Krishnakumar v. Jawand Singh [AIR 1947 Nag 236 : ILR 1947 Nag 190] ;Devendra Nath Sarkar v. Ram Rachpal Singh [ILR (1926) 1 Luck 341 : AIR 1926 Oudh 315] ;Saiyed Mohd. Raza v.Ram Saroop [ILR (1929) 4 Luck 562 : AIR 1929 Oudh 385 (FB)] ; Bankey Behari Lal v. Abdul Rahman [ILR (1932) 7 Luck 350 : AIR 1932 Oudh 63] ; Lekshmi Amma Chacki Amm v. Mammen Mammen [1955 Ker LT 459] .) The court has also the inherent power to set aside a sale brought about by fraud practised upon the court (Ishwar Mahton v. Sitaram Kumar [AIR 1954 Pat 450]) or to set aside the order recording compromise obtained by fraud. (Bindeshwari Pd. Chaudhary v. Debendra Pd. Singh [AIR 1958 Pat 618 : 1958 BLJR 651] ; Tara Bai v.V.S. Krishnaswamy Rao [AIR 1985 Kant 270 : ILR 1985 Kant 2930] .)

36. Again in United India Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Rajendra Singh (2000) 3 SCC 581 in para 15 and 16, it has been held as under:-

15. It is unrealistic to expect the appellant Company to resist a claim at the first instance on the basis of the fraud because the appellant Company had at that stage no knowledge about the fraud allegedly played by the claimants. If the Insurance Company comes to know of any dubious concoction having been made with the sinister object of extracting a claim for compensation, and if by that time the award was already passed, it would not be possible for the Company to file a statutory appeal against the award. Not only because of the bar of limitation to file the appeal but the consideration of the appeal even if the delay could be condoned, would be limited to the issues formulated from the pleadings made till then.

16. Therefore, we have no doubt that the remedy to move for recalling the order on the basis of the newly-discovered facts amounting to fraud of high degree, cannot be foreclosed in such a situation. No court or tribunal can be regarded as powerless to recall its own order if it is convinced that the order was wangled through fraud or misrepresentation of such a dimension as would affect the very basis of the claim.

37. In Hamza Hazi Vs. State of Kerala (2006) 7 SCC 416, the Apex Court in paragraph 26 has held as under:-

26. The High Court, as a court of record, has exercised its jurisdiction to set at naught the order of the Forest Tribunal thus procured by the appellant by finding that the same is vitiated by fraud. There cannot be any doubt that the Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 215 of the Constitution of India has the power to undo a decision that has been obtained by playing a fraud on the Court. The appellant has invoked our jurisdiction under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. When we find in agreement with the High Court that the order secured by him is vitiated by fraud, it is obvious that this Court should decline to come to his aid by refusing the exercise of its discretionary jurisdiction under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. We do not think that it is necessary to refer to any authority in support of this position except to notice the decision in Ashok Nagar Welfare Assn. v. R.K. Sharma [(2002) 1 SCC 749 : 2001 Supp (5) SCR 662] .

38. The observations made by the learned Single Judge in its order dated 02.12.2021 in paragraph 12 also amplifies the conduct of the appellant which reads as under:-

"12. After hearing the rival contentions and going through the material on record, this court finds that since the year 2004 the petitioners are make efforts to get the order of Special Appeal court dated 09.11.2001 complied. They have not been able to get any relief. The record of the contempt petition is replete with orders of issuance of warrants and directions for personal appearance of opposite party but the fact remains that the order of this court has not been complied with. Petitioners have been relegated to one forum to the other but the substantial justice stands denied to them. Opposite party no.1 has left no stone unturned to hoodwink this court's and has avoided compliance of this court order for more than 20 years. This is very lamentable and shakes the confidence of the common man in the judicial system of the country when the technicalities are given precedence over substantial justice. It is settled law that admissions made by the counsel unauthorisedly without instructions from his client is not binding on his client. The Apex Court in the case of Himalayan Cooperative Group Housing Society Vs. Balwan Singh and others, 2015 AIR(SC) 2867 has held in para 32 as follows :-

32. Generally, admissions of fact made by a counsel are binding upon their principals as long as they are unequivocal; where, however, doubt exists as to a purported admission, the court should be wary to accept such admissions until and unless the counsel or the advocate is authorised by his principal to make such admissions. Furthermore, a client is not bound by a statement or admission which he or his lawyer was not authorised to make. A lawyer generally has no implied or apparent authority to make an admission or statement which would directly surrender or conclude the substantial legal rights of the client unless such an admission or statement is clearly a proper step in accomplishing the purpose for which the lawyer was employed. We hasten to add neither the client nor the court is bound by the lawyer's statements or admissions as to matters of law or legal conclusions? "

39. Having noticed the facts and the law in the preceding paragraphs now, in the aforesaid backdrop, if the decisions relied upon by the learned Senior Counsel for the appellant are considered, it would indicate that in the case of Balraj Deo (supra), the issue before the Division Bench was that the contemner was convicted by the Court and he filed a recall application instead of filing an appeal in terms of Section 19 of the Contempts of Court Act. It is in the aforesaid backdrop that the said recall application was rejected and thus on the face of it, the said decision does not come to the rescue of the appellant and is clearly distinguishable.

40. Durga Nagpal's case (supra) was a case where after the contempt proceedings were dropped and the application for modification of the final judgment was moved and in the aforesaid backdrop, it was held that the contempt Judge did not have the power to revive its own order, however, the facts of the said case are also at variance to the case at hand, hence, the said decision also does not help the appellant especially when in the present case the element of fraud and misrepresentation is involved which in turn activates the maxim "Actus Curiae neminem gravabit".

41. In Mahavir Prasad's case (Supra), it would indicate that in the said case, an application for review/recall was moved which was rejected by the Central Administrative Tribunal in default. This order was assailed before the High Court in writ jurisdiction which was quashed and the contempt petition was restored to its original number directing the Tribunal to decide the same after bringing the successors in the office on record, thus, the facts of the case are quite different to the facts of the case, consequently, the said decision does not apply to the instant case.

42. In light of the aforesaid detailed discussions, this Court has no hesitation to hold that the impugned order dated 02.12.2021 does not suffer from any error which may persuade this Court to interfere, accordingly, the Special Appeal is dismissed.

43. In the facts and circumstances, there shall be no order as to costs.

Special Appeal allowed. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajesh Bindal, C.J.
Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. The order dated October 7, 2021 passed by the learned Single Judge has been impugned by the writ petitioner by filing the present intra-Court appeal. On account of death of his father, who was a government servant and expired during service on August 24, 2016, the petitioner-appellant, being eligible for Class-III post having qualifications prescribed therefor, was appointed as Junior Clerk vide order dated June 14, 2018. The appointment was in terms of U.P. Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974 (hereinafter referred to as "1974 Rules"). In terms of the Rules and requirement for the post on which he was appointed on probation, the appellant was to clear the typing test with a speed of 25 words per minute within one year from the date of appointment. In case of failure, another chance was to be given. This fact is undisputed that the appellant appeared in the typing test twice, but failed. Considering the provisions of Rule 5 of 1974 Rules, the services of the petitioner were dispensed with vide order dated June 15, 2020, which was challenged by the appellant by filing the writ petition. The writ petition was dismissed.

2. The arguments raised by learned counsel for the appellant is that in case the appellant was not able to pass the typing test and was not eligible to continue on Class-III post, he should have been offered a Class-IV post. The object of providing compassionate appointment in terms of 1974 Rules is to take care of financial crisis of the family where the bread earner dies while in service. His father died only in the year 2016. There is no other earning member in the family even now.

3. On the other hand, learned counsel for the State submitted that the services of the appellant were dispensed with strictly keeping in view the provisions of Rule-5 of 1974 Rules, which clearly provides that on failure to pass the typing test after giving two opportunities, the services of the employee, who was appointed on compassionate basis, will be dispensed with. Hence, there is no error in the order passed by learned Single Judge.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the paper-book.

5. The fact that father of the appellant was a government servant and expired on August 24, 2016 is not in dispute. In terms of 1974 Rules, the appellant was offered the appointment on compassionate basis as Junior Clerk, a Class-III post. He was a Graduate and having C.C.C. certificate from DOEACC. In terms of the provisions applicable for Class-III post, a candidate is required to pass the typing test with speed of 25 words per minute. Rule 5 of 1974 Rules provides for concession to be given to the persons appointed on compassionate basis to enable them to pass the aforesaid typing test within one year and on failure, another chance is to be granted in the next year. The fact remains that the appellant failed to pass that test on account of which his services were dispensed with.

6. If we go strictly by the language of the Rules, it clearly provides that on failure to pass the typing test within the extended period, the services of the employee shall be dispensed with. However, the fact remains that it is a case in which the petitioner was offered appointment on compassionate basis on account of death of the bread earner in the family. If his services are dispensed with, the family may again suffer financial crisis. The provision of Rules have to be given a purposive meaning which has nexus with the object sought to be achieved. The object is to provide support to the family of the deceased employee who dies during service. In case, service of an employee appointed on compassionate basis is dispensed with only because he had not been able to pass the typing test and if there are posts available in the lower category, his case should be examined for appointment to that category. It will not be a case of reversion of an employee from the post on which he was appointed, as reversion to a post of lower category than the post on which an employee is appointed, is not permissible in law. In case, claim of such an applicant is found to be in terms of the Rules, he can be offered fresh appointment on the lower post for which he is eligible.

7. In the case in hand, the aforesaid exercise needs to be done by the competent authority within a period of four months from the date of receipt of copy of this order.

8. In view of the aforesaid discussion, in our opinion the judgment of learned Single Judge deserves to be set aside. The respondents are directed to consider the case of the appellant for appointment on a Class IV post on compassionate basis, within four months of receipt of copy of this order.

9. Ordered accordingly.

10. Before we part with the order, we need to notice two aspects. One, there is a need to re-visit the language of 1974 Rules. The competent authority in the government may consider its re-drafting. The appointment of a candidate, who is not eligible on the date of appointment, is bringing this kind of result and the issue of entitlement for appointment on compassionate basis.

11. Secondly, at the time of hearing of the present appeal, learned counsel for the appellant had referred to the amendment carried out in 1974 Rules vide Notification dated January 22, 2014. To have a look on the 1974 Rules, we have perused the U.P. Judicial Services Manual, 2016 Edn. published by Hind Publishing House, Allahabad, but unfortunately the aforesaid amendment is not printed. Such kind of publications are likely to lead to wrong decision by the Court as the counsel and the Court may be misled.

12. Let notice be issued to the Hind Publishing House, 1, Mahatma Gandhi Marg, Allahabad- 211001 to show cause as to what action should be taken against it for wrong publication of the Rules as on date when the book was published.

13. The appeal is allowed.However, to deal with the notice issued, the matter shall be listed in Court on May 4, 2022. (J.J. Munir, J.) (Rajesh Bindal, C.J.) Allahabad 09.03.2022 Manish Himwan/P.Sri. Whether the order is speaking : Yes/No Whether the order is reportable : Yes/No

B. Service law – Minimum Wages Act, 1948 – Ss. 2(e)(ii) and 26 – Government hospital, whether it is exempted from the application of the Act – No notification issued u/s 26 exempting government hospital from the application of the Act – Effect – Term 'employer' defined – Held, the respondents, who have engaged the petitioner in a scheduled employment for which minimum wages are fixed, are 'employer' for all purposes under the Act of 1948. (Para 11 and 12)

Writ petition allowed. (E-1)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Chaudhary, J.)

1. Petitioner claims to be working on the post of Sweeper-cum-Chowkidar since 2012 as a part-time sweeper on payment of Rs.500/- per month. Since 2012 till the date the said payment being made to the petitioner is not revised, hence, petitioner has approached this court.

2. Learned counsel for petitioner submits that at this stage he is not pressing his prayer with regard to regularization of services as the case of petitioner is not yet covered under any regularization rules. Further, petitioner is also not entitled for minimum of pay scale of Sweeper-cum-Chowkidar as petitioner is working as a part time sweeper. However, it is submitted by learned counsel for petitioner that long hours of work is being taken from the petitioner in the garb of part-time work and the amount being paid to the petitioner is meager.

3. Learned counsel for petitioner places reliance upon the provisions of the Minimum Wages Act, 1948 and submits that petitioner is also entitled for payment of the minimum wages.

4. Learned Standing Counsel Submits that the provisions of the Minimum Wages Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred to as "Act of 1948") are not applicable to the government hospital and also sweeping as an employment does not find any mention in the notification of the Scheduled Employment issued under the Act of 1948 by the Labour Department, State of U.P.

5. Submission of learned Standing Counsel does not hold any ground. The Part-I of The Schedule under the Act of 1948 contains a list of scheduled employments.

6. The State Government can only add to this list, it cannot remove any entry from the Part-I of the scheduled employment as is clear from a plain reading of Section 27 of the Act of 1948, which reads as follows:-

"Section 27: Power of State Government to add to Schedule. -The appropriate Government, after giving by notification in the Official Gazette not less than three months notice of its intention so to do, may, by like notification, add to either Part of the Schedule any employment in respect of which it is of opinion that minimum rates of wages should be fixed under this Act, and thereupon the Schedule shall in its application to the State be deemed to be amended accordingly."

7. Section 27, therefore obligates the State Government to abide by the Scheduled list as given in the Act of 1948 in addition to the Scheduled Employments, which it adds to the same.

8. Furthermore, Section 2(g) of the Act of 1948 defines Scheduled Employment as:-

Scheduled employment" means an employment specified in the Schedule, or any process or branch of work forming part of such employment;"

Additionally, the Part I of The Schedule of the Act of 1948 was amended by S.O. 1573(E), dated 3rd November, 2005 (w.e.f. 7-11-2005) to add "Employment of Sweeping and Cleaning excluding activities prohibited under the Employment of Manual Scavangers and Costruction of Dry Latrines (Prohibition) Act, 1993."

9. From the above it becomes abundantly clear that since sweeping as an employment finds mention under the list of scheduled employment, therefore, the employment of the petitioner engaged by respondent no.3 as a sweeper falls under the purview of Scheduled Employment.

10. Next issue is whether the respondents as an employer are exempted from the application of the Act of 1948. Section 2(e) when read with Section 26 of the Act of 1948 makes it clear that unless there is an express exemption by the appropriate Government, employers of the scheduled employment will always be under the purview of this Act. Section 2(e) (ii) reads:-

"(e) "employer" means any person who employs, whether directly or through another person, or whether on behalf of himself or any other person, one or more employees in any scheduled employment in respect of which minimum rates of wages have been fixed under this Act, and includes, except in subsection (3) of section 26,-

(ii) in any scheduled employment under the control of any Government in India in respect of which minimum rates of wages have been fixed under this Act, the person or authority appointed by such Government for the supervision and control of employees or where no person or authority is so appointed, the head of the department;

""..."

11. Thus it is safe to say that the respondents, who have engaged the petitioner in a scheduled employment for which minimum wages are fixed, are "employer" for all purposes under the Act of 1948.

"Section 26: Exemptions and exceptions:-

(1) The appropriate Government may, subject to such conditions, if any, as it may think fit to impose, direct that the provisions of this Act shall not apply in relation to the wages payable to disabled employees.

12. The Learned Standing Counsel has failed to place on record any notification issued under Section 26 of the Act of 1948 exempting the respondent department from the application of the Act of 1948. In view thereof, petitioner is entitled for the minimum wages under the Minimum Wages Act, 1948.

13. Therefore, respondent No. 3 Regional Ayurvedic/Unani Officer, Bahraich is directed to pay minimum wages to the petitioner as notified under the Minimum Wages Act, 1948 with regard to part-time sweepers within a period of two months from the date a certified copy of this order is placed before him.

14. With the aforesaid, the writ petition is allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Siddharth Khare, learned counsel for the petitioner, the learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent nos.1 &2 and Mr. Nisheeth Yadav, learned counsel for the respondent no.3.

2. This writ petition has been filed interalia for the following reliefs:-

"(a) a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the advertisement dated 19.01.2022 insofar as it excludes Post Graduate Degree in Geology as a permissible qualification for consideration for the post of Mines Officer.

Alternative, direct the respondents to consider the grievance of the petitioners for including Post Graduate Degree in Geology for consideration for the post of Mines Officer and B.Sc. in Geology as an essential qualification for consideration for the post of Mines Inspector within a short period.

(b) A writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent authorities to treat a Post Graduate Degree in Geology for consideration for the post of Mines Officer in Advertisement dated 19.01.2022.

(c) A writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent authorities to treat the qualification of B.Sc. in Geology as an essential qualification for consideration for the post of Mines Inspector.

(d) A writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent authorities to permit the petitioners to appear in the selection proceeding for the post of Mines Officer pursuance to the Advertisement dated 19.01.2022 after treating a Post Graduate Degree in Geology as one of the required qualification."

3. Brief facts of the case is that an advertisement dated 19.01.2022 has been issued by respondent no.3-UP PSC, Prayagraj inviting applications for 16 posts of Mining Officer. A requisition for 36 posts of Mining Inspector has also been forwarded by the State Government for selection and appointment. The service rule governing the post of Mining Officer and Mining Inspector is known as "the Uttar Pradesh Geology and Mining Service Rules, 1983 (for short "the Rules of 1983") has been amended from time to time.

4. The required qualification for the post of Mining Officer under the Rules of 1983 as well as in the advertisement as issued by the commission is Degree in Mining Engineering or Diploma in Mining Engineering with one year experience. Similarly, the required qualification for the post of Mining Inspector as per the rules is Diploma in mining engineering.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that though the Rules of 1983 have been amended from time to time but the qualification required for the post of Mining Officer and Mining Inspector has remained unchanged. Despite the fact that the qualification of post graduate degree in Geology, which is possessed by the petitioners in the present case is much higher than one required under the Rules of 1983 as well as the advertisement. In such circumstances, the petitioners are not in a position to apply in pursuance to the impugned advertisement.

6. He further submits that the qualification required for the post of Mining Inspector, which is diploma in Mining Engineering while B.Sc. in Geology is higher qualification than diploma, has also not been taken into consideration.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners has pointed out that advertisement issued by the different States wherein the essential qualification required for the appointment on the post of Mining Officer is post graduate in Geology whereas for the post of Mining Inspector is graduate degree in Geology. Hence a representation in this regard has been moved before the State Government to include the aforesaid degrees as essential qualification for the post of Mining Officer and Mining Inspector as such degree is higher than one required as per the advertisement and the Rules of 1983, but no decision has been taken yet.

8. After arguing the matter at length learned counsel for the petitioners has confined his prayer to the extent that the matter may be placed before the State Government so that appropriate decision may be taken in accordance with law.

9. On the other hand, Mr. Nisheeth Yadav, learned counsel for the respondent no.3-UPPSC as well as learned Additional Standing Counsel opposed the submission made by learned counsel for the petitioners and submits that the issue with respect to qualification for the said posts is a policy matter and it is within the domain of the State Government to take decision in this respect. He has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Dr. R.K. Goyal vs. State of U.P. and Ors. reported in (1996) 11 SCC 658.

10. He further submits that regarding similar controversy, this Court in the case of Km. Pratima Gupta vs. State of U.P. & Ors. in Writ-A No.25238 of 2016 decided on 09.01.2019 has held that undisputedly the advertisement as well as the Rules of 1983 specified a degree of Mining Engineering or Diploma in Mining Engineering with one year experience for the post of Mining Officer and similarly as per rule, qualification for the post of Mining Inspector is diploma in Mining Engineering. Nothing could be placed before the Court regarding any decision of the State Government holding the degree possessed by the petitioners to be equal to that as required as per the advertisement and the Rules of 1983.

11. Mr. Yadav, learned counsel for the Commission further submits that there is no statutory provision obligating either the State or the Commission to consider any degree equivalent to that possessed by the petitioners, however, since the matter is a policy matter, therefore, the same may be placed before the State Government so that appropriate decision may be taken in accordance with law after calling for expert opinion from the Commission.

12. I have considered the submissions made by the parties as well as gone through the entire materials brought on record.

13. Before coming to the merits of the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties, it would be relevant to refer that as per the Uttar Pradesh Geology and Mining Service Rules, 1983, the qualification for the post of Mining Officer is degree of Mining Engineering or Diploma in Mining Engineering with one year experience and for the post of Mining Inspector is diploma in Mining Engineering.

14. In the present case, it is no doubt that the petitioners possess higher qualification than that as required for the aforesaid posts as per the rule but there is no clarification/notification by the State Government providing for equivalence of any other qualification for the post of Mining Officer and Mining Inspector. It is the State Government which has the powers to prescribe the requisite qualification required for the efficient discharge of duties for the post for which the advertisement is issued. A Full Bench of this Court in the case of Deepak Singh and Others vs. State of U.P. and Others being Writ -A No. 24273 of 2018 has rejected similar plea for grant of equivalence on the ground that petitioner therein possesses highter qualification.

15. Prescription of qualifications and other conditions of service pertains to the field of policy and is within the exclusive discretion and jurisdiction of the State. It is not open to the Courts to direct the Government to have a particular method of recruitment or eligibility criteria. The observation of the Supreme Court made in paragraph 10 of the judgment in P.U. Joshi and Others vs. Accountant General, Ahmedabad and others reported in (2003) 2 SCC 632, read thus:-

"10. ... Questions relating to the constitution, pattern, nomenclature of posts, cadres, categories, their creation/abolition, prescription of qualifications and other conditions of service including avenues of promotions and criteria to be fulfilled for such promotions pertain to the field of Policy is within the exclusive discretion and jurisdiction of the State, subject, of course, to the limitations or restrictions envisaged in the Constitution of India and it is not for the statutory tribunals, at any rate, to direct the Government to have a particular method of recruitment or eligibility criteria or avenues of promotion or impose itself by substituting its views for that of the State. Similarly, it is well open and within the competency of the State to change the rules relating to a service and alter or amend and vary by addition/substraction the qualifications, eligibility criteria and other conditions of service including avenues of promotion, from time to time, as the administrative exigencies may need or necessitate."

(Refer: V.K. Sood vs. Secretary, Civil Aviation AIR 1993 SC 2285)

16. In Chandigarh Administration vs. Usha Kheterpal Waie and others, (2011) 9 SCC 645, the Supreme Court, in paragraph 22, observed:-

"22. It is now well settled that it is for the rule-making authority or the appointing authority to prescribe the mode of selection and minimum qualification for any recruitment. The courts and tribunals can neither prescribe the qualifications nor entrench upon the power of the authority concerned so long as the qualifications prescribed by the employer is reasonably relevant and has a rational nexus with the functions and duties attached to the post and are not violative of any provision of the Constitution, statute and rules. [See J. Rangaswamy vs. Govt. of A.P. (1990) 1 SCC 288 and P.U. Joshi vs. Accountant General (2003) 2 SCC 632]. In the absence of any rules, under Article 309 or statute, the appellant had the power to appoint under its general power of administration and prescribe such eligibility criteria as it is considered to be necessary and reasonable. Therefore, it cannot be said that the prescription of Ph.D. is unreasonable."

17. The policy decision has to be taken by the State Government for changing the academic qualification for the post of Mining Officer as well as Mining Inspector, which cannot be judicially reviewed by this Court. The Apex Court in the case of Vasavi Engineering College Parents Association ..... Vs State of Telangana & Ors. reported in (2019) 7 SCC 172, has held that the Court can neither act an appellate authority nor can usurp jurisdiction of decision maker and make the decision itself. Until and unless the same is arbitrary or in violation of any provision of law or is infringing the fundamental rights of any person.

18. In Fertilizer Corporation Kamgar Union (Regd.), Sindri vs Union of India, reported in (1981) 1 SCC 568, it was also observed:-

"35. ....We certainly agree that judicial interference with the administration cannot be meticulous in our Montesquien system of separation of powers. The court cannot usurp or abdicate, and the parameters of judicial review must be clearly defined and never exceeded. If the directorate of a government company has acted fairly, even if it has faltered in its wisdom, the court cannot, as a super auditor, take the Board of Directors to task. This function is limited to testing whether the administrative action has been fair and free from the taint of unreasonableness and has substantially complied with the norms of procedure set for it by rules of public administration."

19. Reference may also be made to the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Directorate of Film Festivals & Ors. Vs. Gaurav Ashwin Jain & Ors., reported in (2007) 4 SCC 737, where the Apex Court held as follows:-

"16. The scope of judicial review of governmental policy is now well defined. Courts do not and cannot act as Appellate Authorities examining the correctness, suitability and appropriateness of a policy nor are courts Advisors to the executive on matters of policy which the executive is entitled to formulate."

20. The selection and appointment to any post should be made strictly in accordance with terms of the advertisement and the recruitment rules as has been held by the Apex Court in the case of Yogesh Kumar And Others vs Government Of NTC Delhi reported in (2003) 3 SCC 548.

21. The issue regarding the fact that post graduate degree in Geology and graduate degree in Geology may be considered as essential qualification for appointment on the post of Mining Officer and Mining Inspector respectively, can be looked into by the State Government as the same is a policy matter and the policy decisions of the State are not to be disturbed/interfered with unless they are found to be grossly arbitrary or irrational.

22. Counsel for the parties agree that the writ petition may be disposed of finally at this stage without calling for further affidavits specifically in view of the order proposed to be passed today as well as to the relief pressed by learned counsel for the petitioners before this Court today.

23. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and submissions made by the parties, this writ petition is disposed of with a direction to the petitioners to make a detailed representation along with the copy of writ petition, all the documents so advised as well as certified copy of this order before the respondent no.2, i.e. Director, Geology & Mining, U.P., Lucknow, who shall forward the same to the respondent no.1, i.e. Principal Secretary, Geology & Mining Department, Government of U.P., Lucknow. If any such representation is made, the respondent no.1 after obtaining expert opinion from Uttar Pradesh Public Service Commission, Prayagraj, U.P. shall make all endeavours to consider and decide the same, in accordance with law, preferably within a period of two months from the date of receipt of the said representation.

24. Accordingly, this writ petition is disposed of. No order as to costs.

A. Service Law –Paramedical and non-paramedical staff – Appointment on contractual basis – Discharge – Refusal to renew the service – Validity challenged – No statutory service rules framed – Effect – Duty of the St. explained – Held, non-existence of statutory service rules does not make any difference as the St. has co-extensive executive power for the same. It is duty of the St. Government to forthwith frame the rules and make regular selection as per law. In the garb of not framing the rules St. Government cannot claim right to become arbitrary and hire and fire at its own sweet will in the garb of contractual appointment. The conduct of the St. has to be non-arbitrary – Held further, the petitioners are discharged in arbitrary manner. (Para 12 and 14)

B. Service jurisprudence – Adhoc employees – Discharge – Nature of work – It's being permanent in nature – Effect – Replacement of adhoc employee by another adhoc employee – Permissibility – Requirement of work is permanent in nature as there is no decision taken by the St. Government till date for closure of the aforesaid homeopathic medical colleges and hospitals – Held, there is settled principal of service law that an adhoc employee cannot be replaced by another adhoc employee – Piara Singh' case relied upon. (Para 11 and 12)

C. Judicial review – Rule of law – Policy matter – Interference by the court, when warranted – Held, the Court can definitely look into a policy decision basis of which violates the rule of law. 2. Brij Mohan Lal Vs U.O.I.; (2012) 6 SCC 502

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Chaudhary, J.)

1. This is a bunch of writ petitions whereby petitioners, who are paramedical and non paramedical staffs appointed on contractual basis in the government medical colleges and hospitals, have challenged their discharge orders issued on different dates from October, 2020 onwards and for a mandamus commanding the opposite parties to reinstate the petitioners on the posts on which they were working.

2. The facts of the case are that by government order dated 27.10.2017, the State Government took a decision for making selection and appointments on the posts of paramedical and non paramedical staff on contractual basis for government homeopathic medical colleges and hospitals. In furtherance of the aforesaid government order, an advertisement was issued on 15.12.2017 providing that contractual appointment as paramedical and non paramedical staff is to be made for a period of one year or till availability of regularly selected candidate from the UPSSSC or attaining the age of 65 years, which ever is earlier. It also provided that in the event of rendering satisfactory services the period of one year shall be extendable. The petitioners applied and were selected and appointed on different posts in terms of the advertisements issued in August, 2018 and thereafter The appointment letters also contained the conditions as mentioned in the advertisement. On the basis of the said appointment letters petitioners joined and started serving. On 26.03.2019, a video conference meeting took place under the chairmanship of Secretary, Department of Ayush, U.P., in which Regional Ayurvedic and Unani Officers, District Homeopathic Officers and Principals of Ayurvedic and Unani and Homeopathic Medical Colleges along with the Directors of the department were present. Number of decisions about the functioning of the department were taken and noted in the minutes of the said meeting, relevant for us, Clause-21 of the same notes, that, contractual appointment shall be made only for a period of 11 months and in no circumstance contractual employees shall be paid salary of 12 months. On the basis of the said noting in the minutes of the meeting, the Director, Homeopathy, U.P., by his letter dated 29.03.2019 asked the officials to initiate action. Again, Director, Homeopathy issued a letter dated 20.06.2019 instructing all the principals of the government homeopathic medical colleges and hospitals to discharge contractual employee on expiry of their term of contract, till execution of any fresh contract. In furtherance of the same petitioners were discharged on different dates on completion of the period of one year from their respective appointments. On 06.07.2019, the Director, Homeopathy again issued a letter to the principals of all State homeopathic medical colleges and hospitals stating that the purpose for which the teaching and other staff were appointed on contract still exists, therefore, in the public interest/government functioning, even after completion of the contract period their renewal is necessary and expedient, and therefore, the contracts of teaching and other staff detailed in the annexed list should be renewed again, after creating a break of one week, for a further period of 11 months or till the regular selection is made for the said contract posts. Thus, the services of the petitioners were extended for a period of 11 months but, now after the period of 11 months petitioners are again discharged by the impugned orders by respective principals from 2019 onwards.

3. Learned counsels for petitioners submit that petitioners were appointed in terms of the government order dated 27.10.2017. The decision to remove the petitioners is contrary to the government order and could not be taken by the Secretary in a meeting of the department. He further submits that it is not in dispute that the nature and requirement of the said work is permanent, as there is no decision of the State Government to close the homeopathic medical colleges and hospitals and that the decision taken is in gross violation of the settled principal of law, that, an adhoc employee cannot be replaced by another adhoc employee. Admittedly, till date, the selection process for regular appointments is not even initiated. Emphasis is also laid by him on the fact that the government and principals of respective colleges have jointly signed duly notarized undertakings/affidavits and indemnity bond before the Central Council of Homeopathy, New Delhi, while seeking recognition for the Academic Session 2020-21 and 2021-22, specifying the existing teaching and non teaching staff of the colleges including the names of the petitioners. Thus, while seeking recognition for the Academic Session 2020-21 and 2021-22 they had given the impression that petitioners are working and they shall be maintained. He further submits that the teaching staff/doctors, similarly situated as petitioners, were also appointed in furtherance of similar government orders on similar terms and conditions and were also removed in similar manner. They filed Writ Petition No.14731 (S/S) of 2020; "Narendra Singh Sengar and Others Vs. State of U.P. and Others' and other writ petitions challenging their discharge. The said writ petitions were filed almost on the same grounds as the present writ petitions. The said writ petitions were allowed by this Court by its judgment and order dated 09.12.2020. The Court quashed the orders of discharge of the doctors in the said writ petitions and the government order dated 14.08.2020 which provided that their services shall not be renewed. Petitioners in the said writ petitions were further allowed to work on their respective posts in their respective colleges as per the government order dated 28.05.2015 and 27.10.2017. Thus, he draws strength from the said judgment also.

4. Some of the petitioners before this Court had filed a Writ-A No.2917 of 2021 "Devesh Shukla and 38 others Vs. State of U.P. and 7 Others' at Allahabad and the said writ petition was disposed of by this Court by order dated 22.06.2021 providing:-

"In view of the above, on consent and without expressing any opinion on the merits of the issue and considering the facts and circumstances of the case, this writ petition is disposed of finally asking the petitioners to move an appropriate representation before the competent authority ventilating their grievances within two weeks from today and in case any such representation is preferred the same would be looked into, examined and remedied in the light of the judgment in Dr. Narendra Singh Sengar(supra) within four weeks from the date of filing the representation. "

5. The representations of petitioners was rejected by order dated 29.07.2021 and the said order is challenged by the petitioners by way of a connected writ petition, being Writ Petition No.22562 (S/S) of 2021 "Abhishek Kumar and others Vs. State of U.P. and Others'. Reason for rejecting the representations by order dated 29.07.2021 are:-

(i) There are no statutory service rules for recruitment of Nursing Staff like the teaching staff, and

(ii) There was no cabinet approval in regard to the appointment on the posts of Store Superintendent, Swagati, Telephone Operator and Registration Clerk.

6. The petitioners of the said writ petition have also adopted the submissions of other petitioners before this Court. They further submit that both the grounds mentioned for rejecting the representation do not have any force; as mere absence of any statutory rules would not impact the submission of the petitioners that an ad-hoc appointee cannot be replaced by another ad-hoc appointee and further the ground that there is not approval of the Cabinet with regard to appointment on some of the posts only would not impact majority of posts and further that there is no necessity of Cabinets' approval for contractual appointment on the said Class-III posts.

7. Opposing the petitions, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel places reliance upon government order dated 27.10.2017 and clause 21 of the minutes of meeting. He submits that contractual appointment could be made only for a period of 11 months and could also be renewed for a period of 11 months only, with a break of one week. The government letter dated 14.08.2020 specifically provides for non renewal of contract after expiry of the said term. He submits that there were large number of complaints filed before the Lok Ayukt, U.P., with regard to the said contractual appointments and during inquiry it was found that contractual appointments made were inappropriate and illegal and thus were cancelled. He further submits that there are no service rules promulgated for the said posts and, therefore, it is not possible to renew the contract period of the petitioners and it was decided to cancel the appointments by government order dated 14.08.2020 and proceed for re-selection on contract basis. Since re-selection on contract basis is again going to take place, it shall be open for the petitioners also to participate in the same. He lastly submits that the decision of the state government is a policy decision and is immune from judicial scrutiny as is held by the Supreme Court in:

(i) Ugar Sugar Works Ltd. Vs. Delhi Administration and Ors in Writ Petition (Civil) 321 of 2000;

(ii) Punjab Communications Ltd. Vs. Union of India & Others, (1999) 4 SCC 727;

(xi) Ashok Kumar Vs. Union Territory, (1995) SCC 1631;

(xii) Narmada Bachao Case, (2000) 10 SCC 664.

8. I have heard learned counsels for parties and perused the record with their assistance.

9. Before coming to the legal issues involved it is necessary to clear the facts. The State Government always treated the teaching and non-teaching staff as separate from each other. The teaching staff i.e. doctors were appointed in furtherance of separate government orders dated 28.05.2015 and 11.04.2018 while the non-teaching staff, i.e., petitioners, were appointed in furtherance of government order dated 27.10.2017. With regard to doctors/teaching staff a government order dated 14.08.2020 was issued providing that their contract period may not be extended any further and their services be dispensed with for making fresh appointment. With regard to non-teaching staff there is no such order passed by the State Government. It appears that the authorities in the department, without there being any order of the State Government requiring removal of the non-teaching staff, have under wrong impression proceeded and passed order with regard to non-teaching staff also. The government order dated 14.08.2020 refers to G.O. dated 28.05.2015 and 11.04.2018. Both the said government orders are only with regard to the teaching staff i.e. doctors. In absence of any decision of the State Government, the departmental officers including the director could not have passed any order removing or refusing to extend the contract period of the non-teaching staff. Thus, the entire exercise conducted by the respondents is in violation of the order of the State Government itself.

Clause-21 of the minutes of video conference meeting dated 26.03.2019 also only states that no further appointment on outsourcing shall be done unless budget is arranged. It nowhere says anything about the persons who were already working on contract basis. Admittedly, the petitioners were working on contract basis on 26.03.2019 and, therefore, since there case is not covered by Clause-21 of the video conference dated 26.03.2019, they cannot be removed in furtherance thereof. Admittedly, the contract period of petitioners was extended between July, 2019 to December, 2019, i.e. after the minutes of meeting dated 26.03.2019. Therefore, even the stand of the respondents remained that the petitioners were not covered by the decision taken in the video conference meeting dated 26.03.2019.

10. From the above facts and circumstance, I do not find any decision of the State Government taken for removal of the non-teaching staff which has completed its contract period and for which till date no direct selection is made. Clause-21 of the minutes of video conference meeting dated 26.03.2019 merely states that contractual employees shall be appointed for a period of 11 months and shall not be paid salary of 12 months. Even after the said letter was issued, the contractual employees were continued for an earlier period of contract of 12 months and on its expiry after giving artificial break of one week, their contracts were extended for a further period of 11 months. I do not find any direction to the Director, Homeopathy from the State Government requiring him to remove the non teaching staff appointed on contract basis and replace the same from fresh contractual employees.

11. So far as the legal position is concerned, there is settled principal of service law that an adhoc employee cannot be replaced by another adhoc employee. The same finds mention in large number of judgments including the judgment passed in case of ''State of Haryana and Others Vs. Piara Singh and Others', reported in [(1992) 4 SCC 118], second condition of paragraph-46 of the judgment holds:-

"46. Secondly, an ad hoc or temporary employee should not be replaced by another ad hoc or temporary employee; he must be replaced only by a regularly selected employee. This is necessary to avoid arbitrary action on the part of the appointing authority."

12. Though the judgment of Piara Singh (supra) case is explained on certain other legal preposition in some later judgments of the Supreme Court but the aforesaid preposition of law holds good till date. It is not disputed in the present case that the requirement of work is permanent in nature as on instructions, the Standing Counsel had submitted before this Court that there is no decision taken by the State Government till date for closure of the aforesaid homeopathic medical colleges and hospitals. Once, the nature of work is permanent State Government is bound to make regular appointments on the same. Non-existence of statutory service rules does not make any difference as the State has co-extensive executive power for the same. It is duty of the State Government to forthwith frame the rules and make regular selection as per law. In the garb of not framing the rules State Government cannot claim right to become arbitrary and hire and fire at its own sweet will in the garb of contractual appointment. The conduct of the State has to be non arbitrary. Unless strong reasons are provided it cannot replace an ad-hoc employee with another ad-hoc employee. The only reason provided by the State Government for removing the petitioners during the course of argument is that there were large number of complaints before the Lok Ayukt and in an inquiry it was found that contractual appointments were inappropriate or not legal. No such inquiry report or other material is submitted before this Court. There is no declaration from any court that the appointments were inappropriate or not legal. The said ground also does not find mention in the discharge orders. Thus, in absence of any material, this Court does not find any force in the said submission of the State Government.

13. So far as the last submission made by learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel that the aforesaid decision of the State Government is a policy decision and immune from the judicial scrutiny is concerned, suffice would be to say that the none of the judgment referred to by learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel relates to any service matter and all of them are with regard to economic or financial policy of the State. So far as the present case is concerned, learned Standing Counsel could not place any policy decision of the State Government whereby it require removal of the contractual employee, as is already held above. Even presuming there is such a policy decision, the Court can definitely look into a policy decision basis of which violates the rule of law. Where a policy decision is on the face of it arbitrary and violates settled principal of law, this Court has power to look into the same also. Suffice to refer to the judgment of the Supreme Court in case of ''Brij Mohan Lal Vs. Union of India' reported in (2012) 6 SCC 502. In paragraph 99, 100 and 134 the Court held that:-

"99. It is also a settled cannon of law that the Government has the authority and power to not only frame its policies, but also to change the same. The power of the Government, regarding how the policy should be shaped or implemented and what should be its scope, is very wide, subject to it not being arbitrary or unreasonable. In other words, the State may formulate or reformulate its policies to attain its obligations of governance or to achieve its objects, but the freedom so granted is subject to basic Constitutional limitations and is not so absolute in its terms that it would permit even arbitrary actions.

100. Certain tests, whether this Court should or not interfere in the policy decisions of the State, as stated in other judgments, can be summed up as:

(I) If the policy fails to satisfy the test of reasonableness, it would be unconstitutional.

(II) The change in policy must be made fairly and should not give impression that it was so done arbitrarily on any ulterior intention.

(III) The policy can be faulted on grounds of mala fide, unreasonableness, arbitrariness or unfairness etc.

(IV) If the policy is found to be against any statute or the Constitution or runs counter to the philosophy behind these provisions.

(V) It is dehors the provisions of the Act or Legislations.

(VI) If the delegate has acted beyond its power of delegation.

134. The policy decision of the State should be in public interest and taken objectively. Ad hocism or uncertainty in the State policy particularly relating to vital factors of governance, may not bring the requisite dividend. Reasons for taking a policy decision would squarely fall in the domain of the State, but it should be free from element of arbitrariness and mala fides."

14. In view of aforesaid, this Court does not find any force in the stand taken by learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel. It is apparent that the petitioners are discharged in arbitrary manner. Admittedly, till date no other person have been appointed on the said posts, therefore, all the writ petitions are allowed and all the impugned discharge orders of the petitioners are set aside. The petitioners are allowed to work on their respective posts in their respective colleges as per government orders dated 27.10.2017. However, in case, any complaint is made/received, the State Government shall be at liberty to examine/inquire the said complaint in respect of each candidate as per law and pass order on each case separately. The State or the respondent/authorities shall also be at liberty to examine performance of each petitioner on their respective posts before renewing their services after expiry of their contract period and pass appropriate order in accordance with law.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saral Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Akash Khare, learned counsel for the petitioner, and Sri Abhishek Srivastava learned counsel for the respondents-Corporation.

2. The petitioner through the present writ petition has prayed for a direction upon respondents to consider the candidature of the petitioner for appointment on the post of Junior Engineer Electrical (Trainee) in U.P. Power Corporation Ltd.

3. During the pendency of the writ petition, the respondent has passed an order on 25.03.2017 rejecting the candidature of the petitioner which was challenged by the petitioner by way of amendment in the writ petition.

4. The case of the petitioner is that pursuant to an Advertisement No.9/V5A/2016/JE notified on 09.10.2016 inviting online application for the post of Junior Engineer Electrical (Trainee) under the Electrical Engineer category, Junior Engineer Civil (Trainee) under the category of Civil Engineering, he has submitted application for being considered on the said post.

5. According to the petitioner, he has three years diploma in Electrical and Electronics Engineering from Tamil Nadu Polytechnic College, Madurai recognized by U.G.C. Thus, he possesses the essential qualification for appointment on the said post. The petitioner submitted the online application under the O.B.C. category. In response to his application, he was issued Admit Card allotting Roll No.1117201837 for CBT to be held on 11.11.2016. The petitioner appeared in an online examination. Thereafter, a final response sheet was uploaded by respondent no.2-Electricity Service Commission on its website. As per the final response sheet, the petitioner has obtained 117.25 marks out of a total of 200 marks. Respondent no.2 declared the result of shortlisted candidates on 07.12.2016 in which the name of the petitioner also figured in. Thereafter, the petitioner was called for documents verification by letter dated 07.12.2016 on 12.12.2016. The petitioner appeared before the authority concerned on 12.12.2016 and presented all his documents. Thereafter, the final select list was published on 03.01.2017 in which the name of the petitioner did not find a place.

6. According to the petitioner, the cut-off marks for the O.B.C. candidate were 117 marks whereas the petitioner had obtained 117.25 marks even then, he was not declared successful. The impugned order reveals that the candidature of the petitioner has been rejected on the ground that he does not possess the essential qualification for appointment on the post in question.

7. It is stated in the writ petition that the petitioner possesses a diploma in Electrical and Electronics Engineering which is equivalent to a diploma of Electrical Engineering, which is clear from the chart mentioned in paragraph 13 of the writ petition showing the subjects of the petitioner and subjects of one Jai Narain Chauhan and Amit Kumar, who have obtained three years diploma in Electrical Engineering. The petitioner in support of his aforesaid contention has also enclosed the mark sheet of Jai Narain Chauhan and Amit Kumar.

8. In the counter affidavit filed by the respondents, it is stated that the petitioner did not possess minimum qualifications as prescribed. It is also stated that power is with the Corporation to lay down the required qualification for appointment on the post in question. It is also stated that the diploma possessed by the petitioner is not equivalent to the diploma in Electrical Engineering as the syllabus of both the courses is at the variance of 20% to 30%.

9. The petitioner filed a rejoinder affidavit denying the averments made in the counter affidavit.

10. I have considered the rival submissions of the parties and perused the record.

11. Before proceeding with the matter, it would be relevant to reproduce qualification No.4 (B) in the advertisement prescribed for recruitment for the post of Junior Engineer (Trainee)-Electrical:-

"4 Essential Eligibility Qualification:

(B) A candidate must have passed

(i) "Three years Diploma examination in Electrical Engineering awarded by Pravidhik Shiksha Parishad, Uttar Pradesh OR a Diploma, equivalent thereto, recognized by the State Government" OR

(ii) "Three years All India Diploma Examination in Electrical Engineering conducted by the All India

Council for Technical Education (AICTE), Govt. of India" OR

(iii) "Diploma Examination in Electrical Engineering conducted by any of the Universities in India incorporated by an Act of the Central/State Legislature."

Note: Diploma received through Distance Learning Education will not be eligible."

12. From a perusal of qualification no.4 (B) of the advertisement, extracted above, it is evident that for essential qualification, a candidate must possess three years Diploma in Electrical Engineering. The petitioner undisputedly possesses three years Diploma in Electrical and Electronics Engineering.

13. The petitioner in paragraph 13 of the writ petition has reproduced a chart to demonstrate that the course of petitioner and course of Jay Narayan Chauhan and Amit Kumar are identical and, therefore, the petitioner should be treated to have essential qualification as prescribed in the advertisement. For ready reference, the chart mentioned by the petitioner in paragraph 13 is reproduced herein below:-

14. The petitioner has also enclosed his mark-sheet of three years as well as mark-sheet of Jai Narayan Chauhan and Amit Kumar. It would be appropriate to reproduce a chart indicating the subject of petitioner and Jai Narayan Chauhan and Amit Kumar, which they had studied in their first year:-

Ashish Kumar (Petitioner)	Jai Narayan Chauhan	Amit Kumar

15. The perusal of the above chart shows that the course of the petitioner as well as Jai Narayan Chauhan and Amit Kumar, and also the subjects which they had studied in their first year are at variance and are not similar.

16. It is further pertinent to mention that petitioner in the writ petition has not made specific assertion comparing the courses which could demonstrate that the subject which the petitioner had studied in the first year contains the same syllabus and topics which Jai Narayan Chauhan and Amit Kumar had studied in the first year. Had the petitioner given specific assertion, the respondents could have replied the same, and only then this Court would have been in a position to assess or call for an expert opinion to consider as to whether the Diploma of the petitioner can be treated to be equivalent to the Diploma of Electrical Engineering.

17. The respondent in the counter affidavit has made the specific assertion that Diploma in Electrical and Electronics Engineering and Diploma in Electrical Engineering are at the variance of 20% to 30% in the syllabus.

18. At this stage, it would be apt to refer to the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Zahoor Ahmad Rather and Others Vs. Sheikh Imtiyaz Ahmad and Others 2019 (2) SCC 404 wherein the Apex Court has held that it is the domain of the employer to prescribe qualification as a condition of eligibility. The Court has no jurisdiction to expand upon the ambit of prescribed qualifications. Paragraphs 26 and 27 of the said judgment are reproduced herein below: -

"26. We are in respectful agreement with the interpretation which has been placed on the judgment in Jyoti K.K. Vs. Kerala Public Service Commission, (2010) 15 SCC 596 in the subsequent decision in State of Punjab Vs. Anita (2015) 2 SCC 170. The decision in Jyoti K.K. (supra) turned on the provisions of Rule 10(a)(ii). Absent such a rule, it would not be permissible to draw an inference that a higher qualification necessarily presupposes the acquisition of another, albeit lower, qualification. The prescription of qualifications for a post is a matter of recruitment policy. The state as the employer is entitled to prescribe the qualifications as a condition of eligibility. It is no part of the role or function of judicial review to expand upon the ambit of the prescribed qualifications. Similarly, equivalence of a qualification is not a matter which can be determined in exercise of the power of judicial review. Whether a particular qualification should or should not be regarded as equivalent is a matter for the state, as the recruiting authority, to determine. The decision in Jyoti K.K. (supra) turned on a specific statutory rule under which the holding of a higher qualification could presuppose the acquisition of a lower qualification. The absence of such a rule in the present case makes a crucial difference to the ultimate outcome. In this view of the matter, the Division Bench of the High Court was justified in reversing the judgment of the learned Single Judge and in coming to the conclusion that the appellants did not meet the prescribed qualifications. We find no error in the decision of the Division Bench.

27. While prescribing the qualifications for a post, the State, as employer, may legitimately bear in mind several features including the nature of the job, the aptitudes requisite for the efficient discharge of duties, the functionality of a qualification and the content of the course of studies which leads up to the acquisition of a qualification. The state is entrusted with the authority to assess the needs of its public services. Exigencies of administration, it is trite law, fall within the domain of administrative decision making. The state as a public employer may well take into account social perspectives that require the creation of job opportunities across the societal structure. All these are essentially matters of policy. Judicial review must tread warily. That is why the decision in Jyoti K.K. (supra) must be understood in the context of a specific statutory rule under which the holding of a higher qualification which presupposes the acquisition of a lower qualification was considered to be sufficient for the post. It was in the context of specific rule that the decision in Jyoti K.K. (supra) turned."

19. In the case of Shailendra Kumar Rai and Others Vs. State of U.P and Others in Writ-A No.1092 of 2015 this Court also held that the Court cannot issue direction to the employer to prescribe qualification for holding a particular post. Paragraphs 21 and 22 of the said judgment are reproduced herein below:-

"21. It is settled law that only the statutory authority is entitled to frame statutory rules, terms and conditions of the services and also the qualifications essential for holding a particular post. It is only and only the concerned authority, which can take an ultimate decision in this regard. No direction can be issued to the employer to prescribe a qualification for holding a particular post as also held by Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Sanjay Kumar Manjul Vs. Chairman, UPSC and Others (2006) 8 SCC 42 (paras-25, 26 and 27) as under:-

"25. The statutory authority is entitled to frame statutory rules laying down terms and conditions of service as also the qualifications essential for holding a particular post. It is only the authority concerned who can take ultimate decision therefor.

26. The jurisdiction of the superior courts, it is a trite law, would be to interpret the rule and not to supplant or supplement the same.

27. It is well-settled that the superior courts while exercising their jurisdiction under Articles 226 or 32 of the Constitution of India ordinarily do not direct an employer to prescribe a qualification for holding a particular post."

22. Similar view has also been taken by this Court in the case of Manoj Kumar Singh and Others Vs. State of U.P. and Others, 2014 (9) ADJ 659 (DB) (LB) (vide paragraphs-36, 37, 38, 40, 47 and 48). The Division Bench in the case of Manoj Kumar Singh (supra) while coming to the aforesaid conclusion also relied upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of District Collector and Chairman, Vizianagaram Social Welfare Residential School Society and another Vs. M. Tripura Sundari Devi, (1990) 3 SCC 655), P.M. Latha and Another Vs. State of Kerla and Others (2003) 3 SCC 541 and Mohd. Shohrab Khan Vs. Aligarh Muslim University (2009) 4 SCC 555."

20. In the instant case, as noticed above, the petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the course and syllabus which he had studied in three years Diploma in Electrical and Electronics Engineering is identical to the syllabus of Diploma in Electrical Engineering.

21. The reliance placed by the petitioner upon the judgment of Delhi High Court in the case of Ms. Nisha Vs. Union of India and Others in W.C. (C) 6100/2012 & CM No.16465/2012 is misplaced inasmuch as in the said case the Court has obtained a report from two members committee and thereafter proceeded to consider that the syllabus and course contents in the degree of B.Tech. Electrical and Electronics are equivalent to the degree of B.Tech. Electrical.

22. The judgment of Ms. Nisha (supra) has been rendered in different factual backdrops inasmuch as in the case in hand, necessary pleading that contents and syllabus of three years in Diploma Electrical and Electronics Engineering are identical to three years Diploma in Electrical Engineering are lacking.

23. In this view of the fact the judgment of Ms. Nisha (supra*) is of no help to the petitioner.

24. It is relevant to note that merely because the petitioner had appeared in the examination and was called for document verification does not mean that he has the vested right to be appointed till he satisfies all eligibility criteria including essential qualification.

25. As in the instant case, the petitioner admittedly possesses three years Diploma in Electrical and Electronics Engineering and does not have three years Diploma in Electrical Engineering, therefore, this Court does not find merit in the writ petition.

26. Accordingly, the writ petition lacks merit and is dismissed with no order as to costs.

A. Service Law – Transfer – Violation of transfer policy – Scope of interference by the court – Transfer, when can be interfered with – Principle laid down – Held, the Court cannot interfere with the transfer matter as the Government servant has no vested right to continue at a place of his choice. The Government can transfer the officer/employee in the administrative exigency and in public interest – However, if a transfer is made against the executive instructions or transfer policy, the competent authority must record brief reason in the file for deviating from the transfer policy or executive instructions and the transfer must be necessary in the public interest or administrative exigency. 5. Dharmendra Kumar Saxena Vs St. of U.P. & ors.;2013 (7) ADJ 53

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. R S Dubey, learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. This writ petition has been filed interalia for the following relief:-

"a. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 30.10.2021 passed by respondent no.2 (Annexure no.8) as well as order dated 25.11.2021 (Annexure no.9), passed by respondent no.4 and further directed to respondents to not transfer the petitioner from district Deoria to District Banda."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that initially, the petitioner, who was posted as Junior Assistant at C.H.C. Mahen, District-Deoria, was transferred to C.M.O. Banda and on the same date by another order dated 15.07.2021, the petitioner was transferred from C.M.O., Mahen, Deoria to the office of C.M.O., Deoria. However, vide order dated 05.08.2021, the Chief Medical Officer, Deoria has required the petitioner to join as Senior Assistant at his office at District-Deoria, pursuant to which the petitioner has joined at the office of respondent no.4-Additioanl Chief Medical Officer, Transport Protocol, Deoria, District-Deoria on 10.08.2021. Subsequently, due to some confusion, two orders have been passed wherein the petitioner has shown absconding as one of the orders dated 15.07.2021 required the petitioner to join at Banda. He further submits that by impugned order dated 30.10.2021, the petitioner, who is working as Senior Assistant has been transferred from District-Deoria to Banda on the ground that he remained there nearly since 20 years, which is against the Government Policy. The petitioner vide order dated 25.11.2021 has been relieved from the office of respondent no.4, however, he could not join at the place of posting as he had met with an accident and is on medical leave. He further submits that transfer of the petitioner is in violation of the transfer policy of the State Government as the petitioner has been transferred second time within three months, therefore, the aforesaid impugned orders are not sustainable in the eye of law.

4. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents submits that there is no illegality in the transfer order as the petitioner has been transferred on the ground that he has remained at Deoria since last 20 years. Even otherwise, he was transferred from Deoria where he was working as Junior Assistant and has now been posted as Senior Assistant at Banda.

5. The law on the transfer is too settled to reiterate that if the transfer is made contrary to transfer policy or executive order, it does not confer any vested right upon an employee to challenge it.

6. The reference may be made to the judgement of the Apex Court in the Case of B. Varadha Rao v. State of Karnataka and others, reported in (1986) 4 SCC 131, wherein it has been held that the occasion to consider a short point whether an order of transfer is appealable under Rule 19 of the Karnataka Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1957, and the Supreme Court held in paragraphs- 4 and 6 as under: -

"4. ..... It is well understood that transfer of a government servant who is appointed to a particular cadre of transferable posts from one place to another is an ordinary incident of service and therefore does not result in any alteration of any of the conditions of service to his disadvantage. That a government servant is liable to be transferred to a similar post in the same cadre is a normal feature and incident of government service and no government servant can claim to remain in a particular place or in a particular post unless, of course, his appointment itself is to a specified, non-transferable post. ....."

"6. .....But, at the same time, it cannot be forgotten that so far as superior or more responsible posts are concerned, continued posting at one station or in one department of the government is not conducive to good administration. It creates vested interest and therefore we find that even from the British times the general policy has been to restrict the period of posting for a definite period. We wish to add that the position of class III and class IV employees stand on a different footing. We trust that the government will keep these considerations in view while making an order of transfer"

7. The Supreme Court in the case of Shilpi Bose (Mrs) and others v. State of Bihar and others, reported in 1991 Supp (2) SCC 659, was dealing with the case of transfer of some lady teachers in Primary Schools in the State of Bihar. They were transferred, on their own request, to places where their husbands were posted. The transfer orders were made by the District Education Establishment Committee. The teachers, who were displaced, challenged the transfer order before the Patna High Court on the ground that District Education Establishment Committee had no jurisdiction. Patna High Court allowed the petition, set aside the transfer order and directed for re-posting of the respondents. Ultimately, the matter was carried to the Supreme Court and the Supreme Court set aside the judgment of the Patna High Court and held as under:

"4. In our opinion, the courts should not interfere with a transfer order which is made in public interest and for administrative reasons unless the transfer orders are made in violation of any mandatory statutory rule or on the ground of mala fide. A government servant holding a transferable post has no vested right to remain posted at one place or the other, he is liable to be transferred from one place to the other. Transfer orders issued by the competent authority do not violate any of his legal rights. Even if a transfer order is passed in violation of executive instructions or orders, the courts ordinarily should not interfere with the order instead affected party should approach the higher authorities in the department. If the courts continue to interfere with day-to-day transfer orders issued by the government and its subordinate authorities, there will be complete chaos in the administration which would not be conducive to public interest. The High Court overlooked these aspects in interfering with the transfer orders."

8. The law laid down in Shilpi Bose (supra) was again reiterated by the Supreme Court in the case of Union of India and others v. S.L. Abbas, reported in (1993) 4 SCC 357, and observed as under:

"6. An order of transfer is an incident of Government service. Fundamental Rule 11 says that "the whole time of a Government servant is at the disposal of the Government which pays him and he may be employed in any manner required by proper authority". Fundamental Rule 15 says that "the President may transfer a Government servant from one post to another". That the respondent is liable to transfer anywhere in India is not in dispute. .."

9. In the case of N.K. Singh v. Union of India and others, reported in (1994) 6 SCC 98, the appellant Sri N.K.Singh was an I.P.S. Officer. He was allocated to State cadre of Orissa. He was I.G., C.I.D. in Orissa. His services were placed on deputation to Ministry of Home Affairs and was posted as Joint Director in Central Bureau of Investigation (C.B.I.). He was In-charge of a Special Investigation Group conducting some sensitive investigation. He was abruptly transferred to Border Security Force (B.S.F.) in an equivalent post of I.G.P.. He challenged his transfer order on the ground of malafide against the then Prime Minister Shri Chandrashekhar and the then Union Law Minister Dr. Subramanyam Swami. The grievance of the appellant therein was that he was In-charge of a Special Investigation Group investigating into St. Kitts affair. Therefore, he was eased out from the C.B.I. to scuttle the fair investigation. Against this background, the Supreme Court ruled as under: -

"6. ....., learned counsel for the appellant did not dispute that the scope of judicial review in matters of transfer of a government servant to an equivalent post without any adverse consequence on the service or career prospects is very limited being confined only to the grounds of mala fides and violation of any specific provision or guideline regulating such transfers amounting to arbitrariness. In reply, the learned Additional Solicitor General and the learned counsel for Respondent 2 did not dispute the above principle, but they urged that no such ground is made out; and there is no foundation to indicate any prejudice to public interest."

"24. ...Challenge in courts of a transfer when the career prospects remain unaffected and there is no detriment to the government servant must be eschewed and interference by courts should be rare, only when a judicially manageable and permissible ground is made out. This litigation was ill-advised."

10. This Court in the case of Dharmendra Kumar Saxena v. State of U.P. and others reported in 2013 (7) ADJ 53 has held that it is true that violation of transfer policy or executive order does not confer any vested right on an employee to challenge it, but the Government is bound by executive orders/ policies, and the guidelines are made to follow it and not to breach it without any justifiable reason. The Court also held that in case a transfer is made contrary to transfer policy or executive order, the officer concerned should record reasons for defying the transfer policy or executive order. Recording of reasons are necessary in view of the fact that in case any representation is made to the higher authority, he may be apprised of the reasons for violation of the transfer policy or the Government order. The Court also followed the view consistently taken by the Supreme Court. Relevant paragraph of the order read as under: -

"24...the Government is bound by executive orders/policies. The guidelines are made to follow it and not to breach it without any justifiable reasons. Whenever the Government deviates from its policies/guidelines/ executive instructions, there must be cogent and strong reasons to justify the order; when transfer order is challenged by way of representation, there must be material on record to establish that the decision was in public interest and it does not violate any statutory provision, otherwise the order may be struck down as being arbitrary and violative of Article 14 of the Constitution. The authorities cannot justify their orders that breach of executive orders do not give legally enforceable right to aggrieved person. As observed by Justice Frankfurter "An executive agency must be rigorously held to the standards by which it professes its action to be judged".

11. The petitioner in the present case has been transferred on the ground that he has stayed at the said place for more than twenty years and hence, the same is not in violation of any transfer policy or Government Order.

12. After considering the submission made by the parties as well as careful consideration of the law laid down by the Supreme Court, I am of the view that this Court cannot interfere with the transfer matter as the Government servant has no vested right to continue at a place of his choice. The Government can transfer the officer/employee in the administrative exigency and in public interest. However, if a transfer is made against the executive instructions or transfer policy, the competent authority must record brief reason in the file for deviating from the transfer policy or executive instructions and the transfer must be necessary in the public interest or administrative exigency.

13. This writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

4. Printers (Mysore) Ltd. Vs M.A. Rasheed & anr. reported in (2004) 4 SCC 460

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Sanjay Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Pranab Ojha, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent and Shushil Kumar Mirshra, learned counsel for the respondent nos.2&3, who will file his vakalatnama in the Registry today itself.

2. This writ petition has been filed interalia for the following relief:-

"A. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing and commanding the respondent no.3 to decide the representation dated 07.02.2010 within the stipulated period."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner was appointed on the post of Driver on 22.01.2009. A show cause notice dated 06.02.2010 was given by the respondent no.3 to him with respect to the fact that as to why his services be not terminated on the ground that he has concealed the fact regarding pendency of the criminal case against him. He further submits that the petitioner has submitted his reply to the show cause notice on 07.02.2010 but nothing has been done.

4. Learned Standing Counsel as well as learned counsel for the respondent nos.2&3 submits that the present writ petition is hopelessly barred by limitation, as pursuant to the show cause notice issued on 06.02.2010, the petitioner has slept over his rights for more than twelve years. He further submits that not even a single word has been mentioned in the present writ petition with regard to delay in filing same.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner also could not dispute the aforesaid submissions made by the learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

6. It is settled law that the person, who is not vigilant and dormant about his right, cannot be allowed to agitate his right as has been held by the Apex Court in the case of Central Coalfields Limited through its Chairman and Managing Director & Ors. Vs. Smt. Parden Oraon reported in 2021 SCC OnLine SC 299.

7. The time-barred cases should not be entertained by Courts as the rights, which have accrued to others by reason of delay in approaching the Court, cannot be allowed to be disturbed unless there is a reasonable explanation for the delay. The vested rights of the parties should not be disrupted at the instance of a person, who is a guilty of culpable negligence. The Privy Council in General Fire and Life Assurance Corporation Ltd. Vs. Janmahomed Abdul Rahim, AIR 1941 PC 6, relied upon the writings of Mr. Mitra in Tagore Law Lectures 1932, wherein it has been said that "a law of limitation and prescription may appear to operate harshly and unjustly in a particular case, but if the law provides for a limitation, it is to be enforced even at the risk of hardship to a particular party as the Judge cannot, on applicable grounds, enlarge the time allowed by the law, postpone its operation, or introduce exceptions not recognised by law."

8. In N. Balakrishnan Vs. M. Krishnamurthy, reported in (1998) 7 SCC 133, the Apex Court explained the scope of limitation and condonation of delay, observing as under:-

"The primary function of a Court is to adjudicate the dispute between the parties and to advance substantial justice. The time-limit fixed for approaching the Court in different situations is not because on the expiry of such time a bad cause would transform into a good cause. Rules of limitation are not meant to destroy the rights of parties. They are meant to see that parties do not resort to dilatory tactics, but seek their remedy for the redress of the legal injury so suffered. The law of limitation is thus founded on public policy."

9. In the case of Northern Indian Glass Industries Vs. Jaswant Singh & ors., reported in AIR 2003 SC 234, the Apex Court has held that the High Court cannot ignore the delay and laches in approaching the writ court and there must be satisfactory explanation by the petitioner as how he could not come to the Court well in time.

10. Further in the the case of Printers (Mysore) Ltd. Vs. M.A. Rasheed & Anr. reported in (2004) 4 SCC 460, the Apex Court has held that the High Court should dismiss the writ petition on the ground of unexplained inordinate delay.

11. In view of the aforesaid, this Court finds no good ground to entertain the present writ petition. It is, accordingly, dismissed on the ground of inordinate delay.

4. Ambrish Kumar Saxena Vs S. Of U.P. Thru. Prin.Secy.(Karmik) U.P. Sectt. Lko. & Ors. Writ Petition No. 10001 (SS) of 2018 decided on 11.4.2018.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Instructions passed on to the Court today is kept on record.

2. Heard Mr. Mohammad Umar Khan, learned counsel for the petitioner, Ms. Suman Jaiswal, learned counsel for the respondents.

3. This writ petition has been filed interalia for the following relief:-

"A. Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus, directing the respondents to release the amount of Rs. 4,88,570/- in favour of the petitioner after considering his claim regarding treatment of his wife from 09.05.2021 till the date of her death within a short stipulated period which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the case.

B. Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondents to pass a reasoned and speaking order on the application of the petitioner dated 21.06.2021 within a short stipulated period."

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that while the petitioner was posted as Sub-Inspector at Shiv Sagar situated in the State of Assam, his wife suffered from Covid-19, therefore, treatment was given to her at Gorakhpur, which is permanent place of resident of the petitioner. He further submitted that certain expenses were incurred during the treatment of the petitioner's wife for which claim/representation has been moved before the respondent no.2, i.e. Director General of Police, Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF), C.G.O. Complex, New Delhi. However, the respondent no.4 has sent a letter dated 24.08.2021 to the respondent no.5 to proceed in accordance with law with respect to the medical claim made by the petitioner as the petitioner was posted at the Office within the jurisdiction of respondent no.5 at the time when the petitioner's wife suffered from Covid-19., therefore, it was within the jurisdiction of respondent no.5, who shall take decision in accordance with law.

5. Learned counsel for the respondents, on the basis of instructions received by her, submits that regarding similar issue, several writ petitions, one being Writ-A No.6850 of 2021, have been dismissed. She further submits that the medical reimbursement claim of the petitioner has been returned by the DIG, Group Centre, CRPF, Bhuvneshwar, Odisha to the Commandant-149 Bn, CRPF located in Jay Sagar, Shiv Sagar, Assam, vide letter dated 24.08.2021 with a direction that after looking into the objections, the file may be placed before the DIG, Range Hqr, CRPF, Bhuvneshwar. Therefore, neither the cause of action nor even part of cause of action arises under the territorial jurisdiction of this Court, as such, the present writ petition is not maintainable. However, it is always open to the petitioner to move an application/representation before the appropriate authority having jurisdiction.

6. I have considered the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties as well as gone through the entire materials brought on record.

7. The petitioner, who is resident of Gorakhpur, U.P., was posted at the Office of respondent no.5, i.e. Commandant, 149 Btn, Shib Sagar, Assam at the time when his wife suffered from Covid-19 whereas the representation/application for medical claim has been made before the respondent no.2, DGP, CRPF, New Delhi. Therefore, merely because petitioner is resident of this State, no cause of action would arise within the territorial limits of this Court. Law in that regard has already been settled by a larger bench of this Court in Rajendra Kumar Mishra Vs. Union of India and others reported in (2005) 5 AWC 4542 All, wherein this Court in paras-39, 40 and 41 has observed as under:-

"39. Therefore, in order to understand and appreciate the binding force of a decision it is always necessary to see what were the facts in the case in which the decision was given and what was the point which had to be decided. No judgment can be read as if it is a statute. A word or a clause or a sentence in the judgment cannot be regarded as a full exposition of law.

40. For the reasons given above we are of the opinion that the Chief of Army Staff can only be sued either at Delhi where he is located or at a place where the cause of action, wholly or in part, arises.

41. We may mention that a "cause of action" is the bundle of facts which, taken with the law applicable., gives the plaintiff a right to relief against the defendant. However, it must include some act done by the defendant, since in the absence of an act, no cause of action can possibly occur."

8. In case of U.P. Rashtriya Chini Mill Adhikari Parishad vs. State of U.P. reported in (1995) 4 SCC 738, the Apex Court in para-14 has held as under:-

"14. .....The territorial jurisdiction of a Court and the "cause of action" are interlinked. To decide the question of territorial jurisdiction it is necessary to find out the place where the "cause of action" arose. We, with respect, reiterate that the law laid down by a four-Judge Bench of this Court in Nasiruddin case holds good even today despite the incorporation of an Explanation to Section 141 to the Code of Civil Procedure."

9. In case of Navinchandra N. Majithia vs. State of Maharashtra reported in (2000) 7 SCC 640, the Apex Court in para-38 has held as under:-

"38. "Cause of action" is a phenomenon well understood in legal parlance. Mohapatra, J. has well delineated the import of the said expression by referring to the celebrated lexicographies. The collocation of the words "cause of action, wholly or in part, arises" seems to have been lifted from Section 20 of the Code of Civil Procedure, which section also deals with the jurisdictional aspect of the courts. As per that section the suit could be instituted in a court within the legal limits of whose jurisdiction the "cause of action wholly or part arises....?"

10. This Court has also decided the same controversy in Writ Petition No. 10001 (SS) of 2018 (Ambrish Kumar Saxena vs. State Of U.P. Thru. Prin.Secy.(Karmik) U.P. Sectt. Lko. & Ors.) decided on 11.4.2018.

11. In view of the above, this Court under special circumstances can not direct the respondents, which is not within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court to pass any positive orders in favour of the petitioner regarding medical claim. However, it is always open to the petitioner to move an application/representation before the appropriate authority having jurisdiction.

12. Accordingly, the present writ petition is dismissed as not maintainable.

Heard Sri Ashok Khare learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Sujeet Kumar and Sri Arun Kumar Rana, Sri Samir Sharma learned Senior Counsel, Sri Girjesh Tiwari, Sri Yogesh Kumar Saxena, Ms. Chhaya Gupta, Sri K. Shahi, Sri Anand Tripathi for the petitioners and all other counsels appearing in the connected writ petitions. Learned Advocate General assisted by Ms. Archana Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. The main relief sought in the petitions in this batch is:-

"Issue a writ, order or direction declaring the U.P. Basic Education (Amendment) Act' 2017 (U.P. Act No.2 of 2018) and the U.P. Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) (Amendment) Act 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) as ultra vires to the Constitution".

I. Introduction:-

3. In the State of U.P., the education upto class XII is governed by two Acts mainly, (i) The U.P. Intermediate Education Act' 1921; (ii) The U.P. Basic Education Act' 1972. The institutions which are engaged in imparting elementary education, secondary and higher secondary education in the State can be categorized as under:-

(a) A school established, owned or control-led by the appropriate government or a local authority;

(b) An aided school receiving aid or grants to meet whole or parts of its expenses from the appropriate government or the local authority;

(c) An unaided school not receiving any kind of aid or grants to meet its expenses from the appropriate government or the local authority;

(d) The school pertaining to specified category such as Kendriya Vidyalaya, Navodaya Vidyalaya, Sainik School etc.

4. The Non-Governmental institutions which are receiving the grant-in-aid from the State government, in the matter of payment of salaries to its teachers and other employees, are governed by:-

(1) The Uttar Pradesh High School and Intermediate Colleges (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act' 1971.

(2) The Uttar Pradesh Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act' 1978.

(a) The Challenge:-

5. The petitioners herein are recognized institutions imparting education from Classes I to VIII. They have been categorized in four categories in view of the submissions of the learned Advocate General:-

Category A- Unaided Junior High Schools

Category B- Primary Sections recognized first and Junior High School.

Category C- Junior High School recognized first and attached primary sections later.

Category D- Recognized primary and junior High Schools receiving grant-in-aid by wrong orders.

6. Some of the petitioners institutions had been receiving grant-in-aid and salary of the teachers of the primary sections/ school which had been withdrawn by individual orders passed by the Special Secretary, Basic Education and some of the petitioners institutions have been denied grant on the ground that the grant-in-aid cannot be accorded to a primary institution after introduction of the amendments by U.P. Act No.2 of 2018 and U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 in the Act' 1972 and the Act' 1978; respectively1.

7. We may note, at the outset, that the petitioners though assailed individual orders passed by the State Government denying the benefit of aid to the concerned institutions by seeking a writ of certiorari but the learned counsels for the petitioners have addressed us only with respect to the validity of the Amendment Acts. It was agreed by the Counsels for the petitioners that the correctness of the individual orders would depend upon the answer to the main question with respect to the constitutional validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017. The submission is that the only basis to reject the claim for bringing the institution in the grant-in-aid list is the Amendment Acts No.2 of 2018 & No.3 of 2018; the individual facts of each case, hence, need not to be examined. The outcome of the challenge would determine the rights and liability of the parties before us and as such we leave it open for the parties to draw appropriate proceedings depending upon the outcome of this judgment.

