21. Before proceeding to examine the rival contention of the learned Counsel for the parties, it would be appropriate to have a look at Section 362 Cr.P.C., which provides as follows: -

"362. Court not to alter judgment. - Save as otherwise provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being in force, no Court, when it has signed its judgment or final order disposing of a case, shall alter or review the same except to correct a clerical or arithmetical error."

(emphasis added)

22. A bare perusal of the aforesaid statutory provision makes it manifest that the bar contained in Section 362 Cr.P.C. is only against alteration or review of a judgment or final order disposing of a case.

23. Section 362 falls in Chapter XVII Cr.P.C., which contains Sections 353 to 365. Section 353 falling in Chapter XXVII Cr.P.C. defines the term "judgment" as follows: -

"353. Judgment - (1) The judgment in every trial in any Criminal Court of original jurisdiction shall be pronounced in open Court by the presiding officer immediately after the termination of the trial or at some subsequent time of which notice shall be given to the parties or their pleaders,"

(a) by delivering the whole of the judgment; or
(b) by reading out the whole of the judgment; or

(c) by reading out the operative part of the judgment and explaining the substance of the judgment in a language which is understood by the accused or his pleader.

(2) Where the judgment is delivered under clause (a) of sub-section (1), the presiding officer shall cause it to be taken down in short-hand, sign the transcript and every page thereof as soon as it is made ready, and write on it the date of the delivery of the judgment in open Court.

(3) Where the judgment or the operative part thereof is read out under clause (b) or clause (c) of sub-section (1), as the case may be, it shall be dated and signed by the presiding officer in open Court, and if it is not written with his own hand, every page of the judgment shall be signed by him.

(4) Where the judgment is pronounced in the manner specified in clause (c) of sub-section (1), the whole judgment or a copy thereof shall be immediately made available for the perusal of the parties or their pleaders free of cost.

(5) If the accused is in custody, he shall be brought up to hear the judgment pronounced.

(6) If the accused is not in custody, he shall be required by the Court to attend to hear the judgment pronounced, except where his personal attendance during the trial has been dispensed with and the sentence is one of fine only or he is acquitted:

Provided that, where there are more accused than one, and one or more of them do not attend the Court on the date on which the judgment is to be pronounced, the presiding officer may, in order to avoid undue delay in the disposal of the case, pronounce the judgment notwithstanding their absence.

(7) No judgment delivered by any Criminal Court shall be deemed to be invalid by reason only of the absence of any party or his pleader on the day or from the place notified for the delivery thereof, or of any omission to serve, or defect in serving, on the parties or their pleaders, or any of them, the notice of such day and place.

(8) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit in any way the extent of the provisions of Section 465.

24. Sections 356, 357, 357-A, 357-B, 357-C, 358, 359 and 360 falling in Chapter XXVII Cr.P.C. refer to certain orders, which are in the nature of final orders referred to in Section 362 Cr.P.C. The final orders mentioned in various Sections of Chapter XXVII Cr.P.C. do not contain an order allowing a bail application.

25. Section 362 Cr.P.C. bars alteration or review of a judgment or final order disposing of a case, which include a judgment mentioned in Section 353 CrP.C. or a final order mentioned in Sections 356, 357, 357-A, 357-B, 357-C, 358, 359 or 360 Cr.P.C. falling in Chapter XXVII Cr.P.C. An order for release of the applicant on bail is neither a judgment nor a final order disposing off a case, rather it is an interlocutory order.

26. In Amar Nath v. State of Haryana: (1977) 4 SCC 137, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"6....The term "interlocutory order" is a term of well-known legal significance and does not present any serious difficulty. It has been used in various statutes including the Code of Civil Procedure, Letters Patent of the High Courts and other like statutes. In Webster's New World Dictionary- "interlocutory" has been defined as an order other than final decision. Decided cases have laid down that interlocutory orders to be appealable must be those which decide the rights and liabilities of the parties concerning a particular aspect. It seems to us that the term interlocutory order in Section 397(2) of the 1973 Code has been used in a restricted sense and not in any broad or artistic sense. It merely denotes orders of a purely interim or temporary nature which do not decide or touch the important rights or the liabilities of the parties. Any order which substantially affects the right of the accused, or decides certain rights of the parties cannot be said to be an interlocutory order so as to bar a revison to the High Court against that order, because that would be against the very object which formed the basis for insertion of this particular provision in Section 397 of the 1973 Code. Thus, for instance, orders summoning witnesses, adjourning cases, passing orders for bail, calling for reports and such other steps in aid of the pending proceeding, may no doubt amount to interlocutory orders against which no revision would lie under Section 397(2) of the 1973 Code. But orders which are matters of moment and which affect or adjudicate the rights of the accused or a particular aspect of the trial cannot be said to be interlocutory order so as to be outside the purview of the revisional jurisdiction of the High Court."

27. The aforesaid judgment was followed by a Bench consisting of four Hon'ble Judges of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in V. C. Shukla v. State through CBI: 1980 Supp SCC 92. The judgment in the case of V.C. Shukla (supra) was followed in Usmanbhai Dawoodbhai Memon v. State of Gujarat: (1988) 2 SCC 271, in which the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:-

"24. In V.C. Shukla v. State [1980 Supp SCC 92], Fazal Ali, J. in delivering the majority judgment reviewed the entire case law on the subject and deduced therefrom the following two principles, namely, (i) that a final order has to be interpreted in contradistinction to an interlocutory order; and (ii) that the test for determining the finality of an order is whether the judgment or order finally disposed of the rights of the parties. It was observed that these principles apply to civil as well as to criminal cases. In criminal proceedings, the word "judgment" is intended to indicate the final order in a trial terminating in the conviction or acquittal of the accused. Applying these tests, it was held that an order framing a charge against an accused was not a final order but an interlocutory order within the meaning of Section 11(1) of the Special Courts Act, 1979 and therefore not appealable. It cannot be doubted that the grant or refusal of a bail application is essentially an interlocutory order. There is no finality to such an order for an application for bail can always be renewed from time to time.

28. In Ramadhar Sahu Vs. The State of Madhya Pradesh Criminal Appeal No. 3223 of 2023 arising from SLP (Crl.) No. 11130/2023, the Appellant was in pre-trial custody on allegation of committing embezzlement of Rs. 1,44,00,000/-. An order was passed by the High Court on 28.04.2022 allowing the Appellant's prayer for bail after recording that he had volunteered to deposit a sum of Rs. 65,92,460/-. The said order carried the condition that the Appellant had to deposit Rs. 10,00,000/- before the Trial Court and Rs. 55,92,460/- was to be deposited under protest within a period of three months from the date of his release. The Appellant was released on bail on deposit of Rs. 10,00,000/-. He failed to deposit the remaining amount and surrendered on 24.07.2023. He applied for bail again mainly citing release of a co-accused by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. The said co-accused had also been released on bail by the High Court on his willingness to deposit certain sum of money but later on failed to make such deposit. The Appellant sought parity with the co-accused in the application which was rejected by the High Court holding that in the event the High Court granted bail to the Appellant without compliance of the conditions specified in the earlier order of a Coordinate Bench, that would constitute modification of the order and Section 362 of the Code prohibits such modification of a judgment or final order. While allowing the appeal and setting aside the order of the High Court, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"5. An order for refusal of bail however, inherently carries certain characteristics of an interlocutory order in that certain variation or alteration in the context in which a bail plea is dismissed confers on the detained Accused right to file a fresh application for bail on certain changed circumstances. Thus, an order rejecting prayer for bail does not disempower the Court from considering such plea afresh if there is any alteration of the circumstances. Conditions of bail could also be varied if a case is made out for such variation based on that factor. Prohibition contemplated in Section 362 of the Code would not apply in such cases. Hence, we do not think the reasoning on which the impugned order was passed rejecting the Appellant's application of bail can be sustained...

29. In Jagdish Arora versus Union of India: 2022:MPHC-JBP:15286-DB, a Division Bench of Madhya Pradesh High Court consisting of Hon□ble Mr. Justice Sheel Nagu and Hon□ble Mr. Justice Maninder Singh Bhatti held that:-

"8.1. It is also settled that grant of bail is a rule whereas its denial is an exception. Once bail is granted subject to certain conditions by the High Court u/S. 439(1)(a) of Cr.P.C. as is the case herein, the power to modify or delete the conditions subject to which bail is granted, is also inherently vested with the High Court.

8.2. The power of amending or deleting any condition, subject to which bail order u/S. 439(1)(a) of Cr.P.C. is granted, is however not expressly provided in Cr.P.C. Thus, the only course available for seeking and granting modification/deletion of such a condition is by invoking the inherent powers of this Court u/S. 482 of Cr.P.C. to ensure the ends of justice.

8.3. Section 482 of Cr.P.C. saves inherent powers of this Court to be exercised inter alia to secure the ends of justice. The ends of justice can only be secured when in absence of any express provision this Court is not prevented from deleting/modifying any of the conditions subject to which an order of bail u/S. 439(1)(a) of Cr.P.C. is passed. If such inherent powers are otherwise not available to this Court u/S. 482 of Cr.P.C., then object of insertion of Section 482 of Cr.P.C. would stand defeated and this Court would be rendered a toothless tiger.

9. The Legislature while enacting the Code of Criminal Procedure could never have approved a situation where this superior Court is handicapped to exercise its inherent powers to modify/delete a condition imposed u/S. 439(1)(a) of Cr.P.C. despite existence of compelling circumstances merely because of absence of enabling provision in the Cr.P.C.

9.1. The object behind bestowing inherent powers in this Court is to do complete justice and to prevent miscarriage of justice. The inherent powers are saved with this Court to be exercised in such circumstances where cause for doing complete justice or preventing failure of justice exists, but there is no express provision in Cr.P.C. As such Constitutional Courts are saved with such inherent powers to do complete justice without being inhibited or disabled by absence of enabling provision."

30. The judgment in the case of Jagdish Arora (supra) has been followed by a coordinate Bench of this Court in Vinod Kumar Sharma Vs. C.B.I.: 2023:AHC:228832 = 2023 (12) ADJ 743.

31. Vivek Yadav and another versus State of U.P. and another: is a judgment dated 21.02.2024 given by this Court rejecting I.A. No. 03 of 2024 filed in Criminal Miscellaneous Anticipatory Bail Application No. 1224 of 2023 which already stood decided on 23.05.2023. This Court had rejected the I.A. filed in the decided Anticipatory Bail Application leaving it open to the applicant to file a fresh application under Section 482 Cr.P.C.

32. In Aparna Purohit Vs. State of U.P., Application under Section 482 No. 6022 of 2022, decided on 02.11.2022, a coordinate Bench of this court has held that: -

"34. The law cited herein before would reveal that under Section 438 and 439 Cr.P.C. the Sessions Court or the High Court may grant anticipatory bail or regular bail to the accused persons in appropriate cases. Both under Section 438 (U.P. Amendment) as well as under Section 439 Cr.P.C. reasonable conditions may be imposed in order to secure fair trial. The Judge or in the case of the High Court, the Bench after final disposal of the bail or anticipatory bail as the case may be becomes Functus Officio and nothing remained pending before the Bench as the rights have been finally adjudicated. Section 439(2) Cr.P.C. provides that a person released on bail by the High Court or by the Court of Sessions may be committed to custody. However, this power of High Court or the Sessions Court is conferred on account of the happening of subsequent events like the accused not obeying the conditions of Bail, etc. However, if any person is aggrieved by the order of grant of bail, he or she will have to approach the superior court for cancellation of that order and the same could not be moved or cancelled by the same court by virtue of bar contained under Section 362 Cr.P.C.

33. Sri. Aakash Prasad, the learned Counsel for the CBI has submitted that the judgments in the cases of Vinod Kumar Sharma and Vivek Yadav (supra) are per incuriam judgments, as the same do not take into consideration the judgment of a coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Aparna Purohit Vs. State of U.P., Application under Section 482 No. 6022 of 2022. I am unable to accept this submission for the reason that the coordinate Bench has decided Aparna Purohit (supra), Application under Section 482 No. 6022 of 2022, without noticing the definition of the term "judgment" given in Section 353 Cr.P.C., and the final orders defined in Sections 356 to 360 Cr.P.C., and without noticing the judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court referred to above holding that the orders granting bail are merely interlocutory orders and these cannot be termed as judgments or final orders disposing of a case. Therefore, the judgment in the case of Aparna Purohit (supra) is a per incuriam judgment and it is not a binding precedent. The judgments in the cases of Vinod Kumar Sharma and Vivek Yadav (supra) given ignoring the per incuriam judgment in the case of Aparna Purohit (supra), cannot be termed as per incuriam judgments.

34. Thus, there remains no room to doubt the proposition that an order granting bail is a merely an interlocutory order and it would not fall withing the scope and ambit of the phrase "a judgment or final order disposing of a case" used in Section 362 Cr.P.C. Therefore, the bar contained in Section 362 Cr.P.C will not apply to alteration of a condition put in an order granting bail to an accused person. The preliminary objection raised by the learned Counsel for the respondent CBI is rejected accordingly.

35. Now, I proceed to examine the merits of the claim for relaxation of the condition of depositing a sum of Rs.64,00,000/- in the form of a fixed deposit in a nationalized bank in favour of the Airports Authority of India put in the bail order dated 19.12.2013.

36. Sumit Mehta v. State (NCT of Delhi): (2013) 15 SCC 570, was an appeal directed against the order passed by the Delhi High Court whereby while granting anticipatory bail to the appellant in a case registered against him for the offences punishable under Sections 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC, directed him to deposit an amount of Rs 1,00,00,000 (one crore) in fixed deposit in the name of the complainant in any nationalised bank and to keep the FDR with the investigating officer. The Hon'ble Supreme Court set aside the aforesaid condition holding that: -

"14. Thus, in the case on hand, fixed deposit of Rs 1,00,00,000 for a period of six months in the name of the complainant and to keep the FDR with the investigating officer as a condition precedent for grant of anticipatory bail is evidently onerous and unreasonable. It must be remembered that the court has not even come to the conclusion whether the allegations made are true or not which can only be ascertained after completion of trial. Certainly, in no words are we suggesting that the power to impose a condition of this nature is totally excluded, even in cases of cheating, electricity pilferage, white-collar crimes or chit fund scams, etc.

15. The words □any condition□ used in the provision should not be regarded as conferring absolute power on a court of law to impose any condition that it chooses to impose. Any condition has to be interpreted as a reasonable condition acceptable in the facts permissible in the circumstance and effective in the pragmatic sense and should not defeat the order of grant of bail.

We are of the view that the present facts and circumstances of the case do not warrant such extreme condition to be imposed."

37. In Dilip Singh v. State of M.P.: (2021) 2 SCC 779, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"4. It is well settled by a plethora of decisions of this Court that criminal proceedings are not for realisation of disputed dues. It is open to a court to grant or refuse the prayer for anticipatory bail, depending on the facts and circumstances of the particular case. The factors to be taken into consideration, while considering an application for bail are the nature of accusation and the severity of the punishment in the case of conviction and the nature of the materials relied upon by the prosecution; reasonable apprehension of tampering with the witnesses or apprehension of threat to the complainant or the witnesses; reasonable possibility of securing the presence of the accused at the time of trial or the likelihood of his abscondence; character, behaviour and standing of the accused; and the circumstances which are peculiar or the accused and larger interest of the public or the State and similar other considerations. A criminal court, exercising jurisdiction to grant bail/anticipatory bail, is not expected to act as a recovery agent to realise the dues of the complainant, and that too, without any trial."

38. Again, in Gajanan Dattatray Gore v. State of Maharashtra: 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1571, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"15. We have noticed over a period of time that orders of regular bail and anticipatory bail are being passed by different High Courts subject to deposit of some amount.

16. We have come across cases like the one in hand where accused persons have gone to the extent of filing affidavits in the form of undertaking that they would deposit a particular amount within a particular period and then conveniently resile from such undertakings saying it is an onerous condition.

17. In some cases, perhaps the accused may abide by such undertaking, but our experience so far has been that in many cases the accused later would not abide and flout the undertaking. In many cases it would be argued on behalf of the accused that he had never made such a statement and the court on its own had recorded in the order that the accused is ready and willing to deposit a particular amount. At times the entire blame is thrown on the lawyer in making such statement for the purpose of obtaining order of bail or anticipatory bail as the case may be. In such circumstances, the concerned court would be left with no other option but to cancel the bail either at the instance of the State or the original complainant.

18. The case in hand is one in which the appellant on his own free will and volition filed an affidavit in the form of an undertaking before the High Court that he would deposit an amount of Rs. 25,00,000/- but ultimately resiled to do so and the High Court had to cancel the bail. It was too much for the lawyer of the appellant to argue before the High Court that asking his client to deposit Rs. 25,00,000/- was unreasonable. It reflects on the professional ethics.

19. By this order, we make it clear and that too in the form of directions that henceforth no Trial Court or any of the High Courts shall pass any order of grant of regular bail or anticipatory bail on any undertaking that the accused might be ready to furnish for the purpose of obtaining appropriate reliefs.

20. The High Courts as well as the Trial Courts shall decide the plea for regular bail or anticipatory bail strictly on the merits of the case. The High Courts and the Trial Courts shall not exercise their discretion in this regard on any undertaking or any statement that the accused may be ready and willing to make.

21. This practice has to be stopped. Litigants are taking the courts for a ride and thereby undermining the dignity and honor of the court.

22. We hope and trust that the High Courts as well as the Trial Courts across the country do not commit the same mistake again.

39. The condition of deposit of Rs.64,00,000/- in a fixed deposit in the name of Airports Authority of India put in the bail order dated 19.12.2013, without even recording a prima facie satisfaction regarding guilt of the applicant, is an unreasonably onerous condition and putting such conditions in the bail orders has been deprecated and prohibited by the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Moreover, the FIR was lodged in the year 2013, the prosecution sanction order in respect of co-accused government servants already stands quashed, the trial is not proceeding and the trial court has consigned the file to record room after closing the proceedings, without conclusion of trial. The condition of deposit of passport put in the bail order has already been recalled by means of order dated 25.10.2024, passed by a coordinate Bench of this court in a petition under Section 482 No.9674 of 2024. Meanwhile, the petitioner has attained an advanced age of 77 years. He is being deprived of the benefit of his own money, which is lying deposited in a fixed deposit in compliance of the bail order dated 9.12.2013, passed in Bail Application No.7625 of 2013 which was for the period till the conclusion of the trial and as the trial is not proceeding, there is no hope of its conclusion at any time soon or even during the lifetime of the petitioner.

40. The learned Counsel for CBI has placed reliance on a judgment in the case of Simrikhia v. Dolley Mukherjee: (1990) 2 SCC 437, wherein earlier the High Court had rejected an application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. challenging an order of magistrate issuing process. Thereafter a second application under Section 482 filed with the same prayer was allowed by the High Court. Allowing the appeal, the Hon□ble Supreme Court held that: -

"3. The inherent power under Section 482 is intended to prevent the abuse of the process of the court and to secure ends of justice. Such power cannot be exercised to do something which is expressly barred under the Code. If any consideration of the facts by way of review is not permissible under the Code and is expressly barred, it is not for the court to exercise its inherent power to reconsider the matter and record a conflicting decision. If there had been change in the circumstances of the case, it would be in order for the High Court to exercise its inherent powers in the prevailing circumstances and pass appropriate orders to secure the ends of justice or to prevent the abuse of the process of the court. Where there is no such changed circumstances and the decision has to be arrived at on the facts that existed as on the date of the earlier order, the exercise of the power to reconsider the same materials to arrive at different conclusion is in effect a review, which is expressly barred under Section 362.

41. Thus the Hon'ble Supreme Court has expressly laid down that where there is a change in the circumstances of the case, the High Court may exercise its inherent powers in the prevailing circumstances and pass appropriate orders to secure the ends of justice or to prevent the abuse of the process of the court.

42. Regarding the objection raised by learned Counsel for the CBI that the condition is there since the year 2013 and it has been challenged belatedly, suffice it to say that the failure of the applicant to challenge the condition earlier might be for the reason that he might have had a hope of expeditious conclusion of trial and dispensation of justice. However, when the trial Court has passed an order dated 13.05.2022, stating that by means of the order dated 17.12.2021, passed in petition under Section 482 No.3274 of 2018, this High Court has quashed the prosecution sanction order passed in respect of co-accused persons Giriraj Sharma, Bhupendra Singh and Dilip Kumar and has quashed the cognizance and summoning order dated 12.11.2013 and the order dated 06.01.2018 whereby their application was rejected, it would not be proper to proceed with the matter against the accused persons and the trial court has closed the proceedings of trial till further orders and has ordered the record to be consigned, the applicant has rightly approached this Court for revocation of the aforesaid condition in view of the aforesaid factual developments and in these circumstances, the application cannot be said to have been filed after an unreasonable delay. Further, the continuance of the condition has given rise to a continuing cause of action to the applicant and for this reason also, I find no force in the objection of the learned Counsel for the CBI regarding delay in challenging the condition and I turn down this objection.

43. In Prabhu Chawla v. State of Rajasthan: (2016) 16 SCC 30, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:

"6. In our considered view any attempt to explain the law further as regards the issue relating to inherent power of the High Court under Section 482 CrPC is unwarranted. We would simply reiterate that Section 482 begins with a non obstante clause to state:

"482. Saving of inherent powers of High Court. Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order under this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice.

A fortiori, there can be no total ban on the exercise of such wholesome jurisdiction where, in the words of Krishna Iyer, J.

"abuse of the process of the court or other extraordinary situation excites the Court's jurisdiction. The limitation is self-restraint, nothing more.

44. Sri. Aakash Prasad had tried to distinguish the case of Prabhu Chawla (supra) by submitting that the aforesaid judgment has been given while comparing the powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. and the revisional powers under Section 397 Cr.P.C. I am of the view that the aforesaid passage explains the scope of Section 482 irrespective of Section 397 Cr.P.C.

45. Moreover, In Asian Resurfacing of Road Agency (P) Ltd. v. CBI: (2018) 16 SCC 299, a Bench consisting of three Hon'ble Judges of the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"52.... First and foremost, it must be appreciated that the High Courts are established by the Constitution and are courts of record which will have all powers of such courts, including the power to punish contempt of themselves (see Article 215). The High Court, being a superior court of record, is entitled to consider questions regarding its own jurisdiction when raised before it. In an instructive passage by a Constitution Bench of this Court in Powers, Privileges and Immunities of State Legislatures, In re, Special Reference No. 1 of 1964 [AIR 1965 SC 745], Gajendragadkar, C.J. held:

"138. Besides, in the case of a superior Court of Record, it is for the court to consider whether any matter falls within its jurisdiction or not. Unlike a Court of limited jurisdiction, the superior court is entitled to determine for itself questions about its own jurisdiction. "Prima facie", says Halsbury, no matter is deemed to be beyond the jurisdiction of a superior court unless it is expressly shown to be so, while nothing is within the jurisdiction of an inferior court unless it is expressly shown on the face of the proceedings that the particular matter is within the cognizance of the particular court [Halsbury's Laws of England, Vol. 9, p. 349].

54. It is thus clear that the inherent power of a court set up by the Constitution is a power that inheres in such court because it is a superior court of record, and not because it is conferred by the Code of Criminal Procedure. This is a power vested by the Constitution itself, inter alia, under Article 215 as aforestated. Also, as such High Courts have the power, nay, the duty to protect the fundamental rights of citizens under Article 226 of the Constitution, the inherent power to do justice in cases involving the liberty of the citizen would also sound in Article 21 of the Constitution.

46. The inherent powers of this Court to secure the ends of justice and prevent the abuse of the process of law do not stem from Section 482 Cr.P.C or for that matter from any other statutory provision. Such a power is an unfettered power which inheres in this Court, because this Court is a Constitutional Court and a Court of record. Section 482 Cr.P.C. does not confer the inherent powers on the High Courts, it merely provides that nothing contained in Cr.P.C. will affect the inherent powers of the High Court, which powers are inherent in the High Court by virtue of it being a Court of record as laid down under Article 215 of the Constitution. The inherent powers are powers of a wide amplitude with only self imposed restrictions, to be exercised in a suitable case to secure the ends of justice. Therefore, the jurisdiction under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is a statutory manifestation of the wider inherent powers constitutionally recognized under Article 215, to be exercised for securing the ends of justice.

47. In order to fully comprehend and effectively exercise the inherent powers of the High Court, it is pertinent to note the legislative intent and the purpose that was intended to achieved by Section 482 Cr.P.C. and Article 215 of the Constitution of India. The object behind Article 215 is to give power to the High Courts to decide their own jurisdiction, apparently to confer discretionary powers on the High Courts, to be exercised in appropriate cases in which it deems fit to invoke its powers. Without giving the power to decide its own jurisdiction the inherent powers to secure the ends of justice might become meaningless. Similarly, the words "to make such orders as may be necessary to secure the ends of justice" used in Section 482 conclude the aforesaid section in an open ended manner, the underlying object being to save the discretionary inherent powers of the High Courts to decide for itself what would be the appropriate cases in which the inherent power should be invoked. Therefore, the object behind both the provisions appears to be one i.e. to further the cause of substantial justice and undertake all such measures that may be required in this direction.

48. In M.V. Elisabeth v. Harwan Investment and Trading (P) Ltd.: 1993 Supp (2) SCC 433, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"66. The High Courts in India are superior courts of record. They have original and appellate jurisdiction. They have inherent and plenary powers. Unless expressly or impliedly barred, and subject to the appellate or discretionary jurisdiction of this Court, the High Courts have unlimited jurisdiction, including the jurisdiction to determine their own powers. (See "Naresh Shridhar Mirajkar v. State of Maharashtra [(1966) 3 SCR 744 : AIR 1967 SC 1]). As stated in Halsbury's Laws of England, 4th edn., Vol. 10, para 713:

"Prima facie, no matter is deemed to be beyond the jurisdiction of a superior court unless it is expressly shown to be so, while nothing is within the jurisdiction of an inferior court unless it is expressly shown on the face of the proceedings that the particular matter is within the cognisance of the particular court.

49. I am of the considered view that the peculiar facts of the case noted in paragraph 39 above establish that the continuance of the condition of deposit of Rs.64 lakhs put in the order dated 19.12.2013 granting bail to the applicant, is causing a failure of justice, as the amount was deposited and was to remain deposited till conclusion of the trial whereas the trial is not proceeding and the trial Court has consigned its records. While waiting for conclusion of the trial and release of his money, the applicant has attained an advanced age of 77 years. This is a fit case warranting exercise of the inherent powers of this Court so as to revoke the condition of deposit of Rs.64 Lakhs put in the order dated 19.12.2013 granting bail to the applicant.

50. In view of the foregoing discussion, the instant application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed. The condition imposed in the order dated 19.12.2013, passed in Bail Application No.7625 of 2013, directing the applicant to deposit a sum of Rs.64,00,000/- in the form of a fixed deposit in a nationalized bank in favour of the Airports Authority of India, is revoked. The amount deposited by the applicant in fixed deposit in a nationalized bank in furtherance of the aforesaid condition and the interest accrued thereon, is directed to be released in favour of the applicant within a period of thirty days from today.

51. The parties shall bear their own costs of this petition.

State of U.P. & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the applicant, named as the main accused in Case Crime No. 153 of 2026 registered under sections of B.N.S. for allegedly causing a firearm injury to informant's son, was entitled to be enlarged on anticipatory bail, having regard to the gravity and seriousness of allegations, the specific overt act attributed to him, the necessity of custodial interrogation for recovery of weapon used in the offence, and the explanation offered for delay in lodging the FIR.

Headnotes

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - ss.109, 118, 351(3) – FIR - Allegation of firearm injury - Anticipatory bail - Scope - The applicant, filed an anticipatory bail application u/s 482 B.N.S.S. in connection with Case Crime No. 153 of 2026, registered at Police Station Kotwali Orai, District Jalaun, wherein it was alleged that on 19.03.2026, the applicant, along with three unknown associates, opened fire upon the son of informant on account of a prior dispute dated 22.02.2026 relating to throwing of waste materials, resulting in firearm injuries to injured, who was initially taken to Medical College, Orai, and subsequently referred to Kanpur for further treatment, with the incident having been witnessed by informant's other son and FIR being lodged after a delay of three days, i.e., on 22.03.2026 - The applicant, contended his false implication, absence of corroboration between the ocular and medical evidence, non-explanation of delay in lodging the FIR, and non-fatal nature of injury sustained, sought the anticipatory bail, undertaking to cooperate with investigation and abide by conditions imposed, which prayer was opposed by State and opposite party no. 2 on the ground that the applicant's role was specific and grave, pellets were recovered from injured's body after surgery, and his custodial interrogation was essential for recovery of weapon used in commission of offence.

Held*:* As per the allegations put forth in FIR, serious allegations have been levelled against the applicant - The FIR was registered against him and three unknown persons on the basis of specific and categorical allegations, wherein the first informant alleged that applicant, along with his associates, caused firearm injuries to injured - Pellets were found on the person of injured - Therefore, it cannot be said that the injured did not sustain any firearm injury on his person - In view of specific overt act attributed to applicant and nature of the weapon allegedly used by him, the Court was of the view that it is not a fit case for grant of anticipatory bail - The alleged delay of three days in lodging the FIR also does not merit acceptance, as mere delay in registration of FIR does not entitle the applicant to concession of anticipatory bail, particularly in view of specific allegations and role attributed to him - The investigation is at a preliminary stage, and custodial interrogation of applicant is necessary to unearth the truth - There is no material on record to hold that a prima facie case is not made out against the applicant. The material that has come on record and preliminary investigation, appear to establish a reasonable basis for accusations - Accordingly, the anticipatory bail application dismissed. [Paras 13,14] (E-13)

From the FIR dated 22.03.2026 in Case Crime No. 153 of 2026 at Police Station Kotwali Orai, District Jalaun.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Applicant(s):
Sita Ram Nigam, Sushil Kumar

Advs. for the Opposite Party(s):
Ajay Sengar, G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Kumar Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sunil Kumar along with Sri Sushil Kumar as well as Sri Sita Ram Nigam, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Ajay Sengar, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2, Sri Mohd. Afzal, learned counsel for the State and perused the record.

2. The present application has been filed on behalf of the applicant, in Case Crime No.153 of 2026, under Sections 109 and 351(3) B.N.S. (corresponding to Sections 307 and 506 I.P.C.), Police Station - Kotwali Orai, District Jalaun, with a prayer to grant him anticipatory bail.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the First Information Report was lodged on 22.03.2026 at 21:55 hours in respect of an incident dated 19.03.2026 at 21:00 hours. The FIR was registered as Case Crime No. 153 of 2026 under Sections 109 and 351(3) of the BNS at Police Station Kotwali Orai, District Jalaun. The applicant was named in the FIR. It is alleged in the FIR that the applicant, along with three unknown persons, caused firearm injury to the son of the informant on 19.03.2026 at 9:00 p.m. The incident was witnessed by the other son of the informant. The injured was taken to Medical College, Orai, from where he was referred to Kanpur. The incident allegedly took place on account of a previous dispute between the applicant and the injured on 22.02.2026.

4. The statement of the injured was recorded by the Investigating Officer, wherein he stated that on 02.02.2026, a dispute took place between him and the applicant on account of throwing waste materials. On account of that enmity, the applicant, along with his three associates, opened fire upon the injured. He was rescued by his family members.

5. Learned counsel for the applicant submits that the applicant is absolutely innocent and has been falsely implicated in the present case. He has nothing to do with the alleged offence; in spite of that, the police are trying to arrest the applicant. It is further contended that the allegation of causing injury has been levelled against the applicant and three other co-accused. However, only a single injury was noticed on the body of the injured. There is no repetition of fire; therefore, the ocular version is not corroborated by the medical evidence. It is further contended that no offence under Section 109 of the BNS is made out against the applicant, and the offence would not travel beyond Section 118 of the BNS (corresponding to Section 324 of the IPC). It is next contended that the injuries of the injured were not dangerous to life; rather, he sustained a superficial injury. The injuries are not on a vital part of the body of the injured. It is further contended that the FIR was lodged after a delay of three days, which has not been properly explained by the prosecution, and the non-explanation of the said delay is fatal to the prosecution case. It is also contended that the prosecution has not come with clean hands. The place of the incident has been changed by the prosecution, and there is no consistency in the prosecution case. The allegations levelled against the applicant are not reliable. The applicant is ready to appear before the Investigating Officer if some protection is granted to him by this Court. It is further submitted that the custodial interrogation of the applicant is no longer required in the present matter.

6. Further submission has been made by the learned counsel for the applicant that if the applicant had intended to kill the injured, then in that circumstance, the applicant or any other person would have caused injury on the vital part of the body. Learned counsel for the applicant further submits that the applicant undertakes to cooperate during investigation and trial and shall appear as and when required by the Investigating Agency or the Court concerned. It has also been stated that, in case the applicant is granted anticipatory bail, he shall not misuse the liberty of bail, shall cooperate with the investigation, and shall abide by all the conditions that may be imposed by the Court.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for the State and learned counsel for opposite party no. 2 have opposed the application for anticipatory bail. It is contended that the main role of firing has been attributed to the applicant, and he is named in the FIR. The names of the three other culprits have come during the course of the investigation. The custodial interrogation of the applicant in the present case is very much required, inasmuch as the Investigating Officer has to recover the weapon used in the commission of the offence. It is further contended that the allegations levelled against the applicant are grave and serious in nature. There are specific and categorical allegations against the applicant to the effect that he opened fire upon the injured. Pellet injuries were found on the person of the injured, which were removed after surgery. The investigation qua the FIR in question is still going on, and the recovery of the alleged weapon has to be effected from the applicant. The custodial interrogation of the applicant is imperative for the purpose of effective and fair investigation and to unearth the case of the prosecution. It is further contended that, in case the applicant is granted the concession of anticipatory bail at this stage, it may impede the ongoing investigation.

8. I have heard the rival submissions of both sides and perused the record.

9. The applicant is the main accused, who is stated to have caused a firearm injury on the person of the injured. It has been held in various judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court that bail is a rule but jail is an exception, but so far as anticipatory bail is concerned, it ought to have been granted in exceptional cases since it is an extraordinary power.

10. In the case of Srikant Upadhyay and Others vs. State of Bihar and Another, (2024) 12 SCC 382, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the power to grant anticipatory bail is an extraordinary power. While called upon to exercise the said power, the Court has to be very cautious as the grant of interim protection or protection to the accused in serious cases may lead to miscarriage of justice. When warrant of arrest or proclamation is issued, the applicant is not entitled to invoking extraordinary power. The relevant paragraph no. 30 of Srikant Upadhyay (supra) is quoted as under:

"30. We have already held that the power to grant anticipatory bail is an extraordinary power. Though in many cases it was held that bail is said to be a rule, it cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be said that anticipatory bail is the rule. It cannot be the rule and the question of its grant should be left to the cautious and judicious discretion by the Court depending on the facts and circumstances of each case. While called upon to exercise the said power, the Court concerned has to be very cautious as the grant of interim protection or protection to the accused in serious cases may lead to miscarriage of justice and may hamper the investigation to a great extent as it may sometimes lead to tampering or distraction of the evidence. We shall not be understood to have held that the Court shall not pass an interim protection pending consideration of such application as the Section is destined to safeguard the freedom of an individual against unwarranted arrest and we say that such orders shall be passed in eminently fit cases. At any rate, when warrant of arrest or proclamation is issued, the applicant is not entitled to invoke the extraordinary power. Certainly, this will not deprive the power of the Court to grant pre-arrest bail in extreme, exceptional cases in the interest of justice. But then, person(s) continuously, defying orders and keep absconding is not entitled to such grant."

11. In the case of P. Chidambaram vs. Directorate of Enforcement, (2019) 9 SCC 24, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that arrest is a part of procedure of the investigation to secure not only the presence of the accused but several other purposes. The power under Section 438 of Cr.P.C./482 of B.N.S.S. has to be exercised sparingly. The privilege of the pre-arrest bail should not be granted only in exceptional cases. The relevant paragraph no. 69 of P. Chidambaram (supra) is reproduced as under:

"69. Ordinarily, arrest is a part of procedure of the investigation to secure not only the presence of the accused but several other purposes. Power under Section 438 Cr.P.C. is an extraordinary power and the same has to be exercised sparingly. The privilege of the pre-arrest bail should be granted only in exceptional cases. The judicial discretion conferred upon the court has to be properly exercised after application of mind as to the nature and gravity of the accusation; possibility of the applicant fleeing justice and other factors to decide whether it is a fit case for grant of anticipatory bail. Grant of anticipatory bail to some extent interferes in the sphere of investigation of an offence and hence, the court must be circumspect while exercising such power for grant of anticipatory bail. Anticipatory bail is not to be granted as a matter of rule and it has to be granted only when the court is convinced that exceptional circumstances exist to resort to that extraordinary remedy. "

12. It would be apposite to refer herein to a judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court titled as Kishor Vishwasrao Patil vs. Deepak Yashwant Patil and another, 2022 SCC OnLine SC 2528, relevant paragraph nos.14 and 15 whereof read as under:

"14.....

74. Ordinarily, arrest is a part of the process of the investigation intended to secure several purposes. There may be circumstances in which the accused may provide information leading to discovery of material facts and relevant information. Grant of anticipatory bail may hamper the investigation, Pre-arrest bail is to strike a balance between the individual's right to personal freedom and the right of the investigating agency to interrogate the accused as to the material so far collected and to collect more information which may lead to recovery of relevant information..... 6.....

75. Observing that the arrest is a part of the investigation intended to secure several purposes, in Adri Dharan Das v. State of W.B. [Adri Dharan Das v. State of W.B., (2005) 4 SCC 303: 2005 SCC (Cri) 933], it was held as under: (SCC p. 313, para 19)

"19. Ordinarily, arrest is a part of the process of investigation intended to secure several purposes. The accused may have to be questioned in detail regarding various facets of motive, preparation, commission and aftermath of the crime and the connection of other persons, if any, in the crime. There may be circumstances in which the accused may provide information leading to discovery of material facts. It may be necessary to curtail his freedom in order to enable the investigation to proceed without hindrance and to protect witnesses and persons connected with the victim of the crime, to prevent his disappearance, to maintain law and order in the locality. For these or other reasons, arrest may become an inevitable part of the process of investigation. The legality of the proposed arrest cannot be gone into in an application under Section 438 of the Code. The role of the investigator is well defined and the jurisdictional scope of interference by the court in the process of investigation is limited. The court ordinarily will not interfere with the investigation of a crime or with the arrest of the accused in a cognizable offence. An interim order restraining arrest, if passed while dealing with an application under Section 438 of the Code will amount to interference in the investigation, which cannot, at any rate, be done under Section 438 of the Code."

76. In Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre v. State of Maharashtra and Others, (2011) 1 SCC 694: (2011) 1 SCC (Cri) 514], the Supreme Court laid down the factors and parameters to be considered while dealing with anticipatory bail. It was held that the nature and the gravity of the accusation and the exact role of the accused must be properly comprehended before arrest is made and that the court must evaluate the available material against the accused very carefully. It was also held that the court should also consider whether the accusations have been made only with the object of injuring or humiliating the applicant by arresting him or her.

77. After referring to Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre [Siddharam Satlingappa Mhetre v. State of Maharashtra, (2011) 1 SCC 694: (2011) 1 SCC (Crl) 514] and other judgments and observing that anticipatory bail can be granted only in exceptional circumstances, in Jai Prakash Singh v. State of Bihar [Jai Prakash Singh v. State of Bihar, (2012) 4 SCC 379: (2012) 2 SCC (Cri) 468], the Supreme Court held as under: (SCC p. 386, para 19)

"19. Parameters for grant of anticipatory bail in a serious offence are required to be satisfied and further while granting such relief, the court must record the reasons therefor. Anticipatory bail can be granted only in exceptional circumstances where the court is prima facie of the view that the applicant has falsely been enroped in the crime and would not misuse his liberty. (See D.K. Ganesh Babu v. P.T. Manokaran [D.K.

Economic offences

78. Power under Section 438 CrPC being an extraordinary remedy, has to be exercised sparingly; more so, in cases of economic offences. Economic offences stand as a different class as they affect the economic fabric of the society. In Directorate of Enforcement v. Ashok Kumar Jain [Directorate of Enforcement v. Ashok Kumar Jain, (1998) 2 SCC 105: 1998 SCC (Cri) 510], it was held that in economic offences, the accused is not entitled to anticipatory bail."

15. In Sushila Agrawal and others v. State (NCT of Delhi) and Another reported in (2020) 5 SCC 1, Constitution Bench of this Court held that while considering an application for grant of pre-arrest bail the Court has to consider the nature of the offence, the role of the person, the likelihood of his influencing the course of investigation, or tampering with evidence or likelihood of fleeing justice. The Court held:-

"92.4. Courts ought to be generally guided by considerations such as the nature and gravity of the offences, the role attributed to the applicant, and the facts of the case, while considering whether to grant anticipatory bail, or refuse it. Whether to grant or not is a matter of discretion; equally whether and if so, what kind of special conditions are to be imposed (or not imposed) are dependent on facts of the case, and subject to the discretion of the court."

13. As per the allegations put forth in the FIR, serious allegations have been levelled against the applicant. The FIR was registered against him and three unknown persons on the basis of specific and categorical allegations, wherein the first informant alleged that the applicant, along with his associates, caused firearm injuries to the injured. Pellets were found on the person of the injured. Therefore, it cannot be said that the injured did not sustain any firearm injury on his person. In view of the specific overt act attributed to the applicant and the nature of the weapon allegedly used by him, this Court is of the view that it is not a fit case for grant of anticipatory bail. The alleged delay of three days in lodging the FIR also does not merit acceptance, as mere delay in the registration of the FIR does not entitle the applicant to the concession of anticipatory bail, particularly in view of the specific allegations and role attributed to him. The investigation is at a preliminary stage, and the custodial interrogation of the applicant is necessary to unearth the truth. Learned counsel for the applicant has failed to demonstrate that the case registered against him is false. At this stage, there is no material on record to hold that a prima facie case is not made out against the applicant. The material that has come on record and the preliminary investigation, appear to establish a reasonable basis for the accusations.

14. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, nature of allegation and role of the applicant, no case for anticipatory bail is made out. The present anticipatory bail application lacks merit and deserves to be dismissed. Accordingly, the present anticipatory bail application is dismissed.

15. Interim order, if any, stands vacated.

Appeal Under Section 37 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 No. 25 of 2025

Union of India, Ministry Of Railway & Ors. ...Appellants
Versus
Gallant Ispat Ltd. ...Respondent

Issues for Consideration

(i) What is the scope of interference by the High Court under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996?

(ii) Whether, in the facts and circumstances of the case, a "sufficient cause" was made out by the appellants for condoning the delay of 28 days within the further period of 30 days provided under the proviso to Section 34(3) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, and whether the order of the Commercial Court refusing to condone the delay warrants interference?

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Ss. 5, 34, 37 — Appeal against order under Section 34 — Scope of interference.

HELD: The primary object of the Act of 1996 is speedy and inexpensive dispute resolution with minimal Court intervention. The power under Section 37 is more circumscribed than that under Section 34; interference under Section 37 cannot travel beyond the restrictions of Section 34, and the appellate Court can neither undertake an independent assessment of the merits of the award nor interfere merely because an alternative view is possible. The appellate power under Section 37 is more akin to the power of superintendence vested in civil courts while exercising revisional powers, and is exercisable only to find out whether the Court exercising power under Section 34 acted within its limits or exceeded or failed to exercise the power so conferred. [Paras 19-23]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — S. 34(3), proviso — Condonation of delay of 28 days within extended period of thirty days — Sufficient cause — Condition precedent.

HELD: An application for setting aside an award is to be made within three months from receipt of the award; the further period of thirty days is subject to the satisfaction of the Court that the applicant was prevented by sufficient cause. Proof of sufficient cause is a condition precedent for exercise of the discretionary jurisdiction under the proviso; if sufficient cause is not proved, the matter should rest then and there. The expression "sufficient cause" is not a loose panacea for negligent and stale claims; where negligence, want of good faith or a casual approach is discernible, condonation has to be refused. [Paras 25-26, 31-32]

The award being dated 08.12.2023 and the period of three months having lapsed on 07.03.2024, the time-gaps in obtaining legal opinions, nominating counsel, and, in particular, the unexplained period of 17 days taken by the competent authority to sign and send the papers to counsel within the same city of Lucknow, after the limitation had already expired, exhibit a casual and negligent approach. The explanation is inadequate and a lame excuse, and does not constitute sufficient cause. [Paras 29-30, 39]

Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 — Ss. 18, 34(3) — Limitation Act, 1963 — S. 5 — Government entity — No preferential treatment in condonation of delay.

HELD: Different yardsticks cannot be employed for a government entity and a private body in deciding an application for condonation of delay; the law of limitation applies with equal force to both, and this understanding gathers significance in view of Section 18 of the Act of 1996, which mandates equal treatment of parties. The State or its instrumentalities cannot be accorded preferential treatment, and habitual reliance on bureaucratic red tape, procedural bottlenecks or administrative inefficiencies cannot invariably be accepted as sufficient cause. Condonation of delay is an exception and not the rule. [Paras 33-35]

Limitation — Condonation of delay — Strong case on merits — Not a ground for condonation.

HELD: An objection predicated on limitation raises a question anterior to the merits. When an application for condonation of delay is placed before the Court, the inquiry is confined to whether sufficient cause has been demonstrated; the merits of the underlying case are wholly extraneous to this inquiry, and the test of sufficient cause cannot be substituted by an examination of the case on merits. Considering merits at this stage would lead to inequitable and inconsistent application of the law and risk prejudicing the mind of the Court. [Paras 35-37]

Limitation — Condonation of delay — Exercise of discretion — Rights accrued in favour of opposite party.

HELD: A Court, while exercising its discretion to condone delay on the ground of sufficient cause, not only takes into consideration the diligence and genuineness of the cause explained, but also balances the same with the right accrued in favour of the contesting party. The Commercial Court having rightly found that the delay could not be condoned, and having also noticed that the objections were inadequately stamped and the requisite stamp was paid only on 15.02.2025, there is no ground for interference within the limited scope of Section 37. [Paras 40-42]

Appeal dismissed. No order as to costs. (E-14)

Case Arising From

Order dated 05.06.2025 passed by the Commercial Court, Lucknow, in Misc. Civil Case No. 51 of 2024 (Union of India and others v. Gallant Ispat Limited), dismissing, on the ground of limitation, the objections filed under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 against the Arbitral Award dated 08.12.2023.

Appearance for Parties

For the Appellant(s): Deepanshu Dass.

For the Respondent(s): Akash Mishra, Akber Ahmad, Gaurav Mehrotra, Utkarsh Vardhan Singh.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdhesh Kumar Chaudhary, J.)

1. By means of this appeal filed under Section 13 of the Commercial Courts Act, 2015 read along with Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 (hereinafter referred to as the 'Act of 1996') the appellants-Union of India, through Ministry of Railways have sought to interdict the impugned order dated 05.06.2025 passed by the learned Commercial Court, Lucknow in Misc. Civil Case No.51 of 2024 (Union of India and others Vs. Gallant Ispat Limited) by virtue of which the objections filed by the Appellants under Section 34 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 against the Arbitral Award dated 08.12.2023, was dismissed on the sole ground of Limitation.

2. Briefly stated, the facts essential for the purposes of adjudication of the present Appeal would be that the respondent having an integrated steel plant situated at Tehsil- Sahjanwa, District-Gorakhpur required a private railway siding for movement of raw material from railway station-Sahjanwa towards its Unit. The Respondent for that purpose required land admeasuring about 7702.07 square meters from the Appellant-railways on lease rent/ license fee.

3. Initially, the appellant-Railway Authorities fixed lease rent for an amount of Rs.15,87,527/- per year. However, the respondent realizing that the lease rent allegedly to be excessive, sought reduction of the same and ultimately the appellant-Railway Authorities fixed the lease rent taking into account 3660 sq mt. of the land in village Luchai to be non-agricultural (residential) and 4502 sq. mt. of the land in village Domhermafi to be agricultural and, as such, reduced the lease rent to Rs.9,60,684/- per year for use of the aforesaid land by the respondent-company.

4. Accordingly, an agreement was entered into between the appellant-Railway Authorities and the respondent-company on 16.06.2010 and an amount of Rs.9,60,684/- was also deposited by the respondent.

5. On expiry of tenure of the aforesaid agreement, a new agreement was proposed by the appellant-Railway Authorities on 02.06.2016 in which lease rent was enhanced to Rs.13,47,409/- with 7% service tax per year.

6. However, the aforesaid proposed enhancement of lease rent did not go well with the respondent-company and as such they started agitating the said enhancement and demanded reduction of the lease rent, resulting into dispute between the parties. Since the agreement contained an arbitration clause, the Respondent-company proposed for resolution of its dispute, primarily seeking for fixing of lease rent towards the lower end, through the mechanism of Arbitration.

7. Apparently, the parties failed to reach a common ground for appointment of a Sole Arbitrator and as such on an application filed under Section 11 of the Act of 1996, this Court intervened and a Sole Arbitrator came to be appointed by this Court vide an order 07.04.2022 passed in Civil Misc. Arbitration Application No. 22 of 2021 (Gallant Ispat Limited V/s Union of India, Ministry of railways, New Delhi).

8. The learned Arbitrator entered into reference and after considering the claims, counter-claims and documents relied upon by the parties, passed an Award dated December 08, 2023 wherein the claim of the respondent-Gallant was allowed. The learned Arbitrator in the said Award directed the appellant-Railway Authorities for revision of the lease rent to Rs.1,23,300/- annually and also directed for refund of Rs.1,79,26,701/- with 8% interest on the amount already paid in excess.

9. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid Arbitral Award dated December, 08, 2023 the appellant-Railway Authorities filed application U/s 34 of the Act of 1996 before the competent Commercial Court, which was registered as Misc. Civil Case No.51 of 2024. Apparently, since there was a delay of 28 days in filing the said objection, an application for condonation of delay in terms of proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act of 1996 was also filed by the appellant-Railway Authorities.

10. The learned Commercial Court after considering the submission of the parties, did not find any sufficient cause having been explained by the Appellant-Railway seeking to condone the delay. Thus, the said Application under Section 34(3) of the Act of 1996 seeking condonation of delay was dismissed and consequently the objection itself filed against the impugned Award U/s 34 of the Act of 1996 was also rejected vide the impugned order dated 05.06.2025.

11. Being aggrieved by the aforesaid impugned order dated 05.06.2025 passed by the learned Commercial Court, the appellant-Railway Authorities have preferred the present appeal under section 13 of the Commercial Court Act, 2015 r/w Section-37 of the Arbitration & Conciliation Act, 1996.

12. Sri Deepanshu Dass, the learned Central Government Counsel led the arguments for and on behalf of the Appellant-railways. He would submit that it was neither legal nor proper for the learned Commercial Court to not have condoned the delay of only 28 days in filing the objections to the Award under Section 34 of the Act. He would submit that the said delay of 28 days was within the permissible limit of 30 days as has been permitted by the proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act. According to him, the delay of 28 days was well explainable and was primarily because of administrative exigency, which has been particularly explained in the affidavit filed in support of the Application seeking condonation of delay in preferring the Objections under Section 34 of the Act. The learned counsel has also strenuously tried to highlight that the Appellant as being a government entity may be given concession in Condoning delay in contrast to a private entity, as government entities are engaged in various statutory functionality and administrative delay in processing of an application is a known procedural bottleneck for causing delay in all government departments.

13. The learned counsel has further submitted that the appellants have a good case on merits and the law of limitation cannot eclipse their meritorious submission in the present Appeal. Mr. Dass went on to explain that the law of limitation being basically a procedural law and a hand-maid of substantive law should not be allowed to over awe the merits of the present case. Highlighting the merits of the present appeal, the learned Counsel has tried to impress upon this Court that in a given case, on merits, a liberal approach has to be adopted for condoning the delay.

14. Rival submissions were made by Mr. Gaurav Mehrotra, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Respondent-company. According to the learned Senior Counsel, no doubt the delay of 28 days is within the permissible limit of 30 days, however, the law remains that any delay within this permissible limit of 30 days is allowed only in case of 'sufficient cause' having been explained by the Appellant. Mr. Mehrotra after reading the proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act, took this Court on a voyage to the contents of the Affidavit filed by the Appellants in support of their Application seeking condonation of delay, to buttress his submission that neither any plausible nor any cogent grounds for delay have been mentioned therein, which could be qualified to be termed as 'sufficient cause' within the meaning of proviso to section 34(3) of the Act. The learned Senior Counsel has relied on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Basawaraj Vs Land Acquisition Officer, reported in (2013) 14 SCC 81; to fortify his stand that the 'sufficient cause' mentioned in Proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act, would mean that the party ought not to have acted in a negligent manner. It has been submitted that the Appellants had miserably failed to explain and provide adequate reasons which prevented them from approaching this Court within the period of limitation, so that this Court would take an informed decision in exercising its discretion in condoning the delay of 28 days within the permissible limit of 30 days.

15. Thus, according to Mr. Mehrotra, the minimum threshold for triggering this Court or the learned Commercial Court for consideration of the delay application of the Appellants having been not met, the application for delay was rightly rejected vide the impugned order. The learned Senior Counsel has vehemently submitted that merely because the Appellant is a State, no special concession can be accorded in condonation of delay in commercial matters on the ground of administrative bottle-necks. He would submit that the state as a litigating party has to be treated equally with a private party and put to equal terms while considering condonation of delay Application. The Learned Sr. Counsel referred to the judgments passed by the following judgment of the Supreme Court to buttress his aforesaid submission. (i) Government of Maharashtra (Water Resources Department) represented by Executive Engineer V/s M/S Borse Brothers Engineers & Contractors Pvt. Limited reported in (2021) 6 SCC 460; (ii) State of Madhya Pradesh V/s Bherulal, reported in (2020) 10 SCC 654; (iii) The State of Madhya Pradesh & Anr. V/s Chaitram Maywade, reported in (2020) 10 SCC 667; and (iv) a judgment dated 14.05.2019 passed in (Special Appeal Defective No. 188 of 2019) by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of State of U.P. v. Succha Singh, reported in 2019 SCC OnLine All 7737.

16. Lastly, it has been submitted by the learned Senior Counsel for the Respondent that considering from any angle, the sole ground of movement of file from one table to another cannot be construed as a sufficient cause to condone delay and in that regard, has relied on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Uttar Pradesh V/s Satish Chand Shivhare & Brothers, reported in 2022 SCC Online SC 2151; and a judgment dated 15.03.2024 passed by a Division bench of this Court in Executive Engineer Drainage Division V/s M/s Ayush Construction & Another (Special Appeal Defective No. 89 of 2024).

17. We have patiently heard the learned Counsels for the parties and perused the material on records. Having given our thoughtful consideration to the contention raised by the parties, we find that the core issues falling for our consideration in this present Appeal is two-fold; (i) What is the scope of interference of this Court under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996; and (ii) Whether in the facts and Circumstances of the present case, a "sufficient cause" has been made out by the Appellants for exercising discretion of condoning the delay of 28 days within the permissible limit of 30 days, as is provided with in the proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act or in other words whether the impugned order passed by the Learned Commercial court is unsustainable in the eyes of law and requires any interference by this Court.

18. Before proceedings any further, it would be apposite for this Court to refer Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, which inter-alia states as herein under:-

37. Appealable orders.?(1) [Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, an appeal] shall lie from the following orders (and from no others) to the Court authorised by law to hear appeals from original decrees of the Court passing the order, namely:?

[(a) refusing to refer the parties to arbitration under Section 8;] [(b) granting or refusing to grant any measure under Section 9;] [(c) setting aside or refusing to set aside an arbitral award under Section 34.]

(2) Appeal shall also lie to a court from an order of the arbitral tribunal

(a) accepting the plea referred to in sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) of Section 16; or

(b) granting or refusing to grant an interim measure under Section 17.

(3) No second appeal shall lie from an order passed in appeal under this section, but nothing in this section shall affect or take away any right to appeal to the Supreme Court.

19. First and foremost, we must understand that the primary object of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 is to provide speedy and inexpensive dispute resolution through arbitration with minimal Court intervention, as reflected in Section 5 of the said Act. Further, this minimal Court intervention is also to be exercised in a restrictive manner as is apparent from the provisions of Section 34 of the Act, which provides for limited grounds to challenge an arbitral award, such as incapacity, invalidity of the agreement, lack of notice, inability to present the case, award beyond the scope of arbitration, improper constitution of the tribunal, subject matter not capable of settlement, or conflict with public policy, patent illegality etc. Admittedly, beyond these grounds, the law stands settled that an arbitral award is not open to be challenged under Section 34, and Court intervention is limited.

20. No doubt section 37 of the Act provides for an Appeal against any order passed under section 34 of the Act. However, we find that as far as the scope of Section 37 juxtaposed to Section 34 of the Act is concerned, the power is more circumscribed and the recent trends of the court had been to not travel beyond the impugned order passed under section 34 of the Act. A quick survey of the judgments holding the ground would bring us to the celebrated judgment of MMTC Ltd. v. Vedanta Ltd., reported in (2019) 4 SCC 163; wherein the Apex court held that interference under Section 37 cannot go beyond the restrictions of Section 34. The Court went on to hold that in an Appeal under section 37, the appellate Court cannot undertake an independent assessment of the merits of the award. Further, interference cannot be made under Section 37 of the Act merely because an alternative view is possible, as has been delineated by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Konkan Railway Corpn. Ltd. v. Chenab Bridge Project, reported in (2023) 9 SCC 85; wherein it was also held that the jurisdiction under Section 37 is akin to Section 34 of the Act.

21. Furthermore, Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Bombay Slum Redevelopment Corpn. (P) Ltd. v. Samir Narain Bhojwani, reported in (2024) 7 SCC 218; went on to reiterate its consistent stand that the appellate Court's jurisdiction under Section 37 is more constrained than under Section 34 of the Act. So, as far as power under Section 34 of the Act is concerned, there exists limited power of interference and the said limited power is further restricted and controlled in the appellate stage under Section 37 of the Act. In the same genre, we find that in the case of Punjab State Civil Supplies Corpn. Ltd. v. Sanman Rice Mills, reported in 2024 SCC OnLine SC 2632; the Supreme Court held that intervention in arbitral matters is virtually prohibited except as envisaged under Section 34, and the appellate power under Section 37 is limited to checking if the Section 34, Court acted within its jurisdiction. The appellate Court cannot reappraise evidence or substitute its view for that of the court below.

22. A careful & meaningful reading of the aforesaid judgments passed by the Apex court in Punjab State case (supra) brings us to fore the evolution of law on interference at the appellate stage under Section 37 of the Act, as the judgment initially proceeds on the basis that the scope of appeal, which lies against an order setting aside or refusing to set aside an arbitral award, is "naturally akin to" and "limited to" the grounds enumerated under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act. However gradually in the subsequent paragraphs, the Court went on to hold that the appellate power under Section 37 is not akin to the normal appellate jurisdiction vested in the civil Courts owing to the limited scope of interference of the Courts with arbitral proceedings or awards which is confined to the grounds set out in Section 34 of the Arbitration Act. The Court further holds that the scope of interference in an appeal under Section 37 is restricted and subject to the same grounds on which an award can be challenged under Section 34 of the Act and that the powers of an appellate Court are not beyond the scope of interference under Section 34. The Hon'ble Supreme Court after tracing the various judgments on the scope of Section 37, went on to conclude as follows:

"20. In view of the above position in law on the subject, the scope of the intervention of the court in arbitral matters is virtually prohibited, if not absolutely barred and that the interference is confined only to the extent envisaged under Section 34 of the Act. The appellate power of Section 37 of the Act is limited within the domain of Section 34 of the Act. It is exercisable only to find out if the court, exercising power under Section 34 of the Act, has acted within its limits as prescribed thereunder or has exceeded or failed to exercise the power so conferred. The Appellate Court has no authority of law to consider the matter in dispute before the arbitral tribunal on merits so as to find out as to whether the decision of the arbitral tribunal is right or wrong upon reappraisal of evidence as if it is sitting in an ordinary court of appeal. It is only where the court exercising power under Section 34 has failed to exercise its jurisdiction vested in it by Section 34 or has travelled beyond its jurisdiction that the appellate court can step in and set aside the order passed under Section 34 of the Act. Its power is more akin to that superintendence as is vested in civil courts while exercising revisionary powers. The arbitral award is not liable to be interfered unless a case for interference as set out in the earlier part of the decision, is made out. It cannot be disturbed only for the reason that instead of the view taken by the arbitral tribunal, the other view which is also a possible view is a better view according to the appellate court.

21. It must also be remembered that proceedings under Section 34 of the Act are summary in nature and are not like a full-fledged regular civil suit. Therefore, the scope of Section 37 of the Act is much more summary in nature and not like an ordinary civil appeal. The award as such cannot be touched unless it is contrary to the substantive provision of law; any provision of the Act or the terms of the agreement."

23. Therefore, a plain reading of the Punjab State case (supra) would bring us to fore that the recent trend of the Courts had been to more marginalize the power of the Appellate Courts in interfering an Award and has technically switched over from appellate forum to superintendence forum. The Hon'ble Supreme Court clarified that this appellate power is more akin to the power of superintendence as is vested in civil Courts while exercising revisionary powers. Thus, it appears that the Court has in a way further dwindled the power by holding that the appellate power under Section 37 is only exercisable to find out whether the Court exercising power under Section 34 has acted within its limits as prescribed thereunder or has exceeded or failed to exercise the power so conferred. It has also in a way prescribed the condition precedent that it could exercise the power under Section 37 of the Act only where the court exercising jurisdiction under Section 34 fails to exercise the jurisdiction vested in it or travels beyond its jurisdiction. The Supreme Court in unequivocal terms has held that when these conditions are satisfied that the appellate Court can step in and set aside the order passed under Section 34 of the Arbitration Act.

24. Keeping in view the aforesaid limited scope of interference by this Court under section 37 of the Act, let's examine as to: -

(ii) Whether in the facts and Circumstances of the present case, a "sufficient cause" has been made out by the Appellants for exercising discretion of condoning the delay of 28 days within the permissible limit of 30 days, as is provided with in the proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act or in other words whether the impugned order passed by the Learned Commercial court is unsustainable in the eyes of law and requires any interference by this Court. 25. Section 34 (3) relating to the limitation for laying a challenge or filing an objection to an Arbitral Award says: "(3) An application for setting aside may not be made after three months have elapsed from the date on which the party making that application had received the arbitral award or, if a request had been made under section 33, from the date on which that request had been disposed of by the arbitral tribunal: Provided that if the Court is satisfied that the applicant was prevented by sufficient cause from making the application within the said period of three months it may entertain the application within a further period of thirty days, but not thereafter."

Apparently, there is no quarrel over the dates and time taken by the Appellants in preferring the objections to the Arbitral Award dated 08.12.2023. According to this Court the core issue is as to whether the Appellants had been successful in justifying its delay of 28 days in preferring their Objection within the extended period of "thirty days" as contained in proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act.

26. We find that the time period of 'three months" has been ordinarily prescribed for preferring an application (say objection U/s 34 of the Act) for setting aside of an Arbitral Award and a discretion has been provided to the courts to entertain the said Application within a further period of third days, with a condition that the said court exercising its discretion ought to be satisfied that the applicant was prevented by sufficient cause from making the application within the prescribed period of three months. Therefore, we have three major take-away from a reading of the Section 34(3) and its proviso;

Firstly, the limit for filing an application for setting aside an Arbitral Award is three months from the receipt of a signed copy of the said Award;

Secondly, a further period of thirty days has been provided for preferring the aforesaid Application. However, the same is subject to the satisfaction of the court that the applicant was prevented by sufficient cause from making the application within the said period of three months;

Thirdly, the issue boils down to what bundle of facts could be termed as 'sufficient cause'.

27. According to this Court, the third take-away is the bone of contention in the present Appeal, wherein on the one hand the Appellants have contended that there existed sufficient cause to condone the delay whereas on the other hand the Respondent has contested that there is no sufficient cause to condone the delay. Before, we go any further, let us first examine the explanation appended by the Appellants in support of their contention that sufficient cause has been made by them in delaying the filing of the Application. We find that the explanation has been made in four paragraphs of the Affidavit filed in support of the Application seeking condonation of delay. The said relevant paragraphs are being extracted herein below: "4. That after passing of the award dated 08-12-2023, the Learned Counsel for the Respondents/Petitioners Mr. Anuj Dayal duly informed the concerned department of the Railways that Railways has loosed the case and submitted the copy of the award with a Legal opinion dated 29-01-2024. True photocopy of the legal opinion dated 29-01-2024 is being annexed herewith as Annexure No. 1. 5. That after that the Concerned authority of DRM Engineering sent on 12-02-2024 the whole file with copy of award to Law Department of the Railway, Lucknow so that a legal opinion may be for further action. 6. That after that on 29-2-2024 the concerned authority of the Legal Department submitted his opinion that there is need to challenge the impugned order of the award before the Hon'ble Commercial Court. A true photocopy of the decision of the Legal officer dated 29-02-2024 is being annexed herewith as Annexure No.2. 7. That after that the whole file with the opinion of the Legal Officer submitted before the Competent authority who nominated on 13-03-2024 to present counsel Mr. Rajesh Kumar Singh on 14-03-2024. After that the Learned Counsel Mr. Rajesh Kumar Singh the collect the whole file on 18/03/2024 go to whole file and read and prepare the same so that this petition may be filed before Hon'ble Commercial Court. A true photocopy of the nomination dated 14-03-2024 is being annexed herewith as Annexure No.3."

28. Thereafter, we find that even in the present memo of Appeal, the Appellant has tried to explain the condonation of delay in preferring the Objections under section 34 of the Act from paragraph 16 to 20 of the Appeal. Paragraphs 18 and 19 makes for an interesting read, which inter-alia states: "18. That the application under section 34 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 was prepared by the concerned counsel and the entire paper book was sent to the authorities for signing on 18/03/2024. 19. That the duly signed paper book of application under section 34 of Arbitration and Conciliation Act 1996 was received by the concerned counsel who filed the same on 05/04/2025."

29. Apparently, the Arbitral Award dated 08.12.2023 was received on the same date as we do not find any submission or averment to the effect that the signed copy or otherwise the Award was not received on the said date or any later date. In the absence of any such contention, it has to be construed that the Award was received on the same date as on 08.12.2023 and the prescribed three months period stands ticking from the said date, which according to this Court lapses on 07.03.2024. From the averment of the aforesaid Affidavit, which has been quoted herein above, we find that it took almost more than 51 days for the learned Counsel, Anuj Dayal to form an opinion and send a legal opinion dated 29.01.2024 for challenging the said Award. Thereafter, it took almost 14 days for the concerned department to send the entire case file to the legal department, Lucknow on 12.02.2024, wherein the department took almost 16/17 days to form a second opinion to challenge the award on 29.02.2024. Admittedly, the department took over more than two weeks to nominate a counsel, namely Mr. Rajesh Kr. Singh, on 14.03.2024 to file the objections/Application, which got prepared on 18.03.2024 and was sent to the authorities for their signing. These time-gaps between the events sufficiently exhibits the casual approach and non-seriousness attitude to challenge the arbitral award dated 08.12.2023.

30. However, the most sterling time-gap and negligence on the part of the authority is still to come, wherein this Court finds that although the objection was sent for signing to the competent authority at Lucknow on 18.03.2024, however the said authority took almost 17 days to sign and send the signed papers to the concerned Counsel, as we see that the application came to be filed only on 05.04.2024 before the commercial court at Lucknow. Thus, it took 17 days for movement of file in the same city and there has been no explanation what so ever from the end of the Appellant for such a lackadaisical attitude, especially when this Court finds that admittedly the prescribed three months had already lapsed on 07.03.2024 and the appellants ought to have sprinted for filing of the said Application within the shortest available time. It is rather deliberate and negligent on the part of the Appellant that when they had full knowledge of the said time-period having lapsed, to have behaved in a very lackluster manner as it took 17 days to send the signed papers across to the Counsel for filing, although the Competent Authority and the Commercial Court were located in the same place i.e. Lucknow. We are afraid this indifferent attitude of the concerned officials in delaying the signing and sending it across for filing and taking almost 17 days cannot be termed to be a sufficient cause for condoning the delay and has to be termed nothing short of negligent.

31. Further, we have also tested the explanation offered by the Appellant in their condonation of delay application as well as the memo of appeal, on the anvil of the recent decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Shivamma (Dead) by LRS vs. Karnatka Housing Board and another, reported in 2025 SCC OnLine 1969; we do not find any reason to condone the said delay. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in the case of Shivamma (Dead) (supra) that the expression "sufficient cause" is not itself a loose panacea for the ill of pressing negligent and stale claims. The expression is to be construed with justice-oriented flexibility so as not to punish innocent litigants for circumstances beyond their control. Courts must not condone gross negligence, deliberate inaction, or casual indifference, for to do so would undermine the maxim interest reipublicae ut sit finis litium and destabilize the certainty that limitation law seeks to secure. The expression 'sufficient cause' must be construed in a manner that advances substantial justice while preserving the discipline of limitation. The Courts are not to be swayed by sympathy or technical rigidity, but rather by a judicious appraisal of whether the applicant acted with reasonable diligence in pursuing the remedy. Where explanation is bona fide, plausible, and consistent with ordinary human conduct, Courts have leaned towards condonation. Where negligence, want of good faith, or a casual approach is discernible, condonation has to be refused. In the present case, the appellants have not acted with reasonable diligence nor is the explanation offered by them plausible and consistent with ordinary human conduct. There is negligence, want of good faith and casual approach on their part for the reasons already noticed herein-above in taking 17 days for signing and filing an application, which was already delayed.

32. The summation of our aforesaid discussion is that the proof of sufficient cause is a condition precedent for exercising of the discretionary jurisdiction as provided under proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act. If sufficient cause is not proved the matter should rest, then and there. It is only when sufficient cause is shown then only the Court enquires into the various competing factual matrix to satisfy itself in exercising its discretion of condoning the delay. Alas, in the present facts and circumstances, the Appellants have failed to bring the explanation into the realms of sufficient cause, so as to enable this Court or the learned Commercial Court in exercising its judicial discretion of condoning the delay.

33. There is another aspect of the matter, in as inasmuch the learned Counsel for the Appellant has strenuously tried to highlight that the Appellant as being a government entity may be given concession in Condoning delay, in contrast to a private entity as government entities are engaged in various statutory functionality. We are afraid that we cannot accord any attention to the aforesaid submission of the learned Counsel for the Appellant. Different yard-sticks cannot be employed for a government entity and a private body for deciding an application for condonation of delay. The law of limitation applies in equal force to both the litigating parties. Whether it is a government body or a private, the parties have to show existence of "sufficient cause" in their favour, before the discretionary power of the court could be triggered for condoning the delay. The said understanding of this court gathers specific significance in the wake of section 18 of the Arbitration & Conciliation Act, which mandates for equal treatment of the parties.

34. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shivamma (Dead) by LRS (Supra) has also considered as to whether there was any room for largesse for State lethargy and leisure under Section 5 of the Limitation Act. After considering various earlier decisions on the subject, ultimately, the Supreme Court opined that prior to the decision of Postmaster General vs. Living Media India Ltd., reported in (2012) 3 SCC 563; the approach was characterized by judicial sympathy towards the State and its instrumentalities in matters of condonation of delay, owing to the peculiar nature of their functioning. At the same time, there also existed contrary views such as State of W.B. vs. Administrator, Howrah Municipality, reported in (1972) 1 SCC 366; and Lanka Venkateswarlu (D) by LRS vs. State of A.P. and ors., reported in (2011) 4 SCC 363; which held that, irrespective of whether the litigant is a Government entity or a private individual, the provisions of limitation would apply uniformly, and any leeway shown by the Courts would also remain the same. The law as it presently stands post the decision of Postmaster General (supra) as unambiguous and clear. Condonation of delay is to remain an exception, not the rule. Governmental litigants, no less than private parties, must demonstrate bona fide, sufficient, and cogent cause for delay. Absent such justification, delay cannot be condoned merely on the ground of the identity of the applicant. Hon'ble Supreme Court has further observed that on a combined reading of State of Rajasthan & Anr. vs. Bal Kishan Mathur (Dead) through Legal Representative, reported in (2014) 1 SCC 592; and Sheo Raj Singh vs. Union of India, reported in (2023) 10 SCC 531; it is equally manifest that the ratio of Postmaster General (supra) is, in essence, twofold. First, that State or any of its instrumentalities cannot be accorded preferential treatment in matters concerning condonation of delay under Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The State must be judged by the same standards as any private litigant. To do otherwise would compromise the sanctity of limitation. Secondly, that the habitual reliance of Government departments on bureaucratic red tape, procedural bottlenecks, or administrative inefficiencies as grounds for seeking condonation of delay cannot always, invariably accepted as a "sufficient cause" for the purpose of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. If such reasons were to be accepted as a matter of course, the very discipline sought to be introduced by the law of limitation would be diluted, resulting in endless uncertainty in litigation.

35. This court also finds that the learned Counsel for the Appellant Mr. Depanshu Dass has tried to persuade and also make a last-ditch effort to convince us by submitting that the Appellant has a very good case on merits and as such the discretionary power of this Court in condoning the delay may be exercised liberally. We are clear in our minds that every objection predicated on limitation raises, in one sense, is pertinently a question anterior to the merits. However, the Court is called upon, not to examine whether the challenge is well-founded or not, but whether it is one which the statute permits within the permissible limitation. The Supreme Court in M/s Borse Brothers Engineers & Contractors (Supra) clearly held that merely because the government is involved, a different yardstick for condonation of delay cannot be laid down. The aforesaid proposition had been vividly held by the Supreme Court in the case of Post Master General (Supra), wherein it was held as follows:

"27. It is not in dispute that the person(s) concerned were well aware or conversant with the issues involved including the prescribed period of limitation for taking up the matter by way of filing a special leave petition in this Court. They cannot claim that they have a separate period of limitation when the Department was possessed with competent persons familiar with court proceedings. In the absence of plausible and acceptable explanation, we are posing a question why the delay is to be condoned mechanically merely because the Government or a wing of the Government is a party before us.

28. Though we are conscious of the fact that in a matter of condonation of delay when there was no gross negligence or deliberate inaction or lack of bona fides, a liberal concession has to be adopted to advance substantial justice, we are of the view that in the facts and circumstances, the Department cannot take advantage of various earlier decisions. The claim on account of impersonal machinery and inherited bureaucratic methodology of making several notes cannot be accepted in view of the modern technologies being used and available. The law of limitation undoubtedly binds everybody, including the Government.

29. In our view, it is the right time to inform all the government bodies, their agencies and instrumentalities that unless they have reasonable and acceptable explanation for the delay and there was bona fide effort, there is no need to accept the usual explanation that the file was kept pending for several months/years due to considerable degree of procedural red tape in the process. The government departments are under a special obligation to ensure that they perform their duties with diligence and commitment. Condonation of delay is an exception and should not be used as an anticipated benefit for the government departments. The law shelters everyone under the same light and should not be swirled for the benefit of a few." 36. Echoing the same principle, recently the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the aforesaid Shivamma (Dead) by LRS (Supra) has also observed that the Courts must be mindful that strong case on merits is no ground for condonation of delay. When an application for condonation of delay is placed before the Court, the inquiry is confined to whether "sufficient cause" has been demonstrated for not filing the appeal or proceeding within the prescribed period of limitation or not. The merits of the underlying case are wholly extraneous to this inquiry. If Courts were to look into the merits of the matter at this stage, it would blur the boundaries between preliminary procedural questions and substantive adjudication, thereby conflating two distinct stages of judicial scrutiny. The purpose is not to determine whether the claim is legally or factually strong, but only whether the applicant had a reasonable justification for the delay. Test of "sufficient cause" cannot be substituted by an examination of the case on merits.

37. Further, if merits are considered, a litigant with a stronger case may be favoured with condonation despite negligence, while a weaker case may be rejected even if sufficient cause is made out. This would lead to an inequitable and inconsistent application of the law, undermining the uniform standard that the doctrine of limitation is designed to maintain. Yet another practical reason has been given by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as to why merits must not be considered at the stage of delay condonation that is it risks prejudicing the mind of the Court against one party even before the matter is substantively heard. By glancing into merits prematurely, the Court may inadvertently form a view that colours the fairness of the subsequent adjudication. The judicial discipline required at this stage demands that only the cause for delay be scrutinized, and nothing more. Therefore, we cannot consider the merits of the matter at this stage.

38. Thus, now the issue remains as to whether the impugned order is unsustainable in the eyes of law and requires any interference by this court.

39. As aforesaid, we have ourselves taken the arduous task of examining the case on the aspect as to whether the appellants were able to explain a 'sufficient cause", which prevented them in filing the Application for setting aside the Award or not. Unfortunately, we could not subscribe to the cause of taking more than 17 days by the Appellants authority in signing and sending the Application for filing, wherein both the authority and the Court meant for filing were located in the same place i.e. Lucknow. Obviously, the said delay cannot be encompassed within the meaning of "sufficient cause" in view of the aforesaid provisions of law propounded by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Shivamma (Dead) (supra). The affidavit filed by the appellants explaining the delay is inadequate and insufficient. No effort has been made to explain the delay of 28 days, so as to come within the periphery of "sufficient cause". The explanation offered is nothing but a lame excuse. The Appellant were negligent in approaching the court and their explanation of delay seems to not bonafide and does not meet the minimum threshold required for this court to exercise its discretion in condoning the delay of 28 days within the extended period of 30 days.

40. We find that the learned Commercial Court has also returned a finding that the delay caused cannot be condoned as it fell foul of being a "sufficient cause'. The learned Commercial Court nowhere missed the woods for the tree in returning a finding that the discretion available in view of proviso to Section 34(3) of the Act cannot be exercised in the given facts and circumstances. Additionally, the cavalier attitude of the Appellants was highlighted further by noting that the objection to the Award were filed with a delay of 28 days and was also inadequately stamped and since the requisite stamp came to be paid only on 15.02.2025 i.e. after more than 10 months and 10 days, the Objections came to be heard and decided only thereafter.

41. Keeping in view the limited scope of its interference under Section 37 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 and the deficient explanation in seeking condonation of delay in filing the Application for setting aside the Award under Section 34 of the Act, we are in complete agreement with the order dated 05.06.2025 passed by the learned Commercial Court, Lucknow.

42. Before we part with, we must also understand that any court while exercising its discretion to condone a delay on the ground of having shown a "sufficient cause" by a party not only takes into consideration the diligence and genuineness of the cause explained by the said party, but also balances the same with the right accrued in favour of the contesting party. The aforesaid view was taken by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Maniben Devraj Shah v. Municipal Corporation of Brihan Mumbai, (2012) 5 SCC 157 wherein the Court held that:

"23. What needs to be emphasised is that even though a liberal and justice oriented approach is required to be adopted in the exercise of power under Section 5 of the Limitation Act and other similar statutes, the courts can neither become oblivious of the fact that the successful litigant has acquired certain rights on the basis of the judgment under challenge and a lot of time is consumed at various stages of litigation apart from the cost.

24. What colour the expression "sufficient cause" would get in the factual matrix of a given case would largely depend on bona fide nature of the explanation. If the court finds that there has been no negligence on the part of the applicant and the cause shown for the delay does not lack bona fides, then it may condone the delay. If, on the other hand, the explanation given by the applicant is found to be concocted or he is thoroughly negligent in prosecuting his cause, then it would be a legitimate exercise of discretion not to condone the delay."

43. As a sequel to our discussion made herein above and for all the reasons, the present Appeal fails and as such the same being devoid of any merit is accordingly dismissed.

44. There shall be no order(s) as to cost.

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 9542 of 2026

State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether impugned FIR dated 19.04.2026, alleging kidnapping/enticement of first petitioner (a major) by the second petitioner, is liable to be quashed where two consenting adults have married of their own free will and choice, and whether continuation of investigation and insistence on recording of statements notwithstanding the prosecutrix's stand already recorded before the High Court, amounts to an abuse of process of law and infringement of petitioners' fundamental right to liberty.

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - s 87 - Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 - ss. 180 and 183 - Constitution of India, 1950 - Article 21 - FIR - Quashing of - Personal liberty - Consenting adults to marry person of their choice - Police investigation - Continued despite woman's clear statement before High Court - Impermissible - Scope of - Costs imposed - The petitioners, both major and well-educated citizens, having been in a relationship for about a year, solemnised their marriage according to Hindu rites on 18.02.2026 at Arya Vedic Sabha, Prayagraj, whereafter, upon the second petitioner disclosing the said marriage to her father and brother on 17.04.2026, they allegedly assaulted her and threatened to kill her and her husband, on account of which she sent a written application to the Superintendent of Police and Station House Officer seeking protection of her life and liberty - Notwithstanding the same, the fourth respondent, being the first petitioner's father, lodged the impugned FIR dated 19.04.2026, alleging enticement of his daughter, pursuant whereto investigation was set into motion and efforts made to trace the petitioners, until, on 29.04.2026, both petitioners appeared before the High Court, whereupon the statement of first petitioner was recorded viva voce, on the strength of which the Court stayed further investigation and the petitioners' arrest and restrained the fourth respondent from causing harm to them - Despite the said interim order and recorded statement of prosecutrix affirming her free and voluntary marriage to second petitioner, the Superintendent of Police in compliance/counter affidavit, persisted in asserting that the investigation, including recording of petitioners' statements must be completed, occasioning the filing of instant writ petition for quashing of impugned FIR and consequential proceedings.

Held*:* After the prosecutrix/petitioner no. 1 has had her statement recorded by Division Bench of High Court, no Court in the State or police authority have business, in a matter like the present one, to record any further statement for first petitioner and form a different opinion on its basis - If the Police wanted to close the investigation, they could have done it on the basis of prosecutrix's statement recorded in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226 of Constitution - Petitioners are right that the Police are indeed siding with the fourth respondent and wish to carry on the investigation by recording statements of parties, where they have already disclosed their mind before High Court viva voce and their stand has been reduced to writing in the orders - The carrying on of this investigation into an adult's free choice of her partner and marriage between two major citizens of country is not only an abuse of process of criminal law, but also gross violation of fundamental right to liberty guaranteed under Article 21 of Constitution - Considering the action of Police in insisting that they would still investigate the marriage, despite earlier detailed order on 29.04.2026, and the act of fourth respondent in lodging an FIR regarding a marriage between his daughter who is a major and a person of her choice, thus, the court imposed costs on the State and fourth respondent - Accordingly, impugned FIR quashed, petition allowed. ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. - 9542 of 2026

From the FIR dated 19.04.2026 in Crime No. 108 of 2026, Police Station Suriyavan, District Bhadohi.

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for the Petitioner(s):
Abhishek Kumar Srivstava

Advs. for the Respondent(s):
Vijay Chandra Srivastava, Sunita Sharma, Shashi Shekhar Tiwari

This writ petition is directed against the impugned First Information Report dated 19.04.2026, giving rise to Crime No. 108 of 2026, under Section 87 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023, Police Station Suriyavan, District Bhadohi.

2. The case of the first and second petitioner is that they are major according to the laws of the country, and were into a relationship for the past one year. They have, therefore, decided to marry and stay together for life. Their marriage has been solemnised on 18.02.2026 at the Arya Vedic Sabha, Prayagraj. Both the petitioners are not only of the age of majority, but well educated. They have passed their M.Sc., BTC. According to the high school certificate, the date of birth of the first petitioner is 06.01.1998, whereas that of the second petitioner, is 20.02.1999. Thus, petitioner no. 1 is aged 28 years, whereas petitioner no. 2, 26 years. A copy of the petitioners' marriage certificate dated 18.02.2026 from the Arya Vedic Sabha, Prayagraj, and some photographs of the ceremony are on record of the writ petition. It is also asserted that this is the first marriage for both the petitioners and they had not married previously. Petitioner no. 2 is a newly-appointed Assistant Teacher in a primary school at Madhya Pradesh, and can, by himself, support the first petitioner.

3. It is averred in paragraph no. 15 that after her marriage to petitioner no. 1, the second petitioner brought the fact to the notice of her father and brother on 17.04.2026, which annoyed them much. They beat her up and threatened to kill her as well as her husband. She left her parents' home and gave an application to the Superintendent of Police, Bhadohi as well as the Station House Officer, Police Station Suriyavan, District Bhadohi, which she sent through registered post on 17.04.2026 to protect the petitioners' life and liberty from the fourth respondent, who is her father. A copy of the said application is also on record as well as postal receipts of dispatch.

4. It is the further case of the petitioners that both of them are living happily together as husband and wife, but the fourth respondent, who is the first petitioner's father, and the other family members, have not taken kindly to the marriage and, in collusion with the Police, are out to arrest them illegally, separate them forcibly and hand over the first petitioner, an adult and a major, back to her father, against her will and wish. Both the petitioners have expressed apprehension to their life and liberty at the hands of the fourth respondent. It is then said that the petitioners, being of the age of majority, are entitled to marry and stay together as man and wife, and any infraction thereof at the instance of her father, in connivance with the Police, is an abuse of process of law.

5. On 29.04.2026, when this petition came up for admission, both the petitioners appeared and we recorded the stand of the first petitioner viva voce in Court, to which we shall presently allude. On the basis of the first petitioner's stand, we admitted this petition to hearing, and it being a case where two major citizens of the country had married according to Hindu rites, we prima facie found that there was nothing in the FIR to investigate. Therefore, by an interim order of the same date, we stayed investigation by the Police and also the petitioners arrest. By a separate injunction temporary, we restrained the fourth respondent and members his family, friends and associates from causing any injury in life and limb to the first and the second petitioner and obliged the Superintendent of Police to ensure that no harm comes to the petitioners at the hands of the fourth respondent or anyone acting on his behest.

6. Mr. Vijay Chandra Srivastava and Ms. Sunita Sharma, Advocates who appeared on behalf of respondent no. 4, have not filed any counter affidavit. A compliance affidavit has been filed by the Superintendent of Police, Bhadohi, which we have treated as a counter affidavit. The petitioner has waived his right to file a rejoinder.

7. Heard Mr. Abhishek Kumar Srivastava, learned Counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Vijay Chandra Srivastava and Ms. Sunita Sharma, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent no. 4, and Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing on behalf of the State.

8. In the compliance affidavit, which is taken to be a return in the matter on behalf of the State, the Superintendent of Police has said that the FIR giving rise to the crime disclosed a cognisable offence, and accordingly, it was registered. In Case Diary No. 1 on 20.04.2026, the Investigating Officer recorded the statement of the scribe of the FIR, the informant and conducted a site inspection. The informant reiterated his allegations in the FIR that his daughter has been taken away by blandishment by the second petitioner, and their whereabouts were not known. The Superintendent of Police has said that local inquiries and deployment of informants was done, but no fruitful information was forthcoming. In Case Diary No. 2 dated 22.04.2026, further efforts were made to locate petitioner no. 1, and the nominated accused, that is to say, petitioner no. 2. However, no leads emerged, and informants were again deployed for tracing out both the petitioners.

9. On 24.04.2026, the Investigating Officer received, through registered post, an intimation sent by petitioner no. 1, saying that she had solemnised marriage with petitioner no. 2 at the Arya Vedic Sabha, Prayagraj. This information was entered in Case Diary No. 3 and placed on record.

10. It is next averred in paragraph no. 10 that upon receipt of this Court's order on 29.04.2026, all further investigations and consequential proceedings have been kept in abeyance in strict compliance. The order of this Court, restraining respondent no. 4 from harming the petitioners too has been served, and a copy of the memo has been annexed to the return.

11. The next averment in paragraph no. 12 says that statements of both petitioners have to be recorded under Section 180 and 183 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023. Since both petitioners are adults and fully capable of making their own decisions, the Police have no occasion or authority to interfere in their personal life. It is, therefore, asserted that the petitioners may kindly be directed to cooperate with the ongoing investigation by presenting themselves for recording their statements under the aforesaid provisions. Upon cooperation being extended by the petitioners and their statements recorded, the investigation shall be concluded expeditiously, in accordance with law.

12. We may now, at this stage, hark back to the statement of the prosecutrix, the first petitioner before this Court, which is recorded in our order dated 29.04.2026. It reads :

Q. आपका नाम?

A. सौंभागिनी शुक्ला ।

Q. आपके पिताजी का नाम?

A. श्री प्रकाश नारायण शुक्ला ।

Q. आपकी उम्र कितनी है?

A. २७ साल।

Q. आप कहाँ तक पढ़ी हुई हैं?

A. जी मैं पोस्ट ग्रेजुएट हूँ।

Q. आपने शादी की है?

A. Yes.

Q. किससे शादी की है आपने?

A. श्री प्रवि गुप्ता से।

Q. आप इस वक्त कहाँ से आयी हैं?

Q. आप अपने पिता के पास वापस जाना चाहती हैं?

A. नामर्ली जैसे लड़कियाँ मायका ससुराल करती हैं, अगर वो चाहें तो, पर मैं अपना पूरा फ्यूचर श्री प्रवि के साथ जीना चाहती हूं।

13. Upon a reading of the stand of the first petitioner, about whose identity, there was, no doubt, put forth by learned Counsel appearing for the fourth respondent, Mr. Vijay Chandra Srivastava, who was present on 29.04.2026, we are of opinion that there is absolutely no case worth investigation, and the Police utterly wasting their time in going about the exercise. Two adults have married each other according to Hindu rights and both are accomplished persons with good education. There is absolutely no angle of enticement or blandishment involved in this case, considering the age and the education of parties. The first petitioner is aged 27/28 years.

14. We are utterly disillusioned by the stand taken by the Superintendent of Police, Bhadohi that the investigation has to be completed. This is a case where the matter ought to have been concluded, in view of the statement recorded before us. The insistence of the Superintendent of Police in getting the statement of the prosecutrix recorded under Section 180 BNSS before the Investigating Officer and Section 183 BNSS before the Judicial Magistrate is almost contumacious. After the prosecutrix/petitioner no. 1 has had her statement recorded by a Division Bench of the High Court, no Court in the State or police authority have business, in a matter like the present one, to record any further statement for the first petitioner and form a different opinion on its basis. If the Police wanted to close the investigation, they could have done it on the basis of the prosecutrix's statement recorded in the exercise of our jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution.

15. We are minded to think that the petitioners are right that the Police are indeed siding with the fourth respondent and wish to carry on the investigation by recording statements of parties, where they have already disclosed their mind before this Court viva voce and their stand has been reduced to writing in our orders. The carrying on of this investigation into an adult's free choice of her partner and marriage between two major citizens of the country is not only an abuse of process of criminal law, but also gross violation of their fundamental right to liberty guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution. The liberty, that a person, who is a major, enjoys, includes the liberty to marry a person of his/her choice. The police have no business in the matter to be nosy parkers. We have repeatedly reminded the Police that it is no business of theirs to investigate marriages. They ought investigate crimes. This is no crime, where any investigation is required.

16. Considering the action of the Police in insisting that they would still investigate the marriage, despite our detailed order on 29.04.2026, and the act of the fourth respondent in lodging an FIR regarding a marriage between his daughter who is a major and a person of her choice, we are of opinion that some costs deserve to be imposed on both parties, that is to say, the State as well as the fourth respondent.

17. In the result, this petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned FIR dated 19.04.2026, giving rise to Case Crime No. 108 of 2026, under Section 87 BNS, Police Station Suriyavan, District Bhadohi is hereby quashed. A cost of ₹1000 shall be payable, jointly and severally, by the Superintendent of Police, Bhadohi and the Station House Officer, Police Station Suriyavan, District Bhadohi, to petitioner no. 1, and a sum of ₹5000 by the fourth respondent, also to the first petitioner. The said costs shall be deposited with the learned Registrar General of this Court within a week of the receipt of this order. In the event, costs are not deposited, the learned Registrar General shall issue a recovery certificate against the defaulting respondent(s), authorising the Collector, Bhadohi to recover the sum of money as arrears of land revenue; and once the costs are received in account by the learned Registrar General, the same shall be paid to the first petitioner. In case the costs are deposited by any of the respondents, as directed, of their own, it would be transmitted in account by the learned Registrar General to the first petitioner immediately.

18. An entry shall be caused to be made in the General Diary of Police Station, Suriyavan, District Bhadohi by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bhadohi at Gyanpur in red ink that proceedings of Case Crime No. 108 of 2026, under Section 87 BNS, Police Station Suriyavan, District Bhadohi stand quashed under orders of this Court.

19. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bhadohi at Gyanpur and through her, to the Superintendent of Police, Bhadohi and the Station House Officer, Police Station Surivayan, District Bhadohi.

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the Family Court was justified in dismissing a suit for declaration of matrimonial status founded on Talaq-e-hasan, on the premise that the Talaq was neither denied nor challenged and that the suit was barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act and Section 20 of the Code of Civil Procedure?

(ii) What is the scope of enquiry by the Family Court under Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984 while endorsing an extra-judicial divorce by Talaq under Muslim Personal Law and declaring the marital status of the parties?

Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937 — S. 2 — Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019 — Ss. 2(c), 3, 4 — Talaq — Modes — Validity.

HELD: In respect of dissolution of marriage, including talaq, the rule of decision where the parties are Muslims is the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat). Talaq may be effected as Talaq-e-ahsan, Talaq-e-hasan or Talaq-e-bid'at; after the coming into force of the Act of 2019 w.e.f. 31.07.2019, Talaq-e-bid'at or any similar form having the effect of instantaneous and irrevocable divorce is void, illegal and punishable. Talaq is an expressly recognised and valid mode of dissolution of marriage under Muslim Personal Law; it may take place as an extra-judicial divorce and is complete the moment the husband pronounces divorce in accordance with the recognised mode. [Paras 12-19]

Family Courts Act, 1984 — S. 7, Explanation (b) and (d) — Endorsement of extra-judicial divorce by Talaq — Declaration of marital status — Scope of enquiry.

HELD: The endorsement of extra-judicial divorce and consequential declaration of marital status by the Family Court under Section 7(b) is contemplated only to have a public record of the extra-judicial divorce. The Family Court has simply to ascertain whether a valid pronouncement of Talaq was made in accordance with the applicable law; no further enquiry, as in adversarial litigation, is contemplated. Where the other side chooses not to dispute the claim, the Court, on being prima facie satisfied of a valid pronouncement of Talaq, may endorse the same and declare the marital status of the parties, treating the proceedings as uncontested. Any aggrieved party may challenge the validity of such divorce in appropriate proceedings, and any declaration under Section 7(b) or 7(d) shall remain subject to the final adjudication of such challenge. Every member of a civilised society is entitled to a clear and definite marital status, and judicial endorsement thereof is, in appropriate circumstances, imperative. [Para 31]

Evidence — Admissions in pleadings — Judicial admission — Fatwa — Evidentiary value.

HELD: Admissions, if clear, are the best proof of the facts admitted; judicial admissions in pleadings stand on a higher footing than evidentiary admissions, and the Court may pass an order on the basis of an undisputed admission. The admission of the respondent-wife in her written statement and in her affidavit as DW-1, wherein she accepted the Talaq and herself prayed for a decree, leaves no room to disbelieve the factum of Talaq. A fatwa is not a verdict of any kind but only an expert opinion based on classical sources. [Paras 25-29]

Family Courts Act, 1984 — S. 7 — Specific Relief Act — S. 34 — Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — S. 20 — Suit for declaration of matrimonial status dismissed despite Talaq being proved and undisputed — Perversity.

HELD: Where the Family Court itself recorded a categorical finding that Talaq-e-hasan between the parties was proved and undisputed, the respondent having admitted the same in pleadings and evidence, dismissal of the suit on the ground that no one had challenged the Talaq and that the suit was barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act and Section 20 CPC was totally misplaced, perverse and unsustainable; the Family Court ought to have declared the matrimonial status of the parties as 'divorced'. The suit being cognizable under Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984, the Talaq in question is liable to be endorsed. [Paras 30, 32-34]

Appeal allowed. Impugned judgment and order dated 20.05.2025 set aside; suit for declaration decreed and matrimonial status of the parties declared as divorced. (E-14)

On the call of Darul Kaza, the respondent appeared before the same on 22.05.2024 and demanded Talaq from the appellant. 4. It is stated on behalf of the appellant that he paid Rs. 1,00,000/- (Rupees one lakh) as Mehar to the respondent.

5. It is pleaded on behalf of the appellant that to get a formal declaration of the dissolution of marriage / Talaq, he approached the competent Court of law by preferring a declaratory Suit under Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984, on 29.10.2024; before the Court of Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow. The said Suit was registered as Case No. 3872 of 2024 (Syed Mohammad Momin Akhtar versus Saima Faruqi). The respondent submitted her Written Statement on 24.01.2025, inter-alia admitting the averments made in the plaint. Further, the respondent / defendant in her Statement (as DW-1), filed in evidence by way of an affidavit dated 26.03.2025, showed her willingness for grant of decree of Talaq.

6. The Court of Learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow vide the impugned judgement and order dated 20.05.2025 dismissed the aforesaid Suit on the premise that since neither the defendant nor any other person had challenged or denied the Talaq given by the plaintiff, and the plaintiff did not state in the plaint or evidence as to why such declaration is needed; therefore, the suit being barred by Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act and Section 20 C.P.C. is liable to be dismissed.

7. Assailing the impugned judgment and order dated 20.05.2025, the learned counsel asserted that the learned court below has wrongly applied the provisions of section 34 of the Specific Relief Act and Section 20 of the C.P.C. He contended that the plaintiff / appellant did not file the Suit under section 34 of the Specific Relief Act nor the issue of jurisdiction or cause of action was involved in the Suit therefore, the grounds on which the suit has been dismissed is totally baseless, perverse and unsustainable in law.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant has further contended that the learned Family Court did not have taken into consideration the statements of the witnesses wherein both, the appellant as well as the respondent have admitted the Talaq. It is further contended that the suit filed by the plaintiff is for declaration of the Talaq which is undisputed as is evident from the written statement filed by the defendant / respondent.

9. Vakaltnama on behalf of the respondent has been filed by Sri Aftab Alam Malik, Advocate. However, there is nothing on record to indicate that any reply / objection has been filed by him.

10. Heard the learned counsel for the appellant and perused the material available on record.

11. For better appreciation of facts, it would be apposite to have a glance over the law on the subject and principles governing Talaq under Muslim Personal Law.

12. Section 2 of the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937 provides for the application of personal law to Muslims. Subsequently, the Miscellaneous Personal Laws (Extension) Act, 1959 made it applicable to the whole of India except the State of Jammu and Kashmir. For ready reference, Section 2 of the Act of 1937 is quoted herein below:

"Application of personal law to Muslims.--Notwithstanding any custom or usage to the contrary, in all questions regarding intestate succession, special property of females including personal property inherited or obtained under contract or gift or any other provision of personal laws, marriage, dissolution of marriage, including talaq, ila, zihar, lian, khula and mubaraat, maintenance, dower, guardianship, gifts, trusts and trust properties and wakfs (other than charities and charitable institutions and charitable and religious endowments), the rules of decision in cases where the parties are Muslims, shall be the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat)."

13. A bare reading of the above-quoted provision shows that, in respect of the dissolution of marriage, the rule of decision in cases where the parties are Muslims shall be Muslim Personal Law (Shariat). It further, mentions dissolution of marriage and adds that it will include talaq, ila, zihar, lian, khula and mubaraat. Talaq and Khula are the terms of Muslim matrimonial law meaning divorce by men and at the instance of women respectively, while mubaraat denotes divorce by mutual consent. It would not be out of place to mention that Ila, zihar and lian are pre-Islamic customary concepts abolished by Islamic law.

14. Section 5 of the Act of 1937 dealing with the dissolution of marriage by Court in certain circumstances came to be repealed by the Dissolution of Muslim Marriage Act, 1939 w.e.f. 17.03.1939. The aim and objective of the said Act of 1939, as is reflected from the legislation itself is to clarify the provisions of Muslim Law relating to suits for dissolution of marriage by women married under Muslim law and to remove doubts as to the effect of the renunciation of Islam by a married Muslim woman on her marriage tie.

15. Under the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat); Talaq may be effected by a husband in any of the following ways:

Modes of talaq:

(i) Talaq-e-ahsan: a single pronouncement of talaq which remains revocable during the iddat period [about three months].

(ii) Talaq-e-hasan: three single pronouncements of talaq made one after the other in a course of at least three months.

(iii) Talaq-e-bid'at: a single pronouncement of talaq adding that it is irrevocable, or three pronouncements made at the same time [repeating the word talaq thrice or saying teen talaq]

16. After the coming into force of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019 with effect from 31.07.2019, Talaq-e-bid'at, or any other similar form of Talaq having the effect of an instantaneous and irrevocable divorce pronounced by a Muslim husband, has been declared void, illegal, and punishable. For ready reference, Sections 2(c), 3, and 4 of the Act of 2019 are reproduced herein below:

2. Definitions. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,

(a) "electronic form" shall have the same meaning as assigned to it in clause (r) of sub-section (1) of section 2 of the Information Technology Act, 2000 (21 of 2000);

(b) "Magistrate" means a Judicial Magistrate of the first class exercising jurisdiction under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974), in the area where the married Muslim woman resides; and

(c) "talaq" means talaq-e-biddat or any other similar form of talaq having the effect of instantaneous and irrevocable divorce pronounced by a Muslim husband.

3. Talaq to be void and illegal. Any pronouncement of talaq by a Muslim husband upon his wife, by words, either spoken or written or in electronic form or in any other manner whatsoever, shall be void and illegal.

4. Punishment for pronouncing talaq. - Any Muslim husband who pronounces talaq referred to in section 3 upon his wife shall be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years, and shall also be liable to fine.

17. Talaq may be effected orally (by spoken words) or by a written document called Talaq-nama. No particular form of words is prescribed for effecting a Talaq. If the words are express, or well understood as implying divorce, no proof of intention is required. If the words are ambiguous, the intention of the husband to end the marriage has to be proved. However, under the Shia law, Talaq has to be pronounced using a particular format in the presence and hearing of a religious functionary and competent witnesses.

18. The Hon'ble Supreme Court of India, while dealing with the issue of rights of Muslim women regarding the dissolution of marriage, in the case of Shayara Bano versus Union of India, reported in (2017) 9 SCC 1, has been pleased to lay down the foundational principles governing the application of Muslim Personal Law to matrimonial matters. For convenience, the relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted here-in-below:

"145. A close examination of Section 2, extracted above, leaves no room for any doubt, that custom and usage, as it existed amongst Muslims, were sought to be expressly done away with, to the extent the same were contrary to Muslim Personal Law. Section 2 also mandated, that Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) would be exclusively adopted as " the rule of decision" in matters of intestate succession, specIal property of females, including all questions pertaining to " personal property inherited or obtained under contract or gift or any other provision of "Personal Law", marriage, dissolution of marriage, including talaq, ila, zihar, lian, khula and mubaraat, maintenance, dower, gifts, trusts and trust properties, and wakfs". Section 3 added to the above list, " adoption, wills and legacies", subject to the declaration expressed in Section 3."

291. If the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937, had incorporated the manner in which questions regarding intestate succession, special property of females including personal property inherited or obtained under contract or gift or matters such as marriage, dissolution of marriage, including talaq, ila, zihar, lian, khula and mubaraat, maintenance, dower, guardianship, gifts, trusts and trust properties, and wakfs (as in Section 2 thereof), had to be dealt with, as per Muslim Personal Law"Shariat" according to the petitioners, it would be quite a different matter. All the same, the Shariat Act did not describe how the above questions and subjects had to be dealt with. And, therefore, for settlement of disputes amongst Muslims, it would need to be first determined what the Muslim Personal Law, with reference to the disputation, was. Whatever it was, would in terms of Section 2 of the 1937 Act, constitute "the rule of decision"."

19. In view of the above it is abundantly clear that Talaq is an expressly recognised and valid mode of dissolution of marriage under Muslim Personal Law. The Talaq may take place as an extra-judicial divorce and is complete the moment the husband pronounces divorce in accordance with the recognized mode as prescribed under the Muslim Personal Law . (Shariat).

20. The Family Courts Act, 1984 confers jurisdiction upon the Family Court to entertain suits and proceedings of the nature referred to in the Explanation appended to Section 7. For ready reference the same is quoted herein below:

"7. Jurisdiction.-

(1) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, a Family Court shall-

(a) have and exercise all the jurisdiction exercisable by any district court or any subordinate civil court under any law for the time being in force in respect of suits and proceedings of the nature referred to in the Explanation; and

(b) be deemed, for the purposes of exercising such jurisdiction under such law, to be a district court or, as the case may be, such subordinate civil court for the area to which the jurisdiction of the Family Court extends.

Explanation.-

The suits and proceedings referred to in this sub-section are suits and proceedings of the following nature, namely:-

(a) a suit or proceeding between the parties to a marriage for a decree of nullity of marriage (declaring the marriage to be null and void or, as the case may be, annulling the marriage) or restitution of conjugal rights or judicial separation or dissolution of marriage;

(b) a suit or proceeding for a declaration as to the validity of a marriage or as to the matrimonial status of any person;

(c) a suit or proceeding between the parties to a marriage with respect to the property of the parties or of either of them;

(d) a suit or proceeding for an order or injunction in circumstances arising out of a marital relationship;

(e) a suit or proceeding for a declaration as to the legitimacy of any person;

(f) a suit or proceeding for maintenance;

(g) a suit or proceeding in relation to the guardianship of the person or the custody of, or access to, any minor.

(2) Subject to the other provisions of this Act, a Family Court shall also have and exercise-

(a) the jurisdiction exercisable by a Magistrate of the First Class under Chapter IX (relating to order for maintenance of wife, children and parents) of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 (2 of 1974); and

(b) such other jurisdiction as may be conferred on it by any other enactment."

21. The High Court of Kerala at Ernakulam, in the case of Asbi K.N versus Hashim M.U., reported in 2021 SCC OnLine Ker 3945, has laid down comprehensive guidelines for the Family Court's role in cases of extra-judicial divorce. In Paragraph 4 of the said judgment, the Court has been pleased to hold:

"4. The Division Bench of this Court in X v. Y (2021 (2) KHC 709) has held that the Family Court in exercise of the jurisdiction under Explanation (d) of S.7 of the Act is competent to endorse an extrajudicial divorce to declare the marital status of a person. It was made clear in the said judgment that in the matter of unilateral dissolution of marriage invoking khula and talaq, the scope of enquiry before the Family Court is limited and in such proceedings, the Court shall record the khula or talaq to declare the marital status of the parties after due notice to other party. In the matter of mubaraat, the Family Court shall declare the marital status without further enquiry on being satisfied that the dissolution was effected on mutual consent. It was observed that such matter shall be disposed treating it as uncontested matter without any delay by passing a formal order declaring the marital status. It was further held that if any person wants to contest the effectiveness of khula or talaq, it is open for such person to contest the same in appropriate manner known under the law.

5. The unilateral extrajudicial divorce under Muslim Personal law is complete when either of the spouse pronounce/declare talaq, talaq-e-tafweez or khula, as the case may be, in accordance with Muslim Personal Law. So also extrajudicial divorce by mubaarat mode is complete as and when both spouses enter into mutual agreement. The seal of the Court is not necessary to the validity of any of these modes of extra judicial divorce. The endorsement of extrajudicial divorce and consequential declaration of the status of the parties by the Family Court invoking S.7(d) of the Act is contemplated only to have a public record of the extrajudicial divorce. Hence, detailed enquiry is neither essential nor desirable in a proceeding initiated by either of the parties to endorse an extrajudicial divorce and to declare the marital status. The Family Court has to simply ascertain whether a valid pronouncement/declaration of talaq or khula was made and it was preceded by effective attempt of conciliation. In the case of khula, it has to be further ascertained whether there was an offer by the wife to return the "dower". It could be ascertained by perusal of the recitals in talaq nama/khula nama or its communication (if it is in writing) or by recording the statement of the parties. No further enquiry as in the case of an adversarial litigation like chief examination and cross-examination of the parties are not at all contemplated in such a proceedings. If the Court is prima facie satisfied that there was valid pronouncement of talaq/khula/talaq-e-tafweez, it shall endorse the same and declare the status of the parties. In the case of mubaarat, if the Court is prima facie satisfied that mubaarat agreement has been executed and signed by both parties, it shall endorse the same and declare the status of the parties. The Court shall pass formal order declaring the marital status without any delay. If any of the parties want to challenge the extrajudicial divorce by talaq, khula, mubaarat or talaq-e-tafweez mode, he/she is free to challenge the same in accordance with law in appropriate forum. The declaration granted by the Family Court u/s 7(d) endorsing the extrajudicial divorce shall be subject to the final outcome of such proceedings, if any. We consider it desirable to formulate the following guidelines to be followed by the Family Court in a petition filed u/s 7(d) of the Act to endorse an extrajudicial divorce under Muslim Personal Law and to declare the marital status of the parties to the marriage.

(i) On receipt of the petition, the Family Court shall issue notice to the respondent.

(ii) After service of summons or appearance of the respondent, as the case may be, the Family Court shall formally record the statement of both parties. The parties shall also be directed to produce talaq nama/khula nama (if pronouncement/declaration is in writing)/mubaarat agreement.

(iii) The Family Court shall thereafter on perusal of the recitals in talaq nama/khula nama/ communication of talaq, khula or talaq-e-tafweez (if available) and the statement of the parties, ascertain whether there was valid pronouncement of talaq/khula/talaq-e-tafweez. In the case of mubaarat, the Family Court shall ascertain whether the parties have executed and signed mubaarat agreement.

(iv) On prima facie satisfaction that there was valid pronouncement of talaq, khula, talaq-e-tafweez, as the case may be, or valid execution of mubaarat agreement, the Family Court shall proceed to pass order endorsing the extrajudicial divorce and declaring the status of the parties without any further enquiry.

(v) The enquiry to be conducted by the Family Court shall be summary in nature treating it as an uncontested matter.

(vi) The Family Court shall dispose of the petition within one month of the appearance of the respondent. The period can be extended for valid reasons.

(vii) If any of the parties is unable to appear at the Court personally, the Family Court shall conduct enquiry using video conferencing facility."

22. In the present case, the facts that stands admitted and undisputed between the parties are that the marriage between the appellant and the respondent was solemnized on 01.02.2022 as per the practice recognized under the Muslim Personal Law. However, on account of matrimonial discord, the parties started living separately since 12.09.2023.

23. The appellant made efforts for reconciliation through Darul Kaza, Faringi Mahal, but the same could not materialize. The respondent / defendant on the call of the Darul Kaza, Faringi Mahal, at Lucknow, appeared and demanded Talaq. Accordingly, the appellant sent three separate Talaq notices dated 22.07.2024, 22.08.2024 and 25.09.2024 through registered post, the same were duly received by the respondent / defendant. Thereafter, the appellant, to ensure his matrimonial status pursuant to the said exercise of Talaq; sought opinion from the Darul Uloom Nadwatul Ulema. In response to the same the Darul Uloom Nadwatul Ulema on 07.10.2024 gave a categorical opinion / Fatwa that "In the present matter, the matrimonial bond has already come to an end, and there is no possibility of reconciliation or renewal of Nikah".

24. It is also to be noted that the defendant / respondent apart from the facts as narrated above has also not denied the receipt of amount of Rs. 1,00,000/- as Mehar.

25. From a bare perusal of the Written Statement dated 24.01.2025 filed by the defendant / respondent (Annexure-4) it is abundantly clear that she did not dispute the factum of Talaq nor did she contested the case by disputing the averments made in the plaint. Rather, in paragraph 16 of the same, she not only accepted the claim of the appellant / plaintiff but had stated to the extent that she has no objection if a decree is passed in the Suit. For better appreciation of the case, the contents of the aforementioned Written Statement is reproduced herein below:

26. Further, in her statement on oath as DW-1, in evidence, she not only accepted the Talaq but herself prayed for a decree of divorce. For ready reference, relevant extract of the aforesaid Statement is quoted herein below:

"मेरा निकाह वादी के साथ दिनांक 01.02.2022 को मुस्लिम सुन्नी रीति रिवाज के अनुसार घरवालों एवं रिश्तेदारों की उपस्थिति में जनपद लखनऊ में सम्पन्न हुआ था। निकाह के पश्चात मैं विदा होकर वादी के घर भवन सं0 432/55-4ए/2 कैम्पबेल रोड, न्यू विद्या एकेडमी के सामने, लखनऊ गई और बतौर पत्नी वादी के साथ रहने लगी। शादी के कुछ समय बाद हमारे विचार मेल न खाने के कारण आपसी रिश्ते खराब होने लगे। बात ज़्यादा बढ़ी तो मैं दिनांक 12.09.2023 को वादी को छोड़कर अपने मायके चली गई तब से मैं अपने मायके में रह रही हूँ। दारूल कज़ा फरंगी महल ऐशबाग लखनऊ में बड़े बुजुर्गों के बीच दिनांक 22.05.2024 को एक बैठक हुई, मैंने उस बैठक में वादी के पास जाने से साफ मना कर दिया और खूब सोच समझ कर वादी से तलाक की माँग की।

जब वादी को इस बात का यकीन हो गया कि मैं उसके साथ रहने के लिये तैयार नहीं हूँ तो वादी ने इस्लामी शरीयत में बताए गये "तलाके हसन" की रीति को अपनाते हुए मुझे एक एक माह के अंतराल पर तलाक की तीन लिखित नोटिसें रजिस्टर्ड डाक द्वारा भेजी। वादी द्वारा एक एक माह के अंतराल पर भेजी गई तलाक की तीनों नोटिसों को मैंने प्राप्त कर लिया तथा मुझे वादी द्वारा दी गई तलाक स्वीकार भी है। मैं निकाह में तयशुदा मेहर की रकम रू० 1,00,000/- (एक लाख रूपये) वादी से पहले ही प्राप्त कर चुकी हूँ। हमारी कोई संतान नहीं है। मुझको भी माननीय न्यायालय से तलाक की डिक्री की आवश्यकता है। माननीय न्यायालय द्वारा वादी के साथ मेरा निकाह दिनांक 01.02.2022 को विघटित करते हुये तलाक की घोषणात्मक आज्ञप्ति पारित किया जाना न्यायहित में उचित है।"

27. As is available on record (Annexure-2); the opinion / fatwa accorded by the Darul Uloom Nadwatul Ulema, Lucknow, also certified the Talaq in question as complete and final. It would not be out of place to mention here that although fatwa is not a verdict of any kind but just an expert opinion based on classical sources. The opinion is being sought and the reply is being given to the best of knowledge and belief of the person or body consulted. The Darul Uloom Nadwatul Ulema, Lucknow a widely recognized muslim seminary maintains a department known as Dar-ul-Ifta staffed by experts in religious laws who answer all sorts of queries believed to be of religious significance, their replies / opinions being popularly known as fatwa.

28. The admission made by the respondent / defendant in the Written Statement and in her own affidavit filed as DW-1 in evidence, leaves no room to disbelieve the factum of Talaq.

