25. Merely recording "having perused the record" and "on the facts and circumstances of the case" does not sub-serve the purpose of a reasoned judicial order. It is a fundamental premise of open justice, to which our judicial system is committed, that factors which have weighed in the mind of the judge in the rejection or the grant of bail are recorded in the order passed. Open justice is premised on the notion that justice should not only be done, but should manifestly and undoubtedly be seen to be done. The duty of judges to give reasoned decisions lies at the heart of this commitment. Questions of the grant of bail concern both liberty of individuals undergoing criminal prosecution as well as the interests of the criminal justice system in ensuring that those who commit crimes are not afforded the opportunity to obstruct justice. Judges are duty bound to explain the basis on which they have arrived at a conclusion.

27. Where an order refusing or granting bail does not furnish the reasons that inform the decision, there is a presumption of the non-application of mind which may require the intervention of this Court. Where an earlier application for bail has been rejected, there is a higher burden on the appellate court to furnish specific reasons as to why bail should be granted."

7. परिवादी के विद्वान अधिवक्ता एवं विद्वान अपर शासकीय अधिवक्ता का कथन है कि यद्यपि प्रथम जमानत प्रार्थना पत्र के आदेश में भले ही आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता द्वारा प्रस्तुत किये गये तर्कों को उद्धृत न किया गया हो किन्तु यह माना जायेगा कि उन्होंने उन सभी तर्कों को सुनने के पश्चात ही जमानत आवेदन पत्र निरस्त किया है एवं द्वितीय जमानत आवेदन पत्र को नये तथ्यों के आधार पर ही प्रस्तुत किया जाना चाहिए जबकि आवेदक की ओर से ऐसा नहीं किया गया है एवं प्रथम जमानत आवेदन पत्र के तर्कों को ही पुनः प्रस्तुत किया जा रहा है इसका अर्थ यह लगाया जाये कि आवेदक को जमानत पर मुक्त किये जाने के कोई नये आधार ही नहीं है, इस संबंध में उन्होंने न्यायालय का ध्यान माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय एवं इस न्यायालय की कुछ नजीरों की ओर आकृष्ट करते हुए अनुरोध किया कि आवेदक के इस द्वितीय जमानत आवेदन पत्र को निरस्त कर दिया जाये।

8. उभयपक्षों के विद्वान अधिवक्तागण द्वारा दी गई दलीलों पर गहनतापूर्वक विचार किया एवं माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय एवं इस न्यायालय की नजीरों का विहंगम परिशीलन किया। उक्त नजीरे निम्नवत् हैंः-

"7. Liberty occupies a place of pride in our socio-political order. And who knew the value of liberty more than the founding fathers of our Constitution whose liberty was curtailed time and again under Draconian laws by the colonial rulers. That is why they provided in Article 21 of the Constitution that no person shall be deprived of his personal liberty except according to procedure established by law. It follows therefore that the personal liberty of an individual can be curbed by procedure established by law. The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, is one such procedural law. That law permits curtailment of liberty of anti-social and anti-national elements. Article 22 casts certain obligations on the authorities in the event of arrest of an individual accused of the commission of a crime against society or the Nation. In cases of undertrials charged with the commission of an offence or offences the court is generally called upon to decide whether to release him on bail or to commit him to jail. This decision has to be made, mainly in non-bailable cases, having regard to the nature of the crime, the circumstances in which it was committed, the background of the accused, the possibility of his jumping bail, the impact that his release may make on the prosecution witnesses, its impact on society and the possibility of retribution, etc. In the present case the successive bail applications preferred by the respondent were rejected on merits having regard to the gravity of the offence alleged to have been committed. One such Application No. 36 of 1989 was rejected by Suresh, J. himself. Undeterred the respondent went on preferring successive applications for bail. All such pending bail applications were rejected by Puranik, J. by a common order on 6-6-1989. Unfortunately, Puranik, J. was not aware of the pendency of yet another bail application No. 995 of 1989 otherwise he would have disposed it of by the very same common order. Before the ink was dry on Puranik, J.'s order, it was upturned by the impugned order. It is not as if the court passing the impugned order was not aware of the decision of Puranik, J.; in fact there is a reference to the same in the impugned order. Could this be done in the absence of new facts and changed circumstances? What is important to realise is that in Criminal Application No. 375 of 1989, the respondent had made an identical request as is obvious from one of the prayers (extracted earlier) made therein. Once that application was rejected there was no question of granting a similar prayer. That is virtually overruling the earlier decision without there being a change in the fact-situation. And, when we speak of change, we mean a substantial one which has a direct impact on the earlier decision and not merely cosmetic changes which are of little or no consequence. Between the two orders there was a gap of only two days and it is nobody's case that during these two days drastic changes had taken place necessitating the release of the respondent on bail. Judicial discipline, propriety and comity demanded that the impugned order should not have been passed reversing all earlier orders including the one rendered by Puranik, J., only a couple of days before, in the absence of any substantial change in the fact-situation. In such cases it is necessary to act with restraint and circumspection so that the process of the court is not abused by a litigant and an impression does not gain ground that the litigant has either successfully avoided one judge or selected another to secure an order which had hitherto eluded him. In such a situation the proper course, we think, is to direct that the matter be placed before the same learned Judge who disposed of the earlier applications. Such a practice or convention would prevent abuse of the process of court inasmuch as it will prevent an impression being created that a litigant is avoiding or selecting a court to secure an order to his liking. Such a practice would also discourage the filing of successive bail applications without change of circumstances. Such a practice if adopted would be conducive to judicial discipline and would also save the court's time as a judge familiar with the facts would be able to dispose of the subsequent application with despatch. It will also result in consistency. In their view that we take we are fortified by the observations of this Court in para 5 of the judgment in Shahzad Hasan Khan v. Ishtiaq Hasan Khan [(1987) 2 SCC 684]. For the above reasons we are of the view that there was no justification for passing the impugned order in the absence of a substantial change in the fact-situation. That is what prompted Shetty, J. to describe the impugned order as 'a bit out of the ordinary'. Judicial restraint demands that we say no more.

10. सत्यपाल बनाम यूपी राज्य : 1998 एससीसी ऑनलाइन ऑल 1224 : (1998) 37 एसीसी 287 के मामले में इस न्यायालय की एकल न्यायपीठ द्वारा एक प्रश्न का जवाब देते हुए निर्णय किया था कि क्या एक नया तर्क जो पहले उपलब्ध था उसे दूसरे जमानत आवेदन में आगे बढ़ाने की अनुमति दी जानी चाहिए या नहीं, खण्डपीठ के समक्ष प्रश्न इस प्रकार था:-

"1. The following question has been referred by learned single Judge to be decided by this Court:--

"Whether a fresh argument in a second bail application for an accused should be allowed to be advanced on those very facts that were available to the accused while the first bail application was moved and rejected"."

The Division Bench held that a fresh argument in a second bail application cannot be allowed to be advanced on those very facts which were available to the accused at the time of the moving and rejection of the first bail application. The answer as given to the referred question is as follows :-

xxx xxx xxx xxx xxx

"9. ..... Accordingly our answer to the question referred is that fresh arguments in a second bail application for an accused cannot be allowed to be advanced on those very facts that were available to the accused while the first bail application was moved and rejected."

11. माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय ने म.प्र. राज्य बनाम काजाद: (2001) 7 एससीसी 673 के मामले में जोर देते हुए कहा कि यद्यपि क्रमिक जमानत आवेदन स्वीकार्य हैं, लेकिन बदली हुई परिस्थितियों में। इसे निम्नानुसार माना गया है:-

"8. It has further to be noted that the factum of the rejection of his earlier bail application bearing Miscellaneous Case No. 2052 of 2000 on 5-6-2000 has not been denied by the respondent. It is true that successive bail applications are permissible under the changed circumstances. But without the change in the circumstances the second application would be deemed to be seeking review of the earlier judgment which is not permissible under criminal law as has been held by this Court in Hari Singh Mann v. Harbhajan Singh Bajwa [(2001) 1 SCC 169 : 2001 SCC (Cri) 113] and various other judgments."

12. इसके अलावा, माननीय उच्चतम न्यायालय ने कल्याण चंद्र सरकार बनाम राजेश रंजन : (2005) 2 एससीसी 42 के मामले में जोर देते हुए कहा कि यदि तथ्यों में परिवर्तन या कानून में कोई बदलाव होता है जो पिछले आदेश को खारिज कर देगा तो बाद में जमानत आवेदन पत्र दायर किया जा सकता है। न्यायालय ने इस तर्क को खारिज कर दिया कि लगातार जमानत याचिका ऐसे आधार पर दायर की जा सकती है जिसे पहले ही अदालतें खारिज कर चुकी हैं, इसे निम्नानुसार माना गया है:-

"8. On 23-9-2002 the accused-respondent moved the eighth bail application which came to be allowed by the High Court by its order dated 23-5-2003 solely on the ground that the accused-respondent had undergone incarceration for a period of 3 years and that there was no likelihood of the trial being concluded in the near future and an appeal filed against the said grant of bail came to be allowed [Ed.: In Kalyan Chandra Sarkar v. Rajesh Ranjan, op. cit. fn. 2, above] on the ground that the High Court could not have allowed the bail application on the sole ground of delay in the conclusion of the trial without taking into consideration the allegation made by the prosecution in regard to the existence of prima facie case, gravity of offence, and the allegation of tampering with the witness by threat and inducement when on bail. This Court held [Ed.: In Kalyan Chandra Sarkar v. Rajesh Ranjan, op. cit. fn. above] that since the above factors go to the root of the right of the accused to seek bail, non-consideration of the same and grant of bail solely on the ground of long incarceration vitiated the order of the High Court granting bail. This Court also observed that though an accused had a right to make successive applications for grant of bail the court entertaining such subsequent bail applications has duty to consider the reasons and grounds on which the earlier bail applications were rejected and in such cases the court also has a duty to record what are the fresh grounds which persuaded it to take a view different from the one taken in the earlier applications. This Court in that order also found fault with the High Court for not recording any fresh grounds while granting bail and for not taking into consideration the basis on which earlier bail applications were rejected. The Court also emphasised in the said order that ignoring the earlier orders of this Court is violative of the principle of binding nature of the judgments of the superior court rendered in a lis between the same parties, and noted that such approach of the High Court in effect amounts to ignoring or overruling and thus rendering ineffective the principles enunciated in the earlier orders especially of the superior courts. On that basis, the appeal of the complainant challenging the grant of bail came to be allowed cancelling the bail granted to the respondent. This order of this Court is reported as Kalyan Chandra Sarkar v. Rajesh Ranjan [(2004) 7 SCC 528 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 1977]."

* "20. The decisions given by a superior forum, undoubtedly, are binding on the subordinate fora on the same issue even in bail matters unless of course, there is a material change in the fact situation calling for a different view being taken. Therefore, even though there is room for filing a subsequent bail application in cases where earlier applications have been rejected, the same can be done if there is a change in the fact situation or in law which requires the earlier view being interfered with or where the earlier finding has become obsolete. This is the limited area in which an accused who has been denied bail earlier, can move a subsequent application. Therefore, we are not in agreement with the argument of learned counsel for the accused that in view of the guarantee conferred on a person under Article 21 of the Constitution, it is open to the aggrieved person to make successive bail applications even on a ground already rejected by the courts earlier, including the Apex Court of the country."

13. जहां तक आवेदक की विद्वान अधिवक्ता द्वारा महिपाल (सुप्रा) के मामले में दिए गए पैराग्राफ संख्या क्रमशः 24, 25, 27 पर जोर देते हुए यह तर्क प्रस्तुत किया गया है, कि प्रथम जमानत आवेदन पत्र तय करते समय न्यायालय द्वारा आदेश में उन तर्कों को दर्ज किया जाना चाहिए, लेकिन मौजूदा मामले में, उस पर पूर्व न्यायालय द्वारा विचार नहीं किया गया है, इसलिए आवेदक प्रथम जमानत आवेदन पत्र में प्रस्तुत किये गये आधारों पर ही जमानत पाने का हकदार है। इस संबंध में इस न्यायालय का मानना है कि यह न्यायालय इस मामले पर यह गौर नहीं कर सकता है कि पहले जमानत आवेदन पर निर्णय लेते समय तत्समय प्रस्तुत तथ्यों को दर्ज किए गए हैं या नहीं, दूसरी बात यह है कि यदि यह न्यायालय इसकी जांच करता है, तो यह स्थिति यह होगी कि पहले के आदेश की समीक्षा करना, जो कि आपराधिक कानून के तहत स्वीकार्य नहीं है जैसा कि माननीय सर्वोच्च न्यायालय ने Hari Singh Mann Vs. Harbhajhan Singh Bajwa 2001 (1) SCC 169 के साथ-साथ अन्य निर्णयों में भी निर्णय दिया है।

किया जाना है, क्योंकि द्वितीय जमानत के लिए नए आधारों की उपलब्धता वांछनीय है, जो आवेदक के विद्वान अधिवक्ता द्वारा प्रश्नगत प्रकरण में नहीं किया गया है, इसलिए यह द्वितीय जमानत आवेदन पत्र निरस्त किये जाने योग्य है।

14. उपरोक्त के दृष्टिगत, आवेदक का यह द्वितीय जमानत आवेदन पत्र पोषणीय नहीं है, तदनुसार यह द्वितीय जमानत आवेदन पत्र निरस्त किया जाता है।

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Section 439 – Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Sections 419, 420, 467, 468 & 471 – Bail Application – Impersonation in Competitive Examination – Societal Impact – Need for Stringent Measures

The applicant, Roshan Singh, sought bail in Case Crime No. 531 of 2023 under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, and 471 IPC, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Banda, for allegedly impersonating Ranjan Gupta during a Village Development Officer re-examination on 26.06.2023. The FIR, lodged by the Principal of Arya Kanya Inter College, St.d that the applicant's photograph and biometric fingerprint did not match the admit card, leading to his identification as an imposter. The applicant argued false implication, a one-day delay in FIR, discrepancy in arrest date (29.06.2023), the offense being triable by a Magistrate, and parity with others granted bail in similar cases. The prosecution countered that the applicant was caught impersonating, undermining meritorious students' rights, and the parity claim was inapplicable due to different case circumstances. Held: The court rejected the bail application, emphasizing the grave societal impact of examination fraud, which jeopardizes deserving students' futures and erodes meritocracy. The court urged the St. Government and Examination Conducting Agencies to implement stringent measures to curb such malpractices and directed communication of the order to the Principal Secretary (Law) and Advocate General for policy formulation. The applicant's involvement, the offense's severity, and the need to deter such acts justified the denial of bail.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Manju Rani Chauhan, J.)

1. Rejoinder affidavit filed by learned counsel for the applicant today in the Court, is taken on record.

2. Heard Mr. Shiv Babu Dubey, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. K.P. Pathak, learned counsel for the State and perused the material on record.

3. The instant bail application has been filed on behalf of the applicant, Roshan Singh with a prayer to release him on bail in Case Crime No. 531 of 2023, under Sections 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C., Police Station-Kotwali Nagar, District-Banda, during pendency of trial.

4. As per the allegations in the FIR lodged by Poonam Gupta; Principal, Arya Kanya Inter College, Kotwali Nagar, Banda, when the re-examination 2018 for the post of Village Development Officer was going on in the second meeting on 26.06.2023 at about 04:20 pm, a call was received from the Control Room, Lucknow regarding examination room number 4 informing that the bio-metric of one Ranjan Gupta was found suspicious. On the aforesaid, a team was conducted for checking, in which the person sitting in place of Ranjan Gupta was found to be Roshan Singh, whose photograph and bio-metric fingerprint did not match with the admit card of the original candidate Ranjan Gupta. Information about the same was sent to the Commission conducting the examination, on the basis of which, an FIR has been lodged.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the applicant is innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case due to mala fide intentions. He further submits that the FIR has been lodged after a delay of one day without giving any plausible explanation for the same. The arrest memo goes to show that the applicant was arrested on 29.06.2023, so it cannot be said that he was the person, who found sitting on 26.06.2023 in the examination centre in place of Ranjan Gupta. The offence is triable by the Magistrate. In different case crime numbers, in identical matters, the number of persons have been granted bail; one such bail application no.35731 of 2023 (Saurabh Kumar vs. State of U.P. and another) passed by the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court vide order dated 23.08.2023, copy of which has been passed on to the Court today, is kept on record. Thus, the applicant is also entitled for bail. He further submits that the applicant has no criminal history. He is languishing in jail since 26.06.2023. In case he is released on bail, he will not misuse the liberty of bail and will cooperate in the trial by all means. Lastly, it is submitted that there is no chance of applicant fleeing away from judicial process or tampering with the witnesses.

6. Per contra, learned A.G.A. has opposed the bail prayer of the applicant by contending that the applicant is named in the FIR, but it has not been mentioned in the FIR that the applicant was arrested on that date. He further submits that the applicant, who was sitting in place of Ranjan Gupta, was found in the examination centre, whose photograph and bio-metric fingerprint did not match with the admit card of the original candidate; Ranjan Gupta, therefore, the information of the same was given to the Commission. On the basis of the report of Commission, the FIR has been lodge by the Principal of the College, where the examination has been conducted on 27.06.2023. He further submits that such offence has taken away the right of the meritorious students. The order as placed before the Court by which parity has been claimed, does not mention the circumstances as in the present case and the same is different case crime number. Therefore, there is sufficient evidence available on record against the applicant, hence the applicant is not entitled for bail at this stage.

7. Cases akin to the present one illustrate a troubling trend: cheating through impersonation in competitive examinations is proliferating like an epidemic, consequently exerting a detrimental impact on both society and the education system. The future of diligent and deserving students is being jeopardized by individuals engaged in such malfeasance, necessitating a firm and decisive response. These offenders must be dealt with sternly to safeguard the integrity of the examination process and uphold the principles of fairness and meritocracy.

8. During their preparation period, a student envisions and nurtures their aspirations day and night, longing for the opportunity to achieve their dreams. However, in today's sorry state of affairs, responsible agencies fail to transmit updates in due course of time, hindering their ability to apprehend imposters who undermine the integrity of the candidates.

9. Students hailing from a wide array of socio-economic backgrounds face myriad hurdles in their journey to achieve their aspirations, and it is imperative that we ensure a transparent examination process as the bare minimum. It would be grossly unjust for this court to extend sympathy towards an imposter who has callously subverted the right of deserving candidates to a fair and equitable opportunity in a transparent examination process. Such actions not only undermine the integrity of the system but also erode trust in the meritocratic principles upon which it is founded.

10. Taking into account the gravity of the offense, the evidence presented, the involvement of the accused, the severity of the punishment, and the arguments put forth by the learned counsel for both parties, I discern no compelling reason to exercise my discretion in favor of the accused applicant.

11. Before concluding on this matter, it is pertinent for this Court to emphasize that it is imperative for the State Government, in collaboration with Examination Conducting Agencies/Commissions, to introduce robust and stringent measures aimed at eradicating such audacious malpractices. Such measures are essential not only to instill confidence in the state apparatus but also to inspire every candidate investing their most valuable years in the preparation of competitive examinations.

12. This Court fervently hopes and trusts that the State Government will expedite the formulation of robust guidelines, regulations, or policies aimed at quelling the rampant spread of such malpractices that have taken root within our society. Such guidelines, so formulated, may be circulated among all the Examination Conducting Agencies/Commissions within the jurisdiction of the Government of Uttar Pradesh.

13. Let this order be communicated to the Principal Secretary (Law), U.P. Lucknow who will place it before the Hon'ble Minister, Law & Justice, U.P., Lucknow.

14. In view of the observations as made above, the bail application stands rejected.

15. Registrar (Compliance) shall communicate a copy of this order to learned Advocate General and the Principal Secretary (Law), U.P. Lucknow.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Section 439 – Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 506, 120-B – Second Bail Application – Criminal Conspiracy – Hardened Criminal – Exploitation of Legal Loopholes

The applicant, Bharat Singh, sought bail in Case Crime No. 344 of 2018 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 506, and 120-B IPC, Police Station Sector-Nawabad, District Jhansi, for allegedly conspiring to murder Sanjay Verma on 21.07.2018. The FIR, lodged by Sanchit Verma, detailed an ambush where assailants fired at Sanjay Verma's car, killing one guard and injuring others. The applicant, not named in the FIR, was implicated through witness St.ments recorded post-incident, alleging he conspired with co-accused in 2017. The applicant argued false implication, delayed witness St.ments, weak evidence, and over five years of incarceration, claiming "bail is the rule, jail is the exception." The prosecution highlighted the applicant's criminal history (27 cases, convicted in three, including a prior murder of the victim's brother), his family's criminal involvement, and the rejection of a co-accused's bail by the Supreme Court. Held: The court, citing Vinod Kumar Vs St. of Punj. ((2015) 3 SCC 220) and Hussain Vs Union of India ((2017) 5 SCC 702), rejected the bail application, emphasizing the applicant's extensive criminal history and the case falling under the "exception" to the bail principle due to the risk of tampering with evidence and repeating offenses. The court noted the societal harm caused by hardened criminals exploiting legal loopholes, undermining public trust, and directed the trial court to expedite proceedings.

2. Heard Sri Ravikant Shukla, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Deepak Dubey, learned counsel for the informant and Sri Ashutosh Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State as well as perused the material placed on record.

3. This is the second bail application on behalf of the applicant. The first Criminal Misc. Bail Application No.27318 of 2020 has been dismissed by this Court as not pressed vide order dated 21.02.2023.

4. Applicant seeks bail in Case Crime No.344 of 2018, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 506 and 120-B, Police Station Sector- Nawabad, District Jhansi, during the pendency of trial.

PROSECUTION STORY:

5. The FIR was instituted by Sanchit Verma, son of Shri Sanjay Verma, stating therein that today on 21.7.2018 at about 11:00 A.M. he along with his father had gone to Court. His father had to attend his case in the Court of District Judge, Jhansi, and Civil Judge (Junior Division), Jhansi. At about 1:30 P.M., his father left the Court premises by his Pajero Sports Car No. UP 93AN 6301, which was being driven by Ravi Varma. His father was accompanied by his guards Jai Goswami and Sunil Kushwaha.

6. In the meantime, after about two minutes, it was observed that the car was being followed by a motorcycle driven by Ajay Sony. Near a temple, truck No. UP 93T 8047 was found parked along with a loader No. UP 93AT 3437. Hiding behind the said vehicles, the accused persons namely, Sonu Geda, Rinku Geda, Bobi Geda, Angad Gurjar, Prahlad Gurjar, Udham Gurjar, Rajendra Gurjar, Shivam Gurjar and Pushpendra Gurjar, came out with firearm weapons and started firing indiscriminately at the passengers in the car, which hit the driver of the vehicle resulting in it colliding with the loader and truck. The father of the informant and the persons seated in the vehicle sustained life threatening gunshot wounds.

7. The assailants sped away on motorcycles firing in air. The injured persons were rushed to Medical College Jhansi, where they are being treated and doctors had declared Jai Goswami dead. The accused persons, namely, Rinku Geda, Sonu Geda, Sardar Singh and others, had earlier caused the death of the uncle of the informant Ajay Verma and were convicted in it. The said conviction was sustained by the High Court, Allahabad and even the writ petition filed by Man Singh was dismissed by the Supreme Court. The aforesaid accused persons had earlier on also failed in attempt to commit murder of the father of the informant several times.

8. The instant F.I.R. was instituted at police station at 09:57 P.M. the same night.

RIVAL CONTENTIONS:
(Arguments on behalf of applicant)

9. The applicant is not named in the FIR. The name of the applicant has come up later in the statement of two witnesses i.e. Vijay Sony and Sanjiv Gupta regarding the applicant having hatched the conspiracy to commit the murder of the father of the informant. The said statement is an afterthought and the witnesses have been roped in after legal consultation, just to get the applicant languishing in jail.

10. The Investigating Officer without conducting proper, fair investigation and in a lethargic manner, has illegally submitted the final report (charge-sheet) against the applicant also of having committed the criminal conspiracy for getting the murder of the father of the informant.

11. The said witnesses are stated to have heard the applicant and co-accused persons, namely, Sardar Singh Gurjar and Rav Raja, on 03.08.2017 at the compound of Civil Court conspiring to get Sanjay Verma eliminated. The said offence is stated to have been committed after a period of almost 1 year i.e. on 21.7.2018. The statements of the witnesses have been recorded after the offence and not during the intervening period of conspiracy and murder.

12. It is pertinent to mention here that the delay in recording the statement of the witnesses speaks volume of frivolous prosecution of the applicant. The motive of false implication is mentioned in the said statement as both the parties carried an animosity with the applicant as he is already convicted in the murder of the uncle of the informant.

13. The 'bail' is the rule and 'jail' is an exception. The applicant is in jail since 18.10.2018. The period of incarceration being more than five years is itself a valid ground for release of the applicant that too in an offence of conspiracy only.

14. Five witnesses have already been examined and there is no tangible or credible evidence against the applicant and there is no chance of him absconding or tampering with evidence. The statement of prosecution witness Sanjeev Gupta (P.W.4) does not inspire any confidence as it is full of contractions and is filled up with embellishments.

15. The prosecution witnesses have stated that the applicant was handcuffed at the time he saw and heard them hatching the said conspiracy, which stands falsified from the facts that applicant was brought without being handcuffed as is evident from the order of the Special Judge (Gangster's Act), which has been filed as Annexure No.9 to the affidavit filed with the instant bail application.

16. The applicant is an aged person of 77 years and there is no likelihood of him repeating the offence.

17. The criminal history of twenty seven (27) cases assigned to the applicant stands explained as he has been acquitted in twenty (20) of the cases and proceedings in the case under the National Security Act have been dropped. The applicant has been enlarged on bail in three (3) cases and is convicted in the other three (3) cases.

18. The applicant was a convicted person in Case Crime No.1463 of 2006, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307, 302 I.P.C. and 7 Criminal Law Amendment Act vide judgement and order dated 20.8.2009. The Criminal Appeal against the said order of conviction was dismissed by this Court vide judgment and order dated 12.9.2017. An S.L.P. filed by applicant Bharat Singh was also dismissed by the Supreme Court.

19. The Government Order No.324/2023/1442/22-2-2023-17(4999) dated 12.06.2023 was passed for premature release of applicant under Section 2 of the Provisions of U.P. Prisoners Release on Probation Act, 1938 (Act 8 of 1938), as the applicant had forged his aged to be 77 years while his actual age is about 60 years, as is evident from the voter ID card issued by the State Election Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow. The said order of remission is under challenge before the High Court and it is pertinent to add that the remission order of co-accused Man Singh Gurjar has been set-aside by this Court vide order dated 19.04.2023.

20. The applicant and his family are a bunch of hardened criminals being involved in about twenty nine (29) cases in all. The criminal history of the applicant has been filed as Annexure No.CA-7 to the Short Counter Affidavit filed with the bail application. The applicant is a previous convict in three (3) cases and in one of the cases, the conviction has been affirmed up to the Supreme Court.

21. The bail application of the co-accused Rav Raja, whose case is on the similar footing to the applicant, has been rejected by the Supreme Court vide its order dated 29.10.2021 passed in S.L.P. (Criminal) Diary No(s). 24115/2021.

22. Learned A.G.A. has also opposed the bail application and reiterated the averments of counsel for the informant.

CONCLUSION:

23. The phrase "Bail is the rule and Jail is an exception" underscores the principle that individuals are presumed innocent until proven guilty. In this context, "jail as an exception" refers to the situations where a person's pre-trial liberty is restricted due to specific circumstances. These exceptions might include concerns about flight risk, potential danger to the community, the likelihood of the accused tampering with evidence, or possibility of repeating offence. Essentially, while bail is generally favoured to ensure the presumption of innocence, exceptions exist when there are compelling reasons to detain someone before trial.

24. The criminal justice system is designed to maintain order, protect citizens, and ensure that wrongdoers face consequences for their actions. However, an alarming trend has emerged where hardened criminals exploit loopholes in legal proceedings, capitalize on ambiguities, procedural errors, or inadequacies in legislation to evade the full force of the law. Whether through technicalities, or delays, these individuals navigate a legal landscape that inadvertently provides them with opportunities to escape justice. The exploitation of legal loopholes undermines public confidence in the criminal justice system. Victims may feel betrayed, and communities may lose faith in the ability of the legal framework to protect them. Additionally, this phenomenon perpetuates a cycle of crime, as criminals observe and learn from successful manoeuvres within the legal system.

25. Striking a balance between efficiency and justice remains a challenging aspect of legal proceedings. Taking case of the issue of hardened criminals exploiting legal loopholes is crucial for upholding the principles of justice and maintaining public trust in the legal system, through proactive legal reforms, technological advancements, and ongoing professional development, we can create a more resilient framework that minimizes opportunities for criminals to escape accountability. It is imperative that society remains vigilant in its pursuit of a fair and effective criminal justice system.

26. The applicant was convicted for the murder of the brother of one of the victims of the instant incident and the same is the motive for committing the instant offence. He is a previous convict in two other cases. Here the long criminal history of the applicant is an important factor which goes against him.

27. The instant case falls in the category of "exception" as mentioned in the old saying "Bail is the rule, and Jail is an exception". Hence, the bail to the applicant is declined and is, accordingly, rejected.

28. However, it is directed that the aforesaid case pending before the trial court be decided expeditiously as early as possible in view of the principle as has been laid down in the recent judgments of the Apex Court in the cases of Vinod Kumar vs. State of Punjab; 2015 (3) SCC 220 and Hussain and Another vs. Union of India; (2017) 5 SCC 702, if there is no legal impediment.

29. It is clarified that the observations made herein are limited to the facts brought in by the parties pertaining to the disposal of bail application and the said observations shall have no bearing on the merits of the case during trial.

Criminal Misc. 2nd Bail Application No. 44594 of 2023

Kamlesh Pathak ...Applicant (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opp. Party

Counsel for the Applicant:
Sri Vijai Prakash Yadav, Sri Saghir Ahmad (Sr. Advocate)

Counsel for the Opp. Party:
G.A., Sri Anurag Shukla, Sri Dharmendra Shukla, Sri Saurabh Pathak, Sri Anil Tiwari (Sr. Advocate)

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Section 439 – U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 – Section 3(1), 19(4)(b) & 12 – Second Bail Application – Criminal History – Gang Leader – Mandatory Bail Conditions - The applicant, Kamlesh Pathak, an Ex-MLC, sought bail in Case Crime No. 462 of 2020 under Section 3(1) of the U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, Police Station Auraiya, District Auraiya, linked to two cases involving double murder and attempt to murder (Case Crime Nos. 189 and 196 of 2020). The FIR alleged that the applicant, as a gang leader, engaged in extortion, illegal land encroachment, assault, and firing to maintain dominance, notably in the daylight murder of an advocate and his sister to grab temple land. The applicant, with a criminal history of 37 cases since 1974 (8 acquitted, 13 closed, 7 withdrawn, 2 unnoticed, 2 preventive, 1 decided, 4 pending), argued prolonged detention since 14.07.2020, bail in other cases, and parity with a co-accused. The prosecution highlighted the applicant's influence, pending SLPs against his bail in the murder case, and the risk of witness tampering. Held: The court, citing Neeru Yadav Vs St. of U.P. ((2015) 3 SCC 527), Sudha Singh Vs St. of U.P. ((2021) 4 SCC 781), Indresh Kumar Vs St. of U.P. (2022 Live Law (SC) 610), Deepak Yadav Vs St. of U.P. ((2022) 8 SCC 559), and Dharmendra Kirthal Vs St. of U.P. ((2013) 8 SCC 368), rejected the bail application. The court emphasized the applicant's extensive criminal history, the mandatory conditions under Section 19(4)(b) of the Gangsters Act requiring reasonable grounds to believe the accused is not guilty and unlikely to reoffend, and the societal threat posed by the applicant. Parity was dismissed as the co-accused's bail ignored Section 19(4)(b). The court directed expeditious trial under Section 12 of the Act and Section 309 Cr.P.C., prioritizing the Gangsters Act case.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sanjay Kumar Singh, J.)

1- Heard Mr. Saghir Ahmad, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Raghav Arora, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Arbind Kumar, Mr. Deepak Mishra and Mr. Rabindra Kumar Singh, learned Additional Government Advocates appearing for the State of U.P. as well as Mr. Anil Tiwari, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Mr. Anurag Shukla, learned counsel appearing on behalf of complainant of [double murder case (crime No. 189 of 2020) filed against the applicant and his associates].

2- Brief facts of the case which are required to be stated are that a first information report under Section 3(1) of U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act was lodged on 11.07.2020 against the applicant, who is Ex-MLC and his other ten associates at Police Station Auraiya, District-Auraiya on the basis of two cases being Case Crime No. 189 of 2020, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 506 I.P.C. and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act and Case Crime No. 196 of 2020 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 353, 307 I.P.C. and Section 7 of Criminal Law (Amendment) Act registered against him and others on 11.06.2020 at Police Station Auraiya, District Auraiya. In the first information report of this case, it is alleged inter alia, that gang leader Kamlesh Pathak (applicant) along with his gang members carry out criminal incidents like extortion, illegal encroachment of precious government land, assault, firing etc. to maintain their dominance and terror in the society for their economic and worldly benefits. Many criminal cases are already registered against the applicant and his associates, which they got compromised due to their fear and influence. No one comes to testify against them due to their fear. They misused their position while being in government and got their cases closed. On 15.03.2020, an advocate Manjul Chaube and his sister Sudha Chaube was brutally murdered by firing in brought day light in order to grab the valuable land of "Panchmukhi Hanuman Temple" situated in Arya Nagar, Auraiya. Due to which, their fear, dread and terror has become so widespread among the public that no one from the public dares to speak and testify against them, therefore it is not in public interest for them to remain free. Hence it is necessary to take action against them under U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986.

2.2- After investigation police Report (charge-sheet) under Section 173 (2) Cr.P.C. has been submitted against the applicant and other accused persons on 11.06.2020 and they are facing trial.

2.3- The first bail application of the applicant was rejected by detail order of the coordinate Bench of this Court dated 23.02.2023 in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 21738 of 2022.

2.4- The above order dated 23.02.2023 was challenged by the applicant before Hon'ble the Apex Court by means of Petition(s) for Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No. 3438 of 2023, which was dismissed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court vide order dated 08.05.2023, leaving it open to the petitioner to renew his request of bail after completion of three months.

2.5- Thereafter second Miscellaneous Application No. 1855 of 2023 in SLP (Crl) No. 3438 of 2023 was preferred by the applicant before Hon'ble Supreme Court, but the same was dismissed as withdrawn reserving liberty to the petitioner/applicant to move High Court, if so advised, with the observation that if application for bail is filed by the applicant, the same shall be considered by the High Court as expeditiously as possible.

2.6- In view of the above, the instant second bail application under Section 439 of Cr.P.C. has been filed on behalf of the applicant with a prayer to release him on bail in Case Crime No. 462 of 2020 (Sessions Case No. 352 of 2021-State Vs. Kamlesh Pathak and Others) under Section 3(1) of Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, Police Station-Auraiya, District-Auraiya pending in the court of Additional District and Session Judge, Court No.-II, Auraiya.

3- Main substratum of argument of Mr. Saghir Ahmad, learned Senior Counsel for the applicant is that the applicant is Ex-MLC, who is in jail in the present case since 14.07.2020, but his trial has not yet been concluded and till date out of sixteen prosecution witnesses, only six prosecution witnesses of charge sheet have been examined before the trial court. As on date, applicant is on bail in all pending criminal cases against him except in the present case and one co-accused Avanish Pratap Singh has been granted bail, therefore applicant is entitled to be released on bail.

3.1- So far as criminal history of the applicant is concerned, it is submitted that applicant has criminal history of total 37 cases, details whereof are as under:-

Explaining the above criminal history of the applicant, it is further pointed out that:- i- In 08 criminal cases mentioned in the above chart from serial no. 01 to 08, applicant has been acquitted.

ii- In 13 criminal cases mentioned in the above chart from serial no. 09 to 21, closer reports have been submitted.

iii- Total 7 criminal cases against the applicant mentioned in the above chart from serial no. 22 to 28 have been withdrawn by the State of U.P.

iv- In 2 criminal cases mentioned in the above chart from serial no. 29 and 30, applicant did not receive any notice or summon.

v- Two cases against the applicant mentioned in the above chart at serial nos. 31 and 32 were related to preventive in nature under Section 3 (2) of the National Security Act.

vi- One case against the applicant mentioned in the above chart at serial no. 33 has been decided.

vii- In four criminal cases mentioned in the above chart from serial no. 34 to 37, applicant is facing trial.

4- On the other hand, learned Additional Government Advocate for the State as well as Mr. Anil Tiwari, learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of complainant in above noted double murder case vehemently opposed the prayer for bail of the applicant by contending that in Case Crime No. 189 of 2020, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 506 I.P.C. and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act, Police Station Kotwali Auraiya, District Auraiya, the applicant has been granted bail by the coordinate Bench of this Court vide order dated 13.04.2022 passed in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 46390 of 2020, against which complainant has preferred SLP (Cri.) No. 004386 of 2022 before Hon'ble the Apex Court, in which notice has been issued to the applicant vide order dated 02.05.2022. The State of U.P. has also preferred SLP (Cri.) No. 006080 of 2022. Much emphasis has been given by contending that the influence of the applicant is evident from the record that in thirteen criminal cases closure report has been filed by the police which include heinous offences like attempt to murder, attempt to dacoity and forgery etc., therefore in case bail is granted to the applicant in the instant case, the possibility of tampering the witnesses and evidence adopting different modus operandi cannot be ruled out. Lastly it is submitted that applicant and his associates / gang members are habitual to commit crime of different nature adopting different modus operandi, hence considering the nature of crime and gravity of offence, bail application of the applicant is liable to be rejected.

5- Having heard learned counsel for the parties and examined the matter in its entirety, I find that it is not in dispute that applicant is having long criminal history as noted above. In the SLP (Cri.) No. 004386 of 2022 filed by the complainant and SLP (Cri.) No. 006080 of 2022 filed by the State against the order dated 13.04.2022 granting bail to the applicant in above noted Case Crime No. 189 of 2020, notice has been issued by the Hon'ble Supreme Court and the same are still pending before the Hon'ble Supreme Court. At present following four cases are pending against the applicant in the Court of Special Court MP/MLA, District Auraiya. Present status of the same are as under:-

(i) Session Trial No. 81 of 2021 arising out of Case Crime No. 189 of 2020, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 307, 506 I.P.C. and Section 7 of Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, Police Station Auraiya, District Auraiya, in which out of 17 prosecution witnesses, statements of 12 prosecution witnesses have been recorded before the trial court.

(ii) Session Trial No. 82 of 2021 arising out of Case Crime No. 196 of 2020 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 353, 307 I.P.C. and Section 7 of Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, Police Station Auraiya, District Auraiya, in which out of 15 prosecution witnesses, statements of 09 prosecution witnesses have been recorded before the trial court.

(iiI) Session Trial No. 83 of 2021 arising out of Case Crime No. 189 of 2020, under Sections 25,30 and 27 Arms Act, Police Station Kotwali, Auraiya, District Auraiya, in which out of 16 prosecution witnesses, statements of 03 prosecution witnesses have been recorded before the trial court.

(iv) GST No. 352 of 2021(present case) arising out of Case Crime No. 462 of 2020 under Section 3(1) of U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, Police Station Auraiya, District-Auraiya, in which out of 16 prosecution witnesses of charge sheet, statements of 6 prosecution witnesses have been recorded before the trial court.

6- It is well settled that criminal history of the accused is also one of the relevant factor while considering bail application. In this regard, it is relevant to refer following judgments of the Apex Court.

6.1- Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Neeru Yadav Vs. State of U.P. (2015)3 SCC 527, after referring a catena of judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court on the consideration of factors for grant of bail, held as under:

"This being the position of law, it is clear as cloudless sky that the High Court has totally ignored the criminal antecedent of the accused. What has weighed with the High Court is the doctrine of parity. A history sheeter involved in the nature of crimes which we have reproduced herein above, are not minor offences so that he is not to be retained in custody, but the crimes are of heinous nature and such crimes, by no stretch of imagination can be regarded as jejune. Such cases do create a thunder and lightening having the effect potentiality of torrential rain in an analytical mind. The law expects the judiciary to be alert while admitting these kind of accused persons to be at large and, therefore, the emphasis is on exercise of discretion judiciously and not in a whimsical manner."

6.2- The aforesaid judgement has further been followed by the Apex Court in the case of Sudha Singh Vs. State of U.P. and another, 2021(4) SCC 781 and Indresh Kumar Vs. State of U.P. and another, 2022 Live law (SC) 610.

6.3- In Sudha Singh (Supra) the Court held as under:

We find in this case that the high court has overlooked several aspects, such as the potential threat to witnesses, forcing the trial court to grant protection. It is needless to point out that in cases of this nature, it is important that courts do not enlarge an accused on bail with a blinkered vision by just taking into account only the parties before them and the incident in question. It is necessary for courts to consider the impact that release of such persons on bail will have on the witnesses yet to be examined and the innocent members of the family of the victim who might be the next victims.

6.4- In Indresh Kumar (Supra) the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that "as argued on behalf of the appellant, the High Court has, apparently ignored the criminal antecedents of the respondent-accused. The respondent-accused has the criminal history of seven cases.

The Court further held as under:

"If the High Court had seriously considered the gravity of the offence, there would have been some indication of what was the apparently extenuating circumstance, which entitled the respondent-accused to bail. Ex facie, the allegations are grave, the punishment is severe and it cannot be said that there are no materials on record at all."

7- Here it would also be apposite to quote the provisions of Section 19 (4) and (5) of U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, because the same is an additional condition for considering bail under the above mentioned Gangster Act, 1986, which are as under:-

Section 19. Modified application of certain provisions of the code :-

(3)……..

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code, no person accused of an offence punishable under this Act or any rule made thereunder shall, if in custody, be released on bail or on his own bond unless—

(a) the Public Prosecutor has been given an opportunity to oppose the application for such release, and

(b) where the Public Prosecutor opposes the application, the Court is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail.

(5) The limitations on granting of bail specified in sub-section (4) are in addition to the limitations under the Code.

08- In the light of above mentioned provisions, it is clear that the provisions provided in Section 19 (4) (b) of the U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, is mandatory in nature for considering the bail application under the said Act, wherein it has been provided that an accused of an offence punishable under U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, can be released on bail if the Court hearing bail application is satisfied that there are reasonable grounds for believing that he is not guilty of such offence and that he is not likely to commit any offence while on bail.

09- I also find that it is not in dispute that the applicant has a long criminal history of 37 cases behind him since 1974. The courts while releasing the accused-applicant on bail imposed one of the conditions in most of the bail orders that applicant will not further indulge in criminal activity, but it appears that in the eyes of the accused-applicant, such condition / direction is nothing but a mere formality, whereas said condition is also one of the criteria for considering bail in subsequent crime of the accused. Year wise break up of the criminal cases registered against the applicant are as follows:-

In the year 1974……. 2 cases,
In the year 1983……. 1 case,
In the year 1984…….. 4 cases,
In the year 1985……. 1 case
In the year 1986……. 2 cases
In the year 1989……. 4 cases
In the year 1991……. 1 case
In the year 1993……. 1 case
In the year 1999……. 1 case
In the year 2001……. 1 case
In the year 2002……. 1 case
In the year 2003……. 3 cases
In the year 2004……. 3 cases
In the year 2005 ……..1 case
In the year 2007……. 1 case
In the year 2008……. 2 cases
In the year 2009……. 3 cases
In the year 2020……. 4 cases

10- This Court is of the view that those who are protector of the society being MP/MLA/MLC carry a big responsibility on their shoulders towards the public and they are not expected to commit crime or indulge in criminal activities causing dent to the healthy society in any manner. The higher is the position, the grater is the responsibility towards the society at large. Taking into consideration the long criminal history of the applicant, other attending factors, surrounding circumstance of the case as well as possibility of tampering the witnesses and misuse of liberty, I do not find reasonable or good ground for believing to record my satisfaction in terms of provisions of Section 19 (4) (b) of U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, that the applicant is not guilty of offence and will not further indulge in any criminal activity while being released on bail.

11- So far as submission on behalf of the applicant that the applicant has been granted bail in all the cases mentioned in gang chart and therefore he is liable to be granted bail in this case also is concerned, the same is not acceptable, because the offence punishable under Section 3 of U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act is an independent offence.

Involvement of the accused in various other offences, in fact, constitute circumstances and evidence against him which may indicate that the accused is member or leader or organiser of a group which indulges in the kind of activities set out under the Gangster Act. The gravity of an offence under Section 3 of the U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act may vary from case to case, therefore no universal rule can be framed to grant bail to the accused for the offence under Gangster Act.

12- The another submission on behalf of the applicant that one co-accused has been granted bail, therefore applicant is also entitled for bail on the ground of parity is concerned, I find that bail to the co-accused-Avanish has been granted without considering the mandatory provisions contained under Section 19 (4) (b) of U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act and considering the judgement in the case of Dataram Singh Vs. State of U.P. and another, (2018)3 SCC 22, which is not applicable to the fact of the present case in the light of the judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Indresh Kumar Vs. The State of Uttar Pradesh, 2022 Live Law (SC) 610, therefore the bail order dated 18.8.2022 passed in Criminal Miscellaneous Bail Application No. 35331 of 2022 of co-accused Avanish is not helpful to the applicant.

13- In Deepak Yadav Vs State of U.P. and another, (2022) 8 SCC 559, bail granted by the Allahabad High Court to the accused in a murder case only on the basis of parity, has been cancelled by the Hon'ble Apex Court by observing that the High Court should have considered factors such as criminal background of the accused and nature of the offence, etc. Hon'ble Supreme Court considering pleuthera of judgements on the guiding principle for adjudicating a regular bail held as under:

26. "The importance of assigning reasoning for grant or denial of bail can never be undermined. There is prima facie need to indicate reasons particularly in cases of grant or denial of bail where the accused is charged with a serious offence. The sound reasoning in a particular case is a reassurance that discretion has been exercised by the decision maker after considering all the relevant grounds and by disregarding extraneous considerations."

"39. Grant of bail to the Respondent No. 2/accused only on the basis of parity shows that the impugned order passed by the High Court suffers from the vice of non-application of mind rendering it unsustainable. The High Court has not taken into consideration the criminal history of the respondent No. 2/accused, nature of crime, material evidences available , involvement of respondent No. 2/accused in the said crime and recovery of weapon from his possession."

14- This Court is also of the view that further detail discussion relating to the incident and merit of the case need not be referred to herein since the allegations and the defence thereto is still open to be urged by the parties in the trial Court.

15- Considering the criminal history of the applicant, overall facts and other attending circumstances of the case as well as keeping in view the submissions advanced on behalf of parties, gravity of offence, role assigned to applicant, severity of punishment, possibility of tampering the evidence and stage of the trial of the applicant as noted above, I do not find any good ground to release the applicant on bail.

16- Accordingly, the bail application of applicant is rejected.

17- Section 12 of U.P. Gangsters and Anti Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 provides that trial under the Act of any offence by special court shall have precedence over the trial of any other case against the accused in any other court and shall be concluded in preference to the trial of such other case and accordingly trial of such other case shall remain in abeyance. The validity of the aforesaid Act was in question before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dharmendra Kirthal Vs. State of U.P. and another, (2013) 8 SCC 368. The Apex Court after detail analysis, upheld the constitutional validity of Section 12 of the U.P. Gangsters and Anti Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 by holding that it does not infringe any of the facets of Articles 14 and 21 of the Constitution of India.

18- Accordingly, it goes without saying that the case against the applicant under the U.P. Gangsters and Anti Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 shall have precedence over the trial of any other case against the accused.

19- In the matter of MPs and MLAs directions have also been issued by the Hon'ble Supreme Court for expeditious disposal of cases. Accordingly trial Court is directed to conclude the trial of the applicant expeditiously in accordance with provisions of Section 309 Cr.P.C. without granting any adjournment to either of the parties taking into consideration the provisions of Section 12 of U.P. Gangsters and Anti Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986.

20- It is made clear that the observations contained in the instant order is confined to the issue of bail and shall not affect the merit of the trial.

Criminal Law -Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Sections 226, 309, 439 – Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Sections 147, 148, 149, 302 & 506 – Criminal Law Amendment Act – Section 7 – Bail Application – Murder Case – Trial Delays – Mandatory Compliance with Section 226 Cr.P.C. and Rule 35 General Rules (Criminal)

The applicant, Shahzan, sought bail in Case Crime No. 34 of 2021 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 506 IPC and Section 7 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, Police Station Haldaur, District Bijnor, for allegedly shooting and killing the deceased, as corroborated by eyewitnesses and the postmortem report. The applicant, in jail since 06.02.2021, had his bail rejected by the trial court on 29.06.2022. The prosecution's case was supported by evidence of multiple bullet injuries. Held: The court, without delving into the merits, rejected the bail application due to the gravity of the offense, the applicant's role as a principal offender, and the risk to a fair trial if released. The court expressed concern over the slow trial pace (only 7 of 67 witnesses examined) and the prosecution's failure to submit a witness calendar under Section 226 Cr.P.C. and Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal), which are mandatory for ensuring fairness and pre-trial clarity. The court directed the trial court to expedite the trial within one year, enforce witness attendance through coercive measures, and ensure compliance with statutory provisions. The Director General (Prosecution) and police authorities were instructed to adhere to these provisions and prior court directives in Bhanwar Singh @ Karamvir (Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 16871 of 2023) and Jitendra (Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 9126 of 2023). The trial court was mandated to monitor compliance and report progress fortnightly.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Shivangi Singh, learned counsel for the applicant and Shri Paritosh Kumar Malviya, learned AGA-I for the State.

2. By means of this bail application the applicant has prayed to be enlarged on bail in Case Crime No. 34 of 2021 at Police Station Haldaur District Bijnor under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302, 506 IP.C and Section 7 of Criminal Law Amendment Act. The applicant is in jail since 06.02.2021.

3. The bail application of the applicant was rejected by learned trial court on 29.06.2022.

4. The applicant has been identified as one of the principal offenders who discharged his firearm and shot dead the deceased. The deceased sustained multiple bullet injuries. Eye witnesses to the incident and the postmortem report corroborate the prosecution case. The trial is on foot. Enlarging the applicant on bail at this stage would not be conducive to a fair trial. The offence is grave. There is likelihood that the applicant committed the offence. At this stage, no case for bail is made out.

5. Without going into the merits of the case, at this stage the bail application is dismissed.

6. Before parting, some essential observations arising in the facts of this case are being made as regards the conduct of the trial.

7. This Court would like to express its dissatisfaction at the pace of the trial. The status report sent by the learned trial court records that as per the chargesheet the prosecution proposes to examine 67 witnesses to bring home the charges. Till date only 7 prosecution witnesses have been examined.

8. Earlier this Court had directed the trial court to provide all relevant details regarding the status of the trial including the number of prosecution witnesses mentioned in the chargesheet, and the prosecution witnesses depicted in the calendar.

9. The trial court in its status report only depicts the witnesses mentioned in the chargesheet. The proposed prosecution witnesses depicted in the calendar given by the public prosecutor at the commencement of the trial has not been disclosed in the said status report. The State too has failed to furnish the calendar before this Court. Evidently the calendar has not been produced before the trial court by the prosecution.

10. The prosecution at the commencement of the trial is required to submit a calendar under Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) read with Section 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

11. Section 226 Cr.P.C. being relevant to the discussion is extracted hereinunder:

"226. Opening case for prosecution.—When the accused appears or is brought before the Court in pursuance of a commitment of the case under section 209, the prosecutor shall open his case by describing the charge brought against the accused and stating by what evidence he proposes to prove the guilt of the accused." (emphasis supplied)

12. The provision contains the conditions precedent required to be fulfilled by the prosecution prior to opening its case before the trial court. The public prosecutor is liable to describe the charge brought against the accused, and also the details by what evidence it proposes to prove the charges against the accused.

13. The word 'shall' has been employed by the legislature giving the provision a mandatory cast.

14. Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) has a similar purpose and is extracted hereunder:

"35. Procedure on commitment :- When an order of commitment for trial has been made, the Magistrate shall at once report the fact to the court to which the commitment is made by a letter in the prescribed form (Part IX, no. 2); shall notify the Public Prosecutor of the commitment of the case to the Court of Session and shall within eight days from making the said order, submit the entire record of the case and the documents and articles, if any, which are to be produced in evidence to the Court of Session or, when the commitment is made to the High Court, to the Clerk of the State together with a calendar in the prescribed form (Part IX, no. 3). The entries under head of the calendar shall be full and accurate, so as to give the court receiving it a clear idea of the matters to which each witness will depose. The Public Prosecutor shall submit a list of witnesses whom he would not examine out of the, witnesses mentioned in the calendar." (emphasis supplied)

15. The provision mandates the public prosecutor to submit a calendar in the prescribed form before the trial court prior to commencement of the trial. The entries in the calendar depict the number of witnesses, and the matters to which each witness will depose. The witnesses who are mentioned in the chargesheet but not proposed to be examined too have to be referenced in a separate list. In Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal), the word "shall" precedes the said tasks which have to be performed by the prosecution.

16. The provision shall be interpreted in light of the settled canons of statutory interpretation. The word 'shall' has been employed in the statute which depicts the legislative intent of giving the provision a mandatory character [See: State of Haryana Vs. Raghubir Dayal1, and Ram Dhani And Another Vs. State of U.P.2]

17. Clearly Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) read with Section 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code are mandatory in nature. Imperative statutory duty is cast on the public prosecutor to submit a calendar and other details under Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) read with Section 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code before the trial court prior to commencement of the trial. The provisions have been engrafted to give advance notice to the accused of the prosecution evidence proposed to be tendered at the trial. The provisions are also consistent with the fundamental norms of fairness in criminal processual jurisprudence. Prior notice of proposed prosecution evidence alerts the accused in advance to the case he/she has to meet. The provisions enable the accused to prepare his/her defence thoroughly and refute the prosecution case, and also precludes the prosecution from springing a surprise on the accused. The rights so vested in an accused cannot be disregarded or negated by non compliance of the provision.

18. However, it needs to be clarified that failure of the public prosecutor to submit the calendar does not ipso facto vitiate the trial.

19. The scheme of the provisions have to be looked at from another perspective. At the stage of the investigations many lines of enquiries are followed which appear to connect the accused with the offence. A great number official witnesses are also associated with the investigations at different stages. In the process a large number of witnesses are nominated in the chargesheet.

20. The pre trial process under Rule 35 of General Rules (Criminal) by the prosecutor crystallizes the implicatory evidence against the accused. The proceedings under Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) read with Section 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code enable the prosecution to identify the relevant witnesses and critical pieces of evidence which should be adduced in the trial, and exclude irrelevant materials and witnesses named during the course of investigations.

21. The said provision ensures that there is due application of mind by the prosecutor on various aspects of the prosecution evidence prior to commencement of the trial. Pre trial strategizing of this nature enables the prosecution to package and present its evidence in a coherent sequence and professional manner. The provisions contemplate a statutory interface between the prosecutor and the investigating agency which has submitted the chargesheet. In case deficiencies in the investigations are highlighted in the process of creation of the calendar, the investigation agency may take appropriate steps as per law.

22. Calling excessive number of witnesses for the same purpose is a repetitive and a time consuming exercise which does not enure to the benefit of the prosecution. It is the prerogative of the prosecution to decide the number of witnesses to establish its case before the trial court. However, adherence to Section 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code read with Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) will curtail unnecessary delays, prevent duplication of witnesses, preserve scarce resources and ensure speedy conclusion of the trial.

23. Trial courts are also under an obligation to oversee compliance of Section 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code read with Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal).

24. Director General (Prosecution), State of U.P., Lucknow shall ensure that the mandatory provisions of Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) read with Section 226 Cr.P.C. are duly complied with by the prosecution at the time of commencement of a trial. Appropriate action in this regard shall be taken by the Director General (Prosecution) and all other concerned State authorities in all criminal trials. The Director General (Prosecution) shall consider if it so feasible to submit the calendar at this belated stage to avoid further unnecessary delays in this trial as well.

25. Considering the gravity of the offence, interest of justice will be served by directing the learned trial court to expedite the trial within a stipulated period of time.

26. Though no specific time frame to conclude the trial has been set out in the Cr.P.C., yet the legislative intent of Section 309 Cr.P.C. is explicit. The scheme of the provision clearly shows that the legislative intent is to conclude the trial in an expeditious time frame. In the facts of this case, the learned trial court shall make all endeavours to conclude the trial preferably within a period of one year from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order.

27. The trial court has also to be conscious of the rights of the accused persons and is under obligation of law to ensure that all expeditious, necessary and coercive measures as per law are adopted to ensure the presence of witnesses. Counsels or parties who delay or impede the proceedings should not only be discouraged from doing so but in appropriate cases exemplary costs should also be imposed on such parties/ counsel. All witnesses and counsels are directed to cooperate with the trial proceedings.

28. The learned trial court shall issue summons by regular process as per Section 62 Cr.P.C. and also by registered post as provided under Section 69 Cr.P.C. to expedite the trial.

29. The learned trial court shall promptly take out all strict coercive measures against all the witnesses in accordance with law who fail to appear in the trial proceeding. Counsels or parties who delay or impede the proceedings should not only be discouraged from doing so but in appropriate cases exemplary costs should also be imposed on such parties/ counsel.

30. The police authorities shall ensure that warrants or any coercive measures as per law taken out by the learned trial court to ensure that the attendance of the witnesses are promptly executed.

31. The Superintendent of Police, Bijnor shall file an affidavit before the trial court on the date fixed regarding status of execution of the warrants/service of summons taken out by the learned trial court.

32. In case there is a failure on part of the police authorities to execute the warrants or other coercive measures, the Superintendent of Police, Bijnor shall state the reasons for the same in the said affidavit and also show the steps taken to execute the warrants. The Superintendent of Police, Bijnor shall simultaneously inform the Additional Director General of Police (ADG) Bareilly Zone, about the aforesaid failure of the police authorities in the first instance to execute the warrants and coercive measures issued by the learned trial court. If required, the Additional Director General of Police (ADG) Bareilly Zone, may issue an appropriate directions to ensure that the warrants issued are promptly executed by the learned trial court.

33. The delay in execution of warrants and consequent absence of witnesses is one of the principal causes of delays in criminal trials and has to be addressed effectively by all stakeholders.

34. The counsels as well as the learned trial court are directed to comply with the directions issued by this Court in Noor Alam Vs. State of U.P. rendered in Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 53159 of 2021. In case any strike happens during the course of the trial, the learned trial court is directed to ensure full compliance of the directions issued in Noor Alam (supra) so that the pace of the trial does not suffer.

35. It is further directed that in case any accused person who has been enlarged on bail does not cooperate in the trial or adopts dilatory tactics, the learned trial court shall record a finding to this effect and cancel the bail without recourse to this Court.

36. The delay in the trials caused by the failure of the police authorities to serve summons or execute coercive measures to compel the appearance of witnesses at the trial despite a statutory mandate, is an issue of grave concern. The said issue had arisen for consideration before this Court in Bhanwar Singh @ Karamvir Vs. State of U.P. (Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 16871 of 2023) & Jitendra v. State of U.P. .(Criminal Misc. Bail Application No.9126 of 2023) and was decided by the judgements dated 24.08.2023 & 20.12.2023 respectively. This Court in Bhanwar Singh @ Karamvir (supra) & Jitendra (supra) had issued certain directions to the police authorities regarding their statutory duty to promptly serve summons and execute coercive processes to compel the appearance of witnesses.

37. The Director General of Police, Government of U.P. as well as Principal Secretary (Home), Government of U.P. had taken out relevant orders in compliance of judgements in Bhanwar Singh @ Karamvir (supra) & Jitendra (supra) and nominated the Senior Superintendent of Police of the concerned districts as the responsible officials for implementing the said judgments.

38. In case the police authorities are failing to comply with the directions issued by this Court in Bhanwar Singh @ Karamvir (supra) & Jitendra (supra) and do not implement the said directions of the Director General of Police, Government of U.P. & the Home Secretary, Government of U.P. in regard to service of summons and execution of coercive measures to compel the appearance of witnesses, the learned trial court shall direct the concerned Senior Superintendent of Police to file an affidavit in this regard.

39. The learned trial court shall be under an obligation to examine whether the judgements of this Court in Bhanwar Singh @ Karamvir (supra) & Jitendra (supra) as well as directions of Director General of Police, Government of U.P. & the Home Secretary, Government of U.P. issued in compliance thereof have been implemented or not and to take appropriate action as per law.

40. The learned trial court shall also take appropriate measures in law after receipt of such affidavit which may include summoning the concerned officials in person.

41. The trial judge shall submit a fortnightly report on the progress of trial and the steps taken to comply with this order to the learned District Judge.

42. A copy of this order be communicated to the learned trial judge through the learned District Judge, Bijnor as well as Superintendent of Police, Bijnor by the Registrar (Compliance) by Email.

43. Government Advocate shall also communicate a copy of this order to Director General (Prosecution), State of U.P., Lucknow for taking appropriate action to ensure compliance of the directions in regard to Section 226 of the Criminal Procedure Code read with Rule 35 of the General Rules (Criminal) by the public prosecutor in all criminal trials.

Hon'ble Ajai Kumar Srivastava-I, J.

1. This Contempt Appeal has been filed against the order passed by the Contempt Judge dated 13.12.2023 framing charge against the Appellant.

2. A preliminary objection has been raised by Sri G.C. Verma, learned Counsel for the respondent that such Contempt Appeal is not maintainable against an order by the Contempt Judge, only framing charge.

3. Reliance has been placed by the counsel for the respondent on the Supreme Court observations in Midnapore People's Cooperative Bank Limited Vs. Chunni Lal Nanda, 2006 (5) SCC 399; where the Supreme Court had observed that a Contempt Appeal would lie only against an order imposing punishment. The counsel for the respondent has also placed reliance upon two Division Bench judgements of the Court rendered in Dr. Ashwini Kumar Singh Vs. Dr. Sandeep Kumar and others, 2020 SCC OnLine Allahabad 211, where the Division Bench also placed reliance upon another Division Bench judgement rendered in the case of Om Prakash Versus Arun Chand Pandey, 2008 (26) LCD 1467, and on a similar decision rendered in Contempt Appeal No.17 of 2005: Devesh Kumar Mishra and others versus Sudhanshu Dhar Trivedi.

4. The counsel for the appellant on the other hand has argued that the order impugned in this Appeal is not an order, framing charge simplicitor but the Contempt Judge has given a finding of the District Inspector of Schools being guilty and rejected the affidavits filed along with applications rendering unconditional apology by the appellant.

5. Appreciating the arguments raised by the counsel for the parties, this Court shall first consider the language of Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act.

6. Section 19 of the Act provides as follows: –

(1) An Appeal shall lie as of right from any order or decision of High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for contempt – (a), where the order or decision is of a Single Judge to a Bench of not less than two Judges of the Court; (b) Where the order or decision is that of a Bench, to the Supreme Court; provided that where the order or decision is that of the Court of Judicial Commissioner in any Union Territory, such Appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court.

(2) pending any Appeal, the Appellate Court may order that – (a) execution of punishment, or order remains suspended; (b) if the appellant is in confinement, he be released on bail (c) An Appeal be heard notwithstanding that the Appellant has not purged contempt.

(3) Where any person aggrieved by any order against which an Appeal may be filed satisfies the High Court that he intends to prefer an Appeal, the High Court may also exercise all or any of the powers conferred by Sub-Section (2) until an Appeal under Sub-section (1) shall be filed – (a) in the case of an Appeal to a Bench of the High Court, within 30 days; (b) in case of an Appeal to the Supreme Court, within 60 days from the date of the order, appealed against.

7. We shall now consider various judgments of the Supreme Court to understand the true import of Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act.

8. In Baradakanta Mishra Vs. Justice Gatikrushna Misra, AIR 1974 SC 2255, the High Court had refused to take action on the motion made by the Applicant for initiating contempt proceedings. The Appellant filed a Criminal Appeal under Section 19 of the Act, a preliminary objection was raised that the Appeal was not maintainable. The Supreme Court observed that so far as Criminal Contempt is concerned, it is a matter entirely between the Court and the Contemnor. The litigant can only draw the attention of the Court to the alleged Contempt, and it will then be for the Court, if it so thinks fit, to take action to vindicate it's authority and direct the arrest of the Contemnor for contempt. There is no right in anyone to compel the Court to initiate a proceeding for contempt, even where a prima facie case appears to have been made out. The Court may in exercise of its discretion accept an unconditional apology from the Contemnor and drop the proceedings. Even after the Contemnor is found guilty, the Court may having regard to the circumstances, decline to punish him. The Supreme Court further observed that it is only when the Court decides to take action and initiate a proceeding for contempt that it assumes jurisdiction to punish for contempt. Where the Court rejects the motion or reference and declines to initiate a proceeding for contempt, it refuses to assume or exercise jurisdiction to punish for contempt and such a decision cannot be regarded as a decision in the exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for contempt. Such a decision would not therefore fall within the language of Section 19 of the Act.

9. In Baradkanta Mishra Vs. The Registrar of Orissa High Court and another, AIR 1976 SC 1206, an order passed in contempt jurisdiction was challenged by Baradkanta Mishra before the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court observed that the appeal was not maintainable as only those orders or decisions in which some point is decided or finding is given in the exercise of jurisdiction of the High Court to punish for Contempt an appeal under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act would lie. An Interlocutory order pertaining purely to the procedure of the Court, including one relating to maintainability of the proceedings, did not amount to an order passed in exercise of jurisdiction to punish for content.

10. In Purshotam Dass Goel Vs. Hon'ble Mr. Justice B. S. Dhillon and others, AIR 1978 SC 1014, contempt proceedings were initiated against the appellant and he challenged the same before the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court observed that an Appeal shall lie under Section 19, as a matter of right from any order or decision of a Bench of the High Court if the order has been made in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for contempt. There may be many interlocutory orders passed in proceedings and it could not be the intention of the Legislature to provide for an Appeal to the higher Court as a matter of right from each and every such order made by the High Court. The 'order' or the 'decision' must be such that it decides some of contentions raised before the High Court affecting the right of the party aggrieved. Mere initiation of proceedings for contempt and issuance of notice on satisfaction, that the case is a fit one for drawing a proceeding, does not decide any question. The Court in Purshotam Dass Goel (supra) made an observation to the effect that either the matter may have been decided finally or even at an interlocutory stage if an order is made which decides a contention raised by the Contemnor asking the High Court to drop the proceedings and High Court refuses to drop such proceedings; such an order may be an appealable order.

11. In D.N. Taneja Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1988 (3) SCC 26. The Appellant had filed a petition before the Punjab and Haryana High Court for initiation of contempt proceedings against the then Chief Minister of the State. Initially, notice was issued but after reply was filed, the High Court dismissed the application for initiation of contempt proceedings and discharged the notices. The Appeal was filed by D.N. Taneja before the Supreme Court. An objection was raised regarding its maintainability. The Supreme Court observed that when the High Court acquits the Contemnor, the High Court does not exercise its jurisdiction for contempt. So long as no punishment is imposed by the High Court, the High Court cannot be said to be exercising its jurisdiction or power to punish for contempt under Article 215 of the Constitution.

In paragraph-12, the Supreme Court observed:

"12 – – the aggrieved party under Section 19 (1) can only be the Contemnor who has been punished for Contempt of Court".

12. The view taken in D.N. Taneja (supra) was reiterated by the Supreme Court in the case of State of Maharashtra Vs. Mahboob S. Allibhoy and another, 1996 (4) SCC 411. The Supreme Court observed that-

"the words "any order" has to be read with the expression "decision" used in the sub-section (1) of Section 19 as that which the High Court passes in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for Contempt. 'Any order' is not independent of the expression 'decision'. They have to be put in an alternate form say as in 'order' or 'decision'. In either case, it must be in the nature of punishment for contempt. If the expression 'any order' is read independently of 'a decision', then an Appeal shall lie under sub-section (1) of Section 19, even against any interlocutory order passed in a proceeding for contempt by the High Court, which shall lead to a ridiculous result – ".

13. In all such decisions, the Supreme Court was dealing with an order of the High Court that had dropped the contempt proceeding and the party aggrieved had filed an Appeal against the dropping of the contempt proceedings.

14. In R.N. Dey Vs. Bhagyabati Pramanik, 2000 (4) SCC 400; however, the Supreme Court observed in paragraph 10 as follows: –

"10. – – – When the Court, either Suo Moto or on a motion or a reference, decides to take action and initiate proceedings for contempt, it assumes jurisdiction to punish for contempt. The exercise of jurisdiction to punish for contempt, initiating a proceeding for contempt, and if the order is passed, not discharging the rule issued in contempt proceedings, it would be an order or decision in exercise of jurisdiction to punish for contempt. Against such order appeal would be maintainable." (emphasis supplied by us)

15. Thereafter, in Modi Telefibres Ltd Vs. Sujit Kumar Choudhary and others, 2005 (7) SCC 40; Supreme Court held that an Appeal was maintainable against an order where the appellant had been held guilty of contempt, even though no punishment was imposed upon him, but the order had given him an opportunity to purge himself for the contempt.

16. In Midnapore People's Cooperative Bank Ltd. Vs. Chunilal Nanda, 2006 (5) SCC 399, the Supreme Court after dealing with the entire law on the subject and its various decisions held as follows: –

"11. The position emerging from these decisions, in regard to appeals against orders in contempt proceedings may be summarised as :

(i) an Appeal under Section 19 is maintainable only against an order or decision of the High Court passed in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for contempt, that is, an order imposing punishment for contempt.

(ii) Neither an order declining to initiate proceedings for contempt, nor an order, initiating proceeding for contempt, nor an order dropping the proceedings for contempt, nor an order aquitting or exonerating, the Contemnor, is appealable under section 19 of the Act. In special circumstances, they may be open to challenge under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. (emphasis supplied)

17. In Parents Association of Students Vs. M. A. Khan and Another 2009 (2) SCC 641, the Supreme Court in Paragraph 11 and 12 has observed as under :–

"11. The controversy as regards exercise of jurisdiction of the Appellate Court under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act is a vexed one. Whereas one line of decisions beginning from Baradakanta Mishra Vs. High Court of Orissa till Midnapore Peoples Cooperative Bank Ltd (Supra) is that an Appeal would be maintainable only when an order of punishment has been made, in R. N. Dey Vs. Bhagyabati Pramanik(supra), it has been held to be maintainable if the jurisdiction is exercised by any court under the Contempt of Courts Act."

"12. The question, we may notice has been referred to a three Judge Bench in Dharam Singh Vs. Guljari Lal, SLP Civil No. 18852 of 2005 decided on 19.09.2005. We therefore need not decide the larger question, namely, maintainability of the appeal under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 vis-a-vis maintainability of the special appeal under the Letters Patent of the High Court, since the matter has been referred to a Larger Bench." (emphasis supplied by us)

18. In Tamilnad Mercantile Bank Shareholders Welfare Association Vs. S.C. Sekar and others, reported in (2009) 2 SCC 784; Supreme Court was considering an Appeal filed against an order passed by the Division Bench entertaining Contempt Appeal under Section 19 of the Act against an order passed by the Contempt Judge. The facts of the case were that in a Suit filed by an Association of Shareholders of a Bank (which was a company) before the Madras High Court. The Court had restrained the Bank from taking up in its Annual General Meeting the agenda items relating to election of new Directors in place of those retiring by rotation. However, certain persons were elected in the AGM as Directors. The plaintiffs filed a Contempt Petition against the Managing Director of the bank for alleged disobedience of the interim order passed in the Suit. The Court in contempt petition passed an interim order restraining the Managing Director from implementing the Resolution relating to election of Directors, notwithstanding that the persons elected in the AGM as Directors were not party to the Suit. The said persons approached the Division Bench as they were prejudiced by the interim order passed in contempt proceedings. The Appeal under Section 19(1) of the Contempt of Courts Act was held by the Division Bench to be maintainable as the court while sitting in contempt proceedings had passed an interim order, which was without jurisdiction.

19. The Court observed that apart from the fact that the appellant did not approach the Court with clean hands and was, thus, not entitled to any equitable relief, the manner in which the interim order was passed by the Single Judge in contempt proceedings was not justified. There was no finding recorded that the Managing Director had prima facie committed contempt. Ordinarily, direction could not be issued in contempt proceedings without arriving at a finding as to how the Managing Director of the Bank could be said to have flouted the order. Indisputably, the respondents were prejudiced by such order passed in contempt jurisdiction and a person aggrieved can move the higher Court. If an interim order was passed wholly without jurisdiction, an Appeal would lie thereagainst. In a situation where the order has been passed adverse to the interest of the Contemnor, an Appeal would be maintainable, particularly where a judgement had been passed by Court, which is beyond jurisdiction. Even assuming that an Appeal under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act was technically not maintainable, having regard to the fact that the interim injunction was granted till disposal of the Contempt Application, it was a judgement within the meaning of Clause 15 of the Letters Patent of the Madras High Court. Even proceeding on assumption that the Appeal was not maintainable, an aggrieved person cannot be left without a remedy. The Supreme Court further observed that apart from the fact that the order passed by the Single Judge in contempt proceedings was illegal and without jurisdiction having been passed without any application of mind, furthermore, the same was obtained by the appellant by suppressing material facts and the proceedings between the parties, therefore it was a fit case where the Supreme Court should refuse to interfere with the impugned order of the High Court. It is well settled that the Supreme Court does not exercise its jurisdiction only because it is lawful to do so. The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal with a cost of Rs.50,000/-.

20. In Dharam Singh Vs. Guljari Lal(Supra), the Supreme Court has passed a short order, referring the matter to the Chief Justice for Constitution of a Larger Bench. It has observed as follows:–

"the question as regards to interpretation of Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971 arises for consideration in this Appeal. Our attention has been drawn to the decision of this Court in State of Maharashtra Vs. Mehboob S. Allibhoy and Another 1996 (4) SCC 411; wherein a two Judge Bench has taken the view that no appeal lies under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act against any interlocutory order passed by the High Court stating that the words: any 'order' must be read with the expression "decision" used in the Subsection, so as to exclude any interlocutory order of the High Court from the scope of Contempt Appeal. However, in R.N. Dey and Others Vs. Bhagbati Pramanik and Others, 2000 (4) SCC 400. Another two Judge Bench of this Court has held that where, after initiation of a proceeding of Contempt, an order is passed without discharging the rule issued under the provision of Section 19, it would be an order or decision in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for Contempt, and against such order an appeal shall be maintainable.

It appears that various High Courts have taken different views on interpretation of the judgement in Mehboob S. Allibhoy (Supra) as some of the High Courts are of the opinion that even if a direction is issued to the contemnor by way of interlocutory order, the same would attract the provisions contained in Section 19; as such an order, or a 'decision' of the High Court would be in exercise of its discretion to punish for Contempt.

We are, therefore, of the opinion that the matter being of some importance requires consideration by a Larger Bench.

Accordingly, we direct that the matter may be placed before Hon'ble the Chief Justice for necessary orders.

In the meantime, there shall be a stay of the operation of the order passed by the learned Single Judge."

21. In ECL Finance Limited Vs. Hari Kishen Shankr Ji, Gudipati and Others reported in (2018) 13 SCC 142, the Supreme Court was considering a case where the Single Judge had only admitted Contempt Petition and had issued notice to the respondents. It is at that stage, the respondents had filed an appeal under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act. The Division Bench of Bombay High Court had admitted the appeal despite objections regarding maintainability, leaving the question of maintainability of the appeal to be considered at the time of final hearing. The appellant approached the Court against such order passed by the Division Bench. The respondent referred to decision of the Supreme Court in the case of R.N. Dey Vs. Bhagyawati, Pramanik (supra) and Tamilnad Mercantile Bank (Supra).

22. The Supreme Court distinguished R.N. Dey by observing in Paragraph-4 that R.N. Dey was a case where the High Court declined to accept unconditional apology tendered by the Contemner. It was in that context that the Supreme Court had held that the Contemner could file an appeal since he was otherwise entitled to be discharged in case, the unconditional apology had been accepted. In other words, the Supreme Court was of the view that the decision to reject the unconditional apology and proceed further was an order or decision to proceed to punish the Contemner. Hence it was held that such a decision or order was appealable.

23. Similarly, the Supreme Court also distinguished the judgement rendered in Tamilnad Mercantile Bank (supra) by saying that an appeal under Section 19 is maintainable if in the impugned order an issue has been decided or a direction has been issued relating to the merits of the dispute between the parties while exercising Contempt jurisdiction. It referred to Paragraph-39 of the judgement rendered in Tamilnad Mercantile Bank to say that it is a different matter if the Court while passing an order, decided some dispute raised before it by the Contemner asking it to drop the proceedings on one ground or the other. In such a situation, an appeal would be maintainable against a notice to show cause. The question of satisfying the Court by showing cause that the respondent-Contemner had not committed any contempt had not been considered by the Court. The Supreme Court rejected the argument made by the learned counsel for the respondent that before issuing notice the Single Judge had considered the merits of the case and had already made up his mind to punish the respondent and therefore an appeal would lie.

24. The Supreme Court observed that-

"....observations made by the Single Judge while issuing notice in the Contempt Petition is only for prima facie satisfaction as to whether the Contempt Petition needs to be considered on merits. Only after such a preliminary stage notice can be issued. Now, it is open to the respondent to file the reply, and after considering the defence, the learned Single Judge will have to take a call as to whether it is a case to be proceeded against for punishing the respondent. In case such a decision is taken by the High Court, it is at that stage that the respondent gets a right to file an appeal before the Division Bench in terms of section 19 (1) (a) of the Act…"

25. The question before us in this Appeal is with regard to the maintainability. Whether an Appeal under Section 19 of the Act is maintainable against an order passed by the Contempt Judge framing charges against the Contemnor in contempt jurisdiction?

26. The Supreme Court in aforecited case of Midnapore (Supra) had taken the view that Contempt Application is maintainable only against an order imposing punishment. There are a few judgements of the Allahabad High Court, which however take a different view altogether. In Smt. Subhawati Devi Vs. R.K. Singh and Another 2004 Criminal Law Journal Allahabad 4817, a Division Bench of Allahabad High Court after referring to various judgements of the Supreme Court observed in paragraph 15 as under:-

"15. We have carefully examined the expression namely "execution of the punishment or order appealed against"... From careful reading of this expression, we are of the view that the expression in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish a contempt, should not be interpreted as "imposing a punishment for contempt". Accordingly, in our view, the language used is more closer to the meaning, that an Appeal shall lie from any order or decision, which is made by the Court when the jurisdiction of the High Court is used for punishing a person for contempt. It may be appreciated from the introduction of the word punishment or order in Section 19(2)(a) of the Act. This is because under Clause (a) of Subsection (2) of Section 19 there is power of the Appellate Court not only to stay the execution of punishment, but also to stay an order in respect of which an Appeal has been filed. The law is now well settled that the Court must presume that the legislature does not waste words and as such every word in the statute should be presumed to have necessity of user in the statute, and must be given effect to consistent with its meaning. Therefore, it would be difficult for us to hold that an Appeal lies only against an order of punishment."

27. In paragraph 16, the High Court went on to observe thus –

"16. From the discussion made here in above, it is pellucid that an Appeal under Section 19(1) of the Act shall lie not only against an order imposing punishment, but also from an order or direction made by the Court in the exercise of its contempt jurisdiction– – –". (emphasis supplied)

28. In T. George Vs. Vijai Kumar Srivastava, 2003 (5) AWC 4247, a Division Bench of the High Court was dealing with the issue which is before us. That is, whether an Appeal would lie against an order framing a charge. After the charges were framed the Contemnor filed an Appeal and a preliminary objection was raised that no Appeal lies against this order. The Division Bench of this Court after referring to Purushottam Das Goel(Supra) held that an Appeal lies. The observations made by the Division Bench in Paragraph 14 are being quoted here in below:–

"14. – – – from the aforesaid observation of the Supreme Court, it is, therefore, clear, that an appeal shall lie against an order under Section 19 of the Act, even where the orders were passed at some intermediate stage in a proceeding. As we have discussed already, where some bone of contention was raised by the applicant before the learned Contempt Judge is decided and, therefore, it cannot be said that no Appeal lies against such order. The view expressed by the Supreme Court in the decision has also taken help of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Baradakanta Mishra (Supra) which has also been discussed by us in the following paragraphs of this order." (emphasis supplied by us)

29. In Sanjay Kumar Vs. Santosh Kumar Srivastava reported in 2023 (3) ADJ 354, a Division Bench of this High Court while noticing judgement rendered in S.M.A. Abdi Vs. Private Secretary Brotherhood, 2009 (4) UPLBEC 3106 and the decision in Tarun Kumar Agarwal Vs. Executive Engineer, UP Awas Evam Vikas Parishad, 2013 (101) Allahabad. Law reports 46; held Contempt Appeal to be maintainable under Section 19, if the Contempt Judge after exchange of pleadings refuses to discharge contempt notices and records a finding of the Contemnors being prima facie guilty of Contempt of the Writ Court's Order.

30. The Division Bench of this Court in Sanjay Kumar (Supra) summarized the legal position as per law settled by the Supreme Court, in paragraph 15 as under: –

"(i) an Appeal under Section 19 is maintainable, only against an order or decision of the High Court, passed in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for Contempt, that is, an order imposing punishment for Contempt, (ii) neither an order declining to initiate proceedings for contempt, nor an order initiating proceedings for contempt, nor an order dropping the proceedings for contempt, nor an order acquitting or exonerating the Contemnor, is appealable under section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971. In special circumstances, they may be open to challenge under Article 136 of the Constitution, (iii) In a proceeding for Contempt, the High Court can decide whether any Contempt of Court has been committed, and if so, what should be the punishment and matters incidental thereto. In such a proceeding, it is not appropriate to adjudicate or decide any issue relating to the merits of the dispute between the parties, (iv) Any direction issued or decision made by the High Court on the merits of a dispute between the parties, will not be in exercise of "jurisdiction to punish for contempt" and, therefore, no Appeal under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971. The only exception is if such direction or decision is incidental to or inextricably connected with the order punishing for contempt, in which event the Appeal under Section 19 of the Act, can also encompass incidental or inextricably connected directions. The order or decision must be such that it decides some of the contentions raised before the High Court affecting the right of the party aggrieved. (v) If the High Court, for whatsoever reason, decides an issue or makes any direction, relating to the merits of the dispute between the parties, in a contempt proceedings, the aggrieved person is not without remedy. Such an order is open to challenge in an intra court Appal (if the order was of learned Single Judge and there is a provision for an intra court Appeal) or seeking Special Leave to Appeal under Article 136 of the Constitution of India. (vi) In other cases, if the Court while passing an order, decided some disputes raised before it, by proceeding on one ground or the other, then, in a given situation, an appeal would be maintainable, even against notice to show cause. (vii) There cannot be any doubt that in a situation where an order has been passed adverse to the interest of the Contemnor, an appeal would be maintainable, particularly where an order has been passed by a court which is beyond its jurisdiction. (viii) Exercise of jurisdiction to punish or contempt commences with the initiation of a proceeding for contempt, and if the order is passed, not discharging the rule issued in contempt proceedings, it would be an order or decision in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish a contempt. Against such an order appeal would be maintainable.

31. Having summarized the settled legal position on the question of maintainability of the Appeal under Section 19 of the Act of 1970, the Division Bench in Sanjay Kumar (supra) proceeded to examine the impugned Order dated 14.09.2022.

"We have gone through the order and find that the Court below has recorded a finding in the second paragraph of the order that the officer is totally in contempt of the order passed by the Writ Court dated 04.12.2017. In the fourth paragraph of the order, the Contempt Court has again recorded a finding that without commenting upon the decision dated 06.11.2018 by which the representation of the respondent was disposed of by the Managing Director; the Contempt Court observed such decision to be totally in the teeth of the Order passed by the Court on 04.12.2017. Thereafter, the Contempt Court issued a direction that last opportunity is granted to the opposite party to revisit its order and take a decision. Thereafter, in the last paragraph, it stated that in case no decision is taken by the Board till the next date, the Court will be compelled to proceed against the officers concerned."

32. The Division Bench in Sanjay Kumar (supra) further observed that:-

"Finding so recorded and directions issued and the observations made in the order dated 14.09.2022 as noted above, leaves no manner of doubt that the Contempt Court has held the officers to be totally in Contempt. Therefore, the Appeal would be maintainable in view of the law summarised in paragraph 15 (i) and (iii) above. That apart, the Managing Director had taken a decision dated 06.11.2018, which could have been challenged by the respondent/ contempt applicant before the appropriate forum. We have specifically asked learned counsel for the respondent whether the order of the Managing Director has been challenged by the respondent and he has replied that it has not been challenged as yet, and the respondent proposes to challenge it by filing a petition before the appropriate forum.

Under the circumstances, the Contempt Judge travelled beyond its power to issue directions to the authorities concerned to revisit its order and take a decision. Hence, The Appeal is maintainable in view of the settled position above.

So far as the impugned Order is concerned, it would be suffice to observe that in the impugned interlocutory order, findings have been recorded that the officers are totally in Contempt. Therefore, the impugned order is unsustainable.

33. A Division Bench of this Court in the matter of Jai Karan Lal Verma Vs. Rajesh Kumar Pathak and others reported in 2008 (1) AWC Page 61 has categorically held that appeal under Section 19 (1) against order of Contempt Judge holding the Contemner prima facie guilty of contempt and framing charges is not maintainable, as such, orders are not the orders imposing punishment.

34. In Dr. Ashwini Kumar Singh Vs. Dr. Sandeep Kumar and Others, 2020 SCC online Allahabad 211, a Division Bench of the Court was considering several Contempt Appeals filed under Section 19 of the Act against orders of the Single Judge, framing charge against the appellants and calling upon them to file the response, if any, on or before the next date. The counsel for the respondents had cited Midnapore Peoples Cooperative Bank(Supra) to argue that Contempt Appeal is not maintainable. The learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellant had pointed out that Midnapore Peoples Cooperative Bank (Supra) had not referred to previous decision of the Supreme Court in the case of R.N. Dey Vs. Bhagyabati Pramanik, which had held that orders passed by the Court in exercise of jurisdiction to punish, even at intermediate stage maybe challenged under Section 19. He had argued that the word 'or' used between 'order' and 'decision' being disjunctive, the logical conclusion would be that even though an Order of Punishment would not have been passed, yet an Appeal under Section 19 would be maintainable in respect of orders prior to the Order of Punishment. The Senior Counsel had placed reliance upon E.C.L. Finance Limited Vs. Harikrishan Shankar Ji Gudipati and T George Joseph(Supra) in support of contention. The learned Senior Counsel also placed reliance upon Sadhna Upadhyay Vs. State of UP 2009 (65) ACC 64 (FB).

35. The Division Bench of this Court however in Dr. Ashwini Kumar Singh (Supra) has observed that order or decision may be separated by a disjunctive word but they should be read ejusdem generis. The word 'order' has been used to mean orders other than final decisions, which may decide a matter of moment; for example, in the Sadhna Upadhaya case, the assumption of jurisdiction, which was seriously questioned by the appellant on several grounds. Such orders may not be decisions finally terminating the proceedings but may amount to a decision of moment widely affecting the contemnor. However, if the order is only an order framing a charge simplicitor, it cannot be said to have widely affected the rights of the Contemnor. Contempt proceedings are quasi criminal in nature. While framing a charge, it is inevitable for the Court to delve into the merits of the case which does not affect any substantive rights of the contemnor as opportunity is given to the contemnor to controvert and place its defence against the proposed charge. Thus, order framing charge simplicitor, is only a reflection of a prima facie opinion of the Court as to the alleged contempt. The learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellant Dr Ashwini Kumar Singh (Supra) had pointed out paragraph 7 of E.C.L. Finance Ltd (Supra) which referred to the fact situation in the said case where only notice was issued in the contempt after prima facie satisfaction, that Contempt Petition needed to be considered on merits. In the said case, the Supreme Court had observed that it is open for the respondent to file the reply and after considering the defence, the learned Contempt Judge will have to take a call as to whether it is a case to be proceeded against for punishing the respondent, in such a case a decision is taken by the High Court, it is at that stage that the respondent gets a right to file an Appeal before the Division Bench in terms of Section 19(1) of the Act, but the Division Bench in Dr Ashwini Kumar Singh (Supra) distinguished the case and observed that the order impugned is an order framing a charge, which in no way affects the substantive rights of the contemnor. The Division Bench also distinguished the judgement rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of R.N. Dey (Supra) and observations made by the Division Bench in T. George Joseph (Supra) and by Full Bench of the Chhattisgarh High Court in Anil Kumar Dubey Vs. Pradeep Kumar Shukla(Supra).

36. In a Contempt Appeal filed against an order of contempt Judge finding the Contemnor prima facie guilty, the High Court at Calcutta in Arun Kumar Gupta Vs. Jyoti Prasanna Das Thakur, (1996) ILR 1 Calcutta 292 also distinguished D.N. Taneja's case and held in paragraph 9 that the ratio propounded by the Supreme Court, in D.N. Taneja (Supra) was not attracted in the case which it was dealing with. The criteria laid down by the Supreme Court in the case of Baradakanta Mishra (supra), in finding out the maintainability of the Appeal becomes inapplicable as there was an initiation of a proceeding by issuance of a Rule and the Contemnor was found prima facie guilty of the alleged contumacious act, and the Court found that they were required to purge themselves by carrying out the order violated. The direction for so carrying out comes within the purview of the term 'order', which stands in contradistinction to the word 'punishment' as used in Subsection 2(a) of Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act. – It further held that in the above view of the matter, the order is such as can be said to be amenable to an Appeal under Section 19(1) of the Contempt of Courts Act.

37. In Manjula Chaudhary Vs. Priyanka Chauhan, 2015 (4), MPLJ 704 a Division Bench of the Madhya Pradesh High Court had held the Contempt Appeal to be maintainable under Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act against an order passed by the Single Judge in Contempt Petition as the Division Bench felt that the Contempt Court could only have examined whether the directions issued by the Court in the previous petitions to consider the case of the respondent for regularisation has been complied with or not, and could not have gone into the validity of the order passed by the appellants rejecting the respondent's case for regularisation. The Court also clarified that it had not expressed any opinion on the merits of the case and allowed the appellant to challenge the order rejecting the respondent's case for regularisation in appropriate proceedings. The Court found that the Contempt Judge had exceeded the jurisdiction vested in the Contempt Court while issuing, directions beyond and in addition to the directions issued by the Court in the original proceedings. The Court had also found that Contempt Judge had gone into the merits of the case in detail and had considered the correctness of the findings recorded by the appellant subsequently, which were neither considered nor on record of the original writ petitions. The Court held that such actions were beyond the scope of powers conferred upon the Court in Contempt Proceedings. After holding that the appellant had committed Contempt of Court, the Contempt Judge had thereafter proceeded to grant opportunity to the appellant, either to purge the contempt or to show cause as to why they should not be punished for contempt. The Contempt

Judge had failed to take into consideration the fact that in the original writ petition filed by the respondent, the Court had simply issued a direction to consider the case of the respondent for regularisation, which direction was complied with and the respondent's case for regularisation was considered by the Screening Committee.

38. The Division Bench of Madhya Pradesh High Court while referring to several judgements of the Supreme Court observed that from perusal of the aforesaid judgements of the Supreme Court, it is apparent that in some cases the Supreme Court has permitted filing of appeal under Section 19 holding that the appeals filed against the orders passed in Contempt proceedings, other than the order imposing punishment, are maintainable. In some cases the Supreme Court has held that an Appeal under Section 19 of the Act is maintainable only against an order imposing punishment. It referred to the judgement rendered by the Supreme Court in the case of Purushottam Das Goel(Supra), where the Court had observed that Contempt proceedings is initiated under Section 17 by issuance of a Notice. Thereafter, there may be many interlocutory orders passed in the said proceeding by the High Court. It would not be the intention of the legislature to provide for an Appeal to this Court as a matter of right from each and every such order made by the High Court. The order or decision must be such that it decides some of contention raised before the High Court affecting the right of party aggrieved. Mere initiation of a proceeding for Contempt by the issuance of notice on the prima facie view that the case is a fit one for drawing up the proceeding, does not decide any question. In Purushottam Das Goel (Supra), the Supreme Court had given an example of an interlocutory order against which an Appeal under Section 19 would be maintainable by referring to a situation where the contemnor in response to the show cause notice appears before the High Court and asked it to drop the proceeding on the ground of it being barred under Section 20 of the Act, but the High Court holds that the proceeding is not barred. From such an order, although the proceeding has remained pending in the High Court, an appeal would be maintainable under Section 19.

39. The Division Bench of the Madhya Pradesh High Court observed in paragraph 10 as follows :–

"10. It is also significant to observe that the Supreme Court in the case of Tamilnad (supra), R.N. Dey (supra) and Purushottam Das (supra) has held the appeal to be maintainable against the orders by which punishment has not been imposed even after taking note of the decision of the Supreme Court rendered in the case of D.N. Taneja (supra) and in spite of the fact that a reference in this regard is pending decision before a Larger Bench, in the case of Dharam Singh Vs. Gulzari, Lal and others."

40. The Division Bench in Manjula Chaudhary(Supra) also observed in paragraph 14:-

"In view of the aforesaid on undisputed facts, we are in agreement with the contentions of the learned counsel for the appellant that he cannot at this stage appear before the Single Judge in the contempt proceedings and contend that he is not guilty of having committed Contempt of the Court as a final opinion against him holding him guilty of having committed

Contempt has already been recorded by the Single Judge. In other words, it is apparent that the finding that the appellant is guilty of Contempt has already been recorded by the learned Single Judge in the impugned order which finding is incidental to and inextricably connected with the ultimate order that shall be passed in the exercise of power to punish a contempt. It is also undisputed and apparent that by the impugned order, the Contempt Court has finally decided the main bone of contention between the parties thereby adversely affecting the rights of the appellant. A perusal of the impugned order further indicates that the prayer of the appellant to drop the proceedings has not been accepted and the appellant has not been discharged of the Rule issued in the contempt proceedings and therefore the impugned order is an order or decision passed in exercise of jurisdiction to punish for contempt and an appeal against such an order would be maintainable in view of the decision of the Supreme Court, rendered in the case of R.N. Dey(supra), Purushottam Das (supra) and the exception stated in paragraph 11(4) in the decision of the Supreme Court in Midnapore (supra). (emphasis supplied by us)

41. A Full Bench ofthe Orissa High Court in Amit Kumar Dubey Vs. Pradeep Kumar Shukla 2017 Cr.L.J. 1315 in its majority decision has observed in paragraph 38 as follows –

"it is apparent that there is some cleavage of opinion on the scope and ambit of Section 19 of the Act of 1971. Even the judgements of the Apex Court take divergent views. We may however mention that in none of the judgements before the Apex Court, the point in issue was the one specifically raised before us. That is only dealt with by the judgement of the Allahabad High Court in T George Joseph (Supra) in which it held that an order framing charge is appealable under Section 19 of the Act. We are in respectful agreement with the same."

39. On a close analysis of the law laid down by the Apex Court and the High Court as well as the provisions of Section 19 of the Act, 1971, we are clearly of the view that any order which is an interlocutory order, but by which the High Court proceeds to exercise its jurisdiction for contempt, would be appealable".

42. In paragraph 45 and 46, the Full Bench observed as follows: –

"45. Similarly, the phrase 'in exercise of the jurisdiction to punish for contempt', not only includes an order actually imposing any punishment but also any order or direction, which may be prejudicial to the contemnor , and which, if not passed, may terminate the proceedings. As held by the Bombay High Court, these may not be actually orders punishing the contemnor for Contempt, but maybe a direction prejudicial to the contemnor and passed in exercise of Contempt Jurisdiction. Supposing a contemnor files an application that the Contempt Petition itself has been initiated beyond the period of limitation, as held by the Apex Court, if order passed on this application is only that this issue shall be decided at the time of final hearing, no Appeal may lie. However, if the Court hears the application and decides, the matter against the contemnor and hold that the Contempt Petition is within limitation, that will widely affect his rights and Appeal under Section 19 of the Act, 1971 would lie against such an order as it is passed in exercise of the jurisdiction to punish a contempt. As said by the Apex Court, it would not be appropriate to make a list of such orders. Each case will have to be decided on its own facts.

46. As far as framing of charges concerned, such an order has to be passed after hearing the parties and the Court, after hearing the parties, considers the material on record and feels that there is sufficient material to frame charge against the contemnor. While framing the charge, the Court applies its mind. It comes to the conclusion that the proceedings should not be dropped and there is sufficient material to proceed with the case. The Court can also come to the conclusion that there is no sufficient material to frame charges and the proceedings could be dropped. Therefore, an order framing charge decides that there is sufficient material to continue with the contempt proceedings. In our considered view, this would be an order passed in exercise of the jurisdiction to punish for contempt. Therefore, an Appeal would lie against such order". (emphasis supplied by us)

43. The Full Bench of the Court in Paragraph 74 had observed that:—

"…Section 19 (3)provides for an opportunity to an aggrieved person to approach the Court for protection if he intends to file an Appeal against any order. This can be in the event a person has been ordered to be taken into immediate custody. Such an order can be passed upon conviction or even at the stage of cognizance as a measure of interim custody, pending proceedings initiated under Section 14 in a matter of Ex Facie Contempt. This can be a stage even prior to punishment when an aggrieved person may require the protection as provided for in Section 19 (2), this may take the shape of stay of an order of custody pending proceedings. An appeal in such a situation would therefore be available as a matter of right under Section 19 itself. To our mind, the legislature appears to have taken care of such a situation and has therefore consciously used the word "any order" while providing for a statutory right of appeal. This right of appeal would however, be not available against a pure interlocutory order not affecting vital rights nor would it be available to a person not aggrieved."

44. Having considered the judgements rendered by the Supreme Court and reference made by it in Dharam Singh versus Guljari Lal as well as the judgement rendered by Division Benches of the Court and also of the Calcutta High Court and Madhya Pradesh High Court and the Orissa High Court, the law as settled by the Supreme Court can be summarized as under: –

"(i) where an order actually imposes punishment, it is clearly appealable by the Contemner under Section 19 (ii), where an order declined to impose punishment, no appeal is maintainable at the instance of third-party that is the complainant; (iii) where an order declined to impose punishment, but contains some adverse finding against the Contemner, or decides some of contentions raised before the Court affecting the right of the party aggrieved, it may be appealable by the Contemner; (iv) an order not imposing punishment and not substantively deciding anything against the Contemner no appeal shall lie."

45. Section 19 of the Contempt of Courts Act provides a right of Appeal against an order or decision passed in exercise of jurisdiction to punish for Contempt. As far as words 'order' or 'decision' are concerned, they may have to be read ejusdem generis, but at the same time, it cannot be presumed that the language used by the Legislature is superfluous. The word, "or" is disjunctive, and the legislature has taken care of a situation where a person may be aggrieved by an order which may not be an actual decision, imposing punishment, or an order of the like nature, which prejudices the Contemnor, and which, if it had been not passed, may have terminated the proceedings.

46. In Modi Tele Fibres Limited and others Vs. Sujit Kumar Chaudhary and Others reported in (2005) 7 SCC 40, and in the case of Parents Association of Students Vs. M. A. Khan and Others reported in (2009) 2 SCC 641, and in R.N. Dey Vs. Bhagyavati Pramanik reported in (2000) 4 SCC 400; The Supreme Court has found it fit to interfere even in orders which did not actually punish the Contemner.

47. Now we shall consider the facts of this instant Contempt Appeal.

48. The respondents Surendra Pratap Singh and another had filed a petition against order dated 26.02.2018 passed by the District Inspector of Schools, whereby the Committee of Management of the Institution in question had been directed to stop payment of salary to the petitioners pending outcome of an enquiry instituted by the Commissioner of the concerned Division, since complaint was made to the authorities with regard to the alleged irregularities in appointment and grant of financial approval to the petitioners who were appointed on the post of Assistant Teachers and attached to primary section in the institution in question. Before the Court, it was argued that without due verification of allegations made in the complaint and during pendency of the enquiry proceedings, the petitioners' salary could not be stopped as the financial approval had already been accorded by the Competent Authority. Since the matter was yet to be finally decided and the irregularity, if any, in appointment of petitioners was not yet established as fraudulent. At the time of passing of the impugned order, there was no reason for the opposite parties to have stopped salary payment to the petitioners. In the counter affidavit filed on behalf of the opposite parties, a number of discrepancies and irregularities with regard to appointment and financial approval to the petitioners had been indicated in paragraphs-6 and 7. However, in the counter affidavit, it was also stated that a three-Member Committee was constituted to enquire into the allegations and the said Committee had already submitted its report to the State Government where it was pending final decision.

49. The Court after considering the material on record observed that it is admitted to the respondent that Financial approval had been given by the Competent Authority in 2017 to the appointment of the petitioners. The report which had been submitted by the Enquiry Committee was still pending consideration before the State Government and no final decision had been taken thereupon. No orders, cancelling or withdrawing the earlier orders granting financial approval had been passed till the date of the decision in the petition and that the opposite party could have passed such an order only once they came to a conclusion on the basis of evidence that appointment of the petitioners was illegal and dehors rules. The order was premature as no order terminating the services of the petitioner had been passed till date. Initially, an interim order was granted in June, 2018 staying the order impugned. Later, the writ petition was allowed. The impugned order dated 26.02.2018 was quashed. Further three directions were issued. A writ of mandamus was issued, directing the opposite parties to make payment of regular salary due to the petitioners with effect from passing of the impugned order. Such salary was to be paid within a period of six weeks from the date a copy of the order dated 11.11.2020 was produced before the opposite parties. The salary so given to the petitioners would be subject to final decision taken by the State Government.

50. After the Court order dated 11.11.2020, the petitioners submitted a copy to the D.I.O.S. on 08.12.2020 and sent reminders thereafter. The opposite parties allegedly started to harass the petitioners through the Economic Offences Wing by issuing an order on 25.01.2021. In pursuance of such order, the Senior Superintendent of Police, Economic Offences Wing issued notice and the Principal of the Institution also issued notice on 11.09.2021 to the petitioners and called for reply. Feeling aggrieved against the aforesaid action of the opposite parties, the petitioners again approached this Court in Writ Petition No.25226 (M/B) of 2021: Surendra Pratap Singh and another Versus State of U.P. and others, and the Court passed an interim order on 11.01.2021 staying the enquiry proceedings.

51. The opposite parties having not complied with the judgement and order dated 11.11.2020, a contempt petition was filed on 07.11.2021. Smt. Aradhna Shukla, Secretary Education, Government of U.P. Lucknow; Sri Vinay Kumar Shukla, Director of Education; and Sri Rakesh Kumar posted as District Inspector of Schools, Gonda were made the respondent nos. 1, 2 and 3 respectively.

52. After notices were issued and served upon the District Inspector of Schools, he filed an application for discharge of contempt notices along with a counter affidavit on 18.12.2021. In the said counter affidavit, mention was made of enquiry report dated 04.05.2020, which had found 37 teachers appointed illegally in nine Private Aided colleges without following due procedure. Copy of the enquiry report was annexed to the said affidavit. It was also stated that the Administrative Department i.e. the Secondary Education Department after appreciating the contents of the enquiry report had sent letters dated 13.10.2020, 24.11.2020, 03.12.2020 and 23.12.2020 addressed to the Additional Chief Secretary, Department of Home requesting for investigation of the matter by the CBCID or any other independent agency. In pursuance thereof the Economic Offences Wing of the State of U.P. asked for documents from the office of the District Inspector of Schools by its letter dated 04.03.2021. The District Inspector of Schools supplied all documents on 10.03.2021. Some other affected persons and not the petitioners approached the High Court in Writ Petition No. 16203 (M/B) of 2021: Guru Prasad Vs State of U.P. and others challenging the investigation being carried out by the Economic Offences Wing. An interim order was passed by the Court on 29.07.2021 staying further enquiry. In the meantime, the District Inspector of Schools had submitted a proposal to take action against the erring private colleges under Section 15(D) of the Intermediate Education Act 1921 and notices were issued to the Committees of Management of such colleges under Section 16-D. The Director of Secondary Education asked the District Inspector of Schools to make calculations regarding loss caused to the public exchequer in making payment of salary to illegally appointed teachers so that it may be recovered from officers responsible for the same. The calculation sheets were sent by the District Inspector of Schools to the Director of Secondary Education. On 04.08.2021, the then District Inspector of Schools Ram Khelavan Verma, was also placed under suspension, by order dated 02.01.2018, and Departmental Proceedings were initiated against him which were pending. The State Government was considering to pass recovery orders against the District Inspector of Schools, Finance and Accounts Officer, and the concerned Committees of Management, who had allowed misappropriation of public funds in making illegal appointments. The District Inspector of Schools had also requested the Director of Secondary Education by his letter dated 02.12.2021 that he may be allowed to take a final decision in respect of illegally appointed teachers. A copy of the letter dated 02.12.2021 was also enclosed to the counter affidavit.

53. To the said counter affidavit, a rejoinder affidavit was filed by the petitioner denying that their appointments were made illegally and reiterating that the judgement had not been challenged further and it had become final, yet it had not been complied with.

54. Another application for dismissal of contempt petition and discharge of contempt notices was filed along with the supplementary counter affidavit on 17.11.2023. In the supplementary counter affidavit, the District Inspector of Schools had stated that the petitioner along with 35 other persons had been illegally appointed without following the provisions of the Government Order dated 19.04.2003. Initially, no financial approval was given. The petitioners filed Writ Petition No. 1661 (S/S) of 2012: Surendra Pratap Singh Vs State of U.P and others and Writ Petition No. 1662 of 2012: Smt Anita Kumari versus State of U.P. and others, which were disposed of in terms of judgement and order 17.04.2012 passed in Special Appeal No. 607 of 2010: Kumari Poonam Devi Vs. State of U.P. and others, the Division Bench taking into account the argument made by the learned Counsel for the Appellants Poonam Devi that the Government Order requires fresh sanction before making appointment against a sanctioned posts existing in a private institution which would only delay the process of selection of teachers and further, once the Government order had allotted certain number of sanctioned posts to a particular primary school, there was no rationale to ask for fresh permission every time when appointments are made against such posts; had modified the order passed by the Writ Court to the extent that primary schools concerned shall not make appointments beyond the sanction posts available with them, and further that once a sanction in respect of appointment has already been granted, in respect of existing vacancy then against that no fresh permission would be required to fill the post. The Division Bench had held that in case the appellant had been appointed against sanctioned post, it would be inappropriate on the part of the authorities to insist upon seeking a fresh permission/ sanction.

55. In the said supplementary counter affidavit it was further stated that the petitioners thereafter made representation to the District Inspector of Schools, Gonda for payment of salary. The District Inspector of Schools rejected the representation of the petitioners on 11.03.2014 by saying that the Manager of the institution had forged letters seeking prior approval for making appointment of teachers in primary section. No orders sanctioning ten posts in primary section had been made available by the Manager. Also, no prior approval had been given for making appointments on vacancies arising out of retirement. Government orders relating to reservation of posts were also not followed. The appointments were made illegally and against the directions of the Division Bench in Special Appeal No. 607 of 2010, which had given liberty to make appointments without prior approval for initiating selection only on regularly sanctioned and created post. The District Inspector of School referred to advertisement having been issued inviting applications for filling a post only in two local newspapers and being made in violation of orders relating to reservation.

56. The petitioners challenged the order passed by the District Inspector of Schools by filing Writ Petition No. 3282 (S/S) of 2015: Surendra Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others and Writ Petition No.3246 of 2012: Smt. Anita Kumari versus state of U.P. and others. Both the petitions were dismissed as withdrawn on 02.05.2017. Despite the District Inspector of Schools earlier order dated 11.03.2014 being on record, the then District Inspector of Schools, Sri Ram Khelawan Verma illegally passed an order giving financial approval but in the said order also it was stated that such approval is conditional and shall stand automatically cancelled, if there is discovery of concealment and misrepresentation of facts by the Management. The District Inspector of Schools Sri Ram Khelavan Verma was suspended on 02.01.2018 and Departmental proceedings were initiated against him and upon completion of such proceedings by an order dated 03.11.2022, a recovery of Rs.14,43,130/- had been issued against him. Later developments relating to issuance of show-cause notice and filing of writ petitions against the same in which interim orders were passed were also mentioned in the supplementary counter affidavit dated 17.11.2023. Unconditional and unqualified apology was also tendered by the District Inspector of Schools in case the court felt that any contempt had been committed by him.

57. It has also been pointed out by the counsel for the appellant that challenge was raised to the Government Order dated 25.01.2021 by which the State Government had referred the enquiry to the Economic Offences Wing and the communication received from the headquarters of Economic Offences Wing, CBCID U.P., by the petitioners in Writ Petition No. 25226 of 2021 : Surendra Pratap Singh and another Vs. State of U.P. and others, which was disposed of by the Division Bench on 24.08.2023 and the Division Bench noted that the petitioners had only been called to get their statements recorded in connection with an enquiry/investigation being conducted by the Economic Offences Wing regarding fraudulent appointments by Management and educational institutions and payment of salary to such appointees. The Division Bench, did not interfere in the matter saying that merely because the State Government had asked the Economic Offences Wing to conduct an enquiry in the matter, it did not give any cause to the petitioners to approach the Court. The impugned letter had only asked the petitioners to appear before the Inspector, Economic Offences Wing to get their statements recorded, and at this stage it was not clear as to whether they were accused or just prospective witnesses in the criminal case. The Division Bench directed the petitioners to take all possible pleas on facts and law before the Inspector, Economic Offences Wing. The Court refused to entertain the petition and also refused to pass any interim order staying the enquiry/investigation.

58. On 22.11.2023, the Contempt Judge noted the submissions made by the counsel for the petitioners that they had been appointed by a Committee of Management on vacant posts after due selection by College Authorities. The judgement dated 11.11.2020 had not been complied with and the excuse taken by the Authorities in the supplementary counter affidavit filed in the contempt petition was that pursuant to the order dated 11.11.2020, the State Government directed the Director, Secondary Education to take appropriate action against the petitioners, who were said to have been appointed dehors the rules. A show-cause notice was issued to the petitioners on 02.09.2022 asking them to appear personally on 13.09.2022 in the office of the Director, Secondary Education. Instead of appearing before the Authorities, the petitioners had filed writ petition bearing Writ Petition No. 3034 of 2023. The Court passed an interim order on 26.04.2023, staying the operation and implementation of the show-cause notice to the petitioners. Although, a counter affidavit had been filed in the writ petition along with an application for vacation of interim order, the application remained pending and on account of the aforesaid, no final decision could be taken against the petitioners till date.

59. The Contempt judge thereafter observed in paragraph-9 onwards of the order impugned dated 22.11.2023 as follows : –

"9. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the material available on record as well as having regard the order of the writ court dated 11.11.2020, the execution thereof has been sought by the present contempt petition, I am of the opinion that despite the order of the writ court having been finalized as on today, the compliance thereof has not been done in its letter and spirit. If the authority/authorities concerned have preferred not to challenge the order of the writ court dated 11.11.2020 before the Superior Court, they had no other option except to pass appropriate order making payment of regular salary to the petitioners and it is needless to say that the benefits should provide the petitioner shall remain subject to the final outcome of the final decision so taken by the State Government.

10. Therefore, prima facie, it appears that the opposite party no.3 i.e. Rakesh Kumar, District Inspector of Schools, Gonda has committed contempt.

11. Shri Vinayak Saxena has prayed that some reasonable time may be given to the authority to pass an appropriate order making compliance of the order of the writ court.

12. It is needless to say that any appropriate order should have been passed by the opposite party no.3 by now. Therefore, for passing any appropriate order making compliance of the order of the writ court there is no question of granting liberty.

13. List this case on 13.12.2023.

14. On or before 13.12.2023, the opposite party no.3 i.e. Rakesh Kumar, District Inspector of Schools, Gonda, shall file affidavit of compliance making compliance of the order of the writ court in its letter and spirit, failing which he shall appear in person on the next date. If it is found that the order of the writ court has not been complied with, the charges may be framed against him.

15. In the meantime, Shri Girish Chandra Verma may file reply/short rejoinder affidavit, as prayed.

60. Another application for discharge of notices and for dismissal of contempt petition, supported by a supplementary counter affidavit was filed on 13.12.2023 where subsequent developments including the direction of the State Government dated 26.08.2022 to the Director, Secondary Education to take appropriate action against teachers appointed against the rules and the decision of the Director Secondary Education taken thereafter on 24.11.2023 to terminate the services of both the petitioners were brought on record. It was also stated that the State Government had given permission to file Special Appeal against judgement and order dated 11.11.2020 by its letter dated 08.12.2023.

61. On 13.12.2023 when the matter was taken up, the Contempt Judge referred to his earlier order and then observed as follows:-

"3. In compliance of the aforesaid order, Rakesh Kumar, District Inspector of Schools, Gonda is present alongwith the supplementary counter affidavit, the same is taken on record.

4. Sri G.C. Verma, learned counsel for the petitioners has filed supplementary rejoinder affidavit, the same is also taken on record.

5. The officer, who is present in person, could not explain the plausible reasons as to why the order of the writ court has not been complied with despite the fact that neither any modification/review application has been filed before the writ court nor the aforesaid order has been assailed before the appellate court. Sri Vinayak Saxena, learned Standing Counsel has stated that the authority has sought directions/ guidelines from the State Government to make compliance of the order of the writ court inasmuch as without having any proper clarification/guidelines from the State Government, he could have not complied with the order of the Court.

6. The aforesaid explanation is not acceptable, therefore, following charge is being framed:-

"Sri Rakesh Kumar, District Inspector of Schools, Gonda/ opposite party no.3 has deliberately and willfully flouted the judgment and order dated 11.11.2020 passed by this Court in the writ petition bearing Service Single No.18502 of 2018, therefore, appropriate punishment may be awarded to him under the Contempt of Courts Act."

7. The officer is given three weeks' time to file explanation on the aforesaid charge.

8. It is made clear that on the next date, further order may be passed after considering the explanation on the aforesaid charge.

9. List on 23.01.2024.

10. On that date, the officer shall again appear in person.

11. Sri Vinayak Saxena has also stated that in the meantime, the officer shall file affidavit of compliance.

12. It is also made clear that if the affidavit of compliance is filed alongwith the explanation on the aforesaid charge, then before passing any order on the aforesaid charge, the affidavit of compliance shall be considered first."

62. It is apparent that in the instant Contempt Appeal, the Contempt Judge in his order dated 13.12.2023 has given a finding of guilt of the Appellant/ Contemnor after considering three affidavits filed by him rendering unconditional apology and applications praying for discharge of notice have been rejected. The facts of the case regarding approval of the Competent Authority for termination of service of the writ petitioners and for recovery from the then District Inspector of Schools and Committees of Management of loss caused to the public exchequer have been ignored.

63. The impugned order does not frame charge simpliciter. It records a finding which adversely affects the appellant/ Contemnor and no scope has been left for him to further explain his conduct regarding alleged non-compliance of the writ court's order.

64. The Supreme Court in its various judgements has clearly held that where the High Court refuses to exercise its jurisdiction to punish for contempt and does not initiate contempt proceedings, no Appeal shall lie. It has also held that where the order is interlocutory in nature, no Appeal will lie. However, in the second Baradakanta Mishra case, it was held that those orders or decisions in which some point is decided or a finding is given in the exercise of jurisdiction by the High Court to punish for contempt, would be appealable. In Purushottam Das (Supra) the Supreme Court held that if the order or decision decided some of the contention raised before the High Court affecting the rights of the parties, an Appeal would lie. The Apex Court further held that when the matter has been decided finally or even at an earlier stage, if an order is made which decides and rejects the contention raised by the contemnor asking the High Court to drop the proceedings, but they are continued, then also the Supreme Court held that even an order passed not discharging the rule issued in contempt proceedings, would be an order or decision in exercise of its jurisdiction to punish for contempt. Similar view was taken in Modi Tele Fibres Limited (Supra) where despite the fact that the contemnor had not been punished, appeal was entertained as the Contempt Court had held him prima facie guilty of contempt.

65. This Court is of the opinion that in the facts and circumstances of this case, this Contempt Appeal is maintainable.

66. The Office has reported a delay of seven days in filing of this appeal.

67. The appellant has filed an application for condonation of delay supported by an affidavit.

68. We have gone through the affidavit and find the reasons given therein are sufficient.

69. The application for delay in filing the Contempt Appeal, bearing C. M. Application No. 2/2024 is allowed.

70. This contempt appeal shall be treated to have been filed in time.

71. The Office is directed to assign a regular number to this Appeal.

72. Admit.

73. List after exchange of pleadings on 10.04.2024.

74. Till the next date of listing, the impugned order dated 13.12.2023 shall remain stayed.)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J)

1. This Appeal under Section 374(2) Cr.P.C. has been filed by convict appellant-Pappu @ Dhani Ram against judgment of conviction dated 08.12.2008 passed by learned Special Judge, Gangster Act, Lucknow in Case No.90 of 1998, State Vs. Birju and Others, Case Crime No.78 of 1997, Police Station Fatehpur Chaurasi, District Unnao, convicting and sentencing the appellant under Section 3(1) of The Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 for two years and six months rigorous imprisonment alongwith fine of Rs.5,000/- with default stipulations.

2. Learned counsel for convict appellant argued that the appellant had been convicted and sentenced with two years' rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs.5,000/- and in default with further imprisonment of one month, which was a severe sentence, against the evidence on record. Trial Court failed to appreciate facts and evidence placed before it, resulting this perversity. He further argued that six criminal cases were shown as criminal history against appellant in gang chart. There was no independent witness of public to prove prosecution case, except police and official witnesses, who were examined before trial Court. The convict appellant is neither member of any gang nor he had worked as gangster. There was no anti-social activities of him. No credible evidence was there. Hence, offence punishable under Section 3(1) of the Act was not made out. Even then, charge sheet was submitted and judgment of conviction with sentence, as above, was passed. Hence, this appeal with above prayer.

3. Learned A.G.A. has vehemently opposed the contentions raised by learned counsel for the appellant and submitted that the trial court has rightly appreciated facts and law, placed before it in correct perspective of law. After approval of District Magistrate, Unnao, gang chart, having six cases lodged against appellant including Case Crime No.177/1993, under Section 395/397 I.P.C., Case Crime No.377/1997, under Section 307 I.P.C., Case Crime No.422/1993, under Sections 147/148/307 I.P.C., Case Crime No.167/1995, under Sections 147/148/302 I.P.C., Case Crime No.269/1996, under Section 302 I.P.C. and Case Crime No.56/1997, under Section 307 I.P.C., was in gang chart and on the basis of above gang chart this Case Crime No. 78 of 1997, under Section 3 of the Act got registered and investigated, resulting submission of charge sheet. Accused person pleaded not guilty and claimed for trial for the charges leveled against him. Prosecution had examined its witnesses, who had proved prosecution case beyond doubt and on the basis of those cogent evidence, judgment of conviction with sentence, as above, was passed. Hence, this appeal is baseless.

4. Heard learned counsel for the parties as well as perused the impugned judgment and trial court record.

5. Before entering into merits of the case, it would be relevant to discuss Sections 2 and 3 of the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act (hereinafter referred to as "the Act").

6. Section 2(b) of the Act provides definition of Gang:-

"'Gang' means a group of persons, who acting either singly or collectively, by violence, or threat or show of violence, or intimidation, or coercion or otherwise with the object of disturbing public order or of gaining any undue temporal, pecuniary, material or other advantage for himself or any other person, indulge in anti- social activities, namely-

(i) offences punishable under Chapter XVI or Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the Indian Penal Code (Act No. 45 of 1860), or

....."

7. Who is gangster. This was decided by Full Bench of this Court in Ashok Kumar Dixit v. State of U.P., 1987 (24) ACC 164 (FB) that Clause (c) of Section 2 defines the word "Gangster". It means a member or leader or organizer of a group which indulges in the kind of activities set out under the various sub-clauses of clause (b) of Section 2, by use of violence or threat or show of violence or intimidation etc.

8. The term "gangster" has been defined in Section 2(c) and it means a member or leader or organizer of a gang, and includes any person who in the activities of the gang enumerated in clauses (b) whether before or after the commission of such activities or harbours any person who indulges in such activity.

9. Gangsterism is aimed at creating special organizations and groups to commit murder, use violence and take people for a ransom or other demands, forcible deprivation of freedom often involving torture, black-marketing, etc. Gangsterism could also mean the destruction of buildings, ransacking and similar acts in a cruel manner to terrorize the people.

10. Section 3 of the Act provides penalty.

"Penalty.-(1) A gangster, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than two years and which may extend to ten years and also with fine which shall not be less than five thousand rupees:

Provided that a gangster who commits an offence against the person of a public servant or the person of a member of the family of a public servant shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which shall not be less than three years and also with fine which shall not be less than five thousand rupees."

(2) Whoever being a public servant renders any illegal help or support in any manner to a gangster, whether before or after the commission of any offence by the gangster (whether by himself of through others) or abstains from taking lawful measures or intentionally avoids to carry out the directions of any Court or of his superiors officers, in this respect, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years but shall not be less than three years and also with fine."

11. This Act provides special rules of evidence under Section 4. Hence the object of legislation for enactment of Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 (U.P. Act No. 7 of 1986 (as passed by the U.P. Legislature) was an Act to make special provisions for the prevention of, and for coping with, gangsters and anti-social activities and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

12. Further, Hon'ble Apex Court in Saju v. State of Kerala, AIR 2001 SC 175 has propounded at para 8 that in a criminal case the onus lies on the prosecution to prove affirmatively that the accused was directly and presently connected with the acts or omissions attributable to the crime committed by him. It is a settled position of law that act or action of one of the accused cannot be used as evidence against another. However, an exception has been carved out under Section 10 of the Evidence Act, the Court must have reasonable ground to believe that two or more persons had conspired together for committing an offence. It is only that the evidence of action or statement made by one of the accused could be used as evidence against the other.

13. In order to attract the provisions of Section 2/3 of the Act, the essential requirements are being enumerated below:-

(i) There should be a group of persons, who acting singly or collectively;

(ii) By violence or threat or show of violence or intimidation or coercion or otherwise;

(iii) With object of disturbing public order or of gaining any undue temporal pecuniary material or other advantage for himself or for any other person;

(iv) Indulge in anti-social activities categorized in fifteen categories of Section 2(b).

14. Meaning thereby, persons forming group may be said to be a gang if they by use of violence, threat show of violence intimidation, coercion or otherwise with the object of disturbing public order or if unlawfully gaining temporal, pecuniary material or other advantages either for himself or for any other person indulged in any of the anti-social activity enumerated under clause (1) to (XV) and those persons indulging in aforesaid activities as member, leader, organizer of the gang may be treated as gangster and may be liable for punishment under Section 3 of the Act.

15. This Court in Ram Raheesh v. State of U.P. and others, 2011 (73) ACC 559 has propounded that in order to attract the substantive offence of Section 3 of the Gangsters Act, the ingredients as provided in the definition of the word "Gang" under Section 2(b) and that of word "Gangster" under Section 2(c) are to be fulfilled.

16. Full Bench of this Court in the case of Ashok Kumar Dixit (supra) at paragraph 75 and 76 of judgment has held as under:-

75. While laying down so, we should not be oblivious of the avowed object of the Act. Under the ordinary criminal law, it is sometimes difficult to bring to book the overlords of crime and underworld because they seldom operate in person or in the public gaze. They indulge in clandestine operations which threaten to tear apart the very fabric of society. It is this purpose which the Act seeks to achieve.

76. But nevertheless we must sound a note of caution. Provisions of the Act cannot be used as a weapon to wreak vengeance or harass or intimidate innocent citizens or to settle scores on political or other fronts. The prosecution has to bear in mind that it has to bring home the guilt. Then, there is a further provision for appeal. Thus, the power of judicial review of this Court has been preserved. If it is ultimately found that a person was proceeded with in sheer bad faith out of malice and by way of political vendetta the authorities do not enjoy any immunity under Section 22 of the Act. This immunity is confined only to acts done in good faith.

77. In Clause (b) of Section 2 the word used is 'indulged in anti-social activities'. We may note here that the offences for which Sections 2 and 3 of the Act can be attracted must be those which have been committed after the enforcement of the Ordinance or the Act. It is not possible to convict a person for the activities, which could be and were of the nature defined in Section 2, indulged into by him before the Ordinance or the Act. Article 20 recities two limitations upon the law making power of every legislative authority as regards retrospective criminal legislation. It prohibits.....(i) the making of ex post facto criminal law. i.e. making an act a crime for the first time and then making that law retrospective, (ii) infliction of penalty greater than which might have been inflicted under the law which was in force when the act was committed. From the language also, we find that Section 2 of the Act is prospective in nature and does not take within it the activities which were indulged into before.

17. Further, Hon'ble Apex Court in Kali Ram Vs. State of Himachal Pradesh; AIR 1973 SC 2773 has propounded that in a criminal trial, the onus is upon prosecution to prove the different ingredients of offence and unless it discharges that onus, it cannot succeed.

18. Further, Hon'ble Apex Court in State of Punjab Vs. Bhajan Singh; AIR 1975 SC 258 has propounded that suspicion howsoever strong cannot take place of proof.

19. Hon'ble the Apex Court in Shankarlal Gyarasilal Dixit Vs. State of Maharashtra; AIR 1981 SC 765 has propounded that falsity of defence does not establish prosecution case.

20. Further in Pratap Vs. State of U.P.; AIR 1976 SC 966 Hon'ble Apex Court has propounded that prosecution is to prove his case beyond all reasonable doubt whereas accused is to prove only till establishing preponderance of probabilities in.

21. In Narbada Prasad v. Chhaganlal & Ors.; AIR 1969 SC 395, Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in an appeal the burden is on appellant to prove how the judgment under appeal is wrong? He must show where the assessment has gone wrong?

22. Under above perspective of law the impugned judgment and the evidence placed on record is to be appreciated.

23. Charges leveled against accused was that he was a member of an organized gang and being a member of above gang by violence, threat of violence and show of violence, he used to commit crime, thereby disturb public peace and public order and with a view of gaining undue temporal, pecuniary, material and other advantages used to commit offence punishable under Chapter XVI, XVII or XXII of the Indian Penal Code given in gang chart. As six cases were against him, hence he committed offence punishable under Section 3 of the Act. Accused pleaded not guilty and prosecution was to prove those essential ingredients.

24. The witnesses of this case, in their statement on oath in examination-in-chief have stated that the accused is history sheeter and he is having a long criminal history. Public abstains from giving any evidence against him. This was gone through from record of police station and found to be a true information. Hence, there was no other option than to take action under this Act. Gang chart was prepared, which was approved by the then District Magistrate, Unnao. Meaning thereby, none of accused was doing any crime or was of public terror or involved in any offence provided under Chapter XVI, XVII or XXII of the I.P.C. nor they were involved in anti-social activities within the knowledge of this S.O. Rather an information by informer was given and on the basis of above information police record of police station was searched and on the basis of cases written in it gang chart was prepared and thereafter approved from the then District Magistrate, Unnao and was lodged at police station concerned i.e. no offence under knowledge of prosecution witnesses was there except on the basis of information and going through record of police station. Neither any recovered goods were produced before trial Court nor they were placed on record. Meaning thereby, all the prosecution witnesses and their testimony is not of this nature to prove the existence of essential ingredients of offence for which charges were leveled against convict appellant.

25. Hence, testimony of all the witnesses is of no assistance to prosecution for proving that there was any violence, or show of violence or use of violence for commission of any offence under Chapter XVI or Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the I.P.C. or doing any act for earning property or money, as above, required for offence of gangster under this Act.

26. The criminal jurisprudence has developed that the victim is being accorded proper opportunity of being heard not only at the various stages of trial and even at the stage of disposal of bail. But the story herein is a bit different. The matter in question is under Section 3(1) of U.P. Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, and not under the IPC or any other Special Act and the complainant of the said case is the S.O. of the police station-Fatehpur Chaurasi, District-Unnao. So the counsel for the victim of the predicate offence i.e. Case No.90 of 1998 does not come within the category of “victim” pertaining to the present case, thus, the present prosecution has been initiated against the appellant only on the basis of gang chart, which records the criminal history of the appellant of various nature.

27. All the evidences were produced before the trial Court, but trial Court failed to appreciate essential ingredients for offence punishable under this Act and alleged proof of prosecution beyond reasonable doubt. Even rule of evidence in this said Act regarding above offence could not be taken into consideration because no property or valuable things were recovered from the possession of convict appellant nor it was proved to be earned or procured out of above anti-social activities. Rather there was no evidence at all except a formal registration of case on the basis of formal approval given by District Magistrate concerned over gang chart which was prepared on the basis of information of hidden informer and record of police station, in which all cases ended under acquittal. Moreso, sanction given by District Magistrate is also with no application of mind by District Magistrate nor with any mention of gang chart having specific offence given under Chapter XVI or Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the I.P.C. or offence by way of earning property or likelihood of creating any terror in public thereby abusing public order.

28. It is further observed here that a person may be involved in more than one cases but all those cases may be of such nature which may arise out of some trivial personal dispute over some drainage problem or over some connected boundary wall dispute or over some rival competing civil claim on some piece of land and the relationship of the two parties may deteriorate to the extent that they may get involved in some squabble, quarrels or sometimes even in making criminal assaults upon each other. Such kind of crimes are somewhat of a regular kind and nature. They do not make a good ground to impose Gangster Act.

29. The definition as has been provided in the Gangster Act is very exhaustive and has very wide contours. While dealing with the issues involved in the case of Gangster Act, the court has to be cautious and should not stretch it too much or to the extent where any kind of crime committed by anybody or all kinds of offences committed by anybody would make him a "gangster". In fact it is a question of fact and the court will have to see it as per the allegations made in each individual case whether the nature of crime committed was such on the basis of which an accused can be brought under the bracket of the definition of the gangster or not. There cannot be a over generalized formula on this point and the Court has to satisfy itself on a subjective basis as well as on the objective basis as per the allegations and the circumstances as they may appear from the nature of crime said to have been committed by a particular accused and see for itself whether he can be brought within the mischief of the Act or not.

30. This judgment of trial Court was not substantiated with evidence on record and prosecution was not successful to prove the fact against convict appellant. Hence, this appeal merits its allowance.

31. Accordingly, this appeal succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and order of conviction dated 08.12.2008, passed by the trial court, is hereby set aside and the appellant, Pappu @ Dhani Ram, is acquitted of all the charges. The appellant was on bail during the pendency of this appeal, thus, his personal bond and surety bonds are canceled and sureties are discharged.

32. Let a copy of this judgment along with trial court's record be sent back to the court concerned for immediate compliance.

THE HON'BLE SHAMIM AHMED, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 95 of 1998

Smt. Madhu Tandon ...Appellants
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
R.B.Khare, Anil Kumar Rajvanshi, Ayodhya Prasad Mishra, H.S.Jain, Shesh Ram Verma

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate, Bireshwar Nath, Shiv P. Shukla

(A) Criminal Law - Appeal against conviction - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 120B, 409, 419, 420, 467, Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 - Section 5(1)(c),5(2) - Criminal misconduct in discharge of official duty - Standard of proof required for conviction is proof beyond all reasonable doubts - Burden of proof is always on the prosecution and never shifts on to the accused person - Suspicion, however, grave cannot take place of proof and the prosecution cannot afford to rest its case in the realm of "may be" true but has to upgrade it in the domain of "must be" true in order to steer clear of any possible surmises or conjectures - Reliance solely on handwriting analysis and contradictory witness statements cannot suffice for a conviction.(Para - 20,22,28)

(B) Practice & Procedure - Finding given by the expert examiner is not full proof - Trial court must exercise caution when relying on expert evidence, especially handwriting analysis, which lacks the same degree of certainty as fingerprint analysis - Judges must proactively interrogate witnesses to distinguish truth from falsehood rather than leaving it entirely to the advocates - Trial Court must shed their inertia and must intervene in all those cases where intervention is necessary for the ends of justice.(Para -14,27)

Appellant's husband was convicted of criminal breach of trust and criminal misconduct - misappropriating funds while serving as branch manager of UCO Bank - prosecution relied on testimony of various witnesses, including bank officials and complainant - trial court convicted him - Appellant appealed against this conviction - citing insufficient evidence and unreliable witness testimony. (Para - Paras: 3, 4, 7, 10, 12)

HELD: -
Prosecution failed to establish guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Testimony of witnesses wholly untrustworthy and unbelievable. Testimonies of other witnesses, even if taken on their face value, fall short of the requirement of proof of the charge beyond all reasonable doubt. Conviction and sentence passed by trial court set aside. Appellant's husband acquitted of all charges.(Paras: 20, 28, 29,30)

Appeal allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. List has been revised and the case was taken up in the revised call.

2. Heard learned Counsel for the appellant, Shri Shiv. P. Shukla, learned Counsel for C.B.I. and Shri Ashok Kumar Singh, learned A.G.A-I for the State-respondents.

3. The instant Criminal Appeal under Section 9 of the Criminal Law Amendment Act read with Section 374 Cr.P.C. has been filed on behalf of the appellant, namely, Smt. Madhu Tandon against the judgment and order dated 10.02.1998 passed by Special Judge (Anti Corruption), U.P (West) Lucknow, in Case No.1/81 arising out of R.C. No.19/1979, convicting the husband of the appellant under Section 409 I.P.C. and Section 5(2) readwith Section 5(1)(c) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 and sentencing him to undergo two years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs.18,000/- on each count, the sentences of imprisonment directed to run concurrently and in default of payment of fine to undergo further imprisonment of six months.

4. The prosecution case in brief is that P.K. Tandon i.e. accused (now deceased), who was the husband of the appellant, was appointed as a Branch Managar at Koraw Branch Allahabad in the U.C.O Bank formerly known as United Commercial Bank and one-Shri T.N. Bhalla served as the chief accountant in the same branch. On October 10, 1979, at 11:45 AM, a case was registered against P.K. Tandon and T.S. Bhalla as R.C. No. 19/79 under sections 120B , 419, 420, 409, 467 I.P.C. and under Section 5(2) read with Section 5(1)(c) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947. During the period 1976-77, the accused obtained a blank cheque book of Shri Kamala Shankar Pandey, the proprietor of M/s Agro Service Center situated in Allahabad (now Prayagaraj) under false pretext. The chequebook, numbered 775830 to 775850, was subsequently used by the accused to forge the signature of the P.W.-5 on eight cheques between September 9, 1996, and February 17, 1997, the accused had fraudulently withdrawn a total sum of Rs.43,000/- using these forged cheques.

Additionally, it was alleged that the complainant had entrusted the accused with a sum of money to be deposited into a savings account. The accused, identified as P.K. Tandon, provided pay-in-slips with his signature acknowledging receipt of the money on various dates: November 29, 1976 (Rs.19,000/-), December 9, 1976 (Rs.7,000/-), January 13, 1977 (Rs.5,000/-), and January 21, 1977 (Rs.5,000/-), totaling Rs.36,000/-. However, the accused did not deposit the said amount into the bank account of the complainant, resulting in a loss to the bank.

Upon investigation, the case was handed over to C.B.I Inspector Shri K.P. Singh, who collected evidence indicating the guilt of the only accused, P.K. Tandon-accused, husband of the appellant for misappropriating the aforementioned sum of Rs.36,000/- and failing to deposit it into the bank account as instructed. Consequently, a charge-sheet was filed against the accused under Section 409 of the Indian Penal Code (IPC) and under Section 5(2) read with Section 5(1)(c) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947.

5. Charges were framed by the trial court under Sections 409 I.P.C. and under Section 5(2) r/w 5(1)(c) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947. The accused persons denied charges and sought trial.

6. In order to substantiate their case, the prosecution examined witnesses Rajeshwar Amolak Ramshani, Assistant General manager UCO Bank, D.R Kapoor, Director of UCO Bank, N.P Khare, Officer UCO Bank, T.N Bhalla Chief accountant UCO Bank, Kamala shankar pandey i.e. P.W.5 proprietor M/s Agro Service Center, Koraw, Amar singh Deputy G.E.Q.D, State Handwriting examiner, K.P Singh Inspector C.B.I Supervising officer.

7. Learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that the prosecution banked upon three types of evidences to substantiate the charges leveled against the accused. The first evidence consists of direct testimony of witness who has entrusted the amount to the accused, who had issued pay-in-slip related to deposit of money. The second type of evidence consists of those witnesses working in the same department who acknowledged the signature and writing of the accused. The last type of evidence is the evidence of Expert who compared the handwriting of accused inasmuch as he was provided with the specimen signatures and handwriting of the accused as well as signatures in disputed pay-in-slip, and who had given his opinion that the signatures in the disputed pay-in-slip were of accused.

8. P.W-1 Rajeshwar Amolak Ramshani, who was an Assistant General Manager at UCO Bank in 1981 stated that he had granted permission to run a case against the accused after obtaining the necessary authorization from the Board of Directors of UCO Bank. Furthermore, he mentioned that the accused was served with a joining letter bearing signature of B.D Desai, the Deputy General Manager of UCO Bank. He further stated that the accused was an employee of UCO Bank at the Koraw branch, but did not made any allegation regarding embezzlement of money from the bank by the accused, thus, statement of P.W.-1 also did not support the prosecution case so far it relates to the allegation that the accused is involved in embezzlement of fund.

9. P.W. 2 stated that he has given Power of Attorney to PW 1 to proceed the case against the accused. Thus, it is clear from his statement that he had not mentioned anything in favour of the prosecution case and he just gave his permission to proceed for prosecution of the accused in accordance with law.

10. P.W-3 N.P. Khare testified that they took charge of the Koraw branch from the accused P.K Tandon and claimed familiarity with the writing and signatures of the accused because he had seen the accused writing and putting signatures on relevant papers and further stated that one current account was opened in the name of the P.W-5 on 13.02.976 and signature of the accused were put on the account opening form, and also stated that on the name of the P.W-5 accepted Term loan of Rs.91800/- and Cash Credit of Rs.62,750/- on 14.06.1976. He further stated that he was familiar with the writing and signatures of the accused and had seen the writing style of the accused. Statement of PW-3 seems ambiguous because he had seen the accused handwriting and putting signatures while he was taking the charge from the accused. The claim of P.W-3 being familiar with the handwriting of the accused is dubious as he testified this fact after 10 years. It might be the case that P.W-3 has given statement against the accused under influence of the bank. The trial courts while examining witness to verify handwriting the trial court must adopt due care and caution. No common man could identify signature and handwriting of any person which had been signed or written 10 years ago. Therefore, the statements of PW-3 are not wholly reliable as he appears to be an interested witness. It is further observed that the accused in her statement before the trial court clearly stated that he had not worked with P.W.-3 but he was only present when the accused was joining in the U.C.O. Bank, thus, it is highly improbable that a person who has seen the accused writing or putting signature once that too ten years back could remember the writing style of the accused.

11. P.W.-4, namely-T.N. Bhalla, who was the Chief Accountant in the U.C.O Bank stated that on the date of issue of alleged pay-in-slips he was on leave, thus, he stated that he was not present on the date of issue of alleged pay-in-slips, which clearly shows that the P.W.-4 has not fully supported the prosecution and has only stated that he was well aware with the handwriting and signature of the accused, which is the subject matter of verification before coming to a conclusion that the signatures which are in dispute were put by the accused. So far as the statements of P.W-4 are concerned, it is pertinent to note here that initially P.W.-4 was also accused in the present case and later on under the influence of the Bank and its Officials turned into a prosecution witness only with the intention to save himself from the case and falsely implicate the accused in the present case, thus, it appears that P.W.-4 is also not a reliable witness.

12. P.W-5 Kamala Shankar Pandey, was not treated as a reliable witness because he had made false and frivolous complaint against the accused for forging signature on several cheques which were obtained from him under false pretext and used those cheques to misappropriate money from his bank account but this complaint appears to be false and fabricated as there is high probability that P.W.-5 has given false statements against accused for settlement of his Bank loan. Further, this allegation leveled by the P.W.5 against the accused regarding misappropriation of cheques which were obtained by the accused on false pretext and later they were misused by him, was dropped by the Investigating Officer at the initial stage of his investigation.

13. Learned Counsel for the appellant further submitted that in respect of allegation regarding pay-in-slips, the P.W.-5 further stated that he used to visit the bank to deposit money of which he used to keep record in his personal diary but at the time of investigation he could not produce his personal diary and further stated that he did not remember the exact dates on which the pay-in-slips were issued to him and regarding veracity of those pay-in-slips he stated that the pay-in-slips which were issued against the money which was allegedly deposited by him in the bank were undated, the only thing which goes against the accused is that the pay-in-slips bear the signature of the accused even though, the signatures which were put on the pay-in-slips are in dispute, thus, the P.W.-5 himself has failed to establish his case beyond reasonable doubt and the whole prosecution story is based on surmises and conjunctures.

14. P.W.-6 -Amar singh Deputy G.E.Q.D, State Handwriting Examiner has stated that the signatures of the accused which were produced before him for examination do tally to some extent but so far as the science of examination of handwriting is concerned he stated that the science is not perfect to give its full proof finding that both the signatures are same, thus, he stated that there might be some shortcomings in his finding regarding veracity of his report given in respect of signature examination. Thus, it is evident from his statements that the finding given by the expert examiner is not full proof. The value of the expert evidence depends largely on the cogency of the reasons on which it is based. In general it cannot be a basis for conviction unless it is corroborated by other evidence. The hazard of accepting the opinion of any expert, handwriting expert or any other kind of expert, is not because experts, in general, are unreliable witness, the quality of credibility or incredibility being one which an expert shares with all other witnesses, but because all human judgment is fallible and an expert may go wrong because of some defect of observation, some error of premises or honest mistake of conclusion. The more developed and the more perfect a science, the less chance of an incorrect opinion and the converse if the science is less developed and imperfect the science of identification of finger print has a ten year perfection and the risk of an incorrect opinion is practically non-existent. On the other hand, the science of identification of handwriting is not merely so perfect and the risk is, therefore, higher. An expert deposes not decides, his duty to furnish the court with the necessary scientific criteria for testing the accuracy of his conclusion, so as to enable the court to form its own independent judgment by the application of these criteria to the facts proved in evidence, thus, the statement given by the P.W.-6 is also not wholly reliable to prosecute the accused in the present case.

15. P.W-7 -Ram Chandra Pandey is an independent witness, who was also the guarantor of P.W.-5 in the bank loan amount and he used to visit the bank regularly with P.W.5 and they both know each other well, thus, it is clear that P.W.-7 is an interested witness, who gave his statements under the influence of the complainant only with the intention to help the complainant to establish its case against the accused and also help him to get some liberty in respect of loan amount, which was taken by the complainant from the said Bank. Further, there is nothing on record to demonstrate this fact that P.W.-7 used to visit the bank regularly with P.W.-5, which also create doubt in the mind of this Court.

16. P.W.-8 K.P. Singh, Inspector C.B.I. Supervising Officer, stated that after due consideration of the material available on record and after thorough investigation, he has submitted the chargesheet against the accused. He further stated that in respect of the allegations made by P.W.-5 on which the Bank initiated prosecution against the accused, P.W.-5 did not make any complaint to concerned authorities and he further stated that the alleged pay-in-slips were undated. Thus, his findings are also based on imaginary and concocted evidence which came up during the course of investigation.

17. Learned Counsel for the appellant after concluding his arguments on the factual and legal aspect finally submitted that the accused (now deceased) who was the husband of the appellant had been falsely implicated in the present case by the officials of the Bank and P.W.5, namely-Kamala Shankar Pandey in collusion with their other associates only with the intention to get some financial aid from the Bank as the P.W.-5 took some loan amount from the concerned Bank. The investigating agencies did not appreciate the factual aspect of the case and has conducted the investigation in a hasty manner and filed the chargesheet against the accused. He further submitted that the trial court also did not go through the legal aspect of the case and has passed the order of conviction in a cursory manner, thus, the present appeal may be allowed and the order of conviction passed by the trial court may be set aside and reversed.

18. Per contra, learned A.G.A-I and learned Counsel for C.B.I. have submitted that the charges have rightly been framed by the trial court against the accused i.e. the husband of the present appellant and no interference is called for by this Court as the prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt and the trial court has rightly convicted and sentenced the accused in aforesaid case, thus, this appeal being devoid of merit and substance is liable to be dismissed.

19. I have considered the submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and gone through the record.

20. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant is that the conviction of the accused has been held on suspicion. The suspicion, however, grave cannot take place of proof and the prosecution cannot afford to rest its case in the realm of "may be" true but has to upgrade it in the domain of "must be" true in order to steer clear of any possible surmises or conjectures. Thus, on the material on record when judged on the touch stone of legal principles adumbrated hereinabove, leave no manner of doubt that the prosecution, in the instant case, has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and the trial court also did not apply its judicial mind before passing the order of conviction and sentence, the accused, who made an error in issuing pay-in-slips without date for which he has no satisfactory explanation and to that extent he has committed grave irregularity. But, only on that point, it cannot be said that he committed the offences for which he was charged in the aforesaid case.

21. It is observed here that Section 409 I.P.C. deals with criminal breach of trust by public servant or by banker, merchant or agent. Section 405 defines criminal breach of trust. The offence like the offence of criminal misappropriation is characterized by an actual fraudulent appropriation of property. There is not originally wrongful taking or moving as in the case of theft but the offence consists in wrongful appropriation of property, consequent upon a possession which is lawful. The offence is distinguishable from criminal misappropriation because subject of it is not the property which by some casual act or otherwise, but without criminal means, comes into the offender's possession: but the property which is entrusted to the offender by the owner or by others lawful authority and which the offender holds subject to some duty or obligation to apply it according to the trust.

22. Further, Section 5(1)(c) and Section 5(2) of Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 are quoted hereunder:-

"5. Criminal misconduct in discharge of official duty - (1) A public servant is said to commit the offence of criminal misconduct: —

(c) if he dishonestly or fraudulently misappropriates or otherwise converts for his own use any property entrusted to him or under his control as a public servant or allows any other person so to do, or

5. Criminal misconduct in discharge of official duty -

(2) Any public servant, who commits criminal misconduct shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term which shall not be less than one year but which may extend to seven years and shall also be liable to fine."

So far as Section 5 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 is concerned, Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of C.S.D. Swamy v. State [(1960) 1 SCR 461] has held that that sub-section (3) of Section 5 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947, does not create a new offence but only lays down a rule of evidence which empowers the Court to presume the guilt of the accused in certain circumstances, contrary to the well known principle of Criminal law that the burden of proof is always on the prosecution and never shifts on to the accused person. In Swamy case, there were charges for the offence of criminal misconduct under two heads, clause (a) and clause (d). The trial court held the accused person in that case not guilty of the offence under clause (a) but guilty of the offence under clause (d) by invoking the Rule of presumption laid down in sub-section (3) of Section 5. The distinction between that case and the case under our consideration is this : in Swamy case, there were two charges either of which could be found on the rule of presumption laid down in sub-section (3); but in our case there is only one charge of criminal misconduct of which the appellant has been acquitted; therefore, there is no other charge which can be found on the rule of presumption referred to in sub-section (3). This is the difficulty with which the respondent is faced in the present case. It appears to us that the learned Special Judge and the High Court proceeded wrongly on the footing as though sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) of Section 5 of the Act creates an offence. The offence which is punished under sub-section (2) or can be founded on the rule of presumption laid down in sub-section (3) must be the offence of criminal misconduct of one or more of the categories mentioned in clauses (a) to (d) of sub-section (1). In the case before us the only category which was alleged against the appellant was that of category (c), namely, dishonest or fraudulent misappropriation, etc. That charge having failed, there was no other charge which could be founded on the rule of presumption laid down in sub-section (3).

23. Further, the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Harishchandra Krishna Gadkar vs. State of Maharashtra reported in 1994 SCC (L&S) 1055 has been pleased to observe as under:-

"7.We are unable to agree with the learned counsel. Apart from the evidence of handwriting expert, there is evidence of PW 6 the Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax (Mr Deshmukh) who deposed that the alterations were made by A-3. According to him, the payment of Rs 20,000 has been made by cheque received from the Office of the Income Tax Commissioner and he refused to sign the receipt as it was in the name of B.P. & Co. Thereupon, accused 3 scored off the words "B.P. & Co." on the receipt and wrote the words "Assistant Commissioner of Income Tax" and thereby made the alterations. In order to substantiate this aspect, certain specimen signatures were also secured and those were sent to handwriting expert and the evidence establishes that handwriting tallies with that of accused 3.

8.But the next question is whether that alterations could, even otherwise, in any manner, establish the guilt of the appellant. The High Court having accepted the evidence of handwriting expert as well as the evidence of PW 6, reached the conclusion that the part played by accused 3 shows that he must have been a member of the conspiracy. Having given such a finding, again, the High Court categorically held thus:"It is impossible on this evidence to hold that accused 3 must have enriched himself with this amount or a large part thereof". Having made this observation the High Court also commented that police investigation came at a much later stage and if proper investigation had been done, the truth might have come out."

24. Further, the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Fakhruddin vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh reported in 1966 SCC OnLine SC 55 has been pleased to observe paragraph No.11, which is reproduced hereunder:-

"11. Both under S. 45 and 5. 47 the evidence is an opinion, in the former by a scientific comparison and in the latter on the basis of familiarity resulting from frequent observations and experience, In either case the Court must satisfy itself by such means as are open that the opinion may be acted upon. One such means open to the Court is to apply its own observation to the admitted or proved writings and to compare them with the disputed one, not to becorof v an handwriting expert but to verify the premises of the expert in the one case and to appraise the value of the opinion in the other case. This comparison depends on an analysis of the characteristics in the admitted or proved writings and the finding of the same characteristics in large measure in the disputed writing. In this way the opinion of the deponent whether expert or other is subjected to scrutiny and although relevant to start with becomes probative. Where an expert's opinion is given, the Court must see for itself and with the assistance of the expert come to its own conclusion whether it can safely be held that the two writings are by the same person. This is not to say that the Court must play the role of an expert but to say that the Court may accept the fact proved only when it has satisfied itself on its own observation that it is safe to accept the, opinion whether of the expert or other witness."

25. Similarly in Paramjeet Singh v. State of Uttarakhand; AIR 2011 SC 200 also Hon'ble Apex Court was pleased to observe as under:-

"When the witness was declared hostile at the instance of the public prosecutor and he was allowed to cross examine the witness furnishes no justification for rejecting embloc the evidence of the witness. However, the court has to be very careful, as prima facie, a witness who makes different statements at different times, has no regard for the truth. His evidence has to be read and considered as a whole with a view to find out whether any weight should be attached to it. The court should be slow to act on the testimony of such a witness; normally, it should look for corroboration to his testimony".

26. Further the Bombay High Court in the case of Pandurang s/o Ramji Khade vs. State of Maharashtra reported in 1980 SCC OnLine Bom 201 has observe paragraph No.24 and 25, which are reproduced hereunder:-

"24. From this angle, it would be advantageous to refer to the decision of the Supreme Court reported in (1976) 4 SCC 233: A.I.R. 1977 S.C. 1706 (Rabindra Kumar Dev v. State of Orissa). In the said case Fazal Ali, J., has laid down certain cardinal principles of criminal jurisprudence viz;

1) that the onus lies affirmatively on the prosecution to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and I cannot derive any benifit from weakness or falsity of the defence version while proving its case;

2) that in a criminal trial the accused must be presumed to be innocent unless he is proved to be guilty; and

3) that the onus of the prosecution never shifts.

25. He further observed that;

"It is sufficient if the accused is able to prove his case by the standard of preponderance of probabilities as envisaged by section 5 of the Evidence Act as a result of which he succeeds not because he proves his case to the hilt but because probability of the version given by him throws doubt on the prosecution case and, therefore, the prosecution cannot be said to have established the charge beyond reasonable doubt. In other words, the mode of proof, by standard of benefit of doubt, is not applicable to the accused, where he is called upon to prove his case or to prove the exceptions of the Penal Code, 1860 on which he seeks to rely. It is sufficient for the defence to give a version which competes in probability with the prosecution version, for that would be sufficient to throw suspicion on the prosecution case entailing its rejection by the Court."

27. It feels pain to observe that in our present system of trial despite having sufficient power to the judge to ask questions to the witnesses in order to find out truth, most of them do not ask questions to the witnesses to shift the grain from the chaff. Practice of leaving witnesses to the Advocates, when a witness becomes hostile or is an interested witness, is not un-common in the trial Courts. Time and again Hon'ble Apex Court has reminded that a Judge does not preside over a criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished, but a Judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. Both are public duties, which the Judge has to perform. Therefore, the trial Court must shed their inertia and must intervene in all those cases where intervention is necessary for the ends of justice.

28. The loose ends and the suspicion raised by the learned counsel for the appellants cannot be brushed aside lightly. On a comprehensive re-appreciation of the evidence and material placed on record, this Court is of the firm opinion that the testimony of the witnesses is wholly untrustworthy and unbelievable. In criminal prosecution the standard of proof required for conviction is proof beyond all reasonable doubts. The testimonies of other witnesses, even if taken on their face value, fall short of the requirement of proof of the charge beyond all reasonable doubt.

29. Consequently, contrary view taken by the trial Court is against the weight of the evidence on record and the exposition of law attested by the decisions of Hon'ble Supreme Court cited herein above. Thus, on perusal of material placed on record and discussions and observations made above, it appears that the prosecution has failed to establish its case beyond reasonable doubt and the learned trial court has also not applied its mind to appreciate and consider the prosecution witnesses placed by the prosecution in order to substantiate its case.

30. Thus, in view of the aforesaid discussions/observations and the judgments rendered by the Hon'ble Apex Court cited hereinabove, the appeal is allowed. the judgment and order dated 10.02.1998 passed by Special Judge (Anti Corruption), U.P (West) Lucknow, in Case No.1/81 arising out of R.C. No.19/1979, convicting the accused (now deceased) under Section 409 I.P.C. and Section 5(2) readwith Section 5(1)(c) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 and sentencing him to undergo two years rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs.18,000/- on each count, the sentences of imprisonment directed to run concurrently and in default of payment of fine to undergo further imprisonment of six months is set aside and reversed. The accused, namely, Late P.K. Tondon, who was the husband of the present appellant, is acquitted of charges under Section 409 I.P.C. and Section 5(2) readwith Section 5(1)(c) of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1947 and sureties, if any, are also discharged.

31. Let record of trial Court be sent back to Court concerned along with copy of judgment and order for information.

Counsel for the Appellants:
M.P. Yadav, Ajay Madhavan

Counsel for the Respondent:
Govt. Advocate

(A) Criminal Law - Appeal against order of forfeiture of Surety Bond - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 446 - Procedure where bond has been forfeited - Sureties liable for penalty if accused fails to appear - Court has discretion to reduce penalty under Section 446 Cr.P.C.. (Para 9,10,11)

Appellants were sureties for accused - Accused jumped bail - leading to forfeiture of surety bond - Appellants challenged order of forfeiture and imposition of penalty -Accused surrendered before court - Discretion of court to remit penalty. (Para 4-5,10-11)

HELD: - Penalty amount reduced to the tune of Rs. 4000/- in view of surrender of accused and deposit of part amount by sureties. Appellants directed to deposit reduced penalty within one month.(Para 11-12)

Appeal partly allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Sri M.P.Yadav, learned counsel for the appellants and Sri Ashok Kumar Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. This is an appeal under Section 449 Cr.P.C. against the judgment and order dated 5.6.2003 passed by Additional Session Judge, District Barabanki (FTC Court No.29) in Criminal Misc. Case No. 5/2023:State Vs. Ram Sanehi and another sentencing the appellants under Section 446 Cr.P.C. to pay Rs. 15,000/- each with default stipulation by means of which the surety bonds of the appellants have been forfeited.

3. Learned counsel for the appellants submits that in complaince the order dated 21.08.2023, the appellants have already filed the Supplementary affidavit dated 05.01.2024, which is available on record.

4. Learned counsel for appellants has submitted that the appellants were sureties of Rs. 15000/- each in S.T. No. 200/1994, under Section 394/412 I.P.C. of accused Dinesh Yadav but he jumped the bail.

5. Learned counsel for appellants has further submitted that when accused Dinesh Yadav did not appear before the court, notice was issued to appellants (sureties) Ram Sanehi and Parsu Ram under Section 446 Cr.P.C., thereafter the court below vide order dated 05.06.2003 forfeited the sureties of Rs.15,000/- and issued recovery warrant and in default of payment, the trial court also imposed six months imprisonment.

6. Learned counsel for appellants has further submitted that the appellants preferred the instant criminal appeal before this Hon'ble Court and this Hon'ble Court vide order dated 23.01.2004 while staying the operation of the impugned order dated 05.06.2003 directed the appellants to deposit Rs. 4000/- towards the bond amount in the court concerned, within fifteen days from the date of order.

7. Learned counsel for appellants has further submitted that in compliance of the order dated 23.01.2004 the appellants have deposited the amount.

8. Learned counsel for appellants has further submitted that the accused Dinesh Yadav has already surrendered before the court concerned on 05.11.2003 in another case S.T. No. 356/2002: State of U.P. Vs. Dinesh Yadav, arising out of Crime No. 244/1997,under Section 395/412 I.P.C. pending in the Court of ADJ (Fast Track Court) Court No.32 and since then he is in jail.

9. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that the appellants are not the accused in this case. He stood surety and proceeding under Section 446 Cr.P.C. is as follows:

"(1) Where a bond under this Code is for appearance, or for production of property, before a Court and it is proved to the satisfaction of that Court, or of any Court to which the case has subsequently been transferred, that the bond has been forfeited, or where, in respect of any other bond under this Code, it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court by which the bond was taken, or of any Court to which the case has subsequently been transferred, or of the Court of any Magistrate of the first class, that the bond has been forfeited, the Court shall record the grounds of such proof, and may call upon any person bound by such bond to pay the penalty thereof or to show cause why it should not be paid. Explanation.- A condition in a bond for appearance, or for production of property, before a Court shall be construed as including a condition for appearance, or as the case may be, for production of property, before any Court to which the case may subsequently be transferred.

(2) If sufficient cause is not shown and the penalty is not paid, the Court may proceed to recover the same as if such penalty were a fine imposed by it under this Code. 1 provided that where such penalty is not paid and cannot be recovered in the manner aforesaid, the person so bound as surety shall be liable, by order of the Court ordering the recovery of the penalty, to imprisonment in civil jail for a term which may extend to six months.

(3) The Court may, at its discretion, remit any portion of the penalty mentioned and enforce payment in part only.

(4) Where a surety to a bond dies before the bond is forfeited, his estate shall be discharged from all liability in respect of the bond.

(5) Where any person who has furnished security under section 106 or section 117 or section 360 is convicted of an offence the commission of which constitutes a breach of the conditions of his bond, or of a bond executed in lieu of his bond under section 448, a certified copy of the judgment of the Court by which he was convicted of such offence may be used as evidence in proceedings under this section against his surety or sureties, and,; if such certified copy is so used, the Court shall presume that such offence was committed by him unless the contrary is proved."

10. Learned A.G.A. for the State submits that as it was the duty of the sureties to ensure that accused was appearing in the Court on each and every date. Sureties have failed to ensure it because accused did not appear in Court, hence the court below had no option but to pass the impugned order, thus the learned court below had rightly passed the impugned order dated 05.06.2003, but did not dispute this fact that appellants were surety of accused Dinesh Yadav in S.T. No. 200/1994, under Section 394/412 I.P.C. of accused Dinesh Yadav and accused Dinesh Yadav appeared and surrendered before the court concerned on 05.11.2003 in another case S.T. No. 356/2002: State of U.P. Vs. Dinesh Yadav, arising out of Crime No. 244/1997,under Section 395/412 I.P.C. pending in the Court of ADJ (Fast Track Court) Court No.32 and since then he is in jail. He further submits that under Section 446 Cr.P.C. the Court has discretion to remit a portion of penalty imposed upon the appellants.

11. Considering the overall facts and circumstances of the case and also the argument of learned counsel for the appellants that the accused of the instant case has surrendered before the court concerned, in my view, interest of justice would be sub-served if the penalty amount imposed upon the appellants is reduced to the tune of Rs. 4,000/-, in light of the order dated 23.01.2004 of this Court in place of surety amount of Rs. 15,000/- and appeal may be allowed in part.

12. Accordingly, the appeal is partly allowed. The penalty amount imposed by the court below is reduced to the tune of Rs. 4000/-. If the penalty amount has not already been deposited, the same be deposited within one month from today positively. On account of failure, the penalty amount fixed in this appeal be realized by the court below in accordance with law.

13. A certified copy of the order be also sent to the court concerned for compliance.

14. Office is directed to communicate this order to the court concerned for necessary compliance.

15. Record of trial court, if any, shall also be sent back to the district court concerned.

(A) Criminal Law - Appeal against Conviction - Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Section 436 – Mischief by fire or explosive substance with intent to destroy house - Burden of proof - Presumption of innocence - Evaluation of evidence – Witnesses - three distinct categories - wholly reliable, wholly unreliable, neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable - Hostile witness ordinarily falls in category of those witnesses who are neither wholly reliable nor wholly un-reliable - Same treatment required to be given to the defence witness(es) as is to be given to the prosecution witness(es) - Court is concerned with the quality and not with the quantity of the evidence necessary for proving or disproving a fact - Accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and a mental distinction between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divided vague conjectures from sure conclusions. (Para - 19 ,33,34 , 36)

(B) Evidence Law - Evidence Act 1872 - Section 154(1) , (2) - Question by party to his own witness - statement of witness is to be read as a whole and conclusion should not be drawn only by picking up a single sentence of the statement of a witness – held - Trial court had overlooked the material evidence available on record with regard to guilt of accused and to that extent conclusion drawn by the trial Court suffers with patent infirmity and perversity and, therefore, liable to be reversed and set aside.(Para -41)

(C) Practice & Procedure - Judges must proactively interrogate witnesses to distinguish truth from falsehood rather than leaving it entirely to the advocates - Trial Court must shed their inertia and must intervene in all those cases where intervention is necessary for the ends of justice. (Para -37)

(D) Words or Phrases - Presumption of Innocence – "ei incumbit probatio qui dicit, non qui negat" (the burden of proof is on one who declares, not to one who denies): an accused is considered innocent until proven guilty - It is the duty of the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused. Hostile Witness: witness who contradicts their earlier statements or acts unfavorably towards the party that called them. Falsus in Uno, Falsus in Omnibus (false in one thing, false in everything): A principle not applied in Indian law, emphasizing the need to separate reliable testimony from falsehoods - duty of Court to separate grain from chaff. (Paras 17, 19, 24, 27)

Appellant convicted for burning canteen in court premises - prosecution relied on testimony of several witnesses, including informant and an eyewitness - witnesses were declared hostile and their testimony was inconsistent defense, on the other hand, presented witnesses who claimed that the fire was accidental - Appeal against conviction.(Para - 1-8, 26-32)

HELD: - Trial court failed to circumspect the material on record carefully and had erred passing the impugned judgment and order. Prosecution failed to prove the guilt of the accused beyond a reasonable doubt. Conviction under Section 436 IPC set aside. Appellant acquitted. (Para - 35,42)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J)

1. Heard Sri Nadeem Murtaza, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Ashok Srivastava, learned A.G.A. for the State as well as perused the record.

2. By means of the instant criminal appeal, the appellant has challenged the judgment and order dated 26.04.2000 passed by learned Second Additional Sessions Judge, Lucknow in Sessions Trial No.192 of 1995, convicting and sentencing the appellant under Section 436 I.P.C. for three years rigorous imprisonment.

3. The prosecution story as narrated in the First Information Report registered as Case Crime No.27 of 1991, under Sections 436 I.P.C. at Police Station Kaiserbagh, Lucknow on 23.04.1991 by one Shiv Das alleging therein that his son has been allotted a canteen in the compound of American Library Court where the informant was present on 23.01.1991 alongwith his two workers. At about 08:30 AM, the appellant who is an employee of Civil Court, allegedly came and asked for Suraj (Son of the informant), upon which, the informant told the appellant that he will come to canteen at about 11:00 A.M., hearing this, the appellant allegedly poured kerosene oil over the canteen and set the same on fire, due to which, not only the canteen was burnt but chamber of an advocate was also burnt.

4. Pursuant to the registration of the First Information Report, the police carried out investigation and submitted chargesheet against the appellant under Section 436 I.P.C. on 17.05.1991. The matter being triable by the court of sessions, was committed to the Sessions Court for trial where charge under section 436 IPC was framed against the appellant, who pleaded not guilty to the aforesaid charge and claimed to be tried.

5. In order to bring home the charge under section 436 IPC against the appellant, the prosecution produced following four persons as prosecution witnesses:-

(i) P.W.-1 Shivdas, Informant (alleged eye witness)

(ii) P.W.-2 Constable Girdhar Singh (Proved chik FIR and General Diary entry)

(iii) P.W.-3 Vijay Kumar, Employee of the Canteen (Alleged Eye Witness)

(iv) P.W.-4 Durgesh Kumar Tiwari, Investigating Officer.

6. The appellant in his statement under section 313 CrPC denied the case of prosecution and produced following two witness in his defence;-

(i) DW-1 Ajeet Singh Yadav, Clerk of Advocate whose chamber was burnt

(ii) DW-2 Mahendra Pratap Singh, Advocate

7. After having heard the rival submissions of parties, the Trial Court found appellant-accused guilty, therefore, convicted and sentenced him under Section 436 I.P.C. for three years rigorous imprisonment.

8. Feeling aggrieved by the judgment of conviction and sentence passed by Trial Court, the appellant-accused has preferred this appeal.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the learned trial court has convicted the accused on the testimonies of the prosecution witnesses ignoring that their testimonies are full of infirmities and contradictions. PW-1 failed to assign any motive for the alleged offence throughout the entire prosecution story. Even he fails to recall the date, time and year of the alleged incident. PW-1 also failed to explain as to why he did not try to stop and catch the appellant. Moreover, his version that an Advocate went to police station along with him belied by PW-2, namely, constable Girdhar Singh, thus, making him unreliable witness.

10. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that same is the case with PW-3 whose testimony inspires no confidence.

11. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that on the other hand the defence witnesses are more reliable and their version seems to inspire much more confidence than that of prosecution. DW-1 who happens to be the clerk of an Advocate, whose seat got burnt, clearly stated that fire accident in the instant case was the result of the carelessness of the child employee of the Canteen who was trying to fill the Air in the stove.

12. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that likewise DW-2 who happens to be an Advocate stated that the fire accident corroborates the version of DW-1 effectively and confirms that the fire accident was the result of the carelessness of the child employee of the Canteen who was preparing the stove in order to make tea.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that clearly the prosecution story appears to be a wholly unreliable and the the prosecution has completely failed to prove its case beyond the realm of reasonable doubt and the learned Trial Court has erroneously neglected the entire defence version.

14. Learned counsel for the appellant further submitted that the judgment and order passed by the Trial Court is wrong both on facts and law. The learned trial court had misread and misconstrued the statements of prosecution witnesses and even other witnesses have also not supported the prosecution case.

15. Learned counsel for the appellant has further contended that the learned trial court had wrongly relied upon that when a witness has been declared hostile, his statement could be relied upon with some extent. As such, he submits that the learned trial court has erred in law and passed the impugned order, therefore, the same is liable to be set aside and the instant appeal is liable to be allowed.

16. Opposing the contention of learned Counsel for the appellant-accused, the learned A.G.A. has contended that sufficient evidence was given by the prosecution to prove the factum of committing the crime i.e. burning of canteen wherein a chamber of an Advocate was also burnt. The F.I.R. was also immediately lodged and the prosecution witnesses have also proved the commission of offence, as such, the impugned order does not require any interference by this Court and the appeal is liable to be dismissed.

17. After hearing the argument advanced by learned counsel for the parties, this Court is of the view that through out the web of the Criminal Jurisprudence, one golden thread is always seen that it is the duty of the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused. This burden of proof on prosecution to prove guilt is also known as presumption of innocence. The presumption of innocence, sometimes refer to by the latin expression "ei incumbit probatio qui dicit, non qui negat" (the burden of proof is on one who declares, not to one who denies) is the principle that one is considered innocence unless proven guilt. In criminal jurisprudence every accused is presumed to be innocent unless the guilt is proved. The presumption of innocence is a human right. The prosecution may obtain a criminal conviction only when the evidence proves the guilt of accused beyond reasonable doubt.

18. In the present case, almost all the prosecution witnesses have turned hostile. It is based on testimony of hostile prosecution witnesses from which guilt of accused may be inferred.

19. Witnesses may be categorized into three distinct categories. They may be wholly reliable. Similarly there may be witnesses who can be considered wholly unreliable. There is no difficulty in placing reliance or disbelieving his evidence when an evidence is wholly reliable or wholly un-reliable, but difficulty arises in case of third category i.e. where witness is neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable. Hostile witness ordinarily falls in category of those witnesses who are neither wholly reliable nor wholly un-reliable. Hon'ble Apex Court in Khujji @ Surendra Tiwari Vs. State of M.P. AIR 1991 SC page 1853 was pleased to observe as under :-

"The evidence of a prosecution witness cannot be rejected in toto merely because the prosecution chose to treat him as hostile and cross-examined him. The evidence of such witnesses cannot be treated as effaced or washed off the record altogether, but the same can be accepted to the extent their version is found to be dependable on a careful scrutiny thereof."

20. The term "hostile witness" does not find place in Evidence Act 1872 (here-in-after referred as Act of 1872 for brevity). It is a term borrowed from English Law. Though in English Law to allow a party to contradict its own witness was not acceptable view. The theory of contradicting its own witness was resisted on the ground that party should be permitted to discard or contradict his own witness, which turns unfavorable to party calling him, however, this rigidity of rule was sought to be relaxed by evolving a term "hostile" or "un-favourable witness" in common law.

21. It is relevant to quote Section 154 (1) of the Act of 1872, which reads as under:-

"the Court may, in its discretion, permit the person who calls a witness to put any question to him, which might be put in cross examination by the adverse party".

22. Sub-Section (2) of Section 154 of Act of 1872, further provides that :-

"Nothing in this section shall disentitle the person so permitted under sub-section (1), to rely on any part of evidence of such witness".

23. Thus discretion is vested in Court to permit a person to put such question, which may be put by adverse party, if Court deems it appropriate. Thus the term "hostile witness" has been borrowed from English Law and developed in through case Laws.

24. The principle of "falsus in uno falsus in omnibus" (false in one thing, false in everything) has no application in India. It is duty of Court to separate grain from chaff. Keeping in view the above principles Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sucha Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 2003 SC 3617 was pleased to observe as under :-

"even if major portion of the evidence is found to be deficient, in case residue is sufficient to prove guilt of an accused, it is the duty of the court to separate grain from chaff. Falsity of particular material witness or material particular would not ruin it from the beginning to end. The maxim falsus in uno falsus in omnibus (false in one thing, false in everything) has no application in India and the witness cannot be branded as a liar. In case this maxim is applied in all the cases it is to be feared that administration of criminal justice would come to a dead stop. Witnesses just cannot help in giving embroidery to a story, however, truth is the main. Therefore, it has to be appraised in each case as to what extent the evidence is worthy of credence, and merely because in some respects the court considers the same to be insufficient or unworthy of reliance, it does not necessarily follow as a matter of law that it must be disregarded in all respects as well."

25. Similarly in Paramjeet Singh v. State of Uttarakhand; AIR 2011 SC 200 also Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India was pleased to observe as under:-

"When the witness was declared hostile at the instance of the public prosecutor and he was allowed to cross examine the witness furnishes no justification for rejecting embloc the evidence of the witness. However, the court has to be very careful, as prima facie, a witness who makes different statements at different times, has no regard for the truth. His evidence has to be read and considered as a whole with a view to find out whether any weight should be attached to it. The court should be slow to act on the testimony of such a witness; normally, it should look for corroboration to his testimony".

26. Before proceeding further, it would be necessary to discuss all the prosecution witnesses as well as the defence witnesses alongwith their testimonies, which are being discussed as under:-

PROSECUTION WITNESSES

27. PW.1-Informant Shivdas :- A perusal of the star witness of the prosecution case namely PW-1 Shivdas shows that although in the FIR he had stated that the chamber of an Advocate was also burnt due to fire caused by the appellant, however surprisingly, in his statement recorded before the trial court, he has stated that only a portion of the takhta of one Advocate was burnt. This witnesses further stated that FIR was scribed by one clerk of the Court however surprisingly he failed to name the said scribe. According to this witness many people gathered after the canteen was set on fire but not even a single independent witness was produced by the prosecution to prove its case.

In his Cross Examination, the PW-1 has stated that he went to lodge the First Information Report with one Advocate, however, no such advocate was produced as a witness by the prosecution. This witness stated to have known the appellant from past 7 years from the alleged date of incident and he stated that the appellant was a regular customer of the canteen and he never used to keep any dues.

The entire testimony of the PW-1 is silent about any motive which the appellant might have for the commission of the alleged offence.

28. PW-2 Girdhar Singh:- The aforesaid witness i.e. PW-2 Girdhar Singh, although is a formal witness who has proved the Chik FIR as well as G.D. Entry regarding the registration of the First Information Report, however, the aforesaid witness has stated that PW-1 came alone for registration of FIR and no advocate accompanied him. The said fact totally contradicts the version of the PW-1 wherein he has stated that he went to the police station along with one Advocate.

29. PW-3 Vijay Kumar:- PW-3 Vijay Kumar is alleged to be one of the employee of the canteen and has claimed to have seen the incident, however, his testimony is also full of contradictions and, as such, the same is unworthy of any credit. PW-3 has also claimed to have accompanied the informant to the police station for registration of FIR, however, the said claim is totally contradictory to the statements of PW-1 who has stated to have visited police station along with one Advocate. Version of PW-3 is also contrary to the testimony of PW-2 Constable Girdhar Singh who has stated that the informant came alone for the registration of FIR.

This witness stated in his testimony that he has come to testify on the instructions of his Employer Suraj, thus, making his entire version infirm and unworthy of credit.

30. PW-4 Durgesh Kumar Tiwari:- PW-4 Durgesh Kumar Tiwari happens to be the Investigating officer of the instant case who stated that he was assigned the investigation on 23.01.1991 itself. The witness stated to have recovered burnt ashes from the alleged place of incident. This witness further stated that he submitted the chargesheet under section 436 of IPC against the appellant in the court on 3.01.1996.

In the Cross Examination this witness stated that he fails to recall that the seat of Advocate Bhola Prasad was situated near the said canteen and he also failed to recall whether the seat was burnt or not.

It is pertinent to mention here that Cross examination of the P.W.-4 reveals that he did not record the statement of the Canteen Owner, namely, Suraj. He further stated that he failed to record the statement of any Advocate and he also stated that he failed to record the statement of anyone who could have been the eye witness of the said incident. This witness also failed to recognize the location of the alleged place of incident.

DEFENCE WITNESSES

31. DW-1 Ajit Singh Yadav:- This witness happens to be the clerk of an Advocate whose seat got burnt. This witness stated that the appellant was neither present at the place of incident nor he committed the offence. He further stated that the fire was the result of the mistake of one child employee of the canteen, who was filling the air in the stove. He further stated that as soon as the child employee lit the matchstick to light the stove, whole canteen as well as his seat caught fire.

32. DW-2 Mahendra Pratap Singh:- He is an Advocate and stated that on the fateful day at about 8:20 AM, he reached the canteen and asked its owner Suraj for a cup of tea. Suraj instructed his worker to make the tea and while his worker was trying to light the stove to make the tea, the whole canteen caught fire and the whole canteen was reduced to ashes. This witness also stated that subsequently Shivdas (PW-1) who happens to be the proprietor of the Canteen started inquiring from the appellant and it ultimately led to the heated argument between the two. Thereafter, the PW-1 lodged the First Information Report against the appellant due to animosity arising out of the said scuffle.

33. Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India in the case of Mahendra Singh and Others Versus State of Madhya Pradesh; (2022 7 SCC 157) was pleased to observe at para 20 as under:-

"20. It is a settled law that same treatment is required to be given to the defence witness(es) as is to be given to the prosecution witness(es)."

34. Further, Hon'ble the Supreme Court of India in the case of Vadivelu Thevar v. State of Madras; 1957 SCR 981: AIR 1957 SC 614 was pleased to observe at para 11 & 12 as under:-

"11……..it is a sound and well-established rule of law that the court is concerned with the quality and not with the quantity of the evidence necessary for proving or disproving a fact. Generally speaking, oral testimony in this context may be classified into three categories, namely:

(1) Wholly reliable,

(2) Wholly unreliable

(3) Neither wholly reliable nor wholly unreliable.

12. In the first category of proof the court should have no difficulty in coming to its conclusion either way it may convict or may acquit on the testimony of a single witness if it is found to be above reproach or suspicion of interestedness, incompetence, or subornation. In the second category the court equally has no difficulty to its conclusion. It is in the third category of cases that the court has to be circumspect and has to look for corroboration in the material particulars by reliable testimony direct or circumstantial……."

35. After a careful perusal of all the testimonies of prosecution witnesses as well as defence witnesses, this Court finds that the learned trial court had failed to circumspect the material on record carefully.

36. Further, a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Suresh Narain Tripathi and others versus State of Uttar Pradesh and Others; 2005 Cril LJ 2479, granted acquittal for the offence under section 436 of IPC where the star witnesses were unreliable and was pleased to observe at para 13 as under:-

"13. Certainly, it is the primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and a mental distinction between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divided vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

37. It feels pain to observe that in our present system of trial despite having sufficient power to the judge to ask questions to the witnesses in order to find out truth, most of them do not ask questions to the witnesses to shift the grain from the chaff. Practice of leaving witnesses to the Advocates, when a witness becomes hostile, is not un-common in the trial Courts. Time and again Hon'ble Apex Court has reminded that a Judge does not preside over a criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished, but a Judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. Both are public duties, which the Judge has to perform. Therefore, the trial Court must shed their inertia and must intervene in all those cases where intervention is necessary for the ends of justice.

38. No proper explanation of injuries on the person of injured have been given. Mere suggestion is not sufficient. Moreover it itself indicates a false case. All the witnesses being the close to each other, it is beyond apprehension that they instead of naming out real culprit, they would falsely implicate the accused persons knowing them innocent.

39. This Court has gone through the impugned judgment and evidence on record. The trial court relying on the testimony of witnesses, even though who have not supported the prosecution case, has concluded that the accused had burnt the canteen. Looking into the totality of statement of witnesses, the conclusion drawn by the trial court cannot be said to be reasonable.

40. In the present case, the learned trial court has also failed to consider the fact that the alleged incident is said to have taken place in the court compound at 11:00 A.M. and the prosecution has failed to produce any Advocate or any other staff of court to prove its case. Further, on the other hand, the presence of D.W.-1 and D.W.-2, who were clerk and advocate respectively and their presence is quite natural in the court premises. The defence witnesses ought to have been considered by the trial court. Thus, this Court finds that the prosecution failed to establish that appellant in all probability has committed the said offence.

41. It is also an established principle of law of evidence that statement of witness is to be read as a whole and conclusion should not be drawn only by picking up a single sentence of the statement of a witness. Thus, the trial court had overlooked the material evidence available on record with regard to guilt of accused and to that extent conclusion drawn by the trial Court suffers with patent infirmity and perversity and, therefore, liable to be reversed and set aside.

42. Thus in view of above, after analysis of circumstances of present case in the light of aforesaid settled legal principles, I come to the conclusion that the trial court has erred passing the impugned judgment and order, therefore, this appeal succeeds and is allowed. The judgment and order dated 26.04.2000 passed by learned Second Additional Sessions Judge, Lucknow in Sessions Trial No.192 of 1995, convicting and sentencing the appellant under Section 436 I.P.C. for three years rigorous imprisonment, is set aside and reversed. The appellant, namely, Mohd.Nabi @ Munna is acquitted of charge under Section 436 I.P.C. His personal bond and surety bonds are canceled and sureties are discharged.

43. Let record of Trial Court be sent back to the Court concerned along with copy of judgment and order for information.

(Crl. Misc. Application No. 5 of 2023 - Second Bail Application)

1. Heard Mr. Anurag Singh Chauhan, learned counsel for the appellant no. 2 - Bablu alias Alok Kumar and learned AGA on the second bail application.

2. This Criminal Appeal arises out of the judgment and order dated 09.08.1999 passed by the Special Judge (SC/ST), Sultanpur in 97 of 1995 (State vs. Surendra Prasad and another) arising out of case Crime No. 8 of 1995, under Section 302 IPC, Police Station Amethi, District Sultanpur whereby the appellants have been convicted and sentenced to undergo life imprisonment under Section 302 read with 34 IPC.

3. Appellants - Surendra Prasad Misra and Bablu alias Alok Kumar were convicted as aforesaid vide judgment of the Court below dated 09.08.1999, but, were ordered to be enlarged on bail by this Court vide orders dated 09.07.1999 and 22.05.2000 passed in this appeal. When the matter came up before the Court on 06.05.2022 none appeared for the appellants, accordingly Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur was directed to issue non-bailable warrant against the appellants and also that they shall be taken into custody and sent to jail. The said order reads as under:

"The instant application has been filed by the victim of the present case, who is son of the deceased for early disposal of the present appeal.

Ms. Smiti Sahai, learned A.G.A. is present.

Learned A.G.A. states that both the appellants are on bail.

It transpires from the office report dated 1.10.2021 that both the appellants are alive and to this effect, Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur has sent compliance report dated 17.9.2021.

None appears on behalf of the appellants to argue the instant appeal.

Chief Judicial Magistrate, Sultanpur is directed to issue Non-bailable Warrants against the appellants nos.1 and 2 namely Surendra Prasad Mishra and Bablu @ Alok Kumar. The appellants shall be taken into custody and sent to jail. Chief Judicial Magistrate shall submit his report before this court on or before 4.7.2022.

It further transpires from the order sheet that the office was directed to prepare the paper book but the same has not yet been prepared.

Office is directed to prepare the paper book by the next date.

List this appeal for final hearing on 4.7.2022.

Since the appeal is listed for final hearing on 4.7.2022, as such the instant application bearing Crl. Misc. Application No.IA/2/ 2022 stands disposed."

In pursuance thereof both the appellants were arrested and are in jail. Appellants were arrested on 25.06.2022, as informed by the counsel for the appellant no. 2. Appellants filed an application bearing No. IA/3/2022 for release on bail but the same was rejected on 01.08.2022 in the following terms:

"This is the first bail application moved on behalf of the appellants.

It transpires from the record that the appellants were on bail and this Court vide order dated 06.05.2022 issued non-bailable warrants against the appellants and directed the matter to be listed today for final hearing. Thereafter, the appellants were arrested by the police on 25.06.2022.

In pursuance of order dated 06.05.2022, the matter is listed today for final hearing.

Heard Shri Siddhartha Sinha, Advocate holding brief of Shri Arun Sinha, learned counsel for the appellants, Shri Vishwas Shukla, learned AGA for State-respondent, Abhinandan Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the complainant and perused the material brought on record.

Learned counsel for the appellants stated that he has not obtained the paper book and further stated the appellants are in jail since 25.06.2022. He further submitted that appellants have no criminal history, hence are entitled to be released on bail.

When the learned counsel for the appellants was asked to argue the appeal finally, he showed his reluctance and stated that the instant bail application filed on behalf of the appellants be heard and decided.

After hearing the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and taking into account the fact that the appeal is listed today for final hearing; paper book is ready and the appeal is of the year 1999 and the learned counsel for appellants has showed his reluctance in not arguing the appeal finally, we find that no good ground is made out for enlarging the appellants on bail.

The bail application of the appellants- Surendra Prasad Mishra and Bablu alias Alok Kumar involved in S.T. No. 97 of 1995 under sections 302 I.P.C., police station Amethi, District Sultanpur is, accordingly, rejected.

List the matter in the next cause list peremptorily before appropriate Bench for final hearing. "

4. This second application for bail has been filed by appellant no. 2 - Bablu alias Alok Kumar alone on 05.09.2023.

5. Submission of the counsel for the appellant no. 2/applicant's counsel was that he was on bail earlier, therefore, he be enlarged on bail.

6. As regards the second bail application of the appellant no. 2 we find that his earlier bail application which was filed after his incarceration consequent to issuance of non-bailable warrant was rejected on the ground that the counsel was not ready to argue the matter. Today, the situation is that none has appeared on behalf of the appellant no. 1 though counsel for appellant no. 2 is present. Paper book is ready and the counsel for the appellant no. 2 is ready for hearing, however, counsel for the appellant no. 1 is not present.

7. Let a report be requisitioned from the Superintendent of Jail where the appellant no. 1 is lodged as to whether he wants to engage another counsel to argue his appeal or wants that the Court may appoint an Amicus in the matter so that his appeal be argued. District Legal Services Authority be also informed about it.

8. As learned counsel for the appellant no. 2 is ready to argue the appeal, but, none is present for appellant no. 1 who is in jail and we have requisitioned a response in this regard as aforesaid which could take time and, as, we propose to refer certain legal issues for consideration by Larger Bench which may take some time to be answered and as appellant no. 2 was on bail earlier and his counsel assures us that he will argue the appeal whenever listed, we are of the opinion that he is entitled to be enlarged on bail.

9. Let appellant no. 2, Bablu alias Alok Kumar be released on bail on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount to the satisfaction of the Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned.

10. As soon as personal bonds and sureties are furnished, photocopies of the same shall be transmitted to this Court forthwith by the Trial Court concerned to be kept on record of this appeal.

11. It is made clear that during bail, the applicant-accused shall not indulge himself in any criminal activity. If he is found indulging himself in any criminal activity, the prosecution will be at liberty to file an application for cancellation of bail

12. The second bail application is disposed of.

13. While hearing the bail application and reserving the orders, we noticed an order passed by a Coordinate Bench of this High Court at Allahabad on 18.01.2024 in Government Appeal No. 454 of 2022 (State of U.P. Vs. Geeta Devi and Anr). Noticing the same, we had passed the following order:

"Heard Mr. Anurag Singh Chauhan, learned counsel for the appellant no. 2 - Bablu alias Alok Kumar and learned AGA on the second bail application.

During course of argument, learned counsel for the appellant as also learned AGA once again referred to the order passed by a Coordinate Bench of this Court at Allahabad on 18.01.2024 in Government Appeal No. 454 of 2022 wherein certain directions have been issued empowering the Chief Judicial Magistrate to release a person on bail where non-bailable warrant has been issued against him whether it be in appeal against acquittal or conviction, by the High Court, which according to them requires reconsideration by a Larger Bench. They also referred to another order dated 19.01.2024 passed in Government Appeal No. 2552 of 1981 issuing similar directions/order relying upon the order dated 18.01.2024. They have relied upon Full Bench decision of the Bombay High Court in the case of Balkrishna Mahadev Lad vs. State of Maharashtra; 2012 SCC OnLine Bom 1490, Constitution Bench decision of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. vs. Poosu and Another; (1976) 3 SCC 1 and subsequent decision of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Amin Khan vs. State of Rajasthan and others; (2009) 3 SCC 776.

We have heard the bail application as also on the aforesaid questions.

We reserve our orders on both the issues."

14. We have perused the order dated 18.01.2024 passed by the Coordinate Bench in the aforesaid appeal. We find that there are certain observations/directions in the said order as also in the subsequent order dated 19.01.2024 passed by the Coordinate Bench in Government Appeal No. 2552 of 1981 (State of U.P. vs. Shamshuddin Khan and others) which require consideration by a Larger Bench as they have far reaching consequences on issues which arise while hearing criminal appeals, and also with regard to jurisdiction of Magistrate in the execution of non-bailable warrants issued by the High Court in such appeals, therefore, we proceed to consider the matter from the said stand point.

15. On a perusal of the orders passed by the Coordinate Bench on 18.01.2024 and 19.01.2024 as referred hereinabove, we find that the Coordinate Bench proceeded on the premise that in appeals arising from acquittal warrants are issued in such appeals to secure presence of the acquitted person and that enlargement of such persons who have been acquitted by the Trial Court, in an appeal against their acquittal, is a matter of right. In this context, it has referred to a Full Bench decision of the Bombay High Court though it has not mentioned the cause title and has observed that the said Full Bench while interpreting the provisions of Section 390 of the Code of Criminal Procedure Code, 1973 (hereinafter referred to as 'Code of 1973') has held that the very purpose of this Section was to ensure presence of an accused before the Court and based on this the Coordinate Bench has issued certain directions. The directions issued by the Coordinate Bench are not only with respect to non-bailable warrants issued by the High Court in appeals against acquittal but also in respect of appeals against conviction. The order dated 18.01.2024 reads as under:

"1. Heard learned AGA appearing for the State and learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The present Government Appeal has been filed by the State against the order of acquittal dated 7.6.2018 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge / FTC No. 3, Muzaffar Nagar in ST No. 299 of 2007, under Sections 302, 201, 364, 120B IPC (State Vs. Brajpal and others).

3. We have gone through the order dated 9.9.2022 of this Court which was passed on the appeal filed by the State against the judgment of acquittal dated 7.6.2018. By the order dated 9.9.2022, the respondents were directed to furnish personal bond with two sureties in the like amount to the satisfaction of the learned CJM. However, it appears that they could not be served and thereafter Non bailable warrants were issued and they were arrested.

4. Learned counsel submits that both the respondents are in custody since 27.11.2022 i.e for a period of one year and three months.

5. Though the Bench is not in agreement with the procedure followed by the Court that in a State appeal challenging the judgment of acquittal, the issuance of Non Bailable Warrants would interpretate that police authority will execute the same and produce the concerned person before the High Court so that some effective order be passed with regard to their bail. However, in the instant case despite acquittal, the respondents are in judicial custody for more than one year and three months because bailable warrants were not executed. It is worth noticing to reproduce Section 390 of Cr.P.C. which read a under :

"Section 390: Arrest of accused in appeal from acquittal:- When an appeal is presented under section 378, the High Court may issue a warrant directing that the accused be arrested and brought before it or any subordinate Court, and the Court before which he is brought may commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal or admit him to bail."

6. Similarity, in order to procure the presence of accused persons, the Court has an alternative option to order for attachment of property of person absconding under Section 83 Cr.P.C.. Further, Section 80 of Cr.P.C. provides for arrest of person against whom warrant is issued and it provides for taking security under Section 71 of Cr.P.C for production before the Court, such person may be released under Section 81 Cr.P.C.

7. A perusal of Section 390 Cr.P.C. clearly gives power to the Court before whom a accused is brought, either to send him to prison or admit him to bail. It is also worth noticing that repeatedly such type of cases are coming where in appeal in pursuance of the Non Bailable Warrant issued by the High Court to the accused who were acquitted from the trial court re languishing in jail for more than one year because they were either not served with the warrant or could not engage Advocate in the High Court. It is held by a full Bench of Bombay High Court while interpretating provisions of Section 390 Cr.P.C. that the very purpose of this Section is to ensure presence of an accused before the Court. In view of the above, we deem it appropriate to issue a direction to the Director, Judicial Training and Research Institute, Lucknow to take online seminar of all the Chief Judicial Magistrates as well as Secretary, District Legal Services Authority and inform that :

(a) As and when Non Bailable Warrants are issued in appeal from acquittal and accused is brought before the CJM / Ilaka Magistrate, he will be admitted bail subject to furnishing bail bonds to their satisfaction and on undertaking that they will appear before the High Court on particular date as per the order of the Court.

(b) Even in cases where appeal against conviction is pending before the High Court and sentence is suspended and either he or his counsel could not appear before the High Court and Non Bailable Warrants are issued on and produced before the CJM, they will be released on bail to the satisfaction of the court concerned with an undertaking that they will appear before the High Court.

(c) The Director of the Judicial Training and Research Institute, Lucknow will conduct a survey in the State of UP to find out where in terms of issuance of Non Bailable Warrant either in case of bail against acquittal or in case where accused sentence is suspended, but subsequently he failed to appear, is in jail (prison) for considerable long time, they will be released on bail in same terms as mentioned in above sub para (a) and (b).

(d) Since keeping a person in judicial custody for long time without any justification violate the right of life and liberty of such person, after 30 days of this order, if still bails are not granted, this Court will impose cost of Rs. 50,000/- to be paid by the District State Legal Services Authority concerned.

8. Be whatsoever, the Court deem it appropriate to release the respondents on bail.

9. Let the respondents namely Gita Devi and Afzal be released on bail subject to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

10. Registrar General of this Court is directed to communicate this order to the Director, Judicial Training and Research Institute, Lucknow within a week from today and submit compliance report on the next date fixed.

List the matter 30.01.2024. "

16. Similar observations/directions have been made in its order dated 19.01.2024 passed in Government Appeal No. 2552 of 1981 relying upon the earlier decision dated 18.01.2024. The said order dated 19.01.2024 read as under:

"1. This Government Appeal was filed in the year 1981 challenging the judgment of acquittal passed in favour of the opposite parties.

2. As per earlier order dated 14.12.2022, non bailable warrants were issued against the accused-respondent no.1 and the Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned was directed to sent a compliance report.

3. An office report dated 20.01.2023 was later on submitted stating therein that the sureties of opposite party/respondent no.1 Shamshuddin are Bashir, who died on 08.04.2016 and Ram Kripal, who is about 70 years old and cannot walk, whereas all sureties of respondent nos. 2 and 5 have died.

4. Thereafter again non-bailable warrants were issued against opposite party nos. 1 and 4 and the matter remains pending for considerable long time.

5. Learned counsel for respondent no.1, namely Shamshuddin Khan submits that he is in jail and presently detained in District Jail, Banda. Even thereafter the case was listed on number of occasions but it has been noticed in the order dated 10.04.2023 that respondent no.1 namely Shamshuddin Khan is not traceable though he is already lodged in District Jail, Banda. The opposite party no.1 is in the judicial custody since 23.02.2023.

6. Learned A.G.A. could not dispute the above contention.

7. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, issuance of non-bailable-warrants to procure the presence of respondent no.1 so that he may engage a counsel and defend his case through the counsel, has no relevance. We deem it appropriate to grant bail to the accused-respondent no.1 namely Shamshuddin Khan.

8. Let opposite party no.1-Shamshuddin Khan be released on bail subject to the satisfaction of the court concerned.

9. In a Government Appeal bearing Government Appeal No. 454 of 2022 (State of U.P. Vs. Geeta Devi & Anr.), this Court in similar situation has already directed the Director, Judicial Training and Research Institute, Lucknow that an online seminar of all the Chief Judicial Magistrates through out the Sate of Uttar Pradesh regarding the procedures to be followed in the matter of grant of bail of the accused, who are in jail since long and their appeals are pending for consideration.

10. Such procedures mentioned in the above Government Appeal give discretion to the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate specially the Ilaka Magistrate to grant bail in such cases where the purpose of issuance of non-bailable warrants is to procure the presence of the accused especially in the cases where an accused person has acquitted from the trial court and non-bailable warrants are issued in an appeal filed by the State.

11. The Registrar General of this Court is directed to communicate this order forthwith to the Director, Judicial Training and Research Institute, Lucknow within a week from today and submit compliance report on the next date fixed.

12. List this case on 30.01.2024. "

17. As already stated the said orders raise important issues pertaining to procedure to be followed by the High Court hearing criminal appeals, process/warrants to be issued by it, its execution and jurisdiction of Chief Judicial Magistrate in this regard and, as, there should be reasonable degree of definiteness and certitude in this regard not only in the mind of Judges of the High Court exercising such jurisdiction but also the Magistrates and as general directions have been issued by the Coordinate Bench to the Chief Judicial Magistrates throughout the State of Uttar Pradesh with penal consequences in the event of non compliance and also to Judicial Training and Research Institute, therefore, it has become necessary that legal issues in this regard be clarified/settled by a Larger Bench.

Appeal Against Acquittal

18. First and foremost, we may point out that in an appeal by the State under Section 378 of the Code of 1973 against acquittal of the accused, Section 390 of the Code of 1973 is attracted which reads as under:

"390. Arrest of accused in appeal from acquittal.- When an appeal is presented under Section 378, the High Court may issue a warrant directing that the accused be arrested and brought before it or any subordinate Court, and the Court before which he is brought may commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal or admit him to bail."

19. Prior to coming into force of the Code of 1973, the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (hereinafter referred as 'Code of 1898') was in operation and in the said Code of 1898 also a pari materia provisions existed in the form of Section 427 which read as under:

"427. When an appeal is presented under Section 417, the High Court may issue a warrant directing that the accused be arrested and brought before it or any subordinate Court, and the Court before which he is brought may commit him to prison pending the disposal of the appeal, or admit him to bail."

20. The aforesaid Section 427 of the Code of 1898 and Section 390 of the Code of 1973 came up for consideration before a Constitution Bench of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of State of U.P. vs. Poosu and Another; (1976) 3 SCC 1. The question referred to the Constitution Bench was: "Whether the Supreme Court while granting special leave to appeal under Article 136 of the Constitution, against an order of acquittal on a capital charge, has the power to issue a non-bailable warrant for the arrest and committal to prison of the accused respondent who had been acquitted by the High Court?

21. Hon'ble the Supreme Court had the occasion to consider the historical perspective of the aforesaid provisions and it observed that such provision was enacted for the first time in the Code of 1882, but even before its enactment, the High Court as a matter of judicial practice, had the power, pending the appeal against an order of acquittal, to secure the attendance of the accused respondent by bailable or non-bailable warrants. It referred to a Full Bench decision of the Allahabad High Court in the case of Empress of India vs. Mangu; ILR (1879) 2 All 340 wherein it was held that the High Court has the power to cause the arrest and detention of the accused in prison, pending an appeal against an order of acquittal. It referred to various other decisions which were to the same effect. It observed that this power was ancillary to and necessary for an effective exercise of its jurisdiction in an appeal against an order of acquittal conferred on the High Court by the Code. It referred to an English case i.e. Bana Vs. Methuen; 2 Bens 228 decided way-back in 1824 wherein Best, J. following an older precedent, enunciated the rule that - "when an act of Parliament gives a justice jurisdiction over an offence, it impliedly gives him a power to make out a warrant, and bring before him any person charged with such offence". Hon'ble the Constitution Bench has observed that this was the rationale of Section 427 of the Code of 1898.

22. It further observed that as soon as the High Court on perusing a petition of appeal against an order of acquittal, considers that there is sufficient ground for interfering and issuing process to the respondent, his status as an accused person and the proceedings against him, revive. The question of judging his guilt or innocence in respect of the charge against him, once more becomes sub judice. It then went on to observe that Article 136 of the Constitution of India confers on the Supreme Court the same power which was vested in the High Court under Section 427 of the Code of 1898 corresponding to the existing Section 390 of the Code of 1973. It then considered the question as to whether in the circumstances of the case, the attendance of the accused respondent can be best secured by issuing a bailable warrant or non-bailable warrant and it held that it is a matter which rests entirely in the discretion of the Court. It observed as under:

"Whether in the circumstances of the case the attendance of the accused respondent can be best secured by issuing a bailable warrant or non-bailable warrant is a matter which rests entirely in the discretion of the Court. Although, the discretion is exercised judicially, it is not possible to computerise and reduce into immutable formulae the diverse considerations on the basis of which this discretion is exercised. Broadly speaking, the Court would take into account the various factors such as,

"the nature and seriousness of the offence, the character of the evidence, circumstances peculiar to the accused, possibility of his absconding, larger interest of the public and State (see State v. Capt. Jagjit Singh; AIR 1962 SC 253)".

In addition, the Court may also take into consideration the period during which the proceedings against the accused were pending in the courts below and the period which is likely to elapse before the appeal comes up for final hearing in this Court. In the context, it must be remembered that this over-riding discretionary jurisdiction under Article 136 is invoked sparingly, in exceptional cases, where the order of acquittal recorded by the High Court is perverse or clearly erroneous and results in a gross miscarriage of justice."

23. Most important it repelled the contention made before it that an order directing the rearrest and detention of an accused respondent who had been acquitted by the High Court of a capital offence, in any way, offends Article 21 or any other fundamental right guaranteed in Part III of the Constitution. It held that by no stretch of imagination could it be said that such an order deprives the accused respondent of his liberty in a manner otherwise than in accordance with procedure established by law.

24. Thus, from a reading of the said Constitution Bench decision, it is clear that even in an appeal against acquittal the the presence of the acquitted person can be secured either by issuing bailable warrant or non-bailable warrant at the discretion of the appellate Court which is to be exercised in the light of the guidelines laid down by Hon'ble the Supreme Court. The arrest of such an acquitted person consequent to the aforesaid does not violate Article 21 of the Constitution.

25. We may now refer to the Full Bench decision of the Bombay High Court details of which have not been mentioned by the Coordinate Bench, but, on our own research we find that the said Full Bench decision has been rendered in the case of Balkrishna Mahadev Lad vs. State of Maharashtra; 2012 SCC OnLine Bom 1490. On a reading the said Full Bench decision, we find that two questions were referred for its consideration which are as under:

"(a) When in an appeal against acquittal an action of issuing warrant for arresting the accused is directed in accordance with section 390 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, whether the Accused is entitled to bail as a matter of right and whether the learned Sessions Judge before whom the Accused is brought has no power to direct that the Accused shall be committed to prison till disposal of the Appeal?

(b) Whether this Court has power to direct that every breach committed by Sessions Judge of the direction issued by this Court will always constitute contempt of this Court?"

26. While considering question no. 1 it found that some of the decisions by the Division Benches which led to the reference before the Larger Bench were rendered without referring to the legal position expounded by the Apex Court in the case of Poosu (supra). The said Division Benches also proceeded on the premise as if the enlargement of a person acquitted on bail by the Trial Court was a matter of right whereas the legal position in Poosu (supra) was entirely different. In this context it observed as under:

"Notably, the abovesaid observations have been made without referring to the legal position expounded by the Apex Court in the case of Poosu (supra). Indubitably, a person who is acquitted of the criminal charges, by a Court of law, should not remain in jail even for a day after acquittal. But, that does not necessarily follow that the subordinate Court, before whom the acquitted accused is produced, in connection with the order passed by the High Court in an appeal against his acquittal, cannot commit him to prison even if the fact situation so warrants."

27. The Full Bench of the Bombay High Court took notice of the Apex Court decision in the case of Poosu (supra). It also considered the provisions of Section 390 of the Code of 1973 and in this context it observed as under:

"8. A bare perusal of this provision leaves no manner of doubt that the High Court is expected to exercise its judicial discretion on case to case basis to issue a warrant (bailable or non-bailable) directing that the accused be arrested and brought before it or be produced before the subordinate Court for compliance thereof. The opening part of this Section makes it amply clear that the judicial discretion can be exercised at any stage, after the presentation of the appeal under Section 378 of the Code. Thus, presentation of such appeal is a sine qua non for exercise of this judicial discretion, in terms of Section 390 of the Code.

9. Reverting to the other facet of this provision, when an accused is acquitted by the subordinate Court, after a full-fledged trial, the High Court, while issuing direction in exercise of powers under Section 390 of the Code, may, in a given case, issue "bailable warrants" directing production of the accused before it or the subordinate Court for compliance thereof. If the accused is produced before the subordinate Court, pursuant to such "bailable warrants" issued by the High Court, the subordinate Court may release that accused on bail on terms and conditions which must be just and proper to secure the presence of the accused. Indeed, if the accused is unable to fulfill the terms and conditions for release on bail, the subordinate Court will be justified in directing committal of the accused to prison. However, he must soon thereafter intimate that fact to the High Court. Notwithstanding the power given to the subordinate Court under Section 390 of the Code, it cannot direct that the accused be committed to prison even if he is capable of and willing to abide by the terms and conditions of bail. Further, if the High Court in its order issuing "bailable warrants" has already spelt out the terms and conditions then the subordinate Court cannot add to or relax such conditions, but is expected to ensure compliance of those directions of the High Court.

10. Similarly, if the High Court were to issue "non bailable warrants" recording reasons indicative of committing the accused to prison only, even in that case, the subordinate Court, before whom the accused is produced or appears in response to warrant so issued, will have no option but to commit such accused to prison.

11. The Sessions Court, however, can exercise its judicial discretion when the High Court in its order has not indicated either way to commit the accused to prison or to admit him to bail, pending the disposal of the appeal. In other words, if the High Court, in its order, merely directs initiation of action under Section 390 of the Code and if the accused is produced before the subordinate Court, it would be open to the subordinate Court, after taking into account all aspects of the matter, either to admit the accused to bail on such terms and conditions as it may be deem fit keeping in mind that the same are essential to secure the presence of the accused when required in the pending appeal or to commit him to prison. That judicial discretion has to be exercised on the basis of settled parameters and, inter alia, keeping in mind the question, as to whether releasing the accused on bail would not hamper securing his attendance pending the disposal of the appeal against acquittal in the High Court."

Thus, there is a discretion vested in the Magistrate to be exercised judicially in cases covered by Para 11 quoted above and he is not bound to release him.

28. Thus, as per the Full Bench of Bombay High Court, if orders for issuance of bailable warrants are issued in terms of Section 390 of the Code of 1973 by the appellate Court, the subordinate Court may release the accused on bail on the terms and conditions which must be just and proper to secure the presence of the accused but if the accused is unable to fulfill the terms and conditions for release on bail, the subordinate Court will be justified in directing committal of the accused to prison. However, he must soon thereafter intimate that fact to the High Court.

29. It has further observed that if the High Court in its order issuing bailable warrants has already spelt out the terms and conditions then the subordinate Court cannot add to or relax such conditions, but is expected to ensure compliance of those directions of the High Court. Similarly, it has observed that if the High Court were to issue non-bailable warrants recording reasons indicative of committing the accused to prison only, even in that case, the subordinate Court, before whom the accused is produced or appears in response to warrant so issued, will have no other option but to commit such accused to prison.

30. It has then observed that the Sessions Court, however, can exercise its judicial discretion when the High Court in its order has not indicated either way to commit the accused to prison or to admit him to bail, pending the disposal of the appeal. In other words, if the High Court, in its order, merely directs initiation of action under Section 390 of the Code of 1973 and if the accused is produced before the subordinate Court, it would be open to the subordinate Court after taking into account all aspects of the matter, either to admit the accused to bail on such terms and conditions as it may be deemed fit keeping in mind that the same are essential to secure the presence of the accused when required in the pending appeal or to commit him to prison. This judicial discretion has to be exercised on the basis of settled parameters and, inter alia, keeping in mind the question, as to whether releasing the accused on bail would not hamper securing his attendance pending the disposal of the appeal against acquittal in the High Court. Even as per the Bombay High Court, this is not to be done mechanically.

31. Thus, even as per the Bombay High Court in the context of an appeal against acquittal an action is taken under Section 390 of the Code of 1973 the acquitted person can either be enlarged on bail or committed to prison depending upon the facts of the case and the discretion to be exercised judicially by the concerned Court.

32. The Full Bench was of the considered opinion that - "Section 390 of the Code of 1973 cannot be read to mean that the Sessions Judge, on production of the accused, has no option but to immediately release him on bail, instead it held the subordinate Court before whom the accused is produced pursuant to warrant issued in terms of the order of the High Court, must exercise his judicial discretion on case to case basis and in particular keeping in mind the order of the High Court, passed in the pending appeal against acquittal in that regard. This would presuppose that the Sessions Judge, in appropriate case, can commit the accused to prison till the disposal of the appeal. Indeed, in that case, it will be open to the accused to question that decision of the Sessions Judge, before the High Court, in which proceedings, the High Court may consider the claim of the accused for grant of bail. Thus understood, grant of bail by the subordinate Court is not a matter of right." [Para 13 of the Full Bench - Balkrishna Mahadev Lad (supra)].

33. In fact, it found that the Division Bench judgment in Farooq Abdul Gani Surve vs. The State of Maharashtra; 2012 ALL MR (CRI) 271 wherein it was held that the accused is entitled to be released on bail as a matter of rule is not the correct statement of law and it is in the teeth of the exposition of law by the Constitution Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Poosu (supra) as also the purport of Section 390 of the Code of 1973.

34. The Full Bench also took note of the introduction of Section 437A in the Code of 1973 w.e.f. 31.12.2009 which is as under:

"18. As a matter of fact, after introduction of Section 437A w.e.f. 31st December, 2009, the Trial Court, at the conclusion of the trial, or the Appellate Court including the High Court before disposal of the appeal, as the case may be, is duty bound to ensure that the accused must execute bail bond to appear before the Higher Court and such bail bond must be kept in force for six months. Section 437A, as introduced by the Act 5 of 2009, reads thus:

"[437A. Bail to require accused to appear before next appellate Court.- (1) Before conclusion of the trial and before disposal of the appeal, the Court trying the offence or the Appellate Court, as the case may be, shall require the accused to execute bail bonds with sureties, to appear before the higher Court as and when such Court issues notice in respect of any appeal or petition filed against the judgment of the respective Court and such bail bonds shall be in force for six months."

It then observed as under:

"19. This provision reinforces that even if the Trial Court or the Appellate Court, as the case may be, is inclined to acquit the accused, it has to ensure that the accused must execute a bail bond with surety to appear before the Higher Court and this bail bond must be kept in force for six months. The period of six months is specified in anticipation that the appeal against acquittal would be filed, either by the State or the victim/complainant, within such period and if the appeal against acquittal is filed, the accused would make himself available in the said proceedings."

It finally expressed its opinion succinctly as under:

"20) Accordingly, we hold that the accused is not entitled to bail as a matter of right merely because he has been acquitted. Further, the subordinate Court, before whom the accused is produced, has judicial discretion to direct the accused to be committed to prison or to admit him to bail keeping in mind the order of the High Court, pending disposal of the appeal. Indeed, that judicial discretion has to be exercised in consonance with the settled parameters."

35. Thus, there is a discretion vested in this regard which has to be exercised judicially by the High Court or the Chief Judicial Magistrate as the case may be on case to case basis.

36. We may in this context also refer to another decision of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Amin Khan vs. State of Rajasthan and others; (2009) 3 SCC 776 wherein the High Court while admitting the appeal against acquittal committed the acquitted person to prison for justifiable reasons and the said order committing the acquitted person to prison during pendency of the appeal against their acquittal was upheld by Hon'ble the Supreme Court. Hon'ble the Supreme Court did not find any error in the said order, it inter alia observed as under:

"Section 390 corresponds to Section 427 of the repealed Code. In the present section the word and figure "Section 378" are substituted for the words and figures "Section 411-A, sub-section (2) of Section 417" in the old section. Except for this change, no other changes are made. Under this section the High Court has the power to rearrest the accused pending the disposal of an appeal against his acquittal."

37. The Coordinate Bench while making observations/ directions vide its order dated 18.01.2024 and 19.01.2024, it seems, has missed out on the ratio of the Full Bench decision of the Bombay High Court as also the judgment of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Poosu (supra) and Amin Khan (supra).

38. In an appeal against acquittal in order to secure the presence of an acquitted person bailable warrants are issued in view of the provisions contained in Section 390 of the Code of 1973. Once the bailable warrants are executed and the person appears before the Court below and submits requisite undertaking along with Sureties or Personal Bonds as may have been directed by the appellate Court and, if not directed, to the satisfaction of the Chief Judicial Magistrate concerned, as the case may be, and the said person appears before the appellate Court on the date fixed, the appellate Court shall proceed with the matter accordingly. Even an acquitted person can be committed to prison for justifiable reasons as discussed by the Constitution Bench in Poosu (supra) and this would not be violative of Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

39. If at a subsequent stage of the appeal, he fails to appear either personally or through his counsel, then, the appellate Court would be justified in securing his presence by issuance of bailable warrants as is normally the practice in the Allahabad High court. Straightway non-bailable warrants are not issued in such a situation. If even this fails to secure his presence his sureties can be proceeded. Ordinarily at this stage process under Section 82/83 of the Code of 1973 is not adopted. If even after proceeding against the sureties, presence of the person concerned cannot be secured, may be because they have died or for any other reason, then, the High Court has no option but to secure his presence by issuance of non-bailable warrants. At this stage, if necessary process under Section 82/83 of the Code of 1973 can be adopted.

40. We may also point out in an appeal against acquittal ordinarily High Court does not issue non-bailable warrants at the initial stage, but, only issues bailable warrants under Section 390 of the Code of 1973 or orders for its issuance.

41. We may also point out that in an appeal against acquittal ordinarily the presence of the acquitted person is secured initially by issuance of bailable warrants which is not to say that the appellate Court in a given circumstance can not issue a non-bailable warrants, but, ordinarily this is not done. It is only when the presence cannot be secured after issuance of bailable warrants that non-bailable warrants are issued.

42. Now, the moot point is as to whether in an appeal against acquittal where non-bailable warrants have issued especially at the subsequent stage of the appeal (not admission stage), as discussed hereinabove, the Chief Judicial Magistrate can on his own, without there being any stipulation in the order of the High court to release the accused on bail if he appears, release him, as has been directed by the Coordinate Bench in Government Appeal No. 454 of 2022; whether it amounts to vesting the Chief Judicial Magistrate with a power and jurisdiction which the Statute and the law does not vest in him and whether it will not divest and deprive the High Court of the discretion and jurisdiction it exercises in this regard as an an appellate criminal Court? Assuming the Magistrate has this jurisdiction and power, whether the general directions issued by the Coordinate Bench dated 18.01.2024 and 19.01.2024 do not deprive even the Magistrate of his discretion in this regard in view of the law discussed hereinabove by making it mandatory to release such person? Whether such general directions can be issued by the High Court making it mandatory for the Chief Judicial Magistrate to release a person in such a situation without applying his mind on case to case basis, assuming that he has power to do? These are important issues which have far reaching consequences which require consideration, in our humble opinion, by a Larger Bench, as, another view is quite possible.

43. Much depends in this regard upon the format of the order passed by the High Court in the context of Section 390 of the Code of 1973 at the time of admission of the appeal or thereafter. Ordinarily, the Allahabad High Court does not itself issue bailable warrants, but, orders the same to be issued through the Chief Judicial Magistrate or with the stipulation that the warrants be issued for its execution through the Chief Judicial Magistrate and even in such eventuality it is the latter who issues the warrants. If there is certainty and uniformity, as far as possible, in the orders for issuance of warrants containing the terms and conditions of warrants by the High Court in exercise of its appellant criminal jurisdiction, much of the confusion in this regard would be allayed, therefore, this is also an aspect which can be considered as it will bring about certainty and definiteness as to the execution of bailable warrants and who is to exercise the discretion as discussed hereinabove.

44. Now, in this context we have considered Section 437 of the Code of 1973 and find that the said provision is applicable at the initial stage of a criminal case and it does not empower the Chief Judicial Magistrate to encroach upon the powers of the appellate Court which has issued the non-bailable warrants. Section 437 of the Code of 1973 will have no play in such situation as, the High Court had issued the bailable warrants, it alone can determine the terms of its execution. Likewise, for the same reason, Section 81 of the Code of 1973 can also not be read and understood as empowering the Chief Judicial Magistrate to encroach upon the powers of the appellate Court which has issued the non-bailable warrants and release the person on bail without there being any stipulation in the order of the High Court for such release, once the order for issuance of warrant has been issued by the appellate Court, especially in the case of non-bailable warrant in view of Section 71 of the Code of 1973. The Chief Judicial Magistrate or any other Magistrate cannot add or subtract anything to the order of bailable warrant issued by the High court in exercise of its appellate power.

45. Moreover, the second proviso to Section 81 is to be read with Section 78 (2) of the Code of 1973 which applies only in cases where warrants are forwarded outside the jurisdiction of the Court and, therefore, it has no play so far as issues involved herein is concerned.

46. The procedure under Section 82/83 of the Code of 1973 should not be adopted prior to issuance of non-bailable warrants i.e. at the stage of bailable warrants.

47. However, in the event a person is committed to prison on account of default in the sense the direction of the appellate Court is to take sureties and then release him on bail and he is unable to provide the sureties on account of which he is sent to prison and remains there, then, that would be situation which needs to be remedied at the earliest as he is not sent to jail by a conscious decision of the Court in the exercise of the judicial discretion in light of the parameters discussed in Poosu (supra) and other decisions of the Supreme Court and the High Courts, but, he has been sent to prison by default. In such a scenario in our view the Court which commits him to prison should immediately inform the High Court where the appeal against his acquittal is pending and the Administrative side of the High Court to take immediate steps to place the matter before the concerned Bench which has been assigned such matters at the earliest which should consider the matter as per law as to whether he is entitled to be released on bail or certain changes in the condition of bailable warrant are required. In addition to it in such cases the Chief Judicial Magistrate or any other Magistrate should immediately inform the District Legal Services Authority or the State Legal Services Authority or the High Court Legal Services Committee which should take immediate steps, especially in cases where for absence of proper legal advice such person remains in jail so that necessary legal advice and assistance is provided to him and his matter is considered by the High Court. This, in our view, would be the solution for meeting with such cases. There may be other solutions which can be considered by the High Court even on the Administrative Side.

48. We are also conscious of the fact that keeping acquitted person in jail for long is not justified and appropriate measures should be taken so that they are provided legal aid at the earliest and their cases for grant of bail are considered at the earliest, but, only by the competent Court. Whether the Chief Judicial Magistrate can do it, if so, under what circumstances, is the moot point which requires consideration.

Appeal Against Conviction

49. The Coordinate Bench in Government Appeal No. 2552 of 1981 not only issued directions with regard to release of an accused against whom non-bailable warrants have been issued by the High Court in an appeal against acquittal, but similar directions have been issued for release of the appellant who has filed an appeal against his conviction.

50. Now, with great respect, we are of the opinion that an appellant challenging his conviction stands on a different footing viz-a-viz a person who has been acquitted by the Trial Court, but, his acquittal is under challenge in appeal. In an appeal against conviction such as the present one, Section 390 of the Code of 1973 does not apply and there is already a pronouncement by the Trial Court convicting such person and sentencing him to prison, therefore, the parameters for grant of bail or for committing him to prison in such appeals against conviction are very different.

51. Apparently, in such cases, the appellant is enlarged on bail in his appeal filed against his conviction and the question of issuance of non-bailable warrants arises only at a subsequent stage when for the reasons which may be similar to those already discussed hereinabove, such appellant fails to appear thereby frustrating hearing of appeal against his conviction making it necessary to secure his presence, but, the Coordinate Bench has treated both the appeals against acquittal and conviction on the same footing, which in our humble opinion, may not be correct and this aspect is also required to be considered by a Larger Bench.

52. Moreover, we have a mechanism of providing legal aid through the District Legal Aid Services Authority or the State Legal Services Authority or the High Court Legal Services Committee in cases where the convicted or acquitted person is languishing in jail consequent to execution of such non-bailable warrants. These bodies can be directed to identify such persons and do the needful.

53. There are certain practicalities also involved in this context. If even after issuance of non-bailable warrants in the circumstances discussed hereinabove i.e. at a stage subsequent to the initial stage of entertaining/admitting an appeal against acquittal or ordering releasing of the appellant in an appeal against conviction, the accused-respondent continues to avoid the proceedings and on issuance of non-bailable warrants, the Chief Judicial Magistrate releases him in compliance of the directions issued by the Coordinate Bench in Government Appeal No. 454 of 2022, how the appeal would be heard and how the High Court would be able to secure his presence because in such circumstances where, even after release on bail by the Chief Judicial Magistrate after issuance of non-bailable warrants by the High Court, if such accused again does not appear in spite of an undertaking given to that effect, then, the High Court will again have to again issue non-bailable warrants and the entire process will again have to be repeated which may include the process under Section 82/83 of the Code of 1973, etc., but, this cannot be an unending process and in a given case it may frustrate the hearing of an appeal. This aspect can be clarified by the Larger Bench.

54. Of course, some of the cases in recent times (for example Criminal Appeal No. 3757 of 2023 (Krishna Kumar and others vs. State of U.P.) decided on 01.12.2023), Hon'ble the Supreme Court has disapproved the practice by the High Court of cancelling the bail where the appellant's counsel did not appear instead it observed that the appeal could have been heard by appointing an Amicus Curiae for him. There are other decisions of the Supreme Court of India such as those rendered in the case of Bani Singh and others vs. State of U.P.; (1996) 4 SCC 720; K.S. Panduranga vs. State of Karnataka (2013) 3 SCC 721; Surya Baksha Singh vs. State of U.P. (2014) 14 SCC 222 wherein the question of deciding appeals on merit in the absence of the appellant (convict) or respondent (acquitted person) has been considered. The question is whether in such cases where the appellant or his counsel is not appearing, though he may be traceable, instead of issuing bailable or non-bailable warrants, can the Court straightaway appoint an Amicus Curiae without seeking his consent, hear and decide the matter or decide it on merits without appointing any Amicus, necessarily so, invariably, or there is some discretion vested in this regard?

55. The legal position and the practice which should ordinarily be followed by this Court in such cases should also be determined and some guidance should be provided by a Larger Bench so that there should be certain degree of uniformity in hearing of appeals and the procedures to be followed in this regard by the different Benches of the High Court within the parameters of law.

56. The reference is also necessary as the Coordinate Bench has issued directions to the Director, Judicial Training and Research Institute, Lucknow to hold a seminar and apprise the Chief Judicial Magistrates and Magistrates of the legal position on the subject in the light of what has been held in the aforesaid orders dated 18.01.2024 and 19.01.2024. It is, therefore, all the more necessary that first of all we should be clear about the legal position before communicating it to the Courts below for compliance as otherwise it may result in confusion and chaos.

57. In our humble opinion, the observations made and the directions issued by the Coordinate Bench as referred hereinabove require a reconsideration by a Larger Bench so that the legal position in this regard is settled and there is no confusion in the minds of the Advocates and Judges, especially the Judges of the District Court. Once the position is clarified the Judicial Training and Research Institute should hold a seminar, etc. and apprise the Judicial Officers about the same.

58. We may in this context quote Rule 6 Chapter V of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952 which is as under:

"6. Reference to a larger Bench:- The Chief Justice may constitute a Bench of two or more Judges to decide a case or any question of law formulated by a Bench hearing a case. In the latter event the decision of such Bench on the question so formulated shall be returned to the Bench hearing the case and that Bench shall follow that decision on such question and dispose of the case after deciding the remaining questions, if any, arising therein. "

59. The aforesaid Rule permits a Bench of the High Court to refer a question of law formulated by it for consideration by a Bench of two or more Judges to be constituted by the Chief Justice. Thus, a reference is permissible under the Rules of the Court not only in the event of a conflict between two Coordinate Benches, but also in a case where important questions of law are involved, which according to a particular Bench, are required to be considered by a Larger Bench. We are also of the opinion that important questions of law and procedure relating to hearing of criminal appeals whether against acquittal or conviction have arisen on account of the orders passed by the Coordinate Bench as also in view of the procedure being followed by different Benches of the High Court, which require certain clarity.

60. We, therefore, refer the matter for consideration by a Larger Bench to be constituted by Hon'ble the Chief Justice in exercise of his powers under Chapter V Rule 6 of the Allahabad High Court Rules, 1952.

61. We frame the following questions for consideration by the Larger Bench:

"(1) Whether the Chief Judicial Magistrate or any other Magistrate can enlarge an acquitted person or a person convicted of an offence on bail even in a case where in an appeal against acquittal or conviction, as the case may be, the High Court or any other appellate Court has issued non-bailable warrants for securing his presence without any such stipulation therein for release by the Court below, more so when such non-bailable warrant has been issued at a subsequent stage of appeal and not the admission stage?

(2) Assuming the Magistrate has jurisdiction as referred in Question No. 1, whether a general direction of a mandatory nature can be issued by the High Court to the Magistrate for such release, as has been done vide order dated 18.01.2024 passed in Government Appeal No. 454 of 2022 and order dated 19.01.2024 passed in Government Appeal No. 2552 of 1981, does it not deprive the Magistrate of his discretion in this regard to consider such release on case to case basis in view of the law discussed?

(3) Whether the observations and directions as contained in the order dated 18.01.2024 passed in Government Appeal No. 454 of 2022 (State of U.P. vs. Geeta Devi and another) and the directions dated 19.01.2024 in Government Appeal No. 2552 of 1981 (State of U.P. Vs. Shamshuddin Khan and others) are in accordance with law?

(4) What are the modes prescribed in law for securing the presence of acquitted person or one who has been convicted, in an appeal before the High Court and what should be the course to be ordinarily adopted by the High Court in exercise of its appellate criminal jurisdiction for securing such presence to facilitate hearing of such appeals?

(5) Whether an appeal, either against acquittal or conviction, can be heard by appointing an Amicus Curiae for the accused-respondent or the convicted-appellant, as the case may be, in the event he is not appearing in the appellate proceedings though his presence can be secured, without his consent and without any intimation to him, if so, under what circumstances?"

62. Let the matter be placed before Hon'ble the Chief Justice.

Counsel for the Opp. Party:
Govt. Advocate, Sri Subroto Chandra

(A) Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 364A, 365, 147, 148, 307, 149, Arms Act, 1959 - Section 25 – Ransom – Abduction – Detention – Encounter - Wrongful Confinement - Sections 364A – Kidnapping for ramson, Section 365 - Kidnapping or abducting with intent secretly and wrongfully to confine person – To establish an offense under Section 364A IPC - Prosecution must prove three essential elements: (i) kidnapping or abduction of a person; (ii) threat to cause death or hurt to the kidnapped person or apprehension of such threat; and (iii) demand of ransom. (Para - 34)

Appellants were accused of abducting a child and confining him secretly - Prosecution alleged that child's abduction was for ransom - During an encounter child was recovered - accused were apprehended - inconsistencies emerged regarding ransom handling - no evidence supported a threat to the child's life or safety. (Paras - 2 to 17)

HELD: - No evidence to support the claim that kidnappers threatened to cause death or harm to child. Prosecution failed to establish demand, payment, and recovery of ransom amount beyond reasonable doubt. Case does not meet all three conditions, and it cannot be concluded that accused persons committed any offense under Section 364A IPC. Appellants were acquitted of charge under section 364-A IPC but convicted for offense under section 365 IPC. Convicted for other offences under Sections 147, 148, and 307/149 IPC. Appellants are entitled to be released from jail immediately. (Paras – 35, 39 to 41)

Appeals partly allowed. (E-7)

1. These three appeals are arising out of the common judgement and orders dated 05.05.2015 and 07.05.2015, passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.7, Ghaziabad, in Sessions Trial No. 268 of 2012 (State of U.P. vs. Lalit Kumar and others), arising out of Case Crime No. 820 of 2011 under Section 364A I.P.C. and Sessions Trial No. 363 of 2014, arising out of Case Crime No. 820 of 2011 under Section 364A (State vs. Qayyum) and Sessions Trial No. 291 of 2012 (State vs. Lalit Kumar and Ors.) arising out of Case Crime No. 1190 of 2011 under Sections 147, 148, 307/149 I.P.C. and Sessions Trial No. 292 of 2012 (State vs. Lalit Kumar) arising out of Case Crime No. 1191 of 2011 and under Section 25 of the Arms Act, Sessions Trial No. 293 of 2012 (State of U.P. vs. Pappu) arising out of Case Crime No. 1192 of 2011 under Section 25 of Arms Act, Sessions Trial No. 292 of 2017 (State of U.P. vs. Raj Kumar) arising out of Case Crime No. 1193 of 2011 under Section 25 of the Arms Act, Sessions Trial No. 295 of 2012 (State of U.P. vs. Kanhaiya) arising out of Case Crime No.

1194 of 2011 under Section 25 of the Arms Act, Sessions Trial 296 of 2012 (State of U.P. vs. Iqbal) arising out of Case Crime No. 1195 of 2012 under Section 25 of the Arms Act and Sessions Trial No. 297 of 2012 (State vs. Shivram @ vijju) arising out of Case Crime No. 1196 of 2011 under Section 25 of the Arms Act, whereby all the appellants were convicted for the offences under Sections 364A, 147, 148, 307 I.P.C. and Section 25 of the Arms Act, and sentenced under Section 364A IPC for life imprisonment with fine of Rs. 1,00,000/-, under Section 147 I.P.C., imprisonment for two years, under Section 148 imprisonment for three years, under Section 307/149 imprisonment for ten years with fine of Rs.20,000/- and under Section 25 of the Arms Act, imprisonment for of three years with fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in default of payment of fine further imprisonment for three years as provided.

2. The brief facts of the leading case in Sessions Trial No. 268 of 2012 are that PW-1, Amit Jain, had lodged a first information report on 18.10.2011 at 8:05 A.M., stating that his son, Parshva Jain, who was studying in Class II, in Diwan Public School had been abducted. He had stated that as usual on 18.10.2011, in the morning at 7:30 A.M, the guard of the informant, namely Anand, had started from the informant's house to drop Parshva Jain, son of the informant, to the school. While the guard and his son were on their way to the school, from one Scorpio car, of white and gray colour, which was parked nearby, three persons came out while the driver was still occupying the driving seat, keeping the vehicle's engine on of the three persons one person caught hold of Anand from behind and two persons snatched Parshva Jain from him and put parshva in the Scorpio car and left towards Meerut. The guard made a hue and cry and tried to follow the car but could not succeed. He could not note the vehicle number. The said boy, Parshva Jain, was wearing a school dress of blue colour half shirt, grey colour nicker and black shoes. The guard informed the informant about the incident and thereafter he had lodged the F.I.R. After registration of the F.I.R. against the four unknown accused persons on 22.10.2011, the police had recovered the kidnapped child during an encounter wherein, out of the eight persons, six were apprehended. With regard to the encounter and recovery of the kidnapped child, another Case Crime No. 1190 of 2011 was registered against all the accused persons.

3. The facts of the Case Crime No. 1190 of 2011 were that on 22.10.2011, the Inspector- Sri Anil Kaparwan, incharge of the Special Operation Group(SOG), got an information from a reliable source and through surveillance that the accused persons of Case Crime No. 820 of 2011 were hiding themselves alongwith the kidnapped child in the Dastoi Forest and due to the fear and pressure created by the police, they had shifted near Muradnagar and now they were demanding a ransom of Rs. 2,00,00,000/- (Two Crores) from the father of the kidnapped child and that some deal was going to be finalized on 22.10.2011 at Sadarpur Duhai Road and if the deal was not finalized, they were planning to shift the child to some other State and were trying to go towards Mandawali, Delhi, in the Scorpio Car through Muradnagar. On the basis of such information, Sri Anil Kaparwan, Inspector Incharge of SOG, came to the Police Station, Kavinagar and informed about the same to the SHO, Police Station-Kavinagar. Thereupon, they formed two teams of the police to apprehend the kidnappers and to recover the child.

4. Out of these two police teams, one was led by Sri Anil Kaparwan, Incharge-SOG and another was led by Sri Avanish Gautam, SHO, Kavinagar. Neeraj Kumar (Head Constable 47), Uday Pratap (Constable 1457), Vinay Kumar (Constable 2289), Arun Kumar (Constable 1088), Dhum Singh (Constable 711), Yogesh Kumar (Constable 372) were members of the police team led by SHO Avanish Gautam. Both these teams took their positions on the two roads, one, which went towards Sadarpur and another which went towards Madhuban Bapudham. After sometime a car was seen coming from Govindpur side and after ten minutes another car came from Sadarpur side and both stopped and one person each from both the cars came out and talked to each other and from the car which came first, a person took a bag and went towards the other car. Having satisfied that the payment of ransom was being finalized the police team rushed towards the other car. Thereupon, looking at the police the accused persons began to fire and ultimately the police team despite getting some minor injuries, surrounded the accused persons and apprehended six of the accused persons while two of the accused persons escaped from the spot. The father of the kidnapped child took the child in his arms. The apprehended accused persons were identified as Lalit Kumar s/o Lalaram, Pappu s/o Munna Singh, Raj Kumar s/o Mahendra Singh, Kanhaiya s/o Laxmi Narayan, Iqbal s/o Illiyas, Shivram @ Vijju s/o Khusiram and from each of the apprehended accused persons, various arms alongwith empty and live cartridges were recovered on the spot and on query made from the apprehended accused persons they told that two of their accomplice members, namely Qayyum and Johni @ Baba had fled from the spot. On the spot itself, the bag filled with money which was recovered from the seat of the Scorpio Car, was handed over to the original informant, Amit Jain. Thereafter, the F.I.R. in Case Crime No. 1190 of 2011 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307 I.P.C. and separate cases under Section 25 of the Arms Act were registered against the accused persons. Recovery Memo of various arms from each of the accused persons were prepared and thereupon the Case Crime No. 1191 of 2011 was registered against Lalit Kumar under Section 25 of the Arms Act; Case Crime No. 1192 of 2011 was registered against Pappu Singh s/o Munna Singh; Case Crime No. 1193 of 2011 registered against Raj Kumar s/o Mahendra Singh; Case Crime No. 1194 of 2011 registered against Kanhaiya s/o Laxmi Narayan; Case Crime No. 1195 of 2011 was registered against Iqbal s/o Iliyas; Case Crime No. 1196 of 2011 against Shivram @ Vijju, all under Section 25 of the Arms Act. After the recovery of the child, the child was also handed over to the complainant after medical examination at the police station to the informant.

5. Thereupon, the investigation was completed and the other two co-accused persons who had fled from the spot had also been apprehended during the investigation and then charge-sheets were filed against all the accused persons in both the cases, namely Case Crime No. 820 of 2011 as well as Case Crime No. 1190 of 2011 and also under the offences under the Arms Act separately.

6. After submission of the said charge-sheets, cognizance was taken and the matters were committed to the sessions court, thereupon, the sessions court framed the charges against the accused Lalit Kumar s/o Lalaram, Papu s/o Munna

Singh, Raj Kumar s/o Mahendra Singh, Kanhaiya s/o Laxmi Narayan, Iqbal s/o Illiyas, Shivram @ Vijju s/o Khusiram and Johni @ Baba jointly under Section 364A IPC and further charges under Section 364A IPC were also framed against accused Qayyum. Also charges under Sections 147, 148, 307/149 I.P.C. were framed against the accused Lalit Kumar, Pappu, Rajkumar, Kanhaiya, Shivram @ vijju, Johny @ Baba and Qayyum. Separate charges against accused Lalit Kumar, Pappu, Rajkumar, Kanhaiya, Iqbal, Shivram @ Vijju were framed under Section 25 of the Arms Act.

7. To support the case in Case Crime No. 820 of 2011 under Section 364A I.P.C., the prosecution had examined PW-1- Amit Jain (Informant), PW-2- parshva Jain, PW-3- Atul Jain, PW-4- Anand Kumar, PW-5-Constable Devendra Singh, PW-6-Sub-Inspector, Ashok Rana, PW-7 SHO Avnish Gautam, PW-8 Head Constable Vikas Kumar, PW-9 Constable Akshay Sharma, PW-10 Dr. Naveen Jain, PW-11 Head Constable- Rampal Singh, PW- 12 Constable Bijendra Singh, PW13-Raghunath Gautam. To prove the case in Case Crime No. 1190 of 2011 under Sections 147, 148, 307 I.P.C, the prosecution had examined Inspector Anil Kaparwan, PW-1-the informant of the case, PW-2 Constable- Harish Raghav, PW3 Sub-Inspector Pankaj Pant.

8. Thereupon, the statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. They had denied the allegations and claimed that they had been falsely implicated in the case. After conclusion of the trial vide judgement and order dated 15.05.2015, the learned trial court had convicted the accused Lalit Kumar, Pappu, Rajkumar, Kanhaiya, Shivram @ Vijju, Iqbal for the offences under section 364A IPC and also for the offences under sections 147, 148, 307, 149 IPC and each of the accused Lalit Kumar, Pappu, Rajkumar, Kanhaiya, Shivram @ vijju, Iqbal were also convicted for the offence under section 25 of the Arms Act. The other co-accused persons Johni @ Baba, Badal @ Pawan, Qayyum were acquitted of the charges under section 364A IPC as well as for the charges under sections 147, 148, 307, 149 IPC. After the conviction, vide order dated 07.05.2015 all the six accused persons named above, were sentenced to life imprisonment alongwith a fine of Rs. 1,00,000/- for the offence under section 364A IPC, for the offence under section 147 IPC the six accused persons were sentenced to undergo two years simple imprisonment, for the offence under section 148 IPC, they were sentenced to undergo three years simple imprisonment, for the offence under sections 307/149 IPC all the accused persons were sentenced to undergo 10 years rigorous imprisonment along-with fine of Rs. 20,000/- each and for the offences under section 25 of the Arms Act all the accused persons were sentenced to undergo three years rigorous imprisonment alongwith fines of Rs. 10,000/- each. For the default in payment of fines, the accused persons were further to undergo three years additional sentence. All the sentences were directed to run concurrently.

9. Against the aforesaid judgement of conviction and sentence dated 05.05.2015 and 07.05.2015, three criminal appeals were filed by the six accused persons. The first Criminal Appeal No. 2162 of 2015 was filed by accused/convicted Lalit Kumar and Shivram @ Vijju, the Criminal Appeal No. 2127 of 2015 was filed by the accused/convicted Pappu and accused Iqbal and the Criminal Appeal No. 2161 of 2015 had been filed by accused Kanhaiya @ Kural and accused Rajkumar. Since, all the appeals arose out of a common judgement and order, all the three appeals were heard and decided together.

10. Learned counsel for the appellants and learned Amicus Curiae appointed by this Court have jointly submitted as under:

(i) In the instant case, the accused persons have been convicted and sentenced for the offence under section 364A IPC, however, from the evidence available on record and from the statements of PW1 and PW 2, there was no evidence on record to suggest that the accused persons ever threatened to cause death or hurt to the kidnapped child. Therefore, no offence under section 364A IPC can be said to have been made out against the appellants.

(ii) Learned counsel for the appellants have further submitted that the kidnapped child himself had stated that none of the accused persons, who had been apprehended, had actually kidnapped him while he was going to school. Thus, on the basis of the statement of PW-2, learned counsel for the appellants submits that the appellants herein were not kidnappers of the child and they had been falsely implicated in the case.

(iii) Learned counsel for the appellant submits that in the instant case the demand of ransom and payment thereof had not been proved beyond reasonable doubt and the bag which was stated to be carrying the amount of ransom had never been looked into and the money was never counted by any of the police personnel nor the same was recovered and sealed nor was it made part of the case property, therefore, no offence under section 364A IPC can be said to have been made out against the appellants as the demand and payment of ransom had not been established beyond reasonable doubt by the prosecution.

11. To appreciate the submissions made by learned counsel for the appellants it will be relevant to briefly note the evidence available on record. PW-1 Amit Jain, the informant, in his statement has supported the First Information Report and from his statement it is apparent that he got the information from his guard- Anand and he was not an eye witness of the incident of kidnapping. He had stated that after the kidnappers kidnapped the child, on the same day he received a phone call and he was informed that caller had kidnapped the child and if he wanted his child back safely, then he should make arrangement of money amounting to Rs. 2,00,00,000/- (Rs. Two Crores) as ransom for the release of the child. When he requested them back that he be allowed to talk to the child they did not allow him to talk to the child, however, after one or two days they arranged talk with his wife. When he has shown his inability to pay the ransom of Rs. 2,00,00,000/-(Rs. Two Crores) only and offered Rs. 20,00,000/- (Rs. Twenty Lakhs) then they called him to Bapudham Ghaziabad alone with the money. On 22.10.2011, in the night at around 1:30 A.M. he left the house and went towards Bapudham in his car. When he reached Bapudham then the other car came from the other side and stopped near his car and he started approaching that car along with the money and was about to give the money to the accused persons, when the police reached and fired at the criminal. He, however, hid himself behind his car. During the firing, the SHO Avnish Gautam and two constables sustained fire arm injuries. The child was in possession of the accused persons. After the encounter by the police, the child was recovered by the police and handed over to PW-1 and on the spot six accused persons were arrested. Two of them had run away from the spot. The money which he was to deliver to the accused persons was returned by the police to him and while handing over, the money supurdaginama was got signed by the police from him and he had identified his signature on Memo of Supurdaginama. After taking the custody of the child, he went to his house. In his cross examination, this witness has admitted that the guard Anand was working as a guard in the informant's residential house no. 67, New Okhla, Meerut Road, Hapur and he was working as such for the last 10 to 12 years and Anand was still living with him and was a native of Hapur. The informant, Amit Jain, was running the business of manufacturing utensils and his factory was at Meerut Road, Hapur. The Diwan Public School where his son used to study was around 200 to 250 metres away from his house. One of the accused persons namely accused Qayyum was also working in his factory. The remaining accused persons had never worked with him. The place from where the child was kidnapped, was park in front of the house of Mahesh Chandra Mittal. His wife had told him that Anand had came back to the house and has informed that somebody has kidnapped their child. He received this information at around 7:40 A.M. in the morning and this incident was firstly reported by the guard Anand to his sister-in-law, Sonu Jain (Bhabhi). The other persons, namely Rajkumar Tyagi, Ashok Sharma and various other persons had also informed him about the incident of kidnapping which was witnessed by them. When the police first reached on the spot he was not there. When he came back at 8:30 A.M. then he saw the police and the crowd at the spot. He admits that neither he was informed by the police that efforts were on to search out his child nor he had told the police that he was going alone with the ransom amount to get the child released. Though, he had informed the police that demand of ransom was being made, this information was given by him to the police on 18th itself.

12. Further, in his cross examination this witness had admitted that he was not having any torch etc. and it was a dark night and there was no source of light. When the firing started he had hid himself behind his car and could not see who had fired and after 15 to 20 minutes of the incident of encounter he came alongwith the police in his car to the police station. He had further stated that he had seen the accused persons in the police station and he cannot say with certainty that the accused persons present in court were the same who were involved in the incident. However, the two of them were of the same built as were involved in the incident and were brought to the police station by the police. He had stated that his child was handed over by the police at the police station and all the formalities about the same and the memos for the same were prepared at the Police Station. He further states that his signatures were obtained at the police station Kavi Nagar. He could not tell which police officer had taken into custody the child from the accused persons. No memo with regard to money which he had carried to give the kidnappers had been prepared nor the said bag was taken from him. He had alone gone alongwith the ransom amount.

13. The victim Parshva Jain has been examined as PW-2. He had stated that on 18.10.2011 at around 7:30 A.M., he was going towards his School alongwith the guard Anand. The persons who were standing at the end of our lane had asked the time from us and thereupon they had kidnapped me and kept in the Scorpio car. After a long drive they had asked me to get off of the vehicle in a sugarcane field. They were 12 to 13 persons who had kidnapped me. They kept me in the sugarcane field for 5 days. Out of these persons, two persons used to stay alongwith me and none of them had ever called my family members in front of me. The person who had kidnapped him used to give food to him. After keeping the kidnapped child for 5 days, those five-six persons had brought his towards Ghaziabad and in Ghaziabad the encounter had taken place with the police and at that point of time he was in the car. After the encounter he had stated that his my father had taken him from there. In the encounter, the police had suffered fire arms injuries. The person who were carrying him were apprehended by the police. He did not know the names of those persons. Out of the accused persons who were present in court, none of them were the persons who had kidnapped him while he was going to the school nor those persons had kept him in the sugarcane field. He could not identify the person involved in the encounter. In his cross examination he had stated that the persons who had kidnapped him used to give him food and he has stated that he has informed about the incident to his father but his father had not told him that the accused persons were demanding ransom from him. Where the encounter had taken place was a forest and the encounter had taken place in the night. To his knowledge one police personnel had suffered a fire arm injury. The persons who kept him in the sugarcane field were two in number and for all five days they were with him. He had denied the suggestion that no encounter had taken place and also he was handed over by the police at the police station to his father.

14. PW-3, Sri Atul Jain, is the uncle of the victim, Parshva Jain and brother of the first informant. He witnessed the handing over of the bag filled with the ransom amount to the informant and also handing over the child to the informant. However, this witness has stated that he had no information how the victim was recovered. However, he had stated that on the information given by the informant, he had come to know that the police had recovered the victim from the clutches of the kidnappers.

15. PW-4, Anand, who is the person alongwith whom the victim was going towards the school had stated that he was working as a guard of Amit Jain (informant) and the informant's child Parshva Jain used to study in Diwan Public School in Class II. On 18.10.2011 in the morning at around 7:30, he was going to drop Parshva Jain to his school. The bag of the child was kept by him on his shoulders. When he reached near the turn of the lane, he found that one big car was parked there, the number of which could not be seen by this witness. When he went ahead of the said vehicle, then, some unknown persons caught hold of him and the other persons snatched the child from his hands and kept the child inside the vehicle and also tried to put him in the vehicle. Thereafter, they went alongwith child towards the Gurudwara. He has further stated that thereafter he made a hue and cry, however, the unknown kidnappers succeeded in fleeing away from the spot. Thereafter, he went to the house of his owner and informed him about the incident, however, he could not recognize the colour and number of the vehicle nor could he identify the unknown kidnappers. He could not identify the accused Pawan @ Badal, Pappu, Shivram, Kanhaiya, Ramkumar and Lalit, who were present in court and he has categorically stated that the aforesaid accused persons were present in court had not kidnapped Parshva Jain on 18.10.2011. His statement was not recorded by the police. When his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C., was shown to him, then, he said how this statement was recorded, he could not give the reasons. He deposed that it was true that on 18.10.2011, Parshva Jain was kidnapped in the morning. He denied the suggestion that he was not telling the truth before the court due to pressure. It is admitted by him that he was working as guard with Amit Jain since very long and that he used to drop the kidnapped child, Parshva Jain, in the morning to Diwan Public School. He had further stated that he didn't know when and how after the incident the said Parshva Jain was recovered. He denied the suggestion that on 18.10.2011 in the morning at about 7:30, he had identified the person who kidnapped Parshva Jain as the accused person, who were present in the Court. He further denied the suggestion that he was not telling the truth due to the settlement between the accused persons and the informant. On further cross-examination the PW-5, Anand, admitted that he had never seen the accused persons present in the Court prior to the date. He has further stated that he didn't know the names and addresses of the accused persons present in court. The accused persons who were present in court were not involved in the kidnapping of Parshva Jain. He did not know any person by the name, Johni @ Baba. No person named Johni @ Baba was ever working with his master.

In the cross-examination, he admits that F.I.R. was recorded in his presence and the said F.I.R. was lodged on his dictation on the computer. The written report was not transcribed in his presence and on the basis of the written report he got registered the case. The persons who brought the written report did not give any photograph.

17. PW-6, Inspector Ashok Rana, is the person who was posted as SHO at Police Station- Hapur Nagar and he had conducted the investigation since 18.10.2011 to 29.10.2011. He had stated that on 18.10.2011, on the basis of the written report submitted by informant, Amit Jain, Case Crime No. 820 of 2011 was registered under Section 364A I.P.C. against unknown persons. He took over the investigation and recorded the statement of eye witness- Anand Kumar and at the indication of the said eye witness, a site plan for the place of incident was prepared and PW-6 also recorded the statements of various other persons and the same was entered in the Case Diary. On 19.10.2011, the statement of the informant- Amit Jain, was recorded and thereupon in search of the accused persons he raided the place of accused Qayyum on 22.10.2011. On receipt of information from Police Station- Kavi Nagar through the wireless set, the accused Lalit Kumar s/o Lalaram., Papu s/o Munna Singh, Raj Kumar s/o Mahendra Singh, Kanhaiya s/o Laxmi Narayan, Iqbal s/o Illiyas, Shivram @ Vijju s/o Khusiram were apprehended. During the encounter, the police alongwith kidnapped child and the vehicle and arms used in the incident arrested the accused persons while the two accused persons, namely Qayyum and Johni @ Baba had fled away from the spot.

On the information received he had visited the Police Station- Kavi Nagar and had obtained the Seizure Memo etc. from the office of the Police Station- Kavi Nagar and same were made part of the Case Diary. He had also recorded the statements of the accused persons present in the police station. At the police station, Parshva Jain and his father Amit Jain also met him. The kidnapped Parshva Jain was handed over to the father- Amit Jain in presence of the witnesses and memo was prepared and the said memo was prepared in his hand writing and signature. During the process, he also recorded the statement of the informant- Amit Jain and made it part of the Case Diary. With regard to the encounter and arrest of the accused Lalit Kumar s/o Lalaram., Pappu s/o Munna Singh, Raj Kumar s/o Mahendra Singh, Kanhaiya s/o Laxmi Narayan, Iqbal s/o Illiyas, Shivram @ Vijju s/o Khusiram and other accused persons, who fled from the spot, namely Qayyum and Johni @ Baba, and for the recovery of the kidnapped child, Parshva Jain in the encounter and with regard to the vehicle and use of illegal arms etc., on 22.10.2011, Case Crime Nos. 1190 to 1196 of 2011 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 307 I.P.C., and under Section 25 of the Arms Act, were registered at Police Station- Kavi Nagar. In the said encounter, three police personnels, namely Inspector- Avnish Gautam, Constable- Vikas, Constable- Akshay Sharma, had sustained injuries. On 23.10.2011, the proceedings for warrant under Section 364A I.P.C. were initiated in the Court of A.C.J.M.- Hapur and subsequently, during investigation name of accused Pawan @ Badal also reflected, who was arrested on 27.10.2011 and was sent to jail and during the arrest of the said accused, illegal arms were also recovered and his statement was also recorded and was made part of the Case Diary. On 29.10.2011, the warrants were got issued under Section 364A I.P.C. through the Court. Thereafter, he was transferred to District- Gautam Buddh Nagar. In his cross-examination, he has stated that he has recorded the statement of the informant and the witnesseses around 10:00 A.M. to 10:30 A.M. on 18.10.2011. He had not mentioned the time of recording of the statement of these witnesses in the Case Diary. He had recorded the statement of these witnesses in the police station. He had prepared the site plan at the indication of witnesses- Anand at 11:30 A.M. He had not recorded any statement of any employee of the Rao Palace Hotel. In supurdaginama, there is no signature of kidnapped Parshva Jain. He has denied the suggestion that no encounter with the police has taken place and that the kidnapped Parshva Jain was recovered. He has also denied the suggestion that he was not was present in the police station, that is why the signature of Parshva Jain was not obtained in the supurdaginama. He further denied the suggestion that in the supurdaginama signature of witnesses and the informant were obtained later on. In the Police Station- Kavi Nagar he had not inquired from the informant that where was the money which he had brought to be given to the kidnappers nor he had seen the said money nor he has inquired as to whether the said money was in which bag or briefcase. On 23.10.2011, he had not recorded the statement of the police personnels who were involved in the encounter, though, they were present in the Police Station- Kavi Nagar. On the said date he had not gone to the Sarvodaya Hospital nor he had recorded the statement of doctor who has examined the injured police officers in the encounter. He had not conducted any identification proceedings of the accused persons vis-a-vis the witness, Anand Kumar. He had denied the suggestion that to disclose the incident he has conducted the proceedings in collusion with Incharge SOG- Anil Kaparwan and made out the recovery of kidnapped Parshva Jain and the arrest of the accused persons. He also denied the suggestion that he had not conducted the investigation in a transparent manner. He also denied the suggestion that during the investigation he had not recorded the statement of Parshva Jain and he had not visited the place from where Parshva Jain was recovered nor any site plan was prepared by him of the place of recovery of Parshva Jain. He had undertaken the investigation after registration of the case at the Police Station. It is true that the time of initiation of investigation was not mentioned in the Case Diary. He did not record the statement of Parshva Jain as he was not well at that time. He had mentioned this fact in the Case Diary that Parshva Jain was not well. It is true that on 22.10.2011, Parshva Jain was not well and subsequently, he continued with the investigation till 29.10.2011. He did make an attempt to record the statement of Prashva Jain and the same was mentioned in Case Diary on 27 to 29.05.2011. However, he could not meet Parshva Jain on both the dates as it was told to him that he had gone to Delhi for treatment. He had gone to the school and verified that he was studying in the school. However, no statement of any person from the school was recorded. He has recorded the statement of the persons surroundings the case of incident. He could not take the statement of police personnel who recovered the kidnapped child due to the fact that he was busy in various other proceedings. In his further cross examination, he had stated that on 22.10.2011, that he had received intimation through wireless set from Police Station-Kavi Nagar, with regard to the work place, encounter and recovery of the kidnapped child Parshva Jain and arrest of all the six accused persons. From the incident, the vehicle and the illegal weapons were also recovered which were used in the crime. The two accused- Qayyum and Johni @ Baba had fled from the spot. On 18.10 2011, in the statement of Anand itself, the name of Qayyum was reflected and thereupon, on 19.10.2011, he had raided the house of the accused Qayyum for his arrest. However, the accused- Qayyum could not be arrested on that date.

18. PW-7, Avanish Gautum, SHO, stated that on 22.10.2011 he was posted as SHO- Kavi Nagar. On that date the SHO- Anil Kaparwan, incharge of SOG, alongwith police personnels, Pankaj Pant (SI), Akshay Sharma (Constable), Tejpal Singh (Constable), Vikas Sharma (Constable), Harish Raghav (Constable), Neeraj Kumar (Constable), Uday Pratap (Constable), Vinay Kumar (Constable), Arun Kumar (Constable) came to the Police Station- Kavi Nagar and informed that the kidnappers of the kidnapped child of Case Crime No. 820 of 2011 under Section 364A IPC were hiding in the forest of Village- Dastoi and now they had come to Muradnagar alongwith their associates and the child. They had demanded a ransom of Rs.2,00,00,000/- from the family members of kidnapped child- Prashva Jain and today the deal for the release of the kidnapped child was about to take place at Sadarpur Duhai road and on such deal it had come to his knowledge that the said kidnapped child shall be released and if the deal was not finalized the accused kidnappers shall shift the child to some other State. The said persons were expected to come in a Scorpio car from Muradnagar to Duhai Sadarpur Marg and they would proceed to Mandawali. Relying upon the said information given by the SHO- Anil Kaparwan and after discussing with him they formed two teams of the police officers and both the teams proceeded towards Sadarpur Dhulai and Bajwaha Road at 1:40 A.M. on 22.10.2011, wherefrom, one road goes towards Sadarpur and the other road goes towards Madhuban Bapudhan Colony, where both the teams were placed on both sides of the roads and they waited for the accused persons to reach there. A vehicle came from the side of Govindpur and after 10 minutes another vehicle came from the side of Duhai and the second vehicle stopped near the earlier first vehicle which came from side of the Govindpur and from both the vehicles, one person came down and started talking to each other. Thereafter, the person who came in the vehicle from Govindpur side took out a bag from his vehicle and proceeded towards the other vehicle. That is the time the police realised that in the second vehicle there were the accused persons and the kidnapped child. He further deposed that when the police parties proceeded towards the said vehicle, the accused persons looking at the police personnel opened fired at the police team in which three police personnels sustained injuries and they also fired in self-defence and subsequently surrounded the accused persons and arrested six of them at 3:30 A.M. from the spot. After the arrest of the said six persons they recovered Parshva Jain. The informant, Amit Jain, who came from the Govindpur side took the child in his arms. The kidnappers were searched and on enquiry they disclosed their name as Lalit Kumar s/o Lalaram., Pappu s/o Munna Singh, Raj Kumar s/o Mahendra Singh, Kanhaiya s/o Laxmi Narayan, Iqbal s/o Illiyas, Shivram @ Vijju s/o Khusiram and from their possession various arms with live cartridges and empty cartridges were recovered, which were used in the incident. They disclosed the names of the two persons who fhad led away as Qayyum and Johni @ Baba and they also disclosed that kidnapped child which had been recovered on that day, was Kidnapped by them for ransom from Hapur and on the finalisation of deal they had brought the child for release on receipt of the ransom. The bag in which the ransom amount was kept was brought by the informant, Amit Jain was handed over to him and the recovery memo etc., were prepared on the spot in the light of the torch and recovery memos of arms and cartridges were also prepared and the same were sealed. The injuries sustained by him as well as the other police officers were examined at Sarvodaya Hospital on 22.10.2011 and on the same date the kidnapped Parshva Jain was handed over to his father Amit Jain and memo was prepared. In his cross examination this witness has further stated that at about 1:30 A.M. in the night the Inspector- Anil Kaparwan had come to the Police Station- Kavi Nagar and thereafter at 1:50 A.M., they had left for the place of incident and they had reached there within 20 minutes. The informant- Amit Jain had come from the side of Govindpur for giving the ransom amount. After 15 minutes of the reaching of Amit Jain, another vehicle had come from the other side and stopped at a distance of 20-25 feet. Amit Jain was having a faded black bag and he had informed that he had brought Rs. 17,00,000/- in the said bag. The said Rs. 17,00,000/- were counted by the Inspector SOG- Anil Kaparwan. This witness did not remember that the notes were of which denomination. This witness stated that no supurdaginama was prepared, however, the same was not on record. He further stated that at that time of arrest of the accused and recovery of Parshva Jain, the informant-Amit Jain and his family members had reached there on the spot and the memo was prepared in their presence. In his further cross-examination, PW-7, Avanish Kumar Gautam, categorically stated that the accused persons had come in their Scorpio vehicle which was of silver colour and the vehicle number was HR 30 F 0397. However, he was not able to describe the make and colour of the vehicle on which the informant had reached at the place of encounter. He admits the firing by the accused persons in the encounter, however how many rounds of fire were made by the accused persons, he was not able to give any details. However, subsequently he has described that around 10-12 round fires were made by them and the victim child was recovered from the Scorpio vehicle and the accused persons were apprehended by the police parties at 3:30 A.M. The accused had not surrendered. The police parties had warned the accused persons and thereafter while firing in self-defence they had surrounded the accused persons and apprehended them. The ransom amount which was carried in the bag was counted on the spot and about Rs. 17,00,000/- were found there in the black bag. He did not remember the description of the notes and who counted the said ransom amount was not disclosed by this witness and after completion of the formalities, supurdaginama was prepared and the ransom amount was returned to the informant on the spot. He has denied the suggestion with regard to the encounter and recovery of the child being fabricated and that the accused were arrested from their respective houses. He further had stated in his cross-examination that the ransom amount of Rs. 17,00,000/- was recovered on the spot from the Scorpio vehicle and the amount which was recovered was handed over to the informant on the spot itself. After the incident, he was admitted in the Sarvodaya Hospital for four days and thereafter he joined his duty.

19. PW-8, Vikas Kumar (Constable 58) has also supported the statement as stated by PW-7 with regard to the encounter, recovery of the child and recovery of the money and supurdaginama etc. However, in the cross examination he had not been able to describe how much money was there in the bag which was brought by Amit Jain and who has counted the amount is also not in the knowledge of this witness. He admits that the injury sustained by him in the incident and he was admitted in the hospital.

20. PW-9, Sub Inspector Akshay Sharma has also supported the statement of the SHO Avanish Gautam and the manner of information received from Inspector Anil Kaparwan and informing of the team of the police officers, their arrival and division in two teams and subsequently arrival of the father of the kidnapped child on the spot and then the accused persons who are subsequently apprehended and the child was recovered and six of the accused persons were arrested on spot alongwith their arms and the recovery memo and supurduginama were also prepared.

In his cross-examination, he has denied suggestion that the accused persons were not arrested during the encounter and were arrested from their houses.

27. After conclusion of the prosecution witnesses, the statement of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and the accused persons have denied the allegations against them and claimed that they have been falsely implicated in the case. However, none of the accused have ever been able to demonstrate any reason as to why they were falsely implicated in the case by the police officers.

28. From the aforesaid evidence available on record, the following is proved beyond reasonable doubt that:-

(i) from the statement of PW-1, PW-2 and PW-4 (Anand Kumar), it is proved that on 18.10.2011, when the witness Anand Kumar was going to drop the kidnapped child, Parshva Jain, to his school, some unknown persons came in a Scorpio car and kidnapped the child, Parshva Jain and ran away.

(ii) From the statements of PW-1, Amit Jain, it is also proved that on 18.10. 2011 itself in the evening they had received the ransom call by the kidnappers and the same was informed by him to the police. Thereupon, police kept a surveillance and got to know that a ransom demand of Rs.. 2,00,00,000/- was made by some unknown kidnappers and finally a deal was to be executed on 22.10.2011. On such information received by the Incharge of Special Operation Group- Anil Kaparwal, he alongwith the other police personnel came to the Police Station- Kavi Nagar and discussed the issue with the SHO Avnish Gautam and thereupon they formed two teams and went near the spot where the ransom deal was about to be executed.

(iii) It is further proved that informant- Amit Jain had reached the spot alone in his private car and after a few minutes of his arrival the accused persons had reached the spot alongwith the child. Thereupon, one of the accused persons and the informant talked to each other and the informant had taken out a bag from his car and had proceeded towards the Scorpio car in which the accused persons were present and at that very time the police officers being satisfied that the deal with regard to the ransom was being finalized, surrounded the accused persons. It was at this time that the accused persons fired on them. Thereupon, in retaliation the police personnel also fired and subsequently apprehended six accused persons on the spot and also recovered the child on the spot. It is also evident from the evidence on record that the bag was also recovered, however, from the evidence available on record, there is no definite evidence that any of the police officials have, in fact, counted the ransom amount which is alleged to be there in the bag and though it is being stated that there were Rs. 17,00,000/- in the said bag, none of the witnesses was able to describe as to who had actually counted the said amount or what was the description of the currency notes available in the bag. The witnesses had stated that the said bag was handed over on the spot to the informant-Amit Jain and supurdaginama was prepared. In supurdaginama, the brother of the informant- Atul Jain had signed as witness. However, in the statement he had denied that any handing over of the bag or child has taken place in his presence. PW-3 Atul has denied his presence on the spot and denied that any bag filled with the ransom amount was handed over to the informant in his presence. So far as the recovery of the child on the spot is concerned that has been amply proved through the evidence of PW-1, PW-2. The child was kidnapped and thereafter the said child was recovered after the encounter but with regard to any ransom being paid or demanded, there is very little evidence available on record. Therefore, undoubtedly prosecution one had failed to prove the demand, payment and recovery of ransom amount beyond reasonable doubt. The prosecution has further failed to prove that the accused persons had ever threatened or caused any hurt to the child.

29. From the aforesaid proven facts it is to be examined whether the offence under Section 364A IPC is made out against the accused persons. To determine whether the offence under section 364A IPC is made out or not, it will be relevant to note the provisions of Section 364A IPC, which reads as under:-

"'364-A. Kidnapping for ransom, etc.—Whoever kidnaps or abducts any person or keeps a person in detention after such kidnapping or abduction and threatens to cause death or hurt to such person, or by his conduct gives rise to a reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt, or causes hurt or death to such person in order to compel the Government or any foreign State or international inter-governmental organisation or any other person to do or abstain from doing any act or to pay a ransom, shall be punishable with death, or imprisonment for life, and shall also be liable to fine."

30. In Vinod v. State of Haryana, (2008) 2 SCC 246, the Apex Court has held as under:-

"8. The section refers to both 'kidnapping' and 'abduction'. Section 359 defines kidnapping. As per the said provision there are two types of kidnapping i.e. : (1) kidnapping from India; and (2) kidnapping from lawful guardianship.

9. Abduction is defined in Section 362. The provision envisages two types of abduction i.e. : (1) by force or by compulsion; and/or (2) inducement by deceitful means. The object of such compulsion or inducement must be the going of the victim from any place. The case at hand falls in the second category.

10. To 'induce' means 'to lead into'. Deceit according to its plain dictionary meaning signifies anything intended to mislead another. It is a matter of intention and even if promise held out by the accused was fulfilled by him, the question is : Whether he was acting in a bona fide manner?

11. The offence of abduction is a continuing offence. This section was amended in 1992 by Act 42 of 1993 with effect from 22-5-1993 and it was subsequently amended in 1995 by Act 24 of 1995 with effect from 26-5-1995. The section provides punishment for kidnapping, abduction or detaining for ransom."

31. In Arvind Singh v. State of Maharashtra, (2021) 11 SCC 1, the Apex Court has held as under:-

"92. An argument was raised that the child was kidnapped for ransom but there was no intention to take life of the child, therefore, an offence under Section 364-A is not made out. To appreciate the arguments, Section 364-A IPC is reproduced as under:

'364-A. Kidnapping for ransom, etc.—Whoever kidnaps or abducts any person or keeps a person in detention after such kidnapping or abduction and threatens to cause death or hurt to such person, or by his conduct gives rise to a reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt, or causes hurt or death to such person in order to compel the Government or any foreign State or international inter-governmental organisation or any other person to do or abstain from doing any act or to pay a ransom, shall be punishable with death, or imprisonment for life, and shall also be liable to fine.'

93. Section 364-A IPC has three ingredients relevant to the present appeals, one, the fact of kidnapping or abduction, second, threatening to cause death or hurt, and last, the conduct giving rise to reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt.

94. The kidnapping of an 8-year-old child was unequivocally for ransom. The kidnapping of a victim of such a tender age for ransom has inherent threat to cause death as that alone will force the relatives of such victim to pay ransom. Since the act of kidnapping of a child for ransom has inherent threat to cause death, therefore, the accused have been rightly been convicted for an offence under Section 364-A read with Section 34 IPC. The threat will remain a mere threat, if the victim returns unhurt. In the present case, the victim has been done to death. The threat had become a reality. There is no reason to take different view that the view taken by the learned Sessions Judge as well by the High Court."

32. In Shaik Ahmed v. State of Telangana, (2021) 9 SCC 59, the Apex Court considering the provisions of Section 364A I.P.C. has held as under:-

"33. After noticing the statutory provision of Section 364-A and the law laid down by this Court in the abovenoted cases, we conclude that the essential ingredients to convict an accused under Section 364-A which are required to be proved by the prosecution are as follows:

(i) Kidnapping or abduction of any person or keeping a person in detention after such kidnapping or abduction; and

(ii) threatens to cause death or hurt to such person, or by his conduct gives rise to a reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt or;

(iii) causes hurt or death to such person in order to compel the Government or any foreign State or any Governmental organisation or any other person to do or abstain from doing any act or to pay a ransom.

Thus, after establishing first condition, one more condition has to be fulfilled since after first condition, word used is "and". Thus, in addition to first condition either Condition (ii) or (iii) has to be proved, failing which conviction under Section 364-A cannot be sustained.

34. The second condition which is "and threatens to cause a death or hurt to such person, or by his conduct gives rise to a reasonable apprehension that such person may be put to death or hurt" is relevant for consideration in this case since appellant has confined his submission only regarding non-fulfilment of this condition. We may also notice that the appellant has filed grounds of appeal before the High Court in which following was stated in Grounds 6 and 7:

"6. The learned Judge failed to see that PW 2 stated that he was treated well and as such there was no threat to cause death or hurt.

7. The learned Judge should have seen that PW 1 did not state that the accused threatened to cause death or hurt to his son."

33. In Malleshi v. State of Karnataka, (2004) 8 SCC 95, the Apex Court has held as under:-

"12. To attract the provisions of Section 364-A what is required to be proved is : (1) that the accused kidnapped or abducted the person; (2) kept him under detention after such kidnapping and abduction; and (3) that the kidnapping or abduction was for ransom. Strong reliance was placed on a decision of the Delhi High Court in Netra Pal v. State (NCT of Delhi) [2001 Cri LJ 1669 (Del)] to contend that since the ransom demand was not conveyed to the father of PW 2, the intention to demand was not fulfilled.

13. To pay a ransom as per Black's Law Dictionary means "to pay price or demand for ransom". The word "demand" means "to claim as one's due"; "to require"; "to ask relief"; "to summon"; "to call in court"; "an imperative request preferred by one person to another, under a claim of right, requiring the latter to do or yield something or to abstain from some act"; "an asking with authority, claiming or challenging as due". The definition as pointed out above would show that the demand has to be communicated. It is an imperative request or a claim made."

34. To make a case under section 364A IPC following ingredients are required to be fulfilled:-

(i) whoever kidnaps or abducts any person or keeps a person in determination after such kidnapping or abduction; and

(ii) threaten to cause death or hurt to such person or by its conduct gives rise to enable apprehension that such persons maybe put to death or hurt;

(iii) or causes hurt or death to such person in order to compel the Government or any foreign State or Intergovernmental organisation or any other person to do or abstain from doing any act or pay ransom;

(iv) if all the above three conditions are fulfilled, then, such persons shall be punished with death or imprisonment for life and shall also be liable to fine.

35. From the evidence available on record as noted hereinabove, there is enough evidence that the child, Parshva Jain was kidnapped by some unknown persons and the said child was recovered from the possession and detention of the accused persons and all the six accused persons were apprehended in the encounter and the child was recovered from their possession. However, from the entire evidence available on record, there is no evidence available with regard to the fact that such kidnappers had ever threatened to cause death or hurt to the kidnapped child. It was certain that none of the conduct of the accused persons had ever given any reasonable apprehension that the said child may be put to death or would be hurt, therefore, the second condition is entirely absent from the evidence brought on record by the prosecution in the instant case. With regard to the third condition, there was definitely no hurt caused or anyone was put to death. However, there is some evidence for demand of ransom san the threat of causing hurt or death to any person. Also, the prosecution has failed to establish demand, payment and recovery of ransom amount beyond reasonable doubt. From perusal of the records as well as the statement of the victim P.W. 2 parshva Jain, it is clear that there was no threat to him of being put to death or of being hurt. Nor there was any such apprehension that the victim may be put to death or would be hurt in the absence of ransom. In his statement the PW-2 has specifically stated that the kidnappers used to provide him food and he had also stated that his father had not informed him about the ransom. Another aspect of the matter so far ransom part is concerned is that the prosecution had come with a clear case that an amount of Rs. 17,00,000/- which was kept in the black bag and was brought by the informant to pay to the kidnappers had been handed over to the informant on the spot itself and superdiginama of the said Bag (Ext. Ka-7) and the superdiginama of the recovered child (Ext.Ka-2) were also prepared in which P.W. 3 Atul Jain had signed as a witness but P.W.3 Atul Jain in his deposition has clearly stated he had no personal knowledge that how his nephew had been recovered and he came to know from his brother- informant-Amit Jain that the police had got recovered the victim from the kidnappers. Therefore, the prosecution had completely failed to establish that there was any threat to cause death or hurt to the victim and there was any such apprehension that the victim may be put to death or would be hurt to pay a ransom, as provided in Section 364-A IPC. The other aspect of the matter with regard to the recovery of bag and the cash kept therein is concerned, there is nothing on record that the cash of Rs. 17,00,000/- alleged to be carried by the informant had ever been counted by the police or had been made case property and it is alleged that the same was handed over the informant on the very same date under superdiginama (Ext. Ka-7) in the presence of Atul Jain, P.W. 3, who is a witness of superdiginama and brother of the informant but in his deposition he had shown his ignorance of any such fact. Therefore, since all the three conditions mentioned above are not fulfilled in the instant case, therefore, it cannot be concluded that the accused persons had committed any offence under Section 364A IPC. However, we have to consider as to what is the offence made out against the appellants.

36. Learned counsel for the State has vehemently submitted that though the offence under Section 364 A IPC may not be made out as the conditions with regard to the threat to cause death or hurt had not been established nor there was any definite proof with regard to the demand and payment of ransom, then, definitely the act of the accused persons would come within the purview of Section 365 IPC, which reads as under:-

"Section 365. Kidnapping or abducting with intent secretly and wrongfully to confine person- Whoever kidnaps or abducts any person with intent to cause that person to be secretly and wrongfully confined, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine."

37. In Mulla v. State of U.P. [(2010) 3 SCC 508 : (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 1150] , after considering various earlier decisions, this Court held as under:

"67. It is settled legal position that the punishment must fit the crime. It is the duty of the court to impose proper punishment depending upon the degree of criminality and desirability to impose such punishment. As a measure of social necessity and also as a means of deterring other potential offenders, the sentence should be appropriate befitting the crime."

38. In the instant case, the child was kidnapped and was kept secretly and confined wrongfully and was subsequently recovered from the possessions of the accused persons herein, who were apprehended on the spot by the police teams. However, the prosecution has failed to prove the demand payment and recovery of ransom amount. Further, no threat of causing death or hurt to the child had been established.

39. For all the reasons stated above, in our considered opinion the charge under section 364-A IPC is not made out against the appellants and since the child was abducted and kept secretly and wrongfully confined and was recovered from the possession of the appellants, therefore, at the most offence under Section 365 IPC is made out against the appellants. Accordingly, the appellants are acquitted of the charge under section 364-A IPC and instead they are convicted for the offence under section 365 IPC and sentenced to seven years imprisonment with fine of Rs.50,000/- each. With regard to the conviction of the accused persons for the offences under Sections 147, 148, 307/149 IPC we uphold their conviction and the sentence as was awarded by the Additional Sessions Judge. Since the trial court had already directed that all the sentences would run concurrently and since it has been informed by the learned counsel for the appellants that all the appellants have already undergone sentence for more than 10 years. We hold that the appellants are entitled to be released from jail forthwith, if they are not required in any other case.

40. Therefore, it is directed that the concerned Jail Authorities shall verify the aforesaid facts that if all the appellants have completed their sentences as modified hereinabove, they shall be released forthwith, if they are not required in any other case with the aforesaid observations, these appeals are partly allowed.