8. All rights and contentions of the parties consequently in this respect are left open.

(b) The legislative scheme prior to the amendment:-

9. The Board of Basic Education came to be constituted by the U.P. Basic Education Act' 1972 (U.P. Act No.34 of 1972)2 promulgated on 19th August 1972. The Statement of Objects and Reasons stated thereof is as under:-

"Statement of Objects and Reasons-(1) The responsibility for primary education has so far rested with the Zila Parishads in rural areas and with Municipal Boards and Mahapalikas in urban areas. The administration of education at this level by the local bodies was not satisfactory, and it was deteriorating day by day. There was public demand for the Government to take immediate steps for improving the education at this level. Hence for reorganizing, reforming and expanding elementary education it became necessary for the State Government to take over its control into its own hands.

(2) Repeated demands had been made by all sections of the Legislature also for the take-over of the control of elementary education by the State Government from local bodies. Echoing this public demand, the Governor had also in his address to both the Houses of the Legislature on March 20, 1972, said that in order to strengthen the primary and junior high schools and to increase their usefulness Government was going to assume full responsibility for its control and management.

(3) With a view to taking effective steps for securing the object of Article 45 of the Constitution, and fulfilling the assurances given in the Governor's address and respecting the popular demand it was necessary to entrust the conduct and control of elementary education to a virile institution which may be expected to inject new life into it and to make it progressive. It was, therefore, decided by the Government to transfer the control of primary education from the local bodies to the Uttar Pradesh Board of Basic Education with effect from the educational session 1972-73.

(4) The educational session had commenced and the Legislative Council was not in session and if immediate action had not been taken, the matter would have had to be postponed till the educational session 1973-74, with the result that the desired object would not have been achieved. Therefore, in order to implement the said decision immediately, the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Ordinance, 1972, was promulgated.

(5) The Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Bill, 1972, is being introduced to replace the said Ordinance."

The long title of the Act reads that:-

"An act to provide for the establishment of a Board of Basic Education and for matter connected therewith".

10. The expression "Basic Education" as defined in Section 2(b) of the original enactment means:-

"basic education" means education up to the eighth class imparted in schools other than high schools or intermediate colleges, and the expression

"basic schools" shall be construed accordingly;

11. Upon constitution of the Board in terms of Section 3 of the Act, the elementary educational institutions which were under the control of the Gram Panchayat, Zila Panchayat, Municipalities or other local bodies stood transferred under the control and management of the Board of Basic Education and supervision of the State Government. The Act' 1972, thus, had been enacted for reorganizing, reforming and expanding elementary education. The State Government had taken full responsibility for its control and management in order to strengthen the primary and junior high schools to achieve the object of Article 45 of the Constitution of India. The ultimate object and purpose of enactment of Act' 1972 was to improve the education at the elementary level.

12. In exercise of powers under sub-section (1) of Section 19 of the Act' 1972, two separate rules namely Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers and other Conditions) Rules' 19753 and the Uttar Pradesh Recognised Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) (Recruitment and Conditions of Service of Teachers) Rules' 19784 were framed.

13. These Rules were framed to regulate the terms and conditions of recruitment and services of teachers of Junior Basic School and Junior High school; respectively. The expressions "Junior Basic School" and "Recognized School" defined in Rules' 1975 are as under:-

"Junior Basic School" means an institution other than High Schools or Intermediate Colleges imparting Education up to the V Class."

"Recognised School" means any Junior Basic School, not being an institution belonging to or wholly maintained by the Board or any local body, recognised by the Board before the commencement of these rules for imparting education from Classes I to V."

14. The expressions "Junior High School" and "Recognized School" defined in Rules' 1978 are as under:-

"Junior High School" means an Institution other than High School or Intermediate college imparting education to boys or girls or both from Classes VI to VIII (inclusive)."

"Recognised School" means any junior High School not being an institution belonging to or wholly maintained by the Board or any local body recognised by the Board as such."

15. Rules 4 & 5 of the Rules' 1975 oblige management of recognized school to provide adequate infrastructure in accordance with the standard and specification specified by the Board and read that:-

"4. Financial resources. - In every recognised school adequate financial resources shall be made available by the management of such school for its efficient working and adequate facilities shall be provided in accordance with such standard as may be specified by the Board for teaching the subjects in respect of which such school is recognised.

5. Buildings and equipment. - In every recognised school, arrangements shall be made for such buildings, lavatories, playgrounds and equipment as are in accordance with the specifications specified by the Board and for the construction of well-ventilated and clean buildings in hygienic surroundings".

Rules 6 & 7 provide that :-

"6. Tuition Fees Subject to the provisions of Rule 7, tuition fee may be charged in any recognised school at a rate not exceeding Rs.15 per month and no other amount by whatever name called either as fee, donation or contribution, shall be charged from the students.

7. Exemption from tuition fee- Subject to the provisions of paras 106 to 114 of the Education Code, so far tray may be applicable, free education shall be provided in any recognised school to 25 per cent of the number of students on the rules of such school."

16. The expression "Board" as defined in 1978 Rules means:-

"Board means the Uttar Pradesh Board of Basic Education constituted under Section 3 of the Act."

17. The U.P. Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and Other Employees) Act' 1978, (U.P. Act No.6 of 1979)5 came to be enacted by the U.P. Legislature to regulate the payment of salaries to teachers and other employees of Junior High Schools receiving aid out of the State funds and to provide for the matters connected therewith. The Act came into force w.e.f 01.05.1979.

The "institution" defined in 1978' Act means a recognized institution for the time being receiving maintenance grant from the State Government.

The expressions "teachers" and "salary" in Section 2(h) and 2(i) of the 1978 Act are defined as:-

"2(h) "Teacher" of an institution means a headmaster or other teacher in respect of whose employment maintenance grant is paid by the State Government to the institution."

"2 (i) "Salary" of a teacher or employee means the aggregate of the emoluments, including dearness or any other allowance, for the time being payable to him at the rate approved for the purpose of payment of maintenance grant."

Section 10 of the 1978' Act provides that:-

"10. Liability in respect of salary. - (1) The State Government shall be liable for payment of salaries of teachers and employees of every institution due in respect of any period after the appointed day.

(2) The State Government may recover any amount in respect of which any liability is incurred by it under sub-section (1) by attachment of the income from the property belonging to or vested in the institution as if that amount were an arrear of land revenue due from the institution.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to derogate from the liability of the institution for any such dues to the teacher or employee."

18. Section 13-A makes transitory provision in respect to such institution which is receiving maintenance grant from the State Government and in respect of such teachers and employees whose salary are paid from the maintenance grant and which is upgraded to High school and Intermediate standard. Sub section (2) of Section 13-A provides that:-

"13-A(2) For the purposes of this section the reference to the students wherever they occur in section 5, shall be construed as reference to the students of classes up to junior High School level only."

(c) The Amendments of 2017/ 2018:-

19. By the amendment Act, U.P. Act No.2 of 2018 (hereinafter referred as U.P. Act No.2 of 2018), two clauses have been inserted in the definition clause under Section 2 of the Act' 1972.

20. For ready reference, the U.P. Act No.2 of 2018 is reproduced here-

1.(1) This Act may be called the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education (Amendment) Act, 2017.

(2) It shall be deemed to have come into force on August 19, 1972.

Provided that the provisions of this sub-section shall not affect anything done or any action taken before 26th October 2017 under the principal Act.

2. In section 2 of the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act 1972, after clause (d) the following clauses be inserted, namely:-

(d-1) "Junior Basic School" means a basic school in which education is imparted upto class fifth.

(d-2) Junior High School means a basic school in which education is imparted to boys or girls or to both from class sixth to class eight.

3. (1) The Uttar Pradesh Basic Education (Amendment) Ordinance 2017 is hereby repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the provisions of the principal Act as amended by the Ordinance referred to in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the corresponding provisions of the principal Act as amended by this Act as if the provisions of this Act were in force at all material times.

21. By the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 (hereinafter referred as U.P. Act No.3 of 2018), amendments have been brought in 1978' Act with the insertion of clause (ee) in Section 2 of the definition clause.

22. For ready reference, the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 is reproduced here:-

1 (1) This Act may be called the Uttar Pradesh Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) (Amendment) Act 2017.

(2) It shall be deemed to have come into force on January 22, 1979.

Provided that the provisions of this sub-section shall not be affect anything done or any action taken before 26the October 2017 under the principal Act.

3. In Section 2 of the Uttar Pradesh Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act 1978, after clause (e) the following clause shall be inserted, namely:-

(ee) "Junior High School" means an institution which is different High School or Intermediate College in which education is impart to boys or girls or to both from class sixth to class eight.

3(1) The Uttar Pradesh Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and Other Employees) (Amendment) Ordinance 2017 is hereby repealed

(2) Notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the provisions of the principal Act as amended by the Ordinance referred to in sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the co-responding provisions of the principal Act as if the provisions of this Act were in force at all material times."

(d) History of Litigation:-

23. A question arose in the year 1991 in Writ Petition No.24478 of 1988 with regard to the payment of salary to the teachers of the primary sections who were working in the institution which was Junior High School. They claimed salary from the State exchequer as was being accorded to the teachers of Junior High School. Their claims were decided by this Court in the following manner:-

"I have heard learned counsel for the petitioners as also the learned standing counsel. The petitioners may be teaching the Primary classes but they are working in the institution which is junior High School and they are teachers of the a junior High School which runs the classes from 1 to 8. All the classes which are being though in the school constitute one unit and they are not separated Unit. The respondents have also not said that they are separate unit. In fact Annexure 2 appended to the writ petition makes it abundantly clear that the school is one unit in which education is imparted to primary classes and junior classes by the teachers who are working under the one management and one Head Master. That being so that petitioners cannot be deprived of the benefit of payment of salary Act and they are entitled to be paid under the provision of the said Act. The petitioners are entitled to be paid their salary under the provisions of the Payment of Salary Act as they are teachers of the junior High School and the order contained in Annexure-2 lands support to their contention that they are also entitled to get salary in accordance with the provision of payment of Salary Act."

24. The stand of the State before this Court was that the teachers of primary sections were not entitled to payment of salary from the State exchequer or maintenance grant as the Uttar Pradesh Junior High Schools (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act, 1978 (1978 Act) was not applicable to the primary sections, namely classes I to V, but covered only classes VI to VIII. This Court repelled the said argument and directed the State Government to bring the teachers working in the primary sections of the Junior High School within the purview of 1978' Act and pay their salary according to the said Act.

25. The challenge to the said decision by the State in the Special Leave to Appeal and Review Petition before the Apex Court was turned down. As there was no specific order to pay arrears of salary to the teachers, a dispute arose on account of non-payment of arrears of salary which the teachers were claiming from 01.07.1975, which had resulted in institution of another Writ Petition No.24284 of 1995 wherein specific direction was sought to pay the arrears of salary since 01.07.1975. The said writ petition was disposed of on 07.10.1996 with the direction to pay the arrears to the teachers w.e.f. 29.08.1991, the date of the order passed by this Court in the previous writ petition.

26. Aggrieved teachers went to the Apex Court against the order dated 07.10.1996 raising a grievance that the High Court had curtailed the relief from what was envisaged under the judgement and order dated 29.08.1991. It was asserted that they were entitled for the arrears w.e.f. 01.07.1975 and not from 29.08.1991. This matter was decided on 20.03.1998 by three judges bench of the Supreme Court in Vinod Sharma and Ors. v. Director of Education (Basic) U.P. and Ors6. The appeals were allowed and direction was issued to pay salary to the teachers under the Act' 1978 (w.e.f. from the date the said Act had been made applicable in the institution concerned, i.e. from the date junior high school teachers of that institution were paid salary under the 1978' Act.

27. This decision has been referred as Vinod Sharma-II in all other subsequent decisions.

28. In another matter before the Apex Court, a question arose as to whether teachers of privately managed primary schools and primary sections of Junior High schools were eligible to receive their salary from the State Government. The two Judges Bench in the report State of U.P. and others Vs. Pawan Kumar Divedi7, felt that the three Judges Bench decision of the Apex Court in Vinod Sharma II required reconsideration.

29. The relevant portion of the reference order dated 08.09.2006 reads as follows:

"In the present appeals, submissions which were similar to those raised in the writ petitions filed by Vinod Sharma and others before the High Court and in the special leave petition in this Court have been repeated and reiterated. What has been highlighted is the fact that having regard to the various government orders, it would be quite evident that the State Government had never intended to bring the primary sections of the different junior basic schools, junior high schools and intermediate colleges within the scope of the Payment of Salary Act, 1978 and that a deliberate and conscientious decision was, therefore, made in treating the "junior basic schools" differently from "junior high schools". It is the latter category of schools that were brought within the scope of the Payment of Salary Act, 1978.

While noticing the fact that "junior basic schools" and "junior high schools" were treated differently, the High Court and, thereafter, this Court appear to have been swayed by the fact that certain schools provided education from Classes I to X as one single unit, although, the same were divided into different sections, such as, the primary section, the junior high school section, which were combined together to form the junior basic section from Classes I to VIII, and the high school section comprising Classes IX and X. In fact, in one of these appeals where a recognised Sanskrit institution is involved, the said institution is imparting education both for the primary section, the high school section, the intermediate section and the BA section. The Mahavidyalaya is thus imparting education from Class I up to graduate level in a recognised institution affiliated to the Sampurnanand Sanskrit University, Varanasi. It has been contended by Dr. Padia on behalf of the institution that the said institution is one unit having different sections and the teachers of the institution are teachers not of the different sections but of the institution itself and as a result no discrimination could be made amongst them. This was precisely one of the arguments advanced in Vinod Sharma1 which was accepted by this Court.

However, it appears to us that both the High Court and this Court appear to have lost sight of the fact that education at the primary level has been separated from the junior high school level and separately entrusted under the different enactments to a Board known as the Uttar Pradesh Board of Basic Education constituted under Section 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972 and the same Board was entrusted with the authority to exercise control over "junior basic schools" referred to in the 1975 Rules as institutions imparting education up to the Vth class.

In our view, the legislature appears to have made a conscientious distinction between "junior basic schools" and "junior high schools" and treated them as two separate components comprising "junior basic education" in the State of Uttar Pradesh. Accordingly, in keeping with the [pic]earlier government orders, the Payment of Salary Act, 1978 did not include primary sections and/or separate primary schools within the ambit of the 1978 Act.

Of course, it has been conceded on behalf of the State Government that an exemption was made in respect of 393 schools which had been continuing to function from prior to 1973 and the teachers had been paid their salaries continuously by the State Government. In the case of the said schools, the State Government took a decision to continue to pay the salaries of the teachers of the primary section of such schools.

Apart from the above, it has also been submitted by Mr Dinesh Dwivedi, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the State of Uttar Pradesh that payment of salaries of teachers of recognised primary institutions must be commensurate with the State's financial condition and capacity to make such payment.

Having regard to the contentions of the respective parties, the issue decided in Vinod Sharma case that teachers of the primary sections of recognised junior basic schools, junior high schools and high schools were entitled to payment of their salaries under the Payment of Salary Act, 1978, merits reconsideration."

30. This reference was decided by the Apex Court in State of U.P. and others Vs. Pawan Kumar Divedi8.

31. In Pawan Kumar Divedi8 it was argued by the State that the legislature made a conscientious distinction between "junior basic schools" and "junior high schools" and treated them as two separate components of "basic education" in the State of Uttar Pradesh. The education at the primary level had been separated from the Junior High School level and separately entrusted under different enactments to the Board known as the 'U.P. Board of Basic Education' constituted under Section 3 of the 1972 Act though the same Board was entrusted with the authority to exercise control over Junior basic schools referred to in 1975 Rules as "institutions" imparting education upto class V.

32. The Constitution Bench posed a question to itself for examining the correctness of the view in Vinod Sharma-II that necessary consideration had to be made of the aspect whether there was a separation of education at the primary level (Junior Basic level) from the Junior High School level with the constitution of Uttar Pradesh Board of Basic Education under the 1972 Act and entrustment of the Board with the authority to exercise control over Junior Basic Schools, referred to in the 1975 Rules as institutions imparting education upto class V and whether such an arrangement rendered the view taken by the Apex Court in Vinod Sharma-II bad in law. The State argued that the 1978' Act did not cover teachers of primary sections of the Junior High schools. The management was liable to pay salary of teachers according to the 1975 Rules. Under the 1978 Act, there was no provision for payment of salaries to the teachers in Junior basic schools (primary schools) by the State Government.

33. On behalf of the teachers, it was submitted that there was an obligation on the State to provide aid to Classes I to VIII and exclusion of Junior basic school sections of the same Junior High School from Government aid was discriminatory and impermissible classification. Referring to Article 21-A of the Constitution, it was submitted that the State had an obligation to provide grant-in-aid to basic education or basic schools (Classes I to VIII), corresponding to the students of 6 to 14 years. The classification separating Classes I to V from Junior High School for the purpose of aid was discriminatory and without any reasonable objective or any rational nexus. It was also urged that the 1978 Act contemplated the Junior High School as including the Junior Basic School, i.e., Classes I to V wherever the components of Junior Basic Schools and Senior Basic Schools were together leading to Junior High School examination. The schools having the Junior Basic Schools and the Senior Basic Schools (Junior High Schools) either separately or together were being governed under the same Board, i.e., the Board of Basic Education as per the provisions of the 1972 Act. The aid granted to the schools having Classes VIII and below was brought under the statutory scheme of payment of salary from State Exchequer through the 1978' Act. Excluding Classes I to V which were part of the 'basic school' being in the same school or institution from the operation of the 1978' Act was irrational.

34. While answering the reference, the Constitution Bench noted that the expression "Junior High School" is not defined in 1978 Act and proceeded to determine the meaning of the expression for the purpose of 1978' Act. While doing so, it has deliberated on the State's obligation to grant aid to recognised educational institutions imparting basic education corresponding to students of 6 to 14 years. The relevant part of the Constitution Bench judgement in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 on the aspect of constitutional philosophy in respect of the State's obligation needs to be noted as under:-

"33.....Before insertion of Article 21-A in the Constitution by 86th Amendment Act, 2002 which received the assent on 12.12.2002, this Court in Unnikrishnan3 observed that the children up to the age of 14 years have a fundamental right to free education.

34. Article 45 which was under consideration in Unnikrishnan3 reads that "the State shall endeavour to provide, within a period of 10 years from the commencement of this Constitution, for free and compulsory education for all children until they complete the age of 14 years."

35. In paragraph 172 of the Report, the Constitution Bench in Unnikrishnan3 said:

"172. Right to free education for all children until they complete the age of fourteen years (Art. 45). It is noteworthy that among the several articles in Part IV, only Article 45 speaks of a time-limit; no other article does. Has it no significance? Is it a mere pious wish, even after 44 years of the Constitution? Can the State flout the said direction even after 44 years on the ground that the article merely calls upon it to "endeavour to provide" the same and on the further ground that the said article is not enforceable by virtue of the declaration in Article 37. Does not the passage of 44 years -- more than four times the period stipulated in Article 45 -- convert the obligation created by the article into an enforceable right? In this context, we feel constrained to say that allocation of available funds to different sectors of education in India discloses an inversion of priorities indicated by the Constitution. The Constitution contemplated a crash programme being undertaken by the State to achieve the goal set out in Article 45. It is relevant [pic]to notice that Article 45 does not speak of the "limits of its economic capacity and development" as does Article 41, which inter alia speaks of right to education. What has actually happened is -- more money is spent and more attention is directed to higher education than to -- and at the cost of -- primary education. (By primary education, we mean the education, which a normal child receives by the time he completes 14 years of age.) Neglected more so are the rural sectors, and the weaker sections of the society referred to in Article 46. We clarify, we are not seeking to lay down the priorities for the Government -- we are only emphasising the constitutional policy as disclosed by Articles 45, 46 and 41. Surely the wisdom of these constitutional provisions is beyond question. This inversion of priorities has been commented upon adversely by both the educationists and economists." Then, in paragraph 175, the Court stated:

"175. Be that as it may, we must say that at least now the State should honour the command of Article 45. It must be made a reality -- at least now. Indeed, the National Education Policy 1986 says that the promise of Article 45 will be redeemed before the end of this century. Be that as it may, we hold that a child (citizen) has a fundamental right to free education up to the age of 14 years." In paragraph 176 in Unnikrishnan3, the Court said as follows:

"176. This does not however mean that this obligation can be performed only through the State Schools. It can also be done by permitting, recognising and aiding voluntary non-governmental organisations, who are prepared to impart free education to children. This does not also mean that unaided private schools cannot continue. They can, indeed, they too have a role to play. They meet the demand of that segment of population who may not wish to have their children educated in State-run schools. They have necessarily to charge fees from the students. In this judgment, however, we do not wish to say anything about such schools or for that matter other private educational institutions except "professional colleges'. This discussion is really necessitated on account of the principles enunciated in Mohini Jain v. State of Karnataka (1992) 3 SCC 666 and the challenge mounted against those principles in these writ petitions."

36. In TMA Pai Foundation2, the eleven-Judge Constitution Bench approved the view of Unnikrishnan3 to the extent it was held in that case that primary education is a fundamental right. Question 9 and its answer (Pg. 590 of the Report) read as under:

"Q. 9. Whether the decision of this Court in Unni Krishnan, J.P. v. State of A.P. (except where it holds that primary education is a fundamental right) and the scheme framed thereunder require reconsideration/modification and if yes, what?

The scheme framed by this Court in Unni Krishnan case and the direction to impose the same, except where it holds that primary education is a fundamental right, is unconstitutional. However, the principle that there should not be capitation fee or profiteering is correct. Reasonable surplus to meet cost of expansion and augmentation of facilities does not, however, amount to profiteering."

37. The statement by the five-Judge Constitution Bench in Unnikrishnan3 that primary education is fundamental right is echoed in HP State Recognised Higher Schools Managing Committee4 as well. The three-Judge Bench in paragraphs 16 and 17 (pgs. 514-515 of the Report) reiterated the constitutional mandate to the state to provide free education to the children up to the age of 14. The three-Judge Bench said:

"16. The constitutional mandate to the State, as upheld by this Court in Unni Krishnan case -- to provide free education to the children up to the [pic]age of fourteen -- cannot be permitted to be circumvented on the ground of lack of economic capacity or financial incapacity.

17. It is high time that the State must accept its responsibility to extend free education to the children up to the age of fourteen. Right to education is equally guaranteed to the children who are above the age of fourteen, but they cannot enforce the same unless the economic capacity and development of the State permits the enforcement of the same. The State must endeavour to review and increase the budget allocation under the head "Education'. The Union of India must also consider to increase the percentage of allocation of funds for "Education" out of the Gross National Product."

35. It was then observed:-

"As noticed, the constitutional obligation of the state to provide for free and compulsory education of children till they complete the age of 14 years is beyond doubt now."

36. On the issue of interpretation of the expression "Junior High School", the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 has negatived the contention advanced on behalf of the State that the definition of "Junior High School" as contained in the 1978 Rules should be read and adopted while interpreting the provisions of the 1978 Act. Noticing Section 2(j) of the 1978 Act which says that the words and expressions defined in the 1972 Act and not defined in that Act shall have the meaning assigned to them in the 1972 Act, it was noted that neither the 1972 Act nor the 1978 Act had defined the expression "Junior High School" and it merely referred to it as examination.

37. It was argued by the State before the Constitution Bench that the expression "Junior High School" in the 1978 Rules must govern and influence the interpretation of the expression not defined in 1972 Act and 1978 Act. Repelling the same, it was held that the rules made under a different enactment for a different purpose could govern a separate enactment viz, the 1978 Act for payment of salaries. The definition of "Junior High School" in the 1978 Rules did not exhaust the scope of the expression "Junior High School". Moreover, a prior rule could be taken in aid to construe a subsequent enactment. It was, thus, held that:-

"We find merit in the argument of Dr. M.P. Raju that the schools having the Junior Basic Schools and the Senior Basic Schools either separately or together are under the same Board, i.e., the Board of Basic Education, as per the 1972 Act. Moreover, any other view may render the provisions of the 1978 Act unconstitutional on the ground of discrimination. In our considered view, any interpretation which may lead to unconstitutionality of the provision must be avoided. We hold, as it must be, that Junior High School necessarily includes Classes I to V when they are opened in a Senior Basic School (Classes VI to VIII) after obtaining separate recognition and for which there may not be a separate order of grant-in-aid by the Government.

We accordingly affirm the view taken by the three-Judge Bench in Vinod Sharma. Our answer to the question is in the affirmative."

38. Subsequent to that, in Paripurna Nand Tripathi & another Vs State Of U.P. & others9, a Division Bench of this Court noticing the effect of insertion of Article 21-A in the Constitution and the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act' 2009 mandating the State to provide free and compulsory education to all children of the age six to fourteen years, has observed that the private institutions imparting education to children of the said age group are performing and sharing the obligations of the State. Consequently, a duty is cast upon the State Government not only to provide the grant-in-aid to such institutions but also make provisions for requisite infrastructure subject to reasonable restriction laid down by it. Further observing that the pitiable conditions in which teachers in private unaided institutions were working and need to provide quality education to the large majority of children of the said age group coming from the marginalized sections of the society, in rural and semi urban areas, it was time for the State Government to revisit its age old policy in the light of the constitutional amendment and the law laid down by the Apex Court in Society for Unaided Private Schools of Rajasthan V. Union of India10, State of U.P. and others v. Bhupendra Nath Tripathi and others11, Bhartiya Seva Samaj Trust and another Vs. Yogeshbhai Ambalal Patel and another12 and Pawan Kumar Divedi8.

39. Emphasis was laid that to provide quality education, it is necessary that trained and competent teachers are appointed and necessary infrastructure is also made available to such institutions so that the students will not be deprived of quality education.

40. In furtherance of the same, the learned Single Judge of this Court in Writ-C No.62182 of 2015 (Gram Vikash Sewa Samiti & Another Vs. Union Of India And 4 Others) on 05.11.2015 had issued the following direction:-

"8. In view of the above, this petition is disposed of with a direction to the second respondent to ensure compliance of the directions issued by this Court in the case of Paripurna Nand Tripathi (supra) and frame policy in relation to Grant-in-aid to unaided institutions in light of the Constitutional mandate and Article 21-A and the provisions of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009 expeditiously, preferably within a period of three months from the date of production of certified copy of this order before the Principal Secretary (Basic Education U.P., Lucknow)."

41. Pursuant to the decision rendered in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9, the State formulated a policy with respect to maintenance grant (aid) to primary educational institutions attached to non government aided secondary institutions with the issuance of the government order dated

27.10.2016, which provided that various steps have been taken by the State Government under Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan to achieve the objectives of RTE Act and the State has formulated the norms of establishing primary school within one kilometer from the residence of the child in a locality having population of not less than 3000 people. It was stated therein that bearing in mind the aforesaid standard, the State had opened 26,459l new primary institutions under the aegis of Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan. In total, approximately 1,13,000 primary institutions were being run in the entire state under the management of the Board of Basic Education. It was noted that as per the provisions of RTE Act and the 2011 Rules framed by the State thereunder, only 2055 localities had been left where primary institutions were to be established. It was further recorded that in the annual working plan and budgetary allocation for 2016-17, the State had earmarked 1652 localities in which the primary institutions were to be established. A proposal for establishment of primary institutions in these localities were forwarded to the Union Government but it was not sanctioned by the Project Approval Board. On overall assessment of the aforesaid situation, the State had proceeded to formulate the following principles for extending the benefit of grant-in-aid to private unaided primary sections:-

"a) At the outset the issue of grant in aid would only be considered with respect to 2055 identified localities in which no primary education institution is established by the Board;

b) Private and unaided primary education institutions which are present in these 2055 localities and which had been established prior to 21 June 1973 alone would be considered for being taken under the grant in aid scheme;

c) The primary school must be one whose permanent recognition for Classes 1 to 8 had been granted simultaneously and by a composite order;

d) The primary institution must be such in respect of whom an order of attachment had been passed by the District Inspector of Schools prior to 21 June 1973;

e) The attached primary section must be one which is under the management and control of one Head Master;

f) The primary section must be operating from common premises along with the Junior High School/High School or Intermediate College to which it is attached and should be under the control of a common management;

g) It must be found that upon passing Class V, the child migrates to Class VI without the issuance of a Transfer Certificate;

h) The primary section must be an integral part of the higher secondary school or intermediate college."

42. It was further noted the failure on the part of the Union Government to release required budget for establishment of new school or for the augmentation of the infrastructure of the primary school in the financial year 2012-13, 2015-16 and 2016-17 had resulted in causing additional burden of Rs.6103.55 crores on the State exchequer. It was also noted that in the last five years, the enrollment in institutions established and administered by the Board had fallen by 23.62 lacs, as a consequence of it, the teacher student ratio at the primary level had fallen to 1:29 and upper primary level to 1:21 against the norms of 1:30 and 1:35 as mandated under the RTE Act. The Government order also referred that the number of students enrolled in non-government and government aided primary and upper schools also reduced to 3:64 crores in 2015-16 than 3:71 crores in the previous years. Thus, a drop of 18.6% in enrollment in the private aided and unaided primary and upper primary schools was noted. It was, thus, concluded therein that upon consideration of the aforesaid facts, the State Government came to the conclusion that it was not expedient to either establish any new primary institution or to extend the facility of financial aid to any such existing institution. It was, however, decided that the said decision and the policy statement would be reviewed after five years.

43. This policy embodied in the Government order dated 27.10.2016 came to be challenged in a bunch of writ petitions leading being Jai Ram Singh & others Vs State of U.P. & others13, the petitioners being the societies running the institution, management and teachers.

44. The learned Single Judge in a erudite judgement on considering the essence of Vinod Sharma I & II and Pawan Kumar Divedi8 as also the scheme of 1971 Act (Payment of Salaries to Teacher of Aided High School and Intermediate) held that in view of definition of expression "institution" and "recognition" under Section 2(b) of 1971 Act, a primary institution which is homogeneous part of a recognized and aided high school or intermediate institution would fall within the ambit of the 1971 Act, as a primary section cannot be understood to be a separate or distinct component. It would, irrespective of the fact that it may not be in receipt of a maintenance grant, remain an integral component of that institution. The teachers of such a primary section cannot, therefore, be denied the protection of the 1971 Act.

45. For the right of teachers employed in recognised primary sections either attached to junior high schools or stand alone recognised primary institutions, it was observed that by virtue of the 2017 amendments in the 1972 and 1978 Act, the meaning of the expression "institution" has undergone a transformative change and no longer left to judicial interpretation. As there was no challenge to the said amendment before that Court nor the validity of a statutory provision could have been examined by the Court by virtue of the determination of that Bench, relief to the said class of teachers was refused leaving it open to initiate appropriate proceedings to question the validity of the amendments.

46. Thus, under the Grant-in-aid policy formulated by the State in the year 2016-17, two classes of primary institutions (Junior Basic Schools) institutions came to be created, one which are attached to recognised and aided high school or intermediate institutions; and another which are either attached to Junior High Schools or stand alone recognized primary institutions (junior basic schools).

47. It appears that two sets of special appeals were filed challenging the aforesaid judgement and order dated 23.05.2009 of the learned Single Judge, one by the State and another by those teachers and non-teaching staff whose challenge was turned down. The special appeals filed by the second set had been decided noticing that liberty was with the appellants to challenge the 2017 Amendments. The first set of special appeals were, however, dismissed on the submission of the State that it has come out with the new policy by amendments in the rules and now the parties would be governed by said policy and the rules.

(e) The object of the amendments under challenge:-

48. The two legislative amendments which have been introduced by the State post the Constitution Bench decision in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 after the directions issued by the Division bench of this court in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9, subject matter of challenge in the present batch of writ petitions have been reproduced in the foregoing part of this judgment. At this stage, we find it appropriate to note the Statement of objects and reasons of the Amendment Acts' 2017, so as to have a ready reference of the object of bringing the amendments in the 1972 Act & 1978 Act.

49. With the U.P. Act No.2 of 2018 which was published in the official gazette on January 5, 2018, the State introduced amendments in the UP Basic Education Act' 1972 (UP Act No. 34 of 1972) by introducing clauses (d-1) and (d-2) in Section 2 to define the expressions "Junior Basic School" and "Junior High School". The Statement of objects and reasons of U.P. Act No. 2 of 1972, U.P. Basic Education (Amendment) Act' 2017 is extracted hereunder:-

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

"The Uttar Pradesh Basic Education Act, 1972 (UP A. no. 34 of 1972) has been enacted to provide for the establishment of a Board of Basic Education in the Sate of Uttar Pradesh In clause (b) of section 2 of the said Act, the expression basic education has been defined in this way that "basic education means education upto the eighth class imparted in schools other than high schools or intermediate colleges, and the expression "basic schools shall be construed accordingly. The expressions "junior basic school" and "junior high school were not defined therein due to which odd situations were being created before the State Government and the cases instituted in various courts were often being disposed off in favour of the plaintiffs. In view of the above, it has been decided to amend the said Act to define the expressions "junior basic school" and "junior high school"

Since the State Legislature was not in session and immediate legislative action was necessary to implement the aforesaid decision, the Uttar Pradesh Basic Education (Amendment) Ordinance, 2017 (U.P. ordinance no. 3 of 2017) was promulgated by the Governor on October 26, 2017.

This Bill is introduced to replace the aforesaid Ordinance."

50. By U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 published in the official gazette on January 5, 2018, the amendment has been brought in Section 2 of the Uttar Pradesh Junior High Schools (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act, 1978 by insertion of Clause (ee) giving meaning to the expression "Junior High School". The statement of objects and reasons of U.P. Act No. 3 of 2018 reads as under:-

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

"The Uttar Pradesh Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act, 1978 has been enacted to provide for regulating the payment of salaries to teachers and other employees of Junior High Schools receiving aid out of the State Funds. In section 2 of the said Act, the word "institution" was defined as "Junior High School" but the expression "Junior High School" was not defined therein due to which odd situations were being created before the State Government and the cases instituted in various courts were often being disposed off in favour of the plaintiffs. In view of the above, it has been decided to amend the said Act to define the expressions "Junior High School".

Since the State Legislature was not in session and immediate legislative action was necessary to implement the aforesaid decision, the Uttar Pradesh Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) (Amendment) Ordinance, 2017 (U.P. Ordinance no. 2 of 2017) was promulgated by the Governor on October 26, 2017."

This Bill is introduced to replace the aforesaid Ordinance."

51. Both the Amending Acts of 2017 have been applied retrospectively. The U.P Act No. 2 of 2018 introduced amendment in the 1972 Act w.e.f August 19, 1972 when the the Original Act was published in the official gazette. Similarly, U.P. Act No. 3 of 1978 has been introduced w.e.f. January 22, 1979, the date when Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and Other Employees) Act, 1978, the Original Act came into force. The two Amending Acts are in the nature of Validation Acts and as per the stand of the State, with the introduction of definite expression given to "Junior Basic School" and "Junior High School" in the 1972' Act and 1978' Act, the Junior Basic School (primary institutions) imparting education upto Class V are outside the purview of 1978' Act. The basis of the Constitution Bench judgement in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 that the expression "Junior High School" in 1978' Act would include the primary institutions attached to it, has been effaced with the Amendment Act' 2017. The primary institutions though recognized, cannot seek benefit of State grant by virtue of 1978' Act after 2017 Amendment by U.P. Act No. 3 of 2018.

Submissions of the petitioners:-

52. On behalf of the petitioners, it is urged that the impugned amendments are in teeth of the direction issued by the Division Bench in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9 and clearly contrary to the spirit underline the decision in Pawan Kumar Divedi8.

53. It was contended that the essence of the decision in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 is that the State cannot discriminate between two sets of schools, which are "Junior Basic School" and "Junior High School" established either separately or together, controlled and managed by the same Board, i.e. the Board of Basic Education as per the 1972 Act. It is contended that the Constitution Bench in paragraph No.'44' of the report has held that since both the primary and junior sections are controlled and managed by the same Board, denial of protection of the 1978 Act by any other interpretation of the provision would render it unconstitutional on the ground of discrimination. It was, thus, concluded by the Apex Court that the Junior High School necessarily includes Classes I to V when they are opened in a Senior Basic School (Classes VI to VIII) after obtaining separate recognition and for which there may not be a separate order of grant-in-aid by the Government. In paragraph '42.2' of the report, the Constitution Bench has held that if a Junior Basic School (Classes I to V) is added after obtaining necessary recognition to a recognized and aided Senior Basic School (Classes VI to VIII), then surely such Junior Basic School becomes integral part of one school, i.e. Basic School having Classes I to VIII.

54. It is, thus, submitted that the attached primary sections of a Junior High School has been treated to be an integral part of the institution concerned. The State cannot discriminate the teachers of primary sections who are teaching students from Classes I to V. The right to education of children from the age 6 to 14 years is constitutionally recognised. The State is under obligation to provide free and compulsory quality education to children of this age group.

55. It is argued by Shri Ashok Khare learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioners that the State Government though can remove the basis of a judgement by legislative amendments, but the basis of decision of the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 cannot be said to have been effaced by the Amendment Acts' 2017 for the above reasons.

56. It is contended that the essence of the decision in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 is that the State cannot discriminate between two sets of school, one which are Junior Basic School and another Junior High School, controlled and managed by the same Board, i.e. Board of Basic Education as per the 1972' Act on the principles of equality enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution of India. The Constitution Bench disagreed with the referral order that the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 did not include primary sections as the "Junior Basic School" and "Junior High School" have been treated as two separate components comprising Basic Education in the State of UP and held that the features noted in the reference order do not render the view taken in Vinod Sharma6 bad. The reference was, thus, answered in the above terms. While taking the above view, the Constitution Bench has also considered the expression "Junior High School" from the angle of the constitutional mandate embodied in Article 45 and Article 21-A and the Right to Education Act.

57. It is urged by the learned Senior Counsel that the view taken in Vinod Sharma I and II that Classes I to VIII taught in one institution are one unit and, therefore, teachers of the primary classes cannot be deprived of the benefit of the 1978' Act, has been held to be in accord and conformity with the Constitutional scheme relating to free education to the children up to 14 years by the Constitution Bench. It was held that the schools having the Junior Basic Schools and the Senior Basic Schools either separately or together are under the same Board, i.e. the Board of Basic Education, as per the 1972' Act and, therefore, any other view treating them as separate components of Basic Education may render the provisions of the 1978' Act unconstitutional on the ground of discrimination. The Constitution Bench has further observed that any interpretation which may lead to unconstitutionality of the provision must be avoided.

58. It has, thus, been vehemently urged that the Validation Acts (Amendment Acts of 2017) may have filled the gap by introducing new meaning to "Junior High School" and "Junior Basic School", but the ratio of the Constitution Bench judgement in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 that the State cannot discriminate the teachers of the attached primary sections of an aided Junior High School and any such action would be violation of principle of equality as enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution, cannot be said to have been effaced. The contention is that the State has introduced amendments of the character which was emphatically disapproved by the Constitution Bench. The Division Bench of this Court in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9 has observed that it is the State's responsibility to provide free and compulsory education to children of the age of 6 to 14 years. Private institutions which are imparting education to children of the said age group, in fact, are performing and sharing the obligation of the State. Therefore, an obligation is cast upon the State Government not only to provide the grant-in-aid to such institutions but to provide infrastructure also subject to reasonable conditions laid down by it. Providing education to children of the age 6 to 14 fourteen years shall be a mirage unless qualitative education is provided to them.

59. Viewed from that angle, the Division Bench had observed that after the enactment of the R.T.E. Act' 2009 and the law laid down by the Apex Court in Pawan Kumar Divedi8, the State of U.P. may revisit its old age policy in light of the constitutional amendment and the law laid down by the Supreme Court on the enactment of Right to Education Act. The contention, thus, is that the exclusion of teachers of the primary school attached to aided Junior High School being in violation of the equality clause enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution makes the amendments invalid, ultra virus to the Constitution.

60. It was lastly contended by the learned Senior Advocate that the primary institutions of the writ petitioners represented by him were initially brought in grant-in-aid under the 1978' Act, however, subsequent to the amendments, notices have been issued indicating withdrawal of the orders of providing grant-in-aid. Though the State has not passed any official order after reply to the notices by the petitioner but it is not releasing salary of the primary teachers of the institutions concerned.

61. It is further argued that the principle of integrality of the primary schools (Classes I to V) added after obtaining necessary recognition to a recognised and aided Senior Basic School (Classes VI to VIII), as noted in Pawan Kumar Divedi8, has been discussed elaborately by the learned Single Judge in Jai Ram Singh13 to hold that if the institution has the attributes as evolved in Vinod Sharma I, it would be entitled to be considered and viewed as "one unit". While deliberating on the question of composite integrality it was held that the issue would have to be answered upon a conjoint consideration of the various factors such as common campus, functioning under the control of the same management, a singular Headmaster administering the institution and a seamless integration between different sections. Singular factor of the common campus may have lessened in its relevance because of the sea change which has been seen in the field of education over the period of years since Vinod Sharma-I came to be decided. The principles as evolved by the learned Single Judge to determine the issue of composite integrality of an institution is that it would have to be examined and evaluated taking into consideration a combination of the attributes and factors enumerated above. (emphasis added).

62. It is, thus, submitted that to decide as to whether a primary school (Classes I to V) is an integral part of recognized and aided Junior Basic School (Classes VI to VIII) various factors enumerated above of a particular institution will have to be looked into. It is submitted that the view of the learned Single Judge in Jai Ram Singh13 has not been upturned, modified or varied by a higher Court and, therefore, is binding on the State. The denial of grant-in-aid to the petitioners institutions based on the Amendment Acts' 2017 simply by exclusion of the primary institutions from the purview of 1978' Act is nothing but violation of Article 14 of the Constitution.

63. Adding to the above, Sri Girjesh Tiwari learned Advocate for the petitioners submits that the Right to Education Act' 2009 defines "elementary education" in Section 2 (f) to mean "the education from 1st class to 8th class". There is no classification of Junior Basic School or Junior High School in the Right to Education Act which is a Central Act. The Act of the State excluding the institutions imparting education in Classes I to V from the purview of 1978' Act is thus, against the Right to Education Act' 2009 which has been enacted to meet the constitutional mandate envisaged in Article 21-A of the Constitution.

64. Sri Samir Sharma learned Senior Advocate assisted by Ajay Kumar Srivastava for the petitioners further submits that there cannot be any doubt to the constitutional scheme of the obligation of the State to provide free and compulsory education to all children of the age of 6 to 14 years. The Statement of objects and reasons of the Right to Education Act shows that the said enactment has been brought to achieve the objectives of Article 21-A, as inserted by the Constitution 86th Amendment Act' 2002. Rule 6 and 7 of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Rules' 2010 enacted in exercise of the powers conferred by Section 38 of the Right to Education Act 2009 cast obligation on the State to provide compulsory education to children in Classes I to V in neighbourhood school within a walking distance of 1 km. The financial responsibility to carry out the provisions of the Act has been imposed on the Central Government.

65. The data given by the State in the counter affidavit is referable to a Government Order dated 14.07. 2020 which enumerates the steps taken by the State Government to achieve the objectives of Right to Education Act' 2009 and the Rules' 2011 framed thereunder. Paragraph 7(1) of the said Government Order records that under the umbrella of Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan, after the enactment of Right to Education Act' 2009, 1,13,289 primary schools and 45,625 upper primary schools have been established which are being administered by the Board. It then refers to the fact that the State bears the financial burden of providing salary to 5,63,2 75 teachers employed in the school (primary and upper primary) administered by the Board. As a result of the steps taken by the State, the objective of providing free and compulsory education to children of the State between the age of 16 to 14 years has been met and there is a saturation point in the infrastructure in the field of Basic Education (primary and upper primary). The Government Order further refers to the fact that in the financial year 2015-16 and 2016-17, the Union Government had not provided funds of its share in salary/other than salary head, as a consequence of which the State had to bear an additional burden of Rs. 6103.55 crores.

66. The attention of the Court has then been drawn to the Government Order dated 27.10.2016 wherein it was stated by the State Government that there were 2055 localities where primary institutions as per the mandate of the Right to Education Act 2009, could not be established under Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan in the State of U.P., as per the criteria of a primary institution within one k.m. of residential locality of 3000 residents. The State Government, therefore, provided that the applications for providing grant-in-aid would be considered only with respect to those 2055 localities wherein primary institutions have been established prior to 21.06.1973 by the private players, subject to other conditions mentioned therein.

67. On comparison of the two Government orders dated 27.10.2016 and 14.07.2020, it is submitted by the learned Advocate Sri Samir Sharma that as per the data given by the State itself, it is evident that within a span of four years, i.e. between 2016 and 2020, the State had added only 77 (42 primary and 35 upper primary schools) institutions both at the primary and upper primary level in the State of U.P. It is also evident from the data of the State that there is no addition in the number of teachers employed in the institutions administered by the Board of Basic Education. The figures given by the State Government in its own affidavit shows the failure on its part to achieve the objectives of the Right to Education Act' 2009. The statement in paragraph 7 (2) of the Government Order dated 14.07.2020 that the State has met the objectives of providing free and compulsory education to children of age 6 to 14 years and the field is now saturated, is clearly misleading. The figures given in the Government Order dated 14.07.2020 clearly show that the State has failed to open sufficient number of schools as per the mandate of the Right to Education Act to cater to the children of primary Classes I to V. There is still a huge shortfall and as per own admission of the State atleast 2013 localities are left where primary institutions are not existing within a distance of 1 k.m. as per the norms fixed by the State Government under Sarva Shiksha Abhiyan of the Basic Education Department.

68. It is vehemently urged that the figures given by the State in the counter affidavit show the pitiable condition in which the basic educational institution run by it are being managed. It is evident that though 77 new institutions have been added but there is no addition in the strength of the teachers. The quality education in a Government institution, thus, remains a dream in the State of U.P. The Division Bench in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9 has considered this state of affairs to observe that in absence of good quality teachers in primary and basic education situated in rural and semi urban areas, the students are deprived of quality education. Due to non-availability of trained teachers, the State has appointed untrained teachers as Shiksha Mitra in the institutions managed by the Board. To provide quality education, it is necessary that trained and competent teachers are appointed and necessary infrastructure is also made available to such institutions. It is, thus, duty of the State to provide trained and competent teachers and necessary infrastructure so that majority of the children of the said age group who come from the marginalized section of the society are not deprived of quality education.

69. It is urged that the denial of grant-in-aid to the primary institutions attached to Junior High Schools being run by the private management, which are sharing the obligation of the State to provide free and quality education, thus, is a clear contravention of the constitutional mandate in Article 21-A, Article 14 and the Right to Education Act' 2009. The stand of the State that enrollment in the basic institutions have been declined in the year 2017 is without any basis, in as much as, the population ratio as per the official website of the Ministry concerned has increased to the extent of 19% in 8 years between 2011 and 2019. Atleast 45 lacs children have been added in the population of the State in the last eight years. It is high time for the State to introspect to find out the reasons for declining enrollment in the institutions managed by the Board. The issuance of the Government Order dated 14.7.2020 with the statement that neither there is requirement of new primary institution nor it is feasible for the State to provide aid to the new institutions or the previously recognized institutions as it would cause financial burden upon the State, is nothing but indicative of the fact that the State is not ready to fulfill its obligation under the Right to Education Act. There is no substantial improvement in the field of education in the last four years between 2016 and 2020 as per own data of the State; the decision of the State to exclude the recognized primary institutions attached to the Junior High School from Government aid scheme, therefore, is unjustified and violative of the constitutional mandate and the scheme of the Right to Education Act. The Government Order dated 14.07.2020 which has been heavily relied by the State in its counter affidavit filed on 18.03.2021 has evidently been issued in a slipshod manner.

70. In any case, financial burden on the State cannot be a reason to deny aid to primary institutions. The effect of judgement of the Constitutional Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 read with the decision of the Division Bench in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9, was to enlarge the scope of financial aid to private institutions which are sharing the responsibility of the State to meet the constitutional objectives to provide education to the children of the required age group in the State of U.P. The curtailment of financial aid by bringing legislation with retrospective effect is unreasonable and nothing but an attempt to circumvent the protection of Right to Education Act and Article 14 of the Constitution of India. Anything done indirectly to circumvent the constitutional obligations cannot be approved by the Court.

71. The issuance of the Government Order dated 14.07.2020 after the decision of the learned Single Judge in Jai Ram Singh13 is irrational and without any proper exercise conducted by the State which shows anxiety on the part of the State to nullify the directions of this High Court.

72. Reliance is placed on the decision of the Apex Court in State of Tamil Nadu and others Vs. K. Shyam Sunder and others14 to submit that the Statement of objects and reasons of the Amendment Acts' 2017, the history of litigation undertaken by the teachers and management of primary institutions and the surrounding circumstances and the conditions of the case clearly indicate that the Amending Acts 2017 have not been brought to cure the gap in the legislative scheme, but the mischief, which the State intended to suppress by bringing the amendments is to deny the protection of 1978' Act to teachers of primary institutions and a consequent denial of Right to Education Act to the children of the particular age group who have right to receive free, compulsory and quality education at the primary level. The Amendment Acts' 2017 are, consequently, hit by Part III of the Constitution and are liable to be struck down being ultra virus to the Constitution.

Submissions of the State:-

73. In rebuttal, learned Advocate General vehemently submits that the petitioners have no locus to maintain the writ petitions. Different category of institutions have joined together to seek enforcement of the 1978' Act which actually does not cast any obligation on the State to provide grant-in-aid to private institutions. The 1978' Act to the contrary, has been enacted for enforcement of the duty on the private management of the institutions which are receiving grants from the State fund. It is contended that the petitioners before us may be categorized in four categories:-

74. Category-'A' is of the institutions which are unaided recognised Junior High Schools.

75. Category-'B' is a group of institutions where the recognition of the primary institutions is later to the recognition of Junior High Schools recognized and aided by the State.

76. Category-'C' is of the primary institutions which have been recognized prior to the establishment of the Junior High School but only the Junior High School has been granted aid from the State fund.

77. Category-'D' is the list of Junior High Schools which have been granted aid by issuance of wrong orders, which have been revoked or cancelled by the competent authority.

78. The submission is that none of the petitioners- institutions falling in Category 'A','B','C' or 'D' meet the criteria of being "aggrieved persons". The petitioners are the Committee of management which have no right to seek grant-in-aid or protection of the 1978' Act. The pleading in the writ petitions are mainly about protection of Article 21-A and Right to Education Act which essentially is the right of children of the required age group. The discrimination by denial of protection of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 to the teachers of primary institutions (Classes I to V) cannot be ventilated by the petitioners-management. Unless and until the petitioners satisfy the test of being "aggrieved persons" by placing specific pleading in the writ petitions they cannot maintain the challenge.

79. The stress is that the petitioners cannot plead violation of any legal right as they have no right to receive aid and moreover, they cannot ask the State to provide aid from the State fund, to manage their own affairs, i.e. the institutions established by them on their own volition. The counter affidavit filed by the State not only elaborates the number of schools established by it and the students studying therein but also narrates the policy of the State framed from time to time for compliance of the provisions of Right to Education Act' 2009. There is neither any allegation in the writ petitions that sufficient Basic schools are not available in the State of U.P. nor any person 'aggrieved' has come forward to assert that the State has failed to meet its obligation under the R.T.E. Act which has resulted in denial of right guaranteed to him. The State has no liability towards the management of the private institutions. Conferment of right to children of free and compulsory education cannot be ventilated as a ground by the private management to seek financial aid from the State. Since the inception of the scheme framed by the State formulating conditions for recognition of private institutions, the management is required to have sufficient infrastructure; it has to be self sufficient and ensure availability of finances from its own resources. The recognition of private institutions is granted in the scheme namely the U.P. Education Code' 1958 which provides the conditions of recognition to schools at three stages:-

(1) Pre-basic stage or Nursery stage

(2) Junior basic (primary) stage (classes I to V)

(3) Senior Basic (Junior High School) stage (Classes VI to VIII).

80. It provides that while granting recognition to Senior Basic School (Junior High School), the authority concerned is to be satisfied as to whether financial resources available are adequate for the efficient working of the proposed institution apart from the adequate facilities for teaching the subject in which recognition is applied for and the infrastructure in terms of building and other recreational facilities for outdoor activity for the students. The contention, thus, is that a private management before seeking recognition of the State to run a school (whether primary or Junior High School) has to ensure availability of adequate financial resources for running the institution.

81. The preconditions for recognition enumerated in the Education Code' 1958 themselves show that the management cannot be dependent upon or ask for aid from the State to provide salary to the teachers employed in the institutions run by it. The plea of discrimination of the teachers employed in the primary institutions run by the private management on account of denial of aid by the State thus, is wholly misconceived.

82. Further, the Scheme of 1975' Rules regulating recruitment and conditions of services of teachers of a recognized Basic School (Classes I to V) has been placed before us to assert that Rule 10 puts an obligation on the management of a recognized Basic School to pay the same scale of pay and allowances to every teacher and employee as are paid to teachers and employees of the Board possessing similar qualifications. Rule 13 of 1975' Rules cast an obligation on the management to comply with conditions of recognition, failing which the Board has been given power to withdraw recognition under Rule 14 of the 1975' Rules. The preamble of the 1978' Act (Payment of Salaries Act) has been placed before us to assert that the purpose of the enactment is to regulate the payment of salaries to teachers and employees of Junior High schools which are receiving aid out of the State fund.

83. Section 3 and 4 of the 1978' Act contain provisions to ensure regular and timely payment of salary of teachers and other employees of the institutions getting grant from the State fund. It is contended that section 10 of 1978' Act cannot be read to impose liability on the State to pay salary of teachers and employees of private institutions. This interpretation of Section 10 would be a result of misreading of 1978' Act which only lay stress upon the responsibility of the private management to make regular payment of salary to the teachers and employees engaged by it. In any case, the private institutions/management do not have any legal right to seek aid from the State fund.

84. It is submitted that the age old policy of the State is not to provide funds to private primary institutions. The rationale behind this classification is that a large number of institutions providing primary education from Classes I to V have been established and are being run by the State or its instrumentalities in discharge of its Constitutional obligation under Article 45 as it stood before the Eighty Sixth Amendment in the Constitution and Article 21-A thereafter. With the passage of time, as a policy matter, the State Government provided aid to institutions where there was need. Junior High Schools established by the State have been found in lesser number and, therefore, it was decided to give grant to private institutions according to the need and availability of fund of the State. No legal right much less fundamental right has been conferred on any individual person or management to seek aid from the State fund to run an educational institution. The policy decision of the State to exclude primary institutions from the purview of the 1978' Act has been challenged in the present matter on the touchstone of Article 21-A, violation of which cannot be agitated by institutions or its management.

85. To elaborate, it is urged that the constitutionality of a Statutory provision can be challenged only on two main principles; firstly, the competence of the legislature to make a law and secondly, the validity of the provisions in light of the Constitutional mandate.

86. In the instant case, both the above grounds are not available to the petitioners, in as much as, they have no right as enumerated in Part-III of the Constitution of India and there is no challenge to the competence of the legislature to enact. The plea of violation of Article-14 of the Constitution, i.e. discrimination cannot be successfully raised, in as much as, the legislature has make out a classification in two different categories of institutions, which has a reasonable nexus with the object sought to be achieved by the State, which is to utilize State fund to upgrade the institutions run and managed by the Board of Basic Education so as to provide free, and compulsory quality education to the children of marginal sections of the society in rural, semi urban and urban areas. Even otherwise, exclusion of institutions which were not getting grant from the State fund from the purview of 1978' Act cannot be said to be discrimination or creation of an artificial class by way of Amendment Acts' 2017. There is no discrimination at all as primary institutions have always formed a separate class.

87. It was argued that the parameters in determining the question of constitutionality of statutory provisions which have to be looked by the Court, has been laid down in Namit Sharma Vs. Union of India15 wherein it is stated that the wisdom of the legislature cannot be questioned by the Court as it think a restriction as unreasonable, unnecessary or unwarranted. The best judges who know and be aware of the needs of the people are the Parliament and the Legislature. They being representatives of the people are supposed to know what is good and bad for them. Reliance is further placed upon the decision of the Apex Court in State Of Andhra Pradesh & others vs Mcdowell & Co. & others16 to assert that apart from the legislative incompetence and violation of constitutional provisions, no third ground is available to challenge the validity of the statutory provisions.

88. It is submitted that even the Right to Education Act' 2009 talks of responsibility of unaided schools to provide for free and compulsory education to the children of age 7 to 14 years. Sub-section (2) of Section 12 clarifies the position that an unaided school which is benefited from the largesse of the State by receiving infrastructure in terms of land and other facilities etc. either free of cost or at a concessional rate, shall not be entitled for reimbursement, for admission of children belonging to weaker sections and disadvantaged group in the neighborhood to provide free and compulsory elementary education to them, 25% of financial obligation for which, otherwise has to be shared by the State. The argument is that the Right to Education Act cast an obligation even on unaided institutions to share the responsibility of the State to provide free education to 25% of such students.

89. Coming to the ratio of the decision in Vinod Sharma6 as upheld by the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8, it is stated that Vinod Sharma6 is the judgment in personam and not in rem. The view taken in Vinod Sharma6 cannot be said to be a ratio applicable in general. In Pawan Kumar Divedi8, the Constitutional Bench was answering the reference as to whether the view of three Judges Bench in Vinod Sharma6 was a correct view.

90. While answering the reference, the Constitution Bench interpreted the expression "Junior High School" for the purpose of 1978' Act as the said expression had not been defined in the 1978' Act to hold that it is intended to refer to the schools imparting basic education, i.e., education up to VIII class.

91. This anomaly has been removed with the Amendment Acts' 2017 by defining "Junior High School" in the 1978' Act and inserting definition of "Junior Basic School" and "Junior High School" separately in the Basic Education Act' 1972 with retrospective effect. The Amendments of 2017, thus, nullify the effect of the judgment of the Apex Court in Pawan Kumar Divedi8. It is contended that the retrospective Amendments do not disturb the earlier position with regard to the grant-in-aid being given to private institutions prior to its enforcement. As a consequence of the amendments, no other primary institutions except those which are already in the grant-in-aid list of the State, would further be entitled to seek aid from the State fund. The submission of the petitioners that such a classification has been disapproved by the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 is a result of misreading and misconception. A careful reading of the Constitution Bench decision indicates that only reference was answered by interpretation of the expression "Junior High School" as was considered in Vinod Sharma6, since the Constitution Bench was required to examine the correctness of the ratio of the said decision. Rest of the observations made by the Constitution Bench on the issue of discrimination are Obiter Dicta and it would be wrong to read them as ratio having binding effect. The plea of the petitioners that the amendments are in teeth of the decision of the Apex Court in Pawan Kumar Divedi8, therefore, is liable to be rejected outrightly.

92. Page No. '33' of the counter affidavit of the State, containing paragraph 7 (1) and (2) of the Government Order 14.07.2020 has been pressed into service to assert that the obligation of the State under the Right to Education Act' 2009 are already fulfilled. The data given therein demonstrates the efforts of the State to meet its obligation and that it has been resolved by the State that it shall continue to make an endeavor in achieving the objectives of Article 21-A of the Constitution but this obligation or responsibility of the State cannot be used as a tool by private management to seek aid from the State fund. The policy adopted by the State to utilize its finances for up-gradation of standards of the institutions already established by it and managed by the Board of Basic Education rather than providing aid to new primary institutions run by private management cannot be said to be discriminatory.

93. It is vehemently argued that no one can dictate the State as to how it will utilize its financial resources. In a matter where policy is under scrutiny and economic measures are subject in issue, the Apex Court in State of U.P. vs Principal Abhay Nandan and Inter College17 has held that the State is the best judge. While formulating such a policy, the government is not only concerned with the interest of institutions but its ability to undertake such an exercise. These are the factors which the government is expected to consider before taking such a decision. Financial constraints and deficiencies are the factors which are considered relevant in taking any decision qua aid, including both the decision to grant aid and the manner of disbursement of an aid. A decision to grant aid is by way of policy. The right to get an aid is not a fundamental right, the challenge to a decision made in implementing it, shall only be on restricted grounds.

94. It is lastly urged that a policy decision which has been applied uniformly all across the State cannot be challenged on the ground of discrimination that too by private management which has no right much less a fundamental right to get financial aid from the State. The law under scrutiny is part of economic measures of the State and it is not part of a Court's function to enquire into what it considers to be more wise or a better way to deal with a problem. It is, thus, submitted that applying the test of examining the constitutional validity of a legislative enactment, the challenge to the Amendment Acts' 2017 cannot be sustained.

Rejoinder Statement:-

95. In rejoinder, it was submitted by the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners that the objections regarding locus of the petitioners is unsustainable, in as much as, only right to apply seeking grant-in-aid is of the management. It is not the case of the petitioners that the management has a fundamental or legal right to seek aid but it certainly has a right of consideration in the matter of grant-in-aid from the State fund. It is the management which is entitled to apply for grant-in-aid and then to provide salary to the teachers and employees employed by it from the State fund and provide necessary infrastructure for the students. Inherent in the right to apply for grant-in-aid is the right to consideration for it. Exclusion of private primary sections from seeking grant-in-aid by bringing Amendment Acts of 2017 has resulted in rejection of their applications without consideration of merit of their claim. Show-cause notices were issued to the management of petitioners institutions to explain as to why grant given to them be not revoked and in some cases it has been withdrawn as a consequence of the amendments. Without challenge to the retrospective Amendments, the petitioners could not have sustained the challenge to the show cause notices issued to them or the order of withdrawal of benefits already granted to some of the petitioners institutions. Only reason given for rejection of the application seeking grant-in-aid or withdrawal of grant is the exclusion by enactment of Amendment Acts' 2017. The plea of implication of the Right to Education Act' 2009 and the resultant obligation of the State has been taken by the petitioners in order to elaborate their arguments in support of the challenge to the decision of the State and the same cannot be understood to be the submission of the management to seek grant-in-aid as a fundamental right. The Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 has categorically held that any exclusion of primary institutions from the purview of 1978' Act would be violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. Exclusion of institutions that too with retrospective effect after the said decision of the Apex Court is per se discriminatory.

96. As regards the ratio of the judgement in Principal Abhay Nandan and Inter College17, it is contended that the principles laid down therein have no application in the present dispute, in as much as, in the said matter the challenge was to certain conditions put by the State while providing grant-in-aid to certain institutions. The question there was as to whether the policy decision of the State to ask the management of the aided schools to Outsource Class IV staff was amenable to challenge on the plea of violation of constitutional provisions. In that context, it was held that the institutions being the recipient of aid are bound by the conditions attached as they have neither a fundamental right to receive aid nor a vested one.

Discussion and Conclusion:-

(I). Preliminary Issue of Locus:-

97. The education is an activity which involves several participants. The stakeholders in the field of education are the management, teachers, students and their parents.

(a) Right to Education vis a vis Right To Education Act' 2009:-

98. In so far as the submissions of the learned counsels appearing for the petitioners that children of age 6 to 14 years have a right to free education as a fundamental right, there cannot be any dispute that the right to education which flows from Article 21 of the Constitution has been recognized as a fundamental right to free and compulsory education by insertion of Article 21-A in the Constitution with the Constitution 86th Amendment Act' 2002. Article 21-A of the Constitution reads that:-

"21-A Right to Education- The State shall provide free and compulsory education to all children of the age of six to fourteen years in such manner as the State may, by law, determine."

99. The Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act' 2009 has been enacted to achieve the objectives of Article 21-A of the Constitution. The Statement of objects and reasons of 2019' Act contains the proposal for enactment of the Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Bill' 2008 which seeks to provide that every child has a right to be provided full elementary education of satisfactory and equitable quality in a formal school which satisfies certain essential norms and standards; compulsory education casts an obligation on the government to provide and ensure admission, attendance and completion of elementary education; free education means that no child, other than a child who has been admitted by his/her parents to a school which is not supported by the government, shall be liable to pay any kind of fee or charges or expenses which may prevent him or her from pursuing and completing elementary education. The duties and responsibilities of the appropriate government, parents, schools and teachers in providing free and compulsory education to children has been enumerated in the Right to Education Act' 2009 as also the Constitution.

100. Article 21-A was enacted to give effect to Article 45 of the Constitution (as it stood before the Constitution 86th Amendment Act' 2005). Article 51-A(k) enumerates fundamental duty of a parent or guardian of the child between the age of 6 and 14 years to provide opportunities for education to his children. Chapter IV of the 2009' Act deals with the responsibility of schools and teachers. Section 12(1)(c) read with section 2(n),(iii),(iv) mandates that every recognized school imparting elementary education even if it is an unaided school, not receiving any kind of aid or grant to meet its expenses from the appropriate government or the local authority, is obliged to admit in Class-I to the extent of atleast 25% of the strength of that class, children belonging to weaker section and disadvantaged group in the neighborhood and provide free and compulsory elementary education till its completion. Proviso to Section 12(1)(c) states that if the school is imparting pre-school education, the same principle would apply.

101. By virtue of Section 12(2), the unaided school which has not received any largees of the State (in terms of the land, building, equipment or other facilities either free of cost or at the concessional rate) would be entitled for reimbursement of the expenditure incurred by it to the extent of per child expenditure incurred by the State, or the actual amount charged from the child, whichever is less, in such manner as may be prescribed.

102. The Constitutional validity of the Act' 2009 and in particular, Section 12(1)(c) came to be considered by the Apex Court in Society for Unaided Private Schools of Rajasthan18. The question before the Apex Court therein was as to whether Section 12 (1)(c) of the 2009' Act places restrictions on the right of a person to establish and administer educational institutions (including schools) guaranteed under Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution.

103. It was observed therein:-

"To provide for right to access education, Article 21A was enacted to give effect to Article 45 of the Constitution. Under Article 21A, right is given to the State to provide by law "free and compulsory education". Article 21A contemplates making of a law by the State. Thus, Article 21A contemplates right to education flowing from the law to be made which is the 2009 Act, which is child centric and not institution centric. Thus, as stated, Article 21A provides that the State shall provide free and compulsory education to all children of the specified age in such manner as the State may, by law, determine. The manner in which this obligation will be discharged by the State has been left to the State to determine by law. The 2009 Act is, thus, enacted in terms of Article 21A. It has been enacted primarily to remove all barriers (including financial barriers) which impede access to education."(emphasis supplied).

104. The consideration was that the manner in which this obligation will be discharged by the State has been left to the State to determine by law. It was observed that the 2009' Act has been enacted in terms of Article 21-A, primarily to remove all barriers including financial barriers. Section 12(1)(c) of 2009' Act specifically seeks to remove all those barriers including financial, psychological barriers which a child belonging to a weaker section and disadvantaged group has faced while seeking admission. The object, thus, is not to restrict the freedom under Article 19(1)(g) but to remove the barriers faced by a child who seeks admission to Class-I. The right to education places a burden not only on the State, but also on the parent/ guardian of every child [Article 51-A(k)].

105. The relevant paragraph Nos. 36.1 & 36.2 enumerating the above principles are to be quoted hereunder:-

"36.1 Firstly, it must be noted that the expansive provisions of the 2009 Act are intended not only to guarantee the right to free and compulsory education to children, but to set up an intrinsic regime of providing right to education to all children by providing the required infrastructure and compliance of norms and standards.

36.2 Secondly, unlike other fundamental rights, the right to education places a burden not only on the State, but also on the parent/ guardian of every child [Article 51A(k)]. The Constitution directs both burdens to achieve one end: the compulsory education of children free from the barriers of cost, parental obstruction or State inaction. Thus, Articles 21A and 51A(k) balance the relative burdens on the parents and the State. Thus, the right to education envisages a reciprocal agreement between the State and the parents and it places an affirmative burden on all stakeholders in our civil society."

106. It was, thus, held that the Right to Education Act places an affirmative burden on all stakeholders in our civil society. The measures provided by virtue of Section 12(2) readwith Section 2(n)(iv) address two aspects, viz., upholding the fundamental right of private management to establish an unaided educational institution of their choice and, at the same time, securing the interests of the children in the locality, in particular, those who may not be able to pursue education due to inability to pay fees or charges of the private unaided schools. Section 12(1)(c) provides for level playing field in the matter of right to education to children who are prevented from accessing education because they do not have the means or their parents do not have the means to pay for their fees.

107. While upholding the constitutional validity of Right to Education Act' 2009, it was observed that it shall apply to the following.

"(i) a school established, owned or controlled by the appropriate Government or a local authority;

(ii) an aided school including aided minority school(s) receiving aid or grants to meet whole or part of its expenses from the appropriate Government or the local authority;

(iii) a school belonging to specified category; and

(iv) an unaided non-minority school not receiving any kind of aid or grants to meet its expenses from the appropriate Government or the local authority."

108. In the State of U.P. and others Vs Bhupendra Nath Tripathi & others19 the Apex Court held that in view of the insertion of Article 21-A in the Constitution, the State is bound to create necessary infrastructure and effective machinery for providing universal quality education. Right to Education guaranteed by Article 21A would remain illusory in the absence of the State taking adequate steps to have required number of schools manned by efficient and qualified teachers. It was held that education and particularly the elementary/basic school has to be qualitative and for that trained teachers are required as the education does not mean only learning to read and write but to acquire knowledge and wisdom so that one may lead better life and become the citizen to serve the nation in a better way.

109. Noticing the above decisions as also in the Society for Unaided Private Schools of Rajasthan10, Bhartiya Seva Samaj Trust12 and Pawan Kumar Divedi8, it was observed by the Division Bench in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9 that the policy/norms for providing grant-in-aid to unaided institutions in the age old policy of the State required a revisit.

110. It was observed therein that:-

"20. Undoubtedly, now it is the State's responsibility to provide free and compulsory education to the children of the age of six to fourteen years. Private institutions, which are imparting education to children of the said age group, in fact, are performing and sharing the obligations of the State. Therefore, an obligation is cast upon the State Government not only to provide the grant-in-aid to such institutions but to provide infrastructure also subject to reasonable conditions laid down by it. Providing education to the children of the age of six to fourteen years shall be a mirage unless qualitative education is provided to them.

21. In the State of Uttar Pradesh, the large majority of children of the said age group come from the marginalized sections of the society. Most of the institutions providing primary and basic education are situated in rural and semi-urban areas. To provide quality education it is necessary that trained and competent teachers are appointed and necessary infrastructure is also made available to such institutions. The teachers in private unaided institutions are working in pitiable conditions. No good teacher would like to work in such institutions. Thus, the students will be deprived of quality education."

(b) Interlink between Grant-in-aid & Protection of 1978' Act:-

111. The interconnection between grant-in-aid and protection of 1978' Act has been considered by the learned Single Judge of this Court in Jai Ram Singh13 while dealing with the challenge to the denial of the protection of 1971' Act to the teachers of primary sections attached to High School and Intermediate colleges, which are governed by the The U.P. High Schools And Intermediate Colleges (Payment Of Salaries Of Teachers And Other Employees) Act, 1971. It was noted therein that there is a vicious connection and link between the issue of grant in aid and protection under the 1971 and 1978 Acts. These two statutes ostensibly create an ineffaceable link between the grant of maintenance aid and coverage under these enactments.

112. Taking judicial notice of the working conditions of teachers in private unaided institutions, it was noted in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9 that in absence of trained and competent teachers and necessary infrastructure in the institutions providing primary and basic education particularly situated in rural and semi-urban areas, the students will be deprived of quality education. The interconnect between the right of teachers to receive protection under the 1978' Act and the students of marginalized section of the society to receive quality education has been well recognized by the Division Bench while expressing its view that the State needed to revisit the policy laying down the standard/norms for providing grant-in-aid to unaided institutions.

113. The power of the State to frame policy or lay down reasonable conditions while providing grant-in-aid to privately managed institutions is unquestionable. It is settled that no citizen, persons or institutions has a right much less a fundamental right to affiliation or recognition or to grant-in-aid from the State (Reference Unnikrishnan J.P. Vs. State of A.P.20

114. In the policy of the State relating to grant-in-aid, the expression "institution" has been defined to mean one which is recognized and receiving maintenance grants. A recognized institution which receives grant-in-aid from the State is under scanner by regulatory measures in the 1978 Act. The teachers of a recognized aided institutions may bring an action seeking protection of the 1978' Act and in case of any inaction or default on the part of the management, action can be taken against the management under sub-section (2) of Section 6 by superseding it. Punishment for non-compliance of directions under Section 4 or with the provisions of Section 3 or Section 5 is fine or imprisonment; penal action can also be taken against the manager or any other person vested with the authority to manage and conduct the affairs of the institution.

115. In the present batch though the petitioners are private management who are raising challenge to the orders of rejection of their applications to obtain grant-in-aid but we are not considering the right of private management to seek monetary aid from the State. The challenge to the validity of the Amendment Acts on the ground of the policy of the State to exclude primary institutions (Class I to V) from the regime of grant-in-aid being unconstitutional cannot be narrowed down to that question. We have made it clear at the outset that we are not dealing with the individual orders passed by the State rejecting the claims of the petitioners institution to obtain grant-in-aid, rather we are called upon to examine the validity of the statutory amendments in the policy of the State with the constitutional perspective.

116. The claims made by the petitioners to seek maintenance grant from the State have been held legally unenforceable in view of the Amendment Acts' 2017, the validity of which is subject matter of challenge before us.

117. The objection of learned Advocate General is that the teachers or those students whose rights are being ventilated by the petitioners have not joined in this batch. The issue in Vinod Sharma6 and Pawan Kumar Divedi8 was examined in a different context where the teachers working in the primary sections of a recognized and aided Junior High School had claimed salary under the provisions of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978. The background in which those cases had been decided by the Apex Court was completely different.

118. To answer the issue of locus of the petitioners, it is expedient to consider that the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 came into force w.e.f. 01.05.1979 by virtue of the notification issued under Section 1(3) by the State Government, with the objective to remove frequent complaints that salaries of teachers and non-teaching employees of aided non-government Junior High Schools were not being disbursed in time, resulting in hardship to their employees. The long title speaks that the Act 1978 has been enacted to regulate the payment of salaries to teachers and other employees of Junior High School receiving aid out of the State fund.