29. It is trite in law that admission, if clear, are by far the best proof of the facts admitted. Admission in pleadings or judicial admission, if admissible, made by the parties stand on a higher footing even that an evidentiary admission and the court can very well pass an order on the basis of an undisputed admission of a party in accordance with law. On an admission of facts either made in the pleadings or otherwise, whether orally or in writing, the court at any stage of the proceeding may make such order or give such judgment as it may think fit, having regard to such admission.

30. Upon careful reading of the impugned judgment and order, this Court finds that the learned Family Court although found the factum of Talaq between the parties, proved and also recorded categorical finding that the respondent / defendant did not have challenged the Talaq and has admitted the claims of the appellant / plaintiff as have been made in the plaint; yet dismissed the Suit on the premise that since, neither the respondent nor any other person had denied or challenged the Talaq, nor the appellant / plaintiff has disclosed in the plaint that what necessitated him to seek declaratory decree of Talaq, as such, the court is not competent to pass decree under Section 34 of the Specific Relief Act read with Section 20 C.P.C. The relevant part of the impugned judgement and order is extracted herein below for convenience:-

वाद बिन्दु सं0-1 इस आशय के विरचित किया गया है कि-क्या उभयपक्ष के मध्य हुआ तलाक विधिमान्य है?

वादी द्वारा अपने वाद पत्र में कथन किया गया है कि उसका निकाह प्रतिवादिनी के साथ दिनांक 01.02.2022 को मुस्लिम सुन्नी रीति रिवाज के अनुसार सम्पन्न हुआ था, निकाह के पश्चात प्रतिवादिनी विदा होकर वादी के घर आई और बतौर पत्नी रहने लगी। वादी ने प्रतिवादिनी का खाने पीने रहने व जरूरत की हर चीज का उचित इंतेजाम किया। शादी के कुछ समय बाद वादी व प्रतिवादिनी के विचार मेल न खाने के कारण आपसी रिश्ते खराब होने लगे और धीरे धीरे प्रतिवादिनी का व्यवहार वादी के प्रति गैर जिम्मेदाराना व क्रूर हो गया। प्रतिवादिनी दिनांक 12.09.2023 को वादी को छोड़कर अपने मायके चली गई तब से प्रतिवादिनी अपने

प्रतिवादी द्वारा उक्त सभी तथ्यों को अपने प्रतिवाद पत्र में स्वीकार किया गया है।

उभयपक्ष द्वारा पी०डब्लू0-1 व डी०डब्लू0-1 के रूप में भी उक्त तथ्य को स्वीकार किया गया है।

तद्नुसार वाद बिन्दु सं० 1 निस्तारित किया जाता है।

वाद बिन्दु संख्या-2 इस आशय का विरचित किया गया है कि-

वाद बिन्दु सं० 1 के निष्कर्ष से यह सिद्ध है कि वादी ने इस्लामी शरीयत में बताए गये 'तलाके हसन की रीति को अपनाते हुए 2 गवाहों की मौजूदगी में अपने पूरे होश व हवास में बिना किसी जोर व दबाव नाजायज के दिनांक 22.07 2024 को प्रथम तलाक की नोटिस रजिस्टर्ड डाक (EU389237556IN) द्वारा□प्रतिवादिनी को भेजी। एक माह का समय बीत जाने के बाद वादी ने दिनांक 22.8.2024 को प्रतिवादिनी को द्वितीय तलाक की नोटिस रजिस्टर्ड डाक (EU249507345IN) द्वारा भेजी। वादी ने प्रतिवादिनी को उपरोक्त रीति के अनुसरण में दिनांक 25.09.2024 को तृतीय तलाक की नोटिस रजिस्टर्ड डाक (EU532231755IN) द्वारा भेजी। वादी द्वारा एक एक माह के अंतराल पर भेजी गई तलाक की तीनों नोटिसों को प्रतिवादिनी ने प्राप्त कर लिया है। वादी निकाह में तयशुदा मेहर की रकम रू0 1,00,000/- (एक लाख रूपये) प्रतिवादिनी को पहले ही अदा कर चुका है। मुस्लिम रीति रिवाज के अनुसार वादी एवं प्रतिवादिनी के मध्य तलाक के सम्बन्ध में मर्कजी दारूल कजा नदवतुल उलेमा लखनऊ की राय फतवा के रूप में ली गई है।

31. The extra-judicial divorce under Muslim Personal Law by way of Talaq is complete when the spouse pronounces Talaq in the manner as prescribed under the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat). The endorsement of extra-judicial divorce and the consequential declaration of the marital-status of the parties by the Family Court invoking Section 7(b) of the Family Courts Act,1984 is contemplated only to have a public record of the extra-judicial divorce. The Family Court has to simply ascertain whether a valid pronouncement of Talaq was made in accordance with the applicable law. No further enquiry, as in the case of adversarial litigation, is at all contemplated in such proceedings. It bears emphasis that proceedings for declaration instituted under Section 7 of the Family Court Act, 1984 wherein a party approaches the competent Court, seeking declaration of matrimonial status and the other side chooses not to dispute the claim made there under, the Court on being prima-facie satisfied that valid pronouncement of Talaq as per the applicable law has been effected, it may endorse the same and declare the marital-status of the parties accordingly, by treating the same as uncontested proceedings, without adhering to the rigorous procedure attendant upon adversarial litigation. Nothing herein shall preclude any aggrieved party from challenging the validity of an extra judicial divorce by Talaq in appropriate proceeding in accordance with law, before the Court having jurisdiction. Any declaration granted by the Family Court under Section 7(b) or Section 7(d) endorsing such extra-judicial divorce shall remain subject to the final adjudication of any such challenge, if preferred. It would not be out of place to observe that the said provision reflects the legislative intent to address a significant societal need: that every member of a civilised society is entitled to have a clear and definite marital status, particularly where such status arises from the applicable personal laws or through recognised and accepted customary practices. In such circumstances, judicial endorsement of marital status is not merely desirable but, in appropriate circumstances, imperative.

32. Under the given facts and circumstances as narrated herein above, this court finds that although the learned Family Court, recorded categorical finding that the Talaq-e-hasan between the parties is proved and also the same is undisputed as the respondent / defendant has not denied the facts either in evidence or in her written statement; yet dismissed the suit on totally misplaced and unwarranted grounds, thus the impugned judgment and order dated 20.05.2025 is liable to be set-aside being perverse and unsustainable in law.

33. In view of the peculiar facts of the present case and the law as narrated herein above, this Court is of the considered opinion that when the Court of learned Additional Principal Judge, Family Court, Lucknow was satisfied with the validity or otherwise of the Talaq and there was no contest on the subject matter between the parties concerned rather the defendant / respondent herself expressed willingness for a decree of divorce / Talaq; the learned Family Court ought to have declare the matrimonial status of the parties as 'divorced'.

34. Finding the Suit for declaration filed by the appellant / plaintiff cognizable under the provisions of Section 7 of the Family Courts Act, 1984, and the prayer made by the appellant for declaration of his matrimonial status on the basis of the Talaq recognized under the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) well-founded in law; further, there is no dispute or challenge from the side of the respondent / defendant and the parties are living separately with no sign of reconciliation, this Court is satisfied that the said Talaq in question is liable to be endorsed by this Court.

ORDER

1. The appeal is allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 20.05.2025 passed by the Court of learned Additional Principal Judge, Court No.8, Family Court, Lucknow in Matrimonial Case No.3872 of 2024 is hereby set-aside.

2. The suit for declaration preferred by the plaintiff / appellant having Case No.3872 of 2024 is hereby decreed.

3. The matrimonial-status of the parties, as prayed for, is hereby declared divorced.

First Appeal No. 388 of 2025

Issues for Consideration

(i) Whether the defendant executed a registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in favour of the plaintiff?

(ii) Whether any consideration was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant towards the execution of the agreement to sell, and whether such consideration related to the business transactions between them?

(iii) Whether the agreement to sell was fraudulently got executed by the plaintiff from the defendant taking advantage of the business relationship between them?

(iv) Whether the plaintiff continuously remained ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement to sell?

(v) Whether the relief of specific performance of contract is still discretionary after the amendment of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 w.e.f. 01.10.2018?

Headnotes

Registration — Registered agreement to sell — Presumption of valid execution — Burden on challenger — Plea of fraud.

HELD: There is a presumption that a registered document is validly executed; the burden to dislodge that presumption lies heavily upon the party assailing it and can be discharged only through clear, cogent and convincing evidence. Where the defendant admitted his presence at the sub-registrar's office, was conversant with registration procedure, levelled only a general allegation of signatures on blank papers without disclosing the manner of the fraud, did not examine the other attesting witness named in his own list of witnesses, lodged no complaint and filed no suit for cancellation, continued business with the plaintiff thereafter, and failed to rebut the sub-registrar's endorsement of admission of execution and consideration, the plea of fraud is not proved and due execution of the agreement stands established. [Paras 87-94]

Specific Relief Act, 1963 — Agreement to sell — Payment of earnest money by cheque — Plea that amount related to business transactions — Burden of proof.

HELD: Where the plaintiff proved through his savings bank account statement that the earnest money was paid by cheque and encashed by the defendant, and the defendant admitted receipt, the burden lay upon the defendant to prove that the amount pertained to business transactions between the parties. The defendant having led no documentary evidence such as GST bills, invoices or income tax returns, while none of the business transactions reflected in the plaintiff's firm account or GST invoices matched the said amount, which was paid from the plaintiff's individual savings account and not from his firm's account, the plea is not established. [Paras 98-99, 111-114]

Specific Relief Act, 1963 — Inadequacy of consideration — Burden to prove market value.

HELD: A bare allegation that the property was valued far in excess of the agreed consideration, unsupported by sale deeds of comparable property, cannot be accepted, particularly where the defendant himself subsequently entered into an unregistered agreement to sell the same house for a considerably lower amount than that alleged. [Paras 95-96, 135]

Specific Relief Act, 1963 — S. 16(c) — Readiness and willingness — No particular phraseology required — Financial capacity — Deficient court fee.

HELD: No specific phraseology or language is required to plead readiness and willingness; compliance has to be in spirit and substance and not in letter and form. The judgment of a Single Judge of this Court insisting upon averments strictly in terms of Forms 47 and 48 of Appendix A to the CPC having been set aside by the Supreme Court, it no longer constitutes good law or a binding precedent. Readiness refers to financial capacity and willingness to the conduct of the plaintiff; it is not necessary for the plaintiff to produce ready money, but he must prove that he has means to generate the consideration. Where the plaint, legal notice and oral evidence consistently asserted readiness and willingness, and the plaintiff's bank statement showed a balance in excess of the balance consideration after execution of the agreement, continuous readiness and willingness stands proved; the mere filing of the suit with deficient court fee, subsequently made good, does not lead to an inference of lack of financial capacity. [Paras 115-127]

Specific Relief Act, 1963 — S. 10 (as amended w.e.f. 01.10.2018) — Specific Relief (Amendment) Act, 2018 — Specific performance no longer discretionary — Applicability.

HELD: After the amendment of Section 10 w.e.f. 01.10.2018, the relief of specific performance of a contract is no longer discretionary and the Court is obliged to enforce specific performance, subject to Sections 11(2), 14 and 16 of the Act. The amending Act being prospective, it does not apply to transactions prior to its coming into force; the agreement to sell in question having been executed on 30.12.2019, after the amendment, the amended provisions apply and the Court is bound to specifically enforce the agreement subject to the said provisions. [Paras 129-134]

Specific Relief Act, 1963 — Hardship pleaded by vendor — Residential-cum-business house — Hardship self-created.

HELD: Where the defendant, being aware from the inception that the house was used by him for residential and business purposes, nonetheless entered into a registered agreement to sell it, the hardship, if any, is due to his own misdeeds, for which the plaintiff cannot be faulted. The plea that the defendant had no financial necessity also stood belied by the sale of his car and of the immovable properties of his wife. There being no fact or circumstance disentitling the plaintiff from the primary relief of specific performance, the decree of the trial court suffers from no perversity. [Paras 136-139]

Appeal dismissed with costs throughout; judgment and decree dated 11.03.2025 affirmed. Defendant-appellant directed to execute the sale deed within two months upon receiving the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs, failing which the plaintiff is entitled to get the sale deed executed through Court by depositing the balance consideration. (Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant appeal has been preferred by the defendant under Section 96 CPC against the impugned judgment and decree dated 11.3.2025 passed by the Court of Civil Judge(Senior Division) Bhadhoi, Gyanpur in O.S. no. 9 of 2022 Ganesh Prasad vs. Tushar Agrawal, whereby the plaintiffs suit for the specific relief of registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 has been decreed.

Plaint case

2. The plaintiff/respondent Ganesh Prasad filed O.S. no. 9 of 2022 against the defendant/appellant with the averments that the defendant is the owner in possession of 2 storeyed building bearing house no.1, facing Gyanpur Road, area 2184 ft*2 or 202.973 m*2 constructed on Arazi no.1, situate in village Poore Gulab(out of town), Pargana Bhadohi, Tehsil Gyanpur, District Sant Ravidas Nagar, the full details of which were described at the foot of the plaint, which is hereinafter referred to as the 'house'. It is the case of the plaintiff that the defendant was in need of money for increasing his business and for personal needs, hence he decided to sell the above house with land and constructions to the plaintiff. The defendant approached the plaintiff and requested him to purchase the said house which was agreed to be sold by the defendant for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs only, out of which a sum of ₹ 20 lakhs was to be paid as earnest money, so as to enable the defendant to meet his immediate financial requirements and it was agreed that the sale deed shall be executed by the defendant after receiving the balance consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs.

3. It was further averred by the plaintiff that in pursuance of the above agreement, a registered agreement to sell was executed by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff on 30.12.2019 which was also registered in the office of sub-registrar, Gyanpur, Bhadohi in Bahi no.1,Zild no. 3053, at pages 103 - 124, at serial no. 4288 on 30.12.2019. It was further averred that the consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid through cheque no. 223569 dated 30.12.2019 drawn on Indian Bank, Branch Lahurabir, Varanasi at the time of execution of the agreement to sell by the plaintiff to the defendant. It was further averred that thereafter, the plaintiff personally met the defendant as per his assurance and requested him to execute and register the sale deed, but no heed was paid by the defendant.

4. It was further averred that when inspite of the lapse of considerable period, the defendant did not express his readiness for execution and registration of sale deed , then after waiving previous notices dated 4.5.2021 and 23.8.2021, the plaintiff sent his last registered notice on 11.9.2021 to the defendant on his residential address as well as his business address by registered post requesting him to execute and register the sale deed, which was personally served upon the defendant on 14.9.2021, but the defendant failed to fulfil the terms of the agreement.

5. It was further averred that when the plaintiff came to know that the defendant was negotiating for sale of the house with others, then the plaintiff was compelled to file the suit for specific performance of the registered agreement to sell. It was further averred that the plaintiff was and is still ready and willing to purchase the disputed premises as agreed upon in accordance with the terms and conditions of the registered agreement to sell and to pay the balance amount of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant at the time of execution and registration of the sale deed.

6. In view of the above backdrop, the plaintiff claimed the following reliefs against the defendant:-

(A)That by means of a decree of specific performance of contract of sale the defendant be directed to execute and register the sale deed in respect of the 2 storeyed building bearing house no.1, facing Gyanpur Road, area 2184 ft*2 or 202.973 m*2 constructed on Arazi no.1, situate in village Poore Gulab(out of town), Pargana Bhadohi, Tehsil Gyanpur, District Sant Ravidas Nagar, the full details of which were described at the foot of the plaint, as per the terms and conditions of registered agreement of sale deed dated 30.12.2019 on receiving of the balance amount of ₹ 10 lakhs in favour of the plaintiff within the time to be fixed by the court and the plaintiff be put in the actual physical possession thereof failing which, the court may be pleased to execute and register the sale deed on behalf of the defendant in favour of the plaintiff and the plaintiff be put in actual possession over the property detailed and described below.

(B)That the cost of the suit be decreed in favour of the plaintiff as against the defendant.

(C)That any other relief to which the plaintiff is found entitled in the opinion of the court the same also be passed in favour of the plaintiff as against the defendant.

Written statement of the defendant

7. The defendant Tushar Agrawal in his written statement denied the plaint averments. It was averred that the plaintiff is in the business of silver and the defendant obtains his silver from the plaintiff, and thereafter, sells it, in this way, since the year 2016, business was going on between them. It was further averred that the relationship of plaintiff and defendant started in the year 2013, when the defendants father Narendra Kumar was alive, there was a mutual trust between the plaintiff and defendant due to which the defendant, trusted the plaintiff.

8. It was further averred that the defendant is having just one residential house, in which his shop is also situated, besides this house, the defendant has no other house to reside. It was specifically averred that neither any conversation ever took place between him and the plaintiff for selling his house nor he executed any agreement to sell on 30.12.2019 in favour of the plaintiff regarding his house. It was further specifically averred that neither the plaintiff gave him consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs through cheque no. 223569 dated 30.12.2019 drawn on Indian Bank, branch Lahurabir nor the above cheque was encashed in plaintiffs bank account. It was further averred that the defendant was not having any financial necessity so as to sell his house.

9. It was further averred that the disputed house was valued not less than ₹ 2 crores, and in order to usurp his house, the plaintiff has managed to get fraudulently executed from him, in collusion with the scribe and witnesses, the alleged agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019, by showing the disputed house to be valued at only ₹ 30 lakhs, whereas at that time, it was valued not less than ₹ 2 crores. It was specifically averred that the defendant never executed the alleged agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019. It was also specifically averred that he never received any legal notice dated 11.9.2021, allegedly sent by the plaintiff. It was also averred that the defendant was not negotiating to sell his sole house to anyone. The plaintiff was not having any cause of action to file the instant suit.

10. It was further averred by the defendant that he used to purchase, after making payment to the plaintiff, raw silver from the plaintiff, and after refining it, used to sell the refined silver to the plaintiff, after receiving its payment from the plaintiff. It was further averred that taking advantage of the above business relations, the plaintiff has fabricated a forged and fraudulent agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019, in collusion with the scribe, witnesses and sub-registrar, which was not binding upon the defendant, which is a void document.

11. It was further averred that the plaintiff 's suit was premature, was also barred by Section 16 and 20 of the Specific Relief Act. It was also averred that the defendant neither negotiated nor had any conversation with Maneesh Kumar Jaiswal for selling his house nor received ₹ 10 lakhs for selling it or has executed any agreement to sell. The plaintiff was never having the financial capacity to purchase the disputed house. The plaintiff was nor is, ready and willing to fulfil the terms of the agreement to sell. The suit has been improperly valued and insufficient court fees has been paid by the plaintiff. The plaintiff 's suit was not legally maintainable and was liable to be dismissed with special costs under Section 35-A CPC.

Issues framed by the trial court

12. The following issues were framed by the trial court (English translation):-

(i)Whether the plaintiff is entitled to specifically enforce the agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 ? OPP

(ii)Whether the plaintiff negotiated to purchase the disputed house for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs, out of which ₹ 20 lakhs was paid as earnest money to the defendant ? OPP

(v)Whether the plaintiff 's suit is barred by Section 16 and 20 of the Specific Relief Act ? OPD

(vi)Whether the defendant is entitled to special costs under Section 35 CPC from the plaintiff ? OPD

(vii)Whether the suit is bad for non-joinder of necessary party ? OPD

(viii)Whether the plaintiff is entitled to any relief ?

Documentary evidence of plaintiff

13. The plaintiff has filed the original agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019, the copy of legal notice dated 11.9.2021, original postal receipts, the certified copy of his bank account statement in Indian Bank, certified copy of the sale deeds dated 8.1.2016, 20.3.2017, 27.11.2018, 29.4.2019, the certified copy of the agreement to sell executed by the defendant in favour of Maneesh Kumar Jaiswal, the bank account statement of M/s Ganesh Jewellers, the report of the handwriting expert, etc.

Documentary evidence of defendant

14. Certified copy of sale deeds, certified copy of khatauni, etc.

Oral evidence of the parties

15. The plaintiff Ganesh Prasad has examined himself as PW-1, Shyamchandra as PW-2 and handwriting expert Mohd. Shahrukh as PW-3, whereas, the defendant Tushar Agrawal has examined himself as DW-1.

Reasoning of the trial court

Issue no. 1 and 2

16. The trial court concluded that the defendant executed an agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in favour of plaintiff for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs out of which ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant as earnest money. The trial court also concluded that no fraud was committed by the plaintiff upon the defendant, taking advantage of business relations between them. The trial court also concluded that the plaintiff always remained ready and willing to get the sale deed executed in his favour. Both the issues were decided in favour of the plaintiff.

Issue no.3 and 4

17. The trial court concluded that the suit has been properly valued by the plaintiff at ₹ 30 lakhs and sufficient court fees of ₹ 2,25,410/- was paid by the plaintiff. Both the issues were decided in favour of the plaintiff vide order dated 7.7.2022.

Issue no. 5

18. The trial court concluded that the plaintiff's suit was not barred by Section 16 and 20 of the Specific Relief Act.

Issue no. 6 and 7

19. The trial court concluded that the defendant was not entitled to special costs from the plaintiff under Section 35 CPC. It also concluded that the suit was not bad for non-joinder of necessary parties since the plaintiff has impleaded the necessary party in the suit.

Issue no. 8

20. The trial court concluded that as per the agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 the sale deed was to be executed within 3 years in favour of the plaintiff after paying the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs but when the defendant, after receiving the legal notice from the plaintiff, failed to execute the sale deed in favour of the plaintiff, then the plaintiff was compelled to file a suit for specific performance of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019, which was perfectly legal. The trial court also concluded that the suit of the plaintiff was not premature, which was filed within the three-year duration fixed by the parties for specific performance of the agreement to sell. This issue was decided in favour of the plaintiff.

21. Accordingly, the plaintiffs suit for the specific performance of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 was decreed and the plaintiff was ordered to pay the remaining consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant, and the defendant was directed to execute and register the sale deed within 2 months in favour of the plaintiff and also to hand over the possession of the disputed property to the plaintiff. Aggrieved against which, the defendant has filed the instant appeal under Section 96 CPC.

Submissions of learned counsel of the defendant appellant

22. Sri Pramod Jain learned Senior Counsel for the appellant submitted that there was business relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant since the year 2013. The defendant used to purchase raw silver from the plaintiff and after refining it, used to sell the refined silver to the plaintiff and taking advantage of this business relationship, the plaintiff fraudulently got executed the disputed agreement to sell from the defendant. He further submitted that the defendant was only having one house in which he was residing with his family and in which his shop/firm was also situated, hence the defendant could not have sold this immovable property to the plaintiff. He further submitted that the defendant was not having any financial necessity/stringency to sell his property to the plaintiff.

23. Learned counsel further submitted that the defendant never went to the sub-registrar office on 30.12.2019 to get the agreement to sell executed and registered in favour of the plaintiff. He further submitted that the alleged agreement mentions that cheque no. 223569 for ₹ 20 lakhs was given by the plaintiff to the defendant towards earnest money but the cheque was never encashed by the defendant in his bank account, which implies that the consideration of the alleged agreement was never paid by the plaintiff to the defendant. He further submitted that the amount of ₹ 20 lakhs related to the business transactions which took place between the firms of the plaintiff and the defendant, for sale purchase of silver, which was not the consideration of the disputed immovable property.

24. Learned counsel further submitted that from the recitals of the legal notice given by the plaintiff to the defendant, it is apparent that the plaintiff never remained ready and willing to perform the terms of the alleged agreement. He submitted that it is mandatory to aver and prove that the plaintiff always remained ready and willing, is ready and willing and in future also, the plaintiff has to prove his continuous readiness and willingness till decree is passed in his favour. He submitted that the plaintiff has failed to comply with the requirements of Section 16 of the Specific Relief Act.

25. Learned counsel further submitted that the suit was filed by the plaintiff without proper court fees, which was subsequently made good, which suo-motu proves that the plaintiff was lacking the financial capacity to pay ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant and was not ready and willing to fulfil the terms of the agreement.

26. Learned counsel further submitted that the market value of the disputed property was more than ₹ 2 crores hence there was no occasion for the defendant to sell it for a paltry consideration of only ₹ 30 lakhs. He submitted that in these circumstances the benefit of Section 20 of the Specific Relief Act should be given to the defendant and the plaintiff may not be granted the primary relief of specific performance of the agreement to sell and he be returned earnest money with interest. With these submissions, it is prayed that the appeal be allowed.

27. In support of his contentions, learned counsel has relied upon the following case law-

(xiii)Kunwar Surendra Bahadur Singh and others vs. Thakur Behari Singh and others 1939 AIR(PC)117

28. Per contra, Sri Vijay Kumar Ojha learned counsel for the plaintiff respondent submitted that the defendant was in necessity of money for his personal requirements and for enhancing his business, hence he willingly without any coercion, agreed to sell his house for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs to the plaintiff, out of which, earnest money of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by cheque no. 223569 by the plaintiff to the defendant, which was encashed by the defendant in his savings account, which was proved by the documentary evidence submitted by the plaintiff before the trial court.

29. Learned counsel further submitted that the agreement to sell specifically mentions that the earnest money of ₹ 20 lakhs was given by the plaintiff to the defendant through cheque no. 223569 dated 30.12.2019 drawn on Indian Bank, Lahurabir branch, Varanasi and as per the bank statement paper no. 31-C, the above amount was debited on 3.1.2020 from the savings bank account of the plaintiff and credited to the bank account of the defendant, which falsifies the assertion of the defendant that he has not received the consideration of the alleged agreement.

30. He further submitted that from the oral evidence of the defendant it is proved that he went to the sub-registrar office willingly on 30.12.2019, and executed and got registered the disputed agreement to sell in favour of the plaintiff, which was also proved from the oral evidence of the plaintiff Ganesh Prasad PW-1,attesting witness Shyamchandra PW-2 and handwriting expert PW-3. He further submitted that the assertion of the defendant that the plaintiff got fraudulently executed from him the agreement to sell, is false, because neither any complaint in this regard was made to the police or any administrative official nor any criminal complaint was filed in the court. He further submitted that the defendant till date has not taken any steps for getting the disputed agreement to sell cancelled. He further submitted that prior to the disputed agreement to sell, the defendant had got executed sale deed of his house in his favour from his 2 brothers and had also facilitated execution of 3 sale deeds in favour of his wife, hence it is improbable that he was not aware of the procedures applicable and the formalities which are required to be complied at the time of registration of the sale deed in the sub-registrar office. Learned counsel further submitted that the assertion of the defendant that he signed on the blank papers or his signature was fraudulently obtained on the agreement to sell by the plaintiff, is totally unbelievable and false, which has been rightly rejected by the trial court.

31. Learned counsel further submitted that the plaintiff always remained ready and willing to fulfil the terms of the agreement to sell by paying the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant, and a legal notice dated 11.09.2021 in this regard was also sent by the plaintiff to the defendant, which was duly received by the defendant on 14.09.2021, and when the defendant failed to execute the sale deed in favour of the plaintiff, then the plaintiff was compelled to file the suit for specific performance of the agreement to sell, which has been rightly decreed by the trial court in favour of the plaintiff.

32. Learned counsel further submitted that the disputed agreement to sell is a registered document, which has been proved in accordance with law by the plaintiff, and there is a presumption also regarding its due execution and registration, which has not been rebutted by the defendant. The defendant could have examined another attesting witness of the sale deed Arun Kumar Jaiswal in support of his contentions, but this witness was not examined by the defendant.

33. Learned counsel further submitted that the disputed property was never valued at ₹ 2 crores. The defendant has not filed any documentary evidence to prove that the disputed house was valued at ₹ 2 crores at the time of execution of agreement to sell.

34. It was further submitted that the part consideration of the agreement amounting to ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff through cheque to the defendant, which was deposited by the defendant in his savings bank account, the receipt of which was also admitted by the defendant DW-1 in his oral evidence. Learned counsel submitted that the assertion of the defendant that the above consideration was towards the business transactions between the plaintiff and the defendant, is false. Learned counsel submitted that between November 2019 and March 2020 only 4 business transactions took place between plaintiff and the defendant, which was proved from the bank account statement of the plaintiff's firm paper no.65-C. Besides the above 4 transactions, no other business transaction ever took place between the plaintiff and the defendant. The defendant could have filed contra documentary evidence, but no such evidence was filed by the defendant. Learned counsel submitted that if the consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs paid by the plaintiff to the defendant was towards business transactions that took place between the plaintiff and the defendant, then the burden of proving this fact was upon the defendant, but no evidence was led by the defendant to prove this fact.

35. It was further submitted that the business transactions between the plaintiff and the defendant were recorded in the bank account statement existing in the name of the firm of the plaintiff and defendant, not in their personal savings account, which was also loaded on the GST portal, which could have been proved by the defendant by leading documentary evidence, but no such evidence was led by the defendant before the trial court. Learned counsel submitted that in view of the above, it cannot be presumed that the consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs paid by the plaintiff to the defendant was towards the business transaction.

36. It was further submitted that the defendant was not willing to execute the sale deed of the disputed house in favour of the plaintiff because he had agreed to sell the disputed house for a consideration of ₹ 50 lakhs to Manish Kumar Jaiswal, and an unregistered agreement to sell was also executed by defendant in favour of Manish Kumar Jaiswal, a certified copy of which was also filed by the plaintiff before the trial court, hence, the plaintiff was compelled to give legal notice dated 11.9.2021 to the defendant and after the defendant failed to execute the sale deed in favour of the plaintiff, the plaintiff had no other option but to file the suit for the relief of specific performance of the agreement against the defendant.

37. Learned counsel further submitted that as per the amended provisions effective from 01.10.2018, the word "aver" has been deleted from Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963. He further submitted that now the grant of specific relief by the Court is not discretionary, but mandatory. With these submissions, it was prayed that the appeal is meritless and be dismissed.

38. In support of his contention, learned counsel has relied upon the following case law:-

Issues for determination before this Court

40. The following issues arise for determination before this Court :-

(A)Whether the defendant executed a registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in favour of the plaintiff ?
(B)Whether any consideration was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant towards the execution of the agreement to sell in his favour?
(C)Whether the consideration paid by the plaintiff to the defendant was related to the business transactions that took place between them?
(D)Whether the alleged agreement to sell was got fraudulently executed by the plaintiff from the defendant taking advantage of the business relationship between them ?
(E)Whether the plaintiff continuously remained ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement to sell ?
(F) Whether the relief of specific performance of contract is still discretionary, after the amendment in Specific Relief Act w.e.f 01.10.2018?

Analysis of case law submitted by the parties

By appellant:-

41. A Single Judge Bench of this Court in the case of Ram Singh (supra) held that the use of the word ready alone may not be sufficient compliance of the mandatory requirement of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act which postulates specific averment both with regard to readiness and willingness. It was further held that the essentials of pleadings are provided in Order 6 of CPC. Rule 3 of the said Order stipulates that forms as prescribed shall be used for all pleadings. It was further held that format of plaints for suits for specific performance of an agreement are provided in Forms 47 and 48 of Appendix A to the CPC. The aforesaid forms clearly provide for making an averment that the plaintiff has been "and still is ready and willing specifically to perform the agreement on his part " or that " the plaintiff is still ready and willing to pay the purchase money of the said property to the defendant ". It was further held that the aforesaid forms of the suit for specific performance as provided in Appendix A to the CPC clearly demonstrate that the averment must be to the effect that the plaintiff is always and is still " ready and willing " to perform his part of the agreement, which is also a mandatory requirement of Section 16(c) of the Act failing which no contract of specific performance is enforceable. The aforesaid judgment has subsequently been set aside by the Apex Court in the case of Sughar Singh vs. Hari Singh(Dead) through LRs and others (2021) 17 SCC 705, hence, it no longer constitutes good law and cannot be regarded as a binding precedent.

42. A Division Bench of this Court in the case of Smt.Veena Agarwal @Veena Garg (supra),on facts, held that plaintiffs were throughout not ready and willing to perform the essential terms of contract in terms of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act, because the dues of the bank were cleared belatedly by them.

43. A Single Judge Bench of this Court in the case of Prem Kumar (supra), where specific performance of an unregistered agreement to sell dated 31.5.1977 was claimed by the plaintiff, held that since the agreement to sell was mandatorily required to be registered in the State of Uttar Pradesh w.e.f. 1.1.1977 hence, the relief of specific performance cannot be granted of the above unregistered agreement to sell. It was further held that the plaintiff failed to plead and prove that he was continuously ready and willing to perform the terms of the agreement.

44. The Apex Court in the case of Sitaram (supra) has held that the basic principle behind Section 16(c) read with Explanation (ii) is that any person seeking benefit of the specific performance of contract must manifest that his conduct has been blemishless throughout entitling him to the specific relief. The provision imposes a personal bar. The Court is to grant relief on the basis of the conduct of the person seeking relief. If the pleadings manifest that the conduct of the plaintiff entitles him to get the relief on perusal of the plaint he should not be denied the relief.

45. The Apex Court in the case of Azhar Sultana (supra) has held that Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act postulates continuous readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff and it is condition precedent for obtaining a decree of specific performance of a contract.

46. The Apex Court in the case of C.S. Venkatesh (supra) has held that mere plea that plaintiff was ready to pay consideration, without any material to substantiate this plea, cannot be accepted. It was further held that it is not necessary for plaintiff to produce ready money to establish its readiness and willingness to pay the consideration, but it is mandatory on his part to prove that he had the means to generate consideration amount within the time-frame contemplated in the contract. On facts, it was held that the plaintiff could neither establish his ability to pay the consideration amount nor could prove his readiness and willingness to perform his part of the contract, hence the rejection of suit for specific performance by the trial court was upheld by the Apex Court.

47. The Apex Court in the case of R.Kandasamy(Dead) (supra), on facts, held that there was no readiness and willingness on the buyers part to pay the balance sale consideration and get the sale deed executed and the buyer despite multiple reminders, did not come forward for execution of the sale deed. It was also held that the buyer was not having enough funds in her bank accounts to pay the balance sale price and thus was not having the financial capacity to perform her part of the contract. On above facts, the discretionary relief of specific performance was not granted to the buyer.

48. The Apex Court in the case of Shamsher Singh (supra) on facts, declined to grant decree of specific performance having regard to the inequitable terms of agreement of sale which gave unfair advantage to plaintiff over defendant.

49. The Apex Court in the case of K.Nanjappa(Dead) (supra) on facts, declined to grant decree of specific performance in favour of the plaintiff, because the disputed contract was written on a quarter sheet of paper, and not on a proper stamp paper and was also written in small letters.

50. The Apex Court in the case of Tulsi (supra) has held that Section 91 of the Evidence Act mainly forbids proving of the contents of a writing otherwise than by writing itself and merely lays down the " best evidence rule". It, however does not prohibit the parties to adduce evidence in a case the deed is capable of being construed differently to show how they understood the same. In this case it was held that the transaction between the parties was a mortgage, not sale.

51. The Apex Court in the case of Maharaj Singh (supra) has held that Section 91 and 92 of the Evidence Act do not prevent parties from adducing evidence on the issue of whether the parties to the documents had agreed to contract on the terms set forth in the document. In this case, the original vendor had subsequently sold the property to 3rd parties. In these facts, it was held that the subsequent purchasers, who were not bona fide purchasers, can be directed to execute the sale deed along with the original vendor and there was no necessity to pray for the cancellation of the subsequent sale deeds. It was further held that since the 2nd plaintiff was not interested in getting the specific performance, the decree ought to have been restricted to the undivided one-half share in the suit property in favour of only the 1st plaintiff.

52. The Kerala High Court in the case of K.Bhaskaran Nair (supra) has held that no oral evidence can be given to vary the terms of the contract. But, the intention of the parties can be proved by oral evidence and oral evidence can be given to show that the contract was not intended to be acted upon.

53. The Privy Council in the case of Kunwar Surendra Bahadur Singh (supra) has held that where one attesting witness was called to prove execution of the mortgage deed and his evidence was rejected as unreliable, then, further evidence of due execution and attestation is necessary. It was further held that signatures of sub- registrar and identifying witnesses affixed to registration endorsement admitting execution of mortgage deed do not suffice as attestation unless made in the presence of the executant. It was further held that endorsements made at the time of registration are relevant only to the matter of registration and do not prove due attestation under the Transfer of Property Act.

By respondent:-

54. The Apex Court in the case of B.Santoshamma (supra) while considering the provisions of the Specific Relief Act 1963, held as under:-

67. The relief of specific performance of an agreement, was at all material times, equitable, discretionary relief, governed by the provisions of the Specific Relief Act, 1963, hereinafter referred to as the SRA. Even though the power of the court to direct specific performance of an agreement may have been discretionary, such power could not be arbitrary. The discretion had necessarily to be exercised in accordance with sound and reasonable judicial principles.

68. Section 10 of the SRA as it stood prior to its amendment with effect from 1-10-2018 provided:

"10. Cases in which specific performance of contract enforceable. Except as otherwise provided in this Chapter, the specific performance of any contract may, in the discretion of the court, be enforced"

(a) when there exists no standard for ascertaining actual damage caused by the non-performance of the act agreed to be done; or

(b) when the act agreed to be done is such that compensation in money for its non-performance would not afford adequate relief.

Explanation.-Unless and until the contrary is proved, the court shall presume"

(i) that the breach of a contract to transfer immovable property cannot be adequately relieved by compensation in money; and

(ii) that the breach of a contract to transfer movable property can be so relieved except in the following cases"

(a) where the property is not an ordinary article of commerce, or is of special value or interest to the plaintiff, or consists of goods which are not easily obtainable in the market;

(b) where the property is held by the defendant as the agent or trustee of the plaintiff."

69. After amendment with effect from 1-10-2018, Section 10 of the SRA provides:

"10. Specific performance in respect of contracts. The specific performance of a contract shall be enforced by the court subject to the provisions contained in sub-section (2) of Section 11, Section 14 and Section 16.

70. After the amendment of Section 10 of the SRA, the words "specific performance of any contract may, in the discretion of the court, be enforced" have been substituted with the words "specific performance of a contract shall be enforced subject to -. The court is, now obliged to enforce the specific performance of a contract, subject to the provisions of sub-section (2) of Section 11, Section 14 and Section 16 of the SRA. Relief of specific performance of a contract is no longer discretionary, after the amendment.

55. The Apex Court in the case of Prem Singh (supra) has held that there is a presumption that a registered document is validly executed. A registered document, therefore, prima-facie would be valid in law. The onus of proof, thus, would be on a person who leads evidence to rebut the presumption.

56. The Apex Court in the case of Sughar Singh (supra) has relied on the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Syed Dastagir (supra) (by 3 Judges) and has held as under :-

"24. Even otherwise it is required to be noted that as such there were concurrent findings of fact recorded by the learned trial court as well as the learned first appellate court on readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff, which were on appreciation of evidence on record. Therefore, in exercise of powers under Section 100CPC the High Court ought not to have interfered with such findings of fact unless such findings are found to be perverse. Having gone through the findings recorded by the learned trial court as well as the learned first appellate court on readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff, we are of the opinion that findings recorded cannot be said to be perverse and/or contrary to the evidence on record. On the contrary, the High Court has ignored the necessary aspects on readiness and willingness which are stated hereinabove including the conduct on the part of the parties.

25. Even the observations made by the High Court that Forms 47 and 48 of the Appendix A to the Code of Civil Procedure provide for making an averment that the plaintiff has been "and still is ready and willing specifically to perform the agreement on his part" or that "the plaintiff is still ready and willing to pay the purchase money of the said property to the defendant" and that "there is non-compliance of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act and the plaint does not even contain any averment that the plaintiff ever required Defendant 1 to attend the office of the Sub-Registrar to execute the sale deed within time agreed are too technical in the facts and circumstances of the case. The overall circumstances and the conduct on the part of the parties are relevant consideration for the purpose of deciding the aforesaid issues and the prayer of the plaintiff in whose favour the execution of the agreement to sell has been held to be proved. The High Court has given unnecessary stress on the word "still".

26. Even while proving the readiness and willingness the plaintiff is not required to make any averment that the plaintiff required executant of the agreement to sell to attend the office of the Sub-Registrar to execute the sale deed within the time agreed. Even as held by this Court in C.S. Venkatesh v. A.S.C. Murthy [(2020) 3 SCC 280 : (2020) 2 SCC (Civ) 90] to adjudge whether the plaintiff is ready and willing to perform his part of contract, the Court must take into consideration the conduct of the plaintiff prior and subsequent to filing of the suit along with other attending circumstances in a particular case. It is also further observed that whether the plaintiff was ready and was always ready to perform his part of contract may be inferred from the facts and circumstances of a particular case. It is further observed that it is not necessary for the plaintiff to produce ready money but it is mandatory on his part to prove that he has means to generate consideration amount.

27. In the present case, even it was not the case on behalf of the defendants and even there is no finding by the High Court that the plaintiff was not having any means to generate consideration amount. It is required to be noted that as per the last extension and the document executed the balance amount of sale consideration i.e. Rs 16,000 was to be paid at the time of execution of the sale deed and earlier out of Rs 56,000 of total sale consideration, Rs 40,000 was already paid and there were two extensions at the instance of the original Defendant 1 who was his father-in-law.

28. Now, so far as the finding recorded by the High Court and the observations made by the High Court on Section 20 of the Act and the observation that even if the agreement is found to be duly executed and the plaintiff is found to be ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement, grant of decree of specific performance is not automatic and it is a discretionary relief is concerned, the same cannot be accepted and/or approved. In such a case, many a times it would be giving a premium to the dishonest conduct on the part of the defendant executant of the agreement to sell. Even the discretion under Section 20 of the Act is required to be exercised judiciously, soundly and reasonably. The plaintiff cannot be punished by refusing the relief of specific performance despite the fact that the execution of the agreement to sell in his favour has been established and proved and that he is found to be always ready and willing to perform his part of the contract. Not to grant the decree of specific performance despite the execution of the agreement to sell is proved; part sale consideration is proved and the plaintiff is always ready and willing to perform his part of the contract would encourage the dishonesty. In such a situation, the balance should tilt in favour of the plaintiff rather than in favour of the defendant executant of the agreement to sell, while exercising the discretion judiciously.

29. For the aforesaid, even amendment to the Specific Relief Act, 1963 by which Section 10(a) has been inserted, though may not be applicable retrospectively but can be a guide on the discretionary relief. Now the legislature has also thought it to insert Section 10(a) and now the specific performance is no longer a discretionary relief. As such the question whether the said provision would be applicable retrospectively or not and/or should be made applicable to all pending proceedings including appeals is kept open. However, at the same time, as observed hereinabove, the same can be a guide.

30. Even otherwise it is required to be noted that as such on applicability of Section 20 of the Act, no issue was framed either by the learned trial court or by the learned first appellate court or even by the High Court. The same has been dealt with by the High Court for the first time in a second appeal under Section 100CPC. Even otherwise no cogent reasons have been given as to why the decree of specific performance shall not be passed in favour of the plaintiff."

57. The Apex Court in the case of Parswanath Saha (supra) has held that the question of hardship as mentioned in Section 20 of the Specific Relief Act 1963 is to be adjudged in the facts and circumstances of each case. It was further held that mere rise in price subsequent to the date of the contract or inadequacy of price is not to be treated as a hardship entertaining refusal of specific performance of the contract. Further, the hardship involved should be one not foreseen by the party and should be collateral to the contract. In sum, it is not just one factor or two, that is relevant for consideration. But it is the sum total on various factors which is required to enter into the judicial verdict. It was further held that hardship has to be determined with reference to the circumstances existing at the time of the contract, except where the hardship has been caused from an act of the plaintiff subsequent to the contract.

58. The Apex Court in the case of Manjunath Anandappa Urf Shivappa Hanasi (supra) has reiterated that a plaintiff in a suit for specific performance of contract not only must raise a plea that he had all along been and even on the date of filing of suit was ready and willing to perform his part of contract, but also prove the same. Only in certain exceptional situation where although in letter and spirit, the exact words had not been used but readiness and willingness can be culled out from reading all the averments made in the plaint as a whole coupled with the materials brought on record at the trial of the suit, to the said effect, the statutory requirement of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act may be held to have been complied with.

59. The Apex Court in the case of P.Daivasigamani (supra) has held that readiness and willingness are not one, but two separate elements. Readiness means the capacity of the plaintiff to perform the contract, which would include the financial position to pay the purchase price. Willingness refers to the intention of the plaintiff as a purchaser to perform his part of the contract. Willingness is inferred by scrutinising the conduct of the plaintiff/purchaser, including attending circumstances. Continuous readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff/purchaser from the date the balance sale consideration was payable in terms of the agreement to sell, till the decision of the suit, is a condition precedent for grant of relief of specific performance. It has also relied on the interpretation made by the Apex Court previously in Syed Dastagir's case whereby the plea of " readiness and willingness to perform " was interpreted. It is also held that the amending act No. 18 of 2018 whereby the provisions of the Specific Relief Act were amended with effect from 1.10.2018 are prospective in nature which cannot apply to those transactions that took place prior to its coming into force.

60. The Apex Court in the case of Syed Dastagir (supra) has construed the plea of " readiness and willingness to perform " in Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act.

61. The Apex Court in the case of M/s J.P. Builders (supra) has held as under:-

"22. The words "ready" and "willing" imply that the person was prepared to carry out the terms of the contract. The distinction between "readiness" and "willingness" is that the former refers to financial capacity and the latter to the conduct of the plaintiff wanting performance. Generally, readiness is backed by willingness.

23. In N.P. Thirugnanam v. Dr. R. Jagan Mohan Rao [(1995) 5 SCC 115] at SCC para 5, this Court held: (SCC pp. 117-18)

"5. - Section 16(c) of the Act envisages that the plaintiff must plead and prove that he had performed or has always been ready and willing to perform the essential terms of the contract which are to be performed by him, other than those terms the performance of which has been prevented or waived by the defendant. The continuous readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff is a condition precedent to grant the relief of specific performance. This circumstance is material and relevant and is required to be considered by the court while granting or refusing to grant the relief. If the plaintiff fails to either aver or prove the same, he must fail. To adjudge whether the plaintiff is ready and willing to perform his part of the contract, the court must take into consideration the conduct of the plaintiff prior and subsequent to the filing of the suit along with other attending circumstances. The amount of consideration which he has to pay to the defendant must of necessity be proved to be available. Right from the date of the execution till date of the decree he must prove that he is ready and has always been willing to perform his part of the contract. As stated, the factum of his readiness and willingness to perform his part of the contract is to be adjudged with reference to the conduct of the party and the attending circumstances. The court may infer from the facts and circumstances whether the plaintiff was ready and was always ready and willing to perform his part of the contract."

24. In P. D'Souza v. Shondrilo Naidu [(2004) 6 SCC 649] this Court observed: (SCC p. 654, paras 19 and 21)

"19. It is indisputable that in a suit for specific performance of contract the plaintiff must establish his readiness and willingness to perform his part of contract. The question as to whether the onus was discharged by the plaintiff or not will depend upon the facts and circumstances of each case. No straitjacket formula can be laid down in this behalf.

21. - The readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff to perform his part of contract would also depend upon the question as to whether the defendant did everything which was required of him to be done in terms of the agreement for sale.

25. Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 mandates "readiness and willingness" on the part of the plaintiff and it is a condition precedent for obtaining relief of grant of specific performance. It is also clear that in a suit for specific performance, the plaintiff must allege and prove a continuous "readiness and willingness" to perform the contract on his part from the date of the contract. The onus is on the plaintiff.

26. It has been rightly considered by this Court in R.C. Chandiok v. Chuni Lal Sabharwal [(1970) 3 SCC 140] that "readiness and willingness" cannot be treated as a straitjacket formula. This has to be determined from the entirety of the facts and circumstances relevant to the intention and conduct of the party concerned.

27. It is settled law that even in the absence of specific plea by the opposite party, it is the mandate of the statute that the plaintiff has to comply with Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act and when there is non-compliance with this statutory mandate, the court is not bound to grant specific performance and is left with no other alternative but to dismiss the suit. It is also clear that readiness to perform must be established throughout the relevant points of time. "Readiness and willingness" to perform the part of the contract has to be determined/ascertained from the conduct of the parties.

62. The Apex Court in the case of Man Kaur (Dead) (supra) on facts, has declined to grant the relief of specific performance of the agreement to the plaintiff.

Conclusion of this Court

(A)Whether the defendant executed a registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in favour of the plaintiff ?

(B)Whether any consideration was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant towards the execution of the agreement to sell in his favour?

63. It is the case of the plaintiff Ganesh Prasad PW-1 that the defendant Tushar Agrawal DW-1 was in need of money for enhancing his business and also for his personal needs hence the defendant decided to sell his residential house and approached the plaintiff and requested him to purchase the disputed house, which ultimately the plaintiff agreed for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs, out of which an earnest money of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant through cheque no. 223569 dated 30.12.2019 which was drawn on Indian Bank, Branch Lahurabir,Varanasi. It was agreed between the parties that the remaining amount of ₹ 10 lakhs will be paid by the plaintiff to the defendant at the time of execution of the sale deed. It is the case of the plaintiff that the defendant willingly executed an agreement to sell in the presence of witnesses Shyamchandra PW-2 and Arun Kumar Jaiswal in favour of the plaintiff on receiving the part consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs on 30.12.2019, which was on the same day, subsequently registered in the office of sub-registrar Gyanpur,Bhadohi.

64. The perusal of the plaint shows that the plaintiff has pleaded that he personally met the defendant and requested him to execute and register the sale deed but the defendant failed to do so hence, the plaintiff gave two registered notices dated 4.5.2021 and 23.8.2021 to the defendant for executing the sale deed in his favour and after waiving these 2 notices, finally a registered legal notice was given dated 11.9.2021 to the defendant to execute the sale deed but when it was not complied by the defendant, the plaintiff was compelled to file the instant suit in the competent court for the specific performance of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019. It was also pleaded that the intention of the defendant has turned dishonest and malafide, who was negotiating with other persons for selling the disputed property.

65. The perusal of the plaint shows that the plaintiff has specifically pleaded that he was always ready and willing and is still ready and willing to purchase the disputed property in accordance with the terms of the registered agreement after paying the balance consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant. From the perusal of the legal notice dated 11.9.2021 it is apparent that it mentions that the plaintiff has arranged the remaining consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs and was ready and willing and the plaintiff has assured that, he will also in the future remain ready and willing to get the sale deed of the disputed house executed and registered in his favour after paying the balance consideration to the defendant.

66. It is apparent that the defendant in his written statement altogether denied the execution of the alleged agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in favour of the plaintiff. The defendant has categorically averred that he has not received the alleged earnest money of ₹ 20 lakhs from the plaintiff. The defendant has averred that there was business relationship between him and the plaintiff since the year 2016 in which he purchased raw silver from the plaintiff and after refining it, sold the refined silver back to the plaintiff and taking advantage of this business relationship, the plaintiff has fraudulently managed to get the alleged agreement to sell executed from him. The defendant has further taken a plea that he has only one house, in which he is residing with his family ,in which his firm is also situated, hence he cannot sell this house to the plaintiff. The defendant also pleaded that he was never in necessity of money and as such, there was no occasion for him to sell his house to the plaintiff. The defendant has further pleaded that the disputed house was valued at more than ₹ 2 crores hence there was no justification for him to sell it only for a paltry consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs. Although the plaintiff has alleged that he gave legal notice to the defendant before filing of the suit, which was also received by the defendant, but in the written statement, the defendant has denied this. The defendant has also averred that he was not intending to sell the disputed property to Manish Kumar Jaiswal, and no agreement to sell has been executed in his favour. It was also averred that the plaintiff never remained ready and willing to fulfil the terms of the agreement hence the suit filed by him was not legally maintainable.

67. From the perusal of the registered agreement to sell it is evident that it was contemplated that the plaintiff after arranging the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs, in every circumstance will get the sale deed executed from the defendant within a period of 3 years from 30.12.2019, and if the defendant fails to do so, then the plaintiff was given the right to get the sale deed executed from the Court after depositing the balance consideration with it.

68. PW-1 Ganesh Prasad in his examination-in-chief has reiterated the plaint averments. He deposed that he always remained ready and willing to get the sale deed executed by paying the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant, as per the terms of the agreement to sell, and also requested the defendant personally, but when the defendant procrastinated, then he gave legal notice to the defendant on 4.5.2021, 23.8.2021, and after waiving these notices, a final notice dated 11.9.2021 was given by his counsel Shri Dinesh Kumar Advocate , to the defendant to execute the sale deed in his favour, which was also received by the defendant on 14.9.2021 but still, the sale deed was not executed in his favour. He further deposed that the intention of the defendant had turned malafide. He further deposed that he maintained a balance of ₹ 10 lakhs in his savings bank account to pay the defendant towards remaining consideration of the sale deed but the defendant was busy negotiating with other persons, to sell the disputed house, hence he filed the suit. He further deposed that the agreement was executed by the defendant in the presence of the witnesses.

69. PW-1 further deposed in cross-examination that the disputed agreement of sale was got typed by Tushar Agrawal in Varanasi and was presented to the sub-registrar by the defendant. He gave account payee cheque no. 223569 to the defendant on 30.12.2019 in the sub-registrar office, before the sub-registrar, in the presence of witnesses. The cheque was issued in the name of Tushar Agrawal. Besides this cheque, neither any other cheque was given nor any cash payment was made, to the defendant. He admitted that he was not present at the time when the document was being prepared by Tushar Agrawal. An e-stamp of ₹ 60,000/- was purchased from Central Bank of India, Gyanpur, for the agreement, the amount was paid by him. The agreement to sell was signed by him and the defendant after reading it, thereafter, it was signed by the witnesses. The agreement to sell was of land and house, pertaining to an area of 2184 ft□. The agreement was got typed by Tushar Agrawal.He gave notice to the defendant through his advocate Dinesh Kumar. The notice given to the defendant on 11.9.2021 was received by him on 14.9.2021. The notices were sent to the defendant on his individual address as well as the address of his firm, both were received by Tushar Agrawal.The cheque No. 223569 of ₹ 20 lakhs was issued from his saving account, which was given to the defendant on 30.12.2019 in the presence of witnesses, in the office of sub-registrar.

70. Shyamchandra PW-2, the attesting witness of the agreement, deposed in examination-in-chief that the defendant willingly due to financial necessity and for enhancement of his business, agreed to sell the disputed house for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs in favour of the plaintiff, out of which ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff as earnest money to the defendant and a registered agreement to sell was executed on 30.12.2019 by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff, which was subsequently registered in the office of sub-registrar Gyanpur at Bhadohi in book no.1, zild no. 3053, at pages 103 - 124 at serial no. 4288 on 30.12.2019. He further deposed that the earnest money of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant through cheque before the sub-registrar Gyanpur at Bhadohi and as per the conditions of the agreement to sell, an amount of ₹ 10 lakhs was to be paid by the plaintiff to the defendant at the time of execution of sale deed.

71. He further deposed that the contents of the agreement to sell was read by Advocate Anoop Kumar Srivastava to the defendant Tushar Agrawal , Ganesh Prasad and the 2 witnesses. Besides this, Tushar Agrawal after reading and understanding the agreement to sell, had signed it and also affixed his thumb impression on every page. The agreement was also signed by the buyer plaintiff, witnesses and Advocate Anoop Kumar Srivastava. He further deposed that thereafter, he, plaintiff, defendant, the other witness and Anoop Kumar Srivastava went to the sub-registrar office where the sub-registrar asked Tushar Agrawal whether he had agreed to execute the agreement to sell for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs of his house and whether he had received ₹ 20 lakhs through cheque as earnest money and after getting its confirmation from Tushar Agrawal, the agreement to sell was registered.

72. PW-2 in cross-examination deposed that he met Tushar Agrawal for the 1st time in the sub-registrar office at Gyanpur at about 12 1 p.m. He was accompanied by Ganesh Prasad. The agreement was got typed by Tushar Agrawal and the consideration of the stamp was also paid by Tushar Agrawal. The agreement was not typed in his presence. The document was produced by Tushar Agrawal before the sub-registrar. Arun Kumar Jaiswal had also signed the agreement as a witness. He further deposed that he was a witness of the plaintiff.

73. Handwriting expert Mohd.Shahrukh PW-3 in his examination-in-chief deposed that the agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 bears the signature and fingerprint of defendant Tushar Agrawal.

74. Tushar Agrawal DW-1 in his examination-in-chief denied execution of the disputed agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in favour of the plaintiff, denied receiving any consideration for the alleged agreement, denied that he was in need of money for his personal requirement and business. He alleged that the plaintiff fraudulently taking advantage of his business relations with him, had got executed a forged agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 for inadequate consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs, whereas the disputed house was valued not less than ₹ 2 crores. He also denied receiving any legal notice from the plaintiff. He reiterated that he was having only one house in which he was residing with his wife and children, which was never agreed to be sold to the plaintiff or any other person.

75. He further deposed that he used to purchase raw silver from the plaintiff, which was sold to the plaintiff after refining it and taking advantage of the above business relations, the plaintiff had managed to get fraudulently prepared the alleged agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in connivance with the scribe, witnesses and sub-registrar, which was not binding on him. He will also file a suit for the cancellation of the alleged agreement to sell.

76. He further deposed that he never had any talks with Manish Kumar Jaiswal for selling the disputed house to him and the plaintiff has filed fraudulent documents regarding such transaction, which is not binding on him. He specifically denied receiving earnest money of ₹ 10 lakhs for executing an agreement to sell in favour of Manish Kumar Jaiswal. He further deposed that the plaintiff is neither ready and willing nor he has remained so.

77. DW-1 Tushar Agrawal in his cross-examination deposed that he is a businessman. The name of his firm is Ganpati Abhushan Mandir. He deals in sale - purchase of silver. He also files the income tax return. His wife's name is Shweta Agrawal. He had purchased land in village Thanipur, Goppur and Chakparauna in his wife's name. He started business in the year 2013 from his firm Ganpati Abhushan. From this firm, he does business of purchase sale of raw and refined silver. He is having a current account of his firm Ganpati Abhushan Mandir in Union Bank of India, Gopiganj. After perusing paper No. 31-C, he acknowledged that on 3.1.2020 an amount of ₹

20 lakhs has been credited to his account. He feigned ignorance that his photo is affixed on agreement to sell paper no. 43-A. His 2nd firm is named Vinayak Abhushan Mandir.

78. After perusing paper No. 31-C he disclosed that the amount of ₹ 20 lakhs pertains to business transaction hence he deposited it in his firm's current account. He clarified that he utilised this amount in his business. After perusing paper No. 31-C/1 he could not tell, whether cheque No. 223569 was written in it or not. He further deposed that the plaintiff fraudulently taking undue advantage of the business relations with him, obtained his signatures on the blank papers on the pretext of doing business and also obtained 4 cheques of ₹ 25 - 25 lakhs, who obtained his signature on some papers on the pretext of preparing an agreement.

79. He further deposed that the plaintiff obtained his signature on about 15 - 20 blank pages, one of which was a stamp paper of ₹ 100/-. He further deposed that the plaintiff gave him ₹ 20 lakhs towards labour charges, which was a yearly settlement. He could not tell whether the above amount of ₹ 20 lakhs towards labour charges was shown by his chartered accountant in his annual income tax return or not ?

80. The defendant DW-1 was shown paper No. 34-C, a certified copy of the unregistered agreement to sell of the disputed property allegedly executed by the defendant in favour of Manish Kumar Jaiswal for a consideration of ₹ 50 lakhs, to which the witness feigned ignorance and could not tell whether it was signed by him or not. He disclosed that he filed a case against Manish Kumar Jaiswal, but stated that no compromise was reached with him. He deposed that he can examine Arun Kumar Jaiswal, who is included in the list of witnesses, who is a businessman doing business in gold silver.

81. He feigned ignorance that on 30.12.2019 Arun Kumar Jaiswal accompanied him to the sub-registrar office, who was witness of the agreement to sell, on his behalf. He accepted that till date, he has not filed any suit for cancellation of the agreement to sell against the plaintiff. The plaintiff committed fraud on him by taking 4 cheques of ₹ 25 - 25 lakhs, obtained his signature on blank paper and fraudulently got executed the agreement to sell from him. He admitted that he has not lodged a complaint with the police or administrative officials or a case in the court, regarding the above fraudulent acts allegedly committed by the plaintiff. He was under pressure, because he was doing business with the plaintiff. The disputed house is valued at about ₹ 2 crores, because the adjoining houses have been sold for that amount but he cannot file the certified copy of those transactions.

82. He admitted that he read the alleged agreement to sell after 2 - 3 days in which the cheque number was written but he clarified that no such cheque was ever received by him. Since he was under pressure, no written complaint was made to the plaintiff. He also made no complaint to the police regarding non-receipt of ₹ 20 lakhs. He denied having executed an unregistered agreement to sell of his house in the year 2020 for ₹ 50 lakhs in favour of Manish Jaiswal.

83. He disclosed that after the plaintiff committed fraud upon him, after a period of 6 months - 1 year, he stopped doing business with him. He was having business with Ganesh Prasad since the year 2013. He admitted that paper No. 43-A/10 bears the photo of his witness Arun Kumar Jaiswal. He admitted that he was having no enmity and acquaintance with sub-registrar Sherdendu Mishr.

84. He admitted that he went to the sub-registrar office, where the sub-registrar and other persons were present, where on some papers his signature was fraudulently obtained. His witness, Arun Kumar Jaiswal and the plaintiff Ganesh Prasad was also present. He denied that the sub-registrar asked him anything regarding the disputed agreement to sell as well as its consideration and receipt of earnest money through cheque. He feigned ignorance whether his, Ganesh Prasad and witness Shyamchandra and Arun Kumar Jaiswal's photograph and thumb impression were taken in the sub-registrar office. He admitted that on the day when the agreement to sell was allegedly executed, he went to the sub-registrar office on the asking of the plaintiff Ganesh Prasad for signing some documents, but he is not aware of the nature of the document. He disclosed that his signature and thumb impression was previously obtained on a blank paper, hence what was his necessity of going to the sub-registrar office, only Ganesh Prasad knew. Ganesh Prasad told him that he has to sign some documents in sub-registrar office and campus, these were the same documents on which he had earlier signed and affixed his thumb impression.

85. He further deposed that he had applied for the certified copy of the agreement to sell, thereafter, he read it. When he received the notice, then he read it. Notice was also received on the mobile. Since money was required for initiating litigation, which he did not have, hence he did nothing after receiving the notice. He didn't accompany Arun Kumar Jaiswal to the sub-registrar office. He went to the sub-registrar office on 30.12.2019 for signing documents relating to business. The documents were taken by Ganesh Prasad. What was enquired from him by the sub-registrar, he did not remember because he was suffering from cold. The document on which he signed, he didn't enquire about it, because he trusted him. He neither received any cheque for the agreement to sell nor received any payment of cheque through RTGS. He returned from the sub-registrar office in the evening. He admitted that the document on which he signed, was also signed by Arun Kumar Jaiswal as a witness. He also admitted that his photograph, signature and thumb impression were taken in the sub-registrar office, but on which document it was obtained, he did not knew because he was indisposed. He admitted that the sub-registrar enquired from him but he could not remember it. He disclosed that prior to 30.12.2019 also, he went to the sub-registrar office for getting the sale deed executed from his brothers. He also went to the sub-registrar office for purchasing property in the name of his wife. He got executed 3 sale deeds in favour of his wife.

86. He further deposed that he has sold his car. He has replied to the notice received on his mobile and also filed it in this case. Arun Kumar Jaiswal is not his witness, but he is the witness of Ganesh Prasad. He was having no necessity of money so as to execute the agreement to sell in favour of the plaintiff.

87. From the above oral evidence of PW-1 Ganesh Prasad and PW-2 Shyamchandra and documentary evidence on record, it is evident that the defendant executed an agreement to sell in favour of the plaintiff on 30.12.2019 in presence of the witnesses Shyamchandra PW-2 and Arun Kumar Jaiswal. The defendant DW-1 in his oral evidence has admitted that he went to the office of the sub-registrar on 30.12.2019 where taking advantage of the business relations between him and the plaintiff, the plaintiff got fraudulently executed the disputed agreement from him by obtaining signatures on some blank papers with the connivance of attesting witnesses, scribe and concerned sub-registrar. The defendant has also admitted that prior to the disputed agreement, he has got executed a sale deed of the disputed house in his favour from his brothers and has also facilitated the execution of 3 sale deeds in his wife's favour, as such, it cannot be said that the defendant was not at all conversant with the procedure and practices prevalent in the concerned sub-registrar office, which were followed at the time of execution and registration of the sale deed.

88. It is also pertinent to mention here that the defendant has failed to mention the manner in which fraud was practised upon him in the office of the sub-registrar by the plaintiff. The defendant has only levelled a general allegation that the plaintiff obtained his signature on some blank papers.

89. It is also evident that the plaintiff has examined himself as PW-1 and attesting witness Shyamchandra as PW-2 to prove the execution of the agreement to sell. The defendant admitted that Arun Kumar Jaiswal was another attesting witness of the agreement to sell, but inspite of mentioning his name in the list of witnesses paper number 107-C, this witness was not examined by the defendant to discredit the evidence of the plaintiff insofar as the execution of the agreement to sell was concerned. The defendant could very well have examined Arun Kumar Jaiswal to create doubt about the veracity of the alleged agreement to sell, but no such effort was made by the defendant.

90. It is also evident that the defendant DW-1 has admitted that he was having no enmity with the concerned sub-registrar Sherdendu Mishr. The defendant has also admitted that neither any complaint regarding the alleged fraudulent act of the plaintiff has been made to the police, administrative official or the Court nor any cancellation of the alleged agreement to sell was sought by filing suit. The defendant has also admitted that even after the alleged execution of the agreement to sell, he continued having business with the plaintiff for 6 months 1 year. It is also evident that the alleged agreement to sell contains the digital photograph of the defendant, plaintiff and the 2 witnesses and their thumb impression. The agreement also contains the endorsement of the concerned sub-registrar that the parties to the agreement have accepted its execution and the consideration mentioned in it, which has not been rebutted by the defendant by leading any cogent evidence.

91. The Apex Court in the case of Prem Singh (supra) has held that there is a presumption that a registered document is validly executed. A registered document, therefore, prima-facie would be valid in law. The onus of proof, thus, would be on a person who leads evidence to rebut the presumption.

92. Similarly, the Apex Court in the case of Rattan Singh and others vs. Nirmal Gill and others (2021) 15 SCC 300 held as under:-

“33. To appreciate the findings arrived at by the courts below, we must first see on whom the onus of proof lies. The record reveals that the disputed documents are registered. We are, therefore, guided by the settled legal principle that a document is presumed to be genuine if the same is registered, as held by this Court in Prem Singh v. Birbal [Prem Singh v. Birbal, (2006) 5 SCC 353] . The relevant portion of the said decision reads as below : (SCC pp. 360-61, para 27)

"27. There is a presumption that a registered document is validly executed. A registered document, therefore, prima facie would be valid in law. The onus of proof, thus, would be on a person who leads evidence to rebut the presumption. In the instant case, Respondent 1 has not been able to rebut the said presumption."

In view thereof, in the present cases, the initial onus was on the plaintiff, who had challenged the stated registered document.

93. The Apex Court again in the case of Sarafat Ali(Deceased) Through Lrs. And Others vs. Deputy Director of Consolidation Haridwar and Others 2026 SCC OnLine SC 1190, held as under:-

"51....It is trite law that a registered document carries a presumption of valid execution and genuineness unless rebutted by cogent evidence. In this regard, it would be apposite to refer to the recent decision of this Court in Hemalatha (D) by Legal Representatives v. Tukaram (D) by Legal Representatives16, wherein the relevant observation read thus:

"31. It is a settled position of law that a registered Sale Deed carries with it a formidable presumption of validity and genuineness. Registration is not a mere procedural formality but a solemn act that imparts high degree of sanctity to the document. Consequently, a Court must not lightly or casually declare a registered instrument as a "sham". Adopting the principles enunciated in Prem Singh v. Birbal, (2006) 5 SCC 3531, Jamila Begum (Dead) Through Lrs. v. Shami Mohd. (Dead) Through Lrs., (2019) 2 SCC 727 : (2019) 2 SCC (Civ) 632, and Rattan Singh v. Nirmal Gill, (2021) 15 SCC 3003, this Court reiterates that the burden of proof to displace this presumption rests heavily upon the challenger. Such a challenge can only be sustained if the party provides material particulars and cogent evidence to demonstrate that the Deed was never intended to operate as a bona fide transfer of title.

32. The grounds typically accepted to challenge a registered Deed at the instance of the vendee/executant are fraud or want of capacity in any party or mistake of fact or fundamental illegality like where the Deed was executed under deceit or sold by a fraudster who did not own the land or where the Deed was executed without consideration, namely, if no money or value was actually exchanged despite recitals in the Deeds or where there was coercion or intimidation like where the seller was forced to sign without free consent.

33. While the aforementioned grounds are illustrative and not exhaustive, this Court must caution against the growing tendency to challenge registered instruments "at the drop of a hat". If the sanctity of registered documents is diluted, it would erode public confidence in property transactions and jeopardize the security of titles. In a society governed by the Rule of Law, registered documents must inspire certainty; they cannot be rendered precarious by frivolous litigation.

52. The aforesaid observations leave little room for doubt that a registered conveyance cannot be lightly brushed aside on conjectures or insignificant discrepancies. The burden to dislodge the presumption attaching to such an instrument lies heavily upon the party assailing it, and such burden can be discharged only through clear, cogent and convincing evidence establishing fraud, fabrication, want of execution or any other circumstance striking at the root of the transaction itself.

94. It is evident that in this case the burden was upon the defendant to rebut the above evidence of due execution and registration of the disputed agreement to sell. In the absence of any contra evidence, the defendant has failed to prove that the disputed agreement to sell was fraudulently got executed from him by the plaintiff. The plaintiff has duly proved that the disputed agreement to sell was willingly executed on 30.12.2019 by the defendant.

95. The defendant has also alleged that the disputed house was at the relevant time valued at about ₹ 2 crores hence there was no occasion for him to execute the alleged agreement in favour of the plaintiff for a paltry consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs. The defendant could have filed the sale deeds of the comparable immovable property to prove the above fact but no such evidence has been filed by the defendant.

96. It is further pertinent to mention that the defendant entered into an unregistered agreement to sell of the disputed house for a consideration of ₹ 50 lakhs with Manish Kumar Jaiswal in the year 2021, a certified copy of which was filed by the plaintiff before the trial court as paper no. 34-C. The defendant alleged that the above agreement was forcibly got executed from him by Manish Kumar Jaiswal and hence moved an application under Section 156 (3) CrPC before the Court of Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bhadohi for getting a FIR registered against Manish Kumar Jaiswal in which subsequently compromise was reached between the parties on 29.6.2021. The plaintiff has also filed the certified copy of the compromise reached between the parties in which the defendant has agreed to return the consideration of ₹ 50 lakhs to Manish Kumar Jaiswal. Although, the defendant has denied the above transaction of his house with Manish Kumar Jaiswal, but the denial of the defendant is unbelievable. It is evident that even the defendant has not sold his property to Manish Kumar Jaiswal for ₹ 2 crores in the year 2021, hence, by no stretch of imagination it can be presumed that at the relevant time on 30.12.2019, the disputed house was valued at about ₹ 2 crores.

97. It is also evident that the defendant DW-1 although in his written statement denied the receipt of legal notice from the plaintiff but in the oral evidence, he has accepted that he received the legal notice from the plaintiff. The defendant has also stated that he received the notice on his mobile also to which he had replied.

98. It is also evident that the earnest money of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant through cheque no. 223569 dated 30.12.2019 drawn on Indian Bank, branch Lahurabir, Varanasi, which was also proved by the plaintiff by filing the account statement of his bank before the trial court, which was paper no. 31-C. The above bank statement proves that on 3.1.2020 through cheque No. 223569 amount of ₹ 20 lakhs has been paid to Tushar Agrawal. It is also evident that the above bank account of the plaintiff is the savings bank account.

99. The defendant DW-1 in his cross-examination after perusing the above bank statement paper no. 31-C has accepted that he has received an amount of ₹ 20 lakhs from the plaintiff. The defendant has neither filed any statement of his bank account nor given any legal notice to the plaintiff to prove that he has not received the above payment from the plaintiff. Hence, in view of the above oral and documentary evidence on record, it is proved that the earnest money of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff to the defendant for executing the disputed agreement to sell in his favour on 30.12.2019 through cheque no.223569 which was encashed by the defendant on 3.1.2020.

100. Accordingly, issues A, B and D are decided in favour of the plaintiff.

(C)Whether the consideration paid by the plaintiff to the defendant was related to the business transactions that took place between them?

101. It is the contention of the defendant that since the year 2013 he was having business relationship with the plaintiff. He used to purchase raw silver from the plaintiff and after refining it, used to sell refined silver back to the plaintiff and the alleged consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs paid by the plaintiff was towards the business transactions that took place between him and the plaintiff. It has been specifically pleaded by the defendant that the above amount was not paid by the plaintiff as earnest money of the alleged agreement to sell executed by him in favour of the plaintiff. The above fact was denied by the plaintiff by stating that only 4 business transactions took place between him and the defendant during the period November 2019 March 2020. The plaintiff also filed the bank statement of his firm paper no. 65-C2 to prove the above business transactions.

102. On the contrary, the defendant has not filed any documentary evidence to prove that the above consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff towards the business transactions that took place between him and the plaintiff.

103. PW-1 Ganesh Prasad in his examination-in-chief reiterated the plaint averments. PW-1 in cross-examination deposed that he does business of silver ornaments in the name and style of M/S Ganesh Jewellers, which is a registered firm, and his shop is situated in Varanasi. He is in this business since the year 2014 15. He admitted that the defendant Tushar Agrawal was purchasing silver ornaments from him since November 2019, which was sold by issuing receipt to the defendant. His firm had no dealing with Narendra Agrawal. He admitted that there were 4 transactions of silver between him and the defendant, during the period November 2019 March 2020. Tushar Agrawal is the proprietor of M/s Ganapathi Abhushan Mandir, with which he had transactions.

104. He further deposed that Tushar Agrawal used to purchase silver and ornaments from him, bill of which was issued to him, which was being paid by him, before purchase. Tushar Agrawal never purchased raw silver from him, only silver ornaments were purchased from him, regarding which bill was issued to him. The defendant paid through his(plaintiff) bank account in the name of Ganesh Jewellers. The bills were generated through GST portal. The bill of silver ornaments was signed both by him and Tushar Agrawal.

105. He further deposed that paper no. 65-C2 pertains to account No. 02251131002137 in which transaction dated 30.12.2019 was not conducted. The above account contains transactions made on GST portal. The transactions made with Tushar Agrawal on the GST portal, contain bill number also. Paper no. 65-C2 records 4 transactions between him and the defendant, from November 2019 March 2020. There are 4 transactions with Ganpati Abhushan Mandir which are bill No. 34 dated 29.11.2019, invoice No. 38 dated 18.12.2019, invoice No. 43 dated 27.02.2020 and invoice No. 50 dated 6.3.2020. Besides the above transactions, no other transaction took place.

106. Tushar Agrawal DW-1 in his examination in chief reiterated the averments made in his written statement. He further deposed that he used to purchase raw silver from the plaintiff, which was sold to the plaintiff after refining it .

107. DW-1 Tushar Agrawal in his cross examination deposed that he is a businessman. The name of his firm is Ganpati Abhushan Mandir. He deals in sale - purchase of silver. He also files the income tax return. He started business in the year 2013 from his firm Ganpati Abhushan. From this firm, he does business of purchase - sale of raw and refined silver. At present he is not doing the business of refining raw silver. He is having a current account of his firm Ganpati Abhushan Mandir in Union Bank of India, Gopiganj. His 2nd firm is named Vinayak Abhushan Mandir.

108. After perusing paper No. 31-C he disclosed that the amount of ₹ 20 lakhs pertains to business transaction hence he deposited it in his firm's current account. He clarified that he utilised this amount in his business.

109. He further deposed that he used to have business with Ganesh Prasad, and due to this, the plaintiff gave him ₹ 20 lakhs, he used to supply silver to the plaintiff after refining it. He cannot give any evidence regarding the supply of silver to the plaintiff. He was shown paper No. 65-C the bank statement, according to which 4 business transactions took place between him and the plaintiff on 29.11.2019, 18.2.2020, 26.2.2020 and finally on 3.3.2020 and asked whether any other transaction took place between them? The witness replied that he has got no knowledge about paper No. 65-C.

110. He further deposed that the plaintiff gave him ₹ 20 lakhs towards labour charges, which was a yearly settlement. He could not tell whether the above amount of ₹ 20 lakhs towards labour charges was shown by his chartered accountant in his annual income tax return or not? He was having business with Ganesh Prasad since the year 2013. He denied the suggestion that he never supplied silver ingots and refined silver to the plaintiff. He accepted that he did labour work with the plaintiff.

111. From the oral and documentary evidence on record it is evident that the plaintiff was having firm in the name and style of M/S Ganesh Jewellers whereas, the defendant is having firm in the name and style of M/S Ganpati Abhushan Mandir and M/S Vinayak Abhushan Mandir. The plaintiff has specifically asserted that only 4 business transactions took place between him and the defendant between November 2019 - March 2020, and in order to prove the above transactions, the plaintiff also filed the copy of statement of current bank account no. 02251131002137 of his firm M/S Ganesh Jewellers before the trial court as paper no. 65-C, from the perusal of which it is evident that on 29.11.2019, 18.2.2020, 26.2.2020 and 3.3.2020 transactions of ₹ 14 lakhs, 5 lakhs, 7.47 lakhs and 2 lakhs took place with M/S Ganpati Abhushan Mandir, which is the firm of the defendant. The plaintiff has received the above amount in his firm's current account from the defendant's firm.

112. The plaintiff has also filed the statement of invoices generated on the GST portal between his firm M/S Ganesh Jewellers and defendant's firm M/S Shree Ganpati Abhushan Mandir, which disclose that the following transactions took place between the above firms invoice No. 43 dated 27.2.2020 for ₹ 10 lakhs, invoice No. 50 dated 6.3.2020 for ₹ 4.47 lakhs, invoice No. 34 dated 29.11.2019 for ₹ 4 lakhs and invoice No. 38 dated 18.12.2019 for ₹ 10 lakhs.

113. It is evident that none of the above transactions mentioned in the bank statement as well as the transactions generated on the GST portal is of ₹ 20 lakhs, which was the earnest money paid by the plaintiff to the defendant towards execution of registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 by the defendant in his favour. It is apparent that the burden is upon the defendant to prove that the above amount of ₹ 20 lakhs was towards the business transactions that took place between him and the plaintiff, but that burden has not at all been discharged by the defendant. The defendant could have filed the GST bills, invoices, GST return and his firms income tax return to prove that the above amount of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid to him by the plaintiff towards business transactions but the defendant has not led any evidence to contradict the above evidence led by the plaintiff. It is further pertinent to mention here that the consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid by the plaintiff from his individual savings bank account, not from his firms bank account, hence it cannot be presumed that the above amount was paid by the plaintiff towards business transactions with the defendant.

114. In view of the above evidence on record, the defendant has failed to prove that the consideration of ₹ 20 lakhs was paid to him by the plaintiff towards the business transactions that took place between him and the plaintiff. On the contrary, the plaintiff has successfully proved that the above consideration, was the earnest money paid by him to the defendant for the execution of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 in his favour. Accordingly, issue C is decided in favour of the plaintiff against the defendant.

115. It has been vehemently contended by the learned Senior Counsel for the appellant that the plaintiff never remained ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement because the plaintiff never mentioned in his legal notice that he was ready and willing and was still ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement. Learned counsel by relying upon the Single Judge Bench precedent of this Court in the case of Ram Singh (supra) vehemently contended that the plaintiff has to strictly aver and prove that he was always ready and willing and was still ready and willing to perform his part of the agreement and such assertion should be in the form 47 and 48 prescribed in Appendix 'A' of the CPC, but in this case, the plaintiff has not submitted his pleading in the above format which is also a mandatory requirement of Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act failing which no contract of specific performance is enforceable. The learned Senior counsel failed to disclose to this Court that the above precedent was challenged by filing appeal before the Apex Court and in appeal it has not been affirmed and subsequently set aside by the Apex Court, which is reported as Sughar Singh vs. Hari Singh(Dead) through LRs and others (2021) 17 SCC 705 hence it cannot be considered as good law and binding precedent. In view of the above facts, the contention of the learned Senior counsel cannot be accepted, and is liable to be rejected.

116. The plea " ready and willing to perform his part under the contract " with reference to Section 16(c) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 has been construed by a 3 Judge Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Syed Dastagir (supra). It was held as under :-

"9. ..... In construing a plea in any pleading, Courts must keep in mind that a plea is not an expression of art and science but an expression through words to place fact and law of one's case for a relief. Such an expression may be pointed, precise, sometimes vague but still would be gathered what he wants to convey through only by reading the whole pleading, depends on the person drafting a plea. In India most of the pleas are drafted by counsels hence aforesaid difference of pleas which inevitably differ from one to other. Thus, to gather true spirit behind a plea it should be read as a whole. This does not distract one from performing his obligations as required under a statute. But to test, whether he has performed his obligations one has to see the pith and substance of a plea. Where a statute requires any fact to be pleaded then that has to be pleaded may be in any form. Same plea may be stated by different persons through different words then how could it be constricted to be only in any particular nomenclature or word. Unless statute specifically require for a plea to be in any particular form, it can be in any form. No specific phraseology or language is required to take such a plea. The language in Section 16(c) does not require any specific phraseology but only that the plaintiff must aver that he has performed or has always been and is willing to perform his part of the contract. So the compliance of " Readiness and willingness " has to be in spirit and substance and not in letter and form. So to insist for mechanical production of the exact words of an statute is to insist for the form rather than essence. So absence of form cannot dissolve an essence if already pleaded."

117. From the above law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of Syed Dastagir (supra) it is evident that no specific phraseology or language is required to prove that the plaintiff always remained ready and willing to perform his part of the contract and is still ready and willing to do so. The above compliance of " readiness and willingness " has to be in spirit and substance and not in letter and form.

118. In the context of the above law, it is to be examined in the instant case whether the plaintiff has complied with the requirement of "readiness and willingness " in spirit and substance?

119. From the perusal of the legal notice dated 11.9.2021 given by the plaintiff to the defendant, plaint and the oral evidence of the plaintiff PW-1 it is evident that the sale deed was to be executed within 3 years from the date of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 and the plaintiff was supposed to pay the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant at the time of execution of the sale deed in his favour. The plaintiff specifically mentions in his above legal notice that he has arranged the remaining consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs and he is ready and willing and will also remain ready and willing in future to get the sale deed executed and registered in his favour by paying the above consideration to the defendant. The plaintiff requested the defendant to intimate the date and time when he proposed to execute the sale deed in favour of the plaintiff but the defendant never communicated that date to the plaintiff. The receipt of the above legal notice has been accepted by the defendant DW-1 in his cross-examination.

120. The plaint also discloses that the plaintiff personally met the defendant and requested him to execute and register the sale deed in his favour but the defendant failed to do so. The plaint also discloses that a legal notice was issued by the plaintiff dated 11.9.2021 to the defendant which was received by the defendant, but still the defendant failed to execute and register the sale deed in favour of the plaintiff. The plaint also discloses that the defendant turned dishonest which was apparent from his conduct and was also negotiating to sell the disputed premises to others, which was proved by the evidence submitted by the plaintiff during trial. The plaintiff produced the certified copy of the unregistered agreement to sell executed by the defendant in the year 2021 in favour of Manish Kumar Jaiswal, whereby the defendant agreed to sell the disputed house for a consideration of ₹ 50 lakhs to him. The plaint specifically mentions that the plaintiff was and is still ready and willing to purchase the disputed premises as agreed upon and in accordance with the terms and conditions of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 and was ready and willing to pay the balance consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant at the time of execution and registration of the sale deed. The plaintiff in his oral evidence also reiterated that he always remained ready and willing and was still ready and willing to perform his terms of the agreement and get the sale deed executed in his favour by paying the balance consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant.

121. The Apex Court in the case of Syed Dastagir (supra) specifically held as under:-

" 11..... Explanation(i) uses the words " it is not essential for the plaintiff to actually tender to the defendant or to deposit in court any money except when so directed by the court. This speaks in negative term what is not essential for the plaintiff to do..... This does not mean that unless the court directs the plaintiff cannot tender the amount to the defendant or deposit in the Court. Plaintiff can always tender the amount to the defendant or deposit it in court, towards performance of his obligation under the contract. Such tender rather exhibits willingness of the plaintiff to perform his part of the obligation. What is not essential only means need not do but does not mean he cannot do so....."

122. It is well settled that the word "readiness" refers to financial capacity and the word "willingness" to the conduct of the plaintiff wanting performance and generally, readiness is backed by willingness. The continuous readiness and willingness on the part of the plaintiff is a condition precedent to grant the relief of specific performance.

123. The Apex Court in the case of Sughar Singh (supra) has held that while proving the readiness and willingness the plaintiff is not required to make any averment that the plaintiff required executant of the agreement to sell to attend the office of the sub-registrar to execute the sale deed within the time agreed. It was held that whether the plaintiff is ready and willing to perform his part of contract, the Court must take into consideration the conduct of the plaintiff prior and subsequent to filing of the suit alongwith other attending circumstances in a particular case. Whether the plaintiff was ready and was always ready to perform his part of contract may be inferred from the facts and circumstances of a particular case. It was further held that it is not necessary for the plaintiff to produce ready money but it is mandatory on his part to prove that he has means to generate consideration amount.

124. In the instant case, the plaintiff was required to pay the balance consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant at the time of execution of the sale deed in his favour. The plaintiff has filed the statement of his savings bank account no. 6089807462 with the Indian Bank, Lahurabir branch, Varanasi from 1.1.2020 till 24.3.2022 which is paper no. 31-C on record, which discloses that the plaintiff was maintaining balance in excess of ₹ 10 lakhs after the execution of the agreement in his above bank account, which proves the financial capacity of the plaintiff.

125. It was submitted by the learned Senior counsel for the appellant that the suit for specific performance of the registered agreement to sell was filed by the plaintiff before the trial court with the deficient court fees, which was subsequently made good, and this fact itself proves that the plaintiff was lacking the financial capacity to pay the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant.

126. It is apparent from the record of the trial court that the suit was filed by the plaintiff with the deficient court fees on 14.12.2021 but the deficiency of court fees was made good on 13.1.2022. The plaintiff was always having a balance in excess of ₹ 10 lakhs in his savings bank account and was also in a position to arrange the funds, since he was a jeweller, hence merely on the basis that the suit was filed by the plaintiff with deficient court fees, it cannot be inferred that the plaintiff was always lacking the financial capacity to pay the defendant the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs.

127. In view of the above facts, it is apparent that the plaintiff was always ready and willing and is still ready and willing to perform his part of the contract. It is further apparent that to the contrary, the defendant was not ready and willing to execute the sale deed in favour of the plaintiff, hence the plaintiff was compelled to file the suit for the relief of specific performance of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 against the defendant.

128. Accordingly, issue E is decided in favour of the plaintiff against the defendant.

(F) Whether the relief of specific performance of contract is still discretionary, after the amendment of Specific Relief Act w.e.f 01.10.2018?

129. The amended Section 10 of the Specific Relief Act 1963 w.e.f. 1.10.2018 reads as under:-

" 10. Specific performance in respect of contracts The specific performance of a contract shall be enforced by the court subject to the provisions contained in sub-section (2) of section 11, section 14 and section 16."

130. The Apex Court in the case of P.Daivasigamani (supra) has held that the amending act No. 18 of 2018 whereby the provisions of the Specific Relief Act were amended with effect from 1.10.2018 are prospective in nature which cannot apply to those transactions that took place prior to its coming into force.

131. In the instant case, the disputed registered agreement to sell has been executed by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff on 30.12.2019, which is after the enforcement of the amended provisions of the Specific Relief Act with effect from 1.10.2018, hence the amended provisions of the Act are applicable in the facts and circumstances of this case.

132. The Apex Court in the case of B.Santoshamma (supra) has also held that after the amendment with effect from 1.10.2018, the relief of specific performance of contract is no longer discretionary. The Court is, now obliged to enforce the specific performance of a contract, subject to the provisions of Section 11(2), 14 and 16 of the Specific Relief Act.

133. In view of the above facts and the legal position prevailing now, it is apparent that in this case, the Court is bound to specifically enforce the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 subject to the provisions of Section 11(2),14 and 16 of the Specific Relief Act.

134. Accordingly, issue F is decided.

Conclusion

135. In view of the above analysis, it is proved that a registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019 of his residential house was executed by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff, for a consideration of ₹ 30 lakhs, out of which ₹ 20 lakhs was paid as earnest money by the plaintiff to the defendant. It is also proved that the market value of the residential house was not ₹ 2 crores, as alleged by the defendant. It is also proved that the above registered agreement was not got fraudulently executed by the plaintiff from the defendant, taking advantage of the business relations between them.

136. The defendant has asserted that he was not having any financial necessity to sell his house to the plaintiff but the plaintiff has filed evidence on record to prove that the defendant's wife Shweta Agrawal was the owner of 3 immovable properties, the certified copies of the sale deeds dated 20.3.2017, 27.11.2018 and 29.4.2019 in favour of the defendants wife have been filed by the plaintiff before the trial court. To counter the above assertion, the defendant has disclosed that his wife has sold the above 3 immovable properties before the filing of the suit and has also filed the certified copies of 3 sale deeds executed by his wife on 06.3.2021.Besides that, the defendant DW-1 has admitted in his cross-examination that he has sold his car. The above fact also disclose that the defendant was in need of money, otherwise there was no necessity to sell his car and for his wife, to sell the above 3 immovable properties.

137. It is also evident that the plaintiff always remained ready and willing to fulfil his terms of the agreement, who was having the financial capacity to pay the balance consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs to the defendant.

138. The hardship pleaded by the defendant cannot be considered because from the very inception the defendant was aware that the disputed house was being used by him for residential purposes and for business purposes, hence he should not have sold it but still, the defendant entered into a registered agreement to sell it with the plaintiff. The hardship, if any, is due to the own mis-deeds of the defendant, for which the plaintiff cannot be faulted in any manner whatsoever.

139. In view of the above facts, since the relief of specific performance is no longer discretionary and even otherwise, there is no fact or circumstance which disentitles the plaintiff from getting the primary relief of specific performance, hence, the trial court has not erred in decreeing the plaintiff's suit for the relief of specific performance of the registered agreement to sell dated 30.12.2019. There is no perversity in the judgment of the trial court warranting interference by this Court in exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. Accordingly, this appeal lacks merit, and is liable to be dismissed with costs.

140. For the aforesaid reasons, the instant appeal is dismissed with costs throughout. Consequently, the impugned judgment and decree dated 11.3.2025 passed by the trial court in O.S. 9 of 2022 is affirmed.

141. The defendant- appellant is directed to execute the sale deed of the disputed house within a period of 2 months from today in favour of the plaintiff-respondent after receiving the balance sale consideration of ₹ 10 lakhs, failing which, the plaintiff is entitled to get the sale deed executed through Court, by depositing the balance consideration in the Court, in accordance with law.

Issue for Consideration

Whether a third party claiming an independent right or title adverse to the landlord can seek impleadment under Order I Rule 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure in eviction proceedings instituted under Section 21(2) of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021?

U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — S. 21 — Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 — O. I R. 10 — Eviction proceedings — Impleadment of third party claiming independent title — Neither necessary nor proper party.

HELD: Proceedings under Section 21 of the Act of 2021 are confined to adjudication of disputes arising out of the jural relationship of landlord and tenant, and do not contemplate adjudication of complicated questions relating to title or ownership of the premises. Such questions cannot be permitted to be raised through an application for impleadment under Order I Rule 10 CPC, as their adjudication lies beyond the statutory jurisdiction of the Rent Authority. A person claiming an independent right or title adverse to the landlord cannot, by seeking impleadment, enlarge the scope of eviction proceedings, and neither qualifies as a necessary party nor as a proper party thereto; such disputes are required to be agitated before the competent civil court in appropriately instituted proceedings. Any contrary view would convert the summary remedy provided under the Act into a forum for adjudication of complex civil disputes relating to title, a course neither contemplated by nor permissible under the statutory scheme. [Paras 6-9]

Constitution of India — Art. 227 — Supervisory jurisdiction — Scope.

HELD: The supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 is confined to ensuring that subordinate courts and tribunals act within the bounds of their jurisdiction. Unless the impugned order suffers from patent lack of jurisdiction, manifest perversity, or an error apparent resulting in grave miscarriage of justice, interference is not warranted merely because another view is possible. The Rent Tribunal having rightly held that the petitioner's claim, founded upon an alleged independent title, falls outside the ambit of proceedings under Section 21, no interference is called for. Case Arising From Order dated 13.03.2026 passed by the Rent Tribunal in Rent Appeal No. 05 of 2026 (Smt. Jyoti Gangwani v. Vinod Rawat and another), setting aside the order dated 14.08.2025 passed by the Rent Authority in Rent Case No. 110 of 2024 allowing the petitioner's application for impleadment.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner(s): Rajendra Prasad Tiwari, Vinay Kumar Tiwari, Vineet Tiwari.
For the Respondent(s): Rishabh Agarwal.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Rajendra Prasad Tiwari, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Atul Dayal, learned Senior Counsel appearing along with Sri Rishabh Agarwal, learned counsel for the respondent.

2. By means of the present petition, the petitioner seeks to assail the order dated 13.03.2026 passed by the Rent Tribunal in Rent Appeal No. 05 of 2026 (Smt. Jyoti Gangwani vs. Vinod Rawat & another), whereby the appellate authority has allowed the appeal preferred by the respondent-landlord and has set aside the order dated 14.08.2025 passed by the Rent Authority in Rent Case No. 110 of 2024, whereby the application moved by the present petitioner under Order I Rule 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure seeking impleadment had been allowed.

3. A perusal of the impugned order indicates that the Rent Tribunal has held that the proceedings instituted by the respondent-landlord under Section 21(2) of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 are confined to adjudication of the landlord-tenant dispute arising between the parties to the tenancy and are limited to consideration of the grounds pleaded in support of the prayer for eviction.The Tribunal has further recorded that the petitioner, claiming to be a third party, sought impleadment solely for the purpose of disputing the title and ownership of the respondent-landlord over the premises in question. Such a dispute, according to the Tribunal, falls wholly outside the scope of the proceedings contemplated under the Act of 2021 and cannot be permitted to be introduced in proceedings which are intended to determine only the rights and obligations arising out of the relationship of landlord and tenant. On the aforesaid reasoning, the Tribunal has concluded that the petitioner is neither a necessary nor a proper party to the rent proceedings and, consequently, the order of the Rent Authority permitting impleadment was liable to be set aside.

4. When the matter was taken up, learned counsel appearing for the petitioner was unable to dispute the settled legal position that proceedings under Section 21(2)(b) of the Act of 2021 do not contemplate adjudication upon complicated questions relating to title or ownership of the premises and that any rival claim to ownership has to be agitated before the competent forum in appropriately instituted proceedings. It has also not been disputed that a third party claiming an independent right adverse to the landlord cannot insist upon being impleaded in eviction proceedings merely to canvass questions of title, which are wholly foreign to the limited scope of such proceedings.

5. In view of the aforesaid position, learned counsel for the petitioner fairly does not dispute that the impugned order does not suffer from any patent jurisdictional error, manifest illegality, or perversity warranting exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

6. The aforesaid submission is in accord with the settled legal position. The statutory scheme of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 makes it evident that proceedings under Section 21 thereof are confined to adjudication of disputes arising out of the jural relationship of landlord and tenant. Questions relating to title or ownership of the premises cannot be permitted to be raised through an application for impleadment under Order I Rule 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure, as adjudication thereof lies beyond the statutory jurisdiction of the Rent Authority.

7. A person claiming an independent right or title adverse to the landlord cannot, by seeking impleadment, enlarge the scope of eviction proceedings or invite the Rent Authority to adjudicate disputes relating to ownership. Such disputes are required to be agitated before the competent civil court in appropriately instituted proceedings. Consequently, a third party asserting an independent title neither qualifies as a necessary party nor as a proper party to proceedings instituted under Section 21 of the Act. Any contrary view would have the effect of converting the summary remedy provided under the Act into a forum for adjudication of complex civil disputes relating to title, a course neither contemplated by nor permissible under the statutory scheme of the Act.

8. Applying the aforesaid principle to the facts of the present case, this Court finds no infirmity in the view taken by the Rent Tribunal. The Tribunal has correctly appreciated the nature and scope of the proceedings under the Act of 2021 and has rightly held that the petitioner's claim, being founded upon an alleged independent title, falls outside the ambit of adjudication in proceedings under Section 21 of the Act. The order impugned neither travels beyond the statutory framework governing such proceedings nor suffers from any jurisdictional error, patent illegality, or perversity so as to warrant interference by this Court in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

9. It is well settled that proceedings under the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 are intended to provide an expeditious and efficacious remedy for adjudication of disputes arising out of the jural relationship of landlord and tenant. The Rent Authority exercises a limited statutory jurisdiction and is not expected to embark upon adjudication of complicated questions of title between the landlord and a stranger to the tenancy. A person asserting an independent proprietary right over the premises has an efficacious remedy before the competent civil forum, and the pendency of such a claim cannot enlarge the scope of proceedings instituted under Section 21 of the Act by permitting such person to intervene therein.

10. Equally, the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution is confined to ensuring that the subordinate courts and tribunals act within the bounds of their jurisdiction. Unless the impugned order is shown to suffer from patent lack of jurisdiction, manifest perversity, or an error apparent resulting in grave miscarriage of justice, interference is not warranted merely because another view may also be possible. No such infirmity has been demonstrated in the present case.

11. The petition, being devoid of merit, is accordingly dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the order passed by Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI taking cognizance of offence and summoning the applicants was sustainable in law, particularly having regard to whether impugned order was vitiated for non-application of mind in as much as it failed to deal with applicants' objections against proposed cognizance, the underlying scheduled offences were in substance, civil/commercial disputes given a cloak of criminality so as to constitute an abuse of process of Prevention of Money Laundering Act and property attached as proceeds of crime, having been acquired in year 2012 long prior to registration of FIR, could be said to bear any nexus with proceeds of crime as defined u/s 2(u) of PMLA.

Headnotes

Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 - ss. 2(u), 2(v), 2(zb), 2(1)(y), 3/4 - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 409, 420 - Quashing of criminal proceedings - Proceeds of crime - Property acquired prior to scheduled offence - Flat purchased in 2012, alleged scheduled offence occurred in 2022 - No nexus with proceeds of crime - Such property could not be attached - PMLA proceedings arising out of civil/commercial disputes - Loan accounts substantially settled - Proceedings used to coerce settlement of civil claims - Abuse of process - The applicants, invoked the inherent jurisdiction of High Court u/s 482 Cr.P.C. seeking quashing of order dated 30.01.2026 passed by Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI West/E.D., Lucknow, in Criminal Misc. Case No.4851 of 2025, arising out of ECIR No.ECIR/LKZO/43/2023 registered by Directorate of Enforcement pursuant to directions issued by a Coordinate Bench of High Court while rejecting the bail application of applicant No.3, as well as entire consequential proceedings - FIR lodged by Punjab National Bank alleging that applicants had fraudulently availed home loans for buyers of flats in their housing project, failed to deliver possession or execute sale deeds within stipulated period - Caused a financial loss of Rs.4.63 crores to bank, culminating in charge-sheet and Enforcement Directorate complaint alleging siphoning of proceeds of crime to tune of Rs.9.948 crores across multiple FIRs, including one lodged by intervener, and provisional attachment of properties including a flat purchased by applicants in 2012 - It was applicants' case that impugned cognizance order failed to consider their objections, that underlying disputes were essentially civil/commercial in nature already resolved through One Time Settlements and No Dues Certificates - The attached flat, having been acquired years before alleged scheduled offence, could not constitute proceeds of crime, rendering entire PMLA prosecution an abuse of process of law.

Held: The dispute arising out of failure of applicants to complete the project, hand over possession of flats and execute its transfer deeds or their failure to refund consideration amount to flat buyers, predominantly appears to be of civil nature - The proceedings under PMLA have been instituted on the basis of applicants' involvement in a criminal case instituted by Punjab National Bank regarding four loan accounts having turned NPA, when in fact one of four accounts was regular and it had not been declared NPA, the Bank has already issued No Dues Certificates in respect of two loan accounts and has entered into a One Time Settlement in respect of fourth loan account and has received first installment of OTS amount, indicates that there was merely a commercial dispute between Bank and applicants which already stands settled - Regarding the FIR lodged by intervener, it has been instituted with an oblique motive to coerce the accused persons to redress the civil grievances of veiled commercial corporate entity being represented by intervener - The other FIRs of scheduled offences are also of similar nature - Therefore, all the alleged scheduled offences are commercial disputes and are bad in view of law laid down by Supreme Court in Indian Oil Corpn. v. NEPC India Ltd (infra) and Sarabjeet Kaur v. State of Punjab & Another (infra) and observations made in Anil Kumar Tulsiani v. State of U.P. (infra) - The phrase 'or the value of such property' used in s. 2(u) of PMLA does not include value of Flat which had been acquired in year 2012, long before the Punjab National Bank lodged FIR in year 2022 alleging commission of scheduled offence and which has not been acquired from proceeds of crime - The Enforcement Directorate had no authority to attach Flat that had been acquired in year 2012, much before commission of alleged scheduled offences and attachment of Flat is absolutely illegal and without jurisdiction - The proceedings under PMLA is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the applicants and thereby coercing them to redress the grievances of Flat buyers to transfer in their favour the flats and / or refund their money, without their resorting to remedies available under laws and same are liable to be quashed - Accordingly, application allowed. (Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Vaibhav Kalia Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Abhinav Mishra Advocate, the learned counsel for the applicant, Sri. Ganesh Dutt Bhatt, the learned A.G.A. - I representing the State of U.P., Shri Rohit Tripathi, the learned counsel for the Enforcement Directorate and Sri. Anuuj Tandon, the learned counsel for the intervener Sri. Sanjeev Agarwal.

2. By means of the instant application filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the applicant- Tulsiani Constructions and Developers Ltd. and its Directors Mahesh Kumar Tulsiani and Anil Kumar Tulsiani have challenged the validity of an order dated 30.01.2026 passed by the learned Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI West/E.D., Lucknow in Criminal Misc. Case No.4851 of 2025 arising out of ECIR No.ECIR/LKZO/43/2023 whereby the trial Court has taken cognizance of the offence under Section 3/4 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as PMLA) and has summoned the applicants to face the trial. The applicants have also challenged the validity of the entire proceedings of the case.

3. Briefly stated, facts of the case are that the applicant No.1 is a Company carrying on the business of real estate and is engaged in construction of various housing and commercial projects. On 24.09.2022, Punjab National Bank filed FIR No.336 of 2022 under Sections 409 and 420 IPC in Police Station- Hazratganj, District Lucknow against the applicants stating that it had sanctioned home loans to four buyers for purchasing residential flats in a project of the applicants in Sushant Golf City, Lucknow. The project was not completed within the stipulated time and the flats were not delivered to the borrowers who in turn did not repay the loan amount to the Punjab National Bank.

4. The applicant No.-3 Anil Kumar Tulsiani had filed Criminal Bail Application No.1993 of 2023 before this Court seeking his release on bail in FIR No.336 of 2022. A Co-ordinate Bench of this Court rejected the bail application by means of an order dated 03.03.2023 wherein this Court recorded that: -

"10. It is evident from the record that a tripartite agreement was executed in between the Company and the borrowers, and Rs.4,63,10,000/- was transferred in the account of the Company. It is further evident that the applicant is the Director of the Company, managing all its affairs and as per tripartite and quadripartite agreements dated 27.10.2015 and 31.12.2015 respectively, it was obligatory that the sale deed was to be executed in favour of the borrowers and the same was to be handed over to the Bank within 30 days. It is admitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that the property was to be handed over in the year 2016, but till today, neither the property has been shown to the Bank officials nor the sale deed has been executed and handed over to the Bank. Coupled with the aforesaid facts, the applicant is also having criminal antecedents of so many cases, which are mentioned in paragraphs 46 and 47 of the bail application.

11. In view of above, the application stands rejected.

12. Now-a-days, it has become a trend that the money of the public financial institution is being taken away by committing fraud or breach of trust, as a result of which, the Banks are suffering loss, and beyond doubt, such type of loss is a National loss.

Evidently, several F.I.R.s were lodged against the applicant with the incidental allegations and in the present case, Rs.4,63,10,000/- was transferred in the account of the Company, in which, the applicant is a Director and as per the tripartite and quadripartite agreements, it was obligatory that the sale deed was to be executed within 30 days, but even after 7 years, neither the property was provided to the Bank to inspect nor the sale deed was executed as well as provided to the Bank.

In view of above facts and circumstances, I find it a fit case to be examined by the Enforcement Directorate. Hence, the Joint Director, Enforcement Directorate, Lucknow is directed to look into the facts of the case and take appropriate action, considering the aspect of money laundering with the intention to syphon the money of the public financial institution/Bank and submit an affidavit before this Court by 15th May, 2023.

Shri Rao Narendra Singh, learned A.G.A. is directed to communicate this order to the Joint Director, Enforcement Directorate, Lucknow for necessary compliance, forthwith.

A copy of this order be also sent to Director, Enforcement Directorate, Lucknow for necessary compliance.

Bench Secretary is directed return the photocopy of the case diary to the learned A.G.A."

5. The applicant No. 3 challenged the aforesaid order by filing SLP (Crl.) No.4117 of 2023 which was disposed of by the following order passed on 29.03.2023: -

"Heard learned senior counsel for the petitioner.

This Court is of the opinion that the impugned order does not call for interference. The special leave petition is accordingly dismissed.

It is open to the petitioner to seek relief after charges are framed. The Enforcement Directorate pursuant to the impugned order shall examine the materials before it on their merits uninfluenced by the observations of the High Court."

6. It is in furtherance of the aforesaid direction that the Directorate of Enforcement registered the aforesaid ECIR and has filed the aforesaid complaint. It is stated in the complaint that based on the complaint of Punjab National Bank, the Police registered FIR No.336 of 2022, dated 24.09.2022, at Police Station Hazratganj, District Lucknow, alleging that the applicants have defrauded the bank. They got home loans sanctioned in the names of their clients/buyers and later the clients failed to repay the outstanding home loan amount to the bank. Further, they did not deposit the sale deeds of the immovable properties against which the home loans had been sanctioned by the bank, thereby causing a financial loss of Rs.4.63/- Crores to the bank. Punjab National Bank had sanctioned the following home loans: -

S.No.	Name of Borrower	Amount Borrowed from Bank
1	Mr. Narendra Singh Verma with Smt. Shashi Verma	Rs.2,80,00,000/-
2	Baldeep Arora with Smt. Jaya Arora	Rs.90,50,000/-
3	Hemant Tulsiani with Manohar Kumar Tulsiani	Rs.75,00,000/-
4	Tarun Shekhar Singh with Smt. Sarika Singh	Rs.40,00,000/-
	Total Amount	Rs.4,63,10,000/-

7. Four flats booked by the aforesaid buyers were mortgaged with the bank on the basis of tripartite agreements. The Applicant No.1 did not execute the sale deeds in favour of the buyers.

8. The FIR alleges that the applicants siphoned off the loan amount for their personal gains with the intention of defrauding the bank. It is alleged that the fraudulent act of the applicants caused a loss of public money to the extent of Rs.463 lakhs.

9. The complaint further states that the Tulsiani Constructions, M/s Ansal Properties and Infrastructure Ltd. and Punjab National Bank had entered into tripartite and quadri-partite agreements with the customers on 28.02.2014, 15.12.2015, 29.12.2015 and 31.10.2015. The conditions of the agreements inter alia provided that: -

(a) In the event of default by the Borrowers in repayment of the Bank's dues, the bank will be entitled to sell the flats.

(b) The society shall not transfer the dwelling unit/flat of the borrower to another member of the society without prior written consent of the bank.

(c) The Builder and FSI purchaser shall not hand over the actual physical possession of the Property to the Borrower before execution and registration of the said sale deed and the Builder and FSI purchaser shall submit the original registered deed to PNB, and PNB shall keep the same as security for repayment of their loan, interest and other incidental charges towards perfection of its security interest for the said loan.

(d) The property shall form a part of security for the housing loan granted by PNB in the hands of the Builder and the purchasers till such sale deed is executed in favour of the borrowers.

10. The possession of the flats was to be offered within 30 months from sanction of the building plan, subject to force majeure clause and on receipt of complete sale consideration and other charges.

11. After investigation, a charge-sheet dated 30.01.2023 and supplementary charge-sheets dated 27.04.2024 and 22.07.2024 have been filed in furtherance of FIR No.336 of 2022 against the applicant Nos.2 and 3, who are the Directors of Tulsiani Constructions.

12. The complaint filed by the Enforcement Directorate states that multiple FIRs have been registered against M/s Tulsiani Constructions and its Directors by various flat buyers alleging that the flats were not transferred to them in violation of the agreements.

13. The complaint states that certain immovable properties worth Rs.3,06,95,700/- belonging to M/s Tulsiani Constructions have been attached as property obtained indirectly/equivalent to the proceeds of crime vide provisional attachment order dated 07.06.2024 and another provisional attachment order dated 28.11.2024 was passed attaching immovable property worth Rs.1.5 Crores belonging to the applicant No.3- Anil Kumar Tulsiani. The provisional attachment orders have been confirmed.

14. The complaint further alleges that the amounts paid by the three prospective flat buyers to M/s Tulsiani Constructions have been transferred to other banks to meet the liabilities of M/s Tulsiani Constructions, which shows that the amounts taken from buyers for completing the project were utilized either for investment in other projects run by the sister concerns of M/s Tulsiani Constructions or for paying loans taken from SIDBI.

15. The complaint refers to the statement of the applicant No.2Mahesh Kumar Tulsiani recorded under Section 50 of PMLA wherein he stated that multiple bank accounts of M/s Tulsiani Constructions turned irregular/became NPA due to increase in financial liabilities of the company because of litigation, COVID-19 and delay in execution and delivery of the projects. As many as 9 FIRs were lodged against the Company for its inability to handover the projects. In several matters, the parties have arrived at settlements and the proceedings of criminal cases against the applicants stands quashed. Out of the four loan accounts mentioned in the FIR No.336 of 2022, there is no irregularity in one account and in two accounts one time settlements have been entered into.

16. The applicant No.3 Anil Kumar Tulsiani stated that 20 FIRs of similar nature had been lodged against him out of which 10 FIRs have been quashed and in two matters, the dispute has been referred to the Mediation and Conciliation Center of this Court. The applicant No.3 further stated that numerous sale deeds have been executed in favour of the buyers who had taken loans from Punjab National Bank, the particulars whereof are mentioned in the complaint itself.

17. The complaint summarizes the result of investigation by stating that various FIRs have been lodged against M/s Tulsiani Constructions and its Directors alleging embezzlement of funds of banks and investors/buyers for their personal gains, which are as follows: -

Sr. No.	FIR No. & Date	Amount involved and laundered in Rs.(Crores)
1	336/2022 dated 24.09.2022 at Hazratganj PS, Lucknow	4.63
2	0595 dated 08.11.2021, 0457 dated 18/07/2019, 834 dated 26.12.2018, 0527 dated 09.08.2019, 0434 dated 27.08.2021, 655 dated 10.10.2022 at Vibhuti Khand PS, Lucknow	1.93
4		0.554
5		1.534
6		0.01
7		1.05

	Total Amount	9.948

18. The complaint alleges that the applicants have siphoned off the proceeds of crime amounting to Rs.9.948 Crores for their personal gains by investing/diverting the amount in their other real estate projects without completing the other projects for which the money was acquired.

19. Upon the complaint having been filed, the learned Special Judge issued notices to the applicants for pre-cognizance hearing. The applicants filed written submissions stating that vide order dated 30.01.2023 passed in Bail Application No.1993 of 2023, this Court had directed the Enforcement Directorate to conduct investigation after looking into the 'facts of the case' which arose out of FIR No.336/2022 under Section 409, 420 IPC registered at Police Station Hazratganj, District Lucknow only. The Hon'ble Supreme Court clarified in the order dated 29.03.2023 that the Enforcement Directorate should examine the material before it on their merits, uninfluenced by the observations of the High Court. The Enforcement Directorate has illegally merged FIR No.595 of 2021 under Sections 409/420/504/506/467/468/471/120-B IPC, Police Station Vibhuti Khand, District Lucknow lodged by the intervener Mr. Sanjeev Agarwal illegally, with a mala fide intention.

20. The applicants further stated that FIR No.336/2022 had been lodged alleging that four loan accounts had turned NPA. The applicants stated that accounts of borrowers turning NPA is purely a civil dispute. Moreover, one of the four loan accounts had not been declared NPA and it is a regular account, two loan accounts already stand settled on 23.04.2024 and 09.08.2024 and negotiations for settlement of the fourth loan account were going on. The Enforcement Directorate has illegally calculated the proceeds of crime by including the loan accounts which already stands settled/closed.

21. The Enforcement Directorate has filed a short counter affidavit stating that investigation under PMLA was initiated on the basis of multiple FIRs lodged against the applicant for having defrauded Punjab National Bank and the home buyers and utilizing the proceeds of crime for its own purposes. The counter affidavit states that in many cases, the applicant has not cleared the payment liability even after entering into one-time settlements with the concerned bank. The predicate cases are still alive and therefore, proceedings under PMLA cannot be quashed.

22. The learned counsel for the applicant submitted that the entire dispute between the applicant and its flat buyers is a civil dispute regarding which litigation are pending in various fora. The monetary transactions do not fall within the scope and ambit of Section 2(u) r/w Section 2(1)(y) of PMLA to be termed as proceeds of crime, the complaint itself alleges that the money received in lieu of sale consideration was used by the applicant No.1 in repaying the loan amount of SIDBI which loan was taken for construction of the project/flats and, therefore, it does not attract Section 2(1)(u) r/w Section 2(1)(y) of PMLA.

23. The learned Special Judge took cognizance of the offences by means of the impugned order 30.01.2026. A perusal of the impugned order indicates that although the trial Court has briefly mentioned the objections of the applicants against the proposed cognizance order, the same have not been dealt with by the trial Court. The trial Court has merely narrated the case set-up by the Enforcement Directorate and has stated that the objections of the applicants are not maintainable.

24. Assailing validity of the aforesaid order, the learned Counsel for the applicants has submitted that an order passed without dealing with the objections of the applicants suffers from the vice of unreasonableness and non-application of mind. He has submitted that out of the four loans disbursed by the Punjab National Bank, only three had become NPA and out of those three two had already been settled prior to passing of the impugned summoning order. Regarding the only remaining loan account also, the Bank has entered into a one time settlement and has received the first installment amount as per the OTS.