41. We appreciate the hard work done by learned Amicus Curiae, Sri Sikandar B. Kochar and put on record our gratitude. We further direct the Legal Services Authority to make payment of Rs. 25,000/- per appeal as Honorarium in which the learned Amicus Curiae argued.

THE HON'BLE RAJIV GUPTA, J.
THE HON'BLE MOHD. AZHAR HUSAIN IDRISI, J.

Jail Appeal No. 4480 of 2016

Usman ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opp. Party

Counsel for the Appellant:
From Jail, Sri Arvind Kumar Singh

Counsel for the Opp. Party:
A.G.A.

(A) Criminal Law - Murder conviction based on circumstantial evidence - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 302 - murder - Circumstantial Evidence - Child Witness - Presumption of Guilt - Homicidal Death - Where an accused is alleged to have committed the murder of his wife and the prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that shortly before the commission of crime they were seen together or the offence takes place in the dwelling home where the husband also normally resided, it has been consistently held that if the accused does not offer any explanation how the wife received injuries or offers an explanation which is found to be false, it is a strong circumstance which indicates that he is responsible for commission of the crime. (Para - 40,48)

(B) Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Section 106 - Burden of proving fact especially within knowledge, Section 118 - competency of child witnesses - Presumption of guilt under Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act when the crime occurs within the private dwelling of the accused - credibility of a child witness's testimony depends on the case's circumstances and the witness's reliability and demeanor - no rule of practice for corroboration of child witness evidence before conviction - If the witness's deposition inspires confidence and there is no embellishment, the court may rely on it.(Para - 43)

(D) Words or Phrases - "especially" - facts that are pre-eminently or exceptionally within the knowledge of the accused , "Especially within the knowledge of the accused" - presumption of fact is a rule in law of evidence that a fact otherwise doubtful may be inferred from certain other proved facts - Pertains to facts that an accused can more readily explain in certain cases, under Section 106 of the Evidence Act. (Para 40)

Appellant was accused of murdering his wife - within the confines of their home - prosecution's case was supported by deceased's son, a child witness - who witnessed crime - Appellant's presence at the time of the crime was established - no contrary evidence offered by the defense.(Para 3-13, 18-20)

HELD: - Prosecution proved beyond a reasonable doubt that appellant killed his wife in their home. Child's testimony was credible, consistent, and corroborated by medical evidence and additional circumstances. Accused's silence and failure to explain circumstances of death in his home led to a presumption of guilt under Section 106 of the Evidence Act. Conviction and sentence for murder were upheld. (Para 31, 37-50)

Appeal dismissed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajiv Gupta, J.)

1. Heard Shri Arvind Kumar Singh, learned Amicus Curiae for the appellant, Shri J.P. Tripathi, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. This instant jail appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 30.11.2015 passed by District and Sessions Judge, Bijnor, in Sessions Trial No.221 of 2014 (State Vs. Usman), arising out of Case Crime No. 59 of 2014, under Sections 302 IPC, Police Station Syohara, District Bijnor, whereby the appellant has been convicted for the offence under Section 302 IPC and awarded the sentence of life imprisonment alongwith a fine of Rs.20,000/- with default stipulation.

3. Shorn of unnecessary details, the prosecution story, as mentioned in the FIR, is that Shahana, sister of the first informant Mohd. Hanif (P.W. 1) was married about 12 years back to the appellant Usman, resident of mohalla Aladinpur, Police Station Syohara. Usman used to suspect the character of his wife and very often used to hurl abuses and beat her in a drunken state. It is further stated that every effort was made to counsel him by his family members, but to no avail. Yesterday i.e. on 29.01.2014, at about 08.00 p.m. in the evening, Shahana had called him over phone and informed that her husband Usman is quarreling with her, beating her and threatening to kill her, he, however, pacified his sister and asked her not to quarrel and assured that he will reach by tomorrow to counsel Usman. It is further stated that on 30.01.2014, he along with his brother Mohd. Islam and Akbar Ali reached his sister's house in village Aladinpur and found her dead body lying on a cot having injuries on her neck and face. A rope was found lying near the cot. It is further stated that last night Shahana was done to death with the help of rope by strangulating her.

4. On the basis of a written report (Ext. Ka-1), an FIR was registered vide Case Crime No.59 of 2014, under Section 302 IPC in Police Station Syohara, District Bijnor at 08.30 a.m. Carbon copy whereof was drawn vide G.D. Report No.19 at 08.30 a.m. on 30.01.2014.

5. The investigation of the said case was entrusted to the Station Officer, who after copying out the chik FIR and G.D. in the Case Diary, recorded the statement of Head Moharrir and thereafter, recorded the statement of the first informant Hanif, Adnan, son of the deceased and Fatima, sister of the deceased and thereafter on the pointing out of the first informant prepared the site plan, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-3.

6. A plastic rope lying near the cot was also taken in possession and a recovery memo was prepared for the same, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-4. Thereafter, the Investigating Officer instructed S.I. Rajendra Singh, who accompanied him to the place of incident to conduct the inquest. S.I. Rajendra Singh conducted the inquest and prepared the Inquest Memo and at the same time prepared all other relevant documents namely Form-13, photo-lash, challan-lash, letter to C.M.O., letter to R.I., sample seal, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-9 to Ka-14 and thereafter sent the body of the deceased to the mortuary.

7. An autopsy was conducted by Dr. F.C. Verma on the person of the deceased Shahana in District Hopspital, Bijnor on 31.01.2014 and in the post-mortem report, the Doctor has noted two ante-mortem injuries, which are as under:-

(i) Ligature mark 30-20 around the neck below the chin, 5 cm below from both ears brown in colour.

(ii) Abrasion 12 cm x 2 cm below the mouth present on both sides of mandible.

8. In internal examination of the corps, trachea was found congested and ecchymosis was present. Both the lungs were congested. Right chamber of heart was full, whereas the left chamber was empty. Stomach was empty. Gall bladder was full. Spleen, liver and kidneys were found congested. The Doctor has noted the cause of death to be asphyxia due to ante-mortem strangulation.

9. On 31.01.2014 itself, the appellant Usman is said to have been arrested and his statement was recorded. Thereafter, the Investigating Officer has recorded the statement of relevant witnesses and obtained FSL report and after concluding the investigation submitted the charge-sheet against the appellant vide Charge-Sheet No.46 of 2014, under Section 302 IPC, proved it and marked as Ext. Ka-5.

10. On the basis of the said charge-sheet, learned Magistrate has taken cognizance. Since the case was exclusively triable by Court of Sessions, learned Magistrate made over the case to the Court of Sessions for trial. The Sessions court vide its order dated 29.05.2014 framed the charge under Section 302 IPC against the appellant, who abjured the said charge and claimed to be tried.

11. During the course of trial, the prosecution has examined as many as three witnesses of fact and three other formal witnesses. Their testimony, in brief, is enumerated hereunder.

12. P.W.1 Mohd. Hanif is the first informant and brother of the deceased and he, in his testimony, stated that about 12 years back, his sister Shahana was married to Usman, who used to suspect her character and very often used to hurl abuses and beat her in a drunken state. On 29.01.2014 at about 08.10 p.m., Shahana informed him over phone that her husband Usman is quarreling with her, beating her and threatening to kill her. He asked his sister not to quarrel and assured her to reach there by tomorrow to counsel Usman.

13. On 30.01.2014, he along with his brother reached the house of Shahana and found her dead body lying on a cot having injuries on her face and neck. The rope lying near the cot was also found and it appeared that her husband Usman had killed her by strangulating with the help of a rope, however, Usman was not present there.

14. In respect of the said incident, he had given written report (Ext. Ka-1) at the police station, on the basis of which, the chik FIR was registered. On the basis of the said FIR, the police reached the place of incident and prepared the fard recovery memo of the rope found lying there.

15. During cross-examination, he stated that Shahana was his sister and was married to Usman. A phone call from his sister was received informing him that there was a threat to her life by her husband Usman. Pursuant to the said phone call, on the next day he reached at his sister's house, where he found mother-in-law of Shahana, her sister-in-law and brother-in-law to be present and except them no one else was present there and in the room, Shahana was lying dead.

16. On the basis of the said incident, he reached the police station and lodged the report. The written report (Ext. Ka-1) was scribed by one Tarik Jaidi and thereafter he had gone in the police station to lodge the report. He further stated that no blood was found on the rope. He further stated that Investigating Officer on the very next day had recorded his statement.

17. He denied the suggestion that some unknown person had killed his sister and, on suspicion, he lodged the report against Usman. He further denied the suggestion that no telephone call was received from Shahana and he had gone to her house at Aladinpur.

18. P.W. 2 Adnan is a child witness aged about 6-7 years, who is the son of the deceased and after putting him some formal questions, as to test his understanding, his testimony has been recorded, in which, he has stated that his father, who is present in the court, had killed his mother about one year back by pressing pillow on her mouth and strangulating her by a rope. At the time of incident, he was present in the house and his mother was killed in the night.

19. During cross-examination, he stated that on the day of incident her mother and father were sleeping on different cots and he was sleeping along with his father. He came to know about the killing of his mother in the night itself, when his father was smothering her. At the time of incident, there was some darkness in the room. He further stated that the police interrogated him and he disclosed to the police that his father alone by pillow and a rope had killed his mother but she could not raise any alarm and no one had tutored him to give such statements.

20. P.W. 3 Fatima is the another witness and sister of the deceased, who stated that Shahana was married to Usman and was having a son Adnan. Usman used to suspect the character of his wife and used to assault her. On the day of incident, she was in her mother's place and when the information about the death of Shahana was received, she reached the place of incident and his nephew Adnan disclosed her the entire incident that his father by pressing his mother's mouth by a pillow and by strangulating had killed her.

21. During cross-examination, she stated that on getting the information about the death of her sister, she had reached the place of incident along with Islam, Washeem, Amin and Ayub. When they reached there, they met Adnan but not Usman. She denied the suggestion that Adnan had not disclosed her anything and she for the first time is deposing the said facts in the court.

22. P.W. 4, Dr. F.C. Verma is the Medical Officer at District Hospital Bijnor, who conducted autopsy on the person of the deceased and proved the autopsy report and contents thereof, which has been exhibited as Ext. Ka-2.

23. During cross-examination, he stated that the victim has not died because of smothering but due to strangulation by rope. He further stated that while strangulation by a rope, linear abrasion would not follow but ligature mark would be noted. He denied the suggestion that on account of strangulating by a rope, death is not possible and it is not necessary that at the time of strangulation an alarm would be raised.

24. P.W. 5 is the Investigating Officer, in whose presence the instant case was registered and investigation was entrusted to him. He after copying the G.D. and chik report, recorded the statement of Head Moharrir and reached the place of incident, where he recorded the statement of the first informant and Adnan, son of the deceased and Fatima. He prepared the site plan at the pointing out of the first informant, which is proved as Ext. Ka-3 as well as prepared the fard recovery memo of the rope, which was found lying near the cot at the place of incident.

25. On his instructions, inquest proceedings were made by S.I. Rajendra Singh and after preparing all the relevant documents, the dead body of the deceased was dispatched for autopsy. On 31.01.2004, he arrested the accused and after completing the investigation submitted the charge-sheet.

26. During cross-examination, he stated that he reached the place of incident at 09:00 a.m. and thereafter recorded the statement of the witnesses and that of Adnan, who had informed him that last night his father in a drunken state had killed his mother. He further stated that Adnan had not disclosed him that his father killed his mother by strangulating her, however, at the relevant time he was sleeping with him. He further informed him that he had seen his father near the cot of his mother. He further pointed out that on the rope there was a light spots of blood.

27. He denied the suggestion that during the course of investigation, it was disclosed to him that some other person had killed the deceased and not Usman. He further denied the suggestion that on the day of incident, the appellant was not present in his house and had gone out to ply rickshaw.

28. P.W. 6 is S.I. Rajendra Singh, who, on the instructions of the Investigating Officer, had conducted the inquest on the person of the deceased and prepared the inquest memo and other relevant papers, which have been proved by him and exhibited as Ext. Ka-9 to Ext. Ka-13. He further stated that at the time of inquest, rope was found near the cot, on which the dead body was lying and its recovery memo was prepared by the S.O. Satish Kumar, which has been marked as material Ext. Ka-4.

29. During cross-examination, he stated that the rope was white in colour and the inquest proceedings were conducted by him at 09:00 a.m. and as per the opinion of the Panches, the cause of death has been mentioned in the inquest report to be strangulation. He denied the suggestion that all exercise of inquest were made in the police station and no rope was recovered from the place of incident.

30. Thereafter, the statement of the accused-appellant under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has been recorded by putting all the incriminating circumstances to him. The appellant denied all the incriminating circumstances, however, the defence has not led any evidence to show his presence at some other place.

31. The trial court after appreciating the evidence on record has held that the prosecution has successfully established its case against the appellant by relying upon the testimony of P.W.-2, being the natural witness, whose presence at the time and place of incident has been cogently and unerringly established, who has categorically pointed out the presence of the appellant in the house at the time of incident. Furthermore the appellant has failed to lead any evidence to rebut the presumption drawn against him under Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act.

32. Learned amicus curiae for the appellant has submitted that the incident has not taken place in the manner as alleged by the prosecution and some unknown person killed the deceased and the appellant has been falsely implicated by creating an eye-witness account of a child witness, who has been tutored to depose before the trial court.

33. Learned amicus curiae for the appellant has further submitted that P.W.1 and P.W. 3 are not the eye-witness of the incident but are deposing on the basis of hearsay and therefore, their testimony is liable to be discarded. He has further submitted that the recovery of rope from the place of incident has not been cogently established, therefore, it creates serious dent in the prosecution story.

34. Learned amicus curiae for the appellant has next submitted that the prosecution has failed to discharge the initial burden of establishing the facts from which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, which are within the special knowledge of the accused, in the absence of which, it cannot be said that the prosecution has been able to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt and the appellant is entitled to be acquitted.

35. Learned amicus curiae in support of his contention has placed reliance upon the case of Nagendra Sah Vs. The State of Bihar, (2021) 10 SCC 725.

36. Per contra, learned AGA has submitted that in the instant case, the prosecution has successfully proved its case beyond reasonable doubt. He has further submitted that the time and place of incident has been cogently established. He has further submitted that the incident in question has taken place within the four walls of the house of the appellant, in which his presence has been cogently and unerringly established, however, he has failed to offer any reasonable explanation for discharge of burden placed upon him by virtue of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act.

37. Learned AGA has next submitted P.W.2, even though is a child witness, yet in his statement has clearly and cogently established the fact that at the time of incident, the appellant was present in the house and had killed his mother by pressing her mouth by a pillow and further strangulating her by a rope, which factum is clearly corroborated by the post-mortem report.

38. Learned AGA has next submitted that by no stretch of imagination, the evidence tendered by P.W.2, who though is a child witness cannot be said to be tutored. In the backdrop of the said circumstances and, particularly, when the appellant has failed to offer any reasonable explanation in discharge of burden placed upon him by virtue of Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act, failure of which provides an additional link to the prosecution story, it cannot be said that prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellant.

39. Having considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and in light of the evidence adduced, though the only question falls for our consideration is whether the trial court has committed any error in passing the impugned judgment and order.

40. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Balvir Singh Vs. State of Uttarakhand passed in Criminal Appeal No. 301 of 2015, dated 06.10.2023 has held as under:

34. Section 106 of the Evidence Act referred to above provides that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. The word "especially" means facts that are pre-eminently or exceptionally within the knowledge of the accused. The ordinary rule that applies to the criminal trials that the onus lies on the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused is not in any way modified by the rule of facts embodied in Section 106 of the Evidence Act. Section 106 of the Evidence Act is an exception to Section 101 of the Evidence Act. Section 101 with its illustration (a) lays down the general rule that in a criminal case the burden of proof is on the prosecution and Section 106 is certainly not intended to relieve it of that duty. On the contrary, it is designed to meet certain exceptional cases in which it would be impossible or at any rate disproportionately difficult for the prosecution to establish the facts which are, "especially within the knowledge of the accused and which, he can prove without difficulty or inconvenience".

35. In Shambhu Nath Mehra v. The State of Ajmer reported in AIR 1956 SC 404, this Court while considering the word "especially" employed in Section 106 of the Evidence Act speaking through Vivian Bose, J., observed as under:

"11. ... The word "especially" stresses that. It means facts that are pre-eminently or exceptionally within his knowledge. If the section were to be interpreted otherwise, it would lead to the very startling conclusion that in a murder case the burden lies on the accused to prove that he did not commit the murder because who could know better than he whether he did or did not.

It is evident that that cannot be the intention & the Privy Council has twice refused to construe this section, as reproduced in certain other Acts outside India, to mean that the burden lies on an accused person to show that he did not commit the crime for which he is tried. These cases are Attygalle v. The King, 1936

PC 169 (AIR V 23) (A) and Seneviratne v. R, 1936- All ER 36 at p. 49 (B)."

36. The aforesaid decision of Shambhu Nath (supra) has been referred to and relied upon in Nagendra Sah v. State of Bihar reported in (2021) 10 SCC 725*, wherein this Court observed as under:*

"22. Thus, Section 106 of the Evidence Act will apply to those cases where the prosecution has succeeded in establishing the facts from which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts which are within the special knowledge of the accused. When the accused fails to offer proper explanation about the existence of said other facts, the court can always draw an appropriate inference.

23. When a case is resting on circumstantial evidence, if the accused fails to offer a reasonable explanation in discharge of burden placed on him by virtue of Section 106 of the Evidence Act, such a failure may provide an additional link to the chain of circumstances. In a case governed by circumstantial evidence, if the chain of circumstances which is required to be established by the prosecution is not established, the failure of the accused to discharge the burden under Section 106 of the Evidence Act is not relevant at all. When the chain is not complete, falsity of the defence is no ground to convict the accused." (Emphasis supplied)

"23. It is settled law that presumption of fact is a rule in law of evidence that a fact otherwise doubtful may be inferred from certain other proved facts. When inferring the existence of a fact from other set of proved facts, the court exercises a process of reasoning and reaches a logical conclusion as the most probable position. The above position is strengthened in view of Section 114 of the Evidence Act, 1872. It empowers the court to presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened. In that process, the courts shall have regard to the common course of natural events, human conduct, etc. in addition to the facts of the case. In these circumstances, the principles embodied in Section 106 of the Evidence Act can also be utilised. We make it clear that this section is not intended to relieve the prosecution of its burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt, but it would apply to cases where the prosecution has succeeded in proving facts from which a reasonable inference can be drawn regarding the existence of certain other facts, unless the accused by virtue of his special knowledge regarding such facts, failed to offer any explanation which might drive the court to draw a different inference. It is useful to quote the following observation in State of W.B. v. Mir Mohammad Omar [(2000) 8 SCC 382 : 2000 SCC (Cri) 1516]: (SCC p. 393, para 38)

"38. Vivian Bose, J., had observed that Section 106 of the Evidence Act is designed to meet certain exceptional cases in which it would be impossible for the prosecution to establish certain facts which are particularly within the knowledge of the accused. In Shambu Nath Mehra v. State of Ajmer [AIR 1956 SC 404 : 1956 Cri LJ 794] the learned Judge has stated the legal principle thus: (AIR p. 406, para 11)

'11. This lays down the general rule that in a criminal case the burden of proof is on the prosecution and Section 106 is certainly not intended to relieve it of that duty. On the contrary, it is designed to meet certain exceptional cases in which it would be impossible, or at any rate disproportionately difficult for the prosecution to establish facts which are "especially" within the knowledge of the accused and which he could prove without difficulty or inconvenience.

The word "especially" stresses that. It means facts that are pre-eminently or exceptionally within his knowledge.'"" (Emphasis supplied)

38. In Trimukh Maroti Kirkan v. State of Maharashtra reported in (2006) 10 SCC 681*, this Court was considering a similar case of homicidal death in the confines of the house. The following observations are considered relevant in the facts of the present case:*

"14. If an offence takes place inside the privacy of a house and in such circumstances where the assailants have all the opportunity to plan and commit the offence at the time and in circumstances of their choice, it will be extremely difficult for the prosecution to lead evidence to establish the guilt of the accused if the strict principle of circumstantial evidence, as noticed above, is insisted upon by the courts. A Judge does not preside over a criminal trial merely to see that no innocent man is punished. A judge also presides to see that a guilty man does not escape. Both are public duties. (See Stirland v. Director of Public Prosecutions [1944 AC 315 : (1944) 2 All ER 13 (HL)] — quoted with approval by Arijit Pasayat, J. in State of Punjab v. Karnail Singh [(2003) 11 SCC 271 : 2004 SCC (Cri) 135].) The law does not enjoin a duty on the prosecution to lead evidence of such character which is almost impossible to be led or at any rate extremely difficult to be led. The duty on the prosecution is to lead such evidence which it is capable of leading, having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case. Here it is necessary to keep in mind Section 106 of the Evidence Act which says that when any fact is especially within the knowledge of any person, the burden of proving that fact is upon him. Illustration (b) appended to this section throws some light on the content and scope of this provision and it reads: "(b) A is charged with travelling on a railway without ticket. The burden of proving that he had a ticket is on him."

15. Where an offence like murder is committed in secrecy inside a house, the initial burden to establish the case would undoubtedly be upon the prosecution, but the nature and amount of evidence to be led by it to establish the charge cannot be of the same degree as is required in other cases of circumstantial evidence. The burden would be of a comparatively lighter character. In view of Section 106 of the Evidence Act there will be a corresponding burden on the inmates of the house to give a cogent explanation as to how the crime was committed. The inmates of the house cannot get away by simply keeping quiet and offering no explanation on the supposed premise that the burden to establish its case lies entirely upon the prosecution and there is no duty at all on an accused to offer any explanation.

22. Where an accused is alleged to have committed the murder of his wife and the prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that shortly before the commission of crime they were seen together or the offence takes place in the dwelling home where the husband also normally resided, it has been consistently held that if the accused does not offer any explanation how the wife received injuries or offers an explanation which is found to be false, it is a strong circumstance which indicates that he is responsible for commission of the crime. ..." (Emphasis supplied)

41. Thus, taking in view the above settled legal position and applying the said principles in the instant case, it is evident that the instant incident has taken place inside the privacy of a house where the appellant had all the opportunity to plan and commit the offence at the time and circumstance of his choice.

42. In the instant case, from the evidence adduced by P.W.2, who though is a child witness, has categorically stated in his statement recorded during the course of trial that his father was present in the house at the time of incident and committed the offence, as such, in the given circumstance, it is thus obvious that the prosecution has discharged its onus by proving all the ailments necessary to establish the evidence and now the burden has shifted upon the accused to offer a reasonable explanation to show as to how the crime was committed, which is in his special knowledge, however, in the absence of the same, the accused would be guilty of the said offence, which burden the appellant has failed to discharge.

43. The next important question to be considered in the instant case is whether the testimony of a child witness under Section 118 of the Indian Evidence Act governs competence of the persons to testify, which also includes a child witness. Evidence of a child witness and its credibility could depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. There is no rule of practice that in every case, the evidence of a child witness be corroborated by other evidence before a conviction can stand. The only precaution the Court should bear in mind, while assessing the evidence of a child witness, is that the witness must be a reliable one and his demeanor must be like any other competent witness and that there exists no likelihood of being tutored, however, in case, his deposition inspires confidence of the court and there is no embellishment or improvement, the court may rely upon the evidence of a child witness.

44. Furthermore, every witness competent to depose, unless the Court considers that he is prevented from understanding the questions put to him due to tender age and only in excess, there is no evidence on record to show that the child has been tutored, can the court reject their statement partly or fully. An inference as to whether the child has been tutored or not can be drawn from the contents of his deposition.

45. In the instant case, statement of P.W. 2 has been fortified and proved by other attending circumstances of the case and medical evidence. His deposition being precise, concise and specific without any improvement or impropriety is worth relying. P.W.2, in his statement after answering the relevant questions put to him, has very precisely stated that the appellant Usman, who is present in the court, had killed his mother by strangulating her and at the relevant time, he was at his home and that his mother was killed in the night. He has further stated that he had disclosed to the police that his father killed his mother by a pillow and a rope and her mother did not raise any alarm. He has further categorically stated that he has not been tutored at at all by any one.

46. Thus, we find that the statement of P.W. 2, even though being that of a child witness, inspires our confidence coupled with the fact that the appellant has completely failed to rebut the presumption raised against him under Section 106 of the Indian Evidence Act. Even in the statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., there is no whisper explaining his conduct regarding the death of his wife within the four corners of his house, where he was, admittedly, present in the night hours.

47. The cases cited by the learned amicus curiae for the appellant are completely distinguishable on the facts of the instant case and on the basis of the aforesaid discussions, they are of no help to the appellant.

48. Thus, as held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that where an accused is alleged to have committed the murder of his wife and the prosecution succeeds in leading evidence to show that shortly before the commission of crime, they were seen together or the offence takes place in the dwelling home, where the husband also normally resides, it has been consistently held that if the accused does not dispute his presence at home at the relevant time and does not offer any explanation as to how the wife received injuries, it is a strong circumstance which indicates that he is responsible for commission of the crime.

49. Applying the aforesaid principles in the instant case, we are of the opinion that the prosecution has proved its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellant, as such, the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial court is liable to be upheld. The appeal has no force and it is, accordingly, liable to dismissed.

50. Accordingly, the present criminal appeal is dismissed. The conviction and sentence against the accused-appellant vide impugned judgment and order dated 30.11.2015 is hereby confirmed. The appellant is in jail. He is directed to serve out the sentence imposed upon him by the trial court.

51. Let a copy of this order be forwarded to the trial court along with the record for information and compliance.

Criminal Appeal No. 6992 of 2019

Shobha Behel & Anr. ...Appellants (In Jail)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri Pawan Singh Pundir

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A., Sri Swetashwa Agarwal

(A) Criminal Law - Murder Conviction on Circumstantial Evidence - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 302 read with Section 34 - Last Seen Evidence - Chain of Circumstances - Benefit of Doubt - Motive - Doubtful Last Seen Witness - Incomplete Chain - Delayed FIR - If two views are possible, the benefit shall always go to the accused -In a case based on circumstantial evidence, the prosecution must prove a complete chain of circumstances to establish the guilt of the accused, and failure to do so will result in acquittal.(Para - 34,36,37)

Case involved conviction of appellants for alleged murder of husband of appellant no.1 - found dead at home when his parents returned from a visit - Initially informant did not suspect anyone, but later accused appellant's due to property disputes - Prosecution relied on "last seen" evidence and an alleged motive of property inheritance. (Paras 2–28)

HELD: - Prosecution failed to prove five golden principles of proving a case based on circumstantial evidence. Prosecution did not establish motive and evidence of last-seen witnesses was unreliable due to inconsistencies and delayed report. Trial Court erred in drawing adverse presumption under Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872. Chain of circumstantial evidence was incomplete, failing to exclude other possibilities. Shoddy investigation and lack of scientific evidence weakened the case further. Conviction based solely on weak circumstantial evidence and inconsistent last-seen testimonies was reversed. impugned judgment of conviction and order of sentence are set aside. Appellants are acquitted. (Paras 29–41)

Appeal allowed. (E-7)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellants, learned AGA for the State, learned counsel for the informant and perused the record.

2. The present appeal has been filed against the judgment of conviction dated 2.11.2019 and order of sentence dated

4.11.2019 passed by Additional District & Sessions Judge, Saharanpur in S.T. No. 530 of 2012 (State Vs. Shobha and others) arising out of Case Crime No. 616 of 2011 under Section 302 IPC, Police Station – Sadar Bazar, Saharanpur by which both the appellants namely Shobha Behel and Ashish Arora (Appellants no. 1 and 2 respectively) were awarded life imprisonment along with 25000/- fine (each) and in case of default in payment of fine, they have to undergo further simple imprisonment of one year. It was directed that half of the fine will paid to the father of the deceased.

3. Paper book is complete and trial court record has been received. With the assistance of learned counsel for the appellants, learned A.G.A. for the State and learned counsel for the informant, the entire evidence is re-appreciated.

4. As per prosecution version, on 12.10.2011, the informant Surendra Mohan Behel (PW-1) gave information to the police that on 10.10.2011 at about 7:00 pm he along with his wife Aruna Behel had gone to the house of their daughter Neha Mehta at Gurugram and his son Vivek Behel stayed back at home to take care of the house. He was alone as his wife Shobha Behel had gone to her parental house at Yamuna Nagar, Haryana. His son Vivek Behel was suffering from depression. On 12.10.2011, when he returned back from his daughter's house and entered his house after opening the lock, he found that his son Vivek Behel is lying in dead condition.

5. On receiving this information, the police reached at the spot and by preparing panchayatnama, dead body of Vivek Behel was sent for postmortem. On 22.10.2011, the informant gave another complaint stating that on 10.10.2011, he alongwith his wife Aruna Behel had gone to their daughter's house at Gurugram and his son Vivek Behel was alone at home. His daughter-in-law Shobha Behel has left matrimonial home in the year 2009 and started living in her parental home at Yamuna Nagar alongwith his grandson. His daughter-in-law Shobha Bahel was putting pressure on him to transfer the property in her name. It is further stated that Shobha Behel alongwith his brother Ashish Arora, S/o Amrish Arora. R/o D-27, Barrack No. 10, R. Camp, Yamuna Nagar, Haryana finding his son is alone at home, came there as one key of the house remains with Shobha Behel and both of them by way of strangulation have committed murder of his son Vivek Behel. On 12.10.2011, at about 7:00 pm, when he returned back from his daughter's house and entered his house, after opening the lock, he found that his son was lying dead. He informed the police about the incident and the police by doing Panchayatnama got the postmortem done. It is stated that he was under shock due to the death of his young son and, therefore, on 22.10.2011, he had come for registration of FIR against Shobha Behel and her brother Ashish Arora (both the appellants). Thereafter, the police arrested the appellants and submitted report under Section 173(2) of Cr.P.C.

6. The case was committed to the Court of Session and charges under Section 302 read with 34 IPC were framed against both the appellants, which they denied and claimed trial. In prosecution evidence, the informant appeared as PW-1. He reiterated the version given in the FIR and has stated that the appellant Shobha Behel is a clever and greedy lady having suspicious character. She has already taken the dowry articles to her parental home on 25.1.2007, as per writings which was signed by PW-1 and Shobha Behel (PW-9) and was submitted before the concerned Court. It is stated that thereafter Shobha Behel had filed a complaint for demand of dowry against him, his wife Aruna Behel and son Vivek Behel as well a case of domestic violence and a petition for maintenance against Vivek Behel. His son Vivek Behel, in his reply to complaint under Section 125 Cr.P.C has stated that her wife Shobha Behel is in contact with anti social elements and is under their influence. PW-1 further stated that on 21.5.2007, a compromise was effected between them. According to the compromise, it was agreed that half portion of the house will be given to Shobha Behel and Vivek Behel agreed to give Rs. 30,000/- to her wife Shobha Behel. Following the said compromise, PW-1 got a decree of half of the portion of the property passed in favour of Shobha Behel and a sum of Rs. 30,000/- was also paid to her on 27.7.2007 by Vivek Behel. But she did not withdraw the complaint against them. It is also stated that later on, Shobha Behel registered a complaint case under Sections 420, 367, 368 in district Saharanpur and also lodge a case of attempt to murder her against Vivek Behel. This witness further stated that in 2009, Shobha Behel had gone to her parental house at Yamuna Nagar along with his grandson, however, she remains in contact with her husband Vivek Behel.

7. It is stated that later on, PW-1 had filed an application for cancelling the decree by which half of the share of the property was transferred in favour of Shobha Behel and due to this reason she was very much upset and became inimical, and she committed murder of her husband Vivek Behel.

8. This witness further stated that both the appellants are sister and brother and having no other siblings. It is stated that marriage of son of the informant (PW-1) was performed with Shobha Behel on 28.11.2005. Ashish Arora, brother of Shobha Behal, also managed all the deals of his sister-Shobha. The witness also stated that from January, 6, 2006 onwards his deceased son Vivek Behel remain admitted in a Drug-de-Addiction Centre, Rohtak. He further stated that Vivek Behel was admitted by his wife Shobha Behel (the appellant). He has also stated that (PW-1) and his wife (PW9) had given affidavits on 17.09.2007 that in future if their son Vivek Behel commits anything wrong under the influence of liquor they will be responsible for the same. The witness further stated that Shobha Behel has registered a complaint against Vivek Behel by alleging that using a cheque of Rs. 9000/-, he had withdrawn the amount from her account. In cross examination this witness has admitted that he has stated this fact to the concerned Station House Officer that out of greed of the property, Shobha Behel was mentally harassing them, however, this fact was not recorded in the complaint. This witness has further given the details of complaint filed by Shobha Behel under Section 498-A and 406 IPC. He also stated that on 09.07.2008 his grandson was born and on 29.11.2008, a petition under Section 125 Cr.P.C. was filed, which was withdrawn by Shobha Behel, as her husband Vivek Behel was paying maintenance of Rs. 2500/- per month to his wife Shobha Behel. This witness further admitted in cross-examination that a written compromise was effected between him, deceased Vivek Behel and Shobha Behel on 10.8.2007 (Ex-Ka-3) and by way of Court decree, half share of the property was given to Shobha Behel, 1/4th share was given to Vivek Behel and 1/4th share was retained by him. It is further stated that in a complaint given to Police (EX-Ka-1), he has stated that his son Vivek Behel was under depression. This witness admitted that on 20.9.2010, Shobha gave birth to a son. However, he left him alone and went alongwith his wife to Gurugram to meet his daughter.

9. This witness further stated that on 7.10.2011, the cremation of father of Shobha Behel took place and none of his family members attended the same. He further stated that last rite was performed by Ashish Arora, brother of Shobha Behel on 16.10.2011. He also admitted that on 17.10.2011, Shobha Behel has given a complaint to the Senior Superintendent of Police, Saharanpur through speed post alleging that PW-1 has not given information of the death of Vivek Behel to her and requested that a fair investigation be done with regard to the death of her husband Vivek Behel.

10. This witness denied the suggestion that as a counter blast to complaint filed by the Shobha, present FIR has been registered.

11. In re-examination of PW-1, he proved Ex-K-22, a complaint given by PW-1 on 12.10.2011 to police wherein he had stated that his son Vivek Behel was under depression and vide this complaint, he informed the police that his son was found dead in the house.

12. Bijendra Kumar (PW-2) is witness of last seen. However, he did not support the prosecution version. He deposed that neither he had seen Shobha Behel nor his brother Ashish Arora coming out of the house of Vivek Behel on 10.10.2011 at 9:00-9:30 pm. This witness was declared hostile and was cross examined by the Public Prosecutor and some questions were put by the Trial Court as well.

13. Surajbhan (PW-3) is also witness of the last seen. He stated that on 10.10.2011 at about 9:30 am, he was in a barber shop and was getting his shave done. In the meantime, he saw that daughter-in-law of Surendra Mohan Behel and her brother were coming out of a 'gali' leading to the house of Surendra Mohan Behel. After some days he came to know that someone has committed murder of son of Surendra Mohan Behel. Thereafter, he informed people of the vicinity that he had seen the daughter-in-law of Surendra Mohan Behal and his brother coming out of his house on 10.10.2011. When Surendra Mohan Behel came to know this fact, he took him to Police Station, Sadar Bazar where the police recorded his statement.

14. In cross examination this witness stated that he is a retired person aged 70 years and the barber shop where he was getting his shave done is situated at about half kilometer from the 'gali' leading towards the house of Surendra Mohan Behel. He had seen a lady with her brother from a distance of about 5-6 yards though it was dark. This witness stated that one of his eye is damaged and he cannot see however, he can see only from one eye. He further stated that he has not given any statement before the Station House Officer that on 10.10.2011 at about 9:00-9:30 pm, he was coming back to his house from his shop. He pleaded ignorance about last rites of Vivek Behel. He denied that he has never seen the accused persons coming out of the house of PW-1 or that he is giving false statement.

15. Ved Prakash (PW-4) has stated that he is known to Surendra Mohan Behel and is aware that his son Vivek Behel died on 10.10.2011 and police had come and Panchayatnama was done before him and only his signature was taken on Panchayatnama.

16. Ram Kumar (PW-5) is another witness of Panchayatnama, who also stated in his cross examination that he does not know about the contents of Panchayatnama and he has never signed.

17. Jitendra Pal (PW-6) is also witness of the Panchayatnama and has stated in the same line as stated by PW-5.

18. Dr. P.K. Jain (PW-7) conducted postmortem of Vivek Behel and as per his deposition, the deceased was about 34-years of age and he died 2-1/2 days ago. His dead body was emitting foul smell. By doing internal examination, 'tracheal rings' was found fractured and skin of neck was thoroughly mould and both the lungs were congested. In his opinion, cause of death was 'asphyxia' due to strangulation. He prepared the postmortem report (Ex-Ka-16). He further submitted that nine documents were produced by the police, which he had signed. In cross-examination, he has stated that congestion is caused due to 'asphyxia'. There was no outer injury on the body of the deceased and fracture of the hyoid bone was found. On opening the neck, 'tracheal rings' of the neck was also fractured and internal flesh was in horizontal mould.

19. Constable Sonraja (PW-8) stated that he recorded G.D. No. 43 on 10.10.2011 on receiving a written complaint from Surendra Mohan Behel and proved the carbon copy as Ex-K-17.

20. Smt. Aruna Behel (PW-9) mother of the deceased and wife of the informant has stated that marriage of her son Vivek Behel was performed on 28.11.2005 with Shobha Behel, D/o Amrish Arora, R/o Yamuna Nagar, Haryana After some time of their marriage, Shobha Behel, wife of her son Vivek Behel was demanding share in the property and was harassing us. She has given one set of keys of the house to her daughter-in-law Shobha Behel, and she used to meet Vivek Behel when she and her husband were not at home. Even her neighbours knew about it. She stated that she alongwith her husband Surendra Mohan Behel had gone to Gurugram at the residence of her daughter to meet her, leaving Vivek Behel at home to care of the house. Shobha Behel used to come and meet Vivek Behel in their absence. When she alongwith her husband returned to home on 12.10.2011, she found that main gate was opened, however, the internal gate was locked and they found the dead body of their son Vivek Behel was lying there. This witness stated that at that time Bijendra and Ambrish, residents of their vicinity also came. Apart from them, Surajbhan (PW-3) and Ved Prakash (PW-4) also reached there and they informed that they had seen Shobha Behel and her brother Ashish Arora going out of house on 10.10.2011 at 9:00-9:30 pm. In her cross examination, she has denied suggestion that due to drug habits of Vivek Behel they have disowned him from their property and published a public notice in the news paper 'Amar Ujala' on 14.11.2006, she also denied that they had given an affidavit to the higher officers in this regard. She admitted that a compromise was effected between them but she pleaded ignorance about the death of father of Shobha Behel. She further stated that six months prior to death of Vivek Behel she along with her husband shifted back to their own house and thereafter Shobha Behel left the house and started living at her parental house at Yamuna Nagar. She further stated that the Investigating Officer has recorded her statement after 2-3 days and she informed that Vijendra Kumar (PW-2) and Ambrish had come on the spot along with Surajbhan (PW-3) and Ved Prakash (PW-4). However this part was not recorded by the Station House Officer in her statement. She pleaded ignorance about the death of father of Shobha Behel, which occurred few days before the death of Vivek Behel and also that his last rites were performed on 16.10.2011

21. Constable Lokendra (PW-10) stated that on 22.10.2011, he received a complaint from Surendra Mohan Behel (PW-1) on the basis of which, the FIR under Section 302 of IPC was registered and report No. 54 was entered in the Rojnamcha.

22. Veerpal Singh (PW-11), retired Inspector, stated that he was S.H.O. at the relevant time at Police Station – Sadar Bazar, Saharanpur. He gave the details of the investigation including recording of evidence after the registration of FIR and proved the copy of the FIR, G.D. Entry, Panchayatnama & Postmortem Report. He also gave the details regarding recording of the statements of witnesses under Section 161 Cr.P.C. He also prepared the site plan which was exhibited as Ka-20. In cross examination, he stated that he had no knowledge that Vijendra Kumar (PW-2) and Surajbhan (PW-3) were the witnesses as they never met him. During initial investigation, their names were not brought to his notice. In cross examination, he stated that Aruna Behel (PW-9) never informed him that Vijendra Kumar, Ambrish, Ved Prakash and Surajbhan had come at the spot and they had seen the dead body of their son, Vivek Behel.

23. SHO Narendra Sharma (PW12) who also conducted part investigation recorded the statement of Shobha Behel and Ashish Arora (the appellants) and has submitted the charge-sheet which was exhibited as Ka-21.

24. Rashid Ali (PW-13), Inspector/S.H.O, the Investigating Officer, stated that on transfer of previous Investigating Officer, he had taken over the investigation and on issuance of Non-bailable warrant by Court, the accused persons surrendered before the Court. In cross examination, this witness stated that prior to 15.3.2012, during his investigation, this fact never came on record that Surajbhan and Vijendra Kumar are the witnesses of any facts of this case. He further stated that informant of the case, Surendra Mohan Behel (PW-1) and Aruna Behel (PW-9), met him during investigation but they never told him that Surajbhan and Vijendra Kumar were the witnesses of this case. He even did not get this information from any other source. For the first time, on 15.3.2012, the informant came with these witnesses i.e. Surajbhan and Vijendra Kumar and, on that day, he recorded their statements. This witness further stated that Surajbhan told him that he had seen Shobha Behel on 10.10.2011 at night about 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. but he did not inform that at that time he was present in the shop of a hairdresser and was getting his shaving done.

25. Thereafter, the Trial Court recorded the statement of accused-persons under Section 313, Cr.P.C. and all the incriminating evidence was put to them.

Both the accused persons denied the same and stated that as matrimonial dispute was pending and accused, Shobha Behel, got registered a case for demand of dowry etc., they were falsely implicated in the present case. However, no defence witness was produced but some documents were exhibited in defence.

26. The Trial Court vide its judgment dated 2.11.2019 held the appellants guilty of offence punishable under Section 302 read with Section 34 of IPC and vide order of sentence dated 4.11.2019, sentenced them to undergo imprisonment for life with fine of Rs. 25000/- each. The appellant has challenged the said judgment by making the following arguments :

(a) It is submitted that it is an admitted case of the prosecution that appellant-Shobha Behel is the wife of the deceased-Vivek Behel and matrimonial litigation was going on between them. Prior to 2009, a compromise was effected between the parties and vide Civil Court's decree, P.W.1 had transferred half share of the house in the name of appellant-Shobha Behel, 1/4th share was given to Vivek Behel and 1/4th share was retained by P.W.1. Learned counsel argued that both P.W.1 & P.W.9, the parents of the deceased, have admitted that, in their absence, appellant-Shobha used to come and stay with Vivek Behel at Saharanpur and it has also come in the statement of P.W.9 that when both P.W.1 & P.W.9 left their rental accommodation six months prior to incident and shifted back to the same house, appellant-Shobha Behel started living at her parental home at Yamuna Nagar but she used to come to meet Vivek Behel in their absence and therefore, Shobha Behel was having good relations with her husband Vivek Behel (deceased).

(b) Learned counsel has further submitted that there was no motive on the part of the appellants to commit the murder of Vivek as despite all litigations, she was maintaining relationship with her husband, Vivek and, therefore, no adverse presumption can be drawn against her as per Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as Act, 1872). Counsel for the appellant has relied upon the decision in Shivaji Chintappa Patil vs. State of Maharashtra, 2021 0 AIR (SC) (Cri) 813 to submit that in case of circumstantial evidence, there must be a chain of evidence so complete as to leave reasonable ground for conviction consistent with innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability, the act must have been done by the accused. Counsel submit that in this case also, the accused was facing trial for committing murder of his wife and the Court observed that the mother of the deceased stated that both the accused and the deceased stayed together for some time prior to the incident which show that the relationship between them was cordial. In view of the same, the Supreme Court has held that it is settled that Section 106 of the Act, 1872 does not directly operate against either husband or wife staying under the same roof and being last person seen with the deceased as Section 106 of Act, 1872 does not absolve the prosecution of discharging of its primary burden to prove the guilt of the accused beyond reasonable doubt. Counsel has also drawn reference on para 32 of this judgment where the following observation is made :

"32. It is more than settled principle of law that if two views are possible, the benefit shall always go to the accused. It will be apposite to refer to the following observations of this Court in the case of Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra):-

"163. We then pass on to another important point which seems to have been completely missed by the High Court. It is well settled that where on the evidence two possibilities are available or open, one which goes in favour of the prosecution and the other which benefits an accused, the accused is undoubtedly entitled to the benefit of doubt. In Kali Ram v. State of Himachal Pradesh (1973) 2 SCC 808, this Court made the following observations : [SCC para 25, p. 820 : SCC (Cri) p. 1060]

"Another golden thread which runs through the web of the administration of justice in criminal cases, is that if two views are possible on the evidence adduced in the case, one pointing to the guilt of the accused and the other to his innocence, the view which is favourable to the accused should be adopted. This principle has a special relevance in cases wherein the guilt of the accused is sought to be established by circumstantial evidence.""

(c) Counsel has relied upon the decision in Dinesh Kumar vs. State of Haryana, 2023 0 AIR (SC) 2795, where the Supreme Court has held that the evidence of last seen only leads upto a point and no further. It fails to link it further to make a complete chain and it may lose under the circumstances of a particular case due to long duration of time between last seen and time of death. In concluding part, the Supreme Court has held as under :

"In a case where there is no direct eye witness to the crime, the prosecution has to build its case on the circumstantial evidence. It is a very heavy burden cast on the prosecution. The chain of circumstances collected by the prosecution must complete the chain, which should point to only one conclusion which is that it is the accused who had committed the crime, and none else. Each evidence which completes the chain of evidences must stand on firm grounds. In our considered opinion, the evidence placed by the prosecution in this case does not pass muster the standard required in a case of circumstantial evidence."

(d) Learned counsel has submitted that the conviction of the appellant is primarily based on the statement of Surajbhan (PW-3) as a witness of last seen or a witness who has seen both the accused-appellants coming out of the house of informant.

(e) Learned counsel submits that another witness, Vijendra Kumar (PW-2), has not supported the prosecution version so much so that in the cross examination conducted by public prosecutor as well as the Court itself, this witness has not stated that he had seen either Shobha or Ashish Arora coming out of the house of Vivek Behel in between 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. and did not own his statement under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. to be correct.

(f) Counsel submits that the presence of Surajbhan (PW-3) who is also a witness of last seen, is highly doubtful. This witness has stated that on 10.10.2011 at about 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. he was getting his shaving done at a barber shop and had seen the accused-persons coming out of the house of informant and after some days, he came to know that the son of the informant has been murdered. He stated that when Surendra Mohan Behel (PW-1) came to know about him, PW-1 took him to the Police Station – Sadar Bazar where he got his statement recorded. Counsel submits that statement of this witness was recorded on 15.3.2012 i.e. after about five months of the incident and it is beyond presumption that a person who had seen the appellants coming out of the house of the deceased would keep quite for a period of about five months when in cross examination he stated that he came to know about the death of Vivek after few days as he was known to PW-1. Neither PW-1 nor PW-9 have stated in their deposition that there is a barber shop in the vicinity. In cross examination, PW-1 denied about any such barber shop. Even the Investigating Officer (PW-13) stated that PW-3 never disclosed this fact that he had seen Shobha Behel and Ashish Arora at barber's shop. Moreover, even the barber was also not examined. Further, PW-3 stated that he never attended last rites of Vivek Behel though he came to know about his death and also stated that he was known to his father (PW-1). Counsel submits that this witness is introduced later on just to cover up the lacunae.

(g) It is next argued that it has not come in the complaint given by informant forming basis of the FIR which was recorded after 12 days of the date of incident that any of the witnesses either PW-2 or PW-3 has seen the accused persons coming out of the house of the informant on the date of incident. Therefore, presence of PW-3 is doubtful.

(h) Counsel further submits that even in the statement of Aruna Behel (PW-9) it has come that when they reached their house on 12.10.2011, they found that their son was lying dead and both PW-2 & PW-3 along with two other persons Ambrish and Ved Prakash came at the spot and told them that they have seen accused-appellants, Shobha and Ashish coming out of their house on 10.10.2011 at about 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. But this fact was not reported to police immediately.

(i) Counsel submits that if this fact came to the notice of PW-1 & PW-9 on 12.10.2011 itself that four persons had seen the appellants coming out of their house, however, two persons, namely Ambrish and Ved Prakash, were not examined as witness and names of Vijendra and Surajbhan were never given in the complaint filed after ten days of the accident to the police would itself show that improvements have been made by the prosecution to create evidence.

(j) Learned counsel has further argued that it has come in the statement of the Investigating Officer, Rashid Ali (PW-13), that during investigation he never got any information prior to 15.3.2012 i.e. the intervening period of five months after registration of the FIR on 22.10.2011 that either PW-2 or PW-3 was the witness of any fact of this case. This witness stated that both PW-1 & PW-9 met him but they never informed him previously that they were the witnesses and only on 15.3.2012 when PW-1 brought them to police station, he recorded statements on 15.3.2012. Counsel submits that this fact also show that Surajbhan (PW-3) was introduced later on, after a period of five months.

(k) Counsel submits that even otherwise the cross examination of PW-3 itself shows that he had never seen the appellant coming out of the house of the informant as this witness stated that the barber's shop was about half kilometre away from the street leading to the house of informant and it was dark when he had seen the lady and his brother from a distance of 5 to 6 yards. Counsel submits that this witness is aged about 70 years and he has admitted that one of his eyes is damaged and he cannot see from that eye whereas, he has seen the incident from the other eye from which he can see properly. Learned counsel submits that all these show that this witness is introduced subsequently and his statement is not believable.

(l) Counsel for the appellants submits that as per the postmortem report, the deceased died two and a half days before the date of postmortem. Counsel submits that the postmortem report of deceased reveals that the tracheal rings was fractured and muscles of the neck was ecchymosed horizontally and the cause of death was asphyxia due to strangulation. Counsel submits that the manner in which the death has occurred suggests that it can be a case of asphyxia by way of hanging and as admitted by both PW-1 and PW-9, the parent of the deceased, deceased was under continuous depression due to his drug addiction and therefore, the possibility of committing suicide cannot be ruled out, which has been later on planted as a case of murder upon the appellants.

(m) Counsel submits that the Trial Court has wrongly relied upon the statements of PW-2 recorded under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. though he was declared hostile and never supported this statement even when cross-examined by Public Prosecutor or the Court.

(n) Counsel submits that statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. can only be relied upon for contradicting the statement of a witness and cannot be relied upon when the witness himself has disowned the same. Even in cross examination by public prosecutor and Court itself, this witness has disowned his statement and, therefore, the Trial Court has not appreciated this legal aspect of the case.

(p) Counsel submits that it is a matter of fact that the father of the appellants died on 4.10.2011, his cremation was done on 7.10.2011 & last rites were performed on 16.10.2011. During that period both the appellants were at Yamuna Nagar. Counsel submits that it is only on 17.10.2011 as admitted by PW-1 that appellant-Sobha Behel had given complaint through speed post to Senior Superintendent of Police, Saharanpur for conducting fair investigation regarding the death of her husband as PW-1 did not inform her about death of her husband.

(q) Learned counsel has next argued that no scientific evidence was collected by the Police as neither any CCTV footage of the locality was collected nor any FSL expert was called at the spot and even no call details of location of mobile phones of appellant at the spot or date and time of incident was collected to corroborate the allegation of PW-1 that the appellants have committed the murder of his son, Vivek. Counsel has then referred to the content of Ex-Ka-22 which was given at the first instance by PW1 on 12.10.2011 informing that his son, Vivek, was under depression and has died. Counsel submits that on that day, no suspicion was raised against the appellants and after 10 days, a concocted version was made that too, by producing two witnesses after five months as stated by PW13, the Investigating Officer.

(r) Counsel submits that it is admitted by both PW-1 & PW-9 that appellant-Sobha, by way of a Civil Court's decree, was given half share of the house where the incident had taken place and she was the owner and in possession of that part of property. Whereas, 1/4th share was given to deceased-Vivek and 1/4th was retained by the informant. Counsel submits that after 2009, when majority of the litigation was over and after parting away in 2010, there was no complaint from the side of the appellant-Shobha who was visiting her husband off and on.

(s) Counsel submits that the prosecution has failed to explain the delay of ten days in registration of the FIR as well as producing the last seen witnesses after five months of the registration of the FIR.

(t) Learned counsel submits that it is a case of circumstantial evidence and chain of circumstance is not proved and even motive is not proved. Counsel has relied upon the decision in Krishan Kumar and Another vs. State of Haryana, 2023 4 Crimes (SC) 87, wherein the Supreme Court has held that if the Trial Court has appreciated the evidence in an utterly perverse manner, i.e. against the weight of the evidence, no conviction can be entered and the accused is entitled to be acquitted as each of the links in chain of circumstances are either individually or collectively not sufficient to connect the appellants with crime.

(u) Learned counsel has relied on the decision of the Supreme Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1984 SC 1622, paragraph nos. 152 & 153 are reproduced as under :

(152.) A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned 'must or should' and not 'may be' established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between 'may be proved' and 'must be or should be proved' as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade & Anr. v. State of Maharashtra, 1973 2 SCC 793 where the following observations were made:

" Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be; and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) The facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say. they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty,

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency.

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

(v) Counsel has also relied upon Jabir & Ors. vs. State of Uttarakhand, 2023 0 AIR (SC) (Cri) 270, relying upon Sharad Birdhichand Case (Supra), the Supreme Court has observed as under :

"21. A basic principle of criminal jurisprudence is that in circumstantial evidence cases, the prosecution is obliged to prove each circumstance, beyond reasonable doubt, as well the as the links between all circumstances; such circumstances, taken cumulatively, should form a chain so complete that there is no escape from the conclusion that within all human probability, the crime was committed by the accused and none else; further, the facts so proved should unerringly point towards the guilt of the accused. The circumstantial evidence, in order to sustain conviction, must be complete and incapable of explanation of any other hypothesis than that of the guilt of the accused, and such evidence should not only be consistent with the guilt of the accused but should be inconsistent with his innocence."

(w) Counsel has also relied upon the decision in Harbeer Singh and Anr. vs. Sheespal and Ors., AIR 2016 SC 4958, where the Supreme Court has held that if the statement of a witness appears to be highly unnatural, the same can be discarded. The Supreme Court has further held that where improvements made by prosecution create serious doubt about the truthfulness or credibility of the witness, the advantage should be given to the defence.

(x) Learned counsel has thus argued that the impugned judgment is liable to be set aside as the prosecution has failed to prove cogent and convincing evidence against the appellants.

27. In reply, learned A.G.A. for the State assisted by learned counsel for the informant has opposed the prayer and has made the following arguments :

(a) It is argued on behalf of prosecution that there was strong motive in committing the murder of deceased, Vivek, by his wife and brother-in-law. Counsel submits that since the father-in-law, PW-1, had filed an application recalling/setting aside the decree of the year 2007 vide which half of the share was given to the appellant-Sobha and 1/4th share was given to the deceased-Vivek and 1/4th share was retained by PW-1, appellant-Sobha was annoyed and she left the matrimonial home and with that motive she has committed murder of Vivek. However, it is matter of fact that no such application was filed by Vivek and it was only filed by PW-1.

(b) It is further submitted that appellant-Sobha is a lady of quarrelsome nature and even on previous occasion she had filed an F.I.R. against PW-1, PW-2 & Vivek under Section 498 A of IPC which led to conviction as well as complaint against Vivek for misusing a cheque by way of withdrawing amount from her account and even extending threat to her life.

(c) It is also submitted that the case of the prosecution does not become weak if there are certain discrepancies or delay on the part of the investigating agency.

(d) Counsel submits that PW-2 & PW-3 are the witnesses who had seen both the appellants on 10.10.2011 between 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. coming out of the house of deceased-Vivek and, therefore, there is sufficient evidence that they have committed the murder of Vivek.

(e) Counsel further submits that the conduct of the accused persons is also noticeable as after registration of the FIR, they were not arrested and only when proceedings under Section 82/83 Cr.P.C. were initiated and N.B.W. was issued against them, they surrendered before the Court.

(f) It is also argued that PW-1 and PW-9 are the old aged parents of the deceased and appellant-Sobha being daughter-in-law, had an eye on the entire property i.e. house of the informant and with that motive she along with her brother committed murder of her husband.

(g) Counsel submits that the delay in registration of the FIR has been explained as the informant was under shock and they could not register the FIR earlier and only after knowing the facts from the witnesses that the appellants had gone to the house of Vivek on 10.10.2011 at about 9.00 to 9.30 p.m., they registered the FIR promptly on 22.10.2011 and, therefore, the delay is properly explained.

(h) It is also submitted that it has come in the statement of PW-1 that the appellant-Sobha had separated from Vivek in the year 2009 and when both PW-1 & PW-9 had gone to meet her daughter at Gurugram, in their absence, the appellants committed the murder of their son, Vivek Behel.

28. After hearing the counsels for the parties, we find merits in the present appeal for the reasons mentioned herein below.

29. (i) The first and foremost part is the motive. As per the prosecution version, on 10.10.2011, the informant (PW-1) and his wife (PW-9) left their home for visiting their daughter at Gurugram. It is stated in the first complaint (Ex-Ka-22) that son of the informant, deceased-Vivek Behel, was under depression and they left him alone at home to take care of the house. On 12.10.2011, at about at about 7.00 p.m., when the informant (PW-1) along with his wife (PW-9) returned and opened the lock, they found that Vivek Behel was lying dead.

(ii) At the first instance, when this information was given, neither any motive was attributed to the accused persons nor any last seen evidence was reported to the police and even no names of last seen witnesses were given. Later, on 22.10.2011 it was stated by PW-1 & PW-9 that four persons of last seen were there on the spot as after 10 days of the incident, second complaint (Ex-Ka-1) was given (forming basis of F.I.R.), in which, it was stated that the accused had left the matrimonial home with her minor son after his birth in 2008 and started living at her parental home at Yamuna Nagar and was putting pressure on them (parents of the deceased) to transfer the house in her name and due to this motive she along with her brother committed murder of Vivek Behel by way of strangulation. It was stated in the said complaint that one set of key of the house remained with the accused-Shobha Behel.

(iii) The explanation of delay was given that the informant was under shock due to sudden death of his son and, therefore, he had given the complaint on 22.10.2011.

(iv) Neither from the first complaint (Ex. Ka-22) nor from the second complaint (Ex.Ka-1) , it is found that any specific motive was assigned to the appellants who are the wife and the brother-in-law of the deceased. It is found that it has further come in the evidence of both PW-1 & PW-9, the parents of the deceased, that previously deceased was admitted in Drug De-addiction Centre by appellant-Shobha for his treatment and later a compromise was effected between them in which by way of a civil decree, half of the share of the house was transferred in the name of appellant-Shobha, 1/4th in the name of Vivek Behel and 1/4th share was retained by the informant (PW-1). Therefore, once the settlement was arrived at between the family, there is no motive to commit murder of Vivek Behel by his wife Shobha Behel.

(v) It came for the first time, in the statement of PW-1, while deposing in Court, that he had filed an application for setting aside the compromise decree and therefore, Shobha got annoyed and again left the matrimonial home and due to that reason, she committed the murder of Vivek Behel. Though in such eventuality motive would be against her father-in-law who was seeking cancellation of decree.

(vi) PW-9, in her cross examination, admitted that one set of key of the house remained with appellant-Shobha and she used to visit Vivek Behel at Shaharanpur occasionally. It has also come in the statement of this witness that six months prior to the date of incident, they (PW-1 & PW-9) left the rented accommodation and shifted back to the same house and, thereafter, Shobha Behel again started living at her parental home at Yamuna Nagar. Therefore, the evidence on record suggests that appellant-Shobha Behel wanted to stay with her husband and not with the parents of her husband (PW-1 & PW-9) and, this cannot be a motive to commit murder of her husband.

30. (i) It has come on record that PW-1 later on moved an application for cancellation of the civil decree which show that informant himself had backed out of the settlement arrived at with her daughter-in-law (appellant-Shobha Behel).

(ii) It has come in the statement of PW-1 & PW-9 that previously there was matrimonial litigation between parties i.e. Shobha Behel on one side and her husband and his parents (PW-1 & PW-9) on the other. However, as per the cross examination of these witnesses, she was still in relation with her husband-Vivek Behel and, therefore, the Trial Court has wrongly drawn adverse presumption against the appellant-wife in terms of Section 106 of the Act, 1872. It is held by the Supreme Court in Shivaji Chintappa Patil Case (Supra) that where the mother of the deceased admitted that the accused and her deceased daughter stayed together, would show that the relationship between deceased and accused was cordial. In the instant case also, it is admitted by both PW-1 & PW-9 that accused-appellant, Shobha, was given half share of the house; she was having one set of key of the house and in the absence of PW-1 & PW-9, she used to visit Vivek Behel, which suggest that despite all litigations, she was maintaining cordial relation with her husband and, therefore, the appellants are liable to be given the benefit as there is no complete chain of circumstances in the present case.

31. (i) So far evidence of last seen is concerned, as noticed above, in the first complaint given on coming to know about the death of deceased as well as the second complaint which was given after 10 days of the death, only suspicion is raised against the appellant that on account of property dispute, she committed murder of her husband. Secondly, the evidence led by the prosecution regarding last seen of Shobha Behel and her brother-Ashish Arora on 10.10.2011 at the house where the incident had taken place falls flat. Firstly, because it has come in the statement of PW-1 that when they (parents of deceased) saw the dead body of their son, persons namely Vijendra Kumar (PW-2), Surajbhan (PW-3), Ambrish & Ved Prakash also came at the spot and informed that they had seen accused-appellants, Shobha Behel and Ashish Arora coming out of the house of informant. As a matter of fact, two persons, Ambrish and Ved Prakash, were never cited as prosecution witnesses. Secondly,

Vijendra Kumar (PW-2), a witness of last seen, also did not support the prosecution version by deposing that he had not seen either Shobha Behel or Ashish Arora coming out of the house of informant on 10.10.2011. This witness was cross examined not only by public prosecutor but certain questions were put to him by the Court itself confronting him with his statement under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. However, this witness did not support his statement under Section 161 of Cr.P.C.

(ii) The Trial Court has relied upon the statement of Vijendra Kumar (PW-2) recorded under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. who has stated that he had not seen the accused persons coming out of the house of informant (PW-1) on the date of incident. This witness was declared hostile and never supported his statement recorded under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. though he was cross examined by the Public Prosecutor and certain questions were put to him by the Court in this regard.

(iii) It is well settled principle of law that the statement under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. can be used for contradicting the statement of witness and cannot be relied upon when the witness himself has disowned the same. At the cost of repetition, it is noticed that this witness was cross examined by Public Prosecutor after he was declared hostile. Still he disowned his statement and thereafter certain questions were put to him by the Trial Court but this witness has not acknowledged his statement given under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. Therefore, the Trial Court has not appreciated this legal aspect of the case.

(iv) The presence of Surajbhan (PW-3) is highly doubtful.

(a) This witness has stated that on 10.10.2011 at about 9.00 to 9.30 p.m., he was present at a barber's shop and was getting his shave done and had seen the accused persons coming out of the house of the informant. This witness stated that he came to know about the murder of Vivek Behel after few days but he never informed this fact to the informant (PW-1) though both PW-1 & PW-9 have stated that he was present at the spot when they had seen the dead body of his son on 10.11.2011.

(b) This witness stated that only when PW-1 came to know that he (PW3) has seen the accused coming out of his house on 10.10.2011, he took him to the police station and got his statement recorded on 15.3.2012 i.e. after five months of the incident. This raises a serious suspicion on the character of this witness why he kept quite for five months despite having seen the accused persons coming out of the house of the deceased on 10.10.2011.

(c) This witness otherwise is not a natural witness for the reasons that he has stated that the barber's shop where he was getting his shave done was about one and a half kilometres away from the street leading to the house of the informant and he had seen the appellants from a distance of 5 to 6 yards though it was dark outside. This witness further stated that one of his eyes was damage and he could not see from that eye and he had seen the accused persons coming out of the house of the informent (PW-1) from his another eye. This witness further stated that he is a retired person aged about 70 years.

(d) Therefore, presence of PW-3 is doubtful as it has not come in the statements of PW-1 that there was any barber's shop in the vicinity and PW-1 has even denied the suggestion whether there is any barber's shop in the nearby area. Even the police did not record the statement of owner of the barber's shop to find out that Surajbhan (PW-3) was getting his shave done on 10.10.2011 at about 9.00 to 9.30 p.m.

(e) The presence of Surajbhan (PW-3) at the spot become highly doubtful in the light of the statement of Investigating Officer (PW-13) who has stated in clear words that during investigation, he never got any information prior to 15.3.2012 i.e. the intervening period of five months after registration of the FIR on 22.10.2011, that Vijendra Kumar (PW-2) and Surajbhan (PW-3) were witnesses of any fact of this case. This witness has even stated that during investigation he met both informant (PW-1) and his wife (PW-9) but, they never told him on any previous occasions that there was any witness of last seen and only on 15.3.2012, PW-1 brought them to the police station the he (PW13) recorded statement of both the witnesses (PW-2 & PW-3) on 15.3.2012.

(f) All the aforesaid circumstances clearly show that Surajbhan (PW-3) is not a witness of last seen and was introduced later on, after five months of the incident.

32. (i) Perusal of the entire prosecution evidence shows that no scientific investigation of the case was done. Firstly, no F.S.L. expert was called at the spot to find out whether it was a case of murder or that there was any evidence at the spot showing that the deceased had resisted to the commission of the offence by way of strangulation. The police had also not collected any CCTV footage of the locality to find out whether the accused persons were present in the area on the date of incident and surprisingly the police did not even collect any evidence of the call details or the location of the mobile phones of the accused persons or the deceased to find out whether they were present at the spot or they had any conversation with each other prior to incident. This shows that the police has conducted a very shoddy investigation in the case and there is no corroboration to the statement of the informant that the accused persons were present at the place of incident. Therefore, the chain of circumstances is not proved.

(ii) It has come in the cross examination of both PW-1 & PW-9 that father of the accused persons had died on 4.10.2011 and his cremation was done on 7.10.2011. His last rites were performed on 16.10.2011 at Yamuna Nagar. PW-1 has even admitted that on 17.10.2011, accused-Shobha had also given a complaint through speed post to Senior Superintendent of Police, Shaharanpur for conducting fair investigation regarding death of her husband stating that her father-in-law (PW-1) did not even inform her about death of her husband and from 4.10.2011 till 17.10.2011, she was at Yamuna Nagar to attend the last rites of her father with her brother accused-Ashish Arora. Once the factum of the death of appellants' father and the fact that the appellants were at Yamuna Nagar from 4.10.2011 till 17.10.2011 to attend the last rites of their father are admitted by PW-1, the Court finds that the defence taken by the appellants that they were not present at the spot on 10.10.2011 find weight.

33. Even otherwise, appellant-Shobha as admitted by PW-1 & PW-9, is the owner of half of the share of the house by way of civil court's decree passed in the year 2007. It was also admitted that the appellant had a set of keys of the house and she used to come to meet the deceased in their absence. It has also come in the statement of the informant that the marriage between Shobha Behel and Vivek Behel was performed on 28.11.2005 and in the year 2008 a son was born to appellant and deceased who is living in care and custody of the appellant. Though both by the prosecution and the defence it established that there was matrimonial litigation between both sides, yet nothing has come on record that at any point of of time, appellant-Shobha Behel has filed any petition seeking decree of divorce or judicial separation from her husband. Rather the evidence suggests that she was visiting him at Shaharanpur which reflects that the appellant never wanted to separate from the deceased despite the fact that he was drug addicted and remained under depression as admitted by both PW-1 & PW-9. It has also come in the statement of both the witnesses that the deceased was admitted in Drug De-addiction Centre by appellant-Shobha Behel for his treatment. It has also come in their statement that they had given an affidavit to concerned authorities stating therein that, in future, if anything wrong is done by the deceased under the influence of liquor, they would be responsible for the same. It has also come on record that by way of public notice in Amar Ujala on 14.11.2006, PW-1 & PW-9 had disowned their son. Therefore, in totality of the evidence led by the prosecution and defence set up by the accused persons, neither motive is proved nor chain of circumstances is proved to hold the appellants guilty of charges.

34. In view of the judgment in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda's Case (Supra) and subsequent judgment in Jabir's Case (Supra), the prosecution has failed to prove the five golden principles of proving a case based on circumstantial evidence laid down in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda's Case (Supra).

35. In view of the judgment in Shivaji Chintappa Patil's Case (Supra), the Trial Court has wrongly drawn adverse presumption under Section 106 of Act, 1872 against the appellant-Shobha Behel though it has come in the evidence that she was maintaining relationship with her husband by visiting him at Shaharanpur.

36. In light of the judgment in Dinesh Kumar's Case (Supra) and Krishan Kumar's Case (Supra) we conclude that there is no legal evidence led by the prosecution to build its case on circumstantial evidence as the chain of circumstances collected by the prosecution is not complete to point out that only allegation can be drawn that the accused have committed the crime. In view of this judgment, the prosecution evidence only leads up to a point and no further evidence is on record to prove motive to make it a complete chain so as to record any reasonable ground for conviction.

37. It is held in Shivaji Chintappa Patil's Case (Supra) that it is settled principle of law that if two views are possible, the benefit shall always go to the accused.

38. In view of the judgment in Jabir's Case (Supra), the prosecution has failed to prove that the circumstantial evidence is complete to sustain conviction or to hold the accused guilty.

39. On perusal of the entire evidence, judgment of the Trial Court and in view of the judgment in Harbeer Singh's Case (Supra), we hold that improvements made by prosecution are creating serious doubts about the truthfulness and credibility of the witnesses.

40. Therefore, in the light of the judgment in Krishan Kumar's Case (Supra), we hold that the Trial Court has appreciated the evidence in an utterly perverse manner i.e. against the weight of the evidence and conviction of the appellant cannot be upheld and they are entitled to acquittal.

41. In view of the above, this appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment of conviction and order of sentence are set aside. Let the appellants, Shobha Behel and Ashish Arora, be set free forthwith and their bail bonds and sureties be discharged.

42. Record and proceedings be sent back to the Trial Court forthwith.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajnish Kumar, J.)

1. Heard Mohd. Arif Khan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Akbar Ali Khan and Mohd. Shadab Khan, Advocates, holding brief of Mohd. Aslam Khan, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Ankit Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. This appeal under Order-XLIII, Rule-1(u) of the Civil Procedure Code, 1908 (here-in-after referred as C.P.C.) has been preferred by the plaintiff-appellant assailing the judgment and order dated 12.08.2015 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No.11, Sitapur in Civil Appeal No.105 of 2014; Subhang Chauhan and Others Vs. Smt. Renu Singh, by means of which the appeal preferred by the defendant-respondents has been allowed and the judgment and order dated 17.11.2014 passed in Regular Suit No.491 of 2002; Smt. Renu Singh Vs. Bhagwan Bux Singh and Others has been set-aside and the matter has been remanded to the Trial Court to pass a fresh order in the light of the observations made in the judgment of the Appellate Court after affording sufficient opportunity of filing written statement to the defendants and framing the required issues and affording opportunity of evidence to the parties on the same and hearing.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the Trial Court had decided the suit in accordance with law after framing the issues and affording sufficient opportunity to the parties. Even then, if the learned Appellate Court was of the view that certain issues have not been framed and decided by the Trial Court, the Appellate Court, instead of remanding the whole case for a fresh trial, could have framed the additional issues and referred to the Trial Court and directed to take the additional evidence and called the same with its findings and decided the appeal after considering the same in accordance with law. Thus the submission is that the judgment and order passed by the first Appellate Court is not sustainable in the eyes of law and liable to be set-aside. He relied on Syeda Rahimunnisa Vs. Malan BI (Dead) by L.Rs. and Another; 2016 (119) ALR 485, Sree Panimoola Devi Temple and Others Vs. Bhuvanachandran Pillai and Others; (2015) 12 SCC 698, Jagannathan Vs. Raju Sigamani and Another; (2012) 5 SCC 540, P. Purushottam Reddy and Another Vs. Pratap Steels Ltd.; (2002) 2 SCC 686, Narendra Vs. K. Meena; 2016 (119) ALR 494.

4. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that there is no error or illegality in the impugned judgment and order dated 12.08.2015 passed by the Appellate Court because the learned Trial Court had decided the suit committing several irregularities. He further submitted that after exchange of pleadings, the issues are required to be framed and the opportunity afforded to the parties to adduce the evidence on the said issues but in the present case the issues were framed in the judgment and order dated 17.11.2014 passed by the Trial Court itself and without affording any opportunity to adduce evidence on the said issues, the suit was dismissed, which could not have been done. Since the issues were not framed after exchange of pleadings, therefore the parties could not know as to what evidence is to be adduced, therefore the judgment, order and decree passed by the Trial Court has been rightly and in accordance with law set aside by the Appellate Court and the Appellate Court remanded the case to decide a fresh as per the observations and directions issued by the First Appellate Court. Thus the submission is that the instant appeal has been filed on misconceived and baseless grounds and it is liable to be dismissed.

5. He further submitted that the first appeal under Order-XLIII, Rule-1 (u) is in the nature of appeal under Section 100, therefore it could be decided only on the legal issues. He relied on Narayanan Vs. Kumaran and Others; (2004) 4 SCC 26 and J. Balaji Singh Vs. Diwakar Cole and Others; (2017) 14 SCC 207.

6. I have considered the submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the records.

7. The appellant filed a suit for permanent injunction against late Bhagwan Bux Singh, who was her father-in-law, for restraining him from alienating movable and immovable properties on the ground that the husband of the appellant late Rajesh Kumar Singh died on 27.04.2002 on account of ailment of brain cancer. Due to death of husband of the appellant, the late father-in-law of the appellant became mentally derailed. The husband of the appellant had earned money from agricultural land/ crops etc. and raised constructions in the year 1995 and shifted alongwith his family to Ganeshpur. She further alleged that the father in law of the appellant was intending to transfer / alienate the property in dispute under the influence of some relatives and in case he is not restrained from doing so, the appellant will suffer irreparable loss and injury as she has no other source of her livelihood and the property in suit is Joint Hindu Family property and the appellant has got right and title in the same. During pendency of the suit, late Bhagwan Bux Singh died, therefore the respondent no.1 i.e. Subhang Chauhan, minor son of Raj Kamal Singh Chauhan and Smt. Usha Chauhan; mother of the respondent no.1 was substituted. Smt. Usha Chauhan also died during pendency of the suit, therefore the respondent no.2 was substituted. The suit was amended and sale deeds dated 29.08.2002, 18.09.2002 and will dated 09.04.2008 were challenged with prayer for their cancellation.

8. Late Bhagwan Bux Singh filed the written statement. After his death, the substituted parties had not appeared, therefore the case had proceeded ex-party.

9. It appears that during pendency of the suit, the respondent no.1 had become major. The suit was decided by framing the issues in the judgment and order dated 21.11.2014 itself. The judgment and order dated 21.11.2014 was assailed by the respondents by filing the first appeal under Section 96 of C.P.C. The First Appellate Court after considering the grounds raised in the appeal and the record of the Trial Court and after affording opportunity to the parties passed the impugned judgment and order dated 12.08.2015 setting aside the judgment and order dated 17.11.2014 passed by the Trial Court and remanded the matter to the Trial Court with a direction to decide the suit a fresh after sufficient opportunity of written statement to the defendants and framing the required issues and affording opportunity of evidence to the parties on the same and hearing. Being aggrieved the instant appeal has been filed under Order-XLIII, Rule-1 (u) of C.P.C assailing the judgment and order passed by the Appellate court. The ground taken and pressed before this Court is that there was no illegality or error in the order passed by the Trial Court, even then if the first Appellate court was of the view that some issues were not framed and adjudicated by the Trial Court, the Appellate Court could have decided the appeal after framing the additional issues and calling evidence and findings on the same from the Trial Court, instead of remanding the case for a fresh decision.

10. In view of above, the issue to be decided in this case is as to whether the Trial Court had decided the suit by passing an order in accordance with law, which does not suffer from any illegality or error,if not as to whether First Appellate Court has set-aside the judgment and order of the Trial Court and remanded the matter to decide a fresh rightly and in accordance with law or the first Appellate Court could have decided the appeal, after framing the issues and referring to the Trial Court with a direction to take additional evidence on the said issues and after trying the said issues send to the Appellate Court with it's finding thereon and considering the same.

11. To consider the aforesaid issue involved in this case, this Court will first consider as to whether the judgment and order passed by the Trial Court is in accordance with law and it does not suffer from any illegality or error.

12. The rule Rule-1 of Order-XIV of C.P.C provides about framing of issues. Sub-rule (1) provides that issues arise when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by the one party and denied by the other. Sub-rule (5) provides that at the first hearing of the suit the Court shall, after reading the plaint and the written statements, if any, and after examination under rule 2 of Order X and after hearing the parties or their pleaders, ascertain upon what material propositions of fact or of law the parties are at variance, and shall thereupon proceed to frame and record the issues on which the right decision of the case appears to depend, therefore the issues are required to be framed at the first hearing of the suit on the basis of the pleadings made in the plaint and the written statement on which right decision of the case appears to depend. Rule 2 (1) of Order-XIV provides that notwithstanding that a case may be disposed of on a preliminary issue, the Court shall, subject to the provisions of sub-rule (2), pronounce judgment on all issues. Sub rule (2) of Rule 2 provides the order in which the issues may be decided. Rule 3 of order XIV provides as to from what material, the issues may be framed. Rule 4 order XIV provides that the court may examine witnesses or documents before framing issues. Rule-5 of Order-XIV provides that the Court may at any time before passing a decree amend the issues or frame additional issues on such terms as it thinks fit, and all such amendments or additional issues as may be necessary for determining the matters in controversy between the parties shall be so made or framed. Sub rule (2) of Rules 5 of the Order XIV provides that the Court may also, at any time before passing a decree, strike out any issues which may be wrongly framed or introduced.

13. In view of above, after filing of plaint and written statement, the Court has to frame the issues on which the parties are at variance in their pleadings, as per the procedure provided in Order-XIV of C.P.C. which are required to be decided.

14. In the instant case, the Trial Court had passed the judgement and order without framing the issues and affording opportunity to adduce the evidence on the same and framing the issues in the judgment and order itself and considering the evidence taken prior to that, which may be for the purpose of framing issues. It is to be noticed here that it is not a case in which the parties were not at issue, therefore it could have been decided under some provision of Order-XV of C.P.C. because the issues were framed in the judgment itself by the trial court.

15. Rule -1 of Order XVI provides that on or before such date as the Court may appoint, and not later than fifteen days after the date on which the issues are settled, the parties shall present in Court a list of witnesses whom they propose to call either to give evidence or to produce documents and obtain summonses to such persons for their attendance in Court. Therefore it is apparent that after framing of the issues, the evidence is required to be adduced on the said issues.

16. Rule 1 of Order XVIII C.P.C. provides about right to begin by the plaintiff unless there is any preliminary objection. Rule 2 of Order-XVIII C.P.C. provides the statement and production of evidence. High Court amendment of Allahabad has substituted the Rule 2 w.e.f. 24.07.1926. Substituted sub rule (1) of Rule 2 provides that on the day fixed for the hearing of the suit or on any other day to which the hearing is adjourned, the party having the right to begin shall state his case indicating the relevancy of documents produced by him and the nature of oral evidence which he proposes to adduce and call his witnesses in support of the issues which he is bound to prove. Sub-rule (2) provides that the other party shall then state his case and produce his evidence (if any). Substituted Rule 2 of Order XVIII is extracted here-in-below:-

""2. (1) On the day fixed for the hearing of the suit or on any other day to which the hearing is adjourned the party having the right to begin shall state his case, indicating the relevancy of each of the documents produced by him, and the nature of the oral evidence which he proposes to adduce and shall then call his witnesses in support of the issues which he is bound to prove.

(2) The other party shall then state his case in the manner aforesaid and produce his evidence (if any)." (w.e.f. 24-7-1926)"

17. In view of above on the day fixed for the hearing of the suit or on any other day to which the hearing is adjourned, the party having the right to begin shall state his case and call his witnesses to adduce evidence in support of the issues which he is bound to prove. Thereafter the other party shall do the same. Thus it is crystal clear that after exchange of pleadings the issues are required to be framed first by the court so that the parties may know the issues on which they are at variance and they have to adduce the evidence in support of which issue. Then the party who has to prove any issue framed by the court, can adduce the evidence in support of that issue. Whereas in present case the issues have been framed by the Trial Court in the judgment itself and the suit has been decided without affording opportunity to the parties to adduce evidence on the said issues and on the basis of the evidence taken otherwise, which has not been adduced on the said issues and may be for framing of issues, therefore the Trial Court has decided the suit without following the due procedure of law, which is a gross illegality in the eyes of law and the judgment and order passed accordingly is not sustainable at all in the eyes of law. The said judgment and order passed by the Trial Court was challenged in the first appeal accordingly.

18. Now the question arises as to whether in view of the aforesaid gross illegality and procedural lapse in the judgement and order passed by the Trial Court, the first Appellate Court has rightly and in accordance with law has set-aside the judgment and order of the Trial Court and remanded the matter for decision a fresh in accordance with the directions and observations or the Appellate Court could have framed the issues and referred the matter to the Trial Court for taking evidence on them and after trying called with it's findings and decided the appeal.

19. The provision of remand made in Rule-23, 23-A and 25 of Order XLI of C.P.C. are relevant for considering the above issue, which are extracted here-in-below:-

"23. Remand of case by Appellate Court.- Where the court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal, the Appellate Court may, if it thinks fit, by order remand the case, and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded, and shall send a cop of its judgment and order to the court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register of civil suits, and proceed to determine the suit; and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions, be evidence during the trial after remand.

The Following Allahabad High Court Amendment has been made in aforesaid Rule 23:

a. (i) Insert he following after the words 'and the decree is reversed in appeal", namely:

"or where the Appellate Court while reversing or setting aside the decree under appeal considers it necessary in the interest of justice to remand the case, it"; and

(ii) delete the words "the Appellate Court" occurring thereafter and delete also the words

"if it thinks fit", occurring after the words "may".

\ 23.(A)- Remand in other cases- Where the Court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the case otherwise than on a preliminary point, and the decree is reversed in appeal and a re-trial is considered necessary, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers as it has under rule 23.

25. Where Appellate Court may frame issues and refer them for trial to Court whose decree appealed from. - Where the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted to frame or try any issue, or to determine any question of fact, which appears to the Appellate Court essential to the right decision of the suit upon the merits the Appellate Court may, if necessary, frame issues, and refer the same for trial to the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, and in such case shall direct such Court to take the additional evidence required; and such Court shall proceed to try such issues, and shall return the evidence to the Appellate Court together with its findings thereon and the reasons therefor within such time as may be fixed by the Appellate Court or extended by it from time to time.*

20. In view of above, Rule 23 as amended by the Allahabad High Court is 'where the court from whose decree an appeal is preferred has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point and the decree is reversed in appeal or where the Appellate Court while reversing or setting aside the decree under appeal considers it necessary in the interest of justice to remand the case, it may by order remand the case, and may further direct what issue or issues shall be tried in the case so remanded, and shall send a copy of its judgment and order to the court from whose decree the appeal is preferred, with directions to re-admit the suit under its original number in the register of civil suits, and proceed to determine the suit; and the evidence (if any) recorded during the original trial shall, subject to all just exceptions, be evidence during the trial after remand.' The aforesaid Rule 23(A) provides in regard to the appeal, which has been preferred against the decree which has been made otherwise than on a preliminary point, and the decree is reversed in appeal and a re-trial is considered necessary, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers as it has under rule 23. In both the aforesaid rules, the power of First Appellate Court is one and the same as given in Rule 23 according to which, in case of reversal of a decree in appeal the Appellate Court may remand the case for re-trial. Rule 25 provides the contingencies in which the Appellate Court can frame the issues and refer the matter to the Trial Court for taking evidence on them and trying the said issues, who shall send then to the same with it's findings thereon to the Appellate Court and the Appellate Court can decide the appeal accordingly.

21. Rule 25 of Order XLI C.P.C. provides that where the court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted to frame or try any issue or to determine any question of fact, which is essential to the right decision of the suit upon merits, the Appellate Court may frame the said issues and refer to the concerned court for trial of same after taking evidence and referring to the Appellate Court with it's findings and reasons thereon and then the Appellate Court may decide the appeal. Thus this procedure can be followed only if the Trial Court has omitted to frame or try any issue or determine any question of fact whereas in the present case the Trial Court has failed to follow the due procedure of law in deciding the suit as indicated above, therefore, this Court is of the view that this procedure could not have been followed by the Trial Court and it has rightly an in accordance with law has set-aside the judgment and order passed by the Trial Court and remanded the matter for a fresh decision.

22. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Syeda Rahimunnisa Vs. Malan BI (Dead) by L.Rs. and Another (supra), has held that the power of the Appellate Court to remand the case to subordinate court is contained in order XLI Rule 23, 23-A and 25 of C.P.C. It is, therefore, obligatory upon the appellant to bring the case under any of these provisions before claiming a remand and the Appellate Court is required to record reasons as to why it has taken recourse to any one out of three Rules of Order XLI of C.P.C. for remanding the case to the Trial Court. Relevant paragraph 35 is extracted here-in-below:-

"35. It is a settled principle of law that in order to claim remand of the case to the Trial Court, it is necessary for the appellant to first raise such plea and then make out a case of remand on facts. The power of the Appellate Court to remand the case to subordinate court is contained in order XLI Rule 23, 23-A and 25 of CPC. It is, therefore, obligatory upon the appellant to bring the case under any of these provisions before claiming a remand.

The Appellate Court is required to record reasons as to why it has taken recourse to any one out of the three Rules of Order XLI of CPC for remanding the case to the Trial Court. In the absence of any ground taken by the respondents (appellants before the First Appellate Court and High Court) before the First Appellate Court and the High Court as to why the remand order in these cases is called for and if so under which Rule of Order XLI of CPC and further in the absence of any finding, there was no justification on the part of the High Court to remand the case to the Trial Court. The High Court instead should have decided the appeals on merits. We, however, do not consider proper to remand the case to High Court for deciding the appeals on merits and instead examine the merits of the case in these appeals."

23. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Sree Panimoola Devi Temple and Others Vs. Bhuvanachandran Pillai and Others (Supra), has held that if the plaintiffs had not led sufficient evidence to establish their case, as held by the High Court, ordinarily, that should have been the end of the matter and in such circumstances, remand of the suit for de-novo consideration virtually gives to the plaintiffs a second opportunity to establish their case. This Court is of the view that this judgment relied by the learned counsel for the appellant is not applicable on the facts and circumstances of the present case because in the present case the learned Trial Court has failed to follow the due procedure of law and afford opportunity in accordance with law.

24. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Jagannathan Vs. Raju Sigamani and Another (Supra), has held that where the Trial Court has disposed of the Suit on merits and the decree is reversed in appeal and the Appellate Court considered that retrial is necessary, the Appellate Court may remand the suit to the Trial Court. The relevant paragraph-7 is extracted here-in-below:-

"(7) Order 41 Rule 23A has been inserted in the Code by Act No. 104 of 1976 w.e.f. February 1, 1977. According to Order 41 Rule 23A of the Code, the Appellate Court may remand the suit to the Trial Court even though such suit has been disposed of on merits. It provides that where the Trial Court has disposed of the Suit on merits and the decree is reversed in appeal and the Appellate Court considers that retrial is necessary, the Appellate Court may remand the suit to the Trial Court."

25. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of P. Purushottam Reddy and Another Vs. Pratap Steels Ltd. (Supra), has held that the Appellate Court should be circumspect in ordering a remand when the case is not covered either by Rule 23 or Rule 23-A or Rule 25 C.P.C. and an unwarranted order of remand gives the litigation an undeserved lease of life and, therefore must be avoided. This case is not applicable in the facts and circumstances of the present case because in the present case as discussed above and also as per the findings recorded by the First Appellate Court, the First Appellate Court has rightly and in accordance with law has remanded the case.

26. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Maya Devi (Dead) through LRs Vs. Raj Kumari Batra (Dead) (Supra), has held that whether or not the Appellate Court should remit the matter is discretionary with the Appellate Court and would largely depend upon the nature of the dispute, the nature and the extent of evidence that may have to be appreciated, the complexity of the issues that arise for determination and whether remand is going to result in avoidable prolongation of the litigation between the parties. The relevant paragraph- 17 is extracted here-in-below:-

"(17). Recording of reasons in cases where the order is subject to further appeal is very important from yet another angle. An Appellate Court or the authority ought to have the advantage of examining the reasons that prevailed with the Court or the authority making the order. Conversely, absence of reasons in an appealable order deprives the Appellate Court or the authority of that advantage and casts an onerous responsibility upon it to examine and determine the question on its own. An Appellate Court or authority may in a given case decline to undertake any such exercise and remit the matter back to the lower Court or authority for a fresh and reasoned order. That, however, is not an inflexible rule, for an Appellate Court may notwithstanding the absence of reasons in support of the order under appeal before it examine the matter on merits and finally decide the same at the appellate stage. Whether or not the Appellate Court should remit the matter is discretionary with the Appellate Court and would largely depend upon the nature of the dispute, the nature and the extent of evidence that may have to be appreciated, the complexity of the issues that arise for determination and whether remand is going to result in avoidable prolongation of the litigation between the parties. Remands are usually avoided if the Appellate Court is of the view that it will prolong the litigation."

27. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Narayanan Vs. Kumaran and Others (Supra), has held that it is quite safe to adopt that appeal under order 43 Rule (1) clause (u) should be heard only on the ground enumerated in Section 100. The relevant paragraph-17 of the judgment is extracted here-in-below:-

"17. It is obvious from the above rule that an appeal will lie from an order of remand only in those cases in which an appeal would lie against the decree if the Appellate Court instead of making an order of remand had passed a decree on the strength of the adjudication on which the order of remand was passed. The test is whether in the circumstances an appeal would lie if the order of remand where it is to be treated as a decree and not a mere order. In these circumstances, it is quite safe to adopt that appeal under order 43 Rule (1) clause (u) should be heard only on the ground enumerated in Section 100. We, therefore, accept the contention of Mr. T.L.V.Iyer and hold that the appellant under an appeal under order 43 Rule (1) clause (u) is not entitled to agitate questions of facts. We, therefore, hold that in an appeal against an order of remand under this clause, the High Court can and should confine itself to such facts, conclusions and decisions which have a bearing on the order of remand and cannot convass all the findings of facts arrived at by the Lower Appellate Court."

28. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of J. Balaji Singh Vs. Diwakar Cole and Others (Supra), has considered the provisions of Order- XLIII, Rule-23, 23(A) and 25 of C.P.C. and under what circumstances remand could have been made and the power of this court under Order- XLIII, Rule-1 (u) of C.P.C., on being challenged an order of remand. The relevant paragraphs 13 to 21 are extracted here-in-below:-

13. The main question, which fell for consideration before the High Court, was whether the first Appellate Court was right in remanding the case to the Trial Court for fresh trial on merits?

14. There are three provisions in the Code which deal with the power of the Appellate Court to remand the case to the Trial Court. These provisions are Order 41 Rules 23, 23-A, and 25.

14.1. So far as Order 41 Rule 23 is concerned, it enables the Appellate Court to remand the case to the Trial Court when it finds that the Trial Court has disposed of the suit upon a preliminary point. The Appellate Court in such cases is empowered to direct the Trial Court to decide all the issues on evidence on record.

14.2. So far as Rule 23-A is concerned, it enables the Appellate Court to remand the case to the Trial Court when it finds that though the Trial Court has disposed of the suit on all the issues but on reversal of the decree in appeal, a re-trial is considered necessary by the Appellate Court.

14.3. So far as Rule 25 is concerned, it enables the Appellate Court to frame or try the issue if it finds that it is essential to the right decision of the suit and was not framed by the Trial Court. The Appellate Court in such case may, accordingly, frame the issues and refer the same to the Trial Court to take the evidence and record the findings on such issues and return to the Appellate Court for deciding the appeal. In such cases, the Appellate Court retains the appeal to itself.

15. Now coming to the facts of the case, we are of the considered opinion that once the first Appellate Court allowed the application under Order 41 Rule 27 of Code and took on record the additional evidence, it rightly set aside the judgment/decree of the Trial Court giving liberty to the parties to lead additional evidence in support of their case which, in turn, enabled the Trial Court to decide the civil suit afresh on merits in the light of entire evidence. The first Appellate Court was, therefore, justified in taking recourse to powers conferred on the Appellate Court under Order 41 Rule 23-A for remanding the case to the Trial Court. We find no fault in exercise of such power by the first Appellate Court.

16. In our considered view, the only error which the first Appellate Court committed was that it went on to record the findings on merits. In our view, it was not necessary to do so while passing the order of remand. The reason is that once the first Appellate Court formed an opinion to remand the case, it was required to give reasons in support of the remand order as to why the remand is called for in the case. Indeed, the remand was made only to enable the Trial Court to decide the case on merits. Therefore, there was no need to discuss much less record findings on several issues on merits. It was totally uncalled for.

17. So far as the impugned order is concerned, the High Court, in our view, committed jurisdictional error when it also again examined the case on merits and set aside the judgment of the first Appellate Court and restored the judgment of the Trial Court. The High Court, in our opinion, should not have done this for the simple reason that it was only examining the legality of the remand order in an appeal filed under Order 43 Rule 1(u) of the Code. Indeed, once the High Court came to a conclusion that the remand order was bad in law then it could only remand the case to the first Appellate Court with a direction to decide the first appeal on merits.

18. The High Court failed to see that when the first Appellate Court itself did not decide the appeal on merits and considered it proper to remand the case to the Trial Court, a fortiori, the High Court had no jurisdiction to decide the appeal on merits. Moreover, Order 43 Rule 1(u) confers limited power on the High Court to examine only the legality and correctness of the remand order of the first Appellate Court but not beyond that. In other words, the High Court should have seen that Order 43 Rule 1(u) gives a limited power to examine the issue relating to legality of remand order, as is clear from Order 43 Rule 1(u) which reads thus:-

"1(u) an order under rule 23 or rule 23A of Order XLI remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court"

19. It is well settled law that the jurisdiction to decide the appeal on merits can be exercised by the Appellate Court only when the appeal is filed under Section 96 or 100 of the Code against the decree. Such was not the case here.

20. In the light of abovementioned discussion, we are of the opinion that the High Court had no jurisdiction to consider much less deciding the entire case of the parties on merits in such appeal.

21. We are also unable to agree with the High Court when it held that the first Appellate Court instead of remanding the case to the Trial Court should have heard the appeal on merits. This finding, in our view, is bad in law for the reason that firstly, it was not possible for the first Appellate Court to have recorded the evidence at the appellate stage.

29. In view of above, in the appeal under Order- XLIII, Rule-1 (u) C.P.C., the appellant is not entitled to agitate the questions of facts and this Court has to confine itself to such facts, conclusions and decisions which have a bearing on the order of remand and the said rule confers limited power on the High Court to examine only the legality and correctness of the remand order of the first Appellate Court but not beyond that. Therefore now the conclusions for remand by the first appellate court will be considered.

30. The first Appellate Court had made five points of determination, which are extracted here-in-below:-

"1. क्या प्रतिवादिनी सं०-3 श्रीमती उषा चौहान की मृत्यु के बाद उनके पति राज कमल सिंह को वाद में प्रतिस्थापित न किये जाने से मूल वाद की कार्यवाही दूषित है?

2. क्या प्रतिवादी सं०-2 शुभांग चौहान को किसी संरक्षक के जरिये पक्षकार न बनाने से मूल वाद की कार्यवाही दूषित है?

3. क्या प्रतिवादी सं०-3/1 असित चौहान को प्रतिस्थापित किये जाने के वाद उसे जबाबदेही के लिए सम्मन न भेजे जाने के कारण मूल वाद की कार्यवाही दूषित हुई है?

4. क्या वाद प्रस्तुत करने की वादिनी की अधिकारिता के संबंध में व वाद सुनवाई की दीवानी न्यायालय की अधिकारिता के संबंध में व याचित अनुतोष के कालवाधित होने के संबंध में विशिष्ट वाद बिन्दु विरचित न किये जाने से अवर न्यायालय की वाद कार्यवाही दूषित हुई?

5. क्या निर्णय के पूर्व दीवानी प्रकिया संहिता के आदेश 14 नियम 5 के तहत अवर न्यायालय द्वारा वाद बिन्दु विरचित न किये जाने से और निर्णय में ही वाद बिन्दु विरचित कर उस

पर पक्षकारों को साक्ष्य का अवसर न दिये जाने से अवर न्यायालय की वाद दूषित हुई है?"

31. While considering the 1st point of determination, learned First Appellate Court found that after death of Smt. Usha Chauhan, the defendant no.3 in the suit, her husband Ram Kamal Singh Chauhan was also required to be substituted in view Section 15 of the Hindu Succession Act and afforded opportunity to defend, according to which in pursuance of the will in favour of Smt. Usha Chauhan, after her death, her husband had also right in the said property. The will was not set-aside till the time of death of Smt. Usha Chauhan, therefore the Trial Court had passed the judgment and order without affording opportunity to Raj Kamal Singh Chauhan, who had right and title in the property in dispute after death of Smt. Usha Chauhan and before setting aside the will and the same could not have been set aside without affording the opportunity to him.

32. Section 15 of the Hindu Succession Act- 1956 provides general rules of succession in the case of female Hindus. Sub section (1) (a) of Section 15 provides that the property of a female Hindu dying intestate shall devolve upon the sons and daughters and the husband, which is extracted here-in-below:-

"15. General rules of succession in the case of female Hindus.—(1) The property of a female Hindu dying intestate shall devolve according to the rules set out in section 16,—

(a) firstly, upon the sons and daughters (including the children of any pre-deceased son or daughter) and the husband;

33. In view of above, the suit could not have been decided without impleadment of husband of Smt. Usha Chauhan, the defendant no.3 and affording opportunity to him. This Court is of the view that the finding recorded by the first Appellate Court does not suffer from any illegality or error.

34. In regard to the 2nd point of determination, learned Appellate Court has found that while amending the suit for claiming the relief of cancellation of sale deed, the respondent no.1 was impleaded as defendant no.2. At the time of his impleadment he was minor, therefore he should have been impleaded through guardian. If he was not impleaded through guardian then court should have appointed some guardian but it was not done. Even after his attaining the age of majority during pendency of the suit he was not afforded opportunity to file the written statement and evidence, therefore the judgment and decree passed by the Trial Court against him is void.

35. The appellant before this Court, in the synopsis of this appeal, has stated that the respondent no.1 was substituted through his father as his guardian because he was minor, therefore, admittedly the respondent no.1 was minor at the time of his impleadment but he was not impleaded through guardian, which is apparent from the categorical finding recorded by the First Appellate Court which has not been assailed by the appellant, therefore by mentioning the aforesaid facts in the synopsis of this appeal the appellant has given the wrong fact before this Court and tried to mislead the court. This Court does not find any illegality or error in the findings recorded by the First Appellate Court in regard to 2nd point of determination because the guardian of a minor defendant is required to be appointed under Rule 3 of Order XXXII on an application moved on behalf of minor or plaintiff.

36. In regard to 3rd point of determination, learned First Appellate Court found that the respondent no.2 i.e. the defendant no.3/1 was substituted after death of Smt. Usha Chauhan and the substitution was allowed on 16.04.2014 holding the notice sufficient on the ground of passing of 30 days after sending of notice but after his substitution no notice was sent for filing the written statement and the case had proceeded ex-parte against him on 26.05.2014, which could not have been done.

37. In regard to the 4th point of determination, learned First Appellate Court found that the appellant had filed a suit for permanent injunction and amended the relief by adding a prayer for cancellation of sale deed and also the will deed after the death of defendant but no issue was framed in regard to the suit being time barred for the reliefs claimed, whereas the sale deed could not have been set aside without framing issue in this regard and deciding the same.

38. In regard to the 5th point of determination, the First Appellate Court has found that the Trial Court has decided the suit without framing the issues in accordance with Order-XIV, Rule-5 before the judgement and affording the opportunity to the parties, and the Trial Court had framed the issues while deciding the suit in the judgment itself. This issue has been discussed in detail by this Court above in this judgement and it has rightly and in accordance with law has been decided by the First Appellate Court.

39. The First Appellate Court has also held that the Trial Court has failed to record any finding while setting aside the sale deed as to whether it could have been set-aside or not, if the ex-parte injunction dated 13.09.2002 was not served on late Bhagwan Bux Singh before execution of sale deed on 18.09.2002 because it was served on 14.08.2003. It has further recorded that no finding has been recorded in regard to the mental condition of late Bhagwan Bux Singh, without which the suit could not have been decided.

40. In view of the aforesaid discussion and considering the over all facts and circumstances of the case, this Court is of the view that there is no illegality or error in the impugned judgement and order dated 12.08.2015 passed by the First Appellate Court in Civil Appeal No.105 of 2014; Subhang Chauhan and Others Vs. Smt. Renu Singh, which has been passed after considering the pleadings, hearing and recording findings and reasons for remand which does not suffer from any illegality or error and call for any interference by this Court. The grounds taken in this appeal are misconceived and not sustainable in the eyes of law. The appeal is misconceived and liable to be dismissed.

41. The appeal is, accordingly dismissed. No order as to costs.

42. Before parting with the case, this Court deems it appropriate, since the matter is old one, to provide that the Trial Court shall make it's earnest endeavour to decide the suit expeditiously and preferably within a period of one year in accordance with law and as observed and directed by the First Appellate Court and the observations made in this order. The parties shall appear before the Trial Court on 04th April, 2024.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J.)

(1) Heard Ms. Meera Tripathi, learned A.G.A. for the State and Mr. Anil Kumar Maurya, learned counsel for respondents no. 2 and 4 in Government Appeal No. 1000325 of 2007. Mr. G.M. Kamil, learned counsel for the appellant and Ms. Meera Tripathi, learned A.G.A. for the State have been heard in Criminal Appeal No. 1462 of 2007. Mr. Sanjay Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the revisionist and Ms. Meera Tripathi, learned A.G.A. for the State have been heard in Criminal Revision No. 398 of 2007.

(2) Respondent no. 3-Sant Ram has died in Government Appeal No.1000325 of 2007 and the appeal has abated as regards him so has Revision No.398 of 2007 in so far as it relates to him.

(3) At the very outset, it needs to be mentioned that out of the four accused, three, namely, Santram, Ramdev and Ramdas have been acquitted of the charge of murdering the deceased-Rajendra Kumar Verma and trying to destroy evidence punishable under Section 302, 34 I.P.C. and Section 201 I.P.C. whereas the fourth accused, namely, Jagdamba Prasad has been convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment.

(4) The State of U.P. has filed Government Appeal No.1000325 of 2007 against acquittal of the aforesaid three persons. Jagdamba Prasad has filed Criminal Appeal No.1462 of 2007 challenging his conviction vide impugned judgment and order dated 22.06.2007 passed by Addl. District & Sessions Judge, Ambedkar Nagar in Session Trial No.102 of 2004 arising out of Case Crime No.29 of 2004, P.S.-Haswar, District-Ambedkar Nagar holding him guilty for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentencing him rigorous life imprisonment and a fine of Rs.10,000/- and in default thereof, to undergo further three months' simple imprisonment. The informant-Jais Ram Verma who is brother of the deceased has filed Criminal Revision No.398 of 2007 for setting aside acquittal of the earlier mentioned three accused and for punishing them with which they were charged.

(5) The prosecution case in nutshell is that in the night intervening 18/19.05.2004, deceased- Rajendra Kumar Verma was taken away forcibly by the accused while he was on a charpai in the grove and, by his side, his grand-father i.e. P.W.2-Ram Lakhan aged eighty years was sleeping. He was taken to the house of Jagdamba Prasad and was done to death, thereafter the body was thrown about 200 meters away near the Chak road. P.W.2 i.e. Ram Lakhan had seen the accused taking away the deceased from the grove and P.W.3 saw them throwing the body near the Chak road and running away.

(6) The distance of the police station from the scene of crime is about 10 Kms. The incident of carrying away Rajendra Kumar Verma from the grove is said to have taken place at about 10:00-10:30 P.M. The body is said to have been recovered at about 02:00-02:30 A.M. the same night and F.I.R. (Ex.Ka12) has been lodged in the morning i.e. on 19.05.2004 at 07:30 A.M. on the written tehrir of P.W.1 i.e. Jaisram Verma.

(7) Inquest was conducted between 07:30-09:00 A.M. on 19.05.2004. Post-mortem (Ex.Ka.10) was conducted on 19.05.2004 at 01:00 P.M.

(8) As per the post-mortem report, there were fifteen ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased and cause of death was shock and hemorrhage as a result of ante-mortem injuries.

(9) The weapon used to commit the crime i.e. two lathis and two sticks which were blood-stained were recovered from the house of Jagdamba Prasad allegedly on his pointing while he was on police custody on 19.05.2004 at 06:10 P.M. The accused-

Jagdamba Prasad and Sant Ram were arrested on 19.05.2004 itself. The other accused were arrested on subsequent date.

(10) The blood stained clothes worn by the accused-Jagdamba Prasad and Santram were also recovered on 19.05.2004 itself at the same time i.e. at 06:10 P.M. The plain and blood stained soil were collected from the scene of crime on 19.05.2004. Recovery memos in this regard are Ex.Ka.7, Ex.Ka.8 and Ex.Ka.9.

(11) Chargesheet was filed against all the four accused for the aforesaid offence. The case was committed by the Magistrate to the Sessions Court and the Sessions Court framed charges against the accused persons under Section 302, 34 I.P.C. and Section 201 I.P.C. on 20.01.2005.

(12) The prosecution produced as many as eight witnesses before the trial court. P.W.1-Jaisram Verma as already stated is brother of the deceased and is the informant. P.W.2-Ram Lakhan is grandfather aged eighty years who claims to have seen the accused carrying away the deceased while he was sleeping, from the grove. P.W.3-Bisai is said to have reached the grove on hearing the shouts of P.W.1 & P.W.2 and is said to have seen the accused throwing away the body from where it was ultimately recovered. He is a neighbour of the informant. P.W.4-Yogesh Shah, P.W.6-Nandlal and P.W.7-Rajveer Singh are the three Investigating Officers of the criminal case. P.W.5-Dr. Vivek Gupta is the Autopsy Surgeon. P.W.8-Ashok Kumar Singh is the Head Constable who made the entries in police records i.e. General Diary and lodged the F.I.R.

(13) As already stated, the trial court on a consideration of evidence before it acquitted three of the accused but convicted Jagdama Prasad and sentenced him to life imprisonment. Jagdamba Prasad is on bail.

(14) The contention of Ms. Meera Tripathi, learned A.G.A. was that Jagdamba Prasad has rightly been convicted by the trial court but it has erred in acquitting the other three accused P.W.2-Ram Lakhan has proved the factum of Rajendra Kumar being carried away by all the four accused from the grove where he was sleeping along with P.W.2 about 10:00 - 10:30 P.M. on 18.05.2004. P.W.2 had seen him being carried away and taken to the house of Jagdamba Pradad. Thereafter, the body was recovered near the Chak road from the field of Ramchander at about 02:00-02:30 A.M. the same night. Accordingly, the F.I.R. was lodged in the morning at about 07:30 A.M. P.W.3 has clearly testified having seen all the four accused throwing away the body and running away. The body of the deceased as is evident from the post-mortem report bore fifteen ante-mortem injuries and the cause of death was shock and hemorrhage as a result thereof. The Autopsy Surgeon has proved the post-mortem report and the injuries as also cause of death mentioned therein. The lodging of the F.I.R. considering the fact that the incident took place in the night and the police station was about 10 Kms. away was prompt. The motive for the murder was the illicit relation between the deceased and daughter of Jagdamba Prasad as has been testified by P.W.1. Therefore, the prosecution has proved its case against the accused beyond reasonable doubt but on minor discrepancies in the testimony of witnesses and purely on conjectures and surmises, trial court has acquitted the three accused while at the same time convicting Jagdama Prasad. Therefore, the judgment of acquittal is liable to be set aside and the remaining three accused are also liable to be convicted and punished for the offence with which they have been charged.

(15) Sri Anil Kumar Maurya, learned counsel for the acquitted persons submitted that the testimony of P.W.1 to P.W.3 are unreliable in view of the inconsistencies in the same as also contradictions in their own testimonies. There are grave contradictions and inconsistencies in the prosecution case. The case has been improved from the stage of filing of F.I.R. to the recording of statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. and even thereafter before the trial court. The F.I.R. was delayed and has been lodged after deliberation and consultation so as to falsely implicate the accused with ulterior motive and on account of prior rivalry and merely because, some of the accused were relatives or neighbours of the main accused- Jagdamba Prasad. There is no recovery of the lantern or torch which may have provided visibility for P.W.2 to see the incident in the grove. P.W.2 is an eighty years old person and as per oral testimony of the witnesses, he was unable to stand for long, therefore, it is highly unlikely that in the dark night when the incident took place, he could have seen any such incident. None of the witnesses are reliable. The accused were roped in merely on suspicion. The trial court has rightly acquitted Santram, Ramdev and Ramdas and the said judgment of acquittal does not require any interference especially in view of the law with regard to appeal against acquittal.

(16) Learned counsel for convicted Jagdama Prasad, Sri Kamil submitted that trial court has committed a grave error in convicting Jagdama Prasad by making out a new case different from the case of the prosecution which is absolutely impermissible in law. The trial court has convicted Jagdama Prasad purely on conjectures and on an imaginary story which was not even the case of prosecution. When three persons have been acquitted on the same evidence, there is no way that the fourth i.e. Jagdamba Prasad could have been convicted based on the same evidence. His conviction is based on conjectures or suspicion. Nobody has seen commission of the crime in the house of Jagdama Prasad. There are no independent witnesses of recovery of the weapon allegedly used in commission of the crime nor of recovery of the alleged blood stained clothes from Jagdamba Prasad. Moreover, there were similar recovery from Santram but he has been acquitted while Jagdama Prasad has been convicted. Motive has also not been proved. There are grave inconsistencies and contradictions in the prosecution case and testimonies of the witnesses, all of which have been ignored while convicting Jagdama Prasad. There is no forensic report to establish that the blood allegedly found on the lathis and dandas recovered or the blood stained clothes recovered from the accused-Jagdamba Prasad and Santram were of the deceased. There is no evidence to prove the guilt of Jagdamba Prasad yet he has been convicted. Therefore, the judgment of conviction is liable to be set aside.

(17) Sri Sanjay Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the informant arguing in the revision for setting aside the acquittal of three other accused argued on the same lines as learned A.G.A. and for the same reasons he submitted that the acquitted persons are also liable to be convicted.

(18) As per the post-mortem report which has been proved by the Autopsy Surgeon (P.W.4), it is a case of homicide.

The question is whether the accused committed the offence of murder and destruction of evidence or not.

(19) There is no memo regarding recovery of the body on record and none has been prepared by either of the three Investigating Officers.

(20) The bloodstained and plain soil allegedly collected from the scene of crime which is the house of Jagdampa Prasad, even if they were sent for forensic examination, there is no such report to prove that the said samples matched.

(21) In fact, nobody has seen the commission of murder inside the house of Jagdamba Prasad. No blood has been found in the house of Jagdamba Prasad. Investigating Officer- P.W.4 has stated that the blood had been washed off but there is no such mention in the siteplan prepared. In fact, the siteplan does not even mention the grove where the initial crime of carrying of Rajendra Kumar while he was asleep had taken place which is a grave lapse on the part of the Investigating Officer.

(22) There is no forensic report with regard to blood stained weapon recovered from the accused-Jagdamba Prasad and Santram nor is there any such report with regard to blood stained clothes recovered from the said accused. There is also no report with regard to plain and blood stained soil allegedly collected by the Investigating Officer from the scene of crime. The siteplan has been prepared by the Investigating Officer (P.W.4) on the statement of P.W.1. In the siteplan, there is no mention of grove where the initial incident, where it is said that the deceased-Rajendra Kumar was carried away by the accused while he was sleeping on a charpai and P.W.2 was sleeping by his side, took place. This is a serious lapse on the part of the Investigating Officer.

(23) The distance of the police station from the scene of crime is 10-12 Kms. The initial incident in the grove is said to have taken place at about 10:00-10:30 P.M. on 18.05.2004. The body is said to have been recovered at about 02:00-02:30 A.M. the same night but the F.I.R. has been lodged at 07:30 A.M. in the morning. In the month of May, sun rises early. There is no explanation for this delay in lodging of the F.I.R. The unexplained delay in lodging of the F.I.R. gave room for deliberation and consultation and possible false implication may be on suspicion or for other reasons. This, of course, is apart from the fact that there are inconsistencies in the prosecution evidence with regard to the police reaching the scene of crime which will be dealt with hereinafter.

(24) P.W.1-Jaisram Verma has neither seen the first incident which occurred at about 10:00-10:30 A.M. when it is alleged that the accused carried away Rajendra Kumar from the grove towards the house of Jagdamba prasad nor has he seen commission of the crime in the house of Jagdamba Prasad nor has he seen the accused throwing away the body of the deceased near the chak road in the fields of Ramchander. His testimony is relevant only to the extent he says, on hearing the shouts of his grandfather (P.W.2) who was sleeping by the side of Rajendra Kumar (deceased) in the grove, he woke up and ran towards the grove which is situated about 200-250 meters and thereafter, he has testified that he raised an alarm whereupon other villagers woke up and they all went to the house of Jagdamba Prasad which was found to be locked and the women and children of Jagdamba Prasad family were found standing outside the house. He has stated that house of Jagdamba Prasad is about 10-15 steps from the grove. It is about 20-25 steps away from the place where the grand-father was lying on a charpai in the grove. He has stated that they reached the house of Jadgamba Prasad within two-four minutes after running from the house i.e. after running from the house to the grove and to the house of Jagdamba Prasad. Considering the distance of house of P.W.1 from the grove which is 200-250 meters, even after taking into consideration that there may be open spaces in between, considering the age of P.W.2 who is said to be eighty years at the time of commission of the crime, it is highly unlikely that the voice of P.W.2 could have reached such a distance and P.W.1 could have reached the scene of crime immediate especially as he has stated that he was asleep in his house when he heard the voice of his grand-father and on hearing such shouts he rant towards the grove.

(25) In any case, the testimony of P.W.1 is relevant only to the extent aforesaid and it does not help the prosecution's case much as he is not a witness to either of the three important incidents which took place in the said night as already referred hereinabove.

(26) As regards seeing the accused while they were running away after throwing the body P.W.1 has stated that he did not see them running away but has stated that other witnesses had seen them. He has stated that when other witnesses were shouting and telling that the accused were running away, inspite of it, he did not see them running away. P.W.1 is aged about thirty years and must have had a good eye-sight presuming that there was visibility in the night at about 02:00-02:30 A.M. In this context, we have to keep in mind that P.W.3 who claims to have seen the accused was aged about 60-61 years on the date of the incident. Apart from it, no other witness has been produced who may have seen the accused running away after throwing the body of the deceased.

(27) P.W.1 has mentioned about his suspicion on seeing the door of Jagdamba Prasad's house locked that, his brother was being kept inside. He has admitted that southern wall of Jagdamba Prasad's house did not have any roof etc yet he did not try to find out from that side as to whether his brother was being kept inside or not. He has also not spoken about hearing any voice from inside the house. This is important as according to post-mortem report there were about fifteen ante-mortem injuries and if such injuries have been inflicted upon the deceased inside the house of Jagdamba Prasad and P.W.1 along with other witnesses had reached the house of Jagdamba Prasad within two or four minutes as claimed, then, obviously, they would have noticed something amiss.

(28) He has also not explained as to why in these circumstances, the police was not informed immediately and why the F.I.R. was lodged in the morning at 07:30 A.M. though as stated earlier, in the month of May, dawn would break early. P.W.1 has stated that the Daroga reached the village at 08:00 A.M. whereas P.W.2 says that Circle Officer reached the scene of crime in the night itself.

(29) In this context, it is relevant to mention that as per P.W.2, the police had reached the scene of crime in the night itself. He has clearly stated in his cross-examination that Circle Officer had reached the scene of crime in the night when his lantern was still lit. He has also stated that Daroga had reached 02:30 A.M. in the night of the incident. P.W.3 has also testified that Daroga had reached the scene of crime at 02:30-03:00 A.M. the same night yet the F.I.R. has been lodged at 07:30 A.M. in the morning. In this context, we may also consider the statement of P.W.8-the Head Constable who had made the requisite entries in the police records and lodged the F.I.R. in the morning that the Chowkidar-Prabhu Dayal of the village had orally intimated the police in the night itself but Inspector was out in the area. This creates a doubt on the prosecution case especially in view of the delay in lodging of the F.I.R. as already discussed, about which no explanation has been offered by the informant who submitted the written tehrir on which the F.I.R. was lodged.

(30) P.W.1 has also not given any acceptable explanation as to why if the incidents happened in such a short time and he reached the house of Jagdamba Prasad within 2-4 minutes of hearing the shouts of his grandfather from the grove and he suspected that his brother was being held inside the house of Jagdamba and especially as he was accompanied by several other villagers 10 to 25 in numbers, no attempt was made in such an emergent situation to break the lock and enter the house or for that matter enter it from southern wall which did not have any roof, especially when, according to him, there was a motive on the part of Jadgamba Prasad on account of the alleged illicit relationship of the deceased with his daughter. No such attempt was made. Instead, he has stated that he along with the villagers tried to find out the whereabouts of his brother.

(31) There is no explanation as to why in these circumstances, he did not immediately reach to police station especially as he has stated that villagers owned motorcycle and jeep and one of them i.e. Raghunath also had a telephone and he has accepted the fact that in summers dawn breaks at about 04:00 A.M. Instead, he has stated that he went to the police station on a bicycle in the morning.

(32) P.W.1 has accepted the fact that he has not mentioned about the illicit relation between the deceased and daughter of Jagdamba in his written tehrir. He has accepted the fact that the he had not mentioned in the written tehrir / F.I.R. that the accused had carried his brother-Rajendra Kumar to the house of Jagdamba Prasad nor that this incident had been seen by his grandfather in torch light.

(33) In cross-examination, he has also stated that the distance between the house of Jagdamba where the crime of murder is said to have been committed and the place from where the body has been recovered is 200 meters. Now, considering the sequence of events mentioned hereinabove, if the villagers and P.W.1 and P.W.3 had reached the grove within two to four minutes as claimed by P.W.1 and four to six minutes as claimed by P.W.3 and they were searching for Rajendra Kumar in various groups then one fails to understand as to when the crime was committed and when the accused had the time to throw the body 200 meters away from the scene of commission of crime and why they were not seen by anybody taking the body out from the house of Jagdamba Prasad especially as it has come in the testimony of P.W.1 and P.W.3 that when they found the house of Jagdamba Prasad locked they immediately went towards the fields where ultimately the body of the deceased was recovered. This creates a doubt on the entire prosecution case. In cross-examination, he has clearly stated that nobody had seen the accused carrying the body of the deceased and throwing it. When the witnesses shouted that the accused were running away even then he could not see where the accused were and what was the distance from where he was standing. As already stated, he is not a witness to the factum of body being carried away from the grove to Jagdamba Prasad's house nor of commission of crime at Jagdamba Prasad's house nor has he witnessed the accused throwing the body and running away near the Char road. His testimony is therefore of no significance for proving the prosecution case.

(34) P.W.2-Ram Lakhan is the grandfather who was sleeping by the side of Rajendra Kumar in the grove. He has stated that they were sleeping at the center of the grove. The measurement of the grove has been mentioned by him as sixteen lathas from north to south. He has also stated that the grove was a kalmi bag and the height of the mango trees was about 10 hands. The branches were about three hands above the ground. The initial incident happened at about 10:30 P.M., according to P.W.2. In this situation with the height of trees and the branches being only three hands above the ground considering that, he is an eighty years old person whose visibility would not be very good, he claims to have seen the accused carrying away Rajendra Kumar in the night.

(35) P.W.3 who is a neighbour of P.W.2 has clearly stated that P.W.2 did not have such strength so as to chase the accused-Jadgamba. This is inconsistent with the testimony of P.W.2 that he ran a few paces after the accused although he i.e. P.W.2 has himself stated that he cannot keep standing for long which also makes his testimony suspect. Moreover, P.W.3 has stated that when he reached the grove on hearing the shouts of P.W.1, he found P.W.2- Ram Lakhan standing near the charpai in the grove whereas P.W.2 has stated that he ran a few paces towards the house of Jagdamba and was only a few paces away from it which is inconsistent especially as the said charpai was at the centre of the grove which as stated by P.W.2 measured sixteen lathas from north to south. It has come in the testimony that it was a dark night.

(36) P.W.2 though initially he has stated that he was sitting on a charpai at a short distance from Rajendra Kumar when the latter shouted but, in his cross-examination, he has stated that he was feeling sleepy and was about to sleep and it is incorrect to say that he was sitting at the time of the incident, but immediately thereafter, he has stated that he has rightly testified in examination-in-chief that when his grandson was being carried away he was sitting. He has also stated that whatever has been stated by him today in the cross-examination i.e. 24.04.2006 was also correct, that is, he was sleeping and was also sitting. He has, however, stated that he did not see as to who was holding his grandson by the leg and who was holding his hands while carrying him away. None of them were carrying wooden sticks. Considering the age of this witness, the time of the offence and the testimony of P.W.3 and the contradiction in his own statement as to whether he was awake or sleep, it creates a reasonable doubt as to whether, in fact, he saw his grandson being carried away.

(37) In this context, he has spoken about a lantern being lit in the grove and also that he saw the said incident in torch light. However, there is no recovery of any torch.

(38) P.W.2 has further stated that he had seen the accused taking his grandson in the house of Jagdamba Prsad and also that they had not masked their faces. The accused belonged to the same village and in fact, they live nearby and if they were committing the crime in the dead of night in the grove when the grand-father was awake or was in such a position where he could be awakened, it is unlikely that they would not mask their faces and even if they did not, it is highly unlikely that they would allow the crime to be seen by the grandfather and they would in his presence while he was witnessing the incident take the body to the house of Jagdamba Prasad to commit the crime especially as house of Jadgamba Prasad is situated barely two lathas from the place where Rajendra Kumar (deceased) and P.W.2 were on the charpai in the grove.

(39) Moreover, if P.W.2 had seen them taking Rajendra Kumar inside the house of Jagdamba Prasad from the northern door then there was all the more reason for the villagers to have broke open the lock on the house of Jagdamba Prasad to enter it, so as to prevent any crime being committed or for that matter to immediately raise an alarm and awaken other villagers especially the Pradhan or to have informed the police immediately as at least one of the villagers i.e. Raghunath had a telephone and there were others who owned motorcycles and one of them Ramu Yadav even owned a jeep as has come in the testimony of P.W.1 himself. None of this was done and the villagers including the witnesses kept looking for Rajendra Kumar in and around the village till his body was recovered at 02:00-02:30 A.M. The crime, in fact, was committed during three to four hours of the time when the villagers and the witnesses came to know about the incident and during which they were looking for Rajendra Kumar. This appears to be highly unlikely.

(40) P.W.2 has stated that it took about half an hour for the villagers to reach the grove till then he and P.W.1 did not have the courage to approach the house of Jagdamba Prasad. Now, this is not consistent with the testimony of P.W.1 who says that they reached the house of Jagdamba Prasad after first going to the grove and talking to P.W.2 within two to three minutes and P.W.3 has stated that this happened within four to six minutes. P.W. 2 has stated that about 25 villagers had reached the scene. If it was so then they could have easily broken the lock of house of Jadgamba Prasad considering the sequence of events narrated by the witnesses. But this was not done. He has spoken about a suspicion that Rajendra must have been detained inside the house and murdered there but, this is a mere suspicion as nobody has seen this happening. Most important, in cross-examination, he has stated at one place that his grandson could not scream, therefore, there is no question of any scream being heard and they were strongly of the belief that his grandson was being held up in the house. Now, if the grandson did not scream then how P.W.2 has stated initially that he heard the shout of his grandson inside the grove, woke up and even ran a few paces behind the accused while they were carrying him away. This again is a contradiction in the testimony of P.W.2 himself. Suspicion howsoever strong cannot take the place of evidence.

(41) P.W.2 has stated that though the villagers went to the house of Jadgamba but they did not go to the house of any other accused. Now, this is inconsistent with the testimony of P.W.1.

(42) P.W.2 has stated that when all of them were looking for Rajendra they had not seen the accused-Jagdamba nor had anybody told him of having seen him. This is not consistent with the testimony of P.W.3 who has stated that the accused were running away after throwing the body and P.W.1 has stated that other witnesses had seen this though he had not.

(43) In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion of P.W.2 is not reliable. His testimony does not inspire confidence in view of the inconsistencies and contradictions and especially in view of his age.

(44) At this stage, we take note of the fact that testimony of P.W.2 himself, who in fact was a witness to the alleged incident of Rajendra being carried away by the accused, was recorded on 04.06.2004. Being an eighty year old person, there is no evidence to the effect that he was not available at his house from the time of commission of crime till recording of his statement, as such, the statement of the Investigating Officer P.W.4 that he was not available at his house is also not acceptable. There is no explanation as to why the statement of this important witness has been recorded with such delay. This also creates a doubt on the prosecution case as it leaves scope for deliberation, consultation and false implication may be on suspicion or because of the motive being alleged.

(45) Prosecution case is not believable in view of unnatural conduct of the witnesses and other villagers in not entering the house of Jadgamba Prasad to find out whether Rajendra was being kept there or not. It appears that crime was detected only later and thereafter a story has been cooked up and that is why the F.I.R. has been lodged belatedly and the time lapse has been used to deliberate, consult and lodge the F.I.R. may be on suspicion or on account of the alleged motive of illicit relationship between the deceased and daughter of Jadgamba Prasad.

(46) P.W.3 is a neighbour of P.W.1 and P.W.2. He is a witness of body of the deceased being found and claims to have seen the accused running away after throwing it. This aspect has been dealt with earlier. There is no other witness who has spoken about having seen the accused throwing away the deceased's body and running away. P.W.1 who was present with P.W.3 did not see it. P.W.3 has stated that house of P.W.1 is near his house but the grove is far away. He has then stated that he reached the grove on hearing the shouts of P.W.1 and not P.W.2 which is inconsistent with the testimony of P.W.1 but, even if this is ignored, the fact is that an eighty year person (P.W.2) raised an alarm in the grove situated about 200-250 meters which was heard by P.W.1 and P.W.3, who claim to have reached the grove and the house of Jadgamba Prasad within two-four or four-six minutes which in the circumstances considering that it was a night appears to be unbelievable.

(47) He has stated in his cross-examination that they i.e. the witnesses and the villagers came to know that body of Rajendra has been taken out of the house of Jagdhamba whereupon P.W.1 stated that it was useless to stand outside his house. Accordingly, they went towards the field of Ramchander using the Kharanja. They did not go anywhere else to look for Rajendra. Now, this testimony of P.W.3 is not reliable. If the time lapse between the shouts of P.W.2 and the villagers and P.W.1 and P.W.3 reaching the house of Jagdamba Prasad is only four to six minutes then how and under what circumstance they came to know that the body had already been taken out of the house has not been proved. P.W.2, on the other hand, says that though P.W.1 reached there immediately, the villagers reached the grove after half an hour. There is no explanation for these inconsistencies in the prosecution case.

(48) The testimony of P.W.3 is also intriguing that they straightaway went from the house of Jadgamba to the field of Ramchander where ultimately the body was found and did not look anywhere else whereas the testimony of P.W.1 is something else. He has also supported the testimony of P.W.2 that they did not go to the house of other accused -Santram etc. but only went to the house of Jadgamba whereas P.W.1 has testified otherwise. It is also intriguing as to why they did not go to the house of other accused if P.W.2 had seen all the accused carrying away Rajendra from the grove.

(49) P.W.3 has stated that they were about eight to ten people looking for Rajendra and then they saw the accused running away after throwing the body of Rajendra in the field of Ramchander and that they had seen this incident from a distance of one bigha which is not far off, yet, even after an attempt to chase them, they could not catch them. As already stated, P.W.1 has denied seeing the accused at this time. There is no other witness who may have testified on the same lines. In fact, P.W.2 has also stated that nobody had told him about having seen the accused running away.

(50) Most important, the testimony of P.W.3 was recorded by the Investigating Officer on 04.06.2006 i.e. about fifteen days after the incident. In cross-examination, P.W.3 has stated that during this period, he was at his house and had not gone anywhere to attend any marriage etc. whereas the Investigating Officer has stated that he did not find P.W.3 at his house which is not acceptable in view of the testimony of P.W.3 himself. Thus, there is no explanation for delay in recording of statement of P.W.3 and it gives reasonable basis for opining that his statement was recorded subsequently after due deliberation and consultation and that he is a tutored witness, not at all reliable.

(51) P.W.3 has feigned ignorance as to why his statement about having seen the accused while running away has not been recorded by the Investigating Officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C.

(52) Most important, P.W.3 has also spoken/ testified about the Daroga reaching the scene of crime at 02:30-03:00 A.M. in the night when the crime was committed but the F.I.R. has been lodged at 07:30 A.M. in the morning. He has accepted the fact that his testimony was recorded by the Daroga 10-15 days after the incident.

(53) Prosecution has failed to prove that murder was committed inside the house of Jagdamba Prasad. Place of occurrence has not been proved. As already stated, there is no independent witness of recovery of the weapon allegedly used in commission of the crime nor of the blood stained clothes worn by the accused. There is no forensic report to link the blood found on the aforesaid with that of the deceased. There is no forensic report regarding blood soaked soil and plain soil collected from the alleged scene of crime having matched. Ocular evidence is unreliable. Rajendra Kumar is said to have been murdered in the house of Jagdamba Prasad but there is no evidence in this regard. P.W.2 is said to have seen the accused carrying away Rajendra Kumar while he was alive from the grove towards the house of Jagdamba Prasad but in view of the discussion made hereinabove his testimony is not reliable. P.W.1 has not seen any of the three incidents which constitute the crime. P.W.3 claims to have seen the accused throwing away the body of the deceased and running away but P.W.1 who was also present on the spot and is younger in age did not see the said incident. There is no other witness of this fact though several persons are said to have been present at that time.

(54) Moreover, at this stage, we may refer to the inquest report which was prepared in the morning and on a reading of it, we find that though there is no such requirement in law to mention the incidents which took place while committing the crime, the witnesses to the inquest, none of whom are witness of any of the incidents constituting the crime have opined that Jagdamba Prasad along with other accused had murdered the deceased inside his house at about 10:30 P.M. which is surprising as they could not have any such information.

(55) Considering the facts and evidence before us though it is a case of homicide, we are of the opinion that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the crime of murder was committed by the four accused. The trial court has rightly acquitted Santram, Ramdev and Ramdas and we see no infirmity in the judgment of the trial court acquitting these persons. The view taken by the trial court is a possible view, therefore, in view of decision of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of 'State of Karnataka vs. Gopalkrishna' (2005) 9 SCC 291; 'Sudershan Kumar vs. State of Himachal' (2014) 15 SCC 666 & 'Dilawar Singh vs. State of Haryana' (2015) 1 SCC 737, we see no reason to interfere with the judgment of acquittal.

(56) So far as Criminal Revision No.398 of 2007, preferred by the first informant to assail acquittal of respondents, namely, Santram, Ramdev and Ramdas is concerned, we find it relevant to refer Section 401(3) of Cr.P.C., which deals with the power of High Court while dealing with criminal revision which challenges the acquittal of respondents and seeks conviction thereof. For ready reference it is quoted hereinbelow:-

"401. High Court's powers of revision.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to authorise a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction."

(57) In this regard Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of 'Bindeshwari

Prasad Singh v. State of Bihar', (2002) 6 SCC 650 in para no.12 has held as under :-

"12. We have carefully considered the material on record and we are satisfied that the High Court was not justified in reappreciating the evidence on record and coming to a different conclusion in a revision preferred by the informant under Section 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. Sub-section (3) of Section 401 in terms provides that nothing in Section 401 shall be deemed to authorize a High Court to convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction. The aforesaid sub-section, which places a limitation on the powers of the revisional court, prohibiting it from converting a finding of acquittal into one of conviction, is itself indicative of the nature and extent of the revisional power conferred by Section 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. If the High Court could not convert a finding of acquittal into one of conviction directly, it could not do so indirectly by the method of ordering a retrial. It is well settled by a catena of decisions of this Court that the High Court will ordinarily not interfere in revision with an order of acquittal except in exceptional cases where the interest of public justice requires interference for the correction of a manifest illegality or the prevention of gross miscarriage of justice. The High Court will not be justified in interfering with an order of acquittal merely because the trial court has taken a wrong view of the law or has erred in appreciation of evidence. It is neither possible nor advisable to make an exhaustive list of circumstances in which exercise of revisional jurisdiction may be justified, but decisions of this Court have laid down the parameters of exercise of revisional jurisdiction by the High Court under Section 401 of the Code of Criminal Procedure in an appeal against acquittal by a private party. (See D. Stephens v. Nosibolla [1951 SCC 184 : AIR 1951 SC 196 : 1951 Cri LJ 510] , K. Chinnaswamy Reddy v. State of A.P. [AIR 1962 SC 1788 : (1963) 1 Cri LJ 8] , Akalu Ahir v. Ramdeo Ram [(1973) 2 SCC 583 : 1973 SCC (Cri) 903] , Pakalapati Narayana Gajapathi Raju v. Bonapalli Peda Appadu [(1975) 4 SCC 477 : 1975 SCC (Cri) 543 : AIR 1975 SC 1854] and Mahendra Pratap Singh v. Sarju Singh [AIR 1968 SC 707 : 1968 Cri LJ 665] .)"

(58) Having regard to the provision contained in Section 401(3) Cr.P.C. and law laid down by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in Bindeshwari Prasad Singh (supra) coupled with the fact that in the preceding paragraphs we have held that the finding of acquittal of respondents by means of impugned judgment and order dated 22.06.2007 is based on proper appreciation of evidence which does not suffer from any infirmity or illegality. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the criminal revision also lacks merits, which deserves to be dismissed.

(59) As regards conviction of Jagdamba Prasad, on a reading of judgment of the trial court we find that a cryptic discussion is there in this regard towards the end. After having discarded every evidence, the trial court for the reasons best known to it has all of a sudden opined that on account of prior illicit relation between the deceased and the daughter of Jagdamba Prasad, as he was sleeping in the grove situated nearby the house of Jagdamba Prasad, the deceased-Rajendra entered the house of Jagdamba Prasad to meet his daughter but his entry and presence was detected and Jagdamba Prasad caught him.

Being infuriated, Jadgamba Prasad struck Rajendra Kumar with lathis and wooden sticks and injured him. Jagdamba Prasad throttled the deceased with the use of wooden stick resulting in his death sometime in the night and threw the body in the field of Ramchander. It has then opined that it is a case of circumstantial evidence. We can only say that the trial court has imagined a story which was not even suggested by the prosecution much less proved. This was never the case of the prosecution. Not much discussion is required to demonstrate the apparent error committed by the trial court while convicting Jagdamba Prasad. His conviction is based purely on conjecture and surmises which cannot take the place of evidence. Such conjectural findings cannot be the basis for his conviction.

(60) We are thus of the opinion that conviction of Jagdamba Prasad is perverse and is liable to be set aside. The judgment of the trial court so far as it convicts appellant-Jagdamba Prasad and sentences him to life imprisonment and imposes other sentence is liable to be set aside. It is accordingly set aside. The remaining part of the judgment, that is, so far as it acquits the other accused, is sustained.

(61) Jagdamba Prasad-the appellant is also acquitted of the charge framed against him. The appellant- Jagdamba Prasad is on bail. Bail bonds submitted earlier are cancelled and sureties are discharged. The appellant-Jagdamba Prasad is directed to file personal bond and two sureties in the like amount to the satisfaction of the Court concerned in compliance of Section 437-A of the Code of Criminal Procedure within six weeks.

(62) In view of the above discussion, the appeal of the State bearing Government Appeal No.1000325 of 2007 is dismissed. The appeal of the appellant-Jagdamba Prasad bearing Criminal Appeal No.1462 of 2007 is allowed. The revision of the informant bearing Criminal Revision No.398 of 2007 is dismissed.

(63) Let lower court record along with a copy of this judgment be sent to learned trial court for its information and necessary compliance.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 47 of 2024

Kamalveer Singh ...Petitioner
Versus
Adhikshak Janpad Karagar, Moradabad & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Abhishek Kumar Mishra, Sri Chandrakesh Mishra, Sri Daya Shankar Mishra (Sr. Advocate)

Counsel for the Respondents:
A.S.G.I., G.A.

Civil Law -National Security Act, 1980 – Sections 3(2), 3(4), 10 & 11(4) – Constitution of India,1950 – Articles 14, 21, 22(3)(b) & 300A – Habeas Corpus – Preventive Detention – Public Order vs. Law and Order – Staleness of Grounds – Denial of Legal Assistance – Delay in Representation Disposal detention under Section 3(2) of the National Security Act, 1980 (NSA), vide order dated 03.12.2023, confirmed on 03.01.2024, stemming from his alleged conspiratorial role in Case Crime No. 598 of 2023 (Sections 302, 307, 120B IPC), Case Crime No. 818 of 2023 (Section 7/25 Arms Act), and Case Crime No. 861 of 2023 (Section 3(1) U.P. Gangsters Act). The detention was based on a murder incident on 10.08.2023, which the St. claimed disturbed public order. The petitioner argued: (i) the incident was a law and order issue, not public order; (ii) no likelihood of bail existed, as his bail application in the IPC case was rejected and none were pending in other cases; (iii) he was denied legal assistance before the Advisory Board while the St. had legal aid; (iv) the detention was based on a stale incident (four-month gap); and (v) the U.O.I. delayed disposing his representation. Held: The court, relying on Icchu Devi Choraria Vs U.O.I. (AIR 1980 SC 1983), Mohinuddin Vs District Magistrate, Beed (AIR 1987 SC 1977), and other precedents, held that habeas corpus petitions require minimal pleading, and the burden lies on the St. to justify detention. The grounds of detention were vague, failing to establish a public order disturbance as per Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia Vs St. of Bihar (AIR 1966 SC 740) and Mrs. T. Devaki Vs Govt. of Tamil Nadu ((1990) 2 SCC 456). No likelihood of bail existed (Kamarunnissa Vs U.O.I. ((1991) 1 SCC 128)), as the petitioner's bail was rejected, and no applications were pending under the Arms or Gangsters Acts. Denial of legal assistance, despite the St.'s use of law officers, violated Article 14 and A.K. Roy Vs U.O.I. ((1982) 1 SCC 271). The four-month gap between the incident and detention order rendered the grounds stale (Alijan Mian Vs District Magistrate, Dhanbad ((1983) 4 SCC 301)). The Union's 10-day delay in disposing the representation (Rajammal Vs St. of Tamil Nadu ((1999) 1 SCC 417)) further vitiated the detention. The court quashed the detention order, allowing the petition and ordering the petitioner's release unless required in other cases.

The petitioner, Kamalveer Singh, sought a writ of habeas corpus challenging his preventive

Hon'ble Ram Manohar Narayan Mishra, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed for the release of the petitioner – Kamalveer Singh, by issuing a writ of habeas corpus.

2. Brief background of the case is that on 10.8.2023 an incident took place whereby one Anuj Chaudhary was killed and a First Information Report was lodged on the same day which gave rise to Case Crime No. 598 of 2023 registered under Sections 302 and 307 IPC. There were four named accused in the case being Amit Kumar, Pushpendra, Aniket and Prabhakar and it was also alleged that there were some other persons who were not known to the First Informant. The First Information Report was got lodged by one Sandeep Singh.

3. Thereafter on 01.11.2023 on the basis of an added Section, namely, section 120B IPC, the petitioner was also implicated in the Case Crime No.598 of 2023 in a conspiratorial role. Further on 07.11.2023 in Case Crime No.818 of 2023, under Section 7/25 of the Arms Act, the petitioner was named in the crime. Still further, on 28.11.2023, the petitioner was implicated in Case Crime No.861 of 2023, under Section 3(1) of the U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986. He was thereafter in jail.

4. Thereafter, on a report / proposal of the Police dated 30.11.2023, an order under Section 3(2) of the National Security Act, 1980, was passed wherein an order of detention was passed on 3.12.2023 by the District Magistrate for preventive detention of the petitioner.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has drawn the attention of the Court to the fact that the petitioner was not named in the First Information Report and only when there was a communication of the brother-in-law of the deceased, namely, Neeraj Khatri the name of the petitioner had surfaced. Thereafter in pursuance of the provisions under Section 3(4) of the National Security Act, 1980, on 12.12.2023 the order of approval was passed by the State Government. The order of preventive detention dated 3.12.2023 was also accompanied by the grounds of detention which were of the same date and they gave reasons on the basis of which detention had been made. In the order dated 3.12.2023 it was also provided that the petitioner could represent before the Advisory Board as is provided under Section 10 of the National Security Act, 1980. Simultaneously the petitioner was also given the opportunity to represent to the Union of India under Section 3(4) of the National Security Act. The petitioner thereafter on the order dated 3.12.2023 being approved under Section 3(4) of the National Security Act, 1980, represented to the Advisory Board by a representation dated 13.12.2023 and also sent his representation to the Union of India through the State Government on the very same date.

6. Thereafter on 16.12.2023 an alleged hearing was undergone and on 3.1.2024 the order of the State Government was passed by which the petitioner's detention order dated 3.12.2023 was confirmed in view of the report of the Advisory Board. The order dated 3.1.2024 provided the preventive detention of the detenue for a period of 3 months, tentatively, from the date of detention.

7. The representation which was sent to the Union of India on 13.12.2023 was received by the Union of India on 22.12.2023 and, thereafter, it was rejected on 23.12.2023 and the communication of the rejection order was sent to the petitioner on 26.12.2023.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that the mere submission of the petitioner that the preventive detention was illegal was sufficient enough for the petitioner to approach this Court and that the State ought to have justified its stand in passing orders. It was sufficient for him to state that the detention order dated 3.12.2023 which was confirmed by the order dated 3.1.2024 was illegally passed and be set aside.

9. In this regard learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the decisions of the Supreme Court in Icchu Devi Choraria vs. Union of India reported in AIR 1980 SC 1983 and Mohinuddin @ Moin Master vs. District Magistrate, Beed and others reported in AIR 1987 SC 1977.

10. In both the decisions learned counsel for the petitioner specifically relied upon paragraph no. 4. The paragraph no. 4 of Icchu Devi Choraria vs. Union of India reported in AIR 1980 SC 1983 is being reproduced here as under:-

"4. It is also necessary to point out that in case of an application for a writ of habeas corpus, the practice evolved by this Court is not to follow strict rules of pleading nor place undue emphasis on the question as to on whom the burden of proof lies. Even a postcard written by a detenu from jail has been sufficient to activise this Court into examining the legality of detention. This Court has consistently shown great anxiety for personal liberty and refused to throw out a petition merely on the ground that it does not disclose a prima facie case invalidating the order of detention. Whenever a petition for a writ of habeas corpus has come up before this Court, it has almost invariably issued a rule calling upon the detaining authority to justify the detention. This Court has on many occasions pointed out that when a rule is issued, it is incumbent on the detaining authority to satisfy the court that the detention of the petitioner is legal and in conformity with the mandatory provisions of the law authorising such detention: Vide Naranjan Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh; Sheikh Hanif, Gudma Majhi & Kamal Saha v. State of West Bengal, and Dulal Roy v. The District Magistrate, Burdwan & Ors. It has also been insisted by this Court that, in answer to this rule, the detaining authority must place all the relevant facts before the court which would show that the detention is in accordance with the provisions of the Act. It would be no argument on the part of the detaining authority to say that a particular ground is not taken in the petition. Vide Nazamuddin v. The State of West Bengal. Once the rule is issued it is the bounden duty of the Court to satisfy itself that all the safeguards provided by the law have been scrupulously observed and the citizen is not deprived of his personal liberty otherwise than in accordance with law. Vide Mohd. Alam v. State of West Bengal and Khudiram Das v. State of West Bengal & Ors.

11. Similarly the paragraph no. 4 of Mohinuddin @ Moin Master vs. District

Magistrate, Beed and others reported in AIR 1987 SC 1977 is being reproduced here as under:-

4. It was an improper exercise of power on the part of the High Court in disallowing the writ petition on the ground of imperfect pleadings. Normally, writ petitions are decided on the basis of affidavits and the petitioner cannot be permitted to raise grounds not taken in the petition at the hearing. The same rule cannot be applied to a petition for grant of a writ of habeas corpus. It is enough for the detenu to say that he is under wrongful detention, and the burden lies on the detaining authority to satisfy the Court that the detention is not illegal or wrongful and that the petitioner is not entitled to the relief claimed. This Court on more occasions than one has dealt with the question and it is now well-settled that it is incumbent on the State to satisfy the Court that the detention of the petitioner/detenu was legal and in conformity not only with the mandatory provisions of the Act but also strictly in accord with the constitutional safeguards embodied in Art. 22(5). In return to a rule nisi issued by this Court or the High Court in a habeas corpus petition, the proper person to file the same is the District Magistrate who had passed the impugned order of detention and he must explain his subjective satisfaction and the grounds therefore; and if for some good reason the District Magistrate is not available, the affidavit must be sworn by some responsible officer like the Secretary or the Deputy Secretary to the Government in the Home Department who personally dealt with or processed the case in the Secretariat or submitted it to the Minister or other Officer duly authorised under the Rules of Business framed by the Governor under Art. 166 of the Constitution to pass orders on behalf of the Government in such matters: Niranjan Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh, [1973] 1 SCR 691; Habibullah Khan v. State of West Bengal, [1974] 4 SCC 275; Jagdish Prasad v. State of Bihar & Anr., [1974] 4 SCC 455 and Mohd. Alam v. State of West Bengal, [1974] 4 SCC 463. "

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner has however argued on the merits of the case and has submitted that the provisions of National Security Act had been illegally invoked and that the petitioner was thus under the illegal detention.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that:-

(i) The Central Government or the State Government could have detained the petitioner for the maintenance of public order and he has submitted that there was a difference between Public Order and a problem of law and order. Learned counsel for the petitioner has explained the difference between a law and order problem and the difficulty in maintaining public order and has submitted that, if there was a disturbance to public order, then the tempo of life of the community as a whole was disturbed. He has submitted that every assault in a public place like a public road which culminates in the death of any particular victim is definitely likely to cause horror and create panic and terror to those who are spectators, but it does not mean that all such incident necessarily cause disturbance or dislocation of the community life of the localities in which they are committed to such an extent that the State has to work towards maintenance of public order. He further submits that an act which is so grave or intense which would jeopardize the maintenance of public order only then would the State invoke the provisions of the National Security Act, 1980 and would prevent a person from acting in a manner which would be prejudicial to maintenance of public order. In the instant case he has submitted that Anuj Chaudhary, as per the allegations made in the FIR and as per the letter written by his brother-in-law was having some money transactions between the parties and because of that the murder had taken place.

Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore relying upon 1985 ALJ 1222 (Sheshdhar Misra v. Superintendent, Central Jail, Naini and others); 1966 1 SCR 709 (Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar); 1970 1 SCC 98 (Arun Ghosh v. State of West Bengal); 2023 LiveLaw (SC) (Yusuf Malik vs. Union of India & Ors.); 2023 0 Supreme (SC) 825 (Ameena Begum vs. The State of Telangana and others); 1972 2 SC 2686 (Dipak Bose v. State of West Bengal) and (1990) 2 SCC 456 (Mrs. T. Devaki vs. Government Of Tamil Nadu and Ors.) has submitted that just because of any disorderly behaviour of a person in the public or just because of the commission of a certain criminal offence which would affect the law and order, lead a Government to take such actions which would result in the preventive detention of any individual, who according to the Government was indulging in acts which were prejudicial to maintenance of public order. He submits that not all law and order problems would affect the maintenance of public order.

Learned counsel for the petitioner has since heavily relied upon paragraph No. 18 of the Judgment in Mrs. T. Devaki vs Government Of Tamil Nadu And Ors (supra) the same is being reproduced as under:-

"18. The question which falls for consideration is whether single incident of murderous assault by the detenu and his associates on the Minister at the Seminar held at Dry Chilly Merchants Association Kalai Arangam Hall was prejudicial to the maintenance of public order. Any disorderly behaviour of a person in the public or commission of a criminal offence is bound to some extent affect the peace prevailing in the locality and it may also affect law and order problem but the same need not affect maintenance of public order. There is basic difference between law and order and public order, this aspect has been considered by this Court in a number of decisions, see: Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia v. State of Bihar (1966) 1 SCR 709: (AIR 1966 SC 740); Pushkar Mukherjee v. State of West Bengal (1969) 2 SCR 635 : (AIR 1970 SC 852) and Shymal Chakraborty v. Commr. of Police Calcutta, (1970) 1 SCR 762: (AIR 1970 SC 269). In these cases it was emphasised that an act disturbing public order is directed against individuals which does not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public peace and tranquility. It is the degree of disturbance and its effect upon the life of the community in the locality which determines the nature and character of breach of public order. In Arun Ghosh v. State of West Bengal (1970) 3 SCR 288 : (AIR 1970 SC 1228), the Court held that the question whether a man has only committed a breach of law and order, or has acted in a manner likely to cause disturbance of the public order, is a question of degree and the extent of the reach of the act upon the society. This view was reiterated in Nagendra Nath Mondal v. State of West Bengal (1972) 1 SCC 498 : (AIR 1972 SC 665); Sudhir Kumar Saha v. Commr. of Police, Calcutta (1970) 3 SCR

360 : (AIR 1970 SC 814); S. K. Kadar v. State of West Bengal (1972) 3 SCC 816 : AIR 1972 SC 1647; Kanu Biswas v. State of West Bengal (1972) 3 SCC 831 : (AIR 1972 SC 1656); Kishori Mohan v. State of West Bengal (1972) 3 SCC 845 : (AIR 1972 SC 1749) and Amiya Kumar Karmakar v. State of West Bengal (1972) 2 SCC 672 (AIR 1972 SC 2259)."

Learned counsel for the petitioner has also relied upon paragraphs no. 54 and 55 of the judgment in the case of Dr. Ram Manohar Lohiya Vs. State of Bihar reported in AIR 1966 SC 740 and the same are being reproduced as under:-

"54..... Public order if disturbed, must lead to public disorder. Every breach of the peace does not lead to public disorder. When two drunkards quarrel and fight there is disorder but not public disorder. They can be dealt with under the powers to maintain law and order but cannot be detained on the ground that they were disturbing public order. Suppose that the two fighters were of rival communities and one of them tried to raise communal passions. The problem is still one of law and order but it raises the apprehension of public disorder. Other examples can be imagined. The contravention of law always affects order but before it can be said to affect public order, it must affect the community or the public at large. A mere disturbance of law and order leading to disorder is thus not necessarily sufficient for action under the Defence of India Act but disturbances which subvert the public order are.

55. It will thus appear that just as 'public order' in the rulings of this Court (earlier cited) was said to comprehend disorders of less gravity than those affecting 'security of State', 'law and order' also comprehends disorders of less gravity than those affecting 'public order'. One has to imagine three concentric circles. Law and Order represents the largest circle within which is the next circle representing public order and the smallest circle represents security of State. It is then easy to see that an act may affect law and order but not public order just as an act may affect public order but not security of the State. (Emphasis supplied)"

Learned counsel for the petitioner has, therefore, submitted that simply by saying that the murder of Anuj Chaudhary had caused disturbance of law and order and, therefore, public order was prejudiced was not the correct stand of the State Government. A comprehensive examination of the event and all the chain reactions that event had would have to be looked into.

(ii) Learned counsel for the petitioner has thereafter submitted that action under the National Security Act could have been taken only if there was a possibility of the petitioner being released on bail. In this regard learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the decisions of the Supreme Court in Kamarunnissa vs. Union of India & Anr. : (1991) 1 SCC 128; Baby Devassy Chully @ Bobby vs. Union of India & Ors. : (2013) 4 SCC 531 and on the decisions this Court in Abhayraj Gupta vs. Superintendent, Central Jail, Bareilly : 2022 (1) ADJ 451.

Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the averments made in the writ petition and has stated that it was very categorically stated in paragraph No. 28 of the writ petition that the petitioner's bail in Case Crime No. 598 of 2023, which was registered under Sections 302, 307 and 120B IPC was rejected and that there was yet no bail application moved in the Arms Act and in the Gangsters Act. These allegations, in the counter affidavit have not been successfully rebutted.

Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, submits that when there was absolutely no reason for the respondents to believe that petitioner would be moving out of the imprisonment then the provisions of the National Security Act ought not to have been invoked. While relying upon a decision of this court reported in 2022 (1) ADJ 451 : Abhayraj Gupta v. Superintendent, Central Jail, Bareilly, learned counsel for the petitioner has stated that under the UP Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, a bail order was not granted as is granted for just any other offence under the IPC. Section 19 of the aforesaid act provides that public prosecutor shall be given an opportunity to oppose the bail application for such release and also when the public prosecutor opposes the bail application, the Court shall have to be satisfied that there were reasonable grounds for believing that the applicant was not guilty of the offence and that he was not likely to commit any offence while he was on bail. Learned counsel for the petitioner therefore submits that when there was absolutely no reason for the State to believe that the petitioner would be bailed out from jail in any of the three crimes he was involved in there, the invocations of the provisions of National Security Act was done without any application of mind.

Leaned counsel for the petitioner here has relied upon a judgment of the Supreme Court reported in 2011 (5) SCC 244 : Rekha v. State of T. Nadu TR. SEC.TO.GOVT. & Anr. and has submitted that preventive detention is by nature repugnant to democratic ideas and an anathema to the rule of law. He submits that when by the ordinary law of the land the petitioner was already under a punitive detention then was not at all required.

Learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon paragraphs No. 27, 29 and 30 of the above noted judgment reported in 2011 (5) SCC 244 : Rekha v. State of T. Nadu TR. SEC.TO.GOVT. & Anr and the same are being reproduced here as under:-

" 27. In our opinion, there is a real possibility of release of a person on bail who is already in custody provided he has moved a bail application which is pending. It follows logically that if no bail application is pending, then there is no likelihood of the person in custody being released on bail, and hence the detention order will be illegal. However, there can be an exception to this rule, that is, where a co-accused whose case stands on the same footing had been granted bail. In such cases, the detaining authority can reasonably conclude that there is likelihood of the detenu being released on bail even though no bail application of his is pending, since most courts normally grant bail on this ground. However, details of such alleged similar cases must be given, otherwise the bald statement of the authority cannot be believed.

29. Prevention detention is, by nature, repugnant to democratic ideas and an anathema to the rule of law. No such law exists in the USA and in England (except during war time). Since, however, Article 22(3)(b) of the Constitution of India permits preventive detention, we cannot hold it illegal but we must confine the power of preventive detention within very narrow limits, otherwise we will be taking away the great right to liberty guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India which was won after long, arduous, historic struggles. It follows, therefore, that if the ordinary law of the land (Indian Penal Code and other penal statutes) can deal with a situation, recourse to a preventive detention law will be illegal.

30. Whenever an order under a preventive detention law is challenged one of the questions the court must ask in deciding its legality is : Was the ordinary law of the land sufficient to deal with the situation? If the answer is in the affirmative, the detention order will be illegal. In the present case, the charge against the detenu was of selling expired drugs after changing their labels. Surely the relevant provisions in the Indian Penal Code and the Drugs and Cosmetics Act were sufficient to deal with this situation. Hence, in our opinion, for this reason also the detention order in question was illegal."

Concluding this argument learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that when there was absolutely no chance of the petitioner being bailed out in the cases where he was punitively detained then there was no doubt about the fact that the petitioner should not have been preventively detained.

(iii). Learned counsel for the petitioner, thereafter has submitted that when the petitioner had been served with the order dated 03.12.2023 and when he was asked by that order to represent before the Advisory Board, then the petitioner had through the jail authorities represented on 13.12.2023. The hearing was fixed for 16.12.2023. On that date, learned counsel for the petitioner has stated that even though the State Authorities were given the assistance of lawyers, the petitioners were deprived of any legal assistance. This statement has been made in paragraph 43 of the writ petition. This paragraph has been replied to in paragraph no. 30 the counter affidavit filed by the District Magistrate wherein he has stated that the contents of paragraph No. 43 of the writ petition do not pertain to the answering respondent. Further it is submitted that State has not given any parawise reply to the contents of the writ petition. This, learned counsel for the petitioner states would mean that though the State had the privilege of legal assistance, the petitioner was deprived of the same.

Learned counsel for the petitioner therefore, submits that the petitioner's interest was greatly prejudiced. He submits that as per the law laid down in the judgment of Najar Quraishi Vs. Superintendent and three others passed on 19.09.2018 in Habeas Corpus Petition No.3293 of 2018, assistance of legal advisors when had been extended in the form of Government Officials to the State, then the petitioner also ought to have been given the assistance of lawyers/Amicus Curiae etc. The judgment in Najar Quraishi has relied upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in A.K. Roy Vs. Union of India and another, reported in (1982) 1 SCC 271 and on the judgement of Choith Nanikram Harchandani v. State of Maharashtra and Others reported in (2018) 2 SCC (Cri) 403. Since learned counsel for the petitioner has specifically relied upon paragraph No.93 of the judgment of A.K. Roy Vs. Union of India and another, the same is being reproduced herein as under:-

"93. We must therefore hold, regretfully though, that the detenu has no right to appear through a legal practitioner in the proceedings before the Advisory Board. It is, however, necessary to add an important caveat. The reason behind the provisions contained in Article 22 (3) (b) of the Constitution clearly is that a legal practitioner should not be permitted to appear before the Advisory Board for any party. The Constitution does not contemplate that the detaining authority or the Government should have the facility of appearing before the Advisory Board with the aid of a legal practitioner but that the said facility should be denied to the detenu. In any case, that is not what the Constitution says and it would be wholly inappropriate to read any such meaning into the provisions of Article 22. Permitting the detaining authority or the Government to appear before the Advisory Board with the aid of a legal practitioner or a legal adviser would be in breach of Article 14, if a similar facility is denied to the detenu. We must therefore make it clear that if the detaining authority or the Government takes the aid of a legal practitioner or a legal adviser before the Advisory Board, the detenu must be allowed the facility of appearing before the Board through a legal practitioner. We are informed that officers of the Government in the concerned departments often appear before the Board and assist it with a view to justifying the detention orders. If that be so, we must clarify that the Boards should not permit the authorities to do indirectly what they cannot do directly; and no one should be enabled to take shelter behind the excuse that such officers are not 'legal practitioners' or legal advisers. Regard must be had to the substance and not the form since, especially, in matters like the proceedings of Advisory Boards, whosoever assists or advises on facts or law must be deemed to be in the position of a legal adviser. We do hope that Advisory Boards will take care to ensure that the provisions of Article 14 are not violated in any manner in the proceedings before them. Serving or retired Judges of the High Court will have no difficulty in understanding this position. Those who are merely 'qualified to be appointed' as High Court Judges may have to do a little homework in order to appreciate it."

Similarly the Apex Court in the case of Choith Nanikram Harchandani (supra) in paragraph 15 as held as hereunder :-

"15. In our considered opinion, since the detaining authority was represented by the officers at the time of hearing of the petitioner's case before the Advisory Board, the petitioner too was entitled to be represented through legal practitioner. Since no such opportunity was afforded to the petitioner though claimed by him, he was denied an opportunity of a fair hearing before the Advisory Board, which eventually resulted in passing an adverse order."

Therefore learned counsel submitted that when the petitioner was not granted any opportunity to have legal assistance and the State had then as per the law laid down by the Supreme Court, the detention becomes illegal.

(iv). Learned counsel for the petitioner has thereafter submitted that when the event which was taken into account for the invocation of the provisions of National Security Act had occurred on 10.08.2023 and the preventive detention order under Section 3(2) of the National Security Act was passed on 03.12.2023, the cause of action which formed the basis of the action taken under the NSA had become absolutely stale and, therefore, the provisions of National Security Act could not be evoked. For this purpose the learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the judgments of the Supreme Court in Alijan Mian vs. District Magistrate, Dhanbad and others : 1983 (4) SCC 301; Md. Sahabuddin vs. District Magistrate, 24 Parganas and others : 1975 (4) SCC 114. When the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Abhayraj Gupta Vs. Superintendent, Central Jail, Bareilly reported in 2022 (1) ADJ 451 had passed the judgment on the basis of the fact that staleness could be a ground for releasing of detenu detained under the National Security Act, the judgments of the Supreme Court cited above had been dealt with in extenso. Paragraphs No. 36, 37, 38, 39, 40 and 41 of that judgment are relevant for the purposes of this case and these were the paragraphs which were relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner Sri Daya Shankar Mishra and they are being reproduced as under:-

"36. Now we proceed to examine the second ground of challenge, i.e. that the incident which took place on 02-12-2019 is a stale incident which is not proximate to the time when the detention order was passed on 23-01-2021 and there was no live link between the alleged prejudicial activity and the purpose of detention and for this reason, the invocation of the provisions of the NSA, 1980 after a long delay of about 14 months was neither warranted nor justified.

".....when there is undue and long delay between the prejudicial activities and the passing of detention order, the Court has to scrutinise whether the detaining authority has satisfactorily explained such a delay and afforded a tenable and reasonable explanation as to why such a delay has occasioned, when called upon to answer and further the court has to investigate whether the casual connection has been broken in the circumstances of each case.

39. In the instant case, the last offence was committed on 3-6-1993 and the detention order was passed on 4-5-1994. No explanation is forthcoming in the return. It is argued that the S.P.'s report states that the detenu was absconding and case was filed under S. 299, Cr.P.C. The period during which he was allegedly absconding is not disclosed. In these circumstances, we are of the opinion that the live link between the alleged incident or the series of incidence and the detention order is snapped and there is no proximity between the crime committed and the order of detention."

38. In Jagan Nath Biswas v. State of W.B., (1975) 4 SCC 115, the Hon'ble Supreme Court quashed the detention order holding that

"2. The incidents themselves look rather serious but also stale, having regard to the long gap between the occurrences and the order of detention. One should have expected some proximity in time to provide a rational nexus between the incidents relied on and the satisfaction arrived at."

39. In Mohd. Sahabuddin v. Distt. Magistrate, 24 Parganas, (1975) 4 SCC 114, the Hon'ble Supreme Court quashed the order of preventive detention on the sole ground that the order of preventive detention was passed nearly seven months after the criminal incident.

40. In Shalini Soni v. Union of India, (1980) 4 SCC 544, the Hon'ble Supreme Court while examining the validity of a détention order held as follow:-

".....It is an unwritten rule of the law, constitutional and administrative, that whenever a decision making function is entrusted to the subjective satisfaction of a statutory functionary, there is an implicit obligation to apply his mind to pertinent and proximate matters only, eschewing the irrelevant and the remote...." (emphasis supplied)

41. In the present case, the incident in question took place on 02-12-2019, the petitioner was arrested on 22-12-2021, he was lodged in jail on 23-12-2021 and he was continuing to be in custody till 23-01-2021 - the date on which the impugned order of prevention was passed. The incident which occurred on 02-12-2019, i.e. about 14 months prior to passing of the detention order, is certainly a stale incident which is not proximate to the time when the detention order dated 23-01-2021 was passed and there was no live link between the alleged prejudicial activity and the purpose of detention and the invocation of the provisions of the NSA, 1980 against the petitioner after a long delay of about fourteen months was neither warranted nor justified."

(v). Learned counsel for the petitioner while relying upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in 2011 (5) SCC 244 : Smt. Rekha Vs. State of Tamil Nadu and another has submitted that preventive detention was an extreme action which a State takes. This preventive detention is done in addition to the punitive detention which is done in the actual case which gives rise to the preventive detention and therefore, the State should be circumspect in taking action under the National Security Act, 1980. He therefore, submits that when the representation is made to the Advisory Board, simultaneously representation is also provided for being made to the Central Government (as an added handle to the detenue to place his/her case before the Central Government).

Learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, has submitted that when the petitioner had represented to the Central Government on 13.12.2023 from Moradabad Jail, then the representation ought to have reached the Central Government in Delhi within a few hours, but in the instant case, as has been stated in the counter affidavit filed by the Union of India, the representation which started from its initial place of origin on 13.12.2023 reached the Ministry of Home Affairs on 22.12.2023 and after the matter was looked into by the Central Government, the Joint Secretary of the Central Government, rejected the same on 23.12.2023 and the information of the rejection reached the petitioner on 26.12.2023.

Learned counsel for the petitioner relying upon 1999 (1) SCC 417 : Rajammal vs. State Of Tamil Nadu And Another has submitted the very fact that the representation was looked into in a most tardy manner and the decision was taken after almost 10 days renders the preventive detention illegal as has been held in the case of Rajammal Vs. State of Tamil Nadu and another (supra). The delay in that case was of 5 days and the Supreme Court on that basis had released the detenu considering the preventive detention as illegal. Paragraph No.11 of the judgment Rajammal Vs. State of Tamil Nadu and another (supra) is being reproduced herein as under:-

"11. We are, therefore, of the opinion that the delay from 9.2.1998 to 14.2.1998 remains unexplained and such unexplained delay has vitiated further detention of the detenu. The corollary thereof is that further detention must necessarily be disallowed. We therefore allow this appeal and set aside the impugned judgment. We direct the appellant-detenu to be set at large forthwith."

Apart from the above, arguments learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that petitioner was given only a conspiratorial role. He was not present at the spot when the actual event had taken place and he has submitted that the provisions of the National Security Act had not been invoked against the named assailants in the first information report.

14. Sri P.C. Srivastava, learned Additional Advocate General, assisted by Sri Amit Sinha, however, has opposed the writ petition and has submitted that if the grounds of detention are seen then it becomes evident that the incident which had occurred on 10.08.2023 was such an incident which had disturbed public order of the area. It was not just a law and order problem. He further submits that the chronology of events becomes important. On 10.08.2023 the incident had occurred and thereafter when the petitioner was jailed on 1.11.2023 in pursuance of the addition of Section 120B IPC in Case Crime No.598 of 2023 and thereafter on 04.11.2023 itself a bail application was moved for the release of the petitioner in Case Crime No.598 of 2023.

15. Learned counsel for the State has further stated that as per Section 11(4) of the NSA, there was absolutely no entitlement for the petitioner to be represented through any legal practitioner.

16. Sri Arvind Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the Union of India submitted that there was no delay in the decision taken by the Union of India.

17. Having heard Sri Daya Shankar Mishra, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Chandrakesh Mishra and Sri Abhishek Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner; Sri P.C. Srivastava, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Amit Sinha, learned A.G.A. for the State and Sri Arvind Singh learned counsel for the Union of India, we are of the view that the writ petition deserves to be allowed and the petitioner be released from preventive detention.

18. From the arguments, which have been placed before us, we find that the grounds of detention were absolutely vague. No specific grounds had been taken as to how public order was being disturbed and only bald statements have been given out in the grounds of detention that when the incident had taken place, the locality had got disturbed. If the law as has been laid down by our Courts is perused, it becomes clear that a distinction has to be drawn between what is a law and order problem and what exactly is a disturbance of public order.

19. In 1985 All LJ 1222 : Sheshdhar Misra vs. Superintendent, Central Jail Naini and Ors., which is a Full Bench decision of this Court, the High Court has said that the order of detention could not be passed in a mechanical manner without any application of mind. The Authority concerned had to compulsorily look into the fact as to whether the disorder created by the event was a temporary disorder or whether it was such a disorder which would absolutely put the society out of gear and there would be difficulty in maintaining of public order.

20. The Judgment of the Supreme Court in Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia vs. State of Bihar reported in AIR 1966 SC 740 has held that public order was set to embrace more of the community than just the law and order of the area. Public order is an even tempo of the life of a community taking the country as a whole or even a specific locality. Disturbance of public order is to be distinguished from the acts directed against the individuals which do not disturb the society to the extent of causing a general disturbance of public tranquility. In that judgment, it has been stated that degree of disturbance and its effect upon the life of the community in a locality determines whether the disturbance amounts only to a breach of law and order or whether there was a problem of maintenance of public order. In the instant case, we find that the event of murdering of Anuj Chaudhary had happened on 10.08.2023; the case was registered as Case Crime No. 598 of 2023 under Section 302/307 of IPC and only Amit Kumar, Pushpendra, Aniket and Prabhaker were the named assailants. The F.I.R. had further mentioned about certain unknown assailants. The petitioner, however, was involved only when the brother-in-law of the deceased had mentioned the name of the petitioner in a letter written to the Superintendent of Police on 29.08.2023 and thereafter the petitioner was arrested on 01.11.2023 and that too in a conspiratorial role. Further we find that under the Arms Act, the crime of which was numbered as Case Crime No. 818 of 2023, the petitioner was jailed on 07.11.2023 and with regard to the Gangster's Act, the petitioner's arrest took place on 28.11.2023. The grounds of detention have only mentioned that the petitioner's relatives, after the arrest of the petitioner in Case Crime No. 598 of 2023 on 01.11.2023, had moved a bail application on 04.11.2023. No ground in the "Grounds of Detention" has been mentioned that any bail was moved with regard to the Arms Act and the Gangsters Act. It may be mentioned over here that the bail in the Gangsters Act cannot be obtained without a service of notice on the Public Prosecutor and without the Court being satisfied that the accused would be on the culmination of trial, acquitted.

21. We are, therefore, of the view that the grounds taken in the "Grounds of Detention" which accompanied the detention order dated 03.12.2023 were absolutely vague and that there was no definite conclusion that maintenance of public order was being endangered. Still further, we are of the view that when there was absolutely no chance of the petitioner being released on bail, the provisions of National Security Act, 1980 ought not to have been invoked. The petitioner was jailed on 01.11.2023 in Case Crime No. 598 of 2023 and the bail application as was moved in Case Crime No. 598 of 2023 only after the inclusion of Section 120-B of IPC. This application was rejected on 17.11.2023 by the Sessions Court. There was, on that particular date, no further bail application pending with regard to the Case Crime No. 818 of 2023 under the Arms Act and in the Case Crime No. 861 of 2023 under the Gangsters Act.

22. We are thus of the view that when there was no possibility of the petitioner being released on bail and the petitioner was continuing under punitive detention, then as per the judgments of the Supreme Court passed in Kamarunnissa vs. Union of India & Anr. : (1991) 1 SCC 128; Baby Devassy Chully @ Bobby vs. Union of India & Ors. : (2013) 4 SCC 531 and of this Court in Abhayraj Gupta vs. Superintendent, Central Jail, Bareilly : 2022 (1) ADJ 451 the petitioner could not be detained under the preventive detention laws.

23. Still further, we are of the view that when the State had taken the legal help of Law Officers then as per the case of Najar Quraishi vs. Superintendent & Ors. (Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No.3293 of 2018 decided on 19.9.2018) which relied upon the decision of the Supreme Court in A.K. Roy vs. Union of India : (1982) 1 SCC 271 and Choith Nanikram Harchandani vs. State of Maharashtra & Ors. : 2018 2 SCC (Crl.) 403, the petitioner ought to have compulsorily been given the legal assistance, specially when the petitioner in his representation had asked for one. This having not been done, we are of the view that the detention order becomes unsustainable in the eyes of law. This is what has also been held by this Court in Niyaz Ansari vs. Adhikshak, Janapad Karagar, Chitrakoot & Ors.; Habeas Corpus Petition No.622 of 2023 decided on 19.1.2024

24. The next argument, which the petitioner's counsel had made was that action which was taken under the National Security Act was stale one. Learned counsel for the petitioner had relied upon a judgment of this Court in Abhayraj Gupta vs. Superintendent, Central Jail, Bareilly : 2022 (1) ADJ 451 and has submitted that there was absolutely no live link between the event which occurred on 10.08.2023 and the detention order which was passed on 03.12.2023. As has been argued by learned counsel for the petitioner, the judgments of Ali Jaan Miyan vs. District Magistrate, Dhanbad : (1983) 4 SCC 301 ; Jagan Nath Biswas vs. State of West Bengal : (1975) 4 SCC 115 ; Mohd. Sahabuddin vs. District Magistrate, 24 Parganas : (1975) 4 SCC 114 and Shalini Soni vs. Union of India : (1980) 4 SCC Page 544 become relevant for the decision of this issue.

25. We definitely find that after 10.08.2023, when the incident took place, there was some ruffle in the society but subsequently everything had quietened down. The order under the National Security Act for detaining the petitioner under preventive detention was passed 03.12.2023. By that time, definitely the upheaval in the society, if there was any, had quietened down and, therefore, a stale event ought not to, definitely, have been used for the purposes of the invocation of the National Security Act.

26. We also find that the representation which was sent by the petitioner on 13.12.2013 to the Union of India had for reasons best known to the Authorities concerned reached the Authority of the Central Government on 22.12.2023 and it was subsequently rejected thereafter on 23.12.2023 and the rejection order was communicated to the petitioner only as late as on 26.12.2023. In view of the decision of the Supreme Court in Rajammal vs. State of Tamil Nadu & Anr. : (1999) 1 SCC 417 also the detention order therefore becomes bad in the eyes of law.

27. Having considered all the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties, we are definitely of the view that the petitioner ought to be released after having found that the order dated 03.12.2023 could not be sustained in the eyes of law.

28. Before parting with the case, we may mention that the law of habeas corpus is dealt with in a most technical manner. The writ of habeas corpus could have been issued upon finding :-

(i) the authorities had invoked National Security Act despite the fact that there was no requirement of preventively detaining the detenue for the maintenance of public order;

(ii) there was no chance of the petitioner/detenue being released on bail in the cases in which he was punitively detained;

(iii) the petitioner was not given the assistance of lawyers/amicus curiae when the State was given the assistance of law officers;

(iv) a stale event was taken into consideration for the invocation of the provisions of National Security Act; and

(v) the Union of India had delayed the decision on the representation sent by the petitioner.

29. However, we have dealt with all the issues raised in the case as were argued at length by learned counsel for the petitioner and also we felt that a decision on all the points had to be given.

30. We may reiterate that a finding on just any of the above issues in favour of the detenue would have resulted in the issuing of a writ of habeas corpus and thereafter the release of the detenue.

31. The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed. The order dated 03.12.2023 which was confirmed on 03.01.2024, for the reasons stated above is, therefore, set aside. The petitioner-Kamalveer Singh (detenue) be set at liberty unless he is required in any other case.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 810 of 2023

Abdia Arif (Minor) D/O Mohd. Shan Arif ...Petitioner

Versus

State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Mohammad Sadab Khan

Counsel for the Respondents:

Habeas Corpus - Guardians and Wards Act, 1890 - Sections 7, 17, 25 - Family Courts Act, 1984 - Section 7 - Muslim Personal Law - Petition filed on behalf of a 7-year-old minor girl seeking release from custody of her grandmother and uncle (respondent nos. 4 and 5) after father's death (16.07.2020) and mother's remarriage (11.09.2022). Mother, who left the child with respondents, filed a custody case (Case No. 92/2023) under Guardians and Wards Act, 1890, pending before Family Court, which granted interim visitation rights. Under Muslim Personal Law (Mulla, Principles of Mahomedan Law, Sections 352, 354), mother is entitled to custody (hizanat) of a female child until puberty, but loses this right upon remarriage to a stranger, with right reviving upon dissolution of such marriage. Habeas corpus not entertainable as custody with respondents not prima facie illegal, and welfare of the child is paramount. Court declined to exercise extraordinary jurisdiction due to disputed facts and pending custody proceedings, directing parties to agitate claims before Family Court. Petition dismissed without prejudice to pending guardianship proceedings. (Paras 7-24)

Petition Dismissed.

2. Master Mahib Sajjad Masood Vs St. of U.P., (not specified in detail) (Para 20)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mohammad Sadab Khan, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Pankaj Saxena, learned AGA-I appearing for the State-respondents and Sri Suresh Kumar Gupta, learned counsel appearing for the respondent nos.4 and 5.

2. The present petition seeking a writ of habeas corpus has been filed on behalf of the petitioner, a minor of age about seven years.

3. The facts of the case as pleaded in the petition are that the father of the corpus, Mohammad Shan, died in a road accident on 16.07.2020 and thereafter, on 11.09.2022, the mother, Zubairiya Shan, solemnized a second marriage with one Mohammad Siraj. The petitioner-corpus, at the relevant point of time, was in custody of the respondent nos.4 and 5 (mother and brother of the deceased father of the corpus, respectively).

4. It is sought to be contended that mother had been assured by the respondent nos.4 and 5 that the custody of the petitioner-corpus would be handed over to her in due course.

5. It has been pleaded in the petition that Case No.92 of 2023 (Smt. Zubairiya Shan Vs. Smt. Akhtari Begum and others), under Sections 25 of the Guardians and Wards Act, 18901 and Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984, was instituted by the mother of the corpus, seeking her custody, and the same is pending.

6. A counter affidavit has been filed on behalf of the respondent nos.4 and 5 wherein it is asserted that the proceeding under Section 7/10 of the GWA, bearing Case No.250 of 2022 (Smt. Akhtari Begum Vs. Smt. Zubairiya Shan), is pending wherein upon an application by the mother, the Family Court has granted visitation rights as an interim measure.

7. It is not a case of the mother, Smt. Zubairiya Shan, that the custody of the petitioner-corpus, at any point of time, was forcibly taken away from her by the respondent nos.4 and 5. Rather, it is her own case that when her second marriage was solemnized, she on her own, left the petitioner-corpus in the custody of the respondent nos.4 and 5.

8. The law relating to guardians and wards is governed in terms of the GWA and an order with regard to guardianship upon an application filed by a person claiming entitlement may be passed under the aforesaid enactment.

9. Section 17 of the GWA relates to matter to be considered by the Court in appointing guardian and in terms thereof it is provided that the Court while deciding the question of guardianship of a minor, shall, as far as possible, do so consistently with the law to which the minor is subject, keeping in view the welfare of the minor. Thus, the provisions of the personal law are to be applied consistently with the provisions of the GWA.

10. It is common ground between the parties that insofar as the question of custody is concerned, their rights are to be governed by the personal law.

11. The matters relating to "Guardianship of Person and Property" are provided under Chapter XVIII of Mulla, Principles of Mahomedan Law2 and Part-A thereof pertains to "Appointment of Guardians". In terms of Section 349, all applications for the appointment of a guardian of the person or property or both of a minor are to be made under the GWA. Further, Section 351 of Mulla, Principles of Mahomedan Law, which is in terms of Section 17 of the GWA, imposes a duty upon the Court in appointing guardian to make the appointment consistently with the law to which the minor is subject, keeping in view the welfare of the minor.

12. The subject matter relating to "Guardianship of a Person of a Minor" is dealt with under Part-B of Chapter XVIII of Mulla, Principles of Mahomedan Law, and the right of mother to the custody of infant children is governed under Sections 352 and 354 thereof, which are extracted below:-

"352. Right of mother to custody of infant children.—The mother is entitled to the custody (hizanat) of her male child until he has completed the age of seven years and of her female child until she has attained puberty. The right continues though she is divorced by the father of the child, unless she marries a second husband in which case the custody belongs to the father.

354. Females when disqualified for custody.—A female, including the mother, who is otherwise entitled to the custody of a child, loses the right of custody—

(1) if she marries a person not related to the child within the prohibited degrees (260-261), e.g., a stranger, but the right revives on the dissolution of marriage by death or divorce; or,

(2) if she goes and resides, during the subsistence of the marriage, at a distance from the father's place of residence; or,

(3) if she is leading an immoral life, as where she is a prostitute; or

(4) if she neglects to take proper care of the child."

13. The aforesaid provision indicates that the mother is entitled to the custody (hizanat) of her female child until she has attained puberty. This right continues though she is divorced by father of the child, unless she marries a second husband in which case the custody belongs to the father.

14. The disqualifications effecting females are contained under Section 352 which, inter alia, provides that a female, including the mother, who is otherwise entitled to the custody of a child, loses the right of custody, if she marries a person not related to the child within the prohibited degrees, e.g. the stranger, and the right revives on the dissolution of marriage by death or divorce.

15. The claim with regard to the custody of the petitioner-corpus, by her mother, if any, would accordingly, have to be examined in the light of the facts of the case and on the basis of the aforestated legal propositions, in proceedings instituted before the appropriate forum.

16. The writ of habeas corpus is a prerogative writ and an extraordinary remedy. It is a writ of right and not a writ of course and may be granted only on reasonable ground or probable cause being shown.

17. The principal duty of the Court in such matters is to ascertain whether the custody of the child is unlawful and illegal and whether the welfare of the child requires that his present custody should be changed and the child be handed over to the care and custody of any other person.

The principle is well settled that in such matters the welfare of the child is of paramount consideration.

18. In child custody matters, habeas corpus proceedings may not be utilized to justify or examine the legality of the custody. The power of the Court in granting the writ is qualified only in cases where detention of a minor is by a person not entitled to his/her legal custody. For the exigence of a writ, it would be required to be proved that the detention of the minor child is illegal and without any authority of law, and that the welfare of the child requires that the present custody should be changed.

19. In a case where facts are disputed and a detailed inquiry is required, the Court may decline to exercise its extraordinary jurisdiction and may direct the parties to approach the appropriate legal forum.

20. The legal position in this regard has been considered by this Court in recent judgments in Ujaif @ Noor Alam and others Vs. State of UP and others3 and Master Mahib Sajjad Masood and another Vs. State of UP and others4.

21. In the present case, the material on record, prima facie, does not suggest that the petitioner-corpus has been illegally detained by the respondent nos.4 and 5.

22. Having regard to the aforesaid, the present petition for a writ of habeas corpus would not be entertainable.

23. The petition stands dismissed accordingly.

24. The dismissal of the petition would not preclude the parties from agitating their rights with regard to guardianship and custody before the court concerned where the matters are stated to be pending.

Habeas Corpus - Child Custody - Parents Patriae Jurisdiction - Welfare of Minor - Petition filed by mother (petitioner No. 2) on behalf of minor son (petitioner No. 1, corpus) alleging illegal custody by father (respondent No. 3) since 28.04.2023. Mother, living separately at her maternal home due to strained marital relations, lodged FIRs against father (Crime No. 185/2019 under Sections 498-A, 323, 506 IPC, 3/4 D.P. Act, 4/3 Muslim Women Act; Crime No. 103/2023 under Sections 420, 34 IPC). Father, a labourer, claimed willingness to reconcile, but mother refused to return to matrimonial home. Corpus, attached to father, was in his custody. Court, exercising parens patriae jurisdiction, held that habeas corpus is entertainable only if custody is illegal and against the minor's welfare. No evidence of illegal detention found, and welfare of the child, paramount under parens patriae, did not necessitate change in custody. Due to disputed facts and pending criminal cases indicating acrimony, court declined extraordinary jurisdiction, directing parties to agitate guardianship claims before appropriate forum. Petition dismissed, corpus allowed to remain with father, with police ensuring safe return. Observations prima facie, not affecting rights in other proceedings. (Paras 7-19)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Brijesh Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the petitioners and Ms. Divya Ojha, learned A.G.A.-I appearing for the State respondents.

2. Sri Rajesh Kumar Mishra, learned counsel, who has filed his Vakalatnama on behalf of the respondent No. 3, has also been heard.

3. Pursuant to the rule nisi issued earlier, the petitioner No. 1-corpus, has been produced in Court by the respondent No. 3. They have been accompanied by Jitendra Kumar, S.I., P.N.O. No. 152533151, Police Station Kajuriya, District Rampur.

4. The petitioner No. 1 (corpus) and the respondent No. 3, have been identified by their counsel, Sri Rajesh Kumar Mishra.

5. The police officer has been identified by Ms. Divya Ojha, learned A.G.A.-I.

6. The petitioner No. 2, Shahnaj is also present in Court and has been identified by her counsel, Sri Brijesh Kumar Pandey.

7. Learned A.G.A.-I, on the basis of inquiry made from the petitioner No. 2, in Court, has submitted that she has submitted the she is living at her maternal home in district Rampur and that the petitioner No. 1 (corpus) is presently with respondent No. 3. She has submitted that the custody of the petitioner No. 1 (corpus) was taken away from her, on 28.04.2023, and a complaint in this regard has also been lodged with the police. On a pointed query, as to whether she is willing to go to her matrimonial home, she has replied in negative.

8. Learned A.G.A.-I has also made an inquiry from the respondent Nos 3, in Court, and submits that he has stated that he is working as a labourer in district Rampur and the petitioner No. 1 (corpus) is his son and is under his care and custody. He has stated that the petitioner No. 2 (his wife) is living separately due to strained relationship. He has also stated that he is willing to take back the petitioner No. 2 (his wife), but she is unwilling.

9. Learned A.G.A.-I states that she has also interacted with the petitioner No. 1 (corpus) and submits that he has shown an attachment to his father and does not apparently seem to respond to the petitioner No. 2.

10. An F.I.R. dated 4.09.2019, is stated to have been lodged by the petitioner No. 2, registered as Crime No. 185 of 2019, under Sections 498-A, 323, 506 I.P.C., 3/4 of the D.P. Act and Section 4/3 of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019, Police Station Khajuriya, District Rampur, in which the charge sheet has been submitted. Another

F.I.R. dated 03.11.2023 is also stated to have been lodged by the respondent No. 2, registered as Case Crime No. 103 of 2023, under Sections 420 and 34 I.P.C., Police Station Khajuriya, District Rampur, in which the respondent No. 3 has been named as an accused.

11. The pendency of the aforesaid criminal cases is indicative of the acrimony and the strained relationship between the parties.

12. In an application seeking a writ of habeas corpus for custody of minor child, as is the case herein, the principal consideration for the court would be to ascertain whether the custody of the child can be said to be unlawful and illegal and whether his welfare requires that the present custody should be changed and the child should be handed over in the care and custody of somebody else other than in whose custody he presently is.

13. The role of the High Court in examining cases of custody of a minor, in a petition for a writ of habeas corpus, would have to be on the touchstone of the principle of parens patriae jurisdiction and the paramount consideration would be the welfare of the child. In such cases the matter would have to be decided not solely by reference to the legal rights of the parties but on the predominant criterion of what would best serve the interest and welfare of the minor.

14. In a child custody matter, a writ of habeas corpus would be entertainable only where it is established that the detention of the minor child is illegal and without authority of law. In a writ court, where rights are determined on the basis of affidavits, in a case where the court is of a view that a detailed enquiry would be required, it may decline to exercise the extraordinary jurisdiction and direct the parties to approach the appropriate forum.

15. Having regard to the entirety of the facts, the rule nisi issued earlier is discharged.

16. The habeas corpus petition is dismissed.

17. The petitioner No. 1 (corpus) would be at liberty to go along with the respondent No. 3 (his father) to the place from where he has been brought.

18. They shall be accompanied by the police officer, in safety, but free.

19. It is made clear that the observations made, hereinabove, are prima facie in nature and would not preclude the parties from agitating their claims for guardianship and custody before the appropriate forum.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 1059 of 2023

Anil Kumar ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioner:
Sri Grijesh Kumar Shukla

Counsel for the Respondents:
G.A.

Criminal Law -Habeas Corpus - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 427(1) - Concurrent Sentences - Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 - Section 20(B)(II)(C) - U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 - Section 3(1) - Petitioner, convicted under NDPS Act (Sessions Trial No. 19/2013, 12 years imprisonment, 22.07.2015) and subsequently under Gangsters Act (Sessions Trial No. 28/2013, 5 years imprisonment, 29.02.2016) based on the same NDPS offence, sought release via habeas corpus, alleging illegal detention despite bail granted in NDPS appeal (Criminal Appeal No. 4024/2015, 09.08.2023). Trial court failed to apply discretion under Section 427(1) Cr.P.C. to direct concurrent running of sentences. Relying on Iqram Vs St. of U.P. (2023) 3 SCC 184, Benson Vs St. of Kerala (2016) 10 SCC 307, Anil Kumar Vs St. of Punj. (2017) 5 SCC 53, Vicky Vs St. (NCT of Delhi) (2020) 11 SCC 540, and VSK. Bansal Vs St. of Har. (2013) 7 SCC 211, the court held that High Court, under Article 226, can exercise discretion under Section 427(1) Cr.P.C. to direct concurrent sentences when subsequent conviction arises from the same transaction without further overt act. Sentences ordered to run concurrently, entitling petitioner to release per bail order, as he has been in custody since 05.08.2013. Distinguished Mohd. Zahid Vs St. (2022) 12 SCC 426, where concurrent sentences were denied for distinct NDPS offences. St. directed to recalculate sentence period and release petitioner forthwith if not required in other cases. Petition allowed. (Paras 2-15)

Petition Allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anish Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. Heard Sri Grijesh Kumar Shukla, learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Rahul Asthana, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The petitioner, before this Court, has filed the instant Habeas Corpus Writ Petition through his father, Prakash. In this writ petition, the petitioner has submitted that he was implicated in Case Crime No. 47 of 2013 under Section 18/20 of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 (hereinafter referred as 'the NDPS Act'), P.S.- Sikandra, District-Kanpur Nagar Dehat and he is in jail since 05.08.2013. The said Case Crime No. 47 of 2013 had resulted in Sessions Trial No. 19 of 2013 and the petitioner herein was convicted vide judgement and order dated 22.07.2015 under Section 20(B)(II)(C) of the NDPS Act and the petitioner was sentenced to undergo 12 years rigorous imprisonment with a fine of Rs. 1,00,000/-. Against the said judgement and order dated 22.07.2015, the petitioner herein had filed an appeal being Criminal Appeal No. 4024 of 2015 (Anil Kumar Vs. State of U.P.), wherein during the pendency of the appeal, vide order dated 09.08.2023, the petitioner herein has been directed to be released on bail. It is further submitted on the basis of the aforesaid Case Crime No. 47 of 2013, on 31.07.2013, another Case Crime No. 200 of 2013 was also registered against the petitioner herein under Section 3(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 (hereinafter referred as 'the Gangsters Act'). In the said case, the said Case Crime No. 200 of 2013 had resulted in Sessions Trial No. 28 of 2013 wherein he was convicted and sentenced for a five years rigorous imprisonment and fine of Rs. 5,000/- vide judgement and order dated 29.02.2016. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that since in the subsequent conviction and sentence vide judgement and order dated 29.02.2016, learned trial court has failed to take note of his previous conviction and sentence awarded in Case Crime No. 47 of 2013, therefore, learned trial court has failed to apply its discretion as provided under Section 427 (1) of Cr.P.C. Therefore, the petitioner is not being released from jail despite the bail order granted by this Court in Criminal Appeal No. 4024 of 2015 as the Jail Authorities consider that both the sentences awarded to the petitioner herein shall run consecutively.

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that in view of the subsequent conviction under the provisions of the Gangsters Act, wherein he had been awarded and sentenced for five years rigorous imprisonment as the provisions of the Gangsters Act have been imposed only on the basis of the base case under the NDPS Act, he was entitled for the benefit under Section 427 of Cr.P.C., whereby his sentence under the provisions of the Gangsters Act ought to have been directed to run concurrently.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner has argued that when the petitioner had been released on bail in the NDPS Act, the base case on the basis of which the Gangsters Act was imposed and tried, the petitioner be released as it would be deemed that the sentence which was imposed in Sessions Trial No. 28 of 2013, would run concurrently. Relying upon the judgement of the Supreme Court in Anil Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2017) 5 SCC 53, he has submitted that a person who is already undergoing sentence of imprisonment, when he is sentenced on a subsequent conviction to imprisonment, such subsequent term of imprisonment would though normally commence at the expiration of imprisonment to which he was previously sentenced, as per law of the Supreme Court, the petitioner would get the benefit of Section 427(1) Cr.P.C. Learned counsel for the petitioner relying upon a judgement of the Supreme Court in Benson v. State of Kerala, (2016) 10 SCC 307, has submitted that in cases of similar nature, if conviction had taken place, then, it would be prudent to make the sentences to run concurrently. Learned counsel for the petitioner still further relying upon the judgement of the Supreme Court in Vicky v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2020) 11 SCC 540, has argued that the sentences of two cases of similar nature ought to run concurrently. Learned counsel for the petitioner further relying upon the case of Iqram v. State of U.P., (2023) 3 SCC 184 has argued that the benefit of Section 427 (1) Cr.P.C., if had not been prayed for in the court below, and had not been granted by the court below, the same can be prayed for before the High Court in a writ under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

Relying upon law as had been laid down in the judgement of Iqram (supra) he submits that the High Court under its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, while dealing with the writ of Habeas Corpus, can also extend the benefit of Section 427 (1) of Cr.P.C.

5. Sri Rahul Asthana, learned A.G.A. for the State, has relied upon a judgement of the Supreme Court in Mohd. Zahid v. State, (2022) 12 SCC 426 and has submitted while relying upon paragraphs '10' and '11' that if there were two cases under the NDPS Act and if two different sentences have been awarded by the court below, then, the benefit of Section 427(1) of Cr.P.C., could not be extended to such a person.

6. To appreciate the submissions made by learned counsels for the parties, it will be appropriate to reproduce the provisions of Section 427 Cr.P.C., which reads as under:

"Section 427. Sentence on offender already sentenced for another offence.

(1) When a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment is sentenced on a subsequent conviction to imprisonment or imprisonment for life, such imprisonment or imprisonment for life shall commence at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he has been previously sentenced, unless the Court directs that the subsequent sentence shall run concurrently with such previous sentence;

Provided that where a person who has been sentenced to imprisonment by an order under section 122 in default of furnishing security is, whilst undergoing such sentence, sentenced to imprisonment for an offence committed prior to the making of such order, the latter sentence shall commence immediately.

(2) When a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment for life is sentenced on a subsequent conviction to imprisonment for a term or imprisonment for life, the subsequent sentence shall run concurrently with such previous sentence."

7. From the plain reading of the provisions of Section 427 Cr.P.C., it is apparent that in view of Section 427 (1) Cr.P.C., when a person is already undergoing sentence of imprisonment and on his subsequent conviction is sentenced to further imprisonment or imprisonment for life, such imprisonment or imprisonment for life shall commence after the expiry of the previous sentence of imprisonment. However, the Court which is subsequently sentencing such a person, who is already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment, has a discretion under Section 427(1) Cr.P.C., to direct that such subsequent sentence, which is being, awarded shall run concurrently with the previous sentence.

8. In the instant case, the petitioner herein was convicted under Section 20(B)(II)(C) of the NDPS Act and was imprisoned for a period of 12 years on 22.07.2015. However, subsequently he was convicted and sentenced on 29.02.2016 under the provisions of Section 3(1) of the Gangsters Act and was sentenced for a period of five years rigorous imprisonment. The court subsequently convicting and sentencing the petitioner had not taken into consideration the previous conviction and sentence of the petitioner and had not applied its discretion as is provided under Section 427 (1) Cr.P.C., in directing the subsequent sentence to run concurrently with the previous sentence of imprisonment for 12 years awarded under the provisions of the NDPS Act. Ordinarily, in the absence of an application claiming benefit under Section 427 (1) of Cr.P.C., and non-application of such discretion by the subsequent Court, the subsequent sentence shall start after the completion of the earlier sentence granted under the provisions of the NDPS Act. However, in the case of Benson(supra), the Apex Court while considering the scope of Sub-section (1) of Section 427 Cr.P.C., had relied upon another judgement of the Apex Court in V.K Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211, and had directed the sentence awarded in various cases to run concurrently in view of the provisions of Section 427 (1) Cr.P.C. Relevant portion of the Apex Court judgement in Benson (supra) reads as under:-

"6. In terms of sub-section (1) of Section 427, if a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment is sentenced on a subsequent conviction to imprisonment, such subsequent term of imprisonment would normally commence at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he was previously sentenced. Going by this normal principle, the sentence chart indicated in the communication dated 27-5-2016 is quite correct. However this normal rule is subject to a qualification and it is within the powers of the Court to direct that the subsequent sentence shall run concurrently with the previous sentence.

7. In V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana [V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 498 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 282] it was stated by this Court: (SCC p. 216, para 10)

"10. ... It is manifest from Section 427(1) that the Court has the power and the discretion to issue a direction but in the very nature of the power so conferred upon the Court the discretionary power shall have to be exercised along the judicial lines and not in a mechanical, wooden or pedantic manner. It is difficult to lay down any straitjacket approach in the matter of exercise of such discretion by the courts. There is no cut and dried formula for the Court to follow in the matter of issue or refusal of a direction within the contemplation of Section 427(1). Whether or not a direction ought to be issued in a given case would depend upon the nature of the offence or offences committed, and the fact situation in which the question of concurrent running of the sentences arises."

This Court then went on to club various crimes in respect of which sentences were imposed upon the appellant therein in three groups: (i) the first having 12 cases, (ii) the second having 2 cases, and (iii) the third having a single case. This Court directed that substantive sentences within first two groups would run inter se concurrently and the substantive sentences in first two groups and that in respect of the case in the third group would run consecutively. The benefit was confined only in respect of substantive sentences and not qua sentences in default.

8. We have gone through the record and considered the rival submissions. We do not find anything incorrect in the assessment made by the courts below and in our view the orders of conviction recorded against the appellant in the present cases are quite correct. We also do not find anything wrong in the quantum of sentence imposed in respect of the respective crimes. However going by the sentence calculation, the sentence imposed in respect of the first crime started with effect from 20-11-2003 and the last sentence would be over by 19-8-2022, which would effectively mean that the total length of sentences in aggregate would be around 19 years. We are not concerned with first eight matters and sentences imposed in respect of those crimes. The sentence in respect of 8th crime is presently running against the appellant and would be over on 30-8-2017.

9. The maximum sentence in respect of the present crimes is two years' rigorous imprisonment. As per the record, these crimes were committed on the same day. Having considered the matters, we deem it appropriate to direct that the sentences imposed in each of the cases i.e. (i) CC No. 158 of 2004, (ii) CC No. 1039 of 2003, (iii) CC No. 390 of 2004, and (iv) CC No. 1168 of 2006, namely, those at Sl. Nos. 9 to 12 respectively as indicated in the sentence chart in the communication dated 27-5-2016 shall run concurrently with the sentence imposed in Crime No. 8 which is currently operative. We grant this benefit in respect of substantive sentences to the appellant but maintain the sentences of fine and the default sentences. If the fine as imposed is not deposited, the default sentence or sentences will run consecutively and not concurrently."

9. Likewise, in Anil Kumar (supra), the Apex Court relying upon V.K. Bansal (supra) and Benson (supra), had applied the discretion under Seciton 427 (1) Cr.P.C., and directed the sentences of two cases to run concurrently in the following terms:

"7. After referring to V.K. Bansal case [V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 498 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 282] , in Benson v. State of Kerala [Benson v. State of Kerala, (2016) 10 SCC 307 : (2017) 1 SCC (Cri) 108 : (2016) 9 Scale 670] , this Court directed the substantive sentences imposed on the appellant Benson to run concurrently. The appellant therein was convicted for the offences punishable under Section 379 and Section 414 read with Section 34 IPC in at least eleven cases. By a separate judgment, the appellant was convicted and sentenced in each of the aforesaid cases and total length of sentences in aggregate was around nineteen years.

8. In the present case, the appellant was earlier convicted under Section 22, NDPS Act and subsequently convicted under Section 27(b)(ii) and Section 28 of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940. Considering the nature of the offences for which the appellant was convicted and the facts and circumstances of the case, we deem it appropriate to direct that the sentences imposed on the appellant in FIR No. 37 and Complaint No. 638 shall run concurrently. However, the fine amount and the default sentence or sentences are maintained. If the fine amount is not paid, the default sentence will run consecutively and not concurrently."

10. Similarly, in Vicky (supra), the Apex Court relying upon various judgements such as Mohd. Akhtar Hussain vs. Collector of Customs, (1988) SCC 183, V.K. Bansal (supra) and Anil Kumar (supra), considering the condition and the family background of the petitioner therein, had directed the sentences of five cases to run concurrently in following terms.

10. We may refer to the decision of the Supreme Court in Mohd. Akhtar Hussain v. Collector of Customs [Mohd. Akhtar Hussain v. Collector of Customs, (1988) 4 SCC 183 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 921] , wherein the Supreme Court recognised the basic rule of convictions arising out of a single transaction justifying concurrent running of the sentences. In Mohd. Akhtar Hussain [Mohd. Akhtar Hussain v. Collector of Customs, (1988) 4 SCC 183 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 921] , it was held as under: (SCC p. 187, paras 10 & 12)

"10. The basic rule of thumb over the years has been the so-called single transaction rule for concurrent sentences. If a given transaction constitutes two offences under two enactments generally, it is wrong to have consecutive sentences. It is proper and legitimate to have concurrent sentences. But this rule has no application if the transaction relating to offences is not the same or the facts constituting the two offences are quite different.

12. The submission, in our opinion, appears to be misconceived. The material produced by the State unmistakably indicates that the two offences for which the appellant was prosecuted are quite distinct and different. The case under the Customs Act may, to some extent, overlap the case under the Gold (Control) Act, but it is evidently on different transactions. The complaint under the Gold (Control) Act relates to possession of 7000 tolas of primary gold prohibited under Section 8 of the said Act. The complaint under the Customs Act is with regard to smuggling of gold worth Rs 12.5 crores and export of silver worth Rs 11.5 crores. On these facts, the courts are not unjustified in directing that the sentences should be consecutive and not concurrent."

11. After referring to Mohd. Akhtar Hussain [Mohd. Akhtar Hussain v. Collector of Customs, (1988) 4 SCC 183 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 921] and other cases, in V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana [V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 498 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 282] , the Supreme Court held that the legal position favours exercise of discretion to the benefit of the prisoner in cases where the prosecution is based on a single transaction no matter different complaints may have been filed. In V.K. Bansal [V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 498 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 282] , it was held as under: (V.K. Bansal case [V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 498 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 282] , SCC p. 217, paras 14-16)

"14. We may at this stage refer to the decision of this Court in Mohd. Akhtar Hussain v. Collector of Customs [Mohd. Akhtar Hussain v. Collector of Customs, (1988) 4 SCC 183 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 921] in which this Court recognised the basic rule of convictions arising out of a single transaction justifying concurrent running of the sentences. ...

15. In Madan Lal case [State of Punjab v. Madan Lal, (2009) 5 SCC 238 : (2009) 2 SCC (Cri) 650] this Court relied upon the decision in Akhtar Hussain case [Mohd. Akhtar Hussain v. Collector of Customs, (1988) 4 SCC 183 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 921] and affirmed the direction of the High Court for the sentences to run concurrently. That too was a case under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act. The State was aggrieved of the direction that the sentences shall run concurrently and had appealed to this Court against the same. This Court, however, declined interference with the order passed by the High Court and upheld the direction issued by the High Court.

16. In conclusion, we may say that the legal position favours exercise of discretion to the benefit of the prisoner in cases where the prosecution is based on a single transaction no matter different complaints in relation thereto may have been filed as is the position in cases involving dishonour of cheques issued by the borrower towards repayment of a loan to the creditor."

12. In V.K. Bansal [V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 498 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 282] , the appellant-accused was facing fifteen cases and the Supreme Court has grouped fifteen cases into three different groups:

(i) the first having twelve cases relating to advancement of loan/banking facility to M/s Arawali Tubes Ltd. acting through the appellant thereon as Director;

(ii) the second having two cases relating to advancement of loan to the appellant M/s Arawali Alloys Ltd. acting through the appellant as its Director; and

(iii) the third having a single case qua the criminal complaint by State Bank of Patiala.

The Court directed that the substantive sentences within first two groups would run inter se concurrently. The Supreme Court directed that the substantive sentences in first two groups and that in respect of the case in the third group would run consecutively.

13. Following the decision in V.K. Bansal [V.K. Bansal v. State of Haryana, (2013) 7 SCC 211 : (2013) 3 SCC (Civ) 498 : (2013) 3 SCC (Cri) 282] , in Benson v. State of Kerala [Benson v. State of Kerala, (2016) 10 SCC 307 : (2017) 1 SCC (Cri) 108] , the Supreme Court directed that the sentences imposed in each of the cases shall run concurrently with the sentence imposed in Crime No. 8 which was then currently operative. However, the Court held that the benefit of "concurrent running of sentences" is granted only with respect of substantive sentences; but the sentences of fine and default sentences shall not be affected by the direction. The Supreme Court observed that the provisions of Section 427 CrPC do not permit a direction for the concurrent running of the default sentence for non-payment of fine.

14. Further, in Anil Kumar v. State of Punjab [Anil Kumar v. State of Punjab, (2017) 5 SCC 53 : (2017) 2 SCC (Cri) 502] , it was held by this Court that: (SCC p. 55, para 5)

"5. In terms of sub-section (1) of Section 427, if a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment is sentenced on a subsequent conviction to imprisonment, such subsequent term of imprisonment would normally commence at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he was previously sentenced. Only in appropriate cases, considering the facts of the case, the court can make the sentence run concurrently with an earlier sentence imposed. The investiture of such discretion, presupposes that such discretion be exercised by the court on sound judicial principles and not in a mechanical manner. Whether or not the discretion is to be exercised in directing sentences to run concurrently would depend upon the nature of the offence/offences and the facts and circumstances of each case."

15. The point falling for consideration is whether the case of the appellant is a fit case for exercising the discretion in directing the sentence of imprisonment to run concurrently with the sentence of imprisonment imposed in the earlier case in FIR No. 64/2011. Of course, FIR No. 64/2011, FIR No. 67/2011 and FIR No. 263/2009 relate to different transactions. Since the appellant was already undergoing imprisonment in FIR No. 64/2011, in terms of Section 427 CrPC, subsequent sentences shall run consecutively until and unless the court specifically directs that they shall run concurrently.

11. The Apex Court in Iqram (supra) has held that if the lower court which had passed the order of the subsequent sentence had failed to exercise its discretion under Section 427 (1) Cr.P.C., while awarding the sentence in the subsequent case, then, on a petition under Section 226 of the Constitution of India, the High Court has powers to exercise such discretion under Section 427 (1) Cr.P.C., and can direct such subsequent sentences to run concurrently to the previously awarded sentence in a previous case. The relevant paragraphs of the judgement in Iqram (supra) reads as under:-

"11. In Mohd. Zahid v. State [Mohd. Zahid v. State, (2022) 12 SCC 426] , this Court interpreted the provisions of Section 427CrPC after duly considering the precedents in the following terms :

"33. Thus from the aforesaid decisions of this Court, the principles of law that emerge are as under:

(i) If a person already undergoing a sentence of imprisonment is sentenced on a subsequent conviction to imprisonment, such subsequent term of imprisonment would normally commence at the expiration of the imprisonment to which he was previously sentenced.

(ii) Ordinarily the subsequent sentence would commence at the expiration of the first term of imprisonment unless the court directs the subsequent sentence to run concurrently with the previous sentence.

(iii) The general rule is that where there are different transactions, different crime numbers and cases have been decided by the different judgments, concurrent sentence cannot be awarded under Section 427CrPC.

(iv) Under Section 427(1)CrPC the court has the power and discretion to issue a direction that all the subsequent sentences run concurrently with the previous sentence, however discretion has to be exercised judiciously depending upon the nature of the offence or the offences committed and the facts in situation. However, there must be a specific direction or order by the court that the subsequent sentence to run concurrently with the previous sentence."

12. The trial Judge, in the present case, granted a set-off within the ambit of Section 428/Section 31 CrPC. No specific direction was issued by the trial court within the ambit of Section 427(1) so as to allow the subsequent sentences to run concurrently. All the convictions took place on the same day.

13. Once the petitioner espoused the remedy of moving a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court ought to have noticed the serious miscarriage of justice which would occur consequent upon the trial court not having exercised specifically its discretion within the ambit of Section 427(1). When the appellant moved the High Court, he was aggrieved by the conduct of the jail authorities in construing the direction of the trial court to mean that each of the sentences would run consecutively at the end of the term of previous sentence and conviction. The High Court ought to have intervened in the exercise of its jurisdiction by setting right the miscarriage of justice which would occur in the above manner, leaving the appellant to remain incarcerated for a period of 18 years in respect of his conviction and sentence in the nine Sessions trials for offences essentially under the Electricity Act.

14. In view of the above discussion, we allow the appeal and set aside the impugned judgment of the High Court dated 24-3-2022 [Iqram v. State of U.P., 2022 SCC OnLine All 875] . We order and direct that the sentences which have been imposed on the appellant in the nine Sessions trials noticed in the earlier part of this judgment shall run concurrently."

12. In Mohd. Zahid (supra), the Apex Court while dealing with the subsequent conviction of the petitioner for the offences under the provisions of the NDPS Act had refused to extend the benefits of Section 427(1) of the Cr.P.C., as in that case the said person previously also was convicted for the provisions of the NDPS Act in two different cases. In such circumstances, the Apex Court had refused to exercise the discretion under Section 427(1) of Cr.P.C. The relevant portion of the said judgement reads as under:-

"18. Applying the law laid down by this Court in the aforesaid decisions and the principles of law enumerated hereinabove to the facts of the case on hand, the submissions on behalf of the appellant-accused that his subsequent sentence to run concurrently with the previous sentence is to be rejected outright. In the present case the appellant has been convicted with respect to two different transactions, there are different crime numbers and the cases have been decided by the different judgments. Therefore, the appellant is not entitled to any benefit of concurrent sentence under Section 427CrPC. As observed hereinabove, there is no specific order or direction issued by the court while imposing the subsequent sentence that the subsequent sentence to run concurrently with the previous sentence.

19. Even otherwise as observed hereinabove under Section 427(1)CrPC, the Court has the power and discretion to issue a direction that the subsequent sentence to run concurrently with the previous sentence in that case also, the discretion has to be exercised judiciously depending upon the nature of offence or the offences committed.

20. In the present case the appellant-accused has been convicted for the offences under the NDPS Act. He has been convicted in one case for recovery of 4 kg heroin and sentenced to undergo 12 years' RI and in another case there is a recovery of 750 grams of heroin and considering Section 31(ii) of the NDPS Act, he has been sentenced to undergo 15 years' RI.

21. No leniency should be shown to an accused who is found to be guilty for the offence under the NDPS Act. Those persons who are dealing in narcotic drugs are instruments in causing death or in inflicting death-blow to a number of innocent young victims who are vulnerable. Such accused causes deleterious effects and deadly impact on the society. They are hazard to the society. Such organised activities of clandestine smuggling of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances into this country and illegal trafficking in such drugs and substances have a deadly impact on the society as a whole. Therefore, while awarding the sentence or punishment in case of the NDPS Act, the interest of the society as a whole is required to be taken into consideration. Therefore, even while applying discretion under Section 427CrPC, the discretion shall not be in favour of the accused who is found to be indulging in illegal trafficking in narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances.

22. As observed hereinabove, even while exercising discretion under Section 427CrPC to run subsequent sentence concurrently with the previous sentence, the discretion is to be exercised judiciously and depending upon the offence/offences committed. Therefore, considering the offences under the NDPS Act which are very serious in nature and against the society at large, no discretion shall be exercised in favour of such accused who is indulging into the offence under the NDPS Act."

13. Thus, from the aforesaid analysis, it is apparently clear that if the trial court in subsequent conviction fails to take note of the previous conviction and sentences such person and thereby fails to apply its discretion as provided under Section 427 Cr.P.C., then, on a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, this Court undoubtedly has the power to entertain such a petition and may, in appropriate cases, apply the discretion as provided under Section 427 of Cr.P.C. However, the mandate of law is that such discretion should be applied judiciously and not mechanically depending upon the facts and circumstances of each case.

14. In the instant case, the petitioner herein was tried and convicted for an offence under Section 20(B)(II)(C) of the NDPS Act in Sessions Trial No. 19 of 2023 and vide order dated 22.07.2015, he was convicted for sentence of rigorous imprisonment for a period of 12 years. On the basis of the same case, another case was lodged under Section 3(1) of the Gangsters Act and he was tried and convicted under the provisions of the Gangsters Act in Sessions Trial No. 28 of 2013 on 29.02.2016 and was awarded sentence of five years of rigorous imprisonment without applying the discretion under Section 427 of Cr.P.C. Therefore, we find that the subsequent conviction of the petitioner herein was not for any further and overt act but for the same act for which he had already been convicted under the provisions of the NDPS Act. Therefore, the subsequent conviction of the petitioner was for the offence of a similar nature without any further overt act. Therefore, in view of the judgement of the Supreme Court in Iqram (supra), we are of the view that this Court while dealing with the case under Habeas Corpus writ petition can extend the benefit of Section 427 of Cr.P.C. to the petitioner herein in view of the judgements of Apex Court as in V.K. Bansal (supra), Anil kumar (supra), Benson (supra), Vicky (supra). Having found that both the cases were arising out of the same offence and were absolutely of similar nature, we extend the benefit under Section 427 (1) Cr.P.C., to the petitioner and we direct that the said sentence of the petitioner awarded under the subsequent case under the Gangsters Act vide judgement and order dated 29.02.2016, shall run concurrently to the sentence already awarded vide judgement and order dated 22.07.2015 under Section 20(B)(II)(C) of the NDPS Act. Since, the petitioner herein has been granted bail in Criminal Appeal No. 4024 of 2015 (Anil Kumar Vs. State of U.P.), vide order dated 09.08.2023, by this Court in the previous case under the provisions of the NDPS Act and since the petitioner herein is in jail since 05.08.2013, as submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioner, therefore, in view of the aforesaid direction that the subsequent sentence of the petitioner shall run concurrently to the previously awarded sentence in NDPS Act, the petitioner herein is entitled to be released in terms of the bail order dated 09.08.2023, passed by this Court in Criminal Appeal No. 4024 of 2015. Accordingly, we direct State Authorities i.e., Respondent nos. 1 and 2, to calculate the period of sentence as if both the sentences had run concurrently and release the petitioner forthwith in terms of bail order dated 09.08.2023 if he is not required in any other case.

15. With these observations the instant Habeas Corpus writ petition is allowed.

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE MANISH KUMAR NIGAM, J.

Matter Under Article 227 No. 90 of 2024

Meera Awasthi & Anr. ...Petitioners
Versus
Ajeet Awasthi & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Petitioners:
Sri Anand Kumar Srivastava, Sri Anand Kumar Srivastava, Dr. Shiv Bahadur Singh

Counsel for the Respondents:--

Civil Law - Civil Procedure Code, 1908 – Order 39 Rules 1 & 2 – Specific Relief Act, 1963 – Section 9 – Constitution of India,1950 -Article 227 - Permanent Injunction – Settled Possession – Title Dispute – Maintainability of Suit for Injunction without Declaration of Title

The petitioners challenged the order dated 31.10.2023 by the Additional District Judge, Kanpur Nagar, allowing Misc. Civil Appeal No. 81 of 2023, which set aside the trial court's order dated 21.08.2023 rejecting a temporary injunction in Original Suit No. 816 of 2020. The suit, filed by respondent No. 1 (Ajeet Awasthi), sought a permanent injunction to restrain the petitioners (his parents, Meera Awasthi and another) from interfering with his possession of House No. N 638, S Block, Yashoda Nagar, Kanpur Nagar. The respondent claimed he purchased the land and constructed the house with his own funds, though registered in his mother's name, while the petitioners asserted ownership, alleging the respondent's possession was permissive as their son. The trial court rejected the injunction, finding no prima facie case, balance of convenience, or irreparable loss, and held possession alone insufficient for an injunction. The appellate court reversed this, directing both parties to maintain status quo. Held: The court, under Article 227, upheld the appellate court's order, emphasizing that Indian law protects settled possession even without title, as per Midnapur Zamindary Co. Ltd. Vs Kumar Naresh Narayan Roy (1924 PC 144), Yar Mohammad Vs Lakshmi Das (AIR 1959 All 1), and Rame Gowda Vs M. Varadappa Naidu ((2004) 1 SCC 769). A person in settled possession, even if permissive, cannot be dispossessed except through legal process. The respondent's admitted possession, though claimed permissive by the petitioners, warranted protection pending trial. The court distinguished Padhiyar Prahladji Chenaji Vs Maniben Jagmalbhai (Civil Appeal No. 1382 of 2022), as title was not yet adjudicated here, unlike in that case where the plaintiff lost on title. Relying on Anathula Sudhakar Vs P. Buchi Reddy ((2008) 4 SCC 594), the court held that a suit for injunction simpliciter based on possession is maintainable when title is disputed but not complex, and title issues can be examined in such suits if pleaded. The respondent's possession, not being that of a trespasser, entitled him to interim protection. The petition was dismissed, affirming the appellate court's status quo order.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anand Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioners and perused the record.

2. Present petition has been filed challenging the order dated 31.10.2023 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 8, Kanpur Nagar allowing the Misc. Civil Appeal No. 81 of 2023 (Ajeet Awasthi v. Meera Awasti and others).

3. The facts of the case in brief are that the plaintiff/respondent no. 1 Ajeet instituted Original Suit No. 816 of 2020 (Ajeet Awasthi v. Meera Awasthi and others) in the court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Kanpur Nagar for the relief of permanent injunction restraining the defendants, their servants, agents, employees, representatives, family members from interfering in the peaceful possession and enjoyment of the plaintiff over the house in dispute (House No. N 638, S Block, Yashoda Nagar, Kanpur Nagar). The case set up by the plaintiff/respondent no. 1 in the plaint in brief is that the plaintiff purchased the land out of his own income in the name of his mother namely Meera Awasthi and thereafter constructed a house from his own funds being House No. N 638, S Block, Yashoda Nagar, Kanpur Nagar and is living along with all his family members in the aforesaid house. It is further pleaded that subsequently, the defendant nos. 1 & 2 (parents of the plaintiff/respondent no. 1) under the influence of their other children started asking the plaintiff to vacate the accommodation and has also given threat to the plaintiff in case the plaintiff/respondent do not vacate the house in question, he will be thrown out from the premises in question and therefore, the present suit is instituted. The plaintiff/respondent no. 1 also filed an application under Order 39 Rule 1 & 2 C.P.C. for grant of temporary injunction. The trial court i.e. Judge Small Causes, Kanpur Nagar by an ex-parte order dated 27.10.2020 restrained the defendants from interfering with the possession of plaintiff over house in dispute and further directed them to maintain status quo. On an application filed by the plaintiff/respondent, paper no. 30Ga, the trial court appointed commissioner vide order dated 07.05.2022. Commissioner has submitted its report on 01.09.2022.

4. After service of notice, the petitioners/defendants appeared before the court below and filed their objections on 13.04.2022 being paper no. 26/27ga to the application for temporary injunction filed by the petitioner. The case set up by the defendants/petitioners is that the land in question is not purchased by the plaintiff out of his own funds and the house constructed thereupon is also not constructed by the plaintiff out of his own funds rather the same is constructed by defendant nos. 1 & 2 out of their own funds. However, in their objections, the defendant/petitioners have admitted that the plaintiff/respondent is residing in the house in question and has thrown out the defendant/petitioner from the property in question, other pleas were also taken.

5. The trial court by order dated 21.08.2023, rejected the application for temporary injunction filed by the defendant/respondent no. 1 holding that there is no prima-facie case, balance of convenience, irreparable loss to the plaintiff. The trial court has also held that an injunction cannot be granted merely on the basis of possession. Against the order dated 21.08.2023, defendant/respondent no. 1 preferred Misc. Civil Appeal No. 81/2023 which has been allowed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 8, Kanpur Nagar by order dated 31.10.2023. The order dated 21.08.2023, passed by the trial court was set-aside by appellate court and appellate court also directed that both the parties will maintain status quo with respect to the house in question. Being aggrieved with the order dated 31.10.2023, the present petition has been filed under Article 227 of Constitution of India by the defendants/petitioners.

6. Contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners is that the land in question was purchased vide sale deed dated 16.02.2004, paper no. 28ga from its earlier owner by Meera Awasthi defendant/petitioner no. 1. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the bank statement paper no. 28Ga/27 and 28Ga/28 to demonstrate that the aforesaid bank account is in the name defendants/petitioners and the money has been paid from the aforesaid account for the purchase of the land. The house tax of the House No. N 638, S Block, Yashoda Nagar, Kanpur Nagar is being paid by Smt. Meera Awasthi and has contended that on the basis of aforesaid documents that Meera Awasthi is the actual owner of the property in dispute. It is further contended by the learned counsel for the petitioners that the plaintiff has failed to prove even prima-facie that the land is purchased by the plaintiff out of his own funds and house is constructed thereupon by the plaintiff out of his own funds. It has also been contended by the learned counsel for the petitioners that the plaintiff is in possession because being son of the defendants and is residing therein with their consent and has no right to reside therein without their consent. The plaintiff has failed to prove that the plaintiff has any legal right to remain in possession over the house in question. It is also contended by the learned counsel for the petitioners that the appellate court has erred in law in granting injunction merely on the basis of possession that to against the true owner. In this regard, the learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in case of Premji Ratan v. Union of India reported in (1994) 5 SCC 574, and Hanumanthappa v. Muniappa reported in 1997 (29) ALR 392 SC.

7. Next, it is contended by learned counsel for the petitioners that the suit filed by the the defendant/respondent was based on his title. The suit itself was defective in as much as declaration of title has not been sought for though the title of plaintiffs was in dispute. It is further submitted that if the suit is based on title and unless the plaintiff proves his prima-facie title, an injunction cannot be granted merely on the basis of possession over the property in dispute. It has been also contended by learned counsel for the petitioners that the suit simpliciter for permanent injunction without claiming declaration of the title, fled by the plaintiff, is not maintainable. In this connection, the learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon the judgment of Apex Court in case of T. V. Ramakrishna Reddy v. M. Mallappa & Anr. In Civil Appeal No. 5577 of 2021 decided on 07.09.2021 and also upon the judgment of the Apex Court in case of Padhiyar Prahladji Chenaji (deceased) through L.R.s v. Maniben Jagmalbhai (Deceased) Through L.R.s and Ors. in Civil Appeal No. 1382 of 2022 decided on 03.03.2022. It is also contended by learned counsel for the petitioners that the plaintiff has been residing in the house in dispute with the consent of the defendant no. 1 and 2 who are the actual owner of the property in dispute and at the best it could be said that the plaintiff has been in possession because of an implied license by the parents which has come to an end and therefore, the plaintiff has no right to remain in possession over the house in dispute and at the best, the plaintiff can ask for damages for unlawful dispossession and no injunction can be issue in favour of the plaintiff who has no legal right to remain in possession over the land in dispute.

8. I do not find any merit in the submissions so made by learned counsel for the petitioner and with force.

5. Salmond states in Jurisprudence (12th Edn.)

"few relationships are as vital to man as that of possession, and we may expect any system of law, however primitive, to provide rules for its protection. . . . . Law must provide for the safeguarding of possession. Human nature being what it is, men are tempted to prefer their own selfish and immediate interests to the wide and long-term interests of society in general. But since an attack on a man's possession is an attack on something which may be essential to him, it becomes almost tantamount to an assault on the man himself; and the possessor may well be stirred to defend himself with force. The result is violence, chaos and disorder." (at pp. 265-66)

"In English Law possession is a good title of right against anyone who cannot show a better. A wrongful possessor has the rights of an owner with respect to all persons except earlier possessors and except the true owner himself. Many other legal systems, however, go much further than this, and treat possession as a provisional or temporary title even against the true owner himself. Even a wrongdoer, who is deprived of his possession, can recover it from any person whatever, simply on the ground of his possession. Even the true owner, who takes his own, may be forced in this way to restore it to the wrongdoer, and will not be permitted to set up his own superior title to it. He must first give up possession, and then proceed in due course of law for the recovery of the thing on the ground of his ownership. The intention of the law is that every possessor shall be entitled to retain and recover his possession, until deprived of it by a judgment according to law." (Salmond, ibid, pp. 294-95) possessory, while those available for the protection of ownership itself may be distinguished as proprietary. In the modern and medieval civil law the distinction is expressed by the contrasted terms petitorium (a proprietary suit) and possessorium (a possessory suit)." (Salmond, ibid, p.295)

"Legal remedies thus appointed for the protection of possession even against ownership are called

6. The law in India, as it has developed, accords with the jurisprudential thought as propounded by Salmond. In Midnapur Zamindary Co. Ltd. Vs. Kumar Naresh Narayan Roy and Ors. 1924 PC 144, Sir John Edge summed up the Indian law by stating that in India persons are not permitted to take forcible possession; they must obtain such possession as they are entitled to through a Court.

9. Full Bench of Allahabad High Court in case of case of Yar Mohammad and another v. Lakshmi Das and others reported in AIR 1959 All 1, it has been held by this Court that law respects possession even if there is no title to support it. It will not permit any person to take the law in his own hands and to dispossess the person in actual possession without having recourse to a court. No person can be allowed to become a judge in his own cause. As observed by Edge, C.J. in Wali Ahmad Khan v. Ayodhya Kundv (ILR XIII Alld, 537 at 558)

"The object of the Section was to drive the person who wanted to eject a person into the proper court and to prevent them from going with high hands and ejecting such person."

10. In case of Lallu Yeshwant Singh v. Rao Jagdish Singh and others reported in AIR 1968 SC 620, it has been held by the Apex Court that even when the land lord forcibly enters on the land in possession of the tenant whose tenancy has expired would amount to a trespass. Para no. 8 of the Lallu Yeshwant Singh (Supra) is quoted as under:

"Some stress was laid on the words "in case of proof of trespass" in s. 326 by the learned counsel for the respondent. According to him, a landlord does not commit trespass when he forcibly enters on land in the possession of a tenant whose tenancy has expired. In our view, in the context, the word "trespass" here would include forcible entry and dispossession by the landlord. Reference was made to a number of English authorities in this behalf but it is not necessary to deal with them because the law in India on this subject is different. Under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act it is well-settled that question of title is irrelevant in a suit under that section. As the structure of s. 326 of Qanoon Mal, read with s. 163 of Qanoon Ryotwari, is similar to s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, there is no. reason why s. 326 should be interpreted differently."

11. In K. K. Verma v. Naraindas C. Malkani reported in ILR (1954) Bombay 950 at page 957, Chagla, C.J. stated that the law in India was initially different from the law in England, he observed:

"Under the Indian law the possession of a tenant who has ceased to be a tenant is protected by law. Although he may not have a right to continue in possession after the termination of the tenancy his possession is juridical and that possession is protected by statute. Under s. 9 of the Specific Relief Act a tenant who has ceased to be a tenant may sue for possession against his landlord if the landlord deprives him of possession otherwise than in due course of law, but a trespasser who has 'been thrown out of possession cannot go to Court under s. 9 and claim possession against the true Owner."

12. In case of Ram Rattan and others v. State of U.P. reported in AIR 1977 SC 619, it has been held by the Apex Court that person in settled possession can only be dispossessed even by the true owner by taking recourse to the remedies available to him under law. Relevant portion of para no. 4 of Rama Rattan (Supra) is quoted as under:

"It is well settled that a true owner has every right to dispossess or throw out a trespasser, while the trespasser is in the act or process of trespassing and has not accomplished his possession, but this right is not available to the true owner if the trespasser has been successful in accomplishing his possession to the knowledge of the true owner. In such circumstances the law requires that the true owner should dispossess the trespasser by taking recourse to the remedies available under the law. In view of the clear finding of the High Court that the complainant Ram Khelawan even after encroachment had established his possession over the land in dispute for two to three weeks before the occurrence, for the purpose of criminal law, the complainant must be treated to be in actual physical possession of the land so as to have a right of private defence to defend his possession even against the true-owner."

While it may not be possible to lay down a rule of universal application as to when the possession of a trespasser become complete and accomplish.

13. In case of Puran Singh and another v. State of Punjab reported in AIR 1975 SC 1674, in para no. 11 of the aforesaid judgment, the Apex Court has held as under:

"11. In this case there was a concurrent finding of fact that Jamuna was in effective possession of the field on the date of occurrence and the prosecution had alleged that P.Ws 17 and I had taken possession of the property but the finding of the Court was that P.Ws 17 and 19 had not been put in possession by virtue of the delivery of possession given by the Court. It was against this context that the observations referred to above were made. This Court clearly pointed out that where a trespasser was in settled possession of the land he is not entitled to be evicted except in due course of law and be is further entitled to resist or defend his possession even against the rightful owner who tries to dispossess him. The only condition laid down by this Court was that the possession of the trespasser must be settled possession. The Court explained that the settled possession must be extended over a sufficiently long period and acquiesced in by the true owner. This particular expression has persuaded the High Court to hold that since the possession of the appellants party in this case was only a month old, it cannot be deemed to be a settled possession. We, however, think that this is not what this Court meant in defining the nature of the settled possession. It is indeed difficult to lay down any hard and fast rule as to when the possession of a trespasser can mature into a settled possession. But what this Court really meant was that the possession of a trespasser must be effective, undisturbed and to the knowledge of the owner or without any attempt at concealment. For instance a stray or a casual act of possession would not amount to settled possession. There is no special charm or magic in the word 'settled possession' nor is it a ritualistic formula which can be confined in a strait jacket but it has been used to mean such clear and effective possession of a person, even if he is a trespasser, who gets the right under the criminal law to &fend his property against attack even by the true owner. Similarly an occupation of the property by a person as an agent or a servant at the instance of the owner will not amount to actual physical possession. Thus in our opinion the nature of possession in such cases which may entitle a trespasser to exercise the right of private defence of property and person should contain the following attributes:

(I) that the trespasser must be in actual physical possession of property over a sufficiently long period;

(ii) that the possession must be to the knowledge either express or implied of the owner or without any attempt at concealment and which contains an element of animus prossendie. The nature of possession of the trespasser would however be a matter to be decided on facts and circumstances of each case ;

(iv)that one of the usual tests to determine the quality of settled possession, in the case of culturable land, would be whether or not the trespasser, after having taken possession, had grown any crop. If the crop had been grown by the trespasser, then even the true owner has no right to destroy the crop grown by the trespasser and take forcible possession, in which case the trespasser will have a right of private defence and the true owner will have no right of private defence. These principles logically flow from a long catena of cases decided by this Court as well as other High Courts some of which have been referred to in the judgment of this Court in Munshi Ram's case, AIR 1968 SC 706= (1968 Cri LJ 806) (supra).”

14. In case of State of U.P. and another v. Maharaja Dharmander Prasad Singh etc. reported in AIR 1989 SC 997, the Apex Court has held as under:

“A lessor, with the best of title, has no right to resume possession extra-judicially by use of force, from a lessee, even after the expiry or earlier termination of the lease by forfeiture or otherwise. The use of the expression 're- entry' in the lease-deed does not authorise extrajudicial methods to resume possession. Under law, the possession of a lessee, even after the expiry or its earlier termination is juridical possession and forcible dispossession is prohibit- ed; a lessee cannot be dispossessed otherwise than in due course of law. In the present case, the fact that the lessor is the State does not place it in any higher or better position. On the contrary, it is under an additional inhibition stemming from the requirement that all actions of Government and Governmental authorities should have a 'legal pedigree'. In Bishandas v. State of Punjab, (1962) 2 SCR 69: (AIR 1961 SC 1570), this Court said (at pp. 1574 and 1573 of AIR):

"We must, therefore, repel the argument based on the contention that the petitioners were trespassers and could be removed by an executive order. The argument is not only specious but highly dangerous by reason of its implications and impact on law and order."

"Before we part with this case, we feel it our duty to say that the executive action taken in this case by the State and its officers is destructive of the basic principle of the rule of law."

Therefore, there is no question in the present case of the Government thinking of appropriating to itself an extra-judicial right of re-entry. Possession can be resumed by Government only in a manner known to or recognised by law. It cannot resume possession otherwise than in accord- ance with law. Government is, accordingly, prohibited from taking possession otherwise than in due course of law."

15. In case of Krishna Ram Mahale (dead) by his L.R.s, v. Mrs. Shobha Venkat Rao reported in 1989 SC 2907, in para no. 8 of the judgment, the Apex Court has held as under:

"8. Mr. Tarkunde, learned Counsel for defendant No. 3, the appellant herein, rightly did not go into the appreciation of the evidence either by the Trial Court or the High Court or the factual conclusions drawn by them. It was, however, strongly urged by him that the period of licence had expired long back and the plaintiff was not entitled to the renewal of licence. It was submitted by him that in view of the licence having come to an end, the plaintiff had no right to remain in charge of the business or the premises where it was conducted and all that the plaintiff could ask for was damages for unlawful dispossess ion even on the footing of facts as found by the High Court. We find ourselves totally unable to accept the submission of Mr. Tarkunde. It is a well-settled law in this country that where a person is in settled possession of property, even on the assumption that he had no right to remain on the property, he cannot be dispossessed by the owner of the property except by recourse to law.

16. In case of Krishna Ram Mahale (Supra), the Apex Court held that the respondents as she filed suit for recovery of possession of premises upon which she had entered as licensee to conduct the business of restaurant, she was subsequently dispossessed by the licenser unlawfully and behind her back, she was entitled with decree for recovery of possession. Since she was unlawfully dispossessed, it could not be said that the license having expired long back and the plaintiff not being entitled to renewal of license could only ask for damages for unlawful possession.

17. In case of Samir Sobhan Sanyal v. Tracks Trade Private Ltd. and others reported in (1996) 4 SCC 144. The Apex Court has held as under in paragraph no. 6 of the aforesaid judgment:

"6. It would thus be clear that without any decree or order of eviction of the appellant from the demised premises, he has been unlawfully dispossessed from the premises without any due process of law. The question, therefore, is: whether he should be allowed to remain in possession till his application under Order 21, Rules 98 and 99 is adjudicated upon and an order made. Though the learned counsel for the 1st respondent and also for the 3rd respondent, who is one of the transferees from the 6th respondent, sought to contend that the appellant has no right to remain in possession after the lessee, M/s. India Foils Ltd. had admitted by a resolution that the appellant has no right to remain in possession, we are not impressed with the arguments. At this state, we are only concerned with his admitted possession of the demised premises. What rights would flow from a contract between him and him employer is a matter to be adjudicated in his application filed under Order 21, Rules

98 3nd 99, CPC. At this stage, it is premature to go into and record any finding in that behalf. The learned counsel for the 1st respondent also repeatedly sought to bring to our notice that on account of the orders of the Court Officer passed by the High Court the maintenance cost has been mounting up due to the delay in disposal of the proceedings in various courts. Even with regard to that, we are not impressed with the same. Since the letter of the law should strictly be adhered to, we find that high-handed action taken by the respondent Nos. 1, 3 and 6 in having the appellant dispossessed without due process of Haw, cannot be overlooked nor condoned. The Court cannot blink at their unlawful conduct to dispossess the appellant from demised property and would say that the status quo be maintained. If the Court gives acceptance to such high-handed action, there will be no respect for rule of law and unlawful elements would take hold of the due process of law for ransom and it would be a field day for anarchy. Due process of law should be put to ridicule in the estimate of the law-abiding citizens and rule of law would remain a mortuary."

18. In case of Rame Gowda (Dead) by Lrs. v. M. Varadappa Naidu (Dead) by Lrs. and another reported in (2004) 1 SCC 769, the Apex Court considering the law on subject has held as under:

"In India persons are not permitted to take forcible possession; they must obtain such possession as they are entitled to through a Court. The person in peaceful possession is entitled to retain his possession and in order to protect such possession he may even use reasonable force to keep out a trespasser. A rightful owner who has been wrongfully dispossessed of land may retake possession if he can do so peacefully and without the use of unreasonable force. If the trespasser is in settled possession of the property belonging to the rightful owner, the rightful owner shall have to take recourse to law; he cannot take the law in his own hands and evict the trespasser or interfere with his possession. The law will come to the aid of a person in peaceful and settled possession by injuncting even a rightful owner from using force or taking law in his own hands, and also by restoring him in possession even from the rightful owner (of course subject to the law of limitation), if the latter has dispossessed the prior possessor by use of force. A rightful owner who has been wrongfully dispossessed of land may retake possession if he can do so peacefully and without the use of unreasonable force.

In the present case the Court has found the plaintiff as having failed in proving his title. Nevertheless, he has been found to be in settled possession of the property. Even the defendant failed in proving his title over the disputed land so as to substantiate his entitlement to evict the plaintiff. The Trial Court therefore left the question of title open and proceeded to determine the suit on the basis of possession, protecting the established possession and restraining the attempted interference therewith. The Trial Court and the High Court have rightly decided the suit. It is still open to the defendant-appellant to file a suit based on his title against the plaintiff-respondent and evict the latter on the former establishing his better right to possess the property

Where the suit for declaration of title and injunction is filed and the title is not clear, the question of title will have to be kept open without denying the plaintiff's claim for injunction in view of the fact that the plaintiff has been in possession and there is nothing to show that the plaintiff has gained possession by any unfair means just prior to the suit. It would suffice if he proves that he was in lawful possession of the same and that his possession was invaded or threatened to be invaded by a person who has no title thereof.

19. Again in case of Subramaniaswamy Temple, Ratnagiri Vs. V. Kanna Gounder (Dead) by Lrs. reported in 2009 (106) RD 77, the Apex Court has held in para no. 11 & 13 as under:

"11. It is now well settled that in India, nobody can take possession of an immoveable property except in accordance with law. Respondent was a licensee under the appellant. He was evicted from the shop which was allotted in his favour. If he had encroached upon a portion of the Poramboke land, he could have been evicted by the temple on the basis of its possessory title.

12. If, thus, the temple was in prior possession of the land which would be evident from the classification made by the State Government and recognition of its right thereover, it also had right to initiate proceedings in a civil court for eviction of a rank trespasser. In a case of this nature, the court was required to consider as to who was in prior possession. Only in the event the respondent was in a position to show that he had a better title, he could continue with the possession. The only defence taken by him was that the suit land pertains to Survey No.144 and not Survey No.370/1. Such a contention has been negatived by the trial court as also by the first appellate court. A finding of fact had been arrived at. Having regard to the concurrent finding of fact as regards the possession of the parties, vis-a-vis, their respective title in and over the suit land. The High Court, while exercising its jurisdiction under Section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, was required to formulate a substantial question of law which might have arisen for its consideration. No question of law was framed far less any substantial question of law relating to identification of the property. The High Court, therefore, in our opinion completely misdirected itself in passing the impugned judgment.

13. The law operating in this connection having been noticed by this Court in Rame Gowda (D) by Lrs. v. M. Varadappa Naidu (D) by Lrs. and Anr. [(2004) 1 SCC 769], we need not enter into a deeper probe. Therein it was held :

"8. It is thus clear that so far as the Indian law is concerned, the person in peaceful possession is entitled to retain his possession and in order to protect such possession he may even use reasonable force to keep out a trespasser. A rightful owner who has been wrongfully dispossessed of land may retake possession if he can do so peacefully and without the use of unreasonable force. If the trespasser is in settled possession of the property belonging to the rightful owner, the rightful owner shall have to take recourse to law; he cannot take the law in his own hands and evict the trespasser or interfere with his possession. The law will come to the aid of a person in peaceful and settled possession by injuncting even a rightful owner from using force or taking the law in his own hands, and also by restoring him in possession even from the rightful owner (of course subject to the law of limitation), if the latter has dispossessed the prior possessor by use of force. In the absence of proof of better title, possession or prior peaceful settled possession is itself evidence of title. Law presumes the possession to go with the title unless rebutted. The owner of any property may prevent even by using reasonable force a trespasser from an attempted trespass, when it is in the process of being committed, or is of a flimsy character, or recurring, intermittent, stray or casual in nature, or has just been committed, while the rightful owner did not have enough time to have recourse to law. In the last of the cases, the possession of the trespasser, just entered into would not be called as one acquiesced to by the true owner.

9. It is the settled possession or effective possession of a person without title which would entitle him to protect his possession even as against the true owner. The concept of settled possession and the right of the possessor to protect his possession against the owner has come to be settled by a catena of decisions."

20. In case of Ranjit Kaur v. Harmohinder Singh (Major) and others reported in 2012 (1) AWC 14 (SC), the Apex Court in para no. 11 has held as under:

"11. However, we find merit in the arguments of learned senior counsel for the appellant that the High Court was not justified in vacating the restraint order passed by the trial Court against the dispossession of his client. Learned counsel is right in his submission that even though in the decree of divorce, the appellant has not been given a right of residence and her occupation of the suit property can be treated as unauthorized, respondent No. 1 cannot evict her except after following the procedure established by law. The material placed on record shows that the appellant had entered into the property as the wife of respondent No. 1. Therefore, even though, after passing of the decree of the divorce she may not have a legal right to continue to remain in possession of the suit property, respondent No. 1 cannot be given liberty to forcibly evict her."

21. In case of Hanumanthappa v. Muninarayanappa (Supra), relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner, is not applicable to the facts of the present case as in Hanumanthappa v. Muninarayanappa (Supra), the appellant was in possession over the property in dispute pursuant to a compromise decree. The Apex Court held that appellant being in lawful possession of the property as an owner and the respondents being not party to the compromise decree, no injunction can be issued against the appellant lawful owner.

22. In case of Padhiyar Prahladji Chenaji (Supra), the Apex Court was considering the question whether in a case where plaintiff has lost so far as the title is concerned and the defendant against whom permanent injunction is sought, is the true owner of the land, whether the plaintiff is entitled to a relief of permanent injunction against the true owner, more particularly, when the plaintiff has lost so far as his title is concerned and can thereafter, the plaintiff be permitted to content that despite the fact that the plaintiff has lost so far as title is concerned, her possession be protected by way of injunction and that the true owner has to file a substantive suit claiming possession. Para no. 9 of the judgment is quoted as under:

"Even otherwise on merits also, the Courts below have erred in passing the decree of permanent injunction restraining the defendant No.1 from disturbing the alleged possession of the plaintiff. Assuming for the sake of argument that the plaintiff is found to be in possession, in that case also, once the plaintiff has lost so far as the relief of declaration and title is concerned and the defendant No.1 is held to be the true and absolute owner of the property in question, pursuant to the execution of the sale deed dated 17.06.1975 in his favour, the true owner cannot be restrained by way of an injunction against him. In a given case, the plaintiff may succeed in getting the injunction even by filing a simple suit for permanent injunction in a case where there is a cloud on the title. However, once the dispute with respect to title is settled and it is held against the plaintiff, in that case, the suit by the plaintiff for permanent injunction shall not be maintainable against the true owner. In such a situation, it will not be open for the plaintiff to contend that though he/she has lost the case so far as the title dispute is concerned, the defendant – the true owner still be restrained from disturbing his/her possession and his/her possession be protected. In the present case, as observed hereinabove and it is not in dispute that the suit filed by the plaintiff for cancellation of the registered sale deed and declaration has been dismissed and the registered sale deed in favour of the defendant No.1 has been believed and thereby defendant No.1 is held to be the true and absolute owner of the suit land in question. The judgment and decree passed by the trial court in so far as refusing to grant the relief for cancellation of the registered sale deed and declaration has attained finality. Despite the fact that the plaintiff has lost so far as the title is concerned, still the Courts below have granted relief of permanent injunction against the defendant No.1 – the absolute owner of the land in question, which is unsustainable, both, on law as well as on facts. An injunction cannot be issued against a true owner or title holder and in favour of a trespasser or a person in unlawful possession."

23. In the present case, the question of title is yet to be adjudicated in the trial and the possession of plaintiff is admitted over the property in dispute. The law laid down by Apex Court in Padhiyar Prahladji (Supra) will not apply to the facts of the present case as in Padhiyar Prahladji (Supra) the plaintiff has lost so far as the title is concerned.

24. In the present case the possession of the plaintiff/respondent is admitted. Stand taken by defendants/petitioners is that plaintiff/respondent is residing in the house being son of defendants/petitioners. The possession of plaintiff/respondent cannot be held to be unauthorised, possession of plaintiff/respondent is permissive and plaintiff/respondent cannot be held to be trespasser.

25. The contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the suit itself is not maintainable as no declaration of title has been sought by the plaintiff is misconceived. The law does not prohibit for filing a suit merely for injunction based on possession.

26. In case of T. V. Ramakrishna Reddy (Supra), relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner while considering the question whether the learned Single Judge of the High Court was right in holding that the suit simpliciter for permanent injunction without claiming declaration of title as filed by the plaintiff was maintainable. The Apex Court relied upon the judgment in case of Anathula Sudhakar v. P. Buchi Reddy (Dead) by LRs and others reported in 1 (2008) 4 SCC 594 has held that where there are necessary pleadings regarding title and appropriate issue relating to title on which the parties lead evidence if the matter involved is simple and straight forward, the court may decide upon the issue regarding title. Even in suit for injunction, however, such cases are exception to the normal rule that the question of title will not be decided in suit for injunction.

In case of T. V. Ramakrishna Reddy (Supra), the Apex Court quoted in para no. 21 of Anathula Sudhakar (Supra) which is quoted as under:

"To summarize, the position in regard to suits for prohibitory injunction relating to immovable property, is as under:

(a) Where a cloud is raised over plaintiff's title and he does not have possession, a suit for declaration and possession, with or without a consequential injunction, is the remedy. Where the plaintiff's title is not in dispute or under a cloud, but he is out of possession, he has to sue for possession with a consequential injunction. Where there is merely an interference with plaintiff's lawful possession or threat of dispossession, it is sufficient to sue for an injunction simpliciter.

(b) As a suit for injunction simpliciter is concerned only with possession, normally the issue of title will not be directly and substantially in issue. The prayer for injunction will be decided with reference to the finding on possession. But in cases where de jure possession has to be established on the basis of title to the property, as in the case of vacant sites, the issue of title may directly and substantially arise for consideration, as without a finding thereon, it will not be possible to decide the issue of possession.

(c) But a finding on title cannot be recorded in a suit for injunction, unless there are necessary pleadings and appropriate issue regarding title [either specific, or implied as noticed in Annaimuthu Thevar (supra)]. Where the averments regarding title are absent in a plaint and where there is no issue relating to title, the court will not investigate or examine or render a finding on a question of title, in a suit for injunction. Even where there are necessary pleadings and issue, if the matter involves complicated questions of fact and law relating to title, the court will relegate the parties to the remedy by way of comprehensive suit for declaration of title, instead of deciding the issue in a suit for mere injunction.

(d) Where there are necessary pleadings regarding title, and appropriate issue relating to title on which parties lead evidence, if the matter involved is simple and straight-forward, the court may decide upon the issue regarding title, even in a suit for injunction. But such cases, are the exception to the normal rule that question of title will not be decided in suits for injunction.

27. Law relied upon by the defendants/petitioners does not lay down that under any circumstances suit bases on possession cannot be filed without seeking declaration of title. Question of title can be looked into in a suit for injunction unless the same is very complicated.

28. In case of Premji Ratan se Saha (Supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner, the Apex Court held that injunction would not be issued against the true owner even assuming that the plaintiff has any possession, their possession wholly is unlawful possession of a trespasser and an injunction would not be issued in favour of a trespasser or a person who gained unlawful possession as against the person who is the true owner. This case is not applicable to the facts of the present case as the possession of the plaintiff/respondent is permissive though as per the case of the petitioners plaintiff is in possession being the son of the defendants/petitioners and the plaintiff/respondent cannot be said to a trespasser or a person who gained possession unlawfully against the true owner. Thus, in view of the law laid down by the Apex Court, it is clear that a person who is in settled possession cannot be dispossessed except in accordance with law.

29. In case of S. R. Ezaz v. The Tamil Nadu Handloom Weavers Co-operative Society Ltd. reported in 2002 (48) ALR 73, the Apex Court has held as under: "In our view, if such actions by the mighty or powerful are condoned in a democratic country, nobody would be safe nor the citizens can protect their properties. Law frowns upon such conduct. The Court accords legitimacy and legality only to possession taken in due course of law. If such actions are condoned, the fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution of India or the legal rights would be given go bye either by the authority or by rich and influential persons or by musclemen. Law of jungle will prevail and 'might would be right' instead of 'right being might'. This Court in State of U.P. and others vs. Maharaja Dharmander Prasad Singh and others [(1989) 2 SCC 505] dealt with the provisions of Transfer of Property Act and observed that a lessor, with the best of title, has no right to resume possession extra-judicially by use of force, from a lessee, even after the expiry or earlier termination of the lease by forfeiture or otherwise. Under law, the possession of a lessee, even after the expiry or its earlier termination is juridical possession and forcible dispossession is prohibited. The Court also held that there is no question of Government withdrawing or appropriating to it an extra judicial right of re-entry and the possession of the property can be resumed by the Government only in a manner known to or recognized by law."

30. In the present case, the plaintiff has asked for a decree of injunction restraining the defendants from interfering in the peaceful possession and enjoyment of the plaintiff in respect of House No. N 638, S Block, Yashoda Nagar, Kanpur Nagar. In the plaint, the plaintiff has also claimed himself to be the owner of the property. So far as the possession of the plaintiff is concerned, the same is not denied by the defendants/petitioners as it is admitted that the plaintiff is residing in the house with the consent of the defendants being their son, however, the defendant in suit have claimed ownership in the property in dispute. The question of ownership will be decided only after framing of issues in this regard and considering the evidence of the parties at the time of trial of the suit. Since, the possession of the plaintiff is admitted, the lower appellate court has committed no illegality in protecting possession of the plaintiff.

31. Consequently, the writ petition fails and is accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. This is a batch of four petitions preferred under Article 227 of the Constitution of India assailing the order dated 20.12.2023 passed by the District Judge, Bahraich and order dated 07.11.2023 passed by the Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division)/F.T.C. Bahraich whereby the application preferred by the private respondents under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. has been allowed and also holding that the said application was within time and was not barred by limitation.

2. Since the issue involved in all the four petitions are common and the matter is in between the same parties, consequently, all the four petitions are being decided by this common judgment.

3. The Court has heard Sri Rajeiu Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner. Sri S.C. Sitapuri, learned counsel who has filed his vakalatnama on behalf of the private respondent nos. 2 and 4 in the petition bearing No. 96 (A-227) of 2024 which is taken on record. Sri Piyush Asthana, learned counsel appearing for respondent no. 1 and 3, Sri Pawan Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the respondent nos. 5 and 6.

4. The learned counsel for the private respondents submitted that they do not wish to file any counter affidavit as only a question of law is involved, hence, with the consent of learned counsel for the parties, the Court has heard the matter and it is being decided at the admission stage itself.

5. For the sake of convenience, the Court has lifted the facts from the Petition No. 96 (A-227) of 2024 and shall refer to the parties as impleaded in the instant petitions.

6. In order to appreciate the controversy involved in the instant four petitions, it will be appropriate to delineate the facts giving rise to the instant petitions.

7. That the petitioners before this Court, were the plaintiffs in Regular Suit No. 1146 of 2018 while the private respondents were the defendants. The petitioners filed a suit as aforesaid, seeking a decree of cancellation of sale deed dated 16.09.1982 and injunction. The sale deed was executed by Ram Pyare in favour of the private respondents and it was impugned on the ground that Ram Pyare was the grand-father (maternal) of the petitioners who bequeathed the property to the petitioners by means of his will dated 10.09.1982.

8. It is only at a later stage that when the defendants of the suit attempted to get their names mutated in the revenue records on the basis of the alleged sale deed dated 06.09.1982 that the petitioners became aware of the sale deed and thus filed the said suit. The suit proceeded ex-parte against the defendants and it was finally decided ex-parte on 13.09.1982.

9. The ex-parte judgment an decree dated 13.09.1982 was assailed by the defendants of the suit by filing application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C.in two sets; (i) one set of the defendants namely Mukut Bihar, Arvind Kumar Tripathi, Anand Prakash Tripathi and Akhilesh Tripathi filed an application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. along with an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act. This was registered as miscellaneous Case no. 289 of 2023. The other set of defendants namely Asha Devi and Anita Devi filed a separate application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. along with an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act which was registered as Misc. Case No. 305 of 2023.

10. In both the aforesaid two cases, notices were issued to the plaintiffs (the petitioners herein). Both the Misc. Cases namely Case No. 289 of 2023 and 305 of 2023 were heard together and the Trial court by means of order dated 26.10.2023 found that the application filed by the defendants in two sets were within time in terms of Article 123 of the Schedule appended with the Limitation Act of 1963 and consequently it rejected the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act for the aforesaid reasons.

11. The petitioners herein moved an application in both the misc. cases as aforesaid and sought the dismissal of the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. on the ground that as Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 applications have been rejected so also the petitions under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. ought to have been rejected consequently.

12. These two applications were rejected by the Trial Court on 31.10.2023 and the Trial Court thereafter fixed 07.11.2023 for orders on the application under Order 9 Rule 13 and accordingly on 07.11.2023, the applications under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. were allowed holding that the defendants of the suit did not have adequate notice and they were prevented by sufficient cause from contesting the proceedings and since the nature of the ex-parte decree dated 13.09.2022 was joint and several, hence, setting aside of the decree in respect of one set of defendants would entail the setting aside of the decree as a whole enuring to the benefit of the other set of defendants, too.

13. The petitioners being aggrieved preferred four Civil Revisions before the District Judge, Bahraich assailing the order dated 31.10.2023 and the order dated 07.11.2023. Both orders were challenged in both the sets of cases and as such this resulted in four civil revisions bearing No. 66 of 2023, 67 of 2023 which arose from Misc. Case No. 289 of 2023 whereas the Civil Revision No. 68 of 2023 and 69 of 2023 are the cases arising out of Misc. Case No. 305 of 2023.

14. The Revisional Court did not find favour with the submissions advanced by the revisionist and consequently all four revisions as aforesaid were dismissed upholding the order passed by the Trial Court. As a consequence, the petitioners have preferred these four petitions under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and the order dated 31.10.2023 and 07.11.2023 arising out of Civil Revision Nos.66 of 2023 and 67 of 2023 have given rise to the two petitions bearing Nos. 96 (A-227) of 2024 and 347 (A-227) of 2024. Similarly, the order dated 31.10.2023 and 07.11.2023 passed in Civil Revision No. 68 of 2023 and 69 of 2023 relating to Misc. Case no. 305 of 2023 has given rise to a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India bearing No. 91 (A-227) of 2024 and 342 (A-227) of 2024.

15. It is in the aforesaid backdrop that all the four petitions were connected and heard together. In the aforesaid four petitions, the order dated 31.10.2023 and 07.11.2023 has been challenged on common grounds.

16. Sri Rajeiu Tripathi, learned counsel for the petitioners while assailing the orders in all the petitions has primarily raised two questions for consideration of this Court:-

(I) It is urged that once an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act of 1963 was rejected by the Trial Court on 26.10.2023, it was only obvious that the petition under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. ought to have been rejected consequently.

17. It is urged that the petitioners have moved an application on 31.10.2023 requiring the Trial Court to consider this aspect and since the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act already stood rejected, the petitions under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. ought to have been dismissed but the Trial Court without affording any opportunity of hearing on the same date itself i.e. 31.10.2023 rejected the said applications moved by the petitioners and thereafter the order dated 07.11.2023 allowing the petitions under Order 9 Rule 13 was passed and the petitioners were not even aware of the order dated 31.10.2023 which came to the notice of the petitioners only when the order dated 07.11.2023 was passed.

18. In the aforesaid circumstances, the petitioners have been prevented from agitating their cause appropriately before the Trial Court and this aspect of the matter has also not been appropriately dealt with by the Revisional Court resulting in sheer miscarriage of justice;

(II) The other limb of submission of learned counsel for the petitioners is that the two courts have not considered the provisions of law applicable to the instant case in the correct perspective.

19. The contention is that in terms of Section 27 C.P.C. summons have to be issued to the defendants in a suit and in the instant case, the service report indicated that despite the summons having been sent to the correct address of the defendant, they evaded the service. In the aforesaid backdrop, the Trial Court had also sent summons by registered post which also did not return, as a result, a presumption in terms of Order 5 Rule 19-A C.P.C. was available to the court. The Trial Court being cautious also permitted the petitioners (the plaintiffs before the Trial Court) to get the defendants served through substituted service in terms of Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C.

20. It is submitted that Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C. was amended by the amending Act No. 104 of 1976 which came into effect from 01.02.1977. It is further submitted that sub Rule 2 of Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C. clearly provides that substituted service shall be as effectual as if it had been made on the defendant personally and in this view of the matter the service upon the defendants would be effectual as personal service, consequently, while moving an application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C., it was incumbent upon the defendants to have moved the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act (which was actually done by the defendants) but the Trial Court as well as the Revisional Court failed to appreciate the provisions of Article 123 appended to the Limitation Act, 1963and by wrongly applying the principle as provided in the Explanation appended to Article 123 in the schedule appended to the Limitation Act, the Trial Court and the Revisional Court treated the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. to be within time from the date of knowledge.

21. Taking his submissions forward, Sri Tripathi urged that Article 123 clearly provides a period of limitation of 30 days for moving an application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. and it has been emphasized that the time from which the period begins to run is to be reckoned from the date of the decree as in the instant case the summons were duly served on the defendants.

22. It is urged that only when the summons are not duly served then the period of limitation of 30 days is to be reckoned from the date when the person moving the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. gets knowledge of the decree.

23. It is further urged that there is an apparent discrepancy in Order 5 Rule 20 (2) C.P.C. and the explanation appended to Article 123 in the scheduled appended with the Limitation Act, 1963.

24. Sri Tripathi has urged that the explanation appended to Article 123 states that substituted service in terms of Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C. shall not be deemed to be due service. It is stated that the Trial Court and the Revisional Court has granted the benefit of this explanation to the defendants and has treated the application under Order

9 Rule 13 C.P.C. to be within the period of 30 days granting the benefits to the defendants of the time for commencement of limitation from the date of knowledge of the decree.

25. It is urged that once it is provided in Order 5 Rule 20 (2) C.P.C. that the service through substituted mode shall be as effectual as having been made personally then the summons served through publication would amount to sufficient personal service and in the aforesaid circumstances, the time period will have to be reckoned from the date of the decree and not from the date of the knowledge and in the aforesaid circumstances where admittedly the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was filed in the month of July, 2023 whereas the ex-parte decree was dated 13.09.2022, hence, the two courts ought to have considered the ground shown in the said application and Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 whether it constituted sufficient cause but the two courts have grossly erred in holding that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was within time and for the said reason, the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 filed by the private respondents in two separate miscellaneous cases were incorrectly decided vide order dated 26.10.2023 which was patently erroneous.

26. It is urged that for the very same reason, the application dated 31.10.2023 by which the petitioners prayed that the application under 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. be rejected was erroneously dismissed and as a consequence the order dated 07.11.2023 by which the Trial Court allowed the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. is also bad, thus, the petitions deserve to be allowed.

27. The learned counsel for the petitioners in support of his submissions has relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in S. Sundaram Pillai and Others Vs. V.R. Pattabariman and Others; 1985 (1) SCC 591 to explain that what is the ambit of an explanation or a proviso which is appended to a statutory provision.

28. Relying upon the aforesaid decision, it is urged that the proviso is meant to be an exception to something within the main enactment or it is to qualify something enacted therein, however, as far as an explanation is concerned, it is intended to explain the meaning of the provision and when there is obscurity or vagueness in the provision, the explanation is meant to clarify the same to make it consistent with the dominant object which it seems to subserve and it is meant to provide additional support to the dominant object of the provision.

29. It is further urged that the explanation is to be interpreted in a manner that it should support the main provision but nevertheless it cannot have a purpose of taking away a statutory right with which any person under the Statute has been provided with some benefit nor it can set to naught the working of the provision by becoming a hindrance.

30. It is further submitted by Sri Tripathi that the manner in which the Trial Court and the Revisional Court have passed the order dated 26.10.2023 rejecting the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 holding that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 was within time from the date of knowledge of the decree, it has incorrectly applied the explanation to Article 123 and by doing so it has rendered the provisions of Order 5

Rule-20 (2) C.P.C. redundant which could not have been done. Accordingly, the petition deserves to be allowed after setting aside the impugned orders.

31. On behalf of the private respondents, Sri Piyush Asthana and Sri Pawan Mishra, learned counsel have responded to the submissions of the learned counsel for the petitioners and it has been pointed out that the instant petitions are bad, inasmuch as, the petitioners have not assailed the order dated 26.10.2023 by which the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963, though rejected, but in effect the Trial Court had held that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was within time and therefore there was no requirement to move the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963. It is urged that without assailing the order dated 26.10.2023, the arguments of the petitioners pales into insignificance as the primary order has not been assailed.

32. It is further urged by the learned counsel for the private respondents that admittedly in so far as Smt. Asha Devi and Anita Devi are concerned, there was a clear averment that they were not residing at the given address since the daughter of Asha Devi was residing in Surkhet, Nepal and Asha Devi was also residing with her daughter, hence, neither the summons sent through registered post were served nor the publication made in the Hindi Daily Jan Morcha could be treated as due service as it had no circulation worth its name in Surkhet, Nepal.

33. It is further urged that once there was ample material available on record of the Trial Court especially the endorsement on the registered cover that Asha Devi was residing in Surkhet, Nepal, it was incumbent upon the plaintiffs (the petitioners herein) to have got the summons served to the petitioners at their address in Surkhet, Nepal. In the aforesaid circumstances, without doing so, the application for getting the defendants served through publication was also improper but nevertheless even the newspaper summons could not be treated to be duly served as the newspaper namely Jan Morcha was not having adequate circulation and this was contrary to Order 5 Rule 20-A C.P.C.

34. It is submitted that in the aforesaid circumstances, where the petitioners have not assailed the order dated 26.10.2023 and the Trial Court by the said order had categorically held that for the purposes of the disposal of the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, there was no due service on the defendants of the second set namely Asha Devi and Anita Devi, hence, the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was within time as it has been moved within 30 days from the date of knowledge of the decree.

35. It is submitted that the reasoning given by the Trial Court is based on sound principles of law and requires no interference. The petitioners have erred in moving the application which came to be rejected on 31.10.2023 as once it was held by the Trial Court that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was within time. However, merely because the Trial Court held in its order that the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act is rejected, it did not mean that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. would be rejected automatically as the reason was that the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 was actually not required since the Application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was within time.

36. It would have been a different scenario altogether if the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act moved by the defendants would have been rejected on the merits holding that the defendants were unable to justify the delay and could not establish a sufficient cause then perhaps the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner could be appreciated that as a consequence the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. be dismissed.

37. It is urged that in the instant case, the Trial Court found that since the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was within time from the date of knowledge, hence, there was no requirement to move an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, hence, it was rejected. The necessary consequence was that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. was to be heard and decided substantively and this was done by the Trial Court and it allowed the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. holding that the defendants were prevented by sufficient cause from contesting the suit and thus the order dated 07.11.2023 does not suffer from any error which may require any interference by this Court.

38. It is further urged that the Revisional Court also noticed the aforesaid aspect and consequently the revision filed by the petitioners were dismissed, hence, the instant petition is bad and does not deserve admission rather is to be dismissed outright especially when the matter is yet to be decided on merits and once the courts have exercised their discretion in a positive manner, it would not be expedient for the Revisional Court or this Court to interfere in such kind of orders especially when the parties have been given an opportunity to contest the proceedings on merits and the Constitutional Courts also lean in favour of such orders by which the parties are granted the benefit of hearing rather the shutting out hearing on the ground of technicalities such as raised by the petitioners in the instant case. For the aforesaid reasons, the petitions deserve to be dismissed.

39. Sri S.C. Sitapuri, learned counsel has also adopted the aforesaid submissions advanced by Sri Piyush Asthana and Sri Pawan Mishra, learned counsel for the private respondents.

40. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and also perused the material on record.

41. In so far as the facts involved in the instant petitions are concerned, there is not much dispute between the parties. It is also not disputed by the learned counsel for the petitioners that they have not assailed the order dated 26.10.2023 in the instant batch of four petitions.

42. The record would further indicate that even though the issue regarding no challenge to the order dated 26.10.2023 was raised by the private respondents on the first date itself but no effort was made by the petitioner to raise any challenge to the said order by moving an application or to amend the relief clause.

43. It is in the aforesaid backdrop that the courts has considered the submissions made by the parties.

44. At the outset, it will be relevant to notice the relevant provisions of law which have an interplay and impact on the instant petitions and for better appreciation, this Court reproduces Section 27 C.P.C. Order 5 Rule-17, Rule, Rule 20 C.P.C. and Article 123 of the schedule appended to the Limitation Act, 1963.

"27. Summons to defendants.—Where a suit has been duly instituted, a summons may be issued to the defendant to appear and answer the claim and may be served in manner prescribed[on such day not beyond thirty days from the date of the institution of the suit].*

Article 123 Limitation Act, 1963

123.To set aside a decree passed ex parte or to rehear an appeal decreed or heard ex parte. Thirty days	The date of the decree or where the summons or notice was not duly served, when the applicant had knowledge of the decree.

Explanation.—For the purpose of this article, substituted service under Rule 20 of Order V of theCode of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908)shall not be deemed to be due service.

45. From the perusal of the aforesaid provisions of law, it would be clear that whenever a suit is filed in a court of law which is governed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, summons have to be issued to the defendants. The summons are served through the process server and as far as possible the summons are to be served on to parties to the suit, in case if the person upon whom the service is to be affected is not available then there is an option of affixation of the summons as provided under Order 5 Rule 17 C.P.C. Similarly, where the court finds expedient, it can also get the summons served on the defendants through registered post.

46. In terms of Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, if a registered cover is sent to the person at his correct address and the requisite time having elapsed and the registered cover does not return back to the court or returns to the court with the endorsement such as refusal then in such circumstances, the service shall be deemed to have been affected. In this regard, the decision of the Apex Court in Ajeet Seeds Limited Vs. K. Gopala Krishnaiah; (2014) 12 SCC 685 is relevant and the relevant portion of the said report is being reproduced hereinafter:-

"9.This Court then explained the nature of presumptions under Section 114 of the Evidence Act and under Section 27 of the GC Act and pointed out how these two presumptions are to be employed while considering the question of service of notice under Section 138 of the NI Act. The relevant paragraphs read as under: (C.C. Alavi Haji case[C.C. Alavi Hajiv.Palapetty Muhammed, (2007) 6 SCC 555 : (2007) 3 SCC (Cri) 236] , SCC pp. 563-64, paras 13-14)

"13. According to Section 114 of the Act, read with Illustration (f) thereunder, when it appears to the court that the common course of business renders it probable that a thing would happen, the court may draw presumption that the thing would have happened, unless there are circumstances in a particular case to show that the common course of business was not followed. Thus, Section 114 enables the court to presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business in their relation to the facts of the particular case. Consequently, the court can presume that the common course of business has been followed in particular cases. When applied to communications sent by post, Section 114 enables the court to presume that in the common course of natural events, the communication would have been delivered at the address of the addressee. But the presumption that is raised under Section 27 of the GC Act is a far stronger presumption. Further, while Section 114 of the Evidence Act refers to a general presumption, Section 27 refers to a specific presumption. For the sake of ready reference, Section 27 of the GC Act is extracted below:

of this Act authorises or requires any document to be served by post, whether the expression "serve" or either of the expression "give" or "send" or any other expression is used, then, unless a different intention appears, the service shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, pre-paying and posting by registered post, a letter containing the document, and, unless the contrary is proved, to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post.'

14. Section 27 gives rise to a presumption that service of notice has been effected when it is sent to the correct address by registered post. In view of the said presumption, when stating that a notice has been sent by registered post to the address of the drawer, it is unnecessary to further aver in the complaint that in spite of the return of the notice unserved, it is deemed to have been served or that the addressee is deemed to have knowledge of the notice. Unless and until the contrary is proved by the addressee, service of notice is deemed to have been effected at the time at which the letter would have been delivered in the ordinary course of business. This Court has already held that when a notice is sent by registered post and is returned with a postal endorsement 'refused' or 'not available in the house' or 'house locked' or 'shop closed' or 'addressee not in station', due service has to be presumed. (VideJagdish Singhv.Natthu Singh[(1992) 1 SCC 647] ,State of M.P.v.Hiralal[(1996) 7 SCC 523] andV. Raja Kumariv.P. Subbarama Naidu[(2004) 8 SCC 774 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 393] .) It is, therefore, manifest that in view of the presumption available under Section 27 of the Act, it is not necessary to aver in the complaint under Section 138 of the Act that service of notice was evaded by the accused or that the accused had a role to play in the return of the notice unserved."

10.It is thus clear that Section 114 of the Evidence Act enables the Court to presume that in the common course of natural events, the communication would have been delivered at the address of the addressee. Section 27 of the GC Act gives rise to a presumption that service of notice has been effected when it is sent to the correct address by registered post. It is not necessary to aver in the complaint that in spite of the return of the notice unserved, it is deemed to have been served or that the addressee is deemed to have knowledge of the notice. Unless and until the contrary is proved by the addressee, service of notice is deemed to have been effected at the time at which the letter would have been delivered in the ordinary course of business.

Similarly, the Apex Court in Vishwabandhu Vs. Sri Krishna And Another; (2021) SCC 549 in paragraph 15 has observed as under:-

"15.The summons issued by registered post were received back with postal endorsement of refusal, as would be clear from the order dated 19-2-1997. Sub-rule (5) of Order 5 Rule 9 of the Code states inter alia that if the defendant or his agent had refused to take delivery of the postal article containing the summons, the court issuing the summons shall declare that the summons had been duly served on the defendant. The order dated 19-2-1997 was thus completely in conformity with the legal requirements. In a slightly different context, while considering the effect of Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, a Bench of three Judges of this Court inC.C. Alavi Hajiv.Palapetty Muhammed[C.C. Alavi Hajiv.Palapetty Muhammed, (2007) 6 SCC 555 : (2007) 3

SCC (Cri) 236] made the following observations : (SCC p. 564, para 14)

"14. Section 27 gives rise to a presumption that service of notice has been effected when it is sent to the correct address by registered post. In view of the said presumption, when stating that a notice has been sent by registered post to the address of the drawer, it is unnecessary to further aver in the complaint that in spite of the return of the notice unserved, it is deemed to have been served or that the addressee is deemed to have knowledge of the notice. Unless and until the contrary is proved by the addressee, service of notice is deemed to have been effected at the time at which the letter would have been delivered in the ordinary course of business. This Court has already held that when a notice is sent by registered post and is returned with a postal endorsement "refused" or "not available in the house" or "house locked" or "shop closed" or "addressee not in station", due service has to be presumed. (VideJagdish Singhv.Natthu Singh[Jagdish Singhv.Natthu Singh, (1992) 1 SCC 647] ;State of M.P.v.Hiralal[State of M.P.v.Hiralal, (1996) 7 SCC 523] andV. Raja Kumariv.P. Subbarama Naidu[V. Raja Kumariv.P. Subbarama Naidu, (2004) 8 SCC 774 : 2005 SCC (Cri) 393] .)"

47. There may be cases where for certain reasons, the defendant cannot be served and in such circumstances the court may take recourse to get the defendants served by substituted service i.e. through publication for which the court has to take recourse to Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C.

48. In order to permit the service through substituted mode, the court is required to form a subjective satisfaction and it has reason to believe that the defendant is keeping out of the way for the purpose of avoiding service or that the summons cannot be served in the ordinary course then the court can order the summons to be affixed in some conspicuous place in the court house or upon some conspicuous place where the defendant is known to have last resided or carried on business or personally worked for gains.

49. Rule 1-A was inserted in Order 5 Rule -20 C.P.C. by the amending Act which came into effect from 01.02.1977 which permitted the courts to get the summoned served through an advertisement in a newspaper provided the newspaper must be a daily newspaper circulating in the locality in which the defendant is last known to have actually and voluntarily resided or carried on business or personally worked for gains.

50. It is in the aforesaid circumstance that a publication can be made and Sub Rule 2 of Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C. saves such service and it would be treated as effectual as if the defendant was personally served.

51. At this stage, it will be relevant to notice the observations of the Apex Court in Sunil Poddar Vs. Union Bank of India; (2008) 2 SCC 326 wherein it has been held that once a summon is published in the newspaper having wide circulation in the locality, it is immaterial whether the defendants were subscriber to the said newspapers or whether they read it. The relevant paragraphs of the said report read as under:-

"23.It is, therefore, clear that the legal position under the amended Code is not whether the defendant was actually served with the summons in accordance with the procedure laid down and in the manner prescribed in Order 5 of the Code, but whether (i) he had notice of the date of hearing of the suit; and (ii) whether he had sufficient time to appear and answer the claim of the plaintiff. Once these two conditions are satisfied, an ex parte decree cannot be set aside even if it is established that there was irregularity in service of summons. If the court is convinced that the defendant had otherwise knowledge of the proceedings and he could have appeared and answered the plaintiff's claim, he cannot put forward a ground of non-service of summons for setting aside ex parte decree passed against him by invoking Rule 13 of Order 9 of the Code. Since the said provision applies to the Debts Recovery Tribunals and the Appellate Tribunals under the Act in view of Section 22(2)(g) of the Act, both the Tribunals were right in observing that the ground raised by the appellants could not be upheld. It is not even contended by the appellants that though they had knowledge of the proceedings before DRT, they had no sufficient time to appear and answer the claim of the plaintiff Bank and on that ground, ex parte order deserves to be set aside."

