2). The instant appeal has been preferred under Section 374 of Cr.P.C.

against the judgement and order dated 29.10.1998 passed by Additional Sessions and District Judge, VIIIth, District Lucknow in Session Trial No. 110 of 1994, arising out of Case Crime No. 352 of 1994, Police Station Hazratganj District Lucknow, wherein, the appellant, Liyaqat Ali, has been convicted and sentenced for the offence under Section 8/21 of Narcotics Drugs and Psychotropic Substance Act, 1985, (hereinafter referred as 'NDPS Act') for 10 years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 1,00,000/- and in default of payment of fine he shall further undergo two years of simple imprisonment and in Case Crime No. 353 of 1994, Police Station Hazratganj, District Lucknow, in addition to the aforesaid sentence, the appellant has also been convicted and sentenced for the offence under Section 25/4 of the Arms Act, 1959 for one year of simple imprisonment. Both the sentences were ordered to be run concurrently.

3). The prosecution case in brief is that on 23.03.1994 at 11:45, the appellant/accused was arrested by the Police at the boundary of Gora Kabristan and a knife as well as 500 gms Smack was recovered from his possession. On being confronted to produce the license of keeping the knife as well as the contraband/smack, the accused-appellant failed to produce any valid document. Inspector Sunil Kumar Mishra prepared the recovery memo on the place of occurrence on the basis of which Head Constable Harful Verma scribed the First Information Report and made an entry in the GD regarding the possession of illegal arm and contraband with the accused-appellant on basis of which the First Information Report was registered and the investigation was carried by Sub-Inspector S.S. Hussain and on account of incompleteness of the investigation, the investigation was entrusted to Sub-Inspector, R.K. Tiwari but also due to some reasons, he could not complete the investigation and then the investigation was entrusted to V.K. Trivedi who after completing the investigation and on the basis of FSL Report ascertaining that the contraband recovered from the possession of the appellant is Smack, filed a charge-sheet against the appellant under Section 8/21 of the NDPS Act and under Section 25/4 of the Arms Act.

4). Charges for the offence under Section 8/21 of the NDPS Act and Section 25/4 of the Arms Act were framed by the learned trial Court and it was read to the appellant which he denied and claimed for trial.

5). The prosecution, in order to prove its case produced Sub-Inspector Sadanand Rai (P.W.1) and Constable Satendra Pachori (P.W.2). Apart from the aforesaid two witnesses, there were no other witnesses produced by the prosecution for the reason that the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant before the learned trial Court confessed the certification of the documentary evidence.

6). After conclusion of the prosecution witness, the statement was recorded under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. where he denied the prosecution and stated that no recovery was made from his possession and all the documents were prepared fraudulently with a motive to falsely implicate him.

7). To controvert the prosecution story, Nisar (D.W.1) and Ikrar Ahmed (D.W.2) were examined by the appellant and a copy of the telegram of intervening night 22/23 dated 23.03.1994 to the Station House Officer, Hazratganj was also produced as an evidence in which it was stated that at about 1 of 2 in the night, some police personals called Ikrar and Liyaqat Ali and both were taken by the police personals on a pretext that the Inspector of Police Station has called them. Apart from the aforesaid, there is no other evidence produced on behalf of the appellant.

8). After the conclusion of the trial, the learned trial Court hold the appellant guilty under Section 8/21 of NDPS Act and 25/4 of Arms Act and sentenced him as above vide impugned judgement and order.

9). Aggrieved with the impugned judgement this appeal has been preferred.

10). The learned counsel appearing for the appellant submits that he is innocent and has falsely been implicated in this case by the Police. The learned counsel for the appellant has further submitted that the Police has also not complied the mandatory provision of Section 50 of the NDPS Act. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that no public witness was produced despite the said recovery was alleged to be made in a busy public place. The learned counsel for the appellant submits that there are sufficient infirmities in the procedural steps which ought to have been undertaken by the Police and statutory provisions regarding search and seizure have been disregarded by the Investigating Officer. He further submits that as a matter of fact the appellant was illegally arrested in the intervening night of 22/23.03.1994 at around 02:00 A.M. by the Police of Police Station, Hazratganj and subsequently, he was falsely implicated in the present criminal case on 23.03.1994. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that from the perusal of the First

Information Report it is evident that there is over writing in the column relating to the date of occurrence and the date of lodging of First Information Report. It is further submitted that the Police was not carrying any instrument of weighing and there is no explanation as to how the weight of the recovered articles were assessed. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that the percentage of narcotic substance were not assessed by the chemical analysis in the report dated 06.06.1999. He added that the alleged recovery is of 23.03.1994 and the sample reached the Forensic Laboratory on 16.05.1994 and there is no plausible explanation for the delay caused and there is complete violation of provision of the NDPS Act by the Police as Section 50 of NDPS Act has been violated as well as Section 42 of NDPS Act has also not been complied with by the Police.

11). In support of his contention, the learned counsel for the appellant has also placed reliance on the following judgements and referred the following paragraphs:-

1) Vijaysinh Chandubha Jadeja Vs. State of Gujrat, (2021) 1 SCC 609 and has referred paragraphs 29, 30 and 32 which are quoted herein under:-

"29. In view of the foregoing discussion, we are of the firm opinion that the object with which right under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act, by way of a safeguard, has been conferred on the suspect, viz. to check the misuse of power, to avoid harm to innocent persons and to minimise the allegations of planting or foisting of false cases by the law enforcement agencies, it would be imperative on the part of the empowered officer to apprise the person intended to be searched of his right to be searched before a gazetted officer or a Magistrate. We have no hesitation in holding that in so far as the obligation of the authorised officer under sub-section (1) of Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act is concerned, it is mandatory and requires a strict compliance. Failure to comply with the provision would render the recovery of the illicit article suspect and vitiate the conviction if the same is recorded only on the basis of the recovery of the illicit article from the person of the accused during such search. Thereafter, the suspect may or may not choose to exercise the right provided to him under the said provision.

30. As observed in Re Presidential Poll, it is the duty of the courts to get at the real intention of the Legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the provision to be construed. "The key to the opening of every law is the reason and spirit of the law, it is the animus imponentis, the intention of the law maker expressed in the law itself, taken as a whole."

32. We also feel that though Section 50 gives an option to the empowered officer to take such person (suspect) either before the nearest gazetted officer or the Magistrate but in order to impart authenticity, transparency and creditworthiness to the entire proceedings, in the first instance, an endeavour should be to produce the suspect before the nearest Magistrate, who enjoys more confidence of the common man compared to any other officer. It would not only add legitimacy to the search proceedings, it may verily strengthen the prosecution as well."

2) Munnan Vs. State of U.P. arising out of Criminal Appeal No. 437 of 1997 decided on 05.01.2021 and has referred paragraphs 16, 17, 18 and 19 which are quoted herein:-

"16. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in a catena of decisions, has discussed the importance of Section 50 of NDPS Act. In State of Punjab vs. Baldev Singh AIR 1999 SC 2378, the Constitutional Bench of Supreme Court has elaborately discussed the importance and scope of mandatory provisions of Section 50 of NDPS Act as follows :

"55. On the basis of the reasoning and discussion above, the following conclusions arise :

(1) That when an empowered officer or a duly authorised officer acting on prior information is about to search a person, it is imperative for him to inform the concerned person of his right under Sub-section (1) of Section 50 of being taken to the nearest Gazetted Officer or the nearest Magistrate for making the search. However, such information may not necessarily be in writing;

(2) That failure to inform the concerned person about the existence of his right to be searched before a Gazetted Officer or a Magistrate would cause prejudice to an accused;

(3) That a search made, by an empowered officer, on prior information, without informing the person of his right that, if he so requires, he shall be taken before a Gazetted Officer or a Magistrate for search and in case he so opts, failure to conduct his search before a Gazetted Officer or a Magistrate, may not vitiate the trial but would render the recovery of the illicit article suspect and vitiate the conviction and sentence of an accused, where the conviction has been recorded only on the basis of the possession of the illicit article, recovered from his person, during a search conducted in violation of the provisions of Section 50 of the Act:

(4) That there is indeed need to protect society from criminals. The societal intent in safety will suffer if persons who commit crimes are let off because the evidence against them is to be treated as if it does not exist. The answer, therefore, is that the investigating agency must follow the procedure as envisaged by the statute scrupulously and the failure to do so must be viewed by the higher authorities seriously inviting action against the concerned official so that the laxity on the part of the investigating authority is curbed. In every case the end result is important but the means to achieve it must remain above board. The remedy cannot be worse than the disease itself. The legitimacy of judicial process may come under cloud if the court is seen to condone acts of lawlessness conducted by the investigating agency during search operations and may also undermine respect for law and may have the effect of unconscionably compromising the administration of justice. That cannot be permitted. An accused is entitled to a fair trial. A conviction resulting from an unfair trial is contrary to our concept of justice. The use of evidence collected in breach of the safeguards 50 have by Section 50 at the trial, would render the trial unfair.

(5) That whether or not the safeguards provided in Section 50 have been duly observed would have to be determined by the Court on the basis of evidence led at the trial. Finding on that issue, one way or the other, would be relevant for recording an order of conviction or acquittal. Without giving an opportunity to the prosecution to establish, at the trial, that the provisions of Section 50, and particularly the safeguards provided therein were duly complied with, it would not be permissible to cut- short a criminal trial;

(6) That in the context in which the protection has been incorporated in

Section 50 for the benefit of the person intended to be searched, we do not express any opinion whether the provisions of Section 50 are mandatory or directory, but, hold that failure to inform the concerned person of his right as emanating from Sub-section (1) of Section 50, may render the recovery of the contraband suspect and the conviction and sentence of an accused bad and unsustainable in law;

(7) That an illicit article seized from the person of an accused during search conducted in violation of the safeguards provided in Section 50 of the Act cannot be used as evidence of proof of unlawful possession of the contraband on the accused though any other material recovered during that search may be relied upon by the prosecution, in other proceedings, against an accused, notwithstanding the recovery of that material during an illegal search;"

17. In Vijaysing Chandubha Jadeja vs. State of Gujarat, AIR 2011 SC 77 while discussing the scope of Section 50 of NDPS Act, the Constitutional Bench of Supreme Court while observing that mere informing the accused his willingness to be searched before Gazetted Officer or Magistrate is not sufficient but it is the duty of the concerned officer to apprise the accused about his/her right of Section 50 of the Act has held as under :-

"22. In view of the foregoing discussion, we are of the firm opinion that the object with which right under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act, by way of a safeguard, has been conferred on the suspect, viz. to check the misuse of power, to avoid harm to innocent persons and to minimise the allegations of planting or foisting of false cases by the law enforcement agencies, it would be imperative on the part of the empowered officer to apprise the person intended to be searched of his right to be searched before a gazetted officer or a Magistrate. We have no hesitation in holding that in so far as the obligation of the authorised officer under sub-section (1) of Section 50 of the NDPS Act is concerned, it is mandatory and requires a strict compliance. Failure to comply with the provision would render the recovery of the illicit article suspect and vitiate the conviction if the same is recorded only on the basis of the recovery of the illicit article from the person of the accused during such search. Thereafter, the suspect may or may not choose to exercise the right provided to him under the said provision. As observed in Re Presidential Poll14, it is the duty of the courts to get at the real intention of the Legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the provision to be construed. "The key to the opening of every law is the reason and spirit of the law, it is the animus imponentis, the intention of the law maker expressed in the law itself, taken as a whole." We are of the opinion that the concept of "substantial compliance" with the requirement of Section 50 of the NDPS Act introduced and read into the mandate of the said Section in Joseph Fernandez (supra) and Prabha Shankar Dubey (supra) is neither borne out from the language of sub-section (1) of Section 50 nor it is in consonance with the dictum laid down in Baldev Singh's case (supra). Needless to add that the question whether or not the procedure prescribed has been followed and the requirement of Section 50 had been met, is a matter of trial. It would neither be possible nor feasible to lay down any absolute formula in that behalf. We also feel that though Section 50 gives an option to the empowered officer to take such person (suspect) either before the nearest gazetted officer or the Magistrate but in order to impart authenticity, transparency and creditworthiness to the entire proceedings, in the first instance, an endeavour should be to produce the suspect before the nearest Magistrate, who enjoys more confidence of the common man compared to any other officer. It would not only add legitimacy to the search proceedings, it may verily strengthen the prosecution as well."

18. In Arif Khan @ Agha Khan vs. State of Uttarakhand AIR 2018 SC 2123, Hon'ble Supreme Court while discussing the importance of compliance of mandatory provision of Section 50 of N.D.P.S. Act, has held as below:-

"21. What is the true scope and object of Section 50 of the NDPS Act, what are the duties, obligation and the powers conferred on the authorities under Section 50 and whether the compliance of requirements of Section 50 are mandatory or directory, remains no more res integra and are now settled by the two decisions of the Constitution Bench of this Court in State of Punjab vs. Baldev Singh (1999) 6 SCC 172: (AIR 1999 SC 2378) and Vijaysinh Chandubha Jadeja (AIR 2011 SC 77) (supra).

22. Indeed, the latter Constitution Bench decision rendered in the case of Vijaysinh Chandubha Jadeja (AIR 2011 SC 77) (supra) has settled the aforementioned questions after taking into considerations all previous case law on the subject.

23. Their Lordships have held in Vijaysinh Chandubha Jadeja (AIR 2011 SC 77) (supra) that the requirements of Section 50 of the NDPS Act are mandatory and, therefore, the provisions of Section 50 must be strictly complied with. It is held that it is imperative on the part of the Police Officer to apprise the person intended to be searched of his right under Section 50 to be searched only before a Gazetted officer or a Magistrate. It is held that it is equally mandatory on the part of the authorized officer to make the suspect aware of the existence of his right to be searched before a Gazetted Officer or a Magistrate, if so required by him and this requires a strict compliance. It is ruled that the suspect person may or may not choose to exercise the right provided to him under Section 50 of the NDPS Act but so far as the officer is concerned, an obligation is cast upon him under Section 50 of the NDPS Act to apprise the suspect of his right to be searched before a Gazetted Officer or a Magistrate. (See also Ashok Kumar Sharma vs. State of Rajasthan, 2013 (2) SCC 67 and Narcotics Control Bureau vs. Sukh Dev Raj Sodhi, 2011 (6) SCC 392) : (AIR 2011 SC 1939)."

19. Thus, it is clear that if the contraband narcotics was recovered in contravention of specific mandate of Section 50 of the Act, the whole prosecution story becomes doubtful and the appellant is entitled for acquittal. "

3) Ram Pratap Vs. State of U.P. arising out of Criminal Appeal No. 357 of 1999 decided on 22.05.2020 and has referred paragraphs 16, 17 and 18 which are quoted herein:-

"16. Severe punishment has been provided in the N.D.P.S. Act to check the misuse of this Act by the police personnel or officers and certain safeguards particularly Section 50 of N.D.P.S. Act has been incorporated in this Act that search of the suspected person must be done before the Magistrate or Gazetted Officer. Similarly Section 55 and 57 of N.D.P.S. Act provides that seized contraband article be kept by Station House Officer in safe custody and report of arrest and seizure be sent immediately to immediate Superior Officer within 48 hours.

17. Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vijaysinh Chandubha Jadeja Vs. State of Gujarat, 2010 (2) EFR 755, while discussing the importance and relevancy of section 50 of N.D.P.S. Act, in para-22, has held as under:-

"22. In view of the foregoing discussion, we are of the firm opinion that the object with which right under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act, by way of a safeguard, has been conferred on the suspect, viz. to check the misuse of power, to avoid harm to innocent persons and to minimise the allegations of planting or foisting of false cases by the law enforcement agencies, it would be imperative on the part of the empowered officer to apprise the person intended to be searched of his right to be searched before a gazetted officer or a Magistrate. As observed in Re Presidential Poll (1974) 2 SCC 33, it is the duty of the courts to get at the real intention of the Legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the provision to be construed. "The key to the opening of every law is the reason and spirit of the law, it is the animus imponentis, the intention of the law maker expressed in the law itself, taken as a whole." We are of the opinion that the

18. Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Rajasthan Vs. Parmanand and another, (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 563, again in paragraph-17, has held as under:-

"In our opinion, a joint communication of the right available under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act to the accused would frustrate the very purport of Section 50. Communication of the said right to the person who is about to be searched is not an empty formality. It has a purpose. Most of the offences under the NDPS Act carry stringent punishment and, therefore, the prescribed procedure has to be meticulously followed. These are minimum safeguards available to an accused against the possibility of false involvement. The communication of this right has to be clear, unambiguous and individual. The accused must be made aware of the existence of such a right. This right would be of little significance if the beneficiary thereof is not able to exercise it for want of knowledge about its existence. A joint communication of the right may not be clear or unequivocal. It may create confusion. It may result in diluting the right. We are, therefore, of the view that the accused must be individually informed that under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act, he has a right to be searched before a nearest gazetted officer or before a nearest Magistrate. Similar view taken by the Punjab & Haryana High Court in Paramjit Singh and the Bombay High Court in Dharamveer Lekhrum Sharma meets with our approval."

4) Vijay Jain Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, (2013) 14 SCC 527 and has referred paragraphs 10, 11, 12 and 13 which are quoted herein:-

"10. On the other hand, on a reading of this Court's judgment in Jitendra case [Jitendra v. State of M.P., (2004) 10 SCC 562 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 2028], we find that this Court has taken a view that in the trial for an offence under the NDPS Act, it was necessary for the prosecution to establish by cogent evidence that the alleged quantities of the contraband goods were seized from the possession of the accused and the best evidence to prove this fact is to produce during the trial, the seized materials as material objects and where the contraband materials alleged to have been seized are not produced and there is no explanation for the failure to produce the contraband materials by the prosecution, mere oral evidence that the materials were seized from the accused would not be sufficient to make out an offence under the NDPS Act particularly when the panch witnesses have turned hostile. Again, in Ashok [Ashok v. State of M.P., (2011) 5 SCC 123 : (2011) 2 SCC (Cri) 547] this Court found that the alleged narcotic powder seized from the possession of the accused was not produced before the trial court as material exhibit and there was no explanation for its non-production and this Court held that there was therefore no evidence to connect the forensic report with the substance that was seized from the possession of the appellant.

11. In the present case, finding of the trial court that the seized contraband goods were produced in a suitcase is contrary to the evidence of PW 11, which is to the following effect:

“81. Note.—A big suitcase from the store materials on which No. 466/05 is written has been received in a white cloth along with seal of the sealing material. In this the lock is of numbers and the lock is not getting open because of this AGP is directed to call some technical person for opening the lock, on this AGP had called Shri Shakoor who expressed that the lock is of numbers and cannot be opened, it can be broken. In the case, the evidence material is important and therefore it was directed to break the lock, the lock was opened. In the suitcase on the opening a big packet wrapped in cloth was found but the cloth is torn and blue colour polythene is being seen in which clothes are there. The cloth which is rolled on blue colour polythene there is no seal visible on it, nor any description is being seen, because the cloth is damp and has been in contaminated condition and is torn and no note is marked on it. In the polythene there are 5 pants and 5 shirts which are in wet condition.

111. Today I cannot say that in what colour bag the rest of the substance was packed in the bag. The material which was seized from Vijay Jain, out of it two samples 25-25 gm were made and marked B-1 and B-2 which were shown to the witness when he said that they were taken out from the material found with Vijay Jain on site. No other packet except the two samples and rest of material were made on the site. The said both packets which have been submitted in the court are sealed and on them the seizure chit is not affixed showed the B-1 and B-2 packet and asked that the seal of police station is affixed then the witness said the seal of police station is affixed then the witness said that it is the seal of the Tahsildar, Indore. Leaving aside rest of the substance and mobile the other seized material from Vijay is submitted in the court. This is true that I had not given the mobile for sealing to the Incharge of stores. Today I cannot say where that mobile is.”

Thus the only evidence before the court was that in the suitcase in which the contraband goods were allegedly kept when opened, there was only a big packet wrapped in cloth and the cloth was torn and there was a blue-coloured polythene in which there were clothes. There is no mention in the evidence of PW 11 of any brown sugar having been found in the suitcase. There is, however, evidence that samples were prepared of 25-25 gm which were shown to the witnesses and were marked B-1 and B-2 but we find that PW 3 has stated before the court in his examination that these samples were not prepared in his presence and PW 2 has stated before the court that the witnesses were not taken to the site where the materials were seized.

12. We are thus of the view that as the prosecution has not produced the brown sugar before the Court and has also not offered any explanation for non-production of the brown sugar alleged to have been seized from the appellants and as the evidence of the witnesses (PW 2 and PW 3) to the seizure of the materials does not establish the seizure of the brown sugar from the possession of the appellants, the judgment of the trial court convicting the appellants and the judgment of the High Court maintaining the conviction are not sustainable.

13. In the result, we allow these appeals and set aside the impugned judgment of the trial court as well as the High Court. The appellants are stated to be in jail. They shall be released forthwith if not required in connection with any other case."

5) Jitendra Vs. State of M.P., (2004) 10 SCC 562 and has referred paragraph 6, 9 and 10 which are quoted herein:-

"6. In our view, the view taken by the High Court is unsustainable. In the trial it was necessary for the prosecution to establish by cogent evidence that the alleged quantities of charas and ganja were seized from the possession of the accused. The best evidence would have been the seized materials which ought to have been produced during the trial and marked as material objects. There is no explanation for this failure to produce them. Mere oral evidence as to their features and production of panchnama does not discharge the heavy burden which lies on the prosecution, particularly where the offence is punishable with a stringent sentence as under the NDPS Act. In this case, we notice that panchas have turned hostile so the panchnama is nothing but a document written by the police officer concerned. The suggestion made by the defence in the cross-examination is worthy of notice. It was suggested to the prosecution witnesses that the landlady of the house in collusion with the police had lodged a false case only for evicting the accused from the house in which they were living. Finally, we notice that the investigating officer was also not examined. Against this background, to say that, despite the panch witnesses having turned hostile, the non-examination of the investigating officer and non-production of the seized drugs, the conviction under the NDPS Act can still be sustained, is far-fetched.

9. Taking the cumulative effect of all the circumstances, it appears to us that the material placed on record by the prosecution does not bring home the charge beyond reasonable doubt. We are of the view that upon the material placed on record it would be unsafe to convict the appellants. They are certainly entitled to the benefit of doubt.

10. In the result, we allow the appeals, set aside the judgment of the High Court and the trial court and quash the conviction of the appellants. The appellant Jitendra is directed to be released from custody forthwith, if not required in any other case."

6) Ashok @ Dangra Jaiswal, (2011) 5 SCC 123 and has referred paragraphs 10, 11, 12 and 13 which are quoted herein:-

"10. The seizure of the alleged narcotic substance is shown to have been made on 8-3-2005, at 11.45 in the evening. The samples taken from the seized substance were sent to the FSL on 10-3-2005, along with the draft, Ext. P-31. The samples sent for forensic examination were, however, not deposited at the FSL on that date but those came back to the police station on 12-3-2005 due to some mistake in the draft or with some query in respect of the draft. The samples were sent back to the FSL on 14-3-2005, after necessary corrections in the draft and/or giving reply to the query and on that date the samples were accepted at the FSL. From the time of the seizure in the late evening of 8-3-2005, till their deposit in the FSL on 14-3-2005, it is not clear where the samples were laid or were handled by how many people and in what ways.

11. The FSL report came on 21-3-2005, and on that basis the police submitted charge-sheet against the accused on 31-3-2005, but the alleged narcotic substance that was seized from the accused, including the appellant was deposited in the malkhana about two months later on 28-5-2005. There is no explanation where the seized substance was kept in the meanwhile.

12. Last but not the least, the alleged narcotic powder seized from the possession of the accused, including the appellant was never produced before the trial court as a material exhibit and once again there is no explanation for its non-production. There is, thus, no evidence to connect the forensic report with the substance that was seized from the possession of the appellant or the other accused.

13. It may be noted here that in Jitendra v. State of M.P. [(2004) 10 SCC 562 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 2028] , on similar facts this Court held that the material placed on record by the prosecution did not bring home the charge against the accused beyond reasonable doubt and it would be unsafe to maintain their conviction on that basis. In Jitendra [(2004) 10 SCC 562 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 2028] , the Court observed and held as under: (SCC pp. 564-65, paras 5-6)

“5. The evidence to prove that charas and ganja were recovered from the possession of the accused consisted of the evidence of the police officers and the panch witnesses. The panch witnesses turned hostile. Thus, we find that apart from the testimony of Rajendra Pathak (PW 7), Angad Singh (PW 8) and Sub-Inspector D.J. Rai (PW 6), there is no independent witness as to the recovery of the drugs from the possession of the accused. The charas and ganja alleged to have been seized from the possession of the accused were not even produced before the trial court, so as to connect them with the samples sent to the forensic science laboratory. There is no material produced in the trial, apart from the interested testimony of the police officers, to show that the charas and ganja were seized from the possession of the accused or that the samples sent to the forensic science laboratory were taken from the drugs seized from the possession of the accused. Although the High Court noticed the fact that the charas and ganja alleged to have been seized from the custody of the accused had neither been produced in the court, nor marked as articles, which ought to have been done, the High Court brushed aside the contention by observing that it would not vitiate the conviction as it had been proved that the samples were sent to the chemical examiner in a properly sealed condition and those were found to be charas and ganja. The High Court observed, ‘non-production of these commodities before the court is not fatal to the prosecution. The defence also did not insist during the trial that these commodities should be produced’. The High Court relied on Section 465 CrPC to hold that non-production of the material object was a mere procedural irregularity and did not cause prejudice to the accused.

6. In our view, the view taken by the High Court is unsustainable. In the trial it was necessary for the prosecution to establish by cogent evidence that the alleged quantities of charas and ganja were seized from the possession of the accused. The best evidence would have been the seized materials which ought to have been produced during the trial and marked as material objects. There is no explanation for this failure to produce them. Mere oral evidence as to their features and production of panchnama does not discharge the heavy burden which lies on the prosecution, particularly where the offence is punishable with a stringent sentence as under the NDPS Act. In this case, we notice that panchas have turned hostile so the panchnama is nothing but a document written by the police officer concerned. The suggestion made by the defence in the cross-examination is worthy of notice. It was suggested to the prosecution witnesses that the landlady of the house in collusion with the police had lodged a false case only for evicting the accused from the house in which they were living. Finally, we notice that the investigating officer was also not examined. Against this background, to say that, despite the panch witnesses having turned hostile, the non-examination of the investigating officer and non-production of the seized drugs, the conviction under the NDPS Act can still be sustained, is far-fetched."

12). On the other hand, the learned AGA appearing for the State submits that the statement of prosecution witnesses can not be rejected only on the ground that they are police personnels and there is no illegality in the impugned judgement and order and it is a settled provision of law that only on a solitary testimony of witness, conviction can be maintained. He further submits that the impugned judgement and order passed by the trial Court is well reasoned, well discussed and is liable to be affirmed.

13). Considering the rival submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, the following facts and law emerges for discussion.

14). Prior to discussing the evidences and material available on record, it is relevant to be aware about the stringent provisions of Narcotics Drugs and Psychotropic Substance Act, 1985 for the offences relating to the quantity, which is not less than 10 years of regirous imprisonment with a minimum fine of Rs. 1,00,000/-. Because of the nature of sever punishment and the strict laws of the Act, certain safeguards have also been provided to prevent the misuse of the Act and time and again, the Hon. Apex Court has also discussed the aforesaid laws and have given its finding.

15). In view of the gravity and severity of the punishment certain important safeguards have been provided under Section 50 of the NDPS Act with a view to prevent the misuse of the Act, which is as under:-

"50. Conditions under which search of persons shall be conducted.

(1) When any officer duly authorised under section 42 is about to search any person under the provisions of section 41, section 42 or section 43, he shall, if such person so requires, take such person without unnecessary delay to the nearest Gazetted Officer of any of the departments mentioned in section 42 or to the nearest Magistrate.

(2) If such requisition is made, the officer may detain the person until he can bring him before the Gazetted Officer or the Magistrate referred to in sub-section (1).

(3) The Gazetted Officer or the Magistrate before whom any such person is brought shall, if he sees no reasonable ground for search, forthwith discharge the person but otherwise shall direct that search be made.

(4) No female shall be searched by anyone excepting a female. 1[(5) When an officer duly authorised under section 42 has reason to believe that it is not possible to take the person to be searched to the nearest Gazetted Officer or Magistrate without the possibility of the person to be searched parting with possession of any narcotic drug or psychotropic substance, or controlled substance or article or document, he may, instead of taking such person to the nearest Gazetted Officer or Magistrate, proceed to search the person as provided under section 100 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974).

(6) After a search is conducted under sub-section (5), the officer shall record the reasons for such belief which necessitated such search and within seventy-two hours send a copy thereof to his immediate official superior.]”

16). Coming to the fact of this case, admittedly, the contraband narcotic and knife was recovered from the personal search of the appellant from his trousers worn by him. In addition to the above, a recovery memo was prepared on the place of the arrest and the First Information Report was registered against the appellant.

17). S.I. Sadanand Rai was examined as P.W. 1 before the learned trial Court and in his deposition as deposed before the trial Court that on input of the Police informer, the Police already reached at Gora Kabristan and found a person, when stopped by the Police, he tried to fled away but was apprehended by the Police and disclosed his identity as Liyaqat Ali resident of Singhahi, Police Station Fakharpur, Bahraich and a knife and contraband was recovered from the pocket of his trousers worn by him. It was deposed that many persons passing from the place of occurrence were requested to be a witness of the recovery but all of them denied and therefore the search was conducted before the Police that was deposed that the appellant was informed that he may be searched before any Magistrate or Gazetted Officer but the appellant refused the same on the pretext that the contraband has been recovered from his possession, therefore there is no necessity for producing him before any Magistrate or Gazetted Officer. It was further deposed that the alleged recovered contraband was 500 gms smack which has been sealed.

18). Constable Satendra Pachori has been examined as P.W. 2 before the trial Court and in his deposition he has stated that on an input provided by the Police informer that a person is possessing contraband narcotics and illegal weapon, Police reached at Gora Kabristan, where a person was found and being stopped, he tried to fled but was apprehended by the Police. It was deposed that several persons were requested to be a witness of the recovery but all denied and in the aforesaid circumstances, the search was conducted before the Police only. It was stated by the witness that the appellant was informed that his search may be conducted before the Magistrate or Gazetted Officer but the appellant denied for the same that since he is now being arrested, therefore there is no purpose of producing him before any Magistrate or Gazetted Officer.

19). In the present case, admittedly, S.I. Sunil Kumar Mishra, who is most vital witness of the prosecution, who prepared the recovery memo has not been examined by the prosecution and no explanation has also been given by the prosecution, as to why this star witness has not been examined. Thus in view of the above, the concern of search given by the appellant becomes doubtful.

20). It is also noticeable that in the present case, the prosecution has failed to prove the compliance of mandatory provision of Section 50 of the NDPS Act.

21). It is worth of mentioning that severe punishment has been provided in the N.D.P.S. Act to check the misuse of this Act by the police personnel or officers and certain safeguards particularly Section 50 of N.D.P.S. Act has been incorporated in this Act that search of the suspected person must be done before the Magistrate or Gazetted Officer. Similarly Section 55 and 57 of N.D.P.S. Act provides that seized contraband article be kept by Station House Officer in safe custody and report of arrest and seizure be sent immediately to immediate Superior Officer within 48 hours.

22). As above regard, the view of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vijaysinh Chandubha Jadeja Vs. State of Gujarat (supra) has emphasized the importance and relevancy of section 50 of N.D.P.S. Act, in para-22, which says that "in view of the foregoing discussion, we are of the firm opinion that the object with which right under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act, by way of a safeguard, has been conferred on the suspect, viz. to check the misuse of power, to avoid harm to innocent persons and to minimise the allegations of planting or foisting of false cases by the law enforcement agencies, it would be imperative on the part of the empowered officer to apprise the person intended to be searched of his right to be searched before a gazetted officer or a Magistrate. We have no hesitation in holding that in so far as the obligation of the authorised officer under sub-section (1) of Section 50 of the NDPS Act is concerned, it is mandatory and requires a strict compliance. Failure to comply with the provision would render the recovery of the illicit article suspect and vitiate the conviction if the same is recorded only on the basis of the recovery of the illicit article from the person of the accused during such search. Thereafter, the suspect may or may not choose to exercise the right provided to him under the said provision. As observed in Re Presidential Poll (1974) 2 SCC 33, it is the duty of the courts to get at the real intention of the Legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the provision to be construed. "The key to the opening of every law is the reason and spirit of the law, it is the animus imponentis, the intention of the law maker expressed in the law itself, taken as a whole." We are of the opinion that the concept of "substantial compliance" with the requirement of Section 50 of the NDPS Act introduced and read into the mandate of the said Section in Joseph Fernandez (supra) and Prabha Shankar Dubey (supra) is neither borne out from the language of sub-section (1) of Section 50 nor it is in consonance with the dictum laid down in Baldev Singh's case (supra). Needless to add that the question whether or not the procedure prescribed has been followed and the requirement of Section 50 had been met, is a matter of trial. It would neither be possible nor feasible to lay down any absolute formula in that behalf. We also feel that though Section 50 gives an option to the empowered officer to take such person (suspect) either before the nearest gazetted officer or the Magistrate but in order to impart authenticity, transparency and creditworthiness to the entire proceedings, in the first instance, an endeavour should be to produce the suspect before the nearest Magistrate, who enjoys more confidence of the common man compared to any other officer. It would not only add legitimacy to the search proceedings, it may verily strengthen the prosecution as well."

23). Further the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of State of Rajasthan Vs. Parmanand and another, (2014) 2 SCC (Cri) 563 has again held in paragraph-17 that "In our opinion, a joint communication of the right available under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act to the accused would frustrate the very purport of Section 50. Communication of the said right to the person who is about to be searched is not an empty formality. It has a purpose. Most of the offences under the NDPS Act carry stringent punishment and, therefore, the prescribed procedure has to be meticulously followed. These are minimum safeguards available to an accused against the possibility of false involvement. The communication of this right has to be clear, unambiguous and individual. The accused must be made aware of the existence of such a right. This right would be of little significance if the beneficiary thereof is not able to exercise it for want of knowledge about its existence. A joint communication of the right may not be clear or unequivocal. It may create confusion. It may result in diluting the right. We are, therefore, of the view that the accused must be individually informed that under Section 50(1) of the NDPS Act, he has a right to be searched before a nearest gazetted officer or before a nearest Magistrate. Similar view taken by the Punjab & Haryana High Court in Paramjit Singh and the Bombay High Court in Dharamveer Lekhram Sharma meets with our approval."

24). In the present case, from the perusal of the testimonies of P.W. 1 and P.W. 2 recorded before the learned trial Court, it is evident that the appellant was never informed regarding his statutory right to be searched before the Magistrate or Gazetted Officer and being so, this Court finds that there is gross violation of the Section 50 of the NDPS Act. Thus, it is clear that if the recovery of the contraband narcotics has been made in contravention to the mandate of the Section 50 of the NDPS Act, the whole prosecution story becomes doubtful and the appellant gets entitled for acquittal.

25). Since the Court finds that the recovery of the contraband from the possession of the appellant is doubtful, therefore the same will lead to the inference that the recovery of knife from the possession of the appellant is also doubtful.

26). Thus I am of the view that prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellant. The trial Court has not properly discussed the evidence produced by the prosecution and has passed the impugned judgment and order against the settled principle of law including provisions of N.D.P.S. Act. Being so there is no reason to uphold the conviction and sentence of the appellant. The appellant is entitled to be acquitted. The impugned judgment and order is liable to be set aside and accordingly, appeal is liable to be allowed.

passed by Additional Sessions and District Judge, VIIIth, District Lucknow in Session Trial No. 110 of 1994 arising out of Case Crime No. 352 of 1994 and Case Crime No. 353 of 1994 under Sections 8/21 of Narcotics Drugs and Psychotropic Substance Act, 1985 and 25/4 of the Arms Act, 1959, Police Station Hazratganj District Lucknow, is set aside and accused appellant is acquitted. Consequently, the appeal is allowed.

28). Keeping in view the provision of Section 437-A of the Code, appellant-Liyaqat Ali is hereby directed forthwith to furnish a personal bond of a sum of Rs. 20,000/- and two reliable sureties each of the like amount before Trial Court, which shall be effective for a period of six months, along with an undertaking that in the event of filing of Special Leave Petition against this judgment or for grant of leave, appellant-Liyaqat Ali, on receipt of notice thereof, shall appear before Hon'ble Supreme Court.

29). Appellant is on bail, his personal bond is cancelled and sureties stand discharged.

30). Let a copy of this judgment along with the lower court record be sent immediately to the Trial Court concerned for necessary compliance.

Appeal dismissed. (E-13)

List of Cases cited:

Sadhu Saran Singh Vs St. of U.P. & ors. reported in (2016) 4 SCC 357, (Para 20, 21)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Shri Sajjad Husain, the learned counsel for the appellant, Shri Hari Shanker Vajpayee, the learned A.G.A.-I for the State, as well perused the material available on record.

2. By means of the present appeal under Section 372 Cr.P.C., the appellant, Javed Alam, has challenged the judgment and order dated 21.02.2023 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge-I, Ambedkar Nagar in Session Trial No. 281 of 2016, State Vs. Ram Pratap Yadav and others, arising out of Case Crime No. 83 of 2016, under Sections 308/34, 323/34, 504, 506 I.P.C., Police Station Jalalpur, District Ambedkar Nagar, acquitting the opposite party Nos. 1 & 2 from the charges under Section 308/34 I.P.C. framed against them and convicting them for the offence under Sections 323/34, 504, 506 I.P.C. and releasing them on furnishing personal bond of Rs. 30,000/- each for probation period.

3. According to the prosecution version, on 18.03.2016 at about 11:00 a.m. when the son of complainant, namely, Javed Alam (present appellant) was coming to his house dragging a cart which was laden by mustard crops, then the fennel crops standing in the field of opposite party No. 1-Ram Pratap, got stuck, on account of which the accused persons started abusing him, thereafter, when the son of complainant was going to his field again for taking crops, the accused persons including Sudhanshu and Kaushalya surrounded him and assaulted him by lathi, danda and iron rod. On shrieks when the complainant and his family members reached at the spot the accused persons fled away from there while threatening the complainant and his other family members. On this written report the case was registered by the police against the accused persons. After the case was committed, the accused persons in their statements under Section 313 Cr.P.C. denied their guilt and claimed to be tried.

4. The court below after taking into consideration the facts and circumstances of the case and evidence available on record, passed the impugned judgment and order dated 21.02.2023.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant submits court below did not appreciate the evidence on record, prosecution has successfully proved the offence against the accused on the basis of evidence and the impugned judgment was passed without considering the statement of witnesses and the case set up by the prosecution and was passed on surmises and conjectures.

6. Learned A.G.A.-I submits that there appears no illegality or infirmity in the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial court, therefore, the present appeal may be dismissed.

7. I have heard the learned counsel for the appellant as well as learned A.G.A. and gone through the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial court.

8. In the present case from the statements given by the witnesses produced by the prosecution including the injury report of the injured, I found that prosecution has failed to establish that the crime in question has been committed by the accused. There appears no illegality or infirmity in the impugned judgment and order, which is before this Court.

9. Further, this Court observed that an appeal against acquittal stands on a different footing from the appeal against conviction. Hon'ble the Apex Court in a very recent judgment in the case of Sadhu Saran Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Others reported in (2016) 4 SCC 357 has considered this difference and has observed in paragraph nos.20 and 21 as under:

"20. Generally, an appeal against acquittal has always been altogether on a different pedestal from that of an appeal against conviction. In an appeal against acquittal where the presumption of innocence in favour of the accused is reinforced, the appellate court would interfere with the order of acquittal only when there is perversity of fact and law. However, we believe that the paramount consideration of the Court is to do substantial justice and avoid miscarriage of justice which can arise by acquitting the accused who is guilty of an offence. A miscarriage of justice that may occur by the acquittal of the guilty is no less than from the conviction of an innocent. This Court, while enunciating the principles with regard to the scope of powers of the appellate court in an appeal against acquittal, in Sambasiva V. State of Kerala 1998 SCC (Cri) 1320 has held:

7. The principles with regard to the scope of the powers of the appellate court in an appeal against acquittal, are well settled. The powers of the appellate court in an appeal against acquittal are no less than in an appeal against conviction. But where on the basis of evidence on record two views are reasonably possible the appellate court cannot substitute its view in the place of that of the trial court. It is only when the approach of the trial in acquitting an accused is found to be clearly erroneous in its consideration of evidence on record and in deducing conclusions therefrom that the appellate court can interfere with the order of acquittal."

21. The Court, in several cases, has taken the consistent view that the appellate court, while dealing with an appeal against acquittal, has no absolute restriction in law to review and relook the entire evidence on which the order of acquittal is founded. If the appellate court, on scrutiny, finds that the decision of the court below is based on erroneous views and against settled position of law, then the interference of the appellate court with such an order is imperative."

10. In the light of the aforesaid guidelines, the impugned judgment has to be considered from the point of view whether the view taken by the court below was a probable view based on the material on record or it is an absolutely erroneous judgment devoid of merits.

11. A criminal trial proceeds with the presumption of innocence of the accused persons. With the acquittal of the accused persons this presumption of innocence stands fortified. So very strong and cogent reasons must exist in interfering the judgment of acquittal.

12. Keeping in view the aforesaid weakness of the prosecution case, as noted by the court below, I am of the view that the view taken by the court below was a probable and logical view, which is based on valid reasons. The judgment of the court below cannot be said to be illegal, illogical and improbable and not based on material on record or is based on erroneous views and is against the settled position of law. So, this Court is satisfied that there is absolutely no hope of success in this appeal and accordingly, no interference is called for.

13. Accordingly, the present appeal is dismissed.

14. No order as to costs.

15. Copy of this judgment be sent to the court below for its compliance.

16. Lower court record, if any, be returned back to the court concerned.

Appeal allowed. (E-13)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manjive Shukla, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel appearing for Appellant No. 2, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing for the State and perused the record.

2. I find from the record that Appellant No.1 has already died and the present appeal in respect of Appellant No.1 has already been dismissed as abated vide order dated 26.02.2020 passed by this Court.

3. Appellant No.2 through present appeal has challenged judgment and order dated 06.11.2001 passed by 9th Additional Sessions Judge, Lucknow in Session Trial No. 744 of 1996 (State Vs. Ganga Prasad & Anr.) whereby Appellant No. 2 has been convicted for offence punishable under Section 363 IPC and has been sentenced for rigorous imprisonment of five years with fine of Rs. 5,000/- with rider that in default of payment of fine, he will have to undergo simple imprisonment of one year.

4. Prosecution story of the case in brief is that the complainant, Ram Bharose lodged an F.I.R. on 16.06.1994 at about 15:20 hours in Police Station, Krishna Nagar, Lucknow which was registered as Case Crime No. 384 of 1994 under Sections 363 and 366 IPC. Complainant in the F.I.R. stated that he is the resident of 55 Gha/Chha/138(kha), Naya Sardari Kheda, Police Station, Krishna Nagar, Lucknow and father-in-law of his son, Ganga Prasad and brother of Ganga Prasad, Sohan Lal are residents of village, Paigambar Nagar, Police Station, Mawai, District, Barabanki. Complainant has further stated in F.I.R. that his son, Ranjit Kumar was married to the daughter of Ganga Prasad but due to some dispute, his daughter-in-law is residing at the residence of Ganga Prasad and is not coming to reside with his son and therefore, Ganga Prasad is annoyed with the complainant. Complainant has also stated that almost one month before the date of incident, Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal came to his residence and extended threat that they will kidnap his daughter, Brahm Kumari, therefore, entire family got scared. It has been further stated in the F.I.R. that on 28.05.1994 at about 7:00 a.m. when daughter of the complainant, Brahm Kumari was going to bring some articles of breakfast in vicinity, aforesaid Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal came and enticed his daughter and took her away with them. Age of the victim is 11 years and further complainant stated that he searched out his daughter and even enquired from the accused but he could not trace out his daughter, therefore, he is giving information to the police.

5. It is to be noted here that the aforesaid girl, Brahm Kumari after sometime came back to residence of her father.

6. Police after investigation submitted charge-sheet against Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal under Sections 363 & 366 I.P.C. Since offences were triable by Sessions Court, as such, case was sent to Sessions Court and the trial started.

7. During trial, testimonies of PW-1, Smt. Prema Devi, PW-2, Brahm Kumari, PW-3, Sri Ram Bharose, PW-4, Santosh Kumari, PW-5, Constable Khushi Ram, PW-6, Sri Ram Ji Mishra (Investigating Officer) and PW-7, Sri R.S. Tomar (Investigating Officer) were recorded.

8. Thereafter two Defense Witnesses were produced from the side of appellant i.e. DW-1, Smt. Neelam, DW-2, Sri Sundar Singh.

9. PW-1, Smt. Prema Devi who is mother of the victim girl, in her testimony has deposed that when her daughter Brahm Kumari went to bring some articles of breakfast in the vicinity, Ganga Prasad & Sohan Lal enticed her daughter and took her to their house in District, Barabanki. She further stated that at the time of incident, age of Brahm Kumari was 10-11 years. Smt. Prema Devi in her testimony stated that the girl, Brahm Kumari was recovered after 15-20 days from the date of the incident.

10. P.W. 2, victim, Brahm Kumari in her testimony has deposed that Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal are fathers-in-law of his brother. She further deposed that on the date of incident, Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal enticed her by saying that they will give something to her and took her away to their home. Brahm Kumari further stated that when she refused to go with the aforesaid Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal then they said that we will give you something and then you may go to your house. Brahm Kumari further categorically stated that she remained in the house of Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal at Barabanki for about 9-10 days and, thereafter they brought her back and left at Alambagh Chauraha at Lucknow and said that now you go to your home and, thereafter she came to her home. P.W. 2 in her testimony has also said that both, Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal have not done any indecency with her.

11. P.W. 4, Santosh Kumari who is sister of Brahm Kumari in her statement has said that Brahm Kumari came back to her house after 25 days.

12. Learned trial court on the basis of the aforesaid testimonies of prosecution witnesses and other evidence available on record, came to the conclusion that Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal have committed offence punishable under Section 363 I.P.C. and thereby vide judgement and order dated 6.11.2001 has sentenced them for rigorous imprisonment of five years with a fine of Rs. 5,000/- each.

13. Learned counsel appearing for the Appellant No. 2 has vehemently argued that the F.I.R. was lodged by the complainant in the Police Station on 16.06.1994 at 15:20 hours and all the prosecution witnesses have said that the incident took place on 28.05.1994 meaning thereby that the F.I.R. was lodged 19 days after the date of incident whereas P.W. 2, Brahm Kumari (victim) in her statement has categorically said that she remained in the house of Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal only for 9-10 days and, thereafter she came back to house of her father, therefore, it is patently manifest that the entire prosecution story is false, fabricated and is an after-thought. Learned counsel for the appellant has further argued that since complainant and accused are relatives and girl on her own free will went along with Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal to their house in District Barabanki and when she came back after 9-10 days then the complainant has lodged the F.I.R. on 16.06.1994.

14. Learned counsel appearing for the appellant has also vehemently argued that there is serious contradiction in the testimony of the prosecution witnesses in respect of the fact that after how many days, girl came back to the residence of her parents. P.W. 1, mother in her statement has stated that the girl was recovered after 15-20 days whereas the girl, Brahm Kumari in her statement has stated that she herself came back to her house after 9-10 days. Since there is delay of 19 days in lodging of F.I.R., therefore, the aforesaid contradiction between the testimonies of prosecution witnesses is of prime importance and makes the entire prosecution story suspicious. Learned counsel for the appellant has also invited attention of this Court that there is one more contradiction in the version of mother and the victim i.e. mother has said that the victim has been recovered whereas the girl has said that she herself came back to the house of her parents.

15. Learned counsel for the appellant has also put emphasis on the fact that there is motive for the complainant to falsely implicate Ram Prasad and Sohan Lal in the present case as the prosecution witnesses in their testimonies have categorically admitted that there was some dispute in the matrimonial relationship of the son of the complainant and daughter of Ram Prasad.

Learned counsel for the appellant has concluded his arguments by saying that in totality of the circumstances, it is patently manifest that the Appellant No. 2 has been falsely implicated in the present case and further prosecution has not been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and, therefore, judgement and order dated 6.11.2001 passed by learned trial court in Sessions Trial No. 744 of 1996 is liable to be set-aside.

16. On the other hand, learned Additional Government Advocate has argued that there are no contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses and prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt and therefore, judgement and order dated 6.11.2001 passed by the learned trial court is liable to be upheld by this Court.

17. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsels appearing for the parties. I find that the complainant i.e. father of the victim lodged F.I.R. in Police Station Krishna Nagar on 16.06.1994 at about 15:20 hours and the date and time of incident is 28.05.1994 at 7:00 a.m., therefore, F.I.R. has been lodged after clear 19 days of the incident. I find that P.W. 1, Smt. Prema Devi, who is mother of the victim in her testimony has deposed that the girl was recovered after about 15-20 days from the date of incident whereas P.W. 2, Brahm Kumari (victim) in her testimony has stated that she remained in the house of Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal only for 9-10 days and, thereafter they took her to Lucknow and she came back to her house.

18. P.W. 2, Brahm Kumari in her testimony has also deposed that when her father lodged F.I.R. with the police only then aforesaid Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal have brought her to Lucknow and she could reach the house of her parents. I also find that the P.W. 4, sister of the victim in her testimony has deposed that when Brahm Kumari was not traceable then her father lodged F.I.R. with the police and then after about 25 days from the date of incident, Brahm Kumari came back to the house of her parents.

19. It appears from the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses that the victim, Brahm Kumari stayed in the house of Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal for 9-10 days and, thereafter she came back to house of her parents and only thereafter complainant lodged the F.I.R. as there is gap of 19 days in the date of incident and the date of lodging of F.I.R. It also appears that there are serious contradictions in the testimonies of prosecution witnesses regarding the prosecution story as mother has said that the girl was recovered after 15-20 days, sister (P.W. 4) Santosh Kumari has said that victim came back to her house after 25 days whereas the victim herself has said that she came back to her house after 9-10 days.

20. The aforesaid contradictions in the testimonies become very vital when there is delay of 19 days in lodging the F.I.R. and further all the prosecution witnesses have said that the girl has come to parents' house only after lodging of F.I.R.

21. I find that the mother of the victim i.e. P.W. 1 has deposed that the girl was recovered whereas all other prosecution witnesses have said that the girl herself came back to her house. This contradiction when seen along with entire facts and circumstances of the case, becomes vital. I also find that there is probability of false implication of Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal in the present case as admittedly there was some dispute in between complainant family and the family of Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal. Learned trial court has simply ignored the aforesaid serious contradictions in the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses and probability of the false implication of Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal in the present case and has convicted and sentenced Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal.

22. I am of the view that the prosecution story is under the cloud of suspicion and prosecution has not been able to prove its case against Ganga Prasad and Sohan Lal beyond reasonable doubt, therefore, Appellant No. 2 is liable to get benefit of doubt.

23. In view of the aforesaid reasons, this Criminal Appeal is allowed.

24. Judgement and order dated 6.11.2001 passed by 9th Additional Sessions Judge, Lucknow in Session Trial No. 744 of 1996 thereby convicting and sentencing Sohan Lal under Section 363 I.P.C., is set-aside.

25. Appellant No. 2 is already on bail. Sureties of Appellant No. 2 are, hereby, discharged.

26. Let the copy of this judgement and lower court record be sent back to the court concerned for necessary information and compliance.

Criminal Appeal No. 1119 of 2001

Devanand Pandey ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Avinash Srivastava

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 376 - Appeal against conviction - Rigorous imprisonment with fine - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Sections 164, 200 & 313 - Complainant (brother of victim) St.d in FIR that appellant and co-accused enticed his sister and took her away - Victim's age was 14 years and minor - She had taken away cash and jewellery with her - During investigation, in presence of witnesses, police found victim was going on road, jewellery was in her bag - After completing investigation police submitted charge sheet - Trial court framed charges and convicted him. (Para 3, 4, 6)

Held, initial version of victim that she was put to threat and enticed by appellant to run away has been found to be unbelievable by trial court as circumstances narrated make it absolutely improbable that if a girl was being taken away by extending threat by only one man and she was passing through roads having heavy traffic and persons, then she will not make any hue and cry and will not make complaint to any person and accordingly, trial court acquitted appellant and co-accused for offence punishable u/s 366 IPC. (Para 26)

Testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 regarding age of victim on date of incident was false, in medical examination she was found to be 18 years and as per version of her brother given in cross-examination she was 21 years and victim in her St.ment said her age was 19 years and she has married to appellant with her free will, trial court acquitted appellant of offence punishable u/s 363, IPC. (Para 27)

Trial court found testimony of prosecutrix as unbelievable, therefore, in absence of any corroborative evidence, there was manifest error of law and facts while convicting and sentencing appellant u/s 376, IPC (Para 34)

Appeal allowed. (E-13)

2. Santosh Prasad @ Santosh Kumar Vs St. of Bihar, reported in (2020) 3 SCC 443

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manjive Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Avinash Srivastava, learned counsel appearing for the appellant and Mr. Balram Singh, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing for the State.

2. Appellant through this criminal appeal has challenged the judgment and order dated 28.11.2001 passed by 11th Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad in Sessions Trial No.90/93 whereby the appellant has been convicted for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC and has been sentenced for rigorous imprisonment of 10 years with fine of Rs.5,000/- with rider that in the event of failure to deposit the amount of fine, he will undergo six months' rigorous imprisonment.

3. Complainant (brother of the victim) lodged an FIR in Police Station Tarun, District Faizabad which was registered as Case Crime No.218 of 1992 under Section 363/366 IPC. The complainant in the aforesaid FIR has stated that accused appellant son of Suryabhan Pandey and Rohit Kumar Pandey son of Ram Bahor Pandey, residents of Village Vidyapur Gayaspur, P.S. Tarun, District Faizabad had enticed his sister and thereby took her away. The complainant in the FIR has further stated that his sister is aged about 14 years and is a minor. In the FIR, it has further been stated that his sister had also taken away cash and jewellery with her. The complainant in the FIR has said that he tried to search out his sister but she is untraceable, therefore the First Information Report be lodged and the police may search out his sister.

4. After lodging of the aforesaid FIR, the police of the concerned police station started investigation. On 5.1.1993 at about 7 p.m. in presence of witnesses Madan Mohan Mishra and Mohd. Junaid Khan, the police found that the victim was going on the road near the south Kabristan of village Saidpur towards village Pandey Ka Purwa and thereafter she was questioned and her bag was searched out, then it was found that jewellery was in the bag. The recovery memo was prepared and the victim after medical examination was handed over to her father.

5. The police after completing the investigation submitted charge sheet against accused appellant under Sections 363, 366, 376 IPC and against accused Rohit Kumar Pandey under Section 363/34 and 366/34 IPC.

6. The trial court framed charges against accused appellant under Sections 363, 366, 376 IPC and against accused Rohit Kumar Pandey under Sections 363/34 and 366/34 IPC. During trial, testimony of PW-1 (brother of the victim), PW-2 (victim), PW-3 Dr. Meera Srivastava, PW-4 Dr. D.R. Bhuwan and PW-5 Sub Inspector M.L. Khan was recorded.

7. Thereafter, statements of both the accused were recorded under Section 313 CrPC.

8. PW-1 (brother of the victim) in his testimony recorded during trial has deposed that in the night of 2/3.11.1992 he was sleeping outside his house and his sister was sleeping inside the house. When he woke up in the night and went inside the house, he found that his sister was not there and at that time it was about 2.30 a.m. in the night. PW-1 in his testimony has further deposed that the age of his sister was 14 years and he tried to search out his sister but she could not be traced. He has further stated that accused Rohit Kumar Pandey and accused appellant are the residents of his village and both used to come to his house and also used to talk to his sister. He also deposed that he had instructed them not to talk to his sister. He said that when his sister could not be traced out, then he became confident that Rohit and accused appellant had enticed his sister and further his sister along with her had also taken away Rs.200/- cash and jewellery. When his sister could not be traced out, then on the next day he went to the police station and lodged the FIR. He has also said that at the time of incident his mother and father were not present in the house as his mother had gone to Ayodhya and his father was in Surat on his service.

9. PW-1 complainant in his cross examination has deposed that at the time of incident his age was about 25 years. He has further said that he has two younger sisters namely Saroj Kumari and victim. Saroj Kumari was two years younger to him and victim was two years younger to Saroj Kumari.

10. PW-2 (victim) in her testimony recorded before the trial court has deposed that she knows accused appellant and Rohit, who are residents of village Vidyapur and marriage of accused appellant had already taken place. She has further deposed that her father is in service at Surat. PW-2 in her testimony has also stated that accused appellant and Rohit by extending threat to her had taken her away with them. The accused appellant and Rohit used to come to her house frequently before the incident and accused appellant is the distant brother of her father. The marriage of accused appellant had already taken place one year back but accused appellant used to say that he loves her a lot and his marriage has been done at a wrong place and he further used to say that he will marry with victim. The mother of PW-2 came to know about the talks between accused appellant and victim and then she instructed the accused appellant not to come to her house. On the date of incident her mother was in Ayodhya. PW-2 in her testimony has further deposed that on the date of incident at about 2.00 a.m. in the night, there was knock at the door and she opened the door, then the accused appellant extended threat to her and forcibly took her on his bicycle to Faizabad and Rohit also went with him. She has also said that due to threat given by the accused appellant she took Rs.200/- cash and jewellery with her. Rohit stopped at Faizabad and thereafter the accused appellant took her on bicycle to Ayodhya and then took her to Hanuman temple and forcibly put Sindoor in her hair. PW-2 has further stated that in the night she and the accused appellant stayed at Ayodhya station and next day he took her to Barabanki and there she stayed at station and on 5.11.1992 he took her to the court compound at Barabanki and said that they should marry in writing and further said that she should tell her age as 20 years and he will not tell anything about his first marriage. In the court the accused appellant by extending threat to the victim took her signatures on some plain papers. Thereafter, the accused appellant took PW-2 to Delhi and there he went in a room in some colony and in the night of the same day when the accused appellant found PW-2 alone, he extended threat to her and against her will did sexual intercourse. PW-2 in her statement has further stated that whenever he used to protest, the accused appellant extended threat and said that he will go leaving her alone. PW-2 in her statement has also said that after the date of incident she remained with the accused appellant for about two months and during the period when she stayed in the colony every night the accused appellant forcibly used to do sexual intercourse with her. After two months he brought her to Barabanki from Delhi and said her to take tempo and to go to village Saidpur and there to contact his Mausam Ram Kumar who will arrange her stay at the house of some one known to him and further the accused appellant for arranging money went to his house at village Vidyapur and asked that he will come tomorrow. PW-2 has also said that after leaving tempo while she was moving towards village Pandey Ka Purwa, then the Inspector of the police station along with her father came and with the help of Jeep light they caught her and thereafter memo of recovery was prepared and she after her medical examination was handed over to her father.

11. It is to be noted here that though PW-2 (Victim) in her testimony recorded during trial has not said anything about her age at the time of incident but her statement under Section 164 CrPC was recorded on 16.1.1993 and in the said statement she has said that her age was 15-16 years.

12. PW-3 Dr. Meera Srivastava, Emergency Medical Officer, Woman Hospital, Faizabad in her testimony recorded during trial has said that she had conducted medical examination of the victim on 7.1.1993 and in the medical examination it has been found that her hymen was old torn and two fingers can easily be inserted in her private part. PW-3 has further stated that as per the x-ray report the age of the victim was 18 years and further no opinion can be given in respect of rape as the girl was used to sexual intercourse.

13. PW-4 Dr. D.R. Bhuwan, Senior Medical Officer (X-Ray) in his testimony recorded during trial has deposed that the x-ray of right elbow and right wrist of the victim was carried out on 8.1.1993 and on the basis of the x-ray report the age of the victim was found to be 18 years.

14. Lastly, testimony of PW-5 Sub Inspector M.L. Khan, Incharge Chowki Shahjadpur, Kotwali Akbarpur has been recorded and he has proved different papers submitted by the police.

15. Thereafter, the statements of accused under Section 313 CrPC were recorded. Accused appellant in his statement has categorically stated that he had neither extended any threat to the victim nor had enticed for taking her away and further she had gone with him with her free will. Accused appellant has also stated that he did not extend any threat to the victim for having sexual intercourse with him and whenever sexual intercourse took place it was with her consent. Accused appellant has also stated that the victim on the date of incident was major and after the incident she had also filed one Complaint Case No.3219/92 in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Barabanki against the brother of the victim and others wherein her statement under Section 200 CrPC was recorded on 27.11.1992. In the aforesaid statement recorded under Section 200 CrPC the victim has stated that her age is 19 years and she has also stated that she had married with the accused appellant with her free will. The accused appellant has also filed certified copy of the statement of the victim recorded under Section 200 CrPC in Case No.3219/92, Victim vs. brother of the victim and others filed in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Barabanki. For convenience, the aforesaid statement recorded under Section 200 CrPC is reproduced as under:-

16. Learned trial court has considered the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses and the statements of the accused recorded under Section 313 CrPC. Learned trial court has found that though the victim in her testimony has said that the accused appellant and Rohit had extended threat to her and enticed her and thereby took her away but the facts of the case clearly reveal that the victim while going with the accused appellant took away Rs.200/- cash and jewellery from her house. Thereafter, she went on the bicycle of the accused appellant to Faizabad and further she went on bicycle from Faizabad to Ayodhya. At Ayodhya, the accused appellant and the victim went to Hanuman temple and there the accused appellant had put Sindoor in her hair. The victim in the night stayed at Ayodhya station and the next day came with the accused appellant to Barabanki and stayed at station. Thereafter, on 5.11.1992 she along with the accused appellant went to the court and there she signed on some plain papers. Thereafter, the victim went to Delhi with the accused appellant and stayed in a room in some colony at Delhi and there sexual intercourse took place and after staying for some time in Delhi, accused appellant took her back to Barabanki and while she was going from Barabanki to some place she was caught by the police and was handed over to her father. During the aforesaid travel from village to Faizabad, Faizabad to Ayodhya, Ayodhya to Barabanki, Barabanki to Delhi and Delhi to Barabanki, the victim was with the accused appellant and must have passed through many places having presence of several persons but she never made any attempt either to make a cry or to contact any person to tell that the accused appellant had extended any kind of threat and she had gone with the accused appellant under the threat extended by him. Therefore, in the facts and circumstances of the case, learned trial court found that there was no threat extended by the accused appellant and the victim was moving with accused appellant with her free will.

17. Learned trial court has considered the entire evidence available on record in respect of the age of the victim on the date of incident and though the brother of the victim and the victim herself in her statement recorded under Section 164 CrPC have stated that the victim was minor on the date of incident but the medical examination conducted by the doctors clearly reveals that on the date of medical examination the victim was aged about 18 years and further the brother of the victim in his statement and the cross examination has categorically stated that on the date of incident his age was about 25 years. He has two younger sisters, next sister is two years is younger to him and the victim is two years younger to the next sister, as such, the age of the victim on the date of incident as per version of his brother was 21 years. In view of the aforesaid evidence, learned trial court has concluded that the victim on the date of incident was major.

18. Learned trial court in view of the aforesaid conclusions ultimately has acquitted the accused appellant and Rohit for the offences punishable under Sections 363 and 366 IPC.

19. Learned trial court thereafter has considered that the victim in her testimony recorded during trial has said that accused appellant did sexual intercourse with her without her consent and even she was extended threat by accused appellant and the learned trial court has concluded that once the victim has said that accused appellant had done sexual intercourse with her without her consent and by putting her to threat, then there is no reason to disbelieve her version and accordingly, accused appellant is liable to be convicted for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC and thus, the learned trial court has convicted the accused appellant under Section 376 IPC and sentenced him for rigorous imprisonment of 10 years and fine of Rs.5,000/-.

20. Learned counsel appearing for the appellant has vehemently argued that the testimony of the prosecution witnesses recorded during trial categorically demonstrates that PW-1 and PW-2 all along have narrated an absolutely false story. Even the trial court has concluded that the testimony given by the victim in respect of threat extended to her by the accused appellant for running away with him and to marry him is absolutely false as she travelled at many places with the accused appellant and she never raised any alarm or she never asked any help from other persons present on the roads. Learned trial court has also found the version of the prosecution and the statement of the victim in respect of her age to be absolutely false as in the medical report the doctors have found the age of the victim to be 18 years and further as per the testimony of her brother, she was of 21 years of age on the date of incident.

21. Learned counsel for the appellant has further argued that once the testimony of the victim in respect of threats extended to her for running away and in respect of her age has been found to be unbelievable, then the part of her testimony that she was put to sexual intercourse by the accused appellant under threat and without her consent cannot be believed unless there is some corroborative evidence and in the present case there is only piece of testimony of the victim and there is no other corroborative evidence and therefore, learned trial court while convicting the appellant for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC has committed manifest illegality.

22. On the other hand, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing for the State has argued that since the victim has said that sexual intercourse was done by the accused appellant under threat and without her consent, as such the learned trial court has rightly convicted the accused appellant for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC.

23. I have considered the submissions advanced by the learned counsels for the parties and I have also perused the record of the case.

24. I find that the victim in her testimony recorded during trial has deposed that she was extended threat and enticed by the accused appellant and Rohit and thereby she went with the accused appellant. She has further stated that she went from her house to Faizabad with the accused appellant on bicycle. Thereafter, from Faizabad to Ayodhya on bicycle and then in Ayodhya she along with the accused appellant went to Hanuman temple where the accused appellant extended threat and put 'Sindoor' in her hair. She has further said that from Ayodhya she came to Barabanki and in Barabanki she along with the accused appellant went to the court compound and there under threat she signed on some plain papers. She has further stated that thereafter she along with the accused appellant went to Delhi and stayed there in a room in some colony for some days and there the accused appellant under threat and without her consent did sexual intercourse with her.

25. No doubt, in cases lodged under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC, testimony of the victim girl is of paramount importance and once the testimony of the victim is without contradiction, then the said testimony itself is sufficient to convict the accused but where it is found that the story narrated by the victim is absolutely improbable and from the very beginning the victim is giving false statement, then her testimony definitely has to be looked by the court with extra care and in the said circumstance, other corroborative evidence is also necessary to convict the accused for offences punishable under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC.

26. I find that initial version of the victim that she was put to threat and was enticed by the accused appellant to run away with him has been found to be unbelievable by the learned trial court as the circumstances narrated in the prosecution story make it absolutely improbable that if a girl is being taken away by extending threat by only one man and she is passing through roads having heavy traffic and persons, then she will not make any hue and cry and will not make complaint to any person and accordingly, learned trial court has acquitted the accused appellant and Rohit for offence punishable under Section 366 IPC.

27. I also find that learned trial court has also concluded that the testimony of PW-1 and PW-2 regarding the age of the victim on the date of incident is absolutely false as in the medical examination the victim has been found to be 18 years of age and as per version of her brother given in his cross-examination she on the date of incident was aged about 21 years and further the victim herself has filed a Complaint Case No.3219/92 in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Barabanki wherein in her statement recorded under Section 200 CrPC she has categorically said that her age is 19 years and thereby learned trial court has acquitted the accused of the offence punishable under Section 363 IPC.

28. From the aforesaid, it can be very easily deduced that the victim's testimony recorded during trial all along has been found to be unbelievable/improbable by the trial court itself and therefore, there is hardly any occasion to rely upon a small piece of her testimony and to convict accused appellant for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC. It is also a very important piece of evidence which was on record in the trial court and even the accused in their statement recorded under Section 313 CrPC have also stated about the said evidence that the victim herself after the incident in question had filed a Complaint Case No.3219/92, Victim vs. brother of the victim and others i.e. against her brother in which her statement under Section 200 CrPC was recorded on 27.11.1992 and in the said statement she has categorically said that her age is 19 years and she has married to the accused appellant with her free will. The aforesaid statement of the victim recorded under Section 200 CrPC in different complaint case categorically demonstrates that her marriage took place with the accused appellant with her free will.

29. The facts when seen in totality clearly demonstrate that the testimony of the victim recorded during trial does not inspire confidence and has been found to be absolutely unbelievable/improbable, therefore in these circumstances one piece of her testimony that the accused appellant extended threat to her and did sexual intercourse with her without her consent, that too without there being any corroborative evidence regarding threat and sexual intercourse without consent of the victim, can also not be relied upon and therefore, the trial court while relying upon a piece of her testimony without any corroborative evidence has committed manifest illegality.

30. Once it is found that from the very beginning the victim is giving false evidence, then a very small piece of her evidence cannot be relied upon unless there is some other corroborative evidence. In the present case, from the very beginning the entire prosecution story has been found to be false by the trial court itself, therefore unless there is some other clinching corroborative evidence, the accused cannot be convicted only by relying upon a very small piece of testimony of the witness recorded during trial.

31. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in its judgment rendered in the case of Baldeo Sao vs. State of Jharkhand, reported in 2007 (CrLJ) 3992 has categorically held that once the prosecution version has been found to be unbelievable/improbable, then the accused cannot be convicted solely relying on a small piece of evidence of the victim. Relevant portion of the aforesaid judgment is extracted as under:-

“4. The present appeal has been preferred mainly on the grounds that the learned trial Court has not considered the improbability of the prosecution case. It was also asserted that the doctor (PW 3) did not find any sign of rape and in absence of probable witness of the occurrence, the reliance placed by the learned trial Court on sole statement of the prosecutrix is misplaced. Mr. P.P.N. Roy, learned senior counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant, submitted that the reason behind this false prosecution has been admitted by PW 1 and PW 2 during their statements before the trial Court. According to learned Counsel, further in absence of the investigating officer, the defence has been prejudiced. Therefore, the appellant may be acquitted to the charges.

5. I have gone through the evidence on record. The prosecution story depends upon the sole statement of PW 1, the victim. According to her, the appellant alongwith Dilip Sao entered in the house on pretext of water and forcibly committed rape while nobody was in her house. She has given the details of the occurrence and thereafter stated that she became unconscious. According to her version, when her bhabhi returned after few hours, she was made conscious when she narrated the entire incident to her bhabhi and brother. She further admitted that the same night they went to Ichak Police Station where her statement was recorded by Ranvijay Singh vide Ext. 1. However, she admitted during cross-examination that her brother PW 2 Hemjraj Turi was an accused in a case under Section 395 the Indian Penal Code in which the father of the appellant. Tulsi Turi, has given evidence against his brother. She admitted vide paragraph-20 that her parents as well as two other brothers were alive. According to her version, she has got this experience of sexual intercourse for the first time and she got injured during rape. However, this fact has been disputed by PW 3 Dr. Kalpana Sharan, who found hymen with old rupture admitting two fingers and no sign of rape on 13.4.1996. She did not find any injury on other parts of her body PW 2, brother of the prosecutrix is hearsay witness of the occurrence. According to him vide paragraph-11, the father of the appellant has got a case registered against him for theft. He supported prosecutrix regarding her injuries on her body. He named four persons to have accompanied the victim to Police Station. However, no other witness has been examined before the trial Court though named in the chargesheet.

6. The learned trial Court has considered all these facts and discussed vide paragraphs-9 to 11. However, he has relied upon the sole evidence of prosecutrix and convicted the appellant in spite of the fact that PW 1 and PW 2 have admitted enmity between the families for a criminal case against PW 2 in which the father of the appellant has deposed against him. The trial Court has disbelieved the version regarding the offence under Section 3/4 of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, but accepted the prosecution version from prosecutrix claiming that she has been subjected to sexual intercourse for the first time, the doctor (PW 3) contradict her. The doctor did not find any mark of violence on her private parts, which is against the prosecution version.

7. In the facts and circumstances discussed above where previous enmity between the families is admitted and in absence of any evidence to support the prosecution version that PW 1 has been subjected to rape by two persons, I find and hold that the prosecution in the facts of present case has not been able to prove beyond all reasonable doubts the charges against the appellant. Accordingly the present appeal has got merit and deserves to be allowed.

32. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in its judgment dated 14th February, 2020 rendered in the case of Santosh Prasad @ Santosh Kumar vs. State of Bihar, reported in (2020) 3 SCC 443 has considered the issue of conviction of the accused based on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix and has held that where the story narrated by the prosecutrix has been found to be under the cloud of suspicion, then one piece of her testimony cannot be made the basis for conviction of the accused under Section 376 IPC. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has categorically held that the testimony of the prosecutrix has to pass test of 'sterling witness' and only then the said testimony can be made the basis for conviction of the accused. Relevant portion of the aforesaid judgement of the Hon'ble Supreme Court is extracted as under:-

"5. We have heard the learned counsel for the respective parties at length.

5.1 We have considered in detail the impugned judgments and orders passed by the High Court as well as that of the learned trial Court convicting the accused. We have also considered in detail the evidence on record, both oral as well as documentary.

5.2 From the impugned judgments and orders passed by both the courts below, it appears that the appellant has been convicted solely relying upon the deposition of the prosecutrix (PW5). Neither any independent witness nor even the medical evidence supports the case of the prosecution. From the deposition of PW1, it has come on record that there was a land dispute going on between both the parties. Even in the cross-examination even the PW5 – prosecutrix had admitted that she had an enmity with Santosh (accused). The prosecutrix was called for medical examination by Dr. Renu Singh – Medical Officer and PW7 – Dr. Renu Singh submitted injury report. In the injury report, no sperm as well as RBC and WBC were found. Dr. Renu Singh, PW7 – Medical Officer in her deposition has specifically opined and stated that she did not find any violence marks on the body of the victim. She has also categorically stated that there is no physical or pathological evidence of rape. It is true that thereafter she has stated that possibility of rape cannot be ruled out (so stated in the examination- in-chief). However, in the cross-examination, she has stated that there was no physical or pathological evidence of rape.

5.3 As per the FSL report, the blood group on the petticoat and the semen on the petticoat are stated to be inconclusive. Therefore, the only evidence available on record would be the deposition of the prosecutrix. It cannot be disputed that there can be a conviction solely based on the evidence of the prosecutrix. However, the evidence must be reliable and trustworthy. Therefore, now let us examine the evidence of the prosecutrix and consider whether in the facts and circumstances of the case is it safe to convict the accused solely based on the deposition of the prosecutrix, more particularly when neither the medical report/evidence supports nor other witnesses support and it has come on record that there was an enmity between both the parties. 5.4 Before considering the evidence of the prosecutrix, the decisions of this Court in the cases of Raju (supra) and Rai Sandeep @ Deepu, relied upon by he learned Advocate appearing on behalf of the appellant-accused, are required to be referred to and considered.

5.4.1 In the case of Raju (supra), it is observed and held by this Court in paragraphs 11 and 12 as under:

“11. It cannot be lost sight of that rape causes the greatest distress and humiliation to the victim but at the same time a false allegation of rape can cause equal distress, humiliation and damage to the accused as well. The accused must also be protected against the possibility of false implication, particularly where a large number of accused are involved. It must, further, be borne in mind that the broad principle is that an injured witness was present at the time when the incident happened and that ordinarily such a witness would not tell a lie as to the actual assailants, but there is no presumption or any basis for assuming that the statement of such a witness is always correct or without any embellishment or exaggeration.

12. Reference has been made in Gurmit Singh case [(1996) 2 SCC 384 : 1996 SCC (Cri) 316] to the amendments in 1983 to Sections 375 and 376 of the Penal Code making the penal provisions relating to rape more stringent, and also to Section 114-A of the Evidence Act with respect to a presumption to be raised with regard to allegations of consensual sex in a case of alleged rape. It is however significant that Sections 113-A and 113-B too were inserted in the Evidence Act by the same amendment by which certain presumptions in cases of abetment of suicide and dowry death have been raised against the accused. These two sections, thus, raise a clear presumption in favour of the prosecution but no similar presumption with respect to rape is visualised as the presumption under Section 114-A is extremely restricted in its applicability. This clearly shows that insofar as allegations of rape are concerned, the evidence of a prosecutrix must be examined as that of an injured witness whose presence at the spot is probable but it can never be presumed that her statement should, without exception, be taken as the gospel truth. Additionally, her statement can, at best, be adjudged on the principle that ordinarily no injured witness would tell a lie or implicate a person falsely. We believe that it is under these principles that this case, and others such as this one, need to be examined.” 5.4.2 In the case of Rai Sandeep alias Deepu (supra), this Court had an occasion to consider who can be said to be a “sterling witness”. In paragraph 22, it is observed and held as under:

“22 In our considered opinion, the “sterling witness” should be of a very high quality and calibre whose version should, therefore, be unassailable. The court considering the version of such witness should be in a position to accept it for its face value without any hesitation. To test the quality of such a witness, the status of the witness would be immaterial and what would be relevant is the truthfulness of the statement made by such a witness. What would be more relevant would be the consistency of the statement right from the starting point till the end, namely, at the time when the witness makes the initial statement and ultimately before the court. It should be natural and consistent with the case of the prosecution qua the accused.

*There should not be any prevarication in the version of such a witness. The witness should be in a position to withstand the cross-examination of any length and howsoever strenuous it may be and under no circumstance should give room for any doubt as to the factum of the occurrence, the persons involved, as well as the sequence of it. Such a version should have co-relation with each and every one of other supporting material such as the recoveries made, the weapons used, the manner of offence committed, the scientific evidence and the expert opinion. The said version should consistently match with the version of every other witness. It can even be stated that it should be akin to the test applied in the case of circumstantial evidence where there should not be any missing link in the chain of circumstances to hold the accused guilty of the offence alleged against him. Only if the version of such a witness qualifies the above test as well as all other such similar tests to be applied, can it be held that such a witness can be called as a "sterling witness" whose version can be accepted by the court without any corroboration and based on which the guilty can be punished. To be more precise, the version of the said witness on the core spectrum of the crime should remain intact while all other attendant materials, namely, oral, documentary and material objects should match the said version in material particulars in order to enable the court trying the offence to rely on the core version to sieve the other supporting materials for holding the offender guilty of the charge alleged." 5.4.3 In the case of Krishna Kumar Malik v. State of Haryana (2011) 7 SCC 130, it is observed and held by this Court that no doubt, it is true that to hold an accused guilty for commission of an offence of rape, the solitary evidence of* the prosecutrix is sufficient provided the same inspires confidence and appears to be absolutely trustworthy, unblemished and should be of sterling quality. 5.5 With the aforesaid decisions in mind, it is required to be considered, whether is it safe to convict the accused solely on the solitary evidence of the prosecutrix? Whether the evidence of the prosecutrix inspires confidence and appears to be absolutely trustworthy, unblemished and is of sterling quality?

6. Having gone through and considered the deposition of the prosecutrix, we find that there are material contradictions. Not only there are material contradictions, but even the manner in which the alleged incident has taken place as per the version of the prosecutrix is not believable. In the examination-in-chief, the prosecutrix has stated that after jumping the fallen compound wall accused came inside and thereafter the accused committed rape. She has stated that she identified the accused from the light of the mobile. However, no mobile is recovered. Even nothing is on record that there was a broken compound wall. She has further stated that in the morning at 10 O'clock she went to the police station and gave oral complaint. However, according to the investigating officer a written complaint was given. It is also required to be noted that even the FIR is registered at 4:00 p.m. In her deposition, the prosecutrix has referred to the name of Shanti Devi, PW1 and others. However, Shanti Devi has not supported the case of the prosecution. Therefore, when we tested the version of PW5 -prosecutrix, it is unfortunate that the said witness has failed to pass any of the tests of "sterling witness". There is a variation in her version about giving the complaint. There is a delay in the FIR. The medical report does not support the case of the prosecution. FSL report also does not support the case of the prosecution. As admitted, there was an enmity/dispute between both the parties with respect to land. The manner in which the occurrence is stated to have occurred is not believable. Therefore, in the facts and circumstances of the case, we find that the solitary version of the prosecutrix – PW5 cannot be taken as a gospel truth at face value and in the absence of any other supporting evidence, there is no scope to sustain the conviction and sentence imposed on the appellant and accused is to be given the benefit of doubt.”

33. The law laid down through the aforesaid judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in clear terms, provides that if the testimony of the prosecutrix has been found to be full of contradictions, then the conviction cannot be based on certain piece of testimony of the prosecutrix unless there is corroborative evidence to support the version of the prosecutrix.

34. In the present case, learned trial court has found that the testimony of the prosecutrix is unbelievable/improbable, therefore, in absence of any corroborative evidence, learned trial court has committed manifest error of law and facts both while convicting and sentencing the appellant for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC.

35. I find and hold that the prosecution in the facts of the present case has not been able to prove charges against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt. Accordingly, the present appeal has got merit and deserves to be allowed.

36. In view of the aforesaid reasons, this criminal appeal is allowed. The judgment and order dated 28.11.2001 passed by 11th Additional Sessions Judge, Faizabad in Sessions Trial No.90/93 convicting appellant for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC and sentencing him for rigorous imprisonment of 10 years with fine of Rs.5,000/-, is hereby set aside. The appellant is acquitted of the charge levelled against him for offence punishable under Section 376 IPC.

37. The appellant is already on bail, therefore, his bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged.

38. Let lower court record be sent back to the trial court concerned along with a copy of this order for necessary compliance.

Dataram Singh Vs St. of UP & anr., reported in (2018) 3 SCC 22

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Shri Suhail Kashif along with Shri Sudhir Kumar, the learned counsels for the appellant as well as Shri Ashok Kumar Singh, the learned A.G.A. for the State-opposite party No. 1 and perused the entire record.

2. This Court vide order dated 19.07.2022 while issuing notice to the opposite party No. 1 has already granted time to the learned A.G.A. to file counter affidavit.

3. As per the office report dated 03.08.2022 notice has already been served upon the opposite party No. 2 but till date neither any counsel has appeared on behalf of opposite party No. 2 nor counter affidavit has been filed on her behalf. Even no counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of State till date. It appears that learned A.G.A. as well as opposite party No. 2 are not interested to file any counter affidavit.

4. In the above circumstances, as the matter pertains to bail this Court has no option but to proceed for final arguments to decide the present appeal.

5. The present criminal appeal under Section 14-A (2) Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act has been preferred against the impugned orders dated 05.05.2022 and 05.07.2022 passed by the court of learned Special Judge (S.C./S.T. Act), Barabanki in Bail Application No. 1008 of 2022 (Dhirendra vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Sections 376-D, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(V) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67-A of I.T. (Amendment) Act and Bail Application No. 1639 of 2022 (Dhirendra Vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Section 66-E of I.T. (Amendment) Act, relating to Police Station- Jaidpur, District- Barabanki, respectively, whereby the both the bail applications of the appellant have been rejected.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the F.I.R. was lodged under Sections 376-D, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(V) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67-A of I.T. (Amendment) Act against three persons including the present appellant, which too, after an inordinate delay without explaining the delay. The charge sheet was filed against all the accused persons.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that against the present appellant there is only allegation against him is for making video of prosecutrix while two other accused were committing rape of the prosecutrix, whereas no any camera or mobile phone has been recovered. Thus, the entire allegation levelled against the appellant is false and fabricated which has been made by the prosecutrix due to enmity as there is enmity between the family members of the appellant and the family members of the proxecutrix.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that two accused against whom prosecutrix have levelled allegation of rape committed upon her by them have already been enlarged on bail by two different coordinate Benches of this Court vide orders dated 05.05.2023 and 19.06.2023 passed in Criminal Appeal No. 1082 of 2022 (Mohit Vs. State of U.P. and another) and Criminal Revision No. 820 of 2022 (Vijay Kumar Vs. State of U.P.), and as there is only allegation against the appellant is for making video of prosecutrix while two other accused were committing rape of the prosecutrix, thus, the case of appellant is on the better footing than that of the aforesaid two accused. Both the orders are taken on record.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that younger cousin sister of the victim was also present on the date of occurrence who went to inform her family members about this incident. He submitted that the story as narrated by victim itself is improbable as the accused/appellants, who were three in number, would not allow anybody to escape from the scene of occurrence so easily so as to go and inform his/ her family members about the incident. He further submitted that the victim is major, aged about 20 years. The medical report of the victim does not corroborate the manner of commission of offence. He has also submitted that no mobile phone has been recovered by the Investigating Agency, nor any alleged video clip has been recovered or retrieved from any such mobile phone which belies the prosecution story.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that accused/appellant is languishing in jail since 26.03.2022, who has no previous criminal history, and in case the appellant is enlarged on bail, he shall not misuse the liberty of bail and he shall also fully cooperate with the trial. He has further submitted that there is no possibility of the appellant to intimidate or pressurize the witnesses or any other persons acquainted with the facts of the present case.

11. For the aforesaid reasons, learned counsel for the appellant submits that the instant criminal appeal deserves to be allowed and the orders dated 05.05.2022 and 05.07.2022 passed by the court of learned Special Judge (S.C./S.T. Act), Barabanki in Bail Application No. 1008 of 2022 (Dhirendra vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Sections 376-D, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(V) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67-A of I.T. (Amendment) Act and Bail Application No. 1639 of 2022 (Dhirendra Vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Section 66-E of I.T. (Amendment) Act, relating to

Police Station- Jaidpur, District- Barabanki, deserve to be set aside and consequently, the accused/appellant deserves to be enlarged on bail during pendency of the trial.

12. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the appellant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the appellant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required and is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon him. It has also been pointed out that the accused is not having any criminal history and he is in jail since 26.03.2022 and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

13. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the prayer by submitting that there is active participation of accused/appellant in the crime. Therefore, the accused/ appellant is not entitled to be enlarged on bail and the instant criminal appeal deserves to be dismissed. However, he has been unable to dispute the other factual submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the accused/appellant.

14. Having heard the learned counsel for the appellant, learned A.G.A. for the State and upon perusal of record, it transpires that initially a first information report came to be lodged against the present accused/appellant and two other named accused persons, namely, Mohit and Vijay after an inordinate and unexplained delay of three days, under Sections 376-D, 506 I.P.C., 67-A I.T. (Amendment) Act & Section 3(2)(V) of SC/ST Act. Upon conclusion of investigation, a charge sheet came to be laid against the all the three named accused including the appellant for the offence under Sections 376 D, 506 I.P.C. & Section 3(2)(v) S.C./S.T. Act, and Section 66-E I.T. (Amendment) Act. The victim is major, aged about 20 years. The medical report of the victim does not corroborate the manner of commission of offence. No mobile phone has been recovered by the Investigating Agency, nor any alleged video clip has been recovered or retrieved from any such mobile phone. The accused/ appellant is languishing in jail since 26.03.2022 and he has no previous criminal history.

15. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also in absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and considering the fact that there is no allegation of rape against the present appellant and only allegation made against him is of making video of the occurrence when other two accused were committing rape upon the prosecutrix, further two other named accused against whom prosecutrix have levelled allegation of rape committed upon her by them have already been enlarged on bail by two different coordinate Benches of this Court and the case of appellant is on the better footing than that of the aforesaid two accused, further medical report of the victim does not corroborate the manner of commission of offence, neither mobile phone has been recovered by the Investigating Agency, nor any alleged video clip has been recovered or retrieved from any such mobile phone, further considering the fact that appellant is in jail since 26.03.2022 and has now by done a substantial period of detention and further considering the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh Vs. State of UP and another, reported in (2018) 3 SCC 22, this Court is of the view that the learned court below has failed to appreciate the material available on record, both the impugned orders passed by the trial court are liable to be set aside.

16. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. Consequently, the orders 05.05.2022 and 05.07.2022 passed by the court of learned Special Judge (S.C./S.T. Act), Barabanki in Bail Application No. 1008 of 2022 (Dhirendra vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Sections 376-D, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(V) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67-A of I.T. (Amendment) Act and Bail Application No. 1639 of 2022 (Dhirendra Vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Section 66-E of I.T. (Amendment) Act, relating to Police Station- Jaidpur, District- Barabanki, are hereby reversed and set aside.

17. Let the appellant, Dhirendra, be enlarged on bail in Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Sections 376-D, 506 I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(V) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67-A of I.T. (Amendment) Act and Case Crime No. 86 of 2022, under Section 66-E of I.T. (Amendment) Act, relating to Police Station- Jaidpur, District- Barabanki with the following conditions:-

(i) The appellant shall furnish a personal bond with two sureties each of like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

(ii) The appellant shall appear and strictly comply following terms of bond executed under section 437 sub section 3 of Chapter- 33 of Cr.P.C.:-

(a) The appellant shall attend in accordance with the conditions of the bond executed under this Chapter.

(b) The appellant shall not commit an offence similar to the offence of which he is accused, or suspected, of the commission of which he is suspected, and

(c) The appellant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer or tamper with the evidence.

(iii) The appellant shall cooperate with investigation /trial.

(iv) The appellant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(v) The appellant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vi) In case, the appellant misuses the liberty of bail during trial, in order to secure his presence, proclamation under section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the appellant fails to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vii) The appellant shall remain present, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the appellant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

18. The trial court is also directed to expedite the trial of the aforesaid case, within a period of one year from today, by following the provisions of Section 309 Cr.P.C., strictly without granting any unnecessary adjournments to the parties, in case there is no other legal impediment.

Vashu Deo Mishra

Counsel for the Respondents:

G.A., Bhupendra Nath Tripathi

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 354, 323, 504, 506, 376, 313, 328 & 392 - Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 - Section 3(2)(V) - Appeal against rejection of bail - Allegation against appellant that by playing fraud and on false promise of marriage, committed rape - Appellant contended that prosecutrix was major and with her consent, physical relation was made by appellant. (Para 2, 3)

Held, appellant committed rape several times with prosecutrix either giving some in toxic material or on some false promise of marriage, even as per version of F.I.R, prosecutrix was pregnant and forcefully aborted on instance of appellant - Prosecutrix marriage was solemnized with some other person - Appellant did not leave her free and always threatened her to give naked photographs and video to her husband and to her in-laws and after marriage of prosecutrix, he made physical relation forcefully several times - She requested appellant to return all photographs, video graphs and pen drive but refused by accused - Appellant committed heinous crime and he is not entitled to get any relief. (Para 9, 10)

List of Cases cited:

1. Dr. Dhruvaram Murlidhar Sonar Vs The St. of Mah., (2019) 18 SCC 191
2. Anurag Soni Vs St. of Chhattisgarh, (2019) 13 SCC 1: AIR 2019 SC 1857

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vashu Deo Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant, Sri Bhupendra Nath Tripathi, learned counsel for the complainant, Ms. Shikha Sinha, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. The present Criminal Appeal under Section 14-A (2) of Scheduled Castes & Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 has been preferred against the impugned order dated 05.09.2022 passed by the learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Lucknow in Bail Application No. 6984 of 2022 (CNR No. UPLKO10119882022), Case Crime No. 0537 of 2022, under Sections 354, 323, 504, 506, 376, 313, 328, 392 IPC and Sections 3(2)(v) of SC/ST Act, Police Station Chinhat, District Lucknow, whereby the bail application of the appellant has been rejected.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the appellant is innocent and has falsely been implicated in the present case. No such incident took place, as alleged by the prosecutrix in the First Information Report. It is a case of false promise of marriage and the parties are consenting. Thus, the allegation of rape is false, even though, no ingredient of Section 3(2)(v) of SC/ST Act is attracted against the applicant. The prosecutrix is major and with her consent, the physical relation was made by the appellant. Thus, the entire allegation is false and fabricated. Therefore, the present appeal be allowed and the appellant be released on bail.

4. Per contra, Sri Bhupendra Nath Tripathi, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 as well as Ms. Shikha Sinha, learned AGA for the State-opposite party no. 1 opposed the prayer for bail and submitted that prima facie, from the plain reading of the First Information Report, the cognizable offence is made out. In this case, chargesheet has already been submitted against the appellant. The prosecutrix has made balled allegation of committing rape several times by the appellant after giving some intoxic material and also demanding money from the prosecutrix. Even though, she was pregnant and on the pressure created by the appellant, abortion was made. As per the version of the FIR, the marriage of the prosecutrix was also solemnized with some other person. There also the appellant put pressure and threatened her to send the naked photographs and video to her husband which he has obtained at the time of first physical relation with the prosecutrix forcefully. The prosecutrix made a request to return all the alleged videographs and photographs, even though the pen drive, but the appellant refused and threatened her for dire consequences. Thus, the present appeal be rejected and the appellant is not entitled to get any relief by this Court.

5. In support of his argument, Sri Bhupendra Nath Tripathi, learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 has placed reliance on the judgment rendered in the case of Dr. Dhruvaram Murlidhar Sonar: (2019) 18 SCC 191, wherein Hon'ble the Apex Court has observed that there is a clear distinction between rape and consensual sex and, in such cases, it must be very carefully examined whether the complainant had actually wanted to marry the victim or had mala fide motives and had made a false promise to this effect only to satisfy his lust, as the later falls within the ambit of cheating or deception. The Supreme Court after referring to various decisions has observed as follows:

"Thus, there is a clear distinction between rape and consensual sex. The court, in such cases, must very carefully examine whether the complainant had actually wanted to marry the victim or had mala fide motives and had made a false promise to this effect only to satisfy his lust, as the later falls within the ambit of cheating or deception. There is also a distinction between mere breach of a promise and not fulfilling a false promise. If the accused has not made the promise with the sole intention to seduce the prosecutrix to indulge in sexual acts, such an act would not amount to rape. There may be a case where the prosecutrix agrees to have sexual intercourse on account of her love and passion for the accused and not solely on account of the misconception created by accused, or where an accused, on account of circumstances which he could not have foreseen or which were beyond his control, was unable to marry her despite having every intention to do. Such cases must be treated differently. If the complainant had any mala fide intention and if he had clandestine motives, it is a clear case of rape. The acknowledged consensual physical relationship between the parties would not constitute an offence under section 376 of the IPC."

6. It has been settled view that the question whether consent given by the prosecutrix to sexual intercourse is voluntary or whether it is given under "misconception of fact" depends on the facts of each case. While considering the question of consent, the Court must consider the evidence before it and the surrounding circumstances before reaching a conclusion. Evidence adduced by the prosecution has to be weighed keeping in mind that the burden is on the prosecution to prove each and every ingredient of the offence. Prosecution must lead positive evidence to give rise to inference beyond reasonable doubt that accused had no intention to marry prosecutrix at all from inception and that promise made was false to his knowledge.

12. Learned counsel for the complainant further submits that in Anurag Soni v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2019) 13 SCC 1: AIR 2019 SC 1857, the accused never intended to marry the prosecutrix; he gave false promises/promise to the prosecutrix to marry her and on such false promise he had physical relationship with the prosecutrix; the prosecutrix initially resisted, however, gave the consent relying upon the false promise of the accused that he will marry her and, therefore, her consent can be said to be a consent on misconception of fact. The prosecutrix, in the present case, was an educated girl studying in B. Pharmacy. Therefore, it is not believable that despite having knowledge that that appellant's marriage is fixed with another lady, she and her family members would continue to pressurize the accused to marry and the prosecutrix will give the consent for physical relation. Even considering Section 114A of the Evidence Act which has been inserted subsequently, there is a presumption and the court shall presume that she gave the consent for the physical relationship with the accused relying upon the promise by the accused that he will marry her. From the very inception, the promise given by the accused to marry the prosecutrix was a false promise and from the very beginning there was no intention of the accused to marry the prosecutrix as his marriage with Priyanka Soni was already fixed long back and, despite the same, he continued to give promise/false promise and alluded the prosecutrix to give her consent for the physical relationship. The Supreme Court after having discussed the law on the point held as follows:

"The sum and substance of the aforesaid decisions would be that if it is established and proved that from the inception the accused who gave the promise to the prosecutrix to marry, did not have any intention to marry and the prosecutrix gave the consent for sexual intercourse on such an assurance by the accused that he would marry her; such a consent can be said to be a consent obtained on misconception of fact as per Section 90 of the IPC and, in such a case, such a consent would not excuse the offender and such an offender can be said to have committed the rape as defined under Section 375 of the IPC and can be convicted for the offence under Section 376 of the the IPC."

7. Thus, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 submits that in view of the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, it is not a case of consent. Thus, it amount to rape and in view of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court, the present appeal be rejected.

8. After considering the arguments, as advanced by learned counsel for the parties and after perusal of record, this Court finds that the appellant committed rape several times with the prosecutrix either giving some intoxic material or on some false promise of marriage, even though as per the version of the First Information Report, the prosecutrix was pregnant and was forcefully aborted on the instance of the present appellant. Anyhow, the prosecutrix marriage was solemnized with some other person. There also the appellant did not leave her free and always threatened her to give the naked photographs and video to her husband and to her in-laws and tried to make physical relation forcefully several times, after the marriage of the prosecutrix also, that made the entire life of the prosecutrix as hell.

Thus, she has no option but she requested the appellant to return all the photographs, videographs and pen drive but the appellant refused for the same.

9. Thus, in the opinion of the Court, the appellant has committed a heinous crime and he is not entitled to get any relief by this Court, as was also observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Anurag Soni (supra) and also in case of Dr. Dhruvaram Murlidhar Sonar (supra) that if the rape is committed by playing the fraud and on false promise of marriage, then the appellant is not entitled to get any relief. Thus, in view of the opinion of this Court, the impugned order of the court below dated 05.09.2022 is justified. No interference is required by this Court. The appeal is liable to be dismissed.

10. Accordingly, the appeal filed by the appellant is dismissed.

11. File is consigned to record.

2. The present criminal appeal under Section 14-A (2) Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act has been preferred against the impugned order dated 02.09.2022 passed by the court of learned Special Judge (S.C./S.T. Act), Sultanpur in Bail Application No. 2800/2022 : Mohan Yadav Vs. State of U.P., arising out of Case Crime No. 262/2022, under Sections 342, 376, 504, 506 I.P.C. and under Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Akhand Nagar, District Sultanpur, whereby the bail application of the appellant has been rejected.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the appellant is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case. No such incident took place, as alleged by the prosecutrix in the F.I.R.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that as per prosecution version the prosecutrix and appellant were in relation with for the last six months and they loved each other and were ready to solemnize marriage. He further submits that the F.I.R. was lodged against the appellant and one named person and one unknown person, but after investigation names of Rajpati Yadav and another person were dropped and the charge sheet was filed against the appellant only. The prosecutrix in the F.I.R. admitted this fact that she was in relation with the appellant for the last six months and the appellant has promised for marriage and it was a false promise of marriage and forcefully physical relation was made. The prosecutrix in F.I.R. has admitted her age to be 20 years and thus she is major.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the prosecuterix was major and she was a consenting party and knew the consequences very well that the promise of marriage can be broken at any stage by the appellant but in spite of knowing this fact she continued to remain in relation with the appellant and as per averment of prosecutrix, the appellant made physical relation with the prosecutrix, thus the story appears to be false and concocted and the present F.I.R. has been lodged under pressure created by the family members of the prosecutrix.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the prosecutrix in her statement recorded under Section 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. repeated the same version of the F.I.R. but did not dispute this fact that she was in relation with the appellant for the last six months and the appellant made promise of marriage.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that the allegation of rape as levelled in the F.I.R. as well as in the statements of the victim recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. also got demolished after perusal of medical report of the victim, wherein concerned doctor has opined that there is no external or internal injury found on the private parts of the victim, nor the doctor has given any definite opinion regarding sexual assault and urine pregnancy test came negative. As per medical report the age of the prosecutrix is around 20 years.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that no such promise was ever made and even though if any promise is made with the prosecutrix, she was major and was knowing the consequences very well. In support of his arguments, learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Pramod Suryabhan Pawar vs. State of Maharashtra, (2019) 9 SCC 608 and placed reliance upon paras 17 and 21, which are reproduced hereunder:-

"17. In Uday v State of Karnataka the complainant was a college going student when the accused promised to marry her. In the complainants statement, she admitted that she was aware that there would be significant opposition from both the complainants and accuseds families to the proposed marriage. She engaged in sexual intercourse with the accused but nonetheless kept the relationship secret from her family. The court observed that in these circumstances the accuseds promise to marry the complainant was not of immediate relevance to the complainants decision to engage in sexual intercourse with the accused, which was motivated by other factors: [(2003) 4 SCC 46].

25. There is yet another difficulty which faces the prosecution in this case. In a case of this nature two conditions must be fulfilled for the application of Section 90 IPC. Firstly, it must be shown that the consent was given under a misconception of fact. Secondly, it must be proved that the person who obtained the consent knew, or had reason to believe that the consent was given in consequence of such misconception. We have serious doubts that the promise to marry induced the prosecutrix to consent to having sexual intercourse with the appellant. She knew, as we have observed earlier, that her marriage with the appellant was difficult on account of caste considerations. The proposal was bound to meet with stiff opposition from members of both families. There was therefore a distinct possibility, of which she was clearly conscious, that the marriage may not take place at all despite the promise of the appellant. The question still remains whether even if it were so, the appellant knew, or had reason to believe, that the prosecutrix had consented to having sexual intercourse with him only as a consequence of her belief, based on his promise, that they will get married in due course. There is hardly any evidence to prove this fact. On the contrary, the circumstances of the case tend to support the conclusion that the appellant had reason to believe that the consent given by the prosecutrix was the result of their deep love for each other. It is not disputed that they were deeply in love. They met often, and it does appear that the prosecutrix permitted him liberties which, if at all, are permitted only to a person with whom one is in deep love. It is also not without significance that the prosecutrix stealthily went out with the appellant to a lonely place at 12 o'clock in the night. It usually happens in such cases, when two young persons are madly in love, that they promise to each other several times that come what may, they will get married (Emphasis supplied).

21. The allegations in the FIR do not on their face indicate that the promise by the appellant was false, or that the complainant engaged in sexual relations on the basis of this promise. There is no allegation in the FIR that when the appellant promised to marry the complainant, it was done in bad faith or with the intention to deceive her. The appellants failure in 2016 to fulfil his promise made in 2008 cannot be construed to mean the promise itself was false. The allegations in the FIR indicate that the complainant was aware that there existed obstacles to marrying the appellant since 2008, and that she and the appellant continued to engage in sexual relations long after their getting married had become a disputed matter. Even thereafter, the complainant travelled to visit and reside with the appellant at his postings and allowed him to spend his weekends at her residence. The allegations in the FIR belie the case that she was deceived by the appellants promise of marriage. Therefore, even if the facts set out in the complainants statements are accepted in totality, no offence under Section 375 of the IPC has occurred."

Thus, learned counsel for the appellant submits that in view of the judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, the promise of marriage made by the appellant to the prosecutrix is in good faith as per the case set up by the prosecutrix and it does not amount to rape as there is a consent of the prosecutrix. From the perusal of the F.I.R. and the statements of prosecutrix recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. it appears that both the parties are consenting party and it cannot be said that the physical relation was made forcefully, thus the appellant has been implicated with malicious intention.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant has drawn attention of this Court towards the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Hitesh Verma Vs. The State of Uttarakhand reported in (2020) 10 SCC, wherein in para 15 relying on the judgment passed in Swaran Singh and others Vs. State (2008) 8SCC 435 has held as under:

"as per the F.I.R., the allegations of abusing the informant were within the four walls of her building. It is not the case of the informant that there was any member of the public (nor merely relatives or friends) at the time of the incident in the house. Therefore, the basic ingredient that the words were uttered in any place within public view is not made out. In the list of witnesses appended to the charge-sheet, certain witnesses are named but it could not be said that those were the persons present within the four walls of the building. The offence is alleged to have taken place within the four walls of the building. Therefore, in view of the judgment of this Court in Swaran Singh, it cannot be said to be a place within public view as none was said of be present within the four walls of the building as per the FIR and/or charge-sheet."

10. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that from the averments made in the F.I.R. and also from perusal of the statement no ingredients under Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act is attracted against the appellant, as the incident, as per prosecutrix happens in a room and not at a public place or public view.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that accused/appellant is languishing in jail since 03.08.2022, who has no previous criminal history, and in case the appellant is enlarged on bail, he shall not misuse the liberty of bail and he shall also fully cooperate with the trial. He has further submitted that there is no possibility of the appellant to intimidate or pressurize the witnesses or any other persons acquainted with the facts of the present case.

12. For the aforesaid reasons, learned counsel for the appellant submits that the instant criminal appeal deserves to be allowed and the order dated 02.09.2022 passed by the court of learned Special Judge (S.C./S.T. Act), Sultanpur in Bail Application No. 2800/2022 : Mohan Yadav Vs. State of U.P., arising out of Case Crime No. 262/2022, under Sections 342, 376, 504, 506 I.P.C. and under Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Akhand Nagar, District Sultanpur deserves to be set aside and consequently, the accused/appellant deserves to be enlarged on bail during pendency of the trial.

13. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the appellant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the appellant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required and is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon him. It has also been pointed out that the accused is not having any criminal history and he is in jail since 03.08.2022 and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

14. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the prayer by submitting that there is active participation of accused/appellant in the crime. Therefore, the accused/appellant is not entitled to be enlarged on bail and the instant criminal appeal deserves to be dismissed. However, he has been unable to dispute the other factual submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the accused/appellant.

15. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also in absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and considering that the prosecutrix in the F.I.R. admitted this fact that she was in relation with the appellant for the last six months and has admitted her age to be 20 years and thus she is major, the allegation of rape as levelled in the F.I.R. as well as in the statements of the victim recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. also got demolished after perusal of medical report of the victim, wherein concerned doctor has opined that there is no external or internal injury found on the private parts of the victim, nor the doctor has given any definite opinion regarding sexual assault and urine pregnancy test came negative, From the perusal of the F.I.R. and the statements of prosecutrix recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. it appears that both the parties are consenting party and it cannot be said that the physical relation was made forcefully and further considering the fact that appellant is in jail since 03.08.2022 and has now by done a substantial period of detention and further considering the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dataram Singh Vs. State of UP and another, reported in (2018) 3 SCC 22, Pramod Suryabhan

Pawar vs. State of Maharashtra, (2019) 9 SCC 608, Hitesh Verma Vs. The State of Uttarakhand reported in (2020) 10 SCC, this Court is of the view that the learned court below has failed to appreciate the material available on record, both the impugned orders passed by the trial court are liable to be set aside.

16. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. Consequently, the order dated 02.09.2022 passed by the court of learned Special Judge (S.C./S.T. Act), Sultanpur in Bail Application No. 2800/2022 : Mohan Yadav Vs. State of U.P., arising out of Case Crime No. 262/2022, under Sections 342, 376, 504, 506 I.P.C. and under Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Akhand Nagar, District Sultanpur is hereby reversed and set aside.

17. Let the appellant, Mohan Yadav, be enlarged on bail in Case Crime No. 262/2022, under Sections 342, 376, 504, 506 I.P.C. and under Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Akhand Nagar, District Sultanpur with the following conditions:-

(i) The appellant shall furnish a personal bond with two sureties each of like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

(ii) The appellant shall appear and strictly comply following terms of bond executed under section 437 sub section 3 of Chapter- 33 of Cr.P.C.:-

(a) The appellant shall attend in accordance with the conditions of the bond executed under this Chapter.

(b) The appellant shall not commit an offence similar to the offence of which he is accused, or suspected, of the commission of which he is suspected, and

(c) The appellant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer or tamper with the evidence.

(iii) The appellant shall cooperate with investigation /trial.

(iv) The appellant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(v) The appellant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vi) In case, the appellant misuses the liberty of bail during trial, in order to secure his presence, proclamation under section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the appellant fails to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vii) The appellant shall remain present, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the appellant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

18. The trial court is also directed to expedite the trial of the aforesaid case, within a period of one year from today, by following the provisions of Section 309 Cr.P.C., strictly without granting any unnecessary adjournments to the parties, in case there is no other legal impediment.

(A) Criminal Law - Family Court Act, 1984 - Section 19(4) - Revision, The Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 - Section 13 - Divorce , The Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - section 125 - Order for maintenance of wives, children and parents, Domestic Violence Act, 2005 - Section 12 - Dowry prohibition Act, 1961 - Section 3/4 , Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 498-A, 323, 504 - as per Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, the second marriage is void and such marriages are illegal as per the provisions of the Act, but still they are not immoral and financially dependent women cannot be denied maintenance on this ground - interpretation of expression wife - broad and expansive interpretation should be give to the term wife - include even those cases where a man and woman are living for long period of time as husband wife. (Para - 10)

Maintenance application 15-b moved by applicant/revisionist - rejected by Family Court - opposite party no.2 legally wedded wife - Husband alive - their marriage not yet dissolved by any court - moved application No.22-B - claim - revisionist solemnized marriage with her - hiding facts of his first marriage and two sons - evidence presented indicates - opposite party no.2 continues to live with revisionist as his wife - legality of her divorce from her first husband and her marriage to the current revisionist to be proven during the trial. (Para - 2,6,9)

HELD:- Maintenance application by opposite party no.2 should not be thrown out at the threshold without considering the merit of the case, as it is a matter of evidence. Order of Family Court passed on the application No.15-B moved by revisionist, suffers with no illegality, infirmity or irregularity. (Para - 11)

Revision dismissed. (E-7)

List of Cases cited:

1. Rameshchandra Rampratapji Daga Vs Rameshwari Rameshchandra Daga

2. Chanmuniya Vs Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Renu Agarwal, J.)

1. Heard Shri Ashish Chaturvedi & Shri Desh Deepak Singh, learned counsel for the revisionist, Shri Raj Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and learned A.G.A for the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal revision under section 19(4) of Family Court Act, 1984 has been filed against the order dated 22.09.2022 passed by Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Faizabad, in Criminal Misc. Case No.388 of 2016 (Priyanka Achari Vs. Ram Prakash Achari), by which the application No.15-B moved by the revisionist in the trial court concerned, challenging the maintainability of the petition filed by the respondent no.2, claiming maintenance has been, rejected.

3. It is submitted by learned counsel for the revisionist that as per settled proposition of law of section 125 Cr.P.C. only the legally wedded wife can claim the maintenance from her husband. Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Faizabad, considered the aadhar card of the opposite party no.2 as only basis to conclude that the opposite party no.2 is prima-facie wife of the revisionist. The opposite party no.2 is the legally wedded wife of one Lavkush Shukla and the decree of divorce has not been taken as per procedure under section 13 of Hindu Marriage Act. The opposite party no.2 herself alleged to be the second wife of revisionist and no proof of dissolution of her first marriage is ever produced in the concerned court below. Hence the order passed by the court below is perverse and against evidence on record, therefore, it is liable to be set-aside.

4. Per contra learned counsel for opposite party no.2 submitted that opposite party no.2 is the legally wedded wife of revisionist, as the marriage of the revisionist and opposite party no.2 was solemnized on 08.06.2010 with their consent as per Hindu Rites and Rituals in the presence of both the families and their relatives etc. and at the time of marriage the father of opposite party no.2 has given gifts according to his capacity. It is further submitted that revisionist has not disclosed the facts that Leelawati Pandey, daughter of Sitaram Pandey was the first wife of the revisionist and after the death of his first wife on 21.06.2009 the revisionist solemnized the marriage with opposite party no.2 on 08.06.2010. The opposite party no.2 was firstly married with Lavkush Shukla on 10.05.2005 and due to some dispute both of them decided to take divorce on the ground of mutual consent and a petition for dissolution of marriage was moved by both the parties in the court of Judge Family Court, Court No.3, Ahmedabad Gujarat. Thereafter, on 15.01.2007 the application for execution of petition for dissolution of marriage was moved by both the parties and their marriage was got dissolved vide order dated 15.01.2007. Thereafter, the revisionist solemnized the marriage with opposite party no.2. In aadhar card, electoral card, pass book of bank etc., the name of revisionist is entered as husband of opposite party no.2 and copies thereof are filed with counter affidavit. The revisionist and his family members physically harassed and beaten the opposite party no.2 on 02.08.2011 at about 5.00 P.M. and detained her in a room. In the night she reached to the house of her parents and narrated the entire story to her family members. Thereafter, a complaint case bearing No.1232 of 2011, under section 12 of Domestic Violence Act was filed at Police Station Kotwali, District Faizabad. Objections were filed by the brother of revisionist Ved Prakash Achari and Deepak Achari and the A.C.J.M.-3 Ayodhya passed the order dated 12.04.2017 in favour of opposite party no.2. Brothers of revisionist namely Ved Prakash Achari and Deepak Achari filed a Criminal Revision, bearing No.41 of 2017 in the court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.9, Faizabad, which was rejected on merits vide order dated 29.09.2017. Thereafter, the opposite party no.2 has filed FIR bearing Case Crime No.1224 of 2011, under sections 498-A, 323, 504, IPC, and section 3/4 D.P. Act. Police Station Kotwali, District Faizabad, in which charge sheet has been filed against the revisionist and others. Being second legally wedded wife of the revisionist the present application under section 125 Cr.P.C. was moved for maintenance disclosing all the facts regarding dissolution of first marriage, which was considered by the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Faizabad and appropriate order was passed on 22.09.2022. It is further submitted by learned counsel for opposite party no.2 that there is no illegality in the order passed by the learned Magistrate, hence the revisionist is liable to be dismissed.

5. I have heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

6. Application 15-B is moved by the applicant/revisionist in the court concerned contention that Priyanka Achari (opposite party no.2) is the legally wedded wife of Lavkush Shukla. Lavkush Shukla is alive and their marriage is not yet dissolved by any court. The wife of revisionist Leelawati Achari was died in the year 2009, leaving two children Abhinav Achari and Ayushi Achari. Learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Faizabad, considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the revisionist as well as the counsel for opposite party no.2. On the contrary the opposite party no.2 moved application No.22-B in the trial court stating that revisionist solemnized marriage with her hiding the facts of his first marriage and two son and she is living with the revisionist as his legally wedded wife.

7. Learned trial court relying upon the aadhar card, voter card and the pass book of SBI Bank, wherein the name of revisionist is mentioned as husband of opposite party no.2, hold that the opposite party no.2 is apparently wife of the revisionist. It is also mentioned in the impugned judgment that aadhar card of opposite party no.2, which was got prepared has been rejected by Regional Office, Lucknow. Voter card (Annexure No.2) reveals that Ram Prakash Achari is mentioned as the name of the husband of opposite party no.2 and voter card itself was issued on 14.10.2010. In aadhar card also the name of present revisionist is mentioned as husband of opposite party no.2. However, it is submitted by learned counsel for the revisionist that aadhar card of opposite party no.2 has been cancelled on the application moved on behalf of the revisionist. Annexure no.1 is the order passed by the Family Court No.3, Ahmedabad Gujarat dated 15.01.2007, by which the concerned court has dismissed the case on the basis of agreement of divorce. Learned counsel for the revisionist submitted that this paper is not decree of divorce. This paper does not disclosed which of the case is dismissed. The agreement of divorce is not annexed with the counter affidavit. However, it transpires from annexure no.3, which is the order passed by A.C.J.M.-3, Faizabad dated 12.04.2017 that Case No.1224 of 2011 was rejected on the basis of agreement on non judicial stamp of Rs.100/-. It is true that decree of divorce is not on record, but revisionist has not denied that opposite party no.2 was not living with him. The only objection is that opposite party no.2 did not obtained valid decree of divorce from her first husband, therefore, there was no possibility of legal marriage with present revisionist.

8. Opposite party no.2 filed annexure no.2 with supplementary counter affidavit, which is statement of Deepak Achari son of Ram Krishna Achari (real brother of revisionist), in which he is stated on oath that "रामप्रकाश आचारी मेरा सगा भाई है। परन्तु मैं तथा मेरी पत्नी कृष्णा माँ विमला व भाई वेद प्रकाश अलग रहते हैं। यदि रामप्रकाश ने दिनांक 08-06-10 को हिन्दू रीति के मुताबिक प्रियंका आचारी से शादी किया था दोनों के बीच किसी मामले को लेकर मतभेद हो गया जिस कारण प्रियंका आचारी को भाई रामप्रकाश ने छोड़ दिया है। रामप्रकाश हम लोगों से अलग रहता है। जिस कारण प्रियंका द्वारा लिखाया गया एफ.आई.आर. में हम लोगों को झूठा नामित कर दिया गया है। इस प्रकार जुर्म से इनकार करना बताया"। Annexure no.4 to the supplementary counter affidavit of opposite party no.2 is the pass book of state bank, in which Priyanka Achari is shown as the wife of Ram Prakash Achari. Few photographs are also annexed as annexure no.4 of supplementary counter affidavit.

9. The complete evidence produced, goes to show that opposite party no.2 continue to live with the revisionist as his wife. The legality divorce of opposite party no.2 with her first husband and marriage with present revisionist is the matter of evidence to be produced at the time of trial. At this stage it cannot be held that there is no relationship between the parties. Aadhar card of opposite party no.2 which is cancelled on the application of revisionist was issued in the year 2010 and revisionist never tried to delete his name as husband of opposite party no.2 in the aadhar card, voter card, bank passbook of SBI, till present dispute arise between the parties.

10. In the case of “Rameshchandra Rampratapi Daga Vs. Rameshwari Rameshchandra Daga” the apex court held that as per Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, the second marriage is void and such marriages are illegal as per the provisions of the Act, but still they are not immoral and financially dependent women cannot be denied maintenance on this ground. In Chanmuniya Vs. Virendra Kumar Singh Kushwaha, the Apex Court interpreted the meaning of expression wife and states that broad and expansive interpretation should be give to the term wife which would include even those cases where a man and woman are living for long period of time as husband wife.

11. In the present scenario when the revisionist was married to one Leelawati who expired in the year 2009 and opposite party no.2 who filed an agreement before the court of law regarding dissolution of marriage and after filing the contract of dissolution of marriage in the court of law she solemnized marriage with the present revisionist. Now it is the matter of evidence, whether opposite party no.2 is entitled for maintenance or not. Therefore, at the very outset it cannot be said that the maintenance application moved by opposite party no.2 should be thrown out at the very threshold, without going into merit of the case. Learned trial court discussed the above mentioned facts in the impugned order. Hence the order of Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Faizabad, passed on the application No.15-B moved by revisionist, suffers with no illegality, infirmity or irregularity, hence the revision has no merit and is liable to be dismissed.

12. Accordingly, the present revision is dismissed.

2. Revisionists have filed the present revision challenging therein the judgement and order dated 9.03.2007 passed by First Additional Civil Judge, Junior Division/Judicial Magistrate, Gonda in Case No. 622/06/94 [State Vs. Atma Singh (deceased) and Others] whereby revisionists have been convicted for offences punishable under Sections 323, 325 and 504 I.P.C. Revisionists have also challenged the judgement and order dated 19.07.2007 passed by Additional Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court No.-4, Gonda in Criminal Appeal No. 14 of 2007 whereby the aforementioned conviction of the revisionists under Sections 323, 325 and 504 I.P.C. has been converted into conviction under Sections 323/34 and 325/34 I.P.C.

3. Brief facts of the case are that a criminal case was registered as N.C.R. No. 147 of 1992 under Sections 323 and 504 I.P.C. in Police Station Tarabganj, District Gonda. Later on Section 325 I.P.C. was added and after investigation, police submitted charge-sheet against the accused before the competent court.

4. Charges were framed against accused i.e. Atma, Saliq, Amar Bahadur and Raj Bahadur under Sections 323/34, 325/34 and 504 I.P.C. All the accused stated before Court that they are not guilty of the charges levelled against them and demanded for trial.

5. During trial, testimony of P.W.-1, Smt. Pushpa, P.W.-2, Heera Devi, P.W.-3, Dr. S.C. Vishwas, P.W.-4, Dr. G.N. Prasad and P.W.-5, Ram Lakhan Tiwari (police personnel) was recorded. Statements of accused were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and accused also produced D.W.-1, Braj Bahadur Singh and his testimony was also recorded.

6. P.W.-1, Smt. Pushpa deposed that on 3.7.1992 at about 5:00 p.m., she was inside her house in village, Brahdsthan Bouriha, Police Station Tarabganj, District Gonda. She heard a noise of her mother and, thereafter she reached on the spot outside her house and found that all the accused were beating her mother and when she tried to save her, all the accused started beating P.W.-1. P.W.-1 also deposed that 'sahan' of her house is on eastern side and house of the accused is on northern side of her house. Accused had put 'jhakhra' on the 'sahan' land and when her mother went to remove the said 'jhakhra', all the accused beaten her which resulted in injuries to her mother and when she tried to save her mother, they also beaten her and she also suffered injuries.

7. P.W.-2, Heera Devi deposed that about three and half years ago, accused put 'jhakhra' on the abadi land in front of her house with an intention to grab the said land and when she went to remove that 'jhakhra', accused started beating her with 'lathi-danda' and when her daughter, Pushpa came to save her then accused also beaten her and used abusive language. P.W.-2, Heera Devi in her cross-examination admitted that there was a land dispute between the accused and husband of the petitioner. P.W.-2 Heera Devi in her cross-examination also stated that she received six blows of lathi, fists and kicks. She further stated that her hand got fractured due to blow of lathi given by accused, Raj Bahadur.

8. Besides the testimony of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2, testimonies of other prosecution witnesses were also recorded. Accused in their defense produced D.W.-1, Braj Bahadur Singh and his testimony was also recorded.

9. Learned First Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division)/Judicial Magistrate, Gonda considered the evidence recorded during trial and ultimately found that accused are guilty of offences punishable under Sections 323, 325, 504 I.P.C. and thereby vide judgement and order dated 9.03.2007 convicted them under Sections 323, 325, 504 I.P.C.

10. During the trial, since accused Atma Singh and Raj Bahadur died, therefore, trial stood abated in respect of the said two accused.

11. Trial court sentenced Saliq Ram Singh and Amar Bahadur Singh with three years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each under Section 325 I.P.C., one year rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each under Section 323 I.P.C. and rigorous imprisonment of two years and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each under Section 504 I.P.C. Learned trial court further provided that in case of default in deposit of fine, accused will have to undergo six months' imprisonment each and all the sentences will run simultaneously.

12. Learned trial court refused to give benefit of Section 4 of The Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 to both the accused on the ground that they have beaten Smt. Heera Devi and her daughter, Pushpa and have also fractured the bone of Smt. Heera Devi.

13. From perusal of the testimony of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 and the judgement and order dated 9.03.2007, it appears that neither the prosecution led any evidence in respect of common intention of the accused regarding criminal act nor the trial court could draw inference from the circumstances of the case regarding common intention of all the accused for committing the crime in question, as such, trial court instead of convicting accused under Sections 323/34, 325/34 and 504 I.P.C., convicted the accused for offences punishable under Sections 323, 325 and 504 I.P.C.

14. The aforesaid judgement and order dated 9.03.2007 passed by First Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division)/Judicial Magistrate, Gonda in Case No. 622/06/94 was challenged by Saliq Singh and Amar Bahadur Singh by filing an Appeal in the Court of Additional Sessions Judge/ Fast Track Court No. 4, Gonda and the said appeal was registered as Criminal Appeal No. 14 of 2007.

15. Learned Appellate Court considered that the trial court framed charges against the appellants under Section 323/34, 325/34 and 504 I.P.C. and further considered the testimony of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 recorded during the trial. Learned appellate court passed final order in aforementioned Criminal Appeal No. 14 of 2007 on 19.07.2007.

16. Learned Appellate Court after considering the testimony of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 recorded during trial, came to conclusion that since all the accused have beaten Smt. Heera Devi and her daughter, Pushpa, therefore, there was common intention of all the accused to commit the crime in question, as such, appellants are liable to be convicted for offences punishable under Sections 323/34 and 325/34 I.P.C. Learned appellate court in its judgement and order dated 19.07.2007 has further recorded a finding that there was a clerical error in judgement and order dated 9.03.2007 passed by the trial court for the reason that the trial court framed charges under Section 323/34 and 325/34 and 504 I.P.C. and keeping in view the circumstances of the case, conviction could not have been done under Sections 323/34, 325/34 and 504 I.P.C. and, therefore, learned Appellate Court vide judgement and order dated 19.07.2007 rectified the said clerical error and convicted the appellants under Sections 323/34 and 325/34 I.P.C. and also maintained the sentence given by the trial court under the aforesaid sections.

17. So far as conviction under Section 504 I.P.C. was concerned, learned Appellate Court on appraisal of the evidence found that the offence punishable under Section 504 I.P.C. is not made out against the appellants, as such, conviction under the said section by the trial court has been set-aside.

18. In the aforesaid circumstances, revisionists have filed the present revision.

19. Learned counsel for the revisionists has submitted that the learned Appellate Court without there being any material on record, could not have recorded a finding that non mentioning of Section 34 I.P.C. along with Sections 323 and 325 I.P.C. in the conviction order dated 09.03.2007 passed by learned trial court, is a clerical error. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionists has vehemently argued that though charges were framed against the accused under Sections 323/34, 325/34 and 504 I.P.C. but since prosecution did not lead evidence to prove common intention of all the accused for commission of crime in question, as such, learned trial court has convicted the accused only under Sections 323, 325 and 504 I.P.C.

20. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionists has vehemently argued that neither P.W.-1 nor P.W.-2 in their testimony have said that there was any common intention of all the accused to commit the crime in question and further no evidence has been led by the prosecution that there was any kind of pre-meeting of minds of all the accused for commission of the crime, therefore, in absence of any evidence led by the prosecution, there was no occasion for the trial court to convict the accused under Sections 323/34 and 325/34 I.P.C., as such, Appellate Court, on presumption that since all the four accused beaten Heera Devi and her daughter, Pushpa, therefore, necessarily there was common intention of all the accused to commit the crime in question, could not have convicted the revisionists under Sections 323/34 and 325/34 I.P.C.

21. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionists has also vehemently argued that P.W.-2 in her testimony has categorically stated that her hand was fractured due to lathi blow given by accused, Raj Bahadur and, therefore, unless there was any evidence led by the prosecution in respect of the common intention and pre-meeting of minds of all accused for committing the crime in question, there could not have been any occasion for the Appellate Court to convict the revisionists under Sections 323/34 and 325/34 I.P.C.

22. I have considered submissions advanced by learned counsel for the revisionists, learned A.G.A. for the State and have also perused the record of the Trial Court as well as record of the Appellate Court.

23. For arriving at a conclusion, it is necessary for this Court to have a look over Section 34 I.P.C. which is extracted as under:

“34. Acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention.—When a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone.”

24. A bare perusal of the aforesaid Section 34 I.P.C., it is patently manifest that the said section will come into play only when there existed common intention of all the accused for a criminal act.

25. Before a person can be held liable for offence done by another under provisions of Section 34 I.P.C., it must be established that there was common intention in the sense of a pre-arranged plan between accused and the person sought to be held liable had participated in some manner in the act constituting the offence. Unless both common intention and participation are present, Section 34 I.P.C. cannot be applied.

26. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in its judgement and order rendered in the case of Sheodan and others Vs. The State of Rajasthan reported in 1974 CRI. L. J. 234 (V 80 C 91) has held that inference of common intention should never be reached unless it is necessary inference deducible from the circumstances of the case. The presence of accused at the scene of the offence and their running away after occurrence without further materials or without direct evidence of prior concert cannot be said to be incompatible with innocence of accused. Relevant portion of the aforesaid judgement is extracted as under:-

5. Then remains the case of the remaining two accused Amilal and Kishanlal. In the first information report it was only stated that these persons had challenged Roopram while he was on camel's back. In the course of trial the prosecution has improved its case by introducing a material fact that they exhorted Sheodan to fire at Roopram. This was never the allegation in the first information report. Moreover as to the exhortation the evidence of the eye-witnesses is not uniform. Roopram injured has of course deposed to the exhortation by the witnesses to Sheodan to fire at him but Kaniram P.W. 2 and Chuniram P.W. 3 had only stated that only Kishanlal exhorted Sheodan to fire at Roopram and Amilal was only standing having a lathi in his hand. All the witnesses have said that the accused were standing in the lane. They have not deposed as to whether they had come together and at what time they had come in the lane. The learned Addl. Sessions Judge had rightly discarded the version of exhortation prior to the firing by these two accused persons. He, however, has held them guilty on the basis of circumstances which were relevant in his opinion to make out a case under Section 34, I.P.C. against these accused persons. The first circumstance pointed by the learned Addl. Sessions Judge is that Kishanlal and Amilal were with accused Sheodan at the time of the occurrence in the lane and that their presence was not usual and in his opinion they were awaiting Roopram so that he could be availed of. It may be true that all the accused persons were in the lane at the time of the occurrence. But it cannot be said that their presence was unusual. They were the residents of the same village which was a small village and it cannot be said to be unusual to be present in a village lane which was meant for the use of the villagers. The learned Addl. Sessions Judge has entered into the realm of conjecture when he has observed that they were awaiting Roopram so that he could be availed of. This is merely a guess based on no material on the record. The presence of these persons in the lane cannot be said to be incompatible with their innocence. The second circumstance pointed out by the learned Addl. Sessions Judge is that both these accused went away from the scene of occurrence with accused Sheodan. It is not in the evidence that they had come together or in a body. It is true that the witnesses have deposed that when some neighbours had arrived at the spot all the three ran away towards the south. The learned counsel for the State emphasized on this circumstance and stated that it was a relevant and sufficient circumstance to show that they had a preconcert and shared the common intention to cause injury to Roopram. In that connection, the learned counsel for the State relied on Mamand v. Emperor, AIR 1946 PC 45=(47 Cri LJ 344) and State v. Iftikharkhan, AIR 1973 SC 863 = (1973 Cri LJ 636). On the other hand, Mr. Kashinath Joshi has sought to distinguish these two cases relied on in Pandurang v. State of Hyderabad, AIR 1955 SC 216=(1955 Cri LJ 572) and Banwari v. State of U. P., AIR 1962 SC 1198 = (1962 (2) Cri LJ 278). In AIR 1946 PC 45=(47 Cri LJ 344) their Lordships of the Privy Council took the fact of running away together as one of the considerations to establish a common intention. But that was not the sole circumstance but there was much more than that. In that case there was evidence that all the three accused came together. There was also evidence that they all ran away together in a body. In AIR 1973 SC 863=(1973 Cri LJ 636) also there was evidence that the accused had come together at the time of occurrence and they were close associates and they had run away together in a body after the shooting was over. The facts of the particular case cannot be applied indiscriminately to hold the persons guilty. The case must rest on its facts and the mere similarity of facts in one case cannot be used to determine a conclusion of fact in another. In the present case ex- cepting that the accused were present in the lane at the time of the occurrence and that they had ran away after the shooting there is no conclusive circumstance to establish that the accused had a prior concert and shared the common intention to cause the injury to Roopram. It has not been proved that the accused were close associates of Sheodan nor it has been proved that they had come together. It is of course true that they had after the shooting run away towards the south but it is not the suggestion of the prosecution that they had run in a body i.e. together. Their running away after the shooting cannot be a conclusive circumstance incapable of being explained on other hypothesis. The running away simultaneously after the shooting could have been motivated by the instinct of saving themselves from the villagers who could have thought that these two accused persons were also party to the incident. It will be profitable to extract the observations made in Pandurang's case AIR 1955 SC 216= (1955 Cri LJ 572) which throw considerable light on the controversy before me-

"In the present case there is no evidence of any prior meeting we know nothing of what they said or did before the attack-not even immediately before..... But to quote the Privy Council again. The inference of common intention should never be reached unless it is necessary inference deducible from the circumstances of the case'. But to say this is no more than to reproduce the ordinary rule about circumstantial evidence, for there is no special rule of evidence for this class of cases. At bottom, it is a question of fact in every case and, however similar the circumstances, facts in one case cannot be used as a precedent to determine the conclusion on the facts in another. All that is necessary is either to have direct proof of prior concert, or proof of circumstances which necessarily lead to that inference, or, as we prefer to put it in the time-honoured way, the incriminating facts must be incompatible with the innocence of the accused and incapable of explanation on any other reasonable hypothesis."

Bearing the principle laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council and as approved by the Supreme Court, in mind, there is no room for doubt to say that there is no direct evidence of prior concert and the circumstantial evidence is not such which necessarily establish the conclusion of the guilt of these two accused persons. The presence of these persons on the spot and their running away after the shooting without further materials cannot be said to be incompatible with the innocence of these accused persons as already stated above. The learned Additional Sessions Judge was also not right when he used the omission of these accused to intervene as a relevant circumstance against them. There was one fire by Sheodan and question of intervention could not have arisen. On the other hand their omission to commit violence or show of criminal force is a circumstance in the facts of this case in their favour. Consequently, it cannot be said that the case against these two accused is proved beyond any manner of doubt."

27. Hon'ble Supreme Court in its judgement rendered in the case of Parichhat and Others v. The State of M.P., AIR 1972 Supreme Court 535 has held that in absence of any evidence of prior meeting of minds and any pre-arranged plan or of participation of accused persons in the fight in question they cannot be convicted with the aid of Section 34. The prosecution must prove that the criminal act has been done in concert pursuant to the pre-arranged plan. Mere proof that some accused persons were with the main accused who inflicted fatal injury on the deceased will not attract the applicability of Section 34.

28. Relevant portion of the aforesaid judgement passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court is reproduced as under:-

to give a ballam blow to Kashiram. The appellants Parichhat, Sunnu and Sitaram did not beat or strike anyone. Common intention within the meaning of Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code implies pre arranged plan. There being no evidence of a prior meeting of minds and any prearranged plan or of participation of Sunnu and Sitaram in the fight they could not be convicted with the aid of Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code. Parichhat could not be said to have common intention with Gangu to cause the death of Kashiram and Parichhat could not be convicted with the aid of Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code. If they wanted to dispossess Damru and if they went there to dispossess Damru and if Gangu killed Kashiram and appellants Parichhat, Sunnu and Sitaram could not be brought within the common intention of killing Kashiram. No such pre-arranged plan has been proved. It has also not been proved that any criminal act has been done in concert pursuant to the pre-arranged plan. Several persons can simultaneously attack a man and each can have the same intention, namely, the intention to kill and each can individually inflict a separate fatal blow and yet none would have the common intention required by Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code because there was no prior meeting of minds to form a pre-arranged plan. In a case like that, each would be individually liable for whatever injury he caused but none could be vicariously convicted for the act of any of the others; and if the prosecution cannot prove that his separate blow was a fatal one he cannot be convicted of murder.

22. Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code will not be attracted unless first it is established that a criminal act was done by several persons, second, that there was a common intention and a pre-arranged plan to commit an offence and third that there was participation in the commission of the offence in furtherance of that common intention. The High Court was wrong in convicting the appellants Parichhat, Sunnu and Sitaram under Section 326 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code. Their convictions are set aside. The High Court in setting aside the acquittal of Parichhat, Sunnu and Sitaram should have considered the enmity between Dharam Ballabh and Parichhat, the case instituted by Durji against Dharam Ballabh, the allegations made by Parichhat against Dharam Ballabh, the hostile and unsympathetic attitude of Ram Lakhani Sharma in investigating the complaint of Durji against Dharam Ballabh. If the appellants could not be convicted under Sections 147, 447 and 302 read with Section 149 of the Indian Penal Code and they were acquitted the acquittal could not be set aside by the High Court unless the Sessions Court in acquitting the accused was palpably wrong or took an erroneous view or committed grave injustice. The setting aside of the acquittal by the High Court was itself erroneous and wrong. The High Court was also wrong in convicting the appellants under Section 326 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code. Merely remaining with Gangu at the time of cutting the crop will not justify any application of Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code with regard to the murder of Kashiram."

29. Neither Smt. Heera Devi (P.W.-2) nor her daughter, Pushpa (P.W.-1) in her testimonies have deposed that there was any pre-arranged plan of accused regarding commission of crime in question nor there was any common intention of all the accused to commit the crime. I find that prosecution even did not lead any evidence to prove that there was common intention of all the accused or there was pre-meeting of minds of all the accused for committing the crime in question.

30. In absence of any evidence led by the prosecution or even any attempt by the prosecution to prove that there was common intention of all the accused or pre-meeting of minds for committing the crime in question, the Appellate Court on its own could not have drawn the inference that there was common intention of all the accused for committing the crime in question.

31. In the aforesaid judgements rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, it has been categorically held that for roping the accused for the crime with the help of Section 34 I.P.C., prosecution must lead evidence to prove that there was common intention of all the accused to commit the crime whereas in the present case prosecution did not lead any evidence and there is nothing in the testimony of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 regarding common intention of all the accused and pre-meeting of minds or any pre-arranged plan in respect of commission of crime, as such, Appellate Court while adding Section 34 I.P.C. in conviction of revisionists under Sections 323 and 325 I.P.C. has committed an illegality.

32. In view of the aforesaid discussion and reasoning, conviction of the revisionists under Section 323 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C. and Section 325 I.P.C. read with Section 34 I.P.C. is set-aside and conviction of the revisionists done by the trial court vide judgement and order dated 9.03.2007 under Sections 323 and 325 I.P.C. is upheld.

33. So far as the order of the Appellate Court exonerating revisionists/appellants under Section 504 I.P.C. is concerned, the same is hereby upheld.

34. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionists has also argued that if the conviction of revisionists under Sections 323 and 325 I.P.C. is upheld then they are entitled for protection of Section 4 of The Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 as prior to said conviction, they have not been convicted for any offence by any competent court of law.

35. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionists has also submitted that the learned Appellate Court has refused to grant benefit of Section 4 of The Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 without considering all the facts and circumstances and only for the reason that Smt. Heera Devi and her daughter, Pushpa have suffered injuries, the benefit of Section 4 of The Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 has been denied.

36. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionists has also submitted that the crime in question took place on 3.07.1992 and two accused including Raj Bahadur by whose lathi blow, hand of Smt. Heera Devi was fractured, have already died and since then about more than 30 years have elapsed and there is no offence committed by the revisionists, therefore, in the facts and circumstances of the case, at this stage, revisionists are entitled for benefit of Section 4 of The Probation of Offenders Act, 1958.

37. I have considered submissions advanced by learned counsel for the revisionists in respect of the protection under Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 and from the facts and circumstances of the case, I find that the crime in question took place in the year 1992 and since then, 30 years have elapsed and neither there is any offence committed by the revisionists nor they have been convicted for any offence. Even prior to the crime in question, revisionists have not been convicted for any offence. I also find that Raj Bahadur, by whose lathi-blow, hand of Smt. Heera Devi was fractured, has already died and another convict, Atma Singh has also died. Both the revisionists, as on date, are of age more than 60 years.

38. In the entire facts and circumstances, I am of the view that revisionists are entitled for benefit of Section 4 of The Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 and, therefore, instead of sentencing the revisionists under Section 325 I.P.C. with rigorous imprisonment of three years and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each and under Section 323 with rigorous imprisonment of one year and fine of Rs. 1,000/- each, they shall file two bonds to the tune of Rs. 20,000/- coupled with personal bonds to the effect that they shall not commit any offence and shall be of good behaviour and shall maintain peace during the period of one year. If there is breach of any of the aforesaid conditions, revisionists will subject themselves to undergo sentence before the Magistrate as per Rules. The aforesaid bonds shall be filed by the convicts within two months from the date of this judgement.

39. Revision is partly allowed regarding sentence of the revisionist.

40. Let record of trial court & appellate court along with certified copy of this order be sent to the court concerned for necessary information and compliance.

REVISIONAL JURISDICTION

DATED: LUCKNOW 14.07.2023

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MANJIVE SHUKLA, J.

Criminal Revision No. 484 of 2007

Amar Bahadur Singh ...Revisionist
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Counsel for the Revisionist:
Sushil Kumar Singh

Counsel for the Opposite Parties:
G.A.

(A) Criminal Law - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 397/401 - Revision - Section 244 - Evidence for prosecution - The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 - Section 7/16 - Prohibitions of manufacture, sale, etc., of certain articles of food/ Penalties , Section 2 (ia) (m) , 16 (1) (a) (i) - for punishing an accused for an offence under Section 16(1)(a)(i) - prosecution has to lead evidence and to prove that the quality or purity of the article being primary food has fallen below the prescribed standards or its constituents are not present in quantities within the prescribed limits of variability, in either case due to adulteration made by the accused and such fall in quality or purity is not due to natural causes. (Para - 15)

(B) The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 - Proviso to Section 2(ia)(m) - For milk to be declared adulterated - prosecution must prove that the percentage of fat falling below the prescribed standards was not within the prescribed limits of variability and not due to natural or human agency. (Para - 16)

Complaint against revisionist - cognizance over complaint - Food Inspector got herself examined under Section 244 Cr.P.C. and cross-examined -

Trial Court framed charges against revisionist - prosecution not provided evidence - regarding admissible variation limits for standard of fat percentage in cow milk - as the level of fat varies from cow to cow - not provided evidence that shortage of fat in the milk sample is due to adulteration by revisionist - which cannot be attributed to natural causes or human agency. (Para -16)

HELD:- Trial court and appellate court have not considered the prosecution's lack of evidence regarding the variability in the standard of fat percentage in cow milk. Not provided evidence that shortfall in fat in the sample is due to adulteration by the revisionist, and that the shortage was not due to natural or human-controlled causes. As a result, the sample of milk cannot be considered adulterated solely because the percentage of fat in the milk was 14% less than the fixed standard. Judgement and order convicting revisionist and sentencing him for rigorous imprisonment of six months along with fine are set-aside. (Para - 17)

Revision allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manjive Shukla, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State and perused the record.

2. Revisionist has filed this revision challenging therein judgment and order dated 27.05.2005 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur in Criminal Case No. 4423 of 2003 (State Vs. Amar Bahadur Singh) whereby revisionist has been convicted for an offence punishable under Section 7/16 of The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 and has been sentenced for rigorous imprisonment of six months with a fine of Rs. 1,000/- and judgment and order dated 22.08.2007 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 2, Sultanpur whereby Criminal Appeal No. 49 of 2005

(Amar Bahadur Singh Vs. State of U.P.) has been dismissed.

3. A complaint case was filed against revisionist in the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur which was registered as Criminal Case No. 4423 of 2003 under Section 7/16 of The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954.

4. Complainant, Smt. Kiran Yadav in the complaint has stated that she is Food Inspector and found revisionist, Amar Bahadur Singh carrying 30 litres milk for sale on 09.08.2003 at 11:00 a.m. near Police Station Lambhua, District Sultanpur. She, on being suspicious of adulteration in milk, gave her introduction to revisionist, Amar Bahadur Singh and by paying Rs. 9/-, purchased 750 ml. milk. In the complaint, it has been further stated that the aforesaid milk was distributed in three equal parts and was put in three clean bottles and in each bottle, 20-20 drops of 40% formalin was added and thereafter caps were put on each bottle and all the three samples were properly sealed. One sample was deposited in the office of Chief Medical Officer, Sultanpur for sending it to Public Analyst at Lucknow. It was further stated in the complaint that later on Public Analyst, Government of U.P. after examining the aforesaid sample, has forwarded his report vide letter dated 26.08.2003 and in the said report it is mentioned that fat in the milk has been found 14% less than the standard of fat prescribed for cow milk.

5. Learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate took cognizance over the aforesaid complaint thereafter complainant, Food Inspector, Smt. Kiran Yadav got herself examined under Section 244 Cr.P.C. and she was also cross-examined.

6. On the aforesaid basis, learned Trial Court framed charges against the revisionist under Section 7/16 of The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 on 03.12.2004. Revisionist pleaded not guilty and therefore, learned Trial Court started trial.

7. Statement of revisionist was also recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C.

8. Learned Trial Court has considered the testimony of Food Inspector, Smt. Kiran Yadav and found her version absolutely correct. Further Trial Court recorded a finding that Public Analyst, Govt. of U.P., after examination of the sample of the milk collected by Smt. Kiran Yadav, has given its report that fat in the sample of milk was found 14% less than standard of fat fixed for the cow milk, therefore, revisionist is liable to be convicted for offence punishable under Section 7/16 of The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 and thereby has sentenced him for rigorous imprisonment of six months with fine of Rs. 1,000/-.

9. Revisionist challenged the aforesaid judgment and order dated 27.05.2005 passed by learned Trial Court in Criminal Case No. 4423 of 2003 by filing Criminal Appeal No. 49 of 2005 (Amar Bahadur Singh Vs. State) before Court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.2, Sultanpur.

10. Learned Appellate Court has considered the evidence appreciated by the trial court and, thereafter has passed order on 22.08.2007 wherein it has been concluded that the prosecution has proved its case against the accused under Section 16(1)(a)(i) of The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 and therefore, conviction and sentence given vide judgment and order dated 27.05.2005 passed by the learned Trial Court does not suffer from any illegality.

11. I find that the prosecution during trial has based its case on the report of the Public Analyst, Govt. of U.P. wherein it has been said that in the sample milk, fat was found 14% less than the standard of fat fixed for cow milk but prosecution did not lead any evidence before the trial court that the revisionist has done some adulteration in the milk and thereby the percentage of fat in the sample milk has become less than the standard of fat fixed for cow milk.

12. For arriving at a correct conclusion, certain provisions of The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 are necessary to be seen, therefore, they are extracted as under:-

“7. Prohibitions of manufacture, sale, etc., of certain articles of food.— No person shall himself or by any person on his behalf manufacture for sale, or store, sell or distribute—

(i) any adulterated food;

(ii) any misbranded food;

(iii) any article of food for the sale of which a licence is prescribed, except in accordance with the conditions of the licence;

(iv) any article of food the sale of which is for the time being prohibited by the Food (Health) Authority in the interest of public health;

(v) any article of food in contravention of any other provision of this Act or of any rule made thereunder; or

(vi) any adulterant.”

(a) whether by himself or by any other person on his behalf, imports into India or manufactures for sales or stores, sells or distributes any article of food—

(i) which is adulterated within the meaning of sub-clause (m) of clause (ia) of section 2 or misbranded within the meaning of clause (ix) of that section or the sale of which is prohibited under any provision of this Act or any rule made thereunder or by an order of the Food (Health) Authority;

(ii) other than an article of food referred to in sub-clause (i), in contravention of any of the provisions of this Act or of any rule made thereunder; or

(b) whether by himself or by any other person on his behalf, imports into India or manufactures for sales or stores, sells or distributes any adulterant which is not injurious to health; or

(c) prevents a food inspector from taking a sample as authorised by this Act; or

(d) prevents a food inspector from exercising any other power conferred on him by or under this Act; or

(e) being a manufacturer of an article of food, has in his possession, or in any of the premises occupied by him, any adulterant which is not injurious to health; or

(f) uses any report or certificate of a test or analysis made by the Director of the Central Food Laboratory or by a public analyst or any extract thereof for the purpose of advertising any article of food; or

(g) whether by himself or by any other person on his behalf, gives to the vendor a false warranty in writing in respect of any article of food sold by him, he shall, in addition to the penalty to which he may be liable under the provisions of section 6, be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than six months but which may extend to three years, and with fine which shall not be less than one thousand rupees:

13. Aforesaid Section 16 (1) (a) (i) provides that subject to provisions of Sub-Section (1A), if any person whether by himself or by any other person on his behalf imports into India or manufactures for sale or stores, sale or distributes any article of food which is adulterated within the meaning of Sub-Clause (m) of Clause (ia) of Section 2 shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than six months but which may extend to three years and with fine which shall not be less than Rs. 100/-.

14. Now it is necessary to look into Section 2 (ia) (m) which is extracted as under:-

“(m) if the quality or purity of the article falls below the prescribed standard or its constituents are present in quantities not within the prescribed limits of variability but which does not render it injurious to health:

Provided that, where the quality or purity of the article, being primary food, has fallen below the prescribed standards or its constituents are present in quantities not within the prescribed limits of variability in either case, solely due to natural causes and beyond the control of human agency, then, such article shall not be deemed to be adulterated within the meaning of this sub-clause.”

15. From bare perusal of proviso appended to Section 2(ia)(m), it becomes patently manifest that for punishing an accused for an offence under Section 16(1)(a)(i), prosecution has to lead evidence and to prove that the quality or purity of the article being primary food has fallen below the prescribed standards or its constituents are not present in quantities within the prescribed limits of variability, in either case due to adulteration made by the accused and such fall in quality or purity is not due to natural causes.

16. Prosecution has not led any evidence in respect of the admissible variation limits (if any) regarding the standard of percentage of fat in cow milk as definitely the level of fat is bound to vary from cow to cow. Further prosecution has also not led any evidence that the shortage of fat which has been found in the sample of milk taken from the revisionist, is only due to adulteration made by him and the said shortage of fat could not have occurred due to natural causes and for any reason beyond the control of human agency. Proviso appended to Section 2(ia)(m) makes it crystal clear that for a primary food i.e. milk to be declared adulterated, it is obligatory upon the prosecution to prove that the percentage of fat which has fallen below the prescribed standards was not within the prescribed limits of variability and further the said shortfall was not due to natural causes and causes beyond the control of human agency.

17. In the present case, trial court as well as appellate court have not considered that prosecution has not led any evidence in respect of prescribed limits (if any) of variability in the standard of percentage of fat in cow milk and has also not led any evidence that for shortfall of fat in the sample in question is the result of adulteration made by the revisionist and further the said shortage of percentage of fat was not due to any natural cause or due to any cause beyond the control of human agency. In absence of any evidence, as required under proviso appended with Section 2 (ia)(m), the sample of milk taken from the revisionist cannot be said to be adulterated only for the reason that the percentage of fat in the milk was 14% less than the standard fixed.

18. In view of the aforesaid reasons, this Court is of the considered view that judgement and order dated 27.05.2005 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur convicting the revisionist under Section 7/16 of The Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 and sentencing him for rigorous imprisonment of six months along with fine of Rs. 1,000/- and judgement and order dated 22.08.2007 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 2, Sultanpur in Criminal Appeal No. 49 of 2005 are liable to be set-aside and, accordingly, they are set-aside.

19. Revision is allowed. Revisionist is, hereby, acquitted from the aforesaid charge.

20. Revisionist is already on bail. Sureties given in favour of the revisionist, stand discharged.

21. Let copy of this judgement be sent to the court concerned for necessary information and compliance.

1. This is an appeal by the claimants of Motor Accident Claim Petition No.48 of 1992, seeking enhancement of compensation awarded by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal.

2. According to the claimant-appellants, who are dependents of the late Rajvir Singh, the deceased, on the 2nd of December, 1991 was proceeding from Roorkee to Meerut on board Maruti Car, bearing registration No. DNC-2281. He was travelling on the car along with Raj Kumar and some others. The car was moving according to the rule of the road and at a controlled speed. At forty minutes past seven in the evening, as the car reached the Village Siwaya, a bus, owned by the Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation (for short, 'UPSRTC'), bearing registration No. UHN-2268, approached from the opposite direction. It was driven at the high speed of about 70 kilometers per hour and negligently. It hit the Maruti Car, leading to injury being sustained by several persons. One Raj Kumar died on the spot. Rajvir Singh, who sustained grievous injuries, was admitted to the Medical College Hospital. He breathed his last on 03/04.12.1991. A First Information Report about the accident was lodged with the Police, leading to the registration of a case. Rajvir Singh's body was sent to autopsy, that was carried out at the P.L. Sharma Hospital, Meerut.

3. According to the claimant-appellants (for short, 'the claimants'), the deceased was a Constable in the Uttar Pradesh Police and aged thirty-six and a half years at the time of his demise. He was a healthy man and in the usual course of life would have gone on to celebrate his 85th birthday. The deceased was in receipt of a total salary of Rs.1961/- per mensem. Due to Rajvir Singh's untimely demise, the claimants have been destituted and left without a source of income. The claimants have also been denied their love and affection. A compensation in the sum of Rs.8,10,000/- was, accordingly, claimed.

4. A written statement was filed on behalf of the UPSRTC, who are opposite party No.1 to the claim petition and respondent No.1 to this appeal. The UPSRTC have generally denied the allegations in the claim petition. The particulars of the accident have been denied, leading to Rajvir Singh's death. It has been averred that burden lay upon the claimants to establish the factum of the accident. It is the further case of the UPSRTC that the accident did not happen on account of negligence of the bus driver, but it is a case of contributory negligence, where the bus driver and the driver of the Maruti Car ought to share the liability in equal proportion. It was also pleaded that the compensation sought is excessive and without basis. The case further pleaded is that compensation cannot come to the claimants as a lottery or windfall.

5. A written statement was filed on behalf of the National Insurance Company Limited, Branch Office Haridwar through the Divisional Manager, Begum Bridge, Meerut, opposite party No.4 to the claim petition and respondent No.4 here, who are Insurers of the Maruti Car. The Insurance Company aforesaid took a stand that it is the claimants' burden to establish the factum of the accident and all other things necessary to entitle them to compensation. It was the Insurance Company's case that the car was not being driven negligently and not responsible for the accident. It was the offending bus alone, that has to be held liable. The Insurance Company too said that the compensation demanded was excessive.

6. Upon pleadings of parties, the following issues were framed (translated into English from Hindi):

“1. Whether the accident in question happened on 02.12.1991 at 7.40 p.m. in the jungle of Shivaya, Police Station Daurala, Meerut on account of negligent driving at a high speed by the drivers of bus No. UHN-2268 and Maruti car No. DNC-2282? If yes, its effect.

2. Whether the claimants are entitled to receive any compensation? If yes, how much and from which party?

7. On behalf of the claimants, Smt. Madresh, the widow, was examined as PW-1, whereas Constable Ajay Pal Singh, an eye-witness of the accident, was examined as PW-2. In the claimants' documentary evidence, a copy of the FIR, the charge sheet, the site plan, the postmortem report and the deceased's salary certificate, besides his High School Certificate were filed. On behalf of the UPSRTC, the bus driver, Raj Kumar was produced in the witness-box and examined as DW-1.

8. It must be noticed that the claim petition has, of course, been pursued by the claimants before the Tribunal and defended by the UPSRTC. The other three opposite parties do not appear to have much contested the claim before the Tribunal. Before this Court, the appeal has been supported by the claimants and resisted on behalf of the UPSRTC. None of the other parties have appeared at the hearing before this Court.

9. Heard Mr. Pravindra Singh, learned Counsel for the claimants and Mr. Vikas Sahai, learned Counsel appearing for the UPSRTC. No one appears on behalf of respondent Nos.2 to 4.

10. The lower court records have been carefully perused.

11. Since this appeal is limited to a claim for enhancement of compensation, this Court proposes to scrutinize the findings of the Tribunal on Issue No.2 alone. There is no cavil about the findings on the first issue.

12. It is argued by the learned Counsel for the claimants that the Tribunal has erred in law in applying a multiplier of '12', instead of '15', on account of the fact that the widow was in receipt of a family pension of Rs.500-600/- per month. He submits that the pension payable to the widow is not legally deductible, or in any manner relevant to a quantification of the dependency. It is also argued that the Tribunal has not awarded anything towards future prospects of the deceased. Also, nothing has been awarded towards loss of consortium to each of the claimants, besides award towards loss of estate and adequate funeral expenses.

13. Mr. Vikas Sahai, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the UPSRTC, on the other hand, has supported the impugned judgment and says that it makes for a just award, which ought not to be disturbed.

14. In order to work out the compensation and pass a just and fair award, the most fundamental figure to be determined is the deceased's monthly income. Happily in this case, the deceased was a government servant, whose income, whether high or low, is accepted in law and by the society with a kind of trust, faith and reverence, which the income of the richest of men may not command. The deceased's income in this case has the infallible certification of the Deputy Superintendent of Police, Haridwar, who has issued a certificate dated 20.12.1991, paper No. 38-Ga. We have perused the said certificate. It shows the deceased's income to be Rs.1961. The monthly income of the deceased is, therefore, to be regarded as Rs.1961/-, the annual income working out to a figure of Rs.23,532/-.

15. The deceased left behind five dependents, to wit, his widow Smt. Madresh, two minor daughters, Km. Kalpna and Km. Alpna, aged 13 and 11 years, respectively, and two sons, Master

Atul and Master Pintu, aged 8 years and 4 years, respectively. Going by the principle for determining the number of surviving family members, in turn to quantify the deduction towards personal and living expenses for the deceased, Rule 220-A (2)(iii) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short, 'the Rules of 1998') serves as the guide. The Rule postulates that for the purpose of calculation of the number of family members in Clause (ii), a minor dependent will be counted as half a unit. Therefore, the four children of the deceased would make for two dependents, whereas the widow would constitute one. Thus, it has to be held that the deceased was survived by three dependent family members. According to Rule 220-A(2)(ii) of the Rules of 1998, deduction towards personal and living expenses for a married person in order to work out the survivors' dependency, where he is survived by dependents in the bracket of 2 to 3 shall be one-third. The same deduction for living expenses of the deceased is envisaged in Paragraph No.30 of the decision in Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121, where the dependent family members are 2-3. Thus, in this case, out of the annual income of the deceased, a one-third has to be deducted towards personal and living expenses.

16. The next issue to be considered, in order to work out the dependency, is the appropriate multiplier to apply. According to the guidance of the Supreme Court in Sarla Verma (supra) in Paragraph No.42 of the report, for the dependents of a deceased in the age bracket of 36-40 years, the applicable multiplier is '15'. Here, the deceased was aged thirty-six and a half years. There is no cavil about his age as the High School

Certificate is on record as paper No.40-Kha. The High School Certificate shows the deceased's date of birth as 1st July, 1955. At the time of his demise, on 03/04.12.1991, the deceased would, therefore, be aged as 36 years or as the Tribunal says, thirty-six and a half years. Therefore, the applicable multiplier would clearly be '15' and not '12', as adopted by the Tribunal. The Tribunal has adopted a lower multiplier, apparently referring to the fact that the widow is in receipt of a family pension of Rs.500-600/-. The fact that the widow is in receipt of family pension is absolutely irrelevant for the purpose of working out the dependency for the claimants. In this regard, the law on the issue has been authoritatively laid down by the Supreme Court in Vimal Kanwar and others v. Kishore Dan and others, (2013) 7 SCC 476, where it has been held:

18. The first issue is “whether provident fund, pension and insurance receivable by the claimants come within the periphery of the Motor Vehicles Act to be termed as ‘pecuniary advantage’ liable for deduction”.

19. The aforesaid issue fell for consideration before this Court in Helen C. Rebello v. Maharashtra SRTC [(1999) 1 SCC 90 : 1999 SCC (Cri) 197]. In the said case, this Court held that provident fund, pension, insurance and similarly any cash, bank balance, shares, fixed deposits, etc. are all a “pecuniary advantage” receivable by the heirs on account of one's death but all these have no correlation with the amount receivable under a statute occasioned only on account of accidental death. Such an amount will not come within the periphery of the Motor Vehicles Act to be termed as “pecuniary advantage” liable for deduction. The following was the observation and finding of this Court: (SCC pp. 111-12, para 35)

“35. Broadly, we may examine the receipt of the provident fund which is a deferred payment out of the contribution made by an employee during the tenure of his service. Such employee or his heirs are entitled to receive this amount irrespective of the accidental death. This amount is secured, is certain to be received, while the amount under the Motor Vehicles Act is uncertain and is receivable only on the happening of the event viz. accident, which may not take place at all. Similarly, family pension is also earned by an employee for the benefit of his family in the form of his contribution in the service in terms of the service conditions receivable by the heirs after his death. The heirs receive family pension even otherwise than the accidental death. No co-relation between the two. Similarly, life insurance policy is received either by the insured or the heirs of the insured on account of the contract with the insurer, for which the insured contributes in the form of premium. It is receivable even by the insured if he lives till maturity after paying all the premiums. In the case of death, the insurer indemnifies to pay the sum to the heirs, again in terms of the contract for the premium paid. Again, this amount is receivable by the claimant not on account of any accidental death but otherwise on the insured's death. Death is only a step or contingency in terms of the contract, to receive the amount. Similarly any cash, bank balance, shares, fixed deposits, etc. though are all a pecuniary advantage receivable by the heirs on account of one's death but all these have no co-relation with the amount receivable under a statute occasioned only on account of accidental death. How could such an amount come within the periphery of the Motor Vehicles Act to be termed as 'pecuniary advantage' liable for deduction. When we seek the principle of loss and gain, it has to be on a similar and same plane having nexus, inter se, between them and not to which there is no semblance of any co-relation. The insured (the deceased) contributes his own money for which he receives the amount which has no co-relation to the compensation computed as against the tortfeasor for his negligence on account of the accident. As aforesaid, the amount receivable as compensation under the Act is on account of the injury or death without making any contribution towards it, then how can the fruits of an amount received through contributions of the insured be deducted out of the amount receivable under the Motor Vehicles Act. The amount under this Act he receives without any contribution. As we have said, the compensation payable under the Motor Vehicles Act is statutory while the amount receivable under the life insurance policy is contractual.”

17. Therefore, in our opinion, the Tribunal went wrong in scaling down the multiplier to '12', instead of adopting the appropriate multiplier of '15'.

18. So far as the future prospects of the deceased are concerned, he was aged 36 years or thereabouts. According to Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, the deceased falls in the category of 40 years and below, entitling his dependents to add future prospect to his income to the extent 50% of his salary.

19. The issue if the award of future prospects would be governed by the decision in National Insurance Company v. Pranay Sethi and others, (2017) 16 SCC 680 or Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, fell for consideration of the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822. In Urmila Shukla (supra), it was held:

“9. It is to be noted that the validity of the Rules was not, in any way, questioned in the instant matter and thus the only question that we are called upon to consider is whether in its application, sub-Rule 3(iii) of Rule 220A of the Rules must be given restricted scope or it must be allowed to operate fully.

10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at “just compensation” in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid.

12. We, therefore, reject the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant and affirm the view taken by the Tribunal as well as the High Court and dismiss this appeal without any order as to costs.”

20. In the opinion of this Court, therefore, the right to determination of future prospects would be governed by Rule 220-A(3) and not the principles laid down in Pranay Sethi (supra).

21. It was urged on behalf of the UPSRTC that Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998 would not be applicable to the present case, because they were introduced w.e.f. 26th September, 2011, whereas the accident in this case had happened in the year 1991. This question fell for consideration of a Division Bench of this Court in Sushil Kumar and others v. M/s. Sampark Lojastic Private Limited and others, 2017 (35) LCD 1311. In Sushil Kumar (supra), it was held:

“31. Rule 220-A was inserted in the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 in view of the various decisions of the law courts for providing benefit on account of future prospects of the injured/deceased. It provides for addition of certain percentage of the income of the injured/deceased in his actual income depending upon the age of the injured/deceased for the purposes of determination of the compensation. The aforesaid Rule came into effect on 26.09.2011 after the decision of the claim petition but before filing of the appeal though the accident took place on 08.05.2010 much before the enforcement of the above Rule.

32. It is in view of the above that an argument is being raised that Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident which had taken place on 08.05.2010.

33. In Ram Sarup Vs. Munshi AIR 1963 SC 553 it was laid down that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the rights of the parties.

34. The view expressed above was followed by the Supreme Court in Mula Vs. Godhu AIR 1971 SC 89.

35. In Dayawati Vs. Inderjit AIR 1966 SC 1423 the court had observed as under:-If the new law speaks in language, which expressly or by clear intendment, takes in even pending matters, the court of trial as well as the court of appeal must have regard to an intention so expressed, and the court of appeal may give effect to such a law even after the judgment of the court of first instance.

36. In Amarjit Kaur Vs. Pritam Singh AIR 1974 SC 2068 effect was given to the change in law during the pendency of an appeal as the hearing of an appeal under the procedural law of this country is in the nature of rehearing of the suit by superior court.

37. It was in the light of the above decisions that in Lakshmi Narayan Guin and others Vs. Niranjan Modak AIR 1985 SC 111 it was held that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the right of the parties.

38. The aforesaid decision was followed by a Division Bench of this court in U.P. State Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Madhu Sharma and others, 2003 (4) AWC 2620 which was a case in relation to the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and it was observed that it is apparent that the change in law during the pendency of the original proceedings has to be taken into account so as to cover the rights of the parties.

39. In view of above decision the view expressed by the Division Bench of this court in ICICI Lombard (Supra) is not of good law as it does not take into account the decisions referred to above in holding that the Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident that took place prior to the said date only for the reason that the Rule was not specifically stated to be retrospective in nature.”

22. No decision by a Larger Bench or the Supreme Court has been brought to the notice of this Court overruling the law as aforesaid laid down in Sushil Kumar. There is, thus, no difficulty in applying the provisions of the Rules of 1998, here and elsewhere, for the determination of compensation payable to the deceased in this case.

23. The claimants are entitled to receive compensation under the conventional heads. This issue was again the subject matter of consideration by their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi, where it has been held:

“48. This aspect needs to be clarified and appositely stated. The conventional sum has been provided in the Second Schedule to the Act. The said Schedule has been found to be defective as stated by the Court in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] . Recently, in Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy [Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 45 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 384 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 574] it has been reiterated by stating : (SCC p. 80, para 54)

“54. ... we hold that the Second Schedule as was enacted in 1994 has now become redundant, irrational and unworkable due to changed scenario including the present cost of living and current rate of inflation and increased life expectancy.”

49. As far as multiplier or multiplicand is concerned, the same has been put to rest by the judgments of this Court. Para 3 of the Second Schedule also provides for general damages in case of death. It is as follows:

“3. General damages (in case of death):

The following general damages shall be payable in addition to compensation outlined above:

(i)	Funeral expenses	Rs 2000
(ii)	Loss of consortium, if beneficiary is the spouse	Rs 5000
(iii)	Loss of estate	Rs 2500
(iv)	Medical expenses — actual expenses incurred before death supported by bills/vouchers but not exceeding	Rs 15,000”

50. On a perusal of various decisions of this Court, it is manifest that the Second Schedule has not been followed starting from the decision in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] and there has been no amendment to the same. The conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined. As we notice, in different cases different amounts have been granted. A sum of Rs 1,00,000 was granted towards consortium in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . The justification for grant of consortium, as we find from Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] , is founded on the observation as we have reproduced hereinbefore.

51. On the aforesaid basis, the Court has revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads.

52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167] , it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads.”

24. The question of award of compensation for loss of consortium was considered by the Supreme Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. v. Nanu Ram alias Chuhru Ram and others, (2018) 18 SCC 130. In Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. (supra), it was held:

“21. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Pranay Sethi [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC 680 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 248 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 205] dealt with the various heads under which compensation is to be awarded in a death case. One of these heads is loss of consortium. In legal parlance, “consortium” is a compendious term which encompasses “spousal consortium”, “parental consortium”, and “filial consortium”. The right to consortium would include the company, care, help, comfort, guidance, solace and affection of the deceased, which is a loss to his family. With respect to a spouse, it would include sexual relations with the deceased spouse : [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]”

21.1. Spousal consortium is generally defined as rights pertaining to the relationship of a husband-wife which allows compensation to the surviving spouse for loss of “company, society, cooperation, affection, and aid of the other in every conjugal relation”. [Black's Law Dictionary(5th Edn., 1979).]

21.2. Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of “parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training”.

21.3. Filial consortium is the right of the parents to compensation in the case of an accidental death of a child. An accident leading to the death of a child causes great shock and agony to the parents and family of the deceased. The greatest agony for a parent is to lose their child during their lifetime. Children are valued for their love, affection, companionship and their role in the family unit.

25. In the circumstances, this appeal deserves to succeed and in order to make a just award, the impugned award shall stand modified and revised as follows:

(I) Monthly Income (of the deceased) = 1961

(ii) Annual Income (of the deceased) = 1961x12 = 23532

(iii) Annual Income+Future Prospects (monthly income x 50%) = 23532+11766 = 35298

(iv) Annual Dependency = Annual Income – one-third deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased = 35298-11766 = 23532

(v) Total Dependency = Annual Dependency x Applied Multiplier = 23532 x 15 = 352980

(vi) Claimant's entitlement towards conventional heads = Loss of Estate + Funeral Expenses + dependents' Consortium = 15000+15000+40000x5 = 230000

The total compensation would therefore, work out to a figure of Rs. 352980+ Rs. 230000 = 582980

26. In the result, this appeal is allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded enhanced to Rs. 5,82,980/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. The entire sum of enhanced compensation shall be payable to the claimants in the manner that 60% of the compensation shall go to the widow, and out of the balance 40%, the other four claimants shall equally share. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the UPSRTC, pursuant to the impugned award or the interim orders passed by this Court, shall be adjusted against the award. Costs easy.

1. Heard Sri Madhav Jain, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri A.K.Shukl learned counsel for respondents.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgement and award dated 8.11.1996 passed by M.A.C.T/7th-Additional District Judge, Agra (hereinafter referred to as "Tribunal") in M.A.C. Case No. 206 of 1993. The accident is not in dispute. The liability fastened on the insurance company is not in dispute. The age of the deceased is not in dispute. The insurance company and the owner have not challenged the judgment. The oral objection is to the granting of interest at 12% granted by the tribunal. The only question which remains to be considered in this appeal is whether the compensation awarded is just compensation in view of the settled legal position of law.

3. Brief facts as culled out from the record are on 21.03.1993 deceased Raj Kumar Sharma was going to his village Pathauli by bicycle on his side from Agra. When he reached near village Baant Sucheta and near village Pathauli a metador coming from opposite side bearing no. U.P. 80A 9317 driven by its driver rashly and negligently hit the bicycle of deceased as a result of which the deceased received grievous injuries. He had been rushed to the S.N. Hospital for treatment but the doctors declared him dead.

4. The deceased Raj Kumar Sharma on the date of accident i.e on 21.03.1993 was aged 30 years was a compounder working with a doctor who has left behind him his mother, father, widow, one son and two daughters. The tribunal has considered his income to be Rs. 1200/-p.m, deducted 1/3rd, granted multiplier of 16, added Rs. 10,000/- towards non pecuniary damages and granted interest at the rate of 12%.

5. It is submitted by Sri Madhav Jain, learned counsel for the appellants that the deceased was earning Rs. 2500/-p.m and 40% of this be added to future loss of income and multiplier of 17 should be granted. It is submitted that 1/4th of the amount should be deducted towards personal expenses of the deceased as the deceased was survived by four legal representatives. The rate of interest granted is just and proper.

6. Per contra, as against this, it is submitted by Sri A.K.Shukl, learned counsel for the respondents that in absence of any proof of income Rs. 2500/- p.m cannot be considered to be income of a compounder in the year of accident. It is further submitted that there is no question of granting future loss of income as law did not subscribe to the same and the multiplier granted is just and proper. According to learned counsel interest granted at 12% is exorbitantly granted. Further, it is submitted that the matter remained pending since 1997 till 2022 and only on 27.02.2023, a copy of the memo of appeal was given to the respondent and therefore in view of the judgement of Lakkamma Vs. United India Insurance Co. Ltd. AIR 2021 SC 3301, it is submitted that interest under Section 171 of the M.V.Act should not be ordered for the said period where the insurance company was not at fault and the appellant's counsel was totally negligent in not even getting the matter listed on the board and getting notice issued till year 2023.

7. After hearing Sri Madhav Jain, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri A.K.Shukl learned counsel for the insurance company. The two claimants who are two in number they are proforma respondents though who were originally arrayed as claimants, who will also benefitted by this judgment.

8. The income of Rs. 1200/- p.m cannot be said to be on the lower side, the same is maintained, 40% of this monthly income would have to be added. The deceased was aged 30 years at the time of accident hence multiplier of 17 as per the judgment of Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121, would be admissible. Rs. 50,000/- for non pecuniary damages.

8. Hence, the total compensation payable to the appellants is computed herein below:

- i. Income : Rs.1200/-
- ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 40% namely Rs.480/-
- iii. Total income : Rs. 1200 + 480 = Rs. 1680/-
- iv. Income after deduction of 1/3rd : Rs. 1120/-
- v. Annual loss : Rs. 1120 x 12 = Rs. 13,440/-
- vi. Multiplier applicable : 17
- vii. Total loss : Rs. 13,440 x 17 = Rs. 2,28,480/-
- xii. Amount under non-pecuniary head : Rs.50,000/-
- xiii. Total compensation : 2,78,480/-

9. This takes this Court to the most interesting question of rate of interest as many matters are lying pending in this Court since 1992 without notices been issued, without matter being listed on board even once, is this failure on the part of the Registry to list the matters and/or on the part of the learned counsels, I do not want to delve into the same but the fact that this appeal has remain pending since 1997 without even notices been issued to the insurance company. Should insurance company be saddled with huge liability of the interest. Section 171 of the M.V. Act, 16988 stipulates as follows:-

10. The interest on the enhanced amount would be 7% from the date of filing of the claim petition as that would have been rapo rate in the year 1997. Thereafter, for the period for which it has remained pending even without notices being served a marginal rate of interest of 2% would be worked out on the total amount, thereafter, again it would be 7% from the date the insurance company was represented before this Court.

11. As the matter has remain pending for about 2 decades no amount shall be kept in fixed deposit. The minor children would have become major by now, the daughters might have been married they shall be summoned and the amount proportionate to their share would be paid by account payee cheque by the tribunal in view of the judgment of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442.

12. No other grounds are urged orally when the matter was heard.

13. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and award passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent-Insurance Company shall deposit the additional amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest as directed above.

14. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma (supra), the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

15. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

16. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma

(supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

17. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As 10 years have elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

18. Record be sent back to the tribunal.

19. This Court is thankful to Sri Madhav Jain, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri A.K.Shukl learned counsel for respondents for getting this old appeal disposed of.

compensation-deceased died in accident she was a homemaker and her income is Rs. 5,000/- per month from the Tea Stall - 25% towards the future prospects which would be Rs. 1,250/- per month would make the income @ Rs. 6,250/- per month-From this, if 1/3rd is deducted towards the personal expenses and rounding it off to Rs. 2, 100/- per month, then the net income would be [Rs. 6,250-2,100] Rs. 4,150/- per month. Adopting a multiplier of 15 as per decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (supra), the compensation amount would be Rs. 7,47,000/- to which the amount towards consortium and loss of estate and funeral expenses, if added at Rs. 70,000/-, would finally rest the award at 8,17,000/- Tribunal erred in not making deductions for the personal expenses despite the same the Tribunal awarded a sum of Rs. 70,000/- towards the head for consortium, loss of estate and funeral expenses and finally granted a total sum of Rs. 7,45,000/- to the claimants. (Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. The Insurance Company has come up in Appeal under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 assailing the award dated 07.08.2019 passed in Claim Petition No. 81 of 2018 by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No. VI, District Barabanki solely assailing the quantum.

2. Sri Anchal Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that upon the death of Smt. Sunita on 01.11.2016, a Claim Petition bearing No. 81 of 2016 came to be filed. The averments of the claim petition indicated that Smt. Sunita being the pillion rider was traveling along with her husband Anil Kumar on his motorcycle bearing No. UP 32HF 8507. While the said couple had reached near Makarpur Petrol Pump, P.S. Loni Katra, District Barabanki, the offending truck bearing No. UP 83 H 9611 being driven rashly and negligently hit the motorcycle, as a result, Smt. Sunita received grievous injuries and she died on the spot.

3. It was further pleaded that Smt. Sunita was a proficient housewife and was also running a Tea Stall and was able to earn Rs. 6,000/- per month from the said Tea Stall and she contributed towards the household work and that was valued at Rs. 3,000/- per month and consequently the loss was indicated as Rs. 9,000/- per month. The deceased was survived by her husband Anil Kumar, son Pramod Kumar and a daughter Ms. Priya.

4. The claim petition came to be contested and upon exchange of the pleadings, the Tribunal framed six issues. After considering the evidence both oral and documentary, the Tribunal returned a finding that the accident which caused the death of Smt. Sunita was on account of rash and negligent driving of a truck bearing No. UP 83 H 9611. It also held that the truck was duly insured with the New India Assurance Company Ltd. and its driver had a valid and subsisting driving license, however, while computing the compensation, the Tribunal adopted a notional income of Rs. 3,000/-per month upon which 25% was added for future prospects and considering that the age of the deceased as 40 years, a multiplier of 15 was adopted and thereafter a sum of Rs. 70,000/- towards loss of consortium, loss of estate, funeral expenses was added and thus a total sum of Rs. 7,45,000/- has been awarded in favour of the claimants-respondents along with 7% interest by means of the award dated 07.08.2019 which is under challenge.

5. The learned counsel for the Insurance Company has submitted that the Tribunal has erred on two counts:-

(i) No deductions towards personal expenses has been made which is apparent from the manner in which the issue no. (vi) has been decided.

(ii) The Tribunal has also erred in adopting an incorrect multiplier of 15 rather a multiplier of 14 ought to have been adopted.

6. It is further elaborated that since no proof was furnished for proving any income of the deceased, hence, even the notional income which has been taken is on the higher side and consequently the award is inflated and necessarily needs to be modified.

7. Sri Ravindra Pratap Singh, learned counsel appearing for the claimants-respondent nos. 1, 2 and 3 has opposed the aforesaid submissions and has urged that the primary requirement in a claim petition under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act casts a duty on the Tribunal to ascertain a just and fair compensation.

8. It is urged that specific evidence was led on behalf of the claimants to indicate that the deceased was running a Tea Stall from where she earned Rs. 6,000/-per month. It is further pointed out that she was also a proficient housewife who contributed to the household and this was specifically pleaded in the claim petition including in the evidence and despite the same, the Tribunal has merely taken a notional income of Rs. 3,000/-per month without any basis and has completely ignored the fact that the deceased was running a Tea Stall and the income generated therefrom.

9. It is further submitted that the age of the deceased has been taken to be 40 years which was specifically stated in the claim petition as well as corroborated from the postmortem report and there was no contradictory material against the same and thus at the age of 40 years as per the dictum of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma and Others v. Delhi Transport Corporation and Others, (2009) 6 SCC 121, the appropriate multiplier to be adopted is 15 which has been noted by the Claims Tribunal and therefore it cannot be said that the Tribunal has erred in adopting an incorrect multiplier.

10. It is further submitted that this fact apart since Smt. Sunita had died in the accident and she was survived by her husband and two children, accordingly, consortium should have been awarded in terms of the decision of the Apex Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Nanu Ram, 2018 SCC Online SC 1546 i.e. to say that the husband would be entitled to spouse consortium and the two children were entitled to parental consortium and this aspect has been ignored by the Tribunal.

11. It is also pointed out that in the aforesaid circumstance if the appropriate income of the deceased was taken, coupled with the fact that appropriate consortium is awarded then amount as granted by the Tribunal will be just and appropriate and then even if an adjustment for personal expenses is made then there would not be much of a difference in the quantum to persuade the Appellate Court to intervene where substantial justice has been done and a fair and adequate compensation has been awarded. Hence, the award may not be disturbed only on account of mathematical calculations or for technical reasons.

12. In reply, the learned counsel for the Insurance Company has pointed out that it is the appeal of the Insurance Company which is assailing the quantum of award on the aforesaid counts. The claimants-respondents have not filed any appeal nor any cross objections and thus they are precluded from making any submission for enhancement of the award on the ground that the Tribunal has not taken the appropriate income of the deceased and the consortium has also not been granted appropriately. Moreover, the respondent do not dispute that the Tribunal ought to have made adjustments towards personal expenses, which has not been done, consequently, the appeal deserves to be allowed.

13. The Court has considered the rival submissions and also perused the material on record.

14. In light of the rival submissions, the issues which arise for the consideration of this Court in the present appeal is:-

(i) Whether in absence of any cross appeal under Order 41 Rule 22 C.P.C. filed by the claimants, this Court can consider the submissions regarding enhancement of the award at the behest of the claimants, whereas it is the Insurance Company who has challenged the award on the ground of quantum being high?.

(ii) Whether the quantum as determined by the Tribunal is just and fair compensation?

15. In order to answer the aforesaid two issues, it will be necessary to notice certain statutory provisions as contained in the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

16. Section 165 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 provides for constitution of a Claims Tribunal and Section 166 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 relates to how an application for compensation is to be made.

17. Section 169 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 of the aforesaid Act provides for the procedure and powers of the Claims Tribunal and it specifically provides that in holding an inquiry under Section 168, the Claims Tribunal may subject to any rules that may be made in this behalf follow such summary procedure as it thinks fit and it shall have all the powers of Civil Court for the purpose of taking evidence on oath and for enforcing the attendance of witness and for compelling the discovery of production of documents.

18. Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 specifically provides that on receipt of an application for compensation made under Section 166 of the Act, the Claims Tribunal after giving notice to the insurer and the parties concerned and after affording any opportunity of being heard, hold an inquiry into the claim and may make an award determining the amount of compensation which appears to be just and specify the person or persons to whom the compensation shall be payable and shall also specify the amount which shall be paid by the owner or the insurer or the driver of the vehicle involved in the accident or by all, as the case may be.

19. An appeal against the award is provided under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 to the High Court. In the State of U.P., the Government has formulated the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 and matters relating to the claims have been covered in Chapter 9 from Rules 204 to 222.

20. It will also be seen that the primary duty of the Claims Tribunal is to hold an inquiry in order to ascertain and arrive at a just and fair compensation. In order to arrive at such a finding, the inquiry is held and it is open for the parties to lead their evidence to help the Tribunal to arrive at a just compensation. Once, a compensation has been determined by the Tribunal, it is open for either of the parties either to accept or to challenge the award by filing an appeal.

21. The award passed by the Tribunal can be assailed by an aggrieved party on various counts including the quantum. If an appeal has been filed by any party, (other than the claimant) on any ground then if the claimants are dissatisfied with the amount as awarded, they always have a right of seeking enhancement of the award by either filing a separate appeal or by filing cross objections under Order 41 Rule 22 C.P.C.

22. The complexion would change where a party (other than the claimant) assails the award solely on the ground of quantum of compensation before the Appellate Court and the claimant who has a right of filing a cross objection but he does not file any cross-objection or cross appeal. In such a situation whether the Appellate Court is only required to assess and examine the appeal within the limited parameters as urged by the appellants assailing the award on quantum or is it open for the Appellate Court, if during hearing of the appeal, It finds that the compensation has not been appropriately granted by the Tribunal then whether it can grant such higher compensation than the one which has been granted by the Tribunal and which is already assailed and under challenge before it in appeal.

23. In order to find an answer to the said question, it will be appropriate to take a glance at few decisions on the subject. A Division Bench of this Court in New India Assurance Company Ltd. Vs. Risha Devi and others; 2017 (3) ADJ 685 considered the issue in context with provisions of Order 41 Rule 33 C.P.C. and the relevant portion of the said decision reads as under:-

“18. The other argument advanced by learned counsel for the appellant that amount of compensation cannot be increased in an appeal filed by the Insurance Company in the absence of cross-appeal by the claimant, is also without any force.

19. Order XLI Rule 33 of the Code of Civil Procedure prescribing the power of court of appeal clearly provides that the Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made as the case may require, and this power may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties though they may not file any appeal or objection. Order XLI Rule 33 of the Code reads as under:

“33. Power of Court of Appeal - The Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made and to pass or make such further or other decree or order as the case may require, and this power may be exercised by the Court notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties may not have filed any appeal or objection [any may, where there have been decrees in cross-suits or where two or more decrees are passed in one suit, be exercised in respect of all or any of the decrees, although an appeal may not have been filed against such decrees]

[Provided that the Appellate Court shall not make any order under Section 35A, in pursuance of any objection on which the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted or refused to make such order.

20. The provisions of Order XLI Rule 33 C.P.C. was explained by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Mahant Dhangir v. Madan Mohan, 1987 Supp SCC 528: AIR 1988 SC 54 in following words:

“The sweep of the power under Rule 33 is wide enough to determine any question not only between the appellant and respondent, but also between respondent and co-respondents. The appellate Court could pass any decree or order which ought to have been passed in the circumstances of the case. The appellate court could also pass such other decree or order as the case may require. The words “as the case may require” used in Rule 33 Order 41 have been put in wide terms to enable the appellate Court to pass any order or decree to meet the ends of justice. What then should be the constraint? We do not find many. We are not giving any liberal interpretation. The rule itself is liberal enough. The only constraint that we could see, may be these : That the parties before the lower Court should be there before the appellate Court. The question raised must properly arise out of the judgment of the lower Court. If these two requirements are there, the appellate Court could consider any objection against any part of the judgment or decree of the lower Court. It may be urged by any party to the appeal. It is true that the power of the appellate Court under Rule 33 is discretionary. But it is a proper exercise of judicial discretion to determine all questions urged in order to render complete justice between the parties. The Court should not refuse to exercise that discretion on mere technicalities.”

21. The same view has again been reiterated in a later decision by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Delhi Electric Supply Undertaking v. Basanti Devi, (1999) 8 SCC 229: AIR 2000 SC 43.

22. We are of the considered view that the conditions as laid down in provisions of Order XLI Rule 33 are satisfied in the present case. In Delhi Electric Supply Undertaking (Supra) the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that when circumstances exist which necessitate the exercise of discretion conferred by Rule 33, the court cannot be found wanting when it comes to exercise its powers.

23. Thus the argument in this regard made by the learned counsel for the appellant has no legs to stand and is not liable to be sustained.”

24. A similar issue was raised before this Court in New India Assurance Company Ltd. Vs. Smt. Neelam Jaiswal and others; 2020 SCC Online (All.) 85 wherein the issue was whether in an appeal preferred by the Insurance Company on a ground other than the quantum and in absence of any cross appeal by the claimants whether the court would be justified in enhancing the amount in terms of powers conferred under Order 41 Rule 22 C.P.C. and Order 41 Rule 33 C.P.C. This was considered in detail by the Court with the aid of the decisions of the Apex Court and finally it was held as under:-

“28. There is another angle to look at the aforesaid situation. In the decision relied upon by the learned counsel for the respondents in the case of Resha Devi (supra) it would be seen that the appeal had been preferred by the Insurance Company. The submission of the learned counsel for the Insurance Company is noted in paragraph-4 of the judgment of the Division Bench and from the perusal whereof, it would indicate that the question before Hon'ble the Division Bench as raised by the Insurance Company was on quantum; inasmuch as it had been contended that the multiplier as adopted by the tribunal was on the higher side and the compensation accordingly was excessive.

29. It is in the aforesaid circumstance, where the question of quantum was before the Division Bench and in such circumstance considering the fact that the Division Bench found that the award was on the lower side had applied the power under Order 41 Rule 33 CPC and has enhanced the award by adding non-pecuniary damages. Thus, it would be seen that the facts before the Division Bench were completely different; inasmuch as the issue of quantum was before the High Court specifically raised by the Insurance Company and as an appeal is a continuation of the proceedings and the tribunal is required to hold an inquiry to ascertain the compensation which is just and fair; hence in the aforesaid circumstances where the Division Bench came to be conclusion that the Insurance Company was contending that the award was excessive, but it found that it was on the lower side, hence in order to do substantial justice despite the claimants did not file a cross appeal the Division Bench exercised its power under Order 41 Rule 33 CPC and enhance the same.”

25. This Court would be failing in its duty if it did not notice a recent decision of the Apex Court in context with the powers conferred on the Appellate Court under Order 41 Rule 22 C.P.C. and Order 41 Rule 33 C.P.C. in Saurabh Jain Vs. A.B.P. Design; 2021 SCC Online 552 wherein the issue was whether the superior Court could consider an adverse finding even where a cross objection has not been filed and it was held as under:-

“27. On a perusal of the above authorities, it is evident that the principle stipulated in Order XLI Rule 22 of CPC can be applied to petitions under Article 136 of the Constitution because of this Court's wide powers to do justice under Article 142 of the Constitution. Since the principle in Order XLI Rule 22 of the CPC furthers the cause of justice by providing the party other than the "aggrieved party" to raise any adverse findings against them, this Court can draw colour from Order XLI Rule 22 CPC and permit objections to findings.

28. From the above it has been established that it not necessary that a challenge to the adverse findings of the lower court needs to be made in the form of a memorandum of cross-objection. In the present case, we note that the appellant had raised an objection to the jurisdiction of the Trial Court for entertaining the suit on the ground that an injunction and declaratory relief could not have been given. Although the Trial Court passed a decree in favour of the appellant, it had decided against the appellant on the question of jurisdiction. This finding was not challenged by the appellant before the High Court in the form of a memorandum of cross-objection. The judgment of the High Court makes no mention that a plea of lack of jurisdiction was taken by either the appellant or the MDA. Before this Court, the appellant has not filed the counter-affidavit it had filed before the High Court. Thus, the conclusion that emanates from the record before us is that the ground of jurisdiction was only raised by the appellant before the Trial Court and not before the High Court. In effect then, this Court would have to adjudicate on a plea, which did not form a part of the decision of the High Court in challenge before us.

29. With regard to new grounds being raised before this Court in a special leave petition under Article 136, we note that under Order 21 Rule 3(c) of the Supreme Court Rules 2013, SLPs are to be confined to the pleadings before the court whose order is challenged. However, with the leave of the Court, additional grounds can be urged at the time of the hearing.

32. In Most Rev. P.M.A. Metropolitan v. Moran Mar Marthoma 17

as well, a three Judge bench of this Court entertained an objection as to maintainability of the suit under Section 9 of the CPC, despite the plea not having been raised before the courts below. The Court observed that the plea of a bar or lack of jurisdiction can be entertained at any stage, since an order or decree passed without jurisdiction is nonest in law.

.....34. Based on the position of law, we find it just to allow the appellant to raise the ground of jurisdiction before us. Allowing the ground to be raised would not require the submission of additional evidence since it is a pure question of law and strikes at the heart of the matter. We shall now turn to the merits of this argument. “

26. From a gainful reading of the propositions as has been noticed in the decisions considered hereinabove, apparently, what can be culled out is the fact that once the issue of compensation/quantum has been raised by any party before the Appellate Court, then the Appellate Court becomes duty bound to ascertain as to whether the compensation has been adequately and justly awarded or not. The entire ethos behind consideration of a claim petition under the Motor Vehicles Act is grant of just and fair compensation. This is to be seen in the context that in the given facts and circumstance, the compensation should not be meager but at the same time it should not also be a bonanza for the claimants. Within these two outer perimeter, it is the duty of the Tribunal and so also for the Appellate Court to adjudge the issue of quantum with a correct lens and perspective so that the claimants are awarded just and fair compensation which is pragmatic and close to reality.

27. In the spotlight of the above considered decisions, this Court is of the clear opinion that where an appeal is preferred by any party, other than the claimants, assailing the quantum on whatever ground, in such a case, even though, the claimant may not have filed a cross objection or a separate appeal for enhancement, yet, it is the duty of the Appellate Court to see that the compensation as awarded by the Tribunal is just and fair. While determining the same, even if, the Appellate Court comes to the conclusion that the amount granted by the Tribunal is less, it has all the jurisdiction to grant fair and just compensation by enhancing the award even in absence of any cross objection for the reason that the appellant who is before the Court has already raised the issue of quantum and considering the arguments/contentions of the appellant, the Appellate Court is to arrive at its own independent finding regarding quantum which may then even grant a higher sum than granted by the Tribunal. In such situation, it is not open for the appellant to state that the amount cannot be enhanced as no challenge has been made to the award. What needs to be seen is the fact that it is the quantum of award which is under challenge and that has to be decided and in a befitting case, the Appellate Court can invoke the powers in its repository to pass such orders to grant just and fair compensation.

28. Thus, the Appellate Court would be justified in adopting such a course. However, it would be a different situation altogether where the award is assailed on any other ground, other than quantum, then while the claimants have not filed any cross objection then during the course of argument the issue regarding enhancement of compensation if made at the behest of the claimants, the Appellate Court may decline to consider it unless a clear case is made out by the claimant, who had failed to file any appeal or cross appeal, by bringing in their case within the parameters of Order 41 Rule 33 C.P.C. as discussed above with the aid of the decision in Saurabh Jain (Supra), Risha Devi (supra) and Neelam Jaiswal (supra).

29. This issue can be seen from another lens, inasmuch as, where the Insurance Company files an appeal assailing the grant of compensation, the claimant without filing a cross appeal or cross objection also possesses the right to defend the amount which has already been granted by the Tribunal. In case if in the given facts and circumstances, the claimant is able to justify that the compensation granted by the Tribunal is just and appropriate, it is not necessary for the claimant to file a cross appeal or cross objections. This aspect has also been considered by the Apex Court in Ranjana Prakash and others Vs. Divisional Manager and Another; (2011) 14 SCC 639 wherein in paragraphs no. 6 to 8, it was held as under:-

“6. We are of the view that the High Court committed an error in ignoring the contention of the claimants. It is true that the claimants had not challenged the award of the Tribunal on the ground that the Tribunal had failed to take note of the future prospects and add 30% to the annual income of the deceased. But the claimants were not aggrieved by Rs 23,134 being taken as the monthly income. There was therefore no need for them to challenge the award of the Tribunal. But where in an appeal filed by the owner/insurer, if the High Court proposes to reduce the compensation awarded by the Tribunal, the claimants can certainly defend the quantum of compensation awarded by the Tribunal, by pointing out other errors or omissions in the award, which if taken note of, would show that there was no need to reduce the amount awarded as compensation. Therefore, in an appeal by the owner/insurer, the appellant can certainly put forth a contention that if 30% is to be deducted from the income for whatsoever reason, 30% should also be added towards future prospects, so that the compensation awarded is not reduced. The fact that the claimants did not independently challenge the award will not therefore come in the way of their defending the compensation awarded, on other grounds. It would only mean that in an appeal by the owner/insurer, the claimants will not be entitled to seek enhancement of the compensation by urging any new ground, in the absence of any cross-appeal or cross-objections.

7. This principle also flows from Order 41 Rule 33 of the Code of Civil Procedure which enables an appellate court to pass any order which ought to have been passed by the trial court and to make such further or other order as the case may require, even if the respondent had not filed any appeal or cross-objections. This power is entrusted to the appellate court to enable it to do complete justice between the parties. Order 41 Rule 33 of the Code can however be pressed into service to make the award more effective or maintain the award on other grounds or to make the other parties to litigation to share the benefits or the liability, but cannot be invoked to get a larger or higher relief. For example, where the claimants seek compensation against the owner and the insurer of the vehicle and the Tribunal makes the award only against the owner, on an appeal by the owner challenging the quantum, the appellate court can make the insurer jointly and severally liable to pay the compensation, along with the owner, even though the claimants had not challenged the non-grant of relief against the insurer. Be that as it may.

8. Where an appeal is filed challenging the quantum of compensation, irrespective of who files the appeal, the appropriate course for the High Court is to examine the facts and by applying the relevant principles, determine the just compensation. If the compensation determined by it is higher than the compensation awarded by the Tribunal, the High Court will allow the appeal, if it is by the claimants and dismiss the appeal, if it is by the owner/insurer. Similarly, if the compensation determined by the High Court is lesser than the compensation awarded by the Tribunal, the High Court will dismiss any appeal by the claimants for enhancement, but allow any appeal by the owner/insurer for reduction. The High Court cannot obviously increase the compensation in an appeal by the owner/insurer for reducing the compensation, nor can it reduce the compensation in an appeal by the claimants seeking enhancement of compensation."

30. Having seen the light through the legal prism, this Court is inclined to examine the quantum of the award as to whether the amount granted by the Tribunal is just and fair and in case if it is found that the amount is lower then the Court would be justified in enhancing the same and in case if the contention of the appellant appears to be correct then the Court also has the power to reduce the compensation and in case if the compensation is just and appropriate, the Court can also refuse to interfere. Thus, the first issue is answered in the affirmative.

31. In the aforesaid backdrop, if the facts of the instant case are seen in contrast to the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties, it would be found that the sole ground for assailing quantum by the Insurance Company is that there has been no deductions towards personal expenses and that the multiplier is on the higher side and instead of 14 the Tribunal has erred in adopting a multiplier of 15.

32. On the other hand, the submissions of learned counsel for the claimants is that the deceased was engaged in running a Tea Stall and was earning a sum of Rs. 6,000/- per month from the said venture and was also contributing to the household as a proficient homemaker. The Tribunal found that there was no documentary evidence regarding the running of the Tea Stall by the deceased and noticing that the claimant-witness had stated that the Tea Stall was being run by the husband of the deceased namely Anil Kumar, consequently, it adopted merely a notional income of Rs. 3,000/- per month.

33. At the outset, as a principle it is true and correct that a Tribunal while determining the compensation is also required to make a deduction towards personal expenses. Now, having said that, it will be worthwhile to examine as to whether the Court has rightly appreciated the material evidence available on record to arrive at the figure of Rs. 3,000/- per month as notional income.

34. From the perusal of the claim petition, it would indicate that it has clearly been pleaded that the deceased was running a Tea Stall and was earning around Rs. 6,000/- per month from the said venture. Rs. 3,000/- has been taken as her contribution being a proficient home maker and thus the amount claimed in the petition is on the basis of Rs. 9,000/- per month.

35. On behalf of the claimants, Pramod Kumar son of the deceased was examined and in his examination-in-chief, he clearly stated and reiterated that his mother was a proficient homemaker and used to run a tea stall from where she was earning Rs. 6,000/- per month and was also the bread earner for the family. In his cross-examination, a specific question was put to him wherein he reiterated and positively affirmed his statement that his mother was running the Tea Stall and earned Rs. 6,000/- from the same.

36. This would indicate the factum of the running of the Tea Stall by the deceased and earning of a sum of Rs. 6,000/- per month from the same stood sufficiently proved as no contrary evidence was led. However, the Tribunal fell in error in recording in the award that it has been admitted by the claimant-witness that the father i.e. Anil Kumar is running the aforesaid Tea Stall and therefore it came to the conclusion that the deceased was not running the Tea Stall and adopted a notional income of Rs. 3,000/- per month to compute the compensation.

37. At this stage, it will also be relevant to notice the statement given in the cross-examination by the claimant-witness Pramod Kumar to the effect that his mother was running a Tea Stall and she was earning Rs. 6,000/- per month and that his father is alive and now the Tea Stall is being run by his father. The relevant portion of the statement for better appreciation is being re-produced for ready reference:-

“मेरी माताजी कुशल गृहणी थी और चाय की दुकान चलाती थी। मैं पढ़ाई करता हूँ। मेरे अलावा मेरी एक बहन प्रियायश सैनी जो अविवाहित है पढ़ाई कर रही है। मेरे पिताजी अभी जीवित हैं। अब चाय की दुकान पिताजी चलाते हैं। सारा खर्चा घर का इसी चाय की दुकान से चलता था। इस समय भी चल रहा है।”

38. This above quoted statement would indicate that the accident had occurred in the year 2016 where Smt. Sunita expired but the statement was given in the year 2019. In this perspective, the evidence of the claimant-witness reflects that the mother of the claimant-witness was a good home maker and was running a Tea Stall. The father of the witness was alive. He stated, now (emphasis supplied) my father runs the Tea Stall. This statement indicates that prior to the accident the deceased was running the Tea Stall and after her death it was the father Anil Kumar who was running the Tea Stall. There is nothing on record to discredit the testimony or contradict the fact that Sunita was running the Tea Stall and she was able to earn Rs. 6,000/- per month from it.

39. Now, in so far as the contribution of a homemaker is concerned, this aspect of the matter has been very well elucidated by the Apex Court in Kirti and Another Vs. Oriental Insurance Company Ltd. 2021 (2) SCC 166. In the supplementing but concurring opinion authored by His Lordship N.V. Ramana, and the relevant portion thereof reads as under:-

17. There are two distinct categories of situations wherein the court usually determines notional income of a victim. The first category of cases relates to those wherein the victim was employed, but the claimants are not able to prove her actual income, before the court. In such a situation, the court “guesses” the income of the victim on the basis of the evidence on record, like the quality of life being led by the victim and her family, the general earning of an individual employed in that field, the qualifications of the victim, and other considerations.

18. The second category of cases relates to those situations wherein the Court is called upon to determine the income of a non-earning victim, such as a child, a student or a homemaker. Needless to say, compensation in such cases is extremely difficult to quantify.

.....20. One category of non-earning victims that courts are often called upon to calculate the compensation for are homemakers. The granting of compensation for homemakers on a pecuniary basis, as in the present case, has been considered by this Court earlier on numerous occasions. A three-Judge Bench of this Court in Lata Wadhwa v. State of Bihar [Lata Wadhwa v. State of Bihar, (2001) 8 SCC 197], while dealing with compensation for the victims of a fire during a function, granted compensation to housewives on the basis of the services rendered by them in the house, and their age. This Court, in that case, held as follows: (SCC pp. 209-10, para 10)

“10. So far as the deceased housewives are concerned, in the absence of any data and as the housewives were not earning any income, attempt has been made to determine the compensation on the basis of services rendered by them to the house. On the basis of the age group of the housewives, appropriate multiplier has been applied, but the estimation of the value of services rendered to the house by the housewives, which has been arrived at Rs 12,000 p.a. in cases of some and Rs 10,000 for others, appears to us to be grossly low. It is true that the claimants, who ought to have given data for determination of compensation, did not assist in any manner by providing the data for estimating the value of services rendered by such housewives. But even in the absence of such data and taking into consideration the multifarious services rendered by the housewives for managing the entire family, even on a modest estimation, should be Rs 3000 per month and Rs 36,000 p.a. (emphasis supplied)

.....25. The sheer amount of time and effort that is dedicated to household work by individuals, who are more likely to be women than men, is not surprising when one considers the plethora of activities a housemaker undertakes. A housemaker often prepares food for the entire family, manages the procurement of groceries and other household shopping needs, cleans and manages the house and its surroundings, undertakes decoration, repairs and maintenance work, looks after the needs of the children and any aged member of the household, manages budgets and so much more. In rural households, they often also assist in the sowing, harvesting and transplanting activities in the field, apart from tending cattle [see Arun Kumar Agrawal v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2010) 9 SCC 218 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 664 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1313] ; National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Deepika [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Deepika, 2009 SCC OnLine Mad 828]]. However, despite all the above, the conception that housemakers do not “work” or that they do not add economic value to the household is a problematic idea that has persisted for many years and must be overcome.

....30. The issue of fixing notional income for a homemaker, therefore, serves extremely important functions. It is a recognition of the multitude of women who are engaged in this activity, whether by choice or as a result of social/cultural norms. It signals to society at large that the law and the courts of the land believe in the value of the labour, services and sacrifices of homemakers. It is an acceptance of the idea that these activities contribute in a very real way to the economic condition of the family, and the economy of the nation, regardless of the fact that it may have been traditionally excluded from economic analyses. It is a reflection of changing attitudes and mindsets and of our international law obligations. And, most importantly, it is a step towards the constitutional vision of social equality and ensuring dignity of life to all individuals.

31. Returning to the question of how such notional income of a homemaker is to be calculated, there can be no fixed approach. It is to be understood that in such cases the attempt by the court is to fix an approximate economic value for all the work that a homemaker does, impossible though that task may be. Courts must keep in mind the idea of awarding just compensation in such cases, looking to the facts and circumstances. [See R.K. Malik v. Kiran Pal, (2009) 14 SCC 1, para 9 : (2009) 5 SCC (Civ) 265 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1265] .]

....38. The rationale behind the awarding of future prospects is therefore no longer merely about the type of profession, whether permanent or otherwise, although the percentage awarded is still dependent on the same. The awarding of future prospects is now a part of the duty of the court to grant just compensation, taking into account the realities of life, particularly of inflation, the quest of individuals to better their circumstances and those of their loved ones, rising wage rates and the impact of experience on the quality of work.

39. Taking the above rationale into account, the situation is quite clear with respect to notional income determined by a court in the first category of cases outlined earlier; those where the victim is proved to be employed but claimants are unable to prove the income before the court. Once the victim has been proved to be employed at some venture, the necessary corollary is that they would be earning an income. It is clear that no rational distinction can be drawn with respect to the granting of future prospects merely on the basis that their income was not proved, particularly when the court has determined their notional income.

****-----*

.....41. Therefore, on the basis of the above, certain general observations can be made regarding the issue of calculation of notional income for homemakers and the grant of future prospects with respect to them, for the purposes of grant of compensation which can be summarised as follows:

41.1. Grant of compensation, on a pecuniary basis, with respect to a homemaker, is a settled proposition of law.

41.2. Taking into account the gendered nature of housework, with an overwhelming percentage of women being engaged in the same as compared to men, the fixing of notional income of a homemaker attains special significance. It becomes a recognition of the work, labour and sacrifices of homemakers and a reflection of changing attitudes. It is also in furtherance of our nation's international law obligations and our constitutional vision of social equality and ensuring dignity to all.

41.3. Various methods can be employed by the court to fix the notional income of a homemaker, depending on the facts and circumstances of the case.

41.4. The court should ensure while choosing the method, and fixing the notional income, that the same is just in the facts and circumstances of the particular case, neither assessing the compensation too conservatively, nor too liberally.

41.5. The granting of future prospects, on the notional income calculated in such cases, is a component of just compensation.

40. The issue regarding the computation of compensation in cases where a person is a home maker or such other similar persons where there are no measures for establishing the proved income, was also considered by the Apex Court in Rajendra Singh and Others Vs. National Insurance Company Ltd. And Others 2020 (7) SCC 256 and the relevant portion reads as under:-

9. The first deceased was a housewife aged about 30 years. In Lata Wadhwa v. State of Bihar [Lata Wadhwa v. State of Bihar, (2001) 8 SCC 197], this Court had observed that considering the multifarious services rendered by housewives, even on a modest estimation, the income of a housewife between the age group of 34 to 59 years who were active in life should be assessed at Rs 36,000 p.a. A distinction was also drawn with regard to elderly ladies in the age group of 62 to 72 who would be more adept in discharge of housewife duties by age and experience, and the value of services rendered by them has been taken at Rs 20,000 p.a.

10. In Arun Kumar Agrawal v. National Insurance Co. Ltd. [Arun Kumar Agrawal v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2010) 9 SCC 218 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 664 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1313], the Tribunal assessed the notional income of the housewife at Rs 5000 per month, but without any rationale or reasoning concluded that she was a non-earning member and reduced the same to Rs 2500, which was affirmed [Arun Kumar Agrawal v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., FAFO No. 2408 of 2003, order dated 30-4-2004 (All)] by the High Court. Disapproving the same and restoring the assessed income, this Court observed at paras 26 and 27 as follows : (SCC pp. 237-38)

“26. In India the courts have recognised that the contribution made by the wife to the house is invaluable and cannot be computed in terms of money. The gratuitous services rendered by the wife with true love and affection to the children and her husband and managing the household affairs cannot be equated with the services rendered by others. A wife/mother does not work by the clock. She is in the constant attendance of the family throughout the day and night unless she is employed and is required to attend the employer's work for particular hours. She takes care of all the requirements of the husband and children including cooking of food, washing of clothes, etc. She teaches small children and provides invaluable guidance to them for their future life. A housekeeper or maidservant can do the household work, such as cooking food, washing clothes and utensils, keeping the house clean, etc., but she can never be a substitute for a wife/mother who renders selfless service to her husband and children.

27. It is not possible to quantify any amount in lieu of the services rendered by the wife/mother to the family i.e. the husband and children. However, for the purpose of award of compensation to the dependants, some pecuniary estimate has to be made of the services of the housewife/mother. In that context, the term “services” is required to be given a broad meaning and must be construed by taking into account the loss of personal care and attention given by the deceased to her children as a mother and to her husband as a wife. They are entitled to adequate compensation in lieu of the loss of gratuitous services rendered by the deceased. The amount payable to the dependants cannot be diminished on the ground that some close relation like a grandmother may volunteer to render some of the services to the family which the deceased was giving earlier.”

.....12. The second deceased was a school-going child aged about 12 years. She had a whole future to look forward in life with all normal human aspirations. She died prematurely due to the accident at a very tender age for no fault of hers even before she could start to understand the beauty and joys of life with all its ups and downs. The loss of a human life untimely at childhood can never be measured in terms of loss of earning or monetary loss alone. The emotional attachments involved to the loss of the child can have a devastating effect on the family which needs to be visualised and understood. Grant of non-pecuniary damages for the wrong done by awarding compensation for loss of expectation in life is therefore called for.

13. Undoubtedly the injury inflicted by deprivation of the life of the child is very difficult to quantify. The future also abounds with uncertainties. Therefore, the courts have used the expression "just compensation" to get over the difficulties in quantifying the figure to ensure consistency and uniformity in awarding compensation. This determination shall not depend upon financial position of the victim or the claimant but rather on the capacity and ability of the deceased to provide happiness in life to the claimants had she remained alive. The compensation is for loss of prospective happiness which the claimant would have enjoyed had the child not died at the tender age. Since the child was studying in a school and opportunities in life would undoubtedly abound for her as the years would have rolled by, compensation must also be granted with regard to future prospects. It can safely be presumed that education would have only led to her better growth and maturity with better prospects and a bright future for which compensation needs to be granted under non-pecuniary damages. (See R.K. Malik v. Kiran Pal [R.K. Malik v. Kiran Pal, (2009) 14 SCC 1 : (2009) 5 SCC (Civ) 265 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1265].)

41. Applying the dictum of the aforesaid decisions in context with the facts and the evidence on record of the instant case, this Court is of the clear opinion that the Tribunal erred in taking Rs. 3,000/- per month as notional income as this Court finds that the fact regarding earning through a Tea Stall was clearly established by the evidence of the witnesses who were cross-examined but nothing adverse could be elicited from the testimony to cast a doubt over their depositions. However, even if the notional income in case of a homemaker was to be assessed and noticing that the accident occurred in the year 2016 even then a sum of Rs. 6,000/- per month was a better figure to adopt as the base as in the case of Rajendra Singh (supra) wherein the Apex Court also took the notional income in case of a homemaker at Rs. 6,000/- also related to an accident which occurred in the year 2012.

42. Assessing the overall situation in a holistic fashion with a moderate approach this Court finds that the notional income of the deceased should have been safely taken at Rs. 5,000/- per month. The claimants were also entitled for providing future prospects at the rate of 25%. It is true that even in case where notional income is assessed the Tribunal is required to make adjustments for the personal expenses and in this case where there were three dependents, accordingly, 1/3rd ought to have been deducted.

43. To this extent, the submission of learned counsel for the Insurance Company is justified and this Court too finds that the Tribunal erred in not making deductions for the personal expenses despite the same the Tribunal awarded a sum of Rs. 70,000/- towards the head for consortium, loss of estate and funeral expenses and finally granted a total sum of Rs. 7,45,000/- to the claimants.

44. However, if this Court computes the compensation taking Rs. 5,000/- per month as income (income from the Tea Stall and computation as a homemaker, of the deceased) and adding 25% towards the future prospects which would be Rs. 1,250/- per month would make the income @ Rs. 6,250/- per month. From this, if

1/3rd is deducted towards the personal expenses and rounding it off to Rs. 2, 100/- per month, then the net income would be [Rs. 6,250-2,100] Rs. 4,150/- per month. Adopting a multiplier of 15 as per decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma (supra), the compensation amount would be Rs. 7,47,000/- to which the amount towards consortium and loss of estate and funeral expenses, if added at Rs. 70,000/-, would finally rest the award at 8,17,000/-.

45. Once again if it is recapitulated, it would be found that the Tribunal without making deduction for personal expenses yet awarded a sum of Rs. 7,45,000/-. If deduction would have been made then the amount of the Tribunal would get de-escalated to around Rs. 5,20,000/-. On the other hand upon re-computation on the enhanced income, the amount determined is Rs. 8,17,000/-.

46. Now, this Court is poised to determine the delicate task of assessing the just and fair compensation. Whether mathematical calculations should be preferred or considering the facts and overall circumstances including the evidence and adopting the correct and settled methodology with a pragmatic and realistic approach and also keeping in mind that the difference between the amount already awarded and which could be awarded is only about Rs. 72,000/- Whereas the respondents did not seek enhancement of the award and upon accepting the contention of the appellant and at the given base income adopted by the Tribunal and if deduction is made the amount would be hugely disproportionate.

47. Thus, in the aforesaid facts and circumstances and for the detailed discussions and reasons, this Court is not inclined to interfere in the quantum of the award as awarded by the Tribunal but for different reasons as recorded hereinabove. The award dated 07.08.2019 passed in Claim Petition No. 81 of 2018 is affirmed. Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed. In the facts and circumstances, there shall be no order as to costs. Any amount deposited before this Court or before the Tribunal in pursuance of the order of this Court, if any, shall be remitted to the Claims Tribunal expeditiously to be released in favour of the claimants-respondents.

8. UK HC in Ravindra Singh Negi Vs Workmen's Compensation Commr & ors. (2005) 106 FLR 808

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal
Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard, learned counsel for the appellant and learned counsel for the respondent.

2. By way of this appeal, the insurance company has challenged the judgment and award dated 25.1.2005 passed by Workmen Compensation Commissioner/Assistant Labour Commissioner, Shahjahanpur in W.C.A. No.5/WCA/2003.

3. The award passed by the Commissioner has been challenged by the claimant raising the following substantial question of law:

"a) Whether, the learned Workmen Compensation Commissioner was justified in awarding the compensation when the cause of murder has no nexus with the course of employment of arising out of such employment ?

b) Whether there being no proximate connection between the employment and the incidents of murder, can it be deemed to be an accident as provided under Section 3 of Workmen Compensation ?

c) Whether the learned Workmen Compensation Commissioner / Assistant Labour Commissioner, was justified in awarding 7% interest on the awarded amount of compensation ?

d) Whether the Workmen Compensation Commissioner was justified in awarding the interest against the insurer as the insurer who under took the liability to indemnify the employer was not himself, the employer as Section 4A(3) could be invoked only against an employer, as against any person in section 31 of Workmen Compensation Act ?"

4. The claimants have filed cross objection challenging the grant of interest at the rate of 7% which is against the mandate of statute namely, Employee's Compensation Act, 1923. The question of law is whether Commissioner can award interest against the provisions of Section

4A of Act, 1923. Learned counsel for the claimants had relied on the decision of Uttarkhand High Court in Ravindra Singh Negi Versus Workmen's Compensation Commissioner and others, 2005(106) FLR 808.

5. So as to appreciate the questions of law the accident did not occur due to employment and during the employment. The factual scenario as it sculled out form the record is that on 20.11.2002 when the truck was plied, some miscreants came with a L.P. Car, they saw dead the driver and the owner of the truck whereby the driver and the owner of goods died on the spot and the son of the claimants Irfan died out of the gun shot injury while being treated in the hospital. The deceased Irfan was serving as a helper. The postmortum report shows that the deceased died out of gun shot injury. The evidence shows that he was an helper on the truck. The finding of fact on issue nos. 1 , 2 & 3 are findings of fact and, therefore, the so called substantial question of law at a and b is covered by the judgment of Apex Court in Rita Devi Vs. New India Assurance Company Limited, LAWS(SC)2000 499 that murder while on job is an employment accident. Hence, the said question is answered against the insurance company.

6. As far as question (c) is concerned both the insurance company and claimants have raised objection therefore the submission of both the counsel will have to be considered.

7. It is submitted by learned counsel for appellant that the learned Commissioner could not have granted interest lower than the statutory interest as per Section 4A of Employee's Compensation Act, 1923. The Commissioner cannot grant such conditional order. The same is bad in the eye of law.

8. The only ground pressed by the claimant is that the Commissioner could not have granted interest de hors the provisions of Section 4A of the Employee's Compensation Act, 1923 which reads as under :

"4A. Compensation to be paid when due and penalty for default:-

(1) Compensation under Section 4 shall be paid as soon as it falls due.

(2) In cases where the employer does not accept the liability for compensation to the extent claimed, he shall be bound to make provisional payment based on the extent of liability which he accepts, and, such payment shall be deposited with the Commissioner or made to the workman, as the case may be, without prejudice to the right of the workman to make any further claim.

(3) Where any employer is in default in paying the compensation due under this Act within one month from the date it fell due, the Commissioner shall--

(a) direct that the employer shall, in addition to the amount of the arrears, pay simple interest thereon at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum or at such higher rate not exceedign the maximum of the lendign rates of any scheduled bank as may be specified by the Central Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, on the amount due; and

(b) If, in his opinion, there is no justification for the delay, direct that the employer shall, in addition to the amount of the arrears and interest thereon, pay a further sum not exceeding fifty per cent of such amount by way of penalty:

Provided that an order for the payment of penalty shall not be passed under clause (b) without giving a reasonable opportunity to the employer to show cause why it should not be passed.

Explanation - For the purposes of this Sub-section, "scheduled bank" means a bank for the time being included in the Second Schedule to the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (2 of 1934).

[(3A) The interest and the penalty payable under sub-section (3) shall be paid to the workman or his dependant, as the case may be.]]"

9. The above question of law is no longer res integra in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Oriental Insurance Company Vs. Siby George and Others, 2012 (4) T.A.C. 4 (S.C.) which is later in point of time, wherein it is held that liability to pay interest is on Insurance Company. All other grounds mentioned in the memo of appeal are in the realm of question of facts and the finding of the Commissioner on these issues are not perverse, hence, are not disturbed by this Court as this Court is fortified in its view by the decision of the Apex Court passed in Civil Appeal No.7470 of 2009 North East Karnataka Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Sujatha decided on 2.11.2018, Golla Rajanna Etc. Etc. Vs. Divisional Manager and Another, 2017 (1) TAC 259 (SC) & Mayan vs. Mustafa and another, 2022 ACJ 524 wherein the Apex Court has held that under Section 30 of Workmen Compensation Act, the High Court cannot enter into the arena of facts unless they are proved to be perverse and unless there is a question of law involved.

10. The Tribunal granted interest only if there is no payment within one month this finding is against the mandate of this Court. This Court is fortified in its view by the decision of this Court passed in First Appeal From Order No.2126 of 2019 (Sunita Mishra and another Vs. M.T.G. Infra Power Pvt. Ltd and another) decided on 13.9.2019.

11. The appeal is dismissed as a question of law are answered against the appellant. The cross objection of claimant is allowed.

12. The awarded amount shall carry 12% simple interest which is statutory rate of interest from the date of accident till deposit of difference in interest is made by insurance company.

13. The claimants be paid the amount forthwith.

14. Record be transmitted to the Commissioner.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard R.K. Porwal, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Shashi Kant Srivastava, learned counsel for respondent and perused the judgment and order impugned.

2. This appeal, at the behest of the claimants, challenges the judgment and award dated 16.4.1998 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/IVth Additional District Judge, Etawah (hereinafter referred to as 'Tribunal') in M.A.C.No.402 of 1995 awarding a sum of Rs.98,000/- with interest at the rate of 12% as compensation.

3. The accident is not in dispute. The issue of negligence decided by the Tribunal is not in dispute. The vehicle insured with the respondent - insurance company is not in dispute. The respondent has not challenged the liability imposed on them. The only issue to be decided by this Court is, the quantum of compensation awarded.

4. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the compensation awarded by the Tribunal is on the lower side as the deceased -Ramwati is shown to be wife of appellant who has engaged in the vocation as a labour and agriculturist. The deceased left behind her husband and five children and the tribunal has considered her income to be only Rs.500/- per month and granted multiplier of 16. The tribunal has also granted meager amount of Rs.2,000/- towards funeral expenses as the accident occurred on 18.6.1995. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that the income of the deceased in the year 1995 as per Lata Wadhwa v. State of Bihar AIR 2001 SC 3218, can be considered to be Rs.3,000/- per month namely Rs.36,000/- per annum, to which as the deceased was below 35 years of age, 40% should be added, as she was survived by six persons, $\frac{1}{4}$ should be deducted and the multiplier of 16 should be granted. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellant that non peculiar damages may be awarded as per the judgment of National Insurance Company Limited Vs. Pranay Sethi and Others, 2017 0 Supreme (SC) 1050 which has been made applicable retrospectively with 10% increase for every three years.

5. Sri Shashi Kant Srivastava, learned counsel for insurance company has submitted that the income granted by the Tribunal is just and proper. However he could not point out that the future loss which has not been granted has been properly granted. As far as multiplier is concerned, he has left that the same may be decided on the basis of judgment of Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma and others Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation and Another, 2009 LawSuit (SC). It is submitted by learned counsel for respondent in his oral cross objection that the interest at the rate of 12% granted by the Tribunal is on much higher side and requires to be reduced.

6. Heard the learned counsels for the parties and considered the factual data. This Court finds that the accident occurred on 18.6.1995 causing death of Ramwati who was 35 years of age at the time of accident. The Tribunal has assessed his income to be Rs.500/- per month which according to this Court, in the year of accident, would be at least Rs.1,000/- per month as she was in the vocation of doing labour work and agriculturist. To which as the deceased was in the age bracket of 31-35, 40% of the income will have to be added in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Pranay Sethi (Supra) and the general trend even in earlier 1960 trend in case titled Gobald Motor Service Ltd. and another Vs. R.M.K Veluswami and other, 1962 SCR(1) 929, the addition of 40% can be granted. As far as deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased is concerned, it should be $\frac{1}{4}$ looking to the facts of the case. The multiplier applicable would be 16 in view of the decision of the Apex Court in Sarla Verma Vs. Delhi Transport Corporation, (2009) 6 SCC 121 as the deceased was in the age bracket of 31-35 years.

7. The total compensation payable is recalculated and is computed herein below:

- i. Annual Income Rs.12,000/- (Rs.1,000/- per month)
- ii. Percentage towards future prospects : 40% namely Rs.4800/-
- iii. Total income : Rs.12,000 + Rs.4800/- = Rs.16,800/-
- iv. Income after deduction of $\frac{1}{4}$ th towards personal expenses : Rs.12,600/-
- v. Multiplier applicable : 16
- vi. Loss of dependency: Rs.12,600/- x 16 = Rs.2,01,600/-
- vii. Amount under non pecuniary heads : Rs.70,000/-
- viii. Total compensation : Rs.2,71,600/-.

8. As far as issue of interest is concerned, this Court is in agreement with oral cross objection of learned counsel for the respondent- insurance company raised in appeal that interest should not have been awarded at the rate of 12%. Hence, the above, amount awarded by the Tribunal would carry interest at the rate of 7% from the date of filing of claim petition till the decision and the enhanced amount would carry interest at the rate of 6% from the date of filing of the claim petition till the amount is deposited.

9. No other grounds are urged orally when the matter was heard.

10. In view of the above, the appeal is partly allowed. Judgment and decree passed by the Tribunal shall stand modified to the aforesaid extent. The respondent- insurance company shall deposit the amount within a period of 12 weeks from today with interest as directed above and disbursed to the claimant. The amount already deposited be deducted from the amount to be deposited. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Tribunal forthwith.

11. On depositing the amount in the Registry of Tribunal, Registry is directed to first deduct the amount of deficit court fees, if any. Considering the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of A.V. Padma V/s. Venugopal, Reported in 2012 (1) GLH (SC), 442, the order of investment is not passed because applicants /claimants are neither illiterate or rustic villagers.

12. In view of the ratio laid down by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court, in the case of Smt. Hansaguri P. Ladhani v/s The Oriental Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2007(2) GLH 291, total amount of interest, accrued on the principal amount of compensation is to be apportioned on financial year to financial year basis and if the interest payable to claimant for any financial year exceeds Rs.50,000/-, insurance company/owner is/are entitled to deduct appropriate amount under the head of 'Tax Deducted at Source' as provided u/s 194A (3) (ix) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and if the amount of interest does not exceeds Rs.50,000/- in any financial year, registry of this Tribunal is directed to allow the claimant to withdraw the amount without producing the certificate from the concerned Income- Tax Authority. The aforesaid view has been reiterated by this High Court in Review Application No.1 of 2020 in First Appeal From Order No.23 of 2001 (Smt. Sudesna and others Vs. Hari Singh and another) while disbursing the amount.

13. Fresh Award be drawn accordingly in the above petition by the tribunal as per the modification made herein. The Tribunals in the State shall follow the direction of this Court as herein aforementioned as far as disbursement is concerned, it should look into the condition of the litigant and the pendency of the matter and judgment of A.V. Padma (supra). The same is to be applied looking to the facts of each case.

14. The Tribunal shall follow the guidelines issued by the Apex Court in Bajaj Allianz General Insurance Company Private Ltd. v. Union of India and others vide order dated 27.1.2022, as the purpose of keeping compensation is to safeguard the interest of the claimants. As long period has elapsed, the amount be deposited in the Saving Account of claimants in Nationalized Bank without F.D.R.

15. This Court is thankful to both the counsels for getting this matter decided.

Counsel for the Appellants:

Sri P.K. Agarwal, Sri Ram Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:

A. Civil Law-Motor Vehicles Act, 1988-Sections 173- enhancement of compensation- The deceased left behind five dependents- claimants sought compensation in the sum of Rs.4,00,000/- together with 18% annual interest- deceased was aged 31 years and would work on the jeep as an assistant and a partner to the owner- The two adults were his widow and the mother, and the three minors, his children- Going by Rule 220-A (2)(iii) of Rules, 1998 reckoning the minor dependents as half a unit, the total number of dependents would be three and a half- It would be rounded off or rationalized to 'four'- According to the holding in Sarla Verma (for a married man, leaving behind dependents in the bracket of 4-6, a deduction of one-fourth has to be directed towards personal and living expenses of the deceased- The Tribunal has directed a quantified deduction of Rs.800/-, that is about two-fifth of the deceased's income, determined by the Tribunal, that is to say, Rs.2000/-. This Court, therefore, holds that the Tribunal has ordered an excessive deduction towards personal expenses, which should be substituted by a deduction of one-fourth- the appropriate multiplier to be adopted is '16'- Tribunal erred in applying the multiplier of '15'- Annual income of the deceased is considered to be Rs. 36,000/- 50% added towards future prospects as per Rules 220-A(3) of 1998 and applied Multiplier 16- Hence, total compensation granted Rs. 878000/ @ 7%. (Para 1 to 47)

B. (I) Spousal consortium is generally defined as rights pertaining to the relationship of a husband-wife which allows compensation to the surviving spouse for loss of "company, society, cooperation, affection, and aid of the other in every conjugal relation". [Black's Law Dictionary (5th Edn., 1979).]

(II). Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of "parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training".

(III). Filial consortium is the right of the parents to compensation in the case of an accidental death of a child. An accident leading to the death of a child causes great shock and agony to the parents and family of the deceased. The greatest agony for a parent is to lose their child during their lifetime. (Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

This is a claimants' appeal arising out of a judgment and award dated 26.04.2000 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Bareilly, seeking enhancement of compensation.

2. Motor Accident Claims Petition No.305 of 1999 was instituted before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ the District Judge, Bareilly on 21.04.1999 on behalf of the five dependents of the late Shakeel Ahmad – two adults and three minors – claiming compensation for his death in a motor accident from the owner and the insurers of Truck No. UP-22-6933. According to the claimants, on 2nd of April, 1999, Shakeel Ahmad was on board Jeep No. UP-25-5646. He was deboarding passengers on one side of the road, at about half past five in the evening, parking the jeep there. In the meantime, Truck No. UP-22-6933, driven negligently and at a high speed, came on from the Kicha end and hit Shakeel Ahmad. He was grievously injured.

Shakeel was conveyed to the Primary Health Centre, Baheri for medical aid and thence to the District Hospital, Bareilly for treatment. During treatment, he succumbed to the injuries.

3. According to the five claimant-appellants (for short, 'the claimants'), Shakeel Ahmad was a healthy and hard working young man. His sudden death brought ruin to the family. The claimants sought compensation in the sum of Rs.4,00,000/- together with 18% annual interest. It is the claimants' case that Shakeel Ahmad was aged 30 years and would work on the jeep as an assistant and a partner to the owner. The offending truck was insured with the United India Insurance Co. Ltd. through its Divisional Manager, Rampur Garden, Bareilly (for short, 'the Insurers') vide Cover Note No. 706310, valid from 08.01.1999 to 07.01.2000. The Insurers were impleaded as opposite party No.1 to the claim petition and respondent No.1 to this appeal. The offending truck was owned by one Khalil Ahmad, who was arrayed as opposite party No.2 to the claim petition and respondent No.2 to this appeal. He is the registered owner of the truck and shall hereinafter be called 'the owner'.

4. The owner filed a written statement, where he has acknowledged the fact that he is the registered owner of the offending truck. He has admitted the fact that on 02.04.1999, the truck was proceedings from Kicha to Bareilly. It was driven at a regulated speed, with due care by its driver. The jeep driver was operating the vehicle negligently. The offending truck was insured with the Insurers under a cover note valid from 08.01.1999 to 07.01.2000. The driver of the offending truck was Rajesh Kumar, who held a driving licence valid upto 16.04.2000. He had not been negligent in any way in driving the truck. It was urged that since the offending truck was insured, if any liability be found for the owner, it has to be made good by the Insurers.

5. The Insurers filed a separate written statement and denied the factum of accident. They have denied the deceased's age, avocation and income. It has also been denied that the claimants were dependent upon the deceased. It is also pleaded that all the legal representatives of the deceased have not been made parties and, therefore, the claim petition is bad for non-joinder. A plea has further been raised to the effect that the driver of the offending truck was not made a party, again leading to non-joinder. The accident did not happen on account of negligence of the driver of the offending truck and, therefore, the Insurers are not liable. The owner was operating the offending truck without registration, a fitness certificate and contrary to the terms of the insurance policy. The driver of the truck did not have a valid driving licence. The claimants have come up with an inflated claim. According to the Insurers, the claim petition deserved to be rejected.

6. On the pleadings of parties, the Tribunal struck the following issues (translated into English from Hindi):

“1. Whether on 02.04.1999, at about 5:30 in the evening, at the Baheri Bypass, Truck No. UP-22-6933, driven negligently, recklessly and at a high speed by its driver, proceeding from the Kicha end of the road, hit Shakeel, on account of which he died?

2. Whether at the time of the accident, the driver of the vehicle in question did not have a valid driving licence?

3. Whether at the time of the accident, the vehicle in question was validly insured with opposite party No.1, United India Insurance Co. Ltd.?

4. Whether the claim petition is bad for non-joinder of necessary party, on account of non-impleadment of the driver of Vehicle No. UP-22-6933?

5. Whether the claimants are entitled to compensation? If yes, how much and from which opposite party?”

7. The claimants examined in support of the claim petition PW-1 Hasima Begum, Mohd. Islam PW-2 and Salim PW-3. The claimants produced in documentary evidence vide a list of document, bearing paper No. 17-Ga, six documents, which include a photostat copy of the cover note of the offending truck, a photostat copy of the truck driver's driving licence, a photostat copy of the tax paid for the offending truck and a fitness certificate of the truck. In addition, through another list, bearing paper No. 24-Ga, nine other documents were filed, that include a certified copy of the FIR, a certified copy of the charge sheet and a certified copy of the postmortem report. The Insurers filed a true copy of the insurance policy, but did not lead any oral evidence.

8. Issue No.1 was answered for the claimants, holding that on the date and time of the accident, the deceased died on account of rash and negligent driving by the driver of the offending truck. Issue No.2 was answered against the Insurers, holding that on the date of the accident, Rajesh Kumar, the driver of the offending truck had a valid driving licence. Likewise, Issue No.3 was decided against the Insurers, holding that on the date of the accident, the offending truck was insured with the Insurers. Issue No.4 was also decided in favour of the claimants and against the Insurers, holding that it was not bad for non-joinder of a necessary party on account of non-impleadment of the offending truck's driver.

9. While answering Issue No.5, the Tribunal held the deceased's income to be a sum of Rs.2000/- per month, and deducting a sum of Rs.800/- towards personal and living expenses, a monthly dependency of Rs.1200/- was determined. The Tribunal applied a multiplier of '15' to find a total substantive dependency of Rs.2,16,000/-. A consolidated sum of Rs.10,000/- was awarded to the widow for the loss of consortium, funeral expenses and loss of estate. Accordingly, a compensation in the sum of Rs.2,26,000/- was awarded to the claimants with an apportionment of Rs.1,10,000/- to the widow, Rs.26,000/- to the deceased's mother and Rs.30,000/- each to the three minor children. The said sum of money was ordered to carry interest @ 10% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition until realization. The compensation awarded to the minors was directed to be placed in a fixed deposit with a Nationalized Bank, to be held there until the minors attained majority.

10. Heard Mr. Ram Singh, learned Counsel for the claimants. No one has appeared on behalf of the owner or the Insurers, though service was held sufficient vide order dated 18.10.2022.

11. The only issue that has been canvassed in this appeal before this Court is the inadequacy of compensation awarded.

12. The Tribunal has reasoned that the deceased was a helper on the jeep. He was a partner too, in the enterprise of ferrying passengers for hire on the jeep with the registered owner. According to the claimants, he would earn Rs.3500/- per month. The Tribunal has looked into the testimony of PW-1, the deceased's wife, who has said that her husband would garner an income of Rs.3500/- by operating the jeep.

13. The Tribunal has also looked into the evidence of PW-2, Mohd. Islam, the registered owner of the jeep. Mohd. Islam has said in his testimony that the deceased would look after the jeep and was a partner by verbal agreement. After deducting expenses involved in the vehicle's operation, according to the registered owner, the deceased would share profits with him equally. The deceased would save for himself a sum of Rs.4000-4500/- per month. In the cross-examination, the Tribunal has noted that Mohd. Islam, PW-2 has said that in the month of March, 1999, for the last time, Shakeel had paid him a sum of Rs.3500/-. The Tribunal has also noted that this witness has said that he had a register recording the monthly income, but did not produce it in evidence.

14. The Tribunal has concluded that all this evidence proves that the deceased would work on Jeep No. UP-25-5646 and on the date of accident too, he was deboarding passengers. It has also been held that according to the autopsy report, the deceased's age was 32 years. In the absence of any documentary evidence, the Tribunal has opined that the deceased's income ought to be determined at a sum of Rs.2000/- per month, out of which Rs.800/- he would spend on himself. As already noted about the reckoning of compensation, the Tribunal ultimately held the claimants entitled to a sum of Rs.2,26,000/-.

15. Upon hearing learned Counsel for the claimants and perusing the record, this Court finds that there is an unchallenged assertion about the deceased's income being Rs.3500/-. The said income is half of the profits earned by operating the jeep, of which Mohd. Islam was the owner. Mohd. Islam has said that the deceased would earn Rs.4000-4500/- per month. The widow has said that he would earn Rs.3500/-. Therefore, for the Tribunal to say that the deceased would earn Rs.2000/- per month is no more than an ipse dixit of the Judge in the Tribunal.

16. The deceased's wife, in the cross-examination done at the instance of the Insurers, has stood by the position that her husband would earn a sum of Rs.3500/- per month, which she has described as salary. The witness being apparently not an educated woman, she would not understand that the deceased was sharing profits with the registered owner earned out of the operating jeep for hire, carrying passengers. What is important is that in the cross-examination, there is nothing said to discredit the assertion about the deceased's income being Rs.3500/- per month. Mohd. Islam, PW-2, in his testimony has pegged the the deceased's monthly income at a figure of Rs.4000-4500/-. In his cross-examination, he has come out with the fact that in the month of March, 1999, the deceased had paid him a sum of Rs.3500/-. There being an equal sharing between the registered owner of the jeep, PW-2 and the deceased, the deceased too would have earned the same sum of money, during the month of March, 1999.

17. This Court is of opinion that in the nature of the work that the deceased and the registered owner of the ill-fated jeep did together, one can hardly expect maintenance of ledgers, books of account, balance-sheets or tax returns. The Court cannot turn away its face from the hard reality that much economic activity, particularly, in the days gone by, happened outside the formal regime of recorded transactions, but it does not mean that these activities to earn ones livelihood were not there. Howsoever illegal, vehicles registered as private ones, particularly jeeps, have always dotted the highways, at least in this State, to ferry passengers for hire or reward. They have afforded means of transport to some and to others an occupation. We do not know whether the ill-fated jeep was registered as a commercial vehicle or not. We assume it was not. Even then, it cannot be said that the jeep was not exploited for commercial gain by ferrying passengers that yielded a definitive income, both to the registered owner and the deceased. Going by the contemporary standards of the time at the turn of the century, an unskilled labourer would earn about Rs.100/- a day. That was the figure accepted for an unskilled labourer in the earlier years of the last decade of the 20th century.

18. The deceased was not a casual labourer, but a person engaged in providing a service to passengers for hire or reward, using a motor vehicle, sharing profits with the registered owner. In the circumstances, on the most conservative estimate, this Court is of opinion that the deceased can safely be credited with a monthly income of Rs.3000/- per month at the time of his demise in the fatal motor accident. We hold accordingly.

19. It is on the foot of this monthly income that this Court proceeds to determine the claimants' dependency and the compensation. A monthly income of Rs.3000/- would work to an annual income of Rs.36,000/-.

20. The deceased left behind five dependents, about whom, there is no doubt that they were his dependents. The two adults were his widow and the mother, and the three minors, his children. Going by Rule 220-A (2)(iii) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short the 'Rules of 1998'), reckoning the minor dependents as half a unit, the total number of dependents would be three and a half. It would be rounded off or rationalized to 'four'. According to the holding in Sarla Verma (Smt) v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121, for a married man, leaving behind dependents in the bracket of 4-6, a deduction of one-fourth has to be directed towards personal and living expenses of the deceased. The Tribunal has directed a quantified deduction of Rs.800/-, that is about two-fifth of the deceased's income, determined by the Tribunal, that is to say, Rs.2000/-. This Court, therefore, holds that the Tribunal has ordered an excessive deduction towards personal expenses, which should be substituted by a deduction of one-fourth.

21. The Tribunal has applied a multiplier of '15'. The deceased was held 32 years old. Going by the table in Paragraph No.40 of the decision in Sarla Verma (supra) for a victim in the age group of 31-35 years, the appropriate multiplier to be adopted is '16'. The Tribunal, therefore, erred in applying the multiplier of '15'.

22. The next issue that has been raised by the learned Counsel for the claimants is the non-award of anything towards future prospects. In view of the holding of the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company v. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680, future prospects are to be awarded in cases of victims of fatal motor accidents, who are self-employed or worked on a fixed salary too. The question would certainly arise whether future prospects, to which the claimants are entitled, would be governed by the law laid down in Pranay Sethi (supra) or Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998. This issue is no longer res integra in view of the holding in New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822, where it has been observed:

"9. It is to be noted that the validity of the Rules was not, in any way, questioned in the instant matter and thus the only question that we are called upon to consider is whether in its application, sub-Rule 3(iii) of Rule 220A of the Rules must be given restricted scope or it must be allowed to operate fully.

10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid.

12. We, therefore, reject the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant and affirm the view taken by the Tribunal as well as the High Court and dismiss this appeal without any order as to costs."

23. There is no cavil, therefore, that future prospects in the State of Uttar Pradesh have to be quantified in accordance with Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, and not the principles in Pranay Sethi.

24. The next issue which arises is whether Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, which came into force by virtue of Notification No. 777/XXX4-2011-4(3)-2010 dated 26th September, 2011 i.e. The Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011, would apply retrospectively to an accident which happened much before the amendment. This issue fell for consideration of a Division Bench of this Court in Sushil Kumar and others v. M/s. Sampark Logistic Private Limited and others, 2017 (35) LCD 1311. In Sushil Kumar (supra), it has been held:

"31. Rule 220-A was inserted in the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 in view of the various decisions of the law courts for providing benefit on account of future prospects of the injured/deceased. It provides for addition of certain percentage of the income of the injured/deceased in his actual income depending upon the age of the injured/deceased for the purposes of determination of the compensation. The aforesaid Rule came into effect on 26.09.2011 after the decision of the claim petition but before filing of the appeal though the accident took place on 08.05.2010 much before the enforcement of the above Rule.

32. It is in view of the above that an argument is being raised that Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident which had taken place on 08.05.2010.

33. In Ram Sarup Vs. Munshi AIR 1963 SC 553 it was laid down that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the rights of the parties.

34. The view expressed above was followed by the Supreme Court in Mula Vs. Godhu AIR 1971 SC 89.

35. In Dayawati Vs. Inderjit AIR 1966 SC 1423 the court had observed as under:-If the new law speaks in language, which expressly or by clear intendment, takes in even pending matters, the court of trial as well as the court of appeal must have regard to an intention so expressed, and the court of appeal may give effect to such a law even after the judgment of the court of first instance.

36. In Amarjit Kaur Vs. Pritam Singh AIR 1974 SC 2068 effect was given to the change in law during the pendency of an appeal as the hearing of an appeal under the procedural law of this country is in the nature of rehearing of the suit by superior court.

37. It was in the light of the above decisions that in Lakshmi Narayan Guin and others Vs. Nirranjan Modak AIR 1985 SC 111 it was held that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the right of the parties.

38. The aforesaid decision was followed by a Division Bench of this court in U.P. State Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Madhu Sharma and others, 2003

(4) AWC 2620 which was a case in relation to the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and it was observed that it is apparent that the change in law during the pendency of the original proceedings has to be taken into account so as to cover the rights of the parties.

39. In view of above decision the view expressed by the Division Bench of this court in ICICI Lombard (Supra) is not of good law as it does not takes into account the decisions referred to above in holding that the Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident that took place prior to the said date only for the reason that the Rule was not specifically stated to be retrospective in nature."

25. According to the law laid down by the Division Bench in Sushil Kumar (supra), which apparently binds this Court, the award of future prospects is to be made in accordance Rule 220-A(3) of Rules, 1998, notwithstanding the fact that accident happened prior to the amendment. Here, the deceased was aged less than 40 years and going by Rule 220-A(3), there has to be an addition of 50% to his income towards future prospects.

26. The next question that arises for consideration is the claimants' entitlement under the conventional heads. In Pranay Sethi, it has been held:

"48. This aspect needs to be clarified and appositely stated. The conventional sum has been provided in the Second Schedule to the Act. The said Schedule has been found to be defective as stated by the Court in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] . Recently, in Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy [Puttamma v.K.L.

Narayana Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 45 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 384 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 574] it has been reiterated by stating : (SCC p. 80, para 54)

"54. ... we hold that the Second Schedule as was enacted in 1994 has now become redundant, irrational and unworkable due to changed scenario including the present cost of living and current rate of inflation and increased life expectancy."

49. As far as multiplier or multiplicand is concerned, the same has been put to rest by the judgments of this Court. Para 3 of the Second Schedule also provides for general damages in case of death. It is as follows:

"3. General damages (in case of death):

The following general damages shall be payable in addition to compensation outlined above:

(i)	Funeral expenses	Rs 2000
(ii)	Loss of consortium, if beneficiary is the spouse	Rs 5000
(iii)	Loss of estate	Rs 2500
(iv)	Medical expenses — actual expenses incurred before death supported by bills/vouchers but not exceeding	Rs 15,000"

50. On a perusal of various decisions of this Court, it is manifest that the Second Schedule has not been followed starting from the decision in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] and there has been no amendment to the same. The conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined. As we notice, in different cases different amounts have been granted. A sum of Rs 1,00,000 was granted towards consortium in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4

SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . The justification for grant of consortium, as we find from Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] , is founded on the observation as we have reproduced hereinbefore.

51. On the aforesaid basis, the Court has revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads.

52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167] , it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads.”

27. What compensation for the loss of consortium is to be awarded and to which of the claimants, was the issue that was considered by the Supreme Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. v. Nanu Ram alias Chuhru Ram and others, (2018) 18 SCC 130, where it was held:

“21. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Pranay Sethi [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC 680 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 248 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 205] dealt with the various heads under which compensation is to be awarded in a death case. One of these heads is loss of consortium. In legal parlance, “consortium” is a compendious term which encompasses “spousal consortium”, “parental consortium”, and “filial consortium”. The right to consortium would include the company, care, help, comfort, guidance, solace and affection of the deceased, which is a loss to his family. With respect to a spouse, it would include sexual relations with the deceased spouse : [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]

21.1. Spousal consortium is generally defined as rights pertaining to the relationship of a husband-wife which allows compensation to the surviving spouse for loss of “company, society, cooperation, affection, and aid of the other in every conjugal relation”. [Black's Law Dictionary(5th Edn., 1979).]

21.2. Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of “parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training”.

21.3. Filial consortium is the right of the parents to compensation in the case of an accidental death of a child. An accident leading to the death of a child causes great shock and agony to the parents and family of the deceased. The greatest agony for a parent is to lose their child during their lifetime. Children are valued for their love, affection, companionship and their role in the family unit.

28. The Tribunal had directed compensation payable to the minor claimants to be placed in a fixed deposit with a nationalized bank until the minors attained majority. The youngest of the minors, who was two years at the time when the claim petition was instituted, would now be aged about 25 years. The others would be older. Therefore, the direction to invest any part of the compensation, now payable in fixed deposit, is not called for.

29. In view of the aforesaid conclusion, the compensation payable to the claimants in this appeal is revised and would have to be determined in the following manner:

(i) Monthly Income (of the deceased) = 3000

(ii) Annual Income (of the deceased) = 3000x12 = 36000

(iii) Annual Income+Future Prospects
(annual income x 50%) = 36000+18000 = 54000

(iv) Annual Dependency = Annual Income – one-fourth deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased = 54000-13500 = 40500

(v) Total Dependency = Annual Dependency x Applied Multiplier

The total compensation would therefore, work out to a figure of Rs.648000+ Rs.230000 = 878000

30. In the result, this appeal is allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded enhanced to Rs.8,78,000/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the Insurers, pursuant to the impugned award, shall be adjusted against it. The directions of the Tribunal for apportionment amongst the claimants shall remain intact, but it will no longer be necessary to require the compensation to be invested in any kind of a fixed deposit. (Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This appeal under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 is directed against the judgment and award of the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ the Additional District Judge, Court No.13, Allahabad dated 28.02.2006 passed in MACP No.407 of 2004.

2. The appeal is by the Insurance Company, who say that they are not liable.

3. Cross Objection No.65668 of 2013 has been brought on behalf of the claimants, who are respondents to the appeal, saying that the compensation awarded is insufficient and ought to be enhanced.

4. This judgment will decide both the appeal and the cross-objections.

5. The facts giving rise to the claim petition are that one Dinesh Kumar Kesarwani was engaged in the business of retailing rice. On 08.07.2004, he was proceeding on a bicycle along with one Somnath Kesarwani – both riding their bicycles from Police Station Saini, District Kaushambi towards Shiv Kuti in Allahabad. He was riding his bicycle according to the rule of the road. At about 20 minutes past 12 in the afternoon hours, a gas tanker approached from the Phaphamau end of the road. It bore registration No. HR-29GA-0320. The tanker was driven by its driver at a high speed and negligently. On the Phaphamau bridge, the tanker aforesaid came over to Kesarwani's side and hit his bicycle. Dinesh Kumar Kesarwani was crushed under the wheels of the tanker and died on the spot. The claim petition was instituted by Satya Narain Kesarwani, the deceased's father, claiming compensation for himself and the deceased's mother, Smt. Nirmala Devi, the two dependents, who survived Dinesh Kumar Kesarwani. It was claimed that the deceased was 25 years old and engaged in the business of selling rice. He was a self-employed man, who would earn Rs.6000/- per month.

6. The owner of the offending tanker, one Tara Chand Goel was impleaded as opposite party No.1 to the claim petition and the National Insurance Company Ltd., M.G. Marg, Civil Lines, Allahabad were the insurers of the offending tanker. The National Insurance Company (the appellant) and Tara Chand Goel (respondent No.3) shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the Insurers' and 'the owner', respectively. The father and the mother of the deceased, including the legal representatives of the father, substituted pending this appeal, shall be referred to as 'the claimants', unless the context otherwise requires. The claimants demanded a total compensation in the sum of Rs.12,55,000/-.

7. The owner filed a written statement, generally denying the claimants' case. It is pleaded that the offending tanker is insured with the Insurers and information of the accident was given to the Insurers. The offending tanker had a national permit, and that, it was fit and roadworthy. The driver of the tanker held a valid driving licence. The accident happened on account of the deceased's negligence while riding his bicycle. It was the deceased, who by his own negligence, came under the wheels of the offending tanker. Along with the written statement, the owner filed eight documents, which include a power of attorney, a notice sent to the Insurers, registration certificate, permit, fitness certificate, a copy of the insurance cover, driving licence and the five yearly permit.

8. The Insurers filed a separate written statement, generally denying the claimants' case. In the additional pleas, it was averred that the registration book, the driving licence and the permit of the offending tanker, besides other papers have not been filed along with the petition. The compensation claimed for the loss sustained was described as false and bogus, saying that no accident ever took place. It was averred that the claimants have not given the necessary documents and other information in support of the claim petition. The compensation demanded is disproportionate. A plea was also raised to the effect that the offending tanker was being driven against the terms and conditions of the insurance policy at the time of the accident, disentitling the claimants or the owners from recovering from the Insurers. In Paragraph No.29, it is averred that at the time of the accident, the driver of the offending tanker did not hold a valid and effective driving licence to drive the particular kind of vehicle that the offending one was. On these pleas, the Insurers asked to be relieved of their liability.

9. On the pleadings of parties, the following issues were framed (translated into English from Hindi):

“1. Whether on 08.07.2004 at about 12.20 in the afternoon, at the Ganga Bridge, Phaphamau, within the local limits of P.S. Shiv Kuti, District Allahabad, vehicle bearing registration No. HR-29GA-0320, driven at a high speed and negligently by its driver, hit Dinesh Kumar Kesarwani, when he was riding his bicycle, on account of which he sustained injury, leading to his death?

2. Whether the accident happened on account of the exclusive negligence of the deceased?

3. Whether at the time of the accident, the driver of the vehicle in question held a valid driving licence?

4. Whether at the time of the accident, the motor vehicle in question was insured the opposite party, Insurance Company, in accordance with rules?

5. Whether the claimants are entitled to receive any compensation, if yes, from whom?"

10. The claimants filed through a list of documents eight papers, that includes the First Information Report, the charge-sheet, the site plan, the postmortem report, the technical inspection report, the registration certificate, the insurance policy and a copy of the driving licence.

11. In the oral testimony, the claimants examined PW-1, Satya Narain, one of the two claimants. In addition, Somnath Kesarwani was examined as PW-2.

12. On behalf of the owners, a copy of the driving licence was filed. The Insurers filed a report of their Investigator on 24.02.2006, who submitted his report along with a certificate from the concerned Regional Transport Officer about the driving licence, subject matter of consideration here.

13. Issue No.1 was decided in favour of the claimants and against the owner and the Insurers. Issue No.2 was also decided in favour of the claimants and against the Insurers and the owner holding that there was no negligence of the deceased involved, leading to the accident. Issue No.3 was also decided in favour of the claimants and against the Insurers albeit with some vacillating remarks, but in the end holding that the Insurers could not prove by any evidence, apart from their own Investigator's report that the licence was forged or bogus. Issue No.4 was also decided in favour of the claimants and the owner and against the Insurers holding that on the date of the accident, the offending tanker was duly insured with the Insurers.

14. While deciding Issue No.5, which relates to compensation, to which the claimants are entitled, the Tribunal credited the deceased with a daily income of Rs.100/- per day and making allowance for six days of holiday/ non-working days, the monthly income was determined at a sum of Rs.2400/-. The deduction towards personal and living expenses was ordered to the extent of a one-third, that is say, Rs.800/-, leaving back a dependency for the claimants in the sum of Rs.1600/- per month. The annual income was, therefore, determined at Rs.19,200/-. The deceased's father was aged 49 years and his mother 46. The Tribunal adopted the multiplier of '13', going by the age of the claimants rather than the deceased. Adopting that multiplier, a compensation of Rs.2,49,600/- was awarded, to which was added a sum of Rs.2000/- in funeral expenses. Thus, the total compensation, that was awarded, was a sum of Rs.2,51,600/- carrying 6% simple interest, annually reckoned, from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. The entire compensation payable was directed by the Tribunal to be shared equally between the claimants.

15. Heard Mr. Komal Mehrotra, learned Counsel for the Insurers, Mr. Ram Singh, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the claimants and Mr. Vinay Kumar Chaturvedi, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the owner.

16. Mr. Ram Singh, learned Counsel has been heard in support of the cross-objections and Mr. Komal Mehrotra and Mr. Vinay Kumar Chaturvedi in answer.

17. It is argued by Mr. Komal Mehrotra that the Insurers are not liable in this case, because the driver was a man, named Hazrat Ali. He was not holding a valid licence. A photostat copy of the driving licence for this driver, that was provided, when verified with the Licensing Authority, Rajkot, Gujarat, who has purportedly issued it, revealed that the driving licence on the relative number was issued in the name of one Harsab Bhai. The driving licence verification report was submitted before the Tribunal. It is pointed out that along with the report that was filed, an application, paper No.26-Ga was moved, that is to say, the application dated 22nd February, 2006, requesting the Tribunal to summon the original record from the Licensing Authority. It is pointed out that by means of an order dated 24th February, 2006, the Tribunal directed the licence verification report to be kept on record, but did not pass any order to summon records from the Licensing Authority, Rajkot. It is argued that while deciding Issue No.3, the Tribunal committed a manifest error of law in holding that since the Insurers produced the Investigator's report on record to show that the driving licence was fake, whereas the claimants produced a copy of it, the Insurers' case about the licence being fake could not be accepted. It is emphasized that along with the Investigator's report dated 2nd September, 2005, the driving licence verification report from the Licensing Authority, Rajkot in original was also filed. The submission is that the Insurers by producing all this evidence evidence discharged their burden to show that the licence claimed for the driver by the owner was fake. With so much of evidence, it was for the claimants or the owner to prove by leading evidence in rebuttal that the licence was genuine. It is urged that in the face of such facts, the Insurers should have been given the right to recover from the owner as there was a breach of the policy.

18. About the compensation claimed, it is argued that there is no evidence of the deceased being gainfully employed in the business of retailing rice. Therefore, according to the Insurers, he could at best be credited with a notional income of Rs.15,000/- per year. The Tribunal was in error in finding for the deceased an annual income of Rs.19,200/-.

19. Mr. Ram Singh, learned Counsel for the claimants has refuted the submissions advanced on behalf of the Insurers. He submits that it is enough for the owner to produce a photostat copy of the licence, giving full particulars thereof. He emphasizes that to prove that the licence held by the driver was fake, burden lay upon the Insurers to ensure summoning of records from the Licensing Authority or an official of theirs, who issued the certificate about the licence, on the foot of which the licence is dubbed as fake. The official, once summoned, would have to prove the certificate and subject himself to cross-examination. It is then that the Insurers' burden could be discharged or shifted to the owner and the claimants, in the sense of the evidential burden.

20. On the point of the validity of the licence, learned Counsel for the owner, Mr. Vinay Kumar Chaturvedi has supported the claimants' stand. He too submits that given the details of the licence, it was incumbent upon the owner to summon some official from the Licensing Authority's office for the purpose of proving the certificate, on which the Insurers rely.

21. So far as the appeal is concerned, the thrust of the parties' contention is about the validity of the licence held by the driver and the standards by which it must be proved to be fake or held genuine. Of course, the allied question, who would bear the burden of dispelling the validity of the licence or affirming its genuineness, has been mooted at length during the hearing.

22. In support of his submission, Mr. Mehrotra has relied upon the decision of this Court in United India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Smt. Shashi Prabha Sharma and others, 2015 (4) TAC 650 (All). Apparently, the said Full Bench deals with a very different question, which is concerned more about the mode to recover from the owner assuming a case where the direction is to pay and recover. Therefore, the said authority is not of much assistance to the Insurers.

23. The next decision on which the learned Counsel for the Insurers has relied is National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Challa Upendra Rao, (2004) 8 SCC 517. The holding of their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Challa Upendra Rao (supra) is to the effect that where a transport vehicle plies without a permit, it constitutes a violation of Section 149(2) of the Motor Vehicles Act and affords a defence to the Insurers. In that case, it was held that the Insurers would have a right to pay and recover. To the understanding of this Court, that is not at all the point involved here.

24. Mr. Mehrotra has further placed reliance upon an unreported decision of this Court in Shri Kedar Singh v. Sarla Devi and others, FAFO No.2261 of 2019, decided on 27.09.2021. In Shri Kedar Singh (supra), there are certain remarks of my esteemed brother Siddharth that require consideration. In Shri Kedar Singh, it has been observed by His Lordship:

“16. Learned counsel for the respondent no.4/Reliance General Insurance Co. Ltd., has submitted that while deciding issue no.3 the tribunal has rightly proceeded and recorded a finding that the driver of the truck did not had a valid and effective driving licence at the time of the accident as the driving licence on record was found to be fake. A bare perusal of the finding on issue no.3 would go on to show that apart from bringing on record a mere photocopy of the driving licence (driving license no.2222/RJ/2005) no other evidence was filed by the owner/appellant. Neither the original driving license was brought on record by the owner of the truck/ appellant nor did he entered the witness box to substantiate the same. Even the driver was not examined by the owner of the truck/appellant. The insurance company on its part investigated the validity of the driving licence (DL No. 2222/RJ/2005) and consequently filed the report received from the concerned R.T.O. under Form 54 before the tribunal. The bare perusal of the report received on Form 54 would go on to show that the driving licence no. 2222/RJ/2005 was issued in favour of one Krishna Goapal and not in the name of the alleged offending driver i.e., Bhola. As such the photocopy of the driving licence of Bhola filed by owner of the truck/appellant was a fake document. It is a settled proposition of law that Form 54 is a public document which does not requires further evidence of formal proof by examining a witness....

18. During the course of further hearing the owner of the truck/ appellant relied upon the judgement of the Apex court in the case of Pappu and others Vs. Vinod Kumar Lamba and another, reported in (2018) 3 SCC,208 and Pepsu Road Transport Corporation vs. National Insurance Company Ltd., reported in 2013(6) AWC 5736. Both these judgements have been relied upon by the owner of the truck/appellant which in fact support the stand of the insurance company/respondent. In the case of Pappu (supra) the Apex court has laid down the parameters of burden of proof of driving licence.

19. It has been categorically held in para-13 in the case of Pappu(Supra) that " the insurance company would be made liable only when the foundational fact are pleaded and proved by the owner of the offending vehicle."

20. In the facts and circumstances of the present case neither did the owner of the truck/applicant bring on record the original driving license of the driver(Bhola) of offending vehicle nor did he enter into the witness box to establish the validity of the driving license. In fact even the driver was not produced before the tribunal. In such circumstances mere filing of photocopy of the driving license would not absolve the owner of the truck/appellant of his liability. To the contrary the insurance company/respondent on its part had duly filed Form 54 which categorically established the fact that the document brought on record by the owner respondent was a fake, forged, fraudulent and fabricated document.

21. So far as the case of Pepsu Road Transport Corporation(supra) is concerned the same is easily distinguishable and do not apply in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case. In the case of Pepsu(supra) the insurance Company had brought on record a photocopy of the register maintained for issuing the licence. The report itself was not conclusive since it mentioned that register might be missing. But in the facts and circumstances of the present case the Form 54 categorically mentioned that the driving licence was

22. Apart from the above in the case of Pepsu(supra) the insured/employer during the process of employment of the driver had put the driver to a driving test and had infact imparted training to him also. The said aspect of the matter was duly pleaded and proved by the owner/insured by entering the witness box and proving the same. In the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case, no such assertion or efforts had been made by the owner of the truck/appellant before the tribunal or for that matter before this court. He merely filed a photocopy of the driving license of driver Bhola, which would not discharge him from his burden of proof.

29. Regarding the second submission of the learned counsel for the owner of the truck/appellant of the discarding of the validity of driving licence of the truck driver by the tribunal, this court finds that only photocopy of the driving licence of the driver, Bhola was brought on record by the owner /appellant before the tribunal. The vehicle owner never appeared in witness box before the tribunal to prove that the driving licence was given to him by his driver, Bhola and he was satisfied that it is genuine. He also did not proved that he made efforts to see that the driver is competent to drive. He was required to prove before the tribunal that he had taken reasonable care in employing the driver, who was qualified and competent to drive the vehicle. The liability as between the insurer and the insured depends upon the reasonable care taken by the owner of the vehicle, while employing a qualified and competent driver. These basic facts are required to be proved by the owner of the vehicle before the tribunal so as to protect himself from the liability viz- a- viz insurance company before the Motor Accidents Claims Tribunal.”

25. In a more recent decision of the Supreme Court in Rishi Pal Singh v. New India Assurance Co. Ltd. and others, 2022 (3) ACC 556, the question about the burden of proof regarding the validity of the licence in a motor vehicle accident claim as between the owner, the insurer and the claimant arose for consideration of their Lordships, where it was held:

“10. The owner of the vehicle is expected to verify the driving skills and not run to the licensing authority to verify the genuineness of the driving license before appointing a driver. Therefore, once the owner is satisfied that the driver is competent to drive the vehicle, it is not expected from the owner thereafter to verify the genuineness of the driving license issued to the driver.”

26. Rishi Pal Singh (supra) was a case where the driving licence was not found genuine, but the facts were that the owner deposed on affidavit before the Tribunal that prior to employing the driver, he had subjected the driver to a driving test and found his driving skills satisfactory. In his cross-examination, the owner said that the driver was employed with him for three years before the date of the accident. The owner stood by the fact in his cross-examination that he had taken the driver's driving test before employing him. One feature of the case was that the owner said that the driving licence was obtained from the driver and it was issued by a Licensing Authority in Nagaland, but the owner did not produce it in evidence. The Tribunal and the High Court held that the owner alleged that the driver had a licence from Nagaland, but did not produce it.

Therefore, the Insurance Company was entitled to recover from the owner. Before their Lordships in appeal by special leave, as the report of the decision would show, the records of the Tribunal were requisitioned. The records revealed that the driver's licence was produced before the Tribunal by the claimant. The genuineness of that licence was investigated and in the report that was submitted, the driving licence purporting to be issued by the Licensing Authority, Mandi, State of Himachal Pradesh, was not found genuine. It was in the context of the above facts that in Rishi Pal Singh, it was held:

“5. Thus, it was the claimant alone who relied upon the license issued by Licensing Authority Mandi. The same was not found to be genuine. The statement of the owner, that the license was from Nagaland is without any supporting documents and is thus meaning less. The fact remains, having appointing driver after taking test, the Appellant was not expected to make enquiries from the licensing authority as to whether driving license shown to him is valid or not.

6. If the owner has stated that driver had produced the driving license from Nagaland but no such license was produced on record, it is obviously a mistake on the part of the owner. However, such aspect cannot be used to grant liberty to the Insurance Company to recover the amount from the owner when the driving license actually produced by the claimant themselves was from Una, Himachal Pradesh. It may be stated that falsus in uno, falsus in omnibus is not the principle applicable in India. Therefore, even if a part of the statement that the driver has produced the license from Nagaland is not correct, it is wholly inconsequential.”

27. There is no quarrel about the proposition that if it is the Insurers' case that the driver did not hold a valid driving licence, the burden of proof is upon the Insurers to prove it to be so. But, before that burden can be cast on the Insurers, there is an onus to be discharged by the owner of the offending tanker, which requires him to plead and prove the facts within his knowledge that the driver was the man he had authorized to drive the vehicle, and that, in the owner's belief, he held a valid driving licence at the time of the accident. In Pappu and others v. Vinod Kumar Lamba and another, (2018) 3 SCC 208, this was precisely the question that fell for consideration of the Supreme Court, where it was held:

“12. This Court in National Insurance Co. Ltd. [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 733] has noticed the defences available to the insurance company under Section 149(2)(a)(ii) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988. The insurance company is entitled to take a defence that the offending vehicle was driven by an unauthorised person or the person driving the vehicle did not have a valid driving licence. The onus would shift on the insurance company only after the owner of the offending vehicle pleads and proves the basic facts within his knowledge that the driver of the offending vehicle was authorised by him to drive the vehicle and was having a valid driving licence at the relevant time.”

28. There are some further remarks in the context of the facts in Pappu (supra), which led their Lordships to hold about the owner's initial burden or the onus probandi to be discharged about the driver's driving licence and his authorization to drive the vehicle before the insurer's burden to dispel the validity of the driver's licence comes into existence. These facts are mentioned in Paragraph No.13 of the report in Pappu, which read:

“13. In the present case, Respondent 1 owner of the offending vehicle merely raised a vague plea in the written statement that the offending Vehicle No. DIL 5955 was being driven by a person having valid driving licence. He did not disclose the name of the driver and his other details. Besides, Respondent 1 did not enter the witness box or examine any witness in support of this plea. Respondent 2 insurance company in the written statement has plainly refuted that plea and also asserted that the offending vehicle was not driven by an authorised person and having valid driving licence. Respondent 1 owner of the offending vehicle did not produce any evidence except a driving licence of one Joginder Singh, without any specific stand taken in the pleadings or in the evidence that the same Joginder Singh was, in fact, authorised to drive the vehicle in question at the relevant time. Without disclosing the name of the driver in the written statement or producing any evidence to substantiate the fact that the copy of the driving licence produced in support was of a person who, in fact, was authorised to drive the offending vehicle at the relevant time, the owner of the vehicle cannot be said to have extricated himself from his liability. The insurance company would become liable only after such foundational facts are pleaded and proved by the owner of the offending vehicle.”

29. The later part of Paragraph No.13 of the report in Pappu are again enunciative of the law about proof of the foundational facts that has to be discharged by the owner before the insurer can be called upon to discharge his burden about the validity of the licence. The aforesaid view has been followed by this Court in Shri Kedar Singh and also by the Bombay High Court in an unreported judgment in The Branch Manager, New India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Kausalyabai and others, First Appeal No.259 of 2003, decided on 30th September, 2022.

30. In this connection, reference may be made to the decision of the Supreme Court in Rukmani and others v. New India Assurance Co. and others, (1998) 9 SCC 160, which was a case arising under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939. In Rukmani (supra), a very brief judgment of their Lordships, it was observed:

“2. The Insurance Company has been absolved from liability in respect of the claim for compensation by the High Court on the ground that the driver had no valid licence. The High Court has noted that under Section 96(2)(b)(ii) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, if the Insurance Company contends that the driver of the vehicle had no valid driving licence, the burden is on the Insurance Company to establish it. The High Court, however, came to the conclusion that this burden had been discharged by the Insurance Company.

3. We have seen the only evidence which the Insurance Company produced in support of the plea. This is the evidence of Inspector of Police who investigated the accident. In his evidence, PW 1 who was the Inspector of Police, stated in his examination-in-chief, “My enquiry revealed that the 1st respondent did not produce the licence to drive the abovesaid scooter. The 1st respondent even after my demand did not submit the licence since he was not having it.” In his cross-examination he has said that it is the Inspector of Motor Vehicles who is required to check whether the licence is there but he had not informed the Inspector of Motor Vehicles that the 1st respondent was not having a licence since he thought it was not necessary. In our view, this evidence is not sufficient to discharge the burden which was cast on the Insurance Company. It did not summon the driver of the vehicle. No record from the Road Transport Authority has also been produced. In these circumstances, the Insurance Company has not discharged the burden cast upon it under Section 96(2)(b)(ii) of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939. The impugned order of the High Court is, therefore, set aside and the order of the Tribunal is restored. The appeal is allowed accordingly. No order as to costs.”

31. The principle in Rukmani is about the general burden of the Insurance Company to establish that the driver did not hold a valid driving licence if they so allege, but apparently it does not decide the point about the onus probandi resting on the owner's shoulders to establish the basic facts spoken of in Pappu. Therefore, the judgment in Rukmani would not come to the owner's rescue in this case on a blanket basis, unless it be shown that the owner had established the basic facts about the validity of the driver's driving licence and his authorization to drive the offending tanker.

32. The entire gamut of principles in United India Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Lehu and others, (2003) 3 SCC 338, National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh and others, (2004) 3 SCC 297, New India Assurance Co. v. Kamla and others, (2001)

4 SCC 342, and above all Rukmani, lay down principles in the context of a motor accident claim, that has the owner before the Tribunal. In all those cases, one part of the principle grants a very liberal cover to the owner, where in the face of a fake driving licence, the owner comes forward with a case that he went by the apparent tenor of the driving licence, that was produced by the driver before him at the time of employment and then tested the driver for his driving skills, which he found to be reasonably proficient. If the owner proves the said fact by his testimony before the Tribunal, a driving licence, howsoever fake, cannot entitle the insurer to recover. Nevertheless, before this part of the protective principle for the owner comes into play, the other part of it mandates, what was laid down in Pappu that the onus would shift to the insurer after the owner 'pleads and proves the basic facts within his knowledge that the driver of the offending vehicle was authorized by him to drive the vehicle and was having a valid driving licence at the relevant time' to borrow the words of their Lordships.

33. It is in the context of the aforesaid principles that the case of parties the way it is pleaded and sought to be proved requires examination. The owner did appear before the Tribunal and filed a written statement. He did not further appear at the hearing, testify on oath in the witness box or tender evidence on affidavit. No doubt, he has filed some documents with his written statement, which includes a photostat copy of the driver's driving licence, the offending tanker's registration certificate, the national permit, the five yearly permit, the fitness certificate and the insurance cover. In addition, a power of attorney in original was also annexed to the written statement. There is not a word in the written statement filed by the owner that he had seen the driving licence of the driver before recruiting him and gone by its apparent tenor. It is also not pleaded that he had tested the driving skills of the driver and found him to be proficient. Nothing of the kind has been said in the owner's written statement. Since the owner did not tender any evidence on affidavit or in the witness box, it goes without saying that he said nothing about the driver or his driving licence.

34. The Insurers on their part have produced an investigation report written by their own Investigator dated 02.09.2005, bearing paper No. 28-Ga, saying that the driving licence in question was verified with the Licensing Authority, the R.T.O., Bhuj, who has certified that Licence No. MH0260547, the number carried on the xerox copy of the licence relied upon by the owner was issued in the name of one Harsab Bhai. The report of the Investigator is accompanied by a certificate of the Regional Transport Officer, Bhuj, who certifies the name of the licence holder as Harsab Bhai with reference to the relative licence number relied upon by the owner. The documents produced by the Insurers to dispel the validity of the licence, if the Insurers indeed bore the burden, would hardly discharge it. The reason is that no one was produced from the office of the R.T.O., Bhuj to prove the the certificate on which the Insurers rely. But, all these issues are irrelevant because onus probandi was never shifted to the Insurers, requiring them to prove the licence, as the owner never pleaded the basic facts nor proved them by his testimony on affidavit or viva voce. The Insurers' failures are, therefore, irrelevant and discounted.

35. The other evidence that the owner has annexed to the written statement and about which there is no quarrel, certainly shows that the vehicle was duly insured and plied on the basis of valid papers. It is a case, therefore, where the Insurers cannot be absolved altogether of their liability, but must be granted the right to recover from the owner. It is held accordingly.

36. Now, the other question that arises is about the compensation, to which the claimants are entitled. There is a cross-objection by the claimants seeking enhancement of the compensation awarded. The learned Counsel for the claimants urges that it ought to be enhanced whereas the learned Counsel for the owner and the Insurers say in one voice that the Tribunal has passed a just award. The Tribunal has worked out the dependency on an income of the deceased being a sum of Rs.100/- per day. The evidence on record shows that the deceased was into the retailing of rice. There is no reason why the income of any businessman, of whatsoever scale, should be rated on a daily basis. The system of rating income on a daily basis is applicable to daily-rated labourers, particularly once it comes to discounting a few days of rest from the month. This kind of an approach to the assessment of income is classically associated with casual labourers who would not have engagement throughout the days of the month, and, in any case, would have to suffer or enjoy a day of holiday at the weekend or other non-working days. A businessman of any kind, particularly, a retailer is not tied down to a daily schedule of earnings. His income has to be assessed on a monthly basis or may be for the whole year, based on a monthly division. The deceased here was retailing rice moving about on his bicycle. Therefore, he was a man who was earning not even in a market set up that had market regulations about 'closed' days.

37. The deceased was a bachelor and supporting his parents. The deceased was a young man in the prime of his life, just 25 years old. The testimony of PW-1, Satya Narain, the deceased's father clearly shows that in the examination-in-chief he has asserted that the deceased would earn Rs.6000/- per month from his business in retailing rice. In fact, on the fateful day too, he was returning back from Phaphamanu Bazar along with the witness's nephew. In the cross-examination, at the instance of the Insurers, it is said that the deceased would do retailing of rice at Jhalwa. The said business does not require registration. There are no receipts relating to sale and purchase of rice filed on record, nor did the witness have such receipts. It is but logical that there would be no accounts or balance-sheets for a man earning his livelihood by retailing rice in a semi-urban part of the city. To expect of this kind of retailers to maintain records, like balance-sheets or file income tax returns is nothing, but the betrayal of an unrealistic approach on the Tribunal's part. At the same time, the non-maintenance of such records, like balance-sheets, receipts, accounts, registers or returns cannot derogate from the fact that the man would have been in profitable business, supporting his family at that age. Business outside the organized sector cannot be ignored when it come to assessment of their profits; when it is time to pay them.

38. The deceased died in the year 2004 and the figure of Rs.6000/- for his income has almost gone effectively unchallenged. Bearing in mind the deceased's circumstances, it would be reasonable to assume for him a monthly income of Rs.3000/-, without any deductions, for non-working days as done by the Tribunal. This would lead to an annual income of Rs.36,000/-. The Tribunal has deducted a one-third towards the deceased's living and personal expenditure. Going by the law laid down in Sarla Verma (Smt) v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121, the deceased being a bachelor, deduction towards living and personal expenses would be a one-half; not a one-third. The Tribunal has adopted a multiplier of '13'. The way the evidence goes, the deceased was a young man of 25 years. Following the table set out in Paragraph No.40 of the report in Sarla Verma (supra), a multiplier of '18' is appropriate to adopt. The Tribunal has erred in adopting the multiplier of '13' going by the age of the deceased's parents. It is, accordingly, held about the deduction to be made and the multiplier to be adopted.

39. Nothing has been awarded by the Tribunal towards future prospects. The issue has received consideration of the Constitution Bench in National Insurance Company v. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680, where the benefit of future prospects has been extended to the self-employed as well. In Pranay Sethi (supra), it has been held:

“56. The seminal issue is the fixation of future prospects in cases of deceased who are self-employed or on a fixed salary. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] has carved out an exception permitting the claimants to bring materials on record to get the benefit of addition of future prospects. It has not, per se, allowed any future prospects in respect of the said category.

57. Having bestowed our anxious consideration, we are disposed to think when we accept the principle of standardisation, there is really no rationale not to apply the said principle to the self-employed or a person who is on a fixed salary. To follow the doctrine of actual income at the time of death and not to add any amount with regard to future prospects to the income for the purpose of determination of multiplicand would be unjust. The determination of income while computing compensation has to include future prospects so that the method will come within the ambit and sweep of just compensation as postulated under Section 168 of the Act. In case of a deceased who had held a permanent job with inbuilt grant of annual increment, there is an acceptable certainty. But to state that the legal representatives of a deceased who was on a fixed salary would not be entitled to the benefit of future prospects for the purpose of computation of compensation would be inapposite. It is because the criterion of distinction between the two in that event would be certainty on the one hand and staticness on the other. One may perceive that the comparative measure is certainty on the one hand and uncertainty on the other but such a perception is fallacious. It is because the price rise does affect a self-employed person; and that apart there is always an incessant effort to enhance one's income for sustenance. The purchasing capacity of a salaried person on permanent job when increases because of grant of increments and pay revision or for some other change in service conditions, there is always a competing attitude in the private sector to enhance the salary to get better efficiency from the employees. Similarly, a person who is self-employed is bound to garner his resources and raise his charges/fees so that he can live with same facilities. To have the perception that he is likely to remain static and his income to remain stagnant is contrary to the fundamental concept of human attitude which always intends to live with dynamism and move and change with the time. Though it may seem appropriate that there cannot be certainty in addition of future prospects to the existing income unlike in the case of a person having a permanent job, yet the said perception does not really deserve acceptance. We are inclined to think that there can be some degree of difference as regards the percentage that is meant for or applied to in respect of the legal representatives who claim on behalf of the deceased who had a permanent job than a person who is self-employed or on a fixed salary. But not to apply the principle of standardisation on the foundation of perceived lack of certainty would tantamount to remaining oblivious to the marrows of ground reality. And, therefore, degree-test is imperative. Unless the degree-test is applied and left to the parties to adduce evidence to establish, it would be unfair and inequitable. The degree-test has to have the inbuilt concept of percentage. Taking into consideration the cumulative factors, namely, passage of time, the changing society, escalation of price, the change in price index, the human attitude to follow a particular pattern of life, etc., an addition of 40% of the established income of the deceased towards future prospects and where the deceased was below 40 years an addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years would be reasonable.

58. The controversy does not end here. The question still remains whether there should be no addition where the age of the deceased is more than 50 years. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] thinks it appropriate not to add any amount and the same has been approved in Reshma Kumari [Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan, (2013) 9 SCC 65 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 191 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 826]. Judicial notice can be taken of the fact that salary does not remain the same. When a person is in a permanent job, there is always an enhancement due to one reason or the other. To lay down as a thumb rule that there will be no addition after 50 years will be an unacceptable concept. We are disposed to think, there should be an addition of 15% if the deceased is between the age of 50 to 60 years and there should be no addition thereafter. Similarly, in case of self-employed or person on fixed salary, the addition should be 10% between the age of 50 to 60 years. The aforesaid yardstick has been fixed so that there can be consistency in the approach by the tribunals and the courts."

40. The next question that falls for answer is whether future prospects, which the claimants would be entitled to, are to be determined in accordance with the law laid down in Pranay Sethi or Rule 220-A (3) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short, the Rules of 1998). This is answered by the holding of the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822, where it was observed:

"9. It is to be noted that the validity of the Rules was not, in any way, questioned in the instant matter and thus the only question that we are called upon to consider is whether in its application, sub-Rule 3(iii) of Rule 220A of the Rules must be given restricted scope or it must be allowed to operate fully.

10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid.

12. We, therefore, reject the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant and affirm the view taken by the Tribunal as well as the High Court and dismiss this appeal without any order as to costs."

41. Therefore, there is little doubt that in the State of Uttar Pradesh, future prospects are to be determined in accordance Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998.

42. The question whether Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, that came into force w.e.f. 26 September, 2011, would apply retrospectively to an accident that took place much before the amendment, is no longer res intergra. A Division Bench of this Court in Sushil Kumar and others v. M/s. Sampark Lojastic Private Limited and others, 2017 (35) LCD 1311 has held:

"31. Rule 220-A was inserted in the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 in view of the various decisions of the law courts for providing benefit on account of future prospects of the injured/deceased. It provides for addition of certain percentage of the income of the injured/deceased in his actual income depending upon the age of the injured/deceased for the purposes of determination of the compensation. The aforesaid Rule came into effect on 26.09.2011 after the decision of the claim petition but before filing of the appeal though the accident took place on 08.05.2010 much before the enforcement of the above Rule.

32. It is in view of the above that an argument is being raised that Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident which had taken place on 08.05.2010.

33. In Ram Sarup Vs. Munshi AIR 1963 SC 553 it was laid down that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the rights of the parties.

34. The view expressed above was followed by the Supreme Court in Mula Vs. Godhu AIR 1971 SC 89.

35. In Dayawati Vs. Inderjit AIR 1966 SC 1423 the court had observed as under:-If the new law speaks in language, which expressly or by clear intendment, takes in even pending matters, the court of trial as well as the court of appeal must have regard to an intention so expressed, and the court of appeal may give effect to such a law even after the judgment of the court of first instance.

36. In Amarjit Kaur Vs. Pritam Singh AIR 1974 SC 2068 effect was given to the change in law during the pendency of an appeal as the hearing of an appeal under the procedural law of this country is in the nature of rehearing of the suit by superior court.

37. It was in the light of the above decisions that in Lakshmi Narayan Guin and others Vs. Niranjan Modak AIR 1985 SC 111 it was held that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the right of the parties.

38. The aforesaid decision was followed by a Division Bench of this court in U.P. State Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Madhu Sharma and others, 2003 (4) AWC 2620 which was a case in relation to the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and it was observed that it is apparent that the change in law during the pendency of the original proceedings has to be taken into account so as to cover the rights of the parties.

39. In view of above decision the view expressed by the Division Bench of this court in ICICI Lombard (Supra) is not of good law as it does not takes into account the decisions referred to above in holding that the Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident that took place prior to the said date only for the reason that the Rule was not specifically stated to be retrospective in nature."

43. According to the law laid down by the Division Bench in Sushil Kumar (supra), which apparently binds this Court, the award of future prospects is to be made in accordance with Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, notwithstanding the fact that the accident happened prior to the amendment. Rule 220-A(3), going by the age of the deceased, which is far less than 40 years, would entitle the claimants to add 50% to his income under the head of future prospects.

44. It still requires determination what the entitlement of the claimants would be under the conventional heads. The principles in Pranay Sethi on the issue are clear, where it is held:

"48. This aspect needs to be clarified and appositely stated. The conventional sum has been provided in the Second Schedule to the Act. The said Schedule has been found to be defective as stated by the Court in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] . Recently, in Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy [Puttamma v.K.L. Narayana Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 45 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 384 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 574] it has been reiterated by stating : (SCC p. 80, para 54)

"54. ... we hold that the Second Schedule as was enacted in 1994 has now become redundant, irrational and unworkable due to changed scenario including the present cost of living and current rate of inflation and increased life expectancy."

49. As far as multiplier or multiplicand is concerned, the same has been put to rest by the judgments of this Court. Para 3 of the Second Schedule also provides for general damages in case of death. It is as follows:

"3. General damages (in case of death):

The following general damages shall be payable in addition to compensation outlined above:

(i)	Funeral expenses	Rs 2000
(ii)	Loss of consortium, if beneficiary is the spouse	Rs 5000
(iii)	Loss of estate	Rs 2500
(iv)	Medical expenses — actual expenses incurred before death supported by bills/vouchers but not exceeding	Rs 15,000"

50. On a perusal of various decisions of this Court, it is manifest that the Second Schedule has not been followed starting from the decision in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] and there has been no amendment to the same. The conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined. As we notice, in different cases different amounts have been granted. A sum of Rs 1,00,000 was granted towards consortium in [v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . The justification for grant of consortium, as we find from [v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] , is founded on the observation as we have reproduced hereinbefore.

51. On the aforesaid basis, the Court has revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads.

52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in [v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though [v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167] , it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads.”

45. The question of compensation for the loss of consortium was considered by the Supreme Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. v. Nanu Ram alias Chuhru Ram and others, (2018) 18 SCC 130, where it has been held:

“21. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Pranay Sethi [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC

680 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 248 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 205] dealt with the various heads under which compensation is to be awarded in a death case. One of these heads is loss of consortium. In legal parlance, “consortium” is a compendious term which encompasses “spousal consortium”, “parental consortium”, and “filial consortium”. The right to consortium would include the company, care, help, comfort, guidance, solace and affection of the deceased, which is a loss to his family. With respect to a spouse, it would include sexual relations with the deceased spouse : [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]

21.2. Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of “parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training”.

21.3. Filial consortium is the right of the parents to compensation in the case of an accidental death of a child. An accident leading to the death of a child causes great shock and agony to the parents and family of the deceased. The greatest agony for a parent is to lose their child during their lifetime. Children are valued for their love, affection, companionship and their role in the family unit.

46. Considering the issue of a just compensation to be made, the award would have to be revised in the following manner:

(I) Monthly Income (of the deceased) = 3000

(ii) Annual Income (of the deceased) = 3000x12= 36000

(iii) Annual Income+Future Prospects (annual income x 50%)= 36000+18000=54000

(iv) Annual Dependency = Annual Income – one-half deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased = 54000-27000 = 27000

(v) Total Dependency = Annual Dependency x Applied Multiplier= 27000 x 18= 486000

The total compensation would therefore, work out to a figure of Rs.486000+ Rs.110000 = 596000

47. In the result, both the appeal and the cross-objections are allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and it is ordered that while the owner would be liable to satisfy the award, the Insurers would be obliged to satisfy the award in the first instance and then recover from the owner through miscellaneous proceedings before the Tribunal. The compensation awarded would stand enhanced to Rs.5,96,000/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the Insurers, pursuant to the impugned award or the interim orders passed by this Court, shall be adjusted against the award. The other directions of the Tribunal in the award shall remain intact.

48. Costs easy.

Jayendra Thaker, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ganesh Datt Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri S.D. Ojha, learned counsel for the claimant.

2. This First Appeal From Order has been filed under section 30 of Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (hereinafter referred to 'Act, 1923') by appellant- G.M. Dugdh Sangh Allahabad, being aggrieved by order dated 28.9.2004 passed by the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner/ Assistant Labour Commissioner, Allahabad in WC Case No.46 of 2001 whereby the learned Commissioner has awarded compensation of Rs.1,38,340/- with 9% rate of interest.

3. The facts of the present case are that it has been culled out from the record that the claimants who was employed by appellant met with an accident. On 19.8.199 when the claimant was on job at that point of time he fell down from the staircase of the platform. The claimant / respondent sustained multiple injures on his left lower limb and on his spinal cord was also damaged. The respondent company rushed the claimant to the hospital where the claimant was admitted and continued to be in hospital from 19.8.1999 to 24.8.1999. For a period one month the claimants was advised bed rest. The claimant was 38 years of age and his wages were about Rs.2000/- per month. The doctors opined that there was 60% disability of body. The claimants spent about Rs.15,000/- for medical expenses and claimed Rs.1,15,000/- as loss of wages. On notices being issued the appellant / owner answered the claim application contending that the employee was injured not in the premises but at a tea stall which is located near the factory and, therefore, the claimant was not entitled for any compensation. The claimant examined himself as against this the appellant examined about five witnesses. The appellant contended before the commissioner that in the year 1997 the claimant had sustained injures due to vehicle accident, and the medical certificate produced related to the injures of that time. The claimant in his rejoinder refuted the charge that he was not injured in the premises of appellant. The commissioner did not accept the contention that the injures were caused beyond the factory premises holding that the injury was caused in the factory premises, and accepted the claim petition granting compensation by holding against appellant, as the officer of the factory took him to hospital. The claimant was taken to one Preeti Nursing Home, thereafter taken to Jeevan Jyoti Hospital. The officers who came to depose did not know at what time the accident occurred but out of humanity took the claimant to the hospital. This was the testimony of one of the witness Parth Sarthi for employer / appellant as per medical certificate. The calculation was based on the 60% disability with 9% rate of interest. The Commissioner granted compensation as per schedule.

4. While admitting this appeal and issuing notice, the Court on 1.12.2004 passed the following order :-

“Admit.

Issue notice to unserved respondents only by R.P.A.D. Returnable at an early date.

The substantial question of law, apart from other legal grounds, arising in the appeal is :

(i) Whether the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner committed apparent error of law in awarding the compensation without there being any loss of earning and without probing the actual loss of earning capacity by the claimant / opposite party as required within the meaning of Section -4 (1) (c) (ii) of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 ?

Even though Court was of the opinion that this matter be decided finally on the issue raised by the appellant, learned counsel for the claimant – respondent prays for and is allowed four weeks time to file counter affidavit. Rejoinder affidavit, if any, may be filed within four weeks thereafter.

Stay application shall be listed immediately after expiry of aforesaid period.

Until further orders, the operation of the impugned judgment and award dated 28.9.2004 passed by Workmen's Compensation Commissioner, Allahabad/ Assistant Labour Commissioner, Allahabad in W.C. Case No.46 of 2001 (Suresh Chandra Mishra Versus General Manager, M/s Allahabad Dugh Utpadak Sahkari Sangh Limited, Allahabad) shall remain stayed. The amount deposited by the Employer, in pursuance to the aforesaid judgment and award dated 28.9.2004, shall not be disbursed and shall be invested by the concerned authority in a Fixed Deposit Account – carrying maximum interest for minimum period and both the Principal & the interest of it may be reinvested on same terms as above and it shall be subject to any order passed subsequently by this Court.”

5. This Court framed only one question of law based on facts and legislation. The question of law, however, as questions of law are formulated by the appellant which are seven in number they may not be decided, but the arguments are advanced by Shri Ganesh Datt Mishra-Advocate for appellant on all the questions. The said questions are reproduced herein below :-

“(i). Whether the finding recorded by the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner vitiated by not considering the oral evidences of Devendra Swaroop and U.N. Singh and documentary evidence on record and also by not mentioning any reason for disbelieving the oral evidence of K.M. Pandey Production Manager, Jagpal

Singh Factory Manager and Parth Sarathi Computer Accountant ?

(ii) Whether the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner committed error of law in not considering the case of defendant / appellant and oral and documentary evidences that medical certificate is result of accident of the claimant / opposite party in November, 1997 ?

(iii) Whether the injury was caused in November, 1997 and on 19.8.1999 by an accident which was not arising out of in the course of his employment ?

(iv) Whether the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner committed apparent error of law in awarding the compensation without there being any loss of earning and without probing the actual loss of earning capacity by the claimant / opposite party as required within the meaning of Section -4 (1) (c) (ii) of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 ?

(v) Whether the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner committed apparent error of law and in not considering the points and arguments raised and rulling relied upon in the written argument submitted before the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner and the impugned order / direction is based on non application of mind ?

(vi) Whether the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner committed apparent error of law I not drawing adverse inference against the workman / opp. Party regarding accident in November, 1997 ?

(vii) Whether an oral evidence adduced by the Workman / opp. Party to the effect that he was injured in November, 1997 by buffalo, is without any pleading there of and the Workmen's Compensation

Commissioner committed error of law and jurisdiction in relying upon the same ?

6. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that finding recorded by the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner that the claimant / opposite party was injured on 29.8.1999 in the factory premises and arising out of employment, is perverse and based on non consideration of the oral and documentary evidence submitted by the owner/appellant. Learned counsel for the appellant has further submitted that the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner committed an error apparent on the face of record in not assigning any reason for disbelieving the testimony of K.M. Pandey Production Manager, Jagpal Singh Factory Manager and Parth Sarathi Computer Accountant and also the Workmen's Compensation Commissioner failed to consider the oral evidence of Devendra Swaroop then General Manager and Mr. U.N. Singh Manager (Admin) and documentary evidence Exh. E-1 to Exhibit E-19 on the records.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that there is no loss of earning. The claimant continued to be on the said post and not considering this aspect and this non consideration of the contention of the appellant itself has made the order to be vulnerable as perversity has crept in.

8. As against this, learned counsel for respondent submits that the disability due to the accidental fall is proved beyond reasonable doubt and under the provisions of Section 4(1)(C) of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 it is an employment injure which would entitle the claimant to claim what is known as compensation.

9. The provisions of Section 4 (1) (C) of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 which reads as follows : -

(c) Where permanent partial (i) in the case of an injury disablement results from specified in Part II of Schedule the injury I, such percentage of the compensation which would have been payable in the case of permanent total disablement as is specified therein as being the percentage of the loss of earning capacity caused by that injury, and

(ii) in the case of an injury not specified in Schedule I, such percentage of the compensation payable in the case of permanent total disablement as is proportionate to the loss of earning capacity (as assessed by the qualified medical practitioner) permanently caused by the injury; Explanation I.-- Where more injuries than one are caused by the same accident, the amount of compensation payable under this head shall be aggregated but not so in any case as to exceed the amount which would have been payable if permanent total disablement had resulted from the injuries; Explanation II.-- In assessing the loss of earning capacity for the purposes of sub- clause (ii), the qualified medical practitioner shall have due regard to the percentages of loss of earning capacity in relation to different injuries specified in Schedule I;

10. At the outset, it is relevant to discuss the scope of this Court to entertain appeal against the award of Workmen's Compensation Commissioner. The Apex Court in Civil Appeal No.7470 of 2009 North East Karnataka Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Sujatha decided on 2.11.2018 has held as under :

"9. At the outset, we may take note of the fact, being a settled principle, that the question as to whether the employee met with an accident, whether the accident occurred during the course of employment, whether it arose out of an employment, how and in what manner the accident occurred, who was negligent in causing the accident, whether there existed any relationship of employee and employer, what was the age and monthly salary of the employee, how many are the dependents of the deceased employee due to injuries suffered in an accident, whether there was any insurance coverage obtained by the employer to cover the incident etc. are some of the material issues which arise for the just decision of the Commissioner in a claim petition when an employee suffers any bodily injury or dies during the course of his employment and he/his LRS sue/s his employer to claim compensation under the Act.

10. The aforementioned questions are essentially the questions of fact and, therefore, they are required to be proved with the aid of evidence. Once, they are proved either way, the findings recorded thereon are regarded as findings of fact."

11. The Apex Court further went on to hold as under :

"15. Such appeal is then heard on the question of admission with a view to find out as to whether it involves any substantial question of law or not. Whether the appeal involves a substantial question of law or not depends upon the facts of each case and needs an examination by the High Court. If the substantial question of law arises, the High Court would admit the appeal for final hearing on merit else would dismiss in limine with reasons that it does not involve any substantial question/s of law.

16. Now coming to the facts of this case, we find that the appeal before the High Court did not involve any substantial question of law on the material questions set out above. In other words, in our view, the Commissioner decided all the material questions arising in the case properly on the basis of evidence adduced by the parties and rightly determined the compensation payable to the respondent. It was, therefore, rightly affirmed by the High Court on facts.

17. In this view of the matter, the findings being concurrent findings of fact of the two courts below are binding on this Court. Even otherwise, we find no good ground to call for any interference on any of the factual findings. None of the factual findings are found to be either perverse or arbitrary or based on no evidence or against any provision of law. We accordingly uphold these findings."

12. As far as the finding regarding where the injury occurred, and whether it occurred or not, cannot be gone into as those are finding of fact. Hence, the said ground fails and is answered against the appellant. As far as the question regarding disability is concerned, this is a question of fact and in view of the decisions of the Apex Court, this Court cannot go into the said issue, unless it is proved that the finding of the learned Commissioner is absolutely perverse. In this case, the Court below has considered medical evidence which shows there was disability caused. Thus, grant of compensation of Rs. 1,38,340/- as per the quotient cannot be said to be bad. Rather the rate of interest awarded by the Commissioner is below statutory rate of interest.

13. In Golla Rajanna Etc. Etc. Vs. Divisional Manager and Another, 2017 (1) TAC 259 (SC) & Mayan vs. Mustafa and another, 2022 ACJ 524 also, the Apex Court has held that under Section 30 of Workmen Compensation Act, the High Court cannot enter into the arena of facts unless they are proved to be perverse and the Court cannot interfere unless there is a question of law involved. The decision in Salim vs. New India Assurance. Co. Ltd. and another, 2022 ACJ 526 also will not permit this Court to interfere with the well reasoned judgment of learned Commissioner.

14. All other grounds mentioned in the memo of appeal are in the realm of question of facts and the finding of the Commissioner on these cannot be interfered as this Court has admitted appeal on only the question of law, hence, finding are not disturbed by this Court as this Court is fortified in its view by the decision of the Apex Court passed in Civil Appeal No.7470 of 2009 North East Karnataka Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Sujatha decided on 2.11.2018, Golla Rajanna Etc. Etc. Vs. Divisional Manager and Another, 2017 (1) TAC 259 (SC) & Mayan vs. Mustafa and another, 2022 ACJ 524 wherein the Apex Court has held that under Section 30 of Workmen Compensation Act, 1923 the High Court cannot enter into the arena of findings of fact unless they are proved to be perverse and unless there is a question of law involved.

14. All other grounds mentioned in the memo of appeal are in the realm of questions of fact and the finding of the Commissioner on these cannot be interfered as this Court has admitted appeal on only the question of law, hence, findings are not disturbed by this Court as this Court is fortified in its view by the decision of the Apex Court passed in Civil Appeal No.7470 of 2009 North East Karnataka Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Sujatha decided on 2.11.2018, Golla Rajanna Etc. Etc. Vs. Divisional Manager and Another, 2017 (1) TAC 259 (SC) & Mayan vs. Mustafa and another, 2022 ACJ 524 wherein the Apex Court has held that under Section 30 of Workmen Compensation Act, 1923 the High Court cannot enter into the arena of finding of facts unless they are proved to be perverse and unless there is a question of law involved.

15. In this there is a perversity which has crept in the order of the Commissioner as the argument of the appellant that the claimant has not proved loss of income and that he continues to be in job and that he was been working in the diary and his salary has increased on 16.4.2000, therefore there is no loss of income. The Commissioner could not have taken recourse to only one fact that the accident occurred in the premises The next limb of entitlement has not been considered at all except the fact that he was admitted in the hospital.

16. The appeal will have to be allowed. The judgments cited by the counsel for the appellant in Sri Chanappa Nagappa Muchalagoda Versus Divisional Manager, New India Insurance Company Limited, 2019(0) Supreme(SC) 1347 and Shakuntala Chandrakant Shreshti Versus Prabhakar Maurti Garvali and another, 2006 (0) Supreme(SC) 1105 will enure for the benefit of the appellant and the judgment of this High Court in Mohd.

17. While entertaining this appeal and during the pendency of this litigation the original claimant has passed away. The amount has already been deposited without interest .The claimants would be at least entitled as per Section 4(2)(A) of the Act where the employee has to be granted actual medical expenses and pain shock to the claimant. Hence, the amount of Rs.35000/- with 12% interest from filing of claim application till disbursement as amount is in fixed deposit as per order of this Court, be paid and disbursed to the legal heirs of the deceased- employee. The submission that because of this injures the claimant was not granted promotion is not answered by the counsel for the appellant and now that the original claimant has passed away it would not be fruitful to remand the matter to the tribunal for considering this aspect and therefore while returning the amount kept in fixed deposit, Rs.35000/ with 12% interest will have to be granted as per the statute and that the respondent will be entitled to costs of Rs.10,000/-.

18. The appeal is partly allowed. Interim relief, if any, is modified as above. The Registry will forward this order to the Workmen Compensation Commissioner who shall immediately summon the claimants and disburse the amount kept in fixed deposit with interest accrued on the said amount till date within 30 days calculating the same from the date of receipt of this order.

19. This Court is thankful to both the counsels for ably assisting this Court.

I. INTRODUCTION:

1. The instant appeal arises out of an award made by the learned Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Azamgarh in Motor Accident Claim Petition No. 04 of 2002, Buabunandan and anr. V Baggal yadav & Ors. dated 01.02.2007 by partly allowing the claim of the claimants.

M.A. Claim Petition No. 04/2002, Babunandan & anr. V Baggal Yadav & Ors.

II. Case of the claimants and respondents before the learned tribunal:

2. Briefly the case of the claimants before the learned tribunal was that the deceased died of injuries sustained in an accident which occurred on 02.01.1998, and was caused by the rash and negligent driving of the driver of truck bearing Registration No. UP 52A/2047. The offending vehicle was insured by respondent no. 3-Insurance Company. On the fateful day, the deceased was returning his house from the school when he met with the accident. The claimants are the parents of the deceased Shyam Narayan. The deceased was 18 years of age at the time of his death.

III. Compensation awarded by the learned tribunal:

3. The learned tribunal in the impugned judgement dated 01.02.2007 awarded compensation which is depicted in the tabulated form hereunder:

Sr.No.	Heads	Amount Awarded by the tribunal
1	Monthly Income	500/-
2	Annual Income	6000/-
3	Deduction towards personal expenses	1/3 of 6000= 2000
4	Multiplier	11
5	Total loss of dependency	2000x11 = 22000/-
6	Conventional Heads (a) Loss of consortium (b) loss of Estate (c) Funeral Expenses	4500/-
7	Total compensation	22000+4500= 26500-
8	Interest	6%

4. The claimants seek enhancement of compensation by means of the instant appeal.

IV. Submissions of learned counsels for the parties:

5. Sri Daya Shankar, learned counsel for the claimants submits that the compensation was not rightly calculated. The learned tribunal erred in law and incorrectly calculated the income, applied an illegal multiplier and neglected to award future prospects which is in teeth of the law laid by Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Urmila Shukla and others² as well as National Insurance Company Ltd. vs. Pranay Sethi and others³. The claimants were entitled to a higher amount.

6. Shri Pradeep Kumar Sinha, learned counsel for the Insurance Company does not satisfactorily dispute the said submissions.

V. Issue for Consideration:

7. After advancing their arguments, learned counsels for the respective parties agree that only the following question falls for consideration in these appeals:

Whether the learned tribunal erred while determining the compensation under these heads: income, future prospects, application of multiplier, conventional heads and interest? If yes, the amount to which the claimants are entitled?

VI. Issue of income of the deceased:

8. The question of income of a child while determining compensation to be paid is a vexed question of facts and law. In many cases the children are entirely dependant on their parents and are not earning. Moreover, even if they are earning, the documentary evidence to support such facts is hard to come by.

9. The Motor Vehicles Act bifurcates children into two categories, namely children below the age of 15 years and those above that age. In a former class, a notional income of Rs. 15,000/- per annum is stipulated in the statute. However, the sum was enhanced to Rs. 30,000/- per annum by various judicial authorities. Children above 15 years of age are treated as a separate class by the legislature. This is evident from the multiplier system in Schedule II of the Motor Vehicles Act read with Sarla Verma (Smt) and others Vs. Delhi Transport Company and another⁴ which govern calculation of income of a deceased child in the latter category.

10. The application of multiplier system to children above 15 years is a legislative recognition of the fact that while the children in that age group may not be actually earning and are dependant on their parents but they have achieved a certain employability potential. Employability potential comprises various skills acquired by children through formal education, informal modes or from the socio-economic environment which endows them with the capacity to earn or contribute to the family income. The employability potential grows with the age and is liable to be determined by factoring education, acquisition of vocational skills (may be hereditary), capacity to assist in households chores, etc. Employment potential becomes the basis of computation of income and grant of compensation in such cases.

11. The jurisprudential foundation of grant of compensation was laid by House of Lords in Taff Vale Rly. Vs. Jankins⁵, wherein the basis of grant of compensation was the expectation of pecuniary benefit and not the actual income which accrues to the deceased.

12. Lord Atkinson in Taff Vale (supra) set forth the legal position thus:

“...all that is necessary is that a reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit should be entertained by the person who sues. It is quite true that the existence of this expectation is an inference of fact – there must be a basis of fact from which the inference can reasonably be drawn; but I wish to express my emphatic dissent from the proposition that it is necessary that two of the facts without which the inference cannot be drawn are, first, that the deceased earned money in the past and, second, that he or she contributed to the support of the plaintiff. These are, no doubt, pregnant pieces of evidence, but they are only pieces of evidence; and the necessary inference can, I think, be drawn from circumstances other than and different from them.”

13. Judicial authorities has cited earlier have fixed 30,000/- per annum as a notional income for grant of compensation in cases of death of minor children. [Ref: Meena Devi Vs. Nunu Chand Mahto @ Nemchand Mahto and others⁶].

14. While the sum fixed by Supreme Court in Meena Devi (supra) provides valuable guidance in many cases but cannot constitute a judicial standard to be applied as a rule of thumb without consideration of facts and circumstances of a case.

15. Meena Devi (supra) does not absolve the court of the duty to makes relevant enquiries into the facts and evidences to determine the income of the deceased minor child by examining employability potential in light of various factors discussed above.

16. The acquisition of skill is not dependant on a formal training or a certificate attesting such qualification. Skill can be acquired through various means and including informal ways. An environment where such skills are being exercised on a daily basis allows the child to imbibe such skills.

17. Overwhelming majority of our population is engaged in informal sectors of the economy. They do not have well documented evidence of their income. However, courts can apply credible yardsticks to determine the income in such cases. With acquisition of skills and knowledge the children can perform various activities which will fortify the family fortunes. This can take many forms like young students with bright academic records may take tuitions. A student who has developed vocational skills may contribute to the family income by doing related tasks. In addition children may also help out in household chores and agricultural activities.

18. Educational qualification of the deceased was established. His contribution to household chores was proved. These are germane factors to determine the employability potential and fixing the income of deceased.

19. The learned tribunal determined the income at Rs. 6000/- per annum. The finding is perverse. The learned tribunal erred in law by mechanically fixing the income, and failing to make relevant enquiries in this regard.

20. By virtue of his age and education, the deceased had attained a certain employment potentiality which was unlawfully neglected from consideration. The employment potentiality would be the minimum income which a person would draw from market based on his skills and environment.

21. The deceased being a young able bodied and educated adult of 18 years and he had the capacity to take tuitions or impart education to younger children.

Hence he will come in the category of skilled worker.

22. In the facts of this case, a minimum wage of Rs.35,000/- per annum is just and equitable amount which can be considered as the income of the deceased.

VII. Future Prospects:

23. The future prospects are liable to be calculated in accordance with the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 19987. Rule 220A-3(iii) of the Rules is relevant and is reproduced hereunder:

“(3) The future prospects of a deceased, shall be added in the actual salary or minimum wages of the deceased as under:

“ (i) Below 40 years of age : 50% of the salary.”

24. The UP Rules, 1998 came up for consideration before the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd. vs. Urmila Shukla and others⁸. In Urmila Shukla (supra) upon consideration of various judgements including National Insurance Company Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi and others⁹ held:

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid. (emphasis supplied)

25. The Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 were not under consideration before the Supreme Court in Pranay Sethi (supra) or *Sarla Verma (Smt) and others Vs. Delhi Transport Company and another*¹⁰. Future prospects in Pranay Sethi (supra) were determined without noticing the U.P. Rules, 1998. This fact was adverted to in Urmila Shukla (supra):

“8. It is submitted by Mr. Rao that the judgment in Pranay Sethi does not show that the attention of the Court was invited to the specific rules such as Rule 3(iii) which contemplates addition of 20% of the salary as against 15% which was stated as a measure in Pranay Sethi. In his submission, since the statutory instrument has been put in place which affords more advantageous treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi ought not to be considered to limit the application of such statutory Rule.”

26. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are statutory in nature and their operation is not stymied by Pranay Sethi (supra). The U. P. Rules, 1998 have the force of law and shall apply with full force in appropriate cases. The U.P. Rules, 1998 are more beneficial for the claimants than the provisions made in Pranay Sethi (supra) for them. The holdings in Pranay Sethi (supra) can not dilute the advantages conferred by U.P. Rules, 1998 upon the eligible beneficiaries.

27. In this wake, this Court finds that the claimants/respondents are entitled to 50% enhancement in wages under the head of future prospects as contemplated in the UP Rules, 1998. The necessary changes in the award shall be accordingly made.

VIII. Application of Split Multiplier:

28. The age of the deceased was 18 years at the time of the accident. The applicable multiplier as per *Sarla Verma (Smt) and others Vs. Delhi Transport Company and another*¹¹ read with Pranay Sethi (supra) is 18.

IX. Calculation of Conventional Heads:

29. The amount determined under conventional heads in the impugned award is at variance with Pranay Sethi (supra). The conventional heads were fixed in Pranay Sethi (supra) by holding as under:

“54. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- funeral expenses should be Rs. 15,000/-, Rs. 40,000/- And Rs. 15,000/- respectively.”

30. The figure under conventional heads determined in Pranay Sethi (supra) shall be applicable to the facts of this case. The award is modified accordingly.

X. Interest:

31. Interest of 7% and the manner of payment decided by the learned tribunal is just and lawful and does not call for interference.

XI. Determination of Compensation to which claimants are entitled:

32. In wake of the preceding discussion, the amount of compensation to which the claimants are entitled and are hereby awarded, is tabulated hereunder:

- i. Date of Accident – 02.01.1998
- ii. Name of Deceased – Shyam Narayan
- iii. Age of the deceased – 18 years

35. The amount deposited by the appellant before this Court shall be transmitted to the learned trial court which shall release the same in favour of the claimants.

Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Sections 200, 202 & 482 - Negotiable Instrument Act, 1881 - Section 138: - Application U/s 482 – for quashing the summoning order as well as entire proceedings – complaint – filed by the opposite party no. 2 u/s 138 NI Act, - – offence of Cheating and dishonesty – dishonour of cheques on the ground that 'Drawer signature Differ' – summoning order – court feels that, the structural defect in the cheque issued by any drawer may have several reasons, which may either be bonafide, unintentional or be dishonest and malafide – the difference in signature and incomplete signature is none of several categories of structural defects and the reason of such structural defect is a matter of trial and is required to be adjudged after appreciation of the evidence – applicant has taken plea of such structural defect just to get rid of his criminal liability by seeking quashment of impugned order in question without making any plea about non-liability of amount to make payment or the plea of any debt or other liability of complainant to rebut the stand of complainant - held, complaint u/s 138 NI Act, cannot be quashed by high court by taking recourse to section 482 Cr.P.C., if disputed questions of facts are involved which need to be adjudicated after respective evidence is led by the parties before the trial court – accordingly, application is dismissed. (Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Rakesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. K.P. Pathak, learned AGA for the State and perused the records.

2. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed to quash the summoning order dated 30.01.2020 as well as the entire proceedings of Complaint Case No.08 of 2020, (Netrapal Awana vs. Omkar Lohiya), under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, Police Station-Phase-II NOIDA, District-Gautam Buddh Nagar, pending in the Court of the Additional Court No.3, Gautam Buddha Nagar.

3. Brief facts of the case are that the opposite party no.2 filed a complaint under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') against the applicant stating therein that the applicant and opposite party no.2 are known to each other and on 10.06.2018, the applicant came to the house of opposite party no.2 and requested for Rs.10 lacs, which was needed by him. The aforesaid amount was given to him on 20.06.2018 by the opposite party no.2 with a condition that the same will be returned by the applicant within six months. Thereafter, in December, 2018, when the opposite party no.2 asked the applicant to return the money, the applicant had issued a cheque of Rs.10,00,000/- from Allahabad Bank, Branch-Bhangel, Phase-II NOIDA, Gautambuddha Nagar, bearing cheque no.035621 dated 16.07.2019 in favour of opposite party no.2. On receipt of the same, opposite party no.2 has presented the same before the concerned Bank for encashment on 16.07.2019, but the same was dishonoured due to "Drawer Signature Differ" on 17.07.2019. The aforesaid information was given to the applicant by the opposite party no.2, but the applicant refused to return the amount as taken by him from the opposite party no.2. Thereafter, opposite party no.2 sent a legal notice to the applicant on 26.07.2019 through registered post, which has been received by the applicant on 27.07.2019. After the notice neither any amount was paid nor reply was submitted by the applicant, therefore, the present complaint has been filed on 21.08.2019. Subsequently, the learned Magistrate after recording the statement under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. summoned the applicant vide order dated 30.01.2020, under Section 138 of the Act.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the applicant is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case. He disputed the signature on the cheque and stated that no such cheque was given by the applicant to the opposite party no.2, hence the ingredients of complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act are missing and, therefore, the proceedings are clearly not maintainable under the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881. He further submits that another cheque for the same amount, which has been placed at page 43 bearing different signature, has been placed before the bank and dishonoured, for which another complaint has also been lodged. Thus, the summoning order as well as the entire proceedings is liable to be quashed.

5. On the other hand, Mr. K.P. Pathak, learned AGA for the State, has submitted that the difference in signature of the applicant in the cheque very well make out the offence u/s 138 N.I. Act as the Apex Court in the case of Messrs. Laxmi Dyechem vs. State of Gujarat and others reported in (2012) 13 SCC 375 has held that any such technical reason or endorsement of Bank for dishonour of cheque does not affect/disqualifies the prosecution under section 138 N.I. Act and would constitute the offence u/s 138 N.I. Act. He further submits that the summoning order passed by the concerned Magistrate is legal and just in the eyes of the law and at this stage, only a prima facie case is to be seen and the complaint cannot be thrown at the threshold. He further submits that in case, cheque is disputed, the same can be seen at the time of trial. The cheque placed at page 43 pertains to different cheque number and different transaction, therefore, another complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act has been filed as permitted under the law. Therefore, the present application is liable to be dismissed.

6. I have carefully considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and have also gone through the material available on record.

7. Before proceedings further, it is apposite to give reference of some judgments of the Apex Court as well as this Court, wherein the Apex Court has laid down the guideline for quashing of criminal proceedings arising out of Section 138 of N.I. Act, which are as follows:-

i) C.C. Alavi Haji Vs. Palapetty Muhammed and Another, reported in (2007) 6 SCC 555;

ii) Ajeet Seeds Ltd. vs. K. Gopala Krishnaiah, reported in 2014 12 SCC 685;

iii) Bharat Barrel & Drum Manufacturing Company Vs. Amin Chand Pyarelal, reported in (1999) 3 SCC 35;

iv) Basalingappa Vs. Mudibasappa reported in (2019) 5 SCC 418;

v) Kishan Rao Vs. Shankargouda, (2018) 8 SCC 165;

vi) Ranjit vs. State of U.P. and another decided on 31.01.2020 passed in Application U/s 482 No. 47282 of 2019.

9. The law regarding the issue where drawer's signature was incomplete or differing signature has been dealt by the Apex Court in the case of Laxmi Dyechem Vs. State of Gujrat and others reported in (2012) 13 SCC 375, wherein it has been held that in case the cheque has been dishonoured on account of "drawer's signature differs", it shall also be a punishable offence and attract to the criminal proceedings under section 138 of the Negotiable Instrument Act.

10. In view of the settled legal position, as noticed above, it is clear that at this stage, only a prima facie case is to be seen and the complaint cannot be thrown at the threshold. The Court feels that the structural defect in the cheque issued by any drawer may have several reasons, which may either be bonafide, unintentional or be dishonest and malafide. It would be very unreasonable to say that the receiver of any cheque issued by any drawer should first ensure as to whether there is any structural defect in the cheque or not and further to ensure as to whether such structural defect is an out come of either of the aforesaid reasons. Such structural defects can in most cases come to the knowledge of receiver of the cheque, when the same is returned by the Bank as dishonoured with an endorsement mentioning reasons for its dishonour. The difference in signatures and incomplete signature is one of several categories of structural defects and the reason of such structural defect is a matter of trial and is required to be adjudged after appreciation of the evidence.

11. In the present matter, the applicant has taken plea of such structural defect just to get rid of his criminal liability by seeking quashment of impugned order in question without making any plea about the non-liability of amount to make payment or the plea of any debt or other liability of complainant to rebut the stand of complainant.

12. It is well settled that for the purpose of quashing of a complaint, the High Court cannot look into the defence of the accused. The Court is only required to see whether on the basis of the averments made in the complaint and the relevant particulars produced by the complainant, there are grounds for proceeding against the accused. Inherent power of quashing criminal proceedings U/s 482 Cr.P.C. should be exercised very sparingly and with great circumspection. It does not confer on the court to act arbitrarily as per its own whims and caprice. At this stage, the Courts could not have gone into the merits and reached a conclusion that there are no existing debt or liability and quash the complaint. Therefore, the basic law is that the complaint under Section 138 of Negotiable Instrument Act cannot be quashed by High Court by taking recourse to Section 482 Cr.P.C, if disputed questions of facts are involved which need to be adjudicated after respective evidence is led by the parties before the trial court

13. On the basis of discussions made herein above, this Court finds that there is no illegality or infirmity in the summoning order dated 30.01.2020 passed by the concerned court below. Therefore, the prayer for quashing the impugned summoning order as well as the entire proceedings of the aforesaid case are refused, as I do not see any abuse of the court's process at this pre-trial stage.

14. In view of the aforesaid, the application is, accordingly, dismissed.

2022 SCC OnLine SC 870

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar Kumar Yadav, J.)

1. I have heard Mr. Sushil Shukla & Mr. Aditya Prakash Singh, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. R.P. Mishra, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by applicant to quash the impugned order dated 03.02.2023 passed by learned ACJM, Khurja, District Bulandshahar in connection with Criminal Case No.3431 of 2016 arising out of Case Crime No.483 of 2016, under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 120-B IPC, Police Station Khurja Nagar, District Bulandshahar and for a direction to the learned Magistrate to comply with the order dated 18.05.2022 passed by Juvenile Justice Board, Bulandshshar so that trial of the aforesaid case be transferred under Section 18 (3) of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015 (hereinafter referred to as the "Act, 2015") before the Children's Court/POCSO Court, Bulandshahar having its jurisdiction.

3. In short, the facts in brief are that on 30.06.2016, the opposite party no.2 lodged the FIR against unknown persons alleging that on false promise of obtaining NOC from Pollution Board, U.P. to run his cold storage, the informant/opposite party no.2 was duped of Rs.40 lakh by unknown person, who asked him to make deposit the said amount into some bank account, where after the OSD of Hon'ble Chief Minister was promised to help him. It is further alleged that the informant/opposite party no.2 issued three cheques, i.e., cheque no.408173 dated 22.06.2016 amounting to Rs.20 lakh, cheque no.408174 dated 22.06.2016 amounting to Rs.10 lakh and cheque no.408175 dated 24.06.2016 amounting to Rs.10 lakh. Total Rs. 40 lakh has been deposited by the informant/opposite party no.2 through R.T.G.S. in the Account No.20321300148, State Bank of India, C.O.G Bazar, Agra. It is further alleged that when the informant/opposite party no.2 has inquired about the said account, it was found that the said account is opened in the name of Narendra Singh s/o Anil Singh, House No.144, New Abadi, Taj Nagri, Tajganj, Agra Mobile No.8171978713. Since then the informant/opposite party no.2 has contacted several times but the accused person has not responded. Thereafter, the informant/opposite party no.2 has approached the Samajwadi Karyalaya, Lucknow and met one Ashish Yadav, who has stated that he never called and some one has duped his money naming his name.

4. After lodging the FIR, the aforesaid matter was investigated and during investigation it was found that in the alleged commission of offence total eight persons were involved. Co-accused Rahees and other two co-accused persons including the applicant were arrested on 24.07.2016 and from their joint possession Rs.5.5 Lacs were recovered. After conclusion of investigation, the investigating officer has submitted charge sheet on 10.09.2016 against all eight accused persons including the applicant. Based upon charge sheet, the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate vide order dated 16.09.2016 has taken cognizance and drawn criminal proceeding against all the accused persons. The applicant had moved regular bail claiming juvenility, which was allowed vide order dated 19.10.2016 till the Board made functional and pending decision regarding determination of age of the applicant. Ultimately, the applicant was declared juvenile vide order dated 18.05.2022 passed by Juvenile Justice Board, Bulandshahar.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the applicant was declared juvenile vide order dated 18.05.2022 and at the time of commission of alleged offence, the applicant was 16 years 9 months and 7 days and meaning thereby the applicant was above 16 years but less than 18 years. He has further submitted that after declaring juvenile, the guardian of applicant had moved an application dated 26.08.2022 before learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate Khurja, Bulandshahar praying therein to separate the file of trial proceedings of the instant case and send its file before the court having jurisdiction to try the case against the applicant but the same was rejected vide impugned order dated 03.02.2023. He has further submitted that the order impugned is illegal and continuation of trial proceedings of the instant case against the applicant/delinquent juvenile any further will be in violation of clear mandate of law as given under Section 18 (3) of the Act, 2015. Learned counsel for the applicant has drawn the attention of the Court towards the Annexure 11 of the affidavit filed in support of application wherein the Principal Magistrate vide letter dated 27.06.2022 requested the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate to pass appropriate order for sending the matter to the Juvenile Justice Board, but instead of sending the file to the Juvenile Justice Board, learned Magistrate has passed the order impugned, hence, this application.

6. In support of his submission, learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Barun Chandra Thakur vs. Master Bholu and another, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 870.

7. Per contra, learned Additional Government Advocate has vehemently opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the applicant.

8. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties.

9. Before proceeding to deal with the submissions advanced, it would be appropriate to refer the Sections 18 (3) and 19 of Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2015.

"18 (3). Where the Board after preliminary assessment under section 15 pass an order that there is a need for trial of the said child as an adult, then the Board may order transfer of the trial of the case to the Children's Court having jurisdiction to try such offences.

19. Powers of Children's Court.

(1) After the receipt of preliminary assessment from the Board under Section 15, the Children's Court may decide that—

(i) there is a need for trial of the child as an adult as per the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) and pass appropriate orders after trial subject to the provisions of this section and section 21, considering the special needs of the child, the tenets of fair trial and maintaining a child friendly atmosphere;

(ii) there is no need for trial of the child as an adult and may conduct an inquiry as a Board and pass appropriate orders in accordance with the provisions of section 18.

(2) The Childrens Court shall ensure that the final order, with regard to a child in conflict with law, shall include an individual care plan for the rehabilitation of child, including follow up by the probation officer or the District Child Protection Unit or a social worker.

(3) The Childrens Court shall ensure that the child who is found to be in conflict with law is sent to a place of safety till he attains the age of twenty-one years and thereafter, the person shall be transferred to a jail:

Provided that the reformatory services including educational services, skill development, alternative therapy such as counselling, behaviour modification therapy, and psychiatric support shall be provided to the child during the period of his stay in the place of safety.

(4) The Childrens Court shall ensure that there is a periodic follow up report every year by the probation officer or the District Child Protection Unit or a social worker, as required, to evaluate the progress of the child in the place of safety and to ensure that there is no ill-treatment to the child in any form.

(5) The reports under sub-section (4) shall be forwarded to the Childrens Court for record and follow up, as may be required."

10. As per terms of Section 18 (3) of the Act, 2015, the Magistrate has no power to retain the file after declaring the applicant-accused as juvenile and the trial of any accused/delinquent juvenile, who is assessed to be tried as an adult, can only be held before the Children's Court/ POCSO Court in terms of Section 18 (3) of the Act, 2015.

11. But in the present case, the accused-applicant was 16 years 9 months and 7 days at the time of commission of alleged offence, hence, the accused-applicant was declared juvenile vide order dated 18.05.2022 passed by Juvenile Justice Board. After declaring the accused-applicant as juvenile, the Principal Magistrate has rightly requested the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate to pass appropriate order for sending the matter to the Juvenile Justice Board/Children's court, but the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate without giving any heed, rejected the same observing that as the file of the instant case has been transferred to his court, therefore, he will continue to hold the trial proceeding.

12. Recently, the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Barun Chandra Thakur (supra) has observed as under:

"81. We are conscious of the fact that the power to make the preliminary assessment is vested in the Board and also the Children's Court under Sections 15 and 19 respectively. The Children's Court, on its own, upon a matter being referred to under Section 18(3), would still examine whether the child is to be tried as an adult or not, and if it would come to the conclusion that the child was not to be tried as an adult then it would itself conduct an inquiry as a Board and pass appropriate orders under Section 18. Thus, the power to carry out the preliminary assessment rests with the Board and the Children's Court. This Court cannot delve upon the exercise of preliminary assessment. This Court will only examine as to whether the preliminary assessment has been carried out as required under law or not. Even the High Court, exercising revisionary power under Section 102, would test the decision of the Board or the Children's Court with respect to its legality or propriety only. In the present case, the High Court has, after considering limited material on record, arrived at a conclusion that the matter required reconsideration and for which, it has remanded the matter to the Board with further directions to take additional evidence and also to afford adequate opportunity to the child before taking a fresh decision."

13. Perusal of letter of Principal Magistrate dated 27.06.2022 clearly states that after declaring the accused-applicant as juvenile, he has requested the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate to pass appropriate order for sending the matter to the Juvenile Justice Board and the learned Magistrate ought to have complied with requisition request dated 27.06.2022 wherein it was asked to transfer the file of the instant case to the Juvenile Justice Board so that Board may transfer the said file to the Children's Court/POCSO Court having jurisdiction to try such case against the accused-applicant in terms of Section 18 (3) of the Act, 2015, but the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, instead of sending the file to the Juvenile Justice Board, has passed the order impugned.

14. In view of the facts and circumstances of the case and the law laid down as discussed above, the present application u/s 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed. The impugned order dated 03.02.2023 passed by learned ACJM, Khurja, District Bulandshahar is hereby set aside.

15. Consequently, the instant case pending before the learned Magistrate stands transferred to the Children's Court in view of Section 18 (3) of Juvenile Justice (Care & Protection of Children) Act, 2015. The Magistrate concerned is directed to send the file of the instant case to the Juvenile Justice Board/Children's Court having jurisdiction to try the case against the applicant in terms of Section 18 (3) of the Act, 2015.

1. Heard Anil Tiwari, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri A.P. Paul, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Suresh Chandra Pandey, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. This application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been preferred for quashing the entire proceedings of Case No. 235/IX of 2003 (Dina Nath Chaturvedi Vs. Maa Sherwali Production and ors), under Section 138 of N.I. Act, Police Station Kotwali, District Mathura, pending in the court of Judicial Magistrate, Mathura.

CASE OF THE APPLICANT:

3. The applicant had given a complaint letter dated 31.10.2002 with Oshiwara Police Station, Mumbai wherein he informed that two cheques bearing No. 210547 and 210546 were stolen from his office. The applicant has also informed his bank i.e. Punjab and Sind Bank, Juhu Branch, Mumbai through the same letter dated 31.10.2002 (Annexure No.1), wherein he informed the bank not to clear the above mentioned cheques. On 01.01.2003 a phone call was received from the Bank that one of the cheques mentioned in his letter dated 31.10.2002 was presented before the Bank for clearance. The applicant immediately approached the Senior Inspector of Police, Oshiwara and registered an F.I.R. No. 1/2003 dated 01.01.2003 (Annexure No. 2) against the respondents under Sections 381, 420 read with Section 34 I.P.C.

4. On 11.03.2003 as a counter blast to the aforesaid FIR lodged by the applicant, respondent no.2 filed a complaint against the applicant (Annexure No.3) alleging therein that the applicant borrowed Rs.30 lacs from the complainant 10 years ago and after settlement, applicant gave Cheque No. 210547 on 13.12.2002 and the same has been bounced.

5. Earlier on 22.02.1998 the opposite party no.2 gave an undertaking on the notary stamp paper stating therein that he had no title or interest in the firm named as "M/s. Maa Sherawali Production" and all assets and liabilities pertaining to the said firm belongs to applicant, namely, Sri Bobby Anand @ Yogesh Anand. (Annexure No.4.).

6. On submission of the said complaint by respondent no.2, the concerned Magistrate recorded the statement of the complainant under Section 200 Cr.P.C. on 28th March, 2003, which is contradictory and creates doubt in the prosecution case (Annexure No.5). After that on 1st May, 2003, the concerned Magistrate without perusing the material on record and without application of mind, took cognizance thereon and summoned the applicant in a mechanical manner (Annexure No.6).

7. On the other hand, in F.I.R. No. 1/2003 dated 01.01.2003 lodged by the applicant, the Investigating Officer after completing investigation under Chapter XII Cr.P.C. submitted the charge-sheet against the opposite party no.2 and his associates, namely, Santosh, Rakesh Chaturvedi and Manoj Chaturvedi before Xth Metropolitan Magistrate Court at Andheri, Mumbai in Criminal Case No. 371/TW/2004. One accused Santosh arrested by the police on 22.01.2003 and he was granted bail by the X Metropolitan Magistrate. Thereafter opposite party no.2 and other co-accused persons moved anticipatory bail application before the Sessions Court, Greater Mumbai, and the same was rejected vide order dated 19.09.2003 (Annexure No.7). After rejection of anticipatory bail by the court below, the opposite party no.2 and other co-accused approached the Hon'ble High Court, Bombay and the Court passed a descriptive order mentioning therein that opposite party and other co-accused undertake to deposit the second cheque to the Investigating Officer forthwith (Annexure No.8).

8. The opposite party no.2 and other co-accused did not comply with their own undertaking given before the Hon'ble Bombay High Court while obtaining order of anticipatory bail and in order to safeguard themselves, as a counter blast opposite party no.2 maliciously filed the present complaint before the Judicial Magistrate, Mathura under Section 138 N.I. Act.

9. For compliance of the order of Hon'ble Bombay High Court, Senior Police Inspector, Oshiwara, Mumbai moved an application before learned Judicial Magistrate, Mathura with the request to allow him to seize the said cheque being the main ingredient and the relevant muddemal of the said case pending before the learned Xth Metropolitan Magistrate at Andheri, Mumbai (Annexure No.9).

10. The concerned Magistrate, Mathura without application of mind and without going through the materials on record, took cognizance upon the present complaint and ignoring the procedure of Section 210 Cr.P.C., whose sub-Section (1) provides that when in a case instituted otherwise than on a police report (hereinafter referred to as a complaint case), it is made to appear to the Magistrate, during the course of the inquiry or trial held by him, that an investigation by the police is in progress in relation to the offence which is the subject-matter of the inquiry or trial held by him, the Magistrate shall stay the proceedings of such inquiry or trial and call for a report on the matter from the police officer conducting the investigation. However, in the present case, concerned Magistrate, Mathura after taking cognizance summoned the applicant, which is wholly illegal, arbitrary and against the settled principle of law prescribed under section 210 (1) Cr.P.C.

11. In connection with above paragraphs, the applicant further clarifies that when the issue related with the present offences is subjudice and pending for disposal, then the parallel proceedings based upon the same instrument cannot be instituted and the same is required to be heard together in accordance with the provision of Section 210 (1) Cr.P.C.

12. As per a catena of judgment of Apex Court, it is a clear cut law that in cases of cross cases between the same parties as a matter of practice in order to avoid duplicacy of proceedings and also to avoid contradictory judgments coming from different court it is desirable that the proceedings be conducted by the same court one after another. Therefore, the passing of the impugned order by the learned Magistrate, Mathura becomes unsustainable in law and ought to be set aside (Reference: Nathi Lal and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, 1990 SCC 145).

13. Even on the point of jurisdiction the learned Magistrate erred in issuing the order of process by over looking the factual matrix of the case. A bare perusal of the complaint would indicate that it has been the stand of the complainant i.e. the respondent herein that practically entire transaction right from inception had taken place in Bombay, therefore, he never had the jurisdiction to issue process. Except for the deposition of the cheque in Mathura and the issuance of the notice from there nothing else has taken place in Mathura. In fact as per the stand taken by the complainant the intimation of the dishonored cheques have been received by him in his residence in Bombay, therefore, it is clear that the cheque was deposited in Mathura only with the sole purpose of harassing the applicant by making him to appear in a remote and distant place, where he does not have any relations, connections or base to defend himself. Therefore, on this ground the order of process is liable to be set aside as the same has become instrument of harassment to the applicant rather than an instrument of justice to the opposite party. The opposite party no.2 is operating from Bombay. Even in the past opposite party no.2 was always based in Bombay; therefore, he could have very well filed the complaint in Bombay rather than filing in Mathura.

14. On the basis of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the applicant moved objection before the learned Magistrate, Mathura vide Application dated 09.12.2003, but the same was rejected vide his order dated 28.06.2004 on the ground that the same is not maintainable and learned Magistrate ignored the procedure of Section 210(1) Cr.P.C. (Annexure No.10).

15. Vide order dated 28.06.2004, learned Magistrate rejected the objection under Section 204 Cr.P.C. on the ground that the summoning order cannot be recalled under Section 204 Cr.P.C. against the impugned order dated 28.06.2004, the applicant preferred revision being No. 2886 of 2004, but vide order dated 04.01.2008, Hon'ble High Court has observed that the aforesaid relief cannot be granted in the revision.

16. In the meanwhile, opposite party no.2 started appearing as accused in the Magistrate Court at Bombay, where charge-sheet has been filed by the Bombay Police. Learned Public Prosecutor vide his order dated 07.02.2005 sought issuance of search warrant for the recovery of cheques which were stolen by the opposite party no.2 and ultimately presented in the Bank by committing an offence of forgery. It is noteworthy that learned Magistrate was pleased to issue an order dated 08.02.2005, whereby he issued a search warrant for the search of the house and for recovery of both the cheques in question.

17. The police did not execute the search warrant, so the applicant had to run from the pillar to post to secure justice to himself. The applicant then realized that nothing would come out so he filed a Misc. Application before the Principal Judge, at Sessions Court Mumbai. The learned Judge was pleased to pass an order dated 21.02.2007, whereby a clear cut direction was given to the police to execute the warrant and at the same time the learned Judge was pleased to direct that upon the submission of report of execution of the warrant the trial shall be concluded within a period of three to four months, there from. The said order has already been communicated to the learned Magistrate and he has given necessary direction to the police for execution thereof. The accused i.e. opposite party no.2 has participated in the proceedings in the Magistrate Court and they were very well aware of the order passed by the Sessions Court at Bombay, but they have chosen to be quite. The mischief on the part of the accused can be gauged from the omnibus silence on their part. The opposite party no.2 never came to inform the court about the whereabouts of the cheques. He is actually getting benefit due to the lethargic approach of the police in executing the warrant. At the same time, the applicant, who is standing as complainant is handicapped inasmuch as he has been denied the opportunity of assisting the court. The learned Magistrate has taken a view that in a case, which has been instituted on the police report, the informant does not have the right to address the court by engaging his advocate. The learned Magistrate has always insisted upon the representation through the State Prosecutor. The applicant is stuck in vicious circle whereby, he has not been able to proceed with the matter in Bombay due to non-execution of the warrant.

Written argument on behalf of the applicant

18. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the cheque in question was dishonoured and was otherwise payable through account of and, therefore, as per Section 142 (2) (b) of the Negotiable Instrument Act, Mathura Court does not have the jurisdiction to try the offence.

19. It is submitted that it is admitted case of opposite party no. 2 in his statement recorded under Section 200 Cr.P.C. that the cheque was given to him for discharging collective liability of M/s. ABC Pictures Pvt. Ltd., M/S. ABC Films, Kamud Films and personal liability and Section 138 of N.I. Act cannot be invoked to discharge collective liability or liability of third party.

20. Assuming but not admitting, then also Section 138 of N.I. Act proceedings cannot be maintained because ingredients of Section 138 of N.I. Act are not fulfilled in the facts of the present case. It is further submitted that Section 138 N.I. Act does not speak about the joint/ collective liability. Even in case of a joint/ collective liability, in case of individual persons, a person other than a person who has drawn the cheque on an account maintained by him, cannot be prosecuted for the offence under Section 138 N.I. Act.

21. In support of this plea learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Alka Khandu Avhad Vs. Amar Syamprasad Mishra, reported in (2021) 2 PUN LR 1. Reliance is also placed upon the judgement of Bombay High Court in the case of Hiten Sagar Vs. IMC Ltd. And another reported in LAW Finder Doc Id # 9631 wherein it has been held that "cheque issued by 'A' in discharge of liability of 'B' - Dishonour of cheque- 'A' is not liable - 'A' could be liable if he had taken upon himself the liability of 'B' by an agreement.

22. It is further submitted that while filing the present complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act before the concerned Magistrate at Mathura, opposite party no.2 has wilfully concealed that a criminal prosecution is pending regarding the same disputed cheque in the court of Mumbai, wherein the opposite party no.2 and others have been charge-sheeted and the charges have been framed against them under Sections 381, 420, 511 r/w 34 I.P.C.

Needless to add, the State of Maharashtra Police tried with respect of the stolen cheque bearing CC No. 2201205/PW/2006 is pending before the Court of X Metropolitan Magistrate at Andheri, Mumbai. In support of his plea, learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Delhi High Court in the case of Taruna Batra Vs. Shikha of Delhi High Court, reported in Law Finder Doc Id # 218864.

23. It is submitted that the disputed cheque was reported as stolen/ missing to the drawee bank on 31.10.2002 and stop payment instruction was given by the applicant. The cheque was returned with remark “Stop payment” later on. In such cases liability under Section 138 N. I. Act cannot be attracted. For the said plea, learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Kerala High Court in the case of K. Sadanandan Vs. Satheesh Kumar & Another reported in (2016) 1 NIJ 93 as also the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Raj Kumar Khurana Vs. State of (NCT of Delhi), reported in Law Finder Doc Id # 192011, wherein it has held that the payment refused by Bank on the ground that the account holder has reported the cheques as lost/ stolen, no offence under Section 138 N.I. Act is made out.

24. It is further submitted that the summoning order dated 01.05.2003 was a proforma order and was passed without application of mind. Issuing of summon by learned Magistrate at JMFC Court, Mathura under Section 138 N.I. Act was illegal, arbitrary and against the settled principles of law as he has not considered the materials on record and has not scrutinized the evidence on record and has not given any reason for his conclusion as there is absence of strict consideration of the penal provisions under Section 138 N.I. Act i.e. ingredients to constitute the offence under Section 138 of N.I. Act. Learned counsel for the applicant has drawn the attention of the Court to the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of M/s. PEPSI Foods Ltd Vs. Special Judicial Magistrate reported in Law Finder Doc Id # 40157, wherein the Apex Court has held in paragraph no.26 that “Order of Magistrate summoning the accused should reflect application of his mind – Mere examination of two witnesses by complainant is not sufficient- Magistrate has to carefully scrutinise the evidence and may even himself put questions to the complainant and his witnesses to elicit answers to find out the truthfulness of allegations or otherwise and then examine if any offence was prima facie committed by the accused.

25. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that it is well settled law that in absence of necessary averments in the complaint in question regarding the nature of transaction between the parties, complaint cannot be maintained on sketchy averments. He further submits that it is well settled law that the complainant should narrate the entire history of transaction and the off shoots of the transactions resulting in litigation between the parties. If the complainant does not place all material facts and details of the cheques, in his complaint before the Court, cognizance of his complaint has to suffer. One who does not come with clean hands has to suffer as the Hon’ble Supreme Court has declared that in absence of requisite pleadings in respect of the transaction concerned (i.e. absence of the details of the cheques, absence of the details of the date and the year of the cheques, absence of the details of the name of the Bank of the cheques, absence of the details of the cheque number and absence of the time or the year when the said loan was advanced, etc.) quashing of complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act is justified. In support of his plea, learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Omni Plast Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Standard Chartered Bank and others reported in Law Finder Doc Id # 659121.

26. It is lastly submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that the statutory notice under section 138 of N.I. Act has been sent on 27.01.2003 by the opposite party no.2 i.e. after the period of 15 days from the date of intimation of the dishonour of the stolen cheque number 210547 from Dena Bank, Mathura. Therefore, the demand notice being beyond the period of limitation cannot be considered because, the cause of action came to an end on 25.01.2003 and 26.01.2003. Hence the complaint filed at Mathura is liable to be quashed. Reliance in that regard is placed upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Tomy Jacob Kattikkaran Vs. Dr. Thomas Man Jaly and another reported in Law Finder Doc Id # 39681.

27. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, learned counsel for the applicant submits that the entire criminal proceedings initiated by the respondent no.2/opposite party no.2 against the applicant is not only illegal but is an abuse of process of law, as such, the same are liable to be quashed by this Court in exercise of powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

CASE OF THE OPPOSITE PARTIES

28. Opposite party no.2 filed a complaint under Section 138 of N.I. Act against the applicant and his company, namely, Maa Sherawali Production Limited. The allegations made in the complaint are that opposite party no.2 gave money to the applicant and his firms on various dates amounting to Rs.30,00,000/- for which the applicant issued a Cheque No. 210457 from his account No. 2622 of Punjab and Sindh Bank, Juhu, Mumbai and the same has been dishonoured and the opposite party gave notice to the applicant to which he denied to pay the same, hence the present complaint was filed.

29. The present case pertains to a Cheque dated 13.12.2002, which was submitted in the Bank on 26.12.2002, which was dishonoured on 13.01.2003. A case was filed on 28.03.2003 and the learned court summoned the applicant on 01.05.2003 and since then the matter is pending because of dilatory tactics adopted by the applicant.

30. It would be pertinent to mention that the applicant preferred a Criminal Revision No. 2886 of 2004 before this Hon'ble Court against the summoning order dated 01.05.2003, which was dismissed as not pressed without granting any liberty to file afresh application as such the present application is not maintainable. A copy of the order dated 18.04.2008 passed in Criminal Revision No. 2886 of 2004.

Written Submission on behalf of opposite party no.2 as also the submission of learned A.G.A. for the State

31. The learned counsel for the opposite parties submit that the applicant has taken a defence that the cheque in issue in the present case has been stolen and an F.I.R. has been registered and he has given stop payment instruction to the bank. They have drawn the attention of the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of HMT Watches Ltd. Vs. M.A. Abida and others (2015) 11 SCC 776, wherein it has been held that stop payment also attracts the provisions of Section 138 N.I. Act and the factual defence of the accused can not be considered in an application seeking quashing of the proceedings.

32. The learned counsel for the opposite parties further submit that in the cases where the cheque was dishonoured on account of “stop payment” or instructions of the drawer, a presumption regarding the cheque being for consideration would arise under Section 139 of the Act. Reliance in that regard is placed upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Laxmi Dyechem Vs. State of Gujarat and others (2012) 13 SCC 375. They have further placed reliance upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Goaplast (P) Ltd. v. Chico Ursula D'souza and Anr. (2003) 3 SCC 232, where the Apex Court has held that ‘stop payment instructions’ and consequent dishonour of the cheque of a post-dated cheque attracts provision of Section 138.

33. The learned counsel for the opposite parties further submit that the defence of stolen cheque cannot be taken in the High Court by means of an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. seeking quashing of the proceedings as the same is a question of fact as the same has been held by this Hon'ble Court in the case of Bimal Kumar Nopani Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others, 2006 (55) ACC 399. The learned counsel for the opposite parties further relies upon the judgment of the Gujarat High Court in the case of Joitaram K. Patel Vs. State of Gujarat and others, Manu/ GJ/ 0036/1998 wherein it has held that defence of stolen cheque cannot be taken in the High Court by an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. seeking quashing of proceedings as the same is a question of fact.

34. Learned counsel for the opposite parties further submit that at any rate, whenever facts are disputed the truth should be allowed to emerge by weighing the evidence (Reference:-Rajeshbhari Muljibhai Patel Vs. State of Gujarat (2020) 3 SCC 794). This Hon'ble Court in the case of Naveen Saxena Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2021 (7) ADJ 431 held that proceeding cannot be quashed on the basis of factual defiance and that stop payment also attracts the provisions of Section 138 of the N.I. Act.

35. Learned counsel for the opposite parties further submit that the burden of proving that there is no existing debt or liability, is to be discharged in the trial (Reference:- two judges Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of M.M.T.C. Ltd. And another Vs. Medchl Chemicals and pharma (P) Ltd. And another (2002) 1 SCC 234).

36. It is then submitted that at the stage of summoning order, when the factual controversy is yet to be canvassed and considered by the trial court. Based upon a prima facie impression, an element of criminality cannot be entirely ruled out here subject to the determination by the trial court. Therefore, when the proceedings are at a nascent stage, scuttling of the criminal process is not merited. Reliance in that regard is placed upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Rathish Babu Unnikrishnan Vs. The State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi) and ors, Manu/ SC/ 0542/2022.

On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid submissions learned counsel for the opposite parties submits that there is no illegality or infirmity in the order of summoning of the applicant passed by the concerned Magistrate, as also in the order affirming the same passed by the revisional court. It is further submitted that the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicant that stolen cheques cannot be a basis for not constituting an offence of Section 138 of N.I. Act. As such the present application is liable to be dismissed.

37. I have considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants and have gone through the records of the present application.

ISSUE WHETHER SECTION 138
N.I. ACT IS APPLICABLE IN THE FACTS OF PRESENT CASE AND THE FINDING AND CONCLUSION OF THIS COURT

38. It is admitted position from the records of the present application that the applicant has also informed his bank M/s. Punjab and Sind Bank, Juhu Branch, Mumbai through the same letter dated 31.10.2002 (Annexure No.1), wherein he informed the bank not to clear the above mentioned cheques.

39. For ready reference the averments made in the letter dated 31.10.2002 are being quoted herein-below:

Dear Sir/Madam

Re: Our Current Account No: 2664

It has been brought to our notice by my company accountants that our cheques nos: 210546 & 210547 which were left signed by me in the custody of my employees since I was busy travelling, have been STOLEN.

I, instruct your bank to immediately STOP PAYMENT of the above Mention cheques if the same are received by your bank, and to immediately inform me of the same.

In case we discover any other missing cheques we will inform you of the same.

Kindly do the needful

Yours truly

For SHERAWALI PRODUCTIONS”

40. It is also admitted from record that on 01.01.2003 a phone call was received from the Bank that one of the cheques mentioned in his letter dated 31.10.2002 was presented before the Bank for clearance. The applicant immediately approached the Senior Inspector of Police, Oshiwara and registered an F.I.R. No. 1/2003 dated 01.01.2003 (Annexure No. 2) against the respondents under Sections 381, 420 read with Section 34 I.P.C.

41. Before expressing any opinion on the merits of the case set up by both the parties, it would be worthwhile to reproduce Sections 118, 138 and 139 of the

Negotiable Instrument Act, which are quoted herein-below:

“118. Presumptions as to negotiable instruments. —Until the contrary is proved, the following presumptions shall be made:—

(a) of consideration —that every negotiable instrument was made or drawn for consideration, and that every such instrument, when it has been accepted, indorsed, negotiated or transferred, was accepted, indorsed, negotiated or transferred for consideration;

(b) as to date —that every negotiable instrument bearing a date was made or drawn on such date;

(c) as to time of acceptance —that every accepted bill of exchange was accepted within a reasonable time after its date and before its maturity;

(d) as to time of transfer —that every transfer of a negotiable instrument was made before its maturity;

(e) as to order of indorsements —that the indorsements appearing upon a negotiable instrument were made in the order in which they appear thereon;

(f) as to stamps —that a lost promissory note, bill of exchange or cheque was duly stamped;

(g) that holder is a holder in due course —that the holder of a negotiable instrument is a holder in due course:

Provided that, where the instrument has been obtained from its lawful owner, or from any person in lawful custody thereof, by means of an offence or fraud, or has been obtained from the maker or acceptor thereof by means of an offence or fraud, or for unlawful consideration, the burden of proving that the holder is a holder in due course lies upon him.

138. Dishonour of cheque for insufficiency, etc., of funds in the account.

—Where any cheque drawn by a person on an account maintained by him with a banker for payment of any amount of money to another person from out of that account for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability, is returned by the bank unpaid, either because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with that bank, such person shall be deemed to have committed an offence and shall, without prejudice to any other provisions of this Act, be punished with imprisonment for [a term which may be extended to two years], or with fine which may extend to twice the amount of the cheque, or with both: Provided that nothing contained in this section shall apply unless—

(a) the cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier;

(b) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, 20 [within thirty days] of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid; and

(c) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice.

Explanation.— For the purposes of this section, “debt or other liability” means a legally enforceable debt or other liability.]

139. Presumption in favour of holder.—It shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that the holder of a cheque received the cheque of the nature referred to in section 138 for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability."

42. The Legal Fiction created under Section 138 of the N.I. Act, when a cheque is returned by the bank unpaid has been explained as follows:

"A bare perusal of the aforementioned provision would clearly go to show that by reason thereof a legal fiction has been created. A legal fiction, as is well known, although is required to be given full effect, has its own limitations. It cannot be taken recourse to for any purpose other than the one mentioned in the statute itself.