25. The learned Counsel for the applicants has further submitted that this court has observed in its order dated 23.08.2023 passed in Crl. Misc. Bail Application No.14783 of 2022 that the dispute between the parties is essentially of civil nature. He has also submitted that the offence under Section 420 alleged in the scheduled offence, is not made out as the allegation in the FIR is regarding a delay in delivery of the project, which was for the reasons mentioned in the statement of Mahesh Kumar Tulsiani recorded under Section 50 of PMLA that the bank accounts have turned irregular/NPA due to increase financial liability incurred due to litigation, COVID-19 and delay in execution of the projects.

26. The learned counsel for the applicants has placed reliance upon the decisions in the cases of Seema Garg v. Deputy Director, Directorate of Enforcement: 2020 SCC OnLine Punjab & Haryana 738, HDFC Bank Ltd. v. Government of India; 2021 SCC OnLine Patna 4222, Kumar Pappu Singh v. Union of India; 2021 SCC OnLine AP 983, Deputy Director, Directorate of Enforcement v. Seema Garg; SLP (civil) No.14713-14715/2020 decided on 30.04.2021, Sarabjeet Kaur v. State of Punjab; (2023) 5 SCC 360, Pavana Dibbur v. Directorate of Enforcement; (2023) 15 SCC 91, Indian Oil Corporation v. NEPC India Ltd.; (2006) 6 SCC 736, Shyam Sundar Agarwala v. State of Odisha 2025 SCC OnLine Odisha 566, Vijay Madanlal Choudhary & Ors. v. Union of India & Ors.; (2023) 12 SCC 1 and Inox Air Products Ltd. v. State of Andra Pradesh; 2025 SCC OnLine SC 209 and Satish Motilal Bidri v. Union of India and Others; 2024 SCC OnLine Ker 3410.

27. Per contra Shri Rohit Tripathi, the learned counsel for the Enforcement of Directorate has submitted that it is established that the applicants have transferred the amount taken from the borrowers of Punjab National Bank to SIDBI and there is no averment that the applicants had taken the loans from SIDBI for this project. He has placed reliance on the following observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Vijay Madanlal Choudhary & Ors. v. Union of India & Ors.; (2023) 12 SCC 1. Shri Tripathi has also placed reliance on a decision of the Madras High Court in the case of Vijayraj Surana v. Assistant Director, ED; 2024 MHC 3345.

28. Shri Anuuj Tandon, the learned counsel for the intervener Sanjeev Agarwal has also opposed the application and he submitted that the intervener is a bona fide claimant whose interest is recognized by Section 8 of PMLA. As Section 8(8) of the Act empowers the Special Court to restore the confiscated property to a person who has a legitimate interest and has suffered a quantifiable loss as result of offence of money laundering.

29. In Indian Oil Corpn. v. NEPC India Ltd. : (2006) 6 SCC 736, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:-

"13. While on this issue, it is necessary to take notice of a growing tendency in business circles to convert purely civil disputes into criminal cases. This is obviously on account of a prevalent impression that civil law remedies are time consuming and do not adequately protect the interests of lenders/creditors. Such a tendency is seen in several family disputes also, leading to irretrievable breakdown of marriages/families. There is also an impression that if a person could somehow be entangled in a criminal prosecution, there is a likelihood of imminent settlement. Any effort to settle civil disputes and claims, which do not involve any criminal offence, by applying pressure through criminal prosecution should be deprecated and discouraged*. In G. Sagar Suri v. State of U.P. (2000) 2 SCC 636 this Court observed:*

"It is to be seen if a matter, which is essentially of a civil nature, has been given a cloak of criminal offence. Criminal proceedings are not a short cut of other remedies available in law. Before issuing process a criminal court has to exercise a great deal of caution. For the accused it is a serious matter. This Court has laid certain principles on the basis of which the High Court is to exercise its jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Code. Jurisdiction under this section has to be exercised to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice."

14. While no one with a legitimate cause or grievance should be prevented from seeking remedies available in criminal law, a complainant who initiates or persists with a prosecution, being fully aware that the criminal proceedings are unwarranted and his remedy lies only in civil law, should himself be made accountable, at the end of such misconceived criminal proceedings, in accordance with law. One positive step that can be taken by the courts, to curb unnecessary prosecutions and harassment of innocent parties, is to exercise their power under Section 250 CrPC more frequently, where they discern malice or frivolousness or ulterior motives on the part of the complainant. Be that as it may."

30. The learned counsel for the applicant has next placed reliance on Sarabjeet Kaur v. State of Punjab & Another (2023) 5 SCC 360, wherein it was held that: -

"13. A breach of contract does not give rise to criminal prosecution for cheating unless fraudulent or dishonest intention is shown right at the beginning of the transaction. Merely on the allegation of failure to keep up promise will not be enough to initiate criminal proceedings. From the facts available on record, it is evident that Respondent 2 had improved his case ever since the first complaint was filed in which there were no allegations against the appellant rather it was only against the property dealers which was in subsequent complaints that the name of the appellant was mentioned. On the first complaint, the only request was for return of the amount paid by Respondent 2. When the offence was made out on the basis of the first complaint, the second complaint was filed with improved version making allegations against the appellant as well which was not there in the earlier complaint. The entire idea seems to be to convert a civil dispute into criminal and put pressure on the appellant for return of the amount allegedly paid. The criminal courts are not meant to be used for settling scores or pressurise parties to settle civil disputes. Wherever ingredients of criminal offences are made out, criminal courts have to take cognizance. The complaint in question on the basis of which FIR was registered was filed nearly three years after the last date fixed for registration of the sale deed. Allowing the proceedings to continue would be an abuse of process of the court."

31. In Dilip Singh v. State of M.P.: (2021) 2 SCC 779, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that- it is well settled by a plethora of decisions of the Supreme Court that criminal proceedings are not for realisation of disputed dues.

32. The Enforcement Directorate has stated in the complaint that FIR No.336 of 2022, dated 24.09.2022 was lodged on the complaint of Punjab National Bank, alleging that the applicants got the following four home loans sanctioned in the names of their clients/buyers, and later the clients failed to repay the outstanding home loan amount to the bank: -

S.No.	Name of Borrower	Amount Borrowed from Bank
1	Mr. Narendra Singh Verma with Smt. Shashi Verma	Rs.2,80,00,000/-
2	Baldeep Arora with Smt. Jaya Arora	Rs.90,50,000/-
3	Hemant Tulsiani with Manohar Kumar Tulsiani	Rs.75,00,000/-
4	Tarun Shekhar Singh with Smt. Sarika Singh	Rs.40,00,000/-
	Total Amount	Rs.4,63,10,000/-

33. In the rejoinder affidavit, the applicants have stated that Punjab National Bank has approved a One Time Settlement dated 20.03.2026 proposal in respect of the loan amount in the name of Narendra Singh Verma and Shashi Verma and a part of payment in furtherance of the One Time Settlement has already been made. The Bank has issued a No Dues Certificate dated 09.08.2024 in respect of the housing loan facility of Rs.90,50,000/- sanctioned on 29.10.2015 in favour of Baldeep Arora. Another No Dues Certificate dated 23.04.2024 has been issued by Punjab National Bank in respect of the loan facility of Rs.75,00,000/- sanctioned on 18.12.2015 in favour of Hemant Tulsiani. The loan account of Tarun Shekhar Singh and Smt. Sarika Singh was a regular account and it had not been declared NPA. These facts establish that the dispute pertained to settlement of financial liabilities and the same have already been settled. Delay in repayment of loan or even non-payment of loan gives rise to a dispute which is essentially of civil/commercial in nature and the same has wrongly been given a colour of criminality.

34. Regarding FIR No.595 of 2021 lodged by the intervener Mr. Sanjeev Agarwal, it is to be noted that the applicant No.3 Anil Kumar Tulsiani had filed Criminal Misc. Bail Application No.14783 of 2022 for his release on bail in the aforesaid case. The bail application was allowed by means of an order dated 03.08.2023 passed by this Court in Anil Kumar Tulsiani v. State of U.P.: 2023 SCC OnLine All 733, wherein it has been observed that: -

"3. The aforesaid case has been registered on the basis of an F.I.R. lodged on 08.11.2021 against the applicant and his brother Mahesh Tulsiyani, alleging that the complainant had booked three flats in the name of his company in Golf View Apartment Scheme in the year 2012. The flats were not constructed within the stipulated period and the flats had not been finished properly. No penalty was paid for the delay in handing over the flats. The complainant had sold away one flat in the year 2015. The FIR categorically states that some consideration remains to be paid by the complainant. It is further alleged that the entire building had been mortgaged by the accused persons with a bank and the loan account was declared N.P.A. and the bank took over possession of the flats.

11. What prima facie appears from the averments made in the FIR is that the complainant's company had entered into an agreement to purchase three flats in Golf View Apartment Scheme launched by Tulsiani Construction and Developers Private Limited, of which the applicant is a director. The complaint has not disclosed the name of the company which had booked the flats, although the allottee company would be a separate juristic person. From the material available before the Court at this stage prima facie it appears that no registered agreement had been executed between the parties regarding purchase of flats where any agreement for purchase of immovable property of value exceeding Rs. 100/- can only be made through a registered agreement, after payment of the prescribed stamp duty and registration fee.

12. The corporate entity which had entered into agreement for purchasing three flats and evaded payment of stamp duty and registration fee payable in respect of the agreement for purchase of the flats, and which has kept itself veiled, has committed an offence of evasion of stamp duty payable to the public exchequer, thereby illegally depriving the public at large of the benefits of that amount, which affects every single citizen of the country.

13. Although the amount of stamp duty and registration fee payable in respect of three agreements may prima facie appear to be small, the Court cannot restrain itself from observing that now-a-days a trend is developing very fast that persons acquire interest in immovable properties evade payment of stamp duty and registration fee and the cumulative effect thereof causes a significant loss to the public exchequer. Thereafter when some disputes occur, the purchasers initiate criminal prosecution for putting pressure on the seller to transfer the property or to repay their amount, because they cannot invoke the civil remedies for the reason that the unregistered agreement is inadmissible in evidence and no rights can be claimed in respect thereof in civil proceedings.

16. This tendency of misusing the criminal proceedings for claiming enforcement of civil rights by indirect methods and evading payment of stamp duty, registration fee and court fee cannot be appreciated by the Courts and it should not be encouraged. It is nothing but cheating committed against the public exchequer and the persons who would stand benefited thereby.

17. Although the acts alleged in the F.I.R. may make out commission of some offence punishable under criminal law, the dispute between the parties predominantly appears to be of the civil nature. The law provides civil remedies for redressal of grievances alleged in the FIR that the possession of the flats was not delivered within the stipulated period and that the flats were not finished in a proper manner. It is not that the complainant has initiated the criminal proceedings for merely punishment of the accused persons and he has initiated civil proceedings separately for enforcement of his rights, the complainant has initiated criminal proceedings only which prima facie indicates that the criminal proceedings have been initiated with an oblique motive to coerce the accused persons to redress the civil grievances of the veiled commercial corporate entity being represented by the complainant."

35. After this Court passed the order in Anil Kumar Tulsiani v. State of U.P.: 2023 SCC OnLine All 733, the provisional attachment order dated 28.11.2024 was issued attaching a flat which had been purchased by means of the registered sale deed dated 02.03.2012 i.e. almost 10 years before the Punjab National Bank had lodged the FIR No.336 of 2022.

36. The applicants have submitted that by no stretch of imagination the sale consideration paid for purchasing a flat in the year 2012 can be termed as proceeds of crime as defined under Section 2(u) of PMLA because the transactions relating to FIR No.336/2022 took place much later.

37. The learned counsel for the opposite parties have submitted that Section 2(u) of PMLA also includes "value of any such property". They have submitted that during investigation, the proceeds of crime have been assessed to the tune of Rs.9.5 Crores which has been diverted either in other projects or for personal gains of the accused persons. They have further submitted that Section 23 of PMLA established a legal presumption regarding interconnected transactions. If one transaction in a series is proved to involve money laundering, the adjudicating authority or the Special Court can presume that other connected transactions are part of the same money laundering activity.

38. The offence of money laundering is defined in Section 3 of PMLA as follows: -

3. Offence of money-laundering.-Whosoever directly or indirectly attempts to indulge or knowingly assists or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in any process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime including its concealment, possession, acquisition or use and projecting or claiming] it as untainted property shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering.

Explanation. -For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that,-

(i) a person shall be guilty of offence of money-laundering if such person is found to have directly or indirectly attempted to indulge or knowingly assisted or knowingly is a party or is actually involved in one or more of the following processes or activities connected with proceeds of crime, namely-

(a) concealment; or

(b) possession; or

(c) acquisition; or

(d) use; or

(e) projecting as untainted property; or

(f) claiming as untainted property,

in any manner whatsoever;

(ii) the process or activity connected with proceeds of crime is a continuing activity and continues till such time a person is directly or indirectly enjoying the proceeds of crime by its concealment or possession or acquisition or use or projecting it as untainted property or claiming it as untainted property in any manner whatsoever.

39. "Proceeds of crime" is defined in Section 2(u) of PMLA as follows: -

"2 (u) "proceeds of crime" means any property derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, by any person as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence or the value of any such property or where such property is taken or held outside the country, then the property equivalent in value held within the country or abroad;

Explanation.-For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that "proceeds of crime" include property not only derived or obtained from the scheduled offence but also any property which may directly or indirectly be derived or obtained as a result of any criminal activity relatable to the scheduled offence"

40. Property is defined in Section 2(v) of PMLA as follows: -

(v) "property" means any property or assets of every description, whether corporeal or incorporeal, movable or immovable, tangible or intangible and includes deeds and instruments evidencing title to, or interest in, such property or assets, wherever located;

Explanation. -For the removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that the term "property" includes property of any kind used in the commission of an offence under this Act or any of the scheduled offences;

41. "Value" is defined in Section 2(zb) of PMLA as follows: -

"(zb) "value" means the fair market value of any property on the date of its acquisition by any person, or if such date cannot be determined, the date on which such property is possessed by such person."

42. In Vijay Madanlal Choudhary v. Union of India: (2023) 12 SCC 1, the Hon□ble Supreme Court held that: -

"109. Tersely put, it is only such property which is derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence that can be regarded as proceeds of crime. The authorities under the 2002 Act cannot resort to action against any person for money laundering on an assumption that the property recovered by them must be proceeds of crime and that a scheduled offence has been committed, unless the same is registered with the jurisdictional police or pending inquiry by way of complaint before the competent forum. For, the expression "derived or obtained" is indicative of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence already accomplished. Similarly, in the event the person named in the criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence is finally absolved by a court of competent jurisdiction owing to an order of discharge, acquittal or because of quashing of the criminal case (scheduled offence) against him/her, there can be no action for money laundering against such a person or person claiming through him in relation to the property linked to the stated scheduled offence. This interpretation alone can be countenanced on the basis of the provisions of the 2002 Act, in particular Section 2(1)(u) read with Section 3. Taking any other view would be rewriting of these provisions and disregarding the express language of the definition clause "proceeds of crime", as it obtains as of now."

(emphasis added)

43. Sri. Rohit Tripathi has placed reliance on the following passage from the judgment in the case of Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (supra): -

"162. As a matter of fact, prior to the amendment of 2015, the first proviso acted as an impediment for taking such urgent measure even by the authorised officer, who is no less than the rank of Deputy Director. We must hasten to add that the nuanced distinction must be kept in mind that to initiate "prosecution" for offence under Section 3 PMLA registration of scheduled offence is a prerequisite, but for initiating action of "provisional attachment" under Section 5 there need not be a pre-registered criminal case in connection with scheduled offence. This is because the machinery provisions cannot be construed in a manner which would eventually frustrate the proceedings under the 2002 Act. Such dispensation alone can secure the proceeds of crime including to prevent and regulate the commission of offence of money laundering. The authorised officer would, thus, be expected to and, also in a given case, justified in acting with utmost speed to ensure that the proceeds of crime/property is available for being proceeded with appropriately under the 2002 Act so as not to frustrate any proceedings envisaged by the 2002 Act.

163. In case the scheduled offence is not already registered by the jurisdictional police or complaint filed before the Magistrate, it is open to the authorised officer to still proceed under Section 5 of the 2002 Act whilst contemporaneously sending information to the jurisdictional police under Section 66(2) of the 2002 Act for registering FIR in respect of cognizable offence or report regarding non-cognizable offence and if the jurisdictional police fails to respond appropriately to such information, the authorised officer under the 2002 Act can take recourse to appropriate remedy, as may be permissible in law to ensure that the culprits do not go unpunished and the proceeds of crime are secured and dealt with as per the dispensation provided for in the 2002 Act. Suffice it to observe that the amendment effected in 2015 in the second proviso has reasonable nexus with the object sought to be achieved by the 2002 Act.

169. As aforesaid, in this backdrop Amendment Act 2 of 2013 came into being. Considering the purport of the amended provisions and the experience of implementing/enforcement agencies, further changes became necessary to strengthen the mechanism regarding prevention of money laundering. It is not right in assuming that the attachment of property (provisional) under the second proviso, as amended, has no link with the scheduled offence. Inasmuch as Section 5(1) envisages that such an action can be initiated only on the basis of material in possession of the authorised officer indicative of any person being in possession of proceeds of crime. The precondition for being proceeds of crime is that the property has been derived or obtained, directly or indirectly, by any person as a result of criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence*. The sweep of Section 5(1) is not limited to the accused named in the criminal activity relating to a scheduled offence. It would apply to any person (not necessarily being accused in the scheduled offence), if he is involved in any process or activity connected with the proceeds of crime. Such a person besides facing the consequence of provisional attachment order, may end up in being named as accused in the complaint to be filed by the authorised officer concerning offence under Section 3 of the 2002 Act."*

(emphasis added)

44. Following the aforesaid law laid down in Vijay Madanlal Choudhary (supra), in Pavana Dibbur v. Directorate of Enforcement: (2023) 15 SCC 91, the Hon"ble Supreme Court has held that a property which was acquired before the acts constituting the scheduled offence were committed, cannot be said to have any connection with the proceeds of the crime.

45. The learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on the following passages of Seema Garg v. Deputy Director, Directorate of Enforcement 2020 SCC OnLine P&H 738: -

"35. In our considered opinion, to understand true meaning of second limb of definition of "proceeds of crime", it must be read in conjunction with Section 3 and 8 of the PMLA. If all these sections are read together, phrase "value of such property" does not mean and include any property which has no link direct or indirect with the property derived or obtained from commission of scheduled offence i.e. the alleged criminal activity. "Value of such property" means property which has been converted into another property or has been obtained on the basis of property derived from commission of scheduled offence e.g. cash is received as bribe and invested in purchase of some house. House is value of property derived from scheduled offence. Cash in the hands of an accused of offence under Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 is property directly derived from scheduled offence, however if some movable or immovable property is purchased against said cash, the movable or immovable property would be "value of property" derived from commission of scheduled offence. If a person gets some land or building by committing cheating (Section 420 of IPC) which is a scheduled offence and said building or land is sold prior to registration of FIR or ECIR, the property derived from scheduled offence would not be available, however money generated from sale or transfer of said property in the form of cash or any other form of property may be available. The cash or any other form of property movable or immovable, tangible or intangible would be "value of property" derived from commission of scheduled offence.

36. Andhara Pradesh High Court in the case of Satyam Computer Services (Supra) has expressed view similar to our above expressed view, however Delhi High Court in the case of Axis Bank (Supra) has expressed contrary view which we do not subscribe because Delhi High Court has declared/treated words "value of such property" and "property equivalent in value held within country" at par which cannot be countenanced in view of scheme and object of the Act.

37. There may be a case where a person accused of commission of scheduled offence, on account of destruction or disposal of property, is having no property. Non-availability of property derived from scheduled offence does not immune an accused from offence of money laundering committed under Section 3 of the PMLA. As per scheme of the Act, there is criminal liability of an accused apart from civil liability of attachment of property, thus object of the Act is not defeated merely on the ground that property derived from crime is not available for attachment. The property derived from legitimate source cannot be attached on the ground that property derived from scheduled offence is not available. There are so many scheduled offences where property may or may not be involved because every scheduled offence is not committed for the sake of property e.g. offence relating to wild animals, waging war against Government of India, murder, attempt to murder, offences under Arms Act. There is a long list of offences under different enactments where property is normally not involved still these are scheduled offences and punishable under Section 3 & 4 of PMLA.

*38. Accordingly, we find and hold that phrase "value of such property" does not mean and include any property which has no link direct or indirect with the property derived or obtained from commission of scheduled offence i.e. the alleged criminal activity."

46. The judgment of Punjab and Haryana High Court in the case of Seema Garg v. Deputy Director, Directorate of Enforcement 2020 SCC OnLine P&H 738 has been followed by the Patna High Court in HDFC Bank v. Govt. of India & Others 2021 SCC OnLine Pat 4222. The Andhra Pradesh High Court has also followed it in the case of Kumar Pappu Singh v. Union of India (2021) 1 HCC (AP) 556.

47. In view of the law laid down by the Hon"ble Supreme Court in the cases of Vijay Madanlal Choudhary and Pavna Dibbur (supra) and by the Punjab and Haryana High Court in Seema Garg v. Deputy Director, Directorate of Enforcement (supra), which has been followed by Patna and Andhra Pradesh High Courts, I am of the considered view that attachment of the flat acquired as early as in 2012 i.e. almost a decade before the commission of the alleged offence was wholly improper and unsustainable in view of law.

48. The applicants had filed objections against the proposed summoning order but the trial Court has taken cognizance without dealing with the objections and without assigning any reason for discarding the applicants' objections. It is settled law that the reasons are the soul of any judicial order and a judicial order passed without recording reasons is unsustainable in law.

49. In S.N. Mukherjee v. Union of India: (1990) 4 SCC 594□, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:-

"39. The object underlying the rules of natural justice "is to prevent miscarriage of justice" and secure "fair play in action". As pointed out earlier the requirement about recording of reasons for its decision by an administrative authority exercising quasi-judicial functions achieves this object by excluding chances of arbitrariness and ensuring a degree of fairness in the process of decision-making. Keeping in view the expanding horizon of the principles of natural justice, we are of the opinion, that the requirement to record reason can be regarded as one of the principles of natural justice which govern exercise of power by administrative authorities……"

(emphasis added)

50. In Kranti Associates (P) Ltd. v. Masood Ahmed Khan: (2010) 9 SCC 496, the Hon'ble Supreme Court examined various precedents on the point and summarised the law as follows:-

"47. Summarising the above discussion, this Court holds:

(a) In India the judicial trend has always been to record reasons, even in administrative decisions, if such decisions affect anyone prejudicially.

(b) A quasi-judicial authority must record reasons in support of its conclusions.

(c) Insistence on recording of reasons is meant to serve the wider principle of justice that justice must not only be done it must also appear to be done as well.

(d) Recording of reasons also operates as a valid restraint on any possible arbitrary exercise of judicial and quasi-judicial or even administrative power.

(e) Reasons reassure that discretion has been exercised by the decision-maker on relevant grounds and by disregarding extraneous considerations.

(f) Reasons have virtually become as indispensable a component of a decision-making process as observing principles of natural justice by judicial, quasi-judicial and even by administrative bodies.

(g) Reasons facilitate the process of judicial review by superior courts.

(h) The ongoing judicial trend in all countries committed to rule of law and constitutional governance is in favour of reasoned decisions based on relevant facts. This is virtually the lifeblood of judicial decision-making justifying the principle that reason is the soul of justice.

(i) Judicial or even quasi-judicial opinions these days can be as different as the judges and authorities who deliver them. All these decisions serve one common purpose which is to demonstrate by reason that the relevant factors have been objectively considered. This is important for sustaining the litigants' faith in the justice delivery system.

(j) Insistence on reason is a requirement for both judicial accountability and transparency.

(k) If a judge or a quasi-judicial authority is not candid enough about his/her decision-making process then it is impossible to know whether the person deciding is faithful to the doctrine of precedent or to principles of incrementalism.

(l) Reasons in support of decisions must be cogent, clear and succinct. A pretence of reasons or "rubber-stamp reasons" is not to be equated with a valid decision-making process.

(m) It cannot be doubted that transparency is the sine qua non of restraint on abuse of judicial powers. Transparency in decision-making not only makes the judges and decision-makers less prone to errors but also makes them subject to broader scrutiny. (See David Shapiro in Defence of Judicial Candor [(1987) 100 Harvard Law Review 731-37].)

(n) Since the requirement to record reasons emanates from the broad doctrine of fairness in decision-making, the said requirement is now virtually a component of human rights and was considered part of Strasbourg Jurisprudence. See Ruiz Torija v. Spain [(1994) 19 EHRR 553] EHRR, at 562 para 29 and Anya v. University of Oxford [2001 EWCA Civ 405 (CA)], wherein the Court referred to Article 6 of the European Convention of Human Rights which requires, "adequate and intelligent reasons must be given for judicial decisions".

(o) In all common law jurisdictions judgments play a vital role in setting up precedents for the future. Therefore, for development of law, requirement of giving reasons for the decision is of the essence and is virtually a part of "due process"."

(Emphasis added)

51. It is not that the principles of natural justice apply only where an order having adverse civil consequence is proposed to be passed. The requirement of observing the principles of natural justice is even higher in criminal proceedings, where the Fundamental Right to personal liberty is at stake.

52. In Inox Air Products Ltd. v. State of Andra Pradesh; 2025 SCC OnLine SC 209 the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

"33. It could be seen from the aforesaid order that except recording the submissions of the complainant, no reasons are recorded for issuing the process against the accused persons.

34. In this respect, it will be relevant to refer to the following observations of this Court in the case of Pepsi Foods Ltd. (supra):

"28. Summoning of an accused in a criminal case is a serious matter. Criminal law cannot be set into motion as a matter of course……"

53. Therefore, I am of the considered view that the impugned order passed by the learned trial Court rejecting the applicants objections against taking cognizance of the offences without assigning any reason, is unsustainable in law for this reason alone. Normally the impugned order would be quashed on this limited ground and the matter would be remanded for being decided afresh after assigning reasons. However, as this Court has already examined the merits of the case and has come to a conclusion that no case is made out for taking cognizance of the offences, there is no need to remand the matter to the trial Court for being decided afresh.

54. The scope of interference in a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. was explained by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal: 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335, in the following passage: -

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we have given the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

(emphasis added)

55. In Sajjan Kumar v. CBI: (2010) 9 SCC 368, the Hon'ble Supreme Court laid down the following principles regarding scope of inquiry at the time of framing charges and while considering a request for discharge: -

"21. On consideration of the authorities about the scope of Sections 227 and 228 of the Code, the following principles emerge:

(i) The Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 CrPC has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out. The test to determine prima facie case would depend upon the facts of each case.

(ii) Where the materials placed before the court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

(iii) The court cannot act merely as a post office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court, any basic infirmities, etc. However, at this stage, there cannot be a roving inquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial.

(iv) If on the basis of the material on record, the court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed offence, it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence.

(v) At the time of framing of the charges, the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into but before framing a charge the court must apply its judicial mind on the material placed on record and must be satisfied that the commission of offence by the accused was possible.

(vi) At the stage of Sections 227 and 228, the court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to find out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. For this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case.

(vii) If two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion, the trial Judge will be empowered to discharge the accused and at this stage, he is not to see whether the trial will end in conviction or acquittal."

56. The aforesaid principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sajjan Kumar (supra) regarding scope of scrutiny by the trial Court at the time of considering an application for discharge or framing charges, can also be taken as guiding principles for the High Court while considering a request for quashing of the charge-sheet and the proceedings based thereon. Therefore, this Court can sift and weigh the prosecution evidence, without conducting a roving inquiry into the pros and cons of the matter by assessing the probative value of the evidence on record, for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not the uncontroverted allegations levelled in the complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the applicant. This Court can certainly evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to find out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence, as it cannot be expected even at this stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case.

57. Thus this Court has already held that the dispute arising out of failure of the applicants to complete the project, hand over possession of the flats and execute its transfer deeds or their failure to refund the consideration amount to the flat buyers, predominantly appears to be of the civil nature. The law provides civil remedies for redressal of grievances alleged in the FIR. The complainant has initiated the criminal proceedings with an oblique motive to coerce the accused persons to redress the civil grievances of the veiled commercial corporate entity being represented by the intervener Sanjeev Kumar Agarwal.

58. The proceedings under PMLA have been instituted on the basis of the applicants' involvement in a criminal case instituted by Punjab National Bank regarding four loan accounts having turned NPA, when in fact one of the four accounts was regular and it had not been declared NPA, the Bank has already issued No Dues Certificates in respect of two loan accounts and has entered into a One Time Settlement in respect of the fourth loan account and has received the first installment of the OTS amount, indicates that there was merely a commercial dispute between the Bank and the applicants which already stands settled. Regarding the FIR lodged by the intervener Sanjeev Kumar Agarwal, this Court has already held that the same has been instituted with an oblique motive to coerce the accused persons to redress the civil grievances of the veiled commercial corporate entity being represented by the intervener Sanjeev Kumar Agarwal. The other FIRs of the scheduled offences are also of similar nature. Therefore, all the alleged scheduled offences are in fact merely commercial disputes which have been given a color of criminality to coerce the applicants to redress the grievances of the complainants without them taking recourse to the remedies available under the civil law and are bad in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Indian Oil Corpn. v. NEPC India Ltd. : (2006) 6 SCC 736 and Sarabjeet Kaur v. State of Punjab & Another (2023) 5 SCC 360 and the observations made by this Court in Anil Kumar Tulsiani v. State of U.P.: 2023 SCC OnLine All 733.

59. Institution of proceedings under PMLA on the basis of the applicants' involvement in the alleged scheduled offences which are in fact merely commercial disputes which have been given a color of criminality to coerce the applicants to redress the grievances of the complainants without them taking recourse to the remedies available under the civil law, is a gross abuse of the process of law in view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the aforesaid cases. The the object and purpose underlying the PMLA is not extraneous resolution of civil disputes. the present case is a clear case of the abuse of the PMLA.

60. The phrase 'or the value of such property' used in Section 2(u) of the PMLA does not include the value of the Flat which had been acquired in the year 2012, long before the Punjab National Bank lodged the FIR in the year 2022 alleging commission of the scheduled offence and which has not been acquired from the proceeds of crime. The Enforcement Directorate had no authority to attach the Flat that had been acquired in the year 2012, much before the commission of the alleged scheduled offences and which had not been acquired from any proceeds of crime and the attachment of the Flat purchased in the year 2012 is absolutely illegal and without jurisdiction.

61. Moreover, the Enforcement Directorate falsely projected that the quantum of the alleged proceeds of crime is Rs. 9,94,80,000/- by including the amount of Rs.4.64 Crores, which already stands settled by the complainant Punjab National Bank. The ED has wrongly included the amount which was the subject matter of 9 out of 20 cases, which have already been quashed.

62. Additionally, there can be no settlement of a crime especially when the offence alleged is that of economic nature. The fact that the complainants have entered into settlements resolving their monetary disputes makes it manifest that the disputes in fact were essentially of civil nature and the criminal law is merely being weaponised by the complainants in their favour to make it easier for them to achieve their ends.

63. In view of the foregoing discussion, I am of the considered view that the proceedings under PMLA is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the applicants and thereby coercing them to redress the grievances of the Flat buyers to transfer in their favour the flats and / or refund their money, without their resorting to the remedies available under the laws and the same are liable to be quashed.

64. Accordingly, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed. The order dated 30.01.2026 passed by the learned Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI West/E.D., Lucknow in Criminal Misc. Case No.4851 of 2025 arising out of ECIR No.ECIR/LKZO/43/2023 taking cognizance of the offence under Section 3/4 of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act, 2002 (hereinafter referred to as PMLA) and has summoned the applicants to face the trial and the entire proceedings of the aforesaid case are quashed. All necessary consequences shall follow.

Water Supply and Sewerage Act, 1975 - ss. 7(3), 8 - Quashing of charge-sheet criminal proceedings - Second petition - Maintainability - Earlier petition dismissed as withdrawn - Subsequent change in circumstances - Judgment of High Court upholding validity of recruitment process - Recruitment examination - SIT inquiry - CFSL report - Examination data - Cloud server - Answer keys - Alleged manipulation of marks - Specific role - The applicant, an Executive Vice President of M/s Aptech Ltd., was arrayed as an accused in a supplementary charge-sheet dated 24.05.2021 arising out of F.I.R. No. 02/2018 registered by Special Investigation Team, U.P., alleging large-scale irregularities in recruitment process conducted by U.P. Jal Nigam for 1,300 posts of Assistant Engineer, Junior Engineer, and clerks/stenographers through M/s Aptech Ltd., including delayed publication of answer keys, deletion of primary examination data from cloud server, and inflation of marks of 169 candidates to favour ineligible candidates, allegedly pursuant to a criminal conspiracy between officials of Jal Nigam and functionaries of examination agency - The applicant, having earlier withdrawn a similar petition u/s 482 Cr.P.C., filed the instant second application seeking quashing of charge-sheet, cognizance order and entire consequent criminal proceedings - He contended that subsequent developments namely, the judgment dated 04.10.2024 of High Court in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021 upholding the validity of selection process and holding that no conspiracy or fraud was established, coupled with the absence of any specific role or incriminating material attributable to him constituted changed circumstances justifying a fresh petition and warranting quashing of proceedings against him - A plea resisted by State on grounds of non-maintainability of successive petition and sufficiency of material disclosing his involvement.

Held: There is absolutely no allegation against the applicant and there is no material which may establish that the applicant has by deceiving any person, fraudulently or dishonestly induced him to deliver any property to any person, or he has intentionally induced the person so deceived to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived, and that the applicant's act or omission has caused or was likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property - There is no allegation that applicant had forged any document, more particularly, a document of the categories mentioned in s. 467 I.P.C, namely a document which purports to be a valuable security or a will, or an authority to adopt a son, or which purports to give authority to any person to make or transfer any valuable security, or to receive the principal, interest or dividends thereon, or to receive or deliver any money, movable property, or valuable security, or any document purporting to be an acquittance or receipt acknowledging the payment of money, or an acquittance or receipt for delivery of any movable property or valuable security - The prosecution has failed to specify the role played by applicant in process of preparation or publication of answer keys. Question papers and answer keys were prepared by third party subject matter experts comprising of renowned professors and teachers. The applicant is neither a subject matter expert nor a part of any team of company which was involved in process of publication of answer keys. The applicant claims that answer-keys were not published promptly pursuant to specific instructions of Jal Nigam, which Aptech and its employees were contractually bound to follow - There is no allegation of any prior meeting of minds between the applicant and officials of Jal Nigam and no quid pro quo has been established. There is no material indicating that applicant has acted mala fide against the Jal Nigam or any unsuccessful candidate or that the applicant had extended any undue favour to any candidate for gaining any undue benefit - As there is absolutely no specific allegation of commission of any act by applicant which may amount to commission of any offence and there is no material prima facie establishing commission of any offence by applicant, the applicant cannot be made to face the trial and continuance of trial of applicant in these circumstances would be an abuse of process of law - Accordingly, application allowed. (Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri S.C. Mishra Senior Advocate assisted by Ms. Meha Rashmi Advocate, the learned counsel for the applicant and Sri Ashok Kumar Shukla, the learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Sri Shivendra Shivam Singh Rathore, the learned State Law Officer for the State of U.P.

2. By means of the instant petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the applicant has sought quashing of a charge-sheet dated 24.05.2021 submitted in furtherance of F.I.R. No. 02/2018, under Sections 409, 420, 120-B, 201 I.P.C. and Section 13(1)(d) of Prevention of Corruption Act 1988. The applicant has also challenged the validity of the order dated 15.07.2021 passed by the learned Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI (Central), Lucknow in Crl. Misc. Case No. 336/2021, taking cognizance of the aforesaid offences and the entire proceedings of the criminal case instituted on the basis of the aforesaid charge-sheet, have also been challenged through this petition.

3. The Inspector-in-charge of Special Investigation Team, UP (SIT) had lodged the aforesaid FIR on 25.04.2018 against- (i) Mohd. Azam Khan, the then Chairman, U.P. Jal Nigam; (ii) Syed Aafaak Ahmed, the then Officer on Special Duty, U.P. Jal Nigam, (iii) Prakash Singh, the then Secretary, Urban Development, Government of U.P., (iv) P. K. Asudani, the then Managing Director, U.P. Jal Nigam, (v) Anil Kumar Khare, the then Chief Engineer, U.P. Jal Nigam and unnamed officers and employees of Jal Nigam and unnamed representatives of M/s Aptech Ltd., who were involved in the recruitment process and some unspecified other persons, stating that Sri Ram Sevak Shukla, retired Executive Engineer, U.P. Jal Nigam had given a complaint dated 22.03.2017 in furtherance of which, the State Government had issued a letter dated 13.07.2017 directing an inquiry to be conducted by the SIT regarding irregular appointments made on 1,300 posts in Jal Nigam.

4. The complainant Inspector-in-charge SIT had conducted an inquiry and had submitted a report to the Government on 28.03.2018. The inquiry revealed that Notifications were issued on 19.11.2016 for making recruitments on the posts of Assistant Engineers, on 28.10.2016 for the posts of Junior Engineers and on 18.06.2016 for the posts of clerks and stenographers. The total posts advertised were 1,300 and the applications and examination fee were to be submitted online.

5. The inquiry report states that the Chairman, Jal Nigam had granted approval to selection of M/s Aptech Ltd. for conducting the recruitment examination, although he had got no authority for the same as Section 7(3) of U.P. Water Supply and Sewerage Act, 1975 does not confer any managerial rights upon the Chairman of U.P. Jal Nigam. The Act does not contemplate appointment of any Officer on Special Duty. Section 8 of the Act confers power of recruitment on the Board of Jal Nigam. The Managing Director of Jal Nigam did not put the matter of recruitment before the Board of Jal Nigam and he forwarded it directly to OSD/Chairman, without obtaining sanction from the Board or the State Government. There are only nine sanctioned posts of Assistant Engineer (electrical/mechanical) but approval was granted for making appointment of candidates possessing Computer Science/ Electrical/ Electronic Engineering degrees on four posts although these posts were not sanctioned by the Government. The Managing Director and Chairman of Jal Nigam do not have the authority to convert the posts.

6. The inquiry report also stated that interview of candidates for stenographers was arbitrarily canceled by the Chairman, Jal Nigam by means of an order dated 20.12.2016, thereby causing a loss of Rs. 37,50,000/- to the Government Exchequer. One of the conditions of the agreement between Jal Nigam and M/s Aptech Limited, was that immediately after completion of the examinations, the answer keys would be displayed, but it was not done. When the candidates demanded the answer keys under the Right to Information Act, it was uploaded on the website of Jal Nigam on 28.02.2017, two months after the examination, due to which the discrepancies in the answer keys and the response sheets could not be highlighted within time and the candidates could not get opportunity to file their objections. The result was declared on 03.01.2017, appointment letters were issued and the appointed candidates were permitted to join the duties on the same date.

7. 43 representations were sent to U.P. Jal Nigam raising objections against the questions and answers after the answer keys and the response sheets were uploaded on the website. In the report submitted by Aptech Ltd. 22.07.2017, it was admitted that seven questions asked in the examination for making appointments of Assistant Engineer and the answers of 20 questions were incorrect. Even after the aforesaid fact coming to his knowledge, the Managing Director did not correct the result and under a conspiracy with M/s Aptech Ltd., the primary data of the examination saved on the cloud server, was deleted.

8. The Inquiry report further stated that it was brought to the knowledge of the High Court through various petitions that the appointments were void ab initio. Candidates who had obtained lesser marks in Computer Based Test (CBT) were awarded maximum marks i.e. 90% in interview whereas the candidates who were awarded the highest marks in CBT were awarded 58% marks in interview and were declared unsuccessful. The entire recruitment process was conducted in an irregular and arbitrary manner, under a criminal conspiracy. Admission of M/s Aptech Ltd. regarding error in 27 questions/answers prima facie established commission of criminal acts by all the officers and other persons involved in the recruitment process.

9. The inquiry report further stated that four candidates selected on the post of Assistant Engineer (Electrical/Mechanical) had given identical 58 correct answers and 22 wrong answers in response to 80 questions. 58 correct answers being the same is natural but 22 wrong answers being the same is not a natural thing. It shows that the responsible officers of U.P. Jal Nigam and the representatives of M/s Aptech Ltd. had committed the offence in connivance with each other. Interviews for the post of Assistant Engineer were conducted on 30.12.2016 and 31.12.2016 and the result was declared on 03.01.2017, appointment letters were issued on the same date, joining was also done on the same date.

10. The inquiry report further stated that 6 questions and 16 answers of questions in the Computer Based Test conducted for making selections to the post of Junior Engineer (Civil and Electrical/Mechanical) are wrong. It shows that the accused persons did not prepare a correct merit list and benefited ineligible candidates. The evidence collected during inquiry revealed that the then Managing Director, U.P. Jal Nigam, other officers, Officer-on-Special Duty, Secretary, Urban Development and Chairman, Jal Nigam abused their official positions and conducted the recruitment process in an irregular/illegal manner, in violation of the rules under a conspiracy with the representatives of M/s Aptech Ltd. and the primary data of the examination was deleted from the cloud server thereby destroying valuable evidence.

11. After investigation, initially a charge sheet dated 12.08.2021 was submitted against four accused persons- (i) Anil Kumar Khare, (ii) Bhavesh Jain, (iii) Aftab M. Khan and (iv) Hemant Kandpal.

12. A copy of the applicant□s statement recorded by the Investigating Officer on 11.09.2019 has been annexed with the counter affidavit, which shows that the applicant had stated that at the time of recording the statement, he was working as Chief Business Officer of M/s Aptech Ltd. and at the time of the recruitment in question, he was working as Executive Vice President of the company. It was his responsibility to provide training services, business development solutions, engineering, infrastructure, management, content services, finance and operations to the Government and private organizations both within the country and outside the country. He was authorized to execute the agreement for conducting the examination in the recruitment process in question on behalf of M/s Aptech Ltd. He had performed the obligations under the contract through his subordinate employees and he had supervised the entire recruitment process. The Investigating Officer had put a question as to when was the contract executed and the applicant answered that it was executed on 15.12.2016. The Investigating Officer pointed out that the applicant had signed the contract on 13.12.2016 in response to which the applicant stated that he would have inadvertently mentioned the date as 13.12.2016 but the contract was in fact executed on 15.12.2016. The applicant further stated that guidance was sought from Anil Kumar Khare, Chief Engineer, Jal Nigam and P.K. Asudani, Managing Director, Jal Nigam to upload the answer key whereupon oral instructions were issued for not uploading the answer key and for making the examination results available and letters were also received from U.P. Jal Nigam in this regard. In response to another question, the applicant stated that he had ensured transparency in the examination process and no candidate had made any complaint to M/s Aptech Ltd.

13. The Investigating Officer submitted a supplementary charge sheet dated 24.05.2021 against (1) Mohammad Azam Khan, (2) Girish Chandra, (3) Neeraj Malik (the applicant) and (4) Vishwajeet Singh, in which the allegations against the applicant and co-accused Mohammad Azam Khan are regarding commission of the offences under Sections 201, 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. read with Sections 120-B I.P.C. and Section 13 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988. He surrendered before the trial court in October, 2021 and he was enlarged on bail on the same day.

14. It has been pleaded in the petition filed under Section 482 Cr.P.C. that on 19.05.2016, Jal Nigam had selected M/s Aptech Ltd. for conducting the examination and the first work order was issued on 19.05.2016. The applicant joined M/s Aptech Ltd. on 01.06.2016. The applicant was not even employed in M/s Aptech Ltd. when Jal Nigam had selected the company to conduct the examination. The applicant had no interaction with any official of the Jal Nigam and he was not a part of the sales team which had secured the contract for the company. Thereafter, contracts between Jal Nigam and M/s Aptech Ltd. were executed on 17.06.2014, 28.10.2016 and 15.12.2016. The applicant further claims that when the examination in question was conducted, the applicant had just joined M/s Aptech Ltd. and his induction process was going on and he was still on probation. The applicant was remotely supervising administrative activities of the company. The applicant has further claimed that he has never worked at Lucknow. His role is confined to sales and business development and he had no role in software development, setting the question papers, tabulation of scores, preparation of merit list etc. and he did not have access to either the question papers or the result of the examination or the marks awarded to the candidates, which were confidential documents/information stored in password protected files with strict access controls. The applicant had no role in running the Information Technology Department or the company's data centers. He had no interaction with the officials of Jal Nigam or any candidate appearing in the examination. The applicant had no role, whatsoever, in the conduct of examinations on behalf of U.P. Jal Nigam.

15. It has also been pleaded in the petition that Jal Nigam had issued the appointment letters on 03.01.2017 and the applicant or M/s Aptech Ltd. had no role to play in issuance of the appointment letters. On 11.08.2017, Jal Nigam canceled all the 1,300 appointments made in the recruitment process in question. The cancellation order was challenged and the same was dismissed by means of a judgment and order dated 28.11.2017 passed in Ajit Singh Patel v. State of U.P.: 2018 (1) ADJ 166, wherein this High Court has held that no irregularity, fraud or malpractice was committed in the selection process and it was directed that the Jal Nigam should correct the minor discrepancies, if any, rather than canceling the entire process. This judgment was affirmed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in U.P. Jal Nigam v. Ajit Singh Patel: (2019) 12 SCC 285.

16. After submission of the SIT report, the Jal Nigam again canceled the appointments by means of an order dated 02.03.2020. This order was challenged by filing Writ A No. 7076 of 2021 and other connected matters in this Court. The writ petitions were allowed by means of an order dated 04.10.2024 holding that no ground existed for cancellation of the selections and on the basis of material mentioned in the SIT report, it cannot be said that there was any irregularity committed in conducting the computer based test or that there was any large scale conspiracy or fraud in the selections. This court upheld the validity of the selection process and directed Jal Nigam to reappoint the untainted candidates in accordance with the result prepared by M/s Aptech Limited.

17. The learned Additional Advocate General Sri Ashok Kumar Shukla has raised a preliminary objection that this is the second petition filed by the applicant under Section 482 Cr.P.C. Earlier, the applicant had filed Application U/S 482 No. 6538 of 2022 and it was dismissed as withdrawn by means of an order dated 13.12.2022. He has submitted that the aforesaid first petition having been dismissed, another petition seeking the same relief of quashing of proceedings against the accused is not maintainable. In support of his objection, he has placed reliance on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhisham Lal Verma v. State of Uttar Pradesh (2024) 15 SCC 282, wherein it has been held that a second petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C is not maintainable on the grounds that were available for challenge at the time of filing of the first petition. The learned Additional Advocate General has also submitted that the trial has already commenced and this Court should refrain from entertaining the petition at this stage.

18. In response to this objection, the learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that a second petition filed after change of circumstances and on fresh grounds which have arisen on account of the judgment and order dated 04.10.2024 passed by this Court in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021, is maintainable. In support of this submission, the learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on a judgment in the case of Anil Khadkiwala v. State (Government of NCT of Delhi) & Ors.: (2019) 17 SCC 294. The learned counsel for the applicant has further submitted that the first petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. was dismissed as withdrawn and it was not decided on merits. Therefore, this petition is not barred in view of the law laid down in the cases of Ashwinbhai Kantibhai Patel v. State of Gujarat & Ors.:Crl. Appeal No. 552 of 2022 decided on 04.04.2022 and Devendra & Ors. v. State of U.P. & Ors.: (2009) 7 SCC 495.

19. It is necessary to deal with the preliminary objection against maintainability of the second application before proceeding to examine the merits of the case.

20. In this regard, Sri. Ashok Kumar Shukla, the learned Additional Advocate General has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhisham Lal Verma v. State of U.P.: (2024) 15 SCC 282. In that case, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has referred to an earlier decision in the case of State of W.B. v. Mohan Singh: (1975) 3 SCC 706, wherein it was held that entertainment of the second petition is permissible where the circumstances existing at the time of the subsequent petition were different from what they were at the time of the earlier one. The Hon'ble Supreme Court held in Bhisham Lal Verma v. State of U.P. (supra) that there can be no blanket rule that a second petition under Section 482 CrPC would not lie in any situation and it would depend upon the facts and circumstances of the individual case. The Supreme Court held that it is not open to a person aggrieved to raise one plea after the other, by invoking the jurisdiction of the High Court under Section 482CrPC, though all such pleas were very much available even at the first instance.

21. In Anil Khadkiwala v. State (NCT of Delhi): (2019) 17 SCC 294, a complaint was filed under Section 138 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881 against the appellant who was the Director of a Company, alleging that the appellant had issued the cheques, which were dishonored upon presentation. The appellant filed a petition for quashing the complaint pleading that he had already resigned from the Company. However, the appellant had not adduced any evidence in support of this contention. The application was dismissed solely on the ground that the cheques were issued under the signature of the appellant. The appellant then preferred a fresh application under Section 482 annexing therewith Form 32 issued by the Registrar of Companies in proof of resignation by the appellant prior to the issuance of the cheques. The High Court dismissed the petition. Allowing the appeal, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that: -

7….. the appellant had taken a specific objection in his earlier application under Section 482 CrPC that he had resigned from the Company on 20-1-2001 and which had been accepted. From the tenor of the order of the High Court on the earlier occasion it does not appear that Form 32 issued by the Registrar of Companies was brought on record in support of the resignation. The High Court dismissed the quashing application without considering the contention of the appellant that he had resigned from the post of the Director of the Company prior to the issuance of the cheques and the effect thereof in the facts and circumstances of the case. The High Court in the fresh application under Section 482 CrPC initially was therefore satisfied to issue notice in the matter after noticing the Form 32 certificate. Naturally there was a difference between the earlier application and the subsequent one, inasmuch as the statutory Form 32 did not fall for consideration by the Court earlier. The factum of resignation is not in dispute between the parties. The subsequent application, strictly speaking, therefore cannot be said to a repeat application squarely on the same facts and circumstances.

8. In Mohan Singh [Supt. and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Mohan Singh, (1975) 3 SCC 706], it was held that a successive application under Section 482 CrPC under changed circumstances was maintainable and the dismissal of the earlier application was no bar to the same, observing:

"2. Here, the situation is wholly different. The earlier application which was rejected by the High Court was an application under Section 561-A of the Criminal Procedure Code to quash the proceeding and the High Court rejected it on the ground that the evidence was yet to be led and it was not desirable to interfere with the proceeding at that stage. But, thereafter, the criminal case dragged on for a period of about one-and-a-half years without any progress at all and it was in these circumstances that Respondents 1 and 2 were constrained to make a fresh application to the High Court under Section 561-A to quash the proceeding. It is difficult to see how in these circumstances, it could ever be contended that what the High Court was being asked to do by making the subsequent application was to review or revise the order made by it on the earlier application. Section 561-A preserves the inherent power of the High Court to make such orders as it deems fit to prevent abuse of the process of the court or to secure the ends of justice and the High Court must, therefore, exercise its inherent powers having regard to the situation prevailing at the particular point of time when its inherent jurisdiction is sought to be invoked. The High Court was in the circumstances entitled to entertain the subsequent application of Respondents 1 and 2 and consider whether on the facts and circumstances then obtaining the continuance of the proceeding against the respondents constituted an abuse of the process of the Court or its quashing was necessary to secure the ends of justice. The facts and circumstances obtaining at the time of the subsequent application of Respondents 1 and 2 were clearly different from what they were at the time of the earlier application of the first respondent because, despite the rejection of the earlier application of the first respondent, the prosecution had failed to make any progress in the criminal case even though it was filed as far back as 1965 and the criminal case rested where it was for a period of over one-and-a-half years."

22. In the present case, the allegations against the appellant are that he was responsible to ensure execution of the recruitment examination and the answer keys were not published immediately after the examination, under a criminal conspiracy to fabricate the marks obtained by 169 ineligible candidates thereby ensuring their selection, which has resulted in deserving candidates being deprived of their rightful selection. The applicant had earlier filed Application

U/S 482 No. 6538 of 2022, which was dismissed as withdrawn by means of an order dated 13.12.2022 and it was not decided on merits. Subsequently, After submission of the SIT report, the Jal Nigam again canceled the appointments by means of an order dated 02.03.2020. This order was challenged by filing Writ A No. 7076 of 2021 and other connected matters in this Court. The writ petitions were allowed by means of an order dated 04.10.2024 holding that on the basis of material mentioned in the SIT report, it cannot be said that there was any irregularity committed in conducting the computer based test or that there was any large scale conspiracy or fraud in the selections. This court upheld the validity of the selection process and directed Jal Nigam to reappoint the untainted candidates in accordance with the result prepared by M/s Aptech Limited.

23. The aforesaid subsequent finding recorded by this High Court that it cannot be said that there was any irregularity committed in conducting the computer based test or that there was any large scale conspiracy or fraud in the selections, certainly gives a ground to the applicant to challenge the criminal proceedings against him on the same set of allegations, as per the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Supt. and Remembrancer of Legal Affairs v. Mohan Singh: (1975) 3 SCC 706 and followed in Anil Khadkiwala v. State (NCT of Delhi): (2019) 17 SCC 294.

24. Even as per the law laid down in Bhisham Lal Verma v. State of U.P.: (supra) relied upon by the learned Additional Advocate General, entertainment of the second petition is permissible where the circumstances existing at the time of the subsequent petition were different from what they were at the time of the earlier one. Therefore, the preliminary objection raised by the learned Additional Advocate General against maintainability of the second petition filed on new grounds, which accrued after dismissal of the first petition as not maintainable and not on merits, is misconceived and the same is turned down.

25. Substantially the SIT inquiry report levels the following allegations:-

a. Aptech was required to publish the Answer Key but it failed to do so. Hence, Aptech breached the contract and connived with the officers of the Jal Nigam, as a consequence whereof the candidates did not get an opportunity to submit their objections against the question papers.

b. Aptech deleted the primary data of the examination from the cloud server and thus destroyed valuable evidence, under a criminal conspiracy with Jal Nigam.

c. Marks of 169 candidates were increased for unfair gains, as a consequence whereof ineligible candidates were selected and eligible candidates were deprived of selection.

26. The applicant has submitted that he had no role in or concerned with the process of preparation or publication of answer keys. Question papers and answer keys in any examination are prepared by third party subject matter experts comprising of renowned professors and teachers and the same are published by the infrastructure team of the company, if instructed by the client. The applicant is neither a subject matter expert nor a part of any team of the company which was involved in the process of publication of answer keys. Regarding non-publication of answer keys, the applicant claims that it was done pursuant to specific instructions of Jal Nigam, which Aptech and its employees were contractually bound to follow. It does not amount to committing any offence.

27. The applicant has further pleaded that there is no allegation of any prior meeting of minds between the applicant and the officials of the Jal Nigam and no quid pro quo has been established. There is no material indicating that the applicant has acted mala fide against the Jal Nigam or any unsuccessful candidate or that the applicant had extended any undue favour to any candidate for gaining any undue benefit. As soon as Jal Nigam demanded the answer keys after certain candidates had sought information under the Right to Information Act, Aptech Ltd. had provided the answer keys in a CD-Rom to Jal Nigam. Thereafter, the Jal Nigam instructed Aptech Ltd. to publish the answer keys and it was also done promptly.

28. The applicant has placed reliance on the judgment dated 04.10.2024 passed by this Court in Samrah Ahmad v. State of U.P.: Writ A No. 7076 of 2021, wherein this Court has held that there was only a minuscule number of wrong questions and answers which are bound to creep-in in a multiple choice question format question paper and they cannot be said to have vitiated the examination process. This Court has further held that Aptech was not involved in the process of preparation of question papers/answer keys which were prepared by third party subject matter experts and Aptech has revised the results and identified the candidates who should not have been called for interview. Therefore, the allegation of conspiracy between the company and Jal Nigam does not appeal to reason.

29. Regarding the third allegation that marks of 169 candidates have been increased to give benefit to ineligible candidates, it has been submitted that there is not even an iota of evidence linking the applicant to the allegation, who was not a part of the result processing team and who did not have access to the marks of the candidates and had no role, whatsoever in actual tabulation of marks of the candidates or preparation of the results. After conclusion of the computer based test, the result was prepared by the result processing team of the company and the same was handed over in control and custody of the officials of the Jal Nigam in a password protected secured file. There is no allegation of any irregularity having been committed or manipulation having taken place till conclusion of CBT. In this regard also, the applicant has placed reliance on the judgment dated 04.10.2024 passed by this Court in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021, wherein it has been held that the CFSL report does not record any finding that the data retrieved from the hard disk seized from the office of local environment of Aptech had been manipulated or modified. This Court has held that Aptech had followed all security measures and handed over the result to Jal Nigam officials in password protected secured files with login ID. Manipulation, if any, crept in after the result had been handed over to Jal Nigam and Aptech was not involved in this process. The CFSL has not found the record maintained by Aptech as having been tampered with. The applicant has submitted that there is absolutely no specific allegation of commission of any act by the applicant which may amount to commission of any offence and, therefore, he cannot be made to face trial without any basis.

30. The State has filed a counter affidavit opposing the petition, wherein it has inter alia been stated that the applicant was responsible to ensure execution of the recruitment examination and the answer keys were not published immediately after the examination, under a criminal conspiracy to fabricate the marks obtained by 169 ineligible candidates thereby ensuring their selection, which has resulted in deserving candidates being deprived of their rightful selection. It has further been stated in the counter affidavit that this Court has observed in the order dated 04.10.2024 passed in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021 that the examination was conducted under the supervision of the accused persons who continued with the recruitment process despite the answer key having not been published online immediately after the examination. This establishes collusion between Jal Nigam and Aptech Ltd.

31. The counter affidavit further states that this Court had framed the following issue in the judgment dated 04.10.2024 passed in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021: -

"Whether the material discussed in the orders impugned were cogent enough to reach out to a conclusion that entire selection process in respect of vacancies of AE/JE/RGC in question was so much compromised that there left no possibility to segregate tainted from untainted candidates, and therefore, taking a holistic view of the matter, it became imperative to cancel the entire selections and appointments made in respect of those very posts."

32. It has been stated in the counter affidavit that the findings returned in respect of the issue framed is solely based on the CFSL Report obtained during the investigation which has established beyond reasonable doubt the culpability and the prosecution case.

33. A supplementary affidavit has been filed by the applicant inter alia stating that a co-accused Bhavesh Jain, who was working as a Software Engineer in Aptech Ltd., had filed Application U/S 482 No. 2235 of 2022 challenging the validity of the charge-sheet, the summoning order and the entire pending proceeding against him. The petition has been allowed by means of a judgment and order dated 02.06.2022 passed by a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court and the entire proceedings against Bhavesh Jain have been quashed. The aforesaid judgment dated 02.06.2022 was challenged by filing S.L.P. (Criminal) No. 6827 of 2022 and the Hon'ble Supreme Court has dismissed the SLP by means of the following order dated 16.09.2025: -

"1. Since the High Court has given elaborate reasoning as to why it found no case to be made out against the respondent-accused herein, we find no reason to interfere with those findings.

2. However, the said findings will have no bearing on the cases of the other accused, which will be independently considered by the trial Judge during trial or in respect of application(s)/petition(s) filed by other accused persons seeking discharge or quashing.

3. Needles to state that any application/petition by the State for quashing or discharge will be considered by the High Court or the Trial Court on the basis of availability or non-availability of material against the concerned accused.

4. The special leave petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

5. Pending application(s), if any, stand disposed of."

34. The State has filed a supplementary counter affidavit sworn by an Additional Superintendent of Police, EOW (SIT) U.P., Lucknow stating that the applicant was involved right from the inception of the selection process and he has actively participated in commission of the offence knowing fully and having been aware of the fact that increasing marks will amount to tampering of the result, which in itself is forgery and fabrication of the valuable security. It has been stated that the applicant's case is different from that of co-accused Bhavesh Jain who was Manager Software Development and was responsible for development of software for Jal Nigam

Project whereas the applicant is Executive Vice President and he was responsible for the delivery of the entire project.

35. Challenging the proceedings against the applicant, the learned counsel for the applicant has further submitted that CFSL report does not record any finding that the data recovered from the Aptech was manipulated or had been modified. The marks of 169 candidates were inflated by Jal Nigam and not by Aptech as Aptech has not been found to have committed any tampering in the marks recorded in the original database.

36. The learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on a judgment in the case of Ravindranatha Bajpe v. Mangalore Special Economic Zone Ltd.: (2022) 15 SCC 430 and Narendra Kumar v. State of Karnataka: 2022 INSC 301, wherein it has been held that a senior employee of a company cannot be made an accused, without any specific allegation and specific role attributed to him.

37. The learned Counsel for the applicant has also relied on a judgment in the case of Sunil Bharti Mittal v. CBI: (2015) 4 SCC 609, wherein it has been held that when a company is accused, its directors can be roped in only if (a) there is sufficient incriminating evidence against them coupled with criminal intent or (b) the statutory regime attracts the doctrine of vicarious liability. He has submitted that no specific role has been assigned to the applicant and, prima facie, there is no incriminating material against the applicant.

38. The learned counsel for the applicant has lastly submitted since there is no material on record against the applicant, exercise of inherent powers of this Court in his favour under Section 482 is justified. In support of this contention he has relied upon the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in State of Karnataka v. L. Muniswamy: AIR 1977 SC 1489, where it has been held that where the High Court comes to the conclusion that allowing the proceeding to continue would be an abuse of the process of the Court or that the ends of justice require that the proceeding ought to be quashed, in such a case the Court is entitled to quash the proceedings in exercise of its inherent powers.

39. Relying on a decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Neelu Chopra v. Bharti: (2009) 10 SCC 184, the learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that the particulars of the offence committed by each and every accused and role of the accused must be clearly demonstrated in the charge-sheet, which has not been done in the present case.

40. The learned counsel for the applicant has next submitted that when no specific allegation has been levelled against the applicant, he cannot be tried on the basis of vague and bald allegations and in support of this submission the learned counsel for the applicant has placed reliance on the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mirza Iqbal v. State of U.P.: AIR 2022 SC 69, wherein it has been held that where the contents of the FIR do not disclose specific allegations against the accused and the case appears to be a case of over implication aimed at settling scores then such a proceeding being an abuse of the process of the Court, the Court will be justified in quashing it.

41. Placing reliance upon the judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in C.B.I. v. Aryan Singh and Others: (2023) 18 SCC 399, Manik B. v. Kadapala Sreyas Reddy and Another: 2023 SCC OnLine SC 2540, Ramveer Upadhyay & Anr. V. State of UP and Anr: Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No. 2953 of 2023, Dharambeer Kumar Singh v. State of Jharkhand and Another: (2025) 1 SCC 392, State of Odisha v. Nirjharini Patnaik and Anr.: 2024 SCC Online SC 657, Dr. Dhruvaram Murlidhar Sonar v. State of Maharashtra and Anr: (2019) 18 SCC 19 and C.B.I. v. Arvind Khanna: (2019) 10 SCC 686, the learned counsel for the respondent has submitted that while exercising the power of quashing under Section 482 Cr.P.C or Article 226 of the Constitution, the High Court must not conduct a mini trial. The scope of inquiry at this stage being limited, the correctness of all the allegations and defenses thereto ought not to be considered at this stage and proceedings at such stage may be quashed only where no case at its face value is made out against the accused. He has submitted that inherent powers under Section 482 ought to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down by the Section itself.

42. It is correct that the High Court cannot conduct a mini trial at the stage of examining the validity of the charge-sheet by conducting a detailed scrutiny of the probative value of the prosecution material, but it is equally correct that the Court has to examine whether the allegations against the applicant and the material relied upon by the prosecution in support of the charges makes out a case for trial of the applicant. The scope of interference in a petition under Section 482 Cr.P.C. was explained by the Hon□ble Supreme Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal: 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335, in the following passage: -

"102. In the backdrop of the interpretation of the various relevant provisions of the Code under Chapter XIV and of the principles of law enunciated by this Court in a series of decisions relating to the exercise of the extraordinary power under Article 226 or the inherent powers under Section 482 of the Code which we have extracted and reproduced above, we have given the following categories of cases by way of illustration wherein such power could be exercised either to prevent abuse of the process of any court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice, though it may not be possible to lay down any precise, clearly defined and sufficiently channelised and inflexible guidelines or rigid formulae and to give an exhaustive list of myriad kinds of cases wherein such power should be exercised.

(1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(2) Where the allegations in the first information report and other materials, if any, accompanying the FIR do not disclose a cognizable offence, justifying an investigation by police officers under Section 156(1) of the Code except under an order of a Magistrate within the purview of Section 155(2) of the Code.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

(4) Where, the allegations in the FIR do not constitute a cognizable offence but constitute only a non-cognizable offence, no investigation is permitted by a police officer without an order of a Magistrate as contemplated under Section 155(2) of the Code.

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(6) Where there is an express legal bar engrafted in any of the provisions of the Code or the concerned Act (under which a criminal proceeding is instituted) to the institution and continuance of the proceedings and/or where there is a specific provision in the Code or the concerned Act, providing efficacious redress for the grievance of the aggrieved party.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge."

43. In Sajjan Kumar v. CBI: (2010) 9 SCC 368, the Hon'ble Supreme Court laid down the following principles regarding scope of inquiry at the time of framing charges and while considering a request for discharge: -

"21. On consideration of the authorities about the scope of Sections 227 and 228 of the Code, the following principles emerge:

(i) The Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 CrPC has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out. The test to determine prima facie case would depend upon the facts of each case.

(ii) Where the materials placed before the court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained, the court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

(iii) The court cannot act merely as a post office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the court, any basic infirmities, etc. However, at this stage, there cannot be a roving inquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial.

(iv) If on the basis of the material on record, the court could form an opinion that the accused might have committed offence, it can frame the charge, though for conviction the conclusion is required to be proved beyond reasonable doubt that the accused has committed the offence.

(v) At the time of framing of the charges, the probative value of the material on record cannot be gone into but before framing a charge the court must apply its judicial mind on the material placed on record and must be satisfied that the commission of offence by the accused was possible.

(vi) At the stage of Sections 227 and 228, the court is required to evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to find out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence. For this limited purpose, sift the evidence as it cannot be expected even at that initial stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case.

(vii) If two views are possible and one of them gives rise to suspicion only, as distinguished from grave suspicion, the trial Judge will be empowered to discharge the accused and at this stage, he is not to see whether the trial will end in conviction or acquittal."

44. The aforesaid principles laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sajjan Kumar (supra) regarding scope of scrutiny by the trial Court at the time of considering an application for discharge or framing charges, can also be taken as guiding principles for the High Court while considering a request for quashing of the charge-sheet and the proceedings based thereon. Therefore, this Court can sift and weigh the prosecution evidence, without conducting a roving inquiry into the pros and cons of the matter by assessing the probative value of the evidence on record, for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not the uncontroverted allegations levelled in the FIR and the evidence collected in support of the same disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the applicant. This Court can certainly evaluate the material and documents on record with a view to find out if the facts emerging therefrom taken at their face value disclose the existence of all the ingredients constituting the alleged offence, as it cannot be expected even at this stage to accept all that the prosecution states as gospel truth even if it is opposed to common sense or the broad probabilities of the case.

45. Therefore, I proceed to examine the prosecution allegations and the material in support thereof to examine whether the same make out a case for trial of the applicant for the offences under Sections 201, 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. read with Sections 120-B I.P.C. and Section 13 of the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 is made out.

46. Section 201 IPC reads as follows: -

"201. Causing disappearance of evidence of offence, or giving false information to screen offender - Whoever, knowing or having reason to believe that an offence has been committed, causes any evidence of the commission of that offence to disappear, with the intention of screening the offender from legal punishment, or with that intention gives any information respecting the offence which he knows or believes to be false, if a capital offence.- shall, if the offence which he knows or believes to have been committed is punishable with death, be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine;

if punishable with imprisonment for life-. and if the offence is punishable with imprisonment for life, or with imprisonment which may extend to ten years, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years, and shall also be liable to fine;

if punishable with less than ten years- imprisonment. and if the offence is punishable with imprisonment for any term not extending to ten years, shall be punished with imprisonment of the description provided for the offence, for a term which may extend to one-fourth part of the longest term of the imprisonment provided for the offence, or with fine, or with both.

Illustration

A, knowing that B has murdered Z, assists B to hide the body with the intention of screening B from punishment. A is liable to imprisonment of either description for seven years, and also to fine."

47. The allegation to attract this offence is that Aptech has deleted the primary data of the examination from the cloud server and thus destroyed valuable evidence, under a criminal conspiracy with Jal Nigam. The charge-sheet does not specify the role of the applicant in removal of the primary data from the cloud server. The applicant has pleaded that he was not concerned with the storage of data and he did not have access to / control of the computer systems or computer network where the data of the examination is stored. It has further been stated that the original data has not been deleted and continues to be stored in the archives of the company in hard disks in its original format, under strict access control. This was informed to SIT but SIT never bothered to collect the data and filed the charge-sheet in ignorance of the aforesaid fact.

48. When the primary data has not been deleted and it has merely been shifted from the cloud server to the archives of the company, it cannot be said that the evidence of the commission of the alleged offences has been made to disappear and the offence under Section 201 IPC is not made out.

49. The applicant has justified shifting of the data from the cloud server to the company's archives by pleading that Clause 10 of the Data Retention Policy of Aptech dated 21.01.2015 (on the basis of which ISO: 27001 certification has been granted to the company) provides that any data pertaining to an examination conducted by the company has to be stored on the primary data center for a period of 30 days. This primary data center is on the 'cloud' and is owned by a company called 'Ctrl-S' which is one of the best data centers in the country with a 'Tier-IV Certification' and which provides data retention facility to many companies, including Aptech. After 30 days, the data gets shifted to the secondary data center, a Tier-III data center (which in this case was 'Net Magic', located at Noida) for a period of six months. Thereafter, the data moves to the Archives of Aptech, which is maintained at its Data Center at Noida, where it is ultimately stored in various physical storage devices, i.e. hard disks/NAS (a cluster of hard disks). This 'original data' is untampered and contains the complete audit trail/logs, individual mouse clicks of the candidates and candidate wise/ center wise response logs.

50. In the judgment dated 04.10.2024 passed in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021, this Court has held that the company has not breached the contract in any manner by shifting the primary data from the cloud in accordance with its Data Retention Policy, as there was no obligation under the contract to save the data on the cloud alone. The primary data continues to be stored in the archival server of the company and it was always available to the investigating agency.

51. Therefore, no case for trial of the applicant for the offence under Section 201 IPC is made out.

52. Sections 420 IPC reads as follows: -

"420. Cheating and dishonestly inducing delivery of property. - Whoever cheats and thereby dishonestly induces the person deceived to deliver any property to any person, or to make, alter or destroy the whole or any part of a valuable security, or anything which is signed or sealed, and which is capable of being converted into a valuable security, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine."

53. The offence of cheating is defined in Section 415 IPC as follows: -

"415. Cheating - Whoever, by deceiving any person, fraudulently or dishonestly induces the person so deceived to deliver any property to any person, or to consent that any person shall retain any property, or intentionally induces the person so deceived to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived, and which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property, is said to 'cheat'.

Explanation.-A dishonest concealment of facts is a deception within the meaning of this section.

(a) A, by falsely pretending to be in the Civil Service, intentionally deceives Z, and thus dishonestly induces Z to let him have on credit goods for which he does not mean to pay. A cheats.

(b) A, by putting a counterfeit mark on an article, intentionally deceives Z into a belief that this article was made by a certain celebrated manufacturer, and thus dishonestly induces Z to buy and pay for the article. A cheats.

(c) A, by exhibiting to Z a false sample of an article, intentionally deceives Z into believing that the article corresponds with the sample, and thereby dishonestly induces Z to buy and pay for the article. A cheats.

(d) A, by tendering in payment for an article a bill on a house with which A keeps no money, and by which A expects that the bill will be dishonored, intentionally deceives Z, and thereby dishonestly induces Z to deliver the article, intending not to pay for it. A cheats.

(e) A, by pledging as diamonds articles which he knows are not diamonds, intentionally deceives Z, and thereby dishonestly induces Z to lend money. A cheats.

(f) A intentionally deceives Z into a belief that A means to repay any money that Z may lend to him and thereby dishonestly induces Z to lend him money, A not intending to repay it. A cheats.

(g) A intentionally deceives Z into a belief that A means to deliver to Z a certain quantity of indigo plant which he does not intend to deliver, and thereby dishonestly induces Z to advance money upon the faith of such delivery, A cheats; but if A, at the time of obtaining the money, intends to deliver the indigo plant, and afterwards breaks his contract and does not deliver it, he does not cheat, but is liable only to a civil action for breach of contract.

(h) A intentionally deceives Z into a belief that A has performed A's part of a contract made with Z, which he has not performed, and thereby dishonestly induces Z to pay money. A cheats.

(i) A sells and conveys an estate to B. A, knowing that in consequence of such sale he has no right to the property, sells or mortgages the same to Z, without disclosing the fact of the previous sale and conveyance to B, and receives the purchase or mortgage money from Z. A cheats."

54. There is absolutely no allegation against the applicant and there is no material which may establish that the applicant has by deceiving any person, fraudulently or dishonestly induced him to deliver any property to any person, or he has intentionally induced the person so deceived to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he were not so deceived, and that the applicant's act or omission has caused or was likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property. Therefore, the offence under Section 420 IPC is also not made out against the applicant.

55. Sections 467 and 468 IPC provide as follows: -

"467. Forgery of valuable security, will etc. Whoever forges a document which purports to be a valuable security or a will, or an authority to adopt a son, or which purports to give authority to any person to make or transfer any valuable security, or to receive the principal, interest or dividends thereon, or to receive or deliver any money, movable property, or valuable security, or any document purporting to be an acquittance or receipt acknowledging the payment of money, or an acquittance or receipt for the delivery of any movable property or valuable security, shall be punished with imprisonment for life, or with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to ten years, and shall also be liable to fine.

468. Forgery for the purpose of cheating. - Whoever commits forgery, intending that the document or electronic record forged shall be used for the purpose of cheating, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine."

56. Section 120-B IPC contains punishment for criminal conspiracy, which is defined in Section 120-A as follows: -

"120-A. Definition of Criminal Conspiracy - When two or more persons agree to do, or cause to be done,-

(1) an illegal act, or

(2) an act which is not illegal by illegal means, such an agreement is designated a criminal conspiracy:

Provided that no agreement except an agreement to commit an offence shall amount to a criminal conspiracy unless some act besides the agreement is done by one or more parties to such agreement in pursuance thereof.

Explanation.-It is immaterial whether the illegal act is the ultimate object of such agreement, or is merely incidental to that object."

57. There is no allegation that the applicant had forged any document, more particularly, a document of the categories mentioned in Section 467 I.P.C, namely a document which purports to be a valuable security or a will, or an authority to adopt a son, or which purports to give authority to any person to make or transfer any valuable security, or to receive the principal, interest or dividends thereon, or to receive or deliver any money, movable property, or valuable security, or any document purporting to be an acquittance or receipt acknowledging the payment of money, or an acquittance or receipt for the delivery of any movable property or valuable security.

58. The prosecution has failed to specify the role played by the applicant in the process of preparation or publication of answer keys. Question papers and answer keys were prepared by third party subject matter experts comprising of renowned professors and teachers. The applicant is neither a subject matter expert nor a part of any team of the company which was involved in the process of publication of answer keys. The applicant claims that answer-keys were not published promptly pursuant to specific instructions of Jal Nigam, which Aptech and its employees were contractually bound to follow. In any case, the delayed publication of answer-keys does not make out commission of offences under Sections 420, 477, 468 and 471 IPC.

59. Further, there is no allegation of any prior meeting of minds between the applicant and the officials of the Jal Nigam and no quid pro quo has been established. There is no material indicating that the applicant has acted mala fide against the Jal Nigam or any unsuccessful candidate or that the applicant had extended any undue favour to any candidate for gaining any undue benefit. Therefore, the offence of criminal conspiracy is also not made out.

60. In the judgment dated dated 04.10.2024 passed in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021 Samrah Ahmad v. State of U.P., this Court has held that there was only a minuscule number of wrong questions and answers which are bound to creep-in in a multiple choice question format question paper and they cannot be said to have vitiated the examination process. This Court has further held that Aptech was not involved in the process of preparation of question papers/answer keys which were prepared by third party subject matter experts and Aptech has revised the results and identified the candidates who should not have been called for interview. Therefore, the allegation of conspiracy between the company and Jal Nigam does not appeal to reason. The relevant portion of the judgment is being reproduced below: -

"326. From the perusal of the entire report of the SIT, I have found that the Special Investigation Team has broadly discussed the doubtful questions and doubtful answers in its report on the basis of challenges made to the questions and answers by the different candidates after the master answer key and response sheet were published. The Special Investigation Team has arrived at this conclusion that this was the duty of the M/s Aptech Ltd. to prepare the questions papers as well as to provide the answers in the master answer key for its final verification. After the response sheets were published, the challenges that were laid to various questions and answers and the revised result that was prepared by M/s Aptech Ltd was sufficient to demonstrate that the agency failed to perform its duty properly and as a matter of fact these wrong questions and wrong answers resulted in calling for undeserving candidates for interview and placing them in the select list. This according to SIT was also a result of conspiracy that was hatched by the then senior Minister who happened to be the Chairman of the corporation in connivance with officials in the upper echelons of the corporation and with those of M/s Aptech Ltd.

327. This above finding merely on the basis of the revised result cannot be sustained for the simple reason that only a very few number of questions and answers were found to be doubtful. It is true that the result came to be revised and, therefore, candidates stood identified who in fact should not have been called for interview and yet were called but this is nothing exceptional. In any examination which is a competitive in nature in which the papers are prepared on the format of multiple choice questions, some questions and some answers are bound to fall in doubtful category. This is also apparent from the report submitted by the service provider agency in which 19 answers in respect of certain questions were still doubtful as two experts had given two different options to be the correct answers of same questions.

331. Thus, there is only a very minuscule percentage or number of doubtful questions and doubtful answers and this cannot be said to be sufficient ground itself to hold that the entire selection process insofar as conduct of CBT is concerned was compromised*.*

332. Still further, M/s Aptech Ltd. has taken its clear stand taken before the Court that the agency itself outsourced preparation of questions to a third party/ persons who are experts in their field and, therefore, M/s Aptech Ltd. did not have expertise to evaluate the questions and answers for every questions asked and answers given by the said experts and it is all further put to test by way of notification for the experts of the concerned subject when the challenges are made. Therefore, to come to the conclusion and hold that there was a conspiracy by the Minister concerned and the M/s Aptech Ltd. was a part of it in preparing question papers and answers to benefit poorer candidates does not appeal to reason in the given facts and circumstances of the case."

61. The accused applicant is relying upon the findings recorded in the aforesaid judgment of this Court.

62. In Pradeep Kumar Kesarwani v. State of U.P.: 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1947, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has laid down the guidelines to be followed while examining the prayer for quashing of the proceedings under Section 482 Cr.P.C.. The relevant passage of the judgment is being reproduced below: -

"20. The following steps should ordinarily determine the veracity of a prayer for quashing, raised by an accused by invoking the power vested in the High Court under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C.:

(i) Step one, whether the material relied upon by the accused is sound, reasonable, and indubitable, i.e., the materials is of sterling and impeccable quality?

(ii) Step two, whether the material relied upon by the accused, would rule out the assertions contained in the charges levelled against the accused, i.e., the material is sufficient to reject and overrule the factual assertions contained in the complaint, i.e., the material is such, as would persuade a reasonable person to dismiss and condemn the factual basis of the accusations as false.

(iii) Step three, whether the material relied upon by the accused, has not been refuted by the prosecution/complainant; and/or the material is such, that it cannot be justifiably refuted by the prosecution/complainant?

(iv) Step four, whether proceeding with the trial would result in an abuse of process of the court, and would not serve the ends of justice?

If the answer to all the steps is in the affirmative, judicial conscience of the High Court should persuade it to quash such criminal - proceedings, in exercise of power vested in it under Section 482 of the Cr. P.C. Such exercise of power, besides doing justice to the accused, would save precious court time, which would otherwise be wasted in holding such a trial (as well as, proceedings arising therefrom) specially when, it is clear that the same would not conclude in the conviction of the accused. [(See: Rajiv Thapar v. Madan Lal Kapoor (Criminal Appeal No. 174 of 2013)]

63. The judgment in the case of Pradeep Kumar Kesarwani (supra) has been followed in Sajal Bose v. State of W.B.: 2026 SCC OnLine SC 525.

64. Undoubtedly, a judgment of the High Court recording findings that there is only a very minuscule percentage or number of doubtful questions and doubtful answers and this cannot be said to be sufficient ground itself to hold that the entire selection process insofar as conduct of the CBT is concerned was compromised and that it cannot be held that there was a conspiracy by the Minister concerned and M/s Aptech Ltd. was a part of it in preparing question papers and answers to benefit poorer candidates, is a material of sterling and impeccable quality. The aforesaid findings recorded by this Court rule out the charges levelled against the applicant that there was a conspiracy in holding the recruitment examination and the applicant was a part of it. The State / CBI have not refuted the aforesaid findings recorded by this Court. In these circumstances, proceeding with the trial would result in an abuse of process of the court, and would not serve the ends of justice.

65. Regarding the third allegation that marks of 169 candidates have been increased to give benefit to ineligible candidates, there is not even an iota of evidence linking the applicant to the allegation, who was not a part of the result processing team and who did not have access to the marks of the candidates and had no role, whatsoever in actual tabulation of marks of the candidates or preparation of the results. There is no allegation of any irregularity having been committed or manipulation having taken place till conclusion of CBT. In the judgment dated 04.10.2024 passed by this Court in Writ A No. 7076 of 2021, it has been held that the CFSL report does not record any finding that the data retrieved from the hard disk seized from the office of local environment of Aptech had been manipulated or modified. This Court has held that Aptech had followed all security measures and handed over the result to Jal Nigam officials in password protected secured files with login ID. Manipulation, if any, crept in after the result had been handed over to Jal Nigam and Aptech was not involved in this process. The CFSL has not found the record maintained by Aptech as having been tampered with.

66. In the counter affidavit filed by the State, it has been stated that the applicant was responsible to ensure execution of the recruitment examination and the answer keys were not published immediately after the examination, under a criminal conspiracy to fabricate the marks obtained by 169 ineligible candidates thereby ensuring their selection, which has resulted in deserving candidates being deprived of their rightful selection, without specifying the role of the acts of the applicant which may make out commission of any offence by him.

67. As there is absolutely no specific allegation of commission of any act by the applicant which may amount to commission of any offence and there is no material prima facie establishing commission of any offence by the applicant, the applicant cannot be made to face the trial and the continuance of trial of the applicant in these circumstances would be an abuse of the process of law. It would result in the unwarranted persecution of the applicant, which would cause a failure of justice to the applicant.

68. In view of the foregoing discussion, I am of the considered view that the charge-sheet dated 24.05.2021 submitted against the applicant for offences under Sections 201, 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC read with Section 120-B I.P.C. and Section 13(1)(d) of Prevention of Corruption Act 1988, in Case Crime No. 2 of 2018, Police Station SIT, District Lucknow, the order dated 15.07.2021 passed by the learned Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI (Central), Lucknow in Crl. Misc. Case No. 336/2021, taking cognizance of the aforesaid offences and the entire proceedings of the criminal case instituted on the basis of the aforesaid charge-sheet against the applicant, are liable to be quashed.

69. Accordingly, the application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. is allowed. The charge-sheet dated 24.05.2021 submitted against the applicant for offences under Sections 201, 420, 467, 468 and 471 IPC read with Section 120-B I.P.C. and Section 13(1)(d) of Prevention of Corruption Act 1988, in Case Crime No. 2 of 2018, Police Station SIT, District Lucknow, the order dated 15.07.2021 passed by the learned Special Judge, Anti-Corruption, CBI (Central), Lucknow in Crl. Misc. Case No. 336/2021, taking cognizance of the aforesaid offences and the entire proceedings of the criminal case instituted on the basis of the aforesaid charge-sheet against the applicant, are quashed.

Application U/S 528 BNSS No. 44666 of 2025

Rahul Sharma & Ors. ...Applicant(s)
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Party(s)

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the application u/s 528 B.N.S.S. filed by applicants, who stood declared as proclaimed absconders (through the sister of applicant no.1), was maintainable at all, given that they had not surrendered before the trial court and had evaded the process of law and also at the pre-trial stage, the High Court, in exercise of its extraordinary/inherent jurisdiction u/s 528 B.N.S.S., could quash charge-sheet, cognizance/summoning order, and entire consequent proceedings, on the ground that no prima facie case of alleged offences was made out against the applicants.

Headnotes

Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 474 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - ss. 82, 83 - Allegation of misappropriation of Rs. 28.07 crores from bank account - Altered customer details in CBS - Closed several fixed deposits - Diverted the proceeds to different bank accounts including his wife and mother - RTGS/NEFT/UPI - Abused official position - Criminal conspiracy - Quashing of criminal proceedings - Proclaimed absconder - Application filed through relative - Maintainability - Applicants left India and did not cooperate with investigation - Non-bailable warrants issued - Failure to challenge proclamation - The applicants, Rahul Sharma (applicant no.1), formerly posted as Assistant Manager at the Sector-22, Noida Branch of South Indian Bank Ltd., and his wife Bhumika Sharma (applicant no.2), were arrayed as accused pursuant to an F.I.R. lodged on 18.12.2023 by Deputy General Manager of said Bank, alleging that applicant no.1, in criminal conspiracy with his wife, mother and other unknown persons, had dishonestly misappropriated approximately Rs. 28.07 crore belonging to M/s Associated Electronics Research Foundation (AERF) by manipulating the Core Banking System, unauthorisedly closing fixed deposits, diverting proceeds through multiple bank accounts and creating fictitious entries to conceal the defalcation - The applicants having left Indian territory for United Arab Emirates prior to registration of F.I.R. and remaining unapproachable during investigation, proceedings u/ss. 82/83 Cr.P.C. were initiated declaring them proclaimed absconders - The Investigating Officer submitted a charge-sheet against them in absentia, upon which Magistrate took cognizance and issued summons, followed by non-bailable warrants - The applicants, without surrendering before the trial court, instituted instant application u/s 528 B.N.S.S., through the real sister of applicant no.1, seeking quashing of charge-sheet, cognizance/summoning order and entire criminal proceedings, contending false implication at instance of Bank in collusion with actual wrongdoers, while opposite parties opposed application both on ground of non-maintainability at instance of proclaimed absconders and on merits, asserting that FIR and material collected disclosed a prima facie cognizable offence.

Held: The applicants deliberately left India after making complaint by Bank and before lodging of first information report against them, knowing that they could be arrested in the case. This act of applicants appears that they are deliberately flouting the process of law of India. When the passports of applicants have been impounded by Indian Government, they approached the High Court challenging the said order of impounding of passports and citing that impoundment as the reason, they contend in this application that they did not deliberately evade due process of law - Thus, the present application filed on behalf of applicants (through sister of applicant no.2), who have been declared to be proclaimed absconder is not maintainable - After considering the totality of facts of case and keeping in mind the position of law, there is no merit in present application. Apart from that there is no material to show that complaint/FIR is malafide, frivolous and vexatious. The version as unfolded in first information report is supported by witnesses including the informant and independent witnesses and also by police papers. It is also cropped up from records that public money have been transferred in the accounts of applicants and other named accused persons, which needs a detail inquiry. The interference at the threshold of quashing of criminal proceedings cannot be said to be exceptional as it discloses prima facie commission of cognizable offence - Accordingly, application dismissed. ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Application u/s 482 No. - 44666 of 2025

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Applicant(s):
Vidit Narayan Mishra, J.B.Singh

Adv. for the Opposite Party(s):
Gautam Srivastava, A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Madan Pal Singh, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Gopal Chaturvedi, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. V.N. Mishra and Mr. J.B. Singh, learned counsel for the applicants, Mr. Sagir Ahmad, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Gautam Srivastava, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and the learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The instant application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. has been preferred by the applicants with a prayer to quash the charge-sheet dated 8th October, 2024, cognizance/summoning order dated 6th November, 2024 as well as the entire proceedings of Criminal Case No. 4461 of 2024 (State Vs. Seema & Others) arising out of Case Crime No. 579 of 2023 under Sections 420, 409, 467, 468, 471 and 120-B I.P.C. Police Station-Sector-24, District-Gautam Budh Nagar pending in the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that Renjith R. Nair, the Deputy General Manager, Regional Head of South Indian Bank Ltd. lodged the present F.I.R. on 18th December, 2023 against three named and others as unknown including the applicants. In the said FIR it has been alleged that Rahul Sharma (applicant no.1 herein), while posted as Assistant Manager at the Sector-22, Noida Branch, entered into a criminal conspiracy with his wife, mother and other unknown persons to dishonestly misappropriate approximately Rs. 28.07 crore belonging to M/s Associated Electronics Research Foundation (AERF). It is alleged that although applicant no.1 Rahul Sharma initially complained to the Bank as well as the local police that he was being threatened by the directors of AERF and that they were involved in illegal financial transactions, an internal vigilance inquiry conducted by the Bank disclosed that he himself had manipulated the banking system and carried out unauthorised transactions.

4. The Bank alleges that applicant no.1 Rahul Sharma altered the customer details in the Core Banking System (CBS), linked AERF's Customer Identification File (CIF) with another account, unauthorisedly closed several fixed deposits, and diverted the proceeds to different bank accounts through RTGS/NEFT/UPI/IMPS transactions. The inquiry further revealed that the account opening forms and banking records contained serious irregularities and that several transactions were verified by applicant no.1 Rahul Sharma himself in abuse of his official position. It is also alleged that fictitious entries were made to create an impression that the fixed deposits were still intact by crediting interest amounts to AERF's account.

5. The investigation further disclosed that the diverted funds were routed through multiple bank accounts maintained in nearly twenty different banks. Out of the defalcated amount, substantial sums were allegedly transferred to the accounts of Bhumika Sharma (applicant no.2 herein) (wife of applicant no.1 Rahul Sharma) and Seema Rani (mother of Rahul Sharma), besides other beneficiaries. The Bank also alleged that Rahul Sharma had been suspended from service, was absconding, and had allegedly obtained a duplicate passport, giving rise to an apprehension that he intended to leave the country. On these allegations, the present F.I.R. was registered for offences relating to cheating, forgery, criminal breach of trust and criminal conspiracy.

6. After lodging of the above first information report, the investigation proceeded and since the applicants left the Indian territory, as is admitted by the applicants themselves and they are unapproachable for the Investigating Officer, after completion of statutory investigation under Chapter XII Cr.P.C., the Investigation Officer has submitted the charge-sheet against the applicants as proclaimed absconder on which the order of cognizance/summoning has been passed. Hence the present application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. has been filed before this Court through the real sister of applicant no.1, namely, Annu Rani, who has also sworn the affidavit in support of the present application.

7. It is pertinent to mention here that when after passing of the order of summoning the applicants did not appear before the court below thereafter, for ensuring their presence, bailable and non-bailable warrants have been issued against the applicants. Despite the non-bailable warrants having been issued against the applicants, they did not appear and thereafter proceedings under Sections 82 and 83 Cr.P.C. have been initiated against the applicants and they have been declared as proclaimed absconder.

8. The contention of the learned counsel for the applicants is that in the aforesaid case concerned police after completing investigation, submitted 3 charge sheets in different dates against different accused persons but so far as the charge sheet against the applicants is concerned, they were neither charge sheeted in the aforesaid 3 charge sheets and the investigating officer of the said case after initiated proceeding under Sections 82/83 Cr.P.C. submitted charge sheet in absconding against the applicant No. 1 in under Section- 420,409,467,468,471,120 B IPC & applicant No.2 in under Section- 420, 467,468,471,120-B IPC.

9. It is further contended that since the applicants are presently not residing in Indian territory, as such, the proceedings under Sections 82 Cr.P C. and 83 Cr.P.C. have been initiated against the applicants and thereafter charge-sheet dated 08.10.2024 has been filed by the investigating officer against the applicants. In the charge-sheet dated 08-10-2024, it has been mentioned by the Investigating Officer that the KYC documents and sample signatures of the fake account numbers, have already been obtained and sent to F.S.L Niwadi, Ghaziabad and results of which have not been received and at this stage it can't be proved that the applicants have committed said offence, as alleged by the prosecution.

10. It is then contended that before lodging present first information report dated 18-12-2023 applicant no.1 himself filed a complaint against the directors of Associated Electronics Research Foundation (AERF) before higher authorities of the bank on 03-12-2023 and also moved complaint before concerned police station on 04-12-2023 for lodging the first information report against the directors of Associated Electronics Research Foundation (AERF). On the basis of said complaint of applicant No.1 dated 03-12-2023, an internal investigation was conducted by the bank in which it was found that a dummy Joint Account Number as saving account no. 1013053000000165 and another saving account no. 1013053000000267 and one current account no. 1013073000000088 were opened in the name of AERF & Gaurav Agrawal was closed the FD of 28.07 Crore of the company Associated Electronics Research Foundation(AERF) and transferred the same in the said saving account bearing No 1013053000000165, 1013053000000267 and current account No.

11. It is also contended that it is surprising that a detail investigation was conducted but who was misappropriated the funds and in whose name and favor, dummy account was opened and from that account different amounts were transferred to different accounts holders have even not been charge-sheeted, though the entire alleged misappropriation of funds was transferred from the account of Mr. Gaurav Agarwal to the different beneficiaries. At the time of alleged incident, one Sri Gaurav Devgan was the Branch Manager and applicant No.1 was Assistant Manager in South Indian Bank and the applicant no.1 has no authority to open or close the fixed deposits of Associated Electronics Research Foundation (AERF) and after the transfer the Branch Manager Sri Gaurav Devgan, Ms. Annu Arora joined in the said branch as Branch Manager and in her tenure, some fixed deposits of Associated Electronics Research Foundation(AERF) were also opened and closed and transferred the amount in the account of company.

12. So far as the allegations made in the first information report are concerned, it has been contended by the learned counsel for the applicants that neither the applicant no.1 has opened any such type of Saving Bank/ Current account bearing No. 1013053000000165, 1013053000000267 and current account No. 1013073000000088 in the name of AERF & Gaurav Agrawal nor any amount has been credited in the account of applicant no. 1 form the said Saving Bank/ Current account of AERF & Gaurav Agrawal and not even a single penny has been credited in the account of applicant No. 1 form the bank itself.

14. It is further contended by the learned counsel for the applicants that infact a joint account of saving account 1013053000000165 & 1013053000000267 and one current account No. 1013073000000088 was opened in the name of AERF & Gaurav Agrawal by the said Gaurav Agrawal, who is one of the director of aforesaid company, and with the help of branch manager of said bank, closed the FD of 28.07 Crore of the company Associated Electronics Research Foundation (AERF) and transfer the same in the aforesaid 03 accounts on different dates and the said Gaurav Agrawal and his associates has making pressure upon the applicant no. 1 to help in their illegal activities, and when the applicant no. 1 has made complaint against the directors of aforesaid company Associated Electronics Research Foundation (AERF) before the higher officer of the bank and concern police station, then the directors of aforesaid company with the collusion of bank concerned, implicated the applicants in the instant case while the applicant no.1 has never committed any such type of offence as alleged in the present first information report. The applicant no.1 is only an Assistant Manager in the aforesaid South Indian Bank and he has no authority to open/close fixed deposit accounts of AERF but on the basis of statements recorded of informant and other witnesses, the applicants have been charge sheeted in the aforesaid matter, whereas applicant no.1 has no authority either to change the password or closed the fixed deposits accounts of the aforesaid company. The applicant no.2 has no concern with fraud of the bank as alleged by the informant but she has only been implicated in the aforesaid matter due to wife of the applicant no.1

15. So far as the preliminary objection raised by the learned Senior Counsel appearing on behalf of opposite party no.2 with regard to the maintainability of present application at the behest of the applicants as they are absconder because after initiating proceedings Under Sections 82/83 Cr.P.C./ Sections 84/85 of BNSS, concerned police has submitted charge sheet against the applicants as absconder, is concerned, it is contended by the learned counsel for the applicants that they are not absconder on the ground that before lodging present first information report dated 18-12-2023, applicant no.1 left the Indian territory and started residing at U.A.E. with his wife (applicant No.2) on 04-12-2023 and during that period passport of the applicants were impounded by the authority concerned and against the order of Impounding the passports of the applicants, they challenged same before the Hon'ble High Court, which are pending for its disposal and the applicants are not deliberately absconding in the present case.

16. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that co-accused, namely, Seema Rani (mother of applicant no.1) has been granted anticipatory bail on 25th April, 2024, whereas other co-accused persons, namely, Jairijeshan, Bibinsebastian and Vicky Kumar against whom first information report has been lodged as unknown persons, who are class-III and Class-IV employees of the Bank have also been enlarged on bail.

17. It is lastly contended that applicants are humble, innocent and law abiding persons having no criminal antecedent upon them nor they are prior convicts but they have been falsely implicated in the present case, when as a matter of fact they have not committed any offence as alleged by opposite party no.2.

18. On the above premise, learned counsel for the applicants submits that the present criminal proceedings against the applicants may be quashed.

19. On the other-hand, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and the learned A.G.A. have opposed the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants.

20. The learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 submits that applicant no.1 was posted as Assistant Manager, South Indian Bank, Branch Sector -22, Noida, Gautam Budh Nagar, who had fraudulently and dishonestly withdrawn an amount of Rs. 28.07 crores from the account of customer of the Bank, namely M/s. Associated Electronics Research foundation (AERF) in collusion with other accused persons. Applicant no.2 is the wife of applicant no. 1, and several huge amounts, which the applicant no.1 had fraudulently and dishonestly withdrawn, had been transferred by him in the account of Applicant no. 2.

21. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2 that upon an inquiry conducted by the Bank when it was found that a huge amount/public money has been embezzled by the applicants and other accused, the Bank lodged the instant first information report against them. The applicants deliberately did not co-operate with the investigation and the Investigating Officer even his best efforts could not succeed to apprehend the applicants, when as a matter of fact such arrest of the applicants was necessary according to Section 157 (1) of CrP.C. When all the best efforts made by the Investigating Officer to arrest the applicants went in vain, proceedings under Sections 82/83 of Cr.P.C. were initiated against them and at last, applicants were declared as proclaimed absconder. The Investigating Officer after being legal and logical end of the investigation forwarded a police report against the applicants in a capacity of a proclaimed absconder, before the learned concerned court according to Section 173 (2) of CrPC. On 08.10.2024. and 06.11.2024, the learned Magistrate has taken cognizance of offence upon a police report in an abscondence of the applicants according to Section 190 (1) (b) of Cr.P.C. The applicants are still proclaimed absconder, as they do not believe in the majesty of the Hon'ble Court.

22. It is then submitted that the applicants through Smt. Annu Rani (sister of applicant no.1) have filed the instant application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. for quashing of the entire proceedings of the instant criminal case by invoking the extra ordinary power of this Hon'ble Court. However, the instant application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. is not maintainable, as the applicants are proclaimed absconder. The present application filed under Section 528 of BNSS by a Proclaimed Absconder is not maintainable. In support of his case, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Srikant Upadhayay and others Versus State of Bihar and another (Special Leave Petition (CRL.) No. 7940 of 2023, wherein it has been held that any relief cannot be granted to proclaimed absconder (accused).

23. To highlight the aforesaid issue, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 has also referred to the judgments of the Punjab & Haryana High Court in the case B. Lovejot Kaur Versus Harbhinder Singh reported in A.I.R. online 2022 P & H 1029 and Uttrakhand High Court in the case of C. Rakesh Mehra Versus State of Uttrakhand and others passed in Criminal Misc. Application No. 135 of 2024, decided on 17th June, 2026.

24. So far as the merits of the present application is concerned, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 submits that from the allegations made in the First Information Report cognizable offence is made out against the applicants. The defence of the applicants cannot be taken into consideration, at this stage. Therefore, the applicants do not deserve any indulgence. This Court in exercise of powers under Section 528 B.N.S.S. cannot exercise its powers to interfere in the matter at this stage of the proceedings. At this stage of the criminal proceedings, only prima faice case has to be seen.

25. To buttress the aforesaid submission, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of D. Central Bureau of Investigation Versus Aryan Singh etc. reported in AIR online 2023 SC 252, wherein the Apex Court has held that at the stage of discharge and / or quashing of the criminal proceedings, while exercising the powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C., the court has a very limited jurisdiction, and the court is not required to conduct the mini trial, as the charges are required to be proved during the trial on the basis of the evidence led by the prosecution/investigating agency.

26. On the cumulative strength of the aforesaid, it has been urged by the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 that in view of the aforesaid facts and judgments quoted herein above, it is evident that the aforesaid case is liable to be dismissed outrightly, on the ground that (i) the present application has been filed by the proclaimed absconder (applicants), (ii) the High Court in exercise of powers under Section 528 Cr.P.C., cannot evaluate the evidence collected by the Investigating Officer during course of investigation, according to Section 2 (h) of Cr.P.C, meticulously and also the High Court cannot not conduct a mini trial, (iii), since the applicants are residing in U.A.E i.e. United Arab of Emirate, the proceedings initiated under Sections 82/83 of CrPC, has attained its finality as the applicants have not sought any relief against order passed under Sections 82/83 of CrPC. Therefore, the applicants until and unless, not surrendered before the learned concerned court, till then the applicants cannot seek any remedy.

27. On the above premise, it has been urged by the learned counsel for the applicants that since the applicants have been completely failed to make out any case for interference by the Hon'ble High Court in order to exercised its power under section 528 of BNSS, therefore, the instant application being without sans of merit is liable to be rejected.

28. I have considered the facts and circumstances of the case, submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants, learned counsel for opposite no.2 and the learned A.G.A. and also perused the material available on record.

29. Two issues are up for consideration before this Court, the first is whether the present criminal application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. filed by the applications (through sister of applicant no.1), who are declared to be proclaimed absconder is maintainable or not and second is that at this stage, this Court while exercising its extra ordinary power can quash the impugned charge-sheet, summoning order as well as the entire proceedings of the aforementioned criminal case at the pretrial stage or not.

30. First Issue i.e. whether the present application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. filed by proclaimed absconders like the present applicants is maintainable or not?

31. In Abhishek Vs. State of Maharashtra and Ors., reported in (2022) 8 SCC 282, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as follows:

"68. As regards the implication of proclamation having been issued against the appellant, we have no hesitation in making it clear that any person, who is declared as an 'absconder' and remains out of reach of the investigating agency and thereby stands directly at conflict with law, ordinarily, deserves no concession or indulgence'"

32. In Srikant Upadhyay (Supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for opposite party no.2, the Apex Court in paragraph nos. 24 and 25 has held as under:

"We have already held that the power to grant anticipatory bail is an extraordinary power. Though in many cases it was held that bail is said to be a rule, it cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be said that anticipatory bail is the rule. It cannot be the rule and the question of its grant should be left to the cautious and judicious discretion by the Court depending on the facts' and circumstances of each case. While called upon to exercise the said power, the Court concerned has to be very cautious as the grant of interim protection or protection to the accused in serious cases may lead to miscarriage of justice and may hamper the investigation to a great extent as it may sometimes lead to tampering or distraction of the evidence. We shall not be understood to have held that the Court shall not pass an interim protection pending consideration of such application as the Section is destined to safeguard the freedom of an individual against unwarranted arrest and we say that such orders shall be passed in eminently fit cases. At any rate, when warrant of arrest or proclamation is issued, the applicant is not entitled to invoke the extraordinary power. Certainly, this will not deprive the power of the Court to grant pre-arrest bail in extreme, exceptional cases in the interest of justice. But'then, person(s) continuously, defying orders and keep absconding is not entitled to such grant.

25. The factual narration made hereinbefore would reveal the consistent disobedience of the appellants to comply with the orders of the trial Court. They failed to appear before the Trial Court after the receipt of the summons, and then after the issuance of bailable warrants even when their co-accused, after the issuance of bailable warrants, applied and obtained regular bail. Though the appellants filed an application, which they themselves described as 'bail-cum-surrender application' on 23.08.2022, they got it withdrawn on the fear of being arrested. Even after the issuance of non- bailable warrants on 03.11.2022 they did not care to appear before the Trial Court and did not apply for regular bail after its recalling. It is a fact that even after coming to know about the proclamation under Section 482 Cr.PC., they did not take any steps to challenge the same'or to enter appearance before the Trial Court to avert the consequences. Such conduct of the appellants in the light of the aforesaid circumstances, leaves us with no hesitation to hold that they are not entitled to seek the benefit of pre-arrest bail."

33. Similarly, in the case of Rakesh Mehta (Supra), which has also heavily relied upon by learned counsel for the opposite party no.2, the Uttarakhand High Court in paragraph no. 39 has held as under:

"..it is settled principle of law, as has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court as well as by different High Courts in the catena of decisions that an accused, who is declared to be a proclaimed offender cannot seek leave for quashing of an FIR or any such proceeding arising thereof without surrendering, the court will not exercise its extraordinary or inherent jurisdiction in favour of an individual, who is intentionally evading the process of law and is absconding, or has been declared a proclaimed offender and such an accused person cannot execute a power of attorney in favour of a power of attorney holder to invoke the jurisdiction of the High Court under Section 482'of the Cr.P.C.

"As viewed from another angle, neither the lookout circular nor the declaration of proclaimed offender put to challenge, therefore, in such eventuality, the petition filed by Rakesh Mehra through power of attorney holder cannot be held to be maintainable."

34. It is also necessary for this Court to highlight the fact here that in the present case also the applicants have not taken any steps to challenge the non-bailable warrants and proclamation under Sections 82 and 83 Cr.P.C. In paragraph no.10 of the written submission filed on behalf of the applicants, it has been stated that after lodging of the complaint regarding threat faced by the applicant no.1 dated 3rd December, 2023 and before lodging of the instant first information report dated 18th December, 2023, the applicant no.1 left the Indian territory and started residing in United Arab Emirates along with his wife i.e. applicant no.2.

35. From the aforesaid statement it reveals that when the applicants left the Indian territory and did not cooperate with the investigation, the authorities have no other option but to pass an order for impounding the passports of the applicants against which they filed civil writ petition before this Court wherein no interim protection has been granted in their favour.

36. The applicants deliberately left India after making complaint by the Bank and before lodging of the first information report against them, knowing that they could be arrested in this case. This act of the applicants appears that they are deliberately flouting the process of law of India. When the passports of the applicants have been impounded by the Indian Government, they approached the High Court challenging the said order of impounding of passports and citing that impoundment as the reason, they contend in this applicantion that they did not deliberately evade the due process of law.

37. In view of the aforesaid facts and settled principles of law, this Court finds substance in the submission made by the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 that the present application filed on behalf of the applicants (through sister of applicant no.2), who have been declared to be proclaimed absconder is not maintainable.

38. Now this Court comes on the second issue whether this Court in exercise of powers under Section 528 B.N.S.S. can quash the impugned charge-sheet, summoning order as well as entire proceedings of aforementioned criminal case at the pretrial stage.

39. From the perusal of the material on record and looking into the facts of the case at this stage it cannot be said that no offence is made out against the applicants. All the submissions made at the bar relate to the disputed questions of fact, which cannot be adjudicated upon by this Court under Section 482 Cr.P.C. At this stage only prima facie case is to be seen where the allegation made in the FIR/complaint, even of they are taken at their entirety, prima facie constitutes cognizable offence against the accused.

40. Position of law for invoking the jurisdiction of inherent power of High Court has been settled by the Apex Court in following judgments:-

1. R.P. Kapur Vs. State of Punjab, A.I.R. 1960 S.C. 866;
2. Kurukshetra University Vs. State of Haryana, (1977) 4 SCC 451;
3. State of West Bengal Vs. Swapan Kumar Guha, (1982) 1 SCC 561;
4. Dhanalakshmi Vs. R. Prasanna Kumar, 1990 Supp SCC 686;
5. State of Haryana & Others Vs. Bhajan Lal, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 335;
6. State of Bihar Vs. P.P. Sharma, 1992 Supp (1) SCC 222;
7. B.S. Joshi Vs, State of Haryana, (2003) 4 SCC 675;
8. Sanapareddy Maheedhar Seshagiri & another Vs. State of Andhra Pradesh & another, (2007) 13 SCC 165;
9. State of Telangana Vs. Habib Abdullaha Jilani & others, (2017) 2 SCC 779;
10. M/s Neeharika Infrastructure Pvt. Ltd. Vs. State of Maharashtra & others, 2021 AIR SC 1918.

41. Apart from the above, in Priyanka Jaiswal Vs. State of Jharkhand reported in 2024 SCC Online SC 685, Hon'ble Supreme Court observed that the Court exercising extraordinary jurisdiction under' Section 482 'of Cr.P.C. cannot conduct a mini trial or enter into appreciation of evidence of a particular case. The following observations were made:

"This Court in catena of Judgments has consistently held that at the time of examining the prayer for quashing of the criminal proceedings, the court exercising extra-ordinary jurisdiction can neither undertake to conduct a mini trial'nor enter into appreciation of evidence of a particular case. The correctness or otherwise of the allegations made in the complaint cannot be examined on the touchstone of the probable defence that the accused may raise to stave off the prosecution and any such misadventure by the Courts resulting in proceedings being quashed would be set aside. "

42. In Central Bureau of Investigation Vs. Aryan Singh Etc. (Supra) relied upon by the learned counsel for the opposite party no.2 the Apex Court in paragraph nos. 4 and 4.1 has held as under:

"4. Having gone through the impugned common judgment and order passed by the High Court quashing the criminal proceedings and discharging the accused, we are of the opinion that the High Court has exceeded in its jurisdiction in quashing the entire criminal proceedings in exercise of the limited powers under Section 482'Cr.P.C. and/or in exercise of the powers under' Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

4.1 From the impugned common judgment and order passed by the High Court, it appears that the High Court has dealt with the proceedings before it, as if, the High Court was conducting a mini trial and/or the High Court was considering the applications against the judgment and order passed by the learned Trial Court on conclusion of trial. As per the cardinal principle of law, at the stage of' discharge and/or quashing of the criminal proceedings, while exercising the powers under' Section 482 Cr.P.C., the Court is not required to conduct the mini trial. The High Court in the common impugned judgment and order has observed that the charges against the accused are not proved. This is not the stage where the prosecution / investigating agency is/are required to prove the charges. The charges are required to be proved during the trial on the basis of the evidence led by the prosecution / investigating agency. Therefore, the High Court has materially erred in going in detail in the allegations and the material collected during the course of the investigation against the accused, at this stage. At the stage of discharge and/or while exercising the powers under'Section 482 Cr.P.C., the Court has a very limited jurisdiction and is required to consider 'whether any sufficient material is available to proceed further against the accused for which the accused is required to be tried or not."

43. After considering the totality of facts of the case and keeping in mind the position of law, there is no merit in the present application. Apart from that there is no material to show that the complaint/FIR is malafide, frivolous and vexatious. The version as unfolded in the first information report is supported by the witnesses including the informant and independent witnesses and also by the police papers. It is also cropped up from the records that the public money have been transferred in the accounts of the applicants and other named accused persons, which needs a detail inquiry. The issue as to why such public money has been transferred in their accounts can be more appropriately examined during the course of trial. The interference at the threshold of quashing of the criminal proceedings of the present case cannot be said to be exceptional as it discloses prima facie commission of cognizable offence.

44. In the result, the prayer for quashing of entire proceeding, charge sheet and cognizance order is refused. The second issue is also decided against the applicants.

45. The present application under Section 528 of B.N.S.S is devoid of merits and is accordingly, dismissed.

Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. 22566 of 2026

Sarvesh @Chhotu @ Chhotelal ...Applicant(s)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party(s)

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether a person who performed a second marriage during the lifetime of his first (subsisting) wife would come within the definition of "husband" for the purposes of ss. 80 and 85 of Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 and consequently, whether the presumption u/s 118 of Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023 would stand attracted against such a person qua his second wife.

Headnotes

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - ss. 80(2), 85 (corresponding to ss. 304B, 498A) – Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, 2023 - s. 118 - Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 - ss. 2, ¾ - Prevention of women from Domestic Violence Act 2005 - s. 2(f) - Bail - Dowry death - Cruelty - Second marriage during subsistence of first marriage - Void marriage - Meaning of husband - Interpretation of - The applicant, sought bail during trial in Case Crime No. 24 of 2026, wherein it was alleged that the deceased, who was admittedly the applicant's second wife married to him during the subsistence of his first marriage with his first wife (who was alive and residing with them), had died by consuming poison - The applicant contended that since the second marriage was void ab initio on account of subsisting first marriage, he did not fall within the statutory definition of "husband," and hence the provisions of s. 80 of BNS, along with the presumption u/s 118 of Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam, were not attracted against him, further submitting that no specific allegation had been levelled against him, that he possessed no criminal antecedents, that the charge-sheet had already been filed obviating the need for custodial interrogation, and that he had been in judicial custody since 28.01.2026, whereas the State, while opposing the bail application, did not dispute the aforesaid factual position.

Held*:* In view of the analysis, it is clear that the presumption of dowry death in case of unnatural death within seven years of marriage as per s. 80 B.N.S. (s. 304B I.P.C.) read with s. 118 of B.S.A. should be interpreted strictly in such a manner which favours to an accused, therefore, the Court is of the view that the word "husband" in s. 80 BNS as well as s. 85 B.N.S. will cover person only when he is legally married to a women, not the person whose marriage is itself void with a women - This is also in consonance with a view taken by a three-judge bench of Apex Court in the case of Shivcharan Lal Verma (infra) - However, the Court further observes that in case there is a doubt about the first marriage, then a person living as "husband" in an alleged second marriage will be covered in the definition of husband for the purpose of ss. 80 and 85 BNS, because it is not possible in criminal proceedings to determine the issue of validity of marriage - Similarly when a person performed second marriage to a woman without disclosing his validly married living spouse and continued to live with his second wife as her husband and second wife is also not aware about this fact till commission of this offence, in that case also he will be deemed as husband for the purpose of ss. 80 and 85 of BSA - Application disposed of. [Para 28] (E-13)

Case Arising From

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Criminal Misc. Bail Application No. - 22566 of 2026

From the Case Crime No. 24 of 2026, Police Station - Madhautanda, District - Pilibhit.

Adv. for the Applicant(s):
Suneel Kumar

Adv. for the Opposite Party(s):
G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Arun Kumar Singh Deshwal, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Suneel Kumar, learned counsel for the applicant, Ms. Mayuri Mehrotra, learned State Law Officer for the State, Mr. Rakesh Kumar Mishra, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. The instant bail application has been filed with a prayer to release the applicant on bail during the trial in Case Crime No.24 of 2026, under Sections 85, 80(2) of BNS and Section 3/4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, Police Station-Madhautanda, District-Pilibhit.

3. This matter was heard on 06.07.2026, on that date, counsel for the applicant submitted that the deceased was his second wife as the marriage was performed with the deceased during subsistence of earlier marriage and his first wife was also alive, therefore, second marriage was void, therefore, the applicant will not come in the definition of husband, therefore, definition of Section 80 of BNS as well as presumption of Section 118 of the BSA are not attracted against the applicant, therefore, the applicant is entitled to be released on bail.