119. Looking to the object and purpose of the 1978 Act, when we consider the grievances raised by the petitioners management from the angle of their own interest, we could clearly see that the petitioners being the institutions/ management would themselves come under the scanner/control of the State authorities as soon as they are brought within the purview of the Act. The Act' 1978 casts obligation on the management for disbursement of salaries to its teachers and employees within the time indicated by the State Government and in case of default on its part, not only civil but criminal action may also be taken against it. By virtue of the Amendment Acts 2017, the teachers of the primary institution have been denied this protection with the exclusion of primary institution from the purview of the Payment of Salaries Act. Further, while seeking grant, the management not only puts itself under scanner of the State machinery but also shares the constitutional obligation of the State to provide free and compulsory education to the children of the State. The interplay between the right of teachers to seek protection of the 1978 Act and the students to get free quality education cannot be overlooked. The interests of the stakeholders namely management, teachers and students are not competing. Rejection of the plea of the management to provide grant-in-aid has a direct effect on the protection to teachers under the 1978' Act, to stand against the management in case of their harassment.

120. Furthermore, as the application seeking grant can be filed only by the management and not by the teachers, the petitioners cannot be said to be mere strangers having no right whatsoever so as to non-suit them on the ground of not having the locus standi. The legal proposition in the matter of locus has been discussed by the Apex Court in State of Punjab in Ghulam Qadir vs. Special Tribunal and others21 to state that :

"38.....orthodox rule of interpretation regarding the locus standi of a person to reach the court has undergone a sea-change with the development of constitutional law in our country and the constitutional courts have been adopting a liberal approach in dealing with the cases or dis-lodging the claim of a litigant merely on hyper-technical grounds. If a person approaching the court can satisfy that the impugned action is likely to adversely affect his right which is shown to be having source in some statutory provision, the petition filed by such a person cannot be rejected on the ground of his having not the locus standi. In other words, if the person is found to be not merely a stranger having no right whatsoever to any post or property, he cannot be non-suited on the ground of his not having the locus standi."

121. The objection as to the locus of the petitioners institutions/management to maintain the challenge to the validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017 is, accordingly, turned down.

II. Testing the constitutionality of a statutory provision, legal principles:-

122. On this first issue now before proceeding further, it would be apposite to discern the legal position to test the validity of a statutory provision.

(I). In Namit Sharma15, the Apex Court had noted that the Constitutionality or validity of an enacted law can be challenged on very limited grounds:-

(i) legislative incompetence; (ii) violation of Part III of the Constitution; (iii) reasonableness of the law.

It was held that the scope of first two grounds are definite. With the passage of time, the law developed and the grounds for unconstitutionality also widened but the situation in the cases falling in the third category remained in a state of uncertainty.

It was observed that a law may be held unconstitutional on a number of grounds such as :-

"i. contravention of any fundamental right, specified in Part III of the Constitution.

ii. legislating on a subject which is not assigned to the relevant legislature by the distribution of powers made by the 7th Sch., read with the connected Articles.

iii. contravention of any of the mandatory provisions of the Constitution which impose limitations upon the powers of a Legislature, e.g., Art. 301

iv. in the case of a State law, it will be invalid in so far as it seeks to operate beyond the boundaries of the State.

v. that the Legislature concerned has abdicated its essential legislative function as assigned to it by the Constitution or has made an excessive delegation of that power to some other body."

It was further noted that a law cannot be invalidated on the following grounds:-

a) that in making the law (including an Ordinance), the law- making body did not apply its mind (even though it may be a valid ground for challenging an executive act) or was prompted by some improper motive.

b) that the law contravenes some constitutional limitation which did not exist at the time of enactment of the law in question.

c) that the law contravened any of the Directives contained in Part IV of the Constitution.

It was stated that a law which violates the fundamental right of a person is void but the wisdom or motive of the legislature in making it is not a relative consideration. The Court should examine the provisions of the Statute in light of the provisions of the Constitution Part III. A Statute which violates the Constitution cannot be pronounced valid merely because it is being administered in a manner which might not conflict with the constitutional requirements. However, the possibility of abuse of a statute does not impart to it any element of invalidity. When the constitutionality of a law is challenged on the ground that it infringes a fundamental right, what the Court has to consider is the "direct and inevitable effect' of such law. There is presumption in favour of constitutionality of legislative enactment. The law Courts can declare the legislative enactment to be an invalid piece of legislation only in the event of gross violation of constitutional sanctions.(emphasis added).

It was noted that it is a settled canon of constitutional jurisprudence that the doctrine of classification is a subsidiary rule evolved by Courts to give practical content to the doctrine of equality. Over emphasis of the doctrine of classification or anxious or sustained attempt to discover some basis for classification may gradually and imperceptly erode the profound potency of the glorious content of equality enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution. It is not necessary that classification in order to be valid, must be fully carried out by the Statute itself. The Statute itself may indicate the persons or things to whom its provisions are intended to apply.

Instead of making the classification itself, the State may lay down the principle or policy for selecting or classifying the persons or objects to whom its provisions are to apply and leave it to the discretion of the Government or administrative authority to select such persons or things, having regard to the principle or policy laid down by the Legislature.

On the principle of equality, it was elaborated that Article 14 forbids class legislation but does not forbid reasonable classification which:

i) must be based on reasonable and intelligible differentia; and

ii) Such differentia must be on a rational basis.

iii) It must have nexus to the object of the Act.

Referring to the earlier decisions of the Apex Court, the principles for adjudicating the constitutionality of a provision which have to be borne in mind by the Courts as culled out therein are:-

(i) a law may be constitutional even though it relates to a single individual if on account of some special circumstances or reasons applicable to him and not applicable to others, that single individual may be treated as a class by himself;

(ii) it must be presumed that the legislature understands and correctly appreciates the need of its own people, that its laws are directed to problems made manifest by experience and that its discrimination are based on adequate grounds.

(iii) The legislation is free to recognize degree of harm and may confine its restrictions to those cases where the need is deemed to be the clearest.;

(iv) In order to sustain the presumption of constitutionality, the Court may take into consideration matters of common knowledge, matters of common report, the history of the times and may assume every state of facts which can be conceived existing at the time of the legislation;

(v) While good faith and knowledge of the existing conditions on the part of a legislature are to be presumed, if there is nothing on the face of the law or the surrounding circumstances brought to the notice of the Court on which the classification may reasonably be regarded as based, the presumption of constitutionality cannot be carried to the extent of always holding that there must be some undisclosed and unknown reasons for subjecting certain individuals or Corporations to hostile or discriminating legislation. (Reference para 18).

(vi) Whether it is the Constitution that is expounded or the constitutional validity of a Statute that is considered, a Cardinal rule is to look to the Preamble of the Constitution as the guiding light and to the Directive Principles of State Policy as the Book of Interpretation. The Constitution being sui generis, these are the factors of distant vision that help in the determination of the constitutional issues. (reference para 19).

(vii) The Court should exercise judicial restraint while judging the constitutional validity of the Statute or even that of a delegated legislation and it is only when there is clear violation of a constitutional provision beyond reasonable doubt that the Court should declare a provision to be unconstitutional. Even if two views are possible, one making the statute constitutional and the other making it unconstitutional, the former view must prevail and the Court must make efforts to uphold the constitutional validity of a statute, unlike a policy decision, where the executive decision could be rendered invalid on the ground of malafides, unreasonableness and arbitrariness alone. (Para 20).

(viii) In determining the constitutionality or validity of a constitutional provision, the Court must weigh the real impact and effect thereof, on the fundamental rights. The Court would not allow the legislature to overlook a constitutional provision by employing indirect methods. (Para 10)

(ix) As a guidance to the Courts to examine the constitutionality or otherwise of a statute or any of its provisions, it is stated in paragraph no.'21' of the report that one of the most relevant consideration is the object and reasons as well as the legislative history of the Statute as it would help the Court in arriving at a more objective and just approach. It would be necessary for the Court to examine the reasons of enactment of a particular provision so as to find out its ultimate impact vis-a-vis the constitutional provisions.

(II). In State Of Andhra Pradesh & others Vs. Mcdowell & Co. & others16, it is observed that the Parliament and the Legislatures, composed as they are of the representatives of the people, are supposed to know and be aware of the needs of the people and what is good and bad for them. The Court cannot sit in judgment over their wisdom. It is one thing to say that a restriction imposed upon a fundamental right can be struck down if it is disproportionate, excessive or unreasonable and quite another thing to say that the Court can strike down enactment if it thinks it unreasonable, unnecessary or unwarranted.

(III) In a recent decision in the State of Tamil Nadu and others Vs. K. Shyam Sunder and others14, the Apex Court has noted the doctrine of lifting the veil propounded in its earlier decision in Dwarkadas Shrinivas v. The Sholapur Spinning & Weaving Co. Ltd. & Ors22, Mahant Moti Das v. S.P. Sahi, The Special Officer in charge of Hindu Religious Trust & others23. and Hamdard Dawakhana & Anr. v. Union of India & Ors AIR24 to observe as under:-

"However, in order to test the constitutional validity of the Act, where it is alleged that the statute violates the fundamental rights, it is necessary to ascertain its true nature and character and the impact of the Act. Thus, courts may examine with some strictness the substance of the legislation and for that purpose, the court has to look behind the form and appearance thereof to discover the true character and nature of the legislation. Its purport and intent have to be determined. In order to do so it is permissible in law to take into consideration all factors such as history of the legislation, the purpose thereof, the surrounding circumstances and conditions, the mischief which it intended to suppress, the remedy for the disease which the legislature resolved to cure and the true reason for the remedy." (emphasis added).

The principle of reading of the Statement of objects and reasons while interpreting the statutory provisions has been noted to state that:-

"The Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill is not admissible as an aid to the construction of the Act to be passed, but it can be used for limited purpose for ascertaining the conditions which prevailed at that time which necessitated the making of the law, and the extent and urgency of the evil, which it sought to remedy. The Statement of Objects and Reasons may be relevant to find out what is the objective of any given statute passed by the legislature. It may provide for the reasons which induced the legislature to enact the statute. "For the purpose of deciphering the objects and purport of the Act, the court can look to the Statement of Objects and Reasons thereof" (emphasis supplied).

(IV) While considering the theory of separation of power in Ashwani Kumar Vs Union of India25, it was noted that the modern theory of separation of powers does not accept that the three branches perform mutually isolated roles and functions and accepts a need for coordinated institutional effort for good governance, albeit emphasises on benefits of division of power and labour by accepting the three wings do have separate and distinct roles and functions that are defined by the Constitution. All the institutions must act within their own jurisdiction and not trespass into the jurisdiction of the other. By segregating the powers and functions of the institutions, the Constitution ensures a structure where the institutions function as per their institutional strengths.

It was observed that the legislature as an elected and representative body enacts laws to give effect to and fulfill democratic aspirations of the people. The judges perform the constitutional function of safeguarding the supremacy of the Constitution while exercising the power of judicial review in a fair and even-handed manner. As an interpreter, guardian and protector of the Constitution, the judiciary checks and curbs violation of the Constitution by the Government when they overstep their constitutional limits, violate the basic structure of the Constitution, infringe fundamental rights or act contrary to law. Power of judicial review has expanded taking within its ambit the concept of social and economic justice. Yet, while exercising this power of judicial review, the courts do not encroach upon the field marked by the Constitution for the legislature and the executive, as the courts examine legality and validity of the legislation or the governmental action, and not the wisdom behind the legislative measure or relative merits or demerits of the governmental action. It is the self-imposed discipline of self-restraint. Independence and adherence to constitutional accountability and limits while exercising the power of judicial review gives constitutional legitimacy to the court decisions. This is essence of the power and function of judicial review that strengthens and promotes the rule of law.

III. The Effect of Validation Act-the legal principles:-

123. A Constitution Bench in Shri Prithvi Cotton Mills Ltd. & others vs Broach Borough Municipality & Ors26 has held that :-

".....granted legislative competence it is not sufficient to declare merely that the decision of the court shall not bind, for that is tantamount to reversing the decision in exercise of judicial power which the legislature does not possess or exercise. A Court's decision must always bind unless the conditions on which it is based are so fundamentally altered that the decision could not have been given in the altered circumstances.....

.....The validity of a Validating law, therefore, depends upon whether the legislature possesses the competence which it claims over the subject-matter and whether in making the validation it removes the defect which the courts had found in the existing law and makes adequate provisions in Validating law"

124. The validity of a Validating law, therefore, depends upon whether the legislature possess the competence which it claims over the subject matter and whether in making the Validation it removes the defect which the Court had found in the existing law and make adequate provisions in the validating law.

125. Similar issue came up for consideration before the Apex Court in S.R. Bhagwat & others Vs. State of Mysore27 wherein it was observed that:-

"12. It is now well settled by a catena of decisions of this Court that a binding judicial pronouncement between the parties cannot be made ineffective with the aid of any legislative power by enacting a provision which in substance overrules such judgment and is not in the realm of a legislative enactment which displaces the basis or foundation of the judgment and uniformly applies to a class of persons concerned with the entire subject sought to be covered by such an enactment having retrospective effect."

While holding so, the Constitution Bench judgements in Cauvery Water Disputes Tribunal28 and decision in G.C. Kanungo Vs. State of Orissa29 have been noted therein to reiterate the above principles laid down by the Constitution Bench in Cauvery Water Disputes Tribunal28 that the legislature could change the basis on which a decision was given by the Court and, thus, change the law in general, which would affect a class of persons and events at large. However, it cannot set aside an individual decision inter parties and affect their right and liabilities alone. Such an act on the part of the legislature amounts to exercising the judicial power of the State and functioning as an appellate court or Tribunal.

126. In G.C. Kanungo29, similar view was reiterated to hold that the legislature by bringing Amendment Act could not be permitted to undo such arbitral awards which have gone against it; by having recourse to its legislative power as it tantamounts to nothing else, but "the abuse of its power of legislation.

127. Considering the above decisions in State Of Tamilnadu & Ors14 it was observed that the law on the issue can be summarised to the effect that a judicial pronouncement of a competent court cannot be annulled by the legislature in exercise of its legislative powers for any reason whatsoever. The legislature, in order to revalidate the law, can re-frame the conditions existing prior to the judgment on the basis of which certain statutory provisions had been declared ultra vires and unconstitutional.

It was noted that bringing a legislation in order to nullify the judgment of a competent court would amount to trenching upon the judicial power and no legislation is permissible which is meant to set aside the result of the mandamus issued by a court even though, the amending statute may not mention such an objection. The rights embodied in a judgment could not be taken away by the legislature indirectly. Reference also to Madan Mohan Pathak & another Vs. Union of India & others30.

128. It was observed in A. Manjula Bhashini & others Vs. The Managing Director, A.P. Women's Cooperative Finance Corporation Ltd. and another31 that in exercise of the plenary powers conferred upon the legislature by Articles 245 and 246 of the Constitution, it can render a judicial decision ineffective by enacting a valid law fundamentally altering or changing the conditions on which such a decision is based.

129. In light of the above noted settled legal position, let us see how far the impugned provisions of the Amendment Acts' 2017 bear scrutiny.

(IV) Analysis:-

130. Before proceeding further, it is relevant to note at this juncture that in this batch of writ petitions filed by the management of private recognized institutions, a group of institutions which are though recognized Junior High Schools but unaided have also joined. In other words, the Junior High Schools which though are recognized but have not been brought within the purview of 1978' Act, (the institutions falling in category 'A') have also joined to challenge the Amendment Acts' 2017 whereby primary institutions have been excluded from the purview of 1978' Act by bringing retrospective amendments.

131. The challenge to the validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017 by such institutions has been raised though in a feeble manner, with the plea that the State had failed to discharge its constitutional obligation to provide free and compulsory education to children from age 6 to 14 years and primary institutions established by private management are catering to the need of the society by providing education of satisfactory quality to children from disadvantaged and weaker sections. The obligation of the State with the introduction of Article 21-A by Eighty Sixth Amendment in the Constitution has been well recognized by enactment of the Right to Education Act' 2009. The 2009' Act made provisions in Section 12(c) fixing responsibility on the private institutions to admit, to the extent of 25% of the strength of class I children belonging to weaker sections of disadvantaged group, in the neighbourhood to provide free and compulsory elementary education till its completion. The expenditure incurred by the private institutions in doing so is to be reimbursed to the extent of per child expenditure incurred by the State or the actual amount charged from the child, whichever is less.

132. The method adopted by the Parliament by making such a provision is to meet the ultimate objectives of providing quality education at the cost of the State to children who or whose parents are not in a position to pay fees or bear the cost of education. The purpose of 2009' Act, thus, is to remove both financial as well as psychological barriers, by providing a level playing field in the matter of right to education of children. The private management which have established primary institutions as also Junior High Schools are infact sharing the obligation of the State and, therefore, an obligation is cast upon the State not only to provide the grant in aid to such institutions but also the infrastructure subject to reasonable conditions laid down by it. This view has been expressed by the Division Bench of this Court in Paripurna Nand Tripathi9 while observing that the State has to revisit its old age policy laying standard/norms for providing grant-in aid to unaided institutions in light of the constitutional amendment and the law laid down by the Apex Court on the subject.

133. It is contended that exclusion of primary institutions from the purview of 1978' Act by bringing Amendments of 2017, thus, is hit by the Constitutional mandate in Article 21-A and is against the spirit of the Right to Education Act'2009.

134. To deal with the said arguments, suffice it to note that the Constitution Bench in Unni Krishnan, J.P. v. State of A.P.20 while dealing with the aspect of the Right to Education Act from the angle of Article 21 and the right to establish educational institutions guaranteed under Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution has held that a citizen of the Country may have a right to establish educational institution but no citizen, persons or institutions has a right much less a fundamental right, to affiliation or recognition, or to grant-in-aid from the State. The receipt of grant or aid shall be subject to all such terms and conditions, as the aid giving authority may impose in the interest of general public.

135. In a recent decision, the Apex Court in the Principal Abhay Nandan and Inter College17 has reiterated almost the same principle to hold that a decision to grant aid is by way of policy. While doing so, the government is not only concerned with the interest of the institutions but its ability to undertake such an exercise. There are factors which the government is expected to consider before taking such a decision. Financial constraints and deficiencies are the factors which are considered relevant in taking any decision qua aid, including both the decision to grant aid and the manner of disbursement of an aid. It was, thus, reiterated that the right to get an aid is not a fundamental right and where a policy decision is made to withdraw the aid, an institutions cannot question it as a matter of right. Such a challenge, however, may be still available to an institution when a grant is given to one institution as against the other institution which is similarly placed.

136. To elaborate their arguments, some of the aspects of the State's inability to fulfill its obligation to provide free and compulsory education to children in neighborhood, as mandated by Right to Education Act' 2009 have been placed before us by the learned counsels for the petitioners to assert that as per the data given by the State itself, it is evident that it has not opened sufficient number of institutions (specifically primary institutions) in neighbourhood to provide access to education to children of the particular area. As the State has failed to meet its obligations, it cannot deny aid to private institutions. A comparison of data disclosed in two government orders of the State issued in the year 2016 and 2020 has been placed before us, as noted above, to substantiate the above submissions.

137. To deal with the issue, suffice it to note that neither children nor parents of children of the concerned age group, who are allegedly deprived of elementary education by inaction of the State in opening primary institutions in neighborhood, are before us to demonstrate that they are being deprived of compulsory elementary education in a quality school run by the State through the Basic Education Board or private aided institutions. The right to education is a right of child of the stated age group. This right cannot be impressed upon the State by mandating that it has obligation to give grant/aid or provide finances for infrastructure to private institutions. Looking to the data placed before us though it could be demonstrated by the learned counsels for the petitioners that a proper exercise is to be conducted by the State to find out the reasons for 'drop outs' from Government institutions but that issue is not before us.

138. Providing aid has financial implications and being policy matter, it is not possible for the Court to inquire the wisdom of the legislation in bringing enactment to deny aid to primary institutions established by private management in general.

139. Moreover, the challenge to the policy is based on the plea of right of children to free and compulsory education recognized by the Constitution. It cannot be said that in order to meet its constitutional obligation under Article 21-A and Right to Education Act 2009, the State is obliged to provide grant to privately managed institutions. No such direction can be issued in an action brought by private management to challenge the policy pertaining to grant-in-aid. It would have been another aspect of the dispute, had the children of the stated age or their parents challenged the policy of the State by asserting their right to get free and compulsory education in a neighbourhood school. As the said issue cannot be looked into within the scope of the present dispute before us, we are afraid to entertain the challenge to the Amendment Acts' 2017 at the instance of private institutions which are recognized unaided Junior High Schools, the institutions falling in category 'A'.

140. In so far as the institutions falling in the third category 'D', the challenge to the orders for withdrawal of grant-in-aid, initially provided to them terming them as wrong orders, we may recapitulate that we have been called upon only to answer the question of validity of the Amendments Acts' 2017 and as we are not examining the validity of the individual orders passed by the State Government denying benefits of aid to the concerned institutions or withdrawal of the benefits accorded to them, we are not considering the claim of the category 'D' on the merits of the orders passed against them. We may, however, clarify that if any of the institutions falling in category 'D', incidentally fall in category 'A', its case would have the same fate as that of the institutions falling in Category 'A'.

141. We are, thus, left with two categories of institutions. Category 'B' & 'C' are those institutions where Junior High Schools have both been recognized and provided aid by the State.

142. As we are considering the cases of category 'B' & 'C' separately, the conclusion drawn by us hereinafter would cover the institutions falling in category-'D', if they also incidentally fall in category 'B' or 'C'.

143. The concise issue now left before us is the validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017 from the angle of the institutions which are recognized and aided Junior High Schools wherein primary recognized institutions are also existing. The moot question for consideration for both the categories 'B' & 'C' of the institutions in this bunch of petitions is: whether teachers of primary sections of privately managed Junior High Schools receiving aid out of the State fund, can be excluded from the purview of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978?

Brief Background of the Controversy:-

144. To recapitulate, the Amendment Acts' 2017 specifically the one bringing amendment in the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 have been challenged on the ground that the primary sections (class I to V) of a junior high school being its integral part or part of 'One school' cannot be discriminated by excluding it from the purview of the Act' 1978 by virtue of the Amendment Acts' 2017. It is argued by the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners that the issue with regard to the integrality of the primary sections and Junior High School had been considered by the Apex Court in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 and considering the said issue from the aspect of the constitutional obligation of the State to provide free and compulsory education to children till they complete the age of 14 years as also the aspect of hostile discrimination as against the mandate of Article 14 of the Constitution, it was held therein that the expression "Junior High School" in the 1978' Act is intended to refer to the school imparting basic education, i.e. education upto VIII class. The observations in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 from paragraph No.'42' onwards have been pressed into service to assert that the Constitution Bench while upholding the correctness of three Judges Bench decision in Vinod Sharma6 had considered the abovenoted two aspects apart from the interpretation of statutory provisions of the un-amended 1978' Act. The findings on the two aspects namely the integrality of the institutions and hostile discrimination in case of exclusion of primary institutions an integral part of Junior High Schools from the purview of 1978' Act cannot be said to have been effaced by Amendment Acts' 2017. The decision of the Apex Court on the aforesaid aspects still binds the State as it cannot be said that the Amendment Acts' 2017 have fundamentally altered the said legal position. The validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017, being in teeth of the decision of the Apex Court in Pawan Kumar Divedi8, has been challenged with the above perspective.

145. The learned Advocate General, on the other hand, argued that primary institutions were always treated as a separate class in the State of U.P. and, therefore, under the scheme of the legislative enactments governing basic education in the State, the primary institutions have never been accorded aid from the State fund. The decisions in Vinod Sharma6 were inter parties and in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 the Constitution Bench had answered the reference only which was on the question of the correctness of the decision in Vinod Sharma. The observations of the Constitution Bench on the issue of integrality or hostile discrimination, as heavily relied by the learned counsel for the petitioners, is nothing but Obitor Dicta and is not binding as a ratio decidendi. The reliance placed on the above noted observations to challenge the validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017, therefore, is misconceived.

146. To deal with the above arguments, we are required to consider the following aspects:-

(a). Essence of Vinod Sharma and Pawan Kumar Divedi:-

147. In the above background, the need is to discern the fundamental principles upon which Vinod Sharma6 and Pawan Kumar Divedi8 were decided. The essence of these judgments has been noted by the learned Single Judge in Jai Ram Singh13 with precision. The relevant observation of the said judgement is to be noted hereunder:-

"It is, therefore, manifest that the core of these decisions was not built upon a construction of the provisions of the statutory enactments applicable but principally upon the premise of teachers of the primary section constituting an integral and composite component of the institution as a whole. These decisions held in favour of the teachers of primary sections tracing their right of protection under the 1978 Act to Article 14 of the Constitution."

148. We find no reason to deviate or disagree with the above observations. To add, it may be noted that in Vinod Sharma6, the writ proceeding was initiated by the teachers of primary institutions attached to a Junior High School. In Pawan Kumar Divedi8, the Apex Court while dealing with the issue of correctness of Vinod Sharma6 had framed the question for consideration:-

"The common question for consideration in this group of seven appeals is whether teachers of privately managed primary schools and primary sections of privately managed high schools are eligible to receive their salaries from the State Government?"

149. Further noticing that the recognized Junior High School with no Junior Basic School (Classes I to V) being part of the said school from the beginning had been facing difficulty with regard to the applicability of Section 10 of 1978' Act and considering the controversy being centered around with this category of school with classes I to V which were added after obtaining recognition to the recognized and aided junior high school (Classes VI to VIII), the Constitution Bench noted that whether teachers of primary section Classes I to V in such schools were entitled to the benefit of Section 10 of the 1978 Act was the moot question.

150. This question was answered from three angles:-

(i) Firstly, the constitutional obligation of the State under Article 21-A

as well as provisions of Right to Education Act;

(ii) Secondly, from the angle of composite integrality of two sections of one institution, i.e. primary sections from classes I to V and Senior Basic School (classes VI to VIII). On the above two aspects, it was held that if primary sections are added after obtaining necessary recognition to a recognized and aided Senior Basic School, then such primary sections become integral part of Senior Basic School, which was termed as 'Single School with classes I to VIII' in the Note appended to clause (xxvi), Para 1 in Chapter I (Definition and Classification) of the Educational Code, Revised Edition 1958.

In that context, the reasoning in the referral order that the legislature had made a conscientious distinction between Junior Basic Schools and Junior High Schools had been rejected by the Constitution Bench. Not only this, it was further observed that any such distinction would be discriminatory and may render the provisions of the Statute itself unconstitutional.

(iii) The third angle, from which reference was answered was that the expression "Junior High School" had neither been defined under the U.P. Basic Education Act' 1972 nor in the Act' 1978. The arguments of the State therein that the definition of "Junior High School" contained in the 1978' Rules framed under Section 19(1) of 1972' Act could control the same expression occurring in the 1978' Act had been rejected. The Constitution Bench had rejected the said arguments on the principle of interpretation of statute that the definition of an expression in the 1978' Rules made under a different and distinct statute cannot be treated for the purpose of construction of the expression being part of another enactment. It was observed that the State legislature has made separate enactment for payment of salaries to the teachers of aided basic school which is 1978' Act and the expression "Junior High School" in the 1978' Rules (prior rule) cannot be taken in aid to construe a subsequent enactment.

This was the lacuna which is sought to be removed by the legislature by insertion of the definition of "Junior High School" in the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 by adding clause (ee) in Section 2 and the definition of "Junior Basic School" and "Junior High School" with the addition of the clauses (d-1) and (d-2) in Section 2 of the U.P. Basic Education Act' 1972 by Amendment Acts 2017 (U.P. Act No.2 of 2018 and U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) notified on 15.01.2018 with retrospective effect, i.e. the date of enactment of the original Acts, namely 1972' Act and 1978' Act.

The question as to whether these amendments had fundamentally altered or changed the conditions on which the Constitution Bench decision was based, to render it ineffective, is to be answered in the above context.

(b) Effect of the Amendment Acts' 2017 termed as Validation Act:-

151. To answer the question as to whether the basis of decisions in Vinod Sharma6 as well as Pawan Kumar Divedi8 has been effaced by virtue of the retrospective amendments, it is imperative to consider whether the issues of integrality and discrimination, the basis of the opinion drawn by the Apex Court to interpret the expression "Junior High School" in the 1978' Act have also been effaced with the said amendments.

152. For entering into the debate on the said question, thus, the discussion on the issues of "integrality" and "plea of discrimination", the first two issues considered by the Constitution Bench in negating the plea of the State challenging the correctness of the decision in Vinod Sharma6 in the reference, is to be made by us.

(i) Issue of Integrality:-

153. The discussion on this aspect again takes us to the decision of the learned Single Judge in Jai Ram Singh13. The concept of attachment, formal orders recognizing primary sections attached to Junior High School, High School and Intermediate colleges and the aspect of composite integrality, i.e. attributes and characteristics which would enable an institution to be recognized in law as one unit have been analyzed by the learned Single Judge in the following manner:-

"J. THE CONCEPT OF ATTACHMENT

Before we proceed to deal with the primary questions of law which arise, it would be appropriate to briefly deal with the issue of attachment of primary sections as understood by the State and the orders that were passed in connection therewith.

The State prior to the passing of the 1972 Act [and in some cases even thereafter] passed formal orders recognising primary sections attached to junior high schools, high schools and intermediate colleges. These orders appear to have been passed taking note of the fact that these primary sections were operating from a common campus, under the control of a common management, administered by one Headmaster and a seamless progression of students from classes I to V to class VI and onwards.

On 21 June 1973, a Government Order was issued mandating that henceforth no orders of attachment would be passed. This order was essentially issued since by that time the Board had come to be established and various primary schools and institutions functioning till then under the control of local bodies came to be transferred and vested in the Board in accordance with the provisions of the 1972 Act.

While various orders of attachment evidently came to be passed even after the issuance of the 21 June 1973 order, we are really not concerned with the validity of those orders. The fundamental issue which needs to be considered is the character and the legal imperative of these orders existing in respect of an institution for it to claim the benefits of coverage under the 1971 and 1978 Acts.

At the very outset it needs to be stated that no statutory provision was referred to by the respondents to which these orders of attachment were traceable. The respondents also do not rely upon any provision, statutory or otherwise, in terms of which an order of attachment was liable to be made before the primary section could be accorded legal recognition of being an integral part of a larger institution.

Whether the various sections of an institution imparting education to different tiers of classes are integrated, fundamentally and on first principles, is an issue of fact. A primary section which is an integral part of an institution, be it a junior high school, high school or intermediate college, would remain and be entitled to be recognised in law as such irrespective of an order of attachment made by the respondents. An institution would be entitled in law to be treated and viewed as one unit if its various components satisfy the tests propounded in Vinod Sharma I.

This would not and cannot depend upon an order of attachment existing in this respect. An issue of whether an institution is "one unit" would have to be considered bearing in mind the determinative factors which were formulated in Vinod Sharma I and whether that institution has the requisite attributes of integrality. This would, as noted above, be an issue which would have to be tested on the anvil of the factors that were formulated in Vinod Sharma I in respect of each individual institution and in any case would not be dependent upon the existence or absence of an order of attachment.

In view of the above discussion, this Court is of the firm view that an order of attachment, whether made before or after the 21 June 1973 Government Order, cannot be determinative of the oneness of an institution. If the institution otherwise has the attributes as evolved in Vinod Sharma I it would be entitled to be considered and viewed as "one unit".

K. COMPOSITE INTEGRALITY

The next aspect which needs some elaboration is with regard to the attributes and characteristics which would enable an institution to be recognised in law as one unit. In Vinod Sharma I, the Court bore in mind factors such as a common campus and management, one Headmaster and the facility of progression of students from Class V to higher classes functioning under the umbrella of that institution as being evidence of the institution being "one unit".

In the considered view of this Court, the fundamental aspect which would merit recognition and elucidation is of "composite integrality". An institution may be made up of various sections or compartments. This would depend upon the various tiers in the educational hierarchy that it serves. Be it a primary school, junior high school, high school or intermediate college, if it has the attributes of commonality as judicially evolved and recognised it would be deemed to be one institution. Its various components must be found to exist as an amalgam, indelibly fused together to constitute a singular institution. The factors of a common campus, functioning under the control of the same management, a singular Headmaster administering the institution and a seamless integration between different sections, would cumulatively establish its composite integrality. In the considered view of this Court, the question of composite integrality would have to be answered upon a conjoint consideration of the various factors noticed above.

However there is one aspect that needs to be elaborated upon before this Court proceeds further. Education has undergone a sea change since Vinod Sharma I came to be decided. The sheer number of students seeking admission in the system, the number of students in each class, the range of subjects which are taught, the student teacher ratio liable to be maintained, the infrastructural norms laid down by statute in respect of different levels of the education system, the allied facilities which are mandated to be established, may not leave it feasible for all sections to function out of a common campus. At least that cannot be viewed as the determinative norm or a sin qua non in today's times. There may in fact be situations where it may be expedient to segregate, insulate and shield a primary section from the higher classes. The nature of the environment which is required to be created and maintained in a primary institution, may itself mandate its insulation and be desirable and prudent. Judicial notice can also be taken of even Universities today functioning out of separate and yet integrated study centers and campuses. All that the Court seeks to emphasise is that the attribute of a common campus may have lessened in its relevance. At least it may no longer be liable to be viewed as the determinative norm in all situations.

In the ultimate analysis, the composite integrality of an institution would have to be examined and evaluated taking into consideration a combination of the attributes and factors enumerated above."

154. The learned Single Judge has rightly observed that the judiciary evolved principle of commonality of primary School and Junior High School bearing in mind factors such as a common campus may not be of much relevance and may not be the determining norms in all situation, but the question of composite integrality be it a primary school, Junior High School, High School or Intermediate college would have to be considered upon a conjoint consideration of various factors such as common campus, functioning under the control of the same management, a singular Headmaster administering the institution and a seamless integration between different sections etc.

155. These factors must be found to exists as an amalgam of various components indelibly fused together to constitute a singular institution. In the ultimate analysis, it was held that the composite integrality of an institution would have to be examined and evaluated taking into consideration a combination of the attributes and factors enumerated above. It was held that in light of the principle of integrality as propounded therein and in light of construction of word "institution" in Section 2(b) of the U.P. High Schools and Intermediate Colleges (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act' 1971, a primary institution which is homogeneous part of a recognised and aided High School or Intermediate institution would fall within the ambit of the 1971' Act and cannot be understood to be a separate or distinct component. It was held that such a primary section, would irrespective of the fact that it may not be in receipt of a maintenance grant, remains an integral component of that institution. The teachers of such a primary section cannot, therefore, be denied the protection of the 1971 Act.

156. The issue of integrality of the primary and Junior High School, i.e. they being one institution which was the basis of decision in Vinod Sharma got affirmation in "Pawan Kumar Divedi" wherein the said issue had been examined from different angles. The question of oneness of such institutions has been discussed in paragraph No.42, 42.1 & 42.2 of the judgement as under:-

"42. It is important to notice here that recognised Junior High Schools can be of three kinds: (one) having Classes I to VIII, i.e., Classes I to V (Junior Basic School) and so also Classes VI to VIII (Senior Basic School), (two) a school as above and upgraded to High School or intermediate standard and (three) Classes VI to VIII (Senior Basic School) initially with no Junior Basic School (Classes I to V) being part of the said school.

42.1 As regards the first two categories of Junior High Schools, the applicability of Section 10 of the 1978 Act does not create any difficulty. The debate which has centered round in this group of appeals is in respect of third category of the schools where Classes I to V are added after obtaining recognition to the schools which are recognized and aided for imparting education in Classes VI to VIII. Whether teachers of primary section Classes I to V in such schools are entitled to the benefit of Section 10 of the 1978 Act is the moot question.

42.2 As noticed, the constitutional obligation of the State to provide for free and compulsory education of children till they complete the age of 14 years is beyond doubt now. The note appended to clause (xxvi), para 1 of the Educational Code (revised edition, 1958), inter alia, provides that Basic Schools include single schools with Classes I to VIII. In our view, if a Junior Basic School (Classes I to V) is added after obtaining necessary recognition to a recognized and aided Senior Basic School (Classes VI to VIII), then surely such Junior Basic School becomes integral part of one school, i.e., Basic School having Classes I to VIII. The expression "Junior High School" in the 1978 Act is intended to refer to the schools imparting basic education, i.e., education up to VIII class. We do not think it is appropriate to give narrow meaning to the expression "Junior High School" as contended by the learned senior counsel for the state. The Legislature used the expression Junior High School and not the Basic School as used and defined in the 1972 Act, in our view, is insignificant. The view, which we have taken, is fortified by the fact that in Section 2(j) of the 1978 Act, the expressions defined in the 1972 Act are incorporated."

157. In paragraph No.'43', it was observed that :-

"43. The submission of Mr. P.P. Rao, learned senior counsel for the State of U.P. with reference to the subject School, namely, Riyaz Junior High School (Classes VI to VIII), that the said school was initially a private recognized and aided school and the primary section (Classes I to V) was opened by the management later on after obtaining separate recognition, which was un-aided, the teachers of such primary section, in terms of definition in Rule 2(b) and Rule 4 of the 1975 Rules are not entitled to the benefits of Section 10 of the 1978 Act does not appeal to us for what we have already said above. The view taken by the High Court in the first round in Vinod Sharma that Classes I to VIII taught in the institution are one unit, the teachers work under one management and one Head Master and, therefore, teachers of the primary classes cannot be deprived of the benefit of the 1978 Act, cannot be said to be a wrong view. Rather, it is in accord and conformity with the Constitutional scheme relating to free education to the children up to 14 years."

158. With the above discussion, in paragraph No.'44' of the report while rejecting the view taken by two Judges Bench in the referral order that the legislation has made a conscientious distinction between two sets of school to treat them two separate components by entrusting education at the primary level and Junior High School level under the different enactments to the Board was rejected, with the further observation that any such view may render the provisions of the 1978' Act unconstitutional on the ground of discrimination.

159. It is pertinent to note, at the cost of repetition, that all the above observations were pertaining to one category of institution as noted in paragraph No.'42' of the report, namely Junior High School (Senior Basic School) (Classes VI to VIII) initially with no Junior Basic School (Classes I to V) being part of the said school.

160. It is also pertinent to note that the issue of integrality of the aforesaid two schools (sections) has been decided considering the Note appended to Clause (xxvi) Para 1 of the Educational Code (Revised Edition 1958). The Education Code of U.P. as per Note (2) applies to all other institutions except schools for Anglo-Indians, in any way under the control of the Education Department. Chapter I "Definition and Classification", further reveals that it covers all categories of institutions in the State of U.P. except the one noted above.

161. Chapter I (xxvi), defines "School" means a recognized institution which follows the curriculum prescribed by the Department or the Intermediate Board. The classification or types of schools stated therein is as follows:-

(a) Nursery School means a school where children of pre-basic stage, i.e. from about three to six years of age are taught,

(b) Junior Basic School means a school teaching children generally between 6 and 11 years of age in Classes I to V (i.e. primary section),

(c) Senior Basic School or Junior High School mean either a school preparing students for the Junior High School Examination of the Department or a school teaching Classes 1 to VIII or VI to VIII (middle section),

NOTE - Basic Schools include both Senior or Junior Basic Schools as well as single schools with classes I to VIII.

(d) Higher Secondary School means a school with or without lower classes maintains Classes IX and X and/or XI and XII and prepares students for the High School and/or Intermediate Examinations of the Intermediate Board or a University"

162. Further the Note added after clause (c) clarifies that the term "Basic schools" include both Senior or Junior basic schools as well as single schools with classes I to VIII. Noticing this scheme of the Education Code, the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 had observed in paragraph '42.1', as extracted above, that the Junior Basic School (classes I to V) if added after obtaining necessary recognition to a recognized and aided Senior Basic School (Classes VI to VIII), then surely such Junior Basic School becomes integral part of one school (single unit) which is Basic school having Classes I to VIII. The statutory concept of oneness of a Basic school having classes I to VIII in the Education Code' 1958, (covering all categories of institutions in the State of U.P.), as interpreted in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 cannot be said to have been effaced with the insertion of definition of 'Junior Basic School' and 'Senior Basic School' in the 1972' Act, which is the same as provided in the clauses (xxvi) (b) & (c) of the Education Code as extracted above.

163. The observation that any other interpretation of the provision would be hit by Article 14 of the Constitution on the ground of discrimination has also been made by the Constitution Bench keeping in view of the above perspective that the teachers working in the primary sections (Classes I to V) of a Junior High School (Classes VI to VIII), which is a homogeneous part of one unit of a Basic school, cannot be discriminated and denied protection which is available to the teachers teaching Classes VI to VIII of the same school.

164. In light of the above discussion, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that though the Validation Acts/Amendment Acts 2017 by introduction of the definition/meaning of the expressions "Junior High School" and "Junior Basic School" have removed the scope of interpretation of the said expressions by the Court but the amendments cannot be said to have effaced the basis of decisions of Vinod Sharma6 and the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8. The Constitution Bench judgment in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 on the issues of integrality (oneness of the institution) and hostile discrimination still holds good having a binding force, as any other interpretation to the effect of the Validation Act' 2017 (the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) (Amendment in the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978) would make it an invalid legislation being beyond the plenary powers of the legislature. It is settled that the legislature while fundamentally altering or changing the conditions on which a decision is based in exercise of the plenary power conferred upon it by Article 245 & 246 of the Constitution cannot review a judgment of the Court on the legal principles as it amounts to exercising the judicial power and thereby transgressing its power.

(c) Discrimination:-

165. Coming to the issue of discrimination, the constitutionality of Amendment Acts' 2017 has been challenged before us on the plea that the Act promotes hostile discrimination against one set of institutions which cannot be classified as a separate class namely the primary institutions established as an integral part of Junior High Schools. In other words, a primary institution which cannot be alienated from a Junior High School having all components of composite integrality, being "one unit", a homogeneous part of one institution.

166. The fundamental question, therefore, arises is whether the petitioners institutions in category 'B' & 'C' can be said to have been discriminated by the Amendment Acts' 2017, by insertion of clause (ee) in Section 2 of 1978' Act, i.e. by their exclusion from the purview of the 1978' Act.

167. Keeping the above aspects in mind, we have to see whether the challenge to the validity of two amending Acts' 2017, bringing amendments in the 1972' Act & 1978' Act, can be sustained by the petitioners.

(d) Testing the Constitutionality of the Amendment Acts' 2017:-

(i). Applying the doctrine of lifting the veil:-

168. In order to test the constitutional validity of the Act, where it is alleged that the statute violates the fundamental right, it is necessary to ascertain true nature and character and the impact of the Act itself. The doctrine of lifting the veil as propounded by the Apex Court in Dwarkadas Shrinivas22; Mahant Moti Das v. S.P. Sahi, The Special Officer in charge of Hindu Religious Trust & Ors32; and Hamdard Dawakhana24 as noted in State of Tamilnadu14. is that the Court may examine with some strictness the substance of the legislation and for that purpose, the Court has to look behind the form and appearance thereof to discover the true character and nature of the legislation. Its purport and intent would have to be determined.

In order to do so it is permissible in law to take into consideration all factors such as (i) history of the legislation; (ii) the purpose thereof; (iii) the surrounding circumstances and conditions; (iv) the mischief which it intended to suppress; (v) the remedy for the disease which the legislature resolved to cure; (vi) and the true reason for the remedy. This enquiry to find out the true character of the Statute to determine its purport and intent is based on the Doctrine of lifting the veil.

169. While making such enquiry, the Court can look at the Statement of objects and reasons appended to the Act, not as an aid to the construction, but for the purpose of deciphering the object and purport of the Act. In the State of Tamil Nadu14, it was noted that the Statement of objects and reasons may be relevant to find out what is the objective of any given statute passed by the legislature. It may provide for the reasons which induced the legislature to enact the Statute, for the purpose of deciphering the object and purport of the Act.

170. Keeping in mind the above principles of enquiry into the validity of the Statute we may have to look to the Statement of objects and reasons of Amendment Acts' 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) for making amendment in 1978' Act which provides that the U.P. Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 had been enacted to provide for regulating the payment of salaries for teachers and other employees of Junior High School receiving aid out of the State fund. It further proceeds to note that since the expression "Junior High School" was not defined therein, odd situations were being created before the State Government and the cases instituted in various Courts were often being disposed off in favour of the plaintiff. The legislature, therefore, has decided to amend the Act to define the expression "Junior High School".

171. A careful reading of the above part of the Amendment Act shows that the true intent of bringing the Statute was to remove any difficulty in interpretation of the expression "Junior High School" occurring in the 1978' Act to clarify that the 1978' Act had been enacted to protect the interest of the teachers and employees of Junior High Schools, who are receiving aid out of the State fund. This amendment has been given retrospective effect as it has been deemed to have come into force on January 22, 1979, i.e. the date of enactment of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978. The Junior Basic School (primary institution) as a separate class, thus, has been excluded from the purview of 1978' Act by a definite meaning assigned to the expression occurring in the said Act.

172. Simultaneous amendment has also been brought in the U.P. Basic Education Act 2017 with the insertion of definitions of "Junior Basic School" and "Junior High School"; separately in the Section 2 of the Act 1972 by the U.P. Act No. 2 of 2018 notified on the same day. The result is that a Basic School which does not fall within the meaning of "Junior High School" (classes VI to VIII) established and recognized on or after 22.01.1979 shall be out of the purview of the 1978' Act.

173. This amendment obviously does not affect such Junior Basic School (classes

I to V) and also the Senior Basic Schools (classes VI to VIII) which have been upgraded to High School or Intermediate standard and are integral part of High School or Intermediate institutions as they are covered by the Payment of Salaries Act' 1971 which regulates the payment of salaries to teachers of High School and Intermediate institution. The teachers teaching primary sections of such institutions are entitled for the salary from the State exchequer, consequential protection of the 1971' Act.

174. In the present matter, we are examining the validity of the retrospective amendments only for two categories of institutions which are essentially Junior High Schools having primary sections, established and recognized either prior to later to the establishment of the Junior High Schools and where the Junior High Schools have been granted aid out of the State funds after getting necessary recognition.

175. The dispute revolving around the plea of discrimination is to be examined only from the point of consideration for such primary institutions as they claim to be homogeneous part of one unit, i.e. integral part of Junior High Schools which are receiving aid out of the State fund.

176. From the above perspective, the validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017 is to be judged by us for the petitioners institutions falling in the two categories 'B' & 'C'.

177. To deal with this class of institution, taking note of the issue of the integrality discussed above, the principles evolved by the learned Single Judge in Jai Ram Singh13 as also the Constitution Bench judgement in Pawan Kumar Divedi8, we find that the exclusion of the said class of institutions by virtue of the retrospective amendment in the 1978' Act is nothing but hostile discrimination. There is a strong link between the issue of integrality and protection against discrimination under Article 14 of the Constitution. The teachers who are working in the primary sections of a Junior High School, being run as 'one unit', belonging to a homogeneous class, stand discriminated by virtue of the retrospective amendments. The statute of this character which was hypothetically disapproved by the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 as potentially discriminatory, cannot be approved as the State could not substantiate the said classification being reasonable one. Article 14 permits class legislation on the principle that it must be based on reasonable and intelligible differentia, i.e. the differentia must be on some rational basis, having nexus with the object sought to be achieved. The teachers who are working in primary sections of 'one unit' cannot be discriminated by bringing a legislation in the shape of retrospective amendment to exclude them that too in contravention of the decision of the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court (Pawan Kumar Divedi8).

178. There is another aspect of the matter. Noticeable is the fact that where there is a 'Single basic school' imparting education from classes I to VIII as classified in the Note appended to Clause (xxvi) (c) of the U.P. Education Code, it would not be possible for the Government to say that the part of the institution from classes VI to VIII would be considered for entitlement to Grant-in-aid and the other part from classes I to V would not. The teachers of such an institution teaching classes I to VIII form a homogeneous class and treating them as a separate class by an artificial classification cannot be said to be founded on some rational principle which must have nexus to the object sought to be achieved, which is obviously regulating the non-Government institutions which are receiving aid from the State fund.

179. The object of Original 1978' Act was to remove frequent complaints of non-disbursement of salary of teachers and non-teaching employees of aided Non-government Junior High School. The Amendment Acts' 2017 only clarify that the "Junior High Schools" which are covered under the 1978' Act are such institution which are different from High School or Intermediate colleges wherein education is imparted from Classes VI to VIII.

180. As rightly pointed out by the learned Advocate General, the object of 1978' Act is not to provide grant from the State fund or confer any right on the management, rather this is a provision which regulates the activity of the management and casts obligation on it to disburse salary of teachers and staff employed by it on time. Any default on the part of the management would be a cause of adverse action against it under the 1978' Act. We are conscious that the management has no right to seek aid but the issue is about discrimination in the matter of protection accorded to teachers of the institutions receiving grant-in-aid out of the State fund. We are of the considered view that the teachers of Classes I to V of a 'Single basic school' or "integral part of the Junior High School imparting education from classes I to VIII" forming a homogeneous class, cannot be discriminated by denying the protection of the 1978' Act. It would be violation of the equal treatment guaranteed in Article 14 of the Constitution if the State deny protection to some teachers of one institution, ('Single Basic School' or 'one unit' from classes I to VIII) solely on the premise that they are teaching primary classes (I to V). To hold that in case of non-disbursement of salary to the teachers of the primary institutions of a Junior High School receiving grant-in-aid, the management would not be liable to penal action under the 1978' Act, would be a glaring instance of hostile discrimination, denial of equal protection by creating an artificial classification.

181. The above illustration would equally apply to the teachers of a recognized primary sections of a Junior High School which is receiving grant-in-aid from the State fund and where the primary section is an integral part of the Junior High School as they form a homogeneous class with the teachers of classes VI to VIII being employed in 'one school'. There is no rationale to treat teachers of the primary sections as a separate class irrespective of the fact that the primary sections are established prior to or later to the establishment of the Junior High School. Such a classification could not be justified on any rational principle based on intelligible differentia.

182. Only argument of the learned Advocate General is that grant-in-aid cannot be claimed as a matter of right and hence the issue of violation of fundamental right of teachers for equal protection under Article 14 of the Constitution cannot be raised and further that the primary institutions have always been treated as a separate class in the State of U.P. as since the inception of policy of the Government, providing aid to primary institutions was never contemplated.

Furthermore, as per the policy of the State, since the beginning the primary institutions were being run by the Municipal Board and local bodies and after the establishment of the Board of Basic Education, the State Government has added a large number of primary institutions almost in every locality whether rural or urban. The policy to provide grant-in-aid to Junior High Schools, High Schools and Intermediate colleges had been formulated as such State institutions were lesser in number.

183. It is vehemently urged that the State is free to give grant or refuse or change its policy according to availability of funds of the State. The 1978' Act cannot be treated as a provision imposing responsibility on the State to pay salary to the teachers of non-Government institutions out of the public fund. It was always the choice of the institutions to apply for grant-in-aid and the State to reject or grant aid in accordance with the policy formulated by it. The object of the 1978' Act to regulate the payment of salary to the teachers and staff of aided non-Government institutions has to be considered in the above perspective. According to the learned Advocate General the nexus with the object of the Amendment Act' 2017 is that the State has created a class of only those institutions who were not getting grant-in-aid, i.e. it has excluded only those who have not been receiving grant-in-aid since the inception of the policy and such a classification cannot be said to be discriminatory.

184. The above argument of the learned Advocate General about the choice of the State to exclude one class of institutions from the purview of 1978' Act has to be considered as it is. There cannot be any dispute that it is always the choice of the State to provide aid from the State fund or to deny to one or other class of institutions. However, treating one homogeneous class separated by creating an artificial division or artificial classification with the aid of the statutory provisions is impermissible. It would be one thing to say that the State did not find it fit to grant aid for legally justifiable considerations but exclusion of primary institutions which are integral part of recognized and aided Junior High Schools on the plea of financial implications or constraints is absolutely impermissible. Such a classification would render the provision of the statute itself discriminatory.

185. We do not find a single acceptable or persuasive reason for the division. No argument could be placed to demolish the issue of integrality and inextricably linked issue of violation of equality guaranteed under Article 14 in case of exclusion of the primary institutions of Categories 'B' & 'C' from the grant-in-aid scheme, as pressed by the learned Counsels for the petitioners.

186. All the abovenoted arguments of the learned Advocate General do not impress the Court to turn down the challenge broughtforth by the institutions falling in the category 'B' & 'C' in the present bunch.

187. The classification made by the State does not stand the test of scrutiny on the touchstone of Article 14 as the Statute cannot accord differential and discriminatory treatment to equals in the matter of payment of salary from the State fund or the protection of the 1978' Act, which empowers the State to initiate action against the management in case of non-payment of salary to teaching and non-teaching staff of aided institution in time on the action brought by the aggrieved teachers or employees.

(e) Before proceeding further, we find it pertinent to deal with one last argument of the State with regard to the binding effect of the observations of the Constitution Bench on the above noted two issues; namely, the issue of integrality and discrimination.

189. It is vehemently submitted by the learned Advocate General that the arguments of the petitioners that the Amendment Acts' 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) is discriminatory, is mainly based on the observations of the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 which cannot be sustained, for another reason that in the said matter, the Apex Court was dealing with the reference before it. The observations of the Apex Court therein while answering the reference though are binding between the parties but the observations particularly pertaining to the unconstitutionality of a hypothetical provision in the 1978' Act is based on assumptions. As the said issue was not under consideration, those observations can be only said to be Obitor Dicta and not binding on the High Court as a ratio decidendi. The submission, thus, is that since the very basis of the judgement of the Apex Court on the interpretation of the expression "Junior High School" in the 1978' Act has been taken away with the Validation Act' 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2018), none of the other observations of the Apex Court in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 on any issue, whether of integrality or discrimination, are having any binding force as of now. The reliance placed on the decision of the Constitution Bench to substantiate the challenge is wholly misplaced.

190. As discussed above, the question as to whether teachers of primary sections (Classes I to V) added after obtaining recognition in a recognized and aided Junior High Schools are entitled to the benefit of 1978' Act was answered from three angles by the Constitution Bench. At the cost of repetition, it is noted that the issue of integrality of primary institutions added in a Junior High School after obtaining necessary recognition was one of the issues which was answered against the State. The observations in this regard made in paragraph No.'42.2' of the judgement cannot be said to be 'Obitor' rather they are the 'ratio decidendi' of the case being the reasoning given by the Apex Court while answering the question framed to answer the reference.

191. As regards the observations pertaining to the discrimination in paragraph No.'44', suffice it to say that the Apex Court had considered a hypothetical statutory provision therein while rejecting the contention of the State that the legislature has made conscientious distinction between two sets of schools to treat them as two separate components, the view taken in the referral order. It was observed by the Constitution Bench that any such view may render the provisions of 1978' Act unconstitutional on the ground of discrimination. The said observation is a guiding light in the matter of examining the validity of the Statute on constitutional principles. We may clarify that the aforesaid observations cannot either be said to be 'Obitor Dicta' or ratio decidendi of the judgement as the Constitution Bench was considering a hypothetical provision, but it cannot be said that the said observation should be completely ignored. It is settled that even an 'Obiter dictum' of the Apex Court is binding on the High Courts in the absence of a direct pronouncement on that question elsewhere by the Apex Court. In Oriental Insurance Co.Ltd v. Meena Variyal & others33 the Apex Court has gone a step further to state that an Obiter dictum of the Apex Court in an earlier case, may not be binding on it but it does have clear persuasive authority.

192. We may make it further clear that we may not be understood to mean that the observations of the Apex Court in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 on consideration of a hypothetical statutory provision which was not on the statute book at the relevant point of time, the Apex Court had laid down any legal principles on the issue of perceived discrimination. But we may say that the said observation has been found to be having a persuasive value when we examined the validity of the statutory provisions, the definition of "Junior High School" in Section 2 (ee) added/inserted in the 1978' Act by way of the Amendment Act 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2017), from different angles including the aspect of discrimination.

Relief:-

193. The next question is what is the way out? Whether the entire Amendment Act' 2017 can be said to be invalid for the above reasons.

194. That takes us to the principle of severance propounded in D.S. Nakara & others Vs. Union of India34. It was held therein that there is nothing which inhibits the Court from striking down an unconstitutional part of a legislative action which may have the tendency to enlarge the width and coverage of the measure. Whenever classification is held to be impermissible and the measure can be retained by removing the unconstitutional portion of classification, by striking down words of limitation, the resultant effect may be of enlarging the class. In such a situation, the Court can strike down the words of limitation in an enactment. That is what is called reading down the measure. Taking note of its previous decisions it was observed therein that the principle of 'severance' for taking out the unconstitutional provision from an otherwise constitutional measure has been well recognised.

195. In Delhi Transport Corporation Vs. DTC Mazdoor Congress35, it was held that the doctrine of reading down or of recasting the statute can be applied in limited situations. It is essentially used, firstly, for saving a statute from being struck down on account of its unconstitutionality. It is an extension of the principle that when two interpretations are possible one rendering it constitutional and the other making it unconstitutional, the former should be preferred. The unconstitutionality may spring from either the incompetence of the legislature to enact the statute or from its violation of any of the provisions of the Constitution. The second situation which summons its aid is where the provisions of the statute are vague and ambiguous and it is possible to gather the intention of the legislature from the object of the statute, the context in which the provision occurs and the purpose for which it is made.

196. It was further observed that, however, it is not possible for the Court to remake the statute when the provision is cast in a definite and unambiguous language and its intention is clear. It is not permissible either to mend or bend it even if such recasting is in accord with good reason and conscience. Only option for the Court in such a situation is to strike it down and leave it to the legislature if it so desires, to amend it.

197. Another situation is that if the remaking of the statute by the Courts is to lead to its distortion, that course is to be scrupulously avoided. One of the situations further where the doctrine of reading down can never be called into play is where the statute requires extensive additions and deletions. The reasons being that it is no part of the Court's duty to undertake such exercise and rather it is beyond its jurisdiction to do so.

198. In Pioneer Urban Land & Infrastructure Limited & another Vs. Union of India & others36, it was noted that the doctrine of reading down would apply only when general words used in a statute or regulation can be confined in a particular manner so as not to infringe a constitutional right.

199. Having examined the matter on the principle of integrality of primary sections (Classes I to V) of an aided Junior High School and hostile discrimination on exclusion of teachers of primary sections of such an institution, who jointly form a homogeneous class alongwith the teachers of Classes VI to VIII, we are of the view that by reading the words "including a Basic School having both Junior and Senior basic school established or being run as a 'single unit' from classes I to VIII" into the definition of "Junior High School" in Clause (ee) of Section 2 of the U.P. Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and other Employees) Act' 1978, as amended by the Amendment Act' 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2018), will save the Amendment Act' 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) from being rendered unconstitutional. With this approach, the object and purpose of the Act' 1978 as amended upto date, can be achieved as per the intention of the legislature, i.e. to regulate the payment of salaries to teachers and staff of the institutions receiving grant-in-aid out of the State fund. Severance of the unconstitutional portion of the Amendments Act' 2017 by reading into the definition of "Junior High School" in Section 2 (ee) in the above manner will enlarge the width and coverage of the provision by including a class (such primary sections) within its purview. This inclusion is also in line with the spirit of the Constitution Bench judgement in "Pawan Kumar Divedi8" and will save the provisions of 1978' Act from being rendered unconstitutional on the ground of discrimination. The mischief which the retrospective Amendment Acts' 2017 (U.P. Act No.2 of 2018 and U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) intended to suppress, i.e. to exclude the primary teachers (Classes I to V) forming homogeneous Class of one Junior High School, will also be remedied with the aforesaid.

Conclusion:-

200. In view of the above discussion, our conclusions are:-

1. Since we find that the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018, bringing amendment to the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 has been challenged to be discriminatory being in violation of fundamental right of equality enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution and has been found to be so in the context of the teachers of the petitioners institutions falling in category 'B' & 'C', the objection as to the maintainability of the writ petitions on the ground that the petitioner's institutions cannot be said to be prejudiced by the amendments is unsustainable, in as much as, it is settled law that no prejudice needs to be proved in cases where breach of fundamental right is asserted/alleged.

In our conclusion, the writ petitioners cannot be non-suited on the grounds that the action before the Court has not been brought by the teachers employed by them; and that the management has no legal right much less a fundamental right to seek grant-in-aid. The plea of the petitioners that the teachers of the attached primary sections of a recognized and aided Junior High School, whether established and recognized prior to or later to the establishment of the Junior High School stood discriminated, itself makes the Amendment Act' 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 2018) vulnerable of being unconstitutional.

Further, it was open for the petitioners institutions to challenge the constitutional validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017 while challenging the orders of rejection of their applications seeking grant-in-aid as the sole basis of rejection of their claim is the amendments under challenge. It is settled that while challenging any action or order of the State or executive, all possible objections have to be raised in one action and separate writ petitions for the same cause of action cannot be entertained. In other words, the petitioners management have no option but to challenge the constitutional validity of the Amendment Acts' 2017 in order to sustain their challenge to the correctness of the decisions rejecting their representations, as the only basis of rejection of their claims is exclusion by way of Amendment Acts' 2017.

The writ petitions in this batch, thus, cannot be rejected, at the threshold, on the objection of the State as to the locus of the writ petitioners.

(2) The U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 bringing amendment in the Payment of Salaries Act 1978, which has been termed as the Validation Act does not have the effect to efface the whole basis of the Constitutional Bench judgement in Pawan Kumar Divedi8, which in-turn had upheld the decision in Vinod Sharma6. The issue of integrality or oneness of such institutions which have both primary sections (Junior Basic School) (classes I to V) and Senior Basic School (Junior High School) (classes VI to VIII), as propounded by the Constitution Bench, taking note of Clause (xxvi) Part-1 in Chapter I of the Education Code of U.P. (Revision Edition 1958) cannot be said to have been obliterated by virtue of the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 (Amendment Act' 2017).

(3) The introduction of definition of "Junior High School" in Section 2(ee) of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 with retrospective effect, i.e. the date of coming into force of the original enactment, i.e. 22.01.1979 has resulted in hostile discrimination to the teachers of institutions imparting education in the primary sections (Classes I to V) of a Junior High School getting grant from the State fund. Such a classification negates equality as it could not satisfy the twin test of classification being founded on an intelligible differentia which distinguishes persons or things that are grouped together or those that are left out of the group and that differentia having a rational nexus to the

The State could not bring before us the rationale on which classification is founded and which co-relate it to the object sought to be achieved.

4. The intention of the legislature in bringing the Original enactment namely the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 on 22.01.1979 was to remedy complaints of teachers and non-teaching employees of aided non-government Junior High Schools about non disbursement of their salary in time resulting in hardship to them by taking action against the management under the Act in case of such a complaint is found true. The purpose of bringing Amendment Acts' 2017 for insertion of the definition of "Junior High School" in the 1978' Act, is to clarify that the original enactment regulates the matter of payment of salary to teachers and other employees of a Junior High School, (imparting education from classes VI to VIII) receiving aid out of State fund.

Gathering the intention of the legislature for enactment of the 1978' Act the context in which the regulation provision occurred in the Act and the purpose for which the original enactment was made, the "limitation" to which the expression "Junior High School" has been restricted in the Amendment Act' 2017 (U.P. Act No.3 of 1978), by excluding primary sections of a recognized and aided Junior High School is not found based on an intelligible differentia which distinguishes the teachers of Classes VI to VIII from the teachers of Classes I to V of 'one institution' which are grouped together in a homogeneous class and cannot be differentiated. The differentia sought to be created cannot be said to have a rationale relation to the object sought to be achieved by the Original Act' 1978 or the Amendment Act' 2017.

5. As the challenge has been entertained by us only for one class of institutions, namely recognized and aided Junior High Schools having primary sections as integral part of the Schools, the whole Amendment Act' 2017 cannot be rendered unconstitutional.

By reading the words "including a Basic School having both Junior and Senior Basic School established or being run as a 'single unit' from Classes I to VIII" into Section 2(ee) of 1978' Act inserted by U.P. Act No.3 of 2018, the object and purpose for which the Original enactment namely the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 was enacted can very well be achieved. Applying the doctrine of reading down or reading into the statute, the words of limitation in the statute read in such a manner save the statute from being declared unconstitutional. It is, thus, declared that primary sections which are integral part of Junior High Schools, whether established prior or later to the establishment of recognized and aided Junior High Schools shall have to be brought within the purview of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 as amended by the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018. (Amendment Act' 2017).

It is, however, clarified that the issue of integrality or oneness of such an institution would have to be examined in relation to that particular institution in each case depending upon the facts and circumstance of that case. Meaning thereby, whether a particular institution fulfills the test formulated in Vinod Sharma6 approved in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 by the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court, would be an issue of fact to be determined in respect of each individual institution. The test of 'oneness of an institution' on the principle of 'composite integrality' as evolved by the learned Single Judge in Jai Ram Singh13 as approved by us has to be applied while evaluating as to when an institution may be made up of various sections or compartments to make it "one unit". As held in Jai Ram Singh13, in order to meet the test of 'composite integrality', it must be established that the institution exists as an amalgam of various components indelibly fused together to constitute a singular whole (unit). The requirement of a common campus solely as formulated in Vinod Sharma6, cannot be recognised as a determinative factor. The issue of "composite integrality" would have to be answered upon a cumulative consideration of all relevant factors, which are necessary to be brought by the institutions before the competent authority at the time of taking decision.

6. The 2017' Amendment to the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978 only partially removes the basis of the decision of the Apex Court in Vinod Sharma6 and the Constitution Bench in Pawan Kumar Divedi8 as the expression "Junior High School" no longer is open for interpretation by the Court.

7. We may also clarify that in view of the reading of the above noted words into the definition of the "Junior High School" occurring in the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 enacted for insertion of Clause (ee) in Section 2 of the U.P. Junior High School (Payment of Salaries of Teachers and Other Employees) Act 1978, the Validity of the U.P. Act No.2 of 2018 bringing amendment in the U.P. Basic Education Act' 1972 is not to be looked into, in as much as, the meaning of the expression "Junior High School" in Section 2 (ee) of the 1978' Act as amended upto date, would control the provisions of the 1978 Act. The meaning of the said expression in Section 2 (d-2) of the 1972 Act inserted by the U.P. Act No.2 of 2018, would not be relevant for the purpose of 1978' Act. The separation of Basic school into two categories in the U.P. Basic Education Act 1972 by the insertion of definition clauses by U.P. Act No.3 of 2018 would not impact the meaning of the expression "Junior High School" in Section 2 (ee) of 1978' Act as amended by U.P. Act No.3 of 2018, in as much as, Section 2(j) of 1978 Act takes care of any possible conflict. It clarifies that the words of expression defined in the U.P. Basic Education Act' 1972 and not defined in the 1978 Act shall be given the meaning assigned to them in the 1972' Act. It is clarified that since we have read into Section 2 (ee) of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978, (as amended upto date) considering the object and purpose of the said enactment, we do not find that the meaning of the expression "Junior High School" in Section 2 (d-2) of 1972' Act would come in the way of the meaning assigned to the said expression in the 1978' Act provided by the Amendment Act No.3 of 2018, as read down by us herein above.

Relief:-

201. For the reasoning as aforesaid, we dispose of the present bunch of writ petitions in the following manner:-

(i). The petitioners' institutions falling in group 'A' cannot sustain the challenge to the validity of the Amendment to the 1978' Act by U.P. Act No.3 of 2018, being unaided Junior High Schools.

(ii). The petitioners institutions falling in Group 'B' & 'C' are held to be covered under the provisions of the Payment of Salaries Act' 1978, as amended by 2017 Amendment namely the U.P. Act No.3 of 2018.

Consequently, the State shall reconsider their claims for providing grant-in-aid in light of the principle of 'composite integrality' or "oneness of the institution" evolved in Jai Ram Singh (Supra) as approved above.

(iii). The petitioners institutions falling in group 'D' may lay their claim before the appropriate authority, if they incidentally fall in Group 'B' & 'C'. However, such institutions which do not fall in Group 'B' & 'C' would not be entitled to the benefit of this decision.

(iv). As we have not examined the validity of the individual orders for rejection of the claim of each petitioner, the petitioners in Group 'D' which do not fall in Group 'B' or 'C' may draw proceeding before the appropriate authority to sustain their challenge.

(v) All rights and contentions of the parties on the validity of the individual findings recorded by the State in respect of each institution are left open.

Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Navin Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioners, Sri Kaushalendra Nath Singh, learned counsel for the respondent no.3 and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The present writ petition has been filed seeking a direction to the respondents to allot 5% developed land in terms of the Full Bench decision of this Court in Gajraj Singh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others1.

3. The petitioners claim to be owners of khata no. 45 khasra no. 328 area 0.158 hectares situate in Village Sorkha Zahidabad, Pargana and Tehsil Dadri, District Gautam Budh Nagar which were subject matter of acquisition proceedings in terms of notification dated 12.04.2005 issued under Section 4 (1)/17(4), and the notification dated 27.07.2006 issued under Section 6/17 (1) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. The petitioners admit to have accepted the compensation amount.

4. The petitioners have specifically stated that they did not challenge the land acquisition proceedings. The writ petition is also silent as to whether the notifications under which the land of the petitioners was acquired, were under challenge in the bunch of writ petitions which were decided along with the case of Gajraj Singh and others.

5. Learned counsel appearing for the State respondents and also the learned counsel for the Noida Authority have submitted that the benefit granted by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others would not be applicable to the case of the petitioners for the reason that the petitioners were neither parties in the writ petitions which had been decided along with the case of Gajraj Singh and others nor there is any assertion by the petitioners that the notifications under which their land had been acquired were subject matter of challenge in the case of Gajraj Singh and others. Further more, it has been submitted that in terms of the direction contained in the Full Bench judgment, the Noida Authority had taken a decision not to allot the abadi plot to the extent of 10% to those land owners who had not approached the writ court and had not challenged the acquisition proceedings.

6. It may be noticed that in the case of Gajraj Singh and others, the writ petitions challenging the notifications in respect of land acquisition proceedings with respect to tracts of land situate in different villages of Greater Noida and Noida were decided and the writ petitions were disposed of in terms of the following directions :-

"481. As noticed above, the land has been acquired of large number of villagers in different villages of Greater Noida and Noida. Some of the petitioners had earlier come to this Court and their writ petitions have been dismissed as noticed above upholding the notifications which judgments have become final between them. Some of the petitioners may not have come to the Court and have left themselves in the hand of the Authority and State under belief that the State and Authority shall do the best for them as per law. We cannot loose sight of the fact that the above farmers and agricultures/owners whose land has been acquired are equally affected by taking of their land. As far as consequence and effect of the acquisition it equally affects on all land losers. Thus land owners whose writ petitions have earlier been dismissed upholding the notifications may have grievances that the additional compensation which was a subsequent event granted by the Authority may also be extended to them and for the aforesaid, further spate of litigation may start in so far as payment of additional compensation is concerned. In the circumstances, we leave it to the Authority to take a decision as to whether the benefit of additional compensation shall also be extended to those with regard to whom the notifications of acquisition have been upheld or those who have not filed any writ petitions. We leave this in the discretion of the Authority/State which may be exercised keeping in view the principles enshrined under Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

482. In view of the foregoing conclusions we order as follows:

1. The Writ Petition No. 45933 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 47545 of 2011 relating to village Nithari, Writ Petition No. 47522 of 2011 relating to village Sadarpur, Writ Petition No. 45196 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45208 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45211 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45213 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45216 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45223 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45224 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45226 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45229 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45230 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45235 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45238 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 45283 of 2011 relating to village Khoda, Writ Petition No. 46764 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 46785 of 2011 relating to village Sultanpur, Writ Petition No. 46407 of 2011 relating to village Chaura Sadatpur and Writ Petition No. 46470 of 2011 relating to village Alaverdipur which have been filed with inordinate delay and laches are dismissed.

2. (i) The writ petitions of Group 40 (Village Devla) being Writ Petition No. 31126 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 59131 of 2009, Writ Petition No. 22800 of 2010, Writ Petition No. 37118 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 42812 of 2009, Writ Petition No. 50417 of 2009, Writ Petition No. 54424 of 2009, Writ Petition No. 54652 of 2009, Writ Petition No. 55650 of 2009, Writ Petition No. 57032 of 2009, Writ Petition No. 58318 of 2009, Writ Petition

No. 22798 of 2010, Writ Petition No. 37784 of 2010, Writ Petition No. 37787 of 2010, Writ Petition No. 31124 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 31125 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 32234 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 32987 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 35648 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 38059 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 41339 of 2011, Writ Petition No. 47427 of 2011 and Writ Petition No. 47412 of 2011 are allowed and the notifications dated 26.5.2009 and 22.6.2009 and all consequential actions are quashed. The petitioners shall be entitled for restoration of their land subject to deposit of compensation which they had received under agreement/award before the authority/Collector.

2 (ii) Writ petition No. 17725 of 2010 Omveer and others Vs. State of U.P. (Group 38) relating to village Yusufpur Chak Sahberi is allowed. Notifications dated 10.4.2006 and 6.9.2007 and all consequential actions are quashed. The petitioners shall be entitled for restoration of their land subject to return of compensation received by them under agreement/award to the Collector.

2(iii) Writ Petition No.47486 of 2011 (Rajee and others vs. State of U.P. and others) of Group-42 relating to village Asdullapur is allowed. The notification dated 27.1.2010 and 4.2.2010 as well as all subsequent proceedings are quashed. The petitioners shall be entitled to restoration of their land.

3. All other writ petitions except as mentioned above at (1) and (2) are disposed of with following directions:

(a) The petitioners shall be entitled for payment of additional compensation to the extent of same ratio (i.e. 64.70%) as paid for village Patwari in addition to the compensation received by them under 1997 Rules/award which payment shall be ensured by the Authority at an early date. It may be open for Authority to take a decision as to what proportion of additional compensation be asked to be paid by allottees. Those petitioners who have not yet been paid compensation may be paid the compensation as well as additional compensation as ordered above. The payment of additional compensation shall be without any prejudice to rights of land owners under section 18 of the Act, if any.