In State of A.P. & Anr. V. A.P. Pensioners Association reported in (2005) 13 SCC 161, the Apex Court has held as follows:

"...In other words, all the consequences ordinarily flowing from a rule would be given effect to if the rule otherwise does not limit the operation thereof. If the rule itself provides a limitation on its operation, the consequences flowing from the legal fiction have to be understood in the light of the limitations prescribed. Thus, it is not possible to construe the legal fiction as simply as suggested by Mr. Lalit."

11. Section 138 of the Act moreover provides for a penal provision. A penal provision created by reason of a legal fiction must receive strict construction. (See R. Kalyani v. Janak C. Mehta & Ors., (2009) 1 SCC 516) and DCM Financial Services Ltd. v. J.N. Sareen & Anr. (2008) (2) KLT 762 (SC) = (2008) 8 SCC 1). Such a penal provision, enacted in terms of the legal fiction drawn would be attracted when a cheque is returned by the bank unpaid. Such non- payment may either be: (i) because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque, or (ii) it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with that bank.

Before a proceeding thereunder is initiated, all the legal requirements therefor must be complied with. The court must be satisfied that all the ingredients of commission of an offence under the said provision have been complied with.

The parameters for invoking the provisions of S.138 of the Act, thus, being limited, we are of the opinion that refusal on the part of the bank to honour the cheque would not bring the matter within the mischief of the provisions of S.138 of the Act.

12. The court while exercising its jurisdiction for taking cognizance of an offence under S.138 of the Act was required to consider only the allegations made in the complaint petition and the evidence of the complainant and his witnesses, if any."

43. The penal provision, enacted under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instrument Act shows that a legal liability drawn would be attracted when a cheque is returned by the bank unpaid. It explains that, such non-payment by the bank may either be: (i) because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque, or (ii) it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with that bank. Before a proceeding the legal requirements mentioned therein must be complied with and convince the court that all the ingredients of the offence have been complied with. Therefore it is clear that the parameters for invoking the provisions of S.138 of the Act being limited, the refusal on the part of the bank to honour the cheque would not bring the matter within the mischief of the provisions of S.138 of the Act.

44. Considering the above limitation, the question here is, whether a cheque is returned by the bank on the ground "cheque reported lost" will come within the purview of Section 138 of the N.I. Act. The limitations are provided in the above dictum. Therefore, the refusal on the part of the bank to honour the cheque would not bring the matter within the penal provisions of Section 138 N.I. Act. The facts and issue involved in the present case are fully applicable to the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Raj Kumar Khurana VS. State of (NCT OF DELHI) & Another reported in (2009) 6 SCC 72.

45. In paragraph nos. 10 to 12 the Apex Court in the case of Raj Kumar Khurana has observed as follows:

"10. A bare perusal of the aforementioned provision would clearly go to show that by reason thereof a legal fiction has been created. A legal fiction, as is well known, although is required to be given full effect, has its own limitations. It cannot be taken recourse to for any purpose other than the one mentioned in the statute itself. In State of A.P. & Anr. Vs. A.P. Pensioners Association & Ors. [(2005) 13 SCC 161], this Court held:

"...In other words, all the consequences ordinarily flowing from a rule would be given effect to if the rule otherwise does not limit the operation thereof. If the rule itself provides a limitation on its operation, the consequences flowing from the legal fiction have to be understood in the light of the limitations prescribed. Thus, it is not possible to construe the legal fiction as simply as suggested by Mr. Lalit."

11. Section 138 of the Act moreover provides for a penal provision. A penal provision created by reason of a legal fiction must receive strict construction.....

Before a proceeding thereunder is initiated, all the legal requirements therefore must be complied with. The court must be satisfied that all the ingredients of commission of an offence under the said provision have been complied with.

12. The parameters for invoking the provisions of Section 138 of the Act, thus, being limited, we are of the opinion that refusal on the part of the bank to honour the cheque would not bring the matter within the mischief of the provisions of Section 138 of the Act."

46. In view of the legal proposition as discussed above, this Court is of the view that the essential ingredients of Section 138 of the Act are lacking in the facts of the present case as the case of stolen/lost/theft cheque does not fall under the ambit of Section 138 of N.I. Act, thus Section 138 N.I. Act will not be applicable in such cases.

APPLICABILITY OF SECTION 210 (1) CR.P.C. IN THE FACTS OF THE PRESENT CASE, FINDING AND CONCLUSIONS OF THIS COURT

47. From the records it is cropped up that for two stolen cheques being Cheque Nos. 210547 and 210546, the applicant wrote a letter to the concerned Bank on 31st October, 2002 requesting not to clear or encash the same and when the Bank informed him on telephone that cheque no. 210547 was submitted before the Bank for its clearance/encashment, then the applicant lodged an FIR bearing no. 1 of 2003 at Police Station Oshiwara at Mumbai under Sections 381, 420 read with Section 34 I.P.C. on 01st January, 2003 against the complainant/opposite party no.2 along with other co-accused persons and the present complaint for dishonour of the same cheque i.e. cheque no. 210547 has been filed by the complainant on 11th March, 2003 against the applicant. In Case Crime No. 1 of 2003 at Police Station-Oshiwara at Mumbai, after investigation proceeded and ultimately, charge-sheet came to be submitted against the complainant and other co-accused persons, namely, Santosh, Rakesh Chaturvedi and Manoj Chaturvedi before the Court of X Metropolitan Magistrate, Andheri, Mumbai on which cognizance was taken and Criminal Case No. 371/TW/2004 was registered, after that co-accused Santosh was arrested and he granted bail by the court concerned. Opposite party no.2 and co-accused Rakesh Chaturvedi and Manoj Chaturvedi preferred anticipatory bail application before the Bombay High Court and they were granted anticipatory bail by the Court concerned of the Bombay High Court vide orders dated 3rd November, 2003 In Anticipatory Bail Application No. 3963 of 2003 (Dinanath Chaturvedi & Ors. Vs. The State of Maharashtra). The relevant portion of the order of the Bombay High Court dated 3rd November, 2003 reads as under:

“3. It is noticed that the applicants have already filed criminal case for dishonour of cheque against the complainant and at the behest complainant, C.R.No.1 of 2003 has been at the Oshiwara Police Station at Mumbai for offences punishable under Sections 381 and 420 read with Section 34 of the Indian Penal Code. The applicants apprehend arrest.

4. The subject matter of the complaint registered against the applicants are two cheques which are alleged to have been stolen from the office of the complainant and one of them or both are subject matter of the proceedings initiated under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act in a Court at Mathura in Uttar Pradesh. The learned A.P.P. on instructions from the investigating Officer states that the remaining cheque also is not submitted to him by the Applicants and therefore, taking into consideration the allegations for forged signature, their custodial interrogation is necessary.

6. It is therefore directed that in the even or any of the Applicant's arrest, he/they shall be released on bail in the sum of Rs.50,000/ (Rupees Fifty Thousands) each, with a solvent surety for the like amount, and on the condition that all the Applicants shall report to the Investigating Officer at Oshiwara Police Station for a period of two weeks from tomorrow or day after tomorrow between 2.00 to 6.00 p.m. and none of them shall leave the territories of Greater Bombay District without permission of the said Investigating Officer.

7. The Applicants also undertakes to deposit the second cheque with the Investigating Officer forthwith.

8. This order shall be valid for a period of four weeks or till the interrogation is completed whichever is later, and it operates only of C.R. No. 01/2003.”

48. Despite the order of the Bombay High Court dated 3rd November, 2003 and the undertaking given before it, the complainant has not submitted the said cheque before the Investigating Officer of Case N. C.R. No. 01 of 2003.

49. Apart from the above, in compliance of the order of the Bombay High Court dated 3rd November, 2003, Senior Police Inspector of Police Station-Oshiwara, Mumbai moved an application before the concerned Judicial Magistrate, Mathura along with the order of the Mumbai High Court dated 18th June, 2004 requesting therein that he may be permitted to seize the cheque, which is alleged to be dishonoured cheque, for which the present complaint has been filed by the complainant/opposite party no.2 against the applicant on 24th November, 2003, as the said cheque being the main ingredient and relevant muddemal of the Criminal Case No. 371/TW/2004 pending before the X Metropolitan Magistrate, Andheri, Mumbai but no order was passed by the concerned Magistrate at Mathura in the present complaint case. After passing of the summoning order passed by the concerned Magistrate at Mathura in the present complaint case, the applicant filed objection by means of application dated 9th December, 2003 that when the issue related with the present offences is subjudice and pending for disposal, then the parallel proceeding based upon the same instrument cannot be instituted and the same is required to be heard together as per the provisions of sub-Section (1) to Section 210 Cr.P.C. But ignoring the said provisions, the concerned Magistrate has rejected the said objection of the applicant vide order dated 28th June, 2004, which was confirmed by the revisional court vide order dated 4th January, 2008.

50. For resolving the said issue, it would be worthwhile to reproduce sub-

Section (1) to Section 210 Cr.P.C., which is quoted as under:

“210.Procedure to be followed when there is a complaint case and police investigation in respect of the same offence.

(1) When in a case instituted otherwise than on a police report (hereinafter referred to as a complaint case), it is made to appear to the Magistrate, during the course of the inquiry or trial held by him, that an investigation by the police is in progress in relation to the offence which is the subject- matter of the inquiry or trial held by him, the Magistrate shall stay the proceedings of such inquiry or trial and call for a report on the matter from the police officer conducting the investigation.

51. From perusal of the aforesaid fact and Section 210 (1) Cr.P.C., it is crystal clear that the concerned Magistrate at Mathura has not only disobeyed the orders of the Bombay High Court dated 3rd November, 2003 and 24/28th June, 2004, which is higher court and but also ignored the provisions of Section 210 (1) Cr.P.C. while proceeding further in the present criminal case, despite the fact that the cheque giving rise to the present complaint case is a case property in Criminal Case No. 371/TW/2004 pending before the X Metropolitan Magistrate, Andheri, Mumbai and for its seizure, an application has been made by the Senior Police Inspector of Police Station-Oshiwara, Mumbai on 24th November, 2003 before him. Therefore, this Court is of the firm opinion that the further proceedings in the present complaint as per Section 210 (1) Cr.P.C. are per se illegal.

PRESENT CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS ARE A CASE OF COUNTER BLAST OR NOT? AND THE FINDING AND CONCLUSIONS
OF THIS COURT

52. It is also cropped up from the record that on 1st January, 2003, the applicant lodged an FIR bearing no. 01 of 2003 for stolen of cheque, against the complainant and three co-accused persons under Section 381, 420 read with Section 34 I.P.C. at Police Station Oshiwara at Mumbai in which after submission of the charge-sheet, all the accused persons granted anticipatory bail/regular bail. It is also emerged that after more than two months and eleven days i.e. on 11th March, 2003 after lodging of the aforesaid FIR, the complainant filed the present complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act for dishonour of cheque no. 210547, against the applicant before the concerned Court of Magistrate at Mathura. Meaning thereby the present complaint case is a case of counter blast to the criminal proceedings initiated by the applicant by lodging the aforesaid FIR.

53. The Apex Court considering the case of counter blast or wreak vengeance M/s Eicher Tractor Ltd. and others Vs. Harihar Singh and another, 2009(1)JIC 245 (SC) has held as follows:

“7. In dealing with the last case, it is important to bear in mind the distinction between a case where there is no legal evidence or where there is evidence which is clearly inconsistent with the accusations made, and a case where there is legal evidence which, on appreciation, may or may not support the accusations. When exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code, the High Court would not ordinarily embark upon an enquiry whether the evidence in question is reliable or not or whether on a reasonable appreciation of it accusation would not be sustained. That is the function of the trial Judge. Judicial process, no doubt, should not be an instrument of oppression or needless harassment. Court should be circumspect and judicious in exercising discretion and should take all relevant facts and circumstances into consideration before issuing process, lest it would be an instrument in the hands of a private complainant to unleash vendetta to harass any person needlessly. At the same time the section is not an instrument handed over to an accused to short-circuit a prosecution and bring about its sudden death. The scope of exercise of power under Section 482 of the Code and the categories of cases where the High Court may exercise its power under it relating to cognizable offences to prevent abuse of process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice were set out in some detail by this Court in State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal [1992 Supp (1) SCC 335]. A note of caution was, however, added that the power should be exercised sparingly and that too in the rarest of the rare cases. The illustrative categories indicated by this Court are as follows: (SCC pp. 378-79, para 102) "(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156 (1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155 (2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155 (2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the Act concerned (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the Act concerned, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fides and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

8. As noted above, the powers possessed by the High Court under Section 482 of the Code are very wide and the very plenitude of the power requires great caution in its exercise. Court must be careful to see that its decision in exercise of this power is based on sound principles. The inherent power should not be exercised to stifle a legitimate prosecution. The High Court being the highest court of a State should normally refrain from giving a prima facie decision in a case where the entire facts are incomplete and hazy, more so, when the evidence has not been collected and produced before the Court and the issues involved, whether factual or legal, are of magnitude and cannot be seen in their true perspective without sufficient material. Of course, no hard-and-fast rule can be laid down in regard to cases in which the High Court will exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction of quashing the proceedings at any stage. It would not be proper for the High Court to analyse the case of the complainant in the light of all probabilities in order to determine whether a conviction would be sustainable and on such premises, arrive at a conclusion that the proceedings are to be quashed. It would be erroneous to assess the material before it and conclude that the complaint cannot be proceeded with. In proceedings instituted on complaint, exercise of the inherent powers to quash the proceedings is called for only in a case where the complaint does not disclose any offence or is frivolous, vexatious or oppressive. If the allegations set out in the complaint do not constitute the offence of which cognizance has been taken by the Magistrate, it is open to the High Court to quash the same in exercise of the inherent powers under Section of the Code. It is not, however, necessary that there should be meticulous analysis of the case before the trial to find out whether the case would end in conviction or acquittal. The complaint has to be read as a whole. If it appears that on consideration of the allegations in the light of the statement made on oath of the complainant that the ingredients of the offence or offences are disclosed and there is no material to show that the complaint is mala fide, frivolous or vexatious, in that event there would be no justification for interference by the High Court. When an information is lodged at the police station and an offence is registered, then the mala fides of the informant would be of secondary importance. It is the material collected during the investigation and evidence led in the court which decides the fate of the accused person. The allegations of mala fides against the informant are of no consequence and cannot by itself be the basis for quashing the proceedings.

9. These aspects were also highlighted in State of Karnataka Vs. M. Devendrappa [2002(3) SCC 89].

10. The case at hand squarely falls within the parameters indicated in category (7) of Bhajan Lal's case (supra). The factual scenario as noted above clearly shows that the proceedings were initiated as a counterblast to the proceedings initiated by the appellants. Continuance of such proceedings will be nothing but an abuse of the process of law. Proceedings are accordingly quashed."

54. On deeper scrutiny and evaluation of the aforesaid fact and the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Eicher Tractor (Supra), this Court is of the considered opinion that the present criminal proceedings by filing a complaint have been engineered to wreak vengeance, which is not permissible.

THE ISSUE WHETHER THE OPPOSITE PARTY NO.2/COMPLAINANT HAS CONCEALED THE MATERIAL FACT IN FILING OF THE PRESENT COMPLAINT CASE OR NOT?

55. For examining the submission of the learned counsel for the applicant that the complainant/opposite party no.2 has concealed the material fact i.e. pendency of criminal case arising out of FIR bearing no. 01 of 2003 against the complainant and three co-accused persons under Section 381, 420 read with Section 34 I.P.C. at Police Station Oshiwara at Mumbai against him along with other co-accused in filing of the present complaint case dated 11th March, 2003 under Section 138 N.I. Act before the Court of concerned Magistrate, Mathura, it would be worthwhile to reproduce the same, which is being quoted herein below:

यह कि उपरोक्त क्रम में परिवादी ने अपनी ए.बी.सी. पिक्चर्स प्रा०लि० से विभिन्न तारीखों 13,85,000/-रु० । तेरह लाख पिच्चासी हजार रूपये, ऐ.बी.सी. फिल्मस से 9,10,000/-रु०। नौ लाख दस हजार रूपये, फमोद फिल्मस से 20,90,000/-

अतः श्रीमान् जी से निवेदन है कि अभियुक्त को तलब कर दंडित करने की कृपा करें।"

56. From perusal of the above complaint of the complainant/opposite party no.2, it is crystal clear that the complainant has not approached the court of Judicial Magistrate, Mathura with clean hands in filing such complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act giving rise to the present criminal proceedings against the applicant and has also concealed the material fact qua the above criminal case pending against him at Mumbai for dishonour of the same cheque, which is subject matter in the aforesaid criminal case.

57. In M/s. Tilokchand Motichand & Ors. Vs. H.B. Munshi & Anr., reported in AIR 1970 SC 898; State of Haryana Vs. Karnal Distillery reported in AIR 1977 SC 781; and Sabia Khan & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Ors. reported in (1999) 1 SCC 271, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that filing totally misconceived petition amounts to abuse of the process of the Court and such a litigant is not required to be dealt with lightly, as petition containing misleading and inaccurate statement, if filed, to achieve an ulterior purpose amounts to abuse of the process of the Court.

58. In Agriculture & Process Food Products Vs. Oswal Agro Furane & Ors., reported in AIR 1996 SC 1947, the Apex Court had taken a serious objection in a case filed by suppressing the material facts and held that if a petitioner is guilty of suppression of very important fact his case cannot be considered on merits. Thus, a litigant is bound to make "full and true disclosure of facts". While deciding the said case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court had placed reliance upon the judgment in King Vs. General Commissioner, reported in (1917) 1 KB 486, wherein it has been observed as under:-

"Where an ex parte application has been made to this Court for a rule nisi or other process, if the Court comes to the conclusion that the affidavit in support of the application was not candid and did not fairly state the facts, but stated them in such a way as to mislead the Court as to the true facts, the Court ought, for its own protection and to prevent abuse of its process, to refuse to proceed any further with the examination of its merits.....”

59. In Abdul Rahman Vs. Prasony Bai & Anr., AIR 2003 SC 718; and S.J.S. Business Enterprises (P) Ltd. Vs. State of Bihar & Ors., reported in (2004) 7 SCC 166, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that whenever the Court comes to the conclusion that the process of the Court is being abused, the Court would be justified in refusing to proceed further and refuse relief to the party. This rule has been evolved out of need of the Courts to deter a litigant from abusing the process of the Court by deceiving it. However, the suppressed fact must be material one in the sense that had it not been suppressed, it would have led any fact on the merit of the case.

60. In K.D. Sharma vs. SAIL, reported in (2008) 12 SCC 481, the Apex Court has held that the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under Article 32 and of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution is extraordinary, equitable and discretionary and it is imperative that the petitioner approaching the writ court must come with clean hands and put forward all the facts before the Court without concealing or suppressing anything and seek an appropriate relief. If there is no candid disclosure of relevant and material facts or the petitioner is guilty of misleading the Court, his petition may be dismissed at the threshold without considering the merits of the claim. The same law was reiterated in G.

Jayashree vs. Bhagwandas S. Patel reported in (2009) 3 SCC 141.

61. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of India has repeatedly held that filing of false affidavit and concealment of material facts amounts to interference in the administration of justice and as such is criminal contempt of Court. In Dhananjay Sharma versus State of Haryana & ors., reported in AIR 1995 SC 1795, wherein in paragraphs 39 and 40, the Apex Court has held as follows:

“39. The question, therefore, which now requires our consideration is as to what action, is required to be taken against the respondents.

40. Section 2 (c) of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 (for short the Act) defines criminal contempt as the publication (whether by words, spoken or written or by signs or visible representation or otherwise) of any matter or the doing of any other act whatsoever to (1) scandalise or tend to scandalise or lower or tend to lower the authority of any Court: (2) prejudice or interfere or tend to interfere.....Thus, any conduct, which has the tendency to interfere with the administration of justice or the due course of judicial proceedings amounts to the commission of criminal contempt.”

62. The Apex Court in the case of Sunkara Lakshminarasamma & Anr. Versus Sagi Subba Raju & Ors. reported in (2009) 7 SCC 460 held that filing of false affidavit knowingly is a contempt and exemplary cost be imposed.

63. In Afzal & Anr. Versus State of Haryana & Ors., reported in JT 1996 (1)

SC 328, the Apex Court in paragraph-32 has held as follows:

“32. The question then is: whether he committed contempt in the proceedings of this Court? Section 2 (b) defines “Contempt of Court” to mean any civil or criminal contempt. “Criminal contempt” defined in Section 2(c) means interference with the administration of justice in any other manner. A false or a misleading or a wrong statement deliberately and wilfully made by a party to the proceedings to obtain a favourable order would prejudice or interfere with the due course of judicial proceedings.”

64. In Dhananjay Sharma vs. State of Haryana & others reported AIR 1995 SC 1795, in paragraph-40 the Supreme Court has held as follows:

“40. Thus, any conduct which has the tendency to interfere with the administration of justice or the due course of judicial proceedings amounts to the commission of criminal contempt.”

65. In Sabia Khan & Ors. Vs. State of U.P. & Ors., (1999) 1 SCC 271, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that filing totally misconceived petition amounts to abuse of the process of the Court and such litigant is not required to be dealt with lightly.

66. In view of the aforesaid, this Court finds substance in the submission made by the learned counsel for the applicant that this Court must view with disfavour any attempt by a litigant to abuse the process. The sanctity of the judicial process will be seriously eroded if such attempts are not dealt firmly. A litigant like the applicant who take liberties with the truth or with the procedures of the Court should be left in no doubt about the consequences to follow. Others should not venture along the same path in the hope or on a misplaced expectation of judicial leniency. Exemplary costs are inevitable, and even necessary, in order to ensure that in litigation, as in the law which is practised in our country, there is no premium on the truth. In the case in hand, the complainant has concealed the material fact by filing complaint under Section 138 N.I. Act before the Court below giving rise to the present criminal proceedings and he has not approached the Court with clean hands, his complaint case is not only liable to be rejected on this ground alone but also the he should be punished with exemplary cost.

67. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid discussions and deliberations, this Court finds no substance in the submissions made by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and the learned A.G.A. for the State and also finds that case laws relied upon by them are clearly distinguishable in the facts of the present case. This Court is of the firm opinion that the present criminal proceedings initiated against the applicant are not only malicious but also amount to an abuse of the process of the Court. As such, the proceedings of the above mentioned complaint case are liable to be quashed by this Court.

68. Accordingly, the proceedings of Complaint Case No. 235/IX of 2003 (Dina Nath Chaturvedi Vs. Maa Sherwali Production and ors), under Section 138 of N.I. Act, Police Station Kotwali, District Mathura, pending in the court of Judicial Magistrate, Mathura are hereby quashed.

69. The application is, accordingly, allowed. There shall be no order as to costs.

3. The allegation against the husband are that on 15.01.2022 at about 04:00 p.m., he pronounced a Triple Talaq, putting an end to the marriage. This divorce in the triple mode was pronounced over telephone. The complainant-opposite party has complained of cruelty by applicants nos. 1 to 7, including the said applicants turning her out of her matrimonial home. There is a case of demand of dowry by all the applicants, including cash in the sum of

Rs. 15 lacs. The complainant-opposite party's husband stays and works in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. There were certain other allegations regarding molestation and rape, but during investigation, these were not held established. However, during investigation, offences punishable under Sections 498A, 323 IPC and Section 3/4 of the Act of 1961 were found to be disclosed against applicants nos. 1 to 6, and against applicant no. 7, under Sections 498A, 323 IPC, Section 3/4 of the Act of 1961 and Section 3/4 of the Act of 2019. The Police, after investigation, have filed a charge-sheet.

4. This Court entertained this application vide order dated 08.05.2023 and summoned the complainant-opposite party's husband, who was impleaded, pending proceedings, as applicant no. 7 to the application. He is away from the country, serving in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. In compliance with this Court's order dated 08.05.2023, instead of complainant-opposite party's husband, her father-in-law appeared before the Court, and so did the complainant-opposite party. The parties were sent to the Court-annexed Mediation Centre the same day, with a direction that the Centre may explore the possibility of resolving the dispute between parties, if need be, through video conferencing put across to the complainant-opposite party's husband. The report from the Mediation Centre dated 18.05.2023 shows that applicant no. 1 and opposite party no. 2 appeared before the Centre, and so did the complainant-opposite party's husband, Mohd. Azeem, through video conferencing, but the mediation was terminated, saying "Parties not willing for the mediation."

5. Heard Mr. Umair Mahmood, learned Counsel for the applicants, Mr.

Vivek Pandey, learned Counsel for opposite party no. 2 and Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State.

6. Upon hearing learned Counsel for parties, this Court finds that there are materials in the case diary, which show prima facie commission of offences under Sections 498A IPC, 3/4 of the Act of 1961 and 3/4 of the Act of 2019. It is not possible for this Court, as the learned Counsel wants, to determine the truth of the allegations, all of which constitute the applicants' disputed defence. The allegations may be true or quite untrue. The Trial Court would have to determine it, upon holding a trial, wherein both sides would lead evidence. Of course, it is for the prosecution to establish the charges.

7. It is noticed in particular that one of the offences charged against applicant no. 7 is pronouncement of Triple Talaq. This offence has been created under the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019, a statute of very recent origin, enacted in order to suppress the mischief of pronouncement of Triple Talaq amongst a particular section of citizens of India. The practice has been regarded as oppressive, and the legislature has decided to suppress it by making it an offence punishable by law. Therefore, to liberally interfere and scuttle a prosecution for an offence involving pronouncement of Triple Talaq would be to bog down a statute recently introduced by the legislature to curtail a prevalent mischief in the society for quite some time. The pronouncement of Triple Talaq being regarded as utterly undesirable and something to be abolished by the legislature, the Statute has to be enforced with all its rigours. A prevalent practice in society takes a lot of time to eradicate, and if the legislative endeavour is not encouraged, the likelihood of the practice surviving and the legislation remaining a dead letter, is imminent. That this Court will not permit to happen.

8. In the circumstances above noticed, there no good ground to interfere with the impugned proceedings. The prayer to quash the impugned proceedings is, consequently, declined.

9. In the result, this application under Section 482 of the Code fails and stands rejected.

Special Appeal No. 337 of 2023

Cantonment Board Meerut & Anr.

...Appellants

Versus

Anuj Singh & Ors.

...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellants:

Sanjeev Singh, Ajay Kumar Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:

Gaurav Mehrotra, A.S.G.I., Anant Khanna,
Chinmay Mishra, Lalta Prasad Misra

A. Service Law – Dismissal - Cantonment Fund Servants Rules, 1937 - Rule 11(2)(vi) - Judicial review is not an appeal from a decision but a review of the manner in which the decision is made - Interference by the Court in exercise of its power u/Article 226 of the Constitution of India in disciplinary proceedings is permissible in case there is some perversity in the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority. (Para 6, 19)

In the matter of disciplinary inquiry against an employee if the disciplinary/appellate authority arrives at a conclusion which is based on the material available on record and if the view taken by the authority concerned is a plausible view, interference in such findings by this Court in exercise of its power conferred by Article 226 of the Constitution of India should be minimal. (Para 19)

In present case, there is no finding recorded by the learned Single Judge that the disciplinary proceedings were not conducted in accordance with any rule or law. Learned Single Judge has also not found any flaw or illegality or irregularity in the procedure followed during the course of disciplinary proceedings against respondent No. 1/petitioner. Findings as regards non-observance of principles of natural justice have also not been returned by the learned Single Judge. (Para 20)

B. The adequacy of evidence or even reliability of evidence will not be permissible for this Court to go into in exercise of its jurisdiction u/Article 226 of the Constitution of India if the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority or the appellate authority are based on some legal evidence on which findings can be based. (Para 21)

Under Article 226/227 of the Constitution of India, the High Court will not re-appreciate the evidence neither will it interfere with the conclusions in the inquiry if it has been conducted in accordance with law and the applicable rules. The High Court will not interfere if there be some legal evidence on which findings can be based. The principle of proportionality of punishment can be taken recourse to only if the punishment inflicted upon the employee shocks the conscience of the Court. (Para 19)

There is nothing on record which can even remotely point out that there has been any procedural lapse or any irregularity or illegality or infringement or violation of any rule while the disciplinary proceedings were conducted in this case against respondent No. 1/petitioner. In absence of any such lapse emerging from the record, learned Single Judge ought not to have entered into the findings recorded by the disciplinary and appellate authorities to the extent of substituting its own findings. (Para 21)

The judgment and order dated 27.04.2023 passed in Writ-A No. 14919 of 2021 is set aside.

Special appeal allowed. (E-4)

Present petition assails judgment and order dated 27.04.2023, passed by the learned Single Judge whereby petition filed by the respondent No. 1/petitioner has been allowed and the order of punishment of dismissal from service dated 14.08.2019 and the resolution of the Cantonment Board dated 14.08.2019 as also the order passed by the appellate authority rejecting the appeal against the punishment order, dated 01.06.2021 have been quashed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Devendra Kumar Upadhyaya, J.
Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

(1) Heard Sri Satish Chandra Mishra, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Sanjeev Singh, Sri Ajai Kumar Singh and Ms. Shataxi Shukla, Advocates for the appellants, Dr. L. P. Misra, Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Sri Rohit Agarwal, Sri Chinmay Mishra and Sri Anant Khanna for the respondent No.1 and Sri Nishant Shukla, learned Counsel representing respondent No.2 and 3 and perused the records available before us on this Special Appeal.

(2) Invoking the jurisdiction of this Court under Chapter VIII Rule 5 of the Rules of the Court, this intra-Court appeal questions the judgment and order dated 27.04.2023 passed by the learned Single Judge whereby Writ-A No. 14919 of 2021 filed by the respondent No.1/petitioner has been allowed and the order of punishment of dismissal from service dated 14.08.2019 and the resolution of the Cantonment Board dated 14.08.2019 as also the order passed by the appellate authority rejecting the appeal against the punishment order, dated 01.06.2021 have been quashed. Learned Single Judge while allowing the writ petition has also directed the appellants-Cantonment Board, Meerut to re-instate the respondent No.1/petitioner in service alongwith all consequential benefits on the post on which he was working prior to his dismissal.

(3) Learned Senior Advocate representing the appellants-respondents has vehemently argued that the order under appeal passed by the learned Single Judge dated 27.04.2023 is not sustainable for the reason that the learned Single Judge has apparently exercised his jurisdiction beyond the scope of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution of India in respect of an order of dismissal from service passed after conclusion of full-fledged departmental inquiry. It has further been argued on behalf of the appellants-respondents that the learned Single Judge has acted as an appellate authority over the decision taken by the disciplinary authority inasmuch as that the learned Single Judge has substituted his own findings to the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority by appreciating the evidence afresh which is not permissible so far as judicial review of matters relating to disciplinary proceedings is concerned.

(4) It has also been argued that in absence of any finding returned by the learned Single Judge regarding any flaw in the procedure followed during the course of conducting the inquiry, punishment order could not have been set aside. He has thus argued that the disciplinary proceedings against the respondent No.1/petitioner were conducted in terms of the provisions contained in the Rules regulating the disciplinary proceedings and since no irregularity or infringement of any legal provisions have been pointed out by the learned Single Judge, the order under appeal is not sustainable.

(5) Sri Mishra has also contended that once the evidence available on record has been accepted by the disciplinary authority and the findings returned by the disciplinary authority in respect of 'misconduct' are supported by the evidence available on record, the judgment passed by the learned Single Judge setting aside the order of dismissal from service cannot be justified. It has also been contended by the learned Senior Advocate representing the appellants-petitioners that the findings recorded by the learned Single Judge are not supported by evidence available on record and thus the judgment under appeal cannot be sustained specially for the reason that different acts complained of against the respondent No.1/petitioner clearly amounted to misconduct in terms of the provisions of CCS (Conduct) Rules, 1964. In this view, the submission is that the order under appeal is not sustainable and accordingly the appeal deserves to be allowed.

(6) Per contra, Dr. L.P. Misra assisted by other learned counsel representing respondent No.1/petitioner has argued that the learned Single Judge was conscious of the legal position that judicial review cannot be a substitute of an appellate jurisdiction and has thus proceeded to consider the submissions of the parties and has arrived at a conclusion that it was a case where findings recorded by the disciplinary authority as also by the Inquiry Officer suffered from the vice of perversity. He has also argued that it is well settled principle of law as enunciated by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case Union of India (UOI) vs. P. Gunasekaran* [2015 (2) SCC 610] that interference by this Court in exercise of its power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India in disciplinary proceedings is permissible in case there is some perversity in the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority. In support of his submission, Dr. Misra has relied upon various judgments which are (i) Bhagat Ram vs. State of Himachal Pradesh and others* [(1983) 2 SCC 442], (ii) S.R.Tewari v. Union of India and another* [(2013) 6 SCC 602], (iii) Union of India and others vs. Bodupalli Gopalaswami* [(2011) 13 SCC

553], (iv) Charanjit Lamba vs. Commanding Officer, Army Southern Command and others [(2010) 11 SCC 314]. (v) B.C. Chaturvedi vs. Union of India and others [(1995) 6 SCC 749], (vi) Ranjit Thakur vs. Union of India and others [(1987) 4 SCC 611] and (vii) Roop Singh Negi vs. Punjab National Bank and others [(2009) 2 SCC 570].

(7) Certain other judgments have also been relied by the learned counsel representing respondent No.1/petitioner to buttress the submission that it is well within the scope of power of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for this Court to interfere even in the findings of fact in the matters of departmental proceedings recorded by the disciplinary authority if the findings are based on no evidence or they are based on misreading of evidence or they are perverse. These judgments have also been cited to emphasize that doctrine of proportionality can be a ground for challenging a punishment order before this Court while scrutinizing such an order passed in departmental proceedings.

(8) The submission on behalf of learned counsel for respondent No.1/petitioner thus is that the learned Single Judge has given a categorical finding in respect of the charges levelled against the respondent No.1/petitioner which is based on the correct appreciation of evidence available on record and thus the order of punishment of dismissal from service has also been quashed by the learned Single Judge. In this view, the submission on behalf of the respondent No.1/petitioner is that no interference in this special appeal ought to be made and that the special appeal is liable to be dismissed.

(9) We have given our thoughtful consideration to the submissions made by the learned counsel representing the respective parties.

(10) For appropriate adjudication of the issue involved in this appeal, we find it apt to notice certain facts. Respondent No.1/petitioner, at the relevant point of time, was posted on the post of Cantonment Executive Engineer and was Head of the Engineering Section. It is the case of the appellants-respondents that respondent No.1/petitioner having served for 24 long years in the Engineering Section of the Cantonment Board, Meerut was well aware of the facts and circumstances of Meerut Cantonment, however, the omissions attributable to him had resulted in unauthorized construction and encroachment to the extent that the geographical picture of Meerut Cantonment was altered. In respect of certain charges, a charge sheet was issued to the respondent No.1/petitioner on 20.12.2013 which contained seven articles of charges alongwith statement of imputation of misconduct in support of each article of charge. Respondent No.1/petitioner submitted his written statement of defence on 27.01.2014. He, however, remained in jail in pursuance of a criminal case lodged vide F.I.R., dated 09.07.2016 under Sections 147, 302/34 I.P.C. Since he was in jail, an order of deemed suspension was passed against him on 27.07.2016 and the said suspension order continued till 11.01.2018 when it was revoked.

(11) Respondent No.1/petitioner submitted a detailed written statement of defence to the charge sheet on 30.06.2017. He also submitted written brief dated 18.08.2018 before the Inquiry Officer in respect of each article of charge. The Inquiry Officer after conducting inquiry submitted the Inquiry Report on 13.03.2019

finding the respondent No.1/petitioner guilty of misconduct in respect of charge Nos.1 to 5. Charge No.6 was found to be partially proved, whereas charge No.7 was not found proved. The Inquiry Report was served upon the respondent No.1/petitioner who submitted his explanation/comments/written submission to the Inquiry Report on 17.06.2019.

(12) In terms of the provisions of the Cantonments Act, 2006 and the relevant Rules, Cantonment Board being the disciplinary authority considered the Inquiry Report and the reply/representation made by the respondent No.1/petitioner to the Inquiry Report and unanimously resolved that the respondent No.1/petitioner be dismissed from service. Against the said decision of the dismissal from service, an appeal was preferred before the appellate authority under the relevant provisions of the Rules, however, the appellate authority found that the first charge was not proved against the respondent No.1/petitioner, whereas charge Nos.2 to 5 were found proved by the appellate authority as well. The appellate authority also concurred with the disciplinary authority in respect of charge No.6 where he found respondent No.1/petitioner to be partially guilty. The appellate authority thus reduced the major penalty of dismissal from service to the punishment of compulsory retirement as per Rule 11(2)(vi) of the Cantonment Fund Servants Rules, 1937.

(13) The said decision of the Cantonment Board as also the order of appellate authority were challenged by the respondent No.1/petitioner by filing Writ-A No. 14919 of 2021 which has been allowed by the judgment and order which is under appeal before us.

(14) In the aforesaid background facts, if we consider the judgment and order passed by the learned Single Judge, what we find is that after noticing the facts, the contents of charge sheet and the documents relied upon in support of the charges, learned Single Judge has also noticed the arguments made by the respective parties and has further noticed and observed the principle relating to scope of judicial review in disciplinary proceedings. Learned Single Judge has thus observed that the judicial review in such matters is concerned with the decision-making process and to see whether the same is perverse, illegal or it fails to satisfy the test of non-arbitrariness as enshrined under Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

(15) However, having observed the aforesaid principles governing the scope of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution of India in disciplinary matters, learned Single Judge has thereafter analyzed the inquiry report in respect of each charge and has also considered the proceedings before the Inquiry Officer, Disciplinary Authority as also the Appellate Authority.

(16) The inquiry report is on record as also the order of punishment of dismissal from service. The Inquiry Officer has considered in detail the evidence available on record in respect of each charge and the reply submitted by the respondent No.1/petitioner and has arrived at the conclusions mentioned therein. The disciplinary authority has also considered the entire matter and has given its findings based on the documents and evidence available on record. Similarly, the appellate authority has also proceeded to consider the entire evidence available on record in respect of each charge and thus has arrived at the conclusion different than the conclusion arrived at by the disciplinary authority in respect of some of the charges. The appellate authority has, in its final conclusion, reduced the punishment of dismissal into the punishment of compulsory retirement.

(17) Learned Single Judge has recorded a finding that the disciplinary authority in this case has drawn conclusions only on the basis of the submission of the Inquiry Officer and that there is no application of mind in respect of the defence taken by the respondent No.1/petitioner. This conclusion, however, in our considered opinion goes against the record inasmuch as that the disciplinary authority has clearly discussed the material available on record of the inquiry proceedings including the inquiry report and the reply submitted by the respondent No.1/petitioner. We also noticed that the learned Single Judge has also recorded a finding in respect of the order passed by the appellate authority that while dealing with second to fifth charge, the appellate authority concluded that any kind of minor deviation from the duty of supervision is to be viewed seriously and further that the appellate authority has further held that ineffective execution of duties by the subordinate/technical staff does not exculpate the respondent No.1/petitioner for non-performance of his duties. In the judgment under appeal passed by the learned Single Judge it has been observed that the appellate authority concluded its finding on the basis of dictionary meaning of the word 'supervisor' or 'to supervise' and that he has nowhere held that the respondent No.1/petitioner was in any way actively involved either in illegal constructions or illegal cultivation of crops. Learned Single Judge has opined that the findings recorded by the Inquiry Officer are erroneous inasmuch as the dictionary meaning of the word 'supervise' or 'to supervise' can be taken aid of only when the supervisory role and the supervisory duties are not specified, whereas in the present case nature of duties was clearly specified and elaborated where such no role for illegal construction is assigned to the respondent No.1/petitioner and the role of reporting was rather specifically assigned to the Junior Engineer Sri K.A. Gupta, Sri Piyush Gautam and Sri Vinod Gupta as also to Sri Roshan Zamir, Draftsman. Learned Single Judge has thus found that the order passed by the appellate authority is erroneous and perverse.

(18) For any finding recorded by the disciplinary authority or the appellate authority in disciplinary proceedings to be termed as perverse or erroneous, in our opinion, this Court in exercise of its power of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution of India cannot take upon itself the role of an appellate authority over the decision made by the disciplinary authority or even the appellate authority. Perversity, as is well known, in findings of fact, arises only in case any finding returned by any authority or Court or Tribunal is based on no evidence or misreading of evidence or acceptance of inadmissible evidence or ignorance of any evidence having bearing on the matter in issue. In respect of disciplinary proceedings, as is well established, the strict rule of evidence does not have any application. Accordingly, for this reason alone this Court while exercising the power of judicial review or judicial scrutiny under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has to be extra cautious in the sense that the Court may not enter into the finding of facts.

(19) In the same breath, we also observe that in the matter of disciplinary inquiry against an employee if the disciplinary/appellate authority arrives at a conclusion which is based on the material available on record and if the view taken by the authority concerned is a plausible view, interference in such findings by this Court in exercise of its power conferred by Article 226 of the Constitution of India should be minimal. Reference in this regard may be made to the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Karnataka and others vs. N. Gangaraj [MANU/SC/0187/2020]. In the said judgment, Hon'ble Supreme Court has reviewed the entire law relating to scope of judicial review in the matters of disciplinary proceedings and has clearly held that judicial review is not an appeal from a decision but a review of the manner in which the decision is made. Referring to another judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Union of India v. P. Gunasekaran (supra), it has been observed that under Article 226/227 of the Constitution of India, the High Court will not re-appreciate the evidence neither will it interfere with the conclusions in the inquiry if it has been conducted in accordance with law and the applicable rules. Hon'ble Supreme Court further goes on to observe that the High Court will not go even into the adequacy of evidence or its reliability. Further observations made by Hon'ble Supreme Court are that the High Court will not interfere if there is some legal evidence on which findings can be based. It has also been observed that the principle of proportionality of punishment can be taken recourse to only if the punishment inflicted upon the employee shocks the conscience of the Court. Paragraphs 6 to 13 of the judgment in the case of N. Gangaraj (supra) are extracted here-in-below:-

“6. The disciplinary authority has taken into consideration the evidence led before the IO to return a finding that the charges levelled against the respondent stand proved.

7. We find that the interference in the order of punishment by the Tribunal as affirmed by the High Court suffers from patent error. The power of judicial review is confined to the decision-making process. The power of judicial review conferred on the constitutional court or on the Tribunal is not that of an appellate authority.

8. In State of Andhra Pradesh and Ors. v. S. Sree Rama Rao MANU/SC/0222/1963: AIR 1963 SC 1723, a three-Judge Bench of this Court has held that the High Court is not a court of appeal over the decision of the authorities holding a departmental enquiry against a public servant. It is concerned to determine whether the enquiry is held by an authority competent in that behalf, and according to the procedure prescribed in that behalf, and whether the rules of natural justice are not violated. The Court held as under :

“7. ... The High Court is not constituted in a proceeding under Article 226 of the Constitution a court of appeal over the decision of the authorities holding a departmental enquiry against a public servant: it is concerned to determine whether the enquiry is held by an authority competent in that behalf, and according to the procedure prescribed in that behalf, and whether the rules of natural justice are not violated. Where there is some evidence, which the authority entrusted with the duty to hold the enquiry has accepted and which evidence may reasonably support the conclusion that the delinquent officer is guilty of the charge, it is not the function of the High Court in a petition for a writ under Article 226 to review the evidence and to arrive at an independent finding on the evidence.”

9. In B. C. Chaturvedi v. Union of India and Ors. MANU/SC/0118/1996 : (1995) 6 SCC 749, again, a three-Judge Bench of this Court has held that power of judicial review is not an appeal from a decision but a review of the manner in which the decision is made. Power of judicial review is meant to ensure that the individual receives fair treatment and not to ensure that the conclusion which the authority reaches is necessarily correct in the eyes of the court. The court/tribunal in its power of judicial review does not act as an appellate authority to reappreciate the evidence and to arrive at its own independent findings on the evidence. It was held as under :

“12. Judicial review is not an appeal from a decision but a review of the manner in which the decision is made. Power of judicial review is meant to ensure that the individual receives fair treatment and not to ensure that the conclusion which the authority reaches is necessarily correct in the eye of the court. When an inquiry is conducted on charges of misconduct by a public servant, the Court/Tribunal is concerned to determine whether the inquiry was held by a competent officer or whether rules of natural justice are complied with. Whether the findings or conclusions are based on some evidence, the authority entrusted with the power to hold inquiry has jurisdiction, power and authority to reach a finding of fact or conclusion. But that finding must be based on some evidence. Neither the technical rules of the Evidence Act nor of proof of fact or evidence as defined therein, apply to disciplinary proceeding. When the authority accepts that evidence and conclusion receives support therefrom, the disciplinary authority is entitled to hold that the delinquent officer is guilty of the charge. The Court/Tribunal in its power of judicial review does not act as appellate authority to reappreciate the evidence and to arrive at its own independent findings on the evidence. The Court/Tribunal may interfere where the authority held the proceedings against the delinquent officer in a manner inconsistent with the rules of natural justice or in violation of statutory rules prescribing the mode of inquiry or where the conclusion or finding reached by the disciplinary authority is based on no evidence. If the conclusion or finding be such as no reasonable person would have ever reached, the Court/Tribunal may interfere with the conclusion or the finding, and mould the relief so as to make it appropriate to the facts of each case.

13. The disciplinary authority is the sole judge of facts. Where appeal is presented. The appellate authority has co-extensive power to reappreciate the evidence or the nature of punishment. In a disciplinary inquiry, the strict proof of legal evidence and findings on that evidence are not relevant. Adequacy of evidence or reliability of evidence cannot be permitted to be canvassed before the Court/Tribunal. In Union of India v. H.C. Goel [MANU/SC/0271/1963 : (1964) 4 SCR 718], this Court held at page 728 that if the conclusion, upon consideration of the evidence, reached by the disciplinary authority, is perverse or suffers from patent error on the face of the record or based on no evidence at all, a writ of certiorari could be issued.”

10. In High Court of Judicature at Bombay through its Registrar v. Shashikant S. Patil and Anr. MANU/SC/0603/1999 : (2000) 1 SCC 416, this Court held that interference with the decision of departmental authorities is permitted if such authority had held proceedings in violation of the principles of natural justice or in violation of statutory regulations prescribing the mode of such enquiry while exercising jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution. It was held as under :

“16. The Division Bench of the High Court seems to have approached the case as though it was an appeal against the order of the administrative/disciplinary authority of the High Court. Interference with the decision of departmental authorities can be permitted, while exercising jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution if such authority had held proceedings in violation of the principles of natural justice or in violation of statutory regulations prescribing the mode of such enquiry or if the decision of the authority is vitiated by considerations extraneous to the evidence and merits of the case, or if the conclusion made by the authority, on the very face of it, is wholly arbitrary or capricious that no reasonable person could have arrived at such a conclusion, or grounds very similar to the above. But we cannot overlook that the departmental authority (in this case the Disciplinary Committee of the High Court) is the sole judge of the facts, if the enquiry has been properly conducted. The settled legal position is that if there is some legal evidence on which the findings can be based, then adequacy or even reliability of that evidence is not a matter for canvassing before the High Court in a writ petition filed under Article 226 of the Constitution.”

11. In State Bank of Bikaner and Jaipur v. Nemi Chand Nalwaya

MANU/SC/0411/2011 : (2011) 4 SCC 584, this Court held that the courts will not act as an appellate court and reassess the evidence led in the domestic enquiry, nor interfere on the ground that another view is possible on the material on record. If the enquiry has been fairly and properly held and the findings are based on evidence, the question of adequacy of the evidence or the reliable nature of the evidence will not be ground for interfering with the findings in departmental enquiries. The Court held as under :

“7. It is now well settled that the courts will not act as an appellate court and reassess the evidence led in the domestic enquiry, nor interfere on the ground that another view is possible on the material on record. If the enquiry has been fairly and properly held and the findings are based on evidence, the question of adequacy of the evidence or the reliable nature of the evidence will not be grounds for interfering with the findings in departmental enquiries. Therefore, courts will not interfere with findings of fact recorded in departmental enquiries, except where such findings are based on no evidence or where they are clearly perverse. The test to find out perversity is to see whether a tribunal acting reasonably could have arrived at such conclusion or finding, on the material on record. The courts will however interfere with the findings in disciplinary matters, if principles of natural justice or statutory regulations have been violated or if the order is found to be arbitrary, capricious, mala fide or based on extraneous considerations. (Vide B.C. Chaturvedi v. Union of India MANU/SC/0118/1996 : (1995) 6 SCC 749, Union of India v. G. Ganayutham MANU/SC/0834/1997 :

(1997) 7 SCC 463 and Bank of India v. Degala Suryanarayana MANU/SC/0399/1999 : (1999) 5 SCC 762, High Court of Judicature at Bombay v. Shashikant S. Patil MANU/SC/0603/1999 : (2001) (sic 2000) 1 SCC 416)

12. The fact that the criminal court subsequently acquitted the respondent by giving him the benefit of doubt, will not in any way render a completed disciplinary proceedings invalid nor affect the validity of the finding of guilt or consequential punishment. The standard of proof required in criminal proceedings being different from the standard of proof required in departmental enquiries, the same charges and evidence may lead to different results in the two proceedings, that is, finding of guilt in departmental proceedings and an acquittal by giving benefit of doubt in the criminal proceedings. This is more so when the departmental proceedings are more proximate to the incident, in point of time, when compared to the criminal proceedings. The findings by the criminal court will have no effect on previously concluded domestic enquiry. An employee who allows the findings in the enquiry and the punishment by the disciplinary authority to attain finality by non-challenge, cannot after several years, challenge the decision on the ground that subsequently, the criminal court has acquitted him.”

13. In another judgment reported as Union of India v. P. Gunasekaran MANU/SC/1068/2014 : (2015) 2 SCC 610, this Court held that while reappreciating evidence the High Court cannot act as an appellate authority in the disciplinary proceedings. The Court held the parameters as to when the High Court shall not interfere in the disciplinary proceedings :

13. Under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India, the High Court shall not:

- (i) reappreciate the evidence;
- (ii) interfere with the conclusions in the enquiry, in case the same has been conducted in accordance with law;
- (iii) go into the adequacy of the evidence;
- (iv) go into the reliability of the evidence;
- (v) interfere, if there be some legal evidence on which findings can be based.
- (vi) correct the error of fact however grave it may appear to be;
- (vii) go into the proportionality of punishment unless it shocks its conscience.

13. On the other hand the learned counsel for the respondent relies upon the judgment reported as Allahabad Bank v. Krishna Narayan Tewari MANU/SC/0006/2017 : (2017) 2 SCC 308, wherein this Court held that if the disciplinary authority records a finding that is not supported by any evidence whatsoever or a finding which is unreasonably arrived at, the writ court could interfere with the finding of the disciplinary proceedings. We do not find that even on touchstone of that test, the Tribunal or the High Court could interfere with the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority. It is not the case of no evidence or that the findings are perverse. The finding that the respondent is guilty of misconduct has been interfered with only on the ground that there are discrepancies in the evidence of the Department. The discrepancies in the evidence will not make it a case of no evidence. The inquiry officer has appreciated the evidence and returned a finding that the respondent is guilty of misconduct.”

(20) When we thus analyze the judgment rendered by the learned Single Judge in this case in the light of the aforesaid legal principles, what we find is that there is no finding recorded by the learned Single Judge that the disciplinary proceedings were not conducted in accordance with any rule or law. Learned Single Judge has also not found any flaw or illegality or irregularity in the procedure followed during the course of disciplinary proceedings against respondent No.1/petitioner. Findings as regards non-observance of principles of natural justice have also not been returned by the learned Single Judge.

(21) To the contrary, there is nothing on record which can even remotely point out that there has been any procedural lapse or any irregularity or illegality or infringement or violation of any rule while the disciplinary proceedings were conducted in this case against respondent No.1/petitioner. In absence of any such lapse emerging from the record, in our considered opinion, learned Single Judge ought not to have entered into the findings recorded by the disciplinary and appellate authorities to the extent of substituting its own findings. While we say so, we do not mean to state that in no such matters relating to disciplinary proceedings, interference by this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is permissible, however, the scope is very limited so far as the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority or appellate authority are concerned. As already observed above, in the case of P.

Gunasekaran (supra) Hon'ble Supreme Court has already held that the adequacy of evidence or even reliability of evidence will not be permissible for this Court to go into in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India if the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority or the appellate authority are based on some legal evidence on which findings can be based.

(22) For the reasons aforesaid, we do not find ourselves in agreement with the judgment and order passed by the learned Single Judge which is under appeal before us.

(23) Resultantly, the appeal is allowed and the judgment and order dated 27.04.2023 passed in Writ-A No. 14919 of 2021 is hereby set aside.

(24) However, there will be no order as to costs.

A. Service Law – Compassionate Appointment – There cannot be any occasion for giving compassionate appointment to the legal heirs of a retired employee.

The petitioner's husband had gone missing on 20.07.2002 while working as Senior Clerk under the respondents. His actual date of retirement was 30.04.2006. The petitioner had filed a suit for declaration before the competent court for declaring that the petitioner's husband was dead. The declaration has been issued on 23.02.2011. By the time the declaration was issued, the petitioner's husband stood retired. The petitioner's claim for compassionate appointment has been rejected by the department vide order dated 10.07.2013 on the ground that by the time the declaration has been given by the competent court of law on 23.02.2011, the petitioner's husband stood retired and as such there could not be any occasion for giving compassionate appointment to the legal heirs of a retired employee. (Para 7)

B. The Evidence Act, 1872: Section 108 - Presumption of death - The burden of proving the specific date of death lies upon the person who claims a right to the establishment of that fact. Section 108 of the Evidence Act indicates the presumption of death where a person has not been heard for seven years but the exact time of death is not a matter of presumption but of evidence and the onus of proving that the death took place at any particular time within 7 years lies upon the person, who claims a right to the establishment of which that fact is essential. (Para 10, 11)

In the instant case, it is the petitioner who is trying to stake her claim for compassionate appointment by asserting that the death of the petitioner's husband took place even prior to his actual date of retirement which was 30.04.2006, he having gone missing on 20.07.2002. However, nowhere in the entire petition the actual date of death of the petitioner's husband is mentioned nor any actual date is coming out from the declaration of any competent court as to on which date the petitioner's husband had died. The question remains disputed as to the fact of actual date of the petitioner's husband. (Para 12, 13, 14)

Present petition assails order dated 10.07.2013 except the payment dues passed, and prays for direction for appointment under Dying in Harness Rule with all consequential benefits.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Prashastha Puri, Advocate holding brief of Shri Nadeem Murtaza, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no.2.

2. The case had been heard at length on 05.07.2023. On the request of learned counsel for the petitioner, the matter had been fixed for today.

3. Shri Salik Ram Yadava, learned counsel for the petitioner has been heard at length.

4. The instant petition has been filed by the petitioner for the following reliefs:

"(1). Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 10.07.2013 except the payment dues passed by the respondent no.2 annexed as annexure no.1 to the writ petition.

(2). Issue a writ, order of direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to appoint the petitioner under Dying in Harness Rule at the place of her husband and pay him all consequential benefits."

5. The facts of the case are as under:-

The petitioner a widow claiming compassionate appointment is aggrieved by the order dated 10.07.2013, copy of which is annexure no.1 to the writ petition whereby the claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment has been rejected. The ground of the rejection is that the husband of the petitioner went missing on 20.07.2002 while working as Senior Clerk under the respondents. His date of retirement was 30.04.2006 while the declaration by the competent court declaring the petitioner's husband as dead has been issued on 23.02.2011 and thus, by the time the declaration has been given by the competent court, the husband of the petitioner already stood retired, consequently she is not entitled for compassionate appointment.

The order of rejection has been challenged by the petitioner by placing reliance on the judgement of this Court in the case of Zishan Khan vs. District Inspector of Schools and Others 2012 LawSuit(All) 1265 decided on 02.03.2012 whereby this Court has held in a similar matter that the presumption of death would arise prior to the date of retirement, when the department itself has paid the retiral dues of the missing employee and in this case too as the retiral dues have been paid as such the presumption of the death of petitioner's husband would relate back to the date of his disappearance i.e. 20.07.2002.

On the other hand, Shri Prashatha Puri, Advocate holding brief of Shri Nadeem Murtaza, learned counsel appearing for respondent no.2 has placed reliance on the judgments of the Apex Court in the cases of N. Jayalakshmi Ammal and Others v. R. Gopala Pathar and Another 1995 Supp (1) SCC 27 and Darshan Singh and Others V. Gujjar Singh and Others (2002) 2 SCC 62 and contends that the Apex Court has held that though Section 108 of the Evidence Act indicates the presumption of death where a person has not been heard for seven years but the exact time of death is not a matter of presumption but of evidence and the onus of proving that the death took place at any particular time within 7 years lies upon the person, who claims a right to the establishment of which that fact is essential.

Placing reliance on the aforesaid observations, the argument of Shri Puri is that in the facts of the instant case where the disappearance of the petitioner's husband took place in July, 2002 and he retired on 30.04.2006 while the declaration of the competent court is 23.02.2011 as such at the time of consideration of claim of compassionate appointment, the petitioner's husband already stood retired and there is no evidence to indicate the exact time of death of the petitioner's husband prior to his retirement date and consequently there would not be any occasion for consideration of the claim of the compassionate appointment inasmuch as compassionate appointment can only be claimed by the legal heirs of the deceased employee who dies in harness, but in this particular case there could not be any consideration of compassionate appointment after the retirement of the employee.

Placing reliance on the judgment of this Court in the case of Zishan Khan (supra), the contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that in the said case also this Court is of the view as the retiral dues have been paid even prior to the date of actual retirement of the employee concerned consequently it would be deemed that the said employee had retired prior to his retirement consequently the legal heir would be entitled to be considered for compassionate appointment. In this case too though the retiral dues have been paid much subsequent to the retirement of the employee concerned. Yet considering that the said retiral dues were due to be paid in terms of the relevant rules after two year of the date of the employee having gone missing. Consequently, it should be deemed that the employee died after two years of his having gone missing. This date would be prior to the date of actual retirement. Consequently, the petitioner would be entitled for compassionate appointment.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record of this case.

7. From the argument of learned counsel for the parties and perusal of record it emerges that the petitioner's husband had gone missing on 20.07.2002 while working as Senior Clerk under the respondents. His actual date of retirement was 30.04.2006. The petitioner had filed a suit for declaration before the competent court for declaring that the petitioner's husband was dead. The declaration has been issued on 23.02.2011. By the time the declaration was issued, the petitioner's husband stood retired. The petitioner's claim for compassionate appointment has been rejected by the department vide order dated 10.07.2013 on the ground that as the petitioner's husband had gone missing on 20.07.2002 while his actual date of retirement was 30.04.2006 as such by the time the declaration has been given by the competent court of law on 23.02.2001, the petitioner's husband stood retired and as such there could not be any occasion for giving compassionate appointment to the legal heirs of a retired employee.

8. The sheet anchor of the case of the learned counsel for the petitioner is the judgment of this Court passed in the case of Zishan Khan (supra). In the said case, this Court after considering that the department has itself paid retiral dues much prior to the actual date of retirement of the employee concerned who had also gone missing had deduced that the department has itself treated the employee to have died much prior to the date of retirement and consequently held that compassionate appointment would be admissible.

9. However in the instant case as per the facts already enumerated above, it is apparent that the petitioner's husband would have retired on 30.04.2006 and the competent court has given a declaration of his death on 23.02.2011 i.e. much subsequent to the date of retirement of the petitioner's husband. The retiral dues have been paid subsequent to the actual date of the retirement of petitioner's husband.

10. The Apex Court in the case of R. Gopala Pathar (supra) as well as Gujjar Singh (supra) has categorically held that Section 108 of the Evidence Act indicates the presumption of death where a person has not been heard for seven years but the exact time of death is not a matter of presumption but of evidence and the onus of proving that the death took place at any particular time within 7 years lies upon the person, who claims a right to the establishment of which that fact is essential.

11. Likewise the Privy Council in the case of Lal Chand Marwari Vs. Mahant Ramrup Gir reported in AIR 1926 PC 9, a case which has been referred to by this Court in the case of Zishan Khan (supra) has also held that if the person has not been heard of for 7 years, there is a presumption of law that he is dead; but at what time within that period he died is not a matter of presumption but of evidence and the onus of proving that the death took place at any particular time within the seven years lies upon the person who claims a right to the establishment of which that fact is essential.

12. In a number of judgments over which the reliance has been placed by this Court in the case is Zishan Khan (supra), it is apparent that the burden of proving the specific date of death lies upon the person who claims a right to the establishment of that fact. In the instant case, it is the petitioner who is trying to stake her claim for compassionate appointment by asserting that the death of the petitioner's husband took place even prior to his actual date of retirement which was 30.04.2006, he having gone missing on 20.07.2002.

13. Considering the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of R. Gopala Pathar (supra), Gujjar Singh (supra) as well as by the Privy Council in the case of Lal Chand Marwari (supra), it is apparent that the presumption of proving the actual date of death would lie on the petitioner. However, nowhere in the entire petition the actual date of death of the petitioner's husband is mentioned nor any actual date is coming out from the declaration of any competent court as to on which date the petitioner's husband had died.

14. This Court while exercising the jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India finds that the question remains disputed as to the fact of actual date of the petitioner's husband.

15. Keeping in view of the aforesaid, discussion this Court does not find any infirmity with the impugned order dated 10.07.2013 and the writ petition is accordingly dismissed.

16. However, the petitioner would be at liberty of approaching the competent court of law for a declaration regarding the actual date of death of her husband.

Writ C No. 60881 of 2015; Smt. Vimla Srivastava Vs St. of UP decided on 04.12.2015

(Delivered by Hon'ble Devendra Kumar Upadhyaya, J.
Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

1. Facts of this case presented before us manifest as to how the State can still be apathetic towards the cause of gender justice despite a clear declaration of law by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the matter of compassionate appointment.

2. Heard Shri Ajay Madhavan, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned State Counsel representing the State-respondents, Ms. Rani Singh holding brief of Shri Gaurav Mehrotra representing the U.P. Cooperative Rural Development Bank Ltd. and Shri Prashast Puri, learned counsel representing U.P. Cooperative Institutional Service Board.

3. The petitioner's father was employed as Assistant Branch Accountant with the respondent-Bank, who unfortunately died in harness and accordingly the petitioner being his daughter made an application seeking compassionate appointment. However, the compassionate appointment, as claimed by the petitioner, has been denied solely on the ground that she is a married daughter of the deceased employee. In terms of the provisions contained in Regulation 104 of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Employees' Service Regulations, 1975 (hereinafter referred to as 'Regulations 1975'), it is only unmarried daughter who is eligible for being offered compassionate appointment and not the married daughter. The claim of the petitioner was, thus, rejected by means of an order dated 29.01.2021, which is under challenge before us in this writ petition. Apart from challenging the said order of rejection of claim of the petitioner for compassionate appointment, the petitioner has also prayed for issuance of an appropriate writ striking down the word 'unmarried' occurring in Regulation 104 of Regulations 1975.

4. It appears that during pendency of the writ petition a proposal was made by Institutional Service Board to amend Regulation 104 of Regulations 1975, however, the said proposal has been turned down by the State Government and information to the said effect has been sent to the office of learned Chief Standing Counsel by the State Government which is contained in the letter dated 27.03.2023. The said letter dated 27.03.2023 is taken on record.

5. For governing the conditions of service of the employees of Cooperative Societies in the State of Uttar Pradesh, regulations have been framed by U.P. Cooperative Institutional Service Board in terms of the provisions contained in Section 122 of U.P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965 (hereinafter referred to as '1965 Act') which empowers the Board to frame regulations regulating the conditions of service, however, such regulations are subject to approval of the State Government. It is in exercise of powers vested by Section 122 of the 1965 Act that 1975 Regulations have been made by the Board with the approval of the State Government and it is as per the requirement of Section 122 of 1965 Act that amendment in Regulation 104 of Regulations 1975 was proposed by the Board, however, the State Government has refused to accord its approval to the said proposal.

6. Regulation 104 of 1975 Regulations provides for recruitment of dependents of the deceased employees. A note is appended to said Regulation 104, according to which "family" includes the wife/husband, sons and unmarried or widowed daughters of the deceased employee. The amendment by the Board was proposed to include daughters irrespective of their marital status, however, the said amendment has not been acceded to by the State Government.

7. At this juncture, we may notice that so far as the State Government employees are concerned, compassionate appointments are governed by statutory prescriptions available in the U.P. Recruitment of Dependents of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974. The said Rules have been framed under Article 309 of the Constitution of India and initially within the definition of the word "family", these rules also did not include 'unmarried daughters'. However, a Division

Bench of this Court in a bunch of cases, leading writ petition being Writ -C No.60881 of 2015, Smt. Vimla Srivastava Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Another delivered a judgment on 04.12.2015 striking down the word "unmarried" in Rule 2 (c)(iii) of the Dying in Harness Rules applicable to the State Government employees. Parity of the judgment in the case of Vimla Srivastava was given to another individual, namely, Neha Srivastava by a judgment of this Court delivered by a Division Bench on 23.12.2015 in Special Appeal (Defective) No.863 of 2015 (Neha Srivastava Vs. State of U.P. & Another). The said judgment by the Division Bench in the case of Neha Srivastava was taken up by the State Government before Hon'ble the Supreme Court by instituting Special Leave Petition No.22646 of 2016 which was dismissed by Hon'ble Supreme Court by means of the order dated 23.07.2019. After the aforesaid order passed by Hon'ble the Supreme Court dismissing the special leave petition of the State Government in the case of Neha Srivastava, so far as the Rules governing the compassionate appointment in respect of State Government employees are concerned, an amendment has been brought in the said Rules vide notification dated 12.11.2021. According to the said amendment, "family" now includes daughters irrespective of their marital status. The amended rules notified on 12.11.2021 in respect of the State Government employees is quoted hereunder :-

Miscellaneous

No.6/XII-1973-Personnel-2-2021T.C.-IV

Dated Lucknow, 12 November, 2021
IN exercies of the powers conferred by the proviso to Article 309 of the Constitution, the Governor is pleased to make the following rules with a view to amending. The Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974:

THE UTTAR PRADESH RECRUITMENT OF DEPENDANTS OF GOVERNMENT SERVANTS DYING IN HARNESS (TWELFTH AMENDMENT) RULES, 2021

Short title and1.commencement
(1) These rules may be called The Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness (Twelfth Amendment) Rules, 2019.
(2) They shall come into force at once.

Amendment of rule-2 2. In the Uttar Pradesh Recruitment of Dependants of Government Servants Dying in Harness Rules, 1974, in rule-2, for existing clause (c) set out in column-1 below, the clause as set out in column-2 shall be substituted, namely:-

COLUMN-1	COLUMN-2
Existing clause (c) "family" shall include the following following relations of the relations of the deceased Government Servant:- (i) wife or husband; (ii) sons/adopted sons; (iii) unmarried daughters, unmarried adopted daughters, widowed daughters and widowed daughters-in-law; (iv) unmarried brothers, unmarried sisters and widowed mother dependent on the deceased Government servant, if the deceased Government servant was unmarried; (v) aforementioned relations of such missing Government servant who has been declared as "dead" by by the competent	Clause as hereby substituted (c) "family" shall include the following relations of the deceased Government servant:- (i) wife or husband; (ii) sons/adopted sons; (iii) daughters (including adopted daughters) and widowed daughters-in-law, (iv) unmarried brothers, unmarried sisters and widowed mother dependent on the deceased Government servant, if the deceased Government servant was unmarried;

court: Provided that if a person belonging to any of the above mentioned relations of the deceased Government servant is not available or is found to be physically and mentally unfit and thus ineligible for employment in Government service, then only in such situation the word "family" shall also include the grandsons and the unmarried granddaughters of the deceased Government servant dependent on him.	(v) aforementioned relations of such missing Government servant who has been declared as "dead" by the competent court: Provided that if a person belonging to any of the above mentioned relations of the deceased Government servant is not available or is found to be physically and mentally unfit and thus ineligible for employment in Government service, then only in such situation the word "family" shall also include the grandsons and the unmarried granddaughters of the deceased Government servant dependent on him.

By order,
(Dr. Devesh Chaturvedi)
Additional Chief Secretary.

8. When we, thus, notice the facts of this case, we do not find any plausible reason why the proposal made by the Institutional Service Board for making amendment in the note appended to Regulation 104 of the 1975 Service Regulations could be turned down by the State Government. If compassionate appointment has been made available to the daughters irrespective of their marital status, of the State Government employees, there does not appear to be any reason why such benefit should be refused to the daughters of the deceased employees who have served a Cooperative Society in the State of Uttar Pradesh. The conditions of services are governed by statutory prescriptions made in terms of provisions contained in Section 122 of 1965 Act. We are rather at dismay by noticing that the proposal sent by the Institutional Board has not been approved though in respect of State Government employees the provision has been amended where "family" now includes daughters irrespective of their marital status. It cannot be presumed that the State while rejecting the proposal sent by the Institutional Service Board for amending Regulation 104 was not aware of the Division Bench Judgment of this Court in the case of Vimla Srivastava and Neha Srivastava (supra). It is also difficult to comprehend as to why the fact that the special leave petition filed by the State in the case of Neha Srivastava has been dismissed paving the way to give the benefit of compassionate appointment to all the daughters of the deceased employees irrespective of their marital status has gone unnoticed.

9. For the aforesaid reasons, this writ petition is allowed and the word "unmarried" occurring in the note appended to Regulation 104 of U.P. Cooperative Societies Employees' Service Regulations, 1975 is hereby struck down.

10. We, accordingly, also quash the impugned order dated 29.01.2021 passed by the General Manager (Administration) of the respondent-Bank as is contained in Annexure 2 to the writ petition.

11. Resultantly, we also direct that the claim of the petitioner shall be considered for compassionate appointment treating her to be eligible for such claim, within a period of two months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

12. We categorically direct the authority concerned of the respondent-Bank shall decide the claim of the petitioner within the period which is being stipulated in this order for the reason that already about four years time period has elapsed from the date of death of the deceased employee.

2. Gram Panchayat, Kanonda Vs Director, Consolidation of Holdings, Haryana & ors.; 1989 Supp 5 SCC 465

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajnish Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Shri Anoop Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for respondent nos.1 & 2 and Shri Dileep Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the respondent no.4 are present. None has put in appearance on behalf of the respondent no.3, despite sufficient service of notice.

2. This petition has been filed challenging the order dated 09.01.2019 passed by Settlement Officer, Consolidation, Unnao, contained in annexure no.2 and the order dated 21.10.2019 passed by Deputy Director of Consolidation, Unnao, contained in annexure no.1 to the writ petition.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner and the respondent no.2 were allotted the Chaks on their original holdings bearing Gata No.751 on the side of Khadanja. On an appeal preferred by the respondent no.3, the respondent no.3 has been allotted the Chak on the southern side of the plot, therefore the Chak of the petitioner has come on the back side, whereas all the co-sharers should have been allotted the Chaks on the side of Khadanja. This order was passed on 09.01.2019 without affording opportunity to the petitioner. The petitioner preferred a revision before the Deputy Director of Consolidation taking specific plea that the petitioner and the respondent no.3 were allotted the Chaks on their holdings on the side of Khadanja, therefore, the Chaks carved out by Consolidation Officer may be maintained.

4. He further submits that the petitioner had also preferred an application annexing the order passed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hansraj Vs. Mewalal; 2019 (142) RD 812, but without considering the grounds raised by the petitioner and the judgment relied by the petitioner, the Deputy Director of Consolidation dismissed the revision by a non-speaking order dated 21.10.2019, only on the ground that the petitioner and the respondent no.3 have been given Chaks on their original holdings. Therefore, the petitioner is constrained to approach this Court.

5. On the basis of above, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the orders passed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation and the Settlement Officer, Consolidation are liable to be quashed and the Chaks allotted by the Consolidation Officer by means of the order dated 28.11.2018 are liable to be maintained.

6. I have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the petitioner and perused the material available on record of this petition.

7. The Assistant Consolidation Officer had proposed the Chaks to the petitioner, who is Chakdar No.223 and the respondent no.3, who is Chakdar No.443 on their holdings bearing Gata No.751 from east to west. The respondent no.3 filed an objection before the Consolidation Officer, under Section 21(1) of the Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (herein after referred as Act of 1953) claiming his Chak on the southern side of the plot. The objection was considered and rejected after considering the records and map of the village by means of the order dated 28.11.2018. The respondent no.3 had preferred an appeal under Section 21(2) of the Act of 1953 before the Settlement Officer, Consolidation. The Settlement Officer, Consolidation by means of the order dated 09.01.2019, allowed the appeal on the ground that as per the report of the Consolidator the holding of the petitioner is on the southern side of the Gata No.751 but the Chak of the petitioner has been made from north to east. The petitioner had preferred a revision before the Deputy Director of Consolidation on the grounds that the spot inspection referred by the Settlement Officer, Consolidation is ex-parte and without any intimation to the petitioner, Chaks of both the parties were carved out by the Consolidation Officer on the side of the Khadanja and on account of amendment of Chaks by the Settlement Officer, Consolidation, the petitioner would be deprived of his trees and mill (Chakki) situated on the Chak allotted to the petitioner by the Consolidation Officer.

8. Perusal of the order dated 21.10.2019 passed by the revisional authority i.e. the Deputy Director of Consolidation, Unnao, contained in annexure no.1, indicates that the grounds raised by the petitioner have not been considered by the revisional authority and the revisional authority has dismissed the revision only on the ground that the petitioner and the respondent no.3 have been allotted the Chaks on their original holdings.

9. Section 19(f) of the Act of 1953 provides that every tenure holder is, as far as possible, allotted the plot on which exists his private source of irrigation or any other improvement, together with an area in the vicinity equal to the valuation of the plots originally held by him, therefore, while allotting the Chaks the authority has to consider the statutory provision and as to whether any improvement made by the petitioner is existing on the Chak given to him or not. In this case the petitioner is claiming that his trees and mill are situated on the Chak allotted by the Consolidation Officer. If the original holding is on the road side and partition has not taken place, then all the co-sharers will have right over whole of the holding, therefore the Chaks should be made in a manner that all the co-sharers may get Chaks on the road side and with their improvements, unless there is any legal impediment or not possible at all for the reasons to be recorded.

10. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hansraj Vs. Mewalal (Supra) has held that if there are co-sharers and the partition has not taken place under Section 176 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950, then till holding is divided in accordance with Section 176 every co-sharer of plot has right on the holding therefore the allotment made by the Consolidation Officer to the co-sharers on the pitch road was justified and the same could not have been changed. The relevant paragraphs 11 and 12 are extracted here-in-below:-

"11. There is one more reason due to which no interference was required in the order of the Settlement Officer Consolidation and the Deputy Director, Consolidation, i.e., the appellant and the respondents were all co-sharers of Plot No.677. Even though parties were in possession of some portions of the plot by mutual arrangement, there was no partition of holding. It is relevant to note that agricultural holding can be partitioned by instituting the proceedings under Section 176 of U.P. Zamindari Abolition & Land Reforms Act, 1950 which is as follows:

"176. Holding of a bhumidhar or sirdar divisible. (1) A bhumidhar may sue for [division] of his holding.

(2) To every such suit the Gaon Sabha concerned shall be made a party." Till holding is divided in accordance with Section 176 every cosharer of plot has right on the holding.

12. It is not the case of any of the parties that holding was partitioned by an order obtained under Section 176. All the cosharers had right in the plot in question and holdings were not partitioned as per law. The appellant was fully justified in claiming right of allotment on a portion of plot on the pitch road. The Assistant Consolidation Officer has proposed the chaks to the parties in a manner so that every one gets chak on the pitch road. The Consolidation Officer has reversed the allotment of chaks by putting the appellant on the southern side away from the road and allocating the chaks on the pitch road in favour of the respondents which order was rightly reversed by the Settlement Officer of the Consolidation which was an equitable order by which Ram Milan who was given chak including the area where he was constructing the house on the northeastern portion of the plot. The appellant was allotted an area comprising his pumping set and also by allocating chak part of which was on pitch road, other respondents were allotted the chak in such a manner that everyone got their chak on the pitch road. There was no justifiable reason for setting aside the order of the Settlement Officer Consolidation and Deputy Director, Consolidation. It is to be noticed that Settlement Officer Consolidation and Deputy Director while passing their orders have also inspected the spot and the orders passed by them were on the basis of spot inspection. The High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Act 226 committed error in allowing the writ petition by restoring the order of the Consolidation Officer which was an inequitable order. In the facts and circumstances of the present case, equity was adjusted by the order of Settlement Officer of Consolidation in making the chak in the manner that chak of every cosharer was on the pitch road which order needed no interference by the High Court. The appellant filed a review which was too dismissed by the High Court on 20.01.2014."

11. The impugned orders have been passed without assigning reasons and the Deputy Director of Consolidation has passed the order without considering the grounds raised by the petitioner and assigning reasons as to why the grounds taken by the petitioner are not tenable, whereas assigning reasons are necessary to show that the order has been passed after application of mind and why the grounds are not tenable. The Consolidation Authorities have to consider the objections and the grounds and the consideration can be reflected only by assigning reasons, therefore the orders passed by the authorities must contain the reasons on which the grounds taken for assailing the order are not tenable, therefore the reasons are must for deciding a controversy.

12. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Gram Panchayat, Village-Kanonda, Tehsil Bahadurgarh, District-Rohtak Vs. Director, Consolidation of Holdings, Haryana, Chandigarh and Others; 1989 Supp 5 SCC 465, has held that it is no doubt true that the Consolidation Officer, who has prepared the scheme or confirmed it or modified or re-partition made and when it is objected to by the affected party, has to consider the objections and, as a part thereof by necessary implication, has to assign reasons and the record must contain reasons and he is not free to take arbitrary decision and assigning reasons are sine quo non for application of the mind.

13. In view of above, and considering the over all facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned orders dated 09.01.2019 passed by the Settlement Officer, Consolidation, Unnao and 21.10.2019 passed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation, Unnao are not sustainable in the eyes of law and liable to be quashed with a direction to reconsider the appeal filed by the respondent no.3 and pass a fresh order after affording opportunity to the parties in accordance with law.

14. The writ petition is, partly allowed. The impugned orders dated 09.01.2019 and 21.10.2019 are hereby quashed. The matter is remitted back to the Settlement Officer, Consolidation, Unnao to decide the Appeal No.66 of 2019; Rama Kant Vs. Tarawati and Others, a fresh after affording opportunity to the parties in accordance with law expeditiously. No order as costs.

CORAM : HON'BLE SAURABH SHYAM SHAMSHERY, J.

1. The present case is arising out of an election dispute with regard to an election for the post of Pradhan of Gram Panchayat Jogyabeer, Kshetra Panchayat Azmatgarh, Tehsil Sagri, District Azamgarh conducted on 19.04.2021.

2. It is not in dispute that petitioner before this Court is the returned candidate whereas Respondent-3 remained runner up in election and margin of victory was only one vote. Remaining private respondents have also participated in the election.

3. Respondent-3 (election-petitioner) has approached the Prescribed Authority under Section 12-C of U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1947") by way of filing an Election Petition No. 6727 of 2021 (Computerized Case No. T202115060706727) with prayer for an order for recounting and to declare election petitioner to be returned candidate. Paragraphs No. 3 and 4 of the election petition, being relevant, are reproduced as under:

4- यह कि दिनांक 02.05.2021 को मतगणना करायी गयी। मतगणना में हम याची को 255, प्रतियाची प्रथम को 256, प्रतियाची नं० 3 को 11 मत 9

को 113 मत, 4 को 112 मत, 5 को 02, 6 को 51, 7 को 17, 8 को 001, 09 को 68, 10 को 137, 11 की 72 एवं 12 को 01 मत प्राप्त दिखाया गया है। 71 मत अवैध रहा। कुल 1167 मत मतगणना में दिखाये गये। 3 मतपत्र गायब कर दिया गया, जो मत पत्र गायब किये गये थे हम याची के पक्ष में थे यदि वे गायब नहीं किये जाते तो निश्चित ही हम याची निर्वाचित होते।”

4. It is evident from above referred averments that the dispute is, whether total number of votes cast were 1167 or 1170?

5. Returned candidate has filed a reply to election petition wherein averments made in election petition including the averments referred above were denied and in Additional Statement it was specifically stated that no ballot paper was removed and entire counting was undertaken in a peaceful and fair manner.

6. Prescribed Authority on the basis of pleadings, framed following issues:

“1- क्या प्रस्तुत चुनाव याचिका की सुनवाई का क्षेत्राधिकार इस न्यायालय को प्राप्त है?

2- क्या प्रस्तुत चुनाव याचिका में मतगणना के समक्ष याची के पक्ष में 255 मत व विपक्षी को 256 मतपत्र मिले?

3- क्या मतगणना में कुल मतों की सं० 1170 थी। जब कि मतगणना के समय चुनाव अधिकारी द्वारा 1167 मत पत्र की गणना की गयी तथा तीन मत पत्रों की गणना नहीं की गयी। तो याचिका में इसका प्रभाव?

4- क्या याची व उसके मतगणना एजेण्ट द्वारा शिकायत की गयी लेकिन उनकी बातों को अनसुना कर दिया गया?

5- क्या पीठासीन अधिकारी चुनाव अधिकारी द्वारा घोषित परिणाम में ओवर राईटिंग कर 1168 के स्थान पर 1167 मत पत्र दिखाया गया है?

6- क्या पीठासीन अधिकारी द्वारा तीन मत पत्रों को वैध या अवैध घोषित किया गया है?

7- क्या याची पुनः मतगणना कराने का अधिकारी है? ”

7. Prescribed Authority on basis of evidence of parties and documents provided by the office of Election Officer decided relevant issue Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 and rejected the Election Petition by order dated 03.10.2022. Relevant part of the order is reproduced as under:

"वाद बिन्दु सं0 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, एक दूसरे से सम्बन्धित है। अतः इनका निस्तारण एक साथ किया जाता है। ग्राम प्रधान पद हेतु डाले गये मतपत्रों की सं0 1167 है। जिसमें विधिमान्य मतों की कुल सं0 1096 है। प्रतिक्षेपित (खारिज / रद्द) मतों की सं0 71 है। इस प्रकार प्रत्याची प्रथम पक्ष खुशीद अहमद 1 मत से विजयी घोषित हुये। प्रधान पद हेतु कुल 13 उम्मीदवार थे जिनके प्राप्त वैध मतों का योग 1096 होता है। याची व उसके एजेंट द्वारा मतगणनों के सम्बन्ध में शिकायत के बावत कोई प्रमाण पत्र प्रस्तुत नहीं किया गया इसके विपरीत उसका यह कथन कि पुनर्मतगणना की बात अनसुनी कर दी गयी, जो कि विश्वसनीय नहीं है। पीठासीन अधिकारी (चुनाव अधिकारी) द्वारा घोषित परिणाम के बावत ओवरराइटिंग करने के बावत कोई साक्ष्य नहीं प्रस्तुत किया गया। तीन मतों को अवैध या वैध घोषित करने के बारे में भी कोई ठोस साक्ष्य नहीं प्रस्तुत किया गया। याची द्वारा अपनी याचिका में प्रधान पद हेतु सम्पन्न निर्वाचन को अवैध या अनियमित घोषित कर पुनः चुनाव कराये जाने व पुनर्मतगणना कराने दोनों की माँग की गयी है, याची की तरफ से कोई भी विश्वसनीय अभिलेखीय साक्ष्य प्रस्तुत न किये जाने की दशा में याची के कथनों में बल प्रतीत नहीं होता है। पुनः मतगणना कराने हेतु कोई औचित्य प्रतीत नहीं होता है। अतः वाद बिन्दु सं0 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 नकारात्मक निर्णित किया जाता है।"

8. Election petitioner being aggrieved by aforesaid order preferred Revision bearing No. 161 of 2022 and the same has been allowed by impugned order dated 06.05.2023 whereby above referred order dated 03.10.2022 was set aside and a direction was passed for recounting of votes within 30 days.

9. Sri Ashok Khare, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Shantanu Khare, learned counsel for petitioner, submitted that order of recounting passed by Revisional Authority was illegal being passed without any legally sustainable grounds. Learned Senior Advocate further submitted that in case Revisional Authority was not satisfied or has come to conclusion that certain relevant material/ documents were not considered by Prescribed Authority, the correct approach was to remand the matter to the Prescribed Authority to decide afresh.

10. Learned Senior Advocate also submitted that Revisional Authority has passed impugned order mainly on two grounds. Firstly that State Election Commission has not provided proforma Form '36' and secondly there was an overwriting on number of proforma Form '46' as well as on number of total votes cast, i.e., '1167' and that there were affidavits filed on behalf of other candidates that number of total votes cast were 1170 and not 1167.

11. Learned Senior Advocate lastly submitted that reasons given by Revisional Authority to pass order for recounting are not based on any material except that there were overwriting. No specific finding was given that total number of votes cast were 1170 and not 1167. The alleged overwriting has not made any material effect on election result since there is no dispute that number '1167' is the correct number of total votes cast in favour of candidates including number of votes declared invalid as mentioned in the said form. According to Deputy District Election Officer, Azamgarh, Form 36 was not available, therefore, it was not a case of withholding any document and that said Form has details of number of ballot papers only, therefore, it has no bearing on merit of election dispute since other relevant proforma forms were available. He has placed reliance on a Full Bench judgment of this Court in Ram Adhar Singh vs. District Judge, Ghazipur and others 1985 SCC OnLine All 246, Para 18 of which is reproduced hereinafter:

“18. Applying the principle with regard to inspection of ballot papers enunciated by the Supreme Court in cases arising under the Representation of the People Act to an election petition dealt with under the provisions of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, there is no escape from the conclusion that before an authority hearing the election petition under the said Act can be permitted to look into or to direct inspection of the ballot papers, following two conditions must co-exist:

(1) that the petition for setting aside an election contains the grounds on which the election of the respondent is being questioned as also the summary of the circumstances alleged to justify the election being questioned on such ground; and

(2) the authority is, prima facie, satisfied on the basis of the materials produced before it that there is ground for believing the existence of such ground and that making of such an inspection is imperatively necessary for deciding the dispute and for doing complete justice between the parties.”

12. Sri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned counsel appearing for Respondent-3 (Election-Petitioner), has vehemently opposed the above submissions. He submitted that Deputy District Election Officer has not provided a copy of proforma Form 36 and as such a material document has been suppressed. This is the document where details of number of votes cast are mentioned. The Prescribed Authority has not dealt with relevant issues and material on record and has not taken note of specific averment made in the Election Petition, therefore, the Revisional Authority was right in interfering with said order and further on basis of reasons, as referred earlier, the Revisional Authority has rightly passed order for recounting and there is no illegality in the impugned order.

13. Sri Anand Bhaskar Srivastava, learned Standing Counsel appearing for State-Respondents, has not denied that copy of proforma Form 36 was not provided to the Prescribed Authority since it was not available on record and all other relevant documents were provided.

14. Heard learned counsel for parties and perused the material available on record.

15. Before dealing with rival submissions few paragraphs of a judgment passed by this Court in Smt. Sajida vs. Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Kairana District Shamli and others, 2023 SCC OnLine All 11 being relevant are mentioned hereinafter:

“12. It is well settled that it is important to maintain secrecy of ballot which is sacrosanct and it should not be allowed to be violated on frivolous, vague and indefinite allegations and before inspection is allowed, the allegations made against elected candidate must be clear and specific and must be supported by adequate statements of material facts (See, Bhabhi vs. Sheo Govind and others, AIR 1975 SC 2217 and Ram Sewak Yadav vs. Hussain Kamil Kidwai and others, AIR

1964 SC 1249). The discretion conferred on Courts should be not exercised in such a way so as to enable election petitioner to indulge in a roving enquiry in order to fish out materials for declaring election to be void.

13. Election petitioner has made a assertion in election petition that vote given in her favour were placed in the bundle of votes given in favour of returned candidate and during counting when election petitioner came to know that number of votes given in her favour are 990 and in favour of elected candidate are 993 and number of rejected votes are 157, she raised an objection and prayed for recounting but Election Officer has not paid attention. A further assertion has been made that bundle of 157 rejected votes included some valid votes also.”

“16. It is settled that order of recounting cannot be passed only for the sake of it and on the basis of vague allegation without specifying any particular irregularity in counting as well as how it would affect election result materially. In the present case in the body of election petition vague assertions have been made regarding illegal rejection of valid votes which are not substantiated either in examination of election petitioner or otherwise on the basis of record available. Parties have to take proper pleadings by adducing evidence that by particular irregularity of illegality result of election has been materially affected. There is no dispute to the settled legal proposition that as a rule relief not founded in pleadings should not be granted [See, Arikala Narasa Reddy (supra)].” (Emphasis supplied)

16. In the factual background as referred above, there is no dispute that petitioner has won the election of Gram

Pradhan by only one vote. Election petitioner has taken a ground in election petition that total number of votes cast were 1170 and not 1167. It is also not in dispute that according to proforma Form 46 number of total valid votes were 1096 whereas number of rejected votes were 71 which comes to total votes cast to be 1167.

17. One of the grounds taken by Revisional Authority that there was an overwriting on number of proforma Form ‘46’ as well as an overwriting on number of total votes cast, i.e., 1167, however both overwriting would have no consequence, since it is not in dispute that number of votes mentioned in said proforma Form with addition of number of votes rejected, would come to 1167 and overwriting on number of Form would also have no bearing since it was not the case of election petitioner that document was not genuine.

18. The issue which appears to be disturbing is the letter dated 09.09.2022 from the office of District Election Officer that proforma Form 36, i.e., a document where details of number of ballot paper and votes cast, are mentioned was not available in the office. This is the form where there are details of number of ballot papers received by Election Officer as well as number of ballot papers remained unused or rejected due to any reason and number of votes cast in ballot box, were mentioned. Issue in the present case, whether number of votes cast were 1170 or 1167 could be reverified by said proforma Form 36, however, admittedly Election Officer has not placed it on record on the ground that it was not available. The election petitioner has also not placed any material regarding his claim that number of total votes cast were 1170 except an assertion and affidavits of other candidates, who have participated in election.

19. In the present case both authorities, i.e., Prescribed Authority and Revisional Authority have rushed through the matter. Prescribed Authority has summarily rejected election petition without taking note of relevant materials and aspect of case, i.e., to verify from records that the total number of votes cast were 1170 or 1167, however, said exercise was not undertaken or it appears that it could not be undertaken since proforma Form 36 was not available.

20. The Prescribed Authority was within its jurisdiction to summon Election Officer with record, however, such exercise was not undertaken. Similarly, Revisional Authority though noted errors committed by Prescribed Authority, i.e., it has not taken note of allegation of difference of total number of votes cast, however, it has erroneously taken note of some aspects of the case which may not be relevant such as overwriting on proforma Form 46 or on number of total votes cast. As already referred above, there is no calculation error, therefore, that overwriting may not have any material impact on result of election. However, a document which definitely required to be placed on record is proforma Form 36 of election in question.

21. The Revisional Authority without summoning record or taking an explanation from Election Officer has rushed through the matter and without any reasonable basis or finding arrived to a conclusion that there was an error in number of valid votes and passed order for recounting. As held in Smt. Sajida (supra) order of recounting cannot be passed on assumption rather there must be a ground based on material and evidence that a case of recounting is made out, however, such basis is missing in the impugned order.

22. The outcome of above discussion is that both authorities have rushed through the matter and has taken a decision without relevant document, i.e., proforma Form '36' being on record and in these circumstances, the Revisional Authority ought to have remanded the election petition back to the Prescribed Authority for fresh consideration with a direction that records including proforma Form 36 be summoned from the office of District Election Officer, however, since same has not been followed, therefore, an error has been erupted in the impugned order.

23. In view of above, direction passed in impugned order dated 06.05.2023 for recounting is set aside and operative part of order is modified to the extent that order dated 03.10.2022 passed by Prescribed Authority is set aside and the election petition is remanded back to the Prescribed Authority to decide afresh with direction that Prescribed Authority shall pass appropriate order to summon records including copy of proforma Form 36 of election in question from the office of District Election Officer, Azamgarh and if necessary may summon concerned officer to give evidence in terms of Rule 4 of U.P. Panchayat Raj (Settlement of Election Disputes) Rules, 1994. The Prescribed Authority shall pass afresh order expeditiously, preferably within a period of eight weeks from today in accordance with law.

24. The writ petition is accordingly disposed of with above observations and directions.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mohd. Azhar Husain Idrisi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rakesh Kumar Gupta, learned Amicus Curiae for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State. Perused the record.

2. This appeal has been filed by the accused appellant Arvind against the judgment and order dated 16.05.2019 passed by the Special Judge (Gangsters Act)/Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 5, Muzaffarnagar in S.T. No. 87 of 2015 (State Vs. Arvind and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 532 of 2014, under Section 3(1) of U.P. Gangsters and Anti Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 (hereinafter referred to as the “Gangsters Act”), Police Station Budhana, District Muzaffarnagar whereby the appellant was convicted under Section 3(1) Gangsters Act for ten years R.I. with fine of Rs.15,000/-. In default of payment of fine, he was ordered to serve five months additional imprisonment.

3. Aggrieved thus, by the impugned judgment and order dated 16.05.2019, the accused appellant Arvind preferred this appeal. It may be added that there were 05 accused and they were charge sheeted in trial court. The present appeal has been preferred by accused-appellant Arvind. Thus, present appeal is heard in respect of appellant Arvind only.

4. Succinctly, the factual matrix of the prosecution story is that on the basis of information of informant S.H.O. Dhananjay Mishra and approved gang chart, on 06.11.2014 in respect of crimes alleged to have been committed by the appellant alongwith co-accused, the case (F.I.R.) was registered against accused Arvind, Pramod, Monu alias Rakesh, Parveen and Sainki alias Harshvardhan as Crime No. 532 of 2014, under Section 2/3 of the Act, 1986 It was alleged in the F.I.R. that the accused appellants have a organized gang, on the basis of which who for personal gain of gang extracts illegal money by committing offences like gang rape, murder, kidnapping and deletion of evidence of offence and by this reason general public is engulfed in their terror.

5. On the basis of gang chart, Chick F.I.R. was registered and entries were entered into Kaimi G.D and Carbon copy of which was also prepared in the same process. Investigation was entrusted to S.H.O. Ajay Pal Gautam.

6. The Investigating Officer recorded the statements of the witnesses, prepared site plan after inspecting the place of occurrence and after due investigation, he also procured sanction for prosecution from competent authority and after completing due investigation, submitted against the aforementioned accused/appellant under Section 2/3 Gangsters Act.

7. The trial court framed charges under Section 3(1) Gangsters Act, 1986. The accused/appellant abjured the charges, pleaded “not guilty” and claimed “to be tried”.

8. To bring home the charges, prosecution adduced following ocular evidence examining following witnesses:-

Sl. Nos.	Name of the witnesses	Number of PWs
1.	Inspector Dhananjay Mishra, informant	PW-1
2.	Jaypal	PW-2
3.	H. C.P. 202 Rajkirti Singh	PW-3
4.	Satpal Singh	PW-4
5.	Parab Singh	PW-5
6.	Pratap Singh	PW-6
7.	Constable Arun	PW-7

	Malik
8.	H.C.P. 197 Mangeram	PW-8
9.	Inspector Ajay Pal Gautam, I.O.	PW-9

9. To support the ocular version of the prosecution, following documentary evidence was also adduced and proved by prosecution ocular witnesses.

Sl. Nos.	Particulars	Ext. Nos.	Proved by
1.	Copy of Charge sheet in Case Crime No. 258 of 2014	Ext. Ka-1	PW-1
2.	Copy of charge sheet in Case Crime No. 259 of 2014	Ext. Ka-2	PW-1
3.	Gang chart	Ext. Ka-3	PW-1
4.	Chick F.I.R.	Ext. Ka-4	PW-1
5.	Copy of Chick F.I.R. of Case Crime No. 258 of 2018	Ext. Ka-5	PW-2
6.	Carbon copy of G.D.	Ext. Ka-6	PW-3
7.	Copy of Chick F.I.R. of Case Crime No. 259 of 2018	Ext. Ka-7	PW-4

11.	Letter to S.S.P.,	Ext.	PW-9

	Muzaffarnagar	Ka-11
12.	Prosecution sanction	Ext. Ka-12	PW-9
13.	Charge sheet	Ext. Ka-13	PW-9

10. After conclusion of prosecution evidence, accused/appellant was examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C., wherein he stated that entire prosecution case is false. He stated that false allegations have been levelled against him by the prosecution witnesses and false case has been lodged due to partibandi.

11. The defence has also adduced documentary evidence in the form of copy of order dated 24.04.2018 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 15, District Muzaffarnagar in S.T. No. 173 of 2015 (State Vs. Arvind and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 258 of 2014, under Sections 364, 302, 201, 376(D), 34 I.P.C. and order dated 24.04.2018 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 15, Muzffarnagar in S.T. No. 172 of 2015 (State Vs. Arvind and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 259 of 2014, under Sections 302, 201/34 I.P.C.

12. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the witnesses of the prosecution are police personnel, as such their testimony is not reliable. There are material contradictions in the statement of prosecution witnesses. The appellant has falsely been implicated in the present case. The cases shown against the appellant in the gang chart are false. There is no eye-witness of the cases alleged to have been committed by the appellant. The judgment of the trial court could not be sustained in the eye of law. The appellant deserves to be acquitted and accordingly, his appeal be allowed.

13. Per contra, learned A.G.A. opposed the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant and contended that out of the cases mentioned in the gang chart the appellant has been convicted in Case Crime Nos. 258 of 2014, under Section 364 IPC & 259 of 2014, under Sections 302, 201 IPC. The appellant is undergoing life imprisonment. The appellant is habitual offender and convicted in various cases. The appellant has organized a gang to commit the crime against the society like gang rape, murder, robbery, kidnapping etc. and concealment of evidence. Thus the appellant created atmosphere of fear and terror in the society. He is a hardened criminal and generally no one dare to adduce evidence against him. The defence could not establish any previous enmity with informant in their cases. Therefore, argument of defence is not tenable in this regard. The prosecution has proved the charges against him beyond reasonable doubt. There is no infirmity or illegality in the impugned judgment and order of the trial court, as such the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

14. In view of the arguments put forth by the learned counsel for the appellant and the learned A.G.A. at this stage a brief discussion of the evidence of prosecution and defence appears, imperative to reach at right conclusion.

15. P.W-1 Inspector Dhananjay Mishra, P.W-2 Jaipal, P.W-3 Head Moharrir Raj Kirti Singh, P.W-4 Satpal Singh, P.W-5 Parab Singh and P.W-6 Pratap Singh have fully supported the prosecution case in their examination. The defence could not point out any material contradiction in their cross-examination.

16. In all the cases mentioned in the gang chart complainant and relevant witnesses also examined, who proved in their examination the correctness of the gang chart. The gang chart was presented before the competent authority to obtain sanction for prosecution which was rightly granted and the same is proved by P.W-9 as Ext. Ka-12. The evidence adduced by the defence could not fortify its stand in above circumstances. The allegations made against the appellant are established beyond reasonable doubts and the learned trial court has rightly convicted the appellant under Section 3(1) of Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986.

17. In view of the above, learned counsel for the appellant did not dispute the findings rendered by the learned trial court regarding conviction of the accused appellant. He did not challenge the conviction and confined his argument only regarding sentence. He argued that the sentence imposed is too harsh which deserves to be modified/ reduced to the period already undergone.

18. Learned A.G.A. opposed the argument and contended that the appellant is a hardened criminal and he has criminal history of heinous offences against him, therefore, he deserves no leniency in awarding the sentence. The sentence awarded by the learned trial court is just fair and proper and as per gravity of the offence.

19. In view of the above, the question is whether the quantum of sentence is too harsh and requires to be modified.

20. At this stage, brief legal resume about sentencing is imperative. Sentencing is an important task in the matters of crime. In Criminal Appeal No. Nill of 2022 SLP arising out of Diary No. 21596 of 2020 State of Rajasthan Vs. Banwari Lal and Another, the Apex Court referring Satish Kumar Janyanti Lal Dabgar Vs. State of Gujrat (2015) 7 SCC 359, has observed that the purpose and justification behind sentencing is retribution, incapacitation, rehabilitation and deterrence as well. One of the prime objective of the criminal law is imposition of appropriate, adequate, just and proportionate sentence commensurate with the nature and gravity of the crime and the manner in which the crime is done.

21. In India there is no structured sentencing policy. As a matter of course, Indian parliament has not laid down any sentencing policy, though Malimath Committee (2003) and Madhava Menon Committee (2008) have asserted the need of sentencing policy in changing circumstances of the Indian society. In the absence of any such policy sentencing has been an issue of concerned before the Courts.

22. In Alister Anthony Pareira V. State of Maharashtra, (2012), SCC 648, it has been observed by the Apex Court.

"thus, there is no straitjacket formula for sentencing an accused on proof of crime. The courts have evolved certain principles: keeping in view the twin objective of the sentencing deterrence and correction. What sentence would meet the ends of justice depends on the facts and circumstances of each case and the court must keep in mind the gravity of the crime, motive for the crime, nature of the offence and all other attendant circumstances."

23. A perusal of catena of the decision of the Apex Court and various High Courts indicates that criminal jurisprudence of our country is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, as the court considers that every accused is capable of being reformed and all measures should be taken to give them an opportunity of reformation to bring them into the main social stream.

24. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformatory aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturization. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

25. The term 'Proper Sentence' was explained in Deo Narain Mandal Vs. State of UP [(2004) 7 SCC 257] by observing:-

"Sentence should not be either excessively harsh or ridiculously low. While determining the quantum of sentence, the court should bear in mind the 'principle of proportionality'. Sentence should be based on facts of a given case. Gravity of offence, manner of commission of crime, age and sex of accused should be taken into account. Discretion of Court in awarding sentence cannot be exercised arbitrarily or whimsically".

26. In Ravada Sasikala vs. State of A.P. AIR 2017 SC 1166, the Supreme Court referred the judgments in Jameel vs State of UP [(2010) 12 SCC 532], Guru Basavraj vs State of Karnatak, [(2012) 8 SCC 734], Sumer Singh vs Surajbhan Singh, [(2014) 7 SCC 323], State of Punjab vs Bawa Singh, [(2015) 3 SCC 441], and Raj Bala vs State of Haryana, [(2016) 1 SCC 463],

"reiterated that, in operating the sentencing system, law should adopt corrective machinery or deterrence based on factual matrix. Facts and given circumstances in each case, nature of crime, manner in which it was planned and committed, motive for commission of crime, conduct of accused, nature of weapons used and all other attending circumstances are relevant facts which would enter into area of consideration. Further, undue sympathy in sentencing would do more harm to justice dispensations and would undermine the public confidence in the efficacy of law. It is the duty of every court to award proper sentence having regard to nature of offence and manner of its commission. The supreme court further said that courts must not only keep in view the right of victim of crime but also society at large. While considering imposition of appropriate punishment, the impact of crime on the society as a whole and rule of law needs to be balanced. The judicial trend in the country has been towards striking a balance between reform and punishment. The protection of society and stamping out criminal proclivity must be the object of law which can be achieved by imposing appropriate sentence on criminals and wrongdoers. Law, as a tool to maintain order and peace, should effectively meet challenges confronting the society, as society could not long endure and develop under serious threats of crime and disharmony. It is therefore, necessary to avoid undue leniency in imposition of sentence. Thus, the criminal justice jurisprudence adopted in the country is not retributive but reformatory and corrective. At the same time, undue harshness should also be avoided keeping in view the reformatory approach underlying in our criminal justice system".

27. Thus, in many cases has tried to provide clarity on the issue. Apex Court has time and again cautioned guidelines in this behalf.

28. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also criminal jurisprudence prevalent in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

29. As discussed above, 'reformatory theory of punishment' is to be adopted and for that reason, it is necessary to impose punishment keeping in view the 'doctrine of proportionality'. It appears from perusal of impugned judgment that sentence awarded by learned trial court for life term is very harsh keeping in view the entirety of facts and circumstances of the case and gravity of offence. Hon'ble Apex Court, as discussed above, has held that undue harshness should be avoided taking into account the reformatory approach underlying in criminal justice system.

30. In the above backdrop of legal scenario it is mentioned that in the present appeal, the trial court convicting the appellant, sentenced him for ten years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 15,000/-, under Section 3(1) of Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986.

31. As discussed above, learned counsel for the appellant did not challenge the conviction of the appellant but only prayed the court to reduce the sentence to the period already undergone a Xerox copy is submitted by the learned counsel for appellant is on record. He submits that the FIR has been lodged against him on 6.11.2014. As per the custody certificate, issued on 15.3.2023, by Jail Superintendent, Bareilly, the appellant has actually languishing in jail including remission for a period of 9 years, 4 months and 12 days, about a decade on that date however, on the date of judgment he is in incarceration about 9 years and 7 months. Thus the appellant is at the verge of almost completing his term of sentence. Learned counsel for the appellant also submitted that the appellant is a youngster of about 35 years. He was in jail for such a long period but no adverse conduct has been reported by jail Superintendent, concerned. Thus, there are fair chances of reformation of the accused and to join the mainstream of social milieu and to contribute towards developments of the society. In these circumstance, reduction of his sentence to the period of already undergone, will serve the ends of justice.

32. Resultantly, the instant appeal is partly allowed with following directions:-

(i) The judgment of the learned trial court dated 16.5.2019 regarding conviction of the appellant is confirmed and shall remain intact.

(ii) In respect of his sentence of ten years rigorous Imprisonment awarded by the learned trial court is modified to the period already undergone by the appellant.

(iii) The amount of fine of Rs. 15,000/- imposed and its default period, shall remain intact.

(iv) The appellant be released immediately, accordingly.

(v) Appellant shall deposit, if not already deposited, the entire amount of fine within four months from the date of this judgment.

(vi) A copy of judgment be sent to trial Court concerned, for necessary information and compliance.

(vii) Trial court's record be remitted back forthwith.

(viii) A sum of Rs. 5,000/- be provided to the learned Amicus Curiae Sri Rakesh Kumar Gupta, Advocate for rendering his valuable help to the Court.

(A) Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 323,325,504 & 506 -The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 397/401 - Revision - Section 319 - Power to proceed against other persons appearing to be guilty of offence - Apex Court's test for invoking powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. - only when strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person the power should be exercised - test to be applied is one which is more than prima facie Case, which is applied at the time of framing of charge - statement of witnesses to the Investigating Officer under section 161Cr.P.C. cannot be relied upon in recording finding that accused sought to be tried could not have been present at the scene of occurrence - it must appear to the court on the evidence that someone not arrayed as accused appears to have committed an offence - court need not be satisfied that he has committed an offence - need only appear to it that he has committed an offence. (Para - 8)

F.I.R. accuses revisionists and others of assaulting - injured - medical reports part of record - injured supported allegations - involvement of revisionists in incident - Investigating Officer exculpated revisionists based on villagers' statements - injured witness reiterated her statements about the revisionists' involvement - prosecution claims all accused persons assaulted causing injuries - Application moved by first informant/ prosecution - under Section 319 Cr.P.C. - Magistrate summoned revisionists - to face trial with co-accused for offence – hence instant revision.(Para - 2,7)

HELD:-There is sufficient and cogent evidence on record which is more than prima-facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence if goes un-rebutted would lead to conviction and it passes the test as laid down by the Apex Court. Sufficient ground to summon revisionist accused U/s 319 Cr.P.C. No illegality or infirmity in the impugned summoning order.(Para - 9,10)

3. Rajendra Singh Vs St. of U.P. , A.I.R. 2007 SC 2786

(Delivered by Hon'ble Syed Aftab Husain Rizvi, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed by learned counsel for the revisionists is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Satyendra Narayan Singh, learned counsel for the revisionists, learned AGA for the State and Sri Sanjay Mishra, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2/ first informant.

3. This criminal revision has been filed against the order dated 13.10.2022 passed by A.C.J.M. Court No.1, Etawah in Criminal Case No.623 of 2012 (State Vs. Balram and others) arising out of Case Crime No.633 of 2009, under Sections 323, 325, 504, 506 I.P.C., P.S. Bharthana, District Etawah. By the impugned order, the learned Magistrate in exercise of powers under Section 319 Cr.P.C. on application of first informant/ prosecution has summoned the revisionists to face trial with co-accused for offence under Sections 323, 325, 504, 506 I.P.C.

4. The opposite party no.2 i.e. Anuj Kumar lodged an F.I.R. on 27.12.2009 at 9 a.m. alleging therein that on 27.12.2009 at about 7 a.m. Ram Sakhi Devi, the mother and Pramod Kumar, the brother of the complainant were collecting cow dungs then Balram Singh, Smt. Gopshree, Ruby and Reena started scuffle with the mother and brother of the complainant and they assaulted them causing head injury to his mother, her left hand was also fractured, bleeding started from her head. The left hand of Pramod Kumar was also fractured. Omkar Singh and Rukum Singh saved her. The accused persons fled from the spot abusing and extending life threat. After investigation, charge-sheet was submitted only against Balram Singh and Smt. Gopshree. The revisionists, Rubi and Reena were exonerated. During trial, after examination of Anuj Kumar as P.W.1 and Ram Sakhi as P.W.2, an application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. was moved by the prosecution which has been allowed by the impugned order.

5. Learned counsel for the revisionists contended that there are general allegations in the F.I.R. and no specific role has been assigned to the revisionists-accused. All the members of the family have been implicated whereas no specific role has been assigned to anyone. The Investigating Officer has recorded the statements of independent witnesses who have stated that both the girls (revisionists) were school going and had gone to attend the school. After considering the witnesses and other evidence, the Investigating Officer has come to the conclusion that the involvement of the revisionists was not found, therefore, they were exonerated from the charge-sheet. It is further contended that injured, Ram Sakhi/ P.W.2 has suffered one lacerated wound on forehead, one contusion on right arm and one lacerated wound on wrist joint. In her

X-ray report, fracture of right arm has been detected. The other injured, Pramod Kumar has suffered one lacerated wound, one contusion and one abrasion. His X-ray report is NAD. Therefore, the allegations of the F.I.R. are totally false and concocted. It is further contended that complainant, Anuj Kumar/ P.W.1 is not an eye-witness of the incident, he has not stated anything about the involvement of the revisionists-accused in the F.I.R. The learned Magistrate only on the statement of Ram Sakhi/ P.W.2 has summoned the revisionists in a mechanical manner. At the time of incident, the revisionists were minor and as per High School Certificate-cum-Marksheet, the date of birth of revisionist no.1 is 10.08.1996 and as per High School Marksheet, the date of birth of revisionist no.2 is 11.10.1993. The application under Section 319 Cr.P.C. has been moved with malafide intention only to disturb the matrimonial lives of revisionists who are now married. It is also contended that the impugned order is against the evidence and materials available on record. The learned trial Court has committed manifest illegalities which is apparent on the face of the record. It is also contended that the Apex Court in so many cases has held that power to summon under Section 319 Cr.P.C. is an extraordinary power which should be exercised in exceptional cases where the situation so warrants. The degree of satisfaction is more than that of prima facie case. The learned trial Court has exceeded its jurisdiction in passing the impugned order. No finding has been recorded by the learned Magistrate that on the basis of evidence available on record there is the possibility of conviction of revisionists. Therefore, the order is erroneous and not sustainable. The learned Magistrate placed reliance on the following case laws:- (i) Hardeep Singh & others Vs. State of Punjab & others 2014 0 Supreme

(SC) 27 and (ii) Periyasami & others Vs. S. Nallasamy 2019 0 Supreme (SC) 284.

6. Learned counsel for the opposite parties submitted that the revisionists are named in the F.I.R. with clear allegation that they were also present at the place of incident and took part in the commission of the offence. They assaulted Ram Sakhi/ P.W.2 and Pramod Kumar causing them injuries. The complainant- Anuj Kumar and both the injured in their statements during investigation have corroborated the allegations of the F.I.R. but the Investigating Officer in an unfair manner just to benefit the revisionists- accused has ignored it and exonerated them. Both Ram Sakhi/ P.W.2 and Pramod Kumar received injuries in this incident. Injury of Ram Sakhi/ P.W.2 is grievous in nature. The complainant, Anuj Kumar has been examined as P.W.1 while injured Ram Sakhi was examined as P.W.2 and they have again corroborated the allegations of the F.I.R. in their deposition before the Court. So there is sufficient evidence on record against the revisionists and the learned trial Court has rightly passed the impugned order. There is no illegality in the impugned order.

7. The revisionists are named as accused in the F.I.R. There are allegations that the revisionists-accused with other named accused of F.I.R. assaulted Pramod Kumar and Ram Sakhi/ P.W.2, the brother and mother of the complainant. Pramod Kumar and Ram Sakhi were injured and they were medically examined and their medical reports are part of the record. Ram Sakhi/ P.W.2 has suffered grievous injury in right forearm in the form of fracture. The complainant may not be an eye-witness of the incident but the two injured Pramod Kumar and Ram Sakhi, both in their statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. have supported the allegations of the F.I.R. and have stated about the involvement of the revisionists-accused in the incident with co-accused. The Investigating Officer on the basis of statements of some villagers has exculpated the revisionists-accused. One of the injured witness, Ram Sakhi has been examined before the trial Court as P.W.2, she has reiterated her previous statements and has stated about the involvement of revisionists-accused in the incident. It is the prosecution case that all the accused persons holding lathi, danda assaulted Ram Sakhi and Pramod Kumar causing them injuries.

8. The test laid down by the Apex Court for invoking powers under section 319 Cr.P.C. inter alia includes the principle that only when strong and cogent evidence occurs against a person the power should be exercised. The test to be applied is one which is more than prima facie Case, which is applied at the time of framing of charge. The Apex Court in Rajendra Singh versus State of UP A.I.R. 2007 SC 2786 has held that the statement of witnesses to the Investigating Officer under section 161Cr.P.C. cannot be relied upon in recording finding that accused sought to be tried could not have been present at the scene of occurrence. It is further held that it must appear to the court on the evidence that someone not arrayed as accused appears to have committed an offence. The court need not be satisfied that he has committed an offence. It need only appear to it that he has committed an offence.

9. So applying the test laid down by the Apex Court on the present set of facts, it is clear that there is strong evidence than mere probability of the revisionist accused in the form of testimony of injured witness. In comparison to it, the evidence on the basis of which the Investigating Officer has exonerated the revisionist accused is of a very weak nature. There is sufficient and cogent evidence on record which is more than prima-facie case as exercised at the time of framing of charge but short of satisfaction to an extent that the evidence if goes un-rebutted would lead to conviction and it passes the test as laid down by the Apex Court.

10. The learned trial court with a detailed and reasoned order has allowed the application. The learned trial court has narrated the entire facts, evidence and other material available on record and after analyzing it, has come to the finding that there is sufficient ground to summon the revisionist accused U/s 319 Cr.P.C. There is no illegality or infirmity in the impugned summoning order.

11. Accordingly, the revision is hereby dismissed.

FAFO No. 795 of 2002

Brahma Nand Maurya ...Appellant

...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:

Sri S.N. Tripathi

Counsel for the Respondents:

Sri Amresh Sinha, Sri Anubhav Sinha

A. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act, 1988- Sections 173- enhancement of compensation- has suffered a serious disability in which he has suffered a loss of his leg - The head of his left femur had been badly fractured on account of the injury-During the ensuing surgical operation, the femur head was removed, which is attached to the hip joint. In consequence, the claimant's leg was shortened by an inch and a half-This caused the claimant considerable difficulty in movement-The middle finger of his right hand was bent. The hip joint was dislocated because its head was fractured-Upon an application of Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998 to the facts here, the claimant being aged 47 years i.e. in the age bracket of 40-50 years, an addition of 30% towards future prospects and applied multiplier of 13 the total compensation awarded enhanced to Rs.7,72,149-The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization.(Para 1 to 33)

B. In making the computation in the present case, the court must be mindful of the fact that the appellant has suffered a serious disability in which he has suffered a loss of the use of both his hands. For a person engaged in manual activities, it requires no stretch of imagination to understand that a loss of hands is a complete deprivation of the ability to earn. Nothing - at least in the facts of this case - can restore lost hands. But the measure of compensation must reflect a genuine attempt of the law to restore the dignity of the being. Our yardsticks of compensation should not be so abysmal as to lead one to question whether our law values human life. If it does, as it must, it must provide a realistic recompense for the pain of loss and the trauma of suffering. Awards of compensation are not law's doles. In a discourse of rights, they constitute entitlements under law. Our conversations about law must shift from a paternalistic subordination of the individual to an assertion of enforceable rights as intrinsic to human dignity.(Para 28)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This appeal for enhancement of compensation has been preferred by the injured-victim of a motor accident, Brahma Nand Maurya, the claimant of MACP No.418 of 1996. He is aggrieved by the judgment and award of the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal/ Special Judge (Essential Commodities Act), Gorakhpur, which he says, has granted him insufficient recompense for the damage he sustained and the misery he underwent on account of the motor accident, that happened on 29th April, 1996.

2. The facts pleaded in the claim petition are these:

Brahma Nand Maurya is a native of Village Beladar, Post Shivpur, District

Gorakhpur. On the 28th of April, 1996, he had gone to his sister's place at Balsadh. On the day following i.e. 29th April, 1996, he was returning home on board Jeep No. UPK-8702. He was sitting by the driver's side. When the Jeep reached near Village Palahipar at about 11.30 a.m. and was about the Durga Mandir, the driver, who was negligently driving the vehicle at a high speed, swerved out of control and hit a tree. The accident happened on account of negligence of the Jeep driver. Brahma Nand Maurya (hereinafter referred to as 'the claimant') was admitted to the Emergency Section of the District Hospital, Gorakhpur. Since his medical condition deteriorated, the doctors there lost hope. He was then admitted to the care of Dr. S.C. Kaushik, an Orthopedic Doctor at the Jeevan Jyoti Medical Centre, Kasya Road, Betia Hata, Gorakhpur. The head of his left femur had been badly fractured on account of the injury. During the ensuing surgical operation, the femur head was removed, which is attached to the hip joint. In consequence, the claimant's leg was shortened by an inch and a half. This caused the claimant considerable difficulty in movement. The middle finger of his right hand was bent. The hip joint was dislocated because its head was fractured.

3. The claimant suffers from perpetual pain on this account. The claimant remained admitted to the District Hospital from 29.04.1996 to 30.04.1996 and then from 30.04.1996 to 26.06.1996 at Dr. S.C. Kaushik's Nursing Home. Between 26.06.1996 to 26.07.1996, Dr. S.C. Kaushik visited the claimant at his home five times during the duration. These visits were at the claimant's cost. During each of these visits, Dr. Kaushik would do the claimant's dressing etc. According to the claimant, he was entitled to a compensation of more than Rs.9 lakhs under various heads. It was urged that he was enrolled as an Advocate in the year 1974 and had a legal practice worth Rs.6000/- per month. In addition, he would earn from agriculture that he did, Rs.4000/- a month. After he was handicapped on account of the accident, all his income was effaced. He was bed ridden for four months. His practice had spanned across a period of 22 years, which was all ruined. His clients moved away to different chambers. The claimant is the lone son of his parents. The handicap has left no one at home to carry on farming etc. The claimant asserted that he has suffered immense physical and mental pain. His future had turned bleak.

4. A written statement was filed on behalf of Ram Nakshatra Singh, who pleaded that he is not the owner of the offending Jeep. Long before the accident happened, he had sold the Jeep to Adya Prasad Pandey, which stood transferred to his name. Ram Nakshatra Singh, therefore, said that he had no liability in the matter. Ram Nakshatra Singh was impleaded as opposite party No.1 to the claim petition and respondent No.2 to the appeal.

5. Adya Prasad Pandey was impleaded as opposite party No.2 to the claim petition and respondent No.3 to this appeal. He will hereinafter be called the owner. He filed a written statement separately and admitted the fact that he was the registered owner of the offending Jeep. It is averred that the Jeep aforesaid had not met with any accident on 29.04.1996 at 11.30 a.m. within the local limits of Police Station Khajni nor was the injured travelling on board the said vehicle. The Jeep on the date of the accident was driven by Ram Kripal son of Kishun, who had a driving experience of many years behind him. He held a valid and effective driving licence on the date of the accident. According to the owner, the claimant had sustained injuries in some other incident. He had set up the claim against the Jeep, without any basis, in order to recover compensation. No FIR was lodged against the offending Jeep on the date of the accident. It was lodged months afterwards, following consultation and premeditation. The claimant did not sustain any injury. The kind of injuries that have been described are utterly wrong and concocted. The ill-fated Jeep, on the date of the accident, was insured with the United India Insurance Company Ltd., opposite party No.3 to the claim petition and respondent No.1 to the appeal. The Insurance Company aforesaid shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the Insurers'. The Jeep was insured with the Insurers under a Cover Note bearing No. 206178, valid from 10.10.1995 to 10.10.1996. The driver was a necessary party and not being impleaded, the claim petition was bad for mis-joinder (incorrectly described as such in the written statement, which should be non-joinder). The owner asserted that the claimant never did travel on board his Jeep, but in case the Tribunal was of opinion that his Jeep was involved in the accident, the burden has to be borne by the Insurers.

6. The Insurers filed their written statement dated 06.01.1998. The factum of the accident was denied, as was the involvement of the offending Jeep. It was pleaded in the alternative that without prejudice to the last mentioned plea, in case it were proved that the accident happened, involving the ill-fated Jeep, it was then the Insurers' case that the Jeep was not being rashly and negligently driven. The owner had not maintained the ill-fated Jeep. It was not roadworthy on the date of accident. It was being plied against the terms and conditions of the insurance policy. The insurance of the vehicle too was denied. The Insurers said that neither the owner had filed the insurance policy in original in Court nor furnished it to the Insurers. It was also said on behalf of the Insurers that if the owner proved that the premium had been paid and Section 64-VB of the Insurance Act, 1938 was complied with, in that case alone the insurance policy would oblige them; else not. The injuries, if any, sustained by the claimant were simple and cured after routine medical aid. The compensation claimed is excessive and exorbitant. The driver of the ill-fated Jeep did not hold a valid and effective driving licence as envisaged under the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 (for short, 'the Act'). Accordingly, the Insurers were not liable to indemnify the assured for the said reason. It was pleaded that the claimant bears the burden to prove by cogent evidence that he was travelling on board the ill-fated Jeep. In the submission of the Insurers, the claim petition deserved to be dismissed.

7. On the pleadings of parties, the following issues were framed (translated into English from Hindi):

"1. Whether on 29.04.1996 at about 11:30 a.m. within the limits of Village Palahipar near the Durga Mandir, falling under Police Station Khajni, District Gorakhpur, Jeep No. UPK-8702 collided with a tree, on account of the driver's speed and negligence, resulting in life threatening and grievous injury to Brahma Nand Maurya and that these injuries caused him to be handicapped?"

2. Whether at the time of the accident in question, the driver held a valid driving licence?"

3. Whether at the time of the accident in question, the vehicle in question was insured with opposite party No.3?"

4. Whether at the time of the accident in question, the vehicle was being used contrary to the terms of the insurance policy?"

5. To what compensation is the claimant entitled and from which opposite party?"

6. Any relief, to which the claimant might be entitled?"

8. In support of the claim petition, the claimant examined himself as PW-1, Ram Bachan as PW-2 and Dr. S.C. Kaushik as PW-3. Radha Mohan Dhar Dwivedi, Investigator for the Insurers was examined on their behalf as DW-1 and Sanjay Kumar Sinha, Junior Clerk in the office of the R.T.O., Gorakhpur was examined as DW-2.

9. The claimant in his documentary evidence through a list, bearing paper No.59-Ga placed on record 28 documents. These include a copy of the FIR, the site plan, the charge-sheet and GD. Also included amongst the document are the medical papers of the claimant and cash-memos showing purchase of medicines. Vide another list, 124-Ga, the claimant's birth certificate was filed. Another list, 68-Ga, carried with it paper No.69-Ga, which is a certified copy of the claimant's registration certificate showing his enrollment as an Advocate. Besides, through another list, bearing paper No.70-Ga was filed the claimant's handicap certificate. A list of documents, bearing paper No.95-Ga was filed to bring on record a report from the R.T.O.'s office relating to the driving licences of Ram Kripal and Balram Mishra. By a list of document No.16-Ga, paper No.17-Ga, another list of document No.90-Ga, paper Nos.91-Ga to 92-Ga, list of document No.100-Ga, paper No.101-Ga and a list of document No.86-Ga, paper No.87-Ga to 88-Ga/2 were filed. All these documents relate to registration and insurance.

10. The Tribunal decided Issue No.1 in the affirmative and in favour of the claimant, holding that the driver of the ill-fated Jeep caused the accident due to his gross negligence, high speed and rash driving, dashing it against the tree near Village Palahipar, in consequence whereof the claimant sustained life threatening and grievous injuries, which led him to be handicapped. Issue Nos.2, 3 and 4 were decided against the Insurers, holding that on the date of the accident, the driver held a valid and effective driving licence, the ill-fated Jeep was insured with the Insurers and the vehicle was being used in accordance with the terms of the insurance policy.

11. It is the findings on Issue Nos.5 and 6 alone that are impugned in this appeal. These relate to the quantum of compensation that the claimant has been held entitled to by the Tribunal. The Tribunal awarded a total sum of Rs.35,149/- towards medical expenses, that includes the hospital bills and purchase of medicines. The Tribunal held the claimant's income to be Rs.5000/- per month from his legal practice, but negatived his income from agriculture saying that there is no document to prove it. The total period of deprivation of his practice was held to be four months, awarding him Rs.20,000/- for the loss of income. Towards expenses on conveyance and special diet, a sum of Rs.10,000/- has been granted. A sum of Rs.10,000/- has been awarded under the head of pain and suffering. About the 80% permanent handicap certificate, it was observed by the Tribunal that the claimant moves with a limp. The contention that the claimant has suffered a loss of income to the extent of 80% was negatived. The Tribunal opined that the claimant while testifying as PW-1 had admitted that his practice had suffered a setback of 50% on account of his handicap. Therefore, the loss of earning capacity due to the functional disability was assessed at Rs.2500/- per month, making for an annual loss of Rs.30,000/-. The loss of earning capacity has been awarded for a period of ten years. Thus, reckoned the total compensation was determined by the Tribunal at a figure of Rs.3,75,149/-. The aforesaid compensation has been ordered to be paid with 9% annual interest with effect from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization.

12. Heard Mr. S.N. Tripathi, learned Counsel for the claimant and Mr. Anubhav Sinha, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Amresh Sinha, learned Counsel for the Insurers. No one has appeared on behalf of the owner.

13. In order to ascertain damages payable in an injury case, resulting in a disability claimed to be permanent, the principles governing the approach to the issue have been adumbrated by the Supreme Court in Raj Kumar v. Ajay Kumar and another, (2011) 1 SCC 343, where it has been held:

“12. Therefore, the Tribunal has to first decide whether there is any permanent disability and, if so, the extent of such permanent disability. This means that the Tribunal should consider and decide with reference to the evidence:

(i) whether the disablement is permanent or temporary;

(ii) if the disablement is permanent, whether it is permanent total disablement or permanent partial disablement;

(iii) if the disablement percentage is expressed with reference to any specific limb, then the effect of such disablement of the limb on the functioning of the entire body, that is, the permanent disability suffered by the person.

If the Tribunal concludes that there is no permanent disability then there is no question of proceeding further and determining the loss of future earning capacity. But if the Tribunal concludes that there is permanent disability then it will proceed to ascertain its extent. After the Tribunal ascertains the actual extent of permanent disability of the claimant based on the medical evidence, it has to determine whether such permanent disability has affected or will affect his earning capacity.

13. Ascertainment of the effect of the permanent disability on the actual earning capacity involves three steps. The Tribunal has to first ascertain what activities the claimant could carry on in spite of the permanent disability and what he could not do as a result of the permanent disability (this is also relevant for awarding compensation under the head of loss of amenities of life). The second step is to ascertain his avocation, profession and nature of work before the accident, as also his age. The third step is to find out whether (i) the claimant is totally disabled from earning any kind of livelihood, or (ii) whether in spite of the permanent disability, the claimant could still effectively carry on the activities and functions, which he was earlier carrying on, or (iii) whether he was prevented or restricted from discharging his previous activities and functions, but could carry on some other or lesser scale of activities and functions so that he continues to earn or can continue to earn his livelihood.

14. For example, if the left hand of a claimant is amputated, the permanent physical or functional disablement may be assessed around 60%. If the claimant was a driver or a carpenter, the actual loss of earning capacity may virtually be hundred per cent, if he is neither able to drive or do carpentry. On the other hand, if the claimant was a clerk in government service, the loss of his left hand may not result in loss of employment and he may still be continued as a clerk as he could perform his clerical functions; and in that event the loss of earning capacity will not be 100% as in the case of a driver or carpenter, nor 60% which is the actual physical disability, but far less. In fact, there may not be any need to award any compensation under the head of "loss of future earnings", if the claimant continues in government service, though he may be awarded compensation under the head of loss of amenities as a consequence of losing his hand. Sometimes the injured claimant may be continued in service, but may not be found suitable for discharging the duties attached to the post or job which he was earlier holding, on account of his disability, and may therefore be shifted to some other suitable but lesser post with lesser emoluments, in which case there should be a limited award under the head of loss of future earning capacity, taking note of the reduced earning capacity."

14. Again, in Raj Kumar (supra), the heads under which damages are to be awarded in case of personal injury of a permanent character, it has been laid down:

"6. The heads under which compensation is awarded in personal injury cases are the following:

Pecuniary damages (Special damages)

(i) Expenses relating to treatment, hospitalisation, medicines, transportation, nourishing food, and miscellaneous expenditure.

(ii) Loss of earnings (and other gains) which the injured would have made had he not been injured, comprising:

(a) Loss of earning during the period of treatment;

(b) Loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability.

(iii) Future medical expenses.

Non-pecuniary damages (General damages)

(iv) Damages for pain, suffering and trauma as a consequence of the injuries.

(v) Loss of amenities (and/or loss of prospects of marriage).

(vi) Loss of expectation of life (shortening of normal longevity).

In routine personal injury cases, compensation will be awarded only under heads (i), (ii)(a) and (iv). It is only in serious cases of injury, where there is specific medical evidence corroborating the evidence of the claimant, that compensation will be granted under any of the heads (ii)(b), (iii), (v) and (vi) relating to loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability, future medical expenses, loss of amenities (and/or loss of prospects of marriage) and loss of expectation of life."

15. Now, in this case, the claimant is an Advocate, who was practicing in the District Court for the past 22 years, when he met with the accident. Apparently, he was commanding a good practice and claimed that he would earn Rs.6000/- a month. The Tribunal has assessed it at a sum of Rs.5000/- per month. Looking to the length of his practice, there is no reason to disturb the said finding by the Tribunal, particularly, when the income assessed is a reasonable figure, given the profession and circumstances of the claimant and not very different from what the claimant asserts. The Tribunal has found under the head of loss of earning during the period of treatment, a total loss of income for the period of four months. The claimant has stated in his testimony that he was out of practice on account of the injuries sustained for a period of one year. The Tribunal has not believed the said assertion with the remark that the details of treatment in the claim petition do not go beyond a period of three months and that, therefore, the period of total loss of income, considering the treatment involved and the nature of injuries, would be four months. This Court does not agree with the aforesaid assessment by the Tribunal. In his testimony, the claimant has stated thus:

"दुर्घटना में आयी चोटों के कारण मैं 7-8 माह तक चलने फिरने में असमर्थ था। दो माह वैशाखी पर चले उसके बाद अब भी छड़ी से चलता हूँ साल भर बाद में धीरे-2 कचहरी आने लगा।"

16. There is nothing in the cross-examination of PW-1 that may discredit any of his assertions, as above indicated, made in his examination-in-chief. The injury sustained by the claimant was grievous, where the head of his left femur had been badly fractured, and a part of it had to be surgically removed, leading to shortening of the leg by one and a half inches. The nature of the injury, the impact whereof has been described by the claimant, need not be doubted. The claimant has said that he was non-ambulatory for 7-8 months in the first stretch. This followed locomotion with the aid of crutches for two months. The claimant then took aid of a walking stick and resumed going to Court after a year.

17. An Advocate is an asset to the society and the training of an Advocate comes after long and toilsome years in the profession. It is a behaviour commonplace amongst members of the Bar that once trained, disciplined and assimilated into the profession, they find it hard to stay away from their professional duties in Court. The period of the claimant's absence described in a graded normalcy back to work inspires confidence and appears to be the correct version about the period of time, during which the claimant had to stay away from work per compulsion. This Court, therefore, has no hesitation to hold that the claimant sustained a total loss of practice and consequent total loss of income for a period of one year. Given the fact that the claimant's income, at the time he suffered the accident, has been adjudged to be Rs.5000/- a month, the total loss of income calculated over a period of one year would be Rs.60,000/-.

18. The next head of determination is about the loss of future earnings caused by the permanent disability. The Tribunal while assessing the loss of future earnings has looked into the handicap certificate, where the permanent disability shown is 80%. This Court also looked into the handicap certificate dated 16.09.1996 issued by a Board of Doctors in the office of the Chief Medical Officer, Gorakhpur, where the disability described is "FUC head of F left with limping due to shorting 80%". A perusal of the certificate shows that the claimant has suffered a permanent disability, apparently to the extent of 80% in one of his lower limbs and developed a permanent limp.

19. The profession of an Advocate requires not only mental alacrity and faculties, but physical fitness to move around, speak to clients, go out on commissions and inspections, all of which would be badly affected by a disability of the kind sustained by the claimant. The Tribunal has, however, readily accepted the claimant's assertion in his testimony that he has lost his practice on account of the disability by 50%. Now, this being an admission by the claimant about a fact that may work to the diminishing of his claim, can safely be accepted. The Tribunal has precisely done that and this Court does not see any reason to disagree. Therefore, the permanent loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability, would be a figure of Rs.2500/- per month.

20. For some inexplicable reason, the Tribunal has chosen to limit this loss to a period of 10 years, virtually applying a multiplier of '10'. The claimant has asserted himself to be 47 years old, a fact that has not been denied or disputed. This Court, therefore, proceeds to find that the claimant was 47 years old at the time of the accident. Unfortunately, the Tribunal has not recorded any finding about the claimant's age. There was a date of birth certificate filed on record and shortlisted in the Tribunal's judgment as a document filed along with a list of documents, bearing paper No.124-Ga. Surprisingly, the list of documents, bearing paper No.124-Ga is on record, but there is no document accompanying it. This Court, therefore, proceeds to accept the undisputed assertion in the claim petition that the claimant was 47 years old, as already indicated above.

21. According to the principles laid down by the Supreme Court in Sarla Verma (Smt.) and others v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121 for a person in the age group of 46-50 years, the applicable multiplier is '13'. Therefore, the claimant's loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability have to be multiplied adopting the multiplier of '13'; not '10' as done by the Tribunal. This would conclude the terms on which the loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability are to be calculated.

22. The next issue to be considered is compensation under the head of pecuniary damages or special damages, or expenses relating to treatment, hospitalization, medicines, transportation, nourishing food and miscellaneous expenditure. The Tribunal has awarded towards expenditure in the hospital a sum of Rs.25,660/-. The aforesaid sum has been proved on the basis of voucher-cum-receipts of expenses, incurred in the Jeevan Jyoti Centre dated 26.08.1996, bearing paper No.63-Ga/15. The document is signed by Dr. S.C. Kaushik, Orthopedic Surgeon. He appeared in the witness-box to prove the document and the Tribunal held it proved. The Tribunal has, therefore, accepted the aforesaid expenditure towards hospitalization. Likewise, on a perusal of the cash-memos of the medicines purchased, the Tribunal has awarded a sum of Rs.9489/- under the head of expenditure relating to medicines. A sum of Rs.10,000/- in all has been awarded towards expenses incurred on nourishing food and payments made for the services of an attendant during the time that the claimant was recuperating.

23. So far as award towards expenses relating to treatment, hospitalization and medicines is concerned, this Court does not find any reason to disagree with the Tribunal. However, so far as the money spent on nourishing food and the services of attendant is concerned, all that has figured in the claimant's testimony is that he could not even move about on his own or put on his clothes without assistance. In the claim petition, the claimant has put forward a claim of Rs.20,000/- towards nourishing food and the services of an attendant. This Court is inclined to think that given the nature of the injuries sustained by the claimant, the claim is reasonable. The claim under the head of expenses for nourishing food and the services of an attendant ought to be enhanced from Rs.10,000/- to Rs.20,000/-.

24. So far as the non-pecuniary damages or general damages are concerned, a total sum of Rs.10,000/- has been awarded by the Tribunal towards damage for pain, suffering and trauma. The claimant has demanded a sum of Rs.5,35,000/- under the non-pecuniary heads. In addition, for the loss of expectation of life, a sum of Rs.20,000/- has been claimed. The Tribunal has not awarded anything towards loss of expectation of life or shortening of the life span in consequence of the injury. Learned Counsel for the claimant has placed reliance upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Kajal v. Jagdish Chand and others, (2020) 4 SCC 413 to submit that compensation for pain and suffering ought to be increased manifold, inasmuch as in Kajal (supra), the compensation awarded was enhanced from Rs.3,00,000/- to Rs.15,00,000/-. A perusal of decision in Kajal shows the following observations of their Lordships:

“26. Coming to the non-pecuniary damages under the head of pain, suffering, loss of amenities, the High Court has awarded this girl only Rs 3,00,000. In Mallikarjun v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2014) 14 SCC 396 : (2015) 1 SCC (Civ) 335 : (2015) 1 SCC (Cri) 372 : (2013) 10 Scale 668], this Court while dealing with the issue of award under this head held that it should be at least Rs 6,00,000, if the disability is more than 90%. As far as the present case is concerned, in addition to the 100% physical disability, the young girl is suffering from severe incontinence, she is suffering from severe hysteria and above all she is left with a brain of a nine-month-old child. This is a case where departure has to be made from the normal rule and the pain and suffering suffered by this child is such that no amount of compensation can compensate.

27. One factor which must be kept in mind while assessing the compensation in a case like the present one is that the claim can be awarded only once. The claimant cannot come back to court for enhancement of award at a later stage praying that something extra has been spent. Therefore, the courts or the Tribunals assessing the compensation in a case of 100% disability, especially where there is mental disability also, should take a liberal view of the matter when awarding the compensation. While awarding this amount, we are not only taking the physical disability but also the mental disability and various other factors. This child will remain bedridden for life. Her mental age will be that of a nine-month-old child. Effectively, while her body grows, she will remain a small baby. We are dealing with a girl who will physically become a woman but will mentally remain a 9-month-old child. This girl will miss out playing with her friends. She cannot communicate; she cannot enjoy the pleasures of life; she cannot even be amused by watching cartoons or films; she will miss out the fun of childhood, the excitement of youth; the pleasures of a marital life; she cannot have children who she can love, let alone grandchildren. She will have no pleasure. Her's is a vegetable existence. Therefore, we feel in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case even after taking a very conservative view of the matter an amount payable for the pain and suffering of this child should be at least Rs 15,00,000.”

25. In the opinion of this Court, the assessment of compensation for pain and suffering in Kajal proceed on very extreme facts of a 100% disability, where the young girl was reduced to a bedridden life for all times to come and the growth of her mental faculty perpetually impaired to hold her back at a mental age of nine months. In the opinion of this Court, the principle, that was laid down by their Lordships of the Supreme Court, will not at all be of assistance to the claimant here.

26. In Mohd. Sabeer alias Shabir Hussain v. Regional Manager, U.P. State Road Transport Corporation, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 1701, the claimant was a scrap dealer, travelling on board a bus to Delhi from his native place Noor Pur, Gajrola. The bus collided with a stationary tempo. In consequence the claimant sustained injuries. The disability certificate showed the claimant to have suffered 70% permanent disability in his right lower limb, besides other injuries. The claimant's permanent disability in that case arose from the amputation of his right lower limb. It was in that context held by their Lordships of the Supreme Court that the functional disability for the claimant, who was not a salaried man, but a self-employed businessman, ought to be assessed at 60%. The compensation for pain and suffering in the above background was determined at a sum of Rs.2,00,000/-. The assessment under various heads of compensation was made by the Supreme Court, bearing in mind the socio-economic background of the claimant, who was held to be a man from an economically weaker section of the society. The following observations of the Supreme Court in Mohd. Sabeer alias Shabir Hussain (supra) are relevant:

“27. We are of the opinion that while awarding compensation in cases of permanent disability caused to claimants, the courts must look at the case in totality, and must consider the socioeconomic background of the claimants. The Appellant herein comes from an economically weaker section of the society.

28. It is almost universally seen that persons from marginalized backgrounds often face an additional layer of discrimination due to bodily disabilities. This is because persons from marginalized sections of the society already face severe discrimination due to a lack of social capital, and a new disability more often than not compounds to such discrimination. In such circumstances, to preserve the essence of justice, it becomes the duty of the Court to at the very least restore the claimant as best as possible to the position he was in before the occurrence of the disability, and to do so must award compensation in a liberal manner.”

27. In this case, the claimant has suffered a 50% permanent disability, where he has developed a permanent limp, impairing not only his capability to work as an Advocate the way he did earlier, but also affected the quality of his life. With every step that he takes now, being different from what it was before the accident, his quality of life, as a whole, would be perpetually impaired. Therefore, while the claimant's case may be a little less harsher for the worth of pain and suffering than that before their Lordships in Mohd. Sabeer alias Shabir Hussain, it is still telltale of enormous pain and suffering for the claimant. The other factor, which has been taken into account in Mohd. Sabeer alias Shabir Hussain, is the economically weaker section of the society which the claimant hailed from in that case. The claimant here is an Advocate, who cannot be regarded a man from an economically weaker section of the society. Yet, one cannot lose sight of the fact that Advocates in contemporary society function under tremendous strain with no social support. The social security provided by the State Bar Council is marginal. Lesser is the social security of a different kind offered by the society, who would have no sympathy for a Member of the Bar in distress, a man whom they otherwise look up to for help at every downturn of life. Therefore, given the permanent handicap and the pain and suffering involved, the claimant is entitled to a compensation of Rs.1,50,000/- under this head.

28. Now, it is turn to consider the award of future prospects, the claimant must be held entitled to on account of lost income. The question of award of compensation for the loss of future prospects in the case of a self-employed man suffering a permanent disability on account of an accident, engaged the attention of the Supreme Court in Jagdish v. Mohan and Others (2018) 4 SCC 571. In Jagdish (supra), the claimant was a carpenter, aged 24 years when the accident happened. In the background of the said facts, the Supreme Court, relying on the decision of the Constitution Bench in National Insurance Co. Ltd. Vs. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC 680, held in Jagdish:

"13. In the judgment of the Constitution Bench in Pranay Sethi (supra), this Court has held that the benefit of future prospects should not be confined only to those who have a permanent job and would extend to self-employed individuals. In the case of a self-employed person, an addition of 40 per cent of the established income should be made where the age of the victim at the time of the accident was below 40 years. Hence, in the present case, the appellant would be entitled to an enhancement of Rs. 2400/- towards loss of future prospects.

14. In making the computation in the present case, the court must be mindful of the fact that the appellant has suffered a serious disability in which he has suffered a loss of the use of both his hands. For a person engaged in manual activities, it requires no stretch of imagination to understand that a loss of hands is a complete deprivation of the ability to earn. Nothing - at least in the facts of this case - can restore lost hands. But the measure of compensation must reflect a genuine attempt of the law to restore the dignity of the being. Our yardsticks of compensation should not be so abysmal as to lead one to question whether our law values human life. If it does, as it must, it must provide a realistic recompense for the pain of loss and the trauma of suffering. Awards of compensation are not law's doles. In a discourse of rights, they constitute entitlements under law. Our conversations about law must shift from a paternalistic subordination of the individual to an assertion of enforceable rights as intrinsic to human dignity."

29. In the State of Uttar Pradesh, the issue of addition towards future prospects is not governed by the scale envisaged under the law in Pranay Sethi (supra), but by the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short 'the Rules of 1998').

30. In New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822, it was held:

"9. It is to be noted that the validity of the Rules was not, in any way, questioned in the instant matter and thus the only question that we are called upon to consider is whether in its application, sub-Rule 3(iii) of Rule 220A of the Rules must be given restricted scope or it must be allowed to operate fully.

10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid.

12. We, therefore, reject the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant and affirm the view taken by the Tribunal as well as the High Court and dismiss this appeal without any order as to costs."

31. Upon an application of Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998 to the facts here, the claimant being aged 47 years, that is to say, in the age bracket of 40-50 years, an addition of 30% towards future prospects to his lost income has to be made.

32. The compensation is, accordingly, revised and enhanced in the following manner:

(i)	Expenses relating to treatment, hospitalization and medicines	=	35149
(ii)	Compensation for nourishing food and attendant charges	=	20000
(iii)	Loss of earning during period of treatment (one year) = 5000x12	=	60000
(iv)	Loss of future earnings on account of permanent disability (monthly income x 12 x applied multiplier) = 2500x12x13	=	39000 0
(v)	Lost income + 30% towards future prospects = 390000+117000	=	50700 0
(vi)	Damages for pain, suffering and trauma	=	15000 0
The total compensation would therefore, work out to			= 77214 9

33. In the result, this appeal is allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded enhanced to Rs.7,72,149/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the Insurers, pursuant to the impugned award, shall be adjusted. Costs easy.

A. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act,1988- Sections 173- enhancement of compensation- The claimants are seven in number- Out of the claimants, the deceased's widow is major whereas the six children are all minors. Applying Rule 220-A (2) (iii) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998- each child would be considered half a unit- the six children would reckon for three dependents-Thus, the widow and the six minor children would constitute a total of four dependents- As per rule laid down in Sarla Verma Case the claimants are entitled to be placed in the bracket of dependent family members being 4-6-The rule in Sarla Verma aforesaid sanctions a deduction of one-fourth where the number of dependent family members are 4-6. The finding of the Tribunal, directing deduction of a one-third of the deceased's income towards personal and living expenses, is, therefore, erroneous-The Tribunal has adopted a multiplier of '16'. According to the table in Paragraph No.40 of the report in Sarla Verma for the age group 36-40 years, the multiplier to be adopted is '15'; not '16- Thus, the total compensation would be Rs. 9,17,500/- - The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded and payable by the owner is enhanced to Rs. 4,587,50/- after deducting 50% of the compensation apportioned to the share of the UPSRTC settled in the Lok Adalat.(Para 1 to 28)

The appeal is partly allowed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This is a claimants' appeal arising out of a judgment and award of Mr. S.C. Bose, District Judge of Allahabad, sitting as the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, dated 6th January, 2003 passed in Motor Accident Claims Petition No.411 of 1999. The claimants seek enhancement of the compensation awarded.

2. Insanul Haq, the deceased was travelling on board Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 on 13.04.1999. At about 7:30 p.m., near a certain Village Gansiari within the local limits of Police Station Mau Aima, District Allahabad (now Prayagraj), a Bus bearing registration No. UGH-471, owned by the Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation (for short, 'the UPSRTC'), that was proceeding from Allahabad to Ayodhya, hit the Jeep. In consequence of the accident, Insanul Haq sustained injuries, leading to his death. The Jeep aforesaid, whereon Insanul Haq was travelling, was owned by one Alok Pandey and insured by the Oriental Insurance Company, Allahabad. The claimants are seven in number, to wit, Hamidunnisa (wife) aged about 40 years, Tito (son) aged about 16 years, Gulzar (son) aged about 15 years, Resham (daughter) aged about 12 years, Sarwar (son) aged about 9 years, Gulsher (son) aged about 5 years and Kulsum (son) aged about 7 years.

3. It is the claimants' case that the deceased was a power loom mechanic and himself the owner of a power loom. His income was Rs.5000/- per month. All the claimants were dependent upon the deceased's income. The claimants have, therefore, demanded a compensation in the sum of Rs.10,00,000/-.

4. A separate written statement each was filed on behalf of the UPSRTC, the owner of the ill-fated Jeep, Alok Pandey and the Oriental Insurance Company, who are the Insurers of the Jeep. The owner of the Jeep and the Insurers shall hereinafter referred to as 'the owner' and 'the Insurers', respectively.

5. The UPSRTC broadly took a stand that the accident happened on account of the Jeep driver's negligence, whereas the owner took a stand that the accident occurred due to the rash and negligent driving by the Bus driver. It was also urged that on the date of accident, the ill-fated Jeep was validly insured with the Insurers. The Insurers did a wholesome and inconsistent denial of everything that was urged to hold them liable. They denied insuring the ill-fated Jeep, the accident between the UPSRTC Bus and the ill-fated Jeep, and also the fact that the driver held a valid driving licence. In substance, the Insurers denied their liability to indemnify the owner of the Jeep regarding any liability, that may be apportioned to him.

6. On the pleadings of parties, the following issues were framed (translated into English from Hindi):

"1. Whether on 13.04.1999, at about 7:30 in the evening hours, the alleged accident happened on account of rash and negligent driving of Jeep No. UP-70N-7479?"

2. Whether the alleged accident, involving Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 and Bus No. UGH-471, happened due to the contributory negligence of both the vehicles? If yes, which vehicle is at fault and to what extent?"

3. Whether Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 is owned by Alok Pandey and insured with the Oriental Insurance Company?"

4. Whether on the date of the accident, the driver had a valid driving licence?"

5. Whether Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 was being operated in accordance with law, rules and its registration?"

6. Whether the claimants are entitled to compensation? If yes, how much and from which of the parties?"

7. To what relief are the claimants entitled?"

7. The Tribunal dealt with Issues Nos. 1 and 2 together and held that both the Bus and the ill-fated Jeep had equal contributory negligence in the accident. Issue No.3 was answered in favour of the owner and the claimants holding that the ill-fated Jeep was owned by the owner and validly insured with the Insurers. This issue was answered in this manner by the Tribunal on the Insurers' admission. Issue

No.5 was decided in the manner that the ill-fated Jeep was held registered in the owner's name as a vehicle for personal use. There is a further finding that on the date of accident, the ill-fated Jeep was being used to carry passengers. It was, therefore, held on this Issue in conclusion that the ill-fated Jeep was not being operated in accordance with its registered use. In answering Issue No.4, the Tribunal held that according to the evidence on record, the driver of the ill-fated Jeep, Shiv Shankar had a valid driving licence with him, which was valid for driving a private vehicle alone. The licence was not endorsed for driving a commercial vehicle carrying passengers. Issues Nos.6 and 7 were taken up together. The claimants were held entitled to compensation on account of Insanul Haq's death.

8. The Tribunal held that though the claimants said that the deceased was a power loom mechanic, who owned a power loom, yielding an income of Rs.5000/- per month, but there is no proof of the deceased's income or his ownership of the power loom, that were claimed for him. It was noted that no proof was offered regarding the said fact by the claimants. It has been remarked that the fact that the deceased was a power loom mechanic has not been specifically denied as well by the other side. It has been observed by the Tribunal that the deceased, who was found to be aged 40 years, considering his age group and capability to work, must be credited with a minimum monthly income of Rs.3000/-. It is on this basis that the Tribunal proceeded to work out the claimants' dependency.

9. The Tribunal ordered deduction of a one-third out of the deceased's income towards his personal and living expenses.

Accordingly, the monthly income of the deceased available for the purpose of working out dependency was held to be Rs.2000/-. Considering the age of the deceased, a multiplier of '16' was adopted. On the aforesaid basis, a total substantive dependency of Rs.3,84,000/- was determined by the Tribunal, to which the claimants were held entitled. On the said sum of money, interest was directed to be paid @ 10% per annum with effect from the date of institution of the claim. The Tribunal has taken note of the fact that the claimants have entered into a settlement with the UPSRTC in the Lok Adalat held on 04.03.2001, and, accepted in compensation, a total sum of Rs.60,000/- in liquidation of all their claims against the UPSRTC. It was, accordingly, held that there was nothing payable to the claimants by the UPSRTC.

10. The Tribunal has gone on to hold that after receiving Rs.60,000/- from the UPSRTC out of the total compensation of Rs.3,84,000/- payable, 50% would be deducted from the said sum of money, entitling the claimants to a sum of Rs.1,92,000/- in compensation, payable by the owner. The Insurers were discharged on ground that there was a breach of policy. The Tribunal has apportioned compensation, amongst the various claimants, with the largest sum of Rs.42,000/- being directed to be paid to the widow, Smt. Hamidunnisha.

11. Heard Mr. Sharve Singh, learned Counsel for the claimants, Mr. Siddharth Jaiswal, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Ashok Kumar Jaiswal, learned Counsel for the Insurers and Mr. Sunil Kumar Mishra, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the UPSRTC. No one appeared on behalf of the owner, though the name of Ms. Seema Misra, Advocate is printed in the cause list.

12. It is argued by the learned Counsel for the claimants that the principle of contributory negligence in this case is not applicable, because it is a case of composite negligence. The claimants are free to recover from either of the two vehicles notwithstanding the finding of contributory negligence apportioning a 50% liability. It is next submitted that breach of condition of the insurance policy that the Tribunal has found on account of the driving licence of the driver of the ill-fated Jeep not being endorsed for driving a commercial passenger vehicle, would not entitle the Insurers to an all out exoneration on the policy. Instead, it would give the Insurers a right to recover after paying off the claimants. The claimants have also criticized the Tribunal's finding in holding the deceased's income to be a sum of Rs.3000/- per month, ignoring evidence about his income. It is also said that the Tribunal has not taken into account future prospects of the deceased. The deduction towards personal expenses has been criticized as one much on the higher side. It is also urged that the Tribunal has failed to award anything toward loss of love and affection, besides funeral expenses.

13. The learned Counsel appearing for the UPSRTC says that they are not liable to pay anything to the claimants towards the enhanced compensation, inasmuch as the claimants have accepted a sum of Rs.60,000/- on 04.03.2001 before the Lok Adalat in complete settlement of their claim against the UPSRTC.

14. The learned Counsel for the Insurers, on the other hand, has argued that the Jeep driver's licence being one for a private vehicle alone, without any endorsement for driving a commercial vehicle, there is a fundamental breach of the policy, entitling the Insurers to complete exoneration, as ordered by the Tribunal.

15. This Court has considered the submissions advanced on behalf of both sides. It is to be noticed that there is no appeal, either by the owner or the Insurers. It is true that so far as the claimants are concerned, it is a case of composite negligence, because the deceased was on board one of the vehicles, that has been found to have contributed to the negligence leading to the accident. The claimants are free to recover from any of the parties found to be in contributory negligence. The issue of apportionment of negligence and a fortiori the liability to pay compensation is a matter inter se the owner and the Insurers on one hand and the UPSRTC on the other. It is not an issue in this appeal at all.

16. What is different in this case is that the rights of the claimants have nevertheless been split into two parts, to wit, one part against the owner and the Insurers and the other against the UPSRTC. There is on record a compromise inter se the claimants and the UPSRTC dated 04.03.2001 filed before the Lok Adalat, which has been accepted on the same day by the Lok Adalat. The terms of the settlement before the Lok Adalat show that the claimants have compromised their claim against the UPSRTC for a sum of Rs.60,000/- in all. The aforesaid compromise between the claimants and the UPSRTC is on record as paper No.14-Ga, on the reverse of which is the order passed by the Lok Adalat. The result is that the present appeal by the claimants for enhancement is confined to their claim against the owner and the Insurers.

17. This Court is of opinion that the Tribunal having returned a finding of contributory negligence to the extent of 50% each between the ill-fated Jeep and the UPSRTC Bus, it is difficult to disturb that finding in the absence of any positive evidence brought to the notice of this Court by the claimants to show that it was a different percentage of negligence on the part of the ill-fated Jeep's driver or it was cent per cent his fault. Even otherwise, it would now not be open to disturb that finding, because on the foot of it the claimants have settled the matter with the UPSRTC before the Lok Adalat. The claim, therefore, that now proceeds is confined to the owner and the Insurers.

18. Whatever enhancement of compensation is granted by this Court, if at all, the same would be limited to 50% of the determination, the other 50% having been settled in terms of the compromise with the UPSRTC.

19. The next question which arises is whether the Insurers have rightly been discharged of their liability by the Tribunal or is it a case where the Insurers ought to be saddled with the liability of making good the compensation awarded with a right to recover from the owner. It is true that the driving licence held by the driver of the ill-fated Jeep was a licence to drive a motorcycle and a light motor vehicle, which authorizes a person to drive a private vehicle. It was not endorsed by the Licensing Authority authorizing the licensee to drive a commercial light motor vehicle, carrying passengers.

20. The Tribunal has recorded a finding that the facts and evidence on record show that the ill-fated Jeep was carrying gratuitous passengers, though there is nothing expressly said in the affidavit of Hamidunnisha, that has been filed in lieu of the claimant's examination-in-chief, that the deceased boarded the vehicle after paying some kind of a fare. This Court is inclined to agree with the Tribunal on this issue. The reason is that apparently the owner has not raised a specific plea in the written statement that he was carrying passengers, non-gratuitously or introducing circumstances to show some kind of a personal relationship between the deceased or his family and the owner. The Jeep was full of passengers unrelated to the owner from which a presumption about gratuitous carriage of passengers must be raised. There is nothing on record to rebut the presumption that the passengers on board the ill-fated Jeep, none of whom appear to be related to the owner or his acquaintances or friends, were gratuitous. The Jeep was clearly being plied as a passenger vehicle for hire.

21. The Court's inference in this regard must also rest on judicial notice of the reputed fact that vehicles of this type are invariably used as passenger vehicles for hire, though registered as private ones. The Court, therefore, finds that while the driver of the Jeep may not be holding a valid licence, authorizing him to drive passenger vehicles used for commercial purposes, the ill-fated Jeep was nevertheless insured by the Insurers. At the same time, the driving licence not being one which was endorsed to drive a commercial or passenger vehicle, there is a breach of the insurance policy entitling the Insurers to exoneration from their liability to substantively indemnify in terms of the policy. But, they ought to be directed to pay the claimants and recover from the owner.

22. In Shamanna and another v. Divisional Manager, Oriental Insurance Company Limited and others, (2018) 9 SCC 650, the relevant facts were that the deceased was travelling by a Jeep, negligently driven by its driver. The door of the vehicle suddenly opened and the deceased was thrown out of the vehicle leading to his death. The deceased was a young man and his parents claimed compensation. The Tribunal awarded compensation with a direction to pay and recover since the Jeep driver had no valid driving licence, when the accident happened. On an appeal by the Insurance Company and by the claimants as well, the High Court enhanced the compensation, but set aside the direction to pay and recover. It was in those circumstances that on the claimants' appeal by special leave, the Supreme Court after referring to the decision in National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297 held in Shamanna (supra):

“11. In the present case, to deny the benefit of “pay and recover”, what seems to have substantially weighed with the High Court is the reference to larger Bench made by the two-Judge Bench in National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943] which doubted the correctness of the decisions which in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 142 of the Constitution of India directing insurance company to pay the compensation amount even though insurance company has no liability to pay. In Parvathneni case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943], the Supreme Court pointed out that Article 142 of the Constitution of India does not cover such type of cases and that : (SCC p. 786, para 5)

“5. If the insurance company has no liability to pay at all, then, it cannot be compelled by order of the court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 142 of the Constitution of India to pay the compensation amount and later on recover it from the owner of the vehicle.”

12. The above reference in Parvathneni case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943] has been disposed of on 17-9-2013 [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2018) 9 SCC 657] by the three-Judge Bench keeping the questions of law open to be decided in an appropriate case.

13. Since the reference to the larger Bench in Parvathneni case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943] has been disposed of by keeping the questions of law open to be decided in an appropriate case, presently the decision in Swaran Singh case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 733] followed in Laxmi Narain Dhut [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Laxmi Narain Dhut, (2007) 3 SCC 700 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 142] and other cases hold the field. The award passed by the Tribunal directing the insurance company to pay the compensation amount awarded to the claimants and thereafter, recover the same from the owner of the vehicle in question, is in accordance with the judgment passed by this Court in Swaran Singh [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 733] and Laxmi Narain Dhut [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Laxmi Narain Dhut, (2007) 3 SCC 700 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 142] cases. While so, in our view, the High Court ought not to have interfered with the award passed by the Tribunal directing the first respondent to pay and recover from the owner of the vehicle. The impugned judgment [Shamanna v. Laxman, 2016 SCC OnLine Kar 6928] of the High Court exonerating the insurance company from its liability and directing the claimants to recover the compensation from the owner of the vehicle is set aside and the award passed by the Tribunal is restored.

14. So far as the recovery of the amount from the owner of the vehicle, the insurance company shall recover as held in the decision in Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Nanjappan [Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Nanjappan, (2004) 13 SCC 224 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 148] wherein this Court held that : (SCC p. 226, para 8)

“8. ... For the purpose of recovering the same from the insured, the insurer shall not be required to file a suit. It may initiate a proceeding before the executing court concerned as if the dispute between the insurer and the owner was the subject-matter of determination before the Tribunal and the issue is decided against the owner and in favour of the insurer.”

23. Therefore, this Court is of opinion that whatever liability is found for the owner, the Insurers would be liable to make good the compensation awarded and recover the same from the owner through an application made to the Tribunal.

24. This spares for the Court the question whether compensation has been validly determined by the Tribunal. The claimants have sought enhancement and say that the compensation as assessed is far on the lower side. They say, it is against the settled principles.

25. The foremost fact in order to outwork the compensation is the monthly income of the deceased. The Tribunal has considered the deceased to be a productive person with some kind of a capability to earn his livelihood. His age has also been considered to be one which would enable him to earn his livelihood. The Tribunal has taken note of the circumstances about the deceased being said to be a power loom mechanic, a fact that has not been denied by the other side. The case about the deceased being the owner of a power loom has, however, been disbelieved for want of evidence. In the totality of circumstances, the Tribunal has determined for the deceased a monthly income of Rs.3000/-. We are in agreement with the aforesaid assessment made by the Tribunal.

26. The deceased had an income of Rs.3000/- per month and a fortiori an income of Rs.36,000/- per annum. Given the fact that his dependents are seven in number, all of whom are the claimants, deduction towards personal and living expenses would have to be made accordingly.

27. Out of the claimants, the deceased's widow is major whereas the six children are all minors. Applying Rule 220-A (2) (iii) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short, the Rules of 1998), each child would be considered half a unit, and, therefore, the six children would reckon for three dependents. Thus, working it out, the widow and the six minor children would constitute a total of four dependents. In accordance with rule laid down in Paragraph No.30 of Sarla Verma (Smt) v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121, the claimants are entitled to be placed in the bracket of dependent family members being 4-6. The rule in Sarla Verma (supra) aforesaid sanctions a deduction of one-fourth where the number of dependent family members are 4-6. The finding of the Tribunal, directing deduction of a one-third of the deceased's income towards personal and living expenses, is, therefore, erroneous.

28. The Tribunal has adopted a multiplier of '16'. According to the table in Paragraph No.40 of the report in Sarla Verma for the age group 36-40 years, the multiplier to be adopted is '15'; not '16'.

29. The claimants are also entitled to addition of future prospects, which are no longer the preserve of the service class. These are also to be extended to the self-employed or those working on a fixed salary going by the principle laid down by the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company v. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680. In Pranay Sethi (supra), it has been held:

“56. The seminal issue is the fixation of future prospects in cases of deceased who are self-employed or on a fixed salary. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] has carved out an exception permitting the claimants to bring materials on record to get the benefit of addition of future prospects. It has not, per se, allowed any future prospects in respect of the said category.

57. Having bestowed our anxious consideration, we are disposed to think when we accept the principle of standardisation, there is really no rationale not to apply the said principle to the self-employed or a person who is on a fixed salary. To follow the doctrine of actual income at the time of death and not to add any amount with regard to future prospects to the income for the purpose of determination of multiplicand would be unjust. The determination of income while computing compensation has to include future prospects so that the method will come within the ambit and sweep of just compensation as postulated under Section 168 of the Act. In case of a deceased who had held a permanent job with inbuilt grant of annual increment, there is an acceptable certainty. But to state that the legal representatives of a deceased who was on a fixed salary would not be entitled to the benefit of future prospects for the purpose of computation of compensation would be inapposite. It is because the criterion of distinction between the two in that event would be certainty on the one hand and staticness on the other. One may perceive that the comparative measure is certainty on the one hand and uncertainty on the other but such a perception is fallacious. It is because the price rise does affect a self-employed person; and that apart there is always an incessant effort to enhance one's income for sustenance. The purchasing capacity of a salaried person on permanent job when increases because of grant of increments and pay revision or for some other change in service conditions, there is always a competing attitude in the private sector to enhance the salary to get better efficiency from the employees. Similarly, a person who is self-employed is bound to garner his resources and raise his charges/fees so that he can live with same facilities. To have the perception that he is likely to remain static and his income to remain stagnant is contrary to the fundamental concept of human attitude which always intends to live with dynamism and move and change with the time. Though it may seem appropriate that there cannot be certainty in addition of future prospects to the existing income unlike in the case of a person having a permanent job, yet the said perception does not really deserve acceptance. We are inclined to think that there can be some degree of difference as regards the percentage that is meant for or applied to in respect of the legal representatives who claim on behalf of the deceased who had a permanent job than a person who is self-employed or on a fixed salary. But not to apply the principle of standardisation on the foundation of perceived lack of certainty would tantamount to remaining oblivious to the marrows of ground reality. And, therefore, degree-test is imperative. Unless the degree-test is applied and left to the parties to adduce evidence to establish, it would be unfair and inequitable. The degree-test has to have the inbuilt concept of percentage. Taking into consideration the cumulative factors, namely, passage of time, the changing society, escalation of price, the change in price index, the human attitude to follow a particular pattern of life, etc., an addition of 40% of the established income of the deceased towards future prospects and where the deceased was below 40 years an addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years would be reasonable.

58. The controversy does not end here. The question still remains whether there should be no addition where the age of the deceased is more than 50 years. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] thinks it appropriate not to add any amount and the same has been approved in Reshma Kumari [Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan, (2013) 9 SCC 65 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 191 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 826] . Judicial notice can be taken of the fact that salary does not remain the same. When a person is in a permanent job, there is always an enhancement due to one reason or the other. To lay down as a thumb rule that there will be no addition after 50 years will be an unacceptable concept. We are disposed to think, there should be an addition of 15% if the deceased is between the age of 50 to 60 years and there should be no addition thereafter. Similarly, in case of self-employed or person on fixed salary, the addition should be 10% between the age of 50 to 60 years. The aforesaid yardstick has been fixed so that there can be consistency in the approach by the tribunals and the courts.”

30. The next point to be considered is whether future prospects, to which the claimants are entitled, would be governed by the law laid down in Pranay Sethi or Rule 220-A (3) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short, the Rules of 1998). This issue is no longer res integra in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822, where it was observed:

“9. It is to be noted that the validity of the Rules was not, in any way, questioned in the instant matter and thus the only question that we are called upon to consider is whether in its application, sub-Rule 3(iii) of Rule 220A of the Rules must be given restricted scope or it must be allowed to operate fully.

10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at “just compensation” in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid.

12. We, therefore, reject the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant and affirm the view taken by the Tribunal as well as the High Court and dismiss this appeal without any order as to costs."

31. It still remains to be examined whether Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, introduced by Notification No. 777/XXX-4-2011-4(3)-2010 dated 26th September, 2011 i.e. The Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011, would apply retrospectively to an accident that took place prior to the amendment. The issue was answered by a Division Bench of this Court in Sushil Kumar and others v. M/s. Sampark Logistic Private Limited and others, 2017 (35) LCD 1311. In Sushil Kumar (supra), it was held:

"31. Rule 220-A was inserted in the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 in view of the various decisions of the law courts for providing benefit on account of future prospects of the injured/deceased. It provides for addition of certain percentage of the income of the injured/deceased in his actual income depending upon the age of the injured/deceased for the purposes of determination of the compensation. The aforesaid Rule came into effect on 26.09.2011 after the decision of the claim petition but before filing of the appeal though the accident took place on 08.05.2010 much before the enforcement of the above Rule.

32. It is in view of the above that an argument is being raised that Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident which had taken place on 08.05.2010.

33. In Ram Sarup Vs. Munshi AIR 1963 SC 553 it was laid down that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the rights of the parties.

34. The view expressed above was followed by the Supreme Court in Mula Vs. Godhu AIR 1971 SC 89.

35. In Dayawati Vs. Inderjit AIR 1966 SC 1423 the court had observed as under: - If the new law speaks in language, which expressly or by clear intendment, takes in even pending matters, the court of trial as well as the court of appeal must have regard to an intention so expressed, and the court of appeal may give effect to such a law even after the judgment of the court of first instance.

36. In Amarjit Kaur Vs. Pritam Singh AIR 1974 SC 2068 effect was given to the change in law during the pendency of an appeal as the hearing of an appeal under the procedural law of this country is in the nature of rehearing of the suit by superior court.

37. It was in the light of the above decisions that in Lakshmi Narayan Guin and others Vs. Niranjana Modak AIR 1985 SC 111 it was held that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the right of the parties.

38. The aforesaid decision was followed by a Division Bench of this court in U.P. State Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Madhu Sharma and others, 2003 (4) AWC 2620 which was a case in relation to the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and it was observed that it is apparent that the change in law during the pendency of the original proceedings has to be taken into account so as to cover the rights of the parties.

39. In view of above decision the view expressed by the Division Bench of this court in ICICI Lombard (Supra) is not of good law as it does not takes into account the decisions referred to above in holding that the Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident that took place prior to the said date only for the reason that the Rule was not specifically stated to be retrospective in nature."

32. The law laid down by the Division Bench in Sushil Kumar (supra) binds this Court and computation of future prospects is, therefore, to be made in accordance with the Rule 220-A(3) of Rules, 1998, even though the accident happened long before the amendment. Rule 220-A(3) stipulates that where the age of the deceased is less than 40 years, 50% is to be added to his/ her income towards future prospects.

33. There is an issue further raised about non-grant of any compensation by the Tribunal under the conventional heads. Here again, the law down in Pranay Sethi is eloquent, where it has been observed:

"48. This aspect needs to be clarified and appositely stated. The conventional sum has been provided in the Second Schedule to the Act. The said

Schedule has been found to be defective as stated by the Court in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] . Recently, in Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy [Puttamma v.K.L. Narayana Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 45 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 384 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 574] it has been reiterated by stating : (SCC p. 80, para 54)

"54. ... we hold that the Second Schedule as was enacted in 1994 has now become redundant, irrational and unworkable due to changed scenario including the present cost of living and current rate of inflation and increased life expectancy."

49. As far as multiplier or multiplicand is concerned, the same has been put to rest by the judgments of this Court. Para 3 of the Second Schedule also provides for general damages in case of death. It is as follows:

"3. General damages (in case of death):

The following general damages shall be payable in addition to compensation outlined above:

(i)	Funeral expenses	Rs 2000
(ii)	Loss of consortium, if beneficiary is the spouse	Rs 5000
(iii)	Loss of estate	Rs 2500
(iv)	Medical expenses — actual expenses incurred before death supported by bills/vouchers but not exceeding	Rs 15,000"

50. On a perusal of various decisions of this Court, it is manifest that the Second Schedule has not been followed starting from the decision in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v.Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] and there has been no amendment to the same. The conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined. As we notice, in different cases different amounts have been granted. A sum of Rs 1,00,000 was granted towards consortium in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]. The justification for grant of consortium, as we find from Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149], is founded on the observation as we have reproduced hereinbefore.

51. On the aforesaid basis, the Court has revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads.

52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]. It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167], it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seems to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads.”

34. The next issue for consideration is compensation that is to be awarded for loss of consortium. This issue fell for consideration before their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. v. Nanu Ram alias Chuhru Ram and others, (2018) 18 SCC 130. In Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. (supra), it has been held:

“21. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Pranay Sethi [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC

680 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 248 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 205] dealt with the various heads under which compensation is to be awarded in a death case. One of these heads is loss of consortium. In legal parlance, "consortium" is a compendious term which encompasses "spousal consortium", "parental consortium", and "filial consortium". The right to consortium would include the company, care, help, comfort, guidance, solace and affection of the deceased, which is a loss to his family. With respect to a spouse, it would include sexual relations with the deceased spouse : [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]

21.2. Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of "parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training".

21.3. Filial consortium is the right of the parents to compensation in the case of an accidental death of a child. An accident leading to the death of a child causes great shock and agony to the parents and family of the deceased. The greatest agony for a parent is to lose their child during their lifetime. Children are valued for their love, affection, companionship and their role in the family unit.