4. Considering the above submission, a preliminary legal issue was framed whether a person who performed a second marriage during the lifetime of the first wife would come within the definition of husband for the purpose of Section 80 BNS as well as Section 118 of BSA. On that date, considering the legal issue, this Court directed Mr. Rakesh Kumar Mishra, learned A.G.A. as well as Ms. Mayuri Mehrotra, learned State Law Officer to prepare the case and address the Court on the issue on the next date.

5. Today, Ms. Mayuri Mehrotra, learned State Law Officer submitted that this issue was considered by Karnataka High Court in Criminal Application under Section 528 No.8134 of 2024 (Dr. Lokesh B H vs. State of Karnataka), wherein the Court after framing the specific issue whether an offence under Section 498-A could be committed only a valid marriage, relationship or could it be committed or void or voidable marriage or relationship in the nature of marriage like live in relationship.

6. The Hon'ble Single Bench of the Karnataka High Court, after considering the issue, observed that the expression of husband under Section 498-A cannot formed again in a legal marriage to extent to enter into a marital relationship, which is void for voidable as also to live in relationship, which bears the attributes of marriage so long as essential ingredients of cruelty as defined in section are satisfactory. This judgment of the Karnataka High Court was challenged before the Apex Court through SPL Criminal No. 2240-2241 of 2026. The Apex Court, by order dated 13.02.2026, stayed the order of the Karnataka High Court; the matter was heard on 28.05.2026, and judgment was reserved.

7. Ms. Mehrotra further relied upon the judgment of a co-ordinate Bench of this Court in 482 No.27734 of 2024, wherein the court observed that the husband who performed a second marriage during the lifetime of his first wife will also come within the definition of husband for the purpose of Section 498-A. In this judgment, the co-ordinate bench of this Court also relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Reema Aggarwal v. Anupam and others (2004) 3 SCC 199.

8. Mr. Rakesh Kumar Mishra, learned A.G.A., also submitted that two husbands have not been defined in statute; however, domestic relationship has been defined under Section 2(f) of the Prevention of women from Domestic Violence Act 2005 (hereinafter will be referred as Domestic violence Act) and as per the definition, even if a person male or female has been residing in share household and related by marriage or through relationship in the nature of marriage. This shows that even if two persons are living together in a void marital relationship, they will be treated as husband and wife for the purpose of Section 80 BSA 2023. They will be treated as husband and wife. Section 2(f) of the Domestic Violence Act is quoted as under:

"domestic relationship means a relationship between two persons who live or have, at any point of time, lived together in a shared household, when they are related by consanguinity, marriage, or through a relationship in the nature of marriage, adoption or are family members living together as a joint family".

9. After considering the submissions of learned counsel for the parties, the legal question which has to be decided is:

Whether any person who performed a second marriage during the lifetime of his first wife would come within the definition of "husband" for the purpose of Sections 80 and 85 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 with regard to the second wife?

10. To decide the aforesaid issue, it would be appropriate to quote Section 80 of the BNS. Section 80 of the BNS is being quoted as under:

"Where the death of a woman is caused by any burns or bodily injury or occurs otherwise than under normal circumstances within seven years of her marriage and it is shown that soon before her death she was subjected to cruelty or harassment by her husband or any relative of her husband for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry, such death shall be called "dowry death", and such husband or relative shall be deemed to have caused her death."

11. From the perusal of Section 80 of the BNS, it is clear that the cruelty or harassment by the husband to the woman should be for, or in connection with, any demand for dowry. Likewise, Section 85 of the BNS also contemplates cruelty by the husband or his relatives. The word "dowry" has been defined under Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961. As per Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, "dowry" means any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given by one party to the marriage to the other party to the marriage or by the parents of either the bride or the bridegroom or by any other person to either party to the marriage or to any other person, at or before or any time after the marriage, in connection with the marriage of the said parties, except dower or mehr in the case of persons to whom the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) applies. Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961 is being quoted as under:

"In this Act, "dowry" means any property or valuable security given or agreed to be given either directly or indirectly--

(a) by one party to a marriage to the other party to the marriage; or

(b) by the parents of either party to a marriage or by any other person, to either party to the marriage or to any other person;

at or before 1[or any time after the marriage] 2[in connection with the marriage of the said parties, but does not include] dower or mahr in the case of persons to whom the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) applies."

12. From the perusal of Section 2 of the Dowry Prohibition Act, 1961, it is clear that dowry means any property or valuable security which is related to or given in connection with the marriage of the said parties. Therefore, if any demand is made by one party from the other party which is not related to or in connection with the marriage of the said parties, the same will not come within the ambit of dowry.

13. Section 85 of the BNS provides punishment where a woman is subjected to cruelty by her husband or the relatives of her husband. The word "cruelty" has been defined in the Explanation to Section 85 of the BNS, which includes any wilful conduct of the husband or his relative which is of such a nature as is likely to drive the woman to commit suicide or to cause grave injury or danger to the life, limb or physical or mental health of the woman, even though there is no unlawful demand.

14. Apart from this, harassment of a woman with a view to coercing her or any person related to her to meet any unlawful demand for any property or valuable security, or on account of failure by the woman or her relative to meet such demand, also amounts to cruelty. Such unlawful demand of property or valuable security is not necessarily with regard to dowry. Therefore, cruelty committed upon a woman by her husband may be an offence under Section 85 of the BNS even though the same is not with regard to dowry, as observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Aluri Venkata Ramana v. Aluri Thirupathi Rao, SLP (Crl.) No. 9243 of 2024 / Criminal Appeal No. 5239 of 2024, decided on 12.12.2024.

15. Therefore, the question arises whether a person who performed a second marriage during the lifetime of his first wife with a woman having knowledge of and consenting to the subsistence of the first marriage would come within the ambit of the expression "husband" for the purpose of Sections 80 and 85 of the BNS.

16. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in case Reema Aggarwal v. Anupam and others (2004) 3 SCC 199 considered all these issues and observed that while interpreting the word "husband" mentioned under Sections 498A and 304B I.P.C miship rule on handerson's case can be pressed into service with a view to press the miship which would suppress literal rule being allowed to cover the field and further observed that it would be appropriate to construe the expression "husband" to cover a husband who enter into marital relationship under the colour of such proclaimed status of husband, such the women concerned but cruelty or coarse her in any manner for any of the purpose enumerated under Section 304B/498B I.P.C., irrespective of legitimacy of the marriage itself for limited purpose of Section 498A and 304B I.P.C. Paragraph 18 of Reema Agarwal (supra) is being quoted as under:

"18. The concept of "dowry" is intermittently linked with a marriage and the provisions of the Dowry Act apply in relation to marriages. If the legality of the marriage itself is an issue further legalistic problems do arise. If the validity of the marriage itself is under legal scrutiny, the demand of dowry in respect of an invalid marriage would be legally not recognizable. Even then the purpose for which Sections 498A and 304B-IPC and Section 113B of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872 (for short the 'Evidence Act') were introduced cannot be lost sight of. Legislations enacted with some policy to curb and alleviate some public evil rampant in society and effectuate a definite public purpose or benefit positively requires to be interpreted with certain element of realism too and not merely pedantically or hyper technically. The obvious objective was to prevent harassment to a woman who enters into a marital relationship with a person and later on, becomes a victim of the greed for money. Can a person who enters into a marital arrangement be allowed to take a shelter behind a smokescreen to contend that since there was no valid marriage the question of dowry does not arise? Such legalistic niceties would destroy the purpose of the provisions. Such hairsplitting legalistic approach would encourage harassment to a woman over demand of money. The nomenclature 'dowry' does not have any magic charm written over it. It is just a label given to demand of money in relation to marital relationship. The legislative intent is clear from the fact that it is not only the husband but also his relations who are covered by Section 498A. Legislature has taken care of children born from invalid marriages. Section 16 of the Marriage Act deals with legitimacy of children of void and voidable marriages. Can it be said that legislature which was conscious of the social stigma attached to children of void and voidable marriages closed eyes to plight of a woman who unknowingly or unconscious of the legal consequences entered into the marital relationship. If such restricted meaning is given, it would not further the legislative intent. On the contrary, it would be against the concern shown by the legislature for avoiding harassment to a woman over demand of money in relation to marriages. The first exception to Section 494 has also some relevance. According to it, the offence of bigamy will not apply to "any person whose marriage with such husband or wife has been declared void by a Court of competent jurisdiction". It would be appropriate to construe the expression 'husband' to cover a person who enters into marital relationship and under the colour of such proclaimed or feigned status of husband subjects the woman concerned to cruelty or coerce her in any manner or for any of the purposes enumerated in the relevant provisions Sections 304B/498A, whatever be the legitimacy of the marriage itself for the limited purpose of Sections 498A and 304B IPC. Such an interpretation, known and recognized as purposive construction has to come into play in a case of this nature. The absence of a definition of 'husband' to specifically include such persons who contract marriages ostensibly and cohabitate with such woman, in the purported exercise of his role and status as 'husband' is no ground to exclude them from the purview of Section 304B or 498A IPC, viewed in the context of the very object and aim of the legislations introducing those provisions."

17. This issue was considered by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Shivcharan Lal Verma v. State of Madhya Pradesh, reported in (2007) 15 SCC 369, wherein a Bench of three Hon'ble Judges observed that where the marriage itself is null and void, the prosecution under Section 498-A IPC against the husband is not maintainable at the instance of the alleged wife in respect of cruelty meted out to her. Paragraph 2 of Shivcharan Lal Verma (supra) is being quoted as under:

"2. This matter had not been taken up for hearing for this length of time as the judgment of this Court holding Section 306 IPC to be unconstitutional was under reconsideration by the Constitution Bench. The Constitution Bench [Ed.: Gian Kaur v. State of Punjab, (1996) 2 SCC 648: 1996 SCC (Cri) 374] finally disposed of the matter in Criminal Appeal No. 274 of 1984 and batch and set aside the earlier judgment [Ed.: P. Rathinam v. Union of India, (1994) 3 SCC 394: 1994 SCC (Cri) 740] of this Court and held that Section 306 is constitutionally valid. In view of the aforesaid Constitution Bench decision two questions arise for consideration in this appeal. One, whether the prosecution under Section 498-A can at all be attracted since the marriage with Mohini itself was null and void, the same having been performed during the lifetime of Kalindi. Second, whether the conviction under Section 306 could at all be sustained in the absence of any positive material to hold that Mohini committed suicide because of any positive act on the part of either Shiv Charan or Kalindi. There may be considerable force in the argument of Mr Khanduja, learned counsel for the appellant so far as conviction under Section 498-A is concerned, inasmuch as the alleged marriage with Mohini during the subsistence of a valid marriage with Kalindi is null and void. We, therefore, set aside the conviction and sentence under Section 498-A IPC. But so far as the conviction under Section 306 is concerned, the evidence of the three witnesses already referred to, makes it absolutely clear that it is on account of torture by both Kalindi and Shiv Charan that Mohini committed suicide inside the house of Shiv Charan in another room. The learned Sessions Judge as well as the High Court have appreciated the evidence of the aforesaid three witnesses and on going through the evidence of these three witnesses, we do not find any error committed by the courts below either in the matter of appreciation or in their approach relating to the evidence in question. We, therefore, do not find any infirmity with the conviction of the appellants under Section 306 IPC. So far as the sentence is concerned, they have been sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for seven years but having regard to the facts and circumstances of this case, we reduce the sentence to five years. This appeal is accordingly disposed of. Bail bonds of the appellants would stand cancelled and they must surrender to undergo the remaining period of sentence."

18. The aforesaid judgment was considered by the Hon'ble Apex Court in P. Sivakumar v. State, 2023 SCC OnLine SC 1737, and the Hon'ble Apex Court observed that where the second marriage is void, the alleged husband of such second marriage cannot be convicted under Section 498-A IPC (corresponding to Section 85 of the BNS). Paragraph 7 of P. Sivakumar (supra) is being quoted as under:

"7. Undisputedly, the marriage between the appellant No. 1 and PW-1 has been found to be null and void. As such the conviction under Section 498-A IPC would not be sustainable in view of the judgment of this Court in the case Shivcharan Lal Verma's case supra. So far as the conviction under Sections 3 and 4 of the Dowry Prohibition Act is concerned, the learned trial Judge by an elaborate reasoning, arrived at after appreciation of evidence, has found that the prosecution has failed to prove the case beyond reasonable doubt. In an appeal/revision, the High court could have set aside the order of acquittal only if the findings as recorded by the trial Court were perverse or impossible."

19. This issue was also considered by the Allahabad High Court in the case of Akhilesh Kesari and 3 others v. State of U.P. and another in Application u/s 482 No.38288 of 2023 dated 28.03.2024, wherein the Court observed that for interpreting the word "husband" enshrined under Section 498A, strict interpretation is required being a penal provision, therefore, proceedings under Section 498A I.P.C. will not be maintainable against an alleged husband of marriage which is itself void. Paragraph 10 of Akhilesh Kesari (supra) is being quoted as under:

"10. From the perusal of the judgments mentioned above of the Apex Court, it is clear that strict interpretation is required when interpreting the word husband in Section 498-A I.P.C. as the I.P.C. is a penal provision, not beneficial legislation where the liberal interpretation is permissible. Therefore, this Court holds that proceeding under Section 498-A I.P.C. by the opposite party no. 2, who is not the legally wedded wife of applicant no. 1, is not maintainable against applicants."

20. This issue was again considered by a single Bench of this Court in Application u/s 482 No.27734 of 2024, (Adarsh Yadav v. State of U.P. & another), decided on 20.09.2024, wherein the court took contrary view to the judgement of Akhilesh Kesari (supra) and it was observed that to attract the provision of Sections 304B and 498B I.P.C., it is sufficient to show that the victim women and accused husband were residing as a husband and wife at the relevant point of time. As the validity of the marriage cannot be decided in criminal proceedings. Paragraph 8 of Adarsh Yadav (supra) is being quoted as under:

"8. Following the aforesaid judgment, the Hon'ble Chhattisgarh High Court in case of Mohitram vs. State of Chhattisgarh 2004(3)MPHT22(CG) has held that the intention of legislature behind inserting the provisions of Section - 304-B I.P.C. was that husband and his relatives, who are responsible for the dowry death of a woman should be brought into mischief of dowry death whether the marriage in question was valid or not. It was observed that in order to attract provisions of Section - 304-B and 498-A of I.P.C., it is sufficient to show that victim woman and accused husband were residing as husband and wife at the relevant point of time. In the instant case, for the sake of arguments even if it is assumed that the deceased does not fall within the ambit of legally wedded wife, there is ample evidence on record that applicant and deceased were residing together as husband and wife at the relevant point of time."

21. A single Bench of the Karnataka High Court in the case of Dr. Lokesh B H and others v. State of Karnatka (2025) SCC Online 21706, a view was taken that the expression "husband" under Section 498A I.P.C. is not confined to a man to in a legally valid marriage, but explains to one who enters into a marital relationship which is void or voidable, as also to a live-in-relationship which bears the attributes of marriage. However, this judgment was challenged before the Apex Court in S.L.P. No.2240-2241 of 2026, in which judgment was reserved on 20.05.2026 and further proceedings pending before the District Court were stayed.

22. From the above mentioned judgments, it is clear that though in the year 2024, the Hon. Apex Court in the case of Reema Aggarwal (supra) observed that Section 498A and Section 304B I.P.C. (Sections 85 and 80 of BNS) were enacted with policy and curved an evil rampant among people of the society, therefore, these provisions have to be construed liberally considering the object of the legislature as per handerson's case, therefore, the word "husband" should not be strictly construed but it should be interpreted in such a manner even a person having living spouse started living with another women or contract marriage with with a women ostensibly cohabited with such women would fall within the category of husband for the purpose of Section 304B and 498A I.P.C. However, the three-judge bench of the Apex Court in the case of Shivcharan Lal Verma (supra) (2007) took a view that the second marriage is void; therefore, the person living with a woman in a second marriage will not come within the premises of husband for the purpose of Section 304B and 498A I.P.C. This three-judge bench judgment was again relied on by the Hon. Apex Court in P. Shivakumar v. State, 2023 (supra), wherein it was observed that even if a marriage is null and void, then the alleged husband cannot be convicted under Section 498A I.P.C.

23. This Court is of the view that though there was a detailed reasoning in the case of Reema Aggarwal (supra) for including the alleged husband of void marriage for the purpose of Section 498A/ 304B I.P.C. but subsequent judgement of larger bench in the case of Shivcharan Lal Verma (supra) took a different view, therefore, that must prevail and the same was again reiterated in the year 2023 by the Apex Court in the case of P. Shivakumar v. State, 2023 (supra).

24. The word "husband" has not been defined in any statute, but as per the Black Law Dictionary, the word "husband" means a married man who has a lawful spouse living; therefore, a person who does not have a lawful spouse living in the marriage in question will not be included in the category of husband.

25. The Hon. Apex Court has already observed in the case of M/s. Balaji Traders v. State of U.P. & Anr., SLP (Crl.) No.3159 of 2025 that there is a scope of the provision which is penal in nature and that cannot be extended by reading into words which are not there; therefore, it has to be strictly interpreted. Para 24 of the M/s. Balaji Traders (supra) is being quoted as under:

"24. The scope of the provision cannot be extended by reading into it words which are not there. Section 387IPC, being a penal provision, has to be strictly interpreted, and no condition/essential ingredient can be read into it that the statute/section does not prescribe. Since there is no ambiguity in the ingredients of Section 387IPC, the observations of Tolaram Relumal [Tolaram Relumal v. State of Bombay, (1954) 1 SCC 961] as contended by the learned counsel appearing for Respondent 2 would not come to his rescue."

26. It is also settled law that if there are two views possible, then the Court must lean towards that construction which exempts the subject from penalty when one imposes a penalty. This issue was considered by the Apex Court in the case of Tolaram Relumal and another v. State of Bombay (1954) 1 SCC 961. Para 8 of the Tolaram Relumal (supra) is being quoted as under:

"The question that needs our determination in such a situation is whether Section 18(1) makes punishable receipt of money at a moment of time when the lease had not come into existence, and when there was a possibility that the contemplated lease might never come into existence. It may be here observed that the provisions of Section

18(1) are penal in nature and it is a well settled rule of construction of penal statutes that if two possible and reasonable constructions can be put upon a penal provision, the Court must lean towards that construction which exempts the subject from penalty rather than the one which imposes penalty. It if; not competent to the Court to stretch the meaning of an expression used by the Legislature in order to carry out the intention of the Legislature. As pointed out by Lord Macmillan in London and North Eastern Railway Co. v. Berriman:

"where penalties for infringement are imposed it is not legitimate to stretch the language of a rule, however beneficent its intention, beyond the fair and ordinary meaning of its language."

27. The Hon. Apex Court in the case of M. Ravindran v. Intelligence Officer, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, (2021) 2 SCC 485 again observed that when there appears to be ambiguity in the construction of a penalty, then the court must interpret towards protecting the rights of an accused. Paragraph 17.9 of M. Ravindran (supra) is being quoted as under:

"17.9. Additionally, it is well-settled that in case of any ambiguity in the construction of a penal statute, the courts must favour the interpretation which leans towards protecting the rights of the accused, given the ubiquitous power disparity between the individual accused and the State machinery. This is applicable not only in the case of substantive penal statutes but also in the case of procedures providing for the curtailment of the liberty of the accused."

28. In view of the above analysis, it is clear that the presumption of dowry death in case of unnatural death within seven years of marriage as per Section 80 B.N.S. (Section 304B I.P.C.) read with Section 118 of B.S.A. should be interpreted strictly in such a manner which favours to an accused, therefore, this Court is of the view that the word "husband" in section 80 BNS as well as Section 85 B.N.S. will cover person only when he is legally married to a women, not the person whose marriage is itself void with a women. This view is also in consonance with a view taken by a three-judge bench of the Apex Court in the case of Shivcharan Lal Verma (supra). However, this Court further observes that in case there is a doubt about the first marriage, then a person living as "husband" in an alleged second marriage will be covered in the definition of husband for the purpose of section 80 and 85 BNS, because it is not possible in criminal proceedings to determine the issue of validity of marriage. Similarly when a person performed second marriage to a woman without disclosing his validly married living spouse and continued to live with his second wife as her husband and second wife is also not aware about this fact till commission of this offence, in that case also he will be deemed as husband for the purpose of section 80 and 85 of BSA as he can not be allowed to take advantage of his wrong.

29. However, it is mentioned here that this second marriage is void if same is performed during subsistence of first marriage as per following laws:

(i) Special Marriage Act, 1954;
(ii) Foreign Marriage Act, 1969;
(iii) Christian Marriage Act, 1872;
(iv) Parsi Marriage and Divorce Act, 1936;
(v) Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.

30. Therefore, if the first marriage is performed under any of the above mentioned acts, then the second marriage would be void. However, in the case of Muslim, if the marriage is performed as per Sharia law, second, third and fourth marriage shall also be valid and in such cases if a Muslim person is living as a husband whether with second, third or fourth wife would also cover under the definition of husband for the purposes of Section 80 and 85 BNS.

(Arun Kumar Singh Deshwal,J.)

After delivery of the judgment on preliminary legal issue this court further proceeds to decide this bail on merit.

1. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that it is admitted to the first informant that the marriage of the applicant with the deceased was the second marriage of the applicant, solemnized during the subsistence of his first marriage, and his first wife was alive and residing with them. Therefore, as the marriage itself was void and the issue has already been decided in the first part of this judgment, the applicant would not come within the definition of "husband", and consequently, the provisions of Sections 80 and 85 of BNS cannot be invoked against him. It is further submitted that deceased committed suicide by consuming poison and no specific allegation has been made against the applicant. Therefore, the applicant is entitled to be released on bail. It is further submitted that the applicant has no criminal history. It is also submitted that the charge sheet has already been filed in the present case; therefore, no custodial interrogation of the applicant is required. The applicant is a law-abiding citizen and has been languishing in jail since 28.01.2026. In case he is granted bail, he will not misuse the liberty of bail and shall cooperate in the trial proceedings.

2. Per contra, learned State Law Officer for the State has vehemently opposed the prayer for bail but could not dispute the aforesaid facts.

3. Considering the entire facts and circumstances of the case, submissions of learned counsel for the parties and keeping in view the nature of offence, evidence, complicity of the accused and taking into account overcrowded jails and heavy pendency of criminal cases before the trial courts as well as considering the mandate of the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Kapil Wadhawan vs Central Bureau of Investigation reported in 2025 SCC OnLine SC 3038 as well as guideline of this Court in the case of Maya Tiwari Vs. State of U.P., 2024 SCC Online All 6765 regarding grant of bail and without expressing any opinion on the merits of the case, I am of the opinion that the applicant is entitled to be enlarged on bail. Accordingly, the present application is allowed.

4. Let the applicant- Sarvesh Alias Chhotu Alias Chhotelal, involved in the aforementioned crime be released on bail, on his furnishing a personal bond and two sureties each in the like amount, to the satisfaction of the court concerned, with the following conditions:-

i. The applicant shall not directly or indirectly make any inducement, threat or promise to any person acquainted with the facts of the case so as to dissuade him from disclosing such facts to the Court or to any police officer or tamper with the evidence.

ii. The applicant shall cooperate in the trial/investigation sincerely without seeking any adjournment.

iii. The applicant shall not indulge in any criminal activity or commission of any crime after being released on bail.

iv. The applicant shall attend in accordance with the conditions of the bond executed by him.

5. In case of breach of any of the above conditions, it shall be a ground for cancellation of bail.

6. Identity, status and residence proof of the applicant and sureties be verified by the court concerned before the bonds are accepted.

7. Verification of mobile number and Aadhaar card of the applicant as well as sureties should be verified by the court concerned.

8. It is made clear that the applicant shall be released on the basis of computer generated copy of this order, downloaded from the official website of High Court Allahabad and verified by the concerned counsel with the undertaking that the certified copy will be filed within 15 days.

9. It is further directed that the trial court shall send the release order to the concerned jail through Bail Order Management System (BOMS) to ensure early release of the applicant.

10. Office is directed to send a copy of this order to the applicant through Jail Superintendent, Pilibhit via e-mail or on e-prison portal and Trial Court via e-mode within 24 hours in compliance of the order of the Apex Court in the case of Policy Strategy for Grant of Bail, In Re: Suo Motu Writ Petition (Crl.) No.4 of 2021 decided on 31.01.2023 reported in (2024) 10 SCC 685 as well as Pila Pahan@Peela Pahan and others Vs. State of Jharkhand and another, in Writ Petition (Criminal) No. 169 of 2025, decided on 29.05.2026.

11. Application, if any, stands disposed of.

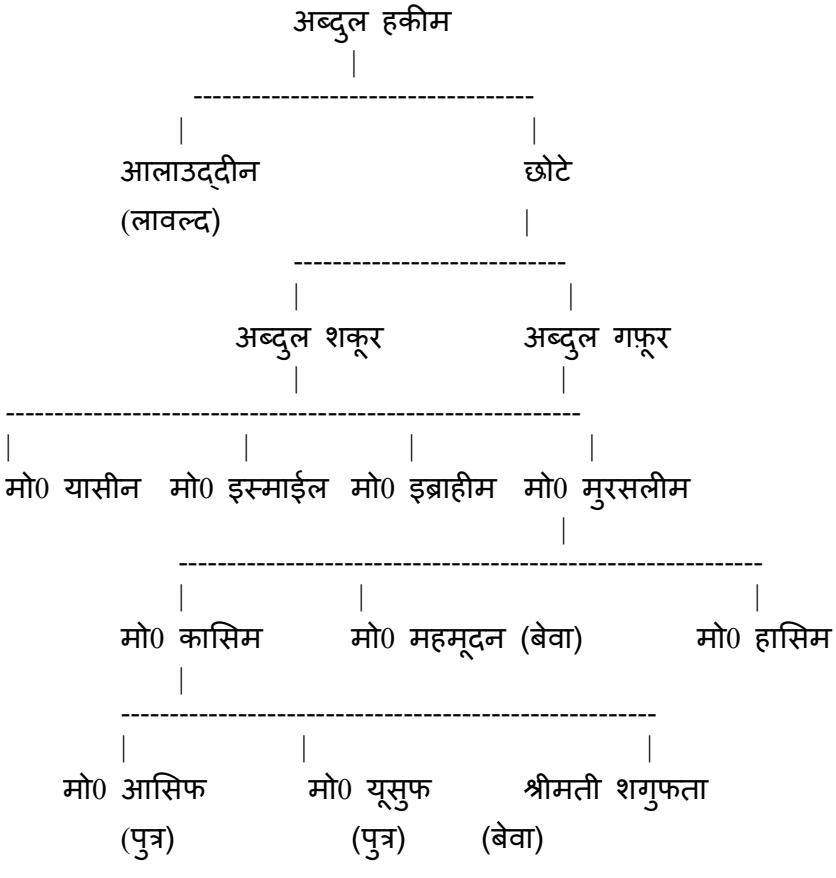
Order on WRIT - C No. - 21943 of 2012

Mohd. Yaseen and others ..Petitioner(s)



Versus

Mohd. Asif and others ..Respondent(s)

1. This writ is directed against an order dated 23.04.12 passed by Additional District Magistrate (Administration) acting as the competent authority under the National Highways Act, 1956 (for short the Act of 1956), apportioning compensation between the petitioners on one hand and the original respondent nos. 1 to 5 on the other, granting them a moiety each.

2. Heard learned Counsel for the petitioner, Mr. M.N. Singh, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 1 to 5 and Mr. Sharad Chandra Upadhyay, learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 6 and 7.

3. The case of the petitioners is that the land in regard to compensation whereof the dispute has arisen was originally held by one Abdul Hakeem. He was succeeded by generations after him and the property devolved upon parties according to following pedigree:

4. We notice that Abdul Hakeem had two sons, namely, Alauddin and Chhote. Alauddin died issue-less and his line failed. The dispute here has arisen amongst heirs of Abdul Hakeem descended through his son Chhote. Chhote had two sons Abdul Shakur and Abdul Gafur. The petitioners represent Abdul Shakur s branch, whereas respondent nos. 1 to 5, represent the branch of Abdul Gafur.

5. The land in dispute was acquired under the National Highways Act,1956 vide notification under Section 3A published on 04.12.2009 and 3(B) published in the gazette on 16.06.2010. A notice under Section 3G was issued, which was published in Hindi Daily 'Amar Ujala' and Dainik Hindustan , both dated 23.07.2010. An award was passed on 28.02.2011, awarding a total sum of Rs. 25,35,29,509/-.

6. The dispute arose between the petitioners on one hand and respondent nos. 1 to 5 on the other regarding apportionment of compensation. The petitioners contented that the late Alauddin had transferred his agricultural holdings by way of oral gift (Hiba) in favour of the late Abdul Shakur, one of his two nephews, whose branch is represented by the petitioners. The petitioners, therefore, say that they would have a 3/4th share in the land acquired, and a fortiori, the compensation payable. The respondents would be entitled to a 1/4th. One of the principal questions that arose for consideration, therefore, was whether, in the case of tenure land governed by the U.P. Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1956 (U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1956), an oral gift could be made under the personal law of parties. The contention was that the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, 1956 is uniformally applicable to all the tenure holders regardless of their religion and the personal laws governing other properties of theirs. The U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act carries provisions regarding making of gift under Section 152 of the said Statute and gift of a transferable tenure can be made by a bhumidhar in accordance with Section 154 of the U.P. Z.A. & L.R. Act alone.

7. On the other hand, it was urged that there is no specific provision in the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act providing for gift of a bhumidhari land. Section 154 of the said Act does not contemplate the gift of such land. It was urged that since there was no specific mode of gift provided under the U.P.Z.A. & L.R. Act, Section 129 of the Transfer of the Property Act, 1882 would apply, entitling a bhumidhar, who was a Muslim to transfer his land by making an oral gift in accordance with the Mohammadan law. Section 2 of the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937, did not abrogate or override this rule of Mohammedan law. In support of this contention, reliance was placed on a decision of this Court in Mohammad Ali vs. Board of Revenue, 2001 (92) RD 282.

8. From the aforesaid state of things, what we find is that there was a serious contention between parties on facts and law about their shares in the land since acquired, and a fortiori, regarding apportionment of compensation between them. It was a full-fledged lis and not merely a case, where the shares of parties were, more or less, agreed upon and the matter one where the competent authority could determine the shares almost as non-contentious business.

9. The Act of 1956 makes provision in regard to apportionment of compensation under Section 3H, which reads:

" 3H. Deposit and payment of amount.

(1) The amount determined under section 3G shall be deposited by the Central Government in such manner as may be laid down by rules made in this behalf by that Government, with the competent authority before taking possession of the land.

(2) As soon as may be after the amount has been deposited under sub-section (1), the competent authority shall on behalf of the Central Government pay the amount to the person or persons entitled thereto.

(3) Where several persons claim to be interested in the amount deposited under sub-section (1), the competent authority shall determine the persons who in its opinion are entitled to receive the amount payable to each of them.

(4) If any dispute arises as to the apportionment of the amount or any part thereof or to any person to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, the competent authority shall refer the dispute to the decision of the principal civil court of original jurisdiction within the limits of whose jurisdiction the land is situated.

(5) Where the amount determined under section 3G by the arbitrator is in excess of the amount determined by the competent authority, the arbitrator may award interest at nine per cent. per annum on such excess amount from the date of taking possession under section 3D till the date of the actual deposit thereof.

(6) Where the amount determined by the arbitrator is in excess of the amount determined by the competent authority, the excess amount together with interest, if any, awarded under sub-section (5) shall be deposited by the Central Government in such manner as may be laid down by rules made in this behalf by that Government, with the competent authority and the provisions of sub-sections (2) to (4) shall apply to such deposit."

10. Learned Counsel for the petitioner invited our attention to Sub-section (4) of Section 3H and submitted that in the event of a dispute arising between co-sharers of the land acquired under the Act, apportionment of compensation or any part thereof or to any person to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, could not be done by the competent authority. The competent authority would have to refer the dispute for decision of the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction within the limits of whose jurisdiction the land is situate. This, according to the learned Counsel for the petitioner, is the inescapable effect to Sub-section (4) of Section 3H.

11. On the other hand, Mr. M.N. Singh, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of respondent nos. 1 to 5 submits that Sub-section (3) of Section 3H of the Act of 1956 provides that where several persons claim to be interested in the amount deposited under Sub-section (1), the competent authority is empowered to determine the persons, who in opinion of the authority, are entitled to receive compensation payable to each of them. This power, according to Mr. M.N. Singh, learned Counsel for respondent nos. 1 to 5, entitles the competent authority to apportion shares between parties. We do not agree.

12. The power under Sub-section (3) of Section 3H is a power given to the competent authority to distribute compensation according to the shares of parties so long as the entitlement to the compensation with reference to the shares of each largely remains a non-contentious issue. If shares of parties are apparently well settled, there is no difficulty for the competent authority to proceed under Sub-Section (3) of Section 3H and pay compensation according to each co-sharer s entitlement. However, if a dispute arises between parties in the sense of a lis with each party propounding a different share for himself based on past transactions and the law applicable, it is a matter which can alone be determined by the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction within whose jurisdiction the land acquired is located. The competent authority in a situation of the latter kind would have no jurisdiction to decide upon entitlement of shares of parties and distribute compensation according to his opinion. The only course left open to the competent authority would be to make a reference of the dispute for the decision of competent Civil Court within whose jurisdiction the acquired land is located. We are fortified in the view that we take by the authority of the Supreme Court in Vinod Kumar and others vs. District Magistrate, Mau and others, AIR 2023 SC 3337. In Vinod (supra), it has been held:

"33. We are of the view that when it comes to resolving the dispute relating to apportionment of the amount determined towards compensation, it is only the Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction which can do so. Principal Civil Court means the Court of the District Judge.

34. Our final conclusion is as under: If any dispute arises as to the apportionment of the amount or any part thereof or to any person to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, then, the competent authority shall refer the dispute to the decision of the Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction within the limits of whose jurisdiction the land is situated. The competent authority possesses certain powers of the Civil Court, but in the event of a dispute of the above nature, the summary power, vesting in the competent authority of rendering an opinion in terms of sub-section (3) of Section 3H, will not serve the purpose. The dispute being of the nature triable by the Civil Court that the law steps in to provide for that to be referred to the decision of the Principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction. The dispute regarding apportionment of the amount or any part thereof or to any person to whom the same or any part thereof is payable, would then have to be decided by that Court."

13. In the circumstances, we are of opinion that the competent authority/Additional District Magistrate had no jurisdiction to apportion compensation between the petitioners on one hand and respondent nos. 1 to 5 on the other. He had to make a reference of the dispute to the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction within whose jurisdiction the land acquired is situate.

14. In the result, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned order dated 23.04.02012 is hereby quashed. The competent authority/Additional District Magistrate Bulandshahr is ordered to forthwith make a reference of the dispute to the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction within whose jurisdiction the land is acquired.

15. There shall be no order as to costs.

16. Let this order be communicated to the Additional District Magistrate, Bulandshahr through the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr by the Registrar (Compliance) by Monday next.

THE HON'BLE IRSHAD ALI, J.

Writ C No. 22251 of 2018

M/s Sardar Baldev Singh ...Petitioner
Versus
I.O.C.L. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether termination of a retail outlet dealership under Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012, on the allegation of tampering with dispensing units can be sustained merely on the basis of taped joints in pulsar cables, broken or irregular Weights and Measures seals, or non-functional machinery, in the absence of cogent and reliable technical evidence establishing that such irregularities were capable of manipulating fuel delivery and were attributable to the dealer.

Headnotes

Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012 – Cls. 5.1.2, 5.1.3, 5.1.4 – Dealership Agreement – Termination of retail outlet dealership – Alleged tampering of dispensing units – Taped joints in pulsar cables and irregularity in Weights and Measures seals – No additional electronic device, chip, gear or unauthorized fitting found – No short delivery, excess delivery or adulteration detected – Dispensing unit itself non-functional – Termination based on presumption and suspicion – Validity.

Held: Clause 5.1.4 contemplates unauthorized manipulation of the dispensing mechanism in a manner capable of affecting fuel delivery. Every irregularity noticed in a dispensing unit does not, by itself, amount to tampering. Proceedings under Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines are penal in nature and must, therefore, satisfy a higher standard of proof than mere suspicion. The burden lies upon the Corporation to establish by credible and cogent material that the dispensing unit had in fact been tampered with in a manner capable of manipulating fuel delivery and that such manipulation could reasonably be attributed to the dealer. In the instant case, respondents proceeded on the assumption that because there existed taped joints in the pulsar cables and irregularity in the Weights and Measures seals, the petitioner must necessarily have indulged in tampering. No laboratory analysis or scientific examination was brought on record demonstrating that the taped joints or the alleged irregularities had any nexus with manipulation of the dispensing mechanism. The Corporation was required to establish, through cogent technical evidence, that the alleged irregularities were capable of manipulating delivery and that such manipulation was attributable to the petitioner. No additional electronic device, chip, gear or unauthorized fitting was recovered and no short delivery, excess delivery or adulteration was detected. Respondents have not produced any material establishing unauthorized access of the petitioner to the internal electronic components of the dispensing unit. An inference, in the absence of supporting technical evidence, cannot be accepted as a substitute for proof. Clause 1.4.2 of the MDG-2012 obligates the dealer to conduct daily visual inspection of the Weights and Measures seals and immediately report any irregularity. However, the breach of a duty to report a visible irregularity cannot automatically lead to the conclusion that the dealer himself tampered with the dispensing mechanism. Failure to consider the specific defence of the dealer amounts to violation of the principles of natural justice. Respondents failed to establish the essential ingredients of tampering by cogent technical evidence and rested their conclusions primarily upon presumptions arising from taped joints and the condition of the seals. The findings recorded in the impugned orders, therefore, cannot be said to be legally sustainable. Impugned orders set aside/quashed. [Paras 30–33, 40, 44–47, 50, 52, 55, 60–64, 70–76, 78, 81, 82] (E-5)

Case Arising From

From the order terminating the petitioner's retail outlet dealership and the appellate order dismissing the statutory appeal preferred under Clause 8.9 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioners: Radhika Singh, Richa Mishra, Tushar Hirwani
Advs. for the Respondent: Ratnesh Chandra, Manish Jauhari

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Radhika Singh, learned counsel for the petitioner with Ms. Richa Singh, Advocate and Sri Manish Johari, learned counsel appearing for the respondents.

2. By means of the present writ petition, the petitioner has challenged the order dated 04.07.2017 passed by respondent No.3 whereby the retail outlet dealership of the petitioner situated at Tulsipur, District Balrampur, has been terminated. The petitioner has also assailed the appellate order dated 15.05.2018 passed by respondent no.2 dismissing the statutory appeal preferred under Clause 8.9 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012 (hereinafter referred to as "MDG-2012").

3. The facts giving rise to the present writ petition, as pleaded by the petitioner, are that the petitioner has been running the aforesaid retail outlet since the year 1973 and claims to have maintained an unblemished record throughout the tenure of the dealership. According to the petitioner, at no point of time was any allegation of adulteration, short delivery or any other malpractice established against him. A dealership agreement governing the rights and obligations of the parties came to be executed on 16.05.2011.

4. It is the case of the petitioner that pursuant to the Government Order dated 02.05.2017, a joint inspection of the retail outlet was conducted on 10.05.2017 by the authorities concerned. During inspection, in one Tokheim dispensing unit, certain pulsar cables were found joined by adhesive tape and a joint was noticed in the Weights and Measures seal affixed to the motherboard. In another Gilbarco dispensing unit, the Weights and Measures seal of the pulsar at the MS unit was found broken. However, according to the inspection report itself, no additional electronic device, chip or any unauthorized fitting was found inside either of the dispensing units and no discrepancy in the quantity of fuel delivered was detected.

5. Thereafter, the respondent Corporation issued a fact-finding letter dated 02.06.2017 alleging violation of Clauses 5.1.2, 5.1.3 and 5.1.4 of the MDG-2012. The petitioner submitted a detailed reply denying the allegations. Subsequently, a show cause notice dated 13.06.2017 was issued, to which the petitioner submitted his reply on 29.06.2017. The competent authority, not being satisfied with the explanation furnished by the petitioner, passed the order dated 04.07.2017 terminating the dealership. The statutory appeal preferred by the petitioner also came to be dismissed on 15.05.2018. Aggrieved thereby, the present writ petition has been filed.

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that both the impugned orders are arbitrary, illegal and unsustainable in law inasmuch as they proceed merely on suspicion without there being any legally admissible evidence establishing tampering of the dispensing units or manipulation of fuel delivery. It is submitted that the respondents have failed to establish the essential ingredients contemplated under Clause 5.1.4 of the MDG-2012.

7. Elaborating the submissions, learned counsel contends that the dispensing machines, including their motherboard, pulsar card, pulsar cables, seals and other internal components, exclusively belonged to the respondent Corporation. Their installation, calibration, repairs, maintenance and sealing were carried out only by the engineers of the Corporation, its authorized service agencies and officials of the Weights and Measures Department. The petitioner had neither technical access to nor control over the internal mechanism of the dispensing units and, therefore, no presumption of tampering could legally be drawn against him.

8. Learned counsel further submits that the Tokheim dispensing unit bearing Serial No. D425A104 was an old machine manufactured in the year 2003 and was installed at the petitioner's retail outlet in the year 2008 after being shifted from another outlet. It is submitted that the said machine had repeatedly developed technical defects and had remained non-functional for considerable periods. The respondent Corporation itself had undertaken repairs on several occasions. It is further submitted that even prior to the inspection dated 10.05.2017, the dispensing unit had remained out of order since 23.03.2017 and complaints in that regard had already been lodged by the petitioner. The inspection report itself records that the dispensing unit was not dispensing fuel on the date of inspection. It is, therefore, contended that there existed neither any opportunity nor any motive for the petitioner to manipulate a machine which was admittedly lying defective.

9. Learned counsel next submits that although the inspection team noticed taped joints in certain pulsar cables and a broken seal in another dispensing unit, no additional electronic chip, foreign device or unauthorized fitting was recovered from either of the dispensing units. Likewise, no short delivery, excess delivery or adulteration of fuel was detected during inspection. It is urged that in the absence of these essential features, the respondents could not have concluded that the dispensing mechanism had been tampered with.

10. It is also contended that much before the inspection, the petitioner had addressed a written communication dated 28.04.2017 requesting the respondent Corporation to replace the old and rusted sealing wire. Thus, the condition of the seal was already within the knowledge of the Corporation. According to the petitioner, during inspection the seal was handled roughly by the inspecting officials, resulting in its breakage, which was thereafter wrongly attributed to the petitioner.

11. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submits that the inspection proceedings themselves stood vitiated for non-compliance with the Government Order dated 02.05.2017 as well as the provisions of the MDG-2012. It is submitted that the inspection team was not constituted in accordance with the prescribed procedure; independent witnesses were not properly associated; mandatory procedure relating to opening, seizure and resealing of the dispensing units was not followed; videography of the inspection was not supplied despite repeated requests; and the recovery memo did not bear the signatures of all mandatory officials, including representatives of the Original Equipment Manufacturer and police personnel.

12. It is further submitted that the respondents have relied only on the presence of joints in the pulsar cable and the condition of the seals to allege tampering. However, neither of these circumstances, by itself, is sufficient to conclusively establish that any unauthorized manipulation or tampering had taken place. In support of the said submission, reliance has been placed upon the technical opinion furnished by the Department of Electronics and Communication Engineering, National Institute of Technology, Karnataka, wherein it has been opined that visual inspection revealing soldering marks, jumper wires or cable joints is insufficient to conclude tampering unless supported by scientific examination, as such features may also arise during repairs or maintenance carried out by authorized personnel.

13. Learned counsel submits that despite seizure of the relevant components during inspection, neither laboratory testing nor any conclusive expert examination was undertaken to establish actual tampering of the dispensing mechanism. According to her, in the absence of scientific evidence, actual short delivery or recovery of any unauthorized electronic device, the impugned orders rest merely upon conjectures and suspicion and, therefore, deserve to be quashed.

14. In support of the submissions advanced, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the following judgments :-

(i) Chairman Indian Oil Corporation and others Vs. M/s Lallite Filling Centre and another [Special Appeal Defective No.145 of 2026]. Relevant paragraphs 24, 28, 29, 30 and 31 are being quoted as under :-

"24. The other limb of the submission of the learned counsel for the appellants, touching the merit of the dispute, if examined, would reveal that Clause 5.1.4 of the MDG refers to an additional/unauthorized fittings/gears found in dispensing units/tampering with dispensing units. It further provides that any mechanism or fitting or gear found fitted in the dispensing unit which is likely to manipulate delivery or any addition, removal, replacement or manipulation of any part of the dispensing units including any mechanism, gear, micro-processor chip, electronic parts/OEM Software, if found will be deemed to be tampering of the dispensing units.

28. The learned Single Judge also noticed that even earlier the respondent had complained regarding irregular functioning of the said dispensing unit and it was found that the said unit was making excess delivery. In such circumstances, no benefit could accrue to the respondent and it is admittedly, not a case of short dispensing of fuel. The only unit which was said to have been tampered was actually a non-functional unit from which no sales were carried out.

29. The learned Single Judge also noticed that the inspection of the outlet was carried out on 08.06.2017 whereas the dealership was terminated on 15.07.2017. It also noticed that at the time of termination, the appellants had not even obtained the report from its Original Equipment Manufacturer (OEM). The report of the OEM was obtained by the appellants on 18.12.2017, almost after 5 months of the termination.

30. The learned Single Judge has also noticed that the basic premise upon which the dealership was terminated was based on tampering of dispensing unit which was clearly arbitrary for the reason that the Unit which was found to be tampered was already non-functional, from which no sales were made. Coupled with the fact that the other units were all found to be intact with the seals of the Weights and Measures Department. Without even waiting for the report of the OEM, the termination order was passed which clearly amounted to pre-judging the issue and thus on the basis of such findings, the writ petition was allowed. It also considered the earlier litigation inter se the parties and thereafter taking a holistic view, it allowed the writ petition.

31. This Court having considered the aforesaid judgment find that the appellants could not dispute the fact that the seals of the Weights and Measures Department was found intact. The appellant also could not dispute that merely upon the basis of the inspection report, the agreement was terminated while the report from the OEM came almost 5 months thereafter."

(ii) Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. Vs. M/s Modern Service Station [Special Appeal No.456 of 2023]. Relevant paragraphs 24 to 27 are being quoted as under :-

"24. Having considered the rival submissions of the parties, we are definitely of the view that the learned Single Judge while dealing with the case of the petitioner correctly came to the conclusion that when a particular defence which was taken by the petitioner was not considered then that itself becomes a violation of the principles of natural justice. In the instant case, the petitioner had taken a definite stand that when on 16.9.2020, the engineer of M/s. GVR Mr. Girendra had opened the unit and had broken the seal then the dispensing unit was no longer in the control of the petitioner/respondents and there was every possibility of the seal being tampered and the unit being fiddled with by the engineer of M/s. GVR Mr. Girendra. When the defence of the petitioner was not considered the learned Single Judge correctly came to the conclusion that the petitioner was wronged inasmuch as there was a definite violation of principles of natural justice. Also the learned Single Judge rightly put an end to the matter and did not remand the case for a fresh appraisal. He, therefore, rightly relied upon the decision in M/s Chaudhary Filling Point, Kazipur through its Prop. And another vs. State of U.P. through Prin. Secy. Food & Civil Supplies and Ors. reported in 2019 (3) ADJ 345 the relevant paragraph no. 39 is being reproduced here as under:

"39. As seen from the reading of the impugned order, the only reason assigned for being not satisfied with the explanation offered by the petitioner was that there was tampering in the DU and pulsar card contains certain soldering marks. However, what was not considered by the competent authority was that at what point of time this unauthorized tampering/soldering was done in the dispensing unit and how the dealer is manipulating the distribution of fuel. No material, much less credible one has been brought on record by the respondents to disclose the unauthorized access to the equipment by the petitioner. It was specific stand of the petitioner that periodically the Weights and Measurements Department officials inspected the seals and they were found to be intact. Further more, what is the impact on tampering/soldering in delivery unit is not disclosed. How the dealer can manipulate delivery of fuel by inserting such unit is not explained. The only objective of a dealer to tamper with dispensing unit is to manipulate delivery of fuel. In this case, the delivery of fuel was found to be accurate prior to checking of unit and after the checking. Furthermore, the defence of the petitioner that it is possible that the supplier himself might have done soldering while repairing for proper functioning of the unit by supplier himself cannot be brushed aside."

25. This Appellate Court, thus, finds that when the main defence of the petitioner that i.e. the tampering was, in fact, a result of the act of the Original Equipment Manufacturer and that the petitioner had no hand in it was not considered then definitely the petitioner's interest was prejudiced.

26. We are thus of the view that the writ petition was rightly allowed and the matter was also rightly not remanded back. This we say as the appellants definitely had not been able to bring on record any fact by which it could be ascertained that the dealer had an authorized access to the equipment after the M/s GVR engineer had opened the dispensing unit and had fiddled with the motherboard and that the dealer was in any way responsible for the tampering etc.

27. For the reasons stated above, the Special Appeal stands dismissed."

(iii) M/s Aliganj Kisan Seva Kendra and another Vs. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. and others [Writ-C No.16998 of 2023]. Relevant paragraphs 40 and 45 to 48 are being quoted as under :-

"40. For appreciating the controversy involved in the writ petition, it would be apt to quote relevant clauses 16, 44 & 58(m) of the dealership agreement, which is as follows:-

"16. No repairs to the outfit shall be done by the Dealer unless preciously authorized by the Corporation in writing. The Dealer shall not interfere with or attempt to adjust the outfit or any apart thereof but shall notify the Corporation immediately of the necessary of any repair or adjustment and thereby ensure that the outfit is in proper working order and delivering full and proper, measure at all times. The Dealer shall not operate the outfit while it is out of order.

44. The Dealer undertakes faithfully and promptly to carry out, observe and perform all direction or rules given or made from time to time by the Corporation for the proper carrying on of the Dealership of the Corporation. The Dealer shall scrupulously observe and comply with all laws, rules regulations and requisitions of the Central/State Governments and of all authorities appointed by there or either of them including in particular the Chief Controller of Explosive, Government of India, and/or any other local authority with regard to the storage and sale of such petroleum products.

58(m). If the Dealer shall either by himself or by his servants or agents commit or suffered to be committed any act which in the opinion of the General Manager of the Corporation for the time being in NOIDA whose decision shall be final, is prejudicial to the Interest or good name of the Corporation or its products, the General Manager shall not be bound to give reasons for such decision."

45. It is also evident from the perusal of the impugned order that it is admitted to the parties that the dispensing unit was not a new unit. It is also not in dispute that the dispensing unit installed at the petitioners' retail outlet was earlier used by Quality Retail Outlet and in the running condition, the same was installed at the petitioners' retail outlet, which was dispensing oil till the date of survey, i.e., 06.05.2017 without any discrepancy.

46. It is admitted fact between the parties that the dispensing unit installed at the petitioners' retail outlet was not new and it is also not in dispute that before reinstalation of dispensing unit of the petitioner site any certificate was issue certifying the fact that the mother board was not tampered or any repair was being undertaken by the Corporation or its agencies. Further before reinstalling the dispensing unit at the petitioners' retail outlet a certificate was ever issued duly certifying the fact that control card was in confermity with the MIDOC standard design.

47. It is also not in dispute that at the time of survey, the dispensing unit was not in working condition or it was not dispensing oil. Therefore, negative onus cannot be fastened upon the petitioners as alleged by the Corporation.

48. Bare reading of the relevant clauses of the dealership agreement and the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, presumption will be drawn against the petitioners that some manipulation has been done, but the presumption has to be proved by the Corporation by cogent materials to show that there was irregularity in dispensing unit, but the report submitted by the OEM does not say so. In absence of such finding against the petitioner, the impugned termination order cannot be sustained in the eyes of law."

"24. It is also relevant to notice that the only basis for passing the impugned orders is the report by the OEM and as noticed above, the report of the OEM is also inconclusive for the reason the OEM also could not state with certainty that the said alien part as detected in the pulsar card was responsible for any short delivery. The report merely draws a conclusion but it does not indicate how and what tests were done to arrive at such a conclusion, apart from the fact that the said report of the OEM was not even put or given to the petitioner before passing of the impugned order of termination.

25. Learned counsel for the IOC could not dispute that the show cause notice was based merely on the basis of the inspection report and at that point of time, the report of the OEM was not there and the show cause notice also did not indicate that the Corporation would be relying upon the said report and even if they proposed to do so then it was a duty of the Corporation to have provided the copy of the report to the petitioner prior to the passing of the order to enable the petitioner to meet the reasons or contest the same and having not done so it has resulted in deprivation of an opportunity of hearing especially when the proposed action was in the nature of termination which impacted the rights of the petitioner to run the dealership which was a right to do business and earn livelihood.

28. It will be worthwhile to mention that in a similar matter, a coordinate Bench of this Court in M/s Mishra Automobiles Vs. Union of India and others;2024:AHC-LKO:53503 and dealing with similar issue and relying upon Clause 5.1.4 of the MDG, in paragraphs 14 to 18 has held as under:-

"14. From the aforesaid provision, it is clear that when any mechanisms, fitting, gear found fitted in dispensing unit with the intention of manipulation of delivery would amount to invite proceedings under the said sections and lead to cancellation of the license. Therefore, from a bare reading of Clause 5.1.4 of the MDG Guidelines, it is clear that any mechanism or fitting in the dispensing unit should result in manipulation of delivery or such additional fitting should at least the capable of manipulating the delivery. There is no dispute with regard to the fact that the foreign component was in fact found on the pulsar cards but the dispute in the present case is only with regard to the fact that as to whether discovery of a foreign component on the pulsar card would automatically lead to the conclusion that same has been installed with an intention of manipulation of delivery. In the present case, the peculiar facts are that seals of the dispensing units were intact at the time inspection. The foreign component found in the pulsar card has been reported by the OEM. Thee is no clear finding that such foreign component would led to the short supply of diesel in its original report dated 11.05.2017 or in subsequent clarification issued on 17.05.2017.

15. To return a finding with regard to the intention of manipulating the delivery, the basic fact which has to be established that the installation of the foreign component had in fact led to manipulating the delivery meaning thereby that on installation of foreign component on the pulsar cards, the dispensing unit had dispensed lesser quantity of fuel than it was supposed to dispense.

16. We do not agree with the submission of the counsel for the respondent that mere finding of the foreign component of the pulsar cards is sufficient in itself to come to a conclusion that the same has been done with an intention to manipulate the delivery. In case there is manipulation in delivery meaning thereby short supply of the fuel dispensed from the dispensing unit is a question of fact and can not be assumed. Only when it is established that the dispensing unit had in fact dispensed lesser quantity of fuel, coupled with the fact that foreign component was found in the pulsar card, can a person be held responsible for violating provisions of 5.1.4 of the MDG Guidelines and consequential cancellation of his license can be done. Apart from finding a foreign component on the Pulsar Cards there should have been categorical finding with regard to the intention to manipulate the delivery.

17. On perusal of the relevant provision i.e. 5.1.4 of MDG Guidelines, it is found to be substantially penal in nature and its essential ingredients, prima facie, consist of:

(1) The finding of the foreign objects in the dispensing unit, which is only a ground for inquiry and inspection.

(2) Intention of manipulating the delivery.

Mere presence of foreign elements does not ipso facto show intention unless there is evidence to show that the foreign components are capable of or in fact affecting the fair dispensation of fuel.

In the present case, there is no evidence with regard to the second necessary ingredient, which is 'intention of manipulating the delivery' and also the inquiry fell short of returning any finding as to show any such manipulation. Therefore, the petitioner cannot be said to have violated 5.1.4 of the MDG Guidelines.

18. In the aforesaid circumstances, firstly, it is not the case of the respondent Oil Company that there was any shortfall of the delivery, coupled with the fact that even the OEM has never reported, the result of the foreign body attached to the pulsar card and secondly, the benefit of doubt of the seal being intact during the time of inspection has to be given to the petitioner as the foreign component cannot be inserted without breaking the seal of the dispensing unit. Counsel for the respondent also could not confirm as to whether the foreign component can be inserted on pulsar card without breaking the seals. Therefore, reading the inspection report dated 05.05.2017 wherein in paragraph 2, it has clearly been found that the delivery was found to be correct, coupled with the fact that in paragraph-5, it has been stated that seals were broken in presence of the inspecting team leads to have irrebuttable conclusion that the seals were intact and there was no short supply of the fuel and consequently, in the aforesaid circumstances, it cannot be concluded that there was intention to manipulate the delivery, and hence any violation of Clause 5.4.1. of the MDG Guidelines.""

15. In support of his submissions, learned counsel has placed reliance upon the judgment of the Division Bench of this Court in Chairman, Indian Oil Corporation (Supra), wherein it has been held that Clause 5.1.4 of the MDG contemplates tampering by way of unauthorized fittings or manipulation capable of affecting delivery. The Division Bench held that where the dispensing unit alleged to have been tampered with was itself non-functional and no short delivery was detected, termination of dealership merely on suspicion could not be sustained. It was further held that passing the termination order without even awaiting the report of the Original Equipment Manufacturer amounted to pre-judging the issue.

16. Reliance has also been placed upon another Division Bench judgment in Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. and others versus M/s Modern Service Station (Supra), wherein the Court held that failure to consider the specific defence of the dealer amounts to violation of the principles of natural justice. The Division Bench further held that unless cogent material is brought on record to establish that the dealer had unauthorized access to the dispensing unit after it had been handled by the Corporation's engineers or authorized personnel, liability cannot be fastened upon the dealer.

17. It is submitted that mere soldering marks or tampering noticed in the dispensing unit do not by themselves establish manipulation unless it is shown when such tampering occurred, how the dealer gained unauthorized access to the equipment and how such alteration affected the delivery of fuel. It was observed that where delivery was found to be accurate and no material existed connecting the dealer with the alleged tampering, the extreme penalty of termination could not be justified.

18. Learned counsel has further relied upon the judgment in M/s Aliganj Kisan Seva Kendra (Supra), wherein this Court held that where the dispensing unit supplied by the Corporation was an old or previously used machine and no certificate regarding its integrity prior to installation was produced, the burden could not automatically be shifted upon the dealer. It was further held that if the dispensing unit was itself non-functional, adverse presumption against the dealer could not be drawn merely on the basis of the condition of the machine, unless supported by cogent material establishing manipulation.

19. Reliance has lastly been placed upon the judgment of this Court in M/s Prakash Automobiles (Supra), wherein it was held that an inconclusive OEM report, which neither established that the foreign component resulted in short delivery nor disclosed the basis of its conclusion, could not furnish sufficient material for terminating a dealership. The Court further held that Clause 5.1.4 of the MDG requires not merely the existence of a foreign component but also material demonstrating its capability or intention to manipulate delivery and that mere presence of a foreign object, without proof of its effect on fuel delivery, is insufficient to sustain termination.

20. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the respondents submits that the writ petition is wholly misconceived and deserves to be dismissed. According to him, both the termination order as well as the appellate order have been passed strictly in accordance with the provisions of the MDG-2012, the dealership agreement and after affording full opportunity of hearing to the petitioner.

21. Learned counsel submits that during the inspection conducted on 10.05.2017, serious irregularities were detected at the petitioner's retail outlet. The Weights and Measures seal of the pulsar unit was found broken and a joint secured by tape was noticed in the pulsar cable, constituting critical irregularities under the MDG-2012. Consequently, sale from the concerned dispensing unit was immediately suspended and, after completion of the fact-finding inquiry and consideration of the petitioner's reply to the show cause notice, the competent authority rightly terminated the dealership.

22. Learned counsel for the respondents submits that the explanation furnished by the petitioner in response to the show cause notice was duly considered by the competent authority but was found wholly unsatisfactory. It is contended that the irregularities detected during inspection were of a critical nature attracting the provisions of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012 and, therefore, in exercise of powers conferred under Clauses 15, 16, 19 and 44 read with Clause 58 of the Dealership Agreement, the competent authority rightly terminated the dealership by order dated 04.07.2017.

23. It is further submitted that the petitioner thereafter preferred a statutory appeal under Clause 8.9 of the MDG-2012. The appellate authority afforded the petitioner an opportunity of personal hearing on 27.03.2018, examined the memorandum of appeal, the written submissions and the entire material available on record and thereafter, by a reasoned order dated 15.05.2018, affirmed the order of termination. It is, therefore, submitted that the petitioner has already availed of the statutory remedy and no procedural infirmity survives.

24. Learned counsel contends that the petitioner's reliance upon his alleged satisfactory conduct since the year 1973 is wholly misconceived. According to him, past conduct cannot wipe out or dilute the effect of a critical irregularity detected during inspection. Similarly, the annual stamping and calibration certificates issued by the Weights and Measures Department merely certify the condition of the dispensing units at the time of inspection and do not rule out subsequent tampering or manipulation.

25. It is further submitted that during inspection a joint secured by adhesive tape was found in the pulsar cable. As per the opinion of the representative of the Original Equipment Manufacturer, no such joint ought to exist in the cable. Consequently, the pulsar unit was sealed and handed over to the Supplies Inspector for further examination. It is submitted that although no additional electronic device or fitting was noticed, the existence of the joint itself constituted a serious irregularity and the same was duly recorded in the inspection report.

26. Learned counsel further submits that a joint was also noticed in the sealing wire of the Weights and Measures seal affixed to the motherboard, thereby clearly indicating interference with the sealing mechanism. According to him, after considering the inspection report, the reports submitted by the Government officers, the show cause notice, the petitioner's reply and the grounds raised in appeal, the appellate authority has recorded a categorical finding that the dealership had rightly been terminated.

27. It is further contended that the termination order was issued only after obtaining the approval of the competent authority, namely, the State Head (Executive Director, UPSO-I), and, therefore, the decision-making process does not suffer from any procedural irregularity. It is also submitted that Clause 1.4.2 of the MDG-2012 casts a continuing obligation upon every dealer to carry out daily visual inspection of the dispensing units, immediately report any broken Weights and Measures seal to the Oil Company and ensure proper maintenance of the dispensing units. According to the respondents, the petitioner failed to discharge these obligations and is consequently responsible for the irregularities detected during inspection.

28. Learned counsel lastly submits that the allegations made by the petitioner regarding violation of the Government Order dated 02.05.2017, procedural lapses during inspection, absence of tampering and non-compliance of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines are wholly baseless and unsupported by any material on record. It is urged that both the disciplinary authority and the appellate authority have considered each of the petitioner's objections and have recorded concurrent findings of fact. Such findings, according to the respondents, do not warrant interference by this Court in exercise of its writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India.

29. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and have perused the material brought on record.

30. The controversy in the present case essentially revolves around the interpretation and application of Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012 and whether the material collected during inspection constituted sufficient evidence to establish tampering of the dispensing units so as to justify the extreme penalty of termination of the dealership.

31. Before adverting to the rival submissions, it would be appropriate to notice Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012. The said clause treats as a critical irregularity any additional or unauthorized fitting, gear or mechanism found in the dispensing unit which is likely to manipulate delivery. It further provides that any addition, removal, replacement or manipulation of any part of the dispensing unit, including its electronic components, software or microprocessor chip, shall be deemed to amount to tampering of the dispensing unit.

32. A plain reading of the aforesaid provision shows that every irregularity noticed in a dispensing unit does not automatically amount to tampering within the meaning of Clause 5.1.4. The provision contemplates unauthorized manipulation of the dispensing mechanism or such alteration which is capable of affecting the quantity of fuel delivered through the dispensing unit. Since termination of dealership visits the dealer with serious civil consequences, the ingredients of the clause must be established by cogent and reliable material.

33. It is well settled that although the scope of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution does not permit this Court to re-appreciate evidence as an appellate authority, the Court is nevertheless required to examine whether the findings recorded by the authorities are based upon some legally admissible material, whether the decision-making process is fair, and whether the conclusion arrived at is so arbitrary or unreasonable that it warrants interference.

34. In Chairman, Indian Oil Corporation (Supra), the Division Bench of this Court examined the scope of Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines. The Court held that the clause contemplates unauthorized fittings or mechanisms capable of manipulating delivery. It was noticed that although certain irregularities had been detected, the dispensing unit itself was non-functional and no short delivery had been established. The Division Bench further held that termination without even awaiting the report of the Original Equipment Manufacturer amounted to pre-judging the issue and could not be sustained.

35. The aforesaid judgment assumes significance in the present case because the inspection report itself records that the Tokheim dispensing unit was not dispensing fuel on the date of inspection. The petitioner has consistently asserted that the machine had remained defective since 23.03.2017 and that complaints regarding its malfunction had already been lodged with the respondent-Corporation. These assertions have not been specifically disputed by placing any material to the contrary.

36. Equally relevant is the judgment of the Division Bench in Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. and others versus M/s Modern Service Station. The Court held that failure of the competent authority to consider the specific defence raised by the dealer amounts to violation of the principles of natural justice. The Division Bench further observed that unless there exists material demonstrating unauthorized access of the dealer to the dispensing unit after it had been handled by the Corporation's engineers or authorized personnel, liability cannot be fastened merely on assumptions.

37. While affirming the judgment of the learned Single Judge, the Division Bench approved the principles laid down in M/s Chaudhary Filling Point, wherein it was held that mere existence of soldering marks or signs of repair on the dispensing unit does not establish manipulation unless the respondents are able to demonstrate when such tampering took place, how the dealer gained unauthorized access to the equipment and, more importantly, how such alteration resulted in manipulation of fuel delivery.

38. In M/s Aliganj Kisan Seva Kendra versus Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., this Court also dealt with a case where the dispensing unit supplied by the Corporation was an old machine previously installed elsewhere. The Court held that where no certificate regarding the integrity of the dispensing unit prior to installation was produced by the Corporation and the dispensing unit itself was not functioning properly, adverse presumption could not be drawn against the dealer merely because certain irregularities were noticed during inspection. The burden continued to remain upon the Corporation to establish the alleged manipulation by cogent evidence.

39. Likewise, in M/s Prakash Automobiles versus Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., this Court reiterated that mere presence of a foreign component or any alteration in the dispensing unit is not sufficient to establish violation of Clause 5.1.4 unless it is further shown that such component was capable of affecting delivery or had actually resulted in manipulation of the quantity of fuel dispensed. The Court also emphasized that an expert report, if relied upon, must be supplied to the dealer so as to enable him to effectively meet the allegations.

40. The consistent principle emerging from the aforesaid decisions is that proceedings under Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines are substantially penal in nature. Consequently, the burden lies upon the Corporation to establish by credible material that the dispensing unit had in fact been tampered with in a manner capable of manipulating fuel delivery and that such manipulation could reasonably be attributed to the dealer.

41. It is in the light of the aforesaid legal principles that the evidence available on record and the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority as well as the appellate authority are required to be examined.

42. The principal question which arises for consideration before this Court is whether the material collected during the inspection dated 10.05.2017 constituted sufficient evidence to establish tampering of the dispensing units so as to justify termination of the petitioner's dealership under the provisions of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012 and the Dealership Agreement.

43. From a perusal of the inspection report, the termination order dated 04.07.2017 and the appellate order dated 15.05.2018, it is evident that the respondents have principally relied upon three circumstances, namely, (i) taped joints found in three pulsar cables of the Tokheim dispensing unit, (ii) a joint found in the Weights and Measures seal affixed to the motherboard of the said dispensing unit, and (iii) the broken Weights and Measures seal of the pulsar in the Gilbarco dispensing unit.

44. Equally significant is the fact that both the disciplinary authority and the appellate authority have themselves recorded that no additional fitting, chip, electronic device or unauthorized gear was found inside either of the dispensing units. The termination order specifically records that although no additional fittings were found during inspection, the cut in the pulsar cable established that it was made to connect additional fittings. The appellate authority has reiterated the same reasoning.

45. The aforesaid finding, in the considered opinion of this Court, is based upon an assumption rather than upon any technical material. Neither the termination order nor the appellate order refers to any expert opinion demonstrating that the taped joints in the pulsar cable were actually connected with manipulation of the dispensing mechanism or that such joints were capable of affecting the quantity of fuel delivered through the dispensing unit.

46. The respondents have repeatedly relied upon the opinion of the OEM engineer that there should not be any joint in the pulsar cable. However, the record does not disclose that the OEM ever opined that the taped joints had resulted in short delivery of fuel or that they were capable of manipulating delivery. Merely because an OEM engineer opined that there ought not to be a joint in the cable cannot, by itself, constitute proof of tampering within the meaning of Clause 5.1.4 of the MDG-2012.

47. The respondents have also not disputed that no discrepancy in delivery of fuel was noticed during the inspection. There is no allegation in the inspection report that either short delivery or excess delivery was detected. Likewise, there is no allegation of adulteration of fuel. The absence of any discrepancy in delivery assumes considerable significance, particularly when the allegation is one of tampering with the dispensing mechanism.

48. The petitioner has consistently asserted that the Tokheim dispensing unit was manufactured in the year 2003, had been shifted from another retail outlet and was installed at the petitioner's outlet in the year 2008. The respondents have not disputed these facts. On the contrary, both the termination order and the appellate order acknowledge that the dispensing unit was an old machine. The respondents have merely observed that the age of the dispensing unit is immaterial.

49. The petitioner had also specifically pleaded that the said dispensing unit had remained non-functional since 23.03.2017 and complaints regarding its malfunction had already been lodged with the Corporation. The appellate authority has itself noticed this defence. However, the said defence has been rejected merely by observing that the recovery of the taped joint was sufficient irrespective of whether the dispensing unit was functional or not.

50. This Court finds that such reasoning overlooks an important factual aspect. If the dispensing unit had admittedly remained out of order and was not dispensing fuel on the date of inspection, the respondents were required to establish, by cogent technical evidence, as to how the alleged irregularity was intended to manipulate delivery or confer any advantage upon the dealer. Neither of the impugned orders deals with this aspect.

51. Another aspect which cannot be ignored is that the Dealership Agreement itself provides that repairs, calibration and maintenance of the dispensing units are to be undertaken by the Corporation or its authorized agencies. The petitioner has consistently pleaded that he was neither technically competent nor authorized to open the dispensing units or interfere with their internal mechanism. This defence has not been examined with the degree of scrutiny which the seriousness of the consequence demanded.

52. The respondents have sought to fasten liability upon the petitioner by relying upon Clause 1.4.2 of the MDG-2012, which obligates the dealer to conduct daily visual inspection of the Weights and Measures seals and immediately report any irregularity. Undoubtedly, such an obligation exists. However, the breach of a duty to report a visible irregularity cannot automatically lead to the conclusion that the dealer himself tampered with the dispensing mechanism.

53. Significantly, the petitioner has placed reliance upon a written communication dated 28.04.2017 requesting replacement of the old and rusted sealing wire. If such a communication had indeed been submitted prior to the inspection, the respondents were required to examine its effect while considering the allegation relating to the broken seal. Neither the disciplinary authority nor the appellate authority has dealt with this contention except by observing that it was an afterthought.

54. The Court further notices that the petitioner had specifically relied upon the technical opinion of the Department of Electronics and Communication Engineering, National Institute of Technology, Karnataka, wherein it has been opined that visual inspection revealing soldering marks, cable joints or jumper wires cannot by itself establish tampering unless supported by scientific examination. The impugned orders are conspicuously silent on this material, although the said opinion directly addressed the technical issue involved in the present case.

55. Equally, despite seizure of the relevant components, no laboratory analysis or scientific examination has been brought on record demonstrating that the taped joints or the alleged irregularities had any nexus with manipulation of the dispensing mechanism. The respondents have proceeded on the premise that because a taped joint ought not to exist, it necessarily follows that the same was introduced for manipulating delivery. Such an inference, in the absence of supporting technical evidence, cannot be accepted as a substitute for proof.

56. The appellate authority has observed that recovery of three pulsar cables with joints "amounts to tampering with the dispensing unit." In the opinion of this Court, such conclusion is merely a reiteration of the allegation and not the result of any independent analysis. The appellate authority has neither discussed the essential ingredients of Clause 5.1.4 nor recorded any finding that the alleged irregularity was capable of affecting delivery or that the petitioner had unauthorized access to the internal mechanism of the dispensing unit. The appellate order, therefore, substantially affirms the disciplinary authority without independently addressing the core issues raised in appeal.

57. The controversy involved in the present case is no longer res integra. This Court, as well as the Division Bench, has on several occasions interpreted the scope of Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012 and has consistently held that the drastic consequence of termination of dealership can follow only when the Corporation establishes, on the basis of cogent material, that the dispensing unit had been tampered with in a manner contemplated by the said clause.

58. In Chairman, Indian Oil Corporation, New Delhi and others versus M/s Lallite Filling Centre, the Division Bench examined an identical controversy where the dispensing unit alleged to have been tampered with was itself lying non-functional and no discrepancy in fuel delivery had been detected. The Division Bench observed that Clause 5.1.4 contemplates additional or unauthorized fittings or manipulation capable of affecting delivery. The Court further held that termination of dealership merely on the basis of suspicion, particularly where the dispensing unit was not in operation and no short delivery had been established, could not be sustained in law.

59. The ratio of the aforesaid judgment squarely applies to the facts of the present case. Here also, the respondents do not dispute that the Tokheim dispensing unit had remained out of order prior to the inspection and was not dispensing fuel on the date of inspection. More importantly, no discrepancy in delivery was found and no additional electronic fitting or device was recovered.

Thus, the factual foundation of the present case is substantially similar to the one considered by the Division Bench.

60. Equally important is the observation of the Division Bench in Lallite Filling Centre that the Corporation ought not to prejudge the issue without obtaining reliable technical material. Although the respondents have referred to the opinion of the OEM representative, neither the termination order nor the appellate order discloses any scientific opinion establishing that the taped joints in the pulsar cable had actually affected or were capable of affecting the quantity of fuel delivered.

61. The Division Bench in Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. and others versus M/s Modern Service Station reiterated another equally important principle, namely, that failure to consider the specific defence raised by the dealer amounts to violation of the principles of natural justice. The Court further held that unless credible material exists to demonstrate unauthorized access of the dealer to the dispensing unit after it had been handled by the Corporation's engineers or authorized personnel, liability cannot be fastened merely on assumptions.

62. In the present case, the petitioner specifically pleaded that the dispensing units belonged to the Corporation, that all repairs and maintenance were undertaken by the Corporation through its authorized agencies, that the Tokheim dispensing unit was an old second-hand machine repeatedly repaired by the Corporation, and that no additional device was recovered during inspection. Although these submissions have been noticed in the impugned orders, there is no meaningful discussion as to how, despite these facts, the respondents concluded that the petitioner himself had manipulated the dispensing unit.

63. The Division Bench in Modern Service Station approved the earlier judgment in M/s Chaudhary Filling Point, wherein it was held that the mere existence of soldering marks or signs of repair does not establish manipulation unless it is further shown when such tampering took place, how the dealer gained unauthorized access to the dispensing unit and in what manner the alleged tampering affected delivery of fuel. The Court also observed that where delivery was found to be correct, the allegation of manipulation cannot be accepted merely on suspicion.

64. These observations fully support the petitioner's contention in the present case. The respondents have not brought on record any material to indicate as to when the taped joints came into existence, whether they were introduced during any repair undertaken by the Corporation or its authorized agencies, or how the petitioner gained unauthorized access to the internal mechanism of the dispensing unit. The entire finding rests upon the assumption that the existence of taped joints necessarily establishes tampering.

65. This Court also finds considerable force in the ratio laid down in M/s Aliganj Kisan Seva Kendra versus Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. In the said case also, the dispensing unit supplied by the Corporation was an old machine which had earlier been installed elsewhere. The Court held that unless the Corporation establishes that the dispensing unit was free from defects or unauthorized alterations at the time of installation, adverse inference cannot automatically be drawn against the dealer merely because certain irregularities are noticed subsequently.

66. In the present case, the respondents themselves admit that the Tokheim dispensing unit was manufactured in the year 2003 and was installed at the petitioner's retail outlet in the year 2008 after being shifted from another location. No material has been produced to demonstrate that before its installation at the petitioner's outlet the Corporation had certified the integrity of its motherboard, pulsar cables or electronic components. This aspect assumes significance particularly when the petitioner has consistently pleaded that the machine had undergone repeated repairs.

67. The judgment in M/s Prakash Automobiles versus Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. also lends support to the petitioner's case. This Court held therein that mere recovery of a foreign component or any alteration in the dispensing unit does not automatically establish violation of Clause 5.1.4. What is further required to be established is that the alleged alteration was capable of manipulating delivery or had actually resulted in manipulation of fuel supply. It was also held that an inconclusive expert report cannot form the sole basis for terminating a dealership.

68. Applying the aforesaid principle to the present case, this Court finds that neither the OEM opinion nor the findings recorded by the respondents explain the technical impact of the taped joints. The respondents have merely stated that there should not have been a joint in the pulsar cable. They have not established by any scientific or technical evidence that the alleged joint either manipulated or was capable of manipulating the quantity of fuel delivered.

69. The respondents have repeatedly emphasized that Clause 5.1.2 read with Clause 8.2 of the MDG-2012 permits termination even where delivery is found correct, provided the Weights and Measures seal is found tampered. There can be no quarrel with the proposition that tampering with a statutory seal is a serious irregularity. However, before invoking the penal consequences flowing from the said clause, the Corporation must first establish, on the basis of reliable material, that the seal had in fact been tampered with by or at the instance of the dealer. Such foundational facts cannot be presumed merely because a broken seal or a joint in the sealing wire was noticed during inspection.

70. The respondents have also relied upon Clause 1.4.2 of the MDG-2012 to contend that the petitioner failed to report the alleged irregularity. In the opinion of this Court, breach of the obligation to carry out visual inspection or to report a damaged seal may constitute a lapse on the part of the dealer. However, such omission cannot, in the absence of independent evidence, be elevated to proof that the dealer himself manipulated the dispensing mechanism or inserted unauthorized fittings so as to attract the extreme penalty of termination.

71. The cumulative effect of the aforesaid decisions leaves no manner of doubt that proceedings under Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines are penal in nature and must, therefore, satisfy a higher standard of proof than mere suspicion. Since the respondents have failed to establish the essential ingredients of tampering by cogent technical evidence and have rested their conclusions primarily upon presumptions arising from taped joints and the condition of the seals, the findings recorded in the impugned orders cannot be said to be legally sustainable.

72. Having examined the rival submissions, the pleadings on record, the inspection report, the termination order dated 04.07.2017, the appellate order dated 15.05.2018 and the authorities relied upon by the parties, this Court is of the considered opinion that the respondents have failed to establish the charge of tampering in the manner contemplated under the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012.

73. It is not in dispute that during inspection no additional electronic device, chip, gear or any other unauthorized fitting was recovered from either of the dispensing units. Both the disciplinary authority as well as the appellate authority have accepted this factual position. Thus, one of the principal circumstances ordinarily associated with manipulation of dispensing units is admittedly absent in the present case.

74. Equally undisputed is the fact that no discrepancy in delivery of fuel was detected during the inspection. The respondents have neither alleged nor established that the petitioner indulged in short delivery, excess delivery or adulteration of fuel. The absence of any such finding considerably weakens the foundation upon which the allegation of manipulation has been built.

75. The disciplinary authority has proceeded on the premise that since there existed taped joints in the pulsar cables, the same must have been intended for connecting additional fittings. Such conclusion is purely inferential. Neither the OEM representative nor any other technical expert has opined that the taped joints were capable of manipulating delivery. No technical report explaining the functioning of the pulsar cable or the impact of such joints upon fuel delivery has been placed on record.

76. The appellate authority has merely affirmed the aforesaid reasoning by observing that recovery of three pulsar cables with joints amounts to tampering of the dispensing unit. Such observation, in the opinion of this Court, is again conclusory in nature. A conclusion unsupported by technical analysis cannot substitute proof, particularly when the allegation entails civil consequences of a serious nature.

77. It is also noteworthy that the petitioner consistently pleaded that the Tokheim dispensing unit was an old machine manufactured in the year 2003, shifted from another retail outlet and installed at the petitioner's outlet in the year 2008. The respondents have admitted these facts. The petitioner further pleaded that the said dispensing unit had remained under repeated repairs and had become non-functional since 23.03.2017. The inspection report itself records that the dispensing unit was not dispensing fuel on the date of inspection. These circumstances were relevant considerations while appreciating the allegation of tampering, but neither authority has examined them in their proper perspective.

78. The respondents have repeatedly relied upon Clause 1.4.2 of the MDG-2012 to contend that the petitioner was under an obligation to conduct daily visual inspection of the seals and report any irregularity. While such obligation undoubtedly exists, failure to discharge the same may constitute negligence on the part of the dealer. However, negligence cannot automatically be equated with deliberate tampering of the dispensing mechanism unless supported by independent evidence establishing the dealer's involvement.

79. The petitioner also specifically pleaded that prior to the inspection he had requested replacement of the rusted sealing wire. Whether the said explanation ultimately deserved acceptance or not, it required objective consideration by the authorities. The impugned orders reject the explanation merely by describing it as an afterthought without assigning any convincing reasons. Administrative authorities exercising quasi-judicial functions are expected to deal with every material defence in a reasoned manner, particularly when the consequence is termination of a long-standing dealership.

80. Another significant aspect which weighs with this Court is that the respondents have not produced any material establishing unauthorized access of the petitioner to the internal electronic components of the dispensing unit. Under the dealership arrangement, installation, calibration, maintenance and repairs were admittedly carried out by the Corporation through its engineers or authorized agencies. In the absence of any evidence demonstrating when and by whom the alleged taped joints came into existence, the finding that the petitioner himself manipulated the dispensing unit remains unsupported by tangible material.

81. This Court is conscious that the scope of judicial review under Article 226 of the Constitution is confined to examination of the decision-making process and does not extend to re-appreciation of evidence as an appellate authority. However, where findings are founded upon assumptions rather than legally admissible evidence, or where relevant material has not been considered, the writ court would be justified in exercising its power of judicial review to prevent manifest arbitrariness.

82. The impugned orders reveal that the respondents have proceeded on the assumption that because there existed taped joints in the pulsar cables and irregularity in the Weights and Measures seals, the petitioner must necessarily have indulged in tampering. Such presumption overlooks the settled legal position that suspicion, however strong, cannot take the place of proof. The Corporation was required to establish, through cogent technical evidence, that the alleged irregularities were capable of manipulating delivery and that such manipulation was attributable to the petitioner. No such evidence is forthcoming.

83. This Court is, therefore, of the considered opinion that the findings recorded by the disciplinary authority as well as the appellate authority suffer from the vice of non-consideration of relevant material, reliance upon presumptive conclusions unsupported by scientific evidence and misapplication of Clause 5.1.4 of the Marketing Discipline Guidelines, 2012. Consequently, both the impugned orders cannot be sustained.

83. Accordingly, the writ petition succeeds and is allowed.

84. The order dated 04.07.2017 passed by respondent no.3 terminating the petitioner's retail outlet dealership and the appellate order dated 15.05.2018 passed by respondent no.2 affirming the said order are hereby quashed.

85. The respondents are directed to restore the petitioner's dealership and all consequential benefits flowing therefrom within a period of six weeks from the date of production of a certified copy of this order, subject to there being no other legal impediment.

86. There shall be no order as to costs.

Aarti Jaiswal, along with co-accused Vikram Asthana, had attempted to fraudulently obtain a loan of Rs. 10 lakhs from the State Bank of Patiala, by submitting forged and fabricated documents, including a power-of-attorney purportedly executed by one Moolchand, who, along with his brothers Natthu Singh and Sohanlal, had in fact died around the year 1990, in favour of Vikram Asthana, on the strength of which an agreement to sell was executed in favour of Smt. Aarti Jaiswal - The applicant named as a guarantor to the proposed loan - Upon investigation, police submitted a chargesheet against Smt. Aarti Jaiswal, applicant and Vikram Asthana, upon which cognizance was taken - Further the applicant approached High Court contending that he, being merely a guarantor and not privy to preparation, fabrication or execution of documents - Acted bona fide on the strength of a registered power-of-attorney, a certificate of title issued by bank's advocate, and other documents furnished by power-of-attorney holder - Also no evidence of criminal intent, active role or conspiracy existed against him.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant application under Section 482 CrPC has been filed by the accused/applicant Ritesh Jaiswal for the following reliefs:-

"It is, therefore, most respectfully prayed that the Hon'ble Court may graciously be placed to admit and allow the application, and to quash the chargesheet No. 112A of 2008 dated 18.03.2008 filed against the applicant under Section 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC, relating to police station Railway Road, District Meerut in connection with Case No. 1303/9 of 2008(State vs. Aarti Jaiswal and others) pending in the court of 2nd Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Meerut."

2. It is the case of the 1st informant/respondent No. 2 Dhan Singh that about 3 - 4 days back at his house situated in Nai Basti Sofipur, police Station Daurala, the Branch manager of State Bank of Patiala, Railway Road, Branch Meerut came and enquired from him whether he is taking loan on his land. Then he contacted all his brothers and enquired from them whether they are taking loan on their land, but all of them refused. He was informed by the above Branch manager that some person intends to obtain loan on their land by fabricating some documents in his name. The Branch manager further informed that 2 persons will arrive at about 4 PM on 26.9.2007 in his bank than he will inform them. Today, on getting the information at about 4:15 PM on the phone of Naresh Saini from the Branch manager, he along with Naresh Saini, Rajvir Singh Saini,Ajay Kumar Saini,Uttam Kumar Saini, Amit Kumar Saini and 2 - 4 other persons on their motorcycle reached the above bank at about 4:45 PM, then he saw that 4 persons were sitting with the bank manager. On seeing them, the bank manager disclosed that, these are the same persons who intend to obtain loan on the basis of the documents pertaining to your land. On hearing this, the above persons who were sitting in the bank with the manager, tried to flee but 2 persons were forcibly apprehended by them but 2 other persons managed to flee from the bank. The apprehended persons disclosed their names as Vinod Jaiswal and Thakurji, who threatened them with dire consequences. The apprehended persons as well as the persons who fled from the bank, were trying to obtain loan on the basis of fraudulent documents of their land. All the above documents relating to the land as well as the fraudulent documents are in the possession of the manager of the bank.

3. The apprehended persons were taken to the police station Railway Road, Meerut on 26.9.2007 and thereafter, an FIR was registered on 26.9.2007 at 17:45 hours being Case crime No. 200 of 2007 under Section 420, 467, 468, 471,506 IPC at police station Railway Road, Meerut in which after investigation chargesheet has been submitted against Smt.Aarti Jaiswal, Ritesh Jaiswal and Vikram Asthana under Section 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC on which cognizance has been taken on 13.6.2008 by the Judicial Magistrate 2nd, Meerut.

4. Learned counsel for the accused/applicant submitted that prima-facie even if all the allegations levelled against the applicant in the 1st information report are taken to be true, even then no case is made out against the applicant. The applicant is alleged to be the guarantor of the proposed loan which was to be obtained by his parents Vinod Jaiswal and Aarti Jaiswal. He submitted that the applicant is a young man of 24 years who has got nothing to do in the entire transaction as he runs his own business and has no criminal history. The FIR was registered only against 2 persons namely Vinod Jaiswal, Thakurji and against 2 unknown persons. The applicant is not named in the FIR and his name appeared in the statement of Ajay Kumar Saini, Uttam Kumar Saini, Amit Kumar Saini, Ramesh Saini who have stated that they came to know that the applicant and his mother Smt. Aarti Jaiswal are also involved in conspiracy along with Vikram Asthana, except this, there is no other evidence against the applicant.

5. It was further submitted by the learned counsel that from the statements of above witnesses it is apparent that no active role or part has been played by the applicant. Moreover, there is no whisper of source of knowledge, as for participation of applicant, as such no case is made out and the chargesheet is liable to be quashed.

6. It was further submitted that one Mool Chand, was the owner of the disputed land, who on 20.6.2007 executed a registered power-of-attorney in favour of Vikram Asthana, who subsequently entered into an agreement to sell with Smt.Aarti Jaiswal on 06.9.2007 and an advance of ₹ 50,000/- was paid by her. It was further submitted that a valuation report dated 6.8.2007 as well as certificate of title dated 14.8.2007 was also given by the advocate of the bank relating to property in dispute.

7. It was further submitted that the applicant is wholly innocent, since the agreement was entered by Vinod Jaiswal with Vikram Asthana, who was the holder of power-of-attorney, as such cheating, if any, was done by Vikram Asthana and not by the applicant, as such, the chargesheet as well as criminal proceedings in the court below are abuse of process of law, hence liable to be quashed.

8. It was further submitted that the action of the accused/applicant had all through been bona fide. On 14.8.2007 the applicant obtained the certificate of title, which was given by concerned advocate, after verifying the documents and obtaining such certificate from sub-registrar Meerut, which stated that Vinod Jaiswal, the co-accused shall acquire, an absolute, clear and marketable title over the property. It was further certified that the title deeds were genuine and a valid mortgage could be created, which would be enforceable.

9. It was further submitted that the co-accused bonafidely believed the version of power-of-attorney holder Vikram Asthana that he possesses a genuine power-of-attorney. The decision to take loan was arrived at after obtaining the opinion of lawyer regarding equitable mortgage. In the legal opinion, it was clearly stated that khasra number 162m, situated at village Pilna, Sofipur, Pargana tehsil and District Meerut was owned by Mool Chand,Natthu and Sohanlal. Natthu died leaving behind his sons namely Dhan Singh, Tilak Ram, Dharmveer Singh, Rajveer, Vinod, Mohanveer, and their names were mutated in the revenue record. Thereafter, a house was constructed, which came in the share of Mool Chand, who executed the power-of-attorney in favour of Vikram Asthana.

10. It was further submitted by the learned counsel that the applicant was in bona fide belief regarding the correctness of all the documents and had no criminal intention to defraud the bank. It was further submitted that since the bank has not advanced any loan to any person hence no question of giving guarantee arises. The applicant had no role in preparation of the power-of-attorney or any of the documents.

11. It was further submitted that the arrest of the applicant was stayed during investigation by this Court in Criminal Miscellaneous Writ Petition No. 988 of 2008 vide order dated 5.2.2008. With these submissions it was prayed that the application be allowed and the criminal proceeding pending against the applicant be quashed. In support of his submission learned counsel has relied upon the following case law:-

(i)Sheila Sebastian vs. R.Jawaharaj and anr. (2018) 7 SCC 581
(ii)Naresh Aneja@ Naresh Kumar Aneja vs. State of U.P. and anr. (2025) 2 SCC 604
(iii)Manchu Mohan Babu vs. State of A.P. and anr. 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1573

12. Service on 1st informant/respondent No. 2 is sufficient and his counter affidavit is also on record, but none is present to argue the case on his behalf.

13. The counter affidavit of respondent No. 2 mentions that during the investigation bank authority supplied some documentary evidence to the investigating officer which are part of the case diary in which there are 2 application for loan and in 1st application, applicant mentions his name as applicant and puts his signature over it and in the 2nd application he mentions his name as guarantor and puts his signature over it and it is also relevant that aforesaid application for loan was applied/submitted on the basis of forged document. It was further stated that Sohanlal has died on 17.01.1990, Natthu Singh has died on 01.08.1999 and Moolchand Saini has died in the year 1990 and after their death, property was owned by their heirs, but in the year 2007 applicant and other 2 accused persons prepared forged documents only for the purpose of obtaining loan and grabbing the property from dead persons and also prepared forged compromise and affidavit by putting forged signatures of aforesaid dead persons and some other persons, which is clear from the perusal of aforesaid documents. It was further stated that copies of alleged power-of-attorney and agreement to sell has already been filed by the applicant along with his affidavit for kind perusal of this Court. The photocopies of the death certificates of Sohanlal, Natthu Singh and Moolchand Saini and the alleged agreement to sell were also filed by the respondent.

14. It was admitted by the respondent in his counter affidavit that the alleged certificate given by advocate was also based upon forged documents which was also produced before him by the applicant and other co-accused therefore, from this certificate also bonafide intention of accused persons is not proved but it shows their malafide intention. It was also stated that from the investigation it is clear that the applicant and other co-accused persons prepared forged documents in the name of dead persons and applied for loan and specific evidence is available against applicant also, hence primafacie offence is made out against applicant and investigating officer has rightly submitted chargesheet in this case and learned Magistrate has also rightly taken cognizance thereon. It was further stated that no ground is made out for quashing the chargesheet and hence, the application of the applicant is liable to be dismissed and the interim order dated 3.3.2009 is liable to be vacated.

15. On behalf of State of Uttar Pradesh, counter affidavit of Shri S.D.Sharma, Sub Inspector, police Station Railway Road, Meerut has been filed which opposes the prayer of the applicant for quashing of the chargesheet in the criminal case on the ground that the applicant can raise his grievance before the trial court at the time of framing of the charges.

16. A rejoinder affidavit has also been filed by the applicant.

17. I have heard the learned counsel for the applicant, AGA and perused the documents on record.

Statement of witnesses

18. As per the statement of witness Naresh Kumar Saini, Rajbeer Singh, Ajay Kumar, Uttam Kumar Saini, Amit Kumar Saini given to the investigating officer under Section 161 of the CrPC, the accused persons were trying to obtain loan on their land by getting prepared fraudulent documents in the name of Moolchand Saini, which were deposited with the Branch manager, whereas Moolchand had already died in the year 1990.

19. As per the statement of witness Tilakram, Mohanveer,Vinod Kumar, Ramesh Saini, Tejkaran Saini,Umesh Saini under Section 161 of the CrPC their predecessors Natthu Singh, Moolchand and Sohanlal were real brothers, who have died around the year 1990, who were the owners of the agricultural land bearing Gata number 161/1,161/2,162m,164/1,164/2,163/1 situated in village Sofipur, and after their(predecessors) demise, the land came into their and their cousin brothers share and some portion of the land of the above Gata and 165/1,178m also came to the share of their relative Manoj Kumar and Bhela Devi. On 26.9.2007 the Branch manager of the State Bank of Patiala, Railway Road, Meerut city and the field officers of the bank came to them and inquired whether they are obtaining loan on the basis of documents belonging to Moolchand, on which after inquiring from one another, they told the Branch manager that they have not moved any such application for obtaining loan. They further gave to the Branch manager a notarised affidavit executed on ₹ 10/- stamp paper that they have neither applied to the bank for any such loan nor they are guarantor in it. On getting information on 26.9.2007 at about 4:15 PM on the mobile phone of Naresh Kumar Saini from the bank, that the persons who are intending to take loan of ₹ 10 lakhs on their land on the basis of forged documents are present in the bank, they along with others went to the bank, where 2 persons were apprehended after applying some force at about 5:15 PM, who were taken to the police station Railway Road, Meerut city and the case was also registered. The documents filed by the accused persons as well as the affidavit given by them, could be obtained from the bank. They further stated that the accused persons have impersonated themselves to be deceased Moolchand and they were illegally trying to take loan on their land on the basis of forged documents.

20. Pinada Jagdish the Asst manager working at State Bank of Patiala, Railway Road, Meerut city branch in his statement to the I.O. disclosed that he received an application of Vinod Jaiswal, Smt. Aarti Jaiswal and Ritesh Jaiswal on 2.8.2007 for a loan of ₹ 10 lakhs for purchase of a plot. On 11.8.2007 Vinod Jaiswal came to bank and requested to accept Smt.Aarti Jaiswal as borrower and Ritesh Jaiswal as guarantor for the said loan and submitted another application for loan. She was asked to produce all the necessary documents regarding the loan as per the bank norms, such as - their identity proof, income tax and documents related to property to be purchased. The applicants and guarantor submitted their documents such as - PAN card, election card, driving licence of Ritesh Jaiswal , income tax return, a mutual settlement by all others in favour of Moolchand that the land has come in his share and he can enter into an agreement for sale of such property, a certificate issued by Meerut Development Authority regarding land use dated 13.9.2007, an affidavit dated 19.9.2007 by legal heirs of Natthu and Sohanlal in favour of Moolchand, a power-of-attorney executed by Moolchand in favour of Vikram Asthana dated 23.6.2007, an agreement to sell dated 6.9.2007 executed by Vikram Asthana power-of-attorney holder of Moolchand in favour of Smt.Aarti Jaiswal for a consideration of ₹ 12.50 lakhs, an affidavit from Smt. Aarti Jaiswal regarding the property ownership dated 14.9.2007. On 7.9.2007, he along with another Assistant Manager Yoginder Singh Negi, visited the residence and the site of property to be purchased by the applicant as shown by Vinod Jaiswal, for making independent discreet enquiries regarding the seller and purchaser. On 24.9.2007 he along with Yogendra Singh Negi and the Branch manager Mukesh Kumar Sharma again visited the site of the property to be purchased and met the legal heirs of late Natthu ,who disclosed that Moolchand and Sohanlal have expired long ago. They also confirmed of neither having entered into any agreement with anybody nor giving any affidavit in this regard to anybody. On 26.9.2007 he received an affidavit from legal heirs of late Natthu regarding the facts narrated to him. On 26.9.2007 at around 4 PM Vinod Jaiswal came with a person introducing him as Moolchand but on enquiry the so-called Moolchand, failed to give satisfactory reply regarding his identity as Moolchand. Meanwhile legal heirs of late Natthu reached the bank, who were asked to identify the alleged Moolchand. Seeing the gravity of the situation Vinod Jaiswal and so-called Moolchand escaped from banks premises.

21. Mukesh Kumar, Branch manager, State Bank of Patiala, Meerut city in his statement to the I.O. disclosed that on 07.9.2007 he had sent his Assistant Manager Pinara Jagdish and Yogendra Singh Negi to conduct enquiry on the loan application moved by Vinod Jaiswal and Smt.Aarti Jaiswal, seeking loan of ₹ 10 lakhs for inquiring the seller and purchaser of the land. He was not satisfied with the documents submitted by Vinod Jaiswal for obtaining the loan ,hence he along with Assistant Manager Pinara Jagdish and Yogendra Singh Negi went to the site of land on 24.9.2007 for making enquiries and then he came to know that in reality the land belonged to late Natthu, Moolchand and Sohanlal Saini, who had died around the year 1990, and now the land had devolved to their children namely Dhan Singh and others. He further stated that regarding the documents submitted by Vinod Jaiswal with the bank, he was informed that the legal heirs of the deceased have neither sold the land nor had executed any power-of-attorney, in favour of any person. The legal heirs also disclosed that they have not moved any application for obtaining loan. After knowing the reality, he directed Vinod Jaiswal to come to the bank along with Moolchand and the legal heirs of Natthu. On 26.9.2007 he obtained affidavit of the legal heirs of late Moolchand and Natthu namely Dhan Singh, Mohanveer Singh, Tilakram, Rajveer, Vinod and others. On 26.9.2007 at about 4 PM Vinod Jaiswal came along with Moolchand and introduced another person, as Moolchand. On enquiry, the alleged Moolchand could not satisfactorily give answers to the querries, who turned out to be forged Moolchand. At about 4:45 PM Dhan Singh and others arrived at the bank. He disclosed to them that these are the persons who want to take loan on your land. On seeing them, Vinod Jaiswal and the alleged Moolchand(in reality Thakurji) escaped from the bank but were apprehended and assaulted by Dhan Singh and others, taken to the police station, where a case was registered against them. Vinod Jaiswal and others have tried to fraudulently take loan of ₹ 10 lakhs from the bank by fraudulently preparing documents of land belonging to some other person.

Documentary evidence on record

22. The investigating officer has also collected the power of attorney(revocable) executed by Moolchand in favour of Vikram Asthana regarding the house situated in an area of 251.61 square yard = 211.21 square metre, in khasra number 162 village Peelna,Sofipur Pargana tehsil and District Meerut, on 20.6.2007. The power-of-attorney gives right to Vikram Asthana to sell the house to anyone, which was subsequently registered in the office of sub-registrar tehsil Khekhra, District Baghpat on 23.6.2007.

23. The unregistered/notorized agreement to sell dated 6.9.2007 executed by power-of-attorney holder Vikram Asthana in favour of Smt.Aarti Jaiswal has also been collected by the investigating officer which discloses that the above immovable property situated in khasra number 162m was agreed to be sold by Vikram Asthana to Smt.Aarti Jaiswal for a consideration of ₹ 12.50 lakhs and an earnest money of ₹ 50,000/- was also received by Vikram Asthana in cash. It was agreed between the parties that within the next 3 months, the sale deed of the disputed land would be executed in favour of the buyer after receiving the balance sale consideration.

24. It is also apparent from the valuation report that the immovable property proposed to be purchased by Smt.Aarti Jaiswal was conservatively valued by the registered valuer Satyaprakash Bansal, after inspecting the property, vide his report dated 6.8.2007, at ₹ 24.08 lakhs.

25. According to the prosecution, an affidavit was submitted before the State Bank of Patiala, Railway Road Branch, Meerut city disclosing that on 21.6.2007 a family settlement took place between Sohanlal s/o Chetram, the sons of late Natthu namely Dhan Singh, Tilakram, Dharamveer Singh, Rajveer, Vinod, Mohanveer and Moolchand s/o Chetram according to which, the disputed immovable property came to the share and possession of Moolchand, regarding which, others do not have any objection if it is sold. This affidavit has neither been signed by the applicant nor his parents. It bears the signature of Sohanlal and Moolchand, who had died way back in the year 1990.

26. The certificate of title report submitted by Shri Ashutosh Garga, Advocate dated 14.8.2007 to the Branch manager, State Bank of Patiala, Meerut discloses that the records of title of the disputed property were examined by him. A search certificate was also obtained from the office of sub-registrar, Meerut. The report mentions that if mortgage is created, it will be available to the bank for the liability of the intended borrowers Vinod Jaiswal and Smt.Aarti Jaiswal, who shall acquire absolute, alienable and marketable title in respect thereof in case either the vendor Moolchand or his power-of-attorney holder Vikram Asthana executes the sale deed in favour of the borrowers/intended mortgagors.The report specifically states:-

"I certify that aforesaid borrowers Shri Vinod Jaiswal and Smt.Aarti Jaiswal shall acquire an absolute, clear and marketable title over the schedule property on execution of the sale deed by vendor. I further certify that the above title deeds are genuine and a valid mortgage can be created and the said mortgage would be enforceable."

27. It is pertinent to mention here that the above advocate Shri Ashutosh Garga gave his report dated 14.8.2007 after perusing the following documents:-

(i) Original registered power-of-attorney dated 23.6.2007, registered in the office of sub-registrar Khekhra, District Baghpat.

(ii) Certified extract of khasra and khatauni of Khata khatauni no. 00075, situated at village Pilna,Sofipur, Pargana tehsil and District Meerut.

(iii) Original memorandum of family settlement dated 21.6.2007 in respect of the property to be mortgaged with the bank.

(iv) Agreement to sell dated 9.8.2007 entered into in between Vikram Asthana for and on behalf of Moolchand in favour of borrowers.

(v) Original sale deed to be executed by Moolchand in favour of Vinod Jaiswal and Smt.Aarti Jaiswal.

28. The report of Shri Ashutosh Garga, Advocate further discloses that the disputed property was situated in khasra number 162m, situated at village Pilna,Sofipur, Pargana tehsil and District Meerut, which was originally owned by Moolchand, Natthu and Sohanlal. Natthu had died leaving behind his sons namely Dhan Singh, Tilakram, Dharamveer Singh, Mohanveer Singh, Rajveer, Vinod, whose names had been duly mutated in the revenue records in place of late Natthu. Thereafter, the house was constructed in the said khasra and in the family settlement, the house to be mortgaged with the bank came into the share of Moolchand, who had executed a power-of-attorney in favour of Vikram Asthana.

Analysis of case law

29. The Apex Court in the case of Sheila Sebastian (supra) while interpreting provisions of Section 463 and 464 of the IPC, has held as under:-

"19. A close scrutiny of the aforesaid provisions makes it clear that, Section 463 defines the offence of forgery, while Section 464 substantiates the same by providing an answer as to when a false document could be said to have been made for the purpose of committing an offence of forgery under Section 463 IPC. Therefore, we can safely deduce that Section 464 defines one of the ingredients of forgery i.e. making of a false document. Further, Section 465 provides punishment for the commission of the offence of forgery. In order to sustain a conviction under Section 465, first it has to be proved that forgery was committed under Section 463, implying that ingredients under Section 464 should also be satisfied. Therefore unless and until ingredients under Section 463 are satisfied a person cannot be convicted under Section 465 by solely relying on the ingredients of Section 464, as the offence of forgery would remain incomplete.

20. The key to unfold the present dispute lies in understanding Explanation 2 as given in Section 464 IPC. As Collin, J., puts it precisely in Dickins v. Gill [(1896) 2 QB 310 (DC)], a case dealing with the possession and making of fictitious stamp wherein he stated that "to make", in itself involves conscious act on the part of the maker. Therefore, an offence of forgery cannot lie against a person who has not created it or signed it.

21. It is observed in Mohd. Ibrahim v. State of Bihar [(2009) 8 SCC 751 : (2009) 3 SCC (Cri) 929] that: (SCC p. 756, para 14)

"14. .... a person is said to have made a "false document", if

(i) he made or executed a document claiming to be someone else or authorised by someone else; or

(ii) he altered or tampered a document; or

(iii) he obtained a document by practising deception, or from a person not in control of his senses."

22. In Mohd. Ibrahim, this Court had the occasion to examine forgery of a document purporting to be a valuable security (Section 467 IPC) and using of forged document as genuine (Section 471 IPC). While considering the basic ingredients of both the offences, this Court observed that to attract the offence of forgery as defined under Section 463 IPC depends upon creation of a document as defined under Section 464 IPC. It is further observed that mere execution of a sale deed by claiming that property being sold was executant's property, did not amount to commission of offences punishable under Sections 467 and 471 IPC even if title of property did not vest in the executant.

23. The Court in Mohd. Ibrahim observed that: (SCC p. 757, paras 16-17)

"16. .... There is a fundamental difference between a person executing a sale deed claiming that the property conveyed is his property, and a person executing a sale deed by impersonating the owner or falsely claiming to be authorised or empowered by the owner, to execute the deed on owner's behalf. When a person executes a document conveying a property describing it as his, there are two possibilities. The first is that he bona fide believes that the property actually belongs to him. The second is that he may be dishonestly or fraudulently claiming it to be his even though he knows that it is not his property. But to fall under first category of "false documents", it is not sufficient that a document has been made or executed dishonestly or fraudulently. There is a further requirement that it should have been made with the intention of causing it to be believed that such document was made or executed by, or by the authority of a person, by whom or by whose authority he knows that it was not made or executed.

17. When a document is executed by a person claiming a property which is not his, he is not claiming that he is someone else nor is he claiming that he is authorised by someone else. Therefore, execution of such document (purporting to convey some property of which he is not the owner) is not execution of a false document as defined under Section 464 of the Code. If what is executed is not a false document, there is no forgery. If there is no forgery, then neither Section 467 nor Section 471 of the Code are attracted."

24. In Mir Nagvi Askari v. CBI [(2009) 15 SCC 643 : (2010) 2 SCC (Cri) 718] , this Court, after analysing the facts of that case, came to observe as follows: (SCC p. 687, para 164)

"164. A person is said to make a false document or record if he satisfies one of the three conditions as noticed hereinbefore and provided for under the said section. The first condition being that the document has been falsified with the intention of causing it to be believed that such document has been made by a person, by whom the person falsifying the document knows that it was not made. Clearly the documents in question in the present case, even if it be assumed to have been made dishonestly or fraudulently, had not been made with the intention of causing it to be believed that they were made by or under the authority of someone else. The second criteria of the section deals with a case where a person without lawful authority alters a document after it has been made. There has been no allegation of alteration of the voucher in question after they have been made. Therefore, in our opinion the second criteria of the said section is also not applicable to the present case. The third and final condition of Section 464 deals with a document, signed by a person who due to his mental capacity does not know the contents of the documents which were made i.e. because of intoxication or unsoundness of mind, etc. Such is also not the case before us. Indisputably therefore the accused before us could not have been convicted with the making of a false document."

25. Keeping in view the strict interpretation of penal statute i.e. referring to rule of interpretation wherein natural inferences are preferred, we observe that a charge of forgery cannot be imposed on a person who is not the maker of the same. As held in plethora of cases, making of a document is different than causing it to be made. As Explanation 2 to Section 464 further clarifies that, for constituting an offence under Section 464 it is imperative that a false document is made and the accused person is the maker of the same, otherwise the accused person is not liable for the offence of forgery.″

30. The Apex Court in the case of Vishal Noble Singh vs. State of U.P. and Another 2024 SCC OnLine SC 1680, while discussing the power of the High Court under Section 482 CrPC, has held as under:-

"11. In this regard, reliance was placed on the judgment of this Court in State of Haryana v. Bhajan Lal [1992 Supp (1) SCC 335 : 1992 SCC (Cri) 426] ("Bhajan Lal") with particular reference to para 102 therein and sub-paras (1), (3), (5) and (7), which read as under: (SCC pp. 578-79)

"102. ... (1) Where the allegations made in the first information report or the complaint, even if they are taken at their face value and accepted in their entirety do not prima facie constitute any offence or make out a case against the accused.

(3) Where the uncontroverted allegations made in the FIR or complaint and the evidence collected in support of the same do not disclose the commission of any offence and make out a case against the accused.

***

(5) Where the allegations made in the FIR or complaint are so absurd and inherently improbable on the basis of which no prudent person can ever reach a just conclusion that there is sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused.

(7) Where a criminal proceeding is manifestly attended with mala fide and/or where the proceeding is maliciously instituted with an ulterior motive for wreaking vengeance on the accused and with a view to spite him due to private and personal grudge.

19. In this regard, our attention was drawn to paras 42-44 and 46 of Inder Mohan Goswami v. State of Uttaranchal [(2007) 12 SCC 1 : (2008) 1 SCC (Cri) 259], dealing with Sections 420 and 467IPC, which are extracted hereunder with regard to Section 420IPC, it was observed thus:

"42. On a reading of the aforesaid section, it is manifest that in the definition there are two separate classes of acts which the person deceived may be induced to do. In the first class of acts he may be induced fraudulently or dishonestly to deliver property to any person. The second class of acts is the doing or omitting to do anything which the person deceived would not do or omit to do if he were not so deceived. In the first class of cases, the inducing must be fraudulent or dishonest. In the second class of acts, the inducing must be intentional but need not be fraudulent or dishonest. Therefore, it is the intention which is the gist of the offence. To hold a person guilty of cheating it is necessary to show that he had a fraudulent or dishonest intention at the time of making the promise. From his mere failure to subsequently keep a promise, one cannot presume that he all along had a culpable intention to break the promise from the beginning.

43. We shall now deal with the ingredients of Section 467IPC. ....

44. The following ingredients are essential for commission of the offence under Section 467IPC:

1. the document in question so forged;

2. the accused who forged it;

3. the document is one of the kinds enumerated in the aforementioned section.

46. The court must ensure that criminal prosecution is not used as an instrument of harassment or for seeking private vendetta or with an ulterior motive to pressurise the accused. On analysis of the aforementioned cases, we are of the opinion that it is neither possible nor desirable to lay down an inflexible rule that would govern the exercise of inherent jurisdiction. Inherent jurisdiction of the High Courts under Section 482CrPC though wide has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when it is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the statute itself and in the aforementioned cases. In view of the settled legal position, the impugned judgment cannot be sustained."

20. On a careful consideration of the aforementioned judicial dicta, we find that none of the offences alleged against the appellant-accused herein are made out. In fact, we find that the allegations of criminal intent and other allegations against the appellant-accused herein have been made with a mala fide intent and therefore, the judgment of this Court in Bhajan Lal and particularly sub-paras (1), (3), (5) and (7) of para 102, extracted above, squarely apply to the facts of these cases. It is neither expedient nor in the interest of justice to permit the present prosecution to continue.

21. This Court, in Madhavrao Jiwajirao Scindia v. Sambhajirao Chandrojirao Angre [(1988) 1 SCC 692 : 1988 SCC (Cri) 234] , reasoned that the criminal process cannot be utilised for any oblique purpose and held that while entertaining an application for quashing an FIR at the initial stage, the test to be applied is whether the uncontroverted allegations prima facie establish the offence. This Court also concluded that the court should quash those criminal cases where the chances of an ultimate conviction are bleak and no useful purpose is likely to be served by continuation of a criminal prosecution. The aforesaid observations squarely apply to this case.

22. We find that in recent years the machinery of criminal justice is being misused by certain persons for their vested interests and for achieving their oblique motives and agenda. Courts have therefore to be vigilant against such tendencies and ensure that acts of omission and commission having an adverse impact on the fabric of our society must be nipped in the bud."

31. The Apex Court in the case of Mariam Fasihuddin and Another vs. State By Adugodi Police Station and Another (2024) 11 SCC 733 while interpreting the provisions under Section 415,420,468 and 471 IPC, has held as under:-

"21. Section 420IPC provides that whoever cheats and thereby dishonestly induces the person deceived to deliver any property to any person, or to make, alter or destroy, the whole or any part of valuable security, or anything, which is signed or sealed, and which is capable of being converted into a valuable security, shall be liable to be punished for a term which may extend to seven years and shall also be liable to fine. Further, Section 415IPC distinctly defines the term "cheating". The provision elucidates that an act marked by fraudulent or dishonest intentions will be categorised as "cheating" if it is intended to induce the person so deceived to deliver any property to any person, or to consent that any person shall retain any property, causing damage or harm to that person.

22. It is thus paramount that in order to attract the provisions of Section 420IPC, the prosecution has to not only prove that the accused has cheated someone but also that by doing so, he has dishonestly induced the person who is cheated to deliver property. There are, thus, three components of this offence i.e. (i) the deception of any person, (ii) fraudulently or dishonestly inducing that person to deliver any property to any person, and (iii) mens rea or dishonest intention of the accused at the time of making the inducement. There is no gainsaid that for the offence of cheating, fraudulent and dishonest intention must exist from the inception when the promise or representation was made.

23. It is well known that every deceitful act is not unlawful, just as not every unlawful act is deceitful. Some acts may be termed both as unlawful as well as deceitful, and such acts alone will fall within the purview of Section 420IPC. It must also be understood that a statement of fact is deemed "deceitful" when it is false, and is knowingly or recklessly made with the intent that it shall be acted upon by another person, resulting in damage or loss."Cheating" therefore, generally involves a preceding deceitful act that dishonestly induces a person to deliver any property or any part of a valuable security, prompting the induced person to undertake the said act, which they would not have done but for the inducement.

32. The offence of "forgery" under Section 468IPC postulates that whoever commits forgery, intending that the document or electronic document forged, shall be used for the purpose of cheating, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine. Whereas Section 471IPC states that whoever fraudulently or dishonestly uses as genuine any documents which he knows or has reason to believe it to be a forged document, shall be punished in the same manner as if he had forged such document.