52. Proceeding further, if Article 123 of the Schedule appended with the Limitation Act is seen, it clearly provides that the limitation for moving an application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. is 30 days, however, it further states that this period of 30 days is to be reckoned from the date of the decree in case if the summons are duly served. In case if the summons are not duly served then the period of 30 days is reckoned from the date of knowledge of the decree. The said Article also contains an explanation that the service made by publication shall not be deemed to be due service.

53. In the aforesaid backdrop, if the submissions of learned counsel for the petitioners is examined, it would be clear that the explanation which has been appended in Article 123 is only applicable to the said provision alone.

54. It is not quite correct to state that Sub Rule 2 of Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C. was incorporated by the amendment in 1977. Rather, the correct position is that by the amending Act of 1977 Rule-1 was inserted, it only permitted the court to get the summons served through advertisement in a newspaper and in order to do it, the requirement is that the newspaper must be a daily newspaper having wide circulation in the area where the defendant sought to be served through publication was last known to have resided or worked for gains. In this regard, the observations of the Apex Court in Basant Singh and Another Vs. Roman Roman Catholic Mission; (2002) 7 SCC 531 and the relevant paras thereof read as under:-

"6. Regarding the contention of the counsel for the appellants that the summons were not duly served, as the substituted service has been published in the local daily Aacharan instead of Dainik Bhaskar, we may point out that it is in the evidence on record that both Aacharan and Dainik Bhaskar are local dailies and are widely circulated in the area. In ordinary circumstances, if both the local dailies are widely circulated in the area the change of the name of the local daily from Dainik Bhaskar to Aacharan would not materially affect the service of notice by way of substituted service, deemed to have been served, and would not invalidate the effect of substituted service just because the notice for substituted service has been published in the local daily which is not ordered by the court. It is the specific contention of the plaintiff-respondent that the notice has been published in the local daily Aacharan on 9-8-1986 and the said local daily is widely circulated in the area and the substituted service would construe as sufficient notice upon the defendants. We are also of the view that it is inherently probable that publication in the local daily Aacharan which is widely circulated in the area would have constituted a sufficient notice to the defendants.

7. Before the trial court the stand taken by the plaintiff was that the defendants had knowledge about the suit filed by the plaintiff and they had sufficient time to appear and answer the plaintiff's claim but they did not appear and the application had been filed with the intention to cause delay. Be that as it may, we are of the view that the publication of the substituted service in the local daily Aacharan instead of Dainik Bhaskar is a mere irregularity in service of summons.

8. Second proviso to Order 9 Rule 13 casts an embargo on the court that a decree passed ex parte shall not be set aside merely on the ground that there has been an irregularity in the service of summons."

9. Order 5, proviso to sub-rule (2) of Rule 19-A CPC provides that where the summons are properly addressed, prepaid and duly sent by registered post with acknowledgement due, notwithstanding the fact that the acknowledgement having been lost or mislaid, or for any other reason, has not been received by the court within thirty days from the date of the issue of the summons, the court shall presume that notice is duly served. Further, Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 (in short "the Act") provides similar provision. The presumptions are rebuttable. It is always open to the defendants to rebut the presumption by leading convincing and cogent evidence."

55. The impact of the substituted service through publication was noticed by the Apex Court in a subsequent decision in Parimal vs. Veena Alias Bharti; (2011) 3 SCC 545 and the relevant paragraphs thereof read as under:-

"12.It is evident from the above that an ex parte decree against a defendant has to be set aside if the party satisfies the court thatsummons had not been duly servedor hewas preventedbysufficient causefrom appearing when the suit was called on for hearing. However, the court shall not set aside the said decree on mere irregularity in the service of summons or in a case where the defendant had notice of the date and sufficient time to appear in the court. The legislature in its wisdom, made the second proviso mandatory in nature. Thus, it is not permissible for the court to allow the application in utter disregard of the terms and conditions incorporated in the second proviso herein.

13."Sufficient cause" is an expression which has been used in a large number of statutes. The meaning of the word "sufficient" is "adequate" or "enough", inasmuch as may be necessary to answer the purpose intended. Therefore, word "sufficient" embraces no more than that which provides a platitude which when the act done suffices to accomplish the purpose intended in the facts and circumstances existing in a case and duly examined from the viewpoint of a reasonable standard of a cautious man. In this context, "sufficient cause" means that the party had not acted in a negligent manner or there was a want of bona fide on its part in view of the facts and circumstances of a case or the party cannot be alleged to have been "not acting diligently" or "remaining inactive". However, the facts and circumstances of each case must afford sufficient ground to enable the court concerned to exercise discretion for the reason that whenever the court exercises discretion, it has to be exercised judiciously. ...15. While deciding whether there is sufficient cause or not, the court must bear in mind the object of doingsubstantial justice to all the parties concernedand that the technicalities of the law should not prevent the court from doing substantial justice and doing away the illegality perpetuated on the basis of the judgment impugned before it. (VideState of Biharv.Kameshwar Prasad Singh[(2000) 9 SCC 94 : 2000 SCC (L&S) 845 : AIR 2000 SC 2306] ,Madanlalv.Shyamlal[(2002) 1 SCC 535 : AIR 2002 SC 100] ,Davinder Pal Sehgalv.Partap Steel Rolling Mills (P) Ltd.[(2002) 3 SCC 156 : AIR 2002 SC 451] ,Ram Nath Saov.Gobardhan Sao[(2002) 3 SCC 195 : AIR 2002 SC 1201] ,Kaushalya Deviv.Prem Chand[(2005) 10 SCC 127] ,Srei International Finance Ltd.v.Fairgrowth Financial Services Ltd.[(2005) 13 SCC 95] andReena Sadhv.Anjana Enterprises[(2008) 12 SCC 589 : AIR 2008 SC 2054] .)

16.In order to determine the application under Order 9 Rule 13 CPC, the test that has to be applied is whether the defendant honestly and sincerely intended to remain present when the suit was called on for hearing and did his best to do so. Sufficient cause is thus the cause for which the defendant could not be blamed for his absence. Therefore, the applicant must approach the court with a reasonable defence. Sufficient cause is a question of fact and the court has to exercise its discretion in the varied and special circumstances in the case at hand. There cannot be a straitjacket formula of universal application.

17.This Court after considering a large number of its earlier judgments inGreater Mohali Area Development Authorityv.Manju Jain[(2010) 9 SCC 157 : (2010) 3 SCC (Civ) 639 : AIR 2010 SC 3817] held that in view of the provisions of Section 114 Illustration (f) of the Evidence Act, 1872 and Section 27 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 there is a presumption that the addressee has received the letter sent by registered post. However, the presumption is rebuttable on a consideration of evidence of impeccable character. A similar view has been reiterated by this Court inSunil Kumar Sambhudayal Gupta (Dr.)v.State of Maharashtra[(2010) 13 SCC 657 : JT (2010) 12 SC 287] .

18.InGujarat Electricity Boardv.Atmaram Sungomal Poshani[(1989) 2 SCC 602 : 1989 SCC (L&S) 393 : (1989) 10 ATC 396 : AIR 1989 SC 1433] this Court held as under : (SCC pp. 611-12, para 8)

"8. There is presumption of service of a letter sent under registered cover, if the same is returned back with a postal endorsement that the addressee refused to accept the same. No doubt the presumption is rebuttable and it is open to the party concerned to place evidence before the court to rebut the presumption by showing that the address mentioned on the cover was incorrect or that the postal authorities never tendered the registered letter to him or that there was no occasion for him to refuse the same.The burden to rebut the presumption lies on the party, challenging the factum of service."

19.The provisions of Section 101 of the Evidence Act provide that the burden of proof of the facts rests on the party who substantially asserts it and not on the party who denies it. In fact, burden of proof means that a party has to prove an allegation before he is entitled to a judgment in his favour. Section 103 provides that the burden of proof as to any particular fact lies on that person who wishes the court to believe in its existence, unless it is provided by any special law that the proof of that fact shall lie on any particular person. The provision of Section 103 amplifies the general rule of Section 101 that the burden of proof lies on the person who asserts the affirmative of the facts in issue."

56. Having noticed the relevant provisions and the pronouncement of the Apex Court, it would be clear as to how the service through publication is to be made and how it impacts the service on the parties.

57. At this stage, it will also be relevant to notice that apparently, there is no inconsistency between Order 5 Rule 20 (2) C.P.C. and the explanation appended to Article 123 in the schedule appended to the Limitation Act, 1963. Both the provisions operate in different spheres. As far as the provisions of Order 5 Rule 20 C.P.C. is concerned, it permits the court to take recourse through substituted service (through publication) in a newspaper and sub rule 2 states that the service through publication will be as effectual as due service made on the defendant personally and the purpose and intent of Sub rule -2 is to enable the court dealing with the matter to proceed further. Meaning thereby that upon filing of a suit before a court of law, the court is required to issue notice to the defendants. Before proceeding, the court has to record its subjective satisfaction that the defendants of the suit are properly served and once it arrives at the said satisfaction and yet the defendants do not appear in the suit then it would enable the court to proceed further and pass appropriate orders including setting the defendants ex-parte so that the matter can be tried and decided. If this provision is not invoked then perhaps in certain cases where the defendant is not served and even after publication where the service is not treated effectual service then the suit will not proceed and it cannot be left in limbo indefinitely. In order to avoid this uncertainty sub rule (2) of Order V Rule 20 is to be interpreted and it is in this context it is held that the provisions of Order V Rule 20 (2) is for the Court to enable it to prove further.

58. On the other hand, the explanation in Article 123 of the Limitation Act, 1963 is for the purpose of that article alone. Where the defendant moves an application under 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. for setting aside the ex-parte judgment and in such a case, the limitation as provided in the said Article 123 can be seen which is in two parts; (I) there can be a situation where the defendant may have put in appearance in the suit and later for some reason may not participate and the decree is passed ex-parte, in such situation, the limitation would be reckoned from the date of the decree. (II) There may be a situation that the defendants for some reason could never be served either personally or through affixation or through substituted service and later if an application for setting aside the ex-parte decree is moved then it can be filed within 30 days from the date of knowledge.

59. It is for only such defendants against whom the suit has proceeded ex-parte and the service was through publication that the limitation would be from 30 days of the knowledge and to protect such litigants the explanation has been appended, however, it is not correct to say that the explanation would run counter to Order 5 Rule 20 (2) C.P.C. Primarily, Order 5 rule 20 (2) C.P.C. is for the benefit of the court to enable it to proceed further whereas the explanation appended in Article 123 is for the benefit of such defendants against whom an ex-parte decree has been passed and what will be the period of limitation to move an application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. has been mentioned and what will be the starting point of limitation has been explained. Thus, it cannot be said there is any contradiction or inconsistency in the provisions of Order 5 Rule 20 (2) C.P.C. and Article 123 of the Limitation Act, 1963.as projected by the learned counsel for the petitioners.

60. It is now well settled that the courts endevour to construe the provisions of law harmoniously so that each provision is given its complete extant within which they operate and any inconsistency may be avoided. In case if the argument of the learned counsel for the petitioner is accepted, it may give rise to anomalous situation and the endevour of the court is always to avoid inconsistency and to harmonies the provisions, hence, the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioners is fallacious and misconceived.

61. The court is fortified in its view and draws strength from a Full Bench decision of this Court in Ram Bharose v. Ganga Singh 1931 SCC Online All. 133 and the relevant portion reads as under:-

"I am unable to accept this argument. The object of issuing a summons is to inform the party, against whom a suit has been instituted, of the fact that there is a suit against him, and if he so chooses, he may come and defend it. If that be the object of a summons, and if, for no fault of his own, a defendant was never put in a position to know that a suit had been instituted against him, whatever steps may have been taken for serving the summons on him, these steps can never be accepted as amounting to "due service". When an order for substituted service is made by a court, on the representation of a plaintiff, only one side is present before the court and it acts on the representation of one party. Obviously it should be open to the defendant when he appears, to show that the method employed was not calculated to effect the purpose which the court had in view, namely, informing the defendant of the institution of the suit. If this is so, the court has to consider, in view of all the circumstances of the case, for example, the place where the defendant was when the summons was issued to him, where and how the summons was served, and so on, in order to see whether there was due service. For example, if a man has gone to Burma to earn a living and he has relations at home with whom he is in constant touch, and the summons is served on the defendant by affixation of a copy of it on the outer door of his house, it may be open to the court to infer that the service was good, it being expected that the defendant's close relations, living jointly with him in the same house, would inform him of the case. Again, where it is found that the defendant knew that a suit was likely to come and, in order that a summons may not be served on him, he leaves the place, it may be open to the court to hold that there was due service by substitution. On the other hand, if the defendant went, say, to Burma to earn a living and left no one at home, which remained vacant, and at the instance of the plaintiff a substituted service was ordered by publication of the fact of the institution of the suit in a paper published, say, at Aligarh, where the suit was instituted, the court would be in a position to hold that there was no due service.

The rule that substituted service is to be taken as effectual as personal service only means that the court hearing the case may proceed with the suit as if the summons had been personally served on the defendant.

The result is that, in my opinion, whether there has been 'due service' or not is to be considered by the court to which an application has been made for setting aside anex partedecree, having regard to all the circumstances of the case as described above. If the conclusion is that there was due service, then, if the application has not come within thirty days of the decree, he is barred by time. If the conclusion is that there was no due service, the limitation would be computed from the date of the applicant's knowledge of the decree. The mere fact that a substituted service had been ordered is immaterial, by itself."

62. Applying the principles as noticed hereinabove to the facts of the instant case, it would be seen that Smt. Asha could not be served through registered cover as the registered cover had returned with an endorsement that she was not residing at the given address but was in Surkhet, Nepal. Even though, the Trial Court went ahead in getting the summons served through publication but it could not be disputed that Jan Morcha, the daily newspaper wherein the summons were published had any circulation in Surkhet, Nepal.

63. Even though, it has been urged that the said newspaper was even circulated in Nepalganj but there is nothing to state that the said newspaper had circulation in Surkhet, Nepal. Needless to say that Surkhet is a different district whereas Nepalganj is in a different district in a foreign country i.e. Nepal. The Trial Court as well as the Revisional Court has taken note of the aforesaid and has recorded findings regarding the fact that the defendant Smt. Asha Devi was not personally served nor the registered cover was served, hence, treating the publication as not due service for the purposes of computing the limitation for moving the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C, it held that the applications were within 30 days for the date of knowledge, hence, within time and thereafter the Trial Court went on to consider the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. and found that there was sufficient cause for the defendants, by which they were prevented to contest the proceedings and since the decree was joint and several and indivisible, hence, if it is was set aside for one defendant, it would have to be set aside for all. There is no error in the findings recorded by the Trial Court and the Revisional Court.

64. Moreover, there is another flaw in the arguments of the learned counsel and that is the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 was rejected by the Trial Court by holding that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. were within 30 days of the knowledge of the decree, hence within time, this order was known to the plaintiffs but they never assailed the same before the Revisional Court nor before this Court.

65. Merely to state that since in the order itself it was written that the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act is rejected and consequently the application under Order 9 rule 13 C.P.C. would have to be rejected, is apparently an erroneous submission, in the facts of the instant case. May be the language used by the Trial Court while disposing of the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 may not have been very happily worded but the fact remains that in the entire text of the said order dated 26.10.2023, it has been clearly explained by the Trial Court that the application under Order 9 Rule 13 C.P.C. is to be treated within time and for the said reason, the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 was rejected, however, it did not mean nor it is evident from the perusal of the order dated 26.10.2023 that the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 was rejected on merit i.e. to say that the defendants were unable to explain the delay or they could not establish the sufficient cause as required, hence, the submission to the contrary made by learned counsel for the petitioners does not impress this Court.

66. For all the aforesaid reasons, this Court is satisfied that there is no error in the orders impugned which may persuade this Court to entertain the aforesaid petitions which are devoid of merits and all the petitions deserve to be dismissed.

67. Since the matter of R.S. No. 1146 of 2018 is to be contested on merits, accordingly, this Court provides that the Trial Court seized with the Regular Suit No. 1146 of 2018 shall after affording full opportunity of hearing to the parties but without granting any unnecessary adjournments shall expedite the proceedings to decide the suit on its own merits as expeditiously as possible.

68. The writ petitions bearing W.P. No. 96 (A-227) of 2024, W.P. No. 91 (A-227) of 2024, W.P. No. 342 (A-227) of 2024 and W.P. No. 347 (A-227) of 2024 are dismissed. Costs are made easy.

1. Heard.

2. Considering the issue involved in the present petition as also the undisputed facts that private respondent Nos. 3 to 5 were the Members of Chakbandi, this Court finds no force in the application(s), under consideration, as such, the same are hereby rejected.

Order on Petition

3. Heard Mohhd. Arif Khan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Shadab Khan, Advocate as also Mr. Akbar Ali Khan, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Hemant Kumar Pandey, learned counsel for the State as also Sri Shiv Kumar, Advocate, who preferred the application for impleadment, to which, the objection has been filed before this Court and the same is taken on record.

4. By means of the present petition, petitioner has sought the following main relief:-

"(a) To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of prohibition prohibiting the opp. party No.6 to proceed with appeal No. 1734/1067/2003 under Section 11 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, (Shyama Kumari and Others vs. Parag Memorial Educational Institution)."

5. The aforesaid main prayer has been sought on the following two grounds:-

"(i) Because the order passed by the Consolidation Officer was not challenged and had become final between the parties. The consolidation operation came to an end after the issue of notification Under Section 52 of the U.P.Consolidation of Holdings Act, on 9.6.2001. No appeal could therefore be legally filed or entertained as nothing was pending on the date of aforesaid notification.

(ii) Because opposite party no. 6 patently lacks jurisdiction to entertain and adjudicate upon the appeal."

6. For seeking the prayer sought, based upon the above quoted grounds, Mr. Khan, learned Senior Advocate, placed reliance on the judgment passed in Writ Petition No. 203 (Cons.) of 1995 (Kapil Dev vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Faizabad and Others), 1996 (14) LCD 550, and the judgment passed in the case of Hari Ram vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Azamagarh & Ors. 1989 RD 281.

7. Learned Senior Advocate Mr. Khan, based upon the judgments, referred above, submitted that after publication of notification under Section 52 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953 (in short "Act of 1953"), the appellate authority namely Settlement Officer of Consolidation, Hardoi, was not empowered to entertain or decide the appeal preferred under Section 11 of the Act of 1953, as such, interference of this Court is required in the matter.

8. Opposing the present petition, learned counsels for the side opposite namely Sri Hemant Kumar Pandey as also Sri Shiv Kumar, based upon the judgment passed in the case of Siddh Narayan vs. The Deputy Director of Consolidation and Ors.; MANU/UP/1284/2007, submitted that the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court, after taking note of earlier pronouncements on the issue including the judgment passed by the Division Bench of this Court in the case of Hari Ram vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Azamagarh & Ors.; 1989 RD 281, as also the judgment passed in the case of Nanhki vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Pratapgarh and Ors. 1995 Part 1 Volume 13 LCD 1: 1994 RD 264, the basis of the judgment passed in the case of Kapil Dev (Supra), held that the appeal would be maintainable even after publication of notification under Section 52 of the Act of 1953. The relevant paras of the judgment passed in the case of Siddh Narayan (Supra) are extracted hereinunder:-

"3. It has been urged by learned counsel for the petitioner that appeal filed by Gaon Sabha after de-notification of consolidation operation under Section 52 of the Act was not at all maintainable and his preliminary objection has wrongly been overruled. Reliance in support of the contention has been placed on the decisions of learned single Judge of this Court in the case of Raj Bahadur Singh v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Hardoi, 1974 R.D. (Suppl.) 181 and Nanhki v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Pratapgarh, 1994 R.D. 264 and a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Hari Ram v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Azamgarh, 1989 R.D. 281. In so far as the cases of Hari Ram (supra) and Nanhki (supra) are concerned, the same have no application to the facts and circumstances of the present case inasmuch as in the said two cases the question before the Court was whether Deputy Director of Consolidation could have entertained and decided reference proceedings in exercise of powers conferred by Section 48(3) of the Act even after issuance of the notification under Section 52 of the Act.

4. The question for consideration in this case is whether an appeal against the order of the Consolidation Officer could be filed, entertained and proceeded with even after notification under Section 52 of the Act has been issued.

5. It is well settled that institution of a suit or proceedings carries with it the implication that all rights of Appeal then in force remain preserved with the parties thereto till the proceedings are finally decided and that right of appeal is a vested right which accrues to the litigant from the date the lis commenced. Reference may be made to the following observation of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Garikapati v. Subbaih Choudhary, AIR 1957 S.C. 540.

"Legal persuit of a remedy, suit appeal and second appeal are really but steps in a series of proceedings all connected by an intrinsic entity and are to be regarded as one legal proceeding and that the right of Appeal was not a mere matter of procedure but was a substantive right."

6. Thus, it is clear that right of a litigant to take proceedings to a higher Court, in case of an adverse order, comes into existence the moment proceeding is initiated and continues till the lis continues. The right is to be governed by the law prevailing at the time of institution of the suit, proceedings or appeal and not by the law that prevails at the time of decision or that of the filing of the appeal unless it was expressly or by necessary implication so provided.

7. Section 11 of the Act providing for appeals reads as under:

"11. Appeals:— (1) Any party to the proceedings under Section 9-A aggrieved by an order of the Assistant Consolidation Officer or the Consolidation Officer under that Section, may within 21 days of the date of the order, file an appeal before the Settlement Officer, Consolidation, who shall, after affording opportunity of being heard to the parties concerned, give his decision thereon which, except as otherwise provided by or under this Act, shall be final and not be questioned in any Court of law.

(2) The Settlement Officer, Consolidation, hearing an appeal under sub-section (1) shall be deemed to be a court of competent jurisdiction, anything to the contrary contained in any law for the time being in force notwithstanding."

8. Section 52(1) and (2) of the Act around which the entire controversy revolves reads as under-.

"52. Close of consolidation operations:— (1) As soon as may be after fresh maps and records have been prepared under sub-section (1) of Section 27, the State Government shall issue a notification in the official Gazette that the consolidation operation have been closed in the unit and village or villages forming part of the unit shall then cease to be under consolidation operations:

Provided that the issue of the notification under this section shall not affect the powers of the State Government to fix, distribute and recover the cost of operations under this Act.

(1-A) The notification issued under sub-section (1) shall be published also in a daily newspaper having circulation in the area and in such other manner as may be considered proper.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), any order passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction in cases of writs filed under the provisions of the Constitution of India, or in cases of proceedings pending under this Act on the date of issue of the notification under sub-section (1), shall be given effect to by such authorities as may be prescribed and the consolidation operation shall, for that purpose, be deemed to have not been closed.

9. From the aforesaid it would be seen that sub-section (2) of Section 52 which has been added by amending Act No. VIII of 1963 is a deeming clause which clearly provides that for the purpose of giving effect to the orders which may be passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction either in cases of writs or proceedings pending under the Act on the date of issuance of notification under Section 52, Consolidation operation shall not be deemed to have been closed.

10. There is nothing either in Section 11 or in Section 52 of the Act which either expressly or by necessary implication takes away the right of appeal. In view of the deeming clause contained in Section 52(2) of the Act, in cases where the proceedings under the Act are pending on the date of issuance of notification under sub section (1), the consolidation operation shall not be treated to be closed meaning thereby in such cases the provisions of the Act shall continue to remain in force as if notification under Section 52(1) notifying the close of consolidation operation has not been issued.

11. In the case in hand, against the order passed by the Consolidation Officer the contesting respondents had a right to approach the Settlement Officer Consolidation in appeal. However, before their rights to approach the appellate Court came to an end notification under Section 52(1) of the Act was issued. However, in view of the deeming clause under Section 52(2) notification issued under section 52(1) of the Act will have not have the effect of destroying the right of appeal which came to be vested in the constesting respondents inasmuch as the proceedings initiated under Section 9 of the Act had not been finally decided when notification under section 52(1) of the Act was issued.

12. The question whether an appeal or revision could be filed even after issuance of notification under Section 52(1) of the Act came up for consideration before a learned single Judge in the case of Gopi Singh v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, (1967) AWR 264. Learned single Judge while holding that the appeal would be maintainable observed as under;

"The term 'proceedings' in S. 52(2) has, in my opinion, been used in that comprehensive sense to include the entire series of proceedings commencing from the one which is initiated before the Consolidation Officer and including that taken in the appeal court. When an appeal is instituted the proceeding which commenced in the trial Court continues. The appeal does not initiate afresh proceeding. On the institution of the appeal the proceedings which have become dormant on the decision by the trial court, revive and remain pending. The only difference being that it is now pending in the different court, namely the Court of appeal."

It was further observed;

"The word 'cases' in the phrase 'cases of writs filed under the Constitution', in sub-Sec. (2) will include orders passed by higher courts of appeal including the Supreme Court. Thus, sub-Sec. (2) is designed to preserve and make effective orders passed by any one or more of the hierarchy of Courts established under the Act, irrespective of whether the proceeding was pending in any particular court or in any Court subordinate thereto, on the date of issue of the notification in sub-Sec. (1)"

13. The aforesaid view of the learned single Judge was approved by a Division Bench in the case of Dilawar Singh v. Gram Samaj, 1972 AWR 557. The same was the view of another Division Bench in the case of Ram Bahadur v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, 1973 AWR 207.

14. The same principles have been applied with equal force in case of a revision before the Deputy Director of Consolidation under Section 48 of the Act by the Division Bench in the case of Dilawar Singh (supra) wherein it was observed as under;

"The principle of a vested right of a litigant to take a proceeding to the superior Court by an appeal would be equally applicable in case of a revision. It is true that a revision is a power conferred on a court or authority to be exercised at its discretion but it does not mean that the litigant does not possess the right to approach the superior court through a petition for revision. The only basic difference between an appeal and a revision is that in case of an appeal the appellant is entitled to a relief if he succeeds in establishing that the order of the subordinate Court or authority was unsound contrary to law.

15. In case of a revision that court has discretion to refuse the relief if, for example, in its opinion substantial justice had been done between the parties although the order sought to be revised suffered from infirmitites which could justify an interference by the revising court……. If under a statute a party has a right to approach the superior Court with a prayer to revise the order of the subordinate Court, the proceeding can be said to be Pending till the right to exercise the right of approaching the superior Court subsists in the applicant and so long that right subsists it cannot be said that the proceedings had finally come to an end. The right to approach the superior Court through an appeal or a revision can be exercised only after an adverse judgment order is passed against the party. Till then the right only remains dormant and when that right is exercised, the original proceedings become pending."

16. Even in cases where the limitation of filing recall application or appeal or revision has run out prior to date of notification under section 52 of the Act, aggrieved person can file restoration application, appeal or revision as held by the Division Bench in the case of Ram Bahadur (supra). The Bench was of the view that proceedings for recall are on the same footing as an appeal because they have the effect of reviving the original proceedings. The same view was again reaffirmed by another Division Bench in the case of Jiwa Ram v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, 1974 (Suppl.) R.D. 40. Reference may also be made to the following decisions of the learned single judge taking the same view; Jhagru v. Deputy Director of Consolidation Basti, 1989 RD 126, Shyam Narain Rai v. Deputy Director of Consolidation Ballia, 1981 RD 307, Ram Rati v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, 1998 (2) AWC 973 : (1998 All LJ 1740) and Tara Chand v. Deputy Director of Consolidation Ballia, 2004 (96) RD 193).

17. In view of the aforesaid discussions and the law laid down by the Division Bench pronouncements in the case of Dilawar Singh (supra), Ram Bahadur (supra), Jiwa Ram (supra), the contrary decision of a learned single Judge in the case of Raj Bahadur Singh v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, Hardoi (supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner cannot be accepted as laying down correct law and has no binding or even persuasive value.

18. In view of above, there is no illegality in the impugned orders passed by Settlement Officer Consolidation overruling the preliminary objection raised by the petitioner that the appeal would not be maintainable after issuance of notification under Section 52(1) of the Act as well as the revisional order passed by Deputy Director of Consolidation.

19. In the result, the writ petition fails and is dismissed.

20. Petition Dismissed."

9. It is also submitted by the learned counsel for the State that in the facts of the case particularly the fact that petitioner's Institution was situated on the Gaon Sabha Land i.e. Gata No. 850 and the Consolidation Officer concerned directed the revenue officials to record the name of petitioner's Institution over the land i.e. Gata No. 850 vide order dated 12.02.2001 and being aggrieved by the order dated 12.02.2001 the appeal was filed by the 11 appellants including the Members of Gram Panchayat, State of U.P. as also the Members of Consolidation Committee and taking note of the facts of the case as also that Section 11-C of the Act of 1953 provides that the interest of the Gram Sabha shall be protected by the authorities under the Act of 1953, the appeal was entertainable and maintainable. To support the aforesaid contention, learned counsel for the State also placed the reliance on the judgment passed in the case of Chhotey Lal & Ors. vs. Up-Zila Adhikari/Sub-Divisional Magistrate and Ors.; MANU/UP/1187/2004.

10. On the issue of maintainability of appeal after de-notification under Section 52 of the Act of 1953, the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the judgment passed in the case of Dahari Lal & Ors. vs. D.D.c. & Ors., MANU/UP/2756/2010: 2010(6) ADJ 705, observed as under:-

"18. Division Bench decisions of this Court in the cases of Ram Bahadur and Jiwa Ram and Anr. (supra) are cited before me by Petitioners' counsel wherein it is clearly held that in certain circumstances, restoration application or application challenging an ex parte order will be governed by Section 52(2) of the Act, therefore. Settlement Officer, Consolidation and Dy. Director of Consolidation were liable to hear objection raised on behalf of Petitioners, at least examine question on merits instead of cursorily rejecting objection without judicially examining the entire matter.

19. Sub-section (2) of Section 52 of the Act was added by U.P. Act 8 of 1953 which is an exception to Sub-section (10). Section 52 of the Act does not take away vested right of appeal which is continuation of proceedings even after denotification and appeal or revision is maintainable if delay is sufficiently explained.

20. In the case of Fateh Singh v. Dy. Director of Consolidation, Mathura and Ors. MANU/UP/2135/2004 : 2004 (96) RD 559 : 2004 (5) AWC 4167, this Court held that provision of Section 5 of Limitation Act to consolidation proceedings is made applicable by virtue of Section 53B which reads as under:

53B. Limitation.--The provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 shall apply to the applications, appeals, revisions and other proceedings under this Act or the rules made thereunder.

21. It is, therefore, incumbent on the consolidation authorities that in the event application for condonation of delay is moved and the delay is sufficiently explained then it will have an effect of obliterating different status between an appeal filed within time or filed after lapse of period of limitation. Settlement Officer, Consolidation has not even tried to look into grounds for condonation of delay but dismissed the appeal as not maintainable since appeal was filed after village stood denotified.

22. Similar view was accepted in the case of Tara Chand and Anr. v. Dy. Director of Consolidation Ballia and Ors. MANU/UP/0805/2003 : 2004 (96) RD 193 : 2004 (2) AWC 1236, that appeal can be made maintainable in the event delay is sufficiently explained. Obviously, Settlement Officer, Consolidation has completely overlooked explanation given in the application for condonation of delay. He has failed to examine the question of limitation and the reason/explanation for delay.

23. In the case of Bechan Ali v. Dy. Director of Consolidation/A.D.M. Siddharthnagar and Ors. MANU/UP/1060/2001 : 2001 (92) RD 317 : 2001 (2) AWC 1003, it was held that an appeal or revision can very well be filed even after denotification against the order which was passed prior to the date of denotification in spite of fact that limitation of filing of an appeal or revision has already expired."

This Court in the case of Sudarshan and Ors. vs. Chief Revenue Officer and Ors., MANU/UP/1960/2021: 2022 (154) RD 43, on the issue involved in the petition, observed as under:-

"11. So far as maintainability of the appeal after denotification under Section 52 of the U.P.C.H. Act is concerned, in the case of Siddh Narayan (supra), a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court has already held, after considering the decision of a Division Bench of this Court, that the filing of an appeal is a statutory remedy available to the parties and the same cannot be hampered due to denotification under section 52 of the U.P.C.H. Act. Relevant paragraphs i.e. paragraph 10, 11, 13, 14 and 15 of the aforesaid judgment is quoted below:-

"10. From the aforesaid it would be seen that sub-section (2) of Section 52 which has been added by amending Act No. VIII of 1963 is a deeming clause which clearly provides that for the purpose of giving effect to the orders which may be passed by a Court of competent jurisdiction either in cases of writs or proceedings pending under the Act on the date of issuance of notification under Section 52, consolidation operation shall not be deemed to have been closed.

11. There is nothing either in Section 11 or in Section 52 of the Act which either expressly or by necessary implication takes away the right of appeal. In view of the deeming clause contained in Section 52 (2) of the Act, in cases where the proceedings under the Act are pending on the date of issuance of notification under sub-section (1), the consolidation operation shall not be treated to be closed meaning thereby in such cases the provisions of the Act shall continue to remain in force as if notification under Section 52 notifying the close of consolidation operation has not been issued.

13. The question whether an appeal or revision could be filed even after issuance of notification under Section 52(1) of the Act came up for consideration before a learned Single judge in the case of Gopi Singh v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, MANU/UP/0345/1967 : 1967 AWR 264.

Learned Single judge while holding that the appeal would be maintainable observed as under:

"The term proceedings' in Section 52(2) has, in my opinion, been used in that comprehensive sense to include the entire series of proceedings commencing from the one which is initiated before the Consolidation Officer and including that taken in the appeal Court. When an appeal is instituted the proceeding which commenced in the trial Court continues. The appeal does not initiate a fresh proceeding. On the institution of the appeal the proceedings which have become dormant on the decision by the trial Court, revive and remain pending. The only difference being that it is now pending in a different Court, namely the court of appeal."

It was further observed:

"The word cases' in the phrase cases of writs filed under the Constitution', in sub-section (2) will include orders passed by higher Courts of appeal including the Supreme Court. Thus, sub-section (2) is designed to preserve and make effective orders passed by any one or more of the hierarchy of Courts established under the Act, irrespective of whether the proceeding was pending in any particular Court or in any Court subordinate thereto, on the date of issue of the notification in sub-section (1)."

14. The aforesaid view of the learned Single judge was approved by a Division Bench in the case of Dilawar Singh v. Gram Samaj, MANU/UP/0142/1973 : 1972 AWR 557. The same was the view of another Division Bench in the case of Ram Bahadur v. Deputy Director of Consolidation, MANU/UP/0143/1973 : 1973 AWR 207.

15. The same principle have been applied with equal force in case of a revision before the Deputy Director of Consolidation under Section 48 of the Act by the Division Bench in the case of Dilawar Singh (supra) wherein it was observed as under:

"The principle of a vested right of litigant to take a proceeding to the superior Court by an appeal would be equally applicable in case of a revision. It is true that a revision is a power conferred on a Court or authority to be exercised at its discretion but it does not mean that the litigant does not possess the right to approach the superior Court through a petition for revision. The only basic difference between an appeal and a revision is that in case of an appeal the appellant is entitled to a relief if he succeeds in establishing that the order of the subordinate Court or authority was unsound contrary to law. In case of a revision that Court has discretion to refuse the relief if, for example, in its opinion substantial justice had been done between the parties although the order sought to be revised suffered from infirmities which could justify an interference by the revising Court ..... If under a statute a party has a right to approach the superior Court with a prayer to revise the order of the subordinate Court, the proceeding can be said to be pending till the right to exercise the right of approaching the superior Court subsists in the applicant and so long that right subsists, it cannot be said that the proceedings had finally come to an end. The right to approach the superior Court through an appeal or a revision can be exercised only after an adverse judgment or order is passed against the party. Till then the right only remains dormant and when that right is exercised, the original proceedings become pending."

12. In this conspectus as above, I do not find any merit in the present writ petition. Counsel for the petitioners could not substantiate his submissions as made in assailing the impugned orders passed by the S.O.C. and the D.D.C. The findings recorded by the S.O.C. with regard to non compliance of the provisions as enshrined under section 25-A of the U.P.C.H. Rules and not controverting the pleadings taken by the appellants, by filing the counter affidavit, became final between the parties, inasmuch as, the same has neither been challenged before the Revisional court nor before this Court in the present writ petition. There is no illegality, perversity or any manifest error in the impugned orders so as to warrant the indulgence of this Court in exercise of its extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

13. Present writ petition is devoid of merits and it is, accordingly, dismissed."

12. Upon due consideration of aforesaid and also the undisputed position that the appeal was filed after publication of notification under Section 52 of the Act of 1953 as also that to controvert the law settled by the Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the judgment(s), referred above, no authority has been placed before this Court by Mr. Khan, learned Senior Advocate, this Court finds no force in the present petition. It is accordingly dismissed. No order as to costs.

Civil Law - Limitation Act, 1963 - Article 136, Sections 3, 5 & 15 - Execution of Decree - Time-Barred Execution Application - Petitioners (judgment-debtors) challenged execution proceedings (Execution Case No. 8/2017) arising from a decree of eviction dated 21.01.1982 in SCC Suit No. 57/1980, filed on 19.07.2017, as time-barred under Article 136, which prescribes a 12-year limitation period for executing a decree from the date it becomes enforceable. Decree challenged in revision (dismissed 12.05.1983) and writ petition (dismissed 22.01.1997) with no stay orders. Execution application, filed 35 years after the decree and 20 years after writ dismissal, was accompanied by a Section 5 condonation application, which was not pressed. Executing Court and Revisional Court erred in not addressing limitation as a jurisdictional issue under Section 3, wrongly assuming Section 5 applicability to execution proceedings. Supreme Court rulings, including SBI Vs B.S. Agriculture Industries (2009) 5 SCC 121 and W.B. Essential Commodities Vs Swadesh Agro (1999) 8 SCC 315, confirm Section 5 inapplicability to execution applications and mandate courts to examine limitation irrespective of defense. Execution application, filed beyond 12 years (expiring 1994 or at latest 2009), was time-barred. Impugned orders (06.04.2018, 07.08.2018, 14.09.2021, 10.11.2021, 28.04.2022, 31.05.2022, 24.01.2024) set aside as erroneous, and Execution Case No. 8/2017 dismissed as time-barred. Petitions allowed with Rs. 50,000/- costs payable by petitioners to private respondents within three weeks, failing which recoverable with 9% interest. (Paras 14-55)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Manoj Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri R.R Upadhyay, along with Sri P.K. Singh Vats learned counsel for the private respondents.

2. The petitioners are the judgment-debtors of execution case no. 08 of 2017 which emanates from a SCC Suit No. 57 of 1980 which came to be decreed on 21.01.1982.The core question involved in the instant two petitions relates to question of limitation for executing a decree of eviction. Since the dispute between the parties has a chequered history, hence, in order to appreciate the issue involved in this petition, it will be necessary to briefly recapitulate certain facts giving rise to the instant petitions.

3. The predecessors-in-interest of the private respondents no. 3 to 6 namely Harimohan Verma had instituted a SCC suit bearing No. 57 of 1980 against the predecessors-in-interest of the petitioners namely Narsingh Narayan Srivastava which was decreed on 21.01.1982.

4. The predecessors-in-interest of the petitioners had assailed the said decree of eviction dated 21.01.1982 in a revision which was also dismissed on 12.05.1983. The predecessors-in-interest of the petitioners further escalated the matter by filing a writ petition before this Court bearing No. 3408 of 1983 which was also dismissed on 22.01.1997. With this, the original proceedings between the parties came to an end.

5. It is only thereafter that a second round of litigation sprouted between the parties when the private respondent nos. 3 to 6 filed an execution application for getting the decree dated 21.01.1982 executed.

6. The execution application was filed on 19.07.2017 along with an application seeking condonation of delay which came to be registered as Misc. Case No. 8 of 2017. The Executing Court issued notices and in response the petitioners who are the successors-in-interest of Sri Narsingh Narain Srivastava, the original judgment-debtor filed their objections under Section 47 C.P.C. which was registered as Misc. Case No. 15 of 2018 and was dismissed on 06.04.2018. The petitioners further assailed the said order by filing a revision bearing No. 19 of 2018 which was also dismissed on 07.08.2018.

7. The petitioners further resisted the execution of the decree by moving a detailed application bearing Paper No. Ga-29 raising the the issue of limitation in terms of Article 136 as mentioned in the schedule appended with the Limitation Act, 1963 and contested the decree which could only be executed within 12 years and in the instant case, since the execution application was filed on 19.07.2017 relating to the decree of the year 1982, hence, it was time barred and could not be executed. The Executing Court rejected the said application by means of order dated 14.09.2021 which was again assailed by the petitioners in Revision which was also dismissed on 10.11.2021.

8. It is thereafter that the private respondents who are the decree-holder not pressed their application under Section 5 of the limitation Act which was accompanying the execution application and the petitioners taking cue therefrom moved another application stating that since the decree-holders have not pressed their application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, consequently, the execution application itself must be rejected as time barred. This application of the petitioners was rejected on 28.04.2022.

9. The petitioners being aggrieved preferred a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India before this Court registered as W.P. No. 1644 of 2022 (which is connected with the instant petition) wherein the petitioners laid a challenge to the orders passed by the Executing Court dated 06.04.2018 whereby the objections under Section 47 C.P.C. were rejected, order dated 07.08.2018 whereby the revision of the petitioners arising out of the order dated 06.04.2018 was rejected. The petitioners also challenged the order dated 14.09.2021 by which his separate application bearing Paper No. Ga-29 raising the issue of limitation was rejected by the Executing Court and also the order dated 10.11.2021 whereby the revision of the petitioners was dismissed wherein the order dated 14.09.2021 was challenged. The petitioners also challenged the order dated 28.04.2021 whereby the Trial Court had rejected the contention of the petitioners that since the decree-holders had not pressed their application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act so the execution application must also be dismissed as time barred.

10. The petition bearing No. 1644 of 2022 was entertained by a coordinate Bench of this Court by means of an order dated 23.05.2022 requiring the parties to exchange the pleadings. While the aforesaid petition No. 1644 of 2022 was pending and as there was no stay to the execution proceedings, the Executing Court proceeded and passed an order dated 31.05.2022 permitting the execution to be done by breaking open the locks to enable the Amin to evict the petitioners and also permitting the Court Amin to seek police aid. This order dated 31.05.2022 came to be assailed by the petitioners by filing a petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India bearing No. 2133 of 2022 wherein a coordinate Bench of this Court while calling upon the parties to exchange pleadings stayed the operation of the order dated 31.05.2022 and the said petition was also connected with the earlier petition bearing No. 1644 of 2022.

11. Later, the W.P. No. 2133 of 2022 came to be dismissed by a coordinate Bench of this Court by means of order dated 18.10.2023 and liberty was granted to the petitioners to assail the order before the Revisional Court. It is in view thereof that the W.P. No. 2133 of 2022 came to be dismissed and de-tagged.

12. In view of the aforesaid liberty granted in the W.P. bearing No. 2133 of 2022, the petitioners filed a revision before the Revisional Court which came to be dismissed on 24.01.2024 and being aggrieved against the said order, the instant petition bearing No. 541 of 2024 was filed wherein the petitioners have assailed not only the order dated 24.01.2024 but also the order dated 31.05.2022. The instant petition bearing No. 541 of 2024 was entertained by a coordinate Bench of this Court by means of a detailed order dated 06.02.2024. The parties were required to exchange the pleadings, however, in the meantime, since there was no stay of the execution proceedings, accordingly, the Executing Court in furtherance of the order dated 31.05.02022 had directed the Court Amin to file its report regarding execution of the decree on 26.02.2024.

13. In the aforesaid circumstances, the learned counsel for the petitioner had mentioned the matter which was listed in the cause list for hearing as the petitioners were under a threat of dispossession and execution of the decree which was to be executed as per the programme set by the Amin on 21.02.2024. The Court with the consent of the respective parties fixed the matter on 21.02.2024 and heard the matter. Since the Court Amin along with the police had reached the site for executing the decree and this Court was simultaneously hearing the matter on merits, accordingly, the Court while reserving the judgment on the said date passed an order dated 21.02.2024 which reads as under:-

"1. Heard Shri Manoj Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioners and Shri R. R. Upadhyaya, learned counsel alongwith Shri P. K. Singh Vats for the private respondents.

2. The instant petition is connected with petition A-227 No.1644 of 2022 in between the same parties and relating to the same subject matter.

3. The issue in question relates to the question of law as to what would be the limitation for executing a decree of eviction and if period of 12 years as provided under Article 126 of the appended to Schedule the Limitation Act expires, then whether the said decree can be executed by taking recourse to Section 5 of the Limitation Act or the decree become inexecutable by lapse of time.

4. This matter was listed before the Court on 20.02.2024 and it was informed by the counsel for the petitioners that since the decree of eviction is being pressed against the petitioners for which the executing court had passed an order directing the decree to be executed with police force fixing the matter on 26.02.2024 and it was also informed that the execution proceedings alongwith Court Amin and police force would be conducted on 21.02.2024.

5. It is in this view of the matter that the petitions were directed to be listed today for hearing. It has also been informed by the learned counsel for the parties that the police has reached the site and is being the process of conducting the execution.

6. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and prima facie a case for consideration is made out as shall also be evident from the order passed by a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court dated 06.02.2024. Since the execution proceedings had commenced, accordingly the Court had requested the learned Standing Counsel to inform the police station concerned from where the possee of the police contingent had accompanied the Court Amin for executing the decree to go back as the matter has been heard and it is reserved for judgment.

7. This order has been passed in presence of Shri Manoj Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioners and Shri R. R. Upadhyaya, learned counsel alongwith Shri P. K. Singh Vats for the private respondents and the learned Standing Counsel.

8. The police is directed to go back and the Court Amin is also directed to stay the execution proceedings forthwith.

9. This order shall be communicated even to the executing court and for that the parties will be at liberty by filing an affidavit which shall be taken note of by the executing court where the matter is listed on 26.02.2024.

10. Accordingly till pronouncement of judgment the execution of the decree shall remain stayed and parties shall maintain status quo as it exists today."

14. The submission of learned counsel for the petitioners is that the decree dated 21.01.1982 passed in SCC Suit No. 57 of 1980 was governed by Article 136 as mentioned in the schedule appended to the Limitation Act, 1963 which provides for a limitation of 12 years for executing a decree.

15. The submission is that the decree was passed on 21.01.1982 and even though the petitioners had filed a revision before the District Court and later a writ petition bearing No. 3408 of 1983 was filed before the Court but nevertheless during this period, there was no stay from either the Revisional Court or the High Court in the writ petition, hence, the period of limitation would start from the date of the decree i.e. 21.01.1982 and the period of 12 years expired in the year 1994.

16. It is further submitted that the execution application was filed on 19.07.2017 i.e. after 23 years from the expiry of the period of limitation and after 35 years from the date of decree. In such circumstances, apparently, the decree was time barred and no execution of such decree could take place.

17. The learned counsel for the petitioners further submits that the private respondents are guilty of sharp tactics, inasmuch as, when the application for execution was filed on 19.07.2017, there is a report of the Munsrim of the Court clearly stating that the application for execution was time-barred.

18. Even though, the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 do not apply to execution proceedings, nevertheless, the private respondents who are the decree-holders have moved an application, along with the execution application, seeking condonation of delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963.

19. It is urged that though the Executing Court had passed an order directing the said case to be listed as a misc. case, however, the private respondents tampered with the record and instead of the words 'Prakeen wad darj ho" (register as misc. case) as ordered by the Executing Court, they interpolated the said words as "Ijraywad Darj Ho" (register as execution case)."

20. It is further urged that while the petitioners have filed objections under Section 47 C.P.C. yet the issue of limitation was not decided rather the Executing Court and the Revisional Court had proceeded as if the provisions of Section 5 of the Limitation Act were applicable and held that since the explanation given by the decree-holder for filing the application late was adequate and thus it held that the execution application was within time. It is stated that no clear finding in this regard was given by any of the courts despite several rounds of litigation and though this core issue was raised by the petitioners but remained undecided.

21. Elaborating his submissions, Sri Mishra has urged that the Executing Court who decided the objections under Section 47 C.P.C. completely went on a tangent and concluded that since the parties were litigating and during the pendency of W.P. No. 3408 of 1983 the original decree holder had expired and his heirs were not brought on record. But later when the legal heirs of decree holders came to know, they filed the execution application which it would not impact adversely the filing of the execution application and it further held that the compromise which had been arrived at between the parties was unregistered and insufficiently stamped and could not be taken note of by the executing court, hence, the objections were rejected.

22. On the matter being taken before the Revisional Court, it observed that since the W.P. No. 3408 of 1983 had been dismissed in default and the restorations applications were pending that would come to the benefit of the decree holder and it would be treated as the decree had not attained finality, hence, the limitation was not an issue to refuse execution.

23. It is also urged that the very fact that the decree holders had moved an application seeking condonation of delay along with the execution application, hence, this application in its first instance ought to have been decided by the court irrespective whether the judgment-debtors had raised the objections of limitation or not as it is the duty of the Court in terms of Section 3 of the Limitation Act to consider the issue of limitation first and foremost.

24. It is urged that the petitioners had brought to the notice of the Court as well as the Revisional Court that a hugely time-barred decree could never be executed, yet the said issue was not decided which compelled the petitioner to keep running before different courts for seeking adjudication which was not done. In the aforesaid circumstances, the petitioners filed the petition bearing No. 1644 of 2022, however, while the same was pending, the Executing Court went ahead to get the decree executed through police aid which resulted in filing of the instant petition bearing No. W.P. 541 of 2024 and as such it is for the first time the correctness of the approach of the subordinate courts is to be tested and a conclusive finding be returned as to whether a decree of 1982 could have been entertained for execution in the year 2017 after a period of 30 years and odd, hence, in light of the provisions of the Limitation Act, the impugned orders are bad and the petitions deserve to be allowed.

25. Per Contra, Sri R.R. Upadhyay, learned counsel for the decree-holder-private respondent nos. 3 to 6 submits that the issue of limitation was raised by the petitioners in their objections under Section 47 C.P.C. which came to be rejected and thereafter the petitioner came forward by filing a revision which was also dismissed.

26. Once, the issue of limitation had been rejected, it was not open for the petitioners to have raised the aforesaid issue once again by moving a separate application bearing Paper No. Ga-29 which needless to say was dismissed and so also the revision wherein it was held that the issue of limitation already stood decided and it could not be re-agitated again.

27. It is also urged that once the issue of limitation had been decided while dismissing the objections under Section 47 C.P.C. and also the revision emanating there from, hence, the subsequent attempts of the petitioners to raise the same issue over and over again by repeated applications only indicates the malafides of the petitioners who want to stall the execution of the decree dated 21.01.1982. It is also submitted that apart from the house in question wherein the petitioners are in occupation, there is large area which still belongs to the petitioners which is adjacent to the disputed property over which the petitioners are attempting to encroach it.

28. It is further urged that since the father of the private respondents namely Harimohan Verma had expired and the private respondents were residing away from District Ayodhya, hence, they were not aware and later when the application for execution was filed along with an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, the issue of limitation having been decided, in such circumstances, if the private respondents not pressed their application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, it could not have any adverse impact on the petitioners who nevertheless were the judgment-debtors and were required to be evicted.

29. It is also urged that in so far as the judgment debtors are concerned, it is not as if any opportunity of hearing has been denied to the petitioners and in the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the petitions are misconceived and deserves to be dismissed since the two petitions are an outcome of malafides whereby the petitioners are attempting to rake up an issue which already stands decided, hence, in the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the petitions are an abuse of process of law and deserve to be dismissed.

30. The Court has heard the learned counsel for the parties and also perused the material on record.

31. The core question that requires adjudication is regarding the issue of limitation viz.a.viz the execution of a decree.

32. In so far as the facts and dates are concerned, there is no dispute in between the parties. Apparently, SCC Suit No. 57 of 1980 came to be decreed on 21.01.1982. The same was challenged by the petitioners through their predecessors-in-interest by filing a revision which also came to be dismissed on 12.05.1983 which was further escalated by the predecessors of the petitioners by means of W.P. No. 3408 of 1983 which also came to be dismissed on 22.01.1997.

33. It is also not disputed that the decree-holder filed an execution application along with an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act on 19.07.2017 i.e. after 35 years from the date of decree dated 21.01.1982 and nonetheless after 22 years from the year the writ petition was dismissed for want of prosecution in the year 1997.

34. It is also not disputed that as per Article 136 as mentioned in the schedule appended with the Limitation Act, 12 years limitation period is the provided for executing any decree and the said Article further provides that the time from which the period begins to run is from the date the decree becomes enforceable. At this stage, it will also be relevant to notice the provisions of Section 3, Section 5 and Section 15 of the Limitation Act, 1963 which reads as under:-

"3. Bar of limitation.—(1) Subject to the provisions contained in Sections 4 to 24 (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal preferred, and application made after the prescribed period shall be dismissed although limitation has not been set up as a defence.*

(2) For the purposes of this Act,—

(a) a suit is instituted,—

(i) in an ordinary case, when the plaint is presented to the proper officer;

(ii) in the case of a pauper, when his application for leave to sue as a pauper is made; and

(iii) in the case of a claim against a company which is being wound up by the court, when the claimant first sends in his claim to the official liquidator;

(b) any claim by way of a set-off or a counter-claim, shall be treated as a separate suit and shall be deemed to have been instituted—

(i) in the case of a set-off, on the same date as the suit in which the set-off is pleaded;

(ii) in the case of a counter-claim, on the date on which the counter claim is made in court;

(c) an application by notice of motion in a High Court is made when the application is presented to the proper officer of that court.

5. Extension of prescribed period in certain cases.—Any appeal or any application, other than an application under any of the provisions of Order XXI of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, may be admitted after the prescribed period if the appellant or the applicant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal or making the application within such period.

Explanation.—The fact that the appellant or the applicant was misled by any order, practice or judgment of the High Court in ascertaining or computing the prescribed period may be sufficient cause within the meaning of this section.

15. Exclusion of time in certain other cases.—(1) In computing the period of limitation for any suit or application for* the execution of a decree, the institution or execution of which has been stayed by injunction or order, the time of the continuance of the injunction or order, the day on which it was issued or made, and the day on which it was withdrawn, shall be excluded.

(2) In computing the period of limitation for any suit of which notice has been given, or for which the previous consent or sanction of the Government or any other authority is required, in accordance with the requirements of any law for the time being in force, the period of such notice or, as the case may be, the time required for obtaining such consent or sanction shall be excluded.

Explanation.—In excluding the time required for obtaining the consent or sanction of the Government or any other authority, the date on which the application was made for obtaining the consent or sanction and the date of receipt of the order of the Government or other authority shall both be counted.

(3) In computing the period of limitation for any suit or application for execution of a decree by any receiver or interim receiver appointed in proceedings for the adjudication of a person as an insolvent or any liquidator or provisional liquidator appointed in proceedings for the winding up of a company, the period beginning with the date of institution of such proceeding and ending with the expiry of three months from the date of appointment of such receiver or liquidator, as the case may be, shall be excluded.

(4) In computing the period of limitation for a suit for possession by a purchaser at a sale in execution of a decree, the time during which a proceeding to set aside the sale has been prosecuted shall be excluded.

(5) In computing the period of limitation for any suit the time during which the defendant has been absent from India and from the territories outside India under the administration of Central Government shall be excluded."

35. The conjoint impact of the aforesaid provisions would be that any application made after the prescribed period of limitation subject to the provisions contained in Section 4 to Section 24 of the Limitation Act are liable to be dismissed even though the limitation may not have been set-up as a defense, meaning thereby that it is incumbent upon the court to see the issue of limitation even though it may not have been raised as a defence by the defending party.

36. Section 5 of the Act of 1963 clearly provides that that there cannot be an extension of the prescribed period of limitation in respect of an application moved under Order 21 of C.P.C. meaning clearly that provisions for extension of time/condonation of delay is not applicable on an application filed originally to execute a decree in terms of Order 21 C.P.C., however, in order to compute the period of limitation, if Section 15 is seen with Article 136 mentioned in the schedule appended to the Limitation Act, it would be clear that for the purposes of computing the limitation for any suit or application for execution of a decree, the institution or execution of which has been stayed by an order of injunction, it shall be excluded including the day on which such order was passed as well as the day on which it was withdrawn.

37. If the aforesaid principle is applied in the instant case, it would be absolutely clear that the decree dated 21.01.1982 became enforceable on the said date and the period of limitation would commence from 21.01.1982 and thus 12 years would expire in the year 1994. Though, it is stated by the petitioners that there was no stay on the execution of the decree while the petitioners had preferred a revision which came to be dismissed in the 1983 and even in the W.P. 3408 of 1983 was dismissed for want of prosecution on 22.01.1997 even then if the period of 12 years is reckoned from the year 1997 even then it would expire in the year 2009.

38. Thus, it would be seen that considering the issue of limitation and its computation from any angle, it would reveal that the application for execution filed on 19.07.2017 was much beyond the period of limitation as prescribed in the Limitation Act.

39. It is also to be seen that apparently the Munsrim of the court had given his report to the effect that the application for execution was time barred. Once, such a report was placed by the Munsrim, it was incumbent upon the Executing Court to examine the issue in the first instance as required in terms of Section 3 of the Limitation Act. The decision of the Apex Court in (i) SBI v. B.S. Agriculture Industries (I), (2009) 5 SCC 121; (ii) Noharlal Verma v. Distt. Coop. Central Bank Ltd., (2008) 14 SCC 445; (iii) Chandi Prasad v. Jagdish Prasad, (2004) 8 SCC 724 ; (iv) Bimal Kumar v. Shakuntala Debi, (2012) 3 SCC 548 will be relevant to be noticed wherein it has been held that it is the duty of the court in terms of Section 3 of the Limitation Act to examine the limitation irrespective whether the Limitation has been taken as a defence or not. The relevant paras of the said reports read as under:-

The Apex Court in SBI v. B.S. Agriculture Industries (I), (2009) 5 SCC 121 has held as under:-

12. As a matter of law, the consumer forum must deal with the complaint on merits only if the complaint has been filed within two years from the date of accrual of cause of action and if beyond the said period, the sufficient cause has been shown and delay condoned for the reasons recorded in writing. In other words, it is the duty of the consumer forum to take notice of Section 24-A and give effect to it. If the complaint is barred by time and yet, the consumer forum decides the complaint on merits, the forum would be committing an illegality and, therefore, the aggrieved party would be entitled to have such order set aside.

13. In Union of India v. British India Corpn. Ltd. [(2003) 9 SCC 505] while dealing with an aspect of limitation for an application for refund prescribed in the Business Profits Tax Act, 1947 this Court held that the question of limitation was a mandate to the forum and, irrespective of the fact whether it was raised or not, the forum must consider and apply it.

14. In HUDA v. B.K. Sood [(2006) 1 SCC 164] this Court while dealing with the same provision viz. Section 24-A of the Act, 1986 held : (SCC pp. 167-68, paras 10-12)

"10. Section 24-A of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 (referred to as 'the Act' hereafter) expressly casts a duty on the Commission admitting a complaint, to dismiss a complaint unless the complainant satisfies the District Forum, the State Commission or the National Commission, as the case may be, that the complainant had sufficient cause for not filing the complaint within the period of two years from the date on which the cause of action had arisen.

11. The section debars any fora set up under the Act, admitting a complaint unless the complaint is filed within two years from the date of which the cause of action has arisen. Neither the National Commission nor had the State Commission considered the preliminary objections raised by the appellant that the claim of the respondent was barred by time. According to the complaint filed by the respondent, the cause of action arose when, according to the respondent, possession was received of the booth site and it was allegedly found that an area less than the area advertised had been given. This happened in January 1987. Furthermore, the bhatties which were alleged to have caused loss and damage to the respondent, as stated in the complaint, had been installed before 1989 and removed in 1994. The complaint before the State Commission was filed by the respondent in 1997, ten years after the taking of possession, eight years after the cause of alleged damage commenced and three years after that cause ceased. There was not even any prayer by the respondent in his complaint for condoning the delay.

12. Therefore, the claim of the respondent on the basis of the allegations contained in the complaint was clearly barred by limitation as the two year period prescribed by Section 24-A of the Act had expired much before the complaint was admitted by the State Commission. This finding is sufficient for allowing the appeal."

15. In a recent case of Gannmani Anasuya v. Parvatini Amarendra Chowdhary [(2007) 10 SCC 296] this Court highlighted with reference to Section 3 of the Limitation Act that it is for the court to determine the question as to whether the suit is barred by limitation or not irrespective of the fact that as to whether such a plea has been raised by the parties; such a jurisdictional fact need not be even pleaded."

The Apex Court in Noharlal Verma v. Distt. Coop. Central Bank Ltd., (2008) 14 SCC 445 and the relevant portion of the said report read as under:-

32. Now, limitation goes to the root of the matter. If a suit, appeal or application is barred by limitation, a court or an adjudicating authority has no jurisdiction, power or authority to entertain such suit, appeal or application and to decide it on merits.

33. Sub-section (1) of Section 3 of the Limitation Act, 1963 reads as under:

"3. Bar of limitation.—(1) Subject to the provisions contained in Sections 4 to 24 (inclusive), every suit instituted, appeal preferred, and application made after the prescribed period shall be dismissed although limitation has not been set up as a defence."

(emphasis supplied)

Bare reading of the aforesaid provision leaves no room for doubt that if a suit is instituted, appeal is preferred or application is made after the prescribed period, it has to be dismissed even though no such plea has been raised or defence has been set up. In other words, even in absence of such plea by the defendant, respondent or opponent, the court or authority must dismiss such suit, appeal or application, if it is satisfied that the suit, appeal or application is barred by limitation."

The Apex Court again in Chandi Prasad v. Jagdish Prasad, (2004) 8 SCC 724 has observed as follows:-

"18. The reasons for bringing on the statute-book, the present Article 136 may be noticed. By reason of the said amendment, the filing of the execution petition has been simplified and the difficulties faced for computation which used to arise for grant of stay or not have become immaterial. In terms of Article 136 of the Act, thus, a decree can be executed when it becomes enforceable.

19. Article 136 substantially reproduces the provisions of Section 48(1) of the Code of Civil Procedure which by reason of the Act stands repealed. In that view of the matter, Parliament thought it fit to provide for one period of limitation for an application for execution in stead and place governing each of the several execution applications which the decree-holder can make within a period of 12 years.

20. It is not disputed that all decrees, be they original or appellate, are enforceable. Once a decree is sought to be enforced for the purpose of execution thereof irrespective of being original or appellate, the date of the decree or any subsequent order directing any payment of money or delivery of any property at a certain date would be considered to be the starting period of limitation.

21. It is axiomatic true that when a judgment is pronounced by a High Court in exercise of its appellate power upon entertaining the appeal and a full hearing in the presence of both parties, the same would replace the judgment of the lower court and only the judgment of the High Court would be treated as final. (See U.J.S. Chopra v. State of Bombay [AIR 1955 SC 633 : (1955) 2 SCR 94 : 1955 Cri LJ 1410] .)

22. When an appeal is prescribed under a statute and the appellate forum is invoked and entertained, for all intent and purport, the suit continues.

Merger

23. The doctrine of merger is based on the principles of propriety in the hierarchy of the justice-delivery system. The doctrine of merger does not make a distinction between an order of reversal, modification or an order of confirmation passed by the appellate authority. The said doctrine postulates that there cannot be more than one operative decree governing the same subject-matter at a given point of time.

24. It is trite that when an appellate court passes a decree, the decree of the trial court merges with the decree of the appellate court and even if and subject to any modification that may be made in the appellate decree, the decree of the appellate court supersedes the decree of the trial court. In other words, merger of a decree takes place irrespective of the fact as to whether the appellate court affirms, modifies or reverses the decree passed by the trial court. When a special leave petition is dismissed summarily, doctrine of merger does not apply but when an appeal is dismissed, it does. [See V.M. Salgaocar and Bros. (P) Ltd. v. CIT [(2000) 5 SCC 373 : AIR 2000 SC 1623] .]"

Similarly, the Apex Court in Bimal Kumar v. Shakuntala Debi, (2012) 3 SCC 548 has held as under:-

"29.Presently, we shall dwell upon the issue whether the execution levied by the respondents was barred by limitation or not. The executing court, by its order dated 10-7-2006, accepted the plea of the present appellants and came to hold that the execution petition filed by the decree-holder was hopelessly barred by limitation.

30.In the civil revision, the learned Single Judge overturned the decision on several counts:

(i) that no steps were taken and no objection was raised by the father of the opposite parties for setting aside the ex parte decree passed in the first suit, if he was aggrieved by it, for about 9 years, though he had appeared and had full knowledge about the first suit;

(ii) that as per the compromise decree, the parties were in possession of the respective shares allotted to them and, accordingly, neither preliminary nor final decree was drawn up and there was no occasion for the petitioners for filing an execution case for enforcement of the compromise decree;

(iii) that the second suit challenging the compromise decree passed in the first suit remained pending for about 21 years;

(iv) that the appeal filed against the dismissal of the second suit also remained pending for about 10 years;

(v) that after the appeal was dismissed and the judgment and decree passed in the second suit became final, the execution case was filed by the petitioner alleging dispossession from the family business being run in the ground floor of the building; and

(vi) that on the basis of such allegation, the compromise decree passed in the first suit became enforceable.

31.Apart from the aforesaid reasons, the learned Single Judge has opined that after the execution case was admitted by the predecessor of the learned Sub-Judge presumably after condoning the delay, the successor should not have dismissed it on the ground of limitation. He placed reliance onBharti Devi[AIR 2010 Jhar 10 : (2009) 3 JLJR 90] and buttressed the reasoning that there was no delay in levying of the execution proceeding. The learned Single Judge further took note of the pending Miscellaneous Appeal No. 369 of 2008 preferred by the present appellants to reinforce the conclusion.

32.It is well settled in law that a preliminary decree declares the rights and liabilities, but in a given case, a decree may be both preliminary and final and that apart, a decree may be partly preliminary and partly final. It has been so held inRachakonda Venkat Raov.R. Satya Bai[(2003) 7 SCC 452 : AIR 2003 SC 3322] . It is worth noting that what is executable is a final decree and not a preliminary decree unless and until the final decree is a part of the preliminary decree. That apart, a final decree proceeding may be initiated at any point of time. It has been so enunciated inHasham Abbas Sayyadv.Usman Abbas Sayyad[(2007) 2 SCC 355] .

33.InBikoba Deora Gaikwadv.Hirabai Marutirao Ghorgare[(2008) 8 SCC 198] a two-Judge Bench of this Court has held that only when a suit is completely disposed of, thereby a final decree would come into being. In the said case, it has also been laid down that an application for taking steps towards passing a final decree is not an execution application and further, for the purposes of construing the nature of the decree, one has to look to the terms thereof rather than speculate upon the court's intention.

34.Regard being had to the aforesaid principles and having opined that the decree passed on the basis of a compromise in the case at hand is the final decree, it is to be addressed whether the execution is barred by limitation.

	"Description of suit	Period of limitation	Time from which period begins to run
136.	For the execution of any decree (other than a decree granting a mandatory injunction) or order of any civil court.	Twelve years	When the decree or order becomes enforceable or where the decree or any subsequent order directs any payment of money or the delivery of any property to be made at a certain date or at recurring periods when default in making the payment or delivery in respect of which execution is sought, takes place: Provided that an application for the enforcement or execution of a decree granting a perpetual injunction shall not be subject to any period of limitation."

On a perusal of the said article, it is quite vivid that an application for execution of a decree (other than a decree granting a mandatory injunction) or order of any civil court is to be filed within a period of twelve years.

36. InChiranji Lalv.Hari Das[(2005) 10 SCC 746] the question arose whether a final decree becomes enforceable only when it is engrossed on the stamp paper. The three-Judge Bench dealing with the controversy has opined that Article 136 of the Limitation Act presupposes two conditions for the execution of the decree; firstly, the judgment has to be converted into a decree and secondly, the decree should be enforceable. The submission that the period of limitation begins to run from the date when the decree becomes enforceable i.e. when the decree is engrossed on the stamp paper, is unacceptable.

37.The Bench, while elaborating the said facet, proceeded to lay down as under: (Chiranji Lal case[(2005) 10 SCC 746] , SCC pp. 755-56, paras 24-26)

"24. A decree in a suit for partition declares the rights of the parties in the immovable properties and divides the shares by metes and bounds. Since a decree in a suit for partition creates rights and liabilities of the parties with respect to the immovable properties, it is considered as an instrument liable for the payment of stamp duty under the Stamp Act. The object of the Stamp Act being securing the revenue for the State, the scheme of the Stamp Act provides that a decree of partition not duly stamped can be impounded and once the requisite stamp duty along with penalty, if any, is paid the decree can be acted upon.

25. The engrossment of the final decree in a suit for partition would relate back to the date of the decree. The beginning of the period of limitation for executing such a decree cannot be made to depend upon the date of the engrossment of such a decree on the stamp paper. The date of furnishing of stamp paper is an uncertain act, within the domain, purview and control of a party. No date or period is fixed for furnishing stamp papers. No rule has been shown to us requiring the court to call upon or give any time for furnishing of stamp paper. A party by his own act of not furnishing stamp paper cannot stop the running of period of limitation. None can take advantage of his own wrong. The proposition that the period of limitation would remain suspended till the stamp paper is furnished and decree engrossed thereupon and only thereafter the period of twelve years will begin to run would lead to absurdity. InYeshwant Deoraov.Walchand Ramchand[1950 SCC 766 : AIR 1951 SC 16 : 1950 SCR 852] it was said that the payment of court fee on the amount found due was entirely in the power of the decree-holder and there was nothing to prevent him from paying it then and there; it was a decree capable of execution from the very date it was passed.

26. Rules of limitation are meant to see that parties do not resort to dilatory tactics, but seek their remedy promptly. As abovenoted, there is no statutory provision prescribing a time-limit for furnishing of the stamp paper for engrossing the decree or time-limit for engrossment of the decree on stamp paper and there is no statutory obligation on the court passing the decree to direct the parties to furnish the stamp paper for engrossing the decree. In the present case the court has not passed an order directing the parties to furnish the stamp papers for the purpose of engrossing the decree. Merely because there is no direction by the court to furnish the stamp papers for engrossing of the decree or there is no time-limit fixed by law, does not mean that the party can furnish stamp papers at its sweet will and claim that the period of limitation provided under Article 136 of the Act would start only thereafter as and when the decree is engrossed thereupon. The starting of period of limitation for execution of a partition decree cannot be made contingent upon the engrossment of the decree on the stamp paper."

45. Thus analysed, the reasons ascribed by the learned Single Judge are absolutely unsustainable. The period of limitation stipulated under Article 136 of the Act could not have been condoned as has been so presumed by the learned Single Judge. The reliance placed onBharti Devi[AIR 2010 Jhar 10 : (2009) 3 JLJR 90] is totally misconceived inasmuch as in the said case, the execution proceeding was initiated for permanent injunction. No exception can be taken to the same and, therefore, reliance placed on the said decision is misconceived."

40. If the Executing Court would have performed its duty and obligation to examine the said issue at the threshold, perhaps it would have saved the parties from multiple litigation and could have saved a lot of judicial time of the courts and forums as the core issue of limitation was raised and more so when the decree holder itself had filed the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963 and without passing any formal order of condonation of delay, the execution proceedings could not have proceeded on merits, least realizing that Section 5 of the Act of 1963 was not attracted. Thus, the decree holder knew that the execution application was time barred yet by skirting the issue it led the parties to be at logger heads since 2017.

41. There can be no doubt on the proposition of law that whatever be the cause, the period of limitation for executing a decree cannot be extended as Section 5 of the Limitation Act is not applicable. In this regard, the decision of the Apex Court in West Bengal Essential Commodities Supply Corporation Vs. Swadesh Agro Farming & Storage Pvt. and Another; (1999) 8 SCC 315 has clearly held that the Section 5 of the Limitation Act is not applicable on the Execution Application. The relevant portion of the said report read as under:-

"19. Under the scheme of the Limitation Act, execution applications, like plaints have to be presented in the court within the time prescribed by the Limitation Act. A decree-holder does not have the benefit of exclusion of the time taken for obtaining the certified copy of the decree like the appellant who prefers an appeal, much less can he claim to deduct time taken by the court in drawing up and signing the decree. In this view of the matter, the High Courts of Patna and Calcutta in Chandra Mouli Deva v. Kumar Binoya Nand Singh [AIR 1976 Pat 208 : 1976 BBCJ 124] and Sunderlal & Sons v. Yagendra Nath Singh [AIR 1976 Cal 471] have correctly laid down the law; the opinion to the contra expressed by the High Court of Calcutta in Ram Krishna Tarafdar v. Nemai Krishna Tarafdar [AIR 1974 Cal 173] is wrong. Section 5 of the Limitation Act has no application; Section 12(2) of the Limitation Act is also inapplicable to an execution petition. If the time is reckoned not from the date of the decree but from the date when it is prepared, it would amount to doing violence to the provisions of the Limitation Act as well as of Order 20 and Order 21 Rule 11 CPC which is clearly impermissible.

20. In the result, we hold that the period of limitation under Article 136 of the Limitation Act runs from the date of the decree and not from the date when the decree is actually drawn up and signed by the Judge. We, therefore, do not find any illegality in the impugned judgment of the High Court. The appeal fails and it is accordingly dismissed. No costs.

42. Even if the provisions of Section 15 of the Limitation Act is examined in the facts of the instant case, it would be seen that there is a clear averment made by the petitioners that while they have been assailing the decree dated 21.01.1982 in a revision which was dismissed in the year 1983 and even the W.P. No. 3408 of 1983 was dismissed in the year 1997 yet there was no stay order in the said proceedings. For the said reasons, Section 15 had no applicability but even otherwise for the sake of arguments, if it is to be considered that there may have been an order of stay for some time, even then the fact remains that the writ petition was dismissed on 22.01.1997, consequently, at best the period of limitation could have commenced from 1997 which also came to an end in the year 2009, accordingly, there was no justification for entertaining the execution application in the year 2017.

43. Merely, because some restoration application was filed in the W.P. No. 3408 of 1983 and it remained pending without any substantive hearing or order and in any case there was no stay on the operation of the decree, mere pendency of the said application for restoration in the aforesaid writ petition could not come to the rescue of the decree-holders.

44. Even though, this Court has no sympathy for the petitioners who are the judgment-debtors but the fact remains that this Court is bound to decide the question of law in accordance with the provisions of law which are attracted in respect of the subject matter of dispute.

45. There is nothing on record to indicate that once the Munsrim had given his report that the execution application was time barred, how the Executing Court dealt with the matter and how it satisfied itself treating the application to be within time that it issued notices to the judgment-debtor to respond on merits of the execution application, without a formal order of condonation of delay.

46. It is also to be seen that perhaps the Executing Court and the Lower Revisional Courts were under a misconception that Section 5 of the Limitation Act was applicable, inasmuch as, the reasoning given by the Executing Court in order dated 06.04.2018 and of the Revisional Court in its order dated 07.08.2018 which are under challenge in the connected petition bearing No. 1644 of 2022 would reveal that they have proceeded on the premise that the pendency of the proceedings before the writ court would come to the benefit of the decree holders. This reasoning of the two courts is palpably erroneous and does not flow from the provisions of law.

47. Apparently, looking into the order sheet, a certified copy of which has been brought on record as Annexure No. 4 in W.P. No. 541 of 2024 it would indicate that prima facie there appears to be some interpolation in the order dated 19.07.2017. Even though, it cannot be verified with certainty at this stage as to whether there was any interpolation and if so by which party but the fact which is undisputed and flows from the record is that it was the duty of the court to have considered the issue of limitation at the first instance. The very fact that the decree-holders had filed an application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act, this should have caught the attention of the court in the first instance before proceeding any further on merits but the same has not been done.

48. The record further indicates that the issue of limitation has been most improperly considered by the Executing Court while dismissing the objections preferred by the petitioners under Section 47 C.P.C. by means of order dated 06.04.2018 as well as by the Revisional Court which dismissed the revision on 07.08.2018 and though it was not taken any higher at that stage but the petitioners raised the same issue by moving a separate application and thereafter when they did not find any success, they have yet again raised the same issue over and over again.

49. Even though, the petitioners may not have assailed the order dated 06.04.2018 and 07.08.2018 at that stage but the same has been assailed in the connected petitions no. 1644 of 2022 and though it can be stated that the act of the petitioners may be mired with laches yet the issue which has been raised is an issue of law.

50. It is also a settled proposition of law that where an issue may not have been appropriately considered and is brought to the notice of the court at a later stage and which materially affects the rights of the respective parties then in certain circumstances, the constitutional courts cannot be said to be denuded of its jurisdiction to deal with the issues and the propositions of limitation, Resjudicata may not come in the way of the courts to do complete justice between the parties. In this regard, the observations of the Apex Court in Ashok Leyland Ltd. Vs. State of Tamil Nadu and Another; (2004) 3 SCC are relevant and it reads as under:-

118.The principle of res judicata is a procedural provision. A jurisdictional question, if wrongly decided, would not attract the principle of res judicata. When an order is passed without jurisdiction, the same becomes a nullity. When an order is a nullity, it cannot be supported by invoking the procedural principles like estoppel, waiver or res judicata. This question has since been considered inRamnik Vallabhdas Madhvaniv.Taraben Pravinlal Madhvani[(2004) 1 SCC 497 : (2003) 9 Scale 412] wherein this Court observed in the following terms: (SCC pp. 518-19, paras 55-57)

"55. So far as the question of rate of interest is concerned, it may be noticed that the High Court itself found that the rate of interest should have been determined at 6%. The principles of res judicata which according to the High Court would operate in the case, in our opinion, is not applicable. Principles of res judicata is a procedural provision. The same has no application where there is inherent lack of jurisdiction.

'23[24]. As against the above, Shri Vepa Sarathi appearing for the respective first respondent in CA No. 2826 of 1977, and in CA No. 278 of 1978 submitted that when his client filed a writ petition (No. 58908 of 1976) under Article 226 of the Constitution in the High Court for impugning the order of his compulsory retirement passed by the Chief Justice, he had served, in accordance with Rule 5 of the Andhra Pradesh High Court (Original Side) Rules, notice on the Chief Justice and the Government Pleader, and, in consequence, at the preliminary hearing of the writ petition before the Division Bench, the Government Pleader appeared on behalf of all the respondents including the Chief Justice, and raised a preliminary objection that the writ petition was not maintainable in view of clause 6 of the Andhra Pradesh Administrative Tribunal Order made by the President under Article 371-D which had taken away that jurisdiction of the High Court and vested the same in Administrative Tribunal. This objection was accepted by the High Court, and as a result, the writ petition was dismissed in limine. In these circumstances — proceeds the argument — the appellant is now precluded on principles of res judicata and estoppel from taking up the position, that the Tribunal's order is without jurisdiction. But, when Shri Sarathi's attention was invited to the fact that no notice was actually served on the Chief Justice and that the Government Pleader who had raised this objection had not been instructed by the Chief Justice or the High Court to put in appearance on their behalf, the counsel did not pursue this contention further. Moreover, this is a pure question of law depending upon the interpretation of Article 371-D.If the argument holds good, it will make the decision of the Tribunal as having been given by an authority suffering from inherent lack of jurisdiction. Such a decision cannot be sustained merely by the doctrine of res judicata or estoppel as urged in the case.

57. InDwarka Prasad Agarwalv.B.D. Agarwal[(2003) 6 SCC 230] it is stated: (SCC p. 245, para 37)

'37. It is now well settled that an order passed by a court without jurisdiction is a nullity. Any order passed or action taken pursuant thereto or in furtherance thereof would also be nullities. In the instant case, as the High Court did not have any jurisdiction to record the compromise for the reasons stated hereinbefore and in particular as no writ was required to be issued having regard to the fact that public law remedy could not have been resorted to, the impugned orders must be held to be illegal and without jurisdiction and are liable to be set aside. All orders and actions taken pursuant to or in furtherance thereof must also be declared wholly illegal and without jurisdiction and consequently are liable to be set aside. They are declared as such.' "

Similarly, the Apex Court in A. Jithendranath Vs. Jubilee Coop. House Building Society and Another; (2006) 10 SCC 96 in paragraphs 48 and 49 has held as under:-

"48. We have, furthermore, noticed hereinbefore the prayers made by the appellant in the said arbitration proceedings. In view of prayer (a) which was the main prayer ex facie the Registrar acted illegally and without jurisdiction in directing the first respondent to allot Plot No. 39. The first respondent made it clear that the plot in question had been allotted in favour of the said Srinivas. The question as to whether he raised constructions thereupon or not was immaterial. He despite such allotment having been made in his favour was not impleaded as a party. He was a necessary party. No award therefor could have been passed in his absence. In any event, so far as Plot No. 39 is concerned, the only prayer made by the appellant was an order of injunction. The Registrar while exercising his judicial function had no jurisdiction to pass such an order of injunction in view of prayer (a) made in the application.

49. T*he said award, therefore, was a nullity. In this view of the matter, the principles of res judicata will have no application. (SeeHaryana State Coop. Land Development Bankv.Neelam[(2005) 5 SCC 91 : 2005 SCC (L&S) 601] andRam Chandra Singhv.Savitri Devi[(2003) 8 SCC 319 : JT (2005) 11 SC 439] .) An order which was passed by an authority without jurisdiction need not be set aside, being a nullity, it in the eye of the law never existed. (SeeBalvant N. Viswamitrav.Yadav Sadashiv Mule[(2004) 8 SCC 706] .)"*

51. It is also to be seen that a court of law is required to decide the issue before it and in the instant case what this Court finds that the issue of limitation which was a jurisdictional issue and was raised but was never addressed by the courts below on its core strength. The courts at the first instance moved on complete wrong premise moving on the assumption, as if, Section 5 of the Limitation Act was applicable and later when the said issue was raised again it has been discarded for the reason that the issue had already been considered and decided.

52. This Court finds that the impugned orders are patently erroneous and suffers from apparent errors on the face of record. There is no explanation which could be given by the learned counsel for the private respondents as to in what circumstances, the execution application could have been registered and decided on merits once it was hopelessly time-barred.

53. The learned counsel for the private respondents also could not explain the fact as to when the decree holders themselves had moved the application under Section 5 of the Limitation Act with the Execution Application as they themselves knew that their application was beyond the prescribed period of limitation then in what circumstances such delay could have been ignored, condoned and how such a time barred execution application could be put to execution.

54. In light of the aforesaid discussions, this Court is of the clear opinion that the decree dated 21.01.1982 was hopelessly time barred and could not be executed in the execution proceedings in the year 2017.

55. For the aforesaid reasons, this Court has no hesitation to hold that the proceedings of Execution Case No. 8 of 2017 were ex-facie time barred and could not be proceeded and all orders passed in the execution proceedings including orders by which the application under Section 47 C.P.C. was rejected and the orders passed by the Revisional Court affirming the same are per se against the settled legal principles and the relevant sections of the Limitation Act which have been noticed hereinabove. Accordingly, the writ petition bearing W.P. No. 1644 of 2022 and W.P. No. 541 of 2024 are allowed on a cost of Rs. 50,000/- to be paid by the petitioner to the private respondent within a period of three weeks from today by a demand draft and as a consequence, the Execution Case No. 8 of 2017 shall stand dismissed as time barred subject to deposit of costs as aforesaid. However, this in itself will not entitle the petitioners to claim any right, or interest whatsoever on any part of the land or property of the private respondents except the property which was the subject matter of SCC Suit No 57 of 1980 from which the execution case emerged. Moreover, in case if the cost is not paid within the aforesaid period, it shall be open for the Executing Court in Case No. 8 of 2017 to recover the same through the process of the Court from the judgment debtor and pay it to the decree-holder along with interest at the rate of 9% per annum.

Civil law - Gram Nyayalayas Act, 2008 - Sections 13, 14, 23, 24 & 34 - Constitution of India,1950 - Article 227 - Petitioner challenged the judgment dated 24.12.2021 by Gram Nyayalaya, Manikpur, Chitrakoot, dismissing her suit (New Original Suit No. 41/2020, Old Original Suit No. 329/2018) for declaring a sale deed dated 02.06.2018 void (on grounds of fraud and undue influence) and for permanent injunction. Suit, initially filed in Civil Court (Junior Division), was transferred to Gram Nyayalaya under Section 16 of the Act, 2008, by District Judge's order (11.09.2020). Gram Nyayalaya affirmed its jurisdiction (01.10.2020), unopposed by petitioner at the time. Petitioner contended Gram Nyayalaya lacked jurisdiction under Section 13 and Part I of Second Schedule, as suits for declaring sale deeds void are not covered, and its detailed evidence recording violated the summary procedure mandated by Section 24. Court held that suits for cancellation of sale deeds, being voidable under Sections 19, 19A of Indian Contract Act, require civil court jurisdiction, not Gram Nyayalaya, as they do not fall under "right to purchase of property" or other disputes in Part I of Second Schedule. Jurisdiction is a legislative function, and lack thereof renders the decree a nullity, raisable at any stage (Jagmittar Sain Bhagat Vs Director, Cantonment Board Vs Church of North India, Deva Sahayam Vs P. Savithramma). Revenue court jurisdiction under U.P. Revenue Code, 2006, inapplicable as suit involved voidable sale deed, not tenure-holder declaration. Judgment set aside as without jurisdiction; case remitted to District Court for adjudication by appropriate civil court.

Petition allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jayant Banerji, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Krishna Mohan Garg, learned counsel for the plaintiff-petitioner and Mr. Brijendra Kumar (Advocate Roll-A/B 0457/23), Advocate holding brief of Mr. Birendra Singh, learned counsel for the defendant-respondent.

2. This petition has been filed seeking to set aside the judgment and order dated 24.12.2021 passed by the Nyayadhikari, Gram Nyayalaya, Manikpur, District-Chitrakoot passed in New Original Suit No. 41/2020 (Old Original Suit No.329/2018) (Smt. Siya Dulari Vs. Awadh Naresh).

3. The contention on behalf of the petitioner is that the plaintiff-petitioner instituted a suit for declaring a sale deed registered on 2.6.2018 as a void document as well as for permanent injunction with regard to the suit property. This suit was instituted as Original Suit No. 329 of 2018 in the court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Chitrakoot and pleadings were exchanged. The contention is that after coming into force of the Gram Nyayalayas Act, 20081, the District Judge by an order dated 11.9.2020 directed that the record of the suit be transferred to the Gram Nyayalaya, Manikpur and, accordingly, on 14.9.2020, an order was passed by the court concerned transferring the civil suit to the Gram Nyayalaya in exercise of power under Section 16 of the Act, 2008.

4. It is stated that issue No.5 was framed which was that whether the court had jurisdiction to hear the matter. By an order dated 1.10.2020 the Gram Nyayalaya held that since the counsel for the defendant had made no arguments from which it could be gauged that the Gram Nyayalaya had no jurisdiction, therefore, the Gram Nyayalaya had jurisdiction to decide the case and, accordingly, the issue No.5 was decided in the affirmative.

5. It is stated that despite the jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalaya to decide those types of civil cases which are provided in Part I of the Second Schedule of the Act, 2008, the Gram Nyayalaya proceeded to decide the suit which was for declaring a sale deed as void. It is contended that the provisions of Section 13 and 14 of the Act, 2008 circumscribe the jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalayas, and a suit for declaring a sale deed as void would not lie within the jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalaya. It is further stated that by means of the impugned judgment and order dated 24.12.2021, the Gram Nyayalaya has not only adjudicated and dismissed the suit, but has exercised a jurisdiction and has recorded evidence in a manner that is not required to be done by a court which is required to adopt a summary procedure for adjudication. Learned counsel has referred to the provision of Section 24 of the Act, 2008 in this regard. It is stated that evidence of the plaintiff's witnesses were recorded in detail as were the evidence of the defendant's witnesses and thereafter the judgment was passed, which is wholly without jurisdiction and is void ab initio.

Learned counsel has referred to the plaint to contend that basis of the suit for seeking declaration of the voidance of a sale deed was undue influence and fraud; that the civil courts have jurisdiction to try all suits unless they are expressly or impliedly barred given the provisions of Section 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (CPC); that Order 5 to Order 20 of the CPC provide a detailed procedure for conduct of suit till its logical conclusion and it is Order 37 of the CPC that provides for summary procedure. Learned counsel has referred to clause (a) of Section 2 of the Act, 2008 that defines Gram Nyayalaya, Section 3 of which provides for establishment of Gram Nyayalaya; Sections 11, 12, 13 and 14 that deal with jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalaya and Sections 23 and 24 which provides for procedure in civil cases. It is stated that Section 24 provides for filing of an application and not a plaint. Under Section 23, the provisions of the CPC, in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Act, 2008, would apply to the procedure before a Gram Nyayalaya and for the purpose of the said provision of the code, the Gram Nyayalaya shall be deemed to be a civil court. It is stated that the procedure reflected in Section 24 of the Act, 2008 is in the nature of the summary trial which excludes the detailed procedure provided from Orders 5 to 20 of the CPC. Learned counsel has referred to the provision of Section 26 that provides for efforts for conciliation and settlement of civil disputes; Section 30 which refers to the scope of application of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872; and, the manner of recording of oral evidence as provided in Section 31, to contend that given the special procedure so provided, cases necessitating recording of contentious and admissible evidence / testimonies in detail, would not be fit to be adjudicated by the Gram Nyayalaya. Learned counsel has referred to Part I of the Second Schedule of the Act, 2008 and has stated that sub-clause (b) and (c) of Clause (i) which refers to civil disputes for the use of common pasture and for regulation and timing of taking water from irrigation channel pertain to Government/Gaon Sabha property; sub-clause (a) thereof, which provides for a case relating to right to purchase of property, refers to an agreement to sell which is prior to purchase of a property, that is to say, the right of purchase of property is a pre-existing right. It is stated that Chapter II of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 refers to specific performance of contracts that falls within the ambit of sub-clause (a) aforesaid, that is, the right to purchase of property. It is stated that given the provisions for cancellation of instruments and declaratory decrees referred to in Chapter V and Chapter VI of the Specific Relief Act, even in specific performance suits where defence of void/voidable agreement is taken on the ground of fraud and indue influence, the same would exclude the jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalaya and under the circumstances, a declaratory decree, as envisaged under Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act, is not covered by sub-clause (a) of clause (i) of Part I of the Second Schedule of the Act, 2008.

6. Learned counsel for the defendant-respondent has referred to the preamble to the Act, 2008 as well as Section 13 to contend that given the scope of the Act and the suit in question being within the pecuniary limit prescribed for Gram Nyayalayas by the High Court, the Gram Nyayalaya will have jurisdiction in the matter. It is stated that the order of the District Judge, Chitrakoot dated 8.9.2020 is on record which directed that civil cases and criminal matters pertaining to Manikpur and certain other tehsils pending in the District Court, be transferred to the Gram Nyayalaya concerned and therefore, the Gram Nyayalaya would have jurisdiction. It is further stated that under Section 34 of the Act, 2008, if a remedy of appeal would not lie due to valuation, then a remedy of revision would anyway be available. Learned counsel has referred to a Judgement of the High Court of Bombay passed in the Matter of Shobha Janardhan Masram Vs. Ganpat Gulabrao Thakre[2], particularly, paragraph nos. 12 and 13 thereof to contend that since no objection was raised before the Gram Nyayalaya with regard to the jurisdiction and neither was any appeal filed before the appellate court against the order of the Gram Nyayalaya affirming its jurisdiction, this petition ought to be rejected.

7. The Act, 2008 came into force on 2.10.2009 by means of a notification dated 11.11.2009. The jurisdiction of Gram Nyayalaya is in respect of both civil and criminal matters under the prescribed procedures and to the extent of the jurisdiction provided in terms of Section 11 by the Act, 2008. As far as civil jurisdiction is concerned, the relevant provision reads as follows:

"13. Civil jurisdiction.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) or any other law for the time being in force, and subject to sub-section (2), the Gram Nyayalaya shall have jurisdiction to-

(a) try all suits or proceedings of a civil nature falling under the classes of disputes specified in Part I of the Second Schedule;

(b) try all classes of claims and disputes which may be notified by the Central Government under sub-section (1) of Section 14 and by the State Government under sub-section (3) of the said section.

(2) The pecuniary limits of the Gram Nyayalaya shall be such as may be specified by the High Court, in consultation with the State Government, by notification, from time to time."

8. The Central and the State Governments are empowered to amend the schedules to the Act, 2008 under the provisions of Section 14 which reads as follows:

"14. Power to amend Schedules.- (1) Where the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, it may, by notification, add to or omit any item in Part I or Part II of the First Schedule or Part II of the Second Schedule, as the case may be, and it shall be deemed to have been amended accordingly.

(2) Every notification issued under sub-section (1) shall be laid before each House of Parliament.

(3) If the State Government is satisfied that it is necessary or expedient so to do, it may, in consultation with the High Court, by notification, add to any item in Part III of the First Schedule or Part III of the Second Schedule or omit from it any item in respect of which the State Legislature is competent to make laws and thereupon the First Schedule or the Second Schedule, as the case may be, shall be deemed to have been amended accordingly.

(4) Every notification issued under sub-section (3) shall be laid before the State Legislature."

9. Chapter V of the Act, 2008 provides for the procedure in civil cases. The relevant Sections mentioned in Chapter V read as follows:

"23. Overriding effect of Act in civil proceedings.- The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) or any other law, but save as expressly provided in this Act, the provisions of the Code shall, in so far as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, apply to the proceedings before a Gram Nyayalaya; and for the purpose of the said provisions of the Code, the Gram Nyayalaya shall be deemed to be a civil Court.

24. Special procedure in civil disputes.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, every suit, claim or dispute under this Act shall be instituted by making an application to the Gram Nyayalaya in such form, in such manner, and accompanied by such fee, not exceeding rupees one hundred, as may be prescribed by the High Court, from time to time, in consultation with the State Government.

(2) Where a suit, claim or dispute has been duly instituted, a summons shall be issued by the Gram Nyayalaya, accompanied by a copy of the application made under sub-section (1), to the opposite party to appear and answer the claim by such date as may be specified therein and the same shall be served in such manner as may be prescribed by the High Court.

(3) After the opposite party files his written statement, the Gram Nyayalaya shall fix a date for hearing and inform all the parties to be present in person or through their advocates.

(4) On the date fixed for hearing, the Gram Nyayalaya shall hear both the parties in regard to their respective contentions and where the dispute does not require recording of any evidence, pronounce the judgment; and in case where it requires recording of evidence, the Gram Nyayalaya shall proceed further.

(5) The Gram Nyayalaya shall also have the power,-

(a) to dismiss any case for default or to proceed ex parte; and

(b) to set aside any such order of dismissal for default or any order passed by it for hearing the case ex parte.

(6) In regard to any incidental matter that may arise during the course of the proceedings, the Gram Nyayalaya shall adopt such procedure as it may deem just and reasonable in the interest of justice.

(7) The proceedings shall, as far as practicable, be consistent with the interests of justice and the hearing shall be continued on a day-to-day basis until its conclusion, unless the Gram Nyayalaya finds the adjournment of the hearing beyond the following day to be necessary for reasons to be recorded in writing.

(8) The Gram Nyayalaya shall dispose of the application made under sub-section (1) within a period of six months from the date of its institution.

(9) The judgment in every suit, claim or dispute shall be pronounced in open Court by the Gram Nyayalaya immediately after conclusion of hearing or at any subsequent time, not exceeding fifteen days, of which notice shall be given to the parties.

(10) The judgment shall contain a concise statement of the case, the point for determination, the decision thereon and the reasons for such decision.

(11) A copy of the judgment shall be delivered free of cost to both the parties within three days from the date of pronouncement of the judgment.

25. Execution of decrees and orders of Gram Nyayalaya.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908), the judgment passed by a Gram Nyayalaya shall be deemed to be a decree and it shall be executed by a Gram Nyayalaya as a decree of the civil Court and for this purpose, the Gram Nyayalaya shall have all the powers of a civil Court.

(2) The Gram Nyayalaya shall not be bound by the procedure in respect of execution of a decree as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) and it shall be guided by the principles of natural justice.

(3) A decree may be executed either by the Gram Nyayalaya which passed it or by the other Gram Nyayalaya to which it is sent for execution.

26. Duty of Gram Nyayalaya to make efforts for conciliation and settlement of civil disputes.- (1) In every suit or proceeding, endeavour shall be made by the Gram Nyayalaya in the first instance, where it is possible to do so, consistent with the nature and circumstances of the case, to assist, persuade and conciliate the parties in arriving at a settlement in respect of the subject matter of the suit, claim or dispute and for this purpose, a Gram Nyayalaya shall follow such procedure as may be prescribed by the High Court.

(2) Where in any suit or proceeding, it appears to the Gram Nyayalaya at any stage that there is a reasonable possibility of a settlement between the parties, the Gram Nyayalaya may adjourn the proceeding for such period as it thinks fit to enable them to make attempts to effect such a settlement.

(3) Where any proceeding is adjourned under sub-section (2), the Gram Nyayalaya may, in its discretion, refer the matter to one or more Conciliators for effecting a settlement between the parties.

(4) The power conferred by sub-section (2) shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other power of the Gram Nyayalaya to adjourn the proceeding.

27. Appointment of Conciliators.- (1) For the purposes of Section 26, the District Court shall, in consultation with the District Magistrate, prepare a panel consisting of the names of social workers at the village level having integrity for appointment as Conciliators who possess such qualifications and experience as may be prescribed by the High Court.

(2) The sitting fee and other allowances payable to, and the other terms and conditions for engagement of, Conciliators shall be such as may be prescribed by the State Government."

10. The general procedure is provided in Chapter VI of the Act, 2008 and the relevant provisions are quoted below:

"30. Application of Indian Evidence Act, 1872.- A Gram Nyayalaya may receive as evidence any report, statement, document, information or matter that may, in its opinion, assist it to deal effectually with a dispute, whether or not the same would be otherwise relevant or admissible under the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (1 of 1872).

31. Record of oral evidence.- In suits or proceedings before a Gram Nyayalaya, it shall not be necessary to record the evidence of witnesses at length, but the Nyayadhikari, as the examination of each witness proceeds, shall, record or cause to be recorded, a memorandum of substance of what the witness deposes, and such memorandum shall be signed by the witness and the Nyayadhikari and it shall form part of the record.

32. Evidence of formal character on affidavit.- (1) The evidence of any person where such evidence is of a formal character, may be given by affidavit and may, subject to all just exceptions, be read in evidence in any suit or proceeding before a Gram Nyayalaya.

(2) The Gram Nyayalaya may, if it thinks fit, and shall, on the application of any of the parties to the suit or proceeding, summon and examine any such person as to the facts contained in his affidavit."

11. The provisions for appeals in civil cases is provided in Section 34 of the Chapter VII which reads as follows:

"34. Appeal in civil cases.- (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) or any other law, and subject to sub-section (2), an appeal shall lie from every judgment or order, not being an interlocutory order, of a Gram Nyayalaya to the District Court.

(2) No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order passed by the Gram Nyayalaya-

(a) with the consent of the parties;

(b) where the amount or value of the subject matter of a suit, claim or dispute does not exceed rupees one thousand;

(c) except on a question of law, where the amount or value of the subject matter of such suit, claim or dispute does not exceed rupees five thousand.

(3) Every appeal under this section shall be preferred within a period of thirty days from the date of the judgment or order of a Gram Nyayalaya:

Provided that the District Court may entertain an appeal after the expiry of the said period of thirty days if it is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the said period.

(4) An appeal preferred under sub-section (1) shall be heard and disposed of by the District Court within six months from the date of filing of the appeal.

(5) The District Court may, pending disposal of the appeal, stay execution of the judgment or order appealed against.

(6) The decision of the District Court under sub-section (4) shall be final and no appeal or revision shall lie from the decision of the District Court:

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall preclude any person from availing of the judicial remedies available under articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution."

12. Part I of the Second Schedule of the Act, 2008 reads as follows:

"PART I

SUITS OF A CIVIL NATURE WITHIN THE JURISDICTION OF GRAM NYAYALAYAS

(i) Civil Disputes:

(a) right to purchase of property;

(b) use of common pasture;

(c) regulation and timing of taking water from irrigation channel.

(ii) Property Disputes:

(a) village and farm houses (Possession);

(b) water channels;

(c) right to draw water from a well or tube well.

(iii) Other Disputes:

(a) claims under the Payment of Wages Act, 1936 (4 of 1936);

(b) claims under the Minimum Wages Act, 1948 (11 of 1948);

(c) money suits either arising from trade transaction or money lending;

(d) disputes arising out of the partnership in cultivation of land;

(e) disputes as to the use of forest produce by inhabitants of Gram Panchayats."

13. In exercise of the powers conferred by Section 39 of the Gram Nyayalayas Act, Section 122 of the C.P.C. and all other powers enabling it in this behalf, the High Court of Judicature at Allahabad in consultation with the Government of Uttar Pradesh made the Uttar Pradesh Gram Nyayalaya (Procedure and Practice) Rules, 20093. With regard to pecuniary jurisdiction of the Gram Nayayalaya and the court fee payable, Rule 10 of the Rules of 2009 provides as follows:

"10. Pecuniary jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalaya and the court fee payable.- (a) The Gram Nyayalaya shall have jurisdiction to entertain and decide all civil proceeding of valuation up to Rs.25,000/-:

Provided that the value for the purpose of determining the jurisdiction shall be done as per the provisions of the Suits Valuation Act 1887 read with the Count Fees Act, 1989.

Further provided that the High Court may from time to time in consultation with the State Government increase or reduce the limit of pecuniary jurisdiction of the Nyayadhikari.

(b) A fixed Court fee of Rs. 50 shall be payable on every plaint or original petition.

(c) The fees payable on vakalatnama shall be Rs.5 and on all other applications shall be Rs.2."

14. The Act, 2008, thus ousts the jurisdiction of civil courts in view of the jurisdiction conferred on the Gram Nyayalaya with respect to scheduled matters which fall under the pecuniary jurisdiction of Rs.25,000/-. Therefore, Part-I of the Second Schedule to the Act, 2008 read with Clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 13 of the Act, 2008, civil disputes, property disputes and other disputes as mentioned thereunder, confers such jurisdiction on Gram Nyayalayas.

15. In the aforesaid suit, two distinct reliefs were claimed, one being a decree of declaration for declaring the sale deed dated 2.6.2018 as void and another for grant of permanent injunction that the defendant be restrained from disposing of the suit property during pendency of the suit.

16. Evidently, the pleadings were exchanged and at the stage of evidence, the learned District Judge transferred the suit to the Gram Nyayalaya in the year 2020.

17. A copy of the order-sheet of the suit has been enclosed as Annexure No. 7 to this petition and, as reflected therein, on 1.10.2020, counsel for the parties were heard with regard to the issue no. 5 which was that whether the Gram Nyayalaya had jurisdiction to consider the suit. The Gram Nyayalaya observed that the valuation of the suit was made at Rs. 390/- which was affirmed to be correct by the court in its order dated 24.10.2019; learned counsel for the defendants had made no such submission from which it could be reflected that the Nyayalaya had no jurisdiction to hear the suit. Accordingly, it was held that the Gram Nyayalaya has jurisdiction. It is admitted that the aforesaid order dated 1.10.2022 adjudicating the issue no. 5 was not challenged by the plaintiff-petitioner at an earlier point of time. By means of the judgment and order dated 24.12.2021, the suit of the plaintiff-petitioner was dismissed.

18. As regards the submission of the counsel for the respondent that the order dated 1.10.2022 affirming jurisdiction in the case by the Gram Nyayalaya not having being challenged earlier, the Supreme Court has held in various judgments that conferment of jurisdiction is a legislative function and it can neither be conferred with the consent of the parties nor by a superior court, and if a court passes a decree having no jurisdiction over the matter, it would amount to nullity as the matter goes to the root of the cause. Such an issue can be raised at any stage of the proceedings. (Vide: Jagmittar Sain Bhagat v. Director4, Cantonment Board v. Church of North India5, Deva Sahayam v. P. Savithramma6.)

19. As regards jurisdiction, the present case requires consideration on two aspect. Firstly, whether, given the nature of the relief sought in respect of agricultural land, would it be the revenue courts which would have jurisdiction in the matter given the fact that declaration was sought for declaring the sale deed as void, or, would either the civil court or the Gram Nyayalaya have jurisdiction. Secondly, whether the Gram Nyayalaya or the civil court had jurisdiction to try the suit in view of the jurisdiction conferred by Clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 13 of the Act, 2008 read with Part I of the Second Schedule of the Act.

20. The Act, 2008 received the assent of the President on 7.1.2009 and was published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary Part-II, Section I, dated 9th January 2009. The preamble of the Act is to provide for the establishment of Gram Nyayalayas at the grass roots level for the purposes of providing access to justice to the citizens at their doorsteps and to ensure that opportunities for securing justice are not denied to any citizen by reason of social, economic or other disabilities and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

21. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons, with reference to Article 39-A of the Constitution and 114th report of the Law Commission of India on Gram Nyayalayas recommending establishment of Gram Nyayalayas so that speedy, inexpensive and substantial justice could be provided to the common man, the Bill was introduced on the lines recommended by the Department Related Standing Committee on Personnel, Public Grievances, Law and Justice.

22. The extracts of salient features of the Bill as apparent from the Statement of Objects and Reasons, are as follows:-

• The Gram Nyayalaya shall be court of Judicial Magistrate of the first class and its presiding officer (Nyayadhikari) shall be appointed by the State Government in consultation with the High Court;

• The Gram Nyayalaya shall be established for every Panchayat at intermediate level or a group of contiguous Panchayats at intermediate level in a district or where there is no Panchayat at intermediate level in any State, for a group of contiguous Panchayats;

• The Gram Nyayalaya shall try criminal cases, civil suits, claims or disputes which are specified in the First Schedule and the Second Schedule to the proposed Bill with the Central Government as well as the State Governments being given power to amend the First Schedule and the Second Schedule of the proposed Bill as per their respective legislative competence;

• The Gram Nyayalaya shall follow summary procedure in criminal trial as provided under sub-section (1) of Section 262 and Sections 262, 264 and 265 of the Cr.P.C. with certain modifications and as regards other matters which are not provided in the Bill, the provisions of the Cr.P.C. shall be applicable;

• The power of a civil court shall be exercisable by the Gram Nyayalaya with certain modifications and the Gram Nyayalaya shall follow the special procedure; as regards other matters which are not provided in the Bill, the provisions of the C.P.C. shall be applicable;

• The Gram Nyayalaya shall try to settle the disputes as far as possible by bringing about conciliation between the parties and for this purpose, it shall make use of the conciliators to be appointed for this purpose;

• The judgment and order passed by the Gram Nyayalaya shall be deemed to be a decree and to avoid delay in its execution, the Gram Nyayalaya shall follow summary procedure for its execution;

• The Gram Nyayalaya shall not be bound by the rules of evidence provided in the Indian Evidence Act but shall be guided by the principles of natural justice and subject to any rule made by the High Court;

• A person accused of an offence may file an application for plea bargaining in Gram Nyayalaya in which such offence is pending trial and the same will be disposed of by that Gram Nyayalaya in accordance with the provisions of Chapter XXI-A of the Cr.P.C

23. The Statement of Objects and Reasons further provides that justice to the poor at their doorstep is the dream of the common man. Setting up of Gram Nyayalayas, which will travel from place to place, would bring to the people of rural areas speedy, affordable and substantial justice.

24. There is an aspect of jurisdiction relating to the subject matter of the suit and then there is the aspect of pecuniary jurisdiction that has been fixed by the High Court in the rules mentioned above, which is a limit of Rs.25,000/-. The pecuniary jurisdiction so fixed is in respect of only those suits, claims or disputes that are within the jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalaya as provided for in the Schedule to the Act, 2008.

25. The Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code, 20067 was passed by the Uttar Pradesh State Legislature and it received the assent of the President on 29th November 2012. The Code, 2006 was amended by the Uttar Pradesh Revenue Code (Amendment) Act, 2016. The Governor appointed 18 December 2015 and 11 February 2016 as the dates on which separate provisions of the Code, 2006 came into force. The provisions of the Code, 2006, except Chapters VIII and IX (which chapters pertain to (i) management of land and other properties by Gram Panchayat or other local authorities, and, (ii) tenures), are mandated to apply to whole of Uttar Pradesh and the aforesaid Chapters VIII and IX are mandated to apply to the areas to which any of the enactments specified at serial nos.19 and 25 of the First Schedule to the Code, 2006 were applicable on the date immediately preceding their repeal by the Code, 2006. At serial no.19 of the First Schedule is the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950. At serial no.25 of the First Schedule is the Uttar Pradesh Urban Areas Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1956.

26. The aforesaid two enactments of 1950 and 1956, including other enactments, specified in the First Schedule of the Code, 2006, were repealed with effect from 11.2.2016 in terms of Section 230 of the Code, 2006. However, as far as pending proceedings are concerned, Section 231 of the Code reads as follows:-

"231. Applicability of the Code to pending proceedings.- (1) Save as otherwise expressly provided in this Code, all cases pending before the State Government or any revenue court immediately before the commencement of this Code, whether in appeal, revision, review or otherwise, shall be decided in accordance with the provisions of the appropriate law, which would have been applicable to them had this Code not been passed.

(2) All cases pending in any Civil Court immediately before the commencement of this Code which would under this Code be exclusively triable by a revenue Court; shall be disposed of by such Civil Court according to the law in force prior to the date of such commencement."

27. The suit was instituted in the year 2018. The plots of land in respect of which the suit has been filed are agricultural plots and the plaintiff's husband is stated to be the owner of the one-third part of each of the three plots. In the plaint, the defendant is referred to as the brother of the petitioner's husband, who is the co-tenure holder of one-fourth part of the property in dispute; that the plaintiff has only a daughter but no sons; that the husband of the plaintiff was ill and the entire expenses of his treatment was borne by the plaintiff and the plaintiff's brother-in-law; that in June, 2018, the plaintiff's husband suddenly fell ill and therefore, the plaintiff sent him along with his brother (the plaintiff's brother-in-law) to the doctor with all the prescriptions. The plaintiff's husband died on 25.8.2018 and after the funeral and post-funeral rites, when the plaintiff went for mutation of her name to the revenue authorities, she was informed that her brother-in-law has got his name mutated in the revenue records with regard to the aforesaid plots in dispute. After obtaining a copy of the sale deed allegedly executed by the plaintiff's husband in favour of her brother-in-law, it transpired that it was fraudulently executed. It was stated that the sale deed that was fraudulently got executed was a void document which is liable to be declared as such. Further relief of permanent injunction was also sought against the defendant.

28. Therefore, the case in the plaint is of the defendant having got the signatures of the petitioner's husband fraudulently made on the sale deed. Given the provisions under Chapter II of the Indian Contract Act, the alleged sale deed was voidable at the option of the party whose consent was caused by alleged coercion, fraud or misrepresentation or undue influence.

29. The option of avoiding a contract procured in any of the ways mentioned in Sections 19 and 19A of the Contract Act, is exercisable by the party's representatives, unless at the date of his death, he had lost it by acquiescence or otherwise8.

30. Reference, in the plaint to the alleged sale deed as being 'void', would have to be construed in terms of the above provisions of the Contract Act and the various judgments of this Court and the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court in the matter of Smt. Bismillah Vs. Janeshwar Prasad and others[9] while referring to the various judgments passed by this Court including in the case of Ram Padarath and others Vs. Second Addl. District Judge and others[10] observed as follows:

"9. ….. If as, indeed, is done by the High Court the expression 'void' occurring in the plaint as descriptive of the legal status of the sales is made the constant and determinate and what is implicit in the need for cancellation as the variable and as inappropriate to a plea of nullity, equally, converse could be the position. The real point is not the stray or loose expressions which abound in inartistically drafted plaints, but the real substance of the case gathered by construing pleadings as a whole…."

31. The terms 'void' and voidable' were considered by the Supreme Court in the case of Dhurandhar Prasad Singh Vs. Jai Prakash University11 and it was observed as follows:

"22. Thus the expressions "void and voidable" have been the subject-matter of consideration on innumerable occasions by courts. The expression "void" has several facets. One type of void acts, transactions, decrees are those which are wholly without jurisdiction, ab initio void and for avoiding the same no declaration is necessary, law does not take any notice of the same and it can be disregarded in collateral proceeding or otherwise. The other type of void act, e.g., may be transaction against a minor without being represented by a next friend. Such a transaction is a good transaction against the whole world. So far as the minor is concerned, if he decides to avoid the same and succeeds in avoiding it by taking recourse to appropriate proceeding the transaction becomes void from the very beginning. Another type of void act may be which is not a nullity but for avoiding the same a declaration has to be made. Voidable act is that which is a good act unless avoided, e.g., if a suit is filed for a declaration that a document is fraudulent and/or forged and fabricated, it is voidable as the apparent state of affairs is the real state of affairs and a party who alleges otherwise is obliged to prove it. If it is proved that the document is forged and fabricated and a declaration to that effect is given, a transaction becomes void from the very beginning. There may be a voidable transaction which is required to be set aside and the same is avoided from the day it is so set aside and not any day prior to it. In cases where legal effect of a document cannot be taken away without setting aside the same, it cannot be treated to be void but would be obviously voidable."

It needs mention that in Dhurandhar Prasad Singh, the Supreme Court was considering an appeal against a judgment of the High Court allowing a revision application while setting aside an order passed by the executing court rejecting an objection under Section 47 CPC as to the executability of a decree.

32. A coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Ganga Prasad and another Vs. Ram Das Alias Pappu and others[12], after considering a gamut of cases of the Supreme Court as well as the Full Bench of this Court in Ram Padarath has observed as follows:

"10. From the law noticed above, it is clear that where a document is voidable it is a good act unless avoided and, therefore, its cancellation would be required, if a party seeks to avoid its natural consequences.

14. It is equally well-settled that the question of jurisdiction depends upon the allegations in the plaint and not the merits or the result of the suit (vide Bismillah versus Janeshwar Prasad: (1990) 1 SCC 207, paragraph 9). Therefore in a suit instituted before a Civil Court for cancellation of an instrument, in respect to an agricultural land, if a plea with respect to the bar of section 331 of the UP ZA & LR Act is taken, the Court must first determine as to whether from the plaint averments the instrument, as alleged, is void or voidable. If the plaint averments go to show that the instrument is voidable at the instance of the plaintiff(s), then the suit would be maintainable in a Civil Court, but if it is alleged to be void then the Court may have to undertake a complex exercise so as to assess whether in a given set of facts a declaration of right or status of a tenure-holder is necessarily needed or not. If a declaration to that effect is necessarily needed, in that event, the relief for cancellation would be mere surplusage and redundant, because the Court, which has power to grant declaration can disregard a void document while granting a declaratory relief. In such an event a civil suit would be barred by sub-section (1) of Section 331 of the UP ZA & LR Act.

15. Coming to the facts of the instant case, from the plaint, which is on record as Annexure No.3 to the affidavit, it is found that the ground on which cancellation of the sale-deed has been sought is that the sale-deed was got executed by coercion and by playing fraud on Deepchand, the recorded tenure-holder. There is no dispute with regards to the fact that Deepchand, on the date of execution of the sale-deed, was the recorded tenure-holder. The cancellation has been sought, primarily, on ground that there was no free consent of the vendor. Section 19 of the Indian Contract Act provides that when consent to an agreement is caused by coercion, fraud or misrepresentation, the agreement is a contract voidable at the option of the party whose consent was so caused. Therefore, according to the plaint averments the sale deed in question would be voidable at the option of the plaintiffs. The effect of such a deed cannot be avoided unless it is cancelled by a decree. As the revenue Court has no power to pass a decree of cancellation of a document, the suit would lie before the Civil Court irrespective of the fact that name of the defendant-appellants have been entered in the revenue record consequent to the execution of the sale-deed. ……"

33. Therefore, the plaintiff-petitioner in the present case would be entitled to maintain a suit for cancellation of a sale deed, which suit, as held in Full Bench decision in the case of Ram Padarath would lie before a civil court. Though, in the suit in question, a declaration of voidance of the sale deed is sought, which would be seeking the legal status of the instrument. However, it being alleged to be a fraudulent document, the same is voidable, and in effect the suit is for cancellation of the instrument.

34. However, as mentioned above, the Act, 2008 came into on 2 October 2009 by means of a notification dated 11 November 2009. The Code, 2006, on the other hand, has received the assent of the President on 29 November 2013 and its commencement and applicability, as referred to in Sections 1 and 2, were made applicable with effect from 18 December 2015 and 11 February 2016 respectively. Therefore, the repugnancy, if any, in the Code, 2006 qua the Act, 2008 is rendered otiose in view of Article 254(2) of the Constitution (Ref: G. Mohan Rao Vs. State of Tamil Nadu[13]).

35. It is pertinent to mention here that even prior to the Act, 2008, the revenue courts have been dealing with matters at the grass-roots level in the rural areas and such courts are available even at the tehsil levels. Hence, suits for partition/division of holdings provided under Section 116 of the Code, 2006, declaratory suits by tenure-holder under Section 144/145 and grant of temporary injunction as provided in Section 146, and, other matters that are covered by the Code, 2006, would lie before the revenue courts constituted under the Code, 2006.

I am conscious of the fact that certain matters listed in Part I of the Second Schedule to the Act, 2008 may overlap the jurisdiction of revenue courts. For illustration, Sections 25 and 26 of the Code, 2006 may be seen which read as follows:-

"25. Rights of way and other easements.- In the event of any dispute arising as to the route by which a tenure holder or an agricultural labourer shall have access to his land or to the waste or pasture land of the village (other than by the public roads, paths or common land) or as to the source from or course by which he may avail himself of irrigational facilities, the Tahsildar may, after such local inquiry as may be considered necessary, decide the matter with reference to the prevailing custom and with due regard to the convenience of all the parties concerned. He may direct the removal of such obstacle and may, for that purpose, use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary and may recover the cost of such removal from the person concerned in the manner prescribed.

26. Removal of obstacle. - If the Tahsildar finds that any obstacle impedes the free use of a public road, path or common land of a village or obstructs the road or water course or source of water, he may direct the removal of such obstacle and may, for that purpose, use or cause to be used such force as may be necessary and may recover the cost of such removal from the person concerned in the manner prescribed.

35- A. As far as Section 23 of the Act, 2008 is concerned which provides for overriding effect of the Act in civil proceedings, it comes under Chapter V which provides for procedure in civil cases. A similar provision of overriding effect also exists in Section 18 of the Act, 2008 which comes under Chapter IV which provides for procedure in criminal cases. Each of these two provisions refer to the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 and the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, respectively. Therefore the usage of the phrase "or any other law" appearing in Section 23 has to be read in reference to the context, which, in my opinion, would be relating to other procedures prescribed in other laws, and not with regard to provisions other than procedural laws in those laws. Accordingly, Section 23 would have no application on the aspect of jurisdiction.

36. It cannot be ruled out that jurisdictional issues may also crop up where an area is notified for consolidation of holdings under the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953. But that is a matter beyond the scope of the present adjudication and may require intervention by the Parliament and the State Legislature. The jurisdiction of the Gram Nyayalaya can always be amended.

37. Be that as it may, given the fact that it has been held that a civil court would have jurisdiction in the matter, the aspect that whether it is the civil court or the Gram Nyayalaya would have the jurisdiction in the present case, is now being considered.

38. Right to purchase of property, as correctly pointed out by the learned counsel for the petitioner, is referable to a right flowing out of an agreement to sell. Subject to the prescribed pecuniary jurisdiction, suits for specific performance of such instruments would be covered by the jurisdiction so conferred on the Gram Nyayalaya. A suit for cancellation of a sale-deed, on the other hand is not referable to a right to purchase of property, inasmuch as, in such a case, the plaintiff may or may not seek an ancillary relief of specific performance. It is accordingly held that the Gram Nyayalaya had no jurisdiction in respect of the suit in question.

39. It is important to mention here that an appeal against any judgment or order of the Gram Nyayalaya lies before the District Court subject to the pecuniary limits specified. As reflected in the aforementioned order dated 1.10.2022 passed by the Gram Nyayalaya, the valuation of the suit was made at Rs. 390/- which was affirmed to be correct by the court in its order dated 24.10.2019. Therefore, no appeal would lie against the aforesaid decree, which anyway has been held to be without jurisdiction.

40. The submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner to the effect that for purpose of ascertaining the nature of cases that would be covered by Part I of the Second Schedule of the Act, 2008, it is required to be seen whether the special procedure prescribed in the Act, 2008 would be appropriate for effective adjudication, or, whether the detailed procedure prescribed in the CPC would be appropriate, does not appear to be correct given the scheme and the objects of the Act, 2008. Presently, under the Rules of 2009, only those matters of valuation up to Rs.25,000/= can be entertained by the Gram Nyayalaya. Since maintainability of appeals before the District Court against the judgments and orders of the Gram Nyayalaya in civil cases has been restricted on the basis of valuation as provided under sub-section (2) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008, such restricted matters would, generally, deserve to be given a quietus. However, where there is a failure of justice, no one is precluded from availing judicial remedies as indicated in sub-section (6) of Section 34. With regard to matters whose valuation would entail maintainability of appeals on facts, the relevant provisions in CPC would come to the aid of such appellants as the procedure for appellate courts is not prescribed in the Act, 2008. It is therefore, always open for the Parliament or the State Legislature, as the case may be, to amend the Second Schedule to the Act, 2008 to include such other nature of cases as they deem fit.

41. Under the facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned judgment and order dated 24.12.2021 passed by the Nyayadhikari, Gram Nyayalaya, Manikpur, District Chitrakoot, passed in New Original Suit No. 41 / 2020 (Smt. Siya Dulari v. Awadh Naresh) is set aside. The record of the suit with the Gram Nyayalaya is directed to be sent to the District Court within 15 days from today, if not already sent, for its adjudication afresh by the appropriate court.

42. This petition is, accordingly, allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Surendra Prasad Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Pankaj Saxena, learned A.G.A.-I along with Ms. Divya Ojha, learned A.G.A.-I, appearing for the State respondent.

2. The present petition has been filed seeking to assail the order dated 02.12.2021 passed in Complaint Case No. 293 of 2021, under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 18811, in terms of which the petitioner has been summoned, and also the subsequent order dated 21.06.2023 passed in Criminal Revision No. 39 of 2022.

3. Counsel for the petitioner has confined his challenge to the aforesaid order only on the question of limitation.

4. Attention of the Court has been drawn to the fact that a cheque drawn by the petitioner, upon being presented by the respondent no. 2, on 18.09.2019, was returned unpaid by the bank, along with a return memo dated 17.12.2019, with a remark "Amount Insufficient".

5. Upon receipt of the aforesaid return memo, the respondent no. 2 gave a notice dated 04.01.2020 to the petitioner regarding return of the cheque, and the said notice was received by the petitioner on 08.01.2020.

6. On the basis of the aforesaid notice, counsel for the petitioner has sought to contend that the limitation would run from 08.01.2020 i.e. the date when the legal notice was received by the petitioner, and the complaint having been filed on 20.02.2020, was beyond time, and was liable to be rejected.

7. Learned A.G.A.-I submits that the complaint having been filed within one month from the date when the cause of action arose, the same was within the prescribed period of limitation, and, therefore, the orders passed by the courts below cannot be faulted on the question of limitation.

8. In order to examine the challenge to the orders of the courts below, on the ground of limitation, the events leading to filing of the complaint may be summarized as under:

DATE	EVENTS
18. 09. 2019	Cheque presented
17. 12. 2019	Return Memo by the bank
04.01.2020	Legal Notice
08.01.2020	Notice received
23.01.2020	Expiry of 15 days' period from date of receipt of

20. 02. 2020	Complaint filed

9. The relevant statutory provisions, as contained in Sections 138 and 142, may also be reproduced, for ease of reference:-

"Section 138 - Dishonour of cheque for insufficiency, etc., of funds in the account- Where any cheque drawn by a person on an account maintained by him with a banker for payment of any amount of money to another person from out of that account for the discharge, in whole or in part, of any debt or other liability, is returned by the bank unpaid, either because of the amount of money standing to the credit of that account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with that bank, such person shall be deemed to have committed an offence and shall, without prejudice to any other provision of this Act, be punished with imprisonment for a term which may be extended to two years, or with fine which may extend to twice the amount of the cheque, or with both:

Provided that nothing contained in this section shall apply unless-

(a) the cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months' from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier;

(b) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, within thirty days of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid; and

(c) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice."

"142. Cognizance of offences (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), -

(a) no court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under Section 138 except upon a complaint, in writing, made by the payee or, as the case may be, the holder in due course of the cheque;

(b) such complaint is made within one month of the date on which the cause of action arises under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138:

Provided that the cognizance of a complaint may be taken by the court after the prescribed period, if the complainant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within such period;

(c) no court inferior to that of a Metropolitan Magistrate or a Judicial Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence punishable under section 138.

(2) The offence under section 138 shall be inquired into and tried only by a court within whose local jurisdiction,-

(a) if the cheque is delivered for collection through an account, the branch of the bank where the payee or holder in due course, as the case may be, maintains the account, is situated; or

(b) if the cheque is presented for payment by the payee or holder in due course, otherwise through an account, the branch of the drawee bank where the drawer maintains the account, is situated."

10. The proviso to Section 138 stipulates three distinct conditions, which must be satisfied, before the dishonour of a cheque, may be held to constitute an offence and become punishable: i.e. (i) cheque is presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier; (ii) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque, as the case may be, makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, within thirty days of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid; (iii) the drawer of such cheque fails to make the payment of the said amount of money to the payee or, as the case may be, to the holder in due course of the cheque within fifteen days of the receipt of the said notice.

11. It is only upon a cumulative satisfaction of the aforesaid three conditions, as enumerated under the proviso to Section 138, as clauses (a), (b) and (c), thereof that an offence under Section 138, can be said to have been committed by the person issuing the cheque.

12. The provisions relating to cognizance of offences is contained under Section 142 of the N.I. Act. The section starts with a non obstante clause, and in terms thereof, no court shall take cognizance of any offence punishable under Section 138 except upon a complaint, in writing, made by the payee or as the case may be the holder in due course of the cheque, and such complaint is to be made within one month of the date on which the cause-of-action arises under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138.

13. The proviso to clause (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 142 prescribes that the cognizance of a complaint may be taken by the Court after the prescribed period, if the complainant satisfies the Court that he had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within such period.

14. A conjoint reading of the aforesaid provisions would indicate that a complaint under Section 138 can be filed within one month of the date on which the cause-of-action arises under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138, which happens as soon as the drawer of the cheque fails to make payment of the cheque amount to the payee or to the holder in due course of the cheque, within fifteen days of the receipt of the notice required to be sent in terms of clause (b) of the proviso to Section 138 of the N.I. Act.

15. The cause-of-action having once arisen, under clause (c) of the proviso to Section 138, the payee or the holder of the cheque acquires the right to institute proceedings for prosecution under Section 138 of the N.I. Act, and the said right remains legally enforceable for a period of one month from the date on which the cause-of-action has arisen.]

16. The proviso to clause (b) of sub-section (1) of Section 142 empowers the court to take cognizance after expiry of the prescribed period of one month from the date of accrual of the cause-of-action, if the complainant satisfies the court that he had sufficient cause for not making a complaint within such period.

17. The sequence of events starting from the dishonour of cheque for insufficiency etc. of funds in the account to the stage at which cognizance of the offence may be taken, as contemplated under Sections 138 and 142 of the N.I. Act, may be represented as follows:

Cheque drawn by the Drawer from his account for discharge, in whole or part, of any debt or other liability.
Clause (a) to the proviso of Sec. 138 of the Act Presentation of Cheque to the Bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier.
Clause(b) of the proviso of S.138 of the Act Payee/holder of cheque makes a demand for payment of said amount by notice in writing to the drawer of cheque within 30 days of receipt of information by the bank regarding return of cheque as unpaid.
CAUSE OF ACTION ARISES
After 15 days from the receipt of notice of the demand.
Under Clause (b) of Section 142(1) of the Act
Complaint to be made within one month of the date on which cause of action arises.
Or
Under Proviso to Clause(b) of Sec. 142(1) of the Act
After the prescribed period, if complainant satisfies the Court that he has sufficient cause for not making the complaint.
COGNIZANCE MAY BE TAKEN BY THE COURT
(if all 3 Conditions A,B & C are fulfilled)
Condition A Condition B
Clause(c) to the proviso of S.138 of the Act Drawer of such cheque fails to make payment of said amount to the payee / holder within 15 days of the receipt of said notice.
Amount of money in the account is insufficient to honour the cheque.
Amount exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account or
Returned by the bank unpaid due to either Condition

18. The ingredients of Section 138 of the N.I. Act were analyzed in the decision in Kusum Ingots & Alloys Limited Vs. Pennar Peterson Securities Ltd.[2], and it was observed that the following ingredients would be required to be satisfied for making out a case under Section 138 of the N.I. Act:

"(i) a person must have drawn a cheque on an account maintained by him in a bank for payment of a certain amount of money to another person from out of that account for the discharge of any debt or other liability;

(ii) that cheque has been presented to the bank within a period of six months from the date on which it is drawn or within the period of its validity, whichever is earlier;

(iii) that cheque is returned by the bank unpaid, either because the amount of money standing to the credit of the account is insufficient to honour the cheque or that it exceeds the amount arranged to be paid from that account by an agreement made with the bank;

(iv) the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque makes a demand for the payment of the said amount of money by giving a notice in writing, to the drawer of the cheque, within 15 days of the receipt of information by him from the bank regarding the return of the cheque as unpaid;

(v) the drawer of such cheque fails to make payment of the said amount of money to the payee or the holder in due course of the cheque within 15 days of the receipt of the said notice."

19. The conditions precedent to constitute an offence, as prescribed under the proviso to Section 138, were subject matter of consideration in MSR Leathers Vs. S. Palaniappan And Another[3] , wherein it was held that only upon satisfaction of all three conditions enumerated under clauses (a), (b) and (c) of the proviso to Section 138, can an offence be said to have been committed by the person issuing the cheque.

20. Section 142 of the N.I. Act has been considered in the decision in Yogendra Pratap Singh Vs. Savitri Pandey And Another[4], and it has been held that the said section prescribes the mode and also the time within which a complaint for an offence under Section 138 of the N.I. Act can be filed.

21. In the instant case, the cheque drawn by the petitioner, was presented by the respondent no. 2, on 18.09.2019, and thereafter, on 04.01.2020 i.e. within thirty days of the receipt of the return memo dated 17.12.2019 from the bank, the respondent no. 2 (payee) of the cheque, gave notice to the petitioner and the said notice was received by him on 08.01.2020.

22. The petitioner had 15 days' period to make the payment of the said amount from the date of receipt of notice, on 08.01.2020, and the said period expired on 23.01.2020. The cause of action for filing the complaint, therefore, arose on 23.01.2020, as per clause (c) of the proviso of Section 138.

23. The complaint having been filed on 20.02.2020, was within the prescribed period of one month as per clause (b) of sub-Section (1) of Section 138, from the date on which the cause of action arose on 23.01.2020, and accordingly the court concerned would be within its right to take cognizance of the offence, as provided under Section 142.

24. The summoning order dated 02.12.2021 and the order dated 21.06.2023 passed in the revision, therefore, cannot be faulted on the ground of limitation.

25. No other ground has been urged, which may persuade this Court to exercise its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India, in the facts of the case.

26. The petition stands dismissed accordingly.

Civil Law - U.P.Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 - Section 20(4) - Against decree for eviction - Plaintiff - respondents filed Suit against tenant-petitioner, asserting tenancy of demised shop purchased by them vide sale deed - Tenant, on monthly tenant at Rs.220/-, exclusive of tax, was in arrears since January 1991 - Plaintiffs, as purchasers, claimed entitlement to recover all arrears, contending that Act, 1972 was inapplicable - Relying on mistaken facts in O.S., plaintiffs issued notice erroneously describing tenancy - On acquiring information, they revoked it by next notice clarified demised shop built in 1986, demanded arrears, determined tenancy u/s 106 TPA, 1882 - Tenant, despite notice, neither paid arrears nor vacated - During pendency, Vipul Garg replaced Smt. Rashmi Bansal as Director and impleaded as plaintiff No.3 - Plaintiffs sought eviction, arrears from 01.04.2012 to 28.02.2015 and mesne profits - Suit decreed for eviction with delivery of possession and for damages at Rs.220/- per month from 02.05.2014 to 28.02.2015, and thereafter till possession - Tenant assailed decree in SCC Revision - Revision allowed, set aside decree, remanded matter for fresh decision regarding applicability of Act, 1972 and benefit u/s 20(4) - Held, remand unwarranted, as sufficient evidence available before Revisional Court for final decision u/s 25 of Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 - Leaving little for Trial Court on two issues, it was wasteful of time and money, since Section 25 empowers Revisional Court to decide suit where Trial Court findings perverse or illegal. (Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This petition under Article 227 of the Constitution has been preferred by the tenant, assailing an order of remand dated 12.07.2023 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 6, Mathura on a revision preferred by him, setting aside the decree for eviction and recovery of arrears of rent passed by the Trial Court against the tenant.

2. The tenant, though successful before the Court of revision in dislodging the decree of eviction and recovery of arrears of rent etc., says that all evidence was there on record, on the foot of which the Revisional Court ought to have finally determined the suit. Instead, he remanded the suit to the Trial Court. And, that is why the tenant has preferred the present revision.

3. Mr. Ashish Kumar Singh, learned Counsel, appearing on behalf of the plaintiff-landlords, waived opportunity to file a counter affidavit on 28.08.2023, whereupon this petition was admitted to hearing and heard forthwith. Judgment was reserved.

4. Heard Ms. Rama Goel Bansal, learned Counsel for the petitioner-defendant and Mr. Ashish Kumar Singh, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the plaintiff-respondents.

5. The plaintiff-respondents instituted SCC Suit No.13 of 2015 against the tenant-petitioner1 with a case that the tenant is in occupation of premises, bearing Water Rate Nos.1409/2-1409/2A (old) and No.167/205 (new). The said premises are entered in the Municipal Assessment Record for the years 1987-93 with the Nagar Palika, Mathura as one situate at 2161/M, Bharatpur Gate, Mohalla Guru Nanak Nagar, Junction Road, Mathura. The former owner and landlord of the premises were Vinod Sharma, Pramod Sharma and Ashok Sharma, all sons of the late Jagannath Sharma and Smt. Anita Rishi and Komal Sharma, from whom the plaintiff-respondents purchased the demised premises, a shop, vide registered sale deed dated 02.05.2014 for their own need. The owner, prior to the plaintiffs' vendee, was Jagannath Sharma, who had purchased the demised premises from Smt. Chhakko Bai. The tenant occupied the premises on a monthly rent of Rs.220/-, exclusive of tax. The demised premises was earlier a kachcha shop with a tiled roof constructed in the year 1982. In place of the kachcha shop, the then owner got a new shop constructed in the year 1986, which was assessed to house tax for the first time by the Nagar Palika Parishad, Mathura in the year 1987. The provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 (U.P. Act No.13 of 1972)2 do not apply to the demised shop. The defendant is in arrears of rent since the month of January, 1991 and he owed all this rent to the plaintiff-respondents' predecessor-in-title, the former landlord and owner. The plaintiff-respondents have acquired the right to recover all rent due in terms of the sale deed executed in their favour.

6. Relying upon the averments in O.S. No.267 of 2014, Anil Kumar and others v. Vinod Sharma and others, pending before the Civil Judge (Jr. Div.), Mathura, a suit brought on wrong facts, the plaintiff-respondents, mistaking those facts, pleaded by the tenant as correct, caused a notice dated 08.07.2014 to be served upon the defendant through their Counsel. In the said notice, the terms of the tenancy were incorrectly mentioned to say that a plot of land was let out to the tenant by the former landlord. Upon acquisition of complete information, the plaintiff-respondents caused a notice dated 05.11.2014 to be served upon the tenant, mentioning that the previous notice be treated revoked, and further saying that the demised shop was constructed by the previous owner in the year 1986. By the said notice, the plaintiff-respondents demanded arrears of rent and determined the tenancy under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882.

7. The notice was served upon the tenant, but was answered taking an incorrect stand. The rent due was not remitted nor the demised shop vacated. Pending suit, Smt. Rashmi Bansal, who was a Director of the plaintiff-respondent No.1, resigned, her resignation being accepted on 20.10.2020. In her place, Vipul Garg was appointed the Director, who was impleaded as plaintiff No.3 to the suit. The plaintiff-respondents, on the said facts, sought a decree for eviction and recovery of arrears of rent from 01.04.2012 to 28.02.2015, besides pendente lite and future mesne profits.

8. The suit was contested by the tenant on various grounds, including that the demised premises were constructed in the year 1981, and not the year 1986. According to the tenant, a plot of land situate at Sonkh Adda, Junction Road, District Mathura was leased out to his mother Smt. Vimla Devi by its previous owners and landlords, Ghanshyam, Brij Bihari, Baikunth Nath, Anil Kumar and Rakesh Kumar on 01.06.1980. The rent settled was a quarterly sum of Rs.660/-, that would work out to Rs.220/- a month, inclusive of all taxes. The terms of the lease obliged the tenant's mother Smt. Vimla Devi to construct a shop on the demised land and the cost of construction would be payable by the landlords, Ghanshyam and others to Smt. Vimla Devi. The tenant's mother, Smt. Vimla Devi got the demised shop constructed with the consent of the then owners and landlords, Ghanshyam and others, incurring a total expenditure of Rs.8500/-. The cost of construction was not paid to the tenant's mother by the then owners and landlords.

9. It is pleaded that an agreement was entered into between the tenant's mother, Smt. Vimla Devi and the former owners and landlords, Ghanshyam and others on 30.01.1982, where it was covenanted that except for default in payment of two successive quarterly rent, despite service of notice, the tenant's mother would not be evicted. After demise of his parents, the tenant, along with his brothers and sisters, occupies the demised shop, where for the time being he runs a restaurant, as his means of livelihood and to provide for his siblings.

10. The demised shop and the adjoining property were purchased long ago by Jagannath. Jagannath is no more and his heirs and transferees are bound by the terms of the demise between the tenant's mother, the late Smt. Vimla Devi and the former owners and landlords. In violation of the terms of the lease, Jagannath instituted SCC Suit No.3 of 1990 against the tenant's mother, Smt. Vimla Devi, which is pending before the learned Additional District Judge-II, Mathura and proceedings whereof have been stayed by this Court. The tenant's mother, the late Smt. Vimla Devi had been regularly depositing rent in the said suit in accordance with law and after her death, the tenant's father regularly deposited due rent. In this manner, rent up to 31.12.2013 has been deposited in Court. Upon inquiries made by the tenant and one Munna, it transpired that Jagannath Sharma's heirs have transferred the demised shop and those held on a tenancy by Munna in the landlords' favour vide registered sale deed dated 16.04.2014.

11. For some time past, the Director/ Employees/ Agents have been troubling the tenant with their efforts to forcibly dispossess him from the demised shop. Therefore, the tenant brought a suit for the permanent injunction against the landlords, bearing Suit No.267 of 2014, Anil Kumar and others v. Vinod Kumar and others, which is pending before the Civil Judge (Jr. Div.), Mathura. The tenant and the other co-tenants of the demised shop, transferred to the landlord by the alleged sale deed dated 02.05.2014, upon provision of a copy thereof as well as that of the authority letter, are willing to pay rent to them. The landlords, without serving a notice upon the co-tenants, have proceeded against the tenant, which is illegal. The tenant has answered the notices dated 08.07.2014 and 05.07.2014, stating correct facts vide his replies dated 05/06.08.2014 and 03.12.2014, respectively. So long as SCC Suit No.3 of 1990 is pending, the present suit is not maintainable and liable to be stayed under section 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 19803.

12. The demised shop, shown by letter P1 in the map, annexed to the written statement, was got constructed by the tenant's mother Smt. Vimla Devi in the year 1981 and was completed in the said year. Payment of rent for the said shop commenced in that year. In these circumstances, the provisions of the Act of 1972 are applicable to the demised shop. Although, the tenant's mother, the late Smt. Vimla Devi and her successors never committed any default in the payment of rent, yet if, in the opinion of the Court, any default is found, the tenant is entitled to the benefit of Section 20(4) of the Act of 1972. In view of the aforesaid facts, the notice is invalid and the tenancy cannot be terminated thereby. The landlords have deliberately, on false and frivolous pleas, in order to make unlawful gain, instituted the present suit, which deserves to be dismissed with special costs of Rs.20,000/- under Section 35-A of the Code.

13. A replication and additional written statement were also filed, as also a written statement, in answer to certain amendments made to the plaint, and a further replication by the landlords as well.

14. On the pleadings of parties, as many as fourteen issues were framed, which read (translated into English from Hindi):

(1) Whether there is relationship of landlord and tenant between parties?

(2) Whether on the basis of the plaint allegations, the plaintiffs are entitled to the reliefs sought?

(3) Whether the defendant, since the month of January, 1991, did not pay rent despite demand?

(4) Whether the plaintiffs terminated the defendant's tenancy vide notice dated 05.11.2014?

(5) Whether the provisions of U.P. Act No.13 of 1972 are applicable to the suit property?

(6) Whether the defendant is entitled to the benefit of Section 20(4) of U.P. Act No.13 of 1972?

(7) Whether the plaintiffs are entitled to relief, if any?

(8) Whether any cause of action has arisen to the plaintiffs?

(9) Whether the suit is bad for non-joinder?

(10) Whether the plaintiffs' suit is barred by estoppel?

(11) Whether the plaintiffs' suit is liable to be stayed under Section 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure?

(12) Whether the plaintiffs' suit is not maintainable?

(13) Whether the suit property is situate in Mohalla Badri Nagar, Bharatpur Gate, Mathura?

(14) Whether the instant suit is bad for mis-joinder?

15. Substantial documentary evidence was led on behalf of the landlords and tenant and two witnesses each were examined. There is a detailed summary of all this evidence set out in the judgment of the Trial Court. No useful purpose would be served, looking to the limited controversy here, by referring to it all over again, except to the extent relevant. That will be done during the course of this judgment.

16. Issue No.1 was decided in the manner that the parties stood in the relationship of landlord and tenant with the rent being Rs.220/- per month together with taxes. Issues Nos.5 and 6 were answered in the manner that the provisions of the Act of 1972 were not applicable to the demised shop and that the tenant was not entitled to the benefit of Section 20(4) of the Act last mentioned. Issues Nos.3 and 4 were decided together by the Trial Court and both answered in the affirmative, holding that the tenant was in default of rent since 02.05.2014, which he did not pay despite demand, and that the landlords determined the tenant's demise vide notice dated 05.11.2014. Issue No.8 was answered in the affirmative, holding that the plaintiffs had an emergent cause of action to bring the suit. Issues Nos.9 and 14 were again decided together by the Trial Court, answering them in the negative, holding that the suit was neither bad for non-joinder of parties or mis-joinder. Issue No.10 was also answered in the negative, holding that the suit was not barred by estoppel. Issue No.11 was answered in the negative, holding that the defendant, who bore burden on the issue, did not say much to discharge it. Issue No.12 was again a defendant's issue and was decided in the negative, holding that there was nothing established to show that the plaintiffs' suit was not maintainable. Issue No.13 was answered in the negative, because it was not pressed during trial by the defendant. Issues Nos.2 and 7 were decided together, holding that the plaintiff-landlords were entitled to a decree for eviction against the tenant and to recover damages for use and occupation for the period 01.04.2012 to 28.02.2015 as well as pendente lite and future.

17. The suit was, accordingly, decreed for eviction with the direction to deliver possession within two months to the landlords. In addition, the tenant was ordered to pay damages at the rate of Rs.220/- per month from 02.05.2014 to 28.02.2015. The tenant was further ordered to pay, at the same rate, damages for use and occupation until delivery of possession. This decree passed by the Judge, Small Cause Court was assailed by a revision under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, carried to the District Judge of Mathura, where it was numbered as SCC Revision No.92 of 2022. The revision aforesaid came up for hearing before the Additional District Judge, Court No.6, Mathura on 12.07.2023. The learned Additional District Judge, by a judgment and order of the date last mentioned, allowed the revision, set aside the Trial Court's decree and remanded the suit for trial afresh with reference to Issues Nos.5 and 6. These issues, as already discussed, were to the effect if the Act of 1972 was applicable to the demised shop, and, if the tenant was entitled to the benefit of Section 20(4) of the last mentioned Act. The learned Additional District Judge held that the Trial Court in reaching its conclusion that the Act did not apply, had ignored from consideration the certified copy of the Municipal Assessment, bearing Paper No.99-Ga/2, which proves that the demised shop was constructed much prior to 26.04.1985 and had been recorded in the Palika Assessment way back on 30.06.1981. It has also been remarked that in the tax assessment list for the year 1970 to 1987, the demised shop's construction had been reported in the quarterly report and the said shop assessed to tax by the Nagar Palika, Mathura with effect from 01.04.1981. The premises were assigned number 1409/M. It was mentioned in the records of the Nagar Palika, at that time, as a pucca shop, newly constructed. The learned Judge remarked that the aforesaid assessment, Paper No.99-Ga has been totally ignored from consideration by the Trial Judge and findings recorded entirely on the basis of the assessment for the years 1987-93, bearing Paper No.21-Ga/14, while rendering judgment on Issues Nos.5 and 6. It must be remarked that though the entire suit has been remanded for trial afresh, the findings recorded by the learned Judge in the Revisional Court would clearly show that what he really intends is a decision afresh by the Trial Court on Issues Nos.5 and 6.

18. Upon hearing learned Counsel for the parties, what this Court notices is that for one the Revisional Court has recorded remarks of a kind that do not leave much to be decided by the Trial Court on Issues Nos.5 and 6. In addition, more than sufficient evidence was available on record before the Revisional Court to enable it to pronounce judgment in the suit, deciding it finally in exercise of powers under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887. The order of remand, therefore, passed by the Revisional Court is not only unnecessary, but also an exercise that is wasteful of public time and money. It would serve no cause of justice. The consequence of the remand would be a repetition of the trial on at least two issues and a further revision by the aggrieved party. It is a settled principle of the law that if the Court of appeal or revision has all the evidence before it to enable it to decide the suit, an order of remand ought not to be made. Perhaps, the order of remand has been passed by the Court of revision because of a hesitation about limitations on the Revisional Court's power in recording findings of fact or interfering with such findings regarded inherent in that jurisdiction. The powers under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act are wide, much wider than those under Section 115 of the Code. If the view taken by the Trial Court is perverse or manifestly illegal, the Revisional Court hearing a revision under Section 25 has all the jurisdiction to pass judgment, deciding the suit in case there is sufficient evidence on record. In this connection reference may be made to the decision of this Court in Anwar Uddin v. 1st Additional District Judge, Aligarh and others[4], where it was observed :

14. The contention that if the finding recorded by the learned Small Cause Court was erroneous, the revisional court ought to have remanded the case to the Small Cause Court for deciding the same, has also no merit, because evidence was already on record which was not correctly appreciated by the learned Small Cause Court and, therefore, in such a situation, the learned revisional court was justified in deciding the issue itself on the basis of material and evidence on record, instead of remanding back the matter to the learned Small Cause Court. The authorities cited by the learned counsel for the petitioner do not apply in the facts of the present case. That apart, this Court while disposing of the earlier Writ Petition No. 4290 of 1980 of the petitioner, vide order dated 2.9.1982. remitted the case to the learned revisional court for disposing of the revision on merit. Therefore, the learned revisional court has not committed any error or illegality in deciding the issue in terms of the direction of this Court.

19. The same issue was also up for consideration before this Court in Surya Prakash Gupta v. Smt. Santosh Kumari and another[5], where it was held :

13. There is no quarrel with the proposition of law that ordinarily the Revisional Court under Section 25 of the Act cannot record finding of fact on the issue of fact on which no finding has been recorded by the trial Court however in exceptional cases, the revisional can record its own finding. Since, in the present case, entire evidence was available on record, it was not necessary for the Revisional Court to have remitted the case to the trial Court for the purpose of recording a finding of fact, the Revisional Court can decide the case itself on the basis of the material available on record. There is no prohibition in law that under no circumstances, the Revisional Court can record its finding particularly when the entire evidence is available on record. Here, it is not a case of reassessment or reappraisal of evidence. It cannot be ignored that when the matter was remitted to the trial Court by the Revisional Court by its order dated 20.10.2010 for taking evidence, no objection whatsoever was raised by the petitioner, rather he complied with the order and appeared before the trial Court, and lead evidence in his support and also opposed the prayer of the Respondent No. 1 in the trial Court to record finding of fact on the evidence recorded by it. Now after more than a year, he cannot be permitted to raise an objection that the Revisional Court cannot record a finding on the evidence collected by the lower Court particularly when already there is an order of this Court in writ petition No. 48214 of 2010 directing the Revisional Court to decide the S.S.C. Revision No. 7 of 2009, Surya Prakash v. Smt. Santosh Kumari and another, within a period of two months from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

20. No doubt, in these cases, there was a direction by this Court to the Revisional Court to decide the revision on merits with the existing evidence on record etc., but that, in our opinion, would not make much difference. After all, this Court does not confer jurisdiction on a Court which it does not possess. It would also be of relevance to refer to the decision of the Supreme Court in Mundri Lal v. Sushila Rani (Smt) and another[6], where their Lordships, comparing the powers of revision under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887 and Section 15 of the Code, observed :

22. There cannot be any doubt whatsoever that the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act is wider than Section 115 of the Code of Civil Procedure. But the fact that a revision is provided for by the statute, and not an appeal, itself is suggestive of the fact that ordinarily revisional jurisdiction can be exercised only when a question of law arises.

23. We, however, do not mean to say that under no circumstances finding of fact cannot be interfered therewith. A pure finding of fact based on appreciation of evidence although may not be interfered with but if such finding has been arrived at upon taking into consideration irrelevant factors or therefor relevant fact has been ignored, the revisional court will have the requisite jurisdiction to interfere with a finding of fact. Applicability of the provisions of Section 2(2) of the Act may in that sense involve determination of mixed question of law and fact.

21. In the totality of circumstances, this Court is of opinion that the impugned remand order dated 12.07.2023 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 6, Mathura in S.C.C. Revision No. 92 of 2022 deserves to be set aside.

22. In the result, this petition stands allowed in part. The impugned judgment and order dated 12.07.2023 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 6, Mathura is hereby set aside, with a direction to the Revisional Court to determine the revision on merits, deciding the suit, after hearing both parties, bearing in mind the guidance in this judgment.

23. Since the suit is one of the year 2015, it is directed that the Revisional Court shall proceed to hear the revision, fixing two dates of effective hearing every week and decide it within a period of two months from the date of receipt of a copy of this judgment.

24. There shall be no order as to costs.

25. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to the Additional District Judge, Court No. 6, Mathura through the learned District Judge, Mathura.

Criminal Law - Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 - Order XI Rules 15, 16, 21 - Constitution of India,1950 - Article 227 - Petitioner challenged the order dated 02.09.2023 by Additional District Judge, Meerut, dismissing applications (Paper Nos. 225 Ga and 229 Ga) in Civil Appeal No. 157/2010, seeking dismissal of Original Suit No. 823/2000 for non-compliance with document inspection notice under Order XI Rule 16 and clarification on document filing. Suit for specific performance of a 1975 sale agreement was decreed on 27.08.2010. Petitioner, during appeal, sought inspection of documents referenced in the plaint, claiming applicability of Order XI to appeals under Section 107 and Order XLI Rule 33 CPC. Court held that post-1999 amendment, Order XI Rule 15 limits inspection to "at or before settlement of issues," and petitioner, having contested the suit on merits, could not claim inspection at appellate stage. Reliance on Peoples Education Society Vs St. of A.P., 1971 (1) ALT 63, and Jankidas Vs Kaushalya Devi, AIR 1943 Lahore 207, misplaced as pre-amendment. Salem Advocate Bar Association Vs U.O.I., (2005) 6 SCC 344, clarified discretion in inspection timing but not applicable post-decree. No denial of defence opportunity, as suit was fully contested. Order upheld; petition dismissed for lack of merit. (Paras 9-17)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. Heard learned Counsel for the parties and perused the record.

2. This petition has been filed for the following relief :

"i). Set-aside the order dated 2.9.2023 passed by the learned Addl District Judge, Court No.12, Meerut in Civil Appeal No.157 of 2010 (Vipin Vs. Dr. Wahid Ahmad Qureshi (deceased) & others (Annexure No.14 to this Petition) and the applications, Paper Nos.225 Ga & 229 Ga (Annexure Nos.8 & 11 to this petition) of the defendant/petitioner may be allowed."

3. Brief facts of the case are that the plaintiffs-respondents instituted Original Suit No.823 of 2000 in the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut against the defendant-petitioner for specific performance of an agreement to sell dated 7.1.1975 executed between the father of the plaintiffs-respondents and the defendant-petitioner. The aforesaid suit was contested by the petitioner by filing written statement. The Addl. Civil Judge (Senior Division), Meerut Court No.6 vide the judgment and decree dated 27.8.2010 decreed the suit. The defendant-petitioner filed Civil Appeal No.157 of 2010 challenging the judgment and decree dated 27.8.2010 passed by the trial court. During pendency of the appeal, the appellant-petitioner gave a notice under Order 11 Rule 16 C.P.C. for inspection of documents mentioned in paragraph no. 4, 8 & 9 of the plaint of O.S. No. 823 of 2000. The plaintiffs-respondents contested the application by filing their objections to the effect that document referred in paragraph no. 4 of the plaint are already part of record and no documents are referred in paragraph nos. 8 & 9 of the plait. Since, the plaintiffs-respondents failed to comply with the notice under Order XI Rule 16 C.P.C., the petitioner filed application Paper No.225 Ga under Order XI Rule 21 C.P.C. with a prayer to dismiss the aforesaid suit for non-compliance of the provisions contained in Order XI Rule 16 C.P.C. This application was also contested by the plaintiffs-respondents by filing objections inter alia pleading that the documents are already on record. Then the petitioner moved another application Paper No.229 Ga with the prayer that the plaintiffs-respondents be directed to specify as to when the aforesaid documents were filed. Both these applications filed by the petitioner being Paper No.225 Ga under Order XI Rule 21 and application No.229 Ga were considered and dismissed by the lower appellate court by its judgment and order dated 2.9.2023, hence the present petition.

4. It has been contended by learned Counsel for the petitioner that the provisions of Order XI C.P.C. are applicable in appeal also in view of Section 107 of the C.P.C. read with powers of the Appellate Court conferred by Rule 33 of Order XLI. It has been further contended by learned Counsel for the petitioner that since the provision of Order XI C.P.C. are applicable to appeals filed under Section 96 of C.P.C., the Court below erred in law has rejecting the application filed by the petitioner under Order 11 Rule 21 C.P.C. Before proceeding with the merits of the case, it will be useful to look into the relevant statutory provisions provides for inspection of documents referred to in pleadings or otherwise, which is as under :-

"15. Inspection of documents referred to in pleadings or affidavits.-

Every party to a suit shall be entitled on or before the settlement of issues any time to give notice to any other party, in whose pleadings or affidavits reference is made to any document or who has entered any document in any list annexed to his pleadings or produce such document for the inspection of the party giving such notice, or of his pleader, and to permit him or them to take copies thereof; and any party not complying with such notice shall not afterwards be at liberty to put any such document in evidence on his behalf in such suit unless he shall satisfy the Court that such document relates only to his own title, he being a defendant to the suit, or that he had some other cause or excuse which the Court shall deem sufficient for not complying with such notice, in which case the Court may allow the same to be put in evidence on such terms as to costs an otherwise as the Court shall think fit."

16. Notice to produce.—Notice to any party to produce any documents referred to in his pleading or affidavits shall be in Form No. 7 in Appendix C, with such variations as circumstances may require.*

17. Time for inspection when notice given.—The party to whom such notice is given shall, within ten days from the receipt of such notice, deliver to the party giving the same a notice stating a time within three days from the delivery thereof at which the documents, or such of them as he does not object to produce, may be inspected at the office of his pleader, or in the case of bankers' books or other books of account or books in constant use for the purposes of any trade or business, at their usual place of custody, and stating which (if any) of the documents he objects to produce, and on what ground. Such notice shall be in Form No. 8 in Appendix C; with such variations as circumstances may require.*

18. Order for inspection.—(1) Where the party served with notice rule 15 omits to give such notice of a time for inspection or objects to give inspection, or offers inspection elsewhere than at the office of his pleader, the Court may, on the application of the party desiring it, make an order for inspection in such place and in such manner as it may think fit: Provided that the order shall not be made when and so far as the Court shall be of opinion that it is not necessary either for disposing fairly of the suit or for saving costs.*

(2) Any application to inspect documents, except such as are referred to in the pleadings, particulars or affidavit of the party against whom the application is made or disclosed in his affidavit of documents, shall be founded upon an affidavit showing of what documents inspection is sought, that the party applying is entitled to inspect them, and that they are in the possession or power of the other party. The Court shall not make such order for inspection of such documents when and so far as the Court shall be of opinion that it is not necessary either for disposing fairly of the suit or for saving costs.

19. Verified copies.—(1) Where inspection of any business books is applied for, the Court may, if it thinks fit, instead of ordering inspection of the original books, order a copy of any entries therein to be furnished and verified by the affidavit of some person who has examined the copy with the original entries, and such affidavit shall state whether or not there are in the original book any and what erasures, interlineations or alterations:*

Provided that, notwithstanding that such copy has been supplied, the Court may order inspection of the book from which the copy was made.

(2) Where on an application for an order for inspection privilege is claimed for any document, it shall be lawful for the Court to inspect the document for the purpose of deciding as to the validity of the claim of privilege [unless the document relates to matters of State.]

(3) The Court may, on the application of any party to suit at any time, and whether an affidavit of documents shall or shall not have already been ordered or made, make an order requiring any other party to state by affidavit whether any one or more specific documents, to be specified in the application, is or are, or has or have at any time been, in his possession or power; and, if not then in his possession, when he parted with the same and what has become thereof. Such application shall be made on an affidavit stating that in the belief of the deponent the party against whom the application is made has, or has at some time had in his possession or power the document or documents specified in the application, and that they relate to the matters in question in the suit, or to some of them.

20. Premature discovery.— Where the party from whom discovery of any kind or inspection is sought objects to the same, or any part thereof, the Court may, if satisfied that the right to the discovery or inspection sought depends on the determination of any issue or question in dispute in the suit, or that for any other reason it is desirable that any issue or question in dispute in the suit should be determined before deciding upon the right to the discovery or inspection, order that such issue or question be determined first, and reserve the question as to the discovery or inspection."*

5. Rule 21 C.P.C. of Order XI C.P.C. provides for the effects of non-compliance with the order of discovery. Rule 21 of Order XI is quoted as under :

"21. Non-compliance with order for discovery.-(1) Where any party fails to comply with any order to answer interrogatories, or for discovery or inspection of documents, he shall, if a plaintiff, be liable to have his suit dismissed for want of prosecution, and, if a defendant, to have his defence, if any, struck out, and to be placed in the same position as if he had not defended, and the party interrogating or seeking discovery or inspection may apply to the Court for an order to that effect and an order may be made on such application accordingly, after notice to the parties and after giving them a reasonable opportunity of being heard.

(2) Where an order is made under sub-rule (1) dismissing any suit, the plaintiff shall be precluded from bringing a fresh suit on the same cause of action."

6. Section 107 of C.P.C. provide for the powers of Appellate Court, which is quoted as under:

Section 107. Powers of Appellate Court.- (1)Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, an Appellate Court shall have power-

(a) to determine a case finally;

(b) to remand a case;

(c) to frame issues and refer them for trial;

(d) to take additional evidence or to require such evidence to be taken.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the Appellate Court shall have the same powers and shall perform as nearly as may be the same duties as are conferred and imposed by this Code on Courts of original jurisdiction in respect of suits instituted therein.

7. Rule 33 of Order XLI C.P.C. quoted as under.

33. Power of Court of Appeal.— The Appellate Court shall have power to pass any decree and make any order which ought to have been passed or made and to pass or make such further or other decree or order as the case may require, and this power may be exercised by the Court notwithstanding that the appeal is as to part only of the decree and may be exercised in favour of all or any of the respondents or parties, although such respondents or parties may not have filed any appeal or objection [and may, where there have been decrees in cross-suits or where two or more decrees are passed in one suit, be exercised in respect of all or any of the decrees, although an appeal may not have been filed against such decrees]:

[Provided that the Appellate Court shall not make any order under section 35A in pursuance of any objection on which the Court from whose decree the appeal is preferred has omitted or refused to make such order.]

8. Learned Counsel for the petitioner submitted that the defendant will be entitled to ask for inspection of a document referred to in the plaint in order to formulate his defence and any denial of this right to inspect such document would amount to denying him to an opportunity to meet the case of the plaintiff as set up by him in his plaint. In this regard, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgment of Andhra Pradesh High Court in case of Peoples Education Society, Bombay v. The State of A.P. reported in 1971 (1) ALT 63. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also relied upon the judgment in case of Jankidas v. Kaushalya Devi reported in AIR 1943 Lahore 207.

9. Contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner are misconceived. Prior to the amendment made by Act No. 46 of 1999, in Rue 15 of Order XI, every party to the suit was entitled for inspection 'at any time' but by the amendment as brought about by the amending Act no. 46 of 1999, the words 'at or before the settlement of issues' have been substituted for the words 'at any time'. The amended Rules 15 of Order 11 prescribes a time limit for the purpose to inspect the document referred in the pleadings or affidavits and i.e. 'at or before the settlement of issues'. This means that the inspection of document has to be completed by the time issues are settled and not later than that.

10. So far as the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that refusal to inspect the document would amount to denial of opportunity to defend, is also misconceived. In case of Peoples Education Society, Bombay (Supra) , the Andhra Pradesh High Court held in paragraph no. 5 as under:

"5. The defendant, having regard to the scope of Rule 15, will be entitled to ask for inspection of the documents referred to in the plaint in order to formulate his defence, and any denial of this right to inspect such documents would amount to denying him an opportunity to meet the case of the plaintiff as unfolded by him in his plaint."

11. In case of Jankidas v. Kaushalya Devi (Supra), it has been held that inspection of document must be allowed under Order 11, Rule 15 when the when the document in question were themselves material facts supporting the plaintiff's claim and there was some sort of direct or indirect reference to them in the plaint itself, and it would be impossible for the defendant to set up his defence unless he was allowed to know before the trial what were the precise contents. It has been further held in Jankidas v. Kaushalya Devi (Supra) that once the plaintiff makes reference to certain documents in the plaint, the defendant will be entitled to ask for inspection of those documents, it is for him to think of the lines on which he can formulate his defence and to deny the defendant of an inspection of the documents referred to in the plaint would be denying him the opportunity of fully disclosing his defence. The defendant, is therefore, entitled to ask for inspection of the document referred to in the plaint before filing his written statement. If they are not made available for inspection, then it follows that the plaintiff cannot rely upon them thereafter.

12. There is no dispute as to the principle of the law laid down by the aforesaid judgments but both the judgments were given prior to the amendment brought in Rule 15 of Order 11 by amending the Act No. 49 of 1999 which prescribes a time limit for making an application for inspection. Even earlier, in case of Nagpur Glass Works Ltd. and others v. Shree Onama Glass Works Ltd., Gondia reported in AIR 1938 Nag 239 wherein the Nagpur High Court has held in paragraph no. 5 as under:

"5. This much however is certain: whether a party proceeds under O. 11, R. 15 or under O. 11, R. 18(2) he must act promptly and delay in itself may be a good ground for refusing to grant time for the filing of the written statement until after the inspection has been made. It is of course impossible to lay dawn any hard and fast rule but these observations form a general guide.

13. Coming to the facts of the present case, an application has been moved by the defendant/appellant at the stage of first appeal filed under Section 96 C.P.C. by the defendant/appellant after the suit was decreed against him. Since the suit has been contested on merits by the defendant/appellant by filing written statement and leading evidence there is nothing remains to be disclosed to the defendant/petitioner denial of which may lead to denial of opportunity to the defendant to prepare his defence.

14. So far as the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that in view of Section 107 C.P.C. and the powers of the appellate court under Order 41 Rule 33 C.P.C., the appeal is continuation of suit, therefore, the court below ought to have allowed the application filed by the petitioner is also misconceived for the reasons that though the appeal is continuation of the suit but in view of time limit as fixed by the statute itself, i.e. Rule 15 of Oder 11, the said power cannot be exercised at the appellate stage.

15. So far as the contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner that in case of Salem Advocate Bar Association v. Union of India reported in 2005 (6) SCC 344, the Supreme Court has held that inspection of documents 'on or before the settlement of issues' is discretionary and it does not mean that the inspection cannot be allowed after the settlement of issues, is also, misconceived. Though the Apex Court has held that the amendment is not mandatory but such a power cannot be exercised at the stage of appeal after contesting of suit on merits and passing of decree against the petitioner.

16. In view of the discussion as made above, I am of the view that the court below has committed no illegality in dismissing the application of the petitioner.

17. The writ petition devoid of merits and is, accordingly, dismissed.

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Sections 156(3) & 173(8) - Constitution of India,1950 - Article 227- Power of Magistrate to Order Further Investigation - Petitioners challenged the order dated 12.07.2023 by Metropolitan Magistrate, Kanpur Nagar, rejecting a final police report and directing further investigation in Misc. Case No. 1124/2023, arguing no protest petition was filed and the Magistrate lacked power post-cognizance under Section 156(3). The application, captioned as 'narazgi yachika' under Section 173(8), was treated as a protest petition. Court held that Section 173(8) empowers police to conduct further investigation post-report, and Magistrates can order such investigation under Section 156(3) read with Section 173(8) until trial commences, as per Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya Vs St. of Gujarat, (2019) 17 SCC 1. Magistrate's options upon receiving a police report include accepting it, dropping proceedings, or directing further investigation (Minu Kumari Vs St. of Bihar, (2006) 4 SCC 359). No statutory bar restricts this power, and Article 21 mandates ensuring fair investigation. Order upheld as within jurisdiction; petition dismissed for lack of merit. (Paras 12-21)

6. Bhagwant Singh Vs Commissioner of Police, (1985) 2 SCC 537 (Para 17)

1. Heard Sri Bal Ram Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioners and Sri Pankaj Saxena, learned Additional Government Advocate-I appearing for the State-respondent.

2. The present petition has been filed seeking to assail the order dated 12.07.2023 passed by the Metropolitan Magistrate, Court No.9, Kanpur Nagar in Misc. Case No.1124 of 2023 (Syed Tariq Umar Vs. Rakesh Kumar Awasthi and others), whereby the final report submitted by the police has been rejected and a direction has been issued for further investigation.

3. The principal ground urged to assail the aforesaid order is that no protest petition was filed by the informant before the concerned Magistrate and despite the same, the order impugned has been passed.

4. It is further sought to be contended that the power to order investigation by the police under Section 156(3) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 19731 CrPC can only be invoked by the Magistrate before he takes cognizance of the offence under Section 190(1)(a), and such a direction could not have been issued in exercise of powers under Section 173(8), wherein the investigating officer alone has been authorized to conduct further investigation.

5. Learned AGA has controverted the submissions made by the counsel for the petitioners by pointing out that the miscellaneous application filed by the informant, upon which the order impugned has been passed by the Magistrate, was captioned as 'narazgi yachika', under Section 173(8) CrPC, wherein a prayer had been made to reject the final report and direct further investigation.

6. It is submitted that the aforesaid application is clearly in the nature of a 'protest petition', filed under Section 173(8) CrPC, wherein the Magistrate is fully empowered to direct further investigation, and the order impugned cannot be faulted with on this ground.

7. Rival contentions fall for consideration.

8. The statutory scheme under the CrPC contains a clear demarcation between the powers of the police to investigate and the jurisdiction of criminal courts in inquiries, followed by the procedure once the trial begins.

9. The expression 'investigation' has been defined under Section 2(h) CrPC, as including all the proceedings under the Code for the purpose of collecting evidence by a police officer, and otherwise by any person authorized by a Magistrate in this behalf, and also pertains to a stage before the trial commences. The investigation which may ultimately lead to a police report is an investigation conducted by the police, and may be ordered in an inquiry made by a Magistrate himself in a 'complaint case'.

10. The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, did not contain a provision under which the police were empowered to conduct a further investigation in respect of an offence after a police report under Section 173 had been forwarded to the Magistrate.

11. Taking notice of the difficulties arising as a result thereof, the Law Commission in its 41st report made a recommendation with regard to reopening of investigation, in the following terms:-

"14.23. Reopening of investigation.- A report under Section 173 is normally the end of the investigation. Sometimes, however, the police officer after submitting the report under Section 173 comes upon evidence bearing on the guilt or innocence of the accused. We should have thought that the police officer can collect that evidence and send it to the magistrate concerned. It appears, however, that courts have sometimes taken the narrow view that once a final report under Section 173 has been sent, the police cannot touch the case again and cannot re-open the investigation. This view places a hindrance in the way of the investigating agency, which can be very unfair to the prosecution and, for that matter, even to the accused. It should be made clear in Section 173 that the competent police officer can examine such evidence and send a report to the magistrate. Copies concerning the fresh material must of course be furnished to the accused."

12. Sub-section (8) of Section 173, as introduced in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, gives power to the police to further investigate an offence even after a police report has been forwarded to the Magistrate. This power continues until the trial can be said to commence in a criminal case.

13. The question as to whether the Magistrate has the power to order further investigation, after a police report has been forwarded to him under Section 173 was considered in Vinubhai Haribhai Malaviya and others Vs. State of Gujarat and another[2] and it was held that the Magistrate's power under Section 156(3) CrPC is very wide, and in order to ensure that a 'proper investigation' takes place in the sense of a fair and just investigation by the police, Article 21 of the Constitution of India mandates that all powers necessary, which may also be incidental or implied, are available to the Magistrate to ensure a proper investigation which, would include an order for further investigation after a report is received by him under Section 173(2), and which power would continue to enure in the Magistrate at all stages of the criminal proceedings until the trial itself commences.

14. The powers that are vested in Magistrate upon filing a report in terms of Section 173(2)(i), were explained in the decision of Minu Kumari Vs. State of Bihar[3], wherein it was held that when a report is filed before a Magistrate, he may either: (i) accept the report and take cognizance of the offences and issue process; or (ii) may disagree with the report and drop the proceedings; or (iii) may direct further investigation under Section 156(3) and require the police to make a further report.

15. In the case of Vinay Tyagi Vs. Irshad Ali @ Deepak and others[4], after referring to the decision in the case of Minu Kumari (supra), it was held that the court of Magistrate has a clear power to direct further investigation when a report is filed under Section 173(2), and may also exercise such powers with the aid of Section 156(3) CrPC.

16. Reference was also made to the decision in Hemant Dhasmana Vs. CBI[5], where the court had held that although Section 173(8) does not, in specific terms, mention about the powers of the Court to order further investigation, the power of the police to conduct further investigation envisaged therein can be triggered into motion at the instance of the Court.

17. The judgment in Hemant Dhasmana (supra) has made specific reference to the judgments in Union Public Service Commission Vs. S. Papaiah and others[6], and Bhagwant Singh Vs. Commissioner of Police[7], to conclude that the Magistrate could pass an order for further investigation.

18. In terms of the aforesaid decisions it can be concluded that the scheme of the Code nor any specific provision therein bars exercise of jurisdiction by the Magistrate to order further investigation. The language of Section 173(2) is not to be construed in restricted manner so as to deprive the Magistrate of such powers, particularly, in view of the provisions under Section 156(3), and the language of Section 173(8) itself. The power of the Magistrate to direct further investigation, is, in fact, to be read into language of Section 173(8) CrPC.

19. The question as to whether after a charge-sheet has been filed by the police, the Magistrate has power to order further investigation, and if so, upto what stage of a criminal proceeding, is therefore no longer res integra, in view of the authoritative pronouncements, wherein it has been held that the power to order for further investigation after a police report has been forwarded under Section 173(2), would continue to enure in the Magistrate at all stages of the criminal proceedings until a trial itself commences.

20. The legal position with regard to the power of the Magistrate to order further investigation exercising powers under Section 156(3) read with Section 173(8), being well settled, the order impugned dated 12.07.2023 passed by the Metropolitan Magistrate, Court No.9, Kanpur Nagar in Misc. Case No.1124 of 2023, in terms of which the final report submitted by police has been rejected, and a direction has been issued for further investigation, cannot be faulted on the ground of lack of jurisdiction.

21. The petition lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

(A) Criminal Law - The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Section 374(2) - Appeal against conviction , Section 366 - Sentence of death to be submitted by Court of Session for confirmation , Capital punishment - Murder - Arms possession - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 302/34, Arms Act, 1959 - Section 25 & 27 - Circumstantial Evidence - Extra-Judicial Confession - Recovery - Last-seen theory - Motive - In case of circumstantial evidence the chain of circumstances has to be proved in such a manner which leads to the conclusion that the accused and none else is responsible for the offence alleged against him - Chain has to be completed in all respect. (Para - 46)

(B) Indian Evidence Act, 1872 - Circumstantial evidence - Panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence - circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established - facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused - circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency - should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved - must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused. (Para - 44)

Three ladies, the wife, sister and mother of appellant - have been murdered by causing injuries through the firearms as well as a sharp-edged weapon - alleged accused were charged under IPC and Arms Act after confessions and recoveries linked them to the crime - trial court sentenced both to death based on circumstantial evidence and recoveries made. (Para - 5 ,6,7,43)

HELD: - Confessions and recoveries were unreliable due to lack of independent witnesses. No direct link between the accused and the crime was substantiated. Chain of circumstantial evidence was incomplete. Convictions set aside due to insufficient evidence and unreliable prosecution case under settled law regarding circumstantial evidence and Section 27 of the Evidence Act. Prosecution has failed to prove its case against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt, therefore, they are entitled for benefit of doubt, and they deserve to be acquitted from all the charges levelled against them. Capital reference made by trial court for confirmation of death sentence rejected. (Para 59, 47, 58)

4. Since both capital cases and capital reference arising out of a common judgement for the same incident, all were heard together and are now being decided by this common judgement.

5. The prosecution case in brief is that upon an incident having had taken place in the night intervening 25/26.07.2007, wherein three ladies have been murdered, a First Information Report was lodged by one Mohd. Shakeel s/o Sabbir Ahmad. First Information Report was scribed by Dr. Dinesh Chandra Agnihotri on the dictation of Shakeel (complainant). The allegation in the First Information Report was that in the house of his cousin (Chacha's son) Mohd. Kaleem in the night intervening 25/26.07.2007 at around 4:00 A.M., certain unknown persons had committed murder of the wife of his brother-Kaleem, namely, Yaasmeen, mother, namely Noorjahan and sister, namely Nasreen and that on the body of the three deceased there was evidence of the fact that they were killed by bullets and there were also other marks of injuries caused by sharp edged weapons. It was stated in the First Information Report that the brother of the first informant, namely Kaleem was also grievously injured and he was sent to Lohiya Hospital for medical treatment. Upon the First Information Report having been lodged, investigation commenced. From the spot a recovery memo of the recovered articles was prepared. On the spot the recovery was made by the Investigating Officer (IO) of two empty cartridges of 315 bore and one empty cartridge of 12 Bore. The other articles which were taken into possession were plain soil and the blood stained soil. Thereafter, on the same date, inquest report was prepared and the three dead bodies of Nasreem, Yaasmeem and Noorjahan were sent for postmortem. As per the case of the prosecution, Kaleem was taken to the hospital by the Police and he was subsequently arrested on the statements made by Mohan and Kamal. As per prosecution case Mohan and Kamal had stated that Kaleem had made certain extra judicial confession before them and therefore they knew the fact that Kaleem had committed the crime. The police also came to know on the statements of Mohan and Kamal that the co-accused Pradeep Dhobi, Lallan @ Lalla and Shakeel were also involved in the crime. On 27.07.2007, Shakeel and Kaleem were arrested by the police. Thereafter on the pointing of the two accused, Shakeel and Kaleem, from the house of Shakeel one country made pistol of 315 bore was recovered. On the pointing out of accused Shakeel and Kaleem, a Banka which was buried in the same courtyard and covered by some loose bricks was recovered. The recovery memo was thereafter prepared, which is Exh. Ka-4. It may be noted that when the First Information Report was lodged, it had given rise to Case Crime No. 290 of 2007 under Section 302, 307 I.P.C. For the recovered country made pistol, Case Crime No. 1012 of 2007 under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act and for the recovered Banka, Case Crime No. was 1011 of 2007 under Section 25/27 of the Arms Act were registered. The injury on the body of Kaleem was examined on 26.07.2007 itself. Postmortem of the dead bodies were conducted on 26.07.2007. The case of the prosecution further is that the fire arms and the bullets were sent for forensic examination to the Ballistic Expert. The samples of the bullets and the fire arms were got received in the Forensic Laboratory on 03.11.2007 and the Banka was received on 04.11.2007. After taking the statements of the various witnesses the Police concluded the investigation and submitted charge-sheet against all the accused persons, namely, Kaleem, Shakeel, Pradeep, Lallan @ Lalla and Mukesh @ Sanjeev on 16.08.2007 under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302 I.P.C. With regard to Shakeel, a charge-sheet was also submitted on 17.08.2007 under Section 25/27 of the Arms Act and with regard to Mohd. Kaleem, charge-sheet under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act was submitted on 17.08.2007. On the aforesaid charge-sheets, cognizance was taken by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Farrukhabad on 05.09.2007 and the case was committed to the Court of Sessions Judge where charges were framed on 25.01.2008 by the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.1, Farrukhabad, under Sections 147, 148, 302/149 I.P.C., against Mohd. Kaleem, Shakeel, Pradeep, Mukesh @ Sanjeev and Lalla @ Lallan and the Sessions Trial was numbered as 612 of 2007.

6. With regard to the case under the Arms Act under Section 25/27 vis-a-vis Shakeel, case was registered as Sessions Trial No. 611 of 2007. With regard to the accused Kaleem a case under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act was registered as Sessions Trial No. 612 of 2007.

7. The accused persons denied the charges and claimed trial. However, during trial since the accused, namely, Mukesh alias Sanjeev and Pradeep were absconding, therefore, their trial had been separated on 19.11.2016 and 4.11.2019 respectively and only accused Kaleem, Shakeel and Lallan alias Lalla have been tried for the offences under sections 147, 148, and 302/149 I.P.C. Accused Kaleem has also been tried under section 4/25 Arms Act and accused Shakeel has also been tried for the offence under section 25/27 Arms Act.

8. During trial in order to prove its case the prosecution had examined as many as 14 witnesses. There were two court's witnesses, on the orders of the court, who were examined during trial. The defence had also examined six witnesses in support of its case.

9. The P.W. 1 Shakeel s/o Sabbir, who was the first informant has proved the contents of the First Information Report and has stated that Kaleem, is his cousin, who is the accused in the case in respect of an incident, which occurred in the night intervening 25/26.07.2007 at 4:00 A.M. in which his wife Yasmeen, mother- Noorjahan and sister- Nasreen, have been murdered by firing bullets upon them. He stated that the First Information Report was written on his dictation by Sri Dinesh Chandra Agnihotri. He had stated in his statement that as the wife of his cousin, Kaleem, was of a bad character, therefore, Kaleem and the co-accused Shakeel had in a planned manner, murdered Yasmeen, the wife of Kaleem; the mother of Kaleem- Noorjahan and his sister- Nasreen. He further stated that after lodging of the First Information Report he had gone to Jaipur and what happened in the case thereafter was not known to him. In his cross-examination, he has categorically stated that he had not seen the incident and he had not seen the assailants. He also stated that he had no knowledge about the incident. He has stated that when he reached the house of his brother, Kaleem then he was not there at his house but had been taken to the Lohiya Hospital, and therefore, he had straight away gone to the Police Station to get the report lodged. He has further stated that he did not know that Kaleem was grievously injured in the incident and if this fact was recorded in his statement given under Section 161 Cr.P.C. by the police, he is not aware. He had also no knowledge about panchayatnama of the dead bodies.

10. The PW-2 Haji Mohd. Ahmad has stated in his examination-in-chief that Pradeep was not known to him. The person who was in the Court, namely Shakeel s/o Qadir was known to him. He had also stated that Lallan @ Lalla and Mukesh @ Sanjeev were also not known to him. Kaleem, who was present in the court, was also not known to him. He has stated that he had only heard about the fact that Kaleem's wife had been killed around two years back. He had stated that he heard about the murder of Noorjahan, Yasmeen and Nasreen. He has also denied that on 27.07.2007, Pradeep had informed him that Kaleem had developed illicit relations with his sister-in-law and his wife Yasmeen was all the time troubling him because of this illicit relations, therefore, he committed murder of Yasmeen, Noorjahan and Nasreen. Ultimately, the PW-2 was declared hostile.

11. P.W.-3 Mohd. Qamar, who was examined by the prosecution to prove the fact that an extra judicial confession was made by Mohd. Shakeel and Mohd. Kaleem. However, he has denied the fact that any extra judicial confession was made before him. This witness was also declared hostile.

12. P.W.-4 Gaffar, was also produced by the prosecution but he had stated that on that date he was in Jaipur, and therefore, he was also declared hostile.

13. P.W.-5 Arif, proved the inquest reports.

14. P.W.-6 Prakash Narayan, is the Constable, who has proved the registration of the case under the Arms Act. He has stated in his statement that before the accused were taken for the recovery, no statement was recorded and no public witness was present at that time.

15. P.W.-7 Sub-Inspector, Balvant Raj, was examined by the prosecution for the purposes of proving the Chik F.I.R. He has stated that the court of the Chief Judicial Magistrate was 5-6 Kilometres away from the Police Station but the Chik F.I.R., was sent to the Court of the Chief Judicial Magistrate on 06.08.2007 i.e. after 11 days of the incident.

16. P.W.-8 Dr. Ramesh Chandra examined the injuries on the body of the accused Kaleem and in his opinion they were simple in nature. He stated that the injury no.1 was simple and injury 2 was to be kept under observation. He has stated that injury no.1 could have been caused due to fall and injury no.2 may also have been caused if the injured hit the corner of a Staircase.

17. P.W.-9 Sri Hakim Singh is the Sub-Inspector in whose presence the recovery of the country made pistol and the Banka was made. Sub-Inspector, Sri Hakim Singh has proved the recovery as was made with regard to the country made pistol of 315 bore at the indication of Shakeel. He has also proved the recovery of the Banka at the indication of Kaleem. He has very categorically stated that the recovery was made from a populated area and that the house, where recovery had taken place was in the midst of the city, but he has stated that no independent witness came forward despite request from the Police personnel. He has also categorically stated that prior to the recovery no statement of the accused was recorded. He has also proved recovery of the mobile phone No. 9918932015 of kaleem. He has also proved the call details according to which the accused Kaleem used to talk to the accused Pradeep on his Mobile No. 9918267600 and that he has stated that just prior to the incident they had talked to each other.

18. P.W.-10 Kanhaiya Lal, who was posted as an assistant at the place where the postmortem took place has proved the fact that the postmortem report was scribed by the doctor in his own hand writing.

19. P.W.-11 Yash Karan, is the Sub-inspector in whose presence the bodies were sealed/stitched and he has proved the inquest reports.

20. P.W.-12 Sri Ashok Kumar, the Station House Officer was the Investigating Officer of the case and he has stated that he had investigated the case and he has stated that in First Information Report it was stated that some unknown persons had committed the murder and on the statements of Mohan and Kamal, he came to know that Mohd Kaleem, Pradeep Dhobi, Lallan, Shakeel in a planned manner committed murder of Yasmeen, Narseen and Noorjahan by firing on them. He has also stated that there was a lacerated injury on the head of Shakeel (It appears that he wanted to mention the name of Kaleem). He has also stated that the two accused Shakeel and Kaleem were arrested on the same date and they had admitted their guilt. He has further stated that recoveries of the country made pistol and the Banka were made on the pointing out of Shakeel and Kaleem. When the statement of the SHO (PW-12- Ashok Kumar) was being recorded, he has stated that in the court only Banka, one cartridge of 12 bore and cartridges of 315 bore were presented. PW-12 died thereafter and he was never cross-examined.

21. P.W.-13 Suraj Singh is the investigating Officer for the offences under the Arms Act. He has stated that he has no knowledge as to whether the recovered country made pistol was sent for Forensic investigation. He has also stated that before the recovery was being made, statements of the two accused Shakeel and Kaleem were not recorded. He has also stated that the fire arms recovered were used in the crime as there was a report of the Forensic laboratory. He has stated that in his cross-examination that it is wrong to say that site plan was prepared in the Police Station.

22. P.W. 14, Dr. Yogendra Singh, the Radiologist has proved the post mortem report of the three deceased Yasmeen, Noorjahan, Nasreen.

23. Court Witness C.W. -1 Ram Lalli, who is the mother of accused Pradeep has been examined to confirm the age of the accused Pradeep at the time of the incident.

24. C.W.-2 Munna Lal, the father of Pradeep was discharged on the application made by him to the effect that he is not in a position to give any statement as he had lost his memory.

25. D.W.-1 Raunak in his examination has deposed that Yasmeen was his daughter and married to Kaleem and there was no dispute between them. Kaleem, he has stated, was innocent. He stated that it was wrong to say that Kaleem had illicit relation with his Saali (sister-in-law) and it was also wrong to say that she became pregnant due to this illicit relation. It is also wrong to say that because of the illicit relation Yasmeen used to quarrel with Kaleem. Kaleem used to come to his house once in a year and stay there for a day or two. He had also stated that the nand (sister-in-law) of Yasmeen, Nasreen was young but he could not know her age. He also deposed that he did not know that Nasreen had developed illicit relation therefore Kaleem was trying to do away with her. He deposed that he informed the police that he was the father of Yasmeen. He also deposed that he did not know that who had killed Yasmeen and it was wrong to say that he was trying to save Kaleem due to pressure.

26. D.W. -2 Shareef is the neighbour of Kaleem and has deposed that his house is near the house of Kaleem. He came to know about the killing of wife, mother and sister of Kaleem on the next morning. He deposed that in this case Kaleem was falsely implicated. Police had enquired about this from the local residents and all had denied the involvement of Kaleem in the crime but police had not agreed. In his cross examination he deposed that he had seen the dead bodies in the morning after the incident. He heard the sounds of three to four rounds of firing at about 4 a.m. which was coming from the house of Kaleem. Next morning he went to the house of Kaleem but had not entered in the house. He entered in the house alongwith the police and saw the three dead bodies lying on the floor. He had stated that he knew Kaleem and did not know the other accused persons. He further had stated that the incident occurred in the house of Kaleem and at that time Kaleem was present in his house.

27. D.W.-3 Altaf deposed that he was residing in the house of Sabir on rent near the house of Kaleem. In the night he heard the sounds of fire arms at about 3 – 4 a.m. and had gone to the roof and from there saw that a mob had collected in front of the house of Kaleem but the latter was not present there. In his cross examination this witness had stated that in the evening of the incident at about 8 – 8.30 p.m. Kaleem was not present in his house. Thereafter he came there or not he could not tell. He did not go to the spot and he had no information about the incident.

28. D.W.-4 Raju deposed that his house was situate near the house of Kaleem. The incident was about 9 years old and he remembered that in the night when the incident had occurred at about 3 – 4 a.m. he had heard the sounds of fire arm and he had reached on the spot alongwith the others. He deposed that there was a rumour that some culprits had committed robbery and committed the murder of the three ladies. He deposed that one day before the incident he had gone to the house of Kaleem and his wife had told him that Kaleem would come by the evening next day. He deposed that they all informed the police that incident had been caused by some culprits. In his cross examination he stated when he went to the house of Kaleem he saw the dead bodies of his wife, mother and the sister. He had stated that it was wrong to say that Kaleem had himself committed the murder. He had stated that he did not know that kaleem had received any injury in the incident. He had stated that Kaleem was in jail in the murder case of his wife, mother and sister but he was wrongly detained in jail. He stated that it was wrong to say that he was deposing to save Kaleem, he being his neighbour.

29. D.W.-5 Qadar Kawwal has deposed that Shakeel was taken by the police on 26.7.2007 from his shop and when he went to the police station the Inspector got his signature on a paper and said that your son will be released in the evening. Thereafter police had falsely challaned his son. He deposed that police had not recovered the mobile of Kaleem nor he had seen it. In his cross examination he had stated that Shakeel was present in the house in the night of the incident. He had further stated that when police had taken Shakeel from the shop he was not present there and he was informed by some other persons. It is wrong to say that he is deposing to save the accused.

30. D.W.-6 Moharram has deposed that the house of Kaleem was situate at a distance of 700 – 800 meters from his factory. In the night of the incident Kaleem had gone to his house at about 4 a.m. Some persons had reached his factory and had called for Kaleem saying that something had happened in his house. He deposed that he reached the house of Kaleem after about 15 – 20 minutes and saw that Kaleem was lying in a fainted condition at his main gate and there were injuries on his head.

31. The five accused persons got their statements recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. The accused Kaleem gave his additional statement in writing which is there on record as Paper No. 224-A.

32. The trial court after considering the entire evidence on record had acquitted the accused Lallan @ Lalla of all the offences under Sections 147, 148, 302/149 I.P.C. upon granting him the benefit of doubt. However, the trial court on 13.10.2022 found Mohd. Kaleem & Mohd. Shakeel in Sessions Trial No. 612 of 2007 guilty. This case arose out of Case Crime No. 1002 of 2007 under Sections 302/34 I.P.C. and acquitted them for the offences u/s 147, 148 I.P.C. Accused Mohd. Kaleem in Sessions Trial No. 611 of 2007 arising out of Case Crime No. 1012 of 2007 was also found guilty under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act. Similarly, Mohd. Shakeel in Sessions Trial No. 611 of 2007 arising out of Case Crime No. 1011 of 2007 under Section 25/25 Arms Act was found guilty.

33. They were heard on the question of sentence and on 03.11.2022 after looking into all the mitigating and aggravating circumstances sentenced Kaleem and Mohd. Shakeel in Sessions Trial No. 612 of 2007 arising out of Case Crime No. 1002 of 2007 with death penalty and they were also fined Rs. 50,000/- each. In default, they had to undergo two years rigorous imprisonment. They were directed to be hanged till death. With regard to Sessions Trial No. 611 of 2007 arising out of Case Crime No. 1012 of 2007, Mohd. Kaleem was convicted under Section 4/25 of the Arms Act with rigorous imprisonment of three years and he was fined for Rs. 10,000/-. In the event of the non-payment of fine, he was to undergo further six months of rigorous imprisonment. Again, with regard to the accused Shakeel in Case Crime No. 1011 of 2007, under Section 25 of the Arms Act, he was sentenced for three years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs. 10,000/- and in default of payment of fine, six months further rigorous imprisonment was ordered. He has also been sentenced under section 27 of Arms Act for a period of three years rigorous imprisonment with fine of Rs.10,000/- and in default of payment of fine further six months rigorous imprisonment had to be undergone.

34. Upon order of sentence of death having been imposed, Additional Sessions Judge, referred the matter on 03.11.2022 to this Court and the reference was numbered as Capital Reference No. 14 of 2022. The appellants Mohd. Shakeel and Mohd. Kaleem had filed their separate appeals.

35. Learned counsel for the appellants has made the following submissions :- 20201

(i) The recovery as has been made by the police, itself becomes doubtful as in the recovery memo, it has been stated that at the indication of the accused Shakeel from his own courtyard in the north-southern corner, when certain loose bricks were removed, a country made pistol of 315 bore was recovered. Thereafter from the house of Shakeel itself, it has been stated in the recovery memo that Kaleem, who was the co-accused, in the very same courtyard in the south-western corner after removing certain bricks, got recovered a Banka (gandasa). Learned counsel for the appellants states that if the site-plan is seen then it clearly shows that the country made pistol and the banka was recovered from the house of Kaleem. Learned counsel for the appellants further relying upon the judgments of the Supreme Court in Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti vs. State of Uttar Pradesh reported in AIR 2022 SC 5273; Subramanya vs. State of Karnataka reported in AIR 2022 SC 5110 and in Rajesh & Anr. vs. State of Madhya Pradesh in Criminal Appeal No(s). 793-794 of 2022 and specifically relying upon paragraphs 53 to 57 and 70 in the case of Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra) has submitted that the recovery under section 27 of the Evidence Act itself was doubtful as the accused were in the police custody and before the police proceeded for the recovery, no memo regarding the disclosure statement was prepared which was required to be compulsorily prepared in the presence of independent witnesses. Also, it has been stated that before the police proceeded for recovery of the weapon, no effort was made to have two independent witnesses. Learned counsel for the appellants, therefore, states that the recoveries on the pointing out of the appellants was itself doubtful and they could not have been convicted on such a recovery.

(ii) Learned counsel for the appellants has stated that there was recovery of country made pistol of 315 bore, used in the crime, along with a Banka but there is definite evidence of the fact that there were pellets embedded in the body of Yasmeen which could be possible only on the firing by a 12 bore pistol, which fact is also reflected in the post mortem report.

(iii) Learned counsel has submitted that the accused made extra judicial confessions before Mohan and Kamal and on their statements the appellants Kaleem, Shakeel, Pradeep, Lallan and Sanjeev were involved in the crime but no endeavour was made by the prosecution to get Mohan and Kamal examined during trial to prove the guilt of the appellants. Learned counsel submits that to give credence to the story of extra judicial confession, one Mohd. Qamar (PW-3) was produced and he has specifically, while appearing in the witness box, denied the fact that any extra judicial confession was made to him. Learned counsel for the appellant relied upon the statement of Mohd. Qamar (PW-3), which is being reproduced here as under :-

"शकील पुत्र शब्बीर हाजिर अदालत कलीम के ताऊ के बेटे है। घटना के बाद हाजिर अदालत मोहम्मद कलीम व हाजिर अदालत शकील घटना के बाद मुझे नहीं मिले थे। कलीम और शकील ने मुझसे यह नहीं कहा था पुलिस वालों से मेरी अच्छी जान पहचान है। मैं आप से मदद चाहता हूँ। हम लोगों ने ही यास्मीन, नूरजहाँ व कुमारी नसरीन की हत्या गोली मार कर कर दी थी।"

(iv) Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that the prosecution has come up with a case that the empty cartridges, bullets and Banka were sent to the Forensic Laboratory. He submits that there is no evidence of the fact as to when the sealed empty cartridges, country made pistol and the banka were actually sent and as to whom they were sent. He has submitted that the FSL reports dated 14.11.2007 and 5.2.2008 mention that the samples of empty cartridges, pistol and banka were brought by one Laxman Lal but neither Laxman Lal was produced nor any effort was made by the prosecution to prove the fact that the samples which were sealed were actually sent to the Forensic Laboratory. Learned counsel for the appellants states that the missing link, as to who took the empty cartridges, the country made pistol and Banka to the Forensic Laboratory, when goes unproved then the whole case becomes doubtful.

(v) Learned counsel for the appellant has further submitted that if the statement in chief of Sub-Inspector Hakim Singh, who had proved the recovery, is seen then it becomes clear that the bundle of which the seal was opened in the Court contained the country made pistol of 315 bore and that the other bundle, when was opened, contained the banka. He states that the Investigating Officer Ashok Kumar in the witness box has stated that in his presence only the sample of plain soil; blood stained soil; banka, one empty cartridge of 12 bore; and one Gandasa were produced in the Court. Learned counsel for the appellants, therefore, submits that when the Investigating Officer in the witness box stated that the country made pistol and one empty cartridge of 315 bore were not produced, the only conclusion would be that the material exhibits were being tampered with and no reliance could be placed on the evidence which has been produced and relied upon by the prosecution.

(vi) Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that when there were five accused persons and only two weapons were introduced in the prosecution story then the whole case becomes doubtful and it was not certain as to whether the deaths were the result of the firing by which of the assailants. He submits that it is not clear as to who exactly was the person responsible for the firing by 12 bore pistol. He also submits that the 12 bore pistol was never recovered.

(vii) Learned counsel for the appellants has submitted that the motive in the case was also not clear. PW-1 had stated that the character of the wife of appellant Kaleem was not good and therefore the appellant-Kaleem with the assistance of Shakeel and other co-accused had done-away with his wife. He had stated that, however, the motive viz.-a-viz. PW-2 was changed and he had submitted that because Kaleem had an affair with the sister-in-law (sali) and this affair was known to his wife Yasmeen, the mother Noorjahan and sister Nasreen therefore they were done away. Learned counsel for the appellants further states, relying upon the statement of the accused Kaleem as has been recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. and as had also been written down by him in Paper No.224-A, that the appellant was never present on the spot and that he was in fact engaged in the work of embroidery at his work-place. He submits that this statement of Kaleem is also corroborated by the statement of DW-6 Moharram Ali who was the employer of the accused Kaleem and also stated that when the whole incident had taken place, someone had come to call Kaleem and thereafter Kareem left his work-place and had gone home. Learned counsel for the appellants has further relied upon the statement of DW-1 Raunak Ali who is the father-in-law of Kaleem and has very categorically stated that the accused Kaleem was in no manner involved in the crime and Kaleem was in fact injured during the course of a fall and that he had been taken to the hospital.

(viii) Learned counsel for the appellants thereafter submitted that the case was of a circumstantial evidence and relying upon Sharad Birdichand Sarda vs. State of Maharashtra reported in AIR 1984 SC 1622 : (1984) 4 SCC 116 he submits that when the chain of circumstances is not completed then the crime could not be proved. He, therefore, submits that the appellants deserve to be acquitted. Relying upon the decision of Sharad Birdichand Sarda (supra) learned counsel for the appellants states that there were five salient points which are to be seen for the conviction of an accused which are as follows :

"1. The circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established;

2. The fact so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused;

3. The circumstances should be of conclusive nature and tendency;

4. They should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved; and

5. There must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

These ingredients have to be necessarily there for the trial court to come to a conclusion that the accused were guilty.

there; there was no extra judicial confession proved; the evidence as was produced by the prosecution do not speak of any person who had last seen the accused either entering or leaving the place, then the case which was based on circumstantial evidence could not be proved and the appellants ought to be acquitted. Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that the provisions of section 106 of the Evidence Act would not apply as the accused-appellant was not in the house and that there was no knowledge which would specifically make him liable to discharge his burden. He submits that absolutely no evidence was produced by the prosecution to prove that any of the accused was present at the place of incident. To bolster his submissions, learned counsel for the appellants relied upon a judgment of this Court in Jail Appeal No.116 of 2019 (Chatthoo Chero vs. State of U.P.) decided on dated 7.4.2022, and has specifically relied upon paragraph 36 of it, which is being reproduced here as under :-

"36. The circumstance proved by the prosecution is that the appellant was not alone with his wife in the house when she was murdered. Admittedly, grown up children i.e. sons and daughters were also present; the witnesses of fact and independent witnesses have not been able to prove that the relation between the appellant and his wife was strained; the theory of strained relationship driving the appellant to commit suicide few days earlier of the incident for money was not proved by the witnesses examined by the prosecution, including, independent witnesses. The motive has not been proved nor assigned for commission of the offence."

(x) With regard to the fact that recovery did not complete the chain of evidence, learned counsel for the appellants has relied upon paragraph 42 of the judgment dated 7.4.2022 passed in Jail Appeal No.116 of 2019, which is also being reproduced here as under :-

"42. With regard to Section 27 of the Evidence Act, what is important is discovery of the material object at the disclosure of the accused but such disclosure alone would not automatically lead to the conclusion that the offence was also committed by the accused. In fact, thereafter, burden lies on the prosecution to establish a close link between discovery of the material objects and its use in the commission of the offence. What is admissible under Section 27 is the information leading to discovery and not any opinion formed on it by the prosecution."

(xi) Learned counsel for the appellants further submitted that if the entire circumstances are seen, even if the appellants were to be convicted, no case was made out for awarding the capital sentence as it would definitely not fall in the rarest of the rare cases.

36. Per contra, learned A.G.A. for the State submits that the accused Kaleem was having illicit relationship with his sister-in-law, which was being objected by his wife. Therefore, the accused Kaleem in a pre-planned manner had called the other co-accused persons in his house in the night on phone and had murder his wife, sister and mother by causing injuries by fire arms and Banka etc. Learned A.G.A. for the State further submits that coupled with the aforesaid motive, there are confessional statements made by the accused Kaleem and Shakeel and on their indication the recovery of one country made pistol of 315 bore and one Banka was made from the house of Kaleem himself. From the evidence as available on record, there is no evidence of any forcible entry of any outsider in the house nor any robbery has been committed, which indicates that it was only on the planning by the accused Kaleem that he called the other persons and opened the door for them and thereafter all of them had assaulted the deceased persons. The accused Kaleem has not explained the injuries received by him and it was only an afterthought after recording his statement u/s 313 Cr.P.C. that he had made a further written statement in Paper No. 224-A, wherein he had taken a plea of alibi and submitted that when he got the intimation about the incident, he came back to the house and due to the sudden shock he fell down and sustained the injuries due to the fall.

38. Learned A.G.A. for the State further submits that the recovery of the weapons used in the crime cannot be disbelieved only on the ground that there is no public witness to the recovery. The testimony of the Police personnel with regard to recovery and recovery memo is sufficient and the same cannot be doubted. From the FSL report, it has been categorically proved the weapons recovered were used in commission of the crime.

39. Learned A.G.A for the State further submits that the judgement relied upon by the appellants in Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra) is a new dimension given by the Apex Court that first time in the year 2020, the same is not in consonance with the law as declared by the Apex Court in Mukesh v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2017) 6 SCC 1. Learned A.G.A. therefore submits that the judgement of the Apex Court in Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra), has been subsequently followed in the judgement of Subramanya (supra) and Rajesh and another vs. State of M.P. 2023 SCConline SC 1202.

40. Having heard the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties, this Court has also carefully gone through the records and the judgement of the trial court. These are the appeals filed by the appellants u/s 374(2) of the Code of Criminal Procedure as well as the references made by the trial court u/s 366 Cr.P.C.

41. The Apex in Munna Pandey vs. State of Bihar : 2023 SCC OnLine SC 1103, has dealt with the manner in which the appeals as well as the references u/s 366 Cr.P.C. is required to be dealt with as under:

"58. According to Section 366 when a Court of Session passes a sentence of death, the proceedings must be submitted to the High Court and the sentence of death is not to be executed unless it is confirmed by the High Court. Section 367 then proceeds to lay down the power of the High Court to direct further enquiry to be made or additional evidence to be taken. Section 368, thereafter, lays down the power of the High Court to confirm the sentence so imposed or annul the conviction. One of the powers which the High Court can exercise is one under Section 368(c) of the CrPC and that is to "acquit the accused person". Pertinently, the power to acquit the person can be exercised by the High Court even without there being any substantive appeal on the part of the accused challenging his conviction. To that extent, the proceedings under Chapter XXVIII which deal with "submission of death sentences for confirmation" is a proceeding in continuation of the trial. These provisions thus entitle the High Court to direct further enquiry or to take additional evidence and the High Court may, in a given case, even acquit the accused person. The scope of the chapter is wider. Chapter XXIX of the CrPC deals with "Appeals". Section 391 also entitles the appellate court to take further evidence or direct such further evidence to be taken. Section 386 then enumerates powers of the appellate court which inter alia includes the power to "reverse the finding and sentence and acquit or discharge the accused, or order him to be re-tried by a court of competent jurisdiction subordinate to such appellate court or committed for trial". The powers of the appellate court are equally wide. The High Court in the present case was exercising powers both under Chapters XXVIII and XXIX of the CrPC.

59. Ordinarily, in a criminal appeal against conviction, the appellate court, under Section 384 of the CrPC, can dismiss the appeal, if the Court is of the opinion that there is no sufficient ground for interference, after examining all the grounds urged before it for challenging the correctness of the decision given by the Trial Court. It is not necessary for the appellate court to examine the entire record for the purpose of arriving at an independent decision of its own whether the conviction of the appellant is fully justified. The position is, however, different where the appeal is by an accused who is sentenced to death, so that the High Court dealing with the appeal has before it, simultaneously with the appeal, a reference for confirmation of the capital sentence under Section 366 of the CrPC. On a reference for confirmation of sentence of death, the High Court is required to proceed in accordance with Sections 367 and 368 respectively of the CrPC and the provisions of these Sections make it clear that the duty of the High Court, in dealing with the reference, is not only to see whether the order passed by the Sessions Judge is correct, but to examine the case for itself and even direct a further enquiry or the taking of additional evidence if the Court considers it desirable in order to ascertain the guilt or the innocence of the convicted person. It is true that, under the proviso to Section 368, no order of confirmation is to be made until the period allowed for preferring the appeal has expired, or, if an appeal is presented within such period, until such appeal is disposed of, so that, if an appeal is filed by a condemned prisoner, that appeal has to be disposed of before any order is made in the reference confirming the sentence of death. In disposing of such an appeal, however, it is necessary that the High Court should keep in view its duty under Section 367 CrPC and, consequently, the Court must examine the appeal record for itself, arrive at a view whether a further enquiry or taking of additional evidence is desirable or not, and then come to its own conclusion on the entire material on record whether conviction of the condemned prisoner is justified and the sentence of death should be confirmed. [See : Bhupendra Singh (supra)]"

42. The Malimath Committee of Judicial Reforms has discussed the paramount duty of the Court. The relevant observations of the Committee are as under:

"69. Malimath Committee on Judicial Reforms discussed the paramount duty of Courts to search for truth. The relevant observations of the Committee are as under:—

(a) The Indian ethos accords the highest importance to truth. The motto "Satyameva Jayate" (Truth alone succeeds) is inscribed in our National Emblem "Ashoka Sthambha". Our epics extol the virtue of truth.

(b) For the common man truth and justice are synonymous. So when truth fails, justice fails. Those who know that the acquitted accused was in fact the offender, lose faith in the system.

(c) In practice however we find that the Judge, in his anxiety to demonstrate his neutrality opts to remain passive and truth often becomes a casualty.

(d) Truth being the cherished ideal and ethos of India, pursuit of truth should be the guiding star of the Justice System. For justice to be done truth must prevail. It is truth that must protect the innocent and it is truth that must be the basis to punish the guilty. Truth is the very soul of justice. Therefore, truth should become the ideal to inspire the courts to pursue.

(e) Many countries which have Inquisitorial model have inscribed in their Parliamentary Acts a duty to find the truth in the case. In Germany Section 139 of the so called 'Majna Charta', a breach of the Judges' duty to actively discover truth would promulgate a procedural error which may provide grounds for an appeal.

(f) For Courts of justice there cannot be any better or higher ideal than quest for truth."

43. Therefore, from the above observations it is crystal clear that while dealing with the reference u/s 366 Cr.P.C., it is the duty of the Court not only to see whether order passed by the Sessions Judge is correct but to examine the case for itself and even direct a further inquiry or take the additional evidence if the Court considers it desirable. The reference u/s 366 Cr.P.C. is a continuation of the trial. Whereas, the scope of the appeals is limited to the extent of verifying the correctness of the judgement passed by the Sessions Judge. Since, in the instant case there is a reference by the Sessions Judge as well as there are two independent appeals by the convicted accused persons then, it will be appropriate to deal with the case in its entirety and it should not be limited to the grounds urged by the appellants. This is the case where three ladies, the wife, sister and mother of the appellant Kaleem, have been murdered by causing injuries through the fire arms as well as a sharp edged weapon. The incident has taken place between 3:00 to 4:00 A.M. in the night intervening 25/26.07.2007 and the accused Kaleem was also found in the house who was taken to the hospital by the SHO concerned on receipt of the intimation with regard to the incident at 5:30 A.M. on 26.07.2007.

44. From perusal of the facts of the case as well as the evidence, as noted above, the instant case is based on the circumstantial evidence. A three judge Bench of Apex Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra) in paragraphs 152, 153 and 154 has held as under:

"152. Before discussing the cases relied upon by the High Court we would like to cite a few decisions on the nature, character and essential proof required in a criminal case which rests on circumstantial evidence alone. The most fundamental and basic decision of this Court is Hanumant v. State of Madhya Pradesh [(1952) 2 SCC 71 : AIR 1952 SC 343 : 1952 SCR 1091 : 1953 Cri LJ 129] . This case has been uniformly followed and applied by this Court in a large number of later decisions up-to-date, for instance, the cases of Tufail (Alias)

Simmi v. State of Uttar Pradesh [(1969) 3 SCC 198 : 1970 SCC (Cri) 55] and Ramgopal v. State of Maharashtra [(1972) 4 SCC 625 : AIR 1972 SC 656] . It may be useful to extract what Mahajan, J. has laid down in Hanumant case [(1952) 2 SCC 71 : AIR 1952 SC 343 : 1952 SCR 1091 : 1953 Cri LJ 129] :

"It is well to remember that in cases where the evidence is of a circumstantial nature, the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should in the first instance be fully established, and all the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused. Again, the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency and they should be such as to exclude every hypothesis but the one proposed to be proved. In other words, there must be a chain of evidence so far complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for a conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and it must be such as to show that within all human probability the act must have been done by the accused."

153. A close analysis of this decision would show that the following conditions must be fulfilled before a case against an accused can be said to be fully established:]

(1) the circumstances from which the conclusion of guilt is to be drawn should be fully established.

It may be noted here that this Court indicated that the circumstances concerned "must or should" and not "may be" established. There is not only a grammatical but a legal distinction between "may be proved" and "must be or should be proved" as was held by this Court in Shivaji Sahabrao Bobade v. State of Maharashtra [(1973) 2 SCC 793 : 1973 SCC (Cri) 1033 : 1973 Crl LJ 1783] where the observations were made: [SCC para 19, p. 807: SCC (Cri) p. 1047]

"Certainly, it is a primary principle that the accused must be and not merely may be guilty before a court can convict and the mental distance between 'may be' and 'must be' is long and divides vague conjectures from sure conclusions."

(2) the facts so established should be consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused, that is to say, they should not be explainable on any other hypothesis except that the accused is guilty,

(3) the circumstances should be of a conclusive nature and tendency,

(4) they should exclude every possible hypothesis except the one to be proved, and

(5) there must be a chain of evidence so complete as not to leave any reasonable ground for the conclusion consistent with the innocence of the accused and must show that in all human probability the act must have been done by the accused.

154. These five golden principles, if we may say so, constitute the panchsheel of the proof of a case based on circumstantial evidence."

45. In Subramanya (supra) the Apex Court relying upon the Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra) has observed in paragraph 49 as under:

"49. Thus, in view of the above, the Court must consider a case of circumstantial evidence in light of the aforesaid settled legal proposition. In a case of circumstantial evidence, the judgment remains essentially inferential. The inference is drawn from the established facts as the circumstances lead to particular inferences. The Court has to draw an inference with respect to whether the chain of circumstances is complete, and when the circumstances there are collectively considered, the same must lead only to the irresistible conclusion that the accused alone is the perpetrator of the crime in question. All the circumstances so established must be of a conclusive nature, and consistent only with the hypothesis of the guilt of the accused"

46. From the above observations made by the Apex Court, it is settled proposition of law that in the case of circumstantial evidence the chain of circumstances has to be proved in such a manner which leads to the conclusion that the accused and none else is responsible for the offence alleged against him. Chain has to be completed in all respect.

47. From analysis of the circumstances of the present case the first and foremost circumstance against the appellants is that they made an extra judicial confession to Mohan and Kamal and also to P.W. 3 Mohd. Qamar and admitted their involvement in the crime. The prosecution has failed to examine Mohan and Kamal as witnesses in the instant case though Mohd Qamar has been examined as P.W. 3 but he has not supported the prosecution story with regard to any extra judicial confession made to him by the appellants and he has categorically denied that any extra judicial confession was made before him. The said witness was declared hostile. However, nothing could be brought by the prosecution in his cross examination to prove the extra judicial confession. The prosecution story is based on the statement made by Mohan and Kamal with regard to extra judicial confession and the Investigating Officer has arrested the appellants on the basis of such statement. Since the prosecution failed to examine them, thus in our considered opinion the prosecution has utterly failed in proving the said extra judicial confession made by the appellants, therefore that cannot form the basis for their conviction at all.

48. Another aspect of the matter is that the motive to commit such murder of the three ladies who are the wife, mother and sister of the appellant Kaleem. Though P.W. 1 has stated about the illicit relationship of appellant Kaleem with his sister-in-law and the prosecution has relied upon the same as a motive for commission of the offence, no other witness has supported the version narrated by P.W. 1. P.W. 2 Hazi Mohammad has categorically denied any such illicit relationship between Kaleem and his sister-in-law and the father of victim Yasmeen D.W. 1 Raunak has categorically denied any illicit relationship of Kaleem with his sister-in-law who happens to be another daughter of D.W. 1 Raunak and he has also denied any involvement of accused Kaleem in the entire incident.

49. Another aspect of the matter with regard to the motive is that the sister of Kaleem namely Nasreen was having illicit relationship. However, the prosecution has also failed to prove the said fact beyond reasonable doubt, therefore, though the aforesaid motive has been attributed to the appellant Kaleem the prosecution has failed to prove the said motive beyond reasonable doubt. However, the prosecution has utterly failed to prove or assign any motive to the other appellant Shakeel to cause the said incident. Thus, the prosecution has not been able to establish any motive to the appellants to commit the murder of the three ladies, who are wife, mother and sister of appellant Kaleem.

50. With regard to last seen theory of the prosecution that the appellant Kaleem was found on the spot after the incident alongwith the dead bodies and he had also sustained some injuries on his head and from the place of incident he had been carried to the Hospital by the police personnel where he was treated, we can only say that none of the witnesses has deposed against the appellant Kaleem that he was present on the spot at the time of incident. Rather the appellant Kaleem had explained his presence on the spot after the incident stating that he was actually working and doing the work of embroidery in the factory owned by D.W. 6 Moharram which was situated about 700 to 800 meters away from his house. We find that someone had had reached the factory and informed Kaleem that something had happened in his house. Thereafter Kaleem reached the spot and upon looking at the dead bodies of his wife, mother and sister had fainted and had fallen down on the stairs and had thereby sustained injuries on his head. D.W. 6 Moharram has categorically supported this explanation of the appellant Kaleem. However, the prosecution has not been able to prove and produce any witness with regard to the fact that the appellant Kaleem was seen or was present in the house at the time when the incident had taken place. Therefore, in the considered opinion of this Court the prosecution has utterly failed to prove the circumstance of "last seen" with the deceased persons prior to the incident.

51. Another circumstance which has been brought on record by the prosecution is the recovery of country made pistol on the disclosure and indication of Shakeel from the courtyard of appellant Kaleem and recovery of Banka/Gandasa on the disclosure and indication of appellant Kaleem from his own courtyard. With regard to the relevance, the prosecution has tried to establish that after their arrest, the accused persons admitted their involvement in the crime and on their disclosure the police had recovered the aforesaid weapons used in the crime on the pointing out of the appellants. With regard to the prosecution statement as well as the recovery of the weapons at the indication of the accused persons -appellant, the Apex Court in the case of Delhi Administration Vs. Bal Krishan (1972) 4 SCC 659, analysing the concept, use and evidentiary value of recovered articles has observed as under:

"7. Section 27 of the Evidence Act permits proof of so much of the information which is given by persons accused of an offence when in the custody of a police officer as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, irrespective of whether such information amounts to confession or not. Under sections 25 and 26 of the Evidence Act, no confession made to a police officer whether in custody or not can be proved as against the accused. But Section 27 is by way of a proviso to these sections and a statement, even by wayof confession, which distinctly relates to the fact discovered is admissible as evidence against the accused in the circumstances as stated in Section 27. ……."

52. In Mohd. Inayatullah Vs. State of Maharashtra (1976) 1 SCC 828, the Apex Court dealing with the scope and object of Section 27 of the Evidence Act has held in paragraph 12 and 13 as under:

"12. The expression "provided that" together with the phrase "whether it amounts to a confession or not" show that the section is in the nature of an exception to the preceding provisions particularly Sections 25 and 26. It is not necessary in this case to consider if this section qualifies, to any extent, Section 24, also. It will be seen that the first condition necessary for bringing this section into operation is the discovery of a fact, albeit a relevant fact, in consequence of the information received from a person accused of an offence. The second is that the discovery of such fact must be deposed to. The third is that at the time of the receipt of the information the accused must be in police custody. The last but the most important condition is that only "so much of the information" as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered is admissible. The rest of the information has to be excluded. The word "distinctly" means "directly", "indubitably", "strictly", "unmistakably". The word has been advisedly used to limit and define the scope of the provable information. The phrase "distinctly relates to the fact thereby discovered" is the linchpin of the provision. This phrase refers to that part of the information supplied by the accused which is the direct and immediate cause of the discovery. The reason behind this partial lifting of the ban against confessions and statements made to the police, is that if a fact is actually discovered in consequence of information given by the accused, it affords some guarantee of truth of that part, and that part only, of the information which was the clear, immediate and proximate cause of the discovery. No such guarantee or assurance attaches to the rest of the statement which may be indirectly or remotely related to the fact discovered.

13. At one time it was held that the expression "fact discovered" in the section is restricted to a physical or material fact which can be perceived by the senses, and that it does not include a mental fact (see Sukhan v. Crown [AIR 1929 Lah 344 : ILR 10 Lah 283 (FB)] ; Rex v. Ganee [AIR 1932 Bom 286 : ILR 56 Bom 172 : 33 Cri LJ 396]). Now it is fairly settled that the expression "fact discovered" includes not only the physical object produced, but also the place from which it is produced and the knowledge of the accused as to this (see Palukuri Kotayya v. Emperor [AIR 1947 PC 67 : 74 IA 65 : 48 Cri LJ 533] ; Udai Bhan v. State of Uttar Pradesh [AIR 1962 SC 1116 : 1962 Supp (2) SCR 830 : (1962) 2 Cri LJ 251])."

53. Relying upon the earlier decisions the Apex Court in Anter Singh Vs. State of Rajasthan (2004) 10 SCC 657 has analysed and summed up the various requirement under section 27 of the Evidence Act, as follows:

"16. The various requirements of the section can be summed up as follows:

(1) The fact of which evidence is sought to be given must be relevant to the issue. It must be borne in mind that the provision has nothing to do with the question of relevancy. The relevancy of the fact discovered must be established according to the prescriptions relating to relevancy of other evidence connecting it with the crime in order to make the fact discovered admissible.

(2) The fact must have been discovered.

(3) The discovery must have been in consequence of some information received from the accused and not by the accused's own act.

(4) The person giving the information must be accused of any offence.

(5) He must be in the custody of a police officer.

(6) The discovery of a fact in consequence of information received from an accused in custody must be deposed to.

(7) Thereupon only that portion of the information which relates distinctly or strictly to the fact discovered can be proved. The rest is inadmissible."

54. Subsequently, in State (NCT of Delhi) Vs. Navjot Sandhu (2005) 11SCC 600, the Apex Court has considered the divergent views and approaches and thereupon has observed as under:

"120. The history of case-law on the subject of confessions under Section 27 unfolds divergent views and approaches. The divergence was mainly on twin aspects: (i) Whether the facts contemplated by Section 27 are physical, material objects or the mental facts of which the accused giving the information could be said to be aware of. Some Judges have gone to the extent of holding that the discovery of concrete facts, that is to say material objects, which can be exhibited in the Court are alone covered by Section 27. (ii) The other controversy was on the point regarding the extent of admissibility of a disclosure statement. In some cases a view was taken that any information, which served to connect the object with the offence charged, was admissible under Section 27. The decision of the Privy Council in Kottaya case [AIR 1947 PC 67 : 48 Cri LJ 533 : 74 IA 65] which has been described as a locus classicus, had set at rest much of the controversy that centred round the interpretation of Section 27. To a great extent the legal position has got crystallised with the rendering of this decision. The authority of the Privy Council's decision has not been questioned in any of the decisions of the highest court either in the pre-or post-independence era. Right from the 1950s, till the advent of the new century and till date, the passages in this famous decision are being approvingly quoted and reiterated by the Judges of this Apex Court. Yet, there remain certain grey areas as demonstrated by the arguments advanced on behalf of the State.

121. The first requisite condition for utilising Section 27 in support of the prosecution case is that the investigating police officer should depose that he discovered a fact in consequence of the information received from an accused person in police custody. Thus, there must be a discovery of fact not within the knowledge of police officer as a consequence of information received. Of course, it is axiomatic that the information or disclosure should be free from any element of compulsion. The next component of Section 27 relates to the nature and extent of information that can be proved. It is only so much of the information as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered that can be proved and nothing more. It is explicitly clarified in the section that there is no taboo against receiving such information in evidence merely because it amounts to a confession. At the same time, the last clause makes it clear that it is not the confessional part that is admissible but it is only such information or part of it, which relates distinctly to the fact discovered by means of the information furnished. Thus, the information conveyed in the statement to the police ought to be dissected if necessary so as to admit only the information of the nature mentioned in the section. The rationale behind this provision is that, if a fact is actually discovered in consequence of the information supplied, it affords some guarantee that the information is true and can therefore be safely allowed to be admitted in evidence as an incriminating factor against the accused. As pointed out by the Privy Council in Kottaya case [AIR 1947 PC 67 : 48 Cri LJ 533 : 74 IA 65] : (AIR p. 70, para 10)

"clearly the extent of the information admissible must depend on the exact nature of the fact discovered" and the information must distinctly relate to that fact.

Elucidating the scope of this section, the Privy Council speaking through Sir John Beaumont said: (AIR p. 70, para 10)

"Normally the section is brought into operation when a person in police custody produces from some place of concealment some object, such as a dead body, a weapon, or ornaments, said to be connected with the crime of which the informant is accused."

We have emphasised the word "normally" because the illustrations given by the learned Judge are not exhaustive. The next point to be noted is that the Privy Council rejected the argument of the counsel appearing for the Crown that the fact discovered is the physical object produced and that any and every information which relates distinctly to that object can be proved. Upon this view, the information given by a person that the weapon produced is the one used by him in the commission of the murder will be admissible in its entirety. Such contention of the Crown's counsel was emphatically rejected with the following words: (AIR p. 70, para 10)

"If this be the effect of Section 27, little substance would remain in the ban imposed by the two preceding sections on confessions made to the police, or by persons in police custody. That ban was presumably inspired by the fear of the legislature that a person under police influence might be induced to confess by the exercise of undue pressure. But if all that is required to lift the ban be the inclusion in the confession of information relating to an object subsequently produced, it seems reasonable to suppose that the persuasive powers of the police will prove equal to the occasion, and that in practice the ban will lose its effect."

Then, Their Lordships proceeded to give a lucid exposition of the expression "fact discovered" in the following passage, which is quoted time and again by this Court: (AIR p. 70, para 10)

"In Their Lordships' view it is fallacious to treat the 'fact discovered' within the section as equivalent to the object produced; the fact discovered embraces the place from which the object is produced and the knowledge of the accused as to this, and the information given must relate distinctly to this fact. Information as to past user, or the past history, of the object produced is not related to its discovery in the setting in which it is discovered. Information supplied by a person in custody that 'I will produce a knife concealed in the roof of my house' does not lead to the discovery of a knife; knives were discovered many years ago. It leads to the discovery of the fact that a knife is concealed in the house of the informant to his knowledge, and if the knife is proved to have been used in the commission of the offence, the fact discovered is very relevant. But if to the statement the words be added 'with which I stabbed A' these words are inadmissible since they do not relate to the discovery of the knife in the house of the informant."

55. The Apex Court in a recent judgement in Ramanand @ Nandlal

Bharti (Supra) in paragraphs 52 and 53 has held as under:

"52.Section 27 of the Evidence Act, 1872 reads thus:

27. How much of information received from accused may be proved.- Provided that, when any fact is deposed to as discovered in consequence of information received from a person accused of any offence, in the custody of a police officer, so much of such information, whether it amounts to a confession or not, as relates distinctly to the fact thereby discovered, may be proved."

53. If, it is say of the investigating officer that the accused appellant while in custody on his own free will and volition made a statement that he would lead to the place where he had hidden the weapon of offence along with his blood stained clothes then the first thing that the investigating officer should have done was to call for two independent witnesses at the police station itself. Once the two independent witnesses arrive at the police station thereafter in their presence the accused should be asked to make an appropriate statement as he may desire in regard to pointing out the place where he is said to have hidden the weapon of offence. When the accused while in custody makes such statement before the two independent witnesses (panch witnesses) the exact statement or rather the exact words uttered by the accused should be incorporated in the first part of the panchnama that the investigating officer may draw in accordance with law. This first part of the panchnama for the purpose of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is always drawn at the police station in the presence of the independent witnesses so as to lend credence that a particular statement was made by the accused expressing his willingness on his own free will and volition to point out the place where the weapon of offence or any other article used in the commission of the offence had been hidden. Once the first part of the panchnama is completed thereafter the police party along with the accused and the two independent witnesses (panch witnesses) would proceed to the particular place as may be led by the accused. If from that particular place anything like the weapon of offence or blood stained clothes or any other article is discovered then that part of the entire process would form the second part of the panchnama. This is how the law expects the investigating officer to draw the discovery panchnama as contemplated under Section 27 of the Evidence Act. If we read the entire oral evidence of the investigating officer then it is clear that the same is deficient in all the aforesaid relevant aspects of the matter."

56. In Subramanya (Supra) the Apex Court has reaffirmed the observation made by the Apex Court in Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra) and has observed as under:

"77. The first and the basic infirmity in the evidence of all the aforesaid prosecution witnesses is that none of them have deposed the exact statement said to have been made by the appellant herein which ultimately led to the discovery of a fact relevant under Section 27 of the Evidence Act.

78.If, it is say of the investigating officer that the accused appellant while in custody on his own free will and volition made a statement that he would lead to the place where he had hidden the weapon of offence, the site of burial of the dead body, clothes etc., then the first thing that the investigating officer should have done was to call for two independent witnesses at the police station itself. Once the two independent witnesses would arrive at the police station thereafter in their presence the accused should be asked to make an appropriate statement as he may desire in regard to pointing out the place where he is said to have hidden the weapon of offence etc. When the accused while in custody makes such statement before the two independent witnesses (panch-witnesses) the exact statement or rather the exact words uttered by the accused should be incorporated in the first part of the panchnama that the investigating officer may draw in accordance with law. This first part of the panchnama for the purpose of Section 27 of the Evidence Act is always drawn at the police station in the presence of the independent witnesses so as to lend credence that a particular statement was made by the accused expressing his willingness on his own free will and volition to point out the place where the weapon of offence or any other article used in the commission of the offence had been hidden. Once the first part of the panchnama is completed thereafter the police party along with the accused and the two independent witnesses (panch-witnesses) would proceed to the particular place as may be led by the accused. If from that particular place anything like the weapon of offence or blood stained clothes or any other article is discovered then that part of the entire process would form the second part of the panchnama. This is how the law expects the investigating officer to draw the discovery panchnama as contemplated under Section 27 of the Evidence Act. If we read the entire oral evidence of the investigating officer then it is clear that the same is deficient in all the aforesaid relevant aspects of the matter."

57. Thus from the aforesaid observations as made in the recent judgements in Subramanya (supra) and Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra) the law has been settled that once the accused who is in custody of the police shows his willingness to make disclosure statement and recovery of the weapons used in the crime, the primary duty of the Investigating Officer is that he should call two independent witnesses at the police station itself and once the two independent witnesses arrive at the police station thereafter in their presence the disclosure statements of the accused has to be recorded and thereupon on the basis of disclosure statement the police authority has to proceed for recovery of the weapons at the indication of the accused persons. Two independent witnesses are required to be brought in to establish the recovery of such weapons and such disclosure statement would be beyond reasonable doubt. If the aforesaid procedure is not followed during recording of disclosure statement as well as during the recovery of weapons such recovery of weapon cannot be relied upon for the conviction of the accused persons solely on the basis of said recovery.

58. In view of the aforesaid settled position of law, if we analyse the evidence available on record as has been alleged in the instant case the accused Kaleem and Shakeel the appellants herein were arrested on the basis of extra judicial confession which is not established in the case and thereupon in the police custody it is alleged that they made the confessional/disclosure statements and on their indication the weapons of crime were recovered.

However in the entire process the Investigating Officer has utterly failed to involve the independent witnesses which is a mandate of law as observed by the Apex Court in Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra) and in the entire process no disclosure statement was ever recorded and only on the basis of alleged disclosure statement, the recovery of the weapons had been made without any independent witnesses. Such recovery cannot be said to be a valid recovery for the purpose of conviction of the appellants herein and on the basis of such recovery they cannot be convicted.

59. Thus from the aforesaid analysis it is crystal clear that the prosecution has miserably failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellants. They have failed to prove the motive and also the Extra judicial confession. The prosecution also failed to establish if any witness had "last seen" the appellants with the deceased prior to the incident. The alleged recovery of weapons at the indication of the accused persons for want of independent witness, as has been observed by the Apex Court in Ramanand @ Nandlal Bharti (supra) and Subramanya (supra), also becomes irrelevant. In the considered opinion of the court, therefore, the findings recorded by the trial court are manifestly erroneous and are not sustainable in the light of the aforesaid discussions. Thus in the considered opinion of the Court, since the prosecution has failed to prove its case against the appellants beyond reasonable doubt, therefore, they are entitled for benefit of doubt and they deserve to be acquitted from all the charges levelled against them.

60. For the aforesaid reasons both the appeals are allowed and both the appellants are acquitted of the charges levelled against them in the aforesaid sessions trials. The capital reference made by the trial court for confirmation of death sentence is also rejected. The appellants Mohd. Shakeel and Mohd. Kaleem are in jail. They shall be set at liberty forthwith unless wanted in any other case, subject to furnishing the bonds for their appearance before the Supreme Court in compliance of Section 437A Cr.P.C. in the event any appeal is preferred against this judgement.

61. Office is directed to send a copy of this judgement to the trial court within a week for compliance and the lower court's record be remitted back to the court concerned within the same period of time.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION

BEFORE

THE HON'BLE RAJIV GUPTA, J.
THE HON'BLE MOHD. AZHAR HUSAIN IDRISI, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 79 of 2005

Rajendra Prasad ...Appellant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri S.S. Singh, Sri Chetan Chatterjee

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A.

(A) Criminal Law - Classic case of blind faith and unfortunate realities - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Section 302 - Murder - Homicide – Human/Child Sacrifice - exorcism – Test Identification Parade (TIP) - Social Evil - rustic witness - evidence of a rustic witness should be appreciated as a whole - If the evidence has a ring of truth, the discrepancies, inconsistencies and infirmities cannot be a ground for rejecting the evidence - Non-holding of a test identification parade does not adversely affect the prosecution's case. (Para - 59)

Appellant was accused of murdering an infant child (one-year-old child) - broad daylight at a religious fair - where exorcism was practiced - Appellant allegedly used a knife to stab the child multiple times - leading to death - Eyewitnesses, including the child's family, witnessed the attack. (Para - 2 to 12)

HELD: - Prosecution proved the guilt of the accused-appellant beyond reasonable doubt. Testimony of four eyewitnesses was reliable and credible. Conviction and sentence against the accused-appellant confirmed. Appellant was directed to serve out sentence imposed by trial court.(Para – 59,63,64)

Appeal dismissed. (E-7)

1. Kishore & ors. Vs St. of Punj., Criminal Appeal No.1465 of 2011

1. Heard Shri Chetan Chatterjee, learned counsel for the appellant, Shri Jitendra Kumar Jaiswal, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. The instant criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 12.08.2004 passed by Additional District and Sessions Judge (F.T.C.), Sonbhadra in Sessions Trial No.54 of 2003, arising out of Case Crime No.101 of 2003, under Sections 302 IPC, Police Station Babhani, District Sonbhadra, whereby the appellant has convicted for the offence under Sections 302 IPC and awarded the sentence of life imprisonment with a fine of Rs.5,000/- with default stipulation.

3. Shorn of unnecessary details, the prosecution story is that in front of the house of one Ramadhar Dubey, there is a 'Bramh Baba Sthan', where every year during Navratra a fair is held, in which, exorcism is practiced and 'Bhabooti' is given to the victims by the priest. On 10.04.2003, the first informant Amerika Prasad along with his wife Gangotri, daughter Kusum, son-in-law Ram Dular and his infant child aged about 11 months Rameshwar, had reached in the fair for treatment of his wife through practice of exorcism, as his wife was suffering from mental sickness. It is further stated that on 12.04.2003, at about 10:00 a.m., he along with his wife and other family members were having their meals at a distance of 10-15 paces from 'Bramh Sthan' and his infant child Rameshwar, aged about one year, was playing there. A large crowd had assembled there. Out of the said crowd, a person aged about 26-27 years wearing vest and underwear, having a knife in his hand came and picked up his fondling child and after moving 10 paces ahead kept the child on the ground and started stabbing him with a knife. The first informant along with his son-in-law and other family members, in order to rescue his child, tried to apprehend him, however, the appellant made his escape good. It is further alleged that he immediately rushed to provide medical treatment to the infant child, however, on the way, the infant child breathed his last. Many people present in the fair, at the scene of occurrence, had informed him that in order to offer 'human sacrifice' his child has been killed. He has brought the corpse of the child, which is kept in front of the road. The first informant reached in the police station and gave a written scribe (Tahrir) to the Head Moharrir to lodge the report.

4. On the basis of a written report, marked as Ext. Ka-1, the FIR has been registered vide Case Crime No. 101 of 2003 under Section 302 IPC. Carbon copy whereof has been drawn vide G.D. Report No. 16 at 1430 hours, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-4. The investigation of the said case was entrusted to the Investigating Officer (P.W.-7), who copied out the G.D. report and the chik FIR in the case diary and set out to visit the place of incident, however, outside the gate of the police station, the parents of the deceased child met him alongwith the corpse of the child.

5. The Investigating Officer thereafter, conducted inquest on the person of the deceased and prepared the inquest memo in his own hand-writing and at the same time prepared the other relevant documents namely Form 13, photo-nash, challan-nash, letter to C.M.O., letter to R.I., sample seal and thereafter sent the body of the deceased child to the mortuary for post-mortem.

6. An autopsy was conducted on the person of the deceased Rameshwar in Community Health Centre, Duddhi on 13.04.2003 and in the post-mortem report, the Doctor has noted as many as four ante-mortem injuries, as under:

(i) Clean cut punctured wound 0.8 cm x 0.6 cm over temporal region of head 1 cm above Rt. Ear depth 2 cm brain matter coming out.

(ii) Clean cut smooth margin punctured wound 0.8 cm x 0.4 cm over neck Rt just below Rt ear depth 2.5 cm. Bleeding present.

(iii) Clean cut smooth margin punctured wound Rt. shoulder 0.8 cm x 0.6 x 1 cm deep.

(iv) Clean cut punctured would 0.8 cm x 0.6 cm Neck 1 cm below chin depth 1.5 cm.

7. On internal examination, membranes are clean cut and brain has been found lacerated coming out of wound. The cause of death has been noted to be coma due to penetrating injury in brain.

8. After conducting the inquest by P.W.-7, the investigation of the instant case was handed over to P.W.-8 S.I. Keshav Ram on 12.04.2003 itself, who is said to have reached the place of incident and recorded the statement of the first informant and collected the blood stained earth and plain earth from the place of incident and kept it in a container and prepared its recovery memo, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-12. The site plan was also prepared, which has been marked as Ext. Ka-11. Thereafter the Investigating Officer recorded the statement of Ramadhar Dubey, Rajesh Kumar Dubey, Ram Naresh Harijan, Gangotri Devi, mother of the deceased, Kusum, sister of the deceased and Ram Dular, brother-in-law of the deceased.

9. On 14.04.2003, on the basis of the information given by the informer, the appellant was arrested from village Chamanpur, who was identified by the first informant to have killed his son by a knife. On his arrest, the appellant disclosed his name to be Rajendra Prasad Gaur, resident of Police Station Basantpur, District Ambikapur, Chhatisgarh, who confessed to have killed the infant child by a knife, which he had thrown in the khalihan of the priest and could get it recovered.

10. After effecting the arrest of the appellant, an arrest memo was prepared by the Investigating Officer and proved it as Ext. Ka-2, who also prepared a site plan of the place from where the appellant was arrested, which is marked as Ext. Ka-13 and thereafter the appellant was taken to the place, where he stated to have thrown the knife by which he killed the deceased and on his pointing, a knife was recovered from the khalihan of Ramadhar Dubey. The I.O. Prepared the recovery memo of the knife, which has been marked as Ext. Ka-14 and also prepared a site-plan of the place from where the knife was recovered, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-15.

11. Thereafter, the Investigating Officer has recorded the statements of several other relevant witnesses and concluded the investigation by submitting the charge-sheet in the court of learned Magistrate against the appellant on 23.06.2003 vide Charge-sheet No. 11 of 2003, under Section 302 IPC, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-16.

12. On the basis of the said charge-sheet, learned Magistrate had taken cognizance of the case. Since the case was exclusively triable by court of Sessions, made over it to the court of Sessions for trial. The Sessions court vide its order dated 26.07.2003 framed the charge under Section 302 IPC simplicitor against the appellant, who abjured the said charge and claimed to be tried.

13. During the course of trial, the prosecution has examined as many as four witnesses of fact and four other formal witnesses. Their testimony in brief is enumerated hereunder.

14. P.W. 1 Amerika is the father of the deceased and the first informant and in his testimony he has stated that in village Needhra Tola Mujhariya, in front of the house of Ramadhar, there is a 'Bramh Sthan' and on the occasion of 'Navratra' and 'Dusshera', a fair is held there. Ramadhar Dubey used to practice exorcism there and distribute 'Bhabhooti'. About nine months back, he had gone in the said fair along with his wife Gangotri, son-in-law Ram Dular, daugther Kusum and infant child Rameshwar for the treatment of his wife through practice of exorcism.

15. On the day of incident, he was sitting near the 'Bramh Sthan' and taking his meals along with his wife, son-in-law, daughter and infant child, when Rajendra Prasad, present in the court, came and picked up the child and took him about 15 paces away and after throwing him forcibly on the ground assaulted him with a knife. When his family members tried to rescue him, he started threatening them. Due to fear, they could not apprehend the appellant or go near the child and the appellant ran away.

16. Thereafter, they picked up the child and rushed for providing him the medical treatment, however, on the way, the child succumbed to his injuries. The said incident is said to have been witnessed by he himself, his wife Gangotri, daughter Kusum and son-in-law Ram Dular, who is resident of Chhatisgarh. On the way, P.W. 1 got the written report (Ext. Ka-1) scribed by an unknown person, who read out the same to him, who then affixed his thumb impression on it and thereafter handed it over in the police station, on the basis of which FIR has been registered, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-3.

17. While going to the police station, he had also carried the corpse of the child. The Investigating Officer had interrogated him at the police station and recorded his statement. On the third day, the Investigating Officer on identification made by the first informant had arrested the accused and prepared the arrest memo, which is proved and marked as Ext. Ka-2.

18. During cross-examination, he stated that he has been attending the said fair for the last three years during 'Chaitra Navratra' and earlier there had been no dispute between him and appellant Rajendra. At the time of incident, he along with his family members were taking his meals and his child was with his mother, who was feeding him from where he was picked up by the appellant and thereafter assaulted by a knife in the presence of 100-200 persons.

19. He further reiterated that, on the way to the police station, the written report of the incident was scribed, which was read out to him, who affixed his thumb impression and gave it in the police station, on the basis of which, chik FIR was drawn. At the time of incident, he was not aware of the name of the appellant, however, his name was disclosed by the residents of Jhumariya. He denied the suggestion that he was not eye-witness to the incident and falsely deposing in the case on hearsay. He further denied the suggestion that the FIR was scribed at the police station itself.

20. P.W. 2 Ramadhar Dubey is another eye-witness of the incident and is the resident of 'Bramh Sthan' where, along with 'Bramh Sthan', a Durga temple is situate and a pucca chabutra is constructed under Pipal tree. People suffering from evil spirits also visit the said place. About nine months back, on the eve of 'Navratra' people from various corners had reached there and on that day, Amerika (first informant) along with his wife, son-in-law and infant child had also reached there.

21. He further stated that the wife of Amerika was mentally sick, however, had recovered and as such, she had reached there to offer prayers. At about 10:00 a.m., Amerika along with his wife, son-in-law and daughter were taking meals and his infant child was playing, when the appellant Rajendra reached there and picked up a knife used for peeling coconut and thereafter went near the child and after picking him up walked 10-15 paces further and then threw the child on the ground and assaulted him with the knife and tried to run away. Some people tried to apprehend him, however, they were threatened. He further categorically stated that he had seen Rajendra assaulting the child by a knife, who thereafter while being taken to the hospital, succumbed to his injuries.

22. During cross-examination, he stated that wife of Amerika was suffering from evil spirits and used to visit the 'Bramh Sthan'. He further stated that the Investigating Officer immediately after the incident recorded his statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. At the time of incident, number of persons were present there and the child was playing with her mother and he had seen Rajendra assaulting the victim by knife and that the place of incident is 25 meters away from the 'Bramh Sthan'.

23. He further denied the suggestion that the incident had not taken place in his presence. He has further denied the suggestion that at the 'Bramh Sthan', sacrifices are offered and further denied the suggestion that he is falsely deposing in the court.

24. P.W. 3 Gangotri is the wife of the first informant and mother of the deceased and stated that in the 'Chaitra Navratra', two days prior to the incident, she had reached the 'Bramh Sthan' for offering prayer and at about 10:30 a.m. in the morning, she along with her husband, son-in-law, daughter and infant child were taking their meals, when the incident took place and has identified the witness in the court. On objection being raised by the counsel for the appellant, the witness went near the accused-appellant and by pulling his clothes, had correctly identified him.

25. She further stated that the appellant, on the day of incident, had taken away her child and after throwing him on the ground assaulted him with a knife and when her husband, son-in-law and daughter tried to rescue him, he threatened them and ran away. His son thereafter, while being taken to the Babhani hospital succumbed to his injuries. She further stated that they had no enmity with the appellant and she is an eye-witness of the incident.

26. During cross-examination, she stated that at the time of incident, large number of persons were present there in the fair. At the time, when the appellant picked up her child, he was not having a knife in his hand. Prior to the incident, there has never been any quarrel or altercation between them. Rajendra, on the day of incident, came and picked up her child but did not hurl abuses, however, she showed her ignorance as to how such statement has been recorded by the Investigating Officer.

27. She further categorically stated that she was not acquainted with the appellant at the time of incident and his name was disclosed by the priest. She further stated that she had no knowledge where the written report was scribed. She further stated that the appellant Rajendra Prasad gave 4-5 blows by knife to her child. She further denied the suggestion that on account of earlier enmity, she is falsely deposing in the court.

28. P.W.-4 Ram Dular is the another eye-witness and son-in-law of the first informant, who was present at the time of incident. He stated that about 11 months back, he along with his wife Kusum Kumari, father-in-law Amerika, mother-in-law Gangotri had visited 'Bramh Sthan' two days prior to the incident. On the day of incident, at about 10.30 a.m. he along with his wife, father-in-law Amerika, mother-in-law Gangotri and brother-in-law (infant child), were taking meals. He further stated that the infant child was playing, when Rajendra Prasad armed with a knife, used for peeling coconut, came and picked up the child and after taking him 10-15 paces away assaulted him with a knife by keeping him on the ground. When they tried to rescue the child, the appellant challenged them and ran away. Thereafter, while being taken to the Babhani hospital, the child succumbed to his injuries and his father-in-law lodged the FIR. He further identified the appellant in the court and stated that he assaulted Rameshwar with a knife.

29. During cross-examination, he stated that he was interrogated by the Investigating Officer, who recorded his statements. He further categorically stated that his brother-in-law Rameshwar was killed by a knife. The name and address of the appellant was not known to them but was later disclosed by the priest and his men. He further stated that at the time of picking the child, no abuses were hurled by the accused-appellant nor they were threatened.

30. He denied to have given any statement to the police that the appellant came there armed with knife and started hurling abuses in retaliation to the earlier incident during last 'Navratra', when he was abused by them. At the time of incident, large number of persons had assembled there. He further stated that the FIR was not scribed in his presence. He further stated that the police has truthfully recorded in his statement that on the way to the hospital, an unknown person met them and his father-in-law disclosed him the entire incident, who scribed the same on a piece of paper on which his father-in-law affixed his thumb impression and who asked him to deliver it at the police station Babhani.

31. He further stated that the assailant had given four-five blows to his brother-in-law by a knife and that he was arrested two-three days after the incident. He denied the suggestion that under the pressure of his father-in-law and mother-in-law, he is falsely deposing in the court.

32. P.W. 5 Kedar Yadav is the Head Moharrir, who had drawn the chik FIR (Ext.Ka-3), on the basis of written report given to him, proved and marked as Ext. Ka-1 and thereafter G.D. report was drawn by him, which is marked as Ext. Ka-4. During cross-examination, he categorically stated that the first informant got the written report scribed outside the police station and had reached there alone.

33. P.W. 6 Doctor U.P. Pandey is the Medical Officer at Community Health Centre, who had conducted autopsy on the person of the deceased and proved the autopsy report and contents thereof, which has been exhibited as Ext. Ka-5.

34. During cross-examination, he stated that the victim may die instantaneously or within one hour of receiving the injuries. He further stated that the injuries could be caused by a pointed object. He denied that he has no knowledge of 'summi' and except the injuries noted by him in the post-mortem report, there were no other injuries.

35. P.W. 7 Ram Samujh Yadav is the Sub-Inspector in whose presence, the instant case was registered and who was entrusted with the investigation. He after copying the G.D. report and the chik FIR in the case diary proceeded to the place of incident, however, the first informant along with the corpse had reached at the gate of police station, as such, he conducted the inquest at the gate of the police station itself and drawn the inquest memo along with other relevant documents namely challan-nash, photo-nash, letter to R.I., letter to C.M.O. and sample seal and wrapped the dead body in a sealed cloth, which was sent for autopsy. The inquest report and other relevant documents have been proved and marked as Ext. Ka 6 to Ka-10.

36. During cross-examination, he has stated that the inquest was conducted by the side of the road outside the gate of the police station in presence of his parents and number of other persons.

37. P.W. 8 Keshav Ram is the second Investigating Officer of the instant case, who was later entrusted with the investigation of the case. He after recording the statement of the first informant under Section 161 Cr.P.C. reached the place of incident and had collected the blood stained earth and plain earth from the place of incident and prepared its recovery memo, which is proved and marked as Ext. Ka-12. He further prepared the site plan, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-11.

38. Witnesses were also interrogated by the IInd Investigating Officer at the place of incident and an attempt was made to arrest the accused person. Further on 14.04.2003, at the pointing out of the first informant and the other witnesses, the appellant was arrested and his arrest memo was prepared, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-2 and the site plan, from where the arrest was made, was also prepared, which has been proved and marked as Ext. Ka-13.

39. After the arrest, on the disclosure made by the appellant, he was taken to the place of incident and from the 'khalihan' of Ramadhar Dubey, got recovered the knife (summi), the recovery memo of which was also drawn and proved as Ext. Ka-14 and its site plan was also prepared, which has been marked as Ext. Ka-15. The material exhibits were also produced before the court along with blood stained black 'tabeez' and knife on which human blood was found as per the forensic report, which has been proved as material Exts. Ka-3 and Ka-4.

40. During cross-examination, on being questioned as to whether the material Ext. Ka-4 is, in fact, a knife or a 'summi', he stated that it is both 'summi' as well as a knife, which is used for peeling coconut. He further stated that the witnesses in their statements recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. had disclosed him that on the last 'Navratra', there had been some altercation between first informant and Rajendra Prasad and in that background to settle the score personally, the instant incident had occurred.

41. He further stated that after two days of the incident, the assailant was arrested and on his disclosure, the weapon of assault was recovered and further stated that all the witnesses in their testimony had disclosed to him that prior to the incident, the accused person hurled abuses and threatened them. He further stated that the first informant in his statement had disclosed that on the way to the police station, he got the FIR scribed by an unknown person and then reached in the police station and lodged the FIR.

42. He denied the suggestion that he falsely got the FIR registered against an innocent person and further denied the suggestion that on the basis of suspicion, the priest was taken at the police station. He further denied the suggestion that the appellant was arrested from his house and a conspiracy to falsely implicate him was made against the accused.

43. Thereafter, the statement of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has been recorded by putting all the incriminating circumstances to the appellant. The appellant denied all the incriminating circumstances and stated that he was not on inimical terms with the first informant, however, the defence has not led any evidence to prove its case.

44. The trial court after appreciating the evidence on record has held that the prosecution has successfully established its case against the appellant by relying upon the testimony of all the prosecution witnesses, whose presence at the place and time of the incident has been cogently and clearly established and who being the parents, sister and brother-in-law of the deceased are natural witnesses. The explanation tendered by the appellant is false and inadequate.

45. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the incident in question has not taken place in the manner as alleged by the prosecution and some unknown person killed the deceased and the appellant has been falsely implicated by creating eye-witness account of the incident in the form of statements of P.W. 1, P.W. 3 and P.W. 4, who are close relatives of the deceased being his father, mother and brother-in-law respectively and are highly interested and parisan witnesses, therefore, their testimony is liable to be discarded.

46. Learned counsel for the appellant has next submitted that the recovery shown to be made at the pointing out of the appellant is a pointed weapon 'summi' and not a knife and therefore, the injuries found on the person of the deceased cannot be said to be caused by the said 'summi' which further creates serious dent in the prosecution story.

47. Learned counsel for the appellant has next submitted that the appellant was not known to the accused and subsequently he has been falsely implicated on the instigation of other witnesses.

48. Learned counsel for the appellant has further submitted that the recovery of knife has not been proved and it is stated to be recovered from an open place, which is unacceptable to all.

49. Learned counsel for the appellant has next submitted that in the FIR, the appellant has not been named and he has not been put to test identification parade, which makes the prosecution story further doubtful.

50. Learned counsel for the appellant has next submitted that the prosecution has not been able to prove its case against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt and as such, he is liable to be acquitted by setting aside the order of conviction and sentence recorded by the trial court, which is bad in law.

51. Per contra, learned AGA has submitted that in the instant case, a prompt FIR has been lodged by the father of the deceased and it is a broad day light murder of an infant child aged about one year in presence of his parents, sister and brother-in-law, whose presence at the time and place of incident is quite natural and entire prosecution story cannot be thrown over-board merely on the ground that the witnesses are interested and partisan.

52. Learned AGA has further submitted that P.W. 2 is an independent witness, resident of the place of incident and is acquainted with both the accused as well as the first informant, who categorically in his statement has stated that he had seen the appellant assaulting one year old child of the first informant by a knife and thereafter escaping from the place of incident and has truthfully deposed in the court, which lends corroboration to the prosecution story and inspires confidence. He has further submitted that each of the eye-witnesses i.e. P.W. 1, P.W.3 and P.W. 4 has correctly identified the appellant in the court and there remains no doubt about his identity.

53. Learned AGA has further submitted that the identity of the appellant had also been disclosed by the priest, who was well acquainted with the appellant, therefore, there was no question of holding the test identification parade for identifying the appellant.

54. Learned AGA has further submitted that the eye-witnesses have cogently and unerringly proved the participation of the appellant in the instant case and the defence has not been able to elicit any doubt about the credibility of the said witnesses.

55. Having considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and having gone through the material on record and the evidence adduced, it is evident that the incident is said to have taken place in the broad day light in presence of parents, sister and brother-in-law of the deceased, who was an infant child aged about one year by assaulting him with a knife. The FIR, admittedly, has been promptly lodged in the police station and the manner and place of incident has been cogently and unerringly established by the prosecution. Though the factum of enmity has been pleaded by the appellant in his statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. but no evidence in this respect has been led. The nature of injury as pointed out by the Doctor in the post-mortem report clearly indicates that it could have been caused by the knife or a 'summi', a pointed object alike a knife.

56. The identity of the appellant had already been disclosed by the witnesses and therefore, there was no question of holding the test identification parade of the appellant for determining his identity as pleaded by the counsel for the appellant.

57. It is germane to point out here that the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kishore & others Vs. State of Punjab, Criminal Appeal No.1465 of 2011 dated 07.02.2024 has held as under:-

8. It is true that a test identification parade is not mandatory. The test identification parade is a part of the investigation. It is useful when the eyewitnesses do not know the accused before the incident. The test identification parade is usually conducted immediately after the arrest of the accused. Perhaps, if the test identification parade is properly conducted and is proved, it gives credence of the identification of the accused by the concerned eyewitnesses before the Court. The effect of the prosecution's failure to conduct a test identification parade will depend on the facts of each case.

9. In this case, the evidence of both eyewitnesses was recorded within one year of the date of the incident. There is no significant time gap between the date of the incident and the identification by the witnesses before the Court. If the evidence of these two witnesses is reliable and inspires confidence, the conviction can be based on their testimonies.

58. Even in the instant case, at the time of arrest, the appellant has been identified by the first informant. The appellant was well-known to P.W. 2, who had disclosed his identity to the witnesses and even in the court, he has been correctly identified by each of the witnesses, as such, non-holding of test identification parade in the instant case, as submitted by the counsel for the appellant, would not adversely affect the prosecution case.

59. The testimony of all the four eye-witnesses, except minor contradictions, do not suffer from any shortcomings to doubt their credibility. Their presence at the scene of incident is quite natural and being a broad day light incident has been witnessed by them. It is well settled principle of law that, if the evidence has a ring of truth, the discrepancies, inconsistencies and infirmities cannot be a ground for rejecting the evidence. Moreover, it is important to note that in the present case, all the eye-witnesses P.W.1, P.W.3 and P.W.4 are rustic witnesses.

60. The basic principle of appreciation of evidence of a rustic witness who is not educated and comes from a poor strata of society is that the evidence of such a witness should be appreciated as a whole. The rustic witness as compared to an educated witness is not expected to remember every small detail of the incident and the manner in which the incident had happened more particularly when his evidence is recorded after a lapse of time. Further, a witness is bound to face shock of the untimely death of his near relative(s). Therefore, the court must keep in mind all these relevant factors while appreciating evidence of a rustic witness.

61. It is further germane to point out here that looking to the testimony of P.W.1, P.W.3 and P.W.4, they are the eye-witnesses, present at the time and place of incident and there is no reason for them to spare the actual assailant and falsely implicate the appellant in the instant case.

62. Moreover, the instant case is a classic case of blind faith and unfortunate realities of our times still prevalent in remote areas. Human/child sacrifice has been practiced on a number of different occasions and in many different cultures. Human/child sacrifice is typically intended to bring good fortune and to appease the Gods, which in our opinion, shocks the conscience of the civilized society and is to be condemned by one and all, to curb such social evils.

63. Considering the entire aspect of the matter and taking a holistic view of the circumstances in which the present offence has been committed, we are of the view that the judgment and order passed by the trial court is well considered and discussed and the trial court has rightly held that the prosecution has succeeded to prove the guilt of the accused-appellant beyond reasonable doubt, as such, the impugned judgment and order passed by the trial court is liable to be upheld and the appeal has no force and it is, accordingly, liable to dismissed.

64. Accordingly, the present criminal appeal is dismissed. The conviction and sentence against the accused-appellant vide impugned judgment and order dated 12.08.2004 is hereby confirmed. The appellant is in jail. He is directed to serve out the sentence imposed upon him by the trial court.

65. Let a copy of this order be forwarded to the trial court along with the record for information and compliance.

Criminal Appeal No. 437 of 2017

Radhey Jaiswal & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
State of U.P. ...Respondent

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri Raj Kishore Yadav, Sri Raj Kishore Yadav

Counsel for the Respondent:

(A) Criminal Law - Appeal against conviction - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 302, 498-A, 304-B, 323, 506, The Dowry prohibition Act, 1961- Section 3/4, Indian Evidence Act, 1872 – Section 32(1) - dying declaration - Mental Fitness vs. Consciousness - Separate Residence - Hostile Witness - Corroborative Evidence - The Code of criminal procedure, 1973 - Section 313 - Power to examine the accused - Recording of statement under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. is not an empty formality during trial - Dying declaration could only be relied upon if the deceased was mentally fit and conscious at the time of making it.(Para - 72,75)

Accused – appellant (Sasur i.e. Father-in-law) and co-accused were convicted - for the alleged murder of appellant's daughter-in-law - setting her ablaze for dowry demands - incident took place at appellant's daughter-in-law residence - reportedly in her separate home from the accused - Several witnesses, including family members, turned hostile - case largely relied on two recorded dying declarations - questioning appellant's daughter-in-law mental fitness at the time of her statements - Medical reports indicated severe burns - court found discrepancies in the thumb impressions on the declarations due to her injuries.(Para - 1 to 49)

HELD: - Court recorded statement under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. but omitted to put questions regarding a vital circumstance to accused during his statement. Insufficient credible evidence to satisfy the judicial mind that the deceased was conscious and mentally fit at the time of giving her statement. Prosecution failed to substantiate the charges against the appellants beyond a reasonable doubt through consistent, cogent, and reliable evidence. Without the dying declaration, the prosecution case lacks substance, entitling the appellants to the benefit of doubt. Judgment and order of conviction quashed and is set aside. (Para -72,75)

(Delivered by Manish Kumar Nigam, J)

1. Criminal Appeal No. 437 of 2017 has been filed against the judgment and order of conviction dated 31.07.2014 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Maharajganj and the sentence awarded on 25.08.2014 in Sessions Trial No. 18 of 2013 (State Vs. Radhey Jaiswal) and Sessions Trial No. 101 of 2013 (State Vs. Virendra @ Santosh Jaiswal and 3 others), whereby the sessions court has convicted Radhey Jaiswal (accused-appellant) in Sessions Trial No. 18 of 2013 (State Vs. Radhey Jaiswal) for offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentenced him for life imprisonment and has ordered him to pay a fine of Rs. 10,000/- (in default of payment of the fine, he had to further suffer rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year). The accused-appellants, Munna Jaiswal, son of Radhey and Sita Devi, wife of Munna Jaiswal, were also convicted by the sessions court in Sessions Trial No. 101 of 2013 (State Vs. Virendra @ Santosh Jaiswal and 3 others) for the offence punishable under Section 302 I.P.C. and sentenced them for life imprisonment and has ordered them to pay a fine of Rs. 10,000/- (In case of default of the payment of fine, they had to further suffer rigorous imprisonment for a period of one year). All the appellants in Appeal No. 437 of 2015 have been acquitted by the trial court under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 506 I.P.C. and under Section ¾ Dowry Prohibition Act by the same judgment.

2. The factual matrix of the case is that the informant, namely, Chunni Devi, wife of late Pradeep Jaiswal submitted a written complaint (Ex.Ka-1) dated 03.09.2012 on which the first information report (Ex.Ka-8) was registered in Case Crime No. 1041 of 2012 under Sections 498-A, 323, 506, 307 I.P.C. read with Section 3/ 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act at P.S.- Ghughuli, District- Maharajganj against Virendra @ Santosh s/o Radey Jaiswal (husband), Munna s/o Radhey (Devar i.e. Brother-in-law), Kaushilya w/o Radhey (Saas i.e. Mother-in-law), Sita Devi (Devarani i.e. Sister-in-law) and Radhey Jaiwal (Sasur i.e. Father-in-law).

3. As per the first information report, the informant stated that her daughter Gudiya was married to Santosh s/o Radhey Jaiswal about six years back. It was further stated by the informant that her daughter used to come to her house and used to complain to the informant that Virendra @ Santosh used to torture her daughter for dowry. On 02.09.2012 at about 3:00 A.M. her daughter Gudiya was burnt. It was further stated by the informant that Virendra @ Santosh requested J.P. Jaiswal son of unknown on mobile to get her daughter eliminated and whatever money would be required, the same will be paid. On the instigation of J.P. Jaiswal, Munna s/o Radhey Jaiswal, Sita Devi, Kaushilya Devi and Radhey poured kerosene oil on her daughter while she was sleeping in her room and set her on fire. As she was burning and crying, people from the vicinity come and somehow the informant came to know about the incident and rushed to the District Hospital from where her daughter was referred to Gorakhpur Medical College and thereafter, admitted in A-1 Hospital, Mohaddipur.

4. The statement of the patient i.e. Gudiya was recorded on 02.09.2012 by the Naib Tehsildar at about 02:25 P.M. at Mohak Hospital Medical College, Gorakhpur (Ex. Ka-6/16) and thereafter once again the dying declaration of Gudiya was recorded on 08.09.2012 at about 07:15 P.M. by Naib Tehsildar, Sadar Gorakhpur which was marked as Ex. Ka-7.

5. After the first information report was lodged, the police investigated the crime and after collecting the evidence a charge-sheet dated 23.11.2012 was submitted against Radhey Jaiswal s/o Rangi Lal Jaiswal (Ex. Ka-11) under Sections 498-A, 323, 506, 302 I.P.C. A second charge-sheet dated 19.12.2013 was submitted by the Investigating Officer against Virendra @ Santosh Jaiswal s/o Radhey, Munna Jaiswal s/o Radhey, Smt. Kaushilya Devi w/o Radhey and Sita Devi w/o Munna Jaiswal (Ex. Ka-12) under Sections 498-A, 323, 506, 302 I.P.C. The learned Magistrate after taking cognizance and complying with the provisions of Sections 207 of Cr.P.C. committed the case for trial to the court of Sessions. On 26.02.2013 Radhey Jaiswal (accused-appellant) was charged under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 506 I.P.C and alternatively under Section 302 I.P.C. and Section 3 of Dowry Prohibition Act in Sessions Trial No. 18 of 2013 (State Vs. Radhey Jaiswal). Similarly on 15.07.2013 Virendra @ Santosh Jaiswal, Munna Jaiswal, Smt. Kaushilya and Sita Devi were charged under Sections 498-A, 304-B and 506 I.P.C and alternatively under Section 302 I.P.C. and Section 3 of the Dowry Prohibition Act in Sessions Trial No. 101 of 2013.

6. Since both the trials i.e. Sessions Trial No. 18 of 2013 (State Vs. Radhey Jaiswal) and Sessions Trial No. 101 of 2013 (State Vs. Virendra @ 3 others) under Sections 498-A, 304-B, 506 I.P.C and in alternative under Section 302 I.P.C. and Section 3 of the Dowry Prohibition Act arose from the same case crime number i.e. Case Crime No. 1041 of 2012, the cases were tried together and decided by a common judgment dated 25.08.2014 passed by Addl. Sessions Judge Court No. 4 Maharajganj. The Sessions Trial No. 18 of 2013 (State Vs. Radhey Jaiswal) was treated to be leading case and therefore, the statements of witnesses were recorded in S.T. No. 18 of 2013.

7. During the trial, statements of 18 persons were recorded by the prosecution, namely, Chunni Devi, (mother of the deceased) as P.W.-1, Dinesh (uncle of the deceased) as P.W.-2, Sonu Jaiswal (brother of the deceased) as P.W.-3, Dinesh Madhesia (independent witness) as P.W.-4, Prabhunath (independent witness) as P.W.-5, Dinnanath Madhesia (independent witness) as P.W.-6, Awadesh Jaiswal (independent witness) as P.W.-7, Rambriksha Rai (Sub-Inspector of Police Station- Gulhariya,, District- Gorakhpur) as P.W.-8, Santosh Kumar Rai (Tehsildar Sadar-Gorakhpur) as P.W.-9, Latawan Yadav (Constable) as P.W.-10, Jitendra Yadav (Sub-Inspector, Paniyara, Janpad-Maharajganj) as P.W.11, Ram Nayan Yadav (Station In-charge, P.S. Farenda, District-Maharajganj) as P.W.-12, Mohd. Shakeel (Medical Officer of Community Health Centre, Chauri Chaura) as P.W.-13, Dr. Bhanu Pratap Singh (Medical Officer District Hospital, Maharajganj) as P.W.-14, Shashank Shekhar Rai (Naib Tehsildar Khajni District- Gorakhpur) as P.W.-15, Dr. Chandra Dev (Emergency Medical Officer D.R.T. Medical Officer, Gorakhpur) as P.W.-16. Dr. Ashok Kumar Srivastava (Medical Superintendent, Nehru Hospital) as P.W.-17 and Ram Pyare Yadav (Head Constable) as P.W.-18, in support of prosecution case.

8. The statements of all the accused namely, Radhey Jaiswal, Virendra @ Santosh Jaiswal, Smt. Kaushilya w/o Radhey Jaiswal, Munna Jaiswal s/o Radhey Jaiswal and Sita Devi w/o Munna Jaiswal were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and on behalf of accused-appellants statement of Prabu Madhesia s/o Rajendra Pratap was recorded as D.W.-1.

9. The prosecution produced written complaint (Ex.-Ka-1), F.I.R. (Ex. Ka-8), dying declaration dated 08.09.2012 (Ex. Ka-7), statement of patient dated 02.09.2012 (Ex.Ka 6/16), bed head ticket dated 02.09.2012 (Ex. Ka-14), injury report dated 02.09.2012 (Ex. Ka-15), post-mortem report dated 10.09.2012 (Ex. Ka-13), panchayatnama dated 10.09.2012 (Ex. Ka-2), charge-sheet dated 23.11.2012 (Ex. Ka-11), charge-sheet dated 19.12.2013 (Ex. Ka-12) as documentary evidence during trial. After considering the entire evidence the learned Sessions Judge acquitted accused-appellants, namely, Radhey Jaiswal, Munna Jaiswal, Smt. Kaushilya, Sita Devi and accused Virendra @ Santosh under Sections 498-B, 304-B, 506 and Section 3 of Dowry Prohibition Act. Accused Virendra @ Santosh Jaiswal was also acquitted under Section 302 I.P.C. Accused/appellants, namely, Radhey Jaiswal, Munna Jaiswal, Smt. Kaushilya and Sita Devi were however convicted under Section 302 I.P.C. and were sentenced with life imprisonment and fine of Rs. 10,000/-. In case of default, they were to further undergo one year rigorous imprisonment.

10. Heard learned counsel for the accused-appellants , learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

11. Learned counsel for the accused-appellants vehemently assailed the order of conviction and made following submissions i.e:-

i. Accused-appellants are innocent and have not committed any offence as alleged by the prosecution.

ii. The order of conviction is passed on conjecture and surmises.

iii. All the prosecution witnesses of fact turned hostile and have not supported the prosecution case.

iv. The sessions court had held all the accused-appellants guilty under Section 302 I.P.C. only on the basis of the dying declaration (Ex. Ka-7) and the statement of Gudiya recorded on 02.09.2012 (Ex. Ka-6/16).

v. The trial court erred in relying upon the dying declaration as the same does not inspire confidence.

vi. As per the post-mortem report (Ex. Ka-13) deceased Gudiya sustained severe burn injuries and the deceased Gudiya was not in a position to give the dying declaration.

vii. The evidence of Santosh Kumar Rai, P.W.- 9, who recorded the dying declaration Ex. Ka-7 on 08.09.2012 and of Dr. Chandra Dev P.W. 16, who had given the fitness certificate for recording of the dying declaration do not inspire confidence. The evidence of P.W. 9 and P.W. 16 create a strong suspicion about the consciousness and mental fitness of the deceased, while the statement was being recorded.

viii. The deceased was living separately from the accused-appellants in a separate house where she was burnt at about 03:00 A.M. without there being any evidence of forced entry into the house by the accused-appellants, who were charged for committing the alleged crime.

ix. The statements of the children of the deceased, who were staying with the deceased on the fateful night were not taken and they were also not examined as witnesses by the prosecution and lastly, it was submitted by the learned counsel for the appellants that the appellants were not confronted with the dying declaration at the time of recording of their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and therefore, the same cannot be relied upon and has to be excluded from evidence.

12. Per contra, learned A.G.A. for the State refuted the submissions made by the learned counsel for the appellant and made the following submissions:-

i. Sessions court rightly relied upon the dying declaration of the deceased for convicting the accused as the witnesses of fact were won over by the defence.

ii. There is no impediment in convicting the accused only on the basis of dying declaration without there being any other corroborative evidence.

iii. From the evidence of P.W. 14 and P.W. 16 it is established that the deceased was physically and mentally fit while recording the dying declaration by P.W. 9 and P.W. 15 and they were independent witnesses and there is no suggestion by the defence as to why P.W. 9 and P.W. 15 would give false evidence against the accused-appellants.

iv. Not putting a question to the accused with regard to dying declaration (Ex. Ka-7) and Ex. Ka-6/16 during questioning the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. will not vitiate the trial and the accused had to establish the prejudice caused to them and it was lastly submitted by the A.G.A. that sessions court rightly passed the judgment convicting the accused-appellants after considering the entire evidence and the appeal has no merits and is liable to be dismissed.

13. With the help of both the counsels, learned counsel for the accused-appellants and the learned A.G.A. for the State, we have perused the record of the case from which it is clear that P.W. 1 Smt. Chunni Devi, who was mother of the deceased Gudiya had not supported the prosecution version and was declared hostile by the prosecution. P.W. 1 –Chunni Devi in her examination-in-chief stated that Gudiya was her daughter and she was married about six years back with Virendra @ Santosh. They gave all the Dan-Dahez, jewellery and other household items, which was agreed earlier but could not give the motor-cycle. Chunni Devi in her statement stated that Radhey Jaiswal, his wife and his sons Virendra @ Santosh, Munna and wife of Munna, used to torture her daughter Gudiya for motor-cycle and this was informed by Gudiya to her mother Chunni Devi on mobile phone. On the date of incident, her son-in-law Virendra @ Santosh was in Saudi Arabia and Virendra instructed on telephone to one J.P. Jaiswal that before he returns from Saudi, Gudiya be killed and whatever money will be required, he will pay the same. This was informed by her daughter as she heard J.P. Jaiswal talking to her son-in-law Virendra and informed her on phone. It was further stated that on the date of incident at about 8 to 9 P.M. her daughter informed her on phone that accused/appellants would kill her and then P.W. 1 stated to her daughter that she would come the next day but on the same night at around 3:00 P.M. her daughter Gudiya informed her on mobile phone that all the accused-appellants had burnt her after pouring kerosene oil on her body. When the next morning P.W. 1 reached the house of her daughter, she was informed on mobile phone that Radhey and her daughter were in Maharajganj Hospital and when she reached the hospital, she found her daughter to be fully burnt and was crying. Thereafter, she was taken to the medical college where she was admitted at about 10-11 A.M. After being admitted for two days in the medical college, she was shifted to a private hospital where she remained for four days and thereafter, she was again referred to medical college. The statement of Gudiya was recorded twice at the Medical college and her daughter was fully conscious while she was admitted in the medical college. After the condition of her daughter become stable Chunni Devi P.W.-1 got an application drafted by someone and after signing the same, gave it to the Police Station- Ghughuli and got the same registered. Gudiya died six days after the incident at the medical college. In her cross-examination, P.W.1 stated that she had not dictated the complaint but the same was transcribed by one child, which was not read over to her that what was written in that she did not know and she had put her signature over the same. When confronted with her statement in examination-in-chief, P.W. -1 stated that the (Ex. Ka-1) was never read over to her, she was unable to read the Ex. Ka-1 because she was not literate. In her cross-examination, P.W.1 stated that she had no personal knowledge of the torture of her daughter by the appellants and stated that the said fact was informed to her by certain persons residing nearby the house of her daughter. In her cross-examination, she further stated that Gudiya had no mobile phone, she never talked to her from her sasural (in-law's house). It was also stated by P.W. 1 in her statement that mother, father, brother and the brother's wife of her son-in-law Virendra resided separately in another house separate from her daughter's Gudiya. It was also stated that her daughter never told her about the talks between J.P. Jaiswal and her son-in-law and the said fact was narrated by the P.W.-1 in her examination-in-chief on the basis of information given on phone by certain persons of Ghughuli, whose names were not known to her. It was also denied by P.W.-1 that on the date of incident, no phone call was made by her daughter informing that the accused appellants would kill her. In cross-examination she further denied that on the fateful night at about 3 P.M. her daughter called P.W. 1 on mobile phone. She further stated that her daughter never informed how she was burned because after being burned she was unconscious and the doctor had administered sleeping pills as well as injections, therefore she could not inform anything about the incident. In her cross-examination, she stated that twice some Magistrate or Officer came to record the dying declaration of Gudiya but on both the occasions, her daughter could not give her statement because she was unconscious and on both the occasions Naib Tehsildar or Tehsildar had not recorded any statement of deceased Gudiya but had asked P.W.-1 regarding the incident and recorded the information given by her. It was further stated that her son-in-law Virendra @ Santosh was in Saudi Arabia on the date of incident and Munna Jaiswal his wife Sita Devi resided in a separate house and on the date of incident her daughter was all alone in her house.

14. P.W.-2 Dinesh in his statement stated that Gudiya was my Bhatiji, who died 10-11 months back but P.W.2 had not supported the prosecution version and was declared hostile. It was stated by P.W.-2 that Gudiya had two daughters, namely, Rani aged about six years and Neetu aged about four years. It was also stated by P.W.-2 in his cross-examination that about eight months prior to the date of incident Munna, Kaushilya, Sita Devi and Radhey had separated from Virendra and Gudiya and had started living separately in a house which was after two to three houses away from the house of Gudiya.