35. Since 50% of the liability for the compensation payable to the claimants was apportioned to the share of the UPSRTC, with whom the claimants have settled their claim fully and finally before the Lok Adalat, whatever compensation is found due on revision, would be payable by the owner and/ or the Insurers to the extent of 50% alone. Since it has been held that compensation is payable in the first instance by the Insurers, the Insurers are liable to satisfy the award to the extent payable by the owner with liberty to recover from the owner through a miscellaneous application to be made before the Tribunal, executing the award.

36. In view of the aforesaid conclusion, compensation payable to the claimants would have to be worked out in the following manner:

(i)	Monthly Income (of the deceased)	=	3000
(ii)	Monthly Income+Future Prospects (monthly income x 50%)	=	4500
			3000+1500
(iii)	Annual Income (of the deceased)	=	54000
	)		deceased) = 4500x12
(iv)	Annual Dependency	=	40500
	)		Annual Income – one-fourth deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased = 54000-13500
(v)	Total Dependency	=	60750
	)		Annual Dependency x Applied Multiplier = 40500x15
(vi)	Claimants' entitlement towards conventional heads = Loss of Estate + Funeral Expenses + dependents'	=	31000
			0

Consortium
 7

The total compensation = 91750
 would therefore, work out 0 to a figure of Rs. 607500+
 Rs. 310000

Less 50% of the = 45875
 compensation apportioned 0 to the share of the UPSRTC
 917500/2

2. In the result, this appeal is allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded and payable is enhanced to a sum of Rs. 4,58,750/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall be payable in the first instance by the Insurers with liberty to recover from the owner through a miscellaneous application to be made before the Tribunal. The said sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the owner, pursuant to the impugned award, shall be adjusted against the award. The inter se apportionment of compensation shall be done in the same ratio as directed by the Tribunal. Costs easy.

A. Civil Law - Motor Vehicles Act, 1988-Sections 173- enhancement of compensation- The claimants are three in number-So far as consortium is concerned, claimant mother has not been held entitled to any dependency, she has lost her daughter, and would be entitled to filial consortium-So far as minor claimant is concerned, she would be entitled to parental consortium-Amongst claimants, deceased uncle who has not been considered any kind of a dependent of deceased, is not entitled to anything towards consortium as well-He does not fall under any of known categories where compensation for loss of consortium is to be awarded- Thus, the total compensation would be 596000 -The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded and payable by the owner is enhanced to Rs. 2,98,000/- after deducting 50% of the compensation apportioned to the share of the UPSRTC settled in the Lok Adalat.

The appeal is partly allowed. (E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This is a claimants' appeal arising out of a judgment and award of Mr. S.C. Bose, District Judge of Allahabad, sitting as the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, dated 6th January, 2003 passed in Motor Accident Claims Petition No.410 of 1999. The claimants seek enhancement of the compensation awarded.

2. Smt. Gulshan Bano, the deceased, was travelling on board Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 on 13.04.1999. At about 7:30 p.m., near a certain Village Gansiari within the local limits of Police Station Mau Aima, District Allahabad (now Prayagraj), a Bus bearing registration No. UGH-471, owned by the Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation (for short, 'the UPSRTC'), that was proceeding from Allahabad to Ayodhya, hit the Jeep. In consequence of the accident, Smt. Gulshan Bano sustained injuries, leading to her death. The Jeep aforesaid, whereon Gulshan Bano was travelling, was owned by one Alok Pandey and insured with the Oriental Insurance Company, Allahabad. The claimants are three in number, to wit, Abdul Khaliq aged about 45 years, an uncle of the deceased, Smt. Hamidunnisha aged about 40 years, the deceased's mother and Shaista, the deceased's minor daughter, aged about 8 months. They shall hereinafter be called 'the claimants', unless the context otherwise requires. It appears that the deceased was a divorcee and there is no claim laid on behalf of her husband.

3. It is the claimants' case that the deceased was a woman, who stayed home and did productive work of stitching etc., that yielded her an income of Rs.5000/- per month. All the claimants were dependent upon the deceased's income. The claimants have, therefore, demanded a compensation in the sum of Rs.10,00,000/-.

4. A separate written statement each was filed on behalf of the UPSRTC, the owner of the ill-fated Jeep, Alok Pandey and on behalf of the Oriental Insurance Company, who are the Insurers of the ill-fated Jeep. The owner of the Jeep and the Insurers shall hereinafter referred to as 'the owner' and 'the Insurers'.

5. The UPSRTC broadly took a stand that the accident happened on account of the Jeep driver's negligence, whereas the owner took the stand that the accident occurred due to the rash and negligent driving by the Bus driver. It was also urged that on the date of accident, the ill-fated Jeep was validly insured with the Insurers. The Insurers did a wholesome and inconsistent denial of everything that was urged to hold them liable. They denied insuring the ill-fated Jeep, the accident between the UPSRTC Bus and the ill-fated Jeep, and also the fact that the driver held a valid driving licence. In substance, the Insurers denied their liability to indemnify the owner of the Jeep regarding any liability, that might be apportioned to him.

6. On the pleadings of parties, the following issues were framed (translated into English from Hindi):

“1. Whether on 13.04.1999, at about 7:30 in the evening hours, the alleged accident happened on account of rash and negligent driving of Jeep No. UP-70N-7479?”

2. Whether the alleged accident, involving Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 and Bus No. UGH-471, happened due to the contributory negligence of both the vehicles? If yes, which vehicle is at fault and to what extent?

3. Whether Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 is owned by Alok Pandey and on the date of accident, it was insured with the Oriental Insurance Company?

4. Whether on the date of the accident, the driver had a valid driving licence?

5. Whether Jeep No. UP-70N-7479 was being operated in accordance with law, rules and its registration?

6. Whether the claimants are entitled to compensation? If yes, how much and from which of the parties?

7. To what relief are the claimants entitled?”

7. The Tribunal dealt with Issues Nos. 1 and 2 together and held that both the Bus and the ill-fated Jeep had an equal share of contributory negligence in the accident. Issue No.3 was answered in favour of the owner holding that the ill-fated Jeep was owned by him and validly insured with the Insurers. This issue was answered in this manner by the Tribunal on the Insurers' admission. Issue No.5 was decided in the manner that the ill-fated Jeep was registered in the owner's name as a vehicle for personal use. There is a further finding that on the date of accident, the ill-fated Jeep was being used to carry passengers. It was, therefore, held on this issue in conclusion that the ill-fated Jeep was not being operated in accordance with its registered use. In answering Issue No.4, the Tribunal held that according to the evidence on record, the driver of the ill-fated Jeep, Shiv Shankar had a valid driving licence with him, which was valid for driving a private vehicle alone. The licence was not endorsed for driving a commercial vehicle carrying passengers. Issues Nos.6 and 7 were taken up together. The claimants were held entitled to compensation on account of Gulshan Bano's death.

8. A finding was returned that her husband had not presented any claim and there was an affidavit to show that the deceased's husband had divorced her. The deceased's income, that was claimed from her exertions that she did privately doing stitching jobs etc., was not accepted by the Tribunal. There is a remark that the fact that the deceased's had an income of Rs.5000/- per month, has not been traversed on behalf of the owner, the UPSRTC and the Insurers. It has also been noticed that there is nothing on record to show the deceased's age.

9. It has been remarked that the deceased being a divorcee, it is believable that she would be working to earn a livelihood for herself. Despite these remarks, the deceased's income as claimed, or for that matter any substantial income has been discounted. The Tribunal has held for the deceased a minimum income of Rs.15,000/- a year. On that basis, the Tribunal has determined the compensation payable to the claimants. One-third of the deceased's income has been deducted towards her personal and living expenses. The deceased's age has been opined to be 22 years given the fact that it was claimed to be 22 years and in the autopsy report, it was determined as 21 years. The Tribunal has applied a multiplier of '17' to arrive at a substantive compensation of Rs.1,70,000/-. Nothing else has been awarded, except 10% simple interest from the date of institution of the claim petition until realization.

10. Heard Mr. Sharve Singh, learned Counsel for the claimants, Mr. Siddharth Jaiswal, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Ashok Kumar Jaiswal, learned Counsel for the Insurers and Mr. Sunil Kumar Mishra, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the UPSRTC. No one appeared on behalf of the owner, though the name of Ms. Seema Misra, Advocate is printed in the cause list.

11. It is argued by the learned Counsel for the claimants that the principle of contributory negligence in this case is not applicable, because it is a case of composite negligence. The claimants are free to recover from either of the two vehicles notwithstanding the finding of contributory negligence apportioning a 50% liability. It is next submitted that breach of condition of the insurance policy that the Tribunal has found on account of the driving licence of the driver of the ill-fated Jeep not being endorsed for driving a commercial passenger vehicle, would not entitle the Insurers to an all out exoneration on the policy. Instead, it would give the Insurers a right to recover after paying of the claimants. The claimants have also criticized the Tribunal's finding about the deceased's annual income to be sum of Rs.15,000/-, rejecting evidence about her actual income. It is also said that the Tribunal has not taken into account future prospects of the deceased. The deduction towards personal expenses has been criticized as one much on the higher side. It is also urged that the Tribunal has failed to award anything towards loss of love and affection, besides funeral expenses.

12. The learned Counsel appearing for the UPSRTC says that they are not liable to pay anything to the claimants towards the enhanced compensation, inasmuch as the claimants have accepted a sum of Rs.60,000/- on 04.03.2001 before the Lok Adalat in complete settlement of their claim against the UPSRTC.

13. The learned Counsel for the Insurers, on the other hand, has argued that the Jeep driver's licence being one for a private vehicle alone, without any endorsement for driving a commercial vehicle, there is a fundamental breach of the policy, entitling the Insurers to complete exoneration, as ordered by the Tribunal.

14. This Court has considered the submissions advanced on behalf of both sides. It is to be noticed that there is no appeal, either by the owner or the Insurers. It is true that so far as the claimants are concerned, it is a case of composite negligence, because the deceased was on board one of the vehicles, that has been found to have contributed to the negligence leading to the accident. The claimants are free to recover from any of the parties found to be in contributory negligence. The issue of apportionment of negligence and a fortiori the liability to pay compensation is a matter inter se the owner and the Insurers on one hand and the UPSRTC on the other. It is not an issue in this appeal at all.

15. What is different in this case is that the rights of the claimants have nevertheless been split into two parts, to wit, one part against the owner and the Insurers and the other against the UPSRTC. There is on record a compromise inter se the claimants and the UPSRTC dated 04.03.2001 filed before the Lok Adalat, which has been accepted on the same day by the Lok Adalat. The terms of the settlement before the Lok Adalat show that the claimants have compromised their claim against the UPSRTC for a sum of Rs.60,000/- in all. The aforesaid compromise between the claimants and the UPSRTC is on record as paper No.14-Ga, on the reverse of which is the order passed by the Lok Adalat. The result is that the present appeal by the claimants for enhancement is confined to their claim against the owner and the Insurers.

16. This Court is of opinion that the Tribunal having returned a finding of contributory negligence to the extent of 50% each between the ill-fated Jeep and the UPSRTC Bus, it is difficult to disturb that finding in the absence of any positive evidence brought to the notice of this Court by the claimants to show that it was a different percentage of negligence on the part of the ill-fated Jeep's driver or it was cent per cent his fault. Even otherwise, it would now not be open to disturb that finding, because on the foot of it the claimants have settled the matter with the UPSRTC before the Lok Adalat. The claim, therefore, that now proceeds is confined to the owner and the Insurers.

17. Whatever enhancement of compensation is granted by this Court, if at all, the same would be limited to 50% of the determination, the other 50% having been settled in terms of the compromise with the UPSRTC.

18. The next question, which arises, is whether the Insurers have been rightly discharged of their liability by the Tribunal, or it is a case where the Insurers ought to be saddled with the liability of making good the compensation awarded with a right to recover from the owner. It is true that the driving licence held by the driver of the ill-fated Jeep was a licence to drive a motorcycle and a light motor vehicle, which authorizes a person to drive a private vehicle. It was not endorsed by the Licensing Authority, authorizing the licensee to drive a commercial light vehicle carrying passengers.

19. The Tribunal has recorded a finding that the facts and evidence on record show that the ill-fated Jeep was carrying gratuitous passengers, though there is nothing expressly said in the affidavit of Hamidunnisha, that has been filed in lieu of her examination-in-chief, that the deceased boarded the vehicle after paying some kind of a fare. This Court is inclined to agree with the Tribunal on this issue. The reason is that apparently the owner has not raised a specific plea in the written statement that he was carrying passengers, non-gratuitously or introducing circumstances to show some kind of a personal relationship between the deceased or her family and the owner. The Jeep was full of passengers unrelated to the owner from which a presumption about gratuitous carriage of passengers must be raised. There is nothing on record to rebut the presumption that the passengers on board the ill-fated Jeep, none of whom appear to be related to the owner, or his acquaintances or friends, were gratuitous. The Jeep was clearly being plied as a passenger vehicle for hire.

20. The Court's inference in this regard must also rest on judicial notice of the reputed fact that vehicles of this type are invariably used as passenger vehicles for hire, though registered as private ones. The Court, therefore, finds that while the driver of the Jeep may not be holding a valid licence, authorizing him to drive passenger vehicles used for commercial purposes, the ill-fated Jeep was nevertheless insured by the Insurers. At the same time, the driving licence not being one which was endorsed to drive a commercial or passenger vehicle, there is a breach of the insurance policy entitling the Insurers to exoneration from their liability to substantively indemnify in terms of the policy. But, they ought to be directed to pay the claimants and recover from the owner.

21. In Shamanna and another v. Divisional Manager, Oriental Insurance Company Limited and others, (2018) 9 SCC 650, the relevant facts were that the deceased was travelling by a Jeep, negligently driven by its driver. The door of the vehicle suddenly opened and the deceased was thrown out of the vehicle leading to his death. The deceased was a young man and his parents claimed compensation. The Tribunal awarded compensation with a direction to pay and recover since the Jeep driver had no valid driving licence, when the accident happened. On an appeal by the Insurance Company and by the claimants as well, the High Court enhanced the compensation, but set aside the direction to pay and recover. It was in those circumstances that on the claimants' appeal by special leave, the Supreme Court after referring to the decision in National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297 held in Shamanna (supra):

“11. In the present case, to deny the benefit of “pay and recover”, what seems to have substantially weighed with the High Court is the reference to larger Bench made by the two-Judge Bench in National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943] which doubted the correctness of the decisions which in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 142 of the Constitution of India directing insurance company to pay the compensation amount even though insurance company has no liability to pay. In Parvathneni case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943], the Supreme Court pointed out that Article 142 of the Constitution of India does not cover such type of cases and that : (SCC p. 786, para 5)

“5. If the insurance company has no liability to pay at all, then, it cannot be compelled by order of the court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 142 of the Constitution of India to pay the compensation amount and later on recover it from the owner of the vehicle.”

12. The above reference in Parvathneni case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943] has been disposed of on 17-9-2013 [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2018) 9 SCC 657] by the three-Judge Bench keeping the questions of law open to be decided in an appropriate case.

13. Since the reference to the larger Bench in Parvathneni case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Parvathneni, (2009) 8 SCC 785 : (2009) 3 SCC (Civ) 568 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 943] has been disposed of by keeping the questions of law open to be decided in an appropriate case, presently the decision in Swaran Singh case [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 733] followed in Laxmi Narain Dhut [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Laxmi Narain Dhut, (2007) 3 SCC 700 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 142] and other cases hold the field. The award passed by the Tribunal directing the insurance company to pay the compensation amount awarded to the claimants and thereafter, recover the same from the owner of the vehicle in question, is in accordance with the judgment passed by this Court in Swaran Singh [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Swaran Singh, (2004) 3 SCC 297 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 733] and Laxmi Narain Dhut [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Laxmi Narain Dhut, (2007) 3 SCC 700 : (2007) 2 SCC (Cri) 142] cases. While so, in our view, the High Court ought not to have interfered with the award passed by the Tribunal directing the first respondent to pay and recover from the owner of the vehicle. The impugned judgment [Shamanna v. Laxman, 2016 SCC OnLine Kar 6928] of the High Court exonerating the insurance company from its liability and directing the claimants to recover the compensation from the owner of the vehicle is set aside and the award passed by the Tribunal is restored.

14. So far as the recovery of the amount from the owner of the vehicle, the insurance company shall recover as held in the decision in Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Nanjappan [Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Nanjappan, (2004) 13 SCC 224 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 148] wherein this Court held that : (SCC p. 226, para 8)

“8. ... For the purpose of recovering the same from the insured, the insurer shall not be required to file a suit. It may initiate a proceeding before the executing court concerned as if the dispute between the insurer and the owner was the subject-matter of determination before the Tribunal and the issue is decided against the owner and in favour of the insurer.”

22. Therefore, this Court is of opinion that whatever liability is found for the owner, the Insurers would be liable to make good the compensation awarded and recover the same from the owner through an application made to the Tribunal.

23. This spares for the Court the question whether compensation has been validly determined by the Tribunal. The claimants have sought enhancement and say that the compensation as assessed is far on the lower side. They say, it is against the settled principles.

24. The first determinant in order to work out the compensation is the monthly income of the deceased; or for that matter, her annual income. The Tribunal has considered the deceased to be a productive person earning something for herself, but has not believed the testimony of Hamidunnisha on affidavit, where she has claimed in Paragraph No.6 of the affidavit that the deceased would work as a tailor and earn Rs.5000/- a month. It is important to notice that Hamidunnisha has put in her affidavit dated 19.07.2002 in lieu of her oral testimony, but she has not been cross-examined either by the owner or the Insurers; not even by the UPSRTC. Her testimony, therefore, remains unrebutted on record. Normally, unrebutted testimony is to be accepted, but it is not to be accepted blindly. It is to be put in the scale of fair judgment, based on other facts, circumstances and contemporary human experience to believe the whole of it or so much of it as can be accepted.

25. The Tribunal has opined that the deceased was a divorced woman and, therefore, the likelihood of her engaging in some kind of productive work is there. It is on the said basis that the Tribunal has done a guesswork and determined the deceased's income at a figure of Rs.15,000/- per annum.

26. Regarding the income of a woman, mostly a housewife or a homemaker, principles have been laid down in Arun Kumar Agrawal and another v. National Insurance Company Limited and others, (2010) 9 SCC 218. After review of earlier authority on the issue in Arun Kumar Agrawal (supra), it has been held:

“26. In India the courts have recognised that the contribution made by the wife to the house is invaluable and cannot be computed in terms of money. The gratuitous services rendered by the wife with true love and affection to the children and her husband and managing the household affairs cannot be equated with the services rendered by others. A wife/mother does not work by the clock. She is in the constant attendance of the family throughout the day and night unless she is employed and is required to attend the employer's work for particular hours. She takes care of all the requirements of the husband and children including cooking of food, washing of clothes, etc. She teaches small children and provides invaluable guidance to them for their future life. A housekeeper or maidservant can do the household work, such as cooking food, washing clothes and utensils, keeping the house clean, etc., but she can never be a substitute for a wife/mother who renders selfless service to her husband and children.

27. It is not possible to quantify any amount in lieu of the services rendered by the wife/mother to the family i.e. the husband and children. However, for the purpose of award of compensation to the dependants, some pecuniary estimate has to be made of the services of the housewife/mother. In that context, the term “services” is required to be given a broad meaning and must be construed by taking into account the loss of personal care and attention given by the deceased to her children as a mother and to her husband as a wife. They are entitled to adequate compensation in lieu of the loss of gratuitous services rendered by the deceased. The amount payable to the dependants cannot be diminished on the ground that some close relation like a grandmother may volunteer to render some of the services to the family which the deceased was giving earlier.

28. In Lata Wadhwa v. State of Bihar [(2001) 8 SCC 197] this Court considered the various issues raised in the writ petitions filed by the petitioners including the one relating to payment of compensation to the victims of the fire accident which occurred on 3-3-1989 resulting in the death of 60 persons and injuries to 113. By an interim order dated 15-12-1993, this Court requested the former Chief Justice of India, Shri Justice Y.V. Chandrachud to look into various issues including the amount of compensation payable to the victims. Although the petitioners filed objection to the report submitted by Shri Justice Y.V. Chandrachud, the Court overruled the same and accepted the report. On the issue of payment of compensation to the housewife, the Court observed: (SCC pp. 209-10, para 10) of any data and as the housewives were not earning any income, attempt has been made to determine the compensation on the basis of services rendered by them to the house. On the basis of the age group of the housewives, appropriate multiplier has been applied, but the estimation of the value of services rendered to the house by the housewives, which has been arrived at Rs. 12,000 per annum in cases of some and Rs. 10,000 for others, appears to us to be grossly low. It is true that the claimants, who ought to have given data for determination of compensation, did not assist in any manner by providing the data for estimating the value of services rendered by such housewives. But even in the absence of such data and taking into consideration the multifarious services rendered by the housewives for managing the entire family, even on a modest estimation, should be Rs. 3000 per month and Rs. 36,000 per annum. This would apply to all those housewives between the age group of 34 to 59 and as such who were active in life. The compensation awarded, therefore, should be recalculated, taking the value of services rendered per annum to be Rs. 36,000 and thereafter, applying the multiplier, as has been applied already, and so far as the conventional amount is concerned, the same should be Rs. 50,000 instead of Rs. 25,000 given under the Report. So far as the elderly ladies are concerned, in the age group of 62 to 72, the value of services rendered has been taken at Rs. 10,000 per annum and the multiplier applied is eight. Though, the multiplier applied is correct, but the values of services rendered at Rs. 10,000 per annum, cannot be held to be just and, we, therefore, enhance the same to Rs. 20,000 per annum. In their case, therefore, the total amount of compensation should be redetermined, taking the value of services rendered at Rs. 20,000 per annum and then after applying the multiplier, as already applied and thereafter, adding Rs. 50,000 towards the conventional figure."

29. The judgment of Lata Wadhwa case [(2001) 8 SCC 197] was referred to with approval in M.S. Grewal v. Deep Chand Sood [(2001) 8 SCC 151 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 1426] for confirming the award of compensation of Rs. 5 lakhs in a case involving the death of school children by drowning due to negligence of teachers of the school. In Municipal Corpn. of Greater Bombay v. Laxman Iyer [(2003) 8 SCC 731 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 252] a two-Judge Bench while deciding the issue of award of compensation under Sections 110-A and 110-B of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1939, referred to the judgments in Lata Wadhwa case [(2001) 8 SCC 197] and M.S. Grewal case [(2001) 8 SCC 151 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 1426].

30. In A. Rajam v. M. Manikya Reddy [1989 ACJ 542 (AP)] , M. Jagannadha Rao, J. (as he then was) advocated giving of a wider meaning to the word "services" in cases relating to award of compensation to the dependants of a deceased wife/mother. Some of the observations made in that judgment are extracted below:

"The loss to the husband and children consequent upon the death of the housewife or mother has to be computed by estimating the loss of 'services' to the family, if there was reasonable prospect of such services being rendered freely in the future, but for the death. It must be remembered that any substitute to be so employed is not likely to be as economical as the housewife. Apart from the value of obtaining substituted services, the expense of giving accommodation or food to the substitute must also be computed. From this total must be deducted the expense the family would have otherwise been spending for the deceased housewife.

While estimating the 'services' of the housewife, a narrow meaning should not be given to the meaning of the word 'services' but it should be construed broadly and one has to take into account the loss of 'personal care and attention' by the deceased to her children, as a mother and to her husband, as a wife. The award is not diminished merely because some close relation like a grandmother is prepared to render voluntary services."

33. In Chandra Singh v. Gurmeet Singh [(2003) 7 AD 222 (Del)] , Krishna Gupta v. Madan Lal [(2002) 96 DLT 829] , Captan Singh v. Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. [(2004) 112 DLT 417] and Amar Singh Thukral v. Sandeep Chhatwal [(2004) 112 DLT 478] , the Single and Division Benches of the Delhi High Court declined to apply the judgment of this Court in Lata Wadhwa case [(2001) 8 SCC 197] for the purpose of award of compensation under the Act. In Krishna Gupta v. Madan Lal [(2002) 96 DLT 829] the Division Bench of the High Court observed as under: (DLT p. 834, para 24)

"24. ... The decision of the Apex Court in Lata Wadhwa [(2001) 8 SCC 197] in our considered opinion, cannot be said to have any application in the instant case. The Motor Vehicles Act, 1939 was the complete code by itself. It not only provides for the right of a victim and/or his legal heirs to obtain compensation in case of bodily injury or death arising out of use of motor vehicle, but the Forum therefor has been provided, as also the mode and manner in which the compensation to be awarded therefor. In such a situation, it would be inappropriate to rely upon a decision of the Apex Court, which had been rendered in an absolutely different fact situation and in relation where to there did not exist any statutory compensation. Lata Wadhwa [(2001) 8 SCC 197] was decided in a matter where a fire occurred during a celebration. The liability of Tata Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. was not disputed. Compensation was awarded having regard to the peculiar feature obtaining in that case which has got nothing to do with the statutory compensation payable under the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act."

34. In Amar Singh Thukral v. Sandeep Chhatwal [(2004) 112 DLT 478] , the learned Single Judge of the Delhi High Court adopted the yardstick of minimum rates of wages for the purpose of award of compensation in the case of death of a housewife and then proceeded to observe: (DLT p. 487, para 35)

"35. ... Since there is no scientific method of assessing the contribution of a housewife to her household, in cases such as the present, resort should be had to the wages of a skilled worker as per the minimum rates of wages in Delhi. Although, this may sound uncharitable, if not demeaning to a housewife, there is hardly any other option available in the absence of any statutory guidelines."

35. In our view, it is highly unfair, unjust and inappropriate to compute the compensation payable to the dependants of a deceased wife/mother, who does not have a regular income, by comparing her services with that of a housekeeper or a servant or an employee, who works for a fixed period. The gratuitous services rendered by the wife/mother to the husband and children cannot be equated with the services of an employee and no evidence or data can possibly be produced for estimating the value of such services. It is virtually impossible to measure in terms of money the loss of personal care and attention suffered by the husband and children on the demise of the housewife. In its wisdom, the legislature had, as early as in 1994, fixed the notional income of a non-earning person at Rs. 15,000 per annum and in case of a spouse, 1/3rd income of the earning/surviving spouse for the purpose of computing the compensation.

36. Though Section 163-A does not, in terms apply to the cases in which claim for compensation is filed under Section 166 of the Act, in the absence of any other definite criteria for determination of compensation payable to the dependants of a non-earning housewife/mother, it would be reasonable to rely upon the criteria specified in Clause 6 of the Second Schedule and then apply an appropriate multiplier keeping in view the judgments of this Court in Kerala SRTC v. Susamma Thomas [(1994) 2 SCC 176 : 1994 SCC (Cri) 335], U.P. SRTC v. Trilok Chandra [(1996) 4 SCC 362], Sarla Verma v. DTC [(2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] and also take guidance from the judgment in Lata Wadhwa case [(2001) 8 SCC 197]. The approach adopted by different Benches of the Delhi High Court to compute the compensation by relying upon the minimum wages payable to a skilled worker does not commend our approval because it is most unrealistic to compare the gratuitous services of the housewife/mother with the work of a skilled worker.”

27. The law regarding the income of a non-working housewife, who perished in a motor accident at the age of 22 years and was claimed by her family to be earning Rs.900/- per month from doing embroidery and knitting work was the subject matter of consideration by the Supreme Court in Jitendra Khimshankar Trivedi and others v. Kasam Daud Kumbhar and others, (2015) 4 SCC 237. In Jitendra Khimshankar Trivedi (supra), it was held:

“7. Admittedly, the claimants adduced only oral testimony of the witnesses to substantiate their claim that the deceased was self-employed and was earning Rs 900 per month. Smt Godavariben Khimshankar Trivedi, mother-in-law and Shri Khimshankar Raguram Trivedi, father-in-law have deposed to the effect that the deceased at the time of accident was doing tailoring, embroidery and knitting and was earning Rs 900 per month. They further deposed that their daughters were also doing the same work as the deceased Jayvantiben Jitendra Trivedi was then doing and that their daughters were earning Rs 3000 per month and had the deceased been alive, she would have also earned Rs 3000 per month.

8. The Tribunal observed that in the district of Kachchh embroidery work, stitching work and local traditional embroidery work is doing well and had the deceased been alive she would have earned Rs 1500 per month. Deducting 1/3rd for personal expenses and adopting multiplier of 18, the Tribunal has calculated the loss of dependency at Rs 2,16,000 (Rs 1000 × 12 × 18). Though in their cross-examination, Smt Godavariben Khimshankar Trivedi and Khimshankar Raguram Trivedi deposed that they did not keep voucher and account books, reasoning of the Tribunal that the embroidery and tailoring work is doing well in the district of Kachchh and that the deceased would have earned not less than Rs 1500 per month is well merited. It is to be pointed out that the respondents have not adduced any evidence to prove that the deceased was not doing any embroidery or tailoring work or the like. While so, in the light of the factual findings recorded by the Tribunal, the High Court was not justified in reducing the income of the deceased to Rs 1350 per month from Rs 1500.

10. Even assuming Jayvantiben Jitendra Trivedi was not self-employed doing embroidery and tailoring work, the fact remains that she was a housewife and a homemaker. It is hard to monetise the domestic work done by a house-mother. The services of the mother/wife is available 24 hours and her duties are never fixed. Courts have recognised the contribution made by the wife to the house is invaluable and that it cannot be computed in terms of money. A housewife/homemaker does not work by the clock and she is in constant attendance of the family throughout and such services rendered by the homemaker has to be necessarily kept in view while calculating the loss of dependency. Thus even otherwise, taking deceased Jayvantiben Jitendra Trivedi as the homemaker, it is reasonable to fix her income at Rs 3000 per month.

11. Recognising the services of the homemaker and that domestic services have to be recognised in terms of money, in Arun Kumar Agrawal v. National Insurance Co. Ltd. [(2010) 9 SCC 218 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 664 : (2010) 3 SCC (Cri) 1313], this Court has held as under : (SCC p. 246, paras 62-63)

“62. The alternative to imputing money values is to measure the time taken to produce these services and compare these with the time that is taken to produce goods and services which are commercially viable. One has to admit that in the long run, the services rendered by women in the household sustain a supply of labour to the economy and keep human societies going by weaving the social fabric and keeping it in good repair. If we take these services for granted and do not attach any value to this, this may escalate the unforeseen costs in terms of deterioration of both human capabilities and social fabric.

63. Household work performed by women throughout India is more than US $612.8 billion per year (Evangelical Social Action Forum and Health Bridge, p. 17). We often forget that the time spent by women in doing household work as homemakers is the time which they can devote to paid work or to their education. This lack of sensitiveness and recognition of their work mainly contributes to women's high rate of poverty and their consequential oppression in society, as well as various physical, social and psychological problems. The courts and the Tribunals should do well to factor these considerations in assessing compensation for housewives who are victims of road accidents and quantifying the amount in the name of fixing ‘just compensation’.”

13. In order to award just and reasonable compensation income of the deceased is taken as Rs 3000 per month. Deducting 1/3rd for personal expenses contribution of the deceased to the family is calculated at Rs 2000 per month. At the time of her death deceased Jayvantiben was aged about 22 years, proper multiplier to be adopted is 18. Adopting multiplier of 18, total loss of dependency is calculated at Rs 4,32,000 (Rs 2000 × 12 × 18). With respect to the award of compensation under conventional heads, the Tribunal has awarded Rs 5000 towards loss of estate and Rs 3000 towards funeral expenses totalling Rs 8000. The High Court has awarded conventional damages of Rs 15,000 i.e. Rs 10,000 towards loss of estate and Rs 5000 towards funeral expenses. The courts below have not awarded any compensation towards loss of consortium and towards love and affection. In Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh [(2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] and Jiju Kuruvila v. Kunjamma Mohan [(2013) 9 SCC 166 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 849] , this Court has awarded substantial amount of Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of love and affection. Following the same, in the case in hand, Rs 1,00,000 is awarded towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of love and affection to the minor children. Towards loss of estate and funeral expenses, award of compensation of Rs 15,000 awarded by the High Court is maintained. Thus, the claimants are entitled to a total compensation of Rs 6,47,000."

28. The deceased here was a young woman of 22 years, a fact that is not in dispute. Whether she was stitching clothes or doing something else is not decisive about her income. The deceased was in very productive phase of her life and a divorcee. She had a young daughter as her dependent and they were staying with her mother and uncle. The Tribunal has rightly held for what this Court has observed hereinbefore, that the deceased would be engaged in some gainful pursuit to earn a livelihood for herself and support her daughter and her mother, with whom she was staying. There is affirmative evidence in the form of an affidavit by the mother, which says that the deceased was working as a tailor. Possibly, what the mother means is that she was stitching at home clothes and apparels for gain or reward that she received from whomsoever were her customers.

29. Normally, the unrebutted affidavit of Hamidunnisha, the deceased's mother, should have been accepted, but as already remarked, an unrebutted statement in an affidavit has to be evaluated for the truth of it. There is no evidence aliunde, like some kind of proof of the receipt of labour charges for the deceased's exertions or any kind of receipts relating to the work done by her. Going by the practices in the unorganized labour sector, particularly, stitching and handcraft work done at home, formal evidence like books of account or ledgers showing receipts or balance-sheets are evidence never to be expected. But, that does not mean that whatever is asserted in the affidavit is to be accepted as true for every word of it. Testimony, whether oral or on affidavit about income on which claims are based, is known to be exaggerated and inflated. At the same time, the work that the deceased was doing and the overall circumstances, an income of Rs.5000/- per month in the year 1999 does not seem to be believable, but given the wages obtaining during the relevant period of time, in the Court's opinion, a sum of Rs.3000/- per month can be safely accepted to be what the deceased would be earning per month. It is on the aforesaid basis that the claimants' dependency is to be assessed.

30. The claimants are three in number, one of whom is the deceased's minor child and the other her mother. There is no difficulty in accepting the child's claim. So far as the mother is concerned, her husband Insanul Haq was also a victim in the same accident on board the same vehicle. He was a power loom mechanic and had a power loom of his own that he employed in business to earn his livelihood. Hamidunnisha has filed Claim Petition No.411 of 1999 along with the other dependents of Insanul Haq to claim compensation for his death in the same accident. She is, therefore, clearly a dependent of Insanul Haq; not Gulshan Bano's. While Hamidunnisha is not entitled to claim any dependency upon Gulshan Bano, going by the settled principles, Gulshan Bano being her daughter, she would be entitled to some compensation on account of loss of filial consortium. The issue of filial consortium would be discussed with reference to authority relevant to the point later in this judgment.

31. The other claimant, Abdul Khaliq, the deceased's uncle, is her father's brother. He is a relatively young man of 45 years, still in the prime of his life. There is no reason why he should be regarded as a dependent of his divorced niece, who was staying with her parents' family after estrangement from her husband.

32. Therefore, this Court is of opinion that while the deceased's mother may be her heir, entitled to some compensation for the loss of filial consortium, the only dependent left behind by the deceased entitled to ask for compensation based on dependency, is the deceased's minor child, Shaista.

33. With an income of Rs.3000/- per month, the deceased would have to be credited with an annual income of Rs.36,000/-. Now, falls for consideration, the deduction to be made towards the deceased's personal and living expenses. The locus classicus on the point is the decision of the Supreme Court Sarla Verma (Smt) v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121. The principles for deduction towards personal and living expenses have been set out in Paragraph No.30 of the report in Sarla Verma (supra). The difficulty in this case arises from the fact that the deduction towards personal expenses for a married person starts with the number of dependents being in the bracket of 2-3. The case of a solitary dependent is not dealt with in Sarla Verma.

34. What, therefore, would be the deduction where the deceased left behind a solitary dependent is the question to be answered. This issue fell for consideration before the Karnataka High Court in Manager, National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. T. Chandranaika and others, 2018 SCC OnLine Kar 2295. Referring to the guidance in Sarla Verma, the Karnataka High Court in T. Chandranaika (supra) has held:

“9. As emphasized by the Learned Counsel for the appellant Smt. Manjula N. Tejaswi, it is seen that the Tribunal has not deducted any amount towards personal and living expenses of the deceased, out of her income of Rs. 7,000/- per month. Though the deceased was a married woman, she has left behind only a single dependant, namely her husband. Her both sons are majors aged above 35 years and are independently earning and looking after their families. Hence, since the deceased has left behind a sole dependant-her husband, the deduction to be adopted towards personal and living expenses ought to be taken at 1/2.

This view is supported by the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sarla Verma v. Delhi Transport Corporation [(2009) 6 SCC 121.] . The relevant paragraph of the said judgment reads as under:

“30. Though in some cases the deduction to be made towards personal and living expenses is calculated on the basis of units indicated in Trilok Chandra, the general practice is to apply standardised deductions. Having considered several subsequent decisions of this court, we are of the view that where the deceased was married, the deduction towards personal and living expenses of the deceased should be one-third ($\frac{1}{3}$ rd) where the number of dependent family members is 2 to 3, one fourth ($\frac{1}{4}$ th) where the number of dependent family members is 4 to 6, and one-fifth ($\frac{1}{5}$ th) where the number of dependent family members exceeds six."

This implies that when there is only one dependant of the deceased, the deduction towards personal and living expenses of the deceased should be taken as $\frac{1}{2}$.

Applying the above view in Sarla Verma, the law has been succinctly laid down in the case of New India Assurance Co. Ltd. v. Sri. David T. [ILR 2012 KAR 2859.] wherein the relevant paragraph reads as under:

"7. After going through the impugned judgment and award passed by Tribunal and after re-appreciation of the oral and documentary evidence available on file, I am of the considered view that the Tribunal has rightly assessed the monthly income of the deceased at Rs. 3,000/-, but erred in deducting $\frac{1}{3}$ rd towards the personal expenses of the deceased and taking the age of the deceased for adopting the multiplier instead of deducting 50% towards the personal expenses and adopting multiplier on the basis of the age of the husband of the deceased, as rightly pointed out by Learned Counsel for appellant-Insurer. In the light of the well settled law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court and this Court, in hosts of cases, whenever there is a sole claimant, 50% is to be deducted. Accordingly, I accept the monthly income of the deceased at Rs. 3,000/- and deduct 50% towards the personal expenses of the deceased. Accordingly, if 50% (i.e. Rs. 1,500/-) is deducted from Rs. 3,000/- towards her personal expenses, the net income would be Rs. 1,500/- per month. Since the husband of the deceased was aged about 70 years, the proper multiplier applicable is '5' as per the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court SARLA VERMA 'S CASE as against '10' adopted by Tribunal. Thus, the compensation towards loss of dependency would work out to Rs. 90,000/- (i.e., Rs. 1,500/- $\times$ 12 $\times$ '5') as against Rs. 2,40,000/- awarded by Tribunal."

10. In view of the above decisions, I find that the judgment of the Tribunal requires to be revisited on the aspect of compensation awarded under the head 'Loss of dependency' and the deduction towards personal and living expenses shall be taken at 50%.

Hence, the compensation payable towards 'loss of dependency' would come to Rs. 3,78,000/- ($\frac{1}{2} \times 7000 \times 9 \times 12$) as against Rs. 7,56,000/- awarded by the Tribunal. However, the compensation awarded by the tribunal under other conventional heads is just and proper and does not call for interference by this Court. Thus, the claimants-respondents are entitled to a total compensation of Rs. 4,18,000/- (Rupees four lakh eighteen thousand only) as against Rs. 7,96,000/- awarded by the Tribunal."

35. There is similar reasoning adopted in a more recent decision of the Karnataka High Court in Geeta Hukumchand Bagewadi v. Sundarawwa Shivaray Naikhe and others, M.F.A. No. 20759 of 2020 (MV-D), decided on 15.04.2019, where B.M. Shyam Prasad, J. held:

"8. The arguments as regards the deduction towards personal expenses in the case of a sole dependent is based on the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sarla Verma and others v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, reported in 2009 6 SCC 121. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the deduction towards personal expenses should be 1/3rd when the dependents of the deceased are either two or three, 1/4th if the dependants are between 4 and 6 and 1/5th if the dependants are more than 6. A coordinate bench of this Court has considered this question of deduction towards personal expenses if the deceased is survived by a sole dependant in the light of the decision in Sarla Verma's case referred supra and deducted 50% towards personal expenses. This court can only agree with the submissions by the learned counsel for the Insurer that the deduction towards personal expenses in the case of a sole dependant should be 50% (or ½) of the Income as it stands to reason that if the permissible deduction in the case the number of dependants is either 2 or 3 should be 1/3rd, the deduction cannot be the same if the deceased is survived by a sole dependant. Of the two claimants, the Claimant No. 1 is the wife, and the other claimant is a major son. Therefore, only the wife would qualify as the dependant. As such the deduction towards personal expenses should be 50% (or ½) of the income. As such, the argument by the learned counsel for the Insurer in this regard is accepted."

36. The decisions of the two learned Single Judges of the Karnataka High Court, with utmost respect, are not very eloquent in their reasoning why in case of a single dependent, deduction of 50% is to be made towards personal expenses. To the understanding of this Court, the reasoning would proceed on slightly different premise than that in the case of a bachelor, where 50% deduction is the rule in Sarla Verma. The reason for the rule in the case of bachelors is that they are pre-disposed to be spending more on themselves than married persons, who have to bear the responsibilities of a family. In case of a single dependent, the likelihood of the deceased sharing his income equally between himself and the dependent may serve as a valid basis to hold a 50% deduction towards personal and living expenses. Even otherwise, adopting the unit system for determining the deduction towards personal expenses, the deceased and the sole dependent can be regarded as two units, leading to the safe inference of 50% deduction towards the deceased's personal expenses.

37. The deceased's age being 22 years, where the applicable multiplier would again be governed by the Table in Paragraph No.40 of the report in Sarla Verma (supra). She would be placed in age bracket of 21-25 years, where the applicable multiplier is '18'. The Tribunal has, therefore, erred in adopting the multiplier of '17'.

38. Amongst the claimants, therefore, the deceased's daughter, who shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the minor claimant' is also entitled to addition of future prospects, which are no longer the preserve of the service class. These are also to be extended to the self-employed or those working on a fixed salary going by the principle laid down by the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company v. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680. In Pranay Sethi (supra), it has been held:

"56. The seminal issue is the fixation of future prospects in cases of deceased who are self-employed or on a fixed salary. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v.

DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] has carved out an exception permitting the claimants to bring materials on record to get the benefit of addition of future prospects. It has not, per se, allowed any future prospects in respect of the said category.

57. Having bestowed our anxious consideration, we are disposed to think when we accept the principle of standardisation, there is really no rationale not to apply the said principle to the self-employed or a person who is on a fixed salary. To follow the doctrine of actual income at the time of death and not to add any amount with regard to future prospects to the income for the purpose of determination of multiplicand would be unjust. The determination of income while computing compensation has to include future prospects so that the method will come within the ambit and sweep of just compensation as postulated under Section 168 of the Act. In case of a deceased who had held a permanent job with inbuilt grant of annual increment, there is an acceptable certainty. But to state that the legal representatives of a deceased who was on a fixed salary would not be entitled to the benefit of future prospects for the purpose of computation of compensation would be inapposite. It is because the criterion of distinction between the two in that event would be certainty on the one hand and staticness on the other. One may perceive that the comparative measure is certainty on the one hand and uncertainty on the other but such a perception is fallacious. It is because the price rise does affect a self-employed person; and that apart there is always an incessant effort to enhance one's income for sustenance. The purchasing capacity of a salaried person on permanent job when increases because of grant of increments and pay revision or for some other change in service conditions, there is always a competing attitude in the private sector to enhance the salary to get better efficiency from the employees. Similarly, a person who is self-employed is bound to garner his resources and raise his charges/fees so that he can live with same facilities. To have the perception that he is likely to remain static and his income to remain stagnant is contrary to the fundamental concept of human attitude which always intends to live with dynamism and move and change with the time. Though it may seem appropriate that there cannot be certainty in addition of future prospects to the existing income unlike in the case of a person having a permanent job, yet the said perception does not really deserve acceptance. We are inclined to think that there can be some degree of difference as regards the percentage that is meant for or applied to in respect of the legal representatives who claim on behalf of the deceased who had a permanent job than a person who is self-employed or on a fixed salary. But not to apply the principle of standardisation on the foundation of perceived lack of certainty would tantamount to remaining oblivious to the marrows of ground reality. And, therefore, degree-test is imperative. Unless the degree-test is applied and left to the parties to adduce evidence to establish, it would be unfair and inequitable. The degree-test has to have the inbuilt concept of percentage. Taking into consideration the cumulative factors, namely, passage of time, the changing society, escalation of price, the change in price index, the human attitude to follow a particular pattern of life, etc., an addition of 40% of the established income of the deceased towards future prospects and where the deceased was below 40 years an addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years would be reasonable.

58. The controversy does not end here. The question still remains whether there should be no addition where the age of the deceased is more than 50 years. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] thinks it appropriate not to add any amount and the same has been approved in Reshma Kumari [Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan, (2013) 9 SCC 65 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 191 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 826]. Judicial notice can be taken of the fact that salary does not remain the same. When a person is in a permanent job, there is always an enhancement due to one reason or the other. To lay down as a thumb rule that there will be no addition after 50 years will be an unacceptable concept. We are disposed to think, there should be an addition of 15% if the deceased is between the age of 50 to 60 years and there should be no addition thereafter. Similarly, in case of self-employed or person on fixed salary, the addition should be 10% between the age of 50 to 60 years. The aforesaid yardstick has been fixed so that there can be consistency in the approach by the tribunals and the courts.”

39. The next point to be considered is whether future prospects, to which the minor claimant is entitled, would be governed by the law laid down in Pranay Sethi or Rule 220-A (3) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short, the Rules of 1998). This issue is no longer res integra in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822, where it is observed:

“9. It is to be noted that the validity of the Rules was not, in any way, questioned in the instant matter and thus the only question that we are called upon to consider is whether in its application, sub-Rule 3(iii) of Rule 220A of the Rules must be given restricted scope or it must be allowed to operate fully.

10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at “just compensation” in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid.

12. We, therefore, reject the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant and affirm the view taken by the Tribunal as well as the High Court and dismiss this appeal without any order as to costs.”

40. It still remains to be examined whether Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998, introduced by Notification No. 777/XXX-4-2011-4(3)-2010 dated 26th September, 2011 i.e. The Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011, would apply retrospectively to an accident that took place prior to the amendment. The issue was answered by a Division Bench of this Court in Sushil Kumar and others v. M/s. Sampark Lojastic Private Limited and others, 2017 (35) LCD 1311. In Sushil Kumar (supra), it was held:

"31. Rule 220-A was inserted in the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 in view of the various decisions of the law courts for providing benefit on account of future prospects of the injured/deceased. It provides for addition of certain percentage of the income of the injured/deceased in his actual income depending upon the age of the injured/deceased for the purposes of determination of the compensation. The aforesaid Rule came into effect on 26.09.2011 after the decision of the claim petition but before filing of the appeal though the accident took place on 08.05.2010 much before the enforcement of the above Rule.

32. It is in view of the above that an argument is being raised that Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident which had taken place on 08.05.2010.

33. In Ram Sarup Vs. Munshi AIR 1963 SC 553 it was laid down that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the rights of the parties.

34. The view expressed above was followed by the Supreme Court in Mula Vs. Godhu AIR 1971 SC 89.

35. In Dayawati Vs. Inderjit AIR 1966 SC 1423 the court had observed as under:-If the new law speaks in language, which expressly or by clear intendment, takes in even pending matters, the court of trial as well as the court of appeal must have regard to an intention so expressed, and the court of appeal may give effect to such a law even after the judgment of the court of first instance.

36. In Amarjit Kaur Vs. Pritam Singh AIR 1974 SC 2068 effect was given to the change in law during the pendency of an appeal as the hearing of an appeal under the procedural law of this country is in the nature of rehearing of the suit by superior court.

37. It was in the light of the above decisions that in Lakshmi Narayan Guin and others Vs. Niranjana Modak AIR 1985 SC 111 it was held that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the right of the parties.

38. The aforesaid decision was followed by a Division Bench of this court in U.P. State Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Madhu Sharma and others, 2003 (4) AWC 2620 which was a case in relation to the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and it was observed that it is apparent that the change in law during the pendency of the original proceedings has to be taken into account so as to cover the rights of the parties.

39. In view of above decision the view expressed by the Division Bench of this court in ICICI Lombard (Supra) is not of good law as it does not take into account the decisions referred to above in holding that the Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident that took place prior to the said date only for the reason that the Rule was not specifically stated to be retrospective in nature."

41. The law laid down by the Division Bench in Sushil Kumar (supra) binds this Court and computation of future prospects is, therefore, to be made in accordance with the Rule 220-A(3) of Rules, 1998, even though the accident happened long before the amendment. Rule 220-A(3) stipulates that where the age of the deceased is less than 40 years, 50% is to be added to his/ her income towards future prospects.

42. There is an issue further raised about non-grant of any compensation by the Tribunal under the conventional heads. Here again, the law down in Pranay Sethi is eloquent, where it has been observed:

“48. This aspect needs to be clarified and appositely stated. The conventional sum has been provided in the Second Schedule to the Act. The said Schedule has been found to be defective as stated by the Court in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] . Recently, in Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy [Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 45 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 384 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 574] it has been reiterated by stating : (SCC p. 80, para 54)

“54. ... we hold that the Second Schedule as was enacted in 1994 has now become redundant, irrational and unworkable due to changed scenario including the present cost of living and current rate of inflation and increased life expectancy.”

49. As far as multiplier or multiplicand is concerned, the same has been put to rest by the judgments of this Court. Para 3 of the Second Schedule also provides for general damages in case of death. It is as follows:

“3. General damages (in case of death):

The following general damages shall be payable in addition to compensation outlined above:

(i)	Funeral expenses	Rs 2000

(ii)	Loss of consortium, if beneficiary is the spouse	Rs 5000
(iii)	Loss of estate	Rs 2500
(iv)	Medical expenses — actual expenses incurred before death supported by bills/vouchers but not exceeding	Rs 15,000”

50. On a perusal of various decisions of this Court, it is manifest that the Second Schedule has not been followed starting from the decision in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] and there has been no amendment to the same. The conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined. As we notice, in different cases different amounts have been granted. A sum of Rs 1,00,000 was granted towards consortium in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . The justification for grant of consortium, as we find from Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] , is founded on the observation as we have reproduced hereinbefore.

51. On the aforesaid basis, the Court has revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads.

52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though Rajesh

[Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167], it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seemly to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads.”

43. The next issue for consideration is compensation that is to be awarded for loss of consortium. This issue fell for consideration before their Lordships of the Supreme Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. v. Nanu Ram alias Chuhru Ram and others, (2018) 18 SCC 130. In Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. (supra), it has been held:

“21. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Pranay Sethi [National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC 680 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 248 : (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 205] dealt with the various heads under which compensation is to be awarded in a death case. One of these heads is loss of consortium. In legal parlance, “consortium” is a compendious term which encompasses “spousal consortium”, “parental consortium”, and “filial consortium”. The right to consortium would include the company, care, help, comfort, guidance, solace and affection of the deceased, which is a loss to his family. With respect to a spouse, it would include sexual relations with the deceased spouse : [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]

21.2. Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of “parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training”.

21.3. Filial consortium is the right of the parents to compensation in the case of an accidental death of a child. An accident leading to the death of a child causes great shock and agony to the parents and family of the deceased. The greatest agony for a parent is to lose their child during their lifetime. Children are valued for their love, affection, companionship and their role in the family unit.

44. In the opinion of this Court, so far as the consortium is concerned, though amongst the claimants, the claimant mother has not been held entitled to any dependency, she has lost her daughter and would, therefore, be entitled to filial consortium. So far as the minor claimant is concerned, she would, of course, be entitled to parental consortium. Amongst the claimants, the deceased's uncle (father's brother), who has not been considered any kind of a dependent of the deceased, is not entitled to anything towards consortium as well. He does not fall under any of the known categories, where compensation for the loss of consortium is to be awarded.

45. Since 50% of the liability for the compensation payable to the claimants was apportioned to the share of the UPSRTC, with whom the claimants have settled their claim fully and finally before the Lok Adalat, whatever compensation is found due on revision, would be payable by the owner and/ or the Insurers to the extent of 50% alone, most of it to the minor claimant, except the consortium, to which the claimant mother would also be entitled. The way this Court has held, whatever compensation towards the 50% of the dependency has been settled between the claimants and the UPSRTC, none of the claimants, except the minor claimant, would be entitled to the said sum of money. Nevertheless, since 50% of the claim apportioned to the UPSRTC has been settled by the claimants through a compromise before the Lok Adalat, accepting a total of Rs.60,000/-, it is very difficult to further safeguard the minor claimant's interest in regard to that part of the compensation. This Court would rest content to hope and trust that the claimant's mother, who is the minor claimant's grandmother, would not tread upon the minor claimant's interest and work to safeguard it, being a higher mother. So much of the part of compensation in consequence of the settlement with the UPSRTC that the deceased's uncle has claimed and realized can also be best left to his own conscience.

46. Since it has been held that compensation is payable in the first instance by the Insurers, the Insurers are liable to satisfy the award to the extent payable by the owner with liberty to recover from the owner through a miscellaneous application to be made before the Tribunal, executing the award.

47. In view of the aforesaid conclusion, compensation payable to the claimants would have to be worked out in the following manner:

(i)	Monthly Income (of the deceased)	=	3000
(ii)	Monthly Income+Future Prospects (monthly income x 50%)	=	4500
			3000+1500
(iii)	Annual Income (of the deceased)	=	54000
	)		deceased) = 4500x12
(iv)	Annual Dependency	=	27000

) Annual Income – 50% deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased = 54000-27000

(v) Total Dependency = = 48600
 Annual Dependency x 0
 Applied Multiplier = 27000x18

(vi) Claimants' entitlement = 11000 ) towards conventional 0 heads = Loss of Estate + Funeral Expenses + dependents' Consortium

The total compensation = 59600
would therefore, work out 0 to a figure of Rs. 486000+
Rs. 110000

Less 50% of the = 29800
compensation apportioned 0
to the share of the UPSRTC
= 596000/2

48. In the result, this appeal is allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded and payable by the owner is enhanced to Rs. 2,98,000/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall be payable in the first instance by the Insurers with liberty to recover from the owner through a miscellaneous application to be made before the Tribunal. The said sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the owner, pursuant to the impugned award, shall be adjusted against the award.

49. The inter se apportionment of compensation ordered by the Tribunal is set aside and substituted by a direction that out of the total compensation, held payable to the claimants, the minor claimant shall be entitled to the whole of it, except a sum of Rs.20,000/- (50% of the filial consortium), which shall be payable to the claimant, Hamidunnisha. The sum of Rs.10,000/- directed to be paid to the claimant, Abdul Khaliq, if already paid, shall be refunded with interest @ 7% per annum to the minor claimant. Likewise, the sum of Rs.25,000/- payable to the claimant, Smt. Hamidunnisha, if paid, shall be refunded to the minor claimant with interest at the same rate, subject to the condition that a sum of Rs.20,000/-, in the event of refund shall be adjusted in favour of the claimant, Smt. Hamidunnisha.

1. This is a claimants' appeal under Section 173 of the Motor Vehicle Act, 1988, seeking enhancement of compensation awarded by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Jhansi in the case of a fatal motor accident.

2. The claim petition, being M.A.C.P. No.315 of 2000, was instituted by Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi, widow of the late S.K. Chaturvedi and Raj Kumar Chaturvedi, son of the late S.K. Chaturvedi, seeking compensation on account of the demise of Sanjay Chaturvedi, who died in a road accident in the night intervening 25/26.07.2000. Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi is the deceased's mother whereas Raj Kumar Chaturvedi is his brother. Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi was arrayed as claimant-petitioner No.1 before the Tribunal and is appellant No.1 before this Court. Raj Kumar Chaturvedi was claimant-petitioner No.2 before the Tribunal and is appellant No.2 before this Court. Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi and Raj Kumar Chaturvedi shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the claimants', unless the context requires a different or individual reference.

3. According to the claimants, in the intervening night 25/26.07.2000 at about half past one, Raj Kumar Chaturvedi was travelling with his brother and one Ankur Lal on board Maruti Car No. UP-93G-0711 from Kanpur to Jhansi. They were bound homewards. The Car was driven by the late Sanjay Kumar Chaturvedi. He was moving on his side according to the rule of the road. As the Car reached near Village Semari, within the local limits of Police Station Moth, District Jhansi, a Truck, bearing registration No. MP-08A-6294, approached from the Jhansi side of the road, driven by its driver at a high speed, negligently and wantonly. The Truck, swerving to the wrong side of the road, hit the Car head on, but on its right side. The impact caused Sanjay and Raj Kumar Chaturvedi, claimant No.2 to sustain grievous injuries. The other passenger on board, Ankur Lal suffered simple injuries. Ankur Lal informed the deceased's home on telephone about the accident. This led members of the deceased's and the injured-claimant's family to reach the spot and conveyed both of them to the Medical College at about half past six in the morning. The two were taken to the emergency facility, where the deceased, who was then alive and the second claimant, Raj Kumar Chaturvedi, were admitted. Both were examined and were in a precarious condition. The family members, finding that the two injured were not receiving suitable treatment and care, moved them to the Sudha Nursing Home. Sanjay was managed at the Sudha Nursing Home until 04.08.2000, when at 7.30 in the evening hours, he was conveyed to the Nirmal Hospital for surgery. During the surgical procedure to take care of certain haemorrhagic injuries in his abdomen, he breathed his last. The second claimant, Raj Kumar Chaturvedi was discharged from the Sudha Nursing Home on 10.08.2000 with plaster cast to his injured limb. It is said that Sanjay Chaturvedi was a healthy man and would earn a sum of Rs.6000/- per month, teaching at the Rajeev Coaching Centre. He would spend the money earned to meet the needs of his family.

4. It is the claimants' case that Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi's husband and Raj Kumar Chaturvedi's father had died an untimely death on 06.04.2000. He was employed as an Executive Engineer with the U.P. Power Corporation Limited. The late Sanjay Chaturvedi had applied for appointment on compassionate grounds and his claim had been accepted. The U.P. Power Corporation Limited had completed the necessary formalities. Sanjay Chaturvedi was on way to be appointed as an Assistant Engineer. He was awaiting his letter of appointment as such with the Parichha Thermal Power Project. Upon appointment to the said post, he would receive initially a salary of Rs.14,750/- per mensem. The claimants have been deprived of the benefits of the said appointment and ought to be compensated on that basis. The deceased's mother had already suffered because of the untimely demise of her husband and had now to face the spectre of her son's death. She had received a severe shock on this account and requires treatment. A sum of Rs.20,000/- was spent during hospitalization and treatment of the deceased. The claimants also prayed for compensation on account of the loss of consortium. A total sum of Rs.21,06,000/- was sought in compensation for Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi and a sum of Rs.9,16,000/- for Raj Kumar Chaturvedi, aggregating a sum of Rs.30,22,000/-, with interest of 15% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization.

5. Ismail Khan, opposite party No.1, is the owner of the offending Truck whereas Iqbal Khan is the driver. They are arrayed as opposite parties Nos.1 and 2 to the claim petition and respondent Nos.1 and 2 to the appeal. Ismail Khan, shall hereinafter be referred to as 'the owner' and Iqbal Khan, 'the driver'. The offending Truck was insured with The New India Assurance Company Limited through its General Manager, Civil Lines, Jhansi. They are the insurers of the offending Truck and shall hereinafter be called 'the Insurers'.

6. A joint written statement was filed on behalf of the owner and the driver, where the case in the claim petition was generally denied. In the additional pleas, it was asserted that the accident did not involve the offending Truck at all. The claimants have falsely set up the accident, involving the offending Truck. The ill-fated car had collided with some other vehicle, leading to Sanjay's death. Also, it was pleaded that the compensation claimed is exaggerated. The driver did not cause any accident. On the date of the accident, the offending Truck was insured with the Insurers.

7. The Insurers filed their own written statement, generally denying the claim. They have said in the additional pleas that it is incorrect to say that Sanjay Chaturvedi was a healthy man prior to the accident or that he was earning a sum of Rs.6000/- per month, working as a coaching master. The compensation claimed is inflated. The offending Truck was being driven by an unauthorized man. There was contributory negligence on the part of both the drivers. The Maruti Car's owner and its insurers have not been impleaded. The deceased was not aged 31 years, nor was he gainfully employed. He did not have an income of Rs.6000/- per month. The Maruti Car was driven by an unauthorized man. The claim, according to the Insurers, deserved to be rejected.

8. On the pleadings of parties, the following issues were framed (translated into English from Hindi):

“(1) Whether on 25/26.07.2000 in the night at about 1.30, the son/ brother of the claimants, Sanjay Kumar Chaturvedi was proceeding on his Car, bearing registration No. UP-93G-0711 at a controlled speed and on his side, when, near Village Semari, within the local limits of Police Station Moth, Truck No. MP-08A-6294, proceeding from the Jhansi end of the road, driven by opposite party No.2 at a high speed, negligently and wantonly, moved to the wrong side of the road and hit the Maruti Car on the right side head on, leading the deceased, Sanjay and claimant No.2 to sustain grievous injuries and the other passenger, Ankur Lal simple injuries and that during treatment, he (Sanjay) died?*

(2) Whether on the date of the said accident, the driver of the said Truck had a valid driving licence? If yes, its effect?

(3) Whether on the date of the said accident, the said Truck was insured with the Insurance Company/ opposite party No.3 under a valid insurance policy? If yes, its effect?

(4) Whether the claimants are entitled to receive any compensation? If yes, how much and from whom?”

*[added by Court for clarification's sake]

9. The claimants have filed through a list of documents, bearing paper No.8C1, a photostat copy of the FIR, medical report, discharge ticket, High School certificate, B.E. Degree, certificate from Rajeev Coaching Centre, application form, and a notarized copy of the death certificate. Through another list of documents, paper No.35C1, certified copies of the FIR, charge sheet, technical report, a notarized copy of the death certificate, panchayatnama, papers summary, investigation report, cash memos and a notarized copy of the driving licence relating to the late Sanjay Chaturvedi, were brought on record. Through a list, bearing paper No.31C2, a photostat copy of the injury report, showing the injuries sustained by Sanjay was filed on record. Still another list of documents, bearing paper No. 44C1, carries along with it the original certificate of pay dated 20.09.2000. Along with a list of documents, paper No. 57C1, a certified copy of the charge-sheet has been brought on record. Through another list, 68C1, certified copies of the statement of Raj Kumar has been filed, besides policy cover note No. 60112, bearing paper No.75-Ga and photostat copy of the driving licence No. 1-8/99/SUP-Va-1-262/96 (paper No.76-Ga).

10. The claimants examined in support of their case, PW-1 Ankur Lal, PW-2 Phool Chand, PW-3 Rajeev Gupta, PW-4 Madhukar Chaturvedi and PW-5, Raj Kumar Chaturvedi.

11. Issue No.1 was decided in favour of the claimants, whereas Issues Nos.2 and 3 were decided in favour of the owner and against the Insurers. In this appeal, the only issue pressed by parties is about the quantum of compensation, that is to say, Issue No.4.

12. Heard Mr. Ramanuj Pandey, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Pervez Husain Khan, learned Counsel for the claimants and Mr. S.D. Ojha, Advocate appearing for the Insurers. No one has appeared on behalf of the owner and the driver.

13. The Tribunal has apparently disbelieved the salary certificate issued by the Rajeev Coaching Centre dated 20.09.2000, bearing paper No.45C2, which shows the deceased's monthly salary as

Rs.6000/-. The said income for the deceased has been disbelieved without any cogent finding and merely by referring to submissions advanced on behalf of the Insurers. All that is said for a finding by the Tribunal about the deceased's income is that there is no authentic proof on record that the deceased was about to be appointed as an Assistant Engineer with the U.P. State Electricity Board. It has been remarked by the Tribunal that all that is brought on record to prove the prospects of the deceased's appointment is his application made for the purpose. However, there are no orders of the senior departmental officers to show that the deceased was indeed about to be appointed.

14. It has then been remarked that according to the medical papers, the deceased's age was about 28-30 years. There is then a cryptic finding by the Tribunal, based on a very illogical assumption, that the deceased's income would be Rs.24,000/- a year. So far as Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi, the deceased's mother is concerned, it has been opined that she is aged about 50 years. Raj Kumar Chaturvedi is the deceased's brother. There is nothing to show, in the opinion of the Tribunal, that Raj Kumar was dependent upon the deceased.

15. The Tribunal has referred to a decision of the Supreme Court in Gyan Chand Jain and others v. Permanand and others, 2003 (1) TAC 490, where, in the case of death of a 26 year old unmarried man, the mother and the father being 48 and 55 years, respectively, a multiplier of '12' was considered to be appropriate. The Tribunal has adopted the said multiplier. Assuming the deceased's income to be Rs.24,000/- per annum, one-third has been deducted towards personal and living expenses a and two-thirds considered the annual dependency available to the deceased's mother. Adopting a multiplier of '12', dependency has been worked out at a sum of Rs.1,92,000/-. To this has been added a sum of Rs.2000/- towards funeral expenses and Rs.2500/- towards loss of estate. In this manner, the Tribunal has arrived at the figure of Rs.1,96,500/- payable in compensation to the deceased's mother along with 8% interest from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. In the award made, a sum of Rs.50,000/- has been ordered to be paid to the claimant, Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi through an account payee cheque, drawn on a nationalized bank and the balance directed to be invested in a fixed deposit with a nationalized bank for a period of three years, the quarterly interest whereon would be payable to the deceased's mother. The claim of the deceased's brother has been rejected.

16. Upon hearing learned Counsel for the parties, as already remarked hereinabove, this Court finds the reasons to disbelieve the deceased's claimed income to be hardly there and whatever reasons have been given, they are absolutely cryptic and laconic. The claimants have placed a certificate from the Coaching Centre, where the deceased taught, showing his income to be Rs.6000/- a month. The fact that the salary register also showed the owner of the Coaching Centre receiving the same salary, does not discredit the authenticity of the payment made towards salary to the deceased by the Coaching Centre. In his examination-in-chief, PW-3 Rajeev Gupta has proved the salary certificate and payment of salary in the sum of Rs.6000/- per month to the deceased. He has proved his signatures on the certificate dated 20.09.2000. In his cross-examination, no doubt, PW-3 has admitted that the Coaching Centre is not registered and that he has not brought the account register or the balance sheets for the past three years. He has, nevertheless, stated that he pays income tax, but said that he has not brought along the income tax assessment for the last two years. The witness has generally supported the fact that Sanjay Kumar Chaturvedi taught in the named coaching institute, and that the register and salary certificate were genuine.

17. It is common to find in small-time or young coaching centres irregular maintenance of records. At the time, to which the incident relates, non-payment of income tax by many a small private enterprise was not an uncommon phenomenon. What is to be seen is that looking to the qualifications of the deceased, the salary claimed to have been received by him from the Coaching Centre is not at all an exaggerated figure. Judicial notice can be taken of the fact that for some decades past, there are coaching centres galore that have almost overtaken the formal system of education, wherein people do not repose much trust, particularly, when preparing to write certain competitive admission tests, like those for admission to engineering courses etc. For the self-employed in the unorganized sector, some kind of assessment about the income has to be done, based on their education and circumstances.

18. The deceased, as already noted, was an engineering graduate and it is believable that he was teaching at the Rajeev Coaching Centre, a fact proved by PW-3. Since there are no records, like balance-sheets or account register for the Coaching Centre produced, besides the income tax returns or assessments, this Court considers it safe to hold the deceased's income to be a sum of Rs.5000/- per month. It is, accordingly, held. Given the monthly income of the deceased, the annual income would be Rs.60,000/-.

19. The Tribunal has erred in deducting a one-third towards and personal and living expenses of the deceased. The deceased was a bachelor, and going by the principles with regard to deduction towards personal and living expenses of the bachelors, as laid down by the Supreme Court in Sarla Verma (Smt) v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121, 50% of the income has to be deducted towards personal and living expenses; not 'one-third'. This Court must say here that the deceased's brother, who is a matured and independent man, is in no manner one of his dependents. The finding of the Tribunal on this score is affirmed.

20. The Tribunal has applied a multiplier of '12' going by the claimant's age, who is the deceased's mother. The deceased was clearly aged, according to his High School Certificate, 30 years, 9 months 25 days, as on the date of his demise. The principle governing the reckoning of age beyond completed years, with added months, has received the attention of the Supreme Court in Shashikala and others v. Ganga-lakshammamma and another, (2015) 9 SCC 150. In Shashikala (supra), it has been observed:

"16. Insofar as appropriate multiplier, the date of birth of the deceased as per driving licence was 16-6-1961. On the date of accident i.e. 14-12-2006, the deceased was aged 45 years 5 months and 28 days and the Tribunal has taken the age as 46 years. Since the deceased has completed only 45 years, the High Court has rightly taken the age of the deceased as 45 years and adopted multiplier of 14 which is the appropriate multiplier and the same is maintained. Total loss of dependency is calculated at Rs 16,82,310 (Rs 1,20,165 × 14)."

21. A Division Bench of the Karnataka High Court in Branch Manager, Future General India Insurance Company Limited, Bengaluru v. Varsha S.L., 2019 SCC OnLine Kar 3498, has held:

"44. The next controversy is with regard to the appropriate multiplier to be applied in the instant case. As noted above, the contention of Sri A.N. Krishnaswamy, Learned Counsel for the Insurance Company is that the deceased was 40 years 7 months 5 days and therefore, he was 41 years and not 40 years and hence, the multiplier which is applicable for the age group 41 to 45 years being '14' had to be applied in the instant case, but the Tribunal has applied the multiplier of '15', which is for the age group of 35-40 years.

45. The contra submission of Learned Counsel for the claimants is that the completed age has to be taken into consideration for the purpose of applying the multiplier and not the running age. In the instant case, the deceased Ethendranath had completed 40 years and not 41 years. That he maybe 40 years and few months thereafter, but that does not mean that he had completed 41 years. Hence, the contention of Learned Counsel for the claimants is that multiplier '15' has been rightly applied by the Tribunal."

22. More recently, a learned Single Judge of the Kerala High Court in P.O. Meera and another v. Ananda P. Naik and others, 2022 SCC OnLine Ker 546 had occasion to consider the issue, where it has been held:

“33. Sri. Rajan P. Kaliyath argued that since Madhavan had completed the age of 50 years and was running 51, the multiplier of ‘11’ adopted by the Tribunal is correct. He also contended that, if the above interpretation is not followed, there would be a vacuum in the age group between 50 - 51 years. The argument may sound attractive at the first blush, but is hard to be accepted for the following reasons.

37. A reading of the table in Sarla Verma leaves no room for any speculation that it is only when the deceased/injured completes the age of 51 years, the multiplier would shift from ‘13’ to ‘11’ and not when the deceased/injured attains the age of 50 years and runs the said age till the previous night of his 51st birthday. (Read the interpretation given by the Honourable Supreme Court in Prabhu Dayal Sesma v. State of Rajasthan [(1986) 4 SCC 59 on the Indian Majority Act, 1875 and this Court in Jaison V. George v. State of Kerala [2019 (5) KHC 115] on the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2005, while computing the age of a person). In other words, the sine qua non to select the multiplier is the attainment of the specified age mentioned in the table and not the running of the age into the next group. It is also apposite to note, in Pranay Sethi, the age for awarding future prospects is segregated into three groups i.e., 16 - 39, 40 - 49 and 50 - 59. Therefore, if the argument of the learned Counsel for the Insurer is to be accepted, the same vacuum would also arise at the ages of 25, 30, 35, 40, 50, 55, 60 and 65 in selecting the multiplier and the ages of 39, 49 and 59 for awarding future prospects.

This Court is bound to follow the law declared by the Honourable Supreme Court as enshrined under Article 141 of the Constitution of India and not to give a different interpretation or tinker with the well settled enunciation.”

23. It would, thus, be evident that the deceased, who had, going by his High School Certificate, not completed the age of 31 years and was about two months shy of that age, cannot be regarded as 31 years. He has to be accepted as 30 years old.

24. The applicable multiplier for the age bracket of 26-30 years, as laid down in the table in Paragraph No.40 of the report in Sarla Verma (supra) is '17'. There is, of course, no basis in law to apply a multiplier based on the parents' age. That principle has been given up long ago and Sarla Verma is an authority on the point, which has universally been followed for the choice of multiplier. The Tribunal, therefore, clearly erred in adopting a multiplier of '12', which ought to be '17'.

25. The next question to be considered is about the future prospects of the deceased, which has been urged by the claimants. According to the decision of the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company v. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680, future prospects are admissible in cases of persons, who are self-employed or those working on fixed salary. It is no longer the law that future prospects are reserved for the salaried class in government services alone or those employed in the lucrative private sector. In this connection, reference may be made to the holding in Pranay Sethi (supra), where it has been observed:

“56. The seminal issue is the fixation of future prospects in cases of deceased who are self-employed or on a fixed salary. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] has carved out an exception permitting the claimants to bring materials on record to get the benefit of addition of future prospects. It has not, per se, allowed any future prospects in respect of the said category.

57. Having bestowed our anxious consideration, we are disposed to think when we accept the principle of standardisation, there is really no rationale not to apply the said principle to the self-employed or a person who is on a fixed salary. To follow the doctrine of actual income at the time of death and not to add any amount with regard to future prospects to the income for the purpose of determination of multiplicand would be unjust. The determination of income while computing compensation has to include future prospects so that the method will come within the ambit and sweep of just compensation as postulated under Section 168 of the Act. In case of a deceased who had held a permanent job with inbuilt grant of annual increment, there is an acceptable certainty. But to state that the legal representatives of a deceased who was on a fixed salary would not be entitled to the benefit of future prospects for the purpose of computation of compensation would be inapposite. It is because the criterion of distinction between the two in that event would be certainty on the one hand and staticness on the other. One may perceive that the comparative measure is certainty on the one hand and uncertainty on the other but such a perception is fallacious. It is because the price rise does affect a self-employed person; and that apart there is always an incessant effort to enhance one's income for sustenance. The purchasing capacity of a salaried person on permanent job when increases because of grant of increments and pay revision or for some other change in service conditions, there is always a competing attitude in the private sector to enhance the salary to get better efficiency from the employees. Similarly, a person who is self-employed is bound to garner his resources and raise his charges/fees so that he can live with same facilities. To have the perception that he is likely to remain static and his income to remain stagnant is contrary to the fundamental concept of human attitude which always intends to live with dynamism and move and change with the time. Though it may seem appropriate that there cannot be certainty in addition of future prospects to the existing income unlike in the case of a person having a permanent job, yet the said perception does not really deserve acceptance. We are inclined to think that there can be some degree of difference as regards the percentage that is meant for or applied to in respect of the legal representatives who claim on behalf of the deceased who had a permanent job than a person who is self-employed or on a fixed salary. But not to apply the principle of standardisation on the foundation of perceived lack of certainty would tantamount to remaining oblivious to the marrows of ground reality. And, therefore, degree-test is imperative. Unless the degree-test is applied and left to the parties to adduce evidence to establish, it would be unfair and inequitable. The degree-test has to have the inbuilt concept of percentage. Taking into consideration the cumulative factors, namely, passage of time, the changing society, escalation of price, the change in price index, the human attitude to follow a particular pattern of life, etc., an addition of 40% of the established income of the deceased towards future prospects and where the deceased was below 40 years an addition of 25% where the deceased was between the age of 40 to 50 years would be reasonable.

58. The controversy does not end here. The question still remains whether there should be no addition where the age of the deceased is more than 50 years. Sarla Verma [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] thinks it appropriate not to add any amount and the same has been approved in Reshma Kumari [Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan, (2013) 9 SCC 65 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 191 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 826] . Judicial notice can be taken of the fact that salary does not remain the same. When a person is in a permanent job, there is always an enhancement due to one reason or the other. To lay down as a thumb rule that there will be no addition after 50 years will be an unacceptable concept. We are disposed to think, there should be an addition of 15% if the deceased is between the age of 50 to 60 years and there should be no addition thereafter. Similarly, in case of self-employed or person on fixed salary, the addition should be 10% between the age of 50 to 60 years. The aforesaid yardstick has been fixed so that there can be consistency in the approach by the tribunals and the courts.”

26. In the State of Uttar Pradesh, future prospects are governed by Rule 220-A (3) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short, the Rules of 1998) as held by the Supreme Court in New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822. Therefore, the computation has to be made in accordance with the Rules of 1998, and not the principles in Pranay Sethi.

27. After the decision of the Division Bench of this Court in Sushil Kumar and others v. M/s. Sampark Lojastic Private Limited and others, 2017 (35) LCD 1311, Rule 220-A (3) of the Rules of 1998, that was introduced by Notification No. 777/XXX-4- 2011-4(3)-2010 dated 26 September, 2011 i.e. The Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011, is applicable retrospectively to an accident that happened much before the amendment. Rule 220-A (3) provides for addition of 50% of the deceased's income towards future prospects, where the deceased was aged less than 40 years. In the present case, the claimant, Smt. Urmila Chaturvedi is, therefore, held entitled to add 50% to the deceased's income.

28. The issue of award of compensation under the conventional heads was again the subject matter of consideration in Pranay Sethi, where it has been held:

“48. This aspect needs to be clarified and appositely stated. The conventional sum has been provided in the Second Schedule to the Act. The said Schedule has been found to be defective as stated by the Court in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] . Recently, in Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy [Puttamma v.K.L. Narayana Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 45 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 384 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 574] it has been reiterated by stating : (SCC p. 80, para 54)

“54. ... we hold that the Second Schedule as was enacted in 1994 has now become redundant, irrational and unworkable due to changed scenario including the present cost of living and current rate of inflation and increased life expectancy.”

49. As far as multiplier or multiplicand is concerned, the same has been put to rest by the judgments of this Court. Para 3 of the Second Schedule also provides for general damages in case of death. It is as follows:

“3. General damages (in case of death):

The following general damages shall be payable in addition to compensation outlined above:

(i)	Funeral expenses	Rs 2000
(ii)	Loss of consortium, if beneficiary is the spouse	Rs 5000
(iii)	Loss of estate	Rs 2500
(iv)	Medical expenses — actual expenses incurred before death supported by bills/vouchers but not exceeding	Rs 15,000”

50. On a perusal of various decisions of this Court, it is manifest that the Second Schedule has not been followed starting from the decision in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] and there has been no amendment to the same. The conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined. As we notice, in different cases different amounts have been granted. A sum of Rs 1,00,000 was granted towards consortium in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . The justification for grant of consortium, as we find from Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] , is founded on the observation as we have reproduced hereinbefore.

51. On the aforesaid basis, the Court has revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads.

52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167] , it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seems to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads."

29. There is then the question of compensation to be awarded on account of loss of consortium. Here, the deceased was claimant No.1's son and, therefore, she would be entitled to the award of filial consortium in accordance with the holding of the Supreme Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. v. Nanu Ram alias Chuhru Ram and others, (2018) 18 SCC 130.

30. In view of the aforesaid conclusion, the compensation payable to the claimant-mother in this appeal is revised and shall be determined in the following manner:

(i)	Monthly Income (of the deceased)	=	5000
(ii)	Annual Income (of the deceased) = 5000x12	=	60000
(iii)	Annual Income+Future Prospects (annual income x 50%) = 60000+30000	=	90000
(iv)	Annual Dependency	=	45000

	Annual Income – 50% deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased = 90000-45000
(v)	Total Dependency = = Annual Dependency x Applied Multiplier = 45000 x 17	765000
(vi)	Claimant's entitlement towards conventional heads = Loss of Estate + Funeral Expenses + dependents' Consortium =15000+15000+4 0000	70000
	The total compensation would therefore, work out to a figure of Rs.765000+ Rs.70000	= 835000

31. In the result, this appeal is allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded enhanced to Rs.8,35,000/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the Insurers, pursuant to the impugned award or the interim orders passed by this Court, shall be adjusted against it. The direction of the Tribunal for investment of the awarded compensation in fixed deposit shall stand set aside and the entire compensation, as enhanced by this

32. Costs easy.

THE HON'BLE IRSHAD ALI, J.

Writ-A No. 2874 of 2010

Suresh Kumar ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Petitioner:
A.P. Singh, Amarendra Pratap Singh

Counsel for the Respondent:
C.S.C.

A. Service Law – Regularisation – U.P. Collection Peon Service Rules, 2004 - Rule 5(1) - 15 - Group –D Employees Service Rules, 1985 - U.P. Collection Peons Service (Second Amendment) Rules, 2016 - 2nd proviso to substituted Rule 5(ii) - The post of Seasonal Collection Peon is a Class IV / Group -D post under the service of the State, therefore, the minimum age limit prescribed for Class IV post employees in Group -D Employees Service Rules, 1985 shall be applicable and accordingly, in no manner the services rendered by the petitioner prior to his attaining the age of majority can be taken into account. (Para 27)

In the present case, it is clear that the petitioner has worked only for a period of one year three months and six days in Tehsil BKT. He worked as Seasonal Collection Peon between the period 11-02-1991 and 11-03-1991 for a period of one month and eighteen days in Tehsil Malihabad. The date of birth of the petitioner as mentioned in High School Certificate is 23-03-1977, therefore, at the time when he started working at Tehsil Malihabad, he was minor and thus, the period of service rendered by him at Tehsil Malihabad cannot be calculated in the working period of the petitioner, therefore, the petitioner has worked for 3 & 1/2 fasali years. Even if the period provided herein above is also included in the working of the petitioner, the seniority position of the petitioner will not be altered. (Para 26, 27)

It is apparent on perusal of record that persons junior to the petitioner have not been considered and appointed on the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota. In the final seniority list of Seasonal Collection Peons of Tehsil BKT dated 02.09.2009, name of the petitioner finds place at Sr. No. 13 and the person, namely, Ram Kishore, who is at Sr. No. 12 in the said list, has worked more than 01 year 05 months and 01 day than the petitioner, therefore, services rendered by the petitioner even including the services rendered at Tehsil Malihabad i.e. 48 days is less than him, therefore, there appears to be no irregularity or illegality in the impugned order dated 03.09.2009. (Para 28)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Present petition challenges order dated 03.09.2009, passed by Respondent No. 2 and prays for direction to the respondents to consider afresh and appoint the petitioner on the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota by counting the service rendered by him as Seasonal Collection Peon in Tehsil Malihabad, District Lucknow from the due date with all benefits of service.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Sri A.P. Singh, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Amarendra Pratap Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Additional C.S.C. for the respondent - State.

2. By means of present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for issuance of a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned order dated 03.09.2009, contained as Annexure-1 to the writ petition with a further prayer for issuance of a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents, particularly, respondent No.2 to consider afresh and appoint the petitioner on the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota by counting the service rendered by him as Seasonal Collection Peon in Tehsil Malihabad, District Lucknow from the due date with all benefits of service.

3. Brief facts giving rise to the present writ petition are as under:

Sr. No.	Relevant Facts of the Case
a.	The petitioner was engaged as Seasonal Collection Peon in Tehsil Malihabad, District Lucknow on 11.02.1991.
b.	In the year 1995, a new Tehsil known as Bakshi Ka Talab (BKT), Lucknow was carved out, as a result of which, the area of the petitioner, where he was working as Seasonal Collection Peon fell in the area of newly created Tehsil.
c.	The petitioner worked as Seasonal Collection Peon in Tehsil BKT and had completed more than four fasals. Therefore, he is fully eligible for regular appointment to the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota.
d.	On 14.07.2008, Writ Petition No.6793 (S/S) of 2007 was filed by the petitioner, which was finally disposed of by commanding the respondents to consider the name of the petitioner for regular appointment to the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota.

e.	On 05.02.2010, a contempt petition was filed by the petitioner, which was dismissed as infructuous as respondent No.2 had passed the order rejecting the claim of the petitioner for regular appointment to the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota.
f.	Vide impugned order dated 03.09.2009, respondent No.2 rejected the claim of the petitioner for regular appointment on the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota.
g.	Hence, the present writ petition has been filed before this Court.

4. Submission of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner is that the impugned order dated 03.09.2009 has been passed without any rhyme and reason and is malafide in nature and without any authority of law. He submitted that the impugned order is not legally sustainable as respondent No.2 has not computed the service rendered by the petitioner as Seasonal Collection Peon in Tehsil Malihabad, District Lucknow, however, the same is obligatory in view of Rule 15 of U.P. Collection Peon Service Rules, 2004.

5. He next submitted that the impugned order dated 03.09.2009 has been passed on surmises and conjectures and on the basis of imagination. He submitted that the petitioner is entitled for consideration of his claim for regular appointment on the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota by counting the services rendered by him as Seasonal Collection Peon.

6. He further submitted that the persons junior to the petitioner have been considered and appointed on the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota, however, regular appointment has been denied to the petitioner on extraneous consideration.

7. On the other hand, learned Additional CSC submitted that on 03.09.2009, a selection committee was constituted, which considered the cases of Seasonal Collection Peons for selection as Collection Peons and passed the impugned order dated 03.09.2009, which is just and valid.

8. He further submitted that in Tehsil BKT and District Lucknow, there are 29 sanctioned posts of Collection Peons out of which, 18 Collection Peons were working at the time of meeting of the said selection committee. Out of 18 working Collection Peons, one Collection Peon, namely, Sri Rajvir is in jail and 6 Collection Peons are working under the orders of this Court. 12 Collection Peons have been appointed through direct recruitment and one directly recruited Collection Peon, namely, Lt. Sri Pramod Kumar died and on his place, his wife Smt. Pratima Tewari has been granted appointment.

9. He next submitted that under the provisions contained under Rule 5(1) of Rules of 2004, 50% posts of Collection Peons are reserved for Seasonal Collection Amins. Rule 5(ii) provides that recruitment to the posts in service shall be made from amongst such seasonal Collection Peons, who have worked satisfactorily for at least four fasalies and whose age on the first day of July of the year in which selection is made not exceeds 45 years.

10. He further submitted that as per relevant government orders, 3% of the post of sanctioned strength of Collection Peons shall have been kept vacant and accordingly, in Tehsil BKT one post of Collection Peon is kept vacant, therefore, there are 10 vacancies against which selection has to be made.

11. He submitted that the duly constituted selection committee has considered the case of the petitioner for selection on the post of Collection Peon and found that the petitioner had worked for the following period:

Service Period	Working Period	Fasali Years
23-02-1996 to 31-02-1996	0 year - 1 month - 06 days	1/2
25-05-1996 to 30-06-1996 01-09-1996 to 30-09-1996	0 year - 01 month - 27 days 0 year - 01 month - 0 days	1/2
06-01-1997 to 31-03-1997	0 year - 02 months - 27 days	1/2
05-08-1997 to 30-09-1997	0 year - 01 month - 27 days	1/2
16-01-1998 to 31-03-1998	0 year - 02 months - 16 days	1/2
14-07-2005 to 31-08-2005	0 year - 01 month - 13 days	1/2

Total:	01 years - 03 months - 06 days	3 & 1/2

He submitted that from aforesaid chart, it is clear that the petitioner has worked only for a period of one year three months and six days in Tehsil BKT. He worked as Seasonal Collection Peon between the period 11-02-1991 and 11-03-1991 for a period of one month and eighteen days in Tehsil Malihabad.

12. He further submitted that the date of birth of the petitioner as mentioned in High School Certificate is 23-03-1977, therefore, at the time when the petitioner started working at Tehsil Malihabad, he was minor and thus, the period of service rendered by him at Tehsil Malihabad cannot be calculated in the working period of the petitioner, therefore, the petitioner has worked for 3 & 1/2 fasali years.

13. In addition to aforesaid, he submitted that even if the said period is also included in the working of the petitioner, the seniority position of the petitioner will not be altered. The post of Seasonal Collection Peon is a Class IV / Group -D post under the service of the State, therefore, the minimum age limit prescribed for Class IV post employees in Group -D Employees Service Rules, 1985 shall be applicable and accordingly, in no manner the services rendered by the petitioner prior to his attaining the age of majority can be taken into account. He submitted that the writ petition being misconceived, is liable to be dismissed.

14. He further submitted that the submission of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner that persons junior to the petitioner have been considered for regularization is also misconceived. In this regard, he has drawn attention of this Court towards Annexure-CA2.

15. He next submitted that in the final seniority list of Seasonal Collection Peons of Tehsil BKT dated 02.09.2009, name of the petitioner finds place at Sr. No.13 and submitted that the person, namely, Ram Kishore, who is at Sr. No.12 in the said list, has worked more than 01 year 05 months and 01 day than the petitioner and therefore, services rendered by the petitioner even including the services rendered at Tehsil Malihabad i.e. 48 days is less than him, therefore, no benefit can be granted to the petitioner.

16. He lastly submitted that since there are 10 posts of Seasonal Collection Peon and if regular selection on 10 posts is made, the petitioner will not be able to be regularized finding place at Sr. No.13 in the seniority list. He submitted that as per Government Order dated 08.11.2006, which provides criteria for regularization of Seasonal Collection Peons provides that the seniority list of Seasonal Collection Peons shall be prepared on the basis of their working days and it further provides that the meaning of satisfactory service is average 70% recovery in last four fasali years and since case of the petitioner is not covered under the said government order, the selection committee has rightly not recommended the name of the petitioner for regular selection.

17. In rebuttal, on the basis of rejoinder affidavit, submission of learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner is that the services rendered by the petitioner at Tehsil Malihabad has not been taken into account and his candidature has been wrongly rejected by the selection committee. He further submitted that there is no minimum or maximum age limit for engagement of Seasonal Collection Peon. He added that if the services rendered by the petitioner at Tehsil Malihabad are taken into account, it will come to 509 days and on the basis of the same, case of the petitioner is liable to be considered.

18. He further submitted that the petitioner got information through Right to Information Act, 2005 that there are 11 posts of Collection Peon available under 50% quota. He submitted that the statutory rules cannot be overridden by the Government Order and selection of the petitioner should be made on the basis of statutory rules.

19. In reply to submissions advanced by learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner, learned Additional CSC submitted that in the 2nd proviso to substituted Rule 5(ii) of U.P. Collection Peons Service (Second Amendment) Rules, 2016 it is provided that, "
..... provided further that all the existing vacancies available on the date of commencement of U.P. Collection Peon's Service (Second Amendment) Rules, 2016 shall, only as one time measure, be filled by selection through the selection committee from amongst Seasonal Collection Peons, who possess the requisite qualifications prescribed in clause (ii)"

In furtherance of the said provision the final seniority list at the District Level was prepared and published, wherein the petitioner's name finds place at Sr. No.74. He submitted that the petitioner has not filed any objection against the said seniority list, therefore, the same attained finality in the eyes of law.

20. He further submitted that in Clause 2 of Government Order dated 08.09.2010, it has been prescribed that in future no further recruitment on Class-IV post (apart from Technical posts of Junior Category) would be made and all the Class-IV post falling vacant would be filled by out sourcing only. He submitted that a prohibition on all the appointments (except those to be made through Public Service Commission and under order passed by Hon'ble Court) was imposed vide Government Order dated 15.03.2012 with immediate effect. Subsequently, a relaxation from the Government Orders dated 08.09.2010 and 15.03.2012 was provided vide Government Order dated 07.10.2016 regarding recruitment of Seasonal Collection Peons on the post of Collection Peons to be made under regularization quota as provided in U.P. Collection Peon's Service Rules, 2004 as amended in year 2016. Thereafter, a Government Order dated 30.10.2017 was also issued, whereby the age relaxation provided under Government Order dated 30.05.2008 was quashed.

21. Thereafter, the Tehsildars of the District Lucknow sought guidance from the State Government for regularization of Seasonal Collection Peons as Collection Peons vide letter dated 14.03.2018 and a reminder in this regard was also sent on 07.04.2018 and in pursuance thereof, the State Government vide letter dated 13.06.2018 called a meeting on 10.04.2018 under the chairmanship of the Chief Secretary, wherein it was decided that the Seasonal Collection Amit is a Class - IV post and it was provided earlier that the Class - IV posts would be filled by way of out sourcing only. The U.P. Collection Peon's Service Rules, 2016 and Government Order dated 07.10.2016 be quashed and the Class - IV posts be filled in accordance with Government Order dated 08.02.2010.

22. In reply to aforesaid submissions, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner submitted that regularization of Seasonal Collection Peons is to be made at Tehsil level and not at District level. He submitted that Government of U.P. vide Government Order dated 26.02.2019 has provided that rules continues to be in force and Government Order dated 07.10.2016 continues to hold field and rules cannot be changed by executive orders. He submitted that the State Government vide Government Orders dated 27.02.2019 and 22.02.2019 issued directions for regularization of Seasonal Collection Peons in accordance with rules and granted relaxation in age and the petitioner has not crossed the upper age limit.

23. In reply to aforesaid submissions, learned Additional C.S.C. on the basis of supplementary counter affidavit dated 14.11.2022 submitted that a notification dated 05.10.2016 has been issued by the State Government providing that 100% regularization of Collection Peons will be made by selection through selection committee as a one time measure and in pursuance thereof, on the basis of recommendations of selection committee, selection of 48 Seasonal Collection Peons has been made on 10.12.2020 and in respect of regularization of 50% Collection Peons under the provisions contained in the rules, the consideration of the same is possible only by the selection committee constituted at district level.

24. He further submitted that the petitioner has worked on different dates and his name finds place at Sr. No.74 in the district level seniority list and in pursuance of Rules of 2016, the proceeding for 100% regularization on 48 posts of Collection Peons has been made and available Seasonal Collection Peons up to Sr. No.62 in the seniority list have been regularized.

25. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

26. On overall consideration of the matter and on perusal of material on record, it is reflected that from the chart narrated above, it is clear that the petitioner has worked only for a period of one year three months and six days in Tehsil BKT. He worked as Seasonal Collection Peon between the period 11-02-1991 and 11-03-1991 for a period of one month and eighteen days in Tehsil Malihabad. The date of birth of the petitioner as mentioned in High School Certificate is 23-03-1977, therefore, at the time when he started working at Tehsil Malihabad, he was minor and thus, the period of service rendered by him at Tehsil Malihabad cannot be calculated in the working period of the petitioner, therefore, the petitioner has worked for 3 & 1/2 fasali years.

27. Even if the period provided herein above is also included in the working of the petitioner, the seniority position of the petitioner will not be altered. The post of Seasonal Collection Peon is a Class IV / Group -D post under the service of the State, therefore, the minimum age limit prescribed for Class IV post employees in Group -D Employees Service Rules, 1985 shall be applicable and accordingly, in no manner the services rendered by the petitioner prior to his attaining the age of majority can be taken into account.

28. The objection taken by learned Senior counsel for the petitioner that persons junior to the petitioner have been considered and appointed on the post of Collection Peon under 50% quota, it is apparent on perusal of record that in the final seniority list of Seasonal Collection Peons of Tehsil BKT dated 02.09.2009, name of the petitioner finds place at Sr. No.13 and the person, namely, Ram Kishore, who is at Sr. No.12 in the said list, has worked more than 01 year 05 months and 01 day than the petitioner, therefore, services rendered by the petitioner even including the services rendered at Tehsil Malihabad i.e. 48 days is less than him, therefore, there appears to be no irregularity or illegality in the impugned order dated 03.09.2009, contained as Annexure-1 to the writ petition.

29. The writ petition lacks merit and is hereby dismissed.

A. Service Law – Suspension - Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999 -Rule 4 - Uttar Pradesh Secondary Education Service Commission (Removal of Difficulties) Order 1981 - Uttar Pradesh Secondary Education (Services Selection Boards) Act, 1982 - Sections 18 & 33-C(2)(a) - It is the duty of the State Government to find out illegal wealth accumulated by a government employee during his/her service period and take appropriate action against such an employee. (Para 22)

Considering the allegations leveled against the petitioner and also taking note of his status, reach and resources, the State Government has placed him under suspension. The impugned orders suffer from any illegality or arbitrariness which require an interference of this Court in exercise of its jurisdiction u/Article 226 of the Constitution of India. (Para 20)

Commercialization of education has eroded the very value of education. As a result, there are education mafias and nakal mafias in the system. Schools and colleges have become profit making establishments. It is the responsibility of the State and the Society to clean the education system. (Para 19)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Present petition assails order dated 15.04.2023 against suspension and institution of disciplinary proceedings. Also, order dated 18.04.2023, whereby the charge of Joint Director of Education, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya has been given as an additional charge to Shri Manoj Kumar Dwivedi, Divisional Joint Director, Kanpur.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. Heard Shri Ravi Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Sandeep Sharma, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents.

2. The petitioner-Shri Arvind Kumar Pandey while holding the post of Joint Director of Education, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya has filed the present petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India seeking quashing of the order dated 15.04.2023 for placing him under suspension under Rule 4 of the Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999 (hereinafter referred to as “Rules, 1999”) and instituting the disciplinary proceedings against him. The petitioner has also challenged the order dated 18.04.2023 whereby the charge of Joint Director of Education, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya has been given as an additional charge to Shri Manoj Kumar Dwivedi, Divisional Joint Director, Kanpur.

3. The petitioner had allegedly in abuse and misuse of his power for extraneous consideration had regularized 122 teachers who were illegally appointed by the Committees of Management of several schools/colleges after 07.08.1993, and these teachers were drawing salary only on the strength of interim orders passed by this Court in respect of payment of salary to such teachers. The petitioner allegedly in criminal conspiracy with the Committees of Management of several schools/colleges for extraneous consideration and against the notification dated 22.03.2016 had regularized the services of the said 122 teachers.

4. Against these illegal regularizations, one Shri Shashi Kant Pandey, Assistant Teacher, P.D. Inter College, Sonyasa, Rasoolabad, Ayodhya gave a complaint vide letter dated 05.12.2022 and another complaint dated 20.01.2023 made by Shri Shailesh Kumar Singh, Assistant Teacher, resident of Village Kopa, Post-Alipur, District-Sultanpur was also received by the State Government in respect of illegal regularization of teachers by the petitioner.

5. The State Government with a view to find out the correctness, veracity and genuineness of the aforesaid two complaints, vide order dated 20.01.2023 directed the Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya to get the allegations labeled against the petitioner in the aforesaid two complaints enquired. The Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya vide letter dated 27.02.2023 constituted a Three Members Enquiry Committee comprising of (1) Shri Sunil Kumar Shukla, Additional Commissioner (Administration), (2) Shri Neeraj Srivastava, Additional Director, Treasury and Pension, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya and (3) Shri Arvind Kumar John, Joint Development Commissioner, Ayodhya for making an enquiry into the allegations in two complaints against the petitioner and for submission of a report.

6. The Three Members Enquiry Committee in its report dated 03.03.2023 concluded that Shri Arvind Kumar Pandey-petitioner had regularized such teachers who were getting salary in compliance of interim orders passed by this Court. It was also noticed that as per the notification dated 22.03.2016, the State Government had directed that the teachers who were not appointed in accordance with the Uttar Pradesh Secondary Education Service Commission (Removal of Difficulties) Order 1981 or as per Section 18 of the Uttar Pradesh Secondary Education (Services Selection Boards) Act, 1982 would not be entitled for regularization. The petitioner had not adhered to the said directions issued by the State Government and had regularized the services of teachers who were illegally appointed by the managements.

7. The petitioner in a well strategic move canceled the regularization of 34 teachers under his signatures without following the prescribed procedure and without constituting a committee so that these 34 teachers would get relief from the High Court. It appears that as per the well thought out strategies of the petitioner, these 34 teachers had obtained relief from this Court against the orders passed by the petitioner canceling their regularization without following due procedure.

8. It is relevant to take note of that for considering regularization of the teachers appointed on adhoc basis by the Committees of Management of several schools/colleges, the State Government had constituted a Four Member Committee under Section 33-C(2) (a) of the Uttar Pradesh Secondary Education (Service Selection Boards) Act, 1982 comprising of (A) Joint Director of Education, (B) Divisional Deputy Director of Education, (C) Divisional Assistant Director of Education (Basic), Ayodhya Region, Ayodhya and (D) District Inspector of Schools of concerned District. Such committees have been constituted for every division of the State. The petitioner constituted the Committee, wherein in place of the persons as directed by the State Government, their nominated members were part of the said Committee and the petitioner obtained their signatures for regularization of adhoc teachers who were illegally appointed by the Committees of Management of several schools/colleges after 07.08.1993.

9. Considering the illegal, arbitrary and malafide conduct of the petitioner for extraneous consideration, the State Government had placed the petitioner under suspension vide impugned order dated 15.04.2023 under Rule 4 of the Rules, 1999 and has instituted disciplinary proceedings against him under Rule 7 of the Rules, 1999.

10. Vide Office Memorandum dated 01.05.2023, Shri Pawan Kumar, Director, (IAS) Social Welfare, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow was nominated as the Enquiry Officer. With the approval of the appointing authority vide Office Memorandum dated 01.05.2023 charge-sheet has been issued to the petitioner containing five charges for illegal regularization of teachers with malafide for extraneous consideration.

11. The petitioner was given fifteen days' time to file his response/reply to the said charge-sheet. The State Government vide Office Memorandum dated 10.05.2023 had issued supplementary charge-sheet containing charge of illegal regularization of 34 adhoc teachers in District-Ambedkarnagar, Ayodhya and Sultanpur. The State Government has also constituted a vigilance enquiry vide letter dated 10.05.2023 in respect of movable and immovable properties illegally earned by the petitioner during his Government service. The Vigilance Department is conducting an open enquiry on the basis of various complaints received against the petitioner for amassing huge disproportionate assets by him during his service period.

12. Shri Ravi Singh, learned Counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the impugned suspension order is illegal. There is no allegation of embezzlement by the petitioner or accepting bribe for regularizing 122 teachers appointed by the Committees of Management of several schools/colleges. He has further submitted that the charges, if proved, would not entail major penalty, therefore, placing the petitioner under suspension vide impugned order dated 15.04.2023 is wholly unjust, illegal and arbitrary. Since, some of the members of the Regularization Committee had withdrawn their membership and therefore, the petitioner had nominated persons in their place. It cannot be said that the petitioner had illegally acted in constituting the committee for regularization. He has further submitted that the petitioner was authorized by the State Government through the Committee for Regularization of the candidates that if any concealment or fabrication was found against a candidate(s), the petitioner could cancel the regularization of such candidate(s), therefore, the petitioner has canceled the regularization of 34 such teachers. The suspension order should not be a routine administrative order. An employee should be placed under suspension on consideration of gravity of misconduct or nature of allegations imputed to the delinquent employee. Considering the charges against the petitioner, it appears that the order has been passed as a routine administrative order, therefore, the same is liable to be set aside.

13. On the other hand, Shri Sandeep Sharma, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents has opposed the prayer made on behalf of the petitioner and has submitted that the petitioner had acted in a most illegal, arbitrary and malafide manner for extraneous consideration in illegally regularizing 122 teachers and thereafter, canceling the regularization of 34 teachers illegally just to benefit them in the writ court. He further submitted that charges, if proved, would entail major penalty.

Considering the influence, resources and wealth accumulated by the petitioner, the State Government in a well considered decision has placed him under suspension and has ordered an open vigilance enquiry for huge wealth amassed by him during his service period.

14. I have considered the submissions made on behalf of the parties.

15. The word 'mafia' is quite prevalent in India. There are Bahubalis and Mafias in politics who have amassed huge wealth from the proceeds of crime and their rein of terror runs deep into hearts and psyches of law abiding citizens. There are sub categories of Mafias, such as, land mafia, nakal mafia and education mafia etc. There are education mafias amongst the government servants who are required to be weeded out expeditiously.

16. The importance of education has been recognized in person's and society's life from time immemorial. In India tradition, an illiterate person is considered to be equal to an animal because without education, he will not be able to rise above his physical self. Hence, the belief that a person who is initiated into education is twice born, first time physically and second time spiritually. Without education one cannot acquire knowledge. Knowledge has to be used for the welfare of the world. Education is the soul of Indian Civilization. The education is a means for awakening humans to realize their potential and making them empowered and capable for outstanding contribution to their lives.

17. In Indian mythology also, significance and importance of education for a human being has been described in following Sanskrit verses:-

"विद्याविहीना बहवोऽपि पुत्राः कल्पायुषः सन्तु
पितुः किमेतैः।

क्षयिष्णुना वाऽपि कलावता वा तस्यः प्रमोदः
शशिनेव सिंधोः॥१॥

Transliteration-

Vidyāvihīnā Bahavo'api Putrāḥ Kalpāyūṣaḥ

Santu Pituh Kimetaih |

Kṣayiṣṇunā Vāpi Kalāvata Vā Tasyaḥ

Pramodaḥ Śaśineva Sindhoḥ ||

English Meaning-

Of what use is having many sons who are fools without any knowledge, but with longer lifespan. On the other hand, if they are experts in various arts, but with less lifespan, they bring extreme joy to their father just like the Moon gives to the Ocean.

"विद्या प्रशस्यते लोकैः विद्या सर्वत्र गौरवा।

English Meaning-

Knowledge is extolled by everyone, knowledge is considered great everywhere, one can attain everything with the help of knowledge person is person is respected everywhere.

"न चौरहार्यं न च राजहार्यं न च भ्रातृभाज्यं न

Transliterations-

Na Caurahāryaṁ Na Ca Rājahāryaṁ Na Ca

Bhrātrbhājyaṁ Na Ca Bhārakāri |

Vyaye Kṛte Vardhat Eva Nityaṁ

Vidyādhanaṁ Sarvadhana Pradhānaṁ ||

English Meaning-

It can neither be plundered by a thief, nor can be squeezed by the king, can be divided by brothers or not, and does not fall on consumption. The more the education is spent, the more it grows.

18. Swami Vivekananda said "Educate and raise the masses, and thus alone the nation is possible". Education is considered to be an important means to achieve the four aims of human life, namely-Dharma (virtue), Artha (wealth), Karma (pleasure) and Moksh (spirituality). Knowledge is extolled by everyone, knowledge is considered great everywhere, one can attain everything with the help of knowledge and person with knowledge is respected everywhere.

19. Unfortunately commercialization of education started in big way with most accelerated speed in nineties. Commercialization of education has eroded the very value of education. As a result, there are education mafias and nakal mafias in the system. Schools and colleges have become profit making establishments. It is the responsibility of the State and the Society to clean the education system.

20. Considering the allegations leveled against the petitioner and also taking note of his status, reach and resources, the State Government has placed him under suspension. I do not find that the impugned orders suffer from any illegality or arbitrariness which require an interference of this Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

21. In view thereof, the present petition is hereby dismissed. The State Government is directed to complete the disciplinary proceedings initiated against the petitioner expeditiously preferably within a period of four months from today and the Department of Home Affairs, Government of Uttar Pradesh is also directed to conclude the open vigilance enquiry initiated against the petitioner in a most expeditious manner preferably within a period of three months from today and take necessary action accordingly.

22. It is the duty of the State Government to find out illegal wealth accumulated by a government employee during his/her service period and take appropriate action against such an employee.

23. Let a copy of this order be transmitted to the Additional Chief Secretary/Principal Secretary, Department of Home Affairs, Government of Uttar Pradesh for necessary action.

A. Service Law – Appointment – Promotion - Uttar Pradesh Public Works Department "Group-B" Civil Engineering Service Rules – 2004 - Rule 5 - Sarvajanik Nirman Vibhag Sangdak Sewa Niyamawali, 1968 - Rules 5 - 19; Uttar Pradesh Sarvajanik Nirmaan Vibhaag Rekhanakan Adhithaan Sewa Niyamawali, 1984 - Rule 5 – The eligibility for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) as per Rule 5 of Rules, 2004 is seven years substantive service on the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer on the basis of seniority subject to rejection of unfit. The petitioners and the private opposite parties belonging to one cadre i.e. Junior Engineer (Technical). The petitioners were directly appointed to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer, whereas the private opposite parties were promoted to the said post under the Rules, 1968. There is a common seniority list, which remains unchallenged. (Para 34)

B. There cannot be a class within class for the purpose of further promotion - The Rules, 1968 are not rescinded after enactment of Rules, 1984 and are very much in existence in the statute book - Rules, 1968 provide eligibility and the procedure for promotion to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer from the post of Draftsman. Under Rules, 1984, one more avenue of promotion to the Draftsman i.e. Head Draftsman has been created. After promotion of the opposite parties from the post of Draftsman to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer, the cadre of the petitioners and such promotees of Junior Engineer (Technical), became one i.e. the cadre of Junior Engineer (Technical). (Para 35)

C. The Court cannot lay down a new qualification for promotion, which is not prescribed under the statute/relevant service rules. This Court in Writ-A No.15161 of 2021 filed by the direct appointees of Junior Engineer (Technical), had given direction for forwarding the names of eighteen eligible candidates from the final seniority list of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer to the Public Service Commission for promotion to the post of

Assistant Engineer (Civil). In compliance of the said direction, names of opposite parties, who are eligible for promotion, have been included in the impugned requisition sent to the Public Service Commission for promotion. The said requisition does not suffer from any illegality and conforms to the statutory prescription. (Para 36)

No error is found in the impugned requisition dated 28.5.2022 as it has been sent strictly as per the mandate of Rule 5(2) of Rules, 2004. (Para 37)

Writ-A Nos. 3814 of 2022 and 1514 of 2022, are dismissed.

Writ-A No.1305 of 2022 is allowed. (E-4)

Present petition assails order dated 28.5.2022, issued by the State Government, by means of which the eligibility list including the names of promotee Junior Engineers (Technical) along with direct recruitee of Junior Engineer have been forwarded to the U.P. Public Service Commission for making promotion on the post of Assistant Engineer.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dinesh Kumar Singh, J.)

1. The core controversy involved in the present batch of writ petitions is promotion on the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) in the U.P. Public Works Department under 50% quota as provided under the Uttar Pradesh Public Works Department "Group-B" Civil Engineering Service Rules, 2004 (for short 'Rules, 2004').

2. These writ petitions have been filed by the petitioners, who are Junior Engineers (Technical). The cadre of Junior Engineer (Technical) is consisting of two sets of Junior Engineers (i) Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computers having been appointed under the Sarvajanik Nirman Vibhag Sangdak Sewa Niyamawali, 1968 (for short 'Rules, 1968') in the U.P. Public Works Department, who were directly recruited as Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computers through U.P. Public Service Commission; and (ii) who were initially appointed as Draftsman having two years Engineering Diploma in any trade (Civil/Mechanical/Draftsman) from Industrial Training Institute (ITI) or any other qualification as prescribed under the Rules, 1968 and, as per the provisions contained in Part-VI (Rule 19) of the Rules, 1968, who got promoted as Junior Engineer (Technical) under 20% quota prescribed for them having rendered ten years substantive service as Draftsman and, subject to passing of the departmental examination (condition of passing of departmental examination was relaxed in the year 1975) pursuant to the recommendations of the U.P. Public Service Commission.

3. Rules, 1968 were amended in the year 1992, whereby the promotion quota was increased from 20% to 50%. Part-VI (Rule 19) of the Rules, 1968 provides the eligibility and procedure for promotion of the Draftsman to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical). Appointment on the post of Draftsman is made under the Uttar Pradesh Sarvajanik Nirmaan Vibhaag Rekhanak Adhithaan Sewa Niyamawali, 1984 (for short 'Rules, 1984'). Rule 5 of the said Rules prescribes the source of recruitment and Rule 8 prescribes qualification for appointment on the post of Draftsman. The qualification as prescribed under Rule 8 of the Rules, 1984 is High School examination from the U.P. Board or any other examination recognized by the Government equivalent thereto and any other qualification as prescribed under Appendix-C of the said Rules. Appendix-C of the said Rules, 1984 would read as under:-

“See Rule 8(2)

Certificates required for the post of Draftsman

(1) The Certificate of Draftsman from

(i)(a) Thompson College of Engineering, Roorkee or Roorkee University or Uttar Pradesh or any other institution recognized in Uttar Pradesh or any other State; or

(ii) Diploma in Architectural Design and Draftsman from Cultural Work and Scientific Research Department, Government of Uttar Pradesh; or

(iii) Diploma in Architectural Assistant from Uttar Pradesh Technical Education Board or similar Diploma from any other State ; or

(iv) Diploma in Civil Engineering or Draftsman from a University established by .. or

(v) Diploma in Draftsman (Civil) or Mechanical from ITI established by Training and Employment Directorate, Uttar Pradesh or similar Diploma from any other State from a recognized institution.”

4. The petitioners have challenged the order dated 28.5.2022 issued by the State Government, by means of which the eligibility list including the names of promotee Junior Engineers (Technical) along with direct recruitee of Junior Engineer have been forwarded to the U.P. Public Service Commission for making promotion on the post of Assistant Engineer.

5. Sri S.K. Kalia, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by S/Sri Sameer Kalia, Srideep Chatterjee, learned counsels appearing for the petitioners in Writ-A

Nos.3814 of 2022 and 1514 of 2022 has submitted that though the petitioners were appointed as Computer, but in terms of the Office Memorandum dated 16.6.1973 issued by the State Government, the Computers holding Diploma in Engineering were designated as Junior Engineer (Computers) as nomenclature of their post was changed to Junior Engineer (Computers). The petitioners having Diploma in Civil Engineering are the direct recruits on the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) through the U.P. Public Service Commission.

6. Rule 5 of Rules, 1968 lays down the source of recruitment for the post of Computer/Junior Engineer (Technical), which includes direct recruitment as well as promotion. Sub-rule(2) of Rule 5 provides that Engineer-in-Chief shall decide the source/feeder post from which promotion is to be made on the post of Computer and the promotion is to be carried out as per the provisions contained in Chapter-VI of the Rules, 1968. A conjoint reading of Rules 5 and 19 of the Rules, 1968 would make it clear that Draftsman is not the only feeder post from which promotion can be made to the post of Computer, but it is also the prerogative of the Engineer-in-Chief to decide the source/feeder post for promotion to the post of Computers.

7. Rule 19 of the Rules, 1968 only lays down certain essential eligibility conditions which are to be fulfilled in order to consider the Draftsman for promotion, as such, a harmonious reading of Rules 5 and 19 of the Rules, 1968 would make it clear that source/feeder post for promotion to the post of Computers/Junior Engineer (Technical) can also be any post other than Draftsman as may be decided by the Engineer-in-Chief.

8. The validity of Rule 5(2) of the Rules, 1968 was challenged by filing Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.9 of 1981 praying, inter alia, that the promotional quota should be increased to 100% as was available in Irrigation, Hydel and Rural Engineering Services Departments. This Court dismissed the said writ petition vide judgement and order dated 26.7.1984, however, left it open to the State Government to decide the question of increasing the quota of promotion. In the said writ petition, the State took a stand that the post of Draftsman is a non-technical post and percentage of 20% was fixed for promotion of Draftsman to Computer/Junior Engineer (Technical) to maintain the efficiency in service. After the said judgment, the State Government on 13.8.1984 framed the Rules, 1984 in supersession of all available Rules and orders, which regulated the terms and conditions of service of Draftsman, Head Draftsman, Tracer, Architectural Draftsman and Architectural Head Draftsman

9. Sri Kalia, learned Senior Counsel has further submitted that on coming into force the Rules, 1984, the channel of promotion as provided under Rule 19 of the Rules, 1968 for Draftsman to the post of Computer/Junior Engineer (Technical) stood rescinded. After coming into force the Rules, 1984, the Draftsman appointed under the said Rules or prior became members of the Rekhankan Adhishthan Sewa, which is a distinct service from the one which is regulated under the Rules 1968. The private opposite parties have been appointed on the post of Draftsman after coming into force of the Rules, 1984 and, therefore, they were members exclusively of the Uttar Pradesh Sarvajanic Nirman Vibhag Rekhankan Adhishthan Sewa. He has further submitted that amendment was brought in Rules, 1968 on 2.7.1992, whereby the promotional quota to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer was increased from 20% to 50%. However, this would not make the Draftsman eligible for promotion under the Rules, 1968 inasmuch as it is the sole prerogative of the Engineer-in-Chief to determine the source of feeder post for promotion to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer. The channel of promotion to Draftsman is provided under Rule 5 of the Rules, 1984 itself, under which the private opposite parties are appointed i.e. promotion to the post of Head Draftsman.

10. Sri Kalia, learned Senior Counsel has further submitted that promotion of the private opposite parties to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer was illegal and, therefore, challenge to the said promotion even after twelve years, would not be barred on the ground of inordinate delay or laches as there is no concept of adverse possession or holding over in service jurisprudence. The private opposite parties at the best, could have been promoted to the post of Computer and, therefore, nomenclature of Junior Engineer (Technical) given to them instead of Computer is wholly illegal. Rules, 1968 provide for promotion to the post of Computer and not to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical). In view of the Government Order of 1973, those Computers, who possess Diploma in Engineering are designated as Junior Engineer. Submission is that even if it is assumed that after promulgation of Rules, 1984, the avenue of promotion of Draftsman to the post of Computers is still available under Rules, 1968, then also the promotion can only be on the post of Computers and those Draftsman, who possess Diploma in Engineering would be designated as Junior Engineer (Technical).

11. Sri Kalia, learned Senior Counsel has further submitted that under Uttar Pradesh Public Works Department Group-B Civil Engineer Service Rules, 2004 (Rules, 2004), 50% of the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) are to be filled up from amongst substantively appointed Junior Engineers (Technical), who have completed seven years substantive service on the first day of the year of recruitment. Out of these 50%, 90% posts of 50% promotional quota are to be filled up by Junior Engineer (Civil) and 10% of 50% is to be filled up by direct Junior Engineer (Technical). He has submitted that the private opposite parties are not the diploma holders and they are not the Junior Engineer (Technical) even after their promotion to the post of Computer under Rules, 1968 and they are only Computer. Rule 5 of Rules, 2004 does not provided promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from Computers and, therefore, including the names of Computers, who are not the diploma holders in the ineligibility list, is contrary to Rule 5 of Rules, 2004.

12. Sri Kalia, learned Senior Counsel has also submitted that the Engineer-in-Chief/Head of Department has forwarded the names of persons, who had been directly recruited on the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) before 2010 and whose seniority had been finalised much earlier to the State Government on 26.8.2021 for promotion. Though 18 posts were available, but only five direct recruit Junior Engineers (Technical) were found eligible for promotion and these five persons have been granted promotion vide Government Order dated 30.11.2021 to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil). Learned Senior Counsel has also made emphasis that till date promotee Junior Engineers (Technical) have never been considered for promotion to the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil).

13. In pursuance to the order passed by this Court on 7.1.2022 in Writ-A No.15161 of 2021, the Engineer-in-Chief on 24.2.2022 forwarded the names of directly recruited Junior Engineers (Technical). The aforesaid order was challenged by a few Junior Engineers (Technical), who claimed to have to their credit Diploma in Civil Engineering by filing Writ-A No.1305 of 2022.

14. Sri Kalia, learned Senior Counsel has also relied upon paragraph 18 of the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the State in Writ-A No.1514 of 2022, in which the promotion granted to the private opposite parties to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) is under challenge. It appears that the State Government has said that under Rules, 1984, promotion of Draftsman is to be made to the post of Head Draftsman and under the said Rules, there is no provision for further promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer and, therefore, Draftsman were not eligible for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer.

15. The State Government has taken a 'U' turn and vide orders dated 8.4.2022 and 13.4.2022 directed the Engineer-in-Chief that recruitment whether it is to be made directly or by way of promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil), the same is to be made as per the provisions of Rule 5 of the Rules, 2004. In compliance to the said direction, the Engineer-in-Chief has forwarded the names of the promotee Junior Engineers (Technical) for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil).

Despite admitting that the Draftsman cadre is a non-technical cadre in the counter affidavit filed in Writ-A No.1514 of 2022, the State Government has sent the list on 28.5.2022 to the U.P. Public Service Commission for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil), which includes the names of private opposite parties. It is, therefore, submitted that the Draftsman, who are not eligible to be promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil), were illegally promoted to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) and, therefore, their names should be struck off from the list of eligible persons to be promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil)

16. On the other hand, Sri V.K. Bajpai, learned Standing Counsel has submitted that the word “Draftsman” means a person, who draws plans and sketches as of machinery or structures. From perusal of the technical qualification, which has been mentioned and prescribed under the Rules, 1984 for appointment as Draftsman, it is evident that the cadre of Draftsman is a technical cadre and the only difference between the Draftsman’s qualification and to that of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer is that for initial appointment on the post of Draftsman, two years Diploma course from ITI or other institutions as mentioned in Appendix-C to Rules, 1984 is required, whereas for Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computers, three years diploma course is required. Both i.e. Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer and the Draftsman are technical cadres.

17. Learned Standing Counsel has further submitted that by enacting the Rules, 1984, Rules, 1968 did not get omitted. Rules, 1968 prescribe the eligibility and procedure for promotion to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer from the post of Draftsman. Rules, 1968 got amended in the year 1992, whereby the earlier quota of 20% promotion for the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computers got increased to 50%. He has further submitted that Rules, 1984 provide one more avenue of promotion to the Draftsman i.e. Head Draftsman, but that does not mean that Rules, 1968 were rescinded and the promotion of the Draftsman to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computers is not possible. After promotion of Draftsman to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical), they become the part of the same cadre i.e. Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer and their promotion as per Rule 5 of Rules, 2004 is to be considered along with the directly appointed Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer and there cannot be a class within the class for the purposes of further promotion.

18. Sri Bajpai has further submitted that the Draftsmen after their promotion to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer and complete seven years on the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer as on the first day of the year of recruitment, they become eligible for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil). He has further submitted that directly recruited Junior Engineers (Technical) had approached this Court at Allahabad by filing Writ-A No.15161 of 2021, Manoj Kumar Singh and others Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and others and this Court vide order dated 7.1.2022 disposed of the said writ petition by following order:-

“In view of the above, therefore, there remains no controversy with regard to further recommendations, if made, against the remaining 18 vacant positions of Assistant Engineer (Civil) as per the note made in the recommendations earlier made on 24th August, 2021 that promotion process on 18 vacant positions had been put on hold for finalization of the seniority list.

Accordingly, it is ordered that respondents concerned shall forward the name of further 18 candidates' names from the finalized seniority list of Junior Engineer (Technical) against the 18 vacant positions to the U.P. Public Service Commission, Prayagraj strictly in accordance with law looking to the criteria laid for the said purpose and then U.P. Public Service Commission shall proceed to finalize the matter of promotion accordingly.

Appropriate recommendations as ordered above shall be made within a period of 15 days from the date of production of certified copy of this order before appropriate authority.

With the aforesaid observations/ directions, this petition stands disposed of."

19. After the said judgement dated 7.1.2022, the earlier proposal dated 10.2.2022 forwarded by the Engineer-in-Chief to the State Government for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from the Junior Engineer (Technical), which had names of only directly recruited Junior Engineer(Technical) was examined by the Department of Personnel and Appointment, Government of Uttar Pradesh. Vide letter dated 8.4.2022, the Government wrote to the Engineer-in-Chief (Design and Planing) for making available proposal as per the mandate of Rule 5 of the Rules, 2004 in order to ensure compliance of the order dated 7.1.2022 passed by this Court in Writ-A No.15161 of 2021. While the aforesaid process of forwarding the requisition was under way, Manoj Kumar Singh and others filed Contempt Application (Civil) No.3107 of 2022 alleging therein the disobedience of the order passed by this Court dated 7.1.2022 in Writ-A No.15161 of 2021 and, this Court on 26.5.2022 issued contempt notice to the Engineer-in-Chief/Head of Department, U.P. Public Works Department.

20. Under the aforesaid circumstances, the requisition dated 28.5.2022 was forwarded to the U.P. Public Service Commission as per the direction issued by this Court vide order dated 7.1.2022 mentioning the names of the eligible candidates {Junior Engineer (Technical)} on the basis of their seniority in the cadre of Junior Engineer (Technical) irrespective of the fact that they are directly recruited or promotee {Junior Engineer (Technical)} treating them as one class as per mandate of Rule 5(ii) of Rules, 2004.

21. Sri Bajpai has further submitted that the State authorities have acted as per the mandate of the statutory rules framed under Article 309 of the Constitution of India and till the Rules are amended/modified, the authorities cannot deviate from the Rules. The requisition sent, is strictly in accordance with Rules, 2004 and there is no merit in the present writ petitions, which are liable to be dismissed.

22. Sri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for the private opposite party nos.6 and 8 has submitted that opposite party nos.6 and 8, who were appointed as Draftsman on 6.3.1999 and 20.10.1987 respectively, were promoted to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) on 13.8.2003 and 22.3.2010 respectively, and their promotions have never been challenged till date. The tentative seniority list of Junior Engineer (Technical) was issued on 11.6.2008 and the final seniority list was issued on 10.8.2010. The petitioners never challenged the said seniority list nor objected to opposite parties being placed in the said seniority list. He has, therefore, submitted that it does not lie in the mouth of the petitioners to challenge the inclusion of the private opposite party nos.6 and 8 in the list of eligible candidates for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) as per the Rules, 2004.

23. Sri Ratnesh Chandra has further submitted that earlier also three persons, namely Bhageroo Ram, Narain Singh Jagpal and Babu Lal, who were placed in the seniority list dated 10.8.2010 at serial nos.143, 144 and 167 respectively and who were appointed as Draftsman, were promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil).

24. Second seniority list was published on 4.6.2020, which was finalized on 14.9.2021. The petitioners and the private opposite parties have been placed in the said seniority list as per their length of service on the post of Junior Engineer (Technical). It is only four Junior Engineers (Technical), who were initially appointed as Draftsman, are eligible to be promoted to the posts of Assistant Engineer (Civil) against the available vacancies from the post of Junior Engineer (Technical). There has been seldom any occasion that the candidates from the post Draftsman could get promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) as they used to be promoted at the very belated stage from the post of Draftsman to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) and, therefore, they could not be eligible to be considered for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil). He has further submitted that from the year 2010 till date, no Junior Engineer (Technical) from the cadre of Draftsman could be promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) as no one was eligible in the cadre of Draftsman to be promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil).

25. In respect of the Rules, 1968, 1984 and 2004, Sri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for the opposite parties has adopted the arguments of Sri V.K. Bajpai, learned Standing Counsel.

26. Sri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for the private opposite parties has also submitted that the present writ petitions have been filed for the purpose of enforcing the amendment in Rules, 2004, wherein a proposal has been made that so far promotion on the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) is concerned, the same should be granted only to the persons, who have got degree or Engineering from any University or they should possess the Diploma in Civil Engineering by any institute recognized by the Government. However, the Rules, 2004 have not been amended till date. These Rules are to be enforced as they stand on the statute book. Rules, 2004 do not prescribe any qualification or eligibility of Diploma or Degree in Engineering for being promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil). The eligibility is that a Junior Engineer (Technical) should have rendered seven years of substantive service on the said post for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil). The criteria for promotion is seniority subject to rejection of unfit.

27. Sri Ratnesh Chandra has further submitted that this Court cannot issue mandamus for amendment in the statutory Rules as it is the prerogative of the executive to amend the Rules. This Court should not take the legislative power in its hand. It is for the employer to prescribe the qualification and eligibility for a post and not the Court. So far the promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) is concerned, the only criteria is seven years substantive service on the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) irrespective of the degree, diploma or any further qualification of the Junior Engineer (Technical). He, has, therefore, submitted that there is no substance in these writ petitions, which are liable to be dismissed.

28. Sri Tushar Verma, learned counsel appearing for opposite party nos.10 and 11 has also adopted the arguments of Sri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for opposite party nos.6 and 8.

29. Sri G.C. Verma, learned counsel for opposite party nos.4 to 8 in Writ-A No.1514 of 2022 has submitted that opposite parties were promoted under the Rules, 1968 to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) and their promotion to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) cannot be challenged after a lapse of twelve years. The petitioners were also appointed under the Rules, 1968 vide appointment letters dated 22.7.2010 and 19.11.2013 respectively. Opposite parties were promoted vide order dated 22.3.2010. At the time of promotion of the opposite parties, the petitioners were not even born in the cadre of Junior Engineer (Technical) and, therefore, they cannot challenge the promotion of the opposite parties at this belated stage.

30. Sri G.C. Verma, learned counsel for opposite party nos.4 to 8 has further submitted that these opposite parties are diploma holders and even otherwise they are entitled to be promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil). These opposite parties have filed Writ-A No.1305 of 2022 before this Court, wherein they have prayed for quashing of the order dated 10.2.2022 passed by the Engineer-in-Chief (Design and Planning), Public Works Department, U.P., Lucknow with further prayer for a writ of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to prepare the eligibility list for promotion on the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) as per Rule 5 read with Rule 16 of the Rules, 2004 as per the seniority list dated 14.9.2021 issued by the Engineer-in-Chief Head of Department, Public Works Department, U.P., Lucknow and consider the case of the petitioners for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) as against eighteen posts for the Recruitment Year 2021-22. Even as per the petitioners' stand, the opposite parties are qualified to be promoted to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil).

31. Sri G.C. Verma, learned counsel for the opposite parties has further submitted that the petitioners were appointed under the Rules, 1968, whereas the opposite parties were promoted under the said Rules. The petitioners cannot challenge the appointments and the promotions made under Rules, 1968 in absence of any challenge to the said Rules. He has, therefore, submitted that there is no substance in these writ petitions and as directed by this Court vide judgement and order dated 7.1.2022, the promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) has to be made from the seniority list dated 10.8.2010 from the eligible Junior Engineer (Technical). He has, therefore, prayed for dismissal of Writ-A Nos.3814 of 2022 and 1514 of 2022.

32. Sri R.K. Upadhyaya, learned counsel for the Public Service Commission has submitted that the Public Service Commission is a proforma party. However, he has submitted that in reference to the Government letter dated 28.5.2022 for holding the supplementary Departmental Promotion Committee for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) from the post of Junior Engineer (Technical) for the selection year 2021-22, certain discrepancies were required to be removed by the Government as per the Commission's letters dated 9.1.2023 and 8.2.2023 respectively, but till date the Government has not removed those discrepancies. He has further submitted that the Public Service Commission is to follow the statutory rules. Once the Government removes the discrepancies as pointed out, the Public Service Commission will make recommendation for promotion of the eligible candidates from the seniority list forwarded by the State Government for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil).

33. I have considered the submissions advanced on behalf of the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

34. The eligibility for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil) as per Rule 5 of Rules, 2004 is seven years substantive service on the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer on the basis of seniority subject to rejection of unfit. The petitioners and the private opposite parties belonging to one cadre i.e. Junior Engineer (Technical). The petitioners were directly appointed to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer, whereas the private opposite parties were promoted to the said post under the Rules, 1968. There is a common seniority list, which remains unchallenged.

35. In view thereof, I do not find much substance in the submission of Sri Kalia, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners that after enactment of Rules, 1984, Rules, 1968 got omitted. Rules, 1968 provide eligibility and the procedure for promotion to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer from the post of Draftsman. Under Rules, 1984, one more avenue of promotion to the Draftsman i.e. Head Draftsman has been created, but the Rules, 1968 are not rescinded and very much in existence in the statute book. After promotion of the opposite parties from the post of Draftsman to the post of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer, the cadre of the petitioners and such promotees of Junior Engineer (Technical), became one i.e. the cadre of Junior Engineer (Technical). There cannot be a class within class for the purpose of further promotion.

36. The Court cannot lay down a new qualification for promotion, which is not prescribed under the statute/relevant service rules. This Court in Writ-A No.15161 of 2021 filed by the direct appointees of Junior Engineer (Technical), had given direction for forwarding the names of eighteen eligible candidates from the final seniority list of Junior Engineer (Technical)/Computer to the Public Service Commission for promotion to the post of Assistant Engineer (Civil). In compliance of the said direction, names of opposite parties, who are eligible for promotion, have been included in the impugned requisition sent to the Public Service Commission for promotion. I do not find that said requisition suffers from any illegality or is against the statutory prescription.

37. In view thereof, I find no error in the impugned requisition dated 28.5.2022 as it has been sent strictly as per the mandate of Rule 5(2) of Rules, 2004.

38. Accordingly, I do not find any substance in Writ-A Nos.3814 of 2022 and 1514 of 2022, which are hereby dismissed, whereas Writ-A No.1305 of 2022 is allowed.

THE HON'BLE J.J. MUNIR, J.

Writ-A No. 4279 of 2023

Arun Kumar Srivastava ...Petitioner
Versus
Managing Director, Uttar Pradesh Rajkiya
Nirman Nigam Ltd., Lucknow
...Respondent

Counsel for the Petitioner:

Sri Sangam Singh, Sri Ankur Jaiswal

Counsel for the Respondent:

Sri Vivek Saran

A. Service Law – Retiral dues – Arrears of salary – Gratuity - Pension and gratuity are no longer any bounty to be distributed by the Government to its employees on their retirement but have become valuable rights and property in their hands and any culpable delay in settlement and disbursement thereof must be visited with the penalty of payment of interest at the current market rate till actual payment.
(Para 11)

Delay in payment of post retiral benefits must carry adequate interest. So far as delay in payment of salary is concerned, a heavier obligation lies on the employer to compensate the employee. In both matters, penal interest ought to be awarded. (Para 11)

Since the date of retirement of every Government servant is very much known in advance, the process of collecting the requisite information and issuance of documents (L.P.C. (Last Pay Certificate) and N.L.C. (No Liability Certificate)) should be completed at least a week before the date of retirement so that the payment of gratuity amount could be made to the Government servant on the date he retires or on the following day and pension at the expiry of the following month. (Para 11)

B. If an employee serves at different stations and his service book goes to all those stations, the way every ACR and other remarks are written, the same way, his monthly salary and other dues ought also be posted in at and made available to him on time. (Para 10)

In the present case, the delay in paying the petitioner's arrears of salary and post retiral benefits is absolutely without justification. The fact that the petitioner had served at different stations, and therefore, his service records had to be verified on those stations is an obligation of the Corporation; not the petitioner's. The petitioner cannot be made to suffer the blame for this delay, the culpability whereof squarely lies on the shoulders of the Corporation. It is unimaginable that salary for a period of time while the employee was in service would be paid after his retirement. Likewise, payment of post retiral benefits have been unduly delayed and have been paid after ten years. (Para 10)

A mandamus is issued to the Managing Director, Uttar Pradesh Rajkiya Nirman Nigam Limited, ordering him to pay interest on the total sum of money detailed in petition, with simple interest at the rate of 10% per annum with effect from the date that each item of unpaid emoluments mentioned in the petition fell due, worked out until time when the relative payment was actually made. (Para 12)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Precedent followed:

St. of Kerala & ors. Vs M. Padmanabhan Nair, (1985) 1 SCC 429 (Para 11)

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

Parties have exchanged affidavits.

2. Admit.

3. Heard forthwith.

4. Heard Mr. Sangam Singh, learned Counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Vivek Saran, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the sole respondent.

5. The petitioner is an ex employee of the Uttar Pradesh Rajkiya Nirman Nigam Limited¹. He was initially appointed as a Sub-Engineer (Civil) in the service of the Corporation. He was posted at different stations throughout the State during the tenure of his employment. The petitioner retired from the post of Sub Engineer on 31.08.2009, upon attaining the age of superannuation. Admittedly, there were no disciplinary proceedings against him or any kind of a claim that the employers had to set-off against his post retiral dues. It is also not in dispute that prior of the petitioner's retirement, a No Dues Certificate was issued by the Office of the Corporation at New Delhi on 04.06.2009, that being the petitioner's last place of posting. The petitioner had an early grievance to make. Post retirement, his retiral dues as well as outstanding of arrears of salary due on the date of retirement were not paid. This led the petitioner to institute Writ - A No. 5590 of 2019, which, by a very usual order of this Court, was summarily parted with on Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel.

The petitioner has not been released his post retiral benefits after having retired on 31.8.2009. The respondent No.2 shall proceed to examine the claim of the petitioner and pass an appropriate order within 3 months. In the event the petitioner is found entitled for release of any amount, the same shall be released forthwith without any further delay.

With the aforesaid observations, the writ petition is disposed of.

6. After the order dated 03.02.2010 was passed and presumably received by the petitioner in the form of a certified copy, with no communication thereof through any official channel to the Corporation remained uncomplied with, leading the petitioner to prefer representations dated 08.03.2010, 18.05.2010 and 12.06.2010, virtually seeking to draw the Corporation's attention to the order of this Court dated 03.02.2010, earlier mentioned.

7. Since no action in compliance was taken, the petitioner had to move this Court, invoking our contempt jurisdiction vide Contempt Application (Civil) No. 3433 of 2010. Notice in the contempt matter was issued to the Corporation or the officer, so to speak, answerable on behalf of the Corporation, to carry out the orders of this Court. Pending rule issued in the contempt matter, the Corporation paid post retiral benefits to the petitioner under various heads, that include arrears of salary, gratuity and leave encashment. The arrears of salary were paid for various periods of time that they had remained unpaid and all details of these periods are set out in tabular form by the petitioner in paragraph 14 of the writ petition. A perusal of this table shows that arrears of salary were paid for ten different periods of time that these had remained unpaid, apart from various heads, as already said, under which post retiral benefits were due to the petitioner.

8. The petitioner says that though the various sums of money indicated in para 14 have been paid to him, the payment has been made with an unexplained and culpable delay of ten years. The petitioner has, therefore, now come up claiming interest on this sum of money, which has been withheld. The petitioner attempted to enforce his claim for interest on account of the delayed payment of his post retiral dues as also unpaid arrears of salary, that ought to have been paid while in service, by representing the matter to the Corporation once again. The Corporation again, not heeding to the petitioner's plea for the payment of interest on his dues, paid much beyond the time of entitlement. Aggrieved, the petitioner invoked the contempt jurisdiction of this Court vide Contempt Application (Civil) No. 2435 of 2022. Pending the said application, the Corporation took a stand before the Court hearing the later contempt application that all dues, the petitioner was entitled to, have been paid to him. This Court, in the contempt matter, on occasion, was of opinion that the order on the writ side did not award any interest and, therefore, no case for contempt was made out. Accordingly, the contempt application was rejected vide order dated 11.11.2022. Nevertheless, before that happened, on 31.12.2021, by the order impugned, the Corporation rejected the petitioner's claim, saying that they have paid all dues of the petitioner's unpaid salary that was in arrears in lieu of his service at different stations of the Corporation.

9. Notice in this case was issued to the Corporation vide order dated 17.05.2023, requiring them to file a return. In the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the Corporation by Mr. Vivek Saran, Advocate, it is stated in answer to paragraph 14 of the writ petition that during the period of service, the petitioner was posted at ten different units of the Corporation, and after retirement, his salary/arrears have been paid. It is further on said in paragraph 14 of the counter affidavit that since the service book of the petitioner was incomplete, time was spent to gather records and complete it. The delay, therefore, in settling the petitioner's salary overdues and post retiral benefits is said to have been occasioned on that account. This, in sum and substance, is the defence which the Corporation takes to justify the impugned order declining to grant interest. The Corporation, in the order impugned, hardly says anything in justification for declining to pay interest on the petitioner's dues, that have been paid after much delay.

10. Upon hearing learned Counsel for parties, this Court is of opinion that the delay in paying the petitioner's arrears of salary and post retiral benefits is absolutely without justification. The fact that the petitioner had served at different stations, and therefore, his service records had to be verified on those stations is an obligation of the Corporation; not the petitioner's. The petitioner cannot be made to suffer the blame for this delay, the culpability whereof squarely lies on the shoulders of the Corporation. If an employee serves at different stations and his service book goes to all those stations, the way every ACR and other remarks are written, the same way, his monthly salary and other dues ought also be posted in at and made available to him on time. It is unimaginable that salary for a period of time while the employee was in service would be paid after his retirement. Presumably, the delay suffered by the petitioner in the matter of receipt of his salary at different stations is the hallmark of public employment, where the employer is more than an employer. In public employment like the Corporation's in this case, it is not just that the employer stands in the relationship of a master or an ordinary employer to a servant. Public employers behave like authorities, whom employees do not wish to annoy in any manner, while in service. Matters can go that far that even if salary is not paid to an employee for long spells of time, the employee believes that discretion is the better part of valour and he ought not to ask for his salary, lest he invite the wrath of authority, which the public employers are. Invariably, these Corporations are headed by administrative officers of the State, who find it difficult to distinguish their role from civil administrators into employers functioning in Corporations undertaking commercial business, where employees' welfare has to be looked after in a different way. In any event, even if it is pure State employment, it is not open to any employer to behave in this fashion and withhold an employee's salary, only to be paid after his retirement. This is precisely the case here. The petitioner has received his salary for different periods of time while he was posted at ten different stations, much after he has retired from service. This Court will not say that it is unfortunate. This Court will say that it is culpable and ought to invite penalty. Likewise, payment of post retiral benefits have been unduly delayed and have been paid after ten years.

11. Gratuity, it is settled in State of Kerala and others v. M. Padmanabhan Nair is to be paid on the day following the retirement. It has been settled by the Supreme Court in a catena of decisions and also, by various High Courts across the country that delay in payment of post retiral benefits must carry adequate interest. So far as delay in payment of salary is concerned, a heavier obligation lies on the employer to compensate the employee. In both matters, penal interest ought to be awarded. In connection with the award of interest and penal interest, in the matter of late payment of post retiral benefits, it was held in M. Padmanabhan Nair (supra) thus :

1. Pension and gratuity are no longer any bounty to be distributed by the Government to its employees on their retirement but have become, under the decisions of this Court, valuable rights and property in their hands and any culpable delay in settlement and disbursement thereof must be visited with the penalty of payment of interest at the current market rate till actual payment.

2. Usually the delay occurs by reason of non-production of the L.P.C. (last pay certificate) and the N.L.C. (no liability certificate) from the concerned Departments but both these documents pertain to matters, records whereof would be with the concerned Government Departments. Since the date of retirement of every Government servant is very much known in advance we fail to appreciate why the process of collecting the requisite information and issuance of these two documents should not be completed at least a week before the date of retirement so that the payment of gratuity amount could be made to the Government servant on the date he retires or on the following day and pension at the expiry of the following month. The necessity for prompt payment of the retirement dues to a Government servant immediately after his retirement cannot be over-emphasised and it would not be unreasonable to direct that the liability to pay penal interest on these dues at the current market rate should commence at the expiry of two months from the date of retirement.

12. In the circumstances, this writ petition succeeds and stands allowed. A mandamus is issued to the Managing Director, Uttar Pradesh Rajkiya Nirman Nigam Limited, ordering him to pay interest on the total sum of money detailed in paragraph 14, with simple interest at the rate of 10% per annum with effect from the date that each item of unpaid emoluments mentioned in the table in paragraph 14 fell due, worked out until time when the relative payment was actually made.

13. Since working out the interest on 25 different items of payments that have been delayed over varying periods of time is involved, let this matter be placed before the Registrar General of this Court, before whom both parties shall appear and workout the accounts. The Registrar General, in accordance with the orders of this Court, shall certify the total amount payable, and the said amount, subject to any objection which parties may wish to make before the Court, shall be the final amount payable by the Corporation to the petitioners within a period of two months.

14. Let a copy of this order be communicated to the Managing Director, Uttar Pradesh Rajkiya Nirman Nigam Limited and the Registrar General for strict compliance.

Writ-A No. 4654 of 2023

Union of India & Anr. ...Petitioners Versus

Counsel for the Petitioners:

Counsel for the Respondents:

Sri Pawnesh Tiwari, Dr. D.K. Tiwari

A. Service Law – Suspension – Interpretation of statute - Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1965 - Rule 10(6); Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 - Section 17 -Companies Act, 1956 - Section 108 - The tests for finding out a provision is mandatory or directory. The principles for which the provision has been made, its nature, the intention of the legislature in making the provision and the language of the provision are to be considered. While interpreting the word 'shall' or 'may', is whether mandatory or directory, court would have to ascertain the real intention of the legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the statute. (Para 16, 18)

The question that arises for consideration is, as to whether, the word 'shall' in Sub-rule (6) is mandatory or directory, read with Sub-rule (7) of Rule 10. (Para 15)

Prohibition and negative words can rarely be directory. It has been aptly stated that there is one way to obey the command and that is completely to refrain from doing the forbidden act. Therefore, negative prohibitory and exclusive words are indicative of the legislative intent when the statute is mandatory. (Para 19, 20)

From the mandate of Sub-rule (7) of Rule 10 of Rules 1965, employs negative and prohibitive words making the provision mandatory. After expiry of ninety days, the order of suspension shall not be valid in the eye of the Rule. In other words, the suspension order by operation of the Rule renders the suspension invalid for want of order of the competent authority on the recommendation of the Review Committee. (Para 21)

In the present case, the competent authority has merely communicated the recommendations of the Review Committee acting like a post office without either accepting or revoking the order of suspension. There is no application of mind as to whether the recommendation of the Review Committee is to be accepted or not. The competent authority has to pass an order either extending or revoking the suspension, though the order need not be a speaking and reasoned order. (Para 22)

Present petition challenges order dated 10.11.2023, passed by Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Suneet Kumar, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri V.K. Tiwari, learned counsel for the original applicant.

2. Petitioner-Union of India/Department of Post Office, by the instant writ petition, is challenging the order dated 10 November 2023, passed by the Central Administrative Tribunal, Allahabad¹, whereby, the impugned suspension order before the Tribunal suspending the first respondent came to be set aside for the reason that Sub-rule (6) of Rule 10 of Central Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules 1965², was not complied. The operative portion of the order reads thus:

"24. Since the suspension order passed on 25.11.2019 was not extended within the expiry of 90 days by way of a formal order thus clearly contradicting the laid down procedures under Rule 6 and 7 of the CCS (CCA) Rules 1965, subsequent extension of the suspension order after expiry of the 90 days will not validate it as mere issuing of minutes of the review meeting cannot be treated as a formal order of the extension of suspension order passed at initial state. For this simple reason and considering the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court and Hon'ble High Court as have been quoted hereinabove and comparing the same with the facts and circumstances of the present matter, I am of the view that plea taken by the applicant is liable to be allowed.

25. Accordingly, the instant original application is allowed and the impugned order dated 25.11.2019 is set aside. Respondents are further directed to reinstate the applicant to his original duties as he was discharging prior to the suspension order dated 25.11.2019 issued against him along with all consequential benefits as per the established rules and procedures."

3. The respondent employee/original applicant was working as a Postal Assistant, he came to be suspended vide order dated 25 November 2009, passed by the Superintendent of Post Offices, Varanasi. Rule 10 of Rules 1965, provides for suspension by the appointing authority or any authority to which it is subordinate or the disciplinary authority or any authority empowered in that behalf by general or special order.

4. Sub-rule (6), incorporated on 3 January 2004, provides that the suspension made or deemed to have been made under this Rule shall be reviewed by the authority which is competent to modify or revoke the suspension before expiry of ninety days from the date of order of suspension on the recommendation of the Review Committee.

5. The competent authority is required to pass an order on the recommendation of the Review Committee either extending or revoking the suspension. The Rule further provides extension of suspension, however, suspension shall not be for a period exceeding 180 days at a time. Sub-rule (7) further provides that suspension made under the Rule shall not be valid after period of ninety days, unless it is extended after review.

6. Sub-rule (6) and (7) of Rule 10 is extracted:

"6. An order of suspension made or deemed to have been made under this rule shall be reviewed by the authority which is competent to modify or revoke the suspension before expiry of ninety days from the date of order of suspension on the recommendation of the Review Committee constituted for the purpose and pass orders either extending or revoking the suspension. Subsequent reviews shall be made before expiry of the extended period of suspension. Extension of suspension shall not be for a period of exceeding one hundred and eighty days at a time.

7. Notwithstanding anything contained in Sub-rule (5)(a), an order of suspension made or deemed to have been made under Sub-Rule (1) or (2) of this rule shall not be valid after a period of ninety days unless it is extended after review, for a further period before the expiry of ninety days."

7. The learned Tribunal after perusal of the record was of the opinion that the mandate of Sub-rule (6) of Rule 10 was not complied as the order of suspension on the recommendation of the Review Committee, the competent authority had not passed any order thereon, either extending or revoking the suspension.

8. The minutes of Suspension Cases Reviewing Committee³ held on 20 February 2020, Varanasi West Division, has been placed on record.

9. The Review Committee of three members, considered the case of the respondent/original applicant and the committee having regard to the gravity of the case recommended continuance of suspension of the official for next 180 days w.e.f. 23 February 2020, i.e., after expiry of ninety days from the date of suspension order (25 November, 2019).

10. On the very same minutes of the Review Committee, the competent authority, i.e., Superintend Post Office, Varanasi, made an endorsement marking the copy of the recommendation of the Review Committee to the respondent/original applicant and other officials. In other words, the competent authority did not pass any order either extending or revoking the suspension on the recommendations of the Reviewing Committee in terms of Sub-rule (6) of Rule 10 of Rules 1965.

11. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioner submits that by making an endorsement forwarding the copy of the Review Committee, would tantamount to deemed acceptance of the recommendation of the Reviewing Committee.

12. Submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner is devoid of merit and on misreading of Sub-rule (6) and (7) of Rule 10 of Rules 1965. Mere forwarding the recommendation to the employee by the competent authority does not tantamount to either accepting or revoking the suspension by the competent authority.

13. The Sub-rule (6) mandates that an order has to be passed on the recommendation of the Review Committee either to accept or revoke the suspension. Sub-rule (6) and (7) of Rule 10 is couched in such a manner making the Rule mandatory. In the event the suspension order is not extended or revoked within ninety days, negative consequences follow automatically, i.e., suspension made shall not be valid after ninety days, notwithstanding any thing contained in Sub-rule 5(a) of Rules 1965.

14. Sub-section (6) employs the expression that suspension 'shall be reviewed' by the authority. The review is mandatorily required to be made in view of the consequences that follow in the event of failure to review the suspension within the stipulated time.

15. The question that arises for consideration is, as to whether, the word 'shall' in Sub-rule (6) is mandatory or directory, read with Sub-rule (7) of Rule 10.

16. In C. Bright vs. District Collector and others, Supreme Court was of the opinion that while interpreting the word 'shall' or 'may', is whether mandatory or directory, court would have to ascertain the real intention of the legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the statute. Para-8 reads thus:

"A well settled rule of interpretation of the statutes is that the use of the word "shall" in a statute, does not necessarily mean that in every case it is mandatory that unless the words of the statute are literally followed, the proceeding or the outcome of the proceeding, would be invalid. It is not always correct to say that if the word "may" has been used, the statute is only permissive or directory in the sense that non-compliance with those provisions will not render the proceeding invalid and that when a statute uses the word "shall", prima facie, it is mandatory, but the Court may ascertain the real intention of the legislature by carefully attending to the whole scope of the statute. The principle of literal construction of the statute alone in all circumstances without examining the context and scheme of the statute may not serve the purpose of the statute."

17. In Remington Rand of India Limited vs. Workmen, the Supreme Court held that Section 17 of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 prescribing time limit of thirty days for publication of award by labour court is directory, inter alia, for the reason that the non-publication of the award within the period of thirty days does not entail any penalty.

18. The tests for finding out a provision is mandatory or directory. The principles for which the provision has been made, its nature, the intention of the legislature in making the provision and the language of the provision are to be considered.

19. In Mannalal Khetan vs. Kedar Nath Khetan, while dealing with Section 108 of the Companies Act, 1956, a three Judge Bench of Supreme Court referring to Raza Buland Sugar Co. Limited vs. Municipal Board, Rampur, held that prohibition and negative words can rarely be directory. It has been aptly stated that there is one way to obey the command and that is completely to refrain from doing the forbidden act. Therefore, negative prohibitory and exclusive words are indicative of the legislative intent when the statute is mandatory. (Refer : Bhikraj Jaipuria vs. Union of India⁸)

20. The aforementioned authority was referred in Union of India and others vs. A.K. Pandey. In other words word 'shall' followed by negative or prohibitive words are ordinarily indicative of mandatory intent of the provision.

21. Accordingly, from the mandate of Sub-rule (7) of Rule 10 of Rules 1965, employs negative and prohibitive words making the provision mandatory. After expiry of ninety days, the order of suspension shall not be valid in the eye of the Rule. In other words, the suspension order by operation of the Rule renders the suspension invalid for want of order of the competent authority on the recommendation of the Review Committee.

22. In the given facts of the present case, the competent authority has merely communicated the recommendations of the Review Committee acting like a post office without either accepting or revoking the order of suspension. There is no application of mind as to whether the recommendation of the Review Committee is to be accepted or not. The competent authority has to pass an order either extending or revoking the suspension, though the order need not be a speaking and reasoned order.

23. We do not find merit in the submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner.

24. The writ petition being devoid of merit is, accordingly, dismissed.

25. No cost.

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners.

2. Correction application is allowed.

3. In the first line of first paragraph "Dr. D. K. Tiwari" be read in place of

"Shri V.K. Tiwari", in the second line of second paragraph "2022" be read in place of "2023" and in the third line of third paragraph "2019" be read in place of "2009". All the corrections have been made in the order dated 24.04.2023.

THE HON'BLE IRSHAD ALI, J.

Shivendra Vashishtha ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Vishal Verma

Counsel for the Respondent:
C.S.C., Mahendra Pratap, Sanjay Bhasin

A. Service Law – Appointment – Discrimination in allowing to join the post cannot be permitted in similarly situated selected candidates. It is evident that an advertisement was published and on the basis of appointment letter issued to the petitioner along with six other persons, four persons namely, Neeraj Kumar Gupta, Santosh Kumar Upadhyaya, Sanjeev Singh and Seema Verma, were given joining in Medical College, Azamgarh. Later on, their appointment has been cancelled vide order dated 22.05.2009. Subsequently, as a result of order of this Court in several writ petitions, the order dated 22.05.2009 was recalled by the respondents and the aforementioned four persons were permitted to re-join their respective post. However, the petitioner, whose name finds place at serial No. 4 in the aforesaid list, has not been permitted to join on the ground of technicalities. This fact itself has been admitted in the counter affidavit that four persons were initially permitted to join on the instructions of higher authorities. Therefore, such kind of discrimination cannot be permitted to go on. (Para 13)

If the aforementioned four persons were the part of same selection under same advertisement and were permitted to join the post under same appointment letter, there is no occasion to not permit the petitioner to join his respective post. (Para 14)

Writ petition allowed. (E-4)

Present petition prays for issuance of a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to allow the petitioner to work on the post of Pharmacist in pursuance of appointment order dated 24.02.2009 and in the light of judgments and orders dated 16.07.2010, 22.02.2010 & 23.03.2010, with a direction to the respondents to issue joining letter to the petitioner and to consider and decide the representation dated 15.07.2010.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vishal Verma, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Additional C.S.C. for the respondent - State.

2. By means of present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for issuance of a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to allow the petitioner to work on the post of Pharmacist in pursuance of appointment order dated 24.02.2009 with a direction to the respondents to issue joining letter to the petitioner with a further prayer to issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondents to consider and decide the representation dated 15.07.2010 and to allow the petitioner to work on the post in the light of judgments and orders dated 16.07.2010, 22.02.2010 & 23.03.2010.

3. Brief facts giving rise to the present writ petition are as under:

Sr. No.	Relevant Facts of the Case
a.	An advertisement was issued on 29.08.2008 by the Director General of Medical Education and Training (for short, "DGME"), Lucknow for the post of Pharmacist in Government Medical College, Kannauj.
b.	On 21.01.2009, a notification was issued that all the applicants who possess 62% marks in the diploma of pharmacy shall appear on 28.01.2009 to 03.02.2009.
c.	On 02.02.2009, a call letter was sent to the petitioner with other six persons by the DGME to appear in the interview for the post of Pharmacist and in pursuance thereof, the petitioner appeared in the interview.
d.	On 18.02.2009, a letter was endorsed to DGME by the Principal of Medical College, Azamgarh asking to fill the different posts from the waiting list of Medical College, Kannauj.
e.	On 24.02.2009, an appointment letter to the petitioner along with other six persons was issued by the Medical College, Kannauj to join on the post of Pharmacist in Medical College, Azamgarh. Thereafter, the petitioner was not allowed to join, however, four persons were allowed to join in pursuance to the said appointment letter.
f.	On 22.05.2009, the appointment of the four persons, who had join the services, was cancelled.

g.	On 25.06.2009, Hon'ble High Court has stayed the cancellation order dated 22.05.2009 and the four persons were allowed to rejoin on 04.11.2009.
h.	On 15.07.2010, the petitioner made representation to the concerned authorities, which is lying pending consideration and no order has been passed till date.
i.	Hence, the present writ petition has been filed before this Court.

4. Submission of learned counsel for the petitioner is that appointment of the petitioner was made after following due procedure and the petitioner has faced selection committee and appointment letter has been issued to him and on the ground of any lapse / technical objection on the part of the respondents, the petitioner should not be deprived.

5. He further submitted that there was no allegation against the petitioner for concealment or fraud, therefore, he should not be paralyzed by not allowing him to join the post.

6. He next submitted that name of the petitioner finds place at serial No.4 in the appointment letter issued to the petitioner along with six other persons. He submitted that under the order of this Hon'ble Court, four persons have been permitted to re-join the said post except the petitioner and in this regard the petitioner has made representation also, which is lying pending and no action has been taken thereupon. Therefore, the respondents cannot be permitted to adopt pick and choose formula adopting discriminatory policy by depriving the petitioner.

7. On the other hand, learned Additional C.S.C. submitted that the advertisement dated 29.08.2008 was published with regard to posts including the post of Pharmacist for appointing the candidates in Medical College, Kannauj. He submitted that case of the petitioner is that he has been appointed by Dr. R.K. Gupta, the Principal of Medical College, Kannauj from the waiting list prepared for appointments in Medical College, Kannauj. He submitted that respondent No.2 has never authorized to the Principal of Medical College, Kannauj to issue such appointment letters appointing the candidates for Medical College, Azamgarh and he was not the competent authority to do so.

8. He further submitted that similar situated persons to the petitioner, namely, Santosh Kumar Upadhyaya, Neeraj Gupta, Sandeep Kumar Singh and Sushri Seema Verma produced photocopy of the appointment letter and were permitted to join the post on the basis of instructions issued by higher authorities. He submitted that the petitioner has neither submitted original copy of the appointment letter nor the same is available with him. He further submitted that the appointment letters were having a rider to join within 15 days, and in case of non-joining within 15 days, the same will be automatically cancelled, therefore, the petitioner cannot benefit of the same after such a long period.

9. He next submitted that the appointment granted to similarly situated persons was cancelled by the respondents, which was stayed by this Hon'ble Court in various writ petitions, however, the case of the petitioner is not covered with those candidates, as neither the petitioner joined the post in question nor his appointment was cancelled at any point of time. He submitted that the petitioner has filed the writ petition after more than one year and two months, therefore, no cause of action remains and the writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

10. He lastly submitted that the Principal of Medical College, Kannauj is not the appointing authority to an employee at Medical College, Azamgarh. He submitted that no procedure has been followed to appoint the candidates in Medical College, Azamgarh, as neither there was advertisement issued nor selection by interview, appointment letters and joining were conducted by the appointing authority.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner on the basis of rejoinder affidavit submitted that the DGME has the full jurisdiction to fill vacancy in any Government Medical College running in the State. An appointment letter to the petitioner along with six other persons was issued by Principal, Medical College Kannauj on 24.02.2009 to join the post of Pharmacist in Medical College, Azamgarh. He submitted that authenticity of appointment letter dated 24.2.2009 is itself proved from joining of other four persons, namely, Neeraj Kumar Gupta, Santosh Kumar Upadhyaya, Sanjeev Singh and Seema Verma and the respondents have denied the joining to the petitioner on the basis of technical objections.

12. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

13. On perusal, it is evident that an advertisement was published and on the basis of appointment letter issued to the Service Commission in consultation with the State Government does not reflect that the maximum capping limit of 21% for the post which is reserved for the Scheduled Caste, has ever been disturbed. (Para 15)

B. The preliminary ground for challenging the impugned order is the action of the respondents notifying the 4 posts for the post of Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College exclusively for unreserved category shall exceed the maximum capping of 50% of reservation in favour of the unreserved category and the same is contrary to the guiding principles laid down in the case of Indra Sawhney Vs Union of India (AIR 1993 SC 477). (Para 18)

The reservation applicable for reserved category especially for the Scheduled Caste is 21% which comes down in fraction to 1.68 and as such, 1 post out of 8 has to be kept reserved for reserved category candidate belongs to the Scheduled Caste and as per the factual narration, one Sri Suresh Chandra is already rendering his services as Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College and as such, there is a strict compliance of the reservation mandated under 21%. (Para 19)

So far as the application of roster is concerned, the same is also applied by way of de-categorization of the posts in reserved category, unreserved category and other backward classes. It is the admitted fact that one post has been already occupied by reserved category under Scheduled Caste and two posts under the Other Backward Classes are also occupied and as such, the notification issued for the four posts for unreserved category, cannot be termed as illegal. (Para 20)

C. Words and Phrases – ‘posts’, ‘vacancies’

- The expressions ‘posts’ and ‘vacancies’, often used in the executive instructions providing for reservations, are rather problematical. The word ‘post’ means an appointment, job, office or employment. A position to which a person is appointed. ‘Vacancy’ means an unoccupied post or office.

The plain meaning of the two expressions make it clear that there must be a ‘post’ in existence to enable the ‘vacancy’ to occur. The cadre-strength is always measured by the number of posts comprising the cadre. Right to be considered for appointment can only be claimed in respect of a post in a cadre. As a consequence the percentage of reservation has to be worked out in relation to the number of posts which form the cadre-strength. The concept of ‘vacancy’ has no relevance in operating the percentage of reservation. (Para 6)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Present petition challenges Rolling Advertisement No. D-1/E-1/2023 dated 02.02.2023 in respect of Uttar Pradesh Medical Department (Ayurvedic Department) only and prays for directions to the Respondent no.2 to issue a fresh advertisement for the Posts Principal after considering the applied proper reservation policy accordingly.

(Delivered by Hon’ble Saurabh Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Jigyasa Singh, learned counsel holding brief of Ms. Mamta, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Satyendra Kumar Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent nos.1 and 4 and Sri Fuzail Ahmad Ansari, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent no.2.

2. The present petition has been filed seeking the following relief:-

"a) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari, calling for record to quash the Rolling Advertisement No.D-1/E-1/2023 dated 02.02.2023 in respect of Uttar Pradesh Medical Department (Ayurvedic Department) only (Annexure -1 to the writ petition)

b) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus, to command the Respondent no.2 to issue a fresh advertisement for the Posts Principal after considering the applied proper reservation policy accordingly in respect of the Advertisement No.D-1/E-1/2023 dated 02.02.2023 in respect of Uttar Pradesh Medical Department (Ayurvedic Department)/or decide the representation/letter of the petitioner dated 17.02.2023 (Annexure No.5 to the writ petition)."

3. It is the case of the petitioner that the cadre strength of the Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College is 8 in number and as such, if the notification for advertising the vacancy for 4 posts which is exclusively for unreserved category shall violate the reservation policy along with the roster which is applicable for reserving at least one post out of four posts advertised through the impugned advertisement notification, in that case, the advertisement notification dated 02.02.2023 is bad in law.

4. For substantiating the arguments as raised on behalf of the petitioner, learned counsel for the petitioner apprised the Court that the reservation may not be exceeded from 50% in any case if at all the same has been notified for the unreserved category, in the case it is 100% vacancies as notified are exclusively for unreserved category.

5. In absence of application of 100 point roster as defined under the 1994 Act¹ shall be applicable which crystal clearly defines that second, fourth, sixth and eighth posts shall only be filled up by unreserved category.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner also relied upon the judgment rendered by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in case of State of U.P. and others Vs. Sangam Nath Pandey and others connected with U.P. Public Service Commission Vs. Manoj Kumar Singh and others. The extract of the abovementioned judgment which is related to the instant matter wherein the fraction of reservation along with the roster has been clarified by Hon'ble the Supreme Court is reproduced hereinbelow:-

"25. In order to determine as to what would be the backlog vacancies, it is necessary to have a look at the relevant provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Public Services (Reservation for Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Other Backward Classes) Act 1994 as amended by the Act No. 1 of 2002.

"2 (d) "year of recruitment" in relation to a vacancy means a period of twelve months commencing on the first of July of a year within which the process of direct recruitment against which such vacancy is initiated.

3. Amendment of Section 3 - In Section 3 of the Principal Act, -

(a) for sub-sections (1), (2) and (3) the following sub-section shall be substituted, namely :-

(1) In public services and posts, there shall be reserved at the stage of direct recruitment, the following percentage of vacancies to which recruitments are to be made in accordance with the roster referred to in sub-section (5) in favour of the persons belonging to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Other Backward Classes of citizens -

(a) in the case of Scheduled Castes Twenty one percent

(b) in the case of Scheduled Tribes Two percent

(c) in the case of Other Backward Classes of citizens Twenty seven percent Provided that the reservation under clause) shall not apply to the category of Other Backward Classes of citizens specified in Schedule II :

Provided further that reservation of vacancies for all categories of persons shall not exceed in any year of recruitment fifty percent of the total vacancies of that year as also fifty percent of the cadre strength of the services to which the recruitment is to be made.

(2) If, in respect of any year of recruitment any vacancy reserved for any category of persons under sub-section (1) remains unfilled, such vacancy shall be carried forward and be filled through special recruitments in that very year or in succeeding year or years of recruitment as a separate class of vacancy and such class of vacancy shall not be considered together with the vacancies of the year of recruitment in which it is filled and also for the purpose of determining the ceiling of fifty percent reservation of the total vacancies of that year notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in sub-section (1) ;

(3) Where a vacancy reserved for the Scheduled Tribes remains unfilled even after three special recruitments made under sub-section (2), such vacancy may be filled from amongst the persons belonging to the Scheduled Castes."

(b) (i) Sub-sections (3-A),(3-B) shall be omitted;

(ii) Sub-section (4) shall be omitted;

(c) for sub-section (5), the following subsection shall be substituted, namely :-

"(5) The State Government shall for applying the reservation under sub-section (1), by a notified order, issue a roster comprising the total cadre strength of the public service or post indicating therein the reserve points and the roster so issued shall be implemented in the form of a running account from year to year until the reservation for various categories of persons mentioned in sub-section (1) is achieved and the operation of the roster and the running account shall, thereafter, come to an end, and when a vacancy arises thereafter in public service or post the same shall be filled from amongst the persons belonging to the category to which the post belongs in the roster."

A bare perusal of the above would show that the Act regulates the extent of reservation in Public Services and Posts in favour of the persons belonging to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Other Backward Classes of citizens and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. It also provides for a self-contained mechanism as to how the posts shall be distributed among the different categories according to 100 point roster."

7. In the abovementioned referred judgment as relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner, the position of vacancy in respect of reservation which has to be applicable as per the roster maintained in pursuance of the 100 point roster defined under the Act of 1994, Hon'ble the Supreme Court further clarified that the roster shall be applicable strictly in consonance with the reservation and if the same has to be properly given credence to the yearwise vacancy arising out of vacant posts created after retirement or vacated on any reason, the same has to be strictly filled up with the reservation available for each and every category and the same has been discussed in detail which is reproduced hereinbelow:-

"38. The exercise of identifying the year-wise and cadre-wise vacancies ought to have been conducted by the State prior to the issuance of the advertisement as rightly noticed by the learned single Judge. The purpose of introducing a roster system was to ensure that the percentages of reservation provided for various categories of persons is effectively and speedily achieved. This can only be done if the department concerned identifies the year-wise vacancies in the cadre. Once the vacancies are identified, it is enjoined upon the authorities to ensure that the selection procedure is completed speedily. This is necessary to avoid uncertainty to all categories of candidates.

39. General category, as well as, the reserved category candidates are likely to be adversely affected in case the vacancies are not filled within a reasonable period of time. As a result of undue delay, certain candidates will always be in the danger of becoming overage to apply for some particular posts falling in a particular year of recruitment. Unnecessary lethargy in filling up the posts would also lead to further uncertainty and chaos among the recruits with regard to their seniority, confirmation and promotions. Such a situation only gives rise to unavoidable litigation, lasting for many long years. This case epitomizes such malaise.

40. In our opinion, the State Government, in the present case, ought to have initiated the necessary selection procedure upon due verification of the posts available for the reserved categories. It was not sufficient to merely send the requisition to the Public Service Commission. It was necessary for the State to pursue the matter with the Public Service Commission for completion of the selection process. Otherwise, the very purpose of introducing the roster system and a running account would be totally defeated. We may reiterate here the observations made by this Court in the case of R.K. Sabharwal (supra). With regard to the operation of the roster system, in the aforesaid case, it was observed as follows:-

"5. We see considerable force in the second contention raised by the learned counsel for the petitioners. The reservations provided under the impugned Government instructions are to be operated in accordance with the roster to be maintained in each Department. The roster is implemented in the form of running account from year to year. The purpose of "running account" is to make sure that the Scheduled Castes/Schedule Tribes and Backward Classes get their percentage of reserved posts. The concept of "running account" in the impugned instructions has to be so interpreted that it does not result in excessive reservation. "16% of the posts ..." are reserved for members of the Scheduled Castes and Backward Classes. In a lot of 100 posts those falling at Serial Numbers 1, 7, 15, 22, 30, 37, 44, 51, 58, 65, 72, 80, 87 and 91 have been reserved and earmarked in the roster for the Scheduled Castes. Roster points 26 and 76 are reserved for the members of Backward Classes. It is thus obvious that when recruitment to a cadre starts then 14 posts earmarked in the roster are to be filled from amongst the members of the Scheduled Castes. To illustrate, first post in a cadre must go to the Scheduled Caste and thereafter the said class is entitled to 7th, 15th, 22nd and onwards up to 91st post. When the total number of posts in a cadre are filled by the operation of the roster then the result envisaged by the impugned instructions is achieved. In other words, in a cadre of 100 posts when the posts earmarked in the roster for the Scheduled Castes and the Backward Classes are filled the percentage of reservation provided for the reserved categories is achieved. We see no justification to operate the roster thereafter. The "running account" is to operate only till the quota provided under the impugned instructions is reached and not thereafter. Once the prescribed percentage of posts is filled the numerical test of adequacy is satisfied and thereafter the roster does not survive. The percentage of reservation is the desired representation of the Backward Classes in the State Services and is consistent with the demographic estimate based on the proportion worked out in relation to their population. The numerical quota of posts is not a shifting boundary but represents a figure with due application of mind. Therefore, the only way to assure equality of opportunity to the Backward Classes and the general category is to permit the roster to operate till the time the respective appointees/promotees occupy the posts meant for them in the roster. The operation of the roster and the "running account" must come to an end thereafter. The vacancies arising in the cadre, after the initial posts are filled, will pose no difficulty. As and when there is a vacancy whether permanent or temporary in a particular post the same has to be filled from amongst the category to which the post belonged in the roster. For example the Scheduled Caste persons holding the posts at roster points 1, 7, 15 retire then these slots are to be filled from amongst the persons belonging to the Scheduled Castes. Similarly, if the persons holding the post at points 8 to 14 or 23 to 29 retire then these slots are to be filled from among the general category. By following this procedure there shall neither be shortfall nor excess in the percentage of reservation.

6. The expressions 'posts' and 'vacancies', often used in the executive instructions providing for reservations, are rather problematical. The word 'post' means an appointment, job, office or employment. A position to which a person is appointed. 'Vacancy' means an unoccupied post or office. The plain meaning of the two expressions make it clear that there must be a 'post' in existence to enable the 'vacancy' to occur. The cadre-strength is always measured by the number of posts comprising the cadre. Right to be considered for appointment can only be claimed in respect of a post in a cadre. As a consequence the percentage of reservation has to be worked out in relation to the number of posts which form the cadre-strength. The concept of 'vacancy' has no relevance in operating the percentage of reservation.

7. When all the roster points in a cadre are filled the required percentage of reservation is achieved. Once the total cadre has full representation of the Scheduled Castes/Tribes and Backward Classes in accordance with the reservation policy then the vacancies arising thereafter in the cadre are to be filled from amongst the category of persons to whom the respective vacancies belong. Jeevan Reddy, J. speaking for the majority in Indra Sawhney v. Union of India (1992 Supp (3) SCC 217) observed as under: (SCC p. 737, para 814)

"Take a unit/service/cadre comprising 1000 posts. The reservation in favour of Scheduled Tribes, Scheduled Castes and Other Backward Classes is 50% which means that out of the 1000 posts 500 must be held by the members of these classes i.e. 270 by Other Backward Classes, 150 by Scheduled Castes and 80 by Scheduled Tribes. At a given point of time, let us say, the number of members of OBCs in the unit/service/category is only 50, a shortfall of 220. Similarly the number of members of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes is only 20 and 5 respectively, shortfall of 130 and 75. If the entire service/cadre is taken as a unit and the backlog is sought to be made up, then the open competition channel has to be choked altogether for a number of years until the number of members of all Backward Classes reaches 500, i.e., till the quota meant for each of them is filled up. This may take quite a number of years because the number of vacancies arising each year are not many. Meanwhile, the members of open competition category would become age-barred and ineligible. Equality of opportunity in their case would become a mere mirage. It must be remembered that the equality of opportunity guaranteed by clause (1) is to each individual citizen of the country while clause (4) contemplates special provision being made in favour of socially disadvantaged classes. Both must be balanced against each other. Neither should be allowed to eclipse the other. For the above reason, we hold that for the purpose of applying the rule of 50% a year should be taken as the unit and not the entire strength of the cadre, service or the unit as the case may be."