33. There are two primary components that need to be fulfilled in order to establish the offence of "forgery", namely: (i) that the accused has fabricated an instrument; and (ii) it was done with the intention that the forged document would be used for the purpose of cheating. Simply put, the offence of forgery requires the preparation of a false document with the dishonest intention of causing damage or injury."

Conclusion of this Court

32. It is evident from the above evidence collected by the investigating officer that the disputed property originally belonged to Moolchand, Natthu Singh and Sohanlal. Natthu Singh and Sohanlal died on 01.8.1999 and 17.1.1990 respectively. Moolchand also died around the year 1990. Although his death certificate is not on record but from the oral evidence of the prosecution witnesses, it is evident that he died sometime around the year 1990. It is also evident that the parents of the accused/applicant namely Vinod Jaiswal and Smt.Aarti Jaiswal believed the documents of the disputed property shown to them by co-accused Vikram Asthana, who was the alleged power-of-attorney holder of Moolchand, the original power-of-attorney of Moolchand dated 20.6.2007, which was registered on 23.6.2007, was also produced before the parents of the applicant and after perusing the above documents they bonafidely believed that Vikram Asthana was the power-of-attorney holder of Moolchand, as such they negotiated to purchase the disputed property for consideration of ₹ 12.50 lakhs by entering into an agreement to sell dated 06.09.2007 with Vikram Asthana, and an amount of ₹ 50,000/- in cash was also paid as advance to Vikram Asthana, by them.

33. It is apparent that since Moolchand had died way back around the year 1990, his alleged power-of-attorney, which was registered on 23.6.2007 in favour of Vikram Asthana at sub-registrar office tehsil Khekhra District Baghpat, was a forged and fabricated document. There is no evidence on record which suggests that the applicant and his parents were involved in any manner whatsoever, in fraudulently fabricating or making of the above power-of-attorney in favour of Vikram Asthana. It is further apparent that the applicant and his parents were not going to be benefited in any manner whatsoever, by purchasing the disputed immovable property from the alleged power-of-attorney holder Vikram Asthana, who in reality was not the power-of-attorney holder of Moolchand, and by purchasing the property of Moolchand through power-of-attorney holder Vikram Asthana, no lawful title would have been devolved in the disputed property in favour of the parents of the applicant. No prudent person would have purchased the disputed property from Vikram Asthana knowing that he was not the valid power-of-attorney holder of Moolchand. It is apparent that the parents of the applicant were befooled by Vikram Asthana, since he was able to convince them, that he was having the authority to execute the sale deed of the disputed property in their favour and consequently, he can pass a valid title of the disputed property in their favour.

34. It is further apparent that the parents of the applicant approached the State Bank of Patiala, Railway Road Branch, Meerut city for obtaining a loan of ₹ 10 lakhs for purchasing the above immovable property, and the sale deed of the disputed property, which was proposed to be executed on behalf of Moolchand, by his power-of-attorney holder Vikram Asthana in favour of the borrowers, was to be equitably mortgaged in favour of the bank, for securing and obtaining the above loan. It is further apparent that the above bank also obtained legal opinion regarding the title of the disputed property from its lawyer Shri Ashutosh Garga, Advocate, who also, after perusing all the above documents, in his report dated 14.8.2007 opined that if the sale deed was executed by Vikram Asthana, being the power-of-attorney holder of Moolchand, then the borrowers i.e., the parents of the applicant will acquire absolute, alienable and marketable title in respect of the disputed property, which can be equitably mortgaged with the bank. The advocate has specifically certified the genuineness of the title deeds in his report. It is apparent that the advocate also believed the genuineness of the documents submitted to him by the bank/borrowers. Not an iota of doubt has been expressed by the advocate in his legal report. It is pertinent to mention here that if with all his experience and legal acumen the learned Advocate Shri Ashutosh Garga could not detect any illegality and fabrication in the title documents submitted by the borrowers/bank, then how it was possible for the layman borrowers to detect any such illegality or fabrication ?

35. From the above analysis it is apparent that both the borrowers as well as the learned counsel of the bank, were befooled in believing that the documents/title deeds of the disputed property was genuine and Vikram Asthana was the power-of-attorney holder of Moolchand, who was competent to execute the sale deed of the disputed property on behalf of Moolchand, in favour of the borrowers i.e., the parents of the applicant.

36. It is apparent that the applicant was only a guarantor for the proposed loan which was to be sanctioned to his parents by the State Bank of Patiala, Railway Road Branch, Meerut city. If the alleged sale deed would have been executed by Vikram Asthana in favour of the parents of the applicant, then neither any valid title would have devolved on his parents nor the applicant could have benefited from that transaction. In these circumstances, neither the parents of the applicant nor the applicant could be deemed to be involved in any criminal conspiracy. It is further apparent that no loan has been disbursed by the bank to the borrowers as yet, as such, there is no liability of the borrower/applicant. It is further apparent that there is no evidence on record which suggests that the alleged power-of-attorney in favour of Vikram Asthana, which is a registered document, and the certified copy of khatauni of the disputed property, have been forged and fabricated by the applicant and his parents, to their advantage, in order to create any title in the disputed property in their favour. It is also apparent that the alleged family settlement dated 21.6.2007, which was allegedly submitted before the bank for obtaining the loan, has not been signed by the applicant or his parents. It bears the signature of Sohanlal and Moolchand, who had died way back in the year 1990. It is apparent that the factum of death of Sohanlal and Moolchand was concealed by co-accused Vikram Asthana from the applicant and his parents, which is also evident from the legal opinion of Shri Ashutosh Garga, Advocate. Vikram Asthana only disclosed that Natthu Singh has died. It is also apparent that co-accused Thakurji, impersonated himself as Moolchand, who was arrested in the bank on 26.9.2007, whose forged identity was also believed by the parents of the applicant. It is not the case of the prosecution that the applicant impersonated himself as Moolchand, before the bank.

37. It is also apparent that Sohanlal and Moolchand had died way back in the year 1990, but the khatauni did not reflect this and even after 17 years, the names of their legal heirs were not mutated in the revenue record, which created an impression that Sohanlal and Moolchand are alive, which was also believed by the applicant, his parents and Shri Ashutosh Garga, the learned counsel of the bank. It is pertinent to mention here that in order to avoid fraud, it was the bounden duty of the legal heirs of the deceased to get their names mutated in the revenue records, and if, they had done so, then certainly, this fraud could not have been perpetrated.

38. It has been disclosed by the learned counsel for the applicant that during the pendency of the case, co-accused Vinod Jaiswal and Thakurji have died. If that is true, it may be verified by the trial court, in accordance with law.

39. It is apparent that the alleged offence of cheating and fabrication of fraudulent documents has been prima-facie committed by Vikram Asthana whereas, the applicant and his parents, were in reality befooled by Vikram Asthana. It is apparent that even if, all the prosecution allegations are presumed to be correct, even then, prima-facie no offence is made out against the applicant Ritesh Jaiswal. In view of the above facts, the continuation of the criminal proceedings against him would be an abuse of the process of law. No useful purpose would be served by either keeping the trial of the criminal case pending against him or ordering him to face the trial at this late stage, prolonging his agony, since the matter is already about 19 years old.

40. For the aforesaid reasons, the application preferred by the applicant under Section 482 CrPC is allowed. Consequently, the chargesheet in criminal Case No.1303/9 of 2008,case crime No. 200 of 2007 under Section 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC police Station Railway Road, Meerut city against the applicant Ritesh Jaiswal and all incidental proceedings arising thereto against the applicant, are hereby quashed.

41. Interim order of this Court dated 03.03.2009, stands vacated. The concerned trial court is directed to proceed with the trial against the remaining surviving accused, in accordance with law and conclude it, preferably within a duration of one year from the date a certified copy of this order is produced before it.

42. The case of co-accused Smt. Aarti Jaiswal stands on the same footing as her son/applicant Ritesh Jaiswal but since she is not a party to this proceeding, hence no relief can be granted to her. In these circumstances, liberty is granted to Smt. Aarti Jaiswal to move a discharge application before the trial court, if so advised, and if any such application is preferred by her, then it shall be disposed by the trial court on merits in accordance with law, in the light of the observations made in this order, within two months. Till the disposal of the discharge application, no coercive action shall be taken against her.

Ashish Khemka ...Applicant

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the order of Special Judge, P.C. Act, Ayodhya, rejecting the applicant's application u/s 233 Cr.P.C. for summoning Jetharam as a defence witness, was legally sustainable, and whether the trial court had correctly applied the three statutory grounds vexation, delay, or defeating the ends of justice as prescribed u/s 233(3) Cr.P.C. for refusing such an application.

Headnotes

Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - s. 233 - Application - Summoning of - Defence witness - Fair adjudication of trial - Rejected - Scope of - The applicant, a contractor, was allotted the work of digging, deepening and embankment of a nallah at Kursi Road, Lucknow, pursuant to being the successful low bidder, and received a sum of Rs. 40 lakh towards the said work - However, a preliminary inquiry revealed that the work of filling soil and embankment had not been executed in terms of the contract, leading to registration of an FIR alleging cheating, fraud and misappropriation of public exchequer against the applicant - The applicant's defence was that the soil-filling work had been given to Jetharam, who supplied the soil through tractor-trolley, and embankment was subsequently washed away due to heavy rain and flood, absolving him of any fault - Applicant also moved a representation before Superintendent of Police on 20.02.2026 highlighting Jetharam's role - After framing of charges and recording of his statement, the applicant produced defence witnesses - Thereafter filed an application dated 29.04.2026 seeking summons to Jetharam as a material defence witness - Application was rejected by trial court vide order dated 13.05.2026 on the ground that the relevance of Jetharam's testimony had not been substantiated, prompting the applicant to file instant case before High Court.

Held: It is apparent that while rejecting the request of applicant for calling the witness Jetharam, it has been observed that it has not been explained that how the oral evidence of said witness would be relevant evidence for trial - It seems that trial court has failed to test the application or request of accused for calling the witness, on three grounds as prescribed u/s 233(3) of CrPC - The application was moved for issuing process for calling the witness, who, in fact, supplied the soil for embankment and construction work - The allegation is that soil work was not got done and defence has been taken that due to heavy rain, the soil work was washed away and therefore, the statement of witness, seems to be relevant/important - Three defence witnesses have been produced by accused and thereafter, the application u/s 233 CrPC has been moved - The provision fills the gap, where the important defence witness has been left to be deposed, which would hamper the proper adjudication of matter - Trial court should always kept open its mind while considering an application u/s 233 of CrPC, that no defence witness should left to be examined/produced, which would effect the proper and fair adjudication of trial - Accordingly, impugned order set aside, matter remitted back to trial court for passing fresh order - Application allowed. [Paras 12 to 15, 17, 18] (E-13)

From the Judgment and Order dated 13.05.2026 passed by Special Judge, P.C. Act, Ayodhya in Special Sessions Trial No. 12 of 2026.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Applicant(s):
Prashant Kumar, Sarvesh Kumar Tiwari, Satish Gulati

Adv. for the Opposite Party(s):
G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Prashant Kumar assisted by Mr. Sarvesh Kumar Tiwari and Mr. Satish Gulati, learned counsel for the applicant and Mr. Nirmal Kumar Pandey and Mr. Susheel Kumar Pandey, learned AGA for the State.

2. Present application has been filed with the following prayers:-

"i. Quash/set aside the impugned order dated 13.05.2026 passed by the learned Special Judge, P.C. Act, Ayodhya in Special Sessions Trial No. 12 of 2026; (contained in ANNEXURE NO. 3)

ii. Direct the Learned Trial Court to issue summons to defence witness Shri Jetharam, resident of B-71, Raghuveer Nagar, Shikargarh, Jodhpur, Rajasthan-30001, in mis of the application dated 29.04.2026 moved under Section 223 Cr.P.C.; and"

3. As per the prosecution story, for digging and deepening gutter (nallah) at Kursi Road, Lucknow, the work was undertaken by the applicant showing false work of digging and embankment with soil and in lieu thereof, he received Rs.40 lakh and, thus, he has misappropriated the public Exchequer by committing cheat and fraud.

4. Submission of the learned counsel for the applicant is that the applicant is a contractor and after he was found the low bidder, the work of filling up soil and embankment were allocated to him. He next submitted that for filling up the soil, the applicant has given the said work to one Jetharam and Jetharam with the tractor and trolley had supplied the soil over there. He also submitted that a preliminary inquiry was conducted in a cursory manner and it was found that work of filling up soil and embankment have not been done as per the terms and conditions of the contract and, therefore, the FIR has been lodged wherein the applicant has been made an accused.

5. He argued that in fact, because of the heavy flood and rain, the soil was shifted and, therefore, the authority erroneously came to the conclusion that the work of embankment was not got done, though there is no fault on the part of the applicant. He further contends that after the charges are framed and the statement of the applicant under Section 313 CrPC is recorded, he produced the witnesses. He also submitted that since the applicant had already moved an application before the Superintendent of Police concerned for taking the evidence of Jetharam who supplied the soil, but the same was ignored and, therefore, at the stage of trial, he moved application under Section 233 of CrPC for calling and summoning the important witness Jetharam as a defence witness, which has been declined on an unfounded ground, which has been mentioned in the order impugned.

6. Adding his arguments, he submitted that deposition of the statement of Jetharam as a witness is one of the important material, which is essential for proper and fair adjudication of the matter. He added that the only reason for rejection of the application is that the applicant has failed to substantiate that how the statement of Jetharam is relevant in the matter, though fact remains that the crux of the allegation is that the soil, which is filled up to make the embankment, was not found over there and the soil was filled up/supplied by Jetharam. He contends that in the application, specific plea was taken, which has been ignored and that has been rejected. He submitted that the accused has right to move such application and since the stage of defence starts from the deposition of the statement of accused under Section 313 CrPC, it is the important stage for an accused to file such application. He argued that the application has been rejected in a very cursory manner and, therefore, the same is liable to be set aside.

7. On the other hand, learned counsel for the state has opposed the contention and submitted that while providing the list of defence witnesses, the name of Jetharam was not transcribed over there and after passing of certain period of time, at the subsequent stage , the application under Section 233 CrPC has been placed. He added that the reason has been assigned for rejection of the application under section 233, therefore, submission is that no interference is warranted.

8. Upon considering the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties and after perusal of the records, it emerges that the allegations against the applicant in the FIR is that being a contractor, he has not executed the soil work for embankment as was provided in the terms and conditions of the bid. The fact remains that after lodging of the FIR, the applicant moved an application to the Superintendent of Police on 20.2.2026 while mentioning in paragraph 14 of the said application that the soil was supplied by one Jetharam and, therefore, the statement of Jetharam is important to be recorded, thus, he may be summoned.

9. It is worth consideration that the provision of section 233(3) CrPC provides right to accused for making application for issue of process for compelling the attendance of witness or the production of any document and the same may be refused, in the event that if the same has been filed for the purpose of vexation, delay or defeating the ends of justice. For ready reference Section 233 CrPC is given as follows:-

"233. Entering upon defence.-(1) Where the accused is not acquitted under Section 232, he shall be called upon to enter on his defence and adduce any evidence he may have in support thereof.

(2) If the accused puts in any written statement, the Judge shall file it with the record.

(3) If the accused applies for the issue of any process for compelling the attendance of any witness or the production of any document or thing, the Judge shall issue such process unless he considers, for reasons to be recorded, that such application should be refused on the ground that it is made for the purpose of vexation or delay or for defeating the ends of justice."

10. Provision of Section 233 of CrPC has been given under Chapter XVIII i.e., regarding the trial before the Sessions Court, which is an inseparable provision of sessions trial. This provision can be invoked after prosecution evidence is complete and the accused is afforded an opportunity to depose the witnesses in its defence.

11. I have noticed that in the Code (CrPC), there are repeated power given to the trial court for issuing process but herein, the exclusive right has been given to the accused for making application for issuance of process, for attendance of any witness or production of any document or thing. On such application, the trial court will proceed and there are three exigencies/grounds particularly given, to consider such application for rejection of such request. The three grounds are that if such application is made for the purpose of vexation, delay or for defeating the ends of justice. Meaning thereby that the scope of rejection of application moved by the accused under above noted provision, is limited to three exigencies, mentioned as above.

12. While coming to the present case and having at glance over the order impugned dated 13.5.2026, it is apparent that while rejecting the request of the applicant for calling the witness Jetharam, it has been observed that it has not been explained that how the oral evidence of the said witness would be relevant evidence for the trial. It seems that learned trial court has failed to test the application or request of the accused for calling the witness, on three grounds as prescribed under section 233(3) of CrPC. There is no finding or any whisper in the order impugned that how there is vexation, delay or defeating would attract.

13. Apart from the above, it is also worth consideration that the application was moved for issuing process for calling the witness Jetharam, who, in fact, supplied the soil for embankment and construction work. The allegation is that soil work was not got done and the defence has been taken that due to heavy rain, the soil work was washed away and therefore,the statement of the witness, namely, Jetharam seems to be relevant/important.

14. It is apt to say here that Section 233 of Cr.P.C. in fact, has been envisaged taking due care and caution of the right of an accused. After the statement of an accused is recorded, the defence version starts and prior to that, there is no opportunity to the accused to raise any defence. In the case in hand, three defence witnesses have been produced by the accused and thereafter, the application under section 233 CrPC has been moved. In fact this provision fills the gap, where the important defence witness has been left to be deposed, which would hamper the proper adjudication of the matter.

15. This Court is of considered opinion that the trial court should always kept open its mind while considering an application under Section 233 of CrPC, that no defence witness should left to be examined/produced, which essentially would effect the proper and fair adjudication of the trial.

16. In view of the aforesaid submissions and discussions, this Court finds merit in the application moved by the applicant.

17. Consequently, the order impugned dated 13.5.2026, passed by the trial court, is hereby set aside.

18. The matter is remitted back to the trial court concerned to pass fresh order, considering the application of the applicant dated 29.4.2026, in the light of the observations made herein above.

19. The application stands allowed accordingly.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the order dated 26.9.2024, passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gonda, rejecting the applicant's discharge application filed u/s 239 CrPC, was a valid and sustainable order having been passed upon due application of judicial mind to the material on record, or whether the same was a mechanical, non-speaking order passed without properly considering the parameters governing discharge, thereby warranting interference by High Court in its inherent jurisdiction u/s 482 CrPC.

Headnotes

Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 419, 420, 467, 468, 471 and 474 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - ss. 173, 239, 313 - FIR- Discharge application - Rejected by trial court - Not considered ground - Non application of judicial mind - Duty of magistrate - Examine material available on record - Prima facie - Scope of - The instant application was preferred by applicant seeking quashing of entire proceedings of Case No. 5084/2020, arising out of Case Crime No. 385/2020, registered under various sections of IPC pending before Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gonda, which proceedings originated from a complaint lodged by one Anamika Shukla on 9.6.2020 alleging that her educational certificate had been fraudulently misused by certain persons to secure an appointment in Kasturba Gandhi Balika Vidyalaya, a post she had never actually served, and regarding which she had further informed the District Basic Education Officer, Gonda, of such misuse - Pursuant whereto, applicant, upon being charge-sheeted and summoned, moved an application for discharge on 30.5.2023, which was rejected by trial court on 26.9.2024 on the ground that truthfulness of facts urged by applicant could only be assessed upon evidence being led during trial, without any charges having been framed thereafter even till the filing of supplementary affidavit - Aggrieved whereby, applicant approached High Court and challenged the said order.

Held: It emerges from the impugned order that there is non-application of mind by Magistrate as he has not examined the material available before him with scrupulous measure to find out that whether the same discloses the presence of necessary ingredient to constitute the offence - The finding recorded reveals that the trial court had given his findings into two paragraphs - The first paragraph is narration of facts regarding the charge-sheets sent to trial court and order of cognizance including the summons, while in second paragraph it has been observed that after examining the evidentiary value of material, the court can reach to conclusion which, in fact, is impermissible under the law as Apex court, time and again, has reiterated that the material available before the trial court shall be looked into prima facie and evidentiary value of such evidence cannot be examined as the same would warrant proceeding of trial - Impugned order is unsustainable, thus, set aside - Matter remitted back to trial court concerned to pass fresh order on application of discharge - Accordingly, application allowed. 6. Submission of the learned counsel for the applicant is that the applicant is innocent and has been falsely implicated. She submits that the applicant moved an application under Section 239 of CrPC on 30.5.2023, which was heard by the learned trial court and in a cursory manner, without application of judicial mind, the order dated 26.9.2024 has been passed. She contends that the finding itself transpires that the trial court has not considered the discharge application in right perspective, as it has been held by the trial court that the truthfulness and genuineness of the facts will be considered after the evidence are furnished as the applicant/defence can furnish the evidence once the trial is committed. She argued that in such a way, the stage of discharge has been made redundant by the trial court. She also submits that after rejection of the discharge application on 26.9.2024, no further proceedings has been undertaken and even the charges have not been framed as yet, as is mentioned in paragraph 3 of the affidavit filed in support of the supplementary affidavit.

7. In addition, she argued there is no cogent evidence against the applicant regarding his involvement in commission of offence and it started from the very initial stage that is the stage of investigation. The things have been done in very negligent and lethargic manner. Concluding her arguments, she submits that since the order impugned dated 26.9.2024 has been passed without application of mind and without any finding given thereof, the same may be set aside.

8. Per contra, learned counsel for the State has opposed the contention aforesaid, but he has failed to controvert the fact regarding the non-speaking order passed by the trial court and adverse finding recorded in the order impugned.

9. Upon considering the submissions of the learned counsel for the parties and after perusal of records, it transpires that the applicant moved an application for discharge in the month of May 2023, which is considered and decided by the trial court in the month of September 2024.

10. Relevant portion of the order impugned, is quoted herein under:-

“"उन्मोचन प्रार्थना पत्र में अभियुक्त द्वारा जिन तथ्यों का उल्लेख किया गया है, उनकी सत्यता के सम्बन्ध में साक्ष्य के उपरान्त ही कोई निष्कर्ष दिया जा सकता है। अभी इस स्तर पर मात्र विवेचक द्वारा संकलित साक्ष्य का ही मूल्यांकन किया जाना है। विवेचक द्वारा संकलित साक्ष्य से अभियुक्त के विरुद्ध धारा-419,420,467,468,471,474 भा०दं०सं० का अपराध होना पाया गया है। 'इस स्तर पर अभियुक्त को उन्मोचित किये जाने का आंधार पर्याप्त नहीं है। अतएव अभियुक्त द्वारा प्रस्तुत उन्मोचन प्रार्थना पत्र स्वीकार किये जाने योग्य नहीं है। तदनुरूप निरस्त किये जानें योग्य है।"

11. From the perusal of the finding recorded by the trial court, it reveals that the trial court did not consider the ground raised by the applicant in the discharge application. The trial court on place of considering the material available before it, proceeded and observed that the facts mentioned in the discharge application would be considered after the evidences are produced before it.

12. The procedure for discharge has been prescribed under Section 239 of the CrPC, which is extracted herein under:-

"239. When accused shall be discharged.?If, upon considering the police report and the documents sent with it under Section 173 and making such examination, if any, of the accused as the Magistrate thinks necessary and after giving the prosecution and the accused an opportunity of being heard, the Magistrate considers the charge against the accused to be groundless, he shall discharge the accused, and record his reasons for so doing."

13. From bare reading of the above noted provision, it transpires that while considering the discharge of an accused, it is incumbent upon the Magistrate to consider the police report and the documents sent with it under Section 173 CrPC. It further provides that if the Magistrate thinks necessary, he can examine the accused. The consideration of police report and the documents sent with the police report are not mere formality but such Magistrate, while considering the discharge of an accused, will consider those materials and in case, it is found that the charges against the accused are groundless, such accused shall be discharged.

14. It is long settled law that the trial court while dealing with the application of discharge, would not act as a rubber stamp or post office rather he will substantially apply his judicial mind, upon the material, i.e., the police report and the documents sent along with it. In fact, the trial Judge will be empowered to discharge the accused without being influenced with the fact that the trial would end in conviction or acquittal.

It is discernible that there can be no strait jacket formula for consideration of discharge rather it depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case. The stage of discharge is very significant stage as trial starts after the discharge request is rejected and the stage of defence would come only when the statement of accused is recorded under Section 313 CrPC. In between the framing of charges to the stage of recording the statement of the accused under 313 CrPC, there is no say of the accused regarding his defence.

15. The scope of discharge as prescribed under section 227 of the CrPC (which is akin to Section 239 CrPC, pertaining to warrant cases), as is held in the case of State Vs. S. Selvi reported in (2018) 13 SCC 455, followed by Vikram Johar Vs. State of UP reported in (2019) 14 SCC 207, and subsequently considered by the Apex Court in the case of State of Bihar Vs. Ramesh Singh, reported in (1977) 4 SCC 39, wherein in paragraph 4, it has been held as under:-

4. …. Strong suspicion against the accused, if the matter remains in the region of suspicion, cannot take the place of proof of his guilt at the conclusion of the trial. But at the initial stage if there is a strong suspicion which leads the court to think that there is ground for presuming that the accused has committed an offence then it is not open to the court to say that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding against the accused. The presumption of the guilt of the accused which is to be drawn at the initial stage is not in the sense of the law governing the trial of criminal cases in France where the accused is presumed to be guilty unless the contrary is proved. But it is only for the purpose of deciding prima facie whether the court should proceed with the trial or not. If the evidence which the prosecutor proposes to adduce to prove the guilt of the accused even if fully accepted before it is challenged in cross-examination or rebutted by the defence evidence, if any, cannot show that the accused committed the offence, then there will be no sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial."

16. It has been observed by the Apex Court that the strong suspicion may not take place of proof, at the trial stage, but yet it is sufficient for the satisfaction of the trial judge in order to frame charge against the accused.

17. In the case of Union of India Vs. Prafulla Kumar Samal reported in (1979) 3 SCC 4, certain principles for consideration on discharge, has been enunciated, which are extracted as follows:-

"10. Thus, on a consideration of the authorities mentioned above, the following principles emerge:

(1) That the Judge while considering the question of framing the charges under Section 227 of the Code has the undoubted power to sift and weigh the evidence for the limited purpose of finding out whether or not a prima facie case against the accused has been made out.

(2) Where the materials placed before the Court disclose grave suspicion against the accused which has not been properly explained the Court will be fully justified in framing a charge and proceeding with the trial.

(3) The test to determine a prima facie case would naturally depend upon the facts of each case and it is difficult to lay down a rule of universal application. By and large however if two views are equally possible and the Judge is satisfied that the evidence produced before him while giving rise to some suspicion but not grave suspicion against the accused, he will be fully within his right to discharge the accused.

(4) That in exercising his jurisdiction under Section 227 of the Code the Judge which under the present Code is a senior and experienced court cannot act merely as a Post Office or a mouthpiece of the prosecution, but has to consider the broad probabilities of the case, the total effect of the evidence and the documents produced before the Court, any basic infirmities appearing in the case and so on. This however does not mean that the Judge should make a roving enquiry into the pros and cons of the matter and weigh the evidence as if he was conducting a trial."

18. While formulating the guidelines, it is held that while exercising power under section 227 of the CrPC, the trial court cannot act as mouthpiece or rubber stamp of the prosecution, but the broad probabilities and the cumulative effect of evidence and documents produced before such court shall be considered. In fact, the thin difference is that while considering such documents, the trial court shall know the limits that there will be no indulgence like a trial, but it is to prima facie look into the materials available, that whether those constitute the sufficient ground for proceeding with the trial or not.

19. It is trite that the evidentiary value of the materials placed by the prosecution cannot be entered into, at the stage of discharge, rather, prima facie consideration is permitted under the law. This view has been taken by the Apex Court in the case of State By Karnataka Lokayukta, Police Station Bengaluru Vs. M.R. Hiremath reported in (2019) 7 SCC 515, wherein in paragraph 25, it has been held as under:-

"25. The High Court ought to have been cognizant of the fact that the trial court was dealing with an application for discharge under the provisions of Section 239 CrPC. The parameters which govern the exercise of this jurisdiction have found expression in several decisions of this Court. It is a settled principle of law that at the stage of considering an application for discharge the court must proceed on the assumption that the material which has been brought on the record by the prosecution is true and evaluate the material in order to determine whether the facts emerging from the material, taken on its face value, disclose the existence of the ingredients necessary to constitute the offence. In State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan [State of T.N. v. N. Suresh Rajan, (2014) 11 SCC 709 : (2014) 3 SCC (Cri) 529 : (2014) 2 SCC (L&S) 721] , adverting to the earlier decisions on the subject, this Court held : (SCC pp. 721-22, para 29)

"29. ... At this stage, probative value of the materials has to be gone into and the court is not expected to go deep into the matter and hold that the materials would not warrant a conviction. In our opinion, what needs to be considered is whether there is a ground for presuming that the offence has been committed and not whether a ground for convicting the accused has been made out. To put it differently, if the court thinks that the accused might have committed the offence on the basis of the materials on record on its probative value, it can frame the charge; though for conviction, the court has to come to the conclusion that the accused has committed the offence. The law does not permit a mini trial at this stage."'

20. It emerges from the above noted observations that while dealing with discharge application, the court must determine whether the facts borne out from the material discloses existence of necessary contents to constitute the offence. This law has been reiterated in the recent judgment rendered in the case of Dr. Anand Rai Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh and another, reported in 2026 SCC Online SC 187. Paragraph 21 of the said judgment is extracted herein under:-

"21. Before parting with the matter, it is observed that at the stage of framing of charge or considering discharge, the Court is not dealing with an abstract legal exercise. It is dealing with real people, real anxieties, and the real weight of criminal prosecution. Judicial responsibility at this stage calls for care, balance, and an honest engagement with the facts on record. The power to frame a charge is not meant to be exercised by default or out of caution alone. When the material placed before the Court, taken at face value, does not disclose the ingredients of an offence, the law expects the Court to have the clarity and courage to say so and to keep such a case aside.

Discharge, in that sense, is not a technical indulgence but an essential safeguard. The Court must consciously distinguish between a genuine case that warrants a trial and one that rests only on suspicion or assumption or for that matter without any basis. To allow a matter to proceed despite the absence of a prima facie case is to expose a person to the strain, stigma, and uncertainty of criminal proceedings without legal necessity. Fidelity to the rule of law requires the Court to remember that the process itself can become the punishment if this responsibility is not exercised with care.

This responsibility weighs heaviest on Trial Courts, which are the first courts most people ever step into. For a litigant or an accused, the Trial Court is not just one level in a hierarchy. It represents the face of the judiciary itself. The sensitivity, fairness, and legal discipline shown at this stage shape how ordinary citizens understand justice. The impression a Trial Court creates, through its approach to facts and law, often becomes the impression people carry of the entire judicial system. That is why, at every stage and especially at the threshold, Trial Courts must remain alive to the human consequences of their decisions and to the trust that society places in them."

21. The view earlier taken by the Apex Court has been reiterated in the present matter and it has been held that discharge cannot be considered in a technical way, but the consideration has to go to the limit of the distinction between suspicion and assumption, groundlessness and material, which warrants the trial. It is apt to say here that the consideration of discharge application cannot be undertaken as a formality, but the material, which is available before the trial court, has actually been considered to reach the fine line distinction between the sufficient ground, which indicates prima facie insufficiency of leading the trial.

22. Now, coming to the present case, it emerges from the order impugned that there is non-application of mind by the Magistrate as he has not examined the material available before him with scrupulous measure to find out that whether the same discloses the presence of necessary ingredient to constitute the offence. The finding recorded reveals that the trial court had given his findings into two paragraphs. The first paragraph is narration of the facts regarding the charge-sheets sent to the trial court and the order of cognizance including the summons, while in the second paragraph it has been observed that after examining the evidentiary value of the material, the court can reach to the conclusion which, in fact, is impermissible under the law as the Apex court, time and again, has reiterated that the material available before the trial court shall be looked into prima facie and the evidentiary value of such evidence cannot be examined as the same would warrant proceeding of the trial.

23. In view of the abovenoted submissions and discussions, this Court finds that the order impugned herein, is unsustainable, consequently, the same is hereby set aside.

24. Eargo the matter is remitted back to the trial court concerned to pass fresh order on the application of discharge, within a period of eight weeks.

25. Present application stands allowed accordingly, at the admission stage.

Application U/S 482 No. 5373 of 2026

Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the trial court had erred in rejecting, without proper application of mind, the applicant's application u/s 311 Cr.P.C. seeking the summoning of P.W.1 (the victim's mother) and two experts of the BSA Office who had assisted in recording the mentally challenged victim's statement u/s 164 Cr.P.C., and consequently, whether the impugned order dated 15.05.2026 warranted interference in exercise of inherent jurisdiction of High Court u/s 482 Cr.P.C.

Headnotes

Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 376, 323, 506 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - ss. 161, 164, 311 - Rape - Mentally challenged victim - Statement recorded with assistance of experts - Experts not examined by prosecution - Summoning of material witness - At any stage of trial - Scope - The applicant, through the present application assailing the order dated 15.05.2026 passed by Additional Sessions Judge, FTC, Unnao, whereby his application dated 23.03.2026 for summoning P.W.1, namely Smt. Iddan (mother of victim), along with two experts, Ms. Kiran Shukla and Ms. Meenu Tiwari of BSA Office, before whom the statement of mentally challenged victim had been recorded came to be rejected - The applicant contended that although the First Information Report contained only an allegation of outraging modesty, the victim, in her subsequent statement recorded with assistance of said experts, improved upon her version by levelling, for the first time, an allegation of rape, thereby rendering the examination of said experts essential for a just adjudication of trial, which was then pending at the stage of arguments - The State opposed the application on the ground of belated filing, the statement of P.W.1 having been recorded on 01.08.2023 and application having been moved nearly three years thereafter - Further contended that since examination-in-chief of proposed witnesses had not been conducted, they could not be permitted to be cross-examined at that stage.

Held: The statement of mentally challenged victim was recorded with assistance of two experts, namely, Ms. Kiran Shukla and Ms. Meenu Tiwari, who, while making her statement made certain serious allegations, which were not narrated in First Information Report - Even the age and other descriptions have also been made with the help of experts, who assessed the statement of victim - The fact remains that the prosecution has failed to produce the material witnesses, though the statement of victim was recorded by Investigating Officer in their presence and with their assistance - The trial court, while passing the impugned order, has failed to record any finding regarding the irrelevance of witnesses - The only finding recorded is that since the examination-in-chief has not been conducted, therefore cross-examination cannot be permitted - Such a finding is erroneous and groundless as, if trial court reaches to the conclusion that examination of a witness is necessary, such witness can be summoned at any stage, prior to pronouncement of judgment - Therefore, there can be no legal bar of summoning the witnesses only because their examination-in-chief has not yet been conducted - The statements of experts constitute relevant evidence, particularly in view of fact that the victim introduced the allegation of rape for the first time, in her statement - Consequently, impugned order set aside - Matter remitted to trial court to decide the application afresh – Accordingly, application allowed. [Paras 10, 11, 19, 22 to 25] (E-13)

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Application u/s 482 No. - 5373 of 2026

From the Judgment and Order dated 15.05.2026 passed by Additional and Session Judge, FTC, Unnao in Case Crime No. 405 of 2022, arising out of Session Trial No. 1345 of 2022, P.S.- Gangaghat, District - Unnao.

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for the Applicant(s):
Rahul Kumar Singh
Adv. for the Opposite Party(s):
G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Shree Prakash Singh, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Rahul Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the applicant, Mr. Nirmal Kumar Pandey and Mr. Sushil Kumar Pandey, learned counsels for the State and perused the record.

2. Notice to opposite party no. 2 is hereby dispensed with.

3. The present application under Section 482 Cr.P.C. has been filed with the following main relief:-

"For the facts, reasons and circumstances mentioned in the accompanying affidavit, it is most respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble court may kindly be pleased to call the witnesses PW1 namely Smt Iddan as well as Kiran Shukla(I.D.) BSA Office and Menu Tiwari(I.D.) BSA Office and set aside the order dated 15.05.2026 passed by Additional and Session Judge, FTC, Unnao."

4. Submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that while passing the impugned order dated 15.05.2026, on an application moved on 23.03.2026, under Section 311 Cr.P.C., the request of the applicant for summoning P.W.1 (mother of the victim), as well as the two experts, before whom the statements of the victim were recorded, under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C., has been rejected, without proper application of mind.

5. He submits that the victim is mentally challenged and her statements were recorded with the assistance of the experts, namely, Ms. Kiran Shukla and Ms. Meenu Tiwar and the victim has improved upon her earlier version, by alleging that rape had been committed upon her, though such an allegation was not made in the First Information Report, wherein the allegation was only of outraging the modesty, therefore, the summoning/examination of the said experts are very much required for proper adjudication of the matter.

6. Further submission is that the case is at the stage of arguments and even the application, which was moved on 23.03.2026, was decided after two months, i.e., on 15.05.2026, therefore, there is no delay on the part of the applicant.

7. It is argued that without recording the statements of the experts, the trial court would not be able to reach the correct conclusion. He also submits that no sufficient reason has been assigned as to why the statements of the experts, before whom the statement of the mentally challenged victim was recorded, are not relevant for adjudication of the matter.

8. Concluding his arguments, he submits that the case of the applicant is covered with the ratio laid down in case of Natasha Singh versus Central Bureau of Investigation (State), reported in (2013) 5 SCC 741. Thus, submission is that the impugned order may be set aside.

9. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. has opposed the aforesaid submissions and argued that the applicant approached the trial court at the belated stage, as the statement of P.W.1 was recorded on 01.08.2023 and the application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. was filed after about three years. He further submits that since the examination-in-chief of the proposed witnesses has not been conducted, thus, they cannot be permitted to be cross-examined, at this stage.

10. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and after perusal of the records, it emerges that the statement of the mentally challenged victim was recorded with the assistance of two experts, namely, Ms. Kiran Shukla and Ms. Meenu Tiwari, who, while making her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C., made certain serious allegations, which were not narrated in the First Information Report. For the first time, the allegation of rape was levelled by the victim, against the applicant, in her statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. Even the age and other descriptions have also been made with the help of the experts, who assessed the statement of the victim.

11. The fact remains that the prosecution has failed to produce the material witnesses, namely, Ms. Kiran Shukla and Ms. Meenu Tiwari, though the statement of the victim was recorded by the Investigating Officer in their presence and with their assistance.

12. The provision of Section 311 of CrPC provides to summon the material witness and examine the person present. Section 311 of CrPC is quoted here-in-under:

"Section 311: Power to summon material witness, or examine person present

Any Court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding under this Code, summon any person as a witness, or examine any person in attendance, though not summoned as a witness, or recall and re-examine any person already examined; and the Court shall summon and examine or recall and re-examine any such person if his evidence appears to it to be essential to the just decision of the case."

13. A bare reading of the aforesaid provision indicates that 'the trial court may, at any stage of any inquiry, trial or other proceeding, summon any person as a witness'. This shows that before pronouncing the judgment, if the trial court reaches to the conclusion that for proper and just adjudication of the trial, examination of any witness is required, such witness may be summoned. The provision also mandates that such witness may be examined or re-examined, as the case may be.

14. This Court is conscious of the fact that before recording a finding of conviction against an accused, all relevant possibilities bearing upon the innocence of the accused, are required to be explored. In the present matter, two material witnesses have not been produced by the prosecution. The applicant moved an application in the month of March, 2026 for summoning those witnesses, which came to be decided after two months by the trial court.

15. This Court is also aware that an application under Section 311 Cr.P.C. can be refused to entertain, if it is filed only to cause delay in trial proceedings, but at the same time, the interest of the accused cannot be left to be jeopardize merely on unfounded presumption of delay.

16. Hon'ble Supreme Court, while dealing with the identical issue, has held that age of a case by itself cannot be decisive when a request is made for calling of a material witness for his examination, which is rendered in case of Manju Devi vs. State of Rajasthan and another, (2019) 6 SCC 203. Paragraph 12 and 13 of the judgment is referred herein:-

"12. The peculiar facts and circumstances of the case have either been ignored or have been cursorily dealt by the trial court with the observations that the effect of non-availability of the original post-mortem report would be considered at the time of the final disposal of the matter. In fact, the principal reason weighing with the trial court in declining the prayer for examination of the said witness had been that the case was pending since the year 2010. The High Court, on the other hand, chose not to exercise its powers under Section 482 CrPC, with the only observation that the discretion so exercised by the trial court was not to be interfered with.

13. Though it is expected that the trial of a sessions case should proceed with reasonable expedition and pendency of such a matter for about 8-9 years is not desirable but then, the length/duration of a case cannot displace the basic requirement of ensuring the just decision after taking all the necessary and material evidence on record. In other words, the age of a case, by itself, cannot be decisive of the matter when a prayer is made for examination of a material witness."

17. It has been observed by the Hon'ble Apex Court that the pendency of the length and duration of a case cannot come into the way for ensuring the justice for taking all necessary and material evidence and, therefore, it has been held that while dealing with the situation where a request for calling of a witness for examination is made, the same should not be ignored or dealt with cursorily.

18. In this regard, it is trite that the power vest in terms of Section 311 of CrPC, to the Court, to summon and examine or recall and re-examine any material witness at any point of time/stage, could not be curtailed merely because of any delay in filing the application for recall of such material witness as the uses of the words in Section 311 such as "any court", "at any stage", or "any inquiry or trial or other proceeding", "any person", and "any such person" apparently discernible that the provision itself expresses the widest possible term and there is no limit of the discretion of court in any way.

19. I have also considered that the trial court, while passing the impugned order, has failed to record any finding regarding the irrelevance of the witnesses, namely, Ms. Kiran Shukla and Ms. Meenu Tiwari. The only finding recorded is that since the examination-in-chief has not been conducted, therefore cross-examination cannot be permitted. Such a finding is erroneous and groundless as, if the trial court reaches to the conclusion that the examination of a witness is necessary, such witness can be summoned at any stage, prior to the pronouncement of the judgment. Therefore, there can be no legal bar of summoning the witnesses only because their examination-in-chief has not yet been conducted.

20. I am also aware of the law rendered by the Apex Court in the case of Natasha Singh (supra). Paragraph 15 of the above-noted judgment is extracted as under:

"15. The scope and object of the provision is to enable the court to determine the truth and to render a just decision after discovering all relevant facts and obtaining proper proof of such facts, to arrive at a just decision of the case. Power must be exercised judiciously and not capriciously or arbitrarily, as any improper or capricious exercise of such power may lead to undesirable results. An application under Section 311 CrPC must not be allowed only to fill up a lacuna in the case of the prosecution, or of the defence, or to the disadvantage of the accused, or to cause serious prejudice to the defence of the accused, or to give an unfair advantage to the opposite party. Further, the additional evidence must not be received as a disguise for retrial, or to change the nature of the case against either of the parties. Such a power must be exercised, provided that the evidence that is likely to be tendered by a witness, is germane to the issue involved. An opportunity of rebuttal however, must be given to the other party. The power conferred under Section 311 CrPC must therefore, be invoked by the court only in order to meet the ends of justice, for strong and valid reasons, and the same must be exercised with great caution and circumspection. The very use of words such as 'any court', 'at any stage', or 'or any enquiry, trial or other proceedings', 'any person' and 'any such person' clearly spells out that the provisions of this section have been expressed in the widest possible terms, and do not limit the discretion of the court in any way. The determinative factor should therefore be, whether the summoning/recalling of the said witness is in fact, essential to the just decision of the case."

21. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has categorically held that for discovering the relevant facts and obtaining proper proof so as to arrive at a just decision, the power under Section 311 Cr.P.C. must be exercised judicially and not capriciously.

22. It is long settled law that examination of a witness cannot be refused merely on the ground that the evidence of such witness may not be conclusive, if the evidence is otherwise relevant. In the present case, this Court is of the considered opinion that the statements of the experts, with whose assistance, the statement of the mentally challenged victim was recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C., constitute relevant evidence, particularly in view of the fact that the victim introduced the allegation of rape for the first time, in her statement, under Section 164 Cr.P.C.

23. In view of the aforementioned submissions and discussions above, this Court finds merit in this present application. Consequently, the impugned order dated 15.05.2026 is hereby set aside.

24. The matter is remitted to the trial court concerned to consider and decide the application of the applicant, under Section 311 Cr.P.C. afresh, in accordance with law and in the light of the observations made hereinabove, within a period of eight weeks, from the date of production of a certified copy of this order.

25. The application is allowed at the admission stage.

Matter pertains to whether the concurrent orders passed by Chief Judicial Magistrate, Aligarh, rejecting the applicant's protest petition against the Final Report, and by Additional District & Sessions Judge, Aligarh, dismissing the consequent Criminal Revision, were legally sustainable particularly, whether the Magistrate had duly applied judicial mind to material available on record before accepting the final report and rejecting the protest petition, in light of settled legal position governing the Magistrate's duty at the stage of considering a final report vis-à-vis a protest petition.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Ms. Nand Prabha Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Sri Avnish Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the applicant, learned AGA for the State and perused the record.

2. The present application under section 528 B.N.S.S. has been filed with a prayer to allow this application and to quash the order dated 05.07.2025 passed by the learned Additional District & Sessions Judge, Court No.11, Aligarh in Criminal Revision No. 188 of 2024 (Saroj Goyal vs. State of U.P. & Others) as well order dated 13.03.2024 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Aligarh in Misc. Case No. 197/12 of 2023, arising out of Crime No. 515 of 2022 under sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 504, 506, 120B IPC, Police Station Banna Devi, District Aligarh whereby the protest petition filed by the applicant was rejected.

3. Briefly stated, the applicant Saroj Goyal lodged an FIR No. 0515 of 2022 dated 09.07.2022 under sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 504, 506, 120B IPC, Police Station Banna Devi, District Aligarh against the respondent nos. 2 and 3 and certain Bank officials alleging that Respondent No. 2, Yash Agarwal and Respondent No. 3, Vibha Agarwal in connivance with the concerned employees of the Bank of Baroda, Malkhan Nagar Branch, Aligarh had transferred the Fixed Deposit amount deposited in the Bank by preparing forged consent letter of her father after his demise. After completion of the investigation, the Final Report dated 08.05.2023 was submitted. Aggrieved by the said Final Report, the applicant/first informant preferred a protest petition to the learned Magistrate which was registered as Criminal Misc. Case No. 197/12 of 2023. However, the learned Magistrate dismissed the protest petition of the applicant against which a Criminal Revision No.

188 of 2024 was filed before the learned Sessions Judge, Aligarh and the same was also dismissed. Hence, this application.

4. The main submission of learned counsel for the applicant is that the learned Magistrate while rejecting the protest petition dated 05.07.2023 did not consider the material available on record and without application of judicial mind accepted the final report.

5. The learned State Counsel could not dispute the aforesaid facts.

6. Recently, the Hon'ble Apex Court in Vishnu Kumar Tiwari Vs. State of Uttar Pradesh, (2019) 8 SCC 27 has held that "before a Magistrate proceeds to accept a final report under section 173 Cr.P.C. and exonerates the accused, it is incumbent upon the Magistrate to apply his mind to the contents of protest petition and arrive at a conclusion thereafter - while Investigating Officer may rest content by producing the final report, which according to him, is the culmination of his efforts - the duty of the Magistrate is not one limited to readily accept the final report - it is incumbent upon Magistrate to go through the materials, and after hearing the complainant and considering the contents of protest petition, finally decide the future course of action to be, whether to continue with the matter or to close the case. Further, held that dependent upon the material which is made available to a Magistrate by the complainant in the protest petition, it may be capable of being relied on in a particular case having regard to its inherent nature and impact on the conclusions in the final report - that is, if the material is such that it persuades the court to disagree with the conclusions arrived at by the Investigating Officer, cognizance could be taken under section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C. for which there is no necessity to examine the witnesses under section 200 Cr.P.C. In a majority cases when a final report is submitted, a Magistrate has to simply consider whether on the material in the case diary, no case is made out so as to accept the final report or whether case diary discloses a prima facie case so as to take cognizance - protest petition in such situation simply serves the purpose of drawing of Magistrate's attention to the material in the case diary and invite careful scrutiny and exercise of the mind by the Magistrate so it cannot be held that simply because there is a protest petition the case is to become a complaint case. If a protest petition fulfills the requirement of a complaint, Magistrate may treat protest petition as a complaint and deal with the same as required under sections 200/202 Cr.P.C."

7. In the case in hand, the Magistrate has considered the protest petition dated 05.07.2023 and rejected the same after considering the material available on record. Hence, there is no illegality in the order impugned.

8. From the perusal of record, it transpires that there are certain lacuna in the protest petition dated 05.07.2023 filed by the applicant and does not fulfill the requirements of a complaint case as the list of witnesses to be examined has not been disclosed.

9. However, in case, the applicant moves a fresh complaint inviting the attention of the Magistrate to take cognizance under section 190(1)(a) Cr.P.C./210(1)(a) BNSS satisfying the requirements of a complaint as defined in Section 2(d) Cr.P.C/2(1)(h) BNSS containing the facts that constitute the offence and all necessary particulars and details of the witnesses to be examined preferably within six weeks from the date of the order, the same be proceeded with under section 200 Cr.P.C./223(1) BNSS in accordance with law.

10. With the aforesaid direction, the application u/s 528 B.N.S.S. is disposed of.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the order dated 28.08.2012 passed by Sessions Judge, Kaushambi, rejecting the applicants' discharge application u/s 227 Cr.P.C. in a case u/s 414 IPC, was legally sustainable, specifically, whether the applicants could be validly implicated and put to trial solely on strength of a confessional statement made by a co-accused during investigation, in the absence of any independent recovery, arrest, or corroborative evidence connecting the applicants to alleged offence of dishonestly receiving stolen property.

Headnotes

Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 302, 201, 414 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - ss. 161, 164, 227 - Discharge - Application for discharge - Rejection of - Challenge - Applicants not named in FIR - Implication on basis of statement of co-accused - No recovery of stolen property from applicants - Chargesheet - Evidentiary value of confession of co-accused - Confession made before police - The instant application arose from Case Crime No. 376 of 2011, registered at P.S. Saini, District Kaushambi, initially lodged against unknown persons upon discovery of an unidentified dead body, and subsequently clubbed with Case Crime No. 381 of 2011 in respect of theft from a truck whose cleaner had allegedly been murdered - During investigation, co-accused Chander Prakash and Dharmender were arrested along with recovery of stolen property, and their statements led to further recoveries from other co-accused, while co-accused Dharmender and Amarnath, in their statements, named the present applicants as persons at whose premises certain stolen property had been temporarily kept - Chargesheet filed against applicants without any arrest or recovery being effected from their possession - The applicant's subsequent discharge application despite the trial court's own finding that no evidence other than co-accused's statement existed against them, was rejected by Sessions Judge, giving rise to present application seeking its quashing.

Held: In view of facts and circumstances as well as in light of judgments rendered by Apex Court in the cases of Hari Charan Kurmi (infra) and Dipakbhai Jagdishchndra Patel (infra), the case is of no evidence other than statement so recorded by one of co-accused in which names of applicants were surfaced and same was taken as a confessional statement in respect of applicants - The reasoning so recorded by trial court concerned while dismissing the discharge application, is altogether bad in eye of law, specifically in absence of any distinction between the statement, confessional statement and evidence whatsoever are mandatory to implicate the applicants and put them into trial - Once the applicants have been implicated at the stage of preferring chargesheet and they submitted the discharge application in pursuance to s. 414 IPC only, the same would have been decided in a most careful manner since the matter relates to implication of applicants for trial which includes certain other crime related to heinous one and accomplished with same in a little offence, may also be stigmatic for them to live normal life in society - Trial court has not given weightage to procedure as well as law defined by the higher courts and summarily dismissed the discharge application which is not at all sustainable in eye of law - Impugned order set aside, accordingly, application allowed. [Paras 13 to 15] (E-13)

From the Judgment and Order dated 28.08.2012 passed by Sessions Judge, Kaushambi in Case Crime No. 376 of 2011 arising out of Session Trial No. 232 of 2012, Police Station Saini, District Kaushambi.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Applicant(s):
Hakim Kumar Kushwaha, Kamlakar Pal, Zafar Abbas

Adv. for the Opposite Party(s):
Govt. Advocate

(Delivered by Hon'ble Saurabh Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Kamlakar Pal, learned counsel assisted by Sri Himanshu Pal along with Sri Hakim Kumar Kushwaha, learned counsel for applicants and learned.

2. The present application has been preferred seeking quashing of order dated 28.08.2012 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Kaushambi in Session Trial No.232 of 2012 (State Vs. Chandra Prakash and others), under Section 414 IPC, P.S. Saini, District Kaushambi, whereby discharge application preferred at the behest of applicants under Section 227 Cr.P.C. was rejected.

3. Brief facts of the present case are that opposite party no.2, namely, Lavkush, Chaukidar saw a dead body of 25 years old man on dated 28.09.2011 in a paddy field of one Prajapati over which, he lodged an FIR on the same day against unknown person which was registered at Case Crime No.376 of 2011, under Section 302, 201 IPC. On 30.10.2011, concerned police of Police Station Pipari arrested one co-accused, namely, Chander Prakash with certain stolen property which were loaded on DCM No.UP 70 AT 3649 who stated before the concerned police that he is driver of the said DCM and the stolen property was loaded by co-accused persons, namely, Dharmender Maurya, Amarnath Maurya and Dileep. Chander Prakash also told the police that this property was stolen from a truck bearing Registration No.HR 38 L 4908 after killing the cleaner of the said truck whose body was thrown away in Saini. When concerned police inquired, it was came into their knowledge that one FIR bearing Case Crime No.376 of 2011, under Section 302 IPC has already been registered against unknown person. Thereafter, the concerned police also arrested co-accused persons, namely, Dharmender with some stolen property who also told the police which were stated by co-accused, Chander Prakash. Thereafter, recovery memo of the stolen property, which were recovered from Chander Prakash and Dharmender, was prepared by concerned police. On 10.11.2011, the police also recovered the remaining stolen property from the possession of other co-accused persons, namely, Amarnath Maurya, Dileep Kushwaha and Mahendra Kushwaha and recovering the same, prepared recovery memo.

4. The Investigating Officer of the said case recorded statements of co-accused Chander Prakash, Dharmender, Amarnath, Dileep and one Mahendra (driver of Truck No.HR 38 L 4908) wherein Dharmender and Amarnath disclosed the names of applicants herein by way of stating that some stolen property were kept at their house for some time and after conclusion of the inquiry, the concerned police submitted chargesheet under Section 414 IPC against applicants herein and under Sections 394, 323, 302, 201, 34, 411, 414, 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC against other co-accused persons.

5. Truck owner of Truck No.HR 38 L 4908 also lodged an FIR on dated 29.09.2011 against unknown person for the said offence which was registered at Case Crime No.381 of 2011, under Section 394 IPC, P.S. Bilhaur, Kanpur Nagar and during investigation of Case Crime No.376 of 2011, Case Crime No.381 of 2011 was also merged in Case Crime No.376 of 2011.

6. Learned counsel for applicants submitted that applicants herein were not named in the FIR but after arrest of prime offenders against whom charges were framed under Sections 394, 323, 302, 201, 34, 411, 414, 420, 467, 468, 471 IPC, one of them introduced the applicants in his confessional statement and on that basis, applicants were chargesheeted and summoned for commission of offence under Section 414 IPC. He also submitted that neither the applicants were arrested at any point of time nor any recovery was assigned or recovered from their possession in respect of stolen property, therefore implication of applicants for assisting the stolen property, cannot be fastened once it has been crystal clearly observed by learned trial court concerned that no credible evidence has been collected and submitted against them at the stage of passing order impugned. Learned counsel for applicants further argued that implication of the applicants on the basis of confessional statement is also bad in the eye of law as per the judgment rendered by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Hari Charan Kurmi and Jogia Hajam Vs. State of Bihar [1964 AIR 1184].

7. Learned counsel for applicants submitted that the said judgment rendered by Hon'ble the Apex Court is still holding the field and also relied in so many judgments rendered by Hon'ble the Apex Court itself and the same is being followed by several High Courts in catena of the judgments.

8. By way of assailing the impugned order, learned counsel for applicants tried to demonstrate the connection of evidence with offence which is mandatory to be established by prosecution for putting accused for trial. Learned counsel for applicants strongly relied upon the conclusive finding recorded by learned trial court concerned while dismissing application under Section 227 Cr.P.C. preferred by applicants wherein it is mentioned that no other material evidence available apart from the evidence led through chargesheet collected during investigation by the concerned Investigating Officer. At the time of concluding the arguments, learned counsel for applicants also relied upon the judgment rendered by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Dipakbhai Jagdishchndra Patel Vs. The State of Gujrat [AIR 2019 Supreme Court 3363], wherein the proceedings arising out of denial of discharge application preferred at the behest of appellants, was allowed on the ground that a confession made to a police officer is clearly inadmissible.

9. Per contra, Sri Sandip Kumar, learned AGA vehemently opposed the prayer sought through the instant application and rebutted the stands taken up by learned counsel for applicants but at the same time, he showed his agreement with the dictum of law pronounced by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the case of Hari Charan Kurmi (supra).

10. During course of arguments, learned AGA clarified the position of law with the corresponding procedure of law that once the statement has been recorded during investigation under Section 161 Cr.P.C. along with 164 Cr.P.C., the same cannot be termed as confession in respect of attributing or saddling the commitment of offence upon some other person, rather it has to be taken up in respect of the person who is making the statement only.

11. After hearing the rival contentions raised by learned counsel for parties along perusal of entire material available on record including the order impugned, this Court finds force in the submission made by learned counsel for applicants which is the core argument that once it has been recorded by learned trial court itself while passing the order impugned that no other evidence is available apart from the evidences collected and submitted by the concerned Investigating Officer at the time of preferring chargesheet, therefore the applicants are rightfully claimants of discharge since the evidence collected by concerned Investigating Officer was only in shape of so called confessional statement made by one of the co-accused, whereas the pronouncement of Hon'ble Apex Court is crystal clear in respect of confession which may not be taken as evidence as strictly defined under Section 3 of the Evidence Act, it might be an element which may be taken into consideration by the criminal court and in that sense, it may be described as evidence in a non-technical way. The relevant part of Hari Charan Kurmi (supra) is being quoted herein below:-

"Technically construed. this definition will not apply to a confession. Part (1) of the definition refers to oral statements which the court permits or requires to be made before it; and clearly, a confession made by an accused person is not such a statement. it is not made or permitted to be made before the court that tries the criminal case. Part (2) of the definition refers to documents produced for the inspection of the court; and a confession cannot be said to fall even under this part. Even so, s. 30 provides that a confession may be taken into consideration not only against its maker, but also against a co-accused person; that is to say, though such a confession may not be evidence as strictly defined by Section 3 of the Act, it is an element which may be taken into consideration by the criminal court and in that sense, it may be described as evidence in a non- technical way. But it is significant that like other evidence which is produced before the Court, it is not obligatory on the court to take the confession into account. When evidence as defined by the Act is produced before the Court, it is the duty of the Court to consider that evidence. What weight should be attached to such evidence, is a matter in the discretion of the Court. But a Court cannot say in respect of such evidence that it will just not take that evidence into account. Such an approach can, however, be adopted by the Court in dealing with a confession, because Section 30 merely enables the Court to take the confession into account."

12. It has also been dealt with by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the same judgment that if in any case, other evidence was produced by the prosecution and after it has formed its opinion with regard to the quality and effect of the said evidence, then it is permissible to turn to the confession in order to receive assurance to the conclusion of guilt which the judicial mind is about to reach on the said other evidence, but in the instant matter, once it has been crystal clearly mentioned by learned trial court concerned that there in no other evidence apart from the evidences which were collected during course of investigation and the same were only the statement so recorded by other co-accused in respect of allegations fastened against the applicants.

13. In view of the aforementioned facts and circumstances as well as in light of the judgments rendered by Hon'ble the Apex Court in the cases of Hari Charan Kurmi (supra) and Dipakbhai Jagdishchndra Patel (supra), this case is of no evidence other than the statement so recorded by one of the co-accused in which names of applicants were surfaced and the same was taken as a confessional statement in respect of the applicants. The reasoning so recorded by learned trial court concerned while dismissing the discharge application, is altogether bad in the eye of law, specifically in absence of any distinction between the statement, confessional statement and the evidence whatsoever are mandatory to implicate the applicants and put them into trial. Once the applicants have been implicated at the stage of preferring chargesheet and they submitted the discharge application in pursuance to Section 414 IPC only, the same would have been decided in a most careful manner since the matter relates to the implication of applicants for trial which includes certain other crime related to heinous one and accomplished with the same in a little offence, may also be stigmatic for them to live normal life in the society. Learned trial court concerned has not given weightage to the procedure as well as law defined by the higher courts and summarily dismissed the discharge application which is not at all sustainable in the eye of law.

14. In view thereof, order dated 28.08.2012 passed by learned Sessions Judge, Kaushambi in Session Trial No.232 of 2012 (State Vs. Chandra Prakash and others), under Section 414 IPC, P.S. Saini, District Kaushambi, is hereby set aside. Applicants are hereby discharged in respect of Session Trial No.232 of 2012 (State Vs. Chandra Prakash and others), arising out of Case Crime No.376 of 2011, P.S. Saini, District Kaushambi.

15. Accordingly, the instant application stands allowed.

From the charge-sheet dated 19.01.2025, cognizance/summoning order dated 08.04.2025 in Criminal Case No. 1617 of 2025, arising out of Case Crime No. 425 of 2024, Police Station-Kotwali Dehat, District-Saharanpur pending in the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Saharanpur.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Applicant(s):
Anurag Mishra

Adv. for the Opposite Party(s):
G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Madan Pal Singh, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the applicants, learned A.G.A. for the State-opposite parties and perused the record.

2. The present application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. has been filed praying for quashing the charge-sheet dated 19th January, 2025, cognizance/summoning order dated 8th April, 2025 as well as the entire proceedings of Criminal Case No. 1617 of 2025 (State of U.P. Vs. Kari Naushad & Others), arising out of Case Crime No. 425 of 2024, under Sections 121 (1), 125, 126 (1), 221, 223, 190, 191 (2), 351 (3), 352 B.N.S. and Section 7 of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1932, Police Station-Kotwali Dehat, District-Saharanpur pending in the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Saharanpur.

3. Learned counsel for the applicants submits that the impugned proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction and constitute an abuse of the process of law. It is submitted that the FIR under Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. (Sections 186 and 188 I.P.C.) along with other charging sections, was registered by the Head Constable of Police Station-Kotwali Dehat, District-Saharanpur on 6th October, 2024 on his own without there being any written complaint by the public servant concerned as contemplated under Section 215 (1) (a) B.N.S.S. [Section 195(1)(a) Cr.P.C.]. It is further submitted that the charge-sheet was submitted on the basis of the said FIR and the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Saharanpur mechanically took cognizance on 8th April, 2025 without considering the statutory embargo contained in Section 215 B.N.S.S. (Section 195 Cr.P.C.).

4. Learned counsel for the applicants further submits that the very foundation of the prosecution is illegal inasmuch as an FIR under Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. (Sections 186 and 188 I.P.C.) along with other charging sections could not have been registered at the instance of the police without a written complaint of the competent public servant. The proceedings, therefore, are vitiated from their inception.

5. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the applicants has placed reliance upon the judgment of this Court in Application U/S 482 No.18403 of 2021 (Ramendra Sharma and 2 Others vs. State of U.P. and Another) decided on 09.09.2022, the judgment of this Court in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No.12772 of 2020 (Yogeshwar Sood and Another vs. State of U.P. and Others) and the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Daulat Ram vs. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 1206.

6. Besides the above, learned counsel for the applicants has also relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Devender Kumar Vs. State (NCT of Delhi) & Another reported in 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1753, judgment of the Division Bench of this Court 8th January, 2024 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 17560 of 2023 (Sumit & Another Vs. State of U.P. & Others), judgment of the Coordinate Benches of this Court dated 26th September, 2024 passed in Application U/S 482 No. 5131 of 2024 (Sheel Prakash Gupta Vs. State of U.P. Thru. Prin. Secy. Home LKO & Another, and dated 12th November, 2025 passed in Application U/S 482 No. 9486 of 2025 (Sanjay Kashyap @ Sanjay Kumar Vs. State of U.P. & Others).

7. Per contra, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 and the learned A.G.A. could not dispute the legal position laid down in the judgments relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicants.

8. I have considered the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and have perused the material available on record.

9. For adjudicating upon the aforesaid issue raised by the learned counsel for the applicants, it would be worthwhile to reproduce Section 215 (1) (a) B.N.S.S. which is quoted hereunder: "215. Prosecution for contempt of lawful authority of public servants, for offences against public justice and for offences relating to documents given in evidence.

(1) No Court shall take cognizance-(a) (i) of any offence punishable under sections 206 to 223 (both inclusive but excluding section 209) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023; or(ii) of any abetment of, or attempt to commit, such offence; or(iii) of any criminal conspiracy to commit such offence, except on the complaint in writing of the public servant concerned or of some other public servant to whom he is administratively subordinate or of some other public servant who is authorised by the concerned public servant so to do;

10. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Daulat Ram vs. State of Punjab reported in AIR 1962 SC 1206 has categorically held that where the statute mandates a written complaint by the competent public servant, cognizance taken on the basis of a police report or charge-sheet is wholly without jurisdiction and the entire proceedings stand vitiated ab initio.

11. This Court in Ramendra Sharma and Others (supra), after considering the provisions of Section 195 Cr.P.C. as well as the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Daulat Ram (supra), has held that an FIR registered by a police officer and the consequent charge-sheet under Section 174-A I.P.C. without there being a written complaint by the competent public servant are legally unsustainable and liable to be quashed.

12. The same principle was reiterated by this Court in Yogeshwar Sood and Another (supra) wherein it was held that registration of an FIR under Section 174-A I.P.C. prima facie amounts to an abuse of the process of law in view of the statutory embargo contained in Section 195 Cr.P.C.

13. The Apex Court in the case of D.K. Rajendran and Ors. etc. etc. Vs. State of T.N., reported in AIR 2010 SC 3718, in Para 25 has held as follows:

"25. Thus, in view of the above, the law can be summarized to the effect that there must be a complaint by the pubic servant whose lawful order has not been complied with. The complaint must be in writing. The provisions of Section 195 Cr.PC are mandatory. Non-compliance of it would vitiate the prosecution and all other consequential orders. The Court cannot assume the cognizance of the case without such complaint. In the absence of such a complaint, the trial and conviction will be void ab initio being without jurisdiction."

(Emphasis supplied)

13. In the recent judgment, the Apex Court in the case of B.N. John Vs. State of U.P. & Another passed in Criminal Appeal No...of 2025/Special Leave Petition (Crl.) No. 2184 of 2024 decided on 2nd January, 2025 (reported in 2025 SCC OnLine SC 7) has opined has follows:

"...

A bare perusal of Section 195 (1) of the CrPC clearly indicates that there is a bar on the court to take cognizance of any offence punishable under Section 172 to 188 (both inclusive) of the IPC except on a complaint in writing made by the concerned public servant to the court. Therefore, if it is found as contended by the appellant that in respect of the offence under Section 186 of the IPC against him, no such complaint was filed by the concerned public servant as contemplated under Section 195 (1) (a) CrPC, the CJM could not have taken cognizance of the offence under Section 186 of the IPC.

In this regard, the appellant has specifically pleaded to which there is no rebuttal from the State that no such complaint was made in writing by a public servant as required under Section 195 (1) of the CrPC relating to the commission of offence by the appellant under Section 186 of the IPC.

Under the circumstances, we are of the opinion that taking cognizance by the CJM, Varanasi, of the offences under Section 353 of the IPC and 186 of the IPC was not done by following the due process contemplated under the provisions of law, and accordingly, the same being contrary to law, all the orders passed pursuant thereto cannot be sustained and would warrant interference from this Court."

14. In the present case, the record reveals that the FIR dated 6th October, 2024 under Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. (Sections 186 and 188 I.P.C.) along with other charging sections, was registered by the Head Constable of Police Station-Kotwali Dehat, District-Saharanpur on his own. No written complaint by the competent public servant, as required under Section 215 (1) (a) B.N.S.S./195(1)(a) Cr.P.C., has been brought on record. The prosecution was initiated solely on the basis of the police report, followed by submission of the charge-sheet and passing of the cognizance order dated 8th April, 2025.

15. Once the mandatory requirement prescribed under Section 215 B.N.S.S./195 Cr.P.C. has not been complied with, the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Saharanpur could not have legally taken cognizance upon the police report. The impugned cognizance order, therefore, suffers from inherent lack of jurisdiction.

16. Apart from the above, the cognizance and summoning order dated 8th April, 2025 does not disclose application of judicial mind. The order neither specifies the penal provision nor mentions the names of the accused persons. It is a cryptic and mechanical order which cannot be sustained in law.

17. So far as the prayer made by the learned counsel for the applicants for quashing of the impugned charge-sheet and entire proceedings of the aforesaid criminal case is concerned, this Court has not doubted the law laid down by Apex Court and the judgments passed by this Court, which have heavily been relied upon by the learned counsel for the applicants referred to above, even though this Court always pays respects to the judgment passed by any Court of Law. However, on the issue for the quashing charge-sheet and the entire proceedings as opined in the aforesaid judgments, the opinion of this Court is otherwise. This Court is of the considered opinion that the Investigating Officer has submitted the impugned charge-sheet under Sections 121 (1), 125, 126 (1), 221, 223, 190, 191 (2), 351 (3), 352 B.N.S. and Section 7 of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1932. It has already been discussed above that out of the aforesaid Sections i.e. Sections 121 (1), 125, 126 (1), 190, 191 (2), 351 (3), 352 B.N.S. and Section 7 of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1932, only Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. are barred by Section 215 (1) (a) B.N.S.S. and the concerned Trial Court has committed error in taking cognizance under Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. along with other charging sections on the ground that trial court has taken cognizance to the said offence on the charge-sheet submitted by the Police without any complaint in writing of the public servant concerned.

18. The fault on the part of the Police to lodge the first information report and also to submit charge-sheet under Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. along with other charging Sections 121 (1), 125, 126 (1), 190, 191 (2), 351 (3), 352 B.N.S. and Section 7 of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1932 as well as the fault on the part of the trial court which has taken cognizance thereon including Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. without any complaint in writing of the public servant concerned or of some other public servant, which hits the statutory provisions of Section 215 (1) (a) B.N.S.S., the alleged offence committed by the accused like the applicants under Sections 121 (1), 125, 126 (1), 190, 191 (2), 351 (3), 352 B.N.S. and Section 7 of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1932 and under one of the aforesaid charging Sections, the maximum punishment to be awarded is upto 7 years, cannot be washed out by this Court only on the ground that the trial court has committed error in taking cognizance under Sections 221 and 223 B.N.S. along with other charging Sections against the applicants without any complaint in writing of the public servant concerned. The inherent jurisdiction of this Court under Section 528 B.N.S.S. is intended to prevent abuse of the process of the Court and to secure the ends of justice within the four corners.

19. Let us assume, for the sake of argument, that in a case where, after lodging of the first information report, the Investigating Officer submits charge-sheet involving heinous offenses (such as Sections 109, 103, 80, 309, 63, 64 and 310 B.N.S.) alongside offenses under Sections 206 and 223 B.N.S., and the Magistrate takes cognizance of all that Sections including Sections 206 to 223 B.N.S. without any submission of complaint as mandatory under Section 215 (1) (a) B.N.S.S., then in such a scenario, can the Court quash the entire charge-sheet and criminal proceedings because the concerned Magistrate has not complied the provisions Section 215 (1) (a) B.N.S.S., while washing out the alleged heinous offenses committed by the accused i.e. offences under Sections 109, 103, 80, 309, 63, 64 and 310 B.N.S.

20. In view of the deliberation and discussion made above, cognizance/summoning order dated 8th April, 2025 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate-I, Saharanpur in Criminal Case No. 1617 of 2025 (State of U.P. Vs. Kari Naushad & Others), arising out of Case Crime No. 425 of 2024, under Sections 121 (1), 125, 126 (1), 221, 223, 190, 191 (2), 351 (3), 352 B.N.S. and Section 7 of the Criminal Law (Amendment) Act, 1932, Police Station-Kotwali Dehat, District-Saharanpur is hereby set aside. The prayer of the applicants for quashing the charge-sheet and entire criminal proceedings is refused.

21. The matter is remitted back to the court concerned to pass a fresh order on the question of taking cognizance, if required, in light of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as this Court referred to above.

22. Accordingly, the present application stands partly allowed.

Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application U/S 482 BNSS No. 5334 of 2026

Mashu @ Aman Joshi ...Applicant
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the applicant, who had been declared a proclaimed offender u/s 82 Cr.P.C. for non-cooperation with the investigation and non-appearance before the Investigating Officer despite an earlier assurance recorded by Court, was entitled to be enlarged on anticipatory bail u/s 482 B.N.S.S. in connection with an offence u/s 108 B.N.S. (abetment of suicide), and whether such an application for anticipatory bail was maintainable in view of applicant's status as an absconder/proclaimed offender.

Headnotes

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - s. 108 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - s. 82 - Anticipatory bail - Maintainability - Non-cooperation with investigation - Declared proclaimed offender - Despite assurance to Court - Scope - Against the applicant it was allegation that he had established a physical relationship with the victim on the false promise of marriage, and upon her discovering that he was already married and confronting him, he threatened her with dire consequences, refused to marry her, and subjected her to continuous mental cruelty, explicitly stating during a telephonic conversation that he would never marry her, consequent upon which the victim committed suicide by hanging on 31.01.2026 - Post-mortem confirming asphyxia as cause of death - It was further the case of informant that applicant's earlier writ petition for quashing of FIR had been dismissed by Division Bench with liberty to seek bail before the court concerned, that the applicant thereafter neither appeared before the Investigating Officer nor filed any bail application, pursuant to which proceedings u/s 82 Cr.P.C. were initiated against him, that upon his application u/s 528 B.N.S.S. the said notice was earlier set aside on his assurance to cooperate with the investigation, but that despite such assurance, the applicant continued to remain non-cooperative and did not appear before the Investigating Officer, rendering him liable to be treated as an absconder/proclaimed offender.

Held*:* The deliberate oblivion to the process issued by Court on the part of applicant denudes his claim to treat his application for grant of anticipatory bail as maintainable under the roof of a 'rare and exceptional case' and thereby to grant anticipatory bail to him - The wilful defaulter, who does not cooperate with the trial court or investigation at all, is not entitled to get any relief by way of anticipatory bail - Accordingly anticipatory bail application rejected. [Paras 20 to 22] (E-13)

Case Arising From

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application u/s 482 BNSS No. - 5334 of 2026

From the FIR dated 01.02.2026 in Case Crime No. 20 of 2026 at Police Station Kotwali Chhatta, District Agra.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Applicant(s):
Amar Nath, Deepak Singh

Advs. for the Opposite Party(s):
G.A., Manoj Mishra, Shashank Mishra

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Kumar Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Deepak Singh, learned counsel for the applicant, Sri Shashank Mishra, learned counsel for the informant and Sri Rabindra Kumar Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State and perused the record.

2. The present anticipatory bail application has been filed on behalf of the applicant in Case Crime No. 20 of 2026, under Sections 108 of B.N.S., Police Station - Chhatta, District Agra, with a prayer to grant him anticipatory bail.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that a First Information Report was lodged on 01.02.2026 at 19:20 hours in respect of alleged incident dated 31.01.2026, at Police Station Chhatta, District Agra. The F.I.R. was registered as Case Crime No. 20 of 2026, under Section 108 of B.N.S. The applicant was nominated in the F.I.R. which was lodged by the first informant in respect of the offence, allegedly committed by the applicant. It is stated in the F.I.R. that a physical relationship was established by the applicant with the victim on the false promise of marriage. Upon discovering that the applicant was already married, the victim confronted him regarding his marital status. In response, the applicant threatened the victim with dire consequences and refused to marry her. The applicant subjected the victim to continuous mental cruelty. Furthermore, during a telephonic conversation, the applicant explicitly stated that he would not solemnize marriage with the victim under any circumstances, regardless of the consequences. The applicant further admitted that he established physical relationship on the pretext of marriage. After hearing this, the victim committed suicide on 31.01.2026.

4. The post-mortem report was prepared on 01.02.2026 and ligature mark of size 30 cm X 02 cm was found all around the upper part of neck. The cause of death was asphyxia as a result of ante-mortem hanging.

5. The investigating officer commenced investigation and recorded statements of the informant, wherein he reiterated the F.I.R. version.

6. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the applicant that the applicant is an innocent person and has no concern with the present offence. The allegations levelled against the applicant, are false. It is further submitted that the applicant has falsely been implicated in the present case. It is further submitted that the applicant has apprehension of his arrest by the police. It is also contended that no offence whatsoever is made out against the applicant. It cannot be said that the applicant, by breaking up the relationship with the deceased, had intended to abet the deceased to commit suicide. The deceased came under mental stress and thereafter on 31.01.2026, she herself committed suicide and the applicant had nothing to do with the act of the deceased. It is further submitted that the basic ingredients to constitute the offence under Section 108 of B.N.S. are missing inasmuch as the intention of the accused to aid or instigate or to abet the deceased to commit suicide is must for attracting section 108 of B.N.S. In cases of abetment of suicide, there must be proof of direct or indirect acts of incitement to commit suicide. The alleged harassment meted out to her should have left the victim with no other alternative but to put an end to her life. It is further contended that the deceased had option to settle down in her life with some other boy. There is no nexus between the act of the applicant and act of suicide of the deceased.

7. Learned counsel for the applicant has relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ayyub and Others vs. State of U.P. and Another, 2025 INSC 168 and Prabhu vs. The State Rep. By The Inspector of Police and Another, 2024 SCC Online SC 137, decided on 30.01.2024.

8. Per contra, learned A.G.A. as well as learned counsel for the informant have opposed the prayer and submitted that the applicant filed a Crl. Misc. Writ Petition No. 9763 of 2026, for quashing of the F.I.R. The aforesaid writ petition was not entertained by the Division Bench of this Court and the same was dismissed vide order dated 14.05.2026 with a direction that in case the applicant/petitioner appears before the court concerned and applies for bail, then in that eventuality his bail application shall be considered by the court concerned in the light of law laid down by Apex Court in the case of Satender Kumar Antil vs. Central Bureau of Investigation and Another (2021) 10 SCC 773.

9. It is further submitted by the learned counsel for the informant that in pursuance of order dated 14.05.2026, the applicant did not appear and no bail application was filed before the court concerned. Thereafter, the proceedings were initiated against him under Section 82 of Cr.P.C. Being aggrieved by the initiation of the proceedings under Section 82 of Cr.P.C., the applicant filed an application under Section 528 B.N.S.S. No. 22011 of 2026, which was disposed of vide order dated 27.05.2026 on the assurance of applicant that he will cooperate with the concerned investigating officer for concluding the investigation. Upon assurance extended by the learned counsel for the applicant, this Court set-aside the impugned notice under Section 82 of Cr.P.C. which was attached by the police personnel of Police Station Chhatta, District Agra, in connection with the present case.

10. Learned counsel for the informant has drawn attention of this Court on the notice dated 28.06.2026, issued by the Sub-Inspector Abhay Singh of Police Station Chhatta, Commissionerate Agra, wherein it is mentioned that the applicant is neither cooperating with the investigation nor is appearing before the investigating officer. It is next submitted that the applicant did not appear before the investigating officer in pursuance of aforesaid order dated 27.05.2026 and proceedings under Section 82 of Cr.P.C. has been initiated against the applicant, therefore, the present anticipatory bail application is not maintainable and deserves to be dismissed.

11. I have considered the rival submissions made by the learned counsel for the parties and have gone through the entire record carefully.

12. It is not a disputed fact that the proceedings were initiated against the applicant under Section 82 of Cr.P.C. in connection with the present case crime number. The applicant was declared as a proclaimed offender and the impugned notice under Section 82 of Cr.P.C. was challenged by the applicant by way of filing of an application U/S 528 B.N.S.S. No. 22011 of 2026. It was ordered by this Court that the applicant will cooperate with the concerned investigating officer for concluding the investigation, but as per the police report, the applicant has not appeared before the investigating officer for recording his statement.

13. The conduct of the applicants drags them under the umbrella of the law promulgated by the Hon'ble Apex Court in Prem Shankar Prasad Versus State of Bihar and Another, 2021 SCC OnLine Supreme Court 955. In the facts of that case, charge-sheet was filed under Sections 406, 420 IPC against the accused and thus it was explicit that a prima facie case against the accused was found. From the record, it revealed that the arrest warrant was issued by the Magistrate against the accused and thereafter proceedings under Sections 82, 83 Cr.P.C. had been initiated pursuant to the order passed by the Magistrate. Only thereafter the accused moved an application before the trial court for anticipatory bail, which was rejected by the Sessions Court. However, subsequently anticipatory bail was granted to the aforesaid accused by the High Court and when the matter came before the Hon'ble Apex Court, it was observed like this-

"19. Despite the above observations on merits and despite the fact that it was brought to the notice of the High Court that respondent No. 2 - accused is absconding and even the proceedings under sections 82-83 of Cr. P.C. have been initiated as far as back on 10.01.2019, the High Court has just ignored the aforesaid relevant aspects and has granted anticipatory bail to respondent No. 2 - accused by observing that the nature of accusation is arising out of a business transaction. The specific allegations of cheating, etc., which came to be considered by learned Additional Sessions Judge has not at all been considered by the High Court. Even the High Court has just ignored the factum of initiation of proceedings under sections 82-83 of Cr. P.C. by simply observing that "be that as it may". The aforesaid relevant aspect on grant of anticipatory bail ought not to have been ignored by the High Court and ought to have been considered by the High Court very seriously and not casually."

14. The Hon'ble Apex Court in Lavesh Vs. State (NCT of Delhi)(2012) 8 SCC 730 has held that "Normally, when the accused is "absconding" and declared as a "proclaimed offender", there is no question of granting anticipatory bail. We reiterate that when a person against whom a warrant had been issued and is absconding or concealing himself in order to avoid execution of warrant and declared as a proclaimed offender in terms of Section 82 of the Code, he is not entitled to the relief of anticipatory bail.

15. Further, the judgment passed in Lavesh (supra) was referred by the Hon'ble Apex Court in State of Madhya Pradesh vs. Pradeep Sharma, (2014) 2 Supreme Court Cases 171 and referring to paragraph 12 of the judgment of Lavesh (supra), in paragraph 16 of the said judgment, it was observed, relevant portion of which is as under :

"16.....It is clear from the above decision that if anyone is declared as an absconder / proclaimed offender in terms of Section 82 of the Code, he is not entitled to the relief of anticipatory bail."

16. In the case of Srikant Upadhyay and Others vs. State of Bihar and Another, (2024) 12 SCC 382, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that the power to grant anticipatory bail is an extraordinary power. While called upon to exercise the said power, the Court has to be very cautious as the grant of interim protection or protection to the accused in serious cases may lead to miscarriage of justice. When warrant of arrest or proclamation is issued, the applicant is not entitled to invoking extraordinary power. The relevant paragraph no. 30 of Srikant Upadhyay (supra) is quoted as under:

"30. We have already held that the power to grant anticipatory bail is an extraordinary power. Though in many cases it was held that bail is said to be a rule, it cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be said that anticipatory bail is the rule. It cannot be the rule and the question of its grant should be left to the cautious and judicious discretion by the Court depending on the facts and circumstances of each case. While called upon to exercise the said power, the Court concerned has to be very cautious as the grant of interim protection or protection to the accused in serious cases may lead to miscarriage of justice and may hamper the investigation to a great extent as it may sometimes lead to tampering or distraction of the evidence. We shall not be understood to have held that the Court shall not pass an interim protection pending consideration of such application as the Section is destined to safeguard the freedom of an individual against unwarranted arrest and we say that such orders shall be passed in eminently fit cases. At any rate, when warrant of arrest or proclamation is issued, the applicant is not entitled to invoke the extraordinary power. Certainly, this will not deprive the power of the Court to grant pre-arrest bail in extreme, exceptional cases in the interest of justice. But then, person(s) continuously, defying orders and keep absconding is not entitled to such grant."

17. In the case of P. Chidambaram vs. Directorate of Enforcement, (2019) 9 SCC 24, the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that arrest is a part of procedure of the investigation to secure not only the presence of the accused but several other purposes. The power under Section 438 of Cr.P.C./482 of B.N.S.S. has to be exercised sparingly. The privilege of the pre-arrest bail should not be granted only in exceptional cases. The relevant paragraph no. 69 of P. Chidambaram (supra) is reproduced as under:

"69. Ordinarily, arrest is a part of procedure of the investigation to secure not only the presence of the accused but several other purposes. Power under Section 438 Cr.P.C. is an extraordinary power and the same has to be exercised sparingly. The privilege of the pre-arrest bail should be granted only in exceptional cases. The judicial discretion conferred upon the court has to be properly exercised after application of mind as to the nature and gravity of the accusation; possibility of the applicant fleeing justice and other factors to decide whether it is a fit case for grant of anticipatory bail. Grant of anticipatory bail to some extent interferes in the sphere of investigation of an offence and hence, the court must be circumspect while exercising such power for grant of anticipatory bail. Anticipatory bail is not to be granted as a matter of rule and it has to be granted only when the court is convinced that exceptional circumstances exist to resort to that extraordinary remedy. "

18. Further, in the pronouncement of the Hon'ble Apex Court in State of Haryana vs. Dharamraj, 2023 SCC Online SC 1085, decided on 29.8.2023 the legal position regarding maintainability of an application for grant of anticipatory bail to a proclaimed offender has been elucidated, which reads as under (paragraph 17 of the said judgment):

"17. The respondent, without first successfully assailing the order declaring him as a proclaimed offender, could not have proceeded to seek anticipatory bail. Looking to the factual prism, we are clear that the respondent's application under Section 438, CrPC should not have been entertained, as he was a proclaimed offender. We may note that in Lavesh v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2012) 8 SCC 730, this Court was categoric against grant of anticipatory bail to a proclaimed offender. In the same vein, following Lavesh (supra) is the decision in State of Madhya Pradesh v. Pradeep Sharma, (2014) 2 SCC 171, where this Court emphasised that a proclaimed offender would not be entitled to anticipatory bail. Of course, in an exceptional and rare case, this Court or the High Courts can consider a plea seeking anticipatory bail, despite the applicant being a proclaimed offender, given that the Supreme Court and High Courts are Constitutional Courts. However, no exceptional situation arises in the case at hand. Following Pradeep Sharma (supra), in Prem Shankar Prasad v. State of Bihar, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 955, this Court was unequivocal that the High Court therein erred in granting anticipatory bail ignoring proceedings under Sections 82 and 83, CrPC. In Abhishek v. State of Maharashtra, (2022) 8 SCC 282, this Court concluded:

'68. As regards the implication of proclamation having been issued against the appellant, we have no hesitation in making it clear that any person, who is declared as an "absconder" and remains out of reach of the investigating agency and thereby stands directly at conflict with law, ordinarily, deserves no concession or indulgence. By way of reference, we may observe that in relation to the indulgence of pre-arrest bail in terms of Section 438 CrPC, this Court has repeatedly said that when an accused is absconding and is declared as proclaimed offender, there is no question of giving him the benefit of Section 438 CrPC. [For example, Prem Shankar Prasad v. State of Bihar, (2022) 14 SCC 529, 2021 SCC OnLine SC 955] ...'"

19. Hence, the law is discernible on the point that as per normal rule, anticipatory bail cannot be granted to an accused who is absconding or concealing himself in order to avoid execution of the process of the Court without offering any legal or plausible justification for his abscondence and consequently has been declared a proclaimed offender.

20. The deliberate oblivion to the process issued by the Court on the part of the applicant denudes his claim to treat his application for grant of anticipatory bail as maintainable under the roof of a 'rare and exceptional case' and thereby to grant anticipatory bail to him.

21. In view of the above, declaring the present application for grant of anticipatory bail as not maintainable, I deem it not a fit case to grant anticipatory bail to the present applicant. The wilful defaulter, who does not cooperate with the trial court or investigation at all, is not entitled to get any relief from this Court by way of anticipatory bail.

22. The anticipatory bail application is, accordingly, rejected.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the applicant, named in the FIR and facing charges u/s 103(1) BNS and ss. 9(1)A(1)/25(2) of Arms Act for the alleged murder of deceased, was entitled to be released on bail during the pendency of trial, particularly in light of credibility of sole eye-witness whose statement was recorded by Investigating Officer two days after the incident, and in the absence of informant himself being an eye-witness to the occurrence.

Headnotes

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - s.103(1) - Arms Act, 1959 - ss. 9(1)A(1)/25(2) - Murder - FIR - Suspicion - No eye witness - Bail - The instant bail application was preferred by applicant seeking release on bail in Case Crime No. 69 of 2026, registered at Police Station Girwa, District Banda, wherein it was alleged that on the intervening night of 24/25.2.2026, the applicant, along with unknown associates, committed the murder of deceased - However, the informant who lodged the FIR was not an eye-witness to the occurrence and FIR appeared to have been lodged on mere suspicion - Sole purported eye-witness, one Monu Nishad, whose statement was recorded by Investigating Officer only after a delay of two days on 27.2.2026, claimed to have witnessed the applicant holding a pistol and fleeing the scene after being awakened by noise - A version that, prima facie, appeared doubtful and suggestive of a planted witness, and applicant, having no previous criminal antecedents and having remained in judicial custody since 27.2.2026, sought enlargement on bail during pendency of trial.

Held*:* Applicant is named in the FIR but admittedly informant of case was not the eye witness and it reflects, he lodged the FIR against the applicant on basis of suspicion - It reflects, after two days Investigating Officer recorded the statement of one Monu Nishad and he stated that on date of incident he was sleeping nearby the deceased and after hearing some noise when he woke up then witnessed that applicant was having pistol in his hand and he was going from the place of incident and he also threatened him but the manner in which he narrated the story, prima facie, creates doubt on his statement and considering the fact that his statement was recorded after two days, argument advanced by learned counsel for the applicant that actually even Monu Nishad could not see the real incident and after two days Investigating Officer planted him as witness, cannot be ruled out - Further, except, Monu Nishad there is no other eye-witness account - Accordingly, without expressing any opinion on merits of case, instant bail application allowed. 4. Learned counsel for the applicant submitted that however, applicant is named in the FIR and according to the FIR on 25.2.2026 in the night applicant alongwith his unknown associates committed the murder of the deceased but it reflects, FIR of the present case was lodged on the basis of suspicion and admittedly, informant of the case was not the eye-witness.

5. He further submitted that however during investigation when Investigating Officer after two days i.e 27.2.2026 recorded the statement of one Monu Nishad then he very casually stated that in the intervening night of 24/25.2.2026 when he was sleeping nearby the deceased then after hearing some noise, he woke up and witnessed that applicant was having pistol in his hand and he was going from the place of incident and even applicant threatened him but his statement, prima facie, does not appear to be convincing and it reflects, as there is no eye-witness account therefore, Investigating Officer, planted this witness and no reliance can be placed on his statement.

6. He further submitted that applicant is having no criminal history and he is in jail in the present matter since 27.2.2026.

13. Further, applicant is having no previous criminal history to his credit and he is in jail in the present matter since 27.2.2026.

14. Therefore, considering the facts and circumstances of the case, discussed above, in my view, applicant is entitled to be released on bail.

Matters Under Article 227 No. 3845 of 2026

Udayveer Singh ...Petitioner
Versus
Rent Tribunal & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether disputed signatures appearing on a photocopy of an alleged rent agreement can legitimately be referred for scientific examination by a handwriting expert in the absence of the original document?

Headnotes

Evidence — Opinion of handwriting expert — Nature and evidentiary value.

HELD: The opinion of a handwriting expert is a relevant fact under the law of evidence, but such opinion is merely advisory in character and does not conclude the issue. The Court is not bound by the opinion of the expert, which is only one piece of evidence to be evaluated in conjunction with the entire material available on record; expert evidence is intended to assist the Court and not to supplant its judicial function. [Para 13]

U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 — S. 21(2) — Eviction proceedings — Application for examination by handwriting expert of disputed signatures on photocopy of rent agreement — Original not produced — Rejection upheld.

HELD: Handwriting examination ordinarily involves examination of line quality, pen pressure, rhythm, speed, natural variations, pen lifts, retouching, ink flow and other microscopic characteristics which are ordinarily discernible only from the original writing. A photocopy merely reproduces the visual image of a document and inevitably obliterates these intrinsic forensic features; an opinion founded solely upon a photocopy is, therefore, inherently less dependable than one based upon the original document. The Court is not required to direct an expert examination where the material itself is inherently unsuitable for reliable scientific comparison. Where the alleged rent agreement was available only as a photocopy, the petitioner's own case being that the original remained with the deceased landlord, the Rent Authority could not be faulted for concluding that the proposed exercise would not materially assist the adjudicatory process. [Paras 14-16]

Though some decisions recognise that, in exceptional cases, an expert may express an opinion on the basis of a clear photocopy, those authorities do not lay down a rule that every disputed photocopy must invariably be referred for forensic examination. The decisive consideration remains whether the material proposed to be examined is capable of furnishing dependable scientific assistance, an assessment which lies within the judicial discretion of the Court concerned. [Para 20]

Evidence — Admissions — Whether admissions of opposite party confer a right to seek expert examination of a document unavailable in original.

HELD: Admissions constitute relevant evidence, but do not confer upon a party an indefeasible right to seek expert examination of a document which is unavailable in its original form. Collateral admissions cannot improve the forensic reliability of a secondary reproduction. Such statements are matters of evidence whose probative value is to be assessed by the Rent Authority on merits; no amount of admissions can dispense with the foundational requirement that the material proposed for forensic examination must itself be capable of reliable scientific scrutiny. An expert opinion cannot be directed merely to undertake a speculative exercise. [Paras 17, 19, 24]

Indian Stamp Act, 1899 — S. 35 — Objection regarding admissibility of unstamped rent agreement — Relevance to prayer for expert examination.

HELD: Refraining from expressing any final opinion on the question of admissibility, which is to be determined at the appropriate stage, where the document is not only unavailable in its original form but is also confronted with an objection regarding its admissibility, the authorities below cannot be said to have acted unreasonably in declining to direct an expert examination. [Paras 18, 22]

Constitution of India — Art. 227 — Supervisory jurisdiction — Scope.

HELD: The jurisdiction under Article 227 is supervisory and not appellate. The High Court does not reappreciate evidence or substitute its own view merely because another view is possible; interference is warranted only where the subordinate court or tribunal has acted without jurisdiction, has failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it, or where the impugned order suffers from patent illegality, manifest perversity or has occasioned a grave miscarriage of justice. Rejection of the application for expert opinion does not foreclose the petitioner's right to establish the tenancy or its terms through rent receipts, oral evidence or other admissible material; the impugned orders merely decline one particular mode of proof. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, as affirmed by judgment and order dated 07.01.2026 passed by the District Judge/Rent Tribunal, Etah, in Misc. Appeal (RCA)-Nil of 2026.

Appearance for Parties

For the Petitioner(s): Jahar Singh (Kashyap), Stuti Singh.

For the Respondent(s): C.S.C., Prem Chandra, Sudhanshu Kumar.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

Heard Sri Ram Lakhan Kashyap, learned Advocate holding brief of Sri Jahar Singh (Kashyap), learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Swapnil Kumar, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Sudhanshu Kumar, learned counsel appearing for the respondent.

2. The present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India questions the legality of the order dated 20.11.2025 passed by the Rent Authority, Etah in Rent Case No.629 of 2024 instituted under Section 21(2) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, as affirmed by the judgment and order dated 07.01.2026 passed by the District Judge/Rent Tribunal, Etah in Misc. Appeal (RCA)-Nil of 2026. By the aforesaid orders, the petitioner's application seeking examination by a handwriting expert of the disputed signatures appearing on a photocopy of the alleged rent agreement dated 22.09.2005, by comparison with the admitted signatures of late Ansar Hussain, predecessor-in-interest of respondent, has been rejected.

3. The controversy is narrow, but it raises an issue of evidentiary reliability of considerable importance. The principal question that arises for consideration is whether disputed signatures appearing on a photocopy of an alleged rent agreement can legitimately be referred for scientific examination by a handwriting expert in the absence of the original document.

4. The petitioner's case, in brief, is that a rent agreement dated 22.09.2005, which was subsequently notarized on 16.12.2005, was executed between him and late Ansar Hussain in respect of the shop in dispute. It is asserted that, pursuant thereto, the petitioner entered into possession of the premises, established his tailoring business therein, and has continued to occupy the premises as a tenant upon payment of rent in terms of the said agreement.

5. The respondent instituted proceedings before the Rent Authority on 29.04.2024 under Section 21(2) of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, seeking eviction of the petitioner from the shop in dispute. The proceedings were registered as Rent Case No.629 of 2024. In his written statement, the petitioner relied upon the aforesaid rent agreement and pleaded that the signatures appearing thereon were those of late Ansar Hussain, the predecessor-in-interest of the respondent. On that basis, it was contended that the provision under sub-sections (3) and (6) of Section 4 of the Act, 2021 were inapplicable to the facts of the case.

6. During the pendency of the proceedings, the petitioner moved an application praying that the disputed signatures appearing on the photocopy of the alleged rent agreement be referred to a handwriting expert for comparison with the admitted signatures of late Ansar Hussain available on the rent receipts and other admitted documents.

7. The Rent Authority rejected the application principally on the ground that the original rent agreement had not been produced and that the proposed comparison was sought to be undertaken solely on the basis of a photocopy. It held that, in the absence of the original document, no useful purpose would be served by referring the disputed signatures for scientific examination by a handwriting expert.

8. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioner preferred an appeal before the Rent Tribunal. By the impugned judgment dated 07.01.2026, the Tribunal affirmed the order of the Rent Authority, holding that an expert opinion founded upon a photocopy could not furnish dependable scientific assistance for adjudication. The Tribunal further noticed the respondents' objection regarding the admissibility of the alleged rent agreement under Section 35 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 and found no ground warranting interference with the order passed by the Rent Authority.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the authorities below have committed manifest illegality in rejecting the application seeking examination by a handwriting expert. It is contended that the respondent, while deposing before the Rent Authority, admitted that he was acquainted with and could identify the signatures of his deceased father, late Ansar Hussain. He is also stated to have admitted the initial rate of rent and the agreed mode of its enhancement. In view of these admissions, it is urged that there existed sufficient foundational material to justify comparison of the disputed signatures appearing on the alleged rent agreement with the admitted signatures of late Ansar Hussain available on the rent receipts. It is, therefore, submitted that denial of such opportunity has caused serious prejudice to the petitioner and has resulted in failure of justice.

10. Per contra, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the respondent supports the impugned orders and submits that no interference is warranted in exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution. As a preliminary objection, it is contended that the appeal preferred against the order of the Rent Authority itself was not maintainable, the order under challenge being purely interlocutory in nature. On merits, it is submitted that scientific comparison of handwriting or signatures cannot ordinarily be undertaken on the basis of a mere photocopy, since the original characteristics of the writing, including line quality, pen pressure, ink flow, stroke formation and other microscopic features essential for forensic examination, are not preserved in such a reproduction. Reliance in this regard has been placed upon the decision of the Andhra Pradesh High Court in T. Lakshmi v. State of Andhra Pradesh.

11. It is further submitted that the factum of tenancy is not in dispute and, therefore, no material prejudice would be caused to the petitioner by refusal of the prayer for expert examination. It is also contended that the alleged rent agreement is neither registered nor duly stamped and is consequently confronted with objections regarding its admissibility under Section 35 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899 and Section 49 of the Registration Act, 1908 read with Section 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. According to the respondents, directing expert examination of a document suffering from such foundational infirmities would be an exercise in futility.

12. The controversy lies in a narrow compass; nevertheless, it raises an issue of evidentiary reliability of considerable significance. The principal question that falls for consideration is whether disputed signatures appearing on a photocopy of an alleged rent agreement constitute a proper foundation for seeking examination by a handwriting expert in the absence of the original document, which alone preserves the characteristics necessary for a meaningful scientific comparison.

13. It is trite that the opinion of a handwriting expert is a relevant fact under the law of evidence. Equally well settled, however, is the principle that such opinion is merely advisory in character and does not conclude the issue. The Court is not bound by the opinion of the expert, which is only one piece of evidence to be evaluated in conjunction with the entire material available on record. In Murari Lal v. State of Madhya Pradesh, the Supreme Court reiterated that expert evidence is intended to assist the Court and not to supplant its judicial function.

14. The aforesaid principle necessarily proceeds on the assumption that the material forwarded for examination is itself capable of scientific scrutiny. A handwriting expert does not merely compare the visual appearance of letters or signatures. The exercise ordinarily involves examination of line quality, pen pressure, rhythm, speed, natural variations, pen lifts, retouching, ink flow and other microscopic characteristics which are ordinarily discernible only from the original writing. A photocopy merely reproduces the visual image of a document and inevitably obliterates these intrinsic forensic features. Consequently, an opinion founded solely upon a photocopy is inherently less dependable than one based upon the original document.

15. The objection in the present case is, therefore, not merely technical but goes to the very reliability of the proposed exercise. If an expert is required to compare disputed signatures appearing on a photocopy with admitted signatures available on original documents, he is deprived of the very indicia which render handwriting examination scientifically meaningful. The risk of distortion, blurring, reduction, shadowing and loss of pressure marks inherent in a photocopy renders the exercise incapable of yielding dependable forensic assistance. In T. Lakshmi v. State of Andhra Pradesh, the Andhra Pradesh High Court observed that comparison of a disputed signature appearing on a photocopy with original signatures is susceptible to mechanical error and defective reproduction. The principle emerging therefrom is that the Court is not required to direct an expert examination where the material itself is inherently unsuitable for reliable scientific comparison.

16. The position assumes greater significance in the facts of the present case where the alleged rent agreement is available only in the form of a photocopy. The petitioner's own case is that the original remained with late Ansar Hussain. The document sought to be examined is, therefore, merely a secondary reproduction. In such circumstances, the Rent Authority cannot be faulted for concluding that the proposed exercise would not materially assist the adjudicatory process.

17. The petitioner has placed considerable reliance upon the alleged admissions made by the respondent, during his deposition, namely, that he could identify the signatures of his deceased father and had admitted the initial rate of rent together with the agreed mode of its enhancement. Those assertions, even if accepted at face value, do not alter the legal position. Admissions undoubtedly constitute relevant evidence, but they do not confer upon a party an indefeasible right to seek expert examination of a document which is unavailable in its original form. Whether a document should be referred for forensic examination depends upon its intrinsic evidentiary worth and the feasibility of obtaining reliable scientific assistance. Collateral admissions cannot improve the forensic reliability of a secondary reproduction.

18. The Rent Tribunal has also noticed the objection regarding the admissibility of the alleged rent agreement under Section 35 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899. This Court refrains from expressing any final opinion on that question, which shall be determined at the appropriate stage in accordance with law. Nevertheless, where the document is not only unavailable in its original form but is also confronted with an objection regarding its admissibility, the authorities below cannot be said to have acted unreasonably in declining to direct an expert examination. In Bidyut Sarkar v. Kanchilal Pal, the Supreme Court reiterated the legal consequences flowing from statutory defects affecting the enforceability of documents under the Stamp Act.

19. The contention that the respondent had admitted certain terms relating to the rent or had stated that he could identify the signatures of his deceased father also does not carry the matter any further. Such statements are matters of evidence whose probative value shall be assessed by the Rent Authority while adjudicating the proceedings on merits. They cannot compel the Court to direct an expert examination which is otherwise rendered impracticable by the non-production of the original document.

20. It is true that some decisions have recognised that, in exceptional cases, an expert may express an opinion on the basis of a clear photocopy. Those authorities, however, do not lay down a rule that every disputed photocopy must invariably be referred for forensic examination. The decisive consideration remains whether the material proposed to be examined is capable of furnishing dependable scientific assistance. That assessment lies within the judicial discretion of the Court concerned. In the facts of the present case, the discretion exercised by the authorities below neither suffers from perversity nor discloses any jurisdictional error warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution.

21. The limits of the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution also deserve emphasis. The jurisdiction is supervisory and not appellate. This Court does not reappreciate the evidence or substitute its own view merely because another view may also be possible. Interference is warranted only where the subordinate court or tribunal has acted without jurisdiction, has failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it, or where the impugned order suffers from patent illegality, manifest perversity or has occasioned a grave miscarriage of justice.

22. Tested on the aforesaid touchstone, the impugned orders disclose no such infirmity. The Rent Authority declined the petitioner's application principally because the original rent agreement had not been produced and the proposed comparison was sought to be undertaken solely on the basis of a photocopy. The Rent Tribunal affirmed that view while also noticing the objection regarding the admissibility of the document under the Indian Stamp Act, 1899. These are manifestly relevant considerations bearing directly upon the feasibility and evidentiary worth of the proposed expert examination. Neither authority ignored any material circumstance nor took into account any irrelevant consideration. The discretion exercised by them is informed by sound legal principles and does not suffer from any jurisdictional error warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution.

23. Significantly, rejection of the application seeking expert opinion does not foreclose the petitioner's right to establish the existence of the alleged tenancy or the terms thereof through other legally admissible evidence. The petitioner remains at liberty to rely upon rent receipts, oral evidence or any other admissible documentary material available on record. The impugned orders merely decline one particular mode of proof which, in the facts and circumstances of the present case, has been found incapable of yielding reliable evidentiary assistance.

24. The contention advanced on behalf of the petitioner that the respondent had admitted certain terms relating to the rent or had stated that he could identify the signatures of his deceased father also does not carry the matter any further. Such statements constitute matters of evidence whose probative value shall fall for consideration by the Rent Authority while deciding the proceedings on merits. They cannot, by themselves, confer upon the petitioner a right to seek expert examination of a document where the foundational requirement for such an exercise, namely production of the original document, is absent. No amount of admissions can dispense with the foundational requirement that the material proposed for forensic examination must itself be capable of reliable scientific scrutiny. An expert opinion cannot be directed merely to undertake a speculative exercise or to overcome the inherent limitations arising from examination of a photocopy of a disputed document.

25. For the reasons recorded hereinabove, this Court is satisfied that the Rent Authority, as affirmed by the Rent Tribunal, exercised its discretion upon relevant and germane considerations. The impugned orders neither suffer from any jurisdictional infirmity nor disclose any patent illegality, manifest perversity or failure of justice warranting interference in exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

26. The petition, being devoid of merit, is, accordingly, dismissed.

27. There shall be no order as to costs.

Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Opposite Parties

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the Magistrate could validly take cognizance of offence and summon the applicants to face trial on the basis of material collected during investigation, including the statements of victim recorded, despite the Investigating Officer having submitted a final report exonerating the applicants on the ground of alibi; and further, whether the plea of alibi, along with disputed questions of fact and reliability of witnesses, could be examined at the pre-trial stage so as to quash the summoning order.

Headnotes

Indian Penal Code, 1860 - ss. 363, 366, 376D, 342 - POCSO Act, 2012 - ss. 3/4 - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - ss. 161, 164, 173(2), 190 - Allegation of gang rape - FIR - Cognizance - Investigating officer submitted Final report - Protest petition - Plea of alibi by accused - Burden of proof on accused - Summoning order - Non-bailable warrant - Impugned - Quashing of - The applicants filed the instant application seeking quashing of order dated 17.02.2025 passed by Special Judge (POCSO Act)/Additional District and Sessions Judge, Aligarh, whereby, upon allowing the protest petition filed by informant against the final report submitted by Investigating Officer, the applicants were summoned to face trial, arising out of a case registered on the allegation that minor daughter of informant had been kidnapped from a market and subjected to gang rape by applicants, which allegations were consistently reiterated by victim in her statements - However, the Investigating Officer, relying upon call detail records, mobile location data, and statements of independent witnesses suggesting that the applicants were present elsewhere at the relevant time and that the informant's family had a history of lodging false cases, submitted a final report holding the applicants to be falsely implicated - Further final report was rejected by trial court on the ground that statements of victim and informant made out a prima facie case, leading the applicants to challenge the summoning order primarily on the plea of alibi and false implication.

Held*:* The 'plea of alibi' can be proved by leading evidence in the trial court and not by relying on material collected by Investigating Officer during the course of investigation - In such a case, the prosecution would have to be given opportunity to cross-examine the defence witness to demonstrate that his testimony was not correct - The Court cannot consider the 'plea of alibi' of an accused at the stage of taking cognizance or framing of charges or summoning the accused - The applicant will have ample opportunity to place their evidence including 'plea of alibi' at the appropriate stage - A finding on veracity of a material relied on by prosecution in a case where the allegations levelled by prosecution disclose a cognizable offence, is not a consideration for High Court while exercising its power u/s 482 Cr.P.C. - Accordingly, application dismissed. (Delivered by Hon'ble Vivek Kumar Singh, J.)

1. Heard Sri Satendra Kumar Upadhyay, learned counsel for the applicants, Sri Abhishek Kumar Shukla, Advocate holding brief of Sri Devesh Kumar Shukla, learned counsel for the opposite party no.2/ informant and Sri Prashant Kumar Singh, learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present application under Section 528 of B.N.S.S. has been filed for quashing the impugned order dated 17.02.2025 passed by the Special Judge (POCSO Act)/ Additional District and Session Judge, Aligarh in Session Trial No.288 of 2025 (State Versus Rajvir and another), arising out of Case Crime No.888 of 2023, under Sections 363, 366, 376D, 342 I.P.C. and Section 3/4 of POCSO Act, Police Station Atrauli, District Aligarh and the order dated 12.06.2025, whereby non-bailable warrant has been issued against the applicants.

3. The brief facts of the case are to the effect that a First Information Report was lodged against an unknown person on 23.12.2023 at 07:11 hours in respect of an alleged incident dated 21.12.2023 at 14:00 hours. The FIR was registered as Case Crime No.888 of 2023, under Sections 363 and 366 IPC at Police Station Atrauli, District Aligarh. It is alleged by the first informant in the FIR that she went to the market along with her daughter. While there, the victim/ daughter of the informant went to get some food but did not return. It appears that an unknown person has enticed away the minor daughter of the first informant. The Investigating Officer recorded the statement of the first informant, who supported the prosecution case and provided the school certificate of the victim, wherein her date of birth was mentioned as 21.08.2008. Therefore, the victim was above 15 years of age at the time of the alleged incident.

4. The victim of the present case was recovered by the police on 13.01.2024 and her statement under Section 161 Cr.P.C. was recorded, wherein she stated that she was about 16 years of age and educated up to Class-8th. She went to the market along with her mother. She was forcibly kidnapped by the applicant no. 2 in a Maruti car. Thereafter, she was gang raped by both the applicants. The statement of the victim was recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. on 29.01.2024 and she again reiterated her earlier statement. She deposed in her statement that she was kidnapped by the applicant No. 1 on 21.12.2023 and she was kept inside a room where gang rape was committed by the applicants. She was set free on 12.01.2024.

5. The victim was medically examined on 13.01.2024 and no external or internal injury was seen on the body of the victim. She was advised for x-ray for age determination. As per the report of the Chief Medical Officer, Aligarh dated 16-01-2024, the victim was about 16-17 years of age.

6. The Investigating Officer recorded statements of the independent witnesses during the course of investigation. The independent witnesses stated that a false case was lodged by the first informant. Earlier, the husband of the present first informant had already lodged another FIR against the applicants alleging therein that his elder daughter was subjected to rape by the applicants. However, after due investigation, the case of rape was found to be false. Now, the present case has been lodged alleging therein that the younger daughter of the informant has been gang raped by the applicants. In fact, the victim stayed at the house of a relative, and a false story was concocted by the father of the victim. In fact, the applicants did not commit any offence as alleged by the victim.

7. The Investigating Officer collected the call detail records of the applicants and found that they were not present at the place of the incident at the relevant time. On the basis of mobile location, the Investigating Officer opined that the applicant no.2-Dauji Ram was present in the Patparganj Industrial Area, New Delhi, and thereafter, on 21.12.2023, he was present in District Bulandshahr and again he returned to Anand Vihar, Delhi on 21.12.2023 at 20:33 hours. On 13.01.2024, the applicant no.2-Dauji Ram was present in Roorkee, Haridwar and Muzaffar Nagar.

8. The victim, as per her mobile location, was found in District Muzaffarnagar on 12.01.2024, and thereafter she was present in Haridwar on 13.01.2024. On the date of the alleged incident i.e. 21.12.2023, applicant no. 2 was present in District Bulandshahr, and on 13.01.2024, he was present in Roorkee, Haridwar and Muzaffarnagar. Similarly, applicant no.1- Rajvir was present in Khurja (Bulandshahr) on 21.12.2023. He was not present in Atrauli (Aligarh) on the date of the alleged incident i.e. 21.12.2023.

9. The Investigating Officer further recorded the statement of Dr. Prabhanshu Sharma, who stated that the applicant no. 1 had been working with him for the past three years, and his attendance record was also verified by the Investigating Officer. It was found by the Investigating Officer that the applicants were present in District Bulandshahr on the date of the alleged incident. Thereafter, the Investigating Officer submitted a final report in this case on 19.05.2024, mentioning therein that the applicants were not present in Atrauli (Aligarh) on the date of the alleged incident.

10. Being aggrieved by the submission of the final report dated 19.05.2024, the first informant/opposite party no. 2 filed a protest petition on 31.01.2025, wherein she prayed that the protest petition be accepted and the final report be rejected. She further prayed that the accused persons be summoned to face the criminal trial.

11. The learned trial court, after hearing the counsel for the informant, allowed the protest petition and summoned applicant no. 1 to face trial under Sections 376D and 342 IPC and Sections 3/4 of the POCSO Act, and applicant no. 2 under Sections 363, 366, 376D, and 342 IPC and Sections 3/4 of the POCSO Act, vide order dated 17.02.2025. It was observed by the learned trial court that the case would run as a State case inasmuch as the victim and the informant, in their statements recorded during the course of investigation, had supported the prosecution case and a prima facie case was made out against the applicants.

12. Being aggrieved by the order dated 17.02.2025, the applicants have filed the present application under Section 528 BNSS.

13. It is submitted by the learned counsel for the applicants that the applicants have been falsely implicated in the present case. The Investigating Officer, after due investigation, found that the applicants were falsely implicated and, therefore, no charge sheet was submitted against them. There is no direct or indirect evidence against the applicants to prosecute them in this case. The informant and her husband Kumar Pal used to lodge false cases against the applicants. Earlier an FIR No.144 of 2022 under Section 376-D IPC was registered against applicant Dauji Ram and his brother Bheesm at Police Station Pali Mukimpur, District Aligarh, wherein elder daughter of the informant, namely, Babita stated that a false case was registered by her family members. Therefore, final report no.34 of 2022 was filed on 12.08.2022. The informant has again lodged a false case against the applicants and there are ample evidence on recorded which makes it clear that the applicants were not present at the place of incident. The leaned court concerned has wrongly and illegally summoned the applicants to face criminal trial vide order dated 17.02.2025.