(b) All the petitioners shall be entitled for allotment of developed Abadi plot to the extent of 10% of their acquired land subject to maximum of 2500 square meters. We however, leave it open to the Authority in cases where allotment of abadi plot to the extent of 6% or 8% have already been made either to make allotment of the balance of the area or may compensate the land owners by payment of the amount equivalent to balance area as per average rate of allotment made of developed residential plots.

4.The Authority may also take a decision as to whether benefit of additional compensation and allotment of abadi plot to the extent of 10% be also given to;

(a) those land holders whose earlier writ petition challenging the notifications have been dismissed upholding the notifications; and

(b) those land holders who have not come to the Court, relating to the notifications which are subject matter of challenge in writ petitions mentioned at direction No.3.

5. The Greater NOIDA and its allottees are directed not to carry on development and not to implement the Master Plan 2021 till the observations and directions of the National Capital Regional Planning Board are incorporated in Master Plan 2021 to the satisfaction of the National Capital Regional Planning Board. We make it clear that this direction shall not be applicable in those cases where the development is being carried on in accordance with the earlier Master Plan of the Greater NOIDA duly approved by the National Capital Regional Planning Board.

6. We direct the Chief Secretary of the State to appoint officers not below the level of Principal Secretary (except the officers of Industrial Development Department who have dealt with the relevant files) to conduct a thorough inquiry regarding the acts of Greater Noida (a) in proceeding to implement Master Plan 2021 without approval of N.C.R.P. Board, (b) decisions taken to change the land use, (c) allotment made to the builders and (d) indiscriminate proposals for acquisition of land, and thereafter the State Government shall take appropriate action in the matter."

7. Pursuant to the directions issued under paragraph 482 (4) of the judgment in the case of Gajraj Singh and others the respondent authority took a decision in its Board meeting for paying additional compensation to the extent of 64.70% to all land owners whether they had challenged the notifications or not. A decision was also taken not to allot abadi plot to the extent of 10% to those land owners who had not approached the writ court and had not questioned the acquisition proceedings. This decision of the authority was based on the fact that such huge area of developed abadi land was not available so as to allot it to all such persons who did not approach the Court.

8. The contention of the petitioners that irrespective of the fact whether the notifications issued in respect of land acquisition proceedings were under challenge along with the bunch of cases decided by the Full Bench they should be granted the same benefit regarding developed abadi plot as was granted by the Full Bench is liable to be rejected, for the reason that in the case of Gajraj Singh and others the Full Bench granted relief to the petitioners and to such persons whose earlier writ petitions challenging the notifications had been dismissed or who had not come to the Court challenging the notifications which were subject matter of challenge in the writ petitions, in view of the peculiar facts of the case having regard to the extensive development which had taken place subsequent to the acquisition proceedings, and also that the Supreme Court in the case of Savitri Devi vs. State of U.P. and others2 had made it clear that the directions issued by the Full Bench shall not be treated as a precedent in future cases.

9. We may also refer to the case of Mange @ Mange Ram Vs. State of U.P. and others3, where in a similar set of facts, certain petitioners, whose lands had been acquired under notifications, which were challenged not by the petitioners but by other similarly situate landowners, filed writ petitions in the year 2016 praying that they being similarly situate with those landowners, who had filed writ petitions and challenged the acquisition proceedings, were also entitled to claim the same relief, which had been granted to the writ petitioners in terms of the judgment in the case of Gajraj Singh and others and upheld in the case of Savitri Devi. The claim raised by the petitioners therein was turned down by this Court after recording a conclusion that the benefit granted by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others cannot be extended to the petitioners even though they may be similarly situate and the action of the respondents in not giving additional developed abadi land was neither arbitrary nor discriminatory. The observations made in the judgment are as follows :-

"11. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties and having perused the direction given by the Full Bench in Gajraj's case (supra) as well as the decision of the Supreme Court in Savitri Devi (supra), we find that the judgment of the Full Bench was affirmed by the Supreme Court in Savitri Devi (supra). While affirming the decision, the direction of the Full Bench in paragraph 484(4) to the authority to consider the case for payment of additional compensation and allotment of developed abadi plot to those land owners, who had not challenged the acquisition proceedings or whose writ petitions were dismissed earlier was also affirmed by the Supreme Court. Based on such direction, the authority took a decision to pay additional compensation to all the land owners irrespective of the fact as to whether they had challenged the acquisition proceedings or not. But with regard to allotment of developed abadi land, the authority took a decision not to allot to those land owners, who had not approached the writ Court on the ground that they have no developed land to allot to these land owners. The fact that the authority does not have any developed land for allotment has not been disputed as no rejoinder affidavit has been filed nor any evidence has been brought on record. We also find that such decision taken by the Board is neither arbitrary nor discriminatory.

12. The Full Bench in order to save the acquisition proceedings had issued the direction for payment of additional compensation and for allotment of developed abadi plots in the extenuating facts and circumstances of the case. The Supreme Court acceded to the said consideration holding that the Full Bench was justified in issuing such directions in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case and in order to save the acquisition proceedings from the vice of arbitrariness. The Supreme Court while affirming the decision of the Full Bench categorically held that the said decision would not be treated to form a precedent for future cases. The Supreme Court held:

"50. Keeping in view all these peculiar circumstances, we are of the opinion that these are not the cases where this Court should interfere under Article 136 of the Constitution. However, we make it clear that directions of the High Court are given in the aforesaid unique and peculiar/specific background and, therefore, it would not form precedent for future cases."

13. Thus, we are of the opinion that the ratio decendi of the Full Bench cannot be applied to similarly situated persons. The said benefit given by the Full Bench cannot be extended to the petitioners, even though they may be similarly situated and their land had been acquired under the same notification.

14. We are of the view that the action of the respondents in not giving additional developed abadi land to the petitioners is neither arbitrary nor discriminatory, especially when there is no evidence to dispute the fact that the respondents have no developed land with them for allotment."

10. The aforementioned judgment in the case of Mange @ Mange Ram Vs. State of U.P. and others decided along with other connected matters was subjected to challenge before the Supreme Court and came to be decided in terms of the judgment in Khatoon and others Vs. State of U.P. and others4.

11. The question as to whether the landowners were entitled to claim benefit of the judgment passed by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others, which had been upheld in the case of Savitri Devi, insofar as it related to allotment of additional abadi plot was considered by the Supreme Court in aforementioned case of Khatoon and others and the contention sought to be raised on the basis of the principles underlying Article 14 of the Constitution was repelled after taking notice of the fact that insofar as allotment of abadi plot is concerned the High Court in the case of Gajraj Singh and others had confined the relief only to the petitioners therein and for other landowners the matter was left to discretion of the authority concerned which had declined to extend the said relief. It was held that the appellants had neither any legal right nor any factual foundation to claim the relief of allotment of additional developed abadi plot. Furthermore, it was taken note of that the relief in the case of Gajraj Singh was granted by the High Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 and was confined to the petitioners therein, and even the Supreme Court in Savitri Devi case held that said directions were not to be treated as precedent and were limited only to the facts obtaining in that case. The relevant observations made in the judgment in the case of Khatoon and others are being extracted below :-

"16. In other words, the case of the appellant writ petitioners before the High Court was that the reliefs, which were granted to the landowners by the Full Bench in Gajraj case and affirmed by this Court in Savitri Devi case be also granted to the appellants because their lands were also acquired in the same acquisition proceedings in which the lands of the writ petitioners of Gujraj case was acquired. In effect, the relief was prayed on the principles of parity between the two landowners qua State.

17. It is, however, pertinent to mention that so far as the direction of the High Court to award additional compensation payable @ 64.70% was concerned, the same was already implemented by the State by paying the compensation to all the landowners including the appellants without any contest.

18. In this view of the matter, the only question before the High Court in the appellants' writ petitions that remained for decision was as to whether the appellants are also entitled to claim the relief of allotment of developed abadi plot to the extent of 10% of their acquired land subject to maximum of 2500 Sq.M.in terms of the judgment in Gajraj case and Savitri Devi case.

36. Therefore, the only question that now survives for consideration in these appeals is whether the appellants are entitled to get the benefit of second direction issued by the High Court in Gajraj, namely, allotment of developed abadi plot to the appellants.

37. In our considered opinion, the appellants are not entitled to get the benefit of the aforementioned second direction and this we say for the following reasons.

38. First, the High Court in Gajraj had, in express terms, granted the relief of allotment of developed abadi plot confining it only to the landowners, who had filed the writ petitions. In other words, the High Court while issuing the aforesaid direction made it clear that the grant of this relief is confined only to the writ petitioners [see conditions 3(a) and (b)].

39. Second, so far as the cases relating to second category of landowners, who had not challenged the acquisition proceedings (like the appellants herein) were concerned, the High Court dealt with their cases separately and accordingly issued directions which are contained in conditions 4(a) and (b) of the order.

40. In conditions 4(a) and (b), the High Court, in express terms, directed the Authority to take a decision on the question as to whether the Authority is willing to extend the benefit of the directions contained in conditions 3(a) and (b) also to second category of landowners or not.

41. In other words, the High Court, in express terms, declined to extend the grant of any relief to the landowners, who had not filed the writ petitions and instead directed the Authority to decide at their end as to whether they are willing to extend the same benefit to other similarly situated landowners or not.

42. It is, therefore, clear that it was left to the discretion of the Authority to decide the question as to whether they are willing to extend the aforesaid benefits to second category of landowners or not.

43. Third, as mentioned supra, the Authority, in compliance with the directions, decided to extend the benefit in relation to payment of an additional compensation @ 64.70% and accordingly it was paid also. On the other hand, the Authority declined to extend the benefit in relation to allotment of developed abadi plot to such landowners.

44. Fourth, it is not in dispute, being a matter of record, that when the Authority failed to extend the benefit regarding allotment of additional abadi plot to even those landowners in whose favour the directions were issued by the High Court in Gajraj and by this Court in Savitri Devi, the landowners filed the contempt petition against the Authority complaining of non-compliance with the directions of this Court but this Court dismissed the contempt petition holding therein that no case of non-compliance was made out.

45. In our view, the appellants have neither any legal right and nor any factual foundation to claim the relief of allotment of additional developed abadi plot. In order to claim any mandamus against the State for claiming such relief, it is necessary for the writ petitioners to plead and prove their legal right, which should be founded on undisputed facts against the State. It is only then the mandamus can be issued against the State for the benefit of writ petitioners. Such is not the case here.

47. One cannot dispute that the Act does not provide for grant of such reliefs to the landowners under the Act. Similarly, there is no dispute that the State paid all statutory compensation, which is payable under the Act, to every landowner. Not only that every landowner also got additional compensation @ 64.70% over and above what was payable to them under the Act.

48. The reliefs in Gajraj were granted by the High Court by exercising extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution and keeping in view the peculiar facts and circumstances arising in the case at hand. They were confined only to the landowners, who had filed the writ petitions. Even this Court in Savitri Devi case held that the directions given be not treated as precedent for being adopted to other cases in future and they be treated as confined to that case only.

51. In our opinion, therefore, there is no case made out by the appellants for grant of any relief much less the relief of allotment of additional developed abadi plot. If we entertain the appellants' plea for granting them the relief then it would amount to passing an order contrary to this Court's directions contained in para 50 of the order passed in Savitri Devi case."

12. The question as to whether the benefit of the directions issued by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others for providing additional compensation to the extent of 64.70% and developed abadi plot to the extent of 10% of the land acquired was liable to be extended to such tenure holders also whose lands were not acquired in terms of the notifications which were under challenge in the case of Gajraj Singh and others, has also been considered by a coordinate Division Bench of this Court in the case of Smt. Rameshwari and 3 others Vs. State of U.P. and 2 others5 and in terms of judgment dated 3.5.2017, it has been held as follows :-

"A perusal of the Full Bench judgement in the case of Gajraj Singh (Supra) goes to show that in order to save the acquisition proceedings, direction for payment of additional compensation and allotment of developed abadi plot was issued in peculiar facts and circumstances, particularly, the fact that extensive development had taken place even though the Full Bench found that opportunity to file objection under Section 5A Act had been wrongly denied to the tenure holders. However, the benefit extended to the land owners in lieu of saving the acquisition proceedings, even though the same were found to be illegal and liable to be quashed, was restricted to the acquisition proceedings challenged before it.

However, the question of extending the benefits of additional compensation and allotment of developed abadi plot to such land holders whose challenge to the land acquisition notification already stood dismissed or such land holders who did not approach this Court challenging the land acquisition notification though the said notifications were subject matter of challenge before the Full Bench, was left open to be decided by the authority. As already noticed above, in pursuance of the aforesaid directions, the authority took a decision in its Board meeting for making payment of additional compensation to the extent of 64.7% to all land holders whether they had put challenge to the land acquisition notifications or not. However, in respect of allotment of abadi plot to the extent of 10%, the authority took a decision not to extend the benefit to such land holders who had not approached the writ court and had not questioned the acquisition proceedings.

In the case in hand, the petitioners' land was acquired by means of notification dated 09.09.1997. Equally admitted fact is that the petitioners accepted the award and did not come forward to challenge the land acquisition proceedings. Not only that, notification dated 9.9.2017 whereunder an area 1275-18-18 including Gata no. 582 area 6-5-13, 538 area 0-15-6, 609 area 1-2-12 and 615 area 9-10-10 of the petitioners situate at village Tugalpur was acquired was not subject of matter of challenge before the Full Bench.

In view of above facts and discussions, it is clear that the relief which was granted by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh (Supra) affirmed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Savitri Devi (Supra) cannot be made applicable to the acquisition proceedings which were not assailed and were not subject matter of adjudication before the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh (Supra). Thus, we are of the considered opinion that the ratio dicendi of the Full Bench does not stand attracted in the case of the petitioners and they cannot claim parity with those tenure holders who were before the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh (Supra). The petitioners are thus not entitled to the relief claimed in this petition. The impugned order therefore, does not suffer from any infirmity requiring any interference by this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

Writ petition fails and accordingly stands dismissed."

13. A similar view has been taken in a recent judgment of this Court in Ramesh and others Vs. State of U.P. and others6, wherein it was stated as follows:-

"14.Moreover, the directions issued by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others under para 482 (4) in terms of which the Authority was to take a decision as to whether benefit of additional compensation and allotment of abadi plot to the extent of 10% was to be given, was confined to those land holders whose writ petitions challenging the notifications had been dismissed earlier and to those who had not approached the court to challenge the notifications which were subject matter of challenge in the writ petitions decided along with the case of Gajraj Singh and others. The directions under para 482 (4) were not in respect of those persons such as the petitioners in the present case whose land had been acquired in terms of notifications which were not subject matter of challenge in the case of Gajraj Singh and others and connected matters."

14. The question as to whether claim for any additional benefit can be raised as a matter of right in lieu of acquisition of land was subject matter of consideration before a Full Bench of this Court in Ravindra Kumar Vs. District Magistrate, Agra and others7, wherein the claim sought to be raised for appointment in service in lieu of acquisition of land was repelled and it was held that the Land Acquisition Act is a self-contained Code providing the procedure to be followed for acquisition as well as for assessment of the valuation and payment of fair and just compensation to the persons whose land were acquired and in the absence of any statutory provision no other claim can be raised as a matter of right. The observations made in the judgment in this regard are as follows:-

"21. The Land Acquisition Act is a self-contained Code and provides the procedure to be followed for acquisition as well as for assessment of the valuation and payment of fair and just compensation as per market value of the person whose land is acquired. In addition to that market value of the land interest @ 12% is also given from the date of publication of the Notification vide Section 23 (1-A). Besides that, a sum of 30% on such market value is also paid as solatium for distress and for inconvenience or difficulties caused to the person on account of compulsory acquisition of the land vide Section 23 (2) of the Act. Therefore, a person whose land is acquired not only gets adequate compensation as per market value of the land but also gets interest on the amount of compensation (@) 12% from the date of notification under Section 4 of the Act as well as an amount of solatium, which is 30% of the amount of compensation. Neither the Land Acquisition Act nor the regulations provides that in the event of acquisition of the land one of the family members of the landholder shall be given employment in addition to the amount of compensation. Therefore, in the absence of any statutory provision or any promise, the petitioner respondent cannot claim appointment as a matter of right nor can the respondent make such appointment."

15. The aforementioned position has been considered in a recent decision of this Court in Anand Prakash and Another vs. State of U.P. and others8, wherein the question which was considered was as to whether as per the directions in the case of Gajraj Singh and others, the petitioners, who were neither parties in the writ petitions which had been decided along with the case of Gajraj Singh and others nor had their land been acquired under the notifications which were subject matter of challenge in the writ petitions decided by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others and connected matters, could claim entitlement to allotment of abadi plot to the extent of 10% of their acquired land. The Division Bench after a detailed discussion of the factual and the legal position observed as follows:-

"22. In view of the foregoing discussion it follows that the directions issued by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others for payment of additional compensation and developed abadi plot were in respect of the petitioners in the bunch of writ petitions which were decided by the Full Bench. The question of extending the benefit of additional compensation and allotment of developed abadi plot to such landholders whose writ petitions challenging the notifications had been dismissed earlier and also those landholders who had not approached the Court challenging the notifications which were subject matter of challenge before the Full Bench, was left open to be decided by the authority.

23. It was in pursuance of the aforesaid directions that the authority took a decision at its board meeting for payment of additional compensation to the extent of 64.70% to all landholders whether they had chosen to challenge the land acquisition notifications or not; however, insofar as allotment of developed abadi plot to the extent of 10% of the acquired land is concerned the authority took a decision not to extend the said benefit to such landholders who had not approached the writ court and had not raised any challenge to the acquisition proceedings."

16. In the case at hand, the land of the petitioners was acquired in terms of proceedings initiated by means of the notification dated 12.04.2005 issued under Section 4(1)/17(4), and the notification dated 27.07.2006 issued under Section 6/17 (1) of the Act 1894. Admittedly the petitioners did not choose to challenge the land acquisition proceedings and it is also not the case of the petitioners that the notifications in terms of which the land of the petitioners was acquired were subject matter of challenge in the writ petitions which were decided by the Full Bench in the case of Gajraj Singh and others.

17. It may be noticed that there was no direction in the judgment of the Full Bench for grant of payment of additional compensation or allotment of abadi land or for consideration of the said benefits by the authority in respect of those persons whose land had been acquired in terms of the notifications which were not subject matter of challenge in the case of Gajraj Singh and Others and connected bunch of writ petitions.

18. The petitioners have admitted to having accepted the compensation in respect of their land which was subject matter of acquisition. The additional benefit by way of allotment of developed abadi plot which is sought by the petitioners not being founded on any legally enforceable right no mandamus can be claimed for grant of such benefit.

19. In view of the foregoing discussion, the petitioners are not entitled to reliefs which have been sought.

20. The writ petition thus fails and is, accordingly, dismissed.

2. NGEF vS Chandra (2005 Vol. 8 SCC 219),

3. Writ C No. 12696 of 2009 (Mohd. Suaif & anr. Vs St. of UP & ors.Decided on 07.05.2019.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel.

2. The present petition has been filed challenging the order dated 14.11.2018 whereby the fair price shop license of the petitioner has been cancelled as well as the order dated 14.02.2020 whereby the appeal preferred against the cancellation order was rejected.

3. The facts, in brief, are that the petitioner was a fair price shop license holder having a shop situate at Tahsil Mahmoodabad District Sitapur. It is stated that on the basis of an inspection carried out by the 'Minority Welfare Officer', Sitapur on 06.04.2017, an opinion was formed that the petitioner was not running the shop properly and certain discrepancies were found in the said inspection carried out by the Minority Welfare Officer, Sitapur. Based upon the said, the petitioner was issued with a show cause notice calling upon the petitioner to show cause as to why the steps may not be taken for cancellation of the license. The petitioner submitted his defense on 15.09.2017 and subsequently thereto, an order came to be passed on 29.01.2018 cancelling the fair price shop license of the petitioner. The said order was challenged in an appeal which resulted in the remand order and the matter was remanded for decision afresh. After the remand, a fresh order was passed on 14.11.2018 cancelling the fair price shop license and an appeal preferred against the said order came to be dismissed on 14.02.2020. The said orders are under challenge in the present writ petition.

4. The counsel for the petitioner argues that the supply, sale and distribution of the essential commodities in the State of U.P. is governed under the provisions of the various Control Orders and in the present case, the same would be governed by the Uttar Pradesh Essential Commodities (Regulation of Sale and Distribution Control) Order 2016 issued by the State Government in exercise of the power under section 3 of the Essential Commodities Act read with notification of the Government of India. He argues that under the said Control Order of 2016, 'Designated Authority' is defined under section 2(l) and reads as under:

"2(l) 'Designated Authority' means any officer not below the rank of Supply Inspector of the Food and Civil Supplies Department in the State but for rural Areas it also includes Assistant Development Officer (Panchayat) or any officer authorized by the State Government."

5. He argues that in terms of the Control Order various obligations have been cast upon the license holder in respect of distribution and sale of the essential commodities. It also empowers the State Government to prescribe for the procedure to be followed by the 'designated authority' in the event of default by the licensing authority, for that he places reliance on Clause No.8(6) of the Control Order. He also placed reliance on Clause 12 of the Control Order 2016 to argue that the power of search and seizure is conferred upon the Commissioner, the food officer, the competent authority and designated officer within the jurisdiction on which they exercise their powers. Clause 12 of the Control Order is quoted as under :

12. Power of search and seizure -(1) The Commissioner, the food officer, the competent authority and designated officer may within his jurisdiction with such assistance if any, as he thinks fit -

6. In the backdrop of the said, he argues that the very initiation of the proceedings against the petitioner is contrary to the mandate of Clause 12 of the Control Order 2016 inasmuch as the inspection was carried out by the 'Minority Welfare Officer' who is not a designated officer as defined under Clause 2(l) of the Control Order 2016. He further argues that the Minority Welfare Officer is neither a designated officer nor he has been delegated any powers traceable to Clause 12 of the Control Order as also that there is no power of sub-delegation available upon the designated officer under the scheme of the Control Order or the Essential Commodities Act. He argues that it is well settled that the powers conferred upon a particular authority can be exercised only by the said authority and can be delegated only if there is specific power of sub-delegation conferred upon the said authority (Delegatees non protest delegare). He places reliance on the judgment in the cases of State of Bombay vs. Shiva Balak; AIR 1965 SC 661, NGEF vs. Chandra (2005) 8 SCC 219 and the judgement dated 07.05.2019 of this court in Writ -C No. 12696 of 2009 (Mohammad Suaif and another vs. State of U.P. and others).

7. He further argues that even otherwise the order passed against the petitioner is bad in law inasmuch as in the defense the petitioner had relied upon various affidavits given in support of the petitioner which have been disbelieved on the grounds which are wholly arbitrary. To buttress his submissions, he argues that in the order, it is recorded that the affidavits filed in support of the defense of the petitioner are not worthy of credence because they are not affixed with photographs. He further argues that in respect of the some of the affidavits, the prescribed authority has formed an opinion that the same appear to have been obtained by misrepresentation from the deponents, which has neither any legal basis nor any factual basis. Thus, the said order is clearly a result of an arbitrary exercise of the power and deserves to be set aside. He lastly argues that in terms of the Government Order issued, it is specified that after a reply is submitted, the same should be got inquired into by an officer who is higher in rank than the officer who issued show cause notice, which has not been done in the present case. In the light of the said submissions, he argues that the writ petition deserves to be allowed.

8. The Additional Chief Standing Counsel, on the other hand, justifies the orders on the ground that various allegations were levelled against the petitioner, which after due process have been found to be correct and thus no interference is called for. He further argues that the argument with regard to non-availability of the authority/jurisdiction were neither raised in the defense nor in the appeal, as such, the petitioner cannot be permitted to raise the said argument at this stage. To conclude his submissions, he argues that the writ petition deserves to be dismissed.

9. I have considered the arguments raised at the bar and perused the records.

10. Considering the objection of the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel that the plea/defense regarding lack of jurisdiction was neither raised before the prescribed authority nor before the appellate authority and has been raised for the first time before this court. It is well settled that the plea which goes to the root of lack of substantive jurisdiction can be raised at any stage of the proceedings, thus, I reject the preliminary objection raised by the Additional Chief Standing Counsel.

11. As regards the first argument, a specific averment has been made in the writ petition in para no. 9 with regard to lack of jurisdiction by the inspecting authority to which no reply has been given in the counter affidavit. A perusal of the Control Order specifically Clause 12 clearly provides that the power of search and seizure can be exercised only by the officer specified therein namely the Commissioner, food officer, the competent authority and the designated officer within his jurisdiction. The power of search is an expropriatory power and has to be interpreted strictly inasmuch as it is an exception to the fundamental right of carrying business and thus has to be interpreted strictly. A plain reading of Clause 12 read with section 2(l) makes it clear that the Minority Welfare Officer is neither a person specified in Clause 12 nor a designated officer and thus the inspection carried out by him was without any authority of law.

12. It has been argued by the State that the inspection was carried out under the oral direction of the District Magistrate, however, no provision exists either under the Act or the Control Order empowering the District Magistrate to delegate his powers. The law with regard to delegation of power is very well settled, a power can be delegated only if permissible and up to that extent and without there being such power, the powers conferred upon the authority cannot be delegated (Delegatees non protest delegare) as laid down in the cases of State of Bombay vs. Shiva Balak; AIR 1965 SC 661, NGEF vs. Chandra (2005) 8 SCC 219 and the judgement dated 07.05.2019 of this court in Writ -C No. 12696 of 2009 (Mohammad Suaif and another vs. State of U.P. and others).Thus, on the first ground itself, I am inclined to hold that the proceedings initiated by an inspection of 'Minority Welfare Officer' which culminated in the impugned order are clearly unsustainable.

13. Considering the second submission that the prescribed authority has erred in disbelieving the affidavits, the counsel for the petitioner places reliance on the judgment of this Court in the case of Balram Das vs. State of U.P. decided on 11.04.2022 in Writ-C No.20446 of 2017, wherein this court has held that in the event the prescribed authority disbelieves any evidence given in support of the defense, he should call for a better evidence/explanation in that regard from the person concerned. In the present case, the reasons prescribed for disbelieving the affidavits that photographs were not affixed, clearly cannot be termed as a proper exercise of the power by the prescribed authority. In any event, if the prescribed authority had reasons to disbelieve the said affidavits, he ought to have called for better affidavits which has not been done, as is clear from the records. Thus, on that ground also, the orders are unsustainable and are liable to be set aside.

14. I am not going into the third question in view of the first two questions being decided in favour of the petitioner. For the reasons recorded above, the writ petition deserves to be allowed. The orders dated 14.11.2018 and 14.02.2020 are set aside.

15. The writ petition stands allowed.

Writ Petition Allowed. (E-11)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. Counter affidavit filed on behalf of respondent nos.2, 3 and 4 today, is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Ram Pratap Yadav, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel for the State.

3. Present writ petition has been filed by the petitioner Anuj Kumar, claiming to be the duly elected Gram Pradhan of village Bhauli, Development Block Kurara, Tehsil-Hamirpur, District-Hamirpur. He claims relief in the nature of direction upon the District Magistrate-Hamirpur to assign financial and administrative powers to the petitioner to enable him to discharge all functions of Gram Pradhan.

4. Upon perusal of the pleadings made in the writ petition as confirmed by the counter affidavit filed by the District Panchayat Raj Officer, Hamirpur, it transpires, undisputedly the petitioner was elected as the Gram Pradhan, Gram Panchayat Bhauli, Development Block Kurara, District-Hamirpur on 02.05.2021. His term is five years. Almost one year has passed and the petitioner has yet not been able to function as the Gram Pradhan. Functioning of the petitioner has been obstructed on account of non-constitution of the Gram Panchayat Bhauli. In that regard, it has been clearly disclosed in the counter affidavit filed by the District Panchayat Raj Officer, Hamirpur that Gram Panchayat Bhauli comprises of 15 wards. Election to all 15 wards of the said Gram Panchayat first took place on 02.05.2021. Of the 15 ward members elected, only 2 could be administered oath. The remaining 13 did not present themselves for administration of oath as ward members of the Gram Panchayat Bhauli, despite reminders.

5. Acting in conformance to Section 12-E(2) of the Uttar Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act'), 13 elected members of the Gram Panchayat Bhauli who failed to subscribe to the oath of office, were deemed to have vacated office/seat vide order dated 10.11.2021.

6. The document filed as Annexure CA-3 to the counter affidavit further reveals, pursuant to the order of the State Election Commission dated 06.01.2021, the bye election to the aforesaid 13 vacant wards were held and 13 members were elected. This time only 3 of the members so elected could be administered oath. The remaining 10 have yet not subscribed to the oath. The counter affidavit does not state as to whether the said 10 persons have been deemed to have vacated the office/seat of member of Gram Panchayat, Bhauli.

7. In such facts, it has been stated in the counter affidavit and has been vehemently urged by the learned Standing Counsel that the Gram Panchayat has yet not been constituted in accordance with Section 12(3) of the Act. Unless 2/3 elected members subscribe to the oath, the Gram Panchayat cannot be constituted. Since the strength of the Gram Panchayat, Bhauli is 15, necessarily, 10 members must subscribe to the oath before the petitioner may be allowed to function as a fullfledged Gram Pradhan.

8. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, there can be no denial that the Gram Panchayat may be constituted only upon 2/3 members of the total strength of the Gram Panchayat being elected. In the present case, that number would have to be 10. This position emerges from the plain reading of Section 12(3)(d) read with its proviso. It reads :

"12(3)(d) The Constitution of a Gram Panchayat shall be notified in such manner as may be prescribed and thereupon the Gram Panchayat shall be deemed to have been duly constituted, any vacancy therein notwithstanding :

Provided that the Constitution of a Gram Panchayat shall not be so notified till the Pradhan and at least two-thirds of the members of the Gram Panchayat have been elected."

9. Then, Section 12-E of the Act reads as below :

"12-E. Oath of office -(1) [Every person] shall, before entering upon any office referred to in Sections 11-A, 12, 43 or 44, make and subscribe before such authority as may be prescribed on oath or affirmation in the form to be prescribed.

(2) Any member who declines or otherwise refuses to make and subscribe such oath or affirmation as aforesaid shall be deemed to have vacated the office forthwith."

10. Thus, in the first place, the legislature has used the word 'elected'. There is no doubt that elections have been held to fill up all posts of the Gram Panchayat, twice. On both occasions, members were elected on all seats. However, only two persons subscribed to the oath as a result of the first election and only 3 persons subscribed to the oath as the result of the second/bye-election.The petitioner does not assert that the requirement of Section 12(3)(d) of the Act stood fulfilled upon conclusion of election. At the same time, it is equally true, by virtue of communication dated 10.11.2021 issued under Section 12-E of the Act, 13 posts on which the elected members did not subscribe to the oath, were declared deemed vacant. Consequently, bye-election took place. Still, 10 of the 13 persons thus elected (as a consequence of the bye-election), have not subscribed to the oath till date. Thus, in all only 5 (1/3rd) elected members of the Gram Panchayat Bhauli have made and subscribed to the oath. The quorum is short by 5.

11. In such facts, the respondent-authorities may now seek to enforce on the remaining 12 elected members of the Gram Panchayat to make and subscribe to the oath within a fixed time failing which the declaration of deemed vacancy may be visited in terms of Section 12-E of the Act.

12. While that may be done first, the State Government and/or the Officer authorized is not helpless in this regard. The constitution of the Gram Panchayat and its functioning cannot be held hostage by elected members of that body who may refuse to make and subscribe to the oath and thereby, paralyse the functioning of the grass root level democratic institution. Section 12(3-A) of the Act offers the complete solution in that regard. It reads :

"[12(3-A) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other provisions of this Act, where due to unavoidable circumstances or in public interest, it is not practicable to hold an election to constitute a Gram Panchayat before the expiry of its duration, the State Government or an officer authorized by it in this behalf may, by order, appoint an Administrative Committee consisting of such number of persons qualified to be elected as members of the Gram Panchayat, as it may consider proper or an Administrator and the members of the Administrative Committee or the Administrator shall hold office for such period not exceeding six months as may be specified in the said order and all powers, functions and duties of the Gram Panchayat, its Pradhan and Committees shall vest in and be exercised, performed and discharged by such Administrative Committee or the Administrator, as the case may be.]"

13. In a given factual situation where either due to unavoidable circumstances or in public interest, it is not practicable to hold election, the State Government or the Officer authorised may appoint an Administrative Committee consisting of such number of qualified members to be elected as members of the Gram Panchayat, as it may consider proper.

14. Requisite number of ward members were also elected on both occasions. However, the majority of elected members refused to make and subscribe to the oath of office. It has prevented the constitution of the Gram Sabha Bhauli for almost a year. Correspondingly, it has, extra-constitutionally, injuncted the functioning of the petitioner as Gram Pradhan for nearly 1/5 of his term.

15. While, it may not be said that there are unavoidable circumstances due to which elections to constitute the Gram Panchayat may not be held, at the same time in light of the facts noted above, since 10 seats of Gram Panchayat members are lying practically vacant despite two elections held over a period of almost one year and in view of the further fact that such vacancies appear to exist only on account of the conduct of the erring elected members, exercise in public interest, as contemplated by Section 12(3A) of the Act has become imperative. At present, repeated/third successive elections/bye election held at the cost of public exchequer and time may not be in public interest. Rule 60(2) of the UP Panchayat Raj (Election of Member, Pradhan and UP-Pradhan Rules, 1994, also, appears to indicate two attempts to be made to elect a member of a Gram Panchayat. There is no doubt to the fact of two elections held.

16. The Constitution of the Gram Panchayat is the paramount objective to be achieved. Since the minimum quorum required to constitute the Gram Panchayat could not be met, despite two consecutive elections and passage of one year time, the State Government or the Officer authorised by it, must ensure constitution of the Gram Panchayat or its Administrative Committee through other means, permitted by the statute.

17. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed with a direction upon respondents to take cognizance of the matter and pass appropriate orders with respect to declaration of deemed vacancy on the post of 10 members of Gram Panchayat, Bhauli who may still refuse to subscribe to the oath despite further notice to be issued to them, now. For that purpose, the time limit of three weeks from today is fixed. Thus, either such oath would be made and subscribed by minimum five elected members so as to complete the quorum of 10 members, on or before 22 April, 2022 or a declaration of deemed vacancy under Section 12-E of the Act would be made with respect to the above, at the end of that time limit.

18. Further, in the event of such vacancy being declared, and quorum being still not met, keeping in mind the facts noted above, no fresh election may be called for the next six months. However the respondents may proceed directly, under Section 12(3-A) of the Act and appoint such eligible persons as members of the Administrative Committee of the Gram Panchayat, Bhauli as may be required to complete the minimum quorum, over and above the elected members who may have subscribed oath. Such exercise may be completed, within a period of one week therefrom, so that the Gram Panchayat, Bhauli may be constituted not later than 2nd May, 2022.

19. Upon, such event, the petitioner may be allowed to function as the full fledged Gram Pradhan for his remaining term, in accordance with law.

20. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajit Kumar, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. By means of this petition filed under Article 227 of the Constitution, the petitioner State of U.P. and two others seek to set aside the judgments and decrees passed by the trial court and court of appeal in O.S. No. 213 of 2008 and Civil Appeal No. 70 of 2010 respectively whereby present petitioners have been saddled with the liability to pay an amount of Rs. 15,841.18 paise to the opposite party alongwith interest @ 18 per cent.

3. Learned Standing Counsel submits that since valuation of money recovery suit is less than Rs. 25000/- therefore, second appeal is barred in such matters under Section 102 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 and hence this petition has been filed under Article 227 of the Constitution.

4. A preliminary objection has been raised by learned Advocate appearing for the respondents that since second appeal under Section 102 is barred in the matters of valuation of the original money recovery suit being less than 25,000/- under Section 102 of Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution to circumvent such a bar, would equally not be maintainable. He has placed reliance upon the judgment of a coordinate bench of this Court in the case of Mahendra Singh v. Haqimuddin decided on 27.11.2008 and reported in 2008 (10) ADJ 182.

5. Meeting aforesaid preliminary objection, learned Standing Counsel has submitted that powers under Article 227 of the Constitution of India are the inherent powers of superintendence of the High Court upon the Courts and Tribunals subordinate to it through out territorial jurisdiction of the High Court and this power cannot be curtailed or limited by any Act of legislature. He submits that power of superintendence conferred upon the High Court is one of the basic features of our Constitution, and therefore, either by any Act of legislature or any amendment to the constitution, this power cannot be taken away. He submits that second appeal is though barred under Section 102 of the CPC but a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution at the same time would be maintainable. He has placed reliance upon a number of the authorities of the High Court and the Supreme Court.

6. In view of the above rival submissions regarding maintainability of this petition, before I proceed to consider the present petition filed under Article 227 of the Constitution on its merit, I consider it appropriate to deal with preliminary objection raised by learned counsel appearing for the contesting respondents first in the light of various authorities on this issue.

7. In case of Mahendra Singh (supra) a coordinate bench of this Court in its judgment running in one and half page, in the third paragraph of it has quoted Section 102 which bars second appeal against the judgment and decree of the trial Court and the court of appeal where valuation of suit for recovery of money is not exceeding Rs. 25,000/- and considering this bar the court observed that holding a petition under Article 227 in such cases to be maintainable would frustrate the very purpose for which Section 102 has been incorporated under Code of Civil Procedure. Vide paragraph 5, the ratio as laid down in the said judgment for holding petition not maintainable under Article 227 of the Constitution, it has been held thus:

" Learned counsel for the plaintiff appellate requests for return of the certified copies of the judgments and orders of the courts below and the decree appealed against to enable him to file a writ petition challenging the said judgments and orders. There is no difficulty in accepting the above request of the counsel simplicitor but a writ petition under Article 227 against the judgments and orders of the courts below would not be maintainable as it would amount to frustrating the very purpose of the amendment made under Section 102 Civil Procedure Code. The jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is very limited and it cannot be permitted to be used to circumvent the provisions of the Civil Procedure ode and to invoke writ jurisdiction where the second appeal has been specifically barred particularly when the judgment and order of the Court of first instance had already been scrutinised once in appeal before the lower appellate court."

8. After going through the aforesaid paragraph , I find that his Lordship has held a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution to be not maintainable only on the ground that since Section 102 of the CPC bars second appeal, a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution would frustrate the very purpose of the amendment. If this analogy is accepted in toto to hold a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution to be not maintainable would amount to taking a view quite contrary to the view taken by the Supreme Court in the past regarding scope of Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

9. One must not forget that power conferred upon the High Courts under Article 226 and 227 of the Constitution are inherent powers under the constitution and tracing history prior to the constitution of India coming into force, one would find that these powers always existed there under Section 15 of the High Courts Act, 1861 and Government of India Act, 1915 and 1935.

10. So tracing out the development of law in respect of judicial discharge of function of the High Courts having inherent powers qua the Courts and Tribunals subordinate to it, relevant provisions as contained in Section 15 of the High Courts Act, 1861, Section 107 of the Government of India 1915, Section 224 of the Government of India, 1935 and Article 227 of the Constitution of India as incorporated under the Indian Constitution, 1950, are reproduced hereunder:

" THE HIGH COURTS ACT, 1861

15. Each of the High Courts established under this Act shall have superintendence over all Courts which may be subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and shall have power to call for returns, and to direct the transfer of any suit or appeal from any such Court to any other Court of equal or Superior jurisdiction, and shall have power to make and issue general rules for regulating the practice and proceedings of such Courts, and also to prescribe forms for every proceeding in the said Court for which it shall think necessary that a form be provided, and also for keeping all books, entries and accounts to be kept by the officers and also to settle tables of fees to be allowed to the Sheriff Attorneys, and all clerks and officers of Courts and from time to time to alter any such rule or form or table: and the rules so made the forms so famed, and the tables so settled, shall be used and observed in the said Courts: provided that such general rules and forms and tables be not inconsistent with the provisions of any law in force, and shall before they are issued, have received the sanction, in the Presidency of Fort William of the Governor-General in council, and in Madras or Bombay of the Governor in Council of the respective Presidencies.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1915

"(Section 107) - Section 15:- Each of the high courts has superintendence over all courts for the time being subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and may do any of the following things, that is to say:--

(a) call for returns;

(b) direct the transfer of any suit or appeal from any such court any other court of equal or superior jurisdiction;

(c) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such courts;

(d) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such courts; and

(e) settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff, attorneys and all clerks and officers of courts:

Provided that such rules, forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of any 1 [law] for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval, in the case of the high court at Calcutta, of the Governor-General in Council, and in other cases of the local government.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT, 1935

224 (1)Every High Court shall have superintendence over all courts in India for the time being subject to its appellate jurisdiction, and may do any of the following things, that is to say,'--

(a)call for returns;

(b)make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such courts;

(c)prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such courts; and .

(d)settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff, attorneys, and all clerks and officers of courts :

Provided that such rules, forms and tables shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor.

(2)Nothing in this section shall be construed as giving to a High Court any jurisdiction to question any judgment of any inferior court which is not otherwise subject to appeal or revision.

ARTICLE 227 OF THE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

"(1) Every High Court shall have superintendence over all courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provisions, the High Court may

(a) call for returns from such courts;

(b) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such courts; and

(c) prescribe forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such courts

(3) The High Court may also settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff and all clerks and officers of such courts and to attorneys, advocates and pleaders practising therein:

Provided that any rules made, forms prescribed or tables settled under clause (2) or clause (3) shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor.

(4) Nothing in this article shall be deemed to confer on a High Court powers of superintendence over any court or tribunal constituted by or under any law relating to the Armed Forces."

11. Upon bare reading of the aforesaid quoted provisions as enacted/incorporated from time to time, it is clear that this power of superintendence under High Courts Act, 1861 was independent of the provisions of other laws that conferred power of appeal/ revision upon High Courts, though under Sub Section 2 of Section 224 of the Government of India, 1935 the power in relation to inferior courts were limited to the cases where appeals or revisions were not maintainable, but while incorporating such a provision under the Constitution even that restriction has been done away with.

12. Although powers conferred upon the High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution is taken to be very wide one but at the same time not wider enough to exercise as an alternative to the forum of appeal.

13. In Chandrasekhar Singh & Ors. Vs. Siva Ram Singh & Ors., (1979) 3

SCC 118 summing up the position of law in relation to exercise of power under Article 227 of the Constitution, the Court has held thus:

"On a review of earlier decisions, the three-Judges Bench summed up the position of law as under :-

(i) that the powers conferred on the High Court under Article 227 of the Constitution cannot, in any way, be curtailed by the provisions of the Code of Criminal procedure;

(ii) the scope of interference by the High Court under Article 227 is restricted. The power of superintendence conferred by Article 227 is to be exercised sparingly and only in appropriate cases in order to keep the subordinate Courts within the bounds of their authority and not for correcting mere errors;

(iii) that the power of judicial interference under Article 227 of the Constitution is not greater than the power under Article 226 of the Constitution;

(iv) that the power of superintendence under Article 227 of the Constitution cannot be invoked to correct an error of fact which only a superior Court can do in exercise of its statutory power as the Court of Appeal; the High Court cannot, in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 227, convert itself into a Court of Appeal. "

14. In the case of L. Chandra Kumar v. Union of India and Others, Supreme Court has very categorically held that power conferred upon the Supreme Court and High Courts under Articles 32 and 226 and 227 of the Constitution respectively is a part of basic structure of our Constitution, forming its integral and essential feature, which cannot be tempered with much less be taken away even by a constitutional amendment, not to speak of a parliamentary legislation. However, courts have repeatedly cautioned that power of judicial review though is an integral part of basic structure of the Constitution, but exercise of it has to have self imposed limitations because such a power has to be exercised sparingly only to ensure that courts subordinate to the High Court obey the law, procedure and authority prescribed for. The power, it has been held, is not exercisable to correct mere errors nor, to be exercised as a cloak of appeal in disguise.

15. In the case case of State, through special Cell, New Delhi v. Navjot Sandhu and Others, 2003 (3)ACR 2391 (SC) it has been held thus:

"Thus the law is that Article 227 of the Constitution of India gives the High Court the power of superintendence over all Courts and Tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction. This jurisdiction cannot be limited or fettered by any act of the State Legislature. The supervisory jurisdiction extends to keeping the subordinate Tribunal's within the limits of their authority and to seeing that they obey the law. The powers under Article 227 are wide and can be used, to meet the ends of justice. They can be used to interfere even with an interlocutory order. However the power under Article 227 is a discretionary power and it is difficult to attribute to an order of the High Court, such a source of power, when the High Court itself does not in terms purport to exercise any such discretionary power. It is settled law that this power of judicial superintendence, under Article 227 , must be exercised sparingly and only to keep subordinate Courts and Tribunal's within the bounds of their authority and not to correct mere errors. Further where the statute bans the exercise of revisional powers it would require very exceptional circumstances to warrant interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India since the power of superintendence was not meant to circumvent statutory law. It is settled law that the jurisdiction under Article 227 could not be exercised "as the cloak of an appeal in disguise"

16. Relying upon the aforesaid authorities, Supreme Court in the case of Surya Devi Rai v. Ram Chander Rai and Others, AIR 2003 SC 3044, vide paragraph 38 has held thus:

"38. Though we have tried to lay down broad principles and working rules, the fact remains that the parameters for exercise of jurisdiction under Articles 226 or 227 of the Constitution cannot be tied down in a straitjacket formula or rigid rules. Not less than often the High Court would be faced with dilemma. If it intervenes in pending proceedings there is bound to be delay in termination of proceedings. If it does not intervene, the error of the moment may earn immunity from correction. The facts and circumstances of a given case may make it more appropriate for the High Court to exercise self-restraint and not to intervene because the error of jurisdiction though committed is yet capable of being taken care of and corrected at a later stage and the wrong done, if any, would be set right and rights and equities adjusted in appeal or revision preferred at the conclusion of the proceedings. But there may be cases where 'a stitch in time would save nine'. At the end, we may sum up by saying that the power is there but the exercise is discretionary which will be governed solely by the dictates of judicial conscience enriched by judicial experience and practical wisdom of the Judge."

(emphasis added)

17. In case of Nagendra Nath Bora and Another v. Commissioner of Hills Division and Appeals, Assam and Others, (1958) 1 SCR 1240, Supreme Court had much early observed thus:

the parameters for the exercise of jurisdiction, calling upon the issuance of writ of certiorari where so set out by the Constitution Bench : - "The Common law writ, now called the order of certiorari, which has also been adopted by our Constitution, is not meant to take the place of an appeal where the Statute does not confer a right of appeal. Its purpose is only to determine, on an examination of the record, whether the inferior tribunal has exceeded its jurisdiction or has not proceeded in accordance with the essential requirements of the law which it was meant to administer. Mere formal or technical errors, even though of law, will not be sufficient to attract this extra-ordinary jurisdiction. Where the errors cannot be said to be errors of law apparent on the face of the record, but they are merely errors in appreciation of documentary evidence or affidavits, errors in drawing inferences or omission to draw inference or in other words errors which a court sitting as a court of appeal only, could have examined and, if necessary, corrected and the appellate authority under a statute in question has unlimited jurisdiction to examine and appreciate the evidence in the exercise of its appellate or revisional jurisdiction and it has not been shown that in exercising its powers the appellate authority disregarded any mandatory provisions of the law but what can be said at the most was that it had disregarded certain executive instructions not having the force of law, there is not case for the exercise of the jurisdiction under Article 226.

18. So also again in the Bathutmal Raichand Oswal v. Laxmibai R.Tarta, AIR 1975 SC 1297, Supreme Court had very categorically held that power under Article 227 of the Constitution cannot be exercised "as the cloak of an appeal in disguise. It does not lie in order to bring up an order or decision for rehearing of the issues raised in the proceedings."

19. In case of Sadhna Lodh v. National Insurance Co. Ltd. 2003(3) SCC 524 while dealing with the scope of Article 227 of the Constitution the Supreme Court observed that a petition filed under Article 227 of the Constitution by the ensurer was wholly misconceived as statutory right to file an appeal was provided for under the statute. The Court observed, in such situation it was not open for the High Court to entertain a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution. The Court further observed that even where remedy by way of appeal has not been provided for against the order and judgment of District Judge, the remedy available to the aggrieved person is to file revision before the High Court but where revision against such order is barred under Section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure then petition under Article 227 of the Constitution would lie. This above judgment has been further relied upon in the case of Radhey Shyam and Others v. Chhabi Nath and Others, 2015 (3) ADJ 210, the Supreme Court has very categorically held that power under Article 227 of the Constitution can not be whistled down by any legislative Act vide paragraph 21 of the judgment, it held thus:

"21. It is true that this Court has laid down that technicalities associated with the prerogative writs in England have no role to play under our constitutional scheme. There is no parallel system of King's Court in India and of all other courts having limited jurisdiction subject to supervision of King's Court. Courts are set up under the Constitution or the laws. All courts in the jurisdiction of a High Court are subordinate to it and subject to its control and supervision under Article 227, Writ jurisdiction is constitutionally conferred on all High Courts. Broad principles of writ jurisdiction followed in England are applicable to India and a writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of Tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. There are no precedents in India for High Courts to issue writs to subordinate courts. Control of working of subordinate courts in dealing with their judicial orders is exercised by way of appellate or revisional powers or power of superintendence under Article 227. Orders of civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or Tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts. While appellate or revisional jurisdiction is regulated by statutes, power of superintendence under Article 227 is constitutional...."

20. Thus from the above discussion, I may safely conclude that powers under Article 227 of the Constitution are inherent and independent of the provisions contained in other central or State Acts and merely because power of revision or appeal is either barred or taken away under any Act of parliament or State legislature that would not amount to an automatic abrogation of the power or putting feters upon powers of the High Court, otherwise exercisable under Article 227 of the Constitution.

21. In my considered view since judgments as referred to above have not been considered in the case of Mahendra Singh (supra), with great respect to the coordinate bench, I am more bound by the judgments of the Supreme court under Article 141 of the Constitution and, accordingly, I hold that merely because second appeal is not maintainable under Section 102 of the Code of Civil Procedure, against the judgment arising from the money recovery suit having valuation not more than 25,000/, a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution would be absolutely maintainable. However, I may hasten to add that power is to be exercised very sparingly not to correct any mere error of facts but to ensure that Civil Courts have exercised power within bounds of law and following propriety.

22. Thus, I hold that this petition under Article 227 of the Constitution to be maintainable even in the face of bar created under Section 102 of Code of Civil Procedure,1908

23. Now, I proceed to consider the petition on merits.

24. Briefly stated facts of the case are that petitioners who claim to be a partnership firm running a medical agency, instituted a suit for recovery of money of Rs. 15,814.18 paise @ 18 per ent interest. As many as five issues were framed by the trial court in the suit and all the issues were answered in favour of the plaintiffs and the suit was decreed. The present petitioners preferred a civil appeal against the judgment of the trial court dated 29th July, 2010 raising specific ground that suit for money recovery by a partnership firm which was not registered, was not maintainable in view of bar created under Section 69 of the Indian Partnership Act, 1932. The Court of appeal, however, rejected the arguments of petitioner and dismissed the appeal confirming the order of trial court vide order dated 15th March, 2011.

25. Assailing the two orders passed by the court of first instance in O.S. No. 213 of 2008 and that of appeal in civil appeal no. 70 of 2010, learned Standing Counsel has placed heavy reliance upon judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Jagdish Chandra Gupta v. Kajaria Traders (India) Ltd, AIR 1964 SC 1882 and judgment in the case of Krishna Motor Services by its Partners v. H.B. Vittala Kamath (1996)10 SCC 88 and submitted that since plaintiffs claimed to be a partnership firm and claimed money recovery from the petitioners to whom plaintiffs claimed to have executed an agreement for supply of medicines, could not have maintained the suit as suit would clearly stand barred under Section 69 of the Indian Partnership Act. 1932 (hereinafter referred to as Partnership Act), the plaintiff being an unregistered firm.

26. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the respondent has submitted that suit in question would not be barred under Section 69 of the Partnership Act because plaintiffs were not seeking enforcement of any right arising out of any partnership agreement, inasmuch as, respondents-defendants being not partners of the firm, any enforcement of right of contract against such a third person would not be hit by Section 69 of the Partnership Act.

27. In order to appreciate the above arguments, it is first necessary to go through the bare facts pleaded by respective parties in the suit and further as to whether plaintiffs' firm in the suit in any manner ever entered the contract or agreement with the respondents for supply of medicines.

28. Upon bare reading of the plaint case, brought on record as annexure 1 to this petition, it clearly transpires that respondents claimed to be a partnership firm running a medical agency and that the defendants petitioners had placed some order for supply of the medicines and bill for Rs. 15,598.92 paise was signed and sent to the defendants for payment . It was claimed that outstanding amount of Rs. 15,841.18 paise/- remained unpaid despite repeated requests. Hence notice was issued under Section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure after service, 1908 and even after service of notice when the payment was not made, the suit was instituted as O.S. No. 213 of 2008.

29. Written statement was filed in the case by the defendants, in which they absolutely denied to have purchased any medicine from the medical agency of the firm standing in the name of M/s Modern Medicos. They also claimed in the written statement that defendant no. 2 had died, and therefore, there existed no partnership in law, and hence, suit was not maintainable. It was also claimed that no order placing the supply of medicines was ever executed in the name of firm as claimed to be dated 19.10.1985 and 09.03.1987 .It was also claimed that those orders claimed by the plaintiffs were found to be forged inasmuch as suit was time barred.

30. Upon perusal of both the plaint and written statement as brought on record, I do not find any averment either coming in the plaint or in the written statement that ever any partnership agreement or any sort of agreement worth its name was entered between the parties for supply of medicines.

31. It was a simple case where order was placed to the petitioners plaintiffs as claimed by the plaintiffs in the suit and that they supplied the medicines but payments were not made.

32. Amongst the issues framed by the trial court issue no. 1 was to the effect whether plaintiffs were entitled for recovery of money as claimed in the suit and dealing with this issue, the Court returned a finding of fact to the effect that as per P.W. 1 witness account two supplies were made on 19.10.1985 and 09.03.1987 in response to which medicines were supplied to the store of the defendants and bills were sent for payment, copies of which were available on record. The defence witness no. 1 when was examined he would claim to have joined Government Ayurvedic College in the year 2006 but he failed to bring stock and dispatch register of that time in question and rather claimed that there was no entry in the register of 1987. However, looking to the seal on the bill he claimed that though there was seal, but name of K.P. Pandey was hand written and there was no order number that was necessary to ensure supply of medicines. He accepted that on the receipt, there was a signature and seal of Principal but he could not recognize the signature. The Court, therefore, having appreciated and analysed that the statements of respective witnesses finally held that when the letters were written to the higher authority to ensure payments as such documents had been brought on record as paper no. 108-C and 109-C and then 110-C, it satisfactorily demonstrated that there was a bill pending, otherwise though letters would not have been written. Having come to answer this issue in favour of the plaintiffs, the court decreed the suit returning further findings that all issues favour the plaintiffs.

33. Thus, I do not find any statement of fact coming up either in the witness account of plaintiffs or defendants nor, do I find any plaint case or defence case that there was any agreement entered into between the partnership firm and defendants for supply of medicines. It was a mere case of demand raised to the firm for supply of medicines that was claimed to have been made and findings of facts if have come to be recorded in that respect by the trial court, the Court sitting in civil appeal held that the argument regarding bar of Section 69 of Partnership Act, was not attracted to the facts of the case and so also the authorities cited were not applicable.

34. Having carefully gone through the pleadings raised, I also do not find any enforcement of right claimed in the suit having its source in the partnership agreement. It was a simple case of demand and supply and no agreement was reached between the parties. The suit was not filed for enforcement of any rights nor, a third party, namely, defendants against whom suit was instituted, it was ever claimed that such third persons, namely, defendants were parties to any agreement at any point of time. However, further in order to deal with this legal aspect as argued by the learned counsel for the petitioner, it would be appropriate to reproduce Section 69 of the Partnership Act, in its entirety:

"69. Effect of non-registration.--(1) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract or conferred by this Act shall be instituted in any court by or on behalf of any person suing as a partner in a firm against the firm or any person alleged to be or to have been a partner in the firm unless the firm is registered and the person suing is or has been shown in the Register of Firms as a partner in the firm.

(2) No suit to enforce a right arising from a contract shall be instituted in any Court by or on behalf of a firm against any third party unless the firm is registered and the persons suing are or have been shown in the Register of Firms as partners in the firm.

(3) The provisions of sub-sections (1) and (2) shall apply also to a claim of set-off or other proceeding to enforce a right arising from a contract, but shall not affect,--

(a) the enforcement of any right to sue for the dissolution of a firm or for accounts of a dissolved firm, or any right or power to realise the property of a dissolved firm, or

(b) the powers of an official assignee, receiver or Court under the Presidency-towns Insolvency Act, 1909 (3 of 1909) or the Provincial Insolvency Act, 1920 (5 of 1920) to realise the property of an insolvent partner.

(4) This section shall not apply,--

(a) to firms or to partners in firms which have no place of business in 8 [the territories to which this Act extends], or whose places of business in 9 [the said territories], are situated in areas to which, by notification under 10 [section 56], this Chapter does not apply, or

(b) to any suit or claim of set-off not exceeding one hundred rupees in value which, in the Presidency-towns, is not of a kind specified in section 19 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, 1882 (5 of 1882), or, outside the Presidency-towns, is not of a kind specified in the Second Schedule to the Provincial Small

Cause Courts Act, 1887 (9 of 1887), or to any proceeding in execution or other proceeding incidental to or arising from any such suit or claim. State Amendments."

35. Upon bare reading of the aforesaid provisions, it becomes explicit that legislature intended to non suit an unregistered partnership firm in case if a suit is instituted for enforcement of a right arising from a contract under this Act, i.e. Indian Partnership Act, otherwise, instituted by a partners or on behalf of a person suing as partner in a firm or any other person who is claimed to have been partner in the firm.

36. Thus subsection 1 of Section 69 of the Partnership Act is not attracted. Sub Section 2 of Section 69 also states that no suit would be maintainable to enforce the right arising from a contract by a firm or in its behalf against any third party unless the firm is registered and persons suing have been shown in the register of firm as partners in the firm. Sub Section 3 also bars proceedings to enforce a right arising from such a contract.

37. In the present case no enforcement of right arising out of any contract under Partnership Act is sought to be enforced inasmuch the claim for recovery of money as set up in the plaint is not shown by way of any partnership agreement or agreement entered with a partnership firm as a third party. It was a pure contract where demand for medicine was raised was accepted and so supply was made. Such contract cannot be claimed to be arising out of any partnership agreement or contract. Thus, suit by a partnership firm may be an unregistered firm, is not hit by Section 69 of Partnership Act. It is hit only when contract emanates from partnership agreement and enforcement of any right arising out of such agreement is involved in the suit.

38. In the case of Jagdish Chandra Gupta (supra) while dealing with scope of Section 69 vide paragraph 5 and 6 the Court has held thus:

"(5) The first question to decide is whether the present proceeding is one to enforce a right arising from the contract of the parties. The proceeding under the eighth section of the Arbitration Act has its genesis in the arbitration clause, because without an agreement to refer the matter to arbitration that section cannot possibly be invoked. Since the arbitration clause is a part of the agreement constituting the partnership it is obvious that the proceeding which is before the court is to enforce a right which arises from a contract. Whether we view the contract between the parties as a whole or view only the clause about arbitration, it is impossible to think that the right to proceed to arbitration is not one of the rights which are founded on the agreement of the parties. The words of S. 69 93), "a right arising from a contract" are in either sense sufficient to cover the present matter.

(6) It remains, however, to consider whether by reason of the fact that the words "other proceeding" stand opposed to the words "a claim of set-off" any limitation in their meaning was contemplated. It is on this aspect of the case that the learned Judges have seriously differed. When in a statute particular classes are mentioned by name and then are followed by general words, the general words are sometimes construed ejusdem generis, i.e. limited to the same category or genus comprehended by the particular words but it is not necessary that this rule must always apply. The nature of the special words and the general words must be considered before the rule is applied. In Allen v. Emerson (1994) 1 KB 362. Asquith J. gave interesting examples of particular words followed by general words where the Principle of ejusdem generis might or might not apply. We think that the following illustration will clear any difficulty. In the expression "books, pamphlets, newspapers and other documents" private letters may not be held included, if 'other documents' be interpreted ejusdem generis with what goes before. But in a provision which reads "newspapers or other document likely to convey secrets to the enemy", the, words 'other document' would include document of any kind and would not take their colour from 'newspapers'. It follows, therefore, that interpretation ejusdem generis or noscitur a sociis need not always be made when words showing particular classes are followed by general words. Before the general words can be so interpreted there must be a genus constituted or a category disclosed with reference to which the general words can and are intended to be restricted. Here the expression "claim of set-off" does not disclose a category or a genus. Set-offs are of two kinds-- legal and equitable-and both are already comprehended and it is difficult to think of any right "arising from a contract" which is of the same nature as a claim of set-off and can be raised by a defendant in a suit. Mr. B. C. Misra, whom we invited to give us examples, admitted frankly that it was impossible for him to think of any proceeding of the nature of a claim of set off other than a claim of set-off which could be raised in a suit such as is described in the second sub-section. In respect of the first sub-secton he could give only two examples. They are (i) a claim by a pledger of goods with an unregistered firm whose goods are attached and who has to make an objection under O 21 R 58 of the Code of Civil Procedure and (ii) proving a debt before a liquidator. The latter is not raised as a defence and cannot belong to the same genus as a "claim of set-off". The former can be made to fit but by a stretch of some considerable imagination. It is difficult for us to accept that the Legislature was thinking of such far-fetched things when it spoke of "other proceeding" ejusdem generis with a claim of set-off."

39. This above judgment has come to be further considered by the Supreme Court in the case of Krishna Motor Service *(supra) whereby Supreme Court vide paragraph 8 has held thus:

"In Jagdish Chandra Gupta's case (supra), the facts were that right to dissolution of the partnership firm was itself in dispute and the suit was filed for that purpose. Therefore, when the application under Section 8 (1) of the Act was filed, this Court had held that since the partnership firm was not registered as enjoined under sub- section (1) of Section 69, the main part of sub-section (3) excluded the application for enforcement of the right to reference in other proceedings including enforcement under Section 8 of the Act. In Prem Lata's case (supra), the facts were that by a deed of partnership was executed but the firm was not registered under Section 65 of the partnership Act, On the demise of one of the partners, the legal representatives called upon other partners to render accounts of the dissolved firm. It is settled law that on the demise of one of the members of the firm, the partnership stands dissolved. Therefore, the claim had arisen under the exception engrafted under Section 69(3). In the backdrop of those facts and considering the effect of the provisions in the light of the ration in Jagdish Chandra Gupta's case, another Bench of this Court to which one of us (K.Ramaswamy, J.) was a member had held in Smt Prem Lata's case that Section 20 stands attracted to make an application for reference. Later, ratio clearly applies to the facts in this case."

40. Thus it comes out absolutely clear that suit in the present case was not hit by Section 69 of Indian Partnership Act, 1932. So far as the argument regarding merit of the claim raised in the suit as decreed by the courts below is concerned, I do not find any substantial issue to be involved in the concurrent findings of fact that have come to be returned by the courts below, and which, in my considered view, require any further interference in exercise of power under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

41. This petition accordingly fails and is dismissed with no order as to cost.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saumitra Dayal Singh, J.)

1. Heard Shri Pramod Kumar Sinha, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Sanjay Goswami, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel along with Shri Dinesh Kumar Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel, for the revenue.

2. Present writ petition has been filed to challenge the order dated 27.7.2017 passed by Commissioner, Moradabad Division, Moradabad, in Revision No.C 20171300423 filed by the petitioner, under Section 56(1) of the Indian Stamp Act 1899 (hereinafter referred to as the Act), against the order of the Collector, Rampur, dated 30.12.2016 passed in proceedings under Section 33/47 of the Act (State vs. Harbhajan Singh). The Revision Authority has dismissed the aforesaid Revision and confirmed the deficiency of stamp duty determined together with interest and, penalty imposed by the Collector, Rampur, vide his order dated 30.12.2016. Thus, deficiency of stamp duty Rs. 12,36,800/- and interest liability @ 1.5% per month together with registration fee Rs. 100/- and penalty Rs. 12,36,700/- has been confirmed, on a photocopy of the document dated 12.11.2013, described as agreement to sell.

3. The undisputed facts of the case are, the aforesaid proceedings under Section 33/47 of the Act arose against the petitioner on a complaint received by the Collector, Rampur, from one Khalid Hussain Khan and Sohail Khan, dated 28.5.2014. Therein, it was alleged, the complainants had executed an agreement to sell dated 12.11.2013 in favour of the present petitioner, for Arazi Nos. 352, 354, admeasuring 2.1450 Hectare and 0.575 Hectare respectively, for a sum of Rs. 6,17,40,000/-.

4. Acting on that complaint and a photocopy of the document dated 12.11.2013, a report dated 05.7.2014 was submitted by the Assistant Collector Stamp. On that, the Collector, Rampur issued notice (to the petitioner), dated 15.5.2015 requiring him to produce the original of the document/instrument dated 12.11.2013 before the said authority, on or before 3.6.2015. The petitioner did not produce the document but raised written objection dated 18.2.2015. Copy of the same is annexed as Annexure no.1 to the writ petition.

5. By means of that objection, the petitioner objected - the proceedings initiated by the Collector, Rampur, were without jurisdiction. He relied on the provisions of Section 33(1) of the Act and stated that the photocopy of the alleged agreement to sell dated 12.11.2013, had not been received in evidence by any Court or authority. Also, the same had not been produced and it had not come into possession of any government authority, in performance of its function.

6. By means of paragraph 6 of those objections, the petitioner further objected, the alleged photocopy of the document dated 12.11.2013 bore photocopies of signatures of only two persons out of five who may have executed/signed the original deed, if any. Therefore, there was neither any agreement to sell nor any agreement had been executed. In paragraph 6 of the objection, the petitioner further disputed that the agreement to sell had not been executed nor proven in evidence nor presented for registration. Photocopy of such incomplete document was not an instrument. Therefore, the proceedings be dropped.

7. At the same time, in paragraph 8 of the objections, the petitioner further stated, he was a victim of fraud. He had lodged a FIR against the complainants who had misled the government authorities to issue the impugned notice to the petitioner, based on a photocopy of the document allegedly dated 12.11.2013. In that, the petitioner further submitted that the complainants had been paid Rs. 30,00,000/- by the petitioner, though no transfer of property took place.

8. The Collector, Rampur, rejected the objections and determined deficiency of stamp duty (together with interest), registration fee and imposed penalty, as noted above. That order has been confirmed in Revision.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner would submit, undisputedly, no document had been filed by any party in any judicial proceedings. Such document had also not come to the hands of any competent authority in the performance of his functions. Therefore, under Section 33(1) of the Act, no jurisdiction ever arose to the Collector, Rampur, to determine deficiency of stamp duty against the petitioner. The proceedings were wholly without jurisdiction and non est.

10. He has placed reliance on a decision of the three-Judge bench decision of the Supreme Court in Hariom Agrawal vs. Prakash Chandra Malviya, (2007) 8 SCC 514. Reliance has also been placed on a single-Judge decision of this Court in Som Dutt Builders Limited vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, AIR (2005) All 234 and, another decision of a learned single-Judge of this Court in Smt. Prabha Juglani vs State of U.P. Thru' Secy. (Stamps & Registration) & Ors., (2019) 2 ADJ 860. Last, reliance has been placed on another decision of the Supreme Court in Jupudi Kesava Rao vs Pulavarthi Venkata Subbarao, AIR 1971 SC 1070.

11. Second, it has been submitted, photocopy of a document could never be described as an instrument under Section 2(d) of the Act. For any document to qualify as an instrument, it must necessarily be the original - that creates any right or liability, or both. A photocopy of a document can never create or confer any right or liability and it may never be read as evidence in any judicial proceeding, to assert a right or to create a liability. The entire proceedings were a nullity.

12. Third, he has also placed reliance on Uttar Pradesh (Photostat Pratiyon Ke Saath Dastavejon Ka Registrikaran) Niyamavali, 1989 (hereinafter referred to as the Rules) to submit, the copies 'of any instrument' contemplated under Section 33(4) of the Act would be copies tendered with the original document for the purpose of obtaining registration and not any other photocopy. In that regard, he would further submit, unless interpreted in that manner, every person may be subjected to duty liability though the document may not be in existence.

13. Last, it has been submitted, no demand of penalty may have been raised in absence of any finding recorded by the Collector, Rampur, of any attempt to avoid payment of stamp duty.

14. The above submissions have been met by the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel by placing heavy reliance on the provisions of Section 33(4) and (5) of the Act. He would submit, the provisions of Section 33(1) of the Act are wholly distinct and different from Section 33(4) of the Act. Both operate in different fact situations. While one may lead to the impounding of a document and then impost of stamp duty, the second may or may not lead to impounding of the document but it may necessarily lead to recovery of stamp duty. As to the precedent relied by learned counsel for the petitioner, the same are stated to be distinguishable on facts. In Hariom Agrawal Vs Prakash Chand Malviya (supra), the issue involved was formulated by the Supreme Court in paragraph no.6 of the report. It reads as below:

"Whether the court can impound the photocopy of the instrument (document) of improper description exercising its power under the provisions of the Stamp Act, 1899?"

15. Therefore, the binding ratio of that decision emerges as to whether a photocopy of an instrument could be impounded. That question was answered in the negative. However, with reference to the duty chargeability on such photocopy of a document, the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel would refer to paragraph nos.14 and 15 of the report to submit, in the said case as well, the Supreme Court recognized the power of the State authorities to levy stamp duty based on a photocopy of a document/instrument. Parallel provision exists in the shape of Section 33(4) and (5) of the Act, as applicable in the State of U.P.

16. As to the decision of this Court in Som Dutt Builders (supra), though specific question was framed as to whether the stamp authorities had jurisdiction to initiate proceedings on a photocopy of a document and that question was answered against the revenue, however, the said decision is based on a reading of Section 33(1) of the Act only. No plea was raised by the State, in that case, relying on the provision of Section 33(4) and (5) of the Act. That question was not examined or dealt with by the Court. Thus, the binding ratio emerging from the said decision is only to the effect that no deficiency of stamp duty may be determined beyond the period of limitation prescribed.

17. Then, to the other decision of another learned Single Judge of this Court in Smt. Prabha Juglani (supra), it has been submitted, the provisions of Sections 33(4) and (5) of the Act were not raised and not considered in the said decision.

18. Insofar as the decision of the Supreme Court in Jupudi Kesava Rao (supra) is concerned, it has been submitted, in that case again, the issue dealt with and decided was whether a photo-copy of a document could be read as secondary evidence. The said issue was answered by the Supreme Court in the negative. While dealing with that issue, it was opined- Section 35 of the Stamp Act deals with only original instruments and not their copies as may allow such copies to be read as secondary evidence.

19. As to the reliance on the Rules, it has been submitted that they have no application to proceedings under the Act. Further, the transaction being concealed, penalty was validly imposed, upon its detection.

20. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, in the first place, reference may be made on the provision of Section 33 of the Act. It reads as below:

"33. Examination and impounding of instruments.-- (1) Every person having by law or consent of parties, authority to receive evidence, and every person in charge of a public office, except an officer of police, before whom any instrument, chargeable, in his opinion, with duty, is produced or comes in the performance of his functions, shall, if it appears to him that such instrument is not duly stamped, impound the same.

(2) For that purpose every such person shall examine every instrument so chargeable and so produced or coming before him, in order to ascertain whether it is stamped with a stamp of the value and description required by the law in force in [India] when such instrument was executed or first executed: Provided that-

(a) nothing herein contained shall be deemed to require any Magistrate or Judge of a Criminal Court to examine or impound, if he does not think fit so to do, any instrument coming before him in the course of any proceeding other than a proceeding under Chapter XII or Chapter XXXVI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (5 of 1898);

(b) in the case of a Judge of a High Court, the duty of examining and impounding any instrument under this section may be delegated to such officer as the Court appoints in this behalf.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the State Government may in cases of doubt, determine what offices shall be deemed to be public offices and who shall be deemed to be persons in charge of public offices.

(4) Where deficiency in stamp duty paid is noticed from the copy of any instrument, the Collector may suo motu or on a reference from any Court or from the Commissioner of Stamps or an Additional Commissioner of Stamps or a Deputy Commissioner of Stamps or an Assistant Commissioner of Stamps or any officer authorised by the Board of Revenue in that behalf, call for the original instrument for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the adequacy of the duty paid thereon, and the instrument so produced before the Collector shall be deemed to have been produced or come before him in the performance of his functions.

(5) In case the instrument is de produced with in the period specified by the Collector, he may require payment of deficit stamp duty, if any, together with penalty under section 40 on the copy of the instrument: Provided that no action under sub-section (4) or sub-section (5) shall be taken after a period of four years from the date of execution of the instrument:

[Provided that no action under sub-section (4) or sub-section (5) shall be taken after a period of four years from the date of execution of the instrument.

[Provided further that with the prior permission of the State Government an action under sub-section (4) or sub-section (5) may be taken after a period of four years but before a period of eight years from the date of execution of the instrument.]"

21. Plainly, the provisions of Section 33(1) of the Act and Section 33(4) of the Act contemplate different fact situations. Also, they provide for different consequences and procedure regarding determination of deficient stamp duty and impounding of a document. Under Section 33(1) of the Act the proceedings for determination of deficient stamp duty may arise only upon the document being received in evidence by a person in charge of public office (except police officer), or which comes before such authority in performance of its functions, if it appears (to such authority), that the instrument is not duly stamped. In that event, he may impound the document. Only after such document is thus impounded, an authenticated copy of the same may be sent to the Collector for levy of stamp duty and penalty. Thus, unless the procedure to impound a document is undertaken first and till such document is produced and impounded, no proceeding may arise to determine deficiency of stamp duty or penalty etc.