42. The facts narrated above would indicate is that the situation in the present case is almost as it was depicted by this Court in the case of Indra Sawhney (supra).

43. We, therefore, reiterate that it is necessary for the department to identify year-wise vacancies for the cadre. It is also necessary to fill up the posts speedily in order to avoid certain candidates being rendered ineligible as they may have become overage. It is for this reason that Section 3 has placed importance on the year of recruitment as also on the process of selection.

44. In our opinion, the authorities have been rather casual in their approach in implementing the reservation policy, in letter and spirit. We are, however, conscious of the fact that the 367 posts lying vacant for a number of years are meant only for the reserved categories. They have been calculated on the basis of the percentages reserved for various categories. In segregation of the aforesaid posts, none of the unreserved categories would be deprived of any posts which ought legitimately to have fallen to their share. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the interest of justice, in the peculiar facts of this case, demands that the course adopted by the State Government in segregating 367 posts for special recruitment ought not to be disturbed. "

8. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel as well as learned counsel appearing on behalf of the Commission vehemently opposed the prayer as made in the petition and supported the advertisement notification issued for recruitment of four vacant posts for the post of Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College which has been strictly in accordance with the reservation available for the reserved category and in consonance with the 100 point roster which is mandatory to be applied at the time of filling up the cadre strength which is only 8 in numbers.

9. The vital aspect which has been mentioned at the time of hearing of the matter that the total cadre strength of the Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College is only 8 wherein as per the reserved category for Scheduled Caste that is maximum limit to 21%, it comes to 1.68 posts which is strictly defined under the Act of 1994 as mentioned under Section 3(1) which is also quoted hereinbelow:-

“3. Reservation in favour of Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Other Backward Classes. - [(1) In public services and posts, there shall be reserved at the stage of direct recruitment, the following percentage of vacancies to which recruitment's are to be made in accordance with the roster referred to in sub-section (5) in favour of the persons belonging to Scheduled Castes, Scheduled Tribes and Other Backward Classes of citizens, -

(a)	in the case of Scheduled Castes	Twenty- one per cent;
(b)	in the case of Scheduled Tribes	Two per cent;
(c)	in case of Other Backward Classes of citizens	Twenty- seven per cent;

Provided that the reservation under clause (c) shall not apply to the category of Other Backward Classes of citizens specified in Schedule II:

Provided further that reservation of vacancies for all categories of persons shall not exceed in any year of recruitment fifty per cent of the total vacancies of that year as also fifty per cent of the cadre strength of the service to which the recruitment is to be made.”

10. While substantiating the stand taken up by learned counsel appearing on behalf of the Commission, he also mentioned Section 3(5) of the 1994 Act which clearly says that the State Government shall for applying the reservation under sub-section (1) of Section 3 by a notified order, issue a roster, which shall be continuously applied till it is exhausted.

11. It is also the admitted fact and position which is to be taken into consideration that if the fraction comes to 1.68, it will be only one post shall be available for reserved category.

12. Learned Standing Counsel came up with specific instructions which are taken on record that one post of the reserved category has already been occupied wherein a regular incumbent is rendering his services as Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College and as such, the notification for selection of four posts for unreserved category for the same post is justified in nature and the same is in the strict compliance of the 1994 Act.

13. The entire stand which has been taken up by the respondent nos.2 is also based on the verdicts pronounced by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of M.R. Balaji Vs. The State of Mysore and R.K. Sabharwal and others Vs. State of Punjab and others.

14. After giving due consideration to the submissions extended by learned counsels for parties and giving regard to the judgments cited by both the counsels, the instant matter has to be testified only on two grounds:-

(i) Whether the number of posts as notified, is in accordance to the reservation available for reserved category?

(ii) The total cadre strength of the posts of Principal has been filled up, notified under the advertisement notification which is under challenged in the instant petition is fulfilling the roster or not?

15. The ratio of the judgment as relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner in case of the State of U.P. Vs. Sangam Nath Pandey connected with U.P. Public Service Commission Vs. Manoj Kumar Singh (supra) clearly defines that the posts which are meant for the reserved category, would be offered only to the reserved category so long as the reserved roster point are not occupied by reserved category, but at the same time, there is hardly any whisper with regard to exceeding the limit of the reservation and the case as mentioned by learned counsel for the petitioner with regard to reserving two posts out of total cadre strength of the Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College which is 8 in number then in that case, the reservation shall available for reserved category i.e. specifically for the Scheduled Caste to the tune of 21% shall exceed to 25%, moreover, the roster as mentioned by learned counsel for the petitioner which is 100 point roster and the bifurcation of the posts available for the reserved category as well as for the unreserved category shall be applicable for the 8 posts which is total cadre strength of the post of the Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College has to be recalculated in terms of 100 point roster, and as such, the entire exercise as initiated by the U.P. Public Service Commission in consultaion with the State Government does not reflect that the maximum capping limit of 21% for the post which is reserved for the Scheduled Caste, has ever been disturbed.

16. The ratio of the judgment as referred by learned counsel for the petitioner has already been given credence and the action of the respondents is strictly in accordance with the same.

17. The two judgments which have been relied upon by learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent no.2. the case of R.K. Sabharwal (supra) has already been discussed in the judgment of Sangam Nath Pandey (supra) as relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner and the same is already discussed in the preceding paragraphs and action of the respondents is strictly in accordance with the same which needs not to be reiterated again. After having the judgment passed in M.R. Balaji (supra) rendered by Hon'ble the Supreme Court which is solely based on capping limit of reservation which is not in dispute at the time of challenging the advertisement notification in the instant petition.

18. The preliminary ground for challenging the order which impugned the present petition is the action of the respondents in shape of notifying the four posts for the post of Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College exclusively for unreserved category shall exceed the maximum capping of 50% of reservation in favour of the unreserved category and the same is contrary to the guiding principles laid down in the case of Indra Sawhney Vs. Union of India.

19. Answering the abovementioned framed questions, it is crystal clear that the reservation applicable for reserved category especially for the Scheduled Caste which is 21% which comes down in fraction to 1.68 and as such, one post out of 8 has to be kept reserved for reserved category candidate belongs to the Scheduled Caste and as per the factual narration made by learned Standing Counsel, one Sri Suresh Chandra is already rendering his services as Principal, Government Ayurvedic Medical College and as such, there is a strict compliance of the reservation mandated under 21%.

20. So far as the application of roster is concerned, the same is also applied by way of de-categorization of the posts in reserved category, unreserved category and other backward classes. It is the admitted fact which has been narrated in the petition as well as apprised through the instructions by learned Standing Counsel that one post has been already occupied by reserved category under Scheduled Caste and two posts under the Other Backward Classes are also occupied and as such, the notification issued for the four posts for unreserved category, cannot be termed as illegal.

21. In view of the aforementioned observations, the writ petition stands dismissed.

A. Service Law – Suspension – Disciplinary Proceedings - Uttar Pradesh Government Servant (Discipline and Appeal) Rules, 1999 - Rule 7 – The suspension order can be passed only on consideration of the charges as levelled against the petitioner. The suspension order cannot be passed merely on assumption. Moreover, at the time of passing the suspension order, the Disciplinary Authority has to exercise his discretion by way of applying his independent and free mind by way of quantifying that whether the suspension passed against the delinquent or not for substantiating his arguments. (Para 4, 5)

In the present case, the order of suspension has been passed by the Disciplinary Authority only on the recommendation of the Tehsildar who has been nominated as an Inquiry Officer vide order dated 27.02.2023 for conduction of fair inquiry, wherein it has been presumed by the Inquiry Officer that if the petitioner will remain at the services of posting where he is presently posted, he may tamper evidences which may not culminate into fair inquiry. (Para 10)

Since the recommendations for suspension have been made by the Inquiry Officer under the disciplinary proceedings initiated against the petitioner and not by any other authority, who is not related to disciplinary proceedings, there is hardly any scope for interference in the order impugned. (Para 11, 12)

Writ petition dismissed. (E-4)

Precedent distinguished:

V.N. Daipuria Vs St. of U.P. ors., Writ-A No. 58619 of 2015, decided on 27.10.2015 (Para 7, 9, 10)

Present petition assails suspension order dated 21.03.2023, passed by Sub Divisional Magistrate- Bahedi, Bareilly. And, prays for direction to respondents not to disturb peaceful continuance of petitioner as Lekhpal-Tehsil-Bahedi, District-Bareilly and also to pay him full salary.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Anurag Pandey, learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

2. Present petition has been filed seeking the following reliefs:-

"i. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari calling for the records of the case and to quash the impugned suspension order dated 21.03.2023 passed by the Sub Divisional Magistrate-Bahedi, Bareilly (Annexure No. 12 to the writ petition).

ii. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus commanding the respondents not to disturb the peaceful continuance of petitioner as Lekhpal-Tehsil-Bahedi, District-Bareilly and also to pay him full salary month by month as and when same falls due."

3. It is the case of the petitioner that under some charges levelled against him on the basis of the report submitted by the Naib Tehsildar approved by the Tehsildar culminated into initiation of disciplinary proceedings under Rule 7 of the U.P. Government Servant (Discipline & Appeal) Rule 1999 in which the chargesheet has been served upon the petitioner and the same has been replied. Thereafter, inquiry has been initiated by the Tehsildar who has been designated and appointed as an Inquiry Officer vide order dated 27.02.2023 at the time of framing charges against the petitioner.

4. On 21.03.2023, it has been reported by the Tehsildar/Inquiry Officer that there are ample chances of tampering of evidences by the petitioner and as such, he may be put under suspension for conduction of fair inquiry.

5. On receipt of the report as submitted by the Inquiry Officer, being the Disciplinary Authority, the respondent no. 2 passed the order dated 21.03.2023, through which the services of the petitioner has been suspended and the same has been put under challenge in the present petition, precisely on the ground that the suspension order can be passed only on consideration of the charges as levelled against the petitioner. The suspension order cannot be passed merely on assumption.

6. Moreover, at the time of passing the suspension order, the Disciplinary Authority has to exercise his discretion by way of applying his independent and free mind by way of quantifying that whether the suspension passed against the delinquent is necessary or not for substantiating his arguments as raised by the learned counsel for the petitioner.

7. The learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgment passed by the Division Bench of this Court in Writ A No. 58619 of 2015 (V.N.

Daipuria versus State of U.P. & 3 Others) decided on 27.10.2015. The operative and decisive portion of the judgment is quoted herein-below:-

"On the parameters of the provisions as quoted as above, the order of suspension in question indicates that in the present case that State Government had been apprised of the factual situation and State Government on being apprised with the report against the petitioner, the State Government in its turn proceeded to pass an order mentioning therein that the petitioner should be placed under suspension with immediate effect and disciplinary action be initiated under Rule 7 of U.P. Government Servant (Discipline & Appeal) Rules 1999. After receipt of the said letter in question, the Additional Director of Education (Basic), U.P., Allahabad, the Appointing Authority has proceeded to pass the order of suspension and by means of order of suspension the Appointing Authority has proceeded to categorically mention this fact that the said authority of suspension is being exercised by him pursuant to the decision taken by the State Government on 30.09.2015. Once such is the factual situation in the present case that discretion has been taken away by the State Government from the Appointing Authority by giving mandatory directive for placing petitioner under suspension whereas 'discretion' as per Blacks Law Dictionary means, 'individual judgement: the power of free decision making'. The Appointing Authority has not proceeded to exercise his independent mind and has exercised authority of suspension on the directives of State Government. Division Bench of this Court in the case of Dr. Arvind Kumar Rana Vs. State of U.P., 2007 (4) AWC, in reference of same set of Rules has taken the view that authority of suspension cannot be exercised on mere recommendation, the Appointing Authority is obligated to apply his own independent mind, the first proviso to Rule 4 (1) is mandatory and obligates Appointing Authority to prima facie record satisfaction about the seriousness of the allegations levelled and as to whether ultimately it may entail into awarding major penalty. Accordingly in the facts of the case passing of such suspension order has to be accepted being in breach of Rule 4 (1) of U.P. Government Servant (Discipline & Appeal) Rules 1999 as on its face value the discretion has not been independently exercised by the Appointing Authority in question. In view of this the order of suspension, based on this short ground is quashed but we leave it open to the Appointing Authority to apply his independent mind and if facts and circumstances do warrant to pass fresh order of suspension.

Writ petition is allowed, accordingly. "

8. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel vehemently opposed the prayer as made in the petition and supported the order dated 21.03.2023 passed by the respondent no. 2.

9. By bare perusal of the judgment passed by the Division Bench of this Court in V.N. Daipuria (Supra), it is crystal clear that the order of suspension has been held as illegal on the recommendation of the State Government and the same has been passed without invoking the discretion of the Disciplinary Authority and recording the reasons for suspension, the directions and the recommendations as made by the State Government only.

10. The judgment rendered by the Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court is not applicable in the present case, as the case in hand is slightly different. In the instant matter the order of suspension has been passed by the Disciplinary Authority only on the recommendation of the Tehsildar who has been nominated as an Inquiry Officer vide order dated 27.02.2023 for conduction of fair inquiry, wherein it has been presumed by the Inquiry Officer that if the petitioner will remain at the services of posting where he is presently posted, he may tamper evidences which may not culminate into fair inquiry.

11. The recommendation made by the Inquiry Officer is different as made in the case relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner and as such, the case of V.N. Daipuria is not applicable in the instant matter, since the recommendations for suspension has been made by the Inquiry Officer under the disciplinary proceedings initiated against the petitioner not by any other authority who is not related to disciplinary proceedings as in the case mentioned by learned counsel for the petitioner.

12. In view of the aforesaid facts and circumstances, there is hardly any scope for interference in the order dated 21.03.2023 which impugned the present petition and as such, the writ petition is liable to be and is accordingly, dismissed.

13. However, it is made clear that the respondent no. 2 may take every steps for finalizing the disciplinary proceedings as initiated against the petitioner, as expeditiously as possible, preferably, within a period of four months from the date of production of certified copy of this order.

14. It is however made clear that the petitioner will extend all possible support in favour of the respondent no. 2 for arriving over the directions as passed above.

Writ-A No. 8256 of 1992

Versus
Chairman, Bhagirath Gramin Bank & Ors.
...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:

M.K. Shukla, Ashish Mishra, Deo Raj Singh,
 K.C. Jauhari, Ramesh Kumar Srivastava,
 V.P. Misra, Vijai Kumar

Counsel for the Respondents:

C.S.C., A.K. Chaturvedi

A. Service Law – Dismissal – Service benefits - Bhagirath Gramin Bank Staff Service Regulation, 1980 - Disciplinary proceeding breaks into two stages. The first stage ends, when the disciplinary authority arrives at its conclusion on the basis of evidence, Inquiry Officers report and the delinquent employees reply to it. The second stage begins when the disciplinary authority decide to impose penalty on the basis of its conclusion. If the disciplinary authority decides to drop the disciplinary proceeding, the second stage is not even reached. (Para 23)

While the right to represent against the finding in the report is part of reasonable opportunity during the first stage of the inquiry before the disciplinary authority takes into consideration the finding in the report. The first right is the right to prove innocence. What is dispensed with is the opportunity of making representation on the penalty proposed and not of opportunity of making representation on the report of the inquiry officer. On receipt of Inquiry report, it is incumbent on the part of punishing authority to supply a copy of the inquiry report. (Para 23)

In the present case, the petitioner was selected and appointed on the post of Junior Clerk on 10.02.1983 on probation for a period of 12 months. Allegation of embezzlement of certain amount has been made against the petitioner. Thereafter, the petitioner placed under suspension vide order dated 08.05.1984 which was followed by a charge-sheet dated 09.07.1994 indicating therein the certain the charges of embezzlement of Banks money, breach of discipline and indolence and intentional negligence in discharge of duties. Vide order dated 11.02.1991, the services of the petitioner has been dismissed which has been approved/upheld by the disciplinary authority. (Para 24)

B. The compliance of natural justice in domestic/disciplinary inquiry is necessary has long been established. Even there are no specific statutory rule requiring observance of natural justice, the compliance of natural justice is necessary.

The object of rules of natural justice is to ensure that an employee is treated fairly in proceedings which may culminate in imposition of punishment including dismissal/ removal from service. It is a basic requirement of rules of natural justice that an employee should be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard in any proceeding which may culminate in a major punishment being imposed on the employee. (Para 27)

If an inquiry is vitiated by violation of principles of natural justice, it cannot be characterized as a proper domestic inquiry held. (Para 22)

A denial of enquiry officer's report before the disciplinary authority takes its decision on the charge, is a denial of reasonable opportunity to the employee to prove his innocence and is a breach of the principles of natural justice. When the enquiry officer is not the disciplinary authority, the delinquent employee has a right to receive a copy of the enquiry officers report before the disciplinary authority arrives at its conclusion w.r.t. the guilt or innocence of the employee with regard to the charges levelled against him. That right is a part of the employees right to defend himself against the charges levelled against him. (Para 25, 26)

In present case, prior to passing of the dismissal order, neither the petitioner has been given any show cause notice nor enquiry report dated 10.12.2990 has been given. The petitioner has also not been afforded any adequate opportunity prior to the issuance of the order dated 11.02.1991 dismissing the petitioner from services. The enquiry report dated 10.12.1990 was submitted before the disciplinary authority and the disciplinary authority passed the punishment order dated 11.2.1991.

It is mandatory to provide enquiry report to the delinquent in order to provide an opportunity to submit reply to the same. In case the aforesaid has not been done and punishment order imposing major penalty has been passed, the said punishment order is not sustainable in the eyes of law. Therefore, from any angle the matter is to be looked into, the impugned order passed by the respondents are null and void, apart from the fact that they are in violation of the principles of natural justice. 4. Vikalp Kumar Vs St. of U.P., 2019 (11) ADJ 267 (Para 14)

Present petition challenges orders of dismissal dated 11.02.1992 and 08.09.1992.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Shri Ramesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri A.K. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Dharmendra Dixit, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for the following reliefs:

"(a) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the opposite parties to allow the petitioner to continue on the post of Junior Clerk in the Bhagirath Gramin Bank, District Sitapur

(b) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the opposite parties to give all the service benefits which have been given to the persons, junior to the petitioner;

(c) issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing and setting aside the impugned order of dismissal of the petitioner from services, dated 11.2.1992 and 8.9.1992 respectively, dismissing the service of the petitioner, contained in Annexure Nos.6 and 9 to the writ petition.

(d) issue or pass any other writ, order or direction in the nature and manner which may be deemed just and expedient in the circumstances of the case; and

(e) allow the writ petition with costs."

3. Facts of the case are that on 28.12.1979 the petitioner was appointed for a period of thirty days for term appointment and thereafter he was appointed for sixty days and 90 days and the appointment letters to the said effect were issued for the said term. The appointment letters were issued to the petitioner from time to time in this regard. Thereafter, the interview of the petitioner was held on 10.1.1983 at 11.00a.m. and the petitioner was selected and appointed on the post of Junior Clerk on 10.2.1983 in the pay scale of Rs.354-550 plus dearness allowance and he was placed on probation for a period of twelve months.

One Shri D.S. Mishra who was the Manager of the Branch of the Bank in which the petitioner was working as a Junior Clerk developed malafide intention towards the petitioner and as the petitioner, who was working under him, he harassed the petitioner a good number of time in different ways and also alleged that the petitioner is responsible for the embezzlement of the alleged amount, while the petitioner had no knowledge of time.

The respondents did not give any show cause notice and the petitioner was also not given copy of the finding report of the enquiry report before passing the dismissal order and the petitioner was not also afforded any adequate opportunity prior to the issuance of the order dated 11.2.1991 dismissing the petitioner from his services. There is specific mention in the Bhagirath Gramin Bank Staff Service Regulation, 1980 that these regulations are not applicable to the employees who have been appointed temporarily or to the persons recruited on special contract.

The petitioner also submitted his appeal on dated 25.3.1991 against the said dismissal order of the petitioner from service, which has also been passed without passing any reasoned and speaking order on 8.9.1982

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the respondents, in most illegal arbitrary and discriminatory manner, dismissed the petitioner from services, which is in violation of the provisions, contained in Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution of India.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the Staff Service Regulation, 1980 could not made available for application to the petitioner who was employed temporarily or on special contract.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that there is specific provision under Staff Service Regulation, 1980 as not to apply such regulations on the employees, who have been employed temporarily on daily wages or recruited on special contract.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that there is specific provision under Staff Service Regulation, 1980 as not to apply such regulations on the employees who have been employed temporarily on daily wages or recruited on special contract.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the petitioner was appointed temporarily and he was on special contract, when the said amount, as alleged by the opposite parties, was not shown in the record.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the respondents did not give the petitioner documents, inspite of his asking for the same before passing order, dismissing the services of the petitioner. He next submitted that the petitioner was not given any show cause notice before passing of his dismissal order.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the respondents did not supply copy of the finding or enquiry report, before passing of the impugned dismissal order. He next submitted that the opposite parties did not give the attendance register for the year 1981, 1982 to show that neither he was in employment nor he was on duty, when as stated by the respondents, the alleged discrepancy and alleged embezzlement have been committed.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that not giving the inquiry report amounts to cause prejudice to the petitioner and same is also considered by the punishing authority hence the petitioner is entitled the copy of the inquiry report.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that if inquiry report is given to the petitioner then result would be different and not giving inquiry report is caused prejudiced to the petitioner. He next submitted that non-giving the inquiry report caused prejudiced for non-making the representation to the punishing authority.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the inquiry officer has not considered the reply of charge-sheet and defence brief of the petitioner, hence the report is perverse in nature. He next submitted that the punishment order is not speaking because reply to the charge sheet and defence brief of the petitioner has not considered and has been passed against the principle of natural justice.

14. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the following judgments:

(i) State of Uttaranchal v. Kharak Singh reported in 2008 Vol. 8 SCC Page-236

(ii) Chamoli District Co-operative Bank v. Raghunath Singh Rana reported in AIR 2016, Supreme Court Page 2510.

(iii) Om Prakash Gond v. State of U.P. reported in 2019 Vol.4 ADJ Page 386

(iv) Vikalp Kumar v. State of U.P. reported in 2019 (11) ADJ Page 267.

15. On the other hand, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that while the petitioner was posted in Neri Kalan Branch of the Bank, some serious complaints were received by the Chairman and as such, the petitioner was placed under suspension on 8.5.1984 which was followed by a charge-sheet dated 9.7.1994 indicating therein the charges of embezzlement of Bank's money, breach of discipline and indolence and intentional negligence in discharge of duties.

16. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that the petitioner was never pressurized by any Officer of the Bank to embezzle any amount. No person of common prudence will ever endanger his service by following another's instructions unless and until his self-motive is malafide.

17. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that the charge-sheet dated 2.1.1990 was issued to the petitioner containing the charges of embezzlement etc. and subsequently the petitioner was placed under suspension on 3.1.1990.

18. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that what prejudice has been caused to the petitioner by non-supply of the inquiry report to him. If no prejudice could be indicated then the punishment order will not be set aside. In the present case, the petitioner already availed the opportunity of assiling the findings of the inquiry report dated 10.2.1990 while preferring the appeal dated 25.3.1991 and has not earlier assailed the said findings in any manner before this Court so as to demonstrate that prejudice has been caused to him. Thus, the punishment order dated 11.2.1991 is not bad and illegal.

19. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that the then Manager of the Brahmawali Branch, Sitapur had connivance and both of them misappropriated the bank money and defrauded the Bank.

20. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that no opportunity of personal hearing is required under the provisions of law after the submission of the inquiry report dated 10.12.1990 and before the dismissal order dated 11.2.1991. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that copy of the inquiry report dated 10.12.1990 was served upon the petitioner through dismissal order dated 11.2.1991.

21. I have considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and perused the material on record as well as law-reports cited by learned counsel for the petitioners.

22. To resolve controversy involved in the present writ petition, operative portion of the judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner is as under:

(i) State of Uttaranchal v. Kharak Singh (supra):

10. The following observations and principles laid down by this Court in Associated Cement Co. Ltd. v. The Workmen and Anr. are relevant:

"... .. In the present case, the first serious infirmity from which the enquiry suffers proceeds from the fact that the three enquiry officers claimed that they themselves had witnessed the alleged misconduct of Malak Ram. Mr. Kolah contends that if the Manager and the other officers saw Malak Ram committing the act of misconduct, that itself would not disqualify them from holding the domestic enquiry. We are not prepared to accept this argument. If an officer himself sees the misconduct of a workman, it is desirable that the enquiry should be left to be held by some other person who does not claim to be an eye-witness of the impugned incident. As we have repeatedly emphasised, domestic enquiries must be conducted honestly and bona fide with a view to determine whether the charge framed against a particular employee is proved or not, and so, care must be taken to see that these enquiries do not become empty formalities. If an officer claims that he had himself seen the misconduct alleged against an employee, in fairness steps should be taken to see that the task of holding an enquiry is assigned to some other officer. How the knowledge claimed by the enquiry officer can vitiate the entire proceedings of the enquiry is illustrated by the present enquiry itself.

..... It is necessary to emphasise that in domestic enquiries, the employer should take steps first to lead evidence against the workman charged, give an opportunity to the workman to cross-examine the said evidence and then should the workman be asked whether he wants to give any explanation about the evidence led against him. It seems to us that it is not fair in domestic enquiries against industrial employees that at the very commencement of the enquiry, the employee should be closely cross-examined even before any other evidence is led against him. In dealing with domestic enquiries held in such industrial matters, we cannot overlook the fact that in a large majority of cases, employees are likely to be ignorant, and so, it is necessary not to expose them to the risk of cross-examination in the manner adopted in the present enquiry proceedings. Therefore, we are satisfied that Mr. Sule is right in contending that the course adopted in the present enquiry proceedings by which Malak Ram was elaborately cross-examined at the outset constitutes another infirmity in this enquiry."

15. From the above decisions, the following principles would emerge:

(i).....

(ii).....

(iii).....

(iv) On receipt of the enquiry report, before further, it is incumbent on the part of the disciplinary/ punishing authority to supply a copy of the enquiry report and all connected materials relied on by the enquiry officer to enable him to offer his views, if any.

(ii) Chamoli District Co-operative Bank (supra):

18. It is also relevant to note that after submission of reply dated 04.02.1993, Disciplinary Authority issued a show-cause notice on 04.05.1993 asking the employee/respondent No.1 to submit his reply. When the Inquiry Officer was appointed, conducting of the inquiry was mandatory and without conducting of an inquiry and without any inquiry report having been served on the employee/respondent No.1, Disciplinary Authority could not have proceeded to impose any punishment. The compliance of principles of natural justice by the appellant-Bank is not a mere formality, more so when the statutory provisions specifically provides that disciplinary proceedings shall be conducted with due observations of the principles of natural justice.

19. The compliance of natural justice in domestic/disciplinary inquiry is necessary has long been established. This Court has held that even there are no specific statutory rule requiring observance of natural justice, the compliance of natural justice is necessary. Certain ingredients have been held to be constituting integral part of holding of an inquiry. The Apex Court in Sur Enamel and Stamping Works Pvt. Ltd. v. Their Workmen reported in (1964) 3 SCR 616 has laid down following:-

“... An enquiry cannot be said to have been properly held unless, (i) the employee proceeded against has been informed clearly of the charges levelled against him, (ii) the witnesses are examined – ordinarily in the presence of the employee – in respect of the charges, (iii) the employee is given a fair opportunity to cross-examine witnesses, (iv) he is given a fair opportunity to examine witnesses including himself in his defence if he so wishes on any relevant matter, and (v) the inquiry officer records his findings with reasons for the same in his report.”

20. The Apex Court again in State Bank of India Vs. R.K. Jain and Ors., reported in (1972) 4 SCC 304 held that if an inquiry is vitiated by violation of principles of natural justice or if no reasonable opportunity was provided to the delinquent to place his defence, it cannot be characterized as a proper domestic inquiry held in accordance with the rules of natural justice. In paragraph 23, the following was laid down:-

“.....As emphasised by this Court in Ananda Bazar Patrika (P) Ltd. v. Its Workmen, (1964) 3 SCR 601, the termination of an employee's service must be preceded by a proper domestic inquiry held in accordance with the rules of natural justice. Therefore, it is evident that if the inquiry is vitiated by violation of the principles of natural justice or if no reasonable opportunity was provided to a delinquent to place his defence, it cannot be characterized as a proper domestic inquiry held in accordance with the rules of natural justice.....”

21. The Apex Court in State of Uttranchal & Ors. Vs. Kharak Singh reported in (2008) 8 SCC 236 had occasion to examine various contours of natural justice which need to be specified in a departmental inquiry. The Apex Court noticed earlier judgments where principles were laid down as to how inquiry is to be conducted. It is useful to refer paragraphs 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 15, which are to the following effect:-

“.....9. Before analyzing the correctness of the above submissions, it is useful to refer various principles laid down by this Court as to how enquiry is to be conducted and which procedures are to be followed.

10. The following observations and principles laid down by this Court in Associated Cement Co. Ltd. v. The Workmen and Anr. [1964] 3 SCR 652 are relevant:

“... ... In the present case, the first serious infirmity from which the enquiry suffers proceeds from the fact that the three enquiry officers claimed that they themselves had witnessed the alleged misconduct of Malak Ram. Mr. Kolah contends that if the Manager and the other officers saw Malak Ram committing the act of misconduct, that itself would not disqualify them from holding the domestic enquiry. We are not prepared to accept this argument. If an officer himself sees the misconduct of a workman, it is desirable that the enquiry should be left to be held by some other person who does not claim to be an eye- witness of the impugned incident. As we have repeatedly emphasised, domestic enquiries must be conducted honestly and bona fide with a view to determine whether the charge framed against a particular employee is proved or not, and so, care must be taken to see that these enquiries do not become empty formalities. If an officer claims that he had himself seen the misconduct alleged against an employee, in fairness steps should be taken to see that the task of holding an enquiry is assigned to some other officer. How the knowledge claimed by the enquiry officer can vitiate the entire proceedings of the enquiry is illustrated by the present enquiry itself.

..... It is necessary to emphasise that in domestic enquiries, the employer should take steps first to lead evidence against the workman charged, give an opportunity to the workman to cross-examine the said evidence and then should the workman be asked whether he wants to give any explanation about the evidence led against him. It seems to us that it is not fair in domestic enquiries against industrial employees that at the very commencement of the enquiry, the employee should be closely cross- examined even before any other evidence is led against him. In dealing with domestic enquiries held in such industrial matters, we cannot overlook the fact that in a large majority of cases, employees are likely to be ignorant, and so, it is necessary not to expose them to the risk of cross- examination in the manner adopted in the present enquiry proceedings. Therefore, we are satisfied that Mr. Sule is right in contending that the course adopted in the present enquiry proceedings by which Malak Ram was elaborately cross-examined at the outset constitutes another infirmity in this enquiry."

11) In ECIL v. B. Karunkar (1993) 4 SCC 727, it was held:

"(1) Where the enquiry officer is other than the disciplinary authority, the disciplinary proceedings break into two stages. The first stage ends when the disciplinary authority arrives at its conclusions on the basis of the evidence, enquiry officer's report and the delinquent employee's reply to it. The second stage begins when the disciplinary authority decides to impose penalty on the basis of its conclusions. If the disciplinary authority decides to drop the disciplinary proceedings, the second stage is not even reached.

While the right to represent against the findings in the report is part of the reasonable opportunity available during the first stage of the inquiry viz., before the disciplinary authority takes into consideration the findings in the report, the right to show cause against the penalty proposed belongs to the second stage when the disciplinary authority has considered the findings in the report and has come to the conclusion with regard to the guilt of the employee and proposes to award penalty on the basis of its conclusions. The first right is the right to prove innocence. The second right is to plead for either no penalty or a lesser penalty although the conclusion regarding the guilt is accepted. It is the second right exercisable at the second stage which was taken away by the Forty- second Amendment. The second stage consists of the issuance of the notice to show cause against the proposed penalty and of considering the reply to the notice and deciding upon the penalty. What is dispensed with is the opportunity of making representation on the penalty proposed and not of opportunity of making representation on the report of the enquiry officer. The latter right was always there. But before the Forty-second Amendment of the Constitution, the point of time at which it was to be exercised had stood deferred till the second stage viz., the stage of considering the penalty. Till that time, the conclusions that the disciplinary authority might have arrived at both with regard to the guilt of the employee and the penalty to be imposed were only tentative. All that has happened after the Forty-second Amendment of the Constitution is to advance the point of time at which the representation of the employee against the enquiry officer's report would be considered. Now, the disciplinary authority has to consider the representation of the employee against the report before it arrives at its conclusion with regard to his guilt or innocence in respect of the charges.

Article 311(2) says that the employee shall be given a "reasonable opportunity of being heard in respect of the charges against him". The findings on the charges given by a third person like the enquiry officer, particularly when they are not borne out by the evidence or are arrived at by overlooking the evidence or misconstruing it, could themselves constitute new unwarranted imputations. The proviso to Article 311(2) in effect accepts two successive stages of differing scope. Since the penalty is to be proposed after the inquiry, which inquiry in effect is to be carried out by the disciplinary authority (the enquiry officer being only his delegate appointed to hold the inquiry and to assist him), the employee's reply to the enquiry officer's report and consideration of such reply by the disciplinary authority also constitute an integral part of such inquiry.

Hence, when the enquiry officer is not the disciplinary authority, the delinquent employee has a right to receive a copy of the enquiry officer's report before the disciplinary authority arrives at its conclusions with regard to the guilt or innocence of the employee with regard to the charges levelled against him. That right is a part of the employee's right to defend himself against the charges levelled against him. A denial of the enquiry officer's report before the disciplinary authority takes its decision on the charges, is a denial of reasonable opportunity to the employee to prove his innocence and is a breach of the principles of natural justice."

15. From the above decisions, the following principles would emerge:

(i).....

(ii).....

(iii).....

(iv) On receipt of the enquiry report, before further, it is incumbent on the part of the disciplinary/ punishing authority to supply a copy of the enquiry report and all connected materials relied on by the enquiry officer to enable him to offer his views, if any."

(iii) Om Prakash Gond (supra):-

6. Not only the above, an ex-parte enquiry was concluded against the petitioner on 26.02.2001, as the copy of the original enquiry report was produced before this Court by the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel. Since the enquiry report is dated 26.07.2001 and it has been produced before the Disciplinary Authority later on, the Disciplinary Authority passed an order of dismissal dated 29.03.2001 within a short span of time without providing a show cause notice to the petitioner seeking explanation as is mandatory under law.

13. Recently the entire law on the subject has been reviewed and reiterated in Chamoli District Co-operative Bank Ltd. Vs. Raghunath Singh Rana and others, AIR 2016 SC 2510 and the Hon'ble Apex Court has culled out certain principles as under:

"i) The enquiries must be conducted bona fide and care must be taken to see that the enquiries do not become empty formalities.

ii) If an officer is a witness to any of the incidents which is the subject matter of the enquiry or if the enquiry was initiated on a report of an officer, then in all fairness he should not be the Enquiry Officer. If the said position becomes known after the appointment of the Enquiry Officer, during the enquiry, steps should be taken to see that the task of holding an enquiry is assigned to some other officer.

(iii) In an enquiry, the employer/department should take steps first to lead evidence against the workman/delinquent charged and give an opportunity to him to cross-examine the witnesses of the employer. Only thereafter, the workman/delinquent be asked whether he wants to lead any evidence and asked to give any explanation about the evidence led against him.

(iv) On receipt of the enquiry report, before proceeding further, it is incumbent on the part of the disciplinary/punishing authority to supply a copy of the enquiry report and all connected materials relied on by the enquiry officer to enable him to offer his views, if any."

15. Further, the enquiry report dated 26.03.2001 was submitted before the Disciplinary Authority and the Disciplinary Authority passed the punishment order dated 29.03.2001 without providing the second opportunity of hearing to the petitioner strictly in accordance with law as no show cause notice along with enquiry report was served to the petitioner before passing the punishment order.

16. Looking into the entire facts and circumstances of the issue, I am of the considered view that the impugned punishment order dated 29.03.2001 has been passed without following the due procedure of law. To be more precised, the punishment order has been passed without conducting the departmental enquiry as per settled norms and this is absolute ex-parte departmental enquiry, therefore, it is liable to be quashed.

(iv) Vikalp Kumar (supra):-

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the aforesaid impugned order has been passed in violation of principles of natural justice inasmuch as before passing the order impugned, no opportunity of hearing of any kind whatsoever was afforded to the petitioner. He has not been provided any relevant documents including the copy of inquiry report, and he has also not been afforded an opportunity of oral hearing, therefore, he submitted that the impugned order is bad and is liable to be quashed. It was further contended that there is no bar against pursuing a degree course and a certificate course, simultaneously, in view of the resolution of University Grants Commission, New Delhi. He has also submitted that the petitioner has not played fraud or misrepresented before the respondents.

10. The question that needs to be answered first as to whether the disciplinary authority was justified in passing the impugned order of removal of petitioner from service without supplying the copy of the enquiry report and further whether the procedure prescribed under the Rules for holding departmental inquiry in respect of imposition of major penalty have been followed or not.

13. The enquiry officer submitted his report to the Disciplinary authority on 10.9.2018. The Disciplinary Authority i.e. District Basic Education Officer agreed with the findings of the enquiry report and without supplying the copy of the same and without issuing any show cause against the proposed punishment, passed the order dated 10.9.2018 terminating his services. Failure to supply copy of the inquiry report, before the disciplinary authority, takes its decision on the charges, is a denial of reasonable opportunity to the employee to prove his innocence and is a clear breach of the principles of natural justice.

14. The object of rules of natural justice is to ensure that an employee is treated fairly in proceedings which may culminate in imposition of punishment including dismissal/removal from service. It is a basic requirement of rules of natural justice that an employee should be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard in any proceeding which may culminate in a major punishment being imposed on the employee. Thus, the disciplinary proceedings stood vitiated.

15. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Union of India & Ors. Vs. Mohd. Ramzan Khan, (1991) 1 SCC 588, has held that it is mandatory to provide enquiry report to the delinquent in order to provide an opportunity to submit reply to the same. In case the punishment order imposing major penalty has been passed without providing enquiry report to the delinquent employee the said punishment order is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The relevant paragraphs read as under:-

"14. This Court in Mazharul Islam Hashmi v. State of U.P. [(1979) 4

SCC 537 : 1980 SCC (L&S) 54] pointed out:

"Every person must know what he is to meet and he must have opportunity of meeting that case. The legislature, however, can exclude operation of these principles expressly or implicitly. But in the absence of any such exclusion, the principle of natural justice will have to be proved."

15. Deletion of the second opportunity from the scheme of Article 311(2) of the Constitution has nothing to do with providing of a copy of the report to the delinquent in the matter of making his representation. Even though the second stage of the inquiry in Article 311(2) has been abolished by amendment, the delinquent is still entitled to represent against the conclusion of the Inquiry Officer holding that the charges or some of the charges are established and holding the delinquent guilty of such charges. For doing away with the effect of the enquiry report or to meet the recommendations of the Inquiry Officer in the matter of imposition of punishment, furnishing a copy of the report becomes necessary and to have the proceeding completed by using some material behind the back of the delinquent is a position not countenanced by fair procedure. While by law application of natural justice could be totally ruled out or truncated, nothing has been done here which could be taken as keeping natural justice out of the proceedings and the series of pronouncements of this Court making rules of natural justice applicable to such an inquiry are not affected by the Forty-second Amendment. We, therefore, come to the conclusion that supply of a copy of the inquiry report along with recommendation, if any, in the matter of proposed punishment to be inflicted would be within the rules of natural justice and the delinquent would, therefore, be entitled to the supply of a copy thereof. The Forty-second Amendment has not brought about any change in this position.

17. There have been several decisions in different High Courts which, following the Forty-second Amendment, have taken the view that it is no longer necessary to furnish a copy of the inquiry report to delinquent officers. Even on some occasions this Court has taken that view. Since we have reached a different conclusion the judgments in the different High Courts taking the contrary view must be taken to be no longer laying down good law. We have not been shown any decision of a coordinate or a larger bench of this Court taking this view. Therefore, the conclusion to the contrary reached by any two-Judge bench in this Court will also no longer be taken to be laying down good law, but this shall have prospective application and no punishment imposed shall be open to challenge on this ground.

18. We make it clear that wherever there has been an Inquiry Officer and he has furnished a report to the disciplinary authority at the conclusion of the inquiry holding the delinquent guilty of all or any of the charges with proposal for any particular punishment or not, the delinquent is entitled to a copy of such report and will also be entitled to make a representation against it, if he so desires, and non-furnishing of the report would amount to violation of rules of natural justice and make the final order liable to challenge hereafter."

17. The impugned order would also reflect that it proceeds on the charge that by appearing in two examinations simultaneously for the same year, petitioner has played fraud and lowered the image of the respondents-department. Further the petitioner also acted in violation of the relevant Service Conduct Rules.

18. The reasoning given by the District Basic Education Officer is clearly unsustainable in as much as no such provision governing the petitioner's service has been brought to the notice of the Court, which may prohibit any such employee to undergo in the two examinations simultaneously. Infact the petitioner has relied upon the resolution of the University Grants Commission, New Delhi dated 28.12.2012, whereby a decision was taken that "a student pursuing a degree programme under regular mode may be allowed to pursue a maximum of one certificate/diploma/ advanced diploma/ PG Diploma programme simultaneously either in regular or open and distance mode in the same university or from other institutions" to contend that a student may pursue a degree course along with a certificate course.

21. The law laid by the Hon'ble Apex Court cited in the preceding paragraph is fully applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case."

23. On bare perusal of the above-extracted judgments, it is crystal clear that disciplinary proceeding breaks into two stages. The first stage ends, when the disciplinary authority arrives at its conclusion on the basis of evidence, Inquiry Officers report and the delinquent employees reply to it. The second stage begins when the disciplinary authority decide to impose penalty on the basis of its conclusion. If the disciplinary authority decides to drop the disciplinary proceeding, the second stage is not even reached.

It is also crystal clear that while the right to represent against the finding in the report is part of reasonable opportunity during the first stage of the inquiry before the disciplinary authority takes into consideration the finding in the report. The first right is the right to prove innocence. What is dispensed with is the opportunity of making representation on the penalty proposed and not of opportunity of making representation on the report of the inquiry officer. On receipt of Inquiry report, it is incumbent on the part of punishing authority to supply a copy of the inquiry report.

24. Perusal of the record reveals that the petitioner was selected and appointed on the post of Junior Clerk on 10.2.1983 on probation for a period of 12 months. Allegation of embezzlement of certain amount has been made against the petitioner. Thereafter, the petitioner placed under suspension vide order dated 8.5.1984 which was followed by a charge-sheet dated 9.7.1994 indicating therein the certain the charges of embezzlement of Bank's money, breach of discipline and indolence and intentional negligence in discharge of duties. Vide order dated 11.2.1991, the services of the petitioner has been dismissed which has been approved/ upheld by the disciplinary authority.

Perusal of the record also reveals that prior to passing of the dismissal order, neither the petitioner has been given any show cause notice nor finding report of the enquiry report has been given. The petitioner has also not been afforded any adequate opportunity prior to the issuance of the order dated 11.2.1991 dismissing the petitioner from services. The enquiry report dated 10.12.1990 was submitted before the disciplinary authority and the disciplinary authority passed the punishment order dated 11.2.1991 without providing the second opportunity of hearing to the petitioner strictly in accordance with law as no show cause notice along with enquiry report was served to the petitioner before passing the punishment order. In this view of the matter, the impugned orders have been passed without following the due procedure of law and without conducting the departmental as per the settled norms. The law-reports cited by the learned counsel for the parties are fully applicable to the present facts and circumstances of the case.

25. It has been repeated observed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as this Court that when the enquiry officer is not the disciplinary authority, the delinquent employee has a right to receive a copy of the enquiry officer's report before the disciplinary authority arrives at its conclusion with regard to the guilt or innocence of the employee with regard to the charges levelled against him. That right is a part of the employee's right to defend himself against the charges levelled against him. A denial of enquiry officer's report before the disciplinary authority takes its decision on the charge, is a denial of reasonable opportunity to the employee to prove his innocence and is a breach of the principles of natural justice.

26. It has also been observed that on receipt of enquiry report, before further, it is incumbent on the part of the disciplinary/ punishing authority to supply a copy of the enquiry report and all connected materials relied on by the enquiry officer to enable him to offer his view, if any.

27. The object of rules of natural justice is to ensure that an employee is treated fairly in proceedings which may culminate in imposition of punishment including dismissal/ removal from service.

It is a basic requirement of rules of natural justice that an employee should be given a reasonable opportunity of being heard in any proceeding which may culminate in a major punishment being imposed on the employee. Thus the disciplinary proceeding stood vitiated.

28. Considering in totalities of facts and circumstances as well as law-report cited by learned counsel for the petitioner, this Court is of the considered opinion that it is mandatory to provide enquiry report to the delinquent in order to provide an opportunity to submit reply to the same. In case the punishment order imposing major penalty has been passed without providing enquiry report to the delinquent employee the said punishment order is not sustainable in the eyes of law. Therefore, from any angle the matter is to be looked into, the impugned order passed by the respondents are null and void, apart from the fact that they are in violation of the principles of natural justice.

29. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed. The orders dated 11.2.1992 and 8.9.1992 are hereby quashed.

30. It is however made clear that since this order is being passed for the reason that the departmental enquiry has not been conducted and concluded against the petitioner strictly in accordance with law, therefore, the authority concerned is directed to pass appropriate order in favour of the petitioner reinstating him in service forthwith and is at liberty to conduct the departmental enquiry, if it is so desired, but strictly in accordance with law from the stage of issuance of the enquiry report. The petitioner would be provided a copy of the enquiry report and he would be afforded an opportunity to submit his explanation to the show cause notice which may be given to the petitioner along with copy of the enquiry report, if any, within fifteen days and the petitioner shall file his explanation to the show cause notice within the maximum period of one month thereafter. The authority concerned, shall thereafter, pass final order and shall intimate the petitioner forthwith.

11. Writ B No. 42465 of 1999; Ram Jeet & others Vs Deputy Director of Consolidation, Jaunpur & ors. decided on 31.05.2013

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddharth, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India praying for quashing the judgement and order dated 25.09.1972 of Assistant Settlement Officer Consolidation, Basti, in Appeal Nos. 71 to 74 and judgement and order dated 23.06.1976 passed by Deputy Director of Consolidation, Basti, in revision nos. 47 to 50.

2. This writ petition arises out of the objections under Section 9-A(2) of the U.P. Consolidation Act, 1953 (for short, the Act). These objections are a total of six. The land in dispute comprises of Gata nos. 12, 14, 115, 70, 196, 11 and 111, all situate in Village Taraina, Pargana Bansi East, District Basti. Of these, three separate objections were filed by Ram Lagan, Ram Lal and Vijay Bahadur, all sons of Chulhai, respondents nos. 3, 4 and 5, respectively, to this petition. All the three objections last mentioned were filed on a common and identical cause of action and for the same relief, that is to say, that revenue entries relating to Gata nos. 12, 14 and 115 (supra) be corrected according to the compromise decree, dated 23.11.1959 passed by the

3. Two objections were filed by the petitioners. The first of these objections related to Gata nos. 70 and 196, and claimed co-tendency rights with the recorded tenure holders. The other objection claimed a 1/6th share in Gata nos. 11 and 111.

4. The last of the six objections, was filed by Kodai, respondent no. 6, laying claim to the entire Khata nos. 11 and 111 on the basis of a case that the petitioners have no right, title or interest therein, and that the aforesaid Khata numbers are self-acquired property of the sixth respondent.

5. The Consolidation Officer vide order dated 18.01.1969 dismissed the objections filed by respondents nos. 3, 4 and 5, that is to say, Ram Lagan, Ram Lal and Vijay Bahadur, in that order, now represented by their legal representatives, respondents nos. 3/1, 4/1 and 5/1, in relation to Khata nos. 12, 14 and 15. The claim of respondent nos. 3, 4 and 5 to Khata nos. 70 and 196, was also rejected with a direction that entries in their favour in the Revenue Records be expunged. On the other hand, the objections of the petitioners relating to Khata nos. 70 and 196 were allowed, and they were ordered to be recorded as co-tenants alongwith the recorded tenure holders. Likewise, the other objections of the petitioners relating to Khata no. 111 and Khata no. 11 were allowed with a direction that their names along with Shiv Mangal, Shiv Murat and Shiv Baran, then minors through their guardian and mother, besides names of Manorath son of Lal Bihari, Ram Dularey and Harihar, sons of Nageshar, be recorded as co-sharers. The sixth objection filed by Kodai too was allowed, granting him a 1/3rd share in Khata nos. 12, 115, 70, 196, 111, besides Araj No. 725, admeasuring 0-14-8, part of Khata no.11.

6. Aggrieved by the judgment and order of the Consolidation Officer determining the sixth objection, four Appeals were filed by the respondent nos. 3, 4 and 5, that is to say, Ram Lagan, Ram Lal and Vijay Bahadur. These Appeals nos. 71, 72, 73 and 74 on the file of the Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation, Basti. The appeals were heard and allowed by the Assistant Settlement Officer of Consolidation vide judgment and order dated 25.09.1972. The judgment and order of the Consolidation Officer, dated 18.01.1969 was set aside. The names of the petitioners were directed to be expunged from Khata nos. 12, 14, 115, 70, 196, 11 and 111, besides Araj no. 725, admeasuring 0-14-8, part of Khata no. 11(for short, the land in dispute) and in their place, the names of respondents nos. 3, 4 and 5, Ram Lagan, Ram Lal and Vijay Bahadur, were ordered to be recorded. It was ordered that the share allotted to the petitioners be allotted to respondents nos. 3, 4 and 5 in terms done by the Consolidation Officer.

7. The petitioners put in issue the order of the Assistant Settlement Officer(Consolidation), dated 25.09.1972 before the Deputy Director of Consolidation, Basti, vide four revisions being Revisions nos. 47, 48, 49 and 50 by the petitioners. The order was also challenged by the respondent nos. 6, Kodai vide Revision no. 135. All the five Revisions preferred under Section 48 of the Act were heard and dismissed by the Deputy Director of Consolidation, Basti, vide judgment and order dated 23.06.1976.

8. Aggrieved, the present writ petition has been filed.

9. Heard Sri Sanjeev Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Tripathi B.G. Bhai, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent No.s 3/1, Jai Prakash, who alone has contested this writ petition at the hearing.

10. In order to set the record straight, it must be mentioned here that early into these proceedings, a counter-affidavit dated 25.09.1977 was filed before this Court on behalf of respondent no. 10, Shiv Baran, but no one appeared on his behalf at the time of hearing.

11. The dispute between the parties centres around the validity of a compromise dated 23.11.1959 recorded in Suit No. 270/1959 under Section 229-B decided by the Judicial Officer, Bansi, District Basti. The petitioners on one hand and respondent nos. 3, 4 and 5 on the other are said to have entered into the said compromise on the basis of which the Judicial Officer entered judgment in Suit No. 270/1959. Before the Consolidation Officer the validity of the compromise dated 23.11.1959 urged by respondent nos. 3, 4 and 5 was impeached by the petitioners as fraudulent. The Consolidation Officer dealt with the said matter vide his findings on issue No. 2 and held in favour of the petitioners. He rejected the compromise as a product of fraud and, therefore, nonest. It is on this ground that the Consolidation Officer directed entries to be restored to what they were in the basic year inter-se the petitioner and respondent nos. 3, 4 and 5. It appears that the compromise entered in the suit was not recorded in the Khatauni relating to the basic year and on that account respondent nos. 3, 4 and 5 had claimed rights to be recorded on the basis of the compromise decree dated 23.11.1959 relating to the land in dispute to be recorded. That claim was, however, rejected by the Consolidation Officer holding the compromise to be fraudulent.

12. The Consolidation Officer has broadly gone by the reasoning that if the compromise were genuine, then on the vakalatnama filed in Suit No. 270 of 1959 the signatures of the petitioners, Keshav Prasad, Ram Sumer, are there whereas it is thumb mark put by the second petitioner, Ayodhya Prasad but the day this Vakalatnama was signed, the memorandum of compromise was also verified. However, the memorandum of compromise does not bears the petitioners' signatures. Instead it is signed by their Counsel, Sri Girja Shankar, Mukhtar. In the opinion of the Consolidation Officer, it was beyond his understanding as to why the petitioners Keshav Prasad and the two others who were available in Court that day, were not made to sign the memorandum of compromise whereas other party to the agreement signed it. The Consolidation Officer has concluded that on these facts it appears that the signatures of the two petitioners on the Vakalatnama and the thumb impression of Ayodhya Prasad on the Vakalatnama are not those of three men. It has also remarked that the summons of the suit under Section 229B were never served on the petitioners who resided at Pratapgarh, whereas the Court was located at Basti. The Consolidation Officer also opined that signatures of the first petitioner, Keshav Prasad, on the various applications made before him in proceedings under Section 9A(2) of the Act did not resemble with those on the Vakalatnama. The Consolidation Officer also held respondent No. 6 to be in collusion with respondent No. 3, 4 and 5 as the said respondent has been given certain rights in certain plot numbers detailed in the findings of the Consolidation Officer on issue no. 2 to the prejudice of the petitioners. The Consolidation Officer has concluded weighing the probabilities arising from the advantages flowing from the compromise to the parties that the compromise is not genuine, apart from other reasons to conclude so.

13. The Appellate Court writing in reversal of the findings by the lower Appellate Court about the genuineness of the compromise dated 23.11.1959 filed in Suit No. 270 of 1959 held that he had looked into the applications dated 18.11.1967, 14.10.1968 and 24.10.1968 filed by Keshav Prasad, on all these applications his signatures do not tally with each other. According to the Settlement Officer of Consolidation Keshav Prasad has also signed the ordersheet before the Consolidation Officer and those signatures are altogether different from his signatures on the applications that mentioned. The Settlement Officer, therefore, opined that from the commencement of these proceedings, the petitioner Keshav Prasad had taken precaution to disguise his signatures made in the lower Court so that the same may not tally with his signatures on the compromise dated 23.11.1959 filed in Suit No. 270 of 1959. The Settlement Officer also held that the other two petitioners, Ram Sumer and Ayodhya Prasad, have not put their thumb impressions or signatures on any of the applications moved in the proceedings before the Consolidation Officer. The Settlement Officer of Consolidation has justified his judgment of reversal on another limb of reasoning. He has remarked that there is a copy of a restoration application dated 09.12.1968 filed by the petitioners Keshav Prasad, Ayodhya Prasad and Ram Sumer before the Judicial Officer, Basti, seeking to set aside the decree based on compromise passed by him in the Suit. It has been further remarked that Keshav Prasad and others have not filed any order allowing the aforesaid restoration application. From the said fact, he has drawn an inference that it appears that the above mentioned restoration application has been rejected.

14. In addition, the Settlement Officer of Consolidation has recorded a finding that he has perused the compromise dated 23.11.1959 and the Vakalatnama of the same date filed in those proceedings. He has held that the compromise was filed by Sri Girja Shankar Mukhtar on behalf of Keshav Prasad, Ram Sumer, Ayodhya Prasad, Nokhe, Raj Dulare, Harihar. None of these men, according to the Settlement Officer of Consolidation, have dared to examine Sri Girja Shankar Mukhtar in order to prove that he was not their Counsel in the suit before the Judicial Officer. Buttressing his reasoning, the Settlement Officer has taken note of the fact that the compromise decree dated 23.11.1959 had been incorporated in Khata Nos. 70 and 96. This fact, in the opinion of the Appellate Court, shows that the decree based on compromise was given effect to in revenue papers but by mistake it was not incorporated in the other Khata except those two.

15. The Appellate Court has also taken into consideration the discordant reports of two finger print experts filed before him. These reports and the statements to prove them by Sri Leela Ram Jagtyani, Finger Print Expert and Ashok Kashyap, another expert, have been looked into by the Settlement Officer of Consolidation. He has opined that the report of Leela Ram is more reliable than that of Sri Ashok Kashyap. It is also remarked that the comparison done by the experts was at a distance of ten years when the compromise of 1959 was scripted. During this period of time, there would be some changes in the signatures of Keshav Prasad and Ram Sumer Pandey, a fact that would not detract from the validity of the compromise filed in Suit No. 270 of 1959. On these findings, the Appellate Court has reversed order of the Consolidation Officer.

16. The Revisional Court dismissed the revisions filed by the petitioner on the ground that the compromise filed in the Suit No. 270/1959 was genuine and on this there are signatures of Keshav Prasad, Ram Sumer and Ayodhya on the compromise which was duly verified by Girja Shankar, Advocate. The Deputy Director of Consolidation has further held that the compromise in dispute is voidable and only Civil Court has jurisdiction to cancel the same.

17. Learned counsel for the petitioner Sri Sanjeev Singh, has submitted that the finding of the Consolidation Officer regarding validity of compromise was in accordance with law. The compromise arrived in the Suit No. 270/1959 was fraudulent and therefore the Consolidation Officer rightly in the Consolidation proceedings, which was subsequent to the suit proceedings aforesaid, held it to be not binding on the parties. He has submitted that there was no necessity of getting the same set aside by instituting any proceeding before the Court. Being compromise obtained by fraud, it will not have any effect of res-judicata between the parties. He has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the Case of Asharfi Lal Vs. Smt. Koili(dead) By L.Rs, 1995 (4 SCC) 163 wherein Apex Court had held that the judgment of a competent Court is normally binding on the parties to the proceedings and it operates as res-judicata in a subsequent proceedings between the same parties. An exception is engrafted under Section 44 of the Evidence Act which provides that any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment and order which is relevant under Sections 40, 41 and 42 of the Evidence Act and which has been proved by the adverse party as delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it or it was obtained by fraud or collusion is not binding on it. He has submitted that a judgment obtained by fraud or collusion does not operate as res-judicata and is not binding on the parties to the proceedings. Such a judgment can be avoided in subsequent proceedings by a party which is able to show that it was obtained by fraud or collusion. Institution of separate proceedings for getting it set aside is not necessary. Further reliance has been placed on the judgment of Division Bench of High Court of Kerala wherein, in paragraph 32 the same proposition has been reiterated. Reliance on the judgement of this Court in the case of Ibne Hasan Vs. Hasina Bibi and Ors, and MANU/0198/1984 has also been made wherein the Division Bench of this Court had occasion to consider this question and answer the same in a reference from paragraph 6 to 11 as follows:

“ 6. Finding an apparent inconsistency between the two sets of judicial pronouncement the learned single Judge referred the following question to a Division Bench for its opinion.

"Whether a party to a decree or a person claiming through such party can, under Section 44 of the Evidence Act, be allowed to avoid the effect of the decree on grounds of fraud or collusion?"

The matter has thus come up before us for giving our opinion on the aforesaid question. Having heard counsel for the parties we are of opinion that the answer to the question aforesaid has to be in the affirmative. Now we proceed to give our reasons for this opinion. Sections 40 to 44 of the Evidence Act have been placed under the heading "Judgments of Courts of Justice when relevant". In the instant case we are concerned with Sections 40 and 44 and not with Sections 41 and 42. Even Section 43 will have some relevance for answering the question referred to us. As such for the sake of convenience Sections 40, 43 and 44 of the Evidence Act are being quoted. The illustrations given below Section 43 have been omitted:

"40. Previous judgments relevant to bar a second suit or trial.—The existence of any judgment, order or decree which by law prevents any Court from taking cognizance of a suit or holding a trial, is a relevant fact when the question is, whether such Court ought to take cognizance of such suit or to hold such trial.

43. Judgments etc., other than those mentioned in Sections 40 to 42 when relevant.—Judgments, orders or decrees, other than those mentioned in Sections 40, 41 and 42, are irrelevant unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provision of this Act.

44. Fraud or collusion in obtaining judgment, or in competency of Court, may be proved.—Any party to a suit or other proceeding may show that any judgment, order or decree, which is relevant under Section 40, 41 or 42, and which has been proved by the adverse party, was delivered by a Court not competent to deliver it, or was obtained by fraud or collusion."

7. Previous judgments can be read in evidence in subsequent suits only if they are relevant under any of the Sections 40, 41 and 42. Judgments other than those mentioned therein would be irrelevant in view of Section 43 unless they fall in the category of judgments referred to in the latter part of Section 43.

Further, in view of Section 44 judgments referred to in Sections 40, 41 and 42 would not be relevant if it is established that they were delivered by a Court not competent to deliver the same or were obtained by fraud or collusion.

8. Section 40 of the Evidence Act even without using the term 'Res judicata' refers to the consequences of res judicata. It is because of Section 40 that a judgment, which is relied on by a party in a subsequent suit in support of its plea of res judicata, becomes relevant and can be read in evidence. A previous judgment operates as res judicata between the parties to the earlier suit as also to persons claiming title through any such party. When Section 44 of the Evidence Act permits a party to a subsequent suit to prove that any of the ingredients of the said section is made out even in respect of a judgment which is relevant under Section 40 there seems to be no escape from the conclusion that even such judgment, which would otherwise operate as res judicata and would not be possible to be avoided by the parties to the suit in which such judgment was delivered or by persons claiming through any such party, can be avoided by them if any of the ingredients of Section 44 is made out. In that event such judgment would not be relevant and cannot form the basis of the plea of res judicata. The view which we take finds support from the decision of a Division Bench of this Court of which Sulaiman, J. who decided the case of Sahib Rai (AIR 1927 All 494) (supra) was a member, in Mt. Parbati v Gajrai (AIR 1937 All 28). White dealing with the scope of S. 11, C. P. C. it was held "In the first place it is always open to a party to show that a judgment was obtained by fraud or collusion or that there was want of Jurisdiction and in such cases we are of opinion that Section 11 would not apply".

9. There is another reason why this view should hold good. As seen above the decision of Ram Lall. J. in the case of Ch. Mohammad Afzal (AIR 1947 Lahore 117) (supra) was endorsed and approved by the Privy Council in the case of Beli Ram and Brothers (AIR 1948 PC 168) (supra). In Kishan Chand v. Ram Babu (1964 All LJ 389) : (AIR 1965 All 65) a Full Bench of this Court has held that even after the Constitution the law declared by the Judicial Committee continues to be the (sic) the High Court until the Supreme Court ruled otherwise. No decision of the Supreme Court taking a contrary view has been brought to our notice. In this view of the matter the decisions of learned single Judges of this Court in the cases of Sahib Rai (AIR 1927 All 494) (supra) and Smt. Chauhana (AIR 1971 All 439) (supra) taking a contrary view are overruled.

10. We may, however, point out that since Section 43 is not mentioned in Section 44 of the Evidence Act a judgment would still be relevant under the exception contained in the later part of Section 43 namely "unless the existence of such judgment, order or decree is a fact in issue, or is relevant under some other provision of this Act." even if it may not be relevant under Sections 40, 41 and 42 of the Act because of the said Section 44. As such if the ingredients of estoppel are made out the defendant appellant will still not be in a position to avoid the effect of the judgment in suit No. 126 of 1952. This view finds support from the decision of a Division Bench of this Court in Darbari Lal v. Mahboob Ali Mian (AIR 1927 All 538 (2)).

11. In view of the foregoing discussion our answer to the question referred to us is that a party to a decree or a person claiming through such party can, under Section 44 of the Evidence Act, be allowed to avoid the effect of the decree on grounds of fraud or collusion and assert that the said decree cannot be relied on for the purpose contemplated by Section 40 thereof which includes providing the basis for the plea of res judicata, in view of the inclusion of Section 40 in Section 44 of the said Act. However, since Section 43 is not included in Section 44 of the said Act, collusive decree will still be relevant to support the plea of estoppel if the ingredients of estoppel are made out."

18. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further argued that the finding that there was difference in signatures of the Keshav Prasad, on the memorandum of compromise and his actual signature is an absurd finding. After ten years hand writing expert cannot give correct opinion in the absence of a contemporaneous signature/handwriting of the witness concerned. He has relied upon the judgment of the High Court of Hyderabad in Bande Siva Shankara Srinivasa Prasad Vs. Ravi Surya Prakash Babu and Ors. MANU/AP/07/2015, wherein the Full Bench of the aforesaid High Court dealt with this issue and held that “In cases involving forged signatures not only should comparison signatures be obtained from documents of similar importance, but if possible also from documents which are roughly contemporary with those in question. Writing of an adult will show an obvious steady change with passage of time. In these circumstances provision of a whole set of signatures written over a period of years will prove of inestimable value to the document examiner.

When serious illness occurs, a signature often undergoes a remarkable change in a very short period and if a suspect will is dated near the day of death, standard (admittedly genuine) signatures covering this period are essential if reliable evidence of the authenticity or otherwise of the signature is to be established.

Normally, in the case of a typical adult, basic writing habits change gradually. Therefore, material written two or three years before or after the disputed writing serve as satisfactory standards, but as the lapse of years between the date of standards and questioned material becomes greater, the standards have a tendency to be less representative. Consequently, an effort should always be made to procure some standards (admittedly genuine writings / signatures) written near in date to the disputed matter.

The gist of the experts opinion, emerging from the above Report, is to the effect that it is not always necessary to have contemporaneous handwritings/signatures for comparison. However, as a general rule, it would be desirable to undertake comparison of admitted handwritings/signatures with disputed handwritings/signatures which fall within the range of 2 or 3 years from each other. Therefore, there can be no hard and fast norm as to when comparison can or cannot be undertaken owing to the time lag between the two sets of handwritings/signatures. Various other factors would have to be taken into consideration, as opined by the experts, quoted hereinbefore. Each case would turn upon its own facts and circumstances relating to the time lag, the change in the handwriting/signature, the capability of correlating the two sets and ultimately, the opinion of the expert himself as to whether the two sets can be compared. It is therefore not open to the Court to refuse to entertain an application seeking comparison of disputed handwritings/signatures with admitted handwritings / signatures on the ground of a long lapse of time between the two sets of handwritings/signatures.

19. It has finally been submitted that by the learned counsel for the petitioners that before the hand writing expert, no documents signed by Keshav Prasad about the same period was produced to ascertain veracity of his signature. After more than ten years, there was bound to be change in his signature and therefore the entire procedure adopted by appellate court was not in accordance with law and the findings on the basis of report of such hand writing expert ought not to have been construed against the petitioners by the Settlement Officer and Deputy Director of Consolidation, Basti. He has submitted that when Keshav Prasad, Ram Sumer and Ayodhya Prasad, were present in the Court and executed vakalatnama on the same date, why they were not made to appear before the Court and execute compromise themselves has not been considered by the Appellate and the Revisional Courts. The clear case of the petitioners is that they never entered into any such compromise and the memo of compromise was unauthorized and not in conformity with the provisions of Order XXIII read with Rule 3 CPC. Reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Ram Kumar and others Vs. DDC, Gautam Buddh Nagar and Others, [2010 (2) ADJ 74] has been made wherein this Court has interpreted order XXIII, Rule 3 CPC and held that a compromise before the Court must be lawful and the Court has to record its satisfaction in respect of aforesaid compromise. He has submitted that in the present case, the Court although recorded the compromise, but no satisfaction was recorded that the same was lawful and not under cloud. He has submitted that the judgements and orders passed by the Appellate and Revisional Courts of consolidation are not in accordance with law and deserve to be set aside and the judgment of the Consolidation Officer deserves to be upheld.

20. Learned counsel for contesting Respondent No. 3/1, Sri Tripathi B.G. Bhai, has submitted that the parties belong to common ancestors some of them started living at District Pratapgarh and some remained and continued to live in village Bilauli, District- Basti. He has further submitted that the disputed property was recorded in the name of petitioners' side Keshav Prasad and others therefore, the proceedings under Section 229-B of U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act were initiated by the respondents for and expunging the name of the petitioners from the plots in dispute and some other plots and for recording their names over the disputed property. The parties had entered into legal compromise on 23.11.1959 before the Sub-Divisional Officer and order was passed on the same date on the basis of compromise. Subsequently, a restoration application was filed by the petitioners before the Sub-Divisional Officer which was dismissed and the compromise/ order dated 23.11.1959 attained the finality. Since in the basic year, the name of the petitioners remained recorded, the respondents filed objection before the Consolidation Officer for recording their names on the basis of compromise dated 23.11.1959. The Consolidation Officer illegally disbelieved the compromise, however, the Appellate and the Revisional Courts corrected the stand taken by the Consolidation Officer and set aside his order. He has submitted that the finding of the Appellate and Revisional Courts that the compromise dated 23.11.1959 was valid is in accordance with law. He has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the Case of Y. Sleebachen Vs. Superintending Engineer WRO/PWD, 2015 (5) SCC 747 wherein the Apex Court had held that a pleader can enter into compromise on behalf of his clients once he gets Power of Attorney/Authorization by his clients to appear in a matter. The signature of Advocate/Counsel on the compromise is deemed to be valid even when Order XXIII, Rule 3 CPC which requires a compromise to be in writing and signed by the parties. Further reliance has been placed on paragraphs 38, 39 and 40 the judgment of the Apex Court in the Case of Byram Pestonji Gariwala Vs Union

Bank of India of the Apex Court reported in 1991- LAWS (SC)-9-21.

21. Further reliance has been placed on the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Bakshi Dev Raj (2) and Another Vs Sudheer Kumar (2011) 8 SCC 679. Reliance has been placed upon the judgment of Delhi High Court in the Case of Archies Greetings and Gifts Ltd Vs. Garg Plastic, (Delhi) Law Finder Doc Id # 64115.

22. Final reliance has been placed upon the judgment of Karnataka High Court in the case of Krishna Gajanana Vedeshwar Vs Narayan Gajanan Vedeshwar, Law Finder Doc Id # 165030.

23. After hearing the rival contentions this Court finds that there can be no dispute with the legal proposition that a compromise signed by the counsel on behalf of his client before the Court is valid in law and for all purposes and the clients of such counsel cannot dispute the authority of their counsel to execute such a compromise. However, the position becomes different when the allegation of practice of fraud, misrepresentation, etc., is made in the execution of compromise signed by the counsel for parties of one side and the parties themselves on the other side, as in the present case. It is on the record that on the date of execution of the disputed compromise dated 23.11.1959, the petitioners were present in Court, they had executed vakalatnama in favour of their counsel on the same day and on the same date i.e., 23.11.1959, the compromise was signed by their counsel on one hand and the other side on the other hand and compromise decree was passed. The object of the Order XXIII, Rule 3 CPC is to curtail litigation between the parties by concluding litigation with consent. The Apex Court in the case of Byram Pastonji Gariwala Vs. Union Bank of India (supra) has held that the counsel duly authorized by his client by signing the agreement or compromise contributes to decreasing loss of time in litigation and avoiding inconvenience to the party by signing a compromise on his behalf. However, the act of the counsel is doing so should be beyond reproach as held in the judgment of Byram Pastonji Gariwala (supra) in paragraph 37, the Apex Court has held as follows:

“We may, however, hasten to add that it will be prudent for counsel not to act on implied authority except when warranted by the exigency of circumstances demanding immediate adjustment of suit by agreement or compromise and the signature of the party cannot be obtained without undue delay. In these days of easier and quicker communication, such contingency may seldom arise. A wise and careful counsel will no doubt arm himself in advance with the necessary authority expressed in writing to meet all such contingencies in order that neither his authority nor integrity is ever doubted. This essential precaution will safeguard the personal reputation of counsel as well as uphold the prestige and dignity of the legal profession.”

24. This Court after going through the judgment of the Consolidation Officer finds that compromise dated 23.11.1959 passed in suit filed under Section 229B, being Suit No. 270/1959, is in dispute. The petitioners, who were defendants in suit, were not the residents of District- Basti, but of District-Pratapgarh. The Consolidation Officer has recorded the finding that on the single vakalatnama, Kodai, Shiv Mangal, Ram Dulare, Keshav Prasad, Ayodhya and Ram Sumer have made signatures together when their interests were not the same but were different. The Consolidation Officer has recorded finding that all the aforesaid persons had colluded and proceeded against the petitioners, Keshav Prasad and others, in getting the disputed compromise executed. Due to execution of compromise except, Keshav Prasad, Ayodhya and Ram Sumer, the petitioners, all the parties to the compromise got benefitted. The Consolidation Officer further recorded the finding that Ram Lagan, etc., have colluded with Kodai, etc. Before the Consolidation Officer, Kodai, Ram Dulare admitted the share of Ram Lagan and stated that the compromise was correct. The Consolidation Officer found that because after cancellation of the names of Keshav Prasad, Ayodhya and Ram Sumer, the petitioners from the plot nos. 725, 211, 765, 864, 83 and 136, name of Shiv Mangal and others were recorded and on Plot No. 54, etc., the name of Ram Lagan etc., was recorded, therefore, all of them colluded and by filing a joint vakalatnama they succeeded in grabbing the land of Keshav Prasad and others, the petitioner. He has submitted that Ram Lagan and others had no right or title to plots in dispute, their rights and titles evolved except on the basis of the disputed compromise hence, the compromise was held to be unlawful and not binding by the Consolidation Officer on the petitioners.

25. This Court finds that the aforesaid findings of the Consolidation Officer have not been considered by the Settlement Officer nor they have been set aside. The Settlement Officer Consolidation has called for finger print experts report which were bound to differ since in year 1959, when the compromise took place in the year 1959 much time had passed and signatures of Keshav Prasad and Ram Sumer on the compromise differed. The Appellate Court also recorded the finding that the compromise was given effect regarding some *Khata*s, but by mistake it was not given effect in remaining *Khata*s. Both the Appellate and the Revisional Court have held that the petitioners had filed restoration application for recalling the compromise dated 23.11.1959, but since there is nothing on record regarding the order passed on the aforesaid application, both the Courts presumed that their restoration application was rejected and therefore the compromise between the parties attained finality.

26. In case, the compromise was got fraudulently executed without knowledge and consent of the petitioners, a restoration application could also have been filed by the interested parties and got the same dismissed for want of prosecution or by not pressing the same without the knowledge of the petitioners. The counsel for petitioners got the vakalatnama of the petitioners' on 23.11.1959 which he filed on the same date and he also filed a compromise on their behalf and on the same date and got an order of compromise passed on the same date. The conduct of the counsel clearly comes under the cloud as held by the Apex Court in the Case of Byram Pastonji Gariwala in paragraph 37 (supra). There is no finding recorded by the Court that compromise was arrived at by the parties with free consent and without any undue influence and fraud.

27. The Revisional Court has relied upon a case law reported in Lucknow, Law Report, February, 1976, Page 32 to 58, Ram Nath Vs. Smt. Munni and has held that decree dated 23.11.1959 was voidable and therefore only the Civil Court had jurisdiction to set aside the same and till it is set aside by the competent Court, it will be binding on the parties. Revisional Court further held that after the disputed compromise decree dated 23.11.1959 was passed an application for cancelling the same was filed on 09.12.1968. Both the parties have not been able to inform about the fate of application and therefore inference was drawn that the aforesaid application got dismissed. Had it been pending evidence of the same would have been filed before the Consolidation Officer. Thirdly, the Revisional Court considered the two finger prints expert reports submitted before the Settlement Officer Consolidation and believed the report against the petitioners. The death certificate of the father of the petitioners, namely, Musai, was produced before the revisional court to prove that he was alive when the compromise decree dated 23.11.1959 was passed and therefore, the petitioners had no right to enter into compromise. The death certificate of Musai was filed, proving his death on 14.09.1964, but the Revisional Court found that although the death certificate has been produced, but no such copy was found to be issued.

28. This Court finds that the finding recorded by the Deputy Director of Consolidation that a suit is required to be filed for setting aside the decree dated 23.11.1959 on the basis of some judgment of this Court is not in accordance with law. As discussed earlier, a document which is proved to have been obtained by way of fraud or misrepresentation can be ignored in subsequent proceedings as held by the Apex Court in the Case of Asharfi Lal (supra), and Division Bench of this Court in the case of Ibne Hasan (supra). The second finding of the Revisional court that the restoration/recall application filed for recall of the compromise decree dated 23.11.1959 is deemed to be dismissed since both the parties have not produced any order is not correct since the case of the petitioners from the very beginning was that they were never aware of the filing of the Suit No. 70/1959, the filing of restoration was in the knowledge of the respondents. Instead of summoning record of the suit aforesaid, the Settlement Officer Consolidation as well as the Deputy Director Consolidation presumed that such restoration/recall application was dismissed. Even if it was dismissed the legal petition as per Section 44 of Evidence Act will not be affected.

29. The third finding regarding the signature expert reports was also not in accordance with law as discussed earlier in this judgment. The last finding regarding the death of the father of the petitioners' Musai, after the decree is not very relevant since the entirety of facts and circumstances of this case prove that the conduct of the alleged counsel for the petitioners was not fair. The engagement of the counsel, execution of compromise on behalf of petitioners by the counsel and passing of order or compromise on same date i.e., 23.11.1959, are clouded in suspicion.

30. Before parting with this case, this Court finds that it is a settled position of law that, an appeal is a continuation of the proceedings of the original court. Ordinarily, the appellate jurisdiction involves a re-hearing on law as well as on fact and is invoked by an aggrieved person. The first appeal is a valuable right of the Appellant and therein all questions of fact and law decided by the trial court are open for re-consideration. Therefore, the first appellate court is required to address itself to all the issues and decide the case by giving reasons.

31. The Court of first appeal must record its findings only after dealing with all issues of law as well as fact and with the evidence, oral as well as documentary, led by the parties. The judgment of the first appellate court must display conscious application of mind and record findings supported by reasons on all issues and contentions. When the appellate court agrees with the views of the trial court on evidence, it need not restate effect of evidence or reiterate reasons given by trial court. Expression of a general agreement with the reasons given by the trial court would ordinarily suffice. However, where it disagrees with the same elaborate reasons are regained to be given which has not been done in this case as considered above. The appellate Court has summoned new evidence in the form of hand writing expert's report and decided the Appeal without discussing and setting aside the findings of the Consolidation Officer.

32. The Revisional Court has also failed to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it by law. Wide scope of the revisional powers of the Deputy Director of Consolidation under Section 48 of the Act has been endorsed by this Court in Ram Jeet & others vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Jaunpur and others, Writ - B No.42465 of 1999, decided on 31.05.2013, where it has been held thus:

"Supreme Court in Ram Dular Vs. DDC and others, 1994 (Supplement) (2) SCC 198, Preetam Singh Vs. DDC and others, (1996) 2 SCC 270, Sheo Nand Vs. DDC and others, (2000) 3 SCC 103, Gulzar Singh Vs. DDC and others, (2009) 12 SCC 590 has consistently held that Deputy Director of Consolidation has very wide power to decide issue relating to fact and law both under Section 48 of the Act after re-appreciating the evidence on record. Apart from it Explanation III has been added in Section 48 of the Act with retrospective effect from 10.11.1980 which provides that the power under this Section to examine the correctness, legality or propriety of any order includes the power to examine any finding, whether of fact or law, recorded by any subordinate authority and also includes the power to re-appreciate any oral or documentary evidence."

33. There is another aspect of the matter, which is far reaching import about the manner in which the Deputy Director of Consolidation has written his judgment.

34. The judgment of a Revisional Court has to open, go through and end like a judgment of reappraisal of what the two Courts or Authorities below have done. The approach of reappraisal has to be supervisory, and not open appellate. May be, in the case of a revision under Section 48 of the Act, the standard of reappraisal is wider than that traditionally associated with exercise of Revisional jurisdiction. But, all the same, a revisional court cannot decide and write its judgment as if it were a Court of first instance, without referring to and affirming or reversing the findings of the two Authorities below. In the present case, the impugned judgment has precisely done that. It reads like an original judgment written in the third instance. It does not give any reason to agree with what the Appellate Court and disagree with what the trial court has said. It has given in its own reasons and new ground that compromise decree in dispute was voidable and required to be set aside by competent court. It has not considered whether the appellate court has considered properly the findings recorded by the trial court. It has also not itself exercised its jurisdiction of reappraisal of both the judgments of the courts below.

34. In view of the above consideration, this court finds that the orders passed by the Settlement Officer Consolidation, Basti and the Deputy Director of Consolidation, Basti, impugned in the writ petition cannot be sustained and are hereby, quashed.

35. The order of the Consolidation Officer is upheld.

36. The writ petition is allowed.

6. Section 102 of the Criminal Procedure Code provides as under :

"102. Power of police officer to seize certain property.

(1) Any police officer may seize any property which may be alleged or suspected to have been stolen, or which may be found under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence.

(2) Such police officer, if subordinate to the officer in charge of a police station, shall forthwith report the seizure to that officer.

(3) Every police officer acting under sub-section (1) shall forthwith report the seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction and where the property seized is such that it cannot be conveniently transported to the Court, 2[or where there is difficulty in securing proper accommodation for the custody of such property, or where the continued retention of the property in police custody may not be considered necessary for the purpose of investigation], he may give custody thereof to any person on his executing a bond undertaking to produce the property before the Court as and when required and to give effect to the further orders of the Court as to the disposal of the same:]

[Provided that where the property seized under sub-section (1) is subject to speedy and natural decay and if the person entitled to the possession of such property is unknown or absent and the value of such property is less than five hundred rupees, it may forthwith be sold by auction under the orders of the Superintendent of Police and the provisions of sections 457 and 458 shall, as nearly as may be practicable, apply to the net proceeds of such sale.]"

7. Sub Section (1) of Section 102 of the Criminal Procedure Code empowers any police officer to seize any property which may be alleged or suspected to have been stolen, or which may be found under circumstances which create suspicion of the Commission of any offence. Sub Section (2) requires such police officer, if subordinate to the officer in charge of a police station, to report forthwith the seizure to that officer.

9. Sub Section (3) provides that Officer acting under Sub-Section (1) shall forthwith report the seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction and where the property seized is such that it cannot be, conveniently transported to the Court or where there is difficulty in securing proper accommodation for the custody of such property, or where the continued retention of the property in police custody may not be considered necessary for the purpose of investigation, he may give custody thereof to any person on his executing a bond undertaking to produce the property before the Court as and when required and to give effect to the further orders of the Court as to the disposal of the same.

10. The proviso to sub Rule (3) that deals with situation the property ceased under sub Section (1) is subject to speedy and natural decay.

11. Thus, property including a bank account creating suspicion about commission of an offence may be seized by the investigating officer or he may prohibit operation of such bank account of any person who may be found under circumstances creating suspicion of commission of any offence. The scope and object of Section 102 is to help and assist investigation and to enable a police officer to collect evidence to be produced to prove charge complained of and set up in the charge sheet. Plain reading of sub Section 1 of Section 102 makes it clear that the property seized must be suspected to have been stolen or which may be found under circumstances which creates suspicion of the commission of any offence.

12. In the case of State of Maharashtra Vs. Tapas D. Neogy (1999) 7 SCC 685 (paragraphs 6 & 12) Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under :

"6. A plain reading of sub-section (1) of Section 102 indicates that the police officer has the power to seize any property which may be found under circumstances creating suspicion of the commission of any offence. The legislature having used the expression "any property" and "any offence" have made the applicability of the provisions wide enough to cover offences created under any Act. But the two preconditions for applicability of Section 102(1) are that it must be "property" and secondly, in respect of the said property there must have been suspicion of commission of any offence. In this view of the matter the two further questions that arise for consideration are whether the bank account of an accused or of his relation can be said to be "property" within the meaning of sub-section (1) of Section 102 CrPC and secondly, whether circumstances exist, creating suspicion of commission of any offence in relation to the same.

12. Having considered the divergent views taken by different High Courts with regard to the power of seizure under Section 102 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, and whether the bank account can be held to be "property" within the meaning of the said Section 102(1), we see no justification to give any narrow interpretation to the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code. It is well known that corruption in public offices has become so rampant that it has become difficult to cope up with the same. Then again the time consumed by the courts in concluding the trials is another factor which should be borne in mind in interpreting the provisions of Section 102 of the Criminal Procedure Code and the underlying object engrafted therein, inasmuch as if there can be no order of seizure of the bank account of the accused then the entire money deposited in a bank which is ultimately held in the trial to be the outcome of the illegal gratification, could be withdrawn by the accused and the courts would be powerless to get the said money which has any direct link with the commission of the offence committed by the accused as a public officer. We are, therefore, persuaded to take the view that the bank account of the accused or any of his relations is "property" within the meaning of Section 102 of the Criminal Procedure Code and a police officer in course of investigation can seize or prohibit the operation of the said account if such assets have direct links with the commission of the offence for which the police officer is investigating into. The contrary view expressed by the Karnataka, Gauhati and Allahabad High Courts, does not represent the correct law. It may also be seen that under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, in the matter of imposition of fine under sub-section (2) of Section 13, the legislatures have provided that the courts in fixing the amount of fine shall take into consideration the amount or the value of the property which the accused person has obtained by committing the offence or where the conviction is for an offence referred to in clause (e) of sub-section (1) of Section 13, the pecuniary resources or property for which the accused person is unable to account satisfactorily. The interpretation given by us in respect of the power of seizure under Section 102 of the Criminal Procedure Code is in accordance with the intention of the legislature engrafted in Section 16 of the Prevention of Corruption Act referred to above. In the aforesaid premises, we have no hesitation to come to the conclusion that the High Court of Bombay committed error in holding that the police officer could not have seized the bank account or could not have issued any direction to the bank officer, prohibiting the account of the accused from being operated upon. Though we have laid down the law, but so far as the present case is concerned, the order impugned has already been given effect to and the accused has been operating his account, and so, we do not interfere with the same."

13. In the case of M.T. Enrica Lexie Vs. Doramma, (2012) 6 SCC 760 (para 14) Hon'ble Supreme Court explained the object, purpose and scope of Section 102 Cr.P.C., and held as under :

14. The police officer in course of investigation can seize any property under Section 102 if such property is alleged to be stolen or is suspected to be stolen or is the object of the crime under investigation or has direct link with the commission of offence for which the police officer is investigating into. A property not suspected of commission of the offence which is being investigated into by the police officer cannot be seized. Under Section 102 of the Code, the police officer can seize such property which is covered by Section 102(1) and no other.

14. In the case of Teesta Atul Setalvad Vs. State of Gujarat (2018) 2 SCC 372 (paragraphs 20 & 26) Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the scope and effect of Section 102 Cr.P.C., and following the law laid down in the case of State of Maharashtra Vs. Tapas D. Neogy (supra) held as under :

"20. As regards the procedure for issuing instructions to freeze the bank accounts, it is noticed that the same has been followed by giving intimation to the Magistrate concerned on 21-11-2014 as required in terms of Section 102 of the Code. There is nothing in Section 102 which mandates giving of prior notice to the account-holder before the seizure of his bank account. The Magistrate after noticing that the principle stated by the Division Bench of the Bombay High Court in Shashikant D. Karnik v. State of Maharashtra has been overruled in terms of the Full Bench judgment of the Bombay High Court in Vinodkumar Ramachandran Valluvar, rightly negated that contention. The Full Bench of the Bombay High Court has expounded that Section 102 does not require issuance of notice to a person before or simultaneously with the action attaching his bank account. In Adarsh Coop. Housing Society Ltd. v. Union of India , the Division Bench of the Bombay High Court once again considered the issue and rejected the argument that prior notice to the account-holder was required to be given before seizure of his bank account. It also noted that the bank account need not be only of the accused but it can be any account creating suspicion about the commission of an offence. The view so taken commends us.

26. Although both sides have adverted to statement of accounts and vouchers to buttress their respective submissions, we do not deem it necessary nor think it appropriate to analyse the same while considering the matter on hand which emanates from an application preferred by the appellants to defreeze the stated bank accounts pending investigation of the case. Indisputably, the investigation is still in progress. The appellants will have to explain their position to the investigating agency and after investigation is complete, the matter can proceed further depending on the material gathered during the investigation. The suspicion entertained by the investigating agency as to how the appellants appropriated huge funds, which in fact were meant to be disbursed to the unfortunate victims of 2002 riots will have to be explained by the appellants. Further, once the investigation is complete and police report is submitted to the court concerned, it would be open to the appellants to apply for defreezing of the bank accounts and persuade the court concerned that the said bank accounts are no more necessary for the purpose of investigation, as provided in sub-section (3) of Section 102 of the Code. It will be open to the court concerned to consider that request in accordance with law after hearing the investigating agency, including to impose conditions as may be warranted in the fact situation of the case."

15. In the case of Nevada Properties Private Limited through its Directors Vs. State of Maharashtra and another (2019) 20 SCC 119 (paragraphs 28 to 34 & 42), Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under :

"28. The first part of sub-section (1) of Section 102 of the Code relates to the property which may be alleged or suspected to have been stolen. Immovable property certainly cannot be stolen and cannot fall in this part. The second part relates to the property which may be found by a police officer under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence. We have already referred to the judgments of the Delhi High Court in P.K. Parmar [P.K. Parmar v. Union of India, 1992 SCC OnLine Del 136 : 1992 Cri LJ 2499] , Swaran Sabharwal [Swaran Sabharwal v. Commr. of Police, 1987 SCC OnLine Del 221 : 1988 Cri LJ 241] and Jagdish Chander [Jagdish Chander v. State, 1989 SCC OnLine Del 403 : (1990) 40 DLT 233] , which have elucidated and in a restricted and narrow manner defined the requirement for invoking the second part. However, we have come across a decision of this Court in Teesta Atul Setalvad v. State of Gujarat [Teesta Atul Setalvad v. State of Gujarat, (2018) 2 SCC 372 : (2018) 1 SCC (Cri) 718] , on an appeal from the judgment [Teesta Atul Setalvad v. State of Gujarat, 2015 SCC OnLine Guj 6283] of the Gujarat High Court and had dealt with a situation when an act of freezing the accounts was a sequel to the crime as the crime was detected earlier. The Gujarat High Court took a somewhat contrary view, by not interfering and directing defreezing, observing that even if the action of the investigating agency at the inception to seize may not be regular, the court cannot be oblivious to the collection of substantial material by the investigating agency which justifies its action under Section 102 of the Code. Further when the investigation had progressed to a material point, defreezing the bank accounts on the basis of such arguments would paralyse the investigation which would not be in the interest of justice. After referring to the factual matrix in Teesta Atul Setalvad [Teesta Atul Setalvad v. State of Gujarat, (2018) 2 SCC 372 : (2018) 1 SCC (Cri) 718] , this Court observed that the investigating officer was in possession of material pointing out to the circumstances that had created suspicion of the commission of an offence, in particular the one under investigation, and therefore exercise of power under Section 102 of the Code would be in law legitimate as it was exercised after following the procedure prescribed in sub-sections (2) and (3) of the same provision.

29. Section 102 postulates seizure of the property. Immovable property cannot, in its strict sense, be seized, though documents of title, etc. relating to immovable property can be seized, taken into custody and produced. Immovable property can be attached and also locked/sealed. It could be argued that the word "seize" would include such action of attachment and sealing. Seizure of immovable property in this sense and manner would in law require dispossession of the person in occupation/possession of the immovable property, unless there are no claimants, which would be rare. Language of Section 102 of the Code does not support the interpretation that the police officer has the power to dispossess a person in occupation and take possession of an immovable property in order to seize it. In the absence of the legislature conferring this express or implied power under Section 102 of the Code to the police officer, we would hesitate and not hold that this power should be inferred and is implicit in the power to effect seizure.

30. Equally important, for the purpose of interpretation is the scope and object of Section 102 of the Code, which is to help and assist investigation and to enable the police officer to collect and collate evidence to be produced to prove the charge complained of and set up in the charge-sheet. The section is a part of the provisions concerning investigation undertaken by the police officer. After the charge-sheet is filed, the prosecution leads and produces evidence to secure conviction. Section 102 is not, per se, an enabling provision by which the police officer acts to seize the property to do justice and to hand over the property to a person whom the police officer feels is the rightful and true owner. This is clear from the objective behind Section 102, use of the words in the section and the scope and ambit of the power conferred on the criminal court vide Sections 451 to 459 of the Code.

31. The expression "circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence" in Section 102 does not refer to a firm opinion or an adjudication/finding by a police officer to ascertain whether or not "any property" is required to be seized. The word "suspicion" is a weaker and a broader expression than "reasonable belief" or "satisfaction". The police officer is an investigator and not an adjudicator or a decision maker. This is the reason why the Ordinance was enacted to deal with attachment of money and immovable properties in cases of scheduled offences.

32. In case and if we allow the police officer to "seize" immovable property on a mere "suspicion of the commission of any offence", it would mean and imply giving a drastic and extreme power to dispossess, etc. to the police officer on a mere conjecture and surmise, that is, on suspicion, which has hitherto not been exercised. We have hardly come across any case where immovable property was seized vide an attachment order that was treated as a seizure order by police officer under Section 102 of the Code. The reason is obvious. Disputes relating to title, possession, etc., of immovable property are civil disputes which have to be decided and adjudicated in civil courts. We must discourage and stall any attempt to convert civil disputes into criminal cases to put pressure on the other side (see Binod Kumar v. State of Bihar [Binod Kumar v. State of Bihar, (2014) 10 SCC 663 : (2015) 1 SCC (Cri) 203]). Thus, it will not be proper to hold that Section 102 of the Code empowers a police officer to seize immovable property, land, plots, residential houses, streets or similar properties. Given the nature of criminal litigation, such seizure of an immovable property by the police officer in the form of an attachment and dispossession would not facilitate investigation to collect evidence/material to be produced during inquiry and trial.

33. As far as possession of the immovable property is concerned, specific provisions in the form of Sections 145 and 146 of the Code can be invoked as per and in accordance with law. Section 102 of the Code is not a general provision which enables and authorises the police officer to seize immovable property for being able to be produced in the criminal court during trial. This, however, would not bar or prohibit the police officer from seizing documents/papers of title relating to immovable property, as it is distinct and different from seizure of immovable property. Disputes and matters relating to the physical and legal possession and title of the property must be adjudicated upon by a civil court.

34. In view of the aforesaid discussion, the reference is answered by holding that the power of a police officer under Section 102 of the Code to seize any property, which may be found under circumstances that create suspicion of the commission of any offence, would not include the power to attach, seize and seal an immovable property.

42. Section 102 has been in the statute book for more than a century. Section 102 corresponds to Section 550 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. For more than a century the courts have read the words "any property" to mean movable property [Textile Traders Syndicate Ltd. v. State of U.P., 1959 SCC OnLine All 207 : AIR 1960 All 405] , [Kuriachan Chacko v. State of Kerala, 2012 SCC OnLine Ker 31708 : (2012) 3 KLJ 620] , [Brajesh Kumar Srivastava v. State of Bihar, 2016 SCC OnLine Pat 2900 : (2016) 3 Pat LJR 464] and no decision to the contrary was brought to our notice. Reliance is only placed on the judgment of this Court in State of Maharashtra v. Tapas D. Neogy [State of Maharashtra v. Tapas D. Neogy, (1999) 7 SCC 685 : 1999 SCC (Cri) 1352] . In that case, the question was totally different and this Court only decided that a bank account of an accused was property within the meaning of Section 102. The Court did not go into the question of movable or immovable property and, therefore, this judgment would not be applicable.

16. The legal position as emerges from the plain reading of Section 102 Cr.P.C. and also on perusal of law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the judgments aforesaid, is briefly summarized as under:

(i) The Police officer has the power to freeze "any" property either stolen or which may be found under the circumstances creating suspicion of commission of any offence. By using the words "any property" and "any offence", the legislature has made the applicability of Section 102 wide enough to cover any offences under any Act.

(ii) The preconditions for applicability of Section 102 of Cr.P.C. are:

(a) that there must be a property and

(b) that property is alleged or suspected to have been stolen or which may be found under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence.

(iii) Undoubtedly, a bank account is covered within the meaning of "property" under Section 102 (1) of Cr.P.C.

(iv) The Police Officer in course of investigation can seize any property under Section 102 Cr.P.C. if:

(a) such property is alleged to be stolen or

*(b) is suspected to be stolen or
(c) is the object of the crime under investigation or*

(d) has direct link with commission of offence for which the Police Officer is investigating

(v) So far as the procedure of issuing instructions to freeze the bank accounts, the Police Officer is required to give an intimation of such freezing of account to the concerned Magistrate.

(vi) Before issuing instructions to bank for freezing the bank account there is no requirement of issuing any prior notice to the account holder before freezing of the bank account.

(vii) Under Section 102 of Cr.P.C. immovable property in its strict sense cannot be seized though the documents of title relating to immovable property can be seized. Power under Section 102 would not include the power to attach, seize and seal an immovable property.

*(viii) Once the investigation is complete and Police report is submitted to the Court concerned it is open for the person whose account has been frozen during investigation, to apply for defreezing of the bank account before the concerned Magistrate in terms of Section 102 (3) of Cr.P.C. and persuade the Court concerned that the said bank account is no more necessary for the purpose of investigation. If such application is filed, the Court concerned shall consider the request in accordance with law, and after hearing the investigation agency, may allow the application and direct defreezing of such bank account.
While doing so, the Court concerned may impose conditions as may be warranted in the facts and situations of the case.*

17. Since it is admitted case of the parties that a charge sheet has already been filed, therefore, we permit the petitioners to move an application before the concerned court for release of their bank account in the light of the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Teesta Atul Setalvad (supra).

18. In the event such an application is filed by the petitioners before the concerned Court/Magistrate, it shall be decided by the concerned Court/Magistrate in accordance with law, expeditiously, preferably within two months from the date of submission of the application.

19. The writ petition is disposed of with the observations made above.

Civil Law - Land Acquisition Act, 1894 - Sections 11(2), 18 & 28A - The Uttar Pradesh Land Acquisition (Determination of Compensation and Declaration of Award by Agreement), 1997 Key Issues: 1.

Whether petitioners who accepted compensation under the Karar Niyamawali without protest can claim enhanced compensation determined by the reference court for other claimants ? 2. Whether merely being a "person interested" under the Act is sufficient to claim re-determination of compensation under Section 28A ? Held: Petitioners, having accepted the compensation without protest, are not "aggrieved persons" within the meaning of the Act and therefore cannot claim enhanced compensation. Petitioners who received compensation without objection fall outside the definition of "aggrieved persons" under the Act. Entire proceedings were completed before the insertion of Section 28A into the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. Being an "interested person" does not automatically entitle a landowner to redetermination of compensation; they must also be "aggrieved."

1. Since common question of law is involved in both the petitions, the same are being decided by a composite order.

2. For the sake of clarity Writ-C No.6415 of 2023 is being treated as a leading petition.

3. The present petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India was presented on 28th February, 2023 and on 3.3.2023 this Court proceeded to pass the following order:-

“The order of rejection of the application under Section 28A filed by the petitioner herein indicates that the petitioners have accepted the award prepared by the Collector under Section 11(2) of the Land Acquisition Act. The issue, therefore, is as to whether after accepting compensation under the Karar Niyamawali, the petitioners can claim higher compensation determined under the reference court award, filed by such persons who did not accept the award.

Learned counsel for the petitioners prays for and is granted adjournment for the day to enable him to go through the matter to make his submission.

As prayed, put up this matter as fresh on 20.03.2023.”

4. Thereafter the matter was taken on 21.4.2023 wherein this Court passed an order which is extracted as below:-

“Case is called out. No one appears on behalf of the petitioners to press the case.

Sri Apurva Hajela, learned Standing Counsel appears for the State-respondents.

Put up this case in the additional cause list on 27.04.2023 at 02:00PM.”

5. Today when the matter has been taken up, nobody appears either in the leading writ petition or in the connected writ petition, despite that on earlier occasion also the learned counsel for the writ petitioners were not present. Since both the cases are connected together and were directed to be placed on 27.4.2023 as a date fixed matter at 2.00 p.m. nobody appeared for the petitioners thus after hearing Sri Apoorv Hajela learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents and Sri M.N. Singh, who appears for the third respondent, Ghaziabad Development Authority, Ghaziabad, the court is proceeding to decide the matters.

6. The case of the writ petitioners in the leading writ petition is that, they claim to be the recorded owners of certain piece of land situate in Tehsil Loni, Pargana and District Ghaziabad. As per the pleadings, acquisition proceedings were initiated by the State of U.P. under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (In Short the Act, 1894) for public purpose. The notification purported to be under Section 4(I) of the Act, 1894 was issued on 9.2.1962. Possession of the acquired land was taken on 26.5.1963, the award was made on 1.2.1964 for 236.7735 acres of land and a total compensation of Rs.7,35,707.24 was awarded.

7. It is the case of the writ petitioners that the compensation was initially awarded @ Rs.1.92 per square yard for the first belt, Rs.0.96 per square yard for the second belt and 0.48 per sq. yard for third belt which was found to be inadequate, so references were made under Section 18 of the Act, 1894 before the District Judge, Ghaziabad by various claimants.

8. It is further the case of the writ petitioners, that they did not prefer any objection under Section 18 of the Act, 1894.

The objections of the land owners (not the writ petitioners) were registered as LAR No.172 of 1989 which was connected with other land acquisition references and by virtue of the order dated 10.4.1992 passed in LAR No.172 of 1989 and LAR No.18 of 1989, the reference court enhanced the compensation to the tune of Rs.40 per square yard, the claimants were also made entitled to additional amount calculated at the rate of 12% per annum from the date of the acquisition under Section 4(I) of the Act, 1894 i.e. 9.2.1962 to the date of taking possession on 26.5.1993, solatium at the rate 30% on the market value of the land sought to be acquired while further entitling the claimants to get interest at @ 9% per annum w.e.f. the date of taking of possession and @ 15% per annum w.e.f. 26.5.1964 till the date of the payment made within a period of six weeks, from the passing of the award in question.

9. In paragraph 8 of the writ petition the writ petitioners have come up with stand that they preferred an application under Section 28A of the Act, 1894 for redetermination of the amount of compensation on the basis of the award of the reference court. It is further the case of the writ petitioners that against the order of the reference court dated 10.4.1992 the third respondent, Ghaziabad Development Authority, Ghaziabad preferred Appeals under Section 54 of the Act, 1894 before this Court which was registered as First Appeal No.525 of 1992, Ghaziabad Development Authority vs. Ram Krishna (Dead) and the land owners also filed appeal for enhancement of compensation which came to be dismissed by Division Bench of this Court on 1.12.2014,

10. Aggrieved, against judgement and order dated 1.12.2014 passed in First Appeal No.525 of 1992, Ghaziabad

Development Authority vs. Ram Krishna (Dead) along with the connected appeals, the third respondent, Ghaziabad Development Authority approached the Hon'ble Apex Court while filing Civil Appeal No.1710 of 2016, Ghaziabad Development Authority vs. Ram Krishna (Dead) and others which along with the connected appeals came to be decided by virtue of the judgement and order dated 23rd February, 2016 determining compensation @ Rs.42.50 per sq. Yard.

11. However, on 2.5.2022 the second respondent, Collector/ (ADM) LA, Ghaziabad proceeded to reject the application preferred by the writ petitioners under Section 28A of the Act, 1894.

12. Questioning the said order, the writ petitioners have filed the present writ petition inter alia with the following reliefs:-

“I. Issue a writ of certiorari for quashing of the impugned order dated 02.05.2022 passed by the respondent no. 2 upon Application No. 67 of 1992 preferred under Section 28A of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (Annexure No. 2 to this Writ Petition).

II. Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondents to re-determine the compensation in the light of judgment and order passed by this Hon'ble Court in First Appeal No. 525 of 1992 and the judgment and order passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in Civil Appeal No. 1710 of 2016, (GDA Vs. Ram Kishan and others).

III. Issue a writ, order or direction, which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the case.

IV. Award the cost of the writ petition to the petitioner.”

13. Pleadings in the writ petition reveals that the principal ground of challenge made to the order dated 2.5.2022 of the second respondent, Collector/A.D.M. (L.A.) Ghaziabad in the proceedings purported to be under Section 28 of the Act, 1894 is on the premise that once the land of the writ petitioners was put to acquisition by the same notification whereupon the land of the claimants who had preferred application under Section 18 of the Act, 1894 culminated into grant of enhanced compensation, then the writ petitioners being similarly situated are entitled to get enhance compensation in view of the provisions of Section 28A of the Act, 1894.

14. It has also been averred in the writ petition that Section 28A of the Act, 1894 is a beneficial section which enjoins the court to redetermine the amount of compensation on the basis of the award of the court and it is not dependent upon the fact as to whether the land owner has accepted compensation either under protest or without protest. What is material for attracting the said provision is that the land which is put to acquisition should be relatable to the same notification which on the motion of the other land owners while seeking reference under Section 18 of the Act, 1894 were made entitled to higher compensation.

15. Sri Apoorv Hajela learned Standing Counsel, who appears for the State-respondents on the other submits that the order passed by the second respondent, Collector/ADM (LA) Ghaziabad does not suffer from any illegality particularly in view of the fact that once as per the own saying of the writ petitioners, they have accepted the compensation under Section 11(2) of the Act without any protest in terms of an agreement (Karar Niyamawali) then they have acquiesced to the quantum and determination of the compensation, and would not come within the definition of aggrieved persons so as to claim benefit under Section 28A of the Act, 1894.

16. Reliance has also been placed upon the judgement in the case of Babua Ram and others vs. State of U.P. & another reported in (1995) 2 SCC 689, followed by a Division Bench Judgement of the Karnataka High Court in the case of the Special Land Acquisition Officer vs. Lakshmanbabu Gayakward and others decided on 14th November, 2006, Ranveer Singh vs. State of U.P. reported in AIR 2016 Supreme Court 3753, Ishwarilal Premchand Shah and others vs. State of Gujarat and others reported in (1996) 4 SCC 174, and Kainash Ram Kochar vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 2011 (8) ADJ 9, Writ-C 16574 of 2017 Prakash vs. State of U.P. decided on 20.4.2023.

17. Before delving into the issues raised in the writ petition, it would be appropriate to notice the relevant statutory provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 which are germane to the issue in question:-

3(b) the expression “person interested” included all persons claiming an interest in compensation to be made on account of the acquisition of land under this Act; and a person shall be deemed to be interested in land if he is interested in an easement affecting the land.

11. Enquiry and award by Collector.-(1)] On the day so fixed, or any other day to which the enquiry has been adjourned, the Collector shall proceed to enquire into the objections (if any) which any person interested has stated pursuant to a notice given under section 9 to the measurements made under section 8, and into the value of the land '[at the date of the publication of the notification under section 4, sub-section (1)], and into the respective interests of the persons claiming the compensation and shall make an award under his of-

(i) the true area of the land;

(ii) the compensation which in his opinion should be allowed for the land; and

(iii) the apportionment of the said compensation among all the persons known or believed to be interested in the land, of whom, or of whose claims, he has information, whether or not they have respectively appeared before him:

Provided that no award shall be made by the Collector under this sub section without the previous approval of the appropriate Government or of such officer as the appropriate Government may authorise in this behalf:

Provided further that it shall be competent for the appropriate Government to direct that the Collector may make such award without such approval in such class of cases as the appropriate Government may specify in this behalf.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), if at any stage of the proceedings, the Collector is satisfied that all the persons interested in the land who appeared before him have agreed in writing on the matters to be included in the award of the Collector in the form prescribed by rules made by the appropriate Government, he may, without making further enquiry, make an award according to the terms of such agreement.

(3) The determination of compensation for any land under sub-section (2) shall not in any way affect the determination of compensation in respect of other lands in the same locality or elsewhere in accordance with the other provisions of this Act.]

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Registration Act, 1908 (16 of 1908), no agreement made under sub-section (2) shall be liable to registration under that Act.]

18. Reference to Court.-(1) Any person interested who has not accepted the award may, by written application to the Collector, require that the matter be referred by the Collector for the determination of the Court, whether his objection be to the measurement of the land, the amount of the compensation, the persons to whom it is payable, or the apportionment of the compensation among the persons interested.

(2) The application shall state the grounds on which objection to the award is taken:

Provided that every such application shall be made,—

(a) if the person making it was present or represented before the Collector at the time when he made his award, within six weeks from the date of the Collector's award;

(b) in other cases, within six weeks of the receipt of the notice from the Collector under section 12, sub-section (2), or within six months from the date of the Collector's award, whichever period shall first expire.

28A. Re-determination of the amount of compensation on the basis of the award of the Court.—(1) Where in an award under this Part, the Court allows to the applicant any amount of compensation in excess of the amount awarded by the Collector under section 11, the persons interested in all the other land covered by the same notification under section 4, sub-section (1) and who are also aggrieved by the award of the Collector may, notwithstanding that they had not made an application the Collector under section 18, by written application to the Collector within three months from the date of the award of the Court require that the amount of compensation payable to them may be re-determined on the basis of the amount of compensation awarded by the Court:

Provided that in computing the period of three months within which an application to the Collector shall be made under this sub-section, the day on which the award was pronounced and the time requisite for obtaining a copy of the award shall be excluded.

(2) The Collector shall, on receipt of an application under sub-section (1), conduct an inquiry after giving notice to all the persons interested and giving them a reasonable opportunity of being heard, and make an award determining the amount of compensation payable to the applicants.

(3) Any person who has not accepted the award under sub-section (2) may, by written application to the Collector, require that the matter be referred by the Collector for the determination of the Court and the provisions of sections 18 to 28 shall, so far as may be, apply to such reference as they apply to a reference under section 18.]

The Uttar Pradesh Land Acquisition (Determination of Compensation and Declaration of Award By Agreement), 1997

A short title, extent and commencement.—(1) These rules may be called the Uttar Pradesh Land Acquisition (Determination of compensation and Declaration of Award by Agreement) Rules, 1997

(2) They shall extend to the whole of the Uttar Pradesh.

(3) They shall come into force with effect from the date of their publication in the Gazette.

2. The body or Department for which the land if being acquired may, any stage of the proceedings settle down the terms and conditions and terms of the land under acquisition, with the land owners and appear before the Collectors and make an application indicating the terms and conditions so settled down and its readiness and willingness for termination of compensation and declaration of award in accordance with agreement. The Collector shall, if satisfied, issue notice to the persons interested in the land under acquisition to express their readiness and willingness to execute the agreement in writing, on the matters to be included in the award.

3. The Collector may, after hearing the parties, and upon being satisfied that the persons interested in the land are ready and willing to execute the agreement, grant the permission unless, for reasons to be recorded in writing he decides to refuse it.

4. (1) The Collector shall, where he grants the permission inform the persons interested in the land by registered post, about date, time and place for the execution of the agreement.

(2) The agreement shall be executed in the form appended to these rules, with necessary details as to whether possession has, or has not, been taken before the award.

(3) If the persons so informed fail to turn up and execute the agreement on such date, time and place or the extended date, as the case may be, the Collector shall proceed to make enquiry under Section 11 from the stage, at which the application under Rule 2 was made.

5. The amount of compensation to be settled in the agreement shall, always abide by the instructions issued by the State Government of Uttar Pradesh from time to time.

6. (1) When an agreement is discovered to have been fraudulently executed, the Collector shall, suo motu, or on an application made in that behalf, cancel the agreement after affording a reasonable opportunity of being heard to the persons who have executed the agreement.

(2) In case of cancellation of the agreement under sub-rule (1) the executants shall have no right to claim any compensation or damages from the State Government.

18. It is the own case of the writ petitioners, that the acquisition proceeding of the land of the writ petitioners was undertaken under the provisions of the Act, 1894 while issuing the notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, on 9.2.1962, the possession of the land was taken on 26.5.1963 and award was made on 1.2.1964. The order impugned under Section 28A of the Act, 1894 of the second respondent itself records a categorical finding that the ancestors of the writ petitioners have themselves accepted the award in pursuance of an agreement (Karan Niyamawali) executed with the respondents.

19. The only question which arises for determination is as to whether the writ petitioners can claim enhanced compensation on the premise that the other co-land owners pursuant to the order of the court of law were paid higher compensation.

20. Section 11 of the Act, 1894 is in two parts. The first part referable to Sub-Section (1) envisages the procedure to be adopted while taking recourse for passing award after making necessary inquiries by the Collector in view of the different parameters to be arrived for awarding compensation. The second part being, Section 11(2) pertains to the inquiry and award by the Collector, pre-supposes a contingency wherein notwithstanding anything contained in the first part in any stage of the proceedings, the Collector is satisfied that all the persons interested in the land who had appeared before it have agreed in writing on the matter to be included in the award of the Collector in the form prescribed by the Rules made by the appropriate authority, the Collector is empowered to make further inquiry and proceed to declare an award according to the terms of the agreement.

21. As a matter of fact Sub-Section (2) of Section 11 of the Act, 1894 is dependent upon the offer made by the Collector and the acceptance of the said offer by the land owner upon the terms of the award which also includes the amount of compensation to be paid to the land owner.

22. Further Section 18 of the Act, 1894 contemplates reference to the Court at the instance of a person who is interested and who has not accepted the award while filing a written application to the Collector requiring the matter to be referred by the Collector for the determination of the Court with regard to the amount of compensation to the persons, whom it is payable or the apportionment of the compensation amount to the interested persons.

23. Then comes Section 28A of the Act, 1894 which deals with re-determination of the amount of compensation on the basis of the award of the court.

24. Section 28A of the Act, 1894 provides that pursuant to the declaration of an award, the Court allows to an applicant an amount of compensation in excess of the amount awarded by the Collector under Section 11 of the Act, 1894, the persons interested in all the other land covered by the same notification under Section 4(1) of the Act, 1894 and who are also aggrieved by the award may notwithstanding that they had not made an application to the Collector under Section 18 of the Act, 1894 by written application to the Collector within three months from the date of the award of the Collector, require that the amount of compensation payable to them may be redetermined on the basis of the amount of compensation awarded by the court.

25. The words employed “aggrieved” in Section 28A of the Act, 1894 clinches the entire issue. Though the word “aggrieved” has not been defined in the Act, 1894, but the definitions of “aggrieved” is to be borrowed from the various dictionaries which are often cited.

26. A conjoint reading of Section 11(2), Section 18 and 28A of the Act, 1894 shows that the word aggrieved is to be read in-conformity and conjunction with compensation. Section 11(2) is an exception and it starts with the word “notwithstanding” having overriding effect.

27. The legislature was quiet conscious and oblivious of the contingencies which might arise when a section of land owners did not intend to enter into long drawn legal battle challenging the award with respect to the acquisition proceedings as well as the amount of compensation being awarded to them and in turn wanted to settle the compensation in lieu of the land acquired thus these circumstances occasioned insertion of Sub-Section (2) in the Section 11 of the Act, 1894.

28. As already discussed, Sub-Section (2) of Section 11 of the Act, 1894 starts with the word “notwithstanding anything contained in Sub-Section (1)” meaning thereby that it has a overriding effect so as to give a window to the land owners whose land is being acquired to enter into negotiation by mode of agreement settling their issues with regard to compensation. The agreement envisaged under Section 11(2) (Karar Niyamawali) has a statutory backing from Section 11(2) of the 1894 Act. Notably the said agreement also confirms to the provisions of the Contract Act, 1872 and thus the principles enshrined for making it a concluded contract stands applied, namely, floating of an offer by one party and the acceptance of the same by the second party.

29. Nonetheless, post independence in exercise of the powers conferred by Sub-Section (1) of Section 55 of the Act 1894, the Governor was pleased to frame the Uttar Pradesh Land Acquisition (Determination of Compensation and Declaration of Award By Agreement), 1997 which contained a specific stipulation, that the amount of compensation accepted by the land owner through consent and agreement would be final and it would be without protest.

30. Though the word “aggrieved” has not been defined in the Act, 1894 but the word “person interested” has been defined under Sub-Clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1894.

31. As per the definition assigned to “person interested” it includes all persons claiming an interest in compensation to be made on account of acquisition of the land under the Act and a person shall be deemed to be interested in land if he is interested in easement affecting the land.

32. The words “person interested” finds place in Sub-Section (1) and (2) of Section 11 and Section 18. However, in Section 28A of the Act, 1894 besides the word “persons interested” the words “aggrieved” are employed. The words “person interested” in all other land and “aggrieved” by the award of the Collector are crucial and they are to govern the controversy at hand. Merely being an interested person would not ipso facto cloth the land owner for redetermination of the compensation as along with it he should be “aggrieved” also. The basic purpose of insertion of both the words “interested person” as well as aggrieved is relatable to the fact that a person may be interested but in order to be aggrieved party it should sustain a legal injury for putting the legal action in motion. Since the writ petitioners belong to a section who have received the compensation without protest thus they might be an interested person but they do not come within the definition of aggrieved persons.

33. The word ‘aggrieved’ employed in Section 28 of the Act, 1894 has been considered in detail by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Babua Ram and others (Supra) wherein following has been observed as under:

16. In *Krapa Rangiah v. Special Dy. Collector, Land Acquisition*¹¹ this Court observed that in an acquisition proceedings, lands situated in the same locality and in the neighbouring locality when are possessed of the same comparable advantages, the owners of the former lands are entitled to the same rate of compensation as the owners of other lands as determined by the judgment of the High Court which had become final as otherwise, it would be inequitable and discriminatory. In other words, the owners of the lands possessing the same kind and same quality etc. are entitled to parity in payment of compensation for their lands. Section 28-A(1) is intended to overcome the hurdle created by Section 18(1) and 2nd proviso to Section 31(2) in the matter of obtaining equal compensation for similar acquired lands. Equal compensation for similar acquired lands could be got by all the interested persons, if their lands are acquired under the same notification. In other words, if an owner fails to avail of the right and remedy under Section 18(1), Section 28-A(1) grants an extra right and remedy for redetermination of the compensation payable to him for his land on the basis of an award of the court giving to an owner of another land covered by the same notification under Section 4(1) and under the same award. The payment of higher compensation to his neighbouring landowner makes an applicant an aggrieved person to claim redetermination of the compensation payable to him for his land. The person aggrieved, therefore, in this context, would mean a person who had suffered legal injury or one who has been unjustly deprived or denied of something, which he would be interested to obtain in the usual course or similar benefits or advantage or results in wrongful affectation of his title to compensation.

(17. In Collin's English Dictionary, the word 'aggrieved' has been defined to mean "to ensure unjustly especially by infringing a person's legal rights". In Webster's Comprehensive Dictionary, International Edition at page 28, aggrieved person is defined to mean "subjected to ill-treatment, feeling an injury or injustice. Injured, as by legal decision adversely infringing upon one's rights". In Stroud's Judicial Dictionary, 5th Edn., Vol. 1, pages 83-84, person aggrieved means "person injured or damaged in a legal sense". In Black's Law Dictionary, 6th Edn.

at page 65, aggrieved has been defined to mean "having suffered loss or injury; damnified; injured" and aggrieved person has been defined to mean:

"One whose legal right is invaded by an act complained of, or whose pecuniary interest is directly and adversely affected by a decree or judgment. One whose right of property may be established or divested. The word 'aggrieved' refers to a substantial grievance, a denial of some personal, pecuniary or property right, or the imposition upon a party of a burden or obligation."

18. The person aggrieved must, therefore, be one who has suffered a legal grievance because of a decision pronounced by civil court giving higher compensation for the acquired lands similar to his own while he is denied of such higher compensation for his land because of operation of Section 18 read with Section 31 of the Act resulting in affectation of his pecuniary interest in his acquired land directly and adversely by that award of the Collector made under Section 11. As such he becomes an aggrieved person entitled to avail of the right and remedy conferred upon him under Section 28-A(1) to make good his denied right to receive compensation in excess of the amount awarded by the Collector/LAO. Acceptance of the contention of Shri G.L. Sanghi, learned Senior Counsel and his companions, that persons who under protest received payment of compensation for their lands but failed to avail of the right and remedy under Section 18 waiting in the wings for success of the landowners of the adjoining lands to get higher compensation under Section 28-A(1) as person aggrieved robs the poor and inarticulate who by reason of their poverty or ignorance failed to avail of the right and remedy under Section 18, and creates not only invidious discrimination between same class of persons similarly situated but would be highly unjust and arbitrary offending Article 14 of the Constitution, apart from flying in the face of express animation of the statute as espoused in its Statement of Objects and Reasons and the Financial Memorandum. In this a context, we make it clear that we have looked into Statement of Objects and Reasons and the Financial Memorandum to know what is it that induced the introduction of the Bill but not as an aid to interpret Section 28-A(1). Therefore, we have no hesitation to hold that any interested person in the land acquired under the same notification published under Section 4(1) who failed to avail the right and remedy under Section 18(1) read with second b proviso to Section 31(2), becomes a person aggrieved under Section 28-A(1) of the Act when the owner of the other land covered by the same notification is awarded higher compensation by the civil court on a reference got made by him under Section 18.

19. The next question is as to when the period of limitation of three months begins to run under Section 28-A and whether successive awards c made by civil court at different times in respect of the land covered by the same notification furnish separate causes of action for making applications under Section 28-A. Let us consider the meaning of the words "an award under this part" referred to in Section 28-A(1) which is Part III of the Act. The heading to that part begins by reference to court and its procedure. The 'court' means a principal civil court of original jurisdiction or a special d judicial officer appointed to perform the functions of the court under the Act as becomes clear as is noticed already. What are the matters to be considered in determining the compensation on a reference made to it under Section 18, is detailed in Section 23 while matters to be neglected in determining such compensation are indicated in Section 24. By operation of sub-section (2) of Section 26, the award made determining the amount of compensation shall be deemed to be a decree while the statement of the grounds of every such award is deemed to be the judgment, for the purpose of Code of Civil Procedure. The above perspectives from Part III make it clear that the award of the court is that of the civil court of original jurisdiction in that part. It is a decree for the purpose of an appeal under Section 54 which falls in Part VIII of the Act (Miscellaneous). The decree as defined in Section 2(2) CPC is the f decree of the High Court, which shall be appealable to the Supreme Court under Articles 132, 133 and 136 read with Order 45 CPC. Hence, the award of the court referred to in sub-section (1) of Section 28-A is only the award of the civil court of original jurisdiction or of judicial officer performing the functions of such court under the Act on reference received by it under Section 18 and an award and decree pronounced under Section 26 of the Act.

Since, the judgment and decree of the High Court under Section 54 or of this Court do not come in Part III of the Act, they stand excluded from an award envisaged under sub-section (1) of Section 28-A. The aggrieved interested person, therefore, is entitled to the right and remedy of making an application under Section 28-A for redetermination of compensation for his acquired land only on the basis of the award of the civil court or judicial h officer which is a judgment and decree under Section 26 when such award grants compensation in excess of the amount awarded by the Collector under Section 11. When such an application is made in writing by the aggrieved person, notwithstanding the fact of his having received compensation under Section 31 without protest and of not availing the right and remedy of the a reference under Section 18, the redetermination of the compensation under Section 28-A(1) is required to be done.

34. Following the said judgement the Karnataka High Court in the case of Lakshmanbabu Gayakward (Supra) had held as under :-

24. In our considered opinion, when a person interested in the land having opted for consent award under Section 11(2) of the Act, is not entitled to seek any reference for enhancement of the compensation under Section 18 read with Section 23(1) of the Act, and cannot be an 'aggrieved person' to claim re-determination of the amount of compensation on the basis of the award of the Civil Court.

25. The award made under Section 11(2) of the Act in terms of the agreement is a valid award under the Act. It has all the ingredients of a 'composition deed', a deed by which one party compounds with another. This term is normally used when there is an agreement between a debtor and a creditor. It simply means an agreement made by the debtor with the creditor to pay specified amount and which is accepted by the creditor in satisfaction of their entire claims whatever thus proffered. A creditor having accepted the offer made, thereafter cannot contend that he was unjustly deprived of his claims and then agitate the matter in a law suit. A case law nearer to the point is the one decided by a Full Bench of this Court in the case of S.V. Bagi v. State of Karnataka 87

STC 138, while explaining whether a person, who had opted for composition, can he be called an aggrieved person, has observed that, "a person, who had opted for composition in lieu of prosecutions and penalties, etc., cannot be an aggrieved person". Further, the Full Bench of this Court has stated, that "the process of compounding is completed only when the money that is agreed upon actually changes hands. If this is so, there can never be a situation where the person who has committed or is reasonably suspected of having committed an offence under the Act can be an aggrieved person"

35. Nonetheless, in the case of Ranveer Singh (Supra) Hon'ble Apex Court in paragraph 11 observed as under-

11. On its face the aforesaid contentions appears to be attractive but on a closer analysis of Section 11 as well as Section 23 it is found to have no merits. Section 23 is for guidance of the court which gets jurisdiction to determine compensation afresh only if there is a protest against the award and the payment is received with protest. This section does not control the determination of just compensation by the Collector under Section 11 which requires the Collector to enquire into objections (if any) on different issues such as measurement and interests of the person claiming compensation and then further requires the collector to make an award which is required to reflect, inter alia, "the compensation which in his opinion should be allowed for the land." But it is more appropriate and relevant to notice sub-section (2) of Section 11 which is as follows: that all the persons interested in the land who appeared before him have agreed in writing on the matters to be included in the award of the Collector in the form prescribed by rules made by the appropriate Government, he may, without making further enquiry, make an award according to the terms of such agreement.

This sub-section (2) of S. 11 begins with a non-obstante clause which makes it free of the requirements of sub-section (1) if all the persons interested in the land agree in writing as to what matters should be included in the award of the Collector. Thereupon the Collector is competent to make an award as per agreement without making further enquiry. In view of such clear provision that permits agreement to determine all the matters to be included in the award, all the inclusions and omissions in the consent award must be treated as based upon agreement of the parties and the final amount determined by way of agreement must be taken as a completely just compensation inclusive of the statutory interest payable to the claimant for the concerned land at least on the date of agreement. Since the agreed compensation amount is accepted without protest with a clear stipulation not to claim any additional amount, it has to be deemed that the compensation reflected in the consent award has taken into account all relevant factors including interest till the date of agreement. Moreover the right to seek reference for enhancement itself gets lost by accepting the compensation without protest especially when there is an agreement that the land owner shall not claim any amount in addition to the amount agreed upon as compensation and shall accept the compensation without any protest. In such circumstances agreed amount has to be treated as a just compensation permitting no addition or substitution whatsoever. In other words, not only the remedy under the Act of seeking enhancement is lost but the substantive cause of action also vanishes when the land owner agrees for a consent award and the amount of compensation is accepted without any protest.”

36. In the case of Ishwarilal Premchand Shah (Supra) the Hon’ble Apex Court had the occasion to consider the import of the agreement entered under Section 11(2) of the Act, 1894 with regard to payment of additional amounts which was not the part and parcel of the agreement entered into between the parties. The following was observed:-

9. This Court in State of Gujarat and Ors. v. Daya Shamji Bhai and Ors. AIR1996SC133 had considered the similar contentions and held that once the parties have agreed under Section 11(2) of the Act, the Land Acquisition Officer has power under Section 11(2) to pass the award in terms thereof and that the award need not contain payment of interest, solatium and additional amount unless it is also part of the contract between the parties. The same ratio applies to the facts in this case. In view of the above clauses in the agreements the appellants are not entitled to the payment of additional amounts by way of solatium, interest and additional amount under the provisions of the Act.

37. As regards, the case of Kainash Ram Kochar (Supra) it holds that right and the entitlement to seek reference under Section 18 would only arise once the amount of compensation was received under the protest in writing with the intention of the owner for the non-acceptance of the award. Paragraphs 20 and 21 the following were observed:

“20. The right and entitlement to seek reference would, therefore, arise when the amount of compensation was received under protest in writing which would manifest the intention of the owner of non-acceptance of the award. Section 11(2) opens with an non-obstante of non-obstante clause "notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1)" and provides that if at any stage of the proceedings, the Collector is satisfied that all the persons interested in the land who appeared before him have agreed in writing on the matters to be included in the award of the Collector in the form prescribed by rules made by the appropriate Government, he may, without making further enquiry, make an award according to the terms of such agreement. By virtue of sub-section (4), "notwithstanding anything contained in the Registration Act, 1908, no agreement made under sub-section (2) shall be liable to registration under that Act". The award made under Section 11(2) in terms of the agreement is, therefore, an award with consent obviating the necessity of reference under Section 18.

21. The above case clearly lays down that once an agreement was entered by , 6, the que question of objection to receive compensation does not arise and they have right to make a reference under Section 18./The judgment of the Apex Court MANU/SC/0236/2005: State of Karnataka & Anr. v. Sangappa Dyavappa Biradar & Ors., was also a case of consent award.”

38. The reliance placed by the learned Standing Counsel who appears for the State respondents upon the judgement in the case of Prakash (Supra) mandates that once the compensation has been received pursuant to the Karar Niyamawali then the question with regard to the practising of fraud is not open to be raised in writ jurisdiction as for the said purpose the affected party has a remedy of filing civil suit. The said judgement is not applicable in the facts of the case particularly when there is no challenge to the agreement on allegation of fraud.

39. Another issue which needs to be also noticed at the stage is that Section 28A of the Act, 1894 was inserted by Act no.68 of 1984 w.e.f. 24.9.1984. As per the pleadings in the writ petition the acquisition proceedings were initiated while issuance the notification under Section 4(1) of Act on 9.2.1962 possession whereof was taken on 26.5.1963 and award was declared on 1.2.1964 thus the entire acquisition proceedings came to an end prior to the insertion of the Section 28A of the Act, 1894. Moreover once a specific finding has been recorded that the ancestors of the writ petitioners have already accepted the compensation pursuant to the agreement on their freewill and open eyes then in the circumstances even otherwise the writ petitioners are not entitled to invoke Section 28A of the Act, 1894.

40. Notably on both the counts namely in absence of being the aggrieved party while accepting the compensation and further the entire proceedings stood completed prior to insertion of Section 28A of the Act, 1894, the writ petitioners are not entitled for being granted enhanced compensation.

41. Accordingly, we do not find that the order passed by the second respondent, Collector/ (ADM) LA, Ghaziabad rejecting the application of the writ petitioner under Section 28A of the Act, 1894 suffers from any patent illegality or error of law.

42. The writ petition is accordingly, dismissed.

43. No order as to cost.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani
Chauhan, J.)

1. This impleadment application has been filed by one of the members of the Gaon Sabha.
2. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that member of the Gaon Sabha cannot file a petition as he has no locus and has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Narendra Kumar vs. State of U.P. and others reported in 2013(1) ADJ 228.

3. In view of the above, the impleadment application is rejected.

Order on the writ petition

1. Heard Sri Rahul Sripat, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Ishir Sripat, learned Advocate, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri P.K. Giri, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Rishi Kumar, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents.

2. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner with a prayer to quash the impugned order dated 23.03.2023 passed by District Magistrate, District-Chitrakoot, seizing the administrative and financial power of the petitioner as Gram Pradhan and appointing three members committee for discharging the duty of Gram Pradhan.

3. The facts, in brief, are that the petitioner was duly elected as Gram Pradhan in Village- Pahari Bujurg, District-Chitrakoot in the general panchayat election held in the year 2021. Subsequently, some irregularities were found in the maintenance of Gaushala by the concerned Block Development Officer, therefore, to enquire about the matter, the Block Development Officer entrusted the same to a three member committee and accordingly, the committee submitted a report/complaint by letter dated 29.11.2022 informing the Chief Development Officer, Chitrakoot that the Gram Pradhan and Gram Panchayat Adhikari are not taking interest in the work under the “Swachha Bharat Mission”. The aforesaid complaint dated 14.11.2022 as well as letter dated 29.11.2022 was submitted before the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot, who in turn, vide order dated 30.12.2022, after recording prima facie satisfaction regarding dereliction of duty as per Section 95 (1) (g) of the Uttar Pradesh Panchayat Raj Act, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as “the Act, 1947”), issue notice calling upon the petitioner to submit his explanation alongwith relevant documents within 28 days. Pursuant to the aforesaid notice dated 30.12.2022, the petitioner submitted explanation through registered post dated 16.01.2023, which was received on 23.01.2023 in the office of District Magistrate, Chitrakoot. After considering the explanation as submitted by the petitioner, the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot, based on the complaint of the Block Development Officer, found that the petitioner was prima facie guilty of misusing his post and he in totality failed to fulfil the duty and responsibilities attached to his post and passed the order dated 23.03.2023 seizing his power to exercise financial and administrative functions under “the Act, 1947”. Hence the present writ petition has been filed.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that as per the provisions of Section 95 (1)(g) of the U.P. Panchayat Raj Act, 1947, which provides for the removal of Pradhan, the District Magistrate is empowered to pass an order of removal of an elected Pradhan and pending final enquiry, the financial and administrative functions are to be performed by a Committee consisting of three Members as indicated in the proviso of Section 95(1)(g) of “the Act, 1947”. The learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn the attention of this Court to Rule 3 of the U.P. Panchayat Raj (Removal of Pradhans, Up-Pradhans and Members) Enquiry Rules, 19972 (hereinafter referred as “the Rule”), which provides for a complaint to be made by a complainant duly supported by an affidavit of the complainant as well as the affidavit of any other person from whom the information is said to have derived.

5. Rule 4 of the said Rules provides for the manner in which the District Magistrate shall proceed after the receipt of the complaint referred to in Rule 3. The provision of Rule 4 is that on receiving a report referred to in Rule 3, the State Government or the District Magistrate shall order an enquiry to be conducted known as 'preliminary enquiry' with a view to finding, if there is prima-facie case for a proper enquiry in the matter. The said enquiry is to be conducted by Enquiry Officer. The term of Enquiry Officer is defined in Section (2) (c) of the Rules which defines Enquiry Officers means Deputy Panchayat Raj Officer or any other District level officer, to be nominated by the District Magistrate.

6. It is relevant to quote here Rule 2 (c) of the Rule, 1997, which reads as under:-

“Enquiry Officer' means the District Panchayat Raj Officer or any other district level officer, to be nominated by the District Magistrate.”

7. In view of the specific provisions of the Rules, counsel for the petitioner has argued that the Rules are mandatory and the Enquiry Officer who has conducted the enquiry and on whose enquiry the impugned order has been passed is not an officer, who is competent under the Rules and thus, the impugned order relying upon an enquiry which is without jurisdiction, is liable to be held bad in law.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that in the present case, it is the Block Development Officer, who has constituted a committee to conduct preliminary enquiry, which is clear violation of the provisions of the aforesaid rule as the Block Development Officer cannot be taken as enquiry officer as defined Rules 2(c) of Rules 1997.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of the Court to the proviso of Section 95 (1)(G) of the Act, 1947, which provides that where, in an enquiry held by such person and in such manner as may be prescribed, a Pradhan or Up-Pradhan is prima facie found to have committed financial and other irregularities such Pradhan or Up-Pradhan shall cease to exercise and perform the financial and administrative powers and functions, which shall, until he is exonerated of the charges in the final enquiry, be exercised and performed by a Committee consisting of three members of Gram Panchayat appointed by the State Government.

10. Explaining the aforesaid provision, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that as the alleged preliminary enquiry has not been conducted in the manner as provided in the Rules 1997, therefore, the impugned order cannot be sustained. However, ignoring the aforesaid, if the enquiry conducted by the committee constituted by the Block Development Officer is accepted, no prima facie satisfaction has been recorded by the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot regarding any financial irregularities done by the Gram Pradhan. Thus the impugned order cannot be sustained on the aforesaid ground also.

11. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgement of this Court in the case of Mahmood Ansari vs. State of U.P.

and others. He lastly submits that prima facie, the allegations levelled against the petitioner do not invoke any clause of Section 95(1)(G) of the Act, 1947, thus the impugned order dated 23.03.2023 is liable to be set aside.

12. On the other hand, learned Standing Counsel submits that there is no illegality in the order impugned in view of Rule 3 (6) of the Rules 1997. It is relevant to quote here Rule 3 of the Rule, 1997, which reads as under:-

"3. Procedure relating to complaints.- (1) Any person making a complaint against a Pradhan or Up-Pradhan may send his complaint to the State Government or any officer empowered in this behalf by the State Government.

(2) Every complaint referred to in sub-rule (1) shall be accompanied by the complainant's own affidavits in support thereof and also affidavits of all persons from whom he claims to have received information of facts relating to the accusation, verified before a notary, together with all documents in his possession or power pertaining to the accusation."

(3) Every complaint and affidavit under this rule as well as any schedule or annexure thereto shall be verified in the manner laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, for the verification of pleadings and affidavits, respectively.

(4) Not less than three copies of complaint as well as each of its annexures shall be submitted by the complainant.

(5) A complaint which does not comply with any of the foregoing provisions of this rules shall not be entertained.

(6) It shall not be necessary to follow the procedure laid down in the foregoing provisions of this rule, if a complaint against a Pradhan or Up-Pradhan is made by a public servant."

13. Learned Standing Counsel, therefore, submits that in the present case where the complaint is made by the Block Development Officer, who in order to verify as to whether the petitioner has failed to perform the duty imposed by the Act, constituted a three member committee, wherein it was found that in the concerned Gram Panchayat Bujurg 395 progeny (Govansh) were preserved in the Mandi Samiti Campus, Pahari, but in the morning of 14.11.2022 at about 10:00 a.m., they were made to run away, hence the petitioner has not co-operated in functioning of the aforesaid Gaushala. Thus the aforesaid report being placed by the Block Development Officer before the Chief Development Officer as well as the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot, can be taken as a complaint by the public servant. Hence as per the rule 3 (6) of the Rules 1997, the same can be treated as a complaint.

14. As regards the argument placed by the learned counsel for the petitioner regarding the fact that the financial and administrative powers of the Pradhan cannot be seized unless there is financial irregularities, learned Standing Counsel submits that in the proviso of Section 95(1)(g) of the Act, 1947 itself the word "other irregularities" included, the aforesaid situation wherein the petitioner has not performed his duties and has abused his position. Therefore, the aforesaid provision is attracted in the facts of the present case. He has drawn attention of the Court to Rule 95 (1)(g) of the Act, 1947, which is as follow:-

“95. Inspection – (1) The State Government may –

(g) remove a Pradhan, Up-Pradhan or member of a Gram Panchayat or a Joint Committee or Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti, or a Panch, Sahayak Sarpanch or Sarpanch of a Nyaya Panchayat if he - i- absents himself without sufficient cause for more than three consecutive meetings or sittings.

ii- refuses to act or becomes incapable of acting for any reason whatsoever or if he is accused of or charged for an offence involving moral turpitude.

iii- has abused his position as such or has persistently failed to perform the duties imposed by this Act or rules made thereunder or his continuance as such is not desirable in public interest, or

[iii-a has taken the benefit of reservation under sub-section (2) of Section 11-A or sub-section (5) or Section 12, as the case may be, on the basis of a false declaration subscribed by him stating that he is a member of Scheduled Castes, the Scheduled Tribes or the backward classes, as the case may be.]

iv- being a Sahayak Sarpanch or a Sarpanch of the Nyaya Panchayat takes active part in politics, or v- suffers from any of the disqualifications mentioned in Clauses (a) to (m) of Section 5-A;

Provided that where, in an enquiry held by such person and in such manner as may be prescribed, a Pradhan or Up-Pradhan is prima facie found to have committed financial and other irregularities such Pradhan or Up-Pradhan shall cease to exercise and perform the financial and administrative powers and functions, which shall, until he is exonerated of the charges in the final enquiry, be exercised and performed by a Committee consisting of three members of Gram Panchayat appointed by the State Government.”

15. He, therefore, submits that in the present situation, the petitioner has not performed his duty of looking into the proper functioning of the Gaushala from where the cattles were made to run, thus there is no illegality in the order impugned passed by the respondent no.2.

16. He has also drawn attention of the Court to para 3 of the Circular Dated 28.02.2014 issued by the State Government to all the District Magistrates, which is as under:-

“3. प्रारंभिक जांच के आधार पर या अन्यथा जहाँ राज्य सरकार/जिला मजिस्ट्रेट की यह राय हो कि धारा 95 की उपधारा (1) के खंड (छ) के प्रतिबन्धात्मक खंड के अधीन किसी प्रधान या उप प्रधान के विरुद्ध जाँच की जानी चाहिए अर्थात् की गयी किसी प्रारंभिक जांच में प्रधान प्रथम दृष्ट्या वित्तीय और अन्य अनियमितता का दोषी पाया जाए, वहां ऐसा प्रधान वित्तीय और प्रशासनिक शक्तियों का प्रयोग और कृत्यों का संपादन नहीं करेगा और जब तक की वह अंतिम जांच में आरोपों से मुक्त न हो जाये, ऐसी शक्तियों का प्रयोग और कृत्यों का संपादन राज्य सरकार/जिला मजिस्ट्रेट द्वारा इस निमित्त नियुक्त ग्राम पंचायत के तीन सदस्यों की एक समिति द्वारा किया जायेगा”

17. As per the aforesaid circular, the financial and administrative powers of the Pradhan can be seized, when State Government/District Magistrate records prima facie satisfaction and finds, on the basis of preliminary enquiry or otherwise, that the Pradhan has committed financial and other irregularities. Therefore, no illegality, infirmity or perversity is found in the impugned order, hence no interference is required by this Court.

18. To the aforesaid submission, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the Circular dated 28.02.2014 as relied upon the learned Standing Counsel does not have statutory force as the same is simply guidelines/directions to be followed while conducting an enquiry against the Pradhan on the complaint made in accordance with the provision of Rule 3 of the Rules 1997.

19. I have heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel and perused the records.

20. Perusal of the records goes to show that the Block Development Officer has constituted a committee to enquire into the conduct of the petitioner and the same has been placed before the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot relying upon which the impugned order has been passed.

21. This Court feels that though the aforesaid complaint may be treated as proper complaint as per Rule 3 of the Rules, 1997 by a public servant, the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot, on the receipt of the complaint or report referred to in Rule 3, or otherwise, order the Enquiry Officer to conduct a preliminary enquiry with a view to find out if there is a prima facie case for a formal enquiry in the matter. Under Rule 5 of the Rules, 1997, where the District Magistrate is of the opinion, on the basis of the report referred to in sub-rule (2) of Rule 4 or otherwise, that an enquiry should be held against a Pradhan or Up-Pradhan or Member, he shall forthwith constitute a Three Member Committee and by an order ask an Enquiry Officer, other than the Enquiry Officer nominated earlier, to hold the enquiry. The enquiry officer for conducting the preliminary enquiry should be the District Panchayat Raj Officer or any other 'district level officer' to be nominated by the District Magistrate.

22. It is, therefore, to be examined whether the aforesaid provisions of the Rules had been followed by the District Magistrate while passing the order under Section 95(1)(g) of the Act.

23. The records indicate that the Block Development Officer on receiving some complaint, in order to verify the same constituted a three member committee, and the report of the committee was placed before the District Magistrate, on the basis of which, impugned order has been passed.

24. The preliminary enquiry as is required to be conducted by an Enquiry Officer contemplated under Rule 2(c) of the Rules, 1997 namely either the District Panchayat Raj Officer or any other district level officer to be nominated by the District Magistrate, has not been conducted in the present case. The District Magistrate could find his prima facie satisfaction for holding a final enquiry only on the basis of the report submitted by the Enquiry Officer defined under Rule 2(c) of the Rules, 1997.

25. As regards the Circular dated 28.02.2014 as mentioned in the order impugned, the Court is of the opinion that the same cannot prevail over the provisions of the relevant Act and Rules as the same is having no statutory force and being simply a direction issued by the Chief Secretary/State Government to be followed by all the District Magistrates while conducting enquiry against the Pradhan.

26. This Court finds that the report dated 14.11.2022 placed by the Block Development Officer before the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot can be treated as proper complaint as per Sub-rule (6) of Rule 3, hence the District Magistrate, Chitrakoot ought to have appointed an Enquiry Officer under Rule 2(c) of the Rule 1997 to conduct a preliminary enquiry.

27. On perusal of the Act and the Rules, the Court is of the clear view that an elected representative can be removed only and strictly in accordance with law and in this regard the law which provides for removal of an elected representative has to be strictly construed. The enquiry report dated 14.11.2022 can only be treated as a complaint made by the Block Development Officer, i.e. public servant. However, the error in the impugned order is apparent to the extent that the Inquiry Committee constituted is not in terms of rule 2-C of the Rules, 1997 and the order impugned is based upon the said enquiry report dated 14.11.2022, therefore, the order impugned is held to be bad in law.

28. In view of the above, the impugned order dated 23.03.2023 passed by the respondent no.2 seizing financial and administrative powers of the petitioner is hereby quashed. However, the District Magistrate/Collector, i.e. respondent no.2 is directed to proceed afresh with the inquiry by constituting an Inquiry Committee or appoint an Inquiry Officer in terms of rule 2-C of the Rules, 1997 within 15 days on receipt of a certified copy of this order, who shall, thereafter, conduct an enquiry in the matter with the assistance of other Revenue officers/authorities as the District Magistrate may provide and submit the inquiry report to the District Magistrate within a period of next four weeks. Based on such inquiry report, after following proper procedure, a decision shall be taken by the District Magistrate under the proviso to Section 95(1)(g) of the Act, 1947 read with the Rules, 1997 as to whether the financial and administrative powers of the petitioner are required to be seized or not? Consequences shall follow accordingly, in accordance with law.

29. With the aforesaid observations and directions, the writ petition is allowed.

30. Office is directed to give a copy of this order to learned Chief Standing Counsel, who shall communicate this order forthwith to the respondent no.2, i.e. District Magistrate, Chitrakoot for compliance.

IX	Conclusions & Directions

I. Introduction

2. By the impugned order dated 29.10.2022 the respondent No.2-Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut referred the election dispute of the petitioner-society to the Prescribed Authority/Sub-Divisional Magistrate/respondent No.3 under Section 25(1) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860.

3. By the impugned order dated 08.02.2023 the respondent No.3-Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Ghaziabad/prescribed authority in exercise of powers under Section 25(1) of the Societies Registration Act, while deciding the reference made by the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut has invalidated the elections to the Board of Management of the petitioner-society held on 26.06.2022. The said impugned order further directed the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut to hold the elections to all 10 posts of Board of Management of the Windsor Park Residents Welfare Association.

4. The impugned order dated 14.03.2023 passed by the respondent No.2-Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut directs the holding of elections to all 10 posts of Board of Directors of the Windsor Park Residents Welfare Association under Section 25(2) of the Societies Registration Act and the said order has been passed in compliance of the order dated 08.02.2023 entered by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate/prescribed authority.

5. The impugned order dated 08.02.2023 finds that the annual elections of 26.06.2022 were held only to three posts instead of all 10 posts of the Board of Management.

II. Submissions

6. Shri Abhijeet Mukherji, learned counsel for the petitioner has made the following submissions assailing the impugned orders:

(i). Reference to the Prescribed Authority was unlawful.

(ii). As per the Uttar Pradesh Apartment (Promotion of Construction, Ownership & Maintenance) Act, 2010, read with Model Bye-laws, the elections to only 1/3rd (3 out of 10) of the posts of the Board of Management have to be held on an yearly basis.

(iii). 2/3rd of the members of the Board of Management are not liable to face annual elections.

(iv). No office bearer has held a post continuously for more than two years.

v. Respondent No.5 has no locus standi in the matter.

7. Shri Vinit Garg-respondent No.5 in person has made the following submissions in support of the impugned orders and against the actions of the petitioner:

(i). Respondent No.5 is an owner of a flat in the Windsor Apartment and is a member of the society.

(ii). The reference was within the ambit of Section 25(1) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860.

(iii). The Uttar Pradesh Apartment (Promotion of Construction, Ownership & Maintenance) Act, 2010, read with Model Bye-Laws mandates that the elections to all 10 posts of Board of Management have to be held on annual basis.

(iv). Elections dated 26.02.2022 are not consistent with the said Act and Model Bye-Laws.

(v). A number of persons have continued in the Board of Management but have evaded elections for past two years.

8. Learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents has defended the impugned orders by adopting the arguments of the respondent No.5.

III. Locus Standi

9. The respondent No. 5 is a flat owner in Windsor Manor Park Apartment. He is a member of the Windsor Manor Park Residents Welfare Association. He had the locus standi to make a complaint before the Deputy Registrar, Chits Firms and Societies, Meerut and can legitimately contest the writ petition.

IV. Facts

10. The facts in this case are confined to a narrow compass. There exists a society running under the name and style of Windsor Park Residents Welfare Association registered under the Societies Registration Act, 1860. The Board of Management which runs the affairs of the society is an elected body comprised of 10 members. Composition of Board of Management of the petitioner-society is: President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer and six members of the Board of Management.

11. The elections to various offices of the Board of Management of the said society have been held from time to time. The elections to fill all 10 posts of the Board of Management were held on 09.07.2020, by the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut and results were declared on 16.09.2020. However, in the year 2021 the elections were held only for three posts vacated by members who retired that year and not for all the 10 posts of the Board of Management. The election results were declared on 26.06.2021.

12. The same procedure was repeated in the year 2022. Annual election of 2022 for the Board of Management was notified only to fill 3 posts which fell vacant on the annual retirement of said members of the Board of Management. The results of the election of 2022 to the aforesaid 3 posts were announced on 26.06.2022. The elections of 2021 & 2022 were held by the Board of Management.

V. Issues arising for consideration

13. The issues arising for consideration are:

I. Whether the reference made by the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut-respondent No.2 to the Prescribed Authority/Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Ghaziabad-respondent No.3 under Section 25(1) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860 was lawful and valid?

II. Whether elections to all 10 posts of the Board of Management are liable to be held on an annual basis as per the scheme of the Uttar Pradesh Apartment (Promotion of Construction, Ownership & Maintenance) Act, 2010, read with Model Bye-Laws dated 16th November, 2011 framed thereunder?

III. Whether the elections to fill only 1/3rd of the posts of the Board of Management on vacancies caused by annual retirements were in consonance with the provisions of Uttar Pradesh Apartment (Promotion of Construction, Ownership & Maintenance) Act, 2010, read with Model Bye-Laws dated 16th November, 2011 framed thereunder?

VI. Legality of the Reference to the Prescribed Authority

14. The dispute laid before the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut-respondent No.2 pertained to elections of the Board of Management of the society and continuance of the elected office bearers of the said society. The legislature created a specific forum and provided a meticulous procedure for determination of election disputes in societies by the Prescribed Authority under Section 25(1) of the Societies Registration Act.

15. The statutory mandate is explicit. Good authorities have settled the law. Reference to cases in point can be profitably made to fortify the narrative. This Court in All India Council and another v. Assistant Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Varanasi Region, Varanasi and another, while interpreting the scope of Section 25(1) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860 held:

"7. It will, therefore, be seen that insofar as disputes or doubts in respect of the election or continuance in office of the office-bearers of a society registered in Uttar Pradesh are concerned, the Legislature has created a specific forum and laid down an exhaustive procedure for determination of the same under S.25. There is no other provision, express or otherwise, providing for determination of such disputes specifically. It is settled law that where, as here, the Legislature creates a specific forum and lays an exhaustive procedure for determination of a particular class of disputes in respect of matters covered by the statute, such disputes can be determined only in that forum and in the manner prescribed thereunder and not otherwise. If, therefore, a dispute is raised with regard to the election or continuance in office of an office-bearer of a society registered in Uttar Pradesh, the same has to be decided only by the Prescribed Authority under S. 25 (1) and not by the Registrar, save, of course, to the decision of the Prescribed Authority being subject to the result of a civil suit."

[Also see: Gram Shiksha Sudhar Samiti, Junior High School, Skandra, District Kanpur Dehat and another v. Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, U.P., Lucknow and others]

16. The impugned order dated 29.10.2022 discloses that a dispute had arisen as to the legality elections to the society & also the continuance of elected office bearers pursuant to the said elections.

17. The Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut by passing the impugned order dated 29.10.2022 and referencing the election dispute to the Prescribed Authority has lawfully exercised powers vested in it by virtue of Section 25(1) of the Societies Registration Act, 1860 and acted in conformity with the law laid down by this Court in All India Council (supra) & Gram Shiksha Sudhar Samiti (supra).

VII. Elections under the Apartment Act and Model Bye-Laws : Analysis

18. Dilemma faced by societies and nations with the introduction of high-rise apartments culture was recalled at length by the former Prime Minister of Singapore Lee Kuan Yew in his memoirs.

19. The proliferation of high-rise apartment societies are reflective of current economic realities and portend future social challenges. The legislature was cognizant of possible disruptive effects of apartment life and also the complexities in working such societies. The requirement of regulating affairs of such apartment societies was the felt need of the time, causing the legislature to enact the Uttar Pradesh Apartment (Promotion of Construction, Ownership and Maintenance) Act, 2010 (hereinafter referred to as Apartment Act, 2010) and Model Bye-Laws dated 16th November, 2011 notified by the Government thereunder. The scheme of elections to the Board of Management of the said society are governed and regulated by the Apartment Act, 2010 and the Model Bye-Laws framed thereunder.

20. The legislature while enacting the scheme for elections to various posts in the Board of Management of the society have addressed the issues relating to the governance of apartment societies, and aligned them to the needs of a thriving community. The constitution of apartment societies is democratic in conception and transparent in functioning.

21. The relevant provisions of the Apartment Act, 2010 & the Model Bye-laws dated 16th November, 2011 notified by the Government thereunder are reproduced hereinbelow:

"Section 2(f) of the Apartment Act, 2010-"Board" means the Board of Management of an Association of Apartment Owners elected by its members under the bye-laws;

Section 2(h) of the Apartment Act, 2010-"bye-laws" means the bye-laws made under this Act;

Clause 4 of the Model Bye-Laws. Members of Association-

(1) All persons who have purchased apartments in Condominium and executed a deed of apartment, shall automatically be the members of the Association and will pay the entrance fee of one thousand rupees. Each apartment owner shall receive a copy of the bye-laws.

(2) Upon the sale, bequest or transfer of apartment, the purchaser of the apartment or the grantee or legatee or the transferee shall automatically become the member of the Association and shall be admitted as member on payment of the entrance fee of one thousand rupees.

Clause 13 of the Model Bye-Laws. Annual Meetings -The first meeting of the Association shall be held on.....(date).....Thereafter the annual meetings of the Association shall be held on such date as the Association may decide. At such meetings Board of Management shall be elected by ballot of the apartment owners in accordance with the requirements of bye-law 23. The owners may also transact such other business of the association as may properly come before them.

Clause 18 of the Model Bye-Laws. Management of Association- The affairs of the association shall be governed by a Board. The Board of Management shall comprise of neither less than 4, nor more than 10 persons to be constituted and elected by the members by simple majority in the General Body Meeting. The principal office bearer of the Association shall be a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary and a Treasurer, all of whom shall be elected by and from the Board. The Board may appoint an Assistant Secretary and an Assistant Treasurer and such other Office bearer as the Board may consider necessary.

Clause 26 of the Model Bye-Laws. Election and term of office-

(i) The annual general meeting of the Association, to be held in the first quarter of each financial year, shall elect neither less than 4, nor more than 10 members including the President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer from Members of the Association. Provided that no member shall be eligible for election if he has been found guilty of misusing the post during his previous term. The term of office of the office-bearers of the Board shall be one year from the date of assuming office and they will be eligible for re-election. Provided that a person can not hold the same post continuously for more than 2 years.

(emphasis supplied)

(ii) An arrangement shall be made by the board to ensure that one third of members of the board retire annually.

(iii) The office bearers shall hold office until their successors have been elected and hold their first meeting."

22. The requirement of registration of an association of apartment owners and the bye-laws are provided in Section 14 of the Apartment Act, 2010.

23. The aforesaid statutory scheme discloses the following distinct features:

(I). The Board of Management is composed of the 10 elected members. (Ref. Section 2(f) of the Apartment Act, 2010)

(II) Term of office of the Board of Management is one year. After expiry of the term of elected office the entire Board has to face elections. Elections to all ten posts in the Board of Management shall be held on an annual basis.

(III). Arrangements have to be made by the Board of Management for retiring 1/3rd of its members on an annual basis.

(IV). There is a restriction on continuance of a person on the same post for more than two years.

(V). The office bearers continue in office till their successors have been elected and hold their first meeting. This prevents a vacuum in the society and ensures continuity in existence and functioning.

24. Two salient aspects are evident in the said statutory election scheme. Regularity in holding elections to fill all 10 posts in the Board of Management on an yearly basis. Secondly the right to run for elected office is subject to restrictions.

25. The statutory scheme of the elections encourages a participative culture responsive to the needs of all residents, and eschews any exclusive class catering to personal ambitions of individual members.

26. Regular elections on an annual basis to all 10 posts in the Board of Management make all Board members constantly accountable to the residents. Consent of the governed is the basis of governance of the society, and the Board draws its legitimacy from elections. Yearly elections to fill all posts in the Board of Management secure the democratic underpinnings of the society administration, and also alert the residents/members to their social obligation of participating in the community event.

27. The right to run for elections is restricted and prioritizes community needs over selfish aspirations by providing for a cooling period. 1/3rd of Board members have to retire annually, and cannot contest elections in that year. Similarly office bearers are restrained from entering electoral fray after two successive years in office. Easing out the said members from the electoral fray every year enlarges voter choices, embraces diversity of opinions and churns the composition of the Board by inducting fresh faces.

28. The election rights are structured for wide participation in community life, but also ensure that politics do not monopolize daily life. Elections conducted regularly to fill all posts in the Board of Management and contested restrictively by those made eligible by statute foster interconnectness from arising from cooperative endeavours and avoids fissures created by professional political processes.

29. The said scheme of elections and the election rights amalgamates elements which are essential to shaping a harmonious environment in a gated community, and also critical to achieve efficient functioning and collective solutions to common problems.

VIII. The judgment entered by this Court in Special Appeal No.1224 of 2018 & the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Civil Appeal No. 1442 of 2020

30. The judgement rendered in Special Appeal No.1224 of 2018 (The Management Board, Windsor Park Residents Welfare Association Vs. State of U.P. and others) on 11.03.2019 does not come to the aid of the petitioner. The Hon'ble Supreme Court on 11.02.2020 in Civil Appeal No. 1442 of 2020 (The Management Board, Windsor Park Residents Welfare Association Vs. State of U.P. and others) while examining the said judgement (Special Appeal No.1224 of 2018) entered by the learned Division Bench of this Court took a contrary view and held as under:

“8. We, therefore consider it appropriate to set aside order dated 13.03.2018 and all consequential proceedings arising therefrom, passed by the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut, as affirmed by order dated 13.11.2018 passed by the learned Single Judge and order dated 11.03.2019 passed by the Division Bench of the High Court, and direct that the matter may be reconsidered by the Registrar and appropriate orders for holding election be passed after hearing both sides. Till the elections are held, the Registrar shall take over the Management of the Association in question either himself or through a duly authorized representative. The Registrar may pass an order within a period of six weeks from the date the parties appear before him. We further direct that the elections to the Board of Management shall be held by the appropriate authority in accordance with law and the further elections to the office bearers too shall be held by the appropriate authority in accordance with law.”

31. The judgement of the learned Division Bench of this Court in Windsor (supra) has merged in the judgement of the Supreme Court. [See: Kunhayammed and others v. State of Kerala and another]

IX. Conclusions & Directions

32. Admittedly on 26.02.2022 the elections were held only to fill 1/3rd of the posts in the Board of Management. 2/3rd members of the Board of the Management evaded the annual elections in 2022.

33. Facts in the record establish that this ingenious and illegal method of elections has been in vogue since 2021, and has enabled some members of the Board of Management to continue in the Board without contesting annual elections for two years. Further there is no certainty when the said members would face elections. The system of elections adopted by the petitioner creates an entitled class which is entrenched in elected office but avoids electoral contest and abjures accountability of elected representatives. The legislature assiduously sought to curb this evil with the promulgation of the Apartment Act, 2010 read with Model Bye-Laws dated 16th November, 2011 notified thereunder.

34. In the wake of the preceding narrative failure to hold elections to fill all 10 posts of the Board of Management vitiates the elections dated 26.02.2022. The elections dated 26.02.2022 being in contravention of the Apartment Act, 2010, read with Model Bye-Laws dated 16th November, 2011 notified thereunder were lawfully set aside by the impugned order dated 08.02.2023, and accordingly the direction in the impugned order dated 08.02.2023 to conduct fresh elections cannot be faulted.

35. The impugned order dated 14.03.2023 was passed by the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut-respondent No.2 in compliance of direction and the order of the prescribed authority/Sub Divisional Magistrate, Ghaziabad dated 08.02.2023 upheld earlier, and in lawful exercise of powers under Section 25(2) of the Societies Registration Act to conduct the elections of the society. The challenge to the said order also fails.

36. In the interest of justice this Court commands the respondents to execute the following directions:

(I) The respondent No.2-Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut shall hold the elections to fill the 10 posts in the Board of Management of the society. The election schedule shall be notified within a period of 15 days from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order, and the elections shall be conducted in the manner discussed in the earlier part of the judgement.

(II) The District Administration shall offer full support in the holding of fair and peaceful elections of the society.

(III) Elections to the 10 posts in the Board of Management shall be held annually in future, and in light of this judgement and in accordance with the Apartment Act, 2010, read with Model Bye-Laws dated 16th November, 2011 notified thereunder.

37. The writ petition is liable to be dismissed and is dismissed subject to above observations.

38. Registry is directed to send a copy of this order to the Deputy Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Meerut for compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. Heard Shri Anil Bhushan, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Jitendra Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel for respondent nos.1 and 2 and Shri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned counsel representing respondent no.3.

2. The order under challenge in the present writ petition is dated 10.04.2023 whereby the Assistant Registrar, Firms, Societies and Chits, Jhansi in furtherance of directions issued by this Court in Writ C No.1887 of 2023 (C/M Darul Uloom Samadia & 2 Ors. v. State of U.P. & 3 Ors.), has set aside the list of office bearers registered at the behest of the petitioners and also the impugned Bye-laws of the Society by recording a finding that the same had been obtained on the basis of fabricated documents.

3. The submission of learned Senior Counsel is to the effect that elections of the Society were held in the year 2021 from a Body of seven office bearers and the list was registered on 25.03.2022, whereafter, amendments were made in the Bye-laws by a list of 11 office bearers and the same were registered in the office of Assistant Registrar on 30.12.2022. It is contended that a complaint was moved by respondent no.3 and, thereafter, a direction was sought from this Court for taking a decision on the complaint and it is in pursuance of the said complaint and the direction that the order impugned has been passed. It is further contended that insofar as, the complaint is concerned, it was with respect to the meeting dated 25.12.2021 to the effect that the said meeting was not held in accordance with law; that the President of the Society namely Kudrat Ullah had no knowledge about the same and that his signatures were forged in the proceedings. Various other allegations were also levelled in the complaint and according to learned Senior Counsel, the scope of complaint was limited to examine the validity of meeting dated 25.12.2021, whereas, the Assistant Registrar has transgressed his powers and jurisdiction to go beyond the scope of complaint and has, infact, reviewed the earlier decision whereby the list of office bearers was registered on 25.03.2022 and, further proceedings were held on 08.09.2022 and 07.10.2022.

4. As regards the meeting dated 25.12.2021, it has been argued that at that time, seven members were there, out of whom, five were present and, therefore, the quorum being complete, the meeting was held in accordance with law, and certain decisions were taken including the decision of resignation of Vice President and Manager owing to their sickness and inability to perform and discharge their duties. It is further contended that order impugned has been passed committing violation of principles of natural justice and even the documents filed by the contesting-respondents were not provided to the petitioners.

5. Per contra, Shri Prabhakar Awasthi, learned counsel for respondent no.3 has referred to the proceedings of meeting dated 25.12.2021 as contained in 'Annexure No.17' to the writ petition. He submits that initial two lines of the said proceedings clearly disclose that the meeting was held under the Presidentship of Kudrat Ullah as President of the Society but there is no reference of his name in the entire proceedings, except, that he was again elected/nominated in the list of office bearers. It has been shown to the Court that even the proceedings of the previous meeting were read over by the Vice President and Agenda No.2 was also put by him. It is, therefore, contended that if Kudrat Ullah as President was present in the meeting, there was no occasion for Vice President to conduct the proceedings of the meeting. It has not been disputed that prior to the meeting dated 25.12.2021, Mohammad Anees happened to be Vice President and his father Noor Mohammad happened to be Manager, whereas, in the said meeting, these two posts/office bearership were reversed that is to say Noor Mohammed was elected as Vice President and Mohammad Anees as Manager.

6. He further submits that on the basis of the said proceedings, subsequent proceedings including making amendment in the Bye-laws were held and since the complainants had submitted their affidavits before the Assistant Registrar to the effect that even signatures of Kudrat Ullah had been fabricated and forged in the meeting dated 25.12.2021, the entire proceedings were null and void.

7. Learned Standing Counsel has supported the impugned order by arguing that once the fraud committed by the petitioners came to the notice of Assistant Registrar pursuant to the complaint and the documents filed by the contesting respondents, he was justified in setting aside the entire proceedings in pursuance of the meeting dated 25.12.2021.

8. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, I find that the basis of amending the Bye-laws as well as holding the subsequent proceedings has its genesis in the meeting dated 25.12.2021. A bare perusal of the said document reflects that apart from the fact that the meeting was shown to have been held under the Presidentship of Kudrat Ullah, it was mentioned that Vice President and Manager had submitted their resignations owing to their sickness and inability in discharge of duties and performance of functions and their resignations had been accepted in the meeting. Surprisingly, the persons whose resignations were accepted were again nominated in the same meeting but with a reverse description of office bearership. The Court expresses its surprise as to when these persons were not able to perform their duties as to what persuaded anyone to again include them in the Committee/Society.

9. Even ignoring the aforesaid aspect, I find that once Kudrat Ullah and others had submitted affidavits to the effect that meetings including the meeting dated 25.12.2021 had not actually been held and the signatures of the persons allegedly present in the meeting had been fabricated, the Assistant Registrar was justified in not only making observations with regard to the meeting dated 25.12.2021 but also regarding the proceedings held subsequent thereto.

10. It is well settled that fraud vitiates even the most solemn act. De Grey, C.J., in Rex Vs. Duchess of Kingston [2 Smith

L.C. 687] observed that 'Fraud' is an intrinsic, collateral act, which vitiates the most solemn proceedings of courts of justice. Lord Coke says it avoids all judicial acts ecclesiastical and temporal".

12. In Kerr on Fraud and Mistake, it is stated that "in applying this rule, it matters not whether the judgment impugned has been pronounced by an inferior or by the highest Court of judicature in the realm, but in all cases alike it is competent for every Court, whether superior or inferior, to treat as a nullity any judgment which can be clearly shown to have been obtained by manifest fraud."

13. It is also clear as indicated in Kinch Vs. Walcott [1929 APPEAL CASES 482] that it would be in the power of a party to a decree vitiated by fraud to apply directly to the Court which pronounced it to vacate it. According to Kerr, "In order to sustain an action to impeach a judgment, actual fraud must be shown; mere constructive fraud is not, at all events after long delay, sufficient but such a judgment will not be set aside upon mere proof that the judgment was obtained by perjury."

(See the Seventh Edition, Pages 416-417)

14. In Corpus Juris Secundum, Volume 49, paragraph 265, it is acknowledged that, "Courts of record or of general jurisdiction have inherent power to vacate or set aside their own judgements".

In paragraph 269, it is further stated, "Fraud or collusion in obtaining judgment is a sufficient ground for opening or vacating it, even after the term at which it was rendered, provided the fraud was extrinsic and collateral to the matter tried and not a matter actually or potentially in issue in the action. "

It is also stated: "Fraud practiced on the court is always ground for vacating the judgment, as where the court is deceived or misled as to material circumstances, or its process is abused, resulting in the rendition of a judgment which would not have been given if the whole conduct of the case had been fair".

15. In American Jurisprudence, 2nd Edition, Volume 46, paragraph 825, it is stated, "Indeed, the connection of fraud with a judgment constitutes one of the chief causes for interference by a court of equity with the operation of a judgment. The power of courts of equity in granting such relief is inherent, and frequent applications for equitable relief against judgments on this ground were made in equity before the practice of awarding new trials was introduced into the courts of common law. Where fraud is involved, it has been held, in some cases, that a remedy at law by appeal, error, or certiorari does not preclude relief in equity from the judgment. Nor, it has been said, is there any reason why a judgment obtained by fraud cannot be the subject of a direct attack by an action in equity even though the judgment has been satisfied."

16. The law in India is not different. In Paranjpe Vs. Kanade [ILR 6 BOMBAY 148], it was held that it is always competent to any Court to vacate any judgment or order, if it be proved that such judgment or order was obtained by manifest fraud. In Lakshmi Charan Saha Vs. Nur Ali [ILR 38 Calcutta 936], it was held that the jurisdiction of the Court in trying a suit questioning the earlier decision as being vitiated by fraud, was not limited to an investigation merely as to whether the plaintiff was prevented from placing his case properly at the prior trial by the fraud of the defendant. The Court could and must rip up the whole matter for determining whether there had been fraud in the procurement of the decree.

17. In Manindra Nath Mitra Vs. Hari Mondal [24 Calcutta Weekly Notes 133], the Court explained the elements to be proved before a plea of a prior decision being vitiated by fraud could be upheld. The Court said-

"with respect to the question as to what constitutes fraud for which a decree can be set aside, two propositions appear to be well established. The first is that although it is not permitted to show that the Court (in the former suit) was mistaken, it may be shown that it was misled, in other words where the Court has been intentionally misled by the fraud of a party, and a fraud has been committed upon the Court with the intention to procure its judgment, it will vitiate its judgment. The second is that a decree cannot be set aside merely on the ground that it has been procured by perjured evidence".

18. The position was reiterated by the same High Court in Esmile- Ud-Din Biswas and Anr. Vs. Shajoran Nessa Bewa & Ors. [132 INDIAN CASES 897]. It was held that it must be shown that fraud was practised in relation to the proceedings in the Court and the decree must be shown to have been procured by practising fraud of some sort upon the Court. In Nemchand Tantia Vs. Kishinchand Chellaram (India) Ltd. [63 Calcutta Weekly Notes 740], it was held that a decree can be re-opened by a new action when the court passing it had been misled by fraud, but it cannot be reopened when the Court is simply mistaken; when the decree was passed by relying on perjured evidence, it cannot be said that the court was misled.

19. It is not necessary to multiply authorities on this question since the matter has come up for consideration before the Apex Court on various occasions. In S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (Dead) by LRs. Vs. Jagannath (Dead) by LRs & Ors. [(1993) Supp. 3 SCR 422], this Court stated that,

"it is the settled proposition of law that a judgment or decree obtained by playing fraud on the court is a nullity and non est in the eyes of law. Such a judgment/decreed --- by the first court or by the highest court --- has to be treated as a nullity by every court, whether superior or inferior. It can be challenged in any court even in collateral proceedings."

The Court went on to observe that the High Court in that case was totally in error when it stated that there was no legal duty cast upon the plaintiff to come to Court with a true case and prove it by true evidence. Their Lordships stated, "The courts of law are meant for imparting justice between the parties. One who comes to the court, must come with clean hands. We are constrained to say that more often than not, process of the Court is being abused. Property grabbers, tax evaders, Bank loan dodgers, and other unscrupulous persons from all walks of life find the court- process a convenient lever to retain the illegal-gains indefinitely. We have no hesitation to say that a person, whose case is based on falsehood, has no right to approach the Court. He can be summarily thrown out at any stage of the litigation".

20. In Ram Preeti Yadav Vs. U.P. Board of High School and Intermediate

Education & Others [(2003) Supp. 3 SCR 352], the Apex Court after quoting the relevant passage from Lazarus Estates Ltd. Vs. Beasley [(1956) 1 All ER 341] and after referring to S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (Dead) by LRs. Vs. Jagannath (Dead) by LRs & Ors. (supra) reiterated that fraud avoids all judicial acts. In State of A.P. & Anr. Vs. T. Suryachandra Rao [(2005) 6 SCC 149], the Supreme Court after referring to the earlier decisions held that suppression of a material document could also amount to a fraud on the Court. It also quoted the observations of Lord Denning in Lazarus Estates Ltd. Vs. Beasley (supra) that.

"No judgment of a Court, no order of a minister, can be allowed to stand if it has been obtained by fraud. Fraud unravels everything."

21. According to Story's Equity Jurisprudence, 14th Edn., Volume 1, paragraph 263: "Fraud indeed, in the sense of a Court of Equity, properly includes all acts, omissions, and concealments which involve a breach of legal or equitable duty, trust, or confidence, justly reposed, and are injurious to another, or by which an undue and unconscientious advantage is taken of another."

22. In Patch Vs. Ward [1867 (3) L.R. Chancery Appeals 203], Sir John Rolt, L.J. held that: "Fraud must be actual positive fraud, a meditated and intentional contrivance to keep the parties and the Court in ignorance of the real facts of the case, and obtaining that decree by that contrivance."