14. On the other hand, learned A.G.A. as well as the learned counsel for the prosecution have vehemently opposed the prayer and submitted that there is no illegality in the impugned order dated 17.02.2025. The victim, in her statements recorded under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C., had categorically stated that she was subjected to rape by the applicants. In spite of that, the Investigating Officer wrongly and illegally submitted a final report in the case. There was sufficient evidence in the case diary against the applicants, and the learned trial court has rightly and correctly allowed the protest petition and summoned the applicants to face criminal trial. It is further submitted that there is no illegality, impropriety, or jurisdictional error in the impugned order dated 17.02.2025. Therefore, the present application lacks merit and is liable to be dismissed.

15. I have heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

16. Now this Court has to examine as to whether or not, the Magistrate may take cognizance of offence after submission of the final report by the Investigating Officer. Before proceeding further, it is apposite to give reference to Section 190 Cr.P.C., which deals with conditions requisite for initiation of proceedings and also the power of the Magistrate to take cognizance under Section 190 Cr.P.C. Section 190 Cr.P.C. reads as under:-

"190. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, any Magistrate of the first class, and any Magistrate of the second class specially empowered in this behalf under sub-section (2), may take cognizance of any offence-

(a) upon receiving a complaint of facts which constitute such offence;

(b) upon a police report of such facts;

(c) upon information received from any person other than a police officer, or upon his own knowledge, that such offence has been committed."

17. If Magistrate finds that police has not made proper investigation and submitted final report then the following recourse is available to the concerned Magistrate. He may adopt any one of them as the fact and circumstances of the case may require.

I. He may agree with the conclusion arrived at by the police, accept the report and drop the proceedings but before so doing, he shall give opportunity of hearing to the complainant.

II. He may take cognizance under Section 190(1)(b) of Cr.P.C. and issue process straightaway to the accused without being bound by the conclusion of the Investigating Agency where he is satisfied upon the facts discovered or narrated by the police, there is sufficient ground to proceed.

III. He may order further investigation after he is satisfied that investigation was made in perfunctory manner.

IV. Or he may without issuing process or dropping the proceedings may decide to take cognizance under Section 190(1)(a) upon the original complaint or protest petition treating the same as a complaint and proceed to examine the complainant and his witnesses under Section 200 Cr.P.C. and thereafter decide whether complaint should be dismissed or process should be issued.

18. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Minu Kumari and another Vs. State of Bihar and others 2006 (4) SCC 359 has held as under:-

"11. When a report forwarded by the police to the Magistrate under Section 173(2)(i) is placed before him several situations arise. The report may conclude that an offence appears to have been committed by a particular person or persons and in such a case, the Magistrate may either (1) accept the report and take cognizance of the offence and issue process, or (2) may disagree with the report and drop the proceeding, or (3) may direct further investigation under Section 156(3) and require the police to make a further report. The report may on the other hand state that according to the police, no offence appears to have been committed. When such a report is placed before the Magistrate he has again option of adopting one of the three courses open i.e., (1) he may accept the report and drop the proceeding; or (2) he may disagree with the report and take the view that there is sufficient ground for further proceeding, take cognizance of the offence and issue process; or (3) he may direct further investigation to be made by the police under Section 156(3). The position is, therefore, now well-settled that upon receipt of a police report under Section 173(2) a Magistrate is entitled to take cognizance of an offence under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code even if the police report is to the effect that no case is made out against the accused. The Magistrate can take into account the statements of the witnesses examined by the police during the investigation and take cognizance of the offence complained of and order the issue of process to the accused. Section 190(1)(b) does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the Investigating Officer gives an opinion that the investigation has made out a case against the accused. The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the Investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit, exercise of his powers under Section 190(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused. In this case Magistrate rightly summoned the accuse under Section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C."

19. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sunil Bharti Mittal Vs. Central Bureau of Investigation 2015 (4) SCC 609, has held as under:-

"... even if a person is not named as an accused by the police in the final report submitted, the Court would be justified in taking cognizance of the offence and to summon the accused if it feels that the evidence and material collected during investigation justifies prosecution of the accused (See Union of India v. Prakash P. Hinduja and Anr. 2003 (6)

SCC 195). Thus, the Magistrate is empowered to issue process against some other person, who has not been charge-sheeted, but there has to be sufficient material in the police report showing his involvement. In that case, the Magistrate is empowered to ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and apply his mind independently on the facts emerging from the investigation and take cognizance of the case. At the same time, it is not permissible at this stage to consider any material other than that collected by the investigating officer."*

20. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dr. Nupur Talwar Vs. C.B.I. Delhi & another, A.I.R. 2012 SC 87, has held that where the Magistrate, while rejecting the final report submitted by Investigating Officer, has taken cognizance under Section 190(1)(b) Cr.P.C., the order of Magistrate should not be interfered with unless it is perverse or based on no material. The Superior Court should exercise utmost restraint and caution before interfering with an order of taking cognizance by the Magistrate otherwise the holding of trial will be stalled. The Superior Court should maintain this restrain to uphold the rule or law and sustain the faith of the common man in the administration of justice.

21. Reverting to the facts of the present case, the learned Magistrate has taken cognizance of the offence, considering the statements of the victim recorded during the course of investigation under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. No other material except the material collected by the Investigating Officer was taken into consideration.

22. The cognizance of the offence can be taken on the basis of the police reports as envisaged in Clause (b) of Section 190(1) Cr.P.C. irrespective of the opinion of the Investigating Officer that prima facie no case is made out, if the material collected and the statements of the witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., in the opinion of the Magistrate, are sufficient to make out a prima facie case against the accused persons.

23. Thus the position is very clear and well settled that upon receipt of a police report under Section 173(2) a Magistrate is entitled to take cognizance of an offence under Section 190(1)(b) of the Code even if the police report is to the effect that no case is made out against the accused. The Magistrate can take into account the statements of the witnesses examined by the police during the investigation and take cognizance of the offence complained of and order the issuance of process to the accused. Section 190(1)(b) does not lay down that a Magistrate can take cognizance of an offence only if the investigating officer gives an opinion that the investigation has made out a case against the accused. The Magistrate can ignore the conclusion arrived at by the investigating officer and independently apply his mind to the facts emerging from the investigation and may take cognizance of the case, if he thinks fit in exercise of his powers under Section 190(1)(b) and direct the issue of process to the accused.

24. The Investigating Officer did not submit charge-sheet in this case against the applicants on the basis of their call detail records and statements of some witnesses, who stated that the applicants were not present at the place of incident and they have been falsely implicated by parents of the victim due to ulterior motives. The plea of alibi was considered by the Investigating Officer and he completely ignored the statements given by the victim under Sections 161 and 164 Cr.P.C. The Investigating Officer committed gross illegality by filing final report, relying upon the statements of the witnesses who supported plea of alibi of the applicants. The investigation cannot unilaterally decide an alibi is true just because a few witnesses say so, especially if there is a prima facie evidence linking the accused to the crime.

25. In fact, the burden to prove the 'plea of alibi' is upon the accused, which they would do by way of adducing evidence in the trial proceedings and not by filing some affidavits or statements purported to have been recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C. The inconsistency or contradictions in the statement of the witnesses, cannot be examined / appreciated at this stage.

26. The 'plea of alibi' can be proved by leading evidence in the trial court and not by relying on the material collected by the Investigating Officer during the course of the investigation. In such a case, the prosecution would have to be given opportunity to cross-examine the defence witness to demonstrate that his testimony was not correct. This Court also in exercise of its inherent powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C. / 528 B.N.S.S. cannot consider the 'plea of alibi' of an accused at the stage of taking cognizance or framing of charges or summoning the accused. The applicant-accused will have ample opportunity to place their evidence including 'plea of alibi' at the appropriate stage.

27. Therefore, the 'plea of alibi' of the applicant cannot be considered at this stage in view of the settled law. The 'plea of alibi' taken by the defence is required to be proved only after prosecution has proved its case against the accused. In the present case, said condition is yet to come. The defence is at liberty to raise such plea before the trial court at the appropriate stage.

28. It is trite law that the power of quashing criminal proceedings should be exercised with circumspection and that too, in the rarest of rare cases and it was not justified for this Court in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the Final report or the complaint. A finding on the veracity of a material relied on by the prosecution in a case where the allegations levelled by the prosecution disclose a cognizable offence, is not a consideration for the High Court while exercising its power under Section 482 Cr.P.C. This view is fortified by the decision of the Apex Court in Mahendra K.C. v. State of Karnataka and Ors. Reported in AIR 2021 SC 5711.

29. In recent relevant judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Shafiya Khan @ Shakuntala Prajapati vs. State of U.P., reported in (2022) 4 SCC 549, it was observed as under;-

"16. It is no doubt true that the power of quashing of criminal proceedings should be exercised very sparingly and with circumspection and that too in rarest of the rare cases and it was not justified for the Court in embarking upon an enquiry as to the reliability or genuineness or otherwise of the allegations made in the FIR or the complaint and that the inherent powers do not confer any arbitrary jurisdiction on the Court to act according to its whims and fancies."

30. In another judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Ramveer Upadhyay and Another Vs. State of UP and another reported in 2022 SCC online SC 484, it has been held as under:-

"39. In our considered opinion criminal proceedings cannot be nipped in the bud by exercise of jurisdiction under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. only because the complaint has been lodged by a political rival. It is possible that a false complaint may have been lodged at the behest of a political opponent. However, such possibility would not justify interference under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C. to quash the criminal proceedings. As observed above, the possibility of retaliation on the part of the petitioners by the acts alleged, after closure of the earlier criminal case cannot be ruled out. The allegations in the complaint constitute offence under the Attrocities Act. Whether the allegations are true or untrue, would have to be decided in the trial. In exercise of power under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C., the Court does not examine the correctness of the allegations in a complaint except in exceptionally rare cases where it is patently clear that the allegations are frivolous or do not disclose any offence. The Complaint Case No.19/2018 is not such a case which should be quashed at the inception itself without further Trial. The High Court rightly dismissed the application under Section 482 of the Cr.P.C."

31. In view of the aforesaid, this Court finds that the submissions made by the learned counsel for the applicants call for adjudication on pure disputed questions of fact which may adequately be adjudicated upon only by the trial court and while doing so even the submissions made on points of law can also be more appropriately gone into by the trial court in this case. This Court does not deem it proper, and therefore cannot be persuaded to have a pre-trial before the actual trial begins. The prayer for quashing the entire proceedings is refused as I do not see any abuse of the Court's process either.

32. This Court, however, may clarify that whatever is said in this judgment is purely tentative and limited to the purpose of judging the worth of the prayer to quash the impugned orders. It is and ought not be regarded by the Trial Court as any kind of a comment or evaluation about evidence, which is yet to surface during trial. The truth of the prosecution case has to be established beyond doubt at the trial in accordance with law. However, this Court is of opinion that this is not a case, where the prosecution ought to be scuttled at the threshold in the exercise of powers under Section 482 Cr.P.C./ 528 BNSS.

33. With the aforesaid observations, the present application under Section 528 BNSS is, accordingly, dismissed.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the Appellate Authority (Commissioner) constituted u/s 6 of U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970, while hearing an appeal against an externment order passed u/s 3/4 of said Act, possesses the power to remand the matter back to District Magistrate for fresh adjudication on merits, when s. 6(3) of Act only empowers the Appellate Authority to either confirm the order, with or without modification, or to set it aside.

Headnotes

U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970 - ss. 3/4, 6 - Appeal - Commissioner - Power of - Remanded matter - Scope - The petitioner, against whom a report of DCRB, District Aligarh dated 05.03.2024 disclosed a criminal history of nineteen criminal cases pending since 2009, 2012 and 2021, was first proceeded against under aforesaid section on the basis of only two of said cases, which proceedings culminated in an order dated 25.09.2024 of Additional District Magistrate (Administration), Aligarh holding that the petitioner did not fall within the definition of 'Goonda', pursuant whereto the show cause notice was withdrawn and the proceedings closed without any appeal being preferred by the State - After a gap of about three months, a second round of proceedings was initiated on 17.12.2024 on the basis of four different criminal cases out of above nineteen cases, culminating in an order dated 01.11.2025 passed by Additional District Magistrate (Administration), Aligarh externing the petitioner for six months - The petitioner, aggrieved thereby, preferred an appeal u/s 6 of Act before the Commissioner, who, by order dated 17.12.2025, while noting the contradictory stands taken by District Magistrate on the basis of the same set of criminal antecedents, set aside the externment order dated 01.11.2025 but remanded the matter back to District Magistrate for fresh adjudication after affording opportunity of hearing to the parties - The said order of remand has been assailed by petitioner in the instant writ petition on the ground that s. 6 of the Act confers no power of remand upon the Appellate Authority.

Held*:* It is very much apparent that the appellate authority has exceeded its jurisdiction in remanding the matter back to the District Magistrate, since, no such power has been vested in it and only on this short technical ground the appeal of petitioner deserves to be allowed - The appellate authority has deemed appropriate to quash the impugned order of District Magistrate dated 01.11.2025, which is perfectly legal - It is beyond comprehension, if the petitioner was having a criminal history of 19 cases way back in the year 2021 why only 2 and 4 cases were considered for initiating proceedings against the petitioner - Nothing had stopped the State from proceeding against the petitioner by taking all the above 19 cases into consideration, but the State has not chosen to do so - It is further pertinent to mention that after the year 2021, no criminal history of petitioner has been brought to the knowledge of the Court - It is further apparent that the petitioner is on bail in all the mentioned cases and has not been convicted in any criminal case to date - Therefore, the order of appellate authority i.e. the Commissioner remanding the matter back to District Magistrate is unsustainable and liable to be set aside but the order of appellate authority setting aside the impugned order dated 01.11.2025 is perfectly sustainable and liable to be upheld - Accordingly, petition allowed. (Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. The instant writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been filed for the following reliefs:

"(i) To issue a writ, order or direction in the nature of certiorari, quashing the order of the Commissioner dated 17.12.2025, to the extent, the case has been remanded back to the Additional District Magistrate Administration, District Aligarh for fresh adjudication along with the further proceedings initiated in pursuance of the order of the Commissioner."

2. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the proceedings under Section 3/4 of the U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970 were initiated against the petitioner by instituting Case No.2586 of 2024, Computerized Case No.D202418020002586 (State vs. Anil Kumar), on the basis of only two criminal cases i.e. Case Crime No.147 of 2021, under Sections 417, 420 I.P.C. and 6(2)(d) /9(1)/23 and 37 U.P. Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976 and Case crime No.148 of 2021 under sections417,420 I.P.C. and 6(2)(d)/9(1)/23 and 37 U.P. Regulation of Cold Storage Act, 1976. Learned counsel submitted that besides the above criminal cases, no other criminal case was taken into consideration by the State and the Additional District Magistrate (Administration), Aligarh vide order dated 25.09.2024 concluded that the petitioner does not fall within the category of Goonda defined under the Act, 1970, hence, a show cause notice dated 22.03.2024 issued to the petitioner was taken back and the proceedings was closed. Learned counsel further submitted that the order dated 25.09.2024 was not challenged by filing appeal by the State.

3. It was further submitted that again after a duration of about three months on 17.12.2024, fresh proceedings on the basis of Case Crime No.230 of 2021, under Section 420 I.P.C., Section 60(1) of U.P. Excise Act, 1910, P.S. Gonda, District Aligarh, Case Crime No.232 of 2021, under Section 2/3 of U.P. Gangsters and Anti-Social Activities (Prevention) Act, P.S. Gonda, District Aligarh, Case Crime No.269 of 2021, under Section 272, 273, 420, 467, 468, 471, 120-B, 304 I.P.C. and Section 60 (A) of U.P. Excise Act, P.S. Khair and Case Crime No.276 of 2021, under Section 272, 273, 420, 467, 468, 471 I.P.C. and Section 60 (A) of U.P. Excise Act, P.S. Khair, District Aligarh were initiated against the petitioner and by impugned order dated 01.11.2025 passed by the Additional District Magistrate (Administration), Aligarh, the petitioner was externed for six months from the limits of District Aligarh. This order was challenged by the petitioner by filing appeal being Case No.1782 of 2025, Computerized Case No.C202518000001782 (Anil Kumar vs. State of U.P.), under Section 6 of the U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970 before the Commissioner, Aligarh Division, Aligarh, which was partly allowed and it was concluded that the District Magistrate has passed contradictory orders, as such, the impugned order dated 01.11.2025 was set aside but the case was remanded back to the District Magistrate for deciding it afresh on merits after giving opportunity of hearing to the parties.

4. Learned counsel submitted that under the provisions of Section 6 of the U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970, there is no provision to remand the matter by the appellate authority. The appellate authority can either confirm the order, with or without modification or set it aside, and may, pending disposal of the appeal, stay the operation of the order but it cannot remand the matter back to the District Magistrate for deciding it afresh on merits after giving opportunity of hearing to the parties.

5. Learned counsel further submitted that as per the report of the DCRB, District Aligarh dated 05.03.2024, the petitioner has the criminal history of following 19 cases:-

i. Case Crime No.220/2021 under Section 272,273,420,467,468,471 IPC and 60(A) UP Excise Act, PS Akrabad, District Aligarh.

x. Case Crime No.370/2012 under Section 60 UP Excise Act, PS Gonda, District Aligarh.

xi. Case Crime No.80/2009 under Section 60,62,63,64 UP Excise Act, Section 102/103 Trademark Act and Section 255,259,260,272,273,467,468,471,419,420 IPC, PS Iglas, District Aligarh.

xii. Case Crime No.108/2009 under Section 2/3 Gangster Act, PS Iglas, District Aligarh.

xvii. Case Crime No.302/21 under Section 2/3 Gangster Act, PS Akarabad, District Aligarh.

xviii. Case Crime No.30/2021 under Section 420 IPC and 60(A) UP Excise Act, PS Gonda, District Aligarh.

xix. Case Crime No.250/2021 under section 120B,195,506 IPC, PS Gabhana, District Aligarh.

6. Learned counsel submitted that all the above cases relate to the year 2009, 2012 and 2021, prior and subsequent to it no criminal act has been committed by the petitioner. He further submitted that in the first proceeding initiated under the Act, 1970, only two criminal cases being Case Crime No.147 of 2021 and 148 of 2021, Police Station Gonda, District Aligarh were considered for initiating proceedings under Section 3/4 of the Act, 1970 whereas at that time also the petitioner was having a criminal history of the above 19 cases as mentioned in the report of DCRB, District Aligarh. Learned counsel further submitted that again the second proceedings under the Act, 1970 were initiated on 17.12.2024 whereby only four cases namely Case Crime No.230 of 2021, 232 of 2021 both of Police Station Gonda, District Aligarh, Case Crime No.269 of 2021 and Case Crime No.276 of 2021 both of Police Station Khair, District Aligarh were considered for initiating the proceedings under Section 3/4 of the Act, 1970 against the petitioner and by order dated 01.11.2025, the petitioner was externed for a duration of six months from the limits of District of Aligarh, which has been subsequently set aside by the Commissioner Aligarh Division, Aligarh by order dated 17.12.2025 but the matter has also been remanded back to the District Magistrate, Aligarh for considering it afresh on merits after giving opportunity of hearing to the parties.

7. Learned counsel submitted that it is apparent that the State has selectively decided to take up cases against the petitioner and has only mentioned two cases in the first round of litigation and only mentioned four cases in the second round of litigation whereas the State was aware of the criminal history of the accused whereby 19 criminal cases were pending against him till the year 2021. Learned counsel submitted that the State cannot selectively decide to proceed against the petitioner by taking few cases and leaving the other and by repeatedly initiating proceedings against the petitioner under the Act, 1970, which only proves that the petitioner was politically prosecuted for the alleged acts. He further submitted that the petitioner has not been convicted in any case and he is on bail in all the cases. With these submissions, it was prayed that the order of remand is illegal and in view of this, the order of the appellate authority setting aside the impugned order of the District Magistrate dated 01.11.2025 be sustained and accordingly, the writ petition be allowed.

8. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submitted that from the documents annexed with the writ petition, it is apparent that the petitioner is having a long criminal history and till the year 2021, 19 criminal cases for different offences were pending against the petitioner, which is apparent from the report of DCRB, District Aligarh.

9. Learned A.G.A. submitted that in view of the long criminal history of the petitioner, it would be fair to assume that the petitioner is a Goonda, who has already been externed for a duration of six months by the District Magistrate, Aligarh by impugned order dated 01.11.2025. Learned counsel could not dispute that under Section 6 of the Act, 1970, there is no power to remand the case to the District Magistrate for deciding it afresh on merits.

10. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the documents submitted with the writ petition.

11. It is apparent from the report of DCRB, District Aligarh that 19 criminal cases for different offences were pending against the petitioner till the year 2021 but only two cases being Case Crime No.147 of 2021 and 148 of 2021, Police Station Gonda, District Aligarh were chosen to initiate proceedings against the petitioner under Section 3/4 of the Act, 1970, which were ultimately dropped by the Additional District Magistrate (Administration), Aligarh, vide order dated 25.09.2024. It is further apparent that again after only a gap of about three months on 17.12.2024, a second round of proceedings under the Act, 1970 were initiated against the petitioner on the basis of only four cases being Case Crime No.230 of 2021, 232 of 2021, both registered at Police Station Gonda, District Aligarh, Case Crime No.269 of 2021 and 276 of 2021, both registered at Police Station Khair, District Aligarh. It is apparent that all the 19 cases pending against the petitioner till the year 2021 were in the knowledge of the State at the time of initiating first round of proceedings under the Act, 1970 against the petitioner but 17 of them were deliberately not taken into consideration at that time. It is further evident that the appellate authority i.e. the Commissioner Aligarh Division, Aligarh has duly considered the above facts and vide impugned order dated 17.12.2025, it has specifically recorded that on the basis of same criminal cases, two contradictory orders could not have been passed by the District Magistrate, Aligarh.

12. In view of this contradictory stand of the District Magistrate, the appellate authority has set aside the impugned order of the District Magistrate dated 01.11.2025 and remanded back the matter to him for deciding it afresh on merits after giving opportunity of hearing to the parties.

13. Section 6 of the Act, 1970 reads as under:-

6.Appeal:-(1) Any person aggrieved by an order made under section 3,section 4 or section 5 may appeal to the Commissioner within fifteen days from the date of such order.*

(2) The appellant or his counsel shall not be entitled to inspect or to be informed of any record which was not disclosed to him at the inquiry, if any, held under section 3.

(3) The Commissioner may either confirm the order, with or without modification, or set it aside, and may, pending disposal of the appeal, stay the operation of the order subject to such terms, if any, as he thinks fit.

14. It is apparent that Section 6 of the Act, 1970 only vests the appellate authority the jurisdiction to either confirm the order, with or without modification, or to set it aside but the appellate authority cannot remand the matter back to the District Magistrate for deciding it afresh on merits under Section 3/4 of the Act, 1970.

15. It is very much apparent that the appellate authority has exceeded its jurisdiction in remanding the matter back to the District Magistrate, since, no such power has been vested in it and only on this short technical ground the appeal of the petitioner deserves to be allowed. The appellate authority has deemed appropriate to quash the impugned order of District Magistrate dated 01.11.2025, which is perfectly legal. It is beyond comprehension, if the petitioner was having a criminal history of 19 cases way back in the year 2021 why only 2 and 4 cases were considered for initiating proceedings under the Act, 1970 against the petitioner. Nothing had stopped the State from proceeding against the petitioner by taking all the above 19 cases into consideration, but the State has not chosen to do so.

16. It is further pertinent to mention here that after the year 2021, no criminal history of the petitioner has been brought to the knowledge of this Court. It is further apparent that the petitioner is on bail in all the above mentioned cases and has not been convicted in any criminal case to date. Therefore, the order of the appellate authority i.e. the Commissioner Aligarh Division, Aligarh remanding the matter back to the District Magistrate, Aligarh, is unsustainable and is liable to be set aside but the order of the appellate authority setting aside the impugned order dated 01.11.2025 is perfectly sustainable and is liable to be upheld.

17. In view of the above, the writ petition preferred by the petitioner deserves to be allowed and is accordingly, allowed.

18. Accordingly, the impugned order dated 17.12.2025 passed by the Commissioner Aligarh Division, Aligarh whereby the matter has been remanded back to the District Magistrate, Aligarh is set aside and the impugned order, whereby the order passed by the District Magistrate,Aligarh dated 01.11.2025 has been set aside, is upheld.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the impugned FIR registered against the petitioners, who obstructed and assaulted the Police and Child Line Team while the latter were attempting to prevent the child marriage of a minor Muslim girl aged about 16 years, is liable to be quashed on the ground that, under the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937, a girl who has attained puberty is competent to marry, notwithstanding the provisions of Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006 and Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012.

Headnotes

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - ss. 191(2), 132, 121(1), 352 and 351(2) - Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937 - s. 2(a) - Majority Act, 1875 - s. 3 - Age of marriage - Muslim Personal Law - Police and Child Line Team acted to rescue minor and prevent child marriage - Validity of - Allegations of assault, abuse, threats - Prima facie offence disclosed - FIR - Quashing of - The impugned FIR dated 15.02.2026 was lodged by Sub-Inspector upon an occurrence wherein he, along with members of the Child Line Team had proceeded to Village Sunpeda Baksuwa upon receiving information of an impending marriage of Sonam, daughter of Taufiq, a minor aged about 16 years, and, upon the Child Line Team disclosing their intention of producing the minor before the Child Welfare Committee, the petitioners, nineteen in number, along with about fifty unidentified persons, abused and threatened the police personnel and members of Child Line Team and forcibly took away the victim from the custody of case worker, compelling the police party and the Child Line Team to escape to save their lives, whereafter the victim was eventually rescued and produced in safekeeping - The petitioners, aggrieved by registration of FIR, instituted the instant writ petition seeking its quashing.

Held*:* There was a determined attempt to marry a girl of by her parents and community while she was below 18 years of age - She was being married contrary to mandate of PCMA, and if married, in all likelihood and even logically, would have led to a transgression of POCSO Act - If, therefore, in a position as the present one, the Police and Child Line Team swung into action and rescued the victim, they were indeed acting within the four corners of law and most certainly in the bona fide discharge of their duties under the law - The Police and Child Line Team were conscious of their duties under PCMA and acting to prevent a possible violation of POCSO Act - While they were about their task in rescuing the victim, they were abused and threatened, and according to allegations in FIR, had to save their lives from the aggression of petitioners and other unnamed offenders - The victim was forcibly taken away from their care and custody, till she was finally rescued - This is certainly a case where obstruction in the performance of duties of a government servant is prima facie made out - There is no medical report on record to justify the invocation of ss. 121(1) and 132 BNS, no overt acts having been assigned - The ingredients of s. 351(2) BNS are not disclosed as no alarm was caused in mind of informant - Accordingly, writ petition dismissed, interim stay order vacated. [Paras 12 to 15] (E-13)

ORIGINAL JURISDICTION: Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. - 4846 of 2026

From the FIR dated 15.02.2026 in Crime No. 54 of 2026, Police Station Kakor, District Bulandshahr.

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for the Petitioner(s):

Adv. for the Respondent(s):

1. This writ petition has been instituted with a prayer that the First Information Report (for short, 'FIR') dated 15.02.2026, giving rise to Crime No. 54 of 2026, under Sections 191(2), 132, 121(1), 352 and 351(2) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 ('BNS', in short), Police Station Kakor, District Bulandshahr, be quashed.

2. The petitioners are nineteen in number. The FIR in this case has been lodged by Sub-Inspector Vinay Kumar, posted at P.S. Kakor, District Bulandshahr. The FIR is about the Police and the Child Line Team endeavouring to prevent the petitioners from going ahead with the marriage of a minor, Sonam daughter of Taufiq and the offence that was allegedly committed by the petitioners, vis-a-vis the police personnel and the Child Line Team as they went about the enterprise of preventing this child marriage. According to the Sub-Inspector Vinay Kumar, in his FIR addressed to the Station House Officer, P.S. Kakor, District Bulandshahr, he has said that the informant along with the In-charge of the Child Line Team, Bulandshahr, Abhishek Kumar, Neeraj Kumar Sharma, case worker, Km. Gulista, case worker and Sub-Inspector Dhani Ram, also from P.S. Kakor, Bulandshahr, proceeded together to Village Sunpeda Baksuwa, the place about which they had received information of the impending child marriage of Sonam daughter of Taufiq aged about 16 years. They left P.S. Kakor vide G.D. Entry No.18 dated 15.02.2026 at 11.29 a.m. Their object was to prevent the child marriage. They reached the victim's house in Village Sunpeda Baksuwa and members of the Child Line Team spoke to Sonam's parents, besides the victim herself. After inquiries into the matter, the members of the Child Line Team disclosed their intention of producing her before the Child Welfare Committee, Bulandshahr, and asked the victim and her parents to come along with them for the purpose of the aforesaid production. Thereupon, men and women present there, nineteen of whom are named and are the writ petitioners here, besides fifty others unknown, abused the Police and the Child Line Team personnel, threatened them and forcibly took away the victim from the custody of Km. Gulista of the Child Line Committee.

3. The Police and members of the Child Line Team, facing aggression of the petitioners, somehow escaped in order to save their life. This act of the petitioners, according to the informant, constituted obstruction in the discharge of duties by a public servant. The Police and the Child Line Team, tiding over these odds, somehow managed to rescue Sonam and in the safekeeping of Km. Gulista (Member, Child Line Team), brought her away. The nineteen of the petitioners are nominated in the FIR, as already said, besides the fifty other offenders, whose identity could not be ascertained. It is said by the first informant that he has video-graphed the entire occurrence, which is available with him. It is on these allegations that the impugned FIR has been registered against the petitioners.

4. Heard Ms. Pooja, learned Counsel for the petitioners in support of the motion to admit this petition to hearing and Mr. Ghanshyam Kumar, learned Additional Government Advocate-I along with Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate, who have opposed the motion.

5. Ms. Pooja, learned Counsel for the petitioners, has been at pains to show to us that under the Shariat Law applicable to Muslims, a girl, after she attains the age of puberty generally regarded as 15 years, is competent to marry. The Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006 (for short, 'the PCMA') would not affect the personal law of the petitioners about marriage. It has been pointed out that under Section 3 of the Majority Act, 1875, though the age of majority stipulated for a person is 18 years, Section 2 thereof carries a non obstante clause, excluding laws relating to marriage, dower, divorce and adoption from the purview of the said Act. Learned Counsel for the petitioners has also referred to us Section 2 of the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat) Application Act, 1937 (for short, 'the Shariat Law') to submit that the aforesaid provision too carries a non obstante clause, which reads:

"2. Application of Personal Law to Muslims-.Notwithstanding any custom or usage to the contrary, in all questions (save questions relating to agricultural land) regarding intestate succession, special property of females, including personal properly inherited or obtained under contract or gift or any other provision of Personal Law. marriage, dissolution of marriage, including talaq, ila, zihar, lian, khula and mubaraat, maintenance, dower, guardianship, gifts, trusts and trust properties, and wakfs (other than charities and charitable institutions and charitable and religious endowments) the rule of decision in cases where the parties are Muslims shall be the Muslim Personal Law (Shariat)."

6. Speaking for ourselves, though we are aware that there is division of opinion amongst the High Courts, whether a minor who is married under the Muslim Law, would be governed by the provisions of the Personal Law or the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 (for short, 'POCSO Act') and the PCMA. If we may dare say, we are in complete agreement with the reasoning of P.V. Kunhikrishnan, J. in Moidutty Musliyar and others v. Sub Inspector Vadakkencherry Police Station and others, 2024 SCC OnLine Ker 4188 that no personal law can wipe out the prohibition of child marriage brought about by the PCMA, and the effect of the POCSO Act, which renders sexual intercourse with a child, that is a person below 18 years, a crime under that statute. The age of marriage, in our considered opinion, for every citizen of the country, irrespective of religion, is that, that is spelt out by the PCMA. Also, it is equally true that if the marriage of a person below 18 years were permitted, carnal relations being inseparable almost form the institution of marriage, it would be an acknowledged violation of the POCSO Act. The PCMA and the POCSO Act are statutes that are based on public health and national policy in this regard. They have a scientific understanding to them, legislatively translated into prohibitory statutes and there can be no escape from it for anyone.

7. Given the fact that the Majority Act by Section 2(a) makes the stipulated age inapplicable to the capacity of persons to act in the matter of marriage, amongst others, is besides the point because the PCMA is a much later statute and so is the POCSO Act. By Section 1(2) of the PCMA, it extends to the whole of India and apply also to all citizens of India, without and beyond India. A later statute, which is all encompassing, that is for all citizens, would prevail over the exception made in the Majority Act, 1875. It may also be noted that the marriage performed in violation of the PCMA may be viodable and not void, but the act of performing such a marriage by different parties is punishable by law. The offences under the PCMA are cognizable and non-bailable by virtue of Section 15 thereof. Despite the clear exposition of the law by the Supreme Court in Independent Thought v. Union of India and another, (2017) 10 SCC 800, the controversy has continued with some High Courts opining that age of majority and the capacity to marry for Muslims would be governed by the Shariat Law, nonetheless. This question again arose before the Supreme Court in Society For Enlightenment & Voluntary Action v. Union of India, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 2922. In that case, their Lordships have struck a note of doubt pending passage of the Prohibition of Child Marriage (Amending) Bill 2021, introduced in Parliament on 21st December 2021. The following remarks of their Lordships in Society For Enlightenment (supra) are relevant:

"X. Suggestions

212. In the course of this judgment, we have traced the full breadth of the law against child marriage. The PCMA is the central legislation governing the issue on the subject. In light of the Constitutional guarantees accruing to children, we observe certain gaps in the PCMA. Absent a Constitutional challenge or a case being argued, we resist from making declarations and restrict ourselves to making suggestions for the scrutiny of the Union. The legal question on these issues, however, is kept open if it were to come before a Constitutional court in an appropriate proceeding.

213. The issue of the interface of personal laws with the prohibition of child marriage under the PCMA has been a subject of some confusion. The Union in its note of submission filed after the judgment was reserved in the case has stated that this Court may direct that the PCMA prevails over personal law. The note states as follows:

"9. As a way forward, Ministry of Women & Child Development has following inputs to provide for kind consideration of the Hon'ble Court

i. There are conflicting pronouncements by various High Courts about the precedence of the Prohibition of Child Marriage Act (PCMA), 2006 over the personal laws. Hence, Hon'ble Court may consider issuing directions pronouncing that the PCMA will prevail over the personal laws governing marriage.

214. Details of the conflicting opinions were not furnished in the submissions by either party to these proceedings. The PCMA states nothing on the validity of the marriage as we have noted above. The Prohibition of Child Marriage (Amending) Bill 2021 was introduced in Parliament on 21 December 2021. The Bill was referred for examination to the Department Related Standing Committee on Education, Women, Children, Youth and Sports. The Bill sought to amend the PCMA to expressly state the overriding effect of the statute over various personal laws. The issue, therefore, is pending consideration before Parliament.

215. Lastly, we note that while the PCMA seeks to prohibit child marriages, it does not stipulate on betrothals. Marriages fixed in the minority of a child also have the effect of violating their rights to free choice, autonomy, agency and childhood. It takes away from them their choice of partner and life paths before they mature and form the ability to assert their agency. International law such as CEDAW stipulates against betrothals of minors. Parliament may consider outlawing child betrothals which may be used to evade penalty under the PCMA. While a betrothed child may be protected as a child in need of care and protection under the JJ Act, the practice also requires targeted remedies for its elimination.

XI. Conclusion

216. A copy of this Judgment will be transmitted to the Secretaries of all concerned Ministries, the Government of India which includes the Ministry of Home Affairs, Ministry of Women and Child Development, Ministry of Panchayati Raj, Ministry of Education, Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, Ministry of Rural Development, statutory authorities, institutions, and organizations under the control of the respective ministries.

217. The Ministry of Women and Child Development is directed to circulate this judgment to the Chief Secretaries/Administrators of all the States and Union Territories, as well as NALSA, and NCPCR for strict compliance with the directions. This shall be done within a period of four weeks from the date of delivery of this judgment.

218. The writ petition is disposed of.

219. Pending application(s), if any, stand disposed of."

8. We were informed during the hearing and we believe not without basis that the Prohibition of Child Marriage (Amending) Bill 2021 has lapsed with the dissolution of the 17th Lok Sabha. We have not been shown anything that the Bill is still pending consideration before the Parliament. The controversy has again surfaced before the Supreme Court, when the Punjab & Haryana High Court in Javed v. State of Haryana and others, CRWP No. 7426-2022 (O&M) dated 30.09.2022 held that a Muslim female aged 15 years could marry a person of her choice, on her own willingness and consent, and the marriage would not be affected by Section 12 of the PCMA. This judgment has been impugned before the Supreme Court in National Commission For Protection Of Child v. Javed and others, Special Leave Petition (criminal) Diary No.35376 of 2022, where their Lordships issued notice and passed the following order on 13.01.2023:

"UPON hearing the counsel the Court made the following

O R D E R

1 We are inclined to entertain the Special Leave Petition which has been instituted by the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) with a view to resolving the question of law which is raised.

2 Issue notice.

9. Taking note of the development and the law until that time, the Delhi High Court in Mohd. Amaan Malik v. State (NCT of Delhi), 2023 SCC OnLine Del 3870 observed:

"12. It is also the case of the petitioner that the parties in the present case will be governed by the Muslim personal laws and the POCSO Act will have no applicability in the present case. In this regard, this Court notes that this issue has been a contentious one and remains at the heart of controversy in several cases decided by the High Courts across the country. The Hon'ble Karnataka High Court in Aleem Pasha v. State of Karnataka, 2022 SCC OnLine Kar 1588 observed that the POCSO Act, being a special legislation to protect children from sexual offences, will have an overriding effect on Muslim personal law. Earlier also, similar observations were made by Hon'ble Karnataka High Court in Rahul v. State of Karnataka, 2021 SCC OnLine Kar 12728. Recently, the Hon'ble Kerala High Court in Khaledur Rahman v. State of Kerala, 2022 SCC OnLine Ker 5833 also held that the marriage between Muslims under personal law is not excluded from the scope of the POCSO Act and if one of the parties to the marriage is a minor, irrespective of the validity or otherwise of the marriage, offences under the POCSO Act will apply. The Court, while referring to Section 42-A of the POCSO Act observed that the POCSO Act will prevail over personal laws and customary laws. To the contrary, this Court in Fija v. State (NCT of Delhi), 2022 SCC OnLine Del 2527 had observed that where the accused, who was a Muslim, had sexual intercourse during the course of marriage with his wife who was a minor Muslim, he was not guilty under the POCSO Act as the personal law has an overriding effect on special laws. Further, the Hon'ble Punjab and Haryana High Court in case of Gulam Deen v. State of Punjab, 2022 SCC OnLine P&H 1485 had taken a view that the marriage of a Muslim girl is governed by Muslim personal law, and a Muslim girl above 15 years of age is competent to enter into marriage. However, in Special Leave Petition (Criminal) No. 26834/2022 filed by National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) against the said decision, the Hon'ble Apex Court had agreed to examine the question if a minor Muslim girl can marry on attaining puberty. Similarly, the Hon'ble Punjab and Haryana High Court in Javed v. State of Haryana CRWP-7426-2022(O&M) also had held that Muslim female aged 15 years and above could marry a person of her choice on her own willingness and consent, and such a marriage would not be void in terms of Section 12 of the Prohibition of Child Marriage Act, 2006. However, vide order dated 13.01.2023 in Special Leave Petition (Criminal) No. 35376/2022 filed by NCPCR, the Hon'ble Apex Court ordered that the judgment in case of Javed (supra) should not be relied upon as a precedent in any other case. In a nutshell, as on date, the issue as to whether a girl attaining age of majority as per puberty after 15 years of age would be governed by the provisions of the POCSO Act/Child Marriage Restraint Act or not, is pending for consideration and adjudication before the hon'ble Apex Court."

10. If one were to take note of the remarks in Mohd. Amaan Malik (supra), Swarana Kanta Sharma, J. has taken note of the flux in the state of law on the subject because of the pending question before the Supreme Court and the conflict of opinion amongst the High Courts. We note that neither the Parliament have legislated in terms of what the Supreme Court was expecting in Society For Enlightenment & Voluntary Action (supra) nor the question seems to have been settled by an authoritative pronouncement of the Supreme Court so far. What the Delhi High Court noticed to be a pending question before the Supreme Court in Mohd. Amaan Malik (supra) does not appear to have been decided finally. A number of connected matters, which include the Special Leave Petition arising out of the judgment and order of the Punjab and Haryana High Court in CRWP No. 7426 of 2022 (O&M), Javed v. State of Haryana and others, decided on 30.09.2022, came to be dismissed by the Supreme Court mostly on the question of locus standi vide order dated 19.08.2025. The only case where the question seems to be involved is W.P. (C) No. 814/2023 (PIL-W), which, by the order dated 19.08.2025, was adjourned to 26.08.2025. The order dated 19.08.2025 passed in Special Leave to Appeal (Crl.) No(s). 10036/2022, National Commission For Protection Of Child Rights (NCPCR) v. Gulaam Deen & Ors., reads:

"UPON hearing the counsel the Court made the following

SLP (Crl.) Nos. 10036/2022 and 2206/2023

The petitioners herein are National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) and National Commission for Women (NCW) respectively.

The writ petition before the High Court, being CRWP No.5744/2022, was filed by Gulaam Deen and another under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India seeking a writ of Mandamus directing respondent nos.2 to 4 therein to protect their life and liberty owing to their apprehensions as a result of threats at the instance of private respondent nos.5 and 7 therein. The High Court has granted the prayer(s) of the petitioner(s) therein.

We fail to see as to how the petitioners herein can be aggrieved by such an order. If the High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India seeks to extend protection to two individuals, it is strange that the petitioners are challenging such an order. The petitioners herein, in fact, have no locus standi to challenge the same.

It is strange that if the High Court has extended relief to minor children, the NCPCR, which is meant for protection of children assails such an order of the High Court. Hence, the special leave petitions are dismissed.

Pending application(s) shall stand disposed of.

Diary No. 35376/2022 and SLP(Crl) No. 2207/2023

Permission to file Special Leave Petition(s) is granted.

The petitioners herein are National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) and National Commission for Women (NCW) respectively.

The writ petition before the High Court, being CRWP No.7426/2022, was filed by Javed under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India seeking a writ in the nature of Habeas Corpus directing respondent nos.2 and 3 therein to release the detenue, who was stated to be in the custody of Ashiana, Sector 16, Panchkula. The High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India directed that the custody of detenue be handed over to the petitioner therein. The said order has been assailed by the petitioners herein. We find that the petitioners have no locus standi to challenge the same.

Hence, the special leave petitions are dismissed.

Pending application(s) including the application for intervention/impleadment shall stand disposed of.

SLP(Crl) No. 1934/2023

The petitioner herein is National Commission for Women (NCW).

The writ petition before the High Court being W.P. (Crl.) No.763/2022 was filed by Fija and another seeking a writ of Mandamus or any other writ directing respondent nos.1 to 3 therein to grant protection to the petitioners therein and further directing them to ensure that nobody separates the petitioners therein from each other.

We fail to see as to how the petitioner herein can be aggrieved by such an order. If the High Court in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India seeks to grant the prayer(s) sought for by the petitioner(s) therein, it is strange that the petitioner is challenging such an order. The petitioner herein has no locus standi to challenge the same.

Learned counsel for respondent nos.1 and 2 submitted that the said respondents are happily married and also have a girl child of two years. The said fact is also placed on record.

Hence, the special leave petition is dismissed.

Pending application(s) shall stand disposed of.

We place on record our sincere appreciation to the assistance rendered by Shri Rajshekhar Rao, learned senior counsel as Amicus Curiae of this Court in these matters.

W.P.(C) No. 814/2023

De-tagged from rest of the matters.

Learned senior counsel for the petitioner submitted that he would place on record the judgments/orders passed by this Court in the context of the prayers sought for by the petitioner herein and on that basis possibly the writ petition could be disposed of.

Hence, list on 26.08.2025."

11. It, therefore, appears that there is no authoritative pronouncement by the Supreme Court on the point, but that does not preclude us from holding on the question involved the correct view of the law. We have already expressed it and we say it again in tune with the line of authority that has held likewise, and that is that the Shariat Law providing for puberty as the competent age under the law permissible for a girl to marry or be married, runs clearly in the teeth of the PCMA as well as the POCSO Act.

12. Turning to the facts of the present case, what we find is that there was a determined attempt to marry a girl of by her parents and the community while she was below 18 years of age. She was being married contrary to the mandate of the PCMA, and if married, in all likelihood and even logically, would have led to a transgression of the POCSO Act. Marriages solemnized are consummated as well, and once consummated, the POCSO Act comes into play. If, therefore, in a position as the present one, the Police and the Child Line Team swung into action and rescued the victim, they were indeed acting within the four corners of law and most certainly in the bona fide discharge of their duties under the law. The Police as well as the Child Line Team were conscious of their duties under the PCMA and also acting to prevent a possible violation of the POCSO Act. While their action is certainly commendable, what lies at the bottom of the FIR here is, is an assault on the police party and the Child Line Team. While they were about their task in rescuing the victim, they were abused and threatened, and according to the allegations in the FIR, had to save their lives from the aggression of the petitioners and the other unnamed offenders. The victim was forcibly taken away from their care and custody, till she was finally rescued. This is certainly a case where obstruction in the performance of duties of a government servant is prima facie made out. The other offences disclosed also require thorough investigation.

13. It has been argued that there is no medical report on record to justify the invocation of Sections 121(1) and 132 BNS, no overt acts having been assigned. It is also argued that the ingredients of Section 351(2) BNS are not disclosed as no alarm was caused in the mind of the informant. The submission is that there is no independent witness of the incident. We regret, we cannot agree. The offences are clearly disclosed. It maybe not one offence more or one less, but, that ultimately would be the subject matter of the charge-sheet submitted after investigation, or may be, the charge, if framed by the Trial Court. It is also possible that some of the petitioners might not be found involved in the occurrence. But, whatever it is, the nature of the allegations and the corpus delicti is such that it is not at all a fit case, where we ought interdict investigation at an incipient stage by quashing the FIR and setting at naught the process of investigation.

14. In the result, we do not find any good ground to interfere with the FIR impugned. This writ petition is dismissed.

15. The interim stay order dated 06.04.2026 is hereby vacated.

16. Let this order be communicated to the Senior Superintendent of Police, Bulandshahr and the Station House Officer, P.S. Kakor, District Bulandshahr, both through the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Bulandshahr by the Registrar (Compliance).

Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 5363 of 2026

Rahul @ Rahul Saroj ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the petitioner could be validly declared a "Goonda" on the basis of his involvement in only two criminal cases (one registered in 2021 and another in 2025) along with two beat information reports and a prohibitory report, without there being material to establish that he was a "habitual" offender within the meaning of s. 2(b)(i) of Act and consequently, whether the externment order dated 25.02.2026 passed by Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, Amethi, and the appellate order dated 06.05.2026 passed by Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, affirming the same, were sustainable in law.

Headnotes

U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970 - ss. 2(b), ¾ - Goonda - Declaration of - Sustainability of - Habitual Criminality - Requirement of - Beat reports - Evidentiary value - Validity of - The petitioner, invoked the writ jurisdiction and assailing the order dated 25.02.2026 passed by Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, Amethi, in Case No. 730 of 2025, whereby he was declared a "Goonda" u/s 3/4 of U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970, on the strength of his purported involvement in two criminal cases, namely, Case Crime No. 343 of 2021 and Case Crime No. 57 of 2025 both registered at Police Station Musafirkhana, coupled with two beat information reports dated 13.04.2025 and 14.04.2025 and a prohibitory report dated 14.04.2025 - Aggrieved thereby, the petitioner preferred a statutory appeal u/s 6 of Act, which came to be dismissed by Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya, vide order dated 06.05.2026, and validity of both the original and appellate orders was thereafter assailed by petitioner in the instant petition.

Held*:* Involvement of the petitioner in two criminal cases - one instituted in year 2021 and the other instituted in year 2025, does not establish that he is a habitual offender - The petitioner is already facing prosecution for the two criminal cases in which he is involved and it is not that the petitioner cannot be dealt with under the ordinary penal law - There is no allegation that the petitioner is a threat to maintenance of public order. The learned Additional District Magistrate has declared the petitioner to be 'a Goonda' merely on the basis of his involvement in two cases - Registration of beat reports without any complaint having been filed by any person, when no investigation follows a beat report and no prima facie satisfaction of involvement of a person in commission of offence is recorded in furtherance of beat reports, and the person would not have an opportunity to rebut the allegations made in beat reports, would not provide a ground for declaring a person to be a Goonda - Thus, The impugned order dated 25.02.2026 passed by the Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, Amethi, declaring the petitioner to be 'Goonda' is not sustainable in law and the order dated 06.05.2026 passed by Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya affirming the said order is also not sustainable in law, accordingly quashed. Case Arising From

From the Order dated 25.02.2026 passed by the Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, Amethi in Case No.730 of 2025 and also Order dated 06.05.2026 passed by Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya in Appeal No.994 of 2026.

Appearances for Parties

Adv. for the Petitioner(s):
Nisha Srivastava

Adv. for the Respondent(s):
G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Ms. Nisha Srivastava, the learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Vishal Agarwal, the learned AGA for the State.

2. By means of the instant petition, the petitioner has challenged the order dated 25.02.2026 passed by the Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, Amethi in Case No.730 of 2025 under Section 3/4 U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970 (which will hereinafter be referred to as 'the Goonda Act') whereby the petitioner has been declared to be a 'Goonda' on the basis of his involvement in the following two criminal cases: -

(i) Case Crime No.343 of 2021, under Sections 376/306 IPC, Police Station-Musafirkhana, (ii) Case Crime No.57 of 2025, under Sections 115(2)/352/351/317(2) BNS, Police Station Musafirkhana.

The order also mentions two beat information reports dated 13.04.2025 and 14.04.2025 and a prohibitory report dated 14.04.2025.

3. The petitioner had challenged the aforesaid order by filing Appeal No.994 of 2026, under Section 6 of the Goonda Act, which was dismissed by means of an order dated 06.05.2026 passed by Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya and validity of the appellate order has also been challenged in this petition.

4. The learned counsel for the respondent submits that the involvement of the petitioner in one criminal case instituted in the year 2021 and another criminal case instituted in the year 2025, does not establish that the petitioner is a habitual offender. She has relied upon the judgments rendered by two different coordinate Benches of this Court in the cases of Parvindra v. State of U.P.: 2020 SCC OnLine ALL 51 and Bharat Singh v. State of U.P. and 3 Ors.: 2023:AHC:171107.

5. The word 'Goonda' is defined in Section 2(b) of the Goonda Act, as follows: -

"(b)Goonda" means a person who—

(i)either by himself or as a member or leader of a gang, habitually commits or attempts to commit, or abets the commission of an offence punishable under Section 153 or Section 153-B or Section 294 of the Indian Penal Code or Chapter XV, Chapter XVI, Chapter XVII or Chapter XXII of the said Code; or

(ii) has been convicted for an offence punishable under the Suppression of Immoral Traffic in Women and Girls Act, 1956; or

(iii) has been convicted not less than thrice for an offence punishable under the U. P. Excise Act, 1910 or the Public Gambling Act, 1867 or Section 25, Section 27 or Section 29 of the Arms Act, 1959; or

(iv) is generally reputed to be a person who is desperate and dangerous to the community; or

(v) has been habitually passing indecent remarks or teasing women or girls; or (vi)is a tout."

6. In Imran Alias Abdul Quddus Khan vs State Of U.P. And Ors.; 1999 SCC OnLine All 1636, a Division Bench of this Court held that:-

"11. Ex facie, a person is termed as a 'goonda' if he is a habitual criminal. The provisions of Section 2(b) of the Act are almost akin to the expression 'anti social element' occurring in Section 2(d) of Bihar Prevention of Crimes Act, 1981. In the context of the expression 'anti social element' the connotation 'habitually commits' came to be interpreted by the apex Court in the case of Vijay Narain Singh v. State of Bihar, (1984) 3 SCC 14. The meaning put to the aforesaid expression by the apex Court would squarely apply to the expression used in the Act, in question. The majority view was that the word 'habitually' means 'repeatedly' or 'persistently'. It implies a thread of continuity stringing together similar repetitive acts. Repeated, persistent and similar but not isolated, individual and dissimilar acts are necessary to justify an inference of habit. It connotes frequent commission of acts or omissions of the same kind referred to in each of the said sub-clauses or an aggregate of similar acts or omissions*. Even the minority view which was taken in Vijay Narain's case (supra) was that the word 'habitually' means 'by force of habit'. It is the force of habit inherent or latent in an individual with a criminal instinct with a criminal disposition of mind, that makes a person accustomed to lead a life of crime posing danger to the society in general. If a person with criminal tendencies consistently or persistently or repeatedly commits or attempts to commit or abets the commission of offences punishable under the specified chapters of the Code, he should be considered to be a 'anti social element'. There are thus two views with regard to the expression 'habitually' flowing from the decision of Vijay Narain's case (supra). The majority was inclined to give a restricted meaning to the word 'habitually' as denoting 'repetitive' and that on the basis of a single act cannot be said to be forming the habit of the person. That is to say, the act complained of must be repeated more than once and be inherent in his nature. The minority view is that a person in habitual criminal who by force of habit or inward disposition inherent or latent in him has grown accustomed to lead a life or crime. In simple language, the minority view was expressed that the word 'habitually' means 'by force of habit'. The minority view is based on the meaning given in Stroud's Judicial Dictionary, Fourth Ed. Vol. II-1204 -* habitually requires a continuance and permanence of some tendency, something that has developed into a propensity, that is, present from day to day. Thus, the word 'habitual' connotes some degree of frequency and continuity.

12. The word 'habit' has a clear, well understood meaning being nearly the same as 'accustomed' and cannot be applied to a single act. When we speak of habit of a person, we prefer to his customary conduct to pursue, which he has acquired a tendency from frequent repetitions. In B.N. Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1960 All 754 it was observed that it would be incorrect to say that a person has a habit of anything from a single act. In the Law Lexicon - Encyclopedic Law Dictionary, 1997 Ed. by P. Ramanatha Aiyer, the expression 'habitual' has been defined to mean as constant, customary and addicted to a specified habit; formed or acquired by or resutling from habit; frequent use or custom formed by repeated impressions. The term 'habitual criminal', it is stated may be applied to any one, who has been previously more than twice convicted of crime, sentenced and committed to prison. The word 'habit' means persistence in doing an act, a fact, which is capable of proof by adducing evidence of the commission of a number of similar acts. 'Habitually' must be taken to mean repeatedly or persistently. It does not refer to frequency of the occasions but rather to the invariability of the practice.

13. The expression 'habitual criminal' is the same thing as the 'habitual offender' within the meaning of Section 110 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. This preventive Section deals for requiring security for good behaviour from 'habitual offenders'. The expression 'habitually' in the aforesaid section has been used in the sense of depravity of character as evidenced by frequent repetition or commission of offence. It means. repetition or persistency in doing an act and not an inclination by nature, that is, commission of same acts in the past and readiness to commit them again where there is an opportunity.

14. Expressions like 'by habit' 'habitual' 'desperate' 'dangerous' and 'hazardous' cannot be flung in the face of a man with laxity or semanitics. The Court must insist on specificity of facts and a consistent course of conduct convincingly enough to draw the rigourous inference that by confirmed habit, the petitioner is sure to commit the offence if not externed or say directed to take himself out of the district*. It is not a case where the petitioner has ever involved himself in committing the crime or has adopted crime as his profession. There is not even faint or feeble material against the petitioner that he is a person of a criminal propensity. The case of the petitioner does not come in either of the clauses of Section 2(b) of the Act, which defines the expression 'Goonda'. Therefore, to outright label a bona fide student as 'goonda' was not only arbitrary capricious and unjustified but also counter productive. A bona fide student who is pursuing his studies in the Post Graduate course and has never seen the world of the criminals is now being forced to enter the arena.* The intention of the Act is to afford protection to the public against hardened or habitual criminals or bullies or dangerous or desperate class who menace the security of a person or of property. The order of externment under the Act is required to be passed against persons who cannot readily be brought under the ordinary penal law and who for personal reasons cannot be convicted for the offences said to have been committed by them. The legislation is preventive and not punitive. Its sole purpose is to protect the citizens from the habitual criminals and to secure future good behaviour and not to punish the innocent students. The Act is a powerful tool for the control and suppression of the 'Goondas'; it should be used very sparingly in very clear cases of 'public disorder' or for the maintenance of 'public order'. If the provisions of the Act are recklessly used without adopting caution and descretion, it may easily become an engine of operession. Its provisions are not intended to secure indirectly a conviction in case where a prosecution for a substantial offence is likely to fail. Similarly the Act should not obviously be used against mere innocent people or to march over the opponents who are taking recourse to democractic process to get their certain demands fulfilled or to wreck the private vengeance'"

7. In Shankar Ji Shukla v. Ayuqt Allahabad Mandal and Ors: (2005) 52 ACC 633, this Court has relied upon the decision in the case of Imran Alias Abdul Quddus Khan (Supra) as well as the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Vijai Narayan Singh v. State of Bihar, (1984) 3 SCC page 14 and held that a single or two acts of the accused will not be sufficient to hold that he is habitually involved in commission of offences referred to in the Act.

8. A coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Lalani Pandey @ Vijay Shankar Pandey v. State of U.P.: 2010 SCC OnLine All 2411, held as under: -

"14….In this case the accused has not been treated as 'goonda' on the grounds mentioned in Clause 2(b) (ii) to (vii) of the Act as referred above. He has been treated as goonda under Clause 2(b) (i) of the Act. As per definition of goonda as contained in Clause 2(b) (i) of the Act, a person can be teated as goonda only when he is habitually involved in commission of offence as mentioned therein. The word goonda carries on the meaning that a person who by habit is involved to commit repeated offences as mentioned above will be treated as 'goonda'. One or two criminal cases against a person will not be sufficient to hold him that he is habitually involved in commission of such offences and he is a 'goonda'.

9. In Pavan v. State of U.P.: 2021 SCC OnLine All 231, a coordinate Bench of this Court held that: -

"7. Considering the scheme and object of the Act of 1970, an order of externment cannot be compared to a preventive detention under the National Security Act, 1980, which may cast no stigma, or be explained consistent with a person's upright character. Once a person is proceeded with against under the Act of 1970, and externed under Section 3(3), classifying him as a goonda, the order is certainly stigmatic. It is for this reason also that an order of externment envisages provision of opportunity to show cause, under Section 3(2). This is not to say that the provision for opportunity is engrafted in the Statute, for the reason alone of its stigmatic effect; it is also there because an order of externment is a serious inroad on a citizen's liberty.

8. ... This Court must remark that the petitioner is not a convict so far, and every man has a right to his reputation and good name in society. Every person is presumed to be an honourable and respectable man, unless that presumption is dislodged in accordance with law. Therefore, dubbing some citizen as a goonda and externing him under the Act of 1970, is an act that would afford a cause of action to the person who suffers that order, which enures beyond its physical consequences. In the opinion of this Court, it would not be a sound legal proposition to say that a man may suffer the slur of being called a goonda, because he could not bring the order of externment passed against him to test within the term of its life. In the opinion of this Court, the petitioner is entitled to question the externment order, notwithstanding that order outrunning its life.

9. The right to one's reputation is now unquestionably regarded as a facet of the Right to Life, guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution. The horizon of the right guaranteed under Article 21 has been given its true meaning and content over the years that our polity has flourished under the constitutional umbrella. Right to Life has long been expanded to mean immensely more than mere physical, animal or biological existence. It has been interpreted by the Supreme Court and the High Courts over the years, to bring within its fold, all that it means and requires to elevate the mere physical existence of an individual to the position of a human being, who has all opportunity and facility to realise his potential to its fullest. In the quest to realise the wholesome guarantee of life in its varied facets, the right to one's reputation has been regarded as an inseperable part.

14. In the context of how the Right to Reputation is viewed by the law, it would be almost preposterous to suggest that the physical consequences of an externment order having come to an end, no cause of action survives to the petitioner to assail it. An externment order, under the Act of 1970, has clearly two facets. One is that which relates to the tangible consequence of forbidding the person proceeded with against, from entering the district for a certain period of time. This consequence of the externment order is indeed preventive in nature, and, may be, of immense importance in a given case to the maintenance of public order. So far as the person against whom the order of externment is made is concerned, it certainly does curtail his liberty, by preventing his movement in a defined territory. But, the inconvenience stemming from the abridgment of liberty, that comes in the wake of an externment order, prohibiting entry in the district, is of trivial consequence to the one externed, if this consequence were to be weighed against the harm that it brings to the individual's reputation.

15. The order of externment proceeds on an innate declaration that the person externed is a goonda. A goonda has been defined under the Act of 1970, and otherwise also, has an understandable connotation in ordinary parlance. A goonda is the anti-thesis of what a respectable or honourable man is. An externment order, which, thus, works as an innate declaration about the man externed being a goonda, is irreversibly ruinous of his reputation. It has been said time over again that reputation once lost can never been redeemed. The physical consequences of an externment order that last only for a period of six months, with the limited effect of abridgment of some liberty, are trivial when compared to the timeless consequence of ruining a reputation, that can perhaps never be regained..."

10. In the case of Govardhan v. State of U.P.: 2023 SCC OnLine All 780, a Division Bench of this Court held as under: -

"9. It is a fundamental right of every citizen to reside peacefully and profess his business, but if the executive authorities are issuing notice under this deterrent law, then they must be doubly sure about the individual's past image, his past credentials, his family, social educational back ground and after assessing all these factors if the executive authorities comes to the conclusion that individual is a "Goonda" or a potential threat to society at large and should be thrown out from the municipal limits, then only by well reasoned order, after applying his own independent judicial mind pass a well reasoned order for externment of that individual or even issue notice to that individual calling upon him to justify his past conduct.

10. The public perception regarding the individuals' image carries weight. If the individual is enjoying a bad reputation and name in the area and coupled with the fact that he has got a chequered past then executive authorities are well within their right to issue notice to that individual or to pass an externment order for that individual. Trivial and insignificant offences having one or two in number would not make the person branded as a "Goonda". This adjective "Goonda" itself carries bundle load of bad name, and the executive authorities casually and irresponsibly brand a person as a Goonda, goes without saying, that his entire future and reputation would go to dogs and cause irreparable damage to his name and reputation of his family."

11. The aforesaid judgments have been followed by a coordinate Bench of this Court in Satendra v. State of U.P.: 2026 SCC OnLine All 3129.

12. In Bharat Singh v. State of UP: 2023:AHC:171107, a Coordinate Bench of this Court held that: -

"6. It is to note that for the act of the accused to come under the definition of Goonda there must be material to show that the accused was a habitual offender and committed the offence as aforesaid repeatedly and his general reputation is desperate and dangerous to the community or he habitually passes indecent remarks on women or girls. It is also to note that there must be reasonable nexus between the act of the accused and its impact on the society. There must not be time gap between the proceedings under this Act and the acts said to be committed by the accused must show relation between the two. The material on record must also show that the accused-person was a habitual offender and he committed the offences under Chapter 16, 17 and 22 of the Indian Penal Code."

13. From a collective reading of the aforesaid judgments, the following principles emerge: -

(i) A person is termed as a 'goonda' if he is a habitual criminal. The word 'habitually' means 'repeatedly' or 'persistently'. 'Habit' means persistence in doing an act, i.e., the commission of a number of similar acts. The word 'habitual' connotes some degree of frequency and continuity. Habitually requires a continuance and permanence of some tendency, something that has developed into a propensity, that is, present from day to day. Repeated, persistent and similar but not isolated, individual and dissimilar acts are necessary to justify an inference of habit.

(ii) One or two acts of the accused will not be sufficient to hold that he is habitually involved in commission of offences referred to in the Act.

(iii) There must be reasonable nexus between the act of the accused and its impact on the society. There must not be time gap between the proceedings under this Act and the acts said to be committed by the accused must show relation between the two.

(iv) It must be evident from the facts that by his confirmed habit, the petitioner is sure to commit more offences, if he is not externed.

(v) The legislation is preventive and not punitive. Its sole purpose is to protect the citizens from the habitual criminals and to secure future good behaviour and not to punish the innocent persons.

(vi) The Goonda Act is a powerful tool for the control and suppression of the 'Goondas', it should be used very sparingly in very clear cases of 'public disorder' or for the maintenance of 'public order'. The Act should not be allowed to be misused as a tool of oppression of innocent persons.

(vii) The Goonda Act is not intended to secure punishment of a person without his conviction for a substantial offence. (viii) The intention of the Act is to afford protection to the public against hardened or habitual criminals or bullies or dangerous or desperate class who menace the security of a person or of property. The order of externment under the Act is required to be passed against persons who cannot readily be brought under the ordinary penal law and who cannot be convicted for the offences said to have been committed by them.

14. Involvement of the petitioner in two criminal cases - one instituted in the year 2021 and the other instituted in the year 2025, does not establish that he is a habitual offender. The petitioner is already facing prosecution for the two criminal cases in which he is involved and it is not that the petitioner cannot be dealt with under the ordinary penal law. There is no allegation that the petitioner is a threat to maintenance of public order. The learned Additional District Magistrate has declared the petitioner to be 'a Goonda' merely on the basis of his involvement in two cases.

15. Registration of beat reports without any complaint having been filed by any person, when no investigation follows a beat report and no prima facie satisfaction of involvement of a person in commission of the offence is recorded in furtherance of the beat reports, and the person would not have an opportunity to rebut the allegations made in the beat reports, would not provide a ground for declaring a person to be a Goonda.

16. Accordingly, I am of the view that the impugned order dated 25.02.2026 passed by the Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, Amethi, declaring the petitioner to be 'Goonda' is not sustainable in law and the order dated 06.05.2026 passed by Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya affirming the said order is also not sustainable in law.

17. Accordingly, the writ petition is allowed. The order dated 25.02.2026 passed by the Additional District Magistrate, Finance and Revenue, Amethi in Case No.730 of 2025 under Section 3/4 U.P. Control of Goondas Act, 1970 and the order dated 06.05.2026 passed by the Commissioner, Ayodhya Division, Ayodhya are hereby quashed.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to whether the FIR dated 09.12.2025 as registered under various provisions of BNS, 2023, the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019, and Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012, was liable to be quashed, particularly where the allegations disclosed that the prosecutrix had been subjected to sexual intercourse first as a minor, and subsequently as an adult under the guise of "nikah halala," and whether recourse to personal (Muslim) law could operate as a shield against the applicability of penal provisions, including those under the POCSO Act, in respect of acts alleged to constitute statutory rape and gang rape.

Headnotes

Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 - ss. 85, 115(2), 64, 351(2), 61(2)(a), 70(2) - Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019 - ss. 3/4 - Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012 - ss. 5(l)/6 and 17/18 - Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 - s. 183 - Constitution of India, 1950 - Articles 14, 21 - FIR - Quashing of - Triple Talaq - Retrospective operation - Personal law - Applicability of - Sexual Intercourse by deceitful means - Consent obtained by fraud - The petitioners, along with other co-accused, were named in an FIR lodged by prosecutrix alleging that she was coerced into marrying one Azhar Nawaz in 2015 while a minor, that the marriage was dissolved by a pronouncement of Triple Talaq in 2016, whereafter she was made to undergo a "halala nikah" with a co-accused under threat and without valid consent, resulting in her being ravished while still a minor, following which she remarried Azhar Nawaz in 2017 and bore a daughter - Further after a second Triple Talaq in 2021 and Azhar Nawaz's intervening marriage to another woman, the prosecutrix was persuaded to reconcile with him, whereupon she was told that a second halala was required, under the pretext of which two of co-accused forcibly ravished her on 19.02.2025, followed by a sham/bogus nikah with Azhar Nawaz performed by other co-accused, whereafter she discovered that no valid nikah had in fact taken place and that she had been fraudulently made to cohabit with him - The petitioners, sought quashing of FIR, which was resisted by State and informant on the ground that the material on record, including the prosecutrix's statement u/s 183 BNSS and the medico-legal reports, disclosed a prima facie case of statutory rape and gang rape perpetrated under the colorable devise of "halala."

Held: This is a case, prima facie, where the crime of ravishing a minor girl, taking refuge behind halala, and then, much later in life, of gang rape behind the same veil of doing a halala, has been committed, on the second occasion, in a far more crude and outlandish manner - When it comes to criminal law, unless the law itself makes exception, which it rarely does, there is absolutely no place for pleading personal laws governing marriage, etc., if, interlaced with a matrimonial relationship, a crime were committed - The constitutionality of halala is not under challenge before the court, but, if, under the garb of doing a halala, a minor girl is subjected to carnal relations, relying on her desire to marry a man who has already divorced her, it would certainly attract the provisions of POCSO Act - After all, sexual relations with a minor have been absolutely prohibited by Supreme Court in Independent Thought (infra) - All the accused here, some of whom whose names have surfaced during investigation, were involved in an enterprise, playing whatever roles they did, which, put together, constitute, prima facie, crimes by the laws of land - Some may have marginal roles as abettors or conspirators, but that would not entitle them to have the FIR quashed at the threshold and the investigation against them terminated at an incipient stage - Accordingly, petitions dismissed, interim orders vacated. This judgment will decide the present petition and connected Criminal Misc. Writ Petitions Nos. 6019 of 2026, 2789 of 2026, and 3132 of 2026. All these writ petitions lay challenge to the same First Information Report1 and have, therefore, been heard together.

2. This writ petition, along with the connected writ petitions, has been instituted seeking to quash the FIR dated 09.12.2025, giving rise to Crime No. 348 of 2025, under Sections 85, 115(2), 64, 351(2), 61(2)(a), 70(2) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 20232, Section 3/4 of the Muslim Women (Protection of Rights on Marriage) Act, 2019 and Sections 5(l)/6 and 17/18 of the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 20123, Police Station Saidnagli, District Amroha.

3. The first informant, according to the FIR, was forced to marry one Azhar Nawaz, a resident of Village Dhakka, Tahsil Hasanpur, Mohalla Mahal, District Amroha. The informant4, as she says, was coerced to enter into this marriage under threat and by force on 25.04.2015, when her nikah was performed with Azhar Nawaz. She says that she was aged barely 15 years at the time. After the marriage of parties, Azhar would beat up the prosecutrix. In the month of January, 2016, Azhar ended the marital bond with the pronouncement of a Triple Talaq. After the passage of a few months, Azhar Nawaz came back to the prosecutrix with a proposal to marry her a second time. Next, in the month of November, 2016, Azhar got the informant to perform a halala nikah with co-accused Maulana Qayyum. The nikah was performed by Murtza alias Kari Murtza son of Sageer Ahamad5 at Town Siyana, District Bulandshahr. Azhar had come along with a cousin of his, one degree removed, Tayyab son of Amjad Hussain6, and a cousin, Asim son of Mohammad Ghufran7. After the halala nikah, a second nikah of the prosecutrix with Azhar Nawaz was performed in the month of April, 2017. The parties cohabited, and of the wedlock of parties, a daughter was born on 01.04.2018 at Moradabad.

4. After birth of the daughter, Azhar's behaviour towards the prosecutrix changed for the worse and went downhill. He resumed beating her. On 24.01.2021, he divorced the informant a second time, and during the period of her iddat and within eleven days of the divorce, he married another woman, Nayab Akhtar. The prosecutrix says that she was aware of the illicit relationship between Azhar Nawaz and the other woman, while the two were married. After the second divorce with the prosecutrix and his own second marriage, Azhar would find pretexts to resume his relationship with the prosecutrix, sometimes citing their daughter as the cause and at others, the matter of paying maintenance etc. Sometimes, he would say that his other wife (Nayab Akhtar) was barren. It was also said by the informant that Azhar told her that he had divorced his second wife and that he wishes to stay with her and their daughter, resuming their family. His brothers and co-accused Shahnawaz Chaudhary and Hakim Nishat alias Nishat8 would convince the prosecutrix about the wisdom of Azhar's proposal. The prosecutrix, bearing in mind her daughter's future, besides being a broken woman on account of the trauma of two divorces and financial stringency, agreed to a third marriage between the parties, which she has mentioned in the FIR as a second marriage. As soon as the prosecutrix agreed to this proposal, Azhar's brothers told her that since her marriage with Azhar had already ended twice, it would require a halala twice over. Under the pretext of doing a halala, the prosecutrix says that co-accused Shahnawaz Chaudhary and Hakim Nishat ravished her and upon resistance, threatened her with death. And they also said that her dead body and that of her daughter would not be recovered if she endeavoured to stop them. This offence happened on 19.02.2025. In the evening, the same day, Azhar, Shahnawaz, Maulana Nadim son of Masroor, Aquil son of Mohammad Gufran and Hakim Nishat did the show of a nikah with Azhar, which the prosecutrix says was bogus. It was represented to her that a nikah with Azhar had been performed, but later on, she came to know that the represented nikah was falsehood and it was just a pretext to resume carnal relations with her. So long as this fraud was believed to be true by the prosecutrix, she and Azhar Nawaz lived together as man and wife. The prosecutrix also says that her consent to the nikah was given in a false belief, rendering her consent as one obtained by fraud. The prosecutrix says that all these accused, to wit, Azhar Nawaz, Shahnawaz Chaudhary, Maulana Nadim, Aquil, Hakim Nishat, Kari Murtza and Maulana Qayyum had come together to defraud the prosecutrix, threaten her, treat her with cruelty and taking advantage of her helplessness, made, what the prosecutrix says, a □dirty□ use of her. She requested registration of a crime against all the named men and strict action in accordance with law.

5. There is mention of a medico-legal examination, where there is an ossification test report dated 12.12.2025 and a dental evaluation dated 16.12.2025 on record. In the year 2025, the prosecutrix has been estimated to be above 25 years. The statement of the prosecutrix was also recorded under section 183 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 20239 before the Judicial Magistrate. We would allude to it later in this judgment.

6. After the prosecutrix's statement under Section 183 as also under Section 180 BNSS were recorded vide C.D. No. 6 dated 24.12.2025, the Investigating Officer added six other co-accused, including the petitioner. Section 61(2)(a) BNS and Sections 5(l)/6 and 17/18 POCSO Act were added to the cart of offences. The number of accused went up to nine. C.D. No. 6 records the names of the nine accused, and they are, Azhar Nawaz, Shahnawaj Chaudhary, Hakim Nishat, Asim, Maulana Qayyum, Tayyab, Maulana Nadim, Aquil and Kari Murtza. It is on this profile of the accused, five of whom are petitioners in the present writ petition and the connected petitions, the contents of the FIR, the medico-legal reports, the statement of the prosecutrix under Section 183 and 180 BNSS, besides other relevant documents, that we have heard these matters. Of course, the petitions have been admitted to hearing, with parties, including the State and the informant, exchanging affidavits in the present writ petition as also some of the writ petitions, all of which stand more or less on common edifice, except for the admitted distinction based on roles of individual petitioners endeavoured to be drawn during the very detailed submissions advanced by learned Counsel for parties.

7. Heard Mr. Shashi Kant Shukla, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Mohammad Sakir, learned Counsel for the petitioner in support of this petition, Mr. Shyam Kumar Yadav, learned Counsel for respondent no. 5 and Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing on behalf of respondents nos. 1 to 4. The same learned Counsel have addressed us in Criminal Misc. Writ Petitions Nos. 2789 of 2026 and 3132 of 2026. In Criminal Misc. 6019 of 2026, we have heard Mr. Sandeep Kumar Srivastava, learned Counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Shyam Kumar Yadav, learned Counsel appearing for respondent no. 5 and Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate appearing on behalf of respondents nos. 1 to 4.

8. It is submitted by Mr. Shashi Kant Shukla, learned Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of the petitioner in the present writ petition, besides Criminal Misc. Writ Petitions Nos. 2789 of 2026 and 3132 of 2026, that the allegation against the petitioner, Tayyab is that in the month of November, 2016, when the first halala nikah was performed with Maulana Qayyum, then along with the prosecutrix and her husband, co-accused Azhar Nawaz, the petitioner also went to Town Siyana, Bulandshahar. The allegation against Murtza alias Kari Murtza is that when the first halala nikah was performed with Maulana Qayyum, he acted as the Qazi to perform the halala nikah. The allegations against petitioners Shahnawaz Chaudhary and Hakim Nishat alias Nishat are that when the prosecutrix wanted to solemnise a nikah again with her ex-husband, Azhar Nawaz, they told her that as she had been divorced twice over, she would have to perform halala also twice over. It is the prosecutrix□s allegation that on the pretext of halala, Shahnawaz Chaudhary and Hakim Nishat ravished her on 19.02.2025.

9. It is argued by Mr. Shashi Kant Shukla, learned Senior Advocate that in the year 2016, by the time all this had happened, Triple Talaq (Talaq-e-Biddat) was permissible as per Shariat law in India, and now, it has been abolished by the Act of 2019, which came into force with retrospective effect on 19.09.2018. He points out that nikah halala is a valid ritual, according to the Islamic Law. It is treated a Sunnat, if a Muslim woman wants to remarry her husband. It is also pointed out that in the year 2021, while securing a divorce decree by mutual consent, the prosecutrix has mentioned her age to be 24 years, and therefore, working it back in time, at the time of her nikah in the year 2015, she was 18 years old. It is also argued that the Quran does not specify a minimum numerical age for marriage.

10. It is next urged that if a marriage is solemnised during minority and, after attaining majority, a Muslim woman does not repudiate the marriage by filing a petition within one year, then the marriage, which was initially voidable, ipso facto becomes valid and binding on the parties upon the expiry of one year from the date she attains majority. It is submitted that marriage with a minor is never void.

11. It is next urged that because some disputes arose between Azhar Nawaz and the prosecutrix relating to the custody of their daughter, though it is still with Azhar Nawaz, the prosecutrix created disturbance, leading Azhar to move complaints on the Integrated Grievance Redressal System10 Portal on 02.12.2025 and 04.12.2025. Acting on these complaints, it is pointed out by the learned Senior Advocate that the Police, after inquiry, have made reports that both the husband and the wife have separated and a divorce decree has been passed by the Court. It is also reported that custody of the daughter is with Azhar Nawaz. It is also urged that once the ex-husband of the prosecutrix made an IGRS complaint against her, the impugned FIR has been lodged as an abuse of process of Court to implicate him and his distant relatives in order to bring oblique pressure upon the husband to give custody of the minor daughter as also annex five bigha of land that Azhar Nawaz owns, and to which, the prosecutrix has no right. So far as the petitioner Murtza alias Kari Murtza is concerned, he is a respected man in society, with no criminal antecedents. He gives tuitions to students in Islamic studies. He is not a Qazi who solemnises a nikah. He is a Kari, which the learned Senior Advocate describes as one who holds a degree in Islamic studies.

12. It is next contended that the dispute between the prosecutrix and her ex-husband, co-accused Azhar Nawaz, has been going on for the last ten years. For the sake alone that the petitioners in the connected writ petitions, namely, Shahnawaj Chaudhary and Hakim Nishat are the brother and nephew, respectively of the prosecutrix's ex-husband, they have been falsely implicated in the present case in order to harass them and bring oblique pressure upon Azhar Nawaz to fulfill the prosecutrix's unjust demands. The petitioner, Tayyab, is said to be a super senior citizen, aged 71 years, with no criminal antecedents. He has been falsely implicated in the present case, because, he is a collateral of the prosecutrix's ex-husband one degree removed (in common parlance, an uncle).

13. Mr. Shashi Shekhar Tiwari, learned Additional Government Advocate, has opposed the submissions of the learned Senior Advocate appearing on behalf of the petitioner and submits that serious offences, involving rape and gang rape, against the petitioners are disclosed, including those under the POCSO Act, going by the victim's age, when determined arithmetically, working it backwards. He submits that it is not a case which warrants relief of quashing the FIR, but one which requires to be thoroughly investigated.

14. Mr. Shyam Kumar Yadav, learned counsel appearing for the informant/respondent no. 5 has also been at considerable pains to address us on all aspects of the matter. He submits that in the month of November 2016, the informant was a minor, aged 16 years. The petitioner in the present petition, Tayyab, as well as co-accused Azhar Nawaz, the prosecutrix's ex-husband, Asim, Kari Murtza and Maulana Qayyum orchestrated a halala for her. It is submitted that Maulana Qayyum acted as the principal offender and rapist, while others abetted him and acted as conspirators. It is emphasised that the allegations in the FIR, put in the proper temporal context, clearly show a pattern of sexual exploitation under the guise of nikah halala, involving a minor, at the time of the first incident, and subsequently, a case of gang rape, masked as a double halala in order to enable the prosecutrix to remarry her husband with whom her marital bond had been ruptured twice over.

15. It is argued that at the inception of it all, the halala in November, 2016 involved the prosecutrix, then a minor of 16 years. Learned Counsel for the informant says that going by the settled law in Independent Thought v. Union of India11, any sexual act with a minor, even under the umbrella of a personal law, constitutes rape. Consent obtained from a minor is no consent. The marriage on 19.02.2025, a third one with her husband, is described by learned Counsel for the informant as a colorable devise, intended to facilitate sexual access to the prosecutrix by multiple men, acting in concert. He submits that under Section 69 BNS, sexual intercourse by deceitful means is an offence. He argues that whatever the prosecutrix has gone through is the result of inherently tainted acts constituting offences that are mala in se, and not merely mala prohibita. (wrongs because they are prohibited by the statute). Such acts offend the collective conscience of the society and violate the right to dignity, which flows to a person from Article 21 of the Constitution. It is argued that the defense of personal law is inapplicable here, because the mandtory period of iddat was not observed, rendering the subsequent relations a nullity, even under the personal laws. Personal Laws cannot be used as a shield to commit acts that constitute gang rape under the BNS. The civil decree for divorce would not ameliorate the rigour of the offence of rape, which affects the life and dignity of a woman. It is a crime against a person as well as the society and humanity.

16. Learned counsel for respondent no. 5 has drawn our attention to the Convention on the Elimination of all forms of Discrimination Against Women12, in particular, CEDAW, 1993, Article 1 whereof says :

"For the purposes of this Declaration, the term "violence against women" means any act of gender-based violence that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or in private life."

17. Article 2 of CEDAW, 1993 provides :

"Violence against women shall be understood to encompass, but not be limited to the following:

(a) Physical, sexual and psychological violence occurring in the family, including battering, sexual abuse of female children in the household, dowry-related violence, marital rape, female genital mutilation and other traditional practices harmful to women, non-spousal violence and violence related to exploitation;

(b) Physical, sexual and psychological violence occurring within the general community, including rape, sexual abuse, sexual harassment and intimidation at work, in educational institutions and elsewhere, trafficking in women and forced prostitution;

(c) Physical, sexual and psychological violence perpetrated or condoned by the State, wherever it occurs."

18. Reference has also been made to Article 5 of the CEDAW.

19. It is next argued that the petitioner and the other co-accused have consistently pressurised and threatened the prosecutrix, leading to the filing of another FIR, being Crime No. 122 of 2026. Learned Counsel has relied on the guidelines of Neeharika Infrastructure Private Limited v. State of Maharashtra and others13, where it has been observed that the High Court should be extremely slow to quash an FIR, where a prima facie case of serious cognisable offences (especially those involving sexual violence) is established. It is also argued that the practice of halala, as applied here, is a tool of cruelty and gender-based discrimination. It violates the victim's right under Article 21 of the Constitution, the right, in its facet of the right to dignity and Article 14. It is further urged that some important material facts have been suppressed from this Court, disentitling the petitioners to relief. It is pointed out that Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application u/s 482 BNSS No. 2417 of 2026 preferred by co-accused, Nadim has been dismissed, and Criminal Misc. Anticipatory Bail Application u/s 482 BNSS No. 2522 of 2026 preferred by Tayyab, the petitioner in the present petition, too been dismissed. It is also urged that the petitioners and the other accused continue to exert pressure upon the prosecutrix and threaten her, which has led her to lodge another FIR, giving rise to Crime No. 122 of 2026, under Sections 352(4) and 232 BNS on 30.04.2026. This demonstrates the petitioners' criminal intent and the fact that they are, by nature, outlaws. The prosecutrix has no previous animosity against the accused. Learned counsel for the informant/fifth respondent has relied upon Punit Beriwala v. The State of NCT of Delhi and others14.

20. Upon hearing learned counsel for parties, we are of opinion that this is a case, prima facie, where the crime of ravishing a minor girl, taking refuge behind halala, and then, much later in life, of gang rape behind the same veil of doing a halala, has been committed, on the second occasion, in a far more crude and outlandish manner. When it comes to criminal law, unless the law itself makes exception, which it rarely does, there is absolutely no place for pleading personal laws governing marriage, etc., if, interlaced with a matrimonial relationship, a crime were committed. The constitutionality of halala is not under challenge before us, but, if, under the garb of doing a halala, a minor girl is subjected to carnal relations, relying on her desire to marry a man who has already divorced her, it would certainly attract the provisions of the POCSO Act. After all, sexual relations with a minor have been absolutely prohibited by the Supreme Court in Independent Thought (supra). In Independent Thought, Exception 2 to Section 375 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 was read down and the provisions of the POCSO Act were given overriding effect over all other laws to mean that there was absolutely no possibility of any carnal relations, within or without marriage, between a man and a woman below the age of 18 years. This view of the law still holds field, and by falling back upon personal laws, the clear mandate of a penal statute, which virtually makes carnal relations statutory rape or violation of a special statute, being the POCSO Act, cannot be warded off. It must be noted that under Exception 2 to Section 63 BNS, in deference to what was read down in Independent Thought, the new Code enacts Exception 2, in the following words :

"Sexual intercourse or sexual acts by a man with his own wife, the wife not being under eighteen years of age, is not rape."

21. A true copy of the report of the Medical Board, dated 16.12.2025 comprising three doctors, based on an ossification test, amongst others, opines the prosecutrix to be above 25 years. Admittedly, the prosecutrix was married for the first time in the year 2015. At that time, she would have been aged above 16 years or so, and definitely a minor.

22. The calendar of events shows that the prosecutrix was married on 25.04.2015 and in January, 2016, she suffered the first of her triple divorces. In the month of November 2016, she was made to undergo halala with one of the co-accused, Maulana Qayyum. By December, 2016, there can be little doubt that the prosecutrix would have still been a minor. She underwent the halala in order to remarry her husband a second time, which happened in April 2017, two years after her first marriage. By this time, she could be regarded as a major; but not at the time when she underwent the halala. These are all matters which we gather from the FIR, because, after all, we are hearing a petition to quash the FIR. We cannot undertake an examination of events to determine the truth or falsehood of the allegations. The statement of the prosecutrix under Section 183 BNSS, being a very vital part of the investigation, we have examined in order to determine if there is anything incredible about the prosecution meriting interference. In her statement under Section 183 BNSS, the prosecutrix says that after her first nikah, followed by divorce, the principal accused, Azhar Nawaz, perhaps realising his mistake, thought of remarrying the prosecutrix, a second time. She has said in her statement aforesaid that at the time, her age was 16 years and she was told by Azhar Nawaz that the Mufti had advised that she would have to undergo a halala. She did not understand what halala was at the tender age of 16 years. She was taken to Kasba Siyana by Azhar Nawaz, Asim and Tayyab (the petitioner here). She also said that she did not know about halala nor was it done with her consent. Maulana Qayyum forcibly did the halala and forcibly established carnal relations with her. The halala nikah was performed by Kari Murtza. She has also said that when all that happened, she cried in protest, but to no avail. She was then conveyed to Dhakka, and a second nikah was performed with Azhar in the year 2017. In the year 2018, a daughter was born to the parties. After the second nikah, Azhar Nawaz's treatment of the prosecutrix again turned foul. After the daughter was born, the treatment became worse. She was taunted with not bearing a male child. Azhar Nawaz□s ill-treatment of the prosecutrix became worse in order to marry a woman called Nayab Akhtar.

23. When the prosecutrix was at Aligarh, Azhar Nawaz pronounced a Triple Talaq a second time in the year 2021. In the year 2021, a Court-annexed mediation took place, resulting in a decree of divorce etc. While she was in her iddat, Azhar Nawaz married Nayab Akhtar. After some time, Azhar Nawaz came to know that Nayab Akhtar could not bear a child. He then contacted the prosecutrix again and told her that he wanted his daughter and that he would divorce Nayab Akhtar. It was on account of her daughter that the prosecutrix started living with Azhar Nawaz again. This time, Shahnawaz Chaudhary and Hakeem Nishat gave her assurance that everything would be alright. It is for this reason she came back to Azhar Nawaz. Shahnawaz Chaudhary, Hakeem Nishat and Azhar Nawaz asked her to perform halala again. On occasion, Shahnawaz and Nishat forcibly ravished her in the name of halala. This happened on 19.02.2025. Next, a bogus nikah was performed with Azhar Nawaz. This bogus nikah was performed by Maulana Nadim with the aid of Aquil, Shahnawaz Chaudhary, Hakim Nishat and Azhar Nawaz, all of whom were involved in the process, and all of them present. Next, the two started cohabiting as man and wife. However, when the daughter's school documents were brought up, the prosecutrix□s name was absent. When the prosecutrix demanded her name to be there, Azhar Nawaz warded off the demand. Then one day, Azhar Nawaz told the prosecutrix that she was not his wife. She then explored the matter and found out that the nikah, that was performed a third time, was bogus, and virtually, Azhar Nawaz was establishing carnal relations with her, making her falsely believe that she was his wife.

24. From all this account that figures in the FIR and the statement of the prosecutrix, her age at the time when she was first married and did the first halala prima facie constitute statutory rape and offences under POSCO Act, and then, the allegations about the second halala, which, prima facie, constitutes a case of gang rape, we are of opinion that this matter requires thorough investigation. It is certainly not a case where the prosecution can be quashed at the threshold.

25. In the totality of circumstances, we are minded to say that this case presents the picture of a part of our society, that is far removed from the constitutional values and the constitutional aspirations of equality, privacy, personal dignity and whatever Articles 21 and 14 of the Constitution stand for. We do not, by any means, intend to say that in this petition, that is not framed that way, that we propose or suggest anything about the constitutionality of a given practice, but the circumstances of this case, and whatever has happened, we say, prima facie again, militates against the constitutional aspirations and guarantees, of which we have just now spoken. In fact, the entire facts, that have so far come on record, are shocking to the conscience.

26. We must notice, at this stage, the very persuasive arguments advanced by Mr. Shashi Kant Shukla, learned Senior Advocate appearing for the petitioner in the present petition as also two other connected writ petitions, and Mr. Sandeep Kumar Srivastava, learned Counsel for the petitioner in one of the connected writ petitions, that whatever be the allegations against Azhar Nawaz and the two men initially nominated in the FIR, the others have a marginal role. Some of them performed a nikah and some of them are very venerable men. We do not wish say anything about those issues, as all those matters would be thrashed out during investigation. All that we say is that all the accused here, some of whom whose names have surfaced during investigation, were involved in an enterprise, playing whatever roles they did, which, put together, constitute, prima facie, crimes by the laws of the land. Some may have marginal roles as abettors or conspirators, but that would not entitle them to have the FIR quashed at the threshold and the investigation against them terminated at an incipient stage.

27. In the result, all the writ petitions fail and stand dismissed.

28. The interim orders, wherever granted, stand vacated.

Issue For Consideration

When the right to file written statement has been closed, defendant has no right to lead independent evidence.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908- Order VIII Rule 1 & Order XVIII Rule 4- No amount of evidence can be looked into, upon a plea which was never put forward in the pleadings. A question which did not arise from the pleadings and which was not the subject matter of an issue, cannot be decided by the court- If a party omits to plead a material fact, he will not be allowed to give evidence on that fact at the trial unless the court gives him leave to amend his pleading under Rule 17 of Order VI C.P.C. In case there is no written statement in the suit, the defendant cannot be permitted to lead evidence of facts as there is no pleading. There cannot be any evidence in absence of pleading, therefore, the defendant cannot be permitted to lead evidence once he has been denied to file written statement.

Held- That court below has not committed any illegality in rejecting the evidence filed by the petitioner as the right to file written statement of the defendant was closed and there was no pleading regarding the evidence sought to be adduced by the petitioner. In this case, petitioner has been permitted to cross-examine the witnesses adduced by the plaintiff and beyond that, permission cannot be granted to the petitioner to lead evidence for want of pleadings.
Petition dismissed. (E-15)

Order dated 11.11.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 12, Ghaziabad in Original Suit No. 1029 of 2019, whereby learned trial court has returned the evidence affidavit filed by the defendant-petitioner and has closed his right to lead evidence.

Appearances For Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s): Abhishek Kumar Singh, Devid Kumar Singh, Prateek Rai
Counsel for Respondent(s) :

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. This petition has been filed challenging an order dated 11.11.2025 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 12, Ghaziabad in Original Suit No. 1029 of 2019, Praveen Kumar Singhal vs Satish Kumar Gupta, whereby learned trial court has returned the evidence affidavit filed by the defendant-petitioner and has closed his right to lead evidence.

2. Brief facts of the case are that plaintiff-respondent (hereinafter referred as 'plaintiff'), instituted Original Suit No. 1029 of 2019 for a decree of specific performance of an agreement to sell dated 20.04.2017. After being noticed, defendant-petitioner entered appearance but did not file written statement within the statutory period prescribed under Order VIII Rule 1 C.P.C. On an application moved by the defendant-petitioner, the trial court vide order dated 17.05.2022, granted one more opportunity to the defendant-petitioner to file written statement by 30.05.2022. The petitioner did not file written statement within the extended time. By its order dated 17.05.2022 and finally by order dated 05.07.2022 passed by the trial court, right to file written statement of the defendant-petitioner was closed. Thereafter, the evidence of the plaintiff was recorded. The counsel for the defendant-petitioner cross-examined the plaintiff-witnesses and subsequently filed an affidavit under Order XVIII Rule 4 of C.P.C. along with list of witnesses to lead evidence. He also filed the affidavit of his witnesses. The plaintiff opposed the leading of evidence by defendant-petitioner and filed an application dated 07.07.2025 being paper No. 49-Ga on the ground that since right to file written statement has been closed, defendant has no right to lead independent evidence. The said application filed by the plaintiff was allowed by the order impugned and the affidavits filed by the petitioner were directed to be returned to the petitioner. Hence the present writ petition.

3. Contention of learned counsel for the petitioner is that non-filing of the written statement does not render defendant the persona non grata in the eyes of the law, rather, the defendant retains the statutory and equitable right to participate in the trial, cross-examine witnesses of the plaintiff and address to demolish the case of the plaintiff on the basis of the material on record. It has been submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner, the right to demolish the plaintiff's case necessarily includes the right to lead evidence for the limited purpose of proving that the transactions sued upon is prohibited by statute and are void ab initio, as opposed to leading of evidence to prove factual "positive defense". It has been further submitted that the defendant-petitioner through the proposed evidence (which was returned by the impugned order) sought only to bring on record the material to demonstrate the suit agreement involves a transaction prohibited by the Income Tax Act and therefore, forbidden by law and opposed to public policy within the meaning of Section 23 of Indian Contract Act, 1872. Learned counsel also submitted that in a given set of circumstances, the defendant whose right to file written statement has been closed, can be permitted to lead evidence to demolish the case of the plaintiff. In this connection, learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgment of this Court in the case of Pandit Gopi Charan Bajpai and others vs. Pandit Ram Prasad Awasti and others; 1957 SCC Online ALD 238.

4. Before considering the submissions made by learned counsel for the petitioner, it would be useful to note the relevant provisions of the C.P.C. regarding right of defendant to file written statement as well as the right of the plaintiffs in case defendant fails to file the written statement.

5. Order IV, Rule 1 of C.P.C. provides, every suit shall be instituted by presenting (plaint in duplicate to the court) or such officer as it appoints in this behalf. Order V provides for issuance of summons when a suit has been duly instituted.

6. Order VIII provides for written statement. Rule 1 of Order VIII is quoted as under:-

"1. Written Statement.- The Defendant shall, within thirty days from the date of service of summons on him, present a written statement of his defence:

Provided that where the defendant fails to file the written statement within the said period of thirty days, he shall be allowed to file the same on such other day, as may be specified by the Court, for reasons to be recorded in writing, but which shall not be later than ninety days from the date of service of summons.]"

7. Rule 10 of Order VIII provides for consequences when party fails to present written statement within a time limit. Rule 10 of Order VIII is quoted as under:-

"10. Procedure when party fails to present written statement called for by Court. Where any party from whom a written statement is required under rule 1 or rule 9 fails to present the same within the time permitted or fixed by the Court, as the case may be, the Court shall pronounce judgment against him, or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit and on the pronouncement of such judgment a decree shall be drawn up:"

8. It would also be relevant to look into the provisions of Order IX, Rules 6 and 7. Rules 6 and 7 of Order IX is quoted as under:-

"6. Procedure when only plaintiff appears.- (1) Where the plaintiff appears and the defendant does not appear when the suit is called on for hearing, then”

(a) When summons duly served.- if it is proved that the summons was duly served, the Court may make an order that the suit shall be heard ex parte;]

(b) When summons not duly served.-if it is not proved that the summons was duly served, the Court shall direct a second summons to be issued and served on the defendant;

(c) When summons served but not in due time.-if it is proved that the summons was served on the defendant, but not in sufficient time to enable him to appear and answer on the day fixed in the summons, the Court shall postpone the hearing of the suit to a future day to be fixed by the Court, and shall direct notice of such day to be given to the defendant.

(2) Where it is owing to the plaintiff's default that the summons was not duly served or was not served in sufficient time, the Court shall order the plaintiff to pay the costs occasioned by the postponement.

7. Procedure where defendant appears on day of adjourned hearing and assigns good cause for previous non-appearance. Where the Court has adjourned the hearing of the suit, ex parte, and the defendant, at or before such hearing appears and assigns good cause for his previous non-appearance, he may, upon such terms as the Court directs as to costs or otherwise, be heard in answer to the suit as if he had appeared on the day fixed for his appearance."

9. Elaborating his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that in case written statement is not filed by the defendant in the suit, the court may proceed in accordance with Rule 10 of Order VIII C.P.C. Rule 10 of Order VIII C.P.C. provides where any party from whom a written statement is required fails to present the same, the court shall pronounce judgment against him or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit, and on the pronouncement of such judgment, a decree shall be drawn. It has been further submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that the provisions of Rule 10 of Order VIII C.P.C. are not mandatory. The provisions of Rule 10 of Order VIII C.P.C. are enabling provisions, and in case the court does not pronounce the judgment against the defendant and passes an order otherwise, then the defendant will have a right to participate in the hearing of the proceedings. Right to participate in hearing will include right to cross-examine the witnesses of the plaintiff as well as right to lead evidence to demonstrate the falsity of the plaintiff's case. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Ranjit Singh Vs. State of Uttarakhand and others, 2024 SCC Online SC 2932. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon the observations made by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in paragraph No. 5 of the judgment, which is quoted as under:-

"5.....At this stage, we must clarify the legal position. Even if a defendant does not file a written statement and the suit is ordered to proceed ex-parte against him, the limited defence available to the defendant is not foreclosed. A defendant can always cross-examine the witnesses examined by the plaintiff to prove the falsity of the plaintiff's case. A defendant can always urge, based on the plaint and the evidence of the plaintiff, that the suit was barred by a statute such as the law of limitation....."

10. It has been further submitted by learned counsel for the petitioner that once in absence of written statement, court has not proceeded to pronounce judgment in exercise of powers under Rule 10 of Order VIII C.P.C., the court can proceed against the defendant ex parte in exercise of powers under Order IX Rule 6 of C.P.C. Sub-rule (a) of Rule 6 of Order IX provides if it is proved that summons were duly served, the court can make an order that suit shall be heard ex parte, meaning thereby, the court will fix a date for ex parte evidence of the plaintiff to prove his case. Rule 7 of Order IX provides where the court has adjourned the hearing of the suit, ex parte, and the defendant, at or before such hearing appears and assigns good cause for his previous non-appearance, he may, upon such terms as the court may directs as to costs or otherwise, be heard in answer to the suit as if he had appeared on the date fixed for his appearance. It has been further submitted, even if no application under Rule 7 of Order IX is made by the defendant, it has been interpreted by this Court as well as by Hon'ble Supreme Court and various other High Courts that the defendant can be permitted to appear and contest the proceedings even without filing the written statement. Once the defendant is permitted to contest the proceedings, which includes cross-examination of witnesses of the plaintiff, then there is no impediment in permitting the defendant to lead evidence to the effect that the suit filed by the plaintiff was not maintainable or was barred by law. He may not be permitted to lead evidence on the factual aspect of the case, but he can always be permitted to lead evidence that the suit filed by the plaintiff as such was not maintainable. It has been further contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that in the present case, the evidence which was led by the petitioner, which has not been allowed, was to the effect that the suit filed by the plaintiff was barred under the provisions of Income Tax Act and therefore the court below has erred in law in rejecting the evidence filed by the petitioner.

There is no dispute to the proposition of law as argued by learned counsel for the petitioner to the extent that the defendant who has not filed the written statement can be permitted to participate in the proceedings where the proceedings are taken ex parte against him. He may also be permitted to cross-examine the plaintiff witnesses in case the evidence of the plaintiff witnesses is still to be recorded at the time when defendant choose to contest the proceedings by putting appearance in the suit. But whether this right will include to permit the defendant to lead evidence is a bit doubtful and has to be examined in the light of relevant statutory provisions as well as law as laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court as well as by this Court and various other High Courts. And in this regard, it would be relevant to note the provisions of Order VI and Order VII.

11. Order VI defines "pleadings" which means plaint or written statement. Order VI Rule 1 and 2(1) are quoted as under:-

"1. Pleading.- “Pleading” shall mean plaint or written statement.

2. Pleading to state material facts and not evidence. (1) Every pleading shall contain, and contain only, a statement in a concise form of the material facts on which the party pleading relies for his claim or defence, as the case may be, but not the evidence by which they are to be proved....."

12. Rule 2 of Order VIII C.P.C. provides that in the written statement new facts must be specifically pleaded by the defendant. Rule 3 of Order VIII provides that defendant must deal specifically with each allegation of fact of which he does not admit the truth. Rule 5 of Order VIII further provides that in case any allegation of fact made in the plaint is not denied specifically or by necessary implication in the pleading of the defendant, shall be taken to be admitted. Rules 2, 3 and 5 of Order VIII are quoted as under:-

"2. New facts must be specially pleaded.-The defendant must raise by his pleading all matters which show the suit not be maintainable, or that the transaction is either void or voidable in point of law, and all such grounds of defence as, if not raised, would be likely to take the opposite party by surprise, or would raise issues of fact not arising out of the plaint, as, for instance, fraud, limitation, release, payment, performance, or facts showing illegality.

3. Denial to be specific.-It shall not be sufficient for a defendant in his written statement to deny generally the grounds alleged by the plaintiff, but the defendant must deal specifically with each allegation of fact of which he does not admit the truth, except damages.

5. Specific denial.-[(1)] Every allegation of fact in the plaint, if not denied specifically or by necessary implication, or stated to be not admitted in the pleading of the defendant, shall be taken to be admitted except as against a person under disability:

Provided that the Court may in its discretion require any fact so admitted to be proved otherwise than by such admission:

(2) Where the defendant has not filed a pleading, it shall be lawful for the court to pronounce judgment on the basis of the facts contained in the plaint, except as against a person under a disability, but the Court may, in its discretion, require any such fact to be proved.

(3) In exercising its discretion under the proviso to sub-rule (1) or under sub-rule (2), the Court shall have due regard to the fact whether the defendant could have, or has, engaged a pleader.

(4) Whenever a judgment is pronounced under this rule, a decree shall be drawn up in accordance with such judgment and such decree shall bear the date on which the judgment was pronounced."

13. From the bare reading of the provisions of C.P.C. quoted above, it is apparent that parties to the suit in their pleading has to state the material fact on which they rely and they are not supposed to plead the evidence by which they are to be proved.

14. The whole object of pleadings is to bring the parties to an issue, and the meaning of the rules (relating to pleadings), was to prevent the issue being enlarged, which would prevent either party from knowing when the cause came on from trial, what the real point to be discussed and decided was. In fact, the whole meaning of the system is to narrow the parties to definite issues and thereby to diminish expense and delay, especially as regards the amount of testimony required on either side of hearing. To attain this end, the plaintiff should state in his plaint all the facts which constitute his cause of action. No amount of proof can substitute pleadings which are foundation of the claim of a litigating party. The defendant should also state in his written statement all the material facts on which he relies for his defence. When the result of the pleading on both sides is that a material fact is firm on one side and denied on the other, the question thus raised between the parties is called an issue of fact. When one party answers his opponent's pleadings by stating an objection in point of law, the legal question thus raised between the parties is called an issue of law.

15. In case of Siddik Mohamed Shah Vs. Mt. Saran and others; 1929 SCC Online PC 79, the privy council has held it was a gift made by the widow herself but that claim was never made in the defence presented and the learned Judicial Commissioners therefore, very truly find that no amount of evidence can be looked into upon a plea which was never put forward.

16. In case of Bachhaj Nahar vs Nilima Mandal and another; 2008 (17) SCC 491, the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that no amount of evidence can be looked into, upon a plea which was never put forward in the pleadings. A question which did not arise from the pleadings and which was not the subject matter of an issue, cannot be decided by the court.

17. If a party omits to plead a material fact, he will not be allowed to give evidence on that fact at the trial unless the court gives him leave to amend his pleading under Rule 17 of Order VI C.P.C. In case there is no written statement in the suit, the defendant cannot be permitted to lead evidence of facts as there is no pleading. There cannot be any evidence in absence of pleading, therefore, the defendant cannot be permitted to lead evidence once he has been denied to file written statement.

18. In Syed and Company and others Vs. State of Jammu and Kashmir and others: 1995 Supp (4) SCC 422, in paragraph No. 10 of the judgment, Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:-

"10. We have carefully considered the above submissions. We are of the view that no exception could be taken to the judgment of the High Court. No doubt a prayer was made before the prescribed authority by the State requesting that a decree might be granted for the amount of price of timber extracted by the party. But that prayer alone was not enough. The pleadings ought to have been there as to what exactly was the basis of the prayer. We are afraid that the entire case of the State before the prescribed authority proceeded only with reference to royalty and interest thereof, but not with reference to the price of the timber. It is true that in Malik Abdul Ahmad Shah Jalil Ahmad Akhtar AIR 1982 J & K 16 it has been held that the prescribed authority under Section 52 is empowered to determine the price of timber extracted. The State at that stage, should have amended the pleading and incorporated the basis for the claim for the price of timber. But for reasons best known the State merely took out an application under Order 41 Rule 27 to lead in evidence. Of course, evidence could have been allowed if there were pleadings to that effect. In this case, there was none. It is settled law that no evidence can be let in without the pleading. The High Court was fully justified in rejecting the application."

19. This Court in case of Abdul Jalil Vs. Jalil Beg and others: 2011 (7) ADJ 292 held in paragraph Nos. 11 and 12 as under:-

"11. Even though refusal to accept the written statement does not amount to striking off the defence still defendant cannot be permitted to adduce evidence for the reason that evidence can be adduced to prove the pleaded facts and in the absence of pleading (W.S), this exercise will be futile. No amount of evidence can be looked into unless there is corresponding pleading for the same.

12. Accordingly, impugned orders permitting the tenant to adduce evidence even though his written statement has been directed not to be taken on record/accepted are erroneous in law and without jurisdiction."

20. In case of Chuni Lal Chowdhry Vs. Bank of Baroda and others; AIR 1982 J& K 93, Jammu and Kashmir High Court has held in paragraph No. 3 as under:-

"3. On the authority of these observations, Rule 10 can be taken to relate to Rule 1 of Order 8 and on the defendant's failure to file written statement of his defence, when so required, the court has the power, either to pronounce the judgment against him or make such order in relation to the suit as it thinks fit depending upon whether the suit was for the final disposal or for the settlement of the issues only. In the latter case, the court has ample discretion to grant more time for filing the written statement or to proceed to hearing of the suit without such written statement. The discretion cannot, however, be exercised arbitrarily. In determining which course to adopt, the court will always be guided by the facts and circumstances of each case. Where the court decides to proceed to hearing of the suit without the written statement, that would not debar the defendant from taking part in further proceedings of the case. His participation would, however, be hedged in by several limitations. He will not be able either to cross- examine the plaintiff's witnesses or to produce his own evidence with regard to any questions of fact which he could have pleaded in the written statement. He will, however, be competent to cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses in order to demolish their version of the plaintiff's case."

21. In case of Siai Sinha Vs. Shivadhari Sinha and others; AIR 1972 Pat 81, similar view has been taken by the Patna High Court.

22. In case of Sangram Singh Vs. Election Tribunal, Kotah and others; (1955) 1 SCC 323, the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed and held that on setting aside the ex parte decree and on restoration of the suit, the parties to the suit shall be put to the same position as they were at the time when ex parte judgment and decree were passed and the defendant may not be permitted to file written statement as no written statement was filed. However, at the same time, they can be permitted to participate in the suit proceedings and cross-examine the witnesses.

23. In case of Modula India Vs. Kamakshya Singh Deo; 1988 (4) SCC 619, the Supreme Court considered the scope and ambit of participation in a suit or proceedings by the defendant whose defense is struck off or who has not been permitted to file his written statement. Paragraph Nos. 18, 19, 20, 21 and 22 of the judgment in case of Modula India (supra) are quoted as under:-

"18. We agree that full effect should be given to the words that defence against ejectment is struck off. But does this really deprive the defendant tenant of further participation in the case in any manner? While it is true that, in a broad sense, the right of defence takes in, within its canvass, all aspects including the demolition of the plaintiff's case by the cross-examination of his witnesses, it would be equally correct to say that the cross-examination of the plaintiff's witnesses really constitutes a finishing touch which completes the plaintiff's case. It is a well established proposition that no oral testimony can be considered satisfactory or valid unless it is tested by cross-examination. The mere statement of the plaintiff's witnesses cannot constitute the plaintiff's evidence in the case unless and until it is tested by cross- examination. The right of the defence to cross-examine the plaintiff's witnesses can, therefore, be looked upon not as a part of its own strategy of defence but rather as a requirement without which the plaintiff's evidence cannot be acted upon. Looked at from this point of view it should be possible to take the view that, though the defence of the tenant has been struck out, there is nothing in law to preclude him from demonstrating to the court that the plaintiff's witnesses are not speaking the truth or that the evidence put forward by the plaintiff is not sufficient to fulfill the terms of the statute.

19. To us it appears that the basic principle that where a plaintiff comes to the court he must prove his case should not be whittled down even in a case where no defendant appears. It will at once be clear that to say that the Court can only do this by looking the plaintiff's evidence and pleadings supplemented by such questions as the court may consider necessary and to completely eliminate any type of assistance from the defendant in this task will place the court under a great handicap in discovering the truth or otherwise of the plaintiff's statements. For after all, the court on its own motion, can do very little to ascertain the truth or otherwise of the plaintiff's averments and it is only the opposite party that will be more familiar with the detailed facts of a particular case and that can assist the court in pointing out defects, weaknesses, errors and inconsistencies of the plaintiff's case.

20. We, therefore, think that the defendant should be allowed his right of cross-examination and arguments. But we are equally clear that this right should be subject to certain important safeguards. The first of these is that the defendant cannot be allowed to lead his own evidence. None of the observations or decisions cited have gone to the extent of suggesting that, inspite of the fact that the defence has been struck off, the defendant can adduce evidence of his own or try to substantiate his own case.

21. Secondly, there is force in the apprehension that if one permits cross-examination of the plaintiff's witnesses by the defendant whose defence is struck off, procedural chaos may result unless great case is exercised and that it may be very difficult to keep the cross- examination within the limits of the principles discussed earlier. Under the guise of cross-examination and purported demolition of the plaintiff's case, the defendant may attempt to put forward pleas of his own. To perceive quickly the difference between questions put out to elicit a reply from the plaintiff which may derogate from his own case and questions put out to substantiate pleas in defence which the defendant may have in mind and to restrict the cross-examination to its limits will be not an easy task. We think, however, that this is a difficulty of procedure, rather than substance. As pointed out by Ramendra Mohan Dutta, J. this is a matter to be sorted out in practical application rather than by laying down a hard and fast rule of exclusion.

22. A third safeguard which we would like to impose is based on the observations of this court in Sangram Singh's case. As pointed out therein, the essence of the matter in all such cases is that the latitude that may be extended by the court to the defendant inspite of his not having filed a written statement, should not cause prejudice to the plaintiff. Where the defendant does not file a written statement or where he does not appear to contest the case the plaintiff proceeds on the basis that there is no real opposition and contents himself by letting in just enough evidence to establish a prima facie case. Therefore, the court should ensure that by permitting the defendant at a later stage either to cross-examine the witnesses or to participate in the proceeding the plaintiff is not taken by surprise or gravely prejudiced. This difficulty however can be easily overcome in practice, because there is a wide discretion with the court and it is always open to the court, where it believes that the plaintiff has been misled, to exercise its discretion to shut out cross-examination or to regulate it in such manner as to avoid any real prejudice to the interests of the plaintiff."

24. Very recently, Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Kaushik Narsinhbhai Patel and others Vs. M/S. S.J.R. Prime Corporation Private Limited and others; (2024) 9 SCC 462 was considering the effect of its earlier order dated 11.08.2021 (Annexure No. P-18) wherein the Supreme Court permitted in a claim petition before the National Consumer Redressal Forum to proceed without the written statement of the respondent builder, but permitted the respondent builder to participate in the proceedings. In the aforesaid case, contention was raised by the appellant that ignoring the order of Supreme Court dated 11.08.2021, National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission virtually permitted the respondent to introduce facts to dispute their claims and complainants inasmuch as the opportunity offered to the first respondent by National Consumer Dispute Redressal Commission to file written submissions was utilized by the first respondent to introduce new facts to resist their claim and contentions. Such newly introduced facts and factors by the respondent through written submissions, obviously, weighed with the National Consumer Disputes Redressal Commission in adopting the formula followed in the impugned order for the purpose of computation of compensation payable to the complainants. Paragraph Nos. 15 to 18 and 20 to 26 of Kaushik Narsinhbhai Patel (supra) are quoted as under:-

"15. We will straight away verify the verity of the aforesaid contentions with reference to Annexure P-18 order dated 11.08.2021, firstly, to see whether the same was overreached and then, subject to its answer and consequences of its defiance. A bare perusal of Annexure P-21, which is the written submissions on behalf of the first respondent herein (opposite party therein) filed before the NCDRC and marked as such in this proceeding, without any peradventure would go to show that in and vide the said written submissions, the first respondent had introduced some pleadings to resist the claims and the contentions of the complainants in CC No.945 of 2019 and eventually, to offer its explanation for the delay in handing over possession of the flats. The raison d□etre for our remarks would be unravelled by a mere perusal of Annexure P-21. Paragraph 3 thereof, opens thus: -

The complainants do not deserve any compensation as, (emphasis supplied)

16. Thenceforth, under para 3 (i) to 3 (iii), the respondents gave the reasons therefor. Through paragraph 4 of Annexure P-21, the respondent introduced further reasons to support its stand that the complainants do not deserve compensatory interest for the delay in handing over possession of flats. It is to be noted that even after taking a stand at paragraph 5 thereof that there was no delay at all from its part, the first respondent proceeded to explain the delay in paragraph 6. The statements made in the further paragraphs of Annexure P-21 also carry, either the case of the first respondent or its explanations/reasons to counter the claim of the complainants. To put it pithily, the first respondent, on being given the opportunity to file written submission, made use of it to make good its failure to file a written statement despite the fact that its right to file the same was declared as forfeited by this Court.