22. On the other hand, under Section 33(4) of the Act, if it comes to the notice of the Collector from a copy of instrument either suo motu or on a reference from any Court or Commissioner of Stamp or Additional Commissioner of Stamp or Deputy Commissioner of Stamp or Assistant Commissioner of Stamp or any officer authorized by the Board on that behalf that the original of such copy is not adequately duty paid, the Collector may require the concerned to produce the original document before him. If the document is produced, the procedure of Section 33(1) would apply.

23. However, if the document is not produced, then by virtue of sub-section (5) of Section 33 of the Act, a further power is vested to the Collector to proceed to recover deficiency of stamp duty together with penalty on the copy of the instrument itself.

24. Second, under section 33(1) of the Act, the original document must first be impounded where after the deficiency of stamp duty may be determined on such document upon its authenticated copy, under Section 38 of the Act. However, no such action is required when the Collector proceeds under Section 33(4) read with Section 34(5) of the Act.

25. In that event, the pre-condition for recovery of deficient stamp duty and penalty is the notice requiring the person concerned to produce the original document. If the person produces the original document, the proceedings would arise on the authenticated copy of the original document. However, by virtue of Section 33(5) of the Act, the Collector is empowered to act on the photocopy of the instrument in his possession, in the event, the concerned refuses or fails to produce the original document.

26. The only other difference that exists in the powers vested under Section 33(1) of the Act and 33(4) of the Act is- while power under Section 33(4) of the Act, may be exercised both, upon reference or suo motu, by the Collector, upon coming into possession of a photocopy of an instrument, in contrast, under Section 33(1) of the Act, the Collector may act only upon the authenticated copy of the document impounded being sent to him by the competent authority (after impounding the original), and not in any other manner.

27. In Girjesh Kumar Srivastava & Anr. vs. State of U.P. & Ors., AIR (1998) All 237, a Special Bench of three Judges of this Court made the following discussion while dealing with cases of limitation and if penalty could be imposed in proceedings under Section 47-A of the Act, upon satisfaction of value of property being not truly set-forth:

"Section 40 gives power of the Collector-regarding the instrument which have been impounded. It provides that if he is of the opinion that the instrument is duly stamped or is not chargeable with duty he shall certify the same by making an appropriate endorsement to that effect. However if he is of the opinion that such instrument is chargeable with duty and is not duly stamped, he shall require the payment of proper duty or the amount required to make up the same, together with a penalty of five rupees or if he thinks fit a amount not exceeding ten times of the amount of proper duty or of the deficient portion thereof, Sub-sections (4) and (5) of Section 33 lay down that if deficiency in stamp duty is noticed from the copy of any instrument, the Collector may suo motu or on a reference from any Court or from any one of the authorities mentioned in sub-section, call for the original instrument for the purposes of satisfying himself as to the adequacy of the duty paid thereon and if the instrument is not produced he may require payment of deficit stamp duty together with penalty under Section 40 on the copy of instrument. The sections referred to above would show that the Legislature has made a specific provision for payment of penalty in addition to deficiency in stamp duty wherever such a deficiency is noticed from the instrument itself or a copy thereof. "

(emphasis supplied)

28. Then, a division bench of this Court in Kanhaiya Prasad vs. Assistant Collector, First Class/S.D.M. Banda & Anr., (1999) 90 RD 107 considered the Special Bench decision in Girjesh Kumar Srivastava (supra) and observed as below:

"Sub-sections (4) and (5) of Section 33 lay down that if deficiency in stamp duty is noticed from the copy of any instrument, the Collector may suo motu or on a reference from Court or from any one of the authorities mentioned in sub-section, call for the original instrument for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the adequacy of the duty paid thereon and if the instrument is not produced, he may require payment of deficit stamp duty together with penalty under Section 40 on the copy of the instrument. The sections referred to above would show that the Legislature has made a specific provision for payment of penalty in addition to deficiency in stamp duty where such a deficiency is noticed from the instrument itself or a copy thereof. Apparently the Assistant I.G. Registration informed the facts to the Collector which he came to know during his inspection of municipal records and thereafter the Collector issued notice to the petitioner."

29. In Tata Teleservices Limited vs. State of Uttar Pradesh & Ors., (2008) 6 All LJ 748, while dealing with the question of validity of Section 33(4) & (5) of the Act, a learned Single Judge of this Court made the following discussion as to the scope of power Section 33(4) and 33(5) of the Act:

"Sub-sections(4) and(5) of Section 33 of the Stamp Act introduced by the U.P. Amendment do not contain any such power as was contained in Section 73 of the Andhra Pradesh Act. The machinery of Sub-section and (5) of Section 33 is triggered of when the deficiency in stamp duty is noticed from a copy of the instrument. There is nothing in these provisions to indicate that the Collector can compel the production of the copy or of the original instrument. The situation in which the Collector can call for the production of the original instrument is specifically provided for under sub-section

(4). It is when the deficiency in stamp duty paid is noticed from the copy of an instrument. The power thus can be exercised only when the deficiency of stamp duty in the original instrument is noticed from its copy. The purpose for which the instrument is being called for has also been specifically provided for in Subsection (4) as satisfaction of the Collector as to the adequacy of the duty paid. It is evident from Sub-section (5) that the Collector has to provide time to the party concerned to produce the instrument and it is only on the non-production of the original instrument within the time granted by the Collector that he can take the copy of the instrument as the basis for determining the stamp duty and requiring its payment. The two provisos of Subsection also provide a time limit within which the action under Section 33(4) and 33(5) can be taken. Sub-sections (4) and (5) of Section 33 do not contain any such drastic power empowering the Collector to seize or search any document. The reasons given by the Apex Court for holding the amended Section 73 as applicable to Andhra Pradesh as ultra vires the Constitution do not apply to the U.P. Amendment contained in Sub-section (4) and (5) of Section 33. In District Registrar v. Canara Bank: ((2005) 1 SCC 496 : AIR 2005 SC 186) the Apex Court had found that the drasticity and stringency of the power under Section 73-A of the Andhra Amendment was not proportional to the purpose to be achieved. The Apex Court has specifically noticed this aspect in paragraphs 43, 55 and 58 of the Reports quoted above. The Apex Court also found that the production of documents envisaged in Sections 31 and 33 of the Indian Stamp Act is voluntary and unless the party concerned had itself produced the document in the case of Section 31 for obtaining opinion of the Collector as to chargeability of the instrument to duty and its quantum and in the case of Section 33 for the purpose of being tendered in evidence or its coming in the hands of the authority in the course of performance of his duty the Collector could not impose any duty by compelling the production of the document. The impact of the Andhra Amendment was noticed in contrast to these provisions and it was found that the power of inspection contained therein was drastic and such drasticity was not proportional to the purpose which it could be expected to achieve. Section 33 however has been amended in U.P. and it has been provided that if as a consequence of a direction by the Collector to produce the original instrument the instrument is so produced, the same shall be deemed to have come in the hands of the Collector in the performance of his duty. The U.P. Amendment introducing Sub-sections(4) and (5) of Section 33 does not give any power to compel the production of the copy of the instrument or the original instrument. Sub-sections(4) and (5) of Section 33 do not invade the right to privacy. Section 73 of the Indian Stamp Act has also been amended and the new provisions of Section 73-A introduced in the State of U.P. do not suffer from the vice of drasticity from which the Andhra Pradesh Amendment suffered. Indeed the petitioner has not challenged the validity of Section 73-A substituted in the State of U.P. The U.P. Amendment has provided safeguards against the arbitrary exercise of the powers of search and seizure and such power can be exercised only in a situation where the Collector has reason to believe that any instrument chargeable with duty has not been charged at all or has been incorrectly charged. It is, however, not necessary to examine the validity of Section 73-A as the same has not been challenged.

I have already held that sub-sections (4) and (5) of Section 33 relate to the recovery of deficient stamp duty upon the original instrument and that stamp duty is merely paid upon the copy for the reason that the original not being available the copy is made the basis for calculation of duty. The cases cited above therefore have no application. I have already held that the provisions of sub-sections (4) and (5) of Section 33 are supplementary to the other provisions. There does not appear to be any merit in the petitioner's contention that Sections 33(4) and (5) are unworkable for the reason that these provisions do not determine the person who would be liable to pay stamp duty on the copy. The determination of person who is liable to pay duty is governed by Section 29 of the Act. The said provision would be applicable even where the provisions of Sections (4) and (5) of Section 33 are invoked because the duty which is being sought to be recovered under these provisions is the deficient duty on the original instrument."

(emphasis supplied)

30. Last, in Aegis BPO Service Ltd. vs. State of U.P. & Ors., (2010) 9 ADJ 237, another learned single-Judge of this Court made the following pertinent discussion as to the powers under Section 33(4) and 33(5) of the Act:

"The aforesaid provisions enable the Collector on noticing deficiency in stamp duty from the copy of the instrument to take suo-motu action or on a reference from any Court or from Commissioner, Additional Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner or any other officer authorized by the Board of Revenue and to call for the original instrument for the purposes of satisfying himself as to the adequacy of the stamp duty paid and in case the instrument is not produced to proceed to determine the deficiency together with penalty on the copy of the instrument.

In the case at hand, there is no dispute that the copy of the instrument was on record of the U.P. Trade Tax Department. It was examined by the Assistant Commissioner (Stamps) in exercise of powers under Section 73 of the Act and thereupon on being satisfied that proper stamp duty has not been paid on it, he had made a reference to the Collector under Section 33(4) whereupon Collector had called upon the petitioner to submit the original instrument. The petitioner having failed to produce the original, the Collector proceeded to determine the deficiency on the basis of the copy of the instrument as provided under Section 33(5) of the Act. In such a situation, no error of jurisdiction has been committed by the Collector in passing the impugned order."

31. Looked in that light, the decisions cited by learned counsel for the petitioner are of no help. In Hariom Agrawal (supra), plainly, the issue was entirely different and confined to the power of the stamp authorities to impound a photocopy of an instrument. To the extent, the only submission that may find acceptance here is, the stamp authorities have erred in impounding the photocopy of the instrument, as no such power exists under the Act. Other than that, the said decision is of no help to the petitioner. Rather, the reasoning contained in paragraph nos.18 and 19 of the said report runs contrary to the case being set up by the petitioner. Relevant to our discussion, paragraph nos.18 and 19 of the said report are extracted below:

"18. Section 48-B is a provision applicable in the State of Madhya Pradesh which was inserted by the Stamp (M.P.

Amendment) Act, 1990 (24 of 1990) in Chapter IV under heading "Instrument not duly stamped" of the Act. This section reads as under:

"48-B. Original instrument to be produced before the Collector in case of deficiency.--Where the deficiency of stamp duty is noticed from a copy of any instrument, the Collector may, by order, require the production of original instrument from a person in possession or in custody of the original instrument for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the adequacy of amount of duty paid thereon. If the original instrument is not produced before him within the period specified in the order, it shall be presumed that the original document is not duly stamped and the Collector may proceed in the manner provided in this Chapter:

Provided that no action under this section shall be taken after a period of five years from the date of execution of such instrument."

19. On a plain reading of Section 48-B, we do not find that the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant that by virtue of this provision the Collector has been authorised to impound even copy of the instrument, is correct. Under this section where the deficiency of stamp duty is noticed from the copy of any instrument, the Collector may call for the original document for inspection, and on failure to produce the original instrument could presume that proper stamp duty was not paid on the original instrument and, thus, recover the same from the person concerned. Section 48-B does not relate to the instrument i.e. the original document to be presented before any person who is authorised to receive the document in evidence to be impounded on inadequacy of stamp duty found. The section uses the phraseology "where the deficiency of stamp duty is noticed from a copy of any instrument". Therefore, when the deficiency of stamp duty from a copy of the instrument is noticed by the Collector, the Collector is authorised to act under this section. On deficiency of stamp duty being noticed from the copy of the instrument, the Collector would order production of original instrument from a person in possession or in custody of the original instrument. Production is required by the Collector for the purpose of satisfying himself whether adequate stamp duty had been paid on the original instrument or not. In the notice given to person in possession or in custody of original instrument, the Collector shall provide for time within which the original document is required to be produced before him. If, in spite of the notice, the original is not produced before the Collector, the Collector would draw a presumption that original document is not duly stamped and thereafter may proceed in the manner provided in Chapter IV. By virtue of the proviso, the step for recovery of adequate stamp duty on the original instrument on insufficiency of the stamp duty paid being noticed from the copy of the instrument, can only be taken within five years from the date of execution of such instrument. The words "the Collector may proceed in the manner provided in this Chapter" have reference to Section 48 of the Act. Under this section, all duties, penalties and other sums required to be paid under Chapter IV, which includes stamp duty, would be recovered by the Collector by distress and sale of the movable property of the person who has been called upon to pay the adequate stamp duty or he can implement the method of recovery of arrears of land revenue for the dues of stamp duty. By virtue of proviso to Section 48-B, the Collector's power to adjudicate upon the adequacy of stamp duty on the original instrument on the basis of copy of the instrument is restricted to the period of five years from the date of execution of the original instrument. This section only authorises the Collector to recover the adequate stamp duty which has been avoided at the time of execution of the original instrument. This section does not authorise the Collector to impound the copy of the instrument."

32. Insofar as two decisions, both of single-Judge bench strength - in the case of Som Dutt Builders (supra) and Smt. Prabha Juglani (supra) are concerned, their ratio are distinguishable. The issue involved was different. In Som Dutt Builders (supra), the issue involved dealt with by a learned single- Judge bench of this Court were - whether proceeding under Section 33(1) of the Act could arise without impounding the original document and whether such proceeding initiated (in that case) were time barred. Those issues do not arise in this case.

33. The decision in the case of Smt. Prabha Juglani (supra) arose upon different facts. In that case, the petitioner was not visited with any prior notice under Section 33(4) of the Act, requiring her to produce the original of any particular document. Later, the stamp duty liability was imposed on the photocopy of a document purportedly executed by her. The later discussion in that judgement arises without reference to either Girjesh Kumar Srivastava (supra) or Tata Teleservices Limited (supra) or Aegis BPO Service Ltd. (supra) or Som Dutt Builders (supra). Therefore, that decision would remain confined to the facts of that case.

34. Insofar as the Jupudi Kesava Rao (supra) is concerned, the said decision was with respect to admissibility of photocopy of an instrument as secondary evidence in a suit proceeding. Referring to provisions of Section 35 and 36 of the Act, the Supreme Court opined in the negative. That ratio is plainly inapplicable to the present case.

35. In face of the law that appears clearly laid down by the Supreme Court, Special Bench, Division Bench and as applied by another learned single-Judge bench, in Aegis BPO Service Ltd. (supra), I find myself bound to apply the same. No reference to a larger Bench is required as it is the law laid down by the Supreme Court and larger bench strength of this Court that are binding and not any inconsistent decision by a bench of lesser bench strength, of this Court.

36. As to the submission of learned counsel for the petitioner relying on the Rules, the same cannot be accepted. Undisputedly, the Rules have been framed under Section 69 of the Registration Act, 1908 and not under the Act. The Act is a complete code in itself to provide for levies, assessment and recoveries of stamp duty on various instruments. It choses to use the word 'copy' under Section 33(4) of the Act specifically for the purpose of recovery of deficient stamp duty if the original is not produced in compliance of notice issued under Section 33(4) of the Act.

37. To accept the contention of learned counsel for the petitioner by either relying on the Rules or the situations contemplated under Section 6A of the Act, to confine the recovery of stamp duty to cases pertaining to true copies of the original document submitted for the purpose of registration etc. only, would be to unreasonably restrict the area of operation of Section 33(4) read with Section 33(5) of the Act. The recovery under those provisions arises upon adverse inference drawn due to non-production of the original. The Act allows the taxing authority to assume the existence of non-duty paid, original document (in face of refusal or failure on part of the assessee/person-chargeable-to-duty to produce original of such document) and realise the full duty and penalty imposable on the original instrument had it been produced. That being the plain import of deeming fiction of law, created solely for the purpose of recovering the deficient stamp duty and penalty, there is no warrant to curb or ignore it.

38. In the present case, the petitioner confined his objection (before the stamp authorities) to the provisions of Section 33(1) of the Act. However, on plain perusal, the proceedings arose under Section 33(4) read with Section 33(5) of the Act. Mere wrong section description may never be enough to annul the recovery. It is not a jurisdictional error. The procedure prescribed under the enabling/correct law is not shown to have been violated. The order of the Collector clearly recites - upon receipt of a report dated 5.7.2014 submitted by the Assistant Collector Stamp, a show cause notice was issued to the petitioner on 15.5.2015 to produce the original of the photocopy of the agreement dated 12.11.2013, by 03.6.2015. Undisputedly, the petitioner did not produce the same.

39. Therefore, there is no error in assumption of jurisdiction under Section 33(5) read with Section 40 of the Act. The petitioner was given an opportunity to reply to the show cause notice. That he did. However, in that reply, he confined his defence to the provisions of Section 33(1) of the Act. Insofar as the proceedings are not traceable to the provisions of Section 33(1) of the Act, the objection raised by the petitioner, to that extent, was of no avail.

40. To the other challenge, it is seen, the photocopy of the instrument, copy of which has been annexed to the affidavit of the State filed on 29.11.2018 refers to a transaction in the nature of an agreement to sell. It bears photocopy of the signatures of the persons described as vendors and vendee/petitioner. Also, photocopies of signatures of witnesses appear to exist on the same. In face of such facts, the defence set up by the petitioner making a bald denial of its execution, is unacceptable. That read together with the contents of paragraph-8 of the reply furnished by the petitioner, wherein he admitted having paid Rs. 30 Lacs to the complainant, to execute the sale with respect to the same property and the further allegation of FIR lodged by the petitioner, was enough to repel the objection as to non-execution of the original. Thus, the presumption created by the deeming fiction created by section 33(4) and 33(5) of the Act was not rebutted by the petitioner.

41. The fact that no such sale took place or the further fact that the entire consideration mentioned in the agreement to sell, may not have passed would not affect the charge and recovery of stamp duty that arose on the execution of the instrument and not on the validity/completeness of the transaction evidenced by such instrument.

42. Also, consequently, since the original was never produced, the recovery of penalty is also valid. However, as discussed above, there exists no power to impound a photocopy of any document. To that extent, the impugned orders are without jurisdiction.

43. Consequently the writ petition is party allowed. The levy of deficient stamp duty, penalty and impost of interest is sustained. The order impounding the photocopy of the agreement to sell dated dated 12.11.2013, is quashed. No order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Pankaj Bhatia, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shireesh Kumar, Advocate assisted by Sri Mustafa Khan, the counsel for the petitioner and Sri Shishir Pradhan, the counsel for the respondents.

2. The present petition has been filed quashing the orders dated 24.06.2004, 30.07.2004 and the recovery certificate dated 14.02.2002 (Annexure nos. 5, 6 and 7 to the writ petition) whereby the demands have been quantified against the petitioners and they have been directed to pay the said amount in exercise of the powers conferred under the Employees State Insurance Act, 1948 ('ESI Act' for short).

3. The facts, in brief, are that the petitioner is an apex cooperative society created under section 2(a-4) Clause 3 of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965. It is stated that the society is registered under the Societies Registration Act and more than 90% paid up share capital is owned by the State Government. It is also on record that the rules, regulations and guidelines issued by the State Government are normally applicable to the employees of the petitioner's society and they also enjoy certain benefits which are admissible to the employees of the State Government. It is also on record that the petitioner's society runs and execute various schemes of the State Government such as purchase of wheat, paddy, sugar, fertilizer, coal etc. as and when the same were executed to the petitioner's society. It is stated that the petitioner is also running P.C.F. Press and the persons employed in the accounts section are enjoying the benefits of the State Government from time to time which according to the petitioner are far superior to the benefits flowing to the persons came under the 'ESI' Act. It is stated that the respondent no.1 issued a notice dated 18.11.2003 calling upon the petitioner to show cause as to why the petitioner's society should not be made liable for payment of the contribution to the ESI Fund, to which the petitioners raised their objections. However, an order came to be passed on 24.06.2004 wherein a demand of Rs.33,846/- was raised against the petitioners allegedly towards the employer's contribution for the employees working in the account section of PCF press for the period January 1981 to September 1986 and from January 1988 to May 1989 (Annexure 5).

4. It is stated that once again on 30.07.2004 a demand of Rs.1,39,262/- towards the employer's contribution was raised in respect of the employees working in the accounts section of the PCF Press. The petitioners once again stated that they had submitted their reply to the show cause notice dated 18.11.2003, however, the grounds taken in the show cause notice were not considered while raising the demand dated 24.06.2004. It is on record that subsequent thereto, a recovery certificate seeking to recover a sum of Rs.1,81,409/- was issued against the petitioners and the opposite party no.4 was directed to debit the said amount from the accounts of the petitioners. The said orders are under challenge before this Court.

5. The counsel for the petitioners argues that the petitioners would not be covered under the 'ESI Act' as the petitioner is not notified under section 1(5) of the 'ESI' Act. He further argues that the petitioners cannot be termed as a 'factory' as defined under section 2(12) of the 'ESI Act' so as to include the petitioners under the ambit and scope of the 'ESI Act' by virtue of section 1(4) of the 'ESI Act'. He further argues that in any event the petitioners are giving the benefits to their employees which are far superior to the ones that are given to the employees by virtue of applicability of 'ESI Act'. In the light of the said arguments, the counsel for the petitioners argues that the orders impugned in the present writ petition are liable to be quashed. The petitioners has placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of M/s Srinivasa Rice Mill vs. Employees State Insurance Corporation; 2007 (1) SCC 705 as well as the judgment in the case of Bangalore Turf Club Ltd. vs. Regional Director, ESI Corporation; 2009 (15) SCC 33.

6. The counsel for the respondent Sri Shishir Pradhan, on the other hand, tries to justify the order by arguing that although no notification under section 1(5) of the Act has been issued. However, the petitioners' establishment would be covered under section 1(4) of the Act and by virtue of the said section 1(4) of the Act, all factories stand included within the ambit of the Act and thus no fault can be found with the orders passed against the petitioners and impugned in the present writ petition. He placed reliance on the judgment of the M.P. High Court in the case of Sindi Sehiti M.P. Transport Cooperative Society Ltd. Bhopal vs. Regional Director, ESI Corporation and others; 1997 M.P.L.S.R. 335.

7. In the light of the arguments raised, the point for determination that arises is whether the petitioners' establishment would be covered within the ambit of 'ESI Act' by virtue of the mandate of Section 1(4) of the ESI Act as the parties are not at issue that no notification has been issued under section 1(5) of the Act.

8. It is relevant to quote section 1(4) as well as section 2(12) of the 'ESI Act' which read as under :

Section 1(4) : - It shall apply, in the first instance, to all the factories including factories belonging to the government other than seasonal factories.

Provided that nothing contained in this sub-section shall apply to a factory or establishment belonging to or under the control of the Government whose employees are otherwise in receipt of benefits substantially similar or superior to the benefits provided under this Act.

Section 2(12) :- 'factory' means any premises including the precincts thereof whereon ten or more persons are employed or were employed on any day of the preceding twelve months, and in any part of which a manufacturing process is being carried on or is ordinarily so carried on, but does not include a mine subject to the operation of the Mines Act, 1952 (35 of 1952) or a railway running shed;

9. 'ESI' Act was enacted to provide certain benefits to the employees in case of sickness, maternity and employment injury and for certain other matters in relation thereto. The intent and purpose of the Act was to provide benefits to the sections of the society who work within the factories and any other establishments [if notified under section 1(5) of the Act]. Clearly the intent of the Act is to provide socio economic benefits to a class of the society covered under the Act

10. A plain reading of section 1(4) of the Act clearly provides that the Act at the first instance was made applicable to all factories including the factories belonging to the government but excluding the seasonal factories. Proviso of sub-section 4 excludes factory or establishment belonging to or under the control of the government whose employees are otherwise in respect of benefits substantially similar or superior to the benefits provided under this Act.

11. A plain reading of the said sub-section leaves no room for doubt that it is applicable to the factories at the first instance. The term 'factory' has been defined under section 2(12) to mean any premises where ten or more persons are employed and in any part of which, a manufacturing process is being carried on. The word 'manufacturing process' itself finds definition under section 2(14-AA) and incorporates the meaning assigned to the term 'manufacturing process' under the Factories Act.

12. It is important to note that the definition of the word 'manufacturing process' as defined under section 2(14-AA) was inserted under the ESI Act w.e.f. October 20, 1989 by virtue of ESI (Amendment) Act No.29 of 1989. Prior to the said amendment the meaning of 'manufacturing process' as specified under the Factories Act was not applicable to the 'ESI Act' and thus to that extent the amendment incorporated w.e.f. 20.10.1989 would apply prospectively and would not apply prior to the said amendment coming into force.

13. In the present case, the demand was raised for an amount of Rs.33,846/- for the employer's contribution for the employees working in the account section of PCF Press for the period January 1981 to September 1986 and from January 1988 to May 1989. Thus, the demand pertain to the period prior to 20.10.1989 when the definition of 'manufacturing process' under section 2(14-AA) was inserted under the ESI Act. In view of the amended Act No.29 of 1989 being prospective in nature, the definition of word 'manufacturing process' would not be the same as expansively assigned under the 'Factories Act' and would be governed by the normal defination of 'manufacturing process'. Word 'manufacturing process' has been expansively defined under the Factories Act even to include Printing Press activity as a manufacturing process where as in common parlance Printing Press cannot be termed as a 'manufacturing process'. In view of the same, the applicability of the provisions of 'ESI Act' on the petitioner would clearly not be covered by Section 1(4) of the 'ESI Act' for the period prior to 21.10.1989 and thus, the demand cannot be justified.

14. The judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Bangalore Turf Club Ltd. (supra) would not be applicable to the facts of the present case as in the said case the Supreme Court considered the scope of notification of establishments under section 1(5) of the 'ESI Act'.

15. The second judgment in the case of M/s Srinivasa Rice Mill (supra) relied upon by the petitioner laid down in para 18 and 31 as under :

Para-18. Before an Act is made applicable, in the event, a dispute is raised, the authorities exercising statutory power must determine the jurisdictional fact. Applicability of the Act would be a jurisdictional question. The Employer is entitled to raise such a question before the appropriate authority. Such a question can also be raised for the first time before a court exercising the power of judicial review although ordinarily the same should be raised before the concerned authority as a preliminary issue.

Para 31. We, therefore, are of the opinion that having regard to the facts and circumstances of this case the interest of justice would be subserved if Appellants are given an opportunity of hearing. Keeping in view the fact that Appellants now know the allegations made against them, no fresh notice need be served. Appellants may file their returns and also all other books of accounts before the authorities under the Act within six weeks from date. The authorities shall give an opportunity of hearing to them and determine the question as to whether a jurisdictional fact existed for application of the provisions of the Act in cases of the respective employers. In the event, it is found, upon perusal of all the documents whereupon the employers may rely upon and on the basis of such information as may be sought for or directed to be furnished by the authority to the employer and upon hearing them that the provisions of the Act apply, the authorities may proceed as against them as is permissible in law.

16. In the present case, no such exercise was ever carried out prior to imposing the recovery against the petitioner.

17. The third judgment in the case of Sindi Sehiti M.P. Transport Cooperative Society Ltd. Bhopal (supra) as cited by the counsel for the respondents would also not applied to the facts of the case inasmuch as there is no issue in between the parties that the petitioners' organization has not been notified under section 1(5) of the 'ESI Act'.

18. As the demand in the present case pertain to the period January 1981 to May 1989 and I have already held that the definition of manufacturing process as adopted w.e.f. 20.10.1989 would not be applicable for the period for which the demand has been raised, clearly the demand is unsustainable, as such the orders dated 24.06.2004, 30.07.2004 and 14.02.2002 contained as Annexures 5, 6 and 7 to the writ petition are set aside.

19. The writ petition stands allowed.

20. The amount deposited before this court shall be refunded to the petitioners on their moving an appropriate application.

2. Ram Gopal Vs St. of U.P. & ors. – (2009 Vol. 27 LCD 1335)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Sangeeta Chandra, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner.

2. This petition has been filed challenging the order dated 20.08.2003 passed by the Collector, Sitapur in Stamp Case No. 15 under Section 47A (3) of the Indian Stamp Act and also the order dated 09.05.2005 passed by the Additional Commissioner(Judicial), Lucknow Division, Lucknow in Revision No. 114 of 2002-03 under Section 56 of the Stamp Act imposing recovery on the basis of deficiency in stamp duty and penalty upon the petitioner.

3. It is the case of the petitioner that the petitioner purchased a plot with area 1380 Square Feet which had two rooms, one Verandah, one kitchen and bathroom constructed on it with covered area of 435 Square Feet situated in Mohalla- Civil Lines, District- Sitapur through registered sale deed on 11.07.2002. Stamp duty was paid as per the Circle Rate List issued by the Collector at the time of the execution of the sale deed to the tune of Rs. 43,200/- upon total valuation of Rs. 4,31,737/-. The petitioner specifically mentioned in the sale deed the area which was covered by construction and the area which was lying open as plot appurtenant to it. Subsequently, on the basis of a report dated 04.12.2002 submitted by the Sub-Registrar, Sitapur proceeding under Section 47 A of the Stamp Act was initiated, the Collector issued notice to the petitioner on 07.03.2003, the petitioner having come to know filed an application before the Collector for an spot inspection of the property in question as the earlier inspection had been carried out ex parte and the report clearly stated that no one was found and the house was found locked at the time of inspection. Such application remained pending. The petitioner was not residing in the house, she had bought as she was residing with her parents in Mohalla Rani Kothi, Buts Ganj, Sitapur.

4. After the report submitted by the Sub-Registrar dated 04.12.2002, another report was submitted by the Naib Tehsildar, Sitapur on 05.05.2003 which was also ex parte as the house was found locked even at that time and measurement of covered area could not be carried out either by the Sub-Registrar or by the Naib Tehsildar. Based on such ex parte reports the Collector passed the order dated 02.08.2003 determining deficiency of stamp duty at Rs. 6,850/- and also imposing maximum penalty which was four times of such deficiency amounting to Rs. 27,400 plus interest @ 18% per annum. The petitioner being aggrieved filed a revision under Section 56 wherein a specific ground was taken that the inspection was carried out ex parte and behind her back, however, the Additional Commissioner passed the order on 03.09.2003 directing the petitioner to deposit at least one third of the amount. The petitioner deposited Rs.11,897/- on 10.09.2003. On 05.11.2003, the Additional Commissioner passed an interim order staying rest of the recovery till disposal of the revision. The Revision was disposed of on 09.05.2005 by observing that at least two inspections were carried out of the property in question, one by the Sub-Registrar and other by the Naib Tehsildar. It was however not appreciated that both the inspections were ex parte and it was specifically mentioned in such report that house was found locked, therefore, no measurement of covered area could be done by the officer inspecting the property in question. The report was based on conjectures and surmises and it ought to have been rejected, however, the Additional Commissioner based his order rejected the Revision only on such report.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon Rule 7 (3)(C) of the U. P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997, wherein the Collector is supposed to inspect the property after due notice to the parties to the instrument and then determine the market value.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon paragraph 6 of his petition, wherein he has mentioned this fact that no inspection was carried out in the presence of the petitioner.

7. Learned Standing Counsel for the State Respondents on the basis of averments made in the counter affidavit in paragraph 8 has stated that two inspections were carried out one by the Sub-Registrar on 04.12.2002 and the other by the Naib Tehsildar on 05.05.2003, but house was found locked and from inspection of its from the outside it appeared to the officers that the house was fully covered which was not mentioned in the sale deed. The petitioner having been issued notice in the stamp case and having filed her application should have also submitted documentary evidence including photographs to show that the entire plot was not covered by construction to substantiate her claim. This was not done by the petitioner.

8. This Court has perused the orders impugned. Both orders are based on spot inspection having been carried by the Sub-Registrar and the Naib Tehsildar, but such inspections had found the house to be locked therefore no measurement of covered area could be done. Just by making an estimate from looking at the house from the outside both the Sub-Registrar and the Naib Tehsildar had guessed that the plot may have been fully covered by construction which was not mentioned in the sale deed, and therefore, deficiency in stamp as well as penalty was imposed upon the petitioner.

9. This Court in the case of Ram Khelawan @ Bachcha vs. State of U.P. 2005 (98) RD 511 has considered Section 47A of the Indian Stamp Act as well as the responsibility of the Collector as mentioned in the U. P. Stamp Rules, 1997. After considering Rule 4, 5 and 7 of the U.P. Stamp Rules, 1997, the Court observed that it was the responsibility of the Collector to issue notice to the affected party and he may admit oral and documentary evidence if produced by the party to the instrument, and after conducting inquiry which including on the spot inspection in the presence of the parties determine deficiency in stamp duty, if any. The Court observed on the basis of earlier judgements rendered by this Court that the entire basis of determination of market value for the purpose of stamp duty was an ex parte report of the Tehsildar. Ex parte inspection report may be relevant for initiating the proceedings under Section 47A of the Stamp Act, however, for deciding the case no reliance can be placed on such ex parte report. After initiation of the stamp case, inspection is to be made by the Collector or the Authority hearing the case after due notice to the parties to the instrument as provided under Rule 7 (3)(C) of the Rules, 1997. Moreover, in the said inspection report, if possible, a sketch map should also be included.

10. A Coordinate Bench of this Court in Ram Gopal vs. State of U.P. and Other 2009 (27) LCD 1335 has observed, while placing reliance upon Ram Khilawan (Supra), in paragraph 13 as follows:-

"13. The Uttar Pradesh Stamp Valuation of Property Rules, 1997 particularly Rule 7 provides the procedure on receipt of a reference or when suo motu action is proposed under Section 47-A of the Stamp Act. The Rule 7(2) (c) provides that the Collector may inspect the property after due notice to parties to the instrument. The complete reading of the aforesaid rule clearly indicates that while deciding the proceedings under Section 47-A of the Stamp Act the Collector or its authority are required to make an inspection after due notice to the parties to the instrument. The proceeding under Section 47-A of the Stamp Act shall not be decided merely placing reliance on the ex parte report of the Tehsildar or any authority for that purpose. In the present case the Tehsildar's report dated 03.05.2001 does not disclose as to whether any notice was given to the petitioner before inspection of the land in question by the Tehsildar. Rather it clearly shows that it was an ex parte report. Hence the order dated 26.07.2001 was passed in violation of Rule 7(2) (c) of the U.P. Stamp Valuation of Property Rule, 1997."

11. In view of the law settled by this Court, it is incumbent upon the Collector while conducting the inquiry on initiation of a stamp case under Section 47A, to inspect the property in question in the presence of the parties and to consider their representation, if any, and then pass appropriate, reasoned and speaking order.

12. In the case at hand, this Court has perused the orders impugned and finds that both the Collector and the Additional Commissioner had placed reliance upon ex parte reports, which ex parte reports also do not mention in detail anything about the property, they only said that the house was found locked and from looking at it from the outside, it seemed that it was fully constructed.

13. The orders impugned are set aside. If any amount has been deposited by the petitioner in pursuance of the orders impugned, the same shall be refunded to her within a period of four months from the date a copy of this order is produced before the opposite party no.3.

14. Accordingly, the petition stands allowed.

A. Civil Law - Contempt of Courts Act, 1971: Section 10/12 - Determination of the lis between the parties is necessary prior to initiation of proceedings for contempt under the Contempt of Courts Act. Any attempt in taking cognizance of contempt relying upon the judgment passed in some other case would amount to stifling the respondents from distinguishing the applicability of the judgment from the facts of the case. (Para 15)

Contempt Application Dismissed. (E-10)

List of Cases cited:-

1. Sudhir Vasudeva, Chairman & MD Vs M. George Ravishekaran & ors. Civil Appeal No. 1816 of 2014

2. Niyaj Mohammad Vs St.of Har.1994 (6) SCC 332

3. Priya Gupta Vs Ministry of Health & Family Welfare (2013) 11 SCC 40

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri Kaushlendra Tewari, learned counsel for applicant as well as Sri Anurag Kumar Singh and Sri Shashank Bhasin, learned counsel for respondents.

2. Learned counsel for applicant submits that by means of judgment dated 12.07.2021 passed in Writ Petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015, this Court had decided the controversy pertaining to the Lucknow University taking into consideration the various statutes and rules applicable therein and thereafter came to a conclusion that the Executive Council does not have any power of review of their earlier decisions and on the basis of the said pronouncement of law proceeded to allow the said writ petition and granted benefits to the petitioners therein directing them to be treated as being substantially appointed on the post of Assistant Professor/Lecturer.

3. Learned counsel for respondents have raised a preliminary objection with regard to maintainability of the present contempt petition stating that the applicant was neither a party to the writ petitions decided by this Court vide judgment dated 12.07.2021 passed in Writ Petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015 nor is he aggrieved or concerned or even remotely connected with the lis decided by this Court by the said judgment. Opposing the petition, it has been submitted that there is no averment or assertions by the applicant that the judgment dated 12.07.2021 passed in Writ Petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015 was ever brought to the knowledge of the Executive Council so as to allege willful disobedience of the said order.

4. It has been stated that the petitioner is a stranger to the said writ proceedings and hence he has no locus to maintain the present contempt alleging non-compliance/disobedience of the judgment dated 12.07.2021.

5. Learned counsel for applicant on the other hand has submitted that once a question of law has been settled by the writ court then the University is bound by the said pronouncements and submits that the Executive Council in their meeting dated 31.07.2021 had in fact reviewed its earlier decision dated 20.08.2007 which was impermissible as per the pronouncement of this Court in writ petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015 and hence has committed contempt of courts. He further submits that the judgment dated 12.07.2021 passed in Writ Petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015 was a judgment in rem and was applicable to all persons and even to the non-participants or petitioners in the said case and hence the respondents have committed contempt while reviewing their earlier decisions.

6. He further submits that there is no necessity of the applicant for approaching this Court in exercise of Article 226 of the Constitution of India to assail the order of the Executive Council dated 31.07.2021 which ex-facie amounts to contempt and hence proceeding under the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 would be maintainable.

7. I have heard learned counsel for parties and perused the judgment dated 12.07.2021 passed in Writ Petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015. A perusal of the said judgment discloses that the same was specifically with regard to the petitioners therein who had assailed the orders of Executive Council specifically on the ground that Executive council does not have any power of reviewing its order. The Court after considering the provisions of U.P. State Universities Act, 1973 as well as statues of the University came to a conclusion that the Executive Council does not have any powers to review its decision and hence proceeded to quash the orders impeached therein and specific directions were issued to the petitioners therein granting benefits of the relief sought for in the petition. Before quashing the order of the executive council, the court had delved to the factual matrix of the case before the recording of finding that the executive council had in fact reviewed its earlier order.

8. The perusal of the judgment dated 12.07.2021 passed in Writ Petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015 is very clear in terms and it is applicable to the persons who had invoked the writ jurisdiction of this Court. After reading entire judgment, it cannot be said that it was a judgment in rem considering that it was only the case of the petitioners which was considered in depth by the writ court while coming to the said conclusion. The applicant has urged that in the instant case ,subsequent decision taken by the Executive Council amounts to reviewing its earlier decisions which ex-facie amount to contempt.

9. The scope and ambit of the jurisdiction of this Court under the contempt of Court act can be culled from the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sudhir Vasudeva, Chairman & MD Vs. M. George Ravishekaran & others, delivered on 4th February, 2014 in Civil Appeal No. 1816 of 2014 the Supreme Court held as follows:

*"The power vested in the High Courts as well as this Court to punish for contempt is a special and rare power available both under the Constitution as well as the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971. It is a drastic power which, if misdirected, could even curb the liberty of the individual charged with commission of contempt. The very nature of the power casts a sacred duty in the Courts to exercise the same with the greatest of care and caution. This is also necessary as, more often than not, adjudication of a contempt plea involves a process of self determination of the sweep, meaning and effect of the order in respect of which disobedience is alleged. Courts must not, therefore, travel beyond the four corners of the order which is alleged to have been flouted or enter into questions that have not been dealt with or decided in the judgment or the order violation of which is alleged. Only such directions which are explicit in a judgment or order or are plainly self evident ought to be taken into account for the purpose of consideration as to whether there has been any disobedience or willful violation of the same. Decided issues cannot be reopened; nor the plea of equities can be considered. Courts must also ensure that while considering a contempt plea the power available to the Court in other corrective jurisdictions like review or appeal is not trenched upon. No order or direction supplemental to what has been already expressed should be issued by the Court while exercising jurisdiction in the domain of the contempt law; such an exercise is more appropriate in other jurisdictions vested in the Court, as noticed above. The above principles would appear to be the cumulative outcome of the precedents cited at the bar, namely, Jhareswar prasad Paul and Another Vs. Tarak nath Ganguly and Others, V.M.Manohar Prasad vs. N.

Ratnam Raju and Another, Bihar Finance Service House Construction Cooperative Society Ltd. Vs. Gautam Goswami and Others and Union of India and Others Vs. Subedar Devassy PV."

10. Before a Court punishes a contemner for non-compliance of a direction, the court must be satisfied that disobedience of the judgment, decree, direction or writ was willful or intentional. In Niyaj Mohammad Vs. State of Haryana, reported in 1994 (6) SCC 332, the Bench of three learned Judges held thus:

"Before a contemner is punished for non-compliance of the direction of a court, the court must not only be satisfied about the disobedience of any judgment, decree, direction or writ but should also be satisfied that such disobedience was willful and intentional. The civil court while executing a decree against the judgment debter is not concerned and bothered whether the disobedience to any judgment, or decree, was willful. Once a decree has been passed it is the duty of the court to execute the decree whatever may be consequence thereof. But while examining the grievance of the person who has invoked the jurisdiction of the court to initiate the proceeding for contempt for disobedience of its order, before any such contemner is held guilty and punished, the court has to record a finding that such disobedience was willful and intentional. If from the circumstances of a particular case, brought to the notice of the Court, the court is satisfied that although there has been a disobedience but such disobedience is the result of some compelling circumstances under which it was not possible for the contemner to comply with the order, the court may not punish the alleged contemner."

11. From the above discussion, this Court of the considered view that there is a clear distinction between a judgment laying down or settling any proposition of law which can be used as a precedent and a judgment which is passed inter parties which is binding between the parties to the dispute. In case we were accepted the contention of learned counsel for applicant and entertain contempt proceeding on the premise that the decision taken by the Executive council is in willful disobedience of the judgment of this Court then there would be flood of cases where any individual would be at liberty to approach this Court in exercise of its contempt jurisdiction alleging disobedience of some or the other order of this Court passed in relation to similarly situated persons in similar circumstances and facts.

12. The contempt jurisdiction is a discretionary remedy which can be invoked by a person who is obliged to demonstrate that there is willful disobedience of the order of this Court. The decision of the Executive Council if assailed before writ court, it would open for the applicant to place reliance on the law laid down by the Court where the Executive Council cannot be permitted to review its earlier order and in support of its submission it was open for him to rely on the precedent set by this Court in its judgment dated 12.07.2021 passed in Writ Petition No. 1432 (SB) of 2015 in support of his claim. Merely because the judgment has been pronounced inter parties qua one set of facts it cannot be said that subsequently if any other similar order is passed, it would amount to contempt of Courts Act. Needless to say that a precedent can be distinguished on facts and may loose its strength as a precedent if established that it was a consent order, obiter dicta per-incuriam or sub-silentio. In case an order is passed contrary to the proposition of law enunciated by a Court then a person can assail the said order placing reliance on the previous order of the Court and only once the writ court after examining the order impugned therein is satisfied the same suffers from infirmity as alleged by the applicant can the said order be quashed. Without an authoritative pronouncement by the writ court, after examining the particular facts of the case resorting to proceeding under Contempt of Courts Act alleging willful disobedience amounting to contempt will generally not be accepted subject to same peculiar facts of a case where all the ingredients of Section 10/12 of Contempt of Courts Act are fulfilled.

13. From the discussion hereinabove, it is clear that to allege contempt it has to be demonstrated that there is a binding judgment between the parties that disobedience of which results in initiation of proceedings under the Contempt of Courts Act.

14. The apex court had considered this aspect of the matter in the case of Priya Gupta v. Ministry of Health & Family Welfare, (2013) 11 SCC 40, wherein it has been held as under:-

"It is true that Section 12 of the Act contemplates disobedience of the orders of the court to be wilful and further that such violation has to be of a specific order or direction of the court. To contend that there cannot be an initiation of contempt proceedings where directions are of a general nature as it would not only be impracticable, but even impossible to regulate such orders of the court, is an argument which does not impress the court. As already noticed, the Constitution has placed upon the judiciary, the responsibility to interpret the law and ensure proper administration of justice. In carrying out these constitutional functions, the courts have to ensure that dignity of the court, process of court and respect for administration of justice is maintained. Violations which are likely to impinge upon the faith of the public in administration of justice and the court system must be punished, to prevent repetition of such behaviour and the adverse impact on public faith. With the development of law, the courts have issued directions and even spelt out in their judgments, certain guidelines, which are to be operative till proper legislations are enacted. The directions of the court which are to provide transparency in action and adherence to basic law and fair play must be enforced and obeyed by all concerned. The law declared by this Court whether in the form of a substantive judgment inter se a party or are directions of a general nature which are intended to achieve the constitutional goals of equality and equal opportunity must be adhered to and there cannot be an artificial distinction drawn in between such class of cases. Whichever class they may belong to, a contemnor cannot build an argument to the effect that the disobedience is of a general direction and not of a specific order issued inter se parties. Such distinction, if permitted, shall be opposed to the basic rule of law."

15. Determination of the lis between the parties is necessary prior to initiation of proceedings for contempt under the Contempt of Courts Act. Any attempt in taking cognizance of contempt relying upon the judgment passed in some other case would amount to stifling the respondents from distinguishing the applicability of the judgment from the facts of the case. At this stage we would hasten to add that all the authorities and courts are under a constitutional mandate to follow, abide and respect all the judicial decisions, and we do not, the least, mean that the authorities need not follow and abide by the judgments, but the issue at hand is as to whether merely not following a judgement of court passed on some other case, would amount to contempt of court.

16. In the present case, it has been alleged that the Executive Council had taken some decision on 20.08.2007 and they have re-appreciated the same facts in their meeting dated 31.07.2021. It may be possible that there may have been some change in circumstances, change in the rules and regulations or some other material consideration necessitating re-appreciating revisiting the earlier order, or the subsequent decision could be distinguishable from the previous decision or it may be now permissible under law are all questions of fact, the determination of which would be necessary before allegation of contempt can be levelled. Undoubtedly, the law having been down by this Court in the previous decision, that the executive Council would not have the power of the reviewing their decisions, would be a precedent and also liable be considered by the writ Court when examining the validity of the subsequent decision.

17. The peculiar fact of any case deserve to be appreciated by a writ court and only after determinative pronouncement that factual aspect in the case under consideration are similar, and hence applying the law laid down previously by the court would cover the case in the under consideration can result in setting aside of the impugned order.

18. The contempt proceeding by their very nature are summary proceedings. In case the argument of applicant is accepted then in exercise of contempt jurisdiction alleging disobedience of an order where the applicant is not party would necessary entail an in-depth determination of the dispute and also finding on the rights asserted by the applicant, which would be clearly beyond jurisdiction.

19. Considering the fact of the instant case ,it may be difficult to straightway conclude that the Executive Council had committed contempt of the earlier orders of the court without the fact being examined previously by any court. It has also not been stated that the order of the earlier writ court or ever brought to the knowledge of the Executive Council so as to substantiate the allegation that the Executive Council took the decision on 31.07.2021 in willful defiance of the earlier order of the writ court dated 12.07.2021.

20. Considering the aforesaid facts, this Court is of the considered view that the decision of the Executive Council may or may not be legal but does not amount to contempt as it does not fulfill condition set forth in Section 12 of the Contempt of Courts Act. To exercise the power under the Contempt of Courts Act specially with regard to civil contempt it has to be demonstrated that there exists a binding judgement of the court and even after service of the said judicial opinion on the respondents it has not been complied, pursuant to which this Court can initiate proceeding in exercise of power under Section 12 of the Contempt of Courts Act. Without there being binding decision in a matter between the parties, this Court cannot straightway proceed against respondents under the Contempt of Courts

Act. The present proceedings raised by the applicant are clearly misconceived and an abuse of process of the court. It was always open for the applicant to approach the writ court and assail validity of the decision of the Executive Council and restoring to the proceedings under the Contempt of Courts Act and is nothing but abuse of the said process.

21. In light of the above, the contempt petition is dismissed with a cost of Rs. 500/- which shall be deposited in the Library Funds of Awadh Bar Association, Lucknow within two months from today.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J. &
Hon'ble Ajai Tyagi, J.)

1. This appeal is preferred by the claimants-appellants for enhancement of compensation awarded to appellant by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ Additional District Judge, Court No.5, Ghaziabad ('Tribunal', for short), vide order dated 7.1.2016 in M.A.C.P. No.143 of 2013 (Smt.Beena Tyagi and others vs. Mohd.Azemer and others) whereby claimants/appellants was awarded Rs.6,87,000/-, with 7% rate of interest as compensation.

2. Brief facts of the case are that in the intervening night of 28/29.1.2012, the marriage ceremony of son of the deceased Sanjeev Tyagi was going on. At about 00:10 a.m., the deceased came out from mandap to see-off his friends. When he was standing beside the road, a Bolero Car bearing No.UP34-N/7867 came from the side of Meerut, which was being driven very rashly and negligently by its driver dashed the deceased after coming on the wrong-side in front of the gate of the mandap. In this accident, the deceased sustained serious fatal injuries and died on the way to hospital. It is also averred that the age of deceased was 43 years and he was serving in a private company in Ghaziabad. The driver of the offending vehicle and its insurance company filed their respective written statements.

3. Heard Shri Bharat Bhushan Paul, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Komal Mehrotra, learned counsel for the respondents.

4. The accident is not in dispute. The insurance company has not challenged the liability on it. The issue of negligence has attained finality. Now the only issue to be decided is the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal. Entire factual scenario is not being narrated as the limited question in this appeal relates to the quantum only.

5. With regard to the quantum, learned counsel for the appellants submitted that the deceased was in service in S.K.Garg & Co.Ltd., Ghaziabad, wherefrom he was getting salary at Rs.22,000/- per month. It is further submitted that the deceased was income-tax payee. Appellants have filed the copies of the Income-tax Returns of the deceased for three preceding years of his death, but learned Tribunal wrongly declined to believe the Income-tax Returns. It has further been submitted by learned counsel for the appellants-claimants that apart from Income-tax Returns, appellants also filed a salary-certificate dated 1.2.2012 duly issued by S.K.Garg and Co.Ltd., where the deceased was employed. Learned counsel also submitted that the deceased was salaried person, but learned Tribunal has not awarded any sum for future loss of income. It is next submitted that learned Tribunal has awarded Rs.5,000/- for loss of consortium, Rs.5,000/- for love and affection and Rs.5,000/- for funeral expenses, which are on the lower-side.

Regarding rate of interest, counsel for the appellants submitted that Tribunal has awarded compensation @ 7% per annum, which is on lower side. Learned counsel for the appellants-claimants has heavily relied on the following judgments:

A. Rahul Sharma and another vs. National Insurance Company dated 7th May, 2021 in Civil Appeal No.1769 of 2021

B. United India Insurance Co.Ltd. vs. Indiro Devi and others dated 3rd July, 2018 in Special Leave Petition (Civil) Nos.7104-7105 of 2016

C. Rukmani Jethani and others vs. Gopal Singh and others dated 23rd July, 2021 in SLP (Civil) No.27802 of 2017

6. Shri Komal Mehrotra, learned counsel appearing for Insurance Company, submitted that income of the deceased was mentioned as Rs.22,000/- in the petition, but it could not be proved by the appellants. There is disparity between the income alleged by the appellants and income as shown in documents on record. Therefore, the Tribunal rightly disbelieved the income of deceased at Rs.22,000/-. There is no dispute regarding 1/3 deduction for personal expenses and multiplier of 14. Hence, there is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned judgment and it does not call any interference by this Court.

7. Perusal of record shows that as per the averment made in the petition, the deceased was employed in the aforesaid company at Ghaziabad from where he was getting salary of Rs.22,000/- per month. To show this fact, appellants have filed a salary-certificate issued by the S.K.Garg & Co.Ltd. Dated 1.2.2013 in which it is certified that the deceased was employed with this company on the post of office-coordinator during the F.Y. 2011-12 on a monthly salary of Rs.22,000/-. Apart from this salary-certificate, appellants have also filed Income-tax Returns of the deceased preceding three years of his death, which are on the record. These Income-tax Returns show that income-tax was also paid by the deceased, therefore, there is no doubt that he was Income-tax payee.

8. We are not convinced with the discussion made by the learned Tribunal regarding the Income-tax Returns. Learned Tribunal did not appreciate the aforesaid documentary evidence in right perspective as it goes to show that the last return, pertaining to the A.Y. 2010-11, exhibits gross total income of the deceased as Rs.3,65,617/- and tax payable to it was Rs.9,451/-.

9. We are of the considered opinion that learned Tribunal has committed error in discarding the documentary evidence and assessing the income as Rs.6,000/- per month only. If it would have been the fact, the deceased should have been completely exempted from payment of income-tax while he had paid income-tax nearly Rs.10,000/- per annum.

10. The Tribunal has not added any percentage of amount towards future loss of income, which is, in our opinion, grave error. Since, the deceased will fall within the category of self-employed and his age was 43 years at the time of accident, 30% shall be added towards future prospects as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in National Insurance Company vs. Pranay Sethi [2014 (4) TAC 637 (SC)]. The deceased left three dependants behind him, his wife and two children. Learned Tribunal has deducted 1/3 of the income towards personal expenses of the deceased.

Although, the learned Insurance Company has submitted that the deduction should have been 1/2, but we do not agree with this contention. We hold that the Tribunal has rightly deducted 1/3 of the income towards personal expenses of the deceased. The age of the deceased was 43 years, therefore, keeping in view the age of the deceased, multiplier of 14 will be applied in the light of the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Smt.Sarla Verma vs. Delhi Transport Corporation [2009 (2) TAC 677 (SC)], which is rightly applied by the Tribunal. As far as non-pecuniary damages are concerned, the Tribunal has awarded only Rs.5,000/- towards funeral expenses, which are also on the lower-side. In the light of Judgment of Pranay Sethi (supra), claimants shall be entitled to get Rs.15,000/- for loss of estate and Rs.15,000/- for funeral expenses. Apart from it, the wife of the deceased shall also be entitled to get Rs.40,000/- for loss of consortium. Hence, the non-pecuniary damages are calculated at Rs.15,000/- + Rs.15,000/- + Rs.40,000/- = Rs.70,000/-, and as per the judgment of the Pranay Sethi (supra), these would be revised 10% every three years. Hence, we fix total non-pecuniary damages at Rs.1,00,000/-.

11. Hence, the total compensation, in view of the above discussions, payable to the appellants-claimants is being computed herein below:

i.	Annual Income	Rs.20,000/- x 12	Rs.2,40,000/-
ii.	Percentage towards Future-Prospects (30%)	Rs.72,000/-
iii.	Total Income	Rs.2,40,000/- + Rs.72000/-	Rs.3,12,000/-
iv.	Income after deduction of 1/3		Rs.2,08,000/-
v.	Multiplier applicable	14
vi.	Loss of dependency	Rs.2,08,000/- x 14	Rs.29,12,000/-
vii.	Non-pecuniary Damages	Rs.1,00,000/-
viii.	Total Compensation	Rs.29,12,000/- + Rs.1,00,000/-	Rs.30,12,000/-

12. As far as issue of rate of interest is concerned, it should be 7.5% in view of the latest decision of the Apex Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Mannat Johal and Others, 2019 (2) T.A.C. 705 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has held as under:

"13. The aforesaid features equally apply to the contentions urged on behalf of the claimants as regards the rate of interest. The Tribunal had awarded interest at the rate of 12% p.a. but the same had been too high a rate in comparison to what is ordinarily envisaged in these matters. The High Court, after making a substantial enhancement in the award amount, modified the interest component at a reasonable rate of 7.5% p.a. and we find no reason to allow the interest in this matter at any rate higher than that allowed by High Court."

13. Learned Tribunal has awarded rate of interest as 7% per annum, but we are fixing the rate of interest as 7.5% in the light of the above judgment.

14. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and award passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The Insurance Company shall deposit the amount within a period of 8 weeks from today with interest at the rate of 7.5% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited.

15. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansagori P. Ladhani vs. The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., [2007(2) GLH 291] and this High Court in total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimants to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) and in First Appeal From Order No.2871 of 2016 (Tej Kumari Sharma v. Chola Mandlam M.S. General Insurance Co. Ltd.) decided on 19.3.2021, while disbursing the amount.

Counsel for the Respondents:

Criminal Law- Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 302 & 34- Possibility of false implication- There was strong rivalry in the village and the deceased belonged to a group which had strong rivalry with the group to which the accused party belonged, it is a case where the evidence would have to be scrutinised carefully to exclude not only the possibility of false implication but also over implication.

Where there are rival factions then the possibility of false or over implication cannot be ruled out and therefore it is the duty of the court to scrutinise the evidence with due care and caution.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Sections 101 & 102 - The deceased was a history-sheeter and, importantly, at the time of spot inspection by the I.O., the deceased was found having a country made gun in his hand with an empty 12 bore cartridge in its chamber-No doubt, we are conscious that no cross version or self defence has been set up by the defence but the prosecution has to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt by leading evidence that inspires confidence. Once, a doubt arises as to whether the prosecution is hiding the genesis of the incident or true facts, it is difficult for the court to accept the prosecution case unless the evidence led in support thereof is carefully tested on all material aspects, particularly, in a case involving rival factions of a village. It appears to be a case where the prosecution witnesses are guilty of suppressing true facts and not coming out with full disclosure about the incident.

Even though the defence may not have set up a cross case, but yet it is the duty of the prosecution to come with clean hands and also to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt.

Criminal Trial- Contradiction between ocular and medical version-The incised wound found on the body of the deceased is not attributable to the use of Bhala or to any other weapon assigned to the accused persons in the ocular account of PW-4. Other than that, there is a material difference in the number of injuries found on the body of the deceased than alleged to have been inflicted with a Bhala, as per the ocular account.

Where the prosecution has suppressed material facts thereby hiding the genesis of the occurrence, the medical evidence contradicts the ocular version and the oral testimony fails to inspire the confidence of the court, then the accused deserve the benefit of doubt.(Para 22, 26, 27, 28)

Criminal Appeal accordingly allowed. (E-3)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Misra, J. & Hon'ble Sameer Jain, J.)

1. This appeal has been filed by four appellants, namely, Nathoo, Dambar, Tilak and Kaloo alias Raja Ram against the judgment and order dated 18.02.1986, passed by 1st Additional District & Sessions Judge, Budaun in Sessions Trial No.353 of 1984 whereby, the appellants Nathoo and Tilak have been convicted under Section 302 IPC whereas, appellants Dambar and Kaloo alias Raja Ram have been convicted under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC and all of them have been sentenced to imprisonment for life. The appeal of appellants Dambar and Tilak, consequent to their death, was abated vide order dated 28.11.2018 therefore, the appeal survives qua appellant no.1 (Nathoo) and appellant no.4 (Kaloo alias Raja Ram) only.

INTRODUCTORY FACTS

2. On a written report (Exb. Ka-3), dated 17.03.1984, submitted by Dharmpal Singh (PW-3), a first information report (FIR) was registered at police station (P.S.) Bilsi, district Budaun, as Case Crime No.57 of 1984, at 18.15 hours, of which Chik FIR (Exb. Ka-4) and GD entry (Exb. Ka-5) was prepared/ made by PW-7. The allegation in the FIR is that on 17.03.1984, at 3.00 p.m., the informant (PW-3) was informed by Pappu (PW-4) that informant's nephew Itwari (the deceased), on his way back home, after extending Holi greetings, near the shop of Liladhar Murao (not examined), was stopped by accused persons, namely, Nathoo (appellant no.1); Dambar (the appellant no.2); Tilak (the appellant no.3); and others, who requested Itwari (the deceased) to smoke a Beedi (a leaf rolled and filled with tobacco). But, when Itwari refused to accede to their request, Nathoo and Tilak (appellants 1 and 3) inflicted injury on Itwari with the help of Ballams, thereafter, on exhortation of Dambar (appellant no.2), Tilak fetched his gun from his house and fired at Itwari (the deceased), which killed Itwari. It was alleged that Dambar's son Kaloo (appellant no.4) was also with the accused persons. In the FIR it was also alleged that at the spot Devendra (PW-6) and others were there and the informant including informant's brother Shivraj Singh (PW-5) also arrived and when they arrived, accused persons started pelting brickbat from roof top, in which, PW-5 received injuries. Making all these allegations and stating that the body of the deceased is lying at the spot, FIR was lodged.

3. The medical examination of Shivraj Singh (PW-5) was conducted on 17.03.1984 at 06.45 p.m. by PW-2. The medical examination report of PW-5 (Exb. Ka-2), prepared by PW-2, reveals:

(i) Traumatic swelling on the left clavicular region 8 cm x 2 cm in diameter. Kept under observation. Advised X-ray;

(ii) Bruise mark on the left clavicular region medially, 1 cm x 1 cm reddish.

(iii) Bruise mark on the left clavicular region laterally 2 cm x 1 cm reddish.

Opinion :- All the above injuries are caused by blunt object. No.(i) kept under observation. Nos.2 and 3 simple and fresh.

4. Though the police reached the spot in the evening but due to fading light, inquest was conducted next day morning, that is on 18.3.1984. Inquest report (Exb. Ka-6) was prepared by Jagdish Chandra Pathak (not examined) under the direction of the Investigating Officer (I.O.) (PW.-8). The inquest report notices that in the right hand palm of the deceased's body, there was a 12 bore country made pistol whose chamber had one empty cartridge.

5. On 18.03.1984, the I.O. (PW-8) lifted blood stained earth/plain earth from the spot of which memo (Exb. Ka-12) was prepared. The I. O. during spot inspection collected 25 pellets from the wall of Liladhar's shop, which were embedded therein, of which seizure memo (Exb. Ka-13) was prepared. In the site plan (Ex. Ka-14) prepared by the I. O. on 18.03.1984, the location of that spot from where pellets were recovered have been shown by letter X.

6. The autopsy of body of the deceased was conducted on 18.03.1984 at 4.00 p.m. of which, the autopsy report (Exb. Ka-1) was prepared by PW-1. The autopsy report, inter alia, reveals:

External Examination : Average built body, eye semi open, mouth semi open. Rigor mortis: passed upper limb, present lower limb.

Ante-mortem injury :

(1) one gunshot wound of entry 1 cm x 1 cm x cavity deep on the epigastric region, margins are burnt and black.

(2) one gunshot wound of exit 1 cm x 1 cm x cavity deep on the left of spleen region (upper part).

(3) Incised wound 7 cm x 3 cm x fracture of lower jaw left side and in central part with fracture of 5 lower jaw teeth.

(4) Abrasion 5 cm x 3 cm on the right clavicular region medial side.

(5) Abrasion 4 cm x 3 cm over the left side neck (sic), lower part.

(6) Abrasion 6 cm x 3 cm over the left wrist region (posterior).

Internal Examination : Spleen lacerated. Peritoneum punctured. Heart empty, blood found in the cavity and stomach contained 6 ounce of digested food, small intestine had faecal matter and gases.

Opinion :- Death is due to shock and haemohrage as a result of described injuries.

Estimated time of death:- One day before.

7. After investigation, PW-8 submitted charge-sheet (Exb. Ka-15) on which, after taking cognisance, the case was committed to the court of session. The court of session, vide order dated 03.09.1985, framed two charges against appellants Nathoo and Tilak. The first was of committing murder of Itwari, punishable under Section 302 IPC, and the other was of voluntary causing hurt to Shivraj Singh (PW-5), punishable under Section 323 IPC. Similarly, vide order dated 03.09.1985, the appellants Dambar and Kaloo alias Raja Ram were charged under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC for the murder of Itwari and under Section 323 IPC for voluntary causing hurt to Shivraj Singh. The accused pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried. At this stage, it be noticed that in both sets of charges, murder was alleged to have been committed at 3.00 pm in front of the shop of Liladhar Morao on whose shop's wall gun shot pellets were found embedded by I.O. (PW-8) and of which recovery was also made vide Exb. Ka-13.

PROSECUTION EVIDENCE

8. During the course of trial, the prosecution examined eight witnesses, their testimony is as follows :

9. PW-1 - Dr. M.K. Maheshwari. He is the Doctor who conducted autopsy of the body of Itwari. He proved the autopsy report and accepted the possibility of death having occurred at 3.00 p.m. on 17.03.1984. He stated that injury nos.1 and 2 were sufficient to cause death. Injury no.3 could have been caused by a Ballam, if it had sharp edges and injury nos.4, 5 and 6 could be caused due to friction and could also be caused by falling on a hard object. In his cross-examination, the Doctor stated that the deceased may not have died instantaneously and might have survived for 10-15 minutes. In respect of injury no.1, PW-1 stated that that could have been caused if the shot had been fired from a distance of less than 4 feet. PW-1 also stated that the injury nos.1 and 2 must have been caused by a bullet and not by pellets though that bullet may be of brass or of steel. In respect of injury no.3, PW-1 stated that that injury could be caused by a Pharsa but not knife.

10. PW-2 - Dr. R.C. Joshi. The Doctor, who examined PW-4 for his injuries on 17.03.1984 at 6.45 p.m. PW-2 proved the injury report (Exb. Ka-2) and stated that all the injuries noticed could be from a hard blunt object and could also be a result of bricks thrown at the injured. He stated that injury nos.2 and 3 were simple and fresh which could have been sustained around 3.00 p.m. on 17.03.1984. In his cross-examination, PW-2 stated that those injuries could not be self-inflicted but if the injured on his own gets bricks thrown at him then those injuries could be sustained. He denied the suggestion that he did not notice the injuries and has prepared a false report. The Doctor also stated that at the time when he examined the victim there was no first information report before him.

10. PW-3 - Dharampal Singh. (The informant) - He stated that the deceased Itwari was his nephew and on the date and time of the incident, at about 3.00 p.m., Devendra (PW-6) and Pappu (PW-4) came running and informed PW-3 that Itwari has been killed by Nathoo, Tilak, Dambar and Kaloo alias Raja Ram; that on receipt of the information, PW-3 and Shivraj Singh (PW-5) rushed to the spot; there the accused Tilak, Nathoo, Kaloo alias Raja Ram and Dambar threw bricks at them from their roof top which struck Shivraj Singh (PW-5), causing injuries. PW-3 stated that by the time they arrived there, Itwari had already died and his body was lying near a Jamun tree in front of the shop of Liladhar. PW-3 stated that thereafter he got a report scribed from Jogendra Singh (not examined) who read the report to him, whereafter he put his signature on it and, thereafter, his injured brother Shivraj Singh (PW-5) was examined in the hospital. He stated that before the incident, Pradhan's elections had taken place in which Ulfat Singh and Dambar (appellant no.2) were candidates; the informant party was canvassing for Ulfat Singh, as a result, the accused party bore enmity with the informant party. PW-3 stated that where the body of the deceased was lying is a place where members belonging to the caste of the accused, including the accused, have their Abadi; that their (accused persons') houses were at a distance of 10-15 paces away from the spot; that the accused belong to Morao caste whereas the informant party belong to Thakur caste; and there is party-bandi in the village. That day, it was Holi and the deceased had gone to visit village Sahbajpur to extend Holi greetings to his friends and relatives and along with him, Pappu (PW-4) and Devendra (PW-6) were there. PW-3 stated that when Itwari had gone to visit people and extend Holi greetings, he had not taken any weapon.

In his cross-examination, PW-3 stated - that the I.O. recorded his statement next day of the incident; that though he is not aware about the number of cases pending against Itwari but Itwari was prosecuted for the murder of Bangali and prior to that he was also prosecuted for murder of a lady; and that he is not aware whether a case of dacoity was also instituted against Itwari. He claimed ignorance of there being 5-6 cases relating to offence punishable under Section 25 Arms Act against Itwari. PW-3, however, admitted that Itwari was a history-sheeter and police used to visit him. On further cross-examination, PW-3 stated that Devendra (PW-6) is Bhanja (sister's son) of Itwari and a resident of village Matiyari though, Devendra used to stay in the village where the incident took place. PW-3 claimed ignorance as to whether the father of Devendra was also a history-sheeter.

In respect of the spot location, PW-3 stated that the spot where the body of Itwari was lying was 400-500 paces away from PW-3's house. PW-3 denied the suggestion that at the time when Pradhan's elections were on, Itwari was in jail. PW-3 stated that Pradhan's elections took place 5-6 months before the incident. He stated that in the village, members of Thakur community, to which he belongs, and Morao community, to which accused belong, reside in separate areas. He stated that to the best of his knowledge, prior to the incident, Itwari had never visited Morao Basti (colony). PW-3 stated that the house of Itwari was at a distance of 30-35 paces away from his own house. PW-3 further stated that Itwari, Devendra and Pappu had gone together to extend Holi greetings at about 1.00 p.m. On being confronted that he did not mention in the FIR that Devendra and Pappu had gone together with Itwari to extend Holi greetings, and that he had not made any such statement to the Investigating Officer during investigation, PW-3 stated that he had made a disclosure of that fact but if that was not written, he cannot tell the reason for the same. On being confronted that he had not mentioned in the report that along with Pappu, Devendra had also given information about the incident to him, PW-3 stated that he had mentioned this fact in his report but if that was left out, then he cannot tell the reason. He stated that when he and his brother Shivraj Singh had gone to the police station, village ladies were asked to guard the body. PW-3 admitted that the body of the deceased was lying in front of the shop of Liladhar. PW-3 stated that towards west of Dambar's house, there is house of Tilak and in between the two houses, there is Baithak of one Pranshu. He stated that when brickbats were thrown at them, the accused were on the roof top of the house of accused Dambar. At that time, apart from the accused persons, there were other members of Morao community also. PW-3, however, clarified that brickbats were thrown by the accused persons and not by others. He also clarified that the parapet of the roof was not high therefore all those who were throwing brickbats could be noticed.

On further cross-examination, PW-3 stated that the FIR was got scribed through Jogendra Singh while sitting near the body of the deceased and that it was delivered to the informant without delay. He stated that they reached the police station to lodge the report by about 6.00 p.m. and after leaving his brother (PW-5) at the hospital, he returned back to the village. PW-3 stated that he stayed over night near the body and when he arrived after lodging the report, ladies were not there. PW-3 stated that the Investigating Officer had arrived in the night of the incident. PW-3 denied the suggestion that Itwari was killed in darkness by some unknown persons on account of party-bandi and that the accused were falsely implicated. He also denied the suggestion that the report was lodged next day. He also denied the suggestion that Shivraj Singh (PW-5) self-inflicted injuries from bricks.

11. PW-4 - Pappu (Eyewitness) Aged 15 years. He stated that at the time of the incident he, Itwari and Devendra were returning after extending Holi greetings at village Sahbajpur and when they reached near Liladhar's shop, at about 3.00 p.m., Dambar, Tilak, Kaloo alias Raja Ram and Nathoo stopped Itwari. They asked Itwari to smoke Beedi to which Itwari refused by saying that he would not smoke with them as they are not persons with whom he has relations. On this, Nathoo and Tilak inflicted Bhala blows on Itwari. Whereafter, Kaloo alias Raja Ram and Dambar exhorted Tilak to fetch gun and shoot Itwari on which, Tilak went to his house to fetch his gun and thereafter, Tilak shot Itwari, as a result whereof, Itwari fell. As soon as Itwari fell, Pappu (PW-4) and Devendra (PW-6) effected their escape and, after reaching home, made a disclosure about the incident to PW-3 and PW-5.

In his cross-examination, PW-4 stated - that he went with Itwari to extend Holi greetings at about 1.00 p.m.; that Itwari and he belong to the same Mohalla and are of the same Khandaan (pedigree); that to give his statement in court he has been away from the village for the last three days; that the police had brought him and Devendra; that they had been staying at the police station. He stated that all the witnesses are staying at the police station voluntarily. He denied the suggestion that the police men had tutored him.

On further cross-examination, when confronted with his statement, recorded under Section 161 CrPC, that when he and Itwari were returning after extending Holi greetings, at the spot, they had seen Devendra, etc., PW-4 stated that he had informed the Investigating Officer that Devendra had also been with them to extend Holi greetings but if that was not written, he cannot tell the reasons for the same. He stated that they had gone to village Sahbajpur without eating anything at their house but at village Sahbajpur, they had Gujiya at Dalvir's house. On being confronted with regard to the omission in his statement, under section 161 CrPC, that he along with Devendra had rushed to inform PW-3 about the incident, he stated that that information was given to the Investigating Officer but if it was not mentioned by the Investigating Officer, he cannot tell the reason for the same. He stated that when they were on their way back, in front of Liladhar's shop, they saw the accused standing there; that two were armed with Bhalas and two were empty handed. PW-4 stated that he was ahead, followed by Itwari, and, thereafter, Devendra. He stated that when Itwari saw the accused, Itwari neither ran nor, he or Itwari, raised an alarm. Only when Itwari was killed, he ran away. On further cross-examination, PW-4 stated that though the shop of Liladhar was open but there were no customers. However, Liladhar was sitting in his shop. PW-4 stated that near the shop, Dharampal, Ram Autar and Hori Lal Murao's houses are there but none of them were present. When the accused saw Itwari, they asked him to smoke a Beedi and when Itwari refused, they inflicted Bhala blows. PW-4 stated that three Bhala blows were inflicted. Bhalas were pointed. The top was pointed, having a length equal to an arm and width of about one and half finger. PW-4 stated that after Bhala injuries were inflicted on Itwari, Dambar and Kaloo alias Raja Ram exhorted Tilak to fetch his gun; on which, Tilak ran to fetch his gun. At that time, PW-4 did not run away. After being inflicted Bhala injury, Itwari had fallen. Tilak fetched his gun from his house, which was at a distance of about 50 paces. The gun brought by Tilak was of full size. Tilak fired at Itwari, pointing downwards, from a distance of about one yard. A single shot was fired by Tilak and no other shot was fired. When the shot was fired, Tilak was facing towards the house of Liladhar, which is south of Rasta and the distance of shop of Liladhar from the place of incident is 10 paces.