23. The Supreme Court in Bhaurao Dagdu Paralkar Vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors. [2005 (7) SCC 605] held that:

"Suppression of a material document would also amount to a fraud on the court.

Although, negligence is not fraud, it can be evidence of fraud."

24. The aforesaid Authorities have been considered by the Apex Court in the case of Hamza Haji v. State of Kerala reported in JT 2006 (8) SC 215.

25. The Assistant Registrar, though not a court of law, exercises quasi judicial or even administrative powers under Societies Registration Act, 1860, hence the ratio of law referred to hereinabove shall also apply to the proceedings giving rise to the instant writ petition.

26. The submission of learned Senior Counsel that the Assistant Registrar has traveled beyond his power and jurisdiction does not impress the Court in the facts and circumstances of the case as the scope of the complaint made by respondent no.3 was to examine the validity of the meeting dated 25.12.2021 and, once, cogent reasoning has been assigned and as also observed by this Court by perusing the said proceedings that the same were full of infirmities, I do not find any ground to interfere in the order impugned.

27. The writ petition lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

Civil Law - Constitution of India, 1950 - Article 265 - U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 - Section 15(2-A) - Authority shall be entitled to levy development fees, mutation charges, stacking fees and water fees- Held: Development Authority can demand only external development fees, stacking fees and water fees at the time of sanctioning the map and no other fees/charges can be demanded by the Development Authority. Levy of other charges which are not mentioned u/s 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973 are hit by Article 265 of the Constitution of India. Article 265 clearly prohibits levy of tax/fees/charges except in accordance with law and/or as provided under the statute. Demand notice issued by the Development Authority so far as it asks the petitioner to deposit fees and charges other than external development fees, stacking fees and water fees, such as permit fee, sub-division charge, inspection fee and open area penalty quashed (Para 8, 9)

Allowed. (E-5)

3. Ravi Agrawal Vs St. of U.P. Thru Secy. & ors. (Writ C No. 36358 of 2013) dt 4.7.2023

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arun Kumar Singh Deshwal, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. Through present writ petition, the petitioner has challenged the demand notice dated 30.5.2003 which was issued to him by Allahabad Development Authority at the time of sanctioning the map submitted by the petitioner.

3. The aforesaid demand notice issued by the Allahabad Development Authority, demanded permit fee, water charge, stacking fee, sub-division charge, development charge, inspection fee and open area penalty.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner has challenged the aforesaid demand notice on the ground that only those charges/fees can be demanded by the Development Authority which are referable to Section 15(2-A) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as "Act, 1973"). Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, submits that only those charges/fees can be levied at the time of sanctioning the map by the Development Authority for which the Act, 1973 authorises the Development Authority and the State Government in exercise of power u/s 41 of the Act, 1973 cannot authorise/permit the Development Authority to levy charges/fees which are not mentioned in the Act, 1973. Section 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973 is being quoted as below:-

"15(2-A). The Authority shall be entitled to levy development fees, mutation charges, stacking fees and water fees in such manner and at such rates as may be prescribed:

Provided that the amount of stacking fees levied in respect of an area which is not being developed or has not been developed, by the Authority, shall be transferred to the local authority within whose local limits such area is situated."

5. In support of his contention, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority & Anr. vs. Rajesh Sharma & Ors. 2023 SCC OnLine SC 530 in which the Apex Court held that except the charges mentioned in the Section 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973, namely, development fees/charges, mutation charges, stacking fees and water charges, no other charge can be levied by the Development Authority.

6. We have perused the demand notice and the judgments referred by the counsel for the petitioner and find force in the contention of the counsel for the petitioner that the Development Authority has no jurisdiction to demand charges, other than external development fees, stacking fees and water fees. Section 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973 very clearly prescribes the charges which can be levied by the Development Authority like development fees, mutation charges, stacking fees and water fees, therefore, even the State Government u/s 41 of the Act, 1973 cannot issue direction or permission to the Development Authority to levy the charges which are not mentioned in Section 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973. Hon'ble Supreme Court also in the judgement of Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority (Supra) in paragraph Nos. 23, 24 and 25 observed as under: -

"23. Under the circumstances, in exercise of powers under Section 41 of the Act, 1973, the State could not have issued the orders permitting/allowing the Development Authorities to levy the charges/fees other than provided under Section 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973. At this stage, it is required to be noted that the levy of fees/charges provided under Section 15(2-A), all of them have been specifically defined under Section 2 of the Act, 1973. Therefore, the intention of the Act is to levy only those charges/fees provided/mentioned under Section 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973, otherwise the other charges also would have been defined under the Act, 1973. Levy of such other charges can be said to be hit by Article 265 of the Constitution of India. As per Article 265 of the Constitution of India, there shall not be any levy of tax/fees/charges except in accordance with law and/or as provided under the statute. Under the circumstances and in view of the above, the High Court has rightly set aside the various demand notices by way of levy of inspection fee/supervision fee while granting of sanction layout plan, sub-division charges, impact fee etc.

24. In view of the above and for the reasons stated above, the levy of development charges/fees by the various Development Authorities of the State of U.P. is hereby confirmed. The decision of the High Court in the case of Rekha Rani (supra) (Civil Appeal No. 4489/2014) quashing and setting aside the levy of development charges/fees is hereby quashed and set aside to that extent. The impugned judgments and orders passed by the High Court quashing and setting aside the demand notices/levy of other charges/fees, namely, inspection fee/supervision fee while granting of sanction layout plan, sub-division charges, impact fee etc. (other than development charges/fees) are hereby confirmed.

25. It is observed and directed that any amount already paid by the respective original writ petitioners other than the development charges/fees and the charges provided under Section 15(2-A), now be refunded to the respective original writ petitioners with 6% interest per annum, within a period of twelve months from today, of course after adjusting development charges/fees. It is made clear that we have not expressed anything on the levy of betterment charges, which, as such, is otherwise permissible under section 35 of the Act, 1973. It is also made clear that the order of refund shall be applicable only with respect to those original writ petitioners/persons who have challenged the demand notices and who were before the High Court. It is also observed and it is made clear that if any individual/original writ petitioner has any other grievances, it will be open for them to approach the High Court by way of independent proceedings." (emphasis added)

7. This Court in the judgement of Sri Krishna Kant Verma and Anr. Vs. State of U.P. Thru. Secy. Nagar Vikas and Ors. (Writ C No. 9617 of 2010) decided on 24.05.2023 as well as in the judgement of Ravi Agrawal vs. State of U.P. Thru Secy. and 4 others (Writ C No. 36358 of 2013) decided on 4.7.2023 quashed similar demand notices relying upon the judgement of Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority (Supra).

8. This Court is of the considered view that levy of other charges which are not mentioned u/s 15(2-A) of the Act, 1973 are hit by Article 265 of the Constitution of India because Article 265 clearly prohibits levy of tax/fees/charges except in accordance with law and/or as provided under the statute. Therefore, the Development Authority can demand only external development fees, stacking fees and water fees at the time of sanctioning the map and no other fees/charges can be demanded by the Development Authority.

9. In view of the above, the demand notice dated 30.5.2003, issued by the Allahabad Development Authority so far as it asks the petitioner to deposit fees and charges other than external development fees, stacking fees and water fees, is hereby quashed and the notice, so far as it demands external development fees, stacking fees and water fees, is valid and the petitioner is liable to pay the same.

10. Any deposit made by the petitioner, under the heads for which the demand notice is quashed by this Court, shall be returned to the petitioner by the Allahabad Development Authority with 6% simple interest per annum within a period of three months from today.

11. With the aforesaid observations, the writ petition is allowed.

Application U/s 482 – challenging the entire criminal proceeding as well as the charge-sheet & impugned summoning orders – Encroachment over Govt. lands – FIR – Investigation – charge-sheet – Whether the charge-sheeted accused persons could be branded as they have committed the wrongful occupation and possession or mischief by encroaching upon land belonging to Central Govt./St. Govt. or any other local authorities or its undertaking - court finds that – taking into gravity of offence and its nature in which there is no criminality as such and the apt remedy would be to proceed against erring so called encroacher u/s 67 of UP Revenue Code and get the land in dispute demarcated - it is the case exclusively falls within domain of concerned revenue authority to impose fine, if any, after taking whole exercise as per the provisions of law - held, - needles to mention on the previous occasions at least a dozen of the cases of different Benches of this Court in different proceedings have condemned and deprecated this practice of taking cognizance on a printed proforma, but it seems that the concern Magistrate repeatedly in utter defiance of the directions of this Court are still taking cognizance on a printed proforma without applying their judicial mind – this is wholly unacceptable - consequently, these applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. stands allowed – the matter remanded back for fresh consideration by the court concerned directions issued accordingly. (1). In these two applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. the petitioners are assailing the legality and validity of summoning/cognizance orders passed by the respective courts below summoning the accused-applicants u/s 3(2)A of the Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, 1984. Since there is common legal question involved in both the petitions that cognizance orders passed by the respective Magistrates are not sustainable in the eyes of law as the same have been passed on a printed proforma without applying its judicial application of mind. Therefore, under these circumstances, both these petitions are being decided by this common judgment.

(2). Heard S/Shri Anurag Dubey and Nitin Sharma, learned counsel for the respective applicants; S/Shri Satendra Tiwari, Faraz Kazmi and Ajay Kumar Sharma, learned Additional Government Advocates. Perused the entire record of the case.

(3). To appreciate the controversy involved it is imperative to give a bird's eye view to the factual aspects of the issue and respective proceedings.

(4). FACTS OF APPLICATION U/S 482 No.-398 of 2023 :

By means of the present application the extraordinary powers of this Court is being invoked seeking the quashing of entire criminal proceeding of Case No.1588 of 2018 (State vs. Bhawarpal Singh and others), charge sheet dated 20.6.2016, arising out of Case Crime No.149 of 2016, u/s 3(2)A of Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, Police Station Tirwa, District Kannauj, pending in the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj and summoning/cognizance order dated 27.10.2018.

(5). Long and short of this case is that the applicant along with other co-villagers have allegedly encroached upon a land of pond situated over Gata No.2029 (Mi) having area 0.490 hectare. On this score an F.I.R. was lodged for an unknown time and date of the incident, by opposite party no.2 on 22.3.2016 at 16.50 hours against the applicants and 21 others.

(a) After lodging of the F.I.R., investigating Officer of the case has visited the place of incident and prepare a site plan. In addition to this, the Investigating Officer of the case has recorded the statement of the then Village Pradhan on 21.4.2016 u/s 161 Cr.P.C. Investigating Officer without holding in-depth probe into the matter and without holding any proper measurement of the land in dispute, in a most cursory and perfunctory manner, has submitted a report u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C. on 20.6.2016. After submission of report u/s 173(2) Cr.P.C., as per prevalent practice now-a-days, the learned A.C.J.M., Kannauj on a printed proforma, after filling in the blanks, on 27.10.2018 has taken cognizance of the offences u/s 3(2)A of the Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, 1984 (for the sake of brevity hereinafter referred to as 'PDPP Act'), against the applicants and others. It is argued by the counsel for applicant that there is total non-application of judicial mind while taking cognizance of the offence.

(b) It is interesting to point out here, that the concerned Magistrate has not even named the charge-sheeted accused persons in his cognizance order and calling upon them to face the criminal trial. It is argued by learned counsel for the applicant, that it is the height of total non application of mind by the concerned Magistrate, who has not even named the accused persons in the cognizance order. It has been strenuously submitted by learned counsel for the applicant that through various judgments this Court has time and again have deprecated this practice of taking cognizance on a printed proforma in a most cursory and perfunctory fashion. Further submission is that learned Magistrate ought to have at least named the persons against whom he is going to prosecute for the alleged offence u/s 3(2)A of PDPP Act. Since the way and manner in which the cognizance was taken by the concerned Magistrate, all the accused persons were unaware that any such proceeding is pending against them and only after coming to know, off late all the accused persons have contacted their local counsels to inquire about the truthfulness of the alleged cognizance order.

(6). FACTS OF CRL. MISC. APPLICATION U/S 482 NO.8168 OF 2023:

In the instant 482 application, there are as many as nine applicants, who are jointly assailing the charge sheet No.406 of 2018 dated 03.09.2018 and entire proceeding of Criminal Case No.8511 of 2022 (Sate vs. Sajid and others), arising out of Case Crime

No.0432 of 2018, u/s 3 of the Prevention of Damage to Public Property Act, 1984, Police Station Kairana, District Shamli along with cognizance and summoning order dated 04.10.2018 passed by the Civil Judge (S.D.)/Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Shamli.

(a) The prosecution story in brief is that one Baleshwar Das (Area Lekhpal) has lodged an F.I.R. at Police Station Kairana, District Shamli on 27.7.2018 which was registered as Case Crime No.0432 of 2018 u/s 3 of the Prevention of Damage to Public Property Act, 1984. From the F.I.R. it is clear that it was registered as many as 11 named accused persons including the name of Ashraf and Jamila, who died much prior to lodging of the F.I.R. After lodging of the F.I.R., the police have conducted a superficial perfunctory investigation and completed its homework after recording the statements u/s 161 Cr.P.C. of the informant, Jahid and Revenue Inspector Ashutosh Kumar, who have supported the prosecution story, as mentioned in the F.I.R. that the named accused persons have encroached upon a public dran passing through Khata No.176 and chak road passing through Khata No.177 and are cultivating their crops over the said encroached land. Despite of the fact that they were warned by the Tehsildar to remove the encroachment, they have simply ignored the warning given by Tehsildar, maintained their possession over the property in question. The I.O. of the case have visited the place of incident on 03.9.2018 and recorded that there was no demarcation between the agricultural land of the accused persons and the public drain as well as chak road. From this, the Investigating Officer has inferred that the accused persons have encroached upon the land and are tilling the same. This inference is literally unfounded and whimsical. Though the accused persons have got their agricultural land adjacent to the chak road and public drain, but there is no line of demarcation, therefore, it cannot be said with certainty that the boundaries demarcating the fields as well as chak road might have been blurred and its identity cannot be ascertained.

(b). It is contended by learned counsel for the applicant that the Investigating Officer of the case has got no mechanism to demarcate the land and prima facie it seems that accused persons have transgressed their limits and encroached upon the land. It is not expected from the I.O. that he would make a physical measurement of the land and get it demarcated. On this, learned counsel for the applicant has argued that the undercurrent of entire controversy is purely a revenue dispute and no criminality could be attached to it. But the Investigating Officer of the case without ascertaining the allegations of the F.I.R., on a demarcated line, proceeded and submitted a charge sheet against the applicants on 3.9.2018 u/s 3(2)A of PDPP Act. Contention is that after submission of charge sheet, the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Shamli again on a printed proforma without mentioning that under what section the cognizance has been taken by him. This cognizance order was passed on 04.10.2018 on a printed proforma after filling in the blanks, clearly indicative of the fact that there is total non application of mind by the concerned Magistrate. This practice has been condemned and deprecated by the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as this Court in a number of decisions, but it seems that those decisions have got no value for the concerned Magistrate and he is still proceeding and taking cognizance in an old fashion.

LEGAL DISCUSSION :

(7). From the above factual background and the contentions advanced by learned counsel for the applicants, the following questions of law involved in the present matter have cropped up for consideration :

(i). Whether the charge-sheeted accused persons could be branded as they have committed the wrongful occupation and possession or mischief by encroaching upon the land belonging to the Central Government/State Government or any local authority or corporation or institution established by the Central, Provincial or State Act or its undertaking.

(ii). Object and reasons of the Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, 1984.

(iii) Section 3 of the Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, 1984 QUA Section 67 of the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code and Rules.

(iv) Whether the I.O. of the case is empowered to hold actual physical measurement over the land in question and declare that the accused-applicants were the real and actual encroachers of the land.

(v) Taking the allegations per se on the face of the F.I.R., it could be rectified only after having the actual physical measurement of the land in dispute by a competent authority.

(vi) Whether the concerned Magistrate was justified in taking the cognizance of the offences on a printed proforma by filling in the blanks.

Let's examine these legal aspects of the issue one by one.

(8). The allegations made in the F.I.R. against the applicants are that they are in wrongful occupation of the land in dispute belonging to the local authority, cannot come within the realm of mischief or wrongful occupation, till such time its actual physical measurement is not conducted by the authority concerned. Site plan prepared by the Investigating officer is only a narration of the fact that the applicants are conducting their farming and cultivating over the land in dispute, but the Investigating Officer cannot decide it unless and until actual demarcation is being done by the competent revenue authority after holding the exercise of measurement and establishing its identity. In absence of this vital link, it cannot be said with certainty that charge-sheeted accused persons have swelled their limits and encroached upon the land of others.

(9). The underline object and idea of enacting the Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, 1984 is to curb acts of vandalism and damage to public property including destruction and damage caused during riots and public commotion. A need was felt to strengthen the law to enable the authorities to deal with cases of damage to public property. The “public property” as defined under Section 2(b) of the P.D.P.P. Act, 1984 means any property, whether immovable or movable (including any machinery) which is owned by or in possession of or under the control of the Central or State Government or any local authority or any Corporation or any institution established by the Central, Provincial or State Act or its undertaking. Section 3 of the P.D.P.P. Act, 1984 provides that anyone who commits mischief by doing any act in respect of any ‘public property’ including the nature referred in subsection (2) in the said section shall be punished with imprisonment and a fine depending upon the nature of the property as per sub-section (1) and sub-section (2) of Section 3 of the P.D.P.P. Act, 1984. Section

4 provides punishment for an act of ‘Mischief’ causing damage to public property by fire or explosive substance. The P.D.P.P. Act, 1984 is, thus, a Special Act enacted to punish for the offence committed under Sections 3 and 4 of the said Act by doing any act of vandalism including the destruction or damage during any riots or public demonstration in the name of agitations, bandhs, hartals and the like. The “Mischief” has been defined under Section 2(a) of the P.D.P.P. Act, 1984 having the same meaning as in Section 425 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860). Section 6 is the saving clause which says that the Act, 1984 covers the offence committed under it and the provisions of it are in addition to any other law which provides for any proceeding (whether by way of investigation or otherwise) which may be instituted or taken against the offender, apart from this Act. Special provisions with regard to disposal of a prayer for bail made by a person accused or commission of offence under the Act, 1984 has been provided under Section 5 of the P.D.P.P. Act, 1984. The provisions oblige a person found guilty of commission of offence to pay the damage or loss caused to the public property. This Act, thus, covers the specific area of damage or loss or destruction of public property and recovery of such damages from the person(s) who is/are found guilty of such damage during the course of any public demonstration in the name of agitations, bandhs, hartals and the like.

(10). In Re. Destruction of Public and Private Properties, In Re vs. State of Andhra Pradesh and others, 2009 (5) SCC 212. Taking a serious note of various instances where there was a large scale destruction of public and private properties in the name of agitations, bandhs, hartals and the like, suo motu proceedings had been initiated by the Apex Court and two committees were appointed to give suggestions on strengthening of the legal provisions of P.D.P.P. Act to effectively deal with such instances. The recommendation of two committees were considered and it was observed that the suggestions were extremely important and they constitute sufficient guidelines which need to be adopted. It was left open to the appropriate authorities to take effective steps for their implementation.

(11). In a recent decision in Kodungallur Film Society and another vs. Union of India and others, 2018 (10) SCC 713, the relief was sought to issue a mandamus to the appropriate authorities to strictly follow and implement the guidelines formulated by the Apex Court “Destruction of Public & Private Properties In re:”, with regard to measures to be taken to prevent destruction of public and private properties in mass protests and demonstrations and also regarding the modalities of fixing liability and recovering compensation for damages caused to public and private properties during such demonstration and protests.

(12). It was acknowledged in Kodungallur Film Society that the recommendations of the Committee noted in the said judgment traversed the length and breadth of the issue at hand and, if implemented in their entirety, would go a long way in removing the bane of violence caused against persons and property. As far as implementation of the said recommendations, the Union had advised the States to follow the same in its letter and spirit. Issuing directions to implement recommendations made by the Apex Court in both the above decisions. Direction was issued in Kodungallur Film Society to both the Central and the State Government to do the same at the earliest.

(13). From the aforesaid it is clear that the underline purpose and idea of enacting the Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, 1984 is to provide benefits to those persons or to take a suitable remedial action to prevent the destruction of public and private properties in mass protest, demonstration, hartal, agitation and in this damage to the public and private properties, pursuant to the ratio laid down by Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Kodungallur Film Society (supra) the State Governments were granted liberty to form a committee to carry out and implement the recommendations made by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the above decision. Accordingly, the State of Uttar Pradesh too has notified “Uttar Pradesh Recovery of Damages to Public and Private Property Rules, 2020” with a view to provide for recovery of damages to public and private property during hartal, bundh, riots, public commotion, protests etc. in regard to property and imposition of fine. The said Rules provides for constitution of the claims tribunal to investigate the damages caused and to award compensation related thereto.

(14). Now coming to yet another aspect of the issue, learned counsel for the applicants in order to buttress their contention have drawn attention of the Court to the provisions of Section 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code which speaks about the power to prevent damages, misappropriation and wrongful occupation of Gram Panchayat property:-

(i) Where any property entrusted or deemed to be entrusted under the provisions of this Code to a Gram

Panchayator other local authority is damaged or misappropriated, or where any Gram Panchayator other authority is entitled to take possession of any land under the provisions of this Code and such land is occupied otherwise than in accordance with the said provisions, the Bhumi Prabandhak Samiti or other authority or the Lekhpal concerned, as the case may be, shall inform the Assistant Collector concerned in the manner prescribed.

(ii) Where from the information received under sub-section (i) or otherwise, the Assistant Collector is satisfied that any property referred to in sub-section (i) has been damaged or misappropriated, or any person is in occupation of any land referred to in that sub-section in contravention of the provisions of this Code, he shall issue notice to the person concerned to show cause why compensation for damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation not exceeding the amount specified in the notice be not recovered from him and why he should not be evicted from such land.

(iii) If the person to whom a notice has been issued under sub-section (ii) fails to show cause within the time specified in the notice or within such extended time as the Assistant Collector may allow in this behalf, or if the cause shown is found to be insufficient, the Assistant Collector may direct that such person shall be evicted from the land, and may, for that purpose, use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary, and may direct that the amount of compensation for damage or misappropriation of the property or for wrongful occupation as the case may be, be recovered from such person as arrears of land revenue.

(iv) If the Assistant Collector is of opinion that the person showing cause is not guilty of causing the damage or misappropriation or wrongful occupation referred to in the notice under sub-section (ii), he shall discharge the notice.

(v) Any person aggrieved by an order of the Assistant Collector under Sub-section (iii) or Sub-Section (iv), may within thirty days from the date of such order, prefer an appeal to the Collector.

(vi) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other provisions of this Code, and subject to the provisions of this section every order of the Sub-Divisional Officer under this section shall, subject to the provisions of sub-section (5) be final.

(vii) The procedure to be followed in any action taken under this section shall be such as may be prescribed.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section, the word "land" shall include the trees and building standing thereon."

(15). Further, under Rule 67(1) of U.P. Revenue Code, 2016, it is incumbent upon the Assistant Collector to make an inquiry as he deems proper and obtain further information regarding the following issues :

(a) full description of damage or misappropriation caused or the wrongful occupation made with details of village, plot number, area, boundary, property damaged or misappropriated and market value thereof;

(b) full address along with parentage of the person responsible for such damage, misappropriation or wrongful occupation;

(c) period of wrongful occupation, damage or misappropriation and class of soil of the plots involved;

(d) value of the property damaged or misappropriated calculated at the circle rate fixed by the Collector and the amount sought to be recovered as damages."

(16). Thus, from the above it is clear that as per the U.P. Revenue Code, it is the Assistant Collector of the area who is the authority concerned to act a pivotal role in demarcation and holding and declaring the land in dispute is encroached by the applicants. The Investigating Officer of criminal cases is not even remotely connected to conduct this exercise. The entire procedure has been laid down in Section 67(2) that only after getting a reply from the alleged encroacher, the Assistant Commissioner/Sub Divisional Officer has to pass an order giving reasons for not exceeding the explanation, if so offered by the person concerned. The eviction from the land in dispute can only be recorded after disposal of the explanation offered by the person concerned keeping in line with the cardinal principle of natural justice by passing a well reasoned and speaking order while disposing of the said explanation. The Act is itself contained the amount of compensation of damage or misappropriation of the property or for wrongful occupation, as the case may be, may be recovered from such person as arrears of land revenue. Section 210 of the Revenue Code, 2006 confers supervisory power on the Board or the Commissioner to call for the record of any proceeding decided by the subordinate revenue court in which no appeal lies for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the legality or propriety of any order passed in such suit or proceeding.

(17). A careful reading of the provisions of the Revenue Code, 2006, thus, makes it clear that the proceeding for causing damage to the public property can be undertaken against any person who is in wrongful occupation of the same or causes damage or misappropriations to the said property. The nature of eviction proceeding under Section 67 of the Revenue Code, 2006, is, however, summary in nature. The rights of the parties claimed, if gives rise to a dispute requiring adjudication on the questions of fact, a suit for declaration has to be instituted against such person. The Gram Sabha may institute a suit under Section 145 of the U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 for declaration of its right or to seek any further relief. In case of institution of such a suit, a temporary injunction may be granted by the Court concerned to prevent wastage, damage or alienation of the suit property. The Revenue Code, 2006 is a Special enactment providing for the law relating to the 'land' defined under Section 4(14) of the Code.

(18). As far as criminal proceeding for illegal encroachment, damage or trespass over the land belonging to Gram Sabha is concerned, the same can be undertaken but it would be subject to the adjudication of rights of the parties over the land in dispute as the said determination can be done only by the revenue Court.

LEGALITY OF CRYPTIC/
SUMMONING ORDER ON A PRINTED
PROFORMA :

(19). In addition to above, learned counsel for the applicants have drawn attention of the Court to the impugned summoning order whereby the concerned Magistrate, despite of the repeated directions of the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as of this Court, have adhered to the old fashion by taking the cognizance of offences on a printed proforma. Needless to mention here that on the previous occasion at least a dozen of the cases of different Benches of this Court in different proceedings have condemned and deprecated this practice of taking cognizance on a printed proforma, but it seems that the concerned Magistrates repeatedly in utter defiance of the directions of this Court are still taking cognizance on a printed praforma without applying their judicial mind. This is wholly unacceptable and condemned in strong term. The Session Judges of respective sessions divisions are required to look into the matter and issue an specific order that the cognizance order must be speaking and showing application of judicial mind.

(20). It was noted by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Abdul Rashid vs. State of U.P., 2010 SCC online Alld 2819, wherein it has been held that the judicial order cannot be allowed to be passed in a mechanical fashion either by filling in the blanks in a printed proforma or by affixing a readymade seal etc. of the order on a plain paper. Such tendency must be deprecated and cannot be allowed to perpetuate. This reflects not only lack of judicial mind to the facts of the case but is also against the settled judicial norms.

(21). Similarly in the case of Bhushan Kumar vs. State (NCT of Delhi), 2012 5 SCC 424, wherein the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed that Section 204 of the Code does not mandate the Magistrate to explicitly state the reasons for issuance of summons. It clearly states that if in the opinion of a Magistrate taking cognizance of an offence, there is sufficient ground for proceeding, then the summons may be issued. While explaining the true import of expression "sufficient ground for proceeding" the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sunil Bharti Mittal vs. Central Bureau of Investigation, AIR 2015 sc 923 has held as under :

"47. However, the words "sufficient grounds for proceeding" appearing in the Section are of immense importance. It is these words which amply suggest that an opinion is to be formed only after due application of mind that there is sufficient basis for proceeding against the said accused and formation of such an opinion is to be swtated in the order itself...."

(22). As mentioned above, taking into account the gravity of offence and its nature in which there is no criminality as such and the apt remedy would be to proceed against the erring so called encroacher u/s 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code and get the land in dispute demarcated. It is the case exclusively falls within the domain of concerned revenue authority to impose the fine, if any, after taking the whole exercise as per the provisions of law contained u/s 67 of the U.P. Revenue Code.

(23). Thus, after having heard the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the applicants and with the help of guidelines and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in abovementioned cases and also keeping in view the totality of facts and circumstances of the case, I have got no hesitation to allow these applications u/s 482 Cr.P.C. and quash the impugned summoning/cognizance orders as well as proceedings challenged therein. Accordingly, the impugned summoning/cognizance order dated 27.10.2018 as well as entire criminal proceeding of Case No.1588 of 2018 (State vs. Bhawarpal Singh and others), charge sheet dated 20.6.2016, arising out of Case Crime No.149 of 2016, u/s 3(2)A of Prevention of Damages to Public Property Act, Police Station Tirwa, District Kannauj, pending in the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Kannauj and the summoning/cognizance order dated and fabricated death certificate – during proceeding of a dispute which is purely civil in nature and several set of litigations are pending between the parties – court finds that, - prima facie there seems to be civil dispute in between the parties but so far as getting prepared the death certificate is concern, it was prepared wilfully and dishonestly, therefor the same was cancelled – held, - it is trite law that the testimony of the witnesses cannot be examined by this court and deciding the fate of the trial while giving finding that those testimonies are baseless is not proper at this stage and further the criminal and civil proceedings can go on as there are different consequences of the same – hence, court finds no merit in this case – accordingly, application is hereby dismissed. (Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash

1. Heard Sri Vijay Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the applicant-petitioner, Sri Anil Kumar Sharma and Bajhul Quamar Siddiqui for opposite parties, Sri Nirmal Kumar Pandey, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material placed on record.
2. Instant application has been filed with prayer to quash the order dated 06.03.2018 passed by Judicial Magistrate, Court No.2, Sitapur in a Criminal Case No. 6395 of 2017, Smt. Zubeda Begum, versus Kazim Mehndi, and further prayed to stay the operation and implementation of impugned order dated 06.03.2018 passed by Judicial Magistrate, Court No.2, Sitapur in a Criminal Case No. 6395 of 2017, Smt. Zubeda Begum, versus Kazim Mehndi.

3. Learned counsel appearing for the applicant submits that the factual matrix of the case is that on 15.04.1990, on the basis of an application of the petitioner moved before Nagar Palika Parishad, Mehmudabad, Sitapur, an inquiry was made with respect to the death certificate which was issued to the petitioner regarding the death of Taqi Hussain wherein the date of death of Taqi Hussain was shown 02.04.1993. He further added that it is an admitted fact that daughter of Raja Hussain is admittedly died on 06.04.2007 and the Tehsildar under certain misconception and while misreading the provisions of section 171 and 172 of U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act has presumed as Taqi Hussain as successor who was not alive on the date of death of Kaniz Raja thereafter, the applicant-petitioner filed a case under section 210 of U.P.Z.A & L.R. Act, against the order of Tehsildar dated 27.01.2015 thereby, agitating the issue that the succession which was open on the date of death of Kaniz Raza i.e. on 07.04.2007, on that point of time Taqi Hussain was not alive. Therefore, the present applicant being sister's son admittedly was alive on the death of Kaniz Hassan and thus, being the nearest heir, learned appellate court allowed the appeal and set aside the order passed by the Tehsildar dated 27.01.2015 and against the same, a revision was filed which was also dismissed on 07.09.2015 by the revisional court and thereafter, on 26.05.2015, a claim of Mutation has also been raised. He added that in between the death certificate which was issued in collusion with the ex- chairman of Nagar Palika Parishad, was got cancelled and against the same the present applicant has instituted the writ petition before this Court which is pending consideration. He added that since the present applicant are the nearest heirs of the deceased Kaniz Raja and therefore, there was no occasion to submit any forged or fabricated death certificate in his favour. He further added that in fact it is a dispute which is purely of civil in nature and several set of litigations are pending between the parties and this can only be decided after the issue is finally decided which is pending consideration at different stages.

4. While further adverting the fact that the order dated 06.03.2018 has been passed without considering the facts in its right perspective as the learned trial court has not considered the fact that the present applicant is the nearer heir of the deceased and thus, after the death of Kaniz Raja, he applied for Mutation.

5. He added that the trial court has also ignored the fact that there was no occasion for the present applicant to submit any kind of forged or fabricated death certificate as he by operation of law, is the legal heir of the deceased, Adding his argument, he submits that impugned order dated 06.03.2018 has been passed without thoroughly giving the reasons.

6. In support of his submission, he has placed reliance on a judgment reported in Devendra and Others versus State of U.P. and another (2009) 7 SCC page 495 and has referred paragraph 24.

7. Paragraph 24 is quoted herein under:-

There is no dispute with regard to the aforementioned propositions of law. However, it is now well settled that the High Court ordinarily would exercise its jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure if the allegations made in the first information report, even if given face value and taken to be correct in their entirety, do not make out any offence. When the allegations made in the first information report or the evidences collected 'during investigation do not satisfy the ingredients of an offence, the superior courts would not encourage harassment of a person in a criminal court for nothing.

8. Referring the aforesaid, he submits that the Apex Court in so many word has held that the superior courts would not encourage harassment of a person in a criminal court if there is no substance.

9. He has further placed reliance on a judgment reported in Inder Mohan Goswami and another versus State of Uttaranchal and others (2007) 12 SCC 1 and has referred paragraph 42.

10. Paragraph 42 is quoted herein under:-

On a reading of the aforesaid section, it is manifest that in the definition there are two separate classes of acts which the person deceived may be induced to do. In the first class of acts he may be induced fraudulently or dishonestly to deliver property to any person. The second class of acts is the doing or omitting to do anything which the person deceived would not do or omit to do if he were not so deceived. In the first class of cases, the inducing must be fraudulent or dishonest. In the second class of acts, the inducing must be intentional but need not be fraudulent or dishonest. Therefore, it is the intention which is the gist of the offence. To hold a person guilty of cheating it is necessary to show that he had a 7 fraudulent or dishonest intention at the time of making the promise. From his mere failure to subsequently keep a promise, one cannot presume that he all along had a culpable intention to break the promise from the beginning.

11. Referring the aforesaid, he submits that the intention is a key point to map out the criminal and civil act of a person. He added that the Apex Court has also held that fraud and cheating can said to be committed once, such a person had fraudulent or dishonest intention. He submits that there was no question with respect to any gain by the applicant and thus, it could not be said that there was any criminal intent of the applicant for committing the alleged offence.

12. Concluding his argument, he submits that since the matter is sub-judice in civil suit and the learned trial court without considering the aforesaid facts and circumstances that the case is purely of civil in nature and has passed the order dated 06.03.2018 therefore, the same may be set aside.

13. Leamed counsel for the opposite parties has vehemently opposed the submission aforesaid and submits that the present applicant moved an application for mutation whereby, the death certificate of Taqi Hussain was annexed. He added that once the same was challenged before the court of Civil Judge, J.D., Mehmudabad, Sitapur, after considering the facts and circumstances the order was passed on 12.05.2015, while discussing the fact that the death certificate of Taqi Mohd is forged which was produced by the applicant at the time of executing the Mutation application. Learned counsel has placed the supplementary affidavit dated 13.07.2023 annexing therein the photocopy of the judgment and order dated 12.05.2015, which is taken on record.

14. Attention has been drawn during course of hearing that the trial court directed the Executive Officer of Nagar Palika Parishad, Medmudabad, Sitapur to submit its report regarding the death certificate of Taqi Hussain and in response thereof, it was intimated and reported that the death certificate which was submitted by the present applicant is a forged and that was cancelled. The relevant paragraph of the aforesaid order is quoted here in under:-

यदि वादीगण एवं प्रतिवादीगण के द्वारा प्रस्तुत अभिलेखीय साक्ष्य प उनके द्वारा प्रस्तुत तर्कों को देखा जाए तो प्रस्तुत बाद में श्री तकी हुसैन के सम्बन्ध में प्रतिवादीगण द्वारा मृत्यु प्रमाण पत्र 42 ग-1 दाखिल किया गया है. जिसमें श्री तकी हुसैन की मृत्यु की तिथि 15.04.1990 अंकित है. जबकि वादीगण द्वारा तकी हुसैन का मृत्यु प्रमाण पत्र 48 ग-1 दाखिल किया गया है, जिसमें उनकी मृत्यु की तिथि दि० 02.04.1993 अंकित है। न्यायालय द्वारा इस तथ्य को स्पष्ट करने के लिए अधिशाषी अधिकारी नगर पालिका परिषद महमूदाबाद सीतापुर को पत्र का० सं० 60 ग-2 में लिखा गया कि जो उभय पक्ष द्वारा एक ही व्यक्ति तकी हुसैन के दो मृत्यु प्रमाण पत्र दाखिल किये गये हैं, उनकी प्रामाणिकता क्या है। इसके अलोक में अधिशाषी अधिकारी नगर मालिका परिषद महमूदाबाद, सीतापुर की आख्या 61 ग-2 प्राप्त हुआ, जिन्होंने अपनी आख्या दी कि श्री तकी हुसैन के मृत्यु की तिथि 15.04.1990 गलत है, इस मृत्यु प्रमाण पत्र को कार्यालय के पत्र सं० 125 दि० 26.03.2015 द्वारा निरस्त किया जा चुका है। इस प्रकार श्री तकी हुसैन के मृत्यु की तिथि 02.04.1993 ही सही है तथा मृत्यु की तिथि 15.04.1990 पूर्णतया गलत है।

15. Referring the he submits that it is prima facie evident from the judgment and the report of the executive officer that the death certificate of Taqi Mohammad, which was produced was found forged and therefore, the complaint which has been instituted by the complainant thereafter, the same was treated as complaint case, the statement of the complainant and witnesses were recorded and there is no deviation regarding the allegation with respect to preparing of forged death certificate of Taqi Mohammad.

16. Learned counsel appearing for the opposite party further submits that prima facie perusal of the order dated 06.03.2018, it transpires that the fact and the reasons have been discussed exhaustively. He further added that while passing the order the learned trial court has also gone into the statement of the complainant and the witnesses which was recorded under section 200 and 202 of the Cr.P.C.

17. Concluding the arguments, he submits that the criminal and civil proceeding can go on simultaneously, and once it has prima facie from the report of Executive Officer that the death certificate is forged and that was cancelled, the order passed dated 06.03.2018 by the learned trial court, is quashed, adhering the provisions of law and thus, the same is not entitled to be set aside.

18. On the other hand, learned counsel appearing for the State has also vehemently opposed the contentions of learned counsel for the applicant and submits that the order dated 06.03.2018 passed by the learned trial court is assailed and about five years have been passed and after 12.01.2023, there is no interim order in this application. Adding his argument, he submits that it is apparent from the criminal proceeding itself that forged certificate was prepared by the applicant and later on it was cancelled by the Executive Officer, Nagar Palika Parishad, further the statement of witnesses and complainant are intact and there seems to be no deviation thereof. Thus, the learned trial court has no occasion, not to believe on the statement of complainant and the witnesses recorded under section 200 and 202 of Cr.P.C. The criminal intent after preparing the forged document i.e. death certificate is prima facie evident that the same was prepared for wrongful gain and thus, this cannot be decided at this stage that the statement of the witnesses and the complainant are incorrect because there is no erroneousness in the summoning order dated 06.03.2018 passed by the learned trial court.

19. Adding his argument, he submits that the factual dispute has been raised before this Court which cannot be entertained and examined at this stage and furthermore, the civil and criminal proceedings are there consequences and that can be go on simultaneously as the law is very clear on this point, might be any dispute in between the parties in respect to the civil matter, but this does not mean that on the carve of the aforesaid dispute of persons is allowed to commit forgery. Therefore, his submission is that the applicant is not entitled for any relief.

20. Having heard learned counsels for the parties and after perusal of material placed on record, it emerges that the criminal case has been instituted against the present applicant with an allegations that he with a view to inherit the property has got prepared the forged death certificate of Taqi Hussain, and an application was instituted by the complainant under section 156 (3) of Cr.P.C. which was treated as complaint case, wherein the statement of the complainant and the witnesses were recorded. From perusal of the statements, it is evident that those, supports the version of the complainant and there is no deviation in the same.

21. Undoubtedly, prima facie there seems to be civil dispute in between the parties but so far as getting prepared the death certificate of Taqi Hussain by the present applicant is concerned, it prima facie show that the same was prepared willfully and dishonestly. The Executive Officer of Nagar Palika Parishad, Mehmudabad, Sitapur, cancelled the forged death certificate vide letter no. 125 dated 26.03.2015. This fact is evident from the interim order dated 12.05.2015 passed in civil suit no. 101 of 2015 annexed along with the supplementary affidavit dated 13.07.2023 wherein, during the proceeding this fact was also got verified, while calling the report from Executive Officer of Nagar Palika Parishad, Mehmudabad, Sitapur, wherein it was informed that the death certificate of Taqi Hussain, wherein the date of death was shown as 15.07.1990 was wrong and therefore, the same was cancelled.

So far as the submissions of learned counsel for the applicant is concerned that the applicant is heir by operation of law and there was no need to submit any kind of forged documents with respect to the death of Taqi Mohammad, is not sustainable, as then what was the occasion for the present applicant to submit a forged death certificate, which indicates that there was some expectation of wrongful gain by him.

22. In support of the submissions, the applicant has also referred the judgments of Devendra and Others versus State of U.P. and another and Inder Mohan Goswami and another versus State of Uttaranchal and others (Supra), which do not attract in the instant matter as the fraudulent and dishonest intention is apparent from getting prepared the death certificate and submitting the same before the public authority for wrongful gain is very overt. The Hon'ble Apex Court in aforesaid cases has very categorically distinguished the 'the intention of doing any wrong and fraudulent or dishonest intention. Vide the aforesaid judgments it has very clearly been held that the superior courts shall ensure that criminal prosecution is not used as an instrument of harassment, but on the other hand it has also been held that inherent jurisdiction under section 482 of Cr.P.C. be exercised sparingly and carefully. It has also been held that there can be no hard and fast rule and each case has to be considered on its own merits. It is further said that the genuine complaint, keeping in view of the purport and object, would not be interfered. This court has also noticed that the counsel for the applicant has also failed to demonstrate that how any cognizable offence was not made out as the statements of the witnesses and the complainant are intact and prima facie there is a record which is said to be forged and the applicant seems to be beneficiary.

23. It is trite law that the testimony of the witnesses cannot be examined by this Court and deciding the fate of the trial while giving finding that those testimonies are baseless is not proper at this stage and further the criminal and civil proceedings can go on as there are different consequences of the same.

24. Before parting with the judgments, it is clarified that the observations made hereinabove would have no bearing on the merit of the criminal case no 6395 of 2017 pending before the trial court.

25. Considering above said submissions and discussions, this Court finds no merit in this case and thus, the instant application is hereby dismissed.

CRIMINAL SIDE

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE SHREE PRAKASH SINGH, J.

Application u/s 482 No. 6191 of 2023

Mohd. Khalid @ Khalid ...Applicant
Versus
Union of India & Anr. ...Opp. Parties

Counsel for the Applicant:
Anil Kumar Pandey

Counsel for the Opp. Parties:

Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Sections 211, 215, 464 & 482. - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 34, 302 & 323 - Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 - Sections 8 & 21: - Application – for quashing the charge-sheet – offence of murder – punishment of voluntarily causing hurt - FIR - search & arrest - recovery memo – investigation – framing charges – NBW - effect of omission/error to frame charge – even after regular presence of the present applicant before the trial court, non bailable warrant has been issued for only one day delay, which is too harsh – applicant give undertaking that he will remain present before the trial court on each and every date and he will not take any unnecessary adjournment and therefore, the NBW issued against the applicant may not be given effect - court finds that, so far as the provision of section 215 Cr.P.C. is concerned, unless the accused is misled by such omission or any prejudice is caused to him, errors can be rectified at subsequent stage – held, provision of section 464 Cr.P.C. provides mechanism for rectifying the error even at the stage of appeal or revision – thus, court is of considered opinion that error and omission in 'charge' can be rectified, if no material prejudice is caused to accused – and it also trite law that incorrectness in framing of ‘charge’ would not vitiate conviction if no prejudice is caused to accused as procedure prescribed in Cr.P.c. is with the object to fulfil ends of interest of justice and not to frustrate it on ground of endless technicalities - court do not find any error and unlawfulness in the order impugned – accordingly, Application is dismissed.

Application u/s 482 dismissed. (E-11)

List of Cases cited:

1. Kammari Brahmaiah & ors.Vs Public Prosecution, High Court of A.P. (1999 vol. 2 SCC 522),
2. Kamil Vs St. of U.P. (2019 vol. 12 SCC 600),
3. Santosh Kumari Vs St. of J.& K. & ors.(2011 vol. 9 SCC 234).

(Delivered by Hon’ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. Supplementary affidavit filed by counsel for the applicant, today, is taken on record.

2. Heard Sri Anil Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri S.M. Singh Royekwar, learned counsel for the opposite party no.1 and perused the material placed on record.

3. Notice issued to the opposite party no.2 is hereby dispensed with.

4. By means of this application, the applicant has assailed the charge dated 23.3.2022 framed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge, Court No.09/Special Judge N.D.P.S. Act, Lucknow, in Criminal Case No.194 of 2015 (Union of India Vs. Nasreen Bano and others), initiated on the basis of complaint filed by the opposite party in C.B.N. Crime No.8 of 2014, under Section 8/21 of N.D.P.S. Act.

5. Factual matrix as per the prosecution story is that on 13.12.2014, while receiving information through mukhbir, co-accused Nasreen Bano was arrested with contraband substance and while preparing the recovery memo, the police team also recorded the statement, wherein the name of the applicant came into light. House of the applicant was searched on 28.4.2015 but the officers of the Department could not recover any contraband or incriminating articles. The trial court has taken cognizance on 5.6.2015 on charge sheet filed by the Investigating Officer, which was assailed by applicant before this Court and the same was set aside, while giving liberty to pass fresh order and, thereafter, fresh order was passed, as per the version of the applicant, without following the procedure of law. On 22.12.2021, the applicant was enlarged on bail and he kept on appearing before the trial court, while participating in the trial proceedings. Thereafter, on 22.2.2022, the trial of the applicant was separated from the co-accused Nasreen Bano and the applicant was summoned through warrant B. On 23.3.2022, the charge was framed though neither the contents of the charges were told to the applicant nor even his name is mentioned in the charges, which is evident from the order itself, though the applicant has signed over the order of charge on the same day. The order of charge dated 23.3.2022 is under challenge, in this application.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that impugned order dated 23.3.2022 has been passed without mentioning the name of the present applicant in the contents of the charges. He added that though the signature of the present applicant is on the said order but he has not been told/informed regarding the contents of the charges whereas it is not a case that the present applicant avoided the criminal proceedings instituted against him, as he, after the aforesaid order, is appearing on each and every date before the trial court. Further he submits that in fact, the provisions prescribed under Section 211 of the Cr.P.C. has clearly been violated by the trial court while passing the impugned order. Drawing attention towards the impugned order, he submits that name of one of the co-accused Nasreen Bano is mentioned therein as charges have been framed against Nasreen Bano only and only by averring that the signature of the present application is on the order of framing of charges, does not mean that the provisions of Section 211 Cr.P.C. has been complied with.

7. He further added that the trial court is proceeding in a hasty manner, which is evident from the fact that just after framing of the charges on 7.7.2023, non-bailable warrant has been issued, vide order dated 10.7.2023, though there is no history of the applicant that he has ever avoided the proceedings of the trial court and even there is no apprehension that he will escape away from the criminal proceedings. Thus, submission is that the order of charge dated 23.3.2022 vitiates in the eyes of law and the same may be set aside.

8. Learned counsel for the opposite party no.1, Sri S.M. Singh Royekwar has vehemently opposed the contentions aforesaid and submits that the order dated 23.3.2022, by which charges have been framed, has rightly been passed. He pointed out that the signature of the present applicant is there and, thus, he has no occasion to say that the charges were not brought in the knowledge of the applicant. He submits that it seems that due to inadvertence, the name of the present applicant could not be transcribed in the order dated 23.3.2022 and it was corrected later on. The applicant kept on appearing before the trial court for about more than one year. The effect of the errors in 'charge' has been given in Section 215 of the Cr.P.C. Section 215 Cr.P.C. which reads as under:-

"215. Effect of errors. No error in stating either the offence or the particulars required to be stated in the charge, and no omission to state the offence or those particulars, shall be regarded at any stage of the case as material, unless the accused was in fact misled by such error or omission, and it has occasioned a failure of justice."

9. Referring the aforesaid provisions, he submits that it has been provided in so many words that the error committed in this Chapter can be rectified unless the accused was infact misled by such error or omission and it has occasioned the failure of justice. He further submits that even the error can be rectified at the stage of appeal or revision as envisaged under Section 464 of the Cr.P.C. Section 464 of the Cr.P.C. is quoted as under:-

"464. Effect of omission to frame, or absence of, or error in, charge.

(1) No finding, sentence or order by a Court of competent jurisdiction shall be deemed invalid merely on the ground that no charge was framed or on the ground of any error, omission or irregularity in the charge including any misjoinder of charges, unless, in the opinion of the Court of appeal, confirmation or revision, a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned thereby.

(2) If the Court of appeal, confirmation or revision is of opinion that a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned, it may-

(a) in the case of an omission to frame a charge, order that a charge be framed and that the trial be recommended from the point immediately after the framing of the charge;

(b) in the case of an error, omission or irregularity in the charge, direct a new trial to be had upon a charge framed in whatever manner it thinks fit:

Provided that if the Court is of opinion that the facts of the case are such that no valid charge could be preferred against the accused in respect of the facts proved, it shall quash the conviction."

10. The abovesaid provisions provide that if the court of appeal, confirmation or revision is of opinion that a failure of justice has in fact been occasioned, it may, in the case of an omission to frame a charge, order that the charge be framed and that the trial be recommended from the point immediately after the framing of charge and in case of an error, omission or irregularity in the charge, direct a new trial to be had upon in whatever manner it thinks fit.

11. He submits that in fact this was in the mind of the legislature that while framing the charge by the court, how the errors can be rectified in case of any error/omission by the trial court, therefore, there is no hard rule that the error in the charge cannot be rectified.

12. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance on a Judgment of the Apex Court rendered in the case of Kammari Brahmaiah and others Vs. Public Prosecutor, High Court of A.P. reported in (1999) 2 SCC 522 and referred para 6 thereof, which is quoted as under:-

"6. The aforesaid section is in mandatory terms and it specifically provides what is to be done in cases where charge is not framed or there is an error, omission or irregularity in framing of the charge. From the unequivocal terms of the section, it can be stated that finding, sentence or order could be set aside only in those cases where the facts are such that no valid charge could be preferred against the accused in respect of the facts proved. Secondly, if the facts are such that charge could be framed and yet it is not framed but there is no failure of justice, has in fact been occasioned thereby, the finding sentence or order of the court of competent jurisdiction is not to be set aside on that ground. Thirdly, if there is failure of justice occasioned by not framing of the charge or in case an error, omission or irregularity in charge re-trial of the case is to be directed as provided under sub-section (2)."

13. Submission is that Hon'ble Apex Court has dealt with the eventualities, where the charges have not been framed in any offence or there is error, omission or irregularity in framing of charges, thereby holding in so many words that if there is failure of justice by not framing of charges, in any offence or in case of any error, omission or irregularity, re-trial of the case is to be directed, under sub section 2 of Section 464 of Cr.P.C. He submits that keeping in mind that whole proceeding may not become redundant, the mechanism has been provided and so is the Apex Court, while interpreting the same, has also upheld by way of aforesaid verdict.

14. Placing reliance on the Judgment of the Apex Court, rendered in the case of Kamil Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in (2019) 12 SCC 600, he referred paras 11, 14, 16 and 18, which are quoted as under:-

"11. Absence of charge would vitiate the conviction only if it has caused prejudice to the accused and has in fact been occasioned thereby. In Willie (William) Slaney v. State of Madhya Pradesh, the Constitution Bench explained the concept of "prejudice caused to the accused" and "failure of justice" and held as under:-

"6. Before we proceed to set out our answer and examine the provisions of the Code, we will pause to observe that the Code is a code of procedure and, like all procedural laws, is designed to further the ends of justice and not to frustrate them by the introduction of endless technicalities. The object of the Code is to ensure that an accused person gets a full and fair trial along certain well-established and well-understood lines that accord with our notions of natural justice. If he does, if he is tried by a competent court, if he is told and clearly understands the nature of the offence for which he is being tried, if the case against him is fully and fairly explained to him and he is afforded a full and fair opportunity of defending himself, then, provided there is 'substantial' compliance with the outward forms of the law, mere mistakes in procedure, mere inconsequential errors and omissions in the trial are regarded as venal by the Code and the trial is not vitiated unless the accused can show substantial prejudice. That, broadly speaking, is the basic principle on which the Code is based." (emphasis supplied)

14. After considering the meaning of the expression "failure of justice" and after referring to the Constitution Bench in Willie Slaney and Gurbachan Singh, this Court in Main Pal v. State of Haryana, held as under:(Main Pal case, SCC pp. 137-138, paras 15-17)

"15. In Shamsaheb M. Multtani v. State of Karnataka, this Court considered the meaning of the expression "failure of justice" occurring in Section 464 Cr.PC. This Court held thus:

'22. ... a conviction would be valid even if there is any omission or irregularity in the charge, provided it did not occasion a failure of justice.

23. ... The criminal court, particularly the superior court should make a close examination to ascertain whether there was really a failure of justice or whether it is only a camouflage.'

16. The above principles are reiterated in several decisions of this Court, including State of W.B. and Another v. Laisal Haque, State of A.P. v. Thakkidiram Reddy, Dalbir Singh v. State of U.P., Dumpala Chandra Reddy v. Nimakayala Balireddy and Sanichar Shani v. State of Bihar.

17. The following principles relating to Sections 212, 215 and 464 of the Code, relevant to this case, become evident from the said enunciations:

(i) The object of framing a charge is to enable an accused to have a clear idea of what he is being tried for and of the essential facts that he has to meet. The charge must also contain the particulars of date, time, place and person against whom the offence was committed, as are reasonably sufficient to give the accused notice of the matter with which he is charged.

(ii) The accused is entitled to know with certainty and accuracy, the exact nature of the charge against him, and unless he has such knowledge, his defence will be prejudiced. Where an accused is charged with having committed offence against one person but on the evidence led, he is convicted for committing offence against another person, without a charge being framed in respect of it, the accused will be prejudiced, resulting in a failure of justice. But there will be no prejudice or failure of justice where there was an error in the charge and the accused was aware of the error. Such knowledge can be inferred from the defence, that is, if the defence of the accused showed that he was defending himself against the real and actual charge and not the erroneous charge.

(iii) In judging a question of prejudice, as of guilt, the courts must act with a broad vision and look to the substance and not to the technicalities, and their main concern should be to see whether the accused had a fair trial, whether he knew what he was being tried for, whether the main facts sought to be established against him were explained to him fairly and clearly, and whether he was given a full and fair chance to defend himself." (emphasis supplied)

16. The question falling for consideration is whether non-framing of charge has caused prejudice in the present case. In order to judge whether a failure of justice has been occasioned, it is relevant to examine whether the accused was aware of the basic ingredients of the offence for which he is being convicted and whether they were explained to him and whether he got a fair chance to defend. The crux of the issue is whether in this case, omission to frame charge under Section 302 IPC has vitiated conviction of the appellant/accused.

18. As seen from the above, charge was not framed against the appellant under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC. But it is for the accused to prove that omission to frame charge has occasioned in a failure of justice. Though specific charge under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC was not framed, the gist of the charge sheet filed against the appellant/accused clearly shows that the accused has been charged for the offence under Section 302 read with Section 34 IPC as seen from the following:-

"Sir, On 03.01.1986, the complainant came to the Police Station Kotwali and orally informed that his niece went to take water from the tap. She was teased by the accused but they did not make it an issue due to the respect in the society. However, there was an ugly quarrel over there. He pacified his niece. I along with Adil and Akhlaq today were going to my shop situated at Jogipuraat about 04.00 PM, when we reached near Lalpur Mandir, accused mentioned in Column No.2 and 3 were present there. Kamil was carrying a Danda Nasir was carrying a hockey and Rashid was carrying knife in their hands. They surrounded us. They abused my nephew Adil. Adil protested about abusing and said that it would not be good if you continue. On this accused hit my nephew with danda. I snatched danda from Kamil to save my nephew. Accused Nasir and Adil caught hold my nephew and Rashid poked the knife in his chest. My nephew sat down on the earth and his condition started deteriorating. I carried him to hospital where he died. On the basis of this information a crime case No.2/86 u/s 302/323/34 IPC. Accused Rashid and others were arrested and were sent to jail. Accused Kamil is not available and the investigation is going on against him. The charge sheet is filed u/s 302/323/34 IPC against these accused persons. Dated 13.01.1986." (emphasis supplied)

In the charges framed, even if the appellant and accused Nasir were charged only under Section 323 read with Section 34 IPC, the gist of the charge sheet clearly alleges their sharing of common intention in committing the murder of Akhlaq with the first accused Rashid."

15. The Apex Court dealing with the issue regarding omission, in framing the charges, has held that same can be rectified even at the stage of appeal and revision.

16. Further referring the Judgment of the Apex Court rendered in the case of Santosh Kumari Vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir and others reported in (2011) 9 SCC 234 has placed reliance on paras 17 and 18, which read as under:-

"17. Like all procedural laws, the Code of Criminal Procedure is devised to subserve the ends of justice and not to frustrate them by mere technicalities. It regards some of its provisions as vital but others not, and a breach of the latter is a curable irregularity unless the accused is prejudiced thereby. It places errors in the charge, or even a total absence of a charge in the curable class. That is why we have provisions like Sections 215 and 464 in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

18. The object of the charge is to give the accused notice of the matter he is charged with and does not touch jurisdiction. If, therefore, the necessary information is conveyed to him in other ways and there is no prejudice, the framing of the charge is not invalidated. The essential part of this part of law is not any technical formula of words but the reality, whether the matter was explained to the accused and whether he understood what he was being tried for. Sections 34, 114 and 149 of the IPC provide for criminal liability viewed from different angles as regards actual participants, accessories and men actuated by a common object or a common intention; and as explained by five Judge Constitution Bench of this Court in Willie Slavey Vs. The State of M.P. SCR at p.1189, the charge is a rolled-up one involving the direct liability and the constructive liability without specifying who are directly liable and who are sought to be made constructively liable."

17. Vide the abovesaid Judgment, it has been held by the Apex Court that if the necessary information is conveyed to the accused in other ways and no prejudice is caused to him, the framing of the charges could not be invalidated as the object of the charge is to provide the notice of the matter to the accused.

18. Next contention of the learned counsel for the opposite party no.1 is that no prejudice is caused to the applicant as he had knowledge otherwise that charges have been framed against him as he has put his signature over the order of 'charge'. He further added that it is a fact that the present applicant has also examined some of the prosecution witnesses and about one year passed, but he did not raise this objection within such period of time. He submits that now additional charges have been framed, vide order dated 7.7.2023 and, as such, each and every grievance, which has been raised by the applicant, is of no avail. The grievance as raised by the applicant is on non est ground and, thus, instant application has no merit and the same may be dismissed.

19. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and after perusal of the record, it transpires that on 23.3.2022, the charges were framed, wherein the name of one co-accused Nasreen Bano is mentioned, but the name of the applicant does not find place. It is further apparent that the signature of the applicant, namely, Mohd. Khalid is on the order of charge and this fact has not been denied by the counsel for the applicant. It is also an admitted fact that the prosecution witnesses were produced and they were examined by the applicant, meaning thereby that the fact with respect to framing of 'charges' was very well in the knowledge of the present applicant. This Court has also noticed that later on, vide order dated 7.7.2023, the additional charges were framed and the trial court is proceeding in the matter.

20. It emerges from the several verdicts of the Apex Court as well as relevant provisions of Cr.P.C., as envisaged under Section 215 and Section 464 which says that the omission or error can be rectified even at the stage of revision and appeal. So far as the provisions of Section 215 of Cr.P.C. is concerned, it clearly says that unless the accused is misled by such omission or any prejudice is caused to him, errors can be rectified at subsequent stage. Provision of Section 464 of Cr.P.C. provides mechanism for rectifying the error even at the stage of appeal or revision.

21. This Court is of the considered opinion that the error and omission in 'charge' can be rectified, if no material prejudice is caused to the accused. It is also trite law that incorrectness in framing of 'charge' would not vitiate the conviction if no prejudice is caused to the accused as the procedure prescribed in Cr.P.C. is with object to fulfill the ends of interest of justice and not to frustrate it on the ground of endless technicalities. Every criminal law is evolved, designed and promulgated so that the same remains fair to the accused, fair to the State and fair to the society at large, as the same is the ultimate achievement. The trial court must be cautious while considering the prejudice caused to the accused, as no injustice can prevail.

22. In view of the above said submissions and discussions, I do not find any error and unlawfulness in the order impugned, after it has been rectified, vide order dated 7.7.2023, thus, there is no merit in this application.

23. Resultantly, the application is hereby dismissed.

24. However, it has been stated that even after the regular presence of the present applicant before the trial court, non bailable warrant has been issued for only delay of one day, which is too harsh. He submits that the present applicant undertakes that he will remain present before the trial court on each and every date and he will not take any unnecessary adjournment and, therefore, the non-bailable warrant issued against the applicant may not be given effect too.

25. Learned counsel for the opposite party no.1 has fairly submitted that he has no objection as prayed abovesaid, though the applicant may be directed to co-operate with the trial proceedings.

26. In view of the aforesaid submissions, non bailable warrant issued, vide order dated 10.7.2023 is kept in abeyance. In case of further non presence of the applicant, the trial court is at liberty to take fresh recourse.

27. It is further clarified that the findings given as above would have no bearing on the merits of the case, pending before the trial court.

for last 11 years. The applicant, Ajit Kumar Gupta and co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh and Kanhaiya Gupta, have occupied her house situated in Anandpuri, Transport Nagar, Kanpur, with the help of gangsters . It was further alleged that accused persons have fabricated documents to justify their illegal occupation. Her mother never signed any document in their favour and her signatures have been digitally created. The aforesaid FIR was registered after a letter was sent to the Chief Minister of the State by the opposite party no.2 from United State of America.

3. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that after investigation charge-sheet no. 38/16 dated 27.5.2016 was submitted by the police only against co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh and the applicant was exonerated. At the behest of co-accused, further investigation was conducted by the police and supplementary charge-sheet No. 38-A/16 dated 28.8.2016 was filed before the Additional Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Court No.2/Additional Judge, Kanpur Nagar, who took cognizance of the same on 28.9.2016 and summoned the applicant. In the disputed house, co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh, is in possession on the basis of an agreement to sell dated 31.5.2004 executed by mother of opposite party no.2. The name of the applicant is mentioned in the agreement in block letters without any signature, purportedly as a witness of the agreement. Civil dispute is pending between the mother of the opposite party no.2 and co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh. In the supplementary charge-sheet, the applicant has been charge-sheeted solely on the basis of the statement of co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh and supplementary charge-sheet was submitted against him. The court below has summoned the applicant on its basis.

4. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that even if it is assumed that the applicant signed the disputed agreement to sell as a witness, even then it is unregistered document written on stamp of Rs.100/- and no title of the property has passed on its basis in favour of the applicant or any of the co-accused. The applicant claims that he has no criminal history.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that further investigation in the case was done without any order of Magistrate and supplementary charge-sheet was illegally submitted against the applicant. He has pointed out to the order dated 12.1.2023 passed by this Court wherein a report was called from the Magistrate concerned as to whether any direction for further investigation was given by the court or not. The Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar, has sent report dated 15.4.2023 informing that there is no order found on the record of the case directing further investigation in this case by the Investigating Officer.

6. Learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that filing of supplementary charge-sheet against the applicant on the basis of unauthorized further investigation is bad in law. In the case of Vinay Tyagi Vs. Irshad Ali and others, (2013)5 SCC 762 such a course adopted has been deprecated and it has been held by Apex Court that :

“40. Having analysed the provisions of the Code and the various judgments as afore-indicated, we would state the following conclusions in regard to the powers of a magistrate in terms of Section 173(2) read with Section 173(8) and Section 156(3) of the Code :

40.1. The Magistrate has no power to direct 'reinvestigation' or 'fresh investigation' (de novo) in the case initiated on the basis of a police report.

40.2. A Magistrate has the power to direct 'further investigation' after filing of a police report in terms of Section 173(6) of the Code.

40.3. The view expressed in (2) above is in conformity with the principle of law stated in Bhagwant Singh's case (supra) by a three Judge Bench and thus in conformity with the doctrine of precedence.

40.4. Neither the scheme of the Code nor any specific provision therein bars exercise of such jurisdiction by the Magistrate. The language of Section 173(2) cannot be construed so restrictively as to deprive the Magistrate of such powers particularly in face of the provisions of Section 156(3) and the language of Section 173(8) itself. In fact, such power would have to be read into the language of Section 173(8).

40.5. The Code is a procedural document, thus, it must receive a construction which would advance the cause of justice and legislative object sought to be achieved. It does not stand to reason that the legislature provided power of further investigation to the police even after filing a report, but intended to curtail the power of the Court to the extent that even where the facts of the case and the ends of justice demand, the Court can still not direct the investigating agency to conduct further investigation which it could do on its own.

40.6. It has been a procedure of proprietary that the police has to seek permission of the Court to continue 'further investigation' and file supplementary chargesheet. This approach has been approved by this Court in a number of judgments. This as such would support the view that we are taking in the present case.

(Emphasis supplied)

XXXXXXXXXXXXXX

49. Now, we may examine another significant aspect which is how the provisions of Section 173(8) have been understood and applied by the courts and investigating agencies. It is true that though there is no specific requirement in the provisions of Section 173(8) of the Code to conduct 'further investigation' or file supplementary report with the leave of the Court, the investigating agencies have not only understood but also adopted it as a legal practice to seek permission of the courts to conduct 'further investigation' and file 'supplementary report' with the leave of the court. The courts, in some of the decisions, have also taken a similar view. The requirement of seeking prior leave of the Court to conduct 'further investigation' and/or to file a 'supplementary report' will have to be read into, and is a necessary implication of the provisions of Section 173(8) of the Code. The doctrine of contemporanea expositio will fully come to the aid of such interpretation as the matters which are understood and implemented for a long time, and such practice that is supported by law should be accepted as part of the interpretative process.

50. Such a view can be supported from two different points of view. Firstly, through the doctrine of precedence, as afore-noticed, since quite often the courts have taken such a view, and, secondly, the investigating agencies which have also so understood and applied the principle. The matters which are understood and implemented as a legal practice and are not opposed to the basic rule of law would be good practice and such interpretation would be permissible with the aid of doctrine of contemporanea expositio. Even otherwise, to seek such leave of the court would meet the ends of justice and also provide adequate safeguard against a suspect/accused.”

6A. The case of Vinubhai Haribhai Malviya and others Vs. State of Gujarat and Another, (2019) 17 SCC 1 has also been relied upon by the counsel for the applicant in support of his contention wherein it has been held:

“38. There is no good reason given by the Court in these decisions as to why a Magistrate’s powers to order further investigation would suddenly cease upon process being issued, and an accused appearing before the Magistrate, while concomitantly, the power of the police to further investigate the offence continues right till the stage the trial commences. Such a view would not accord with the earlier judgments of this Court, in particular, Sakiri (supra), Samaj Parivartan Samudaya (supra), Vinay Tyagi (supra), and Hardeep Singh (supra); Hardeep Singh (supra) having clearly held that a criminal trial does not begin after cognizance is taken, but only after charges are framed. What is not given any importance at all in the recent judgments of this Court is Article 21 of the Constitution and the fact that the Article demands no less than a fair and just investigation. To say that a fair and just investigation would lead to the conclusion that the police retain the power, subject, of course, to the Magistrate’s nod under Section 173(8) to further investigate an offence till charges are framed, but that the supervisory jurisdiction of the Magistrate suddenly ceases mid- way through the pre-trial proceedings, would amount to a travesty of justice, as certain cases may cry out for further investigation so that an innocent person is not wrongly arraigned as an accused or that a prima facie guilty person is not so left out. There is no warrant for such a narrow and restrictive view of the powers of the Magistrate, particularly when such powers are traceable to Section 156(3) read with Section 156(1), Section 2(h), and Section 173(8) of the CrPC, as has been noticed hereinabove, and would be available at all stages of the progress of a criminal case before the trial actually commences. It would also be in the interest of justice that this power be exercised suo motu by the Magistrate himself, depending on the facts of each case. Whether further investigation should or should not be ordered is within the discretion of the learned Magistrate who will exercise such discretion on the facts of each case and in accordance with law. If, for example, fresh facts come to light which would lead to inculcating or exculpating certain persons, arriving at the truth and doing substantial justice in a criminal case are more important than avoiding further delay being caused in concluding the criminal proceeding, as was held in Hasanbhai Valibhai Qureshi (supra). Therefore, to the extent that the judgments in Amrutbhai Shambubhai Patel (supra), Athul Rao (supra) and Bikash Ranjan Rout (supra) have held to the contrary, they stand overruled. Needless to add, Randhir Singh Rana v. State (Delhi Administration) (1997) 1 SCC 361 and Reeta Nag v. State of West Bengal and Ors. (2009) 9 SCC 129 also stand overruled.”

7. Finally reliance on a recent judgement of Apex Court in the case of Peethambaran Vs. State of Kerela and Another, (Criminal Appeal No.1381 of 2023), has been made wherein it has been held:

“19. The Chief Police Officer of a district is the Superintendent of Police who is an officer of the Indian Police Service. Needless to state, an order from the District Police Chief is not the same as an order issued by the concerned Magistrate. Referring to Vinay Tyagi (supra), this Court in Devendra Nath Singh v. State of Bihar and Ors.9 noted that there is no specific requirement to seek leave of the court for further investigation or to file a supplementary report but investigation agencies, have not only understood it to be so but have also adopted the same as a legal requirement. The doctrine of contemporanea exposito aids such an interpretation of matters which have been long understood and implemented in a particular manner to be accepted into the interpretive process. In other words, the requirement of permission for further investigation or to file a supplementary report is accepted within law and is therefore required to be complied with.”

8. It has further been argued that the implication of the applicant on the basis of confession of co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh, is hit by Section 25 of Evidence Act. Finally reliance on the judgement of of the Apex Court in the case of State of Haryana Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 has been made in support of the argument that even if all the allegations made in the FIR and supplementary charge-sheet are taken to be correct, no offence is made out against the appellants.”

9. Learned AGA has vehemently opposed the submissions made by learned counsel for the applicant alongwith opposite party no.2.

10. Learned counsel for opposite party no.2 has submitted that no permission is required for further investigation from the Metropolitan Magistrate by the police. He has submitted that the police has unfettered power of investigation and such investigation can continue even after the charge-sheet has been filed under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. and cognizance has been taken thereon by the Magistrate. Reliance has been place on the judgement of Apex Court in the case of Rama Chaudhary Vs. State of Bihar, (2009) 6 SCC 346 wherein it has been held that:

“Among other sub-sections, we are very much concerned about sub- section (8) which reads as under:-

“(8) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preclude further investigation in respect of an offence after a report under sub-section (2) has been forwarded to the Magistrate and, where upon such investigation, the officer in charge of the police station obtains further evidence, oral or documentary, he shall forward to the Magistrate a further report or reports regarding such evidence in the form prescribed; and the provisions of sub-sections (2) to (6) shall, as far as may be, apply in relation to such report or reports as they apply in relation to a report forwarded under sub-section (2).”

8) A mere reading of the above provision makes it clear that irrespective of report under sub-section (2) forwarded to the Magistrate, if the officer in-charge of the police station obtains further evidence, it is incumbent on his part to forward the same to the Magistrate with a further report with regard to such evidence in the form prescribed.

9) The above said provision also makes it clear that further investigation is permissible, however, reinvestigation is prohibited. The law does not mandate taking of prior permission from the Magistrate for further investigation. Carrying out a further investigation even after filing of the charge-sheet is a statutory right of the police. Reinvestigation without prior permission is prohibited. On the other hand, further investigation is permissible.

10) From a plain reading of sub-section (2) and sub-section (8) of Section 173, it is evident that even after submission of police report under sub-section (2) on completion of investigation, the police has a right to "further" investigation under sub-section (8) of Section 173 but not "fresh investigation" or "reinvestigation". The meaning of "Further" is additional; more; or supplemental. "Further" investigation, therefore, is the continuation of the earlier investigation and not a fresh investigation or reinvestigation to be started ab initio wiping out the earlier investigation altogether. Sub-section (8) of Section 173 clearly envisages that on completion of further investigation, the investigating agency has to forward to the Magistrate a "further" report and not fresh report regarding the "further" evidence obtained during such investigation.

11) As observed in Hasanbhai Valibhai Qureshi vs. State of Gujarat and Others, (2004) 5 SCC 347, the prime consideration for further investigation is to arrive at the truth and do real and substantial justice. The hands of investigating agency for further investigation should not be tied down on the ground of mere delay. In other words, the mere fact that there may be further delay in concluding the trial should not stand in the way of further investigation if that would help the court in arriving at the truth and do real and substantial as well as effective justice.

12) If we consider the above legal principles, the order dated 19.02.2008 of the trial Court summoning the witnesses named in the supplementary charge-sheet cannot be faulted with. It is true that after enquiry and investigation charges were framed on 11.03.2004 and thereafter in the course of trial about 21 witnesses were examined. In the meantime, Police submitted supplementary charge-sheet with certain new materials and on the basis of supplementary charge-sheet, the prosecution filed an application on 12.01.2008 in a pending Sessions Trial No. 63 of 2004 to the trial Court for summoning the persons named in the charge-sheet for their examination as prosecution witnesses. On a careful perusal of the application, the trial Court, by order dated 19.02.2008, allowed the same and has summoned those witnesses named in the supplementary charge-sheet.

13) The law does not mandate taking prior permission from the Magistrate for further investigation. It is settled law that carrying out further investigation even after filing of the charge-sheet is a statutory right of the Police. [vide K. Chandrasekhar vs. State of Kerala and Others, (1998) 5 SCC 223.] The material collected in further investigation cannot be rejected only because it has been filed at the stage of trial. The facts and circumstances show that the trial Court is fully justified to summon witnesses examined in the course of further investigation. It is also clear from Section 231 of the Cr.P.C. that the prosecution is entitled to produce any person as witness even though such person is not named in the earlier charge-sheet. All those relevant aspects have been taken note of by the learned Magistrate while summoning the witnesses based on supplementary charge-sheet. This was correctly appreciated by the High Court by rightly rejecting the revision. We fully agree with the said conclusion."

11. Finally reliance on the judgement in the case of Dharampal Vs. State of Haryana, (2016) 4 SCC 160 has been made by learned counsel for opposite party no.2 as follows"-

17. In this context, we may notice the statutory scheme pertaining to investigation. Section 173 Cr.P.C. empowers the Police Officer conducting investigation to file a report on completion of the investigation with the Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence. Section 173(8) Cr.P.C. empowers the office-in-charge to conduct further investigation even after filing of a report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. if he obtains further evidence, oral or documentary. Thus, the power of the Police Officer under Section 173(8) Cr.P.C. is unrestricted. Needless to say, the Magistrate has no power to interfere but it would be appropriate on the part of the investigating officer to inform the Court. It has been so stated in *Rama Chaudhary v. State of Bihar*⁴.

18. In *Vinay Tyagi v. Irshad Ali*⁵, wherein a two-Judge Bench, after referring to the decision in *Bhagwant Singh v. Commr. Of*⁴ (2009) 6 SCC 346 5 (2013) 5 SCC 762 Police⁶ has held thus:-

"However, having given our considered thought to the principles stated in these judgments, we are of the view that the Magistrate before whom a report under Section 173(2) of the Code is filed, is empowered in law to direct "further investigation" and require the police to submit a further or a supplementary report.

A three-Judge Bench of this Court in Bhagwant Singh has, in no uncertain terms, stated that principle, as aforenoticed."

19. In the said case, the question had arisen whether a Magistrate can direct for re-investigation. While dealing with the said issue, the Court has observed:-

"At this stage, we may also state another well-settled canon of the criminal jurisprudence that the superior courts have the jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code or even Article 226 of the Constitution of India to direct "further investigation", "fresh" or "de novo" and even "reinvestigation". "Fresh", "de novo" and "reinvestigation" are synonymous expressions and their result in law would be the same. The superior courts are even vested with the power of transferring investigation from one agency to another, provided the ends of justice so demand such action. Of course, it is also a settled principle that this power has to be exercised by the superior courts very sparingly and with great circumspection." [Emphasis supplied] And again:-

"Whether the Magistrate should direct "further investigation" or not is again a matter which will depend upon the facts of a given case. The learned Magistrate or the higher court of competent jurisdiction would direct "further investigation" or "reinvestigation" as the case may be (1985) 2 SCC 537 be, on the facts of a given case. Where the Magistrate can only direct further investigation, the courts of higher jurisdiction can direct further, reinvestigation or even investigation de novo depending on the facts of a given case. It will be the specific order of the court that would determine the nature of investigation."

12. After hearing rival contentions and going through the authorities cited at the bar, this Court finds that in the present case, the first question required to be decided is (I) whether the action of the Investigating Officer of proceeding with further investigation and filing supplementary charge-sheet after once submitting a charge-sheet against co-accused is permissible in law or not. The second question, which is required to be decided is (ii) whether a mere signatory to an agreement to sell can be held liable for the same offence as allegedly committed by the beneficiary of the agreement to sell, the co-accused in this case.

13. Proceeding with the first question, this Court finds that the Apex Court in the case of Vinay Tyagi (Supra) and Peethambaran (Supra) has held that leave of the Magistrate is required to conduct further investigation or to file supplementary report while the judgement of other set of judgements relied by counsel for opposite party no.2 in the cases of Rama Chaudhary (Supra), Hasanbhai Valibbhai Qureshi (Supra), Dharampal (Supra) provide otherwise. The second set of the judgements of the Apex Court mandates that Section 173(8) Cr.P.C. empowers the Investigating Officer to conduct further investigation even after filing of a report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. if he obtains further evidence, oral or documentary. No orders are required for further investigation by the Investigating Officer from the Magistrate.

14. This Court finds that the judgements of the Apex Court in the case of Vinay Tyagi (Supra) and Peethambaran (Supra) have not considered the law of the Apex in the case of Rama Chaudhary (Supra). The observation in the judgement of Dharampal (Supra) made by the Apex Court that it would be appropriate for the Investigating Officer to inform the court before proceeding with further investigation as stated in Rama Chaudhary (Supra) is not borne out from the record. The judgement of Vinubhai Haribhai Malviya and others (Supra) cited by learned counsel for the applicant is on a different issue as to whether the Magistrate has discretion to order further investigation even after submission of police report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. or not.

15. The power of the Magistrate is not in dispute in the present case to order further investigation. The dispute is whether the Investigating Officer can conduct further investigation without orders of Magistrate or not. A perusal of Section 173 (8) shows that it provides for further investigation by the Investigating Officer after submission of report. It nowhere provides for prior permission of Magistrate to do so. The Apex Court in the case of Rama Chaudhary (Supra) has relied on the same. In the judgement of Hasanbhai Valibbhai Qureshi (Supra) it has held that the power can be exercised by Investigating Officer to conduct further investigation without any order from the Magistrate. Even otherwise the Apex Court in the case of Vinay Tyagi (Supra) held that it has been a procedure of propriety that the police has to seek permission of the Court to continue 'further investigation' and file supplementary charge-sheet, which has been approved by Apex Court in a number of judgments. The judgements of both the sets cited at the bar are of Benches of equal strength.

16. In view of the above consideration, the first question raised by learned counsel for the applicant is answered in negative and held that there was no fault on the part of the Investigating Officer to conduct further investigation and file supplementary charge-sheet against the applicant.

17. Now adverting to the second question, this Court finds that a perusal of Section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, clearly proves that a contract for the sale of immoveable property is only a contract that sale of such property shall take place on terms settled between the parties. It does not, of itself, create any interest in or charge on such property. Therefore, it is clear that an agreement to sell does not creates any right or title in favour of intending buyer. It is only a document creating right to get another document of sale from seller on fulfilment of terms and conditions specified therein. On the strength of such an agreement, a buyer does not becomes the owner of the property. The ownership remains with the seller. It will be transferred to the buyer only on the execution of the sale deed by the seller. The buyer obtains only right to get sale deed executed in his favour.

18. Admittedly, the applicant is neither the seller nor the buyer of the property in dispute. Co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh, is the intended purchaser of the property and the applicant is only alleged to be the witness to the agreement to sell allegedly executed by mother of opposite party no.2 in favour of co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh. A witness of an agreement to sell only testifies to due execution of the document before him by the seller and buyer. This Court further finds that the attesting witness of an agreement to sell or any other document cannot be criminally prosecuted unless there is allegation of conspiracy under Section 120-B IPC. The witness is not necessarily required to know what is contained in the document. He stands witness to due execution of the document before him. In the present case, the applicant claims that only his name has been mentioned in block letters as attesting witness in the disputed agreement to sell. He has not signed the same. He had no interest in the property nor he is in possession over the same. It is the co-accused, who is in possession over the property in dispute and not the applicant. The applicant could have been held liable for the alleged offence only if it was found that he had some interest in the property in dispute and he attested the agreement to sell only to protect his interest. It is not the case here.

19. Hence it is clear that no criminal liability can be attributed to the applicant for allegedly attesting an unregistered agreement to sell allegedly executed by mother of opposite party no.2 in favour of co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh. The second question framed above is answered accordingly.

20. The Apex Court in the case of Bhajan Lal Vs. State of Haryana (Supra), has clearly laid down the para meters where the proceedings against an accused can be quashed and this case comes within the same.

21. This Court concludes that further investigation conducted against applicant is on the basis of statement of co-accused, Narendra Kumar Singh and submission of supplementary charge-sheet on its basis were in accordance with law, but no offence is made out against the applicant from the allegations of fact on record and the relevant law of execution of agreement to sell. Hence supplementary charge-sheet dated 28.8.2016 and summoning order dated 28.9.2016 are hereby quashed.

22. The application is allowed.

1. Heard Sri Gopal Swaroop Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Anurag Shukla, learned counsel for the appellant Nos.1 and 2, Smt. Manju Thakur, learned A.G.A. for the opposite party/ State and Sri Jitendra Shankar Pandey, learned counsel for the informant.

2. This appeal has been filed praying to set aside the judgment and order dated 09.02.1996 in Session Trial No.167 of 1993 passed by the Sessions Judge, Mathura convicting the accused Rekhpal for offences under Sections 302, 307/34 and 323/34 I.P.C., accused Vinod for offences under Sections 302/34, 307/34 and 323 I.P.C. and the accused persons Pramod and Manoj under Sections 302/34, 307/34 and 323/34 I.P.C. The accused Rekhpal had separately filed a Criminal Appeal No.575 of 1996 (Rekhpal vs. State of U.P.), which was abated by order dated 03.04.2019 on account of his death. Present criminal appeal has been filed by three accused persons namely Vinod son of Rekhpal, Pramod son of Ragghi @ Raghubir and Manoj son of Natthi. During pendency of the present appeal, the accused appellant No.3 Manoj died and as such by order dated 09.12.2019, the appeal was abated qua the accused appellant Manoj. Thus, the present appeal survives and is being pressed by learned counsel for the appellant only for the appellant Nos.1 and 2, namely Vinod son of Rekhpal and Pramod son of Ragghi @ Raghubir.

Facts:-

3. Briefly stated facts of the present case are that according to the prosecution, on 17.10.1992 at about 03:00 P.M. the injured eyewitness-PW-1 Bhikampal Singh son of Raj Pal Singh, the deceased Om Prakash, the injured eyewitnesses PW-2 Shespal Singh son of Sanwal Singh and the injured eyewitnesses PW-3 Munesh Pal @ Muniya son of Sanwal Singh were returning to their homes after working on their respective agricultural fields and when they reached on public way near the agricultural land of one Jimipal, then the accused Rekhpal with DBBL gun, his relative Manoj son of Natthi with country-made pistol, Pramod son of Raghubir @ Ragghi with country-made pistol and lathi and Vinod son of Rekhpal came on a red-colour bullet motorcycle which was being driven by the accused Vinod son of Rekhpal. Motorcycle was stopped near the aforesaid victims. Accused Vinod exhorted to take revenge and to beat. Pramod started beating Sanwaliya and when the victims ran to save Sanwaliya, then Vinod snatched country-made pistol from Pramod and fired at Munesh Pal @ Muniya. Subsequently Rekhpal fired with his DBBL gun at the back of Om Prakash. Consequently Om Prakash died on spot. Hearing the fire sound when people started coming on the spot, all the four accused persons fled away.

4. In support of the case, the prosecution examined three eye-witnesses, namely Bhikampal Singh PW-1, Shespal Singh PW-2 and Munesh Pal @ Muniya PW-3. Formal witnesses, i.e. PW-4 Dr. D.S. Verma who medically examined the injuries of Munesh Pal son of Sanwal Singh, PW-5 Investigating Officer Amarjit Singh, S.H.O. Narhauli, Mathura, PW-6 Head Constable Ramesh Chandra who entered the First Information Report, P.W.-7 Second Investigating Officer Sri Umesh Kumar Singh, S.H.O. P.S. Kagarol Agra and P.W.-8 Dr. R.C. Sharma who conducted postmortem on the body of Om Prakash (deceased), were examined by the prosecution. Thus, the prosecution examined three eyewitnesses and five formal witnesses. Statements of accused persons under Section 313, Cr.P.C. were recorded. From the defence side, three witnesses i.e. DW-1 Dr. R.B. Sharma who examined injuries of the accused persons Rekhpal Singh and Vinod, DW-2 Matindra Bhardwaj, surgeon who examined injuries of Shakuntala wife of Rekhpal Singh and DW-3 Ladan Singh, were examined. Learned Trial Court heard the matter and convicted all the four accused persons, namely Rekhpal Singh, Vinod, Pramod and Manoj awarding punishment as mentioned in the impugned judgment and order dated 09.02.1996. Aggrieved, the appellants herein have filed the present appeal.

Submissions:-

5. Learned counsel for the appellants submits as under:-

(i) There is complete absence of motive. The real incident was that as stated by the accused Rekhpal Singh in his statement dated 24.02.2005 under Section 313 Cr.P.C. PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 are not eyewitnesses. No injury was received from country-made pistol by PW-1, PW-2 or PW-3. The evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 are inconsistent.

(ii) The prosecution has completely failed to prove common intention for commission of the alleged offence under Sections 302/307/34 I.P.C. In the absence of common intention, the accused appellant Nos.1 and 2 cannot be convicted under Section 302 or 307 I.P.C.

(iii) The entire case of the prosecution is based on falsehood and the appellants have been falsely implicated. The evidence of PW-1, 2 and 3 does not prove common intention.

(iv) The prosecution has completely failed to explain injuries received by the accused Rekhpal Singh, Vinod and one Shakuntala, wife of Rekhpal Singh, which is fatal to the prosecution case.

(v) No case under Section 307 I.P.C. has been made out.

6. Learned A.G.A. supports the impugned judgment and order passed by the Trial Court.

7. Learned counsel for the informant submits that the motive for the offence committed by the accused was that the PW-2 purchased a land about a year before the date of incident, which the accused persons were willing to purchase and Rekhpal objected to the mutation proceedings with respect to that land. He further submits that the prosecution has established his case beyond reasonable doubt and as such, the impugned judgment and order requires no interference.

Discussion and Findings:-

8. We have carefully considered the submissions of the learned counsels for the parties and perused the record of the appeal.

9. The eyewitness PW-1 Bhikampal Singh and the deceased Om Prakash are stated to be real brothers. The eyewitnesses PW-2 Shespal Singh son of Sanwal Singh is the cousin of the PW-3. Munesh Pal @ Muniya son of Sanwaliya and is stated to be an injured eyewitness. As per first information report, the first injury was caused to Sanwaliya, who has not been examined by the prosecution. Thus, according to the prosecution in the incident in question, Om Prakash died and Munesh Pal @ Muniya and Sanwal Singh (Sanwaliya) were injured, who were examined in Civil Dispensary Baldeo on 17.10.1992 by the PW-4 Dr. D.S. Verma and the injuries found were as under:

Injuries of Muneshpal @ Muniya:-

2. Abraded contusion 1-1/4"x-1/4" over left forearm outer middle part.

3. Abrasion 1-1/2"x-1/2" over right arm lower outer part.

Injuries of Sanwaliya:-

Contusion 1 1/2'' x 1/2'' over left leg front middle part.

10. The accused persons Rekhpal Singh, Vinod and Manoj were arrested on the day of incident i.e. on 17.10.1992 at about 06:30 P.M. by the Investigating Officer SI Amarjit Singh without any resistance from the accused persons and one licensed DBBL gun from Rekhpal

Singh and one twelve bore country-made pistol allegedly from the accused Vinod and certain cartridges were recovered from them. One wooden stick (danda) in length about four balista, four angul was recovered from the accused Manoj. Bullet motorcycle bearing registration No.UHL 5211 was also recovered from them on the same day about 06:30 P.M. The accused persons were brought to police station. In his evidence in cross-examination, the PW-6 has clearly admitted that the injuries of the accused Rekhpal Singh were entered in the GD in presence of the Investigating Officer and Daroga at the police station. He stated that injuries of Rekhpal Singh were simple and as such he was not sent for medical examination, although the accused persons Rekhpal Singh and Vinod were medically examined at the District Hospital, Mathura by DW-1 Dr. R.B. Sharma, Medical Officer and the wife of the accused Rekhpal Singh, i.e. Smt. Shakuntala was examined on 22.10.1992 at the District Hospital, Mathura by DW-2 Dr. Matindra Bhardwaj, Surgeon. As per medical examination report, the injuries of the accused persons Rekhpal Singh, Vinod and Shakuntala were as under:-

Injuries of the accused Rekhpal:-

1. Scabbed abrasion 2cm x1.5cm on outer aspect of left forearm 4 cm above wrist joint. The scab is firm.

2. Scabbed abrasion 2, cmx1.5cm on front of left leg. in lower 2/3.

3. Lacerated wound-1 cm x0. 3cm x skin deep on front of right leg surrounded by abrasion in the size of 4 cm x 2 cm in lower 2/3 of front of right leg.

4. Abrasion 1 cm x 1cm on medial aspect of right leg 3 cm above the ankle joint.

Injuries of the accused Vinod:-

1. Abrasion in the area of 2cm x 1-5cm on front of right shoulder. The seat is firm and dried up.

2. Linear abrasion 1.5cm long on medial aspect of right elbow joint.

3. Laceration with firm no dried up seat 1.5cm x 1 cm left side back 3 cm above and liberally from iliac crest.

4. Abrasion 1.5 cm x 1/2cm on front of right knee joint region.

Injuries of Shakuntala:-

1. A traumatic swelling at the distal part of left forearm on ulna aspect size 3cm x 2.5cm. Colour is deep brown.

2. A traumatic swelling at the lateral aspect of left elbow joint 4cm x 3cm. Colour is deep brown.

3. An abraded contusion with scab formation in the back of lower part of left chest size 6cm x 2.5cm. Colour is deep brown.

4. An abraded contusion with scap formation on the back of lower part of right chest size 4cm x 2cm Colour is deep brown.

11. The DW-1 and DW-2, both have proved the injuries of the aforesaid three accused persons and opined the injuries to be simple.

12. The injuries of PW-3 Munesh Pal @ Muniya and one Sanwaliya were proved by PW-4 Dr. D.S. Verma who opined that injury Nos.2 and 3 of Munesh Pal @ Muniya are simple caused by friction or by blunt weapon and the injury No.1 needs observation. In his evidence, he further stated that the injury Nos.1 and 2 of Munesh Pal @ Muniya are possible by lathi. He stated that injury No.3 may be caused by rubbing of a bullet but in his cross-examination, he admitted that this injury cannot be caused by pellets and this injury may be self made. With regard to the injuries of Sanwal Singh, he stated that the injury is simple caused by blunt object. Thus, the case of the prosecution that the accused Vinod fired at Munesh Pal @ Muniya from country-made pistol of twelve bore is not corroborated with medical report. Any injury caused by a twelve bore country-made pistol was neither found on the body of Munesh Pal @ Muniya nor it could be proved. Thus, the use of country-made pistol by the accused Vinod to cause injury to Munesh Pal @ Muniya son of Sanwaliya could not be proved by the prosecution.

13. The postmortem on the body of the deceased Om Prakash was conducted by PW-8 Dr. R.C. Sharma on 18.10.1992 at 12'O clock and following ante-mortem injuries were found by the doctor on the body of the deceased Om Prakash:

1. Multiple fire arm wounds in an area of 5.5 cm x 7cm (five half x seven) of entry (size varying 1.5cm x 1cm to 3.5cm x 2 cm on the back of chest (scapular wall just in front of scapular region below shoulder on top and 10 cm lateral (left) from midline and back, bone (total number of wounds five including the five one noted above.

Metallic pellets five in number were also recovered from the back of chest wall on right side of scapular region upper part of chest.

It was opined by the doctor that death might have taken place about one day before and he found pasty food in the intestines. It has also been opined by the doctor that the death of the deceased had taken place on account of shock and haemorrhage on account of ante mortem injuries.

14. The postmortem report was proved by PW-8 who in his cross-examination, has also opined that weapon would have been fired from a distance of more than twelve feet. He also stated that five large pellets (exhibits 23 to 27) were found from the body of the deceased. He also stated that there was no blackening and the weapon would have been fired from the backside of the deceased.

15. In his evidence in cross-examination, the PW-5 has stated that in the site plan, he has not shown the place from where gun was fired and whether the blood was found on the earth. He also stated that he has not mentioned in the site plan regarding blood found on the earth. He stated that he has not sent the gun and cartridges to ballistic expert for examination. The DW-3 Head Constable Ladan Singh, Sadar Malkhana, Mathura has stated that there is no entry in the malkhana register for sending the recovered gun to ballistic expert for examination. No ballistic expert report with regard to the gun and cartridges recovered were filed by the prosecution during trial.

Section 34: Common Intention:-

16. Section 34 of the I.P.C. reads as under:

“34. Acts done by several persons in furtherance of common intention.—When a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone.”

17. In the case of Malkhan Singh vs. State (1975) 3 SCC 311 (Para-7), Hon'ble Supreme Court held that no vicarious liability under Section 34 of the I.P.C. can be fastened on accused for the shot fired by another accused to kill the deceased in the absence of furtherance of common intention shared between the accused inasmuch as intention to fire was not shared.

18. In the case of Parasa Raja Manikyala Rao And Anr vs State Of A.P. (2003) 12 SCC 306 (Paras 11 & 12), Hon'ble Supreme Court explained the meaning of “common intention” with reference to Section 34 I.P.C. and held as under:-

“11.The Section really means that if two or more persons intentionally do a common thing jointly, it is just the same as if each of them had done it individually. It is a well recognized canon of criminal jurisprudence that the Courts cannot distinguish between co- conspirators, nor can they inquire, even if it were possible as to the part taken by each in the crime. Where parties go with a common purpose to execute a common object each and every person becomes responsible for the act of each and every other in execution and furtherance of their common purpose; as the purpose is common, so must be the responsibility. All are guilty of the principal offence, not of abetment only. The participation need not in all cases be by physical presence. In offences involving physical violence, normally presence at the scene of offence may be necessary, but such is not the case in respect of other offences when the offence consists of diverse acts which may be done at different times and places. The physical presence at the scene of offence of the offender sought to be rendered liable under this Section is not one of the conditions of its applicability in every case. Before a man can be held liable for acts done by another, under the provisions of this Section, it must be established that (i) there was common intention in the sense of a pre-arranged plan between the two, and (ii) the person sought to be so held liable had participated in some manner in the act constituting the offence. Unless common intention and participation are both present, this Section cannot apply.

12. "Common intention" implies pre-arranged plan and acting in concert pursuant to the pre-arranged plan. Under this Section a pre-concert in the sense of a distinct previous plan is not necessary to be proved. The common intention to bring about a particular result may well develop on the spot as between a number of persons, with reference to the facts of the case and circumstances of the situation. Though common intention may develop on the spot, it must, however, be anterior in point of time to the commission of offence showing a pre-arranged plan and prior concert. (See Krishna Govind Patil v. State of Maharashtra (AIR 1963 SC 1413). In Amrit Singh and Ors. v. State of Punjab (1972) CrL.J. 465 (SC) it has been held that common intention pre-supposes prior concert. Care must be taken not to confuse same or similar intention with common intention; the partition which divides their bonds is often very thin, nevertheless the distinction is real and substantial, and if overlooked will result in miscarriage of justice. To constitute common intention, it is necessary that intention of each one of them be known to the rest of them and shared by them. Undoubtedly, it is a difficult thing to prove even the intention of an individual and, therefore, it is all the more difficult to show the common intention of a group of persons. But however difficult may be the task, the prosecution must lead evidence of facts, circumstances and conduct of the accused from which their common intention can be safely gathered. In Maqsoodan and Ors. v. State of U.P. (AIR 1983 SC 126) it was observed that prosecution must lead evidence from which the common intention of the accused can be safely gathered. In most cases it has to be inferred from the act, conduct or other relevant circumstances of the case in hand. The totality of the circumstances must be taken into consideration in arriving at a conclusion whether the accused had a common intention to commit offence for which they can be convicted. The facts and circumstances of cases vary and each case has to be decided keeping in view of the facts involved. Whether an act is in furtherance of the common intention is an incident of fact and not of law. In Bhaba Nanda sarma and Ors. v. The State of Assam (AIR 1977 SC 2252) it was observed that prosecution must prove facts to justify an inference that all participants of the acts had shared a common intention to commit the criminal act which was finally committed by one or more of the participants. Mere presence of a person at the time of commission of an offence by his confederates is not, in itself sufficient to bring his case within the purview of Section 34, unless community of designs is proved against him (See Malkhan and Anr. v. State of Uttar Pradesh (AIR 1975 SC 12). In the Oxford English Dictionary, the word "furtherance" is defined as 'action of helping forward'. Adopting this definition, Russel says that "it indicates some kind of aid or assistance producing an effect in future" and adds that any act may be regarded as done in furtherance of the ultimate felony if it is a step intentionally taken, for the purpose of "effecting that felony. (Russel on Crime 12th Edn. Vol.I pp.487 and 488). In Shankarlal Kacharabhai and Ors. v. The State of Gujarat (AIR 1965

SC 1260) this Court has interpreted the word "furtherance" as 'advancement of promotion'."

19. In the case of Suresh v State of U.P., (2001) 3 SCC 673, Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"24. Hence an act, whether overt or covert, is indispensable to be done by a co-accused to be fastened with the liability under the section. But if no such act is done by a person, even if he has common intention with the others for the accomplishment of the crime, Section 34IPC cannot be invoked for convicting that person. In other words, the accused who only keeps the common intention in his mind, but does not do any act at the scene, cannot be convicted with the aid of Section 34IPC.

40. The word "act" used in Section 34 denotes a series of acts as a single act. What is required under law is that the accused persons sharing the common intention must be physically present at the scene of occurrence and be shown not to have dissuaded themselves from the intended criminal act for which they shared the common intention. Culpability under Section 34 cannot be excluded by mere distance from the scene of occurrence. The presumption of constructive intention, however, has to be arrived at only when the court can, with judicial servitude, hold that the accused must have preconceived the result that ensued in furtherance of the common intention. 20. In the case of Lallan Rai v. State of Bihar, [(2003) 1 SCC 268], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"22. The above discussion in fine thus culminates to the effect that the requirement of statute is sharing the common intention upon being present at the place of occurrence. Mere distancing himself from the scene cannot absolve the accused — though the same however depends upon the fact situation of the matter under consideration and no rule steadfast can be laid down therefor."

21. In the case of Chhota Ahirwar v. State of M.P., [(2020) 4 SCC 126], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"24. The essence of liability under Section 34 is simultaneous consensus of the minds of persons participating in the criminal act to bring about a particular result, which consensus can even be developed at the spot as held in Lallan Rai v. State of Bihar, (2003) 1 SCC 268. There must be a common intention to commit the particular offence. To constitute common intention, it is absolutely necessary that the intention of each one of the accused should be known to the rest of the accused."

22. In the case of Barendra Kumar Ghosh v. King Emperor (AIR 1925 PC 1), it was held, as under:

"..... the words of S. 34 are not to be eviscerated by reading them in this exceedingly limited sense. By S. 33 a criminal act in S. 34 includes a series of acts and, further, "act" includes omissions to act, for example, an omission to interfere in order to prevent a murder being done before one's very eyes. By S. 37, when any offence is committed by means of several acts whoever intentionally co-operates in the commission of that offence by doing any one of those acts, either singly or jointly with any other person, commits that offence. Even if the appellant did nothing as he stood outside the door, it is to be remembered that in crimes as in other things "they also serve who only stand and wait". By S. 38, when several persons are engaged or concerned in the commission of a criminal act, they may be guilty of different offences by means of that act. Read together, these sections are reasonably plain. S. 34 deals with the doing of separate acts, similar or diverse, by several persons; if all are done in furtherance of a common intention, each person is liable for the result of them all, as if he had done them himself, for "that act" and "the act" in the latter part of the section must include the whole action covered by 'a criminal act' in the first part, because they refer to it. S. 37 provides that, when several acts are done so as to result together in the commission of an offence, the doing of any one of them, with an intention to co-operate in the offence (which may not be the same as an intention common to all), makes the actor liable to be punished for the commission of the offence. S. 38 provides for different punishments for different offences as an alternative to one punishment for one offence, whether the persons engaged or concerned in the commission of a criminal act are set in motion by the one intention or by the other."

23. In the case of Mahbub Shah v. Emperor(AIR 1945 PC 118), it was held, as under:

"..... To invoke the aid of S. 34 successfully, it must be shown that the criminal act complained against was done by one of the accused persons in the furtherance of the common intention of all; if this is shown, then liability for the crime may be imposed on any one of the persons in the same manner as if the act were done by him alone."

24. In the case of Rambilas Singh & Ors. v. State of Bihar[(1989) 3 SCC 605], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"7...It is true that in order to convict persons vicariously under section 34 of section 149 IPC, it is not necessary to prove that each and every one of them had indulged in overt acts. Even so, there must be material to show that the overt act or acts of one or more of the accused was or were done in furtherance of the common intention of all the accused or in prosecution of the common object of the members of the unlawful assembly..."

25. In the case of Krishnan & Another v. State of Kerala[(1996) 10 SCC 508], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"15. Question is whether it is obligatory on the part of the prosecution to establish commission of overt act to press into service section 34 of the Penal Code. It is no doubt true that court likes to know about overt act to decide whether the concerned person had shared the common intention in question. Question is whether overt act has always to be established? I am of the view that establishment of an overt act is not a requirement of law to allow section 34 to operate inasmuch this section gets attracted when "a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of common intention of all". What has to be, therefore, established by the prosecution is that all the concerned persons had shared the common intention. Court's mind regarding the sharing of common intention gets satisfied when overt act is established qua each of the accused. But then, there may be a case where the proved facts would themselves speak of sharing of common intention: res ipsa loquitur."

26. In the case of Surendra Chauhan v. State of M.P. [(2000) 4 SCC 110], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"11. Under Section 34 a person must be physically present at the actual commission of the crime for the purpose of facilitating or promoting the offence, the commission of which is the aim of the joint criminal venture...."

27. In the case of Gopi Nath @ Jhallar v. State of U.P. [(2001) 6 SCC 620], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"8. The common intention or the intention of the individual concerned in furtherance of the common intention could be proved either from direct evidence or by inference from the acts or attending circumstances of the case and conduct of the parties. The ultimate decision, at any rate, would invariably depend upon the inferences deducible from the circumstances of each case."

28. In the case of Ramesh Singh @ Photti v. State of A.P. [(2004) 11 SCC 305], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"12. ...As a general principle in a case of criminal liability it is the primary responsibility of the person who actually commits the offence and only that person who has committed the crime can be held guilty. By introducing Section 34 in the Penal Code the legislature laid down the principle of joint liability in doing a criminal act. The essence of that liability is to be found in the existence of a common intention connecting the accused leading to the doing of a criminal act in furtherance of such intention. Thus, if the act is the result of a common intention, then every person who did the criminal act with that common intention would be responsible for the offence committed irrespective of the share which he had in its perpetration....."

29. In the case of Nand Kishore V. State Of Madhya Pradesh [(2011) 12 SCC 120], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"20. A bare reading of this section shows that the section could be dissected as follows:

(a) Criminal act is done by several persons;

(b) Such act is done in furtherance of the common intention of all; and

(c) Each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone.

In other words, these three ingredients would guide the court in determining whether an accused is liable to be convicted with the aid of Section 34. While first two are the acts which are attributable and have to be proved as actions of the accused, the third is the consequence. Once the criminal act and common intention are proved, then by fiction of law, criminal liability of having done that act by each person individually would arise. The criminal act, according to Section 34 IPC must be done by several persons. The emphasis in this part of the section is on the word "done". It only flows from this that before a person can be convicted by following the provisions of Section 34, that person must have done something along with other persons. Some individual participation in the commission of the criminal act would be the requirement. Every individual member of the entire group charged with the aid of Section 34 must, therefore, be a participant in the joint act which is the result of their combined activity.

21. Under Section 34, every individual offender is associated with the criminal act which constitutes the offence both physically as well as mentally i.e. he is a participant not only in what has been described as a common act but also what is termed as the common intention and, therefore, in both these respects his individual role is put into serious jeopardy although this individual role might be a part of a common scheme in which others have also joined him and played a role that is similar or different. But referring to the common intention, it needs to be clarified that the courts must keep in mind the fine distinction between "common intention" on the one hand and "mens rea" as understood in criminal jurisprudence on the other. Common intention is not alike or identical to mens rea. The latter may be coincidental with or collateral to the former but they are distinct and different.

22. Section 34 also deals with constructive criminal liability.

23. Another aspect which the court has to keep in mind while dealing with such cases is that the common intention or state of mind and the physical act, both may be arrived at the spot and essentially may not be the result of any predetermined plan to commit such an offence. This will always depend on the facts and circumstances of the case..."

30. In the case of Shyamal Ghosh V. State of West Bengal [(2012) 7 SCC 646], Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"87. Section 34 IPC applies where two or more accused are present and two factors must be established i.e. common intention and participation of the accused in the crime. The phrase "common intention" means a pre-oriented plan and acting in pursuance to the plan, thus, common intention must exist prior to the commission of the act in a point of time. The common intention to give effect to a particular act may even develop on the spur of moment between a number of persons with reference to the facts of a given case."

31. In Jasdeep Singh @ Jassu vs The State Of Punjab (2022) 2 SCC 545 (paras 19 to 27), Hon'ble Supreme Court considered its various earlier judgments relating to Section 34 I.P.C. and held as under:

"19. Before we deal further with Section 34 IPC, a peep at Section 33 IPC may give a better understanding. Section 33 IPC brings into its fold a series of acts as that of a single one. Therefore, in order to attract Section 34 to 39 IPC, a series of acts done by several persons would be related to a single act which constitutes a criminal offense. A similar meaning is also given to the word 'omission', meaning thereby, a series of omissions would also mean a single omission. This provision would thus make it clear that an act would mean and include other acts along with it.

20. Section 34IPC creates a deeming fiction by infusing and importing a criminal act constituting an offence committed by one, into others, in pursuance to a common intention. Onus is on the prosecution to prove the common intention to the satisfaction of the court. The quality of evidence will have to be substantial, concrete, definite and clear. When a part of evidence produced by the prosecution to bring the accused within the fold of Section 34IPC is disbelieved, the remaining part will have to be examined with adequate care and caution, as we are dealing with a case of vicarious liability fastened on the accused by treating him at par with the one who actually committed the offence.

21. What is required is the proof of common intention. Thus, there may be an offence without common intention, in which case Section 34IPC does not get attracted.

24. Normally, in an offence committed physically, the presence of an accused charged under Section 34IPC is required, especially in a case where the act attributed to the accused is one of instigation/exhortation. However, there are exceptions, in particular, when an offence consists of diverse acts done at different times and places. Therefore, it has to be seen on a case to case basis.

25. The word “furtherance” indicates the existence of aid or assistance in producing an effect in future. Thus, it has to be construed as an advancement or promotion.

26. There may be cases where all acts, in general, would not come under the purview of Section 34IPC, but only those done in furtherance of the common intention having adequate connectivity. When we speak of intention it has to be one of criminality with adequacy of knowledge of any existing fact necessary for the proposed offense. Such an intention is meant to assist, encourage, promote and facilitate the commission of a crime with the requisite knowledge as aforesaid.

27. The existence of common intention is obviously the duty of the prosecution to prove. However, a court has to analyse and assess the evidence before implicating a person under Section 34IPC. A mere common intention per se may not attract Section 34IPC, sans an action in furtherance. There may also be cases where a person despite being an active participant in forming a common intention to commit a crime, may actually withdraw from it later. Of course, this is also one of the facts for the consideration of the court. Further, the fact that all accused charged with an offence read with Section 34IPC are present at the commission of the crime, without dissuading themselves or others might well be a relevant circumstance, provided a prior common intention is duly proved. Once again, this is an aspect which is required to be looked into by the court on the evidence placed before it. It may not be required on the part of the defence to specifically raise such a plea in a case where adequate evidence is available before the court.”

32. In Gulab vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2022) 12 SCC 677 (Paras 20, 23, 27.1, 27.2, 27.3, 27.4 and 28), Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

“23. The present case is not one where despite the recovery of a firearm, or of the cartridge, the prosecution had failed to produce a report of the ballistic expert. Therefore, the failure to produce a report by a ballistic expert who can testify to the fatal injuries being caused by a particular weapon is not sufficient to impeach the credible evidence of the direct eyewitnesses.

27. Emphasizing the fundamental principles underlying Section 34, this Court held that:

27.1 Section 34 does not create a distinct offence, but is a principle of constructive liability;

27.2 In order to incur a joint liability for an offence there must be a pre-arranged and pre-mediated concert between the accused persons for doing the act actually done;

27.3 There may not be a long interval between the act and the pre-meditation and the plan may be formed suddenly. In order for Section 34 to apply, it is not necessary that the prosecution must prove an act was done by a particular person; and

27.4 The provision is intended to cover cases where a number of persons act together and on the facts of the case, it is not possible for the prosecution to prove who actually committed the crime."

(Emphasis supplied)

33. In Nagaraja vs State Of Karnataka, (2008) 17 SCC 277 (Paras 18 and 19), Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"18. For invoking the provisions of Section 34 of the IPC, at least two factors must be established; (1) common intention, and (2) participation of the accused in the commission of an offence. For the aforementioned purpose although no overt act is required to be attributed to the individual accused but then before a person is convicted by applying the doctrine of vicarious liability not only his participation in the crime must be proved but presence of common intention must be established. It is true that for proving formation of common intention, direct evidence may not be available but then there cannot be any doubt whatsoever that to attract the said provision, prosecution is under a bounden duty to prove that participants had shared a common intention. It is also well settled that only the presence of the accused by itself would not attract the provisions of Section 34 of the I.P.C. Other factors should also be taken into consideration for arriving at the said conclusion. Accused persons were not related to each other; they did not have any family connection; they have different vocations. It has not been established that they held any common animosity towards the deceased.

19. A general and vague statement made by one of the prosecution witnesses would not prove motive. It may be true that the common intention may develop suddenly at the spot but for the said purpose, the genesis of the occurrence should have been proved. The prosecution has failed to establish why and how a quarrel has started. The prosecution even has not proved as to why the accused No. 1 was carrying the iron rod even before the quarrel with the deceased started or as to whether the appellant was aware of this. It has also not been shown that he along with other accused persons came to assault the deceased. Appellant ordinarily was expected to be at his work place only. His presence at the spot, therefore, has sufficiently been explained."

34. Thus, Section 34 I.P.C. does not create a distinct offence, but is a principle of constructive liability. In order to incur a joint liability for an offence there must be a pre-arranged and pre-mediated concert between the accused persons for doing the act actually done. For the applicability of Section 34 I.P.C., it is not that the prosecution must prove that an act was done by a particular person inasmuch as the provision is intended to cover cases where a number of persons act together and on the facts of the case. Thus, when a criminal act is done by several persons in furtherance of the common intention of all, each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone. The word “furtherance” indicates the existence of aid or assistance in producing an effect in future. Thus, it has to be construed as an advancement or promotion. The words “common intention” implies pre-arranged plan and acting in concert pursuant to the pre-arranged plan. The common intention to bring about a particular result may well develop on the spot as between a number of persons, with reference to the facts of the case and circumstances of the situation. Though common intention may develop on the spot, it must, however, be anterior in point of time to the commission of offence showing a pre-arranged plan and prior concert. To constitute common intention, it is necessary that intention of each one of them be known to the rest of them and shared by them. Common intention has to be inferred from the act, conduct or other relevant circumstances of the case in hand. The totality of the circumstances must be taken into consideration in arriving at a conclusion whether the accused persons had a common intention to commit offence for which they can be convicted. Therefore, to attract the provisions of Section 34 I.P.C., it must be shown that (a) criminal act is done by several persons; (b) such act is done in furtherance of the common intention of all; and (c) each of such persons is liable for that act in the same manner as if it were done by him alone. While first two acts are attributable and have to be proved as actions of the accused, the third is the consequence. Once the criminal act and common intention are proved, then by fiction of law, criminal liability of having done that act by each person individually would arise. But it must be kept in mind the fine distinction between “common intention” on the one hand and “mens rea” as understood in criminal jurisprudence on the other. Common intention is not alike or identical to mens rea. Mens rea may be coincidental with or collateral to the “common intention” but they are distinct and different. The common intention or state of mind and the physical act, both may be arrived at the spot and essentially may not be the result of any predetermined plan to commit such an offence but this will always depend on the facts and circumstances of the case. Such an intention is meant to assist, encourage, promote and facilitate the commission of a crime with the requisite knowledge as aforesaid. A mere common intention per se may not attract Section 34 IPC, sans an action in furtherance. There may also be cases where a person despite being an active participant in forming a common intention to commit a crime, may actually withdraw from it later. The duty is of the prosecution to prove existence of common intention. It is for the court to determine it on the basis of the evidence placed before it. This is the effect of Section 34 I.P.C. that if two or more persons intentionally do a common thing jointly, it is just the same as if each of them had done it individually. Presence of common intention or the sharing of common intention is the prerequisite to invoke Section 34 I.P.C. If in a given case, common intention to fire was not shared, then no vicarious liability under Section 34 I.P.C. can be fastened on an accused for shot fired by another accused to kill the deceased in the absence of furtherance of common intention shared between the accused when the common intention to fire was not shared.

35. It is the case of the prosecution that the PW-1 Bhikampal Singh is the cousin of PW-2 Sheshpal Singh and P.W.-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya. All the three have their separate agricultural land as evident from the evidence of PW-2 Sheshpal Singh who stated in his cross-examination that he, his brothers and the deceased Om Prakash have cut millet from their respective agricultural land and he and his father have cut one bigha millet whereas Om Prakash and Bhikampal Singh have cut millet three fourth of a bigha. The PW-2 in his cross-examination has stated that:

“..... मेरी मुलजिमान से खेत की रंजिश है। और कोई रंजिश नहीं है। उस जमीन का दाखिल खारिज का मुकदमा लक्ष्मी से चला था जिसे मुलजिमान ने चलवाया था। उससे मुलजिमान ने अपने नाम से कोई एतराज नहीं दाखिल नहीं किया था। लेकिन लक्ष्मी की पैरवी करते थे। मैंने दरोगा जी को बताया था कि मुलजिमान वही खेत खरीदना चाहते थे जो मैंने खरीदा है। खेत का झगड़ा कत्ल से 3-4 महीने पहले का था। पुरानी इनसे कोई रंजिश नहीं है।

..... मैंने और मेरे भाईयों ने बाजरा काटा था। ओम प्रकाश ने भी बाजरा काटा था। उसने अपने खेत में काटा था और मैंने अपने खेत में काटा था।

मुलजिमानों को मय हथियार के एक खेत की दूरी पर आते देख लिया। मुलजिमान ने 5-6, 7-8 कदम की दूरी से मोटर साईकिल रूकी, उतर कर कहा कि मारो सालो को। ओमप्रकाश, मुनेश और सोवलिया साथ-साथ थे और उससे 2-4 कदम की दूरी पर हम लोग थे। फिर उन्होंने तुरन्त मारना शुरू कर दिया इसलिये भागने का मौका ही नहीं था। सबसे पहले मेरे पिता को लाठियों से मारा था। पास आकर मेरे पिता को लाठी से मारा। उस समय बाकी मुलजिमान मेरे पिता के पास ही थे। मुनेश को लाठी और तमन्चा दोनों से मारा था। मुनेश को एक ने लाठी मारी और दूसरे ने तमन्चा आगे पीछे मारा। जैसे ही लाठी मारी, तुरन्त ही फायर हो गया। हम लोग आगे बचाने के लिये बड़े भागे नहीं। जिस समय लाठी से मुनेश और सामलिया को मार रहे थे उस समय रेखपाल 6-7 कदम की दूरी पर था। वहीं से उसने फायर कर दिया। मुझे किसी ने नहीं मारा

और न किसी ने मारने के लिये कहा। विनोद ने यह कहा था कि बदला ले लो। उसका मतलब था कि खेत को हम कटने नहीं देंगे। मैंने पिछली तारीख को अदालत को ब्यान दिया था कि मोटर साईकिल हम लोगों के पास आकर रूकी तो विनोद बोला आज बदला ले लो। इस पर प्रमोद ने मोटर साईकिल से उतर कर सोवल सिंह को मारना शुरू कर दिया। बदला लेने वाली बात विनोद ने मोटर साईकिल से उतरते हुए कही थी। मुनेश को पहले लाठी लगी फिर तमन्चा मारा। मुनेश को केवल एक लाठी मारी थी। लाठी मारने वाले मुनेश के पास से हटा नहीं था। मुनेश पर 2-4 कदम से फायर किया था। उस समय हम लोग मुनेश के पास ही थे चीख पुकार कर रहे थे। मुनेश पर दो फायर हुआ थे। एक मनोज ने एक विनोद ने किया था। मुनेश को एक फायर सिर में लगा था और एक हाथ में लगा था। किसी ने भी रेखी व उसकी पत्नी को नहीं मारा था। मैंने उनके शरीर पर चोट नहीं देखी। मुझे मालूम पड़ा था कि रेखी उसी दिन गिरफ्तार हो गया। यह नहीं मालूम कि वह थाने रिपोर्ट करने गया था तभी गिरफ्तार हुआ था। मौके पर कोई छर्चा, टिकली या कारतूस नहीं मिला था। दरोगा जी ने केवल एक जगह से खून वाली मिट्टी ली थी।”

36. Thus, as per own case of the prosecution, strained relationship was on account of some agricultural land purchased by the PW-2. The reason for strained relationship has been alleged to be that the accused wished to purchase the said land but it was purchased by the PW-2. Thus the alleged cause of strained relationship could be only against PW-2 Sheshpal but the PW-2 has himself stated in his cross examination that neither anyone exhorted to beat him nor anyone has beaten him. He also stated that the accused Vinod has spoken to take revenge. He further stated in his cross examination that by the word “revenge” he mean that he (Vinod) will not allow the crop to cut. This statement indicates that there arose some dispute between two groups on the issue of cutting of some crop. Thus, the very genesis of the motive assigned by the prosecution against the accused for commission of the offence in question, itself appears to be doubtful. There is nothing on record to show that apart from the aforesaid allegation of strained relationship, there is any other cause for strained relationship. The PW-1 in his cross-examination has stated that the PW-2 was present on the spot when the incident occurred and the accused Rekhpal Singh has not fired at the PW-2 Sheshpal and none beaten Sheshpal. He alleged that the accused Vinod exhorted to beat. In his cross-examination, he stated that “उस दिन या उससे पहले हमारा मुलजिमान से कोई झगड़ा नहीं हुआ था” PW-3 Munesh Pal @ Muniya has also assigned the role of exhortation to the accused Vinod who exhorted only to beat to take revenge.

37. Thus, the evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 is that the accused Vinod exhorted to beat. The PW-1 has admitted that on the date of occurrence of the incident or prior to that, he was having no enmity with the accused. The PW-2 has stated the cause of strained relationship between him and the accused that he purchased an agricultural land which the accused wanted to purchase, but no evidence in this regard were led or particulars were disclosed except making allegations. The PW-2 in his cross-examination himself admitted that none has beaten him nor anyone exhorted to beat him. He further explained in his statement that Vinod exhorted to take revenge, which he meant that millet crop shall not be allowed to cut (खेत को हम कटने नहीं देंगे). Thus, the exhortation alleged by PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 is only against the accused Vinod that he exhorted to beat. None of the alleged eyewitnesses, namely PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 have stated that the accused Vinod exhorted to kill. According to their own evidence, the accused started beating by danda/ lathi and subsequently the accused Rekhpal Singh fired at deceased Om Prakash from the backside. No exhortation to kill the deceased Om Prakash has been alleged against the accused appellants. Instead, in his cross-examination; the PW-2 himself stated that neither any accused exhorted to beat him nor any accused beaten him while he was standing 2-3 steps away from the accused. This firstly goes to show that there was no exhortation by any of the accused against the main person PW-2 nor the accused Vinod, as per own case of the prosecution; exhorted to kill any person and instead he merely exhorted to beat.

38. Thus, in such facts and circumstances, the ingredients of Section 34 I.P.C., i.e. the common intention to kill the deceased Om Prakash is not established from the evidences. At best, as per prosecution case, the exhortation was to beat. No evidence was led by the prosecution that during the course of alleged beating, any of the accused appellants herein have exhorted or instigated the accused Rekhpal Singh to kill the deceased Om Prakash. In such facts and circumstances, even if it is assumed that the accused Rekhpal fired by his licensed DBBL gun to kill Om Prakash, then it was an unilateral act of the accused Rekhpal. Thus, the alleged gun shot injury allegedly caused by the accused Rekhpal to the deceased Om Prakash, is not in furtherance of common intention shared by the accused appellants Vinod and Pramod. In the absence of any common intention of the accused anterior in time to kill the deceased, showing a pre-arranged plan and prior concert. No evidence could be led by the prosecution to establish a prior conspiracy or pre-meditation or common intention formed either prior to or in the course of occurrence of the crime, to kill the deceased Om Prakash. In the absence of meeting of minds or sharing of common intention by the accused appellants to kill the deceased, Section 34 I.P.C. could not be invoked. Consequently, the accused appellants cannot be convicted under Section 302 I.P.C. inasmuch as it is not the case of the prosecution that the accused appellants have killed the deceased Om Prakash.

39. Apart from above, we also find that as per case set up by the prosecution, the grievance of the accused persons was mainly against the PW-2 Shespal who, as per prosecution case; purchased same land which the accused Rekhpal wished to purchase, but the PW-2 Shespal himself has stated in his cross-examination that neither any one exhorted to beat him nor any one has beaten him. This also renders the prosecution story regarding the alleged exhortation against the accused appellant No.1 to be doubtful.

Whether the accused appellant No.1 – Vinod and/ or the accused appellant No.2 Pramod have committed offence under Section 307/34 I.P.C. :-

40. The trial court framed charges against the accused appellant No.1 Vinod on 18.08.1993 for the offences under Section 302/34 I.P.C. and also under Section 307/34 I.P.C. for causing fire arm injury to Muneshpal @ Muniya. He was also charged that he along with the co-accused Pramod hurt to Sanwaliya by means of lathi.

41. Similar charge on the same day was framed against the accused appellant No.2 – Pramod.

42. The PW-1 Bhikampal (informant) in his Examination-in-Chief has stated that Pramod has beaten his uncle Sanwaliya by lathi. He further stated that accused Vinod had taken away country-made pistol from the accused Pramod and fired at the PW-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya with intention to kill. In his cross-examination, the PW-3 stated that none has beaten the PW-2 Shespal nor fired at him, that the accused Pramod has beaten Sanwal by danda and accused Vinod has fired at Muneshpal @ Muniya and the Muneshpal @ Muniya received gun-shot injury in his both hands and also received injuries of lathi at his forehead, that country-made pistol was not loaded after the accused came. He also stated in his cross-examination that it is not only accused Pramod who beaten Sanwaliya by lathi. The alleged injured Sawanliya was not examined.

43. The PW-2 Shespal has also assigned to the accused Pramod the role of beating with lathis to Sanwal. He assigned the role to the accused Vinod of fire by a country-made pistol causing injuries to the PW-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya. In his cross-examination, he stated that he was standing at a distance of 2-4 steps away from the deceased Om Prakash, injured Muneshpal and Sanwaliya who all the three were together, Muneshpal received one injury by lathi and another injury by tamancha (country-made pistol). He stated that the accused Pramod beaten Sanwaliya by lathi but has not stated that who beaten the PW-3 Muniya. In his further cross-examination, he stated that the accused Vinod and the accused Manoj, both have fired on Muneshpal. The injured eyewitness PW-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya son of Sanwaliya in his Examination-in-Chief has assigned the role to the accused Pramod for beating Sanwaliya by danda/ lathi. He assigned the role to the accused Vinod to fire at him by tamancha (country-made pistol) and also by the accused Manoj. In his cross-examination, he stated that the accused Vinod fired at his right hand whereas the accused Manoj fired at his left hand and the head. Thus, in his cross-examination, he confined the role of accused Vinod to fire at his right hand only and to the accused Manoj to fire at his left hand and head.

44. The PW-4 Dr. D.S. Verma, Medical Officer In-charge, Civil Hospital, Baldeo who examined the injuries of PW-3 has found the injury Nos.2 and 3 i.e. the injuries in the left forearm and right arm to be simple by friction or by blunt weapon. He found the injury No.1 on the head of the PW-3 Muneshpal. In his cross-examination, he stated that the injury No.3 may be caused by abrasion of a bullet but it cannot be caused by pellets. He also opined that it may be self-made injury.

45. The first Investigating Officer P.W.-5 Amarjit Singh Sarna has stated in his cross-examination that as per recovery memo dated 17.10.1992, the DBBL Gun No.1522-87 (licensee gun) was recovered and in its barrel, one 12 bore cartridge and one 12 bore khokha (empty cartridge) was found. He shown recovery of 12 bore tamancha (country-made pistol) from the accused Vinod and in its barrel, he found one khokha of 12 bore. He also recovered some cartridges also. He stated that the accused have given no resistance at the time of arrest. He stated that he has not shown in site map that from where the gun was fired or where he found blood on the earth nor he has made any mention of blood found at the place of incident. In his further cross-examination, he stated that he has not sent the gun and cartridges for examination by ballistic expert. He admitted that seal of katta/tamancha and cartridges recovered from the accused Vinod, bears only his signature.

46. PW-7 Umesh Kumar Singh S.H.O. -- second Investigating Officer has stated that the gun was sent from police station to ballistic expert for examination. But the ballistic expert report has not been filed in evidence by the prosecution nor it has been stated that any ballistic expert report has been obtained or received. He further stated in his Examination-in-Chief that Muneshpal @ Muniya has made a statement that luckily he has not received any gun-shot injury.

47. The PW-8 Dr. R.C. Sharma has stated in Examination-in-Chief that he was posted on 18.10.1992 at District Hospital, Mathura and he has conducted post-mortem. He proved the injuries received by the deceased Om Prakash and stated that it was a gun-shot injury and five large pellets were found in the body of Om Prakash.

48. As per evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, the injury by a fire arm (tamancha) was caused by the accused Vinod in the right arm of the PW-3 (Muneshpal @ Muniya). This evidence does not find support from the scientific evidence, i.e. the evidence of PW-4 who opined that the injury caused in the right arm is a simple injury, which is possible by lathi. Thus, the prosecution has completely failed to establish any fire arm injury on the right arm of the PW-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya whereas the case set up by the prosecution against the accused appellant Vinod was that the accused Vinod had caused gun-shot injury by a tamancha to the PW-3. The injury No.2 caused in the left arm of PW-3 Munesh was also found by the PW-4 to be simple injury, possible to be caused by lathi. So far as the injury on the head of the PW-3 Muneshpal is concerned, the PW-4 stated in his evidence that it can be caused by abrasion of a bullet but it cannot be caused by pellets and this injury may be a self made injury. The PW-4 himself has ruled out the possibility of the injury No.1 to be by pellets. He further expressed that this injury may be self made. Therefore, it is extremely doubtful and totally unproved that the accused Vinod has fired at the PW-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya by a country-made pistol with intent to cause death.

49. The injury allegedly caused by the accused Vinod at the right arm lower outer part of the PW-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya is a simple injury which cannot constitute offence under Section 307 I.P.C. It could not be proved by the prosecution that the injury allegedly caused by the accused Vinod by danda was with intent to cause death of the PW-3 Muneshpal @ Muniya. Therefore, the accused appellant No.1 Vinod cannot be convicted for offence under section 307 I.P.C.

50. The PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, all have made allegations against the appellant No.2 that he had beaten Sanwaliya by a danda/ lathi. It was stated that he had hit by lathi to Sanwaliya two or three times. The injury of Sanwaliya as examined by the Medical Officer, In-charge, Civil Dispensary, Baldeo, District Mathura on 17.10.1992 is the contusion 1-1/2'' x 1/2'' over left leg middle part. The Medical officer opined that the injury is simple and caused by some blunt object. The injuries of Sanwaliya as found by the Medical Officer while examining his injuries, are not on any vital part of the body of Sanwal Singh. Evidence of alleged eyewitnesses, i.e. PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3, does not contain any material which may indicate existence of ingredients of Section 307 I.P.C. on account of the injury allegedly caused by the accused appellant Pramod to the injured Sanwaliya (Sanwal Singh). Thus, no offence under Section 307 I.P.C. has been committed by the accused Pramod.

Whether the accused appellant No.1 and the appellant No.2 are guilty of offences under Section 323 I.P.C.:-

51. Evidence of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-3 are consistent to the effect that simple injuries by lathi/ danda was caused by the accused appellant No.1 Vinod on the right arm of the injured Muneshpal @ Muniya and the accused appellant No.2 caused simple injury on the left arm of the injured Muneshpal @ Muniya and on the leg of the injured Sanwaliya by lathi. The injuries so received have also been proved by the PW-4, i.e. The Medical Officer who examined the injuries. Under the circumstances, we hold that the accused appellant No.1 and the accused appellant No.2 are guilty of committing offences under Section 323 I.P.C. Accordingly their conviction under Section 323 I.P.C. for three months' RI under the impugned judgment and order dated 09.02.1996 in Session Trial No.167 of 1993 (State vs. Sri Rekhpal and 3 others) passed by the Sessions Judge arising out of Case Crime No.150 of 1992, P.S. Baldeo, District Mathura passed by the Session Judge, Mathura, is upheld.

52. In result, the appeal of the accused appellant No.1 and the accused appellant No.2 are partly allowed. The conviction of the accused appellant No.1 Vinod under Section 302/34, 307/34 I.P.C. and the conviction of the accused appellant No.2 under Section 302/34 and 307/34

I.P.C. by the impugned judgment and order dated 09.02.1996 in the aforesaid Session Trial No.167 of 1993 arising out Case Crime No.150 of 1992, P.S. Baldeo, District Mathura is hereby set aside and both are acquitted of the charge of offence under sections 302/34 and 307/34 I.P.C. The conviction of the accused appellant No.1 Vinod under section 323 I.P.C. and sentence of three months' R.I. is affirmed. The conviction and sentence of the appellant No.2 Pramod is altered and he is convicted under Section 323 I.P.C. instead of Section 323/34 I.P.C. and sentenced to three months' R.I. If the accused appellant No.1 and the accused appellant No.2 have not undergone imprisonment for three months either during trial or during pendency of this appeal, then they shall surrender forthwith before the court concerned and shall be sent to jail to undergo the sentence under Section 323 I.P.C. awarded by the trial court and affirmed by us. In the event, they have already completed three months' sentence, then they need not to surrender or to be arrested. Their personal bonds and sureties shall be cancelled.

53. Office is directed to communicate this order to the court concerned forthwith for compliance and also send back the trial court record.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Shri Atul Verma, the learned counsel for the appellant as well as Mrs. Nisha Srivastava, learned counsel for the opposite party No.2 and Sri Ashok Kumar Srivastava, the learned A.G.A. for the State-opposite party No. 1 and perused the entire record.

2. The pleadings have been exchanged between the parties.

3. The present criminal appeal under Section 14-A (2) Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act has been preferred against the impugned order dated 15.01.2022 passed by the Special Judge Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Barabanki in Bail Application No.146 of 2022 (Mantu Verma Alias Vivek Verma Vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No.722/2021, under Section 302, 120 B I.P.C. and Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Barabanki, whereby the bail application of the appellant has been rejected.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the appellant is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case. The entire prosecution story is false and fabricated and lodged only with the intention to falsely implicate the appellant.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that an F.I.R. dated 05.09.2021 was lodged by the brother of the deceased regarding an incident dated 04.09.2021 in which he has stated that he has lodged a missing report of his brother and it was clearly stated that after search it was found that his brother was murdered by someone and his body was lying in the Village Naare Ka Purwa near hen farm and there is injury on his neck and a suspicion was caused on one Pankaj Kumar, who called the deceased by mobile phone.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that in the F.I.R. name of Pankaj Kumar was only mentioned and the name of the appellant was not found place in the F.I.R. nor there is any whisper in the F.I.R. regarding the role of the appellant. He further submits that the at the time of inquest also the name of the appellant was not in picture and at the time of inquest the complainant was witness of the inquest. Thereafter, the body of the deceased was sent for the post-mortem and the post-mortem was conducted on 05.09.2021. As per post-mortem report the cause of death was shock due to ante-mortem injuries and three injuries were seen on the body of the deceased.

7. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the Investigating Officer recorded the statement of the complainant under Section 161 Cr.P.C. in which a new story has been build up by the complainant and first time the name of the appellant came in picture that the wife of the deceased used to talk on mobile phone with the appellant and it was also stated that she also used to talk to several other persons, as she is a woman of modern time and since she used to talk to the appellant due to this reason there was always fight took place between the deceased and his wife.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that only on the statement of the complainant that the appellant used to talk with the wife of the deceased it cannot be said that the appellant is involved in the alleged crime.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the other witness, namely Sadhna Verma has also only stated this fact that the appellant used to talk with the wife of the deceased and due to their conspiracy he was killed. Another witness Durgesh also stated almost the same thing which was stated by Sadhna Verma in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant while placing reliance upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra : 1984 Cri. L.J. 178 has argued that it is a case of circumstantial evidence and the chain of evidence is totally broken, the police has also failed to complete the chain of evidence to connect the appellant in the present crime. No one has seen the appellant near the dead body of the deceased nor any witness has seen the appellant accompanying the deceased nor it is a case of prosecution that the mobile phone, which was recovered is of the appellant. He further submits that there is no any direct witness of the alleged crime, thus it cannot be said that the appellant is involved in the present case.

The appellant is roped by the police only to give gravity of the offence.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that during investigation blood stained shoes was recovered but the shoes was not belonged to the appellant. He further submits that a false recovery of blood stained knife has been shown on the pointing out of the appellant, whereas the appellant did not have any knife.

12. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the person who was named in the F.I.R., namely, Pankaj Kumar @ Rajnit Yadav by whose phone the last call was made to the deceased was already enlarged on bail by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Criminal Appeal No. 2141 of 2021 vide order dated 28.03.2022. The copy of the said order is annexed as Annexure 9 to the affidavit filed in support of the bail application. He further submits that the case of the appellant is not on the worst footing than that of the other co-accused, Pankaj Kumar @ Rajnit Yadav who has been already granted bail by co-ordinate Bench of this Court.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that accused/appellant is languishing in jail since 08.09.2021, who has no previous criminal history, and in case the appellant is enlarged on bail, he shall not misuse the liberty of bail and he shall also fully cooperate with the trial. He has further submitted that there is no possibility of the appellant to intimidate or pressurize the witnesses or any other persons acquainted with the facts of the present case.

14. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that the applicant is in jail since 08.09.2021 and has by now done a substantial period of incarceration. In support of his argument, he has placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex Court judgment in the case of Kamal Vs. State of Haryana, 2004 (13) SCC 526 and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under :-

"2. This is a case in which the appellant has been convicted u/s 304-B of the India Penal Code and sentenced to imprisonment for 7 years. It appears that so far the appellant has undergone imprisonment for about 2 years and four months. The High Court declined to grant bail pending disposal of the appeal before it. We are of the view that the bail should have been granted by the High Court, especially having regard to the fact that the appellant has already served a substantial period of the sentence. In the circumstances, we direct that the bail be granted to the appellant on conditions as may be imposed by the District and Sessions Judge, Faridabad."

15. Learned counsel for the appellant has also placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex Court judgment in the case of Takht Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2001 (10) SCC 463, and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under:-

"2. The appellants have been convicted under Section 302/149, Indian Penal Code by the learned Sessions Judge and have been sentenced to imprisonment for life. Against the said conviction and sentence their appeal to the High Court is pending. Before the High Court application for suspension of sentence and bail was filed but the High Court rejected that prayer indicating therein that the applicants can renew their prayer for bail after one year. After the expiry of one year the second application was filed but the same has been rejected by the impugned order. It is submitted that the appellants are already in jail for over 3 years and 3 months. There is no possibility of early hearing of the appeal in the High Court. In the aforesaid circumstances the applicants be released on bail to the satisfaction of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Seohore. The appeal is disposed of accordingly."

16. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that ratio of law applicable in above those cases is also applicable in the case of the appellant, therefore, the instant criminal appeal deserves to be allowed and the order dated 15.01.2022 passed by the Special Judge Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Barabanki in Bail Application No.146 of 2022 (Mantu Verma Alias Vivek Verma Vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No.722/2021, under Section 302, 120 B I.P.C. and Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Barabanki, deserve to be set aside and consequently, the accused/appellant deserves to be enlarged on bail during pendency of the trial.

17. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the appellant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the appellant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required and is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon him. It has also been pointed out that the accused is not having any criminal history and he is in jail since 08.09.2021 and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the Court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

18. Learned counsel for the appellant has drawn attention of this Court towards the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Hitesh Verma Vs. The State of Uttarakhand reported in (2020) 10 SCC, wherein in para 15 relying on the judgment passed in Swaran Singh and others Vs. State (2008) 8SCC 435 has held as under:

"as per the F.I.R., the allegations of abusing the informant were within the four walls of her building. It is not the case of the informant that there was any member of the public (nor merely relatives or friends) at the time of the incident in the house. Therefore, the basic ingredient that the words were uttered in any place within public view is not made out. In the list of witnesses appended to the charge-sheet, certain witnesses are named but it could not be said that those were the persons present within the four walls of the building. The offence is alleged to have taken place within the four walls of the building. Therefore, in view of the judgment of this Court in Swaran Singh, it cannot be said to be a place within public view as none was said of be present within the four walls of the building as per the FIR and/or charge-sheet."

19. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that no ingredients under Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act is attracted against the appellant, as no one has seen the alleged incident committed by the appellant at a public place or public view.

20. Per contra, Mrs. Nisha Srivastava, learned counsel for the opposite party No.2 has vehemently opposed the prayer and submits that the accused/ appellant is not entitled to be enlarged on bail but did not dispute this fact that it is a case of circumstantial evidence and no any independent witness has assign the role of the appellant in committing the alleged crime along with the co-accused Pankan Kumar @ Rankit Yadav and she also did not dispute this fact that the person who was named in the F.I.R., namely, Pankaj Kumar @ Rajnit Yadav by whose phone the last call was made to the deceased was already enlarged on bail by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Criminal Appeal No. 2141 of 2021 vide order dated 28.03.2022. The same argument has been advanced by Sri Ashok Kumar Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State and submits that the accused/ appellant is not entitled to get any relief by this Court.

21. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, the nature of evidence, the period of detention already undergone, unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also in absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and considering the fact that the name of the appellant was not found place in the F.I.R. nor there is any whisper in the F.I.R. regarding the role of the appellant. At the time of inquest also the name of the appellant was not in picture, in the statement of the complainant recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. first time the name of the appellant came in picture and the fact that the wife of the deceased used to talk on mobile phone with the appellant due to this reason there was always fight took place between the deceased and his wife and considering the fact the appellant used to talk with the wife of the deceased it cannot be said that the appellant is involved in the alleged crime and further considering that it is a case of circumstantial evidence and no one has seen the appellant near the dead body of the deceased nor any witness has seen the appellant accompanying the deceased nor it is a case of prosecution that the mobile phone, which was recovered is of the appellant and considering the fact that the person who was named in the F.I.R., namely, Pankaj Kumar @ Rajnit Yadav by whose phone the last call was made to the deceased was already enlarged on bail by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Criminal Appeal No. 2141 of 2021 vide order dated 28.03.2022 and considering the fact that no ingredients under Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act is attracted against the appellant, as no one has seen the alleged incident committed by the appellant at a public place or public view and further considering the fact that appellant is in jail since 08.09.2021 and has now by done a substantial period of detention and further considering the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra), Kamal (supra), Takht Singh (supra), and Dataram Singh vs. State of U.P. and another, reported in (2018) 3 SCC 22, Hitesh Verma (supra), this Court is of the view that the learned court below has failed to appreciate the material available on record, the impugned order passed by the trial court is liable to be set aside.

22. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. Consequently, the order dated order dated 15.01.2022 passed by the Special Judge Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, Barabanki in Bail Application No.146 of 2022 (Mantu Verma Alias Vivek Verma Vs. State of U.P.), arising out of Case Crime No.722/2021, under Section 302, 120 B I.P.C. and Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Barabanki is hereby reversed and set aside.

23. Let the appellant, Mantu Verma @ Vivek Verma, be enlarged on bail in Case Crime No.722/2021, under Section 302, 120 B I.P.C. and Section 3 (2) (v) SC/ST Act, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Barabanki with the following conditions:-

(i) The appellant shall furnish a personal bond with two sureties each of like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

(ii) The appellant shall appear and strictly comply following terms of bond executed under section 437 sub section 3 of Chapter- 33 of Cr.P.C.:-

(a) The appellant shall attend in accordance with the conditions of the bond executed under this Chapter.

(b) The appellant shall not commit an offence similar to the offence of which he is accused, or suspected, of the commission of which he is suspected, and

(c) The appellant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer or tamper with the evidence.

(iii) The appellant shall cooperate with investigation /trial.

(iv) The appellant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(v) The appellant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vi) In case, the appellant misuses the liberty of bail during trial, in order to secure his presence, proclamation under section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the appellant fails to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vii) The appellant shall remain present, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the appellant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

24. The trial court is also directed to expedite the trial of the aforesaid case, within a period of one year from today, by following the provisions of Section 309 Cr.P.C., strictly without granting any unnecessary adjournments to the parties, in case there is no other legal impediment.

THE HON'BLE GAJENDRA KUMAR, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 1290 of 2023

Mukund Singh & Ors.

...Appellants

Versus

State of U.P. & Anr.

...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellants:

Sri Jaysingh Yadav

Counsel for the Respondents:

G.A., Sri Ashutosh Kumar Tiwari

Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 323, 504, 506 & 325 - Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 - Sections 14-A, 3(1)(r), (s) - Constitution of India, 1950 - Article 142 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 320 - In instant case, setting aside of impugned order has been prayed for on basis of compromise - In compromise, incident alleged to have transpired, based on which FIR registered, not contested rather admitted that quarrel had ensued between parties that led to institution of instant proceedings - Conflict was that informant side not doing their job instead taking away tractor-trolley to upload bricks, they were abused, beaten and threatened on their caste indicative words by appellants - Contention by appellants that both parties known to each other and are neighbours, due to some misunderstanding quarrel took place between them, no intention to hurt informant, complainant amicably settled disputes with appellants vide compromise-cum-settlement, out of his own free will, without coercion. (Para 3, 4, 12, 27)

Held, offence preceded by criminal intent of humiliating victim on basis of his caste and committed solely on account of caste of victim - Compromise does not indicate settlement of any civil dispute and possibility of informant side being coerced to enter into compromise cannot be ruled out as appellant No.2 has criminal history of two cases and appellant no.4 has criminal history of 14 case - No rationale as to why continuation of legal proceedings would be abuse of process of law - No provision for compounding offences under said Act. (Para 29, 30, 32)

Appeal dismissed. (E-13)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Gajendra Kumar, J.)

1. The present Criminal Appeal has been filed under Section 14-A (1) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 (hereinafter referred to as the "SC/ST Act") on behalf of the appellants praying for setting aside impugned order dated 16.01.2023 passed by ADJ/Spl Judge SC and ST, Lalitpur in S.S.T.No.260/2018 (State vs Jandail Singh and others) arising out of case crime No.41 of 2018 u/s 323,504,506,325 IPC and 3(1)(r),(s) of ST/ST Act PS-Jakhlaun, District Lalitpur.

2. As per the FIR, the prosecution story is as follows:

The First Informant Puran s/o Kanchhedi Ahirwar was a resident of Village Nunawali. On 10.04.2018, at about 08 a.m., when he (informant) along with his father Kanchhedi, brothers Tilak and Ajay and Bhadai s/o Punu Ahirwar was going on his tractor-trolley to upload the bricks, on the way, appellants and other co-accused persons, namely, Jaidan Singh s/o Lakhan Singh, Mukund singh s/o Lakhan singh, Bablu s/o Sammar Singh and Lakhan Singh s/o Dev Singh Thakur, who are residents of Village-Nunawali, had intercepted, insulted, intimidated and abused them by using caste indicative words, were saying that why are you going to upload the bricks and why you do not not go to do our job. Thereafter, with common intention, they beat them with kicks, fists & sticks and after threatening them, they ran away from the spot, as a result, complainant/informant's side sustained grievous injuries and, thereafter treatment were given to them at District hospital, Lalitpur, fromwhere looking to the seriousness of the victims namely, Kanchhedi and Tilak were referred to Jhansi Medical College and given treatment. When they returned their home, lodged the instant FIR bearing No.0041 of 2018, under Sections 323,504,506,325 IPC and Section 3(1)(r)(s) of ST/ST Act PS Jakhlaun, District Lalitpur.

3. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellants submitted that the appellants and Complainant/Respondent No. 2 are known to each other and are neighbours. It is submitted that due to some misunderstanding the quarrel took place between them, however, there was no intention to hurt the respondent No.2 (first informant).

4. Learned counsel further submitted that in the present case, the respondent No. 2 has amicably settled all his grievances/disputes and differences with the appellants vide compromise-cum-settlement, out of his own free will and without any coercion.

5. While buttressing his arguments, learned counsel has also placed reliance on the judgment of Hon"ble Supreme Court passed in Ramawatar v. State of Madhya Pradesh (Criminal Appeal No. 1393 of 2011) dated 25.10.2021, which has been dealt with subsequently.

6. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the first informant/respondent No.2 has stated that he has no objection, whatsoever to the settlement deed, the complainant has willfully entered into the said compromise, as such, the impugned order and present criminal proceedings be quashed on the basis of the said compromise.

7. Per Contra, learned AGA appearing on behalf of the State vehemently opposed the instant Criminal Appeal and submitted that: The SC/ST Act is a special legislation passed to check and deter crimes against scheduled castes and scheduled tribes. The legislative intent to implement a specialized law has been to curb the incidents of indignities, humiliation and harassment meted out to the members of these communities. The present FIR is a classic case of mischief sought to be criminalized by this special statute, where accused persons tried to bully the First Informant side just on the basis of their caste. In the instant case, the appellants have intentionally terrorized and humiliated the first informant's side in pursuance of doing their work. The criminal offences of such grave nature cannot be compounded on the basis of settlement between the parties, otherwise if quashing is allowed on the basis of compromise, it would send a wrong message in the society; that the case of Ramawatar (supra), is on a different footing altogether wherein the civil dispute led to the altercation and the said judgment was passed by the Hon"ble Supreme Court in exercise of its powers under Article 142 of the Constitution, is distinguishable from the facts at hand and hence, is not binding to the instant case.

8. Heard learned counsels appearing on behalf of parties at length and perused the record.

9. The Appellants by way of the instant Criminal Appeal have prayed that the impugned order be quashed based on compromise and no other averments as to the merits of the case have been made. Thus, the task before the Court is limited to the extent of adjudicating that - whether in the facts of this case, the impugned order and the criminal proceedings under the SC/ST Act can be quashed on the basis of compromise between the parties.

10. Before scrutinizing the facts of the present case and analyzing the powers exercisable by the High Court under Section 14 -A (1) of SC/ST Act, it is pertinent to refer to and analyse the mandate of Section 320 of the Cr.P.C.

"320. Compounding of offences.--

(1) The offences punishable under the sections of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) specified in the first two columns of the Table next following may be compounded by the persons mentioned in the third column of that Table:...

(2) The offences punishable under the sections of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) specified in the first two columns of the Table next following may, with the permission of the Court before which any prosecution for such offence is pending, be compounded by the persons mentioned in the third column of that Table:...

(3) When an offence is compoundable under this section, the abetment of such offence or an attempt to commit such offence (when such attempt is itself an offence) or where the accused is liable under section 34 or 149 of the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) may be compounded in like manner.

(4) (a) When the person who would otherwise be competent to compound an offence under this section is under the age of eighteen years or is an idiot or a lunatic, any person competent to contract on his behalf may, with the permission of the Court, compound such offence. (b) When the person who would otherwise be competent to compound an offence under this section is dead, the legal representative, as defined in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) of such person may, with the consent of the Court, compound such offence.

(5) When the accused has been committed for trial or when he has been convicted and an appeal is pending, no composition for the offence shall be allowed without the leave of the Court to which he is committed, or, as the case may be, before which the appeal is to be heard.

(6) A High Court or Court of Session acting in the exercise of its powers of revision under section 401 may allow any person to compound any offence which such person is competent to compound under this section.

(7) No offence shall be compounded if the accused is, by reason of a previous conviction, liable either to enhanced punishment or to a punishment of a different kind for such offence.

(8) The composition of an offence under this section shall have the effect of an acquittal of the accused with whom the offence has been compounded.

(9) No offence shall be compounded except as provided by this section."

11. On a bare perusal of sub-Section (9) of Section 320 of Cr.P.C, it is evident that offences which are "non-compoundable" cannot be compounded by a Criminal Court. Any such attempt by the Court would amount to alteration, addition, and modification of Section 320 of Cr.P.C, which is the exclusive domain of the legislature. However, the High Court, in exercise of its inherent powers under Section 482 of Cr.P.C., keeping in view the peculiar facts and circumstances of case and for justifiable reasons, can quash the criminal proceedings to prevent abuse of the process of any Court and/or to secure the ends of justice.

12. In the instant case, setting aside of impugned order and quashing has been prayed for on the basis of compromise. In the said compromise, the factum of the incident alleged to have transpired, based on which the instant FIR has been registered, has not been contested rather it has been admitted that a quarrel had ensued between the parties that led to the institution of the instant proceedings. Considering the same, there is no requirement of entering into the merits of the case. Hence, the question of any abuse of process does not arise.

13. Since, quashing of the Criminal Proceedings wherein the offence has been stated to be committed under Section 3(1)(r) and (3)(1)(s) of the SC/ST Act is in question, it is pertinent to refer to the legislative intent behind the said legislation. The intent can be gauged from the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Act, which is mentioned hereunder:

"Statement of Objects and Reasons.--Despite various measures to improve the socio-economic conditions of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes, they remain vulnerable. They are denied number of civil rights. They are subjected to various offences, indignities, humiliations and harassment. They have, in several brutal incidents, been deprived of their life and property. Serious crimes are committed against them for various historical, social and economic reasons. 2. Because of the awareness created amongst the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes through spread of education, etc. they are trying to assert their rights and this is not being taken very kindly by the others. When they assert their rights and resist practices of untouchability against them or demand statutory minimum wages or refuse to do any bonded and forced labour, the vested interests try to cow them down and terrorise them. When the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes try to preserve their self-respect or honour of their women, they become irritants for the dominant and the mighty. Occupation and cultivation of even the Government allotted land by the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes is resented and more often these people become victims of attacks by the vested interests. Of late, there has been an increase in the disturbing trend of commission of certain atrocities like making the Scheduled Castes persons eat inedible substances like human excreta and attacks on and mass killings of helpless Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes and rape of women belonging to the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes. Under the circumstances, the existing laws like the Protection of Civil Rights Act, 1955 and the normal provisions of the Penal Code, 1860 have been found to be inadequate to check these crimes. A special legislation to check and deter crimes against them committed by non-Scheduled Castes and non-Scheduled Tribes has, therefore, become necessary."

14. The legislative intent has also been referred to by the Hon"ble Supreme Court in the case of Hitesh Verma v. State of Uttarakhand, (2020) 10 SCC 710, wherein the Hon"ble Court held as under:

"10. The Act was enacted to improve the social economic conditions of the vulnerable sections of the society as they have been subjected to various offences such as 11 indignities, humiliations and harassment. They have been deprived of life and property as well. The object of the Act is thus to punish the violators who inflict indignities, humiliations and harassment and commit the offence as defined under Section 3 of the Act. The Act is thus intended to punish the acts of the upper caste against the vulnerable section of the society for the reason that they belong to a particular community."

15. The long title of the Act makes it evident that the Act is intended to prevent the commission of offences of atrocities against the members of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes communities to provide for Special Courts and Exclusive Special Courts for the trial of such offences and for ensuring relief and rehabilitation of the victims of such offences. The object of the Act is to improve the socio-economic conditions of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes as they are denied their civil rights. Thus, an offence under the Act would be made out whenever a member of the vulnerable section of the society is subjected to indignities, humiliations, and harassment.

16. The founding fathers of the Constitution were conscious of the harsh realities of the society and the discrimination that the members of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes have been subjected to. At the time of independence, the lofty ideals of liberty, equality and fraternity were just utopian principles that were although guaranteed by law, but not present on ground. It was for the welfare of the downtrodden and vulnerable that the ameliorative and remedial measures were brought in to ensure that their civil rights are protected and equality in principle is adopted in practice.

17. One of the objectives of the Preamble of Constitution is "fraternity assuring the dignity of the individual and the unity and integrity of the nation". The Preamble did not originally contain the expression "fraternity" rather it was subsequently inserted by the Drafting Committee. It is relevant to refer to the explanation given by Dr. Bhimrao Ramji Ambedkar for the word "fraternity" wherein he stated that "fraternity means a sense of common brotherhood of all Indians". In a country like ours with the vivid diversity and the plethora of fault lines, it is necessary to emphasise and re-emphasize that the unity and integrity of India can be preserved only by a spirit of brotherhood.

18. As stated by the Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in Prathvi Raj Chauhan v. Union of India, (2020) 4 SCC 727, to achieve this ideal of fraternity, three provisions namely - Articles 15, 17 and 24 were included in the Constitution of India. Despite these provisions being in place, the founding fathers of the Constitution expected the Legislature to enact effective measures to root out the caste-based discrimination in the society. First attempt by the Parliament to achieve that end was the enactment of the Untouchability (Offences) Act, 1955 wherein the burden of proof was fixed on the accused and not on the prosecution. Next came the Protection of Civil Rights Act, 1955, that made provisions for outlawing and penalising the social practices associated with untouchability and disabilities. Subsequently, it was felt that the 1955 Act (which was amended in 1976) did not provide for sufficient deterrence to the 12 caste-based discriminatory practices against the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes communities.

19. Finally, to plug in the loophole, and to ensure the rights which the Constitution has guaranteed to the people, the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989 was enacted to prevent the commission of atrocities against members of Scheduled Castes and Tribes, to provide for Special Courts for the trial of such offences and for the relief and rehabilitation of the victims of such offences. The Act has also for the first time laid down an expansive definition of "atrocities" to cover the multiple manners through which the members of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes have been humiliated, oppressed and downtrodden for centuries.

20. In light of the aforesaid, it is important to reiterate that unless the provisions of the Act are enforced in their true letter and spirit, and the legislative intent underlying the Act is manifested, the vision of a society free of caste-based discrimination will only remain a distant dream.

21. Learned counsel for the petitioner has extensively placed reliance on the judgment of the Hon"ble Supreme Court in Ramawatar (supra), and hence it is crucial to analyse the same at length.

22. The Hon"ble Supreme Court while deciding the said Appeal was faced with two questions, first whether the jurisdiction of the Hon"ble Supreme Court under Article 142 of the Constitution can be invoked for quashing of criminal proceedings arising out of a non compoundable offence; and if the answer to the first question is in affirmative, second whether the power to quash proceedings can be extended to offences arising out of special statutes such as the SC/ST Act.

23. In response to the first question, the Hon"ble Supreme Court reiterated the finding of Ramgopal & Anr v. The State of Madhya Pradesh (Criminal Appeal No. 1489 of 2012) dated 29.09.2021, and while holding that Section 320 of Cr.P.C. cannot be construed as a bar on invocation of the inherent powers vested in the Court also held that the touchstone for exercise of the extra-ordinary powers under the inherent jurisdiction would be to do complete justice. The Hon"ble Supreme Court reiterated the note of caution, that the Court must take into consideration while exercising the powers under the provisions, and held:

"11. The Court in Ramgopal (Supra) further postulated that criminal proceedings involving non heinous offences or offences which are predominantly of a private nature, could be set aside at any stage of the proceedings, including at the appellate level. The Court, however, being conscious of the fact that unscrupulous offenders may attempt to escape their criminal liabilities by securing a compromise through brute force, threats, bribes, or other such unethical and illegal means, cautioned that in cases where a settlement is struck post conviction, the Courts should, inter alia, carefully examine the fashion in which the compromise has been arrived at, as well as, the conduct of the accused before and after the incident in question. While concluding, the Court also formulated certain guidelines and held:

19... Nonetheless, we reiterate that such powers of wide amplitude ought to be exercised carefully in the context of quashing criminal proceedings, bearing in mind: (i) Nature and effect of the offence on the conscious of the society; (ii) Seriousness of the injury, if any; (iii) Voluntary nature of compromise between the accused and the victim; & (iv) Conduct of the accused persons, prior to and after the occurrence of the purported offence and/or other relevant considerations."

24. As regards the second question the Hon"ble Supreme Court in the said judgment has observed as under:

"15. Ordinarily, when dealing with offences arising out of special statutes such as the SC/ST Act, the Court will be extremely circumspect in its approach. The SC/ST Act has been specifically enacted to deter acts of indignity, humiliation and harassment against members of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes. The Act is also a recognition of the depressing reality that despite undertaking several measures, the Scheduled Castes/Scheduled Tribes to be subjected to various atrocities at the hands of upper castes. The Courts have to be mindful of the fact that the Act has been enacted keeping in view the express constitutional safeguards enumerated in Articles 15, 17 and 21 of the Constitution, with a twin fold objective of protecting the members of these vulnerable communities as well as to provide relief and rehabilitation to the victims of caste based atrocities.

18. We may hasten to add that in cases such as the present, the Courts ought to be even more vigilant to ensure that the complainant victim has entered into the compromise on the volition of his/her free will and not on account of any duress. It cannot be understated that since members of the Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe belong to the weaker sections of our country, they are more prone to acts of coercion, and therefore ought to be accorded a higher level of protection. If the Courts find even a hint of compulsion or force, no relief can be given to the accused party. What factors the Courts should consider, would depend on the facts and circumstances of each case."

25. The Hon"ble Supreme Court in the said judgment as regards the second question further held that:

"16. On the other hand, where it appears to the Court that the offence in question, although covered under the SC/ST Act, is primarily private or civil in nature, or where the alleged offence has not been committed on account of the caste of the victim, or where the continuation of the legal proceedings would be an abuse of the process of law, the Court can exercise its powers to quash the proceedings. On similar lines, when considering a prayer for quashing on the basis of a compromise/settlement, if the Court is satisfied that the underlying objective of the Act would not be contravened or diminished even if the felony in question goes unpunished, the mere fact that the offence is covered under a 'special statute' would not refrain this Court or the High Court, from exercising their respective powers under Article 142 of the Constitution or Section 482 Cr.P.C. is held that whether has held that though offences under the SC/ST Act can be quashed if the offence is primarily private or civil in nature, however, before quashing, the Court must be satisfied that the victim has not been put under pressure to enter into the settlement. Having considered the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case in light of the afore stated principles, as well as having meditated on the application for compromise, we are inclined to invoke the powers under Article 142 and quash the instant Criminal proceedings with the sole objective of doing complete justice between the parties before us...."

26. Upon a detailed deliberation on the question of quashing of criminal proceedings in offences under the SC/ST Act and in light of the judgments discussed herein above, the following principles emerge:

(i) While dealing with the quashing of the criminal proceedings under the SC/ST Act, the Court should be extremely circumspect in its approach and cognizant of the legislative intent of the said Act.

(ii) In cases involving the offences under special legislations like the SC/ST Act, while considering the quashing of criminal proceedings, the social discrimination that prevails and the vulnerability of the weaker sections of the society as being prone to coercion, the Court should be more vigilant to ensure that the victim has entered into the compromise on one's own volition and free will and not on account of any duress. If, while considering the same, there is an iota of apprehension of compulsion or coercion, no relief can be given to the accused. The factors to determine the volition/free consent of the victim would depend on the facts and circumstances and would vary from case to case.

(iii) Upon the aforesaid analysis, in the opinion of the Court, it is found that:

first, if the offence although covered under the SC/ST Act is primarily private or civil in nature; or, second, where the offence has not been committed on account of the caste of the victim; or, third, where the continuation of the legal proceedings would be an abuse of process of law; and,

fourth, if the underlying objective of the Act would not be contravened or diminished even if the felony in question goes unpunished, then the mere fact that the offence is covered under a "special statute" would not be a bar on the exercise of the inherent jurisdiction, and the Court can exercise its powers to quash the proceedings.

26. This Court has considered the case at hand, the case laws and principles of law referred above and specifically the judgment of the Hon"ble Supreme Court in Ramawatar (supra). What emerges is that when dealing with offences arising out of special statutes such as the SC/ST Act, the Court should be extremely circumspect in exercising its extraordinary jurisdiction to quash the criminal proceedings.

27. In the Ramawatar's case (supra), there was a pre-existing property dispute between the parties which led to the conflict and the said turn of events which led to the initiation of criminal proceedings under SC/ST Act. However, in the instant case the root of conflict was that First Informant side was not doing their job instead taking away the tractor-trolley to upload bricks and they were abused, beaten and threatened on their caste lines by the appellants.

28. Further, in light of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the Ramawatar's case (Supra), the powers were exercised by the Hon"ble Supreme Court under Article 142 to quash the criminal proceedings with the sole objective of doing complete justice between the parties before it. However, in this case there is neither any cogent reason nor any travesty of justice being caused or any abuse of process that needs to be prevented thus warranting the exercise of the inherent jurisdiction of this Court.

29. In the instant case, what appears is that the humiliation of the Victim/First Informant side was totally unprovoked, uncalled for, with the sole intention of humiliating the victim for not doing their job. The offence in the instant case was preceded by a criminal intent of humiliating the victim on the basis of his caste and has been committed solely and consciously on account of the caste of the victim.

30. Furthermore, having regard to the legislative intent underlying the SC/ST Act to deter the acts of indignity, humiliation, and harassment against members of the Schedule Caste and Schedule Tribes, and the facts in the instant case, the compromise does not indicate the settlement of any civil dispute and the possibility of the First Informant side being coerced to enter into the compromise cannot be ruled out as appellant No.2 Lakhn Singh has criminal history of two cases and appellant no.4 Jandail Singh has criminal history of 14 case, which is evident from para 19 of the criminal appeal. There is no rationale as to why the

31. Therefore, the offence in the instant case being not of a pre-dominantly civil nature and being committed solely on the basis of caste of victim, the rigours of SC/ST Act being a Special statute, enacted with a specific noble legislative intent that must be given effect in its letter and spirit, cannot be diluted by quashing the Criminal Proceedings in question on the basis of compromise. Thus, in the instant case, a case for exercise of extraordinary jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not made out, as in this case a Criminal Appeal has been filed under S.14-A (1) SC/ST Act, which reads as follows:-

32. In the Scheme of SC/ST Act, there is no provision for compounding the offences under the Act.

33. In the light of the analysis made above and as appellants have failed to point out any illegality, infirmity or perversity in the impugned order dated 16.01.2023, I am of the view that Appeal being devoid of merits which is liable to be dismissed and is, hereby, dismissed.

33. It is made clear that the observations made herein while dismissing the instant Criminal Appeal shall have no bearing whatsoever on the merits of the case during trial.

Held, none of villagers or any independent person had seen viral video clip or photograph of appellant and deceased nor any complaint was made by police that some video or photograph were taken by appellant on his mobile phone and on that basis he threatened her - Husband of deceased St.d he received video clip from appellant which after seeing it he deleted, but he had not informed this to police, further St.d appellant made physical relations with his wife but he has not made any complaint, St.ment doubtful - Investigating Officer St.d after recovering mobile phone of appellant from his house, handed over by his mother, he without putting in sealed cover send it to forensic lab, authenticity of report was doubtful. (Para 32)

Appeal allowed. (E-13)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Counter affidavit filed on behalf of State is already on record and in reply thereto, the learned counsel for the appellant has filed rejoinder affidavit today in Court, which is taken on record.

2. Shri Alok Srivastava, the learned counsel for the opposite party No. 2 was already granted time to file counter affidavit on 02.03.2023, since then the case listed 3-4 times, but he has not filed any counter affidavit. He submits that he will argue the matter in absence of any counter affidavit.

4. Heard Shri Amrendra Nath Singh, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Shri

Ravi Kant Pandey, the learned counsel for the appellant, Ms. Shikha Sinha, the learned A.G.A. for the State-opposite party No. 1 as well as Shri Alok Srivastava, the learned counsel for the opposite party No. 2 and perused the record.

5. The present criminal appeal under Section 14-A (2) of Scheduled Castes & Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act has been preferred by the appellant-Satyam Singh, against the impugned order dated 28.05.2021 passed by the court of learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Gonda in Bail Application No. 1193 of 2021, arising out of Case Crime No. 85 of 2021, under Sections 306, 376(2) I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(5) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67 of I.T. Act, Police Station Tarabganj, District Gonda, whereby bail application of the appellant has been rejected.

6. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that appellant is a student of B.Sc. in a reputed college and was pursuing his studies. He has falsely been implicated in the present case due to enmity and village party bandi. The entire allegation as levelled by the prosecution against the appellant is false and fabricated and has been made only with intention to ruin the entire future of the appellant.

7. Learned counsel further submits that the first information report was lodged by the opposite party No. 2-Pappu Paswan against the appellant on 24.03.2021 at 03:19 a.m. showing the incident of 23.03.2021, under Section 306 I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(5) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act at Police Station Tarabganj, District Gonda, alleging therein that in the intervening night of 23/24.03.2021 brother-in-law of his brother, Pujari, called him on his mobile to talk with his sister, over which he went to the house of his brother, then neighbour informed him that wife and daughter of his brother, namely, Phoola Devi and Khushboo had gone towards field, then he went in their search towards south side and saw that in the field of Ishardeen Paswan from the tree of jackfruit (Katahal), wife and daughter of his brother were hanging. On account of harassment of Satyam Singh, wife and daughter of his brother namely Phoola Devi and Khushboo hanged themselves and committed suicide.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant further argued that the first information report was lodged after a much delay without giving any plausible explanation. On the information of death of both the deceased the police of Police Station Tarabaganj came and conducted inquest proceedings and prepared inquest report, thereafter, the dead bodies of both the deceased were sent for postmortem examination, which was done on 24.03.2021.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that as per the postmortem report of the deceased-Khushboo, her cause of death was found to be asphyxia due to ante mortem hanging with one ligature mark of size 29.0 c.m. x 1.5 c.m. all around the neck, which is mentioned at page-59 of the paper book of the present appeal. He further submits that the concerned doctor has opined that no external and internal injury seen on genitals, hymen was torn and uterus was non gravid. This report is given at page-60 of the paper book. Thus, learned counsel for the appellant submits that as per the post mortem report cause of death of the deceased-Khushboo is asphyxia due to hanging without any injuries.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that postmortem of the deceased-Phoola Devi was also conducted, in which apart from one ligature mark of size 30.0 c.m. x 1.0 c.m. all around the neck, three other simple injuries were seen on the left knee.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that there is no role of the appellant in the death of above two deceased and the appellant has falsely been implicated in the present case.

12. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of the complainant, namely, Pappu Paswan was recorded by the Investigating Officer on 24.03.2021 in which he has also made suspicion that some photographs and video clip was prepared by the appellant and he was having affairs with the deceased-Khushboo and in the garb of that video clip and photographs the appellant was blackmailing her, thus, due to this humiliation she committed suicide. But in his statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. the complainant-Pappu Paswan has not disclosed which type of video or clip of deceased-Khushboo was made by the appellant, or whether he had seen the same from his own eyes or any other villager had seen any obscene video clip or photographs of the said deceased. Thus, it has been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that on the basis of suspicion the entire statement has been made by the complainant.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that thereafter statement of wife of the complainant, namely Smt. Mala Devi was also recorded in which she has also stated that there was some affair of appellant with the deceased-Khushboo, he used to torture the deceased-Khushboo and also made physical relations with her and made video clip and also took some photographs, and he also threatened the deceased to make viral the said video clip and photographs. Learned counsel further argued that in her entire statement Smt. Mala Devi has not stated that she had ever seen any video clip or photograph of appellant along with the deceased-Khushboo or had ever seen them in a compromising situation.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that Smt. Mala in her statement has further stated that the appellant had committed rape of the deceased-Khushboo several times, but no any F.I.R. or complaint was ever made by the deceased-Khushboo or her family members against the appellant to the police, which also falsifies the statement of Smt. Mala Devi and thus it shows that appellant has first time falsely been implicated in the case.

15. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the reasons of death of deceased is totally unknown. However, there was some property dispute that is why both were killed by their family members.

16. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that another witness, namely, Km. Reena in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. has also repeated the same version as given by Smt. Mala Devi in her statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., but she has not stated anything that she had seen any video clip or photograph of appellant along with the deceased-Khushboo in a compromising situation.

17. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the statement of witness, namely, Mohit, who is husband of the deceased-Khushboo, was also recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. on 07.05.2021, in which to save his skin he stated first time that he had received one video clip from the appellant which after seeing it he had deleted, but he has not informed the police earlier regarding this video clip. He has only stated that the appellant made physical relations with his wife-Khushboo, but he has not ever made any complaint or lodged the F.I.R., thus, the statement given by the husband of the deceased appears to be doubtful and it is not possible that the husband keep quite on the obscene video of her wife with the appellant and does not take legal action against the culprit.

18. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that none of the villagers or any independent person had ever seen any viral video clip or photograph of appellant and the deceased-Khushboo, nor any such complaint was ever made by the police that some video or photograph were taken by the appellant on his mobile phone and on the basis of which he was threatening her to viral the same and was humiliating the deceased-Khushboo.

19. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that in para-24 of the affidavit filed in support of the bail application it is clearly stated that no any obscene video allegedly prepared by the appellant is on the record, but the Investigating Officer has wrongly submitted the charge sheet under Section 67 of the I.T. Act, and in reply to para-24 of the aforesaid affidavit, learned A.G.A. has given its reply in para-12 of counter affidavit in which there is no any specific denial of the said averment and only a vague statement has been given.

20. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the statement of the Investigating Officer was also recorded before the court below in which he has stated that he recovered the mobile phone of the appellant on 18.05.2021 from his house, the appellant was not present but his mother handed over one Redmi blue colour mobile phone which he has taken without putting the same in sealed cover and send it the same to the forensic lab. Thus, it has been argued that authenticity of the alleged report of forensic laboratory is doubtful as the said mobile phone was not given to the same in sealed cover, which fact has been stated in page-13 and 14 of the rejoinder affidavit. Thus, it has been argued that entire case as set up by the prosecution is false and fabricated. The appellant is a student and no such incident happened and he has falsely been implicated in the present case, thus, the bail application of the present appellant may be allowed by this Court sympathetically and the impugned bail rejection order passed by the trial court may be set aside.

21. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that it is a case of circumstantial evidence, there is no independent eye witness of the alleged crime, even though informant and other witnesses are not the eye witness. The chain of circumstances are not complete.

22. Learned counsel for the appellant while placing reliance upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra : 1984 Cri. L.J. 178 has further argued that no one had seen the commission of crime, there is no connecting link to indicate the involvement of applicant in the commission of crime, it is a case of circumstantial evidence and the chain of evidence is totally broken, the police has also failed to complete the chain of evidence to connect the applicant in the present crime.

23. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that applicant has never abetted both the deceased to commit suicide. From perusal of F.I.R. and from the statements of complainant and other witnesses no case under Section 306 I.P.C. is made out. Even prosecution has failed to prove that case under Section 306 I.P.C. is made out as the essential ingredients for proving the said provisions are not fulfilled either on perusal of the F.I.R. or on perusal of statements of complainant and witnesses. The entire prosecution story is false and fabricated and has been cooked up with malafide intention.

24. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that in the light of the statement of complainant and other witnesses even assuming to the said allegations to be a gospel truth, the same will not constitute offence under Section 306 IPC read with Section 107 IPC. He argues that the scope of Section 306 IPC has been duly considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ude Singh and others vs State of Haryana; (2019) 17 SCC 301.

25. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that provisions of Section 3(2)(5) of S.C./S.T. Act are not attracted in the present case as in the entire statements of complainant and other witnesses there is no whisper that none of the villagers or any independent person had ever seen any video clip or photograph of appellant and the deceased-Khushboo, on the basis of which it can be said that appellant was threatening her to viral the same and was humiliating the deceased-Khushboo. In support of his arguments, the learned counsel for the appellant while referring the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Hitesh Verma Vs. State of Uttarakhand and another, (2020) 10 SCC 710. Thus, it has further been argued that the applicant has falsely been implicated with malafide intention.

26. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the appellant is in jail since 25.03.2021 and has by now done a substantial period of incarceration. In support of his argument, he has placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex Court judgment in the case of Kamal Vs. State of Haryana, 2004 (13) SCC 526 and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under :-

"2. This is a case in which the appellant has been convicted u/s 304-B of the India Penal Code and sentenced to imprisonment for 7 years. It appears that so far the appellant has undergone imprisonment for about 2 years and four months. The High Court declined to grant bail pending disposal of the appeal before it. We are of the view that the bail should have been granted by the High Court, especially having regard to the fact that the appellant has already served a substantial period of the sentence. In the circumstances, we direct that the bail be granted to the appellant on conditions as may be imposed by the District and Sessions Judge, Faridabad."

27. Learned counsel for the applicant has also placed reliance of Hon'ble Apex

Court judgment in the case of Takht Singh Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, 2001 (10) SCC 463, and submitted that the Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment as under:-

"2. The appellants have been convicted under Section 302/149, Indian Penal Code by the learned Sessions Judge and have been sentenced to imprisonment for life. Against the said conviction and sentence their appeal to the High Court is pending. Before the High Court application for suspension of sentence and bail was filed but the High Court rejected that prayer indicating therein that the applicants can renew their prayer for bail after one year. After the expiry of one year the second application was filed but the same has been rejected by the impugned order. It is submitted that the appellants are already in jail for over 3 years and 3 months. There is no possibility of early hearing of the appeal in the High Court. In the aforesaid circumstances the applicants be released on bail to the satisfaction of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sehore. The appeal is disposed of accordingly."

28. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that ratio of law applicable in above those cases is also applicable in the case of the appellant, therefore, the appellant may be enlarged on bail by this Court sympathetically.

29. Several other submissions in order to demonstrate the falsity of the allegations made against the appellant have also been placed forth before the Court. The circumstances which, according to the counsel, led to the false implication of the accused have also been touched upon at length. It has been assured on behalf of the appellant that he is ready to cooperate with the process of law and shall faithfully make himself available before the court whenever required and is also ready to accept all the conditions which the Court may deem fit to impose upon him. It has also been pointed out that the accused is having criminal history of one case, which has been explained in para-32 of the affidavit filed in support of the bail application. It has further been argued that appellant is in jail since 25.03.2021 and that in the wake of heavy pendency of cases in the court, there is no likelihood of any early conclusion of trial.

30. Learned A.G.A. for the State submits that bail application of the appellant may be rejected as there is evidence against the appellant.

31. Shri Alok Srivastava, the learned counsel for the opposite party No. 2 submits that appellant is involved in heinous crime, therefore, his bail application may be rejected.

32. After perusing the record in the light of the submissions made at the bar and after taking an overall view of all the facts and circumstances of this case, nature of evidence, period of detention already undergone, unlikelihood of early conclusion of trial and also in absence of any convincing material to indicate the possibility of tampering with the evidence and considering that none of the villagers or any independent person had ever seen any viral video clip or photograph of appellant and the deceased-Khushboo, nor any such complaint was ever made by the police that some video or photograph were taken by the appellant on his mobile phone and on the basis of which he was threatening her to viral the same and was humiliating the deceased-Khushboo;

further Mohit who is husband of the deceased-Khushboo had stated that he had received one video clip from the appellant which after seeing it he had deleted, but he had not informed the police earlier regarding this video clip and had also stated that the appellant made physical relations with his wife-Khushboo but he has not ever made any complaint or lodged the F.I.R., thus, there appears force in the argument of learned counsel for the appellant that the statement given by the husband of the deceased appears to be doubtful and it is not possible that the husband keep quite on the obscene video of her wife with the appellant and does not take legal action against the culprit; further the Investigating Officer in his statement recorded before the court below has stated that after recovering the mobile phone of appellant from his house which was handed over by the mother of appellant he without putting the same in sealed cover send it to the forensic lab, thus there appears force in the argument of learned counsel for the appellant that authenticity of the alleged report of forensic laboratory is doubtful; there appears force in the submission of learned counsel for the appellant that as per the version of the F.I.R. and as per the statements of complainant and other witnesses no case under Section 306 I.P.C. is made out as essential ingredients for proving the said offence are not fulfilled; there appears also force in the submission of learned counsel for the appellant that in the entire statements of complainant and other witnesses there is no whisper that none of the villagers or any independent person had ever seen any video clip or photograph of appellant and the deceased-Khushboo, on the basis of which it can be said that appellant was threatening her to viral the same and was humiliating the deceased-Khushboo, thus, provisions of Section 3(2)(5) of S.C./S.T. Act are also not attracted and also chain of circumstances are not complete and thus it is a case of circumstantial evidence; further considering the larger mandate of the Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra), Ude Singh and others (supra), Hitesh Verma (supra), Kamal (supra), Takht Singh (supra) and Dataram Singh Vs. State of UP and another, reported in (2018) 3 SCC 22, this Court is of the view that the learned trial court has failed to appreciate the material available on record. Thus, the impugned bail rejection order passed by the trial court is liable to be set aside.

33. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. Consequently, the impugned judgment and order dated 28.05.2021 passed by the court of learned Special Judge, SC/ST Act, Gonda in Bail Application No. 1193 of 2021, arising out of Case Crime No. 85 of 2021, under Sections 306, 376(2) I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(5) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67 of I.T. Act, Police Station Tarabganj, District Gonda, is hereby set aside and reversed.

34. Let the appellant, Satyam Singh, be enlarged on bail in Case Crime No. 85 of 2021, under Sections 306, 376(2) I.P.C. read with Section 3(2)(5) of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and Section 67 of I.T. Act, Police Station Tarabganj, District Gonda, with the following conditions:-

(i) The appellant shall furnish a personal bond with two sureties each of like amount to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

(ii) The appellant shall appear and strictly comply following terms of bond executed under section 437 sub section 3 of Chapter- 33 of Cr.P.C.:-

(a) The appellant shall attend in accordance with the conditions of the bond executed under this Chapter.

(b) The appellant shall not commit an offence similar to the offence of which he is accused, or suspected, of the commission of which he is suspected, and

(c) The appellant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer or tamper with the evidence.

(iii) The appellant shall cooperate with investigation /trial.

(iv) The appellant shall file an undertaking to the effect that he shall not seek any adjournment on the dates fixed for evidence when the witnesses are present in court. In case of default of this condition, it shall be open for the trial court to treat it as abuse of liberty of bail and pass orders in accordance with law.

(v) The appellant shall remain present before the trial court on each date fixed, either personally or through his counsel. In case of his absence, the trial court may proceed against him under Section 229-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vi) In case, the appellant misuses the liberty of bail during trial, in order to secure his presence, proclamation under section 82 Cr.P.C. is issued and the appellant fails to appear before the court on the date fixed in such proclamation, then, the trial court shall initiate proceedings against him, in accordance with law, under Section 174-A of the Indian Penal Code.

(vii) The appellant shall remain present, before the trial court on the dates fixed for (i) opening of the case, (ii) framing of charge and (iii) recording of statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. If in the opinion of the trial court absence of the appellant is deliberate or without sufficient cause, then it shall be open for the trial court to treat such default as abuse of liberty of bail and proceed against him in accordance with law.

35. The trial court is also directed to expedite the trial of the aforesaid case by following the provisions of Section 309 Cr.P.C., strictly without granting any unnecessary adjournments to the parties, in case there is no other legal impediment.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellants, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. This appeal has been preferred against the order of conviction and sentencing dated 19.11.2003 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.6, Sitapur in Sessions Trial No.689 of 1999 (State Vs. Ram Naresh and others) arising out of Case Crime No.187 of 1997, under Section 307 IPC, Police Station Ramkot, District Sitapur convicting the appellants Bhaggal and Ashok Kumar under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC and sentencing to undergo rigorous imprisonment of 10 years each and Rs.5,000/- fine to each of the accused and to undergo six months simple imprisonment each in case of default of payment of fine.

3. During the pendency of appeal, appellant no.1, Bhaggal has died and the appeal in respect of appellant no.1, Bhaggal has been abated. Thus, the appeal survives only in respect of appellant no.2, Ashok Kumar.

4. In brief, facts of the case are that the informant Chandra Bhushan lodged an FIR on 17.08.1997 that the informant, his son Ram Gopal and Kalicharan alongwith Rakesh of his village had gone to purchase a buffalo. After seeing the buffalo of Devi Sahai Shukla when they were coming back and reached near the house of Gokaran Prasad Shukla at Village Arthana, Bhaggal, Ram Naresh, Anand and Ashok residents of village Arthana armed with country-made pistol reached and exhorted to kill them in revenge. Hearing this, Bhaggal fired upon his son from the country-made pistol with the intention to kill him which hit Ram Gopal and he fell down. After hearing hue and cries, the accused persons ran away towards their houses while firing from their country-made pistols. Several persons of the village have seen the occurrence and FIR was lodged.

5. Ram Gopal was medically examined by Dr. Ashok Agrawal, three firearm pellet injuries were found on the lower chest and upper abdomen and on left arm of the injured collar abrasion was also present. There was fresh bleeding from the wounds. Blackening and tattooing were not present.

6. After lodging the FIR, PW-7, investigating officer (IO) SI Umakant Upadhyay started investigation, recorded the statements, collected the oral and documentary evidences and submitted the charge sheet Ex.Ka-7 and Ex.Ka-8.

7. Following witnesses have been produced to prove the prosecution case:-

1	PW-1	Ram Gopal
2	PW-2	Kali Charan
3	PW-3	Sarvesh Kumar
4	PW-4	HC Rajaram
5	PW-5	Dr. AK Nigam, Radiologist
6	PW-6	Umashankar, SI
7	PW-7	Umakant Upadhyay, SI
8	PW-8	AK Srivastava, Radiologist

8. Following documentary evidences have been produced by the prosecution:-

1	Ex.Ka-1	Written Complaint
2	Ex.Ka-2	Chik FIR
3	Ex.Ka-3	Copy GD
4	Ex.Ka-4	Injury Report
5	Ex.Ka-5

6	Ex.Ka-6	Site Plan
7	Ex.Ka-7-8	Charge Sheet
8	Ex.Ka-9	X-Ray Report
9	M.Exs.1-2	X-Ray Plates

9. Statements of the accused persons have been recorded under Section 313 CrPC in which they denied the allegations, evidence and charge. Accused Bhaggal stated that since he had testified himself against the informant, hence he has been falsely implicated. Accused Ram Naresh stated that he was the relative of Bhaggal, hence he has been falsely implicated. Accused Ashok stated that he was the real brother of Bhaggal, hence he has been falsely implicated.

10. In this case four accused were named in the FIR but only accused Bhaggal and Ashok have been convicted and sentenced. Rest two accused persons Ram Naresh and Anand have been exonerated and no appeal/revision has been filed by the State or the informant against the judgment and order of acquittal in favour of these two accused persons.

11. In this case PW-2, Kali Charan and PW-3, Sarvesh Kumar have completely not supported the prosecution version, hence this case is based only on the direct evidence of Ram Gopal, PW-1, the sole injured. The informant Chandra Bhushan had died before the examination of the witnesses, hence he could not be examined.

12. In brief, the evidences of the witnesses are reproduced herein below:-

13. (I) The informant, Chandra Bhushan has not been examined. PW-2, Kalicharan has deposed in his cross-examination that informant had been killed after this incident. It was not in the evidence that as to who killed the informant. Therefore, he could not be examined as eye-witness.

14.(II) Injured Ram Gopal has been examined as PW-1 who deposed that when he was coming back after seeing buffalo of Devi Sahai Shukla and reached near the house of Gokaran Prasad, accused Bhaggal, Ashok and two other unknown persons covering their faces armed with country-made pistol came before them; Ashok exhorted on which Bhaggal fired upon him which hit in his left arm pit with the intention to kill him. The report was lodged by father of this witness. This witness recognized the signature of his father on the written complaint Ex.Ka-1 and proved it. In cross-examination this witness has disclosed old enmity with Bhaggal that sister of Bhikhari who was father of the accused Bhaggal had been kidnapped by his uncle Badkau for which they had enmity with each other. According to this witness, there was no enmity with regard to election. He has further deposed that at the time of such abduction of bua of the accused Bhaggal and Ashok they both were about 5-6 years old. He denied that Ram Naresh and Anand were the persons who had covered their faces at the time of occurrence. This witness had admitted that he was accused in a case under Section 307 IPC and Section 25 Arms Act. He expressed ignorance as to whether accused Bhaggal was a witness in the case under Section 25 of the Arms Act or not. This witness could not remember the day and time of the incident. This witness denied that he was fired from the distance of 16 steps. According to this witness, the shot would have been fired 2-3 steps away.

15. It is noteworthy that no blackening, tattooing, charring or scorching were found on the fire-arm wounds though collar abrasion was present. Though this witness and his father late Chandra Bhushan had stated to the IO that rest two accused persons were Ram Naresh and Anand. This witness has further deposed that due to fire holes had been made upon shirt and blood had also been fallen on the shirt. This witness denied the statement given to the IO that rest two accused persons were Ram Naresh and Anand and they were present on the spot without covering their faces. According to him IO had not taken the blood stained clothes. This witness denied that one day before he had met with Bhaggal and others and an altercation had taken place while in the statement under Section 161 CrPC. The informant Chandra Bhushan had stated that one day before this incident an altercation had taken place between his injured son Ram Gopal and accused Bhaggal.

16. (III) PW-2, Kalicharan has not supported the prosecution version and has been declared hostile. This witness has accepted in cross-examination on behalf of the accused that the informant Chandra Bhushan had been killed after this incident. There are several criminal cases against the injured Ram Gopal.

17. (IV) PW-3, Sarvesh has also not supported the prosecution version and has been declared hostile.

18. (VI) PW-4, HCP Rajaram Yadav has deposed about the preparation of chik FIR Ex.Ka-2 and kaymi GD.

19. (VII) PW-5, Dr. AK Nigam, Radiologist had medically examined the injured PW-1, Ram Gopal and found three fire-arm pellet injuries on the left lower part of the chest and upper part of the stomach of the injured in an area of 20cm x 16cm which were almost muscle-deep. PW-2 had one pellet muscle-deep wound 0.3cm. 0.3cm on the front of the upper left arm 5cm above from the elbow. PW-3 had two pellet muscle-deep injuries wound 0.3cm. 0.3cm on the upper part in front of upper part left forearm. Collar abrasion was present but no fresh blood, blackening or tattooing were present. This witness proved the injury report Ex.Ka-4 and opined that injury no.1 was on the vital part of the body. This witness could not state the distance from which these injuries would have been caused.

20. (VIII) PW-6, SI Uma Shankar had conducted the investigation. He deposed that he has copied the chik FIR, statement of writer and the informant, inspected the place of occurrence and prepared map Ex.Ka-5, proved the document Ex.Ka-5, searched the accused persons. Copied the injury report and the fact regarding surrender by the accused Bhaggal and Ashok in the court thereafter the investigation had been transferred to SIS, Sitapur by the order of SP, Sitapur. In cross-examination this witness has admitted that he neither inspected the clothes of the victim nor took it in his possession. Therefore, he cannot say the position of hole in the clothes. According to him, witness Gokaran Prasad resident of Village Arthana had confirmed the incident. Though he was not an eye-witness.

21. (IX) PW-7, SI Umakant Upadhyay, second IO has deposed that he had recorded the statement of Kalicharan, investigated the case and again he became IO on 03.11.1997. After that he recorded the statement of injured Ram Gopal and after completing other formalities he submitted charge sheet no.7 of 1997 Ex.Ka-7 against the accused Bhaggal and Ashok under Section 307 IPC. He had also submitted a charge sheet no.7A of 1997 Ex.Ka-8 against the accused Ram Naresh and Anand.

22. In cross-examination this witness deposed that he had not recorded statement of the informant. He had not taken clothes of the injured. He admitted that what was the cause of commission of the crime, could not be ascertained. He further deposed that injured Ram Gopal had named accused Ram Naresh and Anand.

23. (X) PW-9, Dr. RK Srivastava, Radiologist has deposed that he had done X-Ray of the injured and had seen radio opec shadow on all the three injuries. This witness has proved the X-Ray report as Ex.Ka-9 and has also proved X-Ray plates as M.Exs.1, 2 and 3. In cross-examination this witness has deposed that as per X-Ray report, the radio opec shadow were not fatal. Though the chest and stomach are the vital part of the body.

24. After closure of the oral evidence the statement of the witness, accused persons were recorded under Section 313 CrPC in which accused Bhaggal (now deceased) had denied the charges and allegations and has stated that witness were deposing on account of enmity. Since he had given statement against Ram Gopal therefore he was falsely implicated. Accused Ashok has also denied the allegations and has said that since he is the real brother of the accused Bhaggal, therefore, he has also been falsely implicated. Accused Ram Naresh has also denied the charges and has stated that since Bhaggal is his relative, sister of father of the accused Bhaggal had been wedded to his uncle, therefore, he has also been falsely implicated on account of enmity.

25. Accused Anand Kumar has also denied the charges and allegations and has stated that he has been falsely implicated.

26. After closure of the prosecution evidence argument were heard, accused Ram Naresh and Anand were acquitted from the charges under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC and accused Bhaggal and Ashok were convicted under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC and were awarded ten years rigorous imprisonment each with fine of Rs.5,000/- to each of the accused with an alternative punishment in case of default of payment of fine, they shall undergo six months simple imprisonment each.

27. In this case according to the prosecution accused Bhaggal had fired upon the injured on account of previous enmity that his bua had been taken away by uncle of the injured Ram Gopal. The victim PW-1 has admitted that at that time he was only about 2-3 years old and accused Bhaggal and Ashok Kumar would have been 5-6 years old. He has also deposed that no FIR had been lodged in this regard. The victim has also not mentioned this incident as a cause of this incident. There is no contradiction of injured PW-1 under Section 145 of the Indian Evidence Act regarding an incident which appears to have occurred one day before this incident. Since the informant has died, hence he could not be examined and could not be controverted under Section 145 of The Indian Evidence Act who had stated to the IO under Section 161 CrPC that one day before the incident the victim had visited Village Arthana where an altercation had taken place between the victim and accused Bhaggal and the victim was warned by the accused Bhaggal for not visiting Village Arthana in future. Thus so far as the genesis of commission of this offence is concerned, it could not be established. Since it is a case of direct evidence, therefore, no motive is required to be proved by the prosecution. However, it has been proved from the office report dated 06.02.2023 that accused Bhaggal has died and the appeal remains only in respect of accused Ashok Kumar.

28. It has been proved from the evidence that no fire-arm injury has been caused by the appellant Ashok Kumar to the injured Ram Gopal. Though it has come in evidence that all the four accused persons had fired while leaving the place of occurrence but no empty cartridges were found on the spot. There is no recovery of any fire-arm from the accused Ashok. It is noteworthy that both the witnesses of fact have turned hostile and have not supported the prosecution version and there is no iota of evidence except the evidence of informant PW-1 that Bhaggal had fired upon him on the exhortation of appellant Ashok Kumar.

29. It is worth mentioning that in the FIR four persons have been named as accused and the informant as well as the victim have stated to the IO that in addition to Bhaggal and Ashok, accused Anand and Ram Naresh were also present on the spot and committed the crime and fired on the place of occurrence. It appears that some arrangements took place out of the court, therefore, the victim, PW-1 deposed that except accused Bhaggal and Ashok Kumar rest two accused persons had covered their faces, therefore, he could not recognize them.

30. According to the prosecution, accused Ashok Kumar had an illegal fire-arm but no such fire-arm could be recovered from his possession though the recovery of such fire-arm is not condition precedent to record a conviction under Section 307 read with Section 34 IPC.

31. According to this Court, generally in a day-light occurrence accused do not want to establish their identity. If two accused persons would have covered their faces, similar facility was also available for rest of the accused persons namely Bhaggal and Ashok Kumar. PW-1 deposed that Bhaggal has fired upon him with the intention to kill him. According to this witness Ashok Kumar had also fire-arm and he had exhorted his brother Bhaggal to kill him. If it was so and accused Ashok Kumar would have been present on the spot, he would also have fired upon the victim to get a positive result. There is no case of the prosecution that any fire-arm injury made by appellant Ashok Kumar had hit the victim. The accused Ashok Kumar has been assigned only role of exhortation. Since according to the prosecution and the victim there was previous enmity between the family of accused Bhaggal, Ashok and the victim and the enmity is a double edged weapon, therefore, there is also a possibility of false implication of other accused persons in addition to the main accused Bhaggal. According to this Court since no active role or participation except the role of exhortation has been mentioned against the appellant Ashok Kumar which has not been corroborated by any independent evidence as the independent witnesses have been turned hostile, this court is of the view that the role of exhortation assigned to the accused appellant Ashok Kumar has not been proved beyond reasonable doubt from the evidence available on record.

32. In the above circumstances, the benefit of doubt must be given to the surviving accused Ashok Kumar. According to this Court, since there was enmity between both the parties, therefore, in absence of any corroboration from the independent witness it would not be proper to uphold the conviction and sentencing of the accused who had been assigned only the role of exhortation. Thus, the appeal is liable to be allowed and the order of conviction and sentencing passed in respect of the surviving appellant Ashok Kumar is liable to be quashed.

33. The appeal is allowed with regard to the accused appellant Ashok Kumar and the order of conviction and sentencing passed by the Additional Sessions Judge-IV, Sitapur is hereby set aside.

34. Let the bail bonds and personal bond executed on behalf of accused appellant Ashok Kumar are cancelled and sureties are set free.

35. A copy of this order alongwith lower court record be sent back to the court concerned.

Act with default stipulation.

2. In brief, facts of the case are that Geeta Devi daughter of the informant Shyammilan was married to Tinku son of Ram Sahai on 13.6.2011 after giving gifts, dowry and other household articles as per his capacity. On 26.5.2012 Geeta Devi went to her marital house after marriage where family members of her husband started quarreling with her for dowry and also tendered threatening to her. After five days when informant alongwith his son and brother-in-law went to the marital house of his daughter, the family members of her husband did not permit to meet with his daughter and started demanding dowry. Anyhow when he met with his daughter, she informed about the maltreatment, cruelty committed by her in-laws and non providing of food to her and when the informant wanted to talk with the family members of his daughter, her husband became angry, her father-in-law started threatening that if Rs. 50,000/ and golden chain are not provided, they shall burn his daughter to death. On 12.6.2017 at about 11-12 P.M., the informant received the information that his daughter had been burnt by her in-laws. He came to District Hospital, Jaunpur and saw that his daughter was in serious condition.

3. Thereafter, he moved the written complaint Ex. Ka-1 whereupon F.I.R. Ex. Ka-2 was lodged and Kayami G.D. Ex. Ka-3, site plan Ex. Ka-6 & 7 were prepared and after recording the statement, charge-sheet Ex. Ka-8, under Section 498A, 323, 506, 326, 304 B I.P.C. and Section $\frac{3}{4}$ D.P. Act was submitted by the I.O.

4. On 31.8.2012 the case was committed to the Court of Sessions by C.J.M. Jaunpur, where on 7.12.2012 charges were framed in the aforesaid Sections alongwith Section 302/34 I.P.C. The accused persons denied the charges and sought trial, hence, trial began and following witnesses were examined.

1	Shaymmilal	PW1
2	Laxmi Devi	PW2
3	Vidhya Devi	PW3
4	H.C.P. Shailendra Kumar	PW4
5	Dr. Nem Singh	PW5
6	Kamla Prasad	PW6
7	Dr. Udaibhan Singh	PW7
8	C.O., Anand Kumar	PW8
9	Retired Tehsildar Mahadev Singh Yadav	PW9

5. In support of ocular version following documents were filed:

1	Written Report	Ex.Ka1
2	Chick F.I.R.	Ex.Ka.2
3	Corbon G.D.	Ex. Ka.3
4		Ex.Ka.4
5	Dying Declaration of Deceased Geeta Devi	Ex.Ka.5
6	Map	Ex.Ka.6 & 7
7	Charge-sheet	Ex.Ka.8
8	Medical Report of doctor	Ex.Ka.9
9	Inquest	Ex.Ka.10
10	Letters to R.I, C.M.O. and Police Form 13	Ex.Ka. 11 to 13

5. After closure of the prosecution evidence, statement of the accused persons under 313 Cr.P.C. was recorded who claimed to be innocent. They have further stated that on 12.6.2012 there was marriage ceremony of daughter of their neighbour namely Nan d Lal where they had gone. There was a quarrel between the deceased-wife and her husband for living at Aurangabad and when they were busy in the marriage ceremony, at about 7:00 P.M., Kavita came out shouting that 'Geeta Bhabhi got burnt', they immediately came and extinguished fire and took the injured in the Car to Sadar Hospital Jaunpur for treatment. Neither any dowry was demanded nor she was burnt to death by them. The deceased herself got burnt due to depression. In defence two witnesses D.W.1 Nandlal and D.W.-2 Sanjay have been examined.

6. In brief, oral evidence produced by the prosecution as well as defence, is as under;

(a) P.W.1- Informant, Shyammilan, father of the deceased, has deposed that he had solemnized marriage of his daughter Geeta Devi on 13.6.2011 with accused Tinku @ Mrityunjaya and had given gifts as per his capacity. Next day of the marriage, at the time of departure of the bride, accused Ram Sahai refused to take the bride to his house demanding Rs. 50,000/- and golden chain as dowry, however, anyhow the bride could be departed on the assurance that demand would be fulfilled in future. His daughter remained there for one month and thereafter came to her parental house. On 26.5.2012 when she was again departed for her marital house, Ram Sahai made same demand but anyhow she could be departed. After five days when he, his son Ram Ratan and his brother-in-law Arvind went to meet his daughter, the father-in-law, husband and aunt Shanti Devi, demanded Rs. 50,000/- and a golden chain and did not allow the informant to meet his daughter. However, they somehow managed to meet Geeta who informed that her in-laws used to beat her in regards with the aforesaid demand and do not provide food on time. When the informant tried to talk regarding dowry, accused Tinku became angry and accused Ram Sahai threatened that if the demand was not fulfilled, his daughter would be killed. On 12.6.2012 at around 11-12 P.M. someone informed him from the hospital that his daughter was burnt by her in-laws and she was admitted in Sadar Hospital. Thereafter he alongwith his mother, brother, Shivmilan, Hawaldar, his Bhabhi and Champa Devi reached the hospital and saw that Geeta was in very serious condition and was not able to speak. She was badly burnt. Seeing it, he became mentally disturbed. The doctor said that the condition of the patient is worrying, thereafter he prepared an application and gave it to the police station Jalalpur. It was in his handwriting and signature. It was exhibited as Ex. Ka-1.

(b) P.W.-2, Laxmi Devi, grandmother of the deceased, had given similar statement to that of P.W.-1. In addition to that she deposed that when they went to District Hospital, Jaunpur, accused Tinku and his mother were present. On being asked, Tinku told that he had done whatever he wanted, do whatever you want and started quarreling. After quarrel, Tinku left the hospital and Shyammilan remained there. They used to visit the hospital however on 18.6.2012 Geeta died in the hospital and the dead body was cremated by Shyammilan and others.

(c) P.W.-3, Vidhya Devi, mother of the deceased, had also given similar statement to that of P.W.-1. In addition to that she has deposed that when she reached the hospital, she saw that her daughter was admitted in a burnt condition who told her that Ram Sahai, Mrityunjay, Shanti Devi and Manti Devi had set her ablaze for dowry.

(d) P.W.-4, H.C.P. Shailendra Singh, has proved chick F.I.R. and G.D. Ex. Ka-2.

(e) P.W.-5, Dr. Nem Singh, has deposed that he has done postmortem of the dead body of Geeta Devi. There were superficial to deep flame burning on the face, neck, upper part of hands, breast and stomach, back and the upper portion of the body had been burnt. In the internal part of the dead body superficial to deep flame burn injuries were present. Pluera and trachea were found congested and swollen. Lungs were congested and full of blood. Uterus was normal. According to this witness the deceased would have died on 19.6.2012 at about 7:45 P.M. The cause of death was due to burn injuries. The dead body was 60% burnt. Postmortem report was prepared by Dr. Pankaj Kumar Pawan in his own handwriting. This witness proved post-mortem report as Ex. Ka-4.

(f) P.W.-6, Kamla Prasad, retired S.I. and I.O. of the case has deposed that he had prepared paper no. 1 of the case-diary on 13.6.2012 and had copied the chick F.I.R., recorded the statement of injured Geeta Devi which he has proved as Ex.Ka-5. He recorded the statement of the informant Shyammial, inspected the place of occurrence on the pointing of villagers and prepared map Ex. Ka-6. Recorded the statement of accused Tinku @Mritunjaya & Ram Sahai after their arrest. Copied the inquest in case-diary and added Section 304-B I.P.C., thereafter, the investigation was transferred to C.O. Police.

(g) P.W.7, Dr. Udai Bhan Singh, has proved the medical examination report as Ex. Ka-9 and deposed that on 13.6.2012, he was posted as Emergency Doctor in Amar Shahid Umanath Singh District Hospital, Jaunpur. Before recording the statement of the injured, he had medically examined the injured, she was in full consciousness and was capable of giving statement which he had mentioned in paper no. 146.

(h) P.W.-8, Anand Kumar, C.O., the I.O. of the case has deposed that on 27.6.2012 he received the investigation of the case and perused the previous paper of case-diary, recorded the statement of accused Manti, Shanti Devi, Laxmi Devi, Ram Ratan, Shakuntala Devi, Champa Devi and previous investigating officer. He inspected the place of occurrence and prepared map Ex. Ka-7, in parcha no. 10, recorded statement of witness Ram Milan, Arvind Kumar, Hawaldar, Rajendra Kumar and Ramlagan alongwith the statements of Naib Tehslidar Mahadev Singh Yadav, Dr.Nem Singh, Dr. Pankaj Kumar and Constable Lalbabu Yadav. In C.D. no.11 dated 14.7.2012, he recorded the statement of Shailendra Singh. After finding the commission of alleged crime, he submitted charge-sheet Ex. Ka-8 against the accused persons under Section 498A, 323, 506, 326, 304B and Section 3/4 D.P. Act, Police Station Jalapur District Jaunpur.

(i) P.W.-9, Retired Tehsildar Mahadev Singh Yadav, deposed that on 13.6.2012, he was posted as Naib Tehsildar Sadar Jaunpur, He went to District Hospital Jaunpur where the deceased was admitted in burnt condition in burn ward no. 2. After getting the fitness certificate from Dr. U.B. Singh, he recorded the dying declaration at 1:45 P.M. and after reading it out to the injured her thumb impression was taken on it, he certified it. This witness has proved the dying declaration Ex. Ka-9.

After receiving the death report of Geeta Devi, he went to mortuary at District Hospital Jaunpur where S.I. Ramjeet and constable Lal Bahadur Yadav alongwith family member of the deceased were present. He appointed five persons as punchas and Panchayatnama was written by speaking to S.I. Ramjeet and related documents were prepared. The dead body was sealed and specimen seal was prepared, thereafter the dead body was sent to postmortem house through constable 814 Lal Bahadur Yadav. This witness recognized his signature and proved the inquest as Ex. Ka-10. Papers relating to Panchayatnama were also proved by this witness as Ex. Ka-11 to Ka-13.

(j) D.W.-1, Nand Lal, neighbour of the accused, deposed that no demand of dowry was made. On the fateful day there was marriage ceremony of his two daughters namely Soni and Rekha. The accused persons were busy at his house regarding arrangement of marriage ceremony. Kavita, younger daughter of Ram Sahai came crying out of her house and informed that Bhabhi was burning. Hearing this when he alongwith accused persons reached on the spot, they saw that Geeta was ablazed, they extinguished the fire by putting the bedsheet on her body. They arranged a Car and went to District Hospital Jaunpur where after 6-7 days Geeta died during the treatment. Geeta wanted to go to Aurnagabad with Tinku but due to lack of residence, he expressed his inability for which Geeta had a quarrel and in a fit of anger she burnt herself by putting herself on fire.

(k) D.W.-2 Sanjay, nephew of D.W.-1 has given similar statement to that of D.W.-1.

7. After hearing the arguments, the Trial Court convicted the accused-appellant under Section 498-A, 304B I.P.C. and Section 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act.

8. Heard Sri Amit Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

9. Learned Trial Court concluded that it was a case of dowry death but he ignored the dying declaration that due to quarrel with the husband, the wife-deceased was set ablazed by the accused-appellant. The learned Trial Court did not properly consider the dying declaration and relied on the statements of the witnesses of fact who were not present on the spot. The dying declaration is in question-answer form in which she has clearly stated that due to quarrel with husband she was set ablazed. She has nowhere stated that she was set ablazed due to demand of dowry. The allegation of the prosecution that demand of dowry of Rs. 50,000/- and a golden chain was made and for the fulfillment of the aforesaid demand, the deceased was killed by setting herself into fire, has not been stated by the deceased before her death. Though the I.O. Kamla Prasad has recorded the statement of the deceased under Section 161 Cr.P.C. wherein it has been written that the deceased was tortured for the demand of dowry. Her husband used to demand vehicle and golden chain but it is not the case of the prosecution that any vehicle was also demanded as dowry. Since beginning it is the case of the prosecution that the family members of the accused were demanding Rs. 50,000/- and golden chain. This statement has not been proved as Dying Declaration, therefore, this statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. can not be treated to be at par to the statement of Dying Declaration recorded by the Magistrate soon before the death of the injured. Witnesses of fact P.Ws. 1 to 3, were not present on the spot at the time of occurrence, therefore, this Court is of the view that the dying declaration made by the deceased would prevail upon the statements of the witnesses and the evidence recorded by the I.O. under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

10. Learned counsel for the appellants has argued that dying declaration is doubtful and is not corroborated by the witnesses of fact, hence, it cannot be the sole basis of conviction. Legal position of dying declaration to be the sole basis of conviction is that it can be done so if it is not tutored, made voluntarily and is wholly reliable. In this regard, Hon'ble Apex Court has summarized the law regarding dying declaration in Lakhan vs. State of Madhya Pradesh [(2010) 8 Supreme Court Cases 514], in this case, Hon'ble Apex Court held that the doctrine of dying declaration is enshrined in the legal maxim nemo moriturus praesumitur mentire, which means, "a man will not meet his Maker with a lie in his mouth". The doctrine of dying declaration is enshrined in Section 32 of Evidence Act, 1872, as an exception to the general rule contained in Section 60 of Evidence Act, which provides that oral evidence in all cases must be directed, i.e., it must be the evidence of a witness, who says he saw it. The dying declaration is, in fact, the statement of a person, who cannot be called as witness and, therefore, cannot be cross-examined. Such statements themselves are relevant facts in certain cases.

11. The law on the issue of dying declaration can be summarized to the effect that in case the court comes to the conclusion that the dying declaration is true and reliable, has been recorded by a person at a time when the deceased was fit physically and mentally to make the declaration and it has not been made under any tutoring/duress/prompting; it can be the sole basis for recording conviction. In such an eventuality no corroboration is required. It is also held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the aforesaid case, that a dying declaration recorded by a competent Magistrate would stand on a much higher footing than the declaration recorded by office of lower rank, for the reason that the competent Magistrate has no axe to grind against the person named in the dying declaration of the victim.

12. It is very much clear and has been established that after the incident the deceased was admitted to the District Hospital by in-laws. The incident had taken place on 12.6.2012 and the deceased had died on 19.6.2022. There were 65 percent injuries on the person of the deceased.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that it is not a case of murder or dowry death, virtually when the deceased-wife was not permitted to go to Aurngabad with her husband-accused, she set herself ablazed. If there have been mens rea of murder, she would have been killed in any other manner and she would have not been admitted to the District Hospital for her treatment by the accused-appellant. Learned counsel has further argued that the Trial Court has wrongly relied on the citation Trimukh Maruti Kirken Vs. State of Maharashtra, 2006 (3) 1426 SC, as the appellant was not present in the house at the time of occurrence. The place of occurrence and the house of D.W.-1 are adjacent thus it was very much easy for the accused to commit the crime and join the marriage ceremony of the daughters of D.W.1. In this regard Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act is relevant which is noted herein below:

Applicability of Section 106, Evidence Act: "Section 106 of the Evidence Act is not intended to relive the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused, but the section would apply to cases where prosecution has succeeded in proving facts for which reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of special knowledge regarding such facts failed to offer any explanation which might drive the court to draw a difference inference."

It is lastly submitted that at the most punishment can be under Section 304 II or Section 304 I of I.P.C. If the Court feels, as the accused have been in jail for more than 11 years without remission, they may be granted fixed term punishment of incarceration.

14. Deceased survived for 6 days after the incident took place. Her dying declaration was recorded by Mahadev

Singh Yadav, Naib Tehsildar after obtaining the certificate of medical fitness from the concerned doctor. This dying declaration was proved by PW-9, Mahadev Singh Yadav,, Naib Tehsildar. These witnesses have absolutely independent witnesses. In the wake of aforesaid judgments of Lakhan (supra), dying declaration cannot be disbelieved, when it inspires confidence. On reliability of dying declaration and acting on it without corroboration, Hon'ble Apex Court held in Krishan vs. State of Haryana [(2013) 3 Supreme Court Cases 280] that it is not an absolute principle of law that a dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction of an accused. Where the dying declaration is true and correct, the attendant circumstances show it to be reliable and it has been recorded in accordance with law, the deceased made the dying declaration of her own accord and upon due certification by the doctor with regard to the state of mind and body, then it may not be necessary for the court to look for corroboration. In such cases, the dying declaration alone can form the basis for the conviction of the accused. Hence, in order to pass the test reliability, a dying declaration has to be subjected to a very close scrutiny, keeping in view the fact that the statement has been made in the absence of the accused, who had no opportunity of testing the veracity of the statement by cross-examination. But once, the court has come to the conclusion that the dying declaration was the truthful version as to the circumstance of the death and the assailants of the victim, there is no question of further corroboration.

15. In Ramilaben Hasmukhbhai Khristi vs. State of Gujarat, [(2002) 7 SCC 56], the Hon'ble Apex Court held that under the law, dying declaration can form the sole basis of conviction, if it is free from any kind of doubt and it has been recorded in the manner as provided under the law. It may not be necessary to look for corroboration of the dying declaration. As envisaged, a dying declaration is generally to be recorded by an Executive Magistrate with the certificate of a medical doctor about the mental fitness of the declarant to make the statement. It may be in the form of question and answer and the answers be written in the words of the person making the declaration. But the court cannot be too technical and in substance if it feels convinced about the trustworthiness of the statement which may inspire confidence such a dying declaration can be acted upon without any corroboration.

16. From the above precedents, it clearly emerges that it is not an absolute principle of law that a dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction of an accused when such dying declaration is true, reliable and has been recorded in accordance with established practice and principles and if it is recorded so then there cannot be any challenge regarding its correctness and authenticity.

17. In dying declaration of the deceased, it is also relevant to note that deceased died after three days of its recording. It means that she remained alive for three days after making dying declaration, therefore, truthfulness of dying declaration can further be evaluated from the fact that she survived for three days. After making it from which it can reasonably be inferred that she was in a fit mental condition to make the statement at the relevant time.

18. As already noticed, none of the witnesses or the authorities involved in recording the dying declaration had turned hostile. On contrary, they have fully supported the case of prosecution. The dying declaration is reliable, truthful and was voluntarily made by the deceased, hence, this dying declaration can be acted upon without corroboration and can be made the sole basis of conviction. Hence, learned trial court has committed no error on acting on the sole basis of dying declaration. Learned trial court was completely justified in placing reliance on dying declaration Ex.Ka-9 and convicting the accused-appellants on the basis of it.

19. Considering the evidence of the witnesses and also considering the medical evidence including post mortem report, there is no doubt left in our mind about the guilt of the present appellant.

20. However, the question which falls for our consideration is whether, on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 of I.P.C. of the Indian Penal Code should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of the Indian Penal Code. It would be relevant to refer Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which read as under:

“299. Culpable homicide: Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide.”

21. The academic distinction between ‘murder’ and ‘culpable homicide not amounting to murder’ has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

Section 299	Section 300
A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder is the act by which the death is caused is done.

INTENTION

(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

22. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that the offence would be one punishable under Section 304 part-I of the IPC.

23. In the case in hand, after perusal of dying declaration of the deceased it is not revealed as to why the appellant had poured the kerosene oil on the deceased and set her ablazed. Moreover, it is stated by the deceased in dying declaration that fire was also put out by the appellant himself, hence, there is no dispute to the fact that fire was put out by the appellant and as per the dying declaration, it is also not in dispute that appellant and his family members had taken the deceased to the District Hospital, Jaunpur, for treatment and she was admitted by them.

24. Keeping in view of the aforesaid fact that fire was put out by the appellant himself and deceased was admitted to the hospital in injured condition by the appellant and his family members, it is transpired that appellant had no intention to kill the deceased. The deceased died after six days of the occurrence and during this period, she constantly remained admitted in District Hospital and was under treatment. Doctor conducted the post-mortem, has also mentioned the cause of death as "Shock".

25. On the basis of above scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the case coupled with the opinion of the medical officer and considering the principle laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Tuka Ram and others vs. State of Maharashtra [(2011) 4 SCC 250] and in the case of BN Kavadakar and another vs. State of Karnataka [1994 Supp (1) 304], we are of the considered opinion that the offence would be punishable under Section 304 (Part-I) IPC because the burn injuries were caused to the deceased by appellant with the intention to cause such bodily injuries as were likely to cause death and, therefore, the instant case falls under the Exceptions 4 of Section 300 IPC.

26. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussions, it appears that the death caused by the accused was not premeditated, accused though had knowledge and intention to cause bodily harm to the deceased but did not want to do away with the deceased. Hence the instant case falls under the Exceptions 1 and 4 to Section 300 of IPC. While considering Section 299 as reproduced herein above offence committed will fall under Section 304 Part-I as per the observations of the Apex Court in Veeran and others Vs. State of M.P. Decided, (2011) 5 SCR 300 which have to be also kept in mind.

27. We can safely rely upon the decision of the Gujarat High court in Criminal Appeal No.83 of 2008 (Gautam Manubhai Makwana Vs. State of Gujarat) decided on 11.9.2013 wherein the Court held as under:

"12. In fact, in the case of Krishan vs. State of Haryana reported in (2013) 3 SCC 280, the Apex Court has held that it is not an absolute principle of law that a dying declaration cannot form the sole basis of conviction of an accused. Where the dying declaration is true and correct, the attendant circumstances show it to be reliable and it has been recorded in accordance with law, the deceased made the dying declaration of her own accord and upon due certification by the doctor with regard to the state of mind and body, then it may not be necessary for the court to look for corroboration. In such cases, the dying declaration alone can form the basis for the conviction of the accused. But where the dying declaration itself is attended by suspicious circumstances, has not been recorded in accordance with law and settled procedures and practices, then, it may be necessary for the court to look for corroboration of the same.

13. However, the complaint given by the deceased and the dying declaration recorded by the Executive Magistrate and the history before the doctor is consistent and seems to be trustworthy. The same is also duly corroborated with the evidence of witnesses and the medical reports as well as panchnama and it is clear that the deceased died a homicidal death due to the act of the appellants in pouring kerosene and setting him ablaze. We do find that the dying declaration is trust worthy.

14. However, we have also not lost sight of the fact that the deceased had died after a month of treatment. From the medical reports, it is clear that the deceased suffered from Septicemia which happened due to extensive burns.

15. In the case of the B.N. Kavatakar and another (supra), the Apex Court in a similar case of septicemia where the deceased therein had died in the hospital after five days of the occurrence of the incident in question, converted the conviction under section 302 to under section 326 and modified the sentence accordingly.

15.1 Similarly, in the case of Maniben (supra), the Apex Court has observed as under:

"18. The deceased was admitted in the hospital with about 60% burn injuries and during the course of treatment developed septicemia, which was the main cause of death of the deceased. It is, therefore, established that during the aforesaid period of 8 days the injuries aggravated and worsened to the extent that it led to ripening of the injuries and the deceased died due to poisonous effect of the injuries.

19. It is established from the dying declaration of the deceased that she was living separately from her mother-in-law, the appellant herein, for many years and that on the day in question she had a quarrel with the appellant at her house. It is also clear from the evidence on record that immediately after the quarrel she along with her daughter came to fetch water and when she was returning, the appellant came and threw a burning tonsil on the clothes of the deceased. Since the deceased was wearing a terylene cloth at that relevant point of time, it aggravated the fire which caused the burn injuries.

20. There is also evidence on record to prove and establish that the action of the appellant to throw the burning tonsil was preceded by a quarrel between the deceased and the appellant. From the aforesaid evidence on record it cannot be said that the appellant had the intention that such action on her part would cause the death or such bodily injury to the deceased, which was sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause the death of the deceased. Therefore, in our considered opinion, the case cannot be said to be covered under clause (4) of Section 300 of IPC. We are, however, of the considered opinion that the case of the appellant is covered under Section 304 Part II of IPC."

16. In the present case, we have come to the irresistible conclusion that the role of the appellants is clear from the dying declaration and other records. However, the point which has also weighed with this court are that the deceased had survived for around 30 days in the hospital and that his condition worsened after around 5 days and ultimately died of septicemia. In fact he had sustained about 35% burns. In that view of the matter, we are of the opinion that the conviction of the appellants under section 302 of Indian Penal Code is required to be converted to that under section 304(I) of Indian Penal Code and in view of the same appeal is partly allowed.

17. The conviction of the appellants - original accused under Section 302 of Indian Penal Code vide judgment and order dated 19.12.2007 arising from Sessions Case No. 149 of 2007 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Fast Track Court No. 6, Ahmedabad is converted to conviction under Section 304 (Part I) of Indian Penal Code. However, the conviction of the appellants – original accused under section 452 of Indian Penal Code is upheld. The appellants – original accused are ordered to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of ten years and fine of Rs. 5000/- each in default rigorous imprisonment for six months under section

304 (Part I) of Indian Penal Code instead of life imprisonment and sentence in default of fine as awarded by the trial court under section 302 IPC. The sentence imposed in default of fine under section 452 IPC is also reduced to two months. Accordingly, the appellants are ordered to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of ten years and fine of Rs. 5000/-, in default, rigorous imprisonment for six months for offence punishable under section 304(I) of Indian Penal Code and rigorous imprisonment for a period of five years and fine of Rs. 2,000/-, in default, rigorous imprisonment for two months for offence punishable under section 452 of Indian Penal Code. Both sentences shall run concurrently. The judgement and order dated 19.12.2007 is modified accordingly. The period of sentence already undergone shall be considered for remission of sentence qua appellants – original accused. R & P to be sent back to the trial court forthwith."

28. In latest decision in Khokan@ Khokhan (Supra) where the facts were similar to this case, the Apex Court has allowed the appeal of the accused appellant. The decision of the Apex Court in the case of Anversinh v. State of Gujarat, (2021) 3 SCC 12 which was related to kidnapping from legal guardianship, wherein it was established that the Court while respecting the concerns of both society and victim, propounded that the twin principle of deterrence and correction would be served by reducing the period of incarceration already undergone by the accused. In our case, this is not that gruesome matter where the accused cannot be dealt with in light of all these judgments. Judgments in Pravat Chandra Mohanty v. State of Odisha, (2021) 3 SCC 529 & Pardeshiram v. State of M.P., (2021) 3 SCC 238 will also ensure for the benefit of the accused.

29. Thus we come to the definite conclusion that the death was due to septicemia. The judgments cited by the learned counsel for the appellant would permit us to uphold our finding which we conclusively hold that the offence is not under Section 302 of I.P.C. but is culpable homicide under Section 304 of the I.P.C. and, therefore, sentence of the accused appellant is reduced to the period he has already undergone. The total amount of fine Rs. 1500/- be deposited within 30 days from today otherwise the appellant shall undergo to the additional period of incarceration as directed by the Trial Court.

30. The appeal is accordingly partly allowed. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

31. A copy of this judgment be sent to the concerned Court for compliance and keeping it with original records.

2. Pepsi Food Ltd. & anr. Vs Special Judicial Magistrate & ors.; (1998) 5 SCC 749

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ram Kishore Pandey, learned counsel for the appellants, Sri Janardan Yadav, learned counsel for respondent no. 2 and Sri O.P. Mishra, learned AGA for the State.

2. By means of this criminal appeal, an order dated 09.11.2022 passed by the Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Azamgarh in complaint case no. 131 of 2021 (Prem Kumar vs. Dr. Divya Nand Yadav and Others), Police Station Jiyanpur, District Azamgarh, whereby the appellant accused persons have been summoned under Sections 323, 504, 506 IPC and Section 3(1)(da) and 3(1)(dha) of the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, is under challenge.

3. The relevant facts as emerging from record are as below:-

The complainant Prem Kumar filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. against the present revisionists with the allegations that on account of old enmity, the accused persons, one of whom is a doctor by profession and is having relations with underworld and land mafia came to him on 15.03.2021 at about 07.00 in the evening and began hurling abusive and derogatory words relating to his caste and began to assault him; the complainant rushed inside to save himself, however the assailants followed them and attacked the complainant and women of the house; they left after extending threats to his life; the application was registered as complaint case and statement of witnesses under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. have been recorded; the court, after considering the evidence given on behalf of the complainant passed the summoning order which is now under challenge before this court.

4. Besides other arguments, it has been vehemently contended on behalf of the appellants that the police submitted a final report that the story put up by the complainant is false and concocted one; the real facts are that about a month before the alleged incident, the complainant and his family members were challaned under Section 151 Cr.P.C. over a dispute relating to a land; Shashi Yadav late wife of Dr. Divya Nand Yadav (appellant no.1) had purchased a plot no. 256 and her name was mutated in revenue records; Prem Kumar- the complainant (respondent no. 2) has been illegally interfering in the peaceful possession of the appellants; this complaint on the basis of an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. with a false story, has been filed with ulterior motives and to sully the image of appellant nos. 1 and 2, who run a private nursing home; It is argued that the entire proceedings is malafide and gross abuse of process of law.

5. This is a settled position of law that at the stage of summoning in a complaint case, the court has to confine itself to the evidence produced on behalf of the complainant. It may be noted that at this stage the accused or a proposed accused have no say in the matter. They do not have any opportunity to present their side before the trial court. They do not have any opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses and the court is, therefore handicapped to some extent to check the veracity of the allegations. The court ordinarily has no option but to depend upon the statement of the witnesses. But this impediment is sought to be diminished by law itself. It may be noted that section 200 Cr.P.C. speaks of examination of complainant and the witnesses present. The provisions says that the Magistrate shall examine on oath the complainant and the witnesses present, if any. Experience shows that though not always but in a number of cases, for various reasons, which need not be elaborated here, the complainant is not examined by the Magistrate himself instead the complainant either just gives a statement on his own or is led by his counsel to parrot a story which suits him and such statement acquires legal sanctity as statement under Section 200 Cr.P.C.

6. There is certain purpose behind enacting this provision in this manner. When a Magistrate who is trained in law, himself asks the questions he may elicit the facts which are nearer to truth. Obviously then there are much better chance to check the veracity of allegations, the evaluation of evidence before him and thereby come to the right conclusion for summoning the real culprits and at the same time putting his foot down that no innocent person is summoned unnecessarily. The purpose is lost when this power is not utilized.

7. The same is true for the examination of witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C. Section 202 Cr.P.C. speaks of an inquiry to be conducted by the Magistrate himself, if it thinks fit (or direct for investigation by a police officer) for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding. Section 202 Cr.P.C. and Section 202 (2) are as below:-

"(1) Any Magistrate, on receipt of a complaint of an offence of which he is authorised to take cognizance or which has been made over to him under section 192, may, if he thinks fit, postpone the issue of process against the accused, and either inquire into the case himself or direct an investigation to be made by a police officer or by such other person as he thinks fit, for the purpose of deciding whether or not there is sufficient ground for proceeding: Provided that no such direction for investigation shall be made,--

(a) where it appears to the Magistrate that the offence complained of is triable exclusively by the Court of Session; or

(b) where the complaint has not been made by a Court, unless the complainant and the witnesses present (if any) have been examined on oath under section 200.

"(2) In an inquiry under sub- section (1), the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, take evidence of witnesses on oath: Provided that if it appears to the Magistrate that the offence complained of is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, he shall call upon the complainant to produce all his witnesses and examine them on oath."

8. It is clear that the examination of witnesses under Section 202 Cr.P.C., as is popularly known, is in fact part of inquiry which a Magistrate may conduct in cases he does not find enough of grounds to immediately proceed to summon the accused. Though not always, this part of procedure too has become a routine matter. In almost all the cases based on complaint, the witnesses are examined without realizing the fact that such a step shall be unnecessary if the Magistrate/the court concerned is satisfied that prima facie case is made out, on the basis of the examination of the complainant and his witnesses at previous stage of the case i.e. section 200 Cr.P.C. Where the Magistrate finds himself short of requisite level of 'satisfaction' then only he may decide to further probe into by ordering for examination of more witnesses. The reasons behind jumping to the next step of Section 202 Cr.P.C. have gone in to oblivion in the rush of work and almost routinization of things.

9. The phrase occurring in Section 202 Cr.P.C. "inquire into the case himself" enjoins the Magistrate that he actually plays its part by examining the witnesses himself, rather than depending upon the statements which might be clouded, cryptic, obscure or ambiguous and sometime very direct and bald. The experience in courts strengthens the impression that more often than not unsupervised, one sided statement may have more to conceal than to reveal. It is said that law is a living being. It grows and develops according to the exigencies of the times. It will not be out of context to mention that the superior courts have observed in a number of cases that the trial courts ought to be quite alert when they decide to take cognizance or summon the accused persons, may be at the stage of Section 204 Cr.P.C. or otherwise. The superior courts have consistently kept on cautioning the courts to be quite circumspect, careful, alert and wakeful while putting the legal machinery in motion. The vicissitudes of cases, peculiar facts and situations do impact the interpretations of law and contribute towards the developments and progress of legal arena.

10. There cannot be two opinions on the settled legal position that the Magistrate has to decide whether prima facie any case is made out or not, before proceeding to summon the accused persons. The meaning of prima facie case must be understood in the right perspective. There may be cases where the Magistrate finds that in literal sense of the words occurring in the statements the ingredients of an offence are there but he feels not so satisfied with them. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in para-11 of the judgment passed in Fiona Shrikhande vs. State of Maharashtra and Another; (2013) 14 SCC 44, observed as below:-

"At the complaint stage, the Magistrate is merely concerned with the allegations made out in the complaint and has only to "prima facie satisfy" whether there are "sufficient grounds to proceed" against the accused and it is not the province of the Magistrate to enquire into a detailed discussion on the merits or demerits of the case. The scope of enquiry under Section 202 is extremely limited in the sense that the Magistrate, at this stage, is expected to examine prima facie the truth or falsehood of the allegations made in the complaint."

The Supreme Court has used the phrase arriving at "prima facie satisfaction" whether there are "sufficient grounds to proceed"! Section 204 Cr.P.C. nowhere said that the Magistrate shall take cognizance and summon the accused if prima facie case is made out, instead Section 204 Cr.P.C. says that the Magistrate may take cognizance if there is sufficient ground for proceeding, hence in my view the prima facie case must be construed to mean "prima facie satisfaction" arrived at by the Magistrate. In other words the Magistrate shall proceed only if he finds that there is sufficient ground for the same. This is not to say that the proposed accused shall have any right to be heard at that stage or that any evidence in defence can be considered. It merely means that the Magistrate shall assess all the material before it and apply its mind to find out whether time has come to proceed and take cognizance. In that view of the matter the Supreme Court in the case as aforesaid has instead of using the word "prima facie case" has found fit to use the phrase "prima facie satisfaction" and of course this satisfaction has to be arrived at while acting within the four corners of law i.e., by adopting the procedure as provided under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. In my view, the Magistrate is not powerless to examine the truth or falsehood of the case made in the complaint. And to fully utilize this power the Magistrate has to play its role of examining himself the complaint and his witnesses under Sections 200 Cr.P.C., and if required to further inquire into by calling more witnesses and examining them or even by ordering investigation. The steering wheel of the inquiry cannot be left at the hands of the complainant. For the reason that at that stage, the accused has no say in the matter and the court has no opportunity to hear the other side, therefore he ought to remain very cautious, circumspect and alert. The broad probabilities or improbabilities of the story of course may be seen at this stage.

The relative scope of Sections 203 and 204 Cr.P.C. were noted and considered by the Supreme Court in Pepsi Food Limited and another vs. Special Judicial Magistrate and others; (1998) 5 SCC 749, is as below:-

"Summoning of an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter. Criminal law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course. It is not that the complainant has to bring only two witnesses to support his allegations in the complaint to have the criminal law set into motion. The order of the magistrate summoning the accused must reflect that he has applied his mind to the facts of the case and the law applicable thereto. He has to examine the nature of allegations made in the complaint and the evidence both oral and documentary in support thereof and would that be sufficient for the complainant to succeed in bringing charge home to the accused. It is not that the Magistrate is a silent spectator at the time of recording of preliminary evidence before summoning of the accused. Magistrate has to carefully scrutinise the evidence brought on record and may even himself put questions to the complainant and his witnesses to elicit answers to find out the truthfulness of the allegations or otherwise and then examine if any offence is prima facie committed by all or any of the accused."

The Supreme Court emphasized the need that the Magistrate should not sit like a silent spectator.

11. Though as far as this case is concerned and keeping in mind that the court cannot go beyond the material on record, some facts are revealed which should have alerted the Magistrate/the court concerned, while exercising his powers. The court did not consider the fact that there has not been any medical evidence of physical assault; PW1 has referred to the fact that he was raising construction on his own land when the incident happened; Admittedly there lied a dispute over land; His mother (PW1) and his brother (PW2), who were examined under Section 202 Cr.P.C have supported the statements given by the complainant and said that Dr. Divya Nand Yadav, Shashi Yadav (wife of appellant no. 1) and one Shiva Nand beat them mercilessly. Except those bald statements uncorroborated with any medical evidence, there is nothing worth mention on record; On the other hand there is a report from concerned police station which says that Dr. Divya Nand Yadav (appellant no. 1) had purchased a land situated near the land of the complainant; The appellants got his land measured by a team of revenue officials and it was found that almost 2 biswas of land was illegally encroached upon by the complainant, on which a wheat crop was standing; The report also says that the complainant and his family members took away some of the harvested wheat crop lying there. Shashi Yadav W/o Dr. Divya Nand Yadav, therefore lodged an FIR case crime no. 116 of 2021 under Sections 379, 504 and 506 IPC; therefore this false case has been lodged by the complainant against them for ulterior motives.

12. Moreover certain other facts have come before this court which cannot be ignored. The complaint in the instant case has been lodged by Prem Kumar against Dr. Divya Nand Yadav, Dr. Shivanand Yadav and Shashi Yadav alleging an incident which took place on 15.03.2021 at about 7.00 in the evening. With strikingly similar allegations another complaint by one Vindhyachal Ram has been lodged regarding an incident which allegedly took place on 22.02.2021 at about 10.00 in the morning alleging that when he was raising construction, Shashi Yadav came to his place claiming the land as her own and that Dr. Divya Nand Yadav, Shivanand and one Akhilesh Sharma came there abusing them with casteist words and the complainant too mentioned that earlier also Dr. Divya Nand Yadav had filed a (false) case of stealing the wheat crops against him. Admittedly on the basis of aforesaid complaint by Vindhyachal Ram (grandfather of the instant complainant-Prem Kumar), another complaint case no. 129 of 2021 is pending against the revisionists, in which they have been summoned exactly for the same kind of offences and that another Criminal Appeal No. 9201 of 2022 filed by Dr. Divya Nand Yadav and 2 others challenging the summoning order is pending.

13. Though it is agreed that at the stage of appeal, other side has an opportunity to be heard and point out or bring before the court the facts more clearly, which the trial court, obviously lacks, hence the appellate court is better equipped in coming to the right conclusion. I must add a word of caution here. The aforesaid advantage available to the appellate court, especially in a complaint case cannot be a justification, for the trial court, who has not played its part in a diligent manner to pass orders which stand on shaky grounds. Firstly, by not asking the questions himself and by not playing an active role as is expected from a Magistrate/court while conducting an inquiry. Secondly, on the basis of whatever material which has come before the trial court, the trial court shall arrive at a satisfaction whether there is sufficient ground to proceed or not; The Magistrate/court cannot draw a conclusion of prima facie case by depending upon literal meaning of statements. A dias has to be held by a Magistrate/Judge not a robot.

14. The fact of the matter is that the court shall not proceed in a mechanical or a routine manner. It shall apply its mind, which is called a judicial mind and discretion as well. The court/the Magistrate, though shall not go deep into the evidence given and shall not weigh the evidentiary value in a meticulous manner. Except this rider, there is no other obstacles before the court below for arriving at the "prima facie satisfaction" a word which can be equated with the word "prima facie case".

15. In my view, the judicial process should not become a tool for oppression or avoidable harassment. I am of the opinion that there was not sufficient material to proceed to take cognizance and summon the accused persons, hence the impugned order is hereby, set aside.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned AGA and perused the records.

2. This criminal revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 19.02.2010 passed by Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-IV, Faizabad, in Criminal Misc. Case No. 82 of 1998, convicting the revisionist-accused under Section 323 I.P.C. for six months simple imprisonment with fine of Rs. 500/- and under Section 325 I.P.C. for three years simple imprisonment with fine of Rs. 1,000/- with default stipulation as well as the judgment and order dated 28.01.2011 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.5. Faizabad in Criminal Appeal No. 33 of 2010 whereby the Appellate Court has affirmed the judgment and order of learned Trial Court.

3. In brief, facts of the case are that the informant Smt. Ram Rati lodged an F.I.R. at Police Station Haidarganj, Faizabad, that when her grand daughter namely Km. Kamlesh was grazing cattle and they entered the field of accused Ram Pratap, he beat up her grand daughter by punches and slaps. When her grand daughter narrated her, she went to the house of accused to reprimand him, the accused also beaten her with sticks. On her hue and cry when villagers reached there, the accused fled away abusing the informant. The informant received injury in her right hand. The F.I.R. was lodged and during the course of investigation, after finding fracture at the lower part of her right hand, the N.C.R. was converted into F.I.R. and Section 325 I.P.C. was added and the I.O. submitted charge-sheet under Section 323, 325 and 504 I.P.C.

4. The concerned Magistrate framed the charges under the aforesaid Sections. The prosecution, in order to prove the guilt, examined following witnesses.

P.W.-1	Km. Kamlesh
P.W.-2	Ram Rati
P.W.-3	S.I. K.P. Singh
P.W.-4	Constable Ram Saran Bharti
P.W.-5	Dr. A.K. Srivastava

5. The prosecution produced following documentary evidence:

Ex. Ka-1	Medical report
Ex. Ka-2	Carbon Copy N.C.R.
Ex. Ka-3	Carbon Copy Kayami G.D.
Ex. Ka-4	Carbon Copy Radiologist report

6. The statement of the accused was recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. wherein he denied the allegations and charges and stated that the witnesses have deposed due to enmity. No defence evidence was produced from the side of the accused.

7. Before the Trial Court, it has been argued that since the copy of the N.C.R. is not on record and G.D had not been produced and no order under Section 155 (2) Cr.P.C. was on record, hence, the investigation is faulty and the accused is entitled to the benefit of doubt.

8. This argument was answered by the trial Court that the case was initially registered as N.C.R. but on the basis of fracture and radiologist's report, the case was converted into Section 325, 323 and 504 I.P.C. and a crime no. 82 of 1998 was allotted. It has been satisfactorily answered that carbon copy of N.C.R. was available on record which was admissible in evidence under Section 65 of The Indian Evidence Act.

9. Another objection was raised by the counsel for the accused that carbon copy of the G.D. is not available on record. It is proved that the G.D. are weeded out after five years. Hence original G.D. was not available. Carbon copy of the G.D. is prepared in the same process, therefore, carbon copy of the G.D. can be treated as original.

10. It was further argued before the trial Court that the place of occurrence has not been proved and there are serious contradictions about the place of occurrence in the statements of the witnesses of facts.

There are only two witnesses of fact namely P.W.1, Km. Kamlesh and P.W.2, informant, Ram Rati. It has been written in the N.C.R. that the informant was going to reprimand the accused at his home when he started beating her by sticks. P.W.1 has deposed that accused had beaten at her hand, she further deposed that after getting information from her grand daughter, she had not gone to the house of the accused. She denied that such statement was given by her to the I.O. This witness deposed that when she reached on the field, no one was there. Km. Kamlesh, P.W.1, has deposed that when her grand mother asked about the beating from the accused, the accused also beaten her before reaching the field. This witness has clearly deposed that her grandmother had not gone to the house of the accused. Thus, from the evidence of both the witnesses it has been clearly established that Ram Rati was beaten by the accused in between his house and his field.

Thus the trial Court did not find any discrepancy about the place of occurrence in the evidence of both the witnesses of fact.

11. It was further argued before the Court that as per the N.C.R., the occurrence took place at about 3:00 P.M. whereas the informant had stated under Section 161 Cr.P.C. that the occurrence had taken place at about 4:00 P.M.

The learned trial Court has concluded that the statement given in the Court would prevail over the statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

According to this Court, P.W.-2 is an illiterate, rustic villager, there is no evidence that at the time of incident, she was wearing a watch, hence, one hour variation in time of incident is immaterial and on account of such variation, it can not be said that time of occurrence has been substantially changed. According to this Court on account of such variation, the prosecution case can not be said to be suspicious or doubtful.

12. It was further argued before the trial Court that the evidence of P.W.5, Dr. A.K.Srivastava is not admissible in evidence as there was difference in name of the doctor.

On the injury report, the name of the doctor has been written to be Dr. A.K. Srivastava whereas by slip of pen his name has been written to be S.K.Srivastava on the back of the charge-sheet. It has not been established that there were two doctors, therefore, only on account of slip of pen no benefit can be given to the accused.

According to the prosecution when the informant Ram Rati went to reprimand the accused for beating her grand daughter, he attacked with sticks on her right hand due to which her hand was broken. It has also been proved from the evidence of Dr. A.K. Srivastava. Further injury report & x-ray plate were also on record which have been proved by the concerned witnesses.

According to the accused, the witnesses were falsely deposing on account of enmity but he could not disclose any prior enmity between him and the informant which may be a cause of false implication.

13. On the basis of above discussions, the learned Trial Court convicted the accused under Section 323 and 325 I.P.C.

14. Being aggrieved the accused-revisionist filed Appeal No. 33 of 2010 (Ram Pratap Vs. State of U.P.) which was decided by Additional Sessions Judge Court No.5, Faizabad by judgment and order dated 28.01.2011 affirming the order of conviction and sentencing passed by the Trial Court.

15. During the appeal, a ground was taken by the accused-revisionist-appellant that since the investigating officer has not been examined and the charge-sheet has not been proved, hence, he is not liable to be convicted and the appeal was liable to be allowed.

In this regard, the Appellate Court relied on the following judicial precedents:

(i) Bihari Prasad and Others Vs. State of Bihar, 1996 (2) SCC 317.

(ii) Raj Kishor Jha Vs. State of Bihar, 2003, (47) ACC, 1068.

In both the cases it has been held that in each and every case, examination of the investigating officer is not necessary if no prejudice is caused to the accused.

According to this Court, in the case in hand, a prompt F.I.R. has been lodged and after finding fracture on right hand of the informant, the case was converted into Section 325 I.P.C. This Court is of the view that non-examination of the I.O. is not fatal for the prosecution as in this case the oral, documentary and medical evidence are in support of each other. Hence, accused not been prejudiced by non-examination of the I.O.

16. On the basis of above discussion, this Court is of the view that the judgment and order of both the Courts below are factually and legally correct and no other opinion in favour of the revisionist can be formed. Thus, the conviction awarded by the learned Trial Court and upheld by the Appellant Court, is affirmed.

17. At this juncture, learned counsel for the revisionist argued that it is a case of the year 1998 and 25 years have been elapsed and the accused has become an old (senior citizen). There is no previous or past criminal history of the accused, the occurrence had taken place in a fit of anger due to wastage of crop of the accused-revisionist on account of grazing by the cattle of the informant, hence, a lenient view should be adopted regarding sentence. He further argued that no useful purpose would be served by sending the accused-revisionist in jail and he may be released on probation of good conduct.

18. In this regard learned counsel for the accused-revisionist has placed reliance on the following judgments:

(a) State of Karnataka Vs. Muddappa, (1999) 5 SCC 732,

In this case, the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. was converted into Section 304 Part II I.P.C. Relevant portion is being quoted hereinbelow:

“2. The learned Counsel for the appellant is not in a position to assail the acquittal of the accused under Section 302 I.P.C., but he vehemently contends that the Court did not bear in mind germane considerations for releasing the accused on probation after convicting him under Section 304 Part II I.P.C. Whether the benefit of the Probation of Offenders Act could be extended in any particular case depends upon the circumstances of that case. Admittedly, there is no statutory bar for application of the Act to an offence under Section 304 Part II where the maximum punishment is neither death nor imprisonment for life. In that view of the matter and on examining the impugned judgment of the High Court, we find that the Court did consider the relevant material and then came to the conclusion that the accused should be released on probation by applying the provisions of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act. We see no infirmity with that order to be interfered with by this Court after this length of time, more so when nothing has been pointed out as to whether the accused has, in any way, violated the terms and conditions of allowing him on probation.”

(b) Mohd. Monir Alam Vs. State of Bihar, (2010) 12 SCC 26.

In this case the offence under Section 302 I.P.C was converted into Section 304 part II and the Apex Court found it fit to enlarge the appellant on probation instead of sending him to jail for serving the sentence. Relevant part of this judgment is reproduced hereinbelow:

“8. We have considered Mr. Suri's submissions very carefully. We see from the documents that the appellant has secured a Doctorate and is presently employed as a Senior Assistant Professor in the Department of Strategic and Regional Studies, University of Jammu and that he had secured this appointment in the year 1997. His profession qualifications have also been provided to us which show his expertise in his speciality and also portray his association with prestigious organisations worldwide in the field of strategic studies. We are, therefore, of the opinion that his conduct that his conduct and attainments after his involvement in this matter justify his release on probation. We, accordingly, dismiss the appeal but direct that he shall be released on probation under Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 on terms to be settled by the trial court.”

(c) Krishna Deo and Others Vs. State of U.P., judgment dated 11.08.2017, passed in Criminal Appeal No. 735 of 1982, passed by Division Bench of this Court. Relevant portion of this judgment is reproduced as follows:

“23. We are also not interfering with the conviction of appellants- Smt. Jaikali and Smt. Bhagwande under Section 147 & 323/149 of the IPC. As discussed above, considering the facts and circumstances of the case, instead of sentencing the appellant no. 1 for the offence under Section 304 Part-II r/w Section 34, 147, 323/149 of the IPC., we think it proper in the interest of justice to release the appellant- Krishnadeo, after giving him the benefit of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act. We are not inclined to interfere with the sentence passed against the appellant- Smt. Jaikali, Smt. Bhagwande, who were only directed to pay fine. Appellant-Krishna Deo is directed to surrender in the court below. The learned court below is directed to release him as per the provisions of Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act. The learned court below shall take all coercive steps for realizing the fine from appellants-Jaikali and Bhagwande, if the same has not been deposited by them."

19. From the aforesaid discussions, it is very much clear that the High Court and Hon'ble the Supreme Court have enlarged the accused on probation instead of sending them in jail even in case of culpable homicide not amounting to murder which had fallen under Section 304 part II I.P.C. In the present case the accused has been held guilty only under Section 323 and 325 I.P.C. therefore, the case of the accused-revisionist is at better footing.

20. Section 360 and 361 of the Code of Criminal Procedure are relevant for the purpose of probation to first offenders. Both these sections are reproduced as under:-

"360. Order to release on probation of good conduct or after admonition.—(1) When any person not under twenty-one years of age is convicted of an offence punishable with fine only or with imprisonment for a term of seven years or less, or when any person under twenty-one years of age or any woman is convicted of an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and no previous conviction is proved against the offender, if it appears to the Court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character or antecedents of the offender, and to the circumstances in which the offence was committed, that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good conduct, the Court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period (not exceeding three years) as the Court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour:

Provided that where any first offender is convicted by a Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered by the High Court, and the Magistrate is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised, he shall record his opinion to that effect, and submit the proceedings to a Magistrate of the first class, forwarding the accused to, or taking bail for his appearance before, such Magistrate, who shall dispose of the case in the manner provided by sub-section (2).

(2) Where proceedings are submitted to a Magistrate of the first class as provided by sub-section (1), such Magistrate may thereupon pass such sentence or make such order as he might have passed or made if the case had originally been heard by him, and, if he thinks further inquiry or additional evidence on any point to be necessary, he may make such inquiry or take such evidence himself or direct such inquiry or evidence to be made or taken.

(3) In any case in which a person is convicted of theft, theft in a building, dishonest misappropriation, cheating or any offence under the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), punishable with not more than two years, imprisonment or any offence punishable with fine only and no previous conviction is proved against him, the Court before which he is so convicted may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender and to the trivial nature of the offence or any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, instead of sentencing him to any punishment, release him after due admonition.

(4) An order under this section may be made by any Appellate Court or by the High Court or Court of Session when exercising its powers of revision.

(5) When an order has been made under this section in respect of any offender, the High Court or Court of Session may, on appeal when there is a right of appeal to such Court, or when exercising its powers of revision, set aside such order, and in lieu thereof pass sentence on such offender according to law: Provided that the High Court or Court of Session shall not under this sub-section inflict a greater punishment than might have been inflicted by the Court by which the offender was convicted.

(6) The provisions of sections 121, 124 and 373 shall, so far as may be, apply in the case of sureties offered in pursuance of the provisions of this section.

(7) The Court, before directing the release of an offender under sub-section (1), shall be satisfied that an offender or his surety (if any) has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place for which the Court acts or in which the offender is likely to live during the period named for the observance of the conditions.

(8) If the Court which convicted the offender, or a Court which could have dealt with the offender in respect of his original offence, is satisfied that the offender has failed to observe any of the conditions of his recognizance, it may issue a warrant for his apprehension.

(9) An offender, when apprehended on any such warrant, shall be brought forthwith before the Court issuing the warrant, and such Court may either remand him in custody until the case is heard or admit him to bail with a sufficient surety conditioned on his appearing for sentence and such Court may, after hearing the case, pass sentence.

(10) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 (20 of 1958), or the Children Act, 1960 (60 of 1960) or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders.

361. Special reasons to be recorded in certain cases.—Where in any case the Court could have dealt with,—(a) an accused person under section 360 or under the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 (20 of 1958); or (b) a youthful offender under the Children Act, 1960 (60 of 1960) or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders, 135 but has not done so, it shall record in its judgment the special reasons for not having done so."

21. There is one central Legislation on the subject in the name of "Probation of Offenders Act, 1958", relevant Sections 3 and 4 thereof are extracted hereunder:-

"3. Power of court to release certain offenders after admonition.—When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence punishable under section 379 or section 380 or section 381 or section 404 or section 420 of the Indian Penal Code, (45 of 1860) or any offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than two years, or with fine, or with both, under the Indian Penal Code or any other law, and no previous conviction is proved against him and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence, and the character of the offender, it is expedient so to do, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may, instead of sentencing him to any punishment or releasing him on probation of good conduct under section 4, release him after due admonition.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, previous conviction against a person shall include any previous order made against him under this section or section 4.

4. Power of court to release certain offenders on probation of good conduct.—

(1) When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, it is expedient to release him on probation of good conduct, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period, not exceeding three years, as the court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour: Provided that the court shall not direct such release of an offender unless it is satisfied that the offender or his surety, if any, has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place over which the court exercises jurisdiction or in which the offender is likely to live during the period for which he enters into the bond.

(2) Before making any order under sub-section (1), the court shall take into consideration the report, if any, of the probation officer concerned in relation to the case.

(3) When an order under sub-section (1) is made, the court may, if it is of opinion that in the interests of the offender and of the public it is expedient so to do, in addition pass a supervision order directing that the offender shall remain under the supervision of a probation officer named in the order during such period, not being less than one year, as may be specified therein, and may in such supervision order impose such conditions as it deems necessary for the due supervision of the offender.

(4) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall require the offender, before he is released, to enter into a bond, with or without sureties, to observe the conditions specified in such order and such additional conditions with respect to residence, abstention from intoxicants or any other matter as the court may, having regard to the particular circumstances, consider fit to impose for preventing a repetition of the same offence or a commission of other offences by the offender.

(5) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall explain to the offender the terms and conditions of the order and shall forthwith furnish one copy of the supervision order to each of the offenders, the sureties, if any, and the probation officer concerned."

22. There is one more legislation on the subject namely "Uttar Pradesh First Offenders' Probation Act, 1938". Sections 3 and 4 of the Act are reproduced herein below:-

"3. Power of court to release certain offenders after admonition.—In any case in which a person is found guilty of the offences of theft, dishonesty, misappropriation or cheating, punishable under the Indian Penal Code, or of any offence punishable with not more than two years imprisonment and no previous conviction is proved against him, the court by which he is found guilty may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender, and to the trivial nature of the offence or any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed instead of sentencing him to any punishment, release him after due admonition.

4. Power of court to release certain offenders on probation of good conduct.—

(1) When any person is convicted of an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and no previous conviction is proved against the offender, if it appears to the court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender and to the circumstances in which the offence was committed that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good conduct the court may instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period not exceeding three years as the court may direct and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour :

Provided that the court shall not direct the release of an offender under this section unless it is satisfied that the offender, or his surety, has a fixed place of abode and regular occupation in the place for which the court acts, or in which the offender is likely to live during the period named for the observance of the conditions :

Provided also that if a person under twenty-one years of age is convicted of any offence under the Indian Penal Code, or any other enactments prescribed in this behalf under rules made by the State Government, which is punishable with imprisonment not exceeding six months, the court shall take action under this section unless, for special reasons to be recorded in writing, it does not consider it proper to do so.

(2) Where the offender ordered to be released under sub-section (1) is under twenty-four years of age, the court may make a supervision order directing that such offender shall be under the supervision of such probation officer as may be named in the order during the period specified therein and imposing such other conditions for securing such supervision as may be specified in the order:

Provided that the period so specified shall not extend beyond the date on which, in the opinion of the court, the offender will attain the age of twenty-five years.

(3) A court making an order under sub-section (2) shall require the offender, before he is released to enter into a bond, with or without sureties, to observe the condition with respect to residence, abstention from intoxicants and any other matters as the court may, having regard to the particular circumstances of the case, consider fit to impose for preventing a repetition of the same offence or a commission of other offences by the offender.

(4) A court making an order under sub-section (2) shall furnish to the offender and the sureties, if any, a notice in writing stating in simple terms the conditions of the bond.

A perusal of these legislations will leave a student of Law in a confused state of mind. All these legislations are dealing with the same subject and on first sight looks encroaching each other. Looking closely, one may get that Section 360 of the Code relates only to persons not under twenty one years of age is convicted for an offence punishable with fine or with imprisonment for a term of seven years or less, or when any person under twenty one years of age or any woman is convicted for an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and no previous conviction is proved, may be released on probation, taking into consideration the facts and circumstances of the case, character of the offender and the gravity of the offence committed by him. Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act is having a much wider scope as it applies to any person found guilty of having committed an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life. If I look further deep into Section 360 CrPC we will find that in sub-section (10) it has been provided that nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act."

23. A Division Bench of this Court in State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Misri Lal and others, 1982 CrLJ 1420 held as under:-

"26. ...The application of Section 360 in Uttar Pradesh was taken away by an Ordinance of the year 1975. The Ordinance was repealed and replaced by the Criminal P.C. (Uttar Pradesh Amendment) Act, No. 16 of 1976. This Act received the assent of the President on 30-4-1975 and published in the Uttar Pradesh Extraordinary Gazette dated 1-5-1976. Section 12 of this Act repealed the Ordinance and laid down that notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the Ordinance shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the provisions of this Act as if this Act had come into force on November, 28, 1975. The learned trial judge decided the case on 2-2-1976. Section 10 of the Amending Act No. 16 of 1976 amended S.484 of the Code and inserted the following clause (e) after clause (d) :-

"(e) ...the United Provinces First Offenders' Probation Act 1938.....shall continue in force in the State of Uttar Pradesh and accordingly the provisions of Section 360 of this Code shall not apply to that State and the provisions of Section 361 shall apply with the substitution or reference to the Central Acts named therein by references to the corresponding Act in force in that State".

Section 361 of the CrPC lays down that where in any case the Court could have dealt with an accused person under Section 360 or under the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, or a youthful offender under the Children Act, 1960 or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders, but has not done so, it shall record in its judgement the special reasons for not having done so.

It follows from this provision read with clause (e) of S.484 mentioned above, the Court is required to record special reasons for not extending the benefit of the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh First Offenders' Probation Act, 1938."

24. Thus, provisions of UP Probation of First Offenders' Act shall be followed, in the geographical area where that has been made applicable and not Section 360 of the CrPC. In this way enforcement of Probation Act in some particular area, thus excludes the applicability of the provisions of Section 360 of the Code in that particular area, however it will be the bounden duty of the Court to consider as to why not to proceed to grant the benefit of Probation of Offenders Act, as provided under Section 361 of the CrPC.

25. Coming to the point of desirability of extending the benefit of Probation Act to the accused/revisionist in Sitaram Paswan and another Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 2005 SC 3534 Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:-

"For exercising the power which is discretionary, the Court has to consider circumstances of the case, the nature of the offence and the character of the offender. While considering the nature of the offence, the Court must take a realistic view of the gravity of the offence, the impact which the offence had on the victim. The benefit available to the accused under Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act is subject to the limitation embodied in the provisions and the word "may" clearly indicates that the discretion vests with the Court whether to release the offender in exercise of the powers under Section 3 or 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, having regard to the nature of the offence and the character of the offender and overall circumstances of the case. The powers under Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act vest with the Court when any person is found guilty of the offence committed, not punishable with death or imprisonment for life. This power can be exercised by the Courts while finding the person guilty and if the Court thinks that having regard to the circumstances of the case, including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, benefit should be extended to the accused, the power can be exercised by the Court even at the appellate or revisional stage and also by this Court while hearing appeal under Article 136 of the Constitution of India."

26. In Mohd. Hashim Vs. State of U.P and others, AIR 2017 SC 660, Hon'ble Supreme Court opined as under:-

"20. ...In Rattan Lal v. State of Punjab AIR 1965 SC 444. Subba Rao, J., speaking for the majority, opined thus:-

"The Act is a milestone in the progress of the modern liberal trend of reform in the field of penology. It is the result of the recognition of the doctrine that the object of criminal law is more to reform the individual offender than to punish him. Broadly stated, the Act distinguishes offenders below 21 years of age and those above that age, and offenders who are guilty of having committed an offence punishable with death or imprisonment for life and those who are guilty of a lesser offence. While in the case of offenders who are above the age of 21 years absolute discretion is given to the court to release them after admonition or on probation of good conduct, subject to the conditions laid down in the appropriate provisions of the Act, in the case of offenders below the age of 21 years an injunction is issued to the court not to sentence them to imprisonment unless it is satisfied that having regard to the circumstances of the case; including the nature of the offence and the character of the offenders, it is not desirable to deal with them under Sections 3 and 4 of the Act."

27. This is a case of the year 1998 and more than 25 years have passed. The incident took place way back in the year 1998. The accused-revisionist has suffered in the matter for almost past two and half decades and there is no other pre or post criminal antecedent of the accused revisionist. Therefore, it would not be appropriate to send the revisionist in jail.

28. As far as the conviction part is concerned, this Court does not find any illegality, perversity or infirmity in the order passed by the courts below but keeping in view the discussion made above, the sentence inflicted on the accused-revisionist requires modification.

29. The revision is partly allowed with following modifications:-

29.1. The conviction of the accused-revisionist by courts below is upheld. The sentence of revisionist-accused is modified to the tune that he is provided benefit of Section 4 of the UP Probation of Offenders Act and is released on probation on the condition that he will keep peace and good conduct for one year from today and shall file two sureties to the tune of Rs.10,000/- each along with his personal bond before the court below and also an undertaking to the effect that he shall maintain peace and good behaviour during the period of one year from today. In case of breach of any of the conditions mentioned above, the revisionist will be subjected to undergo the sentence as directed by the courts below. The bonds aforesaid will be filed by the revisionist-accused within one month from today, before the District Probation Officer, Ayodhya, UP under the intimation to the concerned court.

30. A certified copy of the order be also sent to the court concerned and District Probation Officer, Ayodhya, UP for compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. This criminal revision has been preferred against the judgment and order of conviction and sentencing dated 29.10.1992 passed by the Assistant Sessions Judge-IV, Agra in Sessions Trial No.166 of 1992 (State Vs. Rakesh and others), under Sections 149, 436, 427, 452

IPC as well as the judgment and order dated 27.03.1993 passed by Additional Sessions Judge-IV, Agra in Criminal Appeal No.61 of 1992 (Rakesh and others Vs. State of UP). The trial Judge convicted and sentenced all the the accused persons under Section 436 read with Section 149 IPC and sentenced to undergo three and half years rigorous imprisonment each, under Section 452 read with Section 149 IPC for six months rigorous imprisonment each, under Section 427 read with Section 149 IPC they were directed to undergo three months rigorous imprisonment each. It was also directed that all the sentences shall run concurrently.

2. The appeal was partly allowed with regard to accused Veeru and the conviction and sentencing under Section 452 read with Section 149 IPC was also quashed.

3. Being aggrieved by both the order the convicted accused persons have preferred this revision. During the pendency of this revision, accused-revisionist no.6, Kalua had died and this revision in respect of revisionist no.6 has been abated and the same survives in respect of revisionist nos.1 to 5.

4. The revisionists have taken ground that in this case investigating officer (IO) has not been examined, recovery memo is not proved, no independent witness has been examined, the disputed land was a nazul land and the temporary hut installed by the informant was already removed by the Nazul Department/Nagar Maha Palika, site plan has not been proved. Section 436 IPC is not made out as the alleged occurrence is said to have been committed in a hut. Witnesses are highly partitioned witnesses and their statement cannot be relied on and more so their statements are also self-contradictory. PW-2, Banshi husband of the informant is said to have reached on the spot just after the incident. He was a chance witness. Presence of the alleged witnesses is not established. One of the accused Veeru has been exonerated. Hence, the revision be allowed and the impugned judgments and orders of conviction and sentencing passed by the trial court and the appellate court as well be set aside.

5. In brief, facts of the case are that when the informant Smt. Vidyawati was present in her hut situated in Village Jaganpur on 17.04.1988 at about 08:30 a.m. and her husband had gone out of the house, accused Rakesh, Ravi, Veeru, Naubat, Harvir, Kalloo and Kalua alongwith 10-12 persons came at her jhopadi (hut) and directed to vacate the same. She was tying cattle therein. The accused intended to pass through the land of the hut. All the accused persons set the hut on fire which reduced to ashes and her utensils and cash etc. were burnt. Her cattle were united and led to run. The occurrence was witnessed by Natthi, Rajni and some others. There was a loss of Rs.4,000/-. Present FIR was lodged at Police Station New Agra on 17.04.1988 at 10:30 a.m. The Assistant Sessions Judge after recording and appreciating the evidence found all the accused persons guilty and convicted and sentenced them accordingly.

6. The order of the trial court was challenged in the aforementioned criminal appeal which was partly allowed as mentioned above. Being aggrieved this revision has been preferred by the convicts.

7. In this case some witnesses i.e. PW-1, Vidyawati, informant; PW-2, Banshi - husband of the informant; PW-3, Rajni - daughter of the informant; PW-4, Head Constable, Desh Raj Khanna - secondary evidence have been examined.

8. PW-1, Smt. Vidyawati - informant has deposed that on the date and time of occurrence accused persons wanted to vacate the hut when she did not vacate, they set the hut on fire due to which Rs.2,000/-, 17 k.g. grains, 30 k.g. bran (chuni) were burnt. She had lodged FIR. She recognized her thumb impression on the written complaint Ex.Ka-1.

9. PW-2, Banshi has deposed that at the time of occurrence he had gone to distribute milk. As soon as he returned, he saw that his hut was burning and people were running therefrom. According to him, accused persons were recognized when they were running away.

10. PW-3, Rajni has deposed that at the time of incident she was making tea when accused persons came and directed to come out and threatened to put the hut into fire. When she refused, the accused persons set the hut on fire. She and her mother came out due to fire due to which about 70 k.g. grain, 40 k.g. bran and Rs.2,000/- cash, books and two bhagona had been burnt.

11. PW-4, HC, Desh Raj Khanna has proved chik FIR, GD map and charge sheet as secondary evidence. He has proved secondary evidence on the ground that he had worked with SI Rajaram and Jagdish Narayan Sharma and recognizes their writing and signature.

12. The prosecution did not try to summon the formal witnesses and closed the evidence thereafter statement of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 CrPC in which accused persons averred that the land of the hut belonged to the nazul land. Accused persons had made complaint to the Nagar Maha Palika upon which the hut had already been removed. According to the accused persons at the time of the alleged occurrence there was no hut on the alleged place of occurrence.

13. After hearing the arguments, the accused persons were convicted and sentenced accordingly and the appeal was partly allowed and partly rejected. Hence, this revision has been preferred.

14. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

15. This case is decided as under:-

15.1.(i) It is admitted to the prosecution that the land of the alleged hut belonged to nazul land. The prosecution could not produce any evidence of ownership in favour of the informant. There is no denial that after complaint being made by the accused persons the alleged hut was not removed by the Nagar Maha Palika. It is a clear case of the defence that on the complaint of the accused persons Nagar Maha Palika had taken action and had removed the hut and it was not on the spot, therefore, no question arises to set the alleged hut on fire.

15.2. Learned counsel for the revisionists argued that if the alleged hut was there and was set on fire, some photographs or FSL report would have been obtained and burnt articles would have been produced as material exhibits and would have been proved in the Court during the course of trial.

15.3.(ii) PW-2, Banshi was the chance witness. It is not averred as to when he left the house and went for distribution of milk and when he returned.

15.4. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, it appears that PW-2 was a chance witness and he had not seen the occurrence. He has just repeated the version of his wife and daughter. This conclusion finds support from the fact that he did not make any effort to stop the accused persons and extinguish the fire.

15.5.(iii) According to the prosecution, all the accused persons set the hut on fire but PW-3 Rajni has deposed that only Rakesh had set the hut on fire. Thus there is vast difference between the averments of the complaint, evidence of rest of the witnesses and the evidence of PW-3, Rajni and thus the statement of PW-3 is also self-contradictory. It is not established that accused persons had made up the mind to commit an offence under Section 436 IPC on the place of occurrence. If for the sake of argument the prosecution story is accepted in toto, there is no evidence that rest of the accused persons were knowing that accused Rakesh had any matchstick to lit the fire. According to PW-1 and PW-3 the hut was set on fire before them. In that case they would be knowing as to how and on which method their hut was burnt. Whether any explosive substance was thrown on the hut or only fire was lit by matchstick. It is also nowhere mentioned and there is no evidence that when accused persons set the hut on fire, why they were not prevented by the informant and her daughter. Why no attempt to put off the fire was made and more so when just after the incident husband of the informant had reached on the spot why he had not attempted to extinguish the fire. It has not come into evidence that the informant, her daughter or her husband tried to extinguish the fire and save the hut while they were not forcibly prevented by the accused persons.

15.6.(iv) The trial court and the appellate court has accepted the evidence of the witnesses as gospel truth while they are the family members of the informant. They all were inimical to the accused persons, therefore, the statement of witnesses of fact would not be accepted without careful and cautious scrutiny. In that case their corroboration from other independent evidence was necessary before recording the conviction and sentencing of the revisionists.

16. In Bhagwan Jagannath Markad Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2016) 10 SCC 537; Dahari and others Vs. State of UP, AIR 2013 SC 308; and Shyamal Ghosh Vs. State Of West Bengal, AIR 2012 SC 3539 the Apex Court has held that in such case, Court has to adopt careful approach in analysing and accepting the evidence of such interested witnesses and if the testimony of the related witnesses is otherwise found credible, only then the accused can be convicted on the basis of testimony of such related witness.

17. In this case neither any documentary or material evidence nor evidence of independent witnesses such as Natthi and other persons present on the spot is available on record. The prosecution did not try to examine witnesses Natthi and other persons present on the spot. In such circumstance presumption under Section 114(g) of The Indian Evidence Act, 1872 arises against the prosecution and it would be presumed that the independent witnesses were not ready to tell a lie in favour of the prosecution and the informant. Hence, they were not examined.

18. It is not a case that independent witness were won over by the accused persons, therefore they were not ready to depose against them.

19. It is established from the above discussion that PW-1 to 3 were inimical to the accused persons though enmity of the witnesses with the accused is not a ground to reject their testimony, if on proper scrutiny the testimony of such witnesses is found reliable. However, the possibility of falsely involving some persons in the crime or exaggerating role of some of the accused by such witnesses should be kept in mind. It is not a case that witnesses PW-1 to 3 tried to extinguish the fire. If a house of any person is set on fire he would try his best to save the house. Such hostile act of the informant and the witnesses creates doubt in the mind of the Court that at the time of occurrence there was no such hut, therefore, witnesses did not try to save the same otherwise they would have tried their best to save the hut and they would also have received fire injuries. No fire injury on the person of the witnesses also creates doubt in the mind of the Court about the commission of alleged occurrence by the revisionists.

20. It is also material that if the accused persons had adopted legal recourse regarding removal of the hut and according to them the same was removed by the officials of Nagar Maha Palika why they would try to take law in their hands. Generally it is seen that such arsoning act are done in the night when no one is present in the house but here according to the prosecution accused persons had set the hut on fire in day-light and had also not put masks on their faces to hide their identity. Generally it is seen and it is a human conduct and behaviour that the persons do not commit offence of robbery and arsoning in day-light and if they do so with any familiar person, they hide their faces and try their best to hide their identity. It is noteworthy that PW-1, informant has accepted that she used to tie cattle in the alleged hut.

21. In this case the IO has not been examined. There is no evidence that samples from the place of occurrence or ashes and burnt articles were taken and were sent to FSL. The trial judge has completed mere formalities by recording the evidence of PW-4 who knows nothing about the case, he only recognizes the writing and signature of the concerned SI.

22. In Ratha Jena Vs. State of Orissa, (1986) 1 Crimes 299; Rajwa Kebat Vs. State of Bihar, 1988 CrLJ 1288 it has been held that non-examination of the IO when entail deprivation of an opportunity to show contradiction between a court evidence and his statement recorded under Section 161 CrPC, non-examination of IO is fatal to the prosecution. In Nagina Sharma Vs. State of Bihar, 1991 CrLJ 1195 (Patna) it has been held that non-examination of IO is relevant when the place of occurrence, site plan or other materials and other objective findings are concerned. On account of non-examination of the IO if prejudice is caused to the accused in some matters, then the Court will give benefit of doubt to the accused.

23. In Nagina Sharma (supra) it has also been held that if examination of the IO is very essential and if he is not appearing, the court has power to adopt coercive measures for his appearance as and when it is required.

24. In this case the trial judge has lamented a lot that the IO, SI Rajaram and JN Sharma have not been examined by ADGC and he had not written any application to SSP for their appearance as witness and also did not try to send message for their appearance.

25. According to this Court the trial court has faulted in extending liability upon ADGC for not summoning the IO for their examination. It is duty of the court and power rests in the court to summon the witnesses by adopting proper and coercive method as already narrated by the High Court of Judicature at Patna.

26. The trial Judge neither issued summons or warrants to the IOs nor wrote a letter to the SSP, DGP or DG prosecution. He did not care that material exhibits are not produced in the court and have not been proved, therefore, due to non-examination of the IO and non-production of the independent witnesses and material exhibits the accused revisionists have been prejudiced and it can be very well concluded that no fair trial has been done by the trial court.

27. Sections 435 and 436 IPC are read as under:-

“435. Mischief by fire or explosive substance with intent to cause damage to amount of one hundred or (in case of agricultural produce) ten rupees.—Whoever commits mischief by fire or any explosive substance intending to cause, or knowing it to be likely that he will thereby cause, damage to any property to the amount of one hundred rupees or upwards or (where the property is agricultural produce) ten rupees or upwards, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine.

436. Mischief by fire or explosive substance with intent to destroy house, etc.—Whoever commits mischief by fire or any explosive substance, intending to cause, or knowing it to be likely that he will thereby cause, the destruction of any building which is ordinarily used as a place of worship or as a human dwelling or as a place for the custody of property, shall be punished with imprisonment for life, or with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine."

28. From perusal of both the sections it is quite clear that if any damage is caused to any property to the amount of Rs.100/- or upwards the accused shall be punished under Section 435 IPC and if the destruction by fire or any explosive substance has been caused to any building which is ordinarily used as a place of worship or as a human dwelling or as a place for the custody of property, the accused shall be punished under Section 436 IPC.

29. In this case the informant PW-1 has accepted that she used to tie cattle in the alleged hut, hence according to this Court even if for the sake of argument it is accepted that the offence had been caused by the accused persons, it would not be an offence punishable under Section 436 IPC. More so, if accused persons had permitted to save the cattle and if some materials would also have been kept there, the same would also have been taken out by the informant. It has already been said that no material had been produced during the trial to prove that some grains, bran and money etc. were there.

30. In Jashmero Vs. State of Punjab, 1980 CrLJ (NOC) 46 (P&H) it has been held that a structure made straw and not of bricks and mortar may be considered a building if it has got the necessary furnishings needed for a building such as door bars etc. An ordinary thatched shed resting on bamboos or wooden or brick pillars having no doors etc. cannot be treated as a building within the meaning of the terms used in Section 436 IPC but as the bullocks therein died in consequence of the fire, the accused could be convicted under Section 435 IPC. Here no harm was being caused to any of the cattle to the informant and it has not been proved that any material of the informant had been burnt in the alleged arsoning.

31. On the basis of above discussion, this Court is of the view that the prosecution has not able to prove the case and charge against the accused persons beyond the reasonable doubt. The revisionists are entitled to benefit of doubt and the order of conviction and sentencing passed by the trial court and the appellate court as well are liable to be quashed.

32. Accordingly, this revision succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgments and orders of conviction and sentencing dated 29.10.1992 and 27.03.1993 passed by the trial court as well as by the appellate court, respectively are quashed.

33. A copy of this order be sent to the court below for necessary compliance, if any.

2. Sitaram Paswan & anr. Vs St. of Bihar, AIR 2005 SC 3534
3. Mohd. Hashim Vs St. of U.P & ors. , AIR 2017 SC 660

(Delivered by Hon'ble Umesh Chandra Sharma, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned AGA and perused the records.

2. This criminal revision has been filed against the judgment and order dated 24.04.2009 passed by the ACM (Northern Railway), Gonda in Criminal Case No.371 of 1997 (State Vs. Kapil Dev Pandey and another) as well as the judgment and order dated 07.08.2009 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.6, Gonda in Criminal Appeal No.14 of 2009 (Kapil Dev Pandey Vs. State of UP).

3. The brief facts of the case are that on 03.10.1996 the informant, Kailash Prasad, deployed as gangman gang no.13 as gateman at gate no.113-C, at about 19:30 hour saw two persons in suspicious condition bringing some heavy article towards the gate. Upon some doubt, when he asked them to stop, both of them tried to run away but were caught by him with the help of Harishchandra - gangman, gang no.13 and Baijnath, gateman gate no.113-C. Upon being inquired, they both told their names as Kapil Dev Pandey and Ramesh Kumar Shukla and from the possession of Kapil Dev Pandey IRS(T)50R written one bearing plate and from the other accused one simple bearing plate was recovered. The accused persons informed that the recovered articles were stolen from railway line near the bridge which was confirmed by the informant. Thereafter FIR was lodged at Crime No.05 of 1996, under Section 3 Railway Property (Unlawful Possession) Act, 1966 (for short 'the Act, 1966'), Police Station Tulsipur, District Gonda (Balrampur). After investigation charge sheet was submitted, charge was framed under Section 3 of the Act, 1966 against the accused which was denied by them and they sought for trial.

4. During the trial prosecution adduced oral and documentary evidence and after closure of evidence their statement under Section 313 CrPC was recorded and after hearing the argument, the accuseds were convicted and sentenced on 24.04.2009 with simple imprisonment of one year each and fine of Rs.1,500/- each for committing an offence under Section 3 of the Act, 1966.

5. The order dated 24.04.2009 was challenged by the revisionist, Kapil Dev Pandey before Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.6, Gonda (Balrampur) in Criminal Appeal No.14 of 2009 which was dismissed and the judgment and order dated 24.04.2009 was confirmed. Hence, this criminal revision has been preferred.

6. Learned counsel for revisionist submitted that the impugned judgement and order dated 24.04.2009 passed by trial court and the order dated 07.08.2009 passed by the appellate court are illegal, perverse and against the facts and evidence on record. The courts below have failed to appreciate the defence evidence which was more probable than that of prosecution evidence. The appellate court has committed illegality in maintaining the order of conviction passed by the trial court. It is also submitted that the appellate court as well as the trial court both have committed manifest error of law in refusing the benefit of Probation of Offenders Act to the revisionist without recording any reason for the same. Learned counsel for the revisionist further submitted that the revisionist was on bail during trial and never misused the liberty of bail. However, after arguing at some length, learned counsel for the revisionist submits that the revisionist may be extended the benefit of UP Probation of Offenders Act. He has further submitted that during the pendency of revision, there is no criminal antecedents and the revisionist is living as a law abiding citizen.

7. Learned AGA opposed the revision and submitted that there is no material irregularity or illegality in the impugned judgments and orders of the courts below and keeping in view the evidence on record, the revisionist was rightly convicted.

8. Section 360 and 361 of the Code of Criminal Procedure are relevant for the purpose of probation to first offenders. Both these sections are reproduced as under:-

"360. Order to release on probation of good conduct or after admonition.—(1) When any person not under twenty-one years of age is convicted of an offence punishable with fine only or with imprisonment for a term of seven years or less, or when any person under twenty-one years of age or any woman is convicted of an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and no previous conviction is proved against the offender; if it appears to the Court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character or antecedents of the offender, and to the circumstances in which the offence was committed, that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good conduct, the Court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period (not exceeding three years) as the Court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour:

Provided that where any first offender is convicted by a Magistrate of the second class not specially empowered by the High Court, and the Magistrate is of opinion that the powers conferred by this section should be exercised, he shall record his opinion to that effect, and submit the proceedings to a Magistrate of the first class, forwarding the accused to, or taking bail for his appearance before, such Magistrate, who shall dispose of the case in the manner provided by sub-section (2).

(2) Where proceedings are submitted to a Magistrate of the first class as provided by sub-section (1), such Magistrate may thereupon pass such sentence or make such order as he might have passed or made if the case had originally been heard by him, and, if he thinks further inquiry or additional evidence on any point to be necessary, he may make such inquiry or take such evidence himself or direct such inquiry or evidence to be made or taken.

(3) In any case in which a person is convicted of theft, theft in a building, dishonest misappropriation, cheating or any offence under the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860), punishable with not more than two years, imprisonment or any offence punishable with fine only and no previous conviction is proved against him, the Court before which he is so convicted may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender and to the trivial nature of the offence or any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed, instead of sentencing him to any punishment, release him after due admonition.

(4) An order under this section may be made by any Appellate Court or by the High Court or Court of Session when exercising its powers of revision.

(5) When an order has been made under this section in respect of any offender, the High Court or Court of Session may, on appeal when there is a right of appeal to such Court, or when exercising its powers of revision, set aside such order, and in lieu thereof pass sentence on such offender according to law: Provided that the High Court or Court of Session shall not under this sub-section inflict a greater punishment than might have been inflicted by the Court by which the offender was convicted.

(6) The provisions of sections 121, 124 and 373 shall, so far as may be, apply in the case of sureties offered in pursuance of the provisions of this section.

(7) The Court, before directing the release of an offender under sub-section (1), shall be satisfied that an offender or his surety (if any) has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place for which the Court acts or in which the offender is likely to live during the period named for the observance of the conditions.

(8) If the Court which convicted the offender, or a Court which could have dealt with the offender in respect of his original offence, is satisfied that the offender has failed to observe any of the conditions of his recognizance, it may issue a warrant for his apprehension.

(9) An offender, when apprehended on any such warrant, shall be brought forthwith before the Court issuing the warrant, and such Court may either remand him in custody until the case is heard or admit him to bail with a sufficient surety conditioned on his appearing for sentence and such Court may, after hearing the case, pass sentence.

(10) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 (20 of 1958), or the Children Act, 1960 (60 of 1960) or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders.

361. Special reasons to be recorded in certain cases.—Where in any case the Court could have dealt with,—(a) an accused person under section 360 or under the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958 (20 of 1958); or (b) a youthful offender under the Children Act, 1960 (60 of 1960) or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders, 135 but has not done so, it shall record in its judgment the special reasons for not having done so."

9. There is one central Legislation on the subject in the name of "Probation of Offenders Act, 1958", relevant Sections 3 and 4 thereof are extracted hereunder:-

"3. Power of court to release certain offenders after admonition.—When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence punishable under section 379 or section 380 or section 381 or section 404 or section 420 of the Indian Penal Code, (45 of 1860) or any offence punishable with imprisonment for not more than two years, or with fine, or with both, under the Indian Penal Code or any other law, and no previous conviction is proved against him and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence, and the character of the offender; it is expedient so to do, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may, instead of sentencing him to any punishment or releasing him on probation of good conduct under section 4, release him after due admonition.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, previous conviction against a person shall include any previous order made against him under this section or section 4.

4. Power of court to release certain offenders on probation of good conduct.—

(1) When any person is found guilty of having committed an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life and the court by which the person is found guilty is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender; it is expedient to release him on probation of good conduct, then, notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the court may, instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period, not exceeding three years, as the court may direct, and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour: Provided that the court shall not direct such release of an offender unless it is satisfied that the offender or his surety, if any, has a fixed place of abode or regular occupation in the place over which the court exercises jurisdiction or in which the offender is likely to live during the period for which he enters into the bond.

(2) Before making any order under sub-section (1), the court shall take into consideration the report, if any, of the probation officer concerned in relation to the case.

(3) When an order under sub-section (1) is made, the court may, if it is of opinion that in the interests of the offender and of the public it is expedient so to do, in addition pass a supervision order directing that the offender shall remain under the supervision of a probation officer named in the order during such period, not being less than one year, as may be specified therein, and may in such supervision order impose such conditions as it deems necessary for the due supervision of the offender.

(4) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall require the offender, before he is released, to enter into a bond, with or without sureties, to observe the conditions specified in such order and such additional conditions with respect to residence, abstention from intoxicants or any other matter as the court may, having regard to the particular circumstances, consider fit to impose for preventing a repetition of the same offence or a commission of other offences by the offender.

(5) The court making a supervision order under sub-section (3) shall explain to the offender the terms and conditions of the order and shall forthwith furnish one copy of the supervision order to each of the offenders, the sureties, if any, and the probation officer concerned."

10. There is one more legislation on the subject namely "Uttar Pradesh First Offenders' Probation Act, 1938". Sections 3 and 4 of the Act are reproduced herein below:-

"3. Power of court to release certain offenders after admonition.—In any case in which a person is found guilty of the offences of theft, dishonesty, misappropriation or cheating, punishable under the Indian Penal Code, or of any offence punishable with not more than two years imprisonment and no previous conviction is proved against him, the court by which he is found guilty may, if it thinks fit, having regard to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender, and to the trivial nature of the offence or any extenuating circumstances under which the offence was committed instead of sentencing him to any punishment, release him after due admonition.

4. Power of court to release certain offenders on probation of good conduct.—

(1) When any person is convicted of an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and no previous conviction is proved against the offender, if it appears to the court before which he is convicted, regard being had to the age, character, antecedents or physical or mental condition of the offender and to the circumstances in which the offence was committed that it is expedient that the offender should be released on probation of good conduct the court may instead of sentencing him at once to any punishment, direct that he be released on his entering into a bond, with or without sureties, to appear and receive sentence when called upon during such period not exceeding three years as the court may direct and in the meantime to keep the peace and be of good behaviour :

Provided that the court shall not direct the release of an offender under this section unless it is satisfied that the offender, or his surety, has a fixed place of abode and regular occupation in the place for which the court acts, or in which the offender is likely to live during the period named for the observance of the conditions :

Provided also that if a person under twenty-one years of age is convicted of any offence under the Indian Penal Code, or any other enactments prescribed in this behalf under rules made by the State Government, which is punishable with imprisonment not exceeding six months, the court shall take action under this section unless, for special reasons to be recorded in writing, it does not consider it proper to do so.

(2) Where the offender ordered to be released under sub-section (1) is under twenty-four years of age, the court may make a supervision order directing that such offender shall be under the supervision of such probation officer as may be named in the order during the period specified therein and imposing such other conditions for securing such supervision as may be specified in the order:

Provided that the period so specified shall not extend beyond the date on which, in the opinion of the court, the offender will attain the age of twenty-five years.

(3) A court making an order under sub-section (2) shall require the offender, before he is released to enter into a bond, with or without sureties, to observe the condition with respect to residence, abstention from intoxicants and any other matters as the court may, having regard to the particular circumstances of the case, consider fit to impose for preventing a repetition of the same offence or a commission of other offences by the offender.

(4) A court making an order under sub-section (2) shall furnish to the offender and the sureties, if any, a notice in writing stating in simple terms the conditions of the bond.

A perusal of these legislations will leave a student of Law in a confused state of mind. All these legislations are dealing with the same subject and on first sight looks encroaching each other. Looking closely, one may get that Section 360 of the Code relates only to persons not under twenty one years of age is convicted for an offence punishable with fine or with imprisonment for a term of seven years or less, or when any person under twenty one years of age or any woman is convicted for an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life, and no previous conviction is proved, may be released on probation, taking into consideration the facts and circumstances of the case, character of the offender and the gravity of the offence committed by him. Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act is having a much wider scope as it applies to any person found guilty of having committed an offence not punishable with death or imprisonment for life. If I look further deep into Section 360 CrPC we will find that in sub-section (10) it has been provided that nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act."

11. A Division Bench of this Court in State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Misri Lal and others, 1982 CrLJ 1420 held as under:-

"26. ...The application of Section 360 in Uttar Pradesh was taken away by an Ordinance of the year 1975. The Ordinance was repealed and replaced by the Criminal P.C. (Uttar Pradesh Amendment) Act, No. 16 of 1976. This Act received the assent of the President on 30-4-1975 and published in the Uttar Pradesh Extraordinary Gazette dated 1-5-1976. Section 12 of this Act repealed the Ordinance and laid down that notwithstanding such repeal, anything done or any action taken under the Ordinance shall be deemed to have been done or taken under the provisions of this Act as if this Act had come into force on November, 28, 1975. The learned trial judge decided the case on 2-2-1976. Section 10 of the

Amending Act No. 16 of 1976 amended S.484 of the Code and inserted the following clause (e) after clause (d) :-

"(e) ...the United Provinces First Offenders' Probation Act 1938.....shall continue in force in the State of Uttar Pradesh and accordingly the provisions of Section 360 of this Code shall not apply to that State and the provisions of Section 361 shall apply with the substitution or reference to the Central Acts named therein by references to the corresponding Act in force in that State".

Section 361 of the CrPC lays down that where in any case the Court could have dealt with an accused person under Section 360 or under the provisions of the Probation of Offenders Act, 1958, or a youthful offender under the Children Act, 1960 or any other law for the time being in force for the treatment, training or rehabilitation of youthful offenders, but has not done so, it shall record in its judgement the special reasons for not having done so.

It follows from this provision read with clause (e) of S.484 mentioned above, the Court is required to record special reasons for not extending the benefit of the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh First Offenders' Probation Act, 1938."

12. Thus, provisions of UP Probation of First Offenders' Act shall be followed, in the geographical area where that has been made applicable and not Section 360 of the CrPC. In this way enforcement of Probation Act in some particular area, thus excludes the applicability of the provisions of Section 360 of the Code in that particular area, however it will be the bounden duty of the Court to consider as to why not to proceed to grant the benefit of Probation of Offenders Act, as provided under Section 361 of the CrPC.

13. Coming to the point of desirability of extending the benefit of Probation Act to the accused/revisionist in Sitaram Paswan and another Vs. State of Bihar, AIR 2005 SC 3534 Supreme Court held as under:-

"For exercising the power which is discretionary, the Court has to consider circumstances of the case, the nature of the offence and the character of the offender. While considering the nature of the offence, the Court must take a realistic view of the gravity of the offence, the impact which the offence had on the victim. The benefit available to the accused under Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act is subject to the limitation embodied in the provisions and the word "may" clearly indicates that the discretion vests with the Court whether to release the offender in exercise of the powers under Section 3 or 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act, having regard to the nature of the offence and the character of the offender and overall circumstances of the case. The powers under Section 4 of the Probation of Offenders Act vest with the Court when any person is found guilty of the offence committed, not punishable with death or imprisonment for life. This power can be exercised by the Courts while finding the person guilty and if the Court thinks that having regard to the circumstances of the case, including the nature of the offence and the character of the offender, benefit should be extended to the accused, the power can be exercised by the Court even at the appellate or revisional stage and also by this Court while hearing appeal under Article 136 of the Constitution of India."

14. In Mohd. Hashim Vs. State of U.P and others, AIR 2017 SC 660 Supreme Court opined as under:-

"20. ...In Rattan Lal v. State of Punjab AIR 1965 SC 444. Subba Rao, J., speaking for the majority, opined thus:-

"The Act is a milestone in the progress of the modern liberal trend of reform in the field of penology. It is the result of the recognition of the doctrine that the object of criminal law is more to reform the individual offender than to punish him. Broadly stated, the Act distinguishes offenders below 21 years of age and those above that age, and offenders who are guilty of having committed an offence punishable with death or imprisonment for life and those who are guilty of a lesser offence. While in the case of offenders who are above the age of 21 years absolute discretion is given to the court to release them after admonition or on probation of good conduct, subject to the conditions laid down in the appropriate provisions of the Act, in the case of offenders below the age of 21 years an injunction is issued to the court not to sentence them to imprisonment unless it is satisfied that having regard to the circumstances of the case; including the nature of the offence and the character of the offenders, it is not desirable to deal with them under Sections 3 and 4 of the Act."

15. This is a case of the year 1996 and more than 26 years have passed. The incident took place way back in the year 1996. The accused-revisionist has suffered in matter for past three decades and there is no other pre or post criminal antecedent of the accused revisionist. Therefore, it would not be appropriate to send the revisionist in jail.

16. So far as the conviction part is concerned, this Court does not find any illegality, perversity or infirmity in the order passed by the courts below but keeping in view the discussion made above, the sentence inflicted on the accused-revisionist requires modification.

17. The revision is partly allowed with following modifications:-

17.1. The conviction of the accused-revisionist by courts below is upheld. The sentence of revisionist-accused is modified to the tune that he is provided benefit of Section 4 of the UP Probation of Offenders Act and is released on probation on the condition that he will keep peace and good conduct for one year from today and shall file two sureties to the tune of Rs.30,000/- each along with his personal bond before the court below and also an undertaking to the effect that he shall maintain peace and good behaviour during the period of one year from today. In case of breach of any of the conditions mentioned above, the revisionist will be subjected to undergo the sentence as directed by the courts below. The bonds aforesaid will be filed by the revisionist-accused within one month from today, before the District Probation Officer, Balrampur, UP under the intimation to the concerned court.

18. A certified copy of the order be also sent to the court concerned and District Probation Officer, Balrampur, UP for compliance.

2. Satish Chandra Ahuja Vs Sneha Ahuja, AIR 2020 SC 2483

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

(A) Criminal Law - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 397/401-Revision - Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 - Sections 2, 3, 12, 14, 15, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 & 23 - Object and purpose - to grant a right to aggrieved person, a woman of residence in shared households - The wife is entitled to claim a right to residence in a share households belonging to relatives of her husband. (Para - 19)

Opposite Party No. 2 filed a petition against revisionists (relatives of her late husband) - seeking protection, right to reside in share households, monetary relief, residence order, and compensation orders - harassed by her relatives - subjected to rape by her brothers-in-law - forced to leave her matrimonial home - property dispute between revisionists and respondent no. 2 - in-laws of respondent no. 2 - court passed an ex-parte judgment against revisionists - failed to file any written statements - no recall against ex-parte order - court proceed with ex-parte evidence - decided case against revisionists - no specific averments - regarding maintenance quantum or inability to pay amount to respondent no. 2. (Para - 4,20)

HELD:-No error found in maintenance quantification awarded by Nyayadhikari and affirmed by Appellate Court. Impugned order can be modified to limit relief to revisionists 1 to 3, and exempt them from complying with order for maintenance and accommodation in shared households. Revision partially allowed for opposite party 4 and 5 but order remains valid for revisionists 1 to 3. No illegality, irregularity, or proprietary issues in the challenged judgments. (Para -20,21)

Revision partly allowed with modifications. (E-7)

List of Cases cited:

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionist, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 2 and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. Present criminal revision has been preferred against order dated 8.1.2022 passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 9, Firozabad, in Crl. Appeal No. 51 of 2021, (Rohit Yadav @ Ravi Vs. Smt. Deepika Yadav) as well as order dated 1.11.2021 passed by Nyayadhikari (Judicial Officer), Rural Court Tundla, District Firozabad, in Case No. 367 of 2020, under Sections 12/14/15/17/18/19/20/21/22 Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, P.S. Tundla, District Firozabad. By the impugned order dated 1.11.2021, learned Nyayadhikari/Judicial Magistrate allowed the petition under aforesaid sections filed by petitioner Smt. Deepika Yadav, ex-parte against present revisionists, who were respondent in Case No. 637 of 2020 before court of Nyayadhikari and directed them to pay Rs. 7,000/- as monetary compensation towards fooding, clothing, medical and daily needs of opposite party and her two minor daughters Ishanika and Joshika, aged around 7 years and 3 years respectively, from the time of filing of petition in the year 2020.

3. Learned court below also directed the respondents/revisionists to stay away from dispossessing the petitioners/opposite party from shared households where she was residing in a room and were also directed to refrain from harassing the petitioner/opposite party physically or mentally on account of any dispute over property of her late husband Sapan Yadav.

4. Factual matrix of the case which are essential for disposal of present criminal revision is that the Opposite Party No. 2 filed a petition before Nyayadhikari under various provisions of Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act against the revisionists who are relatives of her late husband, with prayer for issuing necessary orders admissible under provisions of Act like protection order under Section 18, Right to Reside in the share households under Section 17, Monetary relief under Section 20, residence order under Section 19, Compensation order under Section 22 of the Act. In the petition petitioner had stated that her marriage with Sapan Singh was solemnized on 25.12.2010 and from their wedlock two female child born. Unfortunately her husband died on 18.9.2019. After death of her husband, respondents/revisionists who are mother-in-law, brother-in-law (dewar), sister-in-law (devrani), sister-in-law (nanand) and brother-in-law (nandoi) started harassing her. The relatives of her husband are persons of bad character. She has not been in a position to maintain herself. The respondents/revisionists started harassing her both physically and mentally in various ways. She was subjected to rape by respondent nos. 1 (Rohit) and 5 (Vipul Yadav), her brothers-in-law, with collusion of women of shared households and ultimately she was forced to leave her matrimonial home and consequently she was compelled to take shelter in her parental home situated at Anand Nagar, Tundla, Distrcit Firozabad. She filed present petition for above stated reliefs on 11.11.2020 before learned magistrate.

5. The appellants/respondents after service of notice appeared before the trial Court, but not filed objections/W.S.. On 6.9.2021, appellants/respondents filed adjournment before lower Court and learned lower Court has allowed the adjournment and fix 07.09.2021 for W.S./objection. On 07.09.2021, appellants/respondents again filed the adjournment and the same was rejected by the lower Court and proceeded the case ex-parte against the appellants/respondents.

6. During the trial the applicant Deepika Yadav examined herself as PW-1. After hearing the arguments, learned Magistrate has passed impugned order by allowing the petition against appellants.

7. Feeling aggrieved by the various protection order passed by learned Magistrate, present revisionist filed a Crl. Appeal No. 51 of 2019 before Court of Session, Firozabad on ground that the trial court has failed to appreciate facts and law placed before it. The order passed by learned magistrate is highly illegal and same has not been passed on correct appreciation of facts and law. Learned Trial Judge has failed to observe the aspect of income of the petitioner/opposite party no. 2 and has not given any opportunity of hearing to the appellants/revisionists and passed impugned order arbitrarily and on these grounds they claimed that their appeal may kindly be allowed and order passed by trial court may be set aside. The appellants/revisionists committed no domestic violence against the respondent no. 2. The petitioner/opposite party no. 2 failed to prove any case of domestic violence made against appellants, therefore, the trial court has committed error in granting relief of maintenance and residence order in favour of petitioner/opposite party no. 2. Appellants/revisionists were not given any opportunity of hearing and for filing any written statements in petition.

8. Learned first appellate court after hearing arguments of both sides concluded that learned lower court was justified to proceed the case ex-parte against appellants/revisionists as the appellants/revisionists had filed an adjournment on 9.4.2021 and opposite party nos. 4 and 5 had filed discharge application 16-A. Learned court below vide order dated 26.8.2021 dismissed application 16-A and fixed 6.9.2021 for filing the written statement. On 6.9.2021 opposite parties have filed adjournment which was allowed by the learned lower court with cost. On the next date i.e. 7.9.2021, opposite party had again filed the adjournment and same was rejected by learned lower court holding that opposite parties are delaying the process and proceeded the case ex-parte against opposite parties, therefore, grounds taken by appellants regarding knowledge of the case are false and fabricated because it is apparent from perusal of record of lower court that they appeared before lower court and moved the adjournments. On 6.9.2021 learned lower court has given last opportunity to opposite parties to file written statement but on the next date they failed to file any written statements and rather they moved adjournment again before court below. It appears from conduct of opposite party that they tried to delay the proceedings of the case deliberately while the court below had given proper opportunity to opposite parties for filing objection/written statement. It is noteworthy that the appellants had not filed any appeal against ex-parte order while they could have filed the appeal against the said ex-parte order dated 7.9.2021. Therefore, it is clear that learned court below was justified to proceed the case ex-parte against opposite parties/appellants. Learned court below also inferred on the basis of evidence on record that learned trial court has rightly passed the maintenance order in favour of the petitioner. Court below also concluded that the appeal is liable to be dismissed and impugned order passed by learned magistrate deserves to be affirmed.

9. Feeling aggrieved by impugned orders passed by court below, revisionists who are respondents before trial court, have filed present criminal revision on grounds that after death of husband of respondent no. 2, all the property which was in the name of her husband was given to her and she took all the articles and ornaments and started living with her children at her parental house. There is dispute between revisionist and respondent no. 2 regarding the property for which several round of mediation was carried out. The respondent no. 2 even lodged a false F.I.R. against revisionist on 21.8.2020 registered as Case Crime No. 181 of 2020, under Sections 498-A, 342, 323, 504, 506 IPC, .P.S. South, District Firozabad in which Section 164 IPC was further added on the basis of statement of respondent no. 2 during investigation. The revisionist challenged the charge sheet filed in said criminal case by police after investigation before this Court in Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. No. 16933 of 2022, in which interim relief was granted to revisionist vide order dated 20.7.2022 to the effect that till the next date of listing, no coercive action shall be taken against the applicants in said criminal case. The said application was filed by the revisionist Rohit Yadav, devar of respondent no. 2, Smt. Arti Yadav, sister-in-law (devrani) of respondent no. 2 and Smt. Madhubala (mother-in-law of respondent no. 2). Respondents being relatives of husband of respondent no. 2 cannot be held accountable for providing maintenance. The respondent no. 2 has already taken the share/property, all the insurance money and bank deposits lying in the name of her late husband and she has filed present case only to harass the revisionists but this facts were overlooked by learned court below. The impugned orders are liable to be set aside and revision should be allowed in the interest of justice.

10. Learned counsel for the revisionist stated grounds mentioned in criminal revision in support of his arguments and prayed for allowing present revision and to discharge the revisionists from any liability with which they are saddled by orders of court below in respect of respondent no. 2.

11. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents and learned A.G.A. submitted that courts below have committed no irregularity, illegality or perversity while passing impugned order which is based on material on record and the impugned order passed by court of first instance towards maintenance of the respondent and her minor daughters is very reasonable and affordable by the revisionists. The impugned order passed by learned Nyayadhikari/Magistrate is preceded by proper appreciation of facts and law placed before it. Trial court has rightly held that original petitioner/respondent no. 2 is living separately due to being subjected to domestic violence and in hands of respondents/revisionists and she is unable to maintain herself as well as her minor daughters. Learned counsel for the respondent no. 2 also contended that the present revisionists have neglected the respondent no. 2 totally and looking to this aspect of the matter trial court has granted the maintenance to the respondent no. 2. Impugned orders are just and proper and do not deserve any interference in present revision as that will add to plight of revisionists who are victim of domestic violence. He prayed for dismissing the present revision.

12. Object and reason clause of Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 (Act No. 43 of 2005 came into force on 26.10.2006) provides that “an act to provide for more effective protection of the rights of women guaranteed under the Constitution who are victims of violence of any kind occurring within the family and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.”

13. In Section 2 which is definition clause, following expressions are defined as under:-

(a) “aggrieved person” means any woman who is, or has been, in a domestic relationship with the respondent and who alleges to have been subjected to any act of domestic violence by the respondent.

(f) “domestic relationship” has means a relationship between two persons who live or have, at any point of time, lived together in a shared household, when they are related by consanguinity, marriage, or through a relationship in the nature of marriage, adoption or are family members living together as a joint family.

(q) “respondent” means any adult male person who is, or has been, in a domestic relationship with the aggrieved person and against whom the aggrieved person has sought any relief under this Act:

Provided that an aggrieved wife or female living in a relationship in the nature of a marriage may also file a complaint against a relative of the husband or the male partner.

(s) “shared household” means a household where the person aggrieved lives or at any stage has lived in a domestic relationship either singly or along with the respondent and includes such a household whether owned or tenanted either jointly by the aggrieved person and the respondent, or owned or tenanted by either of them in respect of which either the aggrieved person or the respondent or both jointly or singly have any right, title, interest or equity and includes such a household which may belong to the joint family of which the respondent is a member, irrespective of whether the respondent or the aggrieved person has any right, title or interest in the shared household.”

14. The domestic violence is defined under Section 3 of the Act which includes physical abuse, sexual abuse, verbal abuse, emotional abuse and economic abuse on aggrieved by respondents.

15. Section 20 provides for monetary reliefs which is reproduced as under:-

“Monetary reliefs.-

(1) While disposing of an application under sub-section (1) of section 12, the Magistrate may direct the respondent to pay monetary relief to meet the expenses incurred and losses suffered by the aggrieved person and any child of the aggrieved person as a result of the domestic violence and such relief may include but is not limited to—

(a) the loss of earnings;

(b) the medical expenses;

(c) the loss caused due to the destruction, damage or removal of any property from the control of the aggrieved person; and

(d) the maintenance for the aggrieved person as well as her children, if any, including an order under or in addition to an order of maintenance under section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974) or any other law for the time being in force.

(2) The monetary relief granted under this section shall be adequate, fair and reasonable and consistent with the standard of living to which the aggrieved person is accustomed. (3) The Magistrate shall have the power to order an appropriate lump sum payment or monthly payments of maintenance, as the nature and circumstances of the case may require.

(4) The Magistrate shall send a copy of the order for monetary relief made under sub-section (1) to the parties to the application and to the in-charge of the police station within the local limits of whose jurisdiction the respondent resides.

(5) The respondent shall pay the monetary relief granted to the aggrieved person within the period specified in the order under sub-section (1).

(6) Upon the failure on the part of the respondent to make payment in terms of the order under sub-section (1), the Magistrate may direct the employer or a debtor of the respondent, to directly pay to the aggrieved person or to deposit with the court a portion of the wages or salaries or debt due to or accrued to the credit of the respondent, which amount may be adjusted towards the monetary relief payable by the respondent.”

16. Section 23 empowers the magistrate to grant interim and ex-parte orders on the basis of affidavit in such form, as may be prescribed, of the aggrieved person under Sections 18, 19, 20, 21 or as the case may be, Section 22 against the respondents. Section 28 provides that same as otherwise provided in this Act, all proceedings under Section 12, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23 and offences under Section 31 shall be governed by the provisions of Cr.P.C., 1973, however, sub-section (2) clarifies that nothing in sub-section (1) shall prevent the court from laying down its own proviso for disposal of an application under Section 12 or under sub-section (2) of Section 23.

17. The revisionist has not stated in revision memo that they are not financially capable to provide for maintenance awarded by learned magistrate instead they have raised some technical objections against impugned orders passed by court below, for providing maintenance and residence order in favour of present respondent no. 2. They were given ample opportunity by the court of first instance to file written statements and participate in hearing of the case before court below but have failed to ever file written statement against averment made in petition filed by the petitioner, who is respondent no. 2, presently. They had obtained several adjournments for filing written statements and participate in process of hearing of the case but even after being aware of the case and hearing before court below, they did not try to defend themselves and court had to proceed ex-parte against them and decide the case ex-parte against present revisionists who were respondents before court of first instance.

18. The respondent no. 2 has stated in her original application before court of first instance seeking various sort of protection order in respect of matters under controversy and that respondent nos. 1 to 3 are resident of 1/682, Suhagnagar, District Firozabad, who are her brother-in-law, sister-in-law and mother-in-law. Respondent nos. 4 and 5 are her sister-in-law (nanand) and brother-in-law (nandoi) who reside in Vipulkhand. She was also residing in the same house which belongs to respondent nos. 1 and 2, after her marriage with her husband and even thereafter due to taking view of harassment and torture meted out to her by opposite parties, she was compelled to leave her matrimonial home on 12.7.2020 and shifted to the place of her parents along with her minor daughters. Opposite party nos. 1 and 2 who are her brother-in-law (dewar) and mother-in-law who have ancestral property at village Chamraula, Tehsil Atmadpur, District Agra, Village Itayli, Tehsil- Bah, District Agra, Village Alampur Jarkhi, District Firozabad, Village Pachawan, District Firozabad, Mauza Ushayni, Tehsil Tundla, District Firozabad. One house at Firozabad along with six shops and a number of immovable property in city Firozabad from which they earn sufficient income through rents. They do not pay any money for maintenance of the applicant and her minor children. In report submitted by D.P.O., the factum of allegation of domestic violence made in the complaint filed by the present respondent no. 2 was found to have established. Courts below have given a finding that applicant (Smt. Deepika Yadav) is unable to maintain herself along with her children. She has supported the version of complaint by way of her evidence before the court which has been filed in the form of affidavit evidence and same was un-controverted as opposite parties had failed to participate in the process of hearing. In Indra Sharma Vs. V.K.V. Sharma, AIR 2014 SC 309, Hon'ble Apex Court held that Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act has been enacted to provide a remedy in civil law for protection of women from being victims of Domestic Violence Act and to prevent occurrence of domestic violence in the society. The act has been enacted also to provide an effective protection of the rights of women who are victims of violence on any kind, occurring within the family.

19. In Satish Chandra Ahuja Vs. Sneha Ahuja, AIR 2020 SC 2483, Hon'ble Apex Court held that S.R. Batra and Anr. Vs. Taruna Batra, (2007) 3 SCC 169, has not correctly interpreted the provisions of Section 2(s) of Domestic Violence Act and does not lay down correct law, where the court held that wife is only entitled to claim a right to residence, share households would only mean the house belonging to or taken on rent by the husband, or the house which belongs to joint family of which husband is a member. Hon'ble Apex Court further held in Satish Chandra Ahuja's case (supra) that definition of share household as noticed in section 2(s) does not indicate that a share household shall be one which belongs to or taken on rent by the husband. We have noticed the definition of "respondent" under the Act. Respondent in a proceedings under the Domestic Violence Act can be any relative of the husband. In event the shared households belongs to any relative of the husband with whom in a domestic relationship, the women has lived, the conditions mentioned in sub-section 2(s) are satisfied and the said house will become a shared household and from provisions of Section 2(s) it is clear that for a shared household there is no such requirement that the house may be owned singly or jointly by the husband or taken on rent by the husband. The object and purpose of the Act was to grant a right to aggrieved person, a woman of residence in shared households. The interpretation which is put by this Court in S.R. Batra's Case (supra), if accepted, shall clearly frustrate the object and purpose of the Act. The wife is entitled to claim a right to residence in a share households belonging to relatives of her husband.

20. In present case, the revisionists have not taken a stand that they are unable to pay the amount of maintenance awarded by the court of first instance against them which is payable to respondent no. 2 for maintenance of herself and her two minor daughters. The main thrust of contention raised on behalf of revisionists is that there is property dispute between the revisionists and respondent no. 2 as revisionists are in-laws of respondent no. 2 and the impugned order passed by court below and affirmed by first appellate court is ex-parte. Courts below have properly addressed the issue that why the court had to pass ex-parte judgment against the revisionists as even after appearance in the court, the revisionists failed to file any written statement. They took several adjournments for filing written statements and subsequently absented themselves and even after passing of order with effect that case will be heard ex-parte against them, they did not file any application for recall of ex-parte order dated 7.9.2021, therefore, the court was left with no option but to proceed to receive ex-parte evidence and decide the case ex-parte against present revisionists. Revisionists have not made any specific averments regarding quantum of maintenance as ordered by court below or inability to pay the amount of maintenance to respondent no. 2, therefore, I find no factual or legal error regarding quantification of amount of maintenance awarded by learned Nyayadhipari and affirmed by Appellate Court. However, this fact cannot be lost sight that revisionist nos. 4 and 5, who are impleaded as opposite party no. 4 and 5 before court below, are married sisters-in-law (nanand and nandoi) of the complainant/respondent no. 2. They admittedly reside at some other place and their address have been given by the complainant herself in Vipulkhand, Lucknow as the revisionist nos. 1 to 3 as well as respondent no. 2 are presently residing in district Firozabad, therefore, it cannot be said that revisionist nos. 4 and 5 were in domestic relationship with the complainant/respondent no. 2, particularly in absence of specific pleadings and evidence in this regard. The shared households where respondent no. 2 has stated to have lived after marriage with her late husband and thereafter for sometime with revisionist nos. 1 to 3 belongs to Revisionist No. 1 and 2 according to version of the complainant herself. Respondent nos. 4 and 5 being family members of her late husband cannot be saddled with the responsibility of providing maintenance awarded to the complainant/respondent no. 2 in impugned judgment of court of first instance nor they can be held accountable to provide an accommodation to her in shared household which does not belong to them, therefore, the impugned order is liable to be modified to the extent that relief granted by court below in impugned judgment will be confined to in respect of revisionist nos. 1 to 3 and revisionist nos. 4 and 5 are exempted from complying with impugned order passed by court below providing maintenance and accommodation in shared households to the complainant, therefore, the revision stands partly allowed to the extent that impugned order is quashed with regard to opposite party nos. 4 and 5 in Complaint Case no. 637 of 2020, who are revisionist nos. 4 and 5 before this Court, however, impugned order shall held good in respect of revisionist nos. 1 to 3, who are opposite party nos. 1 to 3 before court below.

21. With this modification, this Court does not find any illegality, irregularity, or in propriety in the impugned judgments passed by court below which are under challenged before this Court. The impugned order shall be binding upon respondent nos. 1 to 3 and will be executable against them on application made by respondent no. 2 in this respect, however, it is made clear that observations made while deciding this revision are only for purpose of present revision and will not be any bearing on criminal case filed by the complainant against the revisionists.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjay Kumar Singh, J.)

1. By means of this application, the applicant/revisionist has prayed for recall of the order dated 28.9.2022 passed by this Court in Criminal Revision No. 1839 of 2022.

2. The facts giving rise to the present restoration application are that on an application moved by the prosecution/complainant, the revisionist/applicant was summoned by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 6, Meerut vide order dated 07.4.2022 to face the trial in Case Crime No. 610 of 2020, under Section 147, 148, 149, 302, 506, 120B IPC. The aforesaid summoning order was challenged by the revisionist/applicant by filing Criminal Revision No. 1839 of 2022 through advocate Shri Amit Rana, which was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 28.9.2022.

3. By means of this application, the applicant has prayed for recall of the order dated 28.9.2022 passed by this Court in Criminal Revision No. 1839 of 2022. At the time of hearing of the revision, learned counsel for the applicant gave up his challenge to the aforesaid impugned order and confined his submission to the disposal of his bail application in accordance with the guidelines laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Satender Kumar Antil Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation and another, 2021 SCC Online SC 922. The said revision was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 28.9.2022. The order sought to be recalled reads thus:

"Heard learned counsel for the revisionists, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State of U.P./opposite party no.1 and perused the record.

The instant criminal revision under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C. has been preferred by the revisionists namely Govind @ Arvind, Ankit, Manish and Anil against the judgment and order dated 07.04.2022 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 06, Meerut in Sessions Trial No. 186 of 2021, arising out of Case Crime No. 610 of By means of this application, the applicant has prayed for recall of the order dated 28.9.2022 passed by this Court in Crimin2020 (State vs. Pankaj), under Sections 302, 147, 148, 149, 506, 120-B IPC, Police Station Kankarkhera, District Meerut whereby the revisionists have been summoned as an additional accused.

At the outset, learned counsel for the revisionists gave up his challenge to the aforesaid impugned order and confined his submission requesting to grant some protection to the revisionists to surrender before the concerned court below. The learned counsel for the revisionists further stated at the Bar that he is not pressing any other prayer on merits and prayed that a direction may be issued to the concerned court below to consider and decide the bail application of the revisionists expeditiously.

Learned A.G.A. for the State of U.P. submits that in case the revisionists is not pressing the relief as sought for by on merits and wants to surrender before the concerned court below, he has no objection if the Court grants protection to them for a short period.

However considering the aforesaid prayer made by learned counsel for the revisionists, it is directed that the revisionists-Govind @ Arvind, Ankit, Manish and Anil shall surrender before the concerned court below within three weeks' from today and in case they apply for bail, the same shall be disposed of expeditiously by the courts below in accordance with law and keeping in view the guidelines as laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Satender Kumar Antil vs Central Bureau of Investigation and another, reported in 2021 SCC Online SC 922.

For the period of three weeks' from today or till the revisionists surrender before the court concerned, whichever is earlier, they shall not be arrested in the aforesaid case.

With the above observations and directions, the instant criminal revision stands disposed of."

4. It appears that the revisionist has not complied with the order of this Court dated 28.9.2022 and filed this restoration application through another advocate namely Smt. Gunjan Sharma with the prayer to recall the order dated 28.9.2022 and decide Criminal Revision No. 1839 of 2022 afresh on merits.

5. Before discussing the case law on the subject, it would be useful to quote section 362 of Code of Criminal Procedure:

362. Court not to alter judgment:- Save as otherwise provided by this code or by any other law for the time being in force, no court, when it has signed its judgement or final order disposing of a case, shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error.

6. Perusal of Section 362 Cr.P.C. it is crystal clear that no Court after it has signed its judgement or final order disposing of a case, shall not alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error. By means of this recall application, the revisionist/applicant wants this Court to rehear the case afresh on merits. If the contention of the learned counsel for the applicant is accepted and Court hears the case on merits and pass order, that would amount to reviewing its earlier order altering it, which is totally prohibited by Section 362 Cr.P.C.

7. It is settled by Hon'ble Supreme Court in plethora of judgement that the Court should not review its earlier order.

8. In State of Orissa Vs. Ram Chander Agarwala and others, 1979 SCR (1) 1114, the accused therein after being convicted filed an appeal before the learned Sessions Judge. Learned Sessions Judge while dismissing the appeals found that the law required imposition of a minimum sentence of fine of Rs. 1000/-for each offence and as the sentence passed by the Trial Court was not in accordance with the law, he referred the matter to the High Court for passing an appropriate sentence. The accused preferred a revision against the order of Sessions Judge. Both the proceedings were heard together and the High Court dismissed the revision petition preferred by the accused and accepted the reference by the Sessions Judge and enhanced the sentence so far as the firms are concerned to a sum of Rs. 3900/-. As regard the Managers or the managing partners the High Court sentenced them to six months rigorous imprisonment. The Manager and Managing partners filed petitions before the High Court for review of its order. The High court accepted the petition for review and recalled its previous judgement imposing sentence of six months and instead imposed a fine of Rs. 3000/-.

9. Hon'ble Supreme Court while quashing the subsequent order of the High Court has held as under:

"That once a judgement has been pronounced by a High Court either in exercise of its appellate or its revisional jurisdiction, no review or revision can be entertained against that judgement as there are no provisions in the Criminal Procedure Code which would enable the High Court to review the same or to exercise revisional jurisdiction."

10. In Moti Lal Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh, AIR 1994 SC 1544, Hon'ble Supreme Court held that Section 362 Cr.P.C. in clear terms lays down that the Court cannot alter judgement after the same has been signed except to correct clerical or arithmetical error. That being the position the High Court had no jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. to alter the earlier judgment.

11. A three Judge Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Naresh and another Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, AIR 1981 SC 1385, held as under:

"We are entirely at a loss to understand the order dated April 14, 1989. In their judgement dated February 25, 1980 while discussing the case against Naresh the learned Judge had given a specific and express finding that he intended to kill the deceased Bahadur and, therefore, had committed an offence punishable under Section 302 Indian Penal code. The operative part of the judgment also said the same thing. We do not understand what the learned Judges mean when they state in their order dated April 14, 1980, " there is clerical mistake in the operative part of the judgment." The High Court was wholly wrong in altering the judgment pronounced by them disposing of the Criminal Appeals. That was clearly in contravention of the provisions of Section 362 Cr.P.C. what was worse, the High court acted in purported exercise of the power to correct clerical mistakes when in fact there was none. The conviction under Section 302 Indian Penal Code was perfectly correct and the conviction had been rightly affirmed by the High Court in the first instance. There was no occasion at all for the purported exercise of power to correct a clerical mistake and alter the conviction under Section 302 to one under Section 304 Indian Penal Code. We are greatly concerned that the High court should have committed this grievous error. There is, however, nothing that we can do about it at this juncture as the State has not chosen to file any appeal against the order dated April 14, 1980."

12. In Smt. Sooraj Devi Vs. Pyare Lal and another, AIR 1981 SC 736, Hon'ble Apex Court held that the prohibition in Section 362 Cr.P.C. against the Court altering or reviewing its judgement, is subject to what is "otherwise provided by this code or by any other law for the time being in force". Those words, however, refer to those provisions only where the Court has been expressly authorised by the Code or other law to alter or review its judgement. The inherent power of the Court is not contemplated by the saving provision contained in Section 362 Cr.P.C. and, therefore, the attempt to invoke that power can be of no avail.

13. Hari Singh Mann Vs. Harbhajan Singh Bajwa and others, 2001 (1) SCC 169, was a case in which after disposal of the petition filed by the applicant therein by the High Court and consequently action was taken thereof, the applicant filed another petition, which was entertained and disposed of by the same learned Single Judge. Hon'ble Apex Court while setting aside the order passed by the High Court held as under:

"We have noted with disgust that the impugned orders were passed completely ignoring the basic principles of criminal law. No review of an order is contemplated under the Code of Criminal Procedure. After the disposal of the main petition on 7.1.1999, there was no lis pending in the High Court wherein the respondent could have filed any miscellaneous petition. The filing of a miscellaneous petition not referable to any provision of Code of Criminal Procedure or the rules of the Court, cannot be resorted to as a substitute of fresh litigation. The record of the proceedings produced before us shows that directions in the case filed by the respondents were issued apparently without notice to any of the respondents in the petition. Merely because the respondent No. 1 was an Advocate, did not justify the issuance of directions at his request without notice of the other side. The impugned orders dated 30th April, 1999 and 21st July, 1999 could not have been passed by the High Court under its inherent power under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. The practice of filing miscellaneous petitions after the disposal of the main case and issuance of fresh directions in such miscellaneous petitions by the High Court are unwarranted, not referable to any statutory provision and in substance the abuse of the process of the court.

There is no provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure authorizing the High Court to review its judgment passed either in exercise of its appellate or revisional or original criminal jurisdiction. Such a power cannot be exercised with the aid or under the cloak of Section 482 of the Code.

The Court further held thus:

"Section 362 of the Code mandates that no Court, when it has signed its judgment or final order disposing of a case shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error. The Section is based on an acknowledged principle of law that once a matter is finally disposed of by a Court, the said Court in the absence of a specific statutory provision becomes functus officio and disentitled to entertain a fresh prayer for the same relief unless the former order of final disposal is set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner prescribed by law. The court becomes functus officio the moment the official order disposing of a case is signed. Such an order cannot be altered except to the extent of correcting a clerical or arithmetical error."

14. Hon'ble Supreme Court in State represented by D.S.P. Vs. K.V. Rajendran and others, (Criminal Appeal No. 1389 of 2008), decided on 02.9.2008, while dealing with a question as to whether in exercise of the inherent powers under Section 482 of the code of Criminal Procedure, an order disposing of a criminal petition, refusing to grant any relief, could be modified and, thereafter, an investigation, which was with the State Police authorities could be transferred to the Central Bureau of Investigation. The Court after discussing a catena of judgement observed thus:

"As noted herein earlier, Section 362 of the code prohibits reopening of a final order except in the cases of clerical or arithmetical errors. Such being the position and in view of the expressed prohibition in the code itself in the form of Section 362, exercise of power under Section 482 of the Code cannot be exercised to reopen or alter an order disposing of a petition decided on merits."

15. In State of Punjab Vs. Davinder Pal Singh Bhullar, (2011) 14 SCC 770 the Hon'ble Apex Court held as under:

"There is no power of review with the criminal court after the judgement has been rendered. The High Court can alter or review its judgement before it is signed. When an order is passed, it cannot be reviewed. Section 362 Cr.P.C. is based on an acknowledged principle of law that once a matter is finally disposed of by a court, the said court in the absence of a specific statutory provision becomes functus officio and is disentitled to entertain a fresh prayer for any relief unless the former order of final disposal is set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner prescribed by law. The court becomes functus officio the moment the order for disposing of a case is signed. Such an order cannot be altered except to the extent of correcting a clerical or arithmetical error. There is also no provision for modification of the judgement."

16. Thus, the law on the issue can be summarized to the effect that the criminal justice delivery system does not empower the Court to add or delete any words, except to correct the clerical or arithmetical error as has specifically been provided under the statute itself that after pronouncement of the judgement the Judge becomes functus officio. Any mistake or glaring omission is left to be corrected only by the appropriate forum in accordance with law.

17. In view of the aforesaid pronouncements of Hon'ble Supreme Court coupled with the provisions of Section 362 Cr.P.C., I am not inclined to recall my order dated 28.9.2022 disposing of the revision.

18. Accordingly, this recall application is rejected.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ram Manohar

1. Heard learned counsel for the revisionists and learned AGA for the State.
2. None appeared on behalf of respondent no. 2 to contest this criminal revision today.
3. Counter affidavit has already been filed by respondent no. 2 in this case. Learned counsel for the revisionists has submitted that he is not inclined to file rejoinder affidavit and prayed for hearing the matter on merits.
4. The present criminal revision is filed against the order dated 4.11.2022 passed by learned C.J.M., Jalaun at Orai in Misc. Case no. 327 of 2019 (State vs. Irshad Khan and others) arising out of Case Crime no. 162 of 2018 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307, 336, 332, 353, 420, 447, 504, 506 IPC and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act, P.S. Kotwali Kalpi, District Jalaun. By the impugned order, learned C.J.M. has dismissed the discharge application 24 kha moved by the accused persons and issued bailable warrant against absentee accused Nausad.

5. The brief facts of the case is that the informant lodged an FIR on the basis of written report on 18.7.2018 stating that he is Lekhpal of Kasba Kalpi and plot no. 38/4 area 0.170 and plot no. 38/6 area 0.210 hectare, total area 0.380 hectare come under his area (Halka) and are recorded in the column of Banjar in the revenue record, out of which, some portion has been encroached by Irshad Khan and others without any authority regarding which a report has been given to SDM Kalpi on 18.7.2018; Upziladhikari and other officials of the department accompanied by SHO concerned visited the spot with police force and tried to remove the illegal encroachment by JCB Machine. In the meanwhile at 12:00 hours said Irsad and others, who had encroached a portion of land, engaged in abusing and marpeet with the official team and engaged in brick bating in which some persons received injuries. Inasmuch as Irshad exhorted his wife to tear her clothes so that he could implicate the persons, who had come to remove the encroachment in false case of molestation. The accused persons Irshad and four persons filed an application under Section 482 No. 4289 of 2021 before this Court with prayer to quash the charge-sheet filed by the IO in aforesaid sections which was disposed of by this Court vide order dated 23.3.2021 with observation that Court did not find any grounds to quash the charge-sheet and cognizance taking order passed by the learned Magistrate, therefore, prayer for quashing the same is refused. However, if the applicants appear and move an application under Section 239 Cr.P.C. for discharge through counsel before the court below within two weeks from the date of receipt of certified copy of the order then the application for discharge shall be considered and decided within a period of three months from the date of filing of application in accordance with law. No coercive action shall be taken against the applicants till disposal of said application or for a period of four months from the date of receipt of the order or whichever is earlier; applicants were permitted to file discharge application through counsel.

6. In compliance of the order of this Court, accused persons filed discharge application before the court of first instance, which was dismissed by the impugned order passed by learned C.J.M. with observation that on the basis of evidence collected by the I.O. during investigation, charges under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307, 336, 332, 353, 420, 447, 504, 506 IPC and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act are made out against the applicants accused for which charge-sheet has been filed and cognizance has already been taken by the court in said criminal case on the basis of charge-sheet. As the matter is triable by the court of session, this court did not have jurisdiction to hear the discharge application, therefore, the said discharge application 24kha is dismissed, case was fixed for committal / appearance of the accused persons.

7. The accused persons have filed present revision feeling aggrieved by the aforesaid order passed by the learned C.J.M. under Section 397/401 Cr.P.C.

8. Learned counsel for the revisionists submitted that on 6.4.2021 revisionist has filed discharge application in the court below in pursuance of the order of this Court and a copy of said application is filed as annexure-12 to the revision on the ground that civil suit no. 62 of 2018 has been filed before the Civil Judge, Jalaun at Orai with regard to the plot in question with prayer to issue a prohibitory injunction against the defendants from interfering in possession of the applicant no. 1 and his three brothers and the court below passed the order for maintaining status quo over the plot in question vide order dated 26.4.2019. However, on 8.4.2018 applicant nos. 1 and 3 others, who were challaned by local police under sections 107, 116, 151 Cr.P.C. and challan report was submitted by him before the court of SDM, Kalpi and on the same day, SDM concerned passed an order with regard to issuance of notice under section 111 Cr.P.C. against the applicant nos. 1 and 3 others with observations that there was apprehension to commit breach of peace and disturbance of public tranquility, they must be sent to jail; they were directed to execute two sureties, which are to be verified by the Tehsildar Kalpi but they were sent to jail due to pending verification of surety bond.

9. The revisionists filed a application under section 482 No. 13535 of 2018 before this Court in which interim order was passed on 20.4.2018 and notices were issued to SDM and Tehsildar Kalpi on 4.5.2018 and SDM was directed to comply with the order dated 20.4.2018 to appear in person before the Court on the next date. In view of passing the order dated 20.4.2018 by this Court the SDM and Tehsildar, Kalpi had became inimical to the revisionists and at their behest, the present FIR has been lodged by Lekhpal

Pramod Kumar Dubey on false and fabricated facts; the petitioner's shop was not constructed over the plot no. 38/4 and 38/6 as alleged in the FIR but same was constructed over the plot no. 38/1 and 17/1 and thus the SDM and Tehsildar had got said shop demolished only to take revenge from the revisionists and iron scrap worth of Rs. 50 lakhs was removed by them with help of police personnel.

10. No notice was served on revisionists regarding alleged unauthorized occupation; the revisionists had not interfered in the work of government officials, therefore no offence under section 353 IPC is made out against them; plot no. 38/4 and 38/6 are away about 300 metre from the plot no. 38/1 and 17/1 Mauza Alampur, Kalpi but false allegation is made in the FIR that the applicants had occupied plot no. 38/4 and 38/6; revisionists had never caused any unlawful assembly or any use of force or violation; they had not caused any obstruction in performance of public duty of public servant. He further submitted that impugned order passed by learned C.J.M. is manifestly error on the face of record and deserves to be set aside by this Court as the impugned order is devoid of any reasoning and finding and has been passed in mechanical routine manner without application of judicial mind. On the basis of materials on record, no offence as alleged in the charge-sheet, is made out against the applicants, who has committed no offence; all the proceedings in this case, were initiated at the behest of SDM and Tehsildar, therefore, it is prayed for that this revision be allowed and impugned order passed by learned C.J.M. be set aside.

11. Per contra, learned AGA submitted that as in penal sections in the case include inter-alia charge under section 307 IPC which is triable by the court of session therefore learned Magistrate was not empowered to discharge the accused applicant in such case and only course open to him was that to commit case before the court of session where discharge application could be legally moved.

12. For the purposes of deciding present revision, certain provisions of Criminal Procedure Code are relevant to be reproduced hereinunder:-

Section 193-Cognizance of offences by Courts of Session. Except as otherwise expressly provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court of Session shall take cognizance of any offence as a Court of original jurisdiction unless the case has been committed to it by a Magistrate under this Code..

207. Supply to the accused of copy of police report and other documents. In any case where the proceeding has been instituted on a police report, the Magistrate shall without delay furnish to the accused, free of cost, a copy of each of the following:-

- (i) the police report;
- (ii) the first information report recorded under section 154;
- (iii) the statements recorded under sub- section (3) of section 161 of all persons whom the prosecution proposes to examine as its witnesses, excluding therefrom any part in regard to which a request for such exclusion has been made by the police officer under sub- section (6) of section 173;
- (iv) the confessions and statements, if any, recorded under section 164;

(v) any other document or relevant extract thereof forwarded to the Magistrate with the police report under sub- section (5) of section 173: Provided that the Magistrate may, after perusing any such part of a statement as is referred to in clause (iii) and considering the reasons given by the police officer for the request, direct that a copy of that part of the statement or of such portion thereof as the Magistrate thinks proper, shall be furnished to the accused: Provided further that if the Magistrate is satisfied that any document referred to in clause (v) is voluminous, he shall, instead of furnishing the accused with a copy thereof, direct that he will only be allowed to inspect it either personally or through pleader in Court.

209. Commitment of case to Court of Session when offence is triable exclusively by it. When in a case instituted on a police report or otherwise, the accused appears or is brought before the Magistrate and it appears to the Magistrate that the offence is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, he shall-

(a) I commit, after complying with the provisions of section 207 or section 208, as the case may be, the case to the Court of Session, and subject to the provisions of this Code relating to bail, remand the accused to custody until such commitment has been made;]

(b) subject to the provisions of this Code relating to bail, remand the accused to custody during, and until the conclusion of, the trial;

(c) send to that Court the record of the case and the documents and articles, if any, which are to be produced in evidence;

(d) notify the Public Prosecutor of the commitment of the case to the Court of Session.

13. From the perusal of above provisions, it is obvious that in cases triable by court of session as provided in schedule of the Code, the Magistrate has no power to try the case and he is required to commit the case before the court of session where trial may take place. However, Magistrate is empowered to take cognizance of any offence unless otherwise provided including the offence exclusively triable by the court of sessions.

14. In Dharampal vs. State of Haryana reported in (2014) 3 SC 306, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that cognizance under Section 193 Cr.P.C. has been related to cognizance of offence and not to commitment order passed by the Magistrate. For offence exclusively triable by the court of session; the court of session is competent for arraignment of such persons as accused from and during cognizance as such itself under section 193 (upon committal of Magistrate) and then during course of inquiry and trial, under section 319 Cr.P.C.

15. This Court in Sukhbir Singh vs. State of U.P. and another in application under Section 482 No. 21859 of 2021 decided on 22.7.2022 held that in view of Section 209 Cr.P.C. there is no ambiguity that "who is trial court". In the present case, since the offence is triable by the Session court, the trial court is session court. While hearing the application of discharge, the Magistrate committed error by assuming the jurisdiction of session court. The session court has to apply its mind whether applicant is liable to be discharged or whether application is liable to be rejected. The Magisterial court committed error by deciding the case itself.

16. In present case learned Magistrate has committed legal error while dismissing the discharge application moved by the accused revisionists on assumption of jurisdiction, although it has not decided the discharge application on merits and observed that court has no jurisdiction to hear the case as the case was triable by the court of session.

17. From perusal of the record it appears that discharge application was filed by the revisionists pursuant to order of this court passed in application u/s 482 No. 4289 of 2021 where they were given liberty to move an application of discharge before the court below under section 239 Cr.P.C. and permitted to appear through counsel before the court below or till disposal of the discharge application or for a period of four months from the date of passing of order whichever is earlier.

18. In session triable of cases the discharge application is maintainable under section 227 Cr.P.C. which provides that in a trial before the court of session, if upon considering record of the case and documents submitted therewith and after hearing the submission of accused and prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for doing so.

19. In view of the aforesaid factual and legal discussions, I am of the opinion that learned Magistrate committed legal error while deciding the discharge application moved by the accused persons inter-alia under section 307 IPC, which is triable by the court of session; the proper course before the learned Magistrate was to commit the case before the court of session after quoting the orders of this Court passed in application u/s 482 as stated aforesaid, through counsel as accused persons were given liberty to appear before the court below for filing discharge application. On committal of case by learned Magistrate through counsel, without insisting personal appearance of the accused persons as they are not enlarged on bail as yet, the discharge application was liable to be decided by the court of session and all pleas taken in discharge application were to be taken before the court of session.

20. Consequently present revision is allowed. The impugned order passed by learned Magistrate dated 4.11.2022 dismissing discharge application 24kh moved by the accused persons is set aside.

21. Learned Magistrate court is directed to commit the case before the court of session after ensuring compliance of provision under section 207 Cr.P.C. and discharge application moved by the accused persons before the court below in pursuance of the direction of this Court will be taken up by the court of session as if filed under section 227 Cr.P.C. and same will be disposed of after giving opportunity of hearing to accused applicants as well as prosecution side.

22. Keeping in view of the delay already occasioned in the case learned Magistrate will commit the case as far as possible within one month from the date of production of certified copy of this order and after committal of the case learned session court will hear and decide the said discharge application in the light of the above observations within a period of three months provided there is no legal impediment. If the discharge application is dismissed then accused revisionists will be directed to surrender and will be taken into custody and their bail application will be decided in accordance with law.

List of Cases cited:

U.O.I. Vs Ashok Kumar Sharma

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra, J. & Hon'ble Ms. Nand Prabha Shukla, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned AGA.

2. Both these writ petitions arise out of same FIR and, therefore, they have been heard and are being decided together.

3. The writ petitions seek quashing of the first information report dated 02.03.2023 giving rise to Case Crime No.92 of 2023, under Sections 274, 275 & 276 of I.P.C. and Section 17, 17(a), 17(b) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, Police Station- Phase-3 Sector 71 Noida, Noida Commissionerate, District Gautam Buddh Nagar.

4. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that the FIR has been lodged on the basis of Test Analysis Report dated 14.01.2023 of the Govt. Analyst, Regional Drugs Testing Laboratory, Chandigarh. This test report is alleged to pertain to "DOK-1 Max Syrup" and 'Ambroxol Hydrochloride Syrup (Ambronol Syrup)'.

5. It has also vehemently urged that the report merely states that the drugs on analysis were found 'not of standard quality'.

6. The first submission is that the report of the Drug Analyst would attract Section 17-A and 17-B of the Act of 1940 but the FIR has been registered under Section 17, 17(a) and 17(b) of the Act.

7. The second contention is that in the complaint filed contains no allegations as regards the facts which would constitute the offence alleged. In any case, the test analyst report does not state that the drugs upon analysis were found adulterated or spurious.

8. It is next contended that the Govt. Analysts' Report is not conclusive and an opportunity is required to be given to controvert the report. It is only thereafter that the report becomes final.

9. It has also been submitted that infringement of Section 17, 17(a) and 17(b) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act are not cognizable offences.

10. Relying upon the decision of the Apex Court in Union of India Vs. Ashok Kumar Sharma, it has been submitted that an offence under Chapter IV of the Act can only be prosecuted by means of a complaint by a Drug Inspector and the police cannot lodge an FIR in that regard nor can the police prosecute offenders regarding such an offence. For the same reason, the police officers do not have any power to arrest.

11. It is next contended that no offence has been committed within the territorial jurisdiction of the concerned police station as the drugs in question were meant exclusively for export and were not to be sold internally. Therefore, no offence has been committed in India.

12. It is next contended that the petitioners are merely Directors in Marion Biotech Pvt. Ltd., which company has not been arrayed in the FIR. The company manufacturing the allegedly sub-standard drug was in any case a necessary party and in its absence also the FIR is not sustainable.

13. It is also sought to be contended that there is no allegation in the FIR insofar as the role of the petitioners, the Directors in Marion Biotech Pvt. Ltd. is concerned, which is relevant because a Director in a case of an offence by a company must be in charge and responsible for the conduct of the business of the company and the offence was committed within his or her knowledge. No knowledge, consent or connivance of the petitioners has been alleged in the FIR.

14. Learned AGA on the other hand has submitted that the FIR has been lodged as the drugs manufactured by the company were no doubt meant for export and were duly exported to Kazakhstan where 54 children are said to have been died after consuming the drugs in issue. The search was conducted and specimen of the drugs were obtained and tested in relation to those deaths.

15. We have considered the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

16. Insofar as the first submission of counsel for the petitioner noticed herein above is concerned, it may be noticed that in the body of the FIR the sections mentioned as 17-A & 17-B but in the column 2 of the FIR they have been transcribed as 17(a) and 17(b), which appears to be a typographical error.

17. The judgment cited by learned counsel for the petitioner has merely been held that insofar as an offence falling within Chapter IV of the Act is concerned, the prosecution can be lodged only by an Inspector. The word Inspector has been defined under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act in Section 3(e)(ii), which is relevant for the purposes of the case, reads as follows:-

"in relation to any other drugs or cosmetics, an inspector appointed by the Central Government or a State Government under Section 21."

18. This definition in our considered opinion, will take the word 'inspector occurring in Section 32 of the Act, which deals with cognizance of offence beyond the purview of an Inspector of Police.

19. The FIR definitely alleges to have been lodged by a Drug Inspector namely an Inspector specified in Section 32 of the Act.

20. Moreover, sub-section 3 of Section 32 provides that prosecution under the provisions of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 as specified under Chapter IV of the Act, shall not preclude prosecution of a person under any other law for any act or omission, which constitutes also an offence under Chapter IV.

21. The other sections which have been invoked in the impugned FIR are Sections 274, 275 and 276 of the Indian Penal Code. In view of Section 32(3), such prosecution is permitted. However, these three sections are non cognizable and bailable offences under the Indian Penal Code. It is settled law that no first information report can be lodged regarding a non cognizable offence and that prosecution is permissible only by means of a complaint before a Magistrate or a competent court.

22. Therefore, in our considered opinion, the FIR should not have been registered by the police as the offences under the Indian Penal Code are non cognizable offences while offences alleged under the provisions of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, can be prosecuted only by means of a complaint and not an FIR as is clear from the perusal of the judgment cited by learned counsel for the petitioners as also Section 32 of the Act.

23. Having said so, the issue, which arises is as to what relief is liable to be granted in the writ petition.

24. It would be relevant to state that the other submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner are not being adverted to as the same are rendered purely academic in view of the finding arrived at herein above.

25. Normally, in view of the finding arrived at, the most logical approach would be to quash the impugned FIR. However, the Apex Court in the judgment cited in paragraph 141 has observed as follows:-

"141. This process of interpretation would produce the result of harmonizing two seemingly irreconcilable commands from the Law-Giver. This interpretation commends itself to us for the reason that the investigation into offences, under Chapter IV of the Act, would commence, be carried out and would culminate in, in the safe hands of the competent and qualified Statutory Authority, as designated by law. It would also avoid an outside agency like a Police Officer, being obliged to register an FIR, for the reason that where arrest has to be made, a FIR is to be registered, and, when the registering of the FIR carries with it an unattainable object of preferring a Final Report under Section 173 of the CrPC, as far as the Police Officer is concerned. We make it clear that if a Police Officer is approached with regard to a complaint regarding commission of an offence falling under Chapter IV of the Act, he is not to register an FIR unless it be that a cognizable offence, other than an offence falling under Chapter IV of the Act, is also made out. He must makeover the complaint to the competent Drug Inspector so that action in according with law is immediately taken where only offences under Chapter IV are made out."

24. In view of the aforesaid direction given by the Apex Court, we refrain from quashing the FIR and only direct that the petitioners shall not be prosecuted or arrested consequent to the impugned FIR and the first information report shall not be acted upon by the police authorities unless, the petitioners have already been convicted on an offence(s) under Chapter IV, as is provided by the U.P. Amendment of Section 30 of the Act. It is left open for the Drug Inspector, the first informant in the FIR to proceed in accordance with law by lodging a complaint before the appropriate forum for the prosecution of the petitioners in these two petitions.

Radhey Shyam & anr. Vs Chhabi Nath & ors., (2015) 5 SCC 423

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

01. Heard Sri Shashi Kant Dwivedi, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Gokaran Singh, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 and learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

02. This criminal writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed against the judgment and order dated 05.09.2011 passed in criminal revision no. 222 of 2010, Ajay Kumar and others vs. State of U.P. and another) by Additional District & Sessions Judge, court no.3, Mau whereby the order of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Mau passed in complaint case no.4289 of 2008 dated 31.08.2010 was not interfered at and the revision was dismissed.

03. The petitioner has prayed for issuance of direction in the nature of certiorari to quash both the orders dated 05.09.2011 and 31.08.2010.

04. For clarity following relevant facts are being narrated:-

(i) Respondent no.2 Angnoo Singh Yadav filed a criminal complaint before C.J.M, Mau alleging that co-accused Dhanauti Devi sold her house to complainant's aunt Buddha Devi in 1986; accused-petitioner no.1 Angad stood as marginal witness, and Buddha Devi sold that house to complainant's bhabhi Radha Devi in 2007 and since then purchaser was in possession thereof; accused-petitioner no.1 was tenant in that house; when the purchaser demanded rent from him he did not pay the same and instead filed a case in civil court; he who himself was the marginal witness of the sale deed of 1986 fraudulently obtained receipt by depositing house tax of the house in question and got his name mutated in the Nagar Palika papers; On 03.12.2008 all the accused persons intruded in his house/shop and removed Rs.4000/- from cash counter and threatened him either to settle the matter or to face the consequences.

(ii) Learned Magistrate summoned only Angad and Dhanauti Devi for the offence under Section 397, 504 and 506 I.P.C. The complainant filed a revision and the court of sessions set aside the summoning order and called upon the Magistrate to pass an order afresh. The Magistrate passed second order on 31.08.2010 summoning the petitioner no.1 Angad and his wife Dhanauti Devi under Section 418 and 420 I.P.C. and petitioners no.2 to 4 and Dhanauti Devi under Section 397, 504,506 and 120-B I.P.C.. Challenging the above orders the petitioner preferred Criminal Revision no.222 of 2010 but the same was dismissed by order dated 05.09.2011. Now the petitioners are before this Court by means of this criminal writ petition under Section 226 of the Constitution of India

05. It is contended on behalf of the petitioners that both the orders have been passed without application of mind. At the most controversy is only civil in nature. This complaint has been filed to harass and humiliate them. The entire story is false and concocted and in fact no prima facie case is made out against them. Subject matter of the sale deeds is house no.94/1 and petitioners' house is numbered as 94.

06. The contentions of the petitioners are opposed by respondent no.2 on the ground that in a judicial order this Court is not allowed to interfere while exercising writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Hence, the petition should be dismissed at the very threshold. To stress above point. Judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Radhey Shyam and another vs. Chhabhi Nath and others, (2015) 5 SCC 423 has been referred to. The apex court in the aforesaid judgment held that writ of certiorari lies to bring decisions of an "Inferior court", tribunal, public authority or any other body of persons for review so that the court may determine whether they should be quashed or not. However, expression "interference" the court is not referable to the judicial courts Writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. The Apex Court in para 25 further observed as below:-

"25. All courts in the jurisdiction of a High Court are subordinate to it and subject to its control and supervision under Article 227. Writ jurisdiction is constitutionally conferred on all High Courts. Broad principles of writ jurisdiction followed in England are applicable to India and a writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of Tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. There are no precedents in India for High Courts to issue writs to subordinate courts. Control of working of subordinate courts in dealing with their judicial orders is exercised by way of appellate or revisional powers or power of superintendence under Article 227. Orders of civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or Tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts.

While appellate or revisional jurisdiction is regulated by statutes, power of superintendence under Article 227 is constitutional. The expression "inferior court" is not referable to judicial courts,

07. Thus it has been clearly laid down that order of civil court could be challenged under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and not under original writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

08. Certain facts attract attention of this Court :-

This writ petition was filed on 26.09.2011 and it is pending since then, i.e., since more than 11 years now. All this while, this legal point was neither raised nor realized that this writ petitions seeks to invoke powers under Article 226 instead of Article 227 Constitution of India . This is settled law that non-mentioning or wrong mentioning of provisions of law should not come in the path of granting appropriate relief, if the litigant otherwise is entitled for the same. In my view, an ordinary litigant cannot be expected of having too minute knowledge of provisions of law. This question has always been troubling my judicial conscience that what a common man or ordinary litigant has to do with the provision of law under which he may be entitled for relief. This should be the concern of the Court of law or Court of justice or his counsel/advocate. Where no other deterrent except non mentioning or wrong mentioning of law poses a hurdle in the winding path to justice, the judge ought to play its expected role. The Judge or the Court shall be failing in its duty towards an ordinary man/litigant by not looking for solutions and dismissing the writ on technical ground. In this view of the matter,

I find it fit to treat this petition as one moved under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

9. Quite a number of arguments have been placed before me touching upon the merits of this matter including the one that in this case, there is a clear attempt to drag the petitioner in a criminal case, whereas the dispute, if any, is essentially civil in nature. Considering the settled law that even while exercising powers under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, the Courts are not permitted to go deep into the matter and test the arguments advanced by the parties on the anvil of evidence or decide disputed questions of fact, I, therefore refrain from interfering in the order passed by the revisional court in a second round of litigation between the parties. At the same time, I find it irresistible to mention that there are certain contentions which may have some substance as far as merits of the matter are concerned and which could have been seen by the trial court as well as by the revisional court. Hence, I find it fit to dispose of this writ petition in the manner as below:-

(I) The prayer for issuance of writ of certiorari is hereby refused.

(II) In case, the petitioners appear before the court concerned and apply for bail within a month from today, their bail application shall be considered and disposed of as expeditiously as possible without granting any unnecessary adjournment to either sides.

(III) In case, during the course of proceedings before the court concerned at appropriate stage the petitioners apply for their discharge by moving a suitable application under the provisions of section-245(1) or 245(2) Cr.P.C. as the case may be, the same shall be decided by the concerned Magistrate/Court by passing a reasoned and speaking order.

10 . Accordingly this writ petition is disposed of.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

This is a claimants appeal arising out of a judgment and award passed by the learned District Judge/ Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Kanpur Nagar dated 29.08.2005 passed in M.A.C.P. No. 103 of 2005, seeking enhancement of the compensation awarded.

2. The claimants-appellants are the claimant-petitioners of M.A.C.P. No. 103 of 2005 instituted before the Tribunal seeking compensation on account of the death of their son in a motor accident. The claimants-appellants are the father and mother of the deceased and shall hereinafter be referred to as the “claimants.”