15. P.W.3- Sonu Jaiswal, the real brother of the deceased Gudiya had also not supported the prosecution story and was declared hostile. In his cross-examination, P.W.3 stated that his sister never informed him anything as she was unconscious and denied the suggestion that the deceased Gudiya told P.W. 3 as she was conscious that her in-laws along with J.P. Jaiswal had killed her. P.W. 3 in his cross-examination stated that the father, mother, brother and sister-in-law of his brother-in-law-Virendra were residing separately from Gudiya in another house and at the time of incident Gudiya was alone in her house. It was also stated by P.W. 3 that on 02.09.2012 and 08.09.2012 when Tehsildar and Magistrate came to record statement of Gudiya, she was unconscious on both the occasions and therefore, they recorded the statement of her mother Chunni Devi because Gudiya was not able to speak.

16. P.W.-4 Dinesh Madhesia, who was an independent witness had also not supported the prosecution version and was declared hostile. P.W.-4 had denied the suggestion in his cross-examination that Gudiya told her that Radhey Jaiswal, Munna Jaiswal and Kaushilya burnt her.

17. P.W.-5 Prabhunath, who was also one of the independent witnesses had also not supported the prosecution story and was declared hostile. In his examination-in-chief, P.W.-5 had stated that at about 04:00 A.M. Gudiya informed him on his mobile phone that somebody has burned her and when P.W.5 reached the house, he found that Gudiya was lying out of the house in Osara and no other person was present there. It was also stated that Radhey, Kaushilya were living separately in a different house, which was about 40 to 50 mts. away from the house of Virendra. It was also stated that Gudiya never informed P.W.5 that her in-laws burnt her or had ever tortured her for dowry. P.W.-5 in his statement had denied the suggestion by the prosecution that on the date of incident, the deceased was living along with her in-laws, brother-in-law or with the wife of her brother-in-law.

18. P.W.-6 Dinnanath Madhesia, who was also an independent witness had not supported the prosecution version and was declared hostile. It was stated by P.W.-6 that at about 04:00 A.M. in the morning, when he reached the house of Virendra, he found Gudiya in a burnt state and she never told him that she was burnt by her in-laws. P.W.-6 denied the suggestion that at the time of incident deceased Gudiya was residing with her in-laws in the same house and had also denied the suggestion that the deceased had informed the witness that her in-laws, Devar and Devrani had tried to burn her to death.

19. P.W.-7 Awadesh Jaiswal, who was also an independent witness examined by the prosecution, did not support the prosecution version and was declared hostile. In his cross-examination P.W.-7 has denied the suggestion that the deceased Gudiya informed her that her in-laws, Devar and Devrani have burnt her.

20. P.W.-8 Rambriksha Rai, Sub-Inspector proved the Panchayatnama.

21. P.W.-9 Santosh Kumar Rai, Tehsildar Sadar proved the dying declaration recorded by him on 08.09.2012 and stated that he recorded the dying declaration of the deceased at the Medical College, Gorakhpur. It was further stated that on 08.09.2012 at about 07:15 P.M., the doctor after seeing Gudiya had informed him that she was conscious and fit for recording the dying declaration and the said statement was endorsed by the doctor on the page on which the dying declaration was recorded on 08.09.2012 at about 07:15 P.M. It was also been stated by the P.W.-9 that from the appearance, deceased Gudiya was conscious and was in a position to get her statement recorded. It was stated by P.W. -9 that he had put questions to Gudiya to which she had replied and he had recorded the same. It was stated by P.W.-9 that the deceased "Gudiya" had stated that her husband reside in Saudi Arabia and had kept another women, she had two daughters and her husband, in–laws, nanad and devar did not want to keep her and wanted to throw her out from her sasural (in-law's house). It was stated by P.W.-9 that Gudiya informed that on 01.9.2012 / 02.09.2012 at about 02:00 A.M. she was sleeping in her room when her father-in-law-Radhey Jaiswal, mother-in-law-Kaushilya, devar-Munna, devrani–Sita Devi and nanad-Nirmala poured kerosene oil on her and set her on fire and after she shouted, the neighbours came. His father-in-law took her to the District Hospital, Maharajganj and after seeing the mother of the deceased and other relatives he ran away. The statement was read over to Gudiya and thereafter, her right thumb impression was taken over the statement. The statement of Gudiya was recorded at 07:15 P.M. which was completed by 07:30 P.M. It was also stated by P.W.-9 that before the statement of Gudiya was recorded the Emergency Medical Officer endorsed her to be fit for recording the dying declaration and after completion of the statement, the Emergency Medical Officer put his signatures. At the time of recording of the statement of Gudiya, nobody else was present in the room except the P.W.9. The statement so recorded by the P.W.-9 was shown to the witness, which he endorsed and was marked as Ex. Ka-7. The P.W.-9 had also proved the Inquest Report. In his cross-examination, P.W.-9 stated that he could not tell the name of the Medical Officer, who informed him after seeing Gudiya that she was in a fit state for getting the dying declaration recorded. In his cross-examination, it was further stated by P.W.-9 that he had not noted in the dying declaration (Ex. Ka-7) that Gudiya was conscious and was in a state to give the evidence. It was written " मैं गुडिया पत्नी संतोष पुरे होशो हवाश में बयान करती हूँ". In his cross-examination P.W.-9 also stated that he asked questions to the deceased Gudiya, to which she replied but the dying declaration was not recorded in a question and answer form. It was further stated by P.W.-9 that before recording the dying declaration her family members i.e. her mother and brother were present in the room but at the time of recording the statement they were asked to go. It was also stated by P.W.-9 that while recording the dying declaration he never informed the deceased that he was a Magistrate and that he had come for recording her statement. It was also stated by the P.W.-9 that Emergency Medical Officer identified the deceased Gudiya and her thumb impression.

22. P.W.-10 Latawan Yadav, was the Police Constable who proved the Chik F.I.R.

23. P.W.-11 Jitendra Yadav, Sub-Inspector stated that he had taken over the investigation on 11.10.2012, proved the Naksha Nazri, Panchayatnama and also proved the chargesheet. In his cross-examination P.W.-11 had admitted that at the time of dying declaration, there was no fitness certificate.

24. P.W.-12 Ram Naresh Yadav, S.H.O., has proved the initial investigation and stated that on 05.09.2012 the mother of the deceased informed that deceased was not in a position to give statement.

25. P.W.-13 Mohd. Shakeel, Consultant, Kaili Hospital, Basti had stated that on 10.09.2012, he was posted at Community Health Centre, Chauri Chaura as Medical Officer. P.W.-13 proved the post-mortem. In his cross-examination, P.W.-13 stated that inside portion of the right hand of the deceased was burned. It was also stated that the palm of the right hand and thumb of the right hand both were burned.

26. P.W.-14 Dr. Bhanu Pratap Singh stated that on 02.09.2012, he admitted the deceased at 08:00 A.M. at the District Hospital, Maharajganj as the case of burn injury. It was also stated that the victim was conscious. The father-in-law of the victim, who brought the victim informed P.W. 14 that at about 02:00 A.M., she was burned which he had noted. It was also stated by P.W.-14 that the injured was administered injections, Injection ceferiaxon 1 mg, Injection Gentamucin 80 MI, Injection Dyclo, Injection Ranitidine and Injection Compose I.V. Fluid R.L. It was also stated that the injured was referred to Medical College and had also proved the bed head ticket. The doctor denied the suggestion that in the medico-legal register, the thumb impression was of some other person and not of the deceased.

27. P.W.-15 Shashank Shekhar Rai, Naib Tehsildar proved the statement of the victim recorded by him on 02.09.2012 and stated that when he reached the Medical College, Gorakhpur, the deceased Gudiya was admitted in the burn ward and the doctor of the medical college had orally informed that Gudiya was fit for giving statement. It was also stated by the P.W.-15 that at about 02:05 P.M., he had recorded the statement of Gudiya, wherein she stated that about 03:00 A.M., when she was sleeping in her sasural and her father-in-law-Radhey, her mother-in-law and brother-in-law-Munna and Munna's wife poured kerosene oil on her and set the fire and she was brought to the hospital by Radhey. It was also been stated that after the statement was recorded, the same was read over to Gudiya and after that he called Emergency Medical Officer, who was outside. The Emergency Medical Officer got the thumb impression of Gudiya which was also verified by the E.M.O. It was also certified by the E.M.O. that Gudiya was conscious prior to, at the time and after recording of the evidence and had put her signature. It was also been stated that he inquired Gudiya and whatever she said, same was recorded by him. P.W.15 denied the suggestion that the right thumb of Gudiya was burned and the thumb impression at Ex.Ka 6/16 was not of Gudiya. It was admitted by the P.W.-15 that fitness certificate was given orally by the doctor, the doctor never gave certificate in writing as to fitness of Gudiya.

28. P.W.-16 Dr. Chandra Dev, E.M.O. proved the endorsement of fitness given by him on 08.09.2012. In his cross-examination, the P.W.-16 has stated that during the time of recording the statement, the fact regarding her fitness was recorded on the basis of presumption as neither the victim nor the Naib Tehsildar had informed anything against it.

29. P.W.-17 Dr. Ashok Kumar has stated that on 02.09.2012, he was posted at Nehru Hospital, Medical College Gorakhpur as E.M.O. and stated that he had informed orally to the Naib Tehsildar that she (deceased) was fit to give her statement and after recording the same, the P.W.-17 was called by the Naib Tehsildar and thereafter, he went inside and gave a certificate to the effect that Gudiya was fit before, during and after the recording of the statement.

30. P.W.-18 Ram Pyare Yadav, Head Constable has proved the police papers and is a formal witness.

31. From the oral evidence as referred above, we find that all the witnesses of fact had not supported prosecution version and were declared hostile by the prosecution. The sessions court relied upon the dying declaration (Ex. Ka-7) and the statement of the deceased (Ex. Ka-6/16) and convicted the accused appellants under Section 302 I.P.C. Since all other witnesses were declared hostile, the court acquitted the accused-appellants for charges under Sections 304B, 498A, 506 and 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act.

32. It has been submitted by the learned Counsel for the appellant that since all the witnesses of fact had not supported the prosecution version, learned sessions court ought not have convicted the accused-appellant only on the basis of dying declaration of the deceased without there being any other corroborative evidence. In this regard, submission of learned AGA on behalf of the State is that there is no impediment in relying upon dying declaration of the deceased without there being any corroborative evidence.

33. The question that whether a conviction can be recorded only on the basis of dying declaration without there being any corroborative evidence is no more res-integra as the dying declaration is a substantive piece of relevant evidence in view of Section 32(1) of the Evidence Act. Under Section 32, when a statement is made by a person, as to the cause of death or as to any of the circumstances which resulted in his death, in cases in which the cause of person's death comes in to question, such a statement, oral or in writing, made by the deceased to the witness is a relevant fact and is admissible in evidence. The statement made by the deceased before death is called a "dying declaration".

34. It is also a settled principle of law that dying declaration is a substantive evidence and an order of conviction can be safely recorded on the basis of dying declaration.

35. It would be appropriate here to remind ourselves that generally, there are two issues with respect to a dying declaration. The first one would be, whether the declaration was actually made. Naturally, this would be assessed on the basis of the evidence of the witnesses, who claim that such declaration was made and witnessed by them. There would be a question of accuracy of the recording of such declaration, if made or maintained by such witnesses. If the evidence in that regard is satisfactory, the Court would come to a conclusion that a particular statement was, indeed, made by the deceased. It is not the end of the matter, the Court thereafter would be required to decide whether such statement made by the deceased was true. In other words, the fact of having made the statement and the truthfulness of the said statement are both required to be established before a declaration is termed as reliable.

36. For ascertaining the truthfulness of the statement of a dying person, the parameters, which are applied to the witnesses while judging reliability of their evidence, must be applied. The reliability of a version of a witness would depend on several factors including opportunity available to witness to know, physical and mental capacity of the patient to convey, kind of treatment which the patient was undergoing, chances of tutoring, relation of witness with patient and so on. The law does not afford to take a risk of blindly relying on the statement only because it has been recorded by Executive Magistrate. Usual scrutiny from every possible angle is must and evidence of Executive Magistrate must withstand the test of reliability.

37. In Jagbir Singh Vs. State (NCT of Delhi) reported in (2019) 8 SCC 779, the Supreme Court reiterated "It is also a settled principle of law that dying declaration is a substantive evidence and an order of conviction can be solely recorded on the basis of dying declaration provided the court is fully satisfied that the dying declaration made by the deceased was voluntary and reliable and the author recorded the dying declaration as stated by the deceased. This Court laid down the principle that for relying upon the dying declaration the court must be conscious that the dying declaration was voluntary and further it was recorded correctly and above all the maker was in a fit condition- mentally and physically- to make such statement."

38. In the light of such settled legal position, the facts of the case are to be assessed. On the basis of the factual aspects one has to independently decide whether the evidence of dying declaration inspires confidence. The principles would provide a guide but one has to decide the worth of a dying declaration only on the basis of facts and the attendant circumstances. The law is well settled that there is no specific format for writing a dying declaration, meaning thereby, written dying declaration can be in any form, but the essence is, it should inspire full confidence of the Court regarding its correctness and the statement of deceased was not a result of tutoring or product of imagination. More importantly, there should be evidence that the victim was well oriented and in a fit state of mind to give statement. It is duty of the recorder to satisfy himself that the deceased was in fit mental condition to give the statement and later the Court should also satisfy that the deceased was in a fit state of mind while giving statement.

39. Learned counsel for the appellants contended that the first statement as alleged to have been recorded of the deceased was on 02.09.2012 at about 02:25 P.M. by the Naib Tehsildar. Learned counsel for the appellants drew over attention to Ex.- Ka 6/16, wherein there was an endorsement by the Medical Officer that patient was conscious before, during and after the recording of the statement. The counsel further drew over attention to the statement of P.W. 17-Dr. Ashok Kumar Srivastava, who made the aforementioned endorsement. In his statement, P.W.-17 has stated that after examining and seeing the deceased to be conscious, P.W.-17 informed the Tehsildar (who recorded the statement) orally that "मरीज गुडिया म्रत्युपुर्व बयान देने के लिए उपुक्त है" and thereafter, he left the room, after recording the statement Naib Tehsildar called P.W.-17 and after seeing patient Gudiya, it has been stated by P.W.-17 that he has given a certificate that patient Gudiya was conscious prior to, during and after the statement. After recording such a statement on the dying declaration, the same was authenticated by putting the right thumb impression of Gudiya. It has further stated by P.W.17 that P.W.17 has not mentioned in the certificate that Gudiya was mentally fit for recording of dying declaration.

40. Learned counsel for the appellants contended that there is a distinction between consciousness and fitness of a state of mind to make a statement. Learned counsel for the appellants relied upon judgment of Supreme Court Paparambaka Rosamma Vs. State of A.P. (1999) 7 SCC 695:1999 SCC (Cri) 1361, wherein Apex Court has drawn distinction between consciousness and fitness of state of mind to make a statement and observed in paragraph no. 9 as under:-

"9. It is true that the medical officer Dr. K.Vishnupriya Devi (PW 10) at the end of the dying declaration had certified patient is conscious while recording the statement. It has come on record that the injured Smt. Venkata Ramana had sustained extensive burn injuries on her person. Dr. P.Koteswara Rao (PW 9) who performed the post mortem stated that injured had sustained 90% burn injuries. In this case as stated earlier, the prosecution case solely rested on the dying declaration. It was, therefore, necessary for the prosecution to prove the dying declaration being genuine, true and free from all doubts and it was recorded when the injured was in a fit state of mind. In our opinion, the certificate appended to the dying declaration at the end by Dr. Smt. K.Vishnupriya Devi (PW 10) did not comply with the requirement inasmuch as she has failed to certify that the injured was in a fit state of mind at the time of recording the dying declaration. The certificate of the said expert at the end only says that patient is conscious while recording the statement. In view of these material omissions, it would not be safe to accept the dying declaration (Ex.P-14) as true and genuine and was made when the injured was in a fit state of mind. From the judgments of the courts below, it appears that this aspect was not kept in mind and resultantly erred in accepting the said dying declaration (Ex.P-14) as a true, genuine and was made when the injured was in a fit state of mind. In medical science two stages namely conscious and a fit state of mind are distinct and are not synonymous. One may be conscious but not necessarily in a fit state of mind. This distinction was overlooked by the courts below."

41. Thus, according to the learned counsel for the appellants, the statement of the deceased recorded by Naib Tehsildar on 02.09.2012 becomes doubtful as there was no certificate by the doctor as to the fact that the deceased was in a fit state of mind to give the dying declaration. The only certificate was that the deceased was conscious at the time of the statement. In the present case also the deceased received severe burn injuries soon before the statement was recorded and as per the Bed Head Ticket (Ex.- Ka.14) there was an endorsement that the condition of the patient was serious and was referred to medical college.

42. Referring to the statement of the deceased dated 02.09.2012 recorded by Naib Tehsildar, learned counsel for the appellant submitted that it has been stated by the deceased that she was sleeping in her sasural and at about 03:00 A.M. in the morning his father-in-law, mother-in-law, devar-Munna and wife of Munna, poured kerosene oil on the deceased and set afire. It was also stated that at the time of incident these were the persons present in the house. The deceased has also mentioned that she was brought to the hospital by Radhey (father-in-law). It had also been stated by the deceased that earlier also her in-laws used to beat the deceased. It had also been mentioned in the aforesaid statement that she had two daughters aged about 5 years and 3 years. The statement recorded on 02.09.2012 (Ex. Ka. 6/16) also bears right thumb impression of the deceased. Referring to the other dying declaration of the deceased, which was recorded on 08.09.2012, learned counsel for the appellants contended that the deceased has stated that her husband resided in Arab and had kept another women, she had two daughters. Her husband and in-laws did not want to keep her and wanted to throw her out of the Sasural. It was further stated by the deceased that in the intervening night of 01.09.2012 and 02.09.2012 at about 02:00 A.M. while she was sleeping in the room, her father-in-law Radhey, mother-in-law Kaushilya, devar Munna, devrani Sita and nanad Nirmala, poured kerosene oil and burned her. On her making hues and cries, persons from the neighbouring area came and the Sasur had taken her to the District Hospital, Maharajganj and after that he ran away seeing the mother and other relatives of the deceased. The aforesaid statement bears certificate issued by the doctor fit for dying declaration at 07:15 P.M. and also bears a thumb impression of deceased Gudiya.

43. Learned counsel drew the attention of the court to the statement P.W.-16 Dr. Chandra Dev, Emergency Medical Officer B.R.D. Medical College, Gorakhpur in which P.W.16 had stated that he had given the certificate of fitness at 07:15 P.M. which had been endorsed by him before the statement was recorded. The certificate as endorsed upon the declaration was “fit for dying declaration at 07:15 P.M. on 08.09.2015”.

44. It had been stated by P.W. 16 that after giving certificate he had come out of the room and on the basis of presumption he told that she was fit during the statement as the Naib Tehsildar had also not mentioned anything adverse to the doctor. It was also stated by the P.W.16 that he had not stated that the deceased was mentally fit and had written only “fit for dying declaration”.

45. Learned counsel for the appellants contended that neither of the statements of the deceased which were treated as dying declaration by the sessions court, there was certificate by the doctor as to mental fitness of the deceased to get statement recorded.

46. It has been further contended by the learned counsel for the appellants that in both the statements, which were relied upon by the sessions court to convict the accused-appellants, there were contradictions such as in the second statement recorded on 08.09.2012, the deceased added the name of nanad as one of the co-accused and mentioned that on her making hues and cries, the persons of the neighbouring area came. In the second statement, the deceased had also tried to explain the motive for the aforesaid crime.

47. The P.W. 15, Shashank Shekhar Rai, Naib Tehsildar, who has recorded statement on 02.09.2012 and P.W. 9, Santosh Kumar Rai, Tehsildar, Sadar Gorakhpur, who has recorded the statement on 08.09.2012 had not stated that they were themselves satisfied with regard to fitness of the deceased to get her statement recorded. They had also not stated as to whether they had put any preliminary questions to the deceased or by any other mode they themselves got satisfied about the the mental fitness of the deceased at the time when the statement was being recorded by them. Such evidence is totally absent.

48. Learned counsel for the appellants also drew attention of the court to Ex.-Ka.14, the bed head ticket, which bears the left and right thumb impression of the deceased and also to the two statements relied upon by the sessions court i.e. Ex.-Ka.7 and Ex. Ka. 6/16, wherein also right thumb impression of the deceased was affixed.

49. Learned counsel for the appellants contended that from the statement of Dr. Shakeel Consultant, Kaili Hospital, Basti, who conducted the post-mortem of the deceased on 10. 9.2012 found that the palm and thumb of right hand were burned and therefore, there was no possibility of right thumb impression being taken upon the statement. The learned counsel also drew attention of the court to that thumb impressions which were there on the aforementioned statements and contented that from bare perusal, the thumb impressions did not inspire confidence as there was no similarity in two thumb impressions.

50. Per contra, learned A.G.A appearing for the State contended that these were the minor contradictions, which had been pointed out by the counsel for the appellants but otherwise the statement of the deceased was consistent and did not create any doubt. It has also been contended by the learned A.G.A. that both the statements were recorded by the responsible government officers i.e. Magistrates and nothing had been suggested by the appellants as to why they would depose against them.

51. In our view, from the evidence as discussed above, it is clear that in order to establish the dying declaration, the evidence of Dr. Ashok Kumar Srivastava, Medical Officer B.R.D. Medical College-P.W. 17, evidence of Shashank Shekhar Rai, P.W.15 (who recorded the statement of the deceased on 02.09.2012) and statement of Dr. Chandra Dev, EMO B.R.D. Medical College, Gorakhpur-P.W.16 and evidence of Santosh Kumar Rai, Tehsildar, P.W.9 (who has recorded statement on 08.09.2012) were taken into consideration by the prosecution. Neither the medical officer nor the magistrate gave evidence to the fact as to how they got satisfied about the mental fitness of the deceased.

52. The evidence of such type coupled with the fact that all the other prosecution witnesses of fact had turned hostile and had not supported the prosecution version, the whole case becomes suspicious. Further from the statement of the doctor, who had conducted the postmortem, it is clear that the right palm and the thumb was burnt. Though, on the statements of Gudiya recorded by the magistrates bear the right thumb impression creates a doubt.

53. So far as contention of learned A.G.A that the statement was recorded by the magistrates, who are responsible officers is concerned, the the Apex Court in case of Kanchy Komuramma Vs. State of A.P. reported in 1996 SCC (Cri) 31 has held that a dying declaration even if, has been recorded by a judicial Magistrate, by itself is not a proof of truthfulness of the declaration. It has to go through the scrutiny of the court. There are certain safeguards which must be observed by a Magistrate when requested to record a dying declaration. The Magistrate before recording the dying declaration must satisfy himself that the deceased is in a proper mental state to make the statement. He must record that satisfaction before recording the dying declaration. He must also obtain the opinion of the doctor, if one is available, about the fitness of the patient to make a statement and the prosecution must prove that opinion at the trial in the manner known to law. (Refer to para 11).

54. The Apex Court in the case of Puran Chand Vs. State of Haryana (2010) 6 SCC 566 advised the courts to remain alive to all attending circumstances when the dying declaration comes into being before making the same the basis of conviction. The relevant observations are contained in paragraphs 15 of the judgment extracted below:-

"15. The Courts below have to be extremely careful when they deal with a dying declaration as the maker thereof is not available for the cross-examination which poses a great difficulty to the accused person. A mechanical approach in relying upon a dying declaration just because it is there is extremely dangerous.

The Court has to examine a dying declaration scrupulously with a microscopic eye to find out whether the dying declaration is voluntary, truthful, made in a conscious state of mind and without being influenced by the relatives present or by the investigation agency who may be interested in the success of investigation or which may be negligent while recording the dying declaration."

55. No doubt, a dying declaration is a valuable piece of evidence but it has to be considered as just another piece of evidence and has to be judged in the light of all surrounding circumstances and with reference to the principles governing the weighing of evidence and if it is not found wholly trustworthy or truthful, it should not form the sole basis of conviction without corroboration.

56. Though all the prosecution witnesses have turned hostile, but their testimony can be relied upon to the extent the same is consistent with the case of prosecution or the defence.

57. In the case of Ramesh Harijan Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh (2012) 5 SCC 777, the Supreme Court observed :-

"24. In State of U.P. Vs. Ramesh Prasad Misra and another (1996) 10 SCC

360, this Court held that evidence of a hostile witness would not be totally rejected if spoken in favour of the prosecution or the accused but required to be subjected to close scrutiny and that portion of the evidence which is consistent with the case of the prosecution or defence can be relied upon. A similar view has been reiterated by this Court in Balu Sonba Shinde Vs. State of Maharashtra, (2002) 7 SCC 543; Radha Mohan Singh @ Lal Saheb & others Vs. State of U.P., AIR 2006 SC 951; Sarvesh Narain Shukla Vs. Daroga Singh and others, AIR 2008 SC 320; and Subbu Singh Vs. State (2009) 6 SCC 462. Thus, the law can be summarised to the effect that the evidence of a hostile witness cannot be discarded as a whole, and relevant parts thereof which are admissible in law, can be used by the prosecution or the defence."

58. P.W. 1, mother of the deceased, though turned hostile, in her cross-examination, stated that the statement of the deceased could not be recorded by the magistrate as she was not conscious, further the brother of the deceased P.W. 3 also stated that the statement could not be recorded by the magistrates on 02.09.2012 and 08.09.2012 as the deceased was unconscious and was not able to speak.

59. The P.W.1 mother of the deceased, P.W.2 Dinesh (an independent witness from village), P.W. 3 Sonu Jaiswal (brother of the deceased) P.W.5,Prabhunath (an independent witness) P.W. 6 Dinanath Madhesia (an independent witness) P.W.7 Awadesh Jaiswal (an independent witness) stated in their statements that the deceased was living separately from her in-laws in a separate house which was 3-4 houses from the house of her in-laws. The prosecution failed to explain this fact and also that how the accused-appellants entered into the house of the deceased at about 2:00-03:00 AM on the fateful night. Whether the entry of the accused-appellants was forceful or it was the deceased who had opened the door, the evidence on this score is completely silent. Further, the prosecution also failed to explain that when the deceased was residing in a separate house along with her two kids, why no injury was caused to the kids, because the case of the prosecution was that the deceased was poured with kerosene and set to fire while she was asleep at about 2:00-03:00 A.M. on the fateful night. Further the prosecution had not examined the children of the deceased, who were the most probable witnesses of the aforesaid crime.

60. The appellant-Radhey Jaiswal in reply to the Question No. 25 in his statement under section 313 Cr.P.C. stated that he and his wife- Kaushilya, were living separately from Virendra and his wife in a separate house since much before the incident. Similarly, appellant-Kaushilya in her reply to Question No. 25 stated the same fact and had also stated that she was unable to walk. The accused Munna Jaiswal in reply to Question No. 25 stated that he along with his wife was residing in Bombay and came to the house only after coming to know about the incident. Accused Sita in reply to Question No. 25 also stated the same fact. The D.W.-1 Prabhu Madhesiya examined on behalf of the defence stated the fact that the deceased was living separately from her in-laws and had also stated thatMunna used to work in Mumbai and was not there at the time of incident. It was also stated by D.W.1 that the spinal cord of the accused – Kaushilya was damaged and she was not able to walk.

61. The answers to the Question No. 25 which were given by the accused-appellants clearly showed that the appellants had come with a clear and plausible explanation of their innocence. The specific explanations offered by the appellants find support from the statements of prosecution witnesses as well as defence witnesses. The trial court while convicting the appellants completely failed to take note of the explanation offered by the appellants in their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., which was probable in the facts of the present case .

62. The Supreme Court in the case of Reena Hazarika Vs. State of Assam, reported in AIR 2018 SC 5361, in paragraph-16 of the judgment, observed as follows:

"16. Section 313, Cr.P.C. cannot be seen simply as a part of audi alteram partem. It confers a valuable right upon an accused to establish his innocence and can well be considered beyond a statutory right as a constitutional right to a fair trial under Article 21 of the Constitution, even if it is not to be considered as a piece of substantive evidence, not being on oath under Section 313(2), Cr.P.C. The importance of this right has been considered time and again by this court, but it yet remains to be applied in practice as we shall see presently in the discussion to follow. If the accused takes a defence after the prosecution evidence is closed, under Section 313(1)(b) Cr.P.C. the Court is duty bound under Section 313(4) Cr.P.C. to consider the same. The mere use of the word 'may' cannot be held to confer a discretionary power on the court to consider or not to consider such defence, since it constitutes a valuable right of an accused for access to justice, and the likelihood of the prejudice that may be caused thereby. Whether the defence is acceptable or not and whether it is compatible or incompatible with the evidence available is an entirely different matter. If there has been no consideration at all of the defence taken under Section 313 Cr.P.C., in the given facts of a case, the conviction may well stand vitiated. To our mind, a solemn duty is cast on the court in dispensation of justice to adequately consider the defence of the accused taken under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and to either accept or reject the same for reasons specified in writing"

63. In the present case, as the appellant came with a specific and plausible defence but the trial court did not consider the same and without considering it convicted the appellant. In our considered opinion, therefore, the conviction of the appellant from this angle too, is unsustainable.

64. Lastly, it was submitted by learned Counsel for the appellant that no question with regard to the dying declaration was not put to the appellants at the time of recording their statement under Section 313 Cr.P.C., and, therefore, the same cannot be relied upon and has to be excluded from the evidence.

65. In support of his contention, learned Counsel for the appellant referred the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in Sharad Birdhichand Sarda Vs. State of Maharashtra, reported in AIR 1984 SC 1622 and contended that if the circumstances are not put to the accused, their statements under Section 313 of Cr.P.C., 1973, must be completely excluded from consideration because the accused did not have any chance to explain them. In Sharad Birdhichand Sarda (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph nos.142 and 144 of the judgment has held as under:-

"142. Apart from the aforesaid comments there is one vital defect in some of the circumstances mentioned above and relied upon by the High Court, viz., circumstances Nos. 4,5,6,8,9,11,12,13,16, and 17. As these circumstances were not put to the appellant in his statement under s.313 of the Criminal Procedure Code they must be completely excluded from consideration because the appellant did not have any chance to explain them. This has been consistently held by this Court as far back as 1953 where in the case of Fateh Singh Bhagat Singh v. State of Madhya Pradesh(1) this Court held that any circumstance in respect of which an accused was not examined under s. 342 of the Criminal procedure code cannot be used against him ever since this decision. there is a catena of authorities of this Court uniformly taking the view that unless the circumstance appearing against an accused is put to him in his examination under s.342 of the or s.313 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the same cannot be used against him. In Shamu Balu Chaugule v. State of Maharashtra(2) this Court held thus:

"The fact that the appellant was said to be absconding not having been put to him under section 342, Criminal Procedure Code, could not be used against him."

144. It is not necessary for us to multiply authorities on this point as this question now stands concluded by several decision of this Court. In this view of the matter, the circumstances which were not put to the appellant in his examination under Section 313 of the Criminal Procedure Code have to be completely excluded from consideration."

66. Learned Counsel for the appellant also referred to the judgment in Sujit Biswas Vs. State of Assam, reported in (2013) 12 SCC 406 for the proposition that the very purpose of examining the accused persons under Section 313 Cr.P.C., 1973 is to meet the requirement of the principles of natural justice, i.e., audi alteram partem. The accused, thus, must be given an opportunity to explain the incriminating material that has surfaced against him and in the circumstances which are not put to the accused in his examination under Section 313 Cr.P.C., 1973, cannot be used against him and must be excluded from consideration.

67. Section 313 Cr.P.C., 1973 has amended by Act no.5 of 2009, Section 22 (w.e.f. 31.12.2009) is quoted as under :-

"313. Power to examine the accused.- (1) In every inquiry or trial, for the purpose of enabling the accused personally to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, the Court-

(a) may at any stage, without previously warning the accused, put such questions to him as the Court considers necessary;

(b) shall, after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called on for his defence, question him generally on the case: Provided that in a summons- case, where the Court has dispensed with the personal attendance of the accused, it may also dispense with his examination under clause (b).

(2) No oath shall be administered to the accused when he is examined under sub- section (1). (3) The accused shall not render himself liable to punishment by refusing to answer such questions, or by giving false answers to them.

(4) The answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration in such inquiry or trial, and put in evidence for or against him in any other inquiry into, or trial for, any other offence which such answers may tend to show he has committed.

(5) The Court may take help of Prosecutor and Defence Counsel in preparing relevant questions which are to be put to the accused and the Court may permit filing of written statement by the accused as sufficient compliance of this section."

68. The forerunner of the said provision in the Old Code was Section 342 therein. It was worded thus :-

"342.(1) For the purpose of enabling the accused to explain any circumstances appearing in the evidence against him, the court may, at any stage of any inquiry or trial, without previously warning the accused, put such questions to him as the court considers necessary, and shall, for the purpose aforesaid, question him generally on the case after the witnesses for the prosecution have been examined and before he is called on for his defence.

(2) The accused shall not render himself liable to punishment by refusing to answer such questions, or by giving false answers to them; but the court and the jury (if any) may draw such inference from such refusal or answers as it thinks just.

(3) The answers given by the accused may be taken into consideration in such inquiry or trial, and put in evidence for or against him in any other inquiry into, or trial for, any other offence which such answers may tend to show he has committed.

(4) No oath shall be administered to the accused when he is examined under sub-section (1)."

69. In view of the judgments referred to by the learned Counsel for the appellant, the incriminating material has to be put to the accused so that the accused gets a fair chance to defend himself. This is in recognition of the principles of audi alteram partem. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Asraf Ali Vs. State of Assam reported in (2008) 16 SCC 328 has made following observations in paragraphs 21 and 22 of the judgment which are quoted as under :-

"21. Section 313 of the Code casts a duty on the Court to put in an enquiry or trial questions to the accused for the purpose of enabling him to explain any of the circumstances appearing in the evidence against him. It follows as necessary corollary therefrom that each material circumstance appearing in the evidence against the accused is required to be put to him specifically, distinctly and separately and failure to do so amounts to a serious irregularity vitiating trial, if it is shown that the accused was prejudiced.

22.The object of Section 313 of the Code is to establish a direct dialogue between the Court and the accused. If a point in the evidence is important against the accused, and the conviction is intended to be based upon it, it is right and proper that the accused should be questioned about the matter and be given an opportunity of explaining it. Where no specific question has been put by the trial Court on an inculpatory material in the prosecution evidence, it would vitiate the trial. Of course, all these are subject to rider whether they have caused miscarriage of justice or prejudice. This Court also expressed similar view in S. Harnam Singh v. The State (AIR 1976 Supreme Court 2140), while dealing with Section 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1898 (corresponding to Section 313 of the Code). Non- indication of inculpatory material in its relevant facets by the trial Court to the accused adds to vulnerability of the prosecution case. Recording of a statement of the accused under Section 313 is not a purposeless exercise."

70. Learned Counsel for the appellants also referred to statements of the appellants under Section 313 Cr.P.C., 1973. Learned Addl. Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Maharajganj on the basis of evidence of prosecution put certain questions during the examination of the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. The questions put to appellants were common and therefore, questions put to only one appellant are being reproduced here as under. Similarly, the answers of only one appellant are being reproduced:

"प्रश्न संख्या-1 साक्ष्य में यह आया है कि दिनांक 02.09.2013 से पूर्व के लगभग 06 वर्ष की अवधि में वहद ग्राम पुरानी घुघुली थाना घुघुली जिला महराजगंज में आप अभियुक्तगण राधे जायसवाल, वीरेन्द्र उर्फ सन्तोष जायसवाल, मुन्ना जायसवाल, श्रीमती कौशिल्या एवं सीता देवी ने वादिनी श्रीमती चुनी देवी की लड़की गुड़िया, जो कि वीरेन्द्र उर्फ सन्तोष जायसवाल की विवाहिता पत्नी थी को दहेज में मोटरसायकिल की गांग की तथा मोटरसायकिल की मांग न पुरी होने पर उपरोक्त दिनांक व स्थान पर समय रात्रि 03.00 बजे लगभग आपलोगों ने गुड़िया के शरीर को हाति कारित कर जलाकर उसकी हत्या कर दी। इस सम्बन्ध में आपको क्या कहना है ?

71. Per contra, learned A.G.A. relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in case of Nar Singh Vs. State of Haryana reported in (2015) 1 SCC 496, wherein in Paragraph 30 of the aforesaid judgment, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"30. Whenever a plea of omission to put a question to the accused on vital piece of evidence is raised in the appellate court, courses available to the appellate court can be briefly summarised as under:-

(i) Whenever a plea of non-compliance of Section 313 Cr.P.C. is raised, it is within the powers of the appellate court to examine and further examine the convict or the counsel appearing for the accused and the said answers shall be taken into consideration for deciding the matter. If the accused is unable to offer the appellate court any reasonable explanation of such circumstance, the court may assume that the accused has no acceptable explanation to offer;

(ii) In the facts and circumstances of the case, if the appellate court comes to the conclusion that no prejudice was caused or no failure of justice was occasioned, the appellate court will hear and decide the matter upon merits.

(iii) If the appellate court is of the opinion that non-compliance with the provisions of Section 313 Cr.P.C. has occasioned or is likely to have occasioned prejudice to the accused, the appellate court may direct retrial from the stage of recording the statements of the accused from the point where the irregularity occurred, that is, from the stage of questioning the accused under Section 313 Cr.P.C. and the trial Judge may be directed to examine the accused afresh and defence witness if any and dispose of the matter afresh;

(iv) The appellate court may decline to remit the matter to the trial court for retrial on account of long time already spent in the trial of the case and the period of sentence already undergone by the convict and in the facts and circumstances of the case, may decide the appeal on its own merits, keeping in view the prejudice caused to the accused. "

72. The sessions court, though recorded the statement under Section 313 of Cr.P.C., omitted to put questions regarding a vital circumstance to the accused during his statement. The sessions court, while convicting the accused mainly relied upon the written dying declaration Ex.Ka.-7 and Ex. Ka.6/16. However, the contents of written dying declaration were not put to the accused during his statement. It is really a matter of concern that the sessions court did not frame the question specifically putting the incriminating material stated by deceased in her statement. Thereby, a very important circumstance was lost. The deceased in her statement (dying declaration) stated that the appellants had poured Kerosene on her person and set her on fire. Particularly, this incriminating part of dying declaration was not put to the accused to get his explanation. Although, the dying declaration Ex.Ka-6/16 and Ex. Ka.7 were treated as the basis to convict the accused, the same was not put to the accused in her statement recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Apparently, the accused was not given opportunity to explain this vital circumstance. Recording of statement under Section 313 of the Cr.P.C. is not an empty formality during trial.

73. We may note that considering the importance of statement under Section 313 of Cr.P.C., Sub-clause (5) has been added in Section 313 by amendment which permits the court to take help of prosecution and defence in preparing relevant questions which are put to the accused. One of the reasons for such amendment was to see that Court should not miss putting any incriminating circumstance to the accused while recording his statement.

74. In the result, the finding of guilt based on the written dying declaration for this reason alone would not sustain apart from the other reasons which we have recorded above. In the result, we hold that the dying declaration was not trustworthy and reliable.

75. To summarise we hold that, the evidence on the point of dying declaration does not inspire confidence and it cannot be relied upon. There is no reliable evidence to satisfy the judicial mind that the deceased was conscious and mentally fit at the time of giving her statement. Rather, the genesis of the case i.e. recording the statement of deceased itself becomes doubtful. From the material on record, we are absolutely not satisfied about the truthfulness of the voluntary nature of the dying declaration and the fitness of the mind of the deceased. In the aforesaid facts and circumstances, we find and hold that the prosecution failed to substantiate the charges levelled against the appellants beyond all reasonable doubt by adducing consistent, cogent and reliable evidence. If dying declaration is excluded, nothing remains in the prosecution case, therefore the appellants are legitimately entitled to avail the benefit of doubt. Hence, the impugned judgment and order of conviction passed by learned Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Maharajganj could not withstand the legal position and requires to be reversed by acquitting the appellants from charges levelled against them. Consequently, the appeal deserves to be allowed by setting aside the impugned judgment and order of conviction.

(I) The appeal stands allowed.

(II) The judgment and order of conviction dated 31.07.2014 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.4, Maharajganj stands quashed and is set aside consequently, the sentence awarded on 25.08.2014 is also set aside.

(III) The accused-appellants, Radhey Jaiswal, Munna Jaiswal and Sita Devi are acquitted of the offence punishable under Section 302 of IPC.

(IV) The appellants be released from jail forthwith, if not required in any other offence.

(V) The amount of fine, if deposited, be refunded to the appellants.

4. Bhupendra Vs St. of M.P., (2013) 4 Crimes 480 (Supreme Court)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddharth, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anoop Trivedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Ram Singh Kushwaha and Sri Ankit Shukla, learned counsels for the appellant and learned A.G.A for the State.

2. Above criminal appeals have been preferred against the judgment and order dated 12.01.2001 passed by VIIth Additional Sessions Judge, Kanpur Nagar, in Session Trial No. 960 of 1995 by which the appellant, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, has been convicted and sentenced for life under Section 304-B IPC, while appellants, Smt. Meera Jha and Jagdanand Jha, have been convicted and sentenced to 8 years rigorous imprisonment. All the appellants have been convicted and sentenced under Section 498-A IPC for 2 years rigorous imprisonment and under Section 4 of D.P. Act to undergo rigorous imprisonment for one year. The appellants are acquitted of alternative charge under Section 302 IPC.

3. Prosecution case is that informant, Shyam Shanker Mishra, married his daughter, Sudha, three years ago to the accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra. Rs. 51,000/- was given in cash and other goods were given in dowry but accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, was demanding a motorcycle and a plot and was threatening to kill his daughter. Akhilesh Kumar Mishra and his Fufa, Jagdanand Jha, also used to come and threaten him. On 19.07.1994 at 6:00 p.m informant came to know that the accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, his Fufa, Jagdanand Jha and Bua, Meera Jha, have murdered his daughter, Sudha and have ran away leaving her dead body behind. FIR dated 19.07.1994 was lodged on 20:55 registered at Police Station- Kakadev.

4. After committal, charges were framed under Sections 498-A/304-B IPC and alternative charges under Section 302 IPC and Section 4 of Dowry Prohibition Act were framed against accused persons.

5. Before the trial court, informant was examined as P.W.-1. His wife, Smt. Gambhira Devi, was examined as P.W.-2. Abdul Haq, was examined as P.W-3. Dr. D.K. Vaish, who conducted the post-mortem of dead body of the deceased was examined as P.W.-4. Milap Singh, Deputy Superintendent of Police, was examined as P.W.-5.

6. P.W.-1 stated in his statement before the trial court that he is resident of Bihar and is residing at Kanpur for last 14 years. He had one daughter, Sudha, the deceased, another daughter, Vinita and two sons, Ashutosh and Nyaytosh, and is wife is P.W.-2. Accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, was residing with his Fufa, Jagdanand Jha and Bua, Meera Jha. They also belong to Bihar. He saw accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, in the house of Jagdanand Jha and in the presence of accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Jha, demand of Rs. 51,000/- as dowry was made and they agreed to the marriage of accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, with his daughter, Sudha. He paid Rs. 8,000/- for making jewellery to the accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra and Rs. 25,000/- for expenses of marriage. After marriage the accused persons started demanding a motorcycle and also a plot of land. They started abusing the daughter of P.W.-1 and took away her clothes and jewellery. He went to meet his daughter but he was not allowed to meet her. Therefore, he lodged a complaint at Police Station-Kakadev, District- Kanpur Nagar. Accused, Jagdanand Jha, is working in UPSIDC and was quite influenced. Police got a compromise entered between the parties recorded at Police Station. Both the parties put their signatures thereon. Whenever, accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, came to his house he demanded money. One and a half months prior to death of Sudha, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, started living separately from her Bua and Fufa with the deceased. 10-12 days thereafter one bengali lady informed him that Sudha is ill. He went their to see her. Akhilesh Kumar Mishra again started talking about motorcycle and after reprimanding him he took Sudha to Dr. Devendra Kaur who informed that Sudha is pregnant and not ill. She is not getting sufficient food to eat. After 7-8 days one vegetable vendor informed that Sudha is ill. The informant, P.W.-1m reached the house of accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra and found his daughter lying dead. Her entire body had turned blue. He lodged the FIR before the police station in Bihari language and its translation has been filed before this court. He cremated his daughter but none of the accused joined the last rites of the deceased. Accused persons threatened him of withdrawing the case. P.W.-1 lodged a case against younger brother of Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, Kailash. Thereafter he lodged a complaint against accused, Jagdanand Jha, since he got his younger son, Nyaytosh abducted. Both the reports have been filed before the Court in evidence.

7. P.W.-2, Smt. Gambhira Devi, mother of deceased, proved that amount of Rs. 51,000/- was demanded by the accused person as dowry. They came to see her daughter and she welcomed them and gave them clothes, Rs. 1100/- was given in engagement and Rs. 51/- was given to accused, Jagdanand Jha. After 20 days, father of accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, came and gave saaree and blouse to Sudha and Rs. 101/- in cash. Accused, Jagdanad Jha, demanded Rs. 8000/- for jewellery which she gave him in the presence of his wife. Again Jagdanand and Akhilesh Kumar demanded money. After sometime she gave them Rs. 5,000/-. After the marriage, accused persons, Jagdanand Jha and Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, came to her house and demanded motorcycle and a plot of land as precondition for taking Sudha to their house. When she refused to give motorcycle and plot, they abused her and Akhilesh Kumar Mishra also beated her. Accused persons used to beat her daughter and did not gave her food. When her daughter was 10 months pregnant, accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, dropped her in her house where she gave birth to a female child. Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, refused to keep the female child and asked Sudha to kill her. After one month and 22 days he came and took her daughter and grand-daughter back. After killing her grand-daughter, he threw her on her door while her daughter was weeping outside. The doctor saw her grand-daughter and opined that she has been administered poison, hence she has died. Thereafter she used to go to meet her daughter and the deceased. She was ill and taken to Guru Nanak Hospital. The doctor informed that she is pregnant and not getting sufficient food. Accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, used to fight with her daughter. After coming to know of her death when she went to her matrimonial home and asked the accused person how she has died, they pleaded ignorance.

8. P.W.-3, Abdul Haq, was although declared hostile but he proved the fact that there was dispute between the parties regarding demand of dowry.

9. P.W.-4, Dr. K.K. Vaish, who performed post-mortem of the body of deceased, was examined before the trial court. He stated before the court that cause of death of deceased was not ascertained and therefore her viscera was preserved. He admitted that in the medical examination of viscera poison was not detected. He proved the post-mortem report before the court. The aforesaid witness was recalled but he only stated that he could not ascertain the cause of death of the deceased and therefore viscera was preserved.

10. P.W.-5, Investigating Officer, proved the investigation record and the statements of witnesses recorded by him. Statement of P.W.-6, Sub-Inspector was also recorded. Statements of accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., wherein they denied allegations made against them.

11. Counsel for the appellant has submitted that the demand of dowry by the accused is not established by the prosecution in proximity to the time of death of deceased. There is inconsistency in the statement of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 with regard to the amount of dowry demanded. The letter of deceased has not been corroborated by report of handwriting expert. Statement of P.W.-1 regarding alleged compromise entered between the parties at police station is contradictory. Before the death of deceased accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra and co-accused, Jagdanand Jha, and wife were living separately as accepted by P.W.-1. P.W.-3 has not supported the case set up by P.W-1 and P.W-2 and was declared hostile. Post-mortem report and viscera report do not suggests any poisoning of deceased. Death of deceased was not homicidal and she did not died unnatural death.

12. Counsel for the appellant has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Sandeep Kumar vs. State of Uttrakhand, AIR 2021 SC 491, in support of his contention.

13. Learned A.G.A has vehemently opposed the submission and has submitted that from the evidence of P.W-1 it is clear that within two months of the marriage of appellant demand of motorcycle and one plot was made by the accused persons from P.W.-1. When P.W.-1 was not permitted to meet his daughter, he had lodged a report at police station – Kakadev, District- Kanpur Nagar, against the accused persons but he was compelled to make compromise with the accused persons at police station. He has further submitted that P.W.-2 has also proved the allegation of demand of dowry against the accused persons. He has submitted that the conduct of accused persons is relevant since they never informed the father and mother of deceased after she died. P.W.-1 came to know from vegetable vendor about the death of daughter and went there. As per Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act the burden of proof was on the accused person to explain how the deceased died while living in their house.

14. Learned A.G.A has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Buddhadeb Saha and Others vs. State of Bengal, 2023 SCC Online SC 1457 and Devendra Singh and Others vs. State of Uttrakhand, 2022(2) Crimes 277 (SC).

15. After hearing the rival contentions, this court finds that as per Section 304-B IPC where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand of dowry, such death shall be called dowry death and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death. As per Section 113-B of Evidence Act, there is presumption against the accused of causing dowry death where it is shown that soon before her death such woman was subjected by such person to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand of dowry. Section 304-B IPC read with Section 113-B of Evidence Act makes it clear that once prosecution has succeed in demonstrating that a woman has been subjected to cruelty or harassment for, or in connection with, any demand of dowry soon before her death, a presumption shall be drawn against the accused person however the accused can demonstrate before the trial court that the ingredients for constituting offence under Section 304-B IPC are not made out.

16. In the present case, it is clearly discernible that the deceased was being subjected to harassment for fulfilling the demand of one motorcycle and a plot of land soon after her marriage with the accused-appellant, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra. Initially, the accused persons refused to take her along to their house after marriage unless their demand of dowry is met as proved by P.W.-2 before the trial court. However, they took the deceased to her house and subjected her to cruelty. She gave birth to a female child who was allegedly done to death by the accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra or the child died for some other reason. The deceased prior to her death was taken to the doctor by P.W.-2, where the doctor opined that she was not ill but not getting sufficient food. The deceased has clearly died within 7 years of her marriage with the accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra and she was living with accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra only at the time of her death, separately from co-accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Jha. The cause of death was not ascertained but it will not make any difference since as per Section 304-B IPC where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within 7 years of her marriage and it is proved that she was subjected to cruelty or harassment soon before her death, her death shall be called dowry death and her husband or relative of her husband shall be deemed to have caused her death. In the present case the death may have been caused by poisoning or any other reason but keeping in view the fact that the deceased was subjected to cruelty and harassment soon after her marriage and prior to her death, the presumption of causing dowry death is against the accused persons. The accused have not been able to rebutt the presumption under Section 113-B of Indian Evidence Act against them.

17. The argument of learned A.G.A that as per Section 106 of Indian Evidence Act, the burden of proving that death of deceased was caused by accused person with whom she last resided, would be attracted only against the accused-appellant, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, with whom the deceased was living separately at the time of her death. The prosecution witnesses have admitted that the couple had separated from the co-accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Devi, one and one and a half months prior to her death. Therefore, at the time of her death the deceased was clearly residing with the accused-appellant, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra.

18. The argument of counsel for the appellant is that no sign of poisoning was found in the viscera of the deceased also deserves consideration. He has submitted that in the case of Buddhadeb Saha and Others (Supra), the Apex Court has held in paragraph 24 that in the case of poisoning white froth may come out from the mouth and nose of the deceased. In case of opium or its alkaloid the internal organs like stomach or lungs may be congested. On opening of stomach detectable smell may be found in cases of poison like organo phosphorus compound, opium, formaldehyde, etc. However, this court finds that in the same judgment of Apex Court in paragraph 25 it has been held that even if in the viscera report there is no poison found such death shall be covered under the phrase “otherwise that under normal circumstances” which means death not being in the usual course but apparently under suspicious circumstances. In the case of Bhupendra v. State of Madhya Pradesh reported in (2013) 4 Crimes 480 (Supreme Court) it was held that chemical examination of viscera is not mandatory in every case of dowry death. For the purpose of Section 304-B IPC mere fact of an unnatural death is sufficient to invite a presumption under Section 113-B of the Evidence Act.

19. The Apex Court has considered the effect to negative viscera report in the case of dowry death in the aforesaid judgment in paragraph nos. 28 to 35 :-

" 28. In a research article titled, "Negative viscera report and its medico-legal aspects", it has been mentioned that in many cases, the viscera report is negative on three major basis, namely it can be procedure based, sample based or lab based. The said research paper reveals that there are circumstances in which viscera test may not reveal the presence of compounds from the following circumstances:—

1. Sample quantities received by FSL much less than those prescribed for optimal analysis;

2. Required quantity and quality of preservative not used during sampling;

4. Difficulty in detection of poison due to vomiting, purging or elimination from the system by the kidneys or due to prolonged stay in the hospital immediately prior to the death;

5. Not sending stomach wash (gastric lavage) and vomit along with viscera for examination;

6. Some organic poison decompose due to improper preservation or temperature control;

7. Site of sample collection on the body also play an important role;

8. In postmortem decomposition, many poisons present in the tissue undergo chemical changes which cannot be detected in routine toxicological analysis;

29. This Court in Mahabir Mandal v. State of Bihar, (1972) 1 SCC 748, looked into the observations found at page 477 of the Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology (Seventeenth edition) and held that under some circumstances, if the whole of the poison has disappeared from the lungs by evaporation, or has been removed from the stomach and intestines by vomiting and purging, and after absorption has been detoxified, conjugated and eliminated from the system by the kidneys and other channels, it is possible that there may not be traces of poison.

30. Thus, the absence of detection of poison in the viscera report alone need not be treated as a conclusive proof of the fact that the victim has not died of poison.

31. In Mahabir Mandal (supra), this Court has ob- served as under:-

"Empty reference has been made by Mr.Chari to report dated December 23, 1963 of the Chemical Examiner, according to whom no poison could be detected in the viscera of Indira deceased. This circumstance would not, in our opinion, militate against the conclusion that the death of the deceased was due to poisoning. There are several poisons particularly of the synthetic hyp- notics and vegetable alkaloids groups, which do not leave any characteristic signs as can be noticed on post mortem examina- tion."

32. The above observation of this Court was based on the reference made in the Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology. Those references were also referred to by this Court, which are as follows:-

"It is quite possible that a person may die from the effects of a poison, and yet none may be found in the body after death, if the whole of the poison has disappeared from the lungs by evaporation, or has been removed from the stomach and intestines by vomiting and purging, and after absorption has been detoxified, conjugated and elimi- nated from the system by the kidneys and other channels. Certain vegetable poisons may not be detected in the viscera, as they have no reliable tests, while some organic poisons, especially the alkaloids and glu- cosides, may be oxidation during life or by putrefaction after death, be split up into other substances which have no characteris- tic reactions sufficient for their identi- fication." (Emphasis supplied)

33. As pointed out by this Court in a number of cases, where the deceased dies as a result of poi- soning, it is difficult to successfully isolate the poison and recognise it. Lack of positive evi- dence in this respect would not result in throwing out the entire prosecution case, if the other cir- cumstances clearly point out the guilt of the ac- cused.

34. According to Modi's Medical Jurisprudence and Toxicology, 23rd Edition, Editors : K. Mathoharan and Amrit K Patnaik, the preserved materials should be sent to the concerned Forensic Science Laboratory, through the concerned police station as quickly as possible. Otherwise, the poison may not be detected during the analysis of the vis- cera, even though they may contain some poison.

35. Ken Kulig MD, in Critical Care Secrets (Fourth Edition), 2007 states that the gastric lavage must be performed soon after ingestion to be at all effective in removing the drugs from the stomach. For this reason, many clinicians do not lavage patients who have overdosed if more than 1 hour has elapsed since ingestion. "

20. Therefore, it is crystal clear that benefit of negative viscera report cannot be extended to the accused persons.

21. The facts of the case of Sandeep Kumar (Supra) relied upon by learned counsel for the appellant are different. In this case, no poison was found in the viscera but the doctor opined that the deceased was patient of Tuberculosis and the congestion in internal organs could be due to Tuberculosis. The deceased was also having below normal weight and therefore the court did not found to be established case of unnatural death.

22. However, this court finds that in the statements of P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 allegations of demand of dowry have been generally made against accused, Jagdanand Jha and specifically against accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra. At the time of death the deceased and her husband were residing separately from the accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Jha. There is no allegation that even after moving to separate accommodation the co-accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Jha, went to the house of deceased and co-accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra and harassed her on demanded any dowry from her. P.W.-1 and P.W.-2 have also not stated that after the couple separated the accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Jha, ever visited their place. It appears that their relations had deteriorated and it cannot be expected that the accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Jha, had any motive for demanding dowry and harassing the deceased since they may not have been beneficiary of any dowry once the couple had separated from them. Co-accused, Jagdanand Jha, was aged about 46 years in the year 2000 and now must be about 70 years of age. His wife was aged about 35 years at that time and is now aged about 59 years. They are not the father and mother of accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra and are his Fufa and Bua. Even if the land demanded as dowry and motorcycle was given in dowry by P.W.-1, only accused, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, would have been beneficiary of the same and not the other co-accused.

23. In view of the above consideration, the conviction of appellant, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, who has preferred Criminal Appeal No. 472 of 2001 is confirmed.

24. However, we are of considered opinion that the trial court has awarded maximum sentence prescribed for offence under Section 304-B IPC to appellant, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, without taking mitigating circumstances in the case into consideration like cause of death of the victim neither could be ascertained in post-mortem report nor in viscera examination report. No mark of violence was found on person of the deceased. Thus, the sentence is reduced from imprisonment to life to rigorous imprisonment of 10 years. The sentence awarded to the appellant, Akhilesh Kumar Mishra, stands modified accordingly.

25. He is on bail. His bail bond is cancelled and sureties are discharged. He is directed to surrender and complete the remaining sentence. However, the accused, Jagdanand Jha and Smt. Meera Jha, are extended benefit of doubt and acquitted of all charges. They are on bail and need not surrender. Their bail bonds are cancelled and sureties are discharged. The period of custody already undergone by the appellant will be set off against this modified sentence for 10 years rigorous imprisonment.

26. Criminal Appeal No. 472 of 2001 is partly allowed and Criminal Appeal No. 118 of 2001 is allowed.

1. Heard Sri Devendra Kumar Mishra, learned counsel for the appellant and Sri Amit Sinha, learned AGA for the State.

2. The instant criminal appeal has been filed by the appellant- Khemi being aggrieved by the judgment and order dated 15.02.1986 passed by the Vth Additional Sessions Judge, Mathura in S.T. No. 302 of 1985 (State vs. Phooli and others) under Section 302/149 IPC, P.S. Nauhjhil, District Mathura, whereby the appellant has been convicted for the offence under Section 302 IPC and has been awarded sentence of life imprisonment.

3. The prosecution story, in brief, is that the P.W. 1, Teeka Ram lodged a report at 02:45 A.M. on 02.04.1984 alleging that in the night intervening 1/2.4.1984, his brother deceased Ram Swarup was sleeping on a cot in front of his house. The informant Teeka Ram was also sleeping in front of his house, which was adjoining to the house of the deceased Ram Swarup at a distance of 5 to 6 hands from the deceased. The daughters Veeri and Champa and Kasturi wife of deceased were sleeping inside the house and at nearby place, Kishori son of Doji and Prahlad son of Teeka and Handal son of Doji were also sleeping. As usual the lantern, which was lit was kept on the wall of the house of the deceased Ram Swarup. At around 12:30 in the night, five persons came there and due to the noise of their coming, the informant woke up and saw that the aforesaid five persons were standing around the cot of his deceased brother. He got up, shouted and ran towards the house. In the meantime the accused/appellant Khemi had fired from the gun, which hit on the neck of his brother. Hearing the noise, Kishori son of Doji, Prahlad son of Teeka, Veera and Champa daughters of informant and the wife of the deceased and Handal son of Doji along with other persons of the village reached there. The informant has identified that the accused-appellant was having the gun in his hand, the other accused Dharmpal and Phooli sons of Mohan were having country made pistols in their hands and the accused Rajendra s/o Sukhi and Raghuveer s/o Nripati were having ballams in their hands and after killing the deceased, all the accused persons ran away. The informant had overheard the accused saying that since stating that the deceased had deposed against them, therefore, revenge had been taken.

4. After receipt of information, the police personnel reached on the spot and conducted the inquest at 6:30 A.M. and the dead body of the deceased was sent for postmortem. The postmortem was conducted by Dr. M.K.Srivastava, who found the following ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased :

(i) Fire arm wound of entry 2 c.m. x 1-5 cm x muscle deep oon the Lt. Side neck just below the angle of mandible 6 c.m. below the Lt. ear scorching present on the Lt. cheek, Lt. ear and Lt. side neck;

(ii) Fire arm wound of exit 3 c.m. x 2 c.m. x bone deep on the Rt. side angle of the mandible 2.5 c.m. below the Rt. ear; communicated of the mandible. Injury communicated with injury no.1.

5. As per opinion of the doctor, the death of the deceased was caused due to shock and haemorrhage on account of ante-mortem injuries sustained by the deceased.

6. P.W. 3 S.I. Banwari Lal investigated the case till 05.04.1984 and thereafter, the investigation was conducted by S.I. K.P.Singh and S.I. V.K. Sirohi. During investigation, S.I. Banwari Lal collected the blood stained and plain soil from the place of occurrence and also the blood stained cot and the seizure memos were prepared. He also seized the lantern, which was alleged to be lit at the time of occurrence at the house of Ram Swarup. After submission of the charge sheet, the case was committed to the Court of Sessions Judge and thereupon the learned trial court framed charges against all the accused persons namely Khemi, Phooli, Doji, Prahlad and Rajendra under Sections 148 and 302/149 IPC. On framing of the charges against the accused persons, they pleaded “not guilty” and claimed trial.

7. During the trial, six witnesses were examined on behalf of the prosecution to prove the prosecution story. Thereupon the statements of the accused persons were recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C. Thereafter the D.W.1 Hemant, D.W. 2 Dulichand were examined on behalf of the accused persons. After conclusion of the trial, the learned Additional Sessions Judge, Mathura vide judgment and order dated 15.02.1986 convicted the accused appellant herein for the offence under Section 302 IPC and all other accused persons namely, Phooli, Dharmraj, Rajendra and Doji were acquitted from the charges under Sections 302/149 IPC. All the accused persons were also acquitted under Section 148 IPC. After conviction of the appellant herein, he was awarded the sentence of life imprisonment under Section 302 IPC.

8. Aggrieved by the aforesaid judgment and order dated 15.02.1986, the instant appeal has been filed by the appellant.

9. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that in the instant case, the lantern has been recovered and seized by the Investigating Officer vide seizure memo dated 02.04.1984. As per the seizure memo, the lantern was containing oil at the time of seizure. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that as per the P.W.1 Teeka, the lantern was lit in the evening at 7:00 P.M. and the same lit for entire night. Therefore, it was not possible that the said lantern could be found filled with oil. He further submits that the evidence with regard to the seizure of lantern and placement of the same at the place of incident is a fabricated evidence to cover up the prosecution story and to show that there was a source of light at the time of incident. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that there are various discrepancies with regard to the location of the lantern.

10. P.W.1 in his chief-examination has stated that at the time of incident, the lantern was lit on the door of the deceased. In his cross – examination, he has stated that the lantern was kept on a niche, which was two and a half feet from the ground. The P.W. 2 also stated that the lantern was lit on the door of the deceased. The Investigating Officer has stated in his deposition that the lantern was kept at the wall, which was three and a half hands in height. From the perusal of the seizure memo of lantern, it appears that the lantern contained oil at the time of its seizure, however it is not stated as to whether it was fully filled with oil. Therefore, the submission made by learned counsel for the appellant that since it was filled with oil, that will show that it was implanted purposefully is not sustainable as the quantity of oil has neither been mentioned in the seizure memo nor it has been reflected from the cross-examination of the concerned Investigating Officer.

11. So far as the location of the lantern is concerned, all the witnesses have categorically stated that the lantern was lit near the place of incident and was kept on some height. The narration in the statements of witnesses namely P.W.1 and P.W.2 that the lantern was lit on the door of Ram Swaroop does not mean that the lantern must be kept exactly in between the door but everybody has categorically stated that the said lantern was placed on the niche of the wall at a height of two and a half feet or three and a half feet. Therefore, so far as the presence of lantern is concerned, there was sufficient evidence available on record and the minor discrepancies with regard to the exact height of the wall where the lantern was kept, has no relevance and no prudent man could have measured the exact height of the lantern from the ground. It can only be stated in approximate terms. Therefore, such discrepancies are minor in nature which are not sufficient to demolish the case of the prosecution, with regard to the presence of lantern, near the place of incident.

12. Learned counsel for the appellant has also submitted that there are discrepancies with regard to the reaching of the Investigating Officer on the spot along with the informant. He has also stated that the Investigating Officer came a little later after the informant came back. From the record, it appears in the instant case that the incident had taken place at 12:30 A.M. in the night intervening 1/2. 4.1984. The report of the incident was lodged at 2:45 A.M. on 02.04.1984 i.e. within 2 hours and 15 minutes from the time of the incident. Also from the perusal of inquest report, it appears that the inquest had started at 6:30 A.M. on 02.04.1984. From the depositions of the P.W.1 and P.W.2, it is crystal clear that the Investigating Officer has reached the place of incident a little later after the incident was reported to the police station and, therefore, the discrepancy in the statement of the P.W. 1 and P.W. 2 with regard to reaching of the Investigating Officer on the spot immediately or a little later, is not of any importance whatsoever. It would definitely not damage the case of prosecution against the appellant herein.

13. Learned counsel for the appellant further submits that the motive for committing the murder of the deceased against the appellant has also not been proved beyond doubt. Since it is a case of eye witness account and P.W. 1 and 2 had categorically stated that they had seen the appellant assaulting the deceased, therefore, the motive takes a back seat. However, P.W.1 and P.W.2 have categorically stated that the applicant had committed murder of the deceased due to the fact that the deceased had deposed against the father of the appellant and they had also very categorically stated when they had left the place of incident that they had taken revenge as the deceased had deposed against the father of the appellant.

14. Therefore, we may reject the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant out right on the ground that there were eye witnesses of the said incident and they have specifically and very clearly narrated the incident in their testimony. Therefore when there are injured or unimpeachable eye witness accounts of an incident, motive becomes irrelevant. It is a well settled legal position that in a case where there is an eye witness account, motive takes a back seat and is not of any consequence where the deposition of the eye witnesses is found trustworthy.

15. In the case of Shardul Singh Vs. State of Haryana (2002) 8 SCC 372, it has been held that :-

"motive', which is not always capable of precise proof, if proved, may lead additional support to strengthen the probability of the commission of the offence by the person accused but the absence of motive does not ipso facto warrant an acquittal."

16. Similarly, in the case of Ravindra Kumar Vs. State of Punjab, (2001) 7 SCC 690, the Apex Court has held that-

"It is generally an impossible task for the prosecution to prove what precisely would have impelled the murderers to kill a particular person. All that prosecution in many cases could point to is the possible mental element which could have been the cause for the murder. It is therefore not possible to change the tide on account of the inability of the prosecution to prove the motive aspect to the hilt.

17. Similarly in the case of State of U.P. Vs. Baburam (2000) 4 SCC 515 it has been held that-

"It is not possible to accept the view that motive may not be very much material in cases depending on direct evidence whereas motive is material only when the case depends upon circumstantial evidence. There is no legal warrant for making such a hiatus in criminal cases as for the motive for committing the crime. Motive is a relevant factor in all criminal cases whether based on the testimony of eyewitnesses or circumstantial evidence. The question in this regard is whether the prosecution must fail because it failed to prove the motive or even whether inability to prove motive would be weaken the prosecution to any would be well and good for it, particularly in a case depending on circumstantial evidence, for such motive could then be counted as one of the circumstances. However, it is generally in a difficult area for any prosecution to bring on record what was in the mind of the respondent. Even if the investigating officer would have succeeded in knowing it through interrogations that cannot be put in evidence by them due to the ban imposed by law. When the prosecution succeeded in showing the possibility of some ire for the accused towards the victim, the inability to further put on record the manner in which such ire would have swelled up in the mind of offender to such a degree as to impel him to commit the murder cannot be construed as a fatal weakness of the prosecution."

18. Similarly, in the case Thaman Kumar Vs. State of Union Territory of Chandigarh, (2003) 6 SCC 380, it has been held that-

"There is no such principle or rule of law that where the prosecution fails to prove the motive for commission of the crime, it must necessarily result in acquittal of the accused. Where the ocular evidence is found to be trustworthy and reliable and finds corroboration from the medical evidence, a finding of guilt can safely be recorded even if the motive for the commission of the crime has not been proved. Hence in the facts and circumstances of the case, the absence of any evidence on the point of motive cannot have any such impact so as to discard the other reliable evidence available on record which unerringly establishes the guilt of the accused.

19. Similarly, in the case of Yunis alias Kariya Vs. State of M.P. (2003) 1 SCC 425, it has been held that-

"Failure to prove motive for crime in our view is of no consequence. The role of the accused persons in the crime stands clearly established. The ocular evidence is very clear and convincing in this case. The illegal acts of the accused persons have resulted in the death of a young boy of 18 years. It is settled law that establishment of motive is not a sine qua non for proving the prosecution case."

20. In (1973) 3 SCC 219 (Shivaji Genu Mohite Vs. The State of Mahrashtra) the Supreme Court in paragraph 12 has held as under:

"12. As stated earlier, the fact that the prosecution in a given case has been able to discover a sufficient motive or not cannot weigh against the testimony of any eye-witness. Evidence as to motive would, no doubt, go a long way in cases wholly dependent on circumstantial evidence. Such evidence would form one of the links in the chain of circumstantial evidence in such a case. But that would not be so in cases where there are eye-witnesses of credibility, though even in such case if a motive is properly proved such proof would strengthen the prosecution case and fortify the court in its ultimate conclusion. But that does not mean that if a motive is not established the evidence of any eye-witness is rendered untrustworthy."

21. In (2017) 11 SCC 120 (Rajagopal Vs. Muthupandi alias Thavakkalai and Others) the Supreme Court n paragraph 14 has held as under:

"14. Equally, it is well established that motive does not have to be established where there is direct evidence. Given the brutal assault made on PW-1 by criminals, the fact that witnesses have turned hostile can also cut both ways, as is well known in criminal jurisprudence."

22. In any view of the matter on the perusal of the evidence on record we find that in fact motive was there and the deceased was killed for the reason that he had deposed against the accused in an earlier murder case. Nothing could be pointed out by the appellant whereby the reliability of P.W.1 and P.W.2 could be shaken.

23. Learned counsel for the appellant has further raised the question with regard to the aiming of the firearm to the deceased as the accused persons are stated to be surrounding at the left side of the cot. He further submitted that whether the gunshot was fired upon the deceased in the standing position or while the deceased was lying on the cot, has not been explained by the prosecution. Relying upon the statement of Dr. M.K. Srivastava who conducted the postmortem, learned counsel for the appellant submits that the doctor has not opined in any definite term that the said firearm injury could be caused only by a rifle and in the position in which the deceased was lying on the cot.

24. From a perusal of the deposition of Dr. M.K. Srivastava, it can be seen that it has been very categorically stated by the doctor that the injuries on the deceased were possible to have been caused by alone bullet and the Doctor has categorically stated that this injury could have been caused as per the direction of the barrel. The P.W.1 has also stated that the one leg of the deceased was on the cot and the other was on the ground. Therefore, it appears that the deceased had tried to rise from the bed after he had woken up and at that time the Firearm injury was caused from the left side of the deceased on his neck from a close distance and the injuries are corroborating the statements made by P.W.1 and P.W. 2. Therefore, the injury had been caused as per the manner described by the P.W.1 and it was a single firearm injury as has been stated by the doctor.

25. Thus from the evidence brought on record by the prosecution we find that the prosecution has succeeded in proving the case against the appellant and there is no reason to disbelieve the prosecution witnesses and therefore, we do not find any illegality in the findings recorded by the trial court, which has rightly convicted and sentenced the appellant, as aforesaid.

26. For the reasons aforesaid, we do not find any illegality or infirmity in the impugned judgment of the trial court. The conviction and sentence of the appellant awarded by the trial court is upheld. The criminal appeal lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed.

27. The appellant Kheemi is on bail. C.J.M. Mathura is directed to take him into custody in the aforesaid case and send him to jail to serve out the sentence as was awarded by the trial court and is being affirmed by us.

28. Office is directed to send a copy of this order to the court concerned within a week for compliance. The compliance report shall be sent by the court concerned to this court within a further period of fifteen days.

Counsel for the Appellants:
Sri Brij Raj Singh, Sri Akhilesh Singh, Sri Amit Tripathi, Sri Pankaj Upadhyay, Sri S.P. Tiwari

Counsel for the Respondent:
G.A., Sri P.K. Singh

(A) Criminal Law - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 147, 148, 149, 302 - Direct evidence and motive - Interested witness - evidence of interested witnesses should be scrutinized carefully but can be relied upon if found credible - significance of prompt FIR - Unless serious prejudice was demonstrated to have been suffered as against the accused, mere delay in sending the FIR to the Magistrate by itself will not have any deteriorating effect on the case of the prosecution - Motive in a case of direct evidence does not adversely affect the prosecution case - If the evidence of the eye-witness is trustworthy, there is no need to establish any motive. (Para - 48 to 61)

Appellants and his sons were accused of murder - enmity over a property dispute - attacked with firearms and a sharp weapon (Gandasa) - resulting in death - Incident occurred in broad daylight - in presence of parents and neighbours of deceased - FIR was promptly lodged - post-mortem report confirmed nature of injuries - which were consistent with use of a firearm and a sharp-edged weapon. (Para - 2 to 24 ,38,39)

HELD: - Offence of murder committed by appellants. No infirmity, illegality or perversity in the impugned judgement. Court upheld conviction and sentence against the appellants.(Para - 62,63)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajiv Gupta, J.)

1. Heard Shri Brij Raj Singh, learned counsel for the appellants, Shri Jitendra Kumar Jaiswal, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. The instant criminal appeal has been filed against the judgment and order dated 16.01.2004 passed by Additional District Sessions Judge, Court No.3, Fatehgarh, Farrukhabad in Sessions Trial No. 626 of 2000 (State Vs. Lala Ram and Others), arising out of Case Crime No. 41 of 2000, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302 IPC, Police Station Kayam Ganj, District Farrukhabad, by which the accused-appellants have been convicted for the offence under Section 147 IPC and awarded the sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment, under Section 148 IPC and awarded the sentence of three years' rigorous imprisonment, under Section 302 read with Section 149 IPC and awarded the sentence of life imprisonment with a fine of Rs. 5,000/- each with default stipulations.

3. Chief Judicial Magistrate, Farrukhabad vide his letter dated 22.03.2021 has informed this Court that appellant no.1 Lala Ram has passed away about seven months back, as such, the instant criminal appeal on behalf of appellant no.1 Lala Ram, is dismissed as having been abated.

4. Shorn of unnecessary details, prosecution story as unfurled in the FIR, is that one Satya Prakash was bearing enmity with his step uncle Lala Ram owing to dispute over a piece of land, in respect of which, civil case has been decided by the trial court in favour of Satya Prakash. Thus, on account of dispute over possession of the said piece of land, there were inimical terms between Lala Ram and his sons, on one hand and Satya Prakash on the other.

5. It is further stated that on 03.03.2000 at about 4:30 PM, while Satya Prakash was returning back to his house after purchasing some articles from the shop of Girish Chand Tailor, when he reached near the house of Durjan Lal, he was encircled on the way by Lala Ram and his sons, namely, Ram Naresh, Narottam, Mahima @ Mahipal and Karamveer. Lala Ram instigated them to kill Satya Prakash. Satya Prakash raised alarm to rescue him. Hearing his alarm, first informant Ram Chand alongwith his wife Bhagyawati, Shyam Singh, Mahaveer Singh and several other villagers rushed to save him, however, Mahima and Narottam, armed with country-made pistol, fired upon him and Ram Naresh and Karamveer, who were having Gandasa in their hands, assaulted Satya Prakash on his head, consequent to which, he fell down. Lala Ram and his sons, however, made their escape good towards their house.

6. It is further stated that while taking Satya Prakash for medical treatment and had reached near the plot of Vishram, Satya Prakash breathed his last. Leaving the dead body on the plot of Vishram, first informant visited the Police Station to lodge the report, on the basis of a written report scribed by one Rama Nand. On the basis of written report, marked as Exhibit Ka-1, a First Information Report has been registered vide Case Crime No. 41 of 2000, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302 IPC, carbon copy whereof has been drawn vide G.D. Report No.32 at 5:40 PM, which has been proved and marked as Exhibit Ka-12.

7. The first information report was registered in presence of the Station House Officer, Kayam Ganj, who was entrusted the investigation of the instant case. He recorded the statement of Head Moharrir Netra Pal Singh (PW-6) and the first informant Ram Chand (PW-1) and thereafter, proceeded to the place of incident alongwith ASI Mahaveer Singh and other police personnels. On reaching there, the Investigating Officer found the dead body of the deceased lying in the plot of Vishram and thereafter, he instructed ASI Mahaveer Singh to conduct the inquest proceedings and the inquest memo was drawn. The other relevant documents, namely, Form-13, Photo Nash, Challan Nash, Letter to C.M.O., Letter to R.I. and sample seals were prepared and thereafter, the dead body of the deceased was sent to the Mortuary for post-mortem.

8. An autopsy was conducted on the person of the deceased Satya Prakash on 04.03.2000 at 2:30 PM at Ram Manohar Lohiya Hospital, Farrukhabad. The Doctor has noted three anti-mortem injuries on his person, which are as under :-

(i). Internal examination shows that left occipital and parietal have cut under injury no.3.

(ii). 3rd, 4th, 8th and 9th ribs were fractured. Right lungs were fractured at several places.

9. The Investigating Officer thereafter reached the place, where Satya Prakash was done to death by firing shot and assaulted by Gandasa and on the pointing out of the first informant, prepared the site plan, which has been proved and marked as Exhibit Ka-8. The Investigating Officer has also collected the bloodstained earth and plain earth from the said place and kept in a separate container and prepared its recovery memo, which has been marked as Exhibit Ka-9. Thereafter, statement of other witnesses were recorded and effort was also made to apprehend the accused persons but to no avail.

10. Thereafter, on the transfer of Investigating Officer, investigation was handed over to Virendra Singh, who concluded the investigation and submitted the charge-sheet against the accused persons, which has been proved as Exhibit Ka-10. On the basis of the said charge-sheet, learned Magistrate has taken cognizance, however, since the case was exclusively triable by the court of Sessions, made over the case to the court of Sessions for trial. The Sessions Court vide its order dated 03.08.2000 framed the charges against the accused-appellants under Sections 147, 148, 302/149 IPC. The accused-appellants abjured the said charges pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

11. During the course of trial, the prosecution has examined as many as three witnesses of fact and four other formal witnesses. Their testimony, in brief, is enumerated hereunder :-

12. PW-1 Ram Chand, is the step father of the deceased and the first informant of the case, in his testimony, has stated that civil case was pending between Lala Ram and the deceased Satya Prakash before the trial court, which was decided in favour of deceased Satya Prakash, as such, Lala Ram along with his family members started bearing enmity with Satya Prakash. On 03.03.2000 at about 4:00 PM, while Satya Prakash was returning back to his house after purchasing some articles from tailoring shop of Girish Chand Tailor and when, he reached near the house of Durjan Lal, he was encircled by Lala Ram and his sons, namely, Ram Naresh, Narottam, Mahima and Karamveer. Satya Prakash in order to rescue him, raised alarm. Hearing the alarm, he alongwith his wife Bhagyawati, Shyam Singh, Mahaveer Singh reached at the place of the incident. On instigation of Lala Ram, his sons Narottam and Mahima fired at Satya Prakash from their respective country-made pistol and Ram Naresh and Karamveer assaulted him on his head by Gandasa, consequent to which, he fell down and thereafter, Lala Ram and his sons ran away towards their house. Satya Prakash, while being taken to the hospital for medical treatment, breathed his last in the plot of Vishram. Leaving the dead body there, he got written report scribed by one Rama Nand on his dictation and after putting his signatures on it, the first information report has been lodged in the Police Station. The written report has been marked as Exhibit Ka-1.

13. During cross-examination, he stated that he is the only person in the village by the name of Ram Chand. Some criminal cases were registered against the deceased Satya Prakash, however, he can not state if cases under Sections 302, 304 or 307 IPC and under Section 25 of Arms Act were registered against him. He further stated that civil case was decided in favour of Satya Prakash and against the said decision, Lala Ram had filed an appeal, however, before the appeal could be decided, Satya Prakash was done to death. He further stated that incident had taken place near the house of Shyam Singh, which on its western side is connected to his house, while Satya Prakash was returning back to his house from the shop of Girish Tailor, he was encircled on the way and only on being encircled, Satya Prakash raised alarm. Hearing the alarm, he alongwith his wife, Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh rushed to rescue him. He further stated that on the instigation made by Lala Ram, the assailants killed Satya Prakash by firing shot and assaulting by Gandasa. He further stated that at the time of incident, he has reached the place of incident and Satya Prakash, while being taken to the hospital, had reached near the plot of Vishram, Satya Prakash breathed his last. He further stated that assailants had assaulted Satya Prakash, where they have encircled him, however, Satya Prakash breathed his last at the plot of Vishram, while being taken to the hospital and his dead body was lying there.

14. PW-1 further stated that the plot of Vishram, where the deceased breathed his last, is at a distance of 100 feet from his house towards East. The distance between his house and the assailants is 200 yards towards the West. At the time, when Satya Prakash had gone at the shop of Girish Tailor, he alongwith his wife were present in their house. It is wrong to state that he had not witnessed any incident and falsely deposing in the court. It is further wrong to state that in the village, gambling was going-on and there, the deceased was killed. It is further wrong to state that Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh has falsely been nominated as witnesses. The police reached the place of the incident at 5:30 PM and conducted the inquest and completed the other necessary formalities. He further denied the suggestion that he had not witnessed the incident and on account of inimical terms, he is falsely deposing.

15. PW-2 Bhagyawati is the wife of PW-1 and mother of the deceased Satya Prakash. She stated that civil case was going-on between the deceased Satya Prakash and Lala Ram, which was decided in favour of Satya Prakash and due to this reason, Lala Ram and his sons used to bear animosity with Satya Prakash. On the day of the incident, while the deceased Satya Prakash was returning back from the shop of Girish Tailor after purchasing some articles and reached near the house of Durjan Lal, he was encircled by Lala Ram and his sons, namely, Ram Naresh, Narottam, Mahima and Karamveer and on exhortation by Lala Ram to kill, Satya Prakash raised alarm to rescue him. On hearing his alarm, she alongwith her husband Ram Chand and villagers Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh reached the place of the incident. Lala Ram instigated his sons to kill Satya Prakash, consequent to which, Mahima and Narottam opened fire, which hit the deceased Satya Prakash and Ram Naresh and Karamveer assaulted him on his head by Gandasa, due to which, he fell down. Lala Ram alongwith his sons made their escape good to their house. While Satya Prakash was being taken to the hospital and reached at the plot of Vishram, he breathed his last. Leaving the dead body there, her husband rushed to the Police Station to lodge the first information report.

16. During cross-examination, she has stated that the place, where the assailants had encircled and killed the deceased Satya Prakash, was a pakka way and lot of blood had spread there. She further categorically stated that before the fire was made, she had reached the place of incident, she alongwith her husband Ram Chand, Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh took him at the plot of Vishram, where Satya Prakash succumbed to his injuries. The police had reached within an hour at the plot of Vishram, where dead body of the deceased Satya Prakash was kept. At the time of incident, Satya Prakash had gone to buy some articles from the shop of Girish Tailor. The house of Shyam Singh is situate near the place, where the deceased Satya Prakash was killed. Hearing the alarm, she alongwith her husband Ram Chand, her daughter-in-law, Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh reached the place of the incident. She further stated that she was standing at a distance of 3-4 paces, from where, Satya Prakash was killed and at the said place, her husband Ram Chand, Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh were also present and she had seen the incident from the distance of 3-4 paces. Ram Naresh and Karamveer had assaulted Satya Prakash by Gandasa on his head, due to which, he fell down, then other sons of Lala Ram shot him and thereafter, they escaped towards their house. The police had reached the place, where dead body of the deceased was kept and prepared inquest and sealed the dead body, which was handed over to the police for carrying it to the Mortuary. She further stated that at the time, when the alarm was raised by Satya Prakash, she alongwith her husband Ram Chand were present at their house, from where, they reached the place of incident. On the alarm, Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh also reached the place of incident. The place where, she alongwith her husband Ram Chand, Shyam Singh, Mahaveer Singh had witnessed the incident, has been specifically pointed out to the Investigating Officer, however, she could not state the reason as to why Investigating Officer has not shown the said place in the site plan.

17. PW-2 denied the suggestion that the factum of witnessing the murder has not been mentioned in the FIR. She further denied the suggestion that she alongwith her husband Ram Chand, daughter-in-law, Shyam Singh and Mahaveer Singh had not witnessed the incident and only after the incident was over, they had reached at the place of incident. She denied that number of criminal cases were reported against the deceased Satya Prakash. She further denied the suggestion that when she reached at the Police Station, then with due deliberations and consultations with the police, the assailants were nominated.

18. PW-3 Shyam Singh is the resident of place of the incident. He stated that on 03.03.2000 at 4:30 PM, on hearing an alarm to rescue from near the house of Durjan Lal, he alongwith Mahaveer, Ram Chand, Bhagyawati reached the place of incident, where Lala Ram and his sons had encircled Satya Prakash. The assailants Mahima and Narottam were armed with country-made pistol, whereas Karamveer and Ram Naresh were armed with Gandasa. Seeing the witnesses, Lala Ram instigated his sons to kill Satya Prakash, then Mahaveer and Narottam fired shot with their country-made pistol, whereas Karamveer and Ram Naresh started assaulting him with Gandasa on his head, due to which, he fell down. The assailants then escaped towards their house. While taking Satya Prakash to the hospital, near the plot of Vishram, he breathed his last. He further stated that on account of animosity over civil dispute between Satya Prakash and Lala Ram, he was done to death. He further stated that house of the first informant Ram Chand is situate at a distance of 150-200 yards from his house. He further stated that at the time of the incident, bricks were kept at the plot of Bhajan Lal and on the North, where the bricks are kept, is an open field of Kishan Lal, where eucalyptus tree is planted. He further stated that the deceased Satya Prakash was returning back to his house from the shop of Girish Tailor and Satya Prakash lives in the house of Ram Chand. He further stated that the victim was killed in the plot of Bhajan Lal and not on the way. He further stated that when he heard the alarm to save, he was at his house and eucalyptus tree is planted at a distance of 150-200 paces from his house.

19. PW-3 denied the suggestion that at the time of incident, he alongwith Mahaveer was present at the house of Ram Chand and reached the place of incident. He further stated that when he reached the place of incident, Ram Chand, Pramod Kumar and Bhagyawati Devi and others were already present there. He further stated that from the place of incident, he was at a distance of 4-5 feet on the North side, where Bhagyawati and Ram Chand were at a distance of 60 feet. From the place of incident, Satya Prakash was brought in the plot of Vishram, where he breathed his last. Satya Prakash was being taken to the hospital by him, Ram Chand, Bhagyawati and others. He denied the suggestion that he had not witnessed the incident and gambling was being played in the village and Satya Prakash was also involved in the act of gambling, where he was done to death. He further denied the suggestion that any case under Section 307, 302 IPC or under Section 25 of Arms Act was registered against the deceased.

20. PW-4 is the Medical Officer at Ram Manohar Lohiya Hospital, Farrukhabad, who had conducted an autopsy on the person of the deceased and proved the autopsy report and contents thereof, which has been marked as Exhibit Ka-2. He, during cross-examination, stated that blackening and tattooing could be caused by fire being made within one meter and injury no.4 could be caused from a distance of one meter or 10 feet. He further stated that deceased could have died between 6:00 PM to 8:00 PM with the margin of six hours. He further stated that instantaneous death could be caused from ante-mortem injuries sustained by the deceased within few minutes.

21. PW-5 is the Station House Officer, in whose presence, the instant case was registered and who was entrusted with the investigation. He, after registrations of the first information report, recorded the statement of Head Moharrir Netrapal Singh and the first informant Ram Chand and thereafter, he left for place of incident alongwith other police personnel. He further stated that dead body of the deceased was kept in the plot of Vishram and on his instructions, ASI Mahaveer

Singh conducted the inquest and prepared the inquest memo alongwith other relevant documents, namely, Photo Nash, Challan Nash, Letter to R.I., Letter to C.M.O. and sealed samples were prepared after keeping the dead body in a cotton cloth, it was sent for autopsy. Inquest report and other relevant papers were proved as Exhibit Ka-3 to Exhibit Ka-7. The relevant site plan was prepared at the pointing out of the first informant Ram Chand, which has been proved as Exhibit Ka-8. The plain earth and bloodstained earth were also taken from the place of incident and were kept in a separte container, which has been proved as Exhibit Ka-9. Thereafter, on his transfer, the investigation was entrusted to Virendra Singh, who concluded the investigation and submitted the charge-sheet, which has been proved as Exhibit Ka-10.

22. During cross-examination, he stated that investigation of the instant case was entrusted to him and he has recorded the statement of the witnesses and the check report had reached the Office of Circle Officer on 06.03.2000. When, he reached the place of incident, the dead body was kept in the plot of Vishram and blood was noted there. He further stated that he had noticed the house of Durjan Lal and shown it in the site plan and on the east of the house of Durjan Lal, vacant plot of Bhajan Lal is situate. At Point "A", the deceased was done to death and the witnesses are said to have seen the incident from Point "B" and the distance between Point "A" and Point "B" is 60 paces. He further denied the suggestion that information about the incident was orally given in the Police Station and subsequently, after due deliberations and consultations, the FIR was registered. He further expressed his ignorance of the criminal cases, which are said to be pending against the deceased. He further denied the suggestion that earlier, a complaint was lodged against SHO, Kayam Ganj, District Farrukhabad in the court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Farrukhabad, as such, the police has animosity against the assailants. He further denied to have found any tailoring articles like buttons and buckram at the place of incident.

23. PW-6 is the Head Moharrir Netrapal Singh, who was handed over the written report by the first informant, on the basis of which, he has drawn the check FIR and carbon copy thereof was prepared vide G.D. Report No.32 at 5:40 PM and the case was registered vide Case Crime No. 41 of 2000, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 302 IPC and contents thereof, has been proved and marked as Exhibit Ka-11. G.D. Report whereof has been proved as Exhibit Ka-12. The said witness has not been cross-examined at all and his cross-examination has been noted to be nil.

24. Thereafter, the statement of accused-appellants under Section 313 Cr.P.C. has been recorded by putting all the incriminating circumstance to the accused-appellants. The accused-appellants have stated that they have been falsely implicated, however, defence has not led any evidence. The trial court, on appreciating the evidence on record, has held that prosecution has successfully established its case against the accused-appellants by relying upon the testimony of all the three prosecution witnesses of fact, who were present at the place and the time of incident, being the natural witnesses like parents and neighbours of the deceased residing in the vicinity closed to the place of incident, where the deceased has been done to death.

25. The explanation tendered by learned counsel for the appellants is false and inadequate.

26. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that at the time of the incident, the deceased was returning back to his house from the shop of Girish tailor master after purchasing some articles and has been killed near the house of Durjan Lal and thereafter, while being taken for medical treatment, he succumbed to his injuries at the plot of Vishram, where his dead body was kept, however, no trail of blood has been found between the two points, which makes the prosecution story doubtful.

27. Learned counsel for the appellants has next submitted that prosecution story regarding reaching of the witnesses at the place of incident after hearing the alarm of the deceased is too far-fetched and cannot be relied upon and therefore, presence of the witnesses at the time of the incident is wholly doubtful and no reliance can be placed on their testimony, which is liable to be discarded. The conviction of the appellants is, therefore, wholly illegal and is liable to be set aside.

28. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that on reaching at the place of incident and witnessing the killing of their son, PW-1 and PW-2 have not raised any alarm, which also falsifies the presence of the witnesses at the place of incident. Furthermore, except the deceased, no other person has received any injury nor the assailants had made any attempt to assault the parents of the deceased and no injury has been found on their person, which further falsifies their presence at the time and place of incident.

29. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that incident had taken place at 4:30 PM and within one hour and ten minutes, the FIR has been shown to be lodged, which practically is impossible. In fact, FIR has been lodged subsequently by making it ante-time.

30. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that no independent witness has been examined, except P.W.-3 Shyam Singh, even Mahavir Singh, who is also said to be reached the place of incident, has not been examined, which further creates serious dent in the prosecution story.

31. Learned counsel for the appellants has next submitted that motive has not been cogently established by the prosecution, yet the trial court has recorded the finding of conviction against the appellants is wholly illegal and is liable to be set aside.

32. Learned counsel for the appellants has further submitted that there has been complete non-compliance of Section 157 Cr.P.C. and therefore, prosecution story becomes doubtful. He has further submitted that in the FIR, the distance has been mentioned as 10 Kms. South-East, whereas in the Inquest Report, distance has been mentioned as 11 Kms. towards South, which further makes prosecution story doubtful.

33. Learned counsel for the appellants has next submitted that prosecution has not been able to establish its case beyond all reasonable doubts, yet the trial court has recorded the finding of conviction against the appellants, which is wholly illegal and is liable to be set aside.

35. Per contra, learned AGA has submitted that in the instant case, prompt FIR has been lodged by father of the deceased and it is broad day light murder in the presence of the witnesses, who are the parents of the deceased, being the natural witnesses. Even P.W.-3 is an eye-witness of the incident, who has also supported the prosecution story in all material particulars, except minor contradictions, which do not go to the root of the case and from their testimony, the prosecution case has been cogently and clearly established against the appellants.

36. Learned AGA has further submitted that the FIR in the instant case, by no stretch of imagination, can not be said to be ante-time and no suggestion in this regard has been given to the witnesses, as such, no doubt can be raised about lodging of the FIR at the time specified, the contrary argument made by learned counsel for the appellants is wholly not worth consideration and is liable to be discarded.

37. Learned AGA has further submitted that eye-witness of the incident has cogently and unerringly established the prosecution case against the appellants and the defence has not been able to elicit any doubt about the credibility of the said witnesses.

38. Having considered the rival submissions made by learned counsel for the parties and having gone through the material on record and the evidence adduced, it is evident that the incident is said to have taken place in the broad day light in presence of the parents and neighbours of the deceased, who are residing in the same vicinity. The FIR, admittedly, has been promptly lodged in the Police Station and the manner and place of the incident has been cogently and unerringly established by the prosecution.

39. The nature of the injury as pointed out by the Doctor in the post-mortem report, clearly indicates that injury could be caused by fire-arm and sharp edged weapon as stated by the witnesses and no doubt can be raised in respect of the injuries sustained by the deceased.

40. It is further germane to point out here that as per the prosecution case, the incident, in question, has taken place in front of house of Durjan Lal and thereafter, victim was lifted by his father alongwith other persons of the vicinity and was being taken to the hospital for providing him the medical treatment, however, on the way, victim succumbed to his injuries and as such, his dead body was kept in the plot of Vishram. It is submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that though the victim was having bleeding injuries but no trail of blood has been found in between the two places, where he has been assaulted and the place, where he died, which creates a serious doubt in the prosecution story, however, the trial court has not appreciated the evidence in right perspective and illegally recorded the finding of conviction against the appellants. It would be noted that the time of incident is day time, when large number of persons were moving on the way, where the incident is said to have taken place and as such, merely on the ground that no trail of blood was found, the entire prosecution story, which otherwise inspires confidence, can not be thrown over board. In the facts of the case, the said argument of learned counsel for the appellants is liable to be repelled.

41. It has further been submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that the place, from where, the incident is alleged to have taken place and the house of parents of the deceased is 120-130 paces and as such, after hearing the alarm of the victim, there is no possibility for the said witnesses to reach the place of the incident.

42. This argument of learned counsel for the appellants also does not hold much water in view of the fact that at the time, when the victim was attacked, he, in order to rescue himself, raised alarm under fear of death, which were heard by the witnesses, who reached the place of incident and witnessed the entire incident, which has unerringly deposed by them in their testimony, which inspires confidence. The defence has not been able to elicit any doubt about the credibility and reliability of their evidence, which has been cogently and truthfully established.

43. It is further submitted by learned counsel for the appellants that parents of the deceased, while witnessing the incident of killing of their son, had not raised any alarm nor made any attempt to save him, as such, their presence is completely ruled out from the place of incident.

44. The said argument of learned counsel for the appellants, in our considered opinion, is unacceptable as held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Leela Ram (Dead) Through Duli Chand Vs. State of Haryana and Another reported in (1999) 9 SCC 525, Hon'ble Apex Court has held that different witnesses react differently under different situations: whereas some become speechless, some started wailing while some others run away from the scene and yet there are some who may come forward with courage, conviction and belief that the wrong should be remedied. As a matter of fact, it depends upon individuals and individuals. There can not be any set pattern or uniform rule of human reaction and to discard the piece of evidence on the ground of his reaction not falling within a set pattern is unproductive and a pedantic exercise.

45. Moreover, the assailants, in the instant case, were armed with deadly weapon including fire-arm and Gandasa and therefore, witnesses did not dare to reach near the victim in order to rescue him.

46. It is further germane to point out here that on account of personal enmity with regard to dispute over a plot of land, in respect of which, civil proceedings were going-on between the parties, as such, he alone was the target of the assailants and after achieving the target of killing of the deceased, they immediately ran away. Therefore, non-receiving of the injury on the witnesses would not, in any way, effect the credibility of the prosecution case.

47. The said argument of learned counsel for the appellants is also liable to be repelled.

48. Furthermore, it is germane to point out here that the instant case is a case of direct evidence and therefore, as per the settled proposition of law, motive in a case of direct evidence pales into insignificance, however, the instant case is an outcome of property dispute between the parties, which has resulted in causing the death of the deceased. Motive in a case of direct evidence does not adversely affect the prosecution case. Motive not being apparent or not being proved only requires deeper scrutiny by the court while coming to the conclusion. Where there are different evidence, proving an incident and eye-witness account proved the role of the accused, absence in proving of the motive does not affect the prosecution case.

49. Further, it is also feebly contended on behalf of the appellants that special report was not forwarded to the Magistrate as stipulated under Section 157 CrPC instantaneously and as such, the prosecution story becomes doubtful.

50. In respect of the said submissions, it is relevant to point out here that Hon'ble Apex Court as well as this Court in several of its decisions, particularly, in Pala Singh Vs. State of Punjab (1972) 2 SCC 640 has clearly held that where the FIR was actually registered without delay and the investigation started on the basis of that FIR and there is no other infirmity brought to notice, then, however improper or objectionable the delayed receipt of the report by the Magistrate concerned, it can not by itself justify the conclusion that the investigation was tainted and the prosecution insupportable.

51. As far as commencement of the investigation, in the instant case, is concerned, our earlier discussions discloses that there was no infirmity in the case of prosecution on that score. Time and again, Hon'ble Apex Court has held that unless serious prejudice was demonstrated to have been suffered as against the accused, mere delay in sending the FIR to the Magistrate by itself will not have any deteriorating effect on the case of the prosecution.

52. In the instant case, no prejudice whatsoever has been pointed out at all, therefore, the said submission on behalf of learned counsel for the appellants can not be sustained and the judgments cited by learned counsel for the appellants is clearly distinguishable on the facts.

53. Furthermore, it is argued that in the chik FIR, the distance between the place of incident to the Police Station has been mentioned 10 Kms, whereas in the inquest report, it has been noted to be 11 Kms. The said slight difference in this regard does not have any bearing on the reliability of the prosecution case. Moreover, no suggestion whatsoever has been given to the witnesses in respect of the said fact, as such, the said argument of learned counsel for the appellants, in our considered opinion, is liable to be repelled.

54. Now, considering the submission of learned counsel for the appellants that PW-1 and PW-2 are the parents of the deceased and therefore, they are the interested and partisan witnesses, hence, their evidence could not be relied upon.

55. The above noted submission was considered by Hon'ble Apex Court elaborately way back in Dalip Singh and Others Vs. State of Punjab AIR 1953 SC 364. The Hon'ble Apex Court observed that ordinarily a close relative would not spare the real culprit who has caused the death and implicate an innocent person. His/her evidence can only be discarded when it is established that the witness has a cause, due to enmity to implicate him falsely. In Dalip Singh (supra) also, the testimonies of two women witnesses were impeached on the ground that they were close relatives of the deceased. Following principles were enunciated in Dalip Singh (supra):-

"26. A witness is normally to be considered independent unless he or she springs from sources which are likely to be tainted and that usually means unless the witness has cause, such as enmity against the accused, to wish to implicate him falsely ordinarily, a close relative would be the last to screen the real culprit and falsely implicate an innocent person. It is true, when feelings run high and there is personal cause for enmity, that there is a tendency to drag in an innocent person against whom a witness has a grudge along with the guilty, but foundation must be laid for such a criticism and the mere fact of relationship far from being a foundation is often a sure guarantee of truth."

56. In Piara Singh Vs. State of Punjab (1977) 4 SCC 452, same principles were reiterated:-

"4. The central evidence against the appellant consisted of the three eye-witnesses, namely, P.W.-3 Harbhajan Singh, P.W.-5 Chanan Kaur and P.W.-6 Kesar Kaur. It is true that the three witnesses were relations of the deceased and bore animus against the accused but as the occurrence had taken place near the door of the house of the deceased these persons were the natural witnesses and were in fact sitting in the court-yard when the occurrence took place. It may be difficult to get witnesses from the village when an assault of the type suddenly takes place in the house of the deceased. It is well settled that the evidence of interested or inimical witnesses is to be scrutinised with care but cannot be rejected merely on the ground of being a partisan evidence. If on a perusal of the evidence the Court is satisfied that the evidence is creditworthy there is no bar in the Court relying on the said evidence. The High Court was fully alive to these principles and has in fact found that the evidence of these three witnesses has a ring of truth. After having perused the evidence ourselves also we fully agree with the view taken by the High Court. In fact, the learned Sessions Judge has not made any attempt to dwell into the intrinsic merits of the evidence of these witnesses but has rejected them mainly on general grounds most of which are either unsupportable in law or based on speculation. The evidence of the eye-witnesses is sought to be corroborated by the evidence of P.W.-7 Kundan Singh to whom the whole occurrence was narrated immediately after the accused left the house. There is also the evidence of Balbir Singh, P.W.-17, who is a Sarpanch of the village and an independent witness and who proves that the appellant Piara Singh had made an extra judicial confession before him in which he admitted to have committed the murder of the deceased Surjit Singh along with his companions Kashmir Singh, Gian Singh and Joginder Singh. This witness also proves that Kashmir Singh on being narrated by the details made a disclosure which resulted in the recovery of the Kirpan from the sugar-cane field of Meja Singh for which a search list was prepared and the Kirpan was also found stained with human blood. According to the Investigating Officer an empty cartridge was also found at the spot and he sent the same to the Ballistic Expert along with the rifle recovered from Piara Singh who was a constable in the Border Security Force and the Ballistic-Expert found that the empty could have been shot from the rifle in question. These circumstances fully corroborate the evidence of the eye-witnesses. Finally, there is the medical evidence of Dr. Jatinder Singh who performed the postmortem examination on the deceased and he found as many as 7 incised wounds on the various parts of the body of the deceased and 7 incised punctured wounds on some vital parts of the body. Apart from these injuries the deceased had also sustained a gun shot injury with a wound of entry and exit on the left buttock, which according to Dr. Jatinder Singh could be; caused by a fire-arm including a rifle. The Doctor further deposed that the contusions and abrasions were caused by a blunt weapon and the other incised wounds were caused by a sharp cutting instrument like the Gandasa. Another Doctor was examined by the Sessions Judge as Court Witness No. 1 who on seeing the post-mortem report of Dr. Jatinder Singh was of the view that Injury No. 11 could not have been caused by a rifle and much capital was made by the accused but of the evidence given by Dr. Paramjit Singh."

57. A three Judge Bench in Hari Obula Reddy Vs. State of A.P. (1981) 3 SCC 675 observed as under:-

"13. ...it is well settled that interested evidence is not necessarily unreliable evidence. Even partisanship by itself is not a valid ground for discrediting or rejecting sworn testimony. Nor can it be laid down as an invariable rule that interested evidence can never form the basis of conviction unless corroborated to a material extent in material particulars by independent evidence. All that is necessary is that the evidence of interested witnesses should be subjected to careful scrutiny and accepted with caution. If on such scrutiny, the interested testimony is found to be intrinsically reliable or inherently probable, it may, by itself, be sufficient, in the circumstances of the particular case, to base a conviction thereon."

58. Again in S. Sudershan Reddy and others Vs. State of A.P. (2006) 10 SCC 163, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held as under:-

"12. We shall first deal with the contention regarding interestedness of the witnesses for furthering the prosecution version. Relationship is not a factor to affect the credibility of a witness. It is more often than not that a relation would not conceal the actual culprit and make allegations against an innocent person. Foundation has to be laid if plea of false implication is made. In such cases, the court has to adopt a careful approach and analyse evidence to find out whether it is cogent and credible.

15. We may also observe that the ground that the witness being a close relative and consequently being a partisan witness, should not be relied upon, has no substance. This theory was repelled by this Court as early as in Dilip Singh case in which surprise was expressed over the impression which prevailed in the minds of the Members of the Bar that relatives were not independent witnesses."

59. In this context, the reference may also be made to the judgement of Supreme Court in the cases of Kamta Yadav vs. State of Bihar (2016) 16 SCC 164 and Nand Kumar vs. State of Chhatisgarh (2015) 1 SCC 776.

60. Thus, we find unbroken line of authorities to the effect that the evidence of eye-witness, if found forceful, can not be discarded simply because witness is a relative of the deceased. The only caveat is that the evidence of interested witnesses should be subjected to careful scrutiny and accepted with caution. Thus, close scrutiny of testimony of eye-witness shows that they witnessed the incident, in question. The evidence of P.W.-4 Dr. P.K. Jain, who conducted the post-mortem and post-mortem report also points out conclusively to the culpability of the appellants for commission of the offence.

61. It is trite law that in case of direct evidence, the motive looses its significance. If the evidence of the eye-witness is trustworthy, there is no need to establish any motive.

62. Thus, from the statements of the witnesses adduced during the course of trial, we are satisfied that the offence of murder has been committed by the appellants. We have carefully gone through the impugned judgment and order of the trial court and satisfied that the trial court has appreciated the entire evidence on record in proper perspective and learned counsel for the appellants could not point out any perversity in the finding of the trial court.

63. Thus, we do not find any infirmity, illegality or perversity in the impugned judgement dated 15.01.2004 upholding conviction and sentence against the appellants, by the trial court in Sessions Trial No. 626 of 2000 (State Vs. Lala Ram and Others), under Sections 147, 148, 302/149 IPC. The instant criminal appeal lacks merit and is accordingly dismissed. Surviving appellants, namely, Ram Naresh, Narottam, Mahima @ Mahipal and Karamveer are directed to surrender before the court below and serve out the sentence awarded to them by the trial court and affirmed by this Court.

64. Let a copy of this judgment and order be forwarded to the court concerned along with trial court record for compliance.

1. Written Arguments submitted by learned counsel for the appellant be kept on record.

2. When on 2nd December, 1979, Virendra Kumar was shot dead, a First Information Report allegedly was got lodged on 02.12.1979 at 02:30 pm. The first informant was one Girish Kumar, the son of the deceased. In the First Information Report, it has been stated that the first informant was belonging to Mauja - Gandhaur P.S. - Chandpur, District - Bijnor. He has stated that in the year 1977 when the elder brother of his father one Sri Bhupendra Kumar was killed by Radheyshyam etc. then there were a case contested by Radhyshyam in which he was acquitted. Thereafter in the year 1978, Radheshyam himself was killed. For the murder of Radheyshyam, Virendra Kumar, the father of the First Informant, Harendra Kumar, Atul, Surendra Kumar and Dushyant, were named as accused and ever since then Radheyshaym's brother Vinod Kumar and others were inimical to Virendra Kumar the father of the First Informant and they were always in the look out for taking revenge of the death of Radheyshaym. He has stated in the First Information Report that around 15 days prior to the incident, Narayan @ Madan resident of Meerapur, District – Muzaffarnagar and the Pradhan of the village Om Prakash had contacted the father of the first informant and had stated that the date in the case of the murder of Radheyshaym was approaching and insisted that a compromise could be entered into between the parties. The first informant specifically took the name of Vinod Kumar and said that the compromise could be entered into between Virendra Kumar and Vinod Kumar who was the brother of Radhey Shyam. It has further been stated that Vinod was a teacher in Shiv Inter College, Gajraula. Still further, it has been stated that Om Prakash had taken the first informant to Gajraula for a meeting with Vinod Kumar. There, he could not meet Vinod Kumar. Later Narayan and Om Prakash told him that on 2.12.1979 it was Sunday and they had to bring Virendra and, thereafter, a compromise could be entered into and, their matter with regard to the murder case vis-a-vis Radheyshyam would be settled between the parties. When Girish, the first informant, told these happenings to his father Virendra, he did not agree with Girish and said that now the date with regard to the case of the murder of Radhey Shyam was approaching and that he was also busy with the business of crushing and therefore no meetng could take place. Thereafter, it has further been stated that on 2.12.1979 despite the fact that the father of first informant had not agreed to meet Vinod etc. for the purpose of conciliation, Om Prakash and Narayan reached the house of Virendra and he was taken from Gajraula to meet Vinod Kumar. The first informant has further stated that along with Om Prakash and Narayan, the first informant had also gone to meet Vinod. He has stated that along with Om Prakash and Narayan, Som Prakash son of Radhey Shyam residents of Bareilly and Subhash son of Roop Kishore resident of Bijnor had headed for Gajraula. Narayan had asked the first informant and all the other persons who had accompanied him to Gajraula to sit at the Almora Hotel, station road, Gajraula and, thereafter, he went away to call Vinod. It has been stated that while these persons were having tea, from the northern side, at around 2:00pm, Vinod armed with a gun and Narayan armed with a country made pistol approached the five of them, namely, Virendra, Girish, Om Prakash, Som Prakash and Subash.

3. Om Prakash instigated Vinod to kill Virendra and, thereafter, both of them i.e. Narayan and Vinod fired at Virendra, the father of the first informant, who fell down. Vinod and Narayan, thereafter ran away from the spot, but despite the fact that they were followed, they could not be apprehended. Upon unsuccessfully having tried to catch hold of the assailants, the first informant returned to the spot and over there he found that Om Prakash had also disappeared. He, therefore, stated that in a planned manner his father was brought to the place of the incident and was killed by Narayan, Vinod and Om Prakash. He had, thereafter, has stated that he left the dead body on the spot and had gone to the Police Station to get the first information report lodged.

4. Investigation, thereafter, ensued. Panchayatnama was got prepared and in the Panchayatnama, it had been stated that it commenced at 3:00PM on 2.12.1979 in the presence of 5 witnesses, namely, Trilok Singh s/o Ram Singh, Dev Singh son of Ram Singh, Mangal Singh son of Khushal Singh, Jaipal Singh s/o Dayaram and Mahendra Singh s/o Phool Singh. The first three witnesses had given out as residents of Almora Hotel, Station Road, Gajraula, while Jaipal Singh son of Dayaram Singh were a resident of Salempur, Police Station – Gajraula and Mahendra Singh son of Phool Singh had been described as resident of Mandi, Ghanaura, Bahraich. Thereafter, from the spot, the Investigating Officer kept in his custody, three articles found there, namely, one pair of shoes, a pair of socks and a coat which was blood stained. These were worn by the deceased. The recovery memo was exhibited as exhibit – Ka.11. Also the plain soil and blood stained soil were taken from the spot and a recovery memo was prepared and exhibited as Exhibit -ka.13. The recovery memo of empty cartridges was also prepared and exhibited as Exhibit – ka 14.

5. From the record, we find that the post-mortem, thereafter, was conducted on 3.12.1979 at 3:30pm. The investigation after having been completed, a police report was submitted before the Magistrate who took cognizance on 15.1.1980 and forwarded the same before the Sessions Judge for trial on 1.9.1980. Charges were framed against Vinod Kumar & Narayan @ Madan under Section 302 IPC and against Om Prakash, the charges was framed under Section 302/34 IPC. When they denied the charges, trial commenced. From the side of the prosecution 7 witnesses appeared.

6. P.W. - 1 was the first informant Girish Kumar; P.W. - 2 was Som Prakash son of Radhey Shyam; P.W. - 3 was Dr. Naveen Chandra; P.W. - 4 was Dev Singh; P.W. - 5 was Suresh Chandra; P.W. - 6 was Subhash and Chandra Pal who was the Investigating Officer was produced as P.W. - 7.

7. The trial when was concluded, the 7th Additional Sessions Judge on 5.3.1986 acquitted Narayan but convicted Vinod Kumar under Section 302 IPC and Om Prakash under Section 302/34 IPC and sentenced them to life imprisonment. Aggrieved thereof, the two accused, namely, Vinod Kumar and Om Prakash filed the instant Criminal Appeal.

8. It has been stated that the appellant no. 2, Om Prakash, died during the pendency of the Appeal and, therefore, the Appeal against the appellant no. 2, Om Prakash, abated on 2.5.2019. The appellant Vinod too had died but this Court by the order dated 2.5.2019 permitted the wife of the appellant Vinod Kumar, namely, Smt. Sushma Sharma, under Section 394 (2) Cr.P.C. to continue the Appeal.

9. P.W. - 1 in his statement-in-chief has proved the first information report and he has reiterated the facts as were mentioned in the first information report. He has tried to establish the place of incident i.e. the Almora Hotel and has narrated the facts as had, according to him, taken place. The P.W. - 1 in the cross-examination has stated that he had not mentioned this fact in his first information report that Om Prakash was with Radhey Shyam in the election of Pradhan. He has stated that in the murder of Radhey Shyam his father was wrongly implicated. He has further stated that Ramesh had got the first information report lodged with regard to the murder of Radhey Shyam against his father Virendra. He has stated that because of the implication of his father in the case, his father had to suffer a lot and he had also to remain in jail for quite sometime and had to contest the case. He has very categorically stated that Vinod Kumar was neither the first informant in the murder case of Radhey Shyam and nor was he a witness in it. He has further stated that at the time, when the murder of Radhey Shyam had taken place, Girish Kumar, the first informant was studying in Kanpur. He has also stated very categorically that in the talks which were initiated for settling the murder case with regard to Radhey Shyam around 15 days prior to the incident, the other accused in Radheyshyam murder case, namely, Surendra, Harendra and Atul had not participated and that on the date of incident also they had not come. He has also stated that nobody had brought to the fore that, in a murder case, no compromise could take place. He has stated that on the date of the incident, the father of the first informant and others, namely, Om Prakash, Narayan, Subhash and Som Prakash had started from Gandhaur which was his village. Subhash and Som Prakash, he has also stated, were not related to either of the parties. Narayan, he submits, also was not having any relation with any of the parties. He has stated that he had also accompanied the others alongwith his father. They had started from Gandhaur at around at around 9:45 AM on 2nd December, 1979 and had a mind to come back on the same night.

10. This witness has further tried to give credence to the story as was narrated in the first information report and has stated that on the date of incident he alongwith his father, Om Prakash, Narain, Subhash and Som Prakash started from Gandhaur, reached their sister's house where they had taken food which was packed with them with tea which was prepared by their sister. Thereafter, it has been stated that they had got down from the bus at the bus stand which was situate near the place of incident. Upon a question being asked as to whether Virendra had travelled to the place of incident alone, he denied. He reiterated that the Roadways Bus Stand was 35 steps away from the Hotel. He had stated that the Restaurant was a full fledged Restaurant and that the tables were laid from east-west and that the chairs were placed in such a manner that the occupants either faced the north or the south and that the occupants i.e. five persons who had reached the Hotel were sitting facing southwards and it has been stated that apart from the six persons i.e. the father and five others no one else was sitting there. Thereafter, he has tried to give the position as to in what manner the six occupants were sitting. He has stated that the Tehrir (report) was written while the informant was sitting at the Hotel on the paper which he had obtained from the Hotel itself. He has further stated that he reached the police station on a Rickshaw and that the police station was around one furlong away from the place of incident. He has specifically denied the fact that he was called later on at the spot and that he was not there at the time of incident at all. He has also stated that Virendra, before the incident, had smoked a Biri and the Biri must have fallen down at the place of incident. He has stated that the police had taken the dead body to the police station but he was not aware that how long the dead body was lying at the police station. However, he has stated that he had left the police station at 4 p.m. for his home. The first informant had stated that prior to the incident he was living in Kanpur but at the time when the incident had taken place he had returned to his village after completion of his educational course at Kanpur. He had then stated that he had done M.Sc. in the year 1978 and that he had returned to the village around 6 – 7 months prior to the death of his father.

11. P.W.-2 Som Prakash was the person who had allegedly accompanied Girish, Virendra, Om Prakash and Narain to the place of incident. In his deposition, he had stated that he had no knowledge about the incident and that in fact he did not know the three accused persons. He was thereafter declared hostile.

12. P.W.-3 Dr. Naveen Chand Pandey has proved the post mortem report.

13. P.W.-4 Dev Singh is allegedly the owner of the Hotel. He had stated that he was at the Hotel on the date and time of the incident. He did not recognize the deceased Virendra. He had stated that the incident actually occurred outside his Restaurant. He has also stated that he did not recognize the assailants. He has also stated that the Panchayatnama was not prepared in his presence and that his signature were obtained at the police station. He was declared hostile but was cross examined by the prosecution and he stood firm in his cross examination about what he had stated in his chief. However, in the cross examination done by defence counsel, he had stated that his shop was called Laxmi Mishthan Bhandhar. He has further stated that the person who had died had come from the side of Gajraula station and had come all alone and that he was not accompanied by anyone.

14. P.W.-5 is Suresh Chand, Constable and has deposed that he reached the place of incident at around 4.30p.m. on 2.12.1979 and that he had remained at the place of the Panchayatnama till the dead body was sealed and that thereafter he had taken the dead body on a vehicle of the Police to Moradabad. He has stated that the vehicle when had reached Rajjopur had developed certain defects and therefore he had reached Moradabad late. He has stated that the distance between Gajraula and Moradabad was of two hours and not of one hour. He has further stated that throughout the night he had stayed at Rajjopur in the vehicle. The defects in the machinery of the vehicle were rectified at around 8.00 a.m. and thereafter vehicle had proceeded from Rajjopur and reached Moradabad at around 10.00 a.m. on 3.12.1979. He has specifically stated that at the time of arrival, he had got his arrival recorded in the General Diary but he has specifically stated that he had not got recorded in the General Diary the fact that the vehicle had developed certain defects.

15. P.W. 6- Subhash is again the person who had accompanied Virendra, Girish, Om Prakash, Narayan and Som Prakash to Gajraula. He has stated that though he had known Virendra and Girish but at the time of incident he was not with them. He has also stated that he had not seen the assailants. This witness was also declared hostile but thereafter was cross-examined wherein he had denied all the statement which he had got recorded under section 161 Cr.P.C.

16. P.W. -7 Chandra Pal Singh, Inspector is the Investigating Officer of the case and he had stated that at the time of incident he was posted as Station Officer, Gajraula and that on 2.12.1979 Girish Kumar had reached the police station to lodge the first information report. He has proved the chik FIR. He had also stated that on the FIR being lodged he reached the place of incident and had taken the dead body in his custody and that he had deputed S.I. Surat Singh and other persons to search out the accused persons. He has further stated that the Panchayatnama was prepared in his presence and that he had also sealed the dead body and had handed it over to Constable Suresh Chandra for a post mortem examination. He has stated that he had prepared the site plan and had seized all the articles that were there in the recovery memos. He has stated that he had taken the statements of Girish Kumar, the informant, Dev Singh, Mohan Singh, Triloki and Mangal and that on the next day i.e. 3.12.1979 the statements of Som Prakash, Subhash were also taken and that the accused Narain and Om Prakash were being searched for. He has stated that on 13.12.1979 the accused Vinod had surrendered himself and on 29.12.1979 charge sheet was submitted before the court. In his cross examination he stood firm to what he had stated earlier. However, when he was specifically asked about the overwriting which had taken place in the Panchayatnama with regard to the time when the proceedings of the Panchayatnama were initiated, he has stated that some ink had spread and therefore it appeared that there was some overwriting. He has denied that before writing 0 after 3, 14 was written. He has also denied the fact that before 3 was written some other digit or figure was written. When he was questioned about the Thana and district being filled in different ink he stated that the pen and the ink were the same but because of the fact that the ink in the pen was about to finish the shine in the alphabets was different. He had stated that it is wrong to say that the name, address and age of the deceased was written by a different pen and the police station and district were written by a different pen. He has also denied the fact that the crime number was written by a different pen. He has stated that he was not remembering that the first informant had shown his hands smeared with blood. After seeing the case diary he has stated that this fact was not reduced in writing in the G.D. He had specifically stated that the witnesses Som Dutt and Subhas had not met him on the place and date of the incident and that he had stated that these witnesses had given their statements in the police station on 3.12.1979. He has also denied the fact that the FIR was actually written on a date after 2.12.1979. He has denied the fact that the Chief Judicial Magistrate had passed any orders on the application which had been filed by Vinod Kumar and Narain which was for test identification parade. He has also stated that he had not got the test identification parade done as the accused in the FIR were named and that they were known to the witnesses from before.

17. In the statements of the accused persons recorded under section 313 Cr.P.C. they have specifically denied having committed the crime and had stated that they were falsely implicated in the case due to old enmity.

18. Learned counsel for the appellant Sri Akhilesh Chandra Shukla has argued that the conviction of Vinod Kumar was wrongly done. In support of his argument, he has made the following submissions :-

(i) The signature of the first informant Girish Kumar on the Tehrir (written report) is absolutely different from the signature he had made in the statement before the Court. For this purpose, learned counsel for the appellant showed to the Court the record. This record was also shown to the learned AGA. Evidently, even by naked eyes, one can make out that definitely there were signatures in two different styles and cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be said to be of the same person.

(ii) Learned counsel for the appellant has stated that the panchayatnama, if is perused, then the time of commencement of the proceedings of panachayatnama had been stated to be 3.00 PM. It does not stand to reason that how when the incident had occurred at 2.00 PM the First Information Report could be lodged at 2.30 PM when the PW-5 had stated in his statement before the Court that he and P.W. - 7 had, in fact, reached the place of incident much later. He states that the place where the panchayatnama was being performed was around 1 kilometer away from the place of incident and, therefore, immediately on their reaching the spot, the panchayatnama proceedings could not have commenced. He has further, looking to the statement of PW-5, stated that the PW-5-Suresh Chandra had actually reached the spot at 4.30 PM along with the Sub-Inspector Chandra Pal-PW-7. Since, learned counsel for the appellant relied heavily upon the statement of PW-5, which is found at page 44 of the Paper-Book, same is being reproduced here as under :-

"मैं करीव 4 1/2 वजे शाम मौके पर पहुंच गया था। दरोगा चन्द्र पाल भी मेरे साथ थाने से गये थे उस दिन 2.12.79 तारीख थी मुझे लाश 4 1/2 वजे मिल गई थी खुद कहा हम मौके पर पहले पहुँच गये थे। मैं मौके पर जव तक पंचायतनामा भरा गया व लाश सील मोहर की गई तव तक रहा था करीव एक डेढ़ घन्टा

मौके पर रहा होऊंगा। लाश को मैं मौके से ही सवारी में रखकर मुरादाबाद ले आया था यह सवारी पुलिस की वड़ी गाड़ी थी।"

(iii) Learned counsel for the appellant to prove the fact that the PW-1 Girish Kumar was not there at the spot has stated that had PW-1 been on the spot then he would definitely have been a witness of the panchayatnama. He has further stated that Trilok Singh, Dev Singh, Mangal Singh, Jaypal Singh and Mahendra Singh were absolute outsiders and they had stated in their statements that they had not even recognised the deceased person. Learned counsel, therefore, states that under such circumstances how the name of the deceased person was recorded in the panchayatnama was also not known.

(iv) Learned counsel for the appellant has stated that the panchayatnama continued till 4.30 PM but the PW-1 had left the spot at 4.00 PM. Learned counsel relying upon the statement of PW-1, states that this becomes evident as per paragraph 31 the statement of PW-1 which is at page 30 of the Paper-Book. The statement relied upon by learned counsel for the appellant is reproduced here as under :-

" वकुअे के बाद 20-25 आदमी वहां इकट्ठा हो गये थे। जब गोली काण्ड हुआ तो हम सब चाये पी चुके थे व कप वगैरा दुकान वाले ने उठा लिये थे। मेरे पिता उस समय बीM+h पी रहे थे। बीडी मेरे पिता के हाथ में थी। माचिस व बीM+h बण्डल कहा था मैं नहीं कह सकता। बीM+h वहीं नीचे गिर गयी होगी। मैंने दरोगा जी को वह बीड़ी नही दिखाई। लाश को दरोगाजी थाने ले गये थे थाने पर लाश कब तक रही मुझे नही मालूम। मैं थाने से करीब 4 बजे शाम घर चला गया था। उस वक्त तक लाश थाने पर ही थी। थाने पर मेरे जाने से पहले न कोई लिखा पढी हुई न मेरे किसी कागज पर दस्तखत कराये। मुझे कोई कागज भी थाने से नही मिला। खुद कहा नकल की रपट मुझे दी थी। थाने से जाने के कुछ देर पहले ही दी थी।"

(v) Learned counsel for the appellant has stated that if the panchayatnama is seen and if the location which has been given of the dead body is seen then it is evident that the dead body was facing the northern direction but the PW-1 in his statement has stated that the dead body was facing the south. Since, learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon paragraph 23 of the statement of PW-1, the relevant portion of it, is being reproduced here as under :-

दखिन को हमारा मुंह था। हम छ (6) आदमियों के अलावा उस मेज पर कोई नही बैठा था। । जो पक्की सडक स्टेशन को जाती है उसके पूरब तरफ यह मेज पड़ी थी। सडक से मेज कितनी दूर थी मुझे ध्यान नही। यह मेज सड़क व होटल के बीच में पडी थी। हम सभी छओं जने बराबर 2 दखिन को मुंह किये बैठे थे

(vi) Learned counsel for the appellant has stated that from the recovery of the empty cartridges, it can be made out that only one bullet was fired but there were in fact 4-5 injuries.

(vii) Learned counsel for the appellant has stated that the details of the deceased were written in a different ink and the ink in which the police station and the district were written were very different. This fact, he says, if is taken into consideration then it could mean that the name and the details of the deceased were filled in later after P.W. - 1came on the spot.

(viii) Learned counsel for the appellant has stated that the police after had submitted the charge sheet on 29.12.1979, the Magistrate had taken cognizance of the crime on 15.1.1980 and before that, on 21.12.1979, on the application of Vinod Kumar and Narayan which says that Girish Kumar did not recognize them, an order was passed that a test identification parade be done. He, however, submits that this test identification parade was never conducted.

(ix) Learned counsel for the appellant has further stated that if the statement of Girish Kumar (P.W.-1) is perused, then also it becomes evident that he had never stated that he had recognized the accused Vinod Kumar and Narayan who were present in the Court i.e. to say that there was also no dock identification of the accused Vinod Kumar and Narayan. This non-recognition makes the case very doubtful and it gives credence to the fact that, in fact, the first informant was not present at the spot.

(x) Learned counsel for the appellant has further submitted that if the First Information Report is perused, it becomes evident that the First Information Report has gone into such minute details the recording of which is highly unlikely. He submits that in fact Om Prakash and Narayan though had met Virendra, the appellant Vinod had never met the deceased or the informant. He, therefore, submits that the entire story was a concocted story. He submits that in fact at the time of incident, the PW-1 who had got the First Information Report lodged was never at the spot of the incident and that the First Information Report was a well thought out document and this was the reason, he states, that the post mortem was also conducted almost after 24 hours of the death and not immediately when the body was sent for post mortem at around 4.30 PM on 2.12.1979. He further submits that since the post mortem had to be conducted well within a reasonable time and the First Information Report was also not lodged by the time the post mortem was conducted, there was no mention of the case crime number in the post mortem report.

(xi) Learned counsel for the appellant has stated that though the PW-2, PW-4 and PW-6 have been declared hostile, they are important witnesses and that what had been stated by them could not be just thrown out. Learned counsel for the appellant relying upon a decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Rabindra Kumar Dey vs. State of Orissa reported in AIR 1977 SC 170 has submitted that simply because a witness is declared hostile by a party which had called him would not make him an unreasonable witness so as to exclude his evidence from consideration altogether. Since, learned counsel for the appellant has relied upon paragraphs 10 and 12 of the judgment, the same are being reproduced here as under :-

10. Before proceeding further we might like to state the law on the subject at this stage. Section 154 of the Evidence Act is the only provision under which a party calling its own witnesses may claim permission of the Court to cross-examine them. The section runs thus:

The section confers a judicial discretion on the Court to permit cross-examination and does not contain any conditions or principles which may govern the exercise of such discretion. It is, however well settled that the discretion must be judiciously and properly exercised in the interests of justice. The law on the subject is well settled that a party will not normally be allowed to cross-examine its own witness and declare the same hostile, unless the Court is satisfied that the statement of the witness exhibits an element of hostility or that he has resiled from a material statement which he made before an earlier authority or where the Court is satisfied that the witness is not speaking the truth and it may be necessary to cross-examine him to get out the truth. One of the glaring instances in which this Court sustained the order of the Court in allowing cross-examination was where the witness resiles from a very material statement regarding the manner in which the accused committed the offence. In Dahyabhai v.

State of Gujarat, (1964) 7 SCR 361 at pp. 368, 369, 370: (AIR 1964 SC 1563 at p. 1569) this Court made the following observations:

"Section 154 does not in terms, or by necessary implication confine the exercise of the power by the Court before the examination-in-chief is concluded or to any particular stage of the examination of the witness. It is wide in scope and the discretion is entirely left to the Court to exercise the power when the circumstances demand. To confine this power to the stage of examination-in-chief is to make it ineffective in practice. A clever witness in his examination-in-chief faith- fully conforms to what he stated earlier to the police or in the committing court, but in the cross-examination introduces statements in a subtle way contradicting in effect what he stated in the examination-in-chief. If his design is obvious, we do not see why the Court cannot, during the course of his cross-examination, permit the person calling him as a witness to put questions to him which might be put in cross-examination by 'he adverse party."

"Broadly stated, the position in the present case is that the witnesses in their statements before the police attributed a clear intention to the accused to commit murder but before the Court they stated that the accused was insane and, therefore, he committed the murder."

A perusal of the above observations will clearly indicate that the permission to cross-examine was upheld by this Court because the witnesses had categorically stated before the police that the accused had committed the murder but resiled from that statement and made out a new case in evidence before the Court that the accused was insane. Thus it is clear that before a witness can be declared hostile and the party examining the witness is allowed to cross-examine him, there must be some material to show that the witness is not speaking the truth or has exhibited an element of hostility to the party for whom he is deposing. Merely because a witness in an unguarded moment speaks the truth which may not suit the prosecution or which may be favourable to the accused, the discretion to allow the party concerned to cross-examine its own witnesses cannot be allowed. In other words a witness should be regarded as adverse and liable to be cross-examined by the party calling him only when the Court is satisfied that the witness bears hostile animus against the party for whom he is deposing or that he does not appear to be willing to tell the truth. In order to ascertain the intention of the witness or his conduct, the Judge concerned may look into the statements made by the witness before the Investigating Officer or the previous authorities to find out as to whether or not there is any indication of the witness making a statement inconsistent on a most material point with the one which he gave before the previous authorities. The Court must, however, distinguish between a statement made by the witness by way of an unfriendly act and one which lets out the truth without any hostile intention.

12. It is also clearly well settled that the mere fact that a witness is declared hostile by the party calling him and allowed to be cross-examined does not make him as unreliable witness so as to exclude his evidence from consideration altogether. In Bhagwan Singh v. State of Haryna, (1976) 1 SCC 389,391-92: (AIR 1976 SC 202 at p. 203), Bhagwati, J. speaking for this Court observed as follows:

"The prosecution could have even avoided requesting for permission to cross-examine the witness under section 154 of the Evidence Act. But the fact that the Court gave permission to the prosecutor to cross-examine his own witness, thus characterising him as, what is described as a hostile witness, does not completely efface his evidence. The evidence remains admissible in the trial and there is no legal bar to base a conviction upon his testimony if corroborated by other reliable evidence."

(xii) Learned counsel for the appellant very categorically states that if the statement of PW-2 is perused then it becomes evident that this witness who allegedly had accompanied the deceased and the First Informant at the place of incident, when had stated that he did not recognize the persons who were the accused in the case, then that statement could not be simply thrown out. The witness Som Prakash was much relied upon by the PW-1 and when he states certain facts then in conjunction with all the other facts, namely, that the panchayatnama had no witness known to the deceased; the panchayatnama had interpolations and the post mortem report had no case crime number, could not be simply thrown away. It had to be given some credence and the case had to be decided accordingly. Similarly, learned counsel for the appellant states that when the prosecution was throughout trying to base its case on the fact that the incident had occurred at Almora Hotel the owner of which was Dev Singh and when Dev Singh had himself stated that he did not recognize Vinod Kumar and that the panchayatnama was not written in his presence and that the signature of his was taken subsequently then the case of the prosecution becomes doubtful. This again in view of what had been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant, cannot be simply thrown out. He further submits that when the PW-4 Dev Singh had stated that he had noticed that the deceased (whose name was not known to him) had walked into his restaurant alone from the side of Gajraula Station then also his statement cannot be thrown out without considering its evidentiary value.

(xiii) Learned counsel for the appellant has further stated that the evidence of PW-6 Subhash, who again was a much relied upon witness throughout by the PW-1 when had turned hostile could not be junked as he had stated that he knew Girish Kumar and Virendra Kumar but when he had refuted the claim of PW-1 that he had accompanied him, then that statement cannot be lightly ignored. Learned counsel for the appellant, therefore, has submitted that the fact that PW-1 was on the spot becomes doubtful. Learned counsel states that the fact that panchayatnama was prepared immediately at the time of incident also becomes doubtful. Still further, learned counsel for the appellant states that the presence of such persons who the PW-1 alleged were there at the time of incident, for the arguments which have been made earlier, also becomes doubtful.

(xiv) Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the guilty could have been convicted even on the witness of a sole witness had it been reliable but in the instant case the evidence of even the sole witness i.e. P.W. - 1 was absolutely unreliable. He submits that the evidence of P.W. - 1 becomes unreliable also because of the fact that he had borne grudges for the past so many years. For this purposes, he relied upon a decision of the Supreme Court in Namdeo vs. State of Maharashtra reported in AIR 2007 SC (Supp) 100, and has submitted that the value of every piece of evidence had to be seen and evaluated individually.

19. Learned AGA Sri Amit Sinha has, however, opposed the appeal and has submitted that all such evidence of the crime specially with regard to the presence of the witnesses; the ante-dating of the First Information Report; the fact that the panchayatnama was interpolated are subject matters which were looked into by the Trial Court and the Trial Court after having seen the relevancy and admissibility of evidence had concluded that the appellants were to be convicted and this Court therefore may while reassessing the evidence acquit the accused-appellant. He submits, therefore, that when the PW-2, PW-4 and PW-6 had turned hostile then definitely their statements could not be looked into and cannot be considered while deciding the case.

20. Having heard learned counsel for the appellant Sri Akhilesh Chandra Shukla and the learned AGA Sri Amit Sinha, we are of the view that the appeal deserves to be allowed. Learned counsel for the appellant has very successfully created a doubt in our minds with regard to the presence of PW-1 at the spot. The PW-1 in the First Information Report had come up with a case that he was accompanied by the deceased Virendra Kumar and four other persons. A perusal of the statements of PW-2 and PW-6 definitely shows that they were not in the know of the incident. PW-2 Som Prakash had stated that he did not even know the three accused persons. PW-4 had stated that even though he did not know the deceased Virendra Kumar, with regard to PW-1, he has stated that he was not at the place of incident. PW-4, who is the witness of the panchayatnama, and should have known about the deceased, as no one from the family was a witness in the panchayatnama, has stated in his statement that he had seen the deceased walk in to his restaurant and that too all alone. This falsifies the case of the PW-1 absolutely and demolishes the case as was taken by him in the First Information Report and, thereafter, also when he had led his evidence.

21. The statements and the discrepancies as had been pointed out by learned counsel for the appellant with regard to the interpolations in the panchayatnama coupled with the fact that no witness of the family was a witness in the panchayatnama have to be definitely noted in this judgment. The ink in which the names, age and sex of the deceased was written was an absolutely different ink from the one in which the names of the police station and the district were written. Further more, there is a definite interpolation with regard to the time when the panchayatnama proceedings were initiated. The panchayatnama even by the interpolated time had started at 3.00 PM but the PW-5 Suresh Chandra and PW-7 Chandra Pal who ought to have been there at 3.00 PM, had stated in their statements that they had in fact reached the place of incident at 4.30 PM. This definitely raises a doubt in the mind of the Court as to whether the time at which the proceedings of the panchayatnama were initiated was interpolated.

22. Also, we are of the view that when the PW-1 had not identified the accused Vinod Kumar and Narayan in the Court (i.e. to say there was no dock identification) then the application which the accused Vinod Kumar and Narayan had made for a test identification parade gains importance. When the application was made on 21.12.1979, the Chief Judicial Magistrate had not taken cognizance of the case which was actually taken on 15.1.1980 and we find from the record that in fact the Chief Judicial Magistrate had also passed orders for the test identification parade. This identification having not taken place definitely renders the evidence of Girish Kumar absolutely worthless, inasmuch the accused Vinod Kumar and Narayan were throughout saying that Girish Kumar did not recognize them. If the P.W. - 1 Girish Kumar had never identified the alleged assailant Vinod Kumar then all evidence which he had led becomes absolutely worthless.

23. For the reasons stated above, the appeal succeeds and is allowed. The judgment and order dated 5.3.1986, so far as it concerns the appellant, Vinod Kumar is set aside and is quashed. The appellant Vinod Kumar who, as of today is dead, is acquitted of the charges which were levelled against him.

24. The appeal stands allowed so far as the appellant Vinod Kumar is concerned.

1. Upon an incident having taken place on 26.07.2007 at around 6:30 P.M., wherein three persons, namely Ram Murti, s/o Mohkam Singh, Malkhan Singh, s/o Ratan Singh and Pappu, s/o Mohkam Singh, had died, a First Information Report was got lodged at 8:15 P.M. (20:15 P.M.) by one Sri Shyam Singh (PW-1), s/o Mohkam Singh. Upon the First Information Report being lodged, the Police got into action and thereafter recoveries of the dead bodies was done. Thereafter, the inquest report was prepared by Sri R.D. Gautam (PW-3). The investigation, thereafter, ensued and a charge-sheet was submitted against five accused persons namely Kishan Singh, Vipin, Pravesh, Manoj and Rajveer. At the time of submission of the charge-sheet, initially on 17.10.2007, the accused Pravesh and Manoj were absconding. Subsequently, when they were found out the Police submitted its charge-sheet. Initially charges were framed against Kishan Singh, Vipin and Rajveer on 21.04.2008 u/S 147, 148, 149, 302 and 504 I.P.C in Case Crime No. 412 of 2007. The sessions trial was numbered as 112 of 2008. Upon taking cognizance by the Magistrate and thereafter after the trial being placed before the Sessions Court, the latter initially framed charges against Vipin in Sessions Trial No. 112 of 2008 under sections 147, 148, 302, 504 I.P.C. and thereafter charges were framed against Kishan Singh and Rajveer in the same session trial under sections 147, 148, 149, 302 and 504 I.P.C. Subsequently the charges were framed against the accused Pravesh and Manoj under sections 302/149, 148, 147, 504 IPC in Sessions Trial No.538 of 2008. Against the accused Vipin, separate charge under section 25 of the Arms Act was also framed in Sessions Trial No.113 of 2008. The accused persons were read over the charges and they denied the charges and claimed trial.

2. From the side of the prosecution, there were five prosecution witnesses who were examined. Shyam Singh, s/o Mokam Singh was produced as PW-1; Rakesh Kumar, s/o Om Prakash was produced as PW-2; Sub-Inspector R.D. Gautam, who had prepared the inquest report, was examined as PW-3 and the Doctor Ajay Agarwal, who had conducted the postmortem and had proved the postmortem report, was examined as PW-4. The Inspector Rakesh Sharma, who was the Investigating Officer of the case, was examined as PW-5.

3. The PW-1, Shyam Singh, who appeared in the witness box and gave his examination-in-chief on 15.09.2008 stated that on 26.07.2007, his cousin Rakesh Kumar alongwith him was going on a tractor trolley of one Harprasad, from Sadabad to Rasgawan. Alongwith them, three persons, it has been stated, namely his uncle Malkhan Singh and his brothers Ram Murti and Pappu, were also travelling on the tractor. When the tractor trolley reached near the field of Chandrapal, then Kishan Singh, Manoj, Vipin Pravesh and Rajveer accosted the tractor on two motorcycles and got the tractor trolley stopped. He states that from the tractor trolley, uncle Malkhan Singh and his own brothers Ram Murti and Pappu, were pulled down by the three accused namely Vipin, Pravesh and Manoj and Kishan Singh and Rajveer exhorted the accused Vipin, Pravesh and Manoj that the three may not go alive. At this exhortation, Vipin, Pravesh and Manoj, took out their country made pistols from their belts, which they were wearing at their waist and shot at uncle Malkhan, brothers Ram Murti and Pappu, as a result of which the three died on the spot. He has stated that he himself alongwith Rakesh ran towards the fields and they raised a hue and cry, as a result of which a lot many people from the Village- Rasgawan came on the spot. He has further stated that upon the crime having been committed, the accused persons ran away firing in the air on their motorcycles. He has specifically stated that the incident occurred at 6:30 P.M. He has further stated that there was a legal case with regard to their agricultural fields, which was going on in the Court and after attending the case they were returning home. He has stated that because of this case the accused persons had enmity with them. He has proved the first information report and had stated that he had himself lodged the same at the police station. The written report, which he had proved, was marked as Exhibit 4-अ/3. He has further stated on 26.07.2007, the panchayatnama of the dead-bodies of Ram Murti, Malkhan Singh and Pappu, were prepared in his presence. He has stated that when the panchayatnama was prepared, he was a witness therein. The Inspector had also got his signature on the panchayatnama and had also got his views about the incident and the panchayatnama was exhibited as क-2, क-3, क-4.]

4. In his cross-examination, however, the PW-1 has stated that the written report (Tehrir) was written while he was sitting at the Roadways Bus Stand. He specifically states that the report was not written at the Police Station. He then states that the report was written while sitting in a shop and when he was sitting in the shop, the time was 9:15 P.M. and then he clarifies that the shop was of STD/PCO. He states that the paper on which the report was written was brought by his cousin (bua's son). He further states that the cousin had come to his village one day prior to the incident. He clarifies that he had not gone to his village after the incident. He further states that when the cousin (bua's son) had come to him, the Police had also reached the place of incident. The police had, thereafter, alongwith his cousin, brought the first informant and other persons to the Police Station. He states that the cousin had come from Agra. He further states that the information was scribed by PW-1 himself. It was not written on the dictation of anybody. Upon being asked as to how the cousin had reached him, he states that probably the villagers had phoned him up. He specifically stated that at that point of time, the dead bodies were in the premises of the Bus Stand, in a Police Van, at the time when the information was being written down. He then reiterates that the writing of the information took place at around 9:15 P.M. He specifically states that at 9:15 P.M., the dead bodies were not lying at the Bahardoi Crossing (Teeraha). He, thereafter, specifically states that the dead bodies were sealed at the place of incident at around 8:30 P.M. He further states that the Thana- Hasanpur was around 20 Kilometres from Sadabad. Upon being probably asked as to whether the case in the District Court of Hathras was in the Lower Court or the Appellate Court, he states that he was not aware whether the case was in the Lower Court or the Appellate Court. He, however, states that his counsel at Sadabad was one Mahesh Chand Sharma. He then further states that he had, in fact, not gone to the courts. The uncle Malkhan, brother Ram Murti and Pappu alone had gone to the court. He still further states that Rakesh (PW-2), who was his uncle's son had also gone to the Court. He states that it was wrong to say that there was no date fixed in the case on the date of incident. In the further cross-examination, which was done on 22.09.2008, the PW-1 states that he was not aware as to whether on the date of incident any case was fixed in Sadabad. He states that as a routine he used to go to Sadabad everyday. Then, he states that he used to go to Sadabad on tractor as he was employed by someone at Sadabad. Then, he further states that in Kukargawan, one Rohitash Singh had employed him in a dairy. Then, he states that he was commuting daily between Kukargawan and Sadabad and he rarely went to his village. He further states that on the date of incident, he was returning from Kukargawan. He states that the milk, which he was carrying, was being transported by a tanker and that he used to drive the tanker. He further states that the accused persons had come on two separate motorcycles. Pravesh, Kishan and Rajveer were on one motorcycle whereas Manoj and Vipin were on the other motorcycle. One motorcycle was being driven by Manoj and the other motorcycle was being driven by Pravesh. He, however, had stated that he was not aware about the name and number of the motorcycle.

5. In his further cross-examination, the PW-1 states that when the accused persons had come near the tractor, they were having their country made pistol in their hands and when they had pulled down the deceased persons then also they were having their country made pistols in their hands. He specifically states that throughout the fire arms were never in the belt, which they were wearing and he states that it was such a fact which he had also got stated in the first information report. Upon being confronted with the F.I.R. he states that he did not know as to how in the F.I.R., it had been stated that the accused persons had taken out the fire arms from their belts. He states that when the incident occurred, he was sitting in the trolley attached to the tractor and when the accused persons were around 10 to 12 yards away, he had already seen them. He states that the deceased persons were sitting on the tractor and they were not sitting in the trolley. He specifically states that he knew the difference between a tractor and a trolley. He states that the accused persons had pulled down the deceased from the tractor and they were not taken out from the trolley. He states that if he had stated in the first information report that they were pulled out from the trolley, then it was a wrong fact. He also states that if he had stated in the examination-in-chief that they were pulled out from the trolley, then also it was stated inadvertently. He states that he had told the Investigating Officer also that the deceased were pulled down from the tractor and if the Investigating Officer had not written about the fact that the deceased had been pulled out from the tractor then he did not know why that statement had been written and in fact he states that if the Investigating Officer had written that the deceased were pulled out from the trolley then it was a wrong fact. He further states that in the tractor and on the trolley there were 8 to 10 people. He specifically states that he had not got their names recorded in the complaint despite the fact that he knew the names of those persons. He states that he had not given names of the persons present in the trolley as they were not ready to be the witnesses in the case. He states that the tractor belonged to one Har Prasad, who was a resident of his village and he states that the tractor was being driven by his son. He further states that the moment he had seen the accused persons, he had jumped out from the trolley and had run away and that before the incident had actually occurred, he had run across 2 to 4 fields. He specifically states that Rakesh had also jumped out and run away in the same direction i.e., towards the village-Rasgawan. He specifically states that what happened after they had run away was not known to him. However, he was not aware as to how many rounds of firings he had heard. He states that he had run towards the village for help. He further states that when people from the village reached the spot, then he had come thereafter. The three deceased had died on the spot. He states that village- Rasgawan was one kilometre away from the place of incident and when he came back, the motorcycles were not there. The tractor trolley had also gone to the village. He states that he had seen that the accused persons had run away from Bahardoi. Probably, there was no mention about the presence of food in the dead body at the time of postmortem and when the question was put, then, PW-1 states that he did not know as to whether the deceased had taken food when they left their homes. He further states that when the spot was shown to the Police, it was around 9 or quarter to 9 and this showing of the spot was done after the First Information Report was got lodged. To show that the PW-1 was in the tractor, the PW-1 states that even though routinely the PW-1 used to go on bus or tempo, he had traveled by tractor on that day as he had got the tractor as a means of travel on that day incidentally.

6. When the accused Pravesh and Manoj were apprehended, the court framed charges against them on 01.04.2009, the PW-1 was again brought in for his statement-in-chief and cross-examination on 09.07.2010. Here again, he reiterates what he had stated in the examination-in-chief, earlier. He reiterates that the first information was actually written down by him at around 9:15 P.M. He states in his cross-examination that the panchnama of the dead bodies was done prior to his getting the First Information Report lodged and he states that the Police had reached the spot on the information given by someone else. He states that on the date of incident at around 3:00 P.M., he had returned from Kukargawan and that thereafter he had stayed there and at around 6:30 P.M. he was still at the village- Kukargawan and he had received information at Kukargawan itself about the incident and upon getting the information, he came to village Rasgawan. He states that when he had reached the place of incident, the Police had already reached before him and the primary investigations were going on. He further states that from Kukargawan, he had come on a motorcycle to the place of incident. He states that he had neither seen any motorcycle nor any tractor trolley. He also states that he was not aware as to who was present in the tractor. He further states that he was not aware as to who had called Rakesh (PW-2) at the place of incident. From where Rakesh had appeared, he had no knowledge. He states that the distance between Kukargawan and Rasgawan was two and a half to three kilometres and that as soon as he has heard about the incident at Kukargawan, he reached the spot. He further states that when he reached the place of incident, quite a few people had collected at the spot and that the three deceased had already died.

7. The PW-2, Rakesh Kumar, s/o Om Prakash, on 21.10.2008, appeared in the witness box and gave his statement-in-chief and stated that the incident was of 26.07.2007 and the PW-2 and Shyam Singh were on the tractor of Harprasad. He further states that Kishan, Rajveer, Pravesh, Vipin and Manoj, came on motorcycles. They got down from the motorcycles, came to the tractor trolley which they had stopped and thereafter fired. From the tractor Malkhan, Ram Murti and Pappu, were pulled out by Vipin, Manoj, Kishan, Pravesh and Rajveer, wherein Kishan and Rajveer had exhorted the other three that the deceased may not escape alive. At the exhortation, Manoj, Pravesh and Vipin took out their country made pistols from their belts, which they had tied on their waists and fired on Malkhan Singh, Ram Murti and Pappu and upon being shot at they immediately fell down on the spot. He further states that Shyam Singh (PW-1) and he himself had seen whole incident with their own eyes. However, upon the firing having taken place, the two had jumped out from the trolley and had run away towards Bardohi. He further states that in the trolley there were many other persons sitting.

8. In the cross-examination, the PW-2 has stated that on the date of incident at around 12:00 P.M., the PW-2 had started from Sadabad. He had stated that there were many cases pending against Malkhan Singh. However, he states that he had not gone to the courts on the date of the incident alongwith the deceased. He states that even though there were 15 to 20 cases against Malkhan Singh, there was only one case in between Malkhan Singh and the accused persons. He specifically states that Malkhan Singh, Ram Murti and Pappu, were sitting in the trolley attached to the tractor and that he too was also sitting in the trolley. He states that Shyam Singh (PW-1) had gone to Sadabad in connection with the delivery of milk and that Shyam Singh had, in fact, come to the spot on a milk tanker. He states that Shyam Singh had driven the tanker and at that time he was accompanied by one more boy, whose name he did not remember. He states that Shyam Singh and the boy, who accompanied him, had come from Kukargawan. He states that Shyam Singh had gone from the village- Rasgawan to Kukargawan and from Kukargawan, he had taken milk and had gone to Sadabad. He states Shyam Singh had stayed in his village- Rasgawan, for about an hour, after the incident. He states that the fact that Shyam Singh had stayed at his village for an hour, after the incident, was not told to him by anybody but it was from his personal knowledge that he was stating this fact. He also states, as has been stated by PW-1, that in the tractor trolley, there were 10 to 12 people sitting and they were all from his village and he also knew them. However, he did not know the women sitting in the tractor. He states that the panchnama of the dead bodies took place between the 8:30 P.M. and 9:00 P.M. He further states that apart from him, the witnesses of the panchnama were Jaswant (Pradhan), Ram Gopal and Neetu. He states that the Police had reached the spot one and a half hour after the incident and they were called by the villagers of some other village on the phone. He states that the Police had reached the spot even before he had reached. He states that nobody had called him on the spot but because the other villagers were going, he had accompanied them upon hearing the hue and cry.

9. PW-2 further states that the accused persons had fired in the air and had stopped the tractor. He further states that when the firing took place, Shyam Singh ran away towards Bardohi. He states that he also ran towards Bardohi. Still further, he states that at the time when the accused pulled out the deceased, the two i.e. Shyam Singh and Rakesh had already jumped out from the trolley and had run away. He specifically states that Pappu had been pulled out by Manoj, Malkhan had been pulled out from the trolley by Vipin and Pravesh had been pulled out by Ram Murti and these three the persons (deceased) were sitting by the side of the trolley attached to the tractor. He states that the accused persons had pulled out the deceased victims from the trolley.

10. PW-2 further stated that the accused persons had also tried to catch hold of him and PW-1 Shyam Singh but they could not do so as they had already run away by that time. He further states that at the time when the accused had gone into the trolley, they were empty handed. The accused had got into the trolley and after that they had pulled out the three deceased and before they pulled them out from the trolley, there was some physical altercation also. He states that the accused persons had fired on the deceased after two or three minutes when they had pulled the victims out from the trolley.

11. The PW-3 Ram Dev Gautam (Sub-Inspector) who had prepared the inquest gave his statement on 14.1.2011 and had proved the inquest reports Exhibit Ka-2, Ka-3 and Ka-4. He had also proved the related documents being Exhibit Ka-9, Ka-10, Ka-11 and Ka-12. He has stated in his cross examination that he had reached the spot and had prepared Exhibit K-2 on the spot at 23.00 hours (11.00 PM) and had prepared Exhibit Ka-4 at 2200 hours (10.00 PM) and Ka-3 at 2400 hours (12.00 PM) and then all the three dead bodies were sent for post-mortem. He has also stated that the three dead-bodies, before being sent for the post mortem, were lying at the spot till 12.00 PM. Upon being confronted by the statements of Shyam Singh PW-1 with regard to the dead bodies being sealed at 8.30 PM, he had stated that he was telling the truth and that the statement of Shyam Singh was a wrong one. He has throughout through his statements stated that the statements of the witness Shyam Singh were irrelevant and wrong.

12. PW-4 Dr. Ajay Agarwal who had conducted the post-mortem had stated that on 27.7.2007, he had conducted the post-mortem and had proved the post mortem reports and had given his opinion that the death had occurred because of the injuries caused by firing. He had also stated that he did not mention the fact as to whether there was food in the stomach and in the intestines of the dead-bodies and he had still further stated that it was wrong to state that he had not mentioned about the food in the dead bodies of the deceased because this fact gives the probability to ascertain the right time of death. He specifically had stated that on the dead bodies of the deceased, there were no physical injuries other than the injuries caused by firing.

13. PW-5 is the Investigating Officer Sub-Inspector Rakesh Sharma. He has proved the site plan and the recovery of the country made pistol. He has stated that upon the recovery being made of the firearms at the behest of the accused Vipin, the firearms and the bullets etc. were sent to the ballistic expert on 12.3.2008. He states that the delay had occurred despite the fact that the District Magistrate had given the permission on 9.10.2007. He had stated that in between 9.10.2007 and 12.3.2008 the firearm and the bullets samples etc. could not be sent as there were other businesses to perform and, therefore, he could not send the samples expeditiously. The Investigating Officer has, upon being questioned as to why he had not put Guddu, the driver of the tractor, in the list of witnesses, answered that it was a correct fact that he had not taken any statement of the independent witness namely Guddu. He has also stated that at the time of the incident, there were Amar Singh son of Vasdev; Brijmohan son of Ram Khiladi; Bhole son of Mauji; Sunil Kumar; Anil Kumar and Susheela Bahan Ji sitting on the tractor trolley but he had not taken the statements of these persons. He has stated that he had not taken the statements of these persons as they were not ready to give their statements and he had even mentioned this fact in his inquiry report. He had stated that he knew the difference between a tractor and a trolley attached to it. He has stated that the witnesses had told him at the time of investigation that the three deceased were sitting in the trolley and that they were not sitting on the tractor.

14. CW-1 Constable 170 Har Narayan Singh has proved the death of accused-Rajveer.

15. Thereafter statements were taken of the accused persons under section 313 Cr.P.C. and the accused persons namely Kishan Singh and Vipin had stated that all the evidence were got prepared and were a bundle of lies and that the reports were all false. They denied the incident saying that they had been falsely implicated due to enmity.

16. From the side of the accused persons, DW-1 Guddu was produced and examined who allegedly was the driver of the tractor which was carrying the three deceased namely Ram Murti, Pappu and Malkhan and also the PW-1 and PW-2. However, the DW-1 in his statement had categorically stated that the PW-1 Shyam Singh and PW-2 Rakesh were not sitting in his tractor trolley. He also in fact had stated that Rajveer, Kishan Singh, Manoj, Pravesh and Vipin had not killed Ram Murti, Pappu and Malkhan after pulling them out from the tractor. He states that he would recognize the accused assailants. He also states that he does not even remember the number of the tractor.

17. Upon trial having been completed, the District & Sessions Judge, Hathras on 24.3.2012 convicted the accused Kishan Singh, Pravesh, Manoj and Vipin under section 302 read with section 149 IPC. With regard to the offences under sections 147, 148 and 504 IPC, no conclusion was arrived at. Under section 25 of the Arms Act, the accused Vipin who was charged under section 25 of the Arms Act, was acquitted. During trial, accused Rajveer died on 10.11.2010 and, therefore, the trial had abated viz.-a-viz. Rajveer.

18. Sri Apul Mishra, learned counsel appearing for the appellants assisted by Sri Atul Kumar, Advocate in effect argued that the appellants were innocent and that they had been wrongly implicated. Following were the arguments raised by learned counsel for the appellants :-

(i) Learned counsel for the appellants states that though the incident occurred but the appellants were not the ones who had committed the crime. Learned counsel relying upon the statements made by the PW-1 and PW-2 has stated that the eye-witness account of the PW-1 and PW-2 were absolutely not convincing. Learned counsel took us through the statements made by PW-1 Shyam Singh and has stated that despite the fact that Shyam Singh had lodged the First Information Report on 26.7.2007 and the FIR clearly had stated that it was being lodged at 20.15 (8.15 PM). Shyam Singh had stated in his cross-examination that the written report was scribed by him at around 9.15 PM while sitting at a STD shop in the neighbouring bus stand. He had stated that the paper on which the complaint/written report was written was brought to him by his cousin (Bua's son) and on it he scribed the report. Learned counsel states that this is in direct contravention to the time which had been given in the FIR. Relying upon this contradictory statement of the PW-1, learned counsel states that the statement of the eye-witness PW-1 becomes very unreliable and the evidence can be said to be a shaky one and not to be relied upon for convicting the accused.

(ii) He further states that in the statement of PW -1 it had been stated that the dead bodies were sealed and were in the police van stationed at the bus stand while he was writing down the written report but the Investigating Officer, PW -5, in his statement had stated that he had not received the information with regard to the incident on phone and he had reached the spot on his own on getting information at about 10:00 PM and at that point of time the dead bodies were still lying on the spot.

Since the learned counsel for the appellants compared the statements of PW-1 and PW-5, they are being reproduced here as under:-

"मै कक्षा 8 तक पढा लिखा हूँ। F.I.R. थाने के बाहर लिखी थी। रोडवेज बस स्टेन्ड पर बैठ कर लिखी थी। दुकान पर बैठकर (का० फटा) थी। रात के सवा नौ बज रहे थे दुकान किसकी थी मुझे नही मालुम। दुकान STD की थी। रिपोर्ट लिखने के लिए कागज मेरी बूआ का लडका लेकर आये थे। बुआ का लडका मेरे घर पर एक दिन पूर्व घूमने आया था। मै घटना स्थल से गाँव नही गया था। जब तक बुआ का लडका घटना स्थल पर आ चुका था तब तक मौके पर पुलिस आ चुकी थी। पुलिस मुझे तथा मेरे बुआ के लडके तथा अन्य व्यक्तियों को लेकर थाने आई थी। मेरी बूआ का लडका आगरा से आया था। F.I.R. मैंने स्वय लिखी थी किसी ने बोली नही थी। मेरी बूआ का लड़का बब्लू मुड़ी जहांगीर पुर का रहने वाला है। विजय कुमार पुत्र उदयभान सिंह भी मेरी बूआ का लडका है जो हसनपुर का रहने वाला है।"

The statement of the P.W.-5 which states that the dead bodies were lying at the place of incident at 10:00PM is being reproduced here as under :-

"मुझे इस घटना की सूचना फोन से नही मिली थी, मै रिपोर्ट दर्ज होने से पहले घटना स्थल पर नही पहुँचा था, मैं घटनास्थल पर करीब दस बजे पहुँचा था और उस समय तक लाशें घटना स्थल पर मौजूद थी।"

(iii) The counsel for the appellants has stated that the statements of PW-1 and PW-2 with regard to the fact that as to whether the deceased Ram Murthi, Pappu and Malkhan were sitting on the tractor or trolley is not reliable. In the first information report, the PW-1 had stated that the deceased were sitting in the trolley whereas in the cross-examination he has categorically stated that the deceased were, in fact, sitting on the tractor and they were, in fact, pulled out from the tractor. The PW-2 has, in direct contravention to what had been stated by PW-1, had stated that the deceased were sitting in the trolley. Upon being cross-examined, the two witnesses had clearly stated that they knew the difference between a tractor and a trolley and, therefore, the statements, learned counsel for the appellants states, of the two eyewitnesses becomes absolutely unreliable.

(iv) The counsel for the appellants has questioned about the presence of the PW-1 and PW-2 also. He has stated that PW-1 has, in the first information report, stated that he was sitting in the tractor trolley when the incident occurred. However, in the cross-examination, he has stated at one point of time that when he saw the assailants coming he alongwith PW-2 had jumped out and had run away and at another point of time he had stated that he was, in fact, working for a businessman who was dealing in milk and that he was, in fact, in Kukargawan at the time when the incident had occurred and that he later on came by a motorcycle upon getting the information that the incident had occurred.

(v) Learned counsel for the appellants has further relying upon the statements of PW-2 stated that even PW-2 was not clear as to whether the PW-1 and PW-2 were present at the time of incident.

He states that PW-2 has very categorically stated that at the time when the incident had occurred the two i.e. the PW-1 and PW-2 had already jumped out from the trolley and had ran away.

(vi) Learned counsel for the appellants has further stated that had the witnesses been on the spot they would not have given contradictory statements as to whether the firearms were taken out from the waist of Vipin, Pravesh and Manoj or whether the firearms were in their hands. In the First Information Report, it has been stated that at first firing was done in the air and the tractor was stopped and the deceased victims were pulled out from the trolley and thereafter at the exhortation of Kishan and Rajveer, the three assailants i.e. Vipin, Pravesh and Manoj had taken out the pistol from their waists and had shot the bullets whereas in the cross-examination of PW-1 and PW-2, a contrary statement had been given that the three assailants namely Vipin, Pravesh and Manoj had throughout held the firearm in their hands and along with the firearms they had entered the trolley and pulled the three victims out and killed them.

(vii) Learned counsel for the appellants has stated that the tractor trolley as per the PW-2 and 5 had around 10-12 other persons in it. They all were known to the PW-1 and PW-2 but their names were not mentioned in the list of witnesses and that they were also never produced in the witness box. They were uninterested witnesses as compared to PW-2 and the PW-1 who was the brother of Pappu and Ram Murti and the nephew of Malkhan. He, therefore, states that only on the basis of an unreliable interested witnesses, the conviction of the accused could not take place.

(viii) Learned counsel for the appellants also has further submitted that despite the fact that the PW-5, the Investigating Officer, was in the know of the fact that the driver was Guddu and that he was a neutral person, PW-5 had not examined Guddu even at the time of the investigation and, therefore, definitely he was not produced in the witness box. He submits that the driver of the tractor namely Guddu was produced as DW-1 and was cross-examined by the parties and he, as per the learned counsel for the appellants, has very categorically stated that even though the incident had occurred, definitely, Rakesh and Shyam Singh were not there in the tractor trolley. This, learned counsel states, was a conclusive evidence of the fact that the PW-1 and PW-2 who were claiming themselves to be eye-witnesses, were in fact not present at the spot.

(ix) The DW-1 has further in definite terms had stated that the appellants were not the assailants in the incident and he could identify the actual assailants. Thus, learned counsel for the appellants submits that though the incident has taken place but the appellants were not the actual assailants and they have been implicated due to enmity.

(x) Learned counsel for the appellants Sri Apul Mishra has further submitted that the whole investigation becomes doubtful in view of the fact that the Exhibit Ka-8 which has been prepared by the Investigating Officer PW-5 shows that the Investigating Officer has signed the documents on 29.7.2007 whereas the seizure of the empty cartridges was done on 26.7.2007. He further states that if the statement of PW-5 is seen then it would become clear that in fact he had seized the empty cartridges on 27.7.2007.

19. Learned AGA Sri Amit Sinha assisted by Ms. Mayuri Mehrotra has argued that if the incident has been proved to have occurred and if the injuries were proved by the medical report then even if there were certain discrepancies in the statements of PW-1 and PW-2 then the conviction was proper and that the appeal be dismissed. Learned AGA has submitted that as the recovery of arms was done at the pointing of Vipin, it was only indication of the fact that Vipin was definitely involved in the incident. Also, he has submitted that there was absolutely no ground whatsoever to exonerate the appellants.

20. We have heard learned counsel for the appellants Sri Apul Mishra assisted by Sri Atul Kumar and the learned AGA Sri Amit Sinha for the State. The counsel appearing for the appellants has argued primarily that two eye-witnesses i.e. PW-1 and PW-2 were not reliable eye-witnesses. There is contradiction in the statements of PW-1 to a very large extent. Initially, it was stated that the deceased were sitting inside the trolley but subsequently the PW-1 had stated that they were sitting on the tractor and that the deceased was pulled out from the tractor.

21. Learned counsel for the appellants has stated that even though the PW-1 in the first information report has stated that he was sitting in tractor trolley, in his cross-examination he had stated that he alongwith PW-2 had jumped out of the tractor trolley and at the point of time when the incident had occurred, he was not there in the tractor trolley.

22. Still further in the cross-examination, the PW-1 had stated that he was working for a businessmen and that, in fact, at the time of the incident, he was at Kukargawan and that he reached the spot later on by a motorcycle.

23. Learned counsel for the appellants has still stated that even the statement of PW-2 was not reliable as his statement was in contradiction to the statement of PW-1. The PW-2 had stated in his cross-examination that at the time when the incident had occurred, both the PW-1 and PW-2 were not there in the tractor trolley and that they had at an earlier point of time jumped out of the trolley.

24. Still further, we find substance in the argument of learned counsel for the appellants that when the eye-witnesses were giving eye-witness account, they would not have given contradictory statement as to whether the fire-arms, from the beginning till the firing taken place, were in the hands of the appellants or whether they were in their waist and that they were taken out at the time of firing.

25. We also find substance in the argument of learned counsel for the appellants that had the PW-1 and PW-2 been at the spot and had witnessed the incident then they would definitely have mentioned the names of 10 to 12 persons who were accompanying them and the deceased persons in the tractor trolley.

26. We also find substance in the fact that the PW-5, the Investigating Officer, had despite the fact known the name of the driver of the tractor never examined and had never included him in the list of witnesses. We also find substance in the argument of learned counsel for the appellants that the recovery of the empty cartridges was done in a very slipshod manner. Even though the seizure of the empty cartridges was done on 26.7.2007, the document showing the recovery was signed on 29.7.2007. The manner in which the prosecution witnesses had changed there stand about the fact as to how they had witnessed the incident makes the entire prosecution story unreliable. Even though it is correct that minor discrepancies should be ignored, we find that the discrepancies are of such a nature which cannot be ignored and we thus hold that the appellants were in fact not guilty of the crime as the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond reasonable doubt against the appellants herein.

27. The appeals are, therefore, allowed. The judgment and order 24.3.2012 is set aside. The appellants before us, in both the appeals, are declared innocent and are acquitted of the charges levelled against them in the instant case. The appellant-Kishan Singh is already on bail. Therefore, his bail bonds as well as sureties are discharged.

28. In the instant case, the appellant-Pravesh was declared juvenile vide order dated 24.3.2018 by the Juvenile Justice Board, Hathras after his conviction by the impugned order and in pursuance of the order dated 24.3.2018, he was released in the instant case. The appellant-Vipin was also declared juvenile vide order dated 10.5.2018 by the Juvenile Justice Board, Hathras and was released in the instant case. The appellant-Manoj is in jail. He shall be released forthwith unless required in any other case.

THE HON'BLE NALIN KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Criminal Appeal No. 10336 of 2023

Vikram Singh ...Appellant
Versus
State & Anr. ...Respondents

Counsel for the Appellant:
Sri Anil Kumar Pathak, Sri Vijay KUmar

Counsel for the Respondents:
G.A.

(A) Criminal Law - Attachment of Property under Gangster Act - Reference made under Section 15(1) - U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 - Section 2(b), 2(c), 14, 15(1), 16, 17 - Must be a nexus between the commission of any offence and the acquisition of the property – Nexus between "reason' and "belief' - District Magistrate's order attaching property must be based on reasonable belief and not arbitrary - For the purpose of enquiry, the Court is empowered to take any evidence and to summon any person as a witness as it considers necessary - If the appellant was not a gangster at the time of acquiring the property, he could not commit an offence under the Act - Burden of proof lies on State to prove property was acquired through commission of offence. (Para - 9,10,11,12,14)

Appellant's vehicle attached under Gangsters Act - attachment order challenged before D.M. and ASJ – rejected by both court - Vehicle purchased in 2016, prior to appellant's involvement in criminal cases - appellant contended - vehicle was financed through a bank loan and agricultural income - not criminal earnings - Special Judge, Gangster Act affirmed seizure - prompting this appeal. (Para 2-5,12)

HELD: - Attached vehicle was acquired by appellant with the aid of his earnings from legal resources and not due to commission of any offense under the Act. Impugned orders were not reasoned orders. D.M. only attached vehicle based on a police report. State had to initially prove the appellant was a gangster, but the claimant had to prove in the negative. Impugned order of attachment was arbitrary and mechanical. Enquiry under Section 16 of the Act was not performed in accordance with the Act's proceedings and object. Entire proceeding initiated under Sections 14, 15, and 17 was vitiated. Impugned judgment and order quashed. Property vehicle 'Scorpio' attached in the matter was released from attachment forthwith. (Para -15,16)

Appeal allowed. (E-7)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Nalin Kumar Srivastava, J)

1. In the present criminal appeal the judgment and order dated 5.11.2022 passed by Special Judge Gangster Act / Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Aligarh in Criminal Misc. Case No. 330 of 2022, which is a reference made to the court under Section 15(1) of U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 (hereinafter referred to as "Act") whereby the orders of the District Magistrate, Aligarh dated 13.8.2021 seizing / attaching the vehicle of appellant under Section 14 of the Act as well as order dated 23.5.2022 dismissing the objection moved by the appellant have been affirmed, has been questioned.

2. The facts of the case, in brief, are that the District Magistrate, Aligarh passed an order under Section 14(1) of the Act seizing / attaching the vehicle of the appellant on the basis of report of in-charge Inspector, Police Station Pisawa, District Aligarh dated 29.7.2021, submitted through S.S.P., Aligarh. It was mentioned in the report that during investigation of Case Crime No. 88 of 2021 under Section 2/3 of the Act, it was found that appellant owned a vehicle Scorpio bearing registration no. UP 81-BL2333 which was purchased with illegally earned money as gangster in the year 2016.

3. Against the aforesaid attachment / seizure order, the appellant made a representation under Section 15(1) of the Act to the District Magistrate, Aligarh, who dismissed the same and affirmed the order of attachment dated 13.8.2021. Simultaneously, he referred the matter to the Court of Additional Sessions Judge, Gangster Act under Section 16(1) of the Act vide order dated 23.5.2022. The appellant approached the competent Court at Aligarh but his application was rejected by the Special Judge Gangster Act / Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Aligarh vide order dated 5.11.2022. Feeling aggrieved with the said order, this criminal appeal has been preferred by the appellant before this Court.

4. Heard Shri Anil Kumar Pathak, learned counsel for the appellant, Shri Nitesh Kumar Srivastava, learned A.G.A. and perused the record.

5. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the appellant that the appellant has been falsely implicated in two criminal cases i.e. Case Crime No. 71 of 2021 under Sections 420, 272, 273, 120-B IPC and 60(1) Excise Act, P.S. Pisawa, District Aligarh and Case Crime No. 72 of 2021 under Sections 420, 272, 273, 467, 468, 471, 120-B IPC and 60(1) Excise Act, P.S. Pisawa, District Aligarh. On the basis of pendency of the aforesaid two cases, proceeding under the Act was initiated by the Station House Officer, P.S. Pisawa, district Aligarh against the appellant. It is also submitted that the Scorpio vehicle said to be in his possession was purchased with the money earned by him. He took a loan of Rs. 12,50,000/- from Canara Bank, S.M.E. Branch, Aligarh on 31.5.2016 and repaid the same by way of EMI for Rs. 20,255/-. He had filed income tax return showing his income in the years 2015-16 as Rs. 10,15,504/-, 2016-17 as Rs. 6,23,497/-, 2017-18 as Rs. 09,39, 162/-, 2018-19 as Rs. 03,18,350/-, 2019-20 as Rs. 03,01,350/-. It is further submitted that he had paid the cash money of Rs. 03,06,200/- from the earning of agricultural products. It is further submitted that the District Magistrate, Aligarh did not consider the plea of appellant and arbitrarily confirmed his order of attachment while rejecting his representation and holding that the vehicle was procured by illegally earned money by a gangster as a result of commission of an offence triable under the Act and referred the case to Special Judge Gangster Act, Aligarh. It is further submitted that the Additional Sessions Judge, Court no. 4, Aligarh passed the order dated 5.11.2022, under challenge in this appeal, upholding the orders of the District Magistrate dated 13.8.2021 and 23.5.2022 and dismissed the application of the appellant which is illegal and against the mandate of law.

6. Learned A.G.A. vehemently opposed the contentions made by learned counsel for the appellant and submitted that the Court concerned after examining all the facts and evidence on record passed the impugned order and there is no illegality in the same.

7. I have considered the rival submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the entire record carefully.

8. Before examining the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the parties, it is appropriate to first consider the provisions of Section 2(b) and 2(c) of the Act, which read as under:

"2(b). "Gang" means a group of persons, who acting either singly or collectively, by violence, or threat or show of violence, or intimidation, or coercion or otherwise with the object of disturbing public order or of gaining any undue temporal, pecuniary, material or other advantage for himself or any other person, indulge in anti-social activities, namely-

2(c). "gangster" means a member or leader or organiser of a gang and includes any person who abets or assists in the activities of a gang enumerated in clause (b), whether before or after the commission of such activities or harbours any person who has indulged in such activities;"

9. On a conjoint reading of Section 2(b) and 2(c) of the Act, it appears that for taking action under Section 14 of the Act against a person, there must be material for objective determination of the District Magistrate that he either, as a member, leader or organiser of a gang acquired any property as a result of commission of any offence under the Act. There must be nexus between his criminal act and the property acquired by him. His mere involvement in any offence is not sufficient to attach his property, as it is necessary to find out whether his acquisition of property was a result of commission of any offence enumerated in the Act being a gangster. Further, one might have committed several offences but if the property is acquired by him with the aid of his earning from legal source, no action under Section 14 of the Act can be taken against him.

10. Section 14 of the Act reads as under :

"14. Attachment of property*.- (1) If the District Magistrate has reason to believe that any property, whether movable or immovable, in possession of any person has been acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of an offence triable under this Act, he may order attachment of such property whether or not cognizance of such offence has been taken by any Court.*

(2) The provisions of the Code shall mutatis mutandis apply to every such attachment.

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of the Code the District Magistrate may appoint an Administrator of any property attached under sub-section (1) and the Administrator shall have all the powers to administer such property in the best interest thereof.

(4) The District Magistrate may provide police help to the Administrator for proper and effective administration of such property."

This Court had an opportunity to go through the various judgments of this Court viz. Smt. Rashida Bano vs. State of U.P. and others, 2014 6 ADJ 575, Badan Singh @ Baddo vs. State of U.P. and others, (2001)10 AHC CK 0033, Smt. Maina Devi vs. State of U.P., 2013 9 ADJ 542, Waseem Khan vs. State of U.P., 2023 LawSuit (All)751 and Criminal Appeal No. 2130 of 2021 (Abrar vs. State of U.P. and another), decided on 23.10.2021 propounding legal dictums on the subject and a co-joint reading of the same leads to draw a conclusion that Section 14 clearly provides that the order of the District Magistrate attaching one's property, must be based on reason and not arbitrary. The expression "reason to believe" appearing therein has some intent and purpose. It puts fetter in the arbitrary exercise of power of attachment to deny a person of his right to any property. Law requires that there must be reason to believe that the property sought to be attached, has been acquired by a "gangster' as a result of commission of any offence under the Act. The expression "reason to believe" contemplates an objective determination based on intelligent care and deliberation involving judicial review, as distinguished from purely subjective consideration. There must be rational and intelligible nexus between "reason' and "belief'. The word "believe' is a much stronger word than "suspect' and it involves the necessity of showing that the circumstances were such that a prudent man must have felt convinced in his mind that what has been alleged, is true. The expression "reason to believe" is also defined in Section 26 of the Indian Penal Code. According to the said definition, a person is said to have "reason to believe' a thing, if he has sufficient cause to believe that thing but not otherwise. "Reason to believe" is not the same thing as the "suspicion' or "doubt' and mere seeing also cannot be equated to believing. "Reason to believe" is a higher level of state of mind. The Court, of course, cannot investigate into the adequacy or sufficiency of the reasons examined by the authority in coming to the believe, but the Court can certainly examine whether the reasons are relevant and have a bearing in the matter in regard to which it is required to entertain the belief.

11. To add further, it is to be kept in mind that initial burden is always upon the State to satisfy the District Magistrate with necessary materials that the appellant being a gangster acquired the properties as a result of commission of any offence mentioned in Section 2 of the Act. So far as the present case is concerned, this has not been done by the State. It is also to be kept in mind that the appellant / aggrieved is not liable to establish the source of income to acquire the property in question. It is no requirement of law that the aggrieved person seeking release of properties from attachment must prove the source of income for acquisition thereof. There must be a nexus between the commission of any offence and the acquisition of the property. It reflects from the perusal of the impugned order passed by the District Magistrate concerned that he being influenced by the report of the police, hastened to exercise power under the Act and attached the property in question in absence of any material to show that the said property was acquired as a result of commission of any offence triable under the Act.

12. This fact cannot lose sight of that prior to the year 2021, there was no criminal case lodged against the appellant and the property in question was purchased by him prior to the year 2021 but in the year 2016 and thus, at that point of time he was not a gangster and in this situation the requirement of law does not fulfil at all. If the appellant was not a gangster at the time of acquiring the property, he could not commit an offence under the Act. It is an admitted case that the vehicle in question was purchased by the appellant in the year 2016 when he was having no criminal history to his credit and he was not a gangster.

13. Sub-sections (3) and (5) of Section 16 of the Act, which are relevant, are as under:

"3 (a) On receipt of the reference under sub-section (1) or an application under sub-section (2), the Court shall fix a date for inquiry and give notices thereof to the person making the application under sub-section (2) or, as the case may be, to the person making the representation under Section 15 and to the State Government, and also to any other person whose interest appears to be involved in the case.

(b) On the date so fixed on any subsequent date to which the inquiry may be adjourned, the Court shall hear the parties, receive evidence produced by them, take such further evidence as it considers necessary, decide whether the property was acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of an offence triable under this Act and shall pass such order under Section 17 as may be just and necessary in the circumstances of the case.

(5) In any proceedings under this Section the burden of proving that the property in question or any part thereof was not acquired by gangster as a result of the commission of any offence triable under this Act, shall be on the person claiming the property, anything to the contrary contained in the Indian Evidence Act notwithstanding."

14. The Court while dealing with the reference made under sub-section (2) of Section 15 of the Act has to see whether the property was acquired by a gangster as a result of commission of an offence triable under the Act and has to enter into the question and record his own finding on the basis of the inquiry held by him under section 16 of the Act. Sub-section (3)(b) of Section 16 of the Act provides that the Court shall hear the parties, receive evidence produced by them and take such further evidence as it considers necessary to decide whether the property was acquired by a gangster as a result of the commission of an offence triable under the Act and shall pass such order under Section 17 as may be just and necessary in the circumstances of the case. In the present case the appellant has shown before the Court concerned the source of money whereby he purchased the aforesaid vehicle (i) from the loan of Rs. 12,50,000/- taken from Canara Bank, Aligarh, (ii) Rs. 2,00,000/- from the earning of agricultural products of ancestral properties, and (iii) from the earning of his three shops allotted to him as excise contractors for which Rs. 01,06,200/- has been paid as income tax by him in the financial year 2016-17. In the impugned order, the Court concerned while dealing with the matter has observed that the appellant had leased out his agricultural land for two years and received Rupees Two Lakhs and made down payment in respect of the said car but he did not prove it by presenting the person to whom he had leased his agricultural land. It is true that the appellant has not presented the person to whom he had leased his agricultural land before the Court but sub-section (3)(b) of Section 16 of the Act empowers the Court to take such further evidence as it considers necessary to decide the issue. It was held in State of U.P. vs. Manoj Kumar Pandey, 2010 (69) ACC 1 that "For the purpose of enquiry, the Court is empowered to take any evidence and to summon any person as a witness as it considers necessary." But in the matter in hand such power has not been exercised by the Court. If the Court concerned was of the view that the person, to whom land was given on lease, ought to have been presented before the Court, he could very well be summoned by the Court itself but instead of proceeding in this direction, the Court concerned acted in a hasty manner and did not consider this aspect of the matter. The District Magistrate concerned has also not considered the fact that at the time of procuring the vehicle the appellant was not a gangster and rejected his representation.

15. Hence, keeping in view the facts and circumstances of the case the Court is of the view that the vehicle, which was attached, was acquired by the appellant with the aid of his earning from legal resources and it was not a result of commission of any offence triable under the Act and the impugned orders are not reasoned orders. It appears that only on the basis of the police report, the District Magistrate has attached the vehicle in question and no relevant material was supplied to the District Magistrate to have reason to believe that the property in question was acquired by the gangster, the present appellant, as a result of commission of any offence triable under the Act though it was incumbent upon the State to initially prove that the appellant was a gangster who has allegedly acquired the property by way of commission of offence and after its proof burden lies on claimant to prove in negative. It vitiates the subjective satisfaction of the District Magistrate also. From the perusal of record it also appears that the District Magistrate had no relevant material in support of the police report with regard to that the vehicle in question was acquired by the present appellant being gangster. It also appears that the appellant was having enough source of income from which he had procured the vehicle and even the said vehicle was procured by him much prior to the registration of criminal cases and imposition of provisions of Act against him, which was invoked in the year 2021 and the impugned order of attachment was passed in mechanical manner without application of mind and was arbitrary. The enquiry under Section 16 of the Act was not performed in accordance with the proceedings and object of the Act and the provisions of Sections 14, 15 & 17 of the Act were also not followed in true spirit. Hence, the entire proceeding initiated in pursuance thereof is vitiated.

16. In view of the discussions made above, in my view the impugned judgment and order dated 5.11.2022 passed by Special Judge Gangster Act / Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 4, Aligarh in Criminal Misc. Case No. 330 of 2022, which is a reference made to the court under Section 15(1) of U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, the orders of the District Magistrate, Aligarh dated 13.8.2021 seizing / attaching the vehicle of appellant under Section 14 of the Act as well as order dated 23.5.2022 are liable to be quashed and the appeal is liable to be allowed. Accordingly the aforesaid orders are quashed and the appeal is allowed. The property vehicle 'Scorpio' attached in the matter shall be released from attachment forthwith.

17. Copy of this judgment be transmitted to the Court / District Magistrate concerned for necessary compliance.

1. Heard Sri Gambhir Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and Mrs. Manju Thakur, learned A.G.A.-I for the State respondents.

2. This writ petition is preferred under Article 226 of Constitution of India inter-alia with following reliefs:-

"(i). Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of certiorari to quash the impugned orders dated 07.10.2023 and 16.12.2023 passed by respondent no.4, whereby the petitioner/ victim has been ordered to undergone medical examination in respect of case crime no. 34 of 2023, Under Section 498A, 323, 354, 504, 420 IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act, Police Station- Mahila Thana, District Moradabad.

(ii) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent nos. 2 & 3 to take necessary action for conducting potency test/medical examination of respondent no.5 in K.G.M.U. Lucknow as advised by the board of the doctors of District Hospital Moradabad in place of L.L.R.M. Medical College, Meerut.

(iii) Issue a writ order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding the respondent nos. 2 & 3 to conduct fair and impartial investigation of case crime no. 34 of 2023, Under Section 498A, 323, 354, 504, 420 IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act, Police Station- Mahila Thana, District Moradabad within stipulated period."

3. The brief facts as per prosecution case are that the marriage of the petitioner was solemnized with 5th respondent (husband) on 26.01.2023 with Hindu rites and rituals but the marriage could not be consummated on account of impotency of her husband. Consequently, a written report dated 01.07.2023 was submitted by the petitioner at Police Station Mahila Thana, District Moradabad, alleging that the respondent nos.5 to 8 had inflicted cruelty on her and concealed the fact of impotency of her husband by birth with the petitioner. The aforesaid case was registered as Case Crime No.34 of 2023 under Sections 498A, 323, 354, 504, 420 IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act, Police Station Mahila Thana, District Moradabad.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the petitioner herself is a victim of offence under Sections 498A, 323, 354, 504, 420 IPC and 3/4 D.P. Act and therefore, there was no reason to advise the petitioner to undergo medical examination (Gynecology Examination). She herself had raised a question of impotency of her husband/accused and demanded his potency test. Further, it is contended that her husband was medically examined by the Doctor of T.M.U. Hospital, Moradabad on her request and according to the supplementary report of the doctor dated 01.08.2023, petitioner's husband was found suffering from phimosis disease, which is the main cause for impotency.

5. It is also contended that her husband was well aware that he was not in a position to perform sexual intercourse and in fact, he is an impotent person. Without divulging the said fact, the marriage has been solemnized. It is also alleged that during the investigation, in most arbitrary manner, the Investigating Officer had deleted Sections 354 and 420 I.P.C. as the case had been made out against the accused persons under Sections 354 and 420 IPC. Therefore, it is pressed that the impugned orders are illegal, arbitrary and against the provisions of law, wherein the respondents had no authority to compel the petitioner to undergo the medical examination. In case of marriage, physical relationship or mental relationship is a condition, which is persistent and regular to make the consummation of marriage essential. Non-consummation of marriage was the sore point of the wife (petitioner) due to which she lodged the FIR against the respondent nos.5 to 8. Moreover, once the petitioner alleged that her husband is impotent and cannot cohabit, then in such situation the petitioner cannot be asked to undergo medical examination. Hence, the impugned orders are illegal, arbitrary and the same are liable to be set aside.

6. Per contra, Mrs. Manju Thakur, learned A.G.A.-I has vehemently opposed the writ petition and submitted that the impugned orders (medical advises) were passed by the authority concerned after considering all the aspects of the matter. Moreover, once the petitioner's husband had raised an objection that the petitioner wife refused to cooperate with him in sexual intercourse, then in such situation one sided version cannot be accepted and the petitioner cannot refuse to get herself medically examined. Moreover, in the instant case, on the instance of the petitioner, once the husband had already undergone the medical examination then the refusal by the petitioner for medical examination is in fact interference in the ongoing investigation in the matter. In support of her submission, she has placed reliance on the judgment of High Court of Uttarakhand at Nainital in Ameet Bhuvan vs. Smt. Bhaskar[1]. She lastly submits that said disputed fact cannot be pressed under Article 226 of Constitution of India. The writ petition is devoid of merit and the same is liable to be dismissed.

7. Heard rival submissions and perused the record.

8. From perusal of the pleadings as well as Annexures available on record, it transpires that initially, the petitioner lodged an FIR against her husband as well as other in-laws (respondent nos.5 to 8) with the allegation of mental and physical cruelty regarding non-fulfillment of demand of dowry. The petitioner in addition to physical cruelty had also alleged that her husband was in fact impotent since birth and same had been concealed by the private respondents. On account of his impotency, the marriage could not have been consummated. In pursuance of the FIR the investigation was carried out. Even though, initially the charge sheet was forwarded to the Circle Officer concerned, to which the objection was raised by the petitioner that the respondents had not ensured to get the potency test of her husband and in collusion with the respondents, the investigating officer had forwarded the chargesheet.

9. It further reveals that on account of the protest of the petitioner, further investigation was carried out by the concerned police authority in pursuance of which the medical examination of the petitioner's husband was conducted by the Medical Board at District Hospital Moradabad. Thereafter, the Board advised for reference to L.L.R.M. Medical College, Meerut or K.G.M.U. Medical College, Lucknow vide it's report dated 20.09.2023 for further specialised tests/medical examination i.e. Neurologist, Urologist, Psychiatrist, Endocologist, which can only be carried out at the super-speciality hospital and the same is not available at District Moradabad. Meanwhile, the petitioner approached this Court by means of Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.12827 of 2023 (Upasna Kumari Vs. State of U.P. and 6 others) with a prayer for fair, impartial and proper investigation in respect of the aforesaid Case Crime, wherein, a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 20.09.2023 had proceeded to dispose of the writ petition in the light of judgment in Ajay Kumar Pandey vs. State of UP and others[2], by granting liberty to the petitioner to invoke the power of the Magistrate concern under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C.

10. Pursuant to the aforesaid order, the petitioner moved another application under Section 156 (3) Cr.P.C. before the concerned Magistrate. After hearing and perusal of the record, the Civil Judge (Junior Division), FTC, Moradabad (Crime Against Women) had asked a report from the investigating officer alognwith the case diary and passed an order dated 21.10.2023 with following effect:-

11. The Chairman, Medical Committee, LLRM Medical College Meerut made a communication to the Principal LLRM Medical College, Meerut on 07.10.2023 that Mudit Kumar (petitioner's husband) may be directed to be present on 11.10.2023 at 01:00 p.m. before the surgery department as per advice given by Dr. Shivendu of Endocology Department and Dr. Tarun Pal of Psychiatric Department. In this backdrop, the members of the Medical Committee had unanimously resolved that as the complainant had made a complaint against her husband regarding his impotency and capacity to copulate, therefore, the petitioner may also be medically examined by the Gynecologist and CMO Moradabad and a report be submitted to the Committee in sealed cover. The petitioner is aggrieved with the said advise, specially for undergoing medical examination by the Gynecologist and the application was moved with the prayer that she does not want her medical/gynecology examination without the order by the Court.

12. In this backdrop, the Medical Committee again convened the meeting on 13.12.2023 and all the members of the said Committee were unanimous that for the sexual intercourse, the husband and wife both are actively involved. Therefore, the Committee opined that the petitioner/objector must go for gynecology examination by the Gynecologist so that it may be ensured that whether her genital organs are normal or there is any malfunctioning specially for the purpose of active sexual intercourse. The said observation was made by the Committee, once the petitioner's husband had made an objection/statement before the Committee that his wife does not cooperate in sexual intercourse. Therefore, the communication was made to the petitioner by the Committee on 16.12.2023, which is impugned in the present matter. Being aggrieved by both the communications dated 7.10.2023 and 16.12.2023, the instant writ petition had been filed. It is apparent that no order had been passed by the authority rather the petitioner had been directed/advised to be medically examined by the Gynecologist so that comprehensive report regarding the potency test of the husband of the petitioner could be prepared and forwarded to the concerned investigation officer.

13. The main plank of the argument of the petitioner's counsel is that the petitioner is the victim in this case and she had levelled serious allegation of impotency against her husband. Therefore, her medical examination by the gynecologist is unwarranted and cannot be part of the investigation, said argument was resisted by learned AGA-I on the ground that at the initial stage of investigation, at the promptness of the petitioner, even though the potency test of her husband had been carried but the proper investigation could not be ensured unless the petitioner is also medically examined by the gynecologist as for the sexual intercourse the bodies of both the parties are involved, therefore, she also needs to be medically examined.

14. Impotence is defined as lack of ability to perform sexual act and sterility is defined as lack of ability to procreate children. Questions of impotence and sterility arise when divorce is sought (a) because, marriage cannot be consummated (i.e., one of the parties is incapable of complete sexual intercourse), (b) if incapacity for consummation cannot be surgically remedied, or, the defective party is unwilling to submit to a surgical operation; or (c) if the incapacity existed before marriage. Impotence is attributed to injury to head, neck, or loins. Potence in case of males means power of erection of the male organ "plus" discharge of healthy semen containing living spermatozoa and in the case of females means (1) development of external and internal genitals and (2) ovulation and menstruation.

15. Causes of impotence: (*Apply to males only. --*Apply to females only; those unmarked, apply to bothsexes):-

1. Organic: 1. "Nervous Lesions": Diseases of, or injury to, brain or cord. 2. "Malformation or absence of parts* male organ may be absent, non-developed, ill-developed, or two or more in number: adherent to scrotum or abdomen; fibrous or cartilaginous; hypospadias; congenital phimosis, anorchidisni, cryptorchidism; diseases of or accidents to or operations on the male organ, testicles or ducts (perinaeum).*

Atersia or narrowness of vulva, absence of uterus, tough hymen or vagina. (Though according to law, a boy under 14 is impotent, in fact, he is not always so). Also -- Obesity, 3. "Inflammations or Cicatricial" contractions*. "Vaginismus". Krauroses vulvae; internal piles, tight stricture. 4. Tumorous*:--Elephantiasis; "hernia", big hydrocele.*

"Psychial 1. Absence of voluptuous thoughts. 2. "Repugnance"* towards individuals, "fear", "timidity", "excessive passion". (For this reason, a man may be potent towards one woman and impotent towards another.

Atonic. (Therefore, often temporary impotence). 1. "From general diseases" and "conditions": -- Old age, too frequent coitus, wasting diseases (diabetes); anaemia; uraemia, cholaema, rhumatism, diptheria, Heart diseases, chronic nephrities, acute fevers, parotitis. 2, "From Over-indulgence in drugs": lead, potassium Iodide, opium, cannabis indica and other narcotics; alcohol, tobacco, thyroidin. 3. "From chronic irritation of genital passages -- due to gonorrhoea, stricture, masturbation vaginismus.*

17. So far as the legal position regarding the requirement of potency test, in cases where allegation has been made by the wife to the effect that marriage is not properly consummated and the husband is impotent and was incapable of consummating the marriage on account of his complete and total impotency is concerned, it may be pertinent to refer the judgment passed by this Court in the case of Jagdish Lal vs. Smt. Shyama Madan And Ors.[3] in which it has been held as under :-

"7. Impotency means incapacity for accomplishing the act of sexual intercourse and by sexual intercourse, in this context, is meant not an incipient, partial or imperfect but a normal and complete coitus. Impotency is to be distinguished from sterility which may in some cases accompany impotency but is not necessarily associated with it, the two expressions denoting lack of two different powers. A person may be incapable of accomplishing the sexual act and yet be capable of procreating and conversely too, a person may be incapable or procreating and yet be capable of accomplishing the sexual act. The cause of impotency may be in the malformation or structural defect in the parts; in the functions, resulting in imperfect erection or premature ejaculation; in diseases, whether local or general or in the mind, manifesting itself a repugnance for the sexual act, fear, lack of confidence etc. It may also happen that a person is capable of having sexual intercourse but incapable of performing it with a particular individual, and in such a case the person must be regarded as impotent in relation to that particular individual regardless of his potency in general. These matters are too well settled to need reference to any medico-legal or legal authorities."

18. In the aforesaid case, the medical examinations of both the parties were conducted and considered.

19. In T. Rangaswami vs. T. Aravindammal[4] it was observed:-

“21. In regard to proof of impotency, the rules of evidence are not different in the case of impotency than elsewhere. Impotency that is physical unfitness for consummation, must be proved or there must be facts from which this can be inferred. The proof must be, as used to be expressed in the Ecdeciastical courts in England not suspicio probablis but has to be Vehetnens proesumptio.

22. There is no minimum standard of proof necessary. Even" uncorroborated testimony of the petitioner is sufficient if it can be believed. In cases of this nature, corrboration can only be obtained from the evidence "of the other party to the marriage. u/s 120 of the Evidence Act, the other party to the marriage is a competent witness.

23. The conduct of the parties subsequent to the marriage would be important. Did they peak lot the impotency to anybody? Was it mentioned to any friend or relation or to their parents? If, not, why not? Would it be natural not to do so? Or was there no opportunity? It would not be natural for everybody to speak these matters to another. A reserved or shy or a reticent person would not. On the other hand, other types almost certainly would. Whether the parties to the case fall within the one class or the other, it is for the trial, judge to discover: (AIR 1943 Nag 185) (L).

24. Impotency may be established by medical examination of the parties. The doctor who examined either party or both the parties, may be examined as witness.

Where the respondent relies on a doctor"s certificate that ho was able to have sexual intercourse and was potent that day, the certificate must be strictly proved by examining the doctor who issued it. Certificates like these, do not prove themselves. The doctor giving the certificate has to state what tests he carried out to arrive at his conclusions and must stand cross-examination and convince the Court that his conclusion about the potency is correct."

20. In the case of Ameet Bhuvan vs. Smt. Swati Bhaskar (supra) the question of impotency was also involved, wherein it has been observed and held as under : -

"14. The Hon'ble Apex Court in its judgment rendered in AIR 2002 SC 2582, "Praveen Mehta v. Inderjit Mehta" although deals with a situation where a wife refuses to cooperate with her husband in sexual intercourse and also refuses to get herself medically examined or undergo medical treatment and that she has abused and misbehaved with the husband and friends and other relatives, thereby depriving of the husband to normal cohabitation, this will amount to be mental cruelty.

15. In the instant case, it is the husband, who despite of the court's order avoid to undergo the medical test, this avoidance to undergo the medical test will amount to the refusal for medical test. Such a refusal will amount to be a mental cruelty. In the said judgment while dealing with the concept of mental cruelty it has been held that it is a state of mind and feeling, thus the cruelty for the purpose of Section 13 (1) (i-a) is to be taken as a behaviour towards the spouse and one another. In the same judgment, Hon'ble Apex Court has held that a wife of non cooperative attitude to have sex and refusing for a medical treatment, abusing and misbehaving with the husband even with his friends would be a mental cruelty. Para 19, 20 and 21 of the said judgment are reproduced herein below:-

"19. Clause (ia) of sub-Section (1) of Section 13 of the Act is comprehensive enough to include cases of physical as also mental cruelty. It was formerly thought that actual physical harm or reasonable apprehension of it was the prime ingredient of this matrimonial offence. That doctrine is now repudiated and the modern view has been that mental cruelty can cause even more grievous injury and create in the mind of the injured spouse reasonable apprehension that if will be harmful or unsafe to live with the other party. The principle that cruelty may be inferred from the whole facts and matrimonial relations of the parties and interaction in their daily life disclosed by the evidence is of greater cogency in cases falling under the head of mental cruelty. Thus mental cruelty has to be established from the facts (Mulla Hindu Law, 17th Edition, Volume II, page 91).

20. In the case in hand the foundation of the case of 'cruelty' as a matrimonial offence is based on the allegations made by the husband that right from the day one after marriage the wife was not prepared to cooperate with him in having sexual intercourse on account of which the marriage could not be consummated.

When the husband offered to have the wife treated medically she refused. As the condition of her health deteriorated she became irritating and unreasonable in her behavior towards the husband. She misbehaved with his friends and relations. She even abused him, scolded him and caught hold of his shirt collar in presence of elderly persons like Shri S.K. Jain. This Court in the case of Dr. N.G. Dastane v. Mrs. S. Dastana (supra), observed : "Sex plays an important role in marital life and cannot be separated from other factors which lend to matrimony a sense of fruition and fulfillment".

21. Cruelty for the purpose of Section 13 (1) (ia) is to be taken as a behavior by one spouse towards the other which causes reasonable apprehension in the mind of the latter that it is not safe for him or her to continue the matrimonial relationship with the other. Mental cruelty is a state of mind and feeling with one of the spouses due to the behavior or behavioral pattern by the other. Unlike the case of physical cruelty the mental cruelty is difficult to establish by direct evidence. It is necessarily a matter of inference to be drawn from the facts and circumstances of the case. A feeling of anguish, disappointment and frustration in one spouse caused by the conduct of the other can only be appreciated on assessing the attending facts and circumstances in which the two partners of matrimonial life have been living. The inference has to be drawn from the attending facts and circumstances taken cumulatively. In case of mental cruelty it will not be a correct approach to take an instance of misbehavior in isolation and then pose the question whether such behavior is sufficient by itself to cause mental cruelty. The approach should be to take the cumulative effect of the facts and circumstances emerging from the evidence on record and then draw a fair inference whether the petitioner in the divorce petition has been subjected to mental cruelty due to conduct of the other.

21. In the cases of marriage, physical relationship or mental relationship is a condition which is persistent and regular to make the consummation of marriage essential. The practical incapability has to be seen by the court below although when such type of issue crops up in litigation, there is no yardstick provided, which could determine the standard of proof to determine the potency or impotency. Thus issue has to be settled on the basis of incorporated testimony or medical inputs and by the conduct of the parties which has to be pleaded in the absence of their being in denial of the said fact.

24. In a judgment rendered by Hon'ble Rajasthan High Court at Jaipur in the case of Renuka vs. Rajendra Hada in its para 12 and 13 has held as under :

"12. The questions for consideration in the instant appeal are:-

(i) Whether a matrimonial court had power to order appellant to undergo medical test?

(ii) If despite the order of the Court, the appellant refused to submit herself to medical examination whether the court could draw adverse inference against her?

(iii) Whether the respondent has succeeded in satisfactorily establishing that the appellant was impotent at the time of marriage and at the time of filing of the petition?

13. We find answer of these questions in two decisions rendered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Sharda v. Dharmpal, (2003) 4 SCC 493, wherein it was indicated that if despite an order passed by the Court a person refuses to submit himself to such medical examination, a strong case for drawing an adverse would be made out. Section 114 of the Evidence Act also enables a Court to draw an adverse inference if the party does not produce the relevant evidence in the power and possession. The conclusion drawn by the Apex Court are as under :-

(i) A matrimonial Court has the power to order a person to undergo medical test.

(ii) Passing of such an order by the Court would not be in violation of the right to personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution.

(iii) However, the Court should exercise such a power if the applicant has a strong prima facie case and there is sufficient material before the Court. If despite the order of the Court, the respondent refuses to submit himself to medical examination, the Court will be entitled to draw an inference against him."

21. In Yuvraj Digvijay Sinhji vs. Yuvrani PratapKumari[5] Hon'ble Supreme Court while deciding the issue of impotency has observed as under:-

"A party is impotent if his or her mental or physical condition makes consummation of the marriage a practical impossibility. The condition must be one, according to the statute, which existed at the time of the marriage and continued to be so until the institution of the proceedings. In order to entitle the appellant to obtain a decree of nullity, as prayed for by him, he will have to establish that his wife, the respondent, was impotent at the time of the marriage and continued to be so until the institution of the proceedings."

22. In the present case, the marriage between the parties was solemnised on 26th January, 2023 and the parties had lived together for a period of approximately five months. Meanwhile, the petitioner wife had also gone to her parental home for a short duration. The stand of the petitioner-wife is that despite efforts made by her to come close to the respondent, there was no cohabitation between them and there was no consummation of marriage. Consequently, the impugned FIR was lodged by the petitioner wife on 01.07.2023 with allegation of mental and physical cruelty regarding non-fulfillment of demand of dowry and concealment of fact of impotency of her husband by birth. The investigation was carried out, wherein the medical examination of the petitioner's husband was also conducted by the Medical Board and the Committee advised that the petitioner must go for gynecology examination.

23. In view of the above, no comprehensive report regarding the potency test of the husband can be prepared and made without getting the petitioner medically examined along with the husband. In this case the Medical Inquiry Committee is of the opinion that the petitioner wife should also be medically examined as her husband has made a categorical statement before the Committee that his wife does not cooperate with him during sexual intercourse. There is no material available on record to substantiate the allegation made against the Inquiry Committee of LLRM Medical College necessitating the potency test/ medical examination of the respondent no.5 to be conducted by the Medical Board at KGMU Medical College, Lucknow.

24. As there is no need to issue any further direction regarding the prayer no.3 as the fair and impartial investigation is being carried out and the potency test of the husband had been conducted at the instance of the petitioner herself and this potency test was conducted at the stage of investigation as per Section 2(h) Cr.P.C. "investigation", which includes all the proceedings under this Code for the collection of evidence conducted by a police officer or by any person (other than a Magistrate) who is authorised by a Magistrate in this behalf.

25. Therefore, we do not find any illegality or impropriety in the impugned communications of the Medical Inquiry Committee dated 07.10.2023 and 16.12.2023 and no interference is required in the matter.

26. Accordingly, the writ petition stands dismissed.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus to stay the operation and implementation of the impugned judgment and order dated 04.12.2023 passed by Commissioner Ayodhya, in Case No. 2243 of 2023, "Omprakash Vs. State of U.P. through District Magistrate", Computerized Case No. C202304000002243, under Section 5-A(8) Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaugher Act, 1955 (contained as annexure No. 6) as well as order dated 17.03.2023 passed by learned District Magistrate, Ayodhya, in Case No. 4705/2022 "State Vs. Omprakash" Computerized No. D202204230004705 under Section 5-A Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955 as well as order dated 25.4.2023 passed by learned Session Judge, Faizabad in Criminal Revision No. 49/2023 related to Crime No. 322/2022, under Section 3/5ka/5kha/8 of Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955, pertaining to Police Station-Raunahi, District-Ayodhya/Faizabad as contained as Annexure no. 2 and 3 and further the Hon'ble Court may kindly be pleased to release the confiscated vehicle bearing Registration No. U.P. 33 AT 3743 in favour of the petitioner, in the interest of justice."

3. Learned A.G.A. has already filed counter affidavit and in reply thereto learned counsel for the petitioner has already filed the rejoinder affidavit, the same are available on record.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that on 13.09.2022 police of Police Station Raunhai lodged an F.I.R. bearing Case Crime No. 322/2022 under Section 3/5/5kha/8 of Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955, Police Station Raunahi, District Faizabad/Ayodhya against two accused persons. As per prosecution case 01 calf was recovered from the vehicle of the petitioner i.e. UP33AT3743. The accused persons were carrying the said calf for the purpose to sell and they could not show the papers of the vehicles.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the petitioner is the registered owner of the vehicle number UP 33 AT 3743 and the petitioner is plying his business by the said vehicle as a hire purchase, the same was seized by the police.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the petitioner moved release application before the District Magistrate, Ayodhya and the learned Magistrate rejected the application of the petitioner vide order dated 17.03.2023 on the basis of the report submitted by the police and further directed to the police authorities to make the public auction of the confiscated vehicle in an arbitrary manner. Thereafter, the petitioner filed Criminal Revision No. 49/2023 against the order dated 17.03.2023 before the learned District and Session Judge, Faizabad, who vide order dated 25.04.2023 dismissed the said revision affirming the order dated 17.03.2023 passed by the District Magistrate, Ayodhya.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that against the impugned orders dated 17.03.2023 passed by learned District Magistrate, Ayodhya as well as order dated 25.4.2023 passed by learned Session Judge, Faizabad, the petitioner had filed Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 4425 of 2023: Omprakash Vs. State of U.P. before this Hon'ble Court and this Hon'ble Court vide order dated 18.09.2023 dismissed the petition of the petitioner with liberty to file appeal before the Commissioner. The order dated 18.9.2023 is being quoted herein below:

"Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and learned A.G.A. for the State.

By this petition, the petitioner has prayed for quashing of the impugned order dated 17.03.2023 passed by the learned District Magistrate Ayodhya in case crime No. 4705/2022 "State Vs. Omprakash", under Section 5-A of Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955 and consequential judgment and order dated 25.04.2023 passed by the Sessions Judge, Faizabad (Ayodhya) in criminal revision No. 49/2023 related to crime No. 322/2022, under Sections 3/5ka/5kha/8 of Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955, P.S. Raunahi, District Ayodhya/Faizabad.

Learned A.G.A., at the outset, has submitted that against the impugned order dated 17.03.2023, the appeal lies before the Commissionerate in view of the government order dated 14.02.2021.

Learned counsel for the petitioner does not dispute the fact that against the impugned order dated 17.03.2023, the appeal lies before the Commissionerate.

In view of the above, the petition is dismissed on the ground of availability of alternative remedy.

In case, the appeal is filed within a period of 15 days from today, the same shall be decided on merits by the Commissioner within a further period of one month.

Learned counsel for the petitioner undertakes that he will not seek any adjournment before the Appellate Court. "

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that thereafter the petitioner against the order dated 17.03.2023 passed by learned District Magistrate, Ayodhya moved an appeal before the Commissioner Mandal Ayodhya, which has been registered as Case No. 2243 of 2023:

Omprakash Vs. State of U.P. through District Magistrate", Computerized Case No. C202304000002243, under Section 5-A(8) Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaugher Act, 1955, but the same has been rejected vide order dated 04.12.2023.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the impugned order dated 17.03.2023 passed by the District Magistrate, Ayodhya is totally illegal. He further submits that the learned Magistrate by exceeding its jurisdiction has passed the impugned order on a wrong finding that the confiscated vehicle was used in cow slaughtering or in transportation of cow or its progeny which is totally perverse and the learned Magistrate has not considered the evidence adduced by the petitioner.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that no such activities of transportation of the aforesaid cow species were done as per the allegations made by the prosecution but the vehicle in question of the petitioner has been seized in an arbitrary manner.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the petitioner is facing great jeopardize due to confiscated of vehicle by learned District Magistrate, Ayodhya and his livelihood is depend upon the said vehicle and the petitioner was not able to give the installments of the said vehicle because that was purchased on loan and the said vehicle is the main source of earning and now his family has come at the verge of starvation.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the vehicle is standing in open yard in the police station for more than nine months and with the passage of time ultimately it will become junk and after sometime it is not useful for any purpose. Reliance has been placed on the law laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai and C.M. Mudaliar Vs. State of Gujrat, AIR 2003 SC 638.

13. Learned counsel for the petitioner has further drawn the attention of the Court regarding the provisions of Sections 451 and 457 of Cr.P.C., which is quoted as under:-

"451. Order for custody and disposal of property pending trial in certain cases.-When any property is produced before any Criminal Court during any inquiry or trial, the Court may make such order as it thinks fit for the proper custody of such property pending the conclusion of the inquiry or trial, and, if the property is subject to speedy and natural decay, or if it is otherwise expedient so to do, the Court may, after recording such evidence as it thinks necessary, order it to be sold or otherwise disposed of.

Explanation.- For the purposes of this section," property" includes-

(a) property of any kind or document which is produced before the Court or which is in its custody,

(b) any property regarding which an offence appears to have been committed or which appears to have been used for the commission of any offence.

457. Procedure by police upon seizure of property.-(1) Whenever the seizure of property by any police officer is reported to a Magistrate under the provisions of this Code, and such property is not produced before a Criminal Court during an inquiry or trial, the Magistrate may make such order as he thinks fit respecting the disposal of such property or the delivery of such property to the person entitled to the possession thereof, or if such person cannot be ascertained, respecting the custody and production of such property.

(2) If the person so entitled is known, the Magistrate may order the property to be delivered to him on such conditions (if any) as the Magistrate thinks fit and if such person is unknown, the Magistrate may detain it and shall, in such case, issue a proclamation specifying the articles of which such property consists, and requiring any person who may have a claim thereto, to appear before him and establish his claim within six months from the date of such proclamation."

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the petitioner is ready to comply with all the conditions, which the lower court will impose while releasing the vehicle. Undisputedly, petitioner is the rightful owner of the vehicle, therefore, the vehicle be released in his favour and the impugned order be quashed.

15. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submits that the vehicle in question was being used for transportation of bulls illegally at the time of alleged offence and the vehicle in question was correctly seized by the District Magistrate, Ayodhya, vide its impugned order dated 17.03.2023. Thus, the District Magistrate, Ayodhya has rightly passed the impugned order dated 17.03.2023 and there is no illegality and the appeal was rightly dismissed, no interference is required.

16. I have heard the learned counsel for the parties and carefully gone through the relevant legal provisions and the judgments rendered by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai (supra) and the judgment passed by this court in various cases.

17. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Sunderbhai Ambalal Desai, AIR 2003 SC 638 (supra) in para 17 and 21 has been pleased to held as under:-

"17. In our view, whatever be the situation, it is of no use to keep such seized vehicles at the police stations for a long period. It is for the Magistrate to pass appropriate orders immediately by taking appropriate bond and guarantee as well as security for return of the said vehicles, if required at any point of time. This can be done pending hearing of application for return of such vehicles.

21. However these powers are to be exercised by the concerned Magistrate. We hope and trust that the concerned Magistrate would take immediate action for seeing that powers under Section 451 Cr.P.C. Are properly and promptly exercised and articles are not kept for a long time at the police station, in any case, for not more than fifteen days to one month. This Object can also be achieved if there is proper supervision by the Registry of the concerned High Court in seeing that the rules framed by the High Court with regard to such articles are implemented properly."

18. In Nand Vs. State of U.P., 1996 Law Suit (All) 423 this Court has observed that pendency of the confiscation proceedings under Section 72 of the U. P. Excise Act is not a bar for release of the vehicle which is required for the trial under Section 60 of the U.P. Excise Act. It has been clearly observed by this Court in para 7 that:-

"I think it is not proper to allow the truck to be damaged by remaining stationed at police station. Admittedly, the ownership of the truck is not disputed. The State of Uttar Pradesh does not claim its ownership. Therefore, I think it will be proper and in the larger interest of public as well as the revisionist that the revisionist gives a Bank guarantee of Rs. 2 lakhs before the C.J.M., Kanpur Dehat and files a bond that he shall be producing the truck as and when needed by the criminal courts or the District Magistrate, Kanpur Dehat, and he shall not make any changes nor any variation in the truck."

19. This Court further has held in the case of Jai Prakash Vs. State of U.P., 1992 AWC 1744 that mere pendency of confiscation proceedings before the Collector is no bar to release the vehicle.

20. In Kamaljeet Singh Vs. State of U.P., 1986 U.P. Cri. Ruling 50 (Alld), the same view was taken by this court that pendency of confiscation proceedings shall not operate as bar against the release of vehicle seized u/s 60 of Excise Act.

21. In the opinion of this Court, it is not disputed that the power under Section 451 of Cr.P.C. is not properly and widely used by the court below while passing the orders. The power conferred under Section 451 of Cr.P.C. be exercised by the court below with judicious mind and without any unnecessarily delay. So that the litigant may not suffer, merely keeping the article in the custody of the police in the open yard will not fulfil any purpose and ultimately it result the damage of the said property. The owner of the property be allowed to enjoy the fruits of the said property for the remaining period for which the property is being made.

22. Further in the opinion of this Court, the procedure as contemplated under Section 457 of Cr.P.C. be also followed promptly, so that the concerned Magistrate may take prompt decision for disposal of such properties and be released in favour of the entitled person of the said property, keeping the said property in the custody will not solve any purpose and that gives a mental and financial torture to the owner of the said property which is also against the law and against the principles of natural justice.

23. As per the legal propositions mentioned above and keeping in view this fact that undisputedly the petitioner is the registered owner of the seized vehicle and the ownership of the vehicle is not in dispute neither the State or any other person has claimed their ownership over the vehicle, therefore, no useful purpose will be served in keeping the vehicle stationed at the police station in the open yard for a long period allowing it to be damaged with the passage of time.

24. In view of the above facts and circumstances of the case, the impugned orders is not sustainable in the eye of law and requires interference by this court.

25. Accordingly, the present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is allowed and the impugned order dated 04.12.2023 passed by Commissioner Ayodhya, in Case No. 2243 of 2023, “Omprakash Vs. State of U.P. through District Magistrate”, Computerized Case No. C202304000002243, under Section 5-A(8) Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaugher Act, 1955 as well as order dated 17.03.2023 passed by learned District Magistrate, Ayodhya, in Case No. 4705/2022 “State Vs. Omprakash”

Computerized No. D202204230004705 under Section 5-A Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955 as well as order dated 25.4.2023 passed by learned Session Judge, Faizabad in Criminal Revision No. 49/2023 related to Crime No. 322/2022, under Section 3/5ka/5kha/8 of Uttar Pradesh Prevention of Cow Slaughter Act, 1955, pertaining to Police Station-Raunahi, District-Ayodhya/Faizabad are set aside and reversed.

26. The District Magistrate, Ayodhya is directed to release the vehicle in question forthwith in favour of the petitioner. The petitioner is directed to give a bank guarantee of Rs. 50,000/- before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Ayodhya and file a bond that he shall be producing the vehicle as and when needed by the criminal courts or the District Magistrate, Ayodhya, and he shall not make any changes nor any variation in the vehicle.

27. No order as to costs.

28. Let the copy of this order be sent to the court concerned for its compliance.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rajan Roy, J.)

1. Shri S. C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel along with Shri Rajesh Chandra Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioners, Shri Jaideep Narian Mathur, learned Senior Counsel along with Shri Pranjal Krishna, Shri Manan Batra, Ms. Aishvarya Mathur and Shri Suhaib Ashraf, learned counsel for the opposite party no. 4- informant and Shri S.P. Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. By means of this writ petition the petitioners have challenged F.I.R. dated 26.01.2024 bearing Case Crime No. 0034 of 2024 under Sections 381, 409, 419, 420, 467, 468, 471, 506 IPC, Police Station- Sarojni Nagar, District- Lucknow and they have also sought a writ of mandamus that they may not be arrested in connection of the aforesaid F.I.R.

3. The informant has filed short counter affidavit which was taken on record when the hearing was concluded and the learned counsel for the petitioners did not propose to file any response as is mentioned in the order by which orders were reserved.

4. On a reading of the impugned F.I.R. we find that it has been lodged by the opposite party no. 4 against eight accused including the petitioners. The petitioner no. 2 is a Director of Radiant Buildcon Private Ltd. (hereinafter referred as to 'the Company') having its registered Office at Chandigarh. The opposite party no. 4- the informant is also one of the Directors. In fact, the informant is also a major share holder along with his family members in the said Company. The parent holding company is Avadh Rail Infra Ltd. in which both petitioner no. 1 and the informant are Directors along with other Directors. In fact, the said holding company has as many as six subsidiary companies, details of which are given in Para 10 of the writ petition. The petitioners are not share holders in any of the companies, though, the petitioner no. 2 is a Director in most of them.

5. The Company has a housing project on 1.75 acres of land i.e. Marina Heights at SAS Nagar, Punjab. Four Towers have been built comprising of 18 Flats each i.e. total 72 Flats. 21 Flats were sold during 2014-21, as claimed, with sale consideration 33 lacs to 35 lacs per Flats. Since 1996, the petitioner no. 2- Rohit Srivastava was working in the holding company Avadh Rail Infra Ltd. whose registered headquarter is at Lucknow. He was inducted as a Director in the Company. As the aforesaid housing project had not been registered with RERA, therefore, Flats were not to be sold and status quo was to be maintained. The Company was not in a position to sell the same. For these reasons the informant and his father who is also a Director in the Company, namely, Subhash Sarraf did not pay much attention to the activities of the aforesaid Company. Taking advantage of this the accused, especially, Petitioner no. 2 and accused no. 2 in the F.I.R. who is an Accountant in the Company, forged and fabricated a Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022 by which it was claimed that petitioner no. 2 had been authorized to sell the Flats on behalf of the Company and based on the aforesaid forged and fabricated Resolution 11 sale deeds were executed by petitioner no. 2 after 01.10.2022.

6. At this stage, it may be mentioned that during the course of argument Shri Jaideep Narain Mathur, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the informant submitted that initially they were aware about 11 sale deeds only, but, now, it appears that there are many more sale deeds which have been fraudulently executed by the petitioner no. 2 based on the aforesaid Resolution of the Board of Directors dated 01.10.2022.

7. It is also alleged in the F.I.R. that the informant and his father was not even present at SAS Nagar, Punjab when the Resolution is said to have been passed at the said place which will prove that the petitioner no. 2 has resorted to forgery, fabrication/manipulation of documents and based thereon has fraudulently executed sale deeds in respect of Flats owned by the Company to the purchasers in connivance with some of them and in this process he has misappropriated substantial part of the sale consideration, as, it has come to knowledge of the informant, on inquiry made subsequently, that only part of sale consideration was deposited in the account of the Company. The remaining sale consideration was deposited in the account of petitioner no. 2 or his wife petitioner no. 1 either by online transaction or cash and this ill gotten money i.e. proceeds of crime, was deposited by the petitioner no. 1 and 2 in their accounts at Lucknow, thereby, giving part cause of action at Lucknow where the F.I.R. has been lodged. Details of the accounts in name of the petitioners at Lucknow have been mentioned in the F.I.R. with the allegation that substantial part of the sale consideration received on the basis of fraudulent sale transaction based on the forged Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022, have been deposited by the petitioners in their personal accounts at Lucknow and not that of the Company. It is said that the informant and his father could not come to know about the illegal transactions because status quo was to be maintained with regard to the housing project on account of absence of registration with RERA. Theft of sale deeds from the Office of Avadh Rail Infra Ltd. at Lucknow by the petitioner no. 2 is also alleged. It is alleged that the accused have conspired to commit breach of trust and the offence as has been mentioned in the F.I.R.

8. Challenging the said F.I.R. it was contended by Shri S.C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioners that first and foremost the Police Station- Sarojni Nagar under Lucknow Commissionerate lacked territorial jurisdiction in the matter, therefore, lodging of the F.I.R. and the investigation in respect thereof is without jurisdiction. He referred to Sections 177, 178, 179, 181 Cr.P.C. in this regard. He also submitted that the F.I.R. had been deliberately lodged at Lucknow as, the petitioner no. 2 was a Member of the Aam Aadmi Party in Punjab, as such, there is a political malice also behind lodging of the F.I.R. at Lucknow so that the informant may, with the help of the powers that be, victimize and harass the petitioners. He also submitted that wife of the petitioner no. 2, who has nothing to do with the running of the Company, has also been made an accused which itself goes to show malafide. His next submission was that there is concealment of the facts by the informant. Various proceedings were going on between the parties but they have not been disclosed in the first information report which is evidence of their malice. In this regard he referred to proceedings initiated by the informant before the NCLT at Kolkata on 26.09.2023 in respect of Tirupati Polysacks Pvt. Ltd. wherein petitioner no. 2 as also the informant and his father are Directors as dispute had arisen between them and the petitioner no. 2 was being pressurized to sell off his 50% shares in the said company and as the informant and his father were indulging in other nefarious activities relating to the said Company. He also referred to a Suit filed by the petitioner no. 2 at Chennai. He referred to a Suit for permanent injunction filed by the petitioner no. 2 at Chandigarh against the informant on 11.01.2024. He also referred to proceedings initiated by the petitioner no. 2 under Section 241 of the Companies Act before the NCLT, Chandigarh against his proposed removal as a Director as also revocation of authority given to him for various activities relating to the Company i.e. Radiant Buildcon Pvt. Ltd. He submitted that had these facts been disclosed in the F.I.R., Police would have got to know that it is purely a civil/commercial dispute between Directors of the Company which has been given a colour of criminality so as to harass and victimize the petitioners. He submitted that the dispute was essentially of a civil/commercial nature and there was no criminality involved therein. In this context he referred to decisions of Hon'ble Supreme Court rendered in the case of Mithilesh Kumar J. Sha Vs. State of Karnataka and Ors. reported in (2022) 14 SCC 572, Criminal Appeal No. 932 of 2021; Randheer Singh Vs. State of U.P. and Ors., Criminal Appeal No. 5866 of 2022; Usha Chakraborty and Anr. Vs. State of West Bengal and Anr. reported in 2323 LiveLaw (SC)67, Criminal Appeal No. 2024 arising out of SLP (Crl.) No. 3337 of 2023 and Sachin Garg Vs. State of U.P. and Anr. arising out of SLP (Crl.) No. 4415 of 2023.

9. He also invited the Court's attention to a complaint dated 09.01.2024 filed by the petitioner no. 2 at Chandigarh alleging that the father of the informant along with several musclemen entered the office of the Company and took away all relevant documents including the authorization letter/ Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022 and thereafter, lodged the impugned F.I.R. alleging that the Resolution was forged and fabricated. He also submitted that the petitioner no. 2 has sold as many as 33 Flats but the objection is being raised only with regard to 11 Flats. All this was within the knowledge of the informant and his father and no objection was raised at any point of time but only when a dispute arose in September, 2023 between them, a story has been cooked up with ulterior motives. He also submitted that the petitioner no. 2 has not received any remuneration for the services rendered by him and the understanding was that once the Flats at Marina Heights were sold out he would be given profit therefrom. He submitted that the deposit made by one of the purchasers of Flats Shri Gurjant Singh Dhillon who is also an accused in the F.I.R., in the account of the petitioner no. 2, is in fact, a loan of Rs.25 lacs extended to the petitioner by the former, therefore, there is no truth in the allegations in this regard. The allegation of theft having taken place the registered Headquarters of Avadh Rail Infra Ltd. at Lucknow is also a concocted one because the allegation is of theft of original sale deeds, whereas, the original sale deeds would be in the possession of purchasers and not Avadh Rail Infra Ltd. There was no occasion to keep the said sale deeds at the registered Headquarters of Avadh Rail Infra Ltd. at Lucknow, as, they pertained to the activities of the subsidiary Company i.e. Radiant Buildcon Private Ltd. This has been done only to make out the jurisdiction at Lucknow for lodging of the F.I.R. and harassing the petitioners. The assertion in the F.I.R. that the informant and his father were not aware about these activities is also incorrect, as, the purchasers of Flats had been arrayed as accused in the F.I.R. For all these reasons, according to him, the F.I.R. was liable to be quashed, as, essentially it was a civil/commercial dispute. Lack of jurisdiction in this regard was also emphasized by him.

10. Shri Jaideep Narian Mathur, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the opposite party no. 4- informant submitted that part cause of action had arisen within the territorial jurisdiction of the Police Station- Sarojni Nagar, District- Lucknow and legal position is settled that it being so the F.I.R. could be lodged in such a police station. He referred to the provisions of Section 156(2), Chapter 13, 177, 179, 181(3) and 181(4) Cr.P.C. to drive home his point. He invited our attention to the allegations in the F.I.R., according to which, a theft had taken place at Lucknow in which the petitioner no. 2 was involved, therefore, in view of Section 181(3) Cr.P.C. and other provisions referred herein the cause of action for the same occurred at Lucknow as the crime was committed at Lucknow. Secondly, based on the forged Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022 sale deeds were executed in favour of the purchasers fraudulently and the proceeds of sale were substantially deposited in the bank account of petitioners no. 1 and 2 at Lucknow, therefore, in view of Section 181(4) Cr.P.C. also F.I.R. could be lodged at Lucknow. As regards concealment of facts he submitted that whatever was relevant has been stated in the F.I.R. and proceedings which are said to be pending between the parties have nothing to do with the fabrication of the Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022 and misappropriation of money of the Company by the petitioners and other accused as also the criminal breach of trust and conspiracy in this regard. This is not a case where the dispute is purely of civil/ commercial nature which can be settled by resort to mediation, arbitration or civil remedies. There is an element of criminality involved as Board Resolution of the Company has been forged and fabricated. Based thereon fraudulent sale transactions have taken place and the Company has been deprived of its money by siphoning of substantial amount of the sale consideration to personal accounts of the petitioners. The allegations contained in the F.I.R. clearly spell out the criminality involved as also the guilt of the petitioners. The petitioner no. 1 the wife of the petitioner no. 2 has been made an accused because some of the sale proceeds from the crime committed have been deposited in her account at Lucknow. It is not a case where ingredients of Sections in which the F.I.R. has been lodged were not made out. Neither there is lack of jurisdiction nor any valid ground for interference under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

11. He submitted that based on the aforesaid Resolution dated 01.10.2022 fraudulent sale transactions were done from May, 2023 to November, 2023. The informant and his father came to know about 11 such fraudulent sale transactions and registeries on 01.01.2024, however, by then, they were not aware about the forging and fabrication of Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022. Accordingly, on 04.01.2024 a public notice was published to the effect that the petitioners were not authorized to sell the Flats of Marina Heights. On 08.01.2024 a Whatsapp message was received from one of the brokers about the Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022 in favour of the petitioner no. 2. Once, the petitioner no. 2 came to know that fraud committed by him had been revealed, in order to save himself, he gave a complaint to the Police at Chandigarh on 09.01.2024 alleging that the father of the informant, who is 78 years old, along with musclemen went to the office and took away relevant papers including the authorization letter i.e. Board Resolution. This complaint was lodged by petitioner no. 2 only to enable him to take the plea that he did not have the Board Resolution so that the forgery may not be established but, even after this complaint at least one sale deed was executed by petitioner no. 2 on 11.01.2024 which could not have been done without showing the Registrar the Board Resolution referred above. The aforesaid complaint is nothing but an attempt to cover up the forgery. This sale deed dated 11.01.2024 is mentioned at serial no. 32 in the list of deeds annexed by the petitioners as page 159 but, conveniently, while mentioning the same, date of the deed has been omitted for obvious reasons as mentioned hereinabove. He submitted that in some of the sale deeds entire consideration had been received at Lucknow in the accounts of the petitioners. He invited attention of the Court to Annexure No. SA-2 to the short counter affidavit filed in the matter. Shri Mathur has also submitted that custodial interrogation was necessary for recovery of the Board Resolution regarding which a false story has been set up in the complaint dated 09.01.2024. He also invited our attention to the copy of the Board Resolution filed by the petitioners as Annexure No. 9 to the writ petition for a perusal of the same which is alleged to contain the signatures of the father of the informant and informant. He then invited our attention to see the signatures of the informant at Page 161 and that of his father at Page 165. He submitted that on a bare perusal from naked eyes the difference in the signatures is apparent and it does not require an expert opinion to arrive at a conclusion that the signatures on the alleged Board Resolution dated 01.10.2022 are forged and fabricated. He also asserted that in fact presence of the informant at Chandigarh on 01.10.2022 has falsely been shown as they were in Kolkata. The story set up by the petitioners that amount of Rs.25 lacs deposited by the other purchasers and accused Dhillon in the account of the petitioners was loan, is unacceptable and is nothing but an after thought, once this fact was mentioned by him during hearing. In support of his contentions he referred to decisions of Hon'ble the Supreme Court reported in (2012) 3 SCC 132; Lee Kun Hee, President, Samsung Corporation, South Korea and Ors. Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Ors.(Paragraph 32 -42), (2010) 1 SCC1; Rasiklal Dalpatram Thakkar Vs. State of Gujarat and Ors. (Paragraph 24-29), (2011) 12 SCC 434; Kushal Kumar Gupta and Anr. Vs. Mala Gupta (Paragraph 5-7), (2007) 5 SCC 786; Asit Bhattacharjee Vs. Hanuman Prasad Ojha and Ors. (Paragraph 19-22).

12. As regards requirement of custodial interrogation he referred two judgments reported in (2019) 9 SCC 24; P. Chidambaram Vs. Directorate of Enforcement, 2017 SCC OnLine Del 9265; Prakash Gupta Vs. State of Delhi and (2023) 6 SCC 49; Central Bureau of Investigation Vs. Vikash Mishra @ Vikash Mishra.

13. Shri S.P. Singh, learned A.G.A. appearing for the State submitted that prima facie, on a bare reading of the F.I.R. it can not be said that cognizable offence is not made out. Theft of documents has taken place at Lucknow and the petitioners are alleged to have committed the same. Proceeds of crime have been deposited at Lucknow which has not been denied in the writ petition at all. He has referred to Section 179, 180, 181(4) Cr.P.C. to drive home the point that the F.I.R. could be lodged at Police Station- Sarojni Nagar, Lucknow. The petitioner no. 2 has a criminal history of three cases including the case at hand, whereas, the petitioner no. 1 has a criminal history of two cases which has not been disclosed. He also informed the Court that he has instructions from the Economic Offences Wing of the police department which was investigating the matter that custodial interrogation was necessary for investigating the crime.

14. So far as the first contention of Sri S.C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel for the petitioners regarding lack of jurisdiction for lodging of the FIR impugned herein and for investigation, Section 156(1) Cr.P.C. provides that - any officer in-charge of a Police Station may, without the order of Magistrate, investigate any cognizable case, which a Court having jurisdiction over the local area within the limits of said station would have power to inquire into or try under the provisions of Chapter- XIII. Sub Section-2 thereof provides that no proceeding of a police officer in any such case, shall, at any stage, be called into question, on the ground that the case was one in which such officer was not empowered under this Section to investigate. We may in this context refer to Section 177 Cr.P.C. which is part of Chapter-XIII referred in Section 156(1) Cr.P.C., as, the jurisdiction of the Investigating Officer to investigate any cognizable case is interlinked with the jurisdiction of the Court to inquire into or try such cases. Section 177 Cr.P.C. provides that - every offence shall ordinarily be inquired into and tried by Court within whose local jurisdiction it was committed. Thus, it is the commission of the offence which gives jurisdiction to the Courts and correspondingly to the Investigating Officer to investigate it. In this context Section 178 Cr.P.C. is relevant which provides- a) when it is uncertain in which of several local areas an offence was committed, or b) where an offence is committed partly in one local area and partly in another, or c) where an offence is a continuing one, and continues to be committed in more local areas than one, or d) where it consists of several acts done in different local areas, it may be inquired into or tried by a Court having jurisdiction over any of such local areas.

15. We may in this very context refer to Section 179 Cr.P.C., according to which, when an act is an offence by reason of anything which has been done and of a consequence which has ensued, the offence may be inquired into or tried by a Court within whose local jurisdiction such thing has been done or such consequence has ensued. Thus, consequence ensuing from the commission of an offence can also give territorial jurisdiction to a Court to inquire or try an offence. Section 181 (4) Cr.P.C. is relevant in the context of any offence of criminal mis-appropriation or criminal breach of trust as is alleged herein and according to said provisions such an offence may be inquired into or tried by a court within whose local jurisdiction the offence was committed or any part of the property which is subject to the offence was received or retained, or was required to be returned or accounted for by the accused persons.

16. Keeping in mind the aforesaid provisions when we go through the contents of the FIR, as territorial jurisdiction in the context of Section 156 Cr.P.C. read with provisions of Chapter-XIII is to be determined on a reading of the FIR itself and this Court cannot, at this stage, when the FIR has been lodged barely a few days ago i.e., on 26.01.2024 and investigation is still pending, enter into the material/evidence collected for determining the aforesaid issue, we find that the allegation is of forgery and fabricating a board resolution dated 01.10.2022, which was drawn at Chandigarh, Punjab. Based on the said resolution, it is alleged that the petitioner no.1 along with other accused executed 11 sale deeds in favour of several persons some of whom are also accused and the proceeds of such sale deeds were not deposited wholly in the account of the company, namely, Radiant Buildcon Pvt. Ltd., instead a substantial part thereof was misappropriated and the same was deposited either by online transaction/cheques or in cash in various accounts of the petitioners at Lucknow, meaning thereby, the proceeds of crime as alleged were transferred and retained at Lucknow in the accounts held by the petitioners. We are not concerned as to whether the allegations are correct or not. These questions cannot be gone into under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, at this stage, therefore, we have to determine the issue of territorial jurisdiction on the plain and simple reading of the FIR. In the FIR, we find details of such accounts where the sale considerations were deposited and which, as alleged, belong to the petitioners, have been given. Thus, not only there is allegation of theft of sale deeds at Lucknow which on a query being put to the counsel for the informant though referred as original sale deeds, is in fact a reference to certified copies of such sale deeds but, apart from it, the money received by the petitioner and the other accused from the sale deeds executed and registered by them at Chandigarh, Punjab, allegedly on the basis of forged and fabricated resolution of the Board of Directors, was transferred to the accounts of the petitioners and deposited at Lucknow. Therefore, it is very difficult to accept at this stage the contention of Shri S. C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel that the FIR could not have been lodged at P.S. Sarojni Nagar, Lucknow, nor the Investigating Officer of the said police station could inquire the crime. Not only theft has been alleged at Lucknow but the proceeds of crime based on the forged and fabricated board resolution dated 01.12.2022 have also been deposited in the bank accounts of the petitioners at Lucknow including the bank of petitioner no.2, who is the wife of petitioner no.1, though, not a director or employee of the company referred here-in-above, in which the petitioner no.1 was a director. As of now, it cannot be said that the offence or the consequence ensuing therefrom has not occurred within the territorial jurisdiction of Police Station-Sarojni Nagar, Lucknow and/or that the same was not amenable to inquiry or trial by the Court of competent criminal jurisdiction in the District Court at Lucknow having jurisdiction in respect of the said police Station. Based on bare reading of the FIR and the details contained therein this argument is liable to be rejected.

17. In arriving at this conclusion we, inter alia, rely upon the decision rendered by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Lee Kun Hee & Ors vs State Of U.P.& Ors. reported in (2012) 3 SCC 132 wherein their Lordships had the occasion to consider the provisions of Section 179 Cr.P.C. Their Lordships have held that use of the words "anything which has been done" and "consequence which has ensued" in Section 179 Cr.P.C. substantially enlarges and magnifies the scope of jurisdiction contemplated under Section 179 Cr.P.C. so as to extend the same over areas contemplated by the two phrases. Under Section 179 Cr.P.C. even the places (wherein the consequence of the criminal act) "ensues" would be relevant to determine the Court of competent Jurisdiction. Therefore, even the Courts within whose local jurisdiction the repercussion/effect of the criminal act occurs would have jurisdiction in the matter. In the said case a complainant was holding the bill of exchange at Ghaziabad in India, therefore, the Supreme Court opined "that the consequence emerging out of the denial of encashment of the bill of exchange could be deemed to ensue at Ghaziabad in India. As such the competent Court at Ghaziabad India would have jurisdiction in the matter under Section 179 Cr.P.C." In this very context, Supreme Court considered the provisions of Section 181 (4) Cr.P.C., which in its opinion left no room for any doubt that culpability is relatable even to the place at which consideration is required to be returned or accounted for. In the case at hand, as already stated, the proceeds of the alleged crime were transferred and deposited in the bank accounts of the petitioner at Lucknow and were retained therein, therefore, Section 181(4) Cr.P.C., according to which any offence of criminal misappropriation or of criminal breach of trust may be inquired into or tried by a Court within whose local jurisdiction the offence was committed or any part of the property which is the subject of the evidence was received or retained, or was required to be returned or account for by the accused persons, gets attracted. Initial crime in this case, as alleged, is the fabrication of board resolution dated 01.12.2022 at Chandigarh, based thereon the execution and registration of sale deeds, by which flats constructed by Radiant Buildcon Pvt. Ltd. were sold off by the petitioners unauthorisedly in criminal breach of trust and the proceeds therefrom were not deposited in the company's account, instead they were wholly or substantially or partly deposited in their personal accounts at Lucknow. This of course, is coupled with the allegation of theft of the sale deeds at Lucknow. The latter gives a cause of action wholly at P.S.- Sarojni Nagar, whereas the former would be covered under Section 179 Cr.P.C. and Section 181(4) Cr.P.C. at least at this stage.

18. Thus, on a perusal of FIR it cannot be said that no part of cause of action has arisen within the territorial jurisdiction of P.S. Sarojni Nagar commissionerate of Lucknow. We may in this context also refer to decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Kushal Kumar Gupta and another Vs. Mala Gupta reported in (2011) 12 SCC 434.

19. This apart we may once again refer to Section 156 (2) which categorically provides that no proceeding of a police officer, which obviously means proceeding of investigation referred therein in sub-section 1, in any such case shall at any stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one in which such officer was not empowered under this Section to investigate. We may in this context refer to decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Rasiklal Dalpatram Thakkar vs State Of Gujarat & Ors. reported in (2010) 1 SCC 1, wherein their Lordships of the Supreme Court of India considered the said provisions and opined that sub Section 2 of Section 156 Cr.P.C. ensures that once an investigation is commenced under sub Section (1), the same is uninterrupted on the ground that the police officer was not empowered under the Section to investigate. It is in the nature of "savings clause" in respect of investigation undertaken in respect of cognizable offences. We may also refer to the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Satvinder Kaur vs State (Govt. Of N.C.T. Of Delhi) And Anr. reported in (1999) 8

SCC 728, wherein considering the same provision it was inter-alia opined that sub-section 2 of Section 156 makes the position clear by providing that no proceeding of a police officer in any such case shall at any such stage be called in question on the ground that the case was one in which such officer was not empowered to investigate. After investigation is completed, the result of such investigation is required to be submitted as provided under Sections 168, 169 and 170 Cr.P.C. Section 170 Cr.P.C. specifically provides that if, upon investigation, it appears to the officer in charge of the police station that there is a sufficient evidence or reasonable ground of suspicion to justify the forwarding of the accused to a magistrate, such officer shall forward the accused under custody to a magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence upon a police report and to try the accused or commit for trial. Further, if the investigating officer arrives at the conclusion that the crime was not committed within the territorial jurisdiction of the police station, then FIR can be forwarded to the police station having jurisdiction over the area in which the crime is committed. But this would not mean that in a case which requires investigation, the police officer can refuse to record the FIR and/or investigate it. In view of the above, Section 156 (2) Cr.P.C. also comes in the way of the petitioner in succeeding on the aforesaid account.

20. For all these reasons, the first submission regarding lack of jurisdiction is rejected, subject to what has already been held by the Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Satvinder Kaur (supra), as noticed above.

21. This is not a case where FIR has been lodged against a company, but a case where the FIR has been lodged against individuals, one of whom is the Director.

22. As regards the second submission that dispute is essentially of civil/commercial nature, therefore, action under criminal law is unwarranted, we do not find any merit in this submission also as allegations against the petitioner no.1 is of having fabricating and forging a board's resolution dated 01.10.2022 and based thereon to have executed and registered several sale deeds and thereby committing offence of criminal breach of trust, as the sale deed were in respect of flats which had been constructed by the company namely Radiant Buildcon Pvt. Ltd. and there was no authorization by the company in favour of petitioner no.1 for selling of the said flats. Moreover, it is also the allegation that the proceeds of said crime were misappropriated by the petitioner no.1 by transferring and depositing the same in his bank account and that of his wife at Lucknow.

23. Now, whether the allegations are correct or not cannot be seen under Article 226 of the Constitution of India at this stage as this is a matter of investigation, unless, of course it was a case where it was apparently incorrect and there could be no two views about it. The contention of Shri S.C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel in this context that the petitioner no.1 had not been paid the remuneration for quite some time and there was a understanding between the company and the petitioner no.1 that he would be paid from the sale receipts by sale of the aforesaid flats.

24. As regards the contention of Shri S.C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel that the company and the informants were all along aware of the transactions being made by the petitioner no.1 on behalf of the company but no objection were raised and the FIR has been lodged only on 26.01.2024, belatedly, merely because of initiation of various proceedings by the petitioner no.1 against the company and its directors, as noticed here-in-above, therefore, it is a mala-fide action, Shri J.N. Mathur, learned counsel for the informant submitted that they came to know about the board resolution dated 01.10.2022 only on 08.01.2024 and thereafter they issued another public notice on 11.01.2024 and also approached the police authorities concerned who opined that a detailed application would be required, setting out in detail the events which had taken place, constituting a crime whereupon a written complaint was made and FIR was lodged on 26.01.2024 and no advantage can be taken by the petitioners merely on the aforesaid ground. He submitted that even after coming to know of the public notice issued by the company the petitioner no.1 executed and got registered a sale deed as is evident from the list of sale deeds annexed with the writ petition but he has cleverly not mentioned the date of execution of such sale deed in favour of Ms. Shalini Chaudhary which, in fact, appears to have been executed on 11.01.2024. In our opinion ground raised by Shri S. C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel by itself cannot be the basis for its quashing. This is a defence of the accused petitioners and it is not for this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India to go into these factual issues. We have gone through the material on record relating to the proceedings initiated by the petitioner no.1 as already noticed in the earlier part of the judgment but even these documents do not persuade us to hold that it is a purely civil or commercial dispute, considering the allegations made in the FIR. We may in this context refer to the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Lee Kun Hee (supra) (para 73). We are of the opinion that considering the nature of the offence alleged to have been committed by the petitioners, there can be civil liability coupled with criminal culpability. Moreover, considering the allegations regarding forging and fabrication of board resolution dated 01.10.2022 and also mis-appropriating the proceeds of sale deeds executed based thereon it can give rise to criminal culpability/liability also. Many of the proceedings referred by Shri S. C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel are unrelated to the allegations in the FIR. To say that the aforesaid dispute is the background which has led to false implication does not cut much ice as of now, unless the allegations are found to be false during investigation. On a bare reading of the FIR it cannot be said that the offences alleged are not cognizable or are not made out, at least at this stage. The proceedings challenging the decision of Board of Directors proposing to remove him through petitioner no.1 from the post of Director of the company would not involve an inquiry or investigation into the allegations of forgery and fabrication of the board resolution or at least it would not preclude an investigation by the police as, if proved, this may amount to a criminal offence. We, therefore, reject the second submission also.

25. The third submission is with regard to concealment of proceedings referred by Shri S.C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel, which according to him, were the background for filing of the FIR. We do not find any substance in this submission also. None of the said proceedings relied by Shri S. C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel and as recorded by us while noticing his arguments, have any direct bearing on the allegations in the FIR so as to preclude a criminal investigation into such allegations or a judicial review of validity of the FIR under challenge before us. From a bare reading of the FIR it cannot be said that no cognizable offence is made out.

26. The explanation offered by Shri S.C. Mishra, learned Senior Counsel with regard to deposit of one of the amounts in the account of one of the purchasers who is also an accused, i.e., Mr. Dhillon to the effect that it was a loan extended by said Mr. Dhillon to the petitioner no.1, is a plea of defence and we cannot go into this plea at this stage under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. We must put it on record that Shri J. N. Mathur, learned counsel appearing for the informant submitted that this was a fantastic plea which no prudent person could accept but we say no more in this regard.

27. Shri Mathur also invited our attention to the signatures on the board resolution dated 01.10.2022, which according to the FIR is forged and fabricated, conjointly with another resolution bearing the signatures of some of the signatories of the forged resolution to contend that on a perusal from naked eyes itself the forgery and fabrication was apparent, however, we do not express any opinion in this regard also.

28. Having gone through the contents of the FIR and even at the cost of repetition we may say that this is not a case where the FIR should be quashed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

29. We accordingly do not find any merit in the case. This, of course, is without prejudice to the rights of the petitioners in the pending investigation and also to avail such other remedies as may be prescribed in law.

30. Subject to above, we dismiss this writ petition.

1. Heard Shri Mohit Singh, learned counsel for the petitioners, Shri P.C. Srivastava, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Shri J.K. Upadhyay, learned A.G.A. for the State-respondents and perused the record.

2. The instant writ petition has been preferred with the prayer to quash the First Information Report dated 01.01.2024, registered as Case Crime No.0001 of 2024, under Sections 2/3 of the Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 (hereinafter referred to 'the Act of 1986'), Police Station-Bilari, District Moradabad with a further prayer to direct the respondents not to take any coercive action against the petitioners pursuant to the aforesaid F.I.R.

FACTS OF THE CASE

3. The respondent No.5 lodged the aforesaid F.I.R. alleging that the accused persons named therein are indulged in anti-social activities and are operating a gang; that the investigation in relation to the aforesaid case crime is still pending and that no charge-sheet has been submitted against the petitioners. As regards the gang-chart dated 25.11.2023, it is pleaded that incorrect details of criminal cases pending against the petitioners were furnished to the Authorities by the Station House Officer of Police Station concerned recommending prosecution of the petitioners under the Act of 1986. It is stated that in relation to Case Crime No.417 of 2023, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 307/34 IPC read with Section 3/25/27 Arms Act, mentioned at serial No. 1 in the gang chart, it is mentioned that charge-sheet has been submitted before the court on 11.11.2023 whereas the charge-sheet has not been submitted in the court. Regarding Case Crime No.334 of 2016, under Sections 441, 447, 504, 506 IPC read with Section 3 of Prevention of Damage to Public Property Act, 1984, mentioned at Serial No.2 in the gang chart, it has been shown to be pending against the petitioners vide charge-sheet No.199/2016 dated 08.08.2016, information pertaining whereto has been pleaded as "incorrect" stating that challenging the proceedings arising out of the said charge-sheet, Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. No.5191 of 2017 (Dharmendra Kumar and 3 others vs. State of U.P. and another) was filed, in which, an interim order has been passed on 16.02.2017 by this Court and Application U/S 482 Cr.P.C. is still pending but this fact has not been mentioned in the Gang chart.

GROUNDS OF CHALLENGE

4. The F.I.R. has been challenged mainly on the grounds that while preparing the gang-chart, the respondents have violated the Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Rules'), inasmuch as, incorrect and incomplete information was furnished before the Authorities by the Station House Officer concerned; that the gang-chart has been approved by the Competent Authority without application of mind; that the details of criminal history of accused on dossier do not reflect any discussion of District Magistrate and the Senior Superintendent of Police in a joint meeting which is contrary to Rule 5(3)(a) of the Rules; that as per the gang chart, proceedings in pursuance of charge-sheet dated 08.08.2016 filed in Case Crime No.334 of 2016 are stated to be pending whereas there is an interim order dated 16.02.2017 passed by this Court, which has not been mentioned in the gang chart and the same has been approved on the basis of unconfirmed details of cases without verifying the status which is in violation of Rule 8(3) of the Rules; that the procedure prescribed under Rules 16 and 17 has not been followed and the gang-chart has been approved by using the language provided in the proforma without application of mind; and that no date is mentioned alongwith signatures of the District Magistrate and the Senior Superintendent Police, Moradabad on the gang chart. Much emphasis has been laid on the aspect that in relation to Case Crime No.417 of 2023, under Sections 147, 148, 149, 323, 307/34 IPC read with Section 3/25/27 Arms Act, gang chart mentions that charge-sheet has been submitted before the court on 11.11.2023 whereas, infact, the charge-sheet has not been submitted in the court, rather it is lying with the Police Authorities. In sum and substance, violation of Rules 5(3)(a), 8(3), 10, 16 and 17 has been pressed into service and it is contended that the gang-chart does not conform to the guidelines laid down by this Court vide judgement dated 13.12.2023 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.16258 of 2023 (Sanni Mishra @ Sanjayan Kumar Mishra vs. State of U.P. and 2 others).

5. Another submission was made by learned counsel for the petitioner that the impugned F.I.R. has been registered under Section 2/3 of the Act of 1986, however, though sub-clause (b) of Section 2 describes various offences from (i) to (xxv), it is not clear from the F.I.R. as to under which sub-clause of Section 2, the F.I.R. has been registered and, therefore, the F.I.R. is liable to be quashed on this ground too.

PREVIOUS PROCEEDINGS IN THIS CASE

6. This Court, after noting down certain infirmities in preparation of gang-chart, by order dated 01.02.2024, directed filing of personal affidavit of Senior Superintendent of Police Moradabad as well as Station House Officer, Police Station-Bilari and also ordered for their personal appearance fixing 08.02.2024, on which date, Shri Sandeep Kumar Meena, Superintendent of Police, Rural, Moradabad and Shri Ravindra Pratap Singh, Station House Officer, Bilari, District Moradabad appeared in-person and also filed affidavits. An application for exemption from personal appearance of Senior Superintendent of Police Moradabad was allowed on the same day.

STAND TAKEN IN PERSONAL AFFIDAVITS

7. Shri Ravindra Pratap Singh, Station House Officer, Police Station-Bilari, Moradabad, in his personal affidavit states that the gang-chart was prepared ensuring strict compliance of Rules 5(3)(c) and 8(3) of the Rules, making true disclosure of criminal history of the petitioners. Further stand is that as per Rules 16 and 17, the Inspector Incharge prepared the gang-chart and presented the same before the Nodal Officer/Circle Officer, whereafter, the same was forwarded by Nodal Officer/Circle Officer to the Superintendent of Police, Rural, Moradabad, who further forwarded the same to Senior Superintendent of Police Moradabad, thereafter, the Senior Superintendent of Police, Moradabad recommended and forwarded the same to the District Magistrate, Moradabad and then, after due discussion in a joint meeting between the Senior Superintendent of Police and District Magistrate, Moradabad, it was approved. The affidavit is accompanied by voluminous documents which shall be discussed in the later part of this judgement. Similar stand has been taken in the affidavit of Senior Superintendent of Police, Moradabad and arguments on the same line have been advanced before this Court from the State side.

QUESTIONS ARISING FOR CONSIDERATION

8. After perusing the writ petition and the affidavits and having heard learned counsel for the parties at length, the questions that arise for consideration by this Court are as to whether, in the present case, the State/ Police Authorities have ensured compliance of the provisions of Act of 1986 and the Rules of 2021 and whether non-compliance, if any, would vitiate the proceedings undertaken by the officers or would create sufficient grounds for quashing the impugned F.I.R.

9. Another question that arises before us is whether registration of an F.I.R. only under Section 3 of the Act of 1986, without mentioning any one or the other offences mentioned in sub-clause (b) of Section 2, would vitiate the F.I.R itself. In order to consider the said issues and the said questions, it is necessary to refer certain relevant provisions of the Act of 1986 and the Rules of 2021.

STATUTORY PROVISIONS

10. The Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 (U.P. Act No.7 of 1986) was passed by the U.P. Legislature as an Act to make special provisions for prevention of and for coping with gangster and anti-social elements and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. In exercise of powers conferred by Section 23 of the Act of 1986, the State Government framed the 'Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021 (for short 'the Rules of 2021') with a view to provide for a speedy and transparent procedure to punish gangsters to establish efficient recovery system in respect of property of gangster and incidental benefits acquired through crimes and acts related therewith.

11. Section 20 of the Act describes the "OVERRIDING EFFECT" of the Act of 1986 and Rules of 2021 over any other enactment in the following words:-

"20. Overriding effect. - The provisions of this Act or any rule made thereunder shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other enactment."

12. Section 2(f) of the Act provides that words and phrases used but not defined in the Act but defined in Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 or Indian Penal Code, 1860 shall have the meanings respectively assigned to them in such Codes. It, therefore, follows that if certain words are described in the Act itself, the meaning assigned to them would be understood as it is but, in other eventuality, aid of I.P.C. and Cr.P.C. would be taken. Further, any provision of the Act or any Rule made thereunder would be given precedence and supremacy over anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other enactment, including I.P.C. and Cr.P.C.

13. Since, in the present case, violation of various Rules of the Rules of 2021 has been alleged by the petitioners, certain rules relevant to the present case are being reproduced as under :-

"5. General Rules.- (1) To initiate proceedings under this Act, the concerned Incharge of Police Station/Station House Officer/Inspector shall prepare a gang-chart mentioning the details of criminal activities of the gang.

(2) The gang-chart will be presented to the district head of police after clear recommendation of the Additional Superintendent of Police mentioning the detailed activities in relation to all the persons of the said gang.

(3) The following provisions shall be complied with in respect of gang-charts:

(a) The gang-chart will not be approved summarily but after due discussion in a joint meeting of the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate/ Senior Superintendent of Police/ Superintendent of Police.

(b) There may be no gang of one person but there may be a gang of known and other unknown persons and in that form the gang-chart may be approved as per these rules.

(c) The gang-chart shall not mention those cases in which acquittal has been granted by the Special Court or in which the final report has been filed after the investigation. However, the gang-chart shall not be approved without the completion of investigation of the base case.

(d) Those cases shall not be mentioned in the gang-chart, on the basis of which action has already been taken once under this Act.

(e) A separate list of criminal history, as given in Form No.-4, shall be attached with the gang-chart detailing all the criminal activities of that gang and mentioning all the criminal cases, even if acquittal has been granted in those cases or even where final report has been submitted in the absence of evidence.

Along with the above, a certified copy of the gang register kept at the police station shall also be attached with the gang-chart. In addition to the above, the information of crime and gang members mentioned in the gang-chart will also be updated on Interoperable Criminal Justice System (ICJS) portal and Crime and Criminal Tracking Network System (CCTNS).

8. Stating unconfirmed or false information is prohibited.-(1) The Incharge of Police Station/Station House Officer/Inspector shall not mention the cases as Part Trial or Partial Trial (PT) without ascertaining the up-to- date status of the cases in the gang-chart.

(2) No unconfirmed or false information shall be entered in the gang-chart.

(3) The latest status of the cases against the gang, which are being shown in he gang-chart, regarding their pendency in the Special Court, the convictions or the stage at which they are in the Court, must be clearly mentioned.

(4) The responsibility of recording the correct and true information shall lie on the concerned Incharge of Police Station/Station House Officer/Inspector.

(5) On discovering an adverse situation, the Incharge of Police Station/Station House Officer/Inspector shall be held liable for negligence under departmental and criminal proceedings.

"10. Records of Base Cases.- (1) Alongwith gang chart, the certified copy of the charge-sheet and recovery memo shall be attached compulsorily.

(2) Where the accused is not named in the First Information Report and document discloses the way in which his name came to light and if something has been recovered, a certified copy of the recovery memo shall be attached."

16. Forwarding of Gang-Chart.-The following manner shall be followed in the forwarding of Gang-Chart :

(1) Forwarding of the gang-chart by the Additional Superintendent of Police. The Additional Superintendent of Police will not only take a quick forwarding action in the case but he will duly peruse the gang-chart and all the attached forms; and when it is satisfied that there is a just and satisfactory basis to pursue the case, only then will he forward the letter along with the recommendation given below on the gang-chart to the Superintendent of Police / Senior Superintendent of Police.

"Thoroughly studied the gang-chart and attached evidence. The basis of action under the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act 1986 exists. Accordingly, forwarded with recommendation."

(2) Forwarding of the gang-chart by the district police in-charge.- When the gang-chart along with all the Forms is received by the Senior Superintendent of Police/Superintendent of Police with the clear recommendation of the Additional Superintendent of Police, he will also thoroughly analyze all the facts and when it is confirmed that all the formalities of the Act have been fulfilled and there is a legal basis for taking action in the case, then he should forward the gang-chart to the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate stating that: "I have duly perused the gang-chart and attached forms and I am fully satisfied that all the particulars mentioned in the case are correct and there is a satisfactory basis for taking action under the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act 1986. Accordingly, approved."

(3) Resolution of the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate.- When the gang-chart is sent to the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate along with all the Forms, all the facts will also be thoroughly perused by the Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate and when he is satisfied that the basis of action exists in the case, then he will approve the gang-chart stating therein that: "I duly perused the gang-chart and attached Forms in the light of the evidence attached with the gang-chart satisfactory grounds exist for taking action under the Uttar Pradesh Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986. The gang- chart is approved accordingly."

It is noteworthy that the words written above are only illustrative. There is no compulsion to write the same verbatim but it is necessary that the meaning of approval should be the same as the recommendations written above, and it should also be clear from the note of approval marked.

17. Use of independent mind.- (1) The Competent Authority shall be bound to exercise its own independent mind while forwarding the gang-chart.
(2). A pre-printed rubber seal gang-chart should not be signed by the Competent Authority; otherwise the same shall tantamount to the fact that the Competent Authority has not exercised its free mind."

14. Apart from the aforesaid provisions of the Act of 1986 and Rules framed thereunder, certain other provisions of penal law have also to be looked into before arriving at a conclusion as to whether there is compliance or non-compliance of the provisions of law by the respondents while preparing and approving the gang-chart in the present case. The same shall be referred to at appropriate place in this judgement.

15. Learned counsel for the petitioners, referring to the gang-chart and other documents attached thereto, has vehemently argued that though it is mentioned therein that charge-sheet in relation to Case Crime No.417 of 2023 has been sent to the court on 11.11.2023, the said fact is patently false and incorrect in the light of 'Annexure No.9' to the writ petition. He submits that when progress report qua investigation was sought from the Court of Judicial Magistrate Moradabad, vide application dated 06.01.2024, the said court, through its office, has issued a certified copy of an application dated 07.01.2024, sent by Shri Pradeep Kumar, Sub-Inspector of Police Station-Bilari, Moradabad, annexed at 'page 151' of the paper-book of the petition, wherein he has stated that after completing the investigation in Case Crime No.417 of 2023, Charge-sheet No.410 of 2023 has been sent on 11.11.2023 to Circle Officer, Bilari. It is, therefore, contended that once the Sub Inspector has himself on 07.01.2024 mentioned that charge-sheet has been sent to the Circle Officer, Bilari, it shows that by the time the gang-chart was approved in the last week of December 2023, charge-sheet was not submitted before the court. Hence, it is clear that absolutely false and incorrect information was incorporated in the gang-chart which, being in teeth of Rule 8(3) of the Rules, would vitiate the proceedings and would suffice quashing of the impugned F.I.R.

16. Learned counsel for the petitioners has also argued that Rule 10 of the Rules makes it mandatory to attach certified copy of the charge-sheet alongwith the gang-chart, however, once charge-sheet has not been submitted in the court in relation to Case Crime No.417 of 2023, there is no question of issuance of certified copy thereof and, hence, no occasion ever arose to attach certified copy of the charge-sheet alongwith the gang-chart, as a consequence whereof, the impugned action is wholly unsustainable.

MEANING AND IMPORT OF 'CERTIFIED COPY OF CHARGE SHEET'

17. At this stage, the Court deems it appropriate to explain the requirement of attaching certified copy of the charge-sheet as per Rule 10. To appreciate this, Rule 60 of the Rules of 2021 needs thoughtful consideration and is quoted hereinbelow:-

"60. Certified copies shall be primary evidence- Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in any other Act, in the trial of cases under this Act the criminal cases included in the gang-chart and the FIRs mentioned in the list can be proved by the Officer certifying the certified copy of the charge-sheet. No original form shall be required for the same and the facts contained in the Forms so proved shall be deemed to be proved unless it is rebutted by any evidence to the contrary."

18. Significantly, Rule 60 finds place in Chapter-8 of the Rules with a heading- GENERAL RULES OF TRIAL. The Rule clearly reflects that certification of a charge-sheet is associated with the police officer, however, it clearly and unambiguously relates to trial of cases under the Act and the role of the officer has been assigned only to prove the certified copy of the charge sheet during the course of trial itself. Therefore, proving certified copy of the charge-sheet has nothing to do with preparation or approval of the gang-chart at the initial stage of proceedings, rather Rule 60 would come into application during the course of trial and that would certainly begin when the charge-sheet is submitted before the court concerned and cognizance is taken thereon, otherwise, trial cannot begin. The language used in Rule 60 is clear and unambiguous, i.e., "CERTIFYING THE CERTIFIED COPY OF THE CHARGE-SHEET and "NOT CERTIFYING THE CHARGE-SHEET ITSELF". Therefore, Rule 60 would come into play at that stage when gang-chart alongwith certified copy issued by the competent Court is already filed before the Trial Court and the police officer is called upon during the course of trial to certify that certified copy of the charge-sheet.

Hence, it cannot be said that Rule 60 would empower the police officer to certify the charge-sheet itself during the course of investigation so as to satisfy the requirement of Rule 10 which casts mandatory duty upon police officer to compulsorily attach the certified copy of the charge-sheet alongwith gang-chart.

19. Here, certain provisions of Cr.P.C. also need a glance. Though, in common parlance, we frequently use the word "charge-sheet", surprisingly, Cr.P.C. does not define "charge-sheet". What it defines in relation to completion of investigation is a "police report" as per Section 2(r) in the following words:-

"(r) "police report" means a report forwarded by a police officer to a Magistrate under sub-section (2) of Section 173;"

20. Therefore, a police report is referable to the one which the Incharge of the police station forwards to a Magistrate after completion of investigation. Section 173(2) of Cr.P.C. needs reference here and is reproduced as below:-

(2)(i) As soon as it is completed, the officer-in-charge of the police station shall forward to a Magistrate empowered to take cognizance of the offence on a police report, a report in the form prescribed by the State Government, stating -

.....

21. The police report can either be in the form of a charge-sheet containing the conclusion drawn by the Investigating Officer that the accused persons should be tried after being summoned before the court or it can be a final report disclosing that accusation made through FIR has been found to be false giving rise to no occasion for trial of accused persons. In both the cases it will be a "police report" only.

22. Insofar as the word "charge" is concerned, Chapter XVII Cr.P.C. is titled as "THE CHARGE" and contains various provisions in relation to framing of charge, its alteration etc. etc. Therefore, the word "charge" has been used in relation to competence of the court concerned for trial of offenders and has nothing to do with the power of police officers in relation to accusation. As a matter of fact, the police officers have no right to frame the charge which is the sole prerogative of the Trial Court concerned after it takes cognizance of the police report submitted under Section 173(2) Cr.P.C.

23. When aforesaid is the situation, then what would be the meaning and significance of words "charge sheet" used in Rule 10 of the Rules. Since the words "charge sheet" have not been defined either in the Act of 1986 or the Rules of 2021 or even in Cr.P.C., these words used in common parlance would be understood as they are but certainly in the light of same words used in the Act of 1986.

24. The Court has got the occasion to go through certain judgements pronounced by esteemed co-ordinate benches of our Court where necessity of attaching certified copy of the charge-sheet has been discussed. In the judgements dated 31.05.2023, 02.05.2023 and 28.08.2023 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition Nos.5202 of 2023 (Manoj Maurya vs. State of U.P. and another), 19638 of 2022 (Binni Lala @ Vinod Kumar Jain vs. State of U.P. and 3 others) and 12808 of 2023 (Rahul Saxena @ Bhola/Bholu vs. State of U.P.

and 3 others) respectively, the Co-ordinate Benches of this Court have dealt with Section 76 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act of 1872') and have observed that it is not the requirement of law, particularly, Rule 10 of the Rules of 2021, to attach certified copy of the charge-sheet obtained from the court concerned, rather the certification made by the public officer in whose custody of public document remains, would suffice, provided requirements of Section 76 are satisfied. For a ready reference, Section 76 of the Act of 1872 needs reproduction as follows:-

"76. Certified copies of public documents.- Every public officer having the custody of a public document, which any person has a right to inspect, shall give that person on demand a copy of it on payment of the legal fees therefore, together with a certificate written at the foot of such copy that it is a true copy of such document or part thereof, as the case may be, and such certificate shall be dated and subscribed by such officer with his name and his official title, and shall be sealed, whenever such officer is authorized by law to make use of a seal; and such copies so certified shall be called certified copies."

Explanation.-Any officer who, by the ordinary course of official duty, is authorized to deliver such copies, shall be deemed to have the custody of such documents within the meaning of this section.

25. The Court is conscious of the fact that Section 76 finds place in Chapter V of the Act of 1872 which is titled as "OF DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE". The Chapter contains provisions in relation to proof of documents and contents thereof by way of primary and secondary evidence, their admissibility, rules as to notice to produce, attestation, admission and many other related provisions. The Scheme of the Act of 1872 is clear and, therefore, Section 76 has to be read in relation to the proceedings during the course of trial before the court of law where stage of proving or disproving a document reaches and it cannot be associated with the stage when trial has not even commenced in cases arising out of Act of 1986. Therefore, Section 76 cannot be associated with preparation or approval of gang-chart where charge-sheet has not been filed in the base cases, subject to contingencies mentioned in Rule 22 discussed later. Rule 2(b) of the Rules 2021 defines "base cases" as the cases on the basis of which a gang-chart has been prepared with the intention of taking action against the gang under the Act.

26. We may emphasize that since the issue involved in this case is as to whether without completion of investigation and without submission of charge-sheet by the police in the base case(s), a person can be made an accused under the Act of 1986, it is also necessary to refer to Rule 22 of the Rules of 2021, as quoted below:-

"22. Criminal history not mandatory and sections of the Act can be imposed in the course of investigation – (1) A single act/omission will also constitute an offence under the Act, and First Information Report may be registered on the basis of a single case i.e., it is not mandatory that any criminal history must be recorded and alleged before registering an offence under the Act.

(2) The Act may also come into force on a single prosecution in certain class of cases, such as - if it appears that the gang has committed a single offence mentioned in Sections 302, 376D, 395, 396 or 397 of the Penal Code out of the offences mentioned in sub-clause (i) of clause (b) of Section 2 of the Act or sub-clauses (ii), (iii), (v), (vii), (x), (xii), (xiv), (xv), (xvii), (xviii), (xix), (xx) or (xxi) of clause(b) of Section 2 of the Act, which is presently under investigation, and the offence under this Act is being proved by collected evidence, then along with the criminal act under consideration, the gang-chart should also be approved by the concerned Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate involved in the investigation of the said offence and the provisions of the Act can be imposed while investigating both the offences together in accordance with the provisions of the Act. Further, the charge-sheet can be sent to the Special Court constituted under the Act."

27. It is apparently clear from Rule 22(1) that a single act/omission can also constitute an offence under the Act of 1986 and First Information Report may be registered on the basis of a single case. This Rule has already been interpreted by the Supreme Court in the case of Shraddha Gupta vs. State of U.P. decided on 26.04.2022 in Criminal Appeal No.569-570 of 2022 reported in 2022 SCCOnline SC 514 and, hence, needs no further deliberation. However, sub-rule (2) of Rule 22 is of quite significance in the present case which, infact, is an exception to Rule 5(3)(c) in the sense that whereas Rule 5(3)(c) provides that the gang-chart shall not be approved without completion of investigation of the base case(s), sub-rule (2) of Rule 22 mentions various sub-sections of Section 2 of the Act of 1986 and the sub-rule implies that after the gang has committed a single offence mentioned under Sections 302, 376D, 395, 396 or 397 of the Penal Code out of the offences mentioned in sub-clause (i) of clause (b) of Section 2 of the Act or sub-clauses (ii), (iii), (v), (vii), (x), (xii), (xiv), (xv), (xvii), (xviii), (xix), (xx) or (xxi) of clause (b) of Section 2 of the Act, which offences are under investigation, then alongwith criminal act under consideration, the gang-chart should be approved by the concerned Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate involved in investigation of the said offence and the provisions of the Act can be imposed while investigating both the offences altogether in accordance with the provisions of the Act. Rule 22(2) of the Rules of 2021, as such, carves out an exception to the requirement of completion of investigation before the gang-chart is approved, however, it can be done only when the First Information Report in the base case(s) is registered under any of the penal provisions mentioned under sub-rule (2) of Rule 22, otherwise, Rule 5(3)(c) shall, generally, be read with Rule 10 and understood in absolute terms and before approving the gang-chart, not only the investigation must be completed but a charge-sheet also must be submitted before the Competent Court and the certified copy must have been issued by the said Court so as to compulsorily form part of the gang-chart as per Rule 10(1).

28. In the present case, the base case covered by Case Crime No. 417 of 2023 is not covered by Rule 22(2) of the Rules 2021 in the sense that it is not an offence mentioned in sections 302, 376D, 395, 396 or 397 of the Penal Code out of the offences mentioned in sub-clause (i) of clause (b) of Section 2 of the Act or sub-clauses (ii), (iii), (v), (vii), (x), (xii), (xiv), (xv), (xvii), (xviii), (xix), (xx) or (xxi) of clause (b) of Section 2 of the Act, and, therefore, the present case is not the one which falls within exception to the general Rules 5 and 10 and, hence, in the facts of the present case, the Court is of the considered view that without completion of investigation and without forwarding the charge-sheet in Case Crime No.417 of 2023 to the Court, the gang-chart, could not be approved.

29. Now coming to the aspect as to whether in view of Rules 5(3)(a), 8(3), 16 and 17, the preparation/approval of the gang-chart in the present case, is according to law, the Court has carefully gone through the record of proceedings and it finds that in every document including gang-chart, its format, charts and tables describing criminal history etc., the factum of submission of charge-sheet No. 410 of 2023 on 11.11.2023 in the Court and pendency of proceedings before the Judicial Magistrate has been written down and described. Surprisingly, the current status column too contains the same disclosure in all the tables and charts filed alongwith personal affidavit of the Station House Officer.

30. During the course of arguments, learned State Counsel could not dispute the submission advanced on behalf of the petitioners that the Sub-Inspector of Police Station Bilari himself, on 07.01.2024, submitted an application before the Judicial Magistrate that charge-sheet No.410 of 2023 had been forwarded on 11.11.2023 to the Circle Officer, Bilari. The said report forms part of the record of the Court of Judicial Magistrate where the case number has not been mentioned which is normally allotted after cognizance is taken on the charge sheet, but the report has been issued by mentioning crime number and the relevant sections only. This, in itself, suggests that charge-sheet has not been filed in the Court of Judicial Magistrate and the trial is not pending based thereupon and, therefore, the information entered into in the gang-chart and other charts that proceedings are pending before the Judicial Magistrate and that charge-sheet has been forwarded to the Magistrate is incorrect and incomplete disclosure of true and factual position. Therefore, preparation of gang-chart in the present case is clearly in teeth of Rule 8 (2) of the Rules.