On further cross-examination, PW-4 stated that when shot was fired at Itwari, Itwari was lying on the ground. PW-4 also stated that till Tilak could fetch his gun all the other three accused remained there. He clarified this by stating that there must have been 15 minutes time-gap between infliction of Bhala blows and causing of gun shot injury. He stated that where Itwari fell, it was brick path (Khadanja).

On further cross-examination, PW-4 stated that Munni is Itwari's cousin brother. He stated that he is not aware that Itwari had killed Munni's mother and that Itwari had also stabbed Munni at the time of Baraat (marriage procession). PW-4 stated that after giving information about the incident he stayed at the house, whereas Dharmpal (PW-3) and Shivraj (PW-5) went to the spot. PW-4 stated that the accused, by that time, had run away. PW-4 stated that when the Investigating Officer had come, I.O. had called PW-4 to the spot, PW-4 had described the incident to I.O. PW-4 denied the suggestion that he did not witness the incident and that he is telling a lie on account of being part of that family.

12. PW-5 - Shivraj Singh. He stated that on the date of the incident, at about

3.00 p.m., Devendra and Pappu both came and gave information about the incident; at that time, he was with his brother Dharmpal (PW-3); thereafter, he and PW-3 rushed to the spot; there, Tilak, Dambar, Nathoo and Kaloo alias Raja Ram were noticed throwing brickbats at them from roof-top, which caused injuries; when, they raised an alarm, several other villagers arrived; by that time, Itwari had died; thereafter, report was lodged at police station Bilsi, from where he was sent for medical examination. He stated that prior to this incident he had no enmity with the accused except animosity on account of Pradhan's elections. As regards the relationship inter se accused persons, PW-5 stated that Kaloo is the son of Dambar; and Tilak is the nephew of Dambar. Nathoo though a relative, but not a close one.

In his cross-examination, PW-5 stated that the Investigating Officer had called him for recording his statement 15-16 days later. He admitted that against Itwari there was a case regarding murder of Bangali Thakur and also a case in respect of firing of gunshot at Munni's mother. He claimed ignorance about a dacoity case registered against Itwari.

On further cross-examination, he stated that the information about the incident was first received from Pappu whereas he met Devendra on the way. He stated that after receipt of information, PW-5 and PW-3 went to the spot but Pappu and Devendra did not accompany them though, on way, they met 10-15 other villagers, who went with them to the spot. He stated that when brickbats were hurled at them, they stopped, but, when other villagers arrived, they proceeded to the spot. At that time near the body there was nobody else, and when he received injury, except he and his brother there was nobody else. He stated that his brother (PW-3) was ahead and he stopped because of brickbats. He stated that brickbats were thrown from the roof over the Baithak adjoining the house of accused Tilak. He clarified by stating that the roof was over a joint Baithak of Tilak and Dambar. He stated that on the roof top, only accused persons were there. He stated that 5-10 bricks were thrown at him, out of which, one had hit him.

On further cross-examination, he stated that at the time when Pradhan's elections were held, Itwari was out of jail and after Pradhan's elections, he was not sent back to jail. He stated that Itwari was released from jail about 20-25 days before Pradhan's elections. He stated that in his presence there was never an altercation/fight between Itwari and the accused. He stated that though Ulfat Singh had won Pradhan's elections earlier, several times, but this time he lost to Dambar. He denied the suggestion that at the instance of Ulfat, he falsely implicated the accused.

13. PW-6 - Devendra. As Devendra was aged 13-14 years only, the court examined him to test whether he could be considered competent to depose. After being satisfied in that regard, he was permitted to depose. PW-6 stated that the deceased Itwari was his maternal uncle, he was killed at about 3.00 p.m; when Itwari was killed, he was present there; that he, Pappu and Itwari had gone to village Sahbajpur to extend Holi greetings and on their way back, when they arrived in front of the shop of Liladhar, there, Nathoo, Dambar, Kaloo and Tilak asked Itwari to smoke Beedi; when Itwari refused, Nathoo and Tilak started assaulting Itwari with Bhala, Itwari received two Bhala blows; immediately thereafter, Dambar and Kaloo asked Tilak to get his gun to finish him off, thereafter, Tilak brought his gun from his house and fired at the deceased (Itwari); till that shot was fired, he was present there, after that, he went back home, then, on way, he met Dharmpal (PW-3) and Shivraj (PW-5). PW-6 stated that prior to the death of Itwari, PW-6's mother had expired and after the death of his mother, he had been staying with his maternal grandfather Shivraj Singh (PW-5).

During cross-examination, when he was confronted with an omission in his statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC with regard to he, Pappu and Itwari having gone together to extend Holi greetings, he stated that that fact was disclosed to the Investigating Officer but if that was not written, he cannot tell the reason. PW-6 was again confronted with his previous statement made during the course of investigation wherein he had stated that while he was returning to his house after taking a round of the village, near the shop of Liladhar, he saw that Itwari was surrounded by Dambar, Kaloo, Tilak and Nathoo, to which he responded by stating that if that had been written by the Investigating Officer, he cannot tell the reason for the same. PW-6 was also confronted with an omission in his statement regarding the accused persons requesting Itwari to smoke Beedi, to which, he responded by stating that he had not disclosed the same to the Investigating Officer but that incident did happen in his presence. PW-6 also stated that he had not disclosed to the Investigating Officer that Tilak had also inflicted Ballam injury. PW-6 also stated that he did not disclose to the Investigating Officer that he met Shivraj and Dharmpal on way to his house. PW-6 also admitted that he had not told the Investigating Officer that Dambar and Kaloo had exhorted Tilak to get his gun to kill the deceased.

On further cross-examination, PW-6 stated that he only knows Harvir in village Shahbajpur and that he does not know the persons whom Itwari visited that day though, Itwari new them. PW-6 stated that he used to stay with his father but at the time of the incident he was staying at the village Behta Jabi (village where the incident took place) though, his younger brother and sister were staying with his father at village Gharchari (PW-6's father's village). PW-6 stated that this was the first Holi after the death of his mother and as per the custom, relatives visit the house where there is bereavement. He admitted that his maternal grandfather had carried Gujiya to his father's house. He stated that his maternal grandfather had returned next day morning and then he gave this information to him. He stated that the date of the incident was Holi day and people were moving around.

In respect of the incident, during cross-examination, PW-6 stated that on their way back, at the time of the incident, Pappu was ahead, followed by Itwari, who was followed by him. PW-3 stated that the accused held two Bhalas and they inflicted three Bhala blows, one was just above the stomach region, second was from back and the third was near shoulder joint. He stated that when Bhala blows were inflicted on Itwari, Itwari could not run because he was caught hold by the accused. He stated that when the shot was fired at Itwari, Itwari was standing but after the shot hit Itwari, he fell down. He stated that the shot must have been fired from a distance of 1 and ½ yards. After firing the shot, the accused ran towards the house of Liladhar. He denied the suggestion that he was not present at the spot and that what he is telling is a lie. He also denied the suggestion that Itwari had a gun with him.

14. PW-7 - Lal Singh. He proved the registration of the written report and preparation of its GD entry as well as chik FIR, which were exhibited as Exb. Ka-4 and Exb. Ka-5, respectively. He denied the suggestion that the FIR was lodged after autopsy.

15. PW-8 - D.P. Juwal. The Investigating Officer of the case. PW-8 stated that after registration of the case he started investigation on the same day and recorded the statement of the informant Dharm Pal and Head Clerk who prepared GD entry of the FIR and, thereafter, visited the spot; that, by the time he arrived at the spot, it was night and as sufficient light could not be arranged to conduct the inquest, a constable was deputed to stay there near the body; that he recorded the statement of Pappu, but witness Devendra could not be found; that effort was made to trace out the accused but they could not be found. He stated that because of darkness of the night, the police team stayed there overnight and in the morning of 18.03.1984, inquest proceedings were started. It is stated that the inquest report was prepared under his direction by Sub-Inspector Jagdish Chandra Pathak. He proved various papers in connection with inquest, autopsy etc. He stated that at the spot, he noticed a single barrel country made pistol, with one empty cartridge in its chamber, on the right hand palm, just below the wrist, of the deceased, which was recovered and sealed of which seizure memo (Exb. Ka-11) was prepared. He also proved lifting of blood stained earth/plain earth from the spot. He stated that at the time of inspecting the spot, he could collect 25 pellets from the wall of Liladhar's shop of which a seizure memo was prepared, which was exhibited as Exb. Ka-13. He stated that on the basis of inspection, a site plan (Exb. Ka-14) was also prepared by him. He stated that on 04.04.1984 he recorded statement of Shivraj and Devendra but, prior to this, despite effort, they could not be found and, after completing the investigation, on 18.05.1984, he prepared and submitted charge-sheet, which was exhibited as Exb. Ka-15.

During cross-examination, PW-8 stated that the empty cartridge recovered from the chamber of that gun was of 12 bore. He stated that he had recorded the statement of Liladhar and other persons who were there. He stated that Itwari was a history-sheeter. He stated that he reached the spot at about 8.00 - 8.15 p.m. though he did not remember whether men or women were there near the body when he arrived. He denied the suggestion that first information report was lodged after autopsy. He stated that Dharampal did not give any such statement that Itwari had gone without carrying a weapon. Dharampal had also not given a statement that with Itwari, Devendra and Pappu had gone to extend Holi greetings. He also stated that Dharampal did not inform him that information about the incident was given to him by Devendra. He stated that near the body he could not notice any brickbat. He stated that the site plan was prepared by him with the help of witness Pappu and Suraj Pal Singh. He stated that Pappu in his statement had not informed that Devendra was also with them; and that Pappu had also not informed that the accused had dispersed in all four direction. He also stated that the witness Devendra had not informed him that he, Pappu and Itwari were on their way back when the incident occurred. Various other omissions in the statement of Devendra were put to the Investigating Officer, which he confirmed.

16. The incriminating circumstances emanating from the prosecution evidence were put to the accused. As this appeal survives only in respect of appellant nos.1 and 4, namely, Nathoo and Kaloo, we propose to notice only the statement of Nathoo and Kaloo recorded under Section 313 CrPC. Appellants Nathoo and Kaloo denied their involvement in the incident and claimed that they have been falsely implicated on account of enmity generated during election of Pradhan.

TRIAL COURT FINDINGS

17. The trial court upon finding that on account of election of Pradhan there was enmity between two communities in the village; and the prosecution case was supported by an eye witness account of the incident, taking into account that the first information report was promptly lodged, convicted the appellants as above but, acquitted the appellants of the charge of offence punishable under Section 323 IPC.

18. We have heard Sri Indra Kumar Chaturvedi, learned senior counsel, assisted by Sri Shaurabh Chaturvedi, for the surviving appellant nos.1 and 4 (Nathoo and Kaloo alias Raja Ram); Sri H.M.B. Sinha, learned AGA, for the State; and have perused the record.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE LEARNED COUNSEL FOR THE APPELLANTS

19. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that admittedly the village was divided on caste lines because of Pradhan's election. The deceased was a history sheeter and spot inspection confirmed that there was a gunshot mark on the wall of Liladhar's shop, in front of which deceased's body was lying. A country made pistol was noticed in the right hand palm of the deceased. There is no explanation rendered by the prosecution in what circumstances a country made pistol was noticed in the hand of the deceased and why there was a gunshot mark on the wall of the shop. The prosecution is thus guilty of suppressing the genesis of the incident therefore, an adverse inference ought to be drawn against the prosecution. Further, the ocular account does not inspire confidence, firstly, with regard to the presence of PW-4 and PW-6, and, secondly, with regard to the infliction of Bhala injuries on the deceased more so, because the injuries found are not referable to a Bhala and, otherwise also, two persons have been attributed the role of causing Bhala injury whereas no punctured wound was found. The incised wound found could be referable to a Ballam only, if it had sharp edges. But the same is not proved by the description given. Further, incised wound is solitary; whereas, witnesses say that multiple blows were inflicted, which suggests that either none witnessed the incident or the incident occurred in some other manner but the FIR was lodged by guess-work on account of enmity. It has been submitted that since causing of gunshot injury, which alone was fatal, has been attributed specifically to co-accused Tilak, who is no more alive, and the evidence in respect of participation of the surviving appellants in the crime is not confidence inspiring, it is a fit case where they be given the benefit of doubt.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE STATE

20. Per contra, learned AGA, submits that this is a case where the incident occurred in broad daylight; it was Holi time therefore, if the witnesses were moving together with the deceased to extend Holi greetings, the presence of those witnesses cannot be doubted; that the FIR was prompt; that during trial, the eyewitnesses have supported the prosecution case and have disclosed participation of the surviving appellants therefore, they have been rightly convicted. Non-explanation of the country made pistol in the hand of the deceased is not detrimental to the prosecution case as there is no explanation of the accused with respect to the incident occurring in any other manner. Further, incised wound can be caused by a Bhala or a Ballam, if it has sharp edges therefore, there is no such discrepancy between the ocular account and the medical evidence. Learned AGA, therefore, submits that this is a fit case where the appeal be dismissed and the judgment and order of the trial court be affirmed

21. Having considered the rival submissions and having noticed the entire evidence led by the prosecution, before proceeding further, it would be useful to notice few broad features appearing in the prosecution evidence with regard to which there is no issue. These are: (a) the deceased was a history sheeter; (b) that in the village, where the incident occurred, few months before the incident there had been an election of the village Pradhan; (c) that dew days before the elections, the deceased had been released from jail; (d) that there were two rival candidates, namely, Ulfat Singh and Dumbar (one of the co-accused) for the post of Pradhan; (e) the deceased and his family supported Ulfat Singh, who lost the election to Dumbar (co-accused); (f) that all the accused were part of a common family or related to each other; (g) that the concerned village was factionalised to such an extent that residential areas were divided on caste lines; (h) that the incident occurred in an area dominated by the caste to which the accused party belonged; (i) that the deceased belonged to the other caste; and (j) that the incident occurred on a Holi Day.

22. As we have noticed that there was strong rivalry in the village and the deceased belonged to a group which had strong rivalry with the group to which the accused party belonged, it is a case where the evidence would have to be scrutinised carefully to exclude not only the possibility of false implication but also over implication. In Pandurang Chandrakant Mhatre and others v. State of Maharashtra, (2009) 10 SCC 773 (vide paragraph 60), the Supreme Court observed: "in cases involving rival political factions or group enmities, it is not unusual to rope in persons other than those who were actually involved. In such a case, court should guard against the danger of convicting innocent persons and scrutinise evidence carefully and, if doubt arises, benefit should be given to the accused." Similar view was expressed earlier in Muthu Naicker and others v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1978) 4 SCC 385. There, it was observed, that, in a faction-ridden society where occurrence takes place involving rival factions it is but inevitable that the evidence would be of a partisan nature. In such a situation to reject the entire evidence on the sole ground that it is partisan is to shut one's eyes to the realities of the rural life in our country. Large number of accused would go unpunished if such an easy course is charted. Simultaneously, it is to be borne in mind that in a situation like this there is a tendency to involve as many persons of the opposite faction as possible therefore the evidence has to be examined with utmost care. In the light of the law noticed above and the background facts, while keeping in mind that the deceased himself was a history sheeter in whose hand a country made pistol was noticed, we would have to be cautious in scrutinising the evidence to obviate the possibility of false implication as well as over implication. More so, when the case turns purely on ocular account, which is not corroborated by recovery of the murder weapon alleged to have been used by the accused to inflict injuries.

23. An overview of the prosecution evidence reflects that the entire incident is in two parts with two separate sets of ocular account. First is the ocular account rendered by PW-4 and PW-6 relating to the incident wherein the deceased was killed; and the other is the ocular account of what happened thereafter, rendered by PW-3 and PW-5. The first part of the incident was in front of Liladhar's house when the deceased was stopped, asked to smoke a Beedi and, on refusal to do so, assaulted and eventually killed by a gun shot. The second part relates to accused persons pelting stones on PW-3 and PW-5 from roof-top, which was away from the first spot. The site plan Ex- Ka-14 reflects that these two spots are separated from each other by quite a distance. Therefore, proof of participation at one spot is by no means a proof of participation at the other. We thus have to deal with the evidence separately in respect of the two parts. In so far as the latter part of the incident is concerned, the accused have been held not guilty, that is, they have been held not guilty in respect of the charge of pelting stones from roof-top of which PW-3 and PW-5 are witnesses. Interestingly, PW-4 and PW-6 who are witnesses of the murder are not witnesses of the second part of the incident of which PW-3 and PW-5 were witnesses. Thus, we have to carefully scrutinise the evidence of PW-4 and PW-6 to find out whether their testimony as against the surviving appellants with respect to their participation in the murder of the deceased is confidence inspiring or it is a case where the surviving appellants have been named because of they being part of the rival faction. While examining the above aspect, we will also examine the probability of the incident having occurred in some other manner than alleged by the prosecution.

24. In so far as the testimony of PW-4 is concerned, it be noticed that he is the one who, according to the FIR, gave information about the incident. This witness stated that he accompanied the deceased to village Shahbajpur to extend Holi greetings and while they were returning, near the shop of Liladhar, the deceased was stopped by the accused and requested to smoke Beedi. When the deceased refused to smoke Beedi he was inflicted Bhala blows by Tilak and Nathu (surviving appellant no.1). Interestingly, in the FIR, there is no mention that PW-4 had accompanied the deceased in his visit to village Sahbajpur for extending Holi greetings. In so far as PW-6 Devendra is concerned, there are various omissions in his statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC including the fact that he accompanied the deceased and PW-4 to village Sahbajpur to extend Holi greetings. In fact, PW-6 was confronted with these omissions to which he had no explanation. Even PW-4 had not disclosed in his statement under section 161 CrPC that PW-6 accompanied PW-4 and the deceased to Shabajpur. Further, the I.O. did not find PW-6 in the village on the date of the incident. Notably, PW-6, in his statement under section 161 CrPC, with which he was confronted during his deposition in court, had stated that while he was returning to his house after taking a round of the village, he noticed the incident near the shop of Liladhar. In view of the above, the presence of PW-6 with the deceased and PW-4 at the time of the incident is highly doubtful. It could be possible that on hearing the gunshot he was driven to the spot as were others and met PW-3 and PW-5 while they were on their way to the spot as is also the version in the FIR. Thus, the star witness of the murder incident is PW-4.

25. On a careful reading of the entire deposition of PW-4, we find that there appeared no intention on the part of the four accused to assault the deceased initially, that is, till the deceased refused to smoke Beedi offered by the accused. Therefore how the intention to assault the deceased developed assumes importance because it is not a case where the accused attacked the deceased, after exhorting each other, as soon as they saw the deceased. Rather, it is a case where, initially, the accused extended a Beedi to the deceased, probably, to celebrate their election success, and when the deceased refused to smoke, two, out of the four accused, inflicted Bhala blows. And, thereafter, accused Tilak was requested to fetch his gun. An interesting feature noticed in the deposition of PW-4 is that while Tilak was fetching his gun, the accused, who had Bhalas, and had pin down the deceased, kept waiting for 15 minutes. This story is a bit unnatural to accept; because, if the accused wanted to finish off the deceased, why would they, having pinned down the deceased, wait, particularly, when they had pointed weapons, such as a Bhala, in their hand. This throws a serious possibility of the incident having occurred in a manner different from what has been alleged by the prosecution. In that scenario, we would have to be circumspect in accepting the ocular account unless it is thoroughly tested on all material aspects.

26. Before that, we may remind ourselves that the deceased was a history-sheeter and, importantly, at the time of spot inspection by the I.O., the deceased was found having a country made gun in his hand with an empty 12 bore cartridge in its chamber. More over, the I.O. had noticed gunshot marks and pellets embedded on the wall of the shop of Liladhar, in front of which the deceased was found lying dead. Notably, it is not a case of the prosecution that this weapon was planted by the accused party when the body was left behind to report the incident to the police. In fact, the informant (PW-3) by his deposition that ladies of the house stood near the body to guard it obviates the possibility of the weapon being planted. Further, the I.O. stated that, in the night, constables were deputed to guard the body. Under the circumstances, the possibility of someone planting a gun in the hand of the deceased appears remote. More so, when there appears no suggestion to that effect in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses. In that scenario, why that gun was there in the hand of the deceased and why there were gunshot marks on the wall of the shop are circumstances that assume importance of which we find no explanation in the prosecution evidence. That leaves us guessing whether the incident occurred in the manner alleged or the prosecution is contriving a story and hiding true facts. More so, when we notice from the testimony of PW-3 and PW-5 that from the roof-top, a bit away from the spot where the body of the deceased was lying, the accused persons were noticed pelting stones. No doubt, we are conscious that no cross version or self defence has been set up by the defence but the prosecution has to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt by leading evidence that inspires confidence. Once, a doubt arises as to whether the prosecution is hiding the genesis of the incident or true facts, it is difficult for the court to accept the prosecution case unless the evidence led in support thereof is carefully tested on all material aspects, particularly, in a case involving rival factions of a village.

27. In the light of the discussion above, we now proceed to test the prosecution case on the following aspects: (a) motive for the crime; (b) role of each accused implicated; and (c) whether the prosecution story appears natural and probable. In so far as motive is concerned, once we admit that there existed political rivalry, an underlying motive for the crime stands proved though, the precipitating cause for the incident, that is, refusal of the deceased to smoke Beedi, despite request of the accused persons, appears flimsy. But it is well settled that in a case based on ocular account, existence or non existence of motive pales into insignificance. We therefore do not propose to dwell more on this issue. In respect of the role of each accused, all the prosecution witnesses are consistent in so far as ascribing the gunshot injury on the deceased to Tilak (the deceased appellant no.3). Notably, there is a single gunshot injury of entry with corresponding exit, which, according to the doctor, was fatal. Bhala injuries to the deceased are ascribed to both Tilak and Nathu (surviving appellant no.1). But, as per the autopsy report, there is just a solitary incised wound noticed on the jaw region with fracture of teeth. Further, the ocular account of PW-4 and PW-6 is in respect of infliction of three Bhala injuries to the deceased. But, here, only one incised wound (supra) is noticed and, interestingly, there is no punctured or penetrating wound noticed which may correspond to a pointed weapon such as a Bhala. Notably, PW-4 does not disclose the site of the injury though, PW-6 deposes that Bhala injuries were inflicted on stomach, back and shoulder joint. Interestingly, no such injuries are noticed in the autopsy report. No doubt, according to the doctor (PW-1), incised injury noticed could be from a Ballam, if it had sharp edges, or it be from a Pharsa. PW-1 does not speak of possibility of that injury from a Bhala. On this aspect, learned AGA submitted that in many areas, the term Ballam and Bhala are used interchangeably. Therefore, if the pointed part of the Ballam or Bhala has a sharp edge, it may cause an incised wound. Hence, according to learned AGA, there is no conflict in the ocular account with the medical evidence in so far it relates to absence of a punctured or a penetrating wound. The above submission, in our view, might be acceptable where the nature of the weapon used has not been described and the court is left guessing as to which type of Bhala or Ballam is being adverted to by the witnesses. But, here, in the instant case, PW-4's testimony is specific in describing the nature of the Bhala alleged to have been used. PW-4 describes the Bhala used, as one having a pointed metallic tip equal to length of an arm with thickness equal to one and half finger. There is no disclosure that it had sharp edges. In such view of the matter, the weapon described in the ocular account would in all probability cause a punctured or penetrating wound and not an incised wound. Thus, the incised wound found on the body of the deceased is not attributable to the use of Bhala or to any other weapon assigned to the accused persons in the ocular account of PW-4. Other than that, there is a material difference in the number of injuries found on the body of the deceased than alleged to have been inflicted with a Bhala, as per the ocular account. In these circumstances, the court is left guessing whether PW-4 and PW-6 actually witnessed the infliction of Bhala blows or they had escaped from the spot as soon as the scuffle began. Once that is the position, we cannot rule out false implication or over implication on account of political rivalry. When all of this is noticed in conjunction with the fact that the deceased was a history sheeter and there appeared a country made pistol in his hand with a corresponding gun shot mark on the wall of the shop of Liladhar, in front of which the body of the deceased was found, it appears to be a case where the prosecution witnesses are guilty of suppressing true facts and not coming out with full disclosure about the incident. More over, the circumstances emerging from the entire prosecution evidence would give rise to multiple possibilities including of an incident where, on the occasion of Holi, on account of some altercation, a gunshot might have been fired by the deceased which was retaliated by an attack on the deceased by a group of persons of the rival faction. In this kind of a scenario, recording conviction for murder with the aid of section 34 IPC would not be safe, particularly, when it is not proved beyond reasonable doubt that any of the surviving appellants inflicted any specific injury to the deceased, which could prove fatal.

28. The conclusion drawn above, is also fortified by the circumstance that the eye-witnesses' account does not appear natural and probable. In this regard it be noticed that as per the eye witness account Bhala injuries were inflicted first, followed by gunshot. Interestingly, according to the ocular account, the accused wanted to finish off the deceased and, therefore, they requested co-accused Tilak to fetch a gun. If that was so, what prevented the accused, having Bhalas, from finishing off the deceased by inflicting multiple Bhala blows. More so, when, according to the prosecution evidence, the accused held two Bhalas and the deceased was pinned down by the assailants. But, here, interestingly, according to PW-4, the accused waited 15 minutes for Tilak to fetch his gun and fire shot at the deceased. In our view, though, nothing can be predicted about how one would react, be it a victim or an assailant, but, in the given situation, non use of Bhala to finish off the deceased, when the intention was to kill, is not a natural or probable conduct.

29. The upshot of the discussion is that the prosecution story and the evidence as against the surviving appellants Nathu (appellant no.1) and Kaloo (appellant no.4) does not inspire our confidence for all the reasons discussed above. Therefore, the benefit of doubt would have to be extended to them. Consequently, the appeal of the surviving appellant nos.1 and 4, namely, Nathoo and Kaloo alias Raja Ram, respectively, is allowed. The judgment and order of the trial court to the extent it convicts and sentences them is set aside and they are acquitted of the charges for which they have been tried and convicted. The accused-appellant nos.1 and 4 are reported to be on bail, they need not surrender, subject to compliance of the provisions of Section 437-A CrPC to the satisfaction of the trial court below.

30. Let a certified copy of this order along with record of the court below be sent to the court below for information and compliance.

THE HON'BLE MANOJ MISRA, J.
THE HON'BLE SHAMIM AHMED, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 879 OF 1986

Ram Autar & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opp. Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri R.B. Sahai, Sri Rizwan Ali Akhtar, Sri Sadaful Islam Jafri, Sri S.I. Jafri, Sri Anurag Shukla, Sri G.S. Chaturvedi (Senior Adv.)

Counsel for the Opp. Party:
A.G.A., Sri Ashok Kumar Singh, Sri D.S.M. Tripathi, Sri Kailash Nath, Sri Manish Shukla, Pratibha Singh, Sri S.S. Rathore, Sri Prem Prakash Yadav, Sri Kailash Nath

Criminal Law- Indian Evidence Act 1872- Section 3- Inimical, Interested and Chance Witnesses-The informant's side and the accused side were inimical to each other and were embroiled in litigation, both civil and criminal, for long-The ocular account is flowing from highly inimical and interested witnesses-The two witnesses who have stood up to support the prosecution case are chance witnesses-The incident is in broad day light on a busy street and in the presence of shop keepers as well as passersby yet, there is no effort to intervene. This raises a serious doubt with regard to the presence of PW-2 and PW-3 on the spot as also with regard to the incident occurring in the manner alleged.

Where the witnesses are apparently inimical, interested and are chance witnesses and their testimony fails to inspire the confidence of the court, then it is not safe to place reliance on the testimony of such witnesses.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act 1872- Section 3 -Simple narration of assault by rod and lathi-The fracture of right parietal and frontal bone of the skull, sternum and ribs of the deceased, as a result of compression, find no explanation in the ocular account-The doctors have accepted that the nature of injuries found on the deceased as well as the injured could be a result of an accident.

Where the ocular account is untrustworthy and the same is contradicted by the medical evidence, then reliance may not be placed by the court on the testimony of the prosecution witnesses. (Para 18, 19, 22)

Judgements/ Case law relied upon:-

1. Lakshman Prasad Vs St. of Bih., 1981 (Supp) SCC 22

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Misra, J. & Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. This appeal has been preferred against the judgment and order dated 14.03.1986 passed by the Special Sessions Judge, Jaunpur in Sessions Trial No. 29 of 1982, convicting the appellants Ram Autar, Ram Pal, Panna Lal and Ram Chandra alias Bishun Chand under Sections 302/34 and 323/34 I.P.C. and sentencing them to imprisonment for life under Section 302/34 I.P.C. and one year rigorous imprisonment under Section 323/34 I.P.C. It be noted that the appeal of appellant no.2 (Ram Pal), consequent to his death, was abated vide order dated 30.09.2019.

INTRODUCTORY FACTS

2. The prosecution case in brief, as per the allegations in the written report (FIR) (Ex. Ka-1), lodged by the Babu Nandan (PW-1), brother of the deceased

Ram Harakh, is that the the accused Ram Autar alias Bishun Dayal, Ram Pal, Panna Lal and Ram Chandra, who are residents of informant's village, are in litigation with the informant and, therefore, inimically disposed. On account of this enmity, two days prior to the incident i.e. 03.01.1980 informant's brother Ram Harakh (the deceased) was assaulted with a Gandasi resulting in an injury on his left arm which had to be stitched and of which a case was registered at Jafarabad. After narrating the above background, it is alleged that on 05.01.1980 when Ram Harakh (the deceased) was with his son Banwari @ Gungey and had gone to fetch medicine from Sadar Hospital, Jaunpur, at about 9.30 a.m., near Line Bazar, as soon as they reached in front of the shop of a fodder seller, from a truck (i.e. No. U.S.F.-904), which was loaded with fodder, the accused-apellants and the truck cleaner, who can be recognised if produced, alighted and attacked the deceased and his son (nephew of the informant), with iron rod and lathi. As a result of that assault, both of them received injuries. At the spot, informant's brother Raja Ram (P.W.2) and Rajendra (P.W.3), who were returning after selling milk, were present and they witnessed the incident. It is alleged that the deceased and his son were taken to the Sadar Hospital, Jaunpur by Raja Ram where he was declared dead whereas his son (Banwari @ Gungey) was admitted in the hospital after medical examination. The written report, scribed by Ram Adhar (not examined), was registered as an FIR at 11.00 a.m. on 05.01.1980 at Police Station Kotwali, District Jaunpur, giving rise to Case Crime No. 11/1980 of which Chik Report (Ex. Ka-5) and G.D. Entry (Ex. Ka-6) was made by Trilokinath Singh (not examined), whose signatures were proved by PW-6. Inquest was conducted at Sadar Hospital, Jaunpur by about 3.30 p.m. of which inquest report (Ex. Ka-9) was prepared. After completing the investigation, charge-sheet (Ex Ka 14) was submitted against four accused, namely, the appellants herein. After taking cognisance on the charge-sheet, the matter was committed to the court of session. On 13.09.1982, all the four accused i.e. accused appellants were charged with offences punishable under Sections 302 /34 I.P.C. and 323 /34 I.P.C. The accused pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

PROSECUTION EVIDENCE

3. During the course of trial, the prosecution examined six witnesses, their testimony, in brief, is as follows:-

4. PW-1- Babu Nandan (the informant). He proved the enmity between the informant and the accused party and claimed that he received information about the incident when he was near Line Bazar crossing. Upon receipt of the information, he had arrived at the spot. He noticed blood on the spot and there, he came to know that people have taken Ram Harakh (the deceased) to the hospital. After receiving the said information, he and Bhaiya Lal (not examined) reached the hospital. At the hospital Buddhoo (not examined), Raja Ram (PW-2) and Rajendra (PW-3) were there. Raja Ram (PW-2) had requested him to lodge the report. He stated that on the information received from Raja Ram he got the report scribed by Ram Adhar (not examined) at the Hospital and, thereafter, he lodged the report. He proved the written report, which was exhibited as Ex. Ka-1. He stated that by the time he reached the hospital, Ram Harakh had died.

In his cross-examination, he stated that his house is about half a Kos

(equivalent to one mile) towards south of the spot. He stated that on that day he had gone to Husainabad to select a cow. He denied the suggestion that he got the information at his house. He also denied the suggestion that the deceased was not killed by the accused, but they have been falsely implicated. He also denied the suggestion that the First Information Report was lodged on the suggestion of the police and was not dictated in the hospital. In his cross-examination, he admitted that he was employed in Deewani Kutchery but is not working for the last two years.

5. PW-2 -Raja Ram. He described the relationship between the accused persons and the informant side by stating that Jai Karan had three sons, namely, Bharosh, Jivbodh and Panchoo. Bharosh had four sons, namely, Babu Nandan (informant), Ram Harakh (the deceased), Raja Ram (PW-2) and Ballabh. Babu Nandan had two sons, namely, Ram Raj and Ram Aadhar. Ram Harakh (the deceased) had three sons, namely, Bajrangi, Radhe and Banwari @ Gungey (the injured). Jivbodh had four sons, namely, Ramnandan, Subhkaran, Shivnath and Kishun. Accused persons, namely, Ram Awtar @ Bishunpal, Ram Pal, Panna Lal and Ram Chandra are sons of Shiv Nath. After describing the spot as a busy place with several shops, in respect of the incident, PW-2 stated that on the date of incident at about 9.30 a.m. while he was returning from Olandganj, after selling milk, along with Rajendra (PW-3), on reaching near Ram Prasad's shop, they noticed a truck parked there. He noticed that Ram Harakh (the deceased) and his son Gungey were travelling from Line Bazar towards T.D. College to go to the hospital for medicine. Then he noticed accused Rampal, Panna Lal, Ram Chandra (PW-3) and Ram Autar, who were sitting in that truck alighting therefrom and assaulting Ram Harakh and Gungey. Along with them, truck cleaner was also there. Ram Pal held an iron rod, whereas rest had lathi. Ram Harakh was inflicted blow on the head by Ram Pal with the aid of iron rod, whereas the rest of the accused assaulted Gungey with *lath*i. Upon suggestion by the government counsel, PW-2 clarified that first Ram Pal assaulted Ram Harakh with iron rod, thereafter the rest of the accused persons assaulted him with lathi. Gungey was, however, assaulted by Ram Pal, Ram Chandra and Ram Autar with lathi. On a specific question as to whether any of the accused were exhorting the other, PW-2 stated that Ram Pal exhorted by saying "finish off the victims". He stated that at the time when the appellants were assaulting he was at a distance of 10-15 paces from the spot and with him there were Rajendra and Buddhoo, who also witnessed the incident. He stated that as they were terrified, they did not intervene. He stated that Ram Harakh, after assault, fell on the northern Patri (pavement) of the road, where blood also fell. He stated that after Ram Harakh fell, the accused escaped. Thereafter, Ram Harakh and Gungey were brought to the hospital by him on rickshaw. The doctor, however, after examining Ram Harakh, declared him dead. Gungey was not only medically examined but also admitted in the hospital. He stated that after about half an hour Babu Nandan (the informant) arrived at the hospital and then he informed Babu Nandan about the incident. In paragraph 9 of his statement he stated that the accused and the informant side were in litigation, both civil and criminal, for last about a year and a half. PW-2 stated that two days before the incident, Ram Harakh was assaulted by Ram Pal, Panna, Ram Chandra and Shivnath, which caused him injury on his left arm and that incident was also reported. He stated that they had won the civil proceedings in court.

In his cross-examination, he stated that he has no knowledge about his brother Ballabh being a witness of the inquest proceeding. He was questioned with regard to the route that he took but nothing much could come out of it, though, he admitted that in between the spot and the hospital, on way, police chowki Olandganj falls. In paragraph 20 of his statement, during cross-examination, he stated that after half an hour of their arrival at the hospital, Ram Raj arrived at the hospital and by that time, the doctor had already declared Ram Harakh dead and had admitted Gungey in the hospital. In paragraph 21 of his statement, PW-2 stated that when they returned back to the spot from the hospital, then he noticed Ram Prasad, the Fodder seller i.e. shop keeper, washing the spot where blood had scattered. He stated that the blood had scattered on the metalled portion of the road, about 7-8 paces north of the shop of Ram Prasad, and not on the Patri.

In respect of the incident, during cross-examination, PW-2 stated that all five accused had assaulted Ram Harakh and Banwari. First Ram Pal attacked Ram Harakh with iron rod and when Ram Harakh fell the rest assaulted him with "danda". Immediately, thereafter, he stated "गिरने के बाद रामपाल ने रामहरख के ऊपर कोई वार नहीं किया" After that he stated that the accused started assaulting Gungey. He stated that Ram Pal did not inflict any blow on Gungey, but the rest of the accused assaulted Gungey. He, thereafter, reiterated that only four of the five accused had assaulted Banwari @ Gungey. He stated that each of the four accused inflicted one or two lathi blows on Gungey and when 04-06 lathi blows were inflicted upon him, he fell. In paragraph 25 of his statement during cross-examination he stated that he watched the entire incident from a distance of about 50 paces and several people including shop keepers over there also witnessed the incident and at least 10-5 persons were standing there. He denied the suggestion that no such incident, as alleged by him, occurred. He also denied the suggestion that the two victims were found injured and upon receipt of information, accused were falsely implicated on account of enmity.

6. PW-3 Rajendra- He also stated that while he was returning after selling milk and Raja Ram was with him, near the fodder seller shop, they noticed a truck parked. The accused came from behind the truck, and assaulted Ram Harakh and Gungey while they were on their way. At that time Ram Pal held an iron rod and the rest had lathi. He stated that Ram Harakh was assaulted by Ram Pal with the aid of iron rod, whereas the remaining four accused assaulted Gungey with lathi. He stated that accused were shouting to finish off Ram Harakh and despite intervention, they did not listen. He stated that PW-2 and he took Ram Harakh and Gungey to the hospital, where Ram Harakh was declared dead.

During cross-examination, he stated that his sister Kamla is married to Hanshraj. Hanshraj and Vanshraj are real brothers. Vanshraj is married to informant's daughter. In paragraph 13 he stated that when he arrived at the spot already 50-60 people had gathered there. They were shop keepers and passersby. He denied the suggestion that the incident did not occur in the manner alleged and that he is telling lies because of his relationship.

7. PW-4 (Dr. Suresh Chandra Srivastava) is the doctor, who conducted autopsy. He stated that on 06.01.1980 at about 10.30 a.m. the body of the deceased was received. He conducted the autopsy of the body. According to him death could have occurred a day before and it was possible that it could have occurred on or about 9.30 a.m. on 05.01.1980. He proved the injuries noticed and mentioned by him in the Autopsy Report, which was exhibited as Ex. Ka-2. The injuries noticed by him on the body were stated to be as follows:

(i) lacerated wound 2.0 cm x 1.0 cm x 0.5cm, 3.0 cm above the left eye brow on the head;

(ii) abrasion 1.5 cm x 1.5 cm on the left knee;

(iii) abrasion 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm on right ankle inner side;

(iv) abrasion 1 cm x 0.5 cm on left scapula

(v) stitched wound 0.5 cm x 0.5 cm on the outer aspect of left arm

In respect of the internal examination PW-4 noticed-

Head- (i) clotted blood beneath the skin of the head; (ii) fissured fracture measuring 12.0 cm x 0.5 cm on right parietal bone of skull; (iii) fissured fracture on the right frontal bone of the skull measuring 6.0 x 0.5 cm in a diagonal direction with membranes congested; and on the left side margin of brain there was contusion measuring 4.0 cm x 4.0 cm

Chest- second to sixth ribs on left side and second and third ribs right side from front including sternum were fractured and had punctured the heart.

In paragraph 3 of his statement PW-4 stated that death was due to haemorrhage and injuries on the head and chest. He stated that the ribs might have been fractured on account of the external pressure.

In respect of the injury no. 1, in paragraph 4, he stated that this could be caused by rod or lathi and on its own injury no.1 as well as injury on the chest, were sufficient to cause death. He accepted the possibility of death having occurred at 9.30 a.m. on 05.01.1980.

During cross-examination, he specifically stated that the abrasion found on the body could be due to friction against hard object but they could not be a consequence of an impact of lathi or rod. He stated that there was no corresponding external injury to the internal injury noticed on the chest. He stated that in ordinary course, if a lathi blow had been inflicted then external injury would have been noticed. In respect of the injury no.1, he accepted the possibility that it could be a result of collision with a hard object and could also be a result of an accident with a truck. In paragraph 6, he stated that injury nos. 1, 2, 4 and 5 were all on the left side though injury no.3 was on the right side. He stated that the compression injury noticed could also be a result of being crushed by a truck tyre. He also stated that, if a truck tyre goes over the body, the ribs can get fractured. In paragraph 7 he stated that if a truck collides in slow speed and its tyre hits the body then also ribs can get fractured.

8. PW-5 Dr. K.N. Yadav. He stated that on 05.01.1980, while he posted at District Hospital, Jaunpur, at 10.30 a.m., he examined Banwari @ Gungey for his injuries, who was brought by his cousin brother Ram Raj. He had noticed the following injuries at the time of examination, namely:

i) lacerated wound 6.0 cm x 1.0 cm, skin deep on left side of head, 10.0 cm above left ear, which was bleeding and was kept under observation with advice for X-ray;

(ii) contusion 10.0 cm x 2.0 cm on right side back, 5.0 cm below right scapula (oblique red)

(iii) abrasion 2.0 cm x 1.0 cm on back of left hand, 04 cm below to the wrist. (oozing)

(iv) lacerated wound 3.5 cm x 1cm x skin deep on front and inner aspect of left leg, 7 cm above knee joint, bleeding and paining.

He stated that all injuries, except injury no.1, were simple. Injury no. 1 was kept under observation and X-ray was advised. He stated that all the injuries noticed could have been caused by hard and blunt object, such as lathi and were fresh and could have been caused between 9.00 and 9.30 a.m. on 05.01.1980. The injury report prepared by him, noticing the above injuries, was exhibited as Ex. Ka-4.

In his cross-examination, he admitted the possibility of the injuries noticed by him being caused on account of a push from a truck. He accepted the possibility of those injuries being sustained between 5 and 6 a.m. of that day.

9. PW-6 Hausla Bahadur-Investigating Officer of the case. He proved the registration of the FIR by Head Moharrir, Triloki Nath Singh as also the G.D. entry thereof. He also proved the various stages of the investigation. He stated that at the spot he did not notice any blood, as that was washed away; and that aspect was therefore specifically mentioned in the Site Plan (Ex. Ka-7), which he prepared after inspection. He proved the inquest proceedings as also the preparation of Challan Nash, Photo Nash, letter to the C.M.O. etc., prepared in connection with autopsy. He stated that he had taken custody of the truck in which the accused were allegedly hiding and the custody was given back to its owner of which Custody Memo was prepared, which was exhibited as Ex. Ka-13 on his statement. He proved submission of charge-sheet under his signature, which was exhibited as Ex. Ka-14.

In his cross-examination, he stated that he did not record the statement of Ram Prasad in front of whose shop the incident occurred. He stated that at the spot he could not get a witness of the incident. He stated that he had arrived at the spot with the witnesses as well as the informant at about 11.00 a.m. and when he had arrived Ram Prasad was washing off the blood spot. He stated that the witness Raja Ram (PW-2) did not accompany him to the spot and that PW-6 could not gather any information about the truck cleaner. He stated that he made efforts to ascertain the identity of the truck cleaner but did not get information about him from the truck owner. He stated that he did not notice any blood stains on the truck. He denied the suggestion that an accident from that truck has been given colour of an offence of murder in collusion with the informant and the witnesses.

10. The incriminating circumstances appearing in the prosecution evidence were put to the accused while recording their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C. They denied their involvement in the crime and claimed that they have been falsely implicated on account of enmity and past litigation. The accused, however, did not examine any witness in defence.

TRIAL COURT FINDINGS

11. The trial Court accepted the ocular account rendered by PW-2 and PW-3 and, upon finding that there existed strong enmity and underlying motive for the crime, convicted the accused-appellants for the offences specified above.

12. We have heard Sri G.S.Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Anurag Shukla for the surviving appellants; Sri Ashok Kumar Singh, Sri Prem Prakash Yadav and Sri Kailash Nath for the informant; Sri Pankaj Saxena and Sri J. K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State; and have perused the record.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE APPELLANTS

13. Sri Chaturvedi, learned senior counsel, appearing for the surviving appellants, submitted that the autopsy report of the deceased suggests that the injuries were sustained in an accident. In this regard, attention of the court was invited to the autopsy report to highlight that there was no underlying fracture beneath the lacerated wound (injury no.1). Rather, the fissured fracture was on the right side parietal bone of the skull, which means that when the body fell, head banged on the hard surface, or may be compressed by pressure of a tyre going over, the parietal bone got fissured. Had there been a blow on the head with an iron rod as alleged, then the underlying bone would have been fractured but here the fracture is on the other side. He also pointed out that all the injuries except injury no.3 were on the left side whereas the injury no.3 is on right ankle, which is suggestive of the fact that the body collided from the left side and fell on the right side, injuring the knee and banging the head on the floor or hard surface, resulting in fissured fracture on the right parietal bone and when the tyre went over or pressed the body by compression the ribs got fractured. He submitted that the ocular account does not describe infliction of any such blows, which may result in fracture of the ribs as well as sternum and puncturing of the heart by those fractured ribs. Notably, there is no ocular account of any person sitting over, or pressing, the deceased. Rather, the ocular account is in respect of infliction of blow with an iron road on head by Ram Pal and lathi blows by others but the doctor had specifically stated that if there had been a lathi blow, it would have left an external injury mark, which was conspicuous by its absence despite there being an underlying fracture of the ribs and the sternum. This is suggestive of the fact that the internal chest injury was caused on account of compression, either on account of the tyre crushing the body or some heavy weight falling over the body, but as this is not there in the ocular account, and the ocular account does not at all explain these injuries, the ocular account is unworthy of acceptance. He further pointed out that both PW-2 and PW-3 are chance witnesses. The incident took place on the road side, which was a busy road and, admittedly, a large number of people had collected there, as is clear from the statement of PW-3 therefore, it is unbelievable that the accused would assault a person in front of the public. More over, the presence of PW-2 and PW-3 is falsified from the circumstance that the injured Gungey was brought to the hospital not by PW-2 or PW-3, as stated by them, but by Ram Raj, as per the statement of PW-5, which is corroborated by the injury report (Ex. Ka-4). It has been submitted that admittedly the informant's side and the accused side were embroiled in litigation, both civil and criminal, they had thus strong reason to falsely implicate and, therefore, it appears to be a case where an accident has been taken as an opportunity to settle a score by falsely implicating the accused-appellants.

14. Sri Chaturvedi also submitted that in so far as the charge of an offence punishable under Section 302 read with 34 I.P.C. is concerned, that is not made out against the surviving appellants Ram Autar, Panna Lal and Ram Chandra alias Bishun Chand, inasmuch as, the allegation in the ocular account is of infliction of iron rod blow on the head of the deceased by Ram Pal (the appellant, who died during the pendency of appeal) whereas there is no specific allegation that the deceased was assaulted by the surviving accused-appellants. Even assuming that at one place infliction of lathi blows on the deceased is alleged but no corresponding external injury has been noticed. The abrasions noticed by the autopsy doctor, from the testimony of PW-4, are ruled out to be an outcome of lathi blows. It has thus been submitted that the appellants 1, 3 and 4 have not caused any injury to the deceased hence their conviction under Section 302 I.P.C. with the aid of Section 34 I.P.C. is not at all justified.

15. Lastly, it was contended that it is a case where no independent witness has been examined, despite the fact that it was a road side occurrence, in front of a shop and the shop keeper Ram Prasad was very much available, but, even during the course of investigation, his statement was not recorded by the Investigating Officer therefore the prosecution has suppressed best evidence, as a result whereof, an adverse inference be drawn against the prosecution. In this regard it was submitted that even though Banwari @ Gungey might be dumb and deaf but he could have been examined with the aid of sign language interpreter as is permissible under Section 119 of the Evidence Act and, therefore, non-examination of Gungey is also a reason to draw an adverse inference against the prosecution.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE STATE AND OPPOSITE PARTIES

16. Per contra, the learned counsel for the State as well as the informant submitted that this is a case where a prompt FIR was lodged. It is a day light occurrence. There is no suggestion to the eye-witnesses to dispute the spot and, therefore, washing off the blood spot, would not make a difference. Assuming that the witnesses were interested, it is not the law that an interested witness testimony cannot be accepted, particularly, when it is corroborated by medical evidence on material aspects. It has been submitted that the injury sustained by Banwari @ Gungey appeared to be on account of an assault on him by lathis and those injuries cannot be a result of an accident. Further, it cannot be a mere coincidence that the deceased as well as the injured suffered injuries on or about the same time and, therefore, it can be assumed that the incident occurred in the manner alleged. Non-examination of the independent witnesses and non-examination of a deaf and dumb injured witness would not be fatal to the prosecution case in the given facts of the case. It has also been submitted that the medical opinion expresses only a possibility, but where the ocular account is clear and cogent, unless it is totally ruled out by the medical opinion, the ocular account is to be accepted and cannot be rejected only because the possibility of injury occurring in some other manner than suggested by the ocular account is there. It has been submitted that since the ocular account is largely corroborated and not ruled out by the medical evidence and there is a prompt First Information Report, the conviction recorded by the trial court does not call for interference.

17. In respect of the surviving accused-appellants not sharing common intention with Ram Pal, learned A.G.A. submitted that lathi blows are alleged to have been inflicted upon the deceased by other remaining accused, therefore, it can be accepted that all had participated with common intention to finish off the deceased.

18. Having considered the rival submissions and having noticed the prosecution evidence, before we proceed to test the testimony of the eyewitnesses PW-2 and PW-3, we may put on record that it is clear from the evidence brought on record that the informant's side and the accused side were inimical to each other and were embroiled in litigation, both civil and criminal, for long. PW-2 is the brother of the deceased as well as of the informant and PW-3 is also related to the victim family as could be noticed from his testimony. It is, therefore, a case where the ocular account is flowing from interested witnesses. We notice from paragraph 7 of PW-1's deposition that he had worked in the Kutchery. In these circumstances, it is probable that he would be aware of the nuances of litigation and might not like to miss an opportunity to out manoeuvre the other side. In Lakshman Prasad V. State of Bihar, 1981 (Supp) SCC 22, in paragraph 3, the Supreme Court had observed that mere congruity and consistency are not the sole test of truth. It was observed that sometimes even falsehood is given an adroit appearance of truth, so that truth disappears and falsehood comes on the surface. Thus, keeping in mind that the prosecution version is flowing from highly inimical and interested witnesses, we would have to be circumspect in accepting the ocular account without putting it to stringent tests.

19. What we notice here is that the ocular account not only flows from interested witnesses but the two witnesses who have stood up to support the prosecution case are chance witnesses. Notably, the informant (PW-1) is not the eye witness of the incident. PW-2 and PW-3, the alleged eyewitnesses, according to them, had gone to sell milk and were returning after having sold the milk, when, on way return, they witnessed the incident on a busy public street with shops around. According to their ocular account, they witnessed the incident from a short distance across the road. They also stated that there were several persons in the area, when they arrived. Yet, they do not make an attempt to save the victim or to intervene even though it is not the prosecution case that the accused were armed with deadly weapons such as cutting instruments or firearms. From PW-3's testimony it appears 50-60 people had collected there when he arrived. With 50-60 men around and there being just four or five assailants with hard blunt objects, easily people could have intervened and stopped the occurrence. But, here, there is no statement of any of the witnesses in respect of any effort in that regard. In a night occurrence, on a secluded street, non interference by bystanders may not raise a doubt. But here the incident is in broad day light on a busy street and in the presence of shop keepers as well as passersby yet, there is no effort to intervene. This raises a serious doubt with regard to the presence of PW-2 and PW-3 on the spot as also with regard to the incident occurring in the manner alleged.

20. Our doubt noticed above gets amplifies from the following circumstance - PW-2 states that Gungey was taken to hospital by him whereas, Ram Raj (not examined) arrived at the hospital about fifteen minutes to half an hour later, after Gungey had been admitted in the hospital. But, when we see the record (Ex. Ka-4) and notice the statement of PW-5, we find that Gungey was brought to the hospital by Ram Raj (i.e. son of the informant who has not been examined). PW-1 says that he rushed to the spot on receiving information. But how and from whom he got information PW-1 does not disclose. This clearly suggests that informant got the information ahead of PW-2 and PW-3 about the incident and, on receipt of information, the informant rushed to the spot and his son Ram Raj took the injured to the hospital and admitted him there. Notably, Ram Raj has not been examined by the prosecution. Had Ram Raj been examined, he could have cleared our doubts as to in what circumstances could he accompany the injured to the hospital. Name of Ram Raj in medical paper, on its own, might not be of significance as, out of many present there, the doctor while admitting the patient may record the name of any one of them in the admission register. But, here, PW-2 states that Ram Raj arrived 15 minutes to half an hour after Gungey was admitted. This circumstance definitely dents the credibility of PW-2's deposition that he was present at the spot and had rushed the injured and the deceased to the hospital. As PW-2 and PW-3 were allegedly together, credibility of PW-3's statement gets equally dented more so, because, during cross-examination, he stated that when he reached the spot already 50-60 persons had gathered, which suggests that the incident had already occurred.

21. Another aspect of the case is that the shop keeper Ram Prasad, in front of whose shop the incident occurred, has not been examined. Another striking feature of the case is that the Investigating Officer (PW-6) noticed the shop keeper washing off the blood stains from in front of his shop, but he took no steps to stop that and to collect the blood to confirm the spot. When we notice the site plan (Ex. Ka-7), spot A is the place where the deceased was assaulted and where the blood was washed off by Ram Prasad. Noticeably, spot A is located across the road/ street, if one views it from the shop of Ram Prasad. No doubt, the Truck is allegedly shown parked in front of the shop of Ram Prasad at point X but since spot A is across the road, why would Ram Prasad wash off the blood-stain there. All of this creates a serious doubt with regard to the spot where the deceased was allegedly assaulted, that is, whether it was on Patri of the road or in the middle of the road. Notably, the Investigating Officer did not record the statement of Ram Prasad to verify whether the allegations made before him were truthful. Another important feature in this regard is that as per the Site Plan (Ex. Ka-7) the blood was washed off from the Patri whereas in the testimony of PW-2 it has come that the blood was not on the Patri but on the metalled surface of the road 7-8 paces in front of the shop of Ram Prasad. All of this raises a strong suspicion that the incident occurred in the middle of the road and might be a case of a road accident which has been deftly given the colour of a heinous crime. In ordinary circumstances such a doubt may not arise but here the parties had been litigating with each other for few years and, therefore, well versed with nuances of law and well equipped to grab an opportunity of the kind offered by the incident to out manoeuvre their opponent.

22. When we notice the autopsy report, we find that there is no underlying fracture to the injury no.1. The fissured fracture noticed by the autopsy surgeon is on the right side parietal bone of the skull and on the right side of the frontal bone of the skull, whereas the lacerated wound is found on the left side which suggests that the fracture was caused not on account of infliction of iron rod blow, but on account of falling on the hard surface, after being hit on the left side of the head. Another important aspect noticeable in the autopsy report as well as in the testimony of the autopsy surgeon (PW-4) is that fracture of the ribs and sternum had no corresponding external injury. A specific suggestion was put to the doctor in respect of such injury being caused by a lathi blow to which he responded by saying that if it had been so, it would have left an external injury mark. PW-4, rather, accepted the possibility of that kind of injury as a consequence of compression. But the ocular account of PW-2 and PW-3 details no such circumstance on the basis of which we may be in a position to infer that, that kind of compression was a result of any specified overt act of the accused. Notably, it is not the case of the prosecution that the accused were kicking the deceased or were sitting over him, or pressing him. It is a simple narration of assault by rod and lathi. In fact, at one place, the witness stated that there was solitary assault by iron rod on the head though, later, it was added that lathi blows were also inflicted. But at no stage there is an allegation of pressing the deceased or kicking him or beating him with fists or of sitting over him. In these circumstances, the fracture of right parietal and frontal bone of the skull, sternum and ribs of the deceased, as a result of compression, find no explanation in the ocular account thereby making our suspicion stronger that those injuries were a consequence of an accident. Admittedly, there was a truck parked on the spot. The ownership of that truck has not come out in the prosecution evidence, though it has come in the statement of the Investigating Officer that that truck was seized and custody of that truck was passed on to its owner. This means that there was an involvement of a truck. PW-2 states that the accused were sitting on the truck and they alighted from that truck to launch an assault. PW-3 states that the accused came out from behind the truck. Both state that the truck was parked in front of the shop of Ram Prasad. Ram Prasad has not been examined. The cleaner, who also allegedly participated, has not been identified. Notably, it is not the prosecution case that the accused were lying in ambush to launch an assault on the victims as that spot was frequently visited by the victims at a specified time. For all the reasons detailed above, we do not find conviction in the prosecution story and the testimony of the eyewitnesses does not inspire our confidence. There appears a cloak of suspicion shrouding the prosecution case giving us a strong feeling that the informant party has grabbed the opportunity of an occurrence, perhaps an accident, to spin a story against its rivals. More so, because both PW-4 and PW-5 i.e. the doctors have accepted that the nature of injuries found on the deceased as well as the injured Gungey could be a result of an accident. Our doubts could have been dispelled by independent witnesses had they been examined by the prosecution, particularly because the incident occurred on a busy public street and in the presence of 50 odd bystanders including shop keepers who had their shops there, but, unfortunately, the shop keeper who allegedly washed off the blood from the spot was not even interrogated. Not only that, even the spot of occurrence could not be confirmed by lifting of blood-stained earth therefrom. Once that is the position, and the prosecution case flows from highly interested witnesses, who are witnesses by chance, and their presence at the spot is not confirmed by medical paper of the injured, which shows that the injured was brought by some other person to the hospital, we have no hesitation to extend the benefit of doubt to the accused-appellants.

23. As we have already doubted the ocular account of PW-2 and PW-3, we do not propose to examine the alternative argument on behalf of the surviving appellants that in the facts of the case they could not have been fastened liability for the charge of murder with the aid of section 34 IPC.

24. For the reasons above, the appeal is allowed. The judgment and order of conviction and sentence recorded by the trial court qua the surviving appellants, namely, appellants 1 (Ram Autar), 3 (Panna Lal) and 4 (Ram Chandra @ Bishun Chand, is set aside. The surviving appellants are acquitted of the charges for which they have been tried and convicted. They were on bail therefore, they need not surrender subject to compliance of the provisions of section 437A CrPC to the satisfaction of the trial court below. However, we notice that on 10.03.2022 non-bailable warrants were issued to the surviving appellants as none had appeared to press the appeal on their behalf. In that scenario, we direct that if, non-bailable warrants have not yet been executed, they shall not be executed and treated as cancelled, but if they have already been executed, the surviving appellants shall be released forthwith, subject to compliance of the provisions of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. to the satisfaction of the trial court.

25. Let a certified copy of this order along with the record be sent to the trial court for information and compliance.

Criminal Appeal No. 2846 of 2018

Arun Chand ...Appellant

Versus

State of U.P. ...Opp. Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Yogesh Kumar, Sri Dhirendra Kumar Srivastava, Sri Ghan Shyam Das, Sri Ranjit Saxena, Sri Kamal Krishna (Senior Adv.)

Counsel for the Opp. Party:
A.G.A.

Criminal Law- Circumstantial Evidence- The links in the chain of circumstances is necessary to be established for conviction resting upon circumstantial evidence.

Settled law that in a case resting upon circumstantial evidence the prosecution has to connect the links of the circumstances pointing only towards the guilt of the accused.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 27-The confession part is inadmissible in evidence-Appellant-accused was not present at the time of recovery-In the circumstances special knowledge of the spot of the dead body cannot be made attributable to the appellant-accused. The recovery of the dead body on the pointing of the accused is highly doubtful. Section 8 of Evidence Act would also not be attracted- If the recovery memos were prepared at the Police Station itself then the same would lose its sanctity-The body of the deceased infant was not recovered on the pointing out of the accused; the accused was not present with the police officials at the spot of recovery; the body was sealed but the recovery memo was prepared at the Thana.

Where the corpus delicti is not recovered upon the pointing out of the accused and the post recovery proceedings are conducted in the police station, then the said recovery would stand vitiated and in violation of Section 27 of the Evidence Act.

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 364A - In addition to first condition either Condition (ii) or (iii) has to be proved, failing which conviction under Section 364-A cannot be sustained. The prosecution in the case at hand failed to prove condition (i) and (ii) to constitute offence under Section 364A IPC.

For establishing the offence under Section 364 A of the IPC it is incumbent upon the prosecution to not only establish that kidnapping or abduction has been committed, but also to establish that threat to cause death or hurt to such person was made or the said person was put to death or hurt.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 313- The circumstances which are not put to the accused in his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C., cannot be used against him and must be excluded from consideration- Unless a circumstance against an accused is put to him in his examination, the same cannot be used against him.

Settled law that all the incriminating circumstances against the accused have to put to him while recording his statement under section 313 of the CrPc and the circumstances which have not been put to him during his examination u/s 313 of the CrPc, cannot be used against him by the prosecution. 1. Heard Sri Kamal Krishna, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ghanshyam Das, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Vikas Goswami, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 15.5.2018 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Khurja, District Bulandshahr, in Sessions Trial No. 440 of 2016 (State of U.P. Vs. Arun Chand), arising out of Case Crime No. 124 of 2016 under Sections 302, 364A, 379, 411 and 201 I.P.C., Police Station Chhattari, District Bulandshahr, whereby the appellant has been convicted and sentenced under Section 302 I.P.C. with life imprisonment and fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in case of default in payment of fine, he has to undergo additional one year imprisonment; under Section 364A I.P.C. he has been convicted and sentenced with life imprisonment and fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in case of default in payment of fine, he has to undergo additional one year imprisonment; under Section 379 I.P.C. he has been convicted and sentenced for three years imprisonment; under Section 411 I.P.C. he has been convicted and sentenced for three years imprisonment and under Section 201 I.P.C. he has been convicted and sentenced with seven years imprisonment and fine of Rs. 2,000/- and in case of default in payment of fine, he has to undergo additional six months imprisonment.

3. As per prosecution case, informant, father of the infant victim, aged about four months, alleged that on 16.6.2016, he and his wife had gone to their agricultural field; at about 9:30 a.m., he received an information that appellant-accused who had come to his house on 15.6.2016 had taken the infant and his mobile phone bearing number 976.....602 along with him. It was further alleged that his neighbours, Khempal Singh and Umesh Kumar had seen the appellant-accused taking the infant. It was further stated that at about 3:00 p.m., a resident of the village Girish Kumar received a call on his mobile number i.e. 976.....332 from the mobile number of the informant i.e. 976....602 demanding 5 lakhs towards ransom in lieu of the life and safety of the infant. The First Information Report (FIR) came to be lodged at 5:00 p.m. The scribe of the F.I.R. is Shiv Kumar. After investigation, the accused came to be charged under Sections 302, 364A, 379, 411 and 201 I.P.C.

4. The prosecution to prove the charge in all examined 12 witnesses, namely, (PW-1) Reshampal Singh/Informant; (PW-2) Khempal Singh and (PW-3) Umesh Kumar Verma, last seen witnesses (both the witnesses were declared hostile); (PW-4) Azeem, who has assigned the motive; (PW-5) Shivkumar, scribe of the F.I.R.; (PW-6) Satyadev, (PW-7) Murarilal, (PW-8) Jitendra Kumar, are witnesses to inquest; (PW-9) Dr. Dinesh Kumar, who conducted autopsy on the body of the infant deceased; (PW-10) Shyampratap Patel, Inspector, who proved recovery of the mobile; (PW-11) Gulab Singh Head Mohrir proved the F.I.R. and other entries in the G.D. and (PW-12) Brajmohan Singh, Sub Inspector who is witness of recovery of the dead body.

5. The following documents were exhibited i.e. Written Report (Exhibit Ka-1), Panchayatnama (Exhibit Ka-2), Postmortem Report (Exhibit Ka-3), Site Plan of incident (Exhibit Ka-4), Recovery Memo of Nokia Mobile (Exhibit Ka-5), Site Plan (Exhibit Ka-6), Charge sheet (Exhibit Ka-7), Chik FIR (Exhibit Ka-8), Photocopy of G.D. (Exhibit Ka-9), Letter of C.M.O. (Exhibit Ka-10), Photo Naash (Exhibit Ka-11), Challan Laash (Exhibit Ka-12) and Namuna Mohar (Exhibit Ka-13).

6. The accused on being confronted with the prosecution evidence, in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. denied the allegations stating that he has been falsely implicated, accordingly, demanded trial. No defence witness was produced.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the prosecution case is based on circumstantial evidence. The prosecution failed to prove the chain of events pointing to the guilt of the accused. He further submits that prosecution failed to prove that accused was last seen with the infant. The circumstance of recovery of the mobile and the dead body has not been proved; no recovery memo was drawn with regard to recovery of the dead body of the infant; the Panchayatnama was prepared at the Thana. As per the statement of the informant PW-1, accused came to be arrested on 16.6.2016 itself and not on the subsequent date i.e. 17.6.2016 as stated by the formal witnesses. In the circumstances, the case of prosecution stands demolished. It is further submitted that the alleged mobile recovered from the accused, no call detail record (CDR) was obtained so as to prove the demand of ransom. It is further submitted that as per the prosecution case, demand of ransom was made on the mobile number 976.....332 belonging to Girish Kumar, but Girish Kumar was not examined to prove the circumstance. It is submitted that the prosecution case is based on no evidence.

8. PW-1 in examination-in-chief stated that he works as a labour at Aligarh Company Bagh where the accused joined in the same capacity 2-3 days earlier and both were working together. On 15.6.2016, the appellant accompanied him to his village and on the subsequent day i.e. 16.6.2016, he and his wife went to the agricultural field for work. At about 9:30 a.m., appellant had taken along with him his infant child aged about four months and his Nokia phone bearing number 976.....602. He was seen carrying the infant by neighbours, Khempal (PW-2) and Umesh Kumar (PW-3). At about 3:00 p.m. Girish Kumar, resident of village, received a call on his mobile phone from the mobile phone of PW-1 conveying demand of ransom at Rs. 5 lakhs, failing which the child would be put to death. In cross-examination, PW-1 stated that he does not know the appellant, nor did he earlier dine with the accused; a day earlier, accused-appellant contacted the appellant, thereafter, he brought the appellant to the village. After dinner at 10:00 p.m. they went to sleep. PW-1 further stated that apart from his wife, he has three children aged about 8, 6 and 5 years, who were present in the house. He further stated that at 9:00 a.m. in the morning he left for his agricultural field and reached the field within fifteen minutes. At the field, he was until 10:15 a.m., he received an information that the appellant had escaped with his son. He further stated that the son (Prakash) of his uncle (Chacha) came on a cycle and informed that the accused on being contacted on the mobile of PW-1 demanded Rs. 5 lakhs towards ransom. The mobile number is 976.....332. He further stated that he informed the police officer at 2:00 p.m. He further admitted that he does not have his mobile; PW-2 (Khempal) and PW-3 (Umesh Kumar) and Arun Kumar were not known to the accused earlier and no other person in the village knows about the appellant, except PW-1. He further stated that on the date on which the FIR was lodged (16.6.2016) he was informed by the police official that the accused has been apprehended and his mobile recovered. The information was received at 10:30 p.m. He further stated that the mobile was recovered from Barauli crossing.

9. PW-2 (Kehmpal Singh) denied having knowledge of the incident and about the accused; he stated that he is the neighbour of the complainant and had gone to Thana along with complainant. He further stated that for the first time he has seen the accused who is present in the court. The witness was declared hostile.

10. Similarly, PW-3 (Umesh Kumar) denied knowing and recognising the accused; he had not seen the accused carrying the infant along with him. He further stated that he was not present in the village. The witness was declared hostile.

11. PW-4 (Azeem) stated that he is an employee at the ornament shop and was not aware as to whether the accused had sold ornaments; he was not aware of the incident as alleged by PW-1. The witness was declared hostile.

12. On close analysis of the testimony of PW-1 to PW-3, the following circumstance emerge:-

(i) PW-1 informant was not present and had not seen the incident;

(ii) PW-1 received information of the crime at his agricultural field;

(iii) the demand of ransom was not made to him but to a third person Girish Kumar;

(iv) the nephew of PW-1 informed him of the demand of ransom made on the mobile phone of Girish Kumar, but neither of them were examined by the prosecution;

(v) PW-1 categorically deposed that the accused came to be arrested on the same day (16.05.2018) and the mobile phone (976...602) was also recovered;

(vi) the last seen witnesses PW-2 and PW-3 were declared hostile on not having seen the accused.

13. PW-5 the scribe of the F.I.R. stated that on 17.6.2016, the body of the infant was found from the jungle; in his presence, Panchayatnama was prepared by the police officer and the body was sealed and sent for postmortem. He signed the Panchayatnama. In cross-examination, he admitted that he had written the report (Tahrir) as was told and dictated to him by the police officer (Daroga Ji). After writing the complaint, he handed it to the police official. He further stated that when he was writing the complaint Reshampal (PW-1) was not present. He further stated in cross-examination that he had not seen the accused earlier; the body of the infant was not recovered on the pointing out of the accused. He further stated that he did not accompany the police, nor, the accused was present on the spot; the body of the infant was sealed and brought to the Thana and at Thana, the formalities of the Panchayatnama were undertaken and completed. He further stated that at the Thana, he had signed the Panchayatnama. The witness was not declared hostile by the prosecution.

14. PW-6 (Satyadev) is a witness to the Panchayatnama. He stated that on 17.6.2016 in his presence between 8:30 - 9, Panchayatnama was prepared at Jawa Range jungle; he thereafter signed the Panchayatnama; he further stated that on the spot, he reached on a vehicle other than that of the police vehicle. In cross-examination, he admitted that the body of the infant was brought to the Thana and he had signed the Panchayatnama at the Thana; he further admitted that the body of the deceased was not recovered on the pointing out of accused; he further stated that the accused had not accompanied, either, him or the police officials to the spot. The witness was declared hostile.

15. Murari Lal (PW-7) is a witness to the Panchayatnama. He reiterated that the Panchayatnama was prepared at Jawa Range jungle; the body was found in the Jawar field in the Jawa Range jungle. He declined giving any statement to the police that the offence was committed by the accused and the body was disposed off in the jungle. The witness was declared hostile. On being cross-examined the witness admitted that he had not earlier seen the accused; the accused had not accompanied, nor was the accused brought on the spot of recovery by the police officials. He admitted his thumb impression on the Panchayatnama. The witness was declared hostile.

16. Jitendra Kumar (PW-8) is a witness of the Panchayatnama. He reiterated that the Panchayatnama was prepared at Jawa Range jungle. The witness was declared hostile. He denied recognising the accused.

17. PW-5, PW-6, PW-7 and PW-8 are witnesses to the Panchayatnama and PW-5 is the scribe of the report given at the Thana. PW-6, PW-7 and PW-8 were declared hostile. From their testimony, the following circumstance stands established:-

(i) all the witnesses are unanimous that the body of the infant was sealed on the spot of recovery i.e. Jawar field;

(ii) all of them stated that the appellant accused was not present on the spot of recovery;

(iii) Panchayatnama was filled and prepared at the Thana, in contradiction to the testimony of PW-12;

(iv) PW-5 was not declared hostile and the other witnesses (PW-6, PW-7, PW-8) though declared hostile corroborate the version of PW-5 that accused was not present and the formalities of Panchayatnama was done at the Thana.

18. Dr. Dinesh Kumar (PW-9) conducted the postmortem on the body of the infant on 17.6.2016 at 4:05 p.m. and the following ante mortem injuries were noted:

1. Abraded contusion 1 ½ cm. x 1 ½ cm. on right side neck 5 cm. below from right ear.

2. Abraded contusion two in number a front of neck at the middle part. On opening the wound congested blood found underneath the injuries. Trachea congested; hyoid bone fractured.

3. Abrasion multiple injuries 4 in number 10 cm. x 10 cm. area at right side abdomen 1 cm. x 1 cm. in size.

19. In the opinion of PW-9, asphyxia due to pressing of the neck was the cause of death; the approximate time is one day earlier; he further stated that injury no.1 and injury no.2 were caused due to strangulation; the time of death probably would be after 3:00 p.m. on 16.6.2016. In cross-examination, he further stated that death could have been caused between 12 noon to 2:00 p.m.