17. We are at a loss to understand as to how, such an opportunity could have been utilised by the first respondent in defiance to the specific directions of this Court under Annexure P-18 order and to file a written submission of such a nature. Under Annexure P-18 order, this Court declared that the first respondent had forfeited its right to file a written statement and then permitted, rather, directed to proceed further without the written statement of the first respondent-builder. True that even then its right to participate in the proceedings was protected, presumably, taking into account the position of law in that regard. We will deal with the scope of such permitted participation as also the consequence of the act of defiance of Annexure P-18 order depending on its degree of defiance and its impact. In doing so, we will have to keep reminded of the principle of law that what cannot be done directly, cannot be done indirectly.

18. The discussion as above, would take us to the next question as to what is the impact of forfeiture of opportunity to file written statement? We are fully aware of the fact that all the provisions in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, (for short "the CPC") are not proprio vigore applicable to proceedings before Consumer Forums created under the Consumer Protection Act, 2019, except to the extent it is provided under Section 38 (9) of the Consumer Protection Act. Be that as it may, in the absence of specific provisions dealing with the consequence of forfeiture of the right to file a written statement, it is only appropriate to refer to the provisions and positions dealing with such situations in the CPC to know the general law on this question.

20. Thus, the position is that even if the defendant/opposite party failed to file a written statement and, in that matter, even if forfeiture of the right to file written statement has occasioned it would not disentitle that party from participating in the further proceedings, without filing a written statement and in such circumstances, the said party would also be having the right to cross-examine the witness(es), if any, of the plaintiff/complainant. 21. In the contextual situation, it is also appropriate to refer to Rule 1 & 2, Order VI of the CPC which reads thus:-

"Pleading. – "Pleading" shall mean the plaint or written statement. Rule 2, Order VI, in so far as, reads thus: -

"2. Pleading to state material facts and not evidence.--(1) Every pleading shall contain, and contain only, a statement in a concise form of the material facts on which the party pleading relies for his claim or defence, as the case may be, but not the evidence by which they are to be proved."

22. The rigour of the rule of pleadings is evident from Rule 7 of Order VI, CPC, which mandates that:

"7. Departure-no pleading shall, except by way of amendment, raise any new ground of claim or contain any allegation of fact inconsistent with the previous pleadings of the party pleading the same" .

23. In the context of the aforesaid provisions under the CPC, it is apt to refer to a decision of a Division Bench of the Karnataka High Court in Nalini Sunder v. GV Sunder. It was held therein that a party could not make out a case on the basis of evidence for which he/she has laid no foundation in the pleadings. It is fairly settled that no amount of evidence can prove a case of a party who had not set up the same in his/her pleadings, it was further held therein.

24. According to us, it is the correct proposition of law. In the absence of any specific provisions dealing with non-filing of written statements/forfeiture of the right to file a written statement, taking note of the general position as above, it can only be held that it should bar the opposite party in a proceeding before the Consumer Redressal Forums to bring in pleadings, indirectly to introduce its/his case and evidence to support such case. In the situations mentioned above, the right of the opposite party is confined to participate in the proceedings without filing a written statement and to cross-examine witness(es), if any, examined by the complainant(s).

25. It being the position of law, the first respondent who is bound by Annexure P- 18 order could not have been permitted to introduce its case to defend the case of the complainants through written submissions though it was rightly permitted to participate in the proceedings. There is no case for the first respondent that it sought permission to cross- examine Kaushik Narsinhbhai Patel who filed affidavit of evidence and produced documentary evidence. At any rate, no such case was put forth by the first respondent and no grievance of denial of such opportunity was also raised.

26. In the circumstances expatiated above, in view of Annexure P-18 order the reply and objection filed by the first respondent herein in this proceeding also cannot be looked to the extent it carries pleadings relating its case, the reasons and objections which could have been let in through a written statement. In short, the first respondent could be permitted only to argue the legal questions arising based on authorities and provisions of law as also regarding lapses or laches and the consequential non-admissibility or otherwise of evidence, let in by the appellants."

25. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon paragraph No. 15 of the judgment in case of Pandit Gopicharan Bajpai (supra), which is quoted as under:-

"15. As I have pointed out above, a party has the right to lead evidence on the issues framed in the case even though there has been an order, earlier in the case, to the effect that proceedings in the case would be "ex parte", provided of course there has not been an "ex parte" decree already."

26. I have perused the judgment passed by this Court in case of Pandit Gopicharan Bajpai (supra). This Court was considering an order passed by the trial court rejecting the application filed by the revisionist for permitting him to file written statement. This Court allowed the revision partly and permitted the defendant-revisionist for appearing at the trial and leading evidence. Though, certain observations have been made by this Court in the aforesaid judgment, but in view of the law laid down by the Privy Council, the Supreme Court, this Court and various other High Courts, I find myself unable to persuade to the contention made by the petitioner that even where the defendant has been denied the right to file written statement, can be permitted to lead evidence. Since there are no pleadings in case written statement is not filed by the defendant, evidence cannot be led on the issues framed in absence of pleadings.

27. In view of the discussions made above, I am of the view that court below has not committed any illegality in rejecting the evidence filed by the petitioner as the right to file written statement of the defendant was closed and there was no pleading regarding the evidence sought to be adduced by the petitioner. In this case, petitioner has been permitted to cross-examine the witnesses adduced by the plaintiff and in my view, beyond that, permission cannot be granted to the petitioner to lead evidence for want of pleadings.

28. Accordingly, the petition fails and is dismissed.

Case Arising From

The petition Matters Under Article 227 No. 1823 of 2025 has been filed challenging the order dated 20.12.2024 passed by Additional District Judge, Court No. 14, Bareilly, allowing the Civil Revision No. 26 of 2024 (Smt. Asha Rani and others vs. Santosh and others). The petition Matters Under Article 227 No.5440 of 2025 has been filed challenging the orders dated 03.02.2025 passed by the executing court in Execution Case No. 50 of 1994, (Pooran Lal (deceased) and others vs. Maya Devi (deceased) and others), as well as revisional order dated 15.04.2025 passed by District Judge, Bareilly in Civil Revision No. Nil of 2025, (Santosh and others vs. Smt. Asha Rani and others).

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Bhanu Bhushan Jauhari, Rishi Bhushan Jauhari
Counsel for Respondent(s) : Rama Goel Bansal, Shalini Goel

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. Heard Sri Bhanu Bhushan Jauhari, learned counsel for the petitioners, Ms. Rama Goel Bansal, learned counsel for the respondents and perused the records.

2. The petition Matters Under Article 227 No. 1823 of 2025 has been filed challenging the order dated 20.12.2024 passed by Additional District Judge, Court No. 14, Bareilly, allowing the Civil Revision No. 26 of 2024 (Smt. Asha Rani and others vs. Santosh and others). The petition Matters Under Article 227 No.5440 of 2025 has been filed challenging the orders dated 03.02.2025 passed by the executing court in Execution Case No. 50 of 1994, (Pooran Lal (deceased) and others vs. Maya Devi (deceased) and others), as well as revisional order dated 15.04.2025 passed by District Judge, Bareilly in Civil Revision No. Nil of 2025, (Santosh and others vs. Smt. Asha Rani and others).

3. Both the petitions arise from the same suit and the same execution case, therefore they are being considered and decided together.

4. Brief facts of the case are that one Pooran Lal (predecessor in interest of the respondents) instituted a suit for specific performance of an agreement to sell dated 31.12.1967 executed by one Maya Devi (predecessor in interest of the present petitioners). By judgment and decree dated 29.04.1972 passed by the trial court, suit filed by the plaintiff (hereinafter referred to as "respondents") was decreed. The judgment and decree dated 29.04.1972 was challenged in appeal by defendant (hereinafter referred to as "petitioners") by filing a first appeal under Section 96 of the C.P.C. The first appeal referred above was allowed by judgment and order dated 05.03.1973 passed by the first appellate court and judgment and decree dated 29.04.1972 passed by the trial court was set aside and the suit was remanded by the appellate court to be decided by the trial court. After the remand, by the judgment and decree dated 21.02.1974, suit filed by the respondents was dismissed by the trial court. The judgment and decree dated 21.02.1974 was challenged by the respondents in Civil Appeal No. 76 of 1974, Pooranlal Vs. Smt. Maya Devi, which was allowed by District Judge vide judgment and order dated 21.04.1975 and the suit was decreed with cost and with a direction to the petitioners to execute the sale deed of the disputed house within thirty days from the date of order. The judgment and decree dated 21.04.1975 passed by the District Judge in Civil Appeal No. 76 of 1974 was challenged before this court in Second Appeal No. 884 of 1975, Smt. Maya Devi Vs. Pooranlal. The second appeal was dismissed by this Court vide judgment and decree dated 23.01.2006. During pendency of second appeal, a conditional stay order was granted by this Court, however, since conditions of the stay order were not obeyed by the judgment debtors i.e. petitioners, execution application was filed by the respondents before the Munsiff City, Bareilly on 02.10.1994 which was registered as Execution Case No. 50 of 1994. Both original plaintiff and defendant died during the pendency of the execution case and were substituted by present respondents and the petitioners respectively. In the execution case, respondents filed draft sale deed to be executed by the petitioners before the executing court marked as paper No. 69-C. In the draft sale deed, the address of the property to be transferred was mentioned to be situated at Mohalla-Siklapur, Bareilly. The petitioners filed their objection to the draft sale deed, paper No. 70-C challenging the details of the property. On 30.01.2024, the respondents filed application paper No.-91- C wherein it was stated that while preparing the decree, house in question has been referred to be situated at Mohalla-Gulab Nagar instead of Mohalla-Siklapur. It was also stated in the application that the error is because of mistake of the clerk, who prepared the decree and is liable to be corrected. To application paper No. 91-C, objections were filed by the petitioners being paper No. 92-C, wherein it was stated by the petitioners that the decree was passed regarding house situated at Mohalla-Gulab Nagar, Bareilly, on the basis of description given in the plaint and in the garb of the said decree, the respondents were trying to grab the house of the petitioners situated at Mohalla-Siklapur, Bareilly. The executing court by order dated 08.04.2024 directed the respondents to file original agreement to sell or certified copy of the same, so that, execution application may be decided. Thereafter, the respondents filed application paper No. 96-C under Sections 151/152/153 read with Section 47 C.P.C. and prayed that in all the necessary documents, instead of Gulab Nagar, words Siklapur be written. The petitioners thereafter filed their objection being paper No. 99-C for rejection of the aforesaid application paper No. 96-C. By order dated 27.08.2024, the application paper No. 96-C filed by the respondents was rejected by the executing court. Against order dated 27.08.2024 passed by the executing court, Civil Revision No. 26 of 2024 was filed by the respondents before the District Judge, Bareilly. The District Judge, Bareilly vide judgment and order dated 20.12.2024 allowed the revision filed by the respondents and set aside the order dated 27.08.2024 and has also held that order dated 08.04.2024 passed by the executing court is of no consequence. The order dated 20.12.2024 was challenged by the petitioners by filing Matters Under Article 227 No. 1823 of 2025, Santosh Kumar and others versus Smt. Asha Rani and others, which is one of the two connected petitions which are being decided. Since there was no interim order granted by this court in Matters Under Article 227 No. 1823 of 2025, the executing court proceeded with the matter. On 28.01.2025, the petitioners filed their further objection to the application paper No. 96-C filed by the respondents. The executing court, by order dated 03.02.2025 allowed the application paper No. 96-C. In pursuance of order dated 03.02.2025, the decree passed by the trial court was also amended. The order dated 03.02.2025 was challenged by the petitioners by filing Civil Revision No. NIL of 2025, to which objections were filed by the respondents. By order dated 15.04.2025, the revisional court i.e. the District Judge, has dismissed the revision filed by the petitioners. Hence Matters Under Article 227 No. 5440 of 2025 is filed.

5. Contention of learned counsel for the petitioners is that dispute between the parties before the executing court was as to the details of the property of which sale deed was to be executed i.e. whether the same was situated at Mohalla- Gulab Nagar or Mohalla-Siklapur. Counsel for the petitioners further contended that the decree sought to be executed was passed for the house situated at Mohalla Gulab Nagar and not at Siklapur. The respondents in their application paper No. 91-C had admitted that there was no mistake in the decree and the decree as such was to be executed. Later on, the respondents moved an application paper No. 96-C for correction, in all the records of the execution case, changing the location of the house in question from Mohalla-Gulab Nagar to Mohalla-Siklapur. It has been further submitted by learned counsel for the petitioners that if there is any discrepancy in the decree sought to be executed, the same can only be corrected by the court which has passed the decree, and the decree cannot be corrected in execution proceedings. It has also been contended by learned counsel for the petitioners that by the order impugned, the executing court has allowed and corrected the decree by changing the description from Mohalla-Gulab Nagar to Mohalla-Siklapur while allowing the application filed by the respondents. It has been further submitted that executing court cannot go behind the decree and it has to execute the decree as it is, and executing court cannot correct or modify the decree.

6. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that there was no mis-description of the property in the suit, as the same was apparent from the averments made in the plaint. It has been further submitted by learned counsel for the respondents that because of clerical error committed by the clerk, who prepared the final decree, Mohalla-Gulab Nagar was mentioned in the decree instead of Mohalla-Siklapur, which is contrary to the averments made in the plaint as well as in the judgment passed by the District Judge, which was sought to be executed. It has also been submitted by learned counsel for the respondents that an error apparent on the face of the record, and wrong description given in the decree which is contrary to the averments made in the plaint, can always be looked into and corrected by the executing court. Learned counsel for the respondents further submitted that in view of Section 47 C.P.C, all the questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree was passed relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree shall be determined by the court executing the decree. It has been further submitted that no error has been committed by the executing court in correcting the decree to the effect that description of property 'at Mohalla Gulab Nagar' was corrected to 'Mohalla Siklapur'. An inadvertent error at the time of preparing of the decree, can be corrected in exercise of powers under Sections 151, 152, 153 C.P.C. and also under Section 47 C.P.C. while determining the questions relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree.

7. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon following judgments:-

Durga Singh vs. Wahid Raza & Ors; AIR 1965 ALL 226, Rakesh Kumar & Ors Vs. Ashok Kumar & Anr; 2015(6) ADJ 102, M/s Gojer Brothers Ltd Vs. Shri Ratan Lal Singh; AIR 1974 SC 1380, Lala Brij Narain Vs. State of Karnataka & Ors; (2005) 10 SCC 383.

8. Learned counsel for the respondents relied upon judgments in case of: Pratibha Singh & Another Vs. Shanti Devi Prasad & Another; 2003 0 AIR (SC) 643, Mahadeo S/o Punjaji Malokar vs Mahadeo S/o Pandurang Dhanorkar; 2023:BHC-NAG 15832, Tilak Raj vs Baikunthi Devi (D) By Lrs; AIR 2009 SC 2136, Madhav Tukaram Kulal & Anr. 9. Section 47 of C.P.C. is the one of the most important provisions in the Code relating to execution of decrees. It enacts that the Court executing the decree shall determine all questions arising between the parties to the suit or their representatives, relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. The scope of Section 47 of C.P.C. is very wide and comprehensive. Exclusive jurisdiction has been conferred on the executing court in respect of all matters relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of a decree arising between the parties or their representatives. Once the suit is decreed, this section requires that executing court should alone determine all questions in the execution proceedings and filing of the separate suit is barred.

10. The underlying object of Section 47 of C.P.C. is to provide extensive and expeditious remedy for determination of all the questions relating to the execution of a decree only in execution proceedings without recourse to a separate suit. It thus, seeks to prevent needless and unnecessary litigation. In M. P. Shreevastava vs Mrs. Veena; AIR 1967 Supreme Court 1193, after referring to various decisions, the Supreme Court observed that Section 47 of C.P.C. enacts the salutary rule that all questions relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree should be determined in execution proceedings only.

11. Section 47 of C.P.C. confers plenary powers on the executing court for determining all questions arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree is passed.

12. In Ramchandra Spg. & Wvg. Mills vs Bijli Cotton Mills & Ors; AIR 1967 SC 1344, the Supreme Court observed: "It has been consistently held in a number of decisions by the Privy Council and the High Courts that Section 47 is wide and should be liberally construed so as not to drive the parties to a separate suit and thereby prolong litigation. All questions relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree which arise between the parties fall within the scope of this section."

13. In order that this section may apply, the following conditions must be satisfied: (I), the question must be one arising between the parties to the suit in which the decree is passed or their representatives and (II) it must relates to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. Both these conditions must be satisfied cumulatively.

14. Expression, "relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree", has not been defined in the Code, can presumably with a view to say that it remains flexible. The phrase is comprehensive enough to include any question which furthers, hinders, or in any manner affects the execution of the decree. However, the expression (after relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree) must be construed reasonably, no artificial extension is permissible. Each and every question raised by a party to the suit cannot be considered by the executing court, even if it may relate to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. Such question must arise in the course of execution and must relate to enforcement of obligation created by decree and should be referable to matters arising subsequent to the passing of the decree. The questions contemplated by Section 47 are those questions which were not raised at the trial and not decided by the court. If the question was raised before the court and was decided by the trial court, it is not open to the parties to raise it again at the stage of execution. Likewise, a question cannot be raised before the executing court if such question ought to have been raised by a party before the trial court, but he omits to raise it.

15. Section 47 enjoins the executing court to decide all questions relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. Section 47(1) is mandatory, the words of the section are peremptory and if the case is covered by this provision, the Court is bound to decide it in execution and it has no discretion to refer the party to a separate suit. The word 'determine' conveys that the questions contemplated by Section 47 should be finally disposed of. The questions of the fact as well as of the law can be decided by the court under Section 47 C.P.C.

16. Before considering the legal submissions, it would be appropriate to look into the factual position as it stands from the pleadings.

17. The plaint of Original Suit No. 96 of 1968 has been annexed as Annexure No. 3 at page No. 57 of the paper book. In paragraph No. 1 of the said plaint, it has been stated that the defendant i.e, predecessor in interest of the petitioners, is the owner of the house situated at Mohalla-Siklapur, bounded and detailed at the foot of the plaint. Paragraph No. 1 of the plaint is quoted as under:

"1. That the defendant is the owner of a house situate at Bareilly Mohalla Siklapur bounded and detailed at the foot of the plaint which she was anxious to dispose off."

18. In relief (a) of the plaint quoted in paragraph No. 15 of the plaint, it was prayed by the plaintiff that defendant be directed to execute a sale deed of disputed house situated at Bareilly, Mohalla Siklapur, bounded and detailed at the foot of the plaint. From the perusal of the plaint, it is apparent, while giving the boundaries of the house at the foot of the plaint, it has been mentioned as boundaries of the house situated at Bareilly Mohalla- Gulab Nagar. Paragraph No. 15 (a), as well as boundaries as mentioned in the suit, are quoted as under:-

a- That the defendant be directed to execute a sale deed of the disputed house situated at Bareilly Mohalla Siklapur bounded and detailed at the foot of the plaint within such time as may be ordered by this Hon'ble Court on payment of the balance sale consideration and deliver possession thereof to the plaintiff failing which the sale deed be get executed and registered through court and the possession over the said house be ordered to be delivered to the plaintiff.

Boundaries of the house situate at Bareilly Mohalla Gulab Nagar.

East- House of Ram Gopal and others
West-Road
North House of Lal Ji.
South- House of Hulas Rai"

19. In the written statement filed by the defendant-petitioners in the aforesaid suit, which has been annexed along with supplementary affidavit as Annexure S.A.1, the defendant-petitioners have admitted paragraph No. 1 of the plaint. Paragraph No. 15 of the plaint has been stated to be legal. In paragraph No. 2 the defendant has admitted the execution of agreement to sell. I have also perused the true copy of the Hindi translation of original Urdu agreement filed by the petitioners along with supplementary affidavit as Annexure S.A. 4. In the aforesaid agreement, Mohalla of the house for which agreement to sell was executed was not given, but the boundaries of the house are given, which are as under:

East- house of Ram Gopal, etc.,
West-public road (Sadak Sahakari)
South- Makan of Hulas Ram
North- Rasta Makan, Ram Gopal.
Boundaries as given in the plaint are as under:
East- House of Ram Gopal and others
West-Road
North House of Lal Ji.
South- House of Hulas Rai

20. In the execution application as well as draft sale deed submitted by respondents/ defendants, house is claimed to be at Siklapur with the boundaries as given in the plaint.

21. The question whether a particular property is or is not covered under the decree or dispute as to description of the property whether correct or not is a question concerned under this Section. Such question relates to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. The question cannot be determined in a separate suit. The question regarding identity of the property is a question relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree. It is true that an executing court cannot go behind the decree. It must take the decree as it stands and execute it according to its terms. It has no power to amend, varying, modifying, or substituting. Where there is no ambiguity in the terms of the decree, a plain meaning must be given to the words used. Where the terms of the decree are clear and unambiguous, the effect must be given to such terms at the same time, however, wherever the decree is vague or ambiguous, it is competent to the executing court to go behind the decree and look into the judgment, even the pleadings and to get assisted in order to have the ambiguity dispelled. Section 47 of the C.P.C. would not be a bar to such course being adopted.

22. In the facts of the present case, it is clear that parties were quite clear about the identity of the property for which they were litigating for and there was no doubt or ambiguity in relation to identity of the suit property. However, inadvertently, due to typographical error at the foot of the plaint, Mohalla Gulab Nagar was incorrectly mentioned instead of Mohalla Siklapur. In paragraph No. 1 as well as paragraph No. 15 of the plaint, it has been stated that house situated at Mohalla

Siklapur was the property for which the agreement was executed and suit was instituted. Paragraph No. 1 of the plaint has been admitted by the defendant and paragraph No. 15 was stated to be legal. The agreement is of the year 1967 and the execution was filed in the year 1994.

23. The boundaries as given in the agreement to sell and in the plaint, three boundaries exactly match. There was misdescription of the Mohalla at the bottom of the plaint, in my view, same cannot be fatal to the case of the decree holders. Other than that, the remaining description of the property is quite clear and unambiguous. The executing court had ample powers to refer the pleadings of the parties, qua, decree passed in the suit.

24. For correction of the description of the suit property in the plaint, amendment is permissible under Order VI Rule 17 of C.P.C., when the court is in seisin of the suit. After disposal of the suit, the amendment cannot be carried out under Order VI Rule 17 of the C.P.C. In such a situation, the plaintiff can take recourse to Sections 151, 152 of the C.P.C. for correction of this error to determine the real question of the suit, the amendment can be allowed in any proceedings including the execution. In my opinion, though Section 152 of the C.P.C cannot be invoked to amend the plaint, the power of the court to make corrections for correcting errors arising due to accidental slip, which are necessary for the ends of justice, is not confined only to the power exercisable under Section 152, but extensive power can be exercised even under Sections 152 and 153 of the Code. The correction is required to be made with a view to give true meaning to the decree.

25. The defendant while contesting the suit, filed the written statement, participated in framing of issues, took cross-examination, argued the matter, and during all these stages, he challenged the claim of the plaintiff in the suit. From the defence, the court has gather knowledge of the defendant, whether he has despite of correct description has challenged the claim of the plaintiff about the correct suit property or the defendant was really misled or has misconception of the facts of the suit property due to wrong description.

26. In my view, in the present case, the suit was contested by the defendant by filing written statement, wherein he has not challenged that the property is not situated at Siklapur, rather he has admitted the averment of the plaintiff regarding the same. Further, no such objections were taken by the petitioners in appeal or in execution proceedings prior to the present application filed by the respondents. Thus, it cannot be held that the defendant was misled. The mistake committed by the respondents was of clerical nature which can be corrected by applying provisions of Section 152 of the C.P.C or in exercise of power under Section 47 C.P.C while determining the questions relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree by the executing court itself.

27. Learned counsel for the petitioners relied upon the judgment in case of Durga Singh (supra). This court has taken a view that after dismissal of the the second appeal by the High Court under Order XLI Rule 11 C.P.C, the application for amendment of decree lies to the High Court and not to the lower appellate court. This court has held the appellate decree is the final decree and the decree of the lower court merges with it. The doctrine of merger applies even where a second appeal has been dismissed by the High Court summarily under Order XLI Rule 11 of C.P.C. It follows that in such a case, application for amendment of decree must be made to the High Court and not to the lower court.

28. In case of Chandi Prasad (supra) relied upon by the petitioners, it was held by the Supreme Court, since the final decree was passed in second appeal on 30.10.1986, therefore the decree of the trial court merged with that of the High Court and therefore execution application filed taking date of decree of the High Court to be starting point of limitation, is not barred by time.

29. In case of M/s. Gojer Brothers (Supra), relied upon by counsel for the petitioners, the Supreme Court held that the decree of the trial court dated 24.11.1958 merged in the decree of the High Court dated 08.01.1969. Since the decree of the High Court was passed after the commencement of West Bengal Premises Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1968, i.e. to say after August 26, 1967, Section 17-D of the Act of 1956 can have no application and therefore, the decree of the High Court, which is the only decree to be executed, cannot be set aside under that Section. In all the judgments relied upon by counsel for the petitioners, the Supreme Court as well as this Court was considering the doctrine of merger and has held that the decree of the trial court merges with the decree of High Court. There is no dispute to the said proposition.

30. In the case, in hand, the question is not of merger of the decree, but the power of the executing court to correct the decree passed by the court in exercise of its power under Section 47 C.P.C. and therefore, in my view, these judgments are not of much help to the petitioners.

31. There is no dispute to the proposition of law that a court passing the decree can always correct the same on an application of either of the parties to the suit. Judgment relied upon by the petitioners mentioning herein above lays down that because of merger of decree, power of amendment in the decree can be exercised by the court which has passed the last/final decree. In the present case, the question involved is as to whether the decree can be corrected by the executing court where the execution of decree is pending or the same can only be corrected by the court which has passed the decree. According to the petitioners, it is only the court which has passed the decree can correct the decree and not the executing court. The submission of learned counsel for the respondents is otherwise.

32. In case of Rakesh Kumar and others (supra), relied upon counsel for the petitioners, this court has taken a view that amendment in the execution application cannot be permitted unless the decree sought to be executed itself was not amended as the prayer in execution could be only in accordance with the decree. Once the decree specified the property as consisting of four rooms on third floor, no prayer could be permitted by way of amendment in execution to seek relief in respect of four rooms on second floor.

33. I have perused the judgment and the aforesaid judgment is not applicable to the facts of the present case. In case of Rakesh Kumar (supra) the defendant applied for amendment in the execution application without asking for amendment in the decree. In the present case, the plaintiff decree holders have sought the amendment in the decree itself before the executing court, which has been allowed by the executing court.

34. Learned counsel for the respondents relied upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Pratibha Singh (supra), wherein it has been held by the Supreme Court in paragraph No. 16 of the judgment as under:-

"16.When the suit as to immovable property has been decreed and the property is not definitely identified, the defect in the court record caused by overlooking of provisions contained in Order 7 Rule 3 and Order 20 Rule 3 of the CPC is capable of being cured. After all a successful plaintiff should not be deprived of the fruits of decree. Resort can be had to Section 152 or Section 47 of the CPC depending on the facts and circumstances of each case which of the two provisions would be more appropriate, just and convenient to invoke. Being an inadvertent error, not affecting the merits of the case, it may be corrected under Section 152 of the CPC by the Court which passed the decree by supplying the omission. Alternatively, the exact description of decretal property may be ascertained by the Executing Court as a question relating to execution, discharge or satisfaction of decree within tie meaning of Section 47 CPC. A decree of a competent Court should not, as far as practicable, be allowed to be defeated on account of an accidental slip or omission. In the facts and circumstances of the present case we think it would be more appropriate to invoke Section 47 of the CPC."

35. In case of Kassim Beevi Vs. Meeranchi Mytheen Beevi and others; 1986 SCC Online Ker 305, in paragraph Nos. 2 and 3 of the judgment, Kerala High Court has held as under:-

"2. The suit was fought on various points right up to this court and was decreed. The plaintiff filed E.P. No. 349 of 1977 with a draft sale deed, the boundaries in which did not tally with the description in Ext.P2 and in the plaint or in the decree, both of which had reproduced the boundary description in Ext.P2. The difference in the boundaries was consequent on the mistake in the boundaries as described in Ext.P2 as pointed out earlier. The decree-holder also filed application for correction of the decree, inter alia regarding the boundaries of the property described in the decree schedule. That application was dismissed on the ground that the application for amendment lay only to this court in view of the fact that the matter had been taken up in second appeal to this court. The decree-holder filed C.M.P. No. 13226/82 for amendment of the decree in this court, whereupon this court held that the execution court itself had jurisdiction to construe the decree and decide as to what was the property to which the decree related with reference to the pleadings, judgments and other records. It was stated that on the basis of such adjudication the decree-holder was entitled to relief in respect of the property actually involved in the suit in spite of the misdesciption. The petition was closed with these observations. Thereafter the decree-holder filed the present execution petition with a draft sale deed in which he incorporated the boundary descriptions of the property as set out in Ext.D2, the sale deed in favour of the petitioner. Despite the fact that the property involved in Ext. D2 and the property forming the subject matter of the decree was one and the same and the fact that the decree-holder was entitled to have a deed of sale executed in his favour in respect of that property, the execution petition was vehemently opposed by the petitioner as if the court had no right to have the sale deed executed with the correct boundary descriptions. The various contentions were overruled by the lower court and the executing court approved the draft sale deed produced by the decree-holder. The revision is filed therefrom.

3. This is one of those eases where the execution of a decree is attempted to be stalled on mere technicalities. The suit itself was keenly fought out by the petitioner. The matter was carried through three courts. Thereafter when the execution is taken, technical pleas are raised as if the court is precluded from taking note of the actual state of affairs and conveying the property with a proper sale deed describing the actual boundaries. It is not as if there was any dispute as to the property in regard to which specific performance was sought. It was not in dispute that the property covered by Ext.P2 and that sold as per Ext. D2 was one and the same. That there was a mistake in the boundary description in Ext.P2 is also clear from the observations in para 13 of the judgment in the suit. The plaintiff is entitled, in a suit for specific performance, to have the property agreed to be sold to him conveyed with a proper, correct and effective deed of sale. When there is no dispute regarding the identity of the property, there is no reason why the actual boundaries of the property, as understood by all the parties, should not be incorporated in the sale deed to avoid any possible confusion in future. It is not as if by doing so the court is traversing beyond the decree or causing any prejudice to any of the parties or conveying property not agreed to be conveyed. In a case of this nature the court is bound to carry out and implement its decree in accordance with its tenor, which in turn would imply that the property should be correctly described with the proper boundaries. That is all that has been done by the lower court in approving the draft sale deed. The plaintiff has only incorporated the boundaries from Ext. D2, the sale deed in favour of the petitioner. In the absence of any dispute that this was the property which was the subject matter of Ext.P2 also, the lower court has only acted rightly in approving the draft sale deed.

I do not find any merit in the revision petition. It is dismissed with costs."

36. In case of Tilak Raj Vs. Baikhunthi Devi (D) By Lrs; AIR 2009 SC 2136, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held in paragraph Nos. 13, 14, and 15 of the judgment as under:-

"13. We have perused the submissions made by the counsel appearing for both the parties and scrutinized the whole record. On appreciation of the records, we are of the opinion that the Patwari had issued a wrong certified copy of Jamabandi incorporating therein Khasra No. 25R/52 against Khewat No. 50 Khatoni No. 60 of jamabandi for the year 1966-67 of village Mojowal. In fact there was no Khasra No. 25R/52 whereas it was actually 26R/52. On the basis of and on account of such wrong supply of materials in the certified copy of Jamabandi, the appellant had sued by wrongly mentioning identity of land as Khasra No. 25R/52. There was no dispute that the parties in the earlier suit were agitating regarding the Estate of Datta Ram. In that view of the matter the appellant was not at fault at all for suing the land as mentioned in the para A of the plaint filed in suit no. 149 of 1979. Actually, this was a mistake on the part of the Patwari or some Revenue Officer, who had issued the aforesaid Khasra Girdawari. It was nowhere disputed that Khasra No. 26R/52 was owned by Datta Ram and there was no Khasra Number described as 25R/52. Moreover, no rebuttal on behalf of the respondent was made in the written submissions in Civil Suit No. 306 of 1969 or otherwise that it was not Khasra No. 25R/52.

14. The aforesaid mistake was of clerical nature which could have been corrected by applying the provisions of Section 152 of the CPC. Counsel appearing for the respondents also during his submissions fairly accepted the aforesaid position. The remedy that was available to the appellant was to file an application seeking for amendment of the decree by way of correcting the clerical mistake in respect of Khasra Number. Since the mistake was clerical in nature and the appellant being not responsible for the said clerical mistake which had occurred due to wrong recording of Khasra Number in Khasra Girdawari, we find no reason as to why such a genuine and bona fide mistake cannot be allowed to be corrected by exercising the powers under Section 152 of the CPC. In K. Rajamouli vs. A.V.K.N. Swamy, (2001) 5 SCC 37, this Court held as follows:-

"Section 152 provides that a clerical or arithmetical mistake in judgments, decrees or orders or errors arising therein from any accidental slip or omission may at any time be corrected by the Court either of its own motion or on the application of any of the parties".

15. Since the court exists to dispense justice, any mistake which is found to be clerical in nature should be allowed to be rectified by exercising inherent power vested in the court for sub-serving the cause of justice. The principle behind the provision is that no party should suffer due to bona fide mistake. Whatever is intended by the court while passing the order or decree must be properly reflected therein otherwise it would only be destructive of the principle of advancing the cause of justice. In such matters, the courts should not bind itself by the shackles of technicalities."

37. So far as contention of learned counsel for the petitioners that it is the appellate court which confirms the decree, can alone correct the decree and not the executing court, is not sustainable and the case laws cited by learned counsel for the petitioners has no bearing upon the case at hand.

38. On a perusal of the ratio in Pratibha's case (supra) it is apparent that the plaintiff had been remiss in the pleadings in wrongly describing the property at the bottom of the plaint. Had the immovable property been correctly identified, there would have been no vagueness that could have been pleaded in the execution of the decree. Courts of law are ever mindful of the fact that the plaintiff should not be denied the fruits of the decree and if some nebulous question has to be determined in execution proceedings, the Court should not hesitate from doing so. In the present case, undoubtedly pleadings have been made by the plaintiff/respondents in paragraph Nos. 2 and 15 of the plaint that the house in dispute was situated in Mohalla-Siklapur, which was never denied at any point of time by the defendant, except for at the time of execution.

39. As observed by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Pratibha Singh's case, the litigant cannot be deprived of the fruits of the decree for accidental slips and omissions. In this case, the slip ought to be said to be accidental and typographical only. The plaintiffs have fought from the trial court to High Court. They could not be deprived of fruits of the decree for such inadvertence. The executing court has committed no error in correcting the description of the property in the decree.

40. Learned counsel for the petitioners could not show me any perversity or any illegality in the orders. I, therefore, see no merits in the present petitions and they are dismissed without cost.

Whether, in the facts of the present case, rejection of the amendment application calls for interference under Article 227 of the Constitution.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Order VI Rule 17- An amendment under Order VI Rule 17 CPC is intended to facilitate effective adjudication of the real controversy and is not meant to duplicate or reiterate existing pleadings- Where the proposed amendment merely restates legal pleas already discernible from the pleadings or the memorandum of appeal, refusal of such amendment causes no legal prejudice- Rejection of an amendment application does not bar a party from advancing pure questions of law arising from the existing pleadings at the stage of final hearing.

Held- That rejection of an application for amendment does not, by itself, determine the fate of a legal plea otherwise arising from the existing pleadings. Procedural orders must be assessed with reference to their substantive impact upon the rights of the parties, for procedural law is a handmaid of justice and not an end in itself. Consequently, where refusal of an amendment neither occasions prejudice nor results in failure of justice, and the legal contention remains capable of being urged on the existing pleadings, supervisory interference under Article 227 of the Constitution would ordinarily be unwarranted. Case Arising From

Order dated 26.03.2026 passed by the Rent Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Saharanpur in Rent Appeal No. 234 of 2025, whereby the petitioner's application under Order VI Rule 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure seeking amendment of the memorandum of appeal has been rejected

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Rajesh Gupta, Satya Prakash Mishra, Vinay Kumar Singh
Counsel for Respondent(s) : Birendra Kumar, Himanshu Dubey

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Satya Prakash Mishra, learned counsel for the petitioner and Sri Himanshu Dubey, learned counsel appearing for the respondents.

2. The present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been instituted questioning the correctness of the order dated 26.03.2026 passed by the Rent Tribunal/Additional District Judge, Court No. 1, Saharanpur in Rent Appeal No. 234 of 2025 (Asif Ansari v. Himanshu Sharma and Another), whereby the petitioner's application under Order VI Rule 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure seeking amendment of the memorandum of appeal has been rejected.

3. The appeal itself arises from the judgment dated 19.09.2025 rendered in Rent Case No. 3360 of 2022 instituted under Section 21(2) of the U.P. Act No. 16 of 2021.

4. The amendment sought by the petitioner was intended to incorporate certain pleas founded upon the principles of "res judicata" and estoppel. The Rent Tribunal, after examining the pleadings and the memorandum of appeal, recorded a categorical finding that the said pleas already constituted part of the petitioner's case and had also been specifically incorporated amongst the grounds of challenge in the appeal. The Tribunal was, therefore, of the opinion that the proposed amendment did not seek to introduce any new factual foundation or legal issue and that permitting such amendment would merely delay the adjudication of the appeal. Accordingly, the application came to be rejected.

5. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioner has assailed the aforesaid order by contending that the proposed amendment was necessary to avoid any technical objection at the stage of final hearing and that no prejudice would have been caused to the respondents had the amendment been permitted.

6. However, during the course of hearing, learned counsel for the petitioner fairly does not dispute the factual position recorded by the Tribunal that the contentions founded upon the principles of res judicata and estoppel already form part of the pleadings and also find place amongst the grounds urged in the memorandum of appeal.

7. The question which, therefore, falls for consideration is whether, in the facts of the present case, rejection of the amendment application calls for interference under Article 227 of the Constitution.

8. The controversy, though arising out of an interlocutory procedural order, presents a question of some significance, namely, whether refusal of an amendment under Order VI Rule 17 of the Code of Civil Procedure, where the proposed contentions already form part of the pleadings and the memorandum of appeal, warrants interference in exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution.

9. Order VI Rule 17 CPC is an enabling provision intended to advance the cause of justice by permitting such amendments as may be necessary for determining the real questions in controversy between the parties. The provision is not an end in itself. Its object is neither to multiply pleadings nor to permit repetitive incorporation of matters already existing on record. The Court, while considering an application for amendment, is essentially required to examine whether the proposed amendment is necessary for an effective adjudication of the dispute and whether refusal thereof would occasion prejudice or failure of justice.

10. It has consistently been held that the discretion to allow or refuse an amendment is to be exercised on well-settled judicial principles, the primary consideration being whether the proposed amendment is necessary for determining the real controversy between the parties and whether its allowance or refusal would occasion prejudice or injustice to the opposite party. Equally, where the proposed amendment merely reiterates what is already implicit or explicit in the existing pleadings, or seeks only to elaborate legal submissions without introducing any new factual foundation, the Court would be justified in declining such amendment as unnecessary. Procedural law is intended to facilitate effective adjudication and not to encourage prolixity or duplication in pleadings.

11. The distinction between pleadings containing material facts and submissions founded upon those facts is equally well recognised. Material facts constitute the foundation of a cause, whereas legal submissions represent the inferences and consequences flowing therefrom. Once the material facts necessary to attract a legal principle are already pleaded, the Court is not rendered powerless merely because every legal proposition has not been elaborately articulated in the pleadings. A pure question of law arising from the admitted or existing pleadings can always be urged at the stage of final arguments, provided its consideration does not require investigation into facts not already on record.

12. It follows, therefore, that where the principles of “res judicata” or estoppel are demonstrably founded upon the existing pleadings and the material already available before the Court, rejection of an amendment application does not extinguish the party's right to advance such legal submissions during the course of final hearing. The rejection merely signifies that no further amendment of the pleadings is considered necessary; it does not amount to an adjudication upon the merits of the legal plea itself.

13. The scope of interference under Article 227 of the Constitution is considerably narrower than that of an appellate or revisional jurisdiction. The jurisdiction is supervisory and is intended to ensure that courts and tribunals subordinate to the High Court function within the limits of their authority. It is not designed to permit re-appreciation of every interlocutory order or to substitute the opinion of the High Court for that of the subordinate forum merely because another view is possible.

14. The legal position governing the exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution stands authoritatively settled by the decisions of the Supreme Court in Shalini Shyam Shetty v. Rajendra Shankar Patil1 and Garment Craft v. Prakash Chand Goel. These decisions reiterate that supervisory jurisdiction is attracted only where the order under challenge suffers from patent perversity, manifest illegality, jurisdictional error, gross violation of principles of natural justice, or where interference becomes indispensable to prevent a manifest failure of justice. Mere errors of fact or law, or even the possibility of another plausible view, do not justify invocation of Article 227.

15. Viewed from the aforesaid perspective, every procedural order refusing amendment cannot be treated as inviting supervisory correction. Unless the refusal demonstrably deprives a party of raising a material factual or legal issue necessary for adjudication, no occasion arises for interference under Article 227.

16. In the present case, the Rent Tribunal has returned a categorical finding that the pleas relating to "res judicata" and estoppel already stand incorporated in the pleadings as well as in the memorandum of appeal. Significantly, the petitioner has not been able to assail this factual finding. Once this position is accepted, the inevitable consequence is that rejection of the amendment has not deprived the petitioner of any substantive right. The legal submissions remain available for consideration at the stage of final hearing on the strength of the pleadings already on record.

17. The impugned order, therefore, neither occasions any failure of justice nor discloses any jurisdictional error warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution. At the same time, since the legal pleas continue to subsist in the existing pleadings, it is clarified that the petitioner shall remain entitled to urge all submissions founded thereon before the Rent Tribunal, which shall consider the same on their own merits, uninfluenced by the rejection of the amendment application.

18. The legal position may, therefore, be summarised thus:

(i) An amendment under Order VI Rule 17 CPC is intended to facilitate effective adjudication of the real controversy and is not meant to duplicate or reiterate existing pleadings.

(ii) Where the proposed amendment merely restates legal pleas already discernible from the pleadings or the memorandum of appeal, refusal of such amendment causes no legal prejudice.

(iii) Rejection of an amendment application does not bar a party from advancing pure questions of law arising from the existing pleadings at the stage of final hearing.

19. Applying the aforesaid principles to the facts of the present case, this Court finds that the Tribunal has recorded a categorical finding that the pleas founded upon the principles of "res judicata" and estoppel already constitute part of the pleadings and have also been specifically incorporated amongst the grounds of appeal. The correctness of the said factual finding has not been disputed before this Court. Consequently, rejection of the amendment application has neither deprived the petitioner of any substantive right nor foreclosed any legal contention available on the existing pleadings. The impugned order, therefore, neither occasions a failure of justice nor suffers from any jurisdictional error, patent illegality or perversity warranting interference in exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution.

20. At this stage, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that since the pleas relating to "res judicata" and estoppel already form part of the pleadings and the memorandum of appeal, liberty may be reserved to the petitioner to urge all such submissions before the Rent Tribunal at the stage of final hearing.

21. Learned counsel appearing for the respondents does not dispute the legal position that pure questions of law arising from the pleadings can always be urged at the stage of final arguments.

22. The submission deserves acceptance. Rejection of the amendment application cannot be construed as foreclosing the petitioner's right to advance legal submissions founded upon the pleadings already on record. The Tribunal would remain under an obligation to examine every contention legitimately arising from the pleadings and the grounds of appeal while rendering its final decision.

23. Applying the aforesaid principles, this Court finds no ground to interfere with the order impugned in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. It is, however, clarified that rejection of the petitioner's application under Order VI Rule 17 CPC shall not preclude the petitioner from advancing, at the stage of final hearing of the appeal, all legal submissions founded upon the existing pleadings, including those relating to the principles of "res judicata" and estoppel. In the event such submissions are advanced, the Rent Tribunal shall consider and determine the same on their own merits, strictly in accordance with law, uninfluenced by the rejection of the amendment application.

24. It merits emphasis that rejection of an application for amendment does not, by itself, determine the fate of a legal plea otherwise arising from the existing pleadings. Procedural orders must be assessed with reference to their substantive impact upon the rights of the parties, for procedural law is a handmaid of justice and not an end in itself. Consequently, where refusal of an amendment neither occasions prejudice nor results in failure of justice, and the legal contention remains capable of being urged on the existing pleadings, supervisory interference under Article 227 of the Constitution would ordinarily be unwarranted.

25. Subject to the aforesaid observations and clarifications, the petition stands disposed of.

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Kiran Kumar Arora
Counsel for Respondent(s) : Ajay Singh, Bhanu Bhushan Jauhari, Rishi Bhushan Jauhari

(Delivered by Hon'ble Manish Kumar Nigam, J.)

1. Heard Shri Kiran Kumar Arora, learned counsel for the petitioners, Shri Bhanu Bhushan Jauhari, learned counsel for the respondents and perused the record.

2. This petition has been filed challenging the order dated 13.10.2017 passed by Civil Judge (Junior Division), Bareilly in Original Suit No. 35 of 2016, (Asha Johri and others v. Ram Prakash and others) dismissing the application filed by the defendants under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. and also the order dated 08.05.2019 passed by Additional District Judge, Court No. 9, Bareilly in Civil Revision No. 117 of 2017 Ram Prakash and others v. Asha Johri and others dismissing the revision filed by the defendants/revisionists against the judgment and order dated 13.10.2017 passed by the Civil Judge (Junior Division) Bareilly.

3. Brief facts of the case are that in the year 1978, one Jagdish Prasad husband of respondent no. 1/plaintiff, mortgaged house bearing No. 333, situate at Mohalla Kunwapur, Bareilly ad-measuring 168.81 sq. meters in favour of the petitioner nos. 1 to 4.

4. The mortgage deed in question was for securing a debt of Rs. 15,000/- given to Jagdish Prasad Johri executant of the mortgage deed and in lieu thereof the house in dispute was mortgaged and the petitioners were put in possession over the house in dispute. It was also settled that the rent of the house will be adjusted towards interest on the sum advanced and the period of mortgage was four years. It was also provided in the mortgage deed that till the entire debt amount is paid, the property will remain in possession of the petitioners and Jagdish Prasad Johri predecessor in interest of the respondents will be entitled for redemption of the mortgage after payment of the loan and in case, the same is not done, will be entitled to get the same by filing a suit. After the death of Jagdish Prasad Johri, a suit was instituted by the heirs of deceased Jagdish Prasad Johri in the court of Civil Judge (Junior Division) Bareilly being Original Suit No. 35 of 2016 for the relief that the defendants be directed to execute the documents for rehan wapsi i.e. for cancellation of mortgage deed and shall also hand over actual physical possession of the house mortgaged to the plaintiffs. The aforesaid suit was filed with the allegation that late Jagdish Prasad Johri requested several times to defendants in the suit to take back amount of Rs. 15,000/- which was given to Jagdish Prasad Johri and cancel the mortgage deed and hand over possession of house in question. After the death of Jagdish Prasad Johri on 26.10.2015, his heirs i.e. plaintiffs in the suit tendered amount of Rs. 15,000/- by means of Bank Pay Order along with notice dated 30.12.2015 to the defendants and demanded that the defendants in the suit may get the mortgage deed cancelled and hand over the possession of the house in dispute. The plaintiff also claimed damages from the date of notice. The notice was replied by the defendants vide notice dated 12.01.2016 wherein the defendants have admitted the mortgage deed and has also admitted that the said mortgage deed was never redeemed and the banker cheque along with notice was returned. It was also stated that the plaintiffs has no right to redeem the mortgage. After being noticed, the defendant nos. 2 to 4 moved an application under Order 7 Rule 11 C.P.C. for rejection of plaint on the ground that the mortgage deed was executed on 28.03.1978 and in the said deed it was specifically mentioned that the mortgage is for the period of four years. The period of four years expired on 28.03.1982. The mortgage was not redeemed by the mortgagor. The limitation for redemption for mortgage is 30 years which has expired on 28.03.2012 and the present suit was filed on 03.03.2016 after the expiry of limitation period and therefore the plaint of the plaintiffs is liable to be rejected. Objections were filed by the plaintiffs/respondents to the application filed by the defendants/petitioners under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. The trial court i.e. Civil Judge (Junior Division), Bareilly, on 13.10.2017 rejected the application filed by the defendants/petitioners under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. holding that the suit is not barred by limitation as the right to redeem the mortgage arose on 30.12.2015 when the plaintiff give notice for payment of mortgage debt. Against the order dated 13.10.2017, the defendants/petitioners filed revision No. 117 of 2017 before the Civil Judge (Senior Division) Bareilly. The said revision was also dismissed by the revisional court i.e. Additional District Judge, Court No. 9, Bareilly, hence the present petition.

5. It has been contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that the right of a mortgagor to redeem, is governed by Article 61 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act and the right to redeem or recover possession accrues on the date of execution of mortgage deed itself unless a different time is agreed between the parties. It has also been contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that in the mortgage deed it was provided that the period of mortgage is four years and the said period expired on 28.03.1982. It has been further contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that since the mortgagor has right to redeem the mortgage on payment of mortgage money and there can be no restriction to exercise his right on the date of mortgage itself in case no time is prescribed for exercise of such right, the period of limitation starts from the date of execution of mortgage deed and on expiry thereof, the right to recover the possession comes to an end. It has been further contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that in the present case, the said right accrued to the mortgagor on 28.03.1982 after expiry of four years from the date of mortgage i.e. 28.03.1978. The limitation for filing a suit for redemption is 30 years and the said limitation expired on 28.03.2012 and therefore, the suit itself was barred by time. It has been further contended by learned counsel for the petitioner that the expiry of limitation not only bars the remedy but also right to seek possession as provided under Section 27 of the Limitation Act. Learned counsel for the petitioner relied upon judgment of the Supreme Court in case of Prabhakaran and others v. M. Azhagiripillai (dead) by LRs. and others; 2006 (3) SCC 484 and Sampuran Singh v. Niranjan Kaur; (1999) 2 SCC 679. Relying upon the aforesaid judgments of the Supreme Court, learned counsel for the petitioner contended that in case of usufructuary mortgage where no time is fixed for redemption, the right to redeem will accrue immediately on execution of mortgage deed and the mortgagee has to file suit for redemption within 30 years from the date of mortgage and therefore failure to redeem the mortgage within a period prescribed under Article 61 of the Limitation Act will lead to closure of the option to seek redemption.

6. Per contra, learned counsel for the plaintiffs/respondents submitted that the document in question was a usufructuary mortgage. In view of Section 62 of the Transfer of Property Act, the limitation for filing a suit for redemption of usufructuary mortgage or for recovery of possession will commence whenever the mortgagor gives a notice to the mortgagee to receive back his money and to hand over the possession. In the present case, the plaintiffs send a demand draft of mortgage amount and asked the defendants to hand over the property mortgaged on 30.12.2015, hence, the limitation for filing the suit will start from 30.12.2015 and not earlier as contended by learned counsel for the petitioner. Suit filed by the plaintiff/respondents is within time. It has been contended by learned counsel for the respondents that in an usufructuary mortgage right to recover possession continues till the money is paid either from the rents and profits or where it is partly paid from the rents and profits when the balance is paid by the mortgagor or deposited in court as provided under Section 62 of the Transfer of Property Act. Learned counsel for the respondents further submitted that in the present case, the rent of the property mortgaged was to be adjusted for payment of interest on the sum advanced i.e. Rs. 15,000/- and therefore, the limitation will start only after payment of principal sum i.e. Rs. 15,000/- or on tender being made by mortgagor of the principal amount to the mortgagee which in the present case was done on 30.12.2015 and therefore, the limitation will start from 30.12.2015 and not before.

7. Learned counsel for the respondent submitted that the judgments relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner in case of Prabhakaran and others (Supra) and Sampuran Singh v. Niranjan Kaur (Supra) were considered by a Larger Bench of the Supreme Court in case of Singh Ram (D) Thr. L.Rs. v. Sheo Ram and others; AIR 2014 SC 3447 and Supreme Court has held that the law laid down in the judgment in case of Prabhakaran and others (Supra) and Sampuran Singh v. Niranjan Kaur (Supra) does not lay down the correct view in law and has been impliedly over ruled by the Larger Bench. Learned counsel for the respondent relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in case of Singh Ram (D) Thr. L.Rs. v. Sheo Ram (Supra) judgment of the Full Bench of Punjab & Haryana High Court in case of Ram Kishan and others v. Sheo Ram; AIR 2008 P&H 77, and judgment of Supreme Court in case of Harminder Singh (D) through L.Rs. v. Surjit Kaur (D) through L.Rs. & others; 2022 Legal Eagle SC 1365.

8. Before considering the rival submissions of the parties, it will be appropriate to refer to the statutory provisions of the Transfer of Property Act as well as Limitation Act:

Sections 58, 60 & 62 of the Transfer of Property Act is as follows:

"58. "Mortgage", "mortgagor", "mortgagee", "mortgage-money" and "mortgage-deed" defined. - (a) A mortgage is the transfer of an interest in specific immoveable property for the purpose of securing the payment of money advanced or to be advanced by way of loan, an existing or future debt, or the performance of an engagement which may give rise to a pecuniary liability.

The transferor is called a mortgagor, the transferee a mortgagee; the principal money and interest of which payment is secured for the time being are called the mortgage-money, and the instrument (if any) by which the transfer is effected is called a mortgage -deed.

(b) Simple mortgage.- Where, without delivering possession of the mortgaged property, the mortgagor binds himself personally to pay the mortgage-money, and agrees, expressly or impliedly, that, in the event of his failing to pay according to his contract, the mortgagee shall have a right to cause the mortgaged property to be sold and the proceeds of sale to be applied, so far as may be necessary, in payment of the mortgage-money, the transaction is called a simple mortgage and the mortgagee a simple mortgagee.

(c) Mortgage by conditional sale.- Where the mortgagor ostensibly sells the mortgaged property" on condition that on default of payment of the mortgage-money on a certain date the sale shall become absolute, or on condition that on such payment being made the sale shall become void, or on condition that on such payment being made the buyer shall transfer the property to the seller, the transaction is called a mortgage by conditional sale and the mortgagee a mortgagee by conditional sale:

[Provided that no such transaction shall be deemed to be a mortgage, unless the condition is embodied in the document which effects or purports to effect the sale.]

(d) Usufructuary mortgage.- Where the mortgagor delivers possession [or expressly or by implication binds himself to deliver possession] of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee, and authorises him to retain such possession until payment of the mortgage-money, and to receive the rents and profits accruing from the property [or any part of such rents and profits and to appropriate the same] in lieu of interest, or in payment of the mortgage -money, or partly in lieu of interest [or] partly in payment of the mortgage-money, the transaction is called an usufructuary mortgage and the mortgagee an usufructuary mortgagee.

(e) English mortgage.- Where the mortgagor binds himself to re-pay the mortgage-money on a certain date, and transfers the mortgaged property absolutely to the mortgagee, but subject to a proviso that he will re-transfer it to the mortgagor upon payment of the mortgage-money as agreed, the transaction is called an English mortgage.

[(f) Mortgage by deposit of title-deeds.-Where a person in any of the following towns, namely, the towns of Calcutta, Madras, [and Bombay], 3 and in any other town which the [State Government concerned] may, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify in this behalf, delivers to a creditor or his agent documents of title to immoveable property, with intent to create a security thereon, the transaction is called a mortgage by deposit of title-deeds.

(g) Anomalous mortgage.- A mortgage which is not a simple mortgage, a mortgage by conditional sale, an usufructuary mortgage, an English mortgage or a mortgage by deposit of title-deeds within the meaning of this section is called an anomalous mortgage.]

60. Right of mortgagor to redeem.- At any time after the principal money has become [due], the mortgagor has a right, on payment or tender, at a proper time and place, of the mortgage -money, to require the mortgagee (a) to deliver [to the mortgagor the mortgage-deed and all documents relating to the mortgaged property which are in the possession or power of the mortgagee], (b) where the mortgagee is in possession of the mortgaged property, to deliver possession thereof to the mortgagor, and (c) at the cost of the mortgagor either to re-transfer the mortgaged property to him or to such third person as he may direct, or to execute and (where the mortgage has been effected by a registered instrument) to have registered an acknowledgment in writing that any right in derogation of his interest transferred to the mortgagee has been extinguished:

Provided that the right conferred by this section has not been extinguished by act of the parties or by [decree] of a Court.

The right conferred by this section is called a right to redeem and a suit to enforce it is called a suit for redemption.

Nothing in this section shall be deemed to render invalid any provision to the effect that, if the time fixed for payment of the principal money has been allowed to pass or no such time has been fixed, the mortgagee shall be entitled to reasonable notice before payment or tender of such money.

Redemption of portion of mortgaged property.- Nothing in this section shall entitle a person interested in a share only of the mortgaged property to redeem his own share only, on payment of a proportionate part of the amount remaining due on the mortgage, except [only] where a mortgagee, or, if there are more mortgagees than one, all such mortgagees, has or have acquired, in whole or in part, the share of a mortgager.

62. Right of usufructuary mortgagor to recover possession.- In the case of a usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagor has a right to recover possession of the property [together with the mortgage-deed and all documents relating to the mortgaged property which are in the possession or power of the mortgagee],- (a) where the mortgagee is authorised to pay himself the mortgage-money from the rents and profits of the property,-when such money is paid: (b) where the mortgagee is authorised to pay himself from such rents and profits [or any part thereof a part only of the mortgage -money],-when the term (if any), prescribed for the payment of the mortgage-money has expired and the mortgagor pays or tenders to the mortgagee [the mortgage-money or the balance thereof] or deposits it in Court as hereinafter provided."

Article 61 (a) of the Limitation Act is as follows:

"61. By a mortgagor-

a)to redeem or recover possession of immovable property mortgaged;	Thirty years.	When the right to redeem or to recover possession accrues.

9. Before considering case law relied upon by respective parties, it would be useful to consider the nature of mortgage, specially the usufructuary mortgage.

10. Justice Mehmood in case of Gopal v. Parsotam (1883) ILR 5 ALL 121, P. 137) says of the definition of the mortgage in Section 58 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1881 as under:

"mortgage as understood in this country cannot be defined better than by the definition adopted by Legislature in Section 58 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882). The definition has not in any way altered the law but on the contrary, has only formulated in clear language the notions of mortgage as understood by all the writers of the text books on Indian mortgages. Every word of the definition is borne out by the decision by Indian Courts of Justice."

A mortgage is a transfer of an interest in specific immovable property as security for the repayment of debt. But such interest itself is immovable property. The nature of the right transferred depends upon the form of mortgage. It is sufficient that the transfer should be originally intended as security for the debt. The court will ascertain the intention by looking at the substance and essence of the transaction and not the mere form of the deeds. Even if, deed calls itself a mortgage, its nature will be determined not by the name parties give it but by the jural relationship constituted by it. The question has to be decided with reference to the pre-dominent intention of the parties as gathered from the recitals and the terms of the documents and the surrounding, circumstances, including conduct of the parties. The transfer must be to a living person or persons (Section 5 of the Transfer of Property Act).

In a mortgage, some rights are transferred to the mortgagee and some remain vested in the mortgagor. In order to create a mortgage it is necessary to specify the immovable property. The description must at least be sufficient to identify the property. The purpose or object of mortgage is to secure a debt. The transfer made for the purpose discharging a debt is not a mortgage. The mortgage may be for a present debt or a future debt to secure the payment of the debt. Person executing the mortgage is called mortgagor. A mortgagor must be a person competent to contract and capable to transfer the property. A mortgagee is the person to whom the interest in a immovable property is transferred by the mortgagor for securing a debt. In a usufructuary mortgage the mortgagee is placed in possession and has a right to enjoy the rents and profits until the debt is paid. It is not necessary that the mortgagee should take physical possession, for the mortgagor may continue in possession as lessee of the mortgagee or he may direct the tenant to pay rents to the mortgagee but unless there is a clause providing for mortgagee going in possession, there cannot of course be a usufructuary mortgage, as possession of the mortgagee is distinguishing feature for such a mortgage. It follows that there cannot be two different usufructuary mortgage on the same property at the same time. Under a usufructuary mortgage, the mortgagor cannot be sued personally for the debt. The mortgagee remains in possession until the mortgage money is paid.

11. In Mulla's The Transfer of Property Act, Ninth Edition, certain statements are relevant. They read as follows:

"Right of redemption: The mortgagor in Indian Law is the owner who had parted with some rights of ownership and the right of redemption is a right which he exercises by virtue of his residuary ownership to resume what he has parted with. The Section affirms a right of redemption in all mortgagees and thus carries out the recommendation of the Privy Council in Thumbuswamy's case (1875 1 Mad 1, 2 IA, 241) that the Legislature should intervene to recognize a right of redemption in mortgagees by conditional sale. In India this right of redemption is, however, a statutory one, and, therefore a legal right as stated by the judicial committee. Right of redemption cannot be extinguished by any agreement made at the time of the mortgage as part of the mortgage transaction.

The right of redemption is an incident of a subsisting mortgage and subsists so long as the mortgage itself subsists. It can be extinguished as provided in the section and when it is alleged to be extinguished by a decree, the decree should run strictly in accordance with the forum prescribed for the purpose. Dismissal of an earlier suit for redemption whether as abated or as withdrawn or in default would not be barred the mortgagor from filing a second suit for redemption so long as the mortgage subsists and the right of redemption is not extinguished by the efflux of time or by a decree of the court in the prescribed form.

A redemption pre-supposes the existence of a `mortgage'. As defined in the Act, a mortgage is a transfer of an interest in immovable property for the purpose of securing the payment of a loan. It is created by the act of parties. In an usufructuary mortgage, a transfer is made of the right of possession and enjoyment of the usufruct. The rights of a usufructuary mortgagee forms part of the bundle which constitute ownership. The remainder still remains with the mortgagor and can be transferred by him. The mortgagor's right is as indicated in section 60 of the Act i.e. after the principal money has become due, the mortgagor has a right to pay the mortgage money and on such payment, he has the right to require the mortgagee to deliver possession. This right cannot be extinguished except by the act of parties or by a decree of a Court. This right is called the right to redeem and a suit to enforce it is called a suit for redemption. Thus the scope of a suit for redemption is preliminary to enforce the right to make a payment of the mortgage money. A claim to redeem a mortgage actually does not attach to the land, although the decree passed in the suit may ultimately affect possession which is also an interest in land.

The section is not prefaced by any such words as in the absence of a contract to the contrary'. The right of redemption is therefore a statutory right which cannot be fettered by any condition which impedes or prevents redemption. Any such condition is void as a clog on redemption."

12. The authoritative work of Dr. Rashbehary Ghose's "Law of Mortgage", which has received the approval of various High Courts and the Supreme Court, the maxim 'once mortgage, always a mortgage has been explained as under (Eighth Edition - Page Nos. 280-281) under the heading "Once a Mortgage, always a mortgage: is quoted as under:

"In 1681 Lord Nottingham in the leading case of Harris v. Harris (1681) 1 Vern 33 firmly laid down the principal: 'Once a mortgage,' always a mortgage.' This is a doctrine to protect the mortgagor's right of redemption: It renders all agreements in a mortgage for forfeiture of the right to redeem and also encumbrances of or dealings with the property by the mortgagee as against a mortgagor coming to redeem. In 1902 the well-known maxim, 'once a mortgage, always a mortgage' was supplemented by the words and nothing but a mortgage' added by Lord Davey in the leading case of Noakes v. Rice 1902 A.C. 24 (H.L.) : (1900-3) A11 E.R Rep 34, in which the maxim was explained to mean 'that a mortgage cannot be made irredeemable and a provision to that effect is void'. The maxim has been supplemented in the Indian context by the words 'and therefore always redeemable', added by Justice Sarkar of the Supreme Court in the case of Seth Ganga Dhar v. Shankarlal .

It is thus evident that very conception of mortgage, involves three principals. First, there is the maxim: 'Once a mortgage, always a mortgage.' that is to say, a mortgage is always redeemable and if a contrary provision is made, it is invalid. And this is an exception to the aphorism, modus et conventio vincunt legem (custom and agreement overrule law). Secondly, the mortgagee cannot reserve to himself any collateral advantage outside the mortgage agreement. Thirdly, as a corollary from the first another principal may be deduced, namely, 'once a mortgage, always a mortgage, and nothing but a mortgage'. In other words, any stipulation which prevents a mortgagor from getting back the property mortgaged is void. That is, a mortgage is always redeemable.

The maxim 'once a mortgage, always a mortgage' may be said to be a logical corollary from the doctrine, which is the very foundation of the law of mortgages, that time is not of the essence of the contract in such transactions; for the protection which the law throws round the mortgagor might be rendered wholly illusory, if the right to redeem could be limited by contract between the parties (For a very curious case mentioned in the books in which the mortgagor was permitted to redeem, although he had solemnly sworn on the Bible never to exercise the right, see Stistefl's case cited in East India Co. v. Atkyns 1 Compyn 348). Right to redeem is an incident of a subsisting mortgage and is inseparable from it so that the right is co-extensive with the mortgage itself. The right subsists until it is appropriately and effectively extinguished either by the acts of the parties concerned or by a proper decree of the competent court."

13. In case of Lachhman Singh v. Natha Singh through Harnam Singh and others; 1940 AIR Lahore 401 (FB), Full Bench of Lahore High Court held in paragraph nos. 5 to 11 as under:

"5. Before examining the provisions of the Act, it seems necessary to determine the exact nature of the transactions in question and the rights and obligations of the parties under them. From the conditions of the mortgages already given, it will appear that they are "usufructuary mortgages" as defined in cl. "(d), Section 58, Transfer of Property Act. That Act, of course, is not in force in the Punjab, but the definitions of the various kinds of mortgages given in it have always been accepted as correctly describing their essential ingredients and incidents. This definition is as follows:

(d) Where the mortgagor delivers possession or expressly or by implication binds himself to deliver possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagee and authorizes him to retain such possession until payment of the mortgage money, and to receive the rents and profits accruing from the property or any part of such rents and profits and to appropriate the same in lieu of interest, or in payment of the mortgage money, or partly in lieu of interest and partly in payment of the mortgage money, the transaction is called a "usufructuary mortgage," and the mortgagee a "usufructuary mortgagee."

6. It will be seen that the characteristics of a usufructuary mortgage, as defined above, are: (1) that the possession of the mortgaged property is delivered, or agreed to be delivered, to the mortgagee; (2) that he is to appropriate the rents and profits either (a) in lieu of interest, or (b) towards the principal, or (c) partly in lieu of interest and partly in payment of the principal; (3) that in none of these cases the mortgagor incurs any personal liability to repay; and (4) as the mortgagor has not bound himself to repay (but may repay if and when he chooses) there can be no "forfeiture" and therefore the remedies by way of foreclosure or sale are not open to the mortgagee.

7. These propositions are too well established to require an elaborate discussion. In Ram Narain Singh v. Adindra Nath AIR 1916 Privy Council 119, their Lordships of the Privy Council after examining the particular deed before them held that, having regard to the nature of the deed which was a usufructuary mortgage only and to its terms, any personal liability on the part of the "mortgagor was excluded." Again, there is a large number of cases in which it has been held that a usufructuary mortgagee is not entitled to sue for sale of the property (Chathu v. Kunjan, Sadashiv v. Vyankatrao, Umrao v. Umrao Begam, and Luchmeshar Singh v. Dookh Mochan Jha and where there is a stipulation to the contrary the transaction ceases to be one of "usufructuary mortgage" but is what is described as an "anomalous mortgage." As stated in (2) above, usufructuary mortgages are of three kinds. Of these, the two described in (b) and (c) are self redeeming; the mortgagee has to look to the rents and profits only to re-pay himself and when his entire charge is so liquidated he must re-deliver possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagor free from all encumbrances. A common instance of this kind of mortgage found in the Punjab, especially in the western districts, is the lekha mukhi mortgage where the mortgagee takes over the land and binds himself to keep the lekha (account) of the produce, and as soon as the principal and interest have been paid off therefrom, he must surrender the property to the mortgagor. In this mortgage the mortgagor undertakes no personal liability and while he is competent at any time to claim redemption on payment of the amount found to be due under the mortgage the mortgagee is not entitled to sue for his debt (per Plowden J. in Gahimal v. Shera). Another familiar instance of this kind of mortgage is the one permitted under Section 6 or Section 14, Punjab Alienation of Land Act, in which the entire principal and interest is automatically wiped off within a specified period, not exceeding 20 years, irrespective of whether the rent and profits actually realized by the mortgagee are more or less than the principal sum secured and interest due thereon. In this case also there is no personal liability of the mortgagor to pay nor has the mortgagee a right to bring the property to sale.

8. The most common form of usufructuary mortgage however is that described in 2(a) above, and it is to this class that the mortgages in the cases before us belong. Here the rents and profits are to be set off against interest and the mortgagee is entitled to retain possession until such time as the mortgagor chooses to redeem on payment of the principal sum secured. This form of mortgage has been in vogue in India since ancient times. It was known to the Hindu lawyers under the expressive name of bhog bandakam which literally means "mortgage (bandaka) by enjoyment (bhog)." It was a mortgage for an indefinite period, during which the mortgagee enjoyed the usufruct and the mortgagor was entitled to redeem at any time on payment of the principal. It retained its popularity during the Mughal period, especially among the Mahomedan creditors who by obtaining possession of property (as a zer-i-peshgi lessee and under other similar names) and appropriating the rents and profits till redemption, could find a safe investment for their money without charging interest. This form of mortgage is not peculiar to India alone. It has been described by Dr. Ghose and other standard writers as analogous to what was known as a 'Welsh mortgage' in England, where it has now become obsolete. But it has been the subject of judicial consideration in Ireland in recent times, and there are reported cases to which reference may usefully be made. In Balfe v. Lord (1842) 2 Dr & War 480, Lord St. Leonards described a Welsh mortgage as one under which the lender goes into possession of the rents and continues to receive them until the party who borrowed the money, chooses to redeem and this he is always permitted to do, so that the peculiarity is that while there can be no foreclosure on the part of the mortgagee, still the right of redemption subsists in the mortgagor.

9. More recently in Ireland, in Cassidy v. Cassidy (1890) 24 LR Ir 577 Johnson J. described a Welsh mortgage as a kind of security by which on the one side the land is assured to the lender as his security--his possession of the land and enjoyment of the profits being in lieu of interest--while on the other side, the borrower is under no personal obligation to pay the principal money but is entitled to redeem at any time upon its payment.

10. Again, In Re Cronin (1914) 1 Ir R 23 it was pointed out that a power of sale was wholly inconsistent with the 'continuing' right of redemption which the Welsh mortgage carries and that the express inclusion in the security of such a stipulation showed that security was not a Welsh mortgage.

11. It will be clear from the foregoing discussion that the principal characteristics of a usufructuary mortgage are that there is no personal liability of the mortgagor to pay, nor has the mortgagee a right to have the mortgaged property brought to sale……"

14. In case of Prabhakaran and others (Supra) relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner, it has been held by the Apex Court in case of usufructuary mortgage which does not fix any date for redemption of mortgage money, but merely specifies that mortgagee is entitled to be in possession till redemption right to redeem would accrue immediately on execution of the mortgage deed and the mortgagor has to filed suit for redemption within 30 years from the date of mortgage. Paragraph no. 11 of the judgment in case of Prabhakaran and others (Supra) is quoted as under:

"11. Article 148 of the Limitation Act, 1908 (referred to as 'old Act') provided a limitation of 60 years for a suit against a mortgagee, to redeem or to recover possession of immovable property mortgaged. The corresponding provision in the Limitation Act, 1963 ('new Act' or 'Limitation Act' for short), is Article 61(a) which provides that the period of limitation for a suit by a mortgagor to redeem or recover possession of the immovable property mortgaged is 30 years. The period of limitation begins to run when the right to redeem or to recover possession accrues. In the case of a usufructuary mortgage which does not fix any date for repayment of the mortgage money, but merely stipulates that the mortgagee is entitled to be in possession till redemption, the right to redeem would accrue immediately on execution of the mortgage deed and the mortgagor has to file a suit for redemption within 30 years from the date of the mortgage. Section 27 of the Limitation Act provides that "at the determination of the period hereby limited to any person for instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property shall be extinguished". This would mean that on the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed under the Act, the mortgagor would lose his right to redeem and the mortgagee would become entitled to continue in possession as the full owner."

15. In case of Sampuran Singh v. Niranjan Kaur (Supra), relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner, the Supreme Court has held in paragraph no. 14 as under:

"14. Submission was, as aforesaid, right to redeem only accrue when either mortgagors tender the amount of mortgage or the mortgagees communicate satisfaction of the mortgage amount through the usufruct from the land. This submission is misconceived, as aforesaid, if this interpretation is accepted, then till this happens the period of limitation never start running and it could go on for an infinite period. We have no hesitation to reject this submission. The language recorded above makes it clear that right of redemption accrues from the very first day unless restricted under the mortgage deed. When there is no restriction mortgagors have a right to redeem the mortgage from that very date when the mortgage was executed. Right accruing means, right either existing or coming into play thereafter. Where no period in the mortgage is specified, there exist a right to a mortgagor to redeem the mortgage by paying the amount that very day in case he receives the desired money for which he has mortgaged his land or any day thereafter. This right could only be restricted through law or in terms of a valid mortgage deed. There is no such restriction shown or pointed out. Hence, in our considered opinion the period of limitation would start from the very date the valid mortgage is said to have been executed hence the period of limitation of 60 years would start from the very date of oral mortgage that would be from March, 1893. In view of this, we do not find any error in the decision of the first Appellate Court or the High Court holding that the suit of the present appellants is time barred."

16. In case of Singh Ram v. Sheo Ram (supra) relied upon by learned counsel for the respondents in paragraph no. 2 of the judgment, the Supreme Court has quoted the question which was referred to the Larger Bench of the Supreme Court, same is quoted as under:

"2. These matters have been put up before this Bench in pursuance of the order passed by a Bench of two Judges on 18.08.2008, as under:

"As it appears that observations made by this Court in Prabhakaran & Ors. v. M. Azhagiri Pilolai & Ors., reported in 2006 (4) SCC 484: (AIR 2006 SC 1567), in regard to the interpretation and/or application of Article 61 of the Schedule appended to the Limitation Act, 1963 are contrary to the principals laid down by this Court in a large number of decisions, including Jayasingh Dhyanu Mhoprekar & Anr. v. Krishna Babaji Patil & Anr. [1985(4) SCC 162] (AIR 1985 SC 1646) as also various decisions referred to by the Full Bench of the High Court, we are of the opinion that the matter should be heard by a larger Bench.

Before adverting to the question of reconciling conflicting opinions in various decisions, including the two decisions referred to above, we consider it appropriate to mention that by the impugned judgment, the Full Bench of the High Court of Punjab and Haryana at Chandigarh, considered the question "whether there is any time limit for usufructuary mortgagor to seek redemption? and decided the said question in the negative, in favour of the respondent-mortgagor as follows:-

"Therefore, we answer the questions framed to hold that in case of usufructuary mortgage, where no time limit is fixed to seek redemption, the right to seek redemption would not arise on the date of mortgage but will arise on the date when the mortgagor pays or tenders to the mortgagee or deposits in Court, the mortgage money or the balance thereof. Thus, it is held that once a mortgage always a mortgage and is always redeemable.- The correctness of the above view is the subject matter of consideration before this Court."

17. While answering the reference, the Supreme Court in case of Singh Ram v. Sheo Ram (Supra) has held as under:

"8. The main contention urged on behalf of the appellants is that the right of mortgagor to redeem is governed by Article 61 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act and the right to redeem or recover possession accrues on the date of the mortgage itself, unless a different time is agreed between the parties. Since the mortgagor has right to redeem on payment of the mortgage money and there can be no restriction on the mortgagor to exercise his right on the date of mortgage itself, period of limitation starts on the date of mortgage and on expiry thereof, right to recover possession comes to an end. The expiry of limitation not only bars the remedy but also the right to seek possession as provided under Section 27 of the Limitation Act. It is submitted that this Court has dealt with the issue in Sampuran Singh & Ors. vs. Niranjan Kaur (smt.) & Ors., (1999) 2 SCC 679. There is no occasion to reconsider the said view. Reliance is also placed on a Full Bench decision of the High Court of Himachal Pradesh in Bhandaru Ram (D) Thr. L.R. Ratan Lal vs. Sukh Ram, AIR 2012 (H.P.) 1 (FB) wherein the impugned judgment of the Full Bench of the Punjab and Haryana High Court has been expressly dissented from and it has been concluded that the period of limitation for filing a suit for recovery of possession of immovable property or redemption of usufructuary mortgage, which have not fixed any time for repayment of mortgage money, is 30 years from the date of mortgage, as prescribed under Article 61 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act, 1963 (60 years under Article 148 as per Indian Limitation Act, 1908).

9. Learned counsel for the respondents support the view taken by the High Court and submit that the usufructuary mortgage was different from any other mortgage and the person, who parts with possession of his property from rents and profits of which the mortgagee was entitled to recover the mortgage money, could not be placed at par with a mortgagor who had not given possession of the property to mortgagee and allowed the usufruct of the property to be used for payment of mortgage money. In such cases, limitation could not run from the date of mortgage but from the date mortgage money is paid out of rents and profits of the property to the knowledge of the mortgagor or from the date of payment or deposit by the mortgagor. Mere expiry of time from the date of mortgage could not extinguish the right of redemption and to recover possession.

10. We have given our anxious consideration to the question of law arising in the cases.

11. We are in agreement with the view taken in the impugned judgment that in a usufructuary mortgage, right to recover possession continues till the money is paid from the rents and profits or where it is partly paid out of rents and profits when the balance is paid by the mortgagor or deposited in Court as provided under Section 62 of the T.P. Act.

13. We may now refer to decisions of this Court.

(i) In Prabhakaran & Ors. vs. M. Azhagiri Pillai & Ors., (2006) 4 SCC 484, suit of mortgagor for redemption was held to be within limitation. However, in para 13, it was observed:-

"13. Article 148 of the Limitation Act, 1908 (referred to as "the old Act") provided a limitation of 60 years for a suit against a mortgagee to redeem or to recover possession of immovable property mortgaged. The corresponding provision in the Limitation Act, 1963 ("the new Act" or "the Limitation Act" for short), is Article 61(a) which provides that the period of limitation for a suit by a mortgagor to redeem or recover possession of the immovable property mortgaged is 30 years. The period of limitation begins to run when the right to redeem or to recover possession accrues. In the case of a usufructuary mortgage which does not fix any date for repayment of the mortgage money, but merely stipulates that the mortgagee is entitled to be in possession till redemption, the right to redeem would accrue immediately on execution of the mortgage deed and the mortgagor has to file a suit for redemption within 30 years from the date of the mortgage. Section 27 of the Limitation Act provides that "at the determination of the period hereby limited to any person for instituting a suit for possession of any property, his right to such property shall be extinguished". This would mean that on the expiry of the period of limitation prescribed under the Act, the mortgagor would lose his right to redeem and the mortgagee would become entitled to continue in possession as the full owner."

The above observations do not take into account the special right of usufructuary mortgagor under Section 62 of the T.P. Act to recover possession which commences after mortgage money is paid out of rents and profits or partly out of rents and profits and partly paid or deposited by mortgagor. Thus, we are unable to accept the same as correct view in law.

14. We need not multiply reference to other judgments. Reference to above judgments clearly spell out the reasons for conflicting views. In cases where distinction in usufructuary mortgagor's right under Section 62 of the T.P. Act has been noted, right to redeem has been held to continue till the mortgage money is paid for which there is no time limit while in other cases right to redeem has been held to accrue on the date of mortgage resulting in extinguishment of right of redemption after 30 years.

15. We, thus, hold that special right of usufructuary mortgagor under Section 62 of the T.P. Act to recover possession commences in the manner specified therein, i.e., when mortgage money is paid out of rents and profits or partly out of rents and profits and partly by payment or deposit by mortgagor. Until then, limitation does not start for purposes of Article 61 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act. A usufructuary mortgagee is not entitled to file a suit for declaration that he had become an owner merely on the expiry of 30 years from the date of the mortgage. We answer the question accordingly.

16. On this conclusion, the view taken by the Punjab and Haryana High Court will stand affirmed and contrary view taken by the Himachal Pradesh High Court in Bhandaru Ram (D) Thr. L.R. Ratan Lal vs. Sukh Ram (supra) will stand over-ruled."

18. The Full Bench judgment of the Punjab & Haryana High Court in case of Ram Kishan and others v. Sheo Ram (Supra), which has been upheld by the Supreme Court in case of Singh Ram v. Sheo Ram (Supra) in paragraph nos. 44, 45, 47 & 48, the Full Bench has held has under:

"44. Section 60 of the Act is general in nature applicable to all kinds of mortgages including usufructuary mortgage which is evident from Clause (b) of Section 60 of the Act, where the mortgagee in possession of the mortgaged property is required to deliver possession to the mortgagor. But Section 62 of the Act is a special provision dealing only with the rights of usufructuary mortgagor. In terms of Clause (a) of Section 62 of the Act, the suit is for possession after the mortgage comes to an end by self redeeming process as the mortgagee is authorised to pay himself the mortgage money from the rents and profits of the property. The mortgagee has to look to the rents and profits only to repay himself and when his entire charge is so liquidated he must re-deliver possession of the mortgaged property to the mortgagor. However, in terms of Clause (b) of Section 62 of the Act, the right of the mortgagor will arise'only after rents and profits derived by the mortgagee out of the usufruct of the mortgaged property are adjusted towards the interest or the principal and on mortgagor paying the balance in the manner prescribed. In such mortgages, rents and profits are to be set off against interest and the mortgagee is entitled to retain possession until such time as the mortgagor chooses to redeem on payment of.the principal sum secured. Such right for possession will accrue after the mortgage money is paid off.

45. The limitation of 30 years under Article 61(a) beings to run "when the right to redeem or the possession accrues". The right to redemption or recover possession accrues to the mortgagor on payment of sum secured in case of usufructuary mortgage, where rents and profits are to be set off against interest on the mortgage debt, on payment or tender to the mortgagee, the mortgage money or balance thereof or deposit in the court. The right to seek foreclosure is co-extensive with the right to seek redemption. Since right to seek redemption accrues only on payment of the mortgage money or the balance thereof after adjustment of rents and profits from the interest thereof, therefore, right of foreclosure will not accrue to the mortgagee till such time the mortgagee remains in possession of the mortgaged security and is appropriating usufruct of the mortgaged land towards the interest on the mortgaged debt. Thus, the period of redemption or possession would not start till such time usufruct of the land and the profits are being adjusted towards interest on the mortgage amount. In view of the said interpretation, the principle that once a mortgage, always a mortgage and, therefore always redeemable would be applicable.

47. Thus, we prefer to follow the dictum of law Lald down by the larger Bench in Seth Ganga Dhar's case (supra) as well as judgments of Hon'ble Supreme Court in Jayasingh Dnyanu Mhoprekar's case (supra), Pomal Kanji Govindji's case (supra), Panchanan Sharma's case (supra) and Harbans 's case (supra) in preference to the judgments relied upon by the mortgagees in Prabhakaran's case (supra) and Sampuran Singh's case (supra).

48. Therefore, we answer the questions framed to hold that in case of usufructuary mortgage, where no time limit is fixed to seek redemption, the right to seek redemption would not arise on the date of mortgage but will arise on the date when the mortgagor pays or tenders to the mortgagee or deposits in Court, the mortgage money or the balance thereof. Thus, it is held that once a mortgage always a mortgage and is always redeemable."

19. Thus, right of redemption of a mortgagor being a statutory right, the same can be taken away only in terms of the proviso to Section 60 of the Transfer of Property Act which is extinguished either by a decree or by act of the parties.

20. In a very recent judgment in case of Harminder Singh (D) through L.Rs. (Supra) the view taken by the Supreme Court in case of Singh Ram v. Sheo Ram (Supra) has been reaffirmed.

21. So far as the contention of learned counsel for the petitioners is concerned that the time prescribed in the mortgage deed was four years and therefore, the cause of action for filing the suit for redemption of mortgage will start after expiry of four years is also misconceived, for the reason that at the best the time of four years as prescribed in the mortgage deed can be said that during this period of four years mortgagor could not have filed a suit for redemption of mortgage. Whether the said restriction would amount to the clog on the rights of the mortgagor, I am not inclined to consider the same but it cannot be said that the limitation will start running after expiry of the aforesaid four years period.

22. From the law as discussed above, I am of the considered opinion that the limitation will start only after payment or tender of payment by the mortgagor to the mortgagee of the amount due in case of usufructuary mortgage and not otherwise.

23. In the facts of the present case, it is admitted that it was only for the first time on 30.12.2015, the notice was given to the petitioners along with pay orders for payment of the principal sum to the defendants which was refused by them. The limitation will start from 30.12.2015 itself as the said date will be the date on which the amount was tendered by the mortgagor to the mortgagee. The suit was filed on 03.03.2016 is definitely be within the limitation.

24. In view of the above, no error has been committed by the courts below in dismissing the application filed by the petitioners under Order VII Rule 11 C.P.C. for rejecting the plaint on the ground that the suit was barred by limitation.

25. Consequently, the writ petition fails and is dismissed.

26. No order as to cost.

27. Interim order, if any, stands discharged.

If the petitioner's detention was unauthorised with the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar after 04.02.2026, in consequence of the order passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025, he had no business to detain the petitioner further and then produce him before the learned Magistrate at Meerut, in compliance with the B-warrant. The petitioner's production before the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut being absolutely illegal, his remand by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate aforesaid in Crime No. 4 of 2026 was also illegal.

Once the petitioner had not lawfully been arrested, the learned Magistrate at Meerut had no jurisdiction to remand him to judicial custody because the arrest, pursuant to the B-warrant, was itself illegal. The petitioner had to be furnished the grounds of his arrest by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut on 10.02.2026. In the absence of furnishing the grounds of arrest, the arrest itself would be rendered illegal and the arrested person entitled to be set at liberty, for the failure constitutes invasion of his fundamental right guaranteed under Article 22(1) of the Constitution.

Held- Petitioner's detention after 04.02.2026 is absolutely illegal, and we would direct his immediate release from custody, we do not wish to say that the petitioner cannot be validly arrested, after following the due procedure in any of the crimes registered against him, which permit arrest without warrant or on the basis of a valid warrant of arrest issued by a Court of competent jurisdiction; but certainly, not an arrest on the basis of a B-warrant issued against the petitioner, while he is in no lawful custody.
Writ petition succeeds and stands allowed. (E-15)

This habeas corpus writ petition has been filed by the petitioner, seeking a rule nisi to produce the petitioner, and upon production, direct his release from illegal custody. The petitioner says that his custody is illegal, because he was summoned on the basis of a B-warrant dated 06.02.2026, when already ordered to be released by this Court and subsequently remanded by the Magistrate vide order dated 10.02.2026 passed in Case Crime No. 4 of 2026 under Sections 420, 467, 468, 471, 102 of the Indian Penal Code, 18601, Police Station Ganga Nagar, District Meerut. The petitioner has challenged B-warrant dated 04.02.2026 as well as remand order dated 10.02.2026 as a process and order made in violation of the interim order of this Court dated 10.02.2026 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025, ordering the petitioner to be released forthwith in Case Crime No. 453 of 2025, under Section 318(4), 338 and 336(3) of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 20232, Police Station Beta 2, Gautam Buddha Nagar. The order of release from custody in Case Crime No. 453 of 2025 was passed by this Court on ground that the grounds of arrest mentioned in the arrest memo were not specific, rendering the arrest illegal.

2. The nutshell of the petitioner's case is that before he could be physically released from custody, in compliance with the order dated 04.02.2026 passed by this Court in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025, he was got summoned by the Court of the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut on a B-warrant dated 06.02.2026, and upon production, remanded to judicial custody by the order dated 10.02.2026. The petitioner says that since he was not in lawful custody on 06.02.2026 by dint of the order of this Court dated 04.02.2026, he could not be summoned under a B-warrant, which is available against a person in custody, which means lawful custody. His production through the aforesaid B-warrant and the subsequent remand are both illegal, rendering his detention in Crime No. 4 of 2026 (supra) illegal from the inception of it. The petitioner, therefore, says that he is entitled to a habeas corpus, ordering him to be released from illegal custody.

3. We must remark that if pursuant to processes, that are so illegal that they are void, the petitioner is in custody, which is illegal as well, the reliefs for quashing the B-warrant and the remand order initially sought, and subsequently added through amendment, would not at all be necessary. The Office of a Habeas Corpus Petition is confined to determining the legality of the detention, and, if the detention is per se illegal, any order authorising it contrary to law would not stand in the way of a writ of habeas corpus being issued.

4. It is further clarified at this stage that the petitioner has also said that he was illegally produced through B warrant in the present case and unlawfully remanded, because his arrest in the earlier case was illegal and non est. This subsequent ground, we must remark here, cannot be the subject matter of challenge in this petition, because, that is already sub judice in Criminal Misc. Petition No. 27881 of 2025, where an interim order, directing the petitioner's immediate release, has been passed.

5. We would now turn to the facts of the petitioner's case, as he has pleaded them.

6. Crime No. 453 of 2025 (supra) was registered at Police Station Beta 2, Gautam Buddha Nagar on 30.09.2025 against the petitioner, carrying allegations, which primarily disclose dispute of a civil nature. The petitioner challenged the remand order dated 12.10.2025 and 13.10.2025 as well as the consequential proceedings arising out of his illegal arrest made on 11.10.2025 in connection with Crime No. 453 of 2025 by means of Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025 before this Court. This Court, after considering the petitioner's case regarding the validity of his arrest and the consequential order of remand, held that the arrest was illegal on account of non-furnishing of specific grounds, and vide interim order dated 04.02.2026, while issuing notice to the respondents, ordered as follows :

24. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and also the submissions urged by the learned Senior Counsel for petitioner as noted hereinabove, as an interim measure, it is provided that petitioner shall be released forthwith in Case Crime No. 453 of 2025 under Sections 318(4), 338, 336(3) of B.N.S., Police Station Beta-2, District Gautam Budh Nagar (Greater Noida, Commissionerate Gautam Buddh Nagar) arising out of FIR dated 30.09.2025.

7. In compliance of the order dated 04.02.2026 passed by this Court, the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Buddha Nagar passed an order, directing the jail authorities to release the petitioner on 07.02.2026. The learned Chief Judicial Magistrate directed the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar vide order dated 07.02.2026 in the following terms :

A copy of that communication is annexed to the record of the petition. It is the petitioner's case that despite the order of release, the petitioner was kept in custody on account of addition of Sections 340(2) and 61(1) BNS. The petitioner approached the learned Magistrate and was granted an order of release in respect of the added sections on 09.02.2026. The subsequent order of the learned Magistrate dated 09.02.2026, post addition of the sections directing release, reads :

अतः उपरोक्त तथ्यों एवं परिस्थिति में प्रार्थी/अभियुक्त की रिहाई अंतर्गत धारा 340 (2), 61 (1) बी०एन०एस० में भी रिहा किये जाने का आधार पर्याप्त है।

अभियुक्त का रिहाई परवाना तदनुसार संशोधित होकर पुनः जिला कारागार प्रेषित है।

9. The petitioner asserts that notwithstanding the order dated 09.02.2026, directing release under the added sections granted by the learned Magistrate, he was illegally kept in custody, deliberately ignoring the orders directing immediate release made by this Court as well as the orders of the learned Magistrate dated 07.02.2026 and 09.02.2026, directing release in compliance with the orders of this Court dated 04.02.2026. It is pleaded that the aforesaid illegal detention, despite all these judicial orders, was on account of collusion between the jail authorities, the Police and the complainant, all acting in concert, knowing well that they would not be able to hold the petitioner in jail illegally for long.

10. An application was moved by the Police before the Court of the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut, praying that grant of a B-warrant in Case Crime No. 4 of 2026, directing the petitioner's production from District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar before the learned Magistrate at Meerut, treating him to be in lawful custody in Case Crime No. 453 of 2025 in Gautam Buddha Nagar jail. The production, pursuant to the B-warrant dated 06.02.2026 issued by the learned Magistrate at Meerut, was directed to be made on 09.02.2026. The petitioner, however, was not produced pursuant to the B-warrant before the learned Magistrate at Meerut on 09.02.2026. He was produced on the following day id est 10.02.2026. It is pleaded by the petitioner that in C.D. No. 13 dated 09.02.2026, pertaining to Crime No. 4 of 2026, the Investigating Officer3 failed to disclose any justifiable reason for the petitioner’s non-production on the date fixed in the B-warrant and has merely stated that the B-warrant had been obtained and the petitioner was to be produced on the terms of the warrant on 09.02.2026, but, could not be produced before the learned Magistrate. There is absolutely no explanation for the delayed production, pursuant to the warrant on the date other than that mentioned in the said warrant.

11. A rule nisi was issued in this petition on 06.05.2026, ordering the detenue to be produced before this Court on 12.05.2026 at 02:00 post meridiem. He was produced before us on 12.05.2026, and the matter directed to be taken up again on 13.05.2026. The personal presence of Rajendra Kumar, Inspector, Special Crime Branch, Ganga Nagar, Meerut was exempted on 13.05.2026. It may be noted that on 12.05.2026, four affidavits were filed on behalf of the State, and on 13.05.2026, the petitioner filed rejoinders. The parties having exchanged affidavits by 13.05.2026, the matter was heard on that date, and the petitioner was directed to be sent back to custody wherefrom he was brought forth, pending delivery of judgment.

12. Heard Mr. Anil Kumar Tiwari, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Mr. Kabeer Tiwari, learned Counsel for the petitioner and Mr. Manish Goyal, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Arvind Kumar, learned Additional Government Advocate on behalf of the State.

13. It must be noticed that the facts giving rise to the cause of action in the petition did not come to an end with what was said in the petition. The petitioner has been remanded in a further crime, pending the present habeas corpus petition, again through a B-warrant dated 02.05.2026 issued by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate at Ghaziabad vide remand order dated 04.05.2026. The petitioner, therefore, filed a supplementary affidavit dated 05.05.2026 to bring the aforesaid facts on record. The relevant part of these facts are stated in paragraph no. 3 of the supplementary affidavit last mentioned, which must be quoted for every word of it :

3. That certain developments have taken place during the pendency of the present writ petition, and are necessary to be brought on record before this Hon'ble Court in the interest of justice for proper and effective adjudication of the controversy involved in the present matter, which are as follows: -

a. That one FIR bearing Case Crime No. 59 of 2026 U/s 318(4), 336(3), 340(2), 351(3) and 51(2) of the BNS 2023 registered at PS Crossing Republic District Nagar (Commissionerate Ghaziabad) on 22.03.2026.

The copy of FIR dated 22.03.2026, is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.SA1 to this affidavit.

b. That the instant Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 518 of 2026 was filed on 27.04.2026.

The photo copy of status report of aforesaid writ petition, is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.SA2 to this affidavit.

c. That on 24.04.2026, One Devesh Kumar i.e. Sub-Inspector in P.S. Crossing Republic where the FIR bearing Case Crime No. 59 of 2026 is registered, addressed a letter to the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate Court No. 2, District Ghaziabad seeking issue of a production order u/s 302 BNSS i.e. a B Warrant.

The copy of Letter dated 24.04.2026, is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.SA3 to this affidavit.

d. That it is imperative to note here that the Petitioner is shown to be arrested in Case Crime No. 04 of 2026, in judicial custody of District Jail Meerut.

e. That the learned Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate Court No. 2 issued the production order u/s 302 BNSS 2023 vide order dated 02.05.2026.

The photocopy of the order dated 02.05.2026 is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.SA 4 to this affidavit.

f. That in pursuance of the aforesaid production order, the form 'B-warrant' dated 02.05.2026 was issued to the District Jail Superintendent, Meerut seeking production of the Petitioner on 04.05.2026 before the court of learned CJM, Ghaziabad.

A photocopy of the B Warrant dated 02.05.2026 is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.SA5 to this affidavit.

g. That in pursuance of the aforesaid, the Petitioner was subsequently produced and remand order dated 04.05.2026 was passed by the Court of Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Ghaziabad whereby a remand of 14 days under Section 187 of BNSS was allowed up to 18.05.2026.

A photocopy of the remand order dated 04.05.2026 is being filed herewith and marked as Annexure No.SA6 to this affidavit.

14. Therefore, the further case of the petitioner, that is pleaded, is that the subsequent developments are part of the cause of action involved in the petition and bear directly on the issue involved here, inasmuch as the facts above pleaded show that during pendency of the writ petition, another production warrant was obtained by the Police against the petitioner, while he was in custody at Meerut, pursuant to the B-warrant issued by the learned Magistrate at Ghaziabad. It is the petitioner's case that a production warrant under Section 302 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 20234 is a mere process for securing the attendance of a person who is already in lawful custody, confined or detained in prison. The said provision does not, by itself, create an independent source of authority to detain a man already at liberty or continue illegal incarceration for one who has been restored to his liberty by a judicial order. It is urged that lawful custody on the date of issue of a production warrant is the sine qua non for acting upon such a production warrant or order, and the production cannot be acted upon without subsisting lawful custody. It is also said that a production warrant cannot substitute, create or authorise continued detention in the absence of a legal and subsisting authority for lawful custody.

15. In this case, the custody in Crime No. 453 of 2025 was declared illegal and the petitioner ordered to be released forthwith by a Division Bench of this Court vide order dated 04.02.2026 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025. The subsequent orders of release, numbering two, made by the learned Magistrate in compliance with the said order clarified that the custody in the said crime was illegal because of the this Court's order, as the learned Counsel for the petitioner would submit. His production, therefore, through a B-warrant dated 06.02.2026, secured in Crime No. 4 of 2026 issued by the learned Magistrate at Meerut was without authority of law. A subsequent B-warrant was again got issued by the learned Magistrate at Ghaziabad in Crime No. 59 of 2026, ordering the petitioner to be produced from Meerut Jail before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2 at Ghaziabad, It is illegal for the reason that the petitioner's custody became illegal at Gautam Buddha Nagar in Crime No. 453 of 2025. It is submitted that once the custody became illegal, it cannot be legalised through successive issue of B-warrants in different cases, unless on the date of issue of the initial B warrant, the petitioner was in lawful custody, pursuant to a valid order of remand. Here, the custody at Gautam Buddha Nagar became illegal because of the order of the Division Bench dated 04.02.2026, and thereafter, all B-warrants issued authorise unlawful detention of the petitioner for the obvious reason that a B-warrant could not authorise detention of a person on production by another Court in another crime, unless he was already in lawful custody. Here, the petitioner was not in lawful custody in Crime No. 453 of 2025 at Gautam Buddha Nagar. The submission, therefore, is that the B-warrant issued from Meerut and his remand there as well as the B-warrant, again issued by the Court at Ghaziabad and his remand at Ghaziabad are both vitiated for reasons that initial defect in the petitioner's custody at Ghaziabad that had become unauthorised and illegal, pursuant to the order of the Division Bench of this Court dated 04.02.2026. It is emphasized that the custody having become illegal on the basis of a cause of action initially involved in the writ petition, the subsequent illegal remand is a part of the same cause of action, that is initially involved in this petition. It is on the foot of the said submission that the petitioner seeks his custody to be declared illegal and prays for restoration of his liberty.

16. Four personal affidavits have been filed, all dated 11.05.2026. Affidavit No. 7 of 2026 has been filed by the Jail Superintendent, District Gautam Buddha Nagar, Affidavit No. 4 of 2026 filed by the Jail Superintendent, District Ghaziabad, Affidavit No. 5 of 2026 filed on behalf of the Jail Superintendent, District Meerut and the affidavit bearing No. 6 of 2026 filed by the Station House, Police Station, Ganga Nagar, District Meerut.

17. A second supplementary affidavit, bearing No. 8 of 2026 was filed on 12.05.2026, bringing on record the fact that after the issue of a B-warrant/production order dated 06.02.2026, on the foot of which the present writ petition was filed, Inspector Rajendra Kumar Nagar, Crime Branch, Sector Gautam Budh Nagar, Meerut, who is the IO of Crime No. 4 of 2026, resorted to harassing the petitioner's daughter, who is the deponent on his behalf in the present habeas corpus petition. He threatened the petitioner's daughter with false implication in cases involving the petitioner's company. The stand in the affidavit is that the petitioner’s daughter is a blood relative of the petitioner’s and has nothing to do with the affairs of the company. She made a complaint regarding all these facts on the Integrated Grievance Redressal System (IGRS) Portal on 23.02.2025. Inspector Rajendra Kumar Nagar of the Crime Branch Meerut called the petitioner's daughter, who is prosecuting the present habeas corpus writ petition on her mobile number +918448159397. The details of these calls, which are four in number, are furnished in paragraph no. 8 of the second supplementary affidavit dated 12.05.2026 as follows :

8. That from a bare perusal of the call record screenshot, it is evident that the said inspector crime branch has called the deponent from +91 7017974535 on the following dates, which are as follows :-

1. 17.03.2026 at 3:12 PM.

2. 11.04.2026 at 10:13 PM.

3. 21.04.2026 at 10:48 AM.

4. 07.05.2026 at 5:42 PM.

18. There is a specific averment further made in paragraphs nos. 8 and 9 of the second supplementary affidavit dated 12.05.2026 to the following effect :

8. That it is relevant to point out here that the last call by the said inspector is after the orders dated 04.06.2026 and 06.05.2026 passed by this Hon'ble Court.

9. That it is also respectfully submitted that the said Inspector has also visited the detenue for purpose of investigation during which threats were issued against the family of the detenue.

19. It was in view of the said affidavit that Inspector Rajendra Kumar Nagar was summoned to the Bar by this Court, as already indicated.

20. The petitioner has filed four replies to the four affidavits filed by the three Jail Superintendents and the Station House Officer, Police Station Ganga Nagar, Meerut, all dated 13.05.2026. The personal affidavit filed by the Jail Superintendent, District Gautam Buddha Nagar, is the most detailed return on behalf of the State and brings on record most of the State's case in support of the validity of the petitioner's detention through successive B-warrants secured against him by the Police. A perusal of Affidavit No. 7 of 2026 filed by the Jail Superintendent, District Gautam Buddha Nagar shows that the petitioner was in his jail in connection with Crime No. 453 of 2025 up to 12.10.2025 under an order of remand passed by the Judicial Magistrate/Civil Judge (Junior Division), Fast Track Court, Gautam Buddha Nagar. This remand was made under a custody warrant dated 12.10.2025, authorising the petitioner's detention in the District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar issued by the Court of the Magistrate last mentioined.

21. On 07.02.2026, a B-warrant was issued against the petitioner vide order dated 06.02.2026 by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut in Crime No. 4 of 2026. This B-warrant was received apparently on the same date through Head Constable 1039 Kapil Singh from District Meerut at 14:10 hours. The date of production for the petitioner fixed before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut was indicated as 09.02.2026 in the B-warrant. On 07.02.2026, a release order was received at the Gautam Budh Nagar prison in Crime No. 453 of 2025 issued by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Buddha Nagar, apparently, pursuant to orders of this Court directing release from custody forthwith. It is averred that after comparing the release order and the custody warrant, it was found that Sections 340(2) and 61(2) BNS were not mentioned in the release order. Due to receipt of a B-warrant by the petitioner in another case and the error in the release order, it was not possible to release the petitioner. It is emphasised that 08.02.2026 was a holiday, as it was a Sunday, and it was not possible to send the release order for amendment.

22. It is next said that as per the district jail records of Gautam Buddha Nagar, summons dated 07.02.2026 were issued by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate Gautam Budh Nagar in Crime No. 453 of 2025, summoning him to the Court on 09.02.2026. On 09.02.2026, the petitioner was produced before the Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Budh Nagar, in compliance with his summons dated 07.02.2026 in Crime No. 453 of 2025. Here, the amendment of the release order with regard to the added sections was sought and the amended release order was received in Crime No. 453 of 2025. It is next said that it was not possible to send the prisoner pursuant to the B-warrant issued in Crime No. 4 of 2026 issued by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut on the scheduled date in the warrant id est 09.02.2026, because of the proceedings before the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Buddha Nagar for correction of the release order et cetera.

23. On 09.02.2026 in the evening, after the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar received the corrected release order in Crime No. 453 of 2025 the petitioner, Achal Kumar Gupta was released in the said case, but detained under B-warrant in the other accumulated cases, as averred in the Jail Superintendent's affidavit vide paragraph no. 11. On the following day id est 10.02.2026, the petitioner, after being granted bail in all cases in District Gautam Buddha Nagar, was sent in police custody before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, pursuant to the B-warrant for production issued in Crime No. 4 of 2026. He was then remanded to judicial custody at Meerut and lodged in the Meerut District Jail.

24. So far as the personal affidavit filed by the District Jail Superintendent, Ghaziabad is concerned, it is averred in paragraph no. 3 that after receiving the order dated 06.05.2026 passed by this Court, he inquired about the petitioner and found that there was no such man in custody in his jail. The Jail Superintendent visited the e-prison official website and collected information about the petitioner, who was in jail custody at District Gautam Buddha Nagar and then transferred to District Jail, Meerut. It is clearly averred that the petitioner is not in custody at the Ghaziabad Jail.

25. In reply to the Jail Superintendent, Ghaziabad's affidavit filed by the petitioner, it is averred in paragraph no. 5 that the fact is admitted to the limited extent that the petitioner is not in physical custody at the District Jail, Ghaziabad. It is next averred that the Jail Superintendent, Ghaziabad has been impleaded as a party respondent not merely on account of the petitioner being in custody at the Ghaziabad Jail, but because, subsequent coercive proceedings were taken in Crime No. 59 of 2026 (supra), including the issue of a production order dated 02.05.2026, a B-warrant dated 02.05.2026 and the remand order dated 04.05.2026, which have already been brought on record through a supplementary affidavit filed by the petitioner.

26. Upon hearing learned counsel for parties and perusing the material on record, we are of opinion that the moot question is if the petitioner, who was in judicial custody in Crime No. 453 of 2025 at District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar, when ordered to be released forthwith by this Court vide order dated 04.02.2026 passed in Criminal Misc. Petition No. 27881 of 2025, could be validly produced before the learned Magistrate at Meerut, pursuant to the warrant or custody order dated 06.02.2026 issued by the learned Magistrate at Meerut?

27. For a first, we are of clear opinion that the order dated 04.02.2026 passed by the Division Bench of this Court in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025 rendered the petitioner's custody in Crime No. 453 of 2025 in the District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar absolutely illegal on and from 04.02.2026 when the said order was made. The order directed immediate release of the petitioner in Crime No. 453 of 2025, and the petitioner could not, thereafter, be detained for a minute in the District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar. His confinement in District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar was nothing more than a physical custody or restraint, and not any kind of lawful detention, preventive, punitive or one pending trial. It is the respondents case that when the order dated 04.02.2026 was passed by the Division Bench of this Court, the petitioner was remanded in some other crime at District Gautam Budh Nagar. He could not be, therefore, held in prison at Gautam Buddha Nagar in Crime No. 453 of 2025 for a minute, after the order dated 04.02.2025 passed by this Court. The release orders dated 04.02.2026 passed by the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Gautam Buddha Nagar, directing the jail authorities at Gautam Buddha Nagar to release the petitioner on 07.02.2026, pursuant to this Court's order, is superfluous. Likewise is the amended order dated 09.02.2026, directing release in added Sections 340(2) and 61(1) BNS, quite apart from the fact that for an added section, a release order cannot be flouted by the jail authorities, once release is directed in a crime, whether pursuant to a bail order or any other kind of a judicial order. We will allude to this aspect of the matter a little later in this judgment.

28. What we emphasise, for the present, is that a writ of this Court issued under Article 226 of the Constitution does not require the crutches of a Magistrate's release order to secure the release of a prisoner from jail. Once we direct the release of a prisoner from jail, our writ proceeds from this Court to the jail authorities without any further process or proceedings required to be taken by a Subordinate Court like that of a Magistrate. The release order is required to be made when we exercise our jurisdiction to grant bail, where a personal bond has to be furnished by the detenue, besides sureties, on the foot of which, a release order is made by the Magistrate. That is not the case with a writ issued under Article 226, directing the immediate release of a prisoner from jail custody. The writ, as already remarked, proceeds from this Court direct to the jail authorities, as in this case and the authorities of the District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar were required and obliged to forthwith comply and release the prisoner from custody. If they did not, awaiting some kind of a release order from the Magistrate, and then, finding faults with it, because, some sections had been added to the crime by the Police, the detenue’s custody, like the petitioner here, is not only rendered illegal, but non est. It is well-settled that anything done in violation of a judicial order of this Court by any administration or executive authority is a nullity. Since the petitioner was detained in jail by the district jail authorities, including the Jail Superintendent, Gautam Buddha Nagar in violation of our order dated 04.02.2026 passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025, his custody, after 04.02.2026, was nothing more than illegal confinement or detention, not referable to any lawful detention, preventive, punitive or one pending trial or investigation.

29. This would bring us to the issue if the petitioner was in custody, that was non est on account of our order dated 04.02.2026 aforesaid, could he be sent in custody to the learned Magistrate at Meerut, pursuant to the B-warrant dated 06.02.2026 passed by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut in Crime No. 4 of 2026 and produced there in compliance with the B-warrant. For the purpose, we think that it would be apposite to refer to the provisions of Sections 301, 302 and 304 BNSS. These read :

301. In this Chapter,

(a) "detained" includes detained under any law providing for preventive detention;

(b) "prison" includes,-

(i) any place which has been declared by the State Government, by general or special order, to be a subsidiary jail;

(ii) any reformatory, Borstal institution or other institution of a like nature.

302. (1) Whenever, in the course of an inquiry, trial or proceeding under this Sanhita, it appears to a Criminal Court,-

(a) that a person confined or detained in a prison should be brought before the Court for answering to a charge of an offence, or for the purpose of any proceedings against him; or

(b) that it is necessary for the ends of justice to examine such person as a witness, the Court may make an order requiring the officer in charge of the prison to produce such person before the Court answering to the charge or for the purpose of such proceeding or for giving evidence.

(2) Where an order under sub-section (1) is made by a Magistrate of the second class, it shall not be forwarded to, or acted upon by, the officer in charge of the prison unless it is countersigned by the Chief Judicial Magistrate, to whom such Magistrate is subordinate.

(3) Every order submitted for countersigning under sub-section (2) shall be accompanied by a statement of the facts which, in the opinion of the Magistrate, render the order necessary, and the Chief Judicial Magistrate to whom it is submitted may, after considering such statement, decline to countersign the order.

304. Where the person in respect of whom an order is made under section 302-

(a) is by reason of sickness or infirmity unfit to be removed from the prison; or

(b) is under committal for trial or under remand pending trial or pending a preliminary investigation; or

(c) is in custody for a period which would expire before the expiration of the time required for complying with the order and for taking him back to the prison in which he is confined or detained; or

(d) is a person to whom an order made by the State Government or the Central Government under section 303 applies, the officer in charge of the prison shall abstain from carrying out the Court's order and shall send to the Court a statement of reasons for so abstaining:

Provided that where the attendance of such person is required for giving evidence at a place not more than twenty-five kilometres distance from the prison, the officer in charge of the prison shall not so abstain for the reason mentioned in clause (b).

30. A conjoint perusal of Sections 301, 302 and 304 BNSS clearly shows that in order that a Court may exercise the power to summon a person from prison in connection with an inquiry, trial or proceedings pending before it, the person may be confined or detained in prison, as provided under Section 302(1)(a) BNSS, and the word □detained□ is defined under Section 301(1)(a) BNSS inconclusively to mean detention under any law providing for preventive detention. It would, of course, include punitive detention or one pending trial, or on committal for trial, or pending preliminary investigation. Apparently, the detention, that would authorise the Court to exercise powers under Section 302 BNSS, would mean some kind of a custody in prison, referable to some lawful authority, authorising the detention. It would ex facie not apply to a case where a man is illegally held in custody, may be, by the Jailer of a prison, which does not have the authority of law.

31. One of the grounds on which the Officer in charge of a prison may refuse to carry out the order of the Court to produce a prisoner, envisaged under Section 304(c) BNSS, is if the period of his custody authorised would expire during the period of time required for complying with the order of the Court to produce him and taking him back to the prison where he is confined. This would further show that the authority of the Officer in charge of a jail, Jailer or Jail Superintendent, by whatever name called, to produce a person in compliance with the Court's order, is limited to the period of time that a prisoner is in lawful detention or custody; not when his detention, though lawful at some point of time, becomes unauthorised later was on account of period of remand expiring or an order directing release being made.

32. There are pari materia provisions carried in The Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 19555, and in particular, reference may be made to Sections 2, 3, and 6 of the Act last mentioned. Reference in this connection may be made to a Bench decision of this court in Dharampal and another v. State of U.P. and another, where, H.N. Seth, J., speaking for the Division Bench, held :

9. A consideration of the aforementioned provisions indicate that the requisition under S. 3(2), Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 1955, and S. 267(1), Cr. P.C. can be addressed to Supdt., of a District jail who is already holding a prisoner under an authority of law. The requisition by itself does not authorise the detention of any person. It merely requires the officer in charge of the prison (1) to produce the detenu before the requisitioning Court on the date fixed by it and (2) after the purpose of requisition is over, to take him back and to keep him in custody in accordance with the writ or direction issued by the Court which had authorised his detention in jail. As laid down in S. 55, Prisons Act, 1894, during the period the prisoner is away from the prison in pursuance of the requisition, he would throughout be deemed to be in the custody of the prison and would be subject to all the same incidents as if he were actually in prison.

10. The requisitions issued by the criminal Courts in Haryana, therefore, did not authorise the Supdt., District Jail, Meerut, to keep the two petitioners in his custody. They merely required the Supdt., to produce the two petitioners before the concerned courts only if the Supdt., was entitled to keep them in his custody under some valid authority. Since the various requisition orders did not authorise the Supdt., District Jail, Meerut to keep the two petitioners in custody and the moment the petitioners had been admitted to bail in all the criminal cases in connection with which their detention in District Jail, Meerut had been authorised, the authority of the Supdt., District Jail, to keep the petitioners under detention came to an end and the petitioners' detention after being released on bail, became illegal and without authority of law. The requisitions received from the criminal Courts at Haryana under S. 3, Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 1955 or under S. 267 Cr. P.C. could not confer any valid authority on the Supdt., of jail to keept the petitioners under detention and render his custody in District Jail, Meerut valid.