31. The Court has already discussed that unconfirmed or false information shall not be entered in the gang-chart as mandated under Rule 8(2) and now this Court is inclined to make the officers understand the seriousness of furnishing false and unconfirmed information as, in such event, the statutory responsibility is fastened on the Incharge of police station concerned as per sub-rules (4) and (5) of Rule 8 reproduced as such:-

"(4) The responsibility of recording the correct and true information shall lie on the concerned Incharge of Police Station/Station House Officer/Inspector.

(5) On discovering an adverse situation, the Incharge of Police Station/Station House Officer/Inspector shall be held liable for negligence under departmental and criminal proceedings."

32. As far as compliance of Rules 16 and 17 is concerned, though the State has made attempts to support the gang-chart and the approval granted to it by referring to the documents annexed to the personal affidavit, a careful scrutiny of the documents would reveal that the Nodal Officer/Regional Officer Moradabad forwarded the gang chart for approval on 27.12.2023, the Superintendent of Police, Rural, Moradabad forwarded the gang-chart for approval on 28.12.2023 and the joint meeting of Senior Superintendent of Police and District Magistrate, Moradabad has been shown to have been held on 01.01.2024. It is not clear from the gang-chart as to on what date the Senior Superintendent of Police forwarded the gang-chart for approval and as to on which date the District Magistrate approved the gang-chart. Clearly and visibly the columns and signatures of Senior Superintendent of Police and District Magistrate are "undated". No minutes of joint meeting have been annexed. It is not clear as to where was this joint meeting held and who were present therein. In any case, there are chances of doing only paper work as regards holding a joint meeting without actually holding it. In that event, the entire scheme of the Rules would frustrate.

33. Rule 17 of the Rules casts a mandatory duty on the Competent Authority to exercise its own independent mind while forwarding the gang-chart, however, the dates referred to hereinabove i.e. 27.12.2023, 28.12.2023 and 01.01.2024 and the 'undated signatures' made by the District Magistrate and the Senior Superintendent of Police, particularly considering the fact that charge-sheet has not at all been submitted in the case covered by Case Crime No.417 of 2023, are sufficient to convince this Court that gang-chart has been hurriedly prepared, forwarded and approved without application of independent mind and, therefore, there is a clear violation of Rule 17 of the Rules of 2021.

34. At this stage, it is apposite to refer to a latest circular dated 21.01.2024 whereby the State Government has directed the Deputy Inspector General, U.P., Lucknow, Additional Commissioners of Police, Prosecution Directorate, Lucknow, all the Commissioners, all the District Magistrates, all the Police Commissioners, Senior Superintendents of Police, Superintendents of Police in the State of U.P. to ensure strict compliance of Rules 2021 by referring to Rules 5(3), 8, 16, 17, 20 and 26, 36 and 64. The Circular, surprisingly, does not refer to Rule 10 which casts a compulsory and mandatory duty of attaching certified copy of the charge-sheet alongwith the gang-chart. This Court has already interpreted the said provision in detail, hereinabove.

35. The Court also finds that significance of Rule 64 of the Rules of 2021 contained in Chapter 10 has seldom been noticed by the highest police officials as well as the District Magistrate. For the sake of convenience, Rule 64 is reproduced as follows:-

64. Supervision by three-tier Committees. -The following three-tier Committees shall be constituted in relation to the regular supervision and review of any proceedings under the Act and the disposal and management of their ancillary matters:

(1) District Level Supervision Committee-

(a) Every quarter, the action taken under this Act, including the proceedings under Section 14 of the Act and the cases decided, shall be compulsorily reviewed by the District Level Supervision Committee;

(b) Essentially, the police officers who have filed a case under the Act and who are doing the investigation will be present with all the case diaries and information.

(c) The said District Level Supervision Committee will be constituted as under:

(i) Commissioner of Police/District Magistrate-Chairman

(ii) District Police In-charge, Senior Superintendent of Police/ Superintendent of Police-Vice President

(iii) Additional Superintendent of Police/Circle Officer-Nodal Officer

(iv) Joint Director Prosecution-Member Secretary

(v) Public Prosecutor of the Gangster Act-Member;

(d) Minutes of the decisions taken and the review made in the said District Level Supervision Committee will be prepared by the Judicial Assistant/Confidential Assistant and sent to the Divisional Level Supervision Committee and the Home Department of the Government as soon as possible with the signature of the Chairman;

(e) In addition to the above, the said Committee shall have the authority to get the properties of any gang or criminals investigated by any appropriate institution and to issue all such orders so that such gangs or criminals cannot get the benefit of any government services, business, contracts, leases, State schemes, etc. and if such benefit has been received by them, then the same should be recovered. The compliance of the Witness Protection Scheme, 2018 and the instructions related to witness protection in force for the time being shall also be ensured by this Committee.

(2) Divisional Level Supervision Committee-

(a) The Divisional Level Supervision Committee shall consider the quarterly review report of the District Level Supervision Committee and the action taken by it under this Act, including the proceedings under Section 14 of the Act;

(b) The cases decided by the District Level Supervision Committee will be compulsorily reviewed by the Divisional Level Supervision Committee in every six months;

(c) In the review meeting of the said Committee, the Nodal Officer of the concerned district will necessarily be present with relevant information;

(d) The said Divisional Level Supervision Committee will be constituted as under:

(i) Divisional Commissioner-Chairman

(ii) Inspector General of Police/Joint Commissioner of Police (Crime)-Vice President/ Nodal Officer

(iii) Additional Director Prosecution-Member Secretary

(iv) Officer of the local body of the Divisional Headquarters (Municipal Commissioner /Executive Officer)-Member

(v) Regional Lead Branch Manager of National and Private Bank-Member

(vi) Senior most officer of Income Tax Department-Member

(vii) Senior most officer of the GST/Sales Tax Business Tax Department-Member;

(e) In addition to reviewing the criminal cases, the said Committee will provide proper information to the Investigating Officers regarding the activities related to the property acquired by the gangster under the Act and share the relevant information with all the concerned at the divisional level;

(f) Minutes of the decisions taken and the review done in the Divisional Level Supervision Committee will be prepared and sent to the Home Department of the Government as soon as possible with the signature of the Chairman;

(g) In addition to the above, the said Committee shall have the authority to get the properties of any gang or criminals investigated by any appropriate institution and to issue all such orders so that such gangs or criminals cannot get the benefit of any government services, business, contracts, leases, State schemes, etc. and if such benefit has been received by them, the same should be recovered. The compliance of the Witness Protection Scheme, 2018 and the instructions related to witness protection in force for the time being shall also be ensured by this Committee.

(3) State Level Supervision Committee-

(a) The State Level Supervision Committee shall supervise the Divisional Level Supervision Committee and District Level Committees half-yearly and make policy after considering their reports regarding punishment of criminals and disposal of their illegal properties in favour of the State;

(b) The State Level Supervision Committee will be constituted at the State level to take appropriate action as follows:

(i) Additional Chief Secretary, Home-Chairman

(ii) Principal Secretary, Justice/Legal Adviser-Vice President

(iii) Director General of Police-Vice President

(iv) Director General, Prosecution-Member Secretary

(v) Head of State of National and Private Bank-Member

(vi) Senior most officer of Income Tax Department-Member

(vii) Senior most officer of GST/Sales Tax Business Tax Department-Member;

(c) In addition to the above, the said Committee shall have the authority to get the properties of any gang or criminals investigated by any appropriate institution and issue all such orders so that such gangs or criminals cannot get the benefit of any government services, business, contracts, leases, State schemes, etc. and if such benefit has been received by them, the same should be recovered. The compliance of the Witness Protection Scheme, 2018 and the instructions related to witness protection in force for the time being shall also be ensured by this Committee."

36. The afore-quoted Rule 64 describes three-tier system where the Committee, namely District Level Supervision Committee, shall be constituted in relation to the regular supervision and review of any proceedings under the Act and disposal and management of their ancillary matters. The importance of Rule 64 is that every action under the Act, right from the beginning till end, has to be under regular supervision and review of such Committees but what the Court finds in almost all the cases, including the present one, that the gang-charts are hurriedly prepared containing various infirmities and irregularities which are altogether ignored by the members of the said Committee and taking advantage of the technical shortfalls, even a hard core criminal easily escapes from the stringent action under the Act.

37. It is now necessary to give reference to certain judicial pronouncements on purposive interpretation of a statute.

38. Jurisprudence of statutory interpretation has moved from "literal interpretation" to "purposive interpretation", which advances the purpose and object of a legislation. The Supreme Court, in catena of judgments, has dealt with the issue of literal interpretation vis-a-vis purposive interpretation.

39. The Apex Court, in Central India Spinning and Weaving Manufacturing Comp. versus Municipal Committee, Wardha, AIR 1958 SC 341, has held that it is a recognised principle of construction that general words and phrases, however wide and comprehensive they may be in their literal sense, must usually be construed as being limited to the actual objects of the Act.

40. The Supreme Court, in Girdhari Lal & Sons versus Balbir Nath Mathur; 1986(2) SCC 237, has held that the primary and foremost task of a Court in interpreting a statute is to ascertain the intention of the legislature, actual or imputed. Having ascertained the intention, the Court must then strive to so interpret the statute as to promote and advance the object and purpose of the enactment. For this purpose, where necessary the Court may even depart from the rule that plain words should be interpreted according to their plain meaning and there need no meek and mute submission to the plainness of the language. To avoid patent injustice, anomaly or absurdity or to avoid invalidation of a law, the court would be well justified in departing from the so-called golden rule of construction so as to give effect to the object and purpose of the enactment by supplementing the written word if necessary. It went to observe that ascertainment of legislative intent is a basic rule of statutory construction and that a rule of construction should be preferred which advances the purpose and object of a legislation and that though a construction, according to plain language, should ordinarily be adopted, such a construction should not be adopted where it leads to anomalies, injustices, or absurdities, vide K.P. Varghese v. ITO, (1981) 4 SCC 173, State Bank of Travancore v. Mohd. M. Khan, (1981) 4 SCC 82, Som Prakash Rekhi v. Union of India (1981) 1 SCC 449, Ravula Subba Rao v. CIT, AIR 1956 SC 604, Govindlal V Agricultural Produce Market Committee, (1975) 2 SCC 482 and Babaji Kondaji v. Nasik Merchants Co-op Bank Ltd. (1984) 2 SCC 50.

41. The Supreme Court, in Utkal Contractors & Joinery Pvt. Ltd. versus State of Orissa; 1987 (3) SCC 279, has observed that a statute is best understood if we know the reason for it. The reason for a statute is the safest guide to its interpretation. The words of a statute take their colour from the reason for it. There are external and internal aids. The external aids are Statement of Objects and Reasons when the Bill is presented to Parliament, the reports of Committees which preceded the Bill and the reports of Parliamentary Committees. Occasional excursions into the debates of Parliament are permitted. Internal aids are the Preamble, the scheme and the provisions of the Act. Having discovered the reason for the statute and so having set the sail to the wind, the interpreter may proceed ahead. No provision in the statute and no word of the statute may be construed in isolation. Every provision and every word must be looked at generally before any provision or word is attempted to be construed. The setting and the pattern are important. It is again important to remember that Parliament does not waste its breath unnecessarily. Just as Parliament is not expected to use unnecessary expressions, Parliament is also not expected to express itself unnecessarily. Even as Parliament does not use any word without meaning something, Parliament does not legislate where no legislation is called for. Parliament cannot be assumed to legislate for the sake of legislation; nor can it be assumed to make pointless legislation. [See-Eera (through Dr. Manjula Krippendorf) v. State (NCT of Delhi) and Anr 2017(15) SCC 133].

42. The more stringent the Law, the less is the discretion of the Court. Stringent laws are made for the purpose to achieve its objectives. This being the intendment of the legislature, the duty of the court is to see that the intention of the legislature is not frustrated. If there is any doubt or ambiguity in the statutes, the rule of purposive construction should be taken recourse to, to achieve the objectives. (See Swedish Match AB & Anr. Securities & Exchange Board, India & Anr., (2004) 11 SCC 641).

43. The Apex Court, in Reserve Bank of India Vs. Peerless General Finance and Investment Co. Ltd. & Ors. (1987) 1 SCC 424, held that Interpretation must depend on the text and the context. They are the bases of interpretation. One may well say if the text is the texture, context is what gives the colour. Neither can be ignored. Both are important. That interpretation is best which makes the textual interpretation match the contextual. A statute is best interpreted when we know why it was enacted. With this knowledge, the statute must be read, first as a whole and then section by section, clause by clause, phrase by phrase and word by word. If a statute is looked at, in the context of its enactment, with the glasses of the statute-maker, provided by such context, its scheme, the sections, clauses, phrases and words may take colour and appear different than when the statute is looked at without the glasses provided by the context. With these glasses we must look at the Act as a whole and discover what each section, each clause, each phrase and each word is meant and designed to say as to fit into the scheme of the entire Act. No part of a statute and no word of a statute can be construed in isolation. Statutes have to be construed so that every word has a place and everything is in its place.

44. Same view has been reiterated in S. Gopal Reddy Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh, (1996) 4 SCC 596, Prakash Kumar Alias Prakash Bhutto Vs. State of Gujarat, (2005) 2 SCC 409, Anwar Hasan Khan Vs. Mohd. Shafi & Ors. (2001) 8 SCC 540, Union of India & Ors. Vs. Filip Tiago De Gama of Vedem Vasco De Gama, (1990) 1 SCC 277, Reserve Bank of India v. Peerless General Finance and Investment Co. Ltd., (1987) 1 SCC 424: (AIR 1987 SC 1023) and N. K. Jain v. C. K. Shah (1991) 2 SCC 495: (AIR 1991 SC1289).

REFERENCE TO A LARGER BENCH

45. This Court is satisfied in the present case that preparation/forwarding as well as approval of the gang-chart is in teeth of Rules 5, 8, 10, 16 and 17 of the Rules, but since our esteemed Co-ordinate Benches of this Court, in above-noted judgments, have interpreted Rule 10 contrary to the view taken by this Court in this judgment, the question on interpretation of Rules 5, 10, 22 and 60 needs to be referred to the larger Bench.

46. As regards second limb of argument of learned counsel for the petitioner regarding validity of an F.I.R.

under section 3 of the Act only, without mentioning any other offences described it section 2(b) thereof, learned counsel for the petitioner placed reliance on a recent decision of this Court in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.18729 of 2023 (Asim @ Hassim vs. State of U.P. and another) decided on 02.12.2023 and reported in 2024 (1) ADJ 125(DB).

47. The Court has perused the said judgment wherein an F.I.R. lodged under Section 3(1) of the Act of 1986 was quashed by the Court on the ground that apart from Section 3(1) of the Act, no corresponding provision mentioning anti-social activities, in which the accused was allegedly involved and was named as gangster as per one or the other sub-section of Section 2, was there in the F.I.R.

48. This Court, having gone through the Scheme of the Act read with general penal law covered by Indian Penal Code, 1860 is of the view that First Information Report is always lodged under the provision inflicting penalty of imprisonment and/or fine against the accused and not under the provision where the offence itself is defined. For example, 'cheating' is defined under Section 415 of Indian Penal Code, 1860, whereas F.I.R. in relation to commission of 'offence of cheating' is lodged under Section 420 I.P.C. which is a penal provision. Similarly, 'criminal breach of trust' is defined under Section 405 but FIR is registered under Section 406 IPC; 'forgery' is defined under Section 463 IPC but F.I.R. is lodged under Section 465/467/468/471 IPC, murder is defined under Section 300 but F.I.R. is lodged under Section 302, so on and so forth.

49. Admittedly, Section 3 is the penal provision under the Act, 1986 in relation to the offences described under various sub-sections of Section 2 of the Act and, hence, this Court is of the view that it is not necessary to mention any one or the other clause of Section 2 while registering F.I.R. under the Act of 1986, for which, mentioning of Section 3 is sufficient. Therefore, this Court is in respectful disagreement with the judgment of our esteemed Co-ordinate Bench in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.18729 of 2023 (Asim @ Hassim vs. State of U.P. and another) decided on 02.12.2023 and reported in 2024 (1) ADJ 125(DB) and reference on this point is also required to be made and is being made.

50. In connection to the aforesaid, we may take aid to a very recent decision dated 19.02.2024 pronounced by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Criminal Appeal Nos(s).... of 2024 (arising out of SLP (Crl.) No(s). 437 of 2023 (Farhana vs. State of U.P. and others) connected with another case can be taken. The Supreme Court was dealing with a case where the accused had been exonerated/acquitted in the base case, however, the acquittal was not taken note of while preparing the gang-chart and, hence, the Supreme Court quashed the FIR and also reversed the decision of this Court, by which, this Court had declined quashing of the FIR by placing reliance upon judgement in the case of Shraddha Gupta (supra) and. In 'paragraph 13' of the judgement in the case of Farhana (supra), the Supreme Court observed as follows:-

"13. Needless to say that for framing a charge for the offence under the Gangsters Act and for continuing the prosecution of the accused under the above provisions, the prosecution would be required to clearly state that the appellants are being prosecuted for any one or more offences covered by anti-social activities as defined under Section 2(b)."

51. It is clear from a bare reading of paragraph 13 of the said judgement that the prosecution would be under an obligation to clearly state that the accused persons are being prosecuted for any one of the offences covered by anti-social activities as defined under Section 2(b), however, that stage would come while framing the charge for the offence under the Gangster Act. It is, thus, apparent that there is no such requirement at the time of bare registration of FIR and, therefore, mentioning Section 3 of the Act, 1860 only would suffice at that stage.

52. Therefore, the judicial propriety demands that the aforesaid aspects should also to be referred for being answered by a Larger Bench.

53. The Registry is, accordingly, directed to place this matter before Hon'ble the Chief Justice for constituting Larger Bench to answer the following questions:-

(A) Whether, in the light of Rule 60 of the Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Rules, 2021 the words "certified copy of the charge-sheet" used in Rule 10(1) mean certified copy issued from the trial Court after submission of police report by the Investigating Agency before the trial Court and after the Court takes cognizance thereupon, or a certification made on the charge sheet by the police officer involved in investigation prior to its submission before the trial Court is sufficient as per section 76 of the Evidence Act, 1872, where the offences are not covered by those specified under Rule 22(2)?

(B). Whether in view of the scheme of penal law covered by Indian Penal Code, 1860 and/or the Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986, is it necessary at all to mention in the F.I.R. any one or more of the offences described under Section 2(b) of the Act?

54. Till the aforesaid questions are answered by the Larger Bench, interim protection granted to the petitioners under the order dated 08.02.2024 shall remain in operation.

55. Although we have referred the above-noted questions for being answered by the Larger Bench, it is made clear that in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case, the protection granted to the petitioners or reference made to the Larger Bench would, under no circumstances, be treated as a judgment/order in rem so as to install any proceedings in any other case pending in the State of U.P. under the Uttar Pradesh Gangster and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, 1986 before any Authority or Court, including this Court.

Cases Cited:

1. Maneka Gandhi Vs. Union of India (1978) AIR SC 597

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shamim Ahmed, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ajmal Khan, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Surya Bhan Pandey, learned Sr. Advocate and Deputy Solicitor General of India assisted by Sri Varun Pandey, learned counsel for the Union of India as well as perused the record.

2. The instant writ petition has been filed seeking following main relief:-

"I. Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of Certiorari quashing the order dated 17.01.2024 passed by learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-V, Room No.29, Lucknow, by means of which application for renewal of passport of petitioner was rejected."

3. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that a Passport No. H8600780 was issued to the petitioner by the Passport Office, Lucknow for the period of 01.12.2009 to 30.11.2019, which has been expired. The petitioner has visited six times to Kingdom of Saudi Arab and lastly he visited in the Month of February, 2019. He further submits that petitioner's brother-in-law's marriage is schedule on 30.04.2024 in the Kingdom of Saudi Arab and petitioner is willing to attend the same.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that an application was filed by the petitioner before the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-V, Room No.29, Lucknow for grant of permission for renewal of passport, which was rejected by means of order dated 17.01.2024 observing therein that this Court has no jurisdiction for granting the permission of renewal of passport. He further submits that the petitioner is a member of political party, therefore, in the month of December, 2019, five cases were lodged against the petitioner, which are related to protest against CAA/NRC. In any of the case, charge has not been fixed by the learned trial court till date.

5. In support of his argument, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the notification of Ministry of External Affairs, New Delhi dated 25.08.1993, which is being quoted hereunder:-

"G.S.R. 570(E).--In exercise of the powers conferred by clause (a) of Section 22 of the Passports Act 1967 (15 of 1967) and in supersession of the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of External Affairs No. G.S.R. 298(E), dated the 14th April, 1976, the Central Government, being of the opinion that it is necessary in public interest to do so, hereby exempts citizens of India against whom proceedings in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by them are pending before a criminal court in India and who produce orders from the court concerned permitting them to depart from India, from the operation of the provisions of Clause (f) of sub-section (2) of Section 6 of the said Act, subject to the following conditions, namely:-

(a) the passport to be issued to every such citizen shall be issued -

(i) for the period specified in order of the court referred to above, if the court specified a period for which the passport has to be issued; or

(ii) if no period either for the issue of the passport for the travel abroad is specified in such order, the passport shall be issued for a period of one year;

(iii) if such order gives permission to travel abroad for a period less than one year, but does not specify the period of validity of the passport, the passport shall be issued for one year; or

(iv) if such order gives permission to travel abroad for a period exceeding one year, and does not specify the validity of the passport, then the passport shall be issued for the period of travel abroad specified in the order;

(b) any passport issued in terms of (a)(ii) and (a)(iii) above can be further renewed fr one year at a time, provided the applicant has not travelled abroad for the period sanctioned by the court; and provided further that, in the meantime, the order of the court is not cancelled or modified.

(c) any passport issued in terms of (a)(i) above can be further renewed only on the basis f a fresh court order specifying a further period of validity of the passport or specifying a period for travel abroad;

(d) the said citizen shall give an undertaking in writing to the passport-issuing authority that he shall, if required by the court concerned, appear before it at any time during the continuance in force of the passport so issued."

6. Thus, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned order dated 17.01.2024 is totally illegal, perverse and arbitrary as the same is passed without application of judicial mind and also without considering the notification of Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, New Delhi, therefore, the same is liable to be quashed.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for the Union of India has placed a notification of the Government of India dated 25.08.1993 (which has already been quoted above) and an Office Memorandum dated 10.10.2019 (which is being quoted hereunder) issued by the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, New Delhi. He has also placed an order passed by co-ordinate Bench of this Court dated 02.02.2024 passed in Application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. No.839 of 2024 and submits that there is no restriction to the learned trial court to direct for grant of permission for renewal of passport. He further submits that as per aforesaid notification and order passed by the co-ordinate Bench of this Court, the impugned order dated 17.01.2024 passed by learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-V, Room No.29, Lucknow, on its face appears to be passed without application of judicial mind and without considering the aforesaid notification. Thus, the impugned order is liable to be quashed and matter be remanded back to the concerned Magistrate for giving permission to the petitioner for renewal of his passport.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM

Subject: Issue of passports to applicants against whom criminal cases are pending before a court of law in India.

Reference is invited to Notification No. GSR 570(E) dated 25.8.1993 regarding issuance of passports to applicants who have criminal proceedings pending against them and whose applications would attract the provisions of clause (f) of sub-section (2) of Section 6 of the Passports Act, 1967.

2. GSR 570(E) dated 25.8.1993 is reproduced below for reference:

"G.S.R. 570(E).--In exercise of the powers conferred by clause (a) of Section 22 of the Passports Act 1967 (15 of 1967) and in supersession of the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of External Affairs No. G.S.R. 298(E), dated the 14th April, 1976, the Central Government, being of the opinion that it is necessary in public interest to do so, hereby exempts citizens of India against whom proceedings in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by them are pending before a criminal court in India and who produce orders from the court concerned permitting them to depart from India, from the operation of the provisions of Clause (f) of sub-section (2) of Section 6 of the said Act, subject to the following conditions, namely:-

(a) the passport to be issued to every such citizen shall be issued -

(i) for the period specified in order of the court referred to above, if the court specified a period for which the passport has to be issued; or

(ii) if no period either for the issue of the passport for the travel abroad is specified in such order, the passport shall be issued for a period of one year;

(iii) if such order gives permission to travel abroad for a period less than one year, but does not specify the period of validity of the passport, the passport shall be issued for one year; or

(iv) if such order gives permission to travel abroad for a period exceeding one year, and does not specify the validity of the passport, then the passport shall be issued for the period of travel abroad specified in the order;

(b) any passport issued in terms of (a)(ii) and (a)(iii) above can be further renewed fr one year at a time, provided the applicant has not travelled abroad for the period sanctioned by the court; and provided further that, in the meantime, the order of the court is not cancelled or modified.

(c) any passport issued in terms of (a)(i) above can be further renewed only on the basis f a fresh court order specifying a further period of validity of the passport or specifying a period for travel abroad;

3. It may be noted that applicants may be refused passports only on grounds mentioned under Section 6(2) of the Passports Act, 1967. Section 6(2)(f) of the Act states that the passport authority shall refuse to issue a passport or travel document to an applicant on the ground that proceedings in respect of an offence alleged to have been committed by the applicant arc pending before a criminal court in India. GSR 570(E) dated 25.8.1993 was introduced to give relief to such applicants against whom criminal proceedings are pending before any Court of law in India but who may need to travel abroad for some urgent business. With an undertaking under GSR 570(E) and an order from the Court, an applicant could be issued a short validity passport of one year validity for the period specified by the Court.

4. It has been noticed that there are an increasing number of references being received regarding passport applications attracting Section 6(2)(f). It has also been brought to Ministry's notice that there are a number of complex issues involved while processing such applications. During the proceedings in a recent court case, the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in W.P. (CRL) No. 2844/2018 /CRL.M.A. 48674/2018 has directed that guidelines be issued by the Ministry reiterating the procedure for processing of such applications and emphasizing that such applications need to be processed with due care and diligence.

5. In view of the above, the following instructions may be adopted while processing the passport applications in respect of those applicants who may have criminal proceedings pending before a criminal court in India:

(i) The provisions of GSR 570 (E) may be strictly applied in all case. GSR 570 (E) is a statutory notification and hence, forms part of the Rules. It is to be noted that as per Section 5 (2) of the Passports Act, 1967, the passport authority shall be order in writing take a decision whether to issue or refuse a passport, after making such inquiry, if any, as it may consider necessary. Moreover, Section 7 of the Passports Act, provides that a passport or travel document may be issued for a shorter period than the prescribed period if the passport authority, for reasons to be communicated in writing to the applicant, considers in any case that the passport or travel document should be issued for a shorter period. Rule 12 of the Passport Rules, 1980 only states that an ordinary passport shall be in force for a period of 10 years which implies that an ordinary passport cannot be issued beyond a period of 10 years.

(ii) Whenever an applicant is submitting a 'No Objection Certificate' (NOC) from a Court of law in India, the applicant should be advised that undertaking as per GSR 570(E) should be complete in all respects and should mention all the pending criminal cases against the applicant. The undertaking will have a not clearly stating that if any false or incomplete information is submitted by an applicant, then his passport application is liable to be rejected.

(iii) Extant instructions clearly lay down that such applications should be processed on pre- Police Verification (PV) mode. "Pre-PV" would be mandatory in all cases of applications submitted with GSR 570(E) to ensure that the undertaking submitted by the applicant is properly matched with the criminal cases mentioned in the Police Verification Report (PVR). Hence, such applications should not be accepted under Tatkaal nor such applications be moved to "post-PV" mode or "No-PV" mode without proper justification and approval to be recorded in writing.

(iv) If an undertaking is incomplete or misleading and the applicant is found to have suppressed details of other criminal cases against the applicant, a Show Cause Notice should be issued to the applicant and action initiated against that applicant as per provisions of Section 12 of the Passports Act, 1967. If information that an applicant has obtained a passport by making a false submission or by suppressing material facts comes to light after the passport has been issued, the passport may be impounded or revoked as per provision of Section 10 (3) (b) of the Passports Act, 1967 after following the due procedure.

(v) In case where the first police verification (PV) is 'Adverse', secondary police verification may be generated. While a secondary PV is generated, it should be accompanied by a detailed letter seeking clarification regarding the pending criminal cases against the applicant and the status of these cases. Apart from generating secondary PVR, the passport officers may, if considered necessary, call for discreet enquiry through the police authorities by sending the court order submitted by the applicant or even seek verification from other government agencies/departments, as the case may be.

(vi) In case where the secondary Police Verification is also 'Adverse', it may be examined whether the details brought out in the police report match the undertaking submitted by the applicant. It may be noted that mere filing of FIRs and cases under investigation do not come under the purview of Section 6(2)(f) and that criminal proceedings would only be considered pending against an applicant if a case has been registered before any Court of law and the court has taken cognizance of the same.

(vii) If the details given in the police report and the undertaking submitted by the applicant are matching, then the 'No Objection Certificate' issued by a Court of law submitted by the applicant would take precedence over any 'Adverse' report submitted by the police. In such cases, the 'Adverse' report may be overruled with the written approval of the Passport Officer.

(viii) If the details given in the PVR and the undertaking submitted by the applicant are at variance, then a notice may be issued to the applicant calling for clarification and advising the applicant to submit details of all pending criminal cases as well as to submit a revised No Objection Certificate (NOC).

(ix) If it is brought to the notice of the authority that an applicant has criminal proceedings arrayed against applicant before several courts of law, then the applicant may be advised to get NOC from all the concerned court (s). Normally, the Court Order would make a mention of the cases pending against the applicant as well as the prayer made by the applicant. This may be examined along with the undertaking submitted by the applicant and complaints or other court orders, if any, that have been received against the applicant.

(x) It may noted that GSR 570(E) only exempts and applicant from the operation of Section 6 (2)(f) and none of the other sub-sections of Section 6(2) of the Passports Act, 1967.

(xi) A revised Undertaking under GSR 570(E) is attached at Annexure 'A'.

(xii) Passport Officers may issue an internal SOP along the above lines so that there is no confusion in handling of applications that would attract provisions of section 6(2)(f) of the Passports Act, 1967.

6. The above instructions may be noted for strict compliance with immediate effect.

8. After considering the arguments as advanced by learned counsel for the parties as well as after perusal of record, this Court finds that Under Article 19(1)(d) and Article 21 of the Constitution of India, the citizens of the country are entitled for passport. In Maneka Gandhi Vs. Union of India (1978) AIR SC 597, the Apex Court has held that having passport is a fundamental right of the citizen of India and a citizen can not be deprived of such fundamental right.

9. This Court further observes that for issuance of passport a declaration has to be made by the applicant that the applicant has not been convicted by any Court of Law in India for any criminal offence and has not been sentenced to imprisonment for two years or more than two years with other relevant information.

10. A careful reading of provisions of the Passport Act and the Notification dated 25.08.1993 alongwith the Office Memorandum dated 10.10.2019 in the light of it's legislative backgrounds as mentioned above, it is clear that passport or travel document of a person, who is facing trial can be refused by the authority concerned during pendency of his criminal case, but there is no statutory bar for giving no objection by the court concerned. No hard and fast straight jacket formula can be laid down regarding issuance of permission or giving no objection by the court concerned for issuance of passport. It is always discretion of the court concerned and depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case, act and conduct of the accused as well as nature of alleged offence committed by him and stage of trial, etc. Some time on account of enmity or ill will one party enmesh the other party in a frivolous criminal case to settle his personal score, therefore, in the interest of justice, it is necessary to consider all aspects of the matter and surrounding circumstances while granting or refusing the no objection for renewal or reissue of passport or travel documents by the court concerned.

11. Thus, this Court after considering the aforesaid judgment of Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Maneka Gandhi (Supra), is of the view that the learned trial court had completely ignored the Notification dated 25.08.1993 as well as Office Memorandum dated 10.10.2019 issued by the Ministry of External Affairs, Government of India, New Delhi (referred above) while passing the impugned order and had rejected the application of the petitioner for grant of permission for renewal of application for passport, thus, the impugned order is not sustainable in the eyes of law, therefore, the same is liable to be quashed and the matter is liable to be remanded back to the learned trial court concerned.

12. In view of above, the impugned order dated 17.01.2024 passed by learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-V, Room No.29, Lucknow, by means of which application for renewal of passport of petitioner was rejected, is hereby quashed and the matter is being remanded back to the learned trial court concerned for passing an order afresh in light of the Notification dated 25.08.1993 and the Office Memorandum dated 10.10.2019 as well as the judgment passed by Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the case of Maneka Gandhi (Supra).

13. Accordingly, the instant writ petition is allowed with direction to the learned trial court i.e. Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-V, Room No.29, Lucknow that if the petitioner moves a fresh application for grant of permission for renewal of passport within ten days from today, the same may be decided expeditiously i.e. within fifteen days from its filing in view of the above observations.

Criminal Law - U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970 - Sections 2(b) & 3(1) - Notice Validity Petitioner, enlarged on bail (20.06.2023), claimed consensual relationship with the victim, who confirmed in her Section 164 Cr.P.C. St.ment that she married him willingly and was major. Court held that a solitary case does not establish habitual criminality required for "goonda" classification under Section 2(b). Notice lacked general nature of material allegations, violating mandatory requirements under Section 3(1), as per Ramji Pandey Vs St. of U.P., 1981 Cri LJ 1083 and Bhim Sen Tyagi Vs St. of U.P., 1999 (2) JIC 192 (All) (FB). Notice deemed defective, unsupported by evidence of habitual offences, and contrary to victim's St.ment. Presumption of lawful official acts under Section 114(e), Evidence Act rebutted. Notice quashed for gross violation of law. St. directed to ensure public servants act within legal bounds, with potential disciplinary action for violations. Writ allowed with Rs. 20,000/- costs payable by St. within two months. Compliance to be reported within ten weeks. (Paras 9-20)

Writ Petition Allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddharth, J. & Vinod Diwakar, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, learned counsel for the informant and learned A.G.A. for the State respondents.

2. The present writ petition has been preferred with the prayer to quash the impugned Notice dated 31.01.2024 issued by Additional District Magistrate-Administration, District- Gorakhpur, in case no.- D 202305310002546, under Section 3/4 of U.P. Control of Goondas Act,(State Vs. Ravi), Police Station-Khajni, District- Gorakhpur.

3. The petitioner has been implicated in this case under section 3/4 of U.P. Control of Goondas Act because of his implication in case crime no. 340 of 2022, under sections- 363, 366, 376, 120-B IPC and 3/4 POCSO Act, Police Station-Khajni, District- Gorakhpur.

4. Learned counsel for petitioner has submitted that the above case was registered against the petitioner when he had consenting relationship with the victim. She left her house on her own and married the petitioner at Mumbai. In her statements recorded under Sections 161 Cr.P.C. and 164 Cr.P.C., she claimed herself to be major and clearly stated that the petitioner never used any force against her. She has stated that she wanted to live with the petitioner. Petitioner was enlarged on bail by this Court on 20.06.2023 in the aforesaid case.

5. Apart from the above implication, there is no case registered against the petitioner.

6. Learned counsel for petitioner has further submitted that the notice dated 31.01.2024 issued by the respondent no. 2 is bad in law. It does not contains the general nature of material allegations.

7. Learned AGA has opposed the submissions and has stated that the petitioner has opportunity of making representation before the respondent no. 2 and therefore his writ petition does not deserves to be entertained by this Court. Petitioner has criminal history of one case and one beat report is also against him as mentioned in the notice.

8. There are no disputed facts warranting call of counter-affidavit from the respondents.

9. After hearing the rival contentions a look at the definition of "Goonda" is required to be made as defined under section 2(b) of U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 170 which is as follows:-

" 2[(b) 'Goonda' means a person who-

(i) either by himself or as a member or leader of a gang, habitually commits or attempts to commit, or abets the commission of an offence punishable under Section 153 or Section 153-B or Section 294 of the Indian Penal Code or Chapter XV, Chapter XVI, Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the said Code; or

(ii) has been convicted for an offence punishable under the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956; or

(iii) has been convicted not less than thrice for an offence punishable under the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 or the Public Gambling Act, 1867 or Section 25, Section 27 or Section 29 of the Arms Act, 1959; or

(iv) is generally reputed to be a person who is desperate and dangerous to the community; or

(v) has been habitually passing indecent remarks or teasing women or girls; or

(vi) is a tout;

Explanation.- 'Tout' means a person who-

(a) accepts or obtains, or agrees to accept or attempts to obtain from any person for himself or for any other person, any gratification whatever as a motive or reward for inducing, by corrupt or illegal means any public servant or member of Government, Parliament or of State Legislature, to do or forbear to do anything or to show favour or, disfavour to any person or to render or attempt to render any service or disservice to any person, with the Central or State Government, Parliament or State Legislature, any local authority, Corporation, Government Company or public servant; or

(b) procures, in consideration of any remuneration moving from any legal practitioner interested in any legal business, or proposes to any legal practitioner or to any person interested in legal business to procure, in consideration of any remuneration moving from either of them, the employment of legal practitioner in such business; or

(c) for the purposes mentioned in explanation (a) or (b), frequents the precincts of civil, criminal or revenue Courts, revenue or other offices, residential colonies or residences or vicinity of the aforesaid or railway or bus stations, landing stages, lodging places or other places of public resort; or

(vii) is a house-grabber.

Explanation. - 'House-grabber' means a person who takes or attempts to take or aids or abets in taking unauthorised possession or having lawfully entered unlawfully remains in possession, of a building including land, garden, garages or out-houses appurtenant to a building.]

(viii) is involved in offences punishable under the Regulation of Money Lending Act, 1976;

(ix) is involved in offences punishable under the Unlawful Activities(Prevention) Act, 1966 and the Indian Forest Act, 1927;

(x) is involved in illegally transporting and/or smuggling of cattle and indulging in acts in contravention of the provisions in the Prevention of cow Slaughter Act, 1955 and the Prevention of Cruelty of Animals Act, 1960;

(xi) is involved in human trafficking for purposes of commercial exploitation, forced labour, bonded labour, child labour, sexual exploitation, organ removing and trafficking, beggary and like activities.]

10. This Court finds that the petitioner is not alleged to be leader of or member of any gang or he himself habitually commits or attempts to commit or abets the commission of offences mentioned in the definition clause quoted above.

11. There is a solitary case registered against him and he was not found to be habitual of abduction of women or girls. This Court in the case of Shankar Ji Shukla Vs. Ayukt Allahabad Mandal and others reported in 2005 (52) ACC 638 and in the case of Lalani Pandey @ Vijay Shankar Vs. State of U.P. and others, 2011(1) ACrJ 207 has held that a person cannot be held to be 'goonda' only on the basis of one or two acts. He can be held to be 'goonda' only when he is in the habit of committing repeated offences.

12. The Division Bench of this Court in the case of Idu Ali Vs. State of U.P. (Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 2895 of 2023) and others has held that where general nature of material allegations have not been mentioned in the notice issued under section 3 of the Act, notice will not be considered to be in accordance with mandatory provision of law as follows:-

"Learned counsel for the petitioner drew our attention to two Full Bench decisions in Ramji Pandey Vs. State of U.P. and others; 1981 Cri LJ 1083 and Bhim Sen Tyagi v. State of U.P. through D.M. Mahamaya Nagar, 1999 (2) JIG 192 (All) (FB).

In Ramji Pandey's case (supra), it has specifically been observed in paragraph 7 of the judgment that although the expression "material allegations" has not been defined by that Act, according to the dictionary meanings, the word "material" means "important and essential", "of significance". The word "allegation" means statement or assertion of facts. Thus, the notice under Section 3(1) should contain the essential assertions of facts in relation to the matters set out in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of sub-section (1) of Section 3 of the Act. It needs not refer to any evidence or other particulars or details. The names of witnesses, and persons who may have made the complaint against the person against whom action is proposed to be taken or the time, date and place of the offence committed by the person needs not be mentioned in the notice. There is a distinction between the "general nature of material allegations" and "particulars of allegations". In accordance with the former expression, the notice needs not give any details of the allegations, instead the requirement of law would be satisfied if the notice contains a general statement of facts which need not contain any details or particulars. In Ram Pandey's case, where there were allegations that, (a) the petitioner was a goonda, (b) his movements were causing alarm, danger and harm to the lives and properties of the persons within the circle of P.S.-Sikandarpur and there was reasonable ground for believing that he was engaged in the commission and abetment of offences punishable under Chapters XI, XII and XXII of the Indian Penal Code, and (c) the witnesses were not willing to give evidence against him by reason of apprehension on their part as regards their safety and danger to their persons and personal property. Regarding the aforesaid sub-paragraphs (a), (b) and (c), the material allegations of general nature were that there were various cases pending against the petitioner and the crime numbers and sections of those cases had been given in the notice and it was mentioned therein whether the petitioner had been convicted or acquitted in the cases or they were pending. In spite of mention of the crime numbers and sections and status of those cases, the notice in Ramji Pandey's case (supra) was held not to contain the general nature of material allegations and it was struck down.

In the present case also, nothing more than mention of the crime number and sections is all that we find, instead of the general nature of material allegations. A list of case crimes/first information reports/beat report registered against the petitioner does not satisfy the test of a valid notice under Section 3(1) carrying the "general nature of material allegations". Truly, the notice, on the foundation of which the order impugned has been made, is strictly in the teeth of the law laid down consistently by this Court; particularly, the Full Bench decision in Ramji Pandey (supra) and reiterated in Bhim Sain Tyagi (supra). A notice under Section 3(1) of the kind that is the foundation of proceedings here has been held in Bhim Sain Tyagi (supra) and in earlier decisions also, to violate the minimum guarantee of the opportunity that the Statute envisages for a person proceeded with/against under the Act of 1970. Thus, in this case, the impugned order, founded as it is, on a notice under Section 3(1) of the Act, stands vitiated by defects that go to the root of the matter."

13. In view of the above consideration, it is clear that the respondent no. 2 has issued the impugned notice without considering the provisions of law only on the basis of implication of the petitioner in a single case and on the basis of a beat report. The implication of the petitioner in the case crime no. 340/2022 was not supported by victim herself in her statement recorded under section 164 Cr.P.C., and she had married the applicant as well. Therefore, the recital in the notice that the petitioner is a goonda and habitually commits the offences under Chapter XVI, XVII and XXII of the Indian Penal Code and witnesses are not willing to give evidence against him by reason of apprehension on their part regarding their safety etc., are absolutely false.

14. There is presumption in favour of performance of official acts under section 114, illustrations (e) of Evidence Act that they have been regularly performed. This Court finds that the presumption in favour of respondent no.2 of performance of his official acts in accordance with law stands rebutted by the undisputed facts of this case and relevant provisions of law.

15. This is a case where the respondent no. 2, Additional District Magistrate-Administration, District-Gorakhpur, has issued the impugned notice in gross violation of law and acting against presumption of fairness in due discharge of his official duties.

16. This Court restraints itself from passing any further remarks against the respondent no. 2 but a direction is being issued to the respondent no.1, Principal Secretary, Department of Home, Government of U.P., Lucknow that he should ensure that the public servants exercising powers of the State should remain within the bounds of law and violation of law may entail disciplinary proceedings against them.

17. The impugned notice is hereby quashed.

18. The writ petition is, accordingly, allowed with cost of Rs. 20,000/- payable to the petitioner by the State within two months.

19. Registrar(Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to respondent nos. 1 and 2 within a week.

20. Respondent no. 1 will report compliance of this order to the Registrar(Compliance) of this Court within ten weeks.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ashish Agrawal, learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Srijan Pandey, learned Advocate holding brief for Sri Swetashwa Agarwal, learned counsel for the private respondents and Sri R.K. Gupta, learned AGA for the State.

2. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner-Irfan Ali against opposite party no. 2-Rajeev Gupta and 4 others, challenging the order passed by the Court of Session in Criminal Revision No. 286 of 2012 (Rajeev Gupta Vs. Irfan Ali and others), whereby an order passed by the Court of Additional City Magistrate dated 29.08.2012 passed under sections 145 and 146 Cr.P.C. was set-aside.

3. The submissions of the petitioner are as below:-

• The opposite party no. 2-Rajeev Gupta filed an application before the Executive Magistrate which gave rise to a proceeding under sections 145/146 Cr.P.C. with regard to plot no. A-13, Gandhi Nagar, Moradabad and the learned Court of Additional City Magistrate, after hearing both the sides and perusal of papers on record, dropped the proceedings and released the plot in favour of the petitioner-Irfan Ali. However, the order rightly passed by the Additional City Magistrate was set-aside by the Court of revision.

• The case of the petitioner is that he acquired the ownership and possession of the disputed plot on the basis of two registered sale deeds of 03.06.2011, from previous owners namely, Mohd. Furkaan, Mohd. Gurfaan and Mohd. Rizwan, all sons of Late Mohd. Jaan; this property was released in favour of aforesaid Mohd. Jaan in a Land Acquisition Reference No. 70 of 1956 by an order dated 24.03.1960.

• The then S.O., Thana Galshaheed, Moradabad filed a chalani report on 10.06.2011, requesting the City Magistrate for attatchment of disputed property i.e., plot no. A-13 part of gata no. 124, area 381.51 square meters; The Additional City Magistrate issued notice against them i.e., Irfan Ali and 3 others under section 145(1) Cr.P.C. by order dated 15.06.2011; the court concerned passed another order the same day under section 146(1) Cr.P.C., directing for attachment and for handing over the possession to a receiver.

• Earlier, the opposite party no. 2 had filed an Original Suit no. 506 of 2011, challenging the two sale deed dated 03.06.2011 executed in favour of the petitioner, which is pending.

• Though the plaintiff opposite party no. 2-Rajeev Gupta also made a prayer for injunction, but no injunction had been granted to him;

• The petitioner filed objections against the proceedings under sections 145 and 146 Cr.P.C.

• During the pendency of the proceedings, the opposite party no. 2 had filed an application under section 145(5) Cr.P.C. expressing that no longer any apprehension of breach of peace existed, therefore the proceedings may be dropped and the property may be released; this application was moved on 22.06.2011;

• The contention is that the claim of the opposite party no. 2 having been based on unregistered, unstamped title deed dated 27.08.1957, allegedly executed by the Moradabad Cooperative Housing Society in favour of father of opposite party no. 2, no reliance could be placed on the same and therefore opposite party no. 2 has no rights from such documents.

• The Additional City Magistrate, after considering all the material, rightly dropped the proceeding and released the same in favour of the petitioner; the property was attached and handed over to a receiver from possession of Irfan Ali (the petitioner), therefore rightly released to him.

• Another ground which has been taken in this writ petition is that the court of revision had stayed the operation of impugned order dated 15.06.2011, which was being extended from time to time but was not extended after 12.07.2012, hence the finding of the revisional court on this point is not sustainable.

• The parties were asserting that there existed no longer any apprehension of breach of peace; the High Court in an Application u/s 482 No. 40653 of 2011, directed the Magistrate to decide the proceeding pending before it, within a period of three months, therefore the Magistrate decided and dropped the same by order dated 29.08.2012.

• The revisional court has wrongly held that the Magistrate is not competent to drop the proceeding and that it had no jurisdiction to go into the questions of facts, as regard Land Acquisition Reference No. 70 of 1956; the application moved under section 145(5) Cr.P.C. was pending and not dismissed.

• A civil suit no. 506 of 2011 was also pending, therefore the learned trial court/SDM rightly released the same in favour of the petitioner.

• The revisional court is not at all justified in setting aside the order passed by the learned Magistrate and gave contrary finding which are perverse.

• Had the revisional court of a different view, it could have remanded the matter to the Magistrate for fresh consideration; the argument of the petitioner is that the proceeding under section 145 Cr.P.C. continued for about two years, but later on lost its significance in view of civil suits and non-existence of apprehension of breach of peace.

4. The submissions, on the other hand, of opposite party no. 2 (the main contesting party) in nutshell are as below:-

• The petitioner's claims title and ownership of plot no. A-13 part of Gata no. 124 on the basis of copy of an order of Land Acquisition Reference No. 70 of 1956 dated 24.03.1960 which is patently a forged and fabricated document, a fact which is revealed from perusal of the paper i.e., a certified copy obtained by the answering opposite party no. 1, which is annexed with the counter affidavit, therefore he lodged an FIR case crime no. 156 of 2011 under sections 147, 420, 468, 504, 506 IPC, in which the investigating officer, after collection of evidence, filed a chargesheet against several persons including the petitioner-Irfan Ali.

• During the investigation, it was found that plot no. A-13 has been falsely shown after manipulation in the order; the criminal case is pending against the accused persons.

• In the above circumstances, two sale deed dated 03.06.2011 do not convey any right, title or possession to the petitioner as no such right, title or possession could be conveyed on the basis of non-existent title deed.

• The opposite party no. 2 filed Original Suit no. 506 of 2011 for cancellation of sale deeds; neither the vendor nor the purchaser-Irfan Ali have ever been in actual physical possession of the disputed plot;

• On the other hand, the facts are that the Governor of Uttar Pradesh gave the land to the Moradabad Cooperative Housing Society, which included Gata no. 124 and one of the plots namely, plot no. A-13 was transferred on 27.08.1957 to the father of answering opposite party no. 2. The sale deed dated 27.08.1957 is duly registered in Sub-Registrar Office;

• Though the application under section 145(5) Cr.P.C. moved on 22.06.2011 was pending but he had moved a subsequent application on 24.08.2012, for withdrawal of the aforesaid application and no order was passed by the Court of SDM on his subsequent application.

• The Additional City Magistrate passed the order in haste and ignored number of facts and circumstances. It did not let the opposite party no. 2 file objections, though he had applied for a week's time.

• The basis on which the orders were passed, had no legs to stand; it cannot be said that the revisional court cannot take note of the fabrication of order dated 24.03.1960 passed in land acquisition reference of the suit no. 95 of 2007.

• The police acted in collusion with the petitioner; the impugned orders suffers from no illegality of the nature as my be taken note of or may be corrected in this writ petition.

5. I went through all the material on record, including the order passed by the Executive Magistrate as well as the impugned order passed by the court of revision. A few things attract attention of this Court.

(i) very first objection from the opposite side is that the petitioner has filed Misc. Writ Petition under Article 226 of the Constitution, instead he should have filed Misc. Writ Petition under Article 227 of the Constitution. On the above issue, I prefer to place reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Radhey Shyam and another vs. Chhabi Nath and others, (2015) 5 SCC 423. In the above noted case, the Supreme Court has clearly laid down that order of judicial court could be challenged under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and not under original writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. In my opinion, there is no legal hindrance in converting the petition under Article 226 to one under Article 227 of the Constitution. I, therefore, treat this petition as one under Article 227 of the Constitution. The registry shall assign appropriate number accordingly.

(ii) the petitioner claims of ownership and possession over the property is based on two sale deeds dated 03.06.2011, executed by the heirs of Late Mohd. Jaan and the title of said Mohd. Jaan is based on Land Acquisition Reference No. 70 of 1956 order dated 24.03.1960; the petitioner has filed a copy of order dated 24.03.1960, which is Annexure no. 3. On the other hand, the opposite party no. 2-Rajeev Gupta has filed certified copy of the same order (paper no. 30 annexed to the counter affidavit) which clearly shows that this order was passed in respect of land in plot no. 59, Khata Khewat no. 33 at Prince Road, Mauza Bhadaura (which according to respondent is 800 meters away from the disputed plot) and this paper conspicuously does not mention disputed plot A-13 of Gata no. 124.

(iii) it may also be noted at this juncture that the opposite party no. 2 had taken this plea before the revisional court as well, that the document which formed the basis of claim of the petitioner is forged one and that sufficient evidence has been found by the investigating officer during the investigation of FIR case crime no. 156 of 2011 under sections 147, 420, 468, 504, 506 IPC, lodged by him and that the chargesheet has also been submitted against him and several others.

(iv) the learned court of revision observed in para no. 14 that even before the initiation of present proceeding under section 145 Cr.P.C., the petitioner's side made earlier attempt to obtain possession of the dispute and property in an Original Suit no. 95 of 2007 on the basis of same document of Land Acquisition Reference No. 70 of 1956 order dated 24.03.1960 and how the learned Magistrate ignored the evidence with regard to very doubtful title and possession of Irfan Ali and instead gave a finding on the basis of mere police report and further observed that had those documents and evidence considered by the Magistrate, the finding would have been different.

(v) In my view, the aforesaid inference and observation of the learned revisional court are logical, well founded and based on evidence which was available on record. The observation by the revisional court that the learned Magistrate had ignored some apparent facts and evidence does not appear to be unfounded. In my opinion, where some discrepancies are apparent and ignored by the trial court, the revisional court is not powerless to set-aside the findings given on such basis. All these observations need not be disturbed by the court in exercise of powers under Article 226/227 of the Constitution.

6. Perusal of the impugned order shows that the revisional court took note of the fact that the order passed under section 145(1) Cr.P.C. had been stayed by the revisional court in Revision No. 250 of 2011, impleading both Rajiv Gupta and Irfan Ali, as opposite parties. This revision was admittedly filed by the instant opposite party no. 4, challenging both the orders dated 15.06.2011 passed under section 145(1) and 146(1) Cr.P.C. and undisputedly there was an interim stay passed by the revisional court in that revision (para nos. 6 and 7 of impugned order).

Further another observation in para no. 8 of the impugned order is that the Magistrate wrongly treated the Revision No. 250 of 2011, challenging the order under section 145(1) Cr.P.C., as a proceeding parallel to the proceeding under section 145 Cr.P.C. and the view taken by the revisional court in para nos. 9 and 10 that in Original Suit No. 95 of 2007, which was admittedly dismissed in default at initial stages, could not form basis of dropping of the proceedings, is not liable to be interfered at. It may also be mentioned that the revisional court expressed surprise over a fact that though earlier the opposite party no. 2 had moved an application for withdrawal of proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C., but subsequently he had given an application for withdrawal of withdrawal application, a fact conveniently ignored by the Magistrate.

7. The next important debatable issue involved in this case is that admittedly an Original Suit No. 506 of 2011 has been filed by the opposite party, therefore a parallel proceeding under section 145 Cr.P.C. is bad in law. It may be noted that the instant petitioner in support of his contention relies upon the judgments i.e., Mahar Jahan and Others vs. State of Delhi and Others, 2004 13 SCC 421; Ram

Sumer Puri Mahant vs. State of U.P. and Others, 1984 0 Supreme(SC) 361; Smt. Prema Devi vs. State of U.P. and Another, 2007 10 ADJ 227; Aman Deep Singh Shishya vs. State of U.P. and Another, 2023:AHC:241628.

The Supreme Court in Mahar Jahan and Others (supra), in a peculiar facts and circumstances of the matter before it, took a view that there was no such emergency so as to justify invocation of powers under section 146(1) Cr.P.C. to attach the property and set-aside the order passed by the S.D.M. and the High Court. In this case before the Supreme Court, the civil court has been seized of the matter since before the initiation of proceeding under section 146(1) Cr.P.C.

In Smt. Prema Devi case (supra), the application under section 482 Cr.P.C. was allowed and the proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. were quashed in a case where the applicant was a recorded tenure-holder and was in possession and her title was not under cloud and a civil suit was pending.

In Aman Deep Singh Shishya case (supra), the Allahabad High Court found following peculiar facts and circumstances that when a preliminary order under section 145(1) Cr.P.C. was passed an interim order passed by the High Court was in existence and a civil suit was also pending, in which the possession of one of the parties was shown, therefore the court took a view that a parallel criminal proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. was not justified and therefore preliminary order under section 145(1) Cr.P.C. was quashed.

8. It may be noted that there is no absolute bar for initiating or for continuing the proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. where circumstances do call for some urgent action on the part of the State, so that the ugly situations could be averted and that public peace and tranquillity may be maintained.

9. In Sanjai Kumar and Another vs. VIth Additional District Judge, Bareilly and Others, 1996 CriLJ 2413, a question arose before the Allahabad High Court, whether in cases, where there is no effective interim order recording that a particular party was in possession, passed by any civil court, the proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. shall be dropped? The Court considered that question; the relevant part of the judgement is as below:-

"4. The only material question for decision was as to whether in the absence of an effective interim order indicating possession by the civil Court in the aforesaid civil suit in favour of either of the parties to the dispute, the proceedings under Section 145, Cr. P. C. had become liable to be dropped?

5. Learned counsel for the parties relied upon a few decisions of various Courts for and against on the aforesaid question and after going through the same I find that the decision which applied to the facts of the instant case was a decision of this Court reported in 1992 JIC 35, Abdul Gafoor v. State of U.P. wherein it was held that the criminal Court continued to exercise the jurisdiction under Section 145, Cr.P.C., if no effective interim order was passed in the suit pending before the competent civil or revenue Court. This Court before laying down the aforesaid proposition of law, had considered some other decisions also."

10. The Allahabad High Court also dealt with the question of applicability of the law laid down by Supreme Court in Ram Sumer Puri Mahant vs. State of U.P. and Others; AIR 1985 SC 472 in following manner [as differentiated in Abdul Gafoor case (supra)].

"In the case of Ram Sumer Puri, Mahant, the question of title and possession over the subject- matter had already been adjudicated and the suit had been dismissed by the Civil Judge. An appeal against the judgment and order of the Civil Judge was still pending. It was in this background that the Supreme Court did not approve the parallel proceedings under Section 145, Cr. P. C. in respect of the same subject-matter between the same parties. Thus, Sumer's case is not an authority on the question that proceedings under Section 145, Cr. P. C, must be dropped in all cases whenever a civil suit is pending in respect of the same subject-matter between the same parties or between the parties through whom the panics are claiming their rights. Of course, parallel proceedings should not be allowed to continue, if a party under Section 145, Cr. P. C.,can seek an effective remedy/declaration from the Civil Court. Even in such a case, the proceedings under Section 145, Cr.P.C. should be dropped only when the Civil Court has passed some effective order indicating as to which of the parties was entitled to possession. In some cases, the proceedings should also be dropped when the Civil Court has appointed a receiver or has made some arrangement for the maintenance of such property. But, when the Civil Court does not clarify the position regarding the possession of the contesting parties by passing an effective order and simply passes an innocuous order like maintenance of status quo, the criminal proceedings are not to be dropped because in that case both the parties may stake their claim for possession and the situation may lead to the breach of peace. In such cases, even the proceeding under Sections 107/116, Cr.P.C. may not prove to be effective and the subject-matter may have to be attached by the Criminal Court. Of course, orders passed by the Criminal Court in such cases shall be subject to the decision of the Civil Court. Thus, the Magistrate is not bound to drop the proceedings pending in his Court in all cases under Section 145, Cr. P. C. for the simple reason that a civil suit is pending in the Civil Court in respect of the same matter between the same parties or through whom they are claiming.

6. In the instant case, Civil Court even did not pass order directing the parties to maintain status quo although the same would have been of no help as it would not have indicated the actual possession of either party. Thus, it is not a case in which any help would have been available to the Magistrate from the mere pendency of the civil suit between the parties for maintaining peace. The Magistrate was duty bound to maintain peace and, therefore, had got no alternative except to proceed further with the proceedings under Section 145, Cr.P.C. and the impugned attachment order thus appealed to be perfectly legal and valid. The proceedings under Section 145, Cr.P.C., therefore, continued to be maintainable and the Magistrate could not be directed by this Court to drop the same."

11. A similar situation arose before the Allahabad High Court in Raj Bahadur and Others vs. State of U.P. and Another, decided on 25 July, 1994 in Criminal Revision No.1032 of 1994. In that case, the civil court had passed orders directing the parties to maintain status-quo. The S.D.M. Court had dropped the proceeding under section 145 Cr.P.C. on the ground that the dispute between the parties is pending before civil court and revenue court and interim orders were in operation between them. In revision, the learned Sessions Judge disagreed with the assertions on the ground that the orders passed by the revenue and civil court for maintaining status-quo did not and could not effectively prevent the parties from fighting for the land and property in dispute and therefore the apprehension of breach of peace remained. The High Court observed in para- 3 and 4 as below:-

"3. It is not disputed that the orders passed are only for maintaining status quo. The order passed by the civil court has already expired, as it was not extended further. The purpose and objects of the proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. is to maintain the law and order and to prevent the parties from taking law in their own hands which may create breach of peace. The order passed by the civil court or revenue court should be such which may effectively prevent either of the parties from entering into dispute for taking possession of the property by force. In case of an order for maintaining status quo position about possession remains vague and the parties are still left to get it decided by themselves by use of disputed property on the date the order of status quo was passed. If the proceedings under Section 145 Cr.P.C. are allowed to be dropped in such state of affairs, the objects of the preventive provisions contained in original procedure code may be defeated.

4. For the reasons stated above, I do not find it proper to make any interference in this revision. It is being left open to the parties to make an application before civil court or revenue court as the parties are advised and to pray for passing a definite order with regard to possession of the parties during pendency of the suit. If such an application is filed, same shall be considered and decided in accordance with law. After a fresh order is passed by the civil court or revenue court, it shall be open to the Magistrate to pass a fresh order. Subject to aforesaid observation/directions, this revision is rejected."

12. This view finds strength from several judgments that it is not always that proceeding under section- 145 Cr.P.C. shall not be maintainable, if civil suits are pending.

The Supreme Court in Prakash Chand Sachdeva vs. State and Another, AIR 1994 SC 1436, held that where the dispute is on the question of possession, the Magistrate is empowered to take cognizance under section 145 Cr.P.C.

The Supreme Court in Amresh Tiwari vs. Lalta Prasas Dubey, 2000 (4) Supreme 665, has clarified that it will not be right to say that a proceeding under section 145 Cr.P.C. would never lie in a case where a civil suit has been filed.

13. The Allahabad High Court in Mahant Govind Sharan Ji Maharaj vs. State Of U.P. And 2 Others; 2023:AHC:196973 has observed in para no. 25 as below:-

"25. In my firm view, the jurisdiction which a Magistrate is supposed to exercise, is quite different from the jurisdiction which a Civil Judge may exercise. In both the cases, the question of possession is important but the aim and objective, is different. The civil court is concerned with the righteousness of once claim whereas the Magistrate is concerned with the maintenance of peace and tranquillity between the parties as well as for the society. In my view wherever there is an apprehension with regard to breach of peace and no effective order is in existence or has already been passed or may be passed by the civil court, interim or otherwise, the utility of the provisions like section 145 Cr.P.C. cannot be undermined. There may be instances where exigencies of a situation may require the authorities to interfere immediately and that may precisely the case where section 145 Cr.P.C. will come into play, notwithstanding the pendency of any civil suit."

14. In the instant case, the question of de-facto possession of opposite party no. 2, at the time of initiation of proceeding or two months prior to that is quite important. The admitted factual position is that the proceeding under section 145 Cr.P.C. commenced on 10.06.2011 and preliminary order under section 145(1) Cr.P.C. and order of attachment under section 146(1) Cr.P.C., as regard the attachment of subject of dispute, appointment and delivery of possession to the receiver was passed on 15.06.2011. Very forceful and vehement contention of opposite party no. 2 is that this measure was taken by the authorities in collusion with the petitioner-Irfan Ali, who had no basis for the claim, as regard possession and entitlement. The false and spurious claim of the petitioner was acted upon by the authorities and his bonafide pleas and papers were discarded. Further in such circumstances, he was compelled and had no option but to file a civil suit for cancellation of sham sale deeds. This civil suit was filed about two weeks after commencement of the proceedings under section 145 Cr.P.C. Admittedly, there has not been any interim order of any civil court, restraining any party from interfering in any others possession or to maintain status quo or showing factual position of the de-facto possession of either of the parties.

In the above senerio and in my opinion whether any apprehension of breach of peace exist and there is no need for taking any urgent action, the aggrieved person has to depend on the Executive authorities for redressal by taking recourse to proceeding under sections 145 and 146 Cr.P.C. It may be noted, as held and referred to above in Mahant Govind Sharan Ji Maharaj case (supra), a civil court is concerned with the righteousness of one's claim whereas the Magistrate while exercising powers under the provisions of sections 145/146 Cr.P.C. is concerned with the maintenance of peace and tranquillity between the parties as well as in the society. And whenever there is an apprehension of breach of peace and there no effective order passed by a civil court is in existence, the utility of provisions under sections 145/146 Cr.P.C., cannot be underestimated. In a civil case as well as in a case of the nature of sections 145 and 146 Cr.P.C. the question of de-facto possession is important but the aim and objective is different. It may also be significantly be noted that it is for the authorities to take stock of the situation and give a finding whether there existed any apprehension of breach of peace and then take a decision for dropping the proceeding. The Executive Magistrate cannot depend upon a mere assertion of any of the parties.

In my opinion, the revisional court rightly set-aside the order passed by the Additional City Magistrate. Moreover, the petitioner has, in my view, not able to convince this Court that there existed manifest and patent violation of law which should be corrected by this High Court in exercise of its powers under Article 226/227 of the Constitution. In my opinion, no case for interference in the impugned order is made out and this petition is liable to be dismissed and is dismissed accordingly.

15. The interim order is hereby vacated.

16. As the matter is quite old, therefore learned trial court/Executive Magistrate concerned is directed to take up the matter expeditiously and comply with the order of the revisional court dated 08.05.2013.

1. Heard Shri Gyanendra Kumar Mishra, holding brief of Shri Vivek Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner through Video Conferencing, Shri R.P.S. Chauhan, learned counsel for the Union of India, Shri Kuldeep Srivastava, learned counsel for the Enforcement Directorate, Shri Satish Chaturvedi, learned counsel for the State Bank of India, Shri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Shri G.P. Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State-respondents, Shri Gyan Prakash, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Sanjay Kumar Yadav, learned counsel for the CBI, Shri G.S. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Aditya Gupta, learned counsel for SKS Ispat and Power Ltd., and perused the record.

2. Initially, the petitioner approached this Court seeking a fair investigation in the impugned FIR1. However, through an amended application, the prayer was modified to request the transfer of the investigation to the CBI. For clarity, the amended prayer is reproduced herein after:

"Issue a suitable writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus transferring the investigation to the Central Bureau of Investigation relating to First Information Report No.0115 of 2021 dated 26.9.2021, u/s 120B, 420, 467, 468, 471, 474, 476, 506, 507, 511 IPC, P.S. Zafrabad, District Jaunpur."

3. The petitioner, a teacher and social worker, became aware of corporate fraud allegedly committed by SKS Power Generation Limited (hereinafter referred to as "SKSPGL") and its holding companies through a newspaper publication. The incident unfolded on March 17, 2021, when she visited the State Bank of India in Jaunpur to inquire about certain transactions involving the accused, Anil Gupta. There, she was asked to submit specific papers related to the reports upon which she was basing her claims of serious corporate fraud. Shortly afterward, unidentified individuals forcibly entered her residence and warned her against pursuing the case, threatening dire consequences. Subsequently, individuals in police uniform, purportedly from Chhattisgarh, Madhya Pradesh, Maharashtra, and Uttar Pradesh, visited her home, pressurizing her to withdraw the complaint dated August 13, 2021, pending before the court of the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate in District Jaunpur, Uttar Pradesh.

4. On the direction of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jaunpur, the FIR1 was registered, and the investigation was entrusted to Economic Offences Wing, Varanasi Division, after approval from the Home Department. Following the investigation the police filed the closure report, primarily citing two reasons; firstly, the petitioner was not found available at the provided address, and secondly, the alleged incident of assault mentioned in the complaint was not substantiated.

5. While the investigation was ongoing, the petitioner filed the present petition seeking a fair investigation. Subsequently, through an amended writ petition, the petitioner requested the transfer of the investigation to the Central Bureau of Investigation (hereinafter referred to as CBI) for a thorough and impartial investigation. This prayer was made on various grounds, inter-alia:

5.1 M/s SKSPGL operates in the electricity generation and distribution sector within the State of Chhattisgarh. The company has established a coal-based thermal power plant situated in Villages Binjkote & Durramuda, Raigarh District, Chhattisgarh. Additionally, in 2008, the company was allotted two coal blocks for the construction of a proposed third plant.

5.2 Between the financial years 2010-11 and September 2017-18, SKSPGL obtained a loan amounting to Rs.6170 crore from a consortium of banks, including the State Bank of India, L&T Infrastructure Finance Limited, PTC India Finance Limited, and State Bank of Bikaner and Jaipur. Specifically, State Bank of India granted Rs.5170 crore, L&T Infrastructure Finance Limited granted Rs.500 crore, PTC India Finance Limited granted Rs.400 crore, and State Bank of Bikaner and Jaipur granted Rs.100 crore.

5.3 Subsequent to acquiring the loan for the construction and development of the third project, SKSPGL allegedly engaged in misappropriating the loan funds through systematic corporate fraud. This misappropriation involved various methods, including transferring a significant portion of the loan amount to British Virgin Islands and British Overseas Territories of Bermuda through fictitious companies. These funds were then allegedly used to purchase SKSPGL's assets in collaboration with bank officials, violating RBI guidelines through group holding companies registered in aforementioned off - shore locations. Additionally, some loan funds were purportedly utilized in the stock market and the issuance of fraudulent Compulsorily Convertible Debentures (CCDs) for unlawful gains. As a result of these activities, SKSPGL, in conspiracy with 46 fictitious companies and public fund institutions, is claimed to have caused substantial losses to the government totalling Rs.5000 crore.

5.4 Furthermore, SKSPGL purposefully initiated significant losses deliberately and stopped repayments to its lenders. Consequently, the lead banker, SBI, seized the company's assets and conducted a bidding process for their sale. Agritrade Resources Limited emerged as the successful bidder, agreeing to acquire ownership of SKSPGL through its subsidiary, Entwickeln India Energy Private Limited, and assume the entire loan debt of Rs.5717 crore for a nominal sum plus an additional cash margin. It's noteworthy that Entwickeln India Energy Pvt. Ltd.'s holding company, Agritrade Power Venture Pvt. Ltd., and its subsequent holding company, Fair Thermal Power Ltd., are incorporated in British Virgin Islands (Tax heaven), with Agritrade Resources Ltd. being incorporated in Hamilton, Bermuda, and listed on the Singapore Stock Exchange.

5.5 Entwickeln India Energy Private Limited acquired all shares from SBI Trust at a significantly reduced price, with the bank allegedly waiving the interest rate on the loan and even reversing the entire interest amount of Rs.820 crore, considering it as deemed capital contribution from the holding company. Consequently, SKSPGL became the holding company of Entwickeln India Energy Private Limited, allegedly resulting in an illicit loss to the bank amounting to Rs.5717 crore.

5.6 Moreover, 46 fictitious companies were purportedly incorporated at the behest of SKS Group Entities' directors, engaging in round-tripping funds through bogus share transactions, further resulting in a huge profit in thousand of crores for SKSPGL group companies.

5.7 SKSPGL and its affiliated companies, including Berrio Mauritius, allegedly acquired 1,370,000 Compulsorily Convertible Debentures ("CCDs") from Entwickeln India Energy Pvt. Ltd. at a significantly undervalued price, resulting in an unlawful gain of Rs.589 crore. Additionally, SKS group companies purportedly made an investment through Asia Power FDI Ltd., a Mauritius-based company, into SKS group company, Labheshwari Agencies Limited, at a substantially reduced rate, ultimately leading to the unauthorized misappropriation of public funds amounting to Rs.524 crore.

5.8 Furthermore, certain entities, such as Shree Krishan, Citywings, Compact Agencies, and Labheshwari Agencies Ltd., allegedly engaged in high-value fraudulent share transactions, earning an illicit amount of Rs.400 crore without any genuine production.

5.9 SKSPGL reportedly granted interest-free unsecured advances totalling Rs.173 crore to nine companies, which were later reduced to Rs.50 crores in 2020. However, no substantial evidence of receipt against these advances was recorded.

5.10 Mahabir Gupta and Premlata Gupta, upon assuming directorship of Labheshwari Agencies Ltd. (hereinafter referred to as ‘LAL’), purportedly took over investments made by Asia Power FDI Ltd. into SKSPGL at significantly reduced rates. This included the acquisition of 14,18,51,264 equity shares of Rs.10 each, 1,370,000 CCDs of Rs.1000 each, and 29,646 NCDs of Rs.10,000 each.

5.11 Additionally, Entwickeln India Energy Pvt. Ltd., a subsidiary of Agritrade Resources Ltd., allegedly paid Rs.400 crore, alongside SKS Ispat and Power Ltd., both registered at the same address. Subsequently, Entwickeln India Energy Pvt. Ltd. purportedly merged into SKS Ispat and Power Ltd. in 2019, indicating unauthorized actions even after investment by Agritrade Power Venture Pvt Ltd., resulting in SKS Ispat and Power Ltd. becoming the holding company of SKSPGL. Both SKSPGL and SKS Ispat and Power Ltd. are registered at 501-B, Elegant Business Park, Kurla Road, J.B. Nagar, Andheri East, Mumbai- 400059.

5.12 Moreover, the lead banker, SBI, through SBI Trusteeship, conducted a bid process for the auction of SKSPGL's assets, with Agritrade Resources Ltd. being selected as the successful bidder. Lenders agreed that Agritrade Power Venture Ltd. would implement the Resolution Plan through Entwickeln India Energy Private Limited by acquiring 100% equity shares of the company for Rs.300 crore and assuming the existing fund-based debt of Rs.57,34,87,84,874 for Rs.1720 crore. Out of this amount, Rs.1600 crore was borrowed by Agritrade Power Venture Ltd. from Bank of Baroda.

5.13 Additionally, the State Bank of India (SBI) purportedly under- write the complete debt of Rs.5170 crore for the project in December 2011, without conducting proper valuation or due diligence as per RBI guidelines.

5.14 Furthermore, all companies incorporated in British Virgin Islands, British Overseas Territories of Bermuda, Singapore, and Mauritius are allegedly operated, directly or indirectly, by owners/directors of SKS group companies. Additionally, SKS Ispat and Power Limited, River View Securities Pvt. Ltd., Ranbhumi Securities Pvt. Ltd., Evernew Securities Pvt. Ltd., ACACIA Suppliers Pvt. Ltd., Labheshwari Agencies Ltd., Shree Krishna Structures Ltd., Citywings Agencies Pvt. Ltd., North West Coal Co. Ltd., Sugouri Distributors Pvt. Ltd., Gabaria Dealers Pvt. Ltd., Ambition Commosales Pvt. Ltd. and Compact Agencies Pvt. Ltd. besides other sham companies.

6. The present petition was initially listed on 2.12.2021, following which learned counsel for CBI, SBI, ED, and the State Government filed their respective counter affidavits in response to the Court's order, which were duly taken on record. The operative part of the order dated 2.12.2021 is extracted herein below:

".....We further direct that even if needful is not done by the petitioner or she does not appear, in view of the allegations in the FIR, the respondent no. 2, Director General of Police, Lucknow, Uttar Pradesh shall look into the matter and pass appropriate orders in the national interest.

Respondent no. 1, State of Uttar Pradesh Through Principal Secretary (Home) Govt. of Uttar Pradesh is also directed to look into all such aspects in the light of the allegations levelled in the first information report as well as in the present petition.

On the next date, learned A.G.A. apart from report/ decision of the Director General of Police, Lucknow, Uttar Pradesh, he shall also place on record the instructions from the respondent no. 1, State of Uttar Pradesh Through Principal Secretary (Home) Govt. of Uttar Pradesh.

In view of the allegations levelled in the FIR and the magnitude of the fraud in terms of money, this would certainly a case where national interest would be involved. Therefore, at this stage, without directing for impleadment of Union of India or the concerned Ministries which may include Home as well as Finance, we direct the learned counsel for the petitioner to serve a copy of the petition to learned Additional Solicitor General of India for sending the same to the concerned authority/ Ministry through appropriate Secretary/ Authority for taking note of the same and file instructions of such authority on the next date fixed. The concerned Ministry/ Authority shall be at liberty to seek impleadment in the petition or they may direct their impleadment if thought appropriate.

Put up this case as fresh on 17.01.2022."

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner states inter alia; (i) the entire investigation by the EOW Varanasi has been conducted in casual manner and nothing significant was investigated by the police, (ii) the police did not investigate the allegations made in the complaint rather was conducted investigation about the conduct and place of residence of the complainant, which has nothing to do with the offence committed by the accused company, (iii) there are serious allegations against the transfer of the fund through sham companies abroad and thereafter, writing off the loan amount to the tune of Rs.2446 crore by the SBI officials in connivance with the accused persons, (iv) the KYC of the Agritrade Power Venture Ltd. has not been verified, (v) the nature of business, the amount involved, the loss to the national treasury has been eye-washed by the Investigating Officer, (vi) it is beyond the capacity and expertise of State police to investigate the alleged offence, and expertise required for the investigation are insufficient, (vii) it is the duty of the court to ensure effective and unbiased investigation for conducting fair trial, (viii) deficiency in investigation is visible on the part of the U.P. Police, it is apparently reflected that it's an eye washed investigation to benefit the accused persons, if the investigation is not transferred to the CBI, it would be a miscarriage of justice to the State, because of the reason that the police hurriedly botched up investigation and filed the closure report for the reasons best known to them, (ix) likewise, by adopting the similar modus operandi through various sham companies besides sending huge amount to the off shore holding companies of SKSPGL, the accused persons have caused a loss of Rs.5000 crore in connivance with the bank officials, and other unknown accused. There are serious allegations against the bank officials which is apparently reflected from the facts outlined in preceding paragraphs.

8. Shri Satish Chaturvedi, learned counsel for the State Bank of India has filed counter affidavit stating inter-alia: (i) that the petition is not maintainable as the petitioner could seek an equally efficacious remedy before the Magistrate by filling an appropriate application, and the writ petition is not maintainable and is liable to be dismissed on this sole ground alone and has relied upon Satya Prakash v. State of U.P. in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.23 of 2022, which states that the power of Magistrate to monitor the investigation in exercise of his power under section 156(3) Cr.P.C. has been recognized in series of decisions by the Supreme Court, therefore, the Court of Magistrate is the competent Court to look into the grievances of the petitioner, (ii) the petitioner has also filed a similar writ petition before the Lucknow Bench of this Court bearing Misc. Bench No.21453 of 2021 and the fate of that petition is not known to the respondent, besides the petitioner has also filed similar petition before the High Court of Orissa at Cuttack bearing CRLMP No.2069 of 2021, (iii) no transaction done by the bank officers within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court, therefore, this Court does not have any territorial jurisdiction to decide the fate of the instant petition.

9. In addition to the preliminary objections, the SBI has also addressed the allegations on their merits, which are summarized as follows: (i) the SKS Power Generation (Chhattisgarh) Limited (in short SKSPGL), which is engaged in the business of generation and distribution of electricity intending to set up a coal based Thermal Power Plant located at Binjkote and Durramunda in District-Raigarh, State of Chhattisgarh approached State Bank of India, PFSBU, Mumbai Branch for availing the financial assistance for setting up a thermal power project at Village - Durramud, Binjkot, Tehsil - Kharsia District- Raigarh at Chhattisgarh. The SKSPGL was promoted by SKS Ispat & Power Ltd. (SKSIPL), (ii) the State Bank of India, PFSBU, Mumbai Branch sanctioned the Term Loan of Rs.5170 crore, thus, the credit facilities was enjoyed by the captioned unit from the State Bank of India PFSBU, Mumbai Branch, however, the Loan Agreement dated 19.12.2011 was executed at Raipur, Chhattisgarh, (iii) SKSPGL availed various credit facilities from other financial institutions, including Rs.500 crore from L&T, Rs.400 crore from PTC India Ltd, and Rs.100 crore from State Bank of Bikaner & Jaipur, (iv) the company failed to repay the dues in time and thus failed to maintain the financial discipline of the bank resulting the account was transferred to Stressed Assets Management Branch, Bhopal, (v) to resolve the stress in the Company a resolution plan was approved involving Change of Management in accordance with the applicable laws including RBI's Circular dated 12.2.2018 on Resolution of Stressed Assets Revised Framework and the same was acted upon by the SBI Corporate Centre, Mumbai, (vi) on 16.8.2018 the proposal for change in management based on the offer of Agritrade Resources Ltd. for acquiring 100% of equity in SKSPGL, was approved by Bank's Executive Credit Central Board (in short ECCB) and final Letter of Intent was issued to ARL on 11.10.2018, documentation for the transactions were executed on 12.11.2018 and the same was done at SBI Corporate Centre, Mumbai, (vii) in accordance with the approval, on 5.6.2018, the SKSPGL was put to auction and Final Letter of Intent was issued in favour of M/S Agritrade Resources Limited (ARL), a company listed on Hong Kong Stock Exchange, won the bid for acquiring management control of SKSPGL, and on 18.3.2019, the investor- Agritrade Resources Ltd. (ARL) remitted an amount of Rs.1,721 crore (approx.) to the account maintained at Bhopal Branch and remaining outstanding of Term Loan Rs.2,446 crore (approx.) was written-off. Thus, the all the accounts maintained at SAM branch, Bhopal were closed on 18.3.2019, (viii) all the consortium members comprising PTC Financial Services, L&T Infrastructure Finance, and State Bank of Bikaner & Jaipur merged with State Bank of India on 1.4.2017 which were of the view that the Forensic Audit report circulated by the Auditors, have addressed the consortium observations and there were no adverse remarks and in the meeting dated 19.12.2019 and the Consortium agreed to close the Forensic Audit Report.

10. On the other hand, S.P. Legal Cell, Headquarter, Lucknow has filed counter affidavit on 25.1.2022, stating inter-alia, (i) the State Government accorded approval and consequent upon the investigation was transferred to the Economic Offences Wing, Lucknow with a direction to conclude the investigation within three months, (ii) in compliance of this Court's order dated 2.12.2021, the petitioner appeared before the DGP, Uttar Pradesh along with his Advocate Shri Udai Chandani on 8.12.2021 and apprised the DGP, Lucknow about her grievances and apprehensions, and in response to the meeting, the DGP Uttar Pradesh asked the S.P. Sultanpur to provide security to the petitioner, (iii) the petitioner stated in her representation dated 8.1.2022 that she is residing at Shivcity, Jarhara, New Indira Nagar, Lucknow, but she could not be found on the addressed mentioned in her application dated 8.1.2022, however, Commissioner of Police, Lucknow directed to provide security to the petitioner, (iv) on perusal of letter dated 23.12.2021 annexed with the counter affidavit, it transpires that the S.P. posted at the office of DGP Uttar Pradesh sought approval from the Secretary (Home) for entrusting the investigation to the EOW, and vide letter dated 11.1.2022, the Joint Secretary (Home), Government of Uttar Pradesh accorded approval to conduct the investigation from EOW, Varanasi Division.

11. Learned Additional Advocate General submits that (i) the EOW, CID, Varanasi on completion of the investigation, in the instant case, filed the Closure Report No.8/2022 dated 20.12.2022 on 25.1.2023 before the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jaunpur and the matter is pending consideration before the Court, (ii) the identity of the petitioner could not be established, and no person in the name of petitioner was found at the given address, (iii) the petitioner was also not found at the address of New Indira Nagar, Lucknow, (iv) the statement of the then Branch Manager, Cashier and other staff besides Security Guard posted at SBI Branch Jaunpur were recorded, none of them supported the contentions raised by the petitioner in the petition, (v) the allegations against the unknown persons who have allegedly threatened the petitioner, was also found to be incorrect, (vi) the statement of co-villagers and local Councillor were recorded and no truth was found with respect to the allegations made in the petition, (vii) the statement of suspect Deepak Gupta, Anil Mahaveer Gupta, Aneesh Gupta, Mahaveer Prasad Gupta, Smt. Premlata Gupta, Gopal Garg, and Rohit Prashar, AGM SBI Bhopal were recorded, balance sheet of the company was scrutinized, loan settlement agreement was looked into, but no illegality was observed during the investigation, (viii) Closure Report dated 20.12.2022 was approved and accepted by the Confidential Section-8 of the Home Department, Lucknow vide letter No.591/25-8-2022-25-8099/387/2021 dated 13.7.2022.

12. Even though, the Union of India was not arrayed as party in the writ petition, but keeping in view the magnitude of fraud and the complexity involved in the case, this Court vide order dated 2.12.2021, directed the learned Additional Solicitor General to take instructions from the Ministry of Home and Ministry of Finance, Government of India. In response to the direction of this Court, the Department of Enforcement Directorate filed a separate affidavit through Central Government Counsel. On perusal of the affidavits dated 5.4.2022 and 15.12.2023, it transpires that (i) vide letter dated 4.4.2022, the Under Secretary, Ministry of Finance requested the Director, Enforcement Directorate to file counter affidavit in the instant writ petition, (ii) after conducting preliminary inquiry, an ECIR bearing No.ECIR/ALSZO/01/2022 dated 10.2.2022 is registered at Allahabad Sub Zonal Office of Directorate of Enforcement with the approval of competent authority, (iii) the Chennai Zonal Office of Directorate is already conducting investigation after recording ECIR dated 7.8.2019 against M/s Cethar Ltd. and the said ECIR was registered on the basis of FIR No.20/2018 dated 16.10.2018 by CBI, BSF Cell Banguluru against Cethar Ltd. and property worth Rs.9.08 crore was attached in 2022, which was subsequently confirmed by the adjudicating authority, PMLA, (iv) another Attachment Order of Rs.517.81 crore were also attached vide PAO Order No.3/2023 dated 27.6.2023 and certain properties of SKS Ispat and Power Ltd. are also attached since part of the proceeds of the crime committed by M/s Cethar Ltd.

13. Shri G.S. Chaturvedi, learned Senior Counsel appeared for the SKSPGL and submits that; (i) no such case for transfer the investigation to the CBI is made out as the investigation has already been concluded and closure report has been filed, (ii) it is always open for the complainant to file a protest petition before the court concerned and could raise her grievances there, (iii) the alleged accused is effected party, they may also be allowed to file counter affidavit in response to the allegations made in the instant petition, (iv) the complainant is contesting a proxy litigation at the behest of undesirable element, and therefore, has vested interest, (v) such litigants ordinarily should not be allowed to misuse the process of law to settle personal scores, (vi) no fruitful purpose would be achieved by transferring the investigation to the CBI.

14. Before delving into the merits of the case, it is prudent to discuss the law regarding the transfer of investigations to the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI). In criminal jurisprudence, there is no universally applicable rule that can be rigidly applied to all similar facts and circumstances. Instead, various factors such as the modus operandi (intention) of the accused, the gravity of the offense, the manner in which the offense was committed, its societal impact, and the severity of potential punishment must be considered. Additionally, the possibility of the investigation being compromised by factors such as implicit biases, preconceived notions, personal interests, undue influence, selective evidence gathering, favoritism, or prejudiced treatment of suspects are pertinent considerations for Constitutional Courts when contemplating the transfer of investigations. Moreover, investigations may also be vulnerable to influence from individuals with political connections and significant financial resources. Equally, the decision to transfer an investigation to the CBI cannot be made routinely or solely based on the request of a party alleging wrongdoing. It requires careful examination and evaluation of the circumstances surrounding the case to ensure fairness, impartiality, and the preservation of justice.

15. The Supreme Court in State of Punjab v. CBI[2] has thus opined:

"the inherent power of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution to direct investigation by CBI for securing the ends of the justice must be exercised sparingly, cautiously, and in exceptional situations, where it becomes necessary to provide credibility and confidence in investigation, or where the incident may have national or international ramifications or where such an order may be necessary for doing the complete justice and enforcing fundamental rights."

16. The 5-judges bench of the Supreme Court in the celebrated judgment of State of West Bengal and others v. Committee for the Protection of Democratic Rights, West Bengal and others[3] has observed that while passing orders under Article 226 of the Constitution, the Constitutional Courts must bear in mind certain self-imposed restrictions on exercise of these powers and thus summarized as under:

"we deem it necessary to emphasise that despite wide powers conferred by Articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution, while passing any order, the Courts must bear in mind certain self-imposed limitations on the exercise of these constitutional powers. The very plenitude of the power under the said articles requires great caution in its exercise. Insofar as the question of issuing a direction to CBI to conduct investigation in a case is concerned, although no inflexible guidelines can be laid down to decide whether or not such power should be exercised but time and again it has been reiterated that such an order is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because a party has levelled some allegations against the local police. This extraordinary power must be exercised sparingly, cautiously and in exceptional situations where it becomes necessary to provide credibility and instil confidence in investigations or where the incident may have national and international ramifications or where such an order may be necessary for doing complete justice and enforcing the fundamental rights. Otherwise CBI would be flooded with a large number of cases and with limited resources, may find it difficult to properly investigate even serious cases and in the process lose its credibility and purpose with unsatisfactory investigations."

17. In Minor Irrigation & Rural Engg. Services, U.P. v. Sahngoo Ram Arya[4] the Supreme Court observed that an order directing an enquiry by CBI should be passed only when the High Court, after considering the material on record, comes to a conclusion that such material does disclose a prima facie case calling for an investigation by CBI or any other similar agency. Again Supreme Court in Air India Stationery Corpn. v. United Labour Union[5], held that the founding fathers placed no limitation or fetters under Article 226 of the Constitution except self-imposed limitations, and observed that the arm of the Court is long enough to reach in justice, whenever it is found.

18. Further, in KV Rajendran case[6], the Supreme Court observed that it is a settled proposition that the transfer of investigation should only be done in rare and extra ordinary circumstances in order to ensure total justice between the parties and to instil public confidence.

19. The fair investigation in criminal law is essential for upholding rule of law, the principles of justice, protecting individual rights, and maintaining the integrity of the legal system. By adhearing to the principles of impartiality, due process, transparency, and commitment to such truth, investigating agencies ensure that criminal investigation are conducted fairly and effectively.

20. The Supreme Court in Himanshu Kumar and others v. State of Chhattisgarh and others[7], has held:

44. It is now settled law that if a citizen, who is a de facto complainant in a criminal case alleging commission of cognizable offence affecting violation of his legal or fundamental rights against high Government officials or influential persons, prays before a Court for a direction of investigation of the said alleged offence by the CBI, such prayer should not be granted on mere asking. A Constitution Bench of this Court, in the case of the State of West Bengal v. Committee for Protection of Democratic Rights, West Bengal, reported in (2010) 3 SCC 571, has made the following observations pointing out the situations where the prayer for investigation by the CBI should be allowed:

"70.... In so far as the question of issuing a direction to CBI to conduct investigation in a case is concerned, although no inflexible guidelines can be laid down to decide whether or not such powers should be exercised, but time and again it has been reiterated that such an order is not to be passed as a matter of routine or merely because a party has levelled some allegations against the local police. This extraordinary power must be exercised sparingly, cautiously and in exceptional situations where it becomes necessary to provide credibility and instil confidence in investigations or where the incident may have national and international ramifications or where such an order may be necessary for doing complete justice and enforcing the fundamental rights. Otherwise CBI would be flooded with a large number of cases and with limited resources, may find it difficult to properly investigate even serious cases and in the process lose its credibility and purpose with unsatisfactory investigations."

45. In the above decision, it was also pointed out that the same court in Secretary, Minor Irrigation & Rural Engineering Services, U.P. v. Sahngoo Ram Arya, (2002) 5 SCC 521, had said that an order directing an enquiry by the CBI should be passed only when the High Court, after considering the material on record, comes to the conclusion that such material does disclose a prima facie case calling for an investigation by the CBI or any other similar agency.

46. In an appropriate case when the Court feels that the investigation by the police authorities is not in a proper direction, and in order to do complete justice in the case and if high police officials are involved in the alleged crime, the Court may be justified in such circumstances to handover the investigation to an independent agency like the CBI. By now it is well-settled that even after the filing of the charge sheet the court is empowered in an appropriate case to handover the investigation to an independent agency like the CBI.

47. The extraordinary power of the Constitutional Courts under Articles 32 and 226 respectively of the Constitution of India qua the issuance of directions to the CBI to conduct investigation must be exercised with great caution as underlined by this Court in the case of Committee for Protection of Democratic Rights, West Bengal (supra) as adverted to herein above, observing that although no inflexible guidelines can be laid down in this regard, yet it was highlighted that such an order cannot be passed as a matter of routine or merely because the parties have levelled some allegations against the local police and can be invoked in exceptional situations where it becomes necessary to provide credibility and instil confidence in the investigation or where the incident may have national or international ramifications or where such an order may be necessary for doing complete justice and for enforcing the fundamental rights. We are conscious of the fact that though a satisfaction of want of proper, fair, impartial and effective investigation eroding its credence and reliability is the precondition for a direction for further investigation or re-investigation, submission of the charge sheet ipso facto or the pendency of the trial can, by no means, be a prohibitive impediment. The contextual facts and the attendant circumstances have to be singularly evaluated and analyzed to decide the needfulness of further investigation or re-investigation to unravel the truth and mete out justice to the parties. The prime concern and the endeavour of the court of law should be to secure justice on the basis of true facts which ought to be unearthed through a committed, resolved and a competent investigating agency.

48. The above principle has been reiterated in K.V. Rajendran v. Superintendent of Police, CBCID South Zone, Chennai, (2013) 12 SCC 480. Dr. B.S. Chauhan, J. speaking for a three-Judge Bench of this Court held:

"13. ...This Court has time and again dealt with the issue under what circumstances the investigation can be transferred from the State investigating agency to any other independent investigating agency like CBI. It has been held that the power of transferring such investigation must be in rare and exceptional cases where the court finds it necessary in order to do justice between the parties and to instil confidence in the public mind, or where investigation by the State police lacks credibility and it is necessary for having "a fair, honest and complete investigation", and particularly, when it is imperative to retain public confidence in the impartial working of the State agencies. ..."

49. Elaborating on this principle, this Court further observed:

"17. ... the Court could exercise its constitutional powers for transferring an investigation from the State investigating agency to any other independent investigating agency like CBI only in rare and exceptional cases. Such as where high officials of State authorities are involved, or the accusation itself is against the top officials of the investigating agency thereby allowing them to influence the investigation, and further that it is so necessary to do justice and to instil confidence in the investigation or where the investigation is prima facie found to be tainted/biased."

50. The Court reiterated that an investigation may be transferred to the CBI only in "rare and exceptional cases". One factor that courts may consider is that such transfer is "imperative" to retain "public confidence in the impartial working of the State agencies." This observation must be read with the observations made by the Constitution Bench in the case of Committee for Protection of Democratic Rights, West Bengal (supra), that mere allegations against the police do not constitute a sufficient basis to transfer the investigation.

51. In Romila Thapar v. Union of India, (2018) 10 SCC 753, one of us, A.M. Khanwilkar, J., speaking for a three-Judge Bench of this Court (Dr. D.Y. Chandrachud, J. dissenting) noted the dictum in a line of precedents laying down the principle that the accused "does not have a say in the matter of appointment of investigating agency". In reiterating this principle, this Court relied upon its earlier decisions in Narmada Bai v. State of Gujarat, (2011) 5

SCC 79, Sanjiv Rajendra Bhatt v. Union of India, (2016) 1 SCC 1. E. Sivakumar v. Union of India, (2018) 7 SCC 365, and Divine Retreat Centre v. State of Kerala, (2008) 3 SCC 542. This Court observed:

"30…the consistent view of this Court is that the accused cannot ask for changing the investigating agency or to do investigation in a particular manner including for court-monitored investigation."

52. It has been held by this Court in CBI v. Rajesh Gandhi, 1997 Cri LJ 63, that no one can insist that an offence be investigated by a particular agency. We fully agree with the view in the aforesaid decision. An aggrieved person can only claim that the offence he alleges be investigated properly, but he has no right to claim that it be investigated by any particular agency of his choice.

53. The principle of law that emerges from the precedents of this Court is that the power to transfer an investigation must be used "sparingly" and only "in exceptional circumstances". In assessing the plea urged by the petitioner that the investigation must be transferred to the CBI, we are guided by the parameters laid down by this Court for the exercise of that extraordinary power.

21. In cases of financial fraud, fair investigations are essential not only to safeguard financial institutions but also the nation's interest. Furthermore, fair investigations serve to uncover the truth behind complex financial transactions. Corporate fraud often involves intricate schemes, misleading accounting practices, and hidden agendas. A meticulous and unbiased investigation is necessary to untangle the web of deceit and reveal the extent of the crime. This not only facilitates the prosecution of the perpetrators but also helps prevent similar fraudulent activities in the future by exposing vulnerabilities within regulatory frameworks and corporate governance structures.

22. In the preceding paragraphs, the magnitude and gravity of the offenses have been discussed in two aspects: firstly, serious allegations of systematic fraud committed by the accused company resulting in a loss of Rs. 5000 crore to the government treasury. These actions not only undermine the financial health of the country but also its security. Secondly, the manner in which the investigation was conducted by the Economic Offences Wing of the Government of Uttar Pradesh, and subsequently, after approval from the confidential section of the Home Department, the police filed a closure report. This investigation, characterized by its botched nature, suggests malfeasance.

23. After assessment of closure report dated 20.12.2022 filed on 25.1.2023 before the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Jaunpur, several shocking revelations have emerged from the manner in which the investigation was conducted, which are highlighted hereafter; (i) needlessly, the petitioner's both place of residence, first, at Bhuwala Patti, P.S. Zafrabad, District Jaunpur, and second, at Jarhara, Shivcity, Indira Nagar, Lucknow was inquired for no purpose, ostensibly to divert the scope of investigation, (ii) in this regard, the statement of Shri Bharat Bhushan s/o Shri Subedar, Shri Ram Shringar s/o Shri Pancham, Shri Rakesh Patel, Shri Ved Prakash, Shri Kapil s/o Shri Shamsher Bahadur, Smt. Kirtiwala w/o Dr. Tej Pratap, Shri Shailendra Kumar s/o Shri Kalpnath, Shri Lalji Patel s/o Shri Gajrat, Shri Hari Prasad, and Shri Sanjeev Bharti, the Councillor, Nagar Palika Parishad Jaunpur were recorded; all the aforesaid persons showed ignorance about the petitioner, (iii) petitioner's whereabouts were also inquired from local resident of Shivcity Jarhara New India Nagar, P.S. Indira Ngar, Lucknow, they also showed ignorance, (iv) on 27.3.2022, the police recorded statement of accused Deepak Gupta, accused Anil Mahaveer Gupta, accused Aneesh Gupta, accused Mahaveer Prasad Gupta, accused Smt. Premlata Gupta and accused Gopal Garg for the reason best known to the Investigating Officer, which again was beyond the scope of investigation in the wake of allegations made in FIR, (v) on 4.4.2022, the police recorded the statement of accused Rohit Parashar, AGM, Bhopal and accused Hari Singh Dilodia, GM SBI, Bhopal, (vi) on 27.4.2022, the statement of Shri S.K. Srivastava, Branch Manager, SBI Main Branch Jaunpur along with 14 others- who were working with the Main Branch, Jaunpur at the relevant time. All the accused working at the branch also shown ignorance about the petitioner and denied happening of any such incident as alleged in the instant petition, (vii) besides statement of above stated persons, the I.O. has recorded the statement of Ct. Anoop Verma, Ct. Ajeet Kumar Kanojia, Ct. Manjeet Singh, L/Ct. Soni Singh Patel, Ct. Jitendra Kumar, S.I. Ramji Saini, HC Sanjay Kumar Yadav, HC Ajai Singh Yadav, Councillor Raj Kumar Verma of Indira Nagar Ward No.26, Lucknow, S.I. Ashish Pandey, (viii) and on 10.12.2022, recorded statement of Shri Subodh Kumar Srivastava, Chief Regional Manager, Varanasi. The averments made in the above referred statements have no connect to the allegations made in the FIR, which could justify the purpose and intent of the investigation. Apparently, the same was done to frustrate the investigation.

24. On examination of documents filed by the petitioner, counter affidavit by Directorate of Enforcement and State Bank of India, it's prima facie observed that; (i) the SKSPGL and its holding companies, in collusion with four private and public financial institutions, perpetrated a massive fraud against the government treasury. Initially, the corporate entity borrowed a substantial sum of public funds- Rs.6170 crore for installation of Thermal Power Project, which was subsequently siphoned off through a network of dummy/sham companies under false pretences. The substantial funds were illicitly transferred via illegal channels to British Virgin Islands and British Overseas Territories of Bermuda, camouflaged under the guise of another fraudulent off-shore company. Eventually, the companies associated with Anil Gupta and Family declared themselves as Non-Performing Assets (NPA). Astonishingly, premier banking institutions like the State Bank of India accepted the false claims without conducting any audits or verifications and settled for a mere fraction of the borrowed amount, mortgaging assets worth Rs.5000 crore for just Rs.1721 crore and remaining outstanding of Rs.2446 crore was written-off, (ii) shockingly, even the auction purchaser turned out to be the same British Virgin Islands company established by Anil Gupta & Family through proxies. Upon successfully acquiring the said company through the bid, the entire board of directors conveniently relinquished their positions, allowing Anil Gupta & Family to regain control of the company. This elaborate scheme orchestrated by the Gupta Brothers went unnoticed in the police investigation, (iii) on further scrutiny, it's revealed that M/s SKS Ispat and Power Ltd applied for coal blocks for their steel plants in Chhattisgarh and Jharkhand in 2008.

Following the awarding of the coal blocks, SKSPGL secured loans amounting to Rs.6170 crore from a consortium of banks for the project's construction and development. Blackstone PE firm invested in SKSPGL shares, and subsequently, the EPC contract was awarded to Cethar Ltd., which is facing investigation by Enforcement Directorate and CBI at Bengaluru Office, (iv) however, discrepancies soon emerged in the financial dealings of the involved parties. Advance payments were made without proper invoicing, loans were shuffled between subsidiary companies, and bogus expenses were recorded to manipulate financial statements. Furthermore, no interest was charged on the loans, resulting in significant losses for the lending institutions. Despite these irregularities, mortgages were executed without proper documentation, and asset valuations were grossly undervalued, (v) moreover, the intricate web of companies involved in the transactions extended to tax havens like British Virgin Islands and British Overseas Territories of Bermuda. Companies were formed with minimal disclosure requirements, facilitating the transfer of funds without scrutiny. Agritrade Power Venture Pvt. Ltd., a holding company based in Singapore, subsequently acquired by SKSPGL. Suspicious transactions, including gross undervaluation of assets and transfers to personal accounts, emerged, leading to complex entered entwined transactions.

25. The Investigating Officer concluded the investigation with the findings that SKSPGL is a thermal power generating company and the company has borrowed a loan of Rs.6170 crore from a consortium of banks led by SBI. On 9.12.2016, the company had total debt of Rs.5000 crore approximately and in accordance with the banking loss, the accused company was declared Non-Performing Assets. The proceedings of NPA was conducted by SBI Mumbai in accordance with RBI guidelines and the assets of the accused company was sold for Rs.2170 crore, and rest of the amount was written-off by the SBI bank. The I.O. has also examined the ITR Annual Report, balance sheet, ROC balance sheet, AOC-04 Form, MGT-07 Form and Form-23 SCA, and nothing incriminating was found during the investigation. The said conclusion is erroneously recorded because of the reason that none of the holding company- incorporated in India- of off-shore companies registered at British Virgin Islands and British Overseas Territories of Bermuda, was investigated by I.O., besides other sham and fictitious companies owned, operated- directly or indirectly- by the SKSPGL and its group companies.

26. Mr. Satish Chaturvedi, Counsel for the State Bank of India, has failed to provide any document/ order suggesting that this court lacks the authority and competence to issue orders when similar petitions are pending in other courts. On perusal of order dated 24.9.2021 passed in Misc. Bench No.21453 of 2021, it’s observed that the matter was last listed on 24.9.2021, and thereafter, did not see the light of the day. Whereas, on perusal of the CRLMP No.2069 of 2021, it’s again observed that no effective order was passed by the High Court of Orissa at Cuttack. Additionally, except by the SBI Bank, none of the other parties involved in the instant case object to the petition's maintainability on this ground, thus we reject the arguments put forth by the Bank.

27. It's judicious to take a reference from H.N. Rishbud v. State of Delhi[8] case in which the Supreme Court thus held that the Criminal Procedure consists generally of the following steps for carrying out investigation; (1) Proceeding to the spot, (2) Ascertainment of the facts and circumstances of the case, (3) Discovery and arrest of the suspected offender, (4) Collection of evidence relating to the commission of the offence which may consist of- (a) the examination of various persons (including the accused) and the reduction of their statements into writing, if the officer thinks fit, (b) the search of places of seizure of things considered necessary for the investigation and to be produced at the trial, and (5) Formation of the opinion as to whether on the material collected there is a case to place the accused before a Magistrate for trial and if so taking the necessary steps for the same by the filing of a charge-sheet under Section 173.

28. In cases of corporate fraud involving the siphoning of large sums through offshore sham companies, deceptive share transactions, and the issuance of bogus Compulsorily Convertible Debentures, the involvement of specialized investigative agencies is warranted. Therefore, the aid and assistance of regulatory bodies such as the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI), along with the office of the Serious Fraud Investigation Office established under the Ministry of Corporate Affairs, comprising experts in forensic auditing, banking, law, information technology, investigation, company law, capital markets, and taxation, are required for detecting and prosecuting white-collar crimes/fraud in the interest of justice.

29. Regrettably, the Investigating Officer failed to determine the correct approach to investigate in such facts of massive scale of the fraud and loss to the state exchequer. Instead, the IO wasted time in locating the complainant, whose information initiated the FIR1, neglecting their duty to investigate the crime itself. It's settled law that after registration of the FIR, it becomes a state case, and in such cases where the allegation is against the state, the role of the complainant becomes insignificant. Otherwise, also, it is not a case that no man in the government department except the Investigating Officer was aware of the commission of the offence, it is evident from the records, that right from the top man in home department to the DGP, all were aware about the case. The petitioner's counsel appearing regularly in court, and there was a threat to the petitioner's life and property, resulting in the petitioner's unavailability at given addresses. Following the court's direction, the petitioner appeared before the Director General of Police, Uttar Pradesh, with counsel, expressing grievances, prompting the DGP's office to ensure the petitioner's safety through the Superintendent of Police, Jaunpur. Moreover, discussions at the government level in the Home Department at Lucknow, evidenced by correspondence between the Secretary (Home) and the SP posted at the DGP's office, reflects approval of investigation by the Economic Offences Wing. Frequent correspondence between the Inspector General of Police, EOW, Lucknow, and the Joint Secretary (Home) of the Uttar Pradesh Government, as well as the Commissioner of Lucknow, dated 15.12.2021, 23.12.2021, 11.1.2022, 28.12.2021, 7.1.2022, 8.1.2022, and 22.1.2022, forming part of the counter affidavit dated 25.1.2022 filed on behalf of the State Government further substantiates that entire proceeding of investigation were conducted under command and control of home department.

30. On perusal of the note prepared by Inspector Sunil Kumar Verma, EOW, Sector Varanasi, it's reflected that the closure report dated 20.12.2022 was communicated to the Home Department and the same was approved and accepted by the Under Secretary, Confidential Section-8, U.P. Government vide letter no.591/25-8-2022-25-8099/387/2021 dated 13.7.2022.

31. The contents of the aforesaid letter are self-explanatory. The Home Department overlooked the directions passed by this Court and approved the closure report in a perfunctory manner, which is rare and exceptional and filing of closure report under the signature of an Inspector is in violation of Rule 523 of the Uttar Pradesh Police Regulations besides breach of provisions of Criminal Procedure Code, 1973. The closure report prima facie gives two impressions: (i) the highest office of the police department and officers of the Home Department lacks basic understanding of criminal investigation, in which there are allegations of massive corporate fraud, like the allegations made in the instant case, (ii) intentionally, as it appears, both the departments embolded themselves with the fraudulent activities of SKSPGL and its group companies for ulterior motive, best known to them. It has far-reaching consequences and undermines the public trust in the government institutions and erodes the public faith in administration.

32. It is also evident that there was a lack of coordination between the U.P. Police, Enforcement Directorate, and CBI. It has come to light that the CBI has already registered an RC against a company with business relations to the accused company, namely, Cethar Ltd., at its Bengaluru office. Apparently, the Cathar Ltd. is a different case based on distinct fact as had business dealings with SKSPGL. Furthermore, based on the predicate offence, the Enforcement Directorate has also registered an ECIR, which is currently under investigation. Surprisingly, the Uttar Pradesh police were unaware of these developments; intentionally or unintentionally- could not be ascertained at this stage, but definitely it undermines the working of police.

33. Additionally, the closure report was submitted by ignoring the directions issued by this Court vide order dated 2.12.2021, in the instant case, in which the learned Assistant Solicitor General was directed to file response from the office of Home and Finance Department, Government of India, through concerned Secretaries and as it was thus observed, "We further direct that even if needful is not done by the petitioner or she does not appear, in view of the allegations in the FIR, the respondent no. 2, Director General of Police, Lucknow, Uttar Pradesh shall look into the matter and pass appropriate orders in the national interest.

Respondent no. 1, State of Uttar Pradesh Through Principal Secretary (Home) Govt. of Uttar Pradesh is also directed to look into all such aspects in the light of the allegations levelled in the first information report as well as in the present petition.

.....in view of the allegations levelled in the FIR and the magnitude of the fraud in terms of money, this would certainly a case where national interest would be involved." The police chose to file the closure report without waiting response from the Government of India, and without considering the aforesaid directions.

34. It is evident from the counter affidavit filed by the Enforcement Directorate, Department of Revenue, Government of India that the Zonal Office at Prayagraj has already registered an ECIR bearing No.ECIR/ALSZO/01/2022 dated 10.2.2022 with the approval of the competent authority. Consequently, we leave to the wisdom of Enforcement Directorate's officers, to trace the proceeds of the crime and proceed further in accordance with the law, expeditiously.

35. We are of the opinion that the Economic Offences Wing (EOW), Varanasi Division, has conducted the investigation with a predetermined in collusion with the accused persons. Such actions have far-reaching implications for the integrity of the criminal justice system, public trust, and raise serious questions about the functioning of the police. Therefore, in the fitness of the facts discussed hereinabove, a reference is made to the Vinay Tyagi v. Irshad Ali[9] case where the Supreme Court has set-fourth the parameters for reinvestigation/de novo investigation and thus held that an expression "fair and proper investigation" in criminal jurisprudence has a twin purpose: firstly, the investigation must be unbiased, honest, just and in accordance with law; secondly, the entire emphasis on a fair investigation has to be to bring out the truth of the case before the court of competent jurisdiction. This principle flows from the constitutional mandate contained in Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India. Where the investigation ex facie is unfair, tainted, mala fide and smacks of foul play, the courts would set aside such in investigation and direct fresh or de novo investigation and, if necessary, even by another independent investigating agency.

36. For the foregoing reasons, we direct that: (i) The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI), New Delhi is directed to investigate a case against SKSPGL and its affiliated companies, which were involved in the illicit transfer of substantial funds to British Virgin Islands and British Overseas Territories of Bermuda through illegal channels, disguised under the facade of fraudulent offshore entities, (ii) the CBI is further directed to investigate the complicity of bank officials who facilitated the approval of loans and subsequent auction proceedings in favor of Agritrade Power Venture Pvt. Ltd., (iii) the Chairman of the State Bank of India (SBI) and the Principal Secretary of the Home Department, Uttar Pradesh, are instructed to safely maintain the original records and make them available to the investigating agency upon request, (iv) the Director of the Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO) in New Delhi is tasked with conducting forensic audits and other necessary investigations pertaining to SKSPGL and its associated companies, including Agritrade Resources Limited, Entwickeln India Energy Private Limited, Agritrade Power Venture Pvt. Ltd., Fair Thermal Power Ltd., Shree Krishan, Citywings, Compact Agencies and Labheshwari Agencies Ltd., Asia Power FDI Ltd., SKS Ispat and Power Ltd., and any other relevant entities, (v) the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) is directed to provide all necessary assistance to the investigating agency and take necessary action, if required within their jurisdiction, (vi) the Directors of the CBI, Enforcement Directorate, and SFIO in New Delhi are tasked with supervising the investigation process, (vii) the entire records of the FIR1 and the subsequent proceedings shall be handed over to the Central Bureau of Investigation at New Delhi, and the Director SFIO, New Delhi within fifteen days of receiving the copy of this order for further action and compliance.

37. The observations made above are provisional and are intended solely to dispose of the instant petition. The same shall not be construed to influence the investigations being conducted by the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI), the Enforcement Directorate (ED), and the Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO). These investigative agencies are expected to conduct their investigations professionally, in accordance with the law and the standard operating procedures established over a period of time, in the best interests of the state and the institutions involved.

38. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to transmit a certified copy of this order to; (i) Chief Secretary, U.P. Government, (ii) Director, CBI, New Delhi (iii) Director, Enforcement Directorate, New Delhi, (iv) Director, SFIO New Delhi, (v) Chairman, SEBI, Mumbai, and (vi) Chairman SBI, Mumbai, forthwith for necessary compliance.

39. Parting with the judgment of this case, it is the need of the hour to frame policy and guidelines to prevent miscarriage of justice occasioned because of defective investigation in cases of corporate fraud where the volume of amount is excessively high and has a bearing on the functioning of the State's institution besides financial implications, if not made so far.

40. Corporate fraud causes a significant threat to the integrity of financial institutions and government functioning. When police conduct botched investigations in such fraud cases like corporate fraud, ponzi schemes, security fraud, accounting fraud, large scale tax evasion, kickbacks, embezzlement of government funds, cyber fraud including ransomware attacks and date theft, the implications are profound and multifaceted.

41. To combat large-scale fraud effectively, concerted efforts are needed from governments, regulatory authorities, law enforcement agencies, and private sector. Enhance regulatory oversight, stricter enforcement of laws and regulations, investment in Cyber Security Infrastructure at public awareness campaigns are essential components of a comprehensive anti fraud strategy.

42. The effective police training and regulatory reforms play pivotal roles in bolstering investigative capabilities and ensuing justice. The state government must invest in comprehensive training programmes tailored to address the complexities of financial crimes, including fraud, embezzlement, and money laundering. The training programme should encompass various aspects, including;

42.1 Financial Analysis: Officers need to understand financial documents, such as balance sheets, income statements, and cash flow statements, to identify irregularities indicative of fraudulent activities. Training in financial analysis equips investigators with the expertise to follow the money trail and uncover fraudulent schemes.

42.2 Forensic Accounting: Knowledge of forensic accounting techniques is essential for scrutinizing financial records, tracing transactions, and detecting discrepancies or falsifications. Training in forensic accounting enables investigators to gather admissible evidence that withstands legal scrutiny in court proceedings.

42.3 Legal Training: Familiarity with relevant laws, regulations, and legal precedents pertaining to corporate fraud is indispensable for conducting investigations and building prosecutable cases. Police training should provide officers with a comprehensive understanding of special statutes.

42.4 Technological Know-How: In the digital age, technology plays a crucial role in investigating corporate fraud. Training should cover the use of digital forensic tools, data analysis software, and electronic surveillance techniques to gather evidence from digital sources and electronic communications.

42.5 Collaborative Partnerships: Facilitating collaboration between law enforcement agencies, regulatory bodies, and industry stakeholders is essential for sharing information, coordinating investigations, and pooling resources. Establishing formalized partnerships enhances the effectiveness of efforts to combat corporate fraud.

42.6 Transparency and Accountability: Regulatory reform should promote transparency in corporate governance practices, requiring companies to disclose relevant financial information and adhere to ethical standards. Holding corporate executives and board members accountable for fraudulent activities reinforces the deterrent effect of regulatory measures, besides police and officers of the civil administration.

43. In essence, police training and regulatory reform are indispensable strategies for enhancing the investigative capabilities of law enforcement agencies in combating corporate fraud. By investing in comprehensive training programs for officers and enacting regulatory reforms that strengthen oversight, promote transparency, and encourage collaboration, state governments can effectively deter fraudulent behaviour and uphold the integrity of government institutions.

44. The State Government may develop a mechanism to make the best use and expertise of the Central Economic Intelligence Bureau, a nodal agency for economic intelligence mandated to ensure effective interaction and coordination among all the concerned agencies in the area of economic offence for effective investigation in cases highlighted in the preceding paragraphs. The Serious Fraud Investigation Office (SFIO), the Enforcement Directorate, and regulatory bodies like the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) may also be consulted in appropriate cases of financial crime, and suitable and adequate direction be issued in this regard by the Chief Secretary, Government of Uttar Pradesh, at the earliest.

45. With the aforesaid directions, the instant petition is allowed.

1. We have heard Shri Nitin Bhasin, holding the brief of Shri Jitendra Pal Singh Jadaun, learned counsel for the petitioners, learned counsel for the informant, and Shri G.P. Singh, learned AGA for the State Respondents, and perused the record.

2. The present writ petition has been preferred to quash the impugned First Information Report dated 30.7.2023 as Case Crime No.419 of 2023, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 504, 506 IPC, registered at P.S. Deoband, District Saharanpur, and for a direction to the respondent police not to arrest the petitioners till the pendency of the present petition. For clarity, the relevant portion of the prayer is underlined herein:

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in nature of certiorari quashing the impugned First Information Report dated 30.07.2023 registered as Case Crime No. 419 of 2023, under Sections 420, 467, 471, 504, 506 of IPC, P.S. Deoband, District Saharanpur.

3. The prosecution case is that the respondent no.4/complainant is in the health care business and had purchased 2000 injections from VADSP Pharmaceuticals, a third-party manufacturer company of the medicines. The said injections are used to develop antibiotics in children. After purchasing, the said injections were delivered for sale to Rastogi Hospital, Railway Road, Deoband, besides certain other medicines. After the use of the said injections, the doctor complained about the quality of the injections and stated that they are substandard and that if said injections are used, they could be injurious to the health of the children and pose a potential threat to their lives. The complainant immediately took back the entire stock from their distributors and hospitals and informed the accused-persons. The accused-persons/petitioners had clandestinely shown all parameters as correct in a certificate delivered along with the injections. The complainant also conducted a lab test from the Scientific Testing Lab, Roorki, Haridwar on 19.9.2022, which suggests the sample of the injections failed. The petitioners were again informed about the substandard quality of the injections through e-mail. The petitioners again sent a DN Laboratory Report dated 26.9.2022, showing the report as per standard. The test report of the complainant did not match the test report supplied by the petitioners to the complainant. The complainant has fraudulently prepared and managed a test report dated 26.9.2022 issued by DN Laboratory to justify the quality of the injections. The impugned FIR was registered against the petitioners on the preceding set of allegations.

4. Aggrieved by the registration of the impugned FIR bearing Case Crime No.19 of 2023, under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 504, 506 IPC at P.S. Deoband, District Saharanpur, the petitioners have preferred the instant petition.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioners submits that the petitioner nos.1 and 2 are partners in M/s Morgan Healthcare, situated at 1st Floor, Sam Building, Ratwara Sahib Gurudwara Road, Mullanpur, Kharar, Sas Nagar, who were granted license under the provisions of Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 by the State Drug Licensing Authority, Punjab, whereas the petitioner no.3 is a partner in M/s VADSP Pharmaceuticals, having its office at Plot No.124 EPIP, Phase-1, Jharmajri, Baddi, District Solan, Himachal Pradesh, which has been granted a license to manufacture drugs under the provisions of the Act. The manufacturing company, i.e., petitioner no.3 was manufacturing the third-party drug "Meropenem Injection IP (Merofy-125 Injection)" from its unit. In the month of September, 2022, the respondent/complainant telephonically requested to take back the drugs in question and stated that the doctor did not prescribe the drug/injection in an open market, being injurious to the health of the children. As per the petitioner's own test reports, the injections were found to be of standard quality, and accordingly, the DN Laboratory issued a test report. Therefore, registration of the impugned FIR is a misuse of the process of law and also, in the teeth of the ratio culled out in Union of India v. Ashok Kumar Sharma and other[1].

5.1 With oblique motive, the complainant malafidely filed an application under Section 156(3) Cr.P.C. before ld. A.C.J.M. Deoband, Saharanpur and secured an order for registration of the impugned FIR against the petitioners by concealing material facts from the court. He further contends that on perusal of the contents of the FIR, no offence under IPC is made out, and if at all any offence would attract then, the Drug Inspector is a competent person to initiate prosecutions against the petitioners; as no FIR could be registered under the IPC by the complainant, it is only the Drug Inspector who is authorized under Section 32 of the Act to initiate prosecution, if any. The Act specifically prohibits taking cognizance except on the complaint made by the Drug Inspector or other person authorised under the law, and to substantiate its argument the petitioners has relied upon Section 32 of the Act2. Section 32 of the said Act is reproduced below:

"32. Cognizance of offences—

[(1) No prosecution under this Chapter shall be instituted except by-

(a) an Inspector; or

(b) any gazetted officer of the Central Government or a State Government authorised in writing in this behalf by the Central Government or a State Government or by a general or special order made in this behalf by that Government; or

(c) the person aggrieved; or

(d) a recognised consumer association whether such person is a member of that association or not.

(2) Save as otherwise provided in this Act, no court inferior to that of a Court of Session shall try an offence punishable under this Chapter.]

(3) Nothing contained in this Chapter shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Chapter."

5.2 The petitioner has placed reliance upon Chandan Singh v. State of Haryana[3], Rajeev Kumar v. State of Punjab[4], Ashish Kumar v. State of Haryana[5]. He further relied upon Lalan Kumar Singh and another v. State of Maharashtra[6] to substantiate that merely reproducing the ingredients of the penal provision without a clear statement of facts as to how and in what manner the Director of the company was responsible for the conduct of the business of the company would not ipso facto make the Director vicariously liable in a criminal case. He further contends that a person in charge of and responsible for the affairs of the company for the day-to-day conduct of the business of the company, must be a person in overall control of the day-to-day business of the company or the firm. If a partner of a firm is not in such overall control, he cannot be liable to convicted merely because he had the right to participate in the business of the firm under the terms of the partnership deed7.

5.3 Simply because a person is the Director of the company, he does not vicariously become liable for the offence[8].

5.4. While considering Section 34 of the Act, it was held that offences by the company and non-compliance of the provisions thereof if no whisper in the entire complaint made against the petitioners whether they were in charge of and were responsible for the conduct of the business at the time of the commission of the offence and the mere fact that the petitioner happens to be one of the partners does not entitles the prosecution to prosecute him9.

5.5. On the basis of the impugned FIR, the Drug Inspector has also issued notice; therefore, it would be a case of double jeopardy. Thus, the prosecution is liable to be quashed. The FIR under Section 420, 467, 468, 471, 504, 506 IPC is defective else for the same offence the remedy lies under Section 18 (A) (i) of the Act.

6. Per contra, learned AGA submits that there are serious allegations of manufacturing spurious and substandard drugs by the petitioners. The petitioners have also created forged and managed test reports to give an impression that the injections are of standard quality as per the standards reflected in the test report. He further contends that the manufacturing of substandard drugs allegedly to boost the immunity of the children amounts to the life and safety of the children, and no one could be permitted to manufacture substandard and spurious drugs. He further contends that the investigation is at the initial stage, the role of the petitioners is yet to be ascertained, and the petitioners are not cooperating with the Investigating Officer. The Investigating Officer required cooperation from the petitioners to extract the truth of the allegation. He further contends that there are serious allegations of manufacturing substandard, spurious drugs and creating forged test reports to give an impression of valid and standard quality drugs.

7. Reverting back to the petitioners' counsel’s argument, who has heavily relied upon Ashok Kumar Sharma case (supra), in which following issues were involved:

(i) what is interplay between the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure and the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940?

(ii) whether in respect of offences falling under Chapter IV of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, an FIR can be registered under Section 154 of the Cr.P.C. and the case investigated or whether Section 32 of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 supplants the procedure for investigation of offences under Cr.P.C. and taking of cognizance of an offence under Section 190 Cr.P.C.?

(iii) whether the Drug Inspector has power or authority to arrest a person in connection with an offence under Chapter IV of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940?

8. Chapter IV of the Act2 deals with the manufacture, sale and distribution of drugs and cosmetics. Section 16 of the Act governs the expression (standard quality), whereas Sections 17, 17A and 17B govern misbranded, adulterated, and spurious drugs. The definition for the sake of clarity, the relevant sections are reproduced as under:

"16. Standards of quality. -

[(1) For the purposes of this Chapter, the expression "standard quality" means—

(a) in relation to a drug, that the drug complies with the standard set out in [the Second Schedule], and

(b) in relation to a cosmetic, that the cosmetic complies with such stand ard as may be prescribed.]

(2) The [Central Government], after consultation with the Board and after giving by notification in the Official Gazette not less than three months ' notice of its intention so to do, may by a like notification add to or otherwise amend [the Second Schedule] for the purposes of this Chapter, and thereupon 5[the Second Schedule] shall be deemed to be amended accordingly.

[17. Misbranded drugs.—For the purposes of this Chapter, a drug shall be deemed to be misbranded,—*

(a) if it is so coloured, coated, powdered or polished that damage is concealed or if it is made to appear of better or greater therapeutic value than it really is; or

(b) if it is not labelled in the prescribed manner; or

(c) if its label or container or anything accompanying the drug bears any statement, design or device which makes any false claim for the drug or which is false or misleading in any particular.

17A. Adulterated drugs— For the purposes of this Chapter, a drug shall be deemed to be adulterated—*

(a) if it consists in whole or in part, of any filthy, putrid or decomposed substance; or

(b) if it has been prepared, packed or stored under insanitary conditions whereby it may have been contaminated with filth or whereby it may have been rendered injurious to health; or

(c) if its container is composed, in whole or in part, of any poisonous or deleterious substance which may render the contents injurious to health; or

(d) if it bears or contains, for purposes of colouring only, a colour other than one which is prescribed; or

(e) if it contains any harmful or toxic substance which may render it injurious to health; or

(f) if any substance has been mixed therewith so as to reduce its quality or strength.

17B. Spurious drugs.—For the purposes of this Chapter, a drug shall be deemed to be spurious,—*

(a) if it is manufactured under a name which belongs to another drug; or

(b) if it is an imitation of, or is a substitute for, another drug or resembles another drug in a manner likely to deceive or bears upon it or upon its label or container the name of another drug unless it is plainly and conspicuously marked so as to reveal its true character and its lack of identity with such other drug; or

(c) if the label or container bears the name of an individual or company purporting to be the manufacturer of the drug, which individual or company is fictitious or does not exist; or

(d) if it has been substituted wholly or in part by another drug or substance; or

(e) if it purports to be the product of a manufacturer of whom it is not truly a product."

9. Section 32 of the Act2 deals with conditions under which cognizance of the offences could be taken with respect to the offences committed within the purview of the Act, which says no prosecution under the Act shall be instituted except by- (a) an Inspector, or (b) any gazetted officer of the Central Government or a State Government authorised in writing on this behalf by the Central Government or a State Government or by a general or speaking order made on this behalf by that Government or (c) the person aggrieved or (d) a recognised consumer association, whether such a person is a member of that association or not.

10. Section 32(3) of the Act2 further clarifies that nothing contained in this chapter shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence under this chapter.

11. Ashok Kumar Sharma (supra) case originated from an online complaint dated 22.2.2018 made by one Naushad Khan in which the Commissioner (Food Protection and Drug) initiated an inquiry and the Drug Inspector Mau, U.P. along with two others conducted an inspection at Sharda Narayan Clinic and Pharmacy and the person, who was present in the clinic, was directed to show papers in respect of medicines stored in the shop. The person stated that he did not have any license, though he was the owner of the medical store, and that he had stored the medicines without proper license. He committed an offence under Sections 18 and 27 of the Act2. On the basis of the recovery made, an FIR was lodged under Section 18 (a)(i) and Section 27 of the Act2 on the complaint of the Drug Inspector. Aggrieved by the same, the accused preferred a petition for quashing the FIR before this Court, and this Court allowed the writ petition and quashed the FIR on the reasoning that Section 32 of the Act2 disabled the police from registering an FIR, as Section 32 of the Act2 provides for the mechanism for prosecuting offences under the said Act. The said finding was challenged before the Supreme Court in Ashok Kumar Sharma case (supra), and the Supreme Court culled out the directions, which are extracted below:

"THE CONCLUSIONS/DIRECTIONS

170. Thus, we may cull out our conclusions/directions as follows:

170.1. In regard to cognizable offences under Chapter IV of the Act, in view of Section 32 of the Act and also the scheme of the CrPC, the Police Officer cannot prosecute offenders in regard to such offences. Only the persons mentioned in Section 32 are entitled to do the same.

170.2. There is no bar to the Police Officer, however, to investigate and prosecute the person where he has committed an offence, as stated under Section 32(3) of the Act, i.e., if he has committed any cognizable offence under any other law.

170.3 Having regard to the scheme of the CrPC and also the mandate of Section 32 of the Act and on a conspectus of powers which are available with the Drugs Inspector under the Act and also his duties, a Police Officer cannot register a FIR under Section 154 of the CrPC, in regard to cognizable offences under Chapter IV of the Act and he cannot investigate such offences under the provisions of the CrPC.

170.4. Having regard to the provisions of Section 22(1)(d) of the Act, we hold that an arrest can be made by the Drugs Inspector in regard to cognizable offences falling under Chapter IV of the Act without any warrant and otherwise treating it as a cognizable offence. He is, however, bound by the law as laid down in D.K. Basu (supra) and to follow the provisions of CrPC.

170.5. It would appear that on the understanding that the Police Officer can register a FIR, there are many cases where FIRs have been registered in regard to cognizable offences falling under Chapter IV of the Act. We find substance in the stand taken by learned Amicus Curiae and direct that they should be made over to the Drugs Inspectors, if not already made over, and it is for the Drugs Inspector to take action on the same in accordance with the law. We must record that we are resorting to our power under Article 142 of the Constitution of India in this regard.

170.6. Further, we would be inclined to believe that in a number of cases on the understanding of the law relating to the power of arrest as, in fact, evidenced by the facts of the present case, police officers would have made arrests in regard to offences under Chapter IV of the Act. Therefore, in regard to the power of arrest, we make it clear that our decision that Police Officers do not have power to arrest in respect of cognizable offences under Chapter IV of the Act, will operate with effect from the date of this Judgment.

170.7. We further direct that the Drugs Inspectors, who carry out the arrest, must not only report the arrests, as provided in Section 58 of the CrPC, but also immediately report the arrests to their superior Officers."

12. Nonetheless, the consumer does not know about the manufacturer or quality of the products. Many times, they are unaware of expired, degraded or substandard products, which ultimately results in treatment failure and, with antibiotics, leads to anti-bacterial resistance. This problem is very serious and rapidly growing, causing serious repercussions on the health of the citizens. The ingredients of Sections 16, 17, 17A, and 17B of the Act2 mandate poor quality drugs comprising misbranded drugs, spurious drugs and adulterated drugs, respectively, and there is no provision in the Act2 to deal with the offences related to the creation of forged documents and dishonestly uses as genuine.

13. The opening line of section 32 of the Act[2] states, "No prosecution under this Chapter shall be instituted by -" this means the offences under The Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, and not under offence under the Indian Penal Code; therefore, the police can investigate the offences forming part of Penal Code. Sub-Section (3) of Section 32 further clarifies the position in unequivocal terms that nothing contained in Chapter IV of the Act2 shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission that constitutes an offence against Chapter IV of the Act2.

14. Section 2 of the Act[2] states that the provisions of this Act shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, any other law for the time being in force.

At this juncture, it would be relevant to reproduce section 2 & 32(3) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940, which are extracted herein below:

"2. Application of other laws not barred. —The provisions of this Act shall be in addition to, and not in derogation of, the Dangerous Drugs Act, 1930 (2 of 1930), and any other law for the time being in force.

*****

32. Cognizance of offences—

(3) Nothing contained in this Chapter shall be deemed to prevent any person from being prosecuted under any other law for any act or omission which constitutes an offence against this Chapter"

15. The conjoint reading of both the provisions make it clear that the provisions of the Act2 do not have over ride effect on any other law in force. Its clear that the investigation under Code of Criminal Procedure for offences under IPC are not barred under the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940.

16. The Delhi High Court in Pankaj Kumar v. State*10*, has held that the Code is the parent statute which provides for investigation, inquiry into, and trial of cases and unless there is specific provision in other statute to indicate a different procedure to be followed, the provisions of the Code cannot be displaced. The High Court has relied upon various judgments passed by the Supreme Court to come to the aforesaid conclusion. The relevant portion of para-18 of Pankaj Kumar's case (supra) is extracted herein below:

"That apart, how could the FIR be quashed if the investigating agency should have been different? By lodging FIR alone no investigation is conducted by the police. It is the first step towards starting investigation by the police. If High Court was of the opinion that investigation has to be conducted by the Bureau then also there was no need to quash the FIR Any way we take the view that as offences under the Penal Code, 1860 are also involved, efficacious investigation can be conducted by entrusting it to the police investigating agency. Inherent powers of the High Court as recognised in Section 482 of the Code are reserved to be used "to give effect to any orders under the Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice." It is quite unfortunate that learned single Judge overlooked the reality that by quashing the FIR in the case the High Court did not achieve any one of the above factors. On the contrary, the result of quashing the FIR had rendered the allegations of offences made against a person to remain consigned in stupor perennially. Hence, instead of achieving ends of criminal justice, the impugned order would achieve the reverse of it." (Emphasis supplied)

17. The Delhi High Court in HOECHST PHARMACEUTICALS v. C.V.S. Mani[11], has also held as under:

20. The Preamble of the Act, no doubt, says that it is an Act to regulate the import, manufacture, distribution and sale of drugs and cosmetics but the real object of this Act has been judicially examined on numerous occasions. In Chimanlal Jagjivandas Sheth v. State of Maharashtra*[12], while examining whether substances like absorbent cotton wool, roller bandages and gauze used for or in treatment of diseases fall within the ambit of the Act, it was observed that the* Legislature designedly extended the definition of 'drug' so as to take in substances which are necessary aids for treating surgical or other cases. "The main object of the Act is to prevent sub-standards in drugs, presumably for maintaining high standards of medical treatment. That would certainly be defeated if the necessary concomitants of medical or surgical treatment were allowed to be diluted: the very same evil which the Act intends to eradicate would continue to subsist."

21. Again, in Indian Chemical and Pharmaceutical Works, Hyderabad v. The State of Andhra Pradesh[13], a Constitution Bench of Supreme Court held, "The Drugs Act, 1940, which mainly concerned with standard and quality of drugs manufactured in this country and, therefore, controls the manufacture, sale, and distribution of drugs has nothing to do with duties of excise and with their imposition on narcotics and narcotic drugs."

22. From the above two observations of Supreme Court it becomes obvious as to what is the real object of the Act and what is the legislative scheme and policy of this enactment. Indeed, the Act as Section 2 lays down, is in addition to and not in derogation of any other law and the real purpose of the enactment is to ensure quality and standards of drugs manufactured, imported, distributed and sold in the country. If that be correct, as indeed it must be held to be, we have to read Section 12 and Section 33, giving the rule making power in the above context and of the provisions of Chapter III and Chapter IV of the Act. We have also to see that no rule is made under the Act which is violative of any other law or impinges upon any other right recognised or conferred by any other law. If a rule impinges upon any other law or any other right, it must be held to be outside the rule making power of the Central Government. Section 2 on the one hand and Sections 12 and 33 of the Act on the other have all to be read together, being part of the same enactment and part of the same legislative scheme.

18. The coordinate bench in the case of Abhishek Kukreti and others v. State of U.P. and others[14] has rejected the plea to quash the FIR stemming from Case Crime No.85 of 2023, involving sections 379, 411 IPC along with section 4/21 of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act, 1957, registered at Police Station Nagina Dehat, District Bijnor. The key issue addressed was whether section 22 of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act, 1957 mandates FIR registration solely on the complaint of an authorized person or a private individual can also lodge an FIR when IPC offences are involved. The coordinate bench of this court clarified that there is no legal impediment under section 22 of the MMDR Act for a private individual to file an FIR for IPC offences related to transactions under the MMDR Act. It emphasized that the offences under both the Act's have distinct and different procedural investigative mechanisms.

19. We have very scrupulously gone through the material placed before us and are not persuaded to hold that the petitioner's case is covered by the Ashok Kumar Sharma case (supra), and hence, the decision cited on this behalf can not be availed of. In Ashok Kumar's case, the FIR was registered on the complaint of the Drug Inspector with the police station for the offences mentioned in Chapter IV of the Act2; therefore, the court has held that the same is in the teeth section 32 of the Act2, but in the instance case, the complaint had been registered by a private person on the complaint of a consumer for creation of forged and fabricated lab test report to prove drugs in the question of standard quality. In essence, the gist of the allegation is that the petitioner has procured a false and fabricated lab report to make the complainant believe that the drugs are of standard quality.

20. In our view, on a reading of the impugned FIR, where there are allegations of the creation of fake test reports to give an impression of drug being of standard quality, as it has been pointed out earlier, the entire matter is only at nascent stage, and the investigation is not proceeded with except the registration of the impugned FIR. The evidence has to be gathered after a thorough investigation and shall be placed before the Court on the basis of which alone the court can come to the conclusion one way or the other on the plea of right of the complainant to register the FIR. If the allegations are bereft of the truth and made with ulterior motives, we are sure the investigation will reflect so in the police report. At this stage, when there are only allegations of procuring false and fabricated test reports and investigation is at nascent stage, this Court cannot anticipate the result of the investigation and render a finding on the legality and correctness of the impugned FIR. Therefore, we are unable to see any force in the contentions raised by the petitioner's counsel based on the ratio culled out from Ashok Kumar Sharma's case (supra). Needless to say, the question of malafide exercise of power will assume significance only if an authority acts for an unauthorized purpose. We are of the considered opinion that the principal purpose of the registration of the impugned FIR and the intended follow up action are only to investigate the allegations and present a case before the court. If sufficient evidence in support of those allegations is collected, and in case if no such evidence is collected, the police may file the police report, accordingly.

21. More precisely, in the instant case, the prosecution case is that the accused first delivered the substandard injections and, thereafter, to give an impression of standard quality, provided a fake lab report issued from DN Laboratory, therefore, there are allegations of the creation of forged laboratory reports. Albeit, on giving a bird's eye view of the ingredients of Sections 16, 17, 17A, and 17B of the Act2, it would safely be concluded that these sections deal with the definition of standard quality, misbranded, adulterated and spurious drugs, not with the creation of forged documents and using as genuine. Therefore, the element of forgery could only be investigated by the police under the provisions of Indian Penal Code and not under the Chapter IV of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940. Moreover, police must record every information related to the commission of cognizable offence in the register kept at police station; it ensures that the process is initiated promptly upon receipt of information regarding the commission of cognizable offence. It only brings the alleged offence to the notice of the police and sets in motion the machinery for the investigation of the case. The registration of an FIR is mandatory under Section 154 of Cr.P.C. if the information discloses a cognizable offence15.

22. In view of the fact that substandard drugs encounter a major stringent issue for the health system and cannot be ignored. The investigation is at the initial stage, and there are specific allegations of the creation of forged test lab reports to claim substandard drugs of standard quality; therefore, on perusal of the contents of the impugned FIR, the ingredients of commission of cognizable offence are prima- facie made out.

23. The allegations made in the impugned FIR, in our considered opinion, do clearly constitute a cognizable offence justifying the registration of a case and the investigation thereon, and this does not fall under any of the categories of cases formulated by the Supreme Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal[16], calling for the exercise of extraordinary or inherent powers of the High Court to quash the impugned FIR. Otherwise also, it is not the case of the petitioners that even if the allegations made in the FIR/complaint, is taken at their face value and-accepted in their entirety, do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case, against the accused. The petitioners have also not pleaded any express bar engrafted in any provisions of the Code or any other law, including the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, to the institutions and continuance of the proceedings.

24. Therefore, the petition is devoid of merits, and hence dismissed, at this stage.

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 20280 of 2013

Criminal Law -Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Sections 200, 202(2) & 204 - Constitution of India,1950 - Article 227- Petitioner challenged the summoning order dated 24.05.2013 by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Orai, under Sections 307, 504, 506 IPC, and its affirmation by Sessions Judge, Jalaun, on 21.09.2013 in Criminal Revision No. 147/2013. FIR (Case Crime No. 1005/2002) alleged petitioner and two others attacked the complainant's brother, with one co-accused firing, causing a firearm injury. Final report deemed the incident doubtful, but the protest petition, treated as a complaint, led to summoning after examining the complainant (Section 200) and three witnesses (Section 202). Court held that Section 202(2) mandates examining all witnesses in sessions triable cases, and failure to summon the doctor who examined the injury was a violation, critical for assessing Section 307 IPC applicability. Magistrate's casual approach lacked "prima facie satisfaction" as per Fiona Shrikhande Vs St. of Maharashtra, (2013) 14 SCC 44, and Dr. Divya Nand Yadav Vs St. of U.P., 2023 AHC 9188. Impugned orders set aside; matter remanded for fresh order in compliance with Section 202(2). Petition treated under Article 227 per Radhey Shyam Vs Chhabi Nath, (2015) 5 SCC 423.

Petition Allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Jyotsna Sharma, J.,)

1. Heard Sri Ishtiyak Ahmad, learned Advocate holding brief for Sri Ali Hasan, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri S.C. Mishra, learned AGA for the State.

2. This writ petition has been filed by the petitioner-Amit Kumar with a prayer to issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari for quashing the judgment and order dated 21.09.2013 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Jalaun at Orai in Criminal Revision No. 147 of 2013 (Amit Kumar Vs State of U.P. and Another) by which the learned Judge has rejected the revision of the petitioner, which was preferred against the order dated 24.05.2013, passed by learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Orai in Criminal Case No. 1277 of 2013 (Shatrughan Singh Vs. Ajay Kumar and Others) under Sections 307, 504, 506 IPC, Police Station Kotwali Orai, District Jalaun.

3. Relevant facts are as below:-

• An FIR case crime no. 1005 of 2002 under sections 307, 504 and 506 IPC, naming three persons including the petitioner-Amit Kumar was lodged by Shatrughan Singh, alleging that three persons lay in wait and attacked his brother Satyabhan Singh when he went to attend call of the nature at about 3:15 am on 28.11.2001; all the three were holding firearms, one of them Ajai Kumar Sharma fired at him which hit on his right side below the shoulder; seriously injured he fell down; on his cries, the first informant and other members of his family reached the spot to save him but the accused persons escaped, extending threats to his life.

• After the investigation, the investigating officer submitted a final report with the opinion that the incident was doubtful and that the accused persons were falsely named.

• The first informant moved a protest petition which was treated as complaint; the informant/the complainant was examined under section 200 Cr.P.C.; certain witnesses namely, the injured-Satyabhan as PW-1, Ranbir Singh as PW-2 and Mohit as PW-3, were examined under section 202 Cr.P.C.

• The C.J.M. thereafter proceeded to summon Amit Kumar and Arvind Kumar Sharma for offence under Sections 307, 504, 506 IPC by an order dated 24.05.2013.

• The accused preferred Criminal Revision No. 147 of 2013, which was decided by the Session Judge, Jalaun at Orai by on order dated 21.09.2013, whereby the order passed by the Court of C.J.M. was affirmed and revision rejected.

• Now one of the accused Amit Kumar is before this Court, invoking writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution and has challenged both the aforesaid orders.

4. Very first objection from the opposite side is that the petitioner has filed Misc. Writ Petition under Article 226 of the Constitution, instead he should have filed Misc. Writ Petition under Article 227 of the Constitution. On the above issue, I prefer to place reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Radhey Shyam and another vs. Chhabi Nath and others, (2015) 5 SCC 423. In the above noted case, the Supreme Court has clearly laid down that order of judicial court could be challenged under Article 227 of the Constitution of India and not under original writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. In my opinion, there is no legal hindrance in converting the petition under Article 226 to one under Article 227 of the Constitution. I, therefore, treat this petition as one under Article 227 of the Constitution. The registry shall assign appropriate number accordingly.

5. The contention of the petitioner is that at the time of the incident, he was on duty and therefore the investigating officer submitted a final report on 17.01.2002; the allegation in the FIR is that at about 3:15 am on 28.11.2001, three persons attacked the injured and only one of them i.e., Ajai Kumar Sharma (who is not the petitioner in the instant petition) actually fired on Satyabhan; Admittedly, Satyabhan sustained a single firearm injury, through and through over his right arm. The forceful contention of the petitioner is that his name has been dragged in the FIR falsely and that no case against him is made out in view of the facts that there was a single injury and the role of fire has been assigned to one Ajai Kumar Sharma only but said Ajai Kumar Sharma, who was named (and was assigned main role) was never summoned and the only other co-accused Arvind Kumar Sharma has died. Further submission is that in fact it is the first informant-Satrughan Singh @ Pappu Singh, who had murdered Arvind Kumar Sharma. And FIR case crime no. 641 of 2006 under sections 364 and 302 IPC has been registered against the first informant; he has also been chargesheeted. Argument is that the learned C.J.M. did not consider the evidence on record and passed an arbitrary order, which is not sustainable in the eyes of law. The learned Court of revision too, did not notice the relevant facts and circumstances and agreed with the view taken by the C.J.M., in a most mechanical way and declined to interfere, hence the petitioner has no remedy except to invoke powers under Article 226/227 of the Constitution.

6. Admittedly, the protest petition has been treated as a complaint. In the protest petition, the first informant named Ranbir Singh and Mohit Singh as the witnesses, who came on the spot and identified the accused persons. It is also alleged in the protest petition that the co-accused-Ajai Kumar Sharma did not pay the price of the articles transferred on his assurance, therefore there has been a dispute between him and the injured on this issue. The Court while treating the protest as complaint, called upon the complainant to produce his witness under section 202 Cr.P.C. The witnesses of fact i.e., PW1-Satyabhan (the injured), PW2-Ranbir Singh (the alleged eye-witness) and PW3-Mohit Singh (another eye-witness), were examined. The learned trial court took a view that at the stage of summoning only, a prima facie case has to be established and that there is no need to examine rest of the witnesses. And passed summoning order against Arvind Kumar and instant petitioner under sections 307, 504, 506 IPC.

7. In this session triable case only three witnesses of fact have been examined at the stage of inquiry before summoning. Admittedly, the doctor who examined the injured has not been summoned and examined under section 202 Cr.P.C. It is relevant to reproduce Section 202(2) Cr.P.C. here which is as below:-

"(2) In an inquiry under sub-section (1), the Magistrate may, if he thinks fit, take evidence of witnesses on oath :

Provided that if it appears to the Magistrate that the offence complained of is triable exclusively by the Court of Session, he shall call upon the complainant to produce all his witnesses and examine them on oath."

Section 202(2) Cr.P.C. enjoins the Magistrate to call upon the complainant to produce all of his witnesses and examine them on oath. It appears that the Magistrate did not find necessary to call upon the complainant to examine all his witnesses on a premise that for establishing a prima facie case, there is no need to examine all the witnesses.

8. A moot question is what is a prima facie case and when it can be said to have been made out before a Magistrate proceeds to summon an accused.

9. This Court in its judgment in Criminal Appeal No. 9188 of 2022 (Dr. Divya Nand Yadav and Another vs. State of U.P. and Another) decided on 20.04.2023 observed in para no. 10 as below:-

"10. There cannot be two opinions on the settled legal position that the Magistrate has to decide whether prima facie any case is made out or not, before proceeding to summon the accused persons. The meaning of prima facie case must be understood in the right perspective. There may be cases where the Magistrate finds that in literal sense of the words occurring in the statements the ingredients of an offence are there but he feels not so satisfied with them. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in para-11 of the judgment passed in Fiona Shrikhande vs. State of Maharashtra and Another; (2013) 14 SCC 44*, observed as below:-*

"At the complaint stage, the Magistrate is merely concerned with the allegations made out in the complaint and has only to "prima facie satisfy" whether there are "sufficient grounds to proceed" against the accused and it is not the province of the Magistrate to enquire into a detailed discussion on the merits or demerits of the case. The scope of enquiry under Section 202 is extremely limited in the sense that the Magistrate, at this stage, is expected to examine prima facie the truth or falsehood of the allegations made in the complaint."

The Supreme Court has used the pharse arriving at "prima facie satisfaction" whether there are "sufficient grounds to proceed"! Section 204 Cr.P.C. nowhere said that the Magistrate shall take cognizance and summon the accused if prima facie case is made out, instead Section 204 Cr.P.C. says that the Magistrate may take cognizance if there is sufficient ground for proceeding, hence in my view the prima facie case must be construed to mean "prima facie satisfaction" arrived at by the Magistrate. In other words the Magistrate shall proceed only if he finds that there is sufficient ground for the same. This is not to say that the proposed accused shall have any right to be heard at that stage or that any evidence in defence can be considered. It merely means that the Magistrate shall assess all the material before it and apply its mind to find out whether time has come to proceed and take cognizance. In that view of the matter the Supreme Court in the case as aforesaid has instead of using the word "prima facie case" has found fit to use the phrase "prima facie satisfaction" and of course this satisfaction has to be arrived at while acting within the four corners of law i.e., by adopting the procedure as provided under Sections 200 and 202 Cr.P.C. In my view, the Magistrate is not powerless to examine the truth or falsehood of the case made in the complaint. And to fully utilize this power the Magistrate has to play its role of examining himself the complaint and his witnesses under Sections 200 Cr.P.C., and if required to further inquire into by calling more witnesses and examining them or even by ordering investigation. The steering wheel of the inquiry cannot be left at the hands of the complainant. For the reason that at that stage, the accused has no say in the matter and the court has no opportunity to hear the other side, therefore he ought to remain very cautious, circumspect and alert. The broad probabilities or improbabilities of the story of course may be seen at this stage.

The Court further observed in para no. 14 as below:-

"14. The fact of the matter is that the court shall not proceed in a mechanical or a routine manner. It shall apply its mind, which is called a judicial mind and discretion as well. The court/the Magistrate, though shall not go deep into the evidence given and shall not weigh the evidentiary value in a meticulous manner. Except this rider, there is no other obstacles before the court below for arriving at the "prima facie satisfaction" a word which can be equated with the word "prima facie case".

10. The purpose of holding inquiry as envisaged under section 202 Cr.P.C. is to look for sufficient ground to proceed. The words "prima facie satisfaction" stands in equilibrium with "sufficient ground to proceed" and the terms are broadly interchangeable, as far as summoning of the accused persons is concerned.

11. While considering the provisions of law under section 202(2) Cr.P.C., this Court in Smt. Gudiya vs. State Of U.P. And 5 Others 2023:AHC:238320, held that ordinarily in a case exclusively triable by the Sessions Court, the complainant has to produce all the witnesses. In case he is unable to produce any of the witnesses on the premise that such witnesses are not under his command or are not his witnesses even then the Magistrate who is conducting the inquiry, may summon those witnesses for the purpose of recording his "prima facie satisfaction" with regard to summoning of the accused.

The Court in Smt. Gudiya case (supra) observed in para nos. 11 and 12 as below:-

"11. A question may arise that in case the complainant for some reason, whether justifiable or not so justifiable, either cannot produce its witness or deliberately withholds any of them, then what course is available to the Magistrate, who is conducting an 'inquiry'. Can he be left at the mercy of the complainant? There may be instances where a Magistrate may find that something more is required before he can record his 'prima facie satisfaction' with regard to summoning of the accused.

12. Moreover, a situation may arise where in a genuine case put before the court, the complainant is helpless in producing even 'his witness' for some extraneous reason. In such a situation definitely he has an option to apply to the court for summoning those witnesses, which he cannot produce himself."

12. The powers of the inquiry court are not fettered in any manner and it may call the witnesses, if in its view their evidence may prove useful for just decision in the matter for the purpose of summoning the accused persons.

13. In the instant matter, the learned trial court as well as the court of revision, ignored the important provisions of law under section 202(2) Cr.P.C. The approach of the Courts was casual and cavalier. Even the doctor who had examined the injured was not summoned. His examination was, quite important to draw an inference whether prima facie an offence under section 307 IPC is made out against the accused persons. Any summoning order passed ignoring the mandatory provisions of law is vulnerable and is liable to be set-aside.

14. In view of the above, the petition is allowed. The impugned orders are set-aside. The matter is remanded back to the trial court concerned for passing a fresh order in accordance with law.

3. Both these appeals are heard together with the consent of both the parties and are being decided together by a common judgment and order.

FACTS

4. The facts leading to filing of these two appeals are, that plaintiff respondent no. 1, Shailendra Kumar Pathak 'Vyas' filed an Original Suit No. 844 of 2023 before the Court of Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi against the appellant defendant no. 1 and Board of Trustees of Sri Kashi Vishwanath Temple as defendant no. 2 claiming following reliefs;

"(a) Decree the suit for declaration declaring that Plaintiff is entitled to perform all the rituals of Maa Sringar Gauri, Lord Ganesh, Lord Hanuman and other visible and invisible deities within old temple complex and also within the cellar (Tehkhana) existing within temple of Lord Adi Visheshwar (alleged Gyanvapi Mosque) at Settlement Plot No. 9130 (Nine Thousand One Hundred Thirty) Ward and P.S. Chowk District Varanasi,

(b) Decree the suit for permanent injunction restraining the Defendants from creating any obstacle, hindrance or interference in performance of daily Pooja, Aarti, Bhog and observance of all the rituals of Maa Sringar Gauri, Lord Ganesh, Lord Hanuman and other visible and invisible deities within the cellar (Tehkhana) existing within old temple of Lord Adi Visheshwar (alleged Gyanvapi Mosque) existing at Settlement Plot No. 9130(Nine Thousand One Hundred Thirty) Ward and P.S. Chowk District Varanasi;

(c) Deerce the suit for permanent injunction restraining the Defendants from demolishing, damaging, destroying or causing any damage to the images of deities Goddess Maa Sringar Gauri at Asthan of Lord Adi Visheshwar along with Lord Ganesh, Lord Ganesh, Lord Hanuman, Nandiji and other visible and invisible deities within the cellar (Tehkhana) existing within old temple of Lord Adi Visheshwar (alleged Gyanvapi Mosque) existing at Settlement Plot No. 9130(Nine Thousand One Hundred Thirty) Ward and P.S. Chowk District Varanasi;

(d) Decree the suit for mandatory injunction directing Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board to allow the Plaintiff, co-Pujaris and the devotees to perform Pooja and rituals within the cellar (Tehkhana) within old temple of Lord Adi Visheshwar (alleged Gyanvapi Mosque) existing at Settlement Plot No.9130 (Ninety One Hundred and Thirty) within the area of P.S. Chowk, Varanasi after making suitable provisions and if required, making appropriate changes in the iron fencing for the said purpose within the time provided by the Hon'ble Court;

(e) Decree the suit for mandatory injunction directing the Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board to act in accordance with Section 13 (Thirteen) and 14 (Fourteen) of Shri Kashi Vishwanath Temple Act, 1983 (Nineteen Hundred Eighty-Three) and to make provisions for pooja and worship within cellar (Tehkhana) existing within settlement plot No.9130 (Ninety-One Hundred and Thirty) of Shri Adi Visheshwar Temple Complex (alleged Gyanvapi mosque);

(f) Grant such other relief for which the Plaintiff may be found entitled to or which may be deem fit and necessary in the interest of justice; and

(g) Decree the suit with costs in favour of Plaintiff and against the Defendants;"

5. The plaint case is that there is a Jyotirlinga established by Lord Shiva himself in Kashi since time immemorial where stands temple of Lord Adi Visheshwar which was constructed, and is situated at settlement plot no. 9130. The said temple is called by the defendant appellant as Gyanwapi Mosque. There is a tehkhana (cellar) in the southern side of subject building which is the principal seat of hereditary pujari of Vyas family i.e. predecessors in interest of the plaintiff respondent no. 1 from time immemorial. According to them, plaintiff is entitled to perform puja and other rituals in the same manner which was being performed till the year 1993 within and outside the tehkhana (cellar). The suit was filed against the action of the State Government and district administration restricting the plaintiff to enter into the temple and fundamental right granted under Article 25 of the Constitution of India being infringed.

6. The plaintiff is hereditary pujari of Sri Vyaspeeth situated within the temple and has been in continuous possession over the same from time of his ancestors performing various puja, rituals, katha and other religious functions. The puja was abruptly stopped by oral orders in November and December 1993 and the temple complex was iron-fenced.

7. The family pedigree of Vyas family has been given in paragraph no. 4 of the plaint. The plaintiff by virtue of Will deed dated 28.02.2000 executed by Sri Somnath Vyas and Will deed dated 21.01.2014 executed by Pt. Chandra Nath Vyas is entitled to continue in hereditary office of pujari and perform the function at Vyaspeeth.

8. It is further averred that the temple of Sri Adi Visheshwar Jyotirlinga which stood from time immemorial was damaged/destroyed and defiled number of times by the invaders. Pt. Narayan Bhatt, the Guru of Raja Todarmal, got constructed and restored the temple which includes mandaps, subsidiary deities, shrines, peepal tree and several other objects of worship including the creation of Vyaspeeth for due performance of rituals, puja and worship of deities. It was in pursuance of Farman issued by Aurangzeb in the year 1669 that Sri Adi Visheshwar temple complex was substantially damaged. The Muslims forcibly and without any authority of law occupied the first floor of building to use same as Mosque and since then it is called Gyanwapi Masjid. After demolition, the Hindus continued to worship over the major portion including lower portion which is called tehkhana (cellar) of the temple complex.

9. It was in the year 1780-1790 that Rani Ahilyabai Holkar of Indore constructed a temple of Lord Shiva and established a Shivalingam adjacent to old temple which is called new temple and Sri Adi Visheshwar temple as old temple.

10. In paragraph no. 16 of the plaint, it has been averred that Case No. 30 was decided in favour of predecessors-in-interest of plaintiff from the Court of Assistant Magistrate on 11.08.1843, which was contested between Jai Gopal 'Mukhtar' of Musammat Rukmin Vs. Amanat Ali and Wahid Ali. In paragraph no. 18 reference has been given of Case No. 04 of 1852 decided on 12.05.1852 between Mahadeo Beas (Vyas), Grandson of Musammat Rukmin Vs. Amanat Ali. Further, in paragraph no. 19 reference of Case No. 28 decided on 18.02.1886 by the District Magistrate between Mutawalli Gyanwapi Mosque and Laxmi Narayan Vyas in regard to opening of doors and setting up staircase, has been given. Paragraph no. 20 speaks about copy of order dated 02.05.1906 forming part of record of Misc. Case No. 3 has been given for complying the order dated 26.03.1906.

11. Paragraph no. 21 of the plaint discloses the order passed by the District Magistrate, Varanasi in Case No. 65 dated 10.06.1925 relating to tehkhana (cellar) possessed by Baba Raghunath Vyas and also regarding tehkhana (cellar) within northern side of the subject building. Paragraph no. 26 of the plaint defines Section 4 (9) of Sri Kashi Vishwanath Temple Act 1983 (hereinafter referred as the 'Temple Act of 1983'), which means Temple of Adi Vishweshwar popularly known as Sri Kashi Vishwanath Temple, situated in the city of Varanasi which is used as a place of public religious worship and dedicated to or for the benefit of or used as of right by the Hindus, as a place of public religious worship of the Jyotirlinga and includes all subordinate temples, shrines, subshrines and the ashthan of all other images and deities, mandaps, wells, tanks and other necessary structures and land appurtenant thereto.

12. In paragraph no. 33, it has been alleged that in December 1993 the then Pujari Sri Somnath Vyas was directed by then District Magistrate not to enter into the premises. Having no option left he locked the door and tehkhana (cellar). It has been further alleged that in Civil Suit No. 637 of 1996, Civil Judge, Varanasi on 27.07.1996 had appointed an Advocate Commissioner to make survey. The survey was conducted on 30.07.1996 and a report was submitted in the Court. It was mentioned in the report that two locks were put on the western side of tehkhana (cellar), one by the district administration and another by Sri Somnath Vyas. The City Magistrate could not open the lock as there was no order of the Court to do so while Sri Somnath Vyas having one key opened the lock.

13. In paragraph no. 45 of the plaint it has been averred that the plaintiff and his brother had executed a registered Shebaitnama in favour of Mandir Trust on 25.02.2016 to the extent of half share of the temple. In paragraph no. 66 it has been stated that the cause of action arose on 17.09.2023, when the Muslim community threatened that as soon as ASI team goes they will capture the entire tehkhana (cellar) of southern side of old temple and would damage/destroy everything of Hindu worship lying there.

14. An application under Order XL Rule 1 CPC was filed by the plaintiff for appointing Receiver of tehkhana (cellar) in the southern side of building situated on settlement plot no. 9130 and also a direction was sought to direct the Receiver to allow the plaintiff, co-pujaris, nominee of Sri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board and devotees to perform pooja and rituals within the same.

15. On 07.11.2023 an objection was filed by the appellant defendant no. 1 to application 9-C moved for appointing Receiver on the ground that Vyas family had never performed any puja in the said premises. Further, no question arises as to stopping them from performing their religious rights since December 1993. It was further averred that the tehkhana (cellar) was in possession of the appellant and there is no image of any God or Goddess in the said tehkhana (cellar). In paragraph no. 9 of the objection, it has been stated that a Mosque exists on settlement plot no. 9130 and is in possession of the appellant from thousands of years.

16. In paragraph no. 10, it has been stated that in the suit filed by one Din Mohammad in the year 1936 being Suit No. 62 of 1936 which was decided on 25.08.1937 by the Additional Civil Judge the property in dispute has been declared as Mosque and the courtyard with land underneath are Hanafi Muslim Waqf. The said decision exist till date and no question arises for appointing any Receiver. In paragraph no. 12, it has been stated that the plaintiff who succeeded the shebiatship in view of Will deed dated 28.02.2000 transferred their right in favour of temple trust on 08.07.2016, thus, have no locus standi to proceed with the matter. Moreover, in view of the decision rendered in the year 1937 in case of Din Mohammad no right of Vyas family survives over the property in dispute.

17. By the orders of 27.10.2023 the suit was transferred to the Court of District Judge, Varanasi as Civil Suit No. 34 of 2023. The District Judge vide order dated 17.01.2024 allowed the application 9-C and appointed District Magistrate, Varanasi as Receiver for tehkhana (cellar) situated on the southern side of the building on settlement plot no. 9130 with the direction that he will take the property in his custody and control, and preserve the same during pendency of suit without any change in the nature of property. By the order dated 31.01.2024 the relief (b) sought in application 9-C was added and the District Magistrate, Varanasi/Receiver was directed for arranging worship and rituals by priest appointed by plaintiff and Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board of the deities, in the cellar. Hence, these appeals.

ARGUMENTS FROM THE APPELLANT SIDE

18. Sri S.F.A. Naqvi, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellant, while laying challenge to both the appeals submitted that final relief cannot be granted in a suit at initial stage, when neither issues have been framed, nor written statement has been filed and the evidences are yet to be led by the parties. Reliance has been placed upon the decision of Apex Court in case of Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited Vs. Prem Chandra Premi, 2005 (13) SCC 505.

19. He next contended that the Court below could not have passed the order dated 17.01.2024 appointing Receiver under Order XL Rule 1 CPC as there was no cause of action at all for the plaintiff. According to him the order appointing Receiver was in teeth of orders dated 24.09.1993 passed in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 611 of 1993 and order dated 14.03.1997 passed by the Apex Court in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 131 of 1997 as well as the order dated 17.08.1995 passed in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 541 of 1995 (Mohd. Aslam @ Bhure Vs. Union of India & Others) 1997 (5) SCC 575.

20. According to him the matter relating to mosque and courtyard with the land underneath already stood settled as Hanafi Muslim Waqf in the judgment rendered in Civil Suit No. 62 of 1936 (Din Mohammad & Others Vs. The Secretary of State for India in Council) decided on 25.08.1937. Once the cellar has been declared as Hanafi Muslim Waqf, the application 9-C could not have been entertained and Receiver could not have been appointed. The question regarding cellar has already attained finality in view of the decision in case of Din Mohammad (Supra). He further contended that the Order XL Rule 1 CPC does not apply in the present case. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of Madras High Court in case of T. Krishnaswamy Chetty Vs. C. Thangavelu Chetty, AIR 1955 Mad 430.

21. He next contended that once the application 9-C was disposed off on 17.01.2024, appointing the District Magistrate, Varanasi as Receiver of the property in dispute, subsequent order dated 31.01.2024 passed by the Court below was illegal once application stood disposed off, and no application was moved by the plaintiff under Section 151 or 152 of CPC for amending the judgment, decree or order. Further, there was no clerical, arithmetical mistake in the order or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or omission which the Court could have corrected on its own motion. Reliance has been placed upon the decision of Apex Court in case of Dwaraka Das Vs. State of M.P. & Another, 1999 (3) SCC 500. Relevant paragraph no. 6 is extracted here as under;

"6. Section 152 C.P.C. provides for correction of clerical arithmetical mistakes in judgments, decrees or orders or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or omission. The exercise of this power contemplates the correction of mistakes by the Court of its ministerial actions and does not contemplate of passing effective judicial orders after the judgment, decree or order. The settled position of law is that after the passing of the judgment, decree or order, court or the tribunal becomes functus officio and thus being not entitled to vary the terms of the judgments, decrees and orders earlier passed. The correction contemplated are of correcting only accidental omission or mistakes and not all omissions and mistakes which might have been committed by the Court while passing the judgment, decree or order. The omission sought to be corrected which goes to the merits of the case is beyond the scope of Section 152 for which the proper remedy for the aggrieved party is to file appeal or review application. It implies that the Section cannot be pressed into service to correct an omission which is intentional, how erroneous that may be. It has been noticed that the courts below have been liberally construing and applying the province of Sections 151 and 152 of the CPC even after passing of effective order in the Us pending before them. No Court can under the cover of the aforesaid sections modify, alter or add to the terms of its original judgment, decree or order. In the instant case, the trial court had specifically held the respondents-State liable to pay future interest only despite the prayer of the appellant for grant of interest with effect from the date of alleged breach which impliedly meant that the court had rejected the claim of the appellant in so far as pendente lite interest was concerned. The omission in not granting the pendente lite interest could not be held to be accidental omission or mistake as was wrongly done by the trial court vide order dated 30th November, 1973. The High Court was, therefore, justified in setting aside the aforesaid order by accepting the revision petition filed by the State."

22. Reliance has been placed upon the decision of Apex Court rendered in case of My Palace Mutually Aided Copperative Vs. B. Mahesh, 2022 LiveLaw (SC) 698, and upon decision in case of UPSRTC Vs. Imtiaz Hussain, 2006 (1) SCC 380, relevant paragraph nos. 7 and 8 are extracted here as under;

"7. Section 152 provides for correction of clerical or arithmetical mistakes in judgments, decrees or orders or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or omission. The exercise of this power contemplates the correction of mistakes by the Court of its ministerial actions and does not contemplate of passing effective judicial orders after the judgment, decree or order. The settled position of law is that after the passing of the judgment, decree or order, the same becomes final subject to any further avenues of remedies provided in respect of the same and the very Court or the tribunal cannot, on mere change of view, is not entitled to vary the terms of the judgments, decrees and orders earlier passed except by means of review, if statutorily provided specifically therefor and subject to the conditions or limitations provided therein. The powers under Section 152 of the Code are neither to be equated with the power of review nor can be said to be akin to review or even said to clothe the Court concerned under the guise of invoking after the result of the judgment earlier rendered, in its entirety or any portion or part of it. The corrections contemplated are of correcting only accidental omissions or mistakes and not all omissions and mistakes which might have been committed by the Court while passing the judgment, decree or order. The omission sought to be corrected which goes to the merits of the case is beyond the scope of Section 152 as if it is looking into it for the first time, for which the proper remedy for the aggrieved party if at all is to file appeal or revision before the higher forum or review application before the very forum, subject to the limitations in respect of such review. It implies that the Section cannot be pressed into service to correct an omission which is intentional, however erroneous that may be. It has been noticed that the courts below have been liberally construing and applying the provisions of Sections 151 and 152 of Code even after passing of effective orders in the lis pending before them. No Court can, under the cover of the aforesaid sections, modify, alter or add to the terms of its original judgment, decree or order. Similar view was expressed by this Court in Dwaraka Das v. State of Madhya Pradesh and Anr. (1999 (3) SCC 500 and Jayalakshmi Coelho v. Oswald Joseph Coelho (2001 (4) SCC 181).

8. The basis of the provision under Section 152 of the Code is founded on the maxim 'actus curiae neminem gravabit' i.e. an act of Court shall prejudice no man. The maxim "is founded upon justice and good sense, and affords a safe and certain guide for the administration of the law", said Cresswell J. in Freeman v. Tranah (12 C.B. 406). An unintentional mistake of the Court which may prejudice the cause of any party must and alone could be rectified. In Master Constitution Co. (P) Ltd. v. State of Orissa (AIR 1966 SC 1047) it was observed that the arithmetical mistake is a mistake of calculation, a clerical mistake is a mistake in writing or typing whereas an error arising out of or occurring from accidental slip or omission is an error due to careless mistake on the part of the Court liable to be corrected. To illustrate this point it was said that in a case where the order contains something which is not mentioned in the decree, it would be a case of unintentional omission or mistake as the mistake or omission is attributable to the Court which may say something or omit to say something which it did not intend to say or omit. No new arguments or re-arguments on merits can be entertained to facilitate such rectification of mistakes. The provision cannot be invoked to modify, alter or add to the terms of the original order or decree so as to, in effect, pass an effective judicial order after the judgment in the case."

23. Reliance has also been placed upon a decision of Apex Court rendered in case of Plasto Pack, Mumbai Vs. Ratnakar Bank Ltd. 2001 (6) SCC 683. Relevant paragraph no. 12 is extracted here as under;

"12. By order dated 3.3.1995 relief (a) set out in the plaint was granted 'as it was', without specifying the exact decretal amount and the rate of interest allowed by the Court. Such of the prayers as were not granted by decree dated 3.3.1995 would be deemed to have been refused and to that extent the suit shall be deemed to have been dismissed. More than two years and eight months later the Court could not have, on a mere notice of motion, substituted almost a new decree in place of the old one by granting such reliefs as were not granted earlier and that too without noticing the defendant-appellants. As held in K. Rajamouli Vs. AVKN Swamy, (2001) 5 SCC 37 power to amend a decree cannot be exercised so as to add to or subtract from any relief granted earlier. A case for setting aside the decree was earlier made out. In the facts and circumstances of the case the Division Bench ought to have taken a liberal view of the events and entertained the appeal for consideration on merits by condoning the delay in filing the same. However, that was not done. We are satisfied that grave injustice has been done to the appellants by denying them an opportunity of hearing and contesting the suit on its merits. We are also of the opinion that the respondent-bank ought to have taken a reasonable stand and should have sympathetically considered the proposal of the appellants which was not lacking in bona fides and in the interest of avoiding litigation and early recovery of outstanding debts the respondent should have compromised the suit. Even if the appellants' proposal was not acceptable to the respondent, at least a counter-proposal should have been made in which case across the table discussion between the parties with the assistance of their learned counsel would have brought out a mutually accepted resolution and an end to the litigation. We are constrained to observe that this litigation is being perpetuated because of the unreasonable and rigid attitude of the respondent-bank."

24. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of Apex Court rendered in case of Metro Marines & Another Vs. Bonus Watch Co. (P) Ltd. & Others, 2004 (7) SCC 478. Relevant paragraph no. 9 is extracted here as under;

"9. Having considered the arguments of the learned counsel for the parties and having perused the documents produced, we are satisfied that the impugned order of the Appellate Court cannot be sustained either on facts or in law. As noticed by this Court in the case of Dorab Cawasji Warden vs. Coomi Sorab Warden (supra) has held that an interim mandatory injunction can be granted only in exceptional cases coming within the exceptions noticed in the said judgment. In our opinion, the case of the respondent herein does not come under anyone of those exceptions and even on facts it is not such a case which calls for the issuance of an interim mandatory injunction directing the possession being handed over to the respondent. As observed by the learned Single Judge the issue whether the plaintiff is entitled for possession is yet to be decided in the Trial Court and granting of any interim order directing handing over of a possession would only mean decreeing the suit even before trial. Once the possession of the appellant either directly or through his agent (caretaker) is admitted then the fact that the appellant is not using the said property for commercial purpose or not using the same for any beneficial purpose or the appellant has to pay huge amount by way of damages in the event of he loosing the case or the fact that the litigation between the parties is a luxury litigation are all facts which are irrelevant for changing the status-quo in regard to possession during the pendency of the suit."

25. According to learned Senior Counsel the provisions of Section 152 CPC cannot be invoked to modify, alter or add to the terms of original order or decree as to in fact pass an effective order after the order or judgment in a case. Liberal use of Section 152 CPC is beyond the scope of and has been deprecated by the Apex Court in case of Jayalakshmi Coelho v. Oswald Joseph Coelho 2001 (4) SCC 181.

26. He then contended that appointment of District Magistrate, Varanasi, who being ex officio Member of Board of Trustees as per Section 6 (2) (i) of the Temple Act of 1983 creates clash of interest in between the office of District Magistrate, Varanasi, who hold overall control over the city being executive head as well as in-charge of revenue district. He also contended that executive committee is constituted under Section 19 (1) of the Temple Act of 1983 which is to work subject to direction of Board or the State Government and is responsible for the superintendence, direction and control of the affairs of the temple. Section 19 (2) provides for the Members of the Executive Committee and the District Magistrate, Varanasi is a Member of the Executive Committee.

27. Sri Naqvi then contended that once it is a settled position that mosque and courtyard with the land underneath are Hanafi Muslim 'Waqf' any claim seeking any relief regarding the land underneath has to be decided in a proper suit and not by the interim orders. According to him the present suit was entertained after a delay of 31 years without any explanation for such a long delay as provided under Order VII Rule 6 CPC and the Limitation Act.

28. The case set up by the plaintiff that State Government had removed them from disputed place by some oral order is a fact, which raises a question that since year 1993 the plaintiff sat tight over the matter and has not adjudicated the issue before any forum or Court of law. According to learned Senior Counsel the suit has been filed seeking relief of declaration and mandatory injunction for restoring an alleged right from which they were evicted in the year 1993 without seeking any exemption as provided under Order VII Rule 6 CPC. Once the Trial Court proceeds the first question will be that whether the suit is barred because it was filed beyond the limitation as provided under the Limitation Act. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of Madras High Court AIR 1940 Madras 617 Subramania Gurukul Abhinav Poornpriya A. Sriniwas Rao Saheb and the judgment of Apex Court in case of M. Sadiq Vs. Suresh Das, 2020 (1) SCC 1, relevant paragraph nos. 472, 473 and 479.

29. He next contended that the suit is liable to be dismissed for non-joinder of necessary party i.e. State of U.P. against whom reliefs were sought and also on the ground of joinder of unnecessary party i.e. appellant. According to him it is admitted that right of Shebaitship was transferred by the plaintiff to defendant no. 2 on 25.02.2016 and also by transfer of surrender deed dated 08.07.2016, hence plaintiff himself has voluntarily surrendered his rights to suit. The appellant has no role assigned in the alleged removal of Shebait from the place in question, in such circumstances any relief sought against the defendant no. 1 is nothing but a futile exercise and the suit itself is barred by unnecessary joinder of parties and also non-joinder of necessary party i.e. the State. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of Apex Court rendered in case of Kasturi Vs. Iyyamperumal, 2005 (6) SCC 733. Reliance has also been placed upon decision of Apex Court rendered in case of Moreshar Yadaorao Mahajan Vs. Vyankatesh Sitaram Bhedi (D) throguh LRs & Others, 2022 Supreme (SC) 986.

30. It was then contended that the suit is barred under Order VII Rule 11 (d) CPC by operation of law i.e. Section 4 of the Places of Worship (Special Provision) Act 1991. According to him the mosque and its underneath portion were always there and were never disturbed since time immemorial. On 15.08.1947 the mosque and its underneath portion alongwith appurtenant land were existing, hence, provisions of the Act No. 42 of 1991 are applicable and the suit is barred by operation of law. The application under Order VII Rule 11 (d) CPC has been filed on 30.01.2024. The Act No. 42 of 1991 in its opening statement defines the purpose of the Act, which prohibits conversion of any place of worship and to provide for the maintenance of religious character of any place of worship as it existed on the 15th date of August 1947. Thus, the present suit is barred by this Act and same cannot be proceeded. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of Apex Court rendered in case of Prem Kishore & Others Vs. Brahm Prakash & Others, 2023 LiveLaw (SC) 266.

31. It was lastly contended that the order dated 17.01.2024 appointing Receiver was modified on 31.01.2024 i.e. last date of working of the Court concerned as he was going to superannuate on the said date, and such modification could not have been made by him on the last day of his working.

32. Sri Puneet Gupta, learned counsel, also appearing for the appellant, submitted that the order appointing Receiver dated 17.01.2024 and the order dated 31.01.2024 is in form of relief of interlocutory mandatory injunction which the Court could not have granted as it would amount to granting of final relief. According to him relief (e) in the plaint is for a decree of mandatory injunction directing Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board to act in accordance with Section 13 and 14 of the Temple Act of 1983 and to make provisions of Puja and worship within tehkhana (cellar). The order dated 31.01.2024 is in form of interlocutory mandatory injunction which has provided for the worship and rituals under the custodianship of Receiver appointed on 17.01.2024, which is a final relief and cannot be granted.

33. According to him the grant of interlocutory mandatory injunction cannot be in a routine manner and unless and until the plaintiff make out a strong case only then it can be granted. Reliance has been placed upon the decision of Supreme Court in case of Dorab Cawasji Warden Vs. Coomi Sorab Warden & Others, 1990 (2) SCC 117. Reliance has also been placed upon another decision of Apex Court in case of Gurunanak Dev University Vs. Parminder Kumar Bansal & Another, 1993 Supreme (SC) 458. Relevant paragraph no. 6 is extracted here as under;

"6. Sri Gambhir is right in his submission. We are afraid that this kind of administration of interlocutory remedies, more guided by sympathy quite often wholly misplaced, does no service to anyone. From the series of orders that keep coming before us in academic matters, we find that loose, ill-conceived sympathy masquerades as interlocutory justice exposing judicial discretion to the criticism of degenerating into private benevolence. This is subversive of academic discipline, or whatever is left of it, leading to serious impasse in academic life. Admissions cannot be ordered without regard to the eligibility of the candidates. Decisions on matters relevant to be taken into account at the interlocutory stage cannot be deferred or decided later when serious complications might ensue from the interim order itself. In the present case, the High Court was apparently moved by sympathy for the candidates than by an accurate assessment of even the prima facie legal position. Such orders cannot be allowed to stand. The Courts should not embarrass academic authorities by itself taking over their functions."

34. Reliance has also been placed upon a decision of Supreme Court in case of Samir Narain Bhojwani Vs. Aurora Properties and Investments & Another, 2018 (17) SCC 203. Relevant paragraph nos. 24, 25 and 26 are extracted here as under;

"24. That apart, the learned Single Judge as well as the Division Bench have committed fundamental error in applying the principle of moulding of relief which could at best be resorted to at the time of consideration of final relief in the main suit and not at an interlocutory stage. The nature of order passed against the appellant is undeniably a mandatory order at an interlocutory stage. There is marked distinction between moulding of relief and granting mandatory relief at an interlocutory stage. As regards the latter, that can be granted only to restore the status quo and not to establish a new set of things differing from the state which existed at the date when the suit was instituted. This Court in Dorab Cawasji Warden Versus Coomi Sorab Warden and Others,2 has had occasion to consider the circumstances warranting grant of interlocutory mandatory injunction. In paragraphs 16 & 17, after analysing the legal precedents on the point as noticed in paragraphs 11-15, the Court went on to observe as follows:

"16. The relief of interlocutory mandatory injunctions are thus granted generally to preserve or restore the status quo of the last non-contested status which preceded the pending controversy until the final hearing when full relief may be granted or to compel the undoing of those acts that have been illegally done or the restoration of that which was wrongfully taken from the party complaining. But since the granting of such an injunction to a party who fails or would fail to establish his right at the trial may cause great injustice or irreparable harm to the party against whom it was granted or alternatively not granting of it to a party who succeeds or would succeed may equally cause great injustice or irreparable harm, courts have evolved certain guidelines. Generally stated these guidelines are:

(1) The plaintiff has a strong case for trial. That is, it shall be of a higher standard than a prima facie case that is normally required for a prohibitory injunction.

(2) It is necessary to prevent irreparable or serious injury which normally cannot be compensated in terms of money.

(3) The balance of convenience is in favour of the one seeking such relief.

17. Being essentially an equitable relief the grant or refusal of an interlocutory mandatory injunction shall ultimately rest in the sound judicial discretion of the court to be exercised in the light of the facts and circumstances in each case. Though the above guidelines are neither exhaustive nor complete or absolute rules, and there may be exceptional circumstances needing action, applying them as prerequisite for the grant or refusal of such injunctions would be a sound exercise of a judicial discretion."

25. The Court, amongst others, rested its exposition on the dictum in Halsbury"s Laws of England, 4th edition, Volume 24, paragraph 948, which reads thus:

"A mandatory injunction can be granted on an interlocutory application as well as at the hearing, but, in the absence of special circumstances, it will not normally be granted. However, if the case is clear and one which the court thinks ought to be decided at once, or if the act done is a simple and summary one which can be easily remedied, or if the defendant attempts to steal a march on the plaintiff, such as where, on receipt of notice that an injunction is about to be applied for, the defendant hurries on the work in respect of which complaint is made so that when he receives notice of an interim injunction it is completed, a mandatory injunction will be granted on an interlocutory application."

26. The principle expounded in this decision has been consistently followed by this Court. It is well established that an interim mandatory injunction is not a remedy that is easily granted. It is an order that is passed only in circumstances which are clear and the prima facie material clearly justify a finding that the status quo has been altered by one of the parties to the litigation and the interests of justice demanded that the status quo ante be restored by way of an interim mandatory injunction."

35. Reliance has also been placed upon a decision of Supreme Court in case of State of U.P. & Others Vs. Ram Sukhi Devi, 2005 (9) SCC 733, relevant paragraph no. 8 is extracted here as under;

"8. To say the least, approach of the learned Single Judge and the Division Bench is judicially unsustainable and indefensible. The final relief sought for in the writ petition has been granted as an interim measure. There was no reason indicated by learned Single Judge as to why the Government Order dated 26.10.1998 was to be ignored. Whether the writ petitioner was entitled to any relief in the writ petition has to be adjudicated at the time of final disposal of the writ petition. This Court has on numerous occasions observed that the final relief sought for should not be granted at an interim stage. The position is worsened if the interim direction has been passed with stipulation that the applicable Government Order has to be ignored. Time and again this Court has deprecated the practice of granting interim orders which practically give the principal relief sought in the petition for no better reason than that of a prima facie case has been made out, without being concerned about the balance of convenience, the public interest and a host of other considerations."

36. Learned Counsel heavily relied upon a decision of Apex Court in case of Mohd. Mehtab Khan & Others Vs. Khushnuma Ibrahim Khan & Others, 2013 (9) SCC 221. Relevant paragraph nos. 18 and 19 are extracted here as under;

"18. There is yet another dimension to the issues arising in the present appeal. The interim relief granted to the plaintiffs by the Appellate Bench of the High Court in the present case is a mandatory direction to handover possession to the plaintiffs. Grant of mandatory interim relief requires the highest degree of satisfaction of the Court; much higher than a case involving grant of prohibitory injunction. It is, indeed, a rare power, the governing principles whereof would hardly require a reiteration inasmuch as the same which had been evolved by this Court in Dorab Cawasji Warden vs. Coomi Sorab Warden and Others has come to be firmly embedded in our jurisprudence.

19. Paras 16 and 17 of the judgment in Dorab Cawasji Warden (supra), extracted below, may be usefully remembered in this regard:

"16. The relief of interlocutory mandatory injunctions are thus granted generally to preserve or restore the status quo of the last non-contested status which preceded the pending controversy until the final hearing when full relief may be granted or to compel the undoing of those acts that have been illegally done or the restoration of that which was wrongfully taken from the party complaining. But since the granting of such an injunction to a party who fails or would fail to establish his right at the trial may cause great injustice or irreparable harm to the party against whom it was granted or alternatively not granting of it to a party who succeeds or would succeed may equally cause great injustice or irreparable harm, courts have evolved certain guidelines. Generally stated these guidelines are:

(1) The plaintiff has a strong case for trial. That is, it shall be of a higher standard than a prima facie case that is normally required for a prohibitory injunction.

(2) It is necessary to prevent irreparable or serious injury which normally cannot be compensated in terms of money.

(3) The balance of convenience is in favour of the one seeking such relief.

17. Being essentially an equitable relief the grant or refusal of an interlocutory mandatory injunction shall ultimately rest in the sound judicial discretion of the court to be exercised in the light of the facts and circumstances in each case. Though the above guidelines are neither exhaustive nor complete or absolute rules, and there may be exceptional circumstances needing action, applying them as prerequisite for the grant or refusal of such injunctions would be a sound exercise of a judicial discretion."

37. He next contended that after passing of the order impugned dated 17.01.2024 the Trial Court became functus officio as the purpose of jurisdiction of application 9-C has been completed and another relief claimed in application 9-C, which is not expressly granted, deemed to have been refused, hence, another order passed on 31.01.2024 is barred by Explanation II and V of Section 11 CPC. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of Apex Court in case of Deputy Director Land Acquisition Vs. Malla Atchinaidu & Others, MANU/SC/0121/2006. Relevant paragraph no. 45 is extracted here as under;

"45. The general rule is clear that once an order is passed and entered or otherwise perfected in accordance with the practice of the Court, the Court which passed the order is functus officio and cannot set aside or alter the order however wrong it may appear to be. That can only be done on appeal, Section 189 of Civil Procedure Code of Ceylon, which embodies the provisions of Or 28 R. 11 of the English Rules of the Supreme Court to ensure that its order carries into effect the decision at which it arrived, provides an exception to the general rule, but it is an exception within a narrow compass. The Section does not take away any right of appeal which the parties may possess' it merely provides a simple and expeditious means of rectifying an obvious error. In the present case there was no clerical error or accidental omission in the decree and the case of the Appellants is based on an alleged variance between the Judgment of the Court and the decree based upon it. In such a case the variation should appear on a perusal of the Judgment and decree. No such variation is apparent in the present case."

SUBMISSIONS OF RESPONDENTS

38. Sri Hari Shanker Jain and Sri Vishnu Jain, learned counsel appearing for the plaintiff-respondent no.1 submitted that oral aspersions have been cast upon District Judge who passed the order impugned on 31.01.2024, as application 9-C stood decided on 17.01.2024, and omissions in order dated 17.01.2024 could not have been corrected within the power conferred under Section 151 read with Section 152 CPC. According to them, the aspersions cast upon the Court below is ill-founded and without any basis. It has contemptuous and reckless remarks made by a party against the Presiding Judge without any basis.

39. A mention was made by the plaintiff to rectify the omissions exercising power under Sections 151 and 152 CPC before the Court on 29.01.2024. Application 9-C contained two prayers while allowing the application, no direction has been issued on prayer no.2. On 29.01.2024, the appellant counsel sought adjournment and the matter was fixed for 30.01.2024. On 30.01.2024, the defendant no.1-appellant argued the matter on merit, but no objection was raised to the effect that the Court cannot pass an order if there has been any omission. It was after hearing both the parties that the order was passed on 31.01.2024. Reliance has been placed upon catena of judgments of various Courts passed on the last date of the working, which are in the cases of Manohar Lal Sharma Vs. Narendra Damodardas Modi, (2019) 3 SCC 25, Supreme Court of India Vs. Subhash Chandra Agrawal, (2020) 5 SCC 481, Rojer Mathew Vs. South Indian Bank Ltd., (2020) 6 SCC 1, Supriyo Vs. Union of India, (2023) SCC OnLine SC 1348, Aishat Shifa Vs. State of Karnataka and Others, (2022) LiveLaw SC 842, Maharao Sahib Shri Bhim Singhji Vs. Union of India, (1986) 4 SCC 615, Justice K.S. Puttaswamy (Retd.) Vs. Union of India, (2017) 10 SCC 1 and Kesavananda Bharati Sripadagalvaru and Ors Vs. State of Kerala and Another, AIR 1973 SC 1461.

40. It was next contended that application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC was filed on 30.01.2024 after closing of the arguments for passing order on relief no.2 prayed in application 9-C. Once, the application under Order VII Rule 11 (d) CPC was filed after the appointment of the Receiver on 17.01.2024, the Court below could not be faulted for not deciding the said application on the first hand and proceeding to decide the application under Order XL Rule 1 CPC.

41. It was next contended that in the instant case, there was an accidental slip or omissions on the part of Court below while passing the order dated 17.01.2024 for appointing the Receiver, as the application 9-C was allowed intoto, but directions as prayed in prayer no.2 could not be issued. Section 152 CPC empowers the Court to correct its own error in a judgment, decree, or order from any accidental slip or omission. The principle behind the said provision is "Actus Curiae Neminim Gravabit" i.e. nobody shall be prejudiced by act of the Court. The Court has inherent power under Section 151 CPC to rectify any omission in any order suo motu. Reliance has been placed upon the decision of the Apex Court rendered in case of Niyamat Ali Molla Vs. Sonargon Housing Cooperative Society Ltd. and Ors., 2007 (13) SCC 421. Relevant paragraphs 18 and 19 are extracted here as under:-

"18. Section 152 of the Code of Civil Procedure empowers the Court to correct its own error in a judgment, decree or order from any accidental slip or omission. The principle behind the said provision is actus curiae nemenim gravabit, i.e., nobody shall be prejudiced by an act of court.

19. Civil Procedure Code recognises the inherent power of the court.

It is not only confined to the amendment of the judgment or decree as envisaged under Section 152 of the code but also inherent power in general. The courts also have duty to see that the records are true and present the correct state of affair. There cannot, however, be any doubt whatsoever that the court cannot exercise the said jurisdiction so as to review its judgment. It cannot also exercise its jurisdiction when no mistake or slip occurred in the decree or order. This provision, in our opinion, should, however, not be construed in a pedantic manner. A decree may, therefore, be corrected by the Court both in exercise of its power under Section 152 as also under Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Such a power of the court is well recognized."

42. He next contended that there is specific averment in the suit that worship was going on continuously till 1993 in Vyas Ji tehkhana (cellar). Defendant no.1-appellant have no right over tehkhana and they were never in possession over it. In the objection, filed to application under Order XL Rule 1 CPC by the defendants, there is no specific averment that any religious activity was being performed in the tehkhana (cellar) by the Muslim community. Only vague assertions are made to the effect that defendant no.1 is in possession of entire property. More than 120 days have passed, but defendant no.1 have not filed their written statement as envisaged in Order VIII Rule 1 CPC, and there is nothing on record to establish even remotely that the property in question is a Waqf property. By order impugned, no new right has been created by the plaintiff-respondent no.1 and the worship and rituals have taken place within the forecorners of tehkhana (cellar), and not beyond it.

43. It was further submitted that in Din Mohammad (supra), a map was filed on behalf of the Secretary to the State of India (the defendant of that suit). In the map so filed, there is clear mention of Vyas tehkhana, the map was exhibited in the suit. It was next contended that during the survey being made in Settlement Plot No.9130, pursuant to the order dated 21.07.2023 having been confirmed by Supreme Court of India on 24.08.2023 in Original Suit No.18 of 2022 (Rakhi Singh and Another Vs. State of U.P. and Ors.), it was revealed that doors of tehkhana (cellar) premises in question had been removed and number of articles for worship including idols were lying there.

44. The plaintiff apprehended that defendant no.1 might capture tehkhana (cellar) in question, or they could destroy the objects of worship lying there after exit of Archaeology Survey of India team. In these circumstances, the prayer for appointment of Receiver was made. Only a temporary arrangement was made for performing worship in Vyas Ji tehkhana during pendency of suit as it was going on till 1993 and was reduced to one day in a year after 1993 when the entire area was barricaded by iron-fence. The counsel through an application filed under Section 107 CPC has brought on record the documents from the year 2014 to 2023 to establish that 'navahan path' is being observed in Vyas Ji tehkhana every year. The documents have been signed by Jitendra Nath Vyas, Deputy Magistrate, C.O. Security, Duty Officer, CRPF, S.H.O. Chowk, I/c LIU also. The action of the State Government depriving the plaintiff and other priest to perform worship within the tehkhana (cellar) is in violation of Section 3(1) of the 1991 Act and also in violation of the Article 25 of the Constitution of India.

45. Sri Jain, learned counsel then contended that there is no clash of interest of District Magistrate performing his duties as a Receiver and also as Member of Board of Trustees. According to him, the District Magistrate is also a Member of Executive Committee of the Trust under Section 19(2)(b) of the Temple Act, 1983. The Supreme Court on 17.05.2022 in Special Leave to Appeal (C) No.9388 of 2022 in the SLP filed by the appellant against the judgment and order dated 21.04.2022 of this Court in suit of Rakhi Singh had directed that the District Magistrate, Varanasi shall ensure that the area where the Shiva Linga is stated to have been found, as indicated in the order, shall be duly protected.

46. The Supreme Court further on 20.05.2022 while transferring the Civil Suit No.693 of 2021 which was pending before the Civil Judge (Senior Division), Varanasi to the Court of District Judge, Varanasi further directed the District Magistrate to make adequate arrangement for ensuring the due observance of Waju for religious observance.

47. According to him, the District Magistrate has been rightly appointed as Receiver of premises in question. He works in different capacities, namely, as Executive Member under the Act of 1983, as administrative head of the District, and Collector while discharging revenue duties. By appointing him Receiver, no harm will be caused to defendant no. 1-appellant and no new rights or obligations have been conferred to the District Magistrate by the order impugned. It is under Section 14 (a) of the Temple Act, 1983 that the Trust Board has to make arrangement for due and proper performance of worship, service and rituals, daily or periodically, general or special along with other deities of the temple in accordance with the Hindu Shastras and scriptures and usage.

48. It was lastly contended that a perusal of the suit would show that relief granted by impugned order are different from main relief claimed in the suit. It is noteworthy that no relief has been granted to the plaintiff, but direction has been issued to District Magistrate to make arrangement of worship within the tehkhana (cellar) prevalent till 1993 and thereafter in reduced form i.e. once in a year. According to him, if relief is prayed to direct the statutory authority to perform its duties cast upon it under law and by interim order, Court directs such statutory authority to carry out legal obligations under the statute, such an order cannot be questioned that it amounts to granting final relief.

49. Sri C.S. Vaidyanathan, learned Senior Counsel appearing for respondent no.2 confined his argument to the appointment of Receiver under Order XL Rule 1 of CPC. According to him, the Court is empowered to appoint a Receiver of any property whenever it is just and convenient to do so. The expressions “just and convenient” is a practical, non-technical standard that permits the Court to take into account the factual consideration of a particular case to farther the interest. Simply put the standard is of a varying nature, giving the Court a wide discretion in the appointment of a Receiver. Typically, it would be just for the Court to appoint a Receiver when the evidence, on the basis of which, the Court is to act is very clearly in favour of the plaintiff and risk of eventual injury to the defendant is very small. In other words, if the plaintiff makes an application for the appointment of Receiver, the plaintiff must, prima facie, show that it has a very good chance for succeeding in the suit. In the instant case, based on the evidence on record, it is submitted that the standard for appointment of the Receiver stands satisfied.

50. The material on record, prima facie, demonstrates that tehkhana (cellar) has been under ownership of the Vyas Ji family. The evidence of ownership is established from the map that was filed by the State (Secretary of State), defendant no.1, in the suit registered as Original Suit No.62 of 1936 between Din Mohammad and Others Vs. Secretary of State, which describes the tehkhana (cellar), at issue, as the tehkhana owned by Vyas Ji. The map was exhibited as 'Ex-FF', and admitted against the plaintiff in that particular suit under the signature of IInd Additional Sub Judge of Varanasi. In the said suit, Vyas Ji was not impleaded as a party, nor plaintiff therein contested the map, demarcation of the structure related to the property in question. Thus, the issue of 'possession' of the structure known as tehkhana owned by Vyas Ji vis-a-vis, the plaintiff in Civil Suit No.844 of 2023 cannot be challenged in the current legal proceedings and stands settled against the appellant therein. The appellant, therefore, does not have any right to object the entry of the structure by the plaintiff consequently, prima facie, issue of possession of property in question dedicated to the deity stands established in favour of the plaintiff in the suit, out of which, the present appeal has arisen. This aspect not only negates the very basis of appellant's plea regarding its possession of the property in question, but also provide strong prima facie inaccessible evidence of possession in favour of the predecessors of the plaintiff in the present suit. This possession continued until the State denied access to the predecessor of the plaintiff to the property in question by means of placing a blockage or barricading. The predecessors of the plaintiff had locked the property in question prior to the barricading and the Commissioner's report dated 30.07.1996 filed in Civil Suit No.637 of 1996 before the Court of Civil Judge, Varanasi amply demonstrates the presence of the locked place by a predecessor of the plaintiff on the gate of the property in question and supports the appointment of a Receiver. Reliance has been placed upon the decision rendered in case of Madan Lal Vs. Sneh Gupta, AIR 2001 Del 433. Relevant paragraph nos. 5, 8, 12, 13 and 14.

51. It was then contended that appointment of Receiver in the instant case is also supported by social situation which is the worshipping of deities inside the tehkhana by the plaintiff and lakhs of worshippers, a social situation of this immense gravity is a relevant consideration to examine the justness and convenience under Order XL Rule 1 of the Code. Reliance has been placed upon the decision of the Bombay High Court in case of Syed Khuwaja Syed Ahmed Vs. Maharashtra Housing and Area Development Authority, 1983 Mah LJ 120.

52. Lastly, it was contended that there was no conflict in the function of District Magistrate, while performing the duty as Receiver as per the orders of the Court, being an Ex-officio Member of Board of Trustees under the Temple Act, 1983. As the Receiver, the Court had directed the District Magistrate to arrange for worship of deities present inside the tehkhana (cellar), at issue, through a priest nominated by the Board of Trustees. The functions to be performed by the Receiver, the District Magistrate are consisting with the duties of the Board of Trustees under Section 13 and 14 of the Temple Act, 1983. Thus, in reality, the there is no conflict between the two. In any event, no malice in law or malice, in fact, can be, or has been imputed to the District Magistrate in the present case.

53. Having heard the respective counsel for the parties and after perusing the material on record, I proceed to analyse the submissions made from both the sides.

54. Primarily, through both the appeals the appellant had questioned the appointment of Receiver by the Court below on 17.01.2024 and subsequently by the order dated 31.01.2024 directing the Receiver for arranging worship and rituals of the deities by the priest appointed by plaintiff and Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board in tehkhana (cellar). Besides this some other question has been raised by the appellant for consideration and determination by this Court.

55. I will first take up the issues in regard to the appointment of District Magistrate, Varanasi as Receiver of Vyas Ji tehkhana (cellar) by order dated 17.01.2024 and order dated 31.01.2024 directing the Receiver for arranging worship of deities situated in tehkhana (cellar) by the priest appointed by plaintiff and Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board.

56. Plaintiff respondent no. 1 filed a civil suit seeking relief of declaration, permanent injunction, mandatory injunction for the property in dispute alleged as 'Vyas Ji Tehkhana' (cellar) situated in Settlement Plot No. 9130, arraying the appellant as defendant no. 1 and Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust as defendant no. 2. Relief for mandatory injunction has been sought directing the defendant no. 2 to allow the plaintiff, co-pujaris and devotees to perform puja and rituals within the cellar and also a direction upon the defendant no. 2 to act in accordance with the Section 13 and 14 of the Temple Act of 1983 and make provision for worship within the cellar.

57. An application 9-C under Order XL Rule 1 CPC was also filed in the month of September 2023 for appointing Receiver, as plaintiff apprehended that post survey done by ASI, Receiver needs to be appointed to protect the property in dispute from being dissipated by defendant no. 1, and the worship, which was conducted by Vyas family till the month of December 1993, and stopped by the oral orders of State Government, should continue under the control and supervision of Receiver by a priest appointed by the plaintiff, co-pujaris, the nominee of defendant no. 2 Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board. Both the prayers were made in the application as prayer (a) and (b).

58. Objections were filed by the defendant no. 1 alleging that averment made in the application were totally false and baseless and they are in possession over the disputed plot. Heavy reliance was placed upon the decision rendered in Suit No. 62 of 1936 decided in the year 1937. The Court below allowed the application 9-C on 17.01.2024 and appointed the District Magistrate, Varanasi as the Receiver. Pursuant to the order, the District Magistrate took over the charge as Receiver on 24.01.2024. Thereafter, the Court below on 31.01.2024 granted relief (b) exercising power under Section 151/152 CPC.

59. The appellant has assailed both the orders appointing Receiver on 17.01.2024 and directing for worship in Vyas Ji tehkhana (cellar) on 31.01.2024 on the ground that the Court below could not have appointed Receiver under Order XL Rule 1 CPC as the property stood settled as Hanafi Muslim Waqf by the judgment dated 25.08.1937 in case of Din Mohammad (Supra). Further, the right to worship could not have been granted under Section 151 or 152 CPC amending the judgment, decree or order as there stood no clerical, arithmetical mistake in the order or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or motion. The Court had become functus officio once application 9-C stood decided on 17.01.2024.

60. Both the questions of appointment of Receiver under Order XL Rule 1 CPC and order passed on 31.01.2024 under Section 151/152 CPC are inter twined and needs adjudication simultaneously.

61. Order XL Rule 1 CPC provides for appointment of Receiver where it appears to the Court to be just and convenient, the Court may by order :- (a) appoint a Receiver of any property, whether before or after the decree, (b) remove any person from the possession or custody of the property, (c) commit the same to the possession, custody or management of the Receiver; and (d) confer upon the receiver all such powers, as to bringing and defending suits and for the realization, management, protection, preservation and improvement of the property, the collection of the rents and profits thereof, the application and disposal of such rents and profits, and the execution of documents as the owner himself has, or such those powers as the Court thinks fit.

62. The object of appointing a Receiver is to protect, preserve and manage the property during the pendency of a suit. The words "to be just and convenient" have been substituted for the words "to be necessary for the realization, preservation or better custody, or management of any property, movable or immovable, subject of a suit or attachment". The effect of this amendment is that the Court may now appoint a Receiver not only in a particular case specified in the old section, but in every case in which it appears to the Court to be just and convenient to do so.

63. The power of the Court to appoint a Receiver under this order is subject to the controlling provision of Section 94 and is to be exercised for preventing the ends of justice from being defeated. Section 94 CPC reads as under;

"94. Supplemental Proceedings.-In order to prevent the ends of justice from being defeated the Court may, if it is so prescribed,—

(a) issue a warrant to arrest the defendant and bring him before the Court to show cause why he should not give security for his appearance, and if he fails to comply with any order for security commit him to the civil prison;

(b) direct the defendant to furnish security to produce any property belonging to him and to place the same at the disposal of the Court or order the attachment of any property;

(c) grant a temporary injunction and in case of disobedience commit the person guilty thereof to the civil prison and order that his property be attached and sold;

(d) appoint a receiver of any property and enforce the performance of his duties by attaching and selling his property;

(e) make such other interlocutory orders as may appear to the Court to be just and convenient."

64. The source of power of the Court to grant interim relief is under Section 94. However, exercise of that power can only be done if the circumstances of the case fall under the rules. Therefore, when a matter comes before the Court, the Court has to examine the facts of each case and ascertain whether the ingredients of Section 94 read with rules, in an order, are satisfied and accordingly grant an appropriate relief.

65. In Vareed Jacob Vs. Sosamma Geevarghese and Ors., 2004 (6) SCC 378, the Apex Court held that it is only in cases where circumstances do not fall under any of the rules prescribed that the Court can invoke its inherent power under Section 151 CPC.

66. In Mulji Umershi Shah Vs. Paradisia Builders Private Limited, AIR 1998 Bombay 87, Bombay High Court held that appointment of Receiver can be made on the application of either parties to the litigation as well as suo moto and therefore, absence of application shall not preclude the Court from passing such orders if it is just and convenient.

67. In S.B. Industries Vs. United Bank of India, AIR 1978 189, Division Bench of this Court while considering the appointment of Receiver held that in order to justify the appointment of Receiver , the plaintiff must establish a reasonable possibility that the plaintiff will ultimately succeeds in obtaining the relief claimed in the suit. The requirement, thus, is that he must establish a good prima facie case. The Court further held that appointment of a Receiver is, as a general rule, discretionary, and not a matter of right. The Court also observed that a Receiver has no power except such as are conferred upon him by the orders by which he is appointed.

68. In Satyanarayan Banerji & Another Vs. Kalyani Prosad Singh Deo Bahadur & Others, AIR 1945 CAL 387, the Court held that object and purpose of appointment of a Receiver may generally be stated to be the preservation of subject matter of the litigation pending, a judicial determination of the rights of the parties thereto. The Receiver is appointed for the benefit of all concerned, he is the representative of the Court and of all parties interested in the litigation, wherein he is appointed. The appointment of a Receiver is an act of Court and made in the interest of justice. He is an officer or representative of the Court subject to its order. His possession is the possession of the Court.

69. In T. Krishnaswamy Chetty (Supra) Madras High Court had laid five principles which can be described as "panch sadachar" of our Courts exercising equity jurisdiction in appointing Receivers. Relevant paragraph no. 13 of the judgment is extracted here as under;

"13. The five principles which can be described as the 'panch sadachar' of our Courts exercising equity jurisdiction in appointing receivers are as follows:

(1) The appointment of a receiver pending a suit is a matter resting in the discretion of the Court. The discretion is not arbitrary or absolute: it is a sound and judicial discretion, taking into account all the circumstances of the case, exercised for the purpose of permitting the ends of justice, and protecting the rights of all parties interested in the controversy and the subject-matter and based upon the fact that there is no other adequate remedy or means of accomplishing the desired objects of the judicial proceeding: — 'Mathusri v. Mathusri,' 19 Mad 120 (PC) (Z5); — 'Sivagnanathammal v. Arunachallam Pillai', 21 Mad LJ 821 (Z6); — 'Habibullah v. Abtiakallah', AIR 1918 Cal 882 (Z7); — 'Tirath Singh v. Shromani Gurudvvara Prabandhak Committee', AIR 1931 Lah 688 (Z8); — 'Ghanasham v. Moraba', 18 Bom 474 (Z9); — 'Jagat Tarini Dasi v. Nabagopal Chaki', 34 Cal 305 (Z10); — 'Sivaji Raja Sahib v. Aiswariyanandaji', AIR 1915 Mad 926 (Z11); — 'Prasanno Moyi Devi v. Beni Madhab Rai', 5 All 556 (Z12); — 'Sidheswari Dabi v. Abhayeswari Dabi', 15 Cal 818 (Z13); — 'Shromani Gurudwara Prabandhak Committee, Amritsar v. Dharam Das', AIR 1925 Lah 349 (Z14); — 'Bhupendra Nath v. Manohar Mukerjee', AIR 1924 Cal 456 (Z15).

(2) The Court should not appoint a receiver except upon proof by the plaintiff that prima facie he has very excellent chance of succeeding in the S. suit. — 'Dhumi v. Nawab Sajjad Ali Khan', AIR 1923 Lah 623 (Z16); — 'Firm of Raghubir Singh Jaswant v. Narinjan Singh', AIR 1923 Lah 48 (Z17); — 'Siaram Das v. Mohabir Das', 27 Cal 279 (Z18); — 'Muhammad Kasim v. Nagaraja Moopanar', AIR 1928 Mad 813 (Z19); — 'Banwarilal Chowdhury v. Motilal', AIR 1922 Pat 493 (Z20).

(3) Not only must the plaintiff show a case of adverse and conflicting claims to property, but, he must show some emergency or danger or loss demanding immediate action and of his own right he must be reasonably clear and free from doubt. The element of danger is an important consideration. A Court will not act on possible danger only; the danger must be great and imminent demanding immediate relief. It has been truly said that a Court will never appoint a receiver merely on the ground that it will do no harm. — 'Manghanmal Tarachand v. Mikanbai', AIR 1933 Sind 231 (Z21); — 'Bidurramji v. Keshoramji', AIR 1939 Oudh 61 (Z22); — 'Sheoambar Ban v. Mohan Ban', AIR 1941 Oudh 328 (Z23).

(4) An order appointing a receiver will not be made where it has the effect of depriving a defendant of a 'de facto' possession since that might cause irreparable wrong. If the dispute is as to title only, the Court very reluctantly disturbs possession by receiver, but if the property is exposed to danger and loss and the person in possession has obtained it through fraud or force the Court will interpose by receiver for the security of the property. It would be different where the property is shown to be 'in medio', that is to say, in the enjoyment of no one, as the Court can hardly do wrong in taking possession: it will then be the common interest of all the parties that the Court should prevent a scramble as no one seems to be in actual lawful enjoyment of the property and no harm can be done to anyone by taking it and preserving it for the benefit of the legitimate who may prove successful. Therefore, even if there is no allegation of waste and mismanagement the fact that the property is more or less 'in medio' is sufficient to vest a Court with jurisdiction to appoint a receiver. — 'Nilambar Das v. Mabal Behari', AIR 1927 Pat 220 (Z24); — 'Alkama Bibi v. Syed Istak Hussain', AIR 1925 Cal 970 (Z25);

— 'Mathuria Debya v. Shibdayal Singh', 14 Cal WN 252 (Z26); — 'Bhubaneswar Prasad v. Rajeshwar Prasad', AIR 1948 Pat 195 (Z27). Otherwise a receiver should not be appointed in supersession of a bone fide possessor of property in controversy and bona fides have to be presumed until the contrary is established or can be indubitably inferred.

(5) The Court, on the application of a receiver, looks to the conduct of the party who makes the application and will usually refuse to interfere unless his conduct has been free from blame. He must come to Court with clean hands and should not have disentitled himself to the equitable relief by laches, delay, acquiescence etc."

70. In the instant case the plaintiff claims to derive his title of Vyas Ji tehkhana (cellar) from his predecessors in interest. Vyas Ji tehkhana (cellar), according to family pedigree given in paragraph no. 4 of the plaint, is in possession of Vyas family since the year 1551 and the plaintiff succeeded through one Som Nath Vyas, who had executed a Will in his favour and his brother, on 28.02.2000 and also to the share of Pt. Chandra Nath Vyas, who had executed a Will on 21.01.2014 in favour of plaintiff and his brother. Both, Som Nath Vyas and Pt. Chandra Nath Vyas succeeded pursuant to the Will executed on 01.07.1968 by Baijnath Vyas.

71. Reliance placed by the appellant on the decision of Din Mohammad (Supra) does not help their case principally on the ground that in Suit No. 62 of 1936 a map was filed by the State (Secretary of State) defendant no. 1 of that suit, which was admitted by the Court against the plaintiff Din Mohammad on 14.05.1937 and exhibited as "Ex: FF", wherein the tehkhana owned by Vyas family has been shown, meaning thereby that Court in the year 1937 admitted the existence of Vyas family and the tehkhana (cellar) owned by them. The map filed by Secretary of State is part of record of the judgment of year 1937, heavily relied upon by the appellant.

72. The existence of Vyas tehkhana (cellar) owned by Vyas family in the year 1937 is a prima facie proof of the continues possession claimed by the plaintiff till the year 1993.

73. Five principles laid down in Chetty's case clearly provide that Court should not appoint a Receiver except upon proof by plaintiff that prima facie he has a very excellent chance of succeeding in suit. Further, it was held that appointing a Receiver will not be made where it has the effect of depriving a defendant 'de facto' possession since that might cause irreparable wrong. Here the appellant failed to make out a prima facie case, either through pleading or by document regarding their prima facie possession over the disputed property except bald assertions in the objections.

74. Neither appellant nor plaintiff were a party in the suit of Din Mohammad. The rights of appellant were never regarded by the Court, but on the other hand map filed by the State demonstrating tehkhana (cellar) owned by Vyas family have been admitted against Din Mohammad, makes out a strong case for the appointment of a Receiver. Moreover, the judgment in Din Mohammad's case takes note of various orders passed in cases of Vyas family right from 1852 to 1906.

75. Plaintiff's contention cannot be discarded at the stage of appointment of Receiver in view of documents placed demonstrating worship being carried out in Vyas Ji tehkhana (cellar) by Vyas family since British era having been abruptly stopped in December 1993, when the disputed area of Settlement Plot No. 9130 was barricaded and iron-fenced subsequent to the demolition of Babri Mosque in the year 1992.

76. The argument of appellant, not questioning the action of the State after 1993 by plaintiff, has to be seen in the light of the fact that Som Nath Vyas, as next friend of Adi Visheshwar, from whom the plaintiff succeeded, had filed a Civil Suit No. 610 of 1991 in respect of Settlement Plot No. 9130, 9131 and 9132 claiming relief of declaration, prohibitory and mandatory injunction against the defendant therein. As the worship was going on, Som Nath Vyas never questioned the action of the State and the further proceedings of that suit was stayed by this Court in the year 1998. The right of Shebaitship was transferred in favour of plaintiff by Som Nath Vyas in the year 2000 and by Pt. Chandra Nath Vyas in the year 2014.

77. The Commissioner's report dated 30.07.1996 filed in Civil Suit No. 637 of 1996 before the Court of Civil Judge, Varanasi, amply demonstrate the presence of lock put by the predecessors of plaintiff on the gate of property in question, which again provides a strong prima facie evidence of possession in favour of plaintiff and supports the appointment of Receiver. Thus both, the map, part of Original Suit No. 62 of 1936, and Commissioner's report dated 30.07.1996 filed in Civil Suit No. 637 of 1996, not only negates the very basis of appellant's plea regarding possession of property in question, but also advances prima facie evidence of possession in favour of predecessors of plaintiff.

78. Now coming to the second aspect of the case, which is the order passed on application 9-C on 31.01.2024, alleged to have been passed by the Court below exercising power under Section 151/152 CPC.

79. It has been vehemently submitted by the appellant that only clerical and arithmetical mistakes in the order or error arising therein from any accidental slip or omission, could be corrected by the Court on its own motion or on the application made by a party and not otherwise.

80. Section 151 CPC is inherent power of Court to make such orders as may be necessary for the ends of justice or to prevent abuse of the process of the Court while Section 152 provides for the amendment of judgments, decree or orders. Clerical or arithmetical mistakes in judgments, decrees or orders or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or omission may at any time be corrected by the Court either on its own motion or on the application of any of the parties.

81. As the Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive, the simple reason being that the Legislature is incapable of contemplating of all the possible circumstances which may arise in any future litigation and consequently, for providing the procedure for them. It is well established that when the Code of Civil Procedure is silent regarding a procedural aspect, the inherent power of the Court can come to its aid for doing real and substantial justice between the parties.

82. The basic principle of Section 151 is to act ex debito justitiae. In Jet Ply Wood (P) Ltd. Vs. Madhukar Nowlakha, 2006 (3) SCC 699, the Apex Court had the occasion to consider the scope of inherent power of the Court under Section 151 and held that in cases where the procedure has not been provided, inherent power of Court can come to its aid for doing real and substantial justice between the parties.

83. In Manohar Lal Chopra Vs. Rai Bahadur Rao Raja Ji Seth Hira Lal, AIR 1962 (SC) 527, the Apex Court, while dealing with Sections 94, 151 and order XXXIX Rule 1 in regard to grant of temporary injunction, held that nothing in the Court shall be deemed to limit, or otherwise affect the inherent power of the Court to make orders necessary for the ends of justice. It was further held that Section 94 does not control Section 151, or the inherent power is limited. According to Apex Court, the inherent power under Section 151 has not been conferred upon the Court; it is power inherent in the Court by virtue of its duty to do justice between the parties before it.

84. Section 152 CPC is based on two principles, namely, that the act of Court should not prejudice any party and that the Courts have the duty to see that records are true and present the correct state of affairs. An arithmetical mistake is a mistake in calculation while a clerical mistake is a mistake of writing or typing error from an accidental slip or omission or an error due to careless mistake or omission may unintentionally and unknowingly also.

85. Those matter which require elaborate argument or evidence from question of fact or law for its discovery cannot be said to be an error arising out of accidental slip or omission to bring within the ambit of Section 152. The basis of provision under Section 152 CPC is founded on maxim "actus curiae niminem gravabit", i.e. an act of Court shall not prejudice no man.

86. In Freeman Vs. Tranah (12 CB 406) Cresswell J. said that the maxim is founded upon justice and good sense which serves a safe and certain guide for the administration of law. An unintentional mistake of the Court which may prejudice cause of any party must and alone could be rectified.

87. In Master Construction Company (P) Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa, AIR 1966 SC 1047, Apex Court observed that arithmetical mistake is a mistake of calculation, a clerical mistake is a mistake in writing or typing whereas an error arising out of or occurring from accidental slip or omission is an error due to careless mistake on the part of the Court liable to be corrected. To illustrate this point, it was said that in a case where the order contains which is not mentioned in the decree, it would be a case of unintentional omission or mistake as the mistake or omission is attributable to the Court which may say something or omit to say something which it did not intend to say or omit.

88. The Division Bench of Bombay High Court in Delta Products (P) Ltd. Vs. Industrial Credit & Investment Corporation of India Ltd. 1980 MLJ 156, considering the provisions of Section 151 and 152 CPC held that while considering the principle on which the provisions of Section 151 and 152 CPC are based, a broad view must be taken of provisions of Section 151 and 152 CPC. The procedural laws are primarily meant to do justice between the parties. If, therefore, there are mistakes that are capable of being rectified and they answer the description of mistakes in Section 152, the Court should normally be inclined to rectify the mistake and do justice between the parties. Mistakes can be corrected under Section 152 CPC with a view to bring about the real meaning and extent of the decree that was passed by the Court. For that purpose not only mistakes committed by the Court in its own proceedings but the mistakes having accidentally crept in the pleadings of the parties can also be corrected.

89. In Sampuran Singh Vs. Nandu, AIR 2004 P&H 239, the Court held that Section 152 CPC is based on a laudable principle that an act of the Court shall prejudice no party and that the Courts have a duty to see that their records are true and represent the correct state of affairs. It is well settled that power of the Court under Section 152 CPC is not restricted to correction of errors in decree drawn up by ministerial staff only, rather it can be exercised even to correct the judgments pronounced and signed by the Court. It cannot be overlooked that the procedural laws are primarily meant to do justice between the parties. If there are mistakes which are capable of being rectified and they answer the description of mistakes under Section 152 CPC, the Court should invariably rectify the mistakes and do justice between the parties.

90. In Tulsipur Sugar Company Vs. State of U.P. AIR 1970 SC 70, Apex Court held that the basis of the power to amend decrees and orders is on the principle that no party should suffer any detriment on account of a mistake or an error committed by adjudicating authority.

91. In Mellor Vs. Swire (1885) 3030 ChD 239, 247, it was held "it would be perfectly shocking if the Court could not rectify an error which is real the error of its own minister".

92. Lord Penzance in Lawrie Vs. Lees (1881) 7 AppCas PP 34 said "I cannot doubt that under the original powers of the Court independent of any order i.e. made under the judicature act, every Court has the power to vary its own order which are drawn up mechanically in the registry or in the office of the Court, to vary them in such a way as to carry out its own meaning, and where language has been used which is doubtful to make it plain. I think that power is inherent in every Court".

93. Full Bench of this Court in Ganesh Vs. Sri Ram Lalaji Mahraj Birajman Mandir, AIR 1973 All 116, while dealing with Sections 151 and 152 CPC relying upon the earlier decision of this Court in case of Aziz Ullah Khan Vs. Court of Wards, AIR 1932 All 587 held that power of the Court for correcting mistake are not restricted to Section 152, but can be exercised under Sections 151 and 153, where there is an accidental mistake occurring in the order of the Court.

94. In State of Punjab Vs. Darshan Singh, 2004 (1) SCC 328, the Apex Court while dealing with Section 152 held that power under the said section are neither to be equated with power of review, nor can be said to be akin to review or even said to clothe the Court concerned under the guise of invoking after the result of the judgment earlier rendered, in its entirety or any portion or part of it. The corrections contemplated are of correcting only accidental omissions or mistakes and not all omissions or mistakes which might have been committed by the Court while passing the judgment, decree or order. The Omissions sought to be corrected which goes to the merits of the case is beyond the scope of Section 152 as if it is looking into it for the first time, for which proper remedy for the aggrieved party if at all is to file an appeal or revision before higher forum. An unintentional mistake of Court which may prejudice the cause of any party must and alone could be rectified.

95. In the instant case application filed under Order XL Rule 1 CPC was with a combined prayer for appointment of Receiver as well as for direction to the Receiver to allow plaintiff, co-pujaris, nominees of Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board and the devotees to perform worship and rituals within the cellar after making suitable provisions by making changes in the iron-fencing.

96. Prayer (a) made in the application was granted on 17.01.2024 while application 9-C was allowed. Noticing the accidental slip/omission of non mentioning relief (b) in the order, the Court was informed on 29.01.2024 and after hearing the appellant, who did not raise any objection as to relief (b), it was granted on 31.01.2024.

97. It was an omission on the part of Court below while allowing the application 9-C in entirety on 17.01.2024 that second relief was not mentioned. The order dated 31.01.2024 stands covered under the powers of Court given in Section 151 and 152 CPC, as it is neither reviewing the order, nor the Court under the guise of invoking Section 152 is granting any further relief after the result of the judgment was rendered earlier.

98. The omission/mistake, which was sought to be corrected does not affect the merit of the case, as application 9-C was allowed in entirety on 17.01.2024, where both the prayers were made by the plaintiff, and only first prayer finds mention in the order.

99. The maxim 'actus curiae neminem gravabit' i.e. an act of Court shall prejudice no man, shall be applicable in the instant case, as it is founded upon justice and good sense which serves a safe and certain guide for the administration of the law. Once the Court had allowed the application 9-C and appointed Receiver, the relief (b) which was part of that application, stood granted and only rectification was made on 31.01.2024.

100. Reliance placed upon the decision of Apex Court in case of Dwaraka Das (Supra) is not applicable in the instant case, as in that case an application was subsequently moved under Section 152 CPC after decree of the Trial Court for awarding of interest from the date of suit till the date of decree by correcting the judgment and the decree. In the instant case, application 9-C stood allowed on 17.01.2024 and only relief (b) was not incorporated in the order, which was subsequently done on 31.01.2024.

101. In Imtiaz Hussain (Supra) the award of Labour Court was modified subsequently, and the Apex Court while dealing with the power under Section 152 CPC found that the Court had become functus officio and the Labour Court was not justified in amending the award as was originally made. The said case is distinguishable in the present set of case.

102. Reliance placed upon Plasto Pack (Supra) by the appellant is distinguishable in the facts of present case, as in that case the decree passed by the learned Single Judge was modified on the motion moved by one of the party and the decree was amended without issuing notice to the other side. In the instant case the appellant had appeared and heard on 29.01.2024 and 30.01.2024 before the order was passed on 31.01.2024.

103. Argument raised from the appellant side that Section 152 CPC cannot be invoked to modify, alter or add to the term of original order or decree as to in fact pass an effective order after an order has been passed, has no legs to stand in view of the various decisions of the Apex Court as well as the other High Courts dealing with the power and scope of Section 152 CPC.

104. It has already been held that a broad view must be taken of provisions of Section 152 CPC as the procedural laws are primarily meant to do justice between the parties, thus, if any mistakes that have crept are capable of being rectified and answer the description of mistakes enumerated in Section 152 CPC. In Section 152 the Court should normally be inclined to rectify such mistakes and do justice between the parties.

105. It is not a case where an appeal or review lies, as application 9-C was allowed in entirety but omission in the order was in regard to relief (b) which was added later by another order. It is a case where two reliefs were sought by a common application which was granted by the Court but due to accidental slip or omission only relief (a) was incorporated, while relief (b) was left out. Perusal of the order dated 17.01.2024 clearly reflects the granting of relief in favour of plaintiff and there being no denial as to relief (b). It was by subsequent order that the second relief was made part of that order.

106. An attempt has been made from the appellant side that the order dated 31.01.2024 is not a suo moto exercise by the Court nor on any application by the plaintiff, thus Section 152 is not attracted.

107. Section 152 is an enabling provision for getting the judgment, decree or order corrected by the Court where a clerical or arithmetical mistake has arisen, or there are errors arising from any accidental slip or omission.

108. The word “either on its own motion” not only encompasses those cases which come to the notice of the Court on its own, but also includes cases brought to the notice of the Court. Once plaintiff on 29.01.2024 brought to the notice of the Court the omission which occurred in the order dated 17.01.2024, the Court below after hearing both the parties proceeded to incorporate relief (b).

109. Both the action of the Court appointing Receiver and adding relief subsequently by another order are the issues intertwined and are thus decided on the basis of reasons given above.

110. Thus, I find that there is no illegality or mistake committed by the Court below while appointing Receiver under Order XL Rule 1 CPC on 17.01.2024 and, thereafter, directing for arranging worship in Vyas Ji tehkhana (cellar) on 31.01.2024 in view of the application 9-C having been allowed earlier and forming part of the earlier order.

111. The appointment of Receiver in no way affects the right or title of any of the party during pendency of the suit as Receiver is appointed to protect the property being a representative of the Court and of all the parties interested in litigation. He being the officer or representative of the Court is subject to the orders of the Court, and his possession is the possession of the Court.

112. Failure of appellant to establish prima facie possession over the disputed property, and plaintiff succeeding in building up a strong prima facie case negating the stand of appellant, leads to undeniable situation that stopping worship and performance of rituals by the devotees in the cellar would be against their interest.

113. Prima facie I find that act of the State Government since year 1993 restraining Vyas family from performing religious worship and rituals and also by the devotees was a continues wrong being perpetuated.

114. The second ground of challenge to orders impugned rest on the ground that by way of interlocutory mandatory injunction, the Court below has permitted worship in the cellar under the supervision of Receiver, so appointed, which amounts to final relief.

115. Before adverting to decide this issue, a glance of some of the provisions of the Temple Act, 1983 are necessary for better appreciation of the case. Section 4 (9) defines "Temple" which is as under:-

"Temple" means the Temple of Adi Vishweshwar, popularly know as Sri Kashi Vishwanath Temple, situated in the City of Varanasi which is used as a place of public religious worship and dedicated to or for the benefit of or used as of right by the Hindus, as a place of public religious worship of the Jyotirlinga and includes all subordinate temples, shrines subshrines and the asthan of all other images and deities, mandapas, wells, tanks and other necessary structures and land appurtenant thereto and additions which may be made thereto after the appointed date;"

116. Chapter II of the Temple Act, 1983 provides for the Board of Trustees. Section 5 deals with the vesting of Temple and its endowment. The ownership of the Temple and its endowment shall vest in the deity of Shri Kashi Vishwanath. Section 6 deals with the constitution of Board of Trustees. Section 6(1) provides that from the appointed date, the administration and governance of the Temple and its endowment shall vest in a Board to be called the Board of Trustees for Shri Kashi Vishwanath Temple. Sub-Section 2 of Section 6 enumerates the list of Board of Trustees. Section 6 (2) (i) provides the District Magistrate, Varanasi to be ex-officio Member of Board of Trustees.

117. Section 13 provides Board to be in possession of the Temple and its properties, while Section 14 details the duties of the Board. Sub-Section (a) of Section 14 provides that the Board shall arrange for due and proper performance of worship, service and rituals, daily or periodical, general or special, of Sri Kashi Vishwanath and others deities in the Temple, ceremonies and other religious observances in accordance with the Hindu Shastras and scriptures and usage. Thus, from the conjoint reading, it is clear that after the enforcement of the Temple Act, 1983 on 12.10.1983, a Board of Trustees was constituted for providing proper and better administration of Sri Kashi Vishwanath Temple, Varanasi and its endowment and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

118. The definition of Temple means the Temple of Adi Vishweshwar, popularly known as Shri Kashi Vishwanath Temple, situated in the City of Varanasi which is used as a place of public religious worship and dedicated to or for the benefit of or used as of right by Hindus, as a place of public religious worship of the Jyotirlinga and includes all subordinate temples, shrines, sub-shrines and the asthan of all other images of deities, mandapas, wells, tanks and other necessary structures and land appurtenant thereto.

119. Sub-Section (a) of Section 14 clearly spells out the duties of the Board of Trustees which has to arrange for due and proper performance of worship service and rituals, daily or periodically, general or special of Shri Kashi Vishwanath and other deities in the Temple according to Hindu Shastras and scriptures and usage.

120. Entire case of plaintiff hinges around the map filed in Suit No. 62 of 1936 by the Secretary of State, which was admitted against Din Mohammad on 14.05.1937 describing the cellar as Vyas tehkhana. Primarily, plaintiff succeeded from pleading and his documents regarding possession over the cellar since British era, till it was barricaded and iron-fenced.

121. On the contrary appellant miserably failed to demonstrate his prima facie possession over the cellar, and over reliance placed on Din Mohammad's case where they were deleted from the array of parties inevitably leads to prima facie conclusion regarding Vyas family possession over the cellar in dispute.

122. Appellant having not claimed the cellar at any point of time from Vyas family after 1937 till December 1993 leads to adverse inference against them as to possession over the cellar. Plaintiff has been successful in prima facie establishing their possession through Vyas family since 1551.

123. Apex Court in Dorab Cawasji (surpa) had laid down the parameters for the grant of equitable relief of interlocutory mandatory injunction. The Court proceeded to lay the guidelines for granting interim mandatory injunction that where; (a) the plaintiff has a strong case for trial i.e. it shall be a higher standard than a prima facie case i.e. normally required for a prohibitory injunction; (b) it is necessary to prevent irreparable or serious injury which normally cannot be compensated in terms of money; (c) the balance of convenience is in favour of one seeking such relief.

124. The Court further held that interlocutory mandatory injunctions are granted generally to preserve or restore the status quo of the last non-contested status which preceded the pending controversy until the final hearing when full relief may be granted, or to compel the undoing those acts that have been illegally done, or the restoration of that which was wrongfully taken from the party complaining.

125. Entire case of the plaintiff rest on the premise that the State Government illegally in 1993 stopped the worship and rituals in the cellar. The mandatory injunction sought as relief (e) in the suit is that Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board to act in accordance with Sections 13 and 14.

By grant of permission to worship and carry out rituals in the cellar is only to restore the status quo of the last non-contested status, and does not amount to final relief.

126. Plaintiff has complained of the wrongful action of the State and for restoring the status quo ante. Map exhibited as "Ex-FF" in Suit No. 62 of 1936 and admitted against Din Mohammad on 14.05.1937, is a conclusive proof of the cellar owned and in possession of Vyas family in 1937. No litigation was brought by Din Mohammad or the present appellant challenging the status of plaintiff which leads to inevitable conclusion that Vyas family continued in possession of cellar since British era till 1993.

127. Judgment relied by the appellant actually helps the case of the plaintiff as not only a strong case for trial has been made out, but also the balance of convenience tilts in favour of the plaintiff. The worship and rituals which continued to be performed in the cellar by Vyas family till 1993 was stopped by illegal action of State without there being any order in writing. Submission that grant of interlocutory mandatory injunction amounts to granting of final relief is misplaced. Appellant could not establish prima facie possession over the property when area was iron-fenced and barricaded in 1993.

128. Article 25 of the Constitution of India grants freedom of religion. The Vyas family who continued performance of religious worship and rituals in the cellar could not be denied access by oral order. A citizen right guaranteed under Article 25 cannot be taken away by arbitrary action of State.

129. In the instant case grant of interlocutory mandatory injunction is not a final relief, and rights of appellant will not be prejudiced as they failed to prima facie establish their possession. Reliance placed on Metro Marines (supra) and Mohd. Mehtab Khan (supra) render no help to the appellant as these cases were decided on the basis of guidelines set out by the Apex Court in case of Dorab Cawasji (surpa).

130. Considering the above, I find that allowing worship and rituals in the cellar under the supervision of Receiver appointed by the Court below requires no interference by this Court. The possession of cellar was already taken by the Receiver on 24.01.2024 and the worship and rituals have already started from 01.02.2024.

131. Next comes for consideration the argument regarding clash of interest in view of Section 6 (2) (i) and Section 19 (1) of the Temple Act, 1983 and the District Magistrate having been appointed as the Receiver.

132. Chapter II of the Temple Act, 1983 provides for the Board of Trustees. District Magistrate, Varanasi is in the list of Board of Trustees as an ex-officio Member. Sub-Section (2) (i) of Section 6 enlist the District Magistrate as ex-officio Member along with other Members given in sub-Section (2) of Section 6.

133. Further, Section 13 provides for the Board to be in possession of the Temple and its properties. Section 14 provides for the duties of the Board. Chapter III deals with the Temple establishment. An Executive Committee is constituted under Section 19 (1) which is to work under the direction of Board, or the State Government and is responsible for the superintendence, direction and control of the affairs of the temple. District Magistrate, Varanasi is a Member of the Executive Committee under sub-Section (2) of Section 19 along with other officers of the district, and Commissioner being the Chairman.

134. A Receiver under Order XL Rule 1 CPC is appointed by the orders of the Court for preservation of the subject matter of litigation pending, judicial determination of the rights of the parties thereto. He is appointed for the benefit of all and is a representative of the Court and all the parties interested in litigation. His appointment has an act of Court made in the interest of justice. Being an officer or representative of the Court subject to its order, his possession is the possession of the Court.

135. Argument regarding clash of interest in between the office of the District Magistrate and the Receiver appointed by the Court is totally ill-founded. The Temple Act, 1983 clearly provides the District Magistrate who being the ex-officio Member of the Board of Trustees and also Member of the Executive Committee to act as per the duties of the Board and also to comply the directions of the Board and State Government being the Member of Executive Committee responsible for the superintendence, direction and control of the affairs of the Temple.

136. Once, the District Magistrate, Varanasi is performing his duties enumerated under the Temple Act, 1983, his appointment as Receiver by the Court who has to act on the direction and supervision of the Court would not lead to any clash of interest.

137. As in Satyanarayan Banerji (supra), it has already been held that possession of a Receiver is the possession of the Court, and he acts as an officer of the Court subject to its order. The Receiver so appointed cannot act independently, and his appointment is purposely for the preservation of the subject matter of litigation.

138. In view of above, I find that there is no force in the argument led from the appellant side as to the appointment of the District Magistrate, Varanasi as a Receiver of the property in question pending litigation. Moreover, no malice in law or malice in fact, can be or has been imputed to the District Magistrate, Varanasi in the instant case.

139. Another ground raised in the appeal is that the suit is barred in view of Order VII Rule 6 CPC as it has been filed after a delay of 31 years without there being any ground of exemption from limitation law.

140. The issue of limitation is a mixed question of law and fact and the plaint cannot be rejected simplicitor. In the instant case the appellant till date has not filed his written statement and no issues till date have been framed under order XIV CPC.

141. In Balasaria Construction (P) Ltd. Vs. Hanuman Sewa Trust & Others, 2006 (5) SCC 658 the Apex Court held question of limitation to be a mixed question of law and fact and without proper pleading, framing of an issue of limitation and taking of evidence the plaint cannot be rejected. Relevant paragraph no. 8 is extracted here as under;

"8. After hearing counsel for the parties, going through the plaint, application under Order 7 Rule 11(d) CPC and the judgments of the trial court and the High Court, we are of the opinion that the present suit could not be dismissed as barred by limitation without proper pleadings, framing of an issue of limitation and taking of evidence. Question of limitation is a mixed question of law and fact. Ex facie in the present case on the reading of the plaint it cannot be held that the suit is barred by time. The findings recorded by the High Court touching upon the merits of the dispute are set aside but the conclusion arrived at by the High Court is affirmed. We agree with the view taken by the trial court that a plaint cannot be rejected under Order 7 Rule 11(d) of the Code of Civil Procedure."

142. In Kamlesh Babu & Others Vs. Lajpat Rai Sharma, 2008 (12) SCC 577, the Apex Court considering its earlier judgment in Balasaria Constitution (Supra) and Narne Rama Murthy Vs. Ravula Somasundaram, 2005 (6) SCC 614 held that question of limitation is a mixed question of law and fact and can only be decided after the issues are framed.

143. In view of the above, I find that the question of limitation is a mixed question of law and fact, and once the appellant has not filed his written statement and issues have not been framed, this Court cannot go into the such question leaving it open to the appellant to raise such question when the issues are framed.

144. The question as to non-joinder of necessary party and mis-joinder of defendant no. 1 as a party in the suit has to be raised by the appellant by filing written statement and once the issues are settled under Order XIV the Court below will proceed to decide the same. At this stage, the plea taken by the appellant as to non-joinder of necessary party cannot be taken into consideration, and only after the issue in regard to the same is decided by the Court below, the same can be dealt with. Reliance placed upon the decision of Apex Court is distinguishable in the present set of case.

145. A feeble attempt has been made by the appellant's counsel that application under Order XL Rule 1 CPC has been decided by the Court below, while application under Order VII Rule 11 (d) is pending consideration.

146. This Court finds that application under Order VII Rule 11 (d) CPC was filed on 30.01.2024 when the orders were reserved on the application 9-C for amendment of the order passed on 17.01.2024. While the application under Order XL Rule 1 CPC was moved by the plaintiff on 25.09.2023 and was hotly contested by the appellant. I find that the argument raised has no merits as the application under Order VII Rule 11 (d) was filed subsequent to the reserving of the order by the Court below on 30.01.2024.

147. Argument of Sri Gupta that order dated 31.01.2224 is barred by res judicata has to be tested on the alter of explanation II and V of Section 11 CPC. The principle of res judicata is based on the need of giving finality to judicial decisions i.e. once a res judicata, it shall not be adjudged again. Primarily, it applies as between past litigation and future litigation when a matter, whether on question of fact or on a question of law has been decided between two parties in one suit or proceeding and decision is final, either because no appeal was taken to higher Court or because appeal was dismissed or no appeal lies, neither party will be allowed in a future suit or proceeding to canvass the matter again.

148. In Subramanian Swamy Vs. State Of Tamil Nadu, 2014 (5) SCC 75, Supreme Court explained the doctrine of res judicata in the following words;

"The literal meaning of 'res' is 'everything that may form an object of rights and includes an object, subject-matter or status' and 'res judicata' literally means 'a matter adjudged; a thing judicially acted upon or decided; a thing or matter settled by judgments'. Res judicata pro veritate accipitur is the full maxim which has, over the years, shrunk to mere 'res judicata", which means that res judicata is accepted for truth. The doctrine contains the rule of conclusiveness of the judgment which is based partly on the maxim of Roman jurisprudence interest reipublicae ut sit finis litium (it concerns the State that there be an end to law suits) and partly on the maxim nemo A debet bis vexari pro una et eadem causa (no man should be vexed twice over for the same cause)."

149. The doctrine of res judicata rest on the premise that it is a plea available in civil proceedings in accordance with Section 11 of CPC. It is a doctrine applied to give finality to 'lis' in original or appellate proceedings. The doctrine in substance means that an issue or a point decided and attaining finality should not be allowed to be reopened and re-agitated twice over.

150. In Escorts Farms Ltd. Vs. Commissioner, Kumauon Division, Nainital, 2004 (4) SCC 281, Supreme Court held that the literal meaning of 'res' is 'everything that may form an object of rights and includes an object, subject-matter or status' and res judicata literally means 'a matter adjudged; a thing judicially acted upon or decided; a thing or matter settled by judgment'.

151. Section 11 of CPC engrants this doctrine with a purpose that a final judgment rendered by a Court of competent jurisdiction on the merits is conclusive as to the rights of the parties and their privies, and, as to them, constitutes an absolute bar to a subsequent action involving the same claim, demand or cause of action.

152. The leading case on res judicata is "Duchess of Kingstone's case, 2 Smith's LC, 13th Edn, PP 644-45. A classic passage from the judgment of Sir William de Grey is a statement of the leading principles of res judicata, which extracted as under:

"From the variety of cases relative of judgments being given in evidence in civil suits, these two deductions seem to follow as generally true; first that judgment of a court of concurrent jurisdiction, directly upon the point, is, as a plea, a bar, or as evidence, conclusive, between the same parties, upon the same matter, directly in question in another court; secondly that the judgment of a court of exclusive jurisdiction, directly on the point, is, in like manner, conclusive upon the same matter, between the same parties, coming incidentally in question in another court, for a different purpose. But neither the judgment of a court, of concurrent or exclusive jurisdiction is evidence of any matter which came collaterally in question, though within their jurisdiction nor of any matter incidentally cognizable, nor of any matter to be inferred by argument from the judgment."

153. In Ghulam Abbas Vs. State of U.P. 1982 (1) SCC 71, Supreme Court held that Section 11 is not exhaustive of the general doctrine of res judicata and that the rule of res judicata as enacted in Section 11 has some technical aspects, i.e. the general doctrine is founded on consideration of high public policy to achieve two objectives namely, that there must be a finality to litigation and that the individual should not be harassed twice over on account of the same litigation. Technical aspects of Section 11, as for instance, pecuniary or subject-wise competence or earlier form to adjudicate the subject matter or grant reliefs sought in the subsequent litigation would be immaterial when the general doctrine of res judicata is to be invoked.

154. In order to decide the question whether a subsequent proceeding is barred by res judicata, it is necessary to examine the question with reference to : (i) the form or a competence of the Court; (ii) the party and the representatives; (iii) matters in issue; (iv) matters which ought to have been made ground for defence or attack in the former suit and (v) the final decision. In order that a defence of res judicata may succeed, it is necessary to not only show that the cause of action was the same but also that the plaintiff had an opportunity of getting the relief which he is now seeking in the subsequent proceedings. The test is whether the claim in the subsequent suit or proceedings is in fact founded upon the same cause of action which was the foundation of earlier suit or proceedings.

155. In Jaswant Singh Vs. Custodian of Evacuee Property, 1985 (3) Scc 648, Supreme Court held that the cause of action for a proceeding has no relation whatsoever to the defence which may be set up, nor does it depend upon the character of the relief prayed for by the plaintiff or the applicant. It refers entirely to the grounds set forth in the plaint or the application as the case may be as the cause of action or in other words, to the media upon which plaintiff or the applicant asked the court to arrive at a conclusion in his favour.

156. In Deva Ram Vs. Ishwar Chand, 1995 (6) SCC 733, the Apex Court explained that Section 11 contains the rule of the conclusiveness of the judgment based upon the maxim of Roman jurisprudence 'Interest reipublicae ut sit finis litium' (it concerns the state that there be an end to law suits) and, partly on the maxim 'Nemo debet bis vexari pro una at eadam causa' (no man should be vexed twice over for the same cause). The section does not effect the jurisdiction of the court but operates as a bar to the trial of the suit or issue, if the matter in the suit was directly or substantially in issue in the previous suit between the same parties litigating under the same title in a court, competent to try the subsequent suit.

157. In Mahadeo Mahto Vs. Hira Lal Verma, AIR 1991 Patna 235, the High Court held that principle of res judicata applies at different stages of the suit, but it is also well known that interlocutory orders do not operate as res judicata.

158. In Arjun Singh Vs. Mohindra Kumar, AIR 1964 SC 993, Apex Court held that a decision or direction in an interlocutory proceedings of the type provided for by Order IX Rule 7 is not of the kind which can operate as res judicata so as to bar the hearing on merits on an application under Order IX Rule 13.

159. In S. Labbai Vs. Hanifa, AIR 1976 SC 1569, Apex Court held that it is not every matter decided in a former suit that can be pleaded as res judicata in a subsequent suit. To constitute a matter res judicata the following conditions must concur:

Essentials of Res Judicata

(i) The matter directly and substantially in issue in the subsequent suit or issue must be the same matter which was directly and substantially in issue either actually (explanation III) or constructively (explanation IV) in the former suit.

(ii) The former suit must have been a suit between the same parties or between parties under whom they or any of them claim. Explanation VI is to be read with this condition.

(iii) The parties as aforesaid must have litigated under the same title in the former suit.

iv) The court which decided the former suit must have been a court competent to try the subsequent suit or the suit in which such issue has been subsequently raised. Explanation II is to be read with this condition.

(v) The matter directly and substantially in issue in the subsequent suit must have been heard and finally decided by the court in the first suit. Explanation V is to be read with this condition.

160. In the instant case, by order dated 17.01.2024 the composite prayer made in application filed under Order XL Rule 1 CPC was allowed, but only relief (a) was incorporated appointing Receiver. Relief (b) was added on 31.01.2024 after it was brought to the notice of the Court and order stood modified/amended in terms of Sections 151/152 CPC. The bar of Section 11, as pleaded, is not attracted in the instant case in view of doctrine of res judicata and the conditions having been laid down in catena of judgments by Apex Court and other High Courts. It was only an act of omission/mistake on the part of the Court that order appointing Receiver was amended/corrected by the Court exercising inherent power vested in it.

161. Thus, I find that the challenge made to the order dated 31.01.2024 on the plea of res judicata is totally unfounded as the relief prayed by the plaintiff was granted on 17.01.2024 but part of it was not incorporated in the order which was subsequently modified/amended.

162. Lastly, an attempt has been made to malign the image and impute motive to the order passed by the Court below on 31.01.2024 on the ground that the officer concerned had passed the order on last day of working.

163. This Court finds that application 9-C was allowed on 17.01.2024 and the District Magistrate, Varanasi had taken over the possession on 24.01.2024. It was on mention made by the plaintiff on 29.01.2024 that the matter was taken up and after hearing the appellant on 30.01.2024 that the order was passed on 31.01.2024 amending the order dated 17.01.2024 by inserting relief (b). The appellant had not filed any objection before the Court below and had contested the matter on merits only. It was the mistake/omission on the part of the Court when application 9-C was allowed on 17.01.2024, and relief (b) was not incorporated in the order, which subsequently was added by the order dated 31.01.2024. The officer concerned had neither reviewed his order nor had granted any further relief in the garb of powers conferred under Section 151/152 CPC. It was only accidental slip/omission which was corrected to meet the ends of justice.

164. Considering the overall submissions advanced by the respective counsel of the parties and after analysing the material on record, I find that the appellant has not made out any case for interfering in the order dated 17.01.2024 and 31.01.2024 appointing the District Magistrate, Varanasi as Receiver and arranging to carry out worship and rituals in Vyas tehkhana (cellar) under his supervision by the priest, so appointed. Moreover, worship has already started in the cellar since 01.02.2024.

CONCLUSION

165. For the reasons given above, I find that both the appeal filed under Order XLIII Rule 1 (s) CPC fails which questions the order dated 17.01.2024 and 31.01.2024 passed by the District Judge, Varanasi on application 9-C filed under Order XL Rule 1 CPC appointing District Magistrate, Varanasi as Receiver of Vyas tehkhana (cellar) and arranging for worship and performance of rituals by the priest, nominated by the plaintiff and Shri Kashi Vishwanath Trust Board.

166. Thus, both the appeal are hereby dismissed.

167. However, no order as to cost.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.)

1. Heard Shri Mudit Agarwal, learned counsel for the revisionist and Shri Sanjay Sarin, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the respondent.

2. Learned counsels appearing for the parties contend that the issue involved in SALES/TRADE TAX REVISION No. - 40 of 2021 and SALES/TRADE TAX REVISION No. - 39 of 2021 are the same. As such, the Court proceeds to hear and decide both the revisions together. For convenience, facts of SALES/TRADE TAX REVISION No. - 40 of 2021 are being taken.

3. This Court vide the order dated 17.08.2021 had admitted the revision. However the questions of law were not framed.

4. Both the learned counsels state that the questions of law which would be relevant for deciding the controversy involved in the instant revision would be as follows:

"(I) Whether the men-rea on the part of the assessee is an essential pre-requisite condition for imposition of penalty under Section 54(1)(2) of the U.P. VAT Act, 2008?

(II) Whether penalty under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act can be imposed where the assessment is made on the basis of Best Judgement Assessment?

(IV) Whether imposition of penalty of 7 times the total tax imposed towards alleged concealed turnover was justified when the express provision of Section 54(1)(2) of the Act provides for imposition of a maximum penalty of 3 times of concealed turnover?"

5. Shri Mudit Agarwal, learned counsel for the revisionist states that although a counter affidavit has been filed in the revision but he does not intend to file any reply thereto and wants to argue the matter finally.

6. As such the Court proceeds to hear and decide the matter finally.

7. The instant revision has been filed challenging the judgement and order dated 06.04.2021 passed by the learned Commercial Tax Tribunal, Bench-2, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as learned Tribunal) in Second Appeal No. 50 of 2017.

8. The case set forth by learned counsel for the revisionist is that a survey took place on the premises of the revisionist on 23.12.2008. The stock is alleged to have been noted by the surveyors on the basis of presumption. The stock was found to be recorded more in the books of accounts of the revisionist vis a vis the physical stock. An assessment order dated 30.10.2010, a copy of which is annexure 1 to the revision, was passed against the revisionist under the provisions of Section 28(2) of the U.P. V.A.T. Act, 2008 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 2008). By the said assessment order the disputed demand was indicated as Rs 12,44,653/-. Being aggrieved, the revisionist filed a first appeal. The learned appellate authority, vide the order dated 27.06.2012, a copy of which is annexure 2 to the revision, reduced the disputed demand by Rs 6,21,875/- and thus a demand of Rs 6,22,778/- remained. Still being aggrieved, the revisionist filed an appeal before the learned Tribunal and at the same time the Department also filed an appeal. Both the appeals were clubbed together and were decided vide common judgement and order dated 22.06.2016, a copy of which is annexure 3 to the revision, whereby the appeal of the revisionist was partly allowed while the appeal of the department was dismissed. While allowing the appeal, learned Tribunal gave a relief to the revisionist of Rs 3,25,625/- thus assessing the tax liable to be paid by the revisionist at Rs 2,46,250/- as stated by Shri Mudit Agarwal, learned counsel for the revisionist.

9. Shri Agarwal states that the judgement and order dated 22.06.2016 passed by the learned Tribunal attained finality as it was not challenged by the revisionist rather the revisionist acquiesced to the said order and has paid the aforesaid amount of Rs 2,46,250/-.

10. It is contended that during pendency of the aforesaid proceedings, a notice dated 30.01.2013 under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act, 2008, a copy of which is annexure 4 to the revision, had been issued to the revisionist. The revisionist filed his reply. Vide order dated 08.05.2013, a copy of which is annexure 5 to the revision, an order of penalty was passed whereby the revisionist has been required to pay an amount of Rs 18,65,625/- against the assessed tax of Rs 6,21,875/-. Being aggrieved the revisionist filed an appeal which was rejected vide the order dated 30.09.2016, a copy of which is annexure 7 to the petition. Still being aggrieved the revisionist filed a second appeal before the learned Tribunal which has also been dismissed vide the judgement and order dated 06.04.2021 as annexed to the revision. Being aggrieved the instant revision has been filed.

11. The argument of learned counsel for the revisionist is that a perusal of serial no. 2 of the table, as provided in Section 54(1) of the Act, 2008, would indicate that in order to attract the penalty, a finding has to be specifically recorded that the dealer has concealed the particulars of his turnover or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such turnover or has submitted a false tax return or has evaded payment of tax which he is liable to pay under the Act and only after such a finding has been recorded by the competent authority can the penalty be imposed.

12. The contention is that a perusal of the order impugned would indicate that no finding of the revisionist having deliberately concealed the particulars of his turnover or having deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars or having deliberately evaded payment of tax has been indicated and consequently the competent authority patently erred in imposing the penalty which aspect has not been considered by the appellate authority as well as by the learned Tribunal while dismissing the second appeal filed by the revisionist vide the judgement and order dated 06.04.2021.

13. Learned counsel for the revisionist also states that the provisions of section 54(1) of the Act, 2008 are akin to the provisions of Section 15A of the UP Sales Tax Act, 1948 renamed as U.P. Trade Tax Act, 1948 with retrospective effect (now repealed).

14. In this regard reliance has been placed on the judgements of this Court in the case of M/s Moti Lal Jawahar Lal vs The Commissioner of Sales Tax, U.P., Lucknow, 2003 NTN (Vol.23) 590, The Commissioner, Sales Tax, U.P., Lucknow vs S/s Shanti Swarup Raj Kumar Katra Naj, Moradabad, STI 1998 ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT 394, The Commissioner of Sales Tax, Uttar Pradesh vs Sanjiv Fabrics, 2010 (9) SCC 630.

15. Placing reliance on the division bench judgement of this Court in the case of S.S. Flabours vs State of U.P. and another, 2016 (61) NTN DX 100 the argument of learned counsel for the revisionist is that this Court, after considering the provisions of Section 15A of the Trade Tax Act, 1948 (hereinafter referred to as the Act, 1948) has held the said provisions to be akin to Section 54 of the Act, 2008 and has thereafter held that in order to impose penalty, specific finding of concealment or furnishing of wrong particulars of return has to be made and in absence thereto, the order of imposition of penalty cannot be said to be legally sustainable in the eyes of law meaning thereby that mens-rea is a necessary ingredient for imposition of penalty.

16. Reliance has also been placed on the definition of "Tax Evasion" as per Blacks' Law Dictionary, 8th Edition.

17. No other argument has been raised.

18. On the other hand, Shri Sanjay Sarin, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the respondent argues that none of the aforesaid judgements have considered the full purport of column no. 2 of the table of Section 54 (1) of the Act 2008 in as much as one of the wrong on which the penalty can be imposed, as provided in the table, is the evasion on the part of the dealer for payment of tax which he is liable to pay under the Act.

19. The argument of Shri Sarin is that when the judgement and order dated 22.06.2016 passed by learned Tribunal whereby the revisionist has been assessed for payment of tax of Rs 2,45,250/- has attained finality and the revisionist has also deposited the tax as such the said payment of tax by revisionist would fall within the ambit of being an evasion of payment of tax which the revisionist has been held liable to pay under the provisions of the Act, 2008 and consequently the penalty can validly be imposed on the revisionist which in fact has been been done by means of the order impugned dated 06.04.2021.

20. Shri Sarin however fairly submits that as the amount of tax has been reduced from one stage to another and finally stood at Rs 2,46,250/- consequently three times the aforesaid amount can validly be imposed on the revisionist but in the instant case a still higher amount has been imposed.

21. So far as the judgements of this Court in the case of M/s Moti Lal Jawahar Lal (supra), S/s Shanti Swarup Raj Kumar Katra Naj (supra), Sanjiv Fabrics (supra) and S.S. Flabours (supra) are concerned more particularly the division bench judgement of this Court in the case of S.S. Flabours (supra) the argument of Shri Sarin is that the division bench, although has held that the provisions of Section 15A of the Act, 1948 are pari-materia to provisions of Section 54(1) of the Act 2008, yet the division bench has not considered that there was no provision under the Act 1948 which provided for imposition of penalty where the dealer has evaded payment of tax which he is liable to pay under the said Act and thus it is argued that the said judgement would not be applicable in the facts of the instant case.

22. Heard the counsels for the parties and perused the records.

23. From perusal of the record it emerges that a survey took place at the premises of the revisionist on 23.12.2008. An assessment order dated 30.10.2010 was passed against the revisionist under the provisions of section 28(2) of the Act, 2008 whereby disputed demand was indicated as Rs 12,44,653/-. The revisionist filed the first appeal and the appellate authority vide order dated 27.06.2012 reduced the disputed demand by Rs 6,21,875/- and thus a demand of Rs 6,22,778/- remained. The revisionist as well as the Revenue filed second appeals against the said order dated 27.06.2012. Both the appeals were clubbed together and decided vide judgement and order dated 22.06.2016 by the learned Tribunal whereby the appeal of the revisionist was partly allowed while the appeal of the Revenue was dismissed. While allowing the appeal of the revisionist learned Tribunal has given a relief of Rs 3,25,625/- thus assessing the tax liability to be paid by the revisionist at Rs 2,46,250/-. The said order has attained finality. The amount of tax has also been deposited by the revisionist.

24. During pendency of the aforesaid proceedings, a notice under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act, 2008 was issued to the revisionist. The revisionist filed his reply. Vide the order dated 08.05.2013 an order of penalty has been passed whereby the revisionists has been required to pay an amount of Rs 18,65,625/- against the assessed tax of Rs 6,21,875/-. Being aggrieved the revisionist filed an appeal which has been rejected vide the order dated 30.09.2016. Still being aggrieved, a second appeal was filed before the learned Tribunal which has been dismissed vide judgement and order dated 06.04.2021. Being aggrieved the instant revision has been filed.

25. The argument of learned counsel for the revisionist is that a perusal of serial no. 2 of table as provided in Section 54 (1) of the Act, 2008 would indicate that in order to levy a penalty, a finding has to be specifically recorded that the dealer, in this case the revisionist, has concealed particulars of turnover or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such turnover or has submitted a false tax return or has avoided payment of tax which he is liable to pay under the Act and only when a specific finding to the said effect has been recorded by the competent authority can the penalty be imposed.

26. The argument of learned counsel for the revisionist is that there has to be a specific finding of mens-rea by the authorities concerned of a deliberate attempt to evade tax and only after such a finding has been recorded can a penalty be imposed and in the absence of such finding the penalty as imposed on the revisionist vide the order impugned dated 08.05.2013 cannot be said to be legal and valid in the eyes of law.

27. In order to consider the arguments of learned counsel for the revisionist as to whether mens-rea would be an essential ingredient in the levy of penalty under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act, 2008 the Court may refer to the provisions of Section 54 of the Act, 2008.

28. For the sake of convenience, the relevant extract of Section 54 of the Act 2008 is reproduced as under:

54. Penalties in certain cases

(1) The assessing authority, if he is satisfied that any dealer or other person, as the case may, has committed the wrong described in column (2) of the table below, it may, after such inquiry, if any, as it may deem necessary and after giving dealer or person reasonable opportunity of being heard, direct that such dealer or person shall, in addition to the tax, if any, payable by him, pay by way of penalty, a sum as provided in column (3) against the same serial no. of the said table:

Sl. No.	Wrong	Amount of Penalty
1.	.....	.....
2.	The dealer has concealed particular of his turnover or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such turnover; or submits a false tax return under this Act or evades payment of tax which he is liable to pay under this Act	three times of amount of tax concealed or avoided
3.	.....	.....

Explanation – For the purposes of this section -

(i) the assessing authority includes an officer not below the rank of an officer appointed and posted by the Commissioner at a check-post or an officer empowered to exercise powers under sections 45, 46, 47, 48, 50, 51 and 52 of this Act;

(ii) if the value of goods described or mentioned in tax invoice, sale invoice or any such other document is under valued to the extent of more than fifty percent of the value of goods prevalent at the relevant time in the local market area where the transaction has taken place, the estimated value prevalent at the relevant time in such local market area shall be deemed to be the value of such goods,

(iii) if the value of goods is not described or mentioned in tax invoice, sale invoice or any such other document the estimated value prevalent at the relevant time in the local market area where the transaction has taken place, shall be deemed to be the value of such goods.".

29. From perusal of Section 54 of the Act, 2008, so far as it is relevant to the facts of the instant case, it emerges that in case the assessing authority is satisfied that any dealer or other person has committed the wrong described in Column (2) of the table then it may direct such dealer or person to pay by way of penalty a sum as provided in column 3 against the same serial number.

30. Serial no. 2, with which the present controversy pertains to, describes the wrong committed by the dealer whereby where the dealer has concealed particulars of his turnover or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such turnover or submits a false tax return under the Act 2008 or evades the payment of tax which he is liable to pay under the Act, 2008 then three times of amount of tax concealed or avoided can be imposed as penalty.

31. So far as the present controversy is concerned, the wrong as has been attributed to the revisionist, is evasion of payment of tax which he is liable to pay under the Act, 2008. The evasion of payment of tax has been indicated to be on the basis of assessment order dated 30.10.2010 as passed under the provisions of Section 28(2) of the Act, 2008 further reduced by order dated 27.06.2012 and still reduced vide the judgement and order dated 22.06.2016 whereby learned Tribunal has assessed the tax liable to be paid at 2,46,250/-.

32. Here it would also be pertinent to refer to the provisions of Section 28 of the Act 2008 per which the initial assessment order dated 30.10.2010 had been passed.

33. For the sake of convenience, the provision of Section 28 of the Act, 2008 is reproduced below:

"28. Assessment of tax after examination of Records.-

(1) In following types of cases or dealers, the assessing authority, after detailed examination of books, accounts and documents kept by the dealer in relation to his business and other relevant records, if any, and after making such inquiry as it may deem fit, subject to provision of sub-section (9), shall pass an assessment order for an assessment year in the manner provided in this section:

(a) in cases of such dealers as are specified or selected for tax audit by the Commissioner or any other officer, not below the rank of a Joint Commissioner, authorized by the Commissioner in this behalf; in such manner and within such time as may be prescribed;

(b) in case of a dealer falling in any of the categories below,

(i) dealer who has not submitted annual return of turnover and tax within the time prescribed or extended; or

(ii) dealer by whom tax return for one or more tax periods of the assessment year have not been submitted; or

(iii) dealer in whose case assessing authority has passed provisional assessment order under section 25 in respect of one or more tax periods to the best of its judgment; or

(iv) dealer in whose case, on the basis of material available on records, if the assessing authority is satisfied that the turnover of sales or purchases or both, as the case may be, and amount of tax shown payable as disclosed by the dealer in annual return of turnover and tax are not worthy of credence or tax shown payable in the return has not been deposited by the dealer, or the amount of input tax credit claimed is wrong or the amount of tax payable shown is incorrect; or

(v) dealer who has prevented or obstructed an officer empowered to make audit, survey, inspection, search or seizure under the provisions of this Act; or

(vi) [Omitted]

(2) Where after examination of books, accounts, documents and other records referred to in sub-section (1), -

(i) the assessing authority is satisfied about correctness of turnover of sale or purchase or both, as the case may be, disclosed by the dealer, it may assess the amount of tax payable by the dealer on such turnover and determine the amount of input tax credit admissible to the dealer or amount of reverse input tax credit payable by the dealer; and

(ii) where assessing authority is of the opinion that turnover of sale or purchase or both, as the case may be, disclosed by the dealer is not worthy of credence, it may determine to the best of its judgment the turnover of sale or purchase or both, as the case may be, and assess the tax payable on such turnover and determine admissible amount of input tax credit and reverse input tax credit payable by the dealer.

(3) Before making an assessment under sub-section (2), dealer shall -

(i) be required to furnish annual return of turnover and tax referred to in sub-section (7) of section 24, if he has not already submitted such return;

(ii) be given reasonable opportunity of being heard; and

(iii) be served with a notice to show cause, where determination of turnover, input tax credit or reverse input tax credit, or assessment of tax, all or any one of them, as the case may be, are to be made to the best of the judgment of the assessing authority.

(4) The show cause notice referred to in sub-section (3) shall contain all such reasons on which the assessing authority has formed its opinion about incorrectness of the turnover of sale or purchase or both, as the case may be, amount of tax, amount of input tax credit or amount of reverse input tax credit:

(5) Order of assessment shall be in writing and copy of assessment order along with prescribed notice of demand of the balance amount of tax, if any, to be deposited by the dealer, shall be served on the dealer.

(6) Dealer shall deposit amount of tax assessed in excess of amount of tax deposited by him for the assessment year, within a period of thirty days after the date of service of the assessment order and notice of demand.

(7) Where the amount of tax deposited by the dealer is found in excess of tax assessed, the same shall be refunded to the dealer according to the provisions of this Act.

(8) Assessing authority shall not be precluded from making assessment order under this section on the ground of passing of any provisional assessment order in respect of any tax period under section 25 and such provisional assessment order, if any, shall stand merged in the assessment order passed under this section.

[(9) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any other provision of this Act, where an unregistered dealer brings any taxable goods from outside the State more than once during an assessment year, separate assessment relating to goods brought on each occasion may be made for the same assessment year.]

(10) The provisions of this Act shall apply to each assessment order passed under sub-section (9) as they apply to an order passed under sub-section (2).

(11) Dealers under sub-section (9) shall not be required to furnish annual return of turnover and tax and in cases of such dealers assessment under sub-section

(9) may be made even before the expiry of the assessment year.

(12) Provisions of sub-sections (5), (6) and (7) shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to every assessment order passed under any provisions of this Act."

34. A perusal of Section 28(2) of the Act 2008 would indicate that where after examination of books, accounts and other records referred to in Section 28(1) of the Act, 2008 the assessing authority is satisfied about correctness of sale or purchase or both, it may the assess the amount of tax payable by the dealer. Where the assessing authority is of the opinion that turnover of sale or purchase or both, disclosed by the dealer is not worthy of credence, it may determine to the best of its judgement the turnover of sale or purchase or both and assess the tax payable on such turnover and determine the taxable amount of input tax credit and reverse input tax credit payable by the dealer.

35. A further perusal of Section 28(2) of the Act 2008 indicates that the power of assessment of the amount of tax payable by the dealer on such turnover and for determining the amount of input tax credit admissible to the dealer has been given to the assessing authority and further where the assessing authority is of the opinion that turnover of sale or purchase or both disclosed by the dealer is not worthy of credence it may determine to the best of its judgement the turnover of sale or purchase or both and assess the tax payable on such turnover. Exercising the power, as vested in the assessing authority, the order dated 30.10.2010 had been passed which upon further scrutiny after challenge at various levels, has resulted in judgement and order dated 22.06.2016 whereby the second appeal of the revisionist has been partly allowed and on the basis of the tax liable to be paid by the revisionist, the penalty as provided under Section 54 (1)(2) of the Act, 2008 has been imposed.

36. The assessment order dated 30.10.2010 would indicate that the same has been passed considering the provisions of Section 28(2) of the Act, 2008 on the basis of best of its judgement meaning thereby that it is an assessment which has been made by the assessing authority.

37. The jurisdiction of the assessing authority while taking recourse to the "best judgement assessment" is well settled. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of State of Kerala vs C. Velukutty 1966 (60) ITR 239 (SC), The Commissioner of Income Tax, Calcutta v. Padamchand Ramgopal, 1970 (3) SCC 866, M/s Joharmal Murlidhar and co. v. Agricultural Income Tax Officer, Assam and others, 1970 (3) SCC 331 and Shri S. M. Hasan, S.T.O. Jhansi and another v. M/s New Gramophone House, Jhansi, (1976) 4 SCC 854, has categorically held that while assessing on the basis of "best judgement" the assessing authority has to make the assessment honestly and on the basis of intelligent well grounded estimate rather than pure surmises i.e. the assessment so made while taking recourse to the "best judgement assessment" should be on reasonable guess based upon the material available before the assessing authority.

38. Being armed with the aforesaid interpretation of "best judgement assessment" it can safely be presumed that the assessment order dated 30.10.2010 passed under Section 28(2) of the Act, 2008 was passed by the assessing authority on a reasonable guess or well grounded estimate.

39. At the same time, the penalty which has been imposed on the revisionist in terms of Section 54(1)(2) of the Act, 2008 indicates that the same has been passed on the basis of the assessment order under Section 28(2) of the Act, 2008 on the ground of evasion of payment of tax which the revisionist was liable to pay under the Act.

40. "Tax evasion" has been defined in the Black Law Dictionary, 9th Edition as follows:

"tax evasion. The willful attempt to defeat or circumvent the tax law in order to illegally reduce one's tax liability."

41. From perusal of the aforesaid definition of 'tax evasion' it emerges that tax evasion has been defined as a willful attempt to defeat or circumvent the tax law in order to illegally reduce ones tax liability. The word "willful" would mean a deliberate attempt to circumvent the tax law.

42. As already indicated above, the order of penalty passed under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act, 2008 is based on the order of the assessing authority as passed under Section 28(2) of the Act, 2008. The assessment order under Section 28(2) of the Act, 2008 is on the basis of well grounded estimate or reasonable guess as held by Hon'ble Supreme Court meaning thereby that the said order does not indicate the willful attempt to defeat or circumvent the tax law to reduce the tax liability. Once the sine qua non to imposition of penalty is evasion of payment of tax and for evasion there has to be a willful act consequently the Court will have to examine as to whether there has been willful act on the part of the revisionist in evasion of tax.

43. For this, the Court will also have to consider as to whether mens-rea would be an essential ingredient or element in order to attract the offences under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act, 2008.

44. In this regard, Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sanjiv Fabrics (supra) has held as under:

"24. Whether an offence can be said to have been committed without the necessary mens rea is a vexed question. However, the broad principle applied by the courts to answer the said question is that there is a presumption that mens rea is an essential ingredient in every offence but the presumption is liable to be displaced either by the words of the statute creating the offence or by the subject matter with which it deals and both must be considered. (See: Sherras Vs. De Rutzen and State of Maharashtra vs Mayon Han George).

25. Although in relation to the taxing statutes, this Court has, on various occasions, examined the requirement of mens rea but it has not been possible to evolve an abstract principle of law which could be applied to determine the question. As already stated, answer to the question depends on the object of the statute and the language employed in the provision of the statute creating the offence. There is no gain saying that a penal provision has to be strictly construed on its own language.

26. In Nathulal vs State of Madhya Pradesh 11, while dealing with the question whether to constitute an offence under Section 7 of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955 which provides for levy of penalty for contravention of any order made under Section 3 of the State Act mens rea is an essential ingredient, a three-Judge Bench of this Court observed as follows:

"Mens rea is an essential ingredient of a criminal offence. Doubtless a statute may exclude the element of mens rea, but it is a sound rule of construction adopted in England and also accepted in India to construe a statutory provision creating an offence in conformity with the common law rather than against it unless the statute expressly or by necessary implication excluded mens rea. The mere fact that the object of the statute is to promote welfare activities or to eradicate a grave social evil is by itself not decisive of the question whether the element of guilty mind is excluded from the ingredients of an offence. Mens rea by necessary implication may be excluded from a statute only where it is absolutely clear that the implementation of the object of the statute would otherwise be defeated. The nature of the mens rea that would be implied in a statute creating an offence depends on the object of the Act and the provisions thereof."

27. In Union of India & Ors Vs Dharamendra Textile Processors & ors 12 while examining the scope of Section 11-AC of the of the Central Excise Act, 1944, a three judge Bench of this Court, observed that:

A penalty imposed for a tax delinquency is a civil obligation, remedial and coercive in its nature, and is far different from the penalty for a crime or a fine or forfeiture provided as punishment for the violation of criminal or penal laws."

30. To put it succinctly, in examining whether mens rea is an essential element of an offence created under a taxing statute, regard must be had to the following factors:

(i) the object and scheme of the statute;

(ii) the language of the section and;

(iii) the nature of penalty.

31. It is true that the object of Section 10(b) of the Act is to prevent any misuse of the registration certificate but the legislature has, in the said Section, used the expression "falsely represents" in contradistinction to "wrongly represents." Therefore, what we are required to construe is whether the words "falsely represents" would cover a mere incorrect representation or would embrace only such representations which are knowingly, wilfully and intentionally false.

32. According to the Black's Law Dictionary (6th Edition), the word "false" has two distinct and well-recognized meanings: (1) intentionally or knowingly or negligently untrue; (2) untrue by mistake or accident, or honestly after the exercise of reasonable care. A thing is called "false" when it is done, or made, with knowledge, actual or constructive, that it is untrue or illegal, or is said to be done falsely when the meaning is that the party is in fault for its error.

33. Likewise, P. Ramanatha Aiyar in Advance Law Lexicon (3rd Edition, 2005) explains the word "false" as:

"In the more important uses in jurisprudence the word implies something more than a mere untruth; it is an untruth coupled with a lying intent.....or an intent to deceive or to perpetrate some treachery or fraud. The true meaning of the term must, as in other instances, often be determined by the context'."

36. In view of the above, we are of the considered opinion that the use of the expression "falsely represents" is indicative of the fact that the offence under Section 10(b) of the Act comes into existence only where a dealer acts deliberately in defiance of law or is guilty of contumacious or dishonest conduct. Therefore, in proceedings for levy of penalty under Section 10A of the Act, burden would be on the revenue to prove the existence of circumstances constituting the said offence."

(emphasis by the Court)

45. From perusal of the judgement of Sanjiv Fabrics (supra) it emerges that Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in examining whether the mens-rea is an essential element of an offence created under a taxing statute, regard must be had to the following factors namely:

(i) the object and scheme of the statute;

(ii) the language of the section; and

(iii) the nature of penalty.

46. The object of Section 54 of the Act, 2008 is to impose penalty if any dealer or person has committed wrong described in column (2) of the table. So far as serial no. 2 of the table is concerned the same reads that where a dealer has concealed the particulars of his turnover or has deliberately furnished inaccurate particulars of such turnover or has submitted a false tax return under the Act or has evaded payment of tax which he is liable to pay under the Act then three times the amount of tax concealed or avoided is to be imposed as a penalty.

47. From the language of the Section it is thus clear that, so far as the present controversy is concerned, the dealer would be liable to pay penalty for evasion of tax. 'Evasion of tax' is a willful attempt to defeat or circumvent tax law as defined in Blacks Law Dictionary. The penalty is based on the assessment order under Section 28(2) of the Act, 2008. In turn the assessment order is based on "best judgement assessment" which has been held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court to be on well grounded estimate or reasonable guess based.