20. Inspector Shyampratap Patel (PW-10) proved the entries of Chik F.I.R., G.D. entries made on 16.6.2016; the statement of Head Muharir Gulab Singh, who has written the FIR; he further stated that PW-1 informant was present at Thana; on the pointing out of the informant, the spot was inspected and site plan was prepared on 17.6.2016. PW-10 along with Sub Inspector and other police officials left the Thana in search of accused at 5:00 a.m.; on the pointing out of the informer, accused was apprehended at 6:30 a.m. while holding a mobile phone of Nokia company in his right hand; the SIM bearing no. 976....602 was recovered. At that moment, informant PW-1 reached the spot and identified the mobile phone and the accused and further stated that it is through this mobile, ransom was demanded; the mobile and the SIM card as sealed on the spot. Thereafter, accused was brought to Thana and his statement was recorded; accused confessed of committing the crime, thereafter, PW-10, S.O. and police force along with the accused went to the spot in the jungle of Village Kallupura; accused went towards the agricultural field of Roshanlal and on his pointing out, the body of the deceased infant was recovered. The site plan of recovery was prepared on the spot after inspection; after the recovery of the body Section 302 I.P.C. was added on 21.7.2016 and charge sheet was filed under Sections 379/411/364A/302 and 201 IPC;

21. PW-1 informant identified the mobile on opening of the seal. In cross-examination, PW-10 stated that the signature of the accused is not to be seen on the seal, but his signature is present; he further stated that he is not aware as to whether the signature was taken in his presence; he admitted that the IMEI number of the recovered mobile was not noted; he further stated that the complainant had reached the spot while preparing the recovery memo; the complainant signature is not present on the recovered mobile; he further stated that he had not prepared the site plan of the spot of arrest or recovery of the mobile; he further stated that no enquiry with regard to mobile, SIM card and IMEI number and in whose name SIM card was issued in respect of mobile number 976..602 was enquired; the witness, however, admitted that he also had made no enquiry with regard to mobile number 976....332 and in whose name SIM card was issued, nor, the witness was aware as to whether PW-1 had sold any land; he further admitted that he had not taken the statement of minor daughter (8 years) of the informant; he further admitted that he had not taken the statement of Girish Kumar, the owner of mobile number 976....332, on whose mobile it is alleged that ransom was demanded; he further admitted that CDR of either of the mobile was not obtained; he further admitted that there is no independent witness to the recovery memo of the mobile phone; he further stated that the spot from where the body of the infant was recovered is 10 to 15 kms from the house of informant.

22. Brajmohan Singh, Sub Inspector (PW-12) stated that he was posted at Thana Chatari on 17.6.2016; the accused upon arrest was taken to the spot where the family members of the deceased were present; in the presence of the family members on the pointing out of accused, the body of the deceased was recovered from the Jawar field of Roshanlal; Panchayatnama was prepared on the spot and signature and thumb impression of the panch witnesses were taken; all formalities for postmortem were completed. In cross-examination, he admitted that on the Panchayatnama, date was initially recorded 16.6.2016, thereafter it was scored out and 17.6.2016 was recorded. Similarly, he admitted that the time was recorded 7:30 a.m. which was subsequently struck off and 8:20 a.m. was recorded; he admitted that a.m./p.m. was not noted; the witness further admitted that the distance initially recorded was 20 km. which was thereafter struck off and 16 km. was recorded; in the last paragraph, the time 8:30 was struck off and 8:20 was recorded; a.m./p.m. was not recorded and similarly in the same paragraph, time 9:00 was struck off and 9:50 was recorded; a.m/p.m. was not recorded. Further, he admitted that in the first para, the expression house "makaan" was struck off and "jungle" was written; he admitted that there is cutting in "jungle" and "Kallupura" Village. The witness further admitted that the recovery memo of the dead body was not prepared.

23. From the statement of the Inspector PW-10 and Sub Inspector PW-12, the following circumstances emerge:-

(i) the accused came to be arrested on 17.05.2018 at 6:30 a.m. as against the testimony of PW-1 who stated that accused was arrested on 16.05.2018 and the mobile was recovered on the same day, he was informed by the Thana at 10:30 p.m.;

(ii) the accused was brought to the Thana, he confessed commission of the crime;

(iii) on the information of the accused, on his pointing out the body of the infant was recovered as against the statement of witness of the Panchayatnama PW-5, PW-6, PW-7 and PW-8;

(iv) the family members were already present on the spot of recovery;

(v) Panchayatnama was prepared on the spot and the signatures of the panchayat witnesses were taken, as against the testimony of PW-5 to PW-8 that formalities were completed at the Thana;

(vi) PW-12 admitted the cuttings/interpolation in the Panchayatnama with regard to time, date, am/pm, place of recovery;

(vii) the recovery memo of the body of the informant at the pointing out of the accused was not prepared;

(viii) the call details (CDR) of both the mobile numbers were not taken;

24. In the statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the incriminating circumstance that the body was recovered on the pointing out of accused, in absence of recovery memo, was not put to the accused i.e. no explanation was sought from the accused with regard to the recovery of the body of the infant at his pointing out.

25. The prosecution case rests on circumstantial evidence; there is no last seen evidence that the accused had taken the infant and the mobile phone along with him; the demand of ransom was received on the phone number 976...332 belonging to Girish Kumar, resident of the village, who was not examined. Nephew (Prakash) to whom the information with regard to demand of ransom was conveyed by Girish Kumar was not examined; the demand of ransom and threat/hurt to be caused to the infant in the event ransom is not paid, has not been proved; it is not the case of the prosecution that the demand of ransom was made from PW-1.

26. The position of law is well settled that the links in the chain of circumstances is necessary to be established for conviction resting upon circumstantial evidence. This has been articulated in one of the early decisions of the Supreme Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra1. The relevant paragraphs reads thus:

"153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned "must or should" and not "may be" established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between "may be proved" and "must be or should be proved" as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobadev. State of Maharashtra where the observations were made: [SCC para 19, p. 807: SCC (Cri) p. 1047]

Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between "may be' and "must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty,

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency,

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence."

27. Further, the prosecution case that the accused came to be arrested on 17.6.2016 at about 6:30 a.m., is not substantiated by the statement of informant (PW-1). In cross-examination, PW-1 categorically admitted that the accused came to be arrested on the date on which the FIR was lodged (16.6.2016). He was informed about the recovery of the mobile duly conveyed by the police officials to PW-1 at 10:30 p.m. In these circumstances, the arrest of accused on 17.6.2016 at about 6:30-7:00 a.m. on the pointing out of informer becomes doubtful; as per the statement of police officials, including PW-10, after arrest complainant reached the spot, thereafter, the accused was taken to Thana; from Thana, the accused was taken to the spot as per his information to recover the body of the infant. As per the statement of PW-12, the family members were already present on the spot and in presence of the family members, the body of the deceased was recovered from a Jawar field in the jungle on the pointing out of accused. In the circumstances, it becomes doubtful that the body was recovered on the information which was in the exclusive knowledge of the accused, admittedly, the family members were already present at the spot of recovery. Meaning thereby, the body was already discovered and not recovered at the behest of the accused, which is also established from the statement of PW-5 to PW-8 that appellant accused was not present on the spot at the time of recovery..

28. The various requirements of Section 27 of Evidence Act, can be summed up as follows:

"(1) The fact of which evidence is sought to be given must be relevant to the issue. It must be borne in mind that the provision has nothing to do with question of relevancy. The relevancy of the fact discovered must be established according to the prescriptions relating to relevancy of other evidence connecting it with the crime in order to make the fact discovered admissible.

(2) The fact must have been discovered.

(3) The discovery must have been in consequence of some information received from the accused and not by accused's own act.

(4) The persons giving the information must be accused of any offence.

(5) He must be in the custody of a police officer.

(6) The discovery of a fact in consequence of information received from an accused in custody must be deposed to.

(7) Thereupon only that portion of the information which relates distinctly or strictly to the fact discovered can be proved. The rest is inadmissible."

29. There can be no shadow of doubt that the confession part is inadmissible in evidence. It is also not in dispute that the Panch witnesses had categorically deposed that the appellant-accused was not present at the time of recovery and the Panchayatnama was done at the Thana. In the circumstances special knowledge of the spot of the dead body cannot be made attributable to the appellant-accused. The recovery of the dead body on the pointing of the accused is highly doubtful. Section 8 of Evidence Act would also not be attracted.

30. The Supreme Court in Harivadan Babubhai Patel Vs. State of Gujarat2 referred to A.N. Venkatesh Vs. State of Karnataka3, wherein, it has been ruled that:

"9. By virtue of Section 8 of the Evidence Act, the conduct of the accused person is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact. The evidence of the circumstance, simpliciter, that the accused pointed out to the police officer, the place where the dead body of the kidnapped boy was found... would be admissible as conduct under Section 8 irrespective of the fact whether the statement made by the accused contemporaneously with or antecedent to such conduct falls within the purview of Section 27 of the Evidence Act or not..."

31. In the said decision, reliance was placed on the principle laid down in Prakash Chand Vs. State (Delhi Admin.)4. It is worth noting that in the said case, there was material on record that the accused had taken the investigating officer to the spot and pointed out the place where the dead body was buried and the Court treated the same as admissible piece of evidence under Section 8 as the conduct of the accused.

32. If the recovery memos were prepared at the Police Station itself then the same would lose its sanctity as held by Supreme Court in Varun Chaudhary Vs. State of Rajasthan5.

33. Further, the recovery memo was not prepared of the body. The Panchayatnama witnesses were unanimous and categorically stated that the accused was not present on the spot and in cross-examination, they admitted that the Panchyatanama was prepared and signed at the Thana. The Panchyatnama witnesses, except PW-5, were declared hostile, but having regard to the statement of PW-1, that accused came to be arrested on the day of lodging of the FIR on 16.6.2016, the statements of Panchayatnama witnesses becomes relevant that the Panchayatnama was not prepared on the spot but at the Thana.

34. In the circumstances, the arrest of the accused and the consequent recovery of mobile phone from accused and the subsequent recovery of the body of the infant at his pointing out is not proved beyond reasonable doubt. Further, as per the statement of the scribe (PW-5), he stated that complainant was not present at the Thana; the complaint was written on the direction and dictation of the police official, thereafter, the informant put his signature. In cross-examination, PW-5 admitted that the body of the deceased infant was not recovered on the pointing out of the accused; he further stated that the accused was not present with the police officials at the spot of recovery; the body was sealed but the recovery memo was prepared at the Thana.

35. Further, the ingredients of the offence under Section 364A IPC is not made out from the prosecution evidence taken on face value. The demand of ransom and upon failure to satisfy the demand, the infant would be hurt or there would be threat to his life has not been proved. Admittedly, PW-1 (informant) did not receive the call for ransom; as per informant and his nephew (Prakash), Girish Kumar is said to have received the call on his mobile phone 976...332; neither of them were examined. The CDR of both the mobile phones were not obtained or enquired by the Investigating Officer to prove the demand of ransom.

36. In Shaik Ahmed Vs. State of Telangana6 after noticing the statutory provision of Section 364-A of the Indian Penal Code, 1860, and the law laid down by the Court in the cases noted therein, concluded that the essential ingredients to convict an accused under Section 364-A which are required to be proved by the prosecution are as follows:

"(i) Kidnapping or abduction of any person or keeping a person in detention after such kidnapping or abduction; and

(ii) threatens to cause death or hurt to such person, or by his conduct gives rise to a reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt or;

(iii) causes hurt or death to such person in order to compel the Government or any foreign State or any Governmental organization or any other person to do or abstain from doing any act or to pay a ransom."

37. Thus, after establishing first condition, one more condition has to be fulfilled since after first condition, word used is "and". Thus, in addition to first condition either Condition (ii) or (iii) has to be proved, failing which conviction under Section 364-A cannot be sustained. The prosecution in the case at hand failed to prove condition (i) and (ii) to constitute offence under Section 364A IPC.

38. Further, recovery of the body on the pointing out of the accused has not been proved. Admittedly, the recovery memo was not drawn as mandated under Section 27 of the Evidence Act, neither the incriminating circumstance that the body was recovered on the pointing of the accused was put to him under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The prosecution evidence (per PW-12) the family members were already present on the spot of recovery. The body was discovered and not recovered on the pointing out of the deceased. The Panchayatnama was drawn at the Thana, the Panchayatnama witnesses signed the document at the Thana. The accused was not present at the spot as per Panch witnesses. The prosecution evidence and conduct of the accused would not fall within the ambit of Section 8 of the Evidence Act.

39. The Supreme Court in Sujit Biswas Vs. State of Assam7 held that in criminal trial, the purpose of examining the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C., is to meet the requirement of the principles of natural justice. The circumstances which are not put to the accused in his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C., cannot be used against him and must be excluded from consideration.

"20. It is a settled legal proposition that in a criminal trial, the purpose of examining the accused person under Section 313 Cr.P.C., is to meet the requirement of the principles of natural justice, i.e. audi alterum partem. This means that the accused may be asked to furnish some explanation as regards the incriminating circumstances associated with him, and the court must take note of such explanation. In a case of circumstantial evidence, the same is essential to decide whether or not the chain of circumstances is complete. No matter how weak the evidence of the prosecution may be, it is the duty of the court to examine the accused, and to seek his explanation as regards the incriminating material that has surfaced against him. The circumstances which are not put to the accused in his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C., cannot be used against him and must be excluded from consideration. The said statement cannot be treated as evidence within the meaning of Section 3 of the Evidence Act, as the accused cannot be cross-examined with reference to such statement."

40. In Hate Singh Bhagat Singh Vs. State of Madhya Bharat8 Supreme Court held, that any circumstance in respect of which an accused has not been examined under Section 342 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 (corresponding to Section 313 Cr.P.C.), cannot be used against him. The said judgment has subsequently been followed in a catena of judgments uniformly, taking the view that unless a circumstance against an accused is put to him in his examination, the same cannot be used against him. (See also: Shamu Balu Chaugule Vs. State of Maharashtra9; Harijan Magha Jesha Vs. State of Gujarat10; and Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra11.

41. Having regard to the cumulative prosecution evidence, the chain of events do not connect the accused-appellant with commission of the offence. It appears that the body was discovered by the family members, thereafter, the formalities were completed at the Thana. The accused never accompanied the police officials to the spot to get the body recovered; the report was also lodged on the dictation of the police official. The finding reached by the trial court is per se perverse, conviction is based on the statement of PW-1 and the alleged recovery of the mobile and the body. In the backdrop of statements of witnesses, reasonable doubt has been created by learned counsel for the appellant contending that the Panchayatnama was drawn earlier, interpolations and corrections were made with regard to the spot and the recovery of the body. Earlier it was recorded that the recovery was made from the house (makaan) but was subsequently scored out and recorded "jungle'; similarly, cuttings with regard to timing, which according to learned counsel for the appellant, was done so as to match the timing of arrest. Further, on close scrutiny of the document (Panchayatnama), there is no countersign of the police official on the cuttings, except at one or two places. The document casts serious doubt with regard to the arrest and recovery of the mobile phone and the body at the pointing out of the accused. The date and time of arrest of the accused is seriously doubtful. The demand of ransom or of causing harm to the infant has not been proved.

42. The appeal is, accordingly, allowed. The impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence is set aside. The appellant- Arun Chand is directed to be released forthwith, if not required in any other offence.

43. The appellant on being released the mandate of Section 437-A Cr.P.C. to be complied.

44. Let the lower court record be sent back to the court below forthwith, along with a copy of this judgment, for ascertaining necessary compliance.

THE HON'BLE SUNEET KUMAR, J.
THE HON'BLE VIKRAM D CHAUHAN, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 3781 of 2002

Raj Veer Singh ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opp. Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Raj Kumar Khanna, Sri Bharat Singh, Sri Mohd. Imran Khan

Counsel for the Opp. Party:
A.G.A.

Criminal Law- Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 376- Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Section 3- The statement of the prosecutrix, if found to be worthy of credence and reliable, requires no corroboration- The court can record conviction of the accused on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix- If for some reason the court finds it difficult to place implicit reliance on her testimony, it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony, short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice- The evidence of rape victim stands at par with the evidence of an injured witness- Even where no external or internal marks of injury on the private part of the victim of rape was found in medical examination, the testimony of the prosecutrix that she was raped by the accused, cannot be discarded- The medical expert opinion with regard to the commission of the offence would not demolish the prosecution case.

Where the court finds the testimony of the prosecutrix credible, trustworthy, and inspiring then without seeking further corroboration, the court can secure the conviction of the accused solely based on the said testimony as the testimony of the prosecutrix is held to be at par with that of an injured witness. Corroboration would be required only where the testimony of the prosecutrix has deficiencies and lacunae.

Criminal Law- Indian Penal Code, 1860- Section 376- Quantum of Punishment- Proportionate Punishment- Theory of deterrence- On arriving at the conclusion that the appellant is liable to be convicted under Section 376 IPC and the appropriate sentence to be imposed needs consideration. The incident in question is based on the complaint dated 31.3.2001- Section 376 has been amended w.e.f. 21.04.2018 providing for the minimum sentence of 10 years, the case on hand is of 2001 and the conviction of the appellant was on 6.9.2002. The incident having occurred prior to amendment, the preamended provision will have to be taken note of. The same provides that a person committed of rape shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life and shall also be liable to fine. In the instant case, taking into consideration all facts including that no material is available on record to indicate that the appellant has any criminal antecedents and that there is no reason to apprehend that the appellant would indulge in similar acts in future. Further, victim has left the village where the appellant resides. In the circumstances, we deem it appropriate that the sentence of 10 years rigorous imprisonment would have been sufficient deterrent to serve the ends of justice.

As the incident is of before the amendment of Section 376 hence the applicant/ accused shall have to be sentenced according to the pre-amended provision which provides minimum punishment of 7 years and in view of the mitigating circumstances in favour of the appellant, sentence accordingly modified to 10 years R.I (Para 21, 24, 27, 29, 30, 36)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Sri Bharat Singh, learned counsel for the appellant, learned AGA for the State and perused the lower court record with the assistance of learned counsels.

2. This criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 6.9.2002 passed by Additional Sessions Judge IV, Moradabad in S.T. No.184 of 2002 (State Vs. Rajveer), under sections 452 and 376 IPC, P.S. Hayat Nagar, District Moradabad, whereby, the appellant has been convicted and sentenced under section 452 IPC with one year rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.5,000/- and convicted and sentenced under Section 376 IPC with life imprisonment and fine of Rs.10,000/-. In case of default in payment of fine, additional simple imprisonment for a period of two years.

3. As per prosecution case, husband of the victim i.e. Sukhram lodged a report on 31.3.2001 at 12:10 p.m. alleging that on 30.3.2001 at about 11:00 p.m. in the night, appellant taking advantage that his wife was alone in the house, committed offence of rape. It was further alleged that the appellant is neighbour and earlier in the morning of the day of incident, he had quarrel with the appellant over a drain. On fear of the appellant, he left the village and had gone to his cousin's place in another village.

4. After investigation, police report/charge sheet came to be filed under Section 376 IPC against the appellant. The appellant was summoned to stand trial on charges under Sections 376 and 452 IPC.

5. The prosecution to prove the charge, examined in all five witnesses. Three witnesses of fact and two formal witnesses. Sukhram, informant/husband of the victim (PW-1), victim (PW-2), Noshe (PW-3) an independent witness/neighbour of the complainant, Constable Harendra Singh (PW-4) who proved the Chik F.I.R. and G.D. Entry and Dr. Aruna Pal (PW-5) proved the medical examination report and pathology report.

6. Sukhram (PW-1), the complainant stated that he is aged about 28 years and a labour. On the day of the incident at about 10:00 a.m., a brawl ensued between him and the accused-appellant over a drain and the flowing water, which the accused had obstructed. He further deposed that out of fear of the accused, he left the village and went to neighbouring village, at his cousin's house. On returning to his village on the following day, his wife (victim) informed that at about 11:00 p.m. on the previous night; accused entered the house after opening the latch (kundi) and committed the offence of rape. He further stated that victim informed him that on hearing her scream neighbours, Noshe Ali and Shamim, came on the spot and saw the accused escaping from the premises. He further stated that he had taken his wife to the Thana and report came to be lodged on a written complaint, reduced in writing at his home.

7. He identified his thumb impression on the complaint (Exhibit Ka-1). He further stated that the clothes of the victim was taken, recovery memo was drawn, on which his thumb impression was taken (Exhibit Ka-2). In cross examination, he stated that Maluki Pradhan, and Hari Singh had not accompanied him to the court, but they met him within the premises of the court. He further stated that Maluki Pradhan, and Hari Singh are facing trial for murder of the brother of the accused. He further stated that the house of the accused is adjacent to his house, as well as, one of his (appellant) house is opposite to his house. There is a drain between the house of the complainant and that of the accused. The drain vests in gram panchayat and is not owned by either of the parties. He further stated that at 6:00 in the evening, he left the village on foot to the neighbouring village to his cousin's house. He further deposed that with regard to the dispute of the drain, he had not given any written complaint. He returned to the village at 7:00 in the morning on the following day, it is then his wife informed him of the incident that had occurred at 11:00 p.m. in the night. He further stated that in the afternoon of the incident he met Maluki Pradhan, and denied that a false case was lodged at the behest of Maluki Pradhan and that Noshe Ali (PW-3) falsely testified, as he had transferred his house to him. He further stated that the police had visited his house on the day, on which the complaint was lodged and after two days, police inspected the site.

8. Victim (PW-2) in her examination-in-chief stated that at the time of incident she was residing at the village and after the incident, she left the village out of fear of the accused-assailant. She further stated that her husband left the village due to fear as on the said date, a brawl with regard to a drain had taken place between the accused and her husband. At the time of incident she was alone in the house; the accused barged into her house and pushed her down, thereafter, committed the offence of rape. She further stated that the accused had pressed her mouth with his hand so she could not scream. On opportunity she screamed, her neighbour, Noshe Ali (PW-3) and Shamim came; accused escaped from the room; she identified the accused in the light of lamp.

9. In cross examination, victim deposed that accused has a house opposite to her house, as well as, adjacent to her house; two adjacent houses are separated by a narrow lane, where only human being can pass through; the drain between two houses was a bone of contention between her husband and the accused. She further stated that accused had obstructed the drain by putting mud, earlier in the morning, thereafter, he abused her husband and also beat him, as well as, her. She further stated that she did not incur any injury. She stated that she did not complain of the incident to Maluki Pradhan of the village and had not informed any other villager. She further stated that her husband had left the house after the incident out of fear. She out of fear kept quite. While she was sleeping, the door of the house was bolted with latch. She further deposed that the face of the assailant was not covered by any cloth and on her scream, neighbour, including, Noshe Ali (PW-3) reached the spot.

10. Noshe Ali (PW-3) in his statement deposed that the complainant and his wife are resident of the village; he is immediate neighbour; incident is of 11:00 p.m. and on hearing scream of the victim, he reached the spot and on seeing him, accused escaped from the spot. He saw the victim half clad and the victim informed him of the incident and the offence committed by the accused. He further stated that no other person was present in the house. In cross examination, he deposed that earlier he had submitted an affidavit in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate. He identified and proved the affidavit. He further stated that he visited the house of the victim on hearing her scream and saw the accused escaping from the house of the victim. He further stated that accused was wearing nikkar and dhoti and his dhoti was open. He further stated that he had seen the victim at her house/kotha. He identified the accused in torch light. He further stated that his son had purchased the house of the complainant/victim. On suggestion, he denied that due to this reason he is giving false statement.

11. Clerk Constable Harendra Singh (PW-4) proved the documentary evidence, the F.I.R. and G.D. entry being Exhibit Ka-3 and Exhibit Ka-4. In cross examination, PW-4 stated that he asked the complainant about the scribe of the report, but, complainant did not tell the name of the scribe; complainant had come to police station with a written complaint. He further stated that on the written complaint, thumb impression of the complainant was already made.

12. Dr. Aruna Pal (PW-5) stated that on 31.3.2001, at about 5:45 p.m., she examined the victim; she was brought by constable Bhupendra Chaubey. She proved the medical examination report and the pathology report, wherein, it is noted that on general examination there was no mark of injury over her body. On internal examination, it is noted that there is no mark of injury over private parts. Vagina admits two fingers easily. Uterus and cervix normal. No bleeding was present. Vaginal smear taken and sent for histopathology. Medical Expert opined that no definite opinion about rape can be given. On a suggestion, PW-5 stated that it is wrong to say that the offence of rape was not committed merely in absence of spermatozoa.

13. The accused on being confronted with the prosecution evidence and the incriminating circumstance, in statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. denied the charge and stated that he has been falsely implicated due to enmity; the prosecution witnesses have given false statements. On specific query as to whether accused wants to say anything in defence, he declined.

14. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that witnesses of fact PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 have been implanted at the behest of Maluki, Pradhan of village and Hari Singh for the reason that brother of the appellant was murdered by Maluki Pradhan and Hari Singh. It is urged that witnesses of fact were won over by them. This fact is also substantiated by the statement of PW-1 that after the dispute and brawl with regard to the drain, he visited the Pradhan and informed him in the afternoon. It is further submitted that the testimony of PW-3, the independent witness cannot be relied upon, as he is beneficiary of having purchased the house of the complainant/victim.

15. It is further submitted that as per testimony of PW-2 she stated that after commission of offence, accused left the Kotha, thereafter, she screamed, on hearing her scream neighbours came. In other words, it is submitted that the testimony of the independent witness PW-3 cannot be relied upon/believed, as it is in contradiction to the statement of the victim that the accused had left the site of incident. It is further submitted that as per medical examination report and medical expert opinion, the incident of rape is not corroborated. There is no internal/external injury, nor, spermatozoa was found.

16. Finally, it is submitted that appellant is having no previous criminal history; throughout trial he was on bail; thereafter, on conviction, he was enlarged on bail by this Court on 11.9.2002. It is urged that the accused has not misused his liberty, nor, indulged in any other criminal activity. In the circumstances, it is urged that maximum quantum of sentence imposed by the trial court is excessive. Having due regard to the conduct of accused-appellant, a lessor sentence would suffice.

17. The fact in issue to be determined is as to whether the prosecution was able to prove the incriminating circumstance connecting the accused-appellant with the commission of the offence of rape. As per prosecution case, complainant, husband of the victim, reported that the accused-appellant had committed the offence in his absence taking advantage that his wife was alone at the house. He further stated that out of fear, he left the village as he was threatened by the accused over a dispute of a drain. On returning to the village on the subsequent day at 7:00 a.m., victim informed him about the incident. The victim in her statement clearly identified the accused of having committed the offence taking advantage that she was alone at the house and further on hearing her scream, neighbours rushed and they had identified the accused. PW-3, a next door neighbour, clearly stated that he had seen the accused leaving the door of the house of the victim at the relevant time of the incident, he reached the house of the victim on hearing her scream. He further stated that he had seen that victim was half clad and weeping; while accused escaped, he was wearing nikkar and dhoti, which was open and his eyes was red. The testimony of PW-2 and PW-3 prove the commission of the offence and presence of the accused at the relevant time at the site beyond reasonable doubt.

18. The site-map shows both houses of the accused, one across the road and one adjacent to the house of the victim. In between the adjacent houses, a narrow lane and drain has been shown. On the other side of the victim's house, house of PW-3 has been shown. The place of the incident has also been shown in the site plan. The site-plan corroborates the testimonies of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3. The medical examination report alone is not sufficient to demolish the testimony of the victim and the independent witness PW-3. Further, victim (PW-2) deposed that out of fear, her husband left the village and after the incident they sold the house and left the village permanently.

19. On the day of cross examination, PW-1 admitted that Maluki Singh and Hari Singh were present in the court premises. In this backdrop, it is urged that the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 is not trustworthy and reliable. The witnesses were won over by Pradhan to settle scores with the accused.

20. The questions arising for consideration before us are: whether the prosecution story, as alleged, inspires confidence of the court on the evidence adduced? Whether the prosecutrix, is a witness worthy of reliance? Whether the testimony of a prosecutrix who has been in victim of rape stands in need of corroboration and, if so, whether such corroboration is available in the facts of the present case? Whether she was a consenting party to the crime?

21. At the outset the testimony of the prosecutrix cannot be doubted merely for the reason that her husband met the Pradhan and Hari Singh and that they were present in the court premises on the date of examination of PW-1. The defence has not produced any evidence or material to substantiate that the witnesses of fact have been implanted. The doubt has to be a reasonable doubt and not on excuse for acquittal.

22. In State of Rajasthan v. N.K. The Accused1, Supreme Court has held:

"9. ...A doubt, as understood in criminal jurisprudence, has to be a reasonable doubt and not an excuse for a finding in favour of acquittal. An unmerited acquittal encourages wolves in the society being on the prowl for easy prey, more so when the victims of crime are helpless females. The courts have to display a greater sense of responsibility and to be more sensitive while dealing with charges of sexual assault on women.....In State of Punjab v. Gurmeet Singh, (1996) 2 SCC 384, "[A] rapist not only violates the victim's privacy and personal integrity, but inevitably causes serious psychological as well as physical harm in the process. Rape is not merely a physical assault- it is often destructive of the whole personality of the victim. A murderer destroys the physical body of his victim, a rapist degrades the very should of the helpless female. The courts, therefore, shoulder a great responsibility while trying an accused on charges of rape. The must deal with such cases with utmost sensitivity. The courts should examine the broader probabilities of a case and not get swayed by minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix, which are not of a fatal nature, to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case."

23. The contention of learned counsel for the appellant on close scrutiny would not demolish the prosecution case. PW-1 meeting the village Pradhan (Maluki) in the afternoon after the dispute/brawl over the drain is a natural behaviour, PW-1 probably met the Pradhan either to intervene or settle the dispute between the neighbours. That would certainly not mean that witnesses were won over. The presence of the Pradhan in the court premises on the day of the testimony of PW-1 also does not show that PW-1/PW-2 were influenced in falsely implicating the accused. It can be a co-incidence or an assurance to the PW-1 that the accused or any person on his behalf would not harm PW-1 in the court. PW-1 and PW-2 categorically stated that PW-1 left the village out of fear of the accused and PW-2 stated that after the incident, fear and humiliation compelled them to sell their house and permanently leave the village.

24. The prosecution case must stand on it legs to bring home the charge beyond reasonable doubt. The prosecution case stands proved on the sterling, credible and trustworthy testimony of the victim duly corroborated by PW-1 and the independent witness PW-3. The presence of the accused was duly proved by PW-3 immediately after the incident.

25. In State of Orissa v. Thakara Besra2, Supreme Court held that rape is not mere physical assault, rather it often distracts (sic destroys) the whole personality of the victim. The rapist degrades the very soul of the helpless female and, therefore, the testimony of the prosecutrix must be appreciated in the background of the entire case and in such cases, non examination even of other witnesses may not be a serious infirmity in the prosecution case, particularly where the witnesses had not seen the commission of the offence.

26. In State of H.P. V. Raghubir Singh3, Supreme Court held that there is no legal compulsion to look for any other evidence to corroborate the evidence of the prosecutrix before recording an order of conviction. Evidence has to be weighed and not counted. Conviction can be recorded on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, if her evidence inspires confidence and there is absence of circumstances which militate against her veracity. A similar view has been reiterated in Wahid Khan v. State of M.P.4, placing reliance on an earlier judgment in Rameshwar v. State of Rajasthan5.

27. Thus, the law that emerges on the issue that the statement of the prosecutrix, if found to be worthy of credence and reliable, requires no corroboration. The court can record conviction of the accused on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix.

28. Who can be said to be a "sterling witness", has been dealt with and considered in Rai Sandeep v. State (NCT of Delhi)6. In para 22, it is observed and held as under:

"22. In our considered opinion, the "sterling witness" should be of a very high quality and calibre whose version should, therefore, be unassailable. The court considering the version of such witness should be in a position to accept it for its face value without any hesitation. To test the quality of such a witness, the status of the witness would be immaterial and what would be relevant is the truthfulness of the statement made by such a witness. What would be more relevant would be the consistency of the statement right from the starting point till the end, namely, at the time when the witness makes the initial statement and ultimately before the court. It should be natural and consistent with the case of the prosecution qua the accused. There should not be any prevarication in the version of such a witness. The witness should be in a position to withstand the cross-examination of any length and howsoever strenuous it may be and under no circumstance should give room for any doubt as to the factum of the occurrence, the persons involved, as well as the sequence of it. Such a version should have correlation with each and every one of other supporting material such as the recoveries made, the weapons used, the manner of offence committed, the scientific evidence and the expert opinion. The said version should consistently match with the version of every other witness. It can even be stated that it should be akin to the test applied in the case of circumstantial evidence where there should not be any missing link in the chain of circumstances to hold the accused guilty of the offence alleged against him. Only if the version of such a witness qualifies the above test as well as all other such similar tests to be applied, can it be held that such a witness can be called as a "sterling witness" whose version can be accepted by the court without any corroboration and based on which the guilty can be punished. To be more precise, the version of the said witness on the core spectrum of the crime should remain intact while all other attendant materials, namely, oral, documentary and material objects should match the said version in material particulars in order to enable the court trying the offence to rely on the core version to sieve the other supporting materials for holding the offender guilty of the charge alleged."

29. If the evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence, it must be relied upon without seeking corroboration of her statement in material particulars. If for some reason the court finds it difficult to place implicit reliance on her testimony, it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony, short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice. The testimony of the prosecutrix must be appreciated in the background of the entire case and the court must be alive to its responsibility and be sensitive while dealing with cases involving sexual molestations or sexual assaults. [See State of Punjab v. Gurmit Singh7].

30. It is settled legal position that the evidence of rape victim stands at par with the evidence of an injured witness. Injury of the rape victim being physical, as well as, psychological in the form of traumatised assault and ravishment of her chastity and womanhood. Corroboration from medical evidence varies from case to case as it depends upon the circumstances of each case. (Refer : Ganga Singh Vs. State of

M.P.8; Santosh Prasad @ Santosh Kumar Vs. State of Bihar9).

31. Through judicial pronouncements rendered in several cases viz, Madan Gopal Kakkad Vs. Naval Dubey and another10, Rajinder @ Raju Vs. State of H.P.11 and State of U.P. Vs. Chhoteylal12, the Supreme Court has clarified that even where no external or internal marks of injury on the private part of the victim of rape was found in medical examination, the testimony of the prosecutrix that she was raped by the accused, cannot be discarded. Where observations recorded by doctor during medico-legal examination of prosecutrix clearly making out that prosecutrix having been subjected to rape and the doctor as witness of the prosecution stating in response to a suggestion put to her by defence counsel that injury of the nature found on the hymen of prosecutrix could be caused by a fall, does not lead the court anywhere. The Court proceeded to observe that why would the girl or her mother charge the accused, who is a near relation, with rape if the injury was caused by the fall, that too, when the victim in her deposition had spoken of penetration. Further discovery of spermatozoa in the private part of the victim is not a must to establish penetration as there are several factors which may negate the presence of spermatozoa.

32. In Ranjit Hazarika V. The State of Assam13 , the victim was aged about 14 years and her testimony was corroborated by other evidences and was found trustworthy, even though the doctor had opined that there was no sign of rape. The Supreme Court held that on the given facts corroboration of testimony of prosecutrix by medical evidence was not essential.

33. In State of Himanchal Pradesh v. Manga Singh14, the victim was aged about nine years and she had levelled allegations of rape against her cousin. The medical opinion was not supporting the factum of rape, however, the victim was found consistent and corroborated by other evidences. The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal against conviction.

34. In the case of Sham Singh v. State of Haryana15, it is observed that testimony of the victim is vital and unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty to act on the testimony of the victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. The courts should not get swayed by minor or insignificant contradictions/discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix. In paragraphs 6 and 7, it is observed and held as under:

"6. We are conscious that the courts shoulder a great responsibility while trying an accused on charges of rape. They must deal with such cases with utmost sensitivity. The courts should examine the broader probabilities of a case and not get swayed by minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix, which are not of a fatal nature, to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. If the evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence, it must be relied upon without seeking corroboration of her statement in material particulars. If for some reason the court finds it difficult to place implicit reliance on her testimony, it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony, short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice. The testimony of the prosecutrix must be appreciated in the background of the entire case and the court must be alive to its responsibility and be sensitive while dealing with cases involving sexual molestations or sexual assaults. [See State of Punjab v. Gurmit Singh [State of Punjab v. Gurmit Singh, (1996) 2 SCC 384] (SCC p. 403, para 21).]

7. It is also by now well settled that the courts must, while evaluating evidence, remain alive to the fact that in a case of rape, no self-respecting woman would come forward in a court just to make a humiliating statement against her honour such as is involved in the commission of rape on her. In cases involving sexual molestation, supposed considerations which have no material effect on the veracity of the prosecution case or even discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not, unless the discrepancies are such which are of fatal nature, be allowed to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. The inherent bashfulness of the females and the tendency to conceal outrage of sexual aggression are factors which the courts should not overlook. The testimony of the victim in such cases is vital and unless there are compelling reasons which necessitate looking for corroboration of her statement, the courts should find no difficulty to act on the testimony of a victim of sexual assault alone to convict an accused where her testimony inspires confidence and is found to be reliable. Seeking corroboration of her statement before relying upon the same, as a rule, in such cases amounts to adding insult to injury. (See Ranjit Hazarika v. State of Assam (1998) 8 SCC 635)."

35. Applying the principle of law to the facts of the case at hand, in the backdrop of the prosecution evidence, the prosecution version is proved beyond reasonable doubt. The victim PW-2 informed her husband PW-1 in the morning on returning home. The prosecutrix with clarity stated and identified the appellant-accused of having committed the offence of rape. The incident is duly corroborated by the testimony of the neighbour PW-3. The defence failed to demolish the statements of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 or cast reasonable doubt. In the backdrop of the testimony of the witnesses of fact, in particular, of the prosecutrix, the medical expert opinion with regard to the commission of the offence would not demolish the prosecution case.

36. On arriving at the conclusion that the appellant is liable to be convicted under Section 376 IPC and the appropriate sentence to be imposed needs consideration. The incident in question is based on the complaint dated 31.3.2001. In this circumstance, though it is noted that Section 376 has been amended w.e.f. 21.04.2018 providing for the minimum sentence of 10 years, the case on hand is of 2001 and the conviction of the appellant was on 6.9.2002. The incident having occurred prior to amendment, the preamended provision will have to be taken note of. The same provides that a person committed of rape shall be punished with rigorous imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than seven years but which may extend to imprisonment for life and shall also be liable to fine. In the instant case, taking into consideration all facts including that no material is available on record to indicate that the appellant has any criminal antecedents and that there is no reason to apprehend that the appellant would indulge in similar acts in future. Further, victim has left the village where the appellant resides. In the circumstances, we deem it appropriate that the sentence of 10 years rigorous imprisonment would have been sufficient deterrent to serve the ends of justice.

37. The conviction and sentence under Section 452 IPC is confirmed. The conviction order made by the trial court under Section 376 IPC is modified. The appellant is instead convicted under Section 376 IPC and is sentenced for a period of 10 years rigorous imprisonment. The fine and default sentence as imposed by the trial court shall remain unaltered. The fine shall be paid to the victim towards compensation.

38. The appeal is allowed in part as provided hereinabove.

39. The record of the trial court shall be returned forthwith along with a copy of this order.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Sections 3 & 106- Circumstantial evidence- Though the prosecution has been able to prove some kind of initial relationship and an initial dispute between the accused-appellant and the deceased but it could lead no evidence to demonstrate that that relationship, and the dispute, continued till about the time of the incident- The circumstances sought to be proved throw multiple hypotheses not inconsistent with the innocence of the accused-appellants therefore, even if there had been no proper explanation on the part of the accused, it would not be appropriate to presume their guilt by taking recourse to the provisions of section 106 of the Evidence Act - There is complete lack of evidence of the deceased being last seen alive with the accused, it would not be safe on our part to convict the accused-appellants for the charge of murder of the deceased, particularly, when the body of the deceased carried only one fatal injury on the head which could be a consequence of banging the head on the wall or on the iron gate or any hard substance. In so far as the evidence of recovery of the bamboo stick is concerned, that becomes doubtful because the witnesses of recovery have not only denied the recovery but have also denied their signatures on the recovery memo yet, no effort was made by the Investigating Officer to prove their signature.

Evidence Law - Indian Evidence Act, 1872- Sections 3 , 102 & 106- In a case of circumstantial evidence there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and therefore the guilt of the accused cannot be presumed on the basis of Section 106 of the Evidence Act, specially where there is no evidence of the deceased having been last seen in the company of the accused, there is a possibility of multiple hypotheses and the recovery is doubtful. (Para 18, 19, 20, 21)

1. This appeal is filed against the judgment and order dated 26.08.2010, passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.10, Ghaziabad in connected Sessions Trial Nos.440 of 2000; 440A of 2000; and 699 of 2000. Sessions Trial Nos.440 of 2000 and 440A of 2000 arise from case Crime No.778 of 1999, police station Kavinagar, district Ghaziabad, whereas Sessions Trial No.699 of 2000 arises from Case Crime No.1 of 2000. In Sessions Trial No. 440 of 2000 appellant Satish Sharma has been convicted under Section 302/34 IPC whereas in Sessions Trial No.440-A of 2000, the appellant no.2 Naresh Sharma has been convicted under section 302/34 IPC and both have been sentenced to imprisonment for life with fine of Rs.5,000/- each and a default sentence of six months imprisonment. In Sessions Trial No.699 of 2000, appellant Naresh Sharma has been convicted under Section 25 of the Arms Act and sentenced to two years R.I. with fine of Rs.1,000/- and a default sentence of two months imprisonment. Both sentences awarded to appellant Naresh Sharma were to run concurrently.

INTRODUCTORY FACTS

2. On a written report (not exhibited) submitted by one Nijakat (not examined), on 31.12.1999, G.D. Entry, vide report no.19 (Exb. Ka-2), and a Chik FIR (Exb. Ka-1) was made by PW-5 at 11.35 hours, giving rise to Case Crime No.778 of 1999 at P.S. Kavinagar, district Ghaziabad. In the first information report (FIR), it was alleged that in the evening of 30.12.1999 the accused-appellant Naresh Kumar Sharma and his brother Satish Sharma brought their help Jaiveer, took him to the upper storey of their house, assaulted him and, thereafter, brought him on their shoulder to the ground floor and locked him in their shop. It is alleged that the informant heard Jaiveer crying and in the morning, informant came to know that Jaiveer is dead. The FIR alleges that the entire incident had been witnessed by persons in the neighbourhood including Rickshaw pullers. Pursuant to the FIR, inquest was completed by 2.15 p.m. on 31.12.1999 at shop no.1452, ward no.12, Lal Kuan, police station Kavinagar, district Ghaziabad of which the witnesses were Mukesh Kumar (PW-1), Kunwar Pal, Radhey Shyam, Buddha Pal Yadav and Bharat Singh. The inquest report (Exb. Ka-10) prepared by PW-9 describes the body position as follows :

''मृतक का शव दुकान के अन्दर लोहे के किवाड़ से सटकर बैठी हुई अवस्था मे है पैर आलती फालती मार बैठने की अवस्था में है दोनो हाथ दोनों जाँघो पर

टिके है हाथ के पंजे खुले हुऐ पीठ पश्चिम में है व आगे का हिस्सा पूर्व दिशा में है गर्दन उत्तर दिशा मे बॉयी तरफ झुकी हुई व बॉये कन्धे पर टिकी है नाक से खून निकल रहा है बॉयी ऑख बन्द व दायी ऑख खुली हुई। मुह खुला है''

3. The body was thereafter sent for autopsy. The autopsy report (Exb. Ka-3), dated 01.01.2000, prepared by PW-6 reveals that the autopsy was completed at 4.30 pm on 01.01.2000. The body was described as of Jaiveer son of unknown and it was shown to be brought by CP 2324 Mahesh Chand and CP 684 Rakesh Kumar of police station Kavinagar. The external examination of the body revealed presence of rigor mortis all over body; eyes closed. The ante-mortem injuries noticed were as follows: (1) abraded contusion on the whole of the right arm, elbow and forearm; (2) abraded contusion multiple on the whole of the back; (3) lacerated wound size 1 cm x 2 cm on the lower third of the right leg; (4) multiple abraded contusion on the whole of the leg, left side; and (5) lacerated wound size 3 cm x 2 cm on the right side of the head. The internal examination of body of the deceased revealed fracture of parietal bone of the skull plus laceration. Stomach contents were empty and no other abnormality was noticed. According to the Doctor, the death was about a day before caused by coma due to head injury relating to ante-mortem injuries.

4. In between, the Investigating Officer (I.O.) (PW-9), on 31.12.1999 lifted plain earth and blood stained earth from the spot of which recovery memo (Exb.Ka-7) was prepared and the same was got signed by Anil (PW-2) and Mukesh (PW-1). I.O. (PW-9) also inspected the spot and prepared site plan (Exb. Ka-8) on 31.12.1999. During the course of investigation, on 01.01.2000, PW-9 (Anurag Prakash Dixit) along with other fellow police officers disclosed arrest of appellant no.2 Naresh Sharma from near Dharam Kanta in the Industrial Area of Bulandshahar and showed recovery of a country made .315 bore pistol with two live cartridges from him of which recovery memo (Exb. Ka-10) was prepared, which had no public witness. On 01.01.2000 itself, PW-9 effected recovery of two bamboo sticks on the pointing out of the appellant no.2 (Naresh Sharma) from inside the house, the recovery memo (Ex. Ka-9) of which is stated to be signed by Mukesh Sharma (PW-1).

5. Consequent to the recovery of the country made .315 bore pistol from appellant no.2, Case crime No.1 of 2000 was registered at police station Kavinagar, district Ghaziabad of which Chik FIR (Exb. Ka-5) was prepared by PW-8, giving rise to a case under Section 25 of the Arms Act.

6. During the course of investigation, the body of the deceased was got identified and it was found to be not of Jaiveer but of Mahaveer. Ultimately, after investigation, the police submitted charge-sheet in both the cases. After taking cognizance on the charge-sheets, the two cases were committed to the court of session giving rise to Sessions Trial Nos.440 of 2000 and 440A of 2000, arising out of Case Crime No.778 of 1999, and Sessions Trial No.699 of 2000, arising out of Case Crime No.1 of 2000. All three Sessions Trials were connected and decided by impugned judgment and order.

PROSECUTION EVIDENCE

7. During the course of trial, the prosecution examined as many as 12 witnesses. We notice their testimony, in brief, below :

(i) PW-1 -Mukesh Kumar. He is a witness of the inquest; recovery of plain earth/blood stained earth from the spot; recovery of two bamboo sticks from the house of the accused. PW-1 stated that though Naresh Sharma and Satish Sharma are real brothers but he has no knowledge whether their truck helper has been killed or not. He denies being a witness of lifting of plain earth/blood stained earth from the spot. At this stage, the prosecution declared him hostile and sought permission for his cross-examination. During cross-examination by the prosecution, PW-1 denied his signature on the seizure memo of plain earth/blood stained earth; he denied recovery of bamboo sticks in his presence and also stated that no recovery memo with regard to that was prepared in his presence and that the recovery memo does not bear his signature. He also stated that neither the inquest report dated 31.12.1999 was prepared in his presence nor the body was sealed in his presence. When confronted with his signature appearing on the inquest report, he denied his signature thereon. When confronted with his statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC, he denied having given any such statement. He denied the suggestion that the seizure memo and the inquest carried his signatures and that he has colluded with the accused.

(ii) PW-2 - Anil Kumar. He is also a witness of recovery of the plain earth/blood stained earth from the spot. He denied that on 31.12.1999 the police recovered plain earth/blood stained earth in his presence. The prosecution declared him hostile and cross examined him. In his cross-examination by prosecution, PW-2 stated that he had not signed the recovery memo and that the recovery memo was not prepared in his presence. He stated that if someone has forged his signatures then he cannot provide reason. When confronted with the statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC, he stated that he had never given any such statement. He also denied the suggestion of having colluded with the accused.

(iii) PW-3 - Ram Singh. He is a resident of village Siauli, district Badaun of which the deceased was a domicile. He stated that the deceased Mahaveer son of Raghunath Singh was a helper in the truck of Naresh and Satish (the appellants). On 02.12.1999, the accused-appellants had come to the house of Raghunath Singh (the father of the deceased) and shouted that either Mahaveer should handover the papers of their truck or else they will do something adverse. PW-3 stated that after extending threats both the accused-appellants left village Siauli. He stated that later, the accused did send a man calling for Mahaveer to get a settlement of his dues. Thereafter, Mahaveer went to Ghaziabad and when Mahaveer did not return for 4-5 days, PW-3 came to Lal Kuwan, Ghaziabad along with Raghunath Singh and Ram Bahadur Singh (PW-4) then he came to know that Mahaveer has been killed. In his cross-examination, PW-3 stated that prior to the incident he had never come to see as to where Mahaveer worked. PW-3 also could not give the date when he had come to Lal Kuan. PW-3, however, stated that he came to know from the people there that Mahaveer has been killed. PW-3 could not tell the name of the person from whom he came to know of that fact. PW-3 stated that he recognised Mahaveer from the photograph maintained at the police station. PW-3 stated that when Raghunath Singh had visited the police station he had got some report written. PW-3 stated that it must have been the twelth month of the year 1999 when the report was written but he does not remember the exact date. PW-3 denied the suggestion that Raghunath Singh had made no report at the police station. PW-3 stated that after lodging the report, they all returned back to their village. PW-3 added that police never visited his village but used to call him at the police station. PW-3 stated that interrogation in respect of the incident was made sometimes in the month of December, 1999 though, he does not remember the date and, thereafter, the police also inquired from him in January, 2000. He stated that in January, 2000, the police had inquired from him at village Siauli and then he had informed the police that people at Lal Kuan had informed him that Mahaveer has been killed. When this witness was confronted with his previous statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC, he stated that this fact which he has just stated is not mentioned there. He also stated that when he along with Raghunath Singh and Ram Bahadur Singh visited Lal Kuwan, they had not stayed at anybody's house. At Lal Kuwan, the people residing on road had informed him that Mahaveer has been killed.

(iii-a) On further cross-examination, PW-3 stated that he saw Naresh and Satish (accused-appellants) for the first time at village Siauli in December, 1999 and after the incident he did not meet them. He identified the accused Naresh and Satish in the court. He denied that while recording the statement in court the Government Counsel had got him to identify the accused. He stated that at the time of the incident, Mahaveer must have been 23-24 years old and was of average built. He stated that he has come to give his statement on receiving court summons. He stated that Mahaveer used to work in the field and also use to drive vehicle. He stated that he was not aware as to whose vehicle he drove but he drove vehicle for about a year. He stated that he does not know whether Mahaveer had a license. He denied the suggestion that Raghunath Singh is his maternal uncle and because of his relationship with Rathunagh Singh he is telling lies. He also denied the suggestion that he never met the accused and that he is telling lies because he is related to the deceased.

(iv) PW-4 Ram Bahadur. He is the brother of the deceased Mahaveer. PW-4 stated that his deceased brother was working as a truck-helper with accused Satish and Naresh for which he used to get Rs.1,200/- per month. He stated that the accused had not given salary for a year as a result his brother had returned to village Siauli. This fact was disclosed by his brother to PW-4 as well as his father. He stated that on 02.12.1999, the accused had come to village Siauli and had enquired about Mahaveer. When PW-4 asked as to what they want from Mahaveer, they stated that Mahaveer has got vehicle papers which they want back. PW-4 stated that the accused thereafter hurled abuses; at that time Ram Singh (PW-3), Raghunath and other persons were present. PW-4 stated that the accused Naresh and Satish threatened that if Mahaveer does not return vehicle papers then he will have to face adverse consequences, on which, PW-4 told them that Mahaveer's salary of one year has not been paid therefore, that salary be paid. He stated that, thereafter, Naresh and Satish (accused-appellants) sent another man to village Siauli, who told Mahaveer to come for settlement of his dues. Thereafter, Mahaveer left with that person to visit the accused. When Mahaveer did not return, PW-4 and others went to Lal Kuan, Ghaziabad on 17/18.01.2000 and found the house of the accused locked there, upon enquiry, they came to know that the accused have killed Mahaveer. When they went to police chowki, they were sent to police station Kavinagar where they identified the deceased Mahaveer from his photograph and clothes. He stated that at that time his father Raghunagh Singh and Ram Singh were both there. PW-4 also stated that the police has incorrectly mentioned the name of deceased as Jaiveer in place of Mahaveer. He stated that he believes that the accused have killed Mahaveer.

(iv-a) In his cross-examination, PW-4 stated that he has not seen any person assaulting or beating Mahaveer but, this fact came to his knowledge when he had visited accused's house; there, people of the locality told him this fact; that prior to the incident he had never come to the house of the accused at Lal Kuan; that he did not see the place where his brother was killed, as that place was locked. He could not remember as to what was around that place. PW-4 stated that after visiting the police station he came straightway to the village; that at the police station they had lodged written report but copy of that report was not provided to them. He further stated that he met Mahaveer about 1 ½ months before the incident and that Mahaveer used to work for last 1 ½ year. He stated that where Mahaveer used to work earlier, he does not know. He stated that he came to know about the incident when he went to the house of the accused and enquired from the people around but he does not remember the name of those persons. He identified accused Satish in court and told that accused Naresh is not present in court.

(iv-b) PW-4 further stated that when the accused had come to his village on 02.12.1999, Mahaveer was there and he had told him that these persons were Satish and Naresh with whom he used to work. Mahaveer had also told him that his salary has not been paid for months. PW-4 clarified that Mahaveer had not gone with Satish and Naresh and that Mahaveer had left with a man sent by the accused though he does not remember the name of that man. PW-4 admitted that he did not make any report in respect of the threats extended on 02.12.1999 but denied the suggestion that no threats were extended by the accused. He stated that when threats were extended by the accused there were 10-12 people around including Chhatrapal, Brijpal, Veerpal, Gajram, Ram Nath and others. Some of them are his relatives whereas some are neighbour but none have come to the court. He denied the suggestion that at the time of the incident Mahaveer was not working with the accused. He denied the suggestion that only for getting the salary dues of the deceased he has set up false case and that the entire exercise is at the behest of the police.

(v) PW-5 Ram Babu Gautam. He is the Head Constable at Kavinagar police station, Ghaziabad, who made G.D. Entry of the FIR of Case Crime No.778 of 1999. He proved the Chik FIR and G.D. Entry by which report was registered giving rise to Case Crime No.778 of 1999. In his cross-examination, he stated that the informant's report was registered under the belief that he is Nijakat though, personally he was not known to PW-5. PW-5 stated that copy of the Chik FIR was handed over to the informant and that a copy was sent to the Circle Officer through post on 01.01.2000. He stated that his statement was recorded on 31.12.1999. He denied the suggestion that the report was not lodged by Nijakat but it was got lodged at the police station at the dictate of the police.

(vi) PW-6 Dr. Anil Kumar Agrawal. He proved the autopsy report and stated that the autopsy was conducted at 4.30 p.m.

on 01.01.2000. He proved the contents of the autopsy report and stated that the death could have been caused a day before on account of coma as a result of head injury. He also stated that the death could have occurred in the night of 30.12.1999 also. In his cross-examination, he stated that rigor mortis starts about six hours after death and remains for 24 hours depending on the weather condition. He accepted the suggestion that the parietal bone fracture noticed by him could also be a result of head banging on the wall but not on account of fall. He accepted the suggestion that sometimes foul odour is noticed immediately after 24 hours of death. He, however, denied the suggestion that at the time of post-mortem, the body was emitting foul odour. He also denied the suggestion that he had himself not seen the injuries on the body of the deceased and that he had prepared the report sitting at the table of the hospital.

(vii) PW-7 Sub-Inspector Ambika Prasad Bhardwaj. He is the second Investigating Officer of case crime no.778 of 1999 who submitted charge-sheet on 26.01.2000, which, on his statement, was marked as Exb. Ka-4. In his cross-examination, he stated that he had not recorded statement of any witness and that on the date when this first information report was lodged he had not been posted at the police station concerned. He denied the suggestion that he had submitted an incorrect charge-sheet.

(viii) PW-8 Constable CC Hari Shankar Lal. He proved the Chik FIR (Ex. Ka-5) of Case Crime No.1 of 2000 and the G.D. Entry (Ex. Ka-6) thereof. In his cross-examination, he stated that the copy of the Chik FIR was sent to the Circle Officer through post. He also stated that he prepared the Chik FIR as was in the Fard Baramadgi. He stated that at the time when the Chik FIR was prepared, Sanjay Bhardwaj (informant of case no.1 of 2000-S. O. P.S. Kavi Nagar) was not there at the police station but CC 472 Ajit Khan was present and the Chik FIR was prepared by getting it copied from the Fard Baramadgi. He denied the suggestion that the Chik FIR was prepared on the oral dictation of the informant and not on the basis of what was written in the Fard Baramadgi. He, however, admitted that at the time when the first information report was written, the accused was not in front of him and that he had himself put the accused in the lockup and at that time when the accused was searched by him, except for clothes nothing was found.

(ix) PW-9 Anurag Prakash Dixit. The first Investigating Officer of Case Crime No.778 of 1999. He stated that the investigation of this case was handed over to him on 31.12.1999. In furtherance of the investigation, he lifted plain earth/blood stained earth from the spot, prepared recovery memo in respect thereof, which was signed by Mukesh and Anil in his presence, which was exhibited as Exb. Ka-7. He proved the preparation of site plan on the basis of his inspection, which was marked Exb. Ka-8. He proved the arrest of accused Naresh on 01.01.2000 at about 7.10 a.m. at Dharmkanta near Bulandshahr Industrial Area and stated that at the time of arrest, a country made pistol .315 bore with two live cartridges was recovered. He stated that on the disclosure statement of Naresh, he also recovered two Danda (sticks) of which recovery memo was prepared which was marked Exb. Ka-9. He produced the plain earth/blood stained earth; clothes etc. of the deceased; country made pistol etc., which were made material exhibits. He stated that the inquest report was prepared by him on 31.12.1999 and he also prepared photo nash, challan nash, letter to the Prabhari and all the papers in respect of autopsy of the body and got these papers exhibited. He also produced bamboo sticks recovered by him which were made material exhibits. He proved various other stages of investigation and stated that an effort was made to ascertain the identity of the deceased and, on 18.01.2000, the deceased was identified by Raghunath Singh on the basis of his photograph and clothes; and from Raghunath's statement real name of the deceased could be known as Mahaveer and necessary entry to that effect was made.

(ix-a) In his cross-examination, he stated that the site plan was prepared as per the instructions of the informant; that the informant had come to him on his own, however, he could not tell the age of the informant; that he could not give the description of the informant with regard to his height though, stated that he was dark in colour. He also could not describe the clothes that he was wearing. PW-9 stated that in the site plan he had not mentioned the spot from where the informant had witnessed the incident; that the place of incident was inside the shop; that the spot was Adhkachha (semi built) i.e. built of Khadanja (vertically laid bricks) and mud. He clarified that, by saying that the floor of the shop was semi-built and that blood was noticed on the floor and he had lifted the blood stained soil from there. He admitted that he had not sent the blood stained soil to Forensic Laboratory rather, it was sent to the office. He stated that the country made pistol recovered was sealed by Station Officer Sanjay Bhardwaj (not examined) and the recovery memo of the bamboo sticks was prepared by him and they were sealed on the spot but currently they are not sealed. He denied that the bamboo sticks were not recovered from the spot. He also denied the suggestion that the witnesses of the recovery were not present.

''यह सही है कि घटना स्थल से सटा हुआ आम रास्ता है। उस पर 24 घंटे लोग आते जाते रहते है। घटना स्थल के पूरब, पश्चिम, उत्तर, दक्षिण में क्या है। मुझे ध्यान नही है। यह मै नक्शा नजरी देखकर बता सकता हूँ''

(ix-c) He stated that the country made pistol recovered was sealed in his presence but the sample seal is not there on record at present. He admitted that at the time of making the site plan of the recovery i.e. Case Crime No.1 of 2000, he was present with the informant of that case. He could not tell as to what were the surroundings from where recovery of the country made pistol was made though he stated that he can tell after looking at the site plan. He then clarified by stating that it was recovered from in front of Veer Narayan's Dharmkanta where the accused was found standing. On further cross-examination, he stated that a person who makes the recovery, seals it, the seals are distinct and separate. He stated that the distance of the place from where recovery was made was about 4 km from the police station, he could not tell the time they took to reach the spot. He admitted that the recovery in respect of Case Crime No.1 of 2000 was made from a place which is an Aam Rasta (public road) where 24 hours people are present and that there were many people around but none were prepared to be a witness of the recovery. He admitted that he did not ask the name of persons whom he had requested to be a witness. He denied the suggestion that the entire exercise was carried out at the police station and that no recovery was made. He also denied the suggestion that the accused has been falsely implicated.

(ix-d) He admitted that at the time of inquest, the name of the deceased was stated to be Jaiveer and the inquest was prepared as Lawaris (father not known) and that, later, father of the deceased arrived, recognised the deceased on the basis of his photograph and clothes, and informed the police that the deceased is Mahaveer. PW-9 stated that the name of deceased's father was Raghunah Singh and Raghunath Singh did not inform him that the name of his son is Jaiveer @ Mahaver. PW-9 stated that he did not investigate to confirm the identity of Jaiveer as his father had already recognised him on the basis of his photograph and clothes. He admitted that he had not requested for the voter list or Ration Card to ascertain the identity of the deceased as his identity was proved by his father. He denied the suggestion that the entire exercise was completed while sitting at the police station and that the records were fabricated. He denied the suggestion that he used to extort Rs.5,000/- a month from the accused and when the accused refused they were falsely implicated.

(x) PW-10 Sub-Inspector Ajit Roria. He conducted the investigation of Case Crime No.1 of 2000. He stated that he recorded the statement of Sub-Inspector Anurag Dixit (PW-9) and after completing the investigation he had submitted charge-sheet which was marked as Exb.Ka-19. He also proved that he obtained sanction from the District Magistrate for prosecution under Section 25 of the Arms Act. The sanction letter was proved and marked as Exb.Ka-18.

(xi) PW-11 Ved Bhushan. He is one of the witnesses of recovery of bamboo sticks at the instance of appellant Naresh. He denied having witnessed the recovery and was declared hostile. On being confronted with the recovery memo, he stated that the signatures appearing thereon are not his and that the Investigating Officer had never recorded his statement. On being confronted with the statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC, he stated that he had never made any such statement. He denied the suggestion that he has colluded with the accused.

(xii) PW-12 Constable Rajendra Kumar. He was examined on 23.02.2010 to prove that the informant Nijakat is no more. He stated that he had gone to serve court summons to Nijakat. There he came to know that two years before, he died of TB. He also produced death certificate of Nijakat, which is there on record as paper no. 95-Kha and was exhibited C-1. In his cross-examination, he stated that he has not enquired as to in which hospital the informant was admitted. He also stated that he is not aware whether the summons were sent at the address of the informant or not. He stated that he had gone on a bus to Alapur, Badaun where the informant resided.

8. The incriminating circumstances appearing in the prosecution evidence were put to both the accused. The accused Naresh not only claimed that the allegations are incorrect and false but also denied both the alleged recoveries. And also denied that the deceased was employed as his helper. He also stated that he had no truck. Similarly, accused Satish denied the prosecution allegations as incorrect and stated that the accused was not employed as his helper and that he owned no truck.

9. The accused also examined a defence witness (DW-1) Devendra Mittal who stated that he is a neighbour of Kanchhilal Sharma (the father of the accused). He stated that neither from the shop nor from the house of the accused recovery of the body was made and that Kanchhilal Sharma does not have any truck. He also stated that the police had come to him to interrogate him but he had informed the police that no such occurrence had ever taken place. In his cross-examination, he feigned ignorance that the cycle repairing shop which he has, has been purchased by Kanshilal Sharma (the father of the accused). He stated that Kanchhilal Sharma though had a shop on the ground floor but to whom it was let out he is not aware but, reiterated that on 31.12.1999 no body was recovered from the shop of Kanchhilal Sharma. He also denied the suggestion that on 31.12.1999 the inquest was conducted at the spot.

TRIAL COURT FINDINGS

10. The trial court found following circumstances proved-that body was recovered from the shop of the accused; that the medical evidence indicated that that man was killed; that the body was identified to be of Mahaveer; that it was proved that Mahaveer was employed as a helper by the accused; that accused had visited the house of Mahaveer to demand vehicle papers, which Mahaveer seemed to be withholding in lieu of his salary dues, and had threatened Mahaveer of dire consequences; that the accused resided on the upper floor of the building in the ground floor of which there was the shop from where the body of Mahaveer was recovered; and that sticks used to assault the deceased was recovered at the instance of appellant no.2. All these circumstances complete a chain, pointing towards the guilt of the accused appellant and, therefore, in absence of explanation, the appellants were liable to be convicted. In addition to above, on the basis of recovery of country made pistol, the appellant no.2 Naresh Kumar was convicted under section 25 of the Arms Act.

11. We have heard Sri Manish Tandon, as amicus curiae, representing the appellants; Sri H.M.B. Sinha and Sri Amit Sinha, learned AGA, for the State; and have perused the record.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE APPELLANT

12. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that there is no eye witness account / direct evidence of the crime and consequent to non-examination of the informant the contents of the FIR cannot be looked into therefore, the prosecution case rests purely on circumstantial evidence. He submitted that in so far as the circumstantial evidence is concerned, there is no substantive evidence of the deceased being last seen alive with the appellants on or about the night of the incident. The motive for the crime is also not convincing because the testimony of PW-3 and PW-4 with regard to the employment of the deceased under the appellants is inconclusive, inasmuch as, they have not specifically disclosed whether the appellants had any truck for which the deceased used to work as a helper. The Investigating Officer also could not collect evidence to demonstrate that the appellants had a truck and, in fact, the appellants had categorically denied having a truck in their statement recorded under Section 313 CrPC. Thus the stand that the deceased had worked as a helper for the appellants and in connection with his services there were dues is not satisfactorily established. Otherwise also it can only provide a weak motive for the crime and that by itself would not be sufficient to record conviction. In so far as recovery of the body of the deceased from the shop is concerned, firstly, the recovery was denied and independent witnesses have not confirmed the recovery, secondly, the plain earth and blood-stained lifted from the spot has not been sent for forensic examination, and, thirdly, it has not been proved that the shop was in exclusive control and possession of the accused; further, shop's floor was semi-built and it was adjoining the road where there was 24 hours traffic; and it has not been demonstrated by the Investigating Officer that the shop was not accessible to all or that it was locked, of which the key was with the accused, or that the door of the shop was broke open to recover the body or that the key to the lock put on the door of the shop was found in possession of any of the accused. It has been pointed out that the site plan (Exb.Ka-8) does not disclose that the shop had a door, which was locked. Importantly, the body was found in a sitting posture reclining on the iron gate which is at the internal end of the shop. The front portion of the shop, which opens on the road, is not shown to have a door and there is no evidence at all to suggest that the door was locked and had to be broke open. It was thus submitted that since the case now turns on circumstantial evidence, unless there is cogent evidence that nobody other than the accused could have had access to the shop, conviction of the appellants for the offence punishable under Section 302/34 IPC is not at all sustainable. It was submitted that in so far as the recovery of bamboo sticks is concerned, firstly, that recovery has not been proved because the witness of the recovery has squarely denied having signed the recovery memo and no effort was made to obtain expert report to prove his signatures on the recovery memo; and, secondly, the bamboo sticks have not been sent for forensic examination to determine whether it carried any blood stain or not. Other than that a bamboo stick is readily available and is ubiquitous in every house. Therefore, recovery of bamboo stick by itself is not an incriminating circumstance that may indicate the guilt of the accused-appellants.

13. In addition to above, learned counsel for the appellants questioned the recovery of country made pistol on the ground that, admittedly, the recovery was made at a public place yet, there is no support of a public witness. Further, the recovery is stated to have been made early morning on 01.01.2000 by stating that the Investigating Officer had received information from an informer with regard to the presence of the accused at that spot. No good reason has been shown for the presence of the accused there, so early on a winter morning, as also the reason for arrest that early in the morning, particularly, when the accused had a house and were men with property and their arrest could easily have been effected by taking recourse to coercive processes had they been evading their arrest. Under the circumstances, this arrest is nothing but to implicate the appellants in an additional case under the Arms Act. Further, the genuineness of the arrest is also doubtful because when the Investigating Officer was required to give description of the surroundings of that place from where the arrest and recovery of country made pistol was made, he stated that he cannot disclose without looking at the site plan and the police records, which suggests that the recovery was nothing but bogus. It has thus been submitted that this is a fit case where the benefit of doubt should be extended to the appellants and that the judgment and order of conviction be set aside and the appellants be released.

SUBMISSIONS ON BEHALF OF THE STATE

14. Learned AGA submitted that although no ocular direct evidence survives consequent to death of the informant, but the lodging of the first information report has been duly proved; the employment of the deceased under the accused-appellant is proved; the dispute between accused-appellant and the deceased in connection with salary dues and vehicle papers is proved therefore, motive is proved; the spot where the body of the deceased was found has been proved; this spot is a shop in the ownership of accused-appellants' father whereas, there is no cogent explanation as to how the body came to be there; that the recovery of bamboo stick, which could have been utilised to inflict injuries, completes the chain of incriminating circumstances, which conclusively indicate that the prosecution story as set out in the first information report is correct and, therefore, the trial court in absence of cogent explanation has justifiably convicted the appellants. In respect of conviction of appellant no.2 under section 25 of the Arms Act, learned AGA submitted that it is not always necessary that independent witnesses are roped in for effecting recovery because many a times the witnesses, out of fear and generation of ill-will, do not agree to be witness and, even if they agree, more often than not, they resile from their commitment, therefore, if the Investigating Officer has been able to prove the recovery, the same is sufficient to record conviction, particularly, when no cogent motive for false implication has been proved.

ANALYSIS

15. Before we proceed further, we must clarify that we shall divide our analysis into two parts. First part would be in respect of the charge of the offence punishable under section 302 read with section 34 against both the appellants; and the second would be in respect of the charge under section 25 Arms Act against the appellant no.2 (Naresh Kumar). In respect of the charge relating to murder, at the outset, we may observe that this a case where there is no direct evidence of murder. We are thus dealing with a case where the prosecution seeks to bring home the charge of murder against the accused-appellants on the strength of circumstantial evidence. It would therefore be useful to notice the legal principles which a court must bear in mind before recording conviction on the basis of circumstantial evidence. The earliest judgment of the Supreme Court on the issue was in the case of Hanumant Govind Nargundkar V. State of UP, AIR 1952 SC 343, which has been consistently followed and elaborated from time to time in various subsequent decisions. In Hanumant Govind's case (supra), it was held that: "in cases where the evidence is of circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established, and all facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every other hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused. In a relatively recent decision in Vijay Shankar V. State of Haryana, (2015) 12 SCC 644, the Supreme Court following its earlier decisions including the celebrated decision in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda V. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116 and Bablu V. State of Rajasthan, (2006) 13 SCC 116, held that "the normal principle is that in a case based on circumstantial evidence the circumstances from which an inference of guilt is sought to be drawn must be cogently and firmly established; that these circumstances should be of a definite tendency unerringly pointing towards the guilt of the accused; that the circumstances taken cumulatively should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the crime was committed by the accused and they should be incapable of explanation of any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused and inconsistent with their innocence". In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda's case, vide paragraph 153, it was further clarified that the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established meaning thereby they 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. In addition to above, we must bear in mind the most fundamental principle of criminal jurisprudence which is that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions (vide Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade & Another v. State of Maharashtra, (1973) 2 SCC 793). These settled legal principles have again been reiterated in a three-judge Bench decision of the Supreme Court in Devi Lal v. State of Rajasthan, (2019) 19 SCC 447 wherein, in paragraphs 18 and 19 of the judgment, it was held as follows:-

"18.On an analysis of the overall fact situation in the instant case, and considering the chain of circumstantial evidence relied upon by the prosecution and noticed by the High Court in the impugned judgment, to prove the charge is visibly incomplete and incoherent to permit conviction of the appellants on the basis thereof without any trace of doubt. Though the materials on record hold some suspicion towards them, but the prosecution has failed to elevate its case from the realm of "may be true" to the plane of "must be true" as is indispensably required in law for conviction on a criminal charge. It is trite to state that in a criminal trial, suspicion, howsoever grave, cannot substitute proof.

19. That apart, in the case of circumstantial evidence, two views are possible on the case of record, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other his innocence. The accused is indeed entitled to have the benefit of one which is favourable to him. All the judicially laid parameters, defining the quality and content of the circumstantial evidence, bring home the guilt of the accused on a criminal charge, we find no difficulty to hold that the prosecution, in the case in hand, has failed to meet the same."

*(*Emphasis Supplied)

16. Bearing the above legal principles in mind we now proceed to examine whether the incriminating circumstances on which the prosecution seeks to bring home the charge have been proved beyond reasonable doubt; and whether they form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability the murder was committed by the accused appellant; and whether they (the circumstances) are incapable of explanation of any hypothesis other than that of the guilt of the accused-appellants and inconsistent with their innocence. The circumstances which the prosecution seeks to prove to bring home the charge of murder against the appellants are: (i) the deceased was employed by the appellant as a helper for their Truck; (ii) the deceased had salary dues which the appellant had withheld; (iii) in connection therewith, the deceased had retained vehicle papers; (iv) that on 02.12.1999, the accused-appellants came to the village of the deceased and threatened him to return the papers or face dire consequences; (v) that few days before the incident, a man was sent by the accused-appellant to the deceased calling for him to come to Lal Kuan for settlement of his dues; (vi) that in the morning of 31.12.1999 the body of the deceased was recovered from a shop in the ground floor of a building, on the upper storey of which the accused-appellant had their place of residence; (vii) that report was lodged in respect of homicidal death of the deceased alleging that the deceased was assaulted and dumped by the accused-appellants in the shop; (viii) inquest proceedings were held in that shop; (ix) autopsy conducted on 01.01.2000, at about 4.30 pm, confirmed homicidal death, a day before, upon noticing that the deceased had suffered multiple injuries including a fracture of parietal bone of the skull; and (x) at the instance of appellant no.2, two bamboo sticks alleged to have been used to assault the accused were recovered from under the bed of the accused.