3. The claimants’ case briefly put is this:

Mohit Dwivedi was a student of Class XI at Woodbine Gardenia School, situate at G.T. Road, Kalyanpur, Kanpur Nagar. On November, the 9th, 2004, after attending school, he was proceeding to attend his coaching classes near Gurudev Palace, Kakadev by a Scooter, bearing Registration No. UP-78AM-9142. The aforesaid scooter was owned by the deceased’s father, Arun Kumar Dwivedi, one of the claimants. At about 01:45 in the afternoon as Mohit reached a place facing Dalhan Anusandhan Railway Crossing, a truck bearing Registration No. UP-70L-9527 moving from the opposite direction, swerved to the wrong side of the road and hit Mohit’s scooter. As a result of the impact, Mohit was thrown down from the scooter and sustained grievous injuries. The scooter was also damaged. A multitude of persons gathered at the site of the accident and the offending truck was apprehended on the spot. Some of those men conveyed Mohit to the hospital but he passed away in transit. He was the claimants’ elder son and very intelligent. He was reading to write his competitive test for admission to the Bachelor of Engineering course. He would attend coaching class after school hours for the said purpose. Besides studies, Mohit would take part in extracurricular activities. The deceased would have gone on to become an Engineer and earn an approximate sum of Rs 50,000/- per month but for his untimely demise. The claimants say that they have been deprived of his services and financial help in their old days. They have suffered physical and mental agony, which cannot be compensated in monetary terms. At the time of his demise, the deceased was aged about 19 years. His monthly income was Rs. 25,000/-. An FIR about the incident was lodged at P.S. Kalyanpur, leading to registration of Crime No. 692 of 2004, under Sections 279, 304-A and 302 IPC against Ram Magan, the truck driver on 09.11.2004 at 04:00 p.m.

4. The claimants prayed that a sum of Rs. 32,76,000/- along with interest @ 18% per annum be awarded to them in compensation.

5. One Bharat Bhushan Khanna is the owner of the offending vehicle. He was impleaded as opposite party no. 1 to the claim petition. Before us he is impleaded as respondent no. 1 to the appeal. The truck owner shall hereinafter be called as the ‘owner’. The New India Assurance Company Limited through its Regional Officer, Kanpur Nagar are the insurers of the offending truck. They were impleaded as opposite party no. 2 to the claim petition and respondent no. 2 to this appeal. The aforesaid Insurance Company shall hereinafter be called as the ‘Insurers’.

6. A written statement was filed on behalf of the owner. He has admitted being the registered owner of the offending truck.

He has pleaded that the offending truck was insured with the Insurers from 04.04.2004 to 03.04.2005. According to the owner, the accident did not take place on account of rash and negligent driving by the truck driver. The driver of the truck held a valid driving license. He was an experienced driver. The accident was caused due to the negligence of the deceased. A plea has been raised that the registered owner of the scooter and its Insurer have not been impleaded as parties to the claim petition, rendering it bad for non-joinder of the necessary parties. The compensation claimed is excessive. It is pleaded that if the owner be found liable, the burden would go to the Insurers. The Insurers have filed a separate written statement and generally denied the claimants' case. According to the Insurers, the factum of the accident and the involvement of the offending truck therein is denied. They have pleaded that no accident was caused by the offending truck in the manner alleged by the claimants. There is in the alternative a plea to the effect that the accident, if any, was caused due to the deceased's negligence. The driver of the offending truck was not holding a valid and effective license on the date of the accident.

7. There is a plea on behalf of the Insurers that Mohit Dwivedi was a minor and did not hold a driving license on the date of the accident.. The accident took place involving the offending truck and the ill-fated scooter but the Owner and the Insurer of the scooter have not been impleaded as opposite-parties to the claim-petition. The Insurers also pleaded that they do not admit the insurance policy claimed by the owner due to want of particulars. The amount of compensation claimed is castigated as excessive. The Insurers say that the claim petition deserved to be rejected.

8. On the pleadings of parties, the Tribunal framed the following issues:

“1. Whether the accident took place on 9.11.04 at about 1.45 AM (sic PM) on the G.T.Road, in front of DALHAN ANUSANDHAN Railway Crossing, within the local limits of P.S. Kalyanpur, Kanpur-Nagar, due to rash and negligent driving of Truck No. UP-70L-9527 by its driver, as alleged in the petition? If so, whether the death of Sri Mohit Dwivedi has been caused, as a result of the said accident?

2. Whether the accident in question took place due to rash and negligent driving of Scooter No. UP-78AM-9142 by the deceased himself?

3. Whether the driver of the truck in question was not holding a valid and effective driving licence on the date of accident?

4. Whether the petitioners are entitled to get any compensation? If so, from whom and to what extent?

5. To what relief, if any, is the petitioners entitled?”

9. The claimants examined in support of their case, Arun Kumar Dwivedi as PW-1 and Ritesh Kumar as PW-2. Documentary evidence was also produced which will be discussed during the course of judgment as much as is relevant to the issue involved in this appeal. The Insurers did not produce any evidence and against the owner, the claim proceeded ex parte before the Tribunal.

10. Issues nos. 1 and 2 that pertain to negligence and contributory negligence were taken up together by the Tribunal holding that the accident was caused due to rash and negligent driving of the truck driver and Mohit's death was caused on account of injuries sustained in consequence of the said accident. It was further held that the accident did not happen due to rash and negligent driving by the deceased. Thus, the case of contributory negligence was negated by the Tribunal.

11. Issue no. 3 was answered in the affirmative holding that the driver of the offending truck held a valid and effective driving license on the date of accident. Issue nos. 4 and 5 which are overlapping were decided holding that claimants are entitled to compensation in the sum of Rs. 1,54,500/-, which the Insurers are liable to indemnify. The claim petition was, accordingly, allowed with 7% interest per annum on the compensation awarded, reckoned from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. There is a further direction in the award impugned made by the Tribunal, directing apportionment of compensation payable to the extent of 50% each between the two claimants.

12. Heard Mr. Vidya Kant Shukla, learned Counsel for the claimants and Mr. Saurabh Srivastava, learned counsel for the Insurers. No one appeared for the owner.

13. It must be noticed at the outset that no cross appeal or cross objection has been preferred, either on behalf of the Insurers or the owner. As such, there is no cause or occasion for this Court to examine the findings of the Tribunal recorded on Issues Nos. 1, 2 and 3. Those must be held to have attained finality inter partes.

14. This appeal has been pressed on behalf of the claimants, seeking enhancement of the compensation awarded. While returning findings on Issue No. 4, the Tribunal has taken note of the fact that the deceased was a promising student, reading in Class XI at Woodbine Gardenia School, Kalyanpur at the time of his untimely demise. He was also preparing to write his entrance examination for admission to the undergraduate engineering course. The Tribunal has remarked that the life and career of a person is fraught with uncertainties. According to the Tribunal in due course after earning his degrees, the deceased may have established himself in life and gone on to help the claimants in the future. The Tribunal has then said that since the deceased had no income, his notional income shall be deemed to be 15000/- per annum. To this a multiplier of 15 has been applied and a deduction of 1/3rd made towards personal and living expenses. It is on the foot of the aforesaid parameters that a substantive dependency of Rs. 1,50,000/- has been determined by the Tribunal. In addition, a sum of Rs. 2000/- has been awarded towards funeral expenses, Rs. 2000/- towards loss of estate and general damages. It is in this manner that a total of sum of Rs. 1,54,000/- has been assessed to be the compensation payable by the owner and Insurers, with obligation on the Insurers to satisfy the award.

15. Learned Counsel for the claimants has criticized the Tribunal's approach in assessing the compensation based on a very conservative notional income for the deceased. It is also argued that the Tribunal ought to have awarded future prospects which ought to be awarded even in those cases that proceed on the foot of a notional income. Learned counsel for the claimants has placed reliance in support of his contention upon a Bench decision of this Court in Saroj Devi and others v. Royal Sundaram Alliance Insurance Co. Ltd. and Another, 2016 (2) TAC (281)(All.). In Saroj Devi (supra), it was held that the notional income could not be less than Rs. 3000/- per month and future prospects would have to be added to the extent of 50%.

16. Learned Counsel for the Insurers has supported the impugned judgment and submitted that in the absence of an income in presenti, there cannot be an award of future prospects based on conjecture about a student's prospective income. It must be remarked here that students in the middle class Indian society are looked upon with suspicion about their future productivity, even if it be almost certain from their current progression that they would have a rewarding career. Also, there is distinct concept in middle class Indian society about being a 'mere student'. A student is not a class by itself and a man could be productive at any stage of his life. The new world has opened up vistas of opportunity for the youngsters to actually earn, while they study, doing both serious work and entertainment business, equally rewarding. Sadly, the pedantic outlook about being a student and then a productive man at a certain age of the human life with the certain and dependable productivity being inferred for Government servants alone paid out of the State exchequer is a lingering legacy of a colonial past and a different world. Keeping aside the idea of a new world of opportunities and the actually productive young men, who earn while they study, because there is no evidence about that in this case, we think that the notional income of Rs. 15,000/- a year for a student of Class XI, aged about 19 years, is a very pessimistic assessment about the young man's income-even notional.

17. In V. Mekala v. M. Malathi and another, (2014) 11 SCC 178, which was a case about a claim for compensation in an injury case of a 16 years old girl, who was a promising student of Class XI and left 70% permanently disabled by the accident, it was held by their Lordships of the Supreme Court, thus:

"17. Further, having regard to the undisputed fact that there has been inflation of money in the country since the occurrence of the accident, the same has to be taken into account by the Tribunal and appellate court while awarding compensation to the appellant claimant as per the principle laid down by this Court in Govind Yadav [Govind Yadav v. New India Insurance Co. Ltd., (2011) 10 SCC 683 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 1082 : (2012) 1 SCC (Cri) 82 : (2012) 1 SCC (L&S) 422] which has reiterated the position of Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan [Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan, (2009) 13 SCC 422 : (2009) 5 SCC (Civ) 143 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1044] , the relevant paragraph of which reads as under: (Reshma Kumari case [Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan, (2009) 13 SCC 422 : (2009) 5 SCC (Civ) 143 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1044] , SCC pp. 440-41, para 46)

"46. In the Indian context several other factors should be taken into consideration including education of the dependants and the nature of job. In the wake of changed societal conditions and global scenario, future prospects may have to be taken into consideration not only having regard to the status of the employee, his educational qualification; his past performance but also other relevant factors, namely, the higher salaries and perks which are being offered by the private companies these days. In fact while determining the multiplicand this Court in Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Jashuben [(2008) 4 SCC 162 : (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 752] held that even dearness allowance and perks with regard thereto from which the family would have derived monthly benefit, must be taken into consideration.”

18. The fact that the appellant was a brilliant student at the time of the accident should also be taken into consideration while awarding compensation to her. Therefore, taking Rs 6000 as monthly notional income by the Tribunal for the purpose of awarding compensation under this head is too meagre an amount. The learned counsel appearing for Respondent 2 contended that the appellant can still finish her education and find employment and therefore, there is no necessity to enhance the amount of compensation under the head of “loss of income” and “future prospects”. It is pertinent to reiterate here that the appellant claimant has undergone and is still undergoing substantial pain and suffering due to the accident which has rendered both her legs dysfunctional. This has reduced the scope of her future prospects including her marriage substantially. Moreover, a tortfeasor is not entitled to dictate the terms of the appellant claimant's career as has been held by the Karnataka High Court in K. Narasimha Murthy v. Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. [ILR 2004 KAR 2471], the relevant paragraph of which reads as under: (ILR pp. 2490-91, para 41)

“41. ... Further, it needs to be emphasised that it is not the right of the tortfeasor or a person who has taken over the liability of the tortfeasor in terms of and under the Act to dictate that the injured person should do some other work, manual or otherwise, it does not matter, may be with pain and discomfort, in order to minimise his or its liability. Such insistence is untenable in law and if such is the case, it would violate basic human rights of the injured person. In this case, the appellant is reduced to such a state that he is unable to do any work, manual or otherwise, without subjecting himself to pain and suffering, agony and discomfort. In an accident, if a man is disabled for a work which he was doing before the accident, that he has no talents, skill, experience or training for anything else and he is unable to find any work, manual or clerical, such a man for all practical purposes has lost all earning capacity he possessed before and he is required to be compensated on the basis of total loss. In reaching this conclusion we may derive support from the judgments in Daniels v. Sir Robert McAlpine and Sons Ltd. [(1971) 11 KIR 141] and Blair v. FJC Lilley (Marine) Ltd. [1981 SLT 90] Secondly, the physical incapacity to earn income sustained by the appellant is not temporary, but permanent and complete as per Ext. P-43. Thirdly, it cannot be said that since the appellant has sustained only 54% permanent physical disability in respect of the whole body as per PW 3, the court should take into account functional disability also at 54% only while assessing the loss of earning capacity. Such hypothesis does not stand to reason nor can it be accepted as valid in terms of law. An injured person is compensated for the loss which he incurs as a result of physical injury and not for physical injury itself. In other words, compensation is given only for what is lost due to accident in terms of an equivalent in money insofar as the nature of money admits for the loss sustained. In an accident, if a person loses a limb or eye or sustains an injury, the court while computing damages for the loss of organs or physical injury, does not value a limb or eye in isolation, but only values totality of the harm which the loss has entailed the loss of amenities of life and infliction of pain and suffering: the loss of the good things of life, joys of life and the positive infliction of pain and distress.”

19. Further, it has been held in Reshma Kumari [Reshma Kumari v. Madan Mohan, (2009) 13 SCC 422 : (2009) 5 SCC (Civ) 143 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 1044] that certain relevant factors should be taken into consideration while awarding compensation under the head of future prospect of income. The relevant paragraph reads as under: (SCC pp. 431-32, para 27)

“27. The question as to the methodology required to be applied for determination of compensation as regards prospective loss of future earnings, however, as far as possible should be based on certain principles. A person may have a bright future prospect; he might have become eligible to promotion immediately; there might have been chances of an immediate pay revision, whereas in another (sic situation) the nature of employment was such that he might not have continued in service; his chance of promotion, having regard to the nature of employment may be distant or remote. It is, therefore, difficult for any court to lay down rigid tests which should be applied in all situations. There are divergent views. In some cases it has been suggested that some sort of hypotheses or guesswork may be inevitable. That may be so.”

20. Therefore, in the light of the principles laid down in the aforesaid case, it would be just and proper for this Court, and keeping in mind her past results we take Rs 10,000 as her monthly notional income for computation of just and reasonable compensation under the head of loss of income. Further, the High Court has failed to take into consideration the future prospects of income based on the principles laid down by this Court in the catena of cases referred to supra. Therefore, the appellant is justified in seeking for re-enhancement under this head as well and we hold that the appellant claimant is entitled to 50% increase under this head as per the principle laid down by this Court in Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167] . The relevant paragraph reads as under: (SCC pp. 426-27, para 13)

“13. In Sarla Verma case [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] , another two-Judge Bench considered various factors relevant for determining the compensation payable in cases involving motor accidents, noticed apparent divergence in the views expressed by this Court in different cases, referred to large number of precedents including the judgments in U.P. SRTC v. Trilok Chandra [(1996) 4 SCC 362] , Nance v. British Columbia Electric Railway Co. Ltd. [1951 AC 601 : (1951) 2 All ER 448 (PC)] , Davies v. Powell Duffryn Associated Collieries Ltd. (No. 2) [1942 AC 601 : (1942) 1 All ER 657 (HL)] and made an attempt to limit the exercise of discretion by the Tribunals and the High Courts in the matter of award of compensation by laying down a straitjacket formula under different headings, some of which are enumerated below: (Sarla Verma case [Sarla Verma v. DTC, (2009) 6 SCC 121 : (2009) 2 SCC (Civ) 770 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 1002] , SCC pp. 133-34, para 24)

‘Question (i)—Addition to income for future prospects

24. In Susamma Thomas [Kerala SRTC v. Susamma Thomas, (1994) 2 SCC 176 : 1994 SCC (Cri) 335] this Court increased the income by nearly 100%, in Sarla Dixit [Sarla Dixit v. Balwant Yadav, (1996) 3 SCC 179] the income was increased only by 50% and in Abati Bezbaruah [Abati Bezbaruah v. Geological Survey of India, (2003) 3 SCC 148 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 746] the income was increased by a mere 7%. In view of the imponderables and uncertainties, we are in favour of adopting as a rule of thumb, an addition of 50% of actual salary to the actual salary income of the deceased towards future prospects, where the deceased had a permanent job and was below 40 years. (Where the annual income is in the taxable range, the words “actual salary” should be read as “actual salary less tax”.) The addition should be only 30% if the age of the deceased was 40 to 50 years. There should be no addition, where the age of the deceased is more than 50 years. Though the evidence may indicate a different percentage of increase, it is necessary to standardise the addition to avoid different yardsticks being applied or different methods of calculation being adopted. Where the deceased was self-employed or was on a fixed salary (without provision for annual increments, etc.), the courts will usually take only the actual income at the time of death. A departure therefrom should be made only in rare and exceptional cases involving special circumstances.”

Therefore, taking both the aspects into account, the total amount of compensation under this head is calculated as Rs 22,68,000 [(Rs 10,000 × 70/100 + Rs 10,000 × 70/100 × 50/100) × 12 × 18]”

18. The principles regarding assessment of compensation in case of persons, who do not have an income in present, but are students, was considered by the Supreme Court in M.R. Krishna Murthi v. New India Assurance Company Limited and others, (2020) 15 SCC 493, where it was held:

“24. From the conjoint reading of the aforesaid judgments, inter alia, the following principles can be culled out which would be relevant for deciding the instant appeal:

24.1. In those cases where the victim of the accident is not an earning person but a student, while assessing the compensation for loss of future earning, the focus of the examination would be the career prospect and the likely earning of such a person in future. For example, where the claimant is pursuing a particular professional course, the poser would be: what would have been his income had he joined a service commensurating with the said course. That can be the future earning.

24.2. There may be cases where the victim is not, at that stage, doing any such course to get a particular job. He or she may be studying in a school. In such a case, future career would depend upon multiple factors like the family background, choice/interest of the complainant to pursue a particular career, facilities available to him/her for adopting such a career, the favourable surrounding circumstances to see which would have enabled the claimant to successfully pick up the said career, etc. If the chosen field is employment, then the future earning can be taken on the basis of salary and allowances which are payable for such calling. In case, career is a particular profession, the future earning would depend on host of other factors on the basis of which chances to achieve success in such a profession can be ascertained.

24.3. There may be cases like Deo Patodi [Oriental Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Deo Patodi, (2009) 13 SCC 123 : (2009) 5 SCC (Civ) 29 : (2010) 1 SCC (Cri) 963] where even a student, the claimant would have made earnings on part-time basis or would have received offer for a particular job. In such cases, these factors would also assume relevance.

24.4. After ascertaining the likely earning of the victim in the aforesaid manner, the nature of injuries and disability suffered as a result thereof would be kept in mind while determining as to how much earning has been affected thereby. Here, impact of injuries on functional disability is to be seen. In case of death of victim, it would result in total loss of earning. In the case of injuries, the nature of disability becomes important. Such an exercise was undertaken in N. Manjegowda case [N. Manjegowda v. United India Insurance Co. Ltd., (2014) 3 SCC 584 : (2014) 2 SCC (Civ) 297 : (2014) 4 SCC (Cri) 634].”

19. In Gopalpuri Jai Prakash and others v. The Managing Director, APSRTC and others, MACMA. No. 694 of 2011, decided on 08.09.2022, the Telangana High Court considered the income of a student studying in the intermediate course for the purpose of award of compensation to his legal representatives. The student in that case had died in a motor accident on 21.10.2006. While considering the question of income of student in Gopalpuri Jai Prakash (supra), it was observed:

“9. The petitioners stated that by the date of the accident Prakash/deceased was aged 18 years and was brilliant student studying intermediate. Further by giving tuitions, he used to earn Rs. 6,000/- per month.

10. Out of the documents filed by the petitioners, the driving licence/Ex. A-5, S.S.C. certificate/Ex. A-7 and passport/Ex. A-10 are reflecting that the date of birth of Prakash/deceased is 09.10.1989. Thus, the age of Prakash/deceased by the date of the accident is 18 years. With regard to income though the petitioners placed the evidence of PW-2 to support the claim that the deceased was giving tuitions, the material particulars as to how many students and the fees per student were missing. However, having regard to the pleaded academic record in Ex. A-7, A-8 and A-9 a monthly income of Rs. 5,000/- can safely be taken on notional basis.”

20. Though Gopalpuri Jai Prakash was a case where it was asserted that the deceased had an actual income earned out of providing private tuitions, but the Court assessed his income on a notional basis at a figure of Rs.5000/- considering his academic record. Here, the deceased was a student of Class XI. This Court finds on a perusal of his mark-sheets for the High School Examination, 2004 conducted by the Central Board of Secondary Education dated 28.05.2004 that the deceased had averaged between C and D Grade, also earning a B, but nevertheless was a student of a good school, affiliated to the Central Board of Secondary Education. He had interest in extracurricular activities and there are certificates on record of his participation in these activities.

21. PW-1, the deceased's father Arun Kumar Dwivedi has said in his examination-in-chief that his son was reading in Class-XI in the Woodbine Gardenia School, Kanpur and was taking a foundation course to upgrade his skills in writing his Engineering Entrance Examination. In his examination-in-chief, it is further said that his son had read from Nursery to Class X in the Sir Padampat Singhania Education Centre, Kanpur, U.P., affiliated to the CBSE. The witness has also stated that after passing his Engineering Examination, his son wanted to join the NDA. Considering the totality of evidence, it must be remarked that the deceased was a student, reading in a good institution at the intermediate level. Going by the guidelines in Paragraph No.24.2 of the report in M.R. Krishna Murthi (supra), it must be remarked that the deceased had an inclination to seek admission to an Engineering Course and aspired to join the NDA. The fact that he had passed his High School from a good institution and was pursuing his studies to earn his Intermediate Examination Certificate also from a good institution, both affiliated to the Central Board of Secondary Education, besides the fact that his family were spending money, providing him auxiliary coaching to upgrade his skills for the purpose of writing his competitive examination for selection to the Engineering Course, all go to show that he had good prospects of being selected in an Engineering Course and securing a rewarding job for himself. The mere fact that the deceased's High School Certificate does not carry very high grades is not an index about his future performance. The schools where he was studying and the fact that his family were funding his education in a good school, are dependable factors to infer a good future for the deceased in terms of his productivity.

22. In the opinion of this Court, bearing in mind the guidance on high authority regarding assessment to be made about the income of students on a notional basis and the circumstances of the deceased, the time when the accident happened, that is to say, the year 2004, when an unskilled daily-wagers would be earning about Rs.3000/- per month, it would be fair to find for the deceased a notional income of Rs.5000/- per month.

23. The monthly income of the deceased being Rs.5000/-, the annual income would work out to a figure of Rs.60,000/-. The deceased was bachelor and the claimants are his parents. Going by the principle with regard to deductions for personal and living expenses relating to bachelors laid down in Sarla Verma (Smt) v. Delhi Transport Corporation and another, (2009) 6 SCC 121, a 50% deduction is to be made from the deceased's income. The deceased was aged 19 years and going by the Table in Paragraph No.40 of the report in Sarla Verma (supra), the applicable multiplier would be that set out for the age bracket of 15-20 years. It is '18'.

24. The Tribunal has directed a deduction of one-third towards personal and living expenses and adopted a multiplier of '15', going by the age of the parents, that was 44 years for the father and 43 for the mother. The settled principles in Sarla Verma and subsequent authorities would indicate that the Tribunal was in error on both counts. The appropriate deduction to be made towards personal and living expenses, has already been indicated and so also the multiplier, which has to be '18'; not '15'.

25. Nothing has been awarded by the Tribunal towards the future prospects of the deceased. In view of the decision of the Supreme Court in National Insurance Company v. Pranay Sethi and others (2017) 16 SCC 680, the benefit of future prospects have been extended to the self-employed and those working on a fixed salary, but here the deceased was neither self-employed nor a person working on a fixed salary. He was a young boy with a future to look to and, therefore, his income has been assessed notionally. The question is whether in the case of notional income, future prospects are to be granted as well. This question fell for consideration of the Supreme Court in Meena Pawaia and others v. Ashraf Ali and Others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 1083. The question and the holding figure in Paragraph Nos.11 and 13 of the report of their Lordships' decision in Meena Pawaia (supra), where it has been observed:

“11. The next question which is posed for the consideration before this court is whether anything further is required to be added towards the future rise in income? It is submitted that on behalf of the Union of India that as the deceased was not serving and earning at the time of accident/death nothing further is to be added towards the future prospect/future rise in income. The aforesaid cannot be accepted.

13. We see no reason why the aforesaid principle may not be applied, which apply to the salaried person and/or deceased self employed and/or a fixed salaried deceased, to the deceased who was not serving and/or was not having any income at the time of accident/death. In case of a deceased, who was not earning and/or not doing any job and/or self employed at the time of accident/death, as observed herein above his income is to be determined on the guesswork looking to the circumstances narrated hereinabove. Once such an amount is arrived at he shall be entitled to the addition over the future prospect/future rise in income. It cannot be disputed that the rise in cost of living would also affect such a person. As observed by this court in the case of Pranay Sethi (Supra), the determination of income while computing compensation has to include future prospects so that the method will come within the ambit and sweep of just compensation as postulated under Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act. In case of a deceased who had held a permanent job with inbuilt grant of annual increment and/or in case of a deceased who was on a fixed salary and/or self employed would only get the benefit of future prospects and the legal representatives of the deceased who was not serving at the relevant time as he died at a young age and was studying, could not be entitled to the benefit of the future prospects for the purpose of computation of compensation would be inapposite. Because the price rise does affect them also and there is always an incessant effort to enhance one's income for sustenance. It is not expected that the deceased who was not serving at all, his income is likely to remain static and his income would remain stagnant. As observed in Pranay Sethi (Supra) to have the perception that he is likely to remain static and his income to remain stagnant is contrary to the fundamental concept of human attitude which always intends to live with dynamism and move and change with the time. Therefore we are of the opinion that even in case of a deceased who was not serving at the time of death and had no income at the time of death, their legal heirs shall also be entitled to future prospects by adding future rise in income as held by this court in the case of Pranay Sethi (supra) i.e. addition of 40% of the income determined on guesswork considering the educational qualification, family background etc., where the deceased was below the age of 40 years.”

(emphasis by Court)

26. Given the principle that future prospects are to be added to the deceased's income even in a case where it is notional on account of the deceased being a non-earning member at the time of his demise. The question that still falls for consideration is if in the State of Uttar Pradesh, the future prospects ought to be governed by the principle in Pranay Sethi or Rule 220-A(3) of the U.P. Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 (for short the 'Rules of 1998'). The issue was answered by the Supreme Court in the context of future prospects, generally to be awarded in the State of Uttar Pradesh, in New India Assurance Co. Ltd v. Urmila Shukla and others, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 822, where it has been held:

"9. It is to be noted that the validity of the Rules was not, in any way, questioned in the instant matter and thus the only question that we are called upon to consider is whether in its application, sub-Rule 3(iii) of Rule 220A of the Rules must be given restricted scope or it must be allowed to operate fully.

10. The discussion on the point in Pranay Sethi was from the standpoint of arriving at "just compensation" in terms of Section 168 of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988.

11. If an indicia is made available in the form of a statutory instrument which affords a favourable treatment, the decision in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken to have limited the operation of such statutory provision specially when the validity of the Rules was not put under any challenge. The prescription of 15% in cases where the deceased was in the age bracket of 50-60 years as stated in Pranay Sethi cannot be taken as maxima. In the absence of any governing principle available in the statutory regime, it was only in the form of an indication. If a statutory instrument has devised a formula which affords better or greater benefit, such statutory instrument must be allowed to operate unless the statutory instrument is otherwise found to be invalid.

12. We, therefore, reject the submission advanced on behalf of the appellant and affirm the view taken by the Tribunal as well as the High Court and dismiss this appeal without any order as to costs."

27. To the understanding of this Court, there is no reason to limit the rule in Urmila Shukla (supra) to cases where future prospects are awarded in case of salaried persons, those self-employed, or still more, the ones working on a fixed salary, once future prospects have been held payable in case of those credited with a notional income. There is no rational cause or reason not to extend the principle in Urmila Shukla to such cases. In this Court's opinion, therefore, future prospects in the State of Uttar Pradesh have to be calculated according to Rule 220-A(3) of the Rules of 1998 in a case where the income has been assessed notionally for a non-earning deceased, who is a student.

28. The next issue which arises for consideration is whether the Rules of 1998, that were enforced in the year 2011 vide Notification No. 777/XXX4-2011-4(3)-2010 dated 26 September, 2011 i.e. The Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles (Eleventh Amendment) Rules, 2011, would apply retrospectively to an accident that took place before the amendment. This question was answered by a Division Bench of this Court in Sushil Kumar and others v. M/s. Sampark Lojastic Private Limited and others, 2017 (35) LCD 1311, where it has been held:

"31. Rule 220-A was inserted in the Uttar Pradesh Motor Vehicles Rules, 1998 in view of the various decisions of the law courts for providing benefit on account of future prospects of the injured/deceased. It provides for addition of certain percentage of the income of the injured/deceased in his actual income depending upon the age of the injured/deceased for the purposes of determination of the compensation. The aforesaid Rule came into effect on 26.09.2011 after the decision of the claim petition but before filing of the appeal though the accident took place on 08.05.2010 much before the enforcement of the above Rule.

32. It is in view of the above that an argument is being raised that Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident which had taken place on 08.05.2010.

33. In Ram Sarup Vs. Munshi AIR 1963 SC 553 it was laid down that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the rights of the parties.

34. The view expressed above was followed by the Supreme Court in Mula Vs. Godhu AIR 1971 SC 89.

35. In Dayawati Vs. Inderjit AIR 1966 SC 1423 the court had observed as under:- If the new law speaks in language, which expressly or by clear intendment, takes in even pending matters, the court of trial as well as the court of appeal must have regard to an intention so expressed, and the court of appeal may give effect to such a law even after the judgment of the court of first instance.

36. In Amarjit Kaur Vs. Pritam Singh AIR 1974 SC 2068 effect was given to the change in law during the pendency of an appeal as the hearing of an appeal under the procedural law of this country is in the nature of rehearing of the suit by superior court.

37. It was in the light of the above decisions that in Lakshmi Narayan Guin and others Vs. Niranjan Modak AIR 1985 SC 111 it was held that a change in law during the pendency of an appeal has to be taken into account and will cover the right of the parties.

38. The aforesaid decision was followed by a Division Bench of this court in U.P. State Road Transport Corporation Vs. Smt. Madhu Sharma and others, 2003 (4) AWC 2620 which was a case in relation to the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act and it was observed that it is apparent that the change in law during the pendency of the original proceedings has to be taken into account so as to cover the rights of the parties.

39. In view of above decision the view expressed by the Division Bench of this court in ICICI Lombard (Supra) is not of good law as it does not take into account the decisions referred to above in holding that the Rule 220-A of the Rules which came into effect on 26.09.2011 would not apply to the accident that took place prior to the said date only for the reason that the Rule was not specifically stated to be retrospective in nature."

29. Nothing has been pointed out to this Court that the law laid down by the Division Bench in Sushil Kumar (supra), which is otherwise binding on this Court, has been overruled by a Larger Bench or the Supreme Court. The deceased was aged 19 years and, therefore, much less than 40 years. The future prospects, which the claimants are entitled to add to the deceased's notional income, going by Rule 220-A(3) of Rules, would be 50%. It is held, accordingly.

30. The next issue that arises for consideration is the entitlement of the deceased under the conventional heads. This question was again the subject matter of the consideration in Pranay Sethi, where it has been held:

"48. This aspect needs to be clarified and appositely stated. The conventional sum has been provided in the Second Schedule to the Act. The said Schedule has been found to be defective as stated by the Court in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] . Recently, in Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy [Puttamma v. K.L. Narayana Reddy, (2013) 15 SCC 45 : (2014) 4 SCC (Civ) 384 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 574] it has been reiterated by stating : (SCC p. 80, para 54)

“54. ... we hold that the Second Schedule as was enacted in 1994 has now become redundant, irrational and unworkable due to changed scenario including the present cost of living and current rate of inflation and increased life expectancy.”

49. As far as multiplier or multiplicand is concerned, the same has been put to rest by the judgments of this Court. Para 3 of the Second Schedule also provides for general damages in case of death. It is as follows:

“3. General damages (in case of death):

The following general damages shall be payable in addition to compensation outlined above:

(i)	Funeral expenses	Rs 2000
(ii)	Loss of consortium, if beneficiary is the spouse	Rs 5000
(iii)	Loss of estate	Rs 2500
(iv)	Medical expenses — actual expenses incurred before death supported by bills/vouchers but not exceeding	Rs 15,000”

50. On a perusal of various decisions of this Court, it is manifest that the Second Schedule has not been followed starting from the decision in Trilok Chandra [UP SRTC v. Trilok Chandra, (1996) 4 SCC 362] and there has been no amendment to the same. The conventional damage amount needs to be appositely determined. As we notice, in different cases different amounts have been granted. A sum of Rs 1,00,000 was granted towards consortium in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . The justification for grant of consortium, as we find from Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] , is founded on the observation as we have reproduced hereinbefore.

51. On the aforesaid basis, the Court has revisited the practice of awarding compensation under conventional heads.

52. As far as the conventional heads are concerned, we find it difficult to agree with the view expressed in Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] . It has granted Rs 25,000 towards funeral expenses, Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of consortium and Rs 1,00,000 towards loss of care and guidance for minor children. The head relating to loss of care and minor children does not exist. Though Rajesh [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149] refers to Santosh Devi [Santosh Devi v. National Insurance Co. Ltd., (2012) 6 SCC 421 : (2012) 3 SCC (Civ) 726 : (2012) 3 SCC (Cri) 160 : (2012) 2 SCC (L&S) 167] , it does not seem to follow the same. The conventional and traditional heads, needless to say, cannot be determined on percentage basis because that would not be an acceptable criterion. Unlike determination of income, the said heads have to be quantified. Any quantification must have a reasonable foundation. There can be no dispute over the fact that price index, fall in bank interest, escalation of rates in many a field have to be noticed. The court cannot remain oblivious to the same. There has been a thumb rule in this aspect. Otherwise, there will be extreme difficulty in determination of the same and unless the thumb rule is applied, there will be immense variation lacking any kind of consistency as a consequence of which, the orders passed by the tribunals and courts are likely to be unguided. Therefore, we think it seems to fix reasonable sums. It seems to us that reasonable figures on conventional heads, namely, loss of estate, loss of consortium and funeral expenses should be Rs 15,000, Rs 40,000 and Rs 15,000 respectively. The principle of revisiting the said heads is an acceptable principle. But the revisit should not be fact-centric or quantum-centric. We think that it would be condign that the amount that we have quantified should be enhanced on percentage basis in every three years and the enhancement should be at the rate of 10% in a span of three years. We are disposed to hold so because that will bring in consistency in respect of those heads.”

(emphasis by Court)

31. The issue of award of compensation for the loss of consortium came up before the Supreme Court in Magma General Insurance Company Ltd. v. Nanu Ram alias Chuhru Ram and others, (2018) 18 SCC 130, where it was observed:

“21. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Pranay Sethi[National Insurance Co. Ltd. v. Pranay Sethi, (2017) 16 SCC 680 : (2018) 3 SCC (Civ) 248 : (2018) 2

SCC (Cri) 205] dealt with the various heads under which compensation is to be awarded in a death case. One of these heads is loss of consortium. In legal parlance, “consortium” is a compendious term which encompasses “spousal consortium”, “parental consortium”, and “filial consortium”. The right to consortium would include the company, care, help, comfort, guidance, solace and affection of the deceased, which is a loss to his family. With respect to a spouse, it would include sexual relations with the deceased spouse : [Rajesh v. Rajbir Singh, (2013) 9 SCC 54 : (2013) 4 SCC (Civ) 179 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 817 : (2014) 1 SCC (L&S) 149]

21.1. Spousal consortium is generally defined as rights pertaining to the relationship of a husband-wife which allows compensation to the surviving spouse for loss of “company, society, cooperation, affection, and aid of the other in every conjugal relation”. [Black's Law Dictionary(5th Edn., 1979).]

21.2. Parental consortium is granted to the child upon the premature death of a parent, for loss of “parental aid, protection, affection, society, discipline, guidance and training”.

21.3. Filial consortium is the right of the parents to compensation in the case of an accidental death of a child. An accident leading to the death of a child causes great shock and agony to the parents and family of the deceased. The greatest agony for a parent is to lose their child during their lifetime. Children are valued for their love, affection, companionship and their role in the family unit.

(emphasis by Court)

32. In view of the aforesaid conclusion, the compensation payable to the claimants in this appeal are revised and would have to be determined in the following manner:

- (i) Monthly Income (of 5000 the deceased) =
- (ii) Annual Income (of the 60000 deceased) = 5000×12 =
- (iii) Annual 90000 Income+Future Prospects (annual income x 50%) = $60000 + 30000$ =
- (iv) Annual Dependency = 45000
Annual Income – 50% deduction towards personal expenses of the deceased = $90000 - 45000$ =
- (v) Total Dependency = 810000
Annual Dependency x Applied Multiplier = 45000×18 =
- (vi) Claimant's entitlement 110000 towards conventional heads = Loss of Estate + Funeral Expenses + dependents' Consortium = $15000 + 15000 + 40000 \times 2$ =

The total compensation 920000 would therefore, work out to a figure of Rs.810000+Rs.110000 =

33. In the result, this appeal is allowed in part. The impugned award passed by the Tribunal is modified and the compensation awarded enhanced to Rs.9,20,000/-. The aforesaid sum of money shall carry simple interest at the rate of 7% per annum from the date of institution of the claim petition, until realization. Any sum of money already deposited with the Tribunal by the Insurers, pursuant to the impugned award or the interim orders passed by this Court, shall be adjusted. The other directions of the Tribunal carried in the impugned award shall remain intact. Costs easy.

Criminal Law - Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 - Sections 227, 228, 173, 300 & 482 – Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 – Sections 13(1)(b) & 13(2) – Prevention of Money Laundering act, 2002 - Sections 3, 4 & 50: - Application – against rejection of Discharge Application as well as against the proceedings initiated under PMLA Act, - The applicant has committed the offence of money laundering by amassing unexplained and unaccounted properties in the name of his family members and related companies – plea of double jeopardy – court finds that, there appears to be no illegality in the order passed by the trial court rejecting the application for discharge and framing charges against him – held, there is no averment regarding earlier complaints had been closed after a full-fledged enquiry and summary closure of complaint or withdrawal thereof without any finding of innocence would be of no consequence - it would also not amount to double jeopardy and Principle of res-judicate does not apply to the proceedings before the Hon'ble Lokayukta – whereas the Hon'ble Lokayukta is not a 'court' within the meaning of the expression used in Section 300 of Cr.P.C. - for attracting the principle of double jeopardy, the person must have been tried by a 'court of competent jurisdiction' and convicted or acquitted of such offence – hence, there appears to be no illegality in the order passed by the trial court rejecting the discharge application and framing charges against the applicant – application lacks merit – accordingly, rejected. (Para –28, 29, 30, 31)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Malay Prasad, Ms. Saloni Mathur, Ms. Tanya Makkar, Sri Piyush Kumar Shukla and Sri. Kaustubh Singh Advocates for the applicant and Sri Kuldeep Srivastava, the learned counsel representing the respondent - Directorate of Enforcement (hereinafter referred to as 'E.D.').

2. By means of the instant application filed under Section 482 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the applicant has challenged validity of the order dated 22.12.2022 passed by the Sessions Judge / Special Judge, Prevention of Money Laundering Act, Lucknow in Sessions Case No. 1220/2021, rejecting the application for discharge filed by the applicant. The applicant has also assailed another order passed in the aforesaid case on the same date framing charge of commission of offence under Section 3 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as 'PMLA') against the applicant.

3. Briefly stated, facts of the case are that on 26.11.2020, an Inspector in the U. P. Vigilance Establishment filed a First Information Report (F.I.R.) No. 0003 of 2020 under Sections 13 (2) and 13 (1) (b) of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1988, Police Station Lucknow Sector, Vigilance Establishment, against the applicant stating that by means of a Government order dated 08.06.2018, U. P. Vigilance Establishment was directed to conduct an open enquiry against the applicant, who was the then Minister for Mining in U. P. Government. It was found in enquiry that while working as a public servant, the applicant had earned ₹49,93,149/- from his known and valid sources of income, but he spent ₹3,48,21,760/- on acquisition of properties and maintenance during the same period. Thus the applicant spent ₹2,98,28,511/- in excess of his known income, which is disproportionate to his income from the known and valid sources. The applicant could not give any satisfactory reply regarding disproportionate expenditure and acquisition of properties. Besides this, there was prima facie evidence that the applicant had acquired benami properties also. The F.I.R. states that the aforesaid acts of the applicant amount to commission of offence under Section 13 (1) (b) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988.

4. On 14.01.2022, the Directorate of Enforcement registered an Enforcement

Case Information Report (ECIR) bearing number ECIR/LKZO/04/2021 in furtherance of the aforesaid F.I.R. No. 0003 of 2020. It is recorded in the ECIR that from the averments made in the F.I.R., it appears that it is expedient to make inquiries against the applicant relating to illegal earnings, which are “proceeds of crime”, i.e., tainted money, earned out of criminal activities and on the basis of the aforesaid information, a prima facie case of commission an offence of money-laundering under Section 3 of the PMLA appears to have been made out.

5. The E.D. carried out investigation and on 08.04.2021, it filed a Complaint No. 94 of 2021 in the Special Court for Prevention of Money Laundering cases at Lucknow stating that the applicant has committed the offence of money-laundering and he is liable to be prosecuted and punished under Section 4 of the PMLA. It is inter-alia stated in the complaint that the relevant documents/evidences were collected from various authorities, including Banks, Registrar of Companies, District Registration Authorities etc. and those were examined. There is another case bearing number ECIR/LKZO/08/2019 in respect of illegal mining in District Fatehpur, Uttar Pradesh, which was lodged on the basis of C.B.I. F.I.R. number RC 04 (A)/2019/SC-III/ND, in which the applicant is one of the named accused persons. The documents collected during the course of investigation in the aforesaid ECIR and the statements recorded under Section 50 of PMLA and Section 17 of PMLA during searches conducted on 30.01.2020 have also been taken into consideration during investigation.

6. The complaint contains a list of 57 bank accounts, of which 7 are in the name of the applicant's wife, 6 are in the name of his son Anil Kumar Prajapati, 6 are in the name of his other son Anurag Prajapati, 5 are in the name of the applicant's daughter Ankita Prajapati, 5 are in the name of his other daughter Sudha Prajapati, 14 are in the name of the applicant and rest of the accounts are in the name of some other persons and companies and a total of ₹ 3,50,17,045.48 is deposited in those bank accounts. The complaint also contains a list of 60 immovable properties worth ₹ 33,44,52,827/-, out of which 4 properties are in the name of the applicant's son Anurag Prajapati, 9 properties are in the name of his other son Anil Kumar Prajapati, 2 properties stand in the name of the applicant's wife, 2 are in the name of his daughter Sudha Prajapati, 1 property stands in the name of his other daughter Ankita and 1 property stands in the name of the applicant's daughter-in-law Shilpa and rest of the properties are in the names of some other persons and some companies, in which the applicant's sons are directors.

7. The complaint states that the applicant was examined during custodial remand and he was confronted with various documents and with two of his benami holders and his manager Hari Sharan Shukla. The statements of several persons were recorded under Section 50 of the PMLA and voluminous records/documents were scrutinised.

8. Both the applicant's daughters stated that they were students having no source of income and they had signed the tax related documents under directions of the applicant and after the applicant was taken into custody, on the directions of the applicant's son Anil Kumar Prajapati. The applicant's daughter-in-law stated that she is a housewife and she had signed the income tax documents showing income of rupees 2.20 Crores, on the directions of her husband Anil Prajapati and she doesn't know about the source of income.

9. The applicant expressed ignorance about the source of money deposited in the bank accounts of himself and of his family members shown in the affidavit filed by him during 2017 elections and about the mode of payment of money for purchase of properties in his name and in the names of his family members.

10. The complaint states that the applicant became a member of the legislative assembly in the year 2012 and in the year 2013, he was appointed as Minister of State for Irrigation and later he was appointed as the Minister of State for Mining. The applicant remained a Minister till 2017 and on 15.03.2017, he was arrested in connection with a different F.I.R. registered by U. P. Police. During the period the applicant was a Minister, he misused his official position and unlawfully gained several Crores of Rupees in cash, which was deposited in the bank accounts of his family members, his employees and companies, in which his sons were directors. Investigation revealed that the applicant rose exponentially in wealth ever since he became a minister. The total income of the applicant during the period he was a Minister, was ₹ 72.38 lakhs whereas the assets standing in the name of the applicant, his family members and benami holders and of some companies in which the applicant's sons are directors, is ₹ 35 crores approximately. The applicant has committed the offence of money-laundering by amassing unexplained and unaccounted properties in the name of his family members and related companies.

11. The applicant filed an application for discharge under Section 227 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 inter alia on the grounds that no charge-sheet has been filed in furtherance of the F.I.R. lodged by the vigilance establishment; that the allegations leveled in the complaint are false and there is no allegation and material which could associate the applicant with the offence alleged and establish his guilt even prima facie.

12. A supplementary affidavit was filed in support of the application for discharge wherein it was stated that as no police report has been filed in furtherance of the FI are No. 03/2020, trial of the case under PMLA should be postponed.

13. The application for discharge has been rejected by means of the order dated 22.12.2022 passed by the trial Court on the ground that as per the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary and others versus Union of India, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 929, a person can be prosecuted under PMLA, if a case is registered with the jurisdictional police. The trial court has framed a charge against the applicant that while being a Minister during the period February 2013 to March 2017, the applicant generated unaccounted money to the tune of approximately ₹ 35 Crores, which was invested in bank accounts in the name of his family members and companies controlled by his sons and in several shell companies and was also used for purchasing properties in the name of his family members and benami holders, and the applicant has directly been involved in possession, acquisition and use of proceeds of crime and projecting the same as untainted, thereby committing offence under Section

3 of PMLA, Punishable under Section 4 of the Act.

14. The applicant has challenged both the aforesaid orders rejecting his discharge application and framing charge against him, by filing the application under Section 482, Cr.P.C. and in the affidavit filed in support of the application, he has inter alia stated that the alleged benami holders are not even known to the applicant and they are individuals operating on their own in their businesses; that the failure of Vigilance Establishment in filing a report under Section 173 of Cr.P.C. prima facie shows that the applicant has not committed any offence; that the allegations leveled against him are false and that the case has been registered due to political animosity. It has also been stated in the affidavit that multiple complaints had been filed before the Hon'ble Lokayukta against the applicant but all those complaints were either closed or were withdrawn by the complainants. Multiple fresh complaints were filed on the same set of facts and the Hon'ble Lokayukta passed an ex-parte order referring the matter to the Hon'ble Chief Minister of the State for carrying out vigilance enquiry against the applicant, which forms the basis for initiation of the present proceedings.

15. The respondent – Directorate of enforcement has filed a counter affidavit inter alia stating that the complaint was filed on the basis of investigation in respect of laundering of proceeds of crime acquired by the applicant during his tenure as a Minister. The properties identified as proceeds of crime in the hands of the applicant and other related persons have been provisionally attached by means of an order dated 07.04.2021 and further investigation in respect of further proceeds of crime and culpability of other persons in the offence of money laundering is still in progress. It has further been stated in the counter affidavit that the condition precedent for filing a complaint alleging commission of offence of money laundering is that either there should be an F.I.R. or there should be a police report under Section 173 Cr.P.C. As there is a F.I.R. in the present case, the applicant can be tried for the commission of the offence of money laundering. No rejoinder affidavit has been filed on behalf of the applicant.

16. Assailing the aforesaid orders dated 22.12.2022, Shri Malay Prasad, the learned counsel for the applicant, has submitted that a person can be charged with commission of offence under the PMLA if he is involved, either directly or indirectly, in any process or activity connected with proceeds of crime and he projects or claims such proceeds of crime as untainted property. Although a F.I.R. No. 003/2020 was registered on 26.11.2020, no report under Section 173 of the Criminal Procedure Code has been submitted till date. He has submitted that a complaint under PMLA can be filed only after a charge-sheet has been submitted in furtherance of the F.I.R. in respect of the Scheduled offence because existence of 'proceeds of crime' can be established only after submission of charge-sheet in the case in respect of the Scheduled offence.

17. The second submission of Sri Malay Prasad is that projection of claim of the proceeds of crime is essential for making out an offence under Section 3 of the PMLA and there is no such allegation against the applicant in the present case. In support of the submission, the learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on the following passage from the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Nikesh Tarachand Shah versus Union of India, (2018) 11 SCC 1:-

“11. Having heard the learned counsel for both sides, it is important to first understand what constitutes the offence of money laundering. Under Section 3 of the Act, the kind of persons responsible for money laundering is extremely wide. Words such as “whosoever”, “directly or indirectly” and “attempts to indulge” would show that all persons who are even remotely involved in this offence are sought to be roped in. An important ingredient of the offence is that these persons must be knowingly or actually involved in any process or activity connected with proceeds of crime and “proceeds of crime” is defined under the Act, by Section 2(1)(u) thereof, to mean any property derived or obtained directly or indirectly, by any person as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence (which is referred to in our judgment as the predicate offence). Thus, whosoever is involved as aforesaid, in a process or activity connected with “proceeds of crime” as defined, which would include concealing, possessing, acquiring or using such property, would be guilty of the offence, provided such persons also project or claim such property as untainted property. Section 3, therefore, contains all the aforesaid ingredients, and before somebody can be adjudged as guilty under the said provision, the said person must not only be involved in any process or activity connected with proceeds of crime, but must also project or claim it as being untainted property.”

18. The learned counsel for the applicant has submitted in his written submissions that E.D. did not supply a copy of the ECIR to the applicant before recording his statement under Section 50 of the Act.

19. Per contra, Sri. Kuldeep Srivastava, the learned Counsel for the E.D. has submitted that F.I.R. No. 003/2020 was registered against the applicant alleging commission of offence under Section 13 (2) read with Section 13 (1) (b) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988, which are scheduled offences under the PMLA. The E.D. has conducted an investigation and has filed a complaint number 1220/2021 and the trial court has taken cognizance of the case on 06.09.2021 and has framed charge against the applicant on 22.12.2022. The learned counsel for the E.D. has submitted that there is no requirement under the PMLA to wait for submission of charge-sheet in respect of the scheduled offence before filing a complaint under the Act as offence under the PMLA is a separate and independent offence, distinct from the scheduled offence. He has further submitted that The trial is proceeding and 3 witnesses have already been examined. Shri Srivastava has also relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra).

20. In Vijay Madanlal Choudhary and others versus Union of India, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 929, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has discussed all the earlier judgments, including the judgment in the case of Nikesh Tarachand Shah, and has summarised its conclusions in paragraph 467 of the judgment, which is being reproduced here: -

“CONCLUSION

467. In light of the above analysis, we now proceed to summarise our conclusion on seminal points in issue in the following terms:—

(i) The question as to whether some of the amendments to the Prevention of Money laundering Act, 2002 could not have been enacted by the Parliament by way of a Finance Act has not been examined in this judgment. The same is left open for being examined along with or after the decision of the Larger Bench (seven Judges) of this Court in the case of Rojer Mathew.

(ii) The expression “proceedings” occurring in Clause (na) of Section 2(1) of the 2002 Act is contextual and is required to be given expansive meaning to include inquiry procedure followed by the Authorities of ED, the Adjudicating Authority, and the Special Court.

(iii) The expression “investigation” in Clause (na) of Section 2(1) of the 2002 Act does not limit itself to the matter of investigation concerning the offence under the Act and is interchangeable with the function of “inquiry” to be undertaken by the Authorities under the Act.

(iv) The Explanation inserted to Clause (u) of Section 2(1) of the 2002 Act does not travel beyond the main provision predicated tracking and reaching upto the property derived or obtained directly or indirectly as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence.

(v) (a) Section 3 of the 2002 Act has a wider reach and captures every process and activity, direct or indirect, in dealing with the proceeds of crime and is not limited to the happening of the final act of integration of tainted property in the formal economy. The Explanation inserted to Section 3 by way of amendment of 2019 does not expand the purport of Section 3 but is only clarificatory in nature. It clarifies the word “and” preceding the expression projecting or claiming as “or”; and being a clarificatory amendment, it would make no difference even if it is introduced by way of Finance Act or otherwise.

(b) *Independent of the above, we are clearly of the view that the expression “and” occurring in Section 3 has to be construed as “or”, to give full play to the said provision so as to include “every” process or activity indulged into by anyone. Projecting or claiming the property as untainted property would constitute an offence of money laundering on its own, being an independent process or activity.

(c) The interpretation suggested by the petitioners, that only upon projecting or claiming the property in question as untainted property that the offence of Section 3 would be complete, stands rejected.

(d) The offence under Section 3 of the 2002 Act is dependent on illegal gain of property as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. It is concerning the process or activity connected with such property, which constitutes the offence of money laundering. The Authorities under the 2002 Act cannot prosecute any person on notional basis or on the assumption that a scheduled offence has been committed, unless it is so registered with the jurisdictional police and/or pending enquiry/trial including by way of criminal complaint before the competent forum. If the person is finally discharged/acquitted of the scheduled offence or the criminal case against him is quashed by the Court of competent jurisdiction, there can be no offence of money laundering against him or any one claiming such property being the property linked to stated scheduled offence through him.

(vi) Section 5 of the 2002 Act is constitutionally valid. It provides for a balancing arrangement to secure the interests of the person as also ensures that the proceeds of crime remain available to be dealt with in the manner provided by the 2002 Act. The procedural safeguards as delineated by us hereinabove are effective measures to protect the interests of person concerned.

(vii) The challenge to the validity of sub-Section (4) of Section 8 of the 2002 Act is also rejected subject to Section 8 being invoked and operated in accordance with the meaning assigned to it hereinabove.

(viii) The challenge to deletion of proviso to sub-Section (1) of Section 17 of the 2002 Act stands rejected. There are stringent safeguards provided in Section 17 and Rules framed thereunder. Moreover, the pre-condition in the proviso to Rule 3(2) of the 2005 Rules cannot be read into Section 17 after its amendment. The Central Government may take necessary corrective steps to obviate confusion caused in that regard.

(ix) The challenge to deletion of proviso to sub-Section (1) of Section 18 of the 2002 Act also stands rejected. There are similar safeguards provided in Section 18. We hold that the amended provision does not suffer from the vice of arbitrariness.

(x) The challenge to the constitutional validity of Section 19 of the 2002 Act is also rejected. There are stringent safeguards provided in Section 19. The provision does not suffer from the vice of arbitrariness.

(xi) Section 24 of the 2002 Act has reasonable nexus with the purposes and objects sought to be achieved by the 2002 Act and cannot be regarded as manifestly arbitrary or unconstitutional.

(xii) (a) The proviso in Clause (a) of sub-Section (1) of Section 44 of the 2002 Act is to be regarded as directory in nature and this provision is also read down to mean that the Special Court may exercise judicial discretion on case-to-case basis.

(b) We do not find merit in the challenge to Section 44 being arbitrary or unconstitutional. However, the eventualities referred to in this Section shall be dealt with by the Court concerned and by the Authority concerned in accordance with the interpretation given in this judgment.

(xiii) (a) The reasons which weighed with this Court in Nikesht Tarachand Shah for declaring the twin conditions in Section 45(1) of the 2002 Act, as it stood at the relevant time, as unconstitutional in no way obliterated the provision from the statute book; and it was open to the Parliament to cure the defect noted by this Court so as to revive the same provision in the existing form.

(b) We are unable to agree with the observations in Nikesht Tarachand Shah distinguishing the enunciation of the Constitution Bench decision in Kartar Singh; and other observations suggestive of doubting the perception of Parliament in regard to the seriousness of the offence of money laundering, including about it posing serious threat to the sovereignty and integrity of the country.

(c) The provision in the form of Section 45 of the 2002 Act, as applicable post amendment of 2018, is reasonable and has direct nexus with the purposes and objects sought to be achieved by the 2002 Act and does not suffer from the vice of arbitrariness or unreasonableness.

(d) As regards the prayer for grant of bail, irrespective of the nature of proceedings, including those under Section 438 of the 1973 Code or even upon invoking the jurisdiction of Constitutional Courts, the underlying principles and rigours of Section 45 may apply.

(xiv) The beneficial provision of Section 436A of the 1973 Code could be invoked by the accused arrested for offence punishable under the 2002 Act.

(xv) (a) The process envisaged by Section 50 of the 2002 Act is in the nature of an inquiry against the proceeds of crime and is not “investigation” in strict sense of the term for initiating prosecution; and the Authorities under the 2002 Act (referred to in Section 48), are not police officers as such.

(b) The statements recorded by the Authorities under the 2002 Act are not hit by Article 20(3) or Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

(xvi) Section 63 of the 2002 Act providing for punishment regarding false information or failure to give information does not suffer from any vice of arbitrariness.

(xvii) The inclusion or exclusion of any particular offence in the Schedule to the 2002 Act is a matter of legislative policy; and the nature or class of any predicate offence has no bearing on the validity of the Schedule or any prescription thereunder.

(xviii) (a) In view of special mechanism envisaged by the 2002 Act, ECIR cannot be equated with an F.I.R. under the 1973 Code. ECIR is an internal document of the ED and the fact that F.I.R. in respect of scheduled offence has not been recorded does not come in the way of the Authorities referred to in Section 48 to commence inquiry/investigation for initiating “civil action” of “provisional attachment” of property being proceeds of crime.

(b) Supply of a copy of ECIR in every case to the person concerned is not mandatory, it is enough if ED at the time of arrest, discloses the grounds of such arrest.

(c) However, when the arrested person is produced before the Special Court, it is open to the Special Court to look into the relevant records presented by the authorised representative of ED for answering the issue of need for his/her continued detention in connection with the offence of money laundering.

(xix) Even when ED manual is not to be published being an internal departmental document issued for the guidance of the Authorities (ED officials), the department ought to explore the desirability of placing information on its website which may broadly outline the scope of the authority of the functionaries under the Act and measures to be adopted by them as also the options/remedies available to the person concerned before the Authority and before the Special Court.

(xx) The petitioners are justified in expressing serious concern bordering on causing injustice owing to the vacancies in the Appellate Tribunal. We deem it necessary to impress upon the executive to take corrective measures in this regard expeditiously.

(xxi) The argument about proportionality of punishment with reference to the nature of scheduled offence is wholly unfounded and stands rejected.”

(Emphasis supplied)

21. The first submission of the learned counsel for the applicant that a person cannot be prosecuted for the offence under Section 3 of the PMLA unless a charge-sheet is filed in respect of the Scheduled offence, is negated by the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra), wherein the Hon’ble Supreme Court has held that the only condition for prosecution of a person under PMLA is that a case regarding scheduled offence is registered with the jurisdictional police and/or pending enquiry/trial including by way of criminal complaint before the competent forum. As F.I.R. No. 003/2020 under Sections 13 (2) and 13 (1) (b) of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1988 has already been registered with the jurisdictional police, the applicant can be tried under PMLA and filing of a report under Section 173 of the Criminal Procedure Code in furtherance of the F.I.R. alleging commission of scheduled offence is not a prerequisite for initiation of proceedings under PMLA.

22. The second submission of the learned counsel for the applicant is that there is no allegation or material that the applicant has projected or claimed proceeds of crime as untainted money whereas the same is essential for constituting an offence under Section 3 of the PMLA. Although in Nikesh Tarachand Shah (Supra), the Hon’ble Supreme Court had observed that before somebody can be adjudged as guilty under the said provision, the person must not only be involved in any process or activity connected with proceeds of crime, but must also project or claim it as being untainted property. Subsequent to the decision in Nikesh Tarachand Shah, Section 3 of the PMLA has been amended by means of Section 193 of the Finance Act (No. 2), 2019, with effect from 01.08.2019, whereby an Explanation has been inserted in it. Section 3 of the PMLA as it exists presently, is as follows: -

“3. Offence of money laundering.—Whosoever directly or indirectly attempts to indulge or knowingly assists or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in any process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime including its concealment, possession, acquisition or use and projecting or claiming it as untainted property shall be guilty of offence of money laundering.

Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that,—

(i) a person shall be guilty of offence of money laundering if such person is found to have directly or indirectly attempted to indulge or knowingly assisted or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in one or more of the following processes or activities connected with proceeds of crime, namely:—

(a) concealment; or

(b) possession; or

- (c) acquisition; or
 - (d) use; or
 - (e) projecting as untainted property; or
 - (f) claiming as untainted property,
- in any manner whatsoever;*

(ii) the process or activity connected with proceeds of crime is a continuing activity and continues till such time a person is directly or indirectly enjoying the proceeds of crime by its concealment or possession or acquisition or use or projecting it as untainted property or claiming it as untainted property in any manner whatsoever.”

23. In Vijay Madanlal Choudhary, the Hon’ble Supreme Court has held that in Nikesh Tarachand Shah, the questions raised were not in respect of the meaning of money laundering and moreover, Section 3 has been amended by inserting the Explanation post the judgment in Nikesh Tarachand Shah. The Hon’ble Supreme Court has held that Section 3 of the PMLA captures every process and activity, direct or indirect, in dealing with the proceeds of crime and is not limited to the happening of the final act of integration of tainted property in the formal economy. The expression “and” occurring in Section 3 has to be construed as “or” so as to include “every” process or activity indulged into by anyone. Projecting or claiming the property as untainted property would constitute an offence of money laundering on its own, being an independent process or activity. The interpretation suggested by the learned counsel for the applicant, that only upon projecting or claiming the property in question as untainted property that the offence of Section 3 would be complete, stands rejected.

24. The last submission of the learned counsel for the applicant is that ED did not supply a copy of the ECIR to the applicant before recording his statement under Section 50 of the Act. This submission is also without force in view of the law laid down in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (Supra) that in view of special mechanism envisaged by the 2002 Act, ECIR cannot be equated with an F.I.R. under the 1973 Code. ECIR is an internal document of the ED. Supply of a copy of ECIR in every case to the person concerned is not mandatory, it is enough if ED at the time of arrest, discloses the grounds of such arrest. Moreover, non-supply of ECIR before recording the applicant’s statement under Section 50 of PMLA cannot vitiate the subsequent order rejecting the application for discharge and the order framing charges.

25. The statutory provisions regarding discharge of an accused person and framing charges against him, are contained in Sections 227 and 228 of the Criminal Procedure Code, which are being reproduced below: –

“227. Discharge.— If, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith, and after hearing the submissions of the accused and the prosecution in this behalf, the Judge considers that there is not sufficient ground for Page 9 of 17 proceeding against the accused, he shall discharge the accused and record his reasons for so doing.

228. Framing of charge.— (1) If, after such consideration and hearing as aforesaid, the Judge is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence which — (a) is not exclusively triable by the Court of Session, he may, frame a charge against the accused and, by order, transfer the case for trial to the Chief Judicial Magistrate, or any other Judicial Magistrate of the first class and direct the accused to appear before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, or, as the case may be, the Judicial Magistrate of the first class, on such date as he deems fit, and thereupon such Magistrate shall try the offence in accordance with the procedure for the trial of warrant cases instituted on a police report; (b) is exclusively triable by the Court, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused. (2) Where the Judge frames any charge under clause (b) of sub Section (1), the charge shall be read and explained to the accused, and the accused shall be asked whether he pleads guilty of the offence charged or claims to be tried.”

26. The difference between the approach with which the Court should examine the matter in the aforesaid Sections has been explained by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Amit Kapoor v. Ramesh Chander, (2012) 9 SCC 460, in the following words: -

“17. Framing of a charge is an exercise of jurisdiction by the trial court in terms of Section 228 of the Code, unless the accused is discharged under Section 227 of the Code. Under both these provisions, the court is required to consider the “record of the case” and documents submitted therewith and, after hearing the parties, may either discharge the accused or where it appears to the court and in its opinion there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence, it shall frame the charge. Once the facts and ingredients of the Section exists, then the court would be right in presuming that there is ground to proceed against the accused and frame the charge accordingly. This presumption is not a presumption of law as such. The satisfaction of the court in relation to the existence of constituents of an offence and the facts leading to that offence is a sine qua non for exercise of such jurisdiction. It may even be weaker than a prima facie case. There is a fine distinction between the language of Sections 227 and 228 of the Code. Section 227 is the expression of a definite opinion and judgment of the Court while Section 228 is tentative. Thus, to say that at the stage of framing of charge, the Court should form an opinion that the accused is certainly guilty of committing an offence, is an approach which is impermissible in terms of Section 228 of the Code.

30. We have already noticed that the legislature in its wisdom has used the expression “there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence”. This has an inbuilt element of presumption once the ingredients of an offence with reference to the allegations made are satisfied, the Court would not doubt the case of the prosecution unduly and extend its jurisdiction to quash the charge in haste. A Bench of this Court in State of Maharashtra v. Som Nath Thapa (1996) 4 SCC 659 referred to the meaning of the word “presume” while relying upon Black’s Law Dictionary. It was defined to mean “to believe or accept upon probable evidence”; “to take as proved until evidence to the contrary is forthcoming”.

In other words, the truth of the matter has to come out when the prosecution evidence is led, the witnesses are cross-examined by the defence, the incriminating material and evidence is put to the accused in terms of Section 313 of the Code and then the accused is provided an opportunity to lead defence, if any. It is only upon completion of such steps that the trial concludes with the court forming its final opinion and delivering its judgment. Merely because there was a civil transaction between the parties would not by itself alter the status of the allegations constituting the criminal offence.

27. Thus the law regarding the approach to be adopted by the court while considering an application for discharge of the accused persons under Section 227 and approach while framing charges under Section 228 of the Code, is that while considering an application for discharge of the accused under Section 227 of the Code, the Court has to form a definite opinion, upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith, that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. However, while framing charges, the Court is not required to form a definite opinion that the accused is guilty of committing an offence. The truth of the matter will come out when evidence is led during the trial. Once the facts and ingredients of the Section exist, the court would presume that there is ground to proceed against the accused and frame the charge accordingly and the Court would not doubt the case of the prosecution.

28. When the record of the case is examined in light of the aforesaid legal position, what appears at this stage is that the vigilance establishment has filed F.I.R.

No. 003/2020 under Sections 13 (2) and 13 (1) (b) of the Prevention of Corruption Act 1988, Police Station Lucknow Sector, Vigilance Establishment against the applicant stating that in furtherance of a Government Order dated 08.06.2018, U. P. Vigilance Establishment had conducted an enquiry against the applicant, who was the then Minister for Mining in U. P. Government. After conducting the open enquiry, the enquiry report was submitted to the Government in which it was found that while working as a public servant, the applicant spent ₹ 2,98,28,511/- in excess of his known income, which is disproportionate to his income from the known and valid sources. The applicant could not give any satisfactory reply regarding the disproportionate expenditure and acquisition of properties. Besides this, there was prima facie evidence that the applicant had acquired benami properties also. The F.I.R. states that the aforesaid acts of the applicant amount to commission of offence under Section 13 (1) (b) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988. The E.D. has conducted investigation, during which it has recorded statements of several persons, including the applicant, and has filed a complaint, which states that the applicant became a member of the legislative assembly in the year 2012 and in the year 2013, he was appointed as Minister of State for Irrigation and later he was appointed as the Minister of State for Mining. The applicant remained a Minister till 2017 and on 15.03.2017, he was arrested in connection with a different F.I.R. registered by U. P. Police. During the period the applicant was a Minister, he misused his official position and unlawfully gained several Crores of rupees in cash, which was deposited in the bank accounts of his family members, his employees and companies, in which his sons were directors. Investigation revealed that the applicant rose exponentially in wealth ever since he became a minister. The total income of the applicant during the period he was a Minister, was ₹ 72.38 lakhs whereas the assets standing in the name of the applicant, his family members and benami holders and of some companies in which the applicant's sons are directors, is ₹ 35 crores approximately. The applicant has committed the offence of money laundering by amassing unexplained and unaccounted properties in the name of his family members and related companies.

29. The aforesaid allegations clearly make out a case for trial of the applicant for commission of offence under Section 3 of the PMLA as upon consideration of the record of the case and the documents submitted therewith, it does not appear that there is not sufficient ground for proceeding against the applicant. There appears to be no illegality in the order passed by the Trial Court rejecting the application for discharge filed by the applicant and in the order framing charges against him.

30. The plea regarding closure or withdrawal of some earlier complaints filed before the Hon'ble Lokayukta and the F.I.R. having been lodged in furtherance of an order passed by the Hon'ble Lokayukta on a subsequent complaint allegedly filed on the basis of similar set of facts would also not affect the legality of the orders passed by the trial Court for more than one reason. Firstly, there is no averment that the earlier complaints had been closed after a full-fledged enquiry and summary closure of complaint or withdrawal thereof without any finding of innocence would be of no consequence. Secondly, the principle of res judicata does not apply to the proceedings before the Hon'ble Lokayukta. Thirdly, it would also not amount to double jeopardy, which principle is contained in Section 300 of Cr.P.C. For attracting the principle of double jeopardy, the person must have been tried by a 'Court of competent jurisdiction' for an offence and convicted or acquitted of such offence, whereas the Hon'ble Lokayukta is not a 'Court' within the meaning of the expression used in Section 300 of Cr.P.C.

31. The E.D. has filed the complaint after conducting investigation, when the evidence collected prima facie established commission of offence under PMLA and there appears to be no illegality in the order passed by the trial Court rejecting the application for discharge of the applicant and the order framing charges against the applicant.

32. The application lacks merit and the same is, accordingly, rejected. However, there will be no order as to costs.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Abhishek Pandey, learned counsel for the applicant and Mr. Amit Singh Chauhan, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present case has been filed assailing the order dated 13.01.2023 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge, Deoband, Saharanpur in Session Trial No.56 of 2021 (State Vs. Sunil and others), arising out of Case Crime No.210 of 2018, under Sections 307, 452, 504, 506 I.P.C., Police Station-Deoband, District Saharanpur, by which the Court concerned altered the charge u/s 307 I.P.C. against the applicant, pending before Additional District and Sessions Judge, Deoband, Saharanpur.

3. Brief facts of the case are; an FIR was lodged by opposite party no.2 against three accused persons including the applicant on 04.03.2018 at 23:46 hours, under Sections 307, 504, 506 I.P.C., which came to be registered as Case Crime No.0210 of 2018.

4. As per allegations in the FIR, the informant along with his cousin namely Amit purchased a land from Sudhir Tiwari. A civil suit with respect to the same land is pending in the Court of Civil Judge, Deoband. The family members of Sudhir Tiwari were annoyed by purchase of land by the informant and his cousin, therefore, they were inimical to the informant and his family members. It has further been alleged that on 03.03.2018 at about 11 PM when the informant was returning from Rohana Sugar Mill to his residence on his tractor, a black motorcycle, in which three persons were sitting, having rifle and countrymade pistol in their hands, overtook the informant's tractor near the railway crossing and fired upon him with intention to kill him. The informant saved his life by jumping from the tractor. The aforesaid incident was witnessed by Amit and Mahipal, who were coming from behind. Seeing them, the accused persons ran away towards the village after opening fire. The informant managed to reach home and narrated the entire story to his family members. At about 12 O'clock, Sushil, Sunil and Shubham again reached at the residence of the informant and with intention to kill, opened fire with the countrymade pistol and rifle, warning him and threatening to kill him. The second incident was witnessed by Brijesh, Munesh and few others. During investigation, statement of opposite party no.2 has been recorded, who has supported the version of the FIR. Statements of witnesses Brijesh and Munesh have also been recorded in which Munesh has stated about presence of Sushil and Shubham, having rifle and countrymade pistol in their hands at the place of incident.

5. The statements of other witnesses namely, Satish, Sat Kumar, Manoj Kumar, Subhash, Mahipal and Kapil were also recorded. The aforesaid persons have stated that due to some land dispute between the parties, they are inimical to each other and, therefore, for the purpose of pressurising the applicant, the aforesaid F.I.R. has been lodged.

6. During investigation, the Investigating Officer found the implication of Shubham incorrect, therefore, he was exonerated by the Investigating Officer.

7. On the basis of statements of interested witnesses, on 26.07.2018, the Investigating Officer filed charge sheet against the applicant-Sushil, under Sections 307, 452, 504, 506 I.P.C. whereas under Sections 452, 504, 506 IPC against the other accused Sunil.

8. The Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Deoband, Saharanpur took cognizance of the aforesaid charge sheet by order dated 23.08.2018. The charge sheet was challenged by the applicant and co-accused Sunil by way of filing application u/s 482 No.11872 of 2019 and the Hon'ble Court vide order dated 30.03.2019 has passed the following order:

"1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present 482 Cr.P.C. application has been filed to quash the charge-sheet no. 544 of 2018 dated 26.07.2018 as well as cognizance order dated 23.08.2018 and entire proceedings of Case No. 2570 of 2018 (State Vs. Sunil and another), under Sections- 307, 504, 506 and 452 I.P.C., Police Station- Deoband, District- Saharanpur, arising out of Case Crime No. 0210 of 2018, under Sections- 307, 504 and 506 I.P.C., Police Station- Deoband, District- Saharanpur, pending before the court of learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Deoband, District Saharanpur.

3. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that wholly concocted and false story is set up against the applicants on account of pending civil dispute between the parties. The allegation in the FIR describes the incident of 11:00 AM on public road whereas in the statement recorded during investigation, there is gross inconsistency as to the time and place and occurrence. At present, it also does not appear that any empties were recovered to support the allegation of the use of firearm in the incident.

4. Matter requires consideration.

5. Notice on behalf of opposite party no. 1 has been accepted by learned A.G.A.

6. Issue notice to opposite party no.2 returnable at an early date.

7. Opposite parties may file their counter affidavits within six weeks. Rejoinder affidavit may be filed within two weeks thereafter.

8. List thereafter.

9. Till the next date of listing, further proceedings of the aforesaid case shall remain stayed against the applicants.”

9. During pendency of the aforesaid petition, in view of the direction of Hon’ble Apex Court passed in case of Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency Private Limited and Anr. vs. Central Bureau of Investigation¹, the trial Court has proceeded against the applicants and co-accused persons and nonailable warrants have been issued. The applicant was arrested and has been released on bail on 25.01.2021.

10. In the meantime, the complainant moved an application before the trial Court under Section 216 Cr.P.C. requesting to alter the charge of Section 307 IPC against the applicant. Relying upon the statements of few witnesses, the trial Court vide order dated 13.01.2023 has allowed the application framing charge under Section 307 IPC against the applicant and co-accused, hence, the present application has been filed.

11. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the earlier petition has become infructuous in view of the order passed by Court below dated 13.01.2023, therefore, by order of High Court dated 09.05.2023, the same was dismissed as not pressed.

12. Learned counsel for the applicant has challenged the order dated 13.01.2023 on following grounds:

(i) that neither the prosecution nor the de-facto complainant or anyone interested in the criminal case is entitled to file application under Section 216 Cr.P.C.

(ii) that the trial Court cannot alter the charge only on the basis of evidence adduced at the time of trial and not on the basis of material that was already on record as collected by the Investigating Officer.

13. Learned counsel for the applicant relying upon the judgement of Hon’ble Apex Court passed in case of *Jasvinder Saini & Others Vs. State (Govt. of NCT of Delhi)*², states that the additional evidence at the time of trial was essential for framing of additional charge or place charge already framed. Relevant paragraphs of the aforesaid judgement are being reproduced herein below:

“11. A plain reading of the above would show that the Court’s power to alter or add any charge is unrestrained provided such addition and/or alteration is made before the judgment is pronounced. Sub-sections (2) to (5) of Section 216 deal with the procedure to be followed once the Court decides to alter or add any charge.

Section 217 of the Code deals with the recall of witnesses when the charge is altered or added by the Court after commencement of the trial. There can, in the light of the above, be no doubt about the competence of the Court to add or alter a charge at any time before the judgment. The circumstances in which such addition or alteration may be made are not, however, stipulated in Section 216. It is all the same trite that the question of any such addition or alternation would generally arise either because the Court finds the charge already framed to be defective for any reason or because such addition is considered necessary after the commencement of the trial having regard to the evidence that may come before the Court.”

14. Placing reliance upon judgement of Hon’ble Apex Court passed in Hasanbhai Valibhai Qureshi Vs. State of Gujarat³, he submits that while dealing with the scope of Section 216 Cr.P.C. the Hon’ble Apex Court has held that there is scope of alteration of charge during trial on the basis of materials brought on record. Section 216 of the Code appearing in Chapter XVII clearly stipulates that any Court may alter or add to any charge at any time before judgement is pronounced. Whenever such alteration or addition is made, the same is to be read out and informed to the accused. He has pressed upon paragraph 10 of the aforesaid judgement, which is extracted below:-

“10. Therefore, if during trial the trial Court on a consideration of broad probabilities of the case based upon total effect of the evidence and documents produced is satisfied that any addition or alteration of the charge is necessary, it is free to do so, and there can be no legal bar to appropriately act as the exigencies of the case warrant or necessitate.”

15. Placing reliance upon judgement of High Court of Judicature at Madras passed in State Vs. K.P. Shankar and Ors.⁴, he submits that on the basis of statement recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. when no evidence has been adduced for the offence in question at the time of trial, addition or alteration of charge is not justified. He has also emphasised that Section 216 Cr.P.C. does not contemplate that any application has to be filed by the prosecution or by any witness including the de-facto complainant.

16. In support of his submission he has pressed upon following paragraphs:

“7.....Merely on the basis of the statement of witnesses, the offence under Section 302 of IPC need not be included. In the absence of proof of corpus delicti, it is not proper on the part of the prosecution to file the petition under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. The trial Court is therefore right in dismissing such petition filed by the prosecution. There is no evidence available to include the charge under Section 302 of IPC.

The word "evidence" can mean and include the statement of the witnesses adduced before the Magistrate concerned during the course of trial and the evidence collected by the Police Officer under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. will not be construed as "evidence" for the purpose of filing the petition under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. The petition under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. filed by the prosecution is therefore pre mature. Even if it is shown that the respondents/accused are guilty of the offence of murder, it is only for the Trial Court to decide the same on the basis of the evidence made available against them during the course of trial. The application filed under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. by the prosecution is therefore not maintainable and it was rightly rejected by the trial Court. In this context, the learned counsel for the respondents relied on the decision of this Court in the case of (H.A. Hurul Firdhouse, represented by her power agent H.A. Abdul Jabbar vs. State, represented by Inspector of Police, W-22, All Women Police Station, Mylapore, Chennai - 2 and others) 2010 (3) Madras Weekly Notes (Crl.) 368 for the proposition that neither the prosecution nor the petitioner/accused has any right to seek for inclusion or deletion of a charge and it is for the trial Court, in its discretion, consider such inclusion of a charge. It was also held in the above said decision that as against an order passed by the trial Court, dismissing an application under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. a Criminal Revision Case is not maintainable.”

“8. The learned counsel for the respondents/accused also relied on the decision rendered by this Court in the case of (Chellapandi vs. Dy. Superintendent of Police, C.B.C.I.D., Madurai District and others) (2012) 1 MLJ Criminal 246 wherein this Court has held that the power under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. to alter or amend the charges is vested with the Court on the Court being satisfied, based on the documents produced, that the charges framed has to be amended or altered. In the present case, the prosecution has filed the petition under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. to include the charge under Section 302 of IPC merely on the basis of the evidence given by the witnesses before the police officer to the effect that the victim was taken towards the sea with a view to commit the murder. In fact, in the present case, there is a long delay in giving the complaint itself for about five years and therefore also, the petition filed by the prosecution is not maintainable. In such circumstances, the learned counsel for the respondents prayed this Court to dismiss the Criminal Revision Case.”

“12. The only question arise for consideration in this Criminal Revision Case is whether the prosecution has a right to file an application under Section 216 of Cr.P.C. to include the charge under Section 302 of IPC or whether such an application is maintainable.”

“17. It is evident from Section 216 Cr.P.C. that alteration or amendment or addition of a charge can be done only by the Court and the trial Court alone got such power. This position is reiterated in the decision rendered by this Court in the case of (Krishnammal Vs. The Revenue Divisional Officer and others) reported in 2008 Criminal Law Journal 2845 wherein in Para Nos.9 to 11, it was held as follows:-

9. From the conjoint reading of the provisions of the said Sections, it is pellucid that only the Court is having power to frame charge or alter it or add new charges at any time before judgment is pronounced. Neither the prosecution nor the person interested has right to file petition by invoking either of the said Sections so as to delete the existing charges or add new charges. In short, either the prosecution or the person interested has no right to ask the Court either to alter the existing charges or to add new charges.”

“18(8). Section 216, Cr.P.C. does not contemplate any application being filed either by the prosecution or by any witness including the de facto complainant. It simply states the power of the Court to alter the charge or add any charge to the charge already framed. The stage at which such alteration or addition to charge can be made is also indicated thereon. Such an alteration or addition can be made at any time before judgment is pronounced. The Section also provides for the follow up action to be taken in the case the alteration or addition to the charges is made after considerable progress in the trial of the case.

18(9). In the light of the said provision we have to consider the order passed by the learned Trial Magistrate. A reading of the order of the learned Trial Magistrate will show that, on a proper understanding of the context of the said provision, the learned Trial Magistrate has passed the impugned order. The learned Trial Magistrate has expressed a clear opinion that the petition itself was premature one as none of the witnesses for prosecution was cross examined and five more witnesses were to be examined and that the question of framing an additional charge could be considered at a later stage in the light of the evidence to be adduced during the course of the trial. The said opinion is in tune with the intention of the legislature in enacting the said provision. Therefore, as rightly contended by the learned Senior counsel for the Respondent, there is no defect infirmity in the order passed by the Trial Court warranting interference by this Court.”

17. Learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance upon the judgement of High Court of Judicature at Allahabad (Lucknow Bench) passed in Nanhey Bhaiya @ Nanhan Singh And 2 Others Vs. State of U.P.5, wherein it has been stated that the power vested in the Court is exclusive to the Court and there is no right in any party to seek for such addition or alteration by filing any application as a matter of right.

18. Lastly, he has relied upon judgement of Hon’ble Apex Court passed in P. Kartikalakshmi vs. Sri Ganesh and another6, while submitting that the application moved by the informant or prosecution is not maintainable and has emphasised on Paragraphs 6, 7 and 8, which are as under:

“6. Having heard the learned counsel for the respective parties, we find force in the submission of the learned Senior Counsel for Respondent 1. Section 216 CrPC empowers the Court to alter or add any charge at any time before the judgment is pronounced. It is now well settled that the power vested in the Court is exclusive to the Court and there is no right in any party to seek for such addition or alteration by filing any application as a matter of right. It may be that if there was an omission in the framing of the charge and if it comes to the knowledge of the Court trying the offence, the power is always vested in the Court, as provided under Section 216 CrPC to either alter or add the charge and that such power is available with the Court at any time before the judgment is pronounced. It is an enabling provision for the Court to exercise its power under certain contingencies which comes to its notice or brought to its notice. In such a situation, if it comes to the knowledge of the Court that a necessity has arisen for the charge to be altered or added, it may do so on its own and no order need to be passed for that purpose. After such alteration or addition when the final decision is rendered, it will be open for the parties to work out their remedies in accordance with law.

7. We were taken through Section 221 and 222 CrPC in this context. In the light of the facts involved in this case, we are only concerned with Section 216 CrPC. We, therefore, do not propose to examine the implications of the other provisions to the case on hand. We wish to confine ourselves to the invocation of Section 216 and rest with that. In the light of our conclusion that the power of invocation of Section 216 CrPC is exclusively confined with the Court as an enabling provision for the purpose of alteration or addition of any charge at any time before pronouncement of the judgment, we make it clear that no party, neither de facto complainant nor the accused or for that matter the prosecution has any vested right to seek any addition or alteration of charge, because it is not provided under Section 216 CrPC. If such a course to be adopted by the parties is allowed, then it will be well-nigh impossible for the criminal court to conclude its proceedings and the concept of speedy trial will get jeopardised.

8. In such circumstances, when the application preferred by the appellant itself before the trial court was not maintainable, it was not incumbent upon the trial court to pass an order under Section 216 CrPC. Therefore, there was no question of the said order being revisable under Section 397 CrPC. The whole proceeding, initiated at the instance of the appellant, was not maintainable. Inasmuch as the legal issue had to be necessarily set right, we are obliged to clarify the law as is available under Section 216 CrPC. To that extent, having clarified the legal position, we make it clear that the whole proceedings initiated at the instance of the appellant was thoroughly misconceived and vitiated in law and ought not to have been entertained by the trial court. As rightly pointed out by the learned Senior Counsel for Respondent 1, such a course adopted by the appellant and entertained by the court below has unnecessarily provided scope for protraction of the proceedings which ought not to have been allowed by the court below.”

19. As the power to alter or add any charge is exclusive to the Court, therefore, the application moved by informant is not maintainable, as such course is adopted for protraction of proceeding which ought not to have been allowed by the Court below, thus, the order dated 13.01.2023 is liable to be quashed.

20. Learned A.G.A. on the other hand submits that there is no prohibition under Section 216 Cr.P.C. to alter or add a charge prior to recording of evidence. If the Court is moved for the said purpose and it is satisfied, the charge framed by it deserves to be altered and additional charge is required to be added. He further contends that when the Magistrate has jurisdiction to rectify the mistake by adding or altering charge, he can hear the counsel for the parties and do it suo moto and any application either by the public prosecutor or by the informant is only to bring the said facts to his notice and in any case that would not invalidate the order.

21. He submits that the duty of the Court while adding or altering charge has been summarised in the judgement of Anant Prakash Sinha Alias Anant Sinha Vs. State of Haryana And Another⁷, wherein the materials which have to be considered, the adequacy of material on record, and stages up to which such addition or alteration of charge can be done as also with the powers of the Court to entertain an application moved by the informant, complainant or any witness, has been elaborated. In view of above, there is no illegality or infirmity in the order, therefore, relief as prayed, cannot be granted.

22. Before coming to the merits of the case, it would be appropriate to extract Section 216 Cr.P.C., which is as follows:-

“216. Court may alter charge.—

(1) Any court may alter or add to any charge at any time before judgment is pronounced.

(2) Every such alteration or addition shall be read and explained to the accused.

(3) If the alteration or addition to a charge is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is not likely, in the opinion of the court, to prejudice the accused in his defence or the prosecutor in the conduct of the case, the court may, in its discretion, after such alteration or addition has been made, proceed with the trial as if the altered or added charge had been the original charge.

(4) If the alteration or addition is such that proceeding immediately with the trial is likely, in the opinion of the court, to prejudice the accused or the prosecutor as aforesaid, the court may either direct a new trial or adjourn the trial for such period as may be necessary. (5) If the offence stated in the altered or added charge is one for the prosecution of which previous sanction is necessary, the case shall not be proceeded with until such sanction is obtained, unless sanction has been already obtained for a prosecution on the same facts as those on which the altered or added charge is founded.”

23. All that the Court meant to say was that in a case where a charge alleging dowry death is framed, a charge under Section 302 IPC can also be framed if the evidence otherwise permits.

24. Thus, in the case of Jasvinder Saini (Supra), the Court opined that the appearances on evidence at the trial Court was not essential for framing of additional charge or altering the charge already framed, though it may be one of the grounds to do so.

25. It would be appropriate to extract paragraph 11 of the aforesaid judgement:

“11. A plain reading of the above would show that the Court’s power to alter or add any charge is unrestrained provided such addition and/or alteration is made before the judgment is pronounced. Sub-sections (2) to (5) of Section 216 deal with the procedure to be followed once the Court decides to alter or add any charge. Section 217 of the Code deals with the recall of witnesses when the charge is altered or added by the Court after commencement of the trial. There can, in the light of the above, be no doubt about the competence of the Court to add or alter a charge at any time before the judgment. The circumstances in which such addition or alteration may be made are not, however, stipulated in Section 216. It is all the same trite that the question of any such addition or alternation would generally arise either because the Court finds the charge already framed to be defective for any reason or because such addition is considered necessary after the commencement of the trial having regard to the evidence that may come before the Court.”

26. While interpreting powers of Court under Section 216 Cr.P.C. to alter or add any charge, the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Central Bureau of Investigation Vs. Karimullah Osan Khan⁸, has tried to explain the expression.

“at any time”, “before judgement is pronounced”, and has also dealt with the material/basis on which charge(s) may be added, altered after conclusion of the trial.

27. Relevant paragraphs of the aforesaid judgement are reproduced herein below:-

“17. Section 216 CrPC gives considerable powers to the Trial Court, that is, even after the completion of evidence, arguments heard and the judgment reserved, it can alter and add any charge, subject to the conditions mentioned therein. The expressions “at any time” and before the “judgment is pronounced” would indicate that the power is very wide and can be exercised, in appropriate cases, in the interest of justice, but at the same time, the Courts should also see that its orders would not cause any prejudice to the accused.

18. Section 216 CrPC confers jurisdiction on all Courts, including the designated Courts, to alter or add to any charge framed earlier, at any time before the judgment is pronounced and Sub-Sections (2) to (5) prescribe the procedure which has to be followed after that addition or alteration. Needless to say, the Courts can exercise the power of addition or modification of charges under Section 216 CrPC, only when there exists some material before the Court, which has some connection or link with the charges sought to be amended, added or modified. In other words, alteration or addition of a charge must be for an offence made out by the evidence recorded during the course of trial before the Court. (See Harihar Chakravarty v. State of West Bengal AIR 1954 SC 266. Merely because the charges are altered after conclusion of the trial, that itself will not lead to the conclusion that it has resulted in prejudice to the accused because sufficient safeguards have been built in in Section 216 CrPC and other related provisions.”

28. The Apex Court in a full bench decision in the case of Harihar Chakravarty Vs. State of West Bengal⁹, has gone to the extent to hold that the direction to alter the charge so as to include an offence for which the appellant was not originally charged, could only be done if the trial Court itself had taken action under Section 227 Cr.P.C. before it pronounced judgement. It could only have done so if there were materials before it either in the complaint or in the evidence to justify such action.

29. Thus, it can be interpreted in such a manner that the concerned Court has the power to alter or modify any charge prior to pronouncement of the judgement, in case, there is material before it. Irrespective of the fact as to whether it is the material as collected by the Investigating Officer, which has been placed before the trial Court after submission of the charge sheet or when the Court concerned is proceeded with the trial, thus collecting evidence at the time of trial.

30. Thus the Court in the aforesaid case opined that the trial Court could issue a direction for alteration of the charge if there were materials before it in the complaint or any evidence to justify such action. The sum and substance as understood is that if there are allegations in the complaint, petition or for that matter in FIR or accompanying material, the Court can alter the charge.

31. This Court is of the opinion that the powers under Section 216 Cr.P.C. regarding alteration or addition of charge is for an offence made out by the evidence recorded during course of trial before the Court, which does not necessary mean that the alteration can be done only in case where evidence is adduced. Section 216 Cr.P.C., as is evincible does not lay down that the Court cannot alter the charge solely because it has framed the charge. The Court finds that the question of any such addition or alteration generally arises either because the charge already framed is defective for any reason or because such addition is considered necessary after the commencement of the trial having regard to the evidence that may come before the Court. In other words, the Court can change or alter the charge if there is defect or something is left out. The test is, it must be founded on the material available on record. It can be on the basis of complaint or the FIR or accompanying documents or material brought on record, during the course of trial and can also be done at any time before pronouncement of the judgement. Thus, as held in case of Anant Prakash Sinha @ Anant Sinha (Supra), charge can be framed on the basis of evidence on record and it is not necessary to adduce new evidence for altering or modifying the charge.

32. It would be appropriate to quote paragraph 18, which is as follows:

“18.From the aforesaid, it is graphic that the court can change or alter the charge if there is defect or something is left out. The test is, it must be founded on the material available on record. It can be on the basis of the complaint or the FIR or accompanying documents or the material brought on record during the course of trial. It can also be done at any time before pronouncement of judgment. It is not necessary to advert to each and every circumstance. Suffice it to say, if the court has not framed a charge despite the material on record, it has the jurisdiction to add a charge. Similarly, it has the authority to alter the charge. The principle that has to be kept in mind is that the charge so framed by the Magistrate is in accord with the materials produced before him or if subsequent evidence comes on record. It is not to be understood that unless evidence has been let in, charges already framed cannot be altered, for that is not the purport of Section 216 CrPC.”

33. As regards the submission that the learned Magistrate could not have entertained the application preferred by the informant as the same is not maintainable in the view of the provisions of Section 216 Cr.P.C. This Court feels that the learned Magistrate could have done it suo moto but the application was only a way to bring to the notice of the Court concerned about the defect in framing of the charge, therefore, the Court finds no fault in case such an application has been entertained in the present facts of the case wherein from statements of witnesses, presence of Sushil and Shubham having rifle and country made pistol in their hands, was proved at the place of incident, thus, there was ample material to entertain the application as moved by the informant/complainant to alter the charge of Section 307 IPC against the applicant Sushil.

34. In view of the aforesaid discussion, this Court does not find any 482 Cr.P.C. even at the stage of recording of evidence in trial is not dispute at all but the decision of the same would be in the facts and circumstances of each and every case independently - therefore, proceeding on the said ground itself cannot be quashed - accordingly, Application is dismissed.

3. The present Criminal Misc. Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed by the applicant Kunal Chawala with the following prayers:

"It is, therefore Most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to allow this application and quash the Charge Sheet dated 26.02.2022 and cognizance/ summoning order dated 28.02.2022 as well as entire proceeding in Case No. 11020 of 2022 (State Vs. Raman Jaiswal and others), under Sections 420, 120-B IPC and Section 60, 63, 72 of U.P. Excise Act, arising out of Case Crime No. 666 of 2021, Police Station- Madhuban Bapudham, District Ghaziabad, pending before the Court of learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ghaziabad.

It is further prayed that this Hon'ble Court may graciously be pleased to stay the further proceeding of Case No. 11020 of 2022 (State Vs. Raman Jaiswal and others), under Sections 420, 120-B IPC and Section 60, 63, 72 of U.P. Excise Act, arising out of Case Crime No. 666 of 2021, Police Station- Madhuban Bapudham, District Ghaziabad, pending before the Court of learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ghaziabad, during the pendency of the present case, otherwise the applicant shall suffer irreparable loss and injury, and/or may pass such other and further order which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the case."

4. The prosecution case as per the First Information Report lodged on 30.12.2021 by Smt. Sheelabh Mishra the Excise Inspector, Sector-3, Ghaziabad, the opposite party no.2 under Sections 420, 120-B IPC and Section 60, 63, 72 of U.P. Excise Act, 1910, Police Station- Madhuban Bapudham, District Ghaziabad against the applicant Kunal Chawala, Raman Jaiswal, Ramveer Singh, Sunil Kumar, Lalji Yadav and Vipin Yadav on the basis of a recovery memo of recovery of 4809 cartons and 266 loose bottles of Indian Made Foreign Liquor, arrest of four accused persons and recovery of four vehicles being Truck No. HR 55 X 0004, Truck No. HR 68 C 5032, Ford Ecosport DL 5 CR 468 and Hyundai i-20 UP 16 Z 0006 alleging therein that FIR No. 385 of 2021 was lodged in District Moradabad in which Nagendra Yadav resident of Meerut was apprehended transporting 40 bottles of Indian Made Foreign Liquor. He disclosed that the liquor was brought from the custom godown of Kunal Chawla from Ghaziabad and he supplies it illegally in various Districts in Uttar Pradesh. For the supply, Vipin Yadav who is the person of Kunal Chawla and having mobile No. 8800482499 helps him and by calling on the said number liquor can be called anywhere. On the said information, the District Excise Officer, Ghaziabad under supervision of the first informant along with Excise Inspectors and Enforcement Officers of Excise Department of Meerut formed a team. On the basis of information received from Moradabad on 29.12.2021, the said Officers reached the godown of Kunal Chawla in P.S. Madhuban. The main gate of the godown was open and two trucks were standing inside from which cartons of liquor was being kept inside. Two persons met inside. On asking, they disclosed their names as Raman Jaiswal and Ramveer Singh. On further asking, they disclosed that they were in the said godown for Kunal Chawla and their work is to get the cartons of liquor unloaded and supplied to various places. On asking about Vipin Yadav they refused to tell anything but on checking their mobiles, the number of Vipin Yadav was found in it and their were regular calls on the mobile. On being suspicious, the godown was searched thoroughly. The papers with regards to the material which was being unloaded from the trucks was demanded which could not be shown. The drivers of the truck disclosed their names as Sunil Kumar and Lalji. They also could not show the papers of the material on demand. On asking for license with regards to the liquor kept in the godown, the persons could not show any license and neither could produce any documents with regards to the stock and the details of it. From Truck No. HR 55 X 0048 Ballentine brand liquor was being unloaded and on other truck No. HR 68 C 5032, 500 cartons of Red Label brand liquor was present which was being unloaded. The godown was then inspected where liquor of various brands were found. A list was then drawn by the said team of 75 Indian Made Foreign Liquor which in total was in 4809 cartons and there were 266 loose bottles. The cartons were inspected and in some cartons there was no tag of FSSAI and mother company which would go to show that the material did not come through the legal channel. The Government of India and the State Government were incurring loss of customs and excise duty. Apart from this, there was different batch numbers of mother company. Even the batch numbers and date of manufacture were missing. On thorough inspection, 50 plastic bags of white colour, one blue colour plastic bag, one packet of rubber band, 7 bundles of tape, one packet of black polythene, one packet of blue polythene, 180 empty boxes of Glenfiddich and five seals which were used in boxes were found. On further probe from the said persons, they stated that they work for Kunal Chawla and the liquor is transported in black ploythenes to various places. In the Ford Ecosport and Hyundai i-20 also liquor was recovered. On probing Raman Jaiswal and Ramveer Singh they disclosed that on the instruction from godown of Kunal Chawla delivery of liquor in various places in the State and in various districts and also in Ghaziabad is done without payment of customs duty and excise duty. It is stated that as such Kunal Chawla and other persons are running a gang due to which Government is being defrauded of its customs duty and State Government is also being defrauded of excise duty. Samples of the material recovered was drawn and recovery memo was prepared which was given for lodging of the First Information Report and the First Information Report was thus lodged.

5. The investigation in the matter concluded and a charge sheet was submitted against Raman Jaiswal, Ramveer Singh, Sunil Kumar, Lalji Yadav and Kunal Chawla (the present applicant) under Sections 420, 120-B IPC and Section 60, 63, 63 of the Uttar Pradesh Excise Act, 1910.

6. The trial court vide its order dated 28.02.2022 took cognizance upon the said charge sheet and summoned the applicant Kunal Chawla and other accused persons to face trial.

7. The applicant was granted anticipatory bail vide order dated 08.02.2022 passed by the Sessions Judge, Ghaziabad in Crl. Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application No. 21 of 2022 (Kunal Chawla Vs. State of U.P.).

8. The trial court vide its order dated 30.03.2023 framed charges against the applicant under Sections 420, 120-B IPC and Section 60, 63 of the Uttar Pradesh Excise Act, 1910. The said charge was read to the applicant-accused who pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

9. The trial then started as Criminal Case No. 753 of 2022 (State of U.P. Vs.

Raman Jaiswal and others) in which the statement of PW-1 the first informant Sheelabh Mishra started to be recorded on 22.03.2023 which concluded on 04.05.2023 and then the statement of Akhilesh Verma the Excise Inspector, Ghaziabad was recorded as PW-2 which started on 11.04.2023 and is yet to be concluded.

10. During the pendency of investigation, the applicant filed a writ petition before this Court numbered as Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 13402 of 2022 (Kunal Chawla Vs. State of U.P and 2 others) for quashing of the First Information Report with a further prayer to not to arrest him in the case in which a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 19.09.2022 directed that till the next date of listing or till the submission of police report under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C. whichever is earlier, the respondents are restrained to arrest the petitioner pursuant to the impugned FIR subject to cooperation in the on going investigation.

The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has thus been filed with the prayers as aforesaid.

11. Learned counsel for the applicant argued as follows:-

(i) Cognizance could not have been taken by the trial court for offences under Section 60, 63 of the Excise Act as the same cannot be done on a police report. As per Section 70 of the Excise Act, cognizance can be taken on a complaint or report of an Excise Officer only. The trial against the applicant is void ab-initio as the same cannot proceed.

(ii) No offence whatsoever under Sections 420, 120-B IPC is made out. There is no fraudulent act, no false representation and there is nothing dishonest which has come in evidence which would make out a case against the applicant.

(iii) The applicant Kunal Chawla and his wife Ruchi Chawla are the Directors of M/s Mehar Global Spirit Private Ltd. The company has been incorporated on 05.11.2018 under the Companies Act, 2013 but the company has not been made as an accused and as such the Director of the company cannot be prosecuted. Reliance has been placed upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Dayle De Souza Vs. Government of India through Deputy Chief Labour Commissioner and another : AIR 2021 SC 5626.

(iv) If the case is of evasion of customs and excise duty then the concerned relevant authorities should have proceeded as per law and should have taken action for it but the charge as framed does not in any manner show that the applicant is being tried for it.

(v) A petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. for quashing of the proceedings is maintainable even if the trial has started and some of the witnesses have been examined as has been held by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Shueb Mahmood Kidwai @ Bobby Vs. State of U.P. : (2021) (0) Supreme (All) 122.

(vi) Reliance has been placed upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Surinder Kumar Khanna Vs. Intelligence Officer Directorate of Revenue Intelligence : (2018) 8 SCC 271 and while relying upon paragraph nos. 7, 8 and 14 it is argued that in so far as the evidence against the applicant is concerned, the same is only a confession of co-accused. The court may take the confession into consideration but the same is not a proof, there must be other evidence also to corroborate it.

12. Per contra, learned counsel for the State opposed the prayer for quashing and argued as follows:

(i) The applicant is named in the First Information Report. There is an allegation that the applicant is the owner of godown in question from where illicit liquor has been recovered.

(ii) In so far as the ownership of godown is concerned, the same has not been disputed and even the material as has been recovered has not been disputed.

(iii) The allegations in the First Information Report prima facie make out a case against the applicant.

(iv) In so far as the allegations of the offences under the Indian Penal Code are concerned, it is clear from the perusal of the First Information Report that there is an allegation that illegal/illicit liquor was found for which the documents could not be shown and even the liquor was not having any tagging of FSSAI and mother company which would go to show that the same was not coming through genuine channels. There is further an allegation that the batch number and the date of manufacture were also not mentioned. It is submitted that even many empty boxes of liquor were found. No satisfactory reply was given by the persons there. It is submitted that the proceedings are under an Special Act and general law. The proceedings are not barred to continue together.

(v) In so far as the argument of the company not being made as an accused is concerned and the proceedings be quashed on the said ground is concerned, prima facie it was found that godown was under the ownership of the applicant and whether the same was for the use of the company or not, is a matter of trial.

(vi) The trial in the present matter has started in which one witness has been examined and the statement of the second witness is being recorded. The quashing of the proceedings at this stage, may not be in the fitness of things as scuttling the trial at this stage will not be proper.

13. After having heard learned counsels for the parties and perusing the records, it is evident that the applicant is named in the First Information Report. There are allegations against him that illegal liquor was being unloaded from the truck and being stocked in his godown. The material as found in the godown was deficient for certain necessary formalities due to which a conclusion was drawn that the same has not come through legal channel. Even there was no explanation and presentation of relevant documents by the concerned persons with regards to the same. In the present petition also the ownership of godown and the recovery of the material is not challenged. After recovery of the material and arrest of some of the accused, the First Information Report was lodged after which the investigation concluded and charge sheet was submitted on which the trial court took cognizance and summoned the applicant and other accused persons. On appearance of the applicant, the trial court framed charges against him. The said charges were read to the applicant to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried. There was no challenge of the order taking cognizance on the charge sheet, summoning of the applicant by the trial court and also to the framing of charge against him but the only things stated by him after framing of charge was that he denies the charges and claims to be tried. The trial started in which the statement of PW-1 who is the first informant has been recorded. The statement of the other witness as PW-2 is being recorded. Now at this stage, the present petition has been filed for quashing of the proceedings.

14. The Apex Court in the case of Ratilal Bhanji Mithani Vs. State of Maharashtra and others : (1979) 2 SCC 179 has held that after framing of charge there cannot be a discharge but only an acquittal can be done on a finding of not guilty turning on the merits of the case. It has been held as follows :-

“24. At the outset, let us have a look at the relevant provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, which admittedly governed the pending proceedings in this case. The procedure for trial of warrant cases by Magistrates is given in Chapter XXI of that Code. The present case was instituted on a criminal complaint. Section 252 provides that in such a case, the Magistrate shall proceed to hear the complainant (if any) and take all such evidence, as may be produced, in support of the prosecution. Sub-section (2) of that Section casts a duty on the Magistrate to ascertain the names of persons likely to be acquainted with the facts of the case and to be able to give evidence for the prosecution, and to summon all such persons for evidence. Section 253 indicates when and in what circumstances an accused may be discharged: It says:

“253. (1) If, upon taking all the evidence referred to in Section 252, and making such examination (if any) of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary, he finds that no case against the accused has been made out which, if unrebutted, would warrant his conviction, the Magistrate shall discharge him.

(2) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent a Magistrate from discharging the accused at any previous stage of the case if, for reasons to be recorded by such Magistrate, he considers the charge to be groundless.”

Section 254 indicates when and in what circumstances a charge should be framed. It reads:

“254. If, when such evidence and examination have been taken and made, or at any previous stage of the case, the Magistrate is of opinion that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable under this Chapter, which such Magistrate is competent to try, and which, in his opinion could be adequately punished by him, he shall frame in writing a charge against the accused.”

Section 255 enjoins that the charge shall then be read over and explained to the accused, and he shall be asked whether he is guilty or has any defence to make. If the accused pleads guilty, the Magistrate shall record that plea, and may convict him thereon.

25. Section 256 provides that if the accused refuses to plead or does not plead, or claims to be tried, he shall be required to state at the next hearing whether he wishes to cross-examine any of the witnesses for the prosecution whose evidence has been taken, and if he says he so wants to cross-examine, the witnesses named by him shall be recalled and he will be allowed to further cross-examine them. “The evidence of any remaining witnesses for the prosecution shall next be taken” and thereafter the accused shall be called upon to enter upon and produce his defence.

26. Section 257 is not material. Section 258(1) provides that if in any case in which a charge has been framed the Magistrate finds the accused not guilty, he shall record an order of acquittal. Sub-section (2) requires, where in any case under this chapter the Magistrate does not proceed in accordance with the provisions of Section 349 or Section 562, he shall, if he finds the accused guilty, pass sentence on him in accordance with law.

27. From the scheme of the provisions noticed above it is clear that in a warrant case instituted otherwise than on a police report, “discharge” or “acquittal” of accused are distinct concepts applicable to different stages of the proceedings in Court. The legal effect and incidents of “discharge” and “acquittal” are also different. An order of discharge in a warrant case instituted on complaint, can be made only after the process has been issued and before the charge is framed. Section 253(1) shows that as a general rule there can be no order of discharge unless the evidence of all the prosecution witnesses has been taken and the Magistrate considers for reasons to be recorded, in the light of the evidence, that no case has been made out. Sub-section (2) which authorises the Magistrate to discharge the accused at any previous stage of the case if he considers the charge to be groundless, is an exception to that rule. A discharge without considering the evidence taken is illegal. If a prima facie case is made out the Magistrate must proceed under Section 254 and frame charge against the accused. Section 254 shows that a charge can be framed if after taking evidence or at any previous stage, the Magistrate, thinks that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence triable as a warrant case.

28. Once a charge is framed, the Magistrate has no power under Section 227 or any other provision of the Code to cancel the charge, and reverse the proceedings to the stage of Section 253 and discharge the accused. The trial in a warrant case starts with the framing of charge; prior to it, the proceedings are only an inquiry. After the framing of the charge if the accused pleads not guilty, the Magistrate is required to proceed with the trial in the manner provided in Sections 254 to 258 to a logical end. Once a charge is framed in a warrant case, instituted either on complaint or a police report, the Magistrate has no power under the Code to discharge the accused, and thereafter, he can either acquit or convict the accused unless he decides to proceed under Section 349 and 562 of the Code of 1898 (which correspond to Sections 325 and 360 of the Code of 1973).

29. Excepting where the prosecution must fail for want of a fundamental defect, such as want of sanction, an order of acquittal must be based upon a “finding of not guilty” turning on the merits of the case and the appreciation of evidence at the conclusion of the trial.

30. If after framing charges the Magistrate whimsically, without appraising the evidence and without permitting the prosecution to produce all its evidence, “discharges” the accused, such an acquittal, without trial, even if clothed as “discharge”, will be illegal. This is precisely what has happened in the instant case. Here, the Magistrate, by his order dated December 12, 1962, framed charges against Mithani and two others. Subsequently, when on the disposal of the revision applications by Gokhale, J., the records were received back he arbitrarily deleted those charges and discharged the accused, without examining the “remaining witnesses” of the prosecution which he had in the order of framing charges, said, “will be examined after the charge”.”

(emphasis supplied)

15. The situation is the same in the present matter. After taking cognizance on the chargesheet, framing of charges, accused not pleading guilty and claiming to be tried, the trial starting and one witness has been examined whereas the statement of the other prosecution witnesses is being recorded, the applicant who is facing trial comes up challenging the cognizance/summoning order dated 28.02.2022 as well as entire proceedings of the trial at such a belated stage.

16. It has been held by the Apex Court in the cases of R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab : AIR 1960 SC 866; State of Haryana and Ors. Vs. Bhajan Lal and Others : 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335; State of Bihar Vs. P. P. Sharma : 1992 Supp (1) SCC 222; Trisuns Chemical Industry Vs. Rajesh Agarwal and Ors. : (1999) 8 SCC 686; *M. Krishnan Vs. The State of Andhra Pradesh : (2020) 12 SCC 467, that exercise of inherent power of the High Court under Section 482 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is an exceptional one. Great care should be taken by the High Court before embarking to scrutinise the complaint/FIR/charge-sheet in deciding whether the rarest of the rare case is made out to scuttle the prosecution.

17. Further in the case of Priti Saraf & anr. Vs. State of NCT of Delhi & anr. : 2021 SCC Online SC 206 the Apex Court while considering the powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has held as follows:

"23. It being a settled principle of law that to exercise powers under Section 482 CrPC, the complaint in its entirety shall have to be examined on the basis of the allegation made in the complaint/FIR/charge-sheet and the High Court at that stage was not under an obligation to go into the matter or examine its correctness. Whatever appears on the face of the complaint/FIR/charge-sheet shall be taken into consideration without any critical examination of the same. The offence ought to appear ex facie on the complaint/FIR/charge-sheet and other documentary evidence, if any, on record.

24. The question which is raised for consideration is that in what circumstances and categories of cases, a criminal proceeding may be quashed either in exercise of the extraordinary powers of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution, or in the exercise of the inherent powers of the High Court under Section 482 CrPC. This has often been hotly debated before this Court and various High Courts. Though in a series of decisions, this question has been answered on several occasions by this Court, yet the same still comes up for consideration and is seriously debated.

25. In this backdrop, the scope and ambit of the inherent jurisdiction of the High Court under Section 482 CrPC has been examined in the judgment of this Court in State of Haryana and Others Vs. Bhajan Lal and Others, (1992 Suppl (1) SCC 335). The relevant para is mentioned hereunder:-

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we give the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge.”

26. This Court has clarified the broad contours and parameters in laying down the guidelines which have to be kept in mind by the High Courts while exercising inherent powers under Section 482 CrPC. The aforesaid principles laid down by this Court are illustrative and not exhaustive. Nevertheless, it throws light on the circumstances and the situation which is to be kept in mind when the High Court exercises its inherent powers under Section 482 CrPC.

27. It has been further elucidated recently by this Court in Arnab Manoranjan Goswami Vs. State of Maharashtra and Others, 2020 SCC Online SC 964 where jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and Section 482 CrPC has been analysed at great length.

28. It is thus settled that the exercise of inherent power of the High Court is an extraordinary power which has to be exercised with great care and circumspection before embarking to scrutinise the complaint/FIR/charge-sheet in deciding whether the case is the rarest of rare case, to scuttle the prosecution at its inception."

18. In the case of Ramveer Upadhyay Vs. State of U.P. : 2022 SCC Online SC 484 the Apex Court has held in paragraph nos. 27, 38 and 39 that quashing of a criminal case by exercising jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. should be done in exceptional cases only. Paragraphs 27, 38 and 39 are quoted herein:

"27. Even though, the inherent power of the High Court under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C., to interfere with criminal proceedings is wide, such power has to be exercised with circumspection, in exceptional cases. Jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C is not to be exercised for the asking.

38. Ends of justice would be better served if valuable time of the Court is spent on hearing appeals rather than entertaining petitions under Section 482 at an interlocutory stage which might ultimately result in miscarriage of justice as held in Hamida v. Rashid @ Rasheed and Others, (2008) 1 SCC 474.

39. In our considered opinion criminal proceedings cannot be nipped in the bud by exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. only because the complaint has been lodged by a political rival. It is possible that a false complaint may have been lodged at the behest of a political opponent. However, such possibility would not justify interference under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. to quash the criminal proceedings. As observed above, the possibility of retaliation on the part of the petitioners by the acts alleged, after closure of the earlier criminal case cannot be ruled out. The allegations in the complaint constitute offence under the Atrocities Act. Whether the allegations are true or untrue, would have to be decided in the trial. In exercise of power under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C., the Court does not examine the correctness of the allegations in a complaint except in exceptionally rare cases where it is patently clear that the allegations are frivolous or do not disclose any offence. The Complaint Case No.19/2018 is not such a case which should be quashed at the inception itself without further Trial. The High Court rightly dismissed the application under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C."

19. Further in the case of Daxaben Vs. State of Gujarat : 2022 SCC Online SC 936 in para 49 the Apex Court has held as under:

"49. In exercise of power under section 482 of the Cr.P.C., 1973 the Court does not examine the correctness of the allegation in the complaint except in exceptionally rare cases where it is patently clear that the allegations are frivolous or do not disclose any offence."

20. In so far as argument with regards to the offences under the Excise Act, taking cognizance and trying the applicant for it is concerned, although it is strenuously argued that the trial is bad in the eyes of eye and is void ab-initio but in the case of State of Maharashtra Vs. Sayyed Hassan Sayyed Subhan : (2019) 18 SCC 145 it has been held by the Apex Court that there is no bar to a trial or conviction of an accused under two different enactments. The only bar is to the punishment of him twice for the offence. It has been held as under :

"7. There is no bar to a trial or conviction of an offender under two different enactments, but the bar is only to the punishment of the offender twice for the offence. Where an act or an omission constitutes an offence under two enactments, the offender may be prosecuted and punished under either or both enactments but shall not be liable to be punished twice for the same offence.

[T.S. Baliah v. T.S. Rangachari, (1969) 3 SCR 65 : AIR 1969 SC 701] The same set of facts, in conceivable cases, can constitute offences under two different laws. An act or an omission can amount to and constitute an offence under IPC and at the same time, an offence under any other law. [State of Bihar v. Murad Ali Khan, (1988) 4 SCC 655 : 1989 SCC (Cri) 27] The High Court ought to have taken note of Section 26 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 which reads as follows:

“26. Provision as to offences punishable under two or more enactments.—Where an act or omission constitutes an offence under two or more enactments, then the offender shall be liable to be prosecuted and punished under either or any of those enactments, but shall not be liable to be punished twice for the same offence.”

8. In Hat Singh case [State of Rajasthan v. Hat Singh, (2003) 2 SCC 152 : 2003 SCC (Cri) 451] this Court discussed the doctrine of double jeopardy and Section 26 of the General Clauses Act to observe that prosecution under two different Acts is permissible if the ingredients of the provisions are satisfied on the same facts. While considering a dispute about the prosecution of the respondent therein for offences under the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act, 1957 and the Penal Code, this Court in State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay [State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay, (2014) 9 SCC 772 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 437] held that there is no bar in prosecuting persons under the Penal Code where the offences committed by persons are penal and cognizable offences. A perusal of the provisions of the FSS Act would make it clear that there is no bar for prosecution under IPC merely because the provisions in the FSS Act prescribe penalties. We, therefore, set aside the finding of the High Court on the first point.”

21. Further in the case of Kunwar Pal Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh : (2020) 14 SCC 331 it has been held by the Apex Court that since the ingredients constituting offence(s) in both the enactments are different, prosecution under both the enactments is permissible. It has been held that all offences under any other law shall be investigated, inquired into, tried under Cr.P.C., subject to any enactment regulating the manner or place of investigation, trial, etc. of such offences. It is held as follows :-

“4. In the written submissions filed by the appellant, a relatively new plea and contention has been raised by relying upon the judgments of this Court in Belsund Sugar Co. Ltd. v. State of Bihar [Belsund Sugar Co. Ltd. v. State of Bihar, (1999) 9 SCC 620], Sharat Babu Digumarti v. State (NCT of Delhi) [Sharat Babu Digumarti v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2017) 2 SCC 18 : (2017) 1 SCC (Cri) 628] and Suresh Nanda v. CBI [Suresh Nanda v. CBI, (2008) 3 SCC 674 : (2008) 2 SCC (Cri) 121] to urge that the MMDR Act, 1957 being a special statute, prosecution for an offence under Section 379 IPC would not be maintainable. The judgment of this Court in State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay [State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay, (2014) 9 SCC 772 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 437], it is submitted, is distinguishable as FIR for the offence against illegal sand mining in Sanjay [State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay, (2014) 9 SCC 772 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 437] was registered suo motu due to non-production of any document to establish mining rights and, therefore, the ratio in that case would apply only to cases of illegal mining where the mining lease had already been revoked or there was no subsisting mining lease.

5. We find the submission of the appellant to be untenable. In Sanjay [State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay, (2014) 9 SCC 772 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 437], a Division Bench of this Court had decided the appeals preferred against the conflicting judgments of the Delhi High Court [Sanjay v. State, 2009 SCC OnLine Del 525 : (2009) 109 DRJ 594], Gujarat High Court [Vishalbhai Rameshbhai Khurana v. State of Gujarat, 2010 SCC OnLine Guj 13915 : (2010) 3 GCD 2160], Kerala High Court [Moosakoya v. State of Kerala, 2007 SCC OnLine Ker 584 : (2008) 1 KLT 538], Calcutta High Court [Seema Sarkar v. State, 1994 SCC OnLine Cal 277 : (1995) 1 Cal LT 95], Madras High Court [M. Palanisamy v. State of T.N., 2012 SCC OnLine Mad 2125 : (2012) 4 CTC 1], [Sengol v. State, 2012 SCC OnLine Mad 82 : (2012) 2 CTC 369] and Jharkhand High Court on the question whether a person can be prosecuted for the offences under Sections 379/114 and other provisions of IPC on the allegations of illegal mining in view of Section 22 of the MMDR Act, 1957, which reads as under:

“22. Cognizance of offences.—

No court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under this Act or any rules made thereunder except upon complaint in writing made by a person authorised in this behalf by the Central Government or the State Government.”

6. After advertng to the provisions of CrPC, namely, Sections 2(c), 2(d) and 2(h) which define “cognizable offence”, “complaint” and “investigation” respectively, this Court in Sanjay [State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay, (2014) 9 SCC 772 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 437] had referred to Section 4 CrPC, which reads as under:

“4. Trial of offences under the Indian Penal Code and other laws.—(1)

All offences under the Indian Penal Code (45 of 1860) shall be investigated, inquired into, tried, and otherwise dealt with according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

(2) All offences under any other law shall be investigated, inquired into, tried, and otherwise dealt with according to the same provisions, but subject to any enactment for the time being in force regulating the manner or place of investigating, inquiring into, trying or otherwise dealing with such offences.”

As per sub-section (2) of Section 4, all offences under any law, other than IPC, can be investigated, inquired into and tried under CrPC, subject to any enactment regulating the manner or place of investigation, trial, etc. of such offences.

8. Accordingly, in Sanjay [State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay, (2014) 9 SCC 772 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 437] it was held that the investigation of the offences is within the domain of the police and the power of a police officer to investigate into cognizable offences is not ordinarily impinged by any fetters albeit the power must be exercised as per the statutory provisions and for legitimate purposes. The courts would interfere only when while examining the case they find that the police officer in exercise of the investigatory powers has breached the statutory provisions and put the personal liberty and/or the property of a citizen in jeopardy by an illegal and improper use of the powers or when the investigation by the police is not found to be bona fide or when the investigation is tainted with animosity. While examining the issue, this Court in Sanjay [State (NCT of Delhi) v. Sanjay, (2014) 9 SCC 772 : (2014) 5 SCC (Cri) 437] took notice of the decision in H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi [H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi, AIR 1955 SC 196 : 1955 Cri LJ 526] wherein this Court has held that a defect or illegality in investigation, however serious, has no direct bearing on the competence or the procedure relating to the taking of the cognizance or trial. The cardinal principle of law as noted by this Court in Directorate of Enforcement v. Deepak Mahajan [Directorate of Enforcement v. Deepak Mahajan, (1994) 3 SCC 440 : 1994 SCC (Cri) 785] is that every law is designed to further the ends of justice and should not be frustrated on mere technicalities. The public trust doctrine was cited and applied to underscore the principle that certain resources like air, sea, water, forests and minerals are of great importance to the people as a whole and that the Government is enjoined to hold such resources in trust for the benefit of the general public and to use them for their benefit than to serve private interests.”

22. Regarding the second limb of argument that there is no evidence with regards to the offences under the IPC, it is apparent from the records that the trial court after prima facie finding a case to be made out against the applicant took cognizance upon the charge sheet, summoned him and then charges were also framed against him under sections 420, 120-B IPC and Section 60, 63, 72 of U.P.

Excise Act. There are allegations against him that illegal liquor was being unloaded from the truck and being stocked in his godown. The trial has started in which one prosecution witness has been examined and the second witness is under examination. The applicant who is a named accused, charged accused is being tried but he has not tried to claim discharge before the trial court at the appropriate stage. Even the order framing charge has not been challenged by him yet.

23. Learned counsel for the applicant has while arguing the matter submitted that in view of the judgement of a Division Bench of this Court (Lucknow Bench) in the case of Shueb Mahmood Kidwai @ Bobby Vs. State of U.P. : Criminal Misc. 482/378/407 No. 3044 of 2017, decided on 23.02.2021 : [(2021) 0 Supreme (All) 122] has answered a reference made by a Single Judge Bench whether after taking cognizance on a charge sheet, framing of charge and 18 out of 19 witnesses being examined in the trial at this stage accused/applicant is entitled to move an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Learned counsel has placed the following paragraphs of the said judgement (though unnumbered in the original text) to support his argument, which read as under:

“This case has been placed before this Division Bench in view of a reference made by a learned Single Judge of this Court vide his order dated 12.12.2017 which reads as under:-

"Supplementary affidavit filed on behalf of the applicant is taken on record.

Heard counsel for the parties.

In continuation of Court's order dated 09.05.2017, it is hereby observed that applicant was required to show whether final report submitted by the police against the accused has been accepted by the Court or not. Vide annexure SA-2 there is prima-facie evidence that the final report submitted by the police has been accepted by the Court. Five cases shown to be registered against the present applicant. In four of them he has been acquitted and in one, final report submitted by the police, has been accepted.

Perusal of the order dated 14.06.2000 indicates that cognizance was taken in the year 2000, charge was framed on 27.08.2008 vide annexure 5 out of 19 witnesses 18 have been cross examined. The question is whether at this stage accused/applicant is entitled to move application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. During arguments, learned counsel for the applicant has referred annexure 7 to annexure 12 to show that similar applications under Section 482 Cr.P.C. moved on behalf of co-accused have been allowed by this Court. From annexure 7 to 10, the order have been passed on concession by learned AGA. However, orders annexure 11 and 12 have been passed even though on behalf of the State quashing of charge sheets was vehemently opposed. In both these cases, learned Single Judge has opined that when in all the 4 cases shown in the Gang Chart, the applicant has been acquitted, prosecution of the applicant under Gangster Act should not be continued. Thereafter he has quashed proceedings of Sessions Trial No.199 of 2000, under Section 2/3 UP Gangster Act going on against co-accused Ram Kumar Singh and Akhtar Husain alias Sarju.”

24. With regards to the argument that the company has not been made as an accused and the proceedings be quashed on the ground itself it is the prosecution case that the godown belonged to the applicant from which the illegal liquor was recovered. It is the case of the applicant that the godown is of the company, the same is to be taken up in the trial at the appropriate stage to show as to who is the owner of the godown and whose material is being stocked therein. The proceedings on the said ground itself cannot be quashed.

25. The proposition of law with regards to maintainability of a petition under section 482 Cr.P.C. even at the stage of recording of evidence in trial is not in dispute at all but the decision of the same would be in the facts and circumstances of each and every case independently.

26. In view of the discussion as above, the law on the issue, the prima facie material available against the applicant and also the stage of the case, this Court does not find it to be a fit case for interference, the present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is thus dismissed.

DATED: ALLAHABAD 23.05.2023

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MRS. JYOTSNA SHARMA, J.

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 22529 of 2008

Shyam Bahadur Singh	...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr.	...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Satish Kumar Mishra

Counsel for the Respondents:

G.A., Sri Shyam Sunder Mishra, Sri O.P. Mishra

Shyam Sunder Mishra, learned counsel for respondent no. 2 and Sri O.P. Mishra, learned AGA for the State.

(A) Criminal Law - The Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Section 125 - Order for maintenance of wives , children and parents - Non-mentioning or wrong mentioning of provisions of law should not be treated as obstacle in proceeding with a case - order of civil court could be challenged under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and not under original writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India - any matter which has been decided in a summary manner shall not have an effect of res-judicata. (Para -6,7)

Proceeding initiated by wife under Section 125 Cr.P.C. - Dismissed - revision - dismissed - Second application for grant of maintenance filed by respondent no. 2(wife) under Section 125 Cr.P.C. - ground - change in circumstances i.e. remarriage by the husband – objected by petitioner - disputed questions of fact. (Para - 8,10)

HELD:-Section 125 Cr.P.C. applies to individuals who have been neglected or refused maintenance, or who lose resources due to changed circumstances. Liability to maintain under section 125 Cr.P.C. is continuing one. Change in circumstances allows a person to apply for maintenance. Foreclosure would frustrate the purpose of section 125 Cr.P.C.. No interference required in the order of trial court or of the revisional court in exercise of writ jurisdiction. (Para -11)

Petition dismissed. (E-7)

List of Cases cited:

Radhey Shyam & anr. Vs Chhabi Nath & ors., (2015) 5 SCC 423

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Satish Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri

2. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner to issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 31.01.2006 and 22.01.2004 passed by Additional District Judge/Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Banda and Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, North-East Railway, District Banda respectively.

3. The facts relevant for the purpose of this writ petition are as below:-

The respondent no. 2 filed an application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. claiming maintenance from her husband, which was dismissed on 31.01.1995 on certain grounds; the criminal revision filed by the respondent/wife was also dismissed; the respondent no. 2 again moved a second application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. on a premise that there have been change in circumstances, therefore, she is entitled to claim maintenance from her husband and that second application case no. 1490/2003 came to be allowed directing her husband to pay Rs. 1,500/- per month; the opposite party aggrieved by the above order dated 22.01.2004, preferred a criminal revision no. 30/2004 which was dismissed on 31.01.2006, now the petitioner husband is before this court challenging the order passed by the trial court as well as the order passed by the revisional court.

4. The main crux of the argument of the petitioner is that the respondent's wife never challenged the order of the revisional court by which the earlier order passed by the trial court rejecting the first application under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was affirmed, therefore, the order passed against the wife became final and therefore, the matter cannot be agitated again by filing another application under Section 125 Cr.P.C.; it is argued that the entire proceeding subsequently initiated by respondent no. 2 is barred by principle of constructive res-judicata and hit by the provisions of Constitution of India, therefore, it is liable to be quashed; it is further argued that the subsequent orders granting maintenance is passed ignoring the factual and legal positions; the learned trial court as well as the revisional court passed an illegal order, therefore the orders cannot be sustained.

5. The contentions of the petitioner is opposed by respondent no. 2 on the ground that in a judicial order this Court is not allowed to interfere while exercising writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Hence, the petition should be dismissed at the very threshold. To stress above point. Judgement of Hon^{ble} Supreme Court in the case of Radhey Shyam and another vs. Chhabi Nath and others, (2015) 5 SCC 423 has been referred to.

The apex court in the aforesaid judgment held that writ of certiorari lies to bring decisions of an 'Inferior court?', tribunal, public authority or any other body of persons for review so that the court may determine whether they should be quashed or not. However, expression 'interference' the court is not referable to the judicial courts. Writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. The Apex Court in para 25 further observed as below:-

“25. All courts in the jurisdiction of a High Court are subordinate to it and subject to its control and supervision under Article 227. Writ jurisdiction is constitutionally conferred on all High Courts. Broad principles of writ jurisdiction followed in England are applicable to India and a writ of certiorari lies against patently erroneous or without jurisdiction orders of Tribunals or authorities or courts other than judicial courts. There are no precedents in India for High Courts to issue writs to subordinate courts. Control of working of subordinate courts in dealing with their judicial orders is exercised by way of appellate or revisional powers or power of superintendence under Article 227. Orders of civil court stand on different footing from the orders of authorities or Tribunals or courts other than judicial/civil courts. While appellate or revisional jurisdiction is regulated by statutes, power of superintendence under Article 227 is constitutional. The expression "inferior court" is not referable to judicial courts”

6. Thus it has been clearly laid down that order of civil court could be challenged under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and not under original writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

7. Certain facts catch attention of this court. The second application for grant of maintenance was filed by the respondent no. 2 in the year 2003 and the same was decided by an order dated 22.01.2004. The revision filed against that order was dismissed in January 2006. This petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India came to be filed by the husband with a prayer to quash those orders in 2008 and since then matter is pending. Almost 14 years have gone since then and all this while, this legal issue was neither raised nor realised that the writ petition seeks to invoke powers under Article 226 instead of Article 227 of the Constitution of India. This is settled law that non-mentioning or wrong mentioning of provisions of law should not be treated as obstacle in proceeding with a case. In my view, an ordinary litigant cannot be expected of having too minute knowledge of provisions of law and that the court shall be failing in its duty if the case is thrown in the waste paper basket on a technical point or on the basis of mentioning of a wrong provision of law. In such matter, a Judge ought to play its expected role. In this view of the matter, I find it fit to treat this petition as one moved under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

8. This is not disputed that the earlier proceeding initiated by the wife under Section 125 Cr.P.C. came to be dismissed and the revision filed by her also came to be dismissed. This is not disputed that subsequent case under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was filed by the wife on a premise that there has been a change in circumstances.

9. I find it pertinent to reproduce relevant portion of Section 125 Cr.P.C. which is as below:-

"(1) If any person having sufficient means neglects or refuses to maintain-

(a) his wife, unable to maintain herself, or

(b) his legitimate or illegitimate minor child, whether married or not, unable to maintain itself, or

(c) his legitimate or illegitimate child (not being a married daughter) who has attained majority, where such child is, by reason of any physical or mental abnormality or injury unable to maintain itself, or

(d) his father or mother, unable to maintain himself or herself, a Magistrate of the first class may, upon proof of such neglect or refusal, order such person to make a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or such child, father or mother, at such monthly rate not exceeding five hundred rupees in the whole, as such Magistrate thinks fit, and to pay the same to such person as the Magistrate may from time to time direct: Provided that the Magistrate may order the father of a minor female child referred to in clause (b) to make such allowance, until she attains her majority, if the Magistrate is satisfied that the husband of such minor female child, if married, is not possessed of sufficient means."

10. It may be noted that the solemn aim of the proceedings under Section 125 Cr.P.C. is to prevent vagrancy and destitution. Section 125 Cr.P.C. is a piece of social legislation introduced in Cr.P.C. to grant a quick relief to the members of the society. At the same time, it may be noted that procedure which shall be adopted in such cases is a summary one. This is settled legal position that any matter which has been decided in a summary manner shall not have an effect of res-judicata, hence in my view this argument is misconceived. More so because this application has been moved on the ground that there has been change in circumstances i.e. remarriage by the husband. Though the petitioner has objected to the fact of remarriage, however, this court in exercise of writ jurisdiction is not permitted to go into the disputed questions of fact.

11. There may be instances where the person who falls within the purview of section 125 Cr.P.C. as being one who has been neglected or refused maintenance during certain period of time. There may be some instances where a person, is for the time being able to maintain himself or herself loses her/his resources because of changed circumstances. In such cases a fresh right to claim maintenance may accrue. Legally the liability to maintain under section 125 Cr.P.C. is continuing one. In my view, when there is a change in circumstances entitling a person to be a claimant as per provisions of section- 125 Cr.P.C., he or she can very well apply for maintenance. If such an option is foreclosed, it shall frustrate the very purpose of section- 125 Cr.P.C. I do not find any good ground to interfere in the order of the trial court or of the revisional court in exercise of writ jurisdiction of this court.

12. Hence, this writ petition is dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Kaushal
Jayendra Thaker, J.
&
Hon'ble Shiv Shanker Prasad, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ajay Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Vikas Goswami, learned A.G.A. for the state.

2. Both these appeals challenge the judgment and order dated 17.11.2016 passed by Additional Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court No.1, Meerut, in Sessions Trial No.836 of 2015 (State vs. Ankit and another) arising out of Case Crime No.145 of 2015, Police Station – Parikshitgarh, District – Meerut.

3. Both the accused, who are father and son, have been convicted under Section 302 read with 34 of I.P. Code pursuant to registration of Case Crime No.145 of 2015. The learned trial Judge committed the case to the court of Sessions, being numbered as 836 of 2015. Both the accused Ankit and Harnam Singh were held guilty of commission of offence under Section 302 IPC read with section 34 and have been sentenced to the life imprisonment and Rs. 15,000/- fine and in default 6 months of imprisonment.

4. The genesis of the case started with an incident which happened on 23.4.2015 wherein the sister of the first informant, who was married on 19.2.2012 to Ankit Kumar S/o Harnam Singh and as her husband and father-in-law were harassing causing mental torture to the deceased, she committed suicide at about 3:30 p.m. on 23.4.2015. This was the first information given to the police authority.

5. It is mentioned in the F.I.R. that one Dhanraj S/o Amichand, who also resides in the vicinity of the accused, had conveyed that on the date of incident, the deceased had quarrelled with the appellant herein. On this information, a case under Section 306 of I.P. Code was registered. The investigation was put into motion by one Chandvir, who was the police officer. The investigating authority went to the site, made the site plan and recorded the statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. but at the end of the investigation lodged an F.I.R. under Section 302 of I.P. Code.

6. The accused were summoned by the Magistrate and after completing the formality for committing the case to the court of Session, the matter was committed to the court of Session.

7. The accused Ankit was in custody on being summoned by the court of Session, were presented before learned Sessions Court. Both the accused pleaded not guilty and they wanted to be tried.

8. The police after recording the statements of several witnesses filed charge-sheet against both the accused persons. Being summoned the accused were committed to the court of Sessions as the offences for which the accused were charged were exclusively triable by the court of Sessions. It is not the case of prosecution that death is a murder.

9. The charges were framed for commission of the offence under Section 302 I.P.C. read with Section 34 against both the accused persons, which was denied by them. They pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

10. The trial started and the prosecution examined a total of 10 witnesses, who are as follows:

1	Pramod Kumar	PW1
2	Parvita	PW2
3	Om	PW3
4	Dhan Raj Singh	PW4
5	Shyam Veer Singh	PW5
6	Rakesh Kumar Tyagi	PW6
7	Naresh Kumar	PW7
8	Dr. Pankaj Sharma	PW8
9	Netra Pal Singh	PW9

10	Girish Verma	PW10

11. In support of the oral evidence following documents were filed:

1	Written Report and Recovery Memo of Dupatta.	Ex.Ka.1
2	Charge-sheet	Ex.Ka.2
3	Panchayatnama	Ex.Ka.3
4	P.M. Report	Ex.Ka.10
5	F.I.R.	Ex.Ka.13

12. The prosecution examined several witnesses in support of the prosecution case so as to bring home the charge with which both the accused were charged. The evidence of PW1-Pramod Kumar in his oral testimony accepted the fact that his sister – deceased was married on 19.2.2012 with the accused Ankit and his elder sister was married with Mohit (elder brother) and Harnam and Mohit is son of Harnam but as far as the question of quarrelling and causing torture to his sister are concerned, he did not support the prosecution. Thereafter, in his oral testimony, he has deposed that his elder sister Parmita has stated that Arvita had committed suicide by hanging herself. He feigned ignorance whether in-laws of the sister were harassing her and that was the cause of her committing suicide. He has accepted that the F.I.R. was lodged by him. However, even in the cross-examination, he has not deposed anything except that his sister committed suicide. Similar version is given by elder sister Parmita, who again opined that Harnam was her father-in-law and Ankit was her brother-in-law. Arvita – deceased, according to this witness, was school teacher. She thereafter has not supported the prosecution witness. She has denied the circumstances about quarrel and the factum that deceased was beaten by her father-in-law. Even in the cross-examination by the learned Counsel for State, she has denied the fact that Harnam and Ankit had done her to death. Onkar – PW3 has also deposed in similar line and was declared hostile. Dheeraj Singh – PW4 has not supported the prosecution case and has also been declared hostile. The Police Officer-PW5-Shyam Veer Singh has accepted that it was he who had filed the charge-sheet.

13. The conviction is solely based on the evidence of Dr. Pankaj Sharma – PW8, who had performed the post-mortem of the dead-body has opined:-

“इस साक्षी ने अपनी जिरह में यह भी कथन किया है कि जब कोई व्यक्ति गले में कपड़ा डालकर आत्म हत्या करता है तो उस दशा में भी उस व्यक्ति का साँस घुटता है मृतिका के कपड़े सही सलामत थे फटे नहीं थे। इस बारे में चोट अपने आप आयी है या किसी के द्वारा चोट कारित की गयी है कोई राय नहीं दी जा सकती है।”

14. The moot question now arises can the Court rely on the statement made under Section 161 Cr.P.C. of witnesses even if that is done, the F.I.R. nor any statement under Section 161 CPC state that the death was caused by the accused by strangulation:

" चिकित्सीय साक्ष्य शव विच्छेदन रिपोर्ट प्रदर्श क-१० में चिकित्सक द्वारा मृतिका अरविता के शरीर में आयी एंटी मॉर्टेम इंजरी में, "Ligature mark 40 c.m. long & 2 c.m. चौड़ाई all round neck 3 c.m. below Rt. ear, 6 c.m. below Lt. ear 1 c.m. below hair line back, 6 c.m. below chin & 7 c.m. above sternal notch mark situated above the thyroid cartilage between Larynx & chin & directed obliquely upwards base of the mark is groove, raddish margin becomes dry, hard & parchment live skin.”

शव विच्छेदन आख्या में मृत्यु का कारण death due to asphyxia as a result of strangulation (anti mortem) दर्शाया गया है। ”

15. It is submitted by the Counsel for the appellant that the learned Judge has come to a wrong conclusion that death was by strangulation even if that was so there are several missing links in the chain leading to the said conclusion. The medical evidence also does not state about the same rather the learned Judge has based his finding on surmises that it was strangulation by causing death and not suicide. Learned Judge has relied on Subrahmanyam Vs. State of Tamilnadu and others, 2010 (1) UPCCR page 21, to come to this conclusion but the said conclusion is bad on facts.

16. It is further submitted by learned Counsel for appellant that the judgment relied by the learned Judge could not have been applied to the facts of this case where the medical evidence shows that the doctor performing postmortem did not opine that it was not suicide but murder. The finding that it was not a case of suicide or murder, the learned Judge opined as follows:-

“It is true that in a case of circumstantial evidence motive does have extreme significance but to say that in the absence of motive, the conviction based on circumstantial evidence cannot, in principle, be made is not correct. Motive provides foundational material – Absence of motive – Not of much consequence when chain of proved circumstances is complete. [G. Parshwanath v. State of Karnataka; AIR 2010 SC 2914, Jagdish vs. State of M.P., 2009 (67) ACC 295 (SC), Ujjagar Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 2008 SC (SUPP) 190] ”

This finding according to learned Counsel for appellants is perverse finding and the circumstances narrated to hold chain is complete are not proved.

17. The learned Counsel for the appellant has relied on the following decisions:-

(i) Tomaso Bruno and another Vs. State of U.P., 2015 (1) JT 389;

(ii) Riyazuddin @ Raju and another Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Appeal No.911 of 2012, decided on 2.8.2022;

(iii) Anil Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Appeal No.703 of 2017, decided on 8.12.2022;

(iv) Santosh Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Appeal No.5657 of 2011, decided on 22.2.2021;

18. It is submitted that the chain of circumstantial evidence as held to be completed by the learned Judge is not complete. The judgment cannot stand the scrutiny of this Court in view of the judgment in Riyazuddin @ Raju and another Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Appeal No.911 of 2012, decided on 2.8.2022 and Anil Vs. State of U.P., Criminal Appeal No.703 of 2017, decided on 8.12.2022, can be made applicable and the onus to prove that the accused were guilty has to be proved by prosecution which has not been discharged by prosecution.

19. Learned A.G.A. for the state has vehemently submitted that facts of this case will not permit the Court to take a different view in this matter and has submitted that none of the judgments relied by the accused-appellant will apply to the facts of this case.

20. Considering the evidence of the witnesses and also considering the medical evidence including post mortem report, there is no doubt left in our mind that it was homicidal death.

21. However, the question which falls for our consideration is whether, on reappraisal of the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case, the conviction of the appellant under Section 302 of I.P.C. of the Indian Penal Code should be upheld or the conviction deserves to be converted under Section 304 Part-I or Part-II of the Indian Penal Code or any other view is possible. The reason for considering the case from this angle is as in F.I.R. it is stated that the deceased had a quarrel with the accused and then news of her death came. Though F.I.R. under Section 154 Cr.P. Code is not proved, we consider the matter from that angle from the lens of the learned trial Judge, who has held the chain to be complete. It would be relevant to refer Section 299 of the Indian Penal Code, which read as under:

“299. Culpable homicide:
Whoever causes death by doing an act with the intention of causing death, or with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death, commits the offence of culpable homicide.”

22. The academic distinction between ‘murder’ and ‘culpable homicide not amounting to murder’ has always vexed the Courts. The confusion is caused, if Courts losing sight of the true scope and meaning of the terms used by the legislature in these sections, allow themselves to be drawn into minute abstractions. The safest way of approach to the interpretation and application of these provisions seems to be to keep in focus the keywords used in the various clauses of Section 299 and 300 of I.P.Code. The following comparative table will be helpful in appreciating the points of distinction between the two offences.

Section 299	Section 300
A person commits culpable homicide if the act by which the death is caused is done-	Subject to certain exceptions culpable homicide is murder if the act by which the death is caused is done.

INTENTION

(a) with the intention of causing death; or	(1) with the intention of causing death; or
(b) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as is likely to cause death; or	(2) with the intention of causing such bodily injury as the offender knows to be likely to cause the death of the person to whom the harm is caused;
KNOWLEDGE	KNOWLEDGE
(c) with the knowledge that the act is likely to cause death.	(4) with the knowledge that the act is so immediately dangerous that it must in all probability cause death or such bodily injury as is likely to cause death, and without any excuse for incurring the risk of causing death or such injury as is mentioned above.

23. On overall scrutiny of the facts and circumstances of the present case coupled with the opinion of the Medical Officer and considering the principle laid down by the Apex Court in the Case of Tukaram and Ors Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in (2011) 4 SCC 250 and in the case of B.N. Kavatakar and Another Vs. State of Karnataka, reported in 1994 SUPP (1) SCC 304, we are of the considered opinion that the offence would not be one punishable under Section 304 part-I of the IPC.

24. If the case does not fall under Section 304 (I) IPC whether conviction of both accused with aid of section 302 IPC is made out or not requires to be sifted from judgment of trial court and evidence before both the courts. The accused cannot be held guilty for offence under Section 302 IPC, the reasons that father-in-law Harnam Singh was not at the place of offence. The accused appellant – Ankit does a private job and had gone for job which is a factor mentioned in the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., disbelieved by trial Judge. Only on the basis of ligature mark can it be said that the accused, who have caused her death? The learned Judge has come to the conclusion that death was by strangulation. All the witnesses have turned hostile. Just because the incident occurred in the house, can it be said that circumstantial chain is complete. It is nobody’s case that the appellant – accused were in the house. Just because no witness has been examined, cant it be held that Ankit was not at Meerut rather no witness has opined that Ankit was at home. This is a missing link in the chain. The circumstantial chain is not complete and it cannot be said that both the accused were having a common intention to do away with the deceased. Just because the incident occurred in the home but presence of accused has not been proved and, therefore, invoking section 106 of Evidence Act, 1872 and applying the judgment of the Apex Court in Subrahmanyam Vs. State of Tamilnadu and others, 2010 (1) UPCR page 21, it cannot be held to be proved that the accused were authors of death of deceased.

25. From the upshot of the aforesaid discussions, it appears that the death was not caused by the accused. The death was not premeditated, accused had no intention to cause death of deceased, the injuries were though sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to have caused death but it was suicidal death, accused is not proved to have committed the murder of deceased.

26. The Apex Court in Sabitri Samantaray vs. State of Odisha, AIR 2022 SC 2591 has also observed as under:

“18. Section 106 of the Evidence Act postulates that the burden of proving things which are within the special knowledge of an individual is on that individual. Although the Section in no way exonerates the prosecution from discharging its burden of proof beyond reasonable doubt, it merely prescribes that when an individual has done an act, with an intention other than that which the circumstances indicate, the onus of proving that specific intention falls onto the individual and not on the prosecution. If the accused had a different intention than the facts are specially within his knowledge which he must prove.

19. Thus, although Section 106 is in no way aimed at relieving the prosecution from its burden to establish the guilt of an accused, it applies to cases where chain of events has been successfully established by the prosecution, from which a reasonable inference is made out against the accused. Moreover, in a case based on circumstantial evidence, whenever an incriminating question is posed to the accused and he or she either evades response, or offers a response which is not true, then such a response in itself becomes an additional link in the chain of events. [See Trimukh Maroti Kirkan Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2006) 10 SCC 681]”

27. It is more than settled principle of law that if two views are possible, the benefit shall always go to the accused. It will be apposite to refer to the following observations of Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra, (1984) 4 SCC 116:-

“163. We then pass on to another important point which seems to have been completely missed by the High Court. It is well settled that where on the evidence two possibilities are available or open, one which goes in favour of the prosecution and the other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to the benefit of doubt. In Kali Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh (1973) 2 SCC 808, this Court made the following observations : [SCC para 25, p. 820 : SCC (Cri) p. 1060]

Another golden thread which runs through the web of the administration of justice in criminal cases, is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. This principle has a special relevance in cases wherein the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence."

The accused Ankit is in jail. Since more than 9 years, the case under Section 306 IPC is also not proved.

28. In Mohd. Giasuddin Vs. State of AP, [AIR 1977 SC 1926], explaining rehabilitary & reformatory aspects in sentencing it has been observed by the Supreme Court:

"Crime is a pathological aberration. The criminal can ordinarily be redeemed and the state has to rehabilitate rather than avenge. The sub-culture that leads to ante-social behaviour has to be countered not by undue cruelty but by reculturation. Therefore, the focus of interest in penology in the individual and the goal is salvaging him for the society. The infliction of harsh and savage punishment is thus a relic of past and regressive times. The human today vies sentencing as a process of reshaping a person who has deteriorated into criminality and the modern community has a primary stake in the rehabilitation of the offender as a means of a social defence. Hence a therapeutic, rather than an 'in terrorem' outlook should prevail in our criminal courts, since brutal incarceration of the person merely produces laceration of his mind. If you are to punish a man retributively, you must injure him. If you are to reform him, you must improve him and, men are not improved by injuries."

29. Keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in view criminal jurisprudence in our country which is reformatory and corrective and not retributive, this Court considers that no accused person is incapable of being reformed and therefore, all measures should be applied to give them an opportunity of reformation in order to bring them in the social stream.

30. Having considered the submission of medical evidence orally as well as the post-mortem report has been wrongly interpreted by the court below in coming to the conclusion that it was the accused Ankit and his father, who had done the deceased to death.

31. Accordingly, both the appeals are allowed. Both the accused are acquitted of all the charges. The accused Ankit be set free forthwith by giving benefit of doubt if not wanted in any other case. Harnam Singh being enlarged on bail, need not to surrender. Fine if paid, be refunded to appellants. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Court below forthwith.

32. The Court had requested the High Court Legal Service Committee/had requested Shri Ajay kumar Mishra to act as Amicus Curiae in the matter of Harnam Singh which he had accepted. This Court is thankful for that.

33. A copy of this order be sent to the jail authorities for following this order and doing the needful.

34 . We are thankful to Sri Ajay Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellants in both the appeals and learned A.G.A., for ably assisting the Court.

Complainant/first informant filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. - rejected - allegation - minor daughters intercepted by 3 persons with mala fide intention and were molested - applicant tried to lodge an FIR - police did not take any action - sent an application to S.S.P. - no action taken till now - Special Judge arbitrarily passed order without considering facts - particularly in para no. 2 - which appears incomplete. (Para - 3)

HELD:- Court applied judicial discretion correctly. Incomplete sentence in para no. 2 of order appears a typing mistake, which does not impact the matter's merits. No sufficient ground for intervention in order. (Para -9,10)

The complainant/the first informant Rameshwari filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. naming 5 persons therein with the allegation that her minor daughters were intercepted by 3 persons with malafide intention and were molested; when they protested, all the 3 persons namely, Rabul, Dinesh and Kuldeep ran away; the same evening the applicant i.e. the mother of the victims complained to mother of Dinesh but they began abusing them; Kalicharan exhorted his sons to teach them a lesson and they assaulted the applicant and her daughters and also tore away the clothes of one of them; it is further alleged in the application that the applicant tried to lodge an FIR but the police did not take any action, therefore she sent an application to the S.S.P. but no action has been taken till now.

4. It is contended on behalf of the revisionist that from the allegations in the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C., a cognizable case is disclosed; the learned Special Judge, (POCSO Act) has passed the order in arbitrary manner without considering the facts as alleged; my attention has been drawn to para no. 2 of the order where a line written appears to be rather incomplete; on the basis of this fact the order is being assailed as having passed in a casual and cavalier manner.

5. The revision is opposed by the other side submitting that incomplete sentence occurring in a portion of the impugned order on which the attention of the court has been attracted, prima facie appears to be a typing mistake; it is further submitted on behalf of the respondents that the order is speaking; the material facts have been discussed in last para of the 2nd page of the order; the real facts are that this application has been filed just to create a defence; actually a day after the alleged incident the respondents were challaned under Sections 151, 107 and 116 Cr.P.C. on the application of the present revisionist and proceeding under Section 107/116 Cr.P.C. was drawn against the rest of the two respondents; nothing happened beyond the facts calling for an action by the police under Sections 151, 107 and 116 Cr.P.C.; this application has been given with false and distorted facts to wreck vengeance by making false assertions. This application is nothing but a clear attempt to misuse the law.

6. Learned AGA has contended that the correct position of law is that police officials ought to register the F.I.R. whenever facts brought to its notice show that cognizable offence has been made out. In case the police fails to do so, the modalities to be adopted, are as set out in Section- 190 read with Section-200 of the Code of Criminal Procedure as held in Aleque Padamsee vs. Union of India, 2007 (3) ILR 469.

7. I went through all the material on record. The Magistrate/court concerned cannot be expected to act upon an application in a mechanical manner. He shall be failing in his duty in case he fails to apply his mind. Settled position of law is that the Magistrate shall order for registration of a case if application 'discloses' commission of cognizable offence. In my view, the disclosure of cognizable offence cannot be construed to mean replication of words or the facts in such a manner as may fit within four corners of an offence defined in statutes. This is a common knowledge that applications under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. may be drafted cleverly and may be dotted with sham assertions or half truths with legal advice, so as to persuade the courts to spring into action. If such a narrow and short sighted interpretation is done, it will be like playing in the hands of unscrupulous litigant. While passing an order on application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. the court is expected to apply its judicial mind. He is expected to be judicious, discreet and cautious and not to be swayed by mere use of certain words and legal terminology. He can certainly look for substance in the allegations and existence of life in the assertions.

8. It may usefully be noted that that despite dismissal of the application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. the revisionist/complainant still has certain remedies open in law.

9. It is not so that once application under section- 156(3) Cr.P.C. has been filed, the Magistrate has no option but to order for registration of F.I.R. just because it discloses a cognizable offence on paper irrespective of the broad probabilities of the case. In my view the concerned court has applied judicial discretion correctly; As far as incomplete sentence in para no. 2 of the order is concerned, prima facie it appears that it is just a typing mistake which does not effect the merits of the matter.

10. There does not appear sufficient ground calling for intervention in the order by this court in exercise of revisional powers, therefore this criminal revision is dismissed.

SCC OnLine SC 929

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. The petitioners in the abovementioned 6 revisions are co-accused in a single case, bearing Case No. 357 of 2022 in the Court of Special Judge (Prevention of Corruption Act) / C.B.I. Court No. 3, Lucknow, arising out of ECIR/05/LKZO/2017 (New Case No.) and ECIR/PMLA/VSZO/2011 (Old case No.) under Section 3/4 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as 'PMLA') and all the revisions have been filed against separate similar orders dated 25.04.2023 passed by the trial Court rejecting separate applications for discharge under Section 227 of the Criminal Procedure Code (Cr.P.C.) filed by the petitioners. All the revisions involve common questions and, therefore, the same are being decided by a common judgment.

2. Heard Sri Santosh Kumar Bhatt, the learned for the revisionist and Sri Kuldeep Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondent - Directorate of Enforcement.

3. It has been stated in the revisions that the same arise out of a case registered under an order passed by this Court in Writ Petition Number 10503 (M/B) of 2009. Initially the case was investigated by S.I.T. of U. P. Police, but later it was transferred to C.B.I. under directions of this Court. The F.I.R. number RC0062010A0026/2010 lodged in Police Station CBI, ACB, Lucknow under Sections 120 B/420/467/468/471 I.P.C. and Section 13 (2) read with 13 (1) (c) and (d) of the Prevention of Corruption Act states that during the period 2004 to 2006, several persons, in conspiracy with each other, misappropriated and diverted the food grains meant for persons below poverty line, mid-day meal and Antyodaya scheme in Varanasi district. After investigation, the C.B.I. submitted a charge-sheet.

4. The charge-sheet states that Satendra Kumar Rai - the revisionist in Revision No. 543 of 2023, was the then Supply Inspector and he was the godown-in-charge of Harahua block during the period 01.04.2005 to 31.03.2006. He misappropriated food-grains entrusted to him and thereby caused loss of subsidy to the government Exchequer to the tune of ₹ 8,27,711/-.

5. On the basis of the aforesaid F.I.R. and the charge-sheet, the Directorate of Enforcement (hereinafter referred to as 'E.D.') registered ECIR/06/PMLA/VSZO/2011, which was later renumbered as ECIR/05/LKZO/2017 and after carrying out investigation, it filed a complaint under Sections 44 and 45 of the Prevention of Money-Laundering Act (PMLA) against six persons, who are the petitioners in the six revisions.

6. The complaint states that Sri. Prakash Mishra, the petitioner in Revision No. 546 of 2023 was the godown in-charge of Harahua Block for the period 01.04.2004 to 16.07.2004. Jai Hind Maurya, the petitioner in Revision No. 536 of 2023 was the godown in-charge of Harahua Block for the period 17.07.2004 to 31.03.2005. Satendra Kumar Rai - the petitioner in Revision No. 543 of 2023, was working as Supply Inspector and he was the godown in-charge of Harahua block for the period 01.04.2005 to 31.03.2006.

7. The aforesaid Sri. Prakash Mishra, Jai Hind Maurya and Satendra Kumar Rai had made certain entries in the issue register, which were denied by the Kotedars (fair-price shop license holders).

8. The complaint states that subsidy loss caused by the accused persons by misappropriating huge quantities of food-grains by forging the signatures of Kotedars in the issue register during the tenure of Sri Prakash Mishra is ₹19,10,448/-, the subsidy loss caused by the accused persons during the tenure of Jai Hind Maurya is ₹3,33,464/- and the subsidy loss caused by the accused persons during the tenure of Satendra Kumar Rai is ₹ 9,71,108/- and the aforesaid accused persons made corresponding financial gains.

9. The other co-accused persons, namely Rajeev Ranjan Srivastava - the petitioner in Revision No. 534 of 2023, Prem Shankar Singh - the petitioner in revision No. 538 of 2023 and Santosh Kumar Rastogi - the petitioner in Revision No. 545 of 2023 were the financiers, who had conspired with the aforesaid accused persons, who were in-charge of the godown and they had financed the pay orders for lifting the food-grains which were illegally diverted.

10. During investigation, three fixed deposit accounts of the accused Satendra Kumar Rai came to light and the cumulative amount of ₹ 8,27,711/- deposited in those three accounts was attached by the E.D.

11. All the petitioners had filed separate applications for discharge before the trial court, which have been rejected by means of similarly worded separate orders dated 25.04.2023.

12. The orders rejecting the discharge applications have been assailed by filing separate revisions inter alia on the grounds that the petitioners are innocent; that the complaint has been filed belatedly, the predicate offence alleged against the petitioners was not a scheduled offence at the time of its alleged commission and that the E.D. could not find any money trail or any suspicious transactions. Ground XII taken in the memo of Revisions claims that as per Rule 3, the minimum threshold for all cash transactions is ₹ 10 lakhs whereas the subsidy loss allegedly caused by the petitioners is less than the aforesaid threshold amount, but the Ground does not disclose as to Rule 3 of which set of Rules has been referred to by the petitioners.

13. The learned Counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the loss allegedly caused by the individual petitioners is less than ₹30,00,000/- and, therefore, it would not fall within the purview of the term 'Scheduled Offence'.

14. The term Scheduled Offence is defined in Section 2 (y) of the PMLA. Section 2 (y), as it was enacted originally, read as follows: -

“(y) “scheduled offence” means—

(i) the offences specified under Part A of the Schedule; or

(ii) the offences specified under Part B of the Schedule if the total value involved in such offences is thirty lakh rupees or more;”

15. Initially the offence under Section 467 I.P.C. found place in Part B of the Schedule. Section 2 of PMLA was amended by Act 21 of 2009, so as to make it read as follows: -

“(y) “scheduled offence” means—

(i) the offences specified under
Part A of the Schedule; or

(ii) the offences specified under Part B of the Schedule if the total value involved in such offences is thirty lakh rupees or more; or

(iii) the offences specified under
Part C of the Schedule.”

16. The Schedule was also amended by Act 21 of 2009, whereby offences under Sections 120 B, 467 and 471 I.P.C. and the offence under Section 13 of the Prevention of Corruption Act were placed in Part B of the Schedule.

17. Part B of the Schedule was omitted by Act 2 of 2013 and offences under Sections 120 B, 420, 467, 471 I.P.C. and Section 13 of the Prevention of Corruption Act were mentioned in Part A of the Schedule.

18. Section 2 (y) was again amended by Section 145 (ii) of Act No. 20 of 2015 with effect from 14.05.2015 by replacing the words “thirty lakh rupees” occurring in sub-section (ii) with the words “one crore rupees” and presently Section 2 (y) of PMLA reads as follows: -

“Section 2. Definitions

“(y) “scheduled offence” means—

(i) the offences specified under
Part A of the Schedule; or

(ii) the offences specified under Part B of the Schedule if the total value involved in such offences is one crore
rupees or more; or

(iii) the offences specified under
Part C of the Schedule.”

19. The Schedule was also amended by Section 145 (ii) of Act No. 20 of 2015 with effect from 14.05.2015 whereby all the aforesaid offences remained in Part A. Part B was inserted in the Schedule and it mentions the offence under Section 132 of the Customs Act, 1962. It is clarified that Part A of the Schedule mentions several other offences also but only those offences have been mentioned in this judgment, which have been allegedly committed by the petitioner and which are relevant for the present case.

20. From a bare reading of Section 2 (y) of PMLA as it exists today, it is clear that the condition of the total value involved in the offence applied to the offences specified under Part B of the Schedule alone, and not to any other Scheduled offence. Part B of the Schedule mentions offence under Section 132 of the Customs Act only and the petitioner has not been charged with commission of the aforesaid offence.

21. The learned Counsel for the petitioner placed reliance on a judgment rendered by a co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Mohammad Iqbal Vs. Respondent: State of U.P. and Ors., Criminal Revision No. 1004 of 2019 decided On: 28.02.2020. In that case, a complaint case under Section 37 of the Air (Prevention and Control of Pollution) Act, 1981 was filed by U.P. Pollution Control Board, Lucknow with the allegation that there was no proper arrangement for controlling air pollution and the factory was operational from 12.09.1984 to 17.07.2007 without obtaining consent of the Board, in contravention of Section 21 of the Act. The Board had made a complaint to the E.D. upon which E.D. registered an ECIR for investigation of offence of money laundering to make inquiries regarding suspected 'Proceed of Crime' amounting to ₹52,42,525/- generated by the revisionist and his firm out of the commission of Scheduled Offence. After investigation, E.D. filed a Complaint under Section 45 of the Act with the allegation that the pollution control equipment worth ₹2,00,000/- was not installed, thus, the revisionist had generated 'Proceed of Crime' to the tune of ₹2,00,000/- and had retained the same. An application for discharge was rejected by the trial court. In Revision filed against the aforesaid order, it was submitted that the application for discharge moved before the court below was wrongly rejected without considering the provisions of Section 2 (y) (ii) of the PMLA. Allowing the revision, the Co-ordinate Bench held that: - “15. As by way of Act No. 23 of 2019, Explanation clause has been added in Section 2(u) of the PML Act, which clearly provides that the 'Proceed of Crime' include property not only derived or obtained from the scheduled offence but also any property which may directly or indirectly be derived or obtained as a result of any criminal activity relatable to the scheduled offence. Indisputably, in the present case, the cost of the unit, viz. ₹2 lac, which was not installed at the factory, is treated as 'Proceed of Crime'. Learned counsel for the respondent failed to dispute the fact that initially the allegation levelled was that total value involved in the offence was more than ₹30 lac, which is categorically mentioned in the ECIR, but later on, in the complaint case, only the cost of equipment which was not installed, is treated as a 'Proceed of Crime'.

Admittedly, the court below failed to consider this aspect of the matter.”

22. It is significant to note that the offence under Section 37 of the Air (Prevention and Control of Pollution) Act, 1981 was not mentioned in the Schedule of Offences appended to PMLA originally. It was inserted in paragraph 24 of Part B of the schedule by Act 21 of 2009. Thus the offence under Section 37 of the Air (Prevention and Control of Pollution) Act, 1981 was not a Scheduled Offence under PMLA during the period 12.09.1984 to 17.07.2007, which it was committed, yet the accused was charged with commission of offence under Section 3 of the PMLA. The co-ordinate Bench rightly did not interfere with the proceedings on the Ground that on the date of commission of the predicate offence, it was not a Scheduled Offence.

23. Before proceeding any further, it would be appropriate to have a look at Section 3 of PMLA, which reads as follows: -

“3. Offence of money-laundering.—Whosoever directly or indirectly attempts to indulge or knowingly assists or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in any process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime including its concealment, possession, acquisition or use and projecting or claiming] it as untainted property shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering.

Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that,—

(i) a person shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering if such person is found to have directly or indirectly attempted to indulge or knowingly assisted or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in one or more of the following processes or activities connected with proceeds of crime, namely—

- (a) concealment; or*
 - (b) possession; or*
 - (c) acquisition; or*
 - (d) use; or*
 - (e) projecting as untainted property; or*
 - (f) claiming as untainted property,*
- in any manner whatsoever;*

(ii) the process or activity connected with proceeds of crime is a continuing activity and continues till such time a person is directly or indirectly enjoying the proceeds of crime by its concealment or possession or acquisition or use or projecting it as untainted property or claiming it as untainted property in any manner whatsoever.”

24. Sri. Kuldeep Srivastava, the learned Counsel for the E.D. has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme court in the case of Vijay Madanlal Choudhary versus Union of India, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 929, wherein the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that: -

“269. From the bare language of Section 3 of the 2002 Act, it is amply clear that the offence of money-laundering is an independent offence regarding the process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime which had been derived or obtained as a result of criminal activity relating to or in relation to a scheduled offence. The process or activity can be in any form — be it one of concealment, possession, acquisition, use of proceeds of crime as much as projecting it as untainted property or claiming it to be so. Thus, involvement in any one of such process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime would constitute offence of money-laundering. This offence otherwise has nothing to do with the criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence — except the proceeds of crime derived or obtained as a result of that crime.

270. Needless to mention that such process or activity can be indulged in only after the property is derived or obtained as a result of criminal activity (a scheduled offence). It would be an offence of money-laundering to indulge in or to assist or being party to the process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime; and such process or activity in a given fact situation may be a continuing offence, irrespective of the date and time of commission of the scheduled offence. In other words, the criminal activity may have been committed before the same had been notified as scheduled offence for the purpose of the 2002 Act, but if a person has indulged in or continues to indulge directly or indirectly in dealing with proceeds of crime, derived or obtained from such criminal activity even after it has been notified as scheduled offence, may be liable to be prosecuted for offence of money-laundering under the 2002 Act — for continuing to possess or conceal the proceeds of crime (fully or in part) or retaining possession thereof or uses it in trenches until fully exhausted. The offence of money-laundering is not dependent on or linked to the date on which the scheduled offence or if we may say so the predicate offence has been committed. The relevant date is the date on which the person indulges in the process or activity connected with such proceeds of crime. These ingredients are intrinsic in the original provision (Section 3, as amended until 2013 and were in force till 31.7.2019); and the same has been merely explained and clarified by way of Explanation vide Finance (No. 2) Act, 2019. Thus understood, inclusion of Clause (ii) in Explanation inserted in 2019 is of no consequence as it does not alter or enlarge the scope of Section 3 at all."

25. In view of the aforesaid discussion, it is clear that the offence of money laundering is an offence separate and distinct from the Scheduled offence. The complaint alleges that the petitioners have derived proceeds of crime and they have siphoned off the same. The petitioners have been involved in possession, acquisition and use of the proceeds of crime and they have enjoyed the proceeds of crime by its possession, acquisition and use.

26. So far as the ground XII in the Memo of revision, that the trial Court has ignored that the minimum threshold for all cash transaction or any transaction is given as per Rule 3 is ₹10 Lakh is concerned, although the ground does not specify as to which set of Rules is being referred by the petitioners, it appears that the petitioner is referring to Rule 3 of Prevention of Money-laundering (Maintenance of Records) Rules, 2005, which have been framed for regulating "maintenance of records of the nature and value of transactions, the procedure and manner of maintaining and time for furnishing of information and verification of records of the identity of the clients of the banking companies, financial institutions and intermediaries". The relevant part of Rule 3 of the aforesaid Rules is being reproduced follows: -

3. Maintenance of records of transactions (nature and value). - Every reporting entity shall maintain the record of all transactions including, the record of—

(A) all cash transactions of the value of more than ten lakh rupees or its equivalent in foreign currency;

* * *

27. The aforesaid Rule 3 has no relevance for deciding as to whether a person needs to be tried for commission of an offence under section 3 of PMLA.

28. In view of the aforesaid discussion, I am of the considered view that the trial Court has rightly rejected the application for discharges of the petitioners and there appears to be no illegality in the orders. In any case, the orders do not suffer from any such illegality as calls for interference of this Court in exercise of its revisional jurisdiction.

29. The revisions lack merit and the same are dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Abhitab Kumar Tiwari, learned counsel for the revisionist, Sri O.P. Mishra, learned AGA for the State and Smt. Archana Tyagi, learned counsel for respondents.

2. By means of this criminal revision, the revisionist has challenged an order dated 23.03.2023 passed by Session Judge, Meerut in criminal revision no. 206 of 2023 (Vishwakarma Builders and Others vs. State of U.P. and Another) whereby the learned revisional court set aside the order dated 24.02.2023 passed by Additional Special Court no. 2, Meerut in criminal complaint case no. 1575 of 2009 (Rani Gaur vs. Vishwakarma Builders and Others) under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instrument Act, Police Station Partapur, District Meerut.

3. Relevant facts are as below:-

The instant revisionist filed a complaint on 11.08.2009 under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instrument Act, which is pending before the trial court; during the course of proceedings the accused filed a demand draft of Rs. 11 lakhs and made a prayer before the trial court to direct the revisionist/complainant to compound the case; the revisionist objected to compounding saying that she is not ready to settle the matter for Rs. 11 lakhs after lapse of 13 years; the learned Magistrate rejected the application of the accused on the ground that the complainant cannot be compelled to compound the matter; the accused challenged the aforesaid order by filing a revision; the revision came to be decided by the learned revisional court whereby the impugned order was set aside and the trial court was directed to pass an appropriate order as per the law laid down by the Apex Court in M/s Meters and Instruments Private Limited and Another vs. Kanchan Mehta: AIR 2017 Supreme Court 4594.

4. It is contended on behalf of the revisionist that the finding recorded by the revisional court is illegal and arbitrary and against the provisions of law; the accused, after lapse of about 14 years wants to get the matter compounded by giving the amount of the cheque with additional about 10% only; she has been suffering since 2019 and has been in dire need of money for domestic purposes; the accused is not entitled to any benefit in the light of the judgment of the Apex Court in Damodar S Prabhu vs. Sayed Babalal: (2010) 5 SCC 663 and in the light of the judgment of M/s

Meters and Instruments Private Limited and Another vs. Kanchan Mehta (supra). Citing certain circumstances relating to the present controversy, story, the background facts and civil suit between the two, it is argued on behalf of the revisionist that apprehending his imminent failure in both the cases, he sought to save himself by giving Rs. 11 lakhs for the cheque amount of Rs. 10 lakhs, after 13 years of suffering.

5. I went through the judgment of the Supreme Court in M/s Meters and Instruments Private Limited and Another vs. Kanchan Mehta (supra). The Supreme Court highlighted the fact that the matters under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act are essentially civil wrongs and the case has to be normally tried in a summary manner as prescribed in Cr.P.C. The Apex Court observed in Para-18 of the judgment as below:-

“i) Offence under Section 138 of the Act is primarily a civil wrong. Burden of proof is on accused in view presumption under Section 139 but the standard of such proof is “preponderance of probabilities”. The same has to be normally tried summarily as per provisions of summary trial under the Cr.P.C. but with such variation as may be appropriate to proceedings under Chapter XVII of the Act. Thus read, principle of Section 258 Cr.P.C. will apply and the Court can close the proceedings and discharge the accused on satisfaction that the cheque amount with assessed costs and interest is paid and if there is no reason to proceed with the punitive aspect.

ii) The object of the provision being primarily compensatory, punitive element being mainly with the object of enforcing the compensatory element, compounding at the initial stage has to be encouraged but is not debarred at later stage subject to appropriate compensation as may be found acceptable to the parties or the Court.

iii) Though compounding requires consent of both parties, even in absence of such consent, the Court, in the interests of justice, on being satisfied that the complainant has been duly compensated, can in its discretion close the proceedings and discharge the accused."

6. On the other hand, the respondent has drawn my attention to a judgment of Punjab and Haryana High Court in Nidhi Knitwears Pvt. Ltd. And Another vs. Honey Hosiery Mills: 2022 0 Supreme (P & H) 549. The Punjab and Haryana High Court has referred to the judgment of Supreme Court in M/s Meters and Instruments Private Limited and Another vs. Kanchan Mehta (supra), wherein it is observed as below:-

"12. This Court in M/s Anant Tools's case (supra), has comprehensively dealt with the judgments in JIK Industries' case (supra) and M/s Meters and Instruments' case (supra). In Para 12 of the judgment (reproduced hereinabove), a co-ordinate Bench of this Court came to the conclusion that if a subsequent Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court differs with the view taken by an earlier Bench of equal strength, then the only course open for the subsequent Bench is to refer the matter to a larger Bench. In case, the above option has not been exercised by the subsequent Bench, then it is the view taken by an earlier Bench of the equal strength, which is to prevail. In Hem Lata's case (supra), the decision in JIK Industries Limited and others (supra) is referred but there is no discussion as to why the Court has chosen to follow the law laid down in M/s Meters and Instruments (supra) and not JIK Industries Limited and others (supra). In the cases of Suba Singh (supra) and Vikas Jishtu (supra), the reliance has been placed on M/s Meters and Instruments (supra) alone and JIK Industries Limited and others (supra) has not been referred to at all.