48. The revisionist has already paid the tax as assessed after modification by the learned Tribunal vide the order dated 22.06.2016. At no stage is there any finding of any willful evasion of tax by the revisionist or a finding of there being any deliberate attempt on the part of the revisionist in avoiding the payment of tax. It is for the authorities to specifically prove the evasion of payment of tax on the part of the revisionist where the evasion has been defined as a willful attempt i.e. the authorities would have to prove a willful attempt on the part of the revisionist to evade tax. In absence thereto the order imposing penalty on the revisionist based on the assessment order passed under Section 28(2) of 2008 cannot be said to fall within the ambit of any of the eventualities as provided under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act 2008 more particularly it cannot be considered to be an evasion of payment of tax by the dealer / revisionist so as to attract the penalty as has been imposed on the revisionist.

49. Keeping in view the aforesaid discussion, the questions of law stand decided as below:

Question of law	Decision
"(I) Whether the men-rea on the part of the assessee is an essential pre-requisite condition for imposition of penalty under Section 54(1)(2) of the U.P. VAT Act, 2008?	Yes
(II) Whether penalty under Section 54(1)(2) of the Act can be imposed where the assessment is made on the basis of Best Judgement Assessment?	No
(IV) Whether imposition of penalty of 7 times the total tax imposed towards alleged concealed turnover was justified when the express provision of Section 54(1)(2) of the Act provides for imposition of a maximum penalty of 3 times of concealed turnover?	Left open to be decided in appropriate proceedings

50. The revision is allowed. The judgement and order dated 06.04.2021 passed by learned Commercial Tax Tribunal, Lucknow in Second Appeal No. 50 of 2017 is set aside.

51. Consequences to follow.

The Central Goods & Services Tax Act, 2017 -– Section 107 – The Central Goods & Services Tax Rules, 2017 – Rule 108 – Appeal filed electronically in FORM GST APL-01 within limitation – rejection of appeal as time-barred on ground of non-submission of self-certified copy of order – applicability of provisos to Rule 108 – requirement of submitting self-certified copy arises only when order appealed against is not uploaded on common portal – where appeal is filed electronically and order is available on portal, provisos to Rule 108 not attracted – date of provisional acknowledgement to be treated as date of filing of appeal – appellate authority erred in dismissing appeals on technical ground – impugned order based on misinterpretation of Rule 108 – order rejecting appeals unsustainable in law – matter remanded for de novo consideration on merits – appellate authority directed to decide appeals within stipulated time.

Writ petition allowed. (E-9)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. Heard Sri Mohit Gupta, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner and Sri Amit Mahajan, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner is aggrieved by the order dated October 18, 2023 passed by the respondent No.1/Commissioner, CGST (Appeals), NOIDA rejecting the two appeals filed by the petitioner on the ground that the same were time barred, as the self-certified copy of the decision or order was not made available within time as per proviso to Rule 108 of the Central Goods and Services Tax Rules, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "the Rules").

3. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner has referred to Rule 108 of the Rules to indicate that when the appeal is filed electronically and uploaded on the common portal in FORM GST APL-01, there is no requirement to file self-certified copy of the decision. Both the proviso to Rule 108 of the Rules apply only in the case when the appeal is not uploaded on common portal. Rule 108 of the Rules is delineated below for clarification:

"108. Appeal to the Appellate Authority.- (1) An appeal to the Appellate Authority under sub-section (1) of section 107 shall be filed in FORM GST APL-01*, along with the relevant documents, either electronically or otherwise as may be notified by the Commissioner, and a provisional acknowledgement shall be issued to the appellant immediately.*

(2) The grounds of appeal and the form of verification as contained in FORM GST APL- 01 shall be signed in the manner specified in rule 26.

(3) Where the decision or order appealed against is uploaded on the common portal, a final acknowledgement, indicating appeal number shall be issued in FORM GST APL-02 by the Appellate Authority or an officer authorised by him in this behalf and the date of issue of the provisional acknowledgement shall be considered as the date of filing of appeal:

Provided that where the decision or order appealed against is not uploaded on the common portal, the appellant shall submit a self-certified copy of the said decision or order within a period of seven days from the date of filing of FORM GST APL-01 and a final acknowledgement, indicating appeal number, shall be issued in FORM GST APL-02 by the Appellate Authority or an officer authorised by him in this behalf, and the date of issue of the provisional acknowledgement shall be considered as the date of filing of appeal:

Provided further that where the said self-certified copy of the decision or order is not submitted within a period of seven days from the date of filing of FORM GST APL-01, the date of submission of such copy shall be considered as the date of filing of appeal."

4. Upon a perusal of the impugned order, it clearly appears that the appeal was electronically filed within the time permitted, that is, three months as per Section 107 of the Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017. Furthermore, the first and second proviso to Rule 108 of the Rules would not apply, as is clear from the literal interpretation of the first proviso itself.

5. In light of the above, the impugned order dated October 18, 2023 is quashed and set aside with a direction upon the appellate authority to de novo hear the appeals filed by the petitioner and pass a reasoned order on merits within a period of three months from date.

6. With the aforesaid directions, the writ petition is allowed.

1. By judgment and order dated February 12, 2024, this Court had allowed this writ petition setting aside the impugned order dated October 18, 2023 and directed the appellate authority to de novo hear the appeal filed by the petitioner and pass a reasoned order on merits within a period of three months.

2. Upon reconsideration of the order passed, this Court, suo motu, is of the view that paragraph 4 of the judgment and order dated February 12, 2024 is required to be substituted with the following paragraphs:-

"4. Various High Courts have held that when an assessee files a memo of appeal in the GST Portal, non submission of certified copy would be treated as mere technical defect and the appeal should not be dismissed on the sole ground of non submission of certified copy within time. The Orissa High Court in the case of Atlas PVC Pipes Ltd. vs. State of Odisha reported in 2022 (65) G.S.T.L. 45 (Ori.) held as follows:-

"6.13 On the altar of default in compliance of such a procedural requirement, merit of the matter in appeal should not have been sacrificed. Since the petitioner has enclosed the copy of impugned order as made available to it in the GST portal while filing Memo of Appeal, non-submission of certified copy, as has rightly been conceded by the Additional Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of CT&GST Organisation, is to be treated as mere technical defect."

4(i). Furthermore, the High Court of Madras in the case of PKV Agencies vs. Appellate Dy. Commissioner (GST) (Appeals), Vellore reported in 2023 (73) G.S.T.L. 71 (Mad.) held as follows:-

"5. In the aforesaid decision of the Orissa High Court also, the petitioner assessee had filed an appal under Section 107 of the Odisha Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017, electronically on time, but did not furnish a certified copy of the impugned order, within seven days of filing of the appeal as prescribed under the proviso to Rule 108(3) of the OGST Rules. After giving due consideration to all the relevant provisions of the OGST Act/Rules, the Orissa High Court has held that since Rule 108(3) has not prescribed for condonation of delay in the event where the petitioner fails to submit the certified copy of the order impugned in the appeal nor is there any provision restricting application of Section 5 of the Limitation Act, 1963, in the context of supply of certified copy within the period stipulated in sub-rule (3) of Rule 108, the requirement to furnish certified copy of the impugned order within seven days of filing of appeal is only a procedural requirement, which can be condoned by exercising powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India as it is only a technical defect."

4(ii) Keeping in mind the judgments passed by these High Courts and upon examination of Section 107 of the Central Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 read with Rule 108 of the Central Goods and Service Tax Rules, 2017, I am of the view that mere non filing of the certified copy of the decision within a period of seven days, when the appeal has been filed electronically within the time frame prescribed, that is, three months, the authority should not dismiss the appeal on the ground that the certified copy of the decision was not filed within time."

3. Accordingly, paragraphs 4, 4(i) and 4(ii) of this order be read in place of paragraph 4 of the judgment and order dated February 12, 2024 and this order be treated as part and partial of the said judgment and order.

4. The Registrar Compliance of this Court is directed to communicate this order to the parties.

Revision Petition allowed. (E-9)

Cases Cited:

1. State of Karnataka v. M/s Ecom Gill Coffee Trading Private Limited, 2023 SCC Online SC 248.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. This is a revision petition filed under Section 58 of the Uttar Pradesh Value Added Tax Act, 2008 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') wherein the following questions of law have been admitted by this Court:-

"1. Whether on the facts and circumstances of the case the Commercial Tax Tribunal as well as the 1st Appellate Authority was legally justified in dismissing the appeal filed by the department only on the basis of invoices and bank transactions inasmuch as the transactions have not been proved as a bonafide and genuine transactions otherwise establishing the actual transportation of goods?"

2. Whether on the facts and circumstances of the case the Commercial Tax Tribunal was legally justified in allowing the claim of I.T.C. especially when the finding of fact has been recorded against the dealer and the benefit has been allowed only on the basis of tax invoices and bank transactions?"

2. The primary issue in the present writ petition is with regard to availmentof Input Tax Credit (hereinafter referred to as "the I.T.C.") by the respondent/assessee.

3. Mr. Bipin Kumar Pandey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the revisionist, has submitted that the burden of proof is upon the assessee to show the correctness of the claim of the I.T.C. He relies upon Section 16 of the Act to indicate that such burden is upon the assessee specially with matters, which are within the knowledge of the assessee. Section 16 of the Act is delineated below for better reference:-

"16. Burden of proof

In any assessment proceedings where any fact is specially within the knowledge of the assessee, the burden of proving that fact shall lie upon him, and in particular, the burden of proving the existence of the circumstances bringing the case within any of the exemptions, exceptions or reliefs under any provisions of this Act including claim of any amount as input tax credit, shall lie upon him and assessing authority shall presume the absence of such circumstances."

5. He further relies upon paragraphs 23, 24 and 25 of the Apex Court judgment penned by Justice M.R. Shah in the case of the State of Karnataka vs. M/s Ecom Gill Coffee Trading Private Limited reported in 2023 SCC Online SC 248. The relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are set forth below:-

"23. Thus, the provisions of Section 70, quoted hereinabove, in its plain terms clearly stipulate that the burden of proving that the ITC claim is correct lies upon the purchasing dealer claiming such ITC. Burden of proof that the ITC claim is correct is squarely upon the assessee who has to discharge the said burden. Merely because the dealer claiming such ITC claims that he is a bona fide purchaser is not enough and sufficient. The burden of proving the correctness of ITC remains upon the dealer claiming such ITC. Such a burden of proof cannot get shifted on the revenue. Mere production of the invoices or the payment made by cheques is not enough and cannot be said to be discharging the burden of proof cast under section 70 of the KVAT Act, 2003. The dealer claiming ITC has to prove beyond doubt the actual transaction which can be proved by furnishing the name and address of the selling dealer, details of the vehicle which has delivered the goods, payment of freight charges, acknowledgement of taking delivery of goods, tax invoices and payment particulars etc. The aforesaid information would be in addition to tax invoices, particulars of payment etc. In fact, if a dealer claims Input Tax Credit on purchases, such dealer/purchaser shall have to prove and establish the actual physical movement of goods, genuineness of transactions by furnishing the details referred above and mere production of tax invoices would not be sufficient to claim ITC. In fact, the genuineness of the transaction has to be proved as the burden to prove the genuineness of transaction as per section 70 of the KVAT Act, 2003 would be upon the purchasing dealer. At the cost of repetition, it is observed and held that mere production of the invoices and/or payment by cheque is not sufficient and cannot be said to be proving the burden as per section 70 of the Act, 2003.

24. Even considering the intent of section 70 of the Act, 2003, it can be seen that the ITC can be claimed only on the genuine transactions of the sale and purchase and even as per section 70(2) if a dealer knowingly issues or produces a false tax invoice, credit or debit note, declaration, certificate or other document with a view to support or make any claim that a transaction of sale or purchase effected by him or any other dealer, is not liable to be taxed, or liable to take at a lower rate, or that a deduction of input tax is available, such a dealer is liable to pay the penalty. Therefore, as observed hereinabove, for claiming ITC, genuineness of the transaction and actual physical movement of the goods are the sine qua non and the aforesaid can be proved only by furnishing the name and address of the selling dealer, details of the vehicle which has delivered the goods, payment of freight charges, acknowledgement of taking delivery of goods, tax invoices and payment particulars etc. The purchasing dealers have to prove the actual physical movement of the goods, alleged to have been purchased from the respective dealers. If the purchasing dealer/s fails/fail to establish and prove the said important aspect of physical movement of the goods alleged to have been purchased by it/them from the concerned dealers and on which the ITC have been claimed, the Assessing Officer is absolutely justified in rejecting such ITC claim.

25. In the present case, the respective purchasing dealer/s has/have produced either the invoices or payment by cheques to claim ITC. The Assessing Officer has doubted the genuineness of the transactions by giving cogent reasons on the basis of the evidence and material on record. In some of the cases, the registration of the selling dealers have been cancelled or even the sale by the concerned dealers has been disputed and/or denied by the concerned dealer. In none of the cases, the concerned purchasing dealers have produced any further supporting material, such as, furnishing the name and address of the selling dealer, details of the vehicle which has delivered the goods, payment of freight charges, acknowledgement of taking delivery of goods, tax invoices and payment particulars etc. and therefore it can be said that the concerned purchasing dealers failed to discharge the burden cast upon them under Section 70 of the KVAT Act, 2003. At the cost of repetition, it is observed and held that unless and until the purchasing dealer discharges the burden cast under Section 70 of the KVAT Act, 2003 and proves the genuineness of the transaction/purchase and sale by producing the aforesaid materials, such purchasing dealer shall not be entitled to Input Tax Credit."

6. The relevant paragraphs of the impugned order of the Tribunal have also been placed before this Court by the learned counsel for the revisionist to indicate the contradictory stand taken by the Tribunal. It is to be noted that in paragraph 16 of the Tribunal's order the Tribunal has indicated that certain persons, who had sold the goods to the assessee were not entitled to issue tax invoice as they were following the compounding scheme. Furthermore, a few of the dealers' registration had been cancelled and in certain cases the dealers have not shown in the return any sale made to the present assessee. However, from perusal of paragraph 18 of the judgment of the Tribunal, it appears that the Tribunal taking note of the fact that these firms have not sold goods to the assessee went on to hold that since payment has been made via RTGS and invoices have been submitted by the assessee, these transactions were genuine and the assessee was rightful in claiming the I.T.C.

7. Counsel on behalf the assessee has vehemently argued that it was the Department that went up in appeal before the Tribunal and could not produce any documents that were detrimental to the assessee. In fact, the Tribunal records the same at paragraph 19 of the judgment. He further submits that the fact of payment having been made by him is undisputed and the fact that invoices were submitted is also undisputed. He submits that there was nothing further for the assessee to show for claiming the I.T.C. He also submits that the assessee was carrying out the work on contract from the Government agency and all these purchases were used in the said work contract and verified by the independent evaluator appointed by the Government.

8. I have heard counsel appearing on behalf of the parties and perused the materials on record.

9. It is clear from the factual matrix that the respondent/assessee made payment and also submitted invoices. However, upon reading the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of M/s Ecom Gill Coffee Trading Private Limited (supra), it is clear that mere production of the invoices or the payment made by cheques/RTGS is not enough to discharge the burden of proof upon the assessee. Upon perusal of Section 17 of the Karnataka Value Added Tax Act, 2003, I find that the nature of burden of proof is pari materia to the Uttar Pradesh Value Added Tax, 2008, and accordingly, the judgment of the Apex Court would squarely apply in the present case. In the aforesaid judgment, the Apex Court has further gone on to state that the dealer claiming the I.T.C. has to prove beyond doubt the actual transaction which can be proved by furnishing the name and address of the selling dealer, details of the vehicle which has delivered the goods, payment of freight charges, acknowledgement of taking delivery of goods, tax invoices and payment of particulars. The aforesaid information would be in addition to tax invoices, particulars of payment etc.

10. In the present case, counsel on behalf of the revisionist has submitted that the documents in relation to the transportation of goods were also provided to the authorities below. However, the same do not find reflection in the order passed by the first appellate authority and the Tribunal. It is also true that the Tribunal has recorded finding that the Department has not been able to show any adverse document against the revisionist. The ratio of the decision of the Tribunal is contrary to the judgment of the Apex Court in M/s Ecom Gill Coffee Trading Private Limited (supra) as the Tribunal has granted the I.T.C. merely on the basis of invoices and payment details.

11. In light of the above, I am of the view that the order passed by the Tribunal is required to be quashed and set-aside with a direction to the Tribunal to hear the matter afresh allowing the revisionist to produce documents in relation to the transactions including transportation documents and any other relevant document which the petitioner wishes to place. The Department may also be allowed to adduce further evidence, if it so desires.

12. Accordingly, the order of Tribunal dated May 18, 2023 is quashed and set-aside. The Tribunal to decide the matter afresh as directed above. The entire process should be concluded within a period of six months from date. The questions of law are answered in favour of the Department and against the assessee.

13. The revision petition is, accordingly, allowed.

14. I make it clear that the observations made above with regard to findings of the Tribunal are tentative in nature and the Tribunal shall not be influenced by the same while hearing the matter afresh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner is aggrieved by the penalty order dated January 16, 2023 passed by the respondent No.3/Assistant Commissioner, State Tax Department, Sector 1, Mobile Squad, Deoria under Section 129(3) of the Uttar Pradesh Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (hereinfater referred to as "the Act") and the appellate order dated January 30, 2023 passed by the respondent No.2/Additional Commissioner, Grade-2 (Appeal)-I, State Tax, Judicial Division, Gorakhpur.

2. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner submitted that the particular vehicle was accompanied by two e-Invoices and two E-Way Bills. He further submitted that the goods matched the description in the e-Invioices and the E-Way Bills. The only descrpency that was found at the time of detention was that one of the E-Way Bills had expired. Apart from this discrepancy, there is no other finding with regard to intention of the petitioner to evade tax. He relied upon the documents to indicate that the vehicle had broken down. The same is evidenced by the letter of the mechanic, who had repaired the particular vehicle. Furthermore, the movement of the goods have been traced by way of the 'fast tag' chart. He further submits that none of these documents were considered by the authorities. He further relies upon the judgments in M/s Pepsico India Holdings Limited Lucknow v. Commissioner of Trade Tax reported in 2003 U.P.T.C. 856 and Jain Shudh Vanaspati Limited Ghaziabad and Others v. State of U.P. and Others reported in 1983 U.P.T.C. 198 to buttress his arguments that the penalty cannot be imposed merely for the reason that the said goods were not accompanied by requisite documents.

3. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel submitted that the E-Way Bill is the necessary part of the documents and the expired E-Way Bill does not fullfil the requirments of the Rules. He further submitted that the authorities have considered the arguments raised by the petitoner and the orders indicate that the E-Way Bill has expired ten days before the date of detention. He further submitted that the petitioner could not explain the reason for not issuing a fresh E-Way Bill even though it was obvious that the petitoner was aware of the said expiry. He thus submitted that the penalty was in order.

4. This Court in M/s Hindustan Herbal Cosmetics v. State of U.P. and Others (Writ Tax No.1400 of 2019 decided on January 2, 2024) and M/s Falguni Steels v. State of U.P. and Others (Writ Tax No.146 of 2023 decided on January 25, 2024) held that mens rea to evade tax is essential for imposition of penalty. The factual aspect in the present case did not indicate any intention whasoever to evade tax. Furthermore, the documents that have been relied upon by the petitioner have not been considered by the authorities. The authorities have dealt with the issue with regard to the expiry of the E-Way Bill and held that no explanaiton was offerred by the petitioner with regard to the fresh generation of the E-Way Bill, as the same had expired ten days before the detention. However, it is to be noted that the goods in the vehicle were for two e-Invoices and two E-Way Bills and only one E-Way Bill had expired. There is no dispute with regard to the consignor and consignee nor any dispute with regard to the description of the goods in the vehicle. In relation to the e-Invoices and the E-Way Bills, the authorities have not been able indicate any intention whatsoever on behalf of the petitioner to evade tax. Indubitably, there is a technical violation that has been committed by the petitioner. However, the authorities have not been able to indicate in any manner that the E-Way Bill had been used repeatedly nor have they made out any case with regard to an intention to evade tax by the petitioner. Accordingly, this Court is of the view that such a technical violation by itself without any intention to evade tax cannot lead to imposition of penalty under Section 129(3) of the Act. This view is fortified by a catena of judgments as indicated above.

5. In light of the same, this Court is unable to agree with the findings of the authorities, and accordingly, the impugned orders dated January 16, 2023 and January 30, 2023 are quashed and set aside.

6. This Court directs the respondents to refund the amount of tax and penalty deposited by the petitioner within a period of four weeks from date.

7. The instant writ petition is allowed in aforesaid terms. There shall be no order as to the costs.

1. Heard learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner, Sri Sudarshan Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent No.1 and Sri Amit Mahajan, learned counsel appearing on behalf of respondent Nos. 2 and 3.

2. Physical verification report filed by the learned counsel for the respondents in Court today be kept on record.

3. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner is aggrieved by the order dated February 27, 2023 passed by the Joint Commissioner, C.G.S.T. (Appeal), Meerut cancelling its GST registration.

4. The ground for cancelling the GST registration of the petitioner was that upon physical verification, it was found by the authorities that no business activity was being carried out at the said premises. Authorities also called the proprietor on several occasions but his phone was switched off and he did not picked up the calls. A show cause notice was issued by the Department, which was replied by the petitioner and subsequently the order cancelling the registration was passed. Against the order cancelling registration, the petitioner went up in appeal and the said appeal was also dismissed after passing a detailed order.

5. Counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents submits that there has been suppression of material fact, as the petitioner has not revealed before this Court that a new registration was obtained by the petitioner subsequent to cancellation of the earlier registration.

6. The Court having heard the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner had directed for verification of the premises without having knowledge of the fact that a new registration has been obtained by the petitioner. In the verification, which was done pursuant to the order of this Court dated February 22, 2024, it was found that the factory was operational and the proprietor informed the authorities that he had obtained a new registration prior to filing of the writ petition.

7. I am of the view that having obtained a new registration was a material fact that should have been brought into the knowledge of this Court. In fact, the Court was hoodwinked by the petitioner in passing an order for verification of the premises by the authorities. The fact that neither was there any averment in the writ petition nor the counsel for the petitioner informed the Court that a new registration has been obtained resulted in sheer wastage of time of the authorities in carrying out the second verification.

8. I had the occasion to deal with the aspect of suppression of material facts in Bhriguram De v. State of West Bengal and others reported in (2018) SCC OnLine Cal 8141 wherein I had examined the aspect of fraud, fraudulent concealment and doctrine of clean hands in great detail. One may delineate the relevant paragraphs of the said judgment below:

"13.'Fraud', according toBlack's law Dictionary, 10thEdition, is a knowing misrepresentation or knowing concealment of a material fact made to induce another to act to his or her detriment; a reckless misrepresentation made without justified belief in its truth to induce another person to act; a tort arising from a knowing or reckless misrepresentation or concealment of material fact made to induce another to act to his or her detriment.

14."Fraudulent concealment" as defined inBlack's law Dictionary, 10thEdition, is the affirmative suppression or hiding, with the intent to deceive or defraud, of a material fact or circumstance that one is legally (or, sometimes, morally) bound to reveal.

15.According to theLaw Lexicon, Third Edition (2012), the Latin Maxim "Suppressio veri, suggestio falsi" defines that the suppression of the truth is equivalent to the suggestion of falsehood. The suppression or failure to disclose what one party is bound to disclose to another, may amount to fraud. Where a person is found to be guilty ofsuppressio veri suggestio falsifor having concealed material information from scrutiny of the Court, he is not entitled for any equitable relief under order 39 of CPC (5 of 1908). [Arbind Kumar Palv.Hazi Md. Faizullah Khan, AIR 2007 (NOC) 1035 (Pat) : (2006) 1 BLJR 430].

16.The maxim that one who comes to Court must come with "clean hands" is based on conscience and good faith. The maxim is confined to misconduct in regard to, or at all events connected with, the matter in litigation. "Clean hands" means a clean record with respect to the transaction with the defendant, and not with respect to any third person.

17.As authored by Ruma Pal, J. inS.J.S. Business Enterprises (P) Ltd.v.State of Biharreported in(2004) 7 SCC 166[Coram: Ruma Pal and P. Venkatarama Reddi, J.J.], suppression of a material fact by a litigant disqualifies such litigant from obtaining any relief. The relevant portion is provided below:

"13. As a general rule, suppression of a material fact by a litigant disqualifies such litigant from obtaining any relief. This rule has been evolved out of the need of the courts to deter a litigant from abusing the process of court by deceiving it. But the suppressed fact must be a material one in the sense that had it not been suppressed it would have had an effect on the merits of the case. It must be a matter which was material from the consideration of the court, whatever view the court may have taken……."

18.InS.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu (Dead) by LRsv.Jagannath (Dead) by LRsreported in(1994) 1 SCC 1[Coram: Kuldip Singh and P.B. Sawant, J.J.], the Supreme Court came down heavily on petitioners filing cases based on falsehood and suppression and observed as follows:

"5. …….The Courts of law are meant for imparting justice between the parties. One, who comes to the Court, must come with clean hands. We are constrained to say that more often than not, process of the Court is being abused. Property-grabbers, tax-evaders, bank-loan dodgers and other unscrupulous persons from all walks of life find the court-process a convenient lever to retain the illegal gains indefinitely. We have no hesitation to say that a person, whose case is based on falsehood, has no right to approach the Court. He can be summarily thrown out at any stage of litigation.

6. ……. A fraud is an act of deliberate deception with the design of securing something by taking advantage of another. It is a deception in order to gain by another's loss. It is a cheating intended to get an advantage of another .... A litigant, who approaches the Court, is bound to produce all the documents executed by him, which are relevant to the litigation. If he withholds a vital document in order to gain advantage on the other side then he would be guilty of playing fraud on the Court as well as on the opposite party."

19.In a well-known Calcutta High Court case inChittaranjan Dasv.Durgapore Project Ltd.reported in 99 C.W.N. 897[Coram: Satya Brata Sinha and Basudeva Panigrahi, J.J.], the Court observed at paragraph 64 that "Suppression of a material document which affects the condition of service of the petitioner, would amount to fraud in such matters. Even the principles of natural justice are not required to be complied with in such a situation. It is now well known that a fraud vitiates all solemn acts."

20.InAsiatic Engineering Co.v.Achhru Ramreported in AIR 1951 Allahabad 746 (Full Bench)[Coram: Malik, C.J., Sapru and V. Bhargava, J.J.], the Court observed that no relief can be granted in a writ petition under Article 226 which is based on misstatement or suppression of material facts. The Court observed in paragraph 51, at page 767 as follows:

"51. In our opinion, the salutary principle laid down in the cases quoted above should appropriately be applied by Courts in our country when parties seek the aid of the extraordinary powers granted to the Court under Art. 226 of the Constitution. A person obtaining anex parteorder or arule nisiby means of a petition for exercise of the extraordinary powers under Art. 226 of the Constitution must come with clean hands, must not suppress any relevant facts from the Court, must refrain from making misleading statements and from giving incorrect information to the Court. Courts, for their own protection, should insist that persons invoking these extraordinary powers should not attempt, in any manner, to misuse this valuable right by obtainingex parteorders by suppression, misrepresentation or misstatement of facts."

21.InIndian Bankv.Satyam Fibres (India) Pvt. Ltd.reported in(1996) 5 SCC 550: J.T. 1996 (7) SC 135[Coram: Kuldip Singh & S. Saghir Ahmad, J.J.], the Apex Court further observed as follows:

"23. Since fraud affects the solemnity, regularity and orderliness of the proceedings of the Court, it also amounts to an abuse of the process of the Court, that the Courts have inherent power to set aside an order obtained by practising fraud upon the Court, and that where the Court is misled by a party or the Court itself commits a mistake which prejudices a party, the Court has the inherent power to recall its order."

22.Similar principles have been enunciated in English cases. InThe Kingv.Williamsreported in(1914) 1 K.B. 608[Coram: Channell, Rowlatt, Atkin, J.J.], the Court observed at page 614 as follows:

"……. In my view the writ is discretionary. A party may by his conduct preclude himself from claiming the writ ex debito justitiae, no matter whether the proceedings which he seeks to quash are void or voidable. If they are void it is true that no conduct of his will validate them; but such considerations do not affect the principles on which the Court acts in granting or refusing the writ of certiorari. This special remedy will not be granted ex debito justitiae to a person who fails to state in his evidence on moving for the rule nisi that at the time of the proceedings impugned he was unaware of the facts on which he relies to impugn them."

23.As seen from the various judgments discussed above, the Indian and English Courts have consistently taken the view that one who approaches the Court must come with clean hands. It is the bounden duty of the Court to keep the stream of justice absolutely clean. Anyone who approaches must give full and fair disclosure of all the materials. The Courts must not allow anyone to abuse the court process. In case the petitioner conceals anything that is known to be material such an action would lead to an inference of fraud, and even if not fraud, definitely would lead to a presumption that the petitioner has not approached the court with clean hands."

9. Article 226 of the Constitution of India is a discretionary jurisdiction which is to be exercised for petitioners who are acting in a good faith. The principle of uberrima fides requires a party that comes to a Court to act in utmost good faith. The above principle is the genesis of the expectation of the Court to pass orders at the behest of the petitioner who has approached the Court with clean hands. The moment this trust is broken and it is discovered that there is suppression of material facts, the Court is bound to dismiss the said petition without granting any relief whatsoever to the petitioner.

10. In light of the same, this writ petition is dismissed on the ground of suppression of material facts. The petitioner shall be at liberty to approach any other forum for appropriate relief.

U.P. Excise Act, 1910 – Section 7 – foreign liquor license – adulterated liquor recovered from employee in conscious possession – statement admitting liquor taken out from licensed shop and diluted for sale – licensee liable for actions and omissions of salesman – vicarious liability – sale of liquor not a fundamental right – violation of provisions of the Act, Rules and terms of license – principles of natural justice duly adhered to – no error of fact .
Writ petition dismissed. (E-9)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ajay Bhanot, J.)

Foreign liquor license of the petitioner was cancelled by order dated 22.06.2021. The said order of cancellation was carried in appeal and thereafter in revision with no better results. The petitioner is consequently aggrieved by the orders of appellate and revisioning authority dated 12.10.2021 and 13.04.2022 respectively.

Shri Neeraj Sharma, learned counsel assisted by Shri Abhishek Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner submits as follows:

1. The liquor was not found from the possession of the licensee and nor from the premises of the liquor shop.

2. The adulterated liquor was recovered from an employee of the petitioner. The petitioner cannot be vicariously responsible for the action of his employees.

3. No FIR was got lodged which shows that the applicant had not committed any offence. The shop was closed on the date of search and seizure.

4. The cancellation of license is in excess of the powers conferred under Rule 18 of the U.P. Excise Settlement of Licenses for Retail Sale of Foreign Liquor (Excluding Beer and Wine) Rules, 2001 (herein after referred to as 'the Rules'). As per Rules 18-ka, licenses can be cancelled only in case liquor bottles are found in the premises of the liquor shop.

Shri Ravi Shanker Pandey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel contends that the licensee had breached the conditions of the license. There is no fundamental right to trade any liquor. The licensee had breached the terms of the license. The liquor was found in the conscious possession of the sales person who was admittedly employed by the petitioner. The said liquor was adulterated and could not be accounted for. The principles of natural justice were duly observed in the proceedings. Licensees are expected to adhere strictly to the terms of the license and observe relevant precautions otherwise it may result in public harm.

The petitioner was granted license for retail sale of foreign liquor on 15.04.2020. The license records the name of liquor salesman as Prakash Ranjan.

A show cause notice was issued to the petitioner on 15.04.2021 asserting that the empty liquor bottles, bottle caps of liquor bottles, bottles with their seals broken open which did not contain the prescribed quantity of liquor and liquor bottles were recovered in a rest house adjacent to the licensed premises. After the recovery, the said Prakash Ranjan in his statement admitted that the aforesaid liquor consignment was obtained from the licensed shop and was being diluted with water for sale. The petitioner had violated provisions of the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 read with the Rules and was asked to show cause as to why his license be not cancelled.

The petitioner responded to the show cause notice by denying his liability. The reply to the show cause notice asserted that the entire liquor stock was recovered from the salesman after the shop was closed. The petitioner cannot be held liable for the actions of his salesman.

The reply of the petitioner do not find favour with the licensing authority, the appellate authority as well as the revising authority. The following findings of fact have been returned concurrently by the aforesaid authorities:

1. The liquor bottles, bottle caps(in the manner descried earlier in the show cause notice) were recovered from a room adjacent to the liquor shop.

2. The salesman who was in possession of the aforesaid liquor bottles and other items gave a statement admitting that he had taken liquor bottles out from the licensed shop and was diluting them for purposes of sale.

3. The authorities below have referenced various provisions of the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 read with the Rules to hold that the applicant is liable for the actions of his sales persons in view of provisions of Section 7 of the U.P. Excise Act, 1910.

On this footing, the authorities concurrently found that the petitioner had contravened the provisions of the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 read with the Rules and that the authorities also found that the act of the petitioner not only caused loss to the revenue but could potentially cause public harm.

The Court finds that the principles of natural justice were duly adhered to. No ground regarding violation of principles of natural justice was taken before the authorities below or has been canvassed before this Court. The order has been passed after due application of mind to the materials and evidences in the record.

The question which now arises for consideration is whether the petitioner who is the liquor licensee can be made liable for the actions and omissions of his salesman.

Section 7 of the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 which govern the fate of this argument is extracted herein below:

"Section 7. Possession of intoxicant by wife, clerk or servant. -- When any [intoxicant] is in the possession of a person's wife, clerk or servant on account of that person, it shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be in the possession of that person."

The statutory provision clearly makes the licensee liable for the actions of his servant (in this case the salesman). This case is an instance of vicarious liability where the licensee becomes liable for the actions of his employees.

The reasons for creating vicarious liability in the context of sale of liquor is not far to seek. Sale of liquor is not a fundamental right and is strictly regulated by the State. The licensee is strictly bound by the terms of the license. Sale of liquor in violation of regulations created by the State will result in public harm besides causing loss of revenue. Hence, it is the responsibility of the licensee to observe strict procedures and unbroken vigilance over the administration of his shop, the maintenance of the liquor stock therein, and ensure that no pilferage takes place. The licensee is required to observe due diligence in administration of his shop at all times. The licensee is responsible for the actions and omissions of his employees in regard to sale of liquour from the licensed shop made in contravention of the regulations of terms of license.

In the facts of this case, no such due diligence exercised on part of the licensee was disclosed either before the authorities or in this Court. The licensee was lax in the running and administration of the shop which led to pilferage of liquor. In fact, where the pilferage and adulteration of liquor happens due to maladministration of the licensee or his collusion with his employees is not relevant if pilferage and adulteration of liquour is established. The employee from whose possession the liquor was recovered, clearly was in conscious possession of the same. He has admitted that he had taken out the liquor from shop and was diluting it for sale in the market. The violation of the license terms is established.

In this wake, the authorities below committed no error of fact in concluding that the petitioner was liable for the acts of his employee whose name is duly recorded in the license and that there was violation of provisions of U.P. Excise Act, 1910 read with the Rules and the terms of the license.

Another aspect which has been brought to the Court's notice is that the laboratory report records that it was not possible to check the potency of the liquor samples as they were heavily diluted. This affirms the case of the department rather than supporting the submission of the petitioner.

The third submission that Section 7 of the U.P. Excise Act, 1910 was not referenced in the show cause notice which vitiates the proceedings will now be examined. The show cause notice in clear and specific terms describes the manner of the contravention of the provisions of U.P. Excise Act, 1910. Wrong recital or non-reference of a provision of law will not vitiate the show cause notice as long the contents disclose the contravention in no uncertain terms.

The writ petition is dismissed.

1. Heard Shri Praveen Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Rishi Kumar, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The petitioner is aggrieved by the order dated 04.01.2023 whereby the Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax, Mobile Squad-VII, Ghaziabad in purported exercise of powers under Section 129 (3) of the GST Act has imposed a penalty of Rs.1,83,442/-. The order of the penalty was carried in appeal by the petitioner.

3. The appellate authority/Additional Commissioner, State Tax, Mobile Squad, Unit-7, Ghaziabad by the impugned order dated 09.05.2023 upheld the findings of the authority of first instance and confirmed the penalty so imposed upon the petitioner.

4. Being aggrieved by the order dated 09.05.2023 passed by the respondent No.3 / Additional Commissioner, State Tax, Mobile Squad, Unit-7, Ghaziabad and the order dated 04.01.2023, the petitioner has assailed the same in the writ petition.

5. The petitioner is a proprietor running under the name and style of 'M/s. J.S. Enterprises' in trading of taxable goods falling under Chapter-74 of the Goods and Service Tariff Act.

6. The petitioner is duly registered as a trader under the GST Act and has been issued a GST Identification Number i.e.

07AECPT6934N1ZU by the competent authority.

7. The petitioner received an order from one M/s. Vaishnavi Electronics, Ghaziabad for supply of Copper Clad Laminte, etc. Upon receipt of the said order the petitioner prepared an e-Invoice No.766/2022-23 dated 04.01.2023 at 10.10 a.m. The e-Way Bill bearing No.721309051066 dated 04.01.2023 was auto generated at 10.13 a.m. after the petitioner had got the aforesaid invoice registered on the common GST portal.

8. According to the petitioner, both the e-Invoice as well as e-Way Bill were provided to the vehicle driver in the digital mode. The vehicle proceeded to its destination after the goods were loaded and the driver was provided with the necessary documentation. When the vehicle was intercepted by the revenue authorities, the driver produced e-Invoice as well as e-Way Bill. However, the revenue authorities conducted the physical inspection of the goods under transportation. At the time of the physical verification of the goods the representative of the petitioner firm appeared before the revenue authorities and presented hard copies of the e-Invoice No.766/2022-23 dated 04.01.2023 and e-Way Bill No.721309051066 dated 04.01.2023. The representative of the petitioner firm sought to demonstrate that the goods being transported were fully supported by valid documentation contemplated under the GST Act. However, the revenue authorities passed a detention order detaining the vehicle and the goods.

9. Thereafter, the show cause notice was issued to the petitioner on 04.01.2023.

10. The show cause notice records that the vehicle driver had produced a tax invoice No.766/2022-23 dated 04.01.2023, but the said tax invoice did not bear the signatures of the authorized signatory. Further, the driver of the vehicle was failed to produce other valid documents. In this manner according to the show cause notice, the goods were transported without the valid and complete documentation in violation of relevant provisions of the GST Act. The show cause notice also records that at the time of inspection the representative of the petitioner was present and had duly produced e-Invoice No.766 dated 04.01.2023 and generated the same at 10.10 AM. and also e-Way Bill dated 04.01.2023 generated same at 10.13 AM. According to the show cause notice further enquiries revealed that the said e-Invoice and e-Way Bill so produced disclosed the goods which were being transported. However, in view of the fact that the said documents were not produced at the time of interception of the vehicle violation of provisions of Section 138 of the GST Rules was made out and appropriate action was liable to be taken.

11. The petitioner was keen to honour the business transaction and hence paid the penalty to get the goods released for onward transportation to the buyer. The order dated 04.01.2023 purportedly passed under Section 129(3) of the GST Act also finds that the petitioner had produced the said e-Invoice as well as e-Way Bill which clearly disclosed the goods which were being transported and were intercepted. However, since the driver of the vehicle had failed to produce the relevant documents at the time of interception, the violation of provisions of the GST Act read with Rules was established and penalty was liable to be imposed. The impugned order thereafter imposes the aforesaid penalty in purported exercise of Section 129(1)(a) of the GST Act and penalty was imposed.

12. The petitioner carried the said order in appeal before the appellate authority by instituting an appeal under Section 107 of the GST Act.

"Section 107. Appeals to Appellate Authority

……..

(6) No appeal shall be filed under sub-section (1), unless the appellant has paid—

(a) in full, such part of the amount of tax, interest, fine, fee and penalty arising from the impugned order, as is admitted by him; and

(b) a sum equal to ten per cent. of the remaining amount of tax in dispute arising from the said order, in relation to which the appeal has been filed:

[PROVIDED that no appeal shall be filed against an order under sub-section (3) of section 129, unless a sum equal to twenty-five per cent of the penalty has been paid by the appellant.]

(7) Where the appellant has paid the amount under sub-section (6), the recovery proceedings for the balance amount shall be deemed to be stayed."

13. The consistent case of the petitioner before the appellate authority as well as this Court is that the driver had produced the e-Invoice as well as e-Way Bill which were stored in his mobile number. However, the authorities failed to verify the same and initiated the impugned proceedings. Further, it is an admitted case that the hard copies of the tax Invoice as well as e-Way Bill were duly produced when the representative of the petitioner appeared before the Mobile Squad of the Revenue Department during the proceedings.

14. The impugned order while upholding the order of penalty reiterates the reasoning in the order passed by the Mobile Squad of the revenue authorities of the first instance.

15. The appellate authority/respondent No.3 in the impugned order dated 09.05.2023 has recorded these findings. The petitioner had failed to generate and download the e-Way Bill before transporting the goods. The petitioner failed to produce any document apart from tax invoice at the time of the interception of the vehicle. The order further notices the submission of the appellant/petitioner that the e-Invoice as well as e-Way Bill were uploaded in the mobile of the driver of the vehicle. The e-challan was digitally signed by the petitioner. Hence, the appellate authority records his submission to the effect that since the digital documents were produced hard copies with signatures were not required to be presented to the officers.

16. On the footing of the aforesaid discussion, the appellate authority in the impugned order has found that the appellant/petitioner did not generate e-Way Bill with a view to evade tax and thus violated the provisions of the GST Act read with GST Rules and was liable to pay the penalty. The appeal was thus rejected.

17. Shri Praveen Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that:

I. The petitioner had generated the relevant documents, namely, e-Invoice and e-Way Bill as per the provisions of the GST Act.

II. The said documents were produced before the Revenue Authorities at the time of inspection of the vehicle.

III. The petitioner was not intent to evade tax.

18. Shri Rishi Kumar, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel submits that:

I. The driver of the vehicle was not in a possession of the forms, and hence the production of the aforesaid forms at the time of inspection is of no avail.

II. The intent to evade tax is established.

19. For adjudicating the submissions made at the Bar, it would be apposite to reproduce and reflect some relevant provisions of the GST Act. The detention, seizure and release of goods is contemplated in Section 68 read with Section 129 of the GST Act which are reproduced heredunder:

"Section 68 – Inspection of goods in movement

(1) The Government may require the person in charge of a conveyance carrying any consignment of goods of value exceeding such amount as may be specified to carry with him such documents and such devices as may be prescribed.

(2) The details of documents required to be carried under sub-section (1) shall be validated in such manner as may be prescribed.

(3) Where any conveyance referred to in sub-section (1) is intercepted by the proper officer at any place, he may require the person in charge of the said conveyance to produce the documents prescribed under the said sub-section and devices for verification, and the said person shall be liable to produce the documents and devices and also allow the inspection of goods.

Section 129 - Detention, seizure and release of goods and conveyances in transit

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, where any person transports any goods or stores any goods while they are in transit in contravention of the provisions of this Act or the rules made thereunder, all such goods and conveyance used as a means of transport for carrying the said goods and documents relating to such goods and conveyance shall be liable to detention or seizure and after detention or seizure, shall be released,

(a) on payment of the applicable tax and penalty equal to two hundred per cent. of the tax payable on such goods and, in case of exempted goods, on payment of an amount equal to two per cent. of the value of goods or twenty-five thousand rupees, whichever is less, where the owner of the goods comes forward for payment of such tax and penalty;

(b) on payment of the applicable tax and penalty equal to the fifty per cent. of the value of the goods reduced by the tax amount paid thereon and, in case of exempted goods, on payment of an amount equal to five per cent. of the value of goods or twenty-five thousand rupees, whichever is less, where the owner of the goods does not come forward for payment of such tax and penalty;

(c) upon furnishing a security equivalent to the amount payable under clause (a) or clause (b) in such form and manner as may be prescribed:

Provided that no such goods or conveyance shall be detained or seized without serving an order of detention or seizure on the person transporting the goods.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (6) of section 67 shall, mutatis mutandis, apply for detention and seizure of goods and conveyances.

(3) The proper officer detaining or seizing goods or conveyances shall issue a notice specifying the tax and penalty payable and thereafter, pass an order for payment of tax and penalty under clause (a) or clause (b) or clause (c).

(4) [No penalty], shall be determined under sub-section (3) without giving the person concerned an opportunity of being heard.

(5) On payment of amount referred in sub-section (1), all proceedings in respect of the notice specified in sub-section (3) shall be deemed to be concluded.

(6) Where the person transporting any goods or the owner of the goods fails to pay the amount of tax and penalty as provided in sub-section (1) within fifteen days from the date of receipt of the copy of the order passed under sub-section (3), the good or conveyance so detained or seized shall be liable to be sold or disposed of otherwise, in such manner and within such time as may be prescribed, to recover the penalty payable under sub-section (3):

Provided that the conveyance shall be released on payment by the transporter of penalty under sub-section (3) of one lakh rupees, whichever is less;

Provided further that where the detained or seized goods are perishable or hazardous in nature or are likely to depreciate in value with passage of time, the said period of fifteen days may be reduced by the proper officer."

20. The documents which are required to be carried by the persons incharge of the conveyance are set out in Rule 138A (1), (2) and (3). The provisions/Rules insofar as they are relevant to the controversy are reproduced as under:

"Rule 138A. Documents and devices to be carried by a person in charge of a conveyance.

(1) The person in charge of a conveyance shall carry-

(a) the invoice or bill of supply or delivery challan, as the case may be; and

(b) a copy of the e-way bill in physical form or the e-way bill number in electronic form or mapped to a Radio Frequency Identification Device embedded on to the conveyance in such manner as may be notified by the Commissioner:

Provided that nothing contained in clause (b) of this sub-rule shall apply in case of movement of goods by rail or by air or vessel.

Provided further that in case of imported goods, the person in charge of a conveyance shall also carry a copy of the bill of entry filed by the importer of such goods and shall indicate the number and date of the bill of entry in Part A of FORM GST EWB-01.

(2) In case, invoice is issued in the manner prescribed under sub-rule (4) of rule 48, the Quick Reference (QR) code having an embedded Invoice Reference Number (IRN) in it, may be produced electronically, for verification by the proper officer in lieu of the physical copy of such tax invoice.

(3) Where the registered person uploads the invoice under sub-rule (2), the information in Part A of FORM GST EWB-01 shall be auto-populated by the common portal on the basis of the information furnished in FORM GST INV-1.

(4) The Commissioner may, by notification, require a class of transporters to obtain a unique Radio Frequency Identification Device and get the said device embedded on to the conveyance and map the e-way bill to the Radio Frequency Identification Device prior to the movement of goods.

(5) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b) of sub-rule (1), where circumstances so warrant, the Commissioner may, by notification, require the person-in-charge of the conveyance to carry the following documents instead of the e-way bill

(a) tax invoice or bill of supply or bill of entry; or

(b) a delivery challan, where the goods are transported for reasons other than by way of supply."

21. The verification of documents which provides for issuing invoices states thus:

"Rule 48 – Manner of issuing invoice

……...

(4) The invoice shall be prepared by such class of registered persons as may be notified by the Government, on the recommendations of the Council, by including such particulars contained inFORM GST INV-01after obtaining anInvoice Reference Numberby uploading information contained therein on the Common Goods and Services Tax Electronic Portal in such manner and subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be specified in the notification.

"Provided that the Commissioner may, on the recommendations of the Council, by notification, exempt a person or a class of registered persons from issuance of invoice under this sub-rule for a specified period, subject to such conditions and restrictions as may be specified in the said notification".

(6) The provisions of sub-rules (1) and (2) shall not apply to an invoice prepared in the manner specified in sub-rule (4)."

22. The verification of documents and responsibilities of the revenue authorities are stated in Rule 138 (b) which is reproduced as under:

"Rule 138B. Verification of documents and conveyances-

(1) The Commissioner or an officer empowered by him in this behalf may authorise the proper officer to intercept any conveyance to verify the e-way bill or the e-way bill number in physical form for all interState and intraState movement of goods.

(2) The Commissioner shall get Radio Frequency Identification Device readers installed at places where the verification of movement of goods is required to be carried out and verification of movement of vehicles shall be done through such device readers where the eway bill has been mapped with the said device.

(3) The physical verification of conveyances shall be carried out by the proper officer as authorised by the Commissioner or an officer empowered by him in this behalf:

Provided that on receipt of specific information on evasion of tax, physical verification of a specific conveyance can also be carried out by any other carried out by any officer after obtaining necessary approval of the Commissioner or an officer authorised by him in this behalf."

23. The aforesaid statutory scheme discloses the following the requirements which are relevant to the controversy:

I. While transporting goods for purposes of trade, the driver and or the owner should be in possession of an e-Invoice as well as e-Way Bill.

II. The assessee has an option to produce physical or digital copies of the aforesaid documents.

III. The procedure for generating the digital documents is spelt out in the aforesaid provisions.

IV. The e-Invoice is to be generated in the manner provided under Rule 48(4)(6) of the GST Act.

24. The e-Invoice in Form GST Invoice-I is auto populated / generated on the common platform after e-Invoice is uploaded on the said portal in the manner prescribed in the said Rules. Further Part-B of the e-Way bill has been uploaded after filing up the relevant details of the vehicle transporting the goods. In the facts of this case it is not disputed that the e-Way Bill contained the complete details in Part-A and Part-B. Most importantly once these documents are produced, statutory duty is cast upon the revenue authorities to verify the authenticity of the said documents. All the documents (soft copies/e-invoices & e-way bills) are in the official reach of the department. Hence, the verification is a very simple procedure which is required to be executed by the revenue authorities. Evidently in this case they failed to do so.

25. Under Chapter VI of the C.G. & S.T. Rules, 2017 relevant parts of the Rule 46 which reads Tax invoice are extracted hereunder:

"Rule 46 (q). signature or digital signature of the supplier or his authorised representative."

26. From the preceding discussion, the following facts are established.

I. Firstly, even as per the case of the revenue the driver of the vehicle was in possession of a digital tax invoice without signatures of the authorised signatory. The objection is misconceived, inasmuch as, the requirement of signatures is dispensed with as regards digital invoice by virtue of operation of the 5th proviso to Rule 46 of the C.G. & S.T. Rules, 2017 quoted above.

II. Secondly, it is common ground between the parties that the petitioner had produced authentic tax invoice and e-Way Bill at the time of inspection of the goods. Incidentally the seizure of the goods, inspection of the e-Way Bill carrying the goods, production of requisite documents by the petitioner and the imposition of the penalty happened on the same day i.e. 04.01.2023.

III. Thirdly, once the authentic documents have been produced to the satisfaction of the authorities, there was no cause for imposition of penalty and no case for admit to evade tax is made out.

IV. The authenticity of the said documents is not disputed.

27. The case of the petitioner is consistent that the driver was carrying digital copies of the tax invoice as well as e-Way Bill on his mobile number. The Revenue did not verify the digital device of the driver. If the assessee always had relevant documents in his favour, it stands to reason that there was no cause for him not to provide the digital copy of the e-Way Bill to the driver when the goods were being transported. After the driver had produced the digital copy of the tax invoice, it was the responsibility of the revenue to verify the same from the portal. The portal also contains the e-Way Bill which is auto populated after the e-Invoice uploaded. Evidently the Revenue failed to do so. The revenue cannot fasten the penalty upon the tax payers for its own default.

28. The argument on behalf of the revenue to the effect that once the demand raised on the assessee was satisfied by making of payment, the assessee could not carry the order of penalty in appeal and is liable to be rejected.

29. The assessee under Section 129(1) of the GST Act, 2017 has an option either to provide security or to make payment and satisfy the demand in full. However, the mere fact that the assessee has made payment will not disentitle him for carrying the order imposing the penalty in appeal.

30. The narrative can now be fortified by authorities in point. The Kerala High Court in Hindustan Steel & Cement v. Asstt. State Tax Officer, State GST Department, Kozhikode[1] while considering the same issue held as under:

"5. ….A reading of sub-section (3) of Section 129 of the CGST/SGST Acts, the provisions of Rule 142 referred to above and the provisions of the circular, cumulatively, compel me to hold that whether or not a person opts to make payment under section 129(1)(a) or to provide security under Section 129(1)(c), the responsibility of the officer to pass an order under sub-section (3) of Section 129 and to upload a summary of the order/demand in Form DRC-07 continues. The provisions of sub-section (5) or Section 129 which were pointed out by the learned Senior Government Pleader only contemplate that the procedure for detention on seizure of goods or documents or conveyances come to an end and it is always open to the person who suffers proceedings under 129 of the CGST/SGST Acts to challenge those proceedings if he feels that the demand has been illegally raised on him. This can be the only reasonable interpretation that can be placed on the provisions referred to above. Any other interpretation would clearly violate Article 265 of the Constitution of India. Further, Section 107 of the CGST Act is widely worded and provides that any person aggrieved by any decision, or order passed under the CGST/SGST Acts or Union Territory Goods and Services Tax Act, by an adjudicating authority, may appeal to such appellate authority as may be prescribed, within three months from the date on which such decision or order is communicated to such a person. It is obvious that the learned counsel for the petitioners in these cases is correct and contenting that whether or not a payment is made under Section 129(1)(a) or security is provided under Section 129 (1) (c), the person who is the subject matter of proceedings under section 129 of the CGST Act has the right to challenge those proceedings, culminating in an order under sub-section (3) of Section 129, before the duly constituted Appellate Authority under Section 107 of that Act. The fact that the culmination of proceedings in respect of a person who seeks to make payment of Tax and Penalty under Section 129(1)(a) does not result in the generation of a summary of an order under Form DRC-07 cannot result in the right of the person to file an appeal under Section 107 being deprived. The fact that the system does not generate a demand or that the system does not contemplate the filing of an appeal without a demand does not mean that the intention of the legislature was different."

31. The aforesaid judgment squarely applicable to the facts of the case and the appeal is held to be maintainable.

32. This Court in M/s Galaxy Enterprises v. State of U.P. and 2 others[2] held that if rectified documents were produced before the authorities before the seizure order was passed, the same were liable to be considered.

33. The case of the petitioner stands on a better footing.

34. Since all the documents have been admittedly produced before the authorities at the time of inspection, there was no cause for detention, seizure or imposition of the penalty as has been done by the authorities in this case.

35. It is noteworthy that the revenue is not challenged the authenticity of the bills or the fact that they were not duly filled it or the details were absent in the said bills. No irregularity in the bills have been pointed out on behalf of the revenue.

36. The bills contained all relevant details of the goods and the tax are liable to be paid.

37. The impugned order dated 04.01.2023 whereby the Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax, Mobile Squad-VII, Ghaziabad as well as the order dated 09.05.2023 passed by the respondent No.3/learned appellate authority/Additional Commissioner, State Tax, Mobile Squad, Unit-7, Ghaziabad are liable to be quashed and are quashed.

38. The amount deposited shall be forthwith refunded to the petitioner in accordance with law.

39. The writ petition (tax) is allowed.

40. The case at hand reflects that not only the mobile squad had misdirected itself in law but the appellate authorities have failed to redeem the errors. The Court has no hesitation to observe that a honest tax payer in the facts of this case has been unnecessarily harassed by the revenue authorities. The Court will say no further. However, it is for the revenue authorities to ensure that the officers are properly trained and alerted to the relevant provisions of law.

41. It is open to the revenue authorities to conduct regular courses for upgrading the domain knowledge of the officers in the field and the appellate authorities also to circulate relevant judgments on a regular basis to the officials.

1. Heard Sri Tanmay Sadh, learned counsel holding brief of Sri Nishant Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Ravi Shanker Pandey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondents.

2. This is a writ petiton under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner is aggrieved by the order levying penalty and the order of the Appellate Authority dated May 18, 2019 passed by respondent No.2/Additional Commissioner Grade-2 (Appeal)-II, Commercial Tax, Meerut under Section 107 of the Act.

3. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner submits that the following facts are not in dispute :

a. Petitioner supplied goods to M/s Idea Cellular Limited, Mangal Pandey Nagar, Meerut vide tax invoices no. 5204046997 & 5204046998 dated 18.6.2018 of Rs 1,16,583.98/- and Rs 22,77,755.98/- respectively, after charging IGST @ 18%;

b. After preparing invoices dated 18.6.2018, Petitioner generated e-way bills no. 7710 1550 4255 & 7410 1550 4256 in respect of the two transactions, which were valid till 21.6.2018. However, since the vehicle number was not informed by the transporter, hence Part-B of e-way bills was not completed/filled up by the Petitioner while generating the e-way bills;

c. Even though the transporter was instructed to start movement of vehicles, only after updating Part B of e-way Bills, yet due to some miscommunication between transporter and the driver, the driver of the Vehicle No. DL1M-9583 started transportation from Delhi to Meerut, without updating Part-B of e-way bills;

d. On 19.6.2018, when the aforesaid vehicle was entering Meerut, the same was stopped by Respondent No. 3 at 06:50 AM. Upon interception, driver produced the papers available with him relating to the transaction in question. in question;

e. Immediately, after receiving the news of interception, transporter informed the same to the Petitioner whereupon Petitioner generated e-way bills again by updating Part-B of e- way bills at 09:50 AM in the morning of 19.6.2018;

f. Even though, the deficiency, even if, in Part B of e-way bills was cured by Petitioner by updating by Part B of e-way bills on 19.6.2018 at 09:50 AM and the same was also produced before Respondent No. 3, yet Respondent No. 3 proceeded to pass detention order dated 20.6.2018 on the sole ground that at the time of interception, Part B of e-way bills was not updated. On the same date, Respondent No. 3 also issued notice under Section 20 of IGST Act directing the driver to appear and explain as to why not tax and penalty be demanded for release of goods and vehicle;

g. Upon receipt of the aforesaid notice, Petitioner submitted reply before Respondent No. 3 stating the circumstances in which Part B of e-way bills was not updated initially and that the same was updated prior to passing of the detention order;

h. Respondent No. 3 then passed order dated 26.6.2018, by rejecting the reply furnished by Petitioner and confirming demand of tax and penalty of Rs 3,65,274/- each, on the sole ground that Part B of e-way bills were not filled and thus the same was not a valid e-way bills for transportation of goods;

i. Aggrieved with the order dated 26.6.2018, Petitioner filed statutory appeal before Respondent No. 2 on various grounds mentioned in the memo of appeal; and

j. By impugned order dated 18.5.2019, Respondent No. 3 dismissed the appeal filed by Petitioner and confirmed the order dated 26.6.2018 (wrongly mentioned as 20.6.2018) passed by Respondent No. 3.

4. Learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner relies upon a judgment of this Court in M/s Roli Enterprises vs. State of U.P. and others (Writ Tax No.937 of 2022 decided on January 16, 2024) wherein this Court had considered two judgements of the Allahabad High Court in VSL Alloys (India) Pvt. Ltd v. State of U.P. and another reported in 2018 NTN [Vol.67]-1 and M/s Citykart Retail Private Limited through Authorized Representative vs. Commissioner Commercial Tax and Another reported in 2023 U.P.T.C. [Vol.113]-173 and held that non filling up of Part 'B' of the E-Way Bill by itself without any intention to evade tax would not lead to imposition of penalty under Section 129(3) of the Act.

5. In the present case, apart from the factual aspect that the Part B of E-Way Bills was not filled up, there is no material on record to show that the petitioner had any mens rea to evade tax. It is to be noted that the invoice, that was being carried, matched with the goods in the truck and the goods were not in variance with the invoice. Furthermore, the only reason upon which the presumption has been made by the authority concerned is that the tax may have been evaded as the distance between Delhi and Meerut is about 75 kilometers which would allow the petitioner to do multiple trips and evade tax.

6. The crux of the issue herein is that the petitioner explained the reason of non filling up of Part B of the E-Way Bills to the authorities. However, the authorities have not considered the explanation and rejected the same on the basis of only the factual aspect that the distance between Delhi and Meerut is about 75 kilometers. The presumption that has been made by the authorities that there was intention to evade tax is based only on the factual matrix that the distance between Delhi and Meerut is only about 75 kilometers, which could have allowed the petitioner to carry out multiple trips. In my view, no other material has been brought on record by the authorities to indicate that there was any mens rea on the part of the petitioner to evade tax. Furthermore, it is to be noted that the other columns of the E-Way Bills such as description of the goods, quantity of the goods and value etc. were found to be the same as in the tax invoice accompanying the goods. Furthermore, there was no mismatch between the goods that was being carried out in the vehicle and the invoice.

7. In light of the above, the reason of presumption of evasion of tax is without any basis in law, and accordingly, the order of detention and subsequent appellate order are illegal and required to be set aside.

8. It is to be noted that it is upon the authorities to pass orders under Section 129 of the Act on the basis of some investigation that may indicate an intention to evade tax. The same cannot be solely on surmises and conjectures.

9. In light of the above, the order levying penalty and order dated May 18, 2019 are quashed and set-aside. The writ petition is allowed. Consequential reliefs to follow. The respondents are directed to return the security to the petitioner within four weeks from date.

The Goods and Services Tax (GST) Act, 2017– Section 129(3) – registered dealer – goods in transit – vehicle intercepted – neither invoice nor e-way bill were accompanying the goods at the time of interception – order for physical verification/inspection – e-way bill generated after the interception – documents produced subsequent to interception – contravention of the provisions of the Act and Rules – contravention cannot be treated as a mere common mistake – burden of proof shifts to the assessee – presumption may be raised that there is an intention to evade tax – petitioner not able to rebut the presumption of evasion of tax – absence of invoice and e-way bill not explained with proper and reasonable explanation – mere furnishing of documents subsequent to interception cannot absolve the petitioner from liability of penalty – purpose of imposing penalty is to act as a deterrent – if the goods had not been intercepted, the Government would have been out of its pocket with respect to the GST payable – application of Section 129(3) of the Act valid and just in law – no interference required .

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. This is a writ petition under article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner has prayed for the issuance of a writ of certiorari quashing the appellate order dated August 30, 2019 passed by Additional Commissioner Grade-2 (Appeal), Commercial Tax, Jhansi/the respondent No. 3 and the penalty order dated March 14, 2019 passed by Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax, (Mobile Squad) Unit Jalaun, Agra/the respondent No.2. Further, a mandamus has been sought directing the respondent authorities to refund the amount of tax and penalty deposited by the petitioner.

Facts

2. Factual matrix of the present case is delineated below:

a. The petitioner is a registered dealer under the provisions of Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act'). On March 10, 2019, the petitioner had sold a consignment of TMT Bars (sariya) to one M/s Sahai & sons, Orai vide Tax Invoice No. 167. A vehicle bearing No. MP 16H 1584 was mentioned in the tax invoice for the transportation of the goods.

b. On the same day i.e. March 10, 2019 at 01:11 P.M., the respondent No.2 intercepted the vehicle at Galla Mandi, Orai and subsequently at 03:59 P.M. issued an order for physical verification/inspection of the conveyance, goods & documents under section 68(3) of the Act on the ground that neither e-way bill nor any other document such as tax invoice, bill of supply, challan or bill of entry related to the goods in transit were produced before him at the time of interception.

c. After the issuance of order for physical verification/inspection of the conveyance, goods & documents, the documents related to the goods such as Tax Invoice and the e-way bill were produced before the respondent No. 2. The said e-way bill was not accepted by the respondent No. 2 because it was generated after the interception took place. As per the respondent authorities, the aforementioned e-way bill was generated with a delay of almost 4 hours after the commencement of transportation of the goods.

d. The show cause notice was issued to the petitioner under Section 129(3) of the Act stating that the movement of the goods was in contravention to the provisions of the Act.

e. In pursuance of the show cause notice, the petitioner appeared before the authority and duly submitted his written reply. In his reply, the petitioner stated that due to non availability of computer operator, the e-way bill related to the goods in transit could not be generated at proper time but the same was generated later at 2:45 P.M. on March 10, 2019. He also stated that the invoice related to the goods could not be produced because it was handed over to the receiver firm before the interception took place.

f. Being dissatisfied with the reply of the petitioner, respondent no. 2 rejected his reply and passed the order of demand of tax and penalty dated March 14, 2019.

g. The petitioner thereafter deposited the amount of Rs.3,97,224/- towards tax and penalty, after which the respondent No. 2, released the goods in favor of the petitioner. Aggrieved by the order dated March 14, 2019 passed by the respondent No. 2, the petitioner preferred a statutory appeal before the respondent No. 3.

h. The respondent No. 3, vide its order dated August 30, 2019, dismissed the appeal and upheld the order dated March 14, 2019, passed by the Respondent No. 2.

i. Aggrieved by the order dated August 30, 2019 passed by the Respondent No. 3, the petitioner has preferred the instant writ petition before this Court.

CONTENTIONS OF THE PETITIONER

3. Sri Shubham Agrawal, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner has made the following submissions:

a. At the time of interception at 01:11 pm on March 10, 2019, the vehicle was parked at the godown for unloading.

b. The petitioner could not generate the e-way bill prior to the commencement of transportation because the computer operator, who was assigned the duty of generating the e-way bill, did not arrive earlier and the person looking after the dispatch inadvertently dispatched the goods on the belief that the e-way bill would be generated within a short while after the arrival of the computer operator who generates the e-way bill.

c. The petitioner had downloaded the e-way bill on March 10, 2019 at 02:42 P.M. and the respondent No. 2 had issued the interception memo on the same day at 03:59 pm. In this situation, the e-way bill had been generated prior to the issuance of interception memo and no intention to evade tax can be inferred in view of this fact.

d. Section 129 of the Act is applicable only when the consignment of goods are in transit and it does not apply to the present case since the vehicle was parked and was not in transit when it was intercepted by the respondent no. 2.

e. The petitioner had submitted all the documents relating to the consignment of goods before the authorities much prior to the passing of seizure order.

f. Since the petitioner had already deposited the tax on the consignment of seized goods and the relevant transaction had also been disclosed in the returns furnished by him, hence there was no intention to evade tax on his part and thus the impugned orders passed by the authorities are liable to be set aside.

g. It is a settled law that if the e-way bill is downloaded before seizure and tax is also charged then seizure and penalty are not justified. This position of law has been held by the Division Bench of this Court in M/s Century Rayon V. Union of India reported in 2018 UPTC 528, M/s Bhumika enterprises V. State of UP reported in 2018 UPTC 536, M/s Singh Tyres V. State of UP reported in 2018

UPTC 539, Mahaluxmi traders V. State of UP reported in 2018 UPTC 545 and M/s Shubham fertilizers and chemicals V. State of UP reported in 2018 UPTC 546.

h. To buttress his argument, counsel for the petitioner further relies upon the judgment passed by the Division Bench of this court in M/s Zebronics India pvt. Ltd. V. State of UP reported in 2017 UPTC 1207 wherein it was held that seizure of goods and penalty is not sustainable under section 129 of the Act, unless satisfaction is recorded about the existence of intention to evade tax.

CONTENTIONS OF THE RESPONDENTS

4. Sri Ravi Shankar Pandey, counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent has made the following submissions:

a. The provisions of Section 129 of the Act read with Rule 138 of the Uttar Pradesh Goods and Service Tax Rules, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Rules') required that where any person transports any goods or stores any goods, while they are in transit, in contravention of the provisions of the Act or Rules made there under, all such goods and conveyance used as a means of transport for carrying the said goods and documents relating to such goods and conveyance shall be liable to detention or seizure and every registered person who causes movement of goods of consignment valuing exceeding fifty thousand rupees (i) in relation to supply or (ii) for reasons other than supply or (iii) due to inward supply from an unregistered person, shall before commencement of such movement, furnish information relating to the said goods as specified in Part 'A' of the e-way bill electronically on the common portal along with other information as may be required on the common portal.

b. In view of above provisions, the e-way bill is to be generated before the commencement of the transportation of goods, whether in respect of supply or otherwise. In the present case, the Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax, (Mobile Squad) Unit Jalaun, Agra has stopped the vehicle no. MP16H 1584 on 10.03.2019 at 01:11 P.M. At the time of interception of the vehicle, the documents such as e-way bill, invoice, bilty, etc. were not found regarding the goods loaded in the vehicle. In this way, the goods were being transported without valid documents.

c. The petitioner has submitted a vague reply of non availability of computer operator. In this regard, it is submitted that the generation of e-way bill is required as mentioned in Rule 138 of the Rules and therefore, it was obligatory on the petitioner to have generated the e-way bill which was not done and therefore, the provisions were not followed by the petitioner. It is further submitted that the petitioner has generated the e-way bill on 10.03.2019 at 02:42 P.M., which was actually after the time of interception of the vehicle.

d. As per language of Section 129 of the Act, the seizure and release of the goods depends on the infringement of the provisions and the word mens rea has not been specifically mentioned. The revenue has relied upon the judgment given by this Court in M/s Hawkins Cookers Limited Vs State of U.P. and Others (Writ Tax No. 739 of 2020 decided on 12.02.2024) where it has been held that "Now, such an intention to evade tax may be presumed by the department in cases where there is wholesome disregard of the Rules. For example, in the event the goods are not accompanied by the invoice or the e-way bill is completely absent, a presumption may be raised that there is an intention to evade tax. Such a presumption of evasion of tax then becomes rebuttable by the materials to be provided by the owner/transporter of the goods."

e. The High Court of Calcutta in Pushpa Devi Jain Vs Assistant Commissioner of Revenue (WPA No. 178 of 2023 decided on 03.03.2023) and the Kerala High Court in M/s EVM Passenger Cars India Pvt. Ltd. Vs State of Kerala [W.P.(C) No. 10565 of 2018 decided on 23.08.2023] has held that the seizure and penalty order has been rightly upheld by the authority due to non-following of the provisions of the Act and Rules. In this regard, it may be submitted that such matter is related to year 2018-19. After 14th amendment of the Rule from 01.04.2018, a system has been well developed about e-way bill and it was obligatory on the part of the petitioner to have generated the e-way bill which was not complied with and the provisions were not followed by the petitioner. In view of these factual positions and legal provisions, the action taken by the Mobile Squad Authority and Appellate Authority is legally justified as the goods were not accompanied by the e-way bill which was regarded as a breach of the provisions contained under Section 129 of the Act read with Rule 138 and 138(A) of the Rules.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

5. I have heard the learned counsel appearing for the parties and perused the materials on record.

6. Even though the petitioner failed to produce the e-way bill in time due to certain difficulties, the question which arises before me is whether or not there was any actual intention to evade tax on part of the petitioner.

7. It is a well settled position of law that if there is no intention to evade tax on the part of a person then imposition of tax and penalty is not proper and justified. But there must be some reasonable grounds to show that there was actually no intention to evade tax on the part of tax payer.

8. In the present case, it is an admitted fact that neither invoice nor e-way bill were accompanying the goods when it was intercepted by the authorities. This contravention of rules can not be treated as a mere common mistake. In this situation, burden of proof for establishing that there was no intention to evade tax shifts to the assessee.

9. This court in case of M/s Akhilesh Traders V. State of U.P. and 3 others (Writ Tax no. 1109 of 2019 decided on February 20, 2024) has held that in cases where the goods are not accompanied by the invoice and e-way bill, a presumption may be raised that there is an intention to evade tax. The relevant paragraphs of the aforesaid judgment read as under:

"7. This Court in umpteen cases where penalties were being imposed under Section 129 of the Act though held that an intention to evade tax should be present, however, in the event the goods are not accompanied by the invoice or the e-way bill, a presumption may be raised that there is an intention to evade tax. Such a presumption of evasion of tax then becomes rebuttable by the materials to be provided by the owner/transporter of the goods.

8. In the present case, one comes to an inexorable conclusion that the petitioner has not been able to rebut the presumption of evasion of taxes, as he has not been able to explain the absence of invoice and the E-Way Bill. Production of these documents subsequent to the interception cannot absolve the petitioner from the liability of penalty as the very purpose of imposing penalty is to act as a deterrent to persons who intend to avoid paying taxes owed to the Government. It is clear that if the goods had not been intercepted, the Government would have been out of its pocket with respect to the GST payable on the said goods."

10. The petitioner, in the present case, could not explain the absence of invoice and e-way bill with a proper and reasonable explanation. Ergo, he has not been able to rebut the presumption of evasion of tax.

11. Mere furnishing of the documents subsequent to the interception can not be a valid ground to show that there was no intention to evade tax. There must be some reasonable grounds to justify the non-production of documents at the proper time.

12. Furthermore, the judgments upon which the petitioner is relying are prior to April 2018, when there were actually some difficulties with the generation of e-way bill. But after April, 2018 those difficulties have been resolved and now there is no difficulty in generating and downloading the e-way bill.

13. The argument raised by the counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner that the vehicle was parked at the godown for unloading is not supported by the facts. The interception of the vehicle was in a place away from the godown and this entire argument is obviously an afterthought. Accordingly, the application of Section 129(3) of the Act by the authorities is valid and just in law.

14. In light of the above, I am of the view that the petitioner herein has not complied with the provisions of law, hence the steps taken by the respondent authorities are proper and in accordance with the law and require no interference by this court.

15. Accordingly the writ petition is dismissed.

1. Heard Sri Pranjal Shukla, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner and Sri Ravi Shanker Pandey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the State.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, wherein the petitioner is aggrieved by the order imposing penalty dated August 8, 2018 passed by respondent No.4/Assistant Commissioner, Commercial Tax, Mobile Squad Unit-4, Prayagraj under Section 129(3) of the Uttar Pradesh Goods and Services Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act") and the order dated August 20, 2019 passed in appeal by respondent No.3/Additional Commissioner, Grade-2 (Appeal) 3rd, Commercial Tax, Prayagraj.

3. The undisputed facts in the present case are that the goods were intercepted and upon interception, no E-Way Bill, invoice and bility were present in the vehicle carrying the goods. Subsequent to the interception, these documents were produced by the assessee.

4. Sri Pranjal Shukla has relied upon the Division Bench judgments of this Court rendered in M/s Axpress Logistics India Private Limited v. Union of India and others (Writ Tax No.602 of 2018 decided on April 9, 2018) and M/s Modern Traders v. State of U.P. and others (Writ Tax No.763 of 2018 decided on May 9, 2018) to argue that when the documents are produced after the interception and before the detention order is passed, no penalty is leviable under Section 129(3) of the Act. He further relies upon paragraph Nos.19 and 20 of the Single Bench judgment of this Court in M/s Falguni Steels v. State of U.P. and others (Writ Tax No.146 of 2023 decided on January 25, 2024) to buttress his argument that the intention to evade tax must be present and it is the duty of the Department to indicate such intention to evade tax.

5. Sri R.S. Pandey has submitted that the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioner relate to the period where the detention of goods was prior to April 2018. He further submitted that in instances of detention that occurred subsequent to April 2018, the E-Way Bill is mandatory and is required to be carried along with the goods. In the present case, he submits that neither the E-Way Bill nor even invoice and bility were accompanying the goods at the time of interception. He, accordingly, submits that the burden of proof with regard to intention to evade tax shifts from the Department to the assessee.

6. In the present case, the facts are undisputed that neither invoice nor E-Way Bill were accompanying the goods. Such a contravention to the Rules cannot be treated to be a mere technical or typographical mistake, and accordingly, in such cases, the burden of proof for establishing that there was no mens rea for evasion of taxes shifts to the assessee.

7. This Court in umpteen cases where penalties were being imposed under Section 129 of the Act though held that an intention to evade tax should be present, however, in the event the goods are not accompanied by the invoice or the e-way bill, a presumption may be raised that there is an intention to evade tax. Such a presumption of evasion of tax then becomes rebuttable by the materials to be provided by the owner/transporter of the goods.

8. In the present case, one comes to an inexorable conclusion that the petitioner has not been able to rebut the presumption of evasion of taxes, as he has not been able to explain the absence of invoice and the E-Way Bill. Production of these documents subsequent to the interception cannot absolve the petitioner from the liability of penalty as the very purpose of imposing penalty is to act as a deterrent to persons who intend to avoid paying taxes owed to the Government. It is clear that if the goods had not been intercepted, the Government would have been out of its pocket with respect to the GST payable on the said goods.

9. In light of the above findings, no interference is required with regard to the impugned orders. The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

2. Assistant Commissioner (ST) and others v. M/s. Satyam Shivam Papers Pvt. Ltd. and another, 2022 U.P.T.C. (110) 269 (SC).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. This is an application under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner assails the order passed by the Additional Commissioner Grade-2 (Appeal), Commercial Tax, Agra/respondent No.3 dated June 17, 2022 and the order of the imposition of the penalty dated February 1, 2021 passed by the Commercial Tax Officer-2 (Mobile Squad), Range-IV, Agra/respondent No.2.

2. The case of the petitioner is that the petitioner is a duly registered dealer under the Goods and Service Tax Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as ?the Act?) and is a seller of plywood and allies products. The petitioner was supplying plywood to another registered dealer, namely, M/s Mahalaxmi Associates, Mumbai and the transaction was duly covered by a tax invoice, a bilty and e-way bill, all dated January 27, 2021.

3. It is a contention of the petitioner that the consignment of goods was sent by the petitioner in Vehicle No.HR 58B 9542. DL1 AA 5332. When the vehicle was in transit, the same was intercepted on 30.1.2021 by the Goods and Service Tax authorities. The seizure order was passed on the ground that the document/invoice number has wrongly been mentioned in the e-way bill as the e-way bill showed the document/invoice No.2224 instead of 0401. Apart from the above factual position, it is clear that there was no other infraction on the part of the petitioner. Furthermore, the authorities have imposed penalty only on the ground that the document number was not mentioned correctly. There is no allegation of any attempt by the petitioner for evasion of tax as the e-way bill, bilty and the tax invoice were matching and the consignee was also a registered dealer.

4. Counsel on behalf of the petitioner has submitted that number 0401 was typed incorrectly as 2224, which is bilty number. He has submitted that this is so obviously a typographical error. He further relies upon a coordinate Bench judgment of this Court in M/s. Varun Beverages Limited v. State of U.P. and 2 others reported in 2023 U.P.T.C. (113) 331 and also upon the judgment of the Supreme Court in Assistant Commissioner (ST) and others v. M/s. Satyam Shivam Papers Pvt. Ltd. And another reported in 2022 U.P.T.C. (110) 269 (SC).

5. Per contra, Mr. Ravi Shanker Pandey, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has submitted that the Department via a circular has allowed non imposition of penalty in cases where there are mistake of two digits in the vehicle number and no further. He has further submitted that the judgment in M/s. Varun Beverages Limited (supra) would not apply as the same was a case of stock transfer and there was no question of any tax liability in that case. He has also attempted to distinguish the Supreme Court judgment on the ground that it was a case wherein the e-way bill had expired just before the vehicle was detained and seized.

Analysis and Conclusion

6. In the present case, one finds that there is definitely an error with regard to typing of the document/invoice number and there is a difference of four digits instead of the permitted two digits (as per the government circular) as submitted by the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel. However, law is not to remain in a vacuum and has to be applied equitably in appropriate cases. The judgment in M/s. Varun Beverages Limited (supra) may be referred to for this purpose. The relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are delineated below:-

"7. The sole controversy engaging the attention of the Court is as to whether the wrong mention of number of Vehicle No. HR-73/6755 through which the goods were in transit and detained by the taxing authorities would be considered as a human error and will be covered under the circular No. 41/15/2018-GST dated 13.04.2018 and 49/23/2018-GST dated 21.06.2018, as the number mentioned in the e-way bill was UP-13T/6755 and the mistake is of only of HR-73 in place of U.P.-13T.

8. It is not in dispute that goods were being transported by the dealer through stock transfer from its unit at Gautam Buddha Nagar to its sale depot at Agra. The bilty which is the document of the transporter mentions the vehicle number as HR-73/6755. From perusal of the e-way bill which has been brought on record, it is clear that the vehicle number has been mentioned as UP-13T/6755. It is apparently clear that mistake is as far as the registration of the vehicle in a particular State and in place of HR-73, UP-13T has been mentioned in the e-way bill, while number of the vehicle 6755 is same.

9. As there is no dispute to the fact that it is a case of stock transfer and there is no intention on the part of dealer to evade any tax, the minor discrepancy as to the registration of vehicle in State in the e-way bill would not attract proceedings for penalty under Section 129 and the order passed by the detaining authority as well as first appellate authority cannot be sustained. Moreover, the Department has not placed before the Court any other material so as to bring on record that there was any intention on the part of the dealer to evade tax except the wrong mention of part of registration number of the vehicle in the e-way bill. The vehicle through which the goods were transported and the bilty showed the one and the same number while only there is a minor discrepancy in Part-B of the e-way bill where the description of the vehicle is entered by the dealer."

7. Furthermore, one may rely on the Supreme Court judgment in M/s. Satyam Shivam Papers (supra) wherein the Supreme Court has examined the applicability of the issue of mens rea under Section 129 of the Act. The relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are provided below:-

"6. The analysis and reasoning of the High Court commends to us, when it is noticed that the High Court has meticulously examined and correctly found that no fault or intent to evade tax could have been inferred against the writ petitioner. However, as commented at the outset, the amount of costs as awarded by the High Court in this matter is rather on the lower side. Considering the overall conduct of the petitioner No.2 and the corresponding harassment faced by the writ petitioner we find it rather necessary to enhance the amount of costs.

7. Upon our having made these observations, learned counsel for the petitioners has attempted to submit that the questions of law in this case, as regards the operation and effect of Section 129 of Telangana Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 and violation by the writ petitioner, may be kept open. The submissions sought to be made do not give rise to even a question of fact what to say of a question of law. As noticed hereinabove, on the facts of this case, it has precisely been found that there was no intent on the part of the writ petitioner to evade tax and rather, the goods in question could not be taken to the destination within time for the reasons beyond the control of the writ petitioner. When the undeniable facts, including the traffic blockage due to agitation, are taken into consideration, the State alone remains responsible for not providing smooth passage of traffic."

8. Upon perusal of the judgments, the principle that emerges is that presence of mens rea for evasion of tax is a sine qua non for imposition of penalty. A typographical error in the e-way bill without any further material to substantiate the intention to evade tax should not and cannot lead to imposition of penalty. In the case of M/s. Varun Beverages Limited (supra) there was a typographical error in the e-way bill of 4 letters (HR ? 73). In the present case, instead of ?0401?, ?2224? was incorrectly entered into the e-way bill which clearly appears to be a typographical error. In certain cases where lapses by the dealers are major, it may be deemed that there is an intention to evade tax but not so in every case. Typically when the error is a minor error of the nature found in this particular case, I am of the view that imposition of penalty under Section 129 of the Act is without jurisdiction and illegal in law.

9. In light of the above findings, the impugned orders dated 17.6.2022 and 1.2.2021 are quashed and set-aside. The consequential reliefs to be provided to the petitioner within the next four weeks.

10. The writ petition is allowed accordingly.

1. Heard Shri Vishwas Pandey, learned counsel and Shri Mahesh Dwivedi, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Naveen Chandra Gupta, learned Central Counsel for the respondent Nos.1 and 2-Union of India and Shri Rishi Kumar, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State.

2. The petitioner in the writ petition is aggrieved by the impugned order ref. No.ZA090722077658X dated 13.07.2022 which cancels the GST registration under the GST Act.

3. The appeal of the petitioner has been rejected on grounds of limitation by the impugned order ref.No.ZD091023027190Y dated 06.10.2023 passed by the respondent No.4.

4. The petitioner is also aggrieved by the show cause notice ARNZA090622139048H dated 20.06.2022 passed by the respondent No.5.

5. Shri Vishwas Pandey, learned counsel and Shri Mahesh Dwivedi, learned counsel for the petitioner submit that :

I. The action of the authorities cancelling the GST registration of the petitioner is arbitrary and illegal.

II. The order of cancellation of GST registration virtually compels the petitioner to shut down his business.

III. The order is non-speaking and reflects non application of mind despite visit the petitioner with severe penalties.

6. Shri Rishi Kumar, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel submits that :

I. The petitioner failed to submit a reply to the show cause notice. Hence, no speaking order is required.

II. The petitioner can continue his business only in accordance with law and cannot complain if the registration certificate has been cancelled in the manner aforesaid.

7. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

8. The petitioner is engaged in the business of sale of scrap items. He has obtained a GST registration under the GST Act. The show cause notice was issued to the petitioner proposing to cancel the registration of the petitioner dated 20.06.2023. The recitals in the show cause notice disclosed that the GST registration of the petitioner was liable to be cancelled as the principal place of business was not found/available at the time of field visit. Admittedly, the petitioner could not tender his reply to the show cause notice for various reasons beyond his control.

9. The show cause notice is vague and lacks material particulars. The time and place of the field visit are not disclosed in the show cause notice nor the details of the officials who allegedly conducted the visit have been provided therein. The lack of material particulars in the show cause notice vitiates the same and the proceedings were liable to be dropped. The report of the officials who had allegedly visited the site of business has not been appended to the show cause notice nor was supplied to the petitioner.

10. Further, the petitioner was directed to appear for tendering his reply to the show cause notice dated 20.06.2022. Though the seven days time was granted for the reply, the matter was fixed before the authorities on 22.06.2022.

11. The time period is too short and is not sufficient for any noticee to tender an effective and complete defence of his case. On both these grounds the show cause notice is vitiated and the proceedings in pursuance thereof are also liable to be set aside on this ground alone. The cancellation order dated 13.07.2022 is a non speaking order. It does not reflect any application of mind. Both the grounds go to the route of the jurisdiction of the authorities.

12. The narrative shall now be fortified by good authorities in point. The issue has been settled by authoritative pronouncements of this Court. Pankaj Bhatia, J. in M/s Chandra Sain, Sharda Nagar, Lucknow Thru. Its Proprietor Ms. Chandra Sain v. U.O.I . Thru. Secy. Ministry of Finance, New Delhi and 5 others[1] while delineating the duties of the noticing authority and process to be followed prior to cancellation of a licence and also the consequences of such cancellation held as under:

"6. Learned counsel for the petitioner argues that although no fault can be found with the appellate order dismissing the appeal as Aappellate Authority does not have the power to condone the delay in terms of the scheme of the Act, however, he argues that the order cancelling the registration is without application of mind; he draws my attention to the impugned order dated 13.02.2020, which does not disclose any application of mind. He, thus, argues that the quasi judicial order which has an adverse effect on the right of the petitioner to run business as guaranteed under Article 19 of the Constitution of India, the same has been done without any application of mind which is neither the intent of the Act nor can it be held to be in compliance of the mandate of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. He further argues that as the appeal has not been decided on merit, the doctrine of merger will have no application and it is only the order dated 13.02.2020 which affects the petitioner and as the same is devoid of any reasons, the same can be challenged before this Court as decided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Whirlpool Corporation v. Registrar of Trademarks, Mumbai and Ors.

7. He further places reliance on the judgment of this Court in the case of Om Prakash Mishra v. State of U.P. & Ors.; Writ Tax No.100 of 2022 decided on 06.09.2022 wherein this Court had recorded that every administrative authority or a quasi judicial authority should necessarily indicate reasons as reasons are heart and soul of any judicial or administrative order.

8. In the present case from the perusal of the order dated 13.02.2020, clearly there is no reason ascribed to take such a harsh action of cancellation of registration. In view of the order being without any application of mind, the same does not satisfy the test of Article 14 of the Constitution of India, as such, the impugned order dated 13.02.2020 (Annexure - 2) is set aside. The petition is accordingly allowed."

13. The said judgement was followed in M/s Viraj Polymers Private Ltd. v. State of U.P. and 3 others[2].

14. Similarly the consequences of a vague show cause notice were also held by this Court in Drs. Wood Products Lucknow Thru. Its Partner Sh. Arun Jindal v. State of U.P. Thru. Prin. Secy. Tax and Registration Lko. And others[3] by holding as under:

"18. A perusal of the show-cause notice at the first instance, clearly depicts the opaqueness of the allegations levelled against the petitioner, which were only to the ground that "tax payer found non-functioning/non-existing at the principal place of business'. The said show-cause notice did not propose to rely upon any report or any inquiry conducted to form the opinion and on what basis was the allegation levelled that the tax payer was found non-functioning; it does not indicate as to when the inspection was carried. A vague show-cause notice without any allegation or proposed evidence against the petitioner, clearly is violative of principles of administrative justice. Cancellation of registration is a serious consequence affecting the fundamental rights of carrying business and in a casual manner in which the show-cause notice has been issued clearly demonstrates the need for the State to give the quasi-adjudicatory function to persons who have judicially trained mind, which on the face of it absent in the present case. The order of cancellation of the registration on the ground that no reply was given is equally lacking in terms of a quasi-judicial fervor as the same does not contain any reasoning whatsoever. The show-cause notice issued after the petitioner had filed an application for revoking the cancellation of registration also smacks of lack of judicial training by the quasi-adjudicatory authorities under the GST Act as it merely shows that no satisfactory explanation was received within the prescribed time.

19. The order rejecting the application for revocation of cancellation of registration takes the matter to the height of arbitrariness inasmuch as no reasons are recorded as to why the request for revocation of cancellation of registration could not be accepted and discloses absence of application of mind with regard to the averments contained in the application filed by the petitioner for revocation of cancellation of registration. It is also not clear as to why the request of the petitioner to adjourn the matter because of the marriage of his daughter was not even considered prior to passing of the rejection order dated 15.07.2020.

21. I have no hesitation in recording that the said authorities while passing the order impugned have miserably failed to act in the light of the spirit of the GST Act. The stand of the Central Government before this Court is equally not appreciable as on the one hand they are alleging that excess goods were found for which the petitioner is liable to pay duty and on the other hand there is justification to the order passed and impugned in the present petition."

15. This Court in Apparent Marketing Private Limited v. State of U.P. and 3 others[4] had occasioned to consider the consequences of cancellation of registration and the manner in which the authorities are liable to proceed in such matter. S.D.Singh, J. speaking for this Court held as under:

"12. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the record, in the first place, cancellation of registration has serious consequences. It takes away the fundamental right of a citizen etc. to engage in a lawful business activity. In the present case, undisputedly, the registration claimed by the assessee had been granted by the respondent authority. Therefore, a presumption does exist as to such registration having been granted upon due verification of necessary facts. If the respondent proposed to cancel the registration thus granted, a heavy burden lay on the respondent authority to establish the existence of facts as may allow for such cancellation of registration. Section 29(2) of the Act reads as below :

"Section 29. Cancellation of suspension of registration

(2) The proper officer may cancel the registration of a person from such date, including any retrospective date, as he may deem fit, where,-

(a) a registered person has contravened such provisions of the Act or the rules made there under as may be prescribed; or

(b) a person paying tax under section 10 has not furnished returns for three consecutive tax periods; or

(c) any registered person, other than a person specified in clause (b), has not furnished returns for a continuous period of six months; or

(d) any person who has taken voluntary registration under sub-section (3) of section 25 has not commenced business within six months from the date of registration; or

(e) registration has been obtained by means of fraud, willful misstatement or suppression of facts:

Provided that the proper officer shall not cancel the registration without giving the person an opportunity of being heard.

[PROVIDED FURTHER, that during pendency of the proceedings relating to cancellation of registration, the proper officer may suspend the registration for such period and in such manner as may be prescribed.]"

13. Therefore, the registration once granted could be cancelled only if one of the five statutory conditions was found present. Per se, no registration may be cancelled by merely describing the firm that had obtained it, was "bogus". The word "bogus" has not been used by the statute. The only contingency to which such expression may relate may be one appearing under Clauses (c) and (d) of Section 29(2) of the Act being where a registered firm does not commence its business within six months of its registration. Other than that, the term "bogus" may also refer to a satisfaction contemplated by Section 29(2)(c) of the Act where registration may be cancelled if the registered firm has not furnished its return for continuous period of six months.

Those conditions have not been shown to exist in this case.

14. Yet, in case the authority wanted to cancel the existing registration, it ought to have mentioned (in the show cause notice), if it proposed to cancel the registration for violation of Section 29(2)(c) of the Act or for violation of Section 29(2)(d) of the Act. It cannot be a matter of contemplation or option either with the authority or the assessee to find out for itself by any guesswork or exploratory exercise, if the case fell in any of the conditions of Section 29(2) of the Act.

15. Registration having been granted earlier, the obligation existed on the authority to specify the exact reason/charge on which it proposed to cancel the registration. In the present case, unless the respondent authority had first specified the reason why it proposed to cancel the registration and unless the authority had specified the reason why it was attempting to treat the assessee firm "bogus" i.e. whether reference was being made to Section 29(2)(c) or Section 29(2)(d) of the Act - by specifically stating the facts as may give rise to that charge and unless the supporting material giving rise to that charge had been referred to in that notice, the notice itself remained defective in material aspect.

16. Though the notice for cancellation of registration may not be placed on a high pedestal of a jurisdictional notice, at the same time, unless the essential ingredients necessary for issuance of such notice had been specified therein at the initial stage itself, the authorities cannot be permitted to have margin or option to specify and/or improve the charge later.

17. In the present case, by merely describing the assessee firm "bogus", the respondent authority did not make known to the assessee the exact charge that was being levelled against the assessee. Correspondingly, the respondent authority deprived the assessee of the necessary opportunity to rebut the charge.

18. In view of the discussion made above, the charge levelled in the notice dated 22.07.2020 and as was reiterated in the order dated 13.08.2020 and the further notice dated 21.08.2020 are wholly, vague. Effectively, it prevented the assessee to rebut the same. The statute contemplates issuance of the notice in specified circumstances for specific grounds. Those could not be diluted or muddled or made vague by describing the assessee firm as "bogus". In absence of any specific charge, the respondent authority could not be permitted to proceed to cancel the assessee's registration. Though it may remain open to the Assessing Authority to issue a fresh notice with exact charge specification, the proceedings arising from the impugned notice is inherently defective.

16. The judgments of this Court are squarely applicable to the facts of this case. This Court finds that the show cause notice dated 20.06.2022 was vague and unsustainable in law.

17. The order dated 13.07.2022 cancelling the GST registration of the petitioner is not speaking order which reflects non application of mind by the authorities. The authorities have adopted procedure not known to law while cancelling the GST registration of the petitioner. Action of the authorities is not sustainable in law.

18. The show cause notice dated 20.06.2022 passed by the respondent No.5 is vague.

19. The order dated 13.07.2022 passed by the respondent No.3 and the order dated 06.10.2023 passed by the respondent No.4 as well as the show cause notice dated 20.06.2022 passed by the respondent No.5 are liable to be quashed and are quashed.

20. The writ petition is allowed.

21. It is open to the authorities to proceed afresh against the petitioner in accordance with law.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. Heard counsel appearing on behalf of the parties.

2. This is a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India wherein the petitioner M/S K.J. Enterprises is aggrieved by the order dated September 26, 2022, passed by the Additional Commissioner, Grade – 2, (Appeals – 1st), Commercial Tax, Agra (hereinafter referred to as the 'Respondent No. 2').

3. Factual matrix of the instant case is provided below:

a. Petitioner is a proprietorship firm carrying the business of job work of scrap, selling, and purchasing of iron machinery parts and hardware.

b. The petitioner, during the month of March 2018, purchased inputs from different registered firms, in which ITC claim was made as per the Uttar Pradesh Goods and Services Tax Act, 2017 (hereinafter referred to as the 'UPGST Act, 2017').

c. The petitioner also made transactions in the year 2019-20 and in this regard, bills were issued, in which details of the goods were mentioned.

d. On July 24, 2019, an inspection was carried out at the premises of the petitioner and at the time of inspection, the authorities asked the petitioner to deposit the amount in DRC – 03.

e. Thereafter, a summon was issued to the petitioner under Section 70 of the UPGST Act, 2017 directing the petitioner to appear before the concerned authority on August 13, 2019, at 11:00 am along with stock register and other relevant documents for verification.

f. A show cause notice was also issued by the respondents on July 22, 2020, under Section 74 of the UPGST Act, 2017 for tax period 2019-20, alleging that the petitioner wrongly availed input tax credit amounting to INR 22,00,00,000/- against bogus tax invoices and utilized the same by fraud or misstatement, suppression of facts, etc.

g. Another notice was issued on September 17, 2020, directing the petitioner to furnish a reply on October 6, 2020. Petitioner thereafter furnished reply on October 1, 2020.

h. Deputy Commissioner, State Tax, Sector – 4 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Respondent No. 3') rejected the reply of the petitioner vide order dated August 10, 2021, passed under Section 74 of the UPGST Act, 2017 for the A.Y. 2019-20 and imposed tax and penalty, along with interest, upon the petitioner amounting to INR 6,78,12,667.92/-.

i. The petitioner preferred an appeal before the Respondent No. 2 against the aforesaid order passed by the Respondent No. 3. By an order dated September 26, 2022, the Respondent No. 2 upheld the order of Respondent No. 3, and imposed tax and penalty on the petitioner.

4. Without delving into the merits of the instant case, it is crystal clear that an opportunity of 'personal hearing' was not afforded to the petitioner which is a mandatory requirement under Section 75(4) of the UPGST Act, 2017 which has been extracted below:

"75(4) An opportunity of hearing shall be granted where a request is received in writing from the person chargeable with tax or penalty, or where any adverse decision is contemplated against such person."

(emphasis added)

5. Even if no request is received from the person chargeable with tax or penalty, an opportunity of personal hearing must be granted if any adverse decision is contemplated against such person.

6. When the word 'or' is used in a statute, it serves as a disjunctive conjunction, indicating two or more alternatives. Each option presented is to be considered independently. It is crucial to recognize that the disjunctive nature of "or"

precludes its interpretation as a conjunctive conjunction, such as “and”. Unlike, “and”, which implies a requirement for the simultaneous fulfilment of multiple conditions, “or” allows for flexibility and choice by permitting compliance with any one of the alternatives presented. Attempting to read “or” as “and” in a statute would fundamentally alter its meaning and undermine the legislative intent behind its use. Such an interpretation would impose stricter criteria or conditions than intended by the statute, potentially leading to absurd or unreasonable outcomes.

7. Courts have consistently upheld the disjunctive nature of “or” in statutory interpretation, adhering to the principle of giving effect to the plain and ordinary meaning of the language used in the statutes. This principle, known as the plain meaning rule or the literal rule of interpretation, emphasizes the importance of interpreting statutes based on their plain and ordinary meaning, as understood by the average person reading the text of the statute. Moreover, the disjunctive function of “or” in statutes is essential for upholding principles of fairness, equity, and access to justice. By offering alternative paths or options, statutes accommodate diverse individual needs and situations, promoting inclusivity and mitigating potential disparities or injustices. This is particularly significant in areas of law concerning rights, benefits, and entitlements, where the flexibility provided by “or” ensures that legal provisions can be applied in a manner that reflects the realities and complexities of human experiences.

8. In Commissioner of Sales Tax, Uttar Pradesh -v- The Modi Sugar Mills Ltd., reported in, MANU/SC/0276/1960, the Supreme Court affirmed that while interpreting taxing statutes, courts must look at the words used in the statute, and interpret a taxing statute considering what has been clearly expressed:

“….In interpreting a taxing statute, equitable considerations are entirely out of place. Nor can taxing statutes be interpreted on any presumptions or assumptions. The court must look squarely at the words of the statute and interpret them. It must interpret a taxing statute in the light of what is clearly expressed : it cannot imply anything which is not expressed; it cannot import provisions in the statutes so as to supply any assumed deficiency.”

9. The significance of the word “or" in Section 75(4) of the UPGST Act, 2017 cannot be underestimated. The usage of the word “or" extends beyond its disjunctive function; it serves as a pivotal indicator of legislative intent regarding the necessity of providing an opportunity for personal hearing. By incorporating “or" into the statutory language, lawmakers explicitly delineate two distinct scenarios in which the opportunity of personal hearing must be afforded: either upon application by the individual subject to penalty or tax imposition, or in the event of contemplation of an adverse order. Personal hearing represents a fundamental aspect of procedural fairness and natural justice, ensuring that individuals have the opportunity to present their case, respond to allegations, and address any concerns or mitigating factors directly to the decision-maker. It is a vital safeguard against arbitrary or unjust decisions. The inclusion of “or" in Section 75(4) of the UPGST Act, 2017, emphasizes the dual nature of the obligation to provide a personal hearing, accommodating both proactive requests from individuals seeking to defend their interests and reactive responses to adverse orders contemplated by tax authorities. In either scenario, the statutory mandate remains clear: the individual must be afforded an opportunity for personal hearing before any final determination is made regarding tax or penalty imposition. Moreover, the statutory mandate for personal hearing reflects an acknowledgement of the complex and multifaceted nature of tax and penalty determinations, which often involve intricate legal and factual considerations. Personal hearing provides a forum for nuanced discussion and exploration of these complexities, enabling decision-makers to make well-informed and equitable decisions based on a comprehensive understanding of the circumstances at hand.

10. A Division Bench of this Court in Bharat Mint and Allied Chemicals v. Commissioner Commercial Tax and Others reported in 2022 SCC OnLine All 1088, underscored the significance of providing an opportunity for personal hearing as contemplated under Section 75(4) of the UPGST Act, 2017. Relevant paragraphs have been extracted below:

"9.From perusal of Section 75(4) of the Act, 2017 it is evident that opportunity of hearing has to be granted by authorities under the Act, 2017 where either a request is received from the person chargeable with tax or penalty for opportunity of hearing or where any adverse decision is contemplated against such person. Thus, where an adverse decision is contemplated against the person, such a person even need not to request for opportunity of personal hearing and it is mandatory for the authority concerned to afford opportunity of personal hearing before passing an order adverse to such person.

12.It has also been admitted in the counter affidavit that except permitting the petitioner to reply to the show cause notice, opportunity of personal hearing has not been afforded to the petitioner. Thus the legislative mandate of Section 75(4) of the Act to the authorities to afford opportunity of hearing to the assessee i.e. to follow principles of natural justice, has been completely violated by the respondents while passing the impugned order.

13.The stand taken by the respondents in the counter affidavit that the writ petition is not maintainable as the petitioner has an alternative remedy of appeal under Section 107 of the Act, can also not be accepted inasmuch as it is settled law that availability of alternative remedy is not a complete bar to entertain a writ petition under Section 226 of the Constitution of India. Certain exceptions have been carved out by Hon'ble Supreme Court that a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India may be entertained even there is an alternative remedy. One of the principle in this regard is that if the order impugned has been passed in gross violation of principles of natural justice. It is admitted case of the respondents that no opportunity of personal hearing, as contemplated under Section 75(4) of the Act, 2017, was afforded to the petitioner before passing the impugned order.

14.During the course of hearing of this writ petition, learned standing counsel has produced before us a photo stat copy of the order of the Assessing Authority relating to the impugned order and perusal thereof shows that no opportunity of hearing as contemplated under Section 75(4) of the Act, 2017 was not afforded to the petitioner. Thus, there being patent breach of principles of natural justice, the present writ petition is maintainable against the impugned order."

11. The view taken in Bharat Mint and Allied Chemicals (supra) was reiterated by another Division Bench of this Court in Mohini Traders v. State of U.P. and Others reported in MANU/UP/2440/2023. Relevant paragraphs have been extracted below:

"7. We find ourselves in complete agreement with the view taken by the coordinate bench in Bharat Mint & Allied Chemicals (supra). Once it has been laid down by way of a principle of law that a person/assessee is not required to request for "opportunity of personal hearing" and it remained mandatory upon the Assessing Authority to afford such opportunity before passing an adverse order, the fact that the petitioner may have signified 'No' in the column meant to mark the assessee's choice to avail personal hearing, would bear no legal consequence.

8. Even otherwise in the context of an assessment order creating heavy civil liability, observing such minimal opportunity of hearing is a must. Principle of natural justice would commend to this Court to bind the authorities to always ensure to provide such opportunity of hearing. It has to be ensured that such opportunity is granted in real terms. Here, we note, the impugned order itself has been passed on 25.11.2022, while reply to the show-cause-notice had been entertained on 14.11.2022. The stand of the assessee may remain unclear unless minimal opportunity of hearing is first granted. Only thereafter, the explanation furnished may be rejected and demand created.

9. Not only such opportunity would ensure observance of rules of natural of justice but it would allow the authority to pass appropriate and reasoned order as may serve the interest of justice and allow a better appreciation to arise at the next/appeal stage, if required."

12. Recently, in M/s Primeone Work Force Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India, reported in 2024:AHC-LKO:3533-DB, the Division Bench of this Court, stated that an opportunity of hearing is mandatorily required to be given if tax and penalty are to be imposed:

"6. Section 75(4) of the Act of 2017 specifically states 'or where any adverse decision is contemplated against such person'.

7. Since in the present cases, both tax and penalty are imposed against the petitioners and admittedly, an adverse decision is contemplated against the petitioners, therefore, under Section 75(4) of the Act of 2017, an opportunity of hearing was mandatorily required to be given by the department to the petitioners and merely marking the same as "NO" in the option cannot entitle the department to pass an order without giving any opportunity or even without waiting for the petitioners to appear on the date fixed. This Court has already taken a similar view in M/s. Mohini Traders (supra). 8. In view thereof, all the writ petitions are allowed on the sole ground of opportunity of hearing and the orders impugned in all four writ petitions are quashed."

13. The Supreme Court in Dharampal Satyapal Limited v. Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise, Guhati

and Others reported in (2015) 8 SCC 519, upheld the importance of personal hearing before making any decision. The Supreme Court stated that even in administrative actions, where the decision of the authority may result in civil consequences, a hearing before taking decision is necessary. Relevant paragraphs have been extracted below:

"33.In his separate opinion, concurring on this fundamental issue, K. Ramaswamy, J. echoed the aforesaid sentiments in the following words : (ECIL case[(1993) 4 SCC 727 : 1993 SCC (L&S) 1184 : (1993) 25 ATC 704] , SCC p. 773, para 61)

"61.It is now settled law that the proceedings must be just, fair and reasonable and negation thereof offends Articles 14 and 21. It is well-settled law that the principles of natural justice are integral part of Article 14. No decision prejudicial to a party should be taken without affording an opportunity or supplying the material which is the basis for the decision. The enquiry report constitutes fresh material which has great persuasive force or effect on the mind of the disciplinary authority. The supply of the report along with the final order is like a post-mortem certificate with putrefying odour. The failure to supply copy thereof to the delinquent would be unfair procedure offending not only Articles 14, 21 and 311(2) of the Constitution, but also, the principles of natural justice."

34.Likewise, inC.B. Gautamv.Union of India[(1993) 1 SCC 78] , this Court once again held that principle of natural justice was applicable even though it was not statutorily required. The Court took the view that even in the absence of statutory provision to this effect, the authority was liable to give notice to the affected parties while purchasing their properties under Section 269-UD of the Income Tax Act, 1961. It was further observed that : (SCC p. 104, para 30)

"30.... The very fact that an imputation of tax evasion arises where an order for compulsory purchase is made and such an imputation casts a slur on the parties to the agreement to sell lead to the conclusion that before such an imputation can be made against the parties concerned, they must be given an opportunity to show cause that the undervaluation in the agreement for sale was not with a view to evade tax."

It is, therefore, all the more necessary that an opportunity of hearing is provided.

35.From the aforesaid discussion, it becomes clear that the opportunity to provide hearing before making any decision was considered to be a basic requirement in the court proceeding. Later on, this principle was applied to other quasi-judicial authorities and other tribunals and ultimately it is now clearly laid down that even in the administrative actions, where the decision of the authority may result in civil consequences, a hearing before taking a decision is necessary. It was, thus, observed inA.K. Kraipak case[(1969) 2 SCC 262] that if the purpose of rules of natural justice is to prevent miscarriage of justice, one fails to see how these rules should not be made available to administrative inquiries. InManeka Gandhiv.Union of India[(1978) 1 SCC 248] also the application of principle of natural justice was extended to the administrative action of the State and its authorities. It is, thus, clear that before taking an action, service of notice and giving of hearing to the noticee is required. InMaharashtra State Financial Corpn.v.Suvarna Board Mills[(1994) 5 SCC 566] , this aspect was explained in the following manner : (SCC p. 568, para 3)

"3.It has been contended before us by the learned counsel for the appellant that principles of natural justice were satisfied before taking action under Section 29, assuming that it was necessary to do so. Let it be seen whether it was so. It is well settled that natural justice cannot be placed in a straitjacket; its rules are not embodied and they do vary from case to case and from one fact-situation to another. All that has to be seen is that no adverse civil consequences are allowed to ensue before one is put on notice that the consequence would follow if he would not take care of the lapse, because of which the action as made known is contemplated. No particular form of notice is the demand of law. All will depend on facts and circumstances of the case."

14. From a bare reading of the order dated August 10, 2021 passed by the Respondent No. 3 it is palpably clear that no opportunity of personal hearing was afforded by the Respondent No. 3 to the petitioner, which is a statutory obligation under Section 75(4) of the UPGST Act, 2017. Furthermore, the Respondent No. 2, while dismissing the appeal failed to correct this glaring impropriety in its order dated September 26, 2022. These orders cannot be allowed to pass through the legislative barriers of natural justice, erected to safeguard individual rights and prevent abuse of power.

15. In light of the aforesaid discussion, let there be a writ of certiorari issued against the order dated August 10, 2021 passed by the Respondent No. 3 and order dated September 26, 2022, passed by the Respondent No. 2. These orders are quashed and set aside. Consequential relief to follow. The Respondent No. 2 is directed to grant an opportunity of personal hearing to the petitioner and thereafter pass a reasoned order in accordance with the law within a period of two months from date.

16. This writ petition is, accordingly, allowed.

List of cases cited:

1. Bharat Singh Vs St. of UP & ors.(2017) 2 ADJ 184

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra, J. & Hon'ble Jayant Banerji, J.)

1. Heard Shri Virendra Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner and learned Standing Counsel appearing for the State.

2. This petition has been filed challenging the order dated 18.06.2015 passed by the District Magistrate, Hathras in purported exercise of powers under Rule 3, 57, & 70 of the UP Minor Minerals (Concession) Rules, 19631. Also under challenge is the order dated 27.09.2017, passed by the commissioner, Aligarh Division, dismissing the appeal of the petitioners.

3. It appears from the record that a notice dated 01.05.2015 was issued to the petitioners in respect of plot No. 139 with the allegation that 3689 cubic meters of soil was illegally mined and an amount of Rs. 2,83,230/- was sought to be imposed. By that notice, a date was fixed before the District Magistrate to enable the petitioners to file their objections, if any.

4. From page 28 to page 30 of the paper book of this petition, a typed copy of the response dated 25.05.2015 submitted by the petitioner is enclosed, which is addressed to the District Magistrate/ Additional District Magistrate, Hathras, in which mining on plot No. 139 was emphatically denied and it was stated that provisions of Rules, 1963 were not applicable in respect of agricultural land. It was further stated that they cannot be subjected to any such imposition inasmuch as the petitioners was merely levelling their agricultural field and it cannot be held to be mining operation within the Rules, 1963. It has also been mentioned that the payment demanding royalty, etc. is illegal and the site plan is contrary to the actual situation existing at the site.

5. By the impugned order dated 18.06.2015, the contentions raised by the petitioners were narrated and the report of the Tehsildar stating that mining of 3689 cubic meters of soil was done, was considered. The objections of the petitioners that the soil of their agricultural land was levelled and they had neither sold the soil nor had mined the same, were considered. The District Magistrate considered the report of the Tehsildar and the Sub-Divisional Officer, Hathras and came to the conclusion that illegal mining of 3689 cubic meter of soil on plot No. 139 was done. Accordingly, royalty @ 14 per sq. meter was imposed, which was multiplied five times and after imposing compounding fee, a total amount of Rs. 2,83,230/- was imposed.

6. The petitioners challenged the order of the District Magistrate in an appeal before the Commissioner under Section 79 of the Rules, 1963. In the memorandum containing the grounds of appeal that has been enclosed as Annexure-4 to the writ petition, it was stated that no proper opportunity was given to the petitioners for hearing and to produce evidence and neither were the reports of the Tehsildar or the Sub-Divisional Officer supplied to them. It was stated that the District Magistrate did not decide the case on merits but only on the basis of the reports.

7. By means of an impugned order dated 27.09.2017, the Commissioner has rejected the appeal after taking into account the spot inspection report dated 18.03.2015 made by the Revenue Inspector and the Area Lekhpal who had made a site plan and had taken measurements to conclude that on plot No. 139, 3689 cubic meters of soil was mined. The reports of the Tehsildar and Sub Divisional Officer were also considered and the order of the District Magistrate, Hathras making the imposition on the petitioners was upheld and the appeal was dismissed.

8. The learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that petitioners are simple agriculturists who neither had any intention nor undertook any mining operation on plot No. 139. It is stated that there was no evidence of mining, sale, or transportation of soil. It is argued by learned counsel that in view of the facts and circumstances of the case, Rule 3 of the aforesaid Rules, 1963 would not apply to the petitioners.

9. Learned counsel in support of his contention has relied upon a judgment of this Court in the case of Bharat Singh vs. State of UP & 4 Others[2] in Writ C No. 18753 of 2016 that was decided by this Court on 23.05.2016. It is submitted that this Court in the case of Bharat Singh, has relied upon a Government Order dated 24.12.2012, a perusal of which reveals that no case of illegal mining, as ordered by the District Magistrate and upheld in appeal by the Commissioner, is made out against the petitioner.

10. The contentions of learned counsel for the petitioners do not appear to be correct. A perusal of the aforesaid judgment of this Court in Bharat Singh reveals that under consideration therein was a notice issued by the Incharge Officer (Mining/ Additional District Magistrate-II), Aligarh, requiring the petitioner therein to show cause why royalty @ Rs. 14 per sq. meter and five times fee of minerals, and penalty Rs. 25,000/- under Section 21 of the Mines and Minerals (Development & Regulation) Act, 1957, be not imposed. After considering the avements and submissions made on behalf of the counsel for the parties, this Court in Bharat Singh considered the Government Order dated 24.12.2012 on the subject UP Minor Minerals (Concession) (35th amendment) Rules 2012. The aforesaid Government Order, as quoted in the judgment is being reproduced below:-

11. This Court relied upon the aforesaid Government Order dated 24.12.2012 and held that in exercise undertaken by the petitioners therein could not be treated to be mining operation. Accordingly the petitions were allowed.

12. A perusal of Rule 3 of Rules, 1963 reflects that it was substituted by the 37th Amendment Rules, 2014 dated 22.10.2014 which came into force with effect from 22.10.2014. Rule 3 as amended by the 37th Amendment Rules, 2014, reads as under:-

"3. Mining Operations to be under a mining lease or mining permit- (1) No person shall undertake any mining operations in any area within the State of any minor mineral to which these rules are applicable except under and in accordance with the terms and conditions of a mining lease or mining permit granted under these rules:

Provided that nothing shall affect any operations undertaken in accordance with the terms and conditions of mining lease or permit duly granted before the commencement of these rules.

Explanation:- For the purposes of this rule manual digging or manual extraction of ordinary clay, ordinary earth for making bricks and pottery shall not be treated as mining operations:

Provided that pit created by such digging or extraction should not be deeper than two meters.

(2) No mining lease or mining permit shall be granted otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of these rules."

(emphasis supplied)

13. The explanation mentioned in this rule provides an exception to sub-section (1) of Rule 1 providing that manual digging or manual extraction or ordinary clay, ordinary earth for making bricks and pottery shall not be treated as mining operations subject to its being used for making bricks and pottery and provided that pit created by such digging or extraction should not be deeper than two meters.

14. On comparison of the Rule 3 of Rules, 1963 as quoted above and the amendment sought to be incorporated by the 35th Amendment of the Rules, 1963 as noted in the Government Order quoted above, reflects a change in the explanation to sub-Rule (1) of Rule 3 was made by the 37th Amendment in the year 2014 inasmuch as the extraction of ordinary clay, ordinary earth, which are not to be treated as mining operations, are qualified to be for the purpose of making bricks and pottery. This purpose was not existing in 35th Amendment of the Rules, 1963 as reflected in the aforesaid Government Order dated 24.12.2012.

15. It is pertinent to mention here that the aforesaid judgement of Bharat Singh, this Court was considering a notice issued by the competent authority on 23.07.2014 which was prior to the coming into force of the 37th Amendment to the Rules, 1963, with effect from 22.10.2014.

16. It is noted in the appellate order of the Commissioner that the site plan reflected mining and the measurements of the pits were also taken. The exact quantity of soil extracted was also specified therein. In the explanation submitted by the petitioner pursuant to the notice dated 01.05.2015, in para 8 thereof, they have specifically stated that the site plan enclosed with the order of the District Magistrate is contrary to the factual situation existing at the site. The aforesaid facts and circumstances reflects that the petitioner had full knowledge of the material existing in the records of the District Magistrate and were aware of the site plan also.

17. Under the circumstances, the grounds taken in the appeal that the petitioners were not aware of the site plan and other material on record, does not appear to be correct. In the counter affidavit filed by the State on behalf of the State-respondents, apart from denying the contents of the writ petition, the explanation to Rule 3 of the Rules, 1963 has been repeated and has been emphasised that extraction or digging of ordinary clay, ordinary earth for making bricks and pottery shall not be treated as mining operation.

18. It is contended by the learned Standing Counsel that the petitioners have failed to demonstrate before the respondent-authorities that the extraction was for making bricks and pottery.

19. Under the facts and circumstances of the case, the orders impugned do not call for interference and this writ petition is dismissed.

Civil Law - Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-The policyholder claimed that the policies he purchased differed from the promises made by the insurance company's agent-he sought to cancel the policies and refund the premiums paid-the policyholder approached the insurance Ombudsman, who directed adjustments to the premium-unsatisfied, the policyholder moved to the Permanent Lok Adalat which ruled in his favour ordering a refund of the premiums plus interest-the dispute centered on whether the 15 day "free look" period, allowing policy cancellations was adhered to-the insurance company stated that the cancellation request was made outside this period-Held, the court referred to section 9 of the General Clause Act,1897, which excludes the first day in calculating a specified time period-the court upheld that the cancellation request fell within the 15 day period-and The Permanent Lok Adalat decision to refund Rs. 3,23,869/- including interest, to the the policy holder upheld.

2. Haru Das Gupta Vs St. of W.B.(1972)1 SCC 693

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri Abhishek Bhatnagar, learned counsel for the petitioner. No one has put in appearance on behalf of respondent no. 2, though counter affidavit has been filed to the present writ petition.

2. By means of present writ petition the Insurance Company namely Reliance Nippon LIfe Insurance Company Ltd. having its registered office in Mumbai has approached this Court challenging the order dated 09.06.2017, passed by the Permanent Lok Adalat thereby allowing the claim preferred by respondent no. 2 - claimant.

3. The facts of the case in brief are that the respondent no. 2 had applied for various insurance policies for his life and life of his wife by submitting a proposal form obtaining a insurance policy and by paying the proposal deposit amount. In all respondent no. 2 had applied for four policies and had cumulatively deposited premium of Rs.2,49,994/- towards the said policies. All the policies were duly dispatched to respondent no. 2 and had been received by him.

4. Subsequent to receipt of the said policies respondent no. 4 was aggrieved by the terms and conditions mentioned in the said policies which according to him were contrary to the statements made by the Agent of the petitioner insurance company who had approached him for selling the said policies and consequently the policies being at variance with what was promised to him, he informed the Insurance Company that he wanted to repudiate the said policies and duly informed the petitioner also about the same. He also asked for refund of the premium deposited by him.

5. The petitioner by means of letter dated 04.10.2013, which was received by respondent no. 2, declined to accept the request made by respondent no. 2. In the aforesaid circumstances respondent no. 2 approached the Insuarance Ombudsman with regard to his grievance. The Ombudsman by means of order dated 29.05.2015, directed the petitioner to cancel all the policies and adjust the premium into a new single premium policy in the name of respondent no. 2 or any of his family member and subjected the award to the completion of formalities by the complainant-respondent no. 2.

6. It seems that respondent no. 2 was not satisfied by the order dated 29.05.2015, passed by the Ombudsman and approached the Permanent Lok Adalat by filing an application raising all grievance against petitioner. Notices were issued to the petitioner, who had put in appearance and opposed the claim made by respondent no. 2. In their opposition they have submitted that 15 days free-look period has been granted to the insured and it is within those 15 days that the insured had discretion to repudiate or rescind from the conditions of the policies. He submitted that after expiry of 15 days the insured as well as the Insurance Company are bound by the terms and conditions of the Policies.

7. The Permanent Lok Adalat looked into all the evidence and documents filed by the petitioner and respondent no. 2. Dispute was also raised with regard to receipt of Policies and the date from which the 15 day free look period would commence. On behalf of claimant-respondent no. 2, it was stated that from 07.09.2013 the insured and his wife had gone to Bellur (Tamilnadu) in connection with their treatment as they were not well and there they had undergone eye surgery at Shanker Netralaya, Chennai on 16.09.2013 and on the said date they were at Chennai. Then subsequent to the above surgery their check up took place and respondent no. 2 returned back to Lucknow on 22.09.2013. It is only on 24.09.2013 that respondent no. 2 received four policy bonds from the servant of his neighbor who had received the same on 19.09.2013, when he was away in Tamil Nadu.

8. In support of his submissions, respondent no. 2 had filed medical papers issued by the Shanker Netralaya, Chennai from which the Permanent Lok Adalat was satisfied that respondent no. 2 was under treatment from 16.09.2013 to 29.09.2013 and then subsequently on 20.09.2013 he had gone to Chennai for further check up. Respondent no. 2 had also filed leave papers before the Permanent Lok Adalat which indicated that he was on leave from 09.09.2013 to 31.10.2013 and joined his duties only on 01.11.2013. The Permanent Lok Adalat has also stated that no evidence was filed by the petitioner to so as to dispute the contention raised by the complainant-insured.

9. The Permanent Lok Adalat also looked into the delivery reports filed by the petitioner to consider the case that the policies have been sent by registered post to the insured. From the perusal of delivery reports it cannot be verified that the said delivery reports pertain to the petitioner and as to whether the insurance policies had been sent alongwith the same. Neither name nor address of the insured was recorded in any of the papers produced by the petitioner nor could the delivery reports could be linked to the claimant and consequently the Permanent Lok Adalat was of the view that the said delivery reports do not further the case and contentions raised by the petitioner with regard to the delivery of the insurance policies to the insured.

10. It was further considered that the insured on coming to know about the contents of the policies issued in his favour had been purchased through the Agent of the petitioner and repeated request for cancelling the policies were made. In pursuance to the requests made by the insured, it seems that certain policies which were yet to be issued were cancelled and the amount of premium was received back by the respondent no. 2. The four policies in question which were issued were not canceled and accordingly letter dated 14.10.2013 was issued by the petitioner declining to cancel the said policies. It is only when the premium was not refunded to the insured that he communicated to the officials of the petitioner on telephone from where he had been informed by the officials of the petitioner that his request for cancellation of the policies has been declined.

11. It was contended by the insured that 15 day period would commence from 19.09.2013 when the documents were alleged to have been received by the servant of the neighbor of respondent no. 2 from the date till the request for cancellation was made on 14.10.2013. The claim of respondent no. 2 was allowed by the Permanent Lok Adalat holding that repudiation was made by the insured within the prescribed period of 15 days which was computed from 19.09.2013 to 04.10.2013 and consequently on this ground claim was allowed and the petitioner was directed to refund the amount of premium alongwith interest which amount comes to Rs.323869/- alongwith interest which was computed to Rs.5000/-.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner while assailing the impugned order has reiterated the contentions raised before the Permanent Lok Adalat. It has been submitted that 15 day period should be computed from the date of receipt of policy i.e. 19.09.2013 till 04.10.2013. There is no dispute with regard to aforesaid dates but learned counsel for the petitioner submits that from 19.09.2013 till 04.10.2013, it is sixteen days and not 15 days as computed by the Permanent Lok Adalat. In this regard learned counsel for the petitioner has sought to rely upon the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India notification dated 22.06.2017 whereby Clause 10 provides that the free look period will be of 15 days from the date of receipt of policy documents. Apart from assailing the time period petitioner does not assail the impugned order on any other ground.

13. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

14. The facts of the present case are undisputed. Respondent no. 2 had made proposal for taking four policies for which he had paid premium of Rs.24994/-. The Policies were delivered to the servant of the neighbor of respondent no. 2 on 19.09.2013 and when respondent no. 2 returned from Chennai after his treatment he looked into the policy documents and found that the same were at variance from the terms of the policies which were informed to him through the Agent of the petitioner and consequently, made efforts for cancellation of the said policies. Certain policies were infact cancelled which had not been issued, but the four policies which are disputed in the present case were declined to be cancelled and a letter to this effect was issued by the petitioner on 14.10.2013.

15. The dispute in the present case only pertains to the fact as to whether cancellation was done by respondent no. 2 within fifteen days period of free look as provided under the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India notification dated 22.06.2017. The Permanent Lok Adalat has computed the time period from 19.09.2013 to 04.10.2013 as fifteen days.

16. At this stage, reference may be made to Saketh India Ltd. and Others Vs. India Securities Ltd., 1999 (3) SCC 1, wherein Hon'ble Supreme Court has relied upon findings of Haru Das Gupta Vs. State of W.B., 1972 (1) SCC 693, has held as under :-

"6. Similar contention was considered by this Court in the case of Haru Das Gupta v. State of W.B. wherein it was held that the rule is well established that where a particular time is given from a certain date within which an act is to be done, the day on that date is to be excluded; the effect of defining the period from such a day until such a day within which an act is to be done is to exclude the first day and to include the last day. In the context of that case, the Court held that in computing the period of three months from the date of detention, which was 5-2-1971, before the expiration of which the order or decision for confirming the detention order and continuing the detention thereunder had to be made, the date of the commencement of detention, namely, February 5th has to be excluded; so done, the order of confirmation dated 5-5-1971 was made before the expiration of the period of three months from the date of detention. The Court held that there is no reason why the aforesaid rule of construction followed consistently and for so long should not be applied. For the aforesaid principle, the Court referred to the principle followed in English courts. The relevant discussion is hereunder:

"5. These decisions show that courts have drawn a distinction between a term created within which an act may be done and a time limited for the doing of an act. The rule is well established that where a particular time is given from a certain date within which an act is to be done, the day on that date is to be excluded. This rule was followed in Cartwright v. MacCormack (1963) 1 All ER 11, where the expression 'fifteen days from the date of commencement of the policy' in a cover note issued by an insurance company was construed as excluding the first date and the cover note to commence at midnight of that day, and also in Marren v. Dowson Bentley & Co, Ltd., (1961) 2 QB 135, a case for compensation for injuries received in the course of employment, where for purposes of computing the period of limitation the date of the accident, being the date of the cause of action, was excluded. Thus, as a general rule the effect of defining a period from such a day until such a day within which an act is to be done is to exclude the first day and to include the last day. There is no reason why the aforesaid rule of construction followed consistently and for so long should not also be applied here."

7. The aforesaid principle of excluding the day from which the period is to be reckoned is incorporated in Section 12(1) and (2) of the Limitation Act, 1963. Section 12(1) specifically provides that in computing the period of limitation for any suit, appeal or application, the day from which such period is to be reckoned, shall be excluded. Similar provision is made in sub-section (2) for appeal, revision or review. The same principle is also incorporated in Section 9 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 which, inter alia, provides that in any Central Act made after the commencement of the General Clauses Act, it shall be sufficient, for the purpose of excluding the first in a series of days or any other period of time, to use the word "from" and for the purpose of including the last in a series of days or any other period of time, to use the word "to"."

17. This Court is of the considered view that the Permanent Lok Adalat has rightly determined the period of 15 days, inasmuch as, as per Section 9 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, the first day of the series of days has to be excluded. Section 9 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 is quoted herein below :-

"9. Commencement and termination of time.- (1) In any (Central Act) or Regulation made after the commencement of this Act, it shall be sufficient, for the purpose of excluding the first in a series of days or any other period of time, to use the word "from", and, for the purpose of including the last in a series of days or any other period of time, to use the word "to".*

(2) This section applies also to all (Central Acts) made after the third day of January, 1868, and to all Regulations made on or after the fourteenth day of January, 1887."

18. Though the period under consideration in the present case is of 2013, while the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India Notification was issued only on 22.06.2017 and consequently same may not be applicable to the facts of the present case as admittedly provisions of the said notification are not retrospective. Even Clause 1(i) of Section 10 of the said notification provides that free look period of 15 days from the date of receipt of the policy document has to be interpreted and as per General Clauses Act which applies to the Central Act or the regulations made after commencement of the said Act, and the first day of the series of days has to be excluded, accordingly, the first day i.e. 19.09.2013 has to be excluded.

19. Accordingly, there is no doubt that the notification issued by the Insurance Regulatory and Development Authority of India has to be interpreted as per the provisions of Section 9 of the General Clauses Act which establishes fundamental foundation for interpretation of legislation. The 15 day period as provided in Clause 10 of the Notification dated 22.06.2017 is subjected to Section 9 of the General Clauses Act and consequently the first day in the series of the days has to be excluded, as provided in Section 9 of the General Clauses Act. Undisputedly, statutory provision shall prevail over the regulations framed by the Central Government.

20. In the light of above, the Permanent Lok Adalat rightly determined the period of free look from 19.09.2023 to 04.10.2013 being of 15 days and not 16 days as canvassed by the petitioner. No other ground has been urged by the petitioner.

21. Accordingly, this Court does not find any merit in the contentions raised by learned counsel for the petitioner. The writ petition being devoid of merits is dismissed.

Civil Law - Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-U.P. Slum Areas (Improvement and Clearance)Act,1962 & U.P. In-Situ Slum Redevelopment Policy 2021-U.P. Urban Planning and Development act,1973-Slum dwellers in Akbar Nagar residing on government land along the Kukrail water channel, challenged eviction and demolition orders issued by the Lucknow development Authority-They sought quashing of these orders and requested a proper rehabilitation schemes under the Act,1962-The court acknowledged that slum dwellers lack legal title to the land and their constructions are unauthorized-The LDA initiated eviction proceedings u/s 27 of the Act,1973 which the petitioners argued was inapplicable to slum areas-The court identified a conflict between two fundamental rights under Article 21, the right to shelter of the slum dwellers and the right to clean drinking water of the city's residents-the court decided to address the matter on merits rather than remanding it for further proceedings, recognizing the urgency of the issue-Balancing these competing interest, the court calls for an expedited resolution through appropriate rehabilitation measures while ensuring environmental and public health safeguards.(Para 1 to 24)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Chaudhary, J. & Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

1. This is a bunch of writ petitions filed by the slum dwellers of slum area known as Akbar Nagar-1 and 2 challenging the demolition orders issued by the Lucknow Development Authority (hereinafter referred to as 'the LDA') and for quashing the rehabilitation scheme framed by the LDA. They also pray for a direction to be issued to the respondents to prepare and implement a rehabilitation scheme in accordance with the provisions of the U.P. Slum Areas (Improvement and Clearance) Act, 1962 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act of 1962') read with the U.P. In-Situ Slum Redevelopment Policy, 2021.

2. Leading Writ-C No.1372 of 2024 "Raju Sahu and others vs State of UP and others" was filed as one of the last cases, when hearing had started, and on the request of Sri J.N. Mathur, learned Senior Counsel for petitioners, the same was taken up as the leading case, as it contained all grounds raised by the petitioners in this bunch. It was agreed that the counter affidavit filed by the LDA in the earlier leading writ petition will be read in the present petition also. It was also agreed that the questions raised in this leading case are mainly questions of law and further counter affidavit, thus, would not be required. Parties also agreed that broadly the facts are admitted between the parties. Therefore, Writ-C No.1372 of 2024 is taken up as the leading case. Still any and all further affidavits and documents filed by the parties during course of hearing were accepted, as rights of large number of persons under Article 21 are involved. Further, this Court also permitted interlocutory applications instead of separate petitions to be filed on behalf of residents of Akbar Nagar slums looking into their weak financial position. These applicants are also treated as petitioners in the writ petitions with the same benefits as available to these petitioners.

3. We have heard Sri J.N. Mathur, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Apoorva Tiwari and Ms. Aishvarya Mathur, Sri Amrit Khare, Sri Kazim Ibrahim, Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Ms. Maria Fatima, Utsav Mishra, Ms. Pushpila Bisht, Sri Akshay Kumar Singh, Sri Mudit Agarwal, Sri Amrendra Nath Tripathi, Sri Shakeel Ahmad Jamal, Sri Amiruddin Khan, Sri Shitla Prasad Tripathi, Sri Shahid Raza, Sri Raj Kumar Singh Suryavanshi, Ms. Shweta Shukla, Sri Shadab Haider, Sri P.C. Maurya, Sri Anshuman Srivastava, Sri Mohd. Murtaza Hasan, Ms. Sadiya Khan, Sri Ruved Kamal Kidwai, Sri Pawan Kumar Dwivedi, Sri Anupam Bajpai, Ms. Shradha Mishra, Sri Gibran Akhtar Khan, Sri Inam Uddin Ahmad, Sri Akber Ahmad, Sri Harsh Vardhan Kediya, Sri Alok Kumar, Sri Pradeep Kumar Srivastava, Sri Rinku Verma, Sri Rajat Srivastava, Sri Ayush Srivastava, Ms. Nandini Verma, Ms. Surabhi Rawat, Ms. Jyoti Rajpoort, Sri Rehan Ahmad Siddiqui, Ms. Nisha Tiwari, Sri Sachida Nand, Sri Mohd. Salman, Ms. Gursimran Kaur, Sri Karan Agarwal, Sri Sheeran Mohiuddin Alavi, Sri Mohd. Mohsin and Sri Ausaf Ahmad Khan, learned counsel for the petitioners. Sri Sudeep Kumar, Sri Anuj Kudesia, Sri Ratnesh Chandra, Sri Ishan Singh Popli, learned counsel for the LDA, Sri Namit Sharma assisted by Ms. Priyanka Vikram Singh, learned counsel for the Nagar Nigam, Lucknow and Sri Shailendra Kumar Singh, learned Chief Standing Counsel assisted by Sri Pratyush Chaube appearing for the State-respondents are heard for the respondents.

4. The admitted facts between the parties are, that, Kukrail water channel originates from Village Asti, Tehsil Bakshi Ka Talab, District Lucknow and merges in Gomti river. Whether to call it a river or nala is a dispute between the parties, but, it does not impact the merits of the case. For convenience, the same is referred to as 'Kukrail Water Channel'. This water channel initially carries neat and clear water, but, slowly and steadily, including around disputed Akbar Nagar area, open drains are let loose in the same and it starts converting into an urban open sewer, and ends in River Gomti. It is also accepted to all that this water of River Gomti is supplied as drinking water to nearly entire Lucknow. Petitioners, slum dwellers, over a long period of time have unauthorizedly occupied the banks of Kukrail water channel and raised these disputed constructions. They all accept that they do not have any title to the land occupied by them and undisputedly, land belongs to the Government, accordingly, their constructions are also without any approval, thus illegal. This fact is accepted to all counsel for the petitioners. However, Sri A. A. Khan, Advocate also raised an alternative argument regarding title to land in a few of his cases. Proceedings for their eviction, by a notice under Section 27 of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 (for short 'the Act of 1973'), were initiated by the Vice Chairman of the LDA. He rejected the objections filed by the petitioners and passed orders for eviction.

The same were challenged by way of appeals before the Chairman, LDA, who also is Commissioner, Lucknow. The Chairman also rejected the appeals filed by the petitioners. Thus, both these orders are challenged by petitioners before this Court. In some cases, petitioners have approached this Court, without filing any appeal, against the order of Vice Chairman only. All these matters thus are clubbed together in this bunch for hearing.

5. Leading arguments for the petitioners are made by Sri J.N. Mathur, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Apoorva Tiwari and Ms. Aishvarya Mathur, and other learned counsel have adopted the same. Sri Ausaf Ahmad Khan, Advocate has also made an additional alternative submission on behalf of petitioners represented by him.

6. Sri Mathur submits that proceedings could only be held under the Act of 1962, as the same is a special Act for slum areas. The procedure provided in the said Act of 1962 has to be followed by the competent authority provided therein. Sri Mathur submits that violating the same, proceedings against petitioners are held under Section 27 of the Act of 1973. He further submits that even presuming the Act of 1962 is not applicable, in such a case, proceedings could only be initiated under Section 26-A(4) of the Act of 1973 and not under Section 27 of the same. Making a distinction, Sri Mathur submits that Section 27 is with regard to demolition of illegal constructions while Section 26-A(4) is specifically for slum areas and in the present case, admittedly, the disputed constructions exist in Akbar Nagar slum.

7. Further elaborating the said argument, Sri Mathur submits that the entire proceedings held under Section 27 of the Act of 1973 are not only without jurisdiction, but also amounts to colourable exercise of power. Lastly, Sri Mathur submits that the procedural integrity in the present proceedings held under Section 27 of the Act of 1973 is also grossly violated by the authorities concerned. He submits that neither at the initial stage the Vice Chairman of the LDA nor at the appellate stage its Chairman conducted the proceedings in a fair and proper manner. They did not provide proper opportunity of hearing to the petitioners, as, the documents submitted by the respondents at both stages, without providing any copy to the petitioners, were accepted and relied upon while passing the orders by both the authorities. Hence, Sri Mathur submits that neither the procedure prescribed under the Act of 1962, which was applicable, was followed nor the procedure prescribed under Section 26-A(4) of the Act of 1973, alternatively applicable on the slums, was followed and, further, the procedure which was followed under Section 27 of the said Act too was violative of the principles of natural justice. He strongly submits that since procedural integrity of the entire proceedings is seriously violated, therefore, this Court is bound to interfere in the matter and remand the same with appropriate directions to an appropriate authority.

8. Sri Ausaf Ahmad Khan, Advocate, while adopting submissions of Sri Mathur, also raised a desperate alternate submission that the land in dispute belongs to an old Abadi of a revenue village and thus, petitioners have title on the said land. We do not find any force in this alternative submission and out-rightly reject the same. Only document submitted by Mr. Khan in support of his argument is a Khatauni of 1332 fasli (year 1925) of Mohal Mahanagar Mauja Mahanagar Rahim Nagar, Pargana, Tehsil and District Lucknow. Now, both, Rahim Nagar and Akbar Nagar are two separate distinct localities in Lucknow. Further, a perusal of the only Khatauni filed by Mr. Khan shows that Gata no.747 area 0-14-0 (14 biswa) is recorded as Abadi including road and houses etc., and thereafter, Gata no.746, area 2-15-0 (2 Bigha 15 Biswa) is recorded as Road. A village map is also filed, which shows a road having certain Khasra numbers. Even the name of the road is not given in the map. Admittedly, Akbar Nagar 1 and 2 occupy much larger area than the Abadi area shown in the Khatauni of 1332 fasli. Further, there is no manner in which petitioners could show that it is the same old Abadi, which was there in the year 1925. No document of last 100 years to prove the title is filed. If the properties belong to an Abadi land for the last 100 years, there would certainly be mutation orders or ownership documents of the said land, including appropriate sale deeds/transfer deeds/succession documents executed from time to time. It is not possible that not even a single document is available with the petitioners with regard to their title. Further, no other person, except for the petitioners represented by Sri Ausaf Ahmad Khan, has raised this argument. Thus, since no documents of title are filed, we reject this alternative submission made by Mr. Khan.

9. Opposing the petitioners, Sri Sudeep Kumar along with Sri Anuj Kudesia, Advocate led the submissions for respondents. They submit that admittedly this slum, know as Akbar Nagar-1 and 2, is existing on the banks of Kukrail water channel, that merges in River Gomti, which supplies drinking water to nearly entire Lucknow. The population of Lucknow at present is approximately fifty lacs with additional few lacks of floating population visiting every day. All the drains of this slum, containing all its waste including faecal matter, are let loose in this Kukrail water channel, which flows to river Gomti, main supply source of drinking water to people of Lucknow. Respondents submit that clean drinking water is held to be a fundamental right under Article 21 of the Constitution of India and, thus, since fundamental rights of a large number of residents of Lucknow are involved, hence, it is incumbent that Kukrail water channel be kept clean, and thus, around 1158 constructions raised by the petitioners are required to be removed. They further submit that the LDA has already proposed a policy for rehabilitation, by providing appropriate alternative accommodation and, thus, rights of all these persons under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, of an alternative place to live, are duly protected. In support, they also rely upon the judgment and order dated 26.09.2020 passed in Paryavaran Suraksha Samiti and Another versus Union of India and Others, 2020 SCC OnLine NGT 1337.

10. Thus, respondents conclude by emphasizing, that, since it is not merely a case where the fundamental rights under Article 21 of the petitioners for a place to live is involved, but, also vis-a-vis them, the right to clean drinking water, also a fundamental right under Article 21, of every resident and visitor of Lucknow is involved. These effected residents are not even representing before this Court or any authority, except, through the respondent State authorities. Therefore, they submit, that, the present matter cannot be decided merely on procedural technicalities. Once a dispute between fundamental rights of two separate groups is involved, this Court alone has power to decide the same. Hence, conclude respondents, that this Court should consider the matter on merits and decide the rights of the effected people finally and conclusively, instead of remanding the same.

11. We have considered the submissions made by the parties. National Green Tribunal in Paryavaran Suraksha Samiti (supra) has referred to the report of OC dated 16.9.2020 and issued directions, relevant part of which reads:

"22. In O.A. 673/2018, a separate report has been filed by the Oversight Committee constituted by this Tribunal for the State of UP making following recommendations:

General Recommendations:

23. Encroachment along drains : At many places in the State there are encroachments in the flood plains of drains. For example more than 300- 400 encroacher households are living in the flood plain of Kukrail drain in Lucknow city. In the absence of any regular toilet facilities, their faecal matter/grey water is washed away directly in the river Gomti, which also supplies drinking water to Lucknow city. The State government needs to take steps for removing such encroachments on priority by rehabilitating these households under the "Housing for All" programme.

32. Monitoring Mechanism: The Committee finds that a number of problems are coordination problems among various departments. Such issues can easily be resolved if there is a regular monthly meeting at the CS level, which unfortunately is not happening. The Committee requests the CS to hold a monthly monitoring meeting as laid down in the monitoring framework submitted by the State Govt. before NGT."

12. The National Green Tribunal further observed:

"Going Forward

24. We have duly considered the CPCB, CMC and OC reports as above and noted the gaps and recommendations. We accept the recommendations of the Committees already quoted above that the States should furnish quality information and comply with the directions of this Tribunal in terms of orders dated 06.12.2019 and 29.06.2020. The violation of mandate of 100% treatment of sewage may be visited with the assessment and recovery of compensation and violation of timelines for setting up of pollution control devices may also be likewise strictly enforced with the compensation regime in place. There is also need for fully utilizing and augmenting the existing infrastructure as already noted above.

25. The States/UTs may consider using HAM as a business model as well as OCOP concept, FSSM Policy, alternative models for treatment of sewage/faecal sludge, decentralized STPs and also strengthen the online monitoring system. We are also of the view that flood plain zones of all the rivers need to be mapped and demarcated and encroachments removed therefrom. The same be utilized for plantation, creation of bio-diversity parks and constructed wetlands or other recreational purposes, consistent with the environmental concern. We agree with the OC that river side mining needs to be regulated. To reduce the timelines for setting up of STPs, many States/UTs are consuming time in preparing DPRs whereas model DPRs. can be prepared and used for shortening the timelines. Similarly, SOPs need to be prepared for the timeline to be taken in setting up of STPs as well as for maintenance and operation of existing STPs particularly those not meeting the norms. Number of monitoring stations also needs to be suitably increased. We are also of the view that the State RRCs must function effectively and the Chief Secretaries must hold monthly meetings as it is found from the report of the OC for the State of UP that the Chief Secretaries may not be doing so. Huge failures of the States/UTs may show poor governance as far as environment is concerned which may need to be remedied. As found by the CMC, neither delay is explained nor accountability is fixed for the failure of the concerned officers which is not a happy situation.

V. Directions

36. Accordingly, we issue following directions:

.....

v. It must be ensured that no untreated sewage/effluent is discharged into any water body. Prompt remedial action may be taken by the State PCBs/PCCs against non-compliant ETPs/CETPs by closing down or restricting the effluents generating activity, recovering compensation and taking other coercive measures following due process of law.

vi. Directions outlined in Paras 24-26 herein may be implemented by the States/ UTs,and their compliance monitored by the Chief Secretaries at the State level, and the CMC at the National level."

13. The National Green Tribunal as far back as in the year 2020 found existence of the Akbar Nagar slums as a serious ecological issue impacting supply of clean drinking water to Lucknow city and had asked for its removal, which is pending even after four years till now. The matter requires urgent attention. Similarly, petitioners also are entitled to get their rights decided once for all to settle and proceed in life without any threat of eviction looming upon them. Thus, looking into the urgency and also the nature of dispute involved, we take up these matters on merit instead of remanding them to any authority. We find it appropriate, at this stage, to refer to the words of Supreme Court in Delhi Development Authority and others v. Joint Action Committee, Allottee of SFS Flats and others, (2008) 2 SCC 672:

"42. While acting as "State" within the meaning of Article 12 of the Constitution of India, it is imperative that DDA, while implementing its statutory power, upholds the fundamental rights of the citizens and strives hard to give effect to the directive principles of the State policy. We, however, cannot also shut our eyes to the fact that in terms of Article 37 of the Constitution of India whereas the provisions of Part III are justiciable, the provisions of Part IV are not. Only when an action of the State is taken to give effect to any of the provision of Part IV of the Constitution of India which is not otherwise ultra vires the Constitution or offends the principles embodied in Part III of the Constitution of India, the same may be upheld, having regard to the provisions contained in Part III thereof. The action of the State, therefore, must at the first instance be adjudged on the touchstone of the principles of fundamental rights and then the provisions contained in the parliamentary Act, the regulations framed thereunder as also the terms of the contract entered into by and between the parties."

14. Right to live under Article 21 is elaborated upon in a large number of judgments of the Courts. The Supreme Court has held that Article 21 includes within its sphere right to live with human dignity. It would include all aspects that make life meaningful, complete and worth living. The right to food, water, decent environment, education, medical care and shelter are some of its aspects. Thus, both, right of a proper shelter as well as right to neat and clean drinking water is covered by Article 21.

15. Some of the judgments wherein Supreme Court has considered the right to clean drinking water are:

Subhash Kumar vs. State of Bihar and others (1991) 1 SCC 598, paragraph 7 :

"Right to live is a fundamental right under Article 21 of the Constitution and it includes the right of enjoyment of pollution-free water and air for full enjoyment of life."

Vellore Citizens' Welfare Forum v. Union of India and others (1996) 5 SCC 647, paragraph 16:

"16. The constitutional and statutory provisions protect a person's right to fresh air, clean water and pollution-free environment, but the source of the right is the inalienable common law right of clean environment……"

Delhi Water Supply and Sewage and another vs State of Haryana and others (1996) 2 SCC 572:

"1. Water is a gift of nature. Human hand cannot be permitted to convert this bounty into a curse, an oppression. The primary use to which water is put being drinking, it would be mocking nature to force the people who live on the bank of a river to remain thirsty, whereas others incidentally placed in an advantageous position are allowed to use the water for non-drinking purposes. A river has to flow through some territory; and it would be travesty of justice if the upper-riparian States were to use its water for purposes like irrigation, denying the lower-riparian States the benefit of using the water even for quenching the thirst of its residents."

M.C. Mehta v. Kamal Nath and others (1997) 1 SCC 388:

"34. Our legal system - based on English common law - includes the public trust doctrine as part of its jurisprudence. The State is the trustee of all natural resources which are by nature meant for public use and enjoyment. Public at large is the beneficiary of the sea-shore, running waters, airs, forests and ecologically fragile lands. The State as a trustee is under a legal duty to protect the natural resources. These resources meant for public use cannot be converted into private ownership."

"A.P. Pollution Control Board II v. Prof. M.V. Nayudu (Retd.) and others (2001) 2 SCC 62:

"3. Drinking water is of primary importance in any country. In fact, India is a party to the resolution of the UNO passed during the United Nations Water Conference in 1977 as under:

"All people, whatever their stage of development and their social and economic conditions, have the right to have access to drinking water in quantum and of a quality equal to their basic needs."

Thus, the right to access to drinking water is fundamental to life and there is a duty on the State under Article 21 to provide clean drinking water to its citizens.

4. Adverting to the above right declared in the aforesaid Resolution, in

Narmada Bachao Andolan v. Union of India [(2000) 10 SCC 664 : (2000) 7 Scale 34] (Scale at p. 124 : SCC p. 767, para 248), Kirpal, J. observed:

"248. Water is the basic need for the survival of human beings and is part of the right to life and human rights as enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution of India…."

.....

44. Coming to the provisions of the Water Act, 1974, it is clear that in view of sub-sections 2(e), 2(k) read with Sections 17 and 18 of the Water Act, the fundamental objective of the statute is to provide clean drinking water to the citizens. Having laid down the policy prohibiting location of any industries within 10 km under GO No. 111 dated 8-3-1996, the State could not have granted exemption to the 7th respondent Industry, nor to any other industry, from any part of the main GO No. 111 dated 8-3-1996. Section 19 permitted the State to restrict the application of the Water Act, 1974 to a particular area, if need be, but it did not enable the State to grant exemption to a particular industry within the area prohibited for location of polluting industries. Exercise of such a power in favour of a particular industry must be treated as arbitrary and contrary to public interest and in violation of the right to clean water under Article 21 of the Constitution of India.

45. The above reasoning given by us does not mean that exemption can be given to all industries within a particular radius of the reservoirs unmindful of the possible danger of pollution to the lakes. In fact, exemption granted even to a single major hazardous industry may itself be sufficient to make the water in the reservoirs totally unsafe for drinking water purposes. The Government could not pass such orders of exemption having dangerous potential, unmindful of the fate of lakhs of citizens of the twin cities to whom drinking water is supplied from these lakes. Such an order of exemption carelessly passed, ignoring the "precautionary principle", could be catastrophic."

Narmada Bachao Andolan v. Union of India and others (2000) 10 SCC 664:

"248. Water is the basic need for the survival of human beings and is part of the right to life and human rights as enshrined in Article 21 of the Constitution of India and can be served only by providing source of water where there is none. The resolution of UNO in 1977 to which India is a signatory, during the United Nations Water Conference resolved unanimously inter alia as under:

M.C. Mehta v. Union of India and others, (2004) 12 SCC 118:

"46. Further, by the Forty-second Constitutional Amendment, Article 48-A was inserted in the Constitution in Part IV stipulating that the State shall endeavour to protect and improve the environment and to safeguard the forest and wildlife of the country. Article 51-A, inter alia, provides that it shall be the duty of every citizen of India to protect and improve the natural environment including forest, lakes, rivers and wildlife and to have compassion for living creatures. Article 47 which provides that it shall be the duty of the State to raise the level of nutrition and the standard of living and to improve public health is also relevant in this connection. The most vital necessities, namely, air, water and soil, having regard to right to life under Article

21 cannot be permitted to be misused and polluted so as to reduce the quality of life of others. Having regard to the right of the community at large it is permissible to encourage the participation of amicus curiae, the appointment of experts and the appointments of Monitory Committees. The approach of the Court has to be liberal towards ensuring social justice and protection of human rights. In M.C. Mehta v. Union of India [(1987) 4 SCC 463] this Court held that life, public health and ecology has priority over unemployment and loss of revenue. The definition of "sustainable development" which Brundtland gave more than 3 decades back still holds good. The phrase covers the development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of the future generation to meet their own needs*. In Narmada Bachao Andolan v. Union of India [(2000) 10 SCC 664] this Court observed that sustainable development means the type or extent of development that can take place and which can be sustained by nature/ecology with or without mitigation. In these matters*, the required standard now is that the risk of harm to the environment or to human health is to be decided in public interest, according to a "reasonable person's" test*. [See Chairman Barton: The Status of the Precautionary Principle in Australia (Vol. 22, 1998, Harv. Envtt. Law Review, p. 509 at p. 549-A) as referred to in para 28 in A.P. Pollution Control Board v. Prof. M.V. Nayudu [(1999) 2 SCC 718] .]*

16. Similarly, the Supreme Court has also considered, in a large number of cases, rights of the slum dwellers in unauthorized occupation of Government land. Some of them are:

Olga Tellis and others vs. Bombay Municipal Corporation and others (1985) 3 SCC 545, paragraph-57:

"57. To summarise, we hold that no person has the right to encroach, by erecting a structure or otherwise, on footpaths, pavements or any other place reserved or earmarked for a public purpose like, for example, a garden or a playground; that the provision contained in Section 314 of the Bombay Municipal Corporation Act is not unreasonable in the circumstances of the case; and that, the Kamraj Nagar Basti is situated on an accessory road leading to the Western Express Highway. We have referred to the assurances given by the State Government in its pleadings here which, we repeat, must be made good. Stated briefly, pavement dwellers who were censused or who happened to be censused in 1976 should be given, though not as a condition precedent to their removal, alternate pitches at Malavani or, at such other convenient place as the Government considers reasonable but not farther away in terms of distance; slum dwellers who were given identity cards and whose dwellings were numbered in the 1976 census must be given alternate sites for their resettlement; slums which have been in existence for a long time, say for twenty years or more, and which have been improved and developed will not be removed unless the land on which they stand or the appurtenant land, is required for a public purpose, in which case, alternate sites or accommodation will be provided to them; the "Low Income Scheme Shelter Programme" which is proposed to be undertaken with the aid of the World Bank will be pursued earnestly; and, the "Slum upgradation Programme (SUP)" under which basic amenities are to be given to slum dwellers will be implemented without delay. In order to minimise the hardship involved in any eviction, we direct that the slums, wherever situated, will not be removed until one month after the end of the current monsoon season, that is, until October 31, 1985 and, thereafter, only in accordance with this judgment. If any slum is required to be removed before that date, parties may apply to this Court. Pavement dwellers, whether censused or uncensused, will not be removed until the same date viz. October 31, 1985."

Ahmedabad Municipal Corporation vs. Nawab Khan Gulab Khan and others (1997) 11 SCC 121, paragraph-31:

"31. It is true that in all cases it may not be necessary, as a condition for ejectment of the encroacher, that he should be provided with an alternative accommodation at the expense of the State which if given due credence, is likely to result in abuse of the judicial process. But no absolute principle of universal application would be laid in this behalf. Each case is required to be examined on the given set of facts and appropriate direction or remedy be evolved by the court suitable to the facts of the case. Normally, the court may not, as a rule, direct that the encroachers should be provided with an alternative accommodation before ejectment when they encroached public properties, but, as stated earlier, each case requires examination and suitable direction appropriate to the facts requires modulation. Considered from this perspective, the apprehensions of the appellant are without force."

17. The aforesaid judgments clearly demonstrate that right to have a proper shelter overhead and right to neat and clean drinking water both are held by the Supreme Court as fundamental rights covered by Article 21 of the Constitution of India. In the present case, it is clear that petitioners do have a fundamental right to proper shelter over their head fit for human living. Similarly, more than fifty lac residents of Lucknow also have a fundamental right to neat and clean drinking water.

18. Thus, the fundamental right of large number of petitioners for a habitable living place is in contest with the fundamental right of many times more larger number of residents of Lucknow, including petitioners. In the case of State of Karnataka v. Umadevi (3), (2006) 4 SCC 1 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 753 : 2006 SCC OnLine SC 407, Supreme Court has held:

"51. ……. In the name of individualising justice, it is also not possible to shut our eyes to the constitutional scheme and the right of the numerous as against the few who are before the court. The directive principles of State policy have also to be reconciled with the rights available to the citizen under Part III of the Constitution and the obligation of the State to one and all and not to a particular group of citizens."

19. Thus, in the given circumstances, the rights of these two groups are to be settled in the best possible manner. The Courts have repeatedly emphasized and upheld the necessity of clean environment including clean water. It is regarded as our duty towards future generations to come. No individual or group of persons can be permitted to violate the same. The NGT has duly noted the same and emphasized for action. The right of clean drinking water of the present and future generations of Lucknow, therefore, has to be protected. On the other hand, petitioners before this Court are unauthorized occupants of government land, without any right on the same. At best, all they can claim is an alternative place to live. The respondent authority has already offered a rehabilitation policy under which all the BPL persons are being offered appropriate flats made for Economically Weaker Section (EWS) on production of their ration card or other appropriate documents, proving that they belong to BPL category. Under the said policy, the flats with market value of Rs.15 lacs are being provided under 'Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana' at the cost of Rs.4.18 lacs only to the petitioners. It is further provided in the said policy that on a registration fee of Rs.5,000, possession of the flats would be provided. The remaining amount is to be paid in equal monthly installments within a period of ten years. Thus, a person is to pay only Rs.4,000 per month for the said flat. The policy further provides that the persons not belonging to BPL category would also be offered appropriate flats for which, payment can be made in easy installments. Thus, the fundamental right of the petitioners is also protected by the respondent authorities. Similarly other persons, not belonging to BPL category, are also offered rehabilitation accommodation.

20. Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, and some other counsel for petitioners submit that since it is a sudden shifting in duress there might be persons who may have some difficulty in paying initial Rs.5,000 or Rs.4,800 every month or complete their installment in ten years. He further submits that there may be some persons, who may not be falling in the BPL category entitled for EWS flats, but they may still not be in such a financial situation to buy a better flat. He prays that the benefit of EWS flats should be made available to all those persons being rehabilitated who apply for the same.

21. We find some force in the said submission of the petitioners. It is, therefore, provided that any person being rehabilitated from Akbar Nagar slums applying for EWS accommodation, shall be provided such an accommodation. Further, we find that these persons applying for EWS flats may face some financial constraints also. We, therefore, provide that EWS flats shall be provided on initial registration deposit of Rs.1,000 instead of Rs.5,000. Further, in case persons provided EWS accommodation, for some unavoidable circumstances, are unable to pay their installments within the aforesaid period of ten years, respondent authorities shall extend the said period for further appropriate period, to a maximum of five years. In case any EWS allottee still faces difficulty even to pay the said installments, it shall be open for such a person to move an appropriate application before the Chief Minister of the State, who shall consider and grant appropriate relief to such deserving bonafide person from the Chief Minister's Beneficiary Fund or from any other appropriate funds or schemes as applicable for the benefit of poor from time to time. We also extend the benefit of rehabilitation scheme to other residents of Akbar Nagar who have not approached the Court.

22. The applications under the rehabilitation scheme shall be filed by the petitioners and other similarly situated persons within a period of two weeks from today and simultaneously, the respondents shall proceed to make allotment of flats for rehabilitation and the entire process of shifting be completed positively by 31.3.2024.

23. All the residents of Akbar Nagar 1 and 2 shall vacate the disputed premises on or before the mid night of 31.3.2024 and thereafter, it shall be open for the respondent-authorities to clear the said area.

24. With the aforesaid directions, present writ petitions as well as all interlocutory applications stand disposed of.

25. Petitioner no.6-Abdulla of Writ-C No.527 of 2024 and petitioner nos.1-Mohd. Shafeek and 5-Smt. Shahana of Writ-C No.642 of 2024, have already been separated from this bunch of writ petitions and writ petitions on their behalf have already been dismissed by this Court by its order dated 27.2.2024 passed in a bunch of writ petitions, leading one being Writ-C No.11383 of 2023 "Syed Hamidul Bari vs. State of U.P. and others".

26. Similarly, petitioner no.1-Sayed Mujeeb Ahmad of Writ-C No.1396 of 2024, petitioner no.65-Mohd. Ehtisham Khan of Writ-C No.1583 of 2024, petitioner no.3-Imran Raja of Writ-C No.1210 of 2024, petitioner No.54-Mohd. Abdul Hasan of Writ-C No.1315 of 2024, petitioner no.2/6-Mohd. Shakeel of Writ-C No.1391 of 2024, petitioner nos.4-Sumit Kumar and 6-Ravi Kumar of Writ-C No.1598 of 2024 and petitioner no.113-Smt. Umaima Khatoon of Writ-C No.1316 of 2024, have also been separated from this bunch and writ petitions on their behalf have also been dismissed by this Court in the light of order dated 27.2.2024 passed in Writ-C No.11383 of 2023 and other connected matters, by a separate order passed in their respective writ petitions.

Civil Law - Constitution of India,1950-Article 226- Gram Nyayalay Act,2008-Section 34(b)-The petitioner challenges decision of Gram Nyaylay-The petitioner owns land where he constructed a house-The respondent no 3 owns adjacent land and alleged encroachment by the petitioner-the Gram Nyaylay granted a permanent injunction against the petitioner-Held, the Section 34(c) of the Act,2008 allows appeals even for cases under Rs. 5000/- the valuation of the suit was below Rs. 1000/- moreso, the principle of res judicata was wrongly ignored by the gram Nayalay-The court determined that res judicata constitutes a legal question, making the petitioner's case eligible for appeal-The petitioner had an alternate remedy through appeal u/s 34(c) of the Act,2008.(Para 1 to 13)

The writ petition is dismissed. .(E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Sri Shrawan Kumar Verma, learned counsel for the petitioner as well as Sri S.K. Khare, learned Standing Counsel for respondent no. 1 and Sri Rayees Ahmad

Khan, learned counsel appearing for respondent no. 3.

2. The petitioner is aggrieved by the judgment and order dated 10.01.2024, passed by the Judicial Magistrate, Gram Nyayalay, Tulsipur, Balrampur wherein he has allowed the suit preferred by respondent no. 3 seeking permanent injunction against petitioner, who was respondent no. 2 in the said suit.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that petitioner is owner and in possession over Gata No. 1589/0.06 dismil in which he has constructed a house, while respondent no. 3 is owner of Gata No. 1590/2.23 acres, situated at Village - Gulahariya Hisampur, Pargana and Tehsil - Tulsipur, District - Balrampur. Both the plots are adjacent to each other and in the suit preferred by respondent no. 3 it was alleged that petitioner has encroached upon the land of respondent no. 3/plaintiff illegally and consequently relief of permanent injunction was sought. Respondent no. 2/petitioner herein appeared before the Gram Nyayalay and participated in the suit proceedings. After examining the contentions as well as evidence on record the suit was allowed by means of impugned judgment and order dated 10.01.2024.

4. Preliminary objection has been raised by learned counsel for the respondents stating that against the impugned judgment passed under the Gram Nyayalay Act, 2008 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 2008") the said judgment is appellable before the district Courts as per Section 34 of the Act, 2008.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has opposed the said preliminary objection stating that in the present mater valuation of suit was less then Rs.1000/- and as per sub-section (b) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008 an appeal does not lie where the valuation of the suit does not exceed Rs.1000/- and consequently, the petitioner does not have any other remedy except for filing writ petition.

6. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

7. The primary issue raised by the respondents is with regard to availability of alternate remedy of appeal to the petitioner who is aggrieved by the impugned judgment dated 10.01.2024. For the sake of convenience Section 34 of the Act, 2008 is quoted herein below :-

"34. Appeal in civil cases.- (1) Notwithstanding any thing contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) or any other law, and subject to sub-section (2), an appeal shall lie from every judgment or order, not being an interlocutory order, of a Gram Nyayalaya to the District Court.

(2) No appeal shall lie from any judgment or order passed by the Gram Nyayalaya-

(a) with the consent of the parties;

(b) where the amount or value of the subject matter of a suit, claim or dispute does not exceed rupees one thousand;

(c) except on a question of law, where the amount or value of the subject matter of such suit, claim or dispute does not exceed rupees five thousand.

(3) Every appeal under this section shall be preferred within a period of thirty days from the date of the judgment or order of a Gram Nyayalaya:

Provided that the District Court may entertain an appeal after the expiry of the said period of thirty days if it is satisfied that the appellant had sufficient cause for not preferring the appeal within the said period.

(4) An appeal preferred under sub-section (1) shall be heard and disposed of by the District Court within six months from the date of filing of the appeal.

(5) The District Judge may, pending disposal of the appeal, stay execution of the judgment or order appealed against.

(6) The decision of the District Court under sub-section (4) shall be final and no appeal or revision shall lie from the decision of the District Court: Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall preclude any person from availing of the judicial remedies available under articles 32 and 226 of the Constitution."

8. No doubt sub-section (b) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008 no appeal will lie where valuation of suit does not exceed Rs.1000/-, but according to sub-section (c) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008 it is provided that where question of law arises for consideration and valuation of suit does not exceed Rs.5000/- then an appeal would be maintainable.

9. It is noticed that sub-section (c) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008 starts with the word "except" and therefore it can safely be assumed that sub-section (c) is in the nature of exception to sub-section (b) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008 which bars filing of appeal in case where valuation of the suit is less then Rs.1000/-.

10. In the present case one of the ground taken by the petitioner to oppose the suit was that on the previous occasion where cause of action was similar, the said suit was dismissed and the said dismissal of the suit acted as re-judicata in the present suit proceedings. There were other grounds also taken by the petitioner to oppose the said suit. All the grounds are not considered presently while deciding the issue of maintainability of the present writ petition and also considering whether the petitioner has alternate remedy of appeal.

11. The petitioner has challenged the impugned order on the ground of res-judicata and has submitted that the Gram Nyayalay has wrongly decided the said issue and in fact the suit proceedings were barred by the principle of res-judicata. The petitioner also does not dispute the fact that this question if raised would be a question of law in the appellate proceedings and in the light of above submissions there is no doubt that case of the petitioner would fall under sub-section (c) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008 and where valuation of the sit does not exceed Rs.5000/- and question of law arises for determination then certainly appeal can be preferred against the order of Gram Nyayalay under sub-section (c) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008.

12. In the light of above, this Court is of the considered view that the petitioner has efficacious alternate remedy of appeal under sub-section (c) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008 and since the petitioner has efficacious alternate remedy against the impugned judgment this Court would not entertain the present writ petition against the order of Gram Nyayalay, in the peculiar facts of the present case.

13. In the light of above, the preliminary objection raised by the respondents is sustained. The writ petition is dismissed on the ground of availability of alternate remedy under sub-section (b) of Section 34 of the Act, 2008.

2. Land & Building Department through Secretary & anr. Vs Attro Devi, Civil Appeal No. 2749 of 2023 (decided on 11.04.2023)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J & Hon'ble Syed Qamar Hasan Rizvi, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed with the prayer to issue a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents not to demolish the construction of petitioner situated on plot no.534 having an area of 0.7510 hectare situated in village Tushyana, Pargana and Tehsil Dadri, District Gautam Buddh Nagar. A further prayer is made to command the respondents not to interfere in the peaceful possession of the petitioner on the aforesaid plot.

2. Facts of the case, as emerge from the record, are that the State Government exercising its power of eminent domain issued a notification under Section 4(1)/17(4) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act') on 10.4.2006 for acquisition of the plot in question. Urgency clause was invoked and the inquiry contemplated under Section 5-A of the Act was dispensed with. A declaration under Section 6(1)/17(1) of the Act came to be made on 30.11.2006. The respondents took possession of the entire acquired land of plot no.534 on 2.2.2007. An award in terms of Section 11 of the Act was made by the District Magistrate on 27.4.2010. It is undisputed that by invoking the power of acquisition under the Act the State acquired the entire land of plot no.534 and the acquisition proceedings have attained finality. Neither the award is under challenge nor any of the proceedings undertaken thereunder. The effect of such acquisition proceedings, in the context of prayer made in the writ petition, would be dealt with a little later.

3. Petitioner submits that in the proposal submitted for acquisition it was found that plot no.534 had six shops and a gallery and that by virtue of a provision contained in the Government Order dated 24.4.2010 the petitioner was entitled to lease back of the portion of land which was covered by the Government Order.

4. Sri H.N. Singh, learned Senior counsel for the petitioner also places reliance upon the provisions contained in Greater Noida Industrial Development Rural Abadi Sites (Management and Regularization) Regulation, 2011, in order to submit that petitioner has a right of regularization of rural abadi site which existed before 30.6.2011. Attention of the Court has been invited to Regulation 4 of the 2011 Regulation which contemplates constitution of a committee and the functions of the committee have been defined in Rule 5. According to the petitioner there exists a provision for moving of an application for regularization and the maximum land which can be settled for residential/commercial use have been specified. It is submitted that though such an application was moved by the petitioner but such plea of protection of abadi area is rejected by the Chief Executive Officer. The matter was carried in revision before the State, wherein also the petitioner was non-suited.

5. Writ-C no.18997 of 2023 filed against the revisional order has been allowed and the matter has been remitted back to the State Government for a fresh consideration. It is submitted that the State Government has not reconsidered the matter and in between the authorities are proposing to take physical possession of the petitioner's land. It is also submitted that since the petitioner is in settled possession over the property, as such he cannot be dispossessed except in accordance with law. According to learned Senior counsel, this would require filing of a suit by the development authority for taking possession or for filing of appropriate proceedings under the Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1971. Since this has not been done, the authorities ought to be restrained in the present writ from interfering with the petitioner's possession.

6. Ms. Anjali Upadhya, learned counsel for the respondent-authority, on the other hand, submits that the acquisition proceedings having been concluded, in accordance with law, right, title or interest of the petitioner stands extinguished in the property and, therefore, no writ of mandamus can be issued to protect petitioner's possession over such acquired land. It is also submitted that since the claim of settlement of abadi by virtue of Regulations of 2011 also stands rejected, and the petitioner has not sought any protection in his pending revision before the State Government, he is not entitle to any relief.

7. We have heard learned counsel for the parties and have perused the materials on record.

8. From the facts as have been noticed above it is abundantly clear that land falling part of khasra no.534 stood acquired pursuant to declaration made under Section 6 of the Act. Satisfaction that such land is needed for public purposes has attached finality. Section 17 of the Act of 1894 containing urgency clause has also been invoked while issuing declaration under Section 6 of the Act. Section 17(1) of the Act clearly provides that in case of urgency the State is free to take possession of the land on expiration of fifteen days from the date of notice mentioned under Section 9 of the Act upon payment of 80% estimated compensation. As a consequence such land shall thereupon vest absolutely in the Government free from all encumbrances.

9. As a result of the above statutory scheme, it is clear that when the possession of the land is taken after issuance of notice under Section 9 of the Act, the tenure holder would be extinguished of any right, title or interest over such land. The statutory consequence, as is clearly enumerated in law, cannot be avoided or obstructed by the tenure holder, particularly when the acquisition proceedings itself are not under challenge.

10. We find substance in the contention advanced on behalf of the respondents that once the land has been acquired; possession has been taken on 2.2.2007; and an award has been made under Section 11 of the Act on 27.4.2010 the vesting of a land in the State would be complete. It is otherwise a case of invocation of urgency and, therefore, before award such vesting shall follow if possession is taken after notice under Section 9 of the Act.

11. The position of law in this regard has already been settled by the Constitution Bench of Supreme Court in Indore Development Authority v. Manoharlal and Others (2020) 8 SCC 129. After analyzing the statutory scheme, the Court held as under in para 258 of the judgment:-

"258. Thus, it is apparent that vesting is with possession and the statute has provided under Sections 16 and 17 of the 1894 Act that once possession is taken, absolute vesting occurred. It is an indefeasible right and vesting is with possession thereafter. The vesting specified under Section 16, takes place after various steps, such as, notification under Section 4, declaration under Section 6, notice under Section 9, award under Section 11 and then possession. The statutory provision of vesting of property absolutely free from all encumbrances has to be accorded full effect. Not only the possession vests in the State but all other encumbrances are also removed forthwith. The title of the landholder ceases and the State becomes the absolute owner and in possession of the property. Thereafter there is no control of the landowner over the property. He cannot have any animus to take the property and to control it. Even if he has retained the possession or otherwise trespassed upon it after possession has been taken by the State, he is a trespasser and such possession of trespasser enures for his benefit and on behalf of the owner."

12. Once that be so, we find that no writ of mandamus can be issued against the State or the acquiring body to obstruct the utilization of land which has already vested in the authority free from all encumbrances. No further notice is otherwise required to be issued to the petitioner in the matter.

13. Writ of mandamus can only be issued for performance of a legal obligation on part of the State or its instrumental/authority. No writ of mandamus can be issued for restraining the State/authority from undertaking act which is, in accordance with law. Since the vesting of land is complete in the State consequent upon acquisition of land, it would not be open for the petitioner to claim issuance of a writ of mandamus for restraining the respondents from asserting their right over the acquired land.

14. The argument that petitioner is in settled possession and, therefore, can be dispossessed only as per law is also an argument bereft of merits. As the land has statutorily vested in the State/authority free from all encumbrances, and possession over the land has otherwise been taken in the manner stipulated in law, it would not be necessary for the authority to either institute a suit to take possession or to institute proceedings under Public Premises (Eviction of Unauthorized Occupants) Act, 1971 to physically dispossess the petitioner. The acquisition by the State/authority is of a vast tract of agricultural land and it would not be expected that actual physical possession continues with the State on every inch of the land. Taking of possession pursuant to notice under Section 9 of the Act is otherwise not disputed. In such circumstances, the grievance raised that petitioner is being evicted except in accordance with law is devoid of merits and, therefore, rejected.

15. Supreme Court in Land & Building Department through Secretary & Anr. vs. Attro Devi in Civil Appeal No.2749 of 2023 decided on 11.4.2023 has made following observations in para 13:-

"13. It is also a fact to be noticed and taken care of that large chunk of land is acquired for planned development to take care of immediate need and also keep buffer for future requirements. Such portion of land may be lying vacant also. As has been observed in Indore Development Authority's case (supra) by this Court, the State agencies are not supposed to put police force to protect possession of the land taken after process of acquisition is complete....."

16. So far as existence of structures on the plot of the petitioner is concerned, we are of the view that such structures would form part of land acquired under the Act and also vest in the authority free from all encumbrances. The petitioner at best would be entitle to claim compensation for such structures as per the award. Undisputedly, the award has been made on 27.4.2010. Neither the award has been placed before the Court nor there are any pleadings that in the award adequate compensation for structures have not been provided. In the absence of any challenge to the award, we refrain ourselves from expressing anything further in respect of petitioner's right of compensation over such land which has vested in the State/authority free from all encumbrances.

17. So far as the petitioner's claim of protection of his abadi site is concerned, we find that decision by the committee has already taken to reject petitioner's claim and that matter has now been remitted to the State Government. Remedy of the petitioner, in such circumstances, would be to press his revision before the State or to move appropriate application etc. for its expeditious disposal. Merely because the revision is pending we would not be justified in issuing a writ of mandamus to restrain the authority from interfering with petitioner's possession when the land has statutorily vested in the State free from all encumbrances.

18. So far as petitioner's contention that Article 300-A of the Constitution of India is violated is concerned, we find such argument to be misconceived, inasmuch as the protection which the Constitution provides under Article 300-A is that a person would not be deprived of his property except in accordance with law. Since the acquisition herein is in accordance with the provisions of the Act of 1894, the consequence in the nature of vesting of land cannot be treated to be an act violative of Article 300-A.

19. The writ petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

Civil Law - Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-U.P. Industrial Development Act,1976-Section 2(d)-The petitioner an agriculturist challenged a notification dated 25.09.2023 issued u/s 2(d) of the Act,1976 which included his village within the territorial limits of the U.P. Expressways Industrial Development Authortiy(UPEIDA)-He argued that this inclusion would prevent him from continuing agricultural activities and affect his right to live, including the ability to construct the house-The court held that the notification was neither arbitrary nor malafide-the petitioner failed to show any misuse of power or ulterior motives behind the notification-The court affirms the State's discretion to promote planned industrial development while protecting agricultural rights until land acquisition occurs as per legal norms.(Para 1 to 11) .(E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J. & Hon'ble Syed Qamar Hasan Rizvi, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the parties.

2. This petition has been filed by the petitioner, who claims to be the resident of village Wari at district Prayagraj, challenging a notification issued by the State Government dated 25.9.2023, under Section 2(d) of the U.P. Industrial Development Act, 1976, whereby various villages including village Wari has been included within the territorial limits of the U.P. Expressways Industrial Development Authority (UPEIDA). The notification is primarily challenged on the ground that the petitioner, who is agriculturist of the village would now be prevented from undertaking any agricultural activity on his own land. It is also submitted that on account of the notification under challenge the petitioner would be prevented from raising construction of his house etc. It is also submitted that the petitioner's right to live would also be affected.

3. Petition is opposed by the learned State counsel as also Sri J.B. Singh, learned counsel for the second respondent, on the ground that the notification issued by the State is perfectly just and valid and requires no interference.

4. In order to appreciate the contentions advanced it would be appropriate to refer to the provisions contained in the U.P. Industrial Area Development Act, 1976 (U.P. Act No. 6 of 1976). This Act has been passed by the State Legislature to provide for Constitution of an Authority for the development of certain areas in the State into industrial and urban township and for matters connected therewith. Section 2(d) of the Act contains definition of 'Industrial Development Area' to mean an area declared as such by the State Government by notification. The Authority has been defined under Section 2(b) to mean an Authority constituted under Section 3 of the Act. Section 3 of the Act empowers the State Government to constitute an Industrial Development Authority for any industrial development area notified under Section 2(d).

5. Section 3(1) of the Act reads as under:

> "The State Government may, by notification, constitute for the purposes of this Act, An authority to be called (Name of the area) Industrial Development Authority, for any industrial development area."

6. By virtue of sub-section 2 of Section 3, the Industrial Development Authority is to be a body corporate. The Constitution of the members of the Authority is then specified in Section 3. The functions of the Industrial Development Authority have been specified in Section 6 of the Act. The object of the Authority is to secure the planned development of industrial development area. For the purposes of such planned industrial development of the area, powers are given to the Industrial Development Authority to demarcate and develop sites for industrial, commercial and residential purpose according to the plan; to provide infrastructure for industrial, commercial and residential purposes; to provide amenities and to do other ancillary functions as are specified in Section 6 including to regulate the erection of buildings and setting up of industries. Section 7 confers power upon the Authority to transfer its land or buildings. Powers of the Authority to issue various directions are contained in Section 8. Section 9 of the Act contains an embargo whereby no person is authorised to erect or occupy any building in the industrial development area in contravention of any building regulations made by the Authority. The Authority is conferred jurisdiction to require proper maintenance of site or building or levy tax etc. Various provisions of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 have also been incorporated in the Act of 1976.

7. From the scheme of the Act as has been noticed above, it is apparent that the State Government is competent in law to issue a notification under Section 2(d) of the Act and thereby any area declared by the State Government by notification would be treated as an industrial development area. This industrial development area will have to be for a particular Industrial Development Authority constituted under Section 3 of the Act. The notification herein clearly reveals that the villages specified in the schedule to the notification would be included in the area of UPEIDA. The power of the State to declare an area as industrial development area under the Act of 1976 is not questioned. The notification under challenge is thus shown to have been issued in exercise of valid authority vested in the State by virtue of Section 2(d) of the Act of 1976.

8. The first argument advanced on behalf of the petitioner is that specific reasons have not been disclosed as to why the land earmarked in the schedule to the notification are proposed to be included in the industrial development area. This argument of the petitioner does not appeal to the Court, inasmuch as the law does not require any exhaustive explanation to be given in the notification under Section 2(d) of the Act as to why a particular area is required to be included in the industrial development area of the concerned Industrial Authority. It is always the prerogative of the State to include a particular area within the limits of the Industrial Development Authority. There is nothing stated in the petition which may show the notification to be malafide or arbitrary. The respondent Industrial Development Authority has been constituted essentially for development of industrial areas near-by the expressways. It is undisputed that village Wari situates in close vicinity to National Highway No. 2. There is no allegation in the writ that the land included in the limits of the respondent Industrial Development Authority is included for some oblique purpose or that there is a colourable exercise of power exercised by the State, in that regard. In the absence of any such plea, we are not inclined to accept the petitioner's argument that the land of village Wari cannot be included in the industrial development area only because specific reasons have not been enumerated in that regard.

9. The other contention of the petitioner is that the petitioner would be prohibited from undertaking any agricultural activity on his land. This argument is wholly misconceived. The Act of 1976 empowers the State to constitute Industrial Development Authority for development of certain areas according to the plan for industrial development. The Authority would be empowered to exercise such jurisdiction and functions as are specifically entrusted to it under the Act of 1976. The Authority would be entitled to regulate the development in the notified industrial development area and to ensure that the development in such area is not unplanned.

10. We find no reason to object to such planned industrial development of the area. The State otherwise has the right to acquire land for valid purpose in accordance with law. Unless the land is acquired for a valid purpose, as per law, the agriculturist would continue to use his land for agricultural purpose. It is not shown in the writ that any of the agricultural activity in the area is proposed to be obstructed merely on inclusion of the land of village Wari in the limits of the Industrial Development Authority. The agricultural activities which are being undertaken by the petitioner would continue unless the petitioner's land itself is acquired in accordance with law. The argument that the petitioner would be deprived of utilising his agricultural land is therefore found misconceived.

11. In view of the deliberations and discussions as above, we find the writ petition to have no force and is accordingly dismissed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Rahul Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing counsel for the respondents.

2. The instant petition has been filed praying for the following main relief:

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari thereby quashing of the impugned order dated 18.01.2023 passed by opposite party No.1 in Case No.00462 of 2021 (Santosh Kumar Vs. State), computerized Case No.C202108000000462, under Section 18 of Indian Arms Act, 1959 and order dated 18.03.2021 passed by opposite party No.2 in Case No.00485/2021 computerized Case No.D202108150000485, State Vs. Santosh Kumar, under Section-17 (3) of Indians Arms Act, 1959, as contained in Annexure Nos.1 & 2 respectively to this writ petition."

3. The case set forth by learned counsel for the petitioner is that the petitioner was having an arms license. An incident occurred on 17.03.2020, on the basis of which an FIR was lodged against the petitioner and certain other persons on 18.03.2020 under Sections 147, 148, 149 and 302 of the IPC. The case was registered as Case Crime No.78 of 2020. After issuance of show cause notice and after considering the reply of the petitioner, the competent authority vide order dated 18.03.2021, a copy of which is Annexure No.2 to the writ petition, considering the pendency of the said criminal case, has cancelled the arms license of the petitioner.

4. Being aggrieved, the petitioner filed an appeal, which too has been rejected vide order dated 18.01.2023, a copy of which is Annexure No.1 to the writ petition.

5. Being aggrieved by both the orders impugned, the instant writ petition has been filed.

6. The contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that it is settled proposition of law that mere pendency of a criminal case cannot be a ground to cancel the arms license of the petitioner. In this regard, he has placed reliance on the judgement of this Court in the case of Pramod Kumar Vs. State of U.P reported in 2010 (5) ADJ 594 as well as the case of Mukesh Kumar Yadav Vs. Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow reported in 2017 (35) LCD 2017.

7. The contention is that despite the aforesaid law as laid down by this Court, the competent authority by simply considering the criminal case lodged against the petitioner has cancelled the arms license of the petitioner. He further states that the petitioner has already been acquitted in the said criminal case by the competent criminal court vide judgment and order dated 31.05.2022, a copy of which is Annexure No.4 to the writ petition, as such even the said ground no longer exists and consequently, there cannot be any occasion for continuance of the aforesaid orders.

8. On the other hand, Shri Rahul Shukla, learned Additional Chief Standing states that a perusal of the acquittal order dated 31.05.2022 would indicate that the petitioner has been granted acquittal on the basis of benefit of doubt.

9. Placing reliance on the judgement of this Court in the case of Indrajeet Singh Vs. State of U.P. and others 2021 (10) ADJ 471, it is argued that this Court has held that where the acquittal is on the basis of benefit of doubt and not honorable acquittal the same may not resile from the fact that the petitioner has got criminal antecedents and as such there cannot be any occasion for continuance of arms license and thus it is prayed that no interference is required with the orders by which the arms license has been cancelled and the order by which the appeal filed by the petitioner has been dismissed.

10. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. From the perusal of the record, it emerges that on account of an incident which occurred on 17.03.2020, an FIR was lodged against the petitioner on 18.03.2020 under Section 148, 149, 149 and 302 of the IPC, which was registered as Case Crime No.78 of 2020. During the pendency of the said case, after issuance of a show cause notice, the competent authority has cancelled the arms license of the petitioner vide order dated 18.03.2021 on the ground of pendency of the said criminal case. The said order has been affirmed with the dismissal of the appeal by the appellate authority vide order dated 18.01.2023. Further the appellate authority has also considered the acquittal of the petitioner, though on the basis of benefit of doubt but has said that because the petitioner is a person having criminal antecedents, as such, there cannot be any occasion for continuance of the arms license of the petitioner.

12. Whether the arms license can be cancelled on the basis of pendency of criminal case is no longer res integra having settled by this Court in the case of Pramod Kumar (supra), wherein this Court has held as under:-

"8. The question as to whether mere involvement in a criminal case or pendency of a criminal case can be a ground for revocation of the licence under Section 17 of the Arms Act has been considered by a Division Bench of this Court in Sheo Prasad Misra Vs. District Magistrate Basti and others, 1979 (16)ACC 6 (sum), wherein the Division Bench relied upon an earlier decision in Mast Uddin Vs. Commissioner, Allahabad, 1972 ALJ 573. In both the aforesaid cases it has been held that mere involvement in a criminal case cannot in any way effect the public security or public interest. In view of this proposition of law the order cancelling or revoking the licence of the petitioner on the aforesaid ground of involvement and pendency of a criminal case is not tenable.

9. In Full Bench Decision of this Court rendered in Chhanga Prasad Sahu Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, 1984(10) ALR 223 and Kailash Nath and others Vs. State of U.P. and others, 1985 (22) ACC 353 and in the case of Rana Pratap Singh Vs. State of U.P. 1994 JIC 72 (All); 1995 (Supp) ACC 235, it has been held that mere pendency of a criminal case (s) is no ground for cancellation of arms licence. The effect of the aforesaid Full Bench decisions was also considered in Sadri Ram Vs. District Magistrate, Azamgarh and others, 1998 (3) AWC 2102: 1998 (37) ACC 830.

10. This court in the case of Harprasad (supra) held as hereunder:

" involvement and pendency of a case crime is no ground for cancellation of fire-arm licence. It is settled law that after acquittal the very basis for cancellation of the arm licence stands vitiated. In this regard reference of the decision rendered in Lalji Vs. Commissioner, Kanpur and another, 1999 (4) AWC 2952, has been made."

11. Thus in view of the admitted facts and the settled legal position that a fire arm licence can not be cancelled on the ground of mere involvement of licensee in a criminal case, the impugned orders cannot be sustained. Even otherwise the petitioner has been acquitted in the criminal case in which he was involved and hence there is no justification for the continuance of the cancellation of the petitioner's fire arm licence."

13. When the facts of the instant case are seen in that context of law as laid down by this Court in the case of Mukesh Kumar Yadav (supra), it emerges that mere pendency of a criminal case cannot be a ground for cancellation of arms license and thus the order dated 18.03.2021, which cancels the arms license of the petitioner simply on the ground of pendency of a criminal case, cannot be said to be legally sustainable in the eyes of law.

14. However, subsequent to the cancellation of the arms license vide order dated 18.03.2021 on account of pendency of the criminal case, the petitioner was acquitted in the criminal case by the competent criminal court vide order dated 31.05.2022.

15. Subsequent thereto, the appeal that had been filed by the petitioner against the order dated 18.03.2021 has been decided by the appellate authority vide the order impugned dated 18.01.2023. The appellate authority while deciding the appeal has considered the order of the learned court dated 31.05.2022, by which the petitioner has been acquitted. The appellate authority was of the view that as the petitioner has been acquitted by giving him benefit of doubt as such it is to be presumed that the petitioner is a man of criminal tendency and that such a person should not have an arms license and has thus rejected the appeal filed by the petitioner.

16. The aforesaid order of dismissal of appeal is supported by learned Standing Counsel on the basis of a judgement of this Court in the case of Indrajeet Singh (supra), wherein it has been held that where the acquittal is not honorable but due to grant of benefit of doubt, the licensing authority would have sufficient material to hold that it would not be in the interest of public order and for security of public peace for continuance of the arms license.

17. There can be no doubt to the aforesaid proposition of law as laid down by this Court in the case of Indrajeet Singh (supra). However, what has not been considered by the court is that when it is settled proposition of law that an arms license cannot be cancelled on the basis of the pendency of the criminal case, obviously there cannot be any cancellation in case a person has been acquitted in the said criminal case be it on the basis of benefit of doubt or an honorable acquittal.

18. Incidentally, this Court in the case of Indrajeet Singh (supra) while arriving at the said finding, has considered the judgements of the Apex Court in the case of Deputy Inspector General of Police and another Vs. S. Samuthiram 2013 (1) SCC 598 and State of Rajasthan and others Vs. Love kush Meena (no citation indicated in the judgement, however, the citation is (2021) 8 SCC 774). Incidentally, both the cases of the Hon'ble Supreme Court pertain to public employment. The case in hand does not pertain to public employment of any person rather pertains to the right of a person to an arms license.

19. Thus, keeping in view of the aforesaid discussion, the judgement of Indrajeet Singh (supra) would have no applicability to the facts of the instant case.

20. Accordingly, keeping in view of the aforesaid discussion, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned orders dated 18.03.2021 and 18.01.2023, a copies of which are Annexure Nos.1 and 2 respectively to the petition, are quashed.

21. Consequences to follow

3. Banwari Lal Kanchal Vs Dr. Bhartendu Agarwal, (2019)12 ADJ 235

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anjani Kumar Mishra, J & Hon'ble Jayant Banerji, J.)

1. Heard Shri H.R. Mishra, learned Senior Advocate for the petitioner, Shri Narendra Kumar Giri for the U.P. State Cooperative Election Commissioner, Shri Shiv Nath Singh and learned Standing Counsel for the respondents.

2. At the very outset, a preliminary objection has been raised by Shri Shiv Nath Singh regarding maintainability of the writ petition. He has submitted that the election process has already commenced and that voting to elect the Committee of Management of the District Co-operative Federation Ltd., Nadesar, Varanasi is to be held tomorrow.

3. It is settled law that once the election process has been set in motion after the notification for holding elections has been issued, the Court should not interfere so as to stall the election. Reliance has been placed upon paragraph 11 of the decision of this Court in Ramkant Singh and others vs. State of U.P. and others, 2005 (3) AWC 2477.

4. Shri H.R. Mishra, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the petitioner has filed a supplementary affidavit in Court, which is taken on record. He has submitted that the electoral college has been wrongly determined including within it delegates of newly added Societies, which Societies come to the inducted by an interim Committee of the Federation. It is settled law that an interim committee had no power to induct new members.

5. In support of this contention reliance has been placed upon an order dated 23.03.2018 passed by the Lucknow Bench in Ram Ji Mishra vs. State of U.P. Thru. Prin. Secy. Cooperation And Others, which in turned takes note of three other judgments mentioned, therein.

6. It is submitted that it is admitted to the parties that certain delegate members for a part of the electoral college who have been culminated by the societies, which were indicated into the federation by the Interim Management Committee, thereof.

7. Since the electoral college has been wrongly determined the elections cannot be permitted and this Court is liable to interfere.

8. In response to the preliminary objection raised by Shri Shiv Nath Singh, Shri H.R. Mishra has relied upon the decision in Banwari Lal Kanchal vs. Dr. Bhartendu Agarwal, 2019 (12) ADJ235, especially paragraphs 70 to 71. The said paragraphs are extracted below:-

"70: We have examined the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant in regard to the maintainability of writ petition of initiation of election process by finalizing the electoral college. The law is very much settled that the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India to interfere in the election process, ordinarily is not maintainable when there are disputed question of facts and the remedy is to avail civil suit after holding of election. We are with the full agreement that ordinarily election process should not be interfered with, but in the facts and circumstances of the present case, the learned Single Judge has recorded finding that the appellant-respondent has not been enrolled as member as the provision contained under the registered bye-laws laws of the society. If the members who have been permitted to participate in the election found their induction to be in utter disregard of the provisions contained under the registered bye-laws of the society and they are not able to establish their induction in consonance with the provisions of the bye-laws, it is always open to this Court in exercise of discretionary power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India to examine the issue of membership and holding of election on the basis of members who are not legally enrolled as members.

71: In view of the provisions contained under the registered bye-laws of the society and in absence of material to establish their induction as members, we are with the full agreement of the finding returned by the learned Single Judge in this regard. We further hold that the electoral college is the essence of an election. The Deputy Registrar without considering the provisions contained under the registered bye-laws of the society, has proceeded to hold four members to be valid members of the general body of the society, therefore, the finding returned in this regard is perverse in nature and contrary to the provisions contained under the registered bye-laws of the society. Once this Court, upon consideration of the point, came to conclusion that members who are going to participate in the forthcoming election are not legally enrolled members, it is open to this Court to interfere in the election process, if the finalization of members who have to participate in the election is found to be not in consonance with the provisions of the registered bye-laws of the society."

9. The afore-noted judgment was rendered in a writ petition, which was directed against an order passed by the Deputy Registrar Firms Societies and Chits, Lucknow, whereby he had finalized the list of Members of a Registered Society and notified the election schedule for holding fresh elections thereto, in exercise of power conferred by Section 25(2) of the Societies Registration Act.

10. It would be relevant to note that a dispute of membership in a registered society is required to be decided by means of a civil suit, which by itself is a long drawn process. This reason, by itself, might have weighed upon the Court to take the view, which is being canvassed by learned counsel for the petitioner. The election which has been notified and the election process that has been set in motion is for holding an election in accordance with the provision of the Co-operative Societies Act.

11. Although, it is not being disputed that the electoral college consists also of delegates of Co-operative Societies, who were inducted into the Federation by an interim committee of management and that such delegates would prima-facie not be eligible to participate in the election, yet, since the election process has been notified and the election itself is set to be fixed for tomorrow and the election results are to be declared on 28.02.2024, we do not consider it a fit case for interference.

12. The Court therefore, declines to interfere at this stage leaving it open for the petitioner, in case aggrieved, to challenge the election itself after the election result has been declared on the ground that the electoral college was improperly determined.

13. It is also expected that in case such an election petition is filed, the same shall be decided as expeditiously as possible.

14. The writ petition stands dismissed at this stage subject to the observations made herein above.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Renu Agarwal, J.)

1. Instant writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution has been filed by the petitioners with prayer for issuing writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding/directing the respondent nos. 2 and 3 to secure the security of life and property of the petitioners from the respondent No.4.

2. Heard learned counsel for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel for State respondents and perused the record.

3. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioners that both the petitioners are major and are of marriageable age. It is further submitted that petitioner No.1 is daughter of respondent No.4 and she belong to Muslim community. The date of birth of petitioner No. 1 is 20.01.2006 and the date of birth of petitioner no. 2 is 13.06.2001, in support thereof the petitioners have brought on record their High School marksheet-cum-Certificates respectively which are annexed as Annexure Nos. 1 and 2 to the affidavit filed in support of the writ petition respectively. It is submitted that both the petitioners are living in live-in-relationship since about last 5 to 6 months. Both the petitioners intend to marry each other after lawful conversion of their religion, however, presently they are living in live-in-relationship as the right is guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. It is further submitted that father of petitioner No.1 is an influential person of the locality and he is harassing the petitioners in collusion with local police. It is contended that respondent No.4 in collusion with the police of the police station Dhoomanganj, Prayagraj has picked up petitioner No.2 and illegally put him under their illegal detention for a few hours and left him free after physically and mentally harassing him. The petitioners are now forced to run from one place to another in order to save their life and themselves. Petitioners also made several oral and written complaints before the police officials but till date no action has been taken by them, hence, it is prayed that live-in-relationship be protected till they marry with each other after lawful conversion of their religion.

4. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the State submitted that petitioners have not applied for conversion of their religion under Section 8 and 9 of the Uttar Pradesh Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act, 2021 so far nor they have moved any application for protection to police. No valid proof of date of birth of petitioner No.1 is filed. Father of petitioner No.1 is not residing in Jhapiya Lalbihara, Bamrauli, Jhapiya, Allahabad and he is posted in air force and is residing in Belia, Post-Kota Mukundpur, P.S. Kotwali Sadar, District-Maharajganj. It is also submitted the missing report is also lodged by respondent No.4 vide G.D. No. 48 on 03.02.2024 at 15:52, therefore, there is no force in the contention of the petitioner that petitioner No.2 was detained in P.S.-Dhoomanganj, Prayagraj. It is further submitted that no application for protection has been moved to any police officer, therefore, no cause of action survives, hence, the petition is liable to be dismissed.

5. In view of the order proposed to be passed, there is no need to issue notice to private respondent. With the consent of learned counsel appearing for the parties, this writ petition is being disposed of finally at this stage in terms of the Rules of the Court.

6. I have heard the rival submissions advanced on behalf of the parties and perused the entire materials brought on record.

7. Perusal of the record reveals that date of birth of petitioner No.1 is 20.01.2006 as per her High School mark-sheet and date of birth of petitioner No.2 as per his High School mark-sheet is 13.06.2001 and both the petitioners are major. It further transpires from paragraph No. 7 of the petition that petitioners are in relationship since about five-six months, hence, at the time of start of their relationship, petitioner No.1 was minor. It is also clear that petitioner No.1 has not applied for conversion as per the mandate provided under Section 8 and 9 of the Uttar Pradesh Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act, 2021. It is also submitted that petitioner No.2 was illegally detained in police station, however, no proof is brought on record that petitioner No.2 was detained in police station and no date and time of detention is mentioned in the application.

8. Reliance has been placed on the judgment passed by Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in case of Razia and Anr. Vs. State of U.P. and Ors. passed in Writ-C No. 27338 of 2023, in which Co-ordinate Bench of this Court relying upon various judgment granted protection to the couple living in live-in-relationship. Learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that in this case also one of the party is muslim by faith and in the identical situation, the court has granted protection. Opposing the arguments advanced by learned counsel for the petitioners, learned Chief Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the State relied upon the case law passed by Division Bench in case of Kiran Rawat and Anr. Vs. State of U.P. passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 3310 of 2023. From the perusal of both the cases, it is apparent that the judgment of Kiran Rawat (supra) is mentioned by the Single Bench decision of this Court in case of Razia (supra) but the ruling is not discussed on merits in that case nor the ruling is distinguished on facts, hence, the ruling has no application on the present case. Reliance has also been placed by petitioners upon the judgement of the Apex Court in Lata Singh Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh and Anr. reported in (2006) 5 SCC 475, whereby Hon'ble the Apex Court has held as under:-

"17. The caste system is a curse on the nation and the sooner it is destroyed the better. In fact, it is dividing the nation at a time when we have to be united to face the challenges before the nation unitedly. Hence, inter-caste marriages are in fact in the national interest as they will result in destroying the caste system. However, disturbing news are coming from several parts of the country that young men and women who undergo inter-caste marriage, are threatened with violence, or violence is actually committed on them. In our opinion, such acts of violence or threats or harassment are wholly illegal and those who commit them must be severely punished. This is a free and democratic country, and once a person becomes a major he or she can marry whosoever he/she likes. If the parents of the boy or girl do not approve of such inter-caste or interreligious marriage the maximum they can do is that they can cut off social relations with the son or the daughter, but they cannot give threats or commit or instigate acts of violence and cannot harass the person who undergoes such inter-caste or inter- religious marriage. We, therefore, direct that the administration/police authorities throughout the country will see to it that if any boy or girl who is a major undergoes inter-caste or inter-religious marriage with a woman or man who is a major, the couple are not harassed by any one nor subjected to threats or acts of violence, and any one who gives such threats or harasses or commits acts of violence either himself or at his instigation, is taken to task by instituting criminal proceedings by the police against such persons and further stern action is taken against such persons as provided by law. We sometimes hear of `honour' killings of such persons who undergo inter-caste or inter-religious marriage of their own free will. There is nothing honourable in such killings, and in fact they are nothing but barbaric and shameful acts of murder committed by brutal, feudal minded persons who deserve harsh punishment. Only in this way can we stamp out such acts of barbarism."

9. In Shafin Jahan Vs. Asokan K.M. and Ors. reported in (2018) 16 SCC 368, the Apex Court emphasized due importance to the right of choice of an adult person, which the Constitution accords to an adult person. Hon'ble the Apex Court held as under :-

"52. It is obligatory to state here that expression of choice in accord with law is acceptance of individual identity. Curtailment of that expression and the ultimate action emanating therefrom on the conceptual structuralism of obeisance to the societal will destroy the individualistic entity of a person. The social values and morals have their space but they are not above the constitutionally guaranteed freedom. The said freedom is both a constitutional and a human right. Deprivation of that freedom which is ingrained in choice on the plea of faith is impermissible. Faith of a person in intrinsic to his/he meaningful existence. To have the freedom of faith is essential to his/her autonomy; and it strengthens the core norms of the Constitution. Choosing a faith is the substratum of individuality and sans it, the right of choice becomes a shadow. It has to be remembered that the realisation of a right is more important than the conferment of the right. Such actualisation indeed ostracises any kind of societal notoriety and keeps at bay the patriarchal supremacy. It is so because the individualistic faith and expression of choice are fundamental for the fructification of the right. Thus, we would like to call it indispensable preliminary condition"

10. Both these cases guarantees the fundamental right of choice of an adult person while marrying with inter-faith persons. The said freedom is both a constitutional and human right and no-one is allowed to deprive all such freedom from any human being.

11. In the case of D.Velusamy Vs. D. Patchajammal reported in (2010) 10 SCC 469, Hon'ble Apex Court while considering the definitions given under Section 2 of the Domestic Violence Act dealt with the definition of "domestic relationship", as a relationship in the nature of marriage. It laid down the following requisite criteria in the relationship in the nature of marriage:-

"(a) The couple must hold themselves out to society as being akin to spouses.

(b) They must be of legal age to marry.

(c) They must be otherwise qualified to enter into a legal marriage, including being unmarried.

(d) They must have voluntarily cohabited and held themselves out to the world as being akin to spouses for a significant period of time."

12. In the case of Asha Devi and Another vs. State of U.P. and Others passed in Writ (C) No.18743 of 2020, the Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court formulated two questions as under:-

"(i) Whether the petitioners, who claim themselves to be living together as husband and wife; can be granted protection when the petitioner No.1 is legally wedded wife of someone else and has not taken divorce sofar ?

(ii) Whether protection to petitioners as husband and wife or as live-in-relationship can be granted in exercise of powers conferred under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, when their living together may constitute offences under Sections 494/495 I.P.C. ?"

13. In the judgment of Asha Devi (Supra), Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court has discussed the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of "D. Velusamy Vs. D. Patchaiammal", in which the Hon'ble Apex court held that:-

"32. In our opinion not all live in relationships will amount to a relationship in the nature of marriage to get the benefit of the Act of 2005. To get such benefit the conditions mentioned by us above must be satisfied, and this has to be proved by evidence.

If a man has a `keep' whom he maintains financially and uses mainly for sexual purpose and/or as a servant it would not, in our opinion, be a relationship in the nature of marriage'."

(Emphasis supplied)

14. In the judgment of Asha Devi (Supra), the Division Bench of this Court on the basis of various judgments of High Court held that following relationship are not recognized or approved as live-in-relationship:-

"(a) Concubine can not maintain relationship in the nature of marriage vide paras 57 & 59 of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Indra Sarma Vs. V. K. V. Sarma.

(b) Polygamy, that is a relationship or practice of having more than one wife or husband at the same time, or a relationship by way of a bigamous marriage that is marrying someone while already married to another and/or maintaining an adulterous relationship that is having voluntary sexual intercourse between a married person who is not one's husband or wife, cannot be said to be a relationship in the nature of marriage vide para 58 of judgment in Indra Sarma's Case (supra) & A Subhash Babu Vs. state of A.P.4 (paras 17 to 21, 27, 28 & 29). Polygamy is also a criminal offence under Section 494 & 495 I.P.C., vide Shayara Bano Vs. Union of India 5 (paras 299.3).

(c) Till a decree of divorce is passed the marriage subsist. Any other marriage during the subsistence of the first marriage would constitute an offence under Section 494 I.P.C. read with Section 17 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and the person, inspite of his conversion to some other religion would be liable to be prosecuted for the offence of bigamy, vide Lily Thomas and another Vs. Union of India and others*6 (Para 35). In para 38 of the aforesaid judgment, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed as under:-*

"38. Religion is a matter of faith stemming from the depth of the heart and mind. Religion is a belief which binds the spiritual nature of man to a super-natural being; it is an object of conscientious devotion, faith and pietism. Devotion in its fullest sense is a consecration and denotes an act of worship. Faith in the strict sense constitutes firm reliance on the truth of religious doctrines in every system of religion. Religion, faith or devotion are not easily interchangeable. If the person feigns to have adopted another religion just for some worldly gain or benefit, it would be religious bigotry. Looked at from this angle, a person who mockingly adopts another religion where plurality of marriage is permitted so as to renounce the previous marriage and desert the wife, he cannot be permitted to take advantage of his exploitation as religion is not a commodity to be exploited. The institution of marriage under every personal law is a sacred institution. Under Hindu Law, Marriage is a sacrament. Both have to be preserved."

(d) If both the persons are otherwise not qualified to enter into a legal marriage including being unmarried, vide D Velusamy Vs. D Patchaiammal (supra) (para 31)."

15. In the judgment of Asha Devi (Supra), Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court has also discussed the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of "Director of Settlement, A.P. Vs. M.R. Apparao, in which the Hon'ble Apex court has considered the High Court's power for issuance of mandamus and held as under:-

"17. ..... One of the conditions for exercising power under Article 226 for issuance of a mandamus is that the Court must come to the conclusion that the aggrieved person has a legal right, which entitles him to any of the rights and that such right has been infringed. In other words, existence of a legal right of a citizen and performance of any corresponding legal duty by the State or any public authority, could be enforced by issuance of a writ of mandamus. "Mandamus" means a command. It differs from the writs of prohibition or certiorari in its demand for some activity on the part of the body or person to whom it is addressed. Mandamus is a command issued to direct any person, corporation, inferior Courts or Government, requiring him or them to do some particular thing therein specified which appertains to his or their office and is in the nature of a public duty. A mandamus is available against any public authority including administrative and local bodies, and it would lie to any person who is under a duty imposed by statute or by the common law to do a particular act. In order to obtain a writ or order in the nature of mandamus, the applicant has to satisfy that he has a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the party against whom the mandamus is sought and such right must be subsisting on the date of the petition. ....."

16. In the relationship of marriage or in the nature of live-in-relationship there must be two consenting adults human beings. The concept of Gotra, Caste and Religion is left a way back. No one has right to interfere in the personal liberty of two adults, not even the parents to two adults can interfere in their relationship, but, the Right to Freedom or Right to Personal Liberty is not an absolute or unfettered right, it is qualified by some restrictions also. The freedom of one person extincts where the statutory right of another person starts, hence, the freedom of one person cannot encroach or overweigh the legal right of another person. If the petitioners are already married and had their spouse alive, he/she cannot be permitted to enter into live-in-relationship with third person without seeking divorce from the earlier spouse. He/she first has to obtain the decree of divorce from the court of competent jurisdiction before solemnizing marriage of entering into live-in-relationship out of their legal marriage.

17. It is pertinent to mention here that The Uttar Pradesh Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act, 2021 (in brevity ?the Act?) has come into force on 05.03.2021, thereafter it is made mandatory for interfaith couples to seek conversion according to the provisions of the Act. In the case at hand, admittedly, none of the petitioners has moved application for conversion of religion in accordance with Section 8 and 9 of the Act. Explanation to Section 3(1) of the Act reads as follows:-

"3(1) No person shall convert or attempt to convert, either directly or otherwise, any other person from one religion to another by use or practice of misrepresentation, force, undue influence, coercion, allurement or by any fraudulent means. No person shall abet, convince or conspire such conversion.

Explanation:- For the purposes of this sub-section conversion by solemnization of marriage or relationship in the nature of marriage on account of factors enumerated in this sub-section shall be deemed included."

18. Explanation goes to show that conversion is not only required for the purpose of marriage, but it is also required in all relationship in the nature of marriage, therefore, Conversion Act applies to relationship in the nature of marriage or live-in-relationship. Petitioners have not yet applied for conversion as per provisions of Section 8 and 9 of the Act, hence, the relationship of petitioners cannot be protected in contraventions of the provisions of law.

19. Certainly, the Courts have power to interpret the provisions of law if there is ambiguity in the provisions of law, but, the above mentioned law is explicit which mandates that conversion is required not only in cases of inter-caste marriages but relationship in the nature of marriage, hence, Courts should refrain from embarking upon the interpretation of law in any sense when the law is very explicit.

20. While applying the principles laid down in various pronouncements by Hon'ble the Apex Court, it gives guidelines to the fact that couple must be of legal age to marry and qualified to enter into legal marriage including being unmarried and they must be akin to spouse for significant period of time. In the present case, the age of petitioner No.1 was below 18 years when she started living with petitioner No.2. There is nothing on record primarily to show that they are living as husband and wife except their affidavit. No proof of joint account, financial security, joint property or joint expenditure is produced before this Court. Petitioners have not applied for conversion so far, no application has been moved to police authority for protection of their live-in-relationship. No information is given to the higher authorities or to any Magistrate that the petitioners are being tortured and detained by police at the behest of the mother of petitioner No.1. Till date, no F.I.R. has been lodged by the parents of any of the petitioner, therefore, there is no challenge to the relationship of petitioners. No application is moved to S.S.P. for protection of their lives or liberty, therefore, there is no cause of action for petitioner to seek protection against respondent No. 4.

21. In view of the discussions as above, it is not considered desirable that live-in-relationship of the petitioners be protected in contravention of the statutory provisions of law passed by legislature, hence, petition has no force and is liable to be dismissed and is dismissed accordingly.

Civil Law - Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973-Unauthorized construction-Urban development-compliance with Sanctioned Plans-Petitioner's grievance is that the private respondents are building beyond the sanctioned map, causing damage to petitioner's property-The court observed that the private respondents had exceeded the permissible construction area under the approved plan, and the development authority's decision to permit compounding undermines the purpose of urban planning laws-The court criticized this practice, emphasizing that compounding must not facilitate relaxation of building norms, as it encourages illegal constructions and disrupts planned development-development authorities must prevent construction beyond approved plans-Assessment of damages caused to the petitioner's property must be undertaken.(Para 1 to 8)

The writ petition is disposed of.(E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ashwani Kumar Mishra, J & Hon'ble Syed Qamar Hasan Rizvi, J.)

1. A grievance is raised in the present petition that constructions are being allowed by the development authority contrary to the sanction plan on account of which petitioner's adjoining constructions are getting damaged. Taking note of such contention, we passed following orders on 26.2.2024:-

"1. Grievance of the petitioner is that private respondents are raising construction contrary to the sanctioned map on account of which petitioner's construction, on the adjoining, is getting damaged.

2. Learned counsel for the Development Authority is directed to obtain instructions in the matter.

3. Let notices be also issued to fifth respondent by registered speed post for which appropriate steps shall be taken within 24 hours, fixing 13th March, 2024 as the date in the matter.

4. List again as fresh on 13.03.2024.

5. In the meantime, the Development Authority shall ensure that no constructions contrary to sanctioned map are allowed to be raised."

2. Sri Pradeep Kumar Tripathi, learned counsel representing development authority states that though constructions are being raised by the private respondents over and above the area for which map has been sanctioned but such constructions are within the compoundable limits. Written instructions are produced as per which the private respondent has been given an opportunity to apply for compounding.

3. Urban areas are required to be developed in accordance with the plan. It is with this object that U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 has been enacted. The authorities have also framed building bye-laws which permits constructions on specified area only after getting the plan approved. In the present case also the private respondent has in fact got a map approved. In case constructions are raised as per it, there can hardly be any objection. In this case also the private respondent has secured sanction of a residential construction and in the event such constructions are undertaken, there can be no objection. However, it transpires that constructions are being raised by the private respondent in excess of construction allowed as per the approved plan. The authority instead of allowing constructions to be raised strictly as per the approved plan is permitting the private respondent to raise additional constructions on the ground that such additional constructions are compoundable.

4. Building bye-laws and plans are supposed to be followed scrupulously so that urban development is allowed in a planned manner. What is, however, disturbing is the practice of allowing constructions in excess of approved plan and thereafter entertaining compounding plans, ostensibly with the purpose of augmenting the financial interest of the development authority. The object of establishment of development authority is planned development and not to allow illegal constructions and thereafter compound illegal constructions by charging huge money. Organized nexus appears to be operating in the development authorities where the builders, in collusion with other elements collude for raising constructions contrary to the building plan.

5. We can appreciate the rationale for allowing compounding where prior sanction is not obtained for various reasons. The authority, however, while compounding the plan must not allow constructions over and above the permissible constructions in the building bye-laws. In the event authority eases the norms of permissible constructions as per the building bye-laws, while compounding the plan, it allows not only curing the illegality but also encourage illegal constructions which would violate the object of planned development. An honest person who gets his building plan approved as per the building bye-laws would be allowed to raise constructions over a lesser area, while the one who violates the law by raising illegal constructions is allowed to raise additional constructions in the garb of compounding, by paying additional money, to the authority. While development authority benefits in the form of additional revenue from compounding the unscrupulous elements operating in the field also benefit. Everyone wins at the cost of planned development.

6. Question arises thus as to whether the development authorities are established to secure planned development or are to facilitate large scale violation of building bye-laws in the name of compounding. In the facts of the present case also we find from the instructions that though the authority has been made aware that constructions are being raised contrary to the building plan and in excess of the permissible area over which constructions are allowed in the building plan but instead of ensuring that constructions are restricted only in accordance with the approved plan, the authority is facilitating compounding by calling upon the private respondents to get such illegality regularized. This approach of the development authority has to be discouraged.

7. The development authority has been constituted to ensure that constructions are allowed to be raised strictly as per the plan. The foremost endeavor has to be ensure that no constructions contrary to the plan are allowed. The practice of allowing deviations and then facilitating such departures from the norms by getting the maps compounded must stop.

8. In the facts of the present case, we call upon the respondents to ensure that no constructions in excess of the sanction plan is allowed to be raised on the spot. The State Government is also directed to issue immediate directions to all development authorities to ensure that no constructions are allowed to be raised over and above the permissible constructions as per the building bye-laws. We may also specify that the norms for constructions as per the building bye-laws must not be relaxed in cases of compounding, inasmuch as the compounding can only be to facilitate ex-post facto approval of plan, but while doing so, the building norms cannot be relaxed. What is not permissible under the building bye-laws should not be allowed by way of compounding. The Principle Secretary of the Department of Housing shall, therefore, file his personal affidavit in compliance of the above directions. The Vice-Chairman shall ensure that no constructions on the plot is allowed to be raised except in accordance with the sanction plan. The authority shall also make an assessment of the damage which apparently has been caused to the petitioner's construction on account of deviations allowed while raising constructions by the private respondents.

9. List as fresh on 8.4.2024.

(F) Conclusion (Paragraph 99)

(A) REFERENCE ORDER AND INTRODUCTORY FACTS

1. A Single Judge Bench hearing Writ A No. 29324 of 2019 (Mohammed Javed versus State of U.P. and others), passed the following order on 23.10.2019: -

"1. Heard learned counsel for petitioner.

2. Sri Alok Sharma, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has accepted notices on behalf of opposite party no.1 and 3, Sri Afzal Siddiqui, learned counsel has accepted notices on behalf of opposite party no.2.

3. Issue notice to opposite party no.4 returnable at an early date.

4. Petitioner has filed present writ petition claiming that he was appointed as part-time assistant teacher in the year 2011 for the primary Section of respondent no.4 Madrasa Nisarul Uloom Shahzadpur, Akbarpur Post Office, District Ambedkar Nagar on a fix salary of Rs.4,000/- per month, subject to 8% annual increment. He prays that no regular appointment should be made by respondent no.1 to 3 i.e. the State Government, the Madarsa Shiksha Parishad and District Minority Welfare Officer and his service should be regularized. Further prayer is that he should be paid salary as is being paid to the regular teachers.

5. Petitioner places reliance upon the provisions of U.P. Board of Madarsa Education Act, 2004 (Madarsa Act, 2004) and the regulations framed thereunder. At the time of hearing, perusal of the Madarsa Act, 2004, Section 2(h) defines:-

"Section 2(h):-Madarsa-Education" means education in Arbic Urdu, Parsian, Islamic-studies, Tibb Logic, Philosophy and includes such other branches of learning as may be specified by the Board from time to time."

6. For the purposes of Madarsa education, a Board is constituted under Section 3 of the Madarsa Act, 2004 which reads :-

"Section 3(3) The Board shall consist of the following members, namely:

(a) a renowned Muslim educationist in the field of traditional Madarsa-Education, nominated by the State Government who shall be the Chairperson of the Board;

(b) the Director, who shall be the Vice-Chairperson of the Board;

(c) the Principal, Government Oriental College, Rampur;

(d) one Sunni-Muslim Legislator to be elected by both houses of the State Legislature;

(e) one Shia-Muslim Legislator to be elected by both houses of the State Legislature;

(f) one representative of National Council for Educational Research and Training;

(g) two head of institution established and administered by Sunni-Muslim nominated by the State Government;

(h) one head of institution established and administered by Shia-

Muslim nominated by the State Government;

(i) two teachers of institutions established and administered by Sunni-Muslim nominated by the State Government;

(j) one teacher of an institution established and administered by Shia-Muslim nominated by the State Government;

(k) one Science or Tibb teacher of an institution nominated by the State Government;

(l) the Account and Finance Officer in the Directorate of minority Welfare, Uttar Pradesh;

(m) the Inspector;

(n) an officer not below the rank of Deputy Director nominated by the State Government, who shall be the member Registrar;

7. From perusal of the same, following questions arise for consideration:-

(i) Since the Madarsa Board is constituted for education in 'Arbic, Urdu, Parsian, Islamic-studies, Tibb Logic, Philosophy and includes such other branches of learning as may be specified by the Board from time to time', how come persons of a particular religion are provided to be member of the same? It does not talks about exponence in the aforesaid fields, for the purposes of which the Board is constituted, but persons of specific religion. It was put to learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel as to whether the purpose of the Board is to impart religious education only, to which he submits that a perusal of the Madarsa Education Act, 2004 does not indicate so.

(ii) With a secular constitution in India can persons of a particular religion be appointed/nominated in a Board for education purposes or it should be persons belonging to any religion, who are exponent in the fields for the purposes of which the Board is constituted or such persons should be appointed, without any regard to religion, who are exponent in the field for the purposes of which the Board is constituted?

(iii) The Act further provides the Board to function under the Minority Welfare Ministry of State of U.P., hence, a question arises as to whether it is arbitrary for providing the Madarsa education to be run under the Minority Welfare Department while all the other education institutions including those belonging to other minorities communities like Jains, Sikhs, Christians etc being run under the Education Ministry and whether it arbitrarily denies the benefit of experts of education and their policies to the children studying in Madarsa?

8. All these questions impacts the vires of the Madarsa Act, 2004 and are important questions to be decided before looking into the application of the Madarsa Act, 2004 and the regulations framed thereunder. Thus, I find it appropriate that the matter may be placed before the Larger Bench for decision on the aforesaid issue.

9. In view thereof, office is directed to place the matter before the Hon'ble the Chief Justice/Senior Judge for constitution of a Larger Bench."

2. Thereafter, on the basis of the aforesaid reference order, other writ petitions, namely, Writ A No. 3735 of 2012, 5548 of 2014, 3615 of 2020 and Writ (C) No. 481 of 2020, were also referred to the Larger Bench.

3. The matters referred were nominated to different Benches, but, could not be taken up. Finally, by order dated 18.05.2023 of the Chief Justice, the present Bench was nominated to hear the reference.

Writ (C) No. 6049 of 2023 (Anshuman Singh Rathore versus Union of India and others) was filed meanwhile, challenging the vires of the U.P. Board of Madarsa Education Act, 2004 (for short 'the Madarsa Act') on the ground that the same violates the principle of Secularism, which forms a part of the basic structure of the Constitution of India as well Articles 14, 15 and 21-A of the same. He further challenges Section 1(5) of Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act, 2009 (for short 'the R.T.E. Act') This Writ Petition was also nominated to this Bench by order dated 31.07.2023 of the Chief Justice. Hence, all these matters with regard to vires of the Madarsa Act are before us.

4. These petitions relate to the enforcement of Fundamental Rights of minor children of the marginalised and poor Sections of the largest minority community of the State. Looking into the vastness of the issues involved and depth of impact it would have upon them, this Court appointed Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Sri Akber Ahmad and Sri Madhukar Ojha, Advocates, as Amici Curiae to assist the Court vide order dated 14.07.2023 passed in Writ A No.29324 of 2019.

5. During the course of hearing, the following parties filed applications seeking impleadment/intervention in Writ-C No.6049 of 2023: -

(1) Managers Association, Madaris Arabiya, U.P., through Sri G. M. Kamil, Advocate;

(2) All India Teachers Association, Madarsa Arabia, New Delhi, through Sri Syed Hussain, Advocate;

(3) Manager Association, Arbi Madarsa, Nai Bazar, Balrampur, through Sri Aditya Kumar Tiwari, Advocate;

(4) Adhyayan Foundation for Policy Research, through Sri Amrendra Nath Tripathi, Advocate;

(5) Shikshharettar Karamchari Association, Madaris E Arabia, Kanpur Nagar, through Sri Mohd. Kumail Haider and Sri Iqbal Ahmad, Advocates;

(6) Madarsa Jamia Baitul Uloom, Balrampur, through Sri Mohd. Kumail Haider and Sri Iqbal Ahmad, Advocates;

(7) Teachers Association, Madaris Aribiya, U.P. Kanpur, through Sri Prashant Chandra Senior Advocate assisted by Sri M. B. Singh, Advocate.

6. The learned Counsel for all the abovementioned applicants stated that as the issues involved are purely legal in nature, they would not file any counter affidavit and they advanced their submissions on the legal and Constitutional issues involved in the matter. The learned counsel for some of the parties have submitted some Government Orders and Notifications etc. through affidavits or otherwise and all of those have been taken on record.

7. We have heard at length the petitioner Sri Anshuman Singh Rathore, who himself is an Advocate, as well as Sri Sudeep Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioner, Amici Curiae Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Sri Akber Ahmad and Sri Madhukar Ojha Advocates, Sri Anil Pratap Singh, learned Additional Advocate General and Sri Sanjeev Singh, learned Standing Counsel for the State of U.P., Sri Sudhanshu Chauhan and Sri Anand Dwivedi, learned counsel appearing on behalf of Union of India, Sri Sandeep Dixit, Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Afzal Ahmad Siddiqui Advocate for the Madarsa Board, Sri Prashant Chandra Senior Advocate assisted by Sri M. B. Singh and Sri Vikas Singh Advocates for Teachers' Association Madarsa Aribiya, Sri G. M. Kamil Advocate for Managers Association Madaris Arabiya, Uttar Pradesh, Sri Syed Hussain Advocate for All India Teachers Association Madarsa Arabia, New Delhi, Sri Aditya Kumar Tiwari Advocate for Manager Association, Arbi Madarsa, Nai Bazar, Balrampur, Sri Amrendra Nath Tripathi Advocate for Adhyayan Foundation for Policy and Research, and Sri Mohd. Kumail Haider and Sri Iqbal Ahmad Advocates for Shikshharettar Karamchari Association, Madaris E Arabia, Kanpur Nagar and Madarsa Jamia Baitul Uloom, Balrampur.

8. The reference order doubts the validity of specific provisions of the Madarsa Act on the principles of secularism. The standing counsel before the single judge had stated that purpose of the Madarsa Board is not to impart religious education. However, both, the State of U.P. and the Madarsa Board before this Court fairly accepted that the Board imparts not only religious education, but, also religious instructions and teachings. Therefore the reference was reframed as follows: -

"Whether the provisions of the Madarsa Act stand the test of Secularism, which forms a part of the basic structure of the Constitution of India."

9. This re-framing of the reference does not impact the scope of hearing, as the challenge raised in the writ petition of Anshuman Singh Rathore to the Madarsa Act is on the ground that the provisions, scheme and the environment created by the Madarsa Act with regard to education in Madarsas in the State violates Articles 14, 15 and 21-A of the Constitution of India. The Fundamental Rights under the aforesaid Articles, more specifically under Article 14 and 21-A, includes right to universal quality education, which also includes secular education.

(B) SUBMISSIONS OF PARTIES

10. The Petitioner and his counsel submit that the Madarsa Act violates the principles of secularism, which forms a part of the basic structure of the Constitution of India; fails to provide quality compulsory education up to the age of 14 years/Class-VIII, as is mandatorily required to be provided under Article 21-A of the Constitution of India; and further fails to provide universal and quality school education to all the children studying in madarsas, as is mandatorily required to be provided under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. Thus it violates the Fundamental Rights of the students of the madarsas. The writ petition also challenges vires of Section 1(5) of the R.T.E. Act which excludes Madarsas, Vedic Pathshalas and educational institutions primarily imparting religious instructions.

11. Learned Amici Curiae also supported the submissions of the petitioner. They further submit that Article 25 provides the right to freedom of conscience and the right to freely profess, practice and propagate religion. This right does not affect the right of regulating any social activity which may be associated with religious practice and right of the State from making any law providing for social welfare and reform. Sri Mahrotra also submitted that while making laws which are saved by Article 25(2), the State should be progressive and reformative in its approach, and its approach cannot be regressive. The Madarsa Act denies the children studying in Madarsa, the right to receive quality education like other children studying in regular schools and, therefore, the Madarsa Act is a regressive enactment, which is unconstitutional.

12. The learned Amici Curiae also submitted that Part 4-A of the Constitution of India deals with Fundamental Duties and Article 51-A of the Constitution of India inter alia provides that it shall be the duty of every citizen to promote harmony and the spirit of common brotherhood amongst the people of India transcending religious, linguistic, regional or sectional diversities, to develop the scientific temper, humanism and the spirit of inquiry and reform, to strive towards excellence in all the spheres of individual and collective activity so that the nation constantly rises to higher level of endeavor and achievement. Clause (K) of Article 51-A provides that it shall be the duty of every parent or guardian to provide opportunities for education to his child or, as the case maybe, ward between the age of 06 and 14 years. The learned Amici Curiae submit that although the fundamental duties are not enforceable and the State cannot be compelled to act in furtherance of Article 51-A, at the same time, the State cannot act in a manner which would be contrary to the provisions contained in Article 51A. The provisions of Madarsa Act making special provisions for education to the children of a single minority community, in a very limited sphere of knowledge and of level lower than the normal level of education imparted in regular educational institutions, is clearly violative of the fundamental duties and, therefore, the Madarsa Act is violative of the basic spirit of the Constitution of India.

13. The learned Amici Curiae further submit that Seventh Schedule appended to the Constitution of India contains three list – List I being the Union List, List II being the State List and List III being the Concurrent List. Entry 66 of List I is a "coordination and determination of standards in institutions for higher education or research and scientific and technical institutions. Entry 25 in List III is- "Education, including technical education, medical education and universities, subject to the provisions of Entries 63, 64, 65 and 66 of List 1; vocational and technical training of labour." Section 9(a) and 9(j) of Madarsa Act contain provisions regarding determination of standards of higher education in Madarsa, power that vests in the Central Government, as per entry 66 of List I, and, therefore, the State does not have the legislative competence to legislate in this regard.

14. Section 3 of the Madarsa Act provides for constitution of Madarsa Board and no educational qualification is prescribed for any person to be a member of the Madarsa Board.

15. The learned Amici Curiae submitted that secularism is a part of the basic structure of Constitution of India and the Madarsa Act violates the principle of secularism. In support of this submission, they have placed reliance on large number of judgments which are referred to in later part of the judgment.

16. The submission of the learned Amici Curiae is that the Madarsa Act violates Secularism and Article 14, 15, 16(5), 29(2), 30 and Article 51-A of the Constitution of India.

17. They further submitted that to the extent of higher education, the Madarsa Act is directly in conflict with and violates the U.G.C. Act and entrenches upon the field occupied by the central legislation and thus to the said extent is also ultravires.

18. Opposing the aforesaid submissions, the stand of State of U.P. through the learned additional Advocate General is that no doubt the Madarsa Board is providing religious education as well as religious instructions to the students, but the State has sufficient power to impart such education under the Constitution of India and is rightly permitting such education. He has also traced the history of Madarsa education in the State of U.P. Sri Sanjiv Singh learned standing counsel further submits that education provided by Madarsa Board is traditional education, relating to religion, culture and language which does not change with time. It is covered by entry 25 of List III of VII schedule to the Constitution of India. Providing religious education and instructions is not barred or illegal. For such religious education a separate Board is necessarily required, which needs to have members of such particular religion. He further states that these madarsas are providing cheap education to these children, who belong to poor and marginalised families. The U.G.C. Act does not relate to religious teachings, education and instructions or with traditional education and thus both occupy different fields.

19. Sri. Sandeep Dixit Senior Advocate for Madarsa Board raised a preliminary objection against the locus standi of the petitioner and also insufficiency of pleadings to challenge the maintainability of the writ petition. He also relies upon Article 25 to 30 of the Constitution of India to submit that State Government has power to provide religious education and instructions of a particular religion in schools. He strongly states that nearly free education is being provided by these madarsas to minor children, with a monthly fee of hardly rupees 10/- or 20/- per month and in case the Madarsas are closed, these children would be left without even this education. These madarsas themselves are surviving on the aid received from the Government. Therefore the court, in the interest of these children from poor families, should dismiss the petition.

20. Sri. Prashant Chandra Senior Advocate appearing for Teachers' Association Madarsa Aribiya, Kanpur, opposing the petition, also supported the preliminary objections and further submitted that even if this Court finds some of the provisions of the Madarsa Act to be violating Chapter-III of the Constitution of India, still this Court should, as far as possible, only declare such provisions of the Madarsa Act to be ultra vires and save the remaining provisions of the Act, either by reading down the said provisions or by carving the same out of the Act.

21. Sri Amrendra Nath Tripathi Advocate on behalf of Adhyayan Foundation for Policy and Research submitted that it is the jurisdiction of NCTE to provide quality education up to Class-VIII and Madarsa Board violates the provisions of NCTE Act also. Counsel for respondents and intervenor broadly adopted leading arguments made by State of U.P., Madarsa Board and Teachers Association, Madarsa Arabiya, Kanpur.

22. All the learned Counsel opposing the petition and reference order have, while adopting arguments of aforesaid persons, also relied upon Articles 25 to 30 of the Constitution of India to submit that religious education and instructions of a religion can be provided in schools and thus State Government can frame such an Act.

23. Learned counsel for the respondents and interveners submit that the State Government is having sufficient power to legislate with regard to traditional education. They submit that the UGC Act does not cover the field of traditional education and there is also no other Central Act that occupies the said field of traditional education, therefore, the State has rightly exercised its legislative power in the said field. Learned counsel for the respondents and interveners, however, has not placed any case law or other material before us in support of their submission. They also, despite repeated queries, could not elaborate the difference between traditional education and modern education, except for their submission that religious education is covered in the field of traditional education. They also could not specify the provisions that could be carved out of the Madarsa Act to save any part of the same.

24. Mr. Sudhanshu Chauhan for the Union of India states that the stand of the Union of India is that religious education and religious instructions of a single religion cannot be included in school education and State Government has no power to create statutory Education Boards permitting religious education. He further submits that the earlier policy of Union of India for providing grants/funds to Madarsas was effective till 31.03.2022 and there is no proposal of Government of India to extend the same. He strongly opposes challenge to vires of Section 1(5) of the R.T.E. Act.

25. In support of their respective submissions parties have placed reliance on large number of precedents, which are dealt with in the later part of this judgment.

(C) PRELIMINARY OBJECTIONS

26. Sri Sandeep Dixit, learned Senior Advocate, appearing for the Madarsa Board, and Sri Prashant Chandra, learned Senior Advocate, appearing for the Teachers' Association Madarsa Aribiya, Kanpur, have raised two preliminary objections with regard to maintainability of the writ petition filed by Sri Anshuman Singh Rathore. Their first objection is that the petitioner is an Advocate practicing in the High Court and he has no personal interest in the matter, hence, he could not have filed this writ petition. At best, he may have filed a Public Interest Litigation, but the present writ petition is not a Public Interest Litigation and, hence, he has no locus standi to file the present writ petition.

27. Sri. Sandeep Dixit has further submitted that the Writ Petition No.6049 of 2023 filed by Sri. Anshuman Singh Rathore Advocate appears to have been filed for the benefit of Madarsas, as in case the Madarsa Act is held to be unconstitutional or ultra vires, the State will lose control over the Madarsas and the Madarsas will become absolutely free, which will not be in the interests of the students of the Madarsas.

28. In support of their preliminary objection regarding lack of locus standi, they have placed reliance upon the judgments in the cases of Jasbhai Motibhai Desai versus Roshan Kumar, Haji Bashir Ahmed and others (1976) 1 SCC 671 and Vinoy Kumar versus State of U.P. and others (2001) 4 SCC 734.

29. Replying to the preliminary objection regarding locus standi, Sri Sudeep Kumar, learned counsel for petitioner, and learned Amici Curiae submitted that this is a matter relating to Fundamental Right to life and education of minor children of financially weak families of a minority community of this country, therefore, this Court cannot refuse to entertain the writ petition involving questions of Fundamental Rights of such minor children belonging to a marginal section of the society on technicalities. As has been submitted by the State and Madarsa Board, the children studying in Madarsas belong to poor families, which are unable to bear the cost of education of regular schools and it is duty of this Court to come forward and protect their Fundamental Rights, rather to refuse to interfere on mere technicalities. They further submit that all the aforesaid judgments, relied upon by the respondents, arose from disputes which are regarding personal rights of individuals and the same cannot be applied to a matter relating to Fundamental Rights of minor children of poor and marginal families. Reliance is placed by Sri Sudeep Kumar upon a judgment of Supreme Court in the case of S. P. Gupta versus Union of India and another, 1981 (Supp) SCC 87.

30. In Jasbhai Motibhai Desai versus Roshan Kumar, Haji Bashir Ahmed and others (1976) 1 SCC 671, it was held that: -

"13. This takes us to the further question: Who is an "aggrieved person" and what are the qualifications requisite for such a status? The expression "aggrieved person" denotes an elastic, and to an extent, an elusive concept. It cannot be confined within the bounds of a rigid, exact and comprehensive definition. At best, its features can be described in a broad tentative manner. Its scope and meaning depends on diverse, variable factors such as the content and intent of the statute of which contravention is alleged, the specific circumstances of the case, the nature and extent of the petitioner's interest, and the nature and extent of the prejudice or injury suffered by him. English Courts have sometimes put a restricted and sometimes a wide construction on the expression "aggrieved person". However, some general tests have been devised to ascertain whether an applicant is eligible for this category so as to have the necessary locus standi or "standing" to invoke certiorari jurisdiction.

* * *

37. It will be seen that in the context of locus standi to apply for a writ of certiorari, an applicant may ordinarily fall in any of these categories: (i) "person aggrieved"; (ii) "stranger"; (iii) busybody or meddlesome interloper. Persons in the last category are easily distinguishable from those coming under the first two categories. Such persons interfere in things which do not concern them. They masquerade as crusaders for justice. They pretend to act in the name of pro bono publico, though they have no interest of the public or even of their own to protect. They indulge in the pastime of meddling with the judicial process either by force of habit or from improper motives. Often, they are actuated by a desire to win notoriety or cheap popularity; while the ulterior intent of some applicants in this category, may be no more than spoking the wheels of administration. The High Court should do well to reject the applications of such busybodies at the threshold.

38. The distinction between the first and second categories of applicants, though real, is not always well-demarcated. The first category has, as it were, two concentric zones; a solid central zone of certainty, and a grey outer circle of lessening certainty in a sliding centrifugal scale, with an outermost nebulous fringe of uncertainty. Applicants falling within the central zone are those whose legal rights have been infringed. Such applicants undoubtedly stand in the category of "persons aggrieved". In the grey outer circle the bounds which separate the first category from the second, intermix, interfuse and overlap increasingly in a centrifugal direction. All persons in this outer zone may not be "persons aggrieved".

39. To distinguish such applicants from "strangers", among them, some broad tests may be deduced from the conspectus made above. These tests are not absolute and ultimate. Their efficacy varies according to the circumstances of the case, including the statutory context in which the matter falls to be considered. These are: Whether the applicant is a person whose legal right has been infringed? Has he suffered a legal wrong or injury, in the sense, that his interest, recognised by law, has been prejudicially and directly affected by the act or omission of the authority, complained of? Is he a person who has suffered a legal grievance, a person"against whom a decision has been pronounced which has wrongfully deprived him of something or wrongfully refused him something, or wrongfully affected his title to something?"

Has he a special and substantial grievance of his own beyond some grievance or inconvenience suffered by him in common with the rest of the public? Was he entitled to object and be heard by the authority before it took the impugned action? If so, was he prejudicially affected in the exercise of that right by the act of usurpation of jurisdiction on the part of the authority? Is the statute, in the context of which the scope of the words "person aggrieved" is being considered, a social welfare measure designed to lay down ethical or professional standards of conduct for the community? Or is it a statute dealing with private rights of particular individuals?"

31. In Vinoy Kumar versus State of U.P. and others (2001) 4 SCC 734, it was held that: -

"2. Generally speaking, a person shall have no locus standi to file a writ petition if he is not personally affected by the impugned order or his fundamental rights have neither been directly or substantially invaded nor is there any imminent danger of such rights being invaded or his acquired interests have been violated ignoring the applicable rules. The relief under Article 226 of the Constitution is based on the existence of a right in favour of the person invoking the jurisdiction. The exception to the general rule is only in cases where the writ applied for is a writ of habeas corpus or quo warranto or filed in public interest. It is a matter of prudence, that the Court confines the exercise of writ jurisdiction to cases where legal wrong or legal injuries are caused to a particular person or his fundamental rights are violated, and not to entertain cases of individual wrong or injury at the instance of third party where there is an effective legal aid organisation which can take care of such cases. Even in cases filed in public interest, the Court can exercise the writ jurisdiction at the instance of a third party only when it is shown that the legal wrong or legal injury or illegal burden is threatened and such person or determined class of persons is, by reason of poverty, helplessness or disability or socially or economically disadvantaged position, unable to approach the Court for relief."

32. However, in S. P. Gupta versus Union of India and another, 1981 (Supp) SCC 87, a larger bench consisting of seven Judges of the Supreme Court held that: -

"...But it must now be regarded as well settled law where a person who has suffered a legal wrong or a legal injury or whose legal right or legally protected interest is violated, is unable to approach the Court on account of some disability or it is not practicable for him to move the Court for some other sufficient reasons, such as his socially or economically disadvantaged position, some other person can invoke assistance of the Court for the purpose of providing judicial redress to the person wronged or injured, so that the legal wrong or injury caused to such person does not go unredressed and justice is done to him. ...

It may therefore now be taken as well established that where a legal wrong or a legal injury is caused to a person or to a determinate class of persons by reason of violation of any constitutional or legal right or any burden is imposed in contravention of any constitutional or legal provision or without authority of law or any such legal wrong or legal injury or illegal burden is threatened and such person or determinate class of persons is by reason of poverty, helplessness or disability or socially or economically disadvantaged position, unable to approach the Court for relief, any member of the public can maintain an application for an appropriate direction, order or writ in the High Court under Article 226 and in case of breach of any fundamental right of such person or determinate class of persons, in this Court under Article 32 seeking judicial redress for the legal wrong or injury caused to such person or determinate class of persons. Where the weaker Sections of the community are concerned, such as under trial prisoners languishing in jails without a trial, inmates of the Protective Home in Agra, or Harijan workers engaged in road construction in the district of Ajmer, who are living in poverty and destitution, who are barely eking out a miserable existence with their sweat and toil, who are helpless victims of an exploitative society and who do not have easy access to justice, this Court will not insist on a regular writ petition to be filed by the public-spirited individual espousing their cause and seeking relief for them. This Court will readily respond even to a letter addressed by such individual acting pro bono publico. It is true that there are rules made by this Court prescribing the procedure for moving this Court for relief under Article 32 and they require various formalities to be gone through by a person seeking to approach this Court. But it must not be forgotten that procedure is but a handmaiden of justice and the cause of justice can never be allowed to be thwarted by any procedural technicalities. The Court would therefore unhesitatingly and without the slightest qualms of conscience cast aside the technical rules of procedure in the exercise of its dispensing power and treat the letter of the public-minded individual as a writ petition and act upon it. Today a vast revolution is taking place in the judicial process; the theatre of the law is fast changing and the problems of the poor are coming to the forefront. The Court has to innovate new methods and devise new strategies for the purpose of providing access to justice to large masses of people who are denied their basic human rights and to whom freedom and liberty have no meaning. The only way in which this can be done is by entertaining writ petitions and even letters from public-spirited individuals seeking judicial redress for the benefit of persons who have suffered a legal wrong or a legal injury or whose constitutional or legal right has been violated but who by reason of their poverty or socially or economically disadvantaged position are unable to approach the Court for relief. It is in this spirit that the Court has been entertaining letters for judicial redress and treating them as writ petitions and we hope and trust that the High Courts of the country will also adopt this pro-active, goal-oriented approach. But we must hasten to make it clear that the individual who moves the Court for judicial redress in cases of this kind must be acting bona fide with a view to vindicating the cause of justice and if he is acting for personal gain or private profit or out of political motivation or other oblique consideration, the Court should not allow itself to be activised at the instance of such person and must reject his application at the threshold, whether it be in the form of a letter addressed to the Court or even in the form of a regular writ petition filed in court. We may also point out that as a matter of prudence and not as a rule of law, the Court may confine this strategic exercise of jurisdiction to cases where legal wrong or legal injury is caused to a determinate class or group of persons or the constitutional or legal right of such determinate class or group of persons is violated and as far as possible, not entertain cases of individual wrong or injury at the instance of a third party, where there is an effective legal-aid organisation which can take care of such cases.

The types of cases which we have dealt with so far for the purpose of considering the question of locus standi are those where there is a specific legal injury either to the applicant or to some other person or persons for whose benefit the action is brought, arising from violation of some constitutional or legal right or legally protected interest. What is complained of in these cases is a specific legal injury suffered by a person or a determinate class or group of persons. But there may be cases where the State or a public authority may act in violation of a constitutional or statutory obligation or fail to carry out such obligation, resulting in injury to public interest or what may conveniently be termed as public injury as distinguished from private injury. Who would have standing to complain against such act or omission of the State or public authority? Can any member of the public sue for judicial redress? Or is the standing limited only to a certain class of persons? Or is there no one who can complain and the public injury must go unredressed? To answer these questions it is first of all necessary to understand what is the true purpose of the judicial function. This is what Prof. Thio states in his book on Locus Standi and Judicial Review:

"Is the judicial function primarily aimed at preserving legal order by confining the legislative and executive organs of Government within their powers in the interest of the public (jurisdiction de droit objectif) or is it mainly directed towards the protection of private individuals by preventing illegal encroachments on their individual rights (jurisdiction de droit subjectif)? The first contention rests on the theory that Courts are the final arbiters of what is legal and illegal…. Requirements of locus standi are therefore unnecessary in this case since they merely impede the purpose of the function as conceived here. On the other hand, where the prime aim of the judicial process is to protect individual rights, its concern with the regularity of law and administration is limited to the extent that individual rights are infringed."

We would regard the first proposition as correctly setting out the nature and purpose of the judicial function, as it is essential to the maintenance of the rule of law that every organ of the State must act within the limits of its power and carry out the duty imposed upon it by the Constitution or the law. If the State or any public authority acts beyond the scope of its power and thereby causes a specific legal injury to a person or to a determinate class or group of persons, it would be a case of private injury actionable in the manner discussed in the preceding paragraphs. So also if the duty is owed by the State or any public authority to a person or to a determinate class or group of persons, it would give rise to a corresponding right in such person or determinate class or group of persons and they would be entitled to maintain an action for judicial redress. But if no specific legal injury is caused to a person or to a determinate class or group of persons by the act or omission of the State or any public authority and the injury is caused only to public interest, the question arises as to who can maintain an action for vindicating the rule of law and setting aside the unlawful action or enforcing the performance of the public duty. If no one can maintain an action for redress of such public wrong or public injury, it would be disastrous for the rule of law, for it would be open to the State or a public authority to act with impunity beyond the scope of its power or in breach of a public duty owed by it. The Courts cannot countenance such a situation where the observance of the law is left to the sweet will of the authority bound by it, without any redress if the law is contravened. The view has therefore been taken by the Courts in many decisions that whenever there is a public wrong or public injury caused by an act or omission of the State or a public authority which is contrary to the Constitution or the law, any member of the public acting bona fide and having sufficient interest can maintain an action for redressal of such public wrong or public injury. The strict rule of standing which insists that only a person who has suffered a specific legal injury can maintain an action for judicial redress is relaxed and a broad rule is evolved which gives standing to any member of the public who is not a mere busy body or a meddlesome interloper but who has sufficient interest in the proceeding. There can be no doubt that the risk of legal action against the State or a public authority by any citizen will induce the State or such public authority to act with greater responsibility and care thereby improving the administration of justice. Lord Diplock rightly said in Rex v. Inland Revenue Commissioners [(1981) 2 WLR 722, 740] :

"It would, in my view, be a grave lacuna in our system of public law if a pressure group, like the federation, or even a single public-spirited taxpayer, were prevented by outdated technical rules of locus standi from bringing the matter to the attention of the Court to vindicate the rule of law and get the unlawful conduct stopped.... It is not, in my view, a sufficient answer to say that judicial review of the actions of officers or departments of Central Government is unnecessary because they are accountable to Parliament for the way in which they carry out their functions. They are accountable to Parliament for what they do so far as regards efficiency and policy, and of that Parliament is the only judge; they are responsible to a Court of justice for the lawfulness of what they do, and of that the Court is the only judge."

This broadening of the Rule of locus standi has been largely responsible for the development of public law, because it is only the availability of judicial remedy for enforcement which invests law with meaning and purpose or else the law would remain merely a paper parchment, a teasing illusion and a promise of unreality. It is only by liberalising the Rule of locus standi that it is possible to effectively police the corridors of power and prevent violations of law. It was pointed out by Schwartz and H.W.R. Wade in their book on Legal Control of Government at p. 354:

"Restrictive rules about standing are in general inimical to a healthy system of administrative law. If a plaintiff with a good case is turned away, merely because he is not sufficiently affected personally, that means that some Government agency is left free to violate the law, and that is contrary to the public interest. Litigants are unlikely to expend their time and money unless they have some real interest at stake. In the rare cases where they wish to sue merely out of public spirit, why should they be discouraged?"

It is also necessary to point out that if no one can have standing to maintain an action for judicial redress in respect of a public wrong or public injury, not only will the cause of legality suffer but the people not having any judicial remedy to redress such public wrong or public injury may turn to the street and in that process, the rule of law will be seriously impaired. It is absolutely essential that the rule of law must wean the people away from the lawless street and win them for the Court of law.

There is also another reason why the Rule of locus standi needs to be liberalised. Today we find that law is being increasingly used as a device of organised social action for the purpose of bringing about socio-economic change. The task of national reconstruction upon which we are engaged has brought about enormous increase in developmental activities and law is being utilised for the purpose of development, social and economic. It is creating more and more a new category of rights in favour of large Sections of people and imposing a new category of duties on the State and the public officials with a view to reaching social justice to the common man. Individual rights and duties are giving place to meta-individual, collective, social rights and duties of classes or groups of persons. This is not to say that individual rights have ceased to have a vital place in our society but it is recognised that these rights are practicably meaningless in today's setting unless accompanied by the social rights necessary to make them effective and really accessible to all. The new social and economic rights which are sought to be created in pursuance of the Directive Principles of State Policy essentially require active intervention of the State and other public authorities. Amongst these social and economic rights are freedom from indigency, ignorance and discrimination as well as the right to a healthy environment, to social security and to protection from financial, commercial, corporate or even Governmental oppression. More and more frequently the conferment of these socio-economic rights and imposition of public duties on the State and other authorities for taking positive action generates situations in which a single human action can be beneficial or prejudicial to a large number of people, thus making entirely inadequate the traditional scheme of litigation as merely a two-party affair. For example, the discharge of effluent in a lake or river may harm all who want to enjoy its clean water; emission of noxious gas may cause injury to large numbers of people who inhale it along with the air; defective or unhealthy packaging may cause damage to all consumers of goods and so also illegal raising of railway or bus fares may affect the entire public which wants to use the railway or bus as a means of transport. In cases of this kind it would not be possible to say that any specific legal injury is caused to an individual or to a determinate class or group of individuals. What results in such cases is public injury and it is one of the characteristics of public injury that the act or acts complained of cannot necessarily be shown to affect the rights of determinate or identifiable class or group of persons : public injury is an injury to an indeterminate class of persons. In these cases the duty which is breached giving rise to the injury is owed by the State or a public authority not to any specific or determinate class or group of persons, but to the general public. In other words, the duty is one which is not correlative to any individual rights. Now if breach of such public duty were allowed to go unredressed because there is no one who has received a specific legal injury or who was entitled to participate in the proceedings pertaining to the decision relating to such public duty, the failure to perform such public duty would go unchecked and it would promote disrespect for the rule of law. It would also open the door for corruption and inefficiency because there would be no check on exercise of public power except what may be provided by the political machinery, which at best would be able to exercise only a limited control and at worst, might become a participant in misuse or abuse of power. It would also make the new social collective rights and interests created for the benefit of the deprived Sections of the community meaningless and ineffectual.

Now, as pointed out by Cappelletti in Vol. III of his classic work on Access to Justice at p. 520, "The traditional doctrine of standing (legitimatio ad causam) attributes the right to sue either to the private individual who 'holds' the right which is in need of judicial protection or in case of public rights, to the State itself, which sues in Courts through its organs." The principle underlying the traditional rule of standing is that only the holder of the right can sue and it is therefore, held in many jurisdictions that since the State representing the public is the holder of the public rights, it alone can sue for redress of public injury or vindication of public interest. It is on this principle that in the United Kingdom, the Attorney-General is entrusted with the function of enforcing due observance of the law. The Attorney-General represents the public interest in its entirety and as pointed out by S.A. de Smith in Judicial Review of Administrative Action (3rd Edn.) at p. 403, "the general public has an interest in seeing that the law is obeyed and for this purpose, the Attorney-General represents the public". There is, therefore, a machinery in the United Kingdom for judicial redress for public injury and protection of social, collective, what Cappelletti calls "diffuse" rights and interests. We have no such machinery here. We have undoubtedly an Attorney-General as also Advocates General in the States, but they do not represent the public interest generally. They do so in a very limited field; see Sections 91 and 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. But, even if we had a provision empowering the Attorney-General or the Advocate-General to take action for vindicating public interest, I doubt very much whether it would be effective. The Attorney-General or the Advocate-General would be too dependent upon the political branches of Government to act as an Advocate against abuses which are frequently generated or at least tolerated by political and administrative bodies. Be that as it may, the fact remains that we have no such institution in our country and we have therefore to liberalise the Rule of standing in order to provide judicial redress for public injury arising from breach of public duty or from other violation of the Constitution or the law. If public duties are to be enforced and social collective "diffused" rights and interests are to be protected, we have to utilise the initiative and zeal of public-minded persons and organisations by allowing them to move the Court and act for a general or group interest, even though, they may not be directly injured in their own rights. It is for this reason that in public interest litigation — litigation undertaken for the purpose of redressing public injury, enforcing public duty, protecting social, collective, "diffused" rights and interests or vindicating public interest, any citizen who is acting bona fide and who has sufficient interest has to be accorded standing. What is sufficient interest to give standing to a member of the public would have to be determined by the Court in each individual case. It is not possible for the Court to lay down any hard and fast rule or any straitjacket formula for the purpose of defining or delimiting "sufficient interest". It has necessarily to be left to the discretion of the court. The reason is that in a modern complex society which is seeking to bring about transformation of its social and economic structure and trying to reach social justice to the vulnerable Sections of the people by creating new social, collective "diffuse" rights and interests and imposing new public duties on the State and other public authorities, infinite number of situations are bound to arise which cannot be imprisoned in a rigid mould or a procrustean formula. The Judge who has the correct social perspective and who is on the same wavelength as the Constitution will be able to decide, without any difficulty and in consonance with the constitutional objectives, whether a member of the public moving the Court in a particular case has sufficient interest to initiate the action.

We would, therefore, hold that any member of the public having sufficient interest can maintain an action for judicial redress for public injury arising from breach of public duty or from violation of some provision of the Constitution or the law and seek enforcement of such public duty and observance of such constitutional or legal provision. This is absolutely essential for maintaining the rule of law, furthering the cause of justice and accelerating the pace of realisation of the constitutional objectives. "Law", as pointed out by Justice Krishna Iyer in Fertilizer Corporation Kamgar Union (Regd.) v. Union of India [(1981) 1 SCC 568 : AIR 1981 SC 344 : (1981) 1 LLJ 193] "is a social auditor and this audit function can be put into action only when someone with real public interest ignites the jurisdiction" (SCC p. 585)...."

(Emphasis added)

33. In view of the law laid down in S. P. Gupta (supra), there remains no dispute that this Court has sufficient power to initiate proceedings even on a letter written by a person, who has no concern with the case, but, only brings the same in the knowledge of the Court and this Court can even exercise its jurisdiction suo moto where it finds that the Fundamental Rights of children belonging to financially deprived Section of the largest minority community are being violated by any action/inaction of the State.

34. No material is placed before us to show that the petitioner, an Advocate who is a regular practitioner in this court, does not have bona fide intentions in filing the present writ petition. There is no reason to disbelieve his intentions. Further, the cause raised by him is a genuine cause, which impacts not only these children and their families, but also each and every citizen of this country. If a substantial number of children of the State are denied universal quality education it would in future result in social and economic disparity in the society. Those denied the benefits of modern quality education would find themselves stuck with limited options of growth and livelihood. Such situations cause social disparity resulting in tensions in society. It is the duty of the State to ensure that universal quality education is provided by it to one and all so that each individual gets equal opportunity to grow and create a bright future. A peaceful society is a right vested in every citizen of this country, both individually and collectively. To work in the said direction is a constitutional obligation of the State. Policies of the State have to be in furtherance of such constitutional obligations. Any person with bona fide apprehensions that the State is failing in its constitutional obligations can approach the High Court under Article 226 or, where the same are impacting Fundamental Rights, also to the Supreme Court under Article 32 of the Constitution of India. It is the duty of the Constitutional Courts to ensure that the Rule of Law prevails. Performance of this constitutional duty cannot be refused merely on technicalities of locus or pleadings. Courts have been accepting mere letters as sufficient to initiate proceedings in appropriate cases. Even newspaper reports are found sufficient to initiate suo moto action by courts, where cause is alarming enough. Constitutional Courts have understood and stood for the necessity of quality education to children. It is the Courts that read the right to receive universal quality education as a part of the Fundamental Right to Life guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India. In the present case, it is not only the petitioner who has raised the cause of these children studying in madarsas, but, this Court itself found a need to look into the issue.

35. In view of the foregoing discussion, we find no force in the preliminary objection regarding Locus Standi of the petitioner.

36. The second preliminary objection raised by Sri. Sandeep Dixit Senior Advocate is that there are no proper pleadings in the writ petition filed by Sri Anshuman Singh Rathore and in absence of proper pleadings, the writ petition cannot stand. He has submitted that the earlier writ petition, in which the reference order was passed, also does not challenge the vires of the Madarsa Act, but it is for issuance of a Writ of Mandamus commanding the respondents to pay salary to the petitioner regularly in the prescribed pay scale of the State Government for the post of Assistant Teacher of Primary Section of Madarsa, with a further prayer to absorb and regularize the services of petitioner on the post of Assistant Teacher and no regular appointment should be made by the respondents, and thus in the same also, in absence of any pleadings, vires cannot be looked into.

37. In support of the preliminary objection regarding lack of adequate pleadings, the learned Counsel for the respondents have relied upon the judgments in the cases of Union of India and others versus Manjurani Routray and others (2023) 9 SCC 144; Haji Abdul Gani Khan and another versus Union of India and others, (2023) SCC OnLine SC 138; State of Kerala and others versus Shibu Kumar P.K. and another,(2019) 13 SCC 577; Kerala State Toddy Shop Contractors Association versus T.N. Prathapan, MLA and others (2014) 15 SCC 466; Ashutosh Gupta versus State of Rajasthan and others (2002) 4 SCC 34; and S.S. Sharma and others versus Union of India and others (1981) 1 SCC 397.

38. In the case of Union of India and others versus Manjurani Routray and others (2023) 9 SCC 144, it is held that: -

"11. While hearing the learned counsel appearing for the parties, we asked Shri B.H. Marlapalle, learned Senior Counsel along with Shri Shibashish Mishra appearing on behalf of the respondents and intervenors, as to how, in absence of any pleading setting out grounds challenging the vires of Rule 4(b) and in the absence of seeking any relief to that effect, the High Court was justified in exercising jurisdiction to declare Rule 4(b) as ultra vires? In response, the learned Senior Counsel has fairly stated that it is a defect in the pleadings as well as in the relief sought before CAT and in the writ petition. But still, they made an unsuccessful attempt to satisfy this Court that the said rule appears to be discriminatory and therefore the High Court has rightly exercised the jurisdiction while passing the impugned order. It is a trite law that for striking down the provisions of law or for declaring any rules as ultra vires, specific pleading to challenge the rules and asking of such relief ought to be made, that is conspicuously missing in the present case. In the absence of such a pleading, the Union of India did not have an opportunity to rebut the same. The other side had no opportunity to bring on record the object, if any, behind the Rules that were brought into force. We are also of the considered view that, in the writ petition seeking a writ of certiorari challenging the order of CAT, the High Court ought not to have declared Rule 4(b) as ultra vires in the above fact situation. Therefore, the High Court was not justified to declare Rule 4(b) as ultra vires."

39. In Haji Abdul Gani Khan and another versus Union of India and others, (2023) SCC OnLine SC 138, it is held that: --

"20. There cannot be any doubt that when a party wants to challenge the constitutional validity of a statute, he must plead in detail the grounds on which the validity of the statute is sought to be challenged. In absence of the specific pleadings to that effect, Court cannot go into the issue of the validity of statutory provisions. The Constitutional Courts cannot interfere with the law made by the Legislature unless it is specifically challenged by incorporating specific grounds of challenge in the pleadings. The reason is that there is always a presumption of the constitutionality of laws. The burden is always on the person alleging unconstitutionality to prove it. For that purpose, the challenge has to be specifically pleaded by setting out the specific grounds on which the challenge is made. A Constitutional Court cannot casually interfere with legislation made by a competent Legislature only by drawing an inference from the pleadings that the challenge to the validity is implicit. The State gets a proper opportunity to defend the legislation only if the State is made aware of the grounds on which the legislation is sought to be challenged."

40. In State of Kerala and others versus Shibu Kumar P.K. and another,(2019) 13 SCC 577, the Supreme Court held that: -

"4. In these matters, none of the parties to the proceedings had laid the required pleaded foundation for questioning the vires of Rules 4 and 5 of the Rules as imperative in law. What was really questioned by the respondent(s)/defaulter(s) was/were only the show-cause notice(s) issued for the recovery of the amounts due from him/them, either to the financial institution(s) or to the bank(s). Ignoring this aspect of the matter, the Division Bench of the High Court has proceeded to consider the vires of Item (viii) under Rules 4 and 5(1) of the Rules.

5. In our opinion, the first and foremost, in the absence of adequate pleadings and grounds of challenge to the vires of the Rules in the writ petition, the Division Bench ought not to have considered that issue, and given its verdict or opinion. Even otherwise, in our opinion, the High Court has not convincingly substantiated its conclusion that the aforesaid Rules are unreasonable and arbitrary and, therefore, require to be struck down on the touchstone of Article 14 of the Constitution of India."

41. In Kerala State Toddy Shop Contractors Association versus T.N. Prathapan, MLA and others (2014) 15 SCC 466, it is held that: -

"9. In State of A.P. v. K. Jayaraman [State of A.P. v. K. Jayaraman, (1974) 2 SCC 738 : 1974 SCC (L&S) 547] , it has been observed that when an averment is made that a particular rule is invalid for violating Articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution, relevant facts showing how it is discriminatory ought to have been set out.

10. In Union of India v. E.I.D. Parry (India) Ltd. [Union of India v. E.I.D. Parry (India) Ltd., (2000) 2 SCC 223] , a two-Judge Bench has observed thus: (SCC p. 225, para 4)

"4. ... There was no pleading that the rule upon which the reliance was placed by the respondent was ultra vires the Railways Act, 1890. In the absence of the pleading to that effect, the trial Court did not frame any issue on that question. The High Court of its own proceeded to consider the validity of the rule and ultimately held that it was not in consonance with the relevant provisions of the Railways Act, 1890 and consequently held that it was ultra vires. This view is contrary to the settled law…."

11. In State of Haryana v. State of Punjab [State of Haryana v. State of Punjab, (2004) 12 SCC 673] , reiterating the principle, this Court has held that: (SCC p. 706, para 82)

"82. ... merely saying that a particular provision is legislatively incompetent [ground (ii)] or discriminatory [ground (iii)] will not do. At least prima facie acceptable grounds in support have to be pleaded to sustain the challenge. In the absence of any such pleading the challenge to the constitutional validity of a statute or statutory provision is liable to be rejected in limine."

From the aforesaid authorities, it is clear as day that in the absence of any assertion how a particular provision offends any of the Articles of the Constitution, the same cannot be adverted to. It is a settled principle of law that a person who assails a provision to be ultra vires must plead the same in proper perspective.

As we find in the case at hand, the High Court was required to interpret Rule 28-A of the Rules. Under such circumstances, the High Court has fallen into grave error by declaring another Rule as discriminatory and unreasonable. Suo motu assumption of jurisdiction in this regard is totally uncalled for and, therefore, that makes the judgment and order declaring the 2003 Rules as discriminatory sensitively susceptible."

42. In Ashutosh Gupta versus State of Rajasthan and others (2002) 4 SCC 34, the Supreme Court held that: -

"5. ..... Apart from making such submission on a hypothetical basis, no material has been produced to indicate if any one of the persons recruited under the Emergency Recruitment Rules has reaped any undue advantage in respect of his past experience by adoption of the formula in the Emergency Recruitment Rules for the purpose of allotting the year of allotment as 1976-N-1 + half of N-2. In the absence of an iota of material on this aspect, we are not required to examine the correctness of the said submission of Mr Jain, on an assumption that the provisions of the Recruitment Rules might have enabled the professionals on being recruited to count their past experience for reckoning their seniority in the cadre of administrative service even though the said experience might not have any correlation with the administrative service. Even otherwise, the entire experience of such recruits could not have been totally wiped off and therefore the rule-making authority while making the rules for recruitment on emergency basis did make the provisions contained in Rule 25 which is also in pari materia with similar provisions available elsewhere including the one which was meant for emergency recruitment to the Indian Administrative Service. Where the challenge is made to a statutory provision being discriminatory, allegations in writ petition must be specific, clear and unambiguous. There must be proper pleadings and averments in the substantive petition before the question of denial of equal protection of infringement of fundamental right can be decided. There is always a presumption in favour of the constitutionality of enactment and the burden is upon him who attacks it to show that there has been a clear transgression of the constitutional principles. The presumption of constitutionality stems from the wide power of classification which the legislature must, of necessity possess in making laws operating differently as regards different groups of persons in order to give effect to policies. It must be presumed that the legislature understands and correctly appreciates the need of its own people, that its laws are directed to problems made manifest by experience. The claim of equal protection under Article 14, therefore, is examined with the aforesaid presumption that the State Acts are reasonable and justified. If we examine the challenge to the impugned provision from the aforesaid standpoint, we have no hesitation to hold that the appellants have utterly failed to establish any material from which grievances about the discrimination alleged can be said to have been made."

43. In S.S. Sharma and others versus Union of India and others (1981) 1 SCC 397, it was held that: -

"6. ...We are of opinion that the Courts should ordinarily insist on the parties being confined to their specific written pleadings and should not be permitted to deviate from them by way of modification or supplementation except through the well known process of formally applying for amendment. We do not mean that justice should be available to only those who approach the Court confined in a strait-jacket. But there is a procedure known to the law, and long established by codified practice and good reason, for seeking amendment of the pleadings. If undue laxity and a too easy informality is permitted to enter the proceedings of a Court it will not be long before a contemptuous familiarity assails its institutional dignity and ushers in chaos and confusion undermining its effectiveness. Like every public institution, the Courts function in the security of public confidence, and public confidence resides most where institutional discipline prevails. Besides this, oral submissions raising new points for the first time tend to do grave injury to a contesting party by depriving it of the opportunity, to which the principles of natural justice hold it entitled, of adequately preparing its response."

44. In response to the objection regarding lack of proper pleadings, Mr. Sudeep Kumar learned Counsel for the petitioner has drawn attention of the Court to the pleadings made in paras 6, 7, 8, 13, 14 and 18 of the Writ Petition, which are being reproduced below: -

"6. That it is submitted that enactment of this law i.e. the Madarsa Act, 2004 is not only beyond the jurisdiction of the State legislation but also, from gainful reading of the provisions of the said enactment, the same is found to be arbitrary, discriminatory and unconstitutional in as much as by operation and implementation of the Madarsa Act, 2004 the benefit of quality education through common curriculum and common syllabus formulated by experts is denied to the children studying at Madarsa on basis of religious discrimination.

7. That the children studying at Madarsa are not only deprived of the common quality syllabus as formulated under the National Education Policy, 2020 (NEP) but are also denied the right to free and compulsory education as enshrined under Article 21A of the Constitution of India solely on the grounds of religious discrimination.

8. That by virtue of the enactment of the Madarsa Act, 2004, the legislature has arbitrarily and in a discriminatory manner included the Madars sought to be run under the minority welfare Department while the other religious education institutions particularly those belonging to communities like Jan, Sikhs, Christians etc. are being run under the Education Ministry and deriving the benefit of the Right to Education Act, 2009 as well as the National Education Policy 2020.

13. That it is submitted that the prevailing system introduced by virtue of the Amendment act, 2012 does not provide equal opportunity to all children in terms of syllabus and curriculum in as much as children enrolled in Madarsas have been discriminated upon and not only been removed from the ambit of the Act of 2009 providing not only free and compulsory education but also quality and uniform education as envisaged under the National Education Policy, 2020.

14, that it is submitted that Right to Education is a fundamental right under Article 21A inserted by 86th Amendment of the Constitution. Even before the said amendment, the law of land has treated right to education as a fundamental right. Further, it is the settled law that Right to education and Article 21A of the Constitution has to be read in conformity with Article 14 and 15 of the Constitution and there must be no discrimination in quality of education. Thus, a syllabus and common curriculum is required. The right of education, the right of a child should not be restricted only to Free and compulsory education, but should be extended to have quality education without any discrimination on the ground of its economic, social and cultural backgrounds. 18. That it is apposite to submit here that in the Madarsas neither the regulation of the education department nor the syllabus prescribed therein is adopted whereas in every NEP there is a specific obligation upon all institutions to undertake study in a common syllabus and common programme of examination and thus, for a holistic development of a child is studying at Madarsa education, incorporation of the NEP, 2020 is imperative and in consonance with the fundamental rights guaranteed under the Constitution of India.

45. Ground A taken in Writ C No. 6049 of 2023 is as follows: -

"A. Because the U. P Board of Madarsas Education Act, 2004 is arbitrary, unconstitutional and is in violation of Articles 14, 15 and 21A of the Constitution of India."

46. The aforesaid pleadings made and the ground taken in Writ C No. 6049 of 2023 are sufficient to make all the other parties understand the case set up by the petitioner and required to be defended by the opposite parties. As all the aforesaid connected Writ Petitions involve the question of entitlement of payment of salary to teachers of Madarsas from State Exchequer, they were connected and were heard together. All the learned Counsel have advanced their submissions on various points, including vires of the Madarsas Act. Therefore, it is not a case which lacks proper pleadings or where the parties have been taken by surprise for lack of proper pleadings. Accordingly, we turn down the second preliminary objection raised by the counsel for the opposite parties.

(D) HISTORY OF MADARSAS IN STATE OF U.P. AND RELEVANT PROVISIONS OF MADARSA ACT AND REGULATIONS

47. It appears that after independence, private Madarsas continued in the State of U.P. The said Madarsas were not recognized by the State Government. However, the same continued to provide education at local levels. For the first time in the year 1969, the State Government came out with the 'Rules of Recognition of Arabic and Persian Madarsas, U.P.' by Government Order No.Ga-2/1390/15-40(41)-65, dated 18.06.1969. The said Rules provided that Arabic and Persian institutions desiring recognition should apply to the Registrar, Arabic and Persian Examinations, U.P., Allahabad, specifying clearly the examination or examinations for which recognition is sought for. The same broadly provided for the building, library, financial position and teachers for such Madarsas.

48. 'U.P. Ashaskiya Arbi Tatha Farsi Madarson Ki Manyata Niyamavali' was propounded by Government Order No. 3367/15-17-87-53(5)-86, dated 22.08.1987, which was non-statutory.

49. The State Government created a new department called ‘Minority Welfare Department’ vide Government Order No.1856/45Sa-E-1-95-639(2)/95 dated 12.08.1995. The same was followed by another Government Order No.272/15-6-96-28[4]/96 dated 31.1.1996, whereby all the matters with regard to declaring minority institution in basic and secondary education institutions, all work of Arbi and Farsi Madarsas, the enforcement of the schemes made by the Central Government for modernization of Arbi and Farsi Madarsas and forming of Committee for modernization of syllabus of these Madarsas and educational development schemes run by the Union of India with regard to minorities for construction of their hostels in the field of secondary education, were handed over to the Minority Welfare Department.

50. The aforesaid Government orders were followed by the U. P. Board of Madarsa Education Act, 2004, the validity whereof is being scrutinized in this case. The objects and reasons and the relevant provisions of the Madarsa Act reads as follows:

“Statement of Objects and Reasons of U.P. Board of Madarsa Education Act, 2004

In para 55 of the Education Code the Registrar, Arabi-Pharasi Examinations, Uttar Pradesh Allahabad had been authorised to recognise the Arabi-Pharasi Madarsas in the State and for conducting the examinations of such Madarsas. These Madarsas were managed by the Education Department. But with the creation of the Minority Welfare and Wakfs Department in 1995 all the works relating to such Madarsa were transferred from Education Department to the Minority Welfare Departments by virtue of which all the works relating to Madarsas are being performed under the control of the Director, Minority Welfare Uttar Pradesh and the Registrar/Inspector Arabi-Pharasi Madarsas, Uttar Pradesh. The Arabi-Pharasi Madarsas were being administered under the Arabi-Pharasi Madarsas Rules, 1987 but since the said rules have not been made under an Act, many complication arose in running the Madarsas under the said rules. Therefore with a view to removing the difficulties arisen in running the Madarsas, improving the merit therein and making available the best facility of study to the students studying in Madarsas it was decided to make a law to provide for the establishment of a Board of Madarsa Education in the State and for the matters connected therewith or incidental thereto.

Since the State Legislature was not in session and immediate legislative action was necessary to implements the aforesaid decision the Uttar Pradesh Board of Madarsa Education Ordinance 2004 (U.P. Ordinance No.12 of 2004) was promulgated by the Governor on September 3, 2004.

This Bill is introduced to replace the aforesaid Ordinance."

51. The relevant provisions of the Madarsa Act read as under: -

"2. In this Act unless the context otherwise requires:-

(a) "Board" means the Uttar Pradesh Board of Madarsa Education established under Section 3;

*(f) "institution" means the Government Oriental College, Rampur and includes a Madarsa or an Oriental College established and administered by Muslim-Minorities and recognised by the Board for imparting Madarsa-Education;

(h) "Madarsa-Education" means education in Arbic, Urdu, Parsian, Islamic-studies, Tibb Logic, Philosophy and includes such other branches of learning as may be specified by the Board from time to time;

Section 10 - Powers of the Board

(1) The Board shall subject to the provisions of this Act and the rules made thereunder, shall have all such powers as may be necessary for the performance of its fuctions and the discharge of its duties under this Act, or the rules or regulations made thereunder.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing powers, the Board shall have the powers,-

(i) to cancel an examination or withhold the result of an examination of a candidate, or to disallow him from appearing at any future examination who is found by it to be guilty of,-

(a) using unfair means in the examination; or

(b) making any incorrect statement or suppressing material information or fact in the application form for admission to the examination; or

(c) fraud or impersonation at the examination; or

(d) securing admission to the examination in contravention of the rules governing admission to such examination; or

(e) any act of gross indiscipline in the course of the examination;

(ii) to cancel the result of an examination of any candidate for all or any of the acts mentioned in sub-clauses (a) to (d) of clause (i) or for any bona fide error of the Board in the declaration of the result:

(iii) to prescribe fees for the examinations conducted by it and provide for the mode of its realisation;

(iv) to refuse recognition of an institution,-

(a) which does not fulfill, or is not in a position to fulfill, or does not come up to, the standards for staff, instructions, equipment or buildings laid down by the Board in this behalf; or

(E) GROUNDS OF CHALLENGE:

(I) VIOLATIVE OF SCULARISM

53. The term secularism itself is left undefined in our constitution but the Supreme Court has defined and explained the same in a number of judgments.