17. Now we shall examine whether the above noted circumstances have been established beyond doubt. In respect of past employment of the deceased under the accused-appellants, there are two witnesses, namely, PW-3 and PW-4. Their testimony in respect of deceased's employment with the appellants is not direct, that is, they only heard from the deceased about him working for the appellants at a salary of Rs.1200 /- pm. They, however, are witnesses of an incident dated 2.12.1999 when the accused-appellants came to the village and threatened the deceased to return vehicle papers. No doubt, the prosecution has not succeeded in proving that the accused-appellants owned a Truck, but, as rightly held by the trial court, there is no reason to disbelieve PW-3 and PW-4 in respect of their deposition that there existed some relationship between the deceased and the accused-appellants in connection with which there was a dispute. But, what is important is that there is no cogent evidence that this relationship continued up to the date of the incident. There is a huge time-gap between 02.12.1999 and 31.12.1999, that is, the date when the deceased died. Whether on the date of his death, the deceased was still under the employment of the accused-appellant is a question that needs to be addressed. Notably, there is no evidence in that regard except that few days after the incident dated 2.12.1999, a man was sent by the accused-appellant sending a feeler to the deceased that he may come for settlement on which he went away with that man. Whether that earlier relationship got restored thereafter; and whether the deceased was seen working thereafter for the appellants, has not been answered by any evidence. Notably, the identity of that man who had arrived for settlement is not disclosed and the exact date when that man arrived and the deceased went for settlement is also not disclosed. Importantly, it is stated by PW-4, the brother of the deceased, that when the deceased did not return then PW-4 and his father came from the village in search of the deceased on or about 17/18.1.2000. Then they came to learn about his death.

Interestingly, the prosecution evidence is totally lacking as to whether the deceased used to reside with the accused-appellant or in the shop where his body was found. Thus, though the prosecution has been able to prove some kind of initial relationship and an initial dispute between the accused-appellant and the deceased but it could lead no evidence to demonstrate that that relationship, and the dispute, continued till about the time of the incident.

18. In this background we now proceed to examine other circumstances. Before that, we may notice certain key features that are missing in the prosecution evidence. These are: (i) there is no direct eye-witness account of the incident and since the informant did not appear to prove the contents of the first information report, its contents cannot be read in evidence as they can be used for limited purposes such as corroborating or contradicting its maker or to show the implication of the accused, not to be an after thought, or that the information is a piece of evidence res gestate or is otherwise admissible under section 32 (1) of the Evidence Act (vide Sheikh Hasib @ Tabard V. State of Bihar, (1972) 4 SCC 773 and Damodarprasad Chandrikaprasad v. State of Maharashtra, (1972) 1 SCC 107), which is not the case here; (ii) there is no substantive evidence on record that the deceased was seen alive in the house or in the shop of the appellants with the appellants; (iii) the shop from where the body of the deceased is stated to have been recovered has a semi-built floor and nothing has been brought on record that in the shop commercial goods or tradeable goods belonging to the accused-appellants were present; and (iv) nothing has been brought on record to show that to retrieve the body of the deceased from inside the shop any door had to be broke open or that the shop was bolted from outside or there was a lock put on the door of the shop of which the key was with the accused. Further, from the site plan it is clear that the shop from where the body of the deceased was recovered is adjoining the main road. The site plan does not indicate that to have access to the shop there existed a door. The testimony of the Investigating Officer does not indicate that access to the shop was not possible except through the living area of the house of the accused persons. Importantly, the ante-mortem injuries found on the body of the deceased though are many but except for the head injury, there is no fatal injury. The Doctor had also opined that the head injury could be on account of banging the head with the wall or hard object. The body of the deceased, at the time of inquest, was noticed in a sitting posture. In that kind of a scenario, it is possible that the deceased might have received injuries elsewhere, in the night, and may have used the place, where he was found dead, to rest, or he may have been beaten elsewhere and put there. Thus, the circumstances sought to be proved throw multiple hypotheses not inconsistent with the innocence of the accused-appellants therefore, even if there had been no proper explanation on the part of the accused, it would not be appropriate to presume their guilt by taking recourse to the provisions of section 106 of the Evidence Act.

19. At this stage, we may notice a recent decision of the Apex Court in the case of Shivaji Chittappa Patil V. State of Maharashtra, (2021) 5 SCC 626 wherein, following earlier decisions, in paragraph 23 of the report, it was observed: "it could thus be seen that it is well settled that section 106 of the Evidence Act does not directly operate against either husband or wife staying under the same roof and being the last person seen with the deceased. Section 106 of the Evidence Act does not absolve the prosecution of discharging its primary burden of proving the prosecution case beyond reasonable doubt. It is only when the prosecution has led evidence which, if believed, will sustain a conviction, or which makes out a prima facie case, that the question arises of considering facts of which the burden of proof would lie upon the accused." In paragraph 25 of this judgment, the Apex Court observed: "Another circumstance relied upon by the prosecution is that the appellant failed to give any explanation in his statement under Section 313 CrPC. By now it is well settled principle of law, that false explanation or non-explanation can only be used as an additional circumstance, when the prosecution has proved the chain of circumstances leading to no other conclusion than the guilt of the accused. However, it cannot be used to complete the chain." Seen in the light of the law noticed above, what clinches the issue in the present case is that the prosecution has failed to lead evidence to rule out other hypotheses not inconsistent with the innocence of the appellant. The recovery of bamboo sticks is denied by the witnesses whose signatures are, purportedly, there on the memorandum. Those witnesses have challenged their signatures on the recovery memo but no effort is there to prove their signature. Importantly, the plain earth and the blood stained earth that is alleged to have been lifted from the spot from where the body was recovered has not been sent for serological examination to find out the presence of human blood. Thus, it is not certain whether the deceased died there from where he was recovered or was brought dead from somewhere else or he suffered injury somewhere else and came there. Further, the seizure memo of the blood stained earth and plain earth has not been supported by the eye-witnesses PW-1 and PW-2. They have even denied their signatures on the recovery memo as also on the inquest report and no other witness of the inquest has been examined. No effort has been made to prove the signatures of PW-1 on the inquest memo and of PW-2 on the recovery memo. No doubt, the recovery memo can still be believed and be treated as proved by the Investigating Officer but here the Investigating Officer has not send the blood stained earth and plain earth for serological examination to confirm the presence of human blood on the spot therefore, the issue whether the deceased died in the shop or was brought dead from outside and planted in the shop is an issue which remains unanswered, particularly, when the eyewitness (informant) has not been examined and the exclusive control and possession of the shop with the accused-appellant is not proved.

20. Now, we may notice the site plan prepared by the I.O. on inspection and at the instance of the informant. The site plan is there on record as Exb. Ka-8. It appears from the site plan that the spot from where the body of the deceased was recovered was a shop. This shop appears on the ground floor and seems to have direct access to the Ghaziabad - Dadri road. In front of the shop, there is open space which can be considered as Patri (pavement) of the main road. The shop has an opening on the main road. The body of the deceased is shown inside the shop at some distance from the open space outside the house. It has not been established by any evidence as to who is the owner and in exclusive possession of that shop. It has also not been established by any evidence that the deceased used to reside as a helper in the premises of the accused or in that shop. Further, there is no clear and specific evidence that the place from where the body of the deceased was recovered is not accessible to anybody except the accused or inmates of the house of the accused. Thus, keeping in mind that there is complete lack of evidence of the deceased being last seen alive with the accused, it would not be safe on our part to convict the accused-appellants for the charge of murder of the deceased, particularly, when the body of the deceased carried only one fatal injury on the head which could be a consequence of banging the head on the wall or on the iron gate or any hard substance. In so far as the evidence of recovery of the bamboo stick is concerned, that becomes doubtful because the witnesses of recovery have not only denied the recovery but have also denied their signatures on the recovery memo yet, no effort was made by the Investigating Officer to prove their signature. Further, bamboo sticks are freely available in the market and commonly found in every house. Importantly, those bamboo sticks were not sent for forensic examination to find out whether there is any mark of human blood on it. In view of the above discussion, we are of the view that the prosecution has not been successful in proving the guilt of the appellants beyond reasonable doubt for the charge of an offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC.

21. In so far as the conviction of the appellant no.2 for the offence punishable under Section 25 Arms Act is concerned, the recovery of firearm has been denied by the appellant no.2. The recovery does not inspire our confidence for the reason that the recovery is stated to have been made while the police was in the process of arresting the accused wanted in Case Crime No.778 of 1999. No justification has been given for taking steps to effect the arrest of the accused in the early hours of a winter morning, particularly, when it has not been demonstrated that the accused was evading arrest or that coercive processes had already been issued to effect his arrest. Notably, the accused is a person having property therefore, there was no logical reason for him to escape. In such circumstances, there appears very little justification to arrest the accused in the early hours of a winter morning. The recovery, which has been vehemently denied by the accused, in our view, appears to be to add colour to the prosecution case. More so, because it has no public witness to support it. Further, when the Investigating Officer was cross-examined as to the surroundings from where the accused was arrested, he could not remember the surroundings and sought to refresh his memory from the records, which also makes the recovery doubtful. We, therefore, give the benefit of doubt to the accused in the matter of recovery of firearm from him.

22. For the reasons recorded above, we are of the view that the prosecution has failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt the charges for which the appellants have been tried and convicted. Consequently, the appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order of the trial court dated 26.08.2010 in Sessions Trial Nos. 440 of 2000, 440A of 2000 and 699 of 2000 is hereby set aside. The appellants are acquitted of the charges for which they have been tried and convicted. The appellants are reported to be in jail, they shall be released forthwith subject to compliance of Section 437A CrPC to the satisfaction of the court below.

23. Let a copy of this judgment and order be certified and sent along with the record of the record of the court below to the court below concerned for compliance.

A. Criminal Law - Determination of age of juvenile - The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015: Section 94 - The age of juvenality at the first instance be determined by the date of birth certificate from school, matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board. In absence of the certificate obtained from the above mentioned authority, the birth certificate obtained from a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat can be made basis of determination of age of a juvenile. The medical test (ossification test) of the minor is the last measure to be adopted by the Board or the Court. (Para 12)

The Court did not find any irregularity in High School certificate and mark sheet produced as a documentary proof by the private respondents. (Para 26)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Karunesh Singh Pawar, J.)

1. These two revisions arise out of same crime number and the offence(s) in which both the private respondents have been implicated are the same, they are taken up together and are being decided by the present common order.

2. Both the Criminal Revisions have been preferred challenging orders dated 29.7.2020 passed by Juvenile Justice Board, Gonda in Misc. Case No.15 of 2020 State versus Uday Pratap Singh and others and the judgment and order dated 21.11.2020 passed by Addl. Sessions Judge/Special Judge, POCSO Act, Gonda in Criminal appeal Nos. 29 Ajay Kumar Singh versus State of U.P. and Pushpendra Singh, and 30 of 2020 Ajay Kumar Singh alias Babloo Singh versus State and Uday Pratap Singh, arising out of Case Crime No.66 of 2020, under sections 147, 148, 149, 307, 302, 504, 506 I.P.C. and 7 Criminal Law Amendment Act, P.S. Umari Begum Ganj, district Gonda.

3. By orders dated 29.7.2020 (supra), the Juvenile Justice Board has declared both the private respondents, i.e. Uday Pratap Singh and Pushpendra Singh as juvenile on the basis of High School Mark Sheet and by appellate order dated 21.11.2020, learned Addl. Sessions Judge/Special Judge, POCSO Act, Gonda while upholding the order dated 29.7.2020 has dismissed the appeal preferred by the informant/revisionist Ajay Kumar Singh alias Babloo Singh.

4. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist as well as learned counsel appearing for private respondents and learned Addl. Government Advocate for the State.

5. The private respondents, i.e. respondent No.2 in both the criminal revisions moved an application for declarating them juvenile. The said applications were decided on the basis of evidence adduced by the private respondents by the Juvenile Justice Board vide order under challenge. The date of birth of Pushpendra Singh in High School mark sheet has been mentioned as 10.7.2002. The incident took place on 3.4.2020. On the basis of this date of birth as recorded in the High School mark sheet, it has been held by Juvenile Justice Board that Pushpendra Singh was 17 years 8 months and 24 days on the date of incident and thus, he has been declared as juvenile.

The date of birth of other accused/respondent No.2 Uday Pratap Singh as recorded in the High School Mark Sheet is 5.7.2002 and on the date of incident, he has been declared as juvenile being his age as 17 years 8 months and 29 days. For determination of age, the learned court below has also considered the evidence given by C.W.1 mother(s) of private respondents and C.W.2 Maan Singh, Incharge Principal of Shri Parashar Rishi Uchchtar Madhyamik Vidyalaya, Paras Gonda and other educational certificates. As said above, the appeals preferred against the order passed by the Juvenile Justice Board have been rejected.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that on the date of incident, i.e. on 3.4.2020, the respondents No.2 were major. The real grandfather of Pushpendra Singh was Head Master in Primary School and he has got recorded the date of birth of Pushpendra Singh. He received initial education from Primary to Tenth class in Raghukul Vidya Peeth, Gonda and since he was not successful in Tenth Class, hence he took his admission in Parashar Rishi High School, Paras Patti and cleared the High School examination in 2018. It is submitted by learned counsel for the revisionist that although he has submitted before the Board to summon the transfer certificate from the Primary School, however, the Board did not accede the prayer made by the revisionist.

Learned counsel for the revisionist further submits that both the Courts below also did not consider the objection raised by the revisionist that the both the accused/respondents No.2 are major. To substantiate his argument, the revisionist's counsel has submitted before the Courts below that it is necessary that the private respondents be sent to undergo medical examination to be conducted by Medical Board so as to assess their correct age. However, during the course of hearing, the juvenile has produced school certificate issued by Raghukul vidya Peeth. Thus, it was opined by the Board that the objection is quite formal in nature. Learned lower appellate court has also failed to consider the grounds taken in the appeal.

Learned counsel has next submitted that the source of information on the basis of which entry of date of birth of respondent No.2 in the school record has not been furnished and there is no evidence on the record which can be said to be source of information regarding date of birth of respondent No.2. In support of his submission, learned counsel has relied on a judgment dated 21.1.2020 rendered in Criminal Revision No.2881 of 2019 Atul Singh Sengar versus State of U.P. and another and judgment and order dated 24.9.2018 passed in Criminal Revision No.3188 of 2017 Irfan versus State of U.P. and another.

Supplementing his arguments, learned counsel has submitted that the certificate/mark sheet issued by the school or the school record cannot be relied upon blindly and in case of any doubt, the court is empowered to ignore it. In this context, learned counsel has relied on a judgment of this Court dated 12.9.2019 passed in Criminal Revision No.1472 of 2014 Yalajindra Kaur versus State of U.P. and another.

Learned counsel for the revisionists has submitted that the learned appellate court while passing the impugned judgment dated 21.11.2020 has failed to consider the grounds mentioned in the appeal and rejected the same by a cryptic order with the observation that there is no infirmity and illegality in the order dated 29.7.2020 passed by the Juvenile Justice Board.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondents No.2 submits that the both the courts below have appreciated the evidence on record and have rightly declared the private respondents/accused as juvenile on the basis of the date of birth as recorded in the High School certificate. The Board has examined C.W.1 Kiran wife of Dinesh Singh and C.W.2 Maan Singh, Incharge Head Master of Sri Parashar Rishi Higher Secondary School, Paras, District Gonda in the case of Pushpendra Singh. They stated in unambiguous terms that the date of birth as recorded in the High School certificate is correct.

In the case of Uday Pratap Singh, C.W.1 Yashoda Singh who is his mother and Maan singh, who is Incharge Head Master of Sri Parashar Rishi Higher Secondary School, Paras, district Gonda were examined. They proved the date of birth of Uday Pratap Singh as recorded in the certificate as correct.

It is next submitted on behalf of private respondents that the provisions of Section 102 of The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 are pari-materia with the provisions of Section 397 CrPC and as such, it is submitted that the findings of facts cannot be interfered without showing that the findings are perverse. In this context, learned counsel has relied on Jai Nand Sharma versus The State of U.P. and another 2009(6) AdJ 723(relevant para 5), Sher Singh alias Sheru versus The State of U.P. 2017 Crl. L.J. 233 (relevant paras 60, 67, 68).

It is further submitted that there is no illegality in the orders passed by both the courts below as regards the determination of age of the accused on the basis of the date of birth as recorded in the matriculation certificate and the evidence(s) adduced before it. In this context, learned counsel has relied on Shailendra Kumar Yadav versus The State of U.P. and another 2014(8) ADJ 329 (para10) and Kallu Yadav alias Balram versus The State of U.P. and another 2017(6) ADJ 81 (relevant paras 14, 15, 16).

The respondents No.2 in both the cases are languishing in jail since 4.4.2020, i.e. for the last about two years and under the statute, three years punishment to the juvenile has been provided and thus, the accused/juveniles have already undergone a substantial period in jail.

8. I have considered the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the parties.

9. A perusal of the order dated 29.7.2020 passed by the Juvenile Justice Board reveals that in case of Uday Pratap Singh, the Board has considered the Transfer Certificates issued by Raghukul Vidya Peeth and Shri Parashar Rishi Uchchtar Madhyamik Vidyalaya, Paras, Gonda and the Assessment Report Card as also the table register (Sarniyan Panjika) of Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad, U.P. Examination, 2018 which has been counter signed by the Principal and District Inspector of Schools, Gonda. In all these documents, the date of birth of the juvenile has been recorded as 5.7.2002. The Board has also considered the evidence of C.W.1 Yashoda Singh, mother of the juvenile and C.W.2 Man Singh, incharge Principal, Shri Parashar Rishi Uchchtar Madhyamik Cidyalaya Paras, Gonda.

C.W. 1 Yashoda Singh has proved the date of birth of her son Uday Pratap Singh as 9.7.2002. She stated that Uday Pratap Singh had studied from class First to Fifth in Raghukul Vidya Peeth and at the time of his admission, she had got recorded his date of birth. Uday Pratap Singh has studied from Sixth to Tenth class in Parashar Rishi School.

C.W.2 Maan Singh also substantiated the date of birth of Uday Pratap Singh as 5.7.2002. The juvenile Uday Pratap Singh had taken his admission in Shri Parashar Rishi Uchchtar Madhyamik vidyalaya, Gonda in Class-IX and at the time of his admission, transfer certificate of Class-VIII was submitted in the school and the date of birth recorded in the transfer certificate was recorded in the school register, i.e. the scholar register which has been duly counter signed by District Inspector of Schools.

10. After considering all the certificates, evidence adduced before it as also the objections raised by the informant/revisionist, the Board by means of order under revision has declared the private respondent as juvenile.

Likewise, in the case of Pushpendra Singh, the Juvenile Justice Board after considering the transfer certificate issued by Shri Parashar Rishi Uchchtar Madhyamik vidyalaya, Gonda, the table register (Sarniyan Panjika) of Madhyamik Shiksha Parishad, U.P. Examination, 2018 which has been counter signed by the Principal and District Inspector of Schools, Gonda in which the date of birth of the accused has been recorded as 10.7.2002 as also the statement of C.W.1 Kiran, mother of Pushpendra Singh and C.W.2 Maan Singh, has come to the conclusion that Pushpendra Singh was a juvenile at the time of the incident, being his age as 17 years 8 months and 24 days.

11. The orders passed by the Juvenile Justice Board were challenged before the learned lower appellate court who found no illegality in the orders passed by the Board and thus rejected both the appeals.

12. Section 94 of The Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 provides the procedure to be followed by the courts or the Boards for the purpose of determination of age in every case concerning a child in conflict with law. The said provision is extracted below :

"94. Presumption and determination of age.- (1) Where, it is obvious to the Committee or the Board, based on the appearance of the person brought before it under any of the provisions of this Act (other than for the purpose of giving evidence) that the said person is a child, the Committee or the Board shall record such observation stating the age of the child as nearly as may be and proceed with the inquiry under section 14 or section 36, as the case may be, without waiting for further confirmation of the age.

(2) In case, the Committee or the Board has reasonable grounds for doubt regarding whether the person brought before it is a child or not, the Committee or the Board, as the case may be, shall undertake the process of age determination, by seeking evidence by obtaining--

(i) the date of birth certificate from the school, or the matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board, if available; and in the absence thereof;

(ii) the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat;

(iii) and only in the absence of (i) and (ii) above, age shall be determined by an ossification test or any other latest medical age determination test conducted on the orders of the Committee or the Board:

Provided such age determination test conducted on the order of the Committee or the Board shall be completed within fifteen days from the date of such order.

(3) The age recorded by the Committee or the Board to be the age of person so brought before it shall, for the purpose of this Act, be deemed to be the true age of that person."

(Emphasised)

A perusal of sub section (2) of Section 94 provides that the Court or the Board shall determine the age by undertaking the process of age determination by seeking evidence by obtaining the date of birth certificate from the school, matriculation or equivalent certificate from the concerned examination Board if available, and in absence thereof and in case the certificate as given in Clause (i) above, is not available, then the birth certificate of a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat can be made the basis of determination of age of a juvenile. Further, in case the document(s) as given in clauses (i) (ii), above extracted, are not available, then the age shall be determined by an ossification test to be conducted on the order of the Board.

13. In the case in hand, the Board was having the matriculation certificate or equivalent certificate of the concerned examination and since they were available, there was no occasion for the Board to have gone into the other documents, such as birth certificate issued by the local bodies or even electoral roll etc.

14. The argument of the learned counsel for the revisionist that the juvenile should have been produced before the Medical Board for ossification test is misconceived in the light of specific provision given in Clause (iii), above extracted, which provides that age shall be determined by an ossification test to be conducted on the order of the board in case the documents as provided in Clause (i) and (ii) of Sub Section (2) of Section 94 are not produced before the Board or the Committee as the case may be. The medical test of the minor is the last measure to be adopted by the Board or the Court in case no authentic document is available before it as provided in section 94 of the Act.

15. As regards the judgment in Valajindra Kaur's case (supra), particularly para 14 thereof, relied on by revisionist's counsel, it would be appropriate to refer the said para which is extracted below :

"14. The purpose of the above discussion is that the age of juveni1ity can be determined on the basis of high school certificate/marks-sheet or school record if there is no doubt with regards to genuineness and authenticity thereof. When there arises reasonable doubt in respect thereof, the same cannot be relied blindly and the court is empowered under law to ignore the same. "

From the above extracted finding, it is evident and has no doubt that the age of juvenality at the first instance can be determined on the basis of High School mark sheet or the school record in case there is no doubt regarding its genuineness or authenticity. The said document can only be ignored if there is any doubt about its genuineness.

16. In the present case, there was no doubt regarding the correctness of the matriculation certificate produced on behalf of the juvenile. The date of birth recorded in the High School certificate has been further fortified by the evidence of C.W.1 and C.W.2 and other educational cerficates. Thus, there was no occasion for the Board to have sent the accused/juvenile for ossification test.

17. As regards the argument that the learned Court below should have summoned the original document of the school in which the private respondents had first taken admission and the case relied on in this respect, i.e. Atul Singh Sengar's case (supra), it is significant to mention that in the case of Atul Singh Sengar, there were tampering and manipulation in the school register qua the date of birth of the accused/juvenile as also false averment was made by the accused and in those circumstances, the Court has relied on the date of birth as recorded in the school where the juvenile first attended. It is not the case here in the present case, as elaborated above and need not be repeated, and therefore, the case relied on by the learned counsel is also not applicable in the present case.

18. The judgment relied on by the learned counsel for the revisionist in the case of Irfan (supra) is also not of any help to the revisionist in the present case as the facts of the said case were quite different from the case in hand. In that case, a transfer certificate was filed by the applicant claimed to have been issued by Madan Junior Basic School with respect to his schooling prior to his admission in High School in Prem Prayag Kanya Inter College, Bhogaon, Mainpuri. A suspicion was raised on the veracity of the High School record and the very important witness C.W.4 Principal of Madan Junior Basic School revealed that the juvenile had never studied in Madan Junior Basic School, Bhagaon, Mainpuri and the transfer certificate allegedly issued by the school is fake. In such circumstances the Juvenile Justice Board did not give effect to the date of birth found recorded in the High School certificate of the applicant and instead gave effect to the date of birth found recorded in the record of the Primary School, Muitra Chak.

19. Further, in this case, C.W.2 Maan Singh Incharge Principal of Shri Parashar Rishi Uchchatar Madhyalaya, Paras, Gonda has testified before the Juvenile Justice Board and has proved the date of birth of both the juveniles as correct as recorded in matriculation certificate.

20. Similarly, C.W.1 who are mother of the private respondents have adduced their evidence and have proved the date of birth of the juveniles.

21. Supreme Court in the case of Sri Ganesh versus State of Tamilnadu and another Criminal appeal No.39 of 2017 while relying on the judgment in Ashwani Kumar Saxena versus State of Madhya Pradesh (2012)9 SCC 750 has held in paras 32 and 33 as under :

"32. Consequently, the procedure to be followed under the J.J. Act in conducting an inquiry is the procedure laid down in that statute itself i.e. Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules. We cannot import other procedures laid down in the Code of Criminal Procedure or any other enactment while making an inquiry with regard to the juvenility of a person, when the claim of juvenility is raised before the court exercising powers under section 7A of the Act. Many of the cases, we have come across, it is seen that the Criminal Courts are still having the hangover of the procedure of trial or inquiry under the code if they are trying an offence under the Penal laws forgetting the fact that the specific procedure has been laid down in section 7A read with Rule 12.

33. We also remind all Courts/J.J. Board and the Committees functioning under the Act that a duty is cast on them to seek evidence by obtaining the certificate etc. mentioned in Rule 12 (3) (a) (i) to (iii). The courts in such situations act as a parens patriae because they have a kind of guardianship over minors who from their legal disability stand in need of protection.

34. "Age determination inquiry" contemplated under section 7A of the Act r/w Rule 12 of the 2007 Rules enables the court to seek evidence and in that process, the court can obtain the matriculation or equivalent certificates, if available. Only in the absence of any matriculation or equivalent certificates, the court need obtain the date of birth certificate from the school first attended other than a play school. Only in the absence of matriculation or equivalent certificate or the date of birth certificate from the school first attended, the court need obtain the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat (not an affidavit but certificates or documents). The question of obtaining medical opinion from a duly constituted Medical Board arises only if the above mentioned documents are unavailable. In case exact assessment of the age cannot be done, then the court, for reasons to be recorded, may, if considered necessary, give the benefit to the child or juvenile by considering his or her age on lower side within the margin of one year.

From the above extracted judgment, it is evident that only in absence of a matriculation or equivalent certificate or date of birth of the school first attended, the Court needs to obtain the birth certificate given by a corporation or a municipal authority or a panchayat (not an affidavit but certificates or documents). The court further held that in case the above referred document is not available then only the age determination can be made on the basis of the report of the Medical Board constituted for the purpose.

22. As said above, in the present case, the matriculation certificate and the other school records as also the testimony of C.W.1 and C.W.2 were there before the Board, therefore, there was no occasion for the Board to call for the records of Primary School or the school where the juvenile had first attended. There was also no justification at all to send the juveniles for ossification test as the sufficient evidence was available before the Board to determine the age of the juveniles.

23. Section 102 of Indian Evidence Act provides that whoever desires any court to give judgment as to any legal right or liability depends on existence of facts which he asserts, must prove that those facts exist. Thus, when a person is bound to prove the existence of any fact, it is said that the burden of proof lies on that person. Thus, the burden of proof would ordinarily be on the party who asserts the affirmative of the issue.

24. In the present case, the case of juvenility has been proved by both the accused persons/private respondents. Contrary to it, the informant revisionist was under legal obligation to prove by cogent evidence that respondents No.2 were not juvenile. No evidence has been adduced by the informant/revisionist to discharge his burden that the respondents No.2 were not juvenile. The application filed by the Juveniles for declaration of their being a juvenile will fail only if both the parties do not adduce any evidence in view of Section 102.

25. In the present case, the date of birth figuring in the High School certificate has been endorsed and affirmed by C.W.1, mother of the private respondents as also by C.W.2 Maan Singh, Incharge, Head Master of Sri Parashar Rishi Higher Secondary School, Paras, district Gonda. The informant/revisionist has not filed any document to prove that the date of birth of Pushpendra Singh and Uday Pratap Singh is different than recorded in High School mark-sheet and certificate. During enquiry before the Board and before the learned appellate court, no evidence to show that the date of birth is different or they are not juvenile could not be shown by the informant/revisionist.

26. The High School certificate as per the Juvenile Justice Act as also the various judgments of this Court as well as Supreme Court is a reliable document to determine the date of birth of the juvenile. The determination of the age has been done according to the date of birth recorded in the matriculation certificate and the other evidence adduced before the Courts below. Unless some documentary proof or evidence is produced before the Board or the lower appellate court which may negate the correctness of the High School certificate and mark sheet, no irregularity or illegality can be fastened to the finding given by the Board or the lower appellate Court while declaring the accused as juvenile.

27. I find no irregularity or illegality in the concurrent finding of fact arrived at by the Juvenile Justice Board and the lower appellate court.

28. The revisions, being devoid of merit, are dismissed.

7. Dev Wati & ors. Vs St. of Har. & ors. 2019 (195) AIC 225 (S.C.)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Brij Raj Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arun Sinha, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri Anurag Verma, learned AG.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. This Criminal Revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 11.04.2014 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.8, Sitapur in Case S.T. No.772/2009, State versus Mainul Haq and others,arising out of Case Crime No.534/2009, Under section 302, 120-B I.P.C., Police Station- Khairabad, District-Sitapur, summoning the revisionist as accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to face trial under Section 302/120-B I.P.C. Further prayer has been made that the proceeding of the case may be stayed during the pendency of the present revision.

3. The complainant had moved an application on 11.04.2012 to summon the accused-revisionist in proceedings under Section 319 Cr.P.C. In the said application, the complainant submitted that the revisionist was named in the F.I.R. In the complaint, it is also alleged that there was dispute of land property in between Azra Rizvi and Sagir Ahmad(revisionist) and her husband was threatened by the revisionist.

It is further alleged in the application that in her cross examination before the trial court, she stated that when her husband went out from her house, she rang her husband after twenty minutes, who told her that Azra Rizvi, Sagir, Mainul Haq and 2-4 other persons were sitting with him. She further stated that it was the last seen evidence and on the basis of the said happening, the F.I.R. was lodged, but the police did not file chargesheet against the accused. It is further stated that the complainant (P.W. 1) and P.W.3-Misbahul Hasan have been cross examined and during the cross examination, P.W. 1 and P.W.-3 have specifically named the accused-revisionist. Therefore, he should be summoned and trial should be done.

4. The court below passed the impugned order dated 11.04.2014, by which the accused revisionist has been summoned, which has been challenged by the accused in present revision.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that the charge-sheet was filed against the accused, who committed the offence. It has been further submitted that there was no complicity for the offence found against the revisionist and, therefore, charge sheet was not filed against him, rather the chargesheet was filed against Mainul Haq s/o Ainul, Zahid s/o Munne Khan and Zunaid s/o Shoaib Ahmad. He further submitted that even if the statement of P.W. 1 and P.W. 3 are taken into consideration, no offence is made out because no evidence had been produced by them which indicates that the revisionist is involved in commission of offence. He has further submitted that P.W.1 has specifically mentioned the names Sagir s/o Munne Khan in the F.I.R. as well as in the statement but the revisionist is Sagir s/o Ali Ahmad and without ascertaining the parentage of the revisionist, the impugned order has been passed.

6. In support of his argument, he placed reliance on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Anjan Kumar Sarma versus State of Assam; (2017) 14 SCC 359, Brijendra Singh and others versus State of Rajasthan; (2017) 7 SCC 706, Arjun Marik and others versus State of Bihar; 1994 Supp.(2) SCC 372, Hardeep Singh versus State of Punjab;(2014) 3 SCC 92 and one judgment passed by this Court in Application under Section 482 bearing No.6936 of 2019(Ravindra Nath Mishra versus State of U.P.).

7. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that the parentage of the revisionist is Sagir s/o Ali Ahmad, whereas P.W.1 has stated the revisionist as Sagir son of Muneer. The parentage of the revisionist has neither been identified nor verified and the name mentioned by P.W.1 is different because as per version of P.W.1 the accused is Sagir s/o Muneer. The statement of P.W.1 is annexed at page 44 of the paper book, which clearly indicates that the accused is Sagir s/o Muneer, whereas the application has been made against the accused whose name is Sagir, however, the father's name of the revisionist is Ali Ahmad.

8. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has invited the attention of this Court towards the F.I.R. in which the revisionist Sagir has been named. He has further submitted that from the statements and cross examination of P. W. -1 and P.W. 3, it is quite evident that the revisionist has committed the offence. In her statement, P.W.1 has stated that her husband got a call at 9:00 p.m. in the night. On asking as to who called him, he told to his wife Smt. Sabira(complainant) that Mainul Haq s/o Ainul Haq called him at temple situated at Moti Jheel. After 20 minutes from his departure, she called her husband on phone who told her that he was in the company of Azra Rizvi, Sagir, Mainul Hasan and 2-4 other persons and thereafter phone was disconnected. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the State that P.W. 3 Misbahul Hasan, the brother of the deceased also narrated the same fact as stated by P.W. 2. He also deposed before the court below that he was standing at the gate of his house and saw a white car standing in front of the house in which Sagir, Zunaid and Mainul Haq were sitting.

9. Learned A.G.A. while relying on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sartaj Singh versus State of Haryana and another; (2021) 5 SCC 337 and Dev Wati and others versus State of Haryana and others;2019(195) AIC 225(S.C.) submitted that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has discussed the scope of Section 319 Cr.P.C and held that though only a prima facie case is to be established from the evidence led before the court, not necessarily tested on the anvil of cross-examination, it requires much stronger evidence than mere probability of complicity of the persons against whom the court proceeds.

10. I have heard submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. It is mentioned that when the case was investigated, the charge sheet was filed against three accused persons namely Azra Rizvi, Sagir, Mainul Hasan and the revisionist was not charge sheeted. The I.O. had recorded the evidence and weapon and after recording the statement, three persons, who committed the offence were charge-sheeted. Since the revisionist was not found in the complicity of the offence in any manner, therefore, the charge sheet was not filed. P.W. 1 and P.W. 3 have given statement before the court below during the examination-in-chief as well as cross examination, wherein they have mentioned that the revisionist might have committed the offence because before two months from the date of incident, he had threatened the deceased. P.W.3 also stated that he had seen the revisionist sitting in car in front of his house alongwith other persons, but no other act of commission of offence is mentioned by him. The accused Mainul s/o Ainul Haq confessed the offence and Banka(tabli) was recovered on his pointing out. The other associate Zunaid and Zahid were also involved in the crime against whom a charge-sheet was filed.

12. This Court has to see whether from the entire material available in the charge-sheet as well as in statement made by the prosecution witnesses, any offence is made out or any act of commission can be attributed.

13. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has considered the aforesaid aspect in various cases. The last seen evidence has been discussed in the case of Anjan Kumar Sarma(supra), in which, it has been held that in absence of proof or other circumstances, the only circumstance of last seen together and absence of satisfactory explanation, cannot be a ground for conviction. Further in the case of Brijendra(supra), which is a matter pertaining to Section 319 Cr.P.C., the Hon'ble Supreme Court has laid parameter in Para 14 and 15 of the decision. The Supreme Court has observed that the evidence recorded during the trial should be credible for commission of offence. Once the I.O. had collected the plethora of evidence and there is no act of commission of offence found against the person the trial court was at least duty bound to look into the same while forming opinion to summon. The relevant paragraph 14 and 15 are quoted below:

"14. When we translate the aforesaid principles with their application to the facts of this case, we gather an impression that the trial court acted in a casual and cavalier manner in passing the summoning order against the appellants. The appellants were named in the FIR. Investigation was carried out by the police. On the basis of material collected during investigation, which has been referred to by us above, the IO found that these appellants were in Jaipur city when the incident took place in Kanaur, at a distance of 175 km. The complainant and others who supported the version in the FIR regarding alleged presence of the appellants at the place of incident had also made statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. to the same effect. Notwithstanding the same, the police investigation revealed that the statements of these persons regarding the presence of the appellants at the place of occurrence was doubtful and did not inspire confidence, in view of the documentary and other evidence collected during the investigation, which depicted another story and clinchingly showed that appellants plea of alibi was correct.

15. This record was before the trial court. Notwithstanding the same, the trial court went by the deposition of complainant and some other persons in their examination-in-chief, with no other material to support their so- called verbal/ocular version. Thus, the "evidence" recorded during trial was nothing more than the statements which were already there under Section 161 Cr.P.C. recorded at the time of investigation of the case. No doubt, the trial court would be competent to exercise its power even on the basis of such statements recorded before it in examination-in-chief. However, in a case like the present where plethora of evidence was collected by the IO during investigation which suggested otherwise, the trial court was at least duty bound to look into the same while forming prima facie opinion and to see as to whether much stronger evidence than mere possibility of their (i.e. appellants) complicity has come on record. There is no satisfaction of this nature. Even if we presume that the trial court was not apprised of the same at the time when it passed the order (as the appellants were not on the scene at that time), what is more troubling is that even when this material on record was specifically brought to the notice of the High Court in the Revision Petition filed by the appellants, the High Court too blissfully ignored the said material. Except reproducing the discussion contained in the order of the trial court and expressing the agreement therewith, nothing more has been done. Such orders cannot stand judicial scrutiny."

14. Similarly paragraph 31 of the case of Arjun Marik(supra) is also relevant to be seen, which is quoted below:

"31. Thus the evidence that the appellant had gone to Sitaram in the evening of 19-7-1985 and had stayed in the night at the house of deceased Sitaram is very shaky and inconclusive. Even if it is accepted that they were there it would at best amount to be the evidence of the appellants having been seen last together with the deceased. But it is settled law that the only circumstance of last seen will not complete the chain of circumstances to record the finding that it is consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and, therefore, no conviction on that basis alone can be founded."

15. After looking into the material available on record, I found that the court below has not taken into consideration the other circumstances and material available before him collected by the I.O. and passed the order only on the basis of the statement of P.W. 1 and P.W. 3 which is not proper course. The trial court has also not verified/ identified the parentage of the revisionist whose father is Ali Ahmad whereas P.W. 1 has categorically stated in the examination-in-chief that the name of the accused is Sagir s/o Muneer, which is also to be enquired by the court below.

16. In view of the aforesaid discussion, I set aside the impugned order dated 11.04.2014 and remand the matter to the court below, who will pass fresh order within four months from today keeping in view the observations made hereinabove.

17. The revision is accordingly allowed. No order as to costs.

18. Office is directed to communicate this order to the court below for necessary compliance, forthwith.

1. The application seeks condonation of delay in filing the criminal revision.

2. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State.

3. None appears for respondent no.2.

4. Since cause shown in the affidavit filed in support of application for condonation of delay in filing the instant revision is satisfactory, the application for condonation is allowed and delay in filing the instant revision is hereby condoned.

(Order on the memo of Revision)

1. Heard Shri Avinash Srivastava holding brief of Shri Ashok Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the revisionist and learned A.G.A. for the State as well as perused the record.

2. None appears for respondent no.2. However, learned counsel for the revisionist submits that the present revision is pending since 2008 and even objections have not been filed by respondent no.2 and the matter has never been argued by respondent no.2.

3. The present revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 11.4.2008 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.5, Pratapgarh passed in Criminal Revision No.54 of 2007, whereby the order of trial Court dated 23.1.2007 has been modified. The maintenance allowance of Rs.1000/- awarded in favour of the revisionist no.1 has been canceled or set aside and maintenance allowance in favour of revisionist nos. 2 and 3 has been reduced to Rs.250/- per month from Rs.500/- per month each.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that learned trial Court vide judgement and order dated 23.1.2007 has allowed the application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. filed by the revisionist after adjudicating five issues. All those issues have been decided in favour of the revisionist. Aggrieved by the order passed by the trial Court, respondent no.2 filed the revision before the revisional court, wherein the impugned order dated 11.4.2008 has been passed.

5. Submission of learned counsel for the revisionist is that the revisional Court has wrongly relied and misinterpreted the judgment of Danial Latifi and another vs. Union of India reported in AIR 2001 SC 3958 by allowing the revision. He submits that revision has been allowed only on the ground that since the revisionist no.1 has been divorced by respondent no.2 both are governed by The Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Divorce) Act 1986 and therefore in view of judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Danial Latifi (supra), after enforcement of this Act, the divorced Muslim women is entitled to get maintenance under Section 3 and Section 4 of the aforesaid Act even after the stage of iddat and therefore she is not entitled to receive maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. In support of his arguments, he has relied on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shabana Bano vs. Imran Khan passed in Criminal Appeal No.2309 of 2009.

6. Learned counsel for the revisionist submits that till date not a single penny has been given by respondent no.2 to the revisionist.

7. On due consideration and perusal of the record as well as the impugned judgment passed by the trial court, it is not in dispute that respondent no.2 is a person of having sufficient means to maintain his divorced wife and minor children. Issue no.1 has been decided by learned trial Court in favour of the revisionist. Likewise he has neglected to maintain his wife and minor children. The revisionist is destitute and have no source of income and revisionist is entitled to get the maintenance allowance from respondent no.2 and consequently issue nos. 2 to 5 have been decided in favour of the claimant revisionist.

8. It appears that revisional court has modified the order passed by the learned trial court and maintenance allowance granted under Section 125 Cr.P.C. in favour of respondent no.1 has been set aside and the allowance granted in favour of respondent nos.2 and 3 have been reduced to Rs. 250/- from Rs. 500/- per month.

9. From perusal of the impugned order, it appears that the finding of fact regarding the monthly income of the respondent no.2 given by the learned trial Court has been substituted by the revisional Court by its own finding and a different finding, which, in my opinion, is not permissible, while exercising jurisdiction in the criminal revision. On this ground, the maintenance allowance awarded to the revisionists no.2 and 3 has been reduced to half, which is also not proper.

10. Learned revisional Court, while setting aside the maintenance allowance granted in favour of the revisionist no.1 by the trial court, has relied on the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Danial Latifi (Supra). The finding given by learned revisional Court is extracted below:-

तलाक के बिन्दु पर पक्षकारों के विद्वान अधिवक्ता की ओर से काफी बहस की गयी है। निगरानीकर्ता के विद्वान अधिवक्ता की ओर से यह कहा गया है कि तलाकशुदा पत्नी किसी भी रूप में धारा 125 द०प्र०सं० के अन्तर्गत गुजारा भत्ता पाने को अधिकारिणी नहीं है। इस सन्दर्भ में निगरानीकर्ता के विद्वान अधिवक्ता ने मुस्लिम वोमेन प्रोटेक्शन आफ राइट आन डाइवोर्स एक्ट 1986 की धारा 03 तथा धारा 04 के प्रावधानों पर न्यायालय का ध्यान आकर्षित कराया। धारा 03 में यह कहा गया है कि जब मुस्लिम महिला को तलाक दिया जाता है तब वह मैहर तथा अन्य सम्पत्तियाँ पाने की अधिकारिणी होती है तलाक के समय पहले पति से यह इद्दत के पीरियड के अन्दर रिजनेबुल तथा पेपर एंव निर्वाह भत्ता पाने की अधिकारिणी होती है। यह सामान पहले वाले पति द्वारा वापस दिया जाता है। इसी प्रकार से धारा 04 में यह कहा गया है कि अपने पति से यदि यह निर्वाह भत्ता पाने में स्वयं को असमर्थ पाती है तो उसका निर्वाह भत्ता रिश्तेदार देगें। यदि वह लोग भी देने में सक्षम न हो तब मजिस्ट्रेट वक्फ अधिनियम की धारा 09 के अन्तर्गत राज्य वक्फ बोर्ड को आदेश दे सकता है कि तलाकशुदा पत्नी का निर्वाह भत्ता दिया जाय। निगरानीकर्ता के विज्ञान अधिवक्ता की ओर से नजोर 2001 वॉलूम 45 ए०एल०आर० पेज 426 डेनियल लतीफh आदि बनाम यूनियन आफ इंडिया दाखिल किया है यह नजीर माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय के पाँच न्यायमूर्ति गण के द्वारा यह अभिनिर्धारित किया है कि यदि एक मुस्लिम औरत अपने पति के द्वारा तलाक पा लेती है और वह 125 सी०आर०पी०सी० के अन्तर्गत निर्वाह भत्ता उस पति से प्राप्त कर लेती है तो यदि यह अधिकार समाप्त कर दिया जो रिजनेबुल जस्ट तथा पेपर न होगा । माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय के कहने का तात्पर्य है कि अधिनियम की धारा 09 व 04 के अन्तर्गत पति को अपनी तलाकशुदा पत्नी के भविष्य के लिये कुछ न कुछ निर्वाहन के लिये करना होगा। यह केवल इदत्त के समय को अवधि तक के लिये सीमित नहीं है । मुस्लिम तलाकशुदा औरत अपने रिश्तेदारों के विरूद्घ कार्यवाही कर सकती है कि यदि वे रिश्तेदार निर्वाह भत्ता देने में असमर्थ है तो मजिस्ट्रेट स्टेट वक्फ बोर्ड को आदेश निर्वाह भत्ता के लिये जारी कर सकता है। इस नजीर के अवलोकन से इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुँचा जा सकता है कि तलाक शुदा पत्नी अपने पूर्व पति से निर्वाह भत्ता पाने की अधिकारिणी नहीं है ।

- तलाक से सम्बन्धित तथ्य का उल्लेख पहले आ चुका है। कि निगरानीकर्ता ने पहली बार तलाक को बात अपने जबाब दावे में नहीं कही

बल्कि साक्षी नासिर अली जो निगरानीकर्ता की ओर से साक्षों के रूप में प्रस्तुत हुआ है उसने कहा है कि पक्षकारों के मध्य पहले तलाक हो तलाक का चुका था। तलाक के समय रजिया उस समय नकाब में नहीं थी तलाक जुबानी हुआ थाA तलाक में लिखापढ़ी नही हुई थी। इस साक्षी के कथनानुसार तलाक के समय रजिया उपस्तिथी यह तिथि 16-10-99 की थी जिस दिन रजिया के उपेक्षा एवं तिरस्कृत पूर्ण रवैये से क्षुब्ध होकर जैनुउद्दोन को तलाक देने की आवश्यकता हुई । इससे स्पष्ट है कि पक्षकारों के मध्य तलाक वैध रूप से प्रभावी है। इस तलाक के लिये रजिया को ही दोषी ठहराया जायेगा जैनुद्दीन को नहीं क्योंकि jजिया ही स्वेच्छा से मायके में रह रही है। निगरानीकर्ता के द्वारा दाखिल उपरोक्त नजीर के अवलोक्त से स्पष्ट है कि तलाकशुदा मुस्लिम महिला थारा 125 सी०आर०पी०सी० के अन्तर्गत पूर्व पति से जिसने मेहर तथा इदत्त की अवधि की पूरा पैसा अदा कर दिया है निर्वाह भत्ता पाने को अधिकारिणी नहीं है । मौजूदा केस में यही है कि निगरानीकर्ता ने रजिया को तलाक दे दिया है जिसके फस्वरूप रजिया निर्वाह भत्ता धारा 125 फौजदारी के अन्तर्गत पाने को अधिकारीणी नहीं है। निगरानीकर्ता यह स्वीकार करता है कि अपने दोनों बच्चों को निर्वाह भत्ता देने को तैयार है परन्तु अधीनस्थ न्यायालय में निगरानी कर्ता की आय को ध्यान में रखते हुए बहुत अधिक निर्वाह भत्ता की धनराशि प्रदान करने का आदेश पारित है।

माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय ने रिजनेबुल एण्ड पेपर का सिद्न्त है कि वह धारा 03 मुस्लिम वोमेन प्रोटेक्शन आफ राइट आफडाइवोट एक्ट 1986 के अन्तर्गत पारित किया गया है। धारा 125] के प्राध्यान इस एक्ट के लागू हो जाने से मुस्लिम तलाकशुदा महिला का कोई वास्ता सरोकार नहीं रह जाता है। उक्त एक्ट की धारा 30 व 04 के अन्तर्गत वह इदरत की अवधि के पश्चात भी निर्वाह भत्ता अपने पूर्व पति से पा सकती है।

इस प्रकार उपरोक्त विवेचना के आधार पर मैं इस निष्कर्ष पर पहुॅचा हूँ कि विपक्षी संख्या 01 रजिया धारा 125 द०प्र०सं० के अन्तर्गत निर्वाह भत्ता पाने को अधिकारी नहीं है। विपक्षी संख्या 2 व 3 निगरानीकर्ता से निर्वाह पाने के अधिकारी हैं। अधीनस्थ PRITI निर्वाह भत्ता की धानराशि 500/= 500/- रूपये प्रदान के लिए आदेश पारित किया है वह इसिलए जो तर्कसंगत नहीं है कि निगरानीकर्ता को आय का एक मात्र साधन उसको वेतन है यह वेतन 1500/= रुपये प्रतिमाह है जिसे विपक्षी ने भी स्वीकार किया है। ऐसी दशा में विपक्षी सं० 2 व 3 के निर्वाह भत्ता की धनराशि पांच सौ रुपये से घटाकर 250/= 250/= रूपये निर्धारित किया जाना उचित एंव तर्क संगत प्रतीत होता है। फलस्वरूप निगरानी स्वीकार किये जाने योग्य है ।

निगरानी स्वीकार की जाती है। अधीनस्थ न्यायालय का आदेश दिनांकित 23-01-2007 संशोधित किया जाता है। विपक्षी संख्या 01 के हक में निर्वाह भत्ता की धनराशि 1000/- रूपये समाप्त की जाती है विपक्षी 2 व 3 के हक में निवाह भत्ता दिये जाने की न्यू० धाराशि 500/-, 500/- रूपये से कम करके 250/= दो सौ पच्चास रूपये दिये जाने हेतु आदेश पारित किया जाता है। पक्षकार वाद व्यय स्वयं वहन करेगें पत्रावली अधीनस्थ न्यायालय को वापस भेजी जाय ।

11. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sabana Bano (Supra) has held that a divorced Muslim women can be entitled for divorce as long as she does not re-marry. Further, it has been held that provision under Section 125 Cr.P.C. are beneficial piece of legislation and the benefit thereof must accrue to the divorced Muslim women. It has also been held that the divorced Muslim women shall be entitled to claim maintenance from her husband under Section 125 Cr.P.C. even after expiry of period of iddat as long as she does not remarry. Relevant paragraphs 29 and 30 of the judgment are extracted below:-

"29. Cumulative reading of the relevant portions of judgments of this Court in Danial Latifi (supra) and Iqbal Bano (supra) would make it crystal clear that even a divorced Muslim woman would be entitled to claim maintenance from her divorced husband, as long as she does not remarry. This being a beneficial piece of legislation, the benefit thereof must accrue to the divorced Muslim women.

30. In the light of the aforesaid discussion, the impugned orders are hereby set aside and quashed. It is held that even if a Muslim woman has been divorced, she would be entitled to claim maintenance from her husband under Section 125 of the Cr.P.C. after the expiry of period of iddat also, as long as she does not remarry."

12. In view of the aforesaid judgement of Sabana Bano (Supra), I have no hesitation in holding that the view taken by the revisional Court is contrary to the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court. The revisionist no.1 being a divorced Muslim women was entitled to claim maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C. There is no illegality in the order passed by the trial Court.

13. Accordingly, the impugned order passed by the learned revisional Court is set-aside in view of law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case Sabana Bano (supra).

14. While passing the judgment, this Court has noticed that the maintenance has been awarded to the revisionist under Section 125 Cr.P.C. from the date of the order, which according to recent judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Rajnesh vs. Neha and another reported in (2021) 2 SCC 324, should be paid from the date of application filed under Section 125 Cr.P.C. and therefore, judgment being retrospective in nature is applicable in present case.

15. Hence, the order passed by the learned trial court dated 23.1.2007 is also modified to the extent that the revisionist shall be paid maintenance by respondent no.2 from the date of filing of the application under Section 125 Cr.PC. Any amount already paid during the pendency of the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. by respondent no.2 shall be adjusted.

16. The present revision is, accordingly, allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Brij Raj Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Arun Sinha, learned counsel for the revisionist and Sri Ravish Chandra Mishra, learned AG.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. This Criminal Revision has been filed for setting aside the summoning order dated 03.07.2013 passed by Additional District & Sessions Judge, TECP-3, Lucknow in S.T. No.552/2012, State versus Deepak Verma arising out of Case Crime No.14/2012 of Police Station-Para, Lucknow summoning the revisionist as accused under Section 319 Cr.P.C. to face trial under Section 366/323/343/506 I.P.C.

3. The A.P.O. had moved application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. with averment that P.W. 1 - Jahanvi Yadav, P.W.2-Smt. Pammi Yadav and P.W.3-Km. Aarti have been examined by the court and their cross examination have also been recorded. The application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is made to the effect that after looking into the statement of P.W.2- Arti recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. before the court, the complicity of Dr. Ansar Ahmad Khan in furtherance of the offence is found. Therefore, a prayer was made to summon the revisionist for trial. It has been further submitted that in the case of rape, no other evidence is required and the statement of the prosecutrix is sufficient. The prosecutrix had stated that the accused Deepak Verma had brought her to the clinic of Dr. A.A. Khan, the revisionist on the pretext that he will provide job to her with good emolument. She reached to the clinic of the revisionist at 6:00 p.m., where they asked her to go to the operation theater, which was situated in the basement. When she reached to the operation theater, nobody was present there. When she protested and asked them to allow her to go, she was beaten by the revisionist and Deepak Verma. As per statement of the prosecutrix, she was caught hold by the doctor i.e. the revisionist. She further stated that she heard the arguments between the revisionist-Dr. A.A. Khan and Deepak Verma and they were having dispute on the question that who will firstly commit sexual intercourse with her. On the application of the public prosecutor, the court had summoned the revisionist by order dated 03.07.2013.

4. Learned counsel for the revisionist has submitted that I.O. investigated the matter and collected the evidence and submitted his report. However, he did not find any evidence against the revisionist and the chargesheet was only filed against the co-accused Deepak Verma. He has submitted that on the date of occurrence, the revisionist had gone to Delhi alongwith his patient. He has produced the train ticket, chart of the railway, the statement of the patient, who had accompanied along with Dr. A.A.Khan at Delhi. Statement of the patient was recorded and the I.O. found that on the date of occurrence, the revisionist was not present at the place of occurrence and he was falsely implicated, hence, charge-sheet was filed only against Deepak Verma, the co-accused. He further submitted that while issuing the summoning order, the court below has overlooked the material of the charge-sheet collected by the I.O.

5. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the revisionist has placed reliance on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Anjan Kumar Sarma versus State of Assam; (2017) 14 SCC 359, Brijendra Singh and others versus State of Rajasthan; (2017) 7 SCC 706, Arjun Marik and others versus State of Bihar; 1994 Supp.(2) SCC 372, Hardeep Singh versus State of Punjab;(2014) 3 SCC 92 and one judgment passed by this Court in Application under Section 482 bearing No.6936 of 2019(Ravindra Nath Mishra versus State of U.P.).

6. In the case of Brijendra Singh (supra), which is a matter pertaining to Section 319 Cr.P.C., the Hon'ble Supreme Court has laid parameter in Para 14 and 15 of the decision. The Supreme Court has observed that the evidence recorded during the trial should be credible for commission of offence. Once the I.O. had collected the plethora of evidence and there is no act of commission of offence found against the person the trial court was at least duty bound to look into the same while forming opinion to summon. The relevant paragraph 14 and 15 are quoted below:

"14. When we translate the aforesaid principles with their application to the facts of this case, we gather an impression that the trial court acted in a casual and cavalier manner in passing the summoning order against the appellants. The appellants were named in the FIR. Investigation was carried out by the police. On the basis of material collected during investigation, which has been referred to by us above, the IO found that these appellants were in Jaipur city when the incident took place in Kanaur, at a distance of 175 km. The complainant and others who supported the version in the FIR regarding alleged presence of the appellants at the place of incident had also made statements under Section 161 Cr.P.C. to the same effect. Notwithstanding the same, the police investigation revealed that the statements of these persons regarding the presence of the appellants at the place of occurrence was doubtful and did not inspire confidence, in view of the documentary and other evidence collected during the investigation, which depicted another story and clinchingly showed that appellants plea of alibi was correct.

15. This record was before the trial court. Notwithstanding the same, the trial court went by the deposition of complainant and some other persons in their examination-in-chief, with no other material to support their so- called verbal/ocular version. Thus, the "evidence" recorded during trial was nothing more than the statements which were already there under Section 161 Cr.P.C. recorded at the time of investigation of the case. No doubt, the trial court would be competent to exercise its power even on the basis of such statements recorded before it in examination-in-chief. However, in a case like the present where plethora of evidence was collected by the IO during investigation which suggested otherwise, the trial court was at least duty bound to look into the same while forming prima facie opinion and to see as to whether much stronger evidence than mere possibility of their (i.e. appellants) complicity has come on record. There is no satisfaction of this nature. Even if we presume that the trial court was not apprised of the same at the time when it passed the order (as the appellants were not on the scene at that time), what is more troubling is that even when this material on record was specifically brought to the notice of the High Court in the Revision Petition filed by the appellants, the High Court too blissfully ignored the said material. Except reproducing the discussion contained in the order of the trial court and expressing the agreement therewith, nothing more has been done. Such orders cannot stand judicial scrutiny."

7. Similarly, it has been argued by the counsel for the revisionist that the ratio in case of Arjun Marik (supra) is also applicable to the case in hand and he has relied upon the relevant portion of the said judgment which is quoted below:

"Thus the evidence that the appellant had gone to Sitaram in the evening of 19-7-1985 and had stayed in the night at the house of deceased Sitaram is very shaky and inconclusive. Even if it is accepted that they were there it would at best amount to be the evidence of the appellants having been seen last together with the deceased. But it is settled law that the only circumstance of last seen will not complete the chain of circumstances to record the finding that it is consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused and, therefore, no conviction on that basis alone can be founded."

8. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has submitted that in case of rape, single testimony of prosecutrix is sufficient for conviction. The prosecutrix has specifically mentioned the name of the revisionist, who injected her due to which she became unconscious. She has further stated that she was beaten by Dr. A.A.Khan. Thus, since the evidence is made out against the revisionist and there is direct evidence of the Act of the commission of offence, therefore, revision is liable to be dismissed.

9. The prosecutrix was brought before the court and her statement was recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. on 27.02.2012. She stated before the Court that co-accused Deepak made promise to get her employed in the Clinic of Dr.A.A. Khan(revisionist), who will provide her sufficient salary. She has stated that she reached at the clinic of Dr.Khan at 6:00 p.m. on 23.01.2012, where Dr.Khan and co-accused Deepak Verma had beaten her and threatened to kill her. She further mentioned that Deepak Verma committed rape with her in the clinic of Dr. A.A. Khan. She has further stated that when she shouted Dr.Khan injected anesthesia and she was kept in confinement for seven days. The said statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. clearly indicates the direct evidence against the revisionist. The prosecutrix Km.Aarti was examined before the Court and her statement is quoted below:

"नाम – कु0 आरती उम्र – 18 वर्ष पुत्री श्री मुन्ना, निवासी – म0न्र0–31/4 काशीराम कालोनी, पारा थाना पारा, जिला–लखनऊ ने सशपथ बयान दिया कि – घटना दिनांक 23.1.2012 समय 6.00 बजे शाम की है, उस दिन मैं क्लीनिक पर जॉब करने कई थी। डॉ0 शुभम क्लीनिक पर मैं काम करती थी, वहाँ पर डॉ0 ए0ए0 खान व दीपक वर्मा वहां आते थे। दीपक वर्मा ने मुझसे कहा कि तुम्हे कितनी तनख्वाह मिलती है। मैंने बताया कि 2000/– रू0 यहां मिलता है। वह कहने लगा कि अगर तुम्हे काम करना है तो मेरे यहां कर लो वहां दोगुना पैसा मिलेगा। उस हास्पिटल का नाम वीनस नर्सिंग होम है। 23 तारीख को घटनावाले दिन मैं वीनस नर्सिंग होग जॉब के लिये गई थी। वहां पर वीनस नर्सिंग होम का बड़ा सा बोर्ड लगा था मैं अन्दर चली गई जब मैं वहां पर गई तो वहां पर डॉ0 ए0ए0 खान व दीपक वर्मा मौजूद थे। उन्होने कहा कि तुम्हे यहां पर पर्चा बनाना पड़ेगा और 4000/– रू0 देंगे अगर काम करना है तो अभी दीपक वर्मा के साथ जहां ऑपरेशन होता है तो वह जगह देख लो तो मैं दीपक वर्मा के साथ जाकर चली गई। जब मैं वहां पहुंची तो वहां पर कोई मरीज नहीं था एकदम तहखाने जैसा था। यह देखकर मैंने कहा कि मैं यहां काम नहीं कर पाउँगी हम जा रहे हैं। उसके बाद दीपक वर्मा ने मुझे एक तमाचा मारा और कहने लगा कि तुम्हे कहीं जाने की जरूरत नहीं है तुम यहीं रहोगी। मैंने चिल्लाने की कोशिश की तो डॉ0 खान भी वहां आ गये। उसके बाद डॉ0 खान व दीपक वर्मा ने मुझे बहुत मारा–पीटा डॉ0 खान ने रिवाल्वर निकालकर धमकी दी कि अगर यहां से भागने की कोशिश करोगी तो तुम्हे जान से मार देगें। उसके बाद दीपक वर्मा व डॉ0 खान ने मुझे बांध दिया मेरा मुँह दबाया और कहने लगे कि चुप–चाप रहे यहां से जाने नहीं देगे। फिर डॉ0 खान वहां से चले गये और आपस में बाहर लड़ाई करने लगे कि पहले मैं गलत काम करूंगा दोनो अपने–अपने को पहले गलत काम करने के लिये लड़ाई करने लगे। फिर थोड़ी देर में आये और डॉ0 खान ने मुझे किसी चीज की सुई लगा दी और वो वहां से चले गये। दीपक वर्मा ने मेरे साथ गलत काम किया। अपने पेशाब की जगह मेरी पेशाब की जगह में डाली। उसके बाद मुझे जब होश आया तो मैं एक गांव में थी। उस गांव का नाम नहीं पता। वहां पर दीपक वर्मा ही था। दीपक वर्मा ने नर्सिंग होम में 7 दिन गलत काम किया था और गांव में भी 6–7 दिन गलत काम किया था। उसने हमारी वी0डी0ओ0 भी मोबाइल से गांव में बनाई थी। पुलिस ने मुझे बुद्धेश्वर चौराहे से दिनांक 9 तारीख दूसरा महीना सन् 2012 को बरामद किया था। उस समय मेरे साथ दीपक भी था जिसे गिरफ्तार किया गया था। मेरी डाक्टरी बरामदगी के दिन ही हुई थी। डाक्टरी कराने मेरे साथ मम्मी और महिला पुलिस गई थी। डॉ0 ने वहां मेरा निशानी अंगूठा लगवाया था। उसके बाद दूसरे दिन थाने से मुझे मेरी मम्मी के साथ भेज दिया था। मैं इस समय बी0बी0ए0 कर रही हूँ। घटना के वक्त मैं इण्टर फर्स्ट इयर में मोती लाल नेहरू मेमोरियल गर्ल्स इण्टर कॉलेज में पढ़ती थी। मेरी जन्मतिथि 22.09.94 है। मैंने हाईस्कूल भी इसी स्कूल से किया था। मजिस्ट्रेट साहब के सामने मेरा बयान हुआ था। अभियुक्त दीपक वर्मा ने मेरे साथ जो गलत काम किया था वह मेरी इच्छा कें विरूद्ध किया था। वह धमकी देता था कि विरोध करोगी तो तुम्हारे घर वालों को मार डालूगां और विडियो दिखाने की भी धमकी देता था। गवाह को 164 द0प्र0सं0 का बयान पढ़कर सुनाया गया तो गवाह ने कहा कि यह बयान मजिस्ट्रेट साहब को दिया था जिस पर मेरे हस्ताक्षर है। दरोगा जी ने मुझसे पूंछ–ताछ किया था। यही बातें मैंने दरोगा जी को बताई थी।"

10. On perusal of the statement made by prosecutrix before court, it is amply clear that there is complicity of the offence found against the accused-revisionist. He had injected anesthesia on the body of prosecutrix and he also gagged her mouth and threatened her. It is thus clear that the statement of the prosecutrix is very clear, which is direct evidence against the revisionist and there is no iota of doubt regarding the offence committed by the revisionist.

11. In State of Maharashtra Vs. Chandraprakash Kewalchand Jain AIR 1990 SC 658, this Court held that a woman, who is the victim of sexual assault, is not an accomplice to the crime but is a victim of another person's lust and, therefore, her evidence need not be tested with the same amount of suspicion as that of an accomplice. The Court observed as under :-

"A prosecutrix of a sex-offence cannot be put on par with an accomplice. She is in fact a victim of the crime. The Evidence Act nowhere says that her evidence cannot be accepted unless it is corroborated in material particulars. She is undoubtedly a competent witness under Section 118 and her evidence must receive the same weight as is attached to an injured in cases of physical violence. The same degree of care and caution must attach in the evaluation of her evidence as in the case of an injured complainant or witness and no more. What is necessary is that the Court must be alive to and conscious of the fact that it is dealing with the evidence of a person who is interested in the outcome of the charge levelled by her. If the court keeps this in mind and feels satisfied that it can act on the evidence of the prosecutrix, there is no rule of law or practice incorporated in the Evidence Act similar to illustration (b) to Section 114 which requires it to look for corroboration. If for some reason the court is hesitant to place implicit reliance on the testimony of the prosecutrix it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice. The nature of evidence required to lend assurance to the testimony of the prosecutrix must necessarily depend on the facts and circumstances of each case. But if a prosecutrix is an adult and of full understanding the court is entitled to base a conviction on her evidence unless the same is shown to be infirm and not trustworthy. If the totality of the circumstances appearing on the record of the case disclose that the prosecutrix does not have a strong motive to falsely involve the person charged, the court should ordinarily have no hesitation in accepting her evidence."

12. In State of U.P. Vs. Pappu @Yunus & Anr. AIR 2005 SC 1248, this Court held that even in a case where it is shown that the girl is a girl of easy virtue or a girl habituated to sexual intercourse, it may not be a ground to absolve the accused from the charge of rape. It has to be established that there was consent by her for that particular occasion. Absence of injury on the prosecutrix may not be a factor that leads the court to absolve the accused. This Court further held that there can be conviction on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix and in case, the court is not satisfied with the version of the prosecutrix, it can seek other evidence, direct or circumstantial, by which it may get assurance of her testimony. The Court held as under :-

"It is well settled that a prosecutrix complaining of having been a victim of the offence of rape is not an accomplice after the crime. There is no rule of law that her testimony cannot be acted without corroboration in material particulars. She stands at a higher pedestal than an injured witness. In the latter case, there is injury on the physical form, while in the former it is both physical as well as psychological and emotional. However, if the court of facts finds it difficult to accept the version of the prosecutrix on its face value, it may search for evidence, direct or circumstantial, which would lend assurance to her testimony. Assurance, short of corroboration as understood in the context of an accomplice, would do."

13. In State of Punjab Vs. Gurmit Singh & Ors. AIR 1996 SC 1393, this Court held that in cases involving sexual harassment, molestation etc. the court is duty bound to deal with such cases with utmost sensitivity. Minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of a prosecutrix should not be a ground for throwing out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. Evidence of the victim of sexual assault is enough for conviction and it does not require any corroboration unless there are compelling reasons for seeking corroboration. The court may look for some assurances of her statement to satisfy judicial conscience. The statement of the prosecutrix is more reliable than that of an injured witness as she is not an accomplice. The Court further held that the delay in filing FIR for sexual offence may not be even properly explained, but if found natural, the accused cannot be given any benefit thereof. The Court observed as under :-

"The court overlooked the situation in which a poor helpless minor girl had found herself in the company of three desperate young men who were threatening her and preventing her from raising any alarm. Again, if the investigating officer did not conduct the investigation properly or was negligent in not being able to trace out the driver or the car, how can that become a ground to discredit the testimony of the prosecutrix?

The prosecutrix had no control over the investigating agency and the negligence of an investigating officer could not affect the credibility of the statement of the prosecutrix.....The courts must, while evaluating evidence remain alive to the fact that in a case of rape, no self-respecting woman would come forward in a court just to make a humiliating statement against her honour such as is involved in the commission of rape on her. In cases involving sexual molestation, supposed considerations which have no material effect on the veracity of the prosecution case or even discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix should not, unless the discrepancies are such which are of fatal nature, be allowed to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case.....Seeking corroboration of her statement before replying upon the same as a rule, in such cases, amounts to adding insult to injury.....Corroboration as a condition for judicial reliance on the testimony of the prosecutrix is not a requirement of law but a guidance of prudence under given circumstances.

The courts should examine the broader probabilities of a case and not get swayed by minor contradictions or insignificant discrepancies in the statement of the prosecutrix, which are not of a fatal nature, to throw out an otherwise reliable prosecution case. If evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence, it must be relied upon without seeking corroboration of her statement in material particulars. If for some reason the court finds it difficult to place implicit reliance on her testimony, it may look for evidence which may lend assurance to her testimony, short of corroboration required in the case of an accomplice. The testimony of the prosecutrix must be appreciated in the background of the entire case and the trial court must be alive to its responsibility and be sensitive while dealing with cases involving sexual molestations."

14. In State of Orissa Vs. Thakara Besra & Anr. AIR 2002 SC 1963, this Court held that rape is not mere a physical assault, rather it often distracts the whole personality of the victim. The rapist degrades the very soul of the helpless female and, therefore, the testimony of the prosecutrix must be appreciated in the background of the entire case and in such cases, non-examination even of other witnesses may not be a serious infirmity in the prosecution case, particularly where the witnesses had not seen the commission of the offence.

15. In State of Himachal Pradesh Vs. Raghubir Singh (1993) 2 SCC 622, this Court held that there is no legal compulsion to look for any other evidence to corroborate the evidence of the prosecutrix before recording an order of conviction. Evidence has to be weighed and not counted. Conviction can be recorded on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, if her evidence inspires confidence and there is absence of circumstances which militate against her veracity.

16. A similar view has been reiterated by this Court in Wahid Khan Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh (2010) 2 SCC 9, placing reliance on earlier judgment in Rameshwar Vs. State of Rajasthan AIR 1952 SC 54.

17. In another case the Supreme Court in Phool Singh Vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh [Criminal Appeal No. 1520 of 2021, decided on 01.12.2021], has taken the similar view in respect of the sole testimony of the prosecutrix, which follows as under:

"5.1 At the outset, it is required to be noted that in the present case, the prosecutrix has fully supported the case of the prosecution. She has been consistent right from the very beginning. Nothing has been specifically pointed out why the sole testimony of the prosecutrix should not be believed. Even after thorough cross-examination, she has stood by what she has stated and has fully supported the case of the prosecution. We see no reason to doubt the credibility and/or trustworthiness of the prosecutrix. The submission on behalf of the accused that no other independent witnesses have been examined and/or supported the case of the prosecution and the conviction on the basis of the sole testimony of the prosecutrix cannot be sustained is concerned, the aforesaid has no substance."

18. So far the other arguments advanced by learned counsel for the revisionist that the material of the charge-sheet should be taken into consideration, does not conspire confidence. In my opinion, the statement of prosecutrix against the accused-revisionist is clear and there is no iota of doubt. The order passed by the Court below needs no interference and there is no need to discuss the other material filed by the I.O. while filing the report before the court below. The plea of alibi will be subject to further evidence and at this moment, I cannot infer that the revisionist was absent and he had gone to Delhi because the evidences to that effect are subject to further examination before the trial court. It is also a settled law that in case of heinous crime like rape, a single testimony of the prosecutrix is sufficient for conviction.

19. In such circumstances, the impugned order dated 03.07.2013 does not suffer from any illegality or infirmity and is based upon relevant considerations and supported by cogent reasons,hence requires no interference by this Court. The revision is accordingly dismissed. However, it is made clear that the court below will not be influenced with any observations made by this Court.

20. Office is directed to communicate this order to the court below for necessary compliance, forthwith.

1. Heard Sri R.K.Dwivedi, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri Rama Pati Shukla, learned counsel for the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 and Sri Anurag Verma, learned AG.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. This Criminal Revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 26.03.2019 passed by learned Juvenile Justice Board, District-Sultanpur in Juvenile Case No.83 of 2013 arising out of Case Crime No. 668 of 2012, under Section 325, 323, 504, 427, 352 of I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(X) of S.C./ S.T. Act, Police Station- Kurwar, District Sultanpur "State versus Amar Bahadur and another" as well as order dated 24.08.2021 passed by Sessions Judge, Sultanpur in Criminal Appeal No.37 of 2021 "Amarjeet versus State of U.P. and others".

3. The State of U.P. had issued Government Order on 25.06.2014 addressed to the District Magistrate, Sultanpur, in which decision has been taken that after looking into the facts and circumstances, the State Government has decided to withdraw the Case Crime No.668/2012, under Section 325, 323, 504, 427, 352 I.P.C. and Section 3(1)(x) SC/S.T.Act, Police Station-Kurwar, District-Sultanpur. The said Government Order further envisages that Government has taken decision to direct the Public Prosecutor to withdraw the case in the court.

4. In pursuance of the Government Order dated 25.06.2014, the application dated 12.02.2015 was filed under Section 321 Cr.P.C. to the effect that aforesaid case pending against the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 may be withdrawn. It is stated in the application that the opposite party nos. 2 and 3 are juvenile. Therefore, in the interest of justice, it would be appropriate that the case may be withdrawn so that they may come in the main stream of the society. The application further indicates that in the interest of society, it is needed that the opposite party nos. 2 and 3, being child, may not be prosecuted. It is further mentioned in the application that it is a case of sudden quarrel and by persuing the present case, their future will be hampered.

5. On the said application under Section 321 Cr.P.C., the case was heard by the Court of Juvenile Justice Board on 26.03.2019 and the application was allowed acquitting opposite party nos. 2 and 3 from