Reliance is place by the petitioner and Amici Curiae on the following cases: - i)S.R. Bommai and others versus Union of India and others (1994) 3 SCC 1; ii)Bal Patil and another versus Union of India and others (2005) 6 SCC 690;

iii) Subramanian Swamy versus Director, Central Bureau of Investigation and another (2014)8 SCC 682; iv)Ziyauddin Burhanuddin Bukhari versus Brijmohan Ramdass Mehra and others (1976) 2 SCC 17;

v)T.M.A. Pai Foundation and others versus State of Karnataka and others (2002) 8 SCC 481; vi)Aruna Roy and others versus Union of India and others (2002) 7 SCC 368.

54. S.R. Bommai(Supra) was decided by a Bench consisting of 9 Judges of the Supreme Court. Justice S. Ratnavel Pandian, and Justice A. M. Ahmadi authored their separate judgments, Justice J. S. Verma authored a judgment for himself and Justice Yogeshwar Dayal, Justice P. B. Sawant wrote a judgment for himself and Justice Kuldeep Singh, Justice Ramaswamy wrote a separate judgment and Justice B. P. Jeewan Reddy wrote a judgment for himself and Justice S. C. Agarwal.

55. Justice P. B. Sawant, while expressing the opinion for himself and Justice Kuldeep Singh, held that: -

"148.One thing which prominently emerges from the above discussion on secularism under our Constitution is that whatever the attitude of the State towards the religions, religious sects and denominations, religion cannot be mixed with any secular activity of the State. In fact, the encroachment of religion into secular activities is strictly prohibited. This is evident from the provisions of the Constitution to which we have made reference above. The State's tolerance of religion or religions does not make it either a religious or a theocratic State. When the State allows citizens to practise and profess their religions, it does not either explicitly or implicitly allow them to introduce religion into non-religious and secular activities of the State. The freedom and tolerance of religion is only to the extent of permitting pursuit of spiritual life which is different from the secular life. The latter falls in the exclusive domain of the affairs of the State. This is also clear from sub-section (3) of Section 123 of the Representation of the People Act, 1951 which prohibits an appeal by a candidate or his agent or by any other person with the consent of the candidate or his election agent to vote or refrain from voting for any person on the ground of his religion, race, caste, community or language or the use of or appeal to religious symbols. Sub-section (3-A) of the same Section prohibits the promotion or attempt to promote feelings of enmity and hatred between different classes of the citizens of India on the grounds of religion, race, caste, community or language by a candidate or his agent or any other person with the consent of the candidate or his election agent for the furtherance of the prospects of the election of that candidate or for prejudicially affecting the election of any candidate. A breach of the provisions of the said sub-sections (3) and (3-A) are deemed to be corrupt practices within the meaning of the said section." (emphasis added)

While summarizing his conclusions, Justice P. B. Sawant held that: - 153.Our conclusions, therefore, may be summarised as under:

* * *

VIII. Secularism is a part of the basic structure of the Constitution. The acts of a State Government which are calculated to subvert or sabotage secularism as enshrined in our Constitution, can lawfully be deemed to give rise to a situation in which the Government of the State cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution."

56. Justice Ramaswamy explained the concept of Secularism as follows:

"178.Freedom of faith and religion is an integral part of social structure. Such freedom is not a bounty of the State but constitutes the very foundation on which the State is erected. Human liberty sometimes means to satisfy the human needs in one's own way. Freedom of religion is imparted in every free society because it is a part of the general structure of the liberty in such a society and secondly because restrictions imposed by one religion would be an obstacle for others. In the past religious beliefs have become battlegrounds for power and root cause for suppression of liberty. Religion has often provided a pretext to have control over vast majority of the members of the society. Democratic society realises folly of the vigour of religious practices in society. Strong religious consciousness not only narrows the vision but hampers rule of law. The Founding Fathers of the Constitution, therefore, gave unto themselves "we people of India", the Fundamental Rights and Directive Principles of State Policy to establish an egalitarian social order for all Sections of the society in the supreme law of the land itself. Though the concept of "secularism" was not expressly engrafted while making the Constitution, its sweep, operation and visibility are apparent from fundamental rights and directive principles and their related provisions. It was made explicit by amending the preamble of the Constitution 42nd Amendment Act. The concept of secularism of which religious freedom is the foremost appears to visualise not only of the subject of God but also an understanding between man and man. Secularism in the Constitution is not anti-God and it is sometimes believed to be a stay in a free society. Matters which are purely religious are left personal to the individual and the secular part is taken charge by the State on grounds of public interest, order and general welfare. The State guarantee individual and corporate religious freedom and dealt with an individual as citizen irrespective of his faith and religious belief and does not promote any particular religion nor prefers one against another. The concept of the secular State is, therefore, essential for successful working of the democratic form of Government. There can be no democracy if anti-secular forces are allowed to work dividing followers of different religious faith flying at each other's throats. The secular Government should negate the attempt and bring order in the society. Religion in the positive sense, is an active instrument to allow the citizen full development of his person, not merely in the physical and material but in the non-material and non-secular life.

* * *

180.... InZiyauddin Burhanuddin Bukhariv.Brijmohan Ramdass Mehra[(1976) 2 SCC 17] this Court held that :

"The Secular State rising above all differences of religion, attempts to secure the good of all its citizens irrespective of their religious beliefs and practices. It is neutral or impartial in extending its benefits to citizens of all castes and creeds. Maitland had pointed out that such a State has to ensure, through its laws, that the existence or exercise of a political or civil right or the right or capacity to occupy any office or position under it or to perform any public duty connected with it does not depend upon the profession or practice of any particular religion."...

183.The preamble of the Constitution inter alia assures to every citizen liberty of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship. Article 5 guarantees by birth citizenship to every Indian. No one bargained to be born in a particular religion, caste or region. Birth is a biological act of parents. Article 14 guarantees equality before the law or equal protection of laws. Discrimination on grounds of religion was prohibited by Article 15. Article 16 mandates equal opportunity to all citizens in matters relating to employment or appointment to any office or post under the State and prohibits discrimination on grounds only of inter alia religion. Article 25 while reassuring to all persons freedom of conscience and the right to freely profess, practice and propagate his religion, it does not affect the operation of any existing law or preventing the State from making any law regulating or restricting any social, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with the religious practice. It is subject to providing a social welfare and reform or throwing open all Hindu religious institutions of public character to all classes of citizens and Sections of Hindus. Article 26 equally guarantees freedom to manage religious affairs, equally subject to public order, morality and health. Article 27 reinforces the secular character of Indian democracy enjoining the State from compelling any person or making him liable to pay any tax, the proceeds of which are specifically prohibited to be appropriated from the consolidated fund for the promotion or maintaining of any particular religion or religious denomination. Taxes going into consolidated funds should be used generally for the purpose of ensuring the secular purposes of which only some are mentioned in Articles 25 and 26 like regulating social welfare, etc. Article 28(1) maintains that no religious instruction shall be imparted in any educational institutions wholly maintained out of the State funds or receiving aid from the State. Equally no person attending any educational institution recognised by the State or receiving aid from the State funds should be compelled to take part in any religious instruction that may be imparted in such institution or to attend any religious worship that may be conducted in such institution or in any premises attached thereto unless such person or in the case of a minor person his guardian has given his consent thereto. By Article 30(2) the State is enjoined not to discriminate, in giving aid to an educational institution, on the ground that it is a minority institution whether based on religion or language. It would thus be clear that Constitution made demarcation between religious part personal to the individual and secular part thereof. The State does not extend patronage to any particular religion, State is neither pro particular religion nor anti particular religion. It stands aloof, in other words maintains neutrality in matters of religion and provides equal protection to all religions subject to regulation and actively acts on secular part.

184.InRatilal Panachand Gandhiv. State of Bombay[1954 SCR 1055 : AIR 1954 SC 388] this Court defined religion that it is not necessarily atheistic and, in fact, there are well-known religions in India like Buddhism and Jainism which do not believe in the existence of God or caste. A religion undoubtedly has different connotations which are regarded by those who profess that religion to be conducive to their spiritual well-being but it would not be correct to say or seems to have been suggested by the one of the learned Brothers therein that matters of religion are nothing but matters of religious faith and religious belief. The religion is not merely only a doctrine or belief as it finds expression in acts as well. InCommissioner, Hindu Religious Endowments, Madrasv.Sri Lakshmindra Thirtha Swamiar[1954 SCR 1005 : AIR 1954 SC 282] , known asShirur Mutt casethis Court interpreted religion in a restricted sense confining to personal beliefs and attended ceremonies or rituals. The restrictions contemplated in Part III of the Constitution are not the control of personal religious practices as such by the State but to regulate their activities which are secular in character though associated with religions, like management of property attached to religious institutions or endowments on secular activity which are amenable to such regulation. Matters such as offering food to the diety, etc. are essentially religious and the State does not regulate the same, leaving them to the individuals for their regulation. The caste system though formed the kernel of Hinduism, and as a matter of practice, for millenniums 1/4th of the Indian population — Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes — were prohibited entry into religious institutions like temples, maths, etc. on grounds of untouchability; Article 17 outlawed it and declared such practice an offence. Articles 25 and 26 have thrown open all public places and all places of public worship to Hindu religious denominations or sects for worship, offering prayers or performing any religious service in the places of public worship and no discrimination should be meted out on grounds of caste or sect or religious denomination*. InKesavananda Bharati case[Kesavananda Bharativ. State of Kerala, (1973) 4 SCC 225] andIndira Nehru Gandhiv.Raj Narain[1975 Supp SCC 1] this Court held that secularism is a basic feature of the Constitution. It is true that Schedule III of the Constitution provided the form of oath being taken in the name of God. This is not in recognition that he has his religion or religious belief in God of a particular religion but he should be bound by the oath to administer and to abide by the Constitution and laws as a moral being, in accordance with their mandate and the individual will ensure that he will not transgress the oath taken by him. It is significant to note that the Oaths Act, 1873 was repealed by Oaths Act, 1966 and was made consistent with the constitutional scheme of secularism in particular, Sections 7 to 11.*

185.Equally admission into an educational institution has been made a fundamental right to every person and he shall not be discriminated on grounds only of religion or caste. The education also should be imparted in the institutions maintained out of the State fund or receiving aid only on secular lines. The State, therefore, has a missionary role to reform the Hindu society, Hindu social order and dilute the beliefs of caste hierarchy. Even in matters of entry into religious institutions or places of public resort prohibition of entry only on grounds of caste or religion is outlawed.

186.Dr S. Radhakrishnan, stated that: "Religion can be identified with emotion, sentiments, intensity, cultural, profession, conscious belief of faith." According to Gandhiji : "By religion I do not mean formal religion or customary religion but that religion which underlies all religions." Religion to him was spiritual commitment just total but intentionally personal. In other words, it is for only development of the man for the absolution of his consciousness (sicconscience) in certain direction which he considered to be good. Therefore, religion is one of belief personal to the individual which binds him to his conscience and the moral and basic principles regulating the life of a man had constituted the religion, as understood in our Constitution. Freedom of conscience allows a person to believe in particular religious tenets of his choice. It is quite distinct from the freedom to perform external acts in pursuance of faith. Freedom of conscience means that a person cannot be made answerable for rights of religion. Undoubtedly, it means that no man possesses a right to dictate to another what religion he believes in; what philosophy he holds, what shall be his politics or what views he shall accept, etc. Article 25(1) protects freedom of conscience and religion of members of only of an organised system of belief and faith irrespective of particular affiliations and does not march out of concern itself as a part of the right to freedom of conscience and dignity of person and such beliefs and practices which are reasonable. The Constitution, therefore, protects only the essential and integral practices of the religion. The religious practice is subject to the control of public order, morality and health which includes economic, financial or other secular activities. Could the religious practice exercise control over members to vote or not to vote, to ignore the National Flag, National Anthem, national institutions? Freedom of conscience under Article 25 whether guarantees people of different religious faiths the right to religious procession to antagonise the people of different religious faiths or right to public worship? It is a fact of social and religious history in India that religious processions are known to ignite serious communal riots, disturb peace, tranquillity and public order. The right to free profession of religion and exercising right to organise religious congregations does not carry with it the right to make inflammatory speeches, nor be a licence to spread violence, nor speak religious intolerance as an aspect of religious faiths. They are subject to the State control. In order to secure constitutional protection, the religious practices should not only be an essential part but should also be an integral part of proponent's religion but subject to State's control. Otherwise even purely secular practices which are not an essential or an integral part of religion are apt to be quoted as religious forms and make a claim for being treated as religious practices. Law as a social engineer provides the means as well as lays down the rules for social control and resolution of conflicts of all kinds in a human society. But the motive force for social, economic and cultural transformation comes from individuals who comprise the society. They are the movers in the mould of the law as the principal instrument of an orderly transient to a new socio-economic order or social integration and fraternity among the people. The Constitution has chosen secularism as its vehicle to establish an egalitarian social order. I am respectfully in agreement with our Brethren Sawant and Jeevan Reddy, JJ. in this respect. Secularism, therefore, is part of the fundamental law and basic structure of the Indian political system to secure to all its people socio-economic needs essential for man's excellence and of (sichis) moral well-being, fulfilment of material and prosperity and political justice. (emphasis added)

57. Justice A. M. Ahmadi expressed concurrence with the aforesaid view by adding that: -

"29. Notwithstanding the fact that the words 'Socialist' and 'Secular' were added in the Preamble of the Constitution in 1976 by the 42nd Amendment, the concept of Secularism was very much embedded in our constitutional philosophy. The term 'Secular' has advisedly not been defined presumably because it is a very elastic term not capable of a precise definition and perhaps best left undefined. By this amendment what was implicit was made explicit. The Preamble itself spoke of liberty of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship. While granting this liberty the Preamble promised equality of status and opportunity. It also spoke of promoting fraternity, thereby assuring the dignity of the individual and the unity and integrity of the nation. While granting to its citizens liberty of belief, faith and worship, the Constitution abhorred discrimination on grounds of religion, etc., but permitted special treatment for Scheduled Castes and Tribes, vide Articles 15 and 16. Article 25 next provided, subject to public order, morality and health, that all persons shall be entitled to freedom of conscience and the right to profess, practice and propagate religion. Article 26 grants to every religious denomination or any Section thereof, the right to establish and maintain institutions for religious purposes and to manage its own affairs in matters of religion. These two Articles clearly confer a right to freedom of religion. Article 27 provides that no person shall be compelled to pay any taxes, the proceeds whereof are specifically appropriated in payment of expenses for the promotion or maintenance of any particular religion or religious denomination. This is an important Article which prohibits the exercise of State's taxation power if the proceeds thereof are intended to be appropriated in payment of expenses for the promotion and maintenance of any particular religion or religious denomination. That means that State's revenue cannot be utilised for the promotion and maintenance of any religion or religious group*. Article 28 relates to attendance at religious instructions or religious worship in certain educational institutions. Then come Articles 29 and 30 which refer to the cultural and educational rights. Article 29 i*nter alia provides that no citizen will be denied admission to an educational institution maintained wholly or partly from State funds on grounds only of religion, etc. Article 30 permits all minorities, whether based on religion or language, to establish and administer educational institutions of their choice and further prohibits the State from discriminating against such institutions in the matter of granting aid. These fundamental rights enshrined in Articles 15, 16, and 25 to 30 leave no manner of doubt that they form part of the basic structure of the Constitution. Besides, by the 42nd Amendment, Part IV-A entitled 'Fundamental Duties' was introduced which inter alia casts a duty on every citizen to cherish and follow the noble ideals which inspired our national struggle for freedom, to uphold and protect the sovereignty, unity and integrity of India, to promote harmony and the spirit of common brotherhood amongst all the people of India transcending religious, linguistic and regional or sectional diversities, and to value and preserve the rich heritage of our composite culture. These provisions which I have recalled briefly clearly bring out the dual concept of secularism and democracy, the principles of accommodation and tolerance as Advocated by Gandhiji and other national leaders. I am, therefore, in agreement with the views expressed by my learned colleagues Sawant, Ramaswamy and Reddy, JJ., that secularism is a basic feature of our Constitution. They have elaborately dealt with this aspect of the matter and I can do no better than express my concurrence but I have said these few words merely to complement their views by pointing out how this concept was understood immediately before the Constitution and till the 42nd Amendment. By the 42nd Amendment what was implicit was made explicit."

58. In Bal Patil and another versus Union of India and others (2005) 6 SCC 690, the Supreme Court held that: -

"37....Differential treatments to linguistic minorities based on language within the State is understandable but if the same concept for minorities on the basis of religion is encouraged, the whole country, which is already under class and social conflicts due to various divisive forces, will further face division on the basis of religious diversities. Such claims to minority status based on religion would increase in the fond hope of various Sections of people getting special protections, privileges and treatment as part of the constitutional guarantee.Encouragement to such fissiparous tendencies would be a serious jolt to the secular structure of constitutional democracy. We should guard against making our country akin to a theocratic State based on multinationalism. Our concept of secularism, to put it in a nutshell, is that the "State" will have no religion. The States will treat all religions and religious groups equally and with equal respect without in any manner interfering with their individual rights of religion, faith and worship."

59. In Ziyauddin Burhanuddin Bukhari(supra), the Supreme Court held: -

"44.The Secular State, rising above all differences of religion, attempts to secure the good of all its citizens irrespective of their religious beliefs and practices. It is neutral or impartial in extending its benefits to citizens of all castes and creeds. Maitland had pointed out that such a State has to ensure, through its laws, that the existence or exercise of a political or civil right or the right or capacity to occupy any office or position under it or to perform any public duty connected with it does not depend upon the profession or practise of any particular religion. ...."

60. In T.M.A. Pai Foundation*(supra)*,the Supreme Court held that: -

"332.Although the idea of secularism may have been borrowed in the Indian Constitution from the West, it has adopted its own unique brand of secularism based on its particular history and exigencies which are far removed in many ways from secularism as it is defined and followed in European countries, the United States of America and Australia.

* * *

344.In the ultimate analysis the Indian Constitution does not unlike the United States, subscribe to the principle of non-interference of the State in religious organisations but it remains secular in that it strives to respect all religions equally, the equality being understood in its substantive sense as is discussed in the subsequent paragraphs."

61. In Aruna Roy (supra) the Supreme Court held that: -

M.B. Shah, J.

31. Further, for controlling the wild animal instinct in human beings and for having a civilized cultured society, it appears that religions have come into existence. Religion is the foundation for value-based survival of human beings in a civilized society. The force and sanction behind civilized society depends upon moral values. The philosophy of coexistence and how to coexist is thought over by the saints all over the world which is revealed by various philosophers. How to coexist, not only with human beings but all living beings on the earth, maybe animals, vegetation and the environment including air and water, is thought over and discussed by saints and leaders all over the world which is reflected in religions. If that is taught, it cannot be objected as it is neither violative of constitutional or legal rights nor it offends moral values. This has been dealt with elaborately by the S.B. Chavan Committee. The Committee as stated above had invited suggestions from noted educationists on various aspects of value-based education. As stated by the Committee it had benefited by the views of eminent experts/NGOs doing pioneering work in this area. Further, no one can dispute that truth (satya), righteous conduct (dharma), peace (shanti), love (prem) and non-violence (ahimsa) are the core universal values accepted by all religions. The Committee has also pointed out that religion is the most misused and misunderstood concept. However, the process of making the students acquainted with the basics of all religions, the values inherited therein and also a comparative study of the philosophy of all religions should begin; students have to be made aware that the basic concept behind every religion is common, only the practices differ. If these recommendations made by the Parliamentary Committee are accepted by NCERT and are sought to be implemented, it cannot be stated that its action is arbitrary or unjustified.

32. Further, it appears to be a totally wrong presumption and contention that knowledge of different religions would bring disharmony in the society. On the contrary, knowledge of various religious philosophies is material for bringing communal harmony as ignorance breeds hatred because of wrong notions, assumptions, preaching and propaganda by misguided interested persons.

37. Therefore, in our view, the word "religion" should not be misunderstood nor contention could be raised that as it is used in the National Policy of Education, secularism would be at peril. On the contrary, let us have a secularistic democracy where even a very weak man hopes to prevail over a very strong man (having post, power or property) on the strength of rule of law by proper understanding of duties towards the society. Value-based education is likely to help the nation to fight against all kinds of prevailing fanaticism, ill will, violence, dishonesty, corruption, exploitation and drug abuse. As stated above, NCF, 1988 was designed to enable the learner to acquire knowledge and was aimed at self-discipline, courage, love for social justice etc., truth, righteous conduct, peace, non-violence which are core universal values that can become the foundation for building a value-based education. These high values cannot be achieved without knowledge of moral sanction behind it. For this purpose, knowledge of what is thought over by the leaders in the past is required to be understood in its true spirit. Let knowledge, like the sun, shine for all and that there should not be any room for narrow-mindedness, blind faith and dogma. For this purpose also, if the basic tenets of all religions over the world are learnt, it cannot be said that secularism would not survive.

38. Learned counsel for the petitioners heavily relied upon Article 28 of the Constitution for contending that the National Curriculum is against the mandate of the said article. For appreciating the said contention, we would first refer to Article 28:

"28. Freedom as to attendance at religious instruction or religious worship in certain educational institutions.— (1) No religious instruction shall be provided in any educational institution wholly maintained out of State funds.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall apply to an educational institution which is administered by the State but has been established under any endowment or trust which requires that religious instruction shall be imparted in such institution.

(3) No person attending any educational institution recognised by the State or receiving aid out of State funds shall be required to take part in any religious instruction that may be imparted in such institution or to attend any religious worship that may be conducted in such institution or in any premises attached thereto unless such person or, if such person is a minor, his guardian has given his consent thereto."

39. In substance, the aforesaid article prohibits imparting of religious instruction in any educational institution wholly maintained out of State funds. At the same time, there is no such prohibition where such an educational institution is established under any endowment or trust which requires that religious instruction shall be imparted in such institution.

40. Further, no person attending any educational institution recognised by the State or receiving aid out of State funds could be compelled to take part in any religious instruction that may be imparted in such institution or to attend any religious worship that may be conducted in such institution. So the entire emphasis of the article is against imparting religious instruction or of performing religious worship. There is no prohibition for having study of religious philosophy and culture, particularly for having value-based social life in a society which is degenerating for power, post or property. In D.A.V. College v. State of Punjab [(1971) 2 SCC 269] the constitutional validity of certain provisions of the Guru Nanak University, Amritsar, Act 21 of 1969 was challenged by the DAV (Dayanand Anglo-Vedic) College Trust. The Trust was formed to perpetuate the memory of Swami Dayanand Saraswati who was the founder of an organisation known as Arya Samaj. It was claimed that it was having a fixed religious programme and its constitution is designed to perpetuate the religious teaching and philosophy of its founder. It was inter alia contended that as Guru Nanak University was wholly maintained out of the State funds and the provision under Section 4(2) offends Article 28(1) which is not saved by clause (2) thereof and in that context the Court observed (in para 24) thus : (SCC pp. 278-79)

"24. ... If the university makes provision for an academic study and research of the life and teachings of any saint it cannot on any reasonable view be considered to require colleges affiliated to the university to compulsorily study his life and teachings or to do research in them. The impugned provision would merely indicate that the university can institute courses of study or provide research facilities for any student of the university whether he belongs to the majority or the minority community to engage himself in such study or research but be it remembered that this study and research on the life and teachings of the Guru Nanak must be a study in relation to their culture and religious impact in the context of Indian and world civilizations which is mostly an academic and philosophical study."

"26. Even so the petitioners have still to make out that Section 4(2) implies that religious instruction will be given. We think that such a contention is too remote and divorced from the object of the provision. Religious instruction is that which is imparted for inculcating the tenets, the rituals, the observances, ceremonies and modes of worship of a particular sect or denomination*. To provide for academic study of life and teaching or the philosophy and culture of any great saint of India in relation to or the impact on the Indian and world civilizations cannot be considered as making provision for religious instructions."*

D.M. Dharmadhikari, J.

65. In a pluralistic society like India which accepts secularism as the basic ideology to govern its secular activities, education can include study based on "religious pluralism". "Religious pluralism" is opposed to exclusivism and encourages inclusivism.

66. Exclusivism in religion has been explained to mean — the view that one particular tradition alone teaches the truth and constitutes the way to salvation or liberation. The Christians believe in the words attributed to Jesus in the "Gospel of St. John":"No one can come to the Father, but by me." They also believe as early as the third century the dogma of extra ecclesiam nulla salus ("outside the church, no salvation").

67. Muslims similarly believe that there is only one God and His one messenger "the Prophet". Jews cherish their ethnically exclusive identity as God's chosen people.

68. Hindus revere the Vedas as eternal and absolute and Buddhists have often seen Gautama's teachings as the dharma that alone can liberate human beings from illusion and misery.

69. The above kind of perception has led to inclusivist theologies and religious philosophies that their own tradition presents the final truth and other traditions are seen as approaches to that final truth.

70. The comprehensive approach to religion which should be inculcated in a society comprising people of different religions and faiths is described as inclusivism. In explicit pluralism, the view accepted is that the great world faiths embodied different perceptions and conceptions of and correspondingly different responses to, the Real or Ultimate and that within each of them independently the transformation of human existence from self-centredness to reality-centredness is taking place.

71. Education in India which is to be governed by the secular ethos contained in its Constitution and where "religious instruction" in institutions of the State are forbidden by Article 28(1), the "religious education" which can be permitted, would be education based on "religious pluralism". The experiment is delicate and difficult but if undertaken sincerely and in good faith for creating peace and harmony in the society is not to be thwarted on the ground that it is against the concept of "secularism" as narrowly understood to mean neutrality of the State towards all religions and bereft of positive approach towards all religions.

77. The study of religious pluralism can be articulated in a generally acceptable way and such attempt has to be made particularly in India which time and again has suffered due to religious conflicts and communal disharmony. What is needed in the education is that the children of this country should acknowledge the vast range and complexity of differences apparent in the phenomenology of religion while at the same time they should understand the major streams of religious experience and thought as embodying different awarenesses of the one ultimate reality. A wider acceptance of a pluralist view of the religious life of humanity must involve developments in the self-understanding of each tradition, a modification of their claims to unique superiority in the interests of a more universal conception of the presence of the Real to the human spirit. (See Comparative Study of Religion contained in the Encyclopedia of Religion under the heading "Religious Pluralism", pp. 331-33.)

78. The purpose of making a survey of various thoughts and philosophies of different religions and the views of different philosophers, educationists and thinkers is only to show that the majority of them do not advocate a ban on religious education to children from the school to the college stage. What has been emphasised is that the religious education imparted to children should be one to make them aware of various thoughts and philosophies in religions without indoctrinating them and without curbing their free thinking, right to make choices for conducting their own life and deciding upon their course of action according to their individual inclinations*. For an all-round development of a child, all educationists feel that mere imparting of information to students to sharpen their intellect is not enough. Inner qualities of head and heart as also capacity to regulate their own life and their relation with society should also be imparted to them for their own and general good of the society as also for achieving the highest goal of life. The attainment of constitutional ideals is possible only if side by side with sharpening the intellect, the moral character of children, is also developed to make them good citizens.*

79. How best this religious pluralism to accord with "secular thought" of the country can be achieved by properly selecting the material for inclusion in the textbooks for children of different ages and different stages in the education, is a matter which has to be left to the academicians and educationists. Their involvement with all dignitaries and with other experts in related fields is necessary. This exercise has to be undertaken by the Government for which any direction from the court is neither required and nor can the court assume such power to encroach on the field of preparation of an educational policy by the State.

80. The scrutiny of the textbooks to find out whether they conform to the secular thought of the country is also to be undertaken by the experts, academicians and educationists. The members of NCERT should be open to any such dialogue with the academicians and educationists. On the basis of general consensus, suitable curriculum, which accords with secularism as understood in a wide and benevolent sense, has to be evolved.

81. The expression "religious instruction" used in Article 28(1) has a restricted meaning. It conveys that teaching of customs, ways of worship, practices or rituals cannot be allowed in educational institutions wholly maintained out of State funds. But Article 28(1) cannot be read as prohibiting study of different religions existing in India and outside India. If that prohibition is read with the words "religious instruction", study of philosophy which is necessarily based on study of religions would be impermissible. That would amount to denying children a right to understand their own religion and religions of others, with whom they are living in India and with whom they may like to live and interact. Study of religions, therefore, is not prohibited by the Constitution and the constitutional provisions should not be read so, otherwise the chances of spiritual growth of the human being, which is considered to be the highest goal of human existence, would be totally frustrated. Any interpretation of Article 28(1), which negates the fundamental right of a child or a person to get education of different religions of the country and outside the country and of his own religion would be destructive of his fundamental right of receiving information, deriving knowledge and conducting his life on the basis of a philosophy of his liking.

86. The word "secularism" used in the preamble of the Constitution is reflected in provisions contained in Articles 25 to 30 and Part IVA added to the Constitution containing Article 51-A prescribing fundamental duties of the citizens. It has to be understood on the basis of more than 50 years experience of the working of the Constitution. The complete neutrality towards religion and apathy for all kinds of religious teachings in institutions of the State have not helped in removing mutual misunderstanding and intolerance inter se between Sections of people of different religions, faiths and beliefs. 'Secularism', therefore, is susceptible to a positive meaning that is developing understanding and respect towards different religions. The essence of secularism is non-discrimination of people by the State on the basis of religious differences. 'Secularism' can be practised by adopting a complete neutral approach towards religions or by a positive approach by making one Section of religious people to understand and respect religion and faith of another Section of people. Based on such mutual understanding and respect for each other's religious faith, mutual distrust and intolerance can gradually be eliminated.

87. Study of religions, therefore, in school education cannot be held to be an attempt against the secular philosophy of the Constitution.

90. Democracy cannot survive and the Constitution cannot work unless Indian citizens are not only learned and intelligent, but they are also of moral character and imbibe the inherent virtues of the human being such as truth, love and compassion. Thinkers and philosophers strongly recommend introduction of teaching of religions in education. There may be some difference of opinion between them as to at what stage of education it should be introduced. Whether it should be introduced right from the primary stage, may be a subject of debate and it is not for the courts but for the educationists and academicians, to assist the Government in formulating a sound educational policy for primary education. India is mostly composed of people who are followers of one or the other religions or faiths. A very small section comprises those who are non-believers. They may be described as purely humanists and rationalists. Bertrand Russell in The School Curriculum Before Fourteen, speaking on teaching history to the school children, advocates imparting knowledge of the impact of thinkers and philosophers. He said:

"I should not keep silence, but I should not hold up military conquerors to admiration. The true conquerors, in my teaching of history, should be those who did something to dispel the darkness within and without — Buddha and Socrates, Archimedes, Galileo and Newton, and all the men who have helped to give us mastery over ourselves or over nature. And so I should build up the conception of lordly splendid destiny for the human race, to which we are false when we revert to wars and other atavistic follies, and true only when we put into the world something that adds to our human dominion." (See Bertrand Russell on Education, at p. 172.)

(emphasis added)

62. By the aforesaid judgments the Supreme Court has defined the term "secularism", in Indian context, to mean equal treatment to all religions and religious sects and denominations by the State, without either identifying itself with or favoring any particular religion, religious sect or determination. One thing which prominently emerges from the judgments is that whatever be the attitude of State towards the religions, religious sects and denominations, religion cannot be mixed with any secular activity of the state. In fact, the encroachment of religion into secular activities is strictly prohibited. The Courts have gone to the extent of saying that secularism is a part of the basic structure of the Constitution and acts of the State Government which are calculated to subvert or sabotage secularism as enshrined in the Constitution, can lawfully be deemed to give rise to a situation in which the Government of State cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution. Constitution makes clear demarcation and matters which are purely religious are left personal to the individuals and secular part is taken care of by the State. The State does not extend patronage to any particular religion and cannot be either pro-particular religion or anti-particular religion. It stands aloof. In other words, it maintains neutrality in matters of religion and provides equal protection to all religions and actively acts on secular part. State will treat all religions and religious groups equally and with equal respect without in any manner interfering with their individual rights of religion, faith and worship. The concept of secular State is essential for successful working of the democratic form of Government.

63. It is in the aforesaid concept of secularism that this Court is to judge upon the constitutional validity of the Madarsa Act. The history and statement of objects and reasons of Madarsa Act shows that initially private Arbi Farsi Madarsas were established by some persons, which were unregulated. Executive directions for their registration were issued for the first time in the year 1969. Later in the year 1987 non-statutory rules were framed for their regulation. A separate Minority Department in the State Government was created on 12.08.1995 and on 31.01.1996 the work of Madarsas was transferred from Education Department to this new Minority Department. The earlier non-statutory regulations of 1987 were replaced by the impugned Madarsa Act of 2004 with a view to 'remove the difficulties arisen in running and improving the merit in the Madarsas and to make available the best facility of study to its students'. The aims and objects of the Act is silent as to how and why requirement arose to have a separate education Board for a particular religion while there are secular Primary Education Board and Board for High School and Intermediate Education in State of U.P. providing education to one and all without making any differential between children of different religions.

64. The definition of 'institution' under Section 2(f) of Madarsa Act includes a Madarsa or Oriental College established and administered by Muslim-Minorities and recognized by the Board for imparting Madarsa-Education. The definition of 'Madarsa-Education' under Section 2 (h) includes 'Islamic-studies'. Under Section 3 Constitution of the board under sub-section (3) clause (a) requires a muslim educationist in the field of Traditional Madarsa-Education to be its chairman. Under clause (c) Principal, Government Oriental College, Rampur (a unique college run by State Government having power to give its own certificates of education, having at present only around 35 students and a Principal and no teachers), under clause (d) and (e) a Sunni-Muslim and a Shia-Muslim legislator, under clause (g) one head of institution established and administered by Sunni-Muslim and under clause (h) one head of institution established and administered by Shia-Muslim, amongst others, as members of the Board. Section 9 (a) includes, amongst the other functions of the Board, to prescribe course of instructions, textbooks, other books and instructional material. Section 9 (b) provides one of the function of the board is to prescribe the course books, other books and instruction material of courses of Arbi, Urdu and Pharsi for classes up to high School and intermediate in accordance with the course determined there for by the Board of High School and Intermediate Education. Section 9(c) however empowers the Board to prepare manuscript of the course books, other books and instruction material referred to in clause (b) by excluding the matter therein wholly or partially or otherwise and to publish them. Thus the board is not bound to adopt the books of Board of High School and Intermediate education as they are but modify the same as it so desires. Clause (e) and (f) empowers the Board to grant degrees, diplomas, certificates or other academic distinctions and to conduct examinations for the same. Clause (g) empowers it to recognise institutions for the purposes of its examination. For the purpose of performing its functions the board is required to constitute committees and sub-committees under Section 17. These committees are to be constituted from amongst the members of the Board only. Under the Regulations of 2016 as per definitions provided in regulation 2 of part-I, containing definitions 'Tahtania' means elementary classes (1 to 5) ; 'Fauquania' means upper elementary classes (6 to 8); 'Quari' means diploma in Tajweed-e-

Quran; 'Hafiz' means the certificate of Hafiz-e-Quran. Regulation 3 provides for qualification of teachers of Madarsas. Surprisingly, without first recognizing institutions, it recognises certain degrees granted by those private religious institutions, as named in regulation 3(2), as equivalent to senior secondary and undergraduate (Alim/Fazil) of Madarsa Board.

65. A perusal of the syllabus of primary classes (class 1 to 8) shows that Quran and Islam, amongst other subjects, are taught in every class. Similarly in class 10th (Maulvi/Munshi) theology Sunni and Shia are compulsory subjects while only one optional subject is required to be taken from amongst Math, Home Science (only for girls), Logic and Philosophy, Social Science, Science and Tib (medical science). Similarly in class 12th (Alim) Theology - both Sunni and Shia, are compulsory subjects while one of the optional subject is to be opted from amongst Home Science (for girls only), General Hindi, Logic and Philosophy, Tib (Medical Science), Social Science, Science and Typing. The Certificate of 'Hafiz' and 'Quari' means Certificate of 'Hafiz-e-Quran' and 'Tajveed-e-Quran' [Part-I Regulation 2 (l)(m)], which are certificates of having knowledge of Quran - the religious book of Islam, including its religious instructions, making these certificates only with regard to study of a particular religion and its instructions. More particularly Sections 2(a), (f), (h), Section 3, Sections 9(a), (f) and Part-I Regulation 2(d), (l) and (m) prescribe for teaching of a particular religion, its prescriptions and philosophy. It is admitted to both the State and the Board for Madarsa that Islam as a religion, with all its prescriptions, instructions, philosophies and deliberations is taught in its recognized institutions as per its course material.

66. From the aforesaid it is clear that under the provisions of the Madarsa Act for being recognized by the Madarsa Board it is compulsory for an institution to be setup as a muslim minority institution and it is also compulsory for a student of Madarsa to study in every class, Islam as a religion, including all its prescriptions, instructions and philosophies, to get promoted to next class. The modern subjects are either absent or are optional and a student can opt to study only one of the optional subjects. Thus, the scheme and purpose of the Madarsa Act is only for promoting and providing education of Islam, its prescriptions, instructions and philosophy and to spread the same. This fact is admitted to the State and the Board and is also not disputed by any of the respondents/interveners.

67. To provide education, more particularly for minors, that is children upto the age of 18 years, is a constitutional duty of the State. Under Article 21-A State is bound to provide compulsory and free education to children between the age of 6 and 14 years, that is from class I to class VI. Further it is the duty of the State to provide education which is secular in nature. It cannot discriminate and provide different type of education to children belonging to different religions. Any such action on part of State would be violative of secularism, which is part of the basic structure of the Constitution of India. Such an action on the part of the State is not only unconstitutional but also highly divisive of the society on religious lines. To maintain unity in the society is a primary duty of the State and all its authorities. Any policy of the State which is divisive of society on religious lines is violative of the constitutional principles. Where any legislative Act of the State is violative of the basic structure of the Constitution, one of the core principles of which is secularism; it is bound to be struck down.

68. The defense taken by the respondents, including the State Government and the Madarsa Board, is that State has sufficient power to frame laws with regard to education to be provided at school level, including traditional education. It is argued that in exercise of its powers under entry 25 of list III of schedule VII of the Constitution of India State has enacted the Madarsa Act. It is claimed that while having power to legislate for education it also has sufficient power to legislate on traditional education and since religion is part of traditional education, therefore, State Government can legislate on the same also. Further, in case this Court finds any provision of the Madarsa Act to be violative of the Constitution of India, it may only strike down such provisions and may save the remaining portions of the Act. The entire Act may not be struck down by this Court. Further, reliance is placed upon Article 25 to 30 of the Constitution of India. The Board and other respondents, while adopting arguments of the State, have further submitted that Article 25 to 29 provide rights to propagate religion and under Article 30 the rights of minority to establish and administer their educational institutions is specifically protected. They submit that State Government has sufficient power to establish a Board for religious education of a minority religion.

69. No doubt State has sufficient power to frame laws with regard to education to be provided at school level, both primary and thereafter up to intermediate; however, such education has to be secular in nature. The State has no power to create a Board for religious education or to establish Board for school education only for a particular religion and philosophy associated with it. Any such action on part of State violates the principles of secularism, which is in the letter and spirit of the Constitution of India. The same also violates Article 14 of the Constitution of India, which provides for equal treatment to every person by the State.

70. So far as Articles 25 to 29 of the Constitution of India are concerned, the same relate to the rights of the citizens and not those of the State. It is the citizens of this country who have right to profess and propagate their religion and its values. It is not mandatory for a citizen of this country to be secular by nature. He can have faith in his own religion or in some/every religion or may not have faith in any religion. But, the State cannot do so. The State has to remain secular. It must respect and treat all religions equally. The State cannot, in any manner whatsoever, discriminate between religions while performing its duties. Since providing education is one of the primary duties of the State, it is bound to remain secular while exercising its powers in the said field. It cannot provide for education of a particular religion, its instructions, prescriptions and philosophies or create separate education systems for separate religions. Any such action on the part of the State would be violative of the principles of secularism. Further, Article 30 only protects rights of minorities to establish and administer their educational institutions. The same, like Article 25 to 29, has no application on exercise of power by the State Government while establishing an Education Board. The protection of Article 30 is only to the minorities, both religious and linguistic, to establish and administer educational institutions of their choice. The Board is not an educational institution established and administered by any minority, but is an institution established by the State for providing an education system. It prescribes courses, recognises degrees and certificates, conducts examinations and also recognizes schools and colleges for providing education. Therefore, Article 30 has no application to the facts and circumstances of the present case. We repetitively inquired from the respondents to point out the provisions which can be segregated to save the Madarsa Act but, over days of hearing this query was not replied to by any respondent. We also find that since the very purpose of the Madarsa Act is found to be violative of Secularism; it is not possible to segregate and save any portion of the Act which would be of any relevance.

71. Thus, on the basis of principles settled by the Supreme Court in the aforesaid judgments, we concluded that the very object and purpose of the Madarsa Act and the relevant provisions referred to above are violative of the principles of secularism and thus violate the Constitution of India and cannot stand.

(II) VIOLATION OF ARTICLE 21 AND 21-A

72. Sri. Sudeep Kumar, the learned Counsel for the petitioner submits that under Article 21A of the Constitution of India it is the duty of the State to provide free education to children between six and 14 years studying in Class 1 to 6. Under Article 21- right to life, the Supreme Court by repeated judgments has held that the life has to be purposeful and meaningful. In large fields covered by 'life', ‘education’ also finds prominent place. Such education has to be modern, of good quality and universal in nature. Whether the education provided is free or paid, the same has to be of good quality, universal and modern. It should necessarily include all modern subjects including science. Any education that is not universal and modern cannot be called quality education. He submits that in the name of education the State cannot prescribe and dispense with education which is neither of quality nor universal in nature and also lacks modern outlook. A perusal of syllabus of the Madarsa Board shows that the education provided therein is only of languages and Islam as a religion with a little touch of maths etc. The modern subjects including science are only optional and entire school education can be completed without studying modern subjects.

73. Learned Amici Curiae further enhanced the said argument and submitted that the State cannot teach a particular religion in the name of traditional education. While fulfilling its duties of Free and Compulsory Education from classes 1 to 6 State Government is bound to provide education which is universal in nature that is education that is equally applied to all. Education to children of any minority community has to be of same quality as is being provided to other children of the state. By providing limited traditional and that too religious education the State cannot wash-off its hands and claim that it is fulfilling its duty under Article 21-A. The same principles also apply to education after Class 6. Education - whether free or paid, has to be of the same standard and of the same nature. The State cannot differentiate in the quality of education being provided to the children of largest minority of the State from that being provided to the children of other majority or minority communities.

74. Opposing these submissions, the learned Counsel for the respondents and interveners submitted that the State is free to prescribe the form of education it desires to provide. No interference can be made by the Courts in the said freedom of the State. The State has a right also to provide traditional education and in exercise of the said right it has established the Madarsa Board, which has prescribed the syllabus. Therefore the syllabus is valid and in accordance with law declared by the State. It is wrong to suggest that the syllabus does not prescribe to the education as provided under Article 21 or 21A.

75. The learned counsel for the petitioner and Amici Curiae have placed reliance on the judgment in the case of Bhartiya Seva Samaj Trust through President and another versus Yogeshbhai Ambalal Patel and another: (2012) 9 SCC 310, wherein the Supreme Court held that: -

"20. In view to have greater emphasis, the Eighty-sixth Amendment in the Constitution of India was made in 2002 introducing the provision of Article 21-A, declaring the right to free and compulsory education of the children between the age of 6 to 14 years as a fundamental right. Correspondingly, the provisions of Article 45 have been amended making it an obligation on the part of the State to impart free education to the children. The amendment in Article 51-A of the Constitution inserting clause (k) has also been made making it obligatory on the part of the parents to provide opportunities for education to their children between the age of 6 to 14 years.

21. Thus, in view of the above, it is evident that imparting elementary and basic education is a constitutional obligation on the State as well as societies running educational institutions. When we talk of education, it means not only learning how to read and write alphabets or get mere information but it means to acquire knowledge and wisdom so that one may lead a better life and become a better citizen to serve the nation in a better way.

22. The policy framework behind education in India is anchored in the belief that the values of equality, social justice and democracy and the creation of a just and humane society can be achieved only through the provision of inclusive elementary education to all. Provision of free and compulsory education of satisfactory quality to children from disadvantaged and weaker Sections is, therefore, not merely the responsibility of the schools run or supported by the appropriate Governments, but also of schools which are not dependent on Government funds.

23. Every generation looks up to the next generation with the hope that they shall build up a nation better than the present. Therefore, education which empowers the future generation should always be the main concern for any nation.

24. Right to education flows directly from Article 21 and is one of the most important fundamental rights. In Ashoka Kumar Thakur v. Union of India [(2008) 6 SCC 1], while deciding the issue of reservation, this Court made a reference to the provisions of Articles 15(3) and 21-A of the Constitution, observing that without Article 21-A the other fundamental rights are rendered meaningless. Therefore, there has to be a need to earnestly implement Article 21-A. Without education a citizen may never come to know of his other rights. Since there is no corresponding constitutional right to higher education-the fundamental stress has to be on primary and elementary education, so that a proper foundation for higher education can be effectively laid. Hence, we see that education is an issue, which has been treated at length in our Constitution. It is a well-accepted fact that democracy cannot be flawless; but, we can strive to minimise these flaws with proper education. Democracy depends for its very life on a high standard of general, vocational and professional education. Dissemination of learning with search for new knowledge with discipline all round must be maintained at all costs.

25. This Court in State of T.N. v. K. Shyam Sunder [(2011) 8 SCC 737] held as under :

18. In the post-constitutional era, attempts have been made to create an egalitarian society by removing disparity among individuals and in order to do so, education is the most important and effective means. There has been an earnest effort to bring education out of commercialism/mercantilism.

21. The right of a child should not be restricted only to free and compulsory education but should be extended to have quality education without any discrimination on economic, social and cultural grounds.

26. In view of the above, education and particularly that elementary/basic education has to be qualitative and for that the trained teachers are required. The legislature in its wisdom after consultation with the expert body fixes the eligibility for a particular discipline taught in a school. Thus, the eligibility so fixed requires very strict compliance and any appointment made in contravention thereof must be held to be void."

(emphasis added)

76. The aforesaid judgments repeatedly emphasis the need of quality education for the children which is universal in nature. Without quality, idea of education in itself is a failure. Teaching merely one religion and a few languages, without any study of modern subjects, cannot be called quality education.

77. Section 2 (h) of Madarsa Act defines 'Madarsa-Education' as education in Arbic, Urdu, Parsian, Islamic-studies, Tibb Logic, Philosophy and includes such other branches of learning as may be specified by the Board from time to time. The syllabus of class I to class VIII of Madarsas shows that study of Islam is necessary in every class along with study of languages. A student cannot get promoted to next class unless he would clear his exam in religion.

78. The syllabus of study for the Munshi/Maulvi Course (equivalent to Class X) under Madarsa Act is as follows: -

	Subject	Question papers
1	Theology (Sunni)	1. Tafseer
		2. Hadith
		3. Fiqah
	Theology	1. Tafseer

	(Shia)	2. Hadith
		3. Fiqah
2	Arabic Literature (Only for Maulvi)	1. Prose, Poetry History of Arabic Literature
		2. Arabic Grammer
	Persian Literature (Only for Maulvi)	1. Prose & Grammer
		2. Poetry & Translation
3	Urdu Literature	1. Urdu Prose & Grammer
		2. Urdu Poetry & History of Urdu Literature
4	General English	Prose & Poetry
5	General Hindi	Prose & Poetry
6	Optional Subject (Select any one)	1. Math
		2. Home Science (Only for girl candidates)
		3. Logic & Pholosophy
		4. Social Science
		5. Science
		6. Tib (Medical Science)

79. The syllabus of study for the Arabic & Persian Alim (equivalent to Class XII) is as follows: -

	Subject	Question papers
1	Theology (Sunni)	1. Tafseer & Aqayad
		2. Hadith & Seerat Khulfa-E-Rashdeen
		3. Fiqah
	Theology (Shia)	1. Tafseer & Aqayad
		2. Hadith & Seerat Khulfa-E-Rashdeen
		3. Fiqah
2	Arabic Literature (For Alim-Arabic)	1. Prose & Poetry & History of Arabic Literature
		2. Grammer Balaghat Insha
	Persian Literature (For Alim-Persian)	1. Prose, Grammer Balaghat
		2. Poetry, History of Persian Insha
3	Urdu Literature	1. Urdu Prose & Grammer
		2. Urdu Poetry & History of Urdu Literature
4	General English	General English
5	General Hindi	Prose & Poetry
6	Optional Subject (Select any one)	1. Home Science (Only for girl candidates)
		2. General Hindi
		3. Logic & Pholosophy
		4. Tib
		5. Social Science
		6. Science
		7. Typing

80. Thus it is apparent that the students of Class X have to study Theology (Sunni) and Theology (Shia), Arabic, Persian, Urdu, General English and General Hindi as compulsory subjects and they are to study only one of the subjects from amongst Maths, Logic & Philosophy, Social Science, Science and Tib (Medical Science). Home science is an optional subject for girls only. Students upto Class X do not have an option to study science, Maths and social science simultaneously.

81. Similarly, the students of Class XII have to study Theology (Sunni) and Theology (Shia), Arabic, Persian, Urdu and General English, but the General English taught to the students of Class XII is of the level of NCERT books of Class X. They can study only one of the subjects from amongst General Hindi, Logic & Philosophy, Social Science, Science, Tib (Medical Science) or Typing. Home science is an optional subject for girls only. The students upto Class XII also do not have an option to study Maths as a subject. The optional subject Science taught to Class XII students is of the level of Classes VIII, IX and X. Whereas in State Board, Physics, Chemistry and Biology are separate subjects.

82. In the same manner, subject Tib (Medical Science) is taught as an optional subject from Classes 9th to 12th. It is surprising to note that there is no regular Science subject from Classes 9th to 12th and Science is also an optional subject. Without giving basic education of Science particularly Biology, Medical Science education is being provided in the name of Tib to the students of Classes 9th to 12th.

83. From the above discussion it is clearly established that education under the Madarsa Act is certainly not equivalent to the education being imparted to the students of other regular educational institutions recognized by the State Primary and High School and Intermediate Boards and, therefore, the educations being imparted in Madarsas is neither 'quality' nor 'universal' in nature.

84. While the students of all other religions are getting educated in all modern subject denial of the same quality by the Madarsa Board amounts to violation of both Article 21-A as well as Article 21 of the Constitution of India. The State cannot hide behind the lame excuse that it is fulfilling its duty by providing traditional education on nominal fee. The Supreme Court has repeatedly emphasised on modern education with modern subjects, an education that is universal in nature that prepares a child to make his future bright and to take this country forward. It does not prescribe, by any stretch of imagination, limited education with emphasis only upon a particular religion, its instructions and philosophies. Education being provided by the Madarsa Board, therefore, is in violation of the standards prescribed by the Supreme Court while interpreting constitutional provisions. Therefore this Court has no hesitation in holding that the education being provided under the Madarsa Act is violative of Article 21 and 21A of the Constitution of India.

(III) CONFLICT OF MADARSA ACT AND UGC ACT

85. As is clear from the provisions of the Madarsa Act, the Board is empowered with regard to Madarsa education from primary level to post-graduation and research level. So far as the education being imparted in Madarsas to the students of Kamil or under-graduate degree, Fazil or post-graduate decree, Alama, which is a degree for junior research programme and Ductoora, which is a degree for senior and complete research programme, it is important to note that Section 22 of the University Grants Commission Act, 1956, provides: -

"22. Right to confer degrees.— (1) The right of conferring or granting degrees shall be exercised only by a University established or incorporated by or under a Central Act, a Provincial Act or a State Act or an institution deemed to be a University under Section 3 or an institution specially empowered by an Act of Parliament to confer or grant degrees.

(2) Save as provided in sub-section (1), no person or authority shall confer, or grant, or hold himself or itself out as entitled to confer or grant, any degree.

(3) For the purposes of this section, "degree" means any such degree as may, with the previous approval of the Central Government, be specified in this behalf by the Commission by notification in the Official Gazette.

86. As per the provision contained in Section 22 of the UGC Act, only Universities or institutions deemed to be Universities under Section 3 of the Act can confer degrees and no other person or authority, including any Madarsa or the Madarsa Board, can confer any degree.

87. The University Grants Commission has issued numerous Notifications in exercise of the power conferred by Section 22 of the UGC Act, which have specified numerous Bachelor's, Master's and Doctorate degrees that can be awarded by the Universities and no degree, which has not been notified by the UGC, can be awarded by any University. Kamil, Fazil, Alama and Ductoora degrees have not been notified by the UGC and these degrees, therefore, cannot be awarded by any body.

88. University Grants Commission (Minimum Standards and Procedure for Award of M.Phil./Ph.D. Degrees) Regulations, 2016 lays down minimum standards and procedure for award of M.Phil./Ph.D. Degrees and these have necessarily to be followed for awarding these degrees. However, the Madarsa Board does not follow these minimum standards and procedures for award of M.Phil./Ph.D. Degrees.

89. Entry 66, List-I of Schedule 7 appended to the Constitution of India provides "Co-ordination and determination of standards in institutions for higher education or research and scientific and technical institutions", while Entry 25 of List-III-Concurrent List provides "Education, including technical education, medical education and universities, subject to the provisions of Entries 63, 64, 65 and 66 of List-I; vocational and technical training of labour."

90. The issue with regard to power of the Union of India vis-a-vis State Government with regard to higher education has been considered by the Supreme Court repeatedly. In Osmania University Teachers' Association versus State of Andhra Pradesh and another: (1987) 4 SCC 671, the Supreme Court held that: -

"15. The Parliament has exclusive power to legislate with respect to matters included in List I. The State has no power at all in regard to such matters. If the State legislates on the subject falling within List I that will be void, inoperative and unenforceable.

* * *

30. The Constitution of India vests Parliament with exclusive authority in regard to coordination and determination of standards in institutions for higher education. The Parliament has enacted the UGC Act for that purpose. The University Grants Commission has, therefore, a greater role to play in shaping the academic life of the country. It shall not falter or fail in its duty to maintain a high standard in the Universities. Democracy depends for its very life on a high standard of general, vocational and professional education. Dissemination of learning with search for new knowledge with discipline all round must be maintained at all costs. It is hoped that University Grants Commission will duly discharge its responsibility to the Nation and play an increasing role to bring about the needed transformation in the academic life of the Universities."

(emphasis added)

91. In Dr. Preeti Srivastava and another versus State of M.P. and others (1999) 7 SCC 120, a Constitution Bench consisting of five Judges of the Supreme Court held: -

"35. The legislative competence of Parliament and the legislatures of the States to make laws under Article 246 is regulated by the VIIth Schedule to the Constitution. In the VIIth Schedule as originally in force, Entry 11 of List II gave to the State an exclusive power to legislate on "education including universities, subject to the provisions of Entries 63, 64, 65 and 66 of List I and Entry 25 of List III".

Entry 11 of List II was deleted and Entry 25 of List III was amended with effect from 3-1-1976 as a result of the Constitution 42nd Amendment Act of 1976. The present Entry 25 in the Concurrent List is as follows:

"25. Education, including technical education, medical education and universities, subject to the provisions of Entries 63, 64, 65 and 66 of List I; vocational and technical training of labour."

Entry 25 is subject, inter alia, to Entry 66 of List I. Entry 66 of List I is as follows:

"66. Coordination and determination of standards in institutions for higher education or research and scientific and technical institutions."

Both the Union as well as the States have the power to legislate on education including medical education, subject, inter alia, to Entry 66 of List I which deals with laying down standards in institutions for higher education or research and scientific and technical institutions as also coordination of such standards. A State has, therefore, the right to control education including medical education so long as the field is not occupied by any Union legislation. Secondly, the State cannot, while controlling education in the State, impinge on standards in institutions for higher education. Because this is exclusively within the purview of the Union Government. Therefore, while prescribing the criteria for admission to the institutions for higher education including higher medical education, the State cannot adversely affect the standards laid down by the Union of India under Entry 66 of List I. Secondly, while considering the cases on the subject it is also necessary to remember that from 1977, education, including, inter alia, medical and university education, is now in the Concurrent List so that the Union can legislate on admission criteria also. If it does so, the State will not be able to legislate in this field, except as provided in Article 254.

36. It would not be correct to say that the norms for admission have no connection with the standard of education, or that the rules for admission are covered only by Entry 25 of List III. Norms of admission can have a direct impact on the standards of education. Of course, there can be rules for admission which are consistent with or do not affect adversely the standards of education prescribed by the Union in exercise of powers under Entry 66 of List I. For example, a State may, for admission to the postgraduate medical courses, lay down qualifications in addition to those prescribed under Entry 66 of List I. This would be consistent with promoting higher standards for admission to the higher educational courses. But any lowering of the norms laid down can and does have an adverse effect on the standards of education in the institutes of higher education. Standards of education in an institution or college depend on various factors. Some of these are:

(1) the calibre of the teaching staff;

(2) a proper syllabus designed to achieve a high level of education in the given span of time;

(3) the student-teacher ratio;

(4) the ratio between the students and the hospital beds available to each student;

(5) the calibre of the students admitted to the institution;

(6) equipment and laboratory facilities, or hospital facilities for training in the case of medical colleges;

(7) adequate accommodation for the college and the attached hospital; and

(8) the standard of examinations held including the manner in which the papers are set and examined and the clinical performance is judged."

(emphasis added)

92. In Prof. Yashpal and another versus State of Chhattisgarh and others (2005) 5 SCC 420, the Supreme Court held that : -

"46. Entry 66 which deals with coordination and determination of standard in institutions for higher education or research and scientific and technical institutions is in the Union List and Parliament alone has the legislative competence to legislate on the said topic*. The University Grants Commission Act has been made with reference to Entry 66 (see Prem Chand Jain v. R.K. Chhabra and Osmania University Teachers' Assn. v. State of A.P.). The Act has been enacted to ensure that there is coordination and determination of standards in universities, which are institutions of higher learning, by a body created by the Central Government. It is the duty and responsibility of the University Grants Commission, which is established by Section 4 of the UGC Act, to determine and coordinate the standard of teaching curriculum and also level of examination in various universities in the country. In order to achieve the aforesaid objectives, the role of UGC comes at the threshold. The course of study, its nature and volume, has to be ascertained and determined before the commencement of academic session. Proper standard of teaching cannot be achieved unless there are adequate infrastructural facilities in the campus like classrooms, libraries, laboratories, well-equipped teaching staff of requisite calibre and a proper student-teacher ratio. For this purpose, the Central Government has made a number of rules in exercise of powers* conferred by Section 25 of the UGC Act and the Commission has also made regulations in exercise of power conferred by Section 26 of the UGC Act and to mention a few, the UGC Inspection of Universities Rules, 1960, the UGC Regulations, 1985 Regarding the Minimum Standards of Instructions for the Grant of the First Degree, UGC Regulations, 1991 Regarding Minimum Qualifications for Appointment of Teachers in Universities and Colleges, etc. UGC with the approval of the Central Government and exercising power under Section 22(3) of the UGC Act has issued a schedule of degrees which may be awarded by the universities. The impugned Act which enables a proposal on paper only to be notified as a university and thereby conferring the power upon such university under Section 22 of the UGC Act to confer degrees has the effect of completely stultifying the functioning of the University Grants Commission insofar as these universities are concerned. Such incorporation of a university makes it impossible for UGC to perform its duties and responsibilities of ensuring coordination and determination of standards. In the absence of any campus and other infrastructural facilities, UGC cannot take any measures whatsoever to ensure a proper syllabus, level of teaching, standard of examination and evaluation of academic achievement of the students or even to ensure that the students have undergone the course of study for the prescribed period before the degree is awarded to them.

48. Any State legislation which stultifies or sets at naught an enactment validly made by Parliament would be wholly ultra vires. We are fortified in our view by a Constitution Bench decision in R. Chitralekha v. State of Mysore [(1964) 6 SCR 368] where power of the State under Entry 11 List II (as it then existed), and Entry 25 List III qua Entry 66 List I came up for consideration. Subba Rao, J. after quoting the following passage from Gujarat University v. Krishna Ranganath Mudholkar [1963 Supp (1) SCR 112 : AIR 1963 SC 703] (SCR p. 139): (R. Chitralekha case [(1964) 6 SCR 368 : AIR 1964 SC 1823] , at SCR p. 379)

"The State has the power to prescribe the syllabi and courses of study in the institutions named in Entry 66 (but not falling within Entries 63 to 65) and as an incident thereof it has the power to indicate the medium in which instruction should be imparted. But the Union Parliament has an overriding legislative power to ensure that the syllabi and courses of study prescribed and the medium selected do not impair standards of education or render the coordination of such standards either on an all-India or other basis impossible or even difficult."

enunciated the following principle defining the contours of the legislative powers of States vis-à-vis Union so as to steer clear of any overlap or collision: (SCR p. 379)

"This and similar other passages indicate that if the law made by the State by virtue of Entry 11 of List II of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution makes impossible or difficult the exercise of the legislative power of Parliament under the entry 'Coordination and determination of standards in institutions for higher education or research and scientific and technical institutions' reserved to the Union, the State law may be bad. This cannot obviously be decided on speculative and hypothetical reasoning. If the impact of the State law providing for such standards on Entry 66 of List I is so heavy or devastating as to wipe out or appreciably abridge the Central field, it may be struck down. But that is a question of fact to be ascertained in each case."

(emphasis added)

93. The Supreme Court in Annamalai University, Represented by Registrar versus Secretary to Government, Information and Tourism Department and others (2009) 4 SCC 590, held as under: -

"40. The UGC Act was enacted by Parliament in exercise of its power under Entry 66 of List I of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution of India whereas the Open University Act was enacted by Parliament in exercise of its power under Entry 25 of List III thereof. The question of repugnancy of the provisions of the said two Acts, therefore, does not arise. It is true that the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Open University Act shows that the formal system of education had not been able to provide an effective means to equalise educational opportunities. The system is rigid inter alia in respect of attendance in classrooms. Combinations of subjects are also inflexible.

42. The provisions of the UGC Act are binding on all universities whether conventional or open. Its powers are very broad. The Regulations framed by it in terms of clauses (e), (f), (g) and (h) of sub-section (1) of Section 26 are of wide amplitude. They apply equally to open universities as also to formal conventional universities. In the matter of higher education, it is necessary to maintain minimum standards of instructions. Such minimum standards of instructions are required to be defined by UGC. The standards and the coordination of work or facilities in universities must be maintained and for that purpose required to be regulated. The powers of UGC under Sections 26(1)(f) and 26(1)(g) are very broad in nature. Subordinate legislation as is well known when validly made becomes part of the Act. We have noticed hereinbefore that the functions of UGC are all-pervasive in respect of the matters specified in clause (d) of sub-section (1) of Section 12-A and clauses (a) and (c) of sub-section (2) thereof.

47. In University of Delhi v. Raj Singh [1994 Supp (3) SCC 516 : 1995 SCC (L&S) 118 : (1994) 28 ATC 541] this Court held: (SCC pp. 526-27, para 13)

"13. ... By reason of Entry 66, Parliament was invested with the power to legislate on 'coordination and determination of standards in institutions for higher education, or research and scientific and technical institutions'. Item 25 of List III conferred power upon Parliament and the State Legislatures to enact legislation with respect to 'vocational and technical training of labour'. A six-Judge Bench of this Court [Ed.: The reference is to Gujarat University v. Krishna Ranganath Mudholkar, AIR 1963 SC 703.] observed that the validity of the State legislation on the subjects of university education and education in technical and scientific institutions falling outside Entry 64 of List I as it then read (that is to say, institutions for scientific or technical education other than those financed by the Government of India wholly or in part and declared by Parliament by law to be institutions of national importance) had to be judged having regard to whether it impinged on the field reserved for the Union under Entry 66. In other words, the validity of the State legislation depended upon whether it prejudicially affected the coordination and determination of standards. It did not depend upon the actual existence of the Union legislation in respect of coordination and determination of standards which had, in any event, paramount importance by virtue of the first part of Article 254(1)."

48. In State of T.N. v. Adhiyaman Educational and Research Institute [(1995) 4 SCC 104] this Court laid down the law in the following terms: (SCC pp. 134-35, para 41)

"41. What emerges from the above discussion is as follows:

(i) The expression 'coordination' used in Entry 66 of the Union List of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution does not merely mean evaluation. It means harmonisation with a view to forge a uniform pattern for a concerted action according to a certain design, scheme or plan of development. It, therefore, includes action not only for removal of disparities in standards but also for preventing the occurrence of such disparities. It would, therefore, also include power to do all things which are necessary to prevent what would make 'coordination' either impossible or difficult. This power is absolute and unconditional and in the absence of any valid compelling reasons, it must be given its full effect according to its plain and express intention.

(ii) To the extent that the State legislation is in conflict with the Central legislation though the former is purported to have been made under Entry 25 of the Concurrent List but in effect encroaches upon legislation including subordinate legislation made by the Centre under Entry 25 of the Concurrent List or to give effect to Entry 66 of the Union List, it would be void and inoperative.

(iii) If there is a conflict between the two legislations, unless the State legislation is saved by the provisions of the main part of clause (2) of Article 254, the State legislation being repugnant to the Central legislation, the same would be inoperative.

(iv) Whether the State law encroaches upon Entry 66 of the Union List or is repugnant to the law made by the Centre under Entry 25 of the Concurrent List, will have to be determined by the examination of the two laws and will depend upon the facts of each case.

(v) When there are more applicants than the available situations/seats, the State authority is not prevented from laying down higher standards or qualifications than those laid down by the Centre or the Central authority to shortlist the applicants. When the State authority does so, it does not encroach upon Entry 66 of the Union List or make a law which is repugnant to the Central law.

However, when the situations/seats are available and the State authorities deny an applicant the same on the ground that the applicant is not qualified according to its standards or qualifications, as the case may be, although the applicant satisfies the standards or qualifications laid down by the Central law, they act unconstitutionally. So also when the State authorities derecognise or disaffiliate an institution for not satisfying the standards or requirement laid down by them, although it satisfied the norms and requirements laid down by the Central authority, the State authorities act illegally."

94. In Kalyani Mathivanan versus K.V. Jeyaraj and others (2015) 6 SCC 363,the Supreme Court held: -

"48. Article 254 relates to repugnancy of law made by the State with the law made by Parliament. Article 254 reads as follows:

"254.Inconsistency between laws made by Parliament and laws made by the legislatures of States.—(1) If any provision of a law made by the legislature of a State is repugnant to any provision of a law made by Parliament which Parliament is competent to enact, or to any provision of an existing law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent List, then, subject to the provisions of clause (2), the law made by Parliament, whether passed before or after the law made by the legislature of such State, or, as the case may be, the existing law, shall prevail and the law made by the legislature of the State shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void.

(2) Where a law made by the legislature of a State with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent List contains any provision repugnant to the provisions of an earlier law made by Parliament or an existing law with respect to that matter, then, the law so made by the legislature of such State shall, if it has been reserved for the consideration of the President and has received his assent, prevail in that State:

Provided that nothing in this clause shall prevent Parliament from enacting at any time any law with respect to the same matter including a law adding to, amending, varying or repealing the law so made by the legislature of the State."

49. The effect in case of inconsistency between the legislation made by Parliament and the State Legislature on the subject covered by List III has been decided by this Court in numerous cases.

* * *

53. The aforesaid judgment makes it clear that to the extent the State legislation is in conflict with the Central legislation including subordinate legislation made by the Central legislation under Entry 25 of the Concurrent List shall be repugnant to the Central legislation and would be inoperative."

95. In all the aforesaid judgments, the consistent law settled by the Supreme Court is that higher education is a field reserved for Union of India. Therefore, State Government has no power to legislate in the said field.

96. Section 9 (a) of the Madarsa Act confers power on the Board to prescribe course of instructions, text-books, other books and instructional material even for Alim, i.e. under-graduate course, Kamil i.e. post-graduate course, Fazil, i.e. Junior research Programme and other courses.

97. Section 9 (e) empowers the Madarsa Board to grant Degrees to persons, who have pursued a course of study in an institution admitted to the privileges or recognition by the Board or even who have studied privately and have passed an examination of the Board. Section 9(f) of the Madarsa Act empowers the Board to conduct examinations of the Alim (Graduate), Kamil (Post Graduate) and Fazil (Junior Research Programme) courses; Section 9 (g) empowers the Madarsa Board to recognise institutions for the purposes of its examination and Section 9 (h) empowers it to admit candidates to its examination. Section 9 (p) empowers the Madarsa Board to provide for research or training in any branch of Madarsa-Education.

98. All the aforesaid provisions confers powers on the Madarsa Board which are vested in the University Grants Commission by the UGC Act, falls within the purview of Entry 66 of List I of the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution of India and, therefore, the Madarsa Act is violative of the provision contained in Article 246 (1) of the Constitution of India and is unconstitutional to the said extent.

(F) CONCLUSION

99. In view of the foregoing discussion, we hold that the Madarsa Act, 2004, is violative of the principle of Secularism, which is a part of the basic structure of the Constitution of India, violative of Articles 14, 21 and 21-A of the Constitution of India and violative of Section 22 of the University Grants Commission Act, 1956. Accordingly, the Madarsa Act, 2004 is declared unconstitutional. Further, we are not deciding the validity of Section 1(5) of the R.T.E. Act as we have already held the Madarsa Act to be ultra vires and we are also informed by learned counsel for both the parties that in State of U.P. Vadik Pathshalas do not exist.

100. Since there are large number of Madarsas and Madarsa students in State of U.P., the State Government is directed to take steps forthwith for accommodating these Madarsa students in regular schools recognized under the Primary Education Board and schools recognized under the High School and Intermediate Education Board of State of U.P. The State Government for the said purpose shall ensure that as per requirement sufficient number of additional seats are created and further if required, sufficient number of new schools are established. The State Government shall also ensure that children between the ages of 6 to 14 years are not left without admission in duly recognized institutions.

101. The Writ-C No.6049 of 2023 stands allowed and Writ-A Nos.29324 of 2019, 3735 of 2012, 5548 of 2014, 3615 of 2020 and Writ-C No.481 of 2020, which are placed before this Court on reference, are returned to the appropriate Court.

102. We appreciate the assistance given to us in the hearing of this matter by all the learned counsel and Sri Anshuman Singh Rathore, the petitioner of Writ-C No.6049 of 2023, who also addressed the Court in person. We also appreciate the hard work and able assistance provided by Sri Gaurav Mehrotra, Advocate, Sri Madhukar Ojha, Advocate and Sri Akber Ahmad, Advocate, learned Amici Curiae. Sri Nandesh Verma, Sri Ankit Baranwal and Sri Adarsh Mohan Nigam, Research Associate/Law Intern have also contributed by their in depth research.

1. Through this writ petition a challenge has been made to the award dated 22.08.2016, published on 05.09.2016, by the Central Government Industrial Tribunal (CGIT) cum Labour Court, Kanpur exercising power under Section 11A of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 (hereinafter called as "Act of 1947") modifying punishment of dismissal to that of compulsory retirement with superannuation benefits.

2. Facts, giving rise to the present petition, are that respondent No.2 late R.P.Singh was appointed as a Clerk on 11.01.1971 in Central Bank of India. He was promoted to the post of Special Assistant in the year 1992 with retrospective effect since 1987. While posted as Special Assistant at Extension Counter of main branch, Aligarh at Kshetriya Shri Gandhi Ashram (KSGA), Aligarh during the period October, 2003 to February, 2004, some misconduct was committed by him. He was put under suspension on 17.02.2004. A charge sheet was served on 16.03.2004 alleging ten charges against him, which are as under :

"CHARGE NO. 1

Current Account No 176 of M/s Rajesh & Co. was opened with the address, 101, President, Railway Road, Aligarh, which Sh. Singh has tempered with malafide intention and ulterior motive as 7/107, Railway Road, Algarh.

CHARGE NO. 2

On 8.10.2003 the account of M/s Rajcsh & Co. was allowed to be closed for which relevant record is not available in the branch except an entry of Rs.2900/- in C/D A/c 176. Ledger Folio No. 99. The account was closed by payment through cash for Rs.2900/ as noted in the ledger.

On perusal of the ledger folio it is specific that Cheque Book was not issued in the account and loose Cheque Book also was not issued, payment was also not made through pay slip/Banker's cheque/Debit Note. Thus Sh. Singh has allowed the closure of the account in unusual manner violating Bank's rules to facilitate the Account holder with obvious reason.]

CHARGE NO. 3

The account opening form, signature card and debit voucher Dt. 8.10.2003 in C/D account 176 of M/s Rajesh & Co. are not available in the branch record. Sh. Singh has taken way all these documents with malafide intention to suppress his misdoings.

CHARGE NO. 4

On 9.10.2003 Sh. Rajesh Kisher opened a HSS A/c No. 3825 and provided copy of PAN Card, Driving Licence as proof of identity and address. The date of Birth as noted in PAN Cord and Driving Licence differs which Sh. Singh intentionally ignored to facilitate Sh. Rajesh Kishor to commit the fraud with the Bank. The address in account opening application form, Driving Licence, letter of thanks dated 09.10.2003 in the handwriting of Mr. Rajesh Kishore and Receipt no.520 dated 09.10.2003 of Speed Post mention the address of Mr. Rajesh Kishore differently, which Mr. Singh ignored to notice with ulterior motive and rather actively facilitated Mr. Rajesh Kishor to open the account and commit fraud with the Bank. Thus aforesaid facts speak loudly the connivance of Mr. Singh with Mr Rajesh Kishor in his design to defraud Bank.

CHARGE NO. 5

Sh. Rajesh Kishor has given his address as 101, President, Sadar Chungi Ke Pass, Railway Road, Aligarh, which is not the correct address. Sh. Singh being local of Aligarh has failed to apply ordinary prudence with malafide intention to facilitate Sh. Rajesh Kishor to disappear after committing the fraud.

CHARGE NO. 6

Sh Rajesh Kishor has opened the account on 9.10.2003 and immediately thereafter the deposited cheques of heavy amount for collection as under:

AMOUNT	DATE OF DEPOSIT
RS.160000/-	14.10.2003
RS 310000/-	4.12.2003
RS 320000/-	11.12.2003

Sh. Singh has forwarded all the cheques for collection to B/o Panchkula, Chandigarh and also allowed the withdrawals against Central Office guidelines to be vigilant in the operation of the account

All the cheques were drawn on HDFC Bank and Sh. Singh failed to apply his ordinary prudence to enquire the purpose of collection in newly opened account.

With all these collections, fraud has been committed and the Bank has suffered a loss of Rs 7.90 lac.

CHARGE NO. 7

With a deceit motive Sh. Singh has used the Courier Service for collection of aforesaid 3 (three) cheques while he was using the Postal Service for sending the Letter of Thanks. The intentions of Sh. Singh were more grave as to find out that Courier Service was not approved one.

CHARGE NO. 8

Sh. Singh with a malafide intention has not issued Letter of Thanks to the Introducer Sh. Jeet Pal Singh HSS A/c 3550 who has reportedly introduced the HSS account 3825 of Sh. Rajesh Kishor Sh. Singh has also not verified the signature of Sh. Jeet Pal Singh.

Later on Sh. Jeet Pal Singh has disowned his signature for introducing the account. The Bank has lost an opportunity to identify and locate Sh. Rajesh Kishor, the Account holder has committed the fraud, due to intentionally committed lapses on the part of Sh. Singh.

CHARGE NO. 9

In HSS A/c 3825 of Sh. Rajesh Kishor, the first cheque book was issued on 28.10.2003 containing 10 leaves, of which 3 cheques bearing No. 30682 to 30684 were returned due to insufficient funds in the account on 13.11.2003.

Sh. Singh has issued second cheque book of 25 leaves on 1.12.2003 ignoring the material facts of returning of cheques while the credit balance in the account was only Rs.3829/-. Sh. Singh has issued second cheque book containing 25 leaves while cheque book of 10 leaves was available in the branch. Sh. Singh has also ignored the fact that all cheques from the first cheque book were not presented for payment at the branch. It clearly confirms Sh. Singh's connivance with Sh. Rajesh Kishor in whose account a fraud has committed for Rs.7.90 lac and the Bank has suffered the loss.

CHARGE NO. 10

Sh. Singh has acted in a deceitful manner while issuing the Letter of Thanks to Account holder HSS A/c 3825 Sh. Rajesh Kishor wherein tempering is made in a word written just before President in Letter of Thanks Dt. 9.10.2003. The intention of Sh. Singh is confirmed by Speed Post Receipt No. 0520 Dt. 9.10.2003, wherein address is noted 101, Hotel President. This shows that Sh. Singh has knowingly opened the account of a person not having permanent address, collected cheques of heavy amount and connived with Sh Rajesh Kishor to commit a fraud of Rs.7.90 lac and make loss to the Bank."

3. A reply was filed to the said charges, after which an inquiry was conducted. The disciplinary authority passed order of dismissal under Regulation 6(a) of Memorandum of Settlement of Disciplinary Action, Procedure for Workmen dated 10.04.2002 dismissing the petitioner from service on 20.10.2005. The order was challenged before the Appellate Authority who confirmed the same vide order dated 09.01.2006. The order of dismissal as well as appellate order were challenged before the writ Court through Writ Petition No.7726 of 2006 which was dismissed vide order dated 16.02.2006. Against the said order, Special Appeal No.251 of 2006 was preferred which was dismissed on 27.03.2006.

4. Thereafter, respondent No.2 raised an industrial dispute and the matter referred to CGIT cum Labour Court, Kanpur, which was registered as Industrial Dispute No.24 of 2007. The dispute referred to the Tribunal for adjudication was,

"Whether the action of the management of Central Bank of India, Regional Office, Agra dismissing Sri R.P. Singh son of Late Sri Kalyan Singh from the bank services vide orer dated 20.10.05 of disciplinary authority and confirming the same by appellate authority vide order dated 09.01.06 is legal and fair? If not what relief the workman concerned is entitled?"

5. CGIT, vide order impugned, made an award modifying the punishment of dismissal from service to that of compulsory retirement from service with superannuation benefits. Hence the present writ petition.

6. Sri Vishnu Pratap, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner-Bank submitted that charges against respondent No.2 were grave and serious and stood proved in the disciplinary proceedings, which stood affirmed by the order of Appellate Authority. Both the orders of disciplinary as well as appellate authorities were subject matter of challenge before this Court in writ petition and special appeal. This Court found that inquiry conducted was fair and charges do not appear to be moon shine and, therefore, no interference was required.

7. According to counsel for the Bank, once the charges stood proved and it was held that inquiry conducted was fair, the Tribunal, while exercising power under Section 11A of Act of 1947 could not have modified the order of dismissal on the basis of new material on record as proviso clearly prohibits for the same. Moreover, no reason has been assigned by the Tribunal in modifying the punishment from dismissal to compulsory retirement with superannuation benefits except comparing the punishment awarded to the co-delinquent Surendra Kumar against whom charges were not grave and serious.

8. Rliance has been placed upon a decision of Apex Court in State Bank of India vs. Tarun Kumar Banerjee and others 2000 (4) A.W.C. 3304 (S.C.) : (2000) 8 SCC 12 (Para 3), which is extracted hereasunder :

"3. The Tribunal having held that the domestic enquiry was fair and valid, the scope of interference was very limited. This Court in Workmen of Messrs. Firestone Tyre and Rubber Company of India (P.) Ltd. v. Management and others (1973) 3 SCR 587 stated the law as follows:

"32. (1) The right to take disciplinary action and to decide upon the quantum of punishment are mainly managerial functions, but if a dispute is referred to a Tribunal, the latter has power to see if action of the employer is justified.

(2) Before imposing the punishment, an employer is expected to conduct a proper enquiry in accordance with the provisions of the Standing Orders, if applicable, and principles of natural justice. The enquiry should not be an empty formality.

(3) When a proper enquiry has been held by an employer, and the finding of misconduct is a plausible conclusion flowing from the evidence adduced at the said enquiry, the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to sit in judgment over the decision of the employer as an appellate body. The interference with the decision of the employer will be justified only when the findings arrived at in the enquiry are perverse or the management is guilty of victimisation, unfair labour practice or mala fide.

(4) Even if no enquiry has been held by an employer or if the enquiry held by him is found to be defective, the Tribunal in order to satisfy itself about the legality and validity of the order, had to give an opportunity to the employer and the employee to adduce evidence before it. It is open to the employer to adduce evidence for the first time justifying his action, and it is open to the employee to adduce evidence contra.

(5) The effect of an employer not holding an enquiry is that the Tribunal would not have to consider only whether there was a prima facie case. On the other hand, the issue about the merits of the impugned order of dismissal or discharge is at large before the Tribunal and the latter, on the evidence adduced before it, has to decide for itself whether the misconduct alleged is proved. In such cases, the point about the exercise of managerial functions does not arise at all. A case of defective enquiry stands on the same footing as no enquiry.

(6) The Tribunal gets jurisdiction to consider the evidence placed before it for the first time in justification of the action taken only, if no enquiry has been held or after the enquiry conducted by an employer is found to be defective.

(7) It has never been recognised that the Tribunal should straight away, without anything more, direct reinstatement of a dismissed or discharged employee, once it is found that no domestic enquiry has been held or the said enquiry is found to be defective.

(8) An employer, who wants to avail himself of the opportunity of adducing evidence for the first time before the Tribunal to justify his action, should ask for it at the appropriate stage. If such an opportunity is asked for, the Tribunal has no power to refuse. The giving of an opportunity to an employer to adduce evidence for the first time before the Tribunal is in the interest of both the management and the employee and to enable the Tribunal itself to be satisfied about the alleged misconduct.

(9) Once the misconduct is proved either in the enquiry conducted by an employer or by the evidence placed before a Tribunal for the first time, punishment imposed cannot be interfered with by the Tribunal except in cases where the punishment is so harsh as to suggest victimisation.

(10) In a particular case, after setting aside the order of dismissal, whether a workman should be reinstated or paid compensation is, as held by this Court in Panitole Tea Estate v. Workmen [(1971) 1 SCC 742], within the judicial discretion of a Labour Court or Tribunal. The above was the law as laid down by this Court as on 15-12-1971, applicable to all industrial adjudications arising out of orders of dismissal or discharge."

9. According to learned counsel, Tribunal has no jurisdiction to sit in judgment over the decision of employer as an appellate body and the interference with the decision will only be justified in case the finding is arrived that inquiry was perverse or management is guilty of victimization, unfair labour practice or mala fides. The Tribunal can take into evidence the documents placed before it for the first time only when no enquiry has been held or the inquiry held by the employer is found defective.

10. Reliance has also been placed upon a decision of Apex Court in Tripura Gramin Bank and others vs. Tarit Baran Roy and another 2001 (2) AWC 1125 (SC) and judgment of Andhra Pradesh High Court in Harinarayn Seet vs. Andhra Bank 2022 LiveLaw (AP) 125.

11. Sri Indra Mani Tripathi, learned counsel appearing for legal heirs of respondent No.2 submitted that respondent No.2 was placed at the Extension Counter and Surendra Kumar, the other delinquent employee, who was at the main branch, had sent the advise to the Extension Counter after passing FSCM(s) and on the basis of the same, worker had no authority to further verify the same except giving credit of the amount of cheque. According to him, both respondent No.2 as well as Surendra Kumar were collectively responsible for loss of Rs.7.90 lakhs while in the disciplinary proceedings initiated against Surendra Kumar, the disciplinary authority has proposed punishment of discharge from service but later on, in the final order passed by the disciplinary authority, punishment of reduction by two stages in time scale of pay for a period of five years was awarded.

12. According to counsel for respondent No.2, once it was found that it was a collective mistake of both respondent No.2 and Surendra Kumar and the punishment awarded was different, the Tribunal, finding the punishment awarded to respondent No.2 being disproportionate to the gravity of charges, reduced the same from dismissal to compulsory retirement with superannuation benefits. Reliance has been placed upon a Full Bench judgment of Rajasthan High Court in Rajasthan State Road Transport Corporation vs. Gopal Singh 1998(2) SCT 277; decision of Telangana and Andhra Pradesh High Court in Depot Manager, TSRTC vs. Mohd. Fakruddin and other 2017(155) FLR 263; decisions of Apex Court in Management of Hindustan Machine Tools Ltd. Bangalore vs. Mohd. Usman and another 1984 AIR (SC) 321 and Jitendra Singh Rathor vs. Shri Baidyanath Ayurved Bhawan Ltd. and another 1984 AIR (SC) 976.

13. I have heard the respective counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

14. The short question engaging attention of the Court is, as to the power of CGIT-cum-Labour Court under Section 11A of Act of 1947 in modifying the punishment of dismissal to that of compulsory retirement with superannuation benefits in the facts of the case.

15. It is an admitted case that respondent No.2 was an employee of the Bank. He was posted at the Extension Counter of the main branch at KSGA, Aligarh during the period October, 2003 to February, 2004. It is during this period that respondent No.2 had opened current account No.176 of M/s Rajesh & Company and also HSS Account No.3825 of Rajesh Kishore. It is during this period that three cheques of Rs.1,60,000/- deposited on 14.10.2003; Rs.3,10,000/- deposited on 04.12.2003; and Rs.3,20,000/- deposited on 11.12.2003 were forwarded for collection to branch office Panchkula, Chandigarh. An amount of Rs.7,90,000/- was withdrawn. Surendra Kumar, who was posted at branch office Panchkula, had cleared these three cheques without tallying the signatures. When the matter came into light, respondent No.2 was posted as Special Assistant at Regional Office Agra, firstly, he was suspended and thereafter a charge sheet containing ten charges were given to him. On 28.09.2004, the charge sheet was also issued to Surendra Kumar containing one charge, which is as under :

Charge No. 1

While working as Special Assistant at B/o Aligarh, Mr. Surendra Kumar has passed the following FSCMs on the date mentioned against the FSCM Nos without tallying the signature of officials of B/o Panchkula in the FSCM with the Specimen Signature Album

FSCM NO.

Amount of FSCM
Date on which FSCM passed
23755
Rs.1,60,000/-
17.11.2003
23792
Rs. 3,10,000/-
20.12.2003
23797
Rs. 3,20,000/-
01.01.2004
Total
Rs. 7,90,000/-

The signatures of the officials of B/o Panchkula on the above FSCMs are not tallying with their signatures those given in specimen signature album. Mr. Surendra Kumar has passed the credit voucher of FSCM No. 23792 for Rs.3,10,000/- but not passed the manifold with obvious intention. Mr. Surendra Kumar has also not ensured the 2nd signature (counter signature) on all the aforesaid manifolds as per bank's rules. Later on B/o Panchkula has disowned the manifolds and therefore bank has suffered a loss of Rs.7,90,000/- due to negligence of Mr. Surendra Kumar. Thus Mr. Surendra Kumar is charged with gross misconduct for the above acts under para 5(j) of Memorandum of settlement on Disciplinary Action Procedure for Workmen Dt. 10.04.2002."

16. During the enquiry, charges stood proved against respondent No.2 and the disciplinary authority recommended for dismissal which was approved and the order of dismissal was passed on 20.10.2005, which was affirmed by the Appellate Authority on 09.01.2006. The Division Bench of this Court in Special Appeal No.251 of 2006 declined to interfere in the matter and found that the enquiry was conducted fairly and charges so proved did not require any interference.

17. The Labour Tribunal also while passing the order impugned had recorded a clear finding to the effect that there was no discrepancy in the enquiry as held against the worker which was done in fair and proper manner and the enquiry officer had rightly arrived at the conclusion. The Labour Tribunal further found charges proved against worker. It is only in the light of the punishment awarded to other co-delinquent Surendra Kumar that the Labour Tribunal proceeded to exercise power under Section 11A and modified the punishment.

18. The question, which arises for consideration by this Court is to the scope and power of Labour Tribunal to interfere in the punishment awarded by the disciplinary authority and modify the same having been confirmed by the Division Bench of this Court when no illegality, perversity, victimization or unfair labour practice has been found or recorded against the employer/petitioner.

19. Proviso to Section 11A of Act of 1947 clearly restricts the power of Labour Court, Tribunal or National Tribunal in admitting additional evidence or material, while invoking power under Section 11A and the entire scope of Labour Court rest on the material on record. The satisfaction which a Labour Court, Tribunal or National Tribunal is to record while modifying the order of discharge or dismissal is only on the basis of material on record and no external aid can be taken.

20. In Chairman and Managing Director, United Commercial Bank and others vs. P.C.Kakkar (2003) 4 SCC 364, the Apex Court held that Court should not interfere with administrative decision unless it is illogical or suffers from procedural impropriety. The punishment imposed by the disciplinary authority or appellate authority shocks the conscience of the Court/Tribunal then only the order can be interfered. Relevant paras 11, 12 and 13 of the judgment are extracted hereas under :

"11. The common thread running through in all these decisions is that the court should not interfere with the administrator's decision unless it was illogical or suffers from procedural impropriety or was shocking to the conscience of the court, in the sense that it was in defiance of logic or moral standards. In view of what has been stated in Associated Provincial Picture Houses Ltd. v. Wednesbury Corpn., (1948) 1 KB 223 : (1947) 2 All ER 680 (CA) the court would not go into the correctness of the choice made by the administrator open to him and the court should not substitute its decision to that of the administrator. The scope of judicial review is limited to the deficiency in decision-making process and not the decision.

12. To put it differently, unless the punishment imposed by the disciplinary authority or the Appellate Authority shocks the conscience of the court/tribunal, there is no scope for interference. Further, to shorten litigation it may, in exceptional and rare cases, impose appropriate punishment by recording cogent reasons in support thereof. In the normal course if the punishment imposed is shockingly disproportionate it would be appropriate to direct the disciplinary authority or the Appellate Authority to reconsider the penalty imposed.

13. In the case at hand the High Court did not record any reason as to how and why it found the punishment shockingly disproportionate. Even there is no discussion on this aspect. The only discernible reason was the punishment awarded in M.L. Keshwani case. As was observed by this Court in Balbir Chand v. Food Corpn. of India Ltd. (1997) 3 SCC 371 even if a co-delinquent is given lesser punishment it cannot be a ground for interference. Even such a plea was not available to be given credence as the allegations were contextually different."

21. The Court further held that a bank officer is required to exercise higher standards of honesty and integrity. He deals with money of depositors and the customers. Every officer/employee of the bank is required to take all possible steps to protect the interests of the bank and to discharge his duties with utmost integrity, honesty, devotion and diligence and to do nothing which is unbecoming of a bank officer.

22. In Canara Bank vs. V.K.Awasthy (2005) 6 SCC 321, the Apex Court while dealing with scope of interference with quantum of punishment held that such interference cannot be a routine matter and held as under :

"24. Lord Greene said in 1948 in the famous Wednesbury case [Associated Provincial Picture Houses v. Wednesbury Corpn., (1948) 1 KB 223 : (1947) 2 All ER 680 (CA)] that when a statute gave discretion to an administrator to take a decision, the scope of judicial review would remain limited. He said that interference was not permissible unless one or the other of the following conditions was satisfied, namely, the order was contrary to law, or relevant factors were not considered, or irrelevant factors were considered; or the decision was one which no reasonable person could have taken. These principles were consistently followed in the UK and in India to judge the validity of administrative action. It is equally well known that in 1983, Lord Diplock in Council for Civil Services Union v. Minister of Civil Service [(1984) 3 All ER 935 : 1985 AC 374 : (1984) 3 WLR 1174] (called CCSU case) summarised the principles of judicial review of administrative action as based upon one or the other of the following viz. illegality, procedural irregularity and irrationality. He, however, opined that "proportionality" was a "future possibility"."

"27. In Union of India v. G. Ganayutham (1997) 7 SCC 463 this Court summed up the position relating to proportionality in paras 31 and 32, which read as follows : (SCC pp. 478-80)

"31. The current position of proportionality in administrative law in England and India can be summarised as follows:

(1) To judge the validity of any administrative order or statutory discretion, normally the Wednesbury test is to be applied to find out if the decision was illegal or suffered from procedural improprieties or was one which no sensible decision-maker could, on the material before him and within the framework of the law, have arrived at. The court would consider whether relevant matters had not been taken into account or whether irrelevant matters had been taken into account or whether the action was not bona fide. The court would also consider whether the decision was absurd or perverse. The court would not however go into the correctness of the choice made by the administrator amongst the various alternatives open to him. Nor could the court substitute its decision to that of the administrator. This is the Wednesbury [Associated Provincial Picture Houses v. Wednesbury Corpn., (1948) 1 KB 223 : (1947) 2 All ER 680 (CA)] test.

(2) The court would not interfere with the administrator's decision unless it was illegal or suffered from procedural impropriety or was irrational — in the sense that it was in outrageous defiance of logic or moral standards. The possibility of other tests, including proportionality being brought into English administrative law in future is not ruled out. These are the CCSU [(1984) 3 All ER 935 : 1985 AC 374 : (1984) 3 WLR 1174] principles.

(3)(a) As per Bugdaycay [R. v. Secy. of State for Home Deptt., ex p Bugdaycay, 1987 AC 514 : (1987) 1 All ER 940 (HL)], Brind [(1991) 1 AC 696 : (1991) 1 All ER 720 : (1991) 2 WLR 588 (HL)] and Smith [R. v. Ministry of Defence, ex p Smith, (1996) 1 All ER 257 : 1996 QB 517 : (1996) 2 WLR 305 (CA)] as long as the Convention is not incorporated into English law, the English courts merely exercise a secondary judgment to find out if the decision-maker could have, on the material before him, arrived at the primary judgment in the manner he has done.

(3)(b) If the Convention is incorporated in England making available the principle of proportionality, then the English courts will render primary judgment on the validity of the administrative action and find out if the restriction is disproportionate or excessive or is not based upon a fair balancing of the fundamental freedom and the need for the restriction thereupon.

(4)(a) The position in our country, in administrative law, where no fundamental freedoms as aforesaid are involved, is that the courts/tribunals will only play a secondary role while the primary judgment as to reasonableness will remain with the executive or administrative authority. The secondary judgment of the court is to be based on Wednesbury and CCSU principles as stated by Lord Greene and Lord Diplock respectively to find if the executive or administrative authority has reasonably arrived at the decision as the primary authority.

(4)(b) Whether in the case of administrative or executive action affecting fundamental freedoms, the courts in our country will apply the principle of 'proportionality' and assume a primary role, is left open, to be decided in an appropriate case where such action is alleged to offend fundamental freedoms. It will be then necessary to decide whether the courts will have a primary role only if the freedoms under Articles 19 and 21 etc. are involved and not for Article 14.

32. Finally, we come to the present case. It is not contended before us that any fundamental freedom is affected. We need not therefore go into the question of 'proportionality'. There is no contention that the punishment imposed is illegal or vitiated by procedural impropriety. As to 'irrationality', there is no finding by the Tribunal that the decision is one which no sensible person who weighed the pros and cons could have arrived at nor is there a finding, based on material, that the punishment is in 'outrageous' defiance of logic. Neither Wednesbury nor CCSU tests are satisfied. We have still to explain 'Ranjit Thakur [Ranjit Thakur v. Union of India, (1987) 4 SCC 611]." (emphasis in original)

23. In State Bank of India (supra), Apex Court had laid down the scope of interference by the Tribunal. The Court found that interference with the decision of an employer will be justified only when the findings arrived at in the inquiry are perverse or management is guilty of victimization, unfair labour practice or mala fides. It was further held that the Tribunal can only take into consideration the evidence placed before it for the first time in case no inquiry was held or after the enquiry was conducted by the employer it was found to be defective.

24. In the instant case, the Labour Tribunal had categorically recorded in para 12 of its judgment that whole inquiry proceedings held against the delinquent employee was in a fair and proper manner and the enquiry officer has rightly come to the conclusion that charges stood proved against the worker. Once such finding was recorded by the Tribunal, it had no power to proceed further to modify the punishment awarded from dismissal to that of compulsory retirement with superannuation benefits.

25. The judgment of the Tribunal is against the dictum of Apex Court not only in case of State Bank of India (supra) but also in other catena of judgments. Reliance placed upon decision of disciplinary authority awarding punishment to Surendra Kumar cannot be taken into consideration in the instant case while modifying the punishment since the charges against both the delinquent employees are different. Moreover, ten serious charges have been levelled against respondent No.2, while only one charge was against Surendra Kumar. The parity drawn by the Tribunal cannot be justified at any cost. The Tribunal sailed beyond its power vested under Section 11A of the Act of 1947.

26. The comparison drawn by the Tribunal cannot be accepted looking to the gravity of charges levelled against the two delinquent employees of the Bank. The wisdom of the disciplinary action of the bank cannot be questioned as the charges are different. Respondent No.2 was responsible for opening the two accounts one being current account No.176 of M/s Rajesh & Company and the second account in the name of Rajesh Kishore being HSS Account No.3825, while Surendra Kumar had only cleared the cheques without tallying the signature. The misconduct on the part of respondent No.2 was greater having caused loss to the bank.

27. The Apex Court in case of P.C.Kakkar (supra) held that a bank officer is required to exercise higher standard of honesty and integrity. The parity drawn by the Tribunal does not come under the category that punishment awarded was shockingly disproportionate to the offence which required the interference by the Tribunal under Section 11A of Act of 1947.

28. Thus, I find that the Tribunal was not justified in modifying the punishment awarded by the disciplinary authority having been confirmed by the Appellate Authority as well as by the Division Bench of this Court in Special Appeal No.251 of 2006 from that of dismissal to compulsory retirement with superannuation benefits.
29. Considering the facts and circumstances of this case, I find that the impugned award dated 22.08.2016 published on 05.09.2016 is unsustainable in the eyes of law and the same is hereby set aside. The order passed by disciplinary authority dismissing respondent No.2 from services stands confirmed.
30. The writ petition succeeds and is hereby allowed.

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Dharm Raj Mishra and Shri Ratnesh Singh, learned counsel for the respondents and Shri Hemant Kumar Pandey, learned State Counsel.

2. By means of the present petition, the petitioner has assailed the order dated 24.08.2023 passed by respondent No.1-Commissioner, Devi Patan Mandal, District-Gonda in the Revision instituted under Section 210 of U.P. Revenue Code, 2006 (in short "Code of 2006"), registered as Case No.1201 of 2023, (Rahul Agrawal vs. Ritesh Agrawal).

3. The brief facts are to the effect that in a Case No. 5244 of 2023 (Ritesh Kumar vs. Rahul Agrawal& Others), Computerized Case No. 20230815050244, instituted under Section 116 of the Code of 2006, the revenue court of first instance, namely, Sub-Divisional Magistrate, Payagpur, District-Bahraich (in short "S.D.M.") passed the order dated 04.08.2023, whereby the authority concerned directed the parties to maintain status-quo. The order dated 04.08.2023 being relevant on reproduction reads as under:-

"पत्रावली प्रस्तुत। वादी रितेश कुमार पुत्र महावीर द्वारा उ०प्र० राजस्व संहिता 2006 की धारा 116 के तहत न्यायालय उपजिलाधिकारी पयागपुर जनपद-बहराइच पर बटवारें का वाद दायर किया गया है। इनके द्वारा स्थगन प्रार्थना पत्र भी दिया गया है। वादी रितेश कुमार पुत्र महावीर द्वारा स्थगन प्रार्थना पत्र में कहा गया है कि प्रार्थी आराजी नं० खाता सं० 829 की गाटा सं० 1086/0.020 हे०, 1079मि०/0.005 हे०, 1085/0.0056 हे०, 1084/0.057 हे० व खाता सं० 790 की गाटा सं० 1087/0.304 हे० व खाता सं० 788 की गाटा सं०1079मि०/0.005 हे० व खाता सं० 1189 की गाटा सं० 1079 मि०/0.009 हे० का सहसंक्रमणीय भूमिधर काश्तकार हैं तथा गाटा सं० 1079 का कुल रकबा 0.019 हे० है। जिसमें विपक्षी नं 1 राहुल अग्रवाल जो एक सरकस व जबरदस्त किस्म के व्यक्ति है। वे अपनी सरकसी के बिना पर प्रश्नगत वादग्रस्त भूमि में प्रार्थी/वादी के अंश की भूमि पर बिना विधिक विभाजन के जबरिया कब्जा करके प्रार्थी को कब्जे से बेदखल कर देना चाहते है तथा निर्माण कर लेना चाहते है। जिसके लिए वे ईट, बालू इत्यादि निर्माण सामग्री का इन्तजाम कर रखे है। प्रार्थी के मना करने पर आमादा फौजदारी होते है। यदि वे अपने मकसद मे कामयाब हो गये तो प्रार्थी/वादी की अपूर्णनीय क्षति होगी। हमेशा के लिए कब्जे से बेदखल हो जायेगा। जिसकी भरपाई भविष्य में हो पाना सम्भव न होगा। अन्त में इनके द्वारा कहा गया है कि दौरान विभाजन वाद विपक्षी नं०1 राहुल अग्रवाल को मना किया जावें कि जबतक विभाजन वाद का निस्तारण नही होता है, तबतक वे प्रार्थी/वादी को जबरिया प्रश्नगत वादीय भूमि उपरोक्त से कब्जे से बेदखल न करे तथा जबरिया निर्माण न करे और मौके की यथास्थित बनाये रखे।

4. Being dissatisfied/aggrieved by the order of status-quo dated 04.08.2023 passed by the S.D.M., the revision was preferred and the revisional authority namely, respondent No.1 after giving opportunity of hearing to the parties concerned, allowed the revision and interfered in the order dated 04.08.2023 passed by S.D.M. The relevant portion of the impugned order dated 24.08.2023 reads as under:-

"मैंने निगरानी की ग्राह्यता के स्तर पर उभयपक्षों द्वारा प्रस्तुत तर्कों एवं निगरानी पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध अभिलेखों का गहनतापूर्वक परीक्षण किया। प्रश्नगत आदेश के अवलोकन से यह स्पष्ट है कि अवर न्यायालय में उ०प्र० राजस्व संहिता की धारा-116 के अंतर्गत बामुकदमा रितेश कुमार बनाम राहुल अग्रवाल के वाद में रितेश कुमार पुत्र महावीर द्वारा उ०प्र० राजस्व संहिता की धारा 116 के अंतर्गत बंटवारे का वाद दायर किया गया था, जिसमें इनके द्वारा स्थगन प्रार्थना-पत्र भी दिया गया था। वादी रितेश कुमार ने अपने स्थगन प्रार्थना-पत्र में कहा गया कि प्रार्थी आराजी नं० खाता सं० 829 की गाटा सं0 1086/0.020 हे0, 1079मि0/0.005 हे0, 1085/0.0056हे0, 1084/0.0570 व खाता सं0 790 की गाटा सं0 1087/0.304हे० खाता सं0 788 की गाटा सं0 1079मि0/0.005 हे0 व खाता सं0 1189 की गाटा सं0 1079मि/0.009 हे० का सहसंक्रमणीय भूमिधर काश्तकार है तथा गाटा सं0 1079 का कुल रकबा 0.019 हे0 है, जिसमें विपक्षी नं० 1 राहुल अग्रवाल जो एक सरकस व जबरदस्त किस्म के व्यक्ति हैं। वे अपनी सरकसी के बिना पर प्रश्नगत वादग्रस्त भूमि में वादी के अंश की भूमि पर बिना विधिक विभाजन के जबरिया कब्जा करके प्रार्थी के कब्जे से बेदखल कर देना चाहते हैं तथा निर्माण कर लेना चाहते हैं, जिसके लिए वे ईट, बालू, इत्यादि निर्माण सामग्री का इंतजाम कर रखे है। प्रार्थी के मना करने पर आमादा फौजदारी होते है। यदि वे अपने मकसद में कामयाब हो गये तो वादी की

अपूर्णनीय क्षति होगी। हमेशा के लिए कब्जे से बेदखल हो जायेगा, जिसकी भरपाई भविष्य में हो पाना सम्भव न होगा। अन्त में कहा गया कि दौरान विभाजन वाद विपक्षी नं० 1 राहुल अग्रवाल को मना किया जावे कि जबतक विभाजन वाद का निस्तारण नहीं होता है तबतक वे वादी को जबरिया प्रश्नगत वादीय भूमि उपरोक्त से कब्जे से बेदखपल न करे तथा जबरिया निर्माण न करें और मौके पर यथास्थिति बनाये रखें। इस पर अवर न्यायालय ने प्रश्नगत आदेश दिनांक 04.08.2023 द्वारा विवादित भूमि पर उभयपक्षों को यथास्थिति बनाये रखने का आदेश पारित करते हुए पत्रावली अग्रिम तिथि नियत की गयी है, जिसके विरूद्व निगरानी आयुक्त न्यायालय में योजित की गयी है।

अतः उपरोक्त के परिप्रेक्ष्य में प्रस्तुत निगरानी स्वीकार करते हुए अवर न्यायालय द्वारा पारित आदेश दिनांक 04.08.2023 निरस्त किया जाता है तथा पत्रावली अवर न्यायालय को इस निर्देश के साथ प्रतिप्रेषित की जाती है कि वह प्रश्नगत वाद में उभयपक्षों को साक्ष्य सुनवाई का समुचित अवसर प्रदान करते हुए वाद का स्पीकिंग आदेश द्वारा अंतिम निस्तारण दो माह के भीतर सुनिश्चित करें। उक्त आदेश की प्रति सम्बन्धित न्यायालय को भेजी जाय। इस न्यायालय की पत्रावली दाखिल दफतर हो।"

5. The main ground which has been taken for interfering in the order dated 04.08.2023 is based upon the provisions indicated in the Code of 2006 i.e. Section 207 and Section 209 of the Code of 2006.

6. Impeaching the impugned order dated 24.08.2023 passed by respondent No.1, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that in view of Section 207 particularly Sub-Section 2 (b) and (c), the appeal was maintainable against the order dated 04.08.2023 whereby the parties were directed to maintain 'status-quo', and the revision under Section 210 of the Code of 2006 was not maintainable and being so in entertaining and allowing the revision, the respondent No.1 committed material illegality.

7. In continuation, he also stated that an order directing the parties to maintain 'status-quo' would fall under Order 39 Rule 1 and 2 of C.P.C. and as such in view of Section 207, which indicates that an appeal shall lie against an order of the nature specified under Order 43 Rule 1 of the First Schedule to the said Code namely Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (in short 'C.P.C.'), the appeal was maintainable and not the revision. In this regard, a reference has been made to the Order 43 of C.P.C.

8. He further submitted that the expression 'Stay' under Sub-Section 209(d) is relevant. There is a difference between expression 'Injunction' and 'Stay'. As per settled principle of law, an 'Injunction' order would relate to party or parties, as the case may be, to the case/suit and 'Stay' order relates to the Court/Authority concerned. Accordingly, Section 209 would not be available to the side opposite to say that revision was maintainable.

9. Per contra, Shri D.R. Mishra, based upon Section 209 (d) and 209 (h) submitted that the interim order i.e. order dated 04.08.2023 was an ex-parte order, as such, in view of the Sub-Section (h) read with Sub-Section (d) of Section 209, the revision was maintainable. As such, no interference in the matter is required. Prayer is to dismissed the petition.

10. Considered the submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

11. For the purposes of disposal of the present petition, this Court finds it appropriate to reproduce Section 207, Section 209 as also Section 210 of the Code of 2006.

12. Section 207 of the Code of 2006 reads as under:-

"First appeal.-(1) Any party aggrieved by a final order or decree passed in any suit, application or proceeding specified in Column 2 of the Third Schedule, may prefer a first appeal to the Court or officer specified against it in Column 5, where such order or decree was passed by a Court or officer specified against it in Column 3 thereof.

(2) A first appeal shall also lie against an order of the nature specified-

(a) in Section 47 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908; or

(b) in Section 104 of the said Code; or

(c) in Order XLIII Rule 1 of the First Schedule to the said Code.

(3) The period of limitation for filing a first appeal under this section shall be thirty days from the date of the order or decree appealed against."

13. Section 209 of the Code of 2006 reads as under:-

"209. Bar against certain appeals.- Notwithstanding anything contained in sections 207 and 208, no appeal shall lie against any order or decree-

(a) made under Chapter XI of this Code;

(b) granting or rejecting an application for condonation of delay under section 5 of Limitation Act,

1963;

(c) rejecting an application for revision;

(d) granting or rejecting an application for stay;

(e) remanding the case to any subordinate Court;

(f) where such order or decree is of an interim nature;

(g) passed by Court or officer with the consent of parties; or

(h) where has been passed ex-parte or by default:

Provided that any party aggrieved by order passed ex-parte or by default, may move application for setting aside such order within a period of thirty days from the date of the order;

Provided further that no such order shall be reversed or altered without previously summoning the party in whose favour order has been passed to appear and be heard in support of it."

4. Section 210 of the Code of 2006 reads as under:-

"Power to call for the records.-(1) The Board or the Commissioner may call for the record of any suit or proceeding decided by any sub-ordinate Revenue Court in which no appeal lies, for the purpose of satisfying itself or himself as to the legality or propriety of any order passed in such suit or proceeding, and if such subordinate Court appears to have-

(a) exercised a jurisdiction not vested in it by law: or

(b) failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested: or

(c) acted in the exercise of such jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity: the Board, or the Commissioner, as the case may be, may pass such order in the case as it or he thinks fit.

(2) If an application under this section has been moved by any person either to the Board or to the Commissioner, no further application by the same person shall be entertained by the other of them.

Explanation- For the removal of doubt it is, hereby, declared that when an application under this section has been moved either to the Board or to the Commissioner, the application shall not be permitted to be withdrawn for the purpose of filing the application against the same order to the other of them.]

(3) No application under this section shall be entertained after the expiry of a period of [sixty days] from the date of the order sought to be revised or from the date of commencement of this Code, whichever is later."

15. A perusal of the Section 207 of the Code of 2006 indicates that an appeal would lie against an order of the nature specified in Section 104 and also against an order of the nature specified in Order 43 Rule 1 of the First Schedule to the C.P.C. and these provisions are relevant for coming to the conclusion on the issues involved and as such, the same are being extracted hereinunder:-

"Section104. Orders from which appeal lies-

(1) An appeal shall lie from the following orders, and save as otherwise expressly provided in the body of this Code or by any law for the time being in force, from no other orders:---

*1 * * * * * 2*

[(ff) an order under section 35A;

3[(ffa) an order under section 91 or section 92 refusing leave to institute a suit of the nature referred to in section 91 or section 92, as the case may be;

(g) an order under section 95

(h) an order under any of the provisions of this Code imposing a fine or directing the arrest or detention in the civil prison of any person except where such arrest or detention is in execution of a decree

(i) any order made under rules from which an appeal is expressly allowed by rules

2[Provided that no appeal shall lie against any order specified in clause (ff) save on the ground that no order, or an order for the payment of a less amount, ought to have been made.

(2) No appeal shall lie from any order passed in appeal under this section."

"FIRST SCHEDULE
ORDER XLIII
Appeals From Order

1. Appeal from orders*-An appeal shall lie from the following orders under the provisions* of Section 104, namely :--

(a) an order under Rule 10 of Order VII returning a plaint to be presented to the proper Court [except where the procedure specified in Rule 10-A of Order VII has been followed] ;

(b) []

(c) an order under Rule 9 of Order IX rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit ;

(g) []

(h) []

(i) an order under Rule 34 of Order XXI on an objection to the draft of a document or of an endorsement;

(j) an order under Rule 72 or Rule 92 of Order XXI setting aside or refusing to set aside a sale ;

[(ja) an order rejecting an application made under sub- rule (1) of Rule 106 of Order XXI, provided that an order on the original application, that is to say, the application referred to in sub-rule (1) of Rule 105 of that Order is appealable;]

(k) an order under Rule 9 of Order XXII refusing to set aside the abatement or dismissal of a suit ;

(l) an order under Rule 10 of Order XXII giving or refusing to give leave ;

(m) []

(n) an order under Rule 2 of Order XXV rejecting an application (in a case open to appeal) for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit ;

[(na) an order under Rule 5 or Rule 7 of Order XXXIII rejecting an application for permission to sue as an indigent person ;]

(o) []

(p) orders in interpleader-suits under Rule 3, Rule 4 or Rule 6 of Order XXXV;

(q) an order under Rule 2, Rule 3 or Rule 6 of Order XXXVIII ;

(r) an order under Rule 1, Rule 2, [Rule 2-A], Rule 4 or Rule 10 of Order XXXIX;

(s) an order under Rule 1 or Rule 4 of Order XL

(t) an order of refusal under Rule 19 of Order XLI to readmit, or under Rule 21 of Order XLI to rehear, an appeal;

(u) an order under Rule 23 [or Rule 23-A] of Order XLI remanding a case, where an appeal would lie from the decree of the Appellate Court ;

(v) []

(w) an order under Rule 4 of Order XLVII granting an application for review."

16. The power to grant interim order or temporary injunction is provided under Order 39 of C.P.C. Under this Order, the Court can grant the interim order/injunction and the Court can also grant an ex-parte interim order/temporary injunction and an order for injunction can be discharged, varied or set aside by the Court. Refereable Rules are Rule 1, Rule 2, Rule 3 and Rule 4 of Order 39 of C.P.C. The Court under this Order can also punish for disobedience/breach of injunction as appears from Rule 2A.

17. A conjoint reading of Order 43 Rule 1(r) and referred Rules of Order 39 of C.P.C., indicates that the order passed under Rule 1, Rule 2, Rule 3 and Rule 4 of Order 39 of C.P.C. is appellable.

18. An appeal against an order granting or rejecting an application for stay would therefore be barred notwithstanding anything contained under Sections 207 and 208. It is for the reason that Section 209 provides that certain orders or decrees are not appealable, and clause (d) thereof refers to an order granting or rejecting an application for a stay.

19. Thus, the question now for consideration is as to whether an order granting or refusing to grant a temporary injunction can be held to be an order granting or rejecting an application for stay so as to attract the bar under Section 209 and to hold such order to be non-appealable.

20. The question with regard to the effect of a stay order and its distinction from an order of injunction fell for consideration in the case of Mulraj vs. Murti Raghonathji Maharaj; AIR 1967 SC 1386, wherein, it was held that an order of 'Injunction' is generally issued to a party by which it is forbidden from doing certain acts whereas a 'Stay' order is addressed to a court which prohibits it from proceeding further. The distinction between a 'Stay' order and an order of 'Injunction' was drawn by observing as follows:-

"8...In effect therefore a stay order is more or less in the same position as an order of injunction with one difference. An order of injunction is generally issued to a party and it is forbidden from doing certain acts. It is well settled that in such a case the party must have knowledge of the injunction order before it could be penalised for disobeying it. Further it is equally well settled that the injunction order not being addressed to the court, if the court proceeds in contravention of the injunction order, the proceedings are not a nullity. In the case of a stay order, as it is addressed to the court and prohibits it from proceeding further, as soon as the court has knowledge of the order it is bound to obey it and if it does not, it acts illegally, and all proceedings taken after the knowledge of the order would be a nullity. That in our opinion is the only difference between an order of injunction to a party and an order of stay to a court. In both cases knowledge of the party concerned or of the court is necessary before the prohibition takes effect. Take the case where a stay order has been passed but it is never brought to the notice of the court, and the court carries on proceedings ignorance thereof. It can hardly be said that the court has lost jurisdiction because of some order of which has no knowledge.....

9. It is argued that this view would introduce uncertainty inasmuch as proceedings may go on and it may take sometime — whether long or short — for the stay order to reach the court. There is in our opinion no question of uncertainty, even if we hold that the stay order must come to the knowledge of the court to which it is addressed before it takes effect. The court may receive knowledge either on receipt of an order of stay from the Court that passed it or through one party or the other supported by an affidavit or in any other way. There is in our opinion no uncertainty by reason of the fact that the court to which the stay order is addressed must have knowledge of it before it takes effect for it can always be proved that the court to which the stay order was addressed had knowledge of it and that is not a matter which should really create any difficulty or uncertainty. Once it is clear that a stay order is in the nature of a prohibitory order, knowledge of it by the court which is prohibited is essential before the court is deprived of the power to carry on the proceedings. As was pointed out in Bassesswari Chowdhurany case [(1896-97) 1 CWN 226] "the appellate court has nothing to do with the execution of the decree; the execution proceeds under the direction of the court which made the decree and it has full authority to execute it. An order of stay does not undo anything which has been done; its utmost affect is to stop further action in the direction of execution, but it would only have that effect when it reached the court or person whose duty it was to obey it".

10. As we have already indicated, an order of stay is as much a prohibitory order as an injunction order and unless the court to which it is addressed has knowledge of it, it cannot deprive that court of the jurisdiction to proceed with the execution before it. But there is one difference between an order of injunction and an order of stay arising out of the fact that an injunction order is usually passed against a party while a stay order is addressed to the court. As the stay order is addressed to the court as soon as the court has knowledge of it, it must stay its hand; if it does not do so, it acts illegally. Therefore, in the case of a stay order as opposed to an order of injunction, as soon as the court has knowledge of it, it must stay its hand and further proceedings are illegal; but so long as the court has no knowledge of the stay order it does not lose the jurisdiction to deal with the execution which it has under the Code of Civil Procedure."

(emphasis supplied)

21. The difference between an order of 'Injunction' and an order of 'Stay' can also be taken note of from the decision of United States' Supreme Court in Jean Marc Nken, petitioner Vs. Eric H. Holder, Jr., Attorney General; 556 U.S. 418 (2009), wherein, after considering the judgment passed in the case of Weinberger vs. Romero-Barcelo, 456 U.S. 305 (1982); it was held that a 'Stay' and an 'Injunction' were not synonymous since an 'Injunction' refers to an order requiring a person to act or refrain from acting and a 'Stay' is a temporary suspension of legal proceedings. It was observed as follows:-

"An injunction and a stay have typically been understood to serve different purposes. The former is a means by which a court tells someone what to do or not to do. When a court employs "the extraordinary remedy of injunction," Weinberger v. Romero-Barcelo, it directs the conduct of a party, and does so with the backing of its full coercive powers."

22. Thus, an order of 'Injunction' and an order of 'Stay' are different. An 'Injunction' order is usually passed against a party and operates in personam while a 'Stay' order is addressed to the Court and as such 'Stay' order operates upon the judicial proceedings.

23. In Chamundi Mopeds Ltd. vs. Church of South India Trust; MANU/SC/0501/1992: JT 1992 (3) SC 98, the Hon'ble Apex Court has explained the effect of the interim order in the following words:-

"While considering the effect of an interim order staying the operation of the order under challenge, a distinction has to be made between quashing of an order and stay of operation of an order. Quashing of an order results in the restoration of the position as it stood on the date of the passing of the order which has been quashed. The stay or operation of an order does not, however, lead to such a result. It only means that the order which has been stayed would not be operative from the date of passing of the stay order and it does not mean that the said order has been wiped out from the existence."

24. In the instant case, in the application seeking interim relief filed in a suit for division of holdings instituted under Section 116 of the Code of 2006, the petitioner herein sought the following prayer:-

"अतः निवेदन है कि दौरान विभाजन वाद विपक्षी नं0–1 राहुल अग्रवाल को मना किया जावे कि जब तक विभाजन वाद का निस्तारण नहीं होता है तब

तक वे प्रार्थी/वादी को जबरिया प्रश्नगत वादीय भूमि उपरोक्त से कब्जे से बेदखल न करें, तथा जबरिया निर्माण न करें और मौके की यथास्थित बनाये रखे। जिससे प्राथी को उचित न्याय मिल सके, कृपा होगी।"

25. The effect of the prayer, quoted above, sought in the application seeking interim relief is to maintaining status-quo till the disposal of the suit filed under Section 116 of the Code of 2006.

26. As per the averments made in the application the defendant/Rahul Agarwal in the suit was adamant to forcibly dispossess the petitioner from the property in question and to raise construction over the same, and in view thereof an order directing status-quo was required.

27. The prayer sought in the application seeking interim relief, quoted above, also indicates that the same is not for grant of a stay order to any court or authority. The order dated 04.08.2023 passed on the application seeking interim relief preferred by the petitioner indicates that the parties to the proceedings were directed to maintain status-quo. The operative portion of the order dated 04.08.2023 reads as under:-

"न्यायालय पर० उ०प्र० राजस्व संहिता 2006 की धारा 116 के अन्तर्गत बंटवारे का वाद विचाराधीन है। न्यायहित में ग्राम रूकनापुर स्थित भूमि की गाटा सं० 1086/0.020हे०, 1085/0.0056 हे०, 1084/0.057हे0 व गाटा सं0 1087/0.304 हे0 व गाटा सं० 1079 मि0 / 0.005हे0, 1079मि० / 0.005 हे0 व 1079मि0 / 0.009हे० गाटा संख्या 1079 कुल क्षेत्रफल 0.019हे0 पर न्यायालय में वाद विचाराधीन रहते उभय पक्षों को निर्देशित किया जाता है कि मौके पर यथास्थित बनाये रखें। पत्रावली दिनांक 01.09.2023 को पेश हो।"

27. It would be apt to indicate that a prayer to direct the parties to maintain status-quo during the pendency of the suit is an injunctive relief.

28. In the instant case, the interim order directing the parties to the proceedings to maintain status-quo was passed ex-parte on 04.08.2023 and, as such, the order dated 04.08.2023 would fall under Rule(s) 1 & 2 of Order 39 of C.P.C. Thus, to the view of this Court, the appeal under Section 207 of the Code of 2006 would lie against the order dated 04.08.2023 and being so challenging the order dated 04.08.2023 the revision filed under Section 210 of the Code of 2006 was not maintainable.

29. Accordingly, for the reasons aforesaid, the impugned order dated 24.08.2023 passed in Revision No. 1201 of 2023, Computerized Case No.C202308000001201 (Rahul Agarwal vs. Ritesh Agarwal) by the respondent No.1-Commissioner, Devi Patan Mandal, Gonda, is hereby set aside.

30. The petition is allowed. No order as to costs.

1. Chandra Kishor Jha Vs Mahavir Prasad & ors. (1999) 8 SCC 266

(Delivered by Hon'ble Om Prakash Shukla, J.)

(1) The challenge in the present writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India is the order dated 11th July, 2023 passed by the Assistant District Election Officer, District Office (Panchayat and Nagariya Nikay), Gonda (respondent no.3), whereby representation dated 06.06.2023 preferred by the petitioners for release of sum of Rs.6,60,200/-, which was seized during the Three-tier Panchayat General Election, 2021 from Vehicle No. UP-32-FP-4674 (Eco Sport Ford) belonging to the petitioners on 01.04.2021, has been rejected.

(2) In nutshell, the facts of the case are that petitioners are the real brothers. Petitioner No.1-Ajmat Ullah Ansari, who is the sub-agent of Instant Global Money Transfer Private Limited, bearing license No. F.E.C.G.F.M.C.088/2005 dated 30.09.2005 M.T.S.S. License No. E.C.C.O. E.P.D./995/22624/9899 dated 30.03.1999, deals with the transfer of money. The said license was issued on 30.04.2005 and continued till 31.05.2018 and the same was renewed from time to time under the condition stipulated by the Reserve bank of India. On 10.10.2018, the name of the company was changed and renewed upto 31.06.2021 and thereafter it has again been renewed till 31.06.2024.

(3) It is the case of the petitioners that during the last phase of March, 2021 for five days, bank was closed. The petitioners had to deliver a sum of Rs.7,57,340/- to 36 account holders, details of such persons have been enclosed as Annexure No.4 to the writ petition. For this purpose, the petitioner no.1 had transferred a sum of Rs.6,00,000/- from HDFC Bank Account No. 50200006369820 (IFSC Code No. HDFC003765) through his colleague, namely, Shahid, who runs National Mobile Travels Agency Jamunia Bagh, Gonda and the said money was transferred to Account No.051505500857 to Branch Gonda. According to the petitioners, on 01.04.2021, after withdrawing the said amount, they were going to deliver the same to 36 persons from their Vehicle No. UP-32-FP-4674 (Eco Sport Ford). In the way, local police of Police Station Dhanepur, District Gonda had intercepted them and found a bag containing said amount of Rs.6,60,200/-. Immediately thereafter, the petitioners had produced the documentary evidence before the police, but the local police was not satisfied with the documentary evidence and as such, the bag containing the aforesaid amount was seized. Thereafter, as per report of Station Officer of Police Station Dhanepur, Gonda, the aforesaid amount was deposited in Government Treasury with sealed pack at serial No.730 dated 03.04.2021. Thereafter, on 06.06.2023, they preferred a representation to the District Election Officer (Panchayat and Nagariya), Gonda, which was rejected vide order dated 11.07.2023. It is this order dated 11.07.2023, which has been challenged in the instant writ petition.

(4) Heard Shri Dadu Ram Shukla, learned Counsel representing the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel representing the State/respondents no.1, 2, 5, 6 and 7 and Shri Rohit Shukla, learned Counsel representing the respondents no.3 and 4.

(5) Learned Counsel representing the petitioners has submitted that vide Master Circular No. 14/2011-12 (updated as on March 22, 2012) dated 01.07.2011, the Reserve Bank of India has issued Master Circular on Money Transfer Service Scheme (hereinafter referred to as 'MTSS'). As per clause 3 of the aforesaid Circular, this Circular would stand withdrawn on July 1, 2012 and will be replaced by an updated Master Circular on the subject. The guidelines was issued in two parts i.e. Part-A and Part-B. Under Part-A, Section-I deals with Guidelines for Permitting Indian Agents and MTSS, whereas Section II deals with guidelines for overseas Principals and Section III deals with Guidelines for appointment of Sub-Agents by Indian Agents, which is relevant and reads as under :-

"Section III

Guidelines for appointment of Sub-Agents by Indian Agents

The Indian Agent may appoint Sub-Agents who have place of business and a minimum net worth of Rs.5 lakh. The Sub-Agents should operate through the Indian Agents and should not deal directly with the Overseas Principal. The Sub-Agents should act on the payment instructions issued by the Indian Agents. The Indian Agents are fuly responsible for the activities of their Sub-agents. While the Indian Agents will be encouraged to act as self-regulated entities, the onus of ensuring the proper conduct of activities of the Sub-agents in the prescribed manner will lie solely on the Indian Agents. Every Indian Agent would be required to conduct due diligence before appointing a Sub-agent and any irregularity observed could render the Indian Agent's permission liable for cancellation."

(6) Learned Counsel for the petitioners has further submitted that by means a Circular No. RBI/FED/2016-17/52 dated 22.02.2017, Chief General Manager-in-Charge of the Reserve Bank of India has notified Master direction-Money Transfer Service Scheme (MTSS), giving therein a vivid description as regards the manner in which relates transaction are to be conducted by the authorized persons with their customers/constituents. According to the learned Counsel, the aforesaid Master Direction-Money Transfer Service Scheme has also been issued describing statutory basis and authroized dealer has also been defined including as to who would be treated full fledged money changer at point

no. 2.3, whereas at point no. 2.4, there is a definition clause of overseas principal and thereafter guidelines for Indian Agents and Guidelines for appointment of Sub-Agents by Indian Agents has also been issued comprehensively. In this backdrop, learned Counsel has submitted that the petitioners were well within their rights and they were fully authorized as per guidelines of Reserve Bank of India. The authorized Indian Agent entered into an agreement as permitted by the Reserve Bank of India with the petitioners and the petitioners at the strength of the said agreement were carrying out their business.

(7) Elaborating his submission, learned Counsel for the petitioners has submitted that after due inquiry, the police report has been submitted by the S.H.O., Police Station Dhanepur, Gonda dated 20.05.2021 to the District Magistrate Gonda (Annexure no.3), recommending that the seized amount of Rs.6,60,200/- is liable to be refunded to the petitioners. Even thereafter, the said amount has not been released to the petitioners nor the provisions of Section 102 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which deals with the power of the police officer to seize certain property has been followed nor any F.I.R. in this regard was lodged. Thus, he prays that impugned order is liable to be quashed and the petitioners are entitled for refund of the said seized amount.

(8) Per contra, learned Counsel representing the respondents no. 3 and 4 has submitted that the State Election Commission had notified the Three-Tier Panchayat General Election, 2021 vide notification no. 709 dated 26.03.2021 and this notification remained in operation till 02/03.05.2021. In order to enforce the model code of conduct, a general search operation was carried on 01.04.2021 and during the said general search operation, a vehicle bearing registration no. UP-32-FP-4674 was intercepted, whereupon it was found that vehicle was driven by petitioner no.2 and cash amounting to Rs.6,60,2000/- was also in the said vehicle and on query, as no satisfactory explanation was given by the petitioner no.2 regarding possession of substantial amount of cash nor any document was presented by the petitioner no.2, the said cash amount was seized and deposited in the district treasury vide application dated 03.04.2021. Thereafter, the petitioner no.1 submitted an application for release of money, to which a report was called from the three member Committee constituted by the District Election Officer/District Magistrate, Gonda vide letter dated 28.05.2021. On receipt of the said letter, the Chairman of the three member Committee i.e. Sub-Divisional Officer issue a letter/notice dated 29.05.2021, requiring the petitioners to submit relevant documents on six points mentioned in the letter. In response thereof, the petitioners had submitted his reply, stating that petitioner no.2 was carrying out a business of Net Banking and that from 29.03.2021 to 01.04.2021, he had to pay an amount of Rs.07,57,340/- to 36 persons, however, as the bank was closed for five days, he had transferred Rs.6,00,000/- to one of his friend carrying out net-banking business and that the case seized from him was meant for disbursing the money to those 36 persons. According to the learned Counsel, the Officer-in-Charge, P.S. Dhanepur had also reported vide letter dated 14.10.2022 that the petitioners had not cooperated in the enquiry and that he had not submitted any evidence in support of his application. Based on this report, the three Member Committee formed an opinion that it could not be said that the seized cash was not meant to be used for any illegitimate purpose in connection with the Panchayat Elections, therefore, it was recommended that it would not be proper to refund or return the seized cash to the petitioners. This recommendation was placed before the District Magistrate/District Panchayat Officer, Gonda for final disposal of the matter, upon which the District Panchayat Officer, Gonda had accepted the report of the three Member Committee on 10.07.2023 and consequently, vide letter dated 11.07.2023, informed the petitioners about rejection of his representation/application. Thus, the instant writ petition is liable to be dismissed.

(9) Having regard to the submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the parties and going through the record available before us in the instant writ petition, it is required to be noted that license for carrying out business of Net Banking by name and style of Instant Global Mani Transfer Pvt. Limited by the petitioners is not in dispute.

(10) The controversy involved in the instant writ petition has arisen due to the rejection of the application preferred by the petitioners for refund/release the seized amount i.e. Rs.6,60,200/- by means of the impugned order dated 11.07.2023.

(11) The petitioners claimed that they are carrying out business of Net Banking as Sub-Agent under the legally granted license by the Reserve Bank of India. The seized cash amount i.e. Rs.6,60,200/- was meant for disbursing the money to those 36 persons details of which have been mentioned as Annexure No. 4 to the writ petition and the Station Officer of Police Station Dhanepur, Gonda clarified that the petitioner deals with money banking transfer known as Instant Global Money Transfer Limited and is an agent and the recovery of specified amount of Rs.6,60,200/- does not contravene any provision of law and therefore recommendation was made to the District Magistrate, Gonda to release the said amount, however, no offence is reported by the police authorities in regard to seize of the said amount and in a casual and arbitrary manner, the representation of the petitioners has been deal with and has been rejected without spelling out any valid rhyme or reason reluctantly into forfeiture of the aforesaid amount.

(12) On the other hand, the stand of the respondents no.3 and 4 before this Court is that the impugned order dated 06.08.2023 has been passed on considering the report of the Three Member Committee duly constituted by the District Magistrate for smooth functioning of the Panchayat Election and the petitioners have failed to show that the seized cash amount was not meant to be used for any illegitimate purpose in connection with the Panchayat Election, hence the application of the petitioners have rightly been rejected by means of the impugned order.

(13) Before analyzing the contentions of the learned Counsel for the parties, we deem it apt to mention herein that in the case of Chandra Kishor Jha vs. Mahavir Prasad and Ors. : (1999) 8 SCC 266, the Apex Court has emphasized that it is a well settled salutary principle that if a statute provides for a thing to be done in a particular manner, then it has to be done in that manner and in no other manner.

(14) Therefore, if the salutary principle is kept in perspective, in the instant case, though the police authorities are vested with sufficient power; such power is circumscribed by a procedure laid down under the statute. As such the power is to be exercised in that manner alone, failing which it would fall foul of the requirement of complying due process under law.

(15) Section 102 Cr.P.C reads as follows :-

"102. Power of police officer to seize certain property.-

(1) Any police officer may seize any property which may be alleged or suspected to have been stolen, or which may be found under circumstances which create suspicion of the commission of any offence.

(2) Such police officer, if subordinate to the officer in charge of a police station, shall forthwith report the seizure to that officer.

[(3) Every police officer acting under sub-section (1) shall forthwith report the seizure to the Magistrate having jurisdiction and where the property seized is such that it cannot be conveniently transported to the Court, 2[or where there is difficulty in securing proper accommodation for the custody of such property, or where the continued retention of the property in police custody may not be considered necessary for the purpose of investigation,] he may give custody thereof to any person on his executing a bond undertaking to produce the property before the Court as and when required and to give effect to the further orders of the Court as to the disposal of the same:]

[Provided that where the property seized under sub-section (1) is subject to speedy and natural decay and if the person entitled to the possession of such property is unknown or absent and the value of such property is less than five hundred rupees, it may forthwith be sold by auction under the orders of the Superintendent of Police and the provisions of sections 457 and 458 shall, as nearly as may be practicable, apply to the net proceeds of such sale.]

(16) The reading of sub-section (1) of Section 102 makes it clear that the police officer may seize any property alleged or suspected to have been stolen or or which may be found under circumstances, which create suspicion of commission of any offence.

(17) In the instant case, what we find is that the police officers though seized the cash amount from the vehicle of the petitioners on the allegation that the said cash amount has to be used for Panchayat Election but surprisingly in that regard no F.I.R. has been registered nor following the statutory provisions of Section 102 of Criminal Procedure Code, hence we find that there is fault with the Police Officer and declare the action bad only in so far as not following the legal requirement before and after seizure of the cash amount of Rs. 6,60,200/- from the possession of the petitioners, however, this shall not be construed as an opinion expressed on the merit of the allegation or any other aspect relating to the matter and the action initiated against the petitioners, which is a matter to be taken note in appropriate proceedings if at all any issue is raised by the aggrieved party.

(18) It is also apparent from Annexure No.3, which is a report of the Station Officer, Police Station Dhanepur, Gonda, that the Station Officer, Police Station Dhanepur, Gonda, vide its report dated 20.05.2021 addressed to District

Magistrate, Gonda, after investigating the matter, recommended to release the seized cash. However, from perusal of the impugned order and the counter affidavit, there is not a whisper of word regarding the aforesaid recommendation of the Station Officer, Police Station Dhanepur, Gonda. In the counter affidavit, the respondents have admitted the fact that the petitioners are doing money transfer service through net banking as a sub-agent under the authority given by the Reserve Bank of India. There is also not denial in the counter affidavit about the fact that the petitioners were not carrying Net Banking business. The petitioners' case right from the beginning is that the cash amounting to Rs.6,60,000/- , which was seized, was to be disbursed to 36 persons and list of such persons has been enclosed in Annexure No.4 to the writ petition. This has also not been denied by the respondents in the counter affidavit.

(19) Apart from the above consideration, what has also engaged the attention of this Court is with regard to the plea put forth on behalf of the petitioners regarding the need to release the seized amount to enable the petitioners to pay the due amount as per the statutory rules. The petitioners in that regard has relied Annexure No.4 also, which is a list of 36 persons and it indicates that the amount payable towards to such persons, in all amounting to Rs.7,57,340.07. Furthermore, the respondents have not placed any document(s) or evidence, which suggest that the seized cash was to be used in the process of panchayat election illegally.

(20) Since we have indicated that the seizure of the cash amounting to Rs.6,60,200/- has been done without due compliance of law, interest of justice would be suffice, if respondents No.3-Assistant District Election Officer, District Election Office (Panchayat and Nagriya Nikay), Gonda is directed to release the seized cash to the petitioners.

(21) In terms of the above, the order dated 11.07.2023 passed by the respondent no.3 is hereby quashed. We direct that the respondents shall release the seized amount for a sum of Rs.6,60,200/- to the petitioners. However, liberty is reserved to respondent No.3 thereafter to initiate action afresh in accordance with law, if they so desire.

(22) The instant writ petition is allowed to the above extent with no order as to costs.

The writ petition is dismissed. .(E-6)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Shri Akhilesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for State/respondent no. 1, Shri Birendra Prasad Singh, learned counsel for respondent no. 4 and perused the material available on record.

2. The U.P. Road Transport Corporation has preferred the present writ petition assailing the validity of the order passed by the Labour Court dated 04.05.2016.

3. The brief facts of the case are that the respondent no.2 was a Conductor in the petitioner's corporation and superannuated in the year 2006. He had filed a claim before the Labour Court stating that from July, 2003 to December, 2004, he was not given the overtime amounting to Rs. 54,965/-. In the said claim, it was stated that till July, 2003 whenever he had worked for overtime, he was granted the said allowance but for his services between July, 2003 to December, 2004 despite having worked and was entitled to be paid overtime the respondents denied the payment and accordingly, moved an application under Section 33 (c) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 claiming the admissible dues from the petitioner. The petitioner had appeared before the Labour Court but did not file any objections to the claim. During the proceedings, the Labour Court had directed the petitioner to produce the record pertaining to the service rendered by the workman/respondent no. 2 but despite the orders passed, no such documents were filed by the petitioner and otherwise it was submitted that all the documents had been destroyed.

4. The workman/respondent no. 2 on the other hand, had filed all the documents and registers demonstrating that from July, 2003 to December, 2004, he had worked for overtime and he was entitled for the same and considering that there was no contrary evidence or material filed by the petitioner, the Labour Court allowed the claim and directed the petitioner to pay an amount of Rs.54,965/- as the overtime admissible to the employee. The petitioner while assailing the order of the award submits that the said order is arbitrary and inasmuch as, the claim of workman does not fall within the circular dated 22.04.2003 and only when the bus had run for more than 350 kilometers in a day and more than 700 kilometers for two consecutive days, the overtime is allowed. It is stated that for two days the bus in which he was performing his duties had run for 616 kilometers. Apart from this fact, there is no other material to contest the claim of the employee. No other arguments were raised for assailing the said order.

5. I have considered the arguments and perused the record.

6. From the impugned award, it is clear that the workman had filed all the documents pertaining to his employment from July, 2003 to December, 2004 indicating that he was entitled for to be paid overtime as per the circular of the petitioner. Despite contesting the said case and appearing before Labour Court, the petitioner did not file any written submissions or any evidence to contest the claim of the workman.

7. It is in the aforesaid circumstances that after considering the aforesaid facts, the Labour Court has allowed the claim holding that the workman was entitled for the overtime claimed by him. Even if for a moment, the objections of the petitioner are considered, there was no material to indicate that for the entire period from July, 2003 to December, 2004 the bus in which he was performing the duties had not run for more than 350 kilometer in a single day and 700 kilometers for two consecutive days as no document or register was filed in support of their contention. There is no material even before this Court to hold that the findings recorded by the Labour Court are perverse and deserves interference by this Court in exercise of power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

8. In light of the above, the arguments raised by the petitioner are rejected.

9. The petitioner has also challenged the order dated 24.03.2017 where the application preferred by the petitioner for review of the award dated 04.05.2016 was rejected. The said review was rejected on the ground that the Labour Court does not have any power of review nor the petitioner could indicate any such prayer existing in the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947. Even before this Court the petitioner could not indicate that the Industrial Tribunal is vested with the power of review and accordingly as per the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Dr. Smt. Kuntesh Gupta Vs. Management of Hindu Kanya Mahavidyalaya, Sitapur and others reported in 1987 (4) SCC 525 has held that unless the statutory authority is vested with the power of review, it cannot exercise the said power and consequently, this Court does not find any infirmity with the order dated 24.03.2017 rejecting the review of the petitioner.

10. The other facts, which have drawn the attention of this Court that the claim in the present case is for a paltry sum of Rs.54,965/-. For such a small amount, the petitioner is litigating before this Court for the last six years. It is in the aforesaid circumstances that the petitioner was asked to respond as to whether there is any litigation policy in the corporation. Learned counsel for petitioner has fairly submitted that there is no litigation policy.

11. It is in the aforesaid circumstances, this Court is of the considered opinion that it is mandatory for all the corporations, which are running on commercial basis to have a litigation policy, which should clearly take into account the cost of litigation, and the matters which should be contested. The matters/cases, where the consequences or pecuniary liability is large then only should writ petition be filed against the statutory tribunals/authorities, they should refrain from challenging the routine orders or where the sum involved is small/insignificant, inasmuch as, the amount involved in litigation sometimes far exceeds, then the benefit, for which the petition has been filed by the corporation.

12. In light of the above, the writ petition is dismissed. Interim order, granted earlier, is hereby discharged.

13. The awarded amount may be paid to the workman/ respondent no. 2 expeditiously say within a period of six weeks from today.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the petitioner and the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State.

2. This writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed assailing the order dated February 3, 2011 passed by the respondent No.2 in Stamp Case No.V-767/09-10 and the order passed in appeal dated October 17, 2011 by the respondent No.1 in Appeal No.21/2010-11.

3. The challenge in this writ petition is with regard to the additional stamp duty sought by the respondents-authorities having treated the land in question as a non-agricultural land.

CONTENTIONS OF THE PARTIES

4. Counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioner submits that the nature of the land at time of execution of the sale deed was agricultural in nature and it was forty metres away from the highway. He has submitted that the authorities have treated the land as non-agricultural land on the basis of another sale deed of an adjacent land that is nearer to the highway. He has further submitted that no spot verification was carried out as per Rule 7(3)(c) of the Uttar Pradesh Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997 (hereinafter referred to as "the Rules"), which according to him is mandatory as has been pronounced time and again by this Court in various judgments including Ajay Agarwal and others v. Commissioner Lucknow and others reported in 2023 (2) ADJ 561 (LB), and Ram Khelawan alias Bachcha v. State of U.P. and another reported in 2005 (2) AWC 1087. Lastly, counsel for the petitioner submitted that at the relevant point of time, the land in question was agricultural in nature and there were no structures or any activity apart from agriculture being carried out on the said land. He has relied upon the judgment of the coordinate Bench of this Court in Raj Kumar v. State of U.P. and others (Writ-C No.19644 of 2016 decided on April 13, 2023) and the Full Bench judgment of this Court in Smt. Pushpa Sareen v. State of U.P. reported in (2015) 0 Supreme (All) 132 to support his arguments.

5. Per contra, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel has also relied upon the judgment in Smt. Pushpa Sareen's case (supra) to indicate that the Collector has the power to evaluate the value of a land depending on the potential use of the said land in question. He specifically relied upon paragraph Nos.26 to 28 of the aforesaid judgement to buttress his argument. He has fairly submitted that the spot verification was not carried out as per the said Rule and no notice of the same was given to the petitioner. He, however, submits that the valuation carried out by the Collector is in line with the principles established in law and in keeping with the potential use of the land in question.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION

6. The Full Bench judgment of this Court in Smt. Pushpa Sareen's case (supra) penned by Hon'ble D.Y. Chandrachud, C.J. (as he then was) has, in great detail, dealt with the power of Collector under Section 47-A of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 (as applicable in the State of U.P.). The relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are provided below:

"26. The true test for determination by the Collector is the market value of the property on the date of the instrument because, under the provisions of the Act, every instrument is required to be stamped before or at the time of execution. In making that determination, the Collector has to be mindful of the fact that the market value of the property may vary from location to location and is dependent upon a large number of circumstances having a bearing on the comparative advantages or disadvantages of the land as well as the use to which the land can be put on the date of the execution of the instrument.

27. Undoubtedly, the Collector is not permitted to launch upon a speculative inquiry about the prospective use to which a land may be put to use at an uncertain future date. The market value of the property has to be determined with reference to the use to which the land is capable reasonably of being put to immediately or in the proximate future. The possibility of the land becoming available in the immediate or near future for better use and enjoyment reflects upon the potentiality of the land. This potential has to be assessed with reference to the date of the execution of the instrument. In other words, the power of the Collector cannot be unduly circumscribed by ruling out the potential to which the land can be advantageously deployed at the time of the execution of the instrument or a period reasonably proximate thereto. Again the use to which land in the area had been put is a material consideration. If the land surrounding the property in question has been put to commercial use, it would be improper to hold that this is a circumstance which should not weigh with the Collector as a factor which influences the market value of the land.

28. The fact that the land was put to a particular use, say for instance a commercial purpose at a later point in time, may not be a relevant criterion for deciding the value for the purpose of stamp duty, as held by the Supreme Court in State of U.P. and others vs. Ambrish Tandon and another11. This is because the nature of the user is relateable to the date of purchase which is relevant for the purpose of computing the stamp duty. Where, however, the potential of the land can be assessed on the date of the execution of the instrument itself, that is clearly a circumstance which is relevant and germane to the determination of the true market value. At the same time, the exercise before the Collector has to be based on adequate material and cannot be a matter of hypothesis or surmise. The Collector must have material on the record to the effect that there has been a change of use or other contemporaneous sale deeds in respect of the adjacent areas that would have a bearing on the market value of the property which is under consideration. The Collector, therefore, would be within jurisdiction in referring to exemplars or comparable sale instances which have a bearing on the true market value of the property which is required to be assessed. If the sale instances are comparable, they would also reflect the potentiality of the land which would be taken into consideration in a price agreed upon between a vendor and a purchaser."

7. Upon a perusal of the judgment in Smt. Pushpa Sareen's case (supra), it is clear that the potential of the land can be assessed on the date of execution of the instrument for determination by the Collector of the true market value. However, this exercise by the Collector has to be based on adequate material and cannot be a matter of hypothesis or surmise. The Collector must have material on record to come to a finding as to the potential use of the land and only thereafter assess the same on such potential use. In the event there is no material present, the Collector cannot base his valuation only on conjectures and surmises.

8. One may further look into the judgment of the coordinate Bench of this Court in Raj Kumar's case (supra) wherein the coordinate Bench has held that spot inspection has to be carried out in terms of Rule 7(3)(c) of the Rules. Furthermore, the Court held that burden of proof is on the State to prove that deficient stamp duty has been paid by the petitioner and the valuation of the land in question has to be made on concrete grounds. The relevant paragraphs of Raj Kumar's case (supra) are delineated below:

17. Moreover, had the allegation of the State been to the effect that though the land was purchased for agricultural purposes, but its user was immediately changed and on the date of sale deed, it was being used for any other purpose like, industrial, commercial or even residential, the situation would have been different. Even in those situations, spot inspection at the relevant point of time was a necessity, but, admittedly, in the present case, no spot inspection has been carried out. Necessity of spot inspection and its mandatory nature, with reference to Rule 7 (3) (c) of the aforesaid Rules of 1997, has been reiterated, time and again by this Court in various authorities including Ajay Agarwal and others vs Commissioner Lucknow and others, reported in 2023 (2) ADJ 561 (LB), and Ram Khelawan alias Bachcha vs State of U.P. and another, reported in 2005 (2) AWC 1087.

19. The observations/findings recorded in the orders impugned are also contrary to principles of burden of proof particularly, in a case where proceedings arise out of a fiscal statute. Once the State was proceeding to impose deficient stamp duty upon the petitioner, the entire burden lay upon the State to establish beyond reasonable doubt that the petitioner made some concealment at the time of getting the sale deed executed in his favour or that within a close proximity of dates, the user of the land in dispute was changed so as to levy additional stamp duty. Nothing to this effect has been brought on record, rather, not only the findings recorded in the orders impugned are contrary to the provisions of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899, as applicable in the State of U.P. as well as U.P. Stamp (Valuation of Property) Rules, 1997, but certainly contrary to the law consistently laid down by this Court.

9. In the present case, indubitably no spot verification was carried out as per the Rules. Such being the case, the burden of proof that rested solely on the Revenue to indicate the nature of the land and the potential use of the land was not discharged properly. Furthermore, the reasoning provided by the authorities below for valuing the land on the basis of non-agricultural cannot be sustained as the same is based on another piece of the land that was much closer to the highway and certain constructions were made on that piece of land.

10. It is to be noted that the land, which was used as the base, was not being used for any agricultural purpose while at the time of execution of the sale deed, the land in question before this Court was being used for agricultural purposes.

11. In light of the above findings, I am of the view that the authorities below have erred in law and on facts in determining the value of the land basing the same as a land for non-agricultural purposes.

12. Accordingly, the impugned orders dated February 3, 2011 and October 17, 2011 are quashed and set aside. The amount, if any, deposited by the petitioner for the deficient stamp duty, should be returned to the petitioner along with interest @ 4 per cent within six weeks from date.

13. With the above direction, the writ petition is allowed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Rohit Ranjan Agarwal, J.)

1. Through this writ petition, a challenge has been made to the order dated 28.03.2022 passed by respondent no. 1 under Section 41(3) of U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 (hereinafter referred as "the Act of 1973") and order dated 06.03.2021 passed by Meerut Development Authority (hereinafter referred as "the Authority") exercising power under Section 27(1) of the Act of 1973. The prayer has also been made for directing the respondent-Development Authority to remove the seal from the petitioner's firm.

2. Facts leading to the present case, are that petitioner is engaged in the business of meat processing, after obtaining license from Agriculture and Processed Food Product Export Development Authority, Delhi (APEDA). The factory of the petitioner is situated at Khasra No. 81, 82, 70, 55A, 55B, 56A, 56B, 57, 59 and 60, Alipur, Jijwana, Hapur Road, Meerut. It is also registered under the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI).

3. It had sought a No Objection Certificate from District Magistrate, Meerut in the year 2013 for establishing an integrated meat processing plant and slaughtering house on the aforesaid khasra number. On 06.06.2013, conditional No Objection Certificate was granted, wherein it was provided under Clause 12 to seek permission from Development Authority in regard to construction of building. The condition further provided that permission from Pollution Control Board, Lucknow was also required before establishing the integrated meat plant.

4. The petitioner without approval of sanction of map by the Authority had constructed the plant, pursuant to which a notice dated 27.03.2017 under Section 27(1) was issued. Immediately, on 30.03.2017, the petitioner moved an application for compounding of construction of factory raised on Khasra Nos. 81 and 83. Certain objections were raised by the Authority on 12.09.2017. Since the objections were not removed, the Authority rejected the compounding application on 19.01.2018. Thereafter, petitioner again on 12.01.2019 moved another application for reconsideration of sanction of map and compounding the construction raised by him. The application was rejected on 11.02.2019 for not removing the objections. The Enforcement Officer of the Authority passed an order on 25.02.2019 to seal the premises, and on 27.04.2019, the premises was sealed.

5. Petitioner challenged both order dated 11.02.2019 and 25.02.2019 through an appeal before Commissioner, Meerut Division, Meerut. On 01.07.2019, the Commissioner directed the Authority to decide the matter afresh after making verification, but refused to interfere in the sealing order of the premises. The petitioner filed a revision under Section 41(3) before State Authority, which was decided by order dated 31.10.2019 requiring the Commissioner, Meerut Division, Meerut to decide the appeal afresh.

6. The appeal was reheard, and on 20.01.2020 the order dated 11.02.2019 was set aside and the Authority was directed to decide the matter regarding sealing of petitioner's premises. Pursuant to said order, Authority issued notice to petitioner on 15.02.2020 and on 03.07.2020 to remove the objections raised by Authority on compounding application. Simultaneously, a letter was sent on 11.09.2020 to Chief Town and Country Planner seeking instructions with regard to width of the road as provided under Para 2.3 of Building Construction and Development Bye-law, 2008. On 14.10.2020, Chief Town and Country Planner provided the guidelines. According to which, non residential and commercial area where the land is put to industrial use, the width of the road must be at least 12 meter wide whose length is 200 meter. In case length of road is between 201 and 400 meter, the width should be 18 meter, and in case of length of road from 401 meter to 1000 meter, the width should be 24 meter. While those roads whose length is more than 1000 meter, the width should be 30 meter.

7. In the meantime, petitioner filed Writ Petition No. 14410 of 2020, wherein an interim order was passed on 17.12.2020 and sealing order was stayed. The Authority complying the order passed an order on 28.12.2020 desealing the premises in question.

8. On 01.02.2020, petitioner had again moved an application for compounding and sanction of map of construction raised over Khasra No. 55A, 55B, 56A, 56B, 57, 59, 60, 70, 81 and 82. As the industrial activity was being carried in agricultural area, the Committee under Zonal Regulations submitted its report on 11.11.2020 and recommended not to compound the map. The report of the Committee was approved by Meerut Development Authority Board in its 116th meeting on 09.02.2021.

9. The Vice-Chairman of the Authority on 06.03.2021 rejected the application for compounding in light of the report of the Committee and approval of the same by the Board. Pursuant to order of Vice-Chairman, authorised officer of the Authority on 08.03.2021 again passed an order for sealing of premises and on 09.03.2021, the factory premises was sealed by the Authority. Against the order of sealing as well as order dated 06.03.2021, petitioner preferred a revision under Section 41(3) before State Government which was rejected by order impugned dated 28.03.2022. Hence, this writ petition.

10. Sri Rakesh Pande, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner submitted that along with application for compounding and sanction of map a total of Rs.45 lacs has already been deposited by petitioner but the Authorities have not considered the said fact and simply on extraneous consideration proceeded to reject the application for compounding and sanction of map. According to him, meat processing plant came into existence subsequent to No Objection Certificate having been issued by District Magistrate, Meerut in the year 2013. The plant is situated 500 meter away from the main Hapur Road. According to him, the Committee in its report had found that there was no uniform width of the road and it ranged from 8.5 meter to 14 meter while the minimum standard prescribed width is 12 meter.

11. He then contended that there is no coherence in the report of Chief Town and Country Planner and the decision taken by the Committee as well as the order passed by Vice-Chairman, Meerut Development Authority on 06.03.2021 regarding the width of road on which the integrated meat processing plant is situated and the minimum required standard. He has tried to point out the discrepancy in the various reports and orders of the Authority, Chief Town and Country Planner and Committee. He lastly contended that closing down the project would create financial hardship to petitioner and will render several people jobless who are employed in the factory.

12. Sri J.N. Maurya, learned counsel appearing for the Authority submitted that the very No Objection Certificate granted by District Magistrate, Meerut on 06.06.2013 enumerated various conditions to be fulfilled before setting up of the integrated meat processing plant and slaughtering house. One of the essential conditions given in Para No. 12 was sanction of map and permission by Development Authority before plant starts. According to him, neither any application was made for sanction of map nor permission was sought before starting the commercial production. It was on 27.03.2017 that notice under Section 27(1) was issued, pursuant to which the petitioner had submitted a compounding application, on which the Authority had raised certain objections which were not fulfilled/complied by petitioner leading to rejection of application for compounding/sanctioning of map. Till date, the petitioner has not complied the objections which has led to rejection of compounding application twice as well as the revision by State authorities. Further, the Development Authority is ready to refund Rs.45 lacs submitted by petitioner.

13. He then contended that as per the Zonal Regulations of Authority, industrial activity in agricultural areas is permissible with special permission of the Board. Admittedly, petitioner's unit for meat processing is situated in an agricultural area, therefore, as per Zonal Regulations, the matter was required to be scrutinized by the Committee under Zonal Regulations. The matter was referred to the Committee so constituted, and after examining in the light of the provisions, it submitted its report on 11.11.2020 and recommended not to compound the map in view of fact that plant was situated on a 12 meter wide road which is 500 meter away from the main Hapur Highway, and as per the requirement, the width has to be 24 meter.

14. He has relied upon Para No. 2.3.2 of Building Construction and Development Bye-law, 2008 (as amended in 2011 and 2016) of Meerut Development Authority, wherein the width of road is provided in case of non residential and commercial area, which is used for industrial purpose. The said provision provides width of road at 24 meter in case it is 401 to 1000 meter in length. In the instant case, the plant is situated 500 meter away from the main highway, thus, the required width of the road is 24 meter for starting a commercial activity.

15. I have heard respective counsel for the parties and perused the material on record.

16. The short question which arises for consideration of this Court is as to whether the Authority and the State Government was justified in rejecting the application for compounding and sanctioning of map post granting of No Objection Certificate by District Magistrate, Meerut in the year 2013 for setting up integrated meat processing plant and slaughtering house with certain conditions.

17. It is an admitted case to both the parties that petitioner had applied for No Objection Certificate from District Magistrate for setting up an integrated meat processing plant and a slaughtering house on Khasra No. 81, 82, 70, 55A, 55B, 56A, 56B, 57, 59 and 60 situated at Village-Alipur, Jijwana, Hapur Road, District-Meerut.

18. The grant of No Objection Certificate was conditional, subject to fulfilling 12 conditions laid down in the No Objection Certificate dated 06.06.2013. Condition No. 2 relates to the permission from U.P. Pollution Control Board which was necessary prior to production being started in the factory. Condition No. 12 clearly provided that before starting construction, permission of Development Authority was required and the procedures for building construction was compulsorily required to be followed. Relevant Conditions 2 &12 are extracted hereasunder:-

"2- उद्योग इकाई में परीक्षण / उत्पादन तब तक प्रारम्भ नहीं किया जायेगा जब तक कि वह उत्तर प्रदेश प्रदूषण नियंत्रण बोर्ड, लखनऊ से जल एवं वायु प्रदूषण के अधिनियमों के अन्तर्गत सहमति प्राप्त न कर लें। जल एवं वायु की सहमति प्राप्त करने हेतु इकाई में उत्पादन प्रारम्भ करने की तिथि से, कम से कम 2 माह पहले निर्धारित सहमति आवेदन पत्र उत्पादन पूर्व प्रथम आवेदन का उल्लेख करते हुए इस कार्यालय में अवश्य जमा कर दिये जायें। यदि उधोग उपरोक्त का अनुपालन नहीं करता है तो उक्त अधिनियम के वैधानिक प्राविधानों के अन्तर्गत उद्योग के विरुद्ध बिना किसी सूचना के विधिक् कार्यवाही की जा सकती है।

12- निर्माण कार्य प्रारम्भ होने से पूर्व विकास प्राधिकरण की अनुमति प्राप्त की जाये एवं भवन निर्माण के सम्बन्ध में अन्य नियमों / शासनादेशों का फर्म द्वारा अनुपालन किया जाना आवश्यक होगा।"

19. The petitioner had established the meat processing plant and raised construction without any sanction of map by the Authority, resulting in notice issued by the Authority under Section 27(1) of the Act of 1973 on 27.03.2017. Compounding application filed on 30.03.2017 was not processed as certain objections were raised by the Authority on 12.09.2017, which remained unattended by petitioner resulting in the rejection of the application on 19.01.2018. Thereafter, second application was moved for the same cause of compounding the offence by petitioner which had again resulted in the rejection on 11.02.2019 which had led to the various challenge by petitioner before Commissioner through an appeal, before this Court through writ petition and before State Government in revision under Section 41(3) of the Act of 1973. In all the proceedings, the Authorities found that illegal construction raised by petitioner could not be compounded as per the bye-laws of Meerut Development Authority.

20. Master Plan, 2021 for Meerut was approved by State Government on 13th October, 2006 and was published and came into effect from 23rd October, 2006. The Master Plan, 2021 provides for the land used in zones for different activities. Under the category "public use", slaughter house has been mentioned at 6.6 wherein land falling under agricultural area, special permission has to be taken before its use.

21. Once a master plan has been finalised and implemented, it cannot be changed by any Authority exercising discretion for the reason that procedure for change of master plan is envisaged in the statute which needs to be followed and is mandatory.

22. Reference to certain provisions of the Act of 1973 is necessary for better appreciation of the case. The Act of 1973 gives due importance to master plan and zonal development plan. Section 8 and 9 are of great importance as they provide for master plan for development area and zonal development plan, which are extracted hereasunder:-

"8. Civil survey of, and master plan for the development area. – (1) The Authority shall, as soon as may be, prepare a master plan for the development area.

(2) The master plan shall –

(a) define the various zones into which the development area may be divided for the purposes of development and indicate the manner in which the land in each zone is proposed to be used (whether by the carrying out thereon of development or otherwise) and the stages by which any such development shall be carried out; and

(b) serve as a basic pattern of framework within which the Zonal. development plans of the various zones may be prepared.

(3) The master plan may provide for any other matter which may be necessary for the proper development of the development area.

9. Zonal Development plans. – (1) Simultaneously with the preparation of the master plan or as soon as may be thereafter, the Authority shall proceed with the preparation of a zonal development" plan for each of the zones into which the development area may be divided.*

(2) A zonal development plan may-

(a) contain a site-plan and use-plan for the development of the zone and show the approximate locations and extents of land uses proposed in the zone for such things as public buildings and other public works and utilities, roads, housing, recreation, industry, business, markets, schools, hospitals and public and private open spaces and other categories of public and private uses;

(b) specify the standards of population density and building density;

(c) show every area in the zone which may, in the opinion of the Authority, be required or declared for development or re-development; and

(d) In particular, contain, provisions regarding all or any of the following matters, namely-

(i) the division of any site Into plots for the erection of buildings;

(ii) the allotment or reservation of land for roads, open spaces, gardens, recreation-grounds, schools, markets and other public purposes:

(iii) the development of any area Into a township or colony and the restrictions and conditions subject to which such development may be undertaken or carried out,

(iv) the erection of buildings on any site and the restrictions and conditions in regard to the open spaces to be maintained in or around buildings and height and character of buildings:

(v) the alignment of buildings of any site;

(vi) the architectural features of the elevation or frontage of any building to be erected on any site,

(vii) the number of residential buildings which may be erected on plot or site;

(viii) the amenities to be provided in relation to any site or buildings on such site whether before or after the erection of buildings and the person or authority by whom or at whose expense such amenities are to be provided:

(ix)the prohibitions or restrictions regarding erection of shops. work-shops, warehouses of factories or buildings of a specified architectural feature or buildings designed for particular purposes in the locality,

(x) the maintenance of walls, fences, hedges or any other structural or architectural construction and the height at which they shall be maintained:

(xi) the restrictions regarding the use of any site for purposes other than erection of buildings;

(xii) any other matter which is necessary for the proper development of the zone or any area thereof according to plan and for presenting buildings being erected haphazardly, in such zone or area."

23. Section 10, 11 and 12 are of great relevance as they provide for submission of plan to State Government for approval, and the procedure to be followed in preparation and approval of plan, further the date of commencement of plan. Master Plan, 2021 has already been implemented in the city of Meerut since the year 2006.

24. Chapter IV of the Act of 1973 provides for amendment of master plan and zonal development plan. Section 13 is of great importance as it provides amendment of plan, which reads as under:-

"13. Amendment of Plan. – (1) The Authority may make any amendments in the master plan or the zonal development plan as it thinks fit, being amendments which, in its opinion do not effect important alteration in the character of the plan and which do not relate to the extent of land uses or the standards of population density.

(2) The State Government may make amendments in the master plan or the zonal development plan whether such amendments are of the nature specified in Sub-section (1) or otherwise.

(3) Before making any amendments in the plan, the Authority, or as the case may be, the State Government shall publish a notice in at least one newspaper having circulation in the development area inviting objections and suggestions from any person with respect to the proposed amendments before such date as may be specified in the notice and shall consider all objections and suggestions that may be received by the Authority or the State Government.

(4) Every amendment made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Authority or the State Government, as the case may be, may specify, and the amendments shall come into operation either on the date of the first publication or on such, other date as the Authority or the State Government, as the case, may be, may fix.

(5) When the Authority makes any amendments in the plan under Sub- section (1) it shall report to the State Government the full particulars of such amendments within thirty days of the date on which such amendments come into operations.

(6) If any question arises whether the amendments proposed to be made by the authority are amendments which effect important alterations In the character of the plan or whether they relate to the extent of land-uses or, the standards of population density, it shall be referred to the State Government whose decision, thereon shall be final.

(7)Any reference in any other Chapter, except Chapter III, to the master plan or the zonal Development plan shall be construed as a reference to the master plan or the zonal development plan as amended under this section."

25. Section 16 puts an embargo on the use or permit to be used of any building or land in a planned area otherwise than in confirmity with such plan. The proviso however provides that in case on the date of enforcement of plan, the land or building was used in any other manner, the same would continue subject to terms and conditions as may be prescribed by the bye-laws. Section 16 is extracted hereasunder:-

"16. Uses of land and buildings in contravention of plans. – After the coming into operation of any of the plans in a zone no person shall use or permit to be used any land or building in that zone otherwise that in conformity with such plan :

Provided that, it shall be lawful to continue to use, upon such terms and conditions, as may be prescribed by bye-laws made in that behalf, any land or building for the purposes and to the extent for and to which it is being used upon the date on which such plan comes into force"

26. The No Objection Certificate granted by Collector on 06.06.2013 was conditional that integrated meat processing plant and slaughter house to come up pursuant to sanction/permission by the Authority. Neither any permission was sought nor map was sanctioned.

27. Section 26 talks of the penalties to be imposed by the Authority in case of use of land or building, in violation of plan, and where development of land has been allowed to any person or body in violation of the condition of such development plan, such infraction is an offence punishable under this provision.

28. Section 27 talks for order of demolition of building, where any development has been commenced or is being carried on or has been completed in contravention of the Master Plan or without permission approval or sanction referred to in Section 14, subject to procedure laid, an order for demolition shall be passed.

29. The offences under the Act of 1973 are compoundable under Section 32 which reads as under:-

"32. Composition of Offences. – (1) Any offence made punishable by or under this Act, may either before or after the institution of proceedings, be compounded-by the [Vice-Chairman (or any officer authorised by him in that behalf by General or Special order)] on such terms, including any term as regards payment of a composition fee, as [the Vice-Chairman] (or such officer) may think fit.*

(2) Where an offence has been compounded, the offender, if in custody, shall be discharged and no further proceedings shall be taken against him in respect of the offence compounded.

30. Thus, the question which arises that once the master plan and the zonal plan has been enforced in the District-Meerut and there being no challenge to the same, the petitioner was required to follow the norms as provided under them.

31. The integrated meat processing plant and slaughter house was sought to be established pursuant to permission granted by District Magistrate on 06.06.2013 which was subject to fulfillment of certain conditions. One of the necessary condition was prior approval of the Development Authority in regard to sanction of map before project started. The words, "निर्माण कार्य प्रारम्भ होने से पूर्व विकास प्राधिकरण की अनुमति प्राप्त की जाये" are of great relevance. The petitioner was bound to make application for permission and sanction of map prior to starting the construction over the land on which the integrated meat processing plant was going to come up. No such application or permission was sought before raising construction, and it was only when the factory was operational and notice under Section 27(1) was issued, that the petitioner tried to get the offence compounded under Section 32 of the Act of 1973.

32. Master Plan, 2021 clearly provides in clause 6.6 that slaughter house can come up in an agricultural area only on a special permission granted by Development Authority.

33. Bye-law 2.3.2 lays down the width of the road for the land used in non residential area where the commercial activity is carried out. It clearly provides that width of the road must be minimum 12 meter in case of its length upto 200 meter, in case of a commercial establishment situated on the road whose length is 201 meter to 400 meter, its width has to be 18 meter. While in case of road whose length is 401 meter to 1000 meter, the width is to be 24 meter. Relevant bye-law is extracted here-asunder:-

"(i) अनावासीय क्षेत्र यथा व्यवसायिक, कार्यालय एवं औद्योगिक भू-उपयोग में किसी भी सड़क की चौड़ाई 12 मीटर से कम नहीं होगी, जिसकी लम्बाई अधिकतम 200 मीटर होगी। 201 से 400 मीटर लम्बी सड़क की चौड़ाई 18 मीटर होगी और 401 से 1000 मीटर तक लम्बी सड़क की चौड़ाई 24 मीटर होगी तथा 1000 मीटर से अधिक लम्बी सड़क की चौड़ाई 30 मीटर होगी।

(ii) अन्य मार्गों की चौड़ाई महायोजना / जोनल प्लान में निर्धारित चौड़ाई के अनुसार होगी।"

34. The very purpose of providing minimum width of the road for commercial activity is keeping in mind the movement of heavy commercial vehicles. In the instant case, it is admitted that meat processing plant is situated 500 meter away from main Hapur Highway and comes under the category of 401 to 1000 meter. Thus, minimum width of the road should be 24 meter before the permission is accorded.

35. In Nazir Ahmad Vs. King-Emperor AIR 1936 PC 253, Lord Roche speaking for himself and the other Members held that where a power is given to do a certain thing in a certain way the thing must be done in that way or not at all. The other methods of performance are necessarily forbidden.

36. In Dhananjaya Reddy Vs. State of Karnataka (2001) 4 SCC 9, the Apex Court held that it is a settled principle of law that where a power is given to do a certain thing in a certain manner, the thing must be done in that way or not at all.

37. In Commissioner of Income Tax, Mumbai Vs. Anjum M.H. Ghaswala (2002) 1 SCC 633, the Apex Court held that it is a normal rule of construction that when a statute vests certain power in an authority to be exercised in a particular manner then the said Authority has to exercise it only in the manner provided in the statute itself.

38. In State of Jharkhand & others Vs. Ambay Cements & another (2005) 1 SCC 368, the Apex Court held that whenever the Statute prescribes that a particular act is to be done in a particular manner and also lays down the failure to comply with the said requirement leads to severe consequence, such requirement would be mandatory. It is a cardinal rule of interpretation that where a statute provides that a particular thing should be done, it should be done in the manner prescribed and not in any other way. It is also settled rule of interpretation that where a statute is penal in character it must be strictly construed and followed.

39. In Priyanka Estates International Pvt. Ltd. and Ors. Vs. State of Assam and others, JT 2009 (14) SC 654, the Apex Court while dealing with violation of sanction or approved plan held that if the offence was not compoundable then necessary consequence of demolition should follow. Relevant para 66 and 73 are extracted hereasunder:-

"66. It is not necessary to deal with the aforesaid judgments of this Court in greater detail as the consistent ratio decidendi of this Court is that if the constructions are in absolute violation of sanctioned or approved plans and are not likely to fall in the category of compoundable items, then the necessary consequence is to order its demolition and seal of approval for such illegal activities is not required to be given by this Court.

73. It is a matter of common knowledge that illegal and unauthorised constructions beyond the sanctioned plans are on rise, may be due to paucity of land in big cities. Such activities are required to be dealt with by firm hands otherwise builders/colonisers would continue to build or construct beyond the sanctioned and approved plans and would still go scot-free. Ultimately, it is the flat owners who fall prey to such activities as the ultimate desire of a common man is to have a shelter of his own. Such unlawful constructions are definitely against the public interest and hazardous to the safety of occupiers and residents of multi-storeyed buildings. To some extent both parties can be said to be equally responsible for this. Still the greater loss would be of those flat owners whose flats are to be demolished as compared to the Builder."

40. In Shanti Sports Club and Anr. Vs. Union of India and others, (2009) 15 SCC 705, the Apex Court while dealing with unauthorised construction which was against the master plan or zonal development plan held as under:-

"74. In the last four decades, almost all cities, big or small, have seen unplanned growth. In the 21st century, the menace of illegal and unauthorised constructions and encroachments has acquired monstrous proportions and everyone has been paying heavy price for the same. Economically affluent people and those having support of the political and executive apparatus of the State have constructed buildings, commercial complexes, multiplexes, malls, etc. in blatant violation of the municipal and town planning laws, master plans, zonal development plans and even the sanctioned building plans. In most of the cases of illegal or unauthorised constructions, the officers of the municipal and other regulatory bodies turn blind eye either due to the influence of higher functionaries of the State or other extraneous reasons. Those who construct buildings in violation of the relevant statutory provisions, master plan, etc. and those who directly or indirectly abet such violations are totally unmindful of the grave consequences of their actions and/or omissions on the present as well as future generations of the country which will be forced to live in unplanned cities and urban areas. The people belonging to this class do not realise that the constructions made in violation of the relevant laws, master plan or zonal development plan or sanctioned building plan or the building is used for a purpose other than the one specified in the relevant statute or the master plan, etc., such constructions put unbearable burden on the public facilities/amenities like water, electricity, sewerage, etc. apart from creating chaos on the roads. The pollution caused due to traffic congestion affects the health of the road users. The pedestrians and people belonging to weaker sections of the society, who cannot afford the luxury of air-conditioned cars, are the worst victims of pollution. They suffer from skin diseases of different types, asthma, allergies and even more dreaded diseases like cancer. It can only be a matter of imagination how much the Government has to spend on the treatment of such persons and also for controlling pollution and adverse impact on the environment due to traffic congestion on the roads and chaotic conditions created due to illegal and unauthorised constructions. This Court has, from time to time, taken cognizance of buildings constructed in violation of municipal and other laws and emphasised that no compromise should be made with the town planning scheme and no relief should be given to the violator of the town planning scheme, etc. on the ground that he has spent substantial amount on construction of the buildings, etc.—K. Ramadas Shenoy v. Town Municipal Council, Udipi [(1974) 2 SCC 506] , G.N. Khajuria (Dr.) v. DDA [(1995) 5 SCC 762] , M.I. Builders (P) Ltd. v. Radhey Shyam Sahu [(1996) 6 SCC 464] , Friends Colony Development Committee v. State ofOrissa [(2004) 8 SCC 733] , M.C. Mehta v. Union of India [(2006) 3 SCC 399] and S.N. Chandrashekar v. State of Karnataka [(2006) 3 SCC 208] .

75. Unfortunately, despite repeated judgments by this Court and the High Courts, the builders and other affluent people engaged in the construction activities, who have, over the years shown scant respect for regulatory mechanism envisaged in the municipal and other similar laws, as also the master plans, zonal development plans, sanctioned plans, etc., have received encouragement and support from the State apparatus. As and when the Courts have passed orders or the officers of local and other bodies have taken action for ensuring rigorous compliance with laws relating to planned development of the cities and urban areas and issued directions for demolition of the illegal/unauthorised constructions, those in power have come forward to protect the wrongdoers either by issuing administrative orders or enacting laws for regularisation of illegal and unauthorised constructions in the name of compassion and hardship. Such actions have done irreparable harm to the concept of planned development of the cities and urban areas. It is high time that the executive and political apparatus of the State take serious view of the menace of illegal and unauthorised constructions and stop their support to the lobbies of affluent class of builders and others, else even the rural areas of the country will soon witness similar chaotic conditions."

41. Thus, in view of various dictums of Apex Court, it is clear that obtaining prior permission is mandatory for raising construction as per the developmental and zonal plan.

42. In the instant case, District Magistrate on 06.06.2013 had granted conditional No Objection Certificate, which mandated for prior sanction/approval of map by the Authority before starting construction. The prior permission was mandatory, therefore, non compliance with the same must result in cancelling the concession made in favour of petitioner.

43. Moreover, the area over which the integrated meat processing plant has been set up falls in the agricultural area and Master Plan of 2021 clearly provides for special permission for setting up a slaughter house in an agricultural area. The bye-laws further confirm that width of the road has to be 24 meter in case the land used is for non residential purpose. The report of the Chief Town & Country Planner which was admitted and approved by the Committee is in consonance with bye-law 2.3.2.

44. The argument raised from petitioner side as to variation in the width of road ranging from 8.5 meter to 14 meter by different authorities has no force. It is an admitted position that meat processing plant is situated 500 meter away from the main Hapur Highway, and the length of road is beyond 400 meter, thus, the width of 24 meter as required under bye-law 2.3.2 cannot be displaced.

45. Petitioner has not brought out any ground of procedural irregularity having done by authorities or the State Government in rejecting the application for compounding/sanctioning of map.

46. Right from the year 1936 till date, the Apex Court is of the view that cardinal principle is that where a statute requires a particular act to be done in particular manner, the act has to be done in that manner alone. In the instant case, there is no challenge to the master plan or the zonal development plan, nor any amendment has been sought of the master plan or the zonal development plan. The area is undisputedly an agricultural area where permission has been sought for setting up a slaughter house, the same can only be granted after due compliance has been done by the petitioner.

47. Composition of offence as provided under Section 32 can only be done when the case falls within the parameter. The statutory Authority cannot go beyond the provision of the statute and bye-laws to compound the offence.

48. The action of the Authority and State Government cannot be faulted as it rests on Clause 2.3.2 of bye-laws which clearly stipulates the condition for running a commercial establishment/industry on the road which is substantially wide enough to bear the burden of heavy commercial vehicles.

49. The bye-laws have been framed keeping in mind the impact of vehicular movement on the road where commercial activity is being carried out since the business is of meat processing and slaughtering, there will be movement of heavy trucks and trolleys, which a narrow lane or road could not bear. Sufficient width of the road is required to felicitate vehicular movement, causing no inconvenience to the other commercial establishment or industry situated near it or the residents using the road.

50. In the instant case, petitioner should have been vigilant and before raising construction he should have complied with the condition laid down by the District Magistrate in the year 2013 itself and before making investment should have got the map sanctioned. In case, application was moved before Development Authority, the petitioner would have come to know that plant could not be established on such a narrow passage of 12 meter, since bye-law required 24 meter width.

51. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, I find that orders impugned do not make out any case for interference exercising extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of Constitution of India.

52. Writ petition fails and is hereby dismissed.

1. Heard Sri Navin Sinha, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Prashant

Shukla, learned counsel for the petitioner; Sri Shad Khan, learned counsel holding brief of Sri Shishir Prakash, learned counsel for the respondent Nos.1 to 3 and Sri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Advocate, assisted by Sri Raghav Dev Garg, learned counsel for the respondent No.4.

Facts:-

2. The facts of the case as emerging out from the record are that the petitioner herein is a company engaged in business of Operation and Maintenance Services (for the sake of brevity hereinafter referred as 'O&M Services') for Uttar Pradesh Rajya Vidyut Utapadan Nigam Ltd. including O&M Services and Coal Handling Plants. The respondent no.1 floated a tender sometimes in June 2020 for execution of O&M Services for its Coal Handling Plants at Paricha Station for a period of two years. The petitioner, who participated in the bid, was found suitable and contract was awarded to it. It was at that point of time, when one of the unsuccessful bidder alleged that petitioner had been debarred by another State owned power generating company in Madhya Pradesh, hence the petitioner was not qualified to be awarded the contract, as such, response was asked from the petitioner. Vide letter dated 15.10.2020, the petitioner clarified that the allegations against it were incorrect and were raised only to disqualify the petitioner. The tender proceeding culminated into a contract dated 15.03.2021.

3. The respondent no.2 again floated a tender for the period commencing from 01.03.2023. For some reason this tender could not be finalized and the existing contract of the petitioner was extended till 31.03.2023, for a period of one month. Thereafter a fresh tender was floated on 22.03.2023, which had two bid mode of technical and financial bids. The petitioner alongwith other bidders participated in the tender proceeding and technical bid were opened on 06.04.2023. The petitioner alongwith respondent no.4 and few others were found technically qualified. Since the tender proceedings could not be culminated for some reasons, hence the existing tender of the petitioner, which was coming to an end on 31.03.2023, was again extended upto 31.05.2023.

4. The financial bid of bidders, who qualified in the technical bid, were opened and the bid of petitioner was found to be the lowest (L1). It is claimed that despite the petitioner being L1, the tender was not awarded to the petitioner. When the petitioner met the officials of respondent no.1, he came to know that the respondent no.4 has filed a complaint alleging that the petitioner had filed a false affidavit regarding blacklisting/debarment/termination of the contract. It was alleged that earlier the petitioner had been debarred by one of the State owned company in Madhya Pradesh. The petitioner submitted that no communication has been made by the respondent no.1 qua the said complaint and he came to know that the respondent no.1 was about to award contract to respondent no.4. Such situation impelled the petitioner to prefer the earlier Writ C No.6515/2023 (Energo Construction Pvt. Ltd. New Delhi vs. U.P. Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd.) before the Lucknow Bench of this Court, which was dismissed as withdrawn by order dated 02.08.2023 with liberty to file fresh petition before appropriate Bench/Court as the matter pertains to district Jhansi. Meanwhile, the respondent no.1 has issued LOI in favour of respondent no.4 on 28.07.2023. Aggrieved by the award of LOI to respondent no.4, the petitioner preferred the instant writ petition with following reliefs:-

(i) Issue an appropriate writ or direction or order in the nature of certiorari thereby quashing the Letter of Intent dated 28.07.2023 bearing Ref. No.441/CHD-IV/PTPP/ 2023-24/CF issued by respondent nos.1 to 3 in favour of respondent no.4 (Annexure-2).

(ii) Issue an approriate writ or direction or order in the nature of mandamus thereby seeking appropriate directions to respondent nos.1 to 3 to award to the petitioner (i.e. L1 bidder) in Tender breafing Ref. No.N-PAR/C/O&MC5/CHD4/6000001163_00 for 'Round the Clock complete O&M of Coal Handling Plant of Parichha Thermal Power Project' (Annexure-1);

(iii) Direct respondent nos.1 to 3 to not take any precipitative/coercive/prejudicial steps against the petitioner including but not limited to forfeiture of earnest money deposit on any gound or prejudice other contracts/tenders in any manner.

(iv) Such other appropriate writ, order or direction as this Court may deem just and proper in the circumstances of the case and in the interest of justice, be passed in favour of the petitioner.

(v) Cost of the writ petition be awarded in favour of the petitioner.

5. After filing the present writ petition, an Email was sent to the petitioner, wherein, he was informed that the Tender Valuation Committee had rejected the bid of the petitioner with following remarks:-

"You are informed that your bid for the above tender has been rejected during Financial evaluation by the duly constituted committee for the reason Competent Committee did not consider the offer of L-1 firm due to submission of false information on notarized affidavit regarding blacklisting/debarment/termination of contract."

6. The petitioner herein, after getting this Email moved an amendment application, which was allowed on 28.11.2023. By the said order following relief has been added:-

"i (A) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the impugned email dated 08.08.2023 (Annexure No.-11 to this petition)"

Arguments of petitioner :-

7. Shri Navin Sinha, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the petitioner, submitted that the procedure adopted by respondent Nos. 1 to 3 for issuing LOI in favour of respondent No. 4 is arbitrary and violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India. Petitioner complied with all the requisite technical requirements and was found eligible with lowest financial bid. Despite the bid being the lowest, the petitioner was disqualified (after opening of the financial bid) ostensibly on the ground that the petitioner had submitted a false affidavit as a part of its bid. Before filing the present writ petition, at no point of time, the petitioner was informed of its disqualification or even the fact that a complaint was received against it. The first official communication to the petitioner, regarding its disqualification was received on 08.08.2023 i.e. after filing of the present Writ Petition.

8. Shri Sinha further submitted that rejection of petitioner's lowest bid, allegedly on ground of submission of false information on notarized affidavit, is wholly misconceived. The petitioner submitted the requisite affidavit in the template provided at Annexure-V in compliance with clause B-6 read with Annexure-V, which seeks a declaration that no termination has happened for any kind of fraudulent activities. In support of his submission, he placed reliance on the judgement of Hon'ble Apex Court in Central Coalfields Limited & Anr v SLL-SML (Joint Venture Consortium) & Ors (2016) 8 SCC 622, wherein, the importance with the format in tender matters have been dealt with. Respondents have alleged that petitioner concealed material facts by failing to disclose the termination by MPPGCL. He submitted that in 2018, MPPGCL admittedly terminated petitioner's tender due to non-performance and not for 'fraudulent activities', therefore, there was no concealment of material facts. Further, the termination itself is a matter pending adjudication before Madhya Pradesh High Court in Writ Petition No. 13486 of 2018. This fact was already in the knowledge of Respondent No.1 and in case, a proper opportunity would have been provided to the petitioner, it would have satisfactorily explained the same. During the tendering process in 2020/2021, the issue of MPPGCL's termination was raised, which was satisfactorily explained by the petitioner and consequently, the contract was awarded by the respondent no.1.

9. Shri Navin Sinha, learned Senior Advocate vehemently contended that the dispute in question raises public issues, in relation to the practice and procedure adopted by a State entity while awarding a tender. The action taken by the respondent no.1 is arbitrary, irrational and malafide and whenever there is an infirmity in decision making process, the writ courts have a Constitutional duty to interfere even if they are contractual issues, especially in cases where the conditions of the tender are tailor-made to suit interests of one party and the said conditions are to be examined by way of reverse engineering. In support of his submission, he placed reliance on the dictum of Hon'ble Apex Court in Tata Motors vs. Brihan Mumbai Electricity Supply and Transport Undertaking and others 2023 SCC OnLine SC 671 and Meerut Development Authority vs. Association of Management Studies and another 2009 (6) SCC 171. In this backdrop, he submitted that the matter warrants justifiable interference by this Court.

10. Refuting the allegations levelled in the complaint, Shri Sinha submitted that during the tendering process for preceding period of 2020-2021, similar allegations were raised against the petitioner. Even though, there was no requirement of an affidavit, still an opportunity to explain its position was given at that point of time but no opportunity of hearing/clarification was given to the petitioner now. This makes the conduct of respondent Nos. 1 to 3 even more questionable since when the threshold is higher, a show cause notice was required to be issued to the petitioner for providing an opportunity to submit its explanation. In the case of Jai Bholenath Construction vs. The Chief Executive Officer, Zilla Parishad, Nanded & Ors. (Civil Appeal No. 41440 of 2022 decided on 18.05.2022), the Supreme Court remanded back the tender to its earlier stage, for it being violative to principles of natural justice and fairness. The procedure adopted by respondent nos. 1 to 3 is violative to principles of natural justice and fair play. No show cause notice or opportunity of hearing was given to the Petitioner before rejecting its bid. Even, the decision of rejecting petitioner's bid was not communicated till 08.08.2023. He submitted that after unilaterally disqualifying the petitioner, secret negotiations were held between respondent no.1 and respondent no.4 and its offer was revised. Most importantly, all of this was done in secrecy and in an offline mode without uploading any document on the bidding portal or apprising the other bidders. It is settled law that secret negotiations cannot be undertaken with one bidder (See Ram and Shyam Company v State of Haryana & Ors. (1945) 3 SCC 267, Uttar Pradesh Procurement Manual, 2016 ("in short "Manual"] Clause 3.4 (11) Pg. 14, Clause (1) Pg. 17, Clause 14.12 Pg. 119, Clause 14.30 Pg. 126). The said action can also not pass the judicial scrutiny, being violative of Wednesbury Principle of Reasonableness. (see M/s Star Enterprises & Others v City and Industrial Development Corporation of Maharashtra Ltd. & Others (1990) 3 SCC 280 (Para 10), M/s Jai Hanuman Construction State of UP & Ors 2023 SCC OnLine All 2033 (Para 25), Clause 14.14(4) Pg. 120, Clause 14.34(3) @ Pg. 129 of the Manual). Summing up his arguments, he submitted that the petitioner has acted in reasonable and fair manner and considering the facts in entirity, relief is liable to be accorded by this Court being empowered under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, otherwise, the petitioner would suffer irreparable loss and injury.

Arguments of Contesting Respondents :-

11. Shri Shad Khan, Advocate holding brief of Shri Shishir Pathak, learned counsel for respondent no.1, 2 and 3 submitted that an e-tender was published on 22.03.2023 for the work "Round the clock Complete Operation & Maintenance Works of entire Coal Handling Plant of 2x210 MW CHP for uninterrupted coal feeding of 2x210 MW + 2x250 MW (Unit No.3,4,5&6), unloading works of 2x110MW CHP including manual loading works of 2x110 MW CHP including manual unloading and management, operation and shutting work etc., and Round the clock Complete Mechanical & Electrical Maintenance works of Coal Unloading Plant 2x110MW CHP etc. (for two years)" of Parichha Thermal Power Station, U.P. Rajya Vidyut Utpadan Nigam Ltd. In the said e-tender, four firms have participated and were found technically qualified. On 03.05.2023, the financial bids of the qualified bidder were as follows : (i) L-1 M/s Energo Construction Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi -Bid Amount Rs.28,42,44,530/-, (ii) L-2 M/s Lokenath Constructions Pvt. Ltd., Kolkata-Bid Amount - Rs.28,55,76,205.26/-, (iii) L-3 M/s Star O&M Group, Ghaziabad- Bid Amount- Rs.28,95,90,856/- and (iv) L-4 M/s Chennai Radha Engineering Works (P) Ltd., Chennai -Bid Amount- Rs.63,97,04,928/-.

12. Shri Khan further submitted that on 19.05.2023, a complaint was received from the respected Member of Parliament (Lok Sabha), wherein, it has been informed that the work of the petitioner's firm was terminated and the firm was debarred by the MPPGCL, Khandwa and there were certain disputes regarding the G.S.T. at Hisaar Plant. The complaint was sent for verification to MPPGCL, who verified that the petitioner's contract was terminated and it was debarred from participating in the future tenders of MPPGCL. He further submitted that as per tender condition the bidder has to provide declaration on notarized affidavit, Non Judicial Stamp paper of Rs.100/-, to the effect that the bidder has not been blacklisted/work awarded to the bidder has not been terminated by the SEBs/State GENCO/Central GENCO/PSU's/CPSU/Statutory Body, Independent Power Producers (IPP). He further submitted that, on 04.04.2023, the petitioner company by concealment of material facts has given an affidavit, whereby, it has been declared that the petitioner has not been blacklisted/debarred and their work has not been terminated by the SEBs/State GENCO/Central GENCO/PSU's/CPSU/Statutory Body, Independent Power Producers (IPP).

13. He further submitted that the petitioner was guilty of suppressiio veri and suggestio falsi as it has submitted a false declaration on affidavit and hence its bid was rejected, thereafter, the negotiations took place and the contract was awarded to L2, who is respondent no.4. After getting the contract, the respondent no.4 has also commenced the work with huge investment. He further submits that at the time of awarding earlier contract, petitioner was not required to file an affidavit qua blacklisting/debarment/termination of contract, however in the Tender 2023, a specific clause was added requiring the participating firms to give information on a notarized affidavit regarding the blacklisting/debarment/termination of any contract, which was falsely responded by the petitioner firm. He also submitted that petitioner vide letter dated 15.06.2023 and 23.06.2023 were duly informed that their bid was rejected on the ground of false declaration given by them. Lastly, he submitted that since the the scope of judicial review in contractual matters is very limited and hence this Court should refrain from interfering with the contractual matters.

Arguments of Respondent no.4 :-

14. Shri Anurag Khanna, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Shri Raghav Dev Garg, learned counsel for respondent no.4 submitted that Hon'ble Apex Court has time and again held that the Courts while exercising powers under the Constitution of India must refrain from interfering with such issues which are contractual in nature and can only be adjudicated upon after appreciation of disputed questions of facts. He submitted that petitioner has violated the terms of Clause B-6 of the E-tender and Annexure-V was to be incorporated by the bidders in terms of Clause B-6.]

15. He further submitted that the intent of such clause is to verify the credibility of the bidders on whom large amount of public money are being proposed to be spent. He elaborated that it is immaterial as to why the firm has been blacklisted/work terminated, since it is not only the character of the firm, which has to be considered but also the working capabilities of the firm as well and the contracting agency, being the drafter of the terms of the document, are the best judge to interpret the same in case of any ambiguity. Lastly, he submitted that the principles of equity and natural justice stay at a distance in such matters of fraud and concealment and as such, no interference is required in the matter. In support of his submission, he placed reliance on the judgement passed by Hon'ble Apex Court in Jagdish Mandal vs. State of Orrissa and others 2007 (14) SCC 517 and Afcons Infrastructure Ltd. vs. Nagpur Metro Rail Corporation Ltd and another 2016 (16) SCC 818.

Analysis :-

Scope of judicial review in award of Contracts:

16. We may refer to some of the decisions of this Court, which have dealt with the scope of judicial review in award of contracts.

17. In Sterling Computers Ltd v. M & N Publications Ltd. MANU/SC/0439/1993 AIR 1996 SC 51, this Court observed (SCC p.458, para 18):

"18. While exercising the power of judicial review, in respect of contracts entered into on behalf of the State, the court is concerned primarily as to whether there has been any infirmity in the decision making process the courts can certainly examine whether 'decision making process' was reasonable, rational, not arbitrary and violative of Article 14 of the Constitution."

18. In Tata Cellular v. Union of India MANU/SC/0002/1996 AIR 1996 SC 11:, this Court referred to the limitations relating to the scope of judicial review of administrative decisions and exercise of powers in awarding contracts, thus: (SCC pp.687-88, para 94)

"(1) The modern trend points to judicial restraint in administrative action.

(2) The Court does not sit as a court of appeal but merely reviews the manner in which the decision was made.

(3) The Court does not have the expertise to correct the administrative action. If a review of the administrative decision is permitted it will be substituting its own decision, without the necessary expertise which itself may be fallible.

(4) The terms of the invitation to tender cannot be open to judicial scrutiny because the invitation to tender is in the realm of contract. More often than not, such decisions are made qualitatively by experts.

(5) The Government must have freedom of contract. In other words, a fairplay in the joints is a necessary concomitant for an administrative body functioning in an administrative sphere or quasi-administrative sphere. However, the decision must not only be tested by the application of Wednesbury principle of reasonableness (including its other facets pointed out above) but must be free from arbitrariness not affected by bias or actuated by mala fides.

(6) Quashing decisions may impose heavy administrative burden on the administration and lead to increased and unbudgeted expenditure."

19. In Raunaq International Ltd. v. I.V.R. Construction Ltd. MANU/SC/0770/1998 AIR 1999 SC 393, this Court dealt with the matter in some detail. This Court held: (SCC pp.500-01, paras 9-11)

"9.The award of a contract, whether it is by a private party or by a public body or the State, is essentially a commercial transaction. In arriving at a commercial decision considerations which are of paramount importance are commercial considerations. These would be :

(1) The price at which the other side is willing to do the work;

(2) Whether the goods or services offered are of the requisite specifications;

(3) Whether the person tendering has the ability to deliver the goods or services as per specifications. When large works contracts involving engagement of substantial manpower or requiring specific skills are to be offered, the financial ability of the tenderer to fulfil the requirements of the job is also important;

(4) the ability of the tenderer to deliver goods or services or to do the work of the requisite standard and quality;

(5) past experience of the tenderer, and whether he has successfully completed similar work earlier;

(6) time which will be taken to deliver the goods or services; and often

(7) the ability of the tenderer to take follow up action, rectify defects or to give post contract services.

Even when the State or a public body enters into a commercial transaction, considerations which would prevail in its decision to award the contract to a given party would be the same. However, because the State or a public body or an agency of the State enters into such a contract, there could be, in a given case, an element of public law or public interest involved even in such a commercial transaction.

10. What are these elements of public interest? (1) Public money would be expended for the purposes of the contract; (2) The goods or services which are being commissioned could be for a public purpose, such as, construction of roads, public buildings, power plants or other public utilities. (3) The public would be directly interested in the timely fulfilment of the contract so that the services become available to the public expeditiously. (4) The public would also be interested in the quality of the work undertaken or goods supplied by the tenderer. Poor quality of work or goods can lead to tremendous public hardship and substantial financial outlay either in correcting mistakes or in rectifying defects or even at times in re-doing the entire work - thus involving larger outlays or public money and delaying the availability of services, facilities or goods, e.g. A delay in commissioning a power project, as in the present case, could lead to power shortages, retardation of industrial development, hardship to the general public and substantial cost escalation.

11. When a writ petition is filed in the High court challenging the award of a contract by a public authority or the State, the court must be satisfied that there is some element of public interest involved in entertaining such a petition. If, for example, the dispute is purely between two tenderers, the court must be very careful to see if there is any element of public interest involved in the litigation. A mere difference in the prices offered by the two tenderers may or may not be decisive in deciding whether any public interest is involved in intervening in such a commercial transaction. It is important to bear in mind that by court intervention, the proposed project may be considerably delayed thus escalating the cost far more than any saving which the court would ultimately effect in public money by deciding the dispute in favour of one tenderer or the other tenderer. Therefore, unless the court is satisfied that there is a substantial amount of public interest, or the transaction is entered into mala fide, the court should not intervene under Article 226 in disputes between two rival tenderers."

20. In Air India Ltd. v. Cochin International Airport Ltd. MANU/SC/0055/2000 [2000] 1 SCR 505, this Court summarized the scope of interference as enunciated in several earlier decisions thus: (SCC pp.623-24, para 7)

"7.....The award of a contract, whether it is by a private party or by a public body or the State, is essentially a commercial transaction. In arriving at a commercial decision considerations which are paramount are commercial considerations. The State can choose its own method to arrive at a decision. It can fix its own terms of invitation to tender and that is not open to judicial scrutiny. It can enter into negotiations before finally deciding to accept one of the offers made to it. Price need not always be the sole criterion for awarding a contract. It is free to grant any relaxation, for bona fide reasons, if the tender conditions permit such a relaxation, for bona fide reasons, if the tender conditions permit such a relaxation. It may not accept the offer even though it happens to be the highest or the lowest. But the State, its corporations, instrumentalities and agencies are bound to adhere to the norms, standards and procedures laid down by them and cannot depart from them arbitrarily. Though that decision is not amenable to judicial review, the court can examine the decision-making process and interfere if it is found vitiated by mala fides, unreasonableness and arbitrariness. The State, its corporations, instrumentalities and agencies have the public duty to be fair to all concerned. Even when some defect is found in the decision-making process the court must exercise its discretionary power under Article 226 with great caution and should exercise it only in furtherance of public interest and not merely on the making out of a legal point. The court should always keep the larger public interest in mind in order to decide whether its intervention is called for or not. Only when it comes to a conclusion that overwhelming public interest requires interference, the court should intervene.

21. In Association of Registration Plates v. Union of India MANU/SC/1013/2004 AIR 2005 SC 469 , this Court held: (SCC p.700, para 43)

"Article 14 of the Constitution prohibits government from arbitrarily choosing a contractor at its will and pleasure. It has to act reasonably, fairly and in public interest in awarding contracts. At the same time, no person can claim a fundamental right to carry in business with the government. All that he can claim is that in competing for the contract, he should not be unfairly treated and discriminated, to the detriment of public interest."

22. In B.S.N. Joshi v. Nair Coal Services Ltd. MANU/SC/8598/2006 AIR 2007 SC 437, this Court observed: (SCC p.568, para 56)

"56. It may be true that a contract need not be given to the lowest tenderer but it is equally true that the employer is the best judge therefor; the same ordinarily being within its domain, court's interference in such matter should be minimal. The High Court's jurisdiction in such matters being limited in a case of this nature, the Court should normally exercise judicial restraint unless illegality or arbitrariness on the part of the employer is apparent on the face of the record."

23. The legal proposition drawn in the light of above judgements of Hon'ble Supreme Court is that the judicial review of administrative action is intended to prevent arbitrariness, irrationality, unreasonableness, bias and malafides. Its purpose is to check whether choice or decision is made 'lawfully' and not to check whether choice or decision is 'sound'. When the power of judicial review is invoked in matters relating to tenders or award of contracts, certain special features should be borne in mind. A contract is a commercial transaction. Evaluating tenders and awarding contracts are essentially commercial functions. Principles of equity and natural justice stay at a distance. If the decision relating to award of contract is bona fide and is in public interest, courts will not, in exercise of power of judicial review, interfere even if a procedural aberration or error in assessment or prejudice to a tenderer, is made out.

24. The power of judicial review will not be permitted to be invoked to protect private interest at the cost of public interest, or to decide contractual disputes. The tenderer or contractor with a grievance can always seek damages in a civil court. Attempts by unsuccessful tenderers with imaginary grievances, wounded pride and business rivalry, to make mountains out of molehills of some technical/procedural violation or some prejudice to self, and persuade courts to interfere by exercising power of judicial review, should be resisted. Such interferences, either interim or final, may hold up public works for years, or delay relief and succour to thousands and millions and may increase the project cost manifold. Therefore, in our considered opinion, the court before interfering in tender or contractual matters in exercise of power of judicial review, should pose to itself the following questions :

i) Whether the process adopted or decision made by the authority is mala fide or intended to favour someone.

ii) Whether public interest is adversely affected.

25. If the answers to the above questions are in the negative, there should be no interference under Article 226 of the Constitution of India in such cases involving black-listing or imposition of penal consequences on a tendered/contractor or distribution of state largesse.

Conclusion :-

26. In this matter, the petitioner has apparently given a wrong affidavit in order to get the contract. For ready reference, Clause B-6 is reproduced as under:-

B 6	Declaration of bidder against blacklisting	Bidder has to provide declaration on notarized affidavit, Non Judicial Stamp paper of Rs.100/-, that the bidder has not been blacklisted/work awarded to the bidder has not been terminated by the SEBs/State GENCO/Central GENCO/PSU's/CPSU/Statutory Body, Independent Power Producers (IPP). (As per Annexure-V must be uploaded) Original copy of declaration on non-judicial stamp paper must be submitted in hard copy to the office of Superintending Engineer, O&MC-V, 2x250MW, CTPS, PTPP, Parichha, Jhansi.

A bare perusal of clause B-6 and Annexure V incorporated in the bid document clearly goes to show that the bidder has to provide declaration on notarized affidavit, Non Judicial Stamp paper of Rs.100/-, that the bidder has not been blacklisted/work awarded to the bidder has not been terminated by the SEBs/State GENCO/Central GENCO/PSU's/CPSU/Statutory Body, Independent Power Producers (IPP). The petitioner knowing the fact that he was disqualified gave a false declaration and in order to cross the first hurdle of technical qualifications, by misrepresenting the petitioner got itself to be technically qualified and its bid was opened. Claim of being L1 is immaterial as only those financial bids could be entertained, who are technically qualified. The petitioner herein does not qualify or pass first hurdle and hence it cannot take a benefit or argue that since its bid was lowest, the tender should be awarded to it.

27. As per ratio laid down in catena of judgements of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, it is clear that the scope of judicial review in the contractual matter is very limited. Moreover the respondents have the freedom to award the contract. The fair play in the joints is a necessary concomitant for an administrative body functioning in an administrative sphere or quasi-administrative sphere. The decision of the respondent must not only be tested by the application of Wednesbury Principle of Reasonableness but must be free from arbitrariness not affected by bias or actuated by malafides. This is the case in which there is no malafides or bias or arbitrariness. The bid of the petitioner had rightly been rejected since it had given a wrong statement on an affidavit stating that nowhere they have been blacklisted or their contract have been terminated.

28. The petitioner, knowing the fact that it was not qualified to participate in the tender, tried to grab the tender by giving a false declaration by way of an affidavit, by misrepresenting the petitioner tried to get itself technically qualified and accordingly, the bid was opened. The claim of the petitioner that it being the lowest (L1) is not material, as the bid of technically qualified can only be considered. Hence, the petitioner, who is technically disqualified, cannot be considered in the tender procedure.

29. In view of above discussions, we find no merit in the writ petition, hence the writ petition is accordingly dismissed.

30. No order as to costs.

Civil Law - Constitution of India,1950-Article 226-Registration Act-Section 34-In the present case, the allegations and the consequent findings are that the alleged sale deed dated 25.07.1956 had never existed and the same had been interpolated in the records of the Sub-Registrar in place of some pre-existing registered sale deed-Since, the existence of the sale deed in favor of the father of the petitioner was not found to be in existence and the petitioner failed to produce the original sale deed-therefore, on complaints received, the District Magistrate concerned had directed the inquiry-The respondent no. 2 and 3 had carried out the inquiry and had found the sale deed was never in existence-The court held that where such a fact had been established with regard to the non-existence of any particular document then the bar of section 34 of the Registration Act would not apply-Therefore, on receipt of such complaints the inquiry conducted by the respondents no. 2 and 3 cannot be said to be without jurisdiction-The petitioner cannot be granted any relief as when the cloud was cast on his title he had not filed any suit for the declaration of his own rights-Hence, no interference requires.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Anish Kumar Gupta, J.)

1. This writ petition has been filed with a prayer that the Joint Inquiry Report dated 22.5.2019 submitted by the Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue), District Moradabad and the Assistant Inspector General (Registration), District Moradabad in respect of a sale-deed executed on 4.7.1956 and registered on 25.7.1956, which was found to be registered as Document No. 1335, at Bahi No. 1, Jild No. 892 at Page Nos. 265 to 266 and was registered before the Sub-Registrar, Moradabad, be quashed.

2. A further prayer has been made that the petitioner be not proceeded against with regard to the registered document i.e. sale-deed dated 25.7.1956 in pursuance of the Inquiry Report dated 22.5.2019.

3. The petitioner has contended that a sale-deed was registered on 25.7.1956 in favour of one Vijay Kumar Sharma, the father of the petitioner herein and the vendor was one Smt. Prem Kunwar, widow of Prasadi Lal. It is the further contention of the petitioner that the name of Sri Vijay Kumar Sharma was mutated on 25.10.1956. Further it has been argued that after Vijay Kumar Sharma died on 13.2.2011, an application for mutation was moved by the petitioner which came to be dismissed on 6.11.2015 on the ground that the application was barred by the provisions of Section 49 of the Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953. He further submits that thereafter the petitioner filed a revision before the Board of Revenue, which was allowed on 20.1.2017.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner thereafter states that an application was filed before the Consolidation Courts under Rule 109A(1) of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Rules, 1954, in which the name of the petitioner was entered in the plots in dispute being Plots No. 370/1, 370/2, 371/1, 371/2, 372, 373, 379/1 measuring total rakba 2.81 acre, Mauza Majhauli, Tehsil Sadar, District Moradabad. It has been submitted that the numbers of the plots were re-numbered and were also reduced in area during consolidation. The four plots now bore Nos. 280Ka, 282, 283, 289Ka). The petitioner has stated that the predecessor in the interest of intervenor, Sri Ram Bahadur and Sri Ram Kripal had though purchased the same plots in question on 16.9.1961, had no title in those plots as the plots had already been sold on 25.7.1956. Learned counsel for the petitioner therefore states that no right was flowing to the predecessor in the interest of the intervenor on account of the sale deed dated 10.9.1961.

5. Since there was interference in the plots in question and the mutation etc. was being hindered the petitioner filed an original suit being Original Suit No. 148 of 2013 and in it releif was for a declaratory decree declaring that the sale-deed dated 16.9.1961 executed in favour of the predecessor in the interest of defendants in the suit was null and void. There was also a prayer for permanent injunction that the defendants in the suit may not disturb the possession of the petitioner. This suit came to be dismissed on 11.7.2023. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the order impugned in the writ petition had come in the way of the civil suit and therefore, after the civil court had decreed the suit on the basis of the impugned Joint Inquiry Report dated 22.5.2019 the instant writ petition was filed. Learned counsel for the petitioner therefore has ultimately prayed that the Joint Inquiry Report dated 22.5.2019 be set aside.

6. Sri K.M. Asthana, learned counsel for the petitioner has vehemently argued that the Joint Inquiry Report which is in the form of the order dated 22.5.2019 could not have been passed by respondent nos.2 and 3 i.e. Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue), District Moradabad and the Assistant Inspector General (Registration), District Moradabad as they had neither the authority nor jurisdiction to conduct the said inquiries. They also had no authority to annul the sale-deed of the petitioner dated 25.7.1956. He has submitted that in the Registration Act even though, under Section 34 and 35, inquiry could be conducted before the Registration by the Registering Officer regarding the document to be registered, the registering authority had no power to cancel any particular document which had been registered. In support of this argument, learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon a Full Bench judgment of this Court report in AIR 2018 Allahabad 210, Smt. Kusum Lata v. State of U.P. and Ors. He has submitted that if any registered document had to be cancelled then the same could be done by filing a civil suit in a competent civil court and, therefore, only under the common laws a registered document could be cancelled.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that if an order/report was without jurisdiction then the same could be quashed by issuance of a Writ of Certiorari. For that purpose learned counsel for the petitioner has relied upon a Supreme Court judgment reported in AIR

1955 SC 233, Hari Vishnu Kamath v. Ahmad Ishaque and others. Specifically, he has relied upon paragraph 21 of it. Still further he has submitted that registered sale-deed is proof enough of valid execution of a sale-deed and once it is registered it can only be set aside by the filing of a suit. For bolstering his argument, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon a judgment of the Supreme Court reported in Jamila Begam v. Shami Mohd. (2019) 2 Supreme Court Cases 727.

8. Learned counsel for the intervenor, on the other hand, in reply submitted that the petitioner had, to begin with, no right over the property as the sale-deed, which the petitioner alleged was executed on 4.7.1956 and registered on 25.7.1956, was in fact, never in existence. He submits that there was no question of any presumption of the correctness of the document inasmuch as the presence of the proof of registration itself was doubted. He has submitted that there are reports to the effect that the sale-deed which was registered at Bahi No. 1, Jild No. 892,Document No. 1335,□at Page Nos. 265 to 266, was in fact, some other document and by manipulation and interpolation the petitioner has got his sale-deed printed/transcribed on those pages. He submits that therefore, it was a clear case of forgery and the petitioner could not say that there was a sale-deed in existence and the registration of the same had been questioned and had thereafter been looked into by respondent nos. 2 and 3 i.e. Additional District Magistrate (Finance & Revenue), District Moradabad and the Assistant Inspector General (Registration), District Moradabad. Sri Sudhir Mehrotra and Sri Manoj Kumar Sharma, learned counsel for the intervenor have submitted that if there was any cloud on the title of the petitioner then he should have filed a civil suit for the declaration of his title. For that purpose he relies upon a judgment reported in AIR 2014 SC 937 Union of India & Ors. Vs. Vasavi Co-Op. Housing Society Ltd. & Ors. He specifically relies upon paragraph nos. 17 and 20, which have been reproduced hereinunder:-

"....17.This Court in several Judgments has held that the revenue records does not confer title.In Corporation of the City of Bangalore v. M. Papaiah and another (1989) 3 SCC 612 held that "it is firmly established that revenue records are not documents of title, and the question of interpretation of document not being a document of title is not a question of law." In Guru Amarjit Singh v. Rattan Chand and others (1993) 4 SCC 349 this Court has held that "that the entries in jamabandi are not proof of title". In□State of Himachal Pradesh v. Keshav Ram and others (1996) 11 SCC 257 this Court held that "the entries in the revenue papers, by no stretch of imagination can form the basis for declaration of title in favour of the plaintiff."

20. We are of the view that even if the entries in the Record of Rights carry evidentiary value, that itself would not confer any title on the plaintiff on the suit land in question. Ext.X-1 is Classer Register of 1347 which according to the trial court, speaks of the ownership of the plaintiff's vendor's property. We are of the view that these entries, as such, would not confer any title. Plaintiffs have to show, independent of those entries, that the plaintiff's predecessors had title over the property in question and it is that property which they have purchased. The only document that has been produced before the court was the registered family settlement and partition deed dated 11.12.1939 of their predecessor in interest, wherein, admittedly, the suit land in question has not been mentioned."

9. Learned counsel for the intervenor states that in the case cited above, cloud had been cast on the title on the basis of wrong revenue entries and the plaintiff had filed a civil suit and it was held by the Supreme Court that the suit for declaration definitely lay. Further learned counsel for the intervenor had relied upon AIR 2015 Allahabad 174 and had submitted that whenever there is an invasion amounting to denial of title, it gives a fresh right to the petitioner to file a suit and he can always file a suit for declaration in his favour. Similarly, he has relied upon a judgment reported in AIR 1984 Karnataka 153 and has submitted that suit may be instituted under the provisions of Specific Relief Act against the persons denying title of the plot. Learned counsel for the intervenor therefore, has submitted that when the cloud was cast on the title of the petitioner he should have filed a civil suit for declaration of his own rights and if any document/order/entry was coming in his way then by leading of the evidence he could have got the report/inquiry falsified.

10. Learned counsel for the intervenor has submitted that the petitioner had erroneously come to the High Court with a prayer for setting aside of the inquiry report dated 22.5.2019. He has submitted that the setting aside of the inquiry report would demand leading of evidence and that cannot be conveniently done by a Court exercising powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. Learned counsel for the intervenor, Sri Sudhir Mehrotra further had submitted that a perusal of the order under Section 34 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act dated 6.11.2015 definitely shows that it contained a finding that the land which was subject matter of dispute i.e. plot nos. 370/1, 370/2, 371/1, 371/2, 372, 373, 379/1 measuring total area 2.81 acre was subjected to consolidation and the names of the predecessors in the interest of intervenor were entered. He has submitted that once consolidation operations intervened and there was an opportunity to the persons whose names were not entered then any litigation thereafter was barred under Section 49 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953.

11. Sri Sudhir Mehrotra, learned counsel for the intervenor heavily relied upon Section 49 of the U.P. Consolidation of Holdings Act, 1953, which is reproduced hereinunder:-

"49. Bar to civil Courts jurisdiction. - Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the declaration and adjudication of right of tenure-holder in respect of land lying in an area, for which a [notification] has been issued [under sub-section (2) of Section 4] or adjudication of any other right arising out of consolidation proceedings and in regard to which a proceeding could or ought to have been taken under this Act, shall be done in accordance with the provisions of this Act and no Civil or Revenue Court shall entertain any suit or proceeding with respect to rights in such land or with respect to any other matters for which a proceeding could or ought to have been taken under this Act :

[Provided that nothing in this section shall preclude the Assistant Collector from initiating proceedings under Section 122-B of the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 in respect of any land, possession over which has been delivered or deemed to be delivered to a Gaon Sabha under or in accordance with the provisions of this Act.]"

12. Learned counsel for the intervenor further has submitted that if the petitioner is still to get his rights declared then he can always under the civil laws file a civil suit for the declaration of his right under Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act. He can lead all evidence which would enable him to establish that he had a right and title over the property in dispute.

13. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, we are definitely of the view that the writ petition lacks merits and deserves to be dismissed.

14. Learned counsel for the petitioner relying upon Sections 34 of the Registration Act, has contented that once a document regarding the transfer of immovable property is registered, no inquiry with regard to the same can be conducted by the Registering Authority, subsequent to the registration. In the instant case, the allegations and the consequent findings are that the alleged sale deed dated 25.07.1956 had never existed and the same had been interpolated in the records of the Sub-Registrar in place of some pre-existing registered sale deed. Since, the existence of the sale deed in favour of the father of the petitioner herein was not found to be in existence and the petitioner has failed to produce the original sale deed, therefore, on the complaints received, the District Magistrate concerned had directed the inquiry. Thereupon, the respondent nos. 2 and 3 had carried out the inquiry and had found that the sale deed which is dated 25.07.1956 was never in existence and only by interpolation in some pre-existing deed, this sale deed had been created in favour of the father of the petitioner herein. Therefore, in the considered view of this Court where such a fact had been established with regard to the non existence of any particular document then the bar of Section 34 of the Registration Act would not apply.. Therefore, on receipt of such complaints the inquiry conducted by the respondent nos. 2 and 3 cannot be said to be without jurisdiction.

15. The petitioner as we have seen was aggrieved by the cloud cast on his title. He had filed a suit but the suit was only for declaration that the sale-deed registered on 16.9.1961 be declared null and void. He had not filed any civil suit for the declaration of his rights. The law of the land is settled that whenever there is a cloud cast on the title of a person and he claims title then for that purpose he has to file a civil suit and would necessarily lead evidence for the declaration of his right.

16. In the instant case, the petitioner cannot be granted any relief as when the cloud was cast on his title he had not filed any suit for the declaration of his own rights. Further, we as a Court exercising powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India cannot permit the parties to lead evidence here in the High Court for seeing as to whether the inquiry report was based on proper evidence. Had it been an open and shut case where no evidence had to be led then of course, the High Court could have looked into the facts as to whether the order/inquiry report which had declared the entries in the registration register as fabricated was based on correct facts. But in the instant case there are many surrounding circumstances which need to be establish by leading of evidence. Under such circumstances, we consider that no interference is warranted and we do not think it to be a fit case for interference. Accordingly, the writ petition is dismissed.

17. We find that the petitioner's original suit bearing Suit No. 148 of 2014 was dismissed and the petitioner has already filed a First Appeal bearing First Appeal No. 131 of 2023. None of the findings as have been arrived at in this judgment would affect the merits of the First Appeal. It may be decided on its own merits.

18. It may also be noted that we have not passed any order on the merits of the report dated 22.5.2019, which is under challenge.

1. Heard Shri Manoj Kumar Yadav, Advocate holding brief of Shri Ganesh Kumar Gupta, learned counsel for petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has challenged the order dated 20.09.2012 passed by the District Magistrate, Lakhimpur Kheri whereby in exercise of powers under Section 17 of the Arms Act, 1959, he has cancelled the arm licence of the petitioner as well as order dated 03.11.2015 wherein the appeal filed against the order of the cancellation has been rejected by the Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that he was issued an Arm Licece No. 659/95 DBBL Gun No. 7402115. Subsequently, an FIR was lodged against the petitioner and his cousin namely, Sheo Pujan in Case Crime No. 842 of 2010, under Section 3/25/30 of the Arms Act at Police Station Phool Behad, District Kheri where it was alleged that the licensed gun of the petitioner was recovered from Sheo Pujan. Merely on account of recovery of the gun, notice was issued to the petitioner as to why his licence be not cancelled. The petitioner replied to the show cause notice and denied the allegations therein and further submitted that there is no criminal case lodged against the petitioner and only for a short period of time had kept the gun at a particular place and left. When he returned back he found that the gun has been taken away by the police parties and an first information report was lodged. It seems that the petitioner did not participate any further in the proceedings before the Licensing Authority/District Magistrate. Consequently, the impugned order dated 20.09.2012 was passed by the District Magistrate holding that the allegations against the petitioner were correct and cancelled his arm licence.

4. The petitioner, being aggrieved by the order of cancellation of his arm licence, filed an appeal before the Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow. Before the Commissioner, the petitioner has submitted that the allegations levelled against him were false and that the gun was never given in the custody of Sheo Pujan and it is only the fact that the said gun was kept at a plot under the control of Sheo Pujan fromwhere the police team raided and recovered the said weapon. He stated that there was no misuse of any condition of the arm licence and merely on conjectures and hypothesis, the said licence has been cancelled. He further submits that there is no material before the Licensing Authority to come to a conclusion that there was any violation of the condition of the licence and consequently, prayed for allowing of the appeal and setting aside the order of the District Magistrate. The Commissioner has duly recorded the contention of the petitioner and reiterated the findings recorded by the Licensing Authority and rejected his appeal.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner has submitted that firstly merely even if the allegations levelled against him are found to be correct then also it does not construe as a violation of the condition of the arm licence. He further submitted that there was no material before the Licensing Authority to have come to a conclusion that there was violation of the condition of the licence necessitating cancellation of licence. In this regard, he has submitted that though he objected to the allegations levelled against him but none of the objections were considered. He further submitted that the allegations were never proved as no one appeared before the Licensing Authority to prove that the licensed weapon issued to the petitioner was found in the custody of Sheo Pujan.

6. He further submits that along with the show cause notice no material or any statement was made available to the petitioner from which it could be ascertained that there was sufficient material in support of the allegations levelled against the petitioner.

7. I have heard learned counsel for respective parties and perused the record.

8. The only point for consideration as to whether with the allegations levelled against the petitioner were sufficient to enable the Licensing Authority to cancel the arm licence of the petitioner. Undisputed facts are that on 02.04.2010 on the basis of information, the police had raided the plot of one Sheo Pujan, who was closely related to the petitioner. During the raid, the licensed weapon of the petitioner was found in the premises of Sheo Pujan and consequently, an FIR under the Arms Act was registered. The said Sheo Pujan was also taken into custody and he was released on bail on 05.05.2010. Simultaneously a notice was given to the petitioner as to why his arm licence be not cancelled.

9. It is also admitted that there is no allegation that the said weapon was ever used by Sheo Pujan or that he had fired from the said weapon. Mainly it is the case of the prosecution that the recovery of the weapon was made from the premises under control of Sheo Pujan. No evidence was recorded by the Licensing Authority to ascertain the aforesaid facts, which were the very basis of the cancellation of the arm licence. No police official, who was the part of the raid party, was ever examined before the District Magistrate to record a satisfaction with regard to the location from which the weapon was recovered, neither was Sheo Pujan examined nor given notice to appear before the Licensing Authority. Apart from the First Information Report, there was no other material available with the District Magistrate.

10. It is at this stage that Licensing Authority must be reminded of the findings by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Satish Singh Vs. District Magistrate, Sultanpur, 2009 (4) ADJ 33 (LB), has observed in paragraph nos. 6 and 7 as under:-

"6. Needless to say that right to life and liberty are guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India and the arms licenses are granted for personal safety and security after due inquiry by the authorities in accordance with the provisions contained in Arms Act, 1959. The provisions of section 17 of the Arms Act with regard to suspension or cancellation of arms licence cannot be invoked lightly in an arbitrary manner. The provisions contained under section 17 of the Arms Act should be construed strictly and not liberally. The conditions provided therein, should be satisfied by the authorities before proceeding ahead to cancel or suspend an arms licence.

7. We may take notice of the fact that for any reason whatsoever, the crime rate is raising day by day. The Government is not in a position to provide security to each and every person individually. Right to possess arms is statutory right but right to life and liberty is fundamental guaranteed by Article 21 of the Constitution of India. Corollary to it, it is citizen's right to possess firearms for their personal safety to save their family from miscreants. It is often said that ordinarily in a civilized society, only civilized persons require arms licence for their safety and security and not the criminals. Of course, in case the Government feels that arms licence are abused for oblique motive or criminal activities, then appropriate measures may be adopted to check such mal-practice. But arms licence should not be suspended in a routine manner mechanically, without application of mind and keeping in view the letter and spirit of section 17 of the Arms Act."

11. Though in the entire order passed by the Licensing Authority, there is no mention of the particular condition but assuming that the condition relates to an injunction of giving weapon to anyone else possession, then merely because the weapon was found in someone's possession cannot be construed as a violation of condition of licence unless and until it is proven that the particular individual in whose possession the weapon was found had full control and custody of the weapon coupled with the fact the licencee had given the custody voluntarily Further it has also to be considered that the Licencee did not even retain constructive possession of the said weapon.

12. Hon'ble the Supreme Court has discussed "possession' in the case of Superintendent and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs Vs. Anil Kumar Bhunja and others reported in (1974) 4 SCC 274 and has held in paragraph nos. 13, 14, 15, 16 and 28 as under:-

"13. "Possession" is a polymorphous term which may have different mean- ings in different contexts. It is impossible to work out a completely logical and precise definition of "possession" uniformally applicable to all situations in the contexts of all statutes. Dias and Hughes in their book on Jurisprudence say that if a topic ever suffered from too much theorising it is that of "possession". Much of this difficulty and confusion is (as pointed out in Salmond's Juris- prudence, 12th Ed., 1966) caused by the fact that possession is not purely a legal concept. "Possession", implies a right and a fact; the right to enjoy annexed to the right of property and the fact of the real intention. It involves power of control and intent to control. (See Dias and Hughes, ibid.)

14. According to Pollock and Wright,

"When a person is in such a relation to a thing that, so far as regards the thing, he can assume, exercise or resume manual control of it at pleasure, and so far as regards other persons, the thing is under the protection of his personal presence, or in or on a house or land occupied by him or in any receptacle belonging to him and under his control, he is in physical possession of the thing."

15. While recognising that "possession" is not a purely legal concept but also a matter of fact, Salmond (12th Ed., page 52) describes "possession, in fact", as a relationship between a person and a thing. According to the learned author the test for determining "whether a person is in possession of anything is whether he is in general control of it".

16. In Gunwantlal v. State of M.P. (1973) 1 SCR 508, this Court while noting that the concept of possession is not easy to comprehend, held that, in the context of Section 25(a) of the Arms Act, 1959, the possession of a firearm must have, firstly, the element of consciousness or knowledge of that possession in the person charged with such offence, and secondly, he has either the actual physical possession of the firearm, or where he has not such physical possession, he has nonetheless a power or control over that weapon. It was further recognised that whether or not the accused had such control or dominion to constitute his possession of the firearm, is a question of fact depending on the facts of each case.

In that connection, it was observed:

In any disputed question of possession, specific facts submitted or proved will alone establish the existence of the de facto relation of control or the dominion of the person over it necessary to determine whether that person was or was not in possession of the thing in question.

28. Then, in three of these cases, namely, Manzur Husain v. Emperor, Sadh Ram v. State and Emperor v. Harpal Rai, the licence-holder sent his licensed firearm for repairs through a person who had the licence-holder's oral authority, expressly or impliedly given, to carry it to the repairer. It was held that the carrier, though he held no licence to keep the firearm, could not be said to be in "possession" of it, nor could the licence-holder be said to have parted with the "possession" of the firearm or delivered its possession to an unauthorised person. Similarly, in one of the cases cited, the licence-holder sent his fire- arm to the Magistrate through his servant or agent for getting the licence renewed. In that case also, it was held that the servant was not guilty of any offence for having in his possession or "carrying" a gun wihout a licence. The possession was held to be still with the licence-holder-owner of the weapon."

13. Merely because the weapon was found in the possession of other individual cannot be a ground sufficient itself to construe violation of terms and conditions of the licence, inasmuch as, there may be embodied occasions where the licencee has to part away temporarily with the possession of the weapon for retaining constructive possession of the said weapon.

14. For Example, if a person goes to visit a temple or any other place where he is not allowed to carry the weapon, he is under compulsion to part with the possession of the weapon temporarily for a short period of time and during his time another individual has custody but the licencee would certainly have constructive custody of the weapon. In such a situation, though the physical possession of the weapon had been given to another individual but at all point of time, he retained the constructive possession and in such a case it cannot be said that there was a violation of condition of the licence.

15. It is therefore, in the aforesaid circumstances, this Court is of the considered view that when the Licensing Authority/Prescribed Authority has reason to proceed to consider the case where there is a violation of condition of the licence where the weapon has been found in the possession of other person, then there has to be a satisfaction that the licencee did not even have the constructive possession of the weapon at the point of time when the weapon was recovered.

16. Accordingly, this Court is of the considered view that merely because the weapon was found in the premises, which were controlled by cousin brother of the petitioner, cannot lead to a conclusion that the petitioner was not in control of the licensed weapon issued to him. There is no allegation that the petitioner or Sheo Pujan had ever misused the licensed weapon and accordingly, the findings recorded by the District Magistrate as well as the order passed by the appellate authority are arbitrary and accordingly set aside.

17. The writ petition is allowed. The order dated 20.09.2012 passed by the District Magistrate, Lakhimpur Kheri as well as order dated 03.11.2015 passed by the appellate authority are hereby quashed..

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manoj Kumar Gupta, J., & Hon'ble Kshitij Shailendra, J.)

1. Heard Shri S.K. Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioners, Ms. Suman Jaiswal, learned counsel for respondent nos.1 and 5 in Writ-C No.31120 of 2019 and Shri Gautam Kumar, learned counsel for respondent nos.1 and 5 in Writ-C No.33836 of 2019 and Shri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for respondent nos.2, 3 and 4.

2. The petitioners in both the writ petitions have assailed the award dated 26.12.2015 passed by Special Land Acquisition Officer, Joint Organization, Bareilly, one of the respondents. The award has been purportedly made under the saving clause embodied in Section 24(1)(a) of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (for short hereinafter referred to as 'the new Act, 2013').

3. The acquisition was initiated under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (hereinafter referred to as 'the old Act). The notification under Section 4 read with Section 17 of the old Act was issued on 17.10.2005 followed by notification under Section 6 dated 16.10.2006. Since, the provisions of Section 17(4) and 17(1) were invoked at the time of issuance of notifications under Sections 4 and 6 of the old Act respectively, therefore, the State-respondents proceeded to take possession of the acquired land on 18.01.2007, even before making the award. Before award could be made, the new Act, 2013 was enforced with effect from 01.01.2014.

4. Section 24 of the new Act, 2013, which is relevant for the controversy involved in the instant petition, is as follows:

"24. Land acquisition process under Act No. 1 of 1894 shall be deemed to have lapsed in certain cases.–(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Act, in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894,—

(a) where no award under section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply; or

(b) where an award under said section 11 has been made, then such proceedings shall continue under the provisions of the said Land Acquisition Act, as if the said Act has not been repealed.

(2) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-section (1), in case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 (1 of 1894), where an award under the said section 11 has been made five years or more prior to the commencement of this Act but the physical possession of the land has not been taken or the compensation has not been paid the said proceedings shall be deemed to have lapsed and the appropriate Government, if it so chooses, shall initiate the proceedings of such land acquisition afresh in accordance with the provisions of this Act:

Provided that where an award has been made and compensation in respect of a majority of land holdings has not been deposited in the account of the beneficiaries, then, all beneficiaries specified in the notification for acquisition under section 4 of the said Land Acquisition Act, shall be entitled to compensation in accordance with the provisions of this Act."

5. Thus, under Clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 24 where no award under Section 11 of the old Act has been made, then all provisions of the new Act, 2013 relating to determination of compensation have been made applicable. However, the Special Land Acquisition Officer, while making award on 26.12.2015, admittedly, after enforcement of the new Act, 2013, determined the compensation with reference to the date of notification under Section 4 of the old Act i.e., 17.10.2005. He took into consideration the sale deeds executed three years prior to the notification under Section 4 and placing reliance on a sale deed dated 20.06.2005 executed by Nanu Ram, Moti Ram, Chatarni Lal, Hori Lal sons of Bhajan Lal in favour of Om Wati wife of Shyam Bihari in respect of Gata no.222/0.061 hectare at the rate of 60,000/hectare determined the compensation.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioners contended that in view of express language of sub-section (1) of Section 24 read with Central Government Notification dated 26.10.2015, the reference date for determining the compensation would be 1st of January, 2014 and not the date of notification under Section 4 of the old Act. In support of his contention, he placed reliance on Division Bench judgements of this Court in Writ-C No.44731 of 2016 (Hori Lal vs. State of U.P. and 3 Others), Writ-C No.15804 of 2016 (Prahlad Singh and 6 Others vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others), Writ-C No.44720 of 2016 (Krishna Autar and 5 Others vs. State of U.P. and 3 Others), Writ-C No.60276 of 2015 (Ishan International Educational Society Thru' Director vs. State of U.P. and 3 Others) and in Writ-C No.30088 of 2022 (Smt. Sabita Sharma and 2 Others vs. State of U.P. and 2 Others) decided on 07.04.2023.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the Central Government tried to contend that the award impugned rightly determines the compensation with reference to the date under Section 4 of the old Act. It is urged that the compensation amount under the impugned award has already been deposited with the Special Land Acquisition Officer and, now, there is no occasion to interfere with the same.

8. Shri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents adopts the same line of argument.

9. Thus, the main issue for consideration is the date in relation to which the value of the acquired land was to be determined while making award under the saving clause embodied in Section 24(1)(a) of the new Act, 2013.

10. In Smt. Sabita Sharma (supra), a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court, after examining various earlier Division Bench judgements of this Court and most of which were upheld with the dismissal of special leave petitions filed before the Supreme Court and in one case, namely, Hori Lal vs. State of U.P. and 3 Others with dismissal of Civil Appeal No.1462 of 2019, held that the relevant date would be 01.01.2014 i.e., the date of commencement of the new Act, 2013. The judgement takes notice of Section 113 of the new Act, 2013, which empowers the Central Government to make such provisions or give such directions not inconsistent with the provisions of the new Act, 2013, as may appear to it to be necessary or expedient for removal of the difficulty. It has been held that in exercise of said power, the Central Government had issued a D.O. No.13013/01/2014-LRD(Pt) dated 26.10.2015 wherein the issue at hand was specifically answered in reference to a query raised by the Government of Maharashtra. The relevant part of the said D.O. is extracted below:

S. No.	Issues raised by the Government of Maharashtra	Opinion of the DoLR
1.	While determining the amount of compensation under Section 27 of the RFCTLAR&R Act, 2013 of Hon'ble	Under Section 26 of the RFCTLAR&R Act, 2013 market value of land is determined while under section 27, value of all assets attached to the land is added to the Supreme Court's orders are followed or cost of assets have to be separately computed in addition to cost of land?	market value to determine the amount of compensation. Thus, it is not contradictory to the Supreme Court's orders quoted in the letter of Maharashtra Government.

2.	Under Section 24(1), the reference date for calculating 12% interest should be date of preliminary notification under Land Acquisition Act, 1894.	Under section 24(1), the reference date for calculating 12% interest should be date of preliminary notification under Land Acquisition Act, 1894. Department of Land Resources agrees to this, as there is no other reference date, that can be treated as equivalent to date of SIA notification under the RFCTLAR&R Act, 2013.
3.	For calculation of market value, under Section 24(1)(a), reference date should be 01.01.2014 (commencement of RFCTLAR&R Act, 2013) or date of issuing preliminary notification under Land Acquisition Act, 1894?	The reference date for calculation of market value, under Section 24(1)(a) should be 01.01.2014 (commencement of RFCTLAR&R Act, 2013), as the Section reads "in any case of land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, where no award under section 11 of the said Land Acquisition Act has been made, then, all provisions of this Act relating to the determination of compensation shall apply. Under section 26 reference date is date of preliminary notification, but section 24 is a special case of application of the Act in retrospective cases, and a later date of determination of market value is suggested (i.e., 01.01.2014) with a view to ensure that the land owners/farmers/affected families get enhanced compensation under the provisions of the RFCTLAR&R Act, 2013 (as also recommended by Standing Committee in its 31st report).

11. The Division Bench, thereafter, concluded as follows:

"From a perusal of the D.O. letter dated 26th October, 2015, issued by the concerned Ministry of the Central Government forwarded to the Principal Secretary of the State of U.P., for information and necessary action, it is evident that the said direction was made in order to remove difficulty arose in giving effect to the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, in the matter of calculation of market value under Section 24(1)(a), in the land acquisition proceedings initiated under the Act, 1894. The said directions issued by the Central Government being in exercise of the power under Section 113 of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013 have statutory force and are binding on all the State Government being in view of the power conferred on the Central Government to make such provision or give such directions which are not inconsistent with the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013, for removal of any difficulty arising in giving effect to the provisions of the RFCTLARR Act, 2013."

12. It is noteworthy that when same view was taken by an earlier Division Bench in Hori Lal (supra), the matter travelled to Supreme Court and the Civil Appeal No.1462 of 2019 (Hori Lal vs. State of U.P. and Others) was dismissed by the Supreme Court repelling the contention that the relevant date would be the date on which the award was made. The view taken by the Division Bench of this Court that relevant date would be 1st of January, 2014 was thereby upheld. The relevant extract from the said judgement of the Supreme Court is as follows:

"20. We, therefore, find no good ground to accept the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant when he contended that the date for determining the compensation should be the date on which the Land Acquisition Officer passed the award. This argument does not have any basis and is, therefore, not acceptable for the simple reason that such date is not provided either in the old Act, 1894 or in the Act, 2013.

21. Indeed, how the compensation is required to be determined and with reference to what date, is provided under the Act and admittedly the date suggested by the learned counsel is not the date prescribed either in the old Act or the new Act. This submission has, therefore, no merit and deserves to be rejected. It is accordingly rejected.

22. We, therefore, find no good ground to take a different view than what was taken by the High Court in the impugned order"

13. In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the issue is no more res integra. The relevant date for determining the compensation in respect of acquisition initiated under the old Act but where award could not be made by the time the new Act, 2013 came into force, would be 1st of January, 2014 i.e., the date of commencement of the new Act, 2013.

14. Concededly, in the instant case, the market value has been determined by taking into consideration the exemplar sale deed of the year of issuance of notification under Section 4 of the old Act, which is contrary to the legislative intent and the law laid down in series of Division Bench judgements of this Court referred to above.

15. As a result, the impugned award is hereby quashed. The Special Land Acquisition Officer is directed to pass fresh award treating the relevant date with reference to which market value is to be determined as 01.01.2014, the date of commencement of the new Act, 2013.

16. The aforesaid exercise shall be completed within a period of twelve weeks from the date of communication of the instant order.

17. In the result, the writ petitions are allowed. No order as to costs.

1. Heard Sri Om Prakash Rai, learned counsel for the petitioners, learned Standing Counsel and perused the record.

2. This writ petition has been filed challenging the orders dated 05.06.2023 passed by Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Bulandshahar in Misc. Case No. 545 of 2023 & 555 of 2023 directing for part release of the compensation awarded in claim petition i.e. Motor Accident Claim Petition No. 468 of 2015 and directing the remaining amount to be invested in a Fixed Deposit.

3. Brief facts of the case are that one Ganpat Singh son of Aidal Singh died in a road accident on 19.08.2015 at about 08:00P.M. involving fortuner car No. UP81 CB 7686. Claim petition No. 468 of 2015 was filed by the claimants i.e. parents of the deceased Ganpat Singh along with two unmarried sisters and one brother of the deceased under Section 166 of the Motor Vehicle Act. The aforesaid claim petition was allowed by the Motor Accident Claim Tribunal/ Additional District Judge, Court No. 12, Bulandshahar vide its award dated 24.10.2017. Motor Accident Claims Tribunal awarded a sum of Rs. 15,39,000/- to be paid by the Insurance Company along with an interest @ 7% per annum from the date of filing of the application. The claimant nos. 3, 4 & 5 who were sisters and brother of the deceased Ganpat Singh were held not entitled for compensation by the tribunal as they were not dependent upon the deceased Ganpat Singh. Parents of the deceased Ganpat Singh i.e. claimant nos. 1 & 2 were given compensation in equal shares. The tribunal vide award dated 24.10.2017 directed for a payment of Rs. 2,00,000/- to each of the claimants i.e. claimant nos. 1 & 2 and directed that the remaining amount shall be deposited in a nationalized bank having maximum interest.

4. The claimants filed First Appeal From Order No. 264 of 2018 (Premwati and 4 others v. Ikbal and 2 others) before the High Court challenging the judgment and award dated 24.10.2017 and has also claimed the enhancement of compensation. The aforesaid F.A.F.O. was allowed in part by this Court by judgment dated 22.02.2022. The High Court awarded the compensation of Rs. 23,65,000/- to the claimants along with interest @ 7.5% per annum.

5. The Insurance Company in compliance of the judgment passed by this Court in F.A.F.O. No. 264 of 2018, deposited the entire amount before the Claims Tribunal.

6. The petitioner no. 1, Aidal Singh moved an application on 03.05.2023 before the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal for payment of F.D.R. No. 961094 of Rs. 2,97,300/- dated 24.02.2023 along with interest to the petitioner no. 1 on the ground that the marriage of his daughter is to be held on 11.06.2023. The aforesaid application was registered as Misc. Case No. 555 of 2023. A similar application was also moved by the petitioner no. 2 regarding F.D.R. No. 961093 of Rs. 2,97,300/- dated 24.02.2023 on the ground of settlement of marriage of her daughter Km. Vimlesh. The aforesaid application was registered as Misc. Case No. 554 of 2023. In support of their claim, the petitioners also annexed the marriage card.

7. The Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Bulandshahar by its two separate orders dated 05.06.2023 in Misc. Case No. 554 of 2023 & 555 of 2023 directed for release of Rs. 1,50,000/- in favour of each of the claimant/petitioner and has further directed that the remaining amount shall be reinvested in a new Fixed Deposit. Being aggrieved by the order impugned dated 05.06.2023 passed by the Motor Accident Claims Tribunal, Bulandshahar, the present writ petition has been filed.

8. Contention of the learned counsel for the petitioner is that the tribunal has erred in law in not releasing the amount of F.D.R. in favour of the claimants/petitioners and the direction for further deposit of the remaining amount in Fixed Deposit is wholly arbitrary. It has also been contended by the learned counsel for the petitioner that the son of the petitioner Ganpat Singh died in the year 2015 and at that time the petitioner nos. 1 & 2 were 49 years old and now they are aged about 57 years having two unmarried daughters and one son. The application for withdrawal was moved for meeting out the expenses likely to be incurred in the marriage of their daughter Km. Vimlesh.

9. Per contra, learned Standing Counsel appearing for respondent no. 1 contended that the orders passed by the Tribunal are perfectly just and are also in consonance with the law as laid down by the Apex Court in case of General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation v. Sushamma Thomas and others reported in 1994 (1) TAC 323 as well as Rule 220-B of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 1998.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgment of this Court in case of Runna v. Vth Additional District Judge/Motor Accident Claim Tribunal, Gorakhpur reported in II (1999) ACC 268, judgment of Kerala High Court in Case of Zainba v. M.A.C.T. reported in II (1999) ACC 567 and in case of Sudha Agnihotri v. M.A.C.T./Additional District Judge, Court No. 4, Agra and others reported in 2005 LawSuit (All) 2165.

11. Before considering the rival submissions and the law relied upon by the respective parties, it would be useful to refer the statutory provisions as contained in U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 1998. The relevant rule is Rule 220-B which is quoted as under:

"220-B. Securing the interest of Claimants.—(1) Where any lump-sum amount of compensation, deposited with the Claims Tribunal is payable to a woman or a person under legal disability/ such sum may be invested, applied or otherwise dealt with for the benefit of the woman or such person during his disability in such manner as the Claims Tribunal may direct to be paid to any dependent of the injured or heirs of the deceased or to any other person whom the Claims Tribunal thinks best fitted to provide for the welfare of the injured or the heir of the deceased.

(2) Where an application made to the Claims Tribunal in this behalf otherwise, the Claims Tribunal is satisfied that on account of neglect of the children on the part of the parents, or on account of the variation of the circumstances of any dependent, or for any other sufficient cause, an order of the Claims Tribunal as to the distribution of any sum paid as compensation or as to the manner in which any sum payable to any such dependent is to be invested applied or otherwise dealt with, ought to be varied, the Claims Tribunal may make such further orders for the variation of the former order as it thinks just in the circumstances of the case.

(3) The Claims Tribunal shall, in the case of minor, order that amount of compensation awarded to such minor be invested in fixed deposits till such minor attains majority. The expenses incurred by the guardian or the next friend may be allowed to be withdrawn by such guardian or the next friend from such deposits before it is deposited : Provided that the interest payable on such deposits may be allowed to be utilized for education, maintenance and development of the minor with the permission of the Claims Tribunal.

(4) The Claims Tribunal shall, in the case of illiterate claimants, order that the amount of compensation awarded be invested in fixed deposits for a minimum period of three years, but if any amount is required for effecting purchase of any movable or immovable property for improving the income of the claimant, the Claims Tribunal may consider such a request after being satisfied that the amount would be actually spent for the purpose and the demand is not a ruse to withdraw money.

(5) The Claims Tribunal shall, in the case of semi-literate person resort to the procedure for the deposit or award amounts set out in sub-rule (4) unless if is satisfied, for reasons to be recorded in writing that the whole or part of the amount is required for the expansion of any existing business or for the purchase of some property as specified and mentioned, in sub-rule (4) in which case the Claims Tribunal shall ensure that the amount is invested for the purpose for which it is prayed for and paid.

(6) The Claims Tribunal may in the case of literate persons also resort to the procedure for deposit of awarded amount specified in sub-rules (4) and (5) if having regard to the age, fiscal background and state of society to which the claimant belongs and such other consideration/ the Claims Tribunal in the larger interest of the claimant and with a view to ensure the safety of the compensation awarded, thinks it necessary to order.

(7) The Claims Tribunal, may in personal injury cases, if further treatment is necessary, on being satisfied which shall be recorded in writing, permit the withdrawal of such amount as is necessary for the expenses of such treatment.

(8) The Claims Tribunal may, in the matter of investment of money, have regard to maximum return by ways of periodical income to the claimant, deposit with public sector undertaking of the State or Central Government which offers higher rate of interest.

(9) The Claims Tribunal shall, in investing money, direct that the interest on the deposits be paid directly to the claimants or the guardian of the minor claimants by the institution holding the deposits under intimation to the Claims Tribunal].''

12. In General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation v. Sushamma Thomas (Supra) , the Supreme Court issued certain guidelines in order to safeguard the feed from being frittered away by the beneficiaries due to ignorance, illiteracy and susceptibility to exploitation. The said guidelines are extracted below:

"(i).The claims Tribunal should, in the case of minors, invariably order amount of compensation awarded to the minor invested in long term fixed deposited at least till the date of the minor attaining majority. The expenses incurred by the guardian or next friend may however, be allowed to be withdrawn.

(ii). In the case of illiterate claimants also the Claims Tribunal should follow the procedure set out in (i) above, but if lump sum payment is required for effecting purchases of any movable or immovable property such as agricultural implements, rickshaw, etc. to earn a living the Tribunal may consider such a request after making sure that the amount is actually spent for the purpose and the demand is not a ruse to withdraw money.

(iii). In the case of semi-literate persons the Tribunal should ordinarily resort to the procedure set out in (i) above unless it is satisfied for reasons to be stated in writing, that the whole or part of the amount is required for expending any existing business or for purchasing some property as mentioned in (ii) above for earning his livelihood in which case the Tribunal will ensure that the amount is invested for the purpose for which it is demanded and paid.

(iv). In the case of literate persons also the Tribunal may resort to the procedure indicated in (i) above subject to the realization set out in (ii) and (iii) above, if having regard to the age, fiscal background and strata of society to which the claimant belongs and such other considerations, the Tribunal in the larger interest of the claimant and with a view to ensuring the safety of the compensation awarded to him thinks it necessary to so order.

(v). In the case of widows the claims Tribunal should invariably follow the procedure set out in (i) above.

(vi). In personal injury cases, if further treatment is necessary the Claims Tribunal on being satisfied about the same, which shall be recorded in writing, permit withdrawal of such amount as is necessary for incurring the expenses for such treatment.

(vii). In all cases in which investment in long term fixed deposits is made it should be an condition that the bank will not permit any loan or advance on the fixed deposit and interest on the amount invested is paid monthly directly to the claimant or his guardian, as the case may be.

(viii). In all cases Tribunal should grant to the claimants liberty to apply for withdrawal in case of an emergency. To meet with such a contingency if the amount awarded is substantial the Claims Tribunal may invest it in more than one fixed deposit so that if need be one such F.D.R. can be liquidated."

13. These guidelines have now been incorporated by the legislature and the Rule 220-B of the U.P. Motor Vehicle Rules, 1998 have been inserted in the rules.

14. In case of Runna v. Vth Additional District Judge (Supra), this Court held that there is no dispute that the petitioner is a major and hence it is for her to decide what to do with money which has been awarded, and set-aside the order dated 16.05.1996 and directed that a sum of Rs. 75,000/- alongwith interest which may have accrued thereupon be paid to the petitioner forthwith. (para-2)

15. In case of Zainba v. M.A.C.T. (Supra), the money was directed to be deposited in Fixed Deposit by the Tribunal. After the Fixed Deposit matured, the petitioner moved an application for release of the said amount in order to meet the expenses of the marriage of her grand daughter. According to the petitioner her daughter is a divorcee and she require the money for their livelihood. The application was rejected by the Tribunal stating that the Tribunal was not satisfied that the need is genuine. The Kerala High Court held that since five years have already over and the petitioner is a widow lady and she is claiming only her share, there is no reason to reject her application for release of her share.

16. In case of Sudha Agnihotri v. M.A.C.T. (supra), this Court has held in paragraph no. 4 as under:

"4. After respective arguments have been advanced undisputed position is that husband of the petitioner met with an accient and died. Claim petition of the petitioner and two others was allowed and as far as petitioner is concerned one lac of rupees was awarded to her out of which a sum of Rs. 20,000 has been paid and remaining eighty thousand has been invested in the fixed deposit. Award in question does not disclose as to in what way and manner said amount in question was to be paid: it merely mentioned that from the date of order aforesaid amount in question be paid with 8% simple interest. Petitioner is major and educated lady and has done beautician course from Mahila Training Centre, Shastri Nagar, Kanpur and she intends to settle herself, for which she has taken decision for opening a beauty parlour for which she needs funds. Apart from rupees eighty thousand she has got she has no other source of income. Petitioner intends to establish herself independently for which she has taken decision for opening beauty parlour. Petitioner is major and fully competent and capable to decide her future and as such withdrawal of the amount must be left at her will and as such at this staeg when petitioner took decision to start business for herself, it would be totally unfair to retain the said amount in the Nationalized Bank, in case petitioner would have been illiterate lady and could not understand her interest then position would have been different but here petitioner is well educated lady and understands her future."

17. The judgment in case of General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation v. Sushamma Thomas (Supra) was considered and explained by the Apex Court in case of A.V. Padma and others v. R. Venugopal and others reported in (2012) 3 SCC 378, wherein the Apex Court has held in para nos. 6, 7, 8, 9 & 10 as under:

"6. Even as per the guidelines issued by this Court Court, long term fixed deposit of amount of compensation is mandatory only in the case of minors, illiterate claimants and widows. In the case of illiterate claimants, the Tribunal is allowed to consider the request for lumpsum payment for effecting purchase of any movable property such as agricultural implements, rickshaws etc. to earn a living. However, in such cases, the Tribunal shall make sure that the amount is actually spent for the purpose and the demand is not a ruse to withdraw money. In the case of semi-illiterate claimants, the Tribunal should ordinarily invest the amount of compensation in long term fixed deposit. But if the Tribunal is satisfied for reasons to be stated in writing that the whole or part of the amount is required for expanding an existing business or for purchasing some property for earning a livelihood, the Tribunal can release the whole or part of the amount of compensation to the claimant provided the Tribunal will ensure that the amount is invested for the purpose for which it is demanded and paid. In the case of literate persons, it is not mandatory to invest the amount of compensation in long term fixed deposit.

7. The expression used in guideline No. (iv) issued by this Court is that in the case of literate persons also the Tribunal may resort to the procedure indicated in guideline No. (i), whereas in the guideline Nos. (i), (ii), (iii) and (v), the expression used is that the Tribunal should. Moreover, in the case of literate persons, the Tribunal may resort to the procedure indicated in guideline No. (i) only if, having regard to the age, fiscal background and strata of the society to which the claimant belongs and such other considerations, the Tribunal thinks that in the larger interest of the claimant and with a view to ensure the safety of the compensation awarded, it is necessary to invest the amount of compensation in long term fixed deposit.

8. Thus, sufficient discretion has been given to the Tribunal not to insist on investment of the compensation amount in long term fixed deposit and to release even the whole amount in the case of literate persons. However, the Tribunals are often taking a very rigid stand and are mechanically ordering in almost all cases that the amount of compensation shall be invested in long term fixed deposit. They are taking such a rigid and mechanical approach without understanding and appreciating the distinction drawn by this Court in the case of minors, illiterate claimants and widows and in the case of semi-literate and literate persons. It needs to be clarified that the above guidelines were issued by this Court only to safeguard the interests of the claimants, particularly the minors, illiterates and others whose amounts are sought to be withdrawn on some fictitious grounds. The guidelines were not to be understood to mean that the Tribunals were to take a rigid stand while considering an application seeking release of the money.

9. The guidelines cast a responsibility on the Tribunals to pass appropriate orders after examining each case on its own merits. However, it is seen that even in cases when there is no possibility or chance of the feed being frittered away by the beneficiary owing to ignorance, illiteracy or susceptibility to exploitation, investment of the amount of compensation in long term fixed deposit is directed by the Tribunals as a matter of course and in a routine manner, ignoring the object and the spirit of the guidelines issued by this Court and the genuine requirements of the claimants. Even in the case of literate persons, the Tribunals are automatically ordering investment of the amount of compensation in long term fixed deposit without recording that having regard to the age or fiscal background or the strata of the society to which the claimant belongs or such other considerations, the Tribunal thinks it necessary to direct such investment in the larger interests of the claimant and with a view to ensure the safety of the compensation awarded to him.

10. The Tribunals very often dispose of the claimant's application for withdrawal of the amount of compensation in a mechanical manner and without proper application of mind. This has resulted in serious injustice and hardship to the claimants. The Tribunals appear to think that in view of the guidelines issued by this Court, in every case the amount of compensation should be invested in long term fixed deposit and under no circumstances the Tribunal can release the entire amount of compensation to the claimant even if it is required by him. Hence a change of attitude and approach on the part of the Tribunals is necessary in the interest of justice."

18. From the law as laid down by the Apex Court it is clear that the guidelines were issued to keep the amount in a Fixed Deposit for a period of time only in the case of minors, illiterate claimants and widow.

19. In the instant case, the Court finds that the tribunal has taken a very rigid stand and has mechanically passed the order without understanding and without appreciating the distinction drawn by the Supreme Court. In the present case, the claimants/petitioners lost their son in the year 2015 and at that time the petitioners/claimants were aged about 49 years and when they moved the application for release of the amount in June, 2023, they were aged about 57 years and have responsibility of three children of marriageable age. The award was passed in the year 2017 and the money was invested in Fixed Deposit.

20. The guidelines has been issued in case of General Manager, Kerala State Road Transport Corporation v. Sushamma Thomas (Supra) which have now been incorporated in the Rules was only to safeguard the interest of the claimants particularly the minors and the illiterate. These guidelines were not meant to understood to mean that the tribunal was suppose to take a rigid stand while considering the application of the petitioners for the release of money.

21. In the present case, the application was filed for release of the money so that the petitioners' daughter could get married. Proof of this fact was also filed before the tribunal but the tribunal has failed to understand the urgency in the matter and has mechanically passed the orders. There is nothing to show that the petitioners are illiterate on the other hand a genuine reason has been given by the petitioner for release of the balance amount.

22. Considering the facts of this case that the claimants are now aged about 57 years having responsibility of two daughters and one son and particularly that the award was passed in the year 2017 of an accident which has taken place in the year 2015, there is no reason to not allow the application of the petitioners in its entirety.

23. The Court is of the opinion that the direction for further investment in Fixed Deposit as contained in the order impugned cannot be sustained and therefore, the impugned order dated 05.06.2023 is hereby quashed to the extent its directs for depositing the remaining amount in Fixed Deposit.

24. The writ petition is allowed.

25. The petitioners are entitled for the release of amount as prayed by them. The tribunal is directed to release the amount and the interest accrued immediately upon receipt of the certified copy of this order.

CONSTITUTION OF INDIA — Article 226 — Maintainability of writ petition — Arbitral award under National Highways Act, 1956 — Alternative remedy under Section 34 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Exceptions.

Where an arbitral award passed by the Collector under Section 3G(5) of the National Highways Act, 1956 is challenged on the ground that directions issued by the District Judge in proceedings under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 have been completely ignored, the writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution is maintainable. Availability of an alternative statutory remedy is not an absolute bar where the authority has acted in defiance of judicial discipline and fundamental principles of procedure.

NATIONAL HIGHWAYS ACT, 1956 — Section 3G(5) & (7) — Determination of compensation — Duty of Arbitrator.
The Arbitrator is under a statutory obligation to independently assess market value by considering sale exemplars, potentiality of land, location, surrounding development and other parameters specified in Section 3G(7). Mechanical reliance upon the award of the Special Land Acquisition Officer or stamp duty rates, without independent application of mind, renders the award unsustainable.

ARBITRATION AND CONCILIATION ACT, 1996 — Section 34 — Effect of remand order — Binding nature.
Once an arbitral award is set aside by the District Judge under Section 34 with specific findings and directions, the Arbitrator, being a subordinate authority, is bound to decide the matter afresh strictly in accordance with such directions. Failure to comply with remand directions amounts to violation of judicial discipline and vitiates the subsequent award.

LAND ACQUISITION — Market value — Revenue entries — Relevance.
Market value of acquired land cannot be determined solely on the basis of its classification in revenue records. Absence of declaration under Section 143 of the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 is not conclusive for denying compensation based on commercial potential where surrounding development, location and sale deeds indicate higher market value.

JUDICIAL DISCIPLINE — Subordinate authorities — Duty to follow superior court orders.
Orders passed by superior courts or appellate authorities are binding on subordinate authorities. Ignoring or bypassing directions contained in a remand order constitutes jurisdictional error and results in illegality apparent on the face of the record.

WRIT JURISDICTION — Alternative remedy — Exceptions.
The rule of exhaustion of alternative remedies is a rule of discretion and not of compulsion. Writ jurisdiction can be exercised where the authority has acted without jurisdiction, in violation of principles of natural justice, or in disregard of binding judicial directions.

ORDER — Arbitral award quashed — Matter remitted.
Arbitral award passed by the Collector after remand, without compliance of directions issued by the District Judge, held illegal and quashed. Petitioner left at liberty to seek fresh determination by the Arbitrator strictly in accordance with remand directions.

1. These two connected writ petitions arise out of same controversy and, therefore, were heard together. Since all the relevant facts and arguments are covered by Writ C No.33840 of 2023, a detailed judgement is being pronounced treating the said writ petition as the leading one and after conclusion of the judgement in the said writ petition, a separate order shall be passed in the connected Writ C No.42177 of 2023.

2. The Writ C No.33840 of 2023 under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed assailing the order/award dated 28.07.2023 passed by the Collector, Jhansi in the capacity of Arbitrator under the provisions of Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act of 1996') made applicable by virtue of Section 3G(6) of the National Highways Act, 1956 (hereinafter referred to as 'the Act of 1956') in Case No. 2337 of 2023 (Computerized Case No.D202306370002337) (Dr. Rajeev Sinha v. National Highways Authority of India, Jhansi), with a further prayer directing the District Magistrate /Collector /Arbitrator, Jhansi to decide the said case in terms of guidelines/directions contained in the judgment and order dated 27.04.2022 passed by the District Judge, Jhansi.

THE WRIT PETITION

3. The facts of the case are that the petitioner purchased part of land covered by Plot No.481, ad-measuring 0.230 hectares, i.e. 2300 sq. mtrs., situated in Village Koncha Bhanwar, Pargana, Tehsil and District-Jhansi, vide registered sale deeds dated 27.03.1993 and 04.02.1994. It is pleaded that, in exercise of powers under the Act of 1956, the Central Government issued a notification dated 03.09.2009 under Section 3A of the Act which was followed by notification dated 09.04.2010 under Section 3D of the Act acquiring the petitioner's land and the Special Land Acquisition Officer, assessing the market value of the land @ Rs.15 lacs per hectare and attaching certain value to the constructions existing thereon, declared an award dated 30.09.2010. The petitioner approached the Competent Authority as per Section 3G(5) of the Act of 1956 whereafter an Arbitration Case No.521 of 2012 was registered before Collector/ District Magistrate, Jhansi. The Arbitrator declared his award on 15.09.2017 on the lines of the Special Land Acquisition Officer principally on the ground that the land had not been declared as 'abadi' under Section 143 of the UP. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as 'U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act') and, therefore, would continue to remain an 'agricultural land'.

4. The petitioner assailed the award dated 15.09.2017 by availing statutory remedy under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 made applicable by virtue of Section 3G(6) of the Act of 1956. The District Judge, Jhansi, by judgment and order dated 27.04.2022, passed in Misc. Case No.12 of 2017 under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, set aside the award dated 15.09.2017 and remanded the matter to the Arbitrator for fresh consideration in the light of observations made in the order itself after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties. After remand, the District Magistrate/Collector, Jhansi, as Arbitrator, has, by the order impugned dated 28.07.2023, rejected the reference holding that the compensation awarded under the award dated 30.09.2010 was according the law and that the petitioner was not entitled to any further compensation. It is this order of the Arbitrator which is under challenge in the present writ petition and has been assailed mainly on the ground that the directions contained in the order of the District Judge dated 27.04.2022 have not been followed by the Arbitrator. The detailed arguments advanced on behalf of the petitioner shall be noted at appropriate place in this judgement.

PREVIOUS PROCEEDINGS IN THE INSTANT CASE

5. This Court, in its order dated 04.10.2023, noted the main contention advanced on behalf of the petitioner that the Collector had chosen to overlook the directions issued by the District Judge and, by making some observations, this Court directed the learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel to communicate the order to the State-respondents for due compliance. Later on, by an order dated 02.11.2023, Shri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel was granted further time to enable the Collector to revisit the matter and file a fresh affidavit. Then, the order dated 08.11.2023 records that the respondent No.3 (Collector, Jhansi) has recalled the order dated 28.07.2023 fixing 10.11.2023 as date of hearing and learned counsel representing the National Highways Authority of India (hereinafter referred to as 'N.H.A.I.') was granted time to obtain instructions. Thereafter, various dates were fixed and, in the meantime, the fresh order dated 03.11.2023 passed by the Collector, Jhansi whereby he had recalled the order dated 28.07.2023 (impugned in the present writ petition) was challenged by the N.H.A.I. by filing Writ C No.42177 of 2023 (National Highways Authority Of India v. State of U.P. and Another) which was directed to be connected with the present writ petition and both the matters were heard simultaneously.

COUNTER AFFIDAVIT OF THE STATE RESPONDENTS

6. In the present case, though the State-respondents initially justified passing of the order impugned dated 28.07.2023 making various submissions in the affidavits of certain officers, later on, the State came up with the stand that since the Collector had already recalled order dated 28.07.2023, the State-Authorities were ready to comply with the directions issued by this Court or any other court of law. Therefore, the N.H.A.I. remained the only contesting party and, hence, the Court proceeds to examine the defence taken in the counter affidavit filed on behalf of N.H.A.I.

COUNTER AFFIDAVIT OF THE N.H.A.I.

7. The counter affidavit filed on behalf of N.H.A.I. principally raises an objection regarding maintainability of the present writ petition by taking aid of Section 34 of the Act of 1996 and it has been stated that since the said provision speaks that recourse to the Court against an arbitral award may be made only by an application for setting aside such award in accordance with sub-sections (2) and (3), challenge made by the petitioner to the award of the Collector by means of the present writ petition under Article 226 would tantamount to by-passing statutory alternative remedy and, hence, the writ petition should be dismissed on this ground alone. Further pleadings in the counter affidavit are that even the subsequent exercise carried out by the Arbitrator, in terms of the order dated 03.11.2023, is unsustainable due to the fact that, after making the award, the Arbitrator became functus officio, having no power/jurisdiction to make changes in his decision. The defence taken by N.H.A.I. in relation to the order dated 03.11.2023 has been made a ground of challenge by it in the connected Writ C No.42177 of 2023. Reference to certain Authorities of the Hon'ble Supreme Court has been made to contend that writ jurisdiction cannot be invoked once the matter arises from arbitral award. The Authorities would be referred to at appropriate place in this judgement.

8. On merits of the order dated 28.07.2023, impugned in the present writ petition, it has been pleaded that as per Section 26 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act of 2013'), read with Section 3G(7)(a) of the Act, 1956, the criteria that shall be adopted by the Collector would be referable to the market value of the property acquired as specified in the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 for registration of the sale deeds or agreements to sell and it is further pleaded that the Arbitrator had considered the sale deeds of three years prior to the date of notification issued under Section 3A of the Act of 1956 and, therefore, even on merits, the writ petition has no force.

REJOINDER AFFIDAVIT

9. The petitioner has filed a rejoinder affidavit against the counter affidavit of N.H.A.I. and, by placing reliance upon certain judgements of the Apex Court (that shall be referred to herein-later), it has been pleaded that the petitioner had already availed the statutory remedy provided under the Act by approaching the District Judge against the award of the Collector, however, since the directions issued by the District Judge in the order of remand dated 27.04.2022 have been given a complete go-by, it would not be a case of by-passing the statutory remedy under Section 34 of the Act of 1996. Further stand is that when the Authority fails to adopt the judicial procedure required for taking a decision, the existence of alleged alternative remedy would not be a bar in entertainment of writ petition. On merits of the impugned award dated 28.07.2023, it has been pleaded that the Arbitrator has failed to consider the sale deeds for the purposes of determination of market value and has violated the provisions of Section 3G(7)(a) of the Act of 1956 read with Section 26 of the Act, 2013 and not only the documents placed on record but also the directions issued by the District Judge in her order dated 27.04.2022 were ignored. Further stand is that mere revenue entries cannot be construed to determine the market value of the land.

COUNSEL HEARD

10. Heard Shri Navin Sinha, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Utkarsh Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner, Shri Raghav Dwivedi, learned counsel for respondent No.2-National Highways Authority of India and Shri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel on behalf of State-respondent No.3-the District Magistrate/Collector/Arbitrator, Jhansi.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE PETITIONER

11. Shri Navin Sinha, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner has made following submissions:-

(a) Once the District Judge, in her order dated 27.04.2022, particularly in paragraph Nos.14, 15, 16 and 18 thereof, clearly observed that the Arbitrator who had passed the award dated 30.09.2010 had not proceeded to independently assess the market value of the land and had given the award only on the basis of there being no declaration under Section 143 of the U.P. Z.A. L.R. Act and had refrained himself from going through the sale deeds filed as exemplars and had also ignored the potentiality of land ignoring certain judgements, the Collector/Arbitrator, being an Authority sub-ordinate to the District Judge, was bound in law to declare an award strictly in consonance with the observations made and guidelines issued by the Superior Court/Authority i.e. the District Judge;

(b) the remand order passed by the District Judge being not a subject matter of challenge before any superior forum, was binding upon sub-ordinate authority, i.e. the Collector and, hence, he was supposed to decide the matter strictly in accordance with the directions contained in the earlier order;

(c) the test for determining the compensation is as to what price a prospective buyer is willing to pay to the prospective seller in an open market and the utility of land would not be judged merely on the basis of its entry in the revenue records;

(d) the petitioner's land is adjoining to the existing Highway and just near to the boundary of Maharani Laxmibai Medical College, Jhansi and within proximity of about 1 to 1.5Kms, there are number of schools, nursing homes and Government Engineering College and also towards Gwalior at a distance of half kms, there is Government Para-Medical College and, further, all around the petitioner's land, commercial activities are going on and as per the circle rates notified by the District Magistrate/Collector, the land falls in the commercial category. Even for the purposes of levy of stamp duty, certain rates applicable in the area w.e.f. 07.01.2008 to 01.02.2010 have been referred to and it is submitted that the market value of the petitioner's land, at the time of notifications in reference, was about Rs.18,000/- per square mtrs. It is further argued that in view of the special location of the petitioner's land adjoining to the National Highway, a further 10 % was required to be added and, hence, the market value of the petitioner's land would become about Rs.19,800/- per sq. mtrs. Various other facts and circumstances justifying the market value towards higher side have been pointed out to the Court;

(e) As regards the objection raised by N.H.A.I. with regard to maintainability of writ petition on the ground of remedy available under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, reference to the decision of the Apex Court in the case of (State of Himachal Pradesh & Ors. v. Gujarat Ambuja Cement Ltd & Anr.) (2005) 6 SCC 499 and another judgement in the Commercial of Income Tax and Ors. v. Chhabil Dass Agarwal (2014) 1 SCC 603 has been made and it has been argued that when the Authority fails to adopt judicial procedure required for passing a decision, the writ petition would be maintainable, even if, there is any alternative remedy; and

(f) since the Collector has recalled the order impugned dated 28.07.2023 by his subsequent order dated 03.11.2023, in any case, there has to be a fresh adjudication by the Collector on merits as per directions contained in the order dated 27.04.2022 passed by the District Judge.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE STATE RESPONDENTS

12. Shri Rajiv Gupta, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the State-respondents, though initially justified passing of the order impugned by referring to certain aspects, which according to the State, were rightly discussed by the Collector in the order impugned, however, later on, it was argued that since the Collector, in furtherance of the orders issued by this Court in the present writ petition, has already recalled the order dated 28.07.2023, the challenge made to the order impugned does not survive and the writ petition should be dismissed as infructuous but in any case, the State-Authorities are ready to comply with the directions issued by this Court or any other court of law.

SUBMISSIONS OF THE N.H.A.I.

13. Shri Raghav Dwivedi, learned counsel appearing for N.H.A.I. has vehemently opposed the writ petition and by emphatically pressing the stand taken in the counter affidavit, it has been argued that the legislative intent enshrined under Section 34(1) of the Act of 1996 is clear to the effect that challenge to the arbitral award can be made only by filing an application for setting aside such award before the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, i.e. the District Judge and, once the petitioner earlier approached the District Judge against the award declared on a previous occasion, the same recourse should be taken this time also. Learned counsel has referred to the decision of Supreme Court in the case of Bhawan Constructions v. Executive Engineer, (2022) 1 S.C.C. 75 in support of his contention. He further submits that even on merits, the order impugned dated 28.07.2023 is perfectly in accordance with law as the Collector has exercised his powers as per Section 3G(7)(a) of the Act, 1956 read with Section 26 of the Act of 2013 and, hence, no interference is required.

ANALYSIS OF RIVAL CONTENTIONS

14. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, the first question that arises for consideration by this Court is as to whether, in view of a remedy provided under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 against an award passed by the Arbitrator under Section 3G(5) of the Act of 1956, the challenge made to the order dated 28.07.2023, impugned in the present writ petition, filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India can be turned down.

15. Admittedly, in the present case, an award was made by the Special Land Acquisition Officer, Joint Organisation, Jhansi on 30.09.2010, against which, the petitioner availed remedy under Section 3G(5) of the Act of 1956 by approaching the Arbitrator/District Magistrate, Jhansi where the dispute was registered as Arbitration Case No. 521 of 2012 (Dr. Rajeev Sinha v. N.H.A.I & Others). The said Arbitrator declared his award on 15.09.2017 on merits which was set aside by the District Judge, Jhansi in exercise of powers under Section 34 of the Act of 1996 by order dated 27.04.2022 and following findings were recorded:-

(a). The Arbitrator did not consider any material on record, which could go to show the market value of the land in question. He rather took into consideration the valuation done on behalf of N.H.A.I., who is one of the opposite sides. The Arbitrator did not proceed to independently assess market value;

(b). The Arbitrator, while coming to a conclusion that there had not been any declaration of change of land use under Section 143 of the U.P. Z.A.L.R. Act, completely ignored the provisions of Section 3G(7) of the Act of 1956 which mandates taking into consideration various parameters while determining the amount under sub-section (1) of Section 5 of Section 3(G);

(c). The Arbitrator was bound to take into consideration the market value on the date of publication of notification;

(d). As per the judgements of the High Court in Shiv Ram Singh v. State of U.P., (2019) 6 ADJ 741 read with P.P. Buildcon Pvt. Ltd. v. Chief Controlling Revenue & Ors., 2014 (7) ADJ 663, as well as judgements of the Apex Court in the case of O.N.G.C. Ltd. v. Western GECO International Ltd. (2014) 9 SCC 263 and Union of India & Anr. v. Tarsem Singh & Ors. (2019) 9 SCC 304, the principles for determination of compensation had not been considered;

(e). The view of the Arbitrator that sale deeds executed between 04.10.2008 and 05.10.2009, as recorded by the Special Land Acquisition Officer, were examined by the Sub Registrar, Jhansi, however, the Arbitrator, before observing that the sale deeds were not found to be of any utility by the said officials as they did not match the local conditions of the land acquired, committed a patent error in not examining the sale deeds himself;

(f). The Arbitrator, who was expected to embark on the inquiry by himself in the matter, was not justified in ignoring the potentiality of land and, hence, his order is a non-speaking one;

(g). The market value of the land is to be assessed on the basis of factors like situation, surroundings and other topographical traits as well as its probable use.

16. The District Judge, in the operative portion of the order dated 27.04.2022, while setting aside the arbitral award dated 15.09.2017, issued a clear direction to the Arbitral Tribunal, i.e. the Arbitrator/Collector, Jhansi to decide the case afresh, in the light of observations given in the body of the order after affording opportunity of hearing to both the sides. Therefore, the Arbitrator was certainly bound by the directions issued and all the observations recorded in the order of the District Judge, however, the Court finds from perusal of the order impugned dated 28.07.2023 that the Arbitrator/Collector, in one and half page, has considered absolutely nothing, except what had been recorded by the Special Land Acquisition Officer in the initial award dated 30.09.2010. The so-called reasoning recorded in the order impugned reads as follows:-

"मैंने सक्षम प्राधिकारी की पत्रावली तलब कर उसका गहनता से अध्ययन किया गया। प्रकरण में तथ्य निम्न प्रकार है। वादी द्वारा अपनी भूमि को न तो धारा-143 ज०उ० एक्ट के अन्तर्गत आवासीय घोषित कराया गया और न ही कोई इस आशय का साक्ष्य वादी द्वारा प्रस्तुत किया गया। जिससे यह स्पष्ट हो सके कि उक्त भूमि अकृषक भूमि है और इसका उपयोग अकृषक भूमि के रूप में होता रहा।

यह कि ग्राम-कोछाभावर की अर्जित भूमि के बाजारू मूल्य की जानकारी हेतु धारा 3ए की अधिसूचना दिनांक 03-09-2009 भारत के राजपत्र असाधारण दिनांक 03-09-2009 के प्रकाशन के एक वर्ष पूर्व दिनांक 04-10-2008 से 05-10-2009 तक की अबधि में निष्पादित विक्रय पत्रों का संकलन सब रजिस्ट्रार कार्यालय, झाँसी से कराया गया। उक्त विक्रय पत्रों के आधार पर आने वाली भूमि के बाजार दर के अनुरूप न होने के कारण उक्त विक्रय पत्रों को अस्वीकार करने के उपरान्त अब मात्र स्टाम्प ड्यूटी हेतु जिलाधिकारी द्वारा निर्धारित बाजार दर पर विचार करना न्यायोचित समझा। तदनुसार अर्जित भूमि में निहित समस्त गाटा संख्याओ के लिए मु०15,00,000=00 रूपया प्रति हैक्टेयर एवं परिसम्पत्ति की नाप-जोख परियोजना निदेशक, भारतीय राष्ट्रीय राजमार्ग प्राधिकरण, झाँसी द्वारा अधिकृत सुगम इंटर नेशनल संस्थान (एन०जी०ओ०) द्वारा की गयी जिसे परियोजना निदेशक, भारतीय राष्ट्रीय राजमार्ग प्राधिकरण, झाँसी द्वारा सत्यापित किया

आर०डी० 2020 (147) पेज 199 पर मा० उच्चतम न्यायालय, नई दिल्ली ने भी सिविल अपील संख्या-7346 सन् 2010 अपर आयुक्त राजस्व व अन्य बनाम अखलाक हुसैन व अन्य में स्पष्ट रूप से अवधारित किया गया है कि उ०प्र० जमींदारी विनाश एवं भूमि व्यवस्था अधिनियम, 1950 धारायें 143 एवं 3(14) भूमि की प्रकृति क्या कृषिकीय है या अकृषिकीय निर्धारित की जायेगी। अधिनियम की धारा-143 के अन्तर्गत निर्धारण के अभाव में भूमि अधिनियम की धारा-3(14) के प्राविधानों के अन्तर्गत कृषिसीय मानी जायेगी।

भूमि की वास्तविक भौतिक स्थिति जो भूमि अधिग्रहण के समय होगी उसी के आधार पर मूल्यांकन किया जाना ही विधिक व्यवस्थाओं के अनुरूप होता है। इसलिए एवार्ड दिनांक 30-09-2010 में भूमि कृषकीय थी इसलिए धारा-3(14) जमीदारी विनाश अधिनियम के अन्तर्गत अधिग्रहीत भूमि कृषकीय मानी जायेगी।

यह कि वादी द्वारा भूमि की दरों के निर्धारण के सम्बन्ध में दौरान मुकदमा प्रस्तुत किये गये अभिलेखों, भूमि अधिग्रहण सम्बन्धी मूल वाद पत्रावली पर उपलब्ध अभिलेखों इत्यादि, बहस में प्रस्तुत तर्को एवं मा० न्यायालय जिला न्यायाधीश, झाँसी द्वारा पारित आदेश दिनांक 27-04-2022 को संज्ञान में रखकर प्रकरण में अर्न्तनिहित समस्त बिन्दुओं पर विचारोपरान्त मेरा यह स्पष्ट मत है कि सक्षम प्राधिकारी / विशेष भूमि अध्याप्ति अधिकारी, झाँसी ने एवार्ड आदेश दिनांक 30-09-2010 के अन्तर्गत भूमि / परिसम्पत्ति का जो मूल्य निर्धारित किया है वह सही है। जिसे यथावत रखना उचित प्रतीत होता है और उसे निरस्त किया जाना न्यायोचित नही है। विद्वान सक्षम प्राधिकारी / विशेष भूमि अध्याप्ति अधिकारी, झाँसी ने एवार्ड के अन्तर्गत प्रतिकर राशि के अतिरिक्त 10 प्रतिशत अतिरिक्त धनराशि भी अनुमन्य की है। उपरोक्त समीक्षा के फलस्वरूप वादी अर्जित भूमि / परिसम्पत्ति के प्रतिकर के रूप में कोई अतिरिक्त धनराशि पाने का अधिकारी नही है।

यह कि वादी को अर्जित भूमि / परिसम्पत्ति का एवार्ड दिनांक 30-09-2010 द्वारा दिया गया प्रतिकर नियमानुसार है। अतः वादी प्रतिकर के रूप में कोई अतिरिक्त धनराशि पाने का अधिकारी नही है। प्रस्तुत वादपत्र तदनुसार निर्णीत किया जाता है। पत्रावली दाखिल दफ्तर की जाये। "

17. It is apparently clear from the order impugned that not even a single direction issued by the District Judge in the order of remand dated 27.04.2022 has been obeyed and, in fact, the Arbitrator/Collector has not even discussed any of the directions in the entire order impugned. This Court seriously deprecates the approach of the Arbitrator/Collector who is vested with statutory powers to determine lawful compensation as per the scheme of the Act of 1956 and, therefore, once the Court superior to him analyzed each and every aspect of the initial award dated 30.09.2010 as well as the arbitral award dated 15.09.2017 and set aside the same after recording findings on merits of the petitioner's claim as regards market value of the land on the date of notifications acquiring the land, the Arbitrator/Collector was bound to follow the quasi-judicial discipline and record finding on each of the parameters discussed by the learned District Judge. The Court finds that the Arbitrator/Collector has simply referred to the non-declaration under Section 143 U.P. Z.A. L.R. Act and swept away the sale deeds produced by the petitioner in a single line that only the stamp duty determined by the Collector has to be considered. In the considered opinion of this Court, the Arbitrator/ Collector has expressly violated the directions issued by the District Judge in order dated 27.04.2022.

18. As regards the discretion of the High Courts to entertain writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, despite a remedy provided under any statute, law in this regard needs reiteration.

19. The Constitution Bench of Supreme Court, in the case of State of U.P. v. Mohammad Nooh, AIR 1958 Supreme Court 86, has held that there is no rule with regard to Certiorari as there is with Mandamus, that it will lie only where there is no other equally effective remedy. A Writ of Certiorari will lie, provided the requisite grounds exist, although a right of appeal has been conferred by Statute. It was observed that the fact that the aggrieved party had another adequate remedy may be taken into consideration by the superior court in arriving at a conclusion as to whether it should, in exercise of its discretion, issue a Writ of Certiorari to quash the proceedings and decisions of inferior courts subordinate to it and, ordinarily, the superior court will decline to interfere until the aggrieved party has exhausted other statutory remedies, if any. This rule requiring the exhaustion of statutory remedies before the writ will be granted is a rule of policy, convenience and discretion rather than a rule of law.

20. Another Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court, in the case of K.S. Rashid & Son v. Income Tax Investigation Commission & Ors., AIR 1954 SC 207, observes that there are only two limitations placed upon the exercise of the powers by a High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution; one is that the power is to be exercised "throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction", that is to say, the writs issued by the Court cannot run beyond the territories subject to its jurisdiction. The other limitation is that the person or authority to whom the High Court is empowered to issue writs "must be within those territories" and this implies that they must be amenable to its jurisdiction either by residence or location within those territories. It is with reference to these two conditions thus mentioned that the jurisdiction of the High Courts to issue writs under Article 226 of the Constitution is to be determined.

21. The Supreme Court, in the case of Ram and Shyam Company v. State of Haryana and Others, (1985) 3 S.C.C. 267, laid down that ordinarily it is true that the court has imposed a restraint in its own wisdom on its exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226 where the party invoking the jurisdiction has an effective, adequate alternative remedy. More often, it has been expressly stated that the rule which requires the exhaustion of alternative remedies is a rule of convenience and discretion rather than rule of law. At any rate, it does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court.

22. The three judges Bench of the Supreme Court, in the case of Sangram Singh v. Election Tribunal Kotah And Another, A.I.R. 1955 S.C. 425, observed that the jurisdiction which Articles 226 and 136 confer, entitles the High Courts and the Supreme Court to examine the decisions of all Tribunals to see whether they have acted illegally. That jurisdiction cannot be taken away by a legislative device that purports to confer power on a tribunal to act illegally by enacting a statute that its illegal acts shall become legal the moment the tribunal chooses to say they are legal. The legality of an act or conclusion is something that exists outside and apart from the decision of an inferior tribunal. It is a part of the law of the land which cannot be finally determined or altered by any tribunal of limited jurisdiction. The High Courts and the Supreme Court alone can determine what the law of the land is vis-avis all other courts and tribunals and they alone can pronounce with authority and finality on what is legal and what is not. All that an inferior tribunal can do is to reach a tentative conclusion which is subject to review under Articles 226 and 136.

23. The Supreme Court, in the case of Commissioner of Income Tax and Others v. Chhabil Dass Agarwal, (2014) 1 S.C.C. 603, spelt out at least five illustrative and non-exhaustive exceptions to the rule of exhaustion of remedies as follows:-

(i) Where remedy available under statute is not effective but only mere formality with no substantial relief; or

(ii) Where statutory authority not acted in accordance with provisions of enactment in question, or ;

(iii) Where statutory authority acted in defiance of fundamental principles of judicial procedure, or;

(iv) Where statutory authority resorted to invoke provisions which are repealed, or;

(v) Where statutory authority passed an order in total violation of principles of natural justice.

24. A Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court, in State of Madhya Pradesh and Anr. Bhailal Bhai, AIR 1964 SC 1006, held that the power to give relief under Article 226 of the Constitution is a discretionary power. Similar view has been reiterated in N.T. Veluswami Thevar v. G. Raja Nainar and Others, AIR 1959 SC 422; Municipal Council, Khurai and Anr. v. Kamal Kumar and Another, AIR 1965 SC 1321; Siliguri Municipality and Others v. Amalendu Das and Others, AIR 1984 SC 653; S.T. Muthusami v. K. Natarajan, AIR 1988 SC 616; Rajasthan SRTC v. Krishna Kant, AIR 1995 SC 1715; Kerala State Electricity Board and Anr. v. Kurien E. Kalathil and Others, AIR 2000 SC 2573; A. Venkatasubbiah Naidu v. S. Chellappan, (2000) 7 SCC 695; and L.L. Sudhakar Reddy and Others v. State of Andhra Pradesh and Others, (2001) 6 SCC 634; Shri Sant Sadguru Janardan Swami (Moingiri Maharaj) Sahakari Dugdha Utpadak Sanstha and Anr. v. State of Maharashtra and others, (2001) 8 SCC 509; Pratap Singh and Anr. v. State of Haryana, (2002) 7 SCC 484 and G.K.N. Driveshafts (India) Ltd. v. Income Tax Officer and Others, (2003) 1 SCC 72.

25. In Harbans Lal Sahnia v. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., (2003) 2 SCC 107, the Supreme Court held that the rule of exclusion of writ jurisdiction by availability of alternative remedy is a rule of discretion and not one of compulsion and the Court must consider the pros and cons of the case and then may interfere if it comes to the conclusion that the petitioner seeks enforcement of any of the fundamental rights; where there is failure of principles of natural justice or where the orders or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act is challenged…..... But normally, the High Court should not entertain writ petitions unless it is shown that there is something more in a case, something going to the root of the jurisdiction of the officer, something which would show that it would be a case of palpable injustice to the writ petitioner to force him to adopt the remedies provided by the statute. Reference to another judgement of Supreme Court in the case of Harbanslal Sahnia & Anr. v. Indian Oil Corpn. Ltd. & Ors., JT 2002 (10) SC 561 can be made, in which also the view taken by the Supreme Court is that the rule of exclusion of Writ Jurisdiction by availability of alternative remedy is the rule of discretion and not one which is compulsory.

26. In view of the above discussion, the argument of learned counsel for NHAI that the writ petition should be dismissed on the ground of availability of alternative remedy under Section 34 of the Act of 1996, does not have any force in the facts and circumstances of the present case and this Court is satisfied that the instant case falls within the well recognised exceptions to the general rule of exhaustion of alternative remedies, as held above by the Supreme Court and, therefore, the present writ petition is not liable to the dismissed on this ground.

27. As regards the duty of a Court to which matter is remanded by its superior court/authority, a learned Single Judge of this Court, in a case arising out of U.P. Imposition of Ceiling of Land Holdings Act, 1961, reported as Ram Nagina Chaudhary v. State of U.P. and Others, 1978 AWC 610, deprecated the approach of the Prescribed Authority acting in ignorance of the directions issued by its superior court that had remanded the matter to it. This Court referred to the remand order which observed that the Prescribed Authority should have made inquiries to find out as to what was share of the appellant in the concerned plots and that the case should go back to the Prescribed Authority for fresh decision after inquiry in that respect. While referring to the operative portion of the remand order which directed the Prescribed Authority to take a fresh decision in the light of the observations made in the body of the order, this Court observed that by not following the directions contained in the remand order, not only the Prescribed Authority but also, subsequently, the Appellate Authority committed the errors and mistakes that were apparent on the face of the record and set aside the said illegal orders.

28. A learned Single Judge of the Calcutta High Court, in Scientific Instruments Company Ltd. v. Collector of Customs & Anr., AIR 1976 Calcutta 38, was dealing with a case arising out of Customs Act, 1962 and the rules framed thereunder and found that the Assistant Collector acted in excess of his jurisdiction and in violation of the order of the Appellate Authority. The Court held that the Assistant Collector's jurisdiction and powers were limited by the order of the Appellate Authority and it was his duty to comply with it. The High Court, having found the order being contrary to the directions of the Appellate Authority as illegal, unjustified and without jurisdiction as well as an error apparent on the very face of it, set aside the same and issued appropriate directions to the Assistant Collector of Customs to proceed to re-determine the issue involved in accordance with law in compliance of the order passed by the Appellate Authority within stipulated period of time.

29. The Supreme Court, in Union of India And Others v. Kamlakshi Finance Corporation Ltd., 1992 Supp (1) SCC 443, was dealing with a case under Central Excise Act, 1944 and found that order of the Appellate Collector is binding on the Assistant Collectors working within jurisdiction and the order of the Tribunal is binding upon the Assistant Collectors and the Appellate Collectors who function under the jurisdiction of the Tribunal. It was held that the principles of judicial discipline require that the orders of the higher appellate authorities should be followed unreservedly by the subordinate authorities and if this healthy rule is not followed, the result will only be undue harassment to assessees and chaos in administration.

30. In the present case, this Court is fully satisfied that Arbitrator/Collector, Jhansi has acted in defiance of fundamental principles of judicial procedure particularly by not following the directions of the learned District Judge, as aforesaid, and in view of the above discussion, the order impugned dated 28.07.2023 cannot sustain on merits and is liable to the quashed despite the fact that it has been recalled by the Collector on 03.11.2023, inasmuch as, reasons for setting aside the order on merits were required to be recorded in the present judgement so that the fresh exercise to be carried out by the Arbitrator/Collector Jhansi even after recalling his order, should be strictly in accordance with law and based upon material on record, as noted by the District Judge in the order of remand dated 27.04.2022.

31. Accordingly, the writ petition succeeds and stands allowed.

32. The order impugned dated 28.07.2023, passed by the District Magistrate/Arbitrator/Collector, Jhansi in Case No.2337 of 2023 (Dr. Rajeev Sinha v. National Highways Authority of India) is hereby quashed.

33. It is left open to the petitioner to approach the Arbitrator/ Collector, Jhansi for passing fresh award strictly in consonance with the directions issued in the order dated 27.04.2022 passed by the District Judge, Jhansi in Misc. Case No. 12 of 2017, as reiterated in this judgement.

Mining Lease – Uttar Pradesh Minor Mineral (Concession) Rules, 2021 – Rule 23(2)(d) – Right of First Refusal – Co-Sharers' Consent – Compensation for Non-Participating Co-Sharer – Validity of District Magistrate's Order

The petitioners, seven co-sharers along with respondent no. 5, owned plots (Nos. 454, 460, 461-Ka, 461-Kha, totaling 1.9330 hectares) in Village Billi Markundi, District Sonbhadra, suitable for mining Situ Rock (Dolostone). Under Rule 23(2)(d) of the 2021 Rules, they consented to mining on their private land. After e-tender, the highest bid was Rs. 400 per cubic meter by respondent no. 4. The petitioners offered Rs. 401 per cubic meter, exercising their right of first refusal, but respondent no. 5, a co-sharer, refused to bid higher. The District Magistrate, on 04.09.2023, approved the lease for respondent no. 4, which was challenged. Held: The District Magistrate's order was unsustainable as Rule 23(2)(d) allows landowners offering a higher bid than the highest tender to secure the lease, while non-participating co-sharers, like respondent no. 5, are entitled only to compensation as fixed by the St. Government. Respondent no. 5's objections, including alleged family settlement disputes and petitioners' agreement with a third party, were irrelevant, as they did not affect the petitioners' statutory right to the lease. The availability of appellate or revisional remedies was immaterial, as no further issues required adjudication. The impugned order was quashed, and the petitioners were granted the mining lease, with respondent no. 5 entitled to compensation as per Rule 23(2)(d).

(Delivered by Hon'ble Siddharth Varma, J. & Hon'ble Shekhar B. Saraf, J.)

1. The petitioners, who are seven in number, and the respondent no.5 are co-sharers of plot no.454 area 0.5190 hectare; plot no.460 area 0.0760 hectare; plot no.461-Ka area 0.9360 hectare and plot no.461-kha area 0.4020 hectare. Out of the total area of these four plots which exceeded 1.1 hectare, an area of 1.100 hectare was found, after inspection, fit for mining of Situ Rock (Dolostone) and it was decided by the District Magistrate to invite bids by way of e-tender for mining of the minerals found in the four plots which were situated in village Billi Markundi, Pargana Agori, Tehsil Obra, District Sonbhadra.

2. Before the e-tender took place to get the highest bid for the mineral available, the petitioners and the respondent no.5 had given their consent to the District Mining Officer, Sonbhadra that they were ready and willing to get the minerals excavated from their private land as per Rule 23(2)(d) of the Uttar Pradesh Minor Mineral (Concession) Rules, 2021 (hereinafter referred to as the "Rules"). Rule 23(2)(d) of the Rules is being reproduced here as under :-

(c) .....

(d) Naturally available in-situ-rock type mineral found in private land of minimum area one hectare shall be leased out for a maximum period of ten years through e-tender/e-auction/e-tender cum e-auction:

Provided that in respective mine area the District Officer after confirming the availability of mineral, suitability of area, certificate of land ownership, land owner's affidavit for consent, shall process e-tender/e-auction/e-tender cum e-auction after determination of quantity and period not exceeding ten years. The land owner/owners after completion of e-auction process of the are will take cognizance of the highest bid and within seven working days get an opportunity to present an offer higher than the highest bid before the District Officer having territorial jurisdiction over the concerned area. If this right of first refusal is not exercised by the land owner/owners, the lease will be approved in favour of the highest bidder and the land owner/owners will have the right to receive a compensation equal to the amount as decided by the State Government from time to time, which will be in addition to the amount payable to the State Government. Payment to land owner/owners will be mandatory along with the payment to the State Government."

3. After the land owners had given their consent for excavation of the minerals from the four plots which were in their ownership, they had waited for the tenders to be made public and when it was found that the highest bidder i.e. the respondent no.4 had given a tender for Rs.400 per cubic meters then the petitioners and the respondent no.5 were put to notice on 19.8.2023 by the District Magistrate, Sonbhadra as per the proviso to Rule 23(2)(d) as to whether they were ready to take the mining rights at a rate higher than Rs.400 per cubic meters. In response to the notice dated 19.8.2023, the petitioners submitted their consent for taking the lease and for doing the mining work on the plots in question at the rate of Rs.401 per cubic meters. This meant that the petitioners had offered that the lease be finally executed in their favour at a rate which was Re.1/- higher than the rate which was offered by the highest bidder. However, the respondent no.5, who was also a co-sharer along with the seven petitioners, backed out and he did not give any rate for the minerals which were to be mined from the plots in question. Resultantly thereof, the District Magistrate on 4.9.2023 approved the lease in favour of respondent no.4-M/s. Mahadev Mining and passed the impugned order on 4.9.2023, which is under challenge in this writ petition.

4. Assailing the order passed by the District Magistrate on 4.9.2023, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioners Sri H.N. Singh assisted by Sri Anil Kumar Shukla and Sri Abhishek Kumar, Advocates essentially raised the following grounds :-

(i) If the land owners, who had given their consent for their land to be auctioned, did not accept the mining right at a price over and above the highest bid then they would be given the compensation as would be decided and given by the State Government. In the instant case, learned counsel for the petitioners submitted that if the petitioners were given the mining rights then the respondent no.5 who was also a co-sharer and had not offered to mine at a rate higher than the highest bidder then he would definitely be given the compensation as per his share. This is the compensation he would have received had the highest bidder been given the lease.

(ii) Learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that when initially the petitioners and the respondent no.5 were ready to give the land, which was in their possession, for mining purposes then definitely the respondent no.5, in the event he decided not to take the mining lease, would only get the compensation commensurate to his share.

(iii) Learned counsel for the petitioners has submitted that if the respondent no.5 was submitting, as it had been stated in the short counter affidavit, that the petitioners had in fact entered into an agreement with one Balwant Singh, son of Paras Singh, who according to the respondent no.5 would actually mine the minerals, then it mattered a little, as firstly the alleged agreement was an unregistered agreement and also if the petitioners would sub-lease, they would suffer the consequences of sub-letting the lease rights and, therefore, the grounds raised in the counter affidavit were of no consequence.

(iv) What is more, the petitioners had submitted that the approval dated 4.9.2023 would enable the respondent no.4 to get the letter of intent which meant that the respondent no.4 would get the lease in his favour and the respondent no.5 would get the compensation as would be fixed by the State Government. Learned counsel, therefore, submitted that if the petitioners got the lease to mine from the land in question then also the respondent no.5 would only get the compensation fixed by the Government.

(v) Under such circumstances, it was submitted by the petitioners that if the land was to be mined by the petitioners then the respondent no.5 was only to get a compensation. It mattered little as to who would mine, the highest bidder or the owners who had given a bid higher than the highest bid.

5. Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri A.K.S. Parihar, learned counsel appearing for respondent no.5, however, has submitted that the petitioners if were aggrieved by the impugned order, which had been passed by the District Magistrate, then they had a right of Appeal under Rule 79 of the Rules and thereafter they had a right to file a Revision. He has submitted that even though Ram Ji Dubey had 1/3rd share in the property, the family settlement dated 30.4.1992 which was being depended upon by the petitioners had given the respondent no.5 a lesser share. Learned Senior Counsel for the respondent no.5 further submitted that the petitioners had in fact sold their mining rights to Balwant Singh without the consent of respondent no.5.

6. Learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel Ms. Priyanka Midha supported the impugned order and submitted that the petitioners could not get any right once one co-sharer had refused to get the mining rights.

7. Having heard Sri H.N. Singh, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Anil Kumar Shukla and Sri Abhishek Kumar, learned counsel for the petitioners; Ms. Priyanka Midha, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for respondent nos.1, 2 and 3 and Sri Shashi Nandan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri A.K.S. Parihar, learned counsel for respondent no.5, we are of the view that the order dated 4.9.2023 cannot be sustained in the eyes of law.

8. The petitioners along with the respondent no.5 had with open eyes consented to the mining of their land which was their Bhumidhari. The petitioners and the respondent no.5 would be entitled for the compensation if the respondent no.4 mined the minerals from the land in question. Also such of the owners who did not give a higher bid would get the compensation while the owners who gave a higher bid would get into the mining work. We are also of the view that the ground which had been taken by the respondent no.5 that there was no family settlement dated 30.4.1992 is not tenable. The earlier "no objection" was given on the basis of the settlement which had settled the share and now it did not lie the mouth of respondent no.5 to say he was being given a lesser share. If the respondent no.4 mines, the respondent no.5 would get only such compensation as he was entitled for. Therefore, it was wrong on the part of the respondent no.5, to say that the petitioners were lessening his share in the property and, therefore, they may not be given the right to mine. We are also of the view that the partnership which the respondent no.5 alleges had been entered into by the petitioners and one Balwant Singh was not to come in the way of the mining lease to the petitioners. If the petitioners had entered into in a partnership with any outsider and if sub-letting was not allowed then they would suffer the consequences. However, since this ground was not taken by the District Magistrate, it is not required to be dealt with in this order. Still further, the ground taken by the respondents that the petitioners had an alternative remedy of filing an Appeal and thereafter a Revision has no legs to stand. The petitioners and the respondent no.5 had offered their lands to the District Magistrate for mining purposes as per Rule 23(2)(d) of the Rules. The bids were invited and when the petitioners had offered their bid which was higher than the highest bid then nothing further had to be decided. The respondent no.5 would get the compensation as per the proviso to Rule 23(2)(d) of the Rules just as he would have got had the highest bidder in the tender got the lease. Since nothing further had to be decided and only the question that who should be granted the mining lease had to be looked into when the respondent no.5 had refused to take the mining rights despite the fact that he had earlier given his consent, we are of the view that nothing further could have been decided by the Appellate Court and thus the case was not required to be relegated to the Appellate or Revisional forum.

9. Under such circumstances, the order dated 4.9.2023 passed by the District Magistrate, Sonbhadra is quashed and is set-aside. The petitioners may now be given the mining lease for mining on the land in question comprising plot no.454 area 0.5190 hectare; plot no.460 area 0.0760 hectare; plot no.461-Ka area 0.9360 hectare and plot no.461-kha area 0.4020 hectare situated in village Billi Markundi, Pargana Agori, Tehsil Obra, District Sonbhadra forthwith. The respondent no.5 would be given the compensation as is envisaged in the proviso to Rule 23(2)(d) of the Rules.

10. With these observations, the writ petition stands allowed.

Civil Law - Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 (MSMED Act) – Sections 8, 18, 24 – U.P. Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976 – Sections 2(c), 5 & 22 – Jurisdiction of Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council – Financial Services – Registration Requirement – Maintainability of Writ Petition

The petitioner, a cold storage company registered under the MSMED Act for warehousing and storage services, sought recovery of a loan of Rs. 4,09,022/- with 18% interest from farmers (respondents nos. 2 and 3) through the U.P. Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Facilitation Council, Kanpur. The Council dismissed the claim on 29.07.2022 (signed 14.08.2023), holding it lacked jurisdiction as the petitioner was not registered for financial services under the MSMED Act, and the loan was not covered under cold storage services as per the U.P. Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976. The petitioner challenged this order, arguing that financial services were incidental to cold storage under Section 22 of the 1976 Act and covered by the MSMED Act's overriding effect (Section 24). Held: Financial services are distinct from cold storage services, as defined under Section 2(c) and regulated by Sections 5 and 22 of the 1976 Act, and require separate registration under the MSMED Act (NIC Code 64). The petitioner's loan, advanced at 18% interest on 09.03.2018, exceeded the permissible rate under Section 22 and was not against pledged goods, thus falling outside the 1976 Act's scope. The petitioner's registration under the MSMED Act for warehousing (NIC Code 52101) did not cover financial services, and its application for modification of NIC Code was made post-loan (24.09.2018). As per Silpi Industries Vs Kerala St. Road Transport Corporation (2021) 18 SCC 790, benefits under the MSMED Act apply only to services registered at the time of the contract, not retrospectively. The Council correctly held it lacked jurisdiction. The writ petition was maintainable under Article 226 as the Council's order was not an arbitral award but a refusal to exercise jurisdiction. However, the order was upheld as no illegality was found.

Petition was dismissed.

1. Heard Shri Amit Saxena, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Shri Mushir Khan, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Manish Goyal, learned Addl. Advocate General assisted by Shri Fuzail Ahmad Ansari, learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents.

Facts of the case

2. M/s Neeraj Potato Preservation and Food Products Pvt. Ltd. (in short "the petitioner company") is in the business of running cold storage at Shivrajpur. The farmers of that area grow crops and use the petitioner's facility for storage of their potatoes and other crops and for this purpose the company charges rent/ fees (for the services provided) for keeping the crop in cold storage facility. When the farmers come to take back their crop, they pay the charges according to the period of storage and area occupied in petitioner's cold storage. The respondent nos.2 and 3 are the farmers, who had used the services of the petitioner's cold storage. They had stored their potatoes to be sold in the market at a suitable time. While the produce of the farmers is kept in cold storage, the farmers sometimes need financial assistance towards the input cost needed for fresh sowing, which may be provided by the petitioner company. Accordingly, the respondent nos.2 and 3, who needed financial assistance to sow their next crop took a loan from the petitioner company of Rs.4,09,022/-. It seems that the respondent nos.2 and 3 did not pay back the loan to the petitioner. The petitioner, claiming itself to be Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSME) registered under the Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Development Act, 2006 (in short "MSMED Act") had filed a claim petition before the 'U.P. Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises Facilitation Council, Kanpur Nagar' (in short "the Council") on 24.12.2020, which was registered as Claim Petition No.105 (127) of 2021 for the recovery of the principal amount of Rs.4,09,022/- along with interest at the rate of 18% per annum, as provided under the MSMED Act, which came out to be Rs.2,26,851/-, so the total claim was of Rs.6,35,873/-.

3. In the said proceeding, notices were issued to the respondents on 19.7.2021 calling them for settlement and to appear on 29.7.2021 for conciliation. It is contended that on 29.7.2021, the petitioner had appeared but the respondents did not appear before the Council, hence the reference could not be decided and the proceeding of Section 76 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 was terminated and the matter was referred for arbitration asking the respondents to file reply within 15 days.

4. It is contended that once the aforesaid case/claim of the petitioner was not being decided, the petitioner approached this Court by preferring Writ-C No.4379 of 2022 (M/s Neeraj Potato Preservation and Food Products Pvt. Ltd. v. U.P. Micro and Medium Enterprises Facilitation Council and Anr.), which was decided on 2.3.2022 directing the Council to decide the claim of the petitioner preferably within three months.

5. Inspite of aforesaid direction, once the claim of the petitioner was not decided, the petitioner preferred Contempt Application (Civil) No.7143 of 2022 (M/s Neeraj Potato Preservation and Food Products Pvt. Ltd. v. Dr. Raj Shekhar/Chairman of U.P. Micro and Medium Enterprises Facilitation Council), which was decided on 25.11.2022 according three months further time to comply with the Writ Court order.

6. In response to the aforesaid order, the claim of the petitioner was decided by the order impugned. While passing the order impugned, the Council has framed following main issues for adjudication:-

(1) Whether the Claimant/ Supplier is entitled for the claim of Rs.4,09,022/- as Principal Amount from the Buyer?

(2) Whether the Claimant/ Supplier is entitled for the claim of Rs.2,26,851/- as interest from the Buyer?.

7. While deciding the first issue, the Council opined that it has jurisdiction to decide the matter only for delayed payments in lieu of cooling & preservation services provided to customers. As per the Udyog Aadhar Registration Certificate of the claimant, the activities being done by the claimant, are related to warehousing and support activities, warehousing and storage, warehousing of refrigerated (cold storage). The claimant failed to produce any such document, which inspires the confidence of the Council regarding the arrear of rent/ services of Cold Storage, provided to the respondents by the claimant (petitioner), which is still due on the respondents.

8. The Council has observed that the opinion/ report of Lead District Manager (L.D.M.) regarding the issue of re-finance service makes it clear that if the claimant company has provided loan against the products stored in its cold storage and the list of such borrowers, along with the receipts of their products, has been made available to the bank, only then the Council may entertain the claim petition otherwise not. The claimant has failed to produce any such document as mentioned in the opinion/ report of L.D.M. As such the Council opined that as per the provisions of MSMED Act, 2006, it has no jurisdiction to decide the matter for recovery of loan / financial services and other recovery matters and in such circumstances the Council cannot act beyond its jurisdiction. It was also observed that the claimant may approach for other alternate legal remedies for recovery of loan/ financial services.

9. While deciding the second issue, the Council observed that the claimant is not entitled to receive any interest from the respondent as there is no principal amount of delayed payment due on the respondents. Accordingly, the claim/ reference of the petitioner was dismissed by the order impugned.

10. Aggrieved by the said order, the petitioner had preferred the instant writ petition with following prayers:-

"(i) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari to quash/ set aside the impugned order made on 29.07.022 signed on 14.08.2023 passed by the Chairman of Divisional Micro and Small Enterprises, Facilitation Council, Kanpur.

(ii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding and directing the respondent authorities to consider and recover the loan/ financial service as per the provision of MSMED Act.

(iii) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus commanding and directing the respondent authorities to decide the case of petitioner's company consider the loan/ financial service which comes under the jurisdiction of Facilitation Council as per the MSMED Act."

Arguments of the petitioner

11. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner has vehemently argued that the order impugned is not sustainable in the eyes of law. He has submitted that Section 22 of the U.P. Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976 (in short "the Act, 1976") has given the right to Company to offer service of finance to individuals, who are doing business/ work (agricultural produce), hence the petitioner is entitled and authorised to offer service of finance to the farmers. He has also submitted that after the enforcement of MSMED Act, the cold storage service stands included under the MSMED Act vide notification dated 5.11.2014 issued by Government of India and the recovery of petitioner's services of finance shall be permissible in view of Section 24 (overriding effect) of the MSMED Act and as such the finding given under the impugned order is not sustainable and contrary to law.

12. Learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner has contended that, in the process of preservation of potato, the company charges rent against the potato stored by farmers as well as interest on advance loan provided to the farmers. The farmers are required to deposit the rent/ advance loan and interest on rent/ advance loan at the time to take away their potato. Sometimes, looking into the financial position of the farmers, the unpaid balance of the farmers is carried forward and is adjusted in the coming financial year. It is contended that the bank as well as the Act, 1976 both permit the petitioner to provide short terms finance to farmers in order to meet expenses and there is amicable agreement between the petitioner and the farmers.

13. It is also submitted that the company is not doing prime lending and the company is offerring amicable service to the farmers for sowing the crops for which a separate agreement was also executed by the company with farmers as per the Contract Act, 1972. The service of finance was rendered by the petitioner and the farmer is liable to pay the loan amount and interest as prescribed to the petitioner company. Since the petitioner is registered MSME, as per the provisions of MSMED Act, the Council had the jurisdiction to adjudicate the dispute.

14. It is further submitted that if the order impugned is not set aside, it will set up a very wrong precedent, inasmuch as if the farmers after taking the loan does not pay back, then the petitioner will have no efficacious remedy to recover the same, which would lead the petitioner company to insolvency.

15. It is also argued that the order impugned can not be challenged under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 and the position of the petitioner is very different as more than 84 cases of the petitioner of same nature are pending before the Council and the Council had passed the order impugned without following the rule of jurisdiction. The company is at the verge of closure and only legal question is involved in the present matter as to whether the service of finance rendered by the petitioner would be covered under the MSMED Act or not. The petitioner has given all particulars with regard to genuineness of the claim in the present case but the Council has ignored the same. The petitioner is a company doing the work for the welfare of the farmers but the respondents and such other farmers are blocking the money of the petitioner as such the petitioner is not being able to settle the loan amount of the bank or advance financial assistance to other farmers, who are in need. On one hand, the petitioner is disbursing the financial assistance to the farmers and on the other hand it is not able to recover the same and as such the order impugned is not justified.

16. It is also argued that the cold storage business is a regulated business and the Act, 1976 provide for complete mechanism as to how the cold storage services are to be provided. The statement of objects and reasons discloses that the State Government was conscious of the fact that cold storages have to run smoothly and efficiently so as to mitigate the hardships of agricultural producers and hence proper control in regulation of cold storage business is necessary for public interest. The Act provides for due remedies to the farmers and balances the right of the licensee by providing the right to retain lien upon the goods so long as the charges fixed by the Government are not paid and the discharge receipt is not issued, where the period of delivery is over.

Arguments of the respondent/State

17. On the other hand, learned Addl. Advocate General has vehemently opposed the writ petition and submitted that the order impugned has been passed strictly in accordance with law and there is no infirmity in it. He submitted that in the present matter the controversy is as to whether the loan/ financial services will be covered under the Cold Storage Services and will be falling within the jurisdiction of the Council so as to be adjudicated as per the procedure contemplated under the MSMED Act.

18. He submitted that as per the Udyog Aadhar Memorandum Certificate of the petitioner, the petitioner has been registered for the following services:-

• Warehousing and support activities for transportation.

• Warehousing and storage

• Warehousing of refrigerated (cold storage).

19. He submitted that the Council has rightly arrived at a conclusion that the petitioner has not been registered for any financial services under the MSMED Act, therefore, the Council did not possess the jurisdiction to enter into reference in terms of Section 18 of the Act, leaving it open for the petitioner to pursue the other legal remedies available to it. There was no infirmity in the impugned order passed by the Council that no recovery can be made by any instrumentality under MSMED Act unless and until the petitioner registers itself for financial services under the MSMED Act by submitting a memorandum to that effect and that too prospectively.

20. He further submitted that the order impugned has rightly been passed and no interference is required in the matter. In support of his submissions, he has placed reliance on the judgments in Silpi Industries Etc. v. Kerala State Road Transport Corporation & Anr., (2021) 18 SCC 790; Kannauj Cold Storage & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors., 1989 ALL.L.J. 689; National Seeds Corporation Ltd. v. M. ANALYSIS

21. Heard rival submissions, perused the record as well as respectfully considered the judgments cited at Bar. In the present matter, three issues are to be adjudicated, which are as follows:-

(i) whether the loan/ financial services will be covered under the Cold Storage Services; and

(ii) whether the petitioner has been registered for any financial services under the MSMED Act.

(iii) Whether the present writ petition is maintainable or not.

22. With regard to first issue as to whether the financial services will be covered under the Cold Storage Services, we first need to look into the definition of 'cold storage'. The term 'cold storage' has been defined under Section 2 (c) of the Act, 1976, which provides:-

(c) "cold storage" means an enclosed chamber insulated and mechanically cooled by refrigeration machinary to provide refrigerated condition to agricultural produce stored therein, but does not include refrigerated cabinets and chilling plants having a capacity of less than 100 cubic meters.

23. For the purposes of providing cold storage services a license is to be issued inasmuch as cold storage services are regulated within the State of U.P., which is evident from perusal of Section 5 of the Act, 1976, as under:-

"5. On and after such date as the State Government may, by notification appoint in that behalf, no person shall carry on the business of storing any agricultural produce in a cold storage under and in accordance with the terms and conditions of a licence granted under this Act."

24. Section 22 of the Act, 1976 lays down as to what should be the rate of interest charged by the cold storage, in case they provide financial assistance to the farmers. Section 22 of the Act, 1976 reads as follows:-

"22. If any money is lent by the licensee to a hirer against the goods stored by some hirer in the cold storage, the rate of interest, in no case, shall be higher than one-half of one percent annum simple interest over the current rate of interest charged by the State Bank of India, at the time of the loan, for like purposes in respect of advances made by it against goods pledged in its favour."

25. The admitted facts of the present case are that the loan advanced to the hirer/ farmer by the licensee was not in terms of Section 22 of the Act, 1976 as nowhere it has been stated in the writ petition that the loan so advanced was lower than one half of one percent per annum simple interest over the current rate of interest charged by the State Bank of India. Infact the loan was advanced @ 18% per annum, which is much higher than the rate of interest charged by the State Bank of India.

26. Moreover, the loan advanced was not against the goods pledged in favour of the petitioner company but with a bond that if the payment is not done, the farmer undertakes to deposit his goods in the next agricultural year also in the cold storage of the petitioner. Hence, Section 22 of the Act, 1976 does not come into play.

27. For the purposes of MSMED Act and to provide financial services under Section 22 of the Act, 1976 the petitioner ought to have the registration under the MSMED Act, 2006 for 'financial activity', which admittedly could not be explained by the petitioner. The petitioner having not been registered under the MSMED Act for financial activity and there being a private agreement between the petitioner and the contesting respondents, the petitioner could not have sought a recovery for an alleged loan purportedly granted under Section 22 of the Act, 1976 by taking aid of the provisions contained under MSMED Act.

28. As per Section 45 of the Act, 1976, the Government was authorised to make Rules. In pursuance of this power granted under the Act, 1976, the 'U.P. Regulation of Cold Storage (Licensing) Rules, 1976' (in short "the Rules, 1976") was framed. Rule 3 of the Rules, 1976 provides for the terms and conditions of the license and Rule 6 of the Rules, 1976 provides for specification of a cold storage. The term 'condition and the specification of the cold storage' together with the definition clauses constitute the cold storage services and, therefore, cold storage services have been properly structured under the U.P. Enactment read with modified subordinate legislation of Uttar Pradesh. Grant of loan is not incidental to a cold storage services, which is explicit from bare perusal of the definition clauses, the licence, terms and conditions and specification of cold storage. Therefore, cold storage service and credit facilities by pledging the produce stored in the cold storage are two different services, which are not directly linked with each other. Therefore, the grant of loan will not be covered under cold storage services.

29. With regard to second issue as to whether the petitioner has been registered for any financial services under the MSMED Act, we have to first see the objects and reasons as well as the relevant provisions of MSMED Act, which are enumerated as under:-

"Statement of Objects and Reasons

Small scale industry is at present defined by notification under section 11b. of the industries (development and regulation) Act, 1951. Section 29B of the Act provides for notifying reservation of items for exclusive manufacturing in the small Scale Industry Sector. Except for these two provisions, there exists no legal. Framework for this dynamic and vibrant sector of the country's economy. Many expert groups or committees appointed by the government from time to time as well as the small scale industry sector itself have emphasized the need for An Comprehensive Central Enactment to Provide an Appropriate Legal Framework for the Sector to Facilitate Its Growth and Development. Emergence of a large services sector assisting the small scale industry in the last two decades also warrants a composite view of the sector, encompassing both Industrial units and related service entities. The world over, the emphasis has now been shifted from "industries" to "enterprises". Added to this, a growing need is being felt to extend policy support for the small enterprises so that they are enabled to grow into medium ones, adopt Better and higher levels of technology and achieve- higher productivity to remain competitive in a fast globalisation area. Thus, as in most developed and many developing countries, it is necessary in India too, the concerns of the Entire Small and Medium Enterprises Sector Are addressed and the sector is provided with a single legal framework. As of now, the medium industry or enterprise is not even defined in any law.

2. In view of the above-mentioned circumstances, the bill aims at facilitating the promotion and development and enhancing the competitiveness of small and medium Enterprises and learns to-

(a) Provide for Statutory Definitions of "Small Enterprise" and "Medium Enterprise":

(b) Provide for the Establishment of a National Small and Medium Enterprises Board, a high-level forum consisting of stakeholders for participative review of and making recommendations on the policies and programmes for the development of small and medium enterprises;

(c) provide for classification of small and medium enterprises on the basis of investment in plant and machinery, or equipment and establishment of an Advisory Committee to recommend on the related matter;

(d) empower the Central Government to notify programmes, guidelines or instructions for facilitating the promotion and development and enhancing the competitiveness of small and medium enterprises;

(e) empower the State Governments to specify, by notification, that provisions of the labour laws specified in clause 9(2) will not apply to small and medium enterprises employing upto fifty employees with a view to facilitating the graduation of small enterprises to medium enterprises;

(f) make provisions for ensuring timely and smooth flow of credit to small and medium enterprises to minimise the incidence of sickness among and enhancing the competitiveness of such enterprises, in accordance with the guidelines or instructions of the Reserve Bank of India;

(g) empower the Central and State Governments to notify preference policies in respect of procurement of goods and services, produced and provided by small enterprises, by the Ministries, departments and public sector enterprises;

(h) empowering the Central Government to create a Fund or Funds for facilitating promotion and development and enhancing the competitiveness of small enterprises and medium enterprises;

(i) empower to prescribe harmonised, simpler and streamlined procedures for inspection of small and medium enterprises under the labour laws enumerated in clause 15, having regard to the need to promote self-regulation or self-certification by such enterprises;

(j) prescribe for maintenance of records and filing of returns by small and medium enterprises with a view to reduce the multiplicity of often-overlapping types of returns to be filed;

(k) make further improvements in the Interest on Delayed Payments to Small Scale and Ancillary Industrial Undertakings Act, 1993 and making that enactment a part of the proposed legislation and to repeal that enactment."

"8. Memorandum of micro, small and medium enterprises-

(1) Any person who intends to establish,--

(a) a micro or small enterprise, may, at his discretion; or

(b) a medium enterprise engaged in providing or rendering of services may, at his discretion; or

(c) a medium enterprise engaged in the manufacture or production of goods pertaining to any industry specified in the First Schedule to the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act, 1951 (65 of 1951), shall file the memorandum of micro, small or, as the case may be, of medium enterprise with such authority as may be specified by the State Government under sub-section (4) or the Central Government under sub-section (3):

Provided that any person who, before the commencement of this Act, established--

(a) a small scale industry and obtained a registration certificate, may, at his discretion; and

(b) an industry engaged in the manufacture or production of goods pertaining to any industry specified in the First Schedule to the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act, 1951 (65 of 1951),having investment in plant and machinery of more than one crore rupees but not exceeding ten crore rupees and, in pursuance of the notification of the Government of India in the erstwhile Ministry of Industry (Department of Industrial Development) number S.O. 477(E), dated the 25th July, 1991 filed an Industrial Entrepreneur's Memorandum, shall within one hundred and eighty days from the commencement of this Act, file the memorandum, in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

(2) The form of the memorandum, the procedure of its filing and other matters incidental thereto shall be such as may be notified by the Central Government after obtaining the recommendations of the Advisory Committee in this behalf.

(3) The authority with which the memorandum shall be filed by a medium enterprise shall be such as may be specified, by notification, by the Central Government.

(4) The State Government shall, by notification, specify the authority with which a micro or small enterprise may file the memorandum.

(5) The authorities specified under sub-sections (3) and (4) shall follow, for the purposes of this section, the procedure notified by the Central Government under sub-section (2).”

18. Reference to Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council-

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, any party to a dispute may, with regard to any amount due under section 17, make a reference to the Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council.

(2) On receipt of a reference under sub-section (1), the Council shall either itself conduct conciliation in the matter or seek the assistance of any institution or centre providing alternate dispute resolution services by making a reference to such an institution or centre, for conducting conciliation and the provisions of sections 65 to 81 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (26 of 1996) shall apply to such a dispute as if the conciliation was initiated under Part III of that Act.

(3) Where the conciliation initiated under sub-section (2) is not successful and stands terminated without any settlement between the parties, the Council shall either itself take up the dispute for arbitration or refer to it any institution or centre providing alternate dispute resolution services for such arbitration and the provisions of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (26 of 1996) shall then apply to the dispute as if the arbitration was in pursuance of an arbitration agreement referred to in sub-section (1) of section 7 of that Act.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, the Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council or the centre providing alternate dispute resolution services shall have jurisdiction to act as an Arbitrator or Conciliator under this section in a dispute between the supplier located within its jurisdiction and a buyer located anywhere in India.

(5) Every reference made under this section shall be decided within a period of ninety days from the date of making such a reference.

20. Establishment of Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council-

The State Government shall, by notification, establish one or more Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Councils, at such places, exercising such jurisdiction and for such areas, as may be specified in the notification.

21. Composition of Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council.—

(1) The Micro and Small Enterprise Facilitation Council shall consist of not less than three but not more than five members to be appointed from among the following categories, namely:—

(i) Director of Industries, by whatever name called, or any other officer not below the rank of such Director, in the Department of the State Government having administrative control of the small scale industries or, as the case may be, micro, small and medium enterprises; and

(ii) one or more office-bearers or representatives of associations of micro or small industry or enterprises in the State; and

(iii) one or more representatives of banks and financial institutions lending to micro or small enterprises; or

(iv) one or more persons having special knowledge in the field of industry, finance, law, trade or commerce.

(2) The person appointed under clause (i) of sub-section (1) shall be the Chairperson of the Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council.

(3) The composition of the Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council, the manner of filling vacancies of its members and the procedure to be followed in the discharge of their functions by the members shall be such as may be prescribed by the State Government.

30. The preamble of the MSMED Act shows that it is an Act to provide for facilitating the promotion, development and enhancing the activities of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. It will be apt to quote relevant extract of the prefatory note to the enactment:-

"Whereas a declaration as to expediency of control of certain industries by the Union was made under Section 2 of the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act, 1951;

And whereas it is expedient to provide for facilitating the promotion and development and enhancing the competitiveness of micro, small and medium enterprises and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto."

31. Section 8 of the MSMED Act provides for memorandum of micro, small and medium enterprises and states that whoever wishes to set up a micro, small or medium enterprise will have to file a memorandum with such authority as may be specified by the State Government or the Central government as the case may be. Sub-section (3) and sub-section (4) of Section 8 delegates the power upon the Central Government and the State Government respectively specifying the authorities through notification, which will be accepting the memorandum. Under Section 8 (2) different sector and industries have been classified.

32. Once the services provided by the petitioner is not registered under the MSMED Act, Facilitation Council established under the Act, will be divested of jurisdiction to entertain any such dispute arising out of any service not registered under MSMED Act. In such a situation, the MSMED Act will not be applicable as per Section 18 of the Act.

33. Further the National Industrial Classification Data 2008 has formed the basis of providing the codification of accepting the memorandum under the Act. Part-II of detailed structure of NIC 2008 contains different divisions and Codes. Division 52 has been given to warehousing and support activities for transportation. Code 5210 has been given to warehousing and storage and Code 52101 was given to warehousing of refrigerated (cold storage). In none of the said entries, the financial activity is available, which falls under a different Code. Section 'K' deals with financial services and insurance company, which has been given Code '64'.

34. On the basis of Udyog Aadhaar Memorandum Certificate, an enterprise becomes amenable to frame work of MSMED Act. If the registration of an enterprise does not fall in a particular category, the provisions of the MSMED Act will not be applicable for that category. As per the Udyog Aadhar Memorandum Certificate of the petitioner, the petitioner has been registered for the following services:-

• Warehousing and support activities for transportation.
• Warehousing and storage
• Warehousing of refrigerated (cold storage).

35. The Udyog Aadhar Memorandum Certificate of the petitioner (valid til 30.6.2022) has been provided by the State through written submissions. The Udyog Aadhar Memorandum Certificate is reproduced below:-

36. Even as per the claim petition filed by the petitioner, the date of loan is shown to be 9.3.2018, wherein an amount of Rs.4,09,022/- was loaned to the respondent nos.2 and 3. However, the petitioner had made an application on 24.9.2018 for modification of NIC Code in Udyog Aadhar Card issued by MSME. Hence it is clear that on the date of the loan given by the petitioner, it was not having the registration under required Code as per NIC Data 2008. Hon'ble the Supreme Court in the matter of Silpi Industries Etc. v. Kerala State Road Transport Corporation & Anr. (Supra) has held in para 26 as under:-

"26. Though the Appellant claims the benefit of provisions under MSMED Act, on the ground that the Appellant was also supplying as on the date of making the claim, as provided Under Section 8 of the MSMED Act, but same is not based on any acceptable material. The Appellant, in support of its case placed reliance on a judgment of the Delhi High Court in the case of GE T&D India Ltd. v. Reliable Engineering Projects and Marketing, but the said case is clearly distinguishable on facts as much as in the said case, the supplies continued even after registration of entity Under Section 8 of the Act. In the present case, undisputed position is that the supplies were concluded prior to registration of supplier. The said judgment of Delhi High Court relied on by the Appellant also would not render any assistance in support of the case of the Appellant. In our view, to seek the benefit of provisions under MSMED Act, the seller should have registered under the provisions of the Act, as on the date of entering into the contract. In any event, for the supplies pursuant to the contract made before the registration of the unit under provisions of the MSMED Act, no benefit can be sought by such entity, as contemplated under MSMED Act. While interpreting the provisions of Interest on Delayed Payments to Small Scale and Ancillary Industrial Undertakings Act, 1993, this Court, in the judgment in the case of Shanti Conductors Pvt. Ltd. and Anr. etc. v. Assam State Electricity Board and Ors. etc. (2019) 19 SCC 529 has held that date of supply of goods/services can be taken as the relevant date, as opposed to date on which contract for supply was entered, for applicability of the aforesaid Act. Even applying the said ratio also, the Appellant is not entitled to seek the benefit of the Act. There is no acceptable material to show that, supply of goods has taken place or any services were rendered, subsequent to registration of Appellant as the unit under MSMED Act, 2006. By taking recourse to filing memorandum Under Sub-section (1) of Section 8 of the Act, subsequent to entering into contract and supply of goods and services, one cannot assume the legal status of being classified under MSMED Act, 2006, as an enterprise, to claim the benefit retrospectively from the date on which Appellant entered into contract with the Respondent. The Appellant cannot become micro or small enterprise or supplier, to claim the benefits within the meaning of MSMED Act 2006, by submitting a memorandum to obtain registration subsequent to entering into the contract and supply of goods and services. If any registration is obtained, same will be prospective and applies for supply of goods and services subsequent to registration but cannot operate retrospectively. Any other interpretation of the provision would lead to absurdity and confer unwarranted benefit in favour of a party not intended by legislation.

(Emphasis supplied)

37. In the aforesaid case, Hon'ble the Supreme Court has clearly held that any services provided prior to registration of MSMED Act will not get the benefit of MSMED Act. In this case also, the loan was provided on 9.3.2018, whereas, the Code under Chapter V of the Act, 2006 was applied for modification on 24.9.2018 and the same was modified on 20.11.2020, hence the petitioner cannot even take advantage of the same.

38. From the aforesaid, this much is reflected that at the time of disbursement of loan i.e. 9.3.2018 the petitioner was not registered in the category of financial services under the MSMED Act and as such the petitioner is not entitled for any reprieve under the MSMED Act.

39. With regard to third issue, whether the present writ petition is maintainable or not, the State counsel had invited attention to the recent judgment passed by Hon'ble the Apex Court in M/s India Glycols Limited and Another v. Micro and Small Enterprises Facilitation Council, Medchal - Malkajgiri and Others, Civil Appeal No 7491 of 2023 (Arising out of SLP (C) No 9899 of 2023), wherein Hon'ble the Apex Court had held that the High Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the writ petition against the award passed by the Facilitation Council under the MSMED Act.

40. Learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner repelled the said argument and submitted that the impugned order is not an award, inasmuch as the Facilitation Council has refused to exercise its jurisdiction under the Act and as such the impugned order does not amount to be an award. Therefore, the writ petition is maintainable.

41. Considering the rival submissions qua the third issue, we find that the order impugned, whereby the Facilitation Council had refused to entertain the matter under MSMED Act, as the same was not an award, therefore, the same is amenable under Art.226 of the Constitution of India. Accordingly, against the order impugned, the writ petition is maintainable.

Conclusion

42. In view of the foregoing discussion, once the alleged financial services rendered by the petitioner was not registered at the time of disbursement of the loan under the MSMED Act, then certainly the Facilitation Council, which is established under the MSMED Act, will not be having jurisdiction to entertain any such dispute arising out of any service not registered under the MSMED Act. Therefore, there is no infirmity or illegality in the order impugned so as to warrant interference under Art.226 of the Constitution of India.

43. In view of above, all the issues are decided accordingly. The writ petition sans merit and is dismissed.

PROLOGUE

3. This is a classic case of conning, as to how the promoters without investing any amount gets huge tracts of prime land allotted, launches a project and collects Rs.636 crores from the home buyers, out of which they again syphon off almost Rs.190 crores (then sell off a portion of land to a 3rd company, pocket and then syphon the entire sale proceeds (Rs.236 crores), and pay a pittance to Noida Authority, towards the cost of land/premium for land and lease rent, which they were supposed to pay, and defrauded the home buyers, Noida Authority, Banks and other creditors. Not only this but they have also defrauded hundreds of other home buyers in various other projects similarly launched by them with different names. As a part of that conning scheme, after launching a project, they collected money, diverted it to different other companies and then resigned from directorship of the company, and push the company into insolvency and get over with all civil or criminal liabilities. Surprisingly, even after conning everyone they have been going scot free, neither the State nor the authorities are in a position to recover the said amount.

4. The entire proceedings in this case as it gets unfurled, manifests the intention of promoters for defrauding and cheating everyone.

FACTUAL MATRIX

5. Facts of the case are that the Noida Authority floated a scheme for allotment of plots for group housing, being scheme code GH2010 ID in pursuance whereof a consortium of companies applied for, and the Noida Authority found them suitable for allotment of land in GH01 Sector107 Noida. As per the prevailing commercial practice, the allottee consortium companies were supposed to choose one of the consortium partner company to be a lead partner, who would be responsible for planning, construction and completion of the project. However, the consortium members would form a special purpose company for the execution of the project. Accordingly, in the instant matter the consortium members floated a special purpose company known as M/s Hacienda Projects Private Limited (here-in-after for the sake of brevity has been referred to as "HPPL"). This special purpose company had the following Stakeholders:-

Provided that in the event of sale or foreclosure of the mortgaged/charged property, the NOIDA shall be entitled to claim and recover such percentage, as decided by the NOIDA, of the unearned increase in values of properties in respect of the market value of the said land as first charge, having priority over the said mortgage charge. The decision of the NOIDA in respect of the market value of the said land shall be final and binding on all the parties concerned.

The NOIDA's right to the recovery of the unearned increase and the premptive right to purchase the property as mentioned herein before shall apply equally to involunary shall or transfer, be it bid or through execution of decree of insolvency from a court of law.

U. CANCELLATION OF LEASE AND SUB-LEASE DEED.

In addition to the other specific clauses relating to the cancellation, the NOIDA will be free to exercise its right of cancellation of allotment/lease/sub-lease in the case of:

1. Allotment being obtained through misrepresentation/suppression of material facts, mis-statement and/or/fraud.

2. Any violation of the directions issued or rules and regulations framed by any Authority or by any statutory body.

3. Default on the part of the Lessee/Sub-lessee for breach/violation of the terms and conditions of the registration/allotment/lease/sub-lease and/or non-deposit of the allotment amount.

4. If at the same time of such cancellation, the plot is occupied by the Lessee/sub-lessee, the amount equivalent to 25% of the total premium of the plot shall be forfeited and possession of the plot will be resumed by the NOIa with structure(s) thereon, if any, and the Lessee/sub-lessee will have no right to claim any compensation thereof. The balance, if any, shall be refunded without any interest and no separate notice shall be given in this regiard.

5. If the allotment is cancelled on the ground mentioned in para U(1) above, the entire amount deposited by the Lessee/sub-lessee, till the date of cancellation shall be forfeited by the NOIDA and no claim whatsoever shall be entertained in this regard.

OTHER CLAUSES.

1. The NOIDA/Lessor reserves the right to make such additions/alternations or modifications in the terms and conditions of allotment/lease deed/sub-lease deed from time to time, as may be considered just and expedient and approved by the NOIDA.

5. Any dispute between the NOIDA and Lessee/Sub-Lessee(s) shall be subject to the territorial jurisdiction of the Civil Courts having jurisdiction over District Gautam Budh Nagar or the Courts designated by the Hon'ble High Court of Judicature at Allahabad.

7. After allotment of the land, the project was named as Lotus 300, the advertisement given by the company stated that only 300 apartments would be built on an area of 67,941.95 square meters. A lot of people got attracted to the vast openness in the project and booked flats in this project. Allotments were made by the HPPL in favour of the respective buyers. The Builder Buyers Agreement was executed in the year 2011. This Builder Buyers Agreement had unilateral terms and conditions and the buyers were made to sign on a printed agreement and whereunder the builder was supposed to charge a fine at the rate of 18% per annum on the delay of payment by an allottee. Floor plan was sanctioned in the year 2011 with three hundred flats on the entire area. Thereafter, the builders on 15.02.2012 sold 27,941.95 square meters of land from this project to some other company for an amount of Rs.236 crores. The effect of selling of 27,941.95 square meters was that the area on which 300 flats were to be built have substantially been reduced without taking flat buyers concurrence. Further 30 apartments were added in the project which was far more than the sanctioned floor-plan of 2011. The builder applied for a fresh plan sanction in April, 2013 for these additional 30 flats. All the 330 flats in six towers of the project were sold and the developer collected a whopping sum of Rs.636 crores from the sale/booking of the flats to the home-buyers. The project was to be completed in 39 months, however, the completion date for the project was revised to July, 2017. The HPPL is said to have completed four out of six towers and handed over possession to the flat owners.

8. The builders had collected Rs.636 crores from the booking of flats. Out of which the promoters of HPPL had syphoned away almost Rs.190 crores, which was supposed to be utilised for construction/development of the project. Instead of developing the project, money was diverted from the company and interest-free loans were given to other companies of the promoters, where these three promoters themselves were promoters/directors/shareholders or had other business interest. This diversion was substantiated by the balance sheet of the HPPL company.

9. The petitioner, Mr. Nirmal Singh claims to be the promoter/director in HPPL up to 15.07.2014 and also in M/s Pebbles Infosoftec Private Limited which was the lead member of the consortium to whom the land was allotted and also 50% shareholder of HPPL. According to the petitioner the resignation as directors of HPPL was tendered as follows:-

I. Nirmal Singh 15.07.2014
II.Vidur Bhardwaj 03.03.2015
III. Surpreet Singh Suri 03.03.2015

10. Towers 1 to 4 were completed and possession was handed over, but in spite of the fact that the flat owners of tower no.5 and 6 had paid the entire amount, the builder/HPPL did not complete the project, neither provided the other amenities, which was promised by the builder at the time of booking. The builder went to the extent of conveying the flat owners to take the possession of the incomplete/unfurnished flat as it is. The situation for the buyers was 'take it or leave it'. The flat owners, who had no choice took possession of the incomplete flat out of desperation. They continued asking the company and the promoters to complete the project but for the reasons best known to them they chose not to complete it.

11. The flat owners after paying the entire amount, were left high and dry and were cheated, so the home buyers on 24.03.2018 lodged an FIR, under Sections 420, 409 and 120B IPC, with the Economic Offence Wing, Delhi. Thereafter, detailed investigation was carried by the Economic Offences Wing. A charge-sheet was filed in which it was found that the builder had diverted huge amount of money out of the amount collected from the allottees to its subsidiary companies as interest free inter-corporate loan. Apart from it, the builders had started selling basement car parking for Rs. 3 lakhs. The accused persons had jointly conspired with dishonest intentions of cheating the complainants. The accused had committed offence of cheating and committed wrongful gain to themselves and loss to the flat-owners.

12 In pursuance of the F.I.R. lodged by the flat owners of HPPL, all the three directors were arrested on 30.11.2018.

13. Immediately upon their arrest, they expressed their willingness to pay up 60 crore rupees which was required to complete the project, and to avoid arrest, they entered into an MOU, where they agreed to arrange for the required fund and to complete the project in a particular time frame and obtain a 'Completion Certificate'. This MOU was signed between HPPL as a first party and Home Buyers Association as a second party. However, the confirming parties were Nirmal Singh, Vidur Bharadwaj and Surpreet Singh Suri, who had signed on behalf of the company HPPL. This MOU was a personal guarantee given by them to the home buyers to infuse funds to complete the project and pay the dues of Noida Authority.

14. In Clause 2 of the MOU, the HPPL and the promoters, who were the confirming parties agreed that they will complete the project in 9 months commencing from 15.12.2018 and further agreed that the balance cost of construction of the project which was Rs.60 crores would be paid by the first party that is HPPL and the confirming party was the three promoters (petitioners herein) Nirmal Singh, Surpreet Singh Suri and Vidur Bhardwaj who would arrange another 25 crores and infuse the same in the designated escrow accounts in the following manner- (a) 5 crores would be handed over to the second party on 04.12.2018, (b) another 5 crores would be infused on 15.01.2019 (c) 10 crores would be arranged by way of sale of plot no.16, Sector 127 Noida by the first party and the confirming party (d) a further sum of 5 crores would be infused before 03.02.2019.The first party will ensure M/s Udishi Constructions Private Limited to infuse 12 crores for the construction of unsold inventory. The first party HPPL has entered into agreement with Udishi Constructions Pvt. Ltd. wherein Udishi Constructions would infuse Rs.12 crores for construction against security of his unsolved inventory. Further, in addition to the above, any deficit amount after realizing the receivables from the allottees/buyer and after arranging funds as above shall be arranged by the first party and the confirming party by way of placing additional asset as collateral to ensure completion of the project.

15. In clause 10 of this MOU, it was further admitted that the first party, HPPL and the confirming party, which are the three promoters will arrange the funds and pay the dues of the Noida Authority.

16. On the basis of this MOU, a bail application was moved in the Court of Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, South Saket Court, Delhi wherein the Court of CMM passed the following order on 04.12.2018:-

"FIR No.74/18
PS:EOW
U/s:409/420/120B IPC
State Vs. (i) Supreet Singh Suri (ii) Vidur Bhardwaj (iii) Nirmal Singh
04.12.2018

Present: Ld Substitute APP for the State

The reply to the bail application moved on behalf of accused Nirmal Singh has been filed by the IO.

At this stage, it is submitted by Ld. Counsel for accused Vidur Bhardwaj and Spurpreet Singh Suri that the bail applications moved on behalf of accused Vidur Bhardeaj and Surpreet Singh Suri are also listed for today and the aforesaid applications may also be considered.

At this stage, IO submits that the role of all the accused persons are similar to the effect that they all were the Promoters of Hcienda Projects Pvt. Ltd.

At this stage, the copy of MOU dated 03.12.2018 between the accused company M/s Hacienda Projects Pvt. Ltd. and M/s Lotus 300 Buyers Association has been filed stating therein that a settlement agreement amongst the parties of this case has been entered into and there is going to be a general body meeting on 16.12.2018 in which every stakeholder would take part for retification of the MOU arrived between the parties.

Ld. Counsels for the accused persons submit that the prime concern of the flat buyers is to ensure that they get the delivery of the flats within stipulated time frame as mentioned in the abovesaid MOU and the interest of the flat buyers association has been taken into consideration and the demand draft for the amount of Rs.5 crores would be deposited in the escrow account, which is already opened, to ensure the compliance of the MOU as well as to ensure the construction work so that the flats may be delivered to the flat buyers who are the aggrieved parties herein.

At this stage, the demand draft bearing no.344504 dated 03.12.2018 drawn on Kotak Mahindra Bank, Sector-

18, Noida branch, UP for 1 crore and demand draft bearing no.037735 dated 03.12.2018 drawn on Federal Bank, Nehru Place branch, New Delhi for Rs.4 Crore have been handed over to Sh. Pankaj Jolly. President of Lotus 300 Buyers Association who submits that he would deposit the aforesaid demand drafts into the escrow account by tomorrow.

At this stage, the MOU dated 03.12.2018 has been signed by the accused persons who are present today and produced from police custody.

Considering the facts and circumstances, submissions made and the MOU dated 03.12.2018, accused persons namely Nirmal Singh, Vidur Bhardwaj and Surpreet Singh Suri are hereby admitted to interim bail till 20.12.2018 on furnishing personal bond in the sum of Rs.5 lacs each with one surety each in the like amount. It is made clear that the interim bail has been granted to accused persons without going into merits of this case and subject to strict compliance of MOU dated 03.12.2018 failing which the interim bail granted to accused Nirmal Singh, Vidur Bhardwaj and Surpreet Singh Suri would be cancelled. Futher, the accused persons shall not leave the country without permission of the Court and that they shall cooperate the IO in the investigation of this case. Bail bonds furnished and accepted till 19.12.1018 and bail bonds be put with the bail applications on 20.12.2018.

At request, put up for arguments on the bail applications on 20.12.2018 at 12.30 pm.

17. The interim bail was granted on a condition that there should be strict compliance of the MOU. The petitioners herein flouted the terms of the MOU, thereafter, an application was moved by the home buyers for cancellation of bail. Surprisingly, rather shockingly, the learned Court vide its order dated 21.05.2019 confirmed the interim bail and held as under:-

"Vide this common order I shall decide the bail applications of applicant Nirmal Singh, Surpreet Surri and Vidur Bhardwaj.

It is stated in the applications that the applicants are founder of '3C Group of Companies' and are directors of M/s Hacienda Project Pvt. Ltd and are involved in the work of construction. It is further stated that in the year 2011, the company got approval for construction of a project 'Lotus 300' comprising of 300 apartments but in the year 2014 on account of the order of the National Green Tribunal, the construction work got affected. It is further stated that the land acquisition proceedings were also got quashed by the Supreme Court vide order dated 05.08.2013 in civil appeal no.6353/13. It is further stated that following the difficulties in the completion of the project, complaints were filed by the investors and the present FIR was lodged. It is further stated that the applicants have fully cooperated with the investigation and no purpose will be served keeping them in custody. It is further stated that there is no apprehension that the applicants shall tamper with the evidence or free from the justice.

In his reply submitted by the IO, it is stated that the applicants have got changed the building plan from Noina and enhanced a number of apartments from 300 to 336. It is further stated that applicants collected huge amount of money from the customers in the name of project and diverted around Rs.140 crores to the subsidiary companies. It is further stated that there are more than 50 victims in the present FIR and the alleged company has received amount to the tune of Rs.100 crores from the victims. It is further stated that there are total 328 investors and the company has received the amount to the tune of Rs.636 crores out of which the amount to the tune of Rs.219 crores has been diverted by the company into the subsidiary companies. It is further stated that there are total 6 towers in the project and all the towers have been erected and out of 6 towers, two towers are on the verge of completion. It is further stated that the accused company has applied for part completion certificate on 23.10.2018. Further, an MOU has been signed with association of buyers for completion of project on 15.05.2018 and an escrow account has been opened with one signatory from buyer side and other signatory from company side.

I have heard the arguments and perused the record.

In the present case, as per the report of the IO, all the six towers have been constructed two of which are near the completion. The applicants have also deposited Rs.25 crores and they have been complying with the conditions of the MOU dated 15.05.2018. There is no complaint or incident showing the involvement of the applicants in tampering with any evidence or intimidating any witness. The evidence in the present case is documentary in nature and all the documents have already been seized by the IO. Investors have requested that bail of the applicants may not be regularized and they should be given interim bail in accordance with the compliance of the MOU. Request is not tenable because the bail cannot be used as a tool to pressurize the accused to part with money. It's a criminal trial and the Court cannot act as a recovery agent of the investors and cannot keep handing the sword of custody over the head of the applicants in the name of compliance of the MOU. Otherwise also, extending bail of the applicants from time to time takes and considered time of the Court and it is an onerous procedure which cannot be adopted. The applicants have been enlarged on bail since a long time and there is no instance of their making any attempt to flee from the justice. There is no possibility that the presence of the applicants cannot be secured during the trial. Otherwise also, appropriate conditions can be imposed in this respect. Therefore, applicant Nirmal Singh, Surpreet Suri and Vidur Bhardwaj are admitted to bail on furnishing personal bond of Rs.5,00,000/- each with one surety each in the like amount subject to condition that applicants shall not leave the country without taking permission from this Court, they shall submit their passport in the Court, they shall not try to tamper with the evidence or intimidate any witness or commit similar offence and they will join the investigation as and when required.

Applications stands disposed of."

18. After getting the bail the Promoters (petitioners herein), who had no intention of honouring their commitment given in the MOU, defaulted to pay the entire agreed amount, and failed to complete the project, they also did not pay the Noida Authority their dues, once again they cheated the home buyers.

19. In addition to the land premium, HPPL was supposed to pay additional compensation for the land, which was supposed to be paid to the farmers by the Noida Authority, since HPPL failed to deposit Rs.54,50,51,626/- towards additional compensation and Rs.9,15,00,000/- towards time extension charge for the delayed project, hence, a recovery notice was issued to HPPL by Noida Authority on 16.09.2019 for an amount of Rs.63,65,55,626/- along with a notice for recovery to the directors of M/s Hacienda Projects Private Limited, Mr. Nirmal Singh, Surpreet Singh Suri and Vidur Bharadwaj.

20. Aggrieved by the recovery notice issued to Mr. Nirmal Singh, he has filed the instant writ petition (Writ-C No. - 41110 of 2019) seeking following reliefs:-

(a) To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari calling for the record and quashing the impugned recovery certificate dated 16.09.2019 issued by the Tehsildar, Dadri, District Gautambudh Nagar.

(b) To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus restraining the respondent no.2 and 3 from taking any coercive action in pursuance of impugned undated recovery certificate.

(c) To issue any other order or direction which the Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the circumstances of the case.

(d) To award the cost of the petition to this petitioner.

21. Identical writ petitions were also filed by other two directors, Mr. Vidur Bhardwaj, Writ-C No.40693 of 2019 and Mr. Surpreet Singh Suri, Writ-C No.4532 of 2020. All the matters were clubbed together and this Court on 17.12.2019 proceeded to pass the following order:-

"Heard Sri Ravi Kant, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Pankaj Dubey, learned Counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel and Sri Kaushalendra Nath Singh, learned Counsel for respondenot no.4.

In order to recover the dues of respondent no.5, a company incorporated and registered under the Companies Act, 2013, the recovery is being pressed against the petitioner.

The argument is that the petitioner had ceased to be the Director of the said company long before and that since company is a separate juristic person, its dues cannot be recovered from the personal assets of the petitioner. In support reliance has been placed upon the judgment and order dated 4.12.2019 in Writ Petition No.33100 of 2019 (Rakesh Mahajan Vs. State of U.P. & 4 others).

Learned Standing Counsel and Sri Kaushalendra Nath Singh are both directed to file counter affidavit within a period of three weeks. A week, thereafter, is granted to the petitioner for filing rejoinder affidavit.

Issue notice to respondent no.5.

List for admission/final disposal after expiry of the above period.

Until further order of this Court, the impugned recovery dated 16.9.2019 shall not be pressed against the petitioner, though it will be open for the respondents to release the outstanding dues from the respondent no.5 provided the petitioner surrenders his passport, if any, before the respondent no.2, District Magistrate, Gautambuddha Nagar and give on undertaking within a week to the District Magistrate that he would not leave the country without the permission of the Court."

IMPLEADMENT APPLICATION OF HOME BUYERS

22. The home buyers filed an impleadment application and also filed a counter affidavit in which they brought on record as to how these three directors/petitioners after collecting the money from the home buyers and after selling the land, which was part of the project, together had siphoned off (Rs.190+236=426) crores from the HPPL and invested the same in their other companies, and chose not to pay the authority the premium and the lease rent and the Noida Authority for the reason best known to it had made no efforts to get the outstanding dues.

23. The learned counsel for the home buyers submitted with vehemence that the petitioners/promoters right from the inception had the nefarious intentions to cheat the flat owners, Noida authority and the banks so they schemed out a fool proof strategy to defraud people, syphon away the money, and then go scot free. Accordingly, they tendered the resignation from the HPPL company (Nirmal Singh, w.e.f. 15.07.2014, Vidur Bharadwaj and Surpreet Singh Suri w.e.f. 03.03.2015) after diverting the funds, and making a petty employee as dummy director of the company and as such still kept the full control over the company.

24. He submitted that the petitioners/promoters, who had cheated the home buyers, so the home buyers had lodged an FIR, in which after the investigation a charge sheet was filed, under Sections 409, 420 and 120B IPC. Referring to the balance sheet of HPPL with the impleadment application. He submitted that it goes to show that almost Rs.190 crores had been diverted from the company and given to other companies, which was directly or indirectly owned by the promoters, or where they had business interest. He invited attention to an order of this Court, annexed with impleadment application in which the present Director, Anand Ram, who happens to be the Store Keeper, appeared in the Court and said that he is simply an employee of the company and he has appeared before the Court on the direction of Personal Secretary of one of the Promoters, Vidur Bharadwaj, which goes to show that the petitioners even after resigning had full control of the company.

25. Learned counsel further submitted that once the promoters after their arrest had executed a MOU wherein they had undertaken before the court to comply with the conditions of Memorandum of Understanding including the payment of NOIDA dues, and had taken joint and several responsibility to comply with the said condition, hence, they cannot say now that they will not pay the dues of the Noida Authority. Therefore, the relief prayed for in the present writ petitions is not maintainable. The NOIDA dues, if payable, are to be recovered from the personal assets of the petitioners who have already undertaken personal guarantee to execute the project and pay the dues of the Noida Authority.

26. He next submitted that when the builder had abandoned the project and the home buyers were forced to take possession of incomplete flat under great duress and it is this helplessness that is being taken advantage of, by the builder to represent, as if the said flats had been fully constructed/developed. Amounts already charged towards furnishing of flats and providing other amenities, which were promised but never provided as the funds were diverted to some other companies. Later, the home buyers further had to shell out huge amount of money to make the flats habitable. There was no permanent electricity connection which was obtained by the home buyers themselves at their own cost.

27. He further submitted that the promoters had not denied anywhere in any of their affidavit/supplementary affidavit that out of Rs.636 crores collected from the home buyers, Rs.190 crores were not diverted from Hacienda's (HPPL) accounts. This fund was to be utilized only for construction/development of the project, instead of utilizing for the same, the promoters gave interest free loans to sister concerns (where the three petitioners themselves were directors or had business interest), or utilized for servicing of loans that were not related to the project. The same conclusion has been arrived at by the Economic Offences Wingh, Delhi Police, in the charge sheet filed against the three promoters/petitioners. The sale of 27,941.95 square meter land and diversion of the sale consideration has also been established by Economic Offences Wing in their charge-sheet.

28. To buttress his argument, the learned counsel further submitted that ownership structure of the group of these companies clearly establishes how the three promoters Nirmal Singh, Surpreet Singh Suri and Vidur Bharadwaj, were in complete ownership of a web of companies, including Hacienda. As far as the applicant knew, these promoters have around 60 companies. These three promoters were common directors in all the companies, where they had the same modus operandi of siphoning off the funds and then tender their resignation as directors of the company to escape civil and criminal liabilities and make their petty employee a director of these companies and still have full control of the companies. The order dated 30.04.2019 passed by this Hon'ble Court in Arbitration & Conciliation Application No.39 of 2018 and the emails brought on record goes to show that the petitioners were the actual persons controlling the affairs of HPPL even after having purportedly resigned therefrom.

29. He further submitted that IndusInd Bank granted a loan to HPPL in 2017, (on the personal guarantees of the three promoters) even though the project was fully financed by the homebuyers there was no need for the company to take loan still the loan was asked for, and the same was approved by the bank. Subsequently, on account of its poor financial condition and non-serving of said loan, IndusInd Bank filed an Insolvency Petition before the NCLT claiming about Rs.33 crores. Surprisingly, the bank has chosen not to invoke the personal guarantee of these three promoters. It is quite strange as to how the bank had given loans without carrying out the proper due diligence of the project or of the promoters, especially since Hacienda's (HPPL) balance sheets clearly showed diversion of funds to the tune of Rs.190 crores. Surprisingly, the bank after disbursing the loan did not seem to bother to check as to where the loan amount was spent. The loan amount was never put to use in the project, and was in fact, once again diverted to other entities controlled by the petitioners for their benefit. Though as per the RBI guidelines the bank has to monitor and see whether the loan amount is spent for the purpose of the loan for which it was taken or not.

30. He further submitted that the entire fraud had been committed in clear connivance of the Noida Authority, even as per the stand of Noida Authority in their affidavit only first seven instalments were paid and the eighth instalment, which fall due on 25.03.2014 onwards are still outstanding and a recovery certificate was issued only for additional compensation and not for the outstanding instalments, which included land premium and the interest. Noida Authority had failed to monitor the project and made no effort to even ascertain the reasons for more than a decade's delay in completion of the project and payment of dues owned to it.

31. Learned counsel for the home buyers further submitted that it has become practice with all the fly by night, real-estate companies to sell the flats, and pump out all the booking amount not complete the projects, and then resign from the company and appoint dummy directors. This practice is not adopted by one company, but most of the real-estate companies are doing the same, and the State and Noida Authority keeps a blind eye on this.

32. He argues that after the interim order was passed by this Court, there was a stalemate and the builders had stopped carrying out the construction or completion of the project. The home-buyers who were left in lurch filed an impleadment application in this petition which was allowed.

33. He further argued that though the home buyers had filed an impleadment application in the writ petition filed by the promoters of HPPL but since no substantial relief could have been granted in that writ so the home buyers had filed a separate substantive writ petition, which was numbered as Writ-C No.20251 of 2021, in which the State, Noida Authority, HPPL, all the three promoters and M/s Three C Universal Developers Pvt. Ltd were the parties. This writ was tagged along with the other writ petitions filed by the promoters/directors. In this writ petition of the flat buyers, following prayers were made:-

"(a) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent no.2 to issue Occupancy/Completion Certificate for the residential apartment complex "Lotus 300" at Section 107 Noida and to the respondents to execute Registered Tripartite Lease Deeds with the home buyers (including the members of the Petitioner Association) without demanding any outstanding dues of the developer from them;

(b) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent nos.1 & 2 to provide all essential services and amenities such as water, electricity, sanitation, access to the residential apartment complex "Lotus 300" at Sector 107 Noida;

(c) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent no.1 to issue such concessions, exemption or other incentives to the home buyers (including the members of the Petitioner Association) of the residential apartment complex "Lotus 300" at Sector 107 Noida from payment of stamp duty and/or other dues as compensation for the gross delay in the completion of the project on account of the dereliction of their statutory duties and trust by the respondent nos.1 and 2;

(d) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent no.2 to recover all dues relating to the land and building of the residential apartment complex "Lotus 300" at Sector 107 Noida from respondent nos.3 to 7 and restrain them from taking any coercive measures against the home buyers

(including the members of the Petitioner Association) for this purpose;

(e) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent no.2 to ensure that respondent nos.3 to 7 jointly and severally bring in the funds diverted/siphoned off funds paid by the petitioner buyers and/or to deposit Rs.65/- crores into an escro account of the petitioners (created for the purpose of securing funds received from the respondent developer) to complete the residential apartment complex "Lotus 300" at Section 107 Noida and complete the handover of possession of the apartments to home buyers (including the members of the petitioner association) with all amenities in accordance with original master layout plan;

(f) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus restraining the respondent no.s3 to 7 to sell, transfer, alienate or create any third party rights with respect to the residential apartment complex "Lotus 300" at Sector 107 Noida, their personal assets as well as the assets owned by their subsidiary/group/affiliate associate companies without the permission of this Hon'ble Court;

(g) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus restraining the respondent nos.4 to 6 from travelling abroad without seeking permission from this Hon'ble Court;

(h) Issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondent nos.1 to 2 to get a forensic audit conducted into the entire assets of respondent nos.4 to 6 including their group/subsidiary companies as well as personal assets of respondent nos.4 to 6;

(i) Issue any other suitable writ, order or direction, which this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper in the facts and circumstances of the case;

(j) Award costs of the petition to the petitioner throughout.

34. He further submitted that the incomplete flat given by the builder had been completed by the flat buyers from their own fund, so the Noida Authority may issue occupancy certificate and also execute a tripartite lease deed without asking for the outstanding dues from the flat buyers.

35. He further submitted that the Court should direct respondent no.3 to 7 (HPPL, the three promoters, and M/s Three C Universal Developers Pvt. Ltd.) to bring back the money which has been transferred to other entities. If this money is brought back then that will be sufficient to pay all the dues of Noida Authority, bank and also the home buyers who have spent in completion of the project.

36. Lastly he submitted that in the interest of justice an exhaustive audit should be conducted for the entire assets of the three promoters/directors including their group companies/subsidiary companies as well as the personal assets of these three promoters/directors. Since all the transactions and diversion of funds were sham and just to escape the legal liabilities had been done by the petitioners and even after their resigning, they still were in full control of the company, hence, it is necessary for piercing corporate veil to see who are the key personnel responsible for all the frauds and sham done under the facade of a separate juristic person.

STAND OF NOIDA AUTHORITY

37. The Noida Authority has filed a counter affidavit in June, 2020 wherein they stated that the recovery has been initiated by the Noida Authority for the additional compensation, which was to be paid to the farmers. This amount was Rs.54,50,55,626/- along with time extension charges for the delayed project, which was Rs.9,15,00,000/-, this amounted to a total of Rs.63,65.55,626/- out of which the HPPL have only paid a sum of Rs.1,20,75,781. They further submitted that the land was allotted way back and since then the company is in arrears which warrants extreme steps to be taken against the company and its directors.

38. The Noida Authority in its counter affidavit further stated that these group of companies had applied for allotment of the plot and after allotment, a Special Purpose Company, "HPPL" was created just for the ease of doing business. Later on, sub-division of the allotted plot was allowed by the Noida Authority vide its letter/order dated 02.02.2012. It also carried a tabular chart which shows the list of directors of the participating consortium companies. It is relevant to point out here that in every company the petitioner has been shown as director, along with that the petitioners are the face of the consortium and that is why the Noida Authority has decided to issue the impugned citation against him, in order to recover the money. The company is under heavy dues of the authority and there is no response from it, as such it becomes imperative upon the Noida Authority to take coercive steps against the important members/directors of the company in order to secure the recovery of the dues.

39. The Noida Authority filed another counter affidavit on 05.09.2021 in which it stated that the petitioner is the main shareholder and partner in the HPPL, however, to save themselves from any liability, they have found an easy way out by making someone else a director in the company. As on 05.09.2021, the total amount due towards the Noida Authority is Rs.107,46,62,317/- for which the Noida Authority has sent notices from time to time. It is further stated that the petitioners are also the directors of M/s Three C Realtors Pvt. Ltd., which is a 100% subsidiary of M/s Hacienda Project Pvt. Ltd.

40. The Noida Authority issued a recovery certificate on 05.09.2019 against M/s Hacienda Project Pvt. Ltd. and on 16.09.2019 against the petitioner as they were the key persons in HPPL.

41. The Noida Authority in its counter affidavit further stated that the petitioners are in charge of the affairs of the company and that is why they entered into a MOU on 30.12.2018 and they have only resigned from the post of director just to escape the liability of the company. The MOU signed on 30.12.2018 amounts to guarantee of payment of dues towards Noida Authority.

INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS

42. During pendency of this case it transpires that the IndusInd Bank who had advanced loan to HPPL had moved an application under the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code (for short "IB Code") before the NCLT, Delhi and vide order dated 11.11.2022, NCLT, Delhi (IndusInd Bank v. Hiscenda Projects) admitted the application and corporate insolvency resolution process was initiated. IRP was appointed who was directed to take over affairs of the company. Once the CIRP proceedings have commenced under the IB

Code, 2016 any proceedings against the Corporate Debtors stands suspended and are covered under the moratorium as per Section 14 of the IB Code. The said moratorium period is applicable till approval of Resolution Plan or passing of the liquidation order by the NCLT. Section 238 of the IB Code supersedes any other law, which may be contrary to its provisions.

ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONERS/PROMOTERS

43. Mr. Shashi Nandan and Mr. Anupam Lal Das, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Prateek Sinha, appearing on behalf of Mr. Nirmal Singh argued that the demand of Rs.63 crores was completely incorrect. In 2017 Noida Authority had issued a no dues certificate and at that point of time there was no demand, however, in 2019 suddenly demand of Rs.63 crores comes in, which has no basis. He has filed an objection to this demand stating that they have already paid a sum of Rs.60.85 crores towards premium and lease rent. Since the objection was not decided, so, all the three directors of HPPL (against whom recovery certificate was issued) preferred the instant writ petition. It was further submitted that the Recovery Certificate was also issued against the company, and since the liability is of the company, hence, no liability of the company can be fastened upon the directors individually.

44. Learned counsel for the petitioner/promoter/director submitted that the project got delayed because of no fault attributable to the promoters. After the inception, the project was stopped by an order of NGT. It took considerable amount of time when the order was vacated. Thereafter, the acquisition of the land in question was subject matter of challenge and the acquisition was set aside. Later on, the land was given/resorted back to the company on a condition that additional compensation was to be paid to the farmers and this took considerable amount of time. He further submitted that the payment due for the period w.e.f. 25.09.2010 till 25.09.2013 could not sustain as at that point of time, the land was restored to the farmers and the Noida Authority has no legal authority to collect the premium from the petitioner. Only after the land was restored, they could realise the outstanding dues and that too from the company.

45. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that during pendency of this case, IndusInd Bank who had advanced loan to HPPL has moved an application under I.B. Code before the NCLT, Delhi and vide order dated 11.11.2022, NCLT, Delhi (IndusInd Bank v. Hiscenda Projects) admitted the application and corporate insolvency resolution process was initiated. IRP was appointed who was directed to take over affairs of the company and take steps in accordance with law. Hence, all the dues of HPPL towards Noida Authority, now would be paid by the Insolvency Resolution Professional, who has taken over the company by the tribunals' order and all the creditors should approach the IRP for payment of their dues.

46. The counsel for the promoters/petitioners further stated that the dues of the company cannot be recovered from the private assets of the directors of the company, unless it is specifically provided in the statute or warranted by law. He further submitted that no corporate veil can be pierced in the normal circumstances.

47. The counsel for the petitioner further placed reliance on a Division Bench judgement passed by this Court in the case of Rakesh Mahajan vs. State of U.P. and Ors.[1] in which it has been held :-

"50.Thus, the legal position that can broadly culled out from the above judgments are:

a) That a Company is a separate and distinct entity from its shareholders and directors.

b) Corporate veil can be pierced

(i) only in exceptional circumstances by the courts with caution and circumspection and in a restrictive manner.

(ii) For lifting of corporate veil it is essential that the case falls within the exceptions as elaborated and crstalised by Munby J. in Ben Hashem v Ali Shayif,[2008] EWHC 2380 and approved by the Apex Court in Balwant Rai Saluja (supra) and Arcelormittal India (supra)

(iii) Where the statute itself permits l

51. The facts of the present case demonstrate that the petitioner Rakesh Mahajan was never a Director of PAN Realtors Pvt. Limited and is not even a shareholder of PAN Realtors Pvt. Limited in his personal capacity. Further, there is nothing on record to even suggest that PAN Realtors Pvt. Limited was incorporated as a 'sham' or a 'facade' for execution of the lease in question, in fact the Company was incorporated at the insistence of Noida Authority which is clear from the allotment letter. The lease deed executed in between Noida and PAN Realtors Pvt. Limited still subsists and has not even been determined.

52. Further, there is no material to suggest that the petitioners herein Rakesh Mahajan or Nirala Buildcon exercised pervasive control over Pan Developers (Pvt.) Limited. The statute in question being U.P. Urban Planning Development Act, 1973 does not have any provision for lifting the corporate veil. The petitioners are not even a signatory to the lease deed in question and thus no case is made out for piercing the veil for recovery of alleged dues of PAN Realtors Pvt. Limited from the petitioners."

48. He submitted that the ratio of Rakesh Mahajan (supra) is similar to the instant case, and since it cannot be said that this case is of exceptional circumstances and it does not fall under the exception elaborated in Ben Hashem v Ali Shayif [2008] EWHC 2380. Hence, the Court should not exercise its right in piercing of corporate veil.

49. He next submitted that since the company has gone into insolvency, the Noida Authority can only prosecute the Corporate Debtor under the IB Code, 2016. He placed reliance on judgement of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ajay Kumar Radheshyam Goenka vs. Tourism Finance Croporation of India Ltd.[2], wherein it was held that a creditor has no option but to join the process under the IB Code. Once a plan is approved, it would bind everyone under sun. The making of a claim under IB Code and accepting whatever share is allotted could be termed as 'Involuntary Act' on behalf of the creditor.

50. He lastly submitted that since the promoters are no longer directors and not at all involved in the affairs of the company, hence, no liability of the company can be fastened on them in personal capacity. Moreover, since the company is now in Insolvency under the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code and the IRP has been appointed so any liability of the company has to be recovered as per provisions of the Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code.

ARGUMENT ON BEHALF OF NOIDA AUTHORITY

51. The counsel for the Noida Authority submitted that after the original allotment of land to the consortium (which was a huge chunk of land), the plot was further divided and ultimately after the division a lease was executed by Noida Authority on behalf of the consortium members with a special purpose company known as M/s Hacienda Projects Private Limited, whose promoters and directors were Nirmal Singh, Surpreet Singh Suri and Vidur Bharadwaj. Apart from being the directors, they are the main shareholders in the company. After allotment of the plot to the company (HPPL) the Noida Authority had given them two years moratorium so that they can start the business and get booking from the flat owners and pay to the authority. The company was supposed to pay six monthly instalments. The company paid only seven instalments uptill 25.09.2013 and thereafter the company failed to pay instalment, which fell due from 25.03.2014 onwards. The recovery notice of Rs.63 crores, which was initially issued, was only for the additional compensation which was to be paid to the farmers, however, the total outstanding in June, 2021 against the company was Rs.107,46,62,317.

52. The counsel for the Noida Authority further submitted that the petitioners are the main shareholders and partners in the project, however, to save themselves from any liability they have found an easy way out by resigning as directors of the company just to escape the criminal and civil liabilities of the company. Even after resigning from the position of directorship of the company they are still in complete control, and have a complete charge over the company. If the Court lifts the corporate veil it will be seen that these promoters are actually running the company and have only tendered resignation to defraud the creditors and to get away without paying the dues of Noida Authority.

ARGUMENTS ON BEHALF OF HOME BUYERS

(WRIT-C No.20251 OF 2021)

53. Learned counsel for the home buyers submitted that though the petitioner and other directors had tendered resignation but they had full control over the working of the company. After the arrest, if they were not the directors they could have very well taken a stand that they were not the directors as such they cannot be arrested. However, they chose to sign a MOU with the flat buyers wherein the 2nd party to the MOU was HPPL and all the three promoters (petitioner herein) were the confirming parties. Once they have signed the MOU and agreed to pay all the dues of Noida Authority and got the bail on the basis of MOU, they cannot be allowed to hide under the mask that they are not the directors any more and have got nothing to do with the company. The entire liability is that of the company and the company being a juristic personality is only responsible to pay the liabilities of its own.

54. Since the company itself being an artificial legal person cannot be prosecuted, it is the directors and key managerial people, who had played a fraud and are the one responsible for the conduct of the company have to be prosecuted for the the fraud done on behalf of the company. In this case, all the money was illegally syphoned off when the promoters were the directors of the company and as such culpable fraud has been played by them, and hence, they ought to be prosecuted for all the frauds done by them as directors in charge of the company.

55. Learned counsel for the home buyers further submitted that this Court may pierce the corporate veil to see as to who are actually in control of the company, who are the key persons responsible for all the fraud and sham transactions done under the facade of the company. What relations does these promoters had in those companies where the money were parked/invested and why did HPPL never asked the money back from those entities.

56. Learned counsel for the home buyers further submitted that, the promoters obtained the interim order from this Court by concealment of material fact that they have entered a MOU whereby they have given a guarantee to pay the dues of Noida Authority. The petitioner enjoyed the interim relief for more than 4 years. The promoters have not only defrauded the home buyers but also mislead this Court by concealing the facts.

57. He next submitted that it is evident from the documents filed with the ROC that Rs.191.181 crores have been siphoned off or given interest free loan to other companies owned/managed by the three promoters. Even a loan was given to M/s Three C Universal Developers Pvt. Ltd., who is respondent no.7 in this petition and inspite of notices being issued they have not filed any reply.

58. It was further submitted that these promoters have not only cheated the home buyers in this project alone but have launched various other identical projects and have cheated hundreds of other gullible home buyers. In all the projects they have followed the same modus operandi of launching the project, collecting money from the buyers, diverting the funds to various other companies and then resigning from the directorship of the company so as to avoid any civil and criminal liabilities.

59. Learned counsel for the home buyers further submitted that these three promoters, Nirmal Singh, Surpreet Singh Suri and Vidur Bharadwaj have not only swindled the money from this project alone but they have also cheated hundreds of other home buyers of their money in other projects and in all the projects these three persons were the directors and had the same modus operandi of resigning from the directorship and making their petty employees as a poppet director. He further submitted that the FIRs have been lodged by various home buyers of different projects against these three persons, details of which are as follows:-

I. FIR No.137 of 24.08.2017 – EOW – New Delhi – Project Greenopoils.

II. FIR No. 28.8.2017 – P.S. GK New Delhi – Against Vidur Bhardwaj – Project Delhi One.

III. FIR No.72 of 19.03.2018 – EOW – New Delhi – Hacienda Pvt. Ltd- Lotus 300 – Sector 107.

IV. FIR No.74 of 24.03.2018 – EOW – New Delhi – Hacienda Pvt. Ltd- Lotus 300 – Sector 107.

V. FIR No.107 of 15.05.2018 – EOW – New Delhi – Boulevard Projects Pvt. Ltd.- Sector 100.

VI. FIR No.117 of 23.05.2018 – EOW – New Delhi – Granite Gate Properties Pvt. Ltd – Penache – Sector 110.

VII. FIR No.40 of 24.03.2020 – EOW – New Delhi - Arena Superstructures – Sector 79.

VIII. FIR No.06 of 12.01.2018 PS GB Nagar – 3C Universal Developers.

IX. FIR No.54 of 15.05.2020 – EOW New Delhi – Project Piyush IT – Nirmal Singh.

X. FIR No.49 of 27.03.2019 – EOW New Delhi – Project – Three C Projects Pvt. Ltd.

XI. FIR No.59 of 16.06.2020 – EOW New Delhi – Project Three C Shelters.

60. In this backdrop the learned counsel for home buyers submitted that a suitable investigation should be carried out by an agency competent to investigate in the siphoning off the funds and also to see who is responsible and in actual control of HPPL and further suitable endeavours should be made to get the syphoned money back into the company and appropriate legal action should be taken against all those who had conned and illegally transferred funds from HPPL .

61. He further submitted that the petitioners/builder/HPPL after collecting the entire value of the flats did not pay Noida Authority their dues and Noida Authority for the reasons best known to them never took any steps to recover the same. Now the builder has run away/gone into insolvency and hence the Noida Authority at the cost of home buyers, cannot hold back the occupancy certificate on the ground that dues of the Noida Authority have not been paid.

62. The home buyers further referred to a judgement passed by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Bikam Chatterji and Ors. Vs. Union of India (UOI) and Ors.[3], relevant portion of which reads as under:-

"We have also found that non-payment of dues of the Noida and Greater Noida Authorities and the banks cannot come in the way of occupation of flats by home buyers as money of home buyers has been diverted due to the inaction of Officials of Noida/ Greater Noida Authorities. They cannot sell the buildings or demolish them nor can enforce the charge against homebuyers/ leased land/ projects in the facts of the case. Similarly, the banks cannot recover money from projects as it has not been invested in projects. Homebuyers money has been diverted fraudulently, thus, fraud cannot be perpetuated against them by selling the flats and depriving them of hard-earned money and savings of entire life. They cannot be cheated once over again by sale of the projects raised by their funds. The Noida and Greater Noida Authorities have to issue the Completion/ Part Completion Certificate, as the case may be, to execute tripartite agreement and registered deeds in favour of the buyers on partcompletion or completion of the buildings, as the case may be or where the inhabitants are residing, within a period of one month."

63. He further submitted that this is a perfect case, where the corporate veil has to be lifted. The Delhi High Court in its judgement in Delhi Airport Metro Express Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Delhi Metro Rail Corporation Ltd.[4], has held as under:-

"93. As would be evident from the decisions rendered across jurisdictions and noticed above, the doctrine of a separate legal personality of a corporation and the situations where that veil could be pierced or lifted is well embedded. While legal systems around the world have evolved their own tests or grounds on the basis of which that doctrine may be applied, it is manifest that the shield of a separate legal personality is neither inviolable nor impenetrable. The Court is essentially called upon to ascertain and articulate the circumstances in which that principle may be justifiably invoked in law. While the tests of façade, sham, or where the corporate structure is set up to evade legal obligations are well settled, the issue which arises is whether a court would be justified in law to invoke the piercing principle absent allegations of fraud, façade or evasion of taxes or any other obligations.

94. On a review of the legal position as it prevails today across various jurisdictions, it is manifest that the doctrine of lifting of the corporate veil is no longer recognized to be applicable only in the context of the facade and sham tests that have held the field for centuries. The said principle may also in an appropriate case be liable to be resorted to where equity and the ends of justice may sanction such a recourse, where legal obligations are sought to be avoided as also in a setting where public policy or public interest so demand and require. A decree or judgment of a competent court must necessarily be enforced. Courts of justice would be failing in their duty if a decree were left to be a mere dead letter. If decrees and judgments of courts were to be rendered inexecutable and courts were to simply be forced to stand on the sideline, it would clearly shake the confidence of the people in the legal system and its very efficacy. An obligation which flows from a decree or an award must not only be duly recognized but also enforced in accordance with law. Taking any other view would render the entire adjudicatory process meaningless and an exercise in futility.

99. As modern commerce and the regulatory regime in respect thereof has evolved over the decades, courts have leaned towards jettisoning a rigidity of approach or being tied down by principles which may have lost relevancy. Law in any case must grow and evolve bearing in mind the felt societal needs of the time and at the same time taking into consideration technological and social changes. It must keep abreast with the march of civilization itself. Commerce today straddles borders and boundaries of regions and countries. That has indubitably thrown up its own share of original and novel questions. These transformational and normative changes warrant this Court to observe that the evolution of the laws cannot be tied down to conventional creeds. The web of complex corporate structures and which many a time spread across jurisdictions commands the courts to develop and adapt. On a more foundational ground, this Court deems it appropriate to recall the famous words of Cardozo and Hand both of whom had commended for acceptance the basic principle that a corporate structure should not frustrate the enforcement of an obligation or leave a party remediless. Courts should desist from becoming a mere mute spectator.

100. The decisions of our Supreme Court noticed above had prophetically observed that the doctrine of lifting of the corporate veil must be left to develop and evolve. Those decisions had in any case, and in the considered opinion of this Court, deliberately and consciously refrained from exhaustively chronicling or enumerating the myriad circumstances in which that precept could be applied. None of those decisions are liable to be read as recognizing fraud, façade or sham as being the solitary tests for application of the lifting doctrine. The power of the Court to peep behind the veil thus must be recognised and held to be justifiably invoked where questions of public policy, public interest or enforcement of settled legal obligations arise*. The aforesaid three factors must be recognised as being the cornerstones of our judicial system itself.* The precedents noticed above had resorted to the lifting of the veil doctrine where to overcome injustice and inequitable circumstances or results.

101. Judgments and decrees handed down by a competent court represent and symbolize declarations which bind parties to the lis. No party should be permitted to wriggle out from the obligations which flow therefrom. Taking any other view would result in a systemic breakdown of the adjudicatory mechanism that has evolved over centuries*. It is in such situations that the issues of public policy and public interest assume significance. A corporate veil in any case should not come in the way of execution of a binding and well settled legal obligation.*

102. It would be relevant to note that when the corporate veil is pierced in situations like the present, the action is not really one which is aimed at the shareholder as ordinarily understood in law. The shareholder is identified by the court principally since it represents the body and the soul of the corporate entity itself. It is the absolute control exercised by the shareholder over that corporate body which would convince and justify a court to proceed further. The Court also bears in mind the principle of "directing mind" as accepted by courts in the United Kingdom."

64. The learned counsel for the home buyers, to buttress his argument further submitted that the resignation of the promoters as directors of HPPL is nothing but a sham and a facade setup to deceive the statutory bodies to evade the process of law. This is evident from the fact that:-

A. There are several e-mails written between the promoters where repeatedly concerns are being expressed by and amongst themselves about rearrangement of the affairs of the company, and other group companies irrespective the purported resignation of the promoters from these companies a long time ago.

B. The fact that the promoters are the real persons controlling the affairs of the HPPL this has been recognised by the order dated 30.04.2019 passed by this Hon'ble Court in Arbitration and Conciliation Application No.39 of 2018, wherein the newly appointed Director of HPPL was summoned who gave a statement that he was a dummy director only on paper, and he was working as a Store Keeper of the company.

C. The very fact that the promoters signed the MOUs executed in the year 2018, and owned up responsibility for completing the project (despite having resigned in between 2014-15) also shows that they are in full control of HPPL and are in a position to take a decision on behalf of the company.

D. The promoters continued to offer guarantees on behalf of sister concerns, towards the loans extended to them, to various group companies and financial institution, as late as till 2018, despite allegedly having no role to play in the company.

E. The charge-sheet filed by the Economic Offences Wing, Delhi clearly points out the manner in which the promoters have indulged in misappropriation and siphoning of funds, and how they were/are the real brain behind the HPPL.

F. The entire web of transaction and the facts and circumstances of the present case clearly indicate that the promoters have used the HPPL and other similarly situated group companies to syphon out funds and to invest or park the same in various other entities. They were doing so as these funds were their personal properties.

65. The learned counsel lastly submitted that the averments made by the home buyers in their writ petition has not been denied by the promoters or the company and they have chosen not to file any counter affidavit to controvert the averments made therein, hence, under the provisions of law they stand admitted.

66. We have carefully considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the respective parties. With their able assistance, we have perused the pleadings, grounds taken in the petition, affidavits and annexures thereto and the reply filed by concerned parties.

67. This much is reflected from the record that as per the prevailing policy, Noida Authority allotted land to the builders without charging any upfront amount. A special concession was given to the builders by which the builders were supposed to start the construction work and pay the Noida Authority the price of the land out of the booking amount collected from the home buyers. Noida Authority allotted 67,941 square meters of land to HPPL to develop the residential project, and fixed a time schedule for payment of the land price.

68. The project was named as Lotus 300, the advertisement which was issued by the company stated that only 300 apartments would be built on an area of 67,941.95 square meters. A lot of people got attracted to the alluring presentation given to the company, vast openness in the project, and booked flats in this project. Allotments were made by the HPPL in favour of the respective buyers. The Builder Buyers Agreement was executed which apparently carried unilateral terms and conditions on a printed agreement whereunder the builder was supposed to charge a fine at the rate of 18% per annum on the delay of payment by the home buyer.

69. However, out of this land parcel 27,941 square meters were sold off by HPPL to a third company for a sum of Rs.236 crores and the entire sale consideration was transferred out of HPPL by the promoters/petitioners to some of their own companies. Surprisingly, the Noida Authority did not asked for this money neither modified the payment schedule fixed earlier.

70. The initial sanctioned map had three hundred flats on the entire stretch of 67941 square meters of land. However, the petitioners/promoters sold off 27,941.95 square meters of the land from the project. The effect was that the area on which 300 flats were to be built got substantially reduced without taking concurrence of the flat buyers. Further 30 apartments were added in the project which was against the sanctioned floor-plan of 2011. So the builder applied for a fresh sanction of plan in April, 2013 for these additional 30 flats. All the 330 flats, in six towers of the project were booked/sold and the developer collected a whopping sum of Rs.636 crores from the home-buyers, which was supposed to be utilised for construction/developments of the project.

71. It transpires from the record and from the balance sheet of the HPPL that the directors had taken out around 190 crores from HPPL and have invested or given interest free loan to their other companies in which the promoters were either directors or had some personal interest. While HPPL could not complete the project because of the cash crunch and also chose not to pay the dues of the Noida Authority.

72. When the home buyers felt cheated they had filed a First Information Report with the Economic Offences Wing, New Delhi New Delhi under Sections 409, 420 and 120B IPC. A thorough investigation was carried out by the Economic Offences Wing and a charge sheet was filed, in which it was found that the builders have duped the home buyers, siphoned away the funds and offences under Sections 409, 420 and 120B IPC is made out.

73. Accordingly, they were arrested on 30.11.2019. Soon after the arrest all the three promoters, (who are petitioners herein) entered into the MOU, wherein they agreed to infuse Rs.60 crores in the company by opening an escrow account and complete the project in nine months. They further agreed that they will pay the entire dues of the Noida Authority, which was essential for getting the Occupancy Certificate. This MOU was executed between the home buyers, and by all the three promoters personally and also on behalf of the HPPL.

74. On the basis of the MOU and the personal assurance/guarantee given by the three promoters, they were granted bail by the Court of Chief Metropolitan Magistrate, Saket Court, Delhi. The promoters apparently, who had no intention of honouring the MOU, soon after getting the bail, stopped infusing the fund and did not complete the project nor paid Noida Authority their statutory dues. In fact they have once again not only cheated the home buyers and also the Noida Authority but have also cheated the Court by giving a wrong undertaking (which they never intended to fulfil) and getting a bail. It is evident that the petitioners/promoters have not come to this Court with clean hands and clean mind.

75. As a part of the larger conspiracy to defraud everyone the promoters/directors (petitioners herein) after syphoning off 236 crores (sale proceeds of the part of the land) and 190 crores from the total corpus of Rs.636 crores, which was paid by the flat buyers, by illegally transferring to other entities/companies directly or indirectly owned/controlled by the promoters or where they had personal interest, all the three directors resigned and made their petty employees as puppet directors of the company just to escape their liabilities. This fact is proved by an order of this Court in which the present director, Anand Ram, who happens to be the Store Keeper, appeared in the Court and said that he is simply an employee of the company, which goes to show that the petitioners even after resigning had full control of the company.

76. As far as the argument of the petitioners/directors is concerned that after the resignation they have nothing to do with the company and cannot be prosecuted for the offences of the company and it is the present directors, who are responsible for the affairs of the company in the opinion of the Court, the moot question is to see, whether the resignation is genuine or was made as a part of the conspiracy to avoid any civil and criminal liability while secretly having full control over the company. The only way to ascertain this fact is by piercing the corporate veil and to see as to who are the key persons and in actual charge of the company and whether a fraud has been played by those persons and also to see whether they are trying to hide their fraudulent activities and themselves under the mask of the company being a separate juristic personality. It is trite law that the corporate veil cannot be lifted unless there is some impropriety or fraud been played, which is being masked as a separate juristic entity. And if so found, the veil may be pierced to see who is in actual control of the company and has created a facade and sham to camouflage the illegal action with a view to avoid payment of liabilities.

77. Due to the occurrence of the above instances of fraud and irregularities, the law has taken change with its earlier exception that the company is a separate juristic personality and the liability of the company cannot be recovered from the property of directors. In due course of time, certain exceptions have been carved out in the doctrine of separate juristic personality of the company, which are being referred in the forthcoming paragraphs.

78. The doctrine of 'piercing of corporate veil' was initially crystallized in In Salomon v. Salomon & Co. Ltd. [Salomon v. Salomon and Co. Ltd.[5], , the House of Lords had observed, the company is at law, a different person altogether from the subscriber. However, the courts have come to recognise several exceptions to the said rule. While it is not necessary to refer to all of them, the one relevant to us is 'when the corporate personality is being blatantly used as a cloak for fraud or improper conduct'.

79. The doctrine of lifting corporate veil was carved out to be used whenever and wherever the situation so warranted. Lord Denning in Littlewoods Stores v. I.R.C., 1969 (1) WLR 1241 held:-

"The doctrine laid down in Salomon's case has to be watched very carefully. It has been supposed to cast a veil over the personality of a limited company through which the Courts cannot see. But that is not true. The Courts can, and often do, draw aside the veil. They can, and often do, pull off the mask. The way with group accounts and the rest. And the Courts should follow suit……"

80. On the doctrine of 'piercing of corporate veil' the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of State of U.P. v. Renusagar Power Co.[6] has held that, in the expanding horizon of modern jurisprudence, the lifting of the corporate veil is not only permissible, its frontiers are unlimited and ever expanding. It further significantly observed that the lifting of the corporate veil was a changing concept and of expanding horizons.

81. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Balwant Rai Saluja v. Air India Ltd.[7] has held that courts would be empowered to disregard the separate legal personality of a company and impose liabilities upon the person actually in control, the essential intent of the piercing of veil of a corporate structure must be guided by the necessity to remedy a wrong done by persons controlling the company and that the said principle would have to be tested based upon the facts and circumstances of each case.

82. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Rajasthan and others vs. Gotan Lime Stone Khanij Udyog Private Limited and another[8] has held as under:-

The principle of lifting the corporate veil as an exception to the distinct corporate personality of a company or its members is well recognized not only to unravel tax evasion[7] but also where protection of public interest is of paramount importance and the corporate entity is an attempt to evade legal obligations and lifting of veil is necessary to prevent a device to avoid welfare legislation[8]. It is neither necessary nor desirable to enumerate the classes of cases where lifting the veil is permissible, since that must necessarily depend on the relevant statutory or other provisions, the object sought to be achieved, the impugned conduct, the involvement of the element of the public interest, the effect on parties who may be affected etc.

83. The Honble Supreme Court in State of Karnataka vs. J. Jayalalita and others[9] has held as under:-

It was finally held that the concept of corporate entity was evolved to encourage and promote trade and commerce and not to commit illegalities or to defraud people and thus when the corporate character is employed for the purpose of committing illegality or for defrauding others, the Court ought to ignore the corporate character and scan the reality behind the corporate veil so as to enable it to pass appropriate orders to do justice between the parties.

84. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Arcelormittal India Private Limited vs. Satish Kumar Gupta and others[10] has observed as under:

"35. Similarly in Balwant Rai Saluja & Anr. etc. etc. v. Air India Ltd. & Ors., (2014) 9 SCC 407, this Court in following Escorts Ltd. (supra.), held:

"70. The doctrine of "piercing the corporate veil" stands as an exception to the principle that a company is a legal entity separate and distinct from its shareholders with its own legal rights and obligations. It seeks to disregard the separate personality of the company and attribute the acts of the company to those who are allegedly in direct control of its operation.

85. The Division Bench of this Hon'ble Court in the matter of Jagvir Singh vs. State of U.P.[11] has held that:-

"……by lifting the corporate veil it can be found that the corporate personalitywas used as a mask for evasion of tax and that the corporate personality was sued to recover sham and collusive transactions and that when such tactics are used to circumvent the statutory liability, the taxes could be covered from the Directors by lifting the corporate veil inspite of absence of statutory provisions.

In due course of time, certain exceptions were carved out in the doctrine of separate juristic personality of the company. The doctrine of lifting the corporate veil was carved out to be used whenever and wherever the situation so warranted. Lord Denning in Littlewoods

Stores Vs. I.R.C., 1969 (1) WLR 1241 held:-

" The doctrine laid down in Salomon's case has to be watched very carefully. It has often been supposed to cast a veil over the personality of a limited company through which the Courts cannot see. But that is not true. The Courts can, and often do, draw aside the veil. They can, and often do, pull off the mask. They look to see what really lies behind. The legislature has shown the way with group accounts and the rest. And the Courts should follow suit……"

86. The principle of lifting the veil of corporate personality has been upheld in Subhra Mukharjee & another v. Bharat Cooking Coal Ltd. & another (2003) 3 SCC 312; Calcutta Chromotype Ltd. vs. Collector of Central Excise Kolkata AIR 1998 SC 1631, New Horizon Ltd. & another vs. Union of India and others, 1995 (1) SCC 478, C.I.T. vs. Meenakshi Mills Ltd. Madura AIR 1967 SC 819; Telco & ors vs. State of Bihar AIR 1965 SC 40; Juggilal Kamlapal vs., AIR 1969 SC 932.

87. This Court in the matter of Rakesh Mahajan vs. State of U.P. and others[12], this Court has held:-

"The principles laid down by the Ben Hashem case (supra) have been reiterated by UK Supreme Court by Lord Neuberger in Prest v. Petrodel Resources Limited and others, [2013] UKSC 34, at paragraph 64. Lord Sumption, in the Prest case (supra), finally observed as follows:

"35. I conclude that there is a limited principle of English law which applies when a person is under an existing legal obligation or liability or subject to an existing legal restriction which he deliberately evades or whose enforcement he deliberately frustrates by interposing a company under his control. The Court may then pierce the corporate veil for the purpose, and only for the purpose, of depriving the company or its controller of the advantage that they would otherwise have obtained by the company's separate legal personality. The principle is properly described as a limited one, because in almost every case where the test is satisfied, the facts will in practice disclose a legal relationship between the company and its controller which will make it unnecessary to pierce the corporate veil."The position of law regarding this principle in India has been enumerated in various decisions. A Constitution Bench of this Court in Life Insurance Corporation of India v. Escorts Ltd. & Ors., (1986) 1 SCC 264, while discussing the doctrine of corporate veil, held that:

"90. ... Generally and broadly speaking, we may say that the corporate veil may be lifted where a statute itself contemplates lifting the veil, or fraud or improper conduct is intended to be prevented, or a taxing statute or a beneficent statute is sought to be evaded or where associated companies are inextricably connected as to be, in reality, part of one concern. It is neither necessary nor desirable to enumerate the classes of cases where lifting the veil is permissible, since that must necessarily depend on the relevant statutory or other provisions, the object sought to be achieved, the impugned conduct, the involvement of the element of the public interest, the effect on parties who may be affected etc."

74. Thus, on relying upon the aforesaid decisions, the doctrine of piercing the veil allows the Court to disregard the separate legal personality of a company and impose liability upon the persons exercising real control over the said company. However, this principle has been and should be applied in a restrictive manner, that is, only in scenarios wherein it is evident that the company was a mere camouflage or sham deliberately created by the persons exercising control over the said company for the purpose of avoiding liability. The intent of piercing the veil must be such that would seek to remedy a wrong done by the persons controlling the company. The application would thus depend upon the peculiar facts and circumstances of each case."

88. The most comprehensive exposition of the approach to the subject has been elucidated by the Delhi High Court in the matter of Delhi Airport Metro Express Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Delhi Metro Rail Corporation Ltd (supra), wherein it has been held that the doctrine of lifting of the corporate veil is no longer recognized to be applicable only in the context of the facade and sham tests that have held the field for centuries. The web of complex corporate structures, which many a time spread across jurisdictions commands the courts to develop and adapt. The power of the Court to peep behind the veil thus must be recognised and held to be justifiably invoked where questions of public policy, public interest or enforcement of settled legal obligations arise. These three factors must be recognised as being the cornerstones of our judicial system itself. The precedents noticed above had resorted to the lifting of the veil doctrine to overcome injustice and inequitable circumstances or results. It is the absolute control exercised by the key personnel over that corporate body which would convince and justify a court to proceed further.

89. In this backdrop, the ration of case law cited by petitioner in the case of R.K. Chaddha Vs. State of U.P. (supra) is not applicable in the present case. As in the instant matter the promoters/directors had got land allotted from Noida Authority launched project and lured people to invest/book and then sold off a major portion of the land to the third party for Rs.236 crores and then skimmed off this amount to its other companies and thereafter, out of Rs.636 crores collected from home buyers again diverted Rs.191 crores to their other group companies. To divest this amount, corporate structure was set up for masking the sham transactions and a fraud is apparently played with the bank or the public at large as well as the State. Therefore, it has become imperative on this Court to lift the corporate veil and to see who are the key persons involved behind this syphoning, layering of funds of HPPL company.

90. After piercing the corporate veil, it is evident that the three promoters/directors/petitioners have transferred/diverted funds from HPPL to different companies in which these three were either promoters/ directions/shareholders or had some business interest in it. As per their own balance sheet Rs.191 crores was given as interest free loans, and surprisingly, HPPL was facing cash crunch, they did not had the money to complete the project or pay the Noida Authority dues or the dues of the bank, but even then it did not take any steps to recover the interest free loan which they had given to other companies. Apart from this, the sale proceeds of Rs.236 crores which the company got from selling a portion of the project land, was also diverted away. The syphoning away of funds is evident and this was done while these three petitioners were directors. They had tendered their resignation after the money was moved out of HPPL and they were responsible for doing that. Now the question is as to who has the full control of the company.

COMPLETE CONTROL OF HPPL WITH THE PROMOTERS EVEN AFTER RESIGNING

91. The promoters of the company even after resigning have a complete control over the company. This fact has been ascertained with the several emails, which have been brought on record, which goes to prove that the promoters even much after resigning have been managing the affairs of the company and had been sending emails where they have shown concerns among themselves about rearrangement of the affairs of the company and other group companies irrespective of the purported resignation given by them from these companies long time back.

92. The fact that the promoters are still in the driving seat and have a complete control on the affairs of HPPL and other group companies has also been recognized by the order dated 30.04.2019 passed by Hon'ble High Court in Arbitration and Conciliation Application No.39 of 2018, wherein, Anand Ram, the present director, in a Court proceeding has given a statement that he is just a store keeper with HPPL and has no knowledge about the working of the company and he had appeared on the direction of (Personal Secretary of one of the promoters, Vidur Bharadwaj), it was then the Court had issued summons to one of the directors/petitioners (who had resigned) to appear before the Court. This goes to show that the petitioner and the other directors are in complete control of the company throughout, and the present directors are their petty employees placed by them as puppets.

93. The very fact that the promoters signed the MOUs executed in the year 2018, and owned up responsibility for completing the project (despite having resigned in between 2014-15) also shows that they are in full control of HPPL and are in a position to take a decision on behalf of the company.

CONDUCT AND ROLE OF NOIDA AUTHORITY

94. The lease deed executed between the HPPL and the Noida Authority had a clause of cancellation of lease in case there is any default on part of the lessee or violation of any terms and condition of the lease for non-deposit of the allotment amount. The terms of the lease deed was clear that in case any amount due is not paid, the sub-lease would be cancelled but surprisingly, the allotment amount, which fell due w.e.f. 25.03.2014 to 28.03.2020 and onwards no action was taken by the Noida Authority.

95. In this backdrop, it would not be wrong to say that the officers of the Noida Authority had been allowing the petitioners to commit the fraud. Though after paying seven instalments (out of which four were of moratorium period where nothing towards the principal amount was to be paid and only interest was to be paid) they have stopped paying instalments w.e.f. 25.03.2014 onwards but the Noida Authority did not take any steps to recover the same and virtually allowed the promoters to collect money from the home buyers and syphon away the same to some other companies. It was only in 2019, the Noida Authority got out of the slumber and issued a recovery certificate against the company and against the promoters. The impugned recovery notice issued was only against the additional compensation which the company had to pay to the Noida Authority, which in turn had to be paid to the farmers. The Noida Authority had given enough long rope for the promoters to siphon away all the funds of the company and leave the company absolutely in an insolvent condition.

96. The Noida Authority had in the year 2017 issued a list of defaulters, who had defaulting in making payments to the Noida Authority. The name of the HPPL was there but surprisingly they took no steps to recover the overdue instalments from the company.

97. There is also an indemnity clause in the lease deed executed between Noida Authority and HPPL wherein it was stated that the lessee shall be wholly and solely responsible for implementation of the project and also for ensuring quality, development and subsequent maintenance. The lessee has not completed the project as per the timeline given by the Noida Authority and for the reasons best known to the Noida Authority, they have not taken any action against the promoters. The Noida Authority did not make any effort to even ascertain the reasons for the delay of more than a decade in completion of the project.

98. When the Noida Authority permitted HPPL to sell 27,941.09 square meters of land (hey ought to have recovered the said money but they allowed the HPPL to sell the part of the allotted land) for Rs.236 crores and pocket all the sale proceeds and most surprisingly the Noida Authority did not even ask for the same. Astonishingly, when the The payment schedule was of total land area of 67,941.95 square meters, though the HPPL had sold off 27,941.09 square meters but the Noida Authority did not change the payment schedule but allowed to continue the earlier payment schedule, which was for 67,941 square meter. With this, the Noida Authority had ensured an illegal windfall gains to the promoters at the cost of the interest of Noida Authority. Had the Noida Authority recovered the premium from the sale proceeds or changed the payment schedule when a major portion of land has been sold off, this outstanding dues would have been far less . Even if they had insisted the HPPL to pay the instalments in time, there would not have been a default and the dues would not have mounted so much.

99. The affidavit filed by the Noida Authority does not explain the reason why there was a stoic silence on behalf of the Noida Authority, for making any efforts to recover the instalments which fell due from 25.03.2014 onwards. On account of gross negligence of Noida Authority in taking any steps or even ascertaining status of payment towards its dues for over a decade has led to ballooning of its dues, which is approximately Rs.166 crores as of today.

100. Apparently, the inaction of the Noida Authority speaks volumes of their conduct. It is because of their inaction against the defaulting company, the gullible home buyers have come to such a situation where they, after paying the entire money, are not getting the occupancy certificate and presently the Noida Authority is also not in a position to recover any amount from the company, as the company is now under insolvency.

101. The Noida Authority merely acted as a private trader (rather than a trustee and regulator) selling rights of these lands to developers, who prospered by making a huge profit. The promoters/developers in cahoots with the officers of the Noida Authority kept defrauding innocent buyers. Astonishingly, while buyers were struggling to get possession of their apartments in such incomplete projects of this developer, Noida continued further to allot large tracts of land to new companies floated by one of the promoters.

102. Apparently, there is an abject failure of Noida Authority and a complete abdication of their duties to protect the rights of hapless home buyers. The Noida Authority have been singularly responsible for a series of untenable, arbitrary and irrational actions which have directly and irreversibly impacted hundreds of home buyers, their families, their life savings and their living situation.

BANK LOAN

103. The company has taken a loan from the IndusInd bank. Apparently, the loan was granted and it seems that the bank did not verify and did not carry out proper due diligence before granting the loan. If the bank had taken due care and diligence, it would have come to surface that there was no need for the loan to HPPL as the home buyers had paid the amount, which included cost of the land, (that is land premium) lease rent, cost of construction, and of-course a profit, which the builder was supposed to make. When there was enough money with HPPL for completion of the project then what was the need of taking/giving loan to the company. Even after disbursing the loan, the Bank did not bother to see or check whether the amount for which the loan was given has been utilized for the same or not.

IMPLEMENTATION OF PREVENTION OF MONEY LAUNDERING ACT

104. The Prevention of Money Laundering Act13 (in short 'PMLA Act") was enacted in 2002. For ready reference Sub-Clause (p), (u), (v), (y) and (za) of Clause 2 of Chapter I of the PMLA Act are quoted hereunder :-

(p) "money-laundering" has the meaning assigned to it in section 3;

u) "proceeds of crime" means any property derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, by any person as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence or the value of any such property or where such property is taken or held outside the country, then the property equivalent in value held within the country or abroad;

Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that "proceeds of crime" include property not only derived or obtained from the scheduled offence but also any property which may directly or indirectly be derived or obtained as a result of any criminal activity relatable to the scheduled offence.

(v) "property" means any property or assets of every description, whether corporeal or incorporeal, movable or immovable, tangible or intangible and includes deeds and instruments evidencing title to, or interest in, such property or assets, wherever located;

Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that the term "property" includes property of any kind used in the commission of an offence under this Act or any of the scheduled offences;

(y) "scheduled offence" means—

(i) the offences specified under Part A of the Schedule; or

(ii) the offences specified under Part B of the Schedule if the total value involved in such offences is one crore rupees or more; or

(iii) the offences specified under Part C of the Schedule;

(za) "transfer" includes sale, purchase, mortgage, pledge, gift, loan or any other form of transfer of right, title, possession or lien;

The following provisions of IPC were included in Part A, Paragraph 1 of the Schedule. The Schedule :-

OFFENCES UNDER THE INDIA PENAL CODE (45 OF 1860)

Section Description of offence

120B Criminal conspiracy

……..

420 Cheating and dishonestly including delivery of property.

3. Offence of money-laundering.- Whosoever directly or indirectly attempts to indulge or knowingly assists or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in any process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime including its concealment, possession, acquisition or use and projecting or claiming it as untainted property shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering.*

Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that,—

(i) a person shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering if such person is found to have directly or indirectly attempted to indulge or knowingly assisted or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in one or more of the following processes or activities connected with proceeds of crime, namely:—

(a) concealment; or

(b) possession; or

(c) acquisition; or

(d) use; or

(e) projecting as untainted property; or

(f) claiming as untainted property,in any manner whatsoever;

(ii) the process or activity connected with proceeds of crime is a continuing activity and continues till such time a person is directly or indirectly enjoying the proceeds of crime by its concealment or possession or acquisition or use or projecting it as untainted property or claiming it as untainted property in any manner whatsoever.

105. After the amendment in PMLA Act the offence under Section120B and Section 420 of IPC were included under the ambit of PMLA Act, 2002 and these offences would be a scheduled offence as per Section 2 (y) of PMLA Act. Since, the promoters after syphoning away huge amounts from HPPL has placed it into different companies, by layering through the corporate web and ultimately integrating to some other entity where they all had personal interest. These transactions fall within the ambit of PMLA Act and in the opinion of the Court, the appropriate agency, which is competent to look into and investigate the transactions, will be Enforcement Directorate.]

EFFECT OF INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS

106. The effect of insolvency proceedings on the petitioners/directors is that they will not get any benefit of moratorium as the same is only applicable to the corporate debtor. The intention of the legislature was very clear that the criminal liability and prosecution of the directors for the fraud committed by them would continue and no benefit of the protection provided in the IB Code would be extended to them.

107. Section 32A of the IB Code is as follows:-

"32A. Liability for prior offences, etc*.—(1) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in this Code or any other law for the time being in force, the liability of a corporate debtor for an offence committed prior to the commencement of the corporate insolvency resolution process shall cease, and the corporate debtor shall not be prosecuted for such an offence from the date the resolution plan has been approved by the Adjudicating Authority under section 31, if the resolution plan results in the change in the management or control of the corporate debtor to a person who was not—*

(a) a promoter or in the management or control of the corporate debtor ora related party of such a person; or

(b) a person with regard to whom the relevant investigating authority has, on the basis of material in its possession, reason to believe that he had abetted or conspired for the commission of the offence, and has submitted or filed a report or a complaint to the relevant statutory authority or court:

Provided that if a prosecution had been instituted during the corporate insolvency resolution process against such corporate debtor, it shall stand discharged from the date of approval of the resolution plan subject to requirements of this sub-section having been fulfilled:

Provided further that every person who was a "designated partner" as defined in clause (j) of section 2 of the Limited Liability Partnership Act, 2008 (6 of 2009), or an "officer who is in default", as defined in clause (60) of section 2 of the Companies Act, 2013 (18 of 2013), or was in any manner incharge of, or responsible to the corporate debtor for the conduct of its business or associated with the corporate debtor in any manner and who was directly or indirectly involved in the commission of such offence as per the report submitted or complaint filed by the investigating authority, shall continue to be liable to be prosecuted and punished for such an offence committed by the corporate debtor notwithstanding that the corporate debtor's liability has ceased under this sub-section."

108. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Manish Kumar v. Union of India and Another reported in (2021) 5 SCC 1 has held :-

"Section 32A of the IBC has been upheld by this Court in Manish Kumar v. Union of India reported in (2021) 5 SCC 1. This Court has held that the said section does not permit the wrong-doer to get away. Thus, if the argument of allowing the signatory/director to go scot-free after the approval of the resolution plan is accepted the same would run contrary to the legislative intent of Section 32A which has been upheld by this Court as under:

"326. We are of the clear view that no case whatsoever is made out to seek invalidation of Section 32-A. The boundaries of this Court's jurisdiction are clear. The wisdom of the legislation is not open to judicial review. Having regard to the object of the Code, the experience of the working of the Code, the interests of all stakeholders including most importantly the imperative need to attract resolution applicants who would not shy away from offering reasonable and fair value as part of the resolution plan if the legislature thought that immunity be granted to the corporate debtor as also its property, it hardly furnishes a ground for this Court to interfere. The provision is carefully thought out. It is not as if the wrongdoers are allowed to get away. They remain liable. The extinguishment of the criminal liability of the corporate debtor is apparently important to the new management to make a clean break with the past and start on a clean slate. We must also not overlook the principle that the impugned provision is part of an economic measure. The reverence courts justifiably hold such laws in cannot but be applicable in the instant case as well. The provision deals with reference to offences committed prior to the commencement of the CIRP. With the admission of the application the management of the corporate debtor passes into the hands of the interim resolution professional and thereafter into the hands of the resolution professional subject undoubtedly to the control by the Committee of Creditors. As far as protection afforded to the property is concerned there is clearly a rationale behind it. Having regard to the object of the statute we hardly see any manifest arbitrariness in the provision."

109. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the matter of Ajay Kumar Radheyshyam Goenka vs. Tourism Finance Corporation of India Ltd. (supra) (Criminal Appeal No.170 of 2023) (paragraph 67b) has held that, a section has been introduced by an amendment into the IB Code which focuses on the liability of offences committed by the directors of the corporate debtor prior to commencement of the corporate insolvency resolution process. The Court further held that every person who was in any manner in charge of, or responsible of the corporate debtor for the conduct of its business or associated with the corporate debtor in any manner and who was directly or indirectly involved in the commission of such offence shall be proceeded with, in accordance with law. It is only the corporate debtor company (with the new management) will be safeguarded.

CONCLUSION

110 . It is apparent that the promoters have played a fraud on the home buyers, Noida Authority, Bank as well as on the Court. The claim of the promoters /petitioner that they are not the directors of the company any more and had nothing to do with the company and the liability of the company can only be recovered from the company can not be sustained. If this amount which is illegally stashed / invested in other companies is brought back then all the creditors would be paid off, but unfortunately, the Noida Authority through its recovery proceedings cannot go to the extent of getting the money back which has already been parked in other companies and the company has been pushed into insolvency. As a matter of fact, IRP also does not have the power to recover this amount, which has been illegally siphoned off by the promoters and parked/invested in other entities.

111. The entire transaction through the web of different companies goes to show that the promoters/directors/petitioners have used the HPPL and other similarly situated companies to syphon and layer the funds which they have diverted or invested in various other entities/companies owned or controlled by them. After piercing the corporate veil, it is clear that even after resigning they had the full control of the company. The resignation was just a facade and it was done to avoid any civil or criminal liabilities, and with the sole intention to cheat the home buyers and to avoid payment of dues of Noida Authority.

112. We will fail in our duty if we keep the eyes shut and allow the promoters to go scot free after having defrauded everyone and syphoning off funds from HPPL and investing in other companies.

113. After piercing the corporate veil, it is evident that, after cheating the home buyers, to avoid civil and criminal liabilities the promoters resigned as directors of the company and made their petty employees as the director of the company while still keeping the full control, and day to day running of the company. The resignation was nothing but just a sham, with the sole intention of defrauding the home buyers and Noida Authority.

DIRECTIONS OF THE COURT

114. Since the offence committed by the petitioners/promoters is a scheduled offence under the PMLA Act. The Enforcement Directorate is directed to proceed against all the directors/promoters/designated promoter/officer who is in default, companies/other entities in which money from HPPL is syphoned or parked. These entities/people are directed to cooperate in the investigation and if they do not cooperate in the investigation then Enforcement Directorate would be free to take any appropriate action against them as available under the law. The Enforcement Directorate will make all sincere efforts to recover the said amount and pay off all dues of all the creditors.

115. Since the company (HPPL) is into Insolvency, there is a moratorium as per Section 14 of the Code so no proceeding can continue against the company by any creditors to recover their dues. Hence, the Noida Authority shall put up all their claims before the Insolvency Resolution Professional.

116. The effect of moratorium under the IB code is confined only to the debtor company HPPL therefore, the director promoters/petitioners will not get any benefit and shall continue to be liable and be prosecuted for such offence.

117. The Noida Authority is directed to issue Occupancy Certificate/part Completion Certificate, as the case may be, and to execute tripartite agreement and registered deed in favour of flat buyer within a month.

118. Accordingly, the writ petitions are disposed of.

119. Registrar (Compliance) of this Court may forward this judgement to the Enforcement Directorate for compliance.

Live-in Relationship – Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 – Sections 5, 12 – Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 – Constitution Of India,1950 - Article 226–

Eligibility for Live-in Relationship – Marriageable Age – Protection of Relationship

The petitioners, aged 19 (petitioner No. 1, female, born 29.05.2004) and 19 (petitioner No. 2, male, born 09.03.2004), sought a writ of mandamus to prevent interference in their live-in relationship by respondent No. 5 (father of petitioner No. 1) and for police protection. They claimed to be living together since August 2022 but were not married. The petitioner No. 2, though a major, was below the marriageable age of 21 under Section 5(iii) of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955. Held: A live-in relationship must satisfy conditions akin to a common law marriage, including both parties being of legal age to marry, as per D. Velusamy Vs D. Patchaiammal (2010) 10 SCC 469. Since petitioner No. 2 was not of marriageable age (21 years), their relationship did not qualify as a "relationship in the nature of marriage" under the 2005 Act. No evidence was provided to show the relationship's permanence, such as joint property or bank accounts, nor was there any intent to marry. The judgments in Deepika Vs St. of U.P. (2013) ADJ 534 and Nandkumar Vs St. of Kerala (Criminal Appeal No. 597 of 2018) were inapplicable, as they did not address the requirement of marriageable age for live-in relationships. The Division Bench ruling in Asha Devi Vs St. of U.P. (Writ C No. 18743 of 2020) clarified that relationships not meeting marriage-like criteria, including legal age, are not protected. The court, under Article 226, cannot issue a mandamus to protect a relationship lacking legal basis, as per Director of Settlement, A.P. Vs M.R. Apparao.

Writ petition was dismissed.

11. Director of Settlement, A.P. Vs M.R. Apparao, (2002) 4 SCC 638

(Delivered by Hon'ble Mrs. Renu Agarwal, J.)

1. Instant writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution has been filed by the petitioners with prayer for issuing writ, order or direction in the nature of mandamus directing the respondents not to interfere in the peaceful married life of the petitioners as husband and wife and to direct the respondents No. 2 and 3 to provide protection and security to the petitioners.

2. It is submitted that the petitioner No.1 is major aged about 19 years. As per her high school certificate the date of birth of the petitioner No. 1 is 29.05.2004. It is also submitted that the petitioner No. 1 is unmarried and she fell in love with petitioner No. 2 who is aged about 19 years. It is also submitted that as per high school certificate the date of birth of petitioner No. 2 is 09.03.2004. It is also submitted that the petitioners are living in relationship since August, 2022. It is also submitted that the respondent No. 5 who is the father of the petitioner No. 1 is not happy with the choice of the petitioner No. 1 and has been constantly harassing and threatening the petitioner to their lives. It is also submitted that the petitioners moved an application to the Commissioner of Police, Kanpur Nagar seeking protection to their lives from respondent No. 5, however, no protection has been provided to the petitioners.

3. In support of the contention, learned counsel for the petitioners has relied upon the judgment of Supreme Court passed in the case of Deepika and another Vs. State of U.P. and others (2013) ADJ 534 wherein it was held that "Where a boy and girl are major and they are living with their free will then nobody including their parents have any right to interfere with living together." Reliance is also placed on the judgment of Supreme Court in Nandkumar and another Vs. State of Kerala and others Criminal Appeal No. 597 of 2018 wherein it was held that "insofar as the marriage of appellant No. 1 who was less than 21 years of age on the date of marriage was not of marriageable age with girl is concerned, it cannot be said that merely because the appellant No. 1 was less than 21 years of age, marriage between the parties is null and void." Reliance is also placed on the judgment of this Court in the case of Smt. Saloni Yadav and another Vs. State of U.P. and other Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 7996 of 2023 **.

4. Learned Standing Counsel on the other hand submitted that the petitioner No. 1 has produced her high school certificate wherein her date of birth is mentioned as 29.05.2004 and the date of birth of petitioner No. 2 as per his high school certificate is 09.03.2004. It is also submitted that the petitioner No.2 is a major for all purposes other than marriage as prescribed by the Hindu Law. It is also submitted that as per their avernment made in the writ petition, the petitioners are living in relationship since August, 2022. It is also submitted that the petitioner No. 2 does not satisfy the eligibility criteria prescribed for a person to be in a live in relationship. Learned Standing Counsel has relied upon a judgment of a Division Bench of this Court passed in the case of Asha Devi and another Vs. State of U.P. Writ C No. 18743 of 2020 to contend that the terms of live in relationship are the same as of marriage, hence, the prayer made in the writ petition is opposed.

5. I have heard the rival submissions advanced at the Bar and perused the record.

6. From the perusal of record it transpires that both the petitioners were major aged about 18 years in August, 2022 when they decided to live in relationship. Till date though the petitioner No. 2 is a major but not of marriageable age.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Deepika and another Vs. State of U.P. and others (2013) ADJ 534 wherein it was held that "Where a boy and girl are major and they are living with their free will then nobody including their parents have any right to interfere with living together" The case relied upon by the learned counsel for the petitioners is not applicable to the facts of this case as as in Deepika (supra) the question whether the boy and girl should be of marriageable age or not was not discussed. Learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon the judgment of Supreme Court in the case of Nandkumar and another Vs. State of Kerala and others Criminal Appeal No. 597 of 2018. In the above mentioned case, the girls was of 19 years and therefore was fount competent to enter into wedlock. Father of the girls filed habeas corpus petition being Writ Petition Criminal No. 149 of 2017 in the High Court of Kerala that ever since 10.04.2017 his daughter was missing and is in illegal custody of appellant No.1. The girl was produced in court on 28.04.2017. Supreme Court held that as the girls is 19 years of age and competent to marry as the marriageable age of female is 18 years, hence, she cannot be given custody of her father or anyone else and the Court set her free of her on will. The Supreme Court held that insofar as the marriage of appellant No. 1 who was less than 21 years of age on the date of marriage was not of marriageable age with girls is concerned, it cannot be said that merely because the appellant No. 1 was less than 21 years of age, marriage between the parties is null and void. ……. marriage is not void marriage under the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and as per the provisions of Section 12 which can be attracted in this case at the most the marriage would be voidable marriage. Sections 5 and 12 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 is reproduced below for ready reference;

"5.Conditions for a Hindu marriage- A Marriage may be solemnized between an two Hindus, if the following conditions are fulfilled, namely-

xxxx

(iii) the bridegroom has completed the age of twenty one years and the bride, the age of eighteen years at the time of the marriage:

12. Voidable marriages.- (1) Any marriage solemnized, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be voidable and may be annulled by a decree of nullity on any of the following grounds namely;-

1(a) that the marriage has not been consummated owing to the impotence of the respondent; or

(b) that the marriage is in contravention of the condition specified in clause (ii) of section 5 ; or

(c) that the consent of the petitioner, or where the consent of the guardian in marriage of the petitioner was required under section 5 as it stood immediately before the commencement of the Child Marriage Restraint (Amendment) Act, that 1978 (2 of 1978), the consent of such guardian was obtained by force or by fraud as to the nature of the ceremony or as to any material fact or circumstances concerning the respondent; or

(d) that the respondent was at the time of the marriage pregnant by some person other than the petitioner."

8. Supreme Court decided the custody of the girl and set aside the order of High Court. Supreme Court also held the rights of parties living together and also the fact that the marriage is a voidable marriage if any of the parties is not of marriageable age. The matter of protection of relationship was not in issue before the Supreme Court in the instant case, hence, no benefit of this case law shall be given to this case.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioners has also relied upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Smt. Saloni Yadav and another Vs. State of U.P. and other Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 7996 of 2023, the case relied upon is not applicable to the facts of the present case as the petitioners moved to the High Court with the prayer to quash the FIR lodged on 30.04.2023 and the Division Bench of this Court refused to indulge in the case on the ground that the petitioners are live in relationship and one of the party is minor.

10. Supreme Court in the case of D.Velusamy Vs. D. Patchaimmal 2010 (10) SCC 469 rejected the claim of the respondent for maintenance under Section 125 Cr.P.C as the wife after holding that she had not married the appellant, therefore, it cannot be said that she is a divorced wife. The Apex Court considered the live in relationship from the point of view of Protection of Women from Domestic Violence Act, 2005 while considering the contention of aggrieved person as provided under Section 2 (a), Section 2 (f) and other relevant provisions in view of the term used in Section 2(f) " or through a relationship in the nature of marriage" it was observed that certain conditions are to be fulfilled and one of the said conditions was that they must be of legal age to marry.

"31. In our opinion a relationship in the nature of marriage' is akin to a common law marriage. Common law marriages require that although not being formally married:-

(a) The couple must hold themselves out to society as being aking to spouses.

(b) They must be of legal age to marry.

(c) They must be otherwise qualified to enter into a legal marriage, including being unmarried.

(d) They must have voluntarily cohabited and held themselves out to the world as being akin to spouses for a significant period of time.

(see 'Common Law Marriage' in Wikipedia on Google) In our opinion a 'relationship in the nature of marriage' under the 2005 Act must also fulfill the above requirements, and in addition the parties must have lived together in a 'shared household' as defined in Section 2(s) of the Act. Merely spending weekends together or a one night stand would not make it a ' domestic relationship'

32. In our opinion not all live in relationship will amount to a relationship in the nature of marriage to get the benefit of Act, of 2005. To get such benefit the conditions mentioned by us above must be satisfied, and this has to be proved by evidence. If a man has a 'keep' whom he maintains financially and used mainly for sexual purpose and / or as a servant it would not, in our opinion be a relationship in the nature of marriage.

33. No doubt the view we are taking would exclude many women who have had a live in relationshio from the benefit of 2005 Act, but then it is not for this Court to legislate or amend the law. Parliament has used the expression 'relationship in the nature of marriage' and not ' live in relationship'. The Court in the grab of interpretation cannot change the language of the statute."

11. The abovequoted paragraph clearly reflects that Hon'ble Supreme Court is of the opinion that while live in relationship, the relationship should be in the nature of marriage.

12. In Lata Singh Vs. State of U.P and another 2006 (5) SCC 475, Supreme Court held that a live in relationship between two consenting adults of heterogenic sex does not amount to any offence in the case at hand the boy has not completed the age of 21 years, therefore, not being of marriageable age, one cannot be permitted to be in such relationship.

13. In the case of Asha Devi(Supra), the Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court formulated two questions as under:-

"(i) Whether the petitioners, who claim themselves to be living together as husband and wife; can be granted protection when the petitioner No.1 is legally wedded wife of someone else and has not taken divorce sofar ?

(ii) Whether protection to petitioners as husband and wife or as live-in-relationship can be granted in exercise of powers conferred under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, when their living together may constitute offences under Sections 494/495 I.P.C. ?"

14. In the judgment of Asha Devi (Supra), the Division Bench of this Court on the basis of various judgments of High Court held that following relationship are not recognized or approved as live-in-relationship:-

*"(a) Concubine can not maintain relationship in the nature of marriage vide paras 57 & 59 of the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Indra Sarma Vs. V. K. V. Sarma.

(b) Polygamy, that is a relationship or practice of having more than one wife or husband at the same time, or a relationship by way of a bigamous marriage that is marrying someone while already married to another and/or maintaining an adulterous relationship that is having voluntary sexual intercourse between a married person who is not one's husband or wife, cannot be said to be a relationship in the nature of marriage vide para 58 of judgment in Indra Sarma's Case (supra) & A Subhash Babu Vs. state of A.P.4 (paras 17 to 21, 27, 28 & 29). Polygamy is also a criminal offence under Section 494 & 495 I.P.C., vide Shayara Bano Vs. Union of India 5 (paras 299.3).

"38. Religion is a matter of faith stemming from the depth of the heart and mind. Religion is a belief which binds the spiritual nature of man to a super-natural being; it is an object of conscientious devotion, faith and pietism. Devotion in its fullest sense is a consecration and denotes an act of worship. Faith in the strict sense constitutes firm reliance on the truth of religious doctrines in every system of religion. Religion, faith or devotion are not easily interchangeable. If the person feigns to have adopted another religion just for some worldly gain or benefit, it would be religious bigotry. Looked at from this angle, a person who mockingly adopts another religion where plurality of marriage is permitted so as to renounce the previous marriage and desert the wife, he cannot be permitted to take advantage of his exploitation as religion is not a commodity to be exploited. The institution of marriage under every personal law is a sacred institution. Under Hindu Law, Marriage is a sacrament. Both have to be preserved."

(Emphasis supplied)

(d) If both the persons are otherwise not qualified to enter into a legal marriage including being unmarried, vide D Velusamy Vs. D Patchaiammal (supra) (para 31)."

15. In the judgment of Asha Devi (Supra), Hon'ble Division Bench of this Court has also discussed the judgment of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of "Director of Settlement, A.P. Vs. M.R. Apparao, in which the Hon'ble Apex court has considered the High Court's power for issuance of mandamus and held as under:-

"17. ..... One of the conditions for exercising power under Article 226 for issuance of a mandamus is that the Court must come to the conclusion that the aggrieved person has a legal right, which entitles him to any of the rights and that such right has been infringed. In other words, existence of a legal right of a citizen and performance of any corresponding legal duty by the State or any public authority, could be enforced by issuance of a writ of mandamus. "Mandamus" means a command. It differs from the writs of prohibition or certiorari in its demand for some activity on the part of the body or person to whom it is addressed. Mandamus is a command issued to direct any person, corporation, inferior Courts or Government, requiring him or them to do some particular thing therein specified which appertains to his or their office and is in the nature of a public duty. A mandamus is available against any public authority including administrative and local bodies, and it would lie to any person who is under a duty imposed by statute or by the common law to do a particular act. In order to obtain a writ or order in the nature of mandamus, the applicant has to satisfy that he has a legal right to the performance of a legal duty by the party against whom the mandamus is sought and such right must be subsisting on the date of the petition. ....."

16. In the guidelines provided by the Supreme Court in various case laws, relationship should be of such nature which is akin to marriage. Section 5 of the Hindu Marriage Act provides that girl should be of 18 years of age and the boy should be of 21 years of age at the time of marriage to solemnize marriage under the Hindu Marriage Act.

17. In the instant case the petitioner No. 2 is not of marriageable age. The petitioners have not brought on record any documents to show that their relationship is in the nature of marriage; no statement of joint property is disclosed in their application, no joint holding of any bank account is disclosed though they claim to be living in relationship since August, 2022. The petitioners does not even desire to get married in future as no application for marriage is moved by the petitioners before the authorities concerned so far. Petitioners have not produced any evidence to show that their relationship is of a permanent nature.

18. Petitioner No. 2 is still a student of final year of polytechnic court as disclosed in paragraph-7 of the writ petition.

19. Hence, in view of the foregoing discussions, the court is not inclined to exercise its extraordinary power under Article 226 of the Constitution and to command to the authorities to provide protection to the relationship of the petitioners.

20. The petition lacks merits and is accordingly dismissed.

Civil Law - U.P. Co-operative Societies Act, 1965 - Sections 28, 29, 35 & 70 - Constitution Of India,1950 - Article 226 - Cancellation of Allotment and Membership - Cooperative Tribunal - Writ Petitions - Cancellation of allotments and memberships of original allottees by Jivan Bima Rashtriya Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd. for default in payment of escalated flat costs upheld. Society issued multiple demand notices and reminders (dated 05.04.2004, 24.06.2004, 19.07.2004, 06.08.2004) to original allottees, who failed to comply, leading to cancellation by Administrator and subsequent ratification by elected Committee of Management on 15.05.2005. Dahiya Committee report on cost escalation, approved by Assistant Housing Commissioner, binding as 100 out of 120 members complied. Administrator's authority to cancel allotments for default, a day-to-day administrative function, valid under Section 29(6); subsequent ratification by elected Committee cured any irregularity. Original allottees' failure to challenge membership termination or subsequent allottees' membership, coupled with acceptance of refunded share money, bars their claim. Tribunal's findings of inadequate notice and non-binding Dahiya Committee report perverse, ignoring evidence of repeated notices and majority compliance. Impugned orders dated 27.01.2014 by Cooperative Tribunal and arbitral awards set aside for misappreciation of facts and material. (Paras 34-49, 50-93, 94-104)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Jaspreet Singh, J.)

1. This is a batch of 24 petitions preferred under Article 226 of the Constitution of India assailing the order dated 27.01.2014 passed by the Co-operative Tribunal, Uttar Pradesh whereby the award passed by the Arbitrator in proceedings under Section 70 of the U.P. Co-operative Societies Act, 1965 (hereinafter referred to as the Act of 1965) has been affirmed.

2. The issue involved in the aforesaid 24 petitions is common and is based, by and large, on almost similar facts and the issue of law involved in all petitions is same, hence, all petitions were connected and were heard together and are being decided by this common judgment.

3. To put the controversy in a perspective, the Court shall be considering the facts from the leading petition bearing No.1001289 (M/S) of 2014 alongwith W.P. bearing No. 1003095 (MS) of 2014. However, the submissions of the respective counsel for the parties which are almost the same in all petitions have been noticed and wherever necessary facts of the other petitions is required it will also be noticed at the appropriate place.

4. Primarily, the basic facts which are common in all the petitions are that the private respondent were the initial allottees of the flats in Jivan Bima Rashtriya Sahkari Avas Samiti Ltd, GH-7 Sector-6 Vasundhara Ghaziabad. Since they were defaulters and did not make the necessary payment, hence the Committee of Management of the Society took a decision to cancel the allotment of the original allottees and thereafter the flats were allotted to the present petitioners who are the subsequent allottees and are in possession. They have also got their names duly mutated in the relevant municipal records and have been paying the municipal taxes and utility bills.

5. The private respondents being aggrieved against the allotment made in favour of the petitioners, at different stages filed petitions under Section 70 of the Act, 1965. However in some cases, the private respondents had first instituted civil suits which later came to be dismissed as withdrawn and thereafter they too, filed petitions under Section 70 of the Act, 1965. In most of the cases, the subsequent allottees, initially, were not made as a party before the Arbitrator and award was passed. The impact of which was that the allotment of flats made in favour of the subsequent allottees was cancelled.

6. The subsequent allottees then assailed the said awards before the Co-operative Tribunal and who dismissed the appeals which prompted the subsequent allottees to approach this Court by means of the instant writ petitions.

7. A Co-ordinate Bench of this Court by means of order dated 03.03.2014 while issuing notice to the respondents had granted an interim order in pursuance whereof the possession of the petitioners of the writ petitions has been protected and the same is reproduced as under:-

"1. Sri J.N. Mathur, learned Senior Advocate, Assisted by Sri Anupras Singh, Advocate, appearing for the petitioner, contends that respondent no.5 did not pay the dues towards Society for constructions of the flat despite repeated reminders sent to the said respondent. Details of default and reminders given by the Society to respondent no.5 have been mentioned in para nos.16 to 18 of the writ petition.

2. Sri Mathur further submits that that by virtue of order/refund, Annexure-13, vide which share money of the respondent no.5 was returned, even membership of the respondent was cancelled. Membership of the respondent has not been restored either in arbitral award or by the tribunal, although decision has been rendered against the petitioner. Without reviving membership of respondent no.5, no benefit can flow to respondent no.5.

3. Learned counsel has further impressed on the Court that the petitioner has deposited the entire amount for the flat. The petitioner was made a member of the Society and was given possession of the flat. The petitioner continues to live in the flat. The findings returned by the arbitrator and the Tribunal to the effect that the respondent no.5 was not given sufficient opportunity, is perverse.

4. Sri Amit Swami, Advocate, appears for respondent no.5 and has filed his power-of-attorney, which is taken on record.

5. Issue notice to respondent nos.3 and 4 by speed post only.

6. Let respondent nos.3 and 4 file their counter affidavits within two weeks. Rejoinder affidavit within one week thereof.

7. Considering the nature of lis, the respondent-Society is also directed to address the court as to whether more land/plots are available to be allotted to the private respondent no.5/petitioner.

8. List on 28.3.2014.

9. In the meantime, operation of impugned orders (Annexure nos.1 and 2) shall remain stayed. "

8. During pendency of these petitions, in some case, some petitioners had expired and upon application moved for substitution, their legal heirs have been brought on record. However, for the sake of convenience, this Court shall refer to the parties as they were originally impleaded in the writ petitions.

9. The impugned orders passed by the Arbitrator and affirmed by the Cooperative Tribunal, Uttar Pradesh have been challenged by the subsequent allottees and also by the Jiwan Beema Sahkari Awas Samiti Ltd. The writ petition has been filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Pradeep Kumar (bearing W.P. No. 1001289 (MS) of 2014) and relating to the order against Pradeep Kumar, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1003095 of 2014; similarly, writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Rajneesh Parashar is bearing W.P. No. 1001368 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1003093 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Bhagwan Singh Rana is bearing W.P. No. 1001549 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1001926 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Dhananjay Bhardwaj is bearing W.P. No. 1001518 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1001927 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Rajesh Vyas is bearing W.P. No. 1001520 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1001924 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Deepak Rana is bearing W.P. No. 1001426 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1003094 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Satendra Kumar is bearing W.P. No. 1001425 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1002601 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Dinesh Kumar Mathur is bearing W.P. No. 1001551 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1001911 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Narendra Kumar Pathak is bearing W.P. No. 1001455 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1002600 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Ritesh Singhal is bearing W.P. No. 1001290 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1003973 of 2014; writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Prem Kumar Sharma is bearing W.P. No. 1001529 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1003972 of 2014 and lastly writ petition filed by the subsequent allottee Sri Sandeep Kumar is bearing W.P. No. 1001541 (MS) of 2014 and in the said case, the writ petition filed by the Society is bearing W.P. No. 1003974 of 2014.

10. In the petitions filed by the subsequent allottees i.e. writ petitions No. 1001289, 1001290 and 1001368 of 2014, the arguments were opened by Shri Anupras Singh, learned counsel. This was taken forward by Sri Rakesh Srivastava, learned counsel appearing for subsequent allotees in W.P. No. Civil Misc. Writ Petitions No.1001455 (MS) of 2014, 1001518 (MS) of 2014, 1001520 (MS) of 2014, 1001549 (MS) of 2014 and 1001551 (MS) of 2014, Shri Hemant Kumar Mishra learned counsel for petitioners in Civil Misc. Writ Petitions No.1001425 (MS) of 2014 and 1001426 (MS) of 2014, Shri Nirankar Singh in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.1001455 (MS) of 2014 and Shri Sanjay Kumar Srivastava in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No.1001541 (MS) of 2014.

11. The writ petition filed by the Society as detailed above were all argued by Sri Ganga Singh, learned counsel and Sri Divyadeep Chaturvedi, learned counsel has made his submission through video conferencing on behalf of the private respondents (the original allottees) in most of the Civil Misc. Writ Petitions bearing W.P. No.1001289, 1001368, 1003093, 1003095, 1001425, 1002601, 1001426, 1003094, 1001549, 1001926, 1001529, 1003972, 1001518, 1001927, 1001455, 1002600, 1001552 and 1001911 of 2014 and Sri Anuj Dayal, learned counsel has assisted Sri Divyadeep Chaturvedi, learned counsel in Civil Misc. Writ Petition No. 1001290, 1001455, 1001518, 1001520, 1001541 and 1001551 of 2014 appearing for the original allottees.

12. In order to appreciate the contention raised by the respective parties, it will be worthwhile to take a glance at the facts giving rise to the instant petitions.

13. Jivan Bima Rashtriya Sahakari Avas Samiti Ltd., Sector 6, Vasundhara Ghaziabad is a Co-operative Society and is governed by its by-law. It is also governed by the provisions of the Act of 1965. The Society was allotted land at GH-7, Sector-6, Vasundhara Ghaziabad by the Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad for building cheap and affordable flats for its members. The members of the Society were required to contribute towards the cost of the flats and to facilitate the same a scheme of payment was formulated by the Society.

14. While the Society had started raising the construction of the flats but since there were erratic payments from some of the members of the Society and there was change in the carpet area of the respective flats, hence there was an issue regarding the final pricing as escalated costs and increase in the area of flats was to be factored to arrive at an appropriate fixed price of the respective type of flats.

15. In all there were 120 units with the following break up:- (a) 48 units of Type-A MIG flats measuring 880 square feet and the initial price notified was Rs.6.5 lakh. Later, the area of the flats was increased to 1127 square feet, thus, the cost of Type-A flats was enhanced to Rs.8.55 lakh; (b) 44 units of Type-B HIG flats with the original area of 1150 square feet and was priced at Rs.8.5 lakh. Later, the area of these Type-B flats was enhanced to 1545.7 square feet and the price was enhanced to Rs.11.42 lakh; (c) 28 units of Type-C flats which were super HIG having an initial area of 1680 square feet and was priced at Rs.11.50 lakh, but later, the area was enhanced to 2006.21 square feet and the price was also enhanced to Rs.14.58 lakh.

16. Since there was escalation of cost on account of enhancement in the area and even otherwise there was fractured payments made by the members which also led to increased cost of the flats as the timelines were being overshot. In order to arrive at an appropriate revised costs and in absence of a consensus, the intervention of the Housing Commissioner was sought and the matter was referred to a Committee of three members (hereinafter referred to as the Dahiya Committee) who examined the matter and then furnished its report prescribing the enhanced and revised prices for different category of the flats as mentioned hereinabove.

17. The members of the Society were thereafter informed by the Society regarding the enhanced prices and the increase in the area of the flats and the members were requested to deposit the short fall so that the flats could be completed within further time so as to avoid any further costs over runs. Society sent repeated demands to the members, however, some of them did not adhere to the timelines as a result the Society sent final calls letters requiring the members to deposit the outstanding sum, failing which, appropriate action for cancellation of the allotment would be initiated.

18. Despite the information having been conveyed to the members yet many of them did not adhere to the fiscal discipline as a result the Society took a decision of cancelling the allotment of such defaulting members. In most of the cases, none of the said defaulting members took any immediate action nor they responded at the time when the said cancellation notice and refund of money was made rather they kept silent at the said time

19. It is in the aforesaid backdrop that the Society then made fresh allotment in favour of the subsequent allottees who deposited the entire consideration towards the cost of the respective category of flats as allotted to them by the Society and they were issued the membership certificate, allotment certificate and agreement was also entered between the Society and the fresh/subsequent allottees. In furtherance of the aforesaid documentation, subsequent/fresh allottees were given possession.

20. Subsequent allottees have since then been in possession exercising their proprietary rights over the said flats as allotted to them and have got their names duly mutated in the municipal records and have been paying the municipal taxes, electricity bill and other public utility bills.

21. After about two years from cancellation, few of the defaulting members whose membership had been cancelled and their membership money was refunded including the refund of the loan amount, they raised dispute regarding the cancellation of their allotment by filing civil suits, later the suits were withdrawn and the original allottees thereafter filed petitions under Section 70 of the Act 1965. As already noticed above, the awards were passed in favour of the original allottees which was assailed by the subsequent allottees in appeal before the Co-operative Tribunal and with the dismissal of the appeal, the petitioners who are the subsequent allottees preferred the instant writ petitions.

22. In light of the aforesaid factual matrix, learned counsel for the petitioners have structured their arguments as under:-

(i) it is urged that in most of the cases filed before the Arbitrator, there is a challenge to the cancellation of the allotment by the original allottees. However, they did not challenge the cancellation of their membership nor the membership of the petitioners. It is submitted that in order to have a valid allotment it is sine qua non to have a valid membership. Once the allotment is cancelled but the membership subsists then the person concerned can be granted a fresh allotment but if the membership has been cancelled then allotment cannot be made nor it cannot be restored unless the membership is restored. In most of the cases, it has been submitted, that there is no challenge to the cancellation of membership rather it is only a challenge to the cancellation of allotment and thus the Arbitrator and the Tribunal were not justified in restoring the allotment.

(ii) It is further submitted that each case had to be dealt with by the Tribunal separately as they were different facts but the Tribunal without looking into the aforesaid aspect and treating all matters at par has passed the impugned order which is challenged in the various writ petitions, clubbed together, indicates that there has been lack of judicial application of mind and incorrect findings have been recorded.

(iii) It is further urged that primarily the ground upon which the Arbitrator has passed the award and which has been affirmed by the Co-operative Tribunal is based on the premise that sufficient opportunity was not given to the original allottees. Moreover, when the subsequent allotments were made, there was no regular Committee of Management incharge of the affairs of the Society rather at the relevant time the Society was under the control of the Administrator who did not have the jurisdiction to enroll new members and thus the allotment made in favour of the subsequent allottees including enrolling them as new members is wholly without jurisdiction. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the petitioners that this view is incorrect for the reason that the embargo upon the Administrator to enroll new members is in context with the election of the members of the Society. It cannot be stretched to day today affairs; inasmuch as even the Administrator appointed is required to take the decision for the Society acting as its Committee of Management.

It is also urged that in the instant cases after the Administrator had enrolled the new members and made the allotment, this enrollment of membership and allotment of flats was ratified by the duly constituted elected Committee of Management of the Society. Thus any defect, if any, in enrollment of members or allotment of flats, the same stood cured upon ratification by the duly elected Committee of Management, hence it cannot be said that the membership of the subsequent allottees was bad.

(iv) It has also been pointed out by the learned counsel for the petitioners that in some cases despite the fact that the original allottees had defaulted and fresh allotment was made even then the fresh allottees had also defaulted as a result the allotment of the subsequent allottees was also cancelled and only thereafter further fresh allotment was made.

In few cases, the original allottees were allotted flats of different category and upon the request made by few of such allottees, they migrated to a different category of flat where again the said allottees defaulted and thus with their consent further fresh allotment was made. In the aforesaid circumstances where the original allottees were primarily not interested or were not alive to their rights and later when the fresh allotments were made, possession certificate were granted to the fresh allotees who started residing, then at a later stage the original allottees woke up from their slumber and raised the dispute and in such circumstances the equity does not lie in favour of the private respondents who are the defaulting original allottees and this aspect has not been considered by the Arbitrator or by the Co-operative Tribunal, hence the judgment of the Co-operative Tribunal is bad in the eyes of law.

(v) It is also urged that the Arbitrator and the Co-operative Tribunal in many of the cases noticed that the original allottees were not adequately informed of the demand as well as the cancellation, which is incorrect. It is urged that the Society had informed the said members by series of correspondence and money was refunded which was duly acknowledged by the original allottees. Without examining this aspect as to whether they were actually served or not, the Arbitrator as well as the Tribunal has held that the order cancelling the allotment has been passed behind the back of the original allottees and has been taken as one of the grounds for allowing the claim of the original allottees and dismissing the appeal of the petitioners and this is against the material on record.

(vi) It is also submitted that the Tribunal has erred in not examining the facts of the case appropriately and a stereo type order has been passed without examining the respective contentions and the material on record which has rendered the impugned judgment of the Tribunal and the award of the Arbitrator liable to be set aside.

24. Shri Ganga Singh, learned counsel for the Society has primarily submitted that the Society was well within its rights as per its by-laws to make demand of the costs of the flats which was required to be deposited by the members in a time frame. The by-laws of the Society empowers the Society to take action against such defaulting members and it is in furtherance thereof that the Society had sent several reminders to the defaulting members who did not respond and thus looking at the larger good for the majority of the members it cancelled the allotments including the membership of the defaulting members and the amount towards the costs of the flats as well as the membership amount was refunded to the said defaulting members which is an action taken by the Society in accordance with its by-laws and cannot be termed as arbitrary.

25. Once the allotment and the membership was cancelled it was no more open for the original members to have challenged the allotment without challenging the termination of their membership or challenging the membership of the subsequent fresh members/allottees. The Society had sent demand letter to the members at their given address which was duly served, hence it cannot be said that the process adopted for cancellation was in violation of any principles of natural justice since repeated reminder were sent and even though they were acknowledged by the defaulting members yet they did not make good the demand, hence at this stage where fresh allotment have been made and the fresh allottees have been given the possession, accordingly the claim of the original allottees has incorrectly been allowed by the Arbitrator and the appeal has been wrongly dismissed. In light of the aforesaid, the learned counsel for the Society submits that the private respondents being defaulters they have no right to be given any allotment.

26. Shri Divyadeep Chaturvedi alongwith Shri Abhishekh Dwivedi and Shri Anuj Dayal learned counsel appearing for the private respondents have primarily urged that first and foremost the fresh allotments were bad in the eyes of law for the reason that they were made by the Administrator who did not have the right, authority or jurisdiction to enroll new members. It is urged that any act which is without jurisdiction then all subsequent acts are also rendered void, accordingly once the action of enrolling new members at the behest of the Administrator is found to be without jurisdiction, all subsequent acts including making fresh allotments and issuing possession certificates are rendered void and no rights can accrue in favour of the fresh subsequent allottees.

27. It is further urged by the learned counsel for the private respondents that the original allottees had already deposited the original sum of money as cost of the flat and if the said members could deposit the said amount, they could have easily deposited the enhanced sum also but no adequate opportunity was given rather a surreptitious method was adopted by the Society in connivance with the fresh allottees as a result the original allottees have been outsted without due process and as such the award passed by the Arbitrator is absolutely just and so is the order passed by the Tribunal dismissing the appeals of the subsequent allottees.

28. It is further submitted that where majority of the amount had already been paid by the original allottees and the dispute was only in respect of the enhanced sum, accordingly the action of cancelling membership and the allotment was not commensurate with the default. The action of the Society in this regard was arbitrary and any action which is arbitrary cannot be sustained and this has been noticed by the Arbitrator as well as the Co-operative Tribunal and in the aforesaid facts and circumstances, the aforesaid orders do not require any interference and the writ petitions deserve to be dismissed.

29. It is further submitted that the Tribunal has meticulously considered the submissions and has also passed a balanced orders so that the Society may not suffer any financial loss as directions have been issued by the Tribunal permitting the Society to recover the outstanding sum alongwith interest at the rate of 15% per annum from the original allottees and in the aforesaid circumstances the private respondents are ready to comply with the aforesaid direction, hence the writ petitions deserve to be dismissed.

30. Lastly, it has been pointed out that the recommendation of the Dahiya Committee was not binding on the members and the cancellation of the membership was a unilateral act of the Society and many of the original allottees did not take back their money voluntarily and moreover the subsequent allottees have no right as no transfer deed has been executed in their favour and they are merely licensee. Thus for all the aforesaid reasons the writ petitions deserve to be dismissed.

31. Learned counsel for the respondents has relied upon the decisions of the Apex Court in the case of Joint Registrar of Cooperative Societies Kerala Vs. T. A. Kuttappan and others (2000) 6

SCC page 127, K Shantharaj and another Vs. M. L. Nagaraj and others (1997) 6 SCC page 37, Modern Dental College and Research Centre and others Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh and others (2016) 7 SCC page 353, the decision of Neelam Jain Vs. Cooperative Tribunal, U.P. & others of this Court passed in Civil Misc. 32. Having heard learned counsel for the respective parties at length, the issues that crop up for consideration before this Court are :-

(A) Whether the action of the Society in terminating the Membership as well as allotment of the original allottees is bad and arbitrary for want of proper and adequate opportunity of hearing and service of notice;

(B) Whether the report of Dahiya Committee was binding on the Members;

(C) Whether the administrator could not enroll new Members for the purposes of allotment of flats and what would be the effect of the subsequent ratification by the elected Committee of Management in respect of the decisions taken by the administrator; and

(D) Whether the impugned orders are bad for violation of natural justice and whether the orders have been passed without considering the facts and material on record and thus is perverse.

33. The Court shall deal with each issues separately in seriatim.

(A) and (B)

34. Learned counsel for the private-respondents had argued that the order passed by the Society in terminating the Membership as well as cancelling the allotment is bad as no adequate opportunity of hearing was granted to them. It was also urged that the cancellation of the allotment and termination of the Membership was a unilateral act of the Society which is arbitrary.

35. On the other hand, learned counsel for the Society has categorically taken a stand that several notices were issued to the private-respondents/the original allottees and they were called upon to make the payment of the outstanding sum in respect of the flats allotted to them, but the same was not done, as a result, the Society was justified in cancelling the allotment as well as the Membership.

36. In this regard, it was the specific case of the Society that in the Annual General Meeting of the Society held on 04.08.2002, Resolution No.5 was passed and it was resolved by the Members present that the costs of the flats were to be revised. Since, there were various views including opposition from certain quarters of the Members, hence, the grievance was placed before the Assistant Housing Commissioner on 06.02.2004, who appointed a Committee which has been mentioned in the instant order as B.S. Dahiya Committee. The report of the Dahiya Committee was placed before the Administrative Committee in the meeting on 03.04.2004 wherein it was decided that demand letter be sent to all the Members for depositing the costs of the flats as determined by the Dahiya Committee.

37. It is in furtherance thereof that the Society issued letters dated 05.04.2004 to all the Members intimating them that the Dahiya Committee report was available in the office of the Society where it could be read and perused by the Members. Demand notices were also issued requiring the Members to deposit the shortfall as per the schedule mentioned in the said notice. The said demand notices were sent at repeated intervals to the original allottees who did not choose to respond as they remained inert inasmuch as neither any reply was given nor the outstanding amount was paid.

38. It is in the aforesaid context a fresh demand notice was issued on 24.06.2004 directing the private-respondents to deposit the balance sum and it was also made clear in the said notice that in case of non-payment, the allotment would be cancelled, but there was no response to this notice as well. Despite the same, a fresh notice was again issued on 19.07.2004 by the Society which was followed by reminder dated 06.08.2004 and once the notices were served on the defaulting Members without any response and compliance from their end, the said situation was brought and placed before the Administrative Committee of the Society, who reviewed all the cases of default. Yet taking a lenient view, it was decided by the Committee that a last opportunity be given to the defaulting Members to pay the outstanding sum by 30.08.2004, however, even this letter was not responded nor the amount was paid, hence, left with no option, the Society then took a decision to cancel the allotment. By the Resolution dated 01.09.2004, the cancellation of the allotment was done by the Committee. This Resolution of the Society, which was at the relevant time under an Administrator was placed before the Assistant Housing Commissioner, who approved the same on 14.09.2004.

39. Once again the Society informed the private-respondents regarding cancellation of allotment and it was further informed that the private-respondents may submit their no objection certificate from the respective banks, from where the said Members had taken the housing loans. However, no such response was given and accordingly considering the circumstances the Society issued cheques to the defaulting Members refunding their Membership fee and the sum which was paid by such defaulting members towards the part cost of the flat was returned to the banks from whom the said Members had taken their respective loans. Most of the said Members had encashed the said cheques. This fact of sending repeated reminders and the demand notices to the defaulting Members could not be adequately disputed by the private-respondents. No cogent reason was also given as to why the private-respondents did not make good the outstanding payment regarding the escalation of the costs of the flats.

40. A feeble submission has been made by the learned counsel for the private-respondents to indicate that the report of Dahiya Committee was not binding on the Members. It was also urged that since the private-respondents were disputing the action of the Society in enhancing the cost of flats, hence, the private-respondents did not accede to pay the aforesaid sum.

41. It has further been pointed out that even the report of the Dahiya Committee did not have the unanimous approval of the three Members constituting the said Committee rather one of the Members of the said Committee namely Mr. Ramesh Gupta did not sign the same, hence, the same could not have been made binding.

42. From the pleadings and the material on record a fact that emerges and the same is undisputed is the fact that out of 120 Members of the Society, 100 Members had acceded to the enhancement of costs of the flats and they had even deposited the enhanced amount. Merely because one of the Member of Dahiya Committee did not sign the report in itself does not lead to any inference that the said report could not be made binding rather the record would indicate that the said decision of the Dahiya Committee was accepted by the Committee of Administrator which was further placed before the Assistant Housing Commissioner, who also approved the same and it was placed before the Members, who approved it and that is the reason why out of 120 Members, 100 Members paid the escalated amount.

43. Be that as it may, the fact that there was a dissent amongst the Members regarding the escalation in the costs of the flats and this issue was placed before the Committee of Administrators who in turn placed the matter before the Assistant Housing Commissioner who constituted a three Members Committee which submitted its report and the said report was approved by the Assistant Housing Commissioner. Another significant factor which is evident from the record is the fact that the carpet area of the various types of flat i.e. A, B, C, D had enhanced from the original carpet area and thus there was bound to be escalation in the price of the flats. With passage of the time there was cost over runs, hence, the experts had given their recommendations for enhancement which had been accepted and approved by the Assistant Housing Commissioner. The Society had informed all the Members regarding the aforesaid enhancement and there is no dispute to the fact that out of 120, 100 members agreed and did pay the enhanced sum. Thus, it cannot be said that the said report was not binding on the Members. The Society functions on the democratic principles and where the overwhelming majority of the Members accepted the decision and acted upon it by making the payments of the enhanced sum, in such circumstances, it cannot be said that the report of the Dahiya Committee could not be made binding on all the Members.

44. In the aforesaid backdrop if the material on record is perused, it would further indicate that the Society from time to time had issued repeated reminders and demand letters calling upon the Members to pay the outstanding sum as per the escalated costs and the overwhelming majority of the Members did pay and adhere to the schedule and rather it was a group of minority Members, who did not pay and once their allotments were cancelled, they promptly did not take any action rather as a knee-jerk reaction, some of the them filed writ petition, some filed civil suits which latter were not taken to its logical conclusion and were withdrawn/dismissed and later the original allottees filed petitions under Section 70 of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965.

45. The material on record suggests that ample opportunities in shape of notices were issued by the Society to the defaulting Members and the said notices were sent to the Members at their known addresses as recorded in the records of the Society. By and large, the said defaulting Members, who had filed their petitions under Section 70 of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965 did not primarily dispute that various notices and demand letters were issued by the Society was not received by them. It is only at a later stage that the said defaulting

Members developed this plea, however, in light of the averments made in the counter affidavit as well as the rejoinder affidavit filed by the petitioners, the said plea could not be successfully proved. Another fact which is apparent is that the Members while filing their petitions under Section 70 of the Act of 1965 had not raised this issue of non service of the notice, rather it is only a feeble plea raised before this Court. In light of the material placed on record of these petitions including the copy of the arbitration petition and the counter affidavit of private-respondents, this plea does not find favour with this Court.

46. This Court is fortified in its view drawing strength from the dictum of the Apex Court in Mayurdhwaj Cooperative Group Housing Society Limited (supra) and the relevant paragraphs read as under:-

"5.In the case ofS.C. Verma[CWP No. 1484 of 1991] it was a case of the Lawyers' Cooperative Group Housing Society Limited. In this case also, the dispute pertained to the allotment of flats in Category 'C'. Here again was the same problem, the number of applicants was larger than the number of flats to be allotted. In this case also, cut-off date to make payment was fixed as 15-5-1987. All members who paid the entire due as on this date, were to be included in the list. The amount required to be paid by this date was Rs 1,11,000. 26 members paid this amount by this date. Here also the number of flats were 30 for its 65 members. It was held:

"... The Society had to lay down a reasonable criteria for finalising the list of members. The criteria which the Society adopted was that all payments having been made in accordance with the demand which has been raised and by keeping the options and the seniority into consideration, the list was prepared as on the cut-off date of 15th May, 1987. We cannot find any infirmity in the principle so adopted. It is essential for the Cooperative Society to decide as to what is the principle which it should follow in determining or finalising the list of the members to whom flats are to be allotted. Unless and until the principles laid down by the Society are found to be arbitrary or irrational or unfair, the Court will not interfere with the same. We do not find any such infirmity in the procedure which has been adopted or established, viz., to prepare a list of members as on 15th May, 1987 who had not committed any default...."

9.Returning to Rule 36, submission for the respondent is, when a statute provides a thing to be done in a manner it has to be done in that manner alone and not in any other manner. Other modes are excluded. The counsel for the respondent referred the cases inA.K. Royv.State of Punjab[(1986) 4 SCC 326 : 1986 SCC (Cri) 443] paras 10-11 andState of Mizoramv.Biakchhawna[(1995) 1 SCC 156] paras 7, 8 and 9. This proposition has not been disputed by learned counsel for the appellant. The question is, when a member is in default then is it that power of a society is concretised within this Rule to expel such defaulting member or can it within its peripheral jurisdiction resolve to take recourse to any other policy decision, to enable such defaulting member to deposit the balance amount either by extending time or giving any such incentive as it deems fit and proper or to take recourse to such consequential measures as it deems fit and proper. The present case is similar to the cases which arose in the Delhi High Court. The question is, in the matter of allotment of flats, can a society not lay down its own policy as to how instalments are to be paid, within what time and in doing so can it not place certain conditions under it. In other words, can or can it not resolve that members must pay the stipulated amount by fixing any cut-off date. If, in spite of that, any member defaults, can it not cancel the allotment. Similarly, can it not decide instead of cancelling the allotment to give him an offer to get the flat in the next phased construction clearing ways for non-defaulters. The question is, can it be said that the society has no option except to allot strictly by seniority rule in spite of such members defaulting in making the payment. If power could be said to be limited then it means, let seniors default, let juniors wait as long as seniors do not pay but in no case cancel or even modify preferences in their allotment. In our considered opinion, such an interpretation would be squeezing the power of the general body of a society within the limits of Rule 36 belying all the objectives of the cooperative spirit of the Act. Thus by this, if this be so, either bear with the defaults of such members at the cost of non-defaulting members or expel them from membership. Such an interpretation would be too harsh even on senior members if the only recourse could be the latter. Even a senior member may have financial stresses resulting into default of not being able to pay for a flat even the minimum fixed amount within the stipulated time, then will it be fair to expel him? The option has to be left with the society to deal with different situations as may arise from time to time. Taking away this discretion and binding it to exercise powers under Rule 36 would be interpreting against the very objective of the Act, leaving no option with the cooperative society. The cooperative society is formed with laudable objective to inculcate spirit to work in a group freely for rendering benefit to its members through the cooperative contributions. This is only possible by conferring wide range of discretion on a society, not restricting its discretions by interpreting a law otherwise. This has to be for furthering the cause of cooperative movement. That is why various rigours of laws including taxes and fees are diluted for enhancing the spirit of the cooperative movement. We have no hesitation to hold that the power of society cannot be circumvented within Rule 36 in a case of default by its member of any of his dues. Such an interpretation would be contradictory to the very cooperative spirit or objectives of the creation of cooperative societies. Rule 36 is quoted hereunder:

"36.Procedure for expulsion of members.—(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the bye-laws, any member who has been persistently defaulting in payment of his dues or the payment of claims made by a housing society for raising funds to fulfil its objects, has been failing to comply with the provisions of the bye-laws regarding sales of his produce through the society or other matter in connection with his dealings with the society or who, in the opinion of the committee, has brought disrepute to the society or he has done other acts detrimental to the interest or proper working of the society, the society may, by a resolution passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of the members entitled to vote who are present at a general meeting, held for the purpose, expel a member from the society:

Provided that no resolution shall be valid, unless the member concerned has been given an opportunity of representing his case to the general body and no resolution shall be effective, unless it is approved by the Registrar.

(2) Where any member of a cooperative society proposes to bring a resolution for expulsion of any other member, he shall give a written notice thereof to the President of the society. On receipt of such notice or when the committee itself decides to bring in such resolution, the consideration of such resolution shall be included in the agenda for the next general meeting and a notice thereof shall be given to the member against whom such resolution is proposed to be brought, calling upon him to be present at the general meeting, to be held not earlier than a period of one month from the date of such notice and to show cause against expulsion to the general body of members. After hearing the member, if present, or after taking into consideration any written representation which he might have sent, the general body shall proceed to consider the resolution.

(3) When a resolution passed in accordance with sub-rule (1) or (2) is sent to the Registrar or otherwise brought to his notice, the Registrar may consider the resolution and after making such enquiry as to whether full and final opportunity has been given under sub-rule (1) or (2) give his approval and communicate the same to the society and the member concerned within a period of 6 months. The resolution shall be effective from the date of approval.

(4) Expulsion from membership may involve forfeiture of shares held by the member. The share shall be forfeited with the prior permission of the Registrar. In that event, the value of the share forfeited shall be credited to the reserve fund of the society.

(5) No member of a cooperative society who has been expelled under the foregoing sub-rules shall be eligible for readmission as a member of that society or for admission as a member of any other society of the same class for a period of three years from the date of such expulsion:

Provided that the Registrar may, on an application either by the society or the member expelled and in special circumstances, sanction the readmission or admission, within the said period, of any such member as a member of the said society or of any other society of the same class, as the case may be. Before giving such sanction for readmission or admission by the Registrar, an opportunity of hearing may be given to both the society and member concerned."

10.This Rule deals with the procedure for the expulsion of members. In case a society decides to expel its member who is persistently defaulting in making the payment of his dues, the procedure to be followed could only be what is provided under this Rule and no other. The principle referred earlier that if a thing is required to be done in a manner as provided under the law has to be done in that manner alone and no other manner will apply with equal force under Rule 36, when a society decides to expel its member. In case of expulsion, the procedure provided under it and the expulsion has to be only under the mode provided therein and no other which is mandatory in nature. But this is only after decision is made to expel its member. This Rule does not take away the discretion of the society to expel a member or not which is preceding the exercise of power under Rule 36. For this, there is nothing under this Rule which either circumscribes or webs this discretion. Since this Rule is for the expulsion of its members, it is stringent in its application. Even after giving opportunity and even after the general body passes such a resolution, it requires approval of the Registrar. Outside this, there is nothing which restricts a society to act freely and to lay down its own policies. It is always open to it to decide on a fact to expel him or not. Its discretion to act is curtailed only by a statutory provision or any order having force of law. A policy may depend on various factors, its planning, projects, undertakings including its financial capacity etc. One society may be in a sound position and the other in a limping position thus may give to its member larger or lesser benefits as the case may be. Thus it is always open to a society to lay down its own principle for making such allotments. So consideration of prompt payment in shaping its policy which helps it to complete its project to confer on its member its fruits at the earliest may be justified exercise of its discretion. To what extent a default is going to affect a society will depend on the facts and circumstances of each case which has to be left at the discretion of each society. It is not proper even for the courts to interfere with such a discretion, except when it is arbitrary, irrational, mala fide, against any statutory provisions or against orders having the force of law. This will not be possible if a strict principle of seniority is followed. However it is open for a society to give weightage to seniority depending on the facts of each case. Within permissible limits, it is always open to lay down a principle which is just, fair and proper. When a society could decide the manner of allotment by instalments or other modes, there is no inhibition to it to modify it in case conditions are not complied by its members. Thus it is not possible to uphold that the society has no option but to proceed under Rule 36 to expel its member. Hence once a society has a discretion, it cannot be said its power is restricted to allot only under the strict rule of seniority.

11.We find that Section 28 of the Act vests final authority in the general body of a cooperative society. It has wide powers including residuary power except those not delegated to any other authority under the Act, the rules and its bye-laws. In other words, its power, if any, is only restricted by the Act, the rules, the bye-laws and any order having force of law. This exercise of power by the general body which is in issue cannot be said to be excluded by Rule 36."

47. Another decision of the Apex Court in Geeta (supra) also lends support to the view taken by this Court. The relevant paras read as under:-

"5. From the material on record, it is evident that society had issued notice to the late husband of appellant no.1 on 4.11.1991 for expulsion of his membership on account of default in payment of dues of the society. A notice for holding Annual General Meeting on 22.03.1992 of the society was issued on 4.3.1992 specifically for considering expulsion of members of the society who were persistent defaulters. The name of late husband of appellant no.1 was one of them. A sum of ₹1,33,920/- was shown to be due against him. On 22.3.1992, a resolution was passed in the aforesaid meeting expelling the membership of number of persons, including the late husband of the appellant, on account of default in payment. The matter was referred to Registrar, Cooperative Societies, Delhi for necessary action. Joint Registrar (II), Cooperative Societies, Delhi, vide his order dated 23.3.1993 granted time to the expelled members to deposit dues by 30.04.1993 and in default the resolution of the society was approved.

* * * * *

8. The argument now raised, which had not been raised before any of the authorities including the High Court, is that there is violation of Rule 36(2) of the Delhi Cooperative Society Rules, 1973 and the prescribed procedure for expulsion of a society member has not been followed. We are not impressed with the argument. Procedural law is subservient to justice.

9. In the case in hand the only issue is regarding default of payment of dues of the society for construction of flats, which the late husband of appellant no.1 was not ready and willing to pay at any stage, despite opportunities given. Firstly by the Society, secondly by the Joint Registrar (II), Cooperative Societies, Delhi and thereafter by the Financial Commissioner, Delhi. Even before the High Court, at the time of issuance of notice, the statement of late husband of appellant no.1 was that he is ready and willing to deposit the amount due with interest but still nothing was paid."

48. For the foregoing reasons, this Court is of the clear view that the order regarding cancellation of Membership for default cannot be said to be arbitrary or bad in the eyes of law. The Society had taken reasonable steps of calling upon the defaulting Members to deposit the outstanding sum which they failed, hence, at this stage, the private-respondents cannot be permitted to state that the order of cancellation was behind their back or no proper opportunity was given or that they were not aware of it especially when the said notices were sent at the addresses by the private respondents as recorded and known to the Society and it is not disputed that the said respondents were not living at the said addresses and/or they had informed the Society of the change in their addresses, rather before the Arbitrator the issuance of notice and its receipt was accepted.

49. Insofar as the submission of the learned counsel for the private-respondents that the order of cancellation of the allotment was not commensurate with the outstanding sum comparatively since the large amount has already been paid or to say that the original amount had been paid and once it was done there was no occasion for the private-respondents not to pay the remaining enhanced sum which was much lesser amount and the same could have been recovered by the Society by instituting proceedings along with interest but taking recourse to cancellation of the allotment was an extreme step. This plea also does not find favour with this Court for the reason that the Cooperative Society is a collective body of Members to further the common goal and the Society works through its Committee of Management which is elected from amongst the members themselves. In the instant case once the majority of Members had approved the enhanced sum and the Society had taken adequate steps for informing the Members of the escalated amount and also made several demands letters including cautioning the defaulting members that in case if they do not comply or make the payment their allotment is liable to be cancelled yet the private-respondents did not pay any heed to the same. Under such circumstances, the decision taken by the Society cannot be said to be arbitrary so as to invite the indulgence of this Court. Thus, this Court finds that the cancellation of the allotment is not arbitrary and this Court further finds that the report of the Dahiya Committee which had been approved by the Assistant Housing Commissioner and ratified by the Committee of Management and duly acted upon by overwhelming majority of the Members. Moreover, the cancellation of allotment is also not bad for want of notice or opportunity of hearing, hence, for all the said reasons the contention in this regard made by the learned counsel for the private-respondents is turned down.

50. The learned counsel for the private respondent has laid much emphasis that the Administrator could not enroll new members, hence, the entire exercise of the Administrator and of the Committee of Management which came in-charge of the affairs of the society was without jurisdiction, hence, neither the subsequent allotees could have been enrolled nor any allotment could have been made in their favour, thus, the order passed by the Arbitrator as well as the Appellate Tribunal does not require any interference.

51. On the other hand, the learned counsel for the petitioners/subsequent allottees is that the Administrator appointed under the provisions of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965 is entitled to take administrative decisions and it also has the power which is generally exercised by the Committee of Management regarding the affairs and functioning of the society. Thus, if any issue relating to administration comes up before the Administrator, he is duly entitled to take a decision and it cannot be said that the said decision is bad.

52. In this regard, it will first be relevant to notice the statutory provisions relating to appointment of an Administrator and what is the general powers exercised by such Administrator.

53. It will be relevant to notice certain provisions contained in Chapter IV of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965 which relates to management of the societies. Section 28, 29 and 35 are relevant and are reproduced hereinafter for ready reference:-

"Section 28. Final authority in co-operative society:- Subject to the provisions of this Act and the rules the final authority of co-operative society shall vest in the general body of its members in general meeting ;

Provided that, in such circumstances as may be prescribed, the final authority shall vest in the delegates of such members elected in the manner prescribed and assembled in general meeting and in such case all references in this Act, the rules or the bye-laws to the general body and general meeting shall be deemed to be reference to the body consisting of such delegates of members and to the general meeting of such delegates.

Section 29:-Committee of Management:- The management of every co-operative society shall vest in a committee of management constituted in accordance with this Act, the rules and the bye-laws which shall exercise such powers and perform such duties as may be conferred or imposed by this Act, the rules and the bye-laws.

[(2) (a) The term of every Committee of Management shall be five years and the term of elected members of the Committee of Management shall be co-terminus with the term of such Committee.

(b) The provisions of clause (a) shall apply also to a Committee of Management in existence on the date of the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Co-operative Societies (Amendment) Act, 2002 and to the elected members of such committee.

(b) The term of a Committee of Management which has completed on or before the date of commencement of the Act referred to in Clause (b), the period of three years from the date of its constitution and the term of its elected members shall expire on such commencement.]

(3) Election to reconstitute the Committee of Management of every Co-operative Society shall be completed in the prescribed manner under the superintendence, control and direction of the election Commission at least fifteen days before the expiry of the term of the Committee of Management and the members so elected shall replace the Committee of Management whose term expires under sub-section (2):

Provided that notwithstanding anything in this Act, the administrator or the Commitee of Administrator appointed under this Section as it stood before the commencement of Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Socities (Second Amendment) Act, 1994 shall continue to exercise the powers and perform the duties of the Committee of Management till the Committee of Management is reconstituted under this Act or till (December 31, 2000 whichever is earlier.

1. Subs. by U.P. Act 19 of 1998, dated 9-7-1998.

:Subs. by U.P. Act 17 of 1994 (w.e.f. 15-7-1994), the position of sub-section (2) of Section 29 as under:

(2) The term of every Committee of Management, including a Committee of Management constituted before the commencement of the U.P. Co-operative Societies (Second Amendment) Act, 1994 whose term has not expired on the date of such commencement, shall be five years and the term of the elected members of the Committee of Management shall be co-terminus with the term of such Committee.

Explanation. For the purposes of this sub-section, the expression "term" in respect of a Committee of Management constituted before the commencement of the Uttar Pradesh Co- operative Societies (Second Amendment) Act, 1994, means a period of three years.

2. Subs for the word "three" by U.P. Act 12 of 2002 (w.e.f. 4-7-2002).

3. Subs. by U.P. Act 12 of 2002 (w.e.f. 4-7-2002).

4. Sub-sections (3) and (4) substituted by U.P. Act 17 of 1994 (w.e.f. 15-7-1994).

5. Subs. by U.P. Act I of 1997 (w.e.f. 16-4-1997).

6. Subs. by U.P. Act 30 of 2000 (w.e.f. 22-7-2000) for the word and figures "June 30, 2000" as substituted by U.P Act 14 of 2000.

[Provided further that where the State Government is satisfied that circum-stances exist which render it difficult to hold the election on the date fixed by the Registrar, it may direct the Registrar to postpone the election, and thereupon the Registrar shall postpone the election, and all proceedings with reference to the election shall be commenced afresh in all respects.]

(4) It shall be the duty of the Secretary or, as the case may be, the Managing Director of the Co-operative Society to send to the Registrar, four months before the expiry of the term of Committee of Management, a requisition for conducting the election and to furnish all such information as may be required by him within such period as may be fixed by him.]

(5) (a) Where, for any reason whatsoever, the election of the elected members of the Committee of Management has not taken place or could not take place before the expiry of the term of elected members, the Committee of Management shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Act or the rules, or the bye-laws of the society, cease to exist on the expiry of such term.

(b) On or as soon as may be after the expiry of such term, the Registrar shall appoint an Administrator or a Committee of Administrators (hereinafter, in this section, referred to as the Committee) for the management of the affairs of the society until the reconstitution of the Committee of Management in accordance with the provisions of the Act, the rules and the bye-laws of the society, and the Registrar shall have the power to change the Administrator or, as the case may be, any member of the Committee or to appoint a Committee in place of an Administrator or vice versa from time to time.

(c) Where a committee is appointed under clause (b), it shall consist of a Chairman and such other members not exceeding eight as may be nominated by the Registrar, out of which at least two shall be Government servants.

(d) The procedure for summoning and holding of meetings of the Committee. the time and place of holding such meetings, the conduct of business at such meetings and the number of members necessary to form quorum thereof shall be such as may be prescribed.

(e) So long as no Administrator or, as the case may be, the Committee is appointed under clause (b), the Secretary or the Managing Director, as the case may be, of the society shall be in charge only of the current duties of the Committee of Management.

Explanation. Where results of the election of members of the Committee of Management have not been or could not be declared, for any reason whatsoever. before the expiry of the term of the elected members of the outgoing Committee of Management, it shall be deemed that the election of the elected members of the Committee of Management has not taken place within the meaning of this sub-section.

(6) The Administrator or the Committee appointed under sub-section (5) shall, subject to any directions which the Registrar may from time to time give. have the power to perform all or any of the functions of the Committee of Management or of any officer of the society and shall be deemed for all purposes under this Act, the rules and the bye-laws of the society to be the Committee of Management and the Chairman of such Committee shall exercise the powers and perform the functions of the Chairman of the Committee of Management.]

[(7) The Administrator or the Committee, as the case may be, appomted under sub-section (5), shall as soon as may be, but not later than the expiry of [two years and six months] from the date of appointment, arrange for the re-constitution of the Committee of Management in accordance with the provisions of this Act, the rules and the bye-laws of the society to take over the management of the society from the Administrator or the Committee, as the case may be.

Provided that where an Administrator is replaced by a Committee or a Committee by an Administrator as provided in clause (b) of sub-section (5), the period of two years and six months) shall count from the date the Administrator or the Committee, as the case may be, was originally appointed.

Explanation. Notwithstanding that the process of election may have commenced before the appointment of Administrator or the Committee under sub-section (5) a fresh process of election shall commence after such appointment.]

*-------***----------------*

35. Supersession or suspension of Committee of Management. (1) Where. in the opinion of the Registrar, the Committee of Management of any co-operative society persistently makes default or is negligent in the performance of the duties imposed on it by this Act or the rules or the bye-laws of the society or commits any act which is prejudicial to the interest of the society or its members, or is otherwise not functioning properly, the Registrar after affording the Committee of Management a reasonable opportunity of being heard and obtaining the opinion of the general body of the society in a general meeting called for the purpose in the manner prescribed may, by order in writing, supersede the Committee of Management:

[Provided that where under the prescribed circumstances it is not feasible to convene a general meeting of the general body of the society, the Registrar may dispense with the requirement of obtaining the opinion of the general body of the society.]

(2) Where the Registrar, while proceeding to take action under sub-section (1) is of opinion that suspension of the Committee of Management during the period of proceeding is necessary in the interest of the society, he may suspend the Committee of Management which shall thereupon cease to function, and make such arrangement as he thinks proper for the management of the affairs of the society till the proceedings are completed:

Provided that if the Committee of Management so suspended is not superseded it shall be reinstated and the period during which it has remained suspended shall count towards its term..

[* ]

(3) Where the Registrar has superseded the Committee of Management under sub-section (1), he may appoint in its place, [for a period not exceeding one year) to be specified in the order of supersession,-

(a) a new committee consisting of one or more members of the society, or

(b) an administrator or administrators who need not necessarily be members of the society:

[Provided that the Registrar may, with the previous approval of the State Government, extend from time to time the period f supersession, so however, that any single extension does not exceed six months and the total extension does not exceed one year:]

Provided further that the committee or an administrator or administrators appointed [before the commencement of Section 4 of the Uttar Pradesh Co-operative Societies (Amendment) Act, 1994] shall be deemed to have been duly appointed and no action taken or power exercised or functions performed by it or him, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be invalid or shall be called in question in any court on the ground of any defect in its or his appointment as such or on the ground that the Committee of Management was not reconstituted within time or the period of supersession or the term of its or his office was not duly extended.]

(4) The Registrar shall have the power to change the committee or any members thereof or the administrator or administrators appointed under clause (a) or (b) of sub-section (3) at his discretion during the period specified under that sub-section.

(5) The committee, administrator or administrators appointed under sub-sections (3) and (4) shall, subject to any directions which the Registrar may from time to time give, have the power to exercise all or any of the functions of the Committee of Management or of any officer of the society and shall be deemed for all purposes under this Act, the rules and the bye-laws of the society to be the Committee of Management.

[(6) Before the expiry of the period specified under sub-section (3), the committee, administrator or administrators, appointed under sub-sections (3) and (4), shall arrange for the reconstitution of the Committee of Management in accordance with this Act, the rules and the bye-laws of the society to take over the management of the co-operative society on the expiry of the said period:

Provided that the committee or an administrator or administrators whose term has expired before the commencement of [the Uttar Pradesh Co-operative Societies (Amendment) Act, 1994 shall arrange for reconstitution of the Comunittee of Management by December 31, 1994).

[(7) The provisions [] of Section 29 shall apply in respect of re-constitution of the Committee of Management under this Section.]

35-A. (1) Without prejudice to other provisions of this Chapter, where for two successive co-operative years [including any period before the commence-ment of this section]-

(a) more than seventy per cent of the total dues of any primary society. which is a credit society against its members during any co-operative year, remain unpaid at the end of such year; or

(b) the number of defaulting members exceeds seventy per cent of the total number of indebted members of such society, at the end of any such year, then, the Chairman and all members of the Committee of Management of any such society shall, upon an order coming into effect under sub-section (3), vacate their respective offices as such.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (1), as they apply to a primary credit society, shall mutatis mutandis apply to a financing bank with the substitution of references to 'seventy per cent' by references to 'sixty per cent'.

(3) In relation to any society or banks as referred to in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), the Registrar may make such arrangements as he thinks proper for the management of the affairs of such society or bank, as he thinks fit and the provisions of sub-sections (3), (4), (5) and (6) of Section 35 shall mutatis mutandis apply.]

54. Section 28 clearly reflects the sentiments that the final authority of the cooperative society vests in the general body of its members in general meeting.

55. Section 29 provides that the management of every Co-operative Society shall vests in a Committee of Management constituted in accordance with the Act, the rules and by-laws which shall exercise such powers and perform such duties as may be conferred or imposed by the Act, the rules and the bye-laws.

56. In this regard, the first proviso appended to Section 29 is relevant and it provides that notwithstanding anything contained in the Act, the Administrator or the Committee of Administrators appointed under this Section shall continue to exercise the powers and perform the duties of the Committee of Management till the Committee of Management is re-constituted under the Act. Section 29(6) also assumes significance as it is provided that the Administrator or the Committee appointed under Section 29(5) shall subject to the directions which the Registrar may give from time to time, the Administrator or the Committee shall have the powers to perform all or any of the functions of the Committee of Management or any officer of the society and shall be deemed for all purposes under the Act, the rules and the bye-laws to be the Committee of Management and the Chairman of such Committee shall exercise the powers and perform the functions of the Chairman of the Management.

57. Thus, from the conjoint reading of the aforesaid two provisions, it would be clear that the Administrator or the Committee of Administrators so appointed exercises the powers of a duly constituted Committee of Management with whom the administration and functioning of the society vests as provided in Section 29(1) of the Act of 1965.

58. At this stage, it will also be relevant to notice the distinction between cancellation of an allotment of a flat and enrollment of a new member. Primarily, the cancellation of an allotment would be a purely administrative function and it cannot be said that any decision taken by the Administrator in this regard which is in the domain of the day to day functioning of the society cannot be exercised by the Administrator or the Committee of Administrators as the case may be.

59. The record would indicate that admittedly the society remained under the control of an Administrator w.e.f. to 22.10.2002 to 15.04.2005. By means of the letter of the Assistant Housing Commissioner dated 22.10.2002 an Administrator was appointed. Later, by means of order dated 05.06.2003, the earlier order dated 22.10.2002 was partly modified and instead of the earlier Administrator Sushil Kumar, he was replaced by Sri Narendra Kumar. A copy of the said letter is on records filed with the counter affidavit filed by the private-respondents No.5 dated 18.11.2015.

60. Later, once again, the order dated 05.06.2003 was partly modified and a two members Committee comprising of Sri Lalta Prasad and Sri R.N. Tiwari was appointed. Once again, the constitution of the Committee of Administrators was modified and a five-member Administrative Committee was constituted and thereafter some members of the Committee were replaced and later on 18.11.2004 instead of five members, a four-member administrative committee was constituted which continued to control the affairs of the society till a duly elected committee of management was handed over the charge of the society.

61. At this stage, it will be apposite to take a glance at the order dated 20.10.2022 filed along with the counter affidavit filed by the private-respondent No.5 dated 18.11.2015 in WRIT-C No.1001289 of 2014.

62. This order passed by the Assistant Housing Commissioner/Assistant Registrar indicates that out of 9 members of the Committee of Management of the Society, 5 members had furnished their resignation and since the quorum for any meeting would not be complete, hence, no meeting could be called, hence, the Committee of Management was superseded/dissolved and till constitution of a complete Committee of Management the affairs of the Society was put under the contact of the Administrator. It also reveals that the Society was registered in the year 2000. Thus, at the relevant time, the term of the Society was 5 years i.e. till the year 2005.

63. It would also reflect that the Administrator was appointed taking into account the grounds mentioned in Section 35 of the Act of 1965 and not so for the ground mentioned in Section 29(5) of the Act of 1965 even though in the order, the Assistant Housing Commissioner has mentioned Section 29(5).

64. The circumstances under which the Administrator was appointed was clearly for lack of consensus between the members of the Committee of Management and 5 members had resigned amongst allegations of arbitrariness and corruption which were levelled against members of the Committee of Management. The Administrator so appointed was discharging his duties and functions on behalf of and as a Committee of Management. It took all reasonable measures to carry out his duties and for all major decisions, he sought to guidance of the Assistant Housing Commissioner. Cancellation of allotment for default was primarily an administrative decision. However, what is not disputed is the fact that the return of membership fee was done by the elected Committee of Management which took change in April, 2005 as the refund of membership fee was done on 25.11.2005.

65. This refund of membership fee was done by the duly constituted Committee, hence, cannot be said that the Administrator had cancelled the membership. However, the elected Committee of Management had in its meeting held on 15.05.2005 ratified all actions of the Administrator.

66. The facts on record shows prior to the appointment of the Administrator there was bickering amongst the members. While performing his functions, the Administrator attempted to resolve the deadlock regarding the issue of cost of the flats. The matter was referred to the Dhahiya Committee. The report of the Committee was accepted on 03.04.2004.

67. This is clarified from the fact that in the general meeting of the society held on 04.08.2002 by resolution no. 5, it was resolved by the members to revise the cost of the flats as there was an increase in the actual floor area of the flats than the one which was mentioned in the brochure including the cost enhancement was necessitated on account of changes in the quality of constructions and additional facilities to be provided.

68. Since no consensus could be arrived at, it is in this view that the Assistant Housing Commissioner by means of its letter dated 06.02.2004 appointed the Dahiya Committee who submitted its report on 02.04.2004 and this was placed before the Administrative Committee in its meeting held on 03.04.2004 in terms whereof the demand letters were sent to the members.

69. Another significant feature that needs to be seen is that letters for demand were sent to all members including the original allottees. Even though the demand letters were sent on 05.04.2004 yet many of the members did not deposit the amount yet they were permitted to participate in the draw of lots for the allotment of flats which was held in presence of all members and officials of the Housing Board on 20.06.2004.

70. It is in the aforesaid draw of lots that Sri Dayanand who is the private respondent no. 5 in writ petition no. 1289 (MS) of 2014 was allotted Flat No. 806-A. Despite the allotment as mentioned above, fresh demand notice was issued to respondent no. 5 Dayanand on 24.06.2004 and he was further informed that in case if he did not pay, the allotment shall be cancelled. The respondent no. 5 Sri Dayanand did not respond or pay the outstanding sum, as a result, a fresh notice was issued on 19.07.2004 requiring him to pay the amount along with interest, this was followed by another reminder dated 06.08.2004.

71. At this stage, the committee of Administrators again reviewed all cases of default and a conscious decision was taken that one more opportunity be given to the defaulting members, however, the said defaulting members did not pay, hence, in the meting of the committee of Administrators held on 01.09.2004 by means of resolution No. 2, the provisional allotment of private respondent was cancelled. This decision and the resolution passed by the Committee of Administrators was placed before the Assistant Housing Commissioner for approval which was granted approval on 14.09.2004.

72. It is thereafter that the cancellation of the allotment was intimated to the private respondent no. 5 Sri Dayanand and he was asked to submit the no objection certificate or the certificate of loan from the bank so that the loan amount be paid directly to the concerned bank. Sri Dayanand-respondent no. 5 failed to give any reply and it is thereafter the outstanding sum was paid to the bank concerned from where the respondent no. 5 Dayanand had taken a loan. The remaining sum was returned to the respondent no. 5-Dayanand through cheque which was encashed by him. Thus, it could be seen that the exercise which was taken by the Committee of Administrators had nothing to do with the election at that point of time rather it was performing the functions which otherwise would have been done by the elected committee of management.

73. In the petition filed by the private-respondents before the arbitrator, a copy of which has been annexed with the rejoinder affidavit filed by the petitioners, the private-respondents in para 15 and 16 admitted having received the demand letter and the letter of cancellation.

74. Once, this situation had arisen, in order to keep the pace of construction and to achieve completion target, the Committee of Administrators thereafter allotted the flats to the new/subsequent allottees as the allotment of the defaulting members had been cancelled. It is in the aforesaid backdrop that the share money of the erstwhile/the defaulting members was returned on 25.11.2005 i.e. after the newly elected Committee of Management had already come into power and was in-charge of the affairs of the society.

75. Another aspect that needs to be seen that the newly elected Committee of Management held its meeting on 15.05.2005 wherein the elected Committee of Management by means of Resolution No.5 resolved that while the affairs of the society was under the Administrator/committee of Administrators and certain members had defaulted and due to the said reasons, their allotments were cancelled and in order to cover the default, new members were enrolled who have been awarded the membership and flats were allotted in their favour, the same was ratified and the Committee of Management unanimously approving the said decision including the allotment made in favour of the subsequent allottes.

76. As already noticed above that the ultimate authority of the cooperative society vests in the general body comprising of its members and it is from the general body of the members that a Committee of Management is elected who gets the charge of the affairs of the Society and it is the said Committee of Management of the society who had ratified the actions of the Administrator, hence, such action cannot be termed as invalid simplicitor. Even though, there may not be any specific provision in the Act of 1965 or the Rules framed thereunder but the collective wisdom of the Committee of Management who approved the decision taken by the Committee of Administrator cannot be said to be totally without jurisdiction in the peculiar facts and circumstances of this case.

77. It would have been a different situation altogether where the Committee of Administrators would have taken a decision which would be running contrary to the larger interest of the members of the Society and once a duly elected committee of management came into power, it could have taken a decision to undo or correct the alleged wrong which may have been committed by the Committee of Administration, however, it is not the case here.

78. The only proposition which has been argued by the learned counsel for the respondent is on the premise that the Administrator or the committee of Administrator could not enroll new members. It is in this context that the decision of the Apex Court has been relied upon by the learned counsel for the respondents namely K. Shantaraj (supra) and T.A. Kuttappan (supra).

79. In both the cases, as noticed above, the Apex Court has held that the Administrator has no power to enroll new members and to conduct the elections by including them in the electoral college, but as discussed above, it is not the situation in the instant case. This Court is of the opinion that the proposition as laid down by the Apex Court in K. Shantaraj (supra) and T.A. Kuttappan (supra) cannot be disputed but the same may not be applicable in the instant case.

80. Both the decisions of K. Shantaraj (Supra) and T.A. Kuttappan (supra) are in context with enrollment of members viz-a-viz the elections to be held and it is in the aforesaid background that the Apex Court noticed that the power of Administrator does not include the power to enroll new members which would impact the electoral college and ultimately the outcome of the elections.

81. Needless to say that in the instant case, there is no election dispute nor there is any allegation that due to the enrollment of certain members, the electoral college had been disturbed or the elections have been marred. The record would even indicate that the respondent/the original allottees had not raised any grievance regarding the enrollment of the new members or its impact on the elected Committee of Management.

82. Once, the newly elected Committee of Management had come into the charge of the affairs of the society, it was the said committee which had taken the decision to refund/return of the share money.

83. In most of the cases, the share money was encashed and this in itself amounts to tacit acceptance at the behest of the original allottees. Once, they had accepted the aforesaid amount without any reaction at the relevant time, it cannot be said that the decision was bad or arbitrary.

84. It could not be disputed by the learned counsel for the private respondent that the society through its Secretary had issued notices regarding demand. It is not as if only one solitary letter of demand was sent rather the record indicates that several letters were sent to the defaulting members including informing them that in case if they failed to deposit the enhancement sum, the allotment can be cancelled and yet they did not respond.

85. It is thereafter that the decision was taken and since the ultimate aim was to complete the construction within a reasonable time for which the entire exercise had been done and the same may not be adversely affected, the society took the decision to enroll new members who paid the entire amount including the escalated amount and possession letters including a deed was executed in their favour.

86. The entire facts reveal that there is no election dispute. There is no challenge to the membership of subsequent allottees. There is no challenge to the refund/return of share money rather only the cancellation of allotment of the original allottees have been called in question. Though it is true that the Administrator cannot enroll new members but certainly cancellation of allotment for default could be considered by the Administrator. Since, the elected Committee of Management returned the share money, hence, it cannot be said that the Administrator has terminated the membership.

87. Significantly, the draw of lots was done in the year 2004 when the Administrator was on change and in his tenure provisional allotment was done to the private-respondent which is not disputed then for the same reason in case of default he had the right to cancel the provisional allotment. Once, the cancellation is not held to be bad then allotment in favour of the petitioner/subsequent allottees cannot be held to be bad nor their membership.

88. It will also be relevant to notice that the act of the Committee of Administrators is nothing but a decision of the Committee of Management as at the relevant time, the society was under the control of the Committee of Administrators who, as per Section 29 of the U.P. Cooperative Societies Act, 1965, also exercises the same functions as that of a duly constituted elected Committee.

89. Admittedly, the actions of the Administrator/the Committee of Administrators had no impact or connection with the elections or its outcome and the said decision of the Committee of Administrators was ratified by the newly elected Committee of Management which is also not assailed, thus, the irregularity, if any, stood corrected.

90. In this regard, the decision of the Apex Court in Maharashtra State Mining Corporation Vs. Sunil, S/o Pundikarao Pathak; (2006) 5 SCC 96 in Para 7 and 8 which reads as under:-

"7.The High Court was right when it held that an act by a legally incompetent authority is invalid. But it was entirely wrong in holding that such an invalid act cannot be subsequently "rectified" by ratification of the competent authority. Ratification by definition means the making valid of an act already done. The principle is derived from the Latin maximratihabitio mandato aequiparatur, namely, "a subsequent ratification of an act is equivalent to a prior authority to perform such act". Therefore ratification assumes an invalid act which is retrospectively validated. [See P. Ramanatha Aiyar'sAdvanced Law Lexicon, (2005) Vol. 4, p. 3939 et seq.]

8.InParmeshwari Prasad Gupta[(1973) 2 SCC 543] the services of the General Manager of a company had been terminated by the Chairman of the Board of Directors pursuant to a resolution taken by the Board at a meeting. It was not disputed that that meeting had been improperly held and consequently the resolution passed terminating the services of the General Manager was invalid. However, a subsequent meeting had been held by the Board of Directors affirming the earlier resolution. The subsequent meeting had been properly convened. The Court held: (SCC pp. 546-47, para 14)

"Even if it be assumed that the telegram and the letter terminating the services of the appellant by the Chairman was in pursuance of the invalid resolution of the Board of Directors passed on 16-12-1953 to terminate his services, it would not follow that the action of the Chairman could not be ratified in a regularly convened meeting of the Board of Directors. The point is that even assuming that the Chairman was not legally authorised to terminate the services of the appellant, he was acting on behalf of the Company in doing so, because, he purported to act in pursuance of the invalid resolution. Therefore, it was open to a regularly constituted meeting of the Board of Directors to ratify that action which, though unauthorised, was done on behalf of the Company. Ratification would always relate back to the date of the act ratified and so it must be held that the services of the appellant were validly terminated on 17-12-1953.

The view expressed has been recently approved inHigh Court of Judicature for Rajasthanv.P.P. Singh[(2003) 4 SCC 239 : 2003 SCC (L&S) 424] , [See alsoClaude-Lila Parulekarv.Sakal Papers (P) Ltd., (2005) 11 SCC 73.] "

91. In Panna Lal Chaudhary (supra) noticing the earlier decision of Parmeshwari Prasad Gupta (supra) and P.P. Singh (supra), the Apex Court in Paragraphs 29 to 33 has held as under :-

"29. The expression "ratification" means "the making valid of an act already done". This principle is derived from the Latin maxim "ratihabitio mandato aequiparatur" meaning thereby "a subsequent ratification of an act is equivalent to a prior authority to perform such act". It is for this reason, the ratification assumes an invalid act which is retrospectively validated.

30. The expression "ratification" was succinctly defined by the English Court in one old case, Hartman v. Hornsby [Hartman v. Hornsby, 142 Mo 368 : 44 SW 242 at p. 244 (1897)] as under:

"'Ratification' is the approval by act, word, or conduct, of that which was attempted (of accomplishment), but which was improperly or unauthorisedly performed in the first instance."

31. The law of ratification was applied by this Court in Parmeshwari Prasad Gupta v. Union of India [Parmeshwari Prasad Gupta v. Union of India, (1973) 2 SCC 543] . In that case, the Chairman of the Board of Directors had terminated the services of the General Manager of a Company pursuant to a resolution taken by the Board at a meeting. It was not in dispute that the meeting had been improperly held and consequently the resolution passed in the said meeting terminating the services of the General Manager was invalid. However, the Board of Directors then convened subsequent meeting and in this meeting affirmed the earlier resolution, which had been passed in improper meeting. On these facts, the Court held: (SCC pp. 546-47, para 14)

"14. ... Even if it be assumed that the telegram and the letter terminating the services of the appellant by the Chairman was in pursuance of the invalid resolution of the Board of Directors passed on 16-12-1953 to terminate his services, it would not follow that the action of the Chairman could not be ratified in a regularly convened meeting of the Board of Directors. The point is that even assuming that the Chairman was not legally authorised to terminate the services of the appellant, he was acting on behalf of the Company in doing so, because, he purported to act in pursuance of the invalid resolution. Therefore, it was open to a regularly constituted meeting of the Board of Directors to ratify that action which, though unauthorised, was done on behalf of the Company. Ratification would always relate back to the date of the act ratified and so it must be held that the services of the appellant were validly terminated on 17-12-1953."

This view was approved by this Court in High Court of Judicature of Rajasthan v. P.P. Singh [High Court of Judicature of Rajasthan v. P.P. Singh, (2003) 4 SCC 239 : 2003 SCC (L&S) 424] . 32. The aforesaid principle of law of ratification was again applied by this Court in Maharashtra State Mining Corpn. v. Sunil [Maharashtra State Mining Corpn. v. Sunil, (2006) 5 SCC 96 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 926] . In this case, the respondent was an employee of the appellant Corporation. Consequent to a departmental enquiry, he was dismissed by the Managing Director of the appellant. The respondent then filed a writ petition before the High Court. During the pendency of the writ petition, the Board of Directors of the appellant Corporation passed a resolution ratifying the impugned action of the Managing Director and also empowering him to take decision in respect of the officers and staff in the grade of pay the maximum of which did not exceed Rs 4700 p.m. Earlier, the Managing Director had powers only in respect of those posts where the maximum pay did not exceed Rs 1900 p.m. The respondent at the relevant time was drawing more than Rs 1800 p.m. Therefore, at the relevant time, the Managing Director was incompetent to dismiss the respondent. Accordingly, the High Court held [Sunil v. Maharashtra State Mining Corpn., 2005 SCC OnLine Bom 758 : (2006) 1 Mah LJ 495] the order of dismissal to be invalid. The High Court further held that the said defect could not be rectified subsequently by the resolution of the Board of Directors. The High Court set aside the dismissal order and granted consequential relief. The appellant then filed the appeal in this Court by special leave. Ruma Pal, J. speaking for the three-Judge Bench, while allowing the appeal and setting aside the order of the High Court held as under: (Sunil case [Maharashtra State Mining Corpn. v. Sunil, (2006) 5 SCC 96 : 2006 SCC (L&S) 926] , SCC pp. 96g-h & 97a-b)

"The High Court rightly held that an act by a legally incompetent authority is invalid. But it was entirely wrong in holding that such an invalid act could not be subsequently 'rectified' by ratification of the competent authority. Ratification by definition means the making valid of an act already done. The principle is derived from the Latin maxim ratihabitio mandato aequiparatur, namely, 'a subsequent ratification of an act is equivalent to a prior authority to perform such act'. Therefore, ratification assumes an invalid act which is retrospectively validated.

In the present case, the Managing Director's order dismissing the respondent from the service was admittedly ratified by the Board of Directors unquestionably had the power to terminate the services of the respondent. Since the order of the Managing Director had been ratified by the Board of Directors such ratification related back to the date of the order and validated it."

33. Applying the aforementioned law of ratification to the facts at hand, even if we assume for the sake of argument that the order of dismissal dated 16-8-1996 was passed by the Principal and Secretary who had neither any authority to pass such order under the Rules nor was there any authorisation given by the BoG in his favour to pass such order yet in our considered view when the BoG in their meeting held on 22-8-1996 approved the previous actions of the Principal and Secretary in passing the respondent's dismissal order dated 16-8-1996, all the irregularities complained of by the respondent in the proceedings including the authority exercised by the Principal and Secretary to dismiss him stood ratified by the competent authority (Board of Governors) themselves with retrospective effect from 16-8-1996 thereby making an invalid act a lawful one in conformity with the procedure prescribed in the Rules."

92. At this juncture, it will also be relevant to notice the decision of the Apex Court in Bhavnagar University v. Palitana Sugar Mill (P) Ltd. and others, (2003) 2 SCC 111, wherein it has been held that it is the ratio of a judgment which is binding and any difference in the facts may make a great difference in the precedential value of such a decision. The relevant portion of the said report reads as under:-

"59. A decision, as is well known, is an authority for which it is decided and not what can logically be deduced therefrom. It is also well settled that a little difference in facts or additional facts may make a lot of difference in the precedential value of a decision. [See Ram Rakhi v. Union of India [AIR 2002 Del 458 (FB)], Delhi Admn. (NCT of Delhi) v. Manohar Lal [(2002) 7 SCC 222 : 2002 SCC (Cri) 1670 : AIR 2002 SC 3088], Haryana Financial Corpn. v. Jagdamba Oil Mills [(2002) 3 SCC 496 : JT (2002) 1 SC 482] and Nalini Mahajan (Dr) v. Director of Income Tax (Investigation) [(2002) 257 ITR 123 (Del)].]"

93. Thus, for all the aforesaid reasons, this Court is unable to accept the contention of the learned counsel for the private-respondents that the allotment in favour of the petitioner and their membership was void and thus it is turned down.

94. Lastly, coming to the issue regarding the impugned orders being bad for violation of principles of natural justice and that they have been passed without considering the facts and material on record is concerned, this Court finds that the said issue can be considered in two parts:- (i) regarding the order being against the principles of natural justice;(ii) whether the impugned orders are bad that is to say perverse as they are contrary to the material available on record.

95. In so far as the first part is concerned, this plea may not be available to either parties for the reason that though it is true that in the litigation initiated by the private respondents before the Arbitrator in terms of Section 70 of the Act of 1965, it was without impleading the subsequent allottees, however, the awards of the Arbitrator were challenged before the Cooperative Tribunal who had taken note of the aforesaid and after hearing the subsequent allottes, the decision was rendered by the Cooperative Tribunal, hence, now it is not open for either party to say that the impugned orders are bad for violation of principles of natural justice and to that extent this Court is unable to agree with the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the petitioners.

96. As far as the limb whether the judgment of the Tribunal is perverse, if examined, it would reveal that the Tribunal noticed that the original allottees did not get adequate notice or opportunity to pay the outstanding amount is apparently incorrect as the original allottees (private-respondents) before the Arbitrator did not say that they never received the notice or call letters from the Society. It was not disputed that the Society sent notices dated 05.04.2004, 26.06.2004, 01.05.2004, 16.04.2004, 19.07.2004, 23.08.2004 and 06.08.2004.

97. It could not be disputed that notices were sent at the addresses of the said respective member as recorded with the Society and they were correct addresses. Hence, the Tribunal erred in holding that the private-respondents did not get adequate notice and opportunity.

98. The Tribunal was also incorrect in stating that the recommendations of the Dahiya Committee was not binding as it was made available for the members and the decision of the Dahiya Committee was the basis for which the demand notices were sent to all members and out of 120, 100 members had deposited the escalated amount and it is only a small minority of members who did not comply, thus, to say that it was not binding on the members while the overwhelming 85% of the majority members had accepted and acted upon the said report.

99. The Tribunal also erred in stating that the cancellation of the allotment was planned since the record would indicate that several demand notices were issued to the defaulting members. Despite, the members being in default as they had not paid the difference in the original price and the escalated price yet they participated and were allotted the flats. It is only thereafter that despite several reminders the money was not paid that the allotment came to be cancelled. It was not a simplicitor case of enhancing the cost of flats rather what has missed the attention of the Tribunal is the fact that there was increase in the floor area of the types of Flat i.e. Type-A, Type-B, Type-C and Type-D and this necessarily led to escalated prices, hence, it cannot be said that there was any planning or mischief to oust certain members.

100. The Tribunal also erred in holding that share money was returned/refunded without consent of the original allottee. What has not been seen is the facts that upon return of the loan money and followed by return of share money which was not assailed within 30 days as per Clause 15(2) Bye-laws as it had the effect of terminating the membership. Money of the original allottees had encashed the said cheques which in itself is tacit acceptance.

101. The Tribunal failed to consider that the resolution of cancellation and fresh allotment had the approval of the Assistant Housing Commissioner and only thereafter the process of cancellation and fresh allotment was initiated.

102. The Tribunal also erred in treating the subsequent allottees as merely licensee for the reason that merely because in the agreement made by the society in favour of the new allottees, it used the term licensee will not amount to conferring a license on the subsequent allottees, inasmuch as, the terms of agreement prima facie is in the nature of settlement of the flat for permitting use, occupation and possession with the allottee, getting the unit assessed in municipal taxes in their own name and unfettered possession without restrictions except certain conditions only to ensure good community living as it was a group housing and to avoid nuisance by one which may affect the right of peaceful living by the other flat-holders.

103. In many a cases of this bunch of petitions, it would be found that many original allottees did not challenge the cancellation/termination of their memberships and the only challenge was to the cancellation of the allotment. One aspect which has not been considered by the Arbitrator as well as the Appellate Tribunal is the fact that even though the allotment has been challenged without challenging the termination of the membership of the original allottees. In none of the petitions, the membership of the subsequent allottees has been challenged. In this regard, the decision of the Apex Court in Jubilee Hills (supra) needs to be seen wherein in Paragraphs 32 and 33, it has been held as under:-

"32.The appellant became a member of the Cooperative Society in place of his mother. As a member of the Society, nobody had a right to be allotted a plot far less a particular plot. Plot No. 39 was indisputably allotted in favour of his mother. But before the provisional allotment could fructify by making a formal allotment and executing a deed of sale in her favour, she had expired. This fact was not communicated by the appellant to the first respondent Society for a long time. He in his letter dated 16-3-1985 accepted that he was out of Hyderabad for more than two-and-a-half years. He did not deny or dispute that in the meantime the Society issued several letters in the name of all allottees to deposit the development cost. A notice had also been issued to all the allottees asking them to deposit the development charges failing which the order of allotment would stand cancelled. It stands admitted that the development charges had not been deposited in respect of Plot No. 39. It may be that no formal letter of cancellation of the said plot was issued but in view of the admitted position that the requirements as contained in the letter dated 30-9-1982 of the first respondent having not been complied with, the allotment would in law, be deemed to be cancelled.

33.An inference as regards cancellation of the said allotment must be drawn in view of the fact that Plot No. 39 admittedly was allotted in favour of Mr Srinivas. Even if there had been no express cancellation of allotment of the said plot, by reason of a fresh allotment, the provisional allotment made in favour of the mother of the appellant must be held to have come to an end. The allotment of Plot No. 39 in favour of the mother of the appellant was a provisional one. By reason of such provisional allotment, the allottee did not derive any legal right far less an indefeasible right. Such provisional allotment would have acquired permanence provided the requirements therefor were complied with."

104. Thus, in the aforesaid circumstances where the termination of membership of original allottees is not in question nor any challenge to the membership of the new allottee has been questioned and the entire litigation is built on the cancellation of allotment for the reason of default on the ground that the original allottees did not get adequate opportunity to contest the said notice of demand and cancellation of allotment which appears from the record to be incorrect in the sense that the defaulting members despite notice failed to deposit the outstanding sum and it is in view thereof that fresh allotments were made and fresh membership was granted and the said subsequently allotted members have been in possession of the respective flats since March 2005, hence, for all the aforesaid reasons, this Court is of the clear opinion that the order passed by the Tribunal as well as the Arbitrator are bad and deserves to be set aside.

105. In so far as the reliance placed on the decision of a coordinate Bench of this Court in Neelam Jain (supra) is concerned, the same may not have any impact in the instant case as in the case of Neelam Jain (Supra), the Court clearly noticed the issue involved was different, inasmuch as, Neelam Jain (supra) had assailed the orders of the Arbitrator and the Cooperative Tribunal on the ground that she was not granted adequate opportunity to contest and in the aforesaid backdrop, the coordinate Bench came to the conclusion that since Neelam Jain had sought her impleadment before the Appellate Tribunal and she was heard before the Appellate Tribunal and her rights depended on the stand of the society who had preferred a writ petition but the same had been withdrawn and not pressed and there was nothing different from the stand of the society which Neelam Jain could have argued, accordingly, the ground that she was not heard did not find favour with the court and her petition was dismissed.

106. In case of Navita Jain (supra), the Coordinate Bench of this Court while deciding the said petition noticed that the petitioner of the said case had not approached the Court with clean hands and the petition was dismissed on the ground of material concealment.

107. Moreover, the decision of the Apex Court cited by the private-respondents in Modern Dental College and Research Centre (supra) has no applicability in the instant case.

108. Thus, the aforesaid decisions, do not come to the aid of the original allottees i.e. the private respondents.

109. Taking a holistic view and in light of the detailed discussions made in hereinabove, this court is of the clear view that the order dated 27.01.2014 passed by the Cooperative Tribunal, Uttar Pradesh in Appeal No. 230/2009, 219/2009, 229/2009, 228/2009 arising out of orders dated 14.10.2009 in Arbitration Case No. 21/2006-07, 23/2006-07, 22/2006-07, 20/2006-07, in Appeal No. 71/2009, 72/2009 arising out of orders dated 30.03.2009 in Arbitration Case No. 47/2007-08, 48/2007-08, in Appeal No. 134/2010 arising out of order dated 27.04.2010 in Arbitration Case No. 82/2007-08, In Appeal No. 195/2010 arising out of order dated 9.07.2010 in Arbitration case No. 19/2006-07, in Appeal No. 160/2010 arising out of order dated 01.05.2010 in Arbitration case No. 109/2007-08, In Appeal No. 151/2010 arising out of order dated 11.06.2010 in Arbitration case No. 106/2007-08, In Appeal No. 73/2010 arising out of order dated 16.03.2010 in Arbitration case No. 79 /2007-08, In Appeal No. 133/2010 arising out of order dated 05.05.2010 in Arbitration case No. 81/2007-08 passed by the arbitrators concerned are liable to be set aside.

110. A writ in the nature of certiorari is issued quashing the order passed by the Co-operative Tribunal in appeals arising out of arbitration awards passed in Arbitration Cases under Section 78 of the Uttar Pradesh Cooperative Societies Act, 1965, as mentioned hereinabove.

111. Accordingly, all the petitions are allowed in the aforesaid terms. Costs are made easy.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Alok Mathur, J.)

1. Heard Shri Mohammad Affan, Advocate holding brief of Shri G.M. Kamil, learned counsel for petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the State and perused the material available on record.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has challenged the order of District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum, Ambedkar Nagar dated 30.04.2010 thereby he has allowed the claim preferred by respondent nos. 2 to 6 with regard to the payment of compensation for the potatoes stored in the warehouse owned by the petitioner.

3. It has been submitted by learned counsel for petitioner that the petitioner is a partnership firm, consisting of four partners and is running a cold storage unit in the name & style of M/s Haji Ramzan Abdul Rauf Cold Storage Unit-II. It has further been stated that for running the said cold storage the petitioner had obtained the necessary licence/permission from the appropriate authority/Licensing Authority and is doing the business of storing the agricultural produces, which are grown by the local farmers such as potatoes etc. For the year 2008, the petitioner had stored the potatoes, which was brought by the local farmers/respondent nos. 2 to 6 and issued a receipt of deposit. In the said receipt, the conditions were mentioned and also the validity of the said storage. The potatoes are usually are taken out by the farmers till the end of September every year but in September 2008, the rates of potatoes was very low and therefore, respondent nos. 2 to 6 did not turn up to take the potatoes, which continued to be stored in the cold storage owned by the petitioner. It seems that due to the fact that the potatoes were stored for longer length of time, the same were deteriorated and consequently, due to the damage occurred to the said storage, respondent nos. 2 to 6 preferred a complaint under Section 12 of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 before the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum, Ambedkar Nagar. On being served a notice the petitioner had appeared before the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum, Ambedkar Nagar but he did not file any written objections. Thereafter the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum after considering the material on record and the evidence adduced by respondent nos. 2 to 6 returned the finding that respondent nos. 2 to 6 had deposited their potatoes in the cold storage owned by the petitioner and also took into account the published rate and its value and the value of bags and accordingly valued the potatoes for all the private respondents. The Forum concluded that there was negligence on the part of the petitioner due to which the potatoes were destroyed and allowed the claim of the private respondents directing the petitioner to pay the value of the goods as per the said judgment. It also imposed cost arising from mental physical and financial loss caused and also the cost of said litigation.

4. In the present petition the petitioner has submitted that the impugned order is without jurisdiction, inasmuch as, for the claim with regard to the destruction of potatoes, the same issue has to be dealt under the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976. Section 24 provides for compensation for loss, destruction etc., while according to Section 25, the dispute regarding the compensation is to be referred to the Licensing Officer.

5. It is stated that the dispute pertaining to destruction of potatoes by the cold storage have to be considered and decided only as per the provisions of Section 24 and 25 of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976. When a pointed query has been made to the petitioner, as to whether despite the fact that he participated in the said proceedings before the District Forum, whether he had raised any objections in this regard or not? The learned counsel for the petitioner fairly submits that though the petitioner participated in the said proceedings but the said objection was never filed or raised by him. Though one objection has been annexed along with the writ petition, which is undated but certainly the same has not been filed before the District Forum as the impugned order clearly states that no objection was filed by the petitioner.

6. Learned Standing Counsel for the State on the other hand has opposed the writ petition. It has been submitted that private respondents falls within the definition of "consumer" as per the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 and there is clearly evidence that the petitioner had been negligent in storage of the potatoes and consequently, it cannot be said that the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum did not have any jurisdiction to decide the dispute. He further submits that it is not a case where there is patent lack of jurisdiction by the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum. The issue of jurisdiction was never agitated before the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum and was never informed about the special mechanism enacted by the Uttar Pradesh Regulation Cold Storage Act, 1976 and consequently, the petitioner is estopped from taking the objection for the first time in the writ petition.

7. He further submits that once the petitioner had appeared and participated in the proceedings before the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum then he would be deemed to have given up his objection to the applicability of the Uttar Pradesh Cold Storage Act, 1976 with regard to the jurisdiction created therein and has voluntary submitted to the jurisdiction of the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum and consequently, cannot turn around and the challenge the same in the writ petition.

8. I have heard learned counsel for parties and perused the record.

9. The only question raised by the petitioner in the present writ petition is with regard to the jurisdiction of the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum while entertaining the dispute pertaining to destruction of the potatoes in the cold storage. According to the petitioner, the said dispute had to be decided as per the provisions contained in the Uttar Pradesh Regulation Cold Storage Act, 1976 more specifically under Section 24 and 25, where there is provision for grant of compensation by referring the dispute to the Licensing Officer and further that an appeal has also been provided under Section 36 against the order passed by Licensing Officer.

10. In the present case, respondent nos. 2 to 6 had stored their potatoes in the cold storage owned by the petitioner and due to certain defects in the working of the cold storage, the said potatoes were damages and consequently, the private respondent nos. 2 to 6 had claimed compensation from the petitioner on account of such damage. Though there is no doubt that a special mechanism for redressal of the said dispute has been provided for under the Uttar Pradesh Regulation Cold Storage Act, 1976, but on the other hand, the said dispute also fell within the ambit of Consumer Protection Act, 1986, inasmuch as, the private respondents fell within the definition of consumer and the dispute raised also fell within the definition of consumer dispute. It was open for the petitioner to have raised a preliminary objection regarding the jurisdiction of the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum at the earliest but he submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum and participated in the proceedings therein without raising any objection as to its jurisdiction.

11. It is in the aforesaid circumstances, this Court is of the considered view that once the petitioner had submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum, and participated in the proceedings, he cannot turn around and question its jurisdiction for the first time in the writ petition. There is no denying the fact that the petitioner had appeared and participated in the proceedings before the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum and no such objection was taken by him therein. On the other hand, it is noticed that the dispute as raised by the private respondents no. 2 to 6 fell within the four corners of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986, consequently, it cannot be said that the there was patent lack of jurisdiction by the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum while deciding the said dispute.

12. Ordinarily, When more than one remedy is available to a party in respect of the same grievance, it is open for that party to elect or to choose his remedy. Once he chooses his remedy, all incidents attached to that remedy must follow.

13. In the present case, the petitioner has elected to move to the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum for grievance redressal under Section 12 of the Consumer Protection Act, 1986 , though, a parallel remedy is available under Section 24 of Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976 claim compensation by referring the dispute to the Licensing Officer appointed under the said act.

14. The Court is of the view that both the parallel remedies are equally efficacious and provide similar relief. The respondents 2 to 6, being the aggrieved persons, have right to choose the remedy they prefer to avail and petitioner shall be bound by the same.

15. Mere presence of an alternate/parallel remedy does not render the relief given by the earlier forum invalid or without jurisdiction. This principle is in compliance with demand of public policy that an aggrieved person has a right to choose the forum for redressal of his grievance, when two forums are available in respect of the same subject matter for the same relief. In case, if the party is allowed to select multiple remedies in multiple forums and courts, there will obviously be multiplicity of litigation and there is every chance and likelihood that the judgments and/or orders may also be conflicting with each other.

16. It is now well-settled that the High Courts while exercising their equity jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution may not exercise the same in appropriate cases. While exercising such jurisdiction, the superior courts in India even may not strike down a wrong order only because it would be lawful to do so. A discretionary relief may be refused to be extended to the Appellant in a given case although the Court may find the same to be justified in law. [See S.D.S. Shipping (P) Ltd. Vs. Jay Container Services Co. (P) Ltd and others (2003) 9 SCC 439]. A similar view has been taken by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in a large number of decisions including High Court of Judicature at Bombay through Registrar and Another Vs. Brij Mohan Gupta (Dead) through Lrs. and another [(2003) 2 SCC 390], N.K. Prasad Vs. Government of India and others (2004) 6 SCC 299, para 26], Inder Prakash Gupta Vs. State of J & K and others [(2004) 6 SCC 786, para 42] and Board of Control For Cricket in India and another Vs. Netaji Cricket Club and others [(2005) 4 SCC 741, para 102].

17. That, however, is not to say that the jurisdiction will be exercised whenever there is an error of law. The High Courts do not act as Courts of appeal under Article 226. The powers are purely discretionary and though no limits can be placed upon that discretion it must be exercised along recognised lines and not arbitrarily; and one of the limitations imposed by the Courts on, themselves is that they will not exercise jurisdiction in this class of case unless substantial injustice has ensued, or is likely to ensue. The High Court cannot be turned into Courts of appeal or revision to set right mere errors of law which do not occasion injustice in a broad and general sense, for, though no legislature can impose limitations on these constitutional powers it is a sound exercise of discretion to bear in mind the policy of the legislature to have disputes about these special rights decided as speedily as may be. Therefore, writ petitions should not be lightly entertained in this class of case.

18. It is in the aforesaid facts, this Court is of the considered view that where the authority or tribunal does not lack patent jurisdiction to entertain the dispute and when the petitioner participated in the proceedings without demur or raising any objection to its jurisdiction, they may not be permitted to raise for the first time in writ proceedings. Accordingly, this Court declines to interfere with the impugned order dated 30.04.2010 passed by the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum, Ambedkar Nagar.

19. For the reasons as stated above, this writ petition is dismissed.

20. Learned counsel for the petitioner at this stage submits that on merits he may be granted liberty to assail the order dated 30.04.2010 passed by the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum, Ambedkar Nagar before the State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow and counsel for the respondents do not object to the prayer made by the petitioner. Considering the fact that this Court has only looked into the aspect of the jurisdiction of the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum for entertaining the dispute peculiar fact in the present case, it is provided that the petitioner, if so advised, may file an appeal against the impugned order dated 30.04.2010 passed by the District Consumer Dispute Redressal Forum, Ambedkar Nagar, before the State Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow within next three weeks. In case the appeal is filed, the same shall be considered on merits in accordance with law.

1. Heard Sri Anurag Narain Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner as well as learned Standing Counsel for the State respondents and Sri Mohd. Aslam Khan, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Nitin Srivastava, learned counsel for the private respondents.

2. By means of present writ petition the petitioner has challenged:

(i) the order dated 25.07.2011, passed by the Additional Commissioner, under Section 27(4) of the Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 2006"), for cancellation of patta of predecessor in interest of petitioner namely Kishore.

(ii) the order dated 21.06.2011, passed by Additional Commissioner, deleting the name of Kishore on account of his death without substituting the legal heirs of Kishore.

(iii) the order dated 16.07.2011, passed by the Additional Commissioner whereby the recall application seeking recall of order dated 21.06.2011 has been rejected on the ground that registered will dated 18.10.2007 executed by Kishore in favour of the petitioner since declaration was not obtained by the petitioner from the competent Court in relation to the petitioner that he is legal heir of Kishore on the basis of registered will.

(iv) order dated 26.10.1964, pertaining to declaration of surplus land in relation to plot no. 1300, were set aside ex-parte and the recall application was also rejected on the ground that lease holder has got no right of opportunity of hearing and the petitioner has no right to file objections.

3. It is submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that on 26.10.1964, the land of tenure holder Bhaiya Jagdish Dutt Ram Pandey was declared surplus under the provisions of the Act, 1960. The land was entered in the name of Bhaiya Jagdish Dutt Ram Pandey which is evident from the Khatauni and after about six years on 31.08.1970, out of surplus land of Bhaiya Jagdish Dutt Ram Pandey plot No. 521/1.70 acres was allotted to Kishore S/o Ram Karan being a landless labourer, it is pertinent to point out that over the patta document Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) @ Nanhe Lal Lekhpal was a witness and on the basis of patta name of Kishore was entered in the khatauni and the mutation register prepared under Rule 24.

4. It has been submitted by the petitioner that Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) had committed forgery in the revenue record as well as in UPCH Form - 45 and fraudulently got his name entered into the khatauni with intention to grab the land which was declared surplus by means of order dated 26.10.1964 by the Prescribed Authority. The Prescribed Authority had declared surplus land in relation to the original tenure holder - Bhaiya Jagdish Dutt Ram Pandey under section 10(2) of the Act of 1960 and the said order attained finality as it was never challenged by the recorded tenure holder in appeal.

5. It is stated that Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) had taken advantage of his posting as Lekhpal and entered his name in the revenue records without there being any order or title deed in his favour. Due to aforesaid act of fraud committed by Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) he got his name mutated in the revenue records pertaining to Plot No. 521/1.50 acres and also manipulated the same in UPCH Form - 45 fraudulently.

6. When the predecessor in interest of the petitioner namely Kishore (Patta holder) came to know about the fraudulent entry having been made by Ram Naresh (Lekhpal), he made a complaint, and an inquiry was ordered by the Chief Revenue Officer, Gonda. The matter was enquired into by Tehsildar, Karnelganj, Gonda. The inquiry report revealed that Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) has unauthorisedly without any order of competent authority entered his name into the revenue records pertaining to Plot No. 521/1.50 acres. It was stated that said entries in the name of Ram Naresh were fictitious and forged and they were liable to be rectified under Section 33/39 of the Land Revenue Act. There are allegations of manipulation in the revenue records regarding two other Gata Nos. also and after due inquiry it was revealed that the respondent had committed serious acts of forgery and therefore the matter was referred to the SDO, Karnelganj, Gonda for correction of entries and by means of order dated 24.08.1993, the entries made in UPCH Form - 45 was deleted and further direction was issued that the entries in the revenue records of the village may be corrected.

7. Aggrieved by the order of Chief Revenue Officer, Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) preferred two revisions being Revision No. 32 and 130 – 1992-93, before the Board of Revenue, Lucknow, which were dismissed by means of order dated 04.03.1998.

8. Being unsuccessful in proceedings before the Board of Revenue, Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) approached the Commissioner, Faizabad Division, Faizabad for cancellation of the lease granted in favour of Kishore. The application of Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) was dismissed by means of order dated 30.09.1995. Against the order dated 30.09.1995, he preferred Writ Petition (Ceiling) No. 178 (M/S) of 1995. The writ petition was dismissed on 07.12.1995. While dismissing the writ petition the Court observed that the application under Section 11(2) of the Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act which was pending, be decided on merits. It has further been stated that in the writ petition Kishore was not made party.

9. Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) after getting his name mutated in the revenue records in place of Kishore, moved an application before the Prescribed Authority under Section 11(2) of the Ceiling Act for setting aside of the order dated 26.10.1994 by which the land of Bhaiya Jagdish Dutt Ram Pandey was declared surplus stating that he has been recorded as tenure holder and therefore the order was passed by the Prescribed authority without giving notice or any opportunity of hearing and therefore prayed that the order dated 26.10.1994 be set aside and land of Gata No. 521/1050 acres be excluded from the holdings of the original tenure holder. The Prescribed Authority by means of order dated 31.10.1996 allowed the application preferred by Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) under Section 11(2) of the Ceiling Act. It is stated that the State brought to the knowledge of the Prescribed Authority that the revenue entries have been made fraudulently by Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) himself which have been ordered to be deleted, and therefore no benefit of the same could have been granted, but he ignored the said arguments and by means of order dated 31.10.1996 allowed the application under section 11(2) of Act of 1960.

10. Kishore, on coming to know about the order dated 31.10.1996, moved an application stating that he had been granted patta and was necessary party in the said proceedings but his application for recall was rejected by order dated 04.08.1997.

11. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that Kishore had died issue less and had bequeathed his entire property in favour of petitioner by means of registered will dated 18.10.2007. It has also been stated that Ram Naresh had moved an application under Section 27(4) of the Ceiling Act, 1960 praying that the revenue entries should be made in his favour and that name of Kishore has wrongly been recorded. During the pendency of the said application Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) as well as Kishore expired and Ram Naresh was substituted by Devi Shanker Srivastava and Maya Shanker Srivastava while no substitution was made with regard to Kishore. The application filed by the respondent was allowed and the lease in favour of Kishore was cancelled and direction was made for recording of entry in name of Ram Naresh in the revenue records.

12. The petitioner being legal heir of Kishore moved an application for recall of order dated 21.06.2011 which was rejected. Another application preferred by the petitioner for substitution was also rejected on 16.07.2011 observing that there was no decree of the Court of competent jurisdiction declaring that the petitioner was legal heir of Kishore.

13. The application preferred by Ram Naresh was finally allowed on 25/07/2011 on merits. While allowing the application it was held that initially the prescribed authority by means of order dated 26/10/1964 had declared the land of the original tenure holder Jagdish Dutt Ram Pandey as surplus, and the said order was modified on 31.10.1996 an application under section 11 (2) of the act of 1960 preferred by Ram Naresh and the plot No. 521/1.5 acres was excluded from the land which was declared surplus by means of order dated 31/10/1996. In the meanwhile, the land which was declared surplus by the prescribed authority had been allotted in favour of Kishore on 31/08/1970, and on the application of Ram Naresh under Section 27(4) of the act of 1960, the patta granted in favour of Kishore was cancelled by means of the impugned order dated 25/07/2011.

14. Sri M.A Khan ,Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of respondent 5 and 6 has vehemently opposed the writ petition. It has been submitted that the initial order passed by the prescribed authority pertaining to the land of the original tenure holder was passed on 26/10/1964 without giving any opportunity to the respondent of the petitioner was also declared surplus illegally and arbitrarily. Apparently the patta was allotted in favour of Kishore, respondent had filed an application for cancellation of the Patta under section 27(4) of the act of 1960. It was submitted that the application was illegally rejected, against which a writ petition was filed being writ petition no. 178(Ceil.) of 1995 and the petition was disposed of on 07/12/1995 and that the application under section 11(2) of the act of 1960 be disposed of by the prescribed authority. As per the directions of this court, the application under section 11(2) was allowed by means of order dated 31/10/1996 and plot No. 521 was excluded from the surplus land declared by the prescribed authority previously. In this regard it has been submitted that the order dated 21/10/1996 has not been assailed by the petitioner in any proceedings and has become final and consequently submitted that there is no error in the impugned orders.

15. The State initially filed an affidavit of compliance supporting the case of the respondents, and the deponent was none other than Parmanand Tewari, who has authored the impugned order dated 25/07/2011, and consequently this Court taking a serious view of the matter by means of order dated 10/10/2011 directed the enquiry to be conducted by the Principal Secretary, Revenue, Government of U.P.

16. The enquiry was conducted by the Principal Secretary, Revenue, Government of U.P, and submitted his report on 31/01/2012 which was filed 03/05/2015. According to the enquiry report land situated at Gata No. 1300, the new number being Gata No. 521 was declared as surplus from the original holding of Bhaiya Dutt Jagdish Ram Pandey on 26/10/1964. Subsequently a mutation entry dated 23/09/1978 is existing on record whereby name of Ram Naresh, son of Sambhu Dayal has been entered as Sirdar, but there is no order for making the said mutation and accordingly prima facie the said entry seems to be suspect/doubtful. Even the procedure of making the said mutation seems to indicate the said mutation has been done by black ink while normal course such mutation is carried out in red writing. Another glaring infirmity is that the mutation was done when the proceedings under Section 9 of the Consolidation of Holding Act were underway. In such a situation the said mutation has to be reflected in the revenue records of the particular year, and in case the mutation has been done after the conclusion of Consolidation proceedings then the same has to be done in accordance with provisions of section 109A of the Consolidation of Holdings Act, and only after approval of the Deputy director of Consolidation the Assistant Consolidation Officer will carry out the mutation in form 45 itself while in the present case the mutation has been done by the Consolidation Lekhpal on 28/09/1978 which is on the face of it illegal and without jurisdiction.

17. It has also been stated in the report that on the said land been declared surplus by the prescribed authority. Initially the land was allotted in favour of one Devi Shanker son of Nanhey Lal by order dated 13/05/1970, but subsequently the Pargna Adhikari cancelled the said allotment and passed another allotment order in favour of Ramkishore son of Ramkaran on 31/08/1970.

18. In the aakar form 45 with regard to Khata No. 723, the fraudulent in the entry made in favour of Ram Naresh a complaint was made by Kishore to the Commissioner Faizabad mandal on 27/29/11/1991 an enquiry was got conducted by the Pargna Adikari and it came on record that the revenue entry in favour of Ram Naresh was fraudulently done by means of order dated 28/09/1978.

19. It has further been stated that a complaint was made by Kishore with regard to the fraudulent entry made by the Ram Naresh to the Commissioner, an enquiry was conducted by the Pargana Adhikari who submitted his report on 05/08/1993. The said report was forwarded to the Chief Revenue officer, who in turn directed the Pargana Adhikari to delete the mutation in the revenue records in favour of Ram Naresh, but his order was not implemented by the concerned Lekhpal.

20. Another important aspect stated in the said report is with regard to the fact that Ram Naresh, the concerned Lekhpal and was working on the said post during the period when the mutation was carried out in his favour. After the said facts have come to the knowledge of the higher authorities enquiry was been ordered. The Pargna Adhikari has also been held to be guilty of not complying with the Chief revenue Officer. It is only because in the revenue records the name of Ram Naresh continued to be recorded in Gata No. 521, which persuaded the Prescribed Authority to allow the application filed by Ram Naresh under section 11(2) of the act of 1960, and hence order was passed in his favour.

21. I have heard the counsel for the parties and perused the record. The petitioner has questioned the dated 21/06/2011 whereby on the application for substitution of Kishore, it was stated that he has died interstate and it was recorded dead in front of his name and the petitioner.

22. Considering the submissions made on behalf of parties, the point in issue in the present case is as to whether Ram Naresh (Lekhpal) had misused his official position as Lekhpal and fraudulently manipulated the revenue record whereby the entry in his name against Gata No. 521 was recorded. This aspect gains relevance inasmuch as it is only because of the entry in the revenue record pertaining to Gata No. 521 that initially when the said entry was ordered to be deleted by the Chief Revenue Office the petition against the same were dismissed at the behest of Ram Naresh and secondly his claim for exclusion of the said land from the holdings of the original tenure holder in proceedings under Section 11(2) of the Act, 1960 was made only on the basis of entry existing in his name against Gata No. 521.

23. Though there is denial by respondent nos. 5 and 6 in their counter affidavit that Ram Naresh was the concerned Lekhpal at the time when the alleged fraudulent entry was made deleting the name of Kishore and replacing it with the name of Ram Naresh, but the enquiry conducted by the Chief Secretary (Revenue) has made it clear that it was Ram Naresh who was in fact posted as Lekhpal when the said manipulation in the revenue record took place. It is also pertinent to note that signatures of Ram Naresh were existing on the Patta given to Kishore. Further the inquiry report of Chief Secretary (Revenue) has also confirmed the fact that there was no order by any competent authority preceding the entry made in favour of Ram Naresh. Even in the entire counter affidavit filed before this Court no such order has been produced which could indicate that there was any semblance of legality in deletion of name of Kishore and its substitution in the name of Ram Naresh.

24. The weak resistance put up by the private respondents is on account of the fact that Gata No. 521 was initially allotted in the name of one Devi Shanker,son of Nanhe Lal vide order dated 13.05.1970 and the said allotment was cancelled and subsequently allotment was made in the name of Kishore S/o Ram Karan on 31.08.1970. The previous cancellation vide order dated 13.05.1970 was never assailed before any authority and consequently it became final.

25. When Kishore came to know about the deletion/modification of the entry pertaining to Gata No. 521, he had moved an application before the Commissioner, Lucknow Division, Lucknow for inquiry and for restoration of his name. An inquiry was conducted in this regard in 1993 by the Parganadhikari where it came forth that entry in the name of Ram Naresh was unauthorisedly made without there being any order and consequently the Chief Revenue Officer directed that the entry existing in the name of Kishore be restored. Despite orders having been passed by the competent authority correction as directed was never carried out and accordingly illegal entry in the name of Ram Naresh continued to exist in the revenue record.

26. On the strength of illegal and improper entry existing in the name of Ram Naresh efforts were made on the judicial side fortifying his claim on the said land and as efforts to set aside the order dated 24.08.1993 by which the entry was directed to be cancelled was rejected at the behest of Ram Naresh and he could not succeed at that stage. Subsequently, Ram Naresh filed a writ petition before this Court where liberty was granted to him to pursue his application under Section 11(2) of the Act, 1960.

27. Before the Prescribed Authority the State had informed about the order passed by the Chief Revenue Officer dated 24.08.1993, for deletion of the entry existing in the name of Ram Naresh, but this argument was not considered as in the revenue records name of Ram Naresh continued to exist and merely on the basis of said record, application under Section 11(2) of the Act, 1960 was allowed and Gata No. 521 was excluded from the holdings of the original tenure holder and also order of Prescribed Authority dated 31.10.1996, was suitably modified.

28. The Additional Commissioner (Judicial) had illegally rejected the application for impleadment preferred by the petitioner despite the fact that he had produced copy of registered will clearly indicating that the deceased Kishore had bequeathed his property in favour of petitioner. There was no other claim to the property of Kishore and no one has raised dispute in this regard and consequently rejection of his application merely on account of the fact that there was no decree from the Court of competent jurisdiction regarding declaration of the petitioner as successor in interest of Kishore, he declined to accept the application for substitution.

29. The respondents could not show any law which provides that application for substitution can be accepted only when the person claiming his rights produces a copy of decree of declaration of the competent Court that he is the successor in interest of the deceased. At the stage of consideration of the application for substitution, the court has to look only into the relevant documents and relationship claimed by the applicant on the basis of which the application for substitution has been made. It has to be borne in mind that even if the application for substitution is allowed it does not vest any substantial right in the applicant, except to contest the said case. The applicant having produced a certified copy of the registered will of the deceased, which was sufficient in itself for the concerned authority to have allowed the said application, where no doubts were expressed for its existence and validity by the other side. Accordingly, the findings of the Additional Commissioner (Judicial) in this regard are illegal and arbitrary and are set aside. The order is clearly arbitrary and illegal and also deserves to be quashed.

30. The next issue raised is with regard to the validity of the entry made in favour of Ram Naresh, and as to whether on the basis of the said entry the land was rightly excluded from the holding of the original tenure holder and the patta of the petitioner was rightly cancelled.

31. As discussed above, there is no doubt that the revenue records were tampered by the Lekhpal i.e. Ram Naresh, who was responsible for entering his name in place of Kishore illegally and without authorisation. He himself was the concerned Lekhpal and has manipulated the revenue records. We have no reasons to doubt the report submitted by the Principle Secretary,Revenue who has carefully examined the entire record and dealt with all the issues in detail. We take serious note of the fraudulent conduct of the respondent in this regard. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in a number of judgments has discussed the aspect of fraud. Some of such judgments are quoted herein below.

32. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Satluj Jal Vidyut Nigam v. Raj Kumar

Rajinder Singh, (2019) 14 SCC 449, has held :-

"68. Fraud vitiates every solemn proceeding and no right can be claimed by a fraudster on the ground of technicalities. On behalf of the appellants, reliance has been placed on the definition of "fraud" as defined in Black's Law Dictionary, which is as under:

"Fraud: (1) A knowing misrepresentation of the truth or concealment of a material fact to induce another to act to his or her detriment. Fraud is usually a tort, but in some cases (esp. when the conduct is wilful) it may be a crime. ... (2) A misrepresentation made recklessly without belief in its truth to induce another person to act. (3) A tort arising from a knowing misrepresentation, concealment of material fact, or reckless misrepresentation made to induce another to act to his or her detriment. (4) Unconscionable dealing; esp., in contract law, the unconscientious use of the power arising out of the parties' relative positions and resulting in an unconscionable bargain."

33. The Court in Satluj Jal Vidyut Nigam v. Raj Kumar Rajinder Singh (supra) has further observed that :

"69. Halsbury's Laws of Englandhas defined "fraud" as follows:

"Whenever a person makes a false statement which he does not actually and honestly believe to be true, for purpose of civil liability, the statement is as fraudulent as if he had stated that which he did know to be true, or know or believed to be false. Proof of absence of actual and honest belief is all that is necessary to satisfy the requirement of the law, whether the representation has been made recklessly or deliberately, indifference or recklessness on the part of the representor as to the truth or falsity of the representation affords merely an instance of absence of such a belief.

70. In Kerr on the Law of Fraud and Mistake, "fraud" has been defined thus:

"It is not easy to give a definition of what constitutes fraud in the extensive significance in which that term is understood by Civil Courts of Justice. The courts have always avoided hampering themselves by defining or laying down as a general proposition what shall be held to constitute fraud. Fraud is infinite in variety… Courts have always declined to define it, ... reserving to themselves the liberty to deal with it under whatever form it may present itself. Fraud ... may be said to include property (sicproperly) all acts, omissions, and concealments which involve a breach of legal or equitable duty, trust or confidence, justly reposed, and are injurious to another, or by which an undue or unconscientious advantage is taken of another. All surprise, trick, cunning, dissembling and other unfair way that is used to cheat anyone is considered as fraud. Fraud in all cases implies a wilful act on the part of anyone, whereby another is sought to be deprived, by illegal or inequitable means, of what he is entitled to."

71. In Ram Chandra Singh v. Savitri Devi [Ram Chandra Singh v. Savitri Devi, (2003) 8 SCC 319] , it was observed that fraud vitiates every solemn act. Fraud and justice never dwell together and it cannot be perpetuated or saved by the application of any equitable doctrine including res judicata. This Court observed as under :

"15. Commission of fraud on court and suppression of material facts are the core issues involved in these matters.Fraud, as is well known, vitiates every solemn act. Fraud and justice never dwell together.

16. Fraud is a conduct either by letter or words, which induces the other person or authority to take a definite determinative stand as a response to the conduct of the former either by word or letter.

17. It is also well settled that misrepresentation itself amounts to fraud. Indeed, innocent misrepresentation may also give reason to claim relief against fraud.

18. A fraudulent misrepresentation is called deceit and consists in leading a man into damage by wilfully or recklessly causing him to believe and act on falsehood. It is a fraud in law if a party makes representations which he knows to be false, and injury ensues therefrom although the motive from which the representations proceeded may not have been bad.

23. An act of fraud on court is always viewed seriously. A collusion or conspiracy with a view to deprive the rights of the others in relation to a property would render the transaction void ab initio. Fraud and deception are synonymous.

25. Although in a given case a deception may not amount to fraud, fraud is anathema to all equitable principles and any affair tainted with fraud cannot be perpetuated or saved by the application of any equitable doctrine including res judicata."

*72. In Madhukar Sadbha Shivarkar v. State of Maharashtra [Madhukar Sadbha Shivarkar v. State of Maharashtra, (2015) 6 SCC 557, this Court observed that fraud had been played by showing the records and the orders obtained unlawfully by the declarant, would be a nullity in the eye of the law though such orders have attained finality. Following observations were mad*e :

"27. The said order is passed by the State Government only to enquire into the landholding records with a view to find out as to whether original land revenue records have been destroyed and fabricated to substantiate their unjustifiable claim by playing fraud upon the Tahsildar and appellate authorities to obtain the orders unlawfully in their favour by showing that there is no surplus land with the Company and its shareholders as the valid sub-leases are made and they are accepted by them in the proceedings under Section 21 of the Act, on the basis of the alleged false declarations filed by the shareholders and sub-lessees under Section 6 of the Act. The plea urged on behalf of the State Government and the de facto complainant owners, at whose instance the orders are passed by the State Government on the alleged ground of fraud played by the declarants upon the Tahsildar and appellate authorities to get the illegal orders obtained by them to come out from the clutches of the land ceiling provisions of the Act by creating the revenue records, which is the fraudulent act on their part which unravels everything and therefore, the question of limitation under the provisions to exercise power by the State Government does not arise at all. For this purpose, the Deputy Commissioner of Pune Division was appointed as the enquiry officer to hold such an enquiry to enquire into the matter and submit his report for consideration of the Government to take further action in the matter.The legal contentions urged by Mr Naphade, in justification of the impugned judgment and order prima facie at this stage, we are satisfied that the allegation of fraud in relation to getting the landholdings of the villages referred to supra by the declarants on the alleged ground of destroying original revenue records and fabricating revenue records to show that there are 384 sub-leases of the land involved in the proceedings to retain the surplus land illegally as alleged, to the extent of more than 3000 acres of land and the orders are obtained unlawfully by the declarants in the land ceiling limits will be nullity in the eye of the law though such orders have attained finality; if it is found in the enquiry by the enquiry officer that they are tainted with fraud, the same can be interfered with by the State Government and its officers to pass appropriate orders. The landowners are also aggrieved parties to agitate their rights to get the orders which are obtained by the declarants as they are vitiated in law on account of nullity is the tenable submission and the same is well founded and therefore, we accept the submission to justify the impugned judgment and orderBabu Maruti Dukarev.State of Maharashtra[Babu Maruti Dukarev.State of Maharashtra, 2006 SCC OnLine Bom 1268 : (2007) 2 AIR Bom R 361] of the Division Bench of the High Court."

73. In Jai Narain Parasrampuria v. Pushpa Devi Saraf [Jai Narain Parasrampuria v. Pushpa Devi Saraf, (2006) 7 SCC 756] , this Court observed that fraud vitiates every solemn act. Any order or decree obtained by practising fraud is a nullity. This Court held as under:

"55. It is now well settled that fraud vitiates all solemn act. Any order or decree obtained by practising fraud is a nullity. [See (1)Ram Chandra Singhv.Savitri Devi[Ram Chandra Singhv.Savitri Devi, (2003) 8 SCC 319] followed in (2)Kendriya Vidyalaya Sangathanv.Girdharilal Yadav[Kendriya Vidyalaya Sangathanv.Girdharilal Yadav, (2004) 6 SCC 325 : 2005 SCC (L&S) 785] ; (3)State of A.P.v.T. 74. In State of A.P. v. T. Suryachandra Rao [State of A.P. v. T. Suryachandra Rao, (2005) 6 SCC 149] , it was observed that where the land which was offered for surrender had already been acquired by the State and the same had vested in it. It was held that merely because an enquiry was made, the Tribunal was not divested of the power to correct the error when the respondent had clearly committed a fraud. Following observations were made :

"7. The order of the High Court is clearly erroneous.There is no dispute that the land which was offered for surrender by the respondent had already been acquired by the State and the same had vested in it. This was clearly a case of fraud. Merely because an enquiry was made, the Tribunal was not divested of the power to correct the error when the respondent had clearly committed a fraud.

8. By "fraud" is meant an intention to deceive; whether it is from any expectation of advantage to the party himself or from ill-will towards the other is immaterial. The expression "fraud" involves two elements, deceit and injury to the person deceived. Injury is something other than economic loss, that is, deprivation of property, whether movable or immovable or of money and it will include any harm whatever caused to any person in body, mind, reputation or such others. In short, it is a non-economic or non-pecuniary loss. A benefit or advantage to the deceiver, will almost always cause loss or detriment to the deceived. Even in those rare cases where there is a benefit or advantage to the deceiver, but no corresponding loss to the deceived, the second condition is satisfied. [SeeVimlav.Delhi Admn.[Vimlav.Delhi Admn., 1963 Supp (2) SCR 585 : AIR 1963 SC 1572 : (1963) 2 Cri LJ 434] andIndian Bankv.Satyam Fibres (India) (P) Ltd.[Indian Bankv.Satyam Fibres (India) (P) Ltd., (1996) 5 SCC 550]]

9. A "fraud" is an act of deliberate deception with the design of securing something by taking unfair advantage of another. It is a deception in order to gain by another's loss. It is a cheating intended to get an advantage. (SeeS.P. Chengalvaraya Naiduv.Jagannath[S.P. Chengalvaraya Naiduv.Jagannath, (1994) 1 SCC 1] .)

10. "Fraud" as is well known vitiates every solemn act. Fraud and justice never dwell together. Fraud is a conduct either by letter or words, which includes the other person or authority to take a definite determinative stand as a response to the conduct of the former either by words or letter. It is also well settled that misrepresentation itself amounts to fraud. Indeed, innocent misrepresentation may also give reason to claim relief against fraud. A fraudulent misrepresentation is called deceit and consists in leading a man into damage by wilfully or recklessly causing him to believe and act on falsehood. It is a fraud in law if a party makes representations, which he knows to be false, and injury enures therefrom although the motive from which the representations proceeded may not have been bad. An act of fraud on court is always viewed seriously. A collusion or conspiracy with a view to deprive the rights of the others in relation to a property would render the transaction void ab initio. Fraud and deception are synonymous. Although in a given case a deception may not amount to fraud, fraud is an anathema to all equitable principles and any affair tainted with fraud cannot be perpetuated or saved by the application of any equitable doctrine including res judicata. 14. Suppression of a material document would also amount to a fraud on the court. (Gowrishankar v. Joshi Amba Shankar Family Trust [Gowrishankar v. Joshi Amba Shankar Family Trust, (1996) 3 SCC 310] and S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu v.

15. "Fraud" is a conduct either by letter or words, which induces the other person or authority to take a definite determinative stand as a response to the conduct of the former either by words or letter. Although negligence is not fraud but it can be evidence of fraud; as observed in Ram Preeti Yadav [Ram Preeti Yadav v. U.P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education, (2003) 8 SCC 311] .

16. In Lazarus Estates Ltd. v. Beasley [Lazarus Estates Ltd. v. Beasley, (1956) 1 QB 702 : (1956) 2 WLR 502 : (1956) 1 All ER 341 (CA)] , Lord Denning observed at QB pp. 712 and 713 : (All ER p. 345 C)

'No judgment of a court, no order of a minister can be allowed to stand if it has been obtained by fraud. Fraud unravels everything.'

In the same judgment, Lord Parker, L.J. observed that fraud 'vitiates all transactions known to the law of however high a degree of solemnity' (All ER p. 351 E-F)."

34. The Apex Court in the case of A.V. Papayya Sastry v. Govt. of A.P., (2007) 4 SCC 221 has observed as under :-

"21. Now, it is well-settled principle of law that if any judgment or order is obtained by fraud, it cannot be said to be a judgment or order in law. Before three centuries, Chief Justice Edward Coke proclaimed:

"Fraud avoids all judicial acts, ecclesiastical or temporal."

35. The Apex Court in the case of A.V. Papayya Sastry v. Govt. of A.P., (2007) 4 SCC 221 has held as under :

"22.It is thus settled proposition of law that a judgment, decree or order obtained by playing fraud on the court, tribunal or authority is a nullity and non est in the eye of the law. Such a judgment, decree or order—by the first court or by the final court—has to be treated as nullity by every court, superior or inferior. It can be challenged in any court, at any time, in appeal, revision, writ or even in collateral proceedings.

23. In the leading case of Lazarus Estates Ltd. v. Beasley [(1956) 1 All ER 341] Lord Denning observed :

"No judgment of a court, no order of a Minister, can be allowed to stand if it has been obtained by fraud."

24. In Duchess of Kingstone, Smith's Leading Cases, 13th Edn., p. 644, explaining the nature of fraud, de Grey, C.J. stated that though a judgment would be res judicata and not impeachable from within, it might be impeachable from without. In other words, though it is not permissible to show that the court was "mistaken", it might be shown that it was "misled". There is an essential distinction between mistake and trickery. The clear implication of the distinction is that an action to set aside a judgment cannot be brought on the ground that it has been decided wrongly, namely, that on the merits, the decision was one which should not have been rendered, but it can be set aside, if the court was imposed upon or tricked into giving the judgment.

25.It has been said : fraud and justice never dwell together (fraus et jus nunquam cohabitant); or fraud and deceit ought to benefit none (fraus et dolus nemini patrocinari debent).

26.Fraud may be defined as an act of deliberate deception with the design of securing some unfair or undeserved benefit by taking undue advantage of another. In fraud one gains at the loss of another. Even most solemn proceedings stand vitiated if they are actuated by fraud. Fraud is thus an extrinsic collateral act which vitiates all judicial acts, whether in rem or in personam. The principle of "finality of litigation" cannot be stretched to the extent of an absurdity that it can be utilised as an engine of oppression by dishonest and fraudulent litigants.

27. In S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu v. Jagannath [(1994) 1 SCC 1] this Court had an occasion to consider the doctrine of fraud and the effect thereof on the judgment obtained by a party. In that case, one A by a registered deed, relinquished all his rights in the suit property in favour of C who sold the property to B. Without disclosing that fact, A filed a suit for possession against B and obtained preliminary decree. During the pendency of an application for final decree, B came to know about the fact of release deed by A in favour of C. He, therefore, contended that the decree was obtained by playing fraud on the court and was a nullity. The trial court upheld the contention and dismissed the application. The High Court, however, set aside the order of the trial court, observing that "there is no legal duty cast upon the plaintiff to come to court with a true case and prove it by true evidence". B approached this Court.

28. Allowing the appeal, setting aside the judgment of the High Court and describing the observations of the High Court as "wholly perverse", Kuldip Singh, J. stated :

"The courts of law are meant for imparting justice between the parties. One who comes to the court, must come with clean hands. We are constrained to say that more often than not, process of the court is being abused. Property grabbers, tax-evaders, bank-loan-dodgers and other unscrupulous persons from all walks of life find the court process a convenient lever to retain the illegal gains indefinitely.We have no hesitation to say that a person, whose case is based on falsehood, has no right to approach the court. He can be summarily thrown out at any stage of the litigation."

36. The factual matrix of the present case is no longer in dispute, considering the manner in which the mutation was carried out in favour of Ramnaresh, and these facts have been duly brought forth in the report submitted to this Court by the Principal Secretary (Revenue), Government of U.P where it is clear that the land situated at Gata No. 521 was declared surplus, and was allotted in favour of Kishore. Ramnaresh was the concerned Lekhpal, who was also a signatory to the said Patta. Thereafter the revenue records were manipulated and without there being any order of any competent authority the name of Kishore was deleted and in its place name of Ramnaresh was entered. The entire subsequent proceedings in favour of Ramnaresh were made on the basis of the forged revenue entry . The matter becomes more alarming when it has been informed that subsequent to an enquiry having been conducted, when the said forgery came to be known an enquiry was conducted by the Paragana Adhikari and orders were passed for rectification of the said entry, the order was not complied in the entry and the name of Ramnaresh continued on records. This depicts a sorry state of affairs, orders of the Superior are not complied with and no action is taken till a judicial note of the same is taken. It is only when this court had directed an enquiry to be conducted by the principal Secretary, Revenue after passage of much time, that the enquiry got conducted.

37. The golden thread of fraud is found in the entire action of Ramnaresh (Lekhpal). He himself got his name included in the revenue records illegal and unauthorizedly. The said mutation was not only without jurisdiction, there was no semblance of any legality, nor was any order passed for mutating the name of Ramnaresh in place of Kishore, who resisted compliance of the order of the Chief Revenue Officer when directions were issued for deletion of his name and restoration of the name of Kishore. The aforesaid facts clearly indicate active connivance and indulgence of Ramnaresh in the aforesaid acts of fraud and manipulation in the revenue records.

38. Applying the principles enunciated by the Supreme Court in the judgements referred to herein above, it is thus settled proposition of law that a judgment, decree or order obtained by playing fraud on the Court, Tribunal or Authority is a nullity and non est in the eye of the law. Such a judgment, decree or order—by the first Court or by the final Court—has to be treated as nullity by every Court, superior or inferior. It can be challenged in any Court, at any time, in appeal, revision, writ or even in collateral proceedings. There is no doubt that all the orders passed in favour of Ramnaresh were obtained by playing fraud upon the authorities at each stage, and accordingly all the orders deserve to be set aside, restoring the land in favour of Kishore and his successors.

39. In light of the aforesaid discussions, the the impugned orders dated 21.06.2011, 16.07.2011, 25.07.2011 passed by the Additional Commissioner, Devi Patan Division, Gonda as well as orders dated 31.10.1996 and 04.08.1997 passed by the Prescribed Authority, are hereby set aside.

40. The writ petition is accordingly allowed with cost of Rs.50,000/- to be paid by respondent nos. 5 and 6 to the petitioner. Let the said amount be paid within two months failing which the same shall be recovered as arrears of land revenue by District Magistrate, Gonda from respondent Nos. 5 and 6 and be paid to the petitioner.