11. Moreover, S. 3, Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 1955 and S. 267, Cr. P.C. merely enable a criminal Court to require the attendance of a prisoner before it on the date specified in the requisition. If for the reasons contained in S. 6, Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 1955, and S. 269, Cr. P.C., an officer in charge of the prison is not able to comply with the requisition, he has to submit a report to the Court concerned whereupon the said requisition comes to an end, if the presence of the prisoner is still required by the said Court the requisitioning Court will have to issue a fresh requisition under S. 3, Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 1955 and S. 267 Cr. P.C. requiring the officer in charge of the prison to produce the prisoner before it on some other date to be nominated by it. It therefore, follows that after the date mentioned in the requisition issued by the criminal court to produce a prisoner before it expires, no further obligation remains upon the officer in charge of the prison to produce the prisoner before that court on any other date till such time as a fresh requisition for the purpose is not received by him. In the circumstances in no case can a requisition issued by a Criminal Court under S. 3, Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 1955, and S. 267 Cr. P.C., ever be construed as authorising the officer in charge of the prison to keep a person under detention after the date mentioned in the requisition has expired and he has made a report to the concerned Court stating the reason for his omission to comply with the requisition. In the instant case, we find that the Supdt., District Jail, Meerut, had been required by a Criminal Court at Haryana to produce both the petitioners before it on 2nd June, 1981 and thereafter on 4th June, 1981. Those dates have passed long time back and no further requisition has been received for the production of the two petitioners from that Court Another requisition was received from another Court in Haryana requiring production of one of the petitioners (Dharam Pal) before that Court on 16th September, 1981. That date has also passed. At present there is no direction by any criminal Court requiring production of the two petitioners either under S. 3, Prisoners (Attendance in Courts) Act, 1955, or under S. 267 Cr. P.C. In the circumstances, it is not open to the Supdt., District Jail, Meerut, to transfer the two petitioners to Haryana on the basis of the requisitions which had been received by him. Further, as the petitioners have been directed to be released on bail in all the criminal cases in connection with which they had been committed to the custody in District Jail, Meerut, and release orders had been received by the Jailor, no authority remains in him to keep the petitioners in custody.

33. As would appear from a perusal of Section 304(c) and Section 6(d) of the Act of 1955, even if a B-warrant was issued on 06.02.2026 by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut, the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar was under a legal obligation to abstain from carrying out the said warrant, because the petitioner's custody expired on 04.02.2026, that is to say, the date on which this Court directed his immediate release from prison by an order of the said date passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025. The Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar ought have declined to carry out the B-warrant and sent to the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut statement of reasons for so doing.

34. The question fell for consideration before a Division Bench of the Madras High Court in K.S. Muthuramalingam v. State, rep. by the Inspector of Police, District Crime Branch, Commissioner Office, Coimbatore and another. The facts in K.S. Muthuramanlingam (supra) are very striking and can best be recapitulated by reference to the relevant part of the report, where these are set forth by their Lordships in the following words :

2. As per the Petition allegations, the detenu Sundar alias Raja was arrested and remanded to judicial custody 111 Crime No.16/2009, registered on the file of District Crime Branch, Coimbatore, for offences punishable under Sections 406 and 420. I.P.C. on 29.5.2009 and he was granted bail by the learned Judicial Magistrate, Palladam. imposing conditions to produce documents showing assets worth Rupees One Crore and two sureties, having property worth Rs.50,00,000/- and to jointly execute a bond for a sum of Rs. 10,000/-. However, the said order was subsequently modified by removing the other conditions and imposing a condition to execute a bond for a sum of Rs.1,00,000/- with two sureties each for a like sum and the said order of modification was passed on 10.6.2010. It has also been stated in the Petition that pursuant to the said order, bail bond was executed on 18.6.2010 by the sureties and the bail bond was sent to the Central Prison. Coimbatore on the same day. However, the detenu Sundar alias Raja was not released by the Prison Authorities even after the submission of the bail bond as per the requirements found in the bail order granted by the learned Judicial Magistrate, Palladam. Hence, the Petitioner has come forward with the present Petition contending that the continued detention of the detenu in the Central Prison is not authorised by law and his right guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India has been violated. necessitating this Court to exercise the power under Article 226 of the Constitution of India for issuance of a Writ of Habeas Corpus for production of the detenu and set him at liberty

3. The Second Respondent has filed a counter affidavit stating that even before the bail bond was received by the Jail Authorities in the case in which the detenu had been remanded to judicial custody, a P.T. Warrant was received from the III Additional Civil Judge and Judicial Magistrate of First Class, Porbandar, Gujarat in connection with Crime No.2576/2009, a case registered for an offence punishable under Section 138 of Negotiable Instruments Act; that due to non-availability of the escort police, the detenu could not be taken to Porbandar to be produced before the said Court and that subsequently on intimation to the said Court, successive P.T. Warrants came to be issued till date and a P.T. Warrant is pending at present, directing the production of the detenu on 23.7.2010. It has also been stated in the Counter Affidavit that two more P.T. Warrants, one from III Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division) and III Judicial Magistrate of First Class, Bijapur and another from I Additional Civil Judge (Junior Division) and Judicial Magistrate of First Class, I Court GADAG, in connection with C.C. Nos. 04/10 [P.C. No. 123/2009] and C.C. No.05/2010 [P.C. No. 124/2009] respectively with requests to produce the above said detenu before the said Courts on 23.7.2010, are pending execution and that the same was the reason why the detenu was not released pursuant to the execution of bail bond.

35. Upon Muthuramalingam filing a petition for habeas corpus, P.R. Shivakumar, J., speaking for the Division Bench, held :

11. A conjoint reading of Sections 267 and 269, Cr.P.C. will make it clear that the purpose of P.T. warrant is to direct the production of a person who is confined or detained in prison by a lawful order. It cannot be interpreted to mean that the P.T. warrant shall be an authorisation to curtail the liberty of the person and keep him in custody till the date on which his production is sought for. The mere pendency of a P.T. warrant shall not be enough to keep a prisoner in the prison beyond the date of expiry of the sentence, if he is a convict or beyond the date on which the remand expires unless the remand is extended by a competent Court. The pendency of a P.T. warrant cannot be equated with a remand and the same cannot be construed to be an authorisation for detaining a person beyond the period for which he was remanded or committed to undergo punishment.

12. In this regard, the judgment of this Court in Kattan @ Subramani v. State by Inspector of Police, Avadi P.S. & Another, 1992 (1) MWN (Cri) 68 shall have bearing, though not directly applicable. In the said case it has been observed that the issue of a P.T. Warrant when the person is not confined or detained in a prison in respect of any other case is not justifiable and when such a fact is brought to the notice of the Court which had issued P.T. Warrant, the same should be recalled. The judgment went further to state that the recalling of the P.T. Warrant will not bar the subsequent arrest of the person in execution of an NBW.

13. From the above, it is quite obvious that the scope of the P.T. Warrant cannot be enlarged by assuming the same to be an authorisation for detaining the prisoner beyond the period of detention. It will be effective only if his detention is otherwise authorised as on the date on which he is supposed to be produced before the Court issuing P.T. Warrant.

14. The decision of the Apex Court in Ram Dass Ram v. State of Bihar and another, AIR 1987 SC 1333 will make it abundantly clear that the issuance of P.T. Warrant cannot be construed to be an order of remand. A person, who has been acquitted or granted bail in the cases in which he was remanded to judicial custody, cannot be detained further on the sole ground that a P.T. Warrant has been issued by another Court. In the said case decided by the Supreme Court, the Accused was acquitted in two Sessions cases in which he had been remanded and even after the acquittal in those cases he was continued to be detained in the prison on the basis of a P.T. warrant issued for his trial in another case. Such a detention was held to be unjustified. The facts of the case before the Supreme Court reveal that there was no warrant (remand order) for detaining the detenu in jail in the third case in which P.T. Warrant was issued or in any other case after the detenu had been acquitted in the two cases in which he had been remanded.

15. P.T. Warrants can be classified into two categories:

(1) directing production of the person confined in the prison on the date of hearing specified in the order, and

(2) directing production without specifying a date for production.

In either case, the P.T. Warrant cannot be construed to be an authorisation to detain the person in jail beyond the period of remand or beyond the date of expiry of the sentence of imprisonment, as the case may be. Legal custody on the date on which he is directed to be produced in the sine qua non for such production. Therefore, the first category of P.T. Warrant, namely specifying a particular date on which production is to be made, shall be issued in cases when production is sought for for being examined as a witness or for answering a charge or facing other proceedings in which he has already been granted bail. In such cases, the prisoner shall be released if, before the date fixed for his production, his period of sentence expires or the period of remand comes to an end. Second type of P.T. Warrants viz. without specifying the date for production can be issued, in cases wherein the prisoner has to answer the charge or face a proceeding when he was not granted bail or bail granted was cancelled. In such cases, the prison authority is bound to produce such person on receipt of P.T. Warrant. Even in such cases, he cannot be detained for being produced in the Court in compliance with the P.T. Warrant if the sentence or remand period expires before the receipt of P.T. Warrant.

16. Hence, we are convinced with the contention of the learned Counsel for the Petitioner that the continued detention of the Petitioner beyond 19.6.2006, the date on which the bail bond was received by the Superintendent of Prisons, Central Prison, Coimbatore, is illegal and this Court has to issue a direction for his release, especially when it is not the case of the Respondents that he has been remanded in any other case or his continued custody is authorised in connection with any other case.

36. In the present case, we find that the petitioner's custody was absolutely illegal after 04.02.2026, when this Court ordered his immediate release from prison. There was a positive obligation upon the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar to refuse production of the petitioner before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut, in compliance with the B-warrant dated 06.02.2026. We have already spoken about it.

37. We must add, as already held by good authority, that a B-warrant is not a fresh authorisation to detain a free man. If the petitioner's detention was unauthorised with the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar after 04.02.2026, in consequence of our order passed in Criminal Misc. Writ Petition No. 27881 of 2025, he had no business to detain the petitioner further and then produce him before the learned Magistrate at Meerut, in compliance with the B-warrant. The petitioner’s production before the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut being absolutely illegal, his remand by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate aforesaid in Crime No. 4 of 2026 was also illegal.

38. It has already been noticed by us that the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Meerut had admitted in paragraphs nos. 11 and 12 of his affidavit that the petitioner was released on 09.02.2026 at 16:42 hours in the evening, after receipt of the revised order of the learned Magistrate in Crime No. 453 of 2025, but was detained under a B-warrant in the other accumulated cases. It is said in paragraph no. 12, also already noticed, that he was granted bail in all cases pending against him in District Gautam Buddha Nagar and was, therefore, sent in police custody to the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut in compliance with the B-warrant issued in Crime No. 4 of 2026. It has been noticed that a B-warrant is not an arrest warrant to detain a free man. The petitioner could, therefore, never have been arrested, pursuant to the B-warrant issued by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut, after he was released in Crime No. 453 of 2025 by the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar. The petitioner's detention, therefore, at Gautam Buddha Nagar and the act of the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar in forwarding him in custody to the learned Magistrate at Meerut constitutes illegal custody.

39. As already remarked that once the petitioner had not lawfully been arrested, the learned Magistrate at Meerut had no jurisdiction to remand him to judicial custody at Meerut, because the arrest, pursuant to the B-warrant, was itself illegal. Assuming that the B-warrant was an authority to arrest the petitioner, though it was not, if the petitioner had to be arrested by dint of the B-warrant issued by the learned Magistrate at Meerut, he had to be supplied the grounds of his arrest on 09.02.2026 after he was arrested, as the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar says, in connection with the B-warrant. In any case, the petitioner had to be furnished the grounds of his arrest by the learned Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut on 10.02.2026. In the absence of furnishing the grounds of arrest, the arrest itself would be rendered illegal and the arrested person entitled to be set at liberty, for the failure constitutes invasion of his fundamental right guaranteed under Article 22(1) of the Constitution. In this regard, reference may be made to the decision of the Supreme Court in Mihir Rajesh Shah v. State of Maharashtra and another8, where it has been held :

46. The requirement of informing the arrested person the grounds of arrest, in the light of and under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, is not a mere formality but a mandatory binding constitutional safeguard which has been included in Part III of the Constitution under the head of Fundamental Rights. Thus, if a person is not informed of the grounds of his arrest as soon as maybe, it would amount to the violation of his fundamental rights thereby curtailing his right to life and personal liberty under Article 21 of the Constitution of India, rendering the arrest illegal.

55. This Court is of the opinion that to achieve the intended objective of the constitutional mandate of Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India, the grounds of arrest must be informed to the arrested person in each and every case without exception and the mode of the communication of such grounds must be in writing in the language he understands.

58. It is by now settled that if the grounds of arrest are not furnished to the arrestee in writing, this non-compliance will result in breach of the constitutional and statutory safeguards hence rendering the arrest and remand illegal and the person will be entitled to be set at liberty. The statute is silent with regard to the mode, nature or the time and stage at which the grounds of arrest has to be communicated. Article 22 says □as soon as may be□ which would obviously not mean prior to arrest but can be on arrest or thereafter. The indication is as early as it can be conveyed. There may be situations wherein it may not be practically possible to supply such grounds of arrest to the arrested person at the time of his arrest or immediately.

59. It may so happen that in the presence of a police officer a cognizable offence is being committed and the factual matrix presents a tangible and imminent risk of the suspect absconding or committing further offence(s). For instance, in a case involving a murder being committed in front of a police officer, it may not be possible for the officer to provide the grounds of arrest in writing before the arrest or forthwith on the arrest to the accused. A rigid insistence upon informing of written ground(s) of arrest before or at the time of effecting the arrest or immediately thereafter may result into police officer not being able to discharge their duty and responsibility efficiently and effectively.

62. We thus hold, that, in cases where the police are already in possession of documentary material furnishing a cogent basis for the arrest, the written grounds of arrest must be furnished to the arrestee on his arrest. However, in exceptional circumstances such as offences against body or property committed in flagrante delicto, where informing the grounds of arrest in writing on arrest is rendered impractical, it shall be sufficient for the police officer or other person making the arrest to orally convey the same to the person at the time of arrest. Later, a written copy of grounds of arrest must be supplied to the arrested person within a reasonable time and in no event later than two hours prior to production of the arrestee before the Magistrate for remand proceedings. The remand papers shall contain the grounds of arrest and in case there is delay in supply thereof, a note indicating a cause for it be included for the information of the Magistrate.

63. The above indicated lower limit of two hours minimum interval before the production is grounded in the functional necessity so that the right as provided to an arrestee under the Constitution and the statute is safeguarded effectively. This period would ensure that the counsel has adequate time to scrutinize the basis of arrest and gather relevant material to defend the arrestee proficiently and capably while opposing the remand. Any shorter interval may render such preparation illusory, thereby resulting in non-compliance of the constitutional and statutory mandate. The two-hour threshold before production for remand thus strikes a judicious balance between safeguarding the arrestee's constitutional rights under Article 22(1) and preserving the operational continuity of criminal investigations.

64. In view of the above, we hold with regard to the second issue that non-supply of grounds of arrest in writing to the arrestee prior to or immediately after arrest would not vitiate such arrest on the grounds of non-compliance with the provisions of Section 50CrPC (now Section 47 of BNSS 2023) provided the said grounds are supplied in writing within a reasonable time and in any case two hours prior to the production of the arrestee before the Magistrate for remand proceedings.

65. It goes without saying that if the abovesaid schedule for supplying the grounds of arrest in writing is not adhered to, the arrest will be rendered illegal entitling the release of the arrestee. On such release, an application for remand or custody, if required, will be moved along with the reasons and necessity for the same, after the supply of the grounds of arrest in writing setting forth the Explanation for non-supply thereof within the above stipulated schedule. On receipt of such an application, the Magistrate shall decide the same expeditiously and preferably within a week of submission thereof by adhering to the principles of natural justice.

40. The position of law with regard to the necessity of furnishing reasons of arrest, when the arrest is made of a person already in jail and produced before another Court on its B-warrant in connection with the crime before that Court, has been subject matter of consideration in Bharat

Pukhraj Chaudhary v. State of Maharashtra and another. The short facts in Bharat Pukhraj Chaudhary may be noticed from the report of the judgment, which reads :

2. The petitioner has sought a declaration that his arrest in Crime No. 221 of 2023 registered with Bhoiwada Police Station, Thane on October 21, 2023 under Section 8(K), 22(K) of the Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1985 read with Section 18(K), 18(A) punishable under Section 27(B) and 28(A) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 is illegal and is in gross violation of the fundamental rights guaranteed under Articles 21 and 22 of the Constitution of India so also Section 50 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973. The petitioner has also sought quashing of the remand order dated February 11, 2024 and subsequent remand orders in the aforesaid case.

3. The facts necessary for deciding the writ petition are as under:-

4000 bottles of various cough syrups were found in possession of co-accused Shiraj. The possession was with an intention to illegally market the same, which falls within the definition of psychotropic substance. As a sequel of above, the offence being Crime No. 221 of 2023 referred above came to be registered. The present petitioner is impleded as accused no. 5 and his address is shown as resident of Pali District, Rajasthan.

4. The petitioner was already detained in Haridwar prison located in the State of Uttarakhand. During the investigation, direct involvement of the petitioner was noticed in the above crime. Based on the production remand, the petitioner was produced and shown to have been arrested on February 11, 2024, as the transit warrant was honoured by the Court at Haridwar on February 07, 2024. Based on the above, the petitioner came to be arrested and produced before the Magistrate on February 11, 2024 and was then subjected to various remand orders.

41. In Bharat Pukhraj Chaudhary, it was observed by the Division Bench :

10. The petitioner who is shown to be accused no. 5 was in the custody of Uttarakhand Police. He was arrested on February 11, 2024, before which the production warrant was prayed by the Court of Judicial Magistrate First Class, 11th Court, Bhiwandi on January 30, 2024. Said production warrant was consequentially endorsed by the Court of Additional Sessions Judge, Haridwar vide order dated February 07, 2024.

11. The General Diary Entry dated February 11, 2024, i.e. after the petitioner's custody was obtained from Haridwar jail on February 11, 2024 mentions about the communication of the reasons of arrest and his right to claim bail. However such unilateral entry does not confirm acknowledgment in writing from the accused to that effect. The remand application dated February 11, 2024 further speaks of similar mention of the communication of reasons of arrest. However, we fail to understand as to what prompted the respondents not to produce on record the written communication served on the petitioner thereby informing him about the grounds of arrest. Failure of the respondents to above effect prompts this Court to draw adverse inference against the respondents.

12. Though the learned Additional Public Prosecutor has tried to justified the claim of communication of grounds of arrest to the accused so also the reasons based on the contents of the production warrant which are issued by the Court of Judicial Magistrate First Class, 11th Court, Bhiwandi and also the production warrant granted by the Additional Sessions Court, Haridwar, there is no iota of material to infer that the petitioner at any point of time was communicated in writing about the grounds of his likely arrest or post arrest the grounds for which he was arrested. Merely because the respondents have mentioned in its record that the grounds of arrest or reasons of arrest were communicated to the petitioner or any of his blood relations, that by itself cannot be said to be in conformity with the mandate provided under Article 22(1) of the Constitution of India. In support of the aforesaid observations, reliance can be placed on the findings recorded by the Apex Court in Pankaj Biswas (supra), which are already discussed hereinabove.

42. A similar view was expressed in another Bombay decision, that is to say, Lalit Shyam Tekchandani v. State of Maharashtra and another. In Lalit Shyam Tekchandani (supra), it was observed :

20. When we specifically asked Mr. Venegavkar about whether grounds of arrest were communicated to him, when he was arrested in C.R. No. 18 of 2024, he has submitted before us that the Transfer Warrant had indicated the reasons, but we do not find any such indication, as it is nothing but a proforma.

In any case, the application for that purpose is preferred to the Court and we do not find that the copy of the same is served upon the Petitioner, so as to enable him to be aware of the grounds of his arrest. Similar procedure was followed as regards C.R. No. 20 of 2024 registered with CBD Belapur, when pursuant to a Production Warrant, he came to be arrested and produced before the Magistrate, who remanded him to police custody on the first date and subsequently remanded him to judicial custody.

21. On perusal of the papers produced before us, we have perused the Arrest/Court Surrender Form of the Petitioner in C.R. No. 18 of 2024 and C.R. No. 20 of 2024 with respective police stations and we find that it is as good as arrest in the said offence and if it is so, then definitely when he is required to be produced before the Magistrate within 24 hours of his arrest, pursuant to which remand is sought for the purpose of investigation by the Investigating Officer, he is entitled to know the grounds of his arrest and the law down by the Apex Court in Pankaj Bansal and Prabir Purkayastha (supra) with all force comes into play.

It is trite position of law that where an accused is arrested in relation to an offence registered against him, but when he is released on bail, upon the subsequent addition of offences of serious nature against him, the investigating agency cannot straightway arrest such person and it is required to obtain order of arrest and custody with respect fo sch accused from the Court, which had earlier released him on bail.

Upon such serious offence subsequently added against the accused after grant of bail, it is also open for him to move an application for bail in respect of newly added offences in the Court concerned and if this bail application for newly added offences is rejected, then the accused can very well be arrested. It is not, however, necessary that earlier bail should be cancelled by the Court in every case, before granting permission to the arrest of the accused on the basis of the newly added offence, as the Court in exercise of power under Section 437(5) as well as Section 439(2) of Cr. P.C. can direct the person who is already released on bail to be arrested and committed to custody on addition of graver offences.

43. Here, the case of the State, as expressed in the affidavit of the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar, is that on 09.02.2026, at 16:42 hours, after receiving the revised release from the learned Magistrate in Crime No. 453 of 2025, the petitioner was released in the said case, but detained under B-warrant in the other accumulated cases. In paragraph no. 12 of the said affidavit, it is said that on the next day id est 10.02.2026 at 9:15 a.m., the petitioner was sent in police custody to the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut, who had issued a B-warrant of his production in Crime No. 4 of 2026.

44. Thus, on this statement of facts, it is evident that the petitioner was released from custody by the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar on 09.02.2026 at 16:42 hours and then arrested in terms of the B-warrant. issued by the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 7, Meerut, in relation to Crime No. 4 of 2026. He was detained at Gautam Buddha Nagar for the whole night on 10.02.2026, and on the following day, sent to the learned Magistrate at 9:15 a.m. in police custody. If this position of facts were accepted, it was a fresh arrest for the petitioner, nevertheless. He had, therefore, to be communicated with the grounds of arrest, which, apparently in this case, he was not. Nothing has been produced to show before us that grounds of arrest in writing, after the petitioner's arrest in connection with the B-warrant issued by the learned Magistrate in Crime No. 4 of 2026, were furnished him, as required by Article 22(1) of the Constitution and Section 47 BNSS. The principles, therefore, laid down by the Supreme Court in Mihir Rajesh Shah and the Bombay High Court in Bharat Pukhraj Chaudhary and Lalit Shyam Tekchandani would squarely apply to vitiate the petitioner's arrest in the present crime. When the petitioner was produced before the learned Magistrate at Meerut, he was remanded to judicial custody in Crime No. 4 of 2026. The arrest itself was illegal for more than one reason. The petitioner's detention in Crime No. 4 of 2026 was, therefore, illegal.

45. This principle about the petitioner's detention being illegal on account of non-furnishing of grounds of arrest is not in derogation of the other principle that once the petitioner was no longer in custody authorised by law at the District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar, he could not be taken in custody pursuant to a B-warrant issued by the learned Magistrate at Meerut, produced before that learned Magistrate and remand to judicial custody for the case pending at Meerut. We have already dealt with this matter in moreful detail earlier in this judgment. This mention is just a matter of elucidating the distinction between the two different reasons that vitiate the petitioner's custody.

46. While the petitioner was in judicial custody at the District Jail Meerut, which, apparently, was unauthorised, a letter to the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court

No. 2, Ghaziabad for the issue of a production warrant or a B-warrant under Section 302 BNSS was addressed by a Sub-Inspector of Police posted at Police Station Crossing Republic, Ghaziabad. The Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Ghaziabad issued a production or B-warrant dated 02.05.2026 to the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Meerut, seeking production of the petitioner before him on 04.05.2026. The petitioner was produced on the aforesaid B-warrant on 04.05.2026 before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate, Court No. 2, Ghaziabad, who remanded him to 14 days' custody in Case Crime No. 59 of 2026. The question is if the petitioner was illegally arrested, and a fortiori, illegally confined in the prison at Meerut, for reasons that we have already indicated, he could not have been produced on a B-warrant from the District Jail, Meerut, where he was not in lawful custody before the Additional Chief Judicial Magistrate at Ghaziabad. Again, there is nothing to show that if there was a fresh arrest, he was informed of the grounds of arrest in writing, as required by law. In fact, since the petitioner's production before the learned Magistrate at Meerut, pursuant to the B-warrant was illegal, his ensuing detention in judicial custody at Meerut and the subsequent production, pursuant to the other B-warrant issued by the learned Magistrate at Ghaziabad and remand in Case Crime No. 59 of 2026 are all rendered illegal, in our clear opinion. This is a habeas corpus petition, and all we have to see is the legality of the petitioner's custody, in which he is detained for the time being. For determining the validity of that custody, the validity of the detenue's arrest or successive arrest has to be looked into, which we have done.

47. Though there are strong pleas of mala fides raised against the respondents by the petitioner, and we may dare say, not without facts and materials, but, it is not our province, in a habeas corpus petition, to go into those questions. This is, after all, not a criminal writ petition, seeking to quash the First Information Report or investigation or some proceedings in a crime, which can be examined also on ground of mala fides. Though we are of opinion that the petitioner's detention after 04.02.2026 is absolutely illegal, and we would direct his immediate release from custody, we do not wish to say that the petitioner cannot be validly arrested, after following the due procedure in any of the crimes registered against him, which permit arrest without warrant or on the basis of a valid warrant of arrest issued by a Court of competent jurisdiction; but certainly, not an arrest on the basis of a B-warrant issued against the petitioner, while he is in no lawful custody.

48. In the circumstances, this habeas corpus writ petition succeeds and stands allowed. The continued detention of the petitioner in Case Crime No. 4 of 2026 at District Jail, Meerut and Case Crime No. 453 of 2025 at District Jail, Ghaziabad are declared illegal. He shall be set at liberty forthwith.

49. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to the Director General of Police, Uttar Pradesh, Lucknow, the Station House Officer, Police Station Ganganagar, District Meerut, the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Gautam Buddha Nagar, the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Meerut, the Jail Superintendent, District Jail, Ghaziabad, the Commissioner of Police, Ghaziabad and the Senior Superintendent of Police, Meerut, all through the learned Chief Judicial Magistrates concerned.

Vinod Chaurasia ...Revisionist
Versus
Shri Radha Kishan Ji Maharaj Virajman Mandir ...Respondent

Issue for Consideration

Whether the proposed amendment would have the effect of introducing an altogether new factual foundation requiring fresh evidence and would, in substance, permit the revisionist to retract admissions already made in the written statement

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908- Order VI Rule 17- Learned counsel for the revisionist fairly submitted that, in view of subsequent developments, the amendment as sought may no longer survive for consideration. It has, however, been urged that the legal consequences flowing from such developments may yet require adjudication and that the revisionist be permitted to advance all such legal submissions before the court below. Learned counsel appearing for the opposite party does not dispute that pure questions of law, resting on admitted or undisputed facts and not necessitating further evidence, may be raised at any stage of the proceedings, subject to the governing statutory framework- There exists a clear distinction between the amendment of pleadings, which seeks to alter or supplement the factual basis of a party's case, and the canvassing of pure questions of law arising on the facts already borne out by the record. Rejection of an application for amendment does not, by itself, foreclose the right of a litigant to urge such legal contentions as are otherwise available in law. The trial court shall remain at liberty to examine any such contention on its own merits, provided its determination does not require an enquiry beyond the existing pleadings and evidence or occasion prejudice to the opposite party.

Held- In the facts of the present case, and particularly in view of the fair stand adopted by learned counsel for the revisionist that the amendment itself need not be pressed, no ground for interference with the order impugned is made out in exercise of revisional jurisdiction. It is, however, observed that disposal of the present revision shall not preclude either party from raising all such legal submissions as may be available to them before the court below, which shall consider and determine the same independently, strictly in accordance with law and uninfluenced by any observation contained herein.
Revision disposed of. (E-15)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

Heard Sri Ashish Kumar Singh, learned Senior Advocate along with Sri Himanshu Dubey, counsel for the revisionist and Sri Prashant Rai, learned counsel appearing for the opposite party.

2. The present revision is directed against the order dated 23.03.2026 passed by the Additional District Judge, Court No. 8, Kanpur Nagar, in Small Cause Suit No.26 of 2022, whereby Application No.80-Ga filed by the revisionist-defendant under Order VI Rule 17 read with Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, seeking amendment of the written statement, has been rejected.

3. The court below, while declining the prayer for amendment, has returned a finding that the proposed amendment would have the effect of introducing an altogether new factual foundation requiring fresh evidence and would, in substance, permit the revisionist to retract admissions already made in the written statement. Aggrieved thereby, the instant revision has been preferred.

4. The proceedings arise out of Small Cause Suit No. 26 of 2022 instituted by Radha Krishna Ji Maharaj Virajman Mandir through its alleged Sarvarakar seeking eviction of the revisionist-defendant, recovery of arrears of rent and other consequential reliefs. Upon completion of the pleadings, the suit proceeded to trial. The plaintiff filed documentary evidence as well as an affidavit in support of the claim, whereafter the suit was fixed for cross-examination of the plaintiff's witness.

5. At that stage, the revisionist moved Application No. 80-Ga under Order VI Rule 17 read with Section 151 CPC seeking amendment of the written statement. The principal basis for the proposed amendment was the pendency of Civil Suit No. 1484 of 2023, wherein disputes relating to the management of the trust and the authority of the person claiming to be the Sarvarakar were stated to be pending adjudication. On the strength of the said proceedings, the revisionist sought to introduce additional pleadings disputing the competence of the Sarvarakar to maintain the present suit and to incorporate further averments relating to the constitution and management of the trust.

6. The amendment application was opposed by the plaintiff contending that the trial had already commenced and that the proposed amendment sought to introduce an entirely new factual controversy requiring fresh evidence. It was further urged that the amendment was an attempt to withdraw or dilute admissions already contained in the written statement regarding the status of the Sarvarakar and the tenancy.

7. Upon consideration of the rival submissions, the trial court rejected the amendment application by the impugned order dated 23.03.2026 holding that the proposed amendment would alter the factual foundation of the defence, necessitate fresh evidence and permit the revisionist to resile from admissions already made in the written statement. Aggrieved thereby, the present revision has been preferred.

8. The object underlying Order VI Rule 17 CPC is to enable the court to determine the real controversy between the parties and to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. At the same time, the power of amendment is discretionary and is not to be exercised where the amendment would fundamentally alter the nature of the case, occasion irretrievable prejudice to the opposite party, or permit a litigant to resile from clear and unequivocal admissions to the detriment of the adversary. Equally, once the trial has commenced, the proviso to Order VI Rule 17 enjoins the party seeking amendment to establish that, despite due diligence, the matter sought to be introduced could not have been raised earlier.

9. The Supreme Court in Revajeetu Builders and Developers v. Narayanaswamy and Sons, has exhaustively laid down the factors governing amendment of pleadings, inter alia, whether the amendment is necessary for determining the real question in controversy, whether it introduces a new or inconsistent case, and whether it would prejudice the other side. Similarly, in Modi Spinning and Weaving Mills Co. Ltd. v. Ladha Ram & Co., it has been held that a party cannot be permitted to amend its pleadings so as to displace admissions made earlier, if such admissions have conferred a right upon the opposite party.

10. Further, the proviso to Order VI Rule 17 CPC, inserted by the Amendment Act of 2002, places an additional restriction that once the trial has commenced, no amendment shall be allowed unless the party satisfies the court that, despite due diligence, the matter sought to be introduced could not have been raised earlier. The requirement of due diligence has been emphasised in Vidyabai v. Padmalatha, wherein it has been held that the proviso is couched in mandatory terms and must be strictly complied with.

11. On the findings returned by the court below, the proposed amendment cannot be said to be a mere clarification; rather, it seeks to introduce a fresh factual foundation and to depart from admissions already made in the written statement, a course which is ordinarily impermissible under the settled principles governing amendment of pleadings.

12. During the course of hearing, learned counsel for the revisionist fairly submitted that, in view of subsequent developments, the amendment as sought may no longer survive for consideration. It has, however, been urged that the legal consequences flowing from such developments may yet require adjudication and that the revisionist be permitted to advance all such legal submissions before the court below. Learned counsel appearing for the opposite party does not dispute that pure questions of law, resting on admitted or undisputed facts and not necessitating further evidence, may be raised at any stage of the proceedings, subject to the governing statutory framework.

13. The submission merits acceptance. There exists a clear distinction between the amendment of pleadings, which seeks to alter or supplement the factual basis of a party's case, and the canvassing of pure questions of law arising on the facts already borne out by the record. Rejection of an application for amendment does not, by itself, foreclose the right of a litigant to urge such legal contentions as are otherwise available in law. The trial court shall remain at liberty to examine any such contention on its own merits, provided its determination does not require an enquiry beyond the existing pleadings and evidence or occasion prejudice to the opposite party.

14. The rejection of an application for amendment under Order VI Rule 17 CPC and the entitlement of a party to advance pure questions of law operate in distinct spheres. While the former concerns alteration of the factual foundation of the case, the latter rests upon the pleadings and material already on record. Consequently, refusal of an amendment does not, by itself, preclude a party from urging legal submissions founded on the existing pleadings, provided their adjudication does not require investigation into fresh facts or occasion prejudice to the opposite party.

15. In the facts of the present case, and particularly in view of the fair stand adopted by learned counsel for the revisionist that the amendment itself need not be pressed, no ground for interference with the order impugned is made out in exercise of revisional jurisdiction. It is, however, observed that disposal of the present revision shall not preclude either party from raising all such legal submissions as may be available to them before the court below, which shall consider and determine the same independently, strictly in accordance with law and uninfluenced by any observation contained herein.

16. Subject to the aforesaid observations, the revision stands disposed of.

Transfer Application (Civil) No. 376 of 2025

Smt. Priyanka Maheshwari ...Applicant
Versus
Vaibhav Maheshwari ...Opposite Party

Issue for Consideration

Whether the applicant has established the existence of such genuine hardship, compelling inconvenience or other exceptional circumstances as would warrant exercise of the discretionary jurisdiction of this Court under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure for transfer of the proceedings from the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Aligarh to the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Gautam Budh Nagar

Head Notes

The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Section 24- Applicant has not placed any material on record to demonstrate that attending the proceedings before the Family Court at Aligarh is rendered impracticable or that such attendance would impose a hardship of such magnitude as would effectively deprive her of an opportunity to contest the proceedings. Mere inconvenience or additional travel, howsoever relevant, cannot, in the absence of compelling circumstances, furnish a sufficient foundation for exercise of the power under Section 24 CPC- The proceedings under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and those under Section 144 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 are distinct in their nature, scope and object, and the mere pendency of such proceedings before different Courts does not, in the absence of demonstrable prejudice, likelihood of conflicting adjudications or any other compelling circumstance affecting the administration of justice, warrant their consolidation before a common forum.

Held- The grounds urged by the applicant fall short of the threshold required for invoking the discretionary jurisdiction under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The applicant has failed to demonstrate that continuance of the proceedings before the Court at Aligarh would occasion any failure of justice or cause such genuine hardship as would justify transfer. Consequently, no case for transfer is made out. Application dismissed. (E-15)

Case Arising From

Transfer application has been filed under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 seeking transfer of Case No. 595 of 2025, instituted under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, from the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Aligarh to the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Gautam Budh Nagar

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Abhishek Gupta
Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : Ajay Sengar, Gunjan Yadav

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Abhishek Gupta, learned counsel for applicant and Ms. Gunjan Yadav, learned counsel for opposite party.

2. The present transfer application has been filed under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 seeking transfer of Case No. 595 of 2025 (Vaibhav Maheshwari v. Priyanka Maheshwari), instituted under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955, from the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Aligarh to the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Gautam Budh Nagar.

3. The principal ground urged in support of the transfer application is that the applicant is presently residing in District Gautam Budh Nagar, where her minor daughter is pursuing her education. It is submitted that the applicant is the primary caregiver of the minor child and is, therefore, required to remain at Gautam Budh Nagar to attend to her educational and day-to-day needs. According to the applicant, compelling her to undertake repeated travel to Aligarh for attending the proceedings would not only cause her considerable inconvenience and financial burden but would also adversely affect the education and welfare of the minor child. It is thus contended that the balance of convenience lies in favour of transferring the proceedings to Gautam Budh Nagar, where the applicant is presently residing with the child.

4. It is further submitted that Maintenance Petition No. 98 of 2025 under Section 144 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 is already pending before the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Gautam Budh Nagar. In such circumstances, it is urged that transfer of the proceedings under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 to the same Court would facilitate a more convenient and effective adjudication of the disputes between the parties, obviate the necessity of contesting parallel proceedings before different courts, avoid multiplicity of litigation, reduce unnecessary expenditure and hardship, and subserve the ends of justice.

5. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the opposite party, placing reliance upon the averments contained in the counter affidavit, submits that both the applicant's parental home and her maternal home are situated in District Aligarh. It is contended that the prayer for transfer of the proceedings to District Gautam Budh Nagar has been advanced solely with a view to protract and delay the adjudication of the petition instituted under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955.

6. It is further submitted that District Aligarh is a well-established educational centre and that the mere fact that the applicant has chosen to have her daughter educated in Gautam Budh Nagar cannot, by itself, constitute a sufficient or compelling ground for transfer. According to the opposite party, the applicant's decision to reside at Gautam Budh Nagar for the purpose of her daughter's education is a matter of personal choice and cannot be permitted to dictate the forum of adjudication of the matrimonial proceedings.

7. Proceeding further, learned counsel submits that the petition under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 has been instituted with the bona fide object of seeking restitution of conjugal rights and restoration of the matrimonial relationship by bringing the applicant and the minor daughter back to the matrimonial home. It is urged that, on account of the pendency of the present transfer application and the interim protection granted by this Court, the proceedings before the Family Court have remained stalled, thereby frustrating the very object of the petition.

8. Reliance has also been placed upon the decision of this Court in Anjana Rana v. Navin Singh, to contend that the jurisdiction under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure is discretionary in nature and is required to be exercised sparingly, with great care, caution and circumspection. It is submitted that transfer of matrimonial proceedings cannot be ordered merely on the basis of the convenience or preference of one of the parties. Before directing transfer, the Court must be satisfied that the applicant has established genuine hardship, grave inconvenience or other exceptional circumstances warranting such transfer in the interest of justice. Mere inconvenience, unsupported by cogent material demonstrating that refusal of transfer would result in failure of justice, cannot by itself justify exercise of the power under Section 24 CPC. It is further submitted that while the doctrine of balance of convenience is undoubtedly a relevant consideration, the Court is required to balance the convenience of both parties, the convenience of witnesses, the availability of evidence and the suitability of the forum, while also bearing in mind that the plaintiff, being dominus litis, is ordinarily entitled to choose the forum for institution of the proceedings. It is, therefore, contended that, in the absence of any compelling circumstance warranting interference, the forum lawfully chosen by the opposite party deserves due deference and the transfer application is liable to be dismissed.

9. In the backdrop of the rival submissions, the question which falls for consideration is whether the applicant has established the existence of such genuine hardship, compelling inconvenience or other exceptional circumstances as would warrant exercise of the discretionary jurisdiction of this Court under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure for transfer of the proceedings from the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Aligarh to the Court of the Principal Judge, Family Court, Gautam Budh Nagar.

10. Having bestowed anxious consideration to the rival submissions and upon an overall appraisal of the facts and circumstances of the case, this Court proceeds to examine whether the applicant has been able to establish the existence of such genuine hardship, compelling inconvenience or other exceptional circumstances as would warrant exercise of the discretionary jurisdiction under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

11. The power of transfer under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure is intended to advance the ends of justice and not to enable a litigant to secure a forum of personal convenience. Consequently, the burden lies upon the applicant to establish, by cogent and convincing material, that continuance of the proceedings before the Court in which they have been instituted would occasion genuine hardship or result in failure of justice.

12. In the present case, the principal ground urged by the applicant is that she is presently residing at Gautam Budh Nagar on account of the schooling of her minor daughter. While this Court is not unmindful of the paramount importance of a child's welfare and the responsibilities cast upon a parent in ensuring her education and upbringing, such a circumstance, by itself, cannot be elevated into a rule of universal application so as to justify transfer of matrimonial proceedings in every case where a party chooses to reside at a place different from the forum of institution. Though the convenience of the wife and the welfare of a minor child are undoubtedly relevant considerations in matrimonial disputes, they cannot be treated as inflexible or overriding considerations divorced from the facts of the individual case. The decisive test is whether refusal of transfer is likely to occasion a failure of justice.

13. The applicant has not placed any material on record to demonstrate that attending the proceedings before the Family Court at Aligarh is rendered impracticable or that such attendance would impose a hardship of such magnitude as would effectively deprive her of an opportunity to contest the proceedings. Mere inconvenience or additional travel, howsoever relevant, cannot, in the absence of compelling circumstances, furnish a sufficient foundation for exercise of the power under Section 24 CPC.

14. Equally, the mere pendency of Maintenance Petition No. 98 of 2025 under Section 144 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 before the Family Court at Gautam Budh Nagar does not, by itself, constitute a compelling ground for transfer of the proceedings. Though avoidance of multiplicity of litigation is a relevant consideration while exercising jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC, it is neither conclusive nor determinative. The proceedings under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and those under Section 144 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 are distinct in their nature, scope and object, and the mere pendency of such proceedings before different Courts does not, in the absence of demonstrable prejudice, likelihood of conflicting adjudications or any other compelling circumstance affecting the administration of justice, warrant their consolidation before a common forum. No material has been placed on record to establish that continuation of the proceedings before different Courts would occasion any failure of justice or otherwise justify displacement of the forum lawfully chosen by the opposite party.

15. The legal position governing the exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC may be succinctly stated thus. The jurisdiction under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure is discretionary in nature and is required to be exercised sparingly, with circumspection and only where the ends of justice demonstrably so require. The provision is not intended to facilitate forum shopping or to permit a litigant to seek transfer merely because another forum may be comparatively more convenient. While the convenience of the wife, the welfare of a minor child and the pendency of connected proceedings are undoubtedly relevant considerations in matrimonial disputes, none of these factors, either individually or collectively, constitutes an inflexible rule mandating transfer. The Court is required to undertake a holistic assessment of all relevant circumstances, including the convenience of both parties, the nature of the proceedings, the availability of evidence, the stage of the litigation and the likelihood of prejudice being caused by refusal of transfer. Equally, due weight must be accorded to the right of the plaintiff, as dominus litis, to prosecute proceedings before a forum otherwise competent in law. Unless the applicant establishes that continuance of the proceedings before the existing forum would occasion genuine hardship or result in denial of a fair and effective opportunity to prosecute or defend the case, the forum lawfully chosen by the plaintiff ought not to be disturbed as a matter of routine.

16. Tested on the touchstone of the aforesaid principles, this Court finds that the grounds urged by the applicant do not satisfy the threshold for invoking the discretionary jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC. The applicant has failed to discharge the burden of establishing that continuance of the proceedings before the Family Court at Aligarh would occasion such genuine hardship or compelling inconvenience as would effectively deprive her of a fair and effective opportunity to contest the proceedings or otherwise result in failure of justice. The circumstances relied upon by the applicant, namely, the schooling of the minor daughter at Gautam Budh Nagar and the pendency of maintenance proceedings before the Family Court at Gautam Budh Nagar, though relevant considerations, do not, in the facts of the present case, outweigh the opposite party's right to prosecute the proceedings before the forum lawfully chosen by him. On the contrary, the proceedings instituted under Section 9 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 have remained stalled on account of the pendency of the present transfer application and the interim protection operating therein. The balance of convenience, viewed holistically, does not tilt so decisively in favour of the applicant as to justify transfer of the proceedings.

17. For all the aforesaid reasons, this Court finds that the grounds urged by the applicant fall short of the threshold required for invoking the discretionary jurisdiction under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure. The applicant has failed to demonstrate that continuance of the proceedings before the Court at Aligarh would occasion any failure of justice or cause such genuine hardship as would justify transfer. Consequently, no case for transfer is made out.

18. The transfer application is, accordingly, dismissed. The interim order, if any, stands vacated. The Principal Judge, Family Court, Aligarh shall proceed with the proceedings expeditiously and endeavour to conclude the same in accordance with law, without being influenced by any observation contained in this order, which is confined exclusively to the adjudication of the present transfer application.

Matters Under Article 227 No. 8728 of 2026

Arif Khan ...Petitioner(s)
Versus
Smt. Roshan Jahan ...Respondent(s)

Issue for Consideration

Whether, upon a true construction of Section 39 of the U.P Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 read with the relevant provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870, a memorandum of appeal preferred under Section 35 of the Act is required to be valued with reference to the subject matter in dispute in appeal, including the amount awarded towards accrued or ascertainable mesne profits, or whether the court fee payable on such memorandum of appeal is confined to the court fee paid on the original application instituted before the Rent Authority.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021-Section 35 & 39; The Court Fees Act, 1870- Sections- 2(4), 7 & 11; The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Section 2(12)- Decree under challenge fastens upon the petitioner an existing liability towards arrears of rent and also a liability towards mesne profits, which, to the extent accrued or capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment on the date of presentation of the appeal, formed part of the monetary burden sought to be displaced. That liability consequently constituted part of the subject-matter in dispute before the Rent Tribunal and was liable to be taken into account for purposes of valuation of the memorandum of appeal.

Held- Where an appellant challenges a composite decree passed by the Rent Authority directing eviction together with recovery of arrears of rent and payment of mesne profits, the memorandum of appeal under Section 35 of the Act, 2021 is liable to be valued with reference to the subject-matter in dispute in appeal. To the extent the decree embodies an existing liability towards mesne profits which has accrued or become capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment on the date of presentation of the appeal, such liability forms part of the decretal burden sought to be displaced and is liable to be taken into account in computing the court fee payable on the memorandum of appeal.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

Heard Sri Ajay Kumar Singh, learned Senior Counsel assisted by Sri Tejas Singh, for the petitioner and Sri Ashish Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel appearing for the respondent. Since the controversy involves the interpretation of the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 and the Court Fees Act, 1870, Sri Kartikeya Saran, learned Additional Advocate General, along with Sri Manoj Kumar Singh, learned Chief Standing Counsel, appearing for the State of Uttar Pradesh has also been heard to assist the Court on issues of statutory interpretation arising in the present petition.

Facts Giving Rise to the Petition

2. The present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is directed against the order dated 22.05.2026 passed by the Rent Tribunal, Varanasi in Misc. Case No.322 of 2026, whereby the Tribunal has directed the petitioner-appellant to deposit additional court fee on the entire decretal amount, including the amount awarded towards mesne profits, as a condition for continuation of the appeal preferred under Section 35 of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act, 2021").

3. The controversy in the present petition centres upon the true construction of Section 39 of the Act, 2021 and its interplay with the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870. The principal question requiring consideration is whether a memorandum of appeal preferred under Section 35 of the Act against a composite decree passed by the Rent Authority is liable to be valued on the entire decretal liability forming the subject matter of the appeal, including the amount awarded towards mesne profits, or whether the court fee payable on such appeal remains confined to the court fee paid on the original application instituted before the Rent Authority.

4. The respondent-landlady instituted Rent Case No. 4309 of 2024, Smt. Roshan Jahan v. Arif Khan, before the Rent Authority under Section 21 of the Act, 2021 seeking eviction of the petitioner from three adjoining shops situated at premises No. CK-47/23, Sarai Harha, Ward

Chowk, Varanasi, together with recovery of arrears of rent and mesne profits. The proceedings were initiated by presentation of an application in the prescribed Form-7.

5. The petitioner contested the proceedings by filing objections supported by affidavit, to which the respondent filed a rejoinder. Upon consideration of the pleadings and the material brought on record, the Rent Authority, by its order dated 19.02.2026, allowed the application, directed the petitioner to vacate the premises within one month and further held him liable to pay arrears of rent together with mesne profits at the rate of Rs.2,000/- per day besides consequential monetary liabilities.

6. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioner preferred Misc. Case No. 322 of 2026 before the Rent Tribunal under Section 35 of the Act, 2021. Along with the memorandum of appeal, the petitioner deposited a sum of Rs.7,00,000/-, asserting that the deposit satisfied the requirement of pre-deposit contained in the proviso to Section 35 of the Act, 2021. It is also the petitioner's case that court fee equivalent to that paid before the Rent Authority was affixed on the memorandum of appeal in compliance with Section 39 of the Act, 2021.

7. During the pendency of the appeal, the respondent-landlady filed objection/application (Paper No. 13-Ga) raising a preliminary objection that the memorandum of appeal suffered from deficiency in court fee, inasmuch as court fee had not been paid on the entire decretal amount including the amount awarded towards mesne profits. The petitioner filed objections controverting the said plea.

8. By the impugned order dated 22.05.2026, the Rent Tribunal upheld the objection to the extent of holding that the memorandum of appeal suffered from deficiency in court fee and consequently directed the petitioner to deposit additional court fee on the entire decretal amount, including the amount awarded towards mesne profits, on or before 30.05.2026. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioner has invoked the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution.

Submissions on behalf of the Petitioner

9. Assailing the impugned order, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the Rent Tribunal has committed a patent error of jurisdiction in directing payment of additional court fee on the amount awarded towards mesne profits as a condition for continuation of the appeal. According to him, the direction proceeds on an erroneous construction of Section 39 of the Act, 2021 and is contrary to the statutory scheme governing the levy and computation of court fee under the Act.

10. It is submitted that the petitioner has fully complied with every statutory requirement prescribed for maintaining the appeal. Besides depositing more than fifty per cent of the decretal amount in compliance with the proviso to Section 35 of the Act, 2021, the petitioner also affixed court fee amounting to Rs.26,324/-, being the same court fee as had been paid by the respondent-landlady while instituting the application before the Rent Authority under Section 21 of the Act.

11. Elaborating the submission, learned counsel contends that Section 39 constitutes a complete code governing the levy and computation of court fee in proceedings under the Act, 2021. Inviting attention to sub-sections (1) and (2) thereof, he submits that although the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870 have been made applicable to proceedings under the Act, the legislature has simultaneously created a statutory fiction by providing that, for the purposes of computation of court fee, both an application before the Rent Authority and a memorandum of appeal before the Rent Tribunal shall be deemed to be suits between the landlord and the tenant. It is argued that once the statute places both proceedings on the same footing, the court fee payable on the memorandum of appeal cannot exceed the court fee payable on the original application. According to the petitioner, therefore, payment of court fee identical to that paid before the Rent Authority constitutes complete compliance with Section 39.

12. Learned counsel further submits that the expression "court-fees" occurring in Section 39 of the Act, 2021 is to be construed in the light of the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870. According to him, the claim relating to mesne profits does not constitute a claim for a fixed or ascertained sum so as to attract ad valorem court fee payable on an ordinary money claim. It is contended that mesne profits, by their very nature, remain uncertain and incapable of precise valuation until finally determined in accordance with law and, therefore, do not require separate court fee on the memorandum of appeal.

13. Learned counsel further submits that the Tribunal has failed to appreciate the nature of the decree passed by the Rent Authority. According to learned counsel, while passing the decree, the Rent Authority directed that court fee in respect of the mesne profits awarded would be realised from the respondent-landlady at the stage of execution. It is, therefore, submitted that the petitioner could not have been required to pay court fee in appeal on a component in respect whereof the respondent herself had not paid court fee at the institution of the proceedings.

14. Learned counsel further contends that the authorities relied upon by the respondent, particularly those arising out of suits for rendition of accounts, are distinguishable on facts and in law. It is submitted that proceedings before the Rent Authority under the Act, 2021 are summary in nature and cannot be equated with ordinary civil suits for rendition of accounts, where the liability is determined upon an entirely different statutory footing.

15. It is next submitted that a consistent line of judicial authority recognises that future or unascertained mesne profits do not ordinarily attract separate court fee at the stage of filing of an appeal unless the correctness or quantum thereof is specifically and independently put in issue. Placing reliance upon the decisions in State of Maharashtra v. Mishrilal Tarachand Lodha, Shivaji v. Deoji and Ratnamma v. Karthiyani Pillai, learned counsel contends that the direction requiring payment of additional court fee on the mesne profits component is contrary to the legal position emerging from the aforesaid authorities.

16. Learned counsel also submits that Section 2(4) of the Court Fees Act, 1870, which defines the expression "suit" to include a first and second appeal from a decree in a suit, supports the contention that the valuation adopted at the stage of institution cannot be altered merely because the matter has reached the appellate stage.

17. It is further submitted that the Tribunal has unnecessarily invoked Section 42 of the Act, 2021 despite there being no inconsistency requiring resort to the overriding provision. According to learned counsel, the issue is squarely governed by Section 39 itself, leaving no occasion for invoking Section 42. It is also argued that reliance placed upon the decision in Alok Kumar Jain v. Indra Bhushan Sawhney is misplaced, as the said decision did not arise from proceedings involving eviction, arrears of rent and mesne profits under Section 21 of the Act, 2021 and, therefore, has no application to the controversy involved in the present case.

18. On the aforesaid premises, learned counsel submits that the impugned order suffers from manifest illegality and jurisdictional error warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. It is, accordingly, prayed that the impugned order dated 22.05.2026 be set aside and the Rent Tribunal be directed to proceed with the appeal without insisting upon payment of any additional court fee.

Submissions on behalf of the Respondent

19. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-landlady supports the impugned order and submits that the Rent Tribunal has committed no illegality in directing the petitioner to make good the deficiency in court fee before proceeding with the appeal. According to him, the impugned order is in complete accord with the scheme of the Act, 2021 and the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870.

20. It is submitted that the order dated 19.02.2026 passed by the Rent Authority is a composite decree directing eviction of the petitioner from the tenanted premises besides payment of arrears of rent and mesne profits. Since the petitioner has challenged the decree in its entirety, including the monetary liability created thereunder, the memorandum of appeal is necessarily required to be valued on the entire decretal amount constituting the subject matter in dispute. Consequently, court fee is payable on the whole of the liability sought to be displaced and not merely on the amount on which court fee had been paid at the stage of institution of the original proceedings.

21. Learned counsel further submits that compliance with the proviso to Section 35 of the Act, 2021 by depositing fifty per cent of the decretal amount operates in a field altogether different from the obligation to pay proper court fee under Section 39. Satisfaction of the condition relating to statutory pre-deposit does not dispense with, or dilute, the independent requirement of affixing appropriate court fee on the memorandum of appeal.

22. Elaborating his submissions on Section 39, learned counsel contends that sub-section (1) expressly attracts the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870, while sub-section (2) creates a statutory fiction by treating a memorandum of appeal as a suit between the landlord and the tenant for the purposes of computation of court fee. It is, therefore, submitted that once the Court Fees Act stands attracted, court fee has necessarily to be computed on the valuation of the subject matter in dispute in appeal. According to him, the petitioner has incorrectly proceeded on the assumption that the court fee payable in appeal must invariably be identical to that paid on the original application before the Rent Authority, an interpretation which finds no support from the statutory scheme.

23. It is further contended that the liability of a plaintiff to pay court fee at the institution of the proceedings and that of a defendant preferring an appeal operate in distinct spheres. While the former is determined with reference to the reliefs claimed in the original proceedings, the latter is governed by the extent of the decree sought to be displaced in appeal. Merely because Section 2 of the Court Fees Act defines the expression "suit" to include a first and second appeal from a decree, it does not follow that the valuation adopted at the institution stage remains immutable throughout the appellate process. On the contrary, the Court Fees Act contemplates valuation with reference to the nature and extent of the relief claimed in appeal.

24. Learned counsel next submits that the petitioner's reliance upon the line of authorities dealing with future or unascertained mesne profits is wholly misplaced. According to him, those decisions were rendered in an entirely different factual and legal context. In the present case, the Rent Authority has not merely directed an enquiry into future mesne profits but has already recorded a finding that the petitioner's occupation had become unauthorised and has awarded mesne profits as part of the decree. Consequently, the liability no longer remains contingent or indeterminate but stands incorporated into the decretal liability itself. It is submitted that the decision in Mishrilal Tarachand Lodha does not lay down that decreed mesne profits can never constitute the subject matter of an appeal or that the valuation of an appeal must invariably remain identical to that of the original proceedings. Likewise, the decisions in Shivaji v. Deoji and Ratnamma v. Karthiyani Pillai are stated to have been rendered in the context of future mesne profits and cannot be mechanically extended to a case where the monetary liability already stands quantified under the decree.

25. Proceeding further, learned counsel submits that once mesne profits stand quantified and form part of the decree, they cease to remain a fluctuating or unascertained claim and become an integral component of the monetary relief challenged in appeal. Reliance is placed upon In re Kudappa Subbamma to contend that once the rate, period and amount of mesne profits are determined by the court, the liability crystallises into an ascertained monetary obligation attracting ad valorem court fee in appeal. Reliance is also placed upon the Full Bench decision of this Court in Ragho Prasad v. B. Pratap Narain Agrawal to submit that an appeal against a decree imposing an ascertained monetary liability must be valued according to the amount sought to be displaced and not by reference to the valuation adopted in the original proceedings. Learned counsel also relies upon the decision of this Court in Alok Kumar Jain to contend that Sections 39 and 42 of the Act, 2021 constitute a self-contained scheme governing court fee under the special enactment.

26. Lastly, it is submitted that the petitioner's contention regarding the alleged absence of power under the Act, 2021 to award arrears of rent or mesne profits is wholly extraneous to the controversy involved in the present proceedings. The issue before this Court is confined to the court fee payable on the memorandum of appeal against the decree passed by the Rent Authority. So long as the decree contains a quantified monetary award and the petitioner seeks to assail that liability in appeal, the memorandum of appeal must bear court fee in accordance with law. It is, therefore, submitted that the Rent Tribunal rightly directed the petitioner to make good the deficiency in court fee and, instead of rejecting the appeal, adopted a liberal approach by granting an opportunity to remove the defect. The impugned order, therefore, neither suffers from any jurisdictional error nor occasions any failure of justice warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

Submissions on behalf of the State

27. Learned Additional Advocate General appearing for the State supports the impugned order and submits that the controversy in the present case turns upon the proper interpretation of Section 39 of the Act, 2021 read with the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870. It is submitted that Section 39 incorporates the general principles governing levy of court fee under the Court Fees Act while simultaneously introducing a special statutory mechanism for proceedings before the Rent Authority or the Rent Tribunal. According to him, the provision must be construed in a manner which gives effect both to the statutory fiction created under sub-section (2) and to the settled principles regulating valuation of appeals.

28. Learned Additional Advocate General submits that the levy of court fee is not merely a fiscal measure intended to augment public revenue. It also serves the legislative purpose of securing partial recovery of the cost of administration of civil justice, discouraging frivolous litigation and maintaining procedural discipline in the institution and prosecution of legal proceedings. The liability to pay court fee on an appeal is, therefore, an independent statutory obligation and cannot be treated as irrevocably linked to, or controlled by, the court fee payable at the stage of institution of the original proceedings.

29. Elaborating his submissions, learned Additional Advocate General contends that the incidence of court fee has to be determined with reference to the statutory provisions governing the appeal itself and not with reference to whether the successful party before the Rent Authority had or had not paid court fee on every component of the relief granted. According to him, the question whether the respondent-landlady was required to pay additional court fee at any subsequent stage is wholly distinct from the obligation of the petitioner, as an appellant, to value his memorandum of appeal in accordance with law.

30. It is further submitted that mesne profits, as defined under Section 2(12) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, constitute compensation payable for wrongful possession of immovable property. Although a claim for mesne profits may initially remain uncertain or incapable of precise valuation at the stage of institution of proceedings, the legal position materially changes once the adjudicating authority determines the rate or quantifies the liability. To the extent such liability has accrued or become capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment by the date of presentation of the appeal, it ceases to remain contingent and becomes part of the decretal liability sought to be displaced.

31. In support of the aforesaid submissions, reliance has been placed upon Mishrilal Tarachand Lodha to contend that the valuation of an appeal depends upon the extent of the liability actually brought into dispute by the appellant and that future interest, pendente lite interest or costs ordinarily do not attract separate court fee unless independently challenged. Reliance has also been placed upon Ratnamma v. Karthiyani Pillai to submit that where the decree for mesne profits is specifically assailed, the accrued or ascertainable mesne profits forming part of the decretal liability constitute part of the subject matter in dispute in appeal, whereas no separate court fee is payable in respect of mesne profits which have neither crystallised nor been brought into challenge.

32. Learned Additional Advocate General further submits that none of the authorities relied upon by the petitioner lays down an absolute proposition that mesne profits can never attract court fee in appeal. According to him, those decisions merely recognise that future or unascertained mesne profits, which remain incapable of valuation at the relevant stage, do not ordinarily require immediate payment of court fee. They do not govern a case where the decree itself has already created an accrued or ascertainable monetary liability which forms an integral part of the subject matter challenged in appeal.

33. Developing the aforesaid submission, it is contended that the expression "subject matter in dispute in appeal", as understood under the Court Fees Act, has consistently been interpreted to mean the extent of the detriment or liability from which the appellant seeks relief and not the valuation adopted at the stage of institution of the original proceedings. Consequently, where the appellant seeks to avoid the entire decretal liability created by the impugned decree, the valuation of the appeal must necessarily extend to the whole of that liability, including the component representing accrued or ascertainable mesne profits.

34. According to the learned learned Additional Advocate General acceptance of the petitioner's interpretation would lead to anomalous consequences. According to him, an appellant would then be entitled to assail a decree imposing substantial monetary liability while paying court fee only on the valuation adopted at the institution of the proceedings, notwithstanding that the decree has materially altered the legal and financial obligations of the parties. Such a construction, it is submitted, would be inconsistent with both the scheme of the Court Fees Act, 1870 and the legislative intent underlying Section 39 of the Act, 2021.

35. It is, accordingly, submitted that the petitioner having challenged the composite decree in its entirety, including the liability towards mesne profits, the Rent Tribunal rightly directed payment of court fee on the entire decretal amount to the extent it constituted the subject matter of challenge. The impugned order, therefore, warrants no interference in exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

Question Arising for Consideration

36. In the backdrop of the rival submissions and the statutory framework noticed hereinafter, the question arising for consideration is that whether, upon a true construction of Section 39 of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 read with the relevant provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870, a memorandum of appeal preferred under Section 35 of the Act is required to be valued with reference to the subject matter in dispute in appeal, including the amount awarded towards accrued or ascertainable mesne profits, or whether the court fee payable on such memorandum of appeal is confined to the court fee paid on the original application instituted before the Rent Authority.

Relevant Statutory Framework

37. Since the controversy centres upon the construction Sections 35 and 39 of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, read in conjunction with the relevant provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870, it is apposite to notice the relevant provisions before examining the rival submissions and the question arising for consideration.

38. Section 35 of the Act, 2021, which provides for an appeal to the Rent Tribunal, reads as follows:

"35. Appeal to Rent Tribunal. - (1) Any person aggrieved by an order passed by the Rent Authority may prefer an appeal along with a certified copy of such order to the Rent Tribunal within the local limits of which the premises is situated, within a period of thirty days from the date of that order:*

Provided that no appeal shall lie unless the appellant pre-deposits fifty percent of the entire payable amount under the impugned order of the Rent Authority.

Section 39 of the Act, 2021, which constitutes the principal provision governing court fees under the Act and lies at the centre of the present controversy, provides:

"39. Court-fees. (1) The provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870 (Act No. 7 of 1870) shall apply in respect of applications or appeals to be presented before the Rent Authority or Rent Tribunal, as the case may be.

(2) For the purposes of computation of court fees, the application for recovery of possession made to the Rent Authority and the memorandum of appeal presented before the Rent Tribunal shall be deemed to be a suit between the landlord and the tenant.

(3) The court fees for the application filed before the Rent Authority shall be same as that of an interlocutory application presented in a Civil Court."

Section 42 of the Act, 2021, which confers overriding effect upon the provisions of the Act, reads as follows:

"42. Act to override other laws. The provisions of this Act shall have effect notwithstanding anything inconsistent therewith contained in any other law of the State of Uttar Pradesh for the time being in force."*

39. Section 7 of the Court Fees Act, 1870, read with Article 1 of Schedule I thereof, provides for levy of ad valorem court fee on a memorandum of appeal according to the value of the subject matter in dispute in appeal. Since the controversy also concerns the treatment of mesne profits for the purposes of court fee, it is also apposite to notice Section 11 of the Court Fees Act, 1870, which contemplates payment of additional court fee where mesne profits ultimately decreed exceed the amount on which court fee has previously been paid, thereby recognising the distinction between liability capable of valuation at the institution stage and liability which crystallises only upon adjudication.

40. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also placed reliance upon Section 2(4) of the Court Fees Act, 1870, which defines the expression "suit" to include a first and second appeal from a decree in a suit. The true scope of the inclusive definition and its bearing upon the deeming fiction enacted under Section 39(2) of the Act, 2021 shall be considered in the course of the discussion.

41. Since one of the principal questions arising in the present case concerns the liability to pay court fee on the amount awarded towards mesne profits, reference may also be made to the statutory definition contained in Section 2(12) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, which reads as follows:

"2(12) 'mesne profits' of property means those profits which the person in wrongful possession of such property actually received or might with ordinary diligence have received therefrom, together with interest on such profits, but shall not include profits due to improvements made by the person in wrongful possession."

42. Order XX Rule 12 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, which empowers the Court to pass a decree for past mesne profits and to direct an enquiry into future mesne profits until delivery of possession, also bears upon the distinction between accrued and future mesne profits which arises for consideration in the present case.

Discussion and Analysis

43. The controversy turns upon the true construction of Section 39 of the U.P. Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 and, in particular, the scope of the statutory fiction engrafted in sub-section (2) thereof. The rival submissions reveal that the dispute does not merely concern the incidence of court fee in the present case but raises a broader question touching the principles governing valuation of a memorandum of appeal preferred under Section 35 of the Act. The issue, therefore, falls to be examined in the light of the scheme of the Act, 2021, the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870 and the settled principles governing appellate valuation.

44. Section 39 is the principal provision governing the levy and computation of court fee under the Act, 2021. Sub-section (1) makes the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870 applicable to applications or appeals presented before the Rent Authority or the Rent Tribunal. The application of the Court Fees Act, however, is not left at large. Sub-sections (2) and (3) prescribe distinct modes of computation for different classes of proceedings, thereby demonstrating that while the legislature intended to adopt the general framework of the Court Fees Act, it simultaneously modified its operation to suit the special statutory scheme governing landlord-tenant disputes under the Act, 2021.

45. Section 39(2) provides that, for the purposes of computation of court fee, an application for recovery of possession before the Rent Authority and a memorandum of appeal before the Rent Tribunal shall be deemed to be suits between the landlord and the tenant. The statutory fiction is of limited but significant import. It is created solely for identifying the legal regime governing the computation of court fee. It neither obliterates the distinction between original and appellate proceedings nor enacts that the court fee payable on a memorandum of appeal must invariably remain identical to that paid on the original application. Once the fiction attracts the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870, the computation of court fee necessarily falls to be determined in accordance with the principles governing valuation under that enactment.

46. It is equally well settled that a statutory fiction must be carried to its logical conclusion, but only within the field for which it has been created. The fiction embodied in Section 39(2) cannot be enlarged so as to assimilate an appeal with the original proceedings for every purpose connected with court fee. Its function is exhausted once the memorandum of appeal is brought within the fold of the Court Fees Act. Thereafter, the valuation of the appeal must necessarily be governed by the provisions and principles of that Act applicable to appellate proceedings.

47. At this stage, it is necessary to distinguish between the incidence of court fee and the measure of its computation. The incidence of court fee answers the anterior question whether a particular proceeding attracts liability to court fee at all. The measure of court fee concerns the manner in which that liability is quantified. Section 39(1) determines the former by making the provisions of the Court Fees Act applicable to applications and appeals under the Act, 2021. Section 39(2) merely prescribes the juridical basis upon which such computation is to proceed by treating specified proceedings as suits between landlord and tenant. Once the liability to pay court fee is attracted, its quantification must necessarily follow the valuation principles embodied in the Court Fees Act.

48. Section 39, therefore, cannot be construed as a self-contained code prescribing an independent method of valuation of appeals divorced from the Court Fees Act. The provision incorporates the Court Fees Act while engrafting a limited statutory fiction to facilitate its application to proceedings before the Rent Authority or the Rent Tribunal. Any construction which treats the court fee payable on every memorandum of appeal as being irrevocably tied to the court fee paid on the original application would not only travel beyond the express language of Section 39 but would also render otiose the settled principles governing appellate valuation under the Court Fees Act.

49. Once the applicability of the Court Fees Act is accepted, the enquiry necessarily shifts to the principles governing valuation of appeals under that enactment. It is a settled principle that the valuation of a memorandum of appeal is determined not by the valuation adopted at the institution of the original proceedings but by the value of the subject-matter in dispute in appeal. The focus of the appellate court is no longer the original claim as framed by the plaintiff but the decree passed by the adjudicating authority and the extent to which the appellant seeks to have that decree reversed, varied or set aside.

50. The distinction between the liability of a plaintiff to pay court fee and that of a defendant preferring an appeal is fundamental. A plaintiff values the proceedings with reference to the relief claimed at the institution stage. A defendant, however, approaches the appellate court only after the rights and liabilities of the parties have crystallised under the decree. His liability to pay court fee is, therefore, determined by the extent of the decree from which he seeks relief and not by the court fee paid by the plaintiff at the institution stage. Consequently, the court fee paid on the original application before the Rent Authority cannot, by itself, furnish the measure of the court fee payable on the memorandum of appeal.

51. The position becomes more apparent when the decree under challenge is composite in nature. Where a decree grants several distinct reliefs, the valuation of the appeal depends upon the extent to which those reliefs are brought under challenge. If the appellant assails the decree in its entirety, the subject-matter in dispute ordinarily extends to the whole of the decretal liability. Conversely, where the challenge is confined to a severable part of the decree, the valuation correspondingly stands restricted to that part alone.

52. The same principle applies to monetary decrees. An unascertained or contingent claim stands upon a different footing from a liability which has crystallised into a definite decretal obligation. So long as the liability remains uncertain and incapable of present ascertainment, different considerations may arise regarding its valuation. Once, however, the adjudicating authority determines the liability or renders it capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment, the appellant who seeks to avoid that liability necessarily brings that monetary obligation within the subject-matter of the appeal.

53. The principle emerging from the aforesaid discussion is that Section 39(2) merely attracts the settled principles governing appellate valuation under the Court Fees Act; it does not displace them. The question, therefore, is what is comprehended within the expression "subject-matter in dispute in appeal" occurring in the Court Fees Act and whether the amount awarded towards mesne profits forms part of that subject-matter in the facts of the present case. The answer to that question assumes decisive significance in the present case, for the controversy ultimately turns not upon the nature of the original application before the Rent Authority but the extent of the decretal liability which the petitioner seeks to displace before the Rent Tribunal.

54. The expression "subject-matter in dispute in appeal" has received authoritative exposition from the Supreme Court in State of Maharashtra v. Mishrilal Tarachand Lodha. The controversy before the Supreme Court arose in the context of the liability to pay court fee on the amount awarded towards pendente lite interest. While resolving that issue, the Court explained that the valuation of an appeal is determined by the matters which are actually brought in challenge before the appellate court and require adjudication. Since the appellant had not assailed the award of pendente lite interest, the Supreme Court held that such interest did not form part of the subject-matter in dispute in appeal.

55. The decision thus emphasises that the expression "subject-matter in dispute in appeal" refers to the right, liability or relief which the appellant seeks to have adjudicated upon by the appellate court. The enquiry is directed to the real controversy arising from the memorandum of appeal and not to every component of the decree irrespective of whether it has been questioned. The ratio of the decision, therefore, is that the valuation of an appeal depends upon the extent of the decree or liability actually brought under challenge and requiring determination by the appellate court.

56. The decision in Mishrilal Tarachand Lodha, however, cannot be understood divorced from the controversy which arose for determination therein. The Supreme Court was concerned with a discretionary award of pendente lite interest under Section 34 of the Code of Civil Procedure which had not been independently challenged before the appellate court. The judgment, therefore, does not lay down any general proposition that every monetary component incorporated in a decree necessarily falls outside the subject-matter in dispute in appeal. Equally, it does not support the broader submission advanced by the petitioner that the valuation adopted at the institution of the proceedings must invariably govern the valuation of the appeal irrespective of the decree actually brought under challenge.

57. Properly understood, the principle emerging from Mishrilal Tarachand Lodha is that the valuation of an appeal depends upon the extent of the decree or liability which the appellant seeks to have adjudicated upon before the appellate court. A monetary component of the decree which is not brought in challenge does not ordinarily form part of the subject-matter in dispute. Conversely, where the appellant seeks to avoid a quantified monetary liability embodied in the decree, that liability ordinarily constitutes part of the subject-matter in dispute in appeal unless excluded by some recognised principle of law.

58. It is in the application of these principles that the controversy regarding mesne profits arises. The real question is not whether every award of mesne profits automatically attracts court fee in appeal, nor whether the valuation adopted in the original proceedings necessarily governs the memorandum of appeal. The true enquiry is whether the liability towards mesne profits embodied in the decree under challenge had, as on the date of presentation of the appeal, remained contingent and incapable of valuation or had crystallised into an existing monetary liability forming part of the decretal burden from which the appellant seeks relief. It is to that distinction that the Court must now turn.

59. The law has consistently recognised a distinction between future mesne profits, which remain contingent and incapable of present ascertainment, and mesne profits which have already accrued or become capable of precise computation. Future mesne profits represent compensation for continued wrongful occupation after institution of the proceedings and necessarily depend upon the uncertain period during which such occupation continues. Their duration, and consequently the amount payable, cannot ordinarily be determined at the institution of the proceedings. Accrued mesne profits, however, stand upon a different footing. Once the adjudicating authority determines the liability or fixes the rate payable so that the amount becomes capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment, the uncertainty disappears to that extent and the liability assumes the character of an existing monetary obligation embodied in the decree.

60. It is in that context that the decision of the Supreme Court in Gopalakrishna Pillai must be understood. The Supreme Court was concerned with the nature of a claim for future mesne profits at the stage of institution of the suit and explained why such a claim is incapable of present valuation, there being no existing cause of action in respect thereof. The decision also recognised the power of the Court under Order XX Rule 12 of the Code of Civil Procedure to award future mesne profits. The judgment does not consider the valuation of an appeal where the decree itself has already created a monetary liability towards mesne profits. It is, therefore, distinguishable on the question which arises in the present proceedings.

61. The decision of the Madhya Pradesh High Court in Shivaji v. Deoji likewise proceeded in the context of future mesne profits accruing during the pendency of the proceedings. It was observed that where the decree for possession is displaced, the consequential relief relating to future mesne profits would ordinarily fail with it and, therefore, separate court fee was not exigible upon such contingent liability. The principle enunciated therein was directed to liabilities which had not yet crystallised and not to a quantified or otherwise ascertainable monetary obligation incorporated in the decree under challenge.

62. The Full Bench decision of the Kerala High Court in Ratnamma substantially proceeds upon the same distinction between contingent future mesne profits and liabilities which have already become enforceable. None of those authorities lays down an absolute proposition that every award relating to mesne profits necessarily remains outside the valuation of an appeal irrespective of the nature of the decree or the relief claimed therein.

63. The authorities relied upon by the respondent address the position obtaining after the liability has crystallised into a definite monetary obligation. In re Kudappa Subbamma, it was recognised that although a claim for future mesne profits may initially remain incapable of valuation, the position materially changes once the Court determines the rate, specifies the period or otherwise renders the liability capable of precise computation. At that stage, the claim ceases to remain wholly uncertain and crystallises into a definite monetary liability forming part of the decree. An appellant seeking to avoid such liability must value the appeal accordingly.

64. The same principle is reflected in the Full Bench decision of this Court in Ragho Prasad. As noticed hereinbefore, the Full Bench authoritatively held that the valuation of an appeal must correspond to the actual relief claimed against the decree and not necessarily to the valuation adopted at the institution of the proceedings. The Court emphatically rejected the contention that because an appeal is a continuation of the suit, the valuation adopted in the original proceedings must invariably govern the memorandum of appeal. The Full Bench observed that if the appellant seeks to be relieved against the whole of a money decree, "the valuation of the relief cannot be arbitrary. It must be related to the relief sought."

65. The decision of this Court in Alok Kumar Jain also lends support to the statutory construction adopted herein. While considering the scheme of Sections 39 and 42 of the Act, 2021, the Court recognised that the computation of court fee in proceedings under the Act continues to be governed by the Court Fees Act, 1870, subject only to the statutory modifications expressly enacted by the Legislature. Nothing in that decision suggests that Section 39 creates a self-contained code dispensing with the settled principles governing valuation of appeals.

66. The real divergence between the parties thus lies not in the authorities upon which reliance has been placed, many of which are common to both sides, but in the interpretation sought to be placed upon them and their application to the facts of the present case. The distinction is not one of conflicting legal principle but of the stage at which the liability falls for consideration and the nature of the relief sought before the appellate court.

Application of the Principles to the Present Case

67. The controversy in the present case must, therefore, be resolved not by applying any single decision in isolation but by examining the true character of the liability created under the decree passed by the Rent Authority. The decisive question is whether the amount awarded towards mesne profits, to the extent it had accrued or become capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment on the date of presentation of the appeal, formed part of the decretal liability which the petitioner sought to have displaced. The answer to that question necessarily depends upon the nature of the decree impugned before the Rent Tribunal.

68. The order dated 19.02.2026 passed by the Rent Authority is a composite decree directing eviction of the petitioner from the tenanted premises, recovery of arrears of rent and payment of mesne profits at the prescribed rate from the date specified therein until delivery of possession. The petitioner has challenged that decree in its entirety before the Rent Tribunal. The memorandum of appeal is not confined to the direction of eviction alone, nor does it exclude the monetary liabilities created under the decree. On the contrary, the appeal seeks to have the decree displaced in its entirety.

69. The inevitable consequence is that the subject-matter in dispute in the appeal is co-extensive with the decretal liability sought to be avoided by the petitioner. The valuation of the memorandum of appeal cannot, therefore, be determined merely by reference to the court fee paid by the respondent-landlady at the institution of the proceedings before the Rent Authority. Once the decree has fastened liabilities upon the petitioner and those liabilities are brought under challenge before the appellate forum, the valuation necessarily falls to be determined with reference to the relief claimed in appeal and not with reference to the fiscal incidents attending the institution of the original proceedings.

70. Equally untenable is the submission that because the respondent-landlady was not required to pay court fee upon the mesne profits component at the stage of institution, the petitioner likewise incurs no liability to pay court fee while challenging that component of the decree. The incidence of court fee upon a plaintiff at the institution stage and the liability of a defendant preferring an appeal arise in distinct statutory settings and are governed by different principles. The former depends upon the nature of the relief claimed in the original proceedings, whereas the latter depends upon the extent of the decree from which the appellant seeks relief. The liability of the plaintiff cannot, therefore, furnish the measure of the liability of the defendant in appeal.

71. The submission founded upon the direction of the Rent Authority regarding payment of court fee at the stage of execution is equally devoid of merit. Such direction merely regulated the stage at which the respondent-landlady would be required to make good the court fee payable on the mesne profits ultimately found recoverable. It neither determines nor controls the independent statutory liability of an appellant to value the memorandum of appeal in accordance with Section 39 of the Act, 2021 read with the Court Fees Act, 1870. The procedural direction contained in the decree cannot override the statutory principles governing appellate valuation.

72. Nor does the petitioner's reliance upon Section 2(4) of the Court Fees Act advance the matter any further. The inclusive definition of the expression "suit", whereby a first and second appeal are brought within its ambit, merely extends the operation of the Court Fees Act to appellate proceedings. It does not enact that the valuation adopted at the institution of the proceedings must necessarily remain frozen for every subsequent appeal. Such an interpretation would run contrary to the scheme of the Court Fees Act itself and to the principles authoritatively stated by the Full Bench of this Court in Ragho Prasad.

73. The petitioner's construction of Section 39, if accepted, would lead to consequences difficult to reconcile with the statutory scheme. An appellant could challenge a decree imposing substantial quantified monetary liability while paying court fee only upon the valuation adopted before adjudication, notwithstanding that the decree has materially altered the rights and obligations of the parties. Such a construction would not only disregard the concept of the "subject-matter in dispute in appeal" embodied in the Court Fees Act but would also enlarge the limited statutory fiction enacted by Section 39(2) beyond its legitimate field of operation.

74. On the other hand, the interpretation adopted by the Rent Tribunal gives harmonious effect both to Section 39 of the Act, 2021 and to the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870. It preserves the statutory fiction enacted by Section 39(2), while at the same time respecting the settled principles governing appellate valuation. Such a construction avoids rendering either enactment otiose and gives full effect to the legislative intent underlying both statutes.

75. In the facts of the present case, the decree under challenge fastens upon the petitioner an existing liability towards arrears of rent and also a liability towards mesne profits, which, to the extent accrued or capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment on the date of presentation of the appeal, formed part of the monetary burden sought to be displaced. That liability consequently constituted part of the subject-matter in dispute before the Rent Tribunal and was liable to be taken into account for purposes of valuation of the memorandum of appeal.

76. The Rent Tribunal, therefore, committed no jurisdictional error in directing the petitioner to make good the deficiency in court fee. Significantly, the Tribunal did not reject the memorandum of appeal on the ground of deficient court fee but merely afforded the petitioner an opportunity to remove the defect within the stipulated period. The course adopted is consistent with the settled procedural approach governing deficient court fee and cannot be characterised as arbitrary or illegal.

77. The supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution is intended to ensure that courts and tribunals act within the limits of their jurisdiction and in accordance with law. It is neither an appellate jurisdiction nor one intended to substitute one possible interpretation of a statute with another merely because an alternative view may also be plausible. Unless the order under challenge discloses patent lack of jurisdiction, manifest perversity or an error apparent going to the root of the decision-making process, interference is not warranted.

78. Tested on the aforesaid parameters, the impugned order suffers from no jurisdictional error, manifest illegality or perversity warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution. The interpretation placed by the Rent Tribunal upon Section 39 of the Act, 2021 is consistent with the scheme of the enactment, the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870 and the settled principles governing valuation of appeals.

Conclusion

79. This Court, accordingly, holds that where an appellant challenges a composite decree passed by the Rent Authority directing eviction together with recovery of arrears of rent and payment of mesne profits, the memorandum of appeal under Section 35 of the Act, 2021 is liable to be valued with reference to the subject-matter in dispute in appeal. To the extent the decree embodies an existing liability towards mesne profits which has accrued or become capable of precise arithmetical ascertainment on the date of presentation of the appeal, such liability forms part of the decretal burden sought to be displaced and is liable to be taken into account in computing the court fee payable on the memorandum of appeal.

80. The Rent Tribunal was, therefore, fully justified in directing the petitioner to make good the deficiency in court fee before proceeding with the appeal. No ground for interference under Article 227 of the Constitution is made out.

81. The petition, being devoid of merit, is accordingly dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

Tikka ...Respondent

Issue for Consideration

Whether the learned trial court after considering the special circumstances, as had been raised by the accused, awarded four and half months rigorous imprisonment to the accused.

Head Notes

The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 378; The Railway Property (Unlawful Possession) Act, 1966-Section 3(b) - The learned trial court has recorded special and adequate reasons as to why it was adopting a liberal view in only awarding four and a half months imprisonment to the accused, which were that the accused is a poor person and has been in jail during the pendency of the case, and further that there is no other earning member in the family apart from him- Reasons prevailed on the learned trial court in awarding a sentence which was below the minimum prescribed under clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966, which in our view, would fall within the ambit of being "adequate and special reasons" for the purpose of awarding a lesser sentence than prescribed under the Act, 1966.

No case for interference is made out and the appeal is dismissed. (E-15)

(Delivered by Hon'ble Abdul Moin, J.

Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Sri Anurag Verma, learned AGA appearing for the State-appellant.

2. Under challenge is the judgment and order dated 16.11.1989 passed by learned Judicial Magistrate, First Class, Northern Railway Lucknow, per which the respondent has been convicted and given imprisonment for a period of four and half months.

3. The only ground urged is that the learned court has failed to consider clause (b) of Section 3 of the Railway Property (Unlawful Possession) Act, 1966 inasmuch as the respondent had a criminal history of 12 cases, which were duly placed before the learned trial court, yet the learned trial court has passed the impugned judgment.

4. The contention is that a perusal of clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966 indicates that it provides for repeat offenders a minimum sentence of two years and a maximum sentence of five years and consequently, the learned trial court has patently erred in only awarding a sentence of four and a half months.

5. In this regard, learned AGA has placed reliance on the judgment of Hon'ble Single Judge of this Court in the case of Murari Lal vs. State of U.P. ? 1975 SCC OnLine All. 194.

6. Placing reliance on the aforesaid judgment, the argument is that the learned trial court has patently erred in awarding a lesser punishment than was prescribed under the provisions of the Act 1966 more particularly when the accused was a habitual offender.

7. As nobody has responded on behalf of the respondent, as such, the Court has itself gone through the pleadings on record.

8. As only a short question of law is involved as such the Court proceeds to decide the matter.

9. A perusal of the impugned judgment indicates that the learned trial court after considering the special circumstances, as had been raised by the accused, has awarded four and half months rigorous imprisonment to him. The judgment is sought to be challenged on the ground that once the minimum sentence prescribed is two years and maximum of 5 years with regard to habitual offenders consequently the learned trial court has erred in giving a lesser sentence.

10. In order to consider this argument, we will have to consider the provisions of Section 3 of the Act 1966 which, for the sake of convenience, is reproduced below:-

"3. Penalty for unlawful possession of railway property. - Whoever is found, or is proved to have been, in possession of any railway property reasonably suspected of having been stolen or unlawfully obtained shall, unless the proves that the railway property came into his possession law-fully, be punishable-

(a) for the first offence, with imprisonment for a term which may ex-tend to five years, or with fine, or with both and in the absence of special and adequate reasons to be mentioned in the judg. ment of the Court, such imprisonment shall not be less than one year and such fine shall not be less than one thousand rupees;

(b) for the second or a subsequent offence, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to five years and also with fine and in the absence of special and adequate reasons to be mentioned in the judgment of the Court, such imprisonment shall not be less than two years and such fine shall not be less than two thousand rupees."

11. From perusal of Section 3 of the Act, 1966, it emerges that whoever is found to be in possession of railway property suspected of having been stolen, shall be punishable, in the case of first offence, with imprisonment for a term which may extend to 5 years, or with fine, or both, and in the absence of special and adequate reasons, such imprisonment shall not be less than 1 year. However, for a second or subsequent offence, the person would be given imprisonment for a term which may extend to 5 years or with fine, and in the absence of special and adequate reasons to be mentioned in the judgment, such imprisonment shall not be less than 2 years and fine shall not be less than Rs. 2,000.

12. Once the respondent was having a criminal history of 12 cases, as has been contended by the appellant, as such, it would be clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966, which would be applicable upon him i.e. he being given imprisonment for a term which may extend to 5 years, but such imprisonment will not be less than 2 years in the absence of special and adequate reasons to be mentioned in the judgment.

13. Thus, it is apparent that in case the Court mentioned special and adequate reasons then it would be the prerogative of the Court to grant a sentence of less than two years to the person being convicted more particularly when clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966 uses the words "special and adequate reasons."

14. Clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966 has been considered by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Nirmal Lal Gupta vs. State of Orissa- 1995 Supp. (2) SCC 713, wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held as under:

"4. Our attention may now be focussed on the provision of the section itself. As is evident, it has two clauses. Clause (a) operates to award punishment for the first offence. Clause (b) operates to award punishment for the second or subsequent offence. Both are worded differently. Whereas for clause (a) the maximum term of imprisonment which can be imposed can be upto 5 years, the minimum term of imprisonment imposable is upto one year, and there is a mandate that it shall not be for a period less than one year unless and until for some special and adequate reasons to be mentioned in the judgment of the court, a lesser period of imprisonment had been awarded. It is in this way that the sentence of imprisonment is compartmentalised. The other alternate punishment is imposition of fine. Whereas there is no maximum limit of the fine imposable, but which can in no event be excessive and unreasonable, there is, on the same analogy, a minimum of Rs. 1,000.00 fine imposable, unless and until for special and adequate reasons to be mentioned in the judgment of the court, the fine imposed was less than one thousand rupees. This too has its own compartment. Clause (a) gives a choice to the court to either award imprisonment or impose fine, or both. It is the choice of the court which determines whether imprisonment alone should be awarded or fine alone be imposed or both should be awarded. It is thus obvious that it is not obligatory on the court to always award imprisonment as a punishment. Once it is so understood it is difficult to comprehend that a minimum sentence alone thereunder is imposable to which the Probation of Offenders Act would not be applicable.

5. The above result is also achieved when clause (a) is compared with clause (b). For the second or subsequent offence the court is obligated to award imprisonment for a term which may extend to five years and also impose fine. The awardable imprisonment however cannot be less than two years and such fine cannot be less than two thousand rupees, unless for special and adequate reasons, to be mentioned in the judgment of the court, the imprisonment of less than two years is imposed and a fine less than Rs. 2,000.00 is imposed. Here there is a compulsion to impose both kinds of sentences, unless the court exercises discretion to do away with imposing any punishment. The limited distinction in the two clauses is prominent."

(emphasis by the Court)

15. After comparing clause (a) and clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966, the Hon'ble Supreme Court has observed that the awardable imprisonment cannot be less than 2 years and such fine cannot be less than Rs. 2,000 unless for special and adequate reasons to be mentioned in the judgment of the Court the imprisonment of less than 2 years is imposed meaning thereby that the sine qua non to imposition of a lesser punishment than 2 years is the mentioning of special and adequate reasons in the judgment.

16. We may hasten to add that in the case of Nirmal Lal Gupta (supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court was only considering clause (a) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966, yet carved out a distinction between clause (a) and clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966 and also observed about the 'special and adequate reasons'.

17. What would be "special and adequate reasons" has been considered threadbare by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Rajasthan vs. Vinod Kumar - (2012) 6 SCC 770 wherein the Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

"9. The statutory requirement for awarding the punishment less than seven years is to record adequate and special reasons in writing. Dictionary meanings of the word "adequate" are commensurate in fitness, sufficient, suitable, equal in magnitude and extent, and fully. "Special reasons" means exceptional; particular; peculiar; different from others; designed for a particular purpose, occasion, or person; limited in range; confined to a definite field of action. Thus, in a case like the instant one, in order to impose the punishment lesser than prescribed in the statute, there must be exceptional reasons relating to the crime as well as to the criminal.

10. In Meet Singh v. The State of Punjab, AIR 1980 SC 1141, this Court while dealing with expression "special reasons" held that it means special to the accused concerned.

"7...The court has to weigh reasons advanced in respect of each individual accused whose case is taken up for awarding sentence. The word 'special' has to be understood in contradistinction to word 'general' or 'ordinary'. Thus, anything which is common to a large class governed by the same statute, cannot be said to be special to each of them. Therefore, in the context of sentencing process, special reasons must be 'special' to the accused in the facts and circumstances of the case in which the sentence is being awarded.

11. In Madhukar Bhaskarrao Joshi v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 2001 SC 147, this Court examined a similar provision under the Prevention of Corruption Act, 1988 which also contained a provision that accused shall be imposed the punishment which "shall not be less than one year" , however, a lesser punishment may be awarded recording the special reasons. The Court held:

"17…. The proviso is in the form of a rare exception by giving power to the Court for reducing the imprisonment period below one year only when there are "special reasons" and the law required that those special reasons must be recorded in writing by the Court….

18...Parliament measured the parameters for such condign punishment and in that process wanted to fix a minimum sentence of imprisonment for giving deterrent impact on other public servants who are prone to corrupt deals……Such a legislative insistence is reflection of Parliament's resolve to meet corruption cases with very strong hand and to give signals of deterrence as the most pivotal feature of sentencing of corrupt public servants……

19. In the present case, how could the mere fact that this case was pending for such a long time be considered as a "special reason"? That is a general feature in almost all convictions under the PC Act and it is not a speciality of this particular case. It is the defect of the system that longevity of the cases tried under the PC Act is too lengthy. If that is to be regarded as sufficient for reducing the minimum sentence mandated by the Parliament the legislative exercise would stand defeated.

(Emphasis added)"

18. From perusal of the judgment of Vinod Kumar (supra), it emerges that the statutory requirement for awarding the punishment less than what is prescribed in the statute is to record "special and adequate reasons" in writing. Adequate reasons would be commensurate in fitness, sufficient, suitable, equal in magnitude and extent, while "special reasons" means exceptional, particular, peculiar, different from others, designed for a particular purpose, occasion or person, limited in range, confined to a definite field of action.

19. Accordingly, when the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Vinod Kumar (supra), which deals with "adequate and special reasons" is seen in the context of the impugned judgment of the learned trial court dated 16.11.1989, it emerges that the learned trial court has recorded special and adequate reasons as to why it was adopting a liberal view in only awarding four and a half months imprisonment to the accused, which were that the accused is a poor person and has been in jail during the pendency of the case, and further that there is no other earning member in the family apart from him. Thus, these reasons prevailed on the learned trial court in awarding a sentence which was below the minimum prescribed under clause (b) of Section 3 of the Act, 1966, which in our view, would fall within the ambit of being "adequate and special reasons" for the purpose of awarding a lesser sentence than prescribed under the Act, 1966. Thus, this Court does not find any infirmity in the judgment of the learned trial court.

20. So far as the judgment of this Court in the case of Murari Lal (supra) is concerned, suffice to state that this Court was of the view that the reasons being cited by the accused raising a challenge to the sentence awarded to him by the learned trial court on being convicted under the provisions of the Act, 1966 did not fall within the ambit of being "special and adequate reasons", and thus dismissed the revision.

21. The aforesaid judgment would have no applicability in the instant case as we have already observed that special and adequate reasons prevailed on the learned trial court in awarding a lesser sentence.

22. Keeping in view the aforesaid discussion, no case for interference is made out. Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.

23. This Court also records the assistance rendered by Mr. Mohd. Azam Siddiqui, Research Associate of this Court.

THE HON'BLE PRAMOD KUMAR SRIVASTAVA, J.

Government Appeal No. 434 of 1984

State of U.P. ...Appellant
Versus
Munna ...Respondent

Issue for Consideration

Whether the learned trial court has recorded its findings on the basis of the material available on record in consonance with law while passing the judgment and order dated 30.04.1983 whereby the accused, was acquitted of the charges under Sections 302 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code.

Head Notes

The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973-Section 378; The Indian Penal Code, 1860- Sections 302 & 323- The prosecution case suffers from deeply entrenched infirmities and major discrepancies. The very genesis of the prosecution case has been suppressed and the informant, who was the most natural and injured witness of the incident, completely discarded the prosecution version. By turning hostile, she explicitly refused to support the case in respect of the core allegation that the accused-respondent had assaulted the deceased and herself. The testimonies of other two witnesses of facts, namely PW4 and PW-6, do not possess the attributes of sterling quality and are legally insufficient to sustain a conviction. Furthermore, a clear and credible motive is completely lacking on record.

Held- The learned trial court reasonably and justifiably concluded that the prosecution had miserably failed to prove its case against the accused person beyond reasonable doubt. This Court does not find any manifest illegality, perversity, or jurisdictional error in the impugned judgment and order of acquittal. The findings recorded by the learned trial court are well-founded, legally sustainable, and based on a meticulous appreciation of the material available on the record. The view taken by the trial court is a highly plausible and reasonable view, which is in perfect consonance with the settled principles of law, warranting no interference. Appeal dismissed. (E-15)

Case Arising From

Government Appeal under Section 378 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 against the judgment and order dated 30.04.1983 passed the learned Sessions Judge, Hardoi in Sessions Trial No. 746 of 1982, whereby the accused respondent, Munna, was acquitted of the charges under Sections 302 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Appellant(s) : Govt. Advocate
Counsel for Respondent(s) :

(Delivered Hon'ble Pramod Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Pawan Kumar Mishra, learned AGA for the appellant-State.

2. The instant Government Appeal has been filed under Section 378 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 against the judgment and order dated 30.04.1983 passed by Sri R.S. Agarwal, the then learned Sessions Judge, Hardoi in Sessions Trial No. 746 of 1982, whereby the accused-respondent, Munna, was acquitted of the charges under Sections 302 and 323 of the Indian Penal Code.

3. The factual matrix of the case is that on 16.03.1982 in the evening, the stepson of the informant, namely Munna, expressed an apprehension to his stepmother, Smt. Jai Devi (the informant), that some persons were planning to kill him. The accused, Munna, also called his uncle, Sri Ram, to the house. Thereafter, all three sat down and took their dinner inside the kothari (room). After dinner, the accused, Munna, locked the door of the kothari from inside. The deceased, Sri Ram, lay down on a cot, while the informant lay down on the floor inside the kothari, where a diya (earthen lamp) was burning.

4. At about 12:00 midnight, the accused, Munna, got up, picked up a moosal (wooden pestle), and began to assault Sri Ram with it, exclaiming that he wanted to usurp his property by killing him and would not leave him alive. When the informant, Smt. Jai Devi, raised an alarm and cried out for help, the accused also assaulted her with the moosal. Upon hearing the hue and cry, the villagers arrived at the spot. Since the kothari was locked from inside, an opening was made by breaking the western wall of the kothari. In the light of the torches and the opening made in the western wall, the villagers saw the accused assaulting Sri Ram.

5. The informant, in an attempt to save herself, peeped out from the opening made in the western wall, whereupon the villagers, namely Bhola and Mulayam, dragged her outside. At that time, villagers Pitamber, Badri, Chhote Lal, and several others were present at the spot and witnessed the incident. In this occurrence, the informant also sustained internal and external injuries. Smt. Jai Devi dictated a written report at the police station at 7:15 A.M. on 17.08.1982. On the basis of the said written report submitted by the informant, a First Information Report (FIR) was lodged against the accused, Munna, son of Raja Ram, on 17.08.1982 at 7:15 A.M. at Police Station Majhla, District Hardoi, which was located at a distance of 10 kilometers from the place of occurrence.

6. After lodging of the FIR, the police reached the place of occurrence, conducted proceedings for the inquest on the body of the deceased, sealed the corpse, and dispatched the dead body along with the necessary documents for an autopsy.

7. The post-mortem examination on the body of the deceased, Sri Ram, was conducted on 18.08.1982 at 4:30 P.M. by Dr. R.M. Gupta (PW-1), who recorded the following antemortem injuries on the person of the deceased:

(A) External Injuries:

1. Contusion measuring 14 cm x 10 cm over the right side of the face with underlying fracture of the maxillary bone and right side of the mandible badly fractured.

2. Contusion measuring 10 cm x 8 cm over the left side of the face, with underlying fracture of the left maxillary bone badly fractured.

(B) Internal Examination:

Head & Neck: Underlying the scalp, the right parietal bone was found fractured. The membranes of the brain were deeply congested, and a lacerated hematoma measuring 4 cm x 3 cm was present under the right parietal bone. The brain was also deeply congested on the right side.

Thorax: The walls, ribs, and cartilages were normal. Both lungs were normal and congested. The heart was normal with a weight of 200 grams.

Abdomen: The buccal cavity and teeth showed 16/16 teeth present, mostly dislocated because of the mandible fracture on both sides. The stomach contained 2 ounces of paste-like food matter. The small intestine contained liquid, feces, and gas, while the large intestine contained fecal matter and gas. The liver weighed 1000 grams and was normal. The spleen weighed 100 grams and was normal. Both kidneys weighed 210 grams and were normal.

8. The Doctor opined that the cause of death was shock and hemorrhage resulting from the aforementioned antemortem injuries.

9. During the course of the investigation, the Investigating Officer collected various articles and objects from the place of occurrence and prepared recovery memos in respect of the torch, kuppi (oil lamp), blood-stained clothes, moosal (wooden pestle), blood-stained and plain earth, the banyan (undershirt), and the cot. A site plan was also prepared at the instance of the informant. The Investigating Officer recorded the statements of the witnesses under Section 161 of Cr.P.C. and, upon finding sufficient prima facie evidence against the accused, submitted a charge-sheet under Section 302 of IPC before the competent court.

10. Upon compliance with the statutory provisions, the case, being exclusively triable by a Court of Session, was committed to the Court of Session under Section 209 of the Cr.P.C. The case was registered as Sessions Trial No. 746 of 1982, and charges under Sections 302 and 323 of the IPC were formally framed against the accused, Munna. The charges were read over and explained to the accused in Hindi, to which he pleaded not guilty and claimed to be tried.

11. To prove its case, the prosecution adduced the following oral evidence:

1. Dr. R.M. Gupta (PW-1)
2. Dr. S.C. Vaish (PW-2)
3. Smt. Jai Devi (PW-3)
4. Mulayam Singh (PW-4)
5. H.C. Mahadev Singh (PW-5)

18. Exhibit Ka-18: Recovery Memo (Fard) in respect of the undershirt (banyan) of the deceased and the string/rope (wan) cut out from the cot.
19. Exhibit Ka-19: Charge-sheet submitted by the Investigating Officer against the accused, Munna.

13. After completion of the prosecution evidence, the statement of the accused-respondent was recorded under Section 313 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973. The accused denied all the incriminating evidence and circumstances put to him and stated that he had been falsely implicated in the present case. He stated that his implication was a result of an ongoing enmity over a field/land dispute involving the villager Pitamber. He further took a specific defense plea that on the fateful night, certain miscreants/dacoits had committed a dacoity at the house, during which incident he as well as the informant, Smt. Jai Devi, sustained injuries, and the deceased, Sri Ram, was killed by the said assailants.

14. No oral or documentary evidence has been adduced on behalf of the defense. After hearing both the parties and perusing the material available on the record, the learned trial court observed that the prosecution had suppressed the true genesis of the incident and that the witnesses were not reliable. The learned trial court heavily relied on the fact that the informant had completely discarded the prosecution version and resiled from her statement in court. It further held that no reliable evidence was available on record, noting the absence of a proven motive, material inconsistencies in the statements of the witnesses, and the inimical disposition of the village witnesses. The trial court also drew an adverse inference on the ground that the injuries sustained by the accused were not explained by the prosecution, and concluded that the entire substratum of the prosecution story was demolished by the testimony of the informant herself. Consequently, the learned trial court concluded that the prosecution had miserably failed to prove the charges levelled against the accused beyond reasonable doubt and resultantly acquitted the accused of the charges under Sections 302 and 323 of the IPC.

15. Being aggrieved by the impugned judgment of acquittal, the State has preferred the instant appeal inter alia on the grounds that the learned trial court grossly erred in rejecting the testimony of the informant in its entirety. It is contended that the informant had fully supported the prosecution case in its material aspects during the initial stage and her subsequent turnabout was merely an afterthought to save her stepson, which should not have been used to discard the early, untainted part of the prosecution story. It is further contended that the presence of the other eye-witnesses, namely Mulayam (PW-4) and Pitamber (PW-6), at the spot was not doubted even by the learned trial court, yet their testimony was discarded on the legally untenable ground that they were unreliable.

16. Furthermore, the appellant urges that the learned trial court completely ignored a highly incriminating circumstance that the Investigating Officer, Ganesh Prasad Mishra (PW-8), found the accused, Munna, inside the kothari where the deceased was lying dead on the cot. The accused had locked himself inside and bargained with the villagers, stating that he would only come out if his dispute was settled. It was only upon the categorical assurance given by the Investigating Officer that he would not be beaten that the accused opened the door of the kothari and was taken into custody. It is submitted that the learned trial court failed to appreciate these binding circumstances, which directly point toward the guilt of the accused and passed the impugned judgment of acquittal in a mechanical and arbitrary manner. The appellant maintains that the prosecution has conclusively proved its case by adducing relevant, material, and reliable oral as well as documentary evidence and therefore the impugned judgment of acquittal is liable to be set aside, the appeal deserves to be allowed, and the accused-respondent is liable to be convicted and sentenced in accordance with law.

17. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record. At the very outset, it is expedient to outline the settled legal principles governing the power of an appellate court to interfere with and reverse a judgment of acquittal. The law regarding the scope of an appeal against acquittal under Section 378 of the Cr.P.C. has been consistently highlighted and consolidated by the Hon'ble Apex Court a catena of cases. In the case of Union of India and Others Vs. Sepoy Pravat Kumar Behuria; (2019) 10 SCC 220, in para 17 the Court observed as follows:-

"17. It is trite law that judgments of acquittal should not be disturbed unless there are substantial or compelling reasons. The substantial or compelling reasons to discard a judgment of acquittal were examined by this Court in Ghurey Lal v. State of U.P. [Ghurey Lal v. State of U.P., (2008) 10 SCC 450 : (2009) 1 SCC (Cri) 60] which are as follows: (SCC p. 477, para 70)

"70. 1.

(i) The trial court's conclusion with regard to the facts is palpably wrong;

(ii) The trial court's decision was based on an erroneous view of law;

(iii) The trial court's judgment is likely to result in grave miscarriage of justice ;

(iv) The entire approach of the trial court in dealing with the evidence was patently illegal;

(v) The trial court's judgment was manifestly unjust and unreasonable;

(vi) The trial court has ignored the evidence or misread the material evidence or has ignored material documents like dying declarations/report of the ballistic expert, etc.

(vii) This list is intended to be illustrative, not exhaustive.

2. The appellate court must always give proper weight and consideration to the findings of the trial court.

3. If two reasonable views can be reached one that leads to acquittal, the other to conviction the High Courts/appellate courts must rule in favour of the accused."

18. In Mathai Mathews Vs. State of Maharashtra; (1970) 3 SCC 772, in para 5 the Court observed as under:-

5. It is now well-settled that the power of an appellate court to review evidence in appeals against acquittals is as extensive as its power in appeals against convictions. It is also well-settled that before an appellate court can set aside an order of acquittal, it must carefully consider the reasons given by the trial court in support of its order and must give its own reasons to reject those reasons. If a finding reached by the trial Judge cannot be said to be a unreasonable finding then the appellate court should not disturb that finding even if it is possible to reach a different conclusion on the basis of the material on record. It should bear in mind the presumption of innocence of the accused and the fact that the Trial Judge had the advantage of seeing and hearing the witnesses. In brief, the appellate court should not disturb an order of acquittal except on very cogent grounds. On an examination of the entire material on record we have come to the conclusion that the High Court was not justified in setting aside the order of the trial court.

18. In view of the above settled position of law, it is to be seen whether the learned trial court has recorded its findings on the basis of the material available on record in consonance with law. It is not disputed that the informant, Smt. Jai Devi, is the stepmother of the accused, Munna. It is also not disputed that the deceased, Sri Ram, was the uncle of the accused and a cousin of the informant's husband, Raja Ram. As stated by Smt. Jai Devi (PW-3), the deceased had major children; however, none of the children of the deceased has been examined by the prosecution.

19. As per the First Information Report, exhibited as Exhibit Ka-3, the informant, the deceased, and the accused were all present inside the kothari where the incident took place. According to the FIR, the accused first launched an assault with a moosal on the deceased, Sri Ram, who was on a cot, repeatedly striking him. When the informant raised an alarm, the accused beat her as well.

18. However, during the trial, the informant, Smt. Jai Devi, who was examined as PW-3, did not support the prosecution version. She stated that after her marriage, she resided mostly at Kanpur, where her husband, Raja Ram, was employed. She further deposed that on the date of the incident, she had come to the village. According to her trial testimony, while they were sleeping at night, the deceased, Sri Ram, raised an alarm, shouting "हाय बदमाश आ गये मारे डालते हैं". She claimed that upon hearing this alarm, the accused, Munna, and she herself came out of the kothari and saw miscreants assaulting the deceased. When she rushed to save him, the miscreants beat her as well, causing her injuries. Thereafter several villagers arrived and the miscreants fled the spot.

19. She categorically stated before the Court that she neither dictated the written report to Pitamber nor went to the police station to lodge the FIR. She asserted that when the police arrived at the spot in the morning, they obtained her thumb impression on a blank piece of paper, which corresponds to Paper No. 3/2-Ka. Upon perusing the said document in Court, she emphasized that she had not lodged the report. Due to her complete refusal to support the prosecution version, the witness was declared hostile.

20. During her cross-examination by the prosecution, she denied having made the statement recorded by the Investigating Officer under Section 161 of the Cr.P.C.. She also denied the actual place of occurrence being the kothari, specifically stating that no moosal was present inside the room. Instead, she claimed that 15 to 16 miscreants entered the courtyard and brutally beat the deceased with lathis and dandas. She further stated that the miscreants also inflicted blows upon her and the accused, Munna, and since there was total darkness, it was possible that the miscreants might have assaulted her with a moosal. She further alleged that the miscreants committed a loot, taking away her jewellery from a box inside the house.

21. Significantly, this witness also deposed about an ongoing dispute over an orchard. She stated that the uncle of the witness Pitamber had been assassinated in the past and that the deceased Sri Ram had deposed in a case. She asserted that there was an orchard in the field where the accused, Munna, had made an encroachment, leading to bitter enmity between Munna and Pitamber. She claimed that due to this pre-existing enmity, Pitamber had falsely implicated the accused, Munna, in the present case.

22. Thus, the star witness of the prosecution completely resiled from the prosecution version, shifting the entire manner of occurrence and exonerating the accused from his alleged role. Although it is an undisputed fact on record that the deceased met a homicidal death caused by blows from a hard and blunt object, the fundamental question that arises is who actually assaulted the deceased. While the prosecution version initially averred in the FIR that the accused, Munna, was the sole culprit who brutally assaulted and killed the deceased. The informant turned completely hostile before the Court. It is noteworthy that Smt. Jai Devi is the stepmother of the accused. Since she herself sustained substantial injuries during the same incident, it strains credulity to assume why an injured victim would easily spare her own assailant to falsely shield her stepson unless the genesis of the crime itself was clouded by reasonable doubt.

23. It is further observed that no motive has been assigned to the accused in the FIR. Although it is a well-settled principle of criminal jurisprudence that where the facts are absolutely clear and the prosecution case is fully supported by an unassailable eye-witness account, the absence or weakness of motive becomes insignificant, yet it can never be ignored that motive plays an important role in the commission of a crime, especially when the ocular testimony is shaky or compromised. In the present case, a credible and clear motive linking the accused to the commission of the offense is visibly lacking, which further weakens the prosecution's case.

24. In this regard the Hon'ble Apex Court, in the case of Vaibhav Vs. State of Maharashtra; (2025) 8 SCC 315, has held as under:-

33. We may now come to the next aspect of the case i.e. absence of motive and consequence thereof. It is trite law that in a case based on circumstantial evidence, motive is relevant. However, it is not conclusive of the matter. There is no rule of law that the absence of motive would ipso facto dismember the chain of evidence and would lead to automatic acquittal of the accused. It is so because the weight of other evidence needs to be seen and if the remaining evidence is sufficient to prove guilt, motive may not hold relevance. But a complete absence of motive is certainly a circumstance which may weigh in favour of the accused. During appreciation of evidence wherein favourable and unfavourable circumstances are sifted and weighed against each other, this circumstance ought to be incorporated as one leaning in favour of the accused.

25. It has been vehemently emphasized by the learned counsel for the appellant that since the prosecution has produced two other witnesses of facts who are also eye-witnesses to the incident, the turnabout or resiling of the informant from her statement will have no adverse effect on the prosecution case, provided the charges are established beyond reasonable doubt by such other evidence. In order to test this submission, we proceed to scrutinize the testimony of the remaining two witnesses of facts.

26. At this juncture, it is a well-settled principle of criminal jurisprudence that judicial evaluation of ocular evidence broadly categorizes witnesses into three distinct types: (i) wholly reliable, for whom no formal corroboration is required to base a conviction; (ii) partly reliable and partly unreliable, whose testimony requires independent corroboration in the shape of either ocular, documentary, circumstantial, or medical evidence before placing reliance; and (iii) wholly unreliable, whose testimony must be rejected outright.

27. To prove its case, the prosecution has adduced Mulayam as PW-4. This witness stated in his examination-in-chief that at the time of the incident, he was sleeping on the roof of his house when he heard a noise coming from Munna's house. He rushed toward the spot, where other villagers, namely Bhola, Chhote Lal, Badri, and Pitamber also met him. He claimed that from inside the kothari, the screaming of Smt. Jai Devi was audible, who was crying out "हाय मुन्ना मारे डाल रहा है". He further stated that they all broke the western wall of the kothari to open a passage, through which they saw, with the help of a torch, that the accused, Munna was holding a moosal in his hand. They then pulled Smt. Jai Devi outside through the said passage but Munna remained locked inside the kothari. He also deposed that Smt. Jai Devi told him that Munna had beaten her as well and thereafter she dictated the written report (tahrir) to Pitamber.

28. However, a close perusal of the cross-examination of this witness completely shakes the credibility of his ocular account. During his cross-examination on behalf of the accused, PW-4 stated that at the time of the incident, there was a great hue and cry and about 20 to 25 people had gathered at the spot. He reiterated that screaming was coming from inside the kothari and that Munna was holding a moosal.

29. Crucially, however, he admitted in his cross-examination that he did not state to the Investigating Officer in his statement recorded under Section 161 of the Cr.P.C. that he had actually seen Munna inflicting blows with the moosal upon his uncle, Sri Ram, or that the accused assaulted the informant when she rushed to save the deceased.

30. Thus, from a holistic evaluation of the testimony of PW-4, it clearly emerges that he merely reached the spot after hearing the hue and cry and did not actually witness the execution of the crime with his own naked eyes. At best, his testimony is limited to the assertion that he saw the accused, Munna, holding a moosal in his hand and that the informant had informed him about the assault.

31. On the contrary, the informant, Smt. Jai Devi (PW-3) has explicitly denied these facts in her testimony, categorically asserting that 15 to 16 outside miscreants entered their courtyard, committed a loot, and inflicted blows upon the deceased, the accused, and herself, whereby they all sustained injuries. She has completely disowned the written report, stating that the tahrir was never written on her dictation and that the police merely obtained her thumb impression on a blank piece of paper on the next morning.

32. Consequently, the testimony of PW-4 cannot be termed as cogent, consistent, or believable. His derivative knowledge regarding the assault allegedly made by the accused stands completely contradicted and demolished by the very person the informant from whom he claims to have gathered such knowledge. Therefore, the testimony of PW-4 falls into the category of unreliable evidence and fails to provide the requisite independent corroboration to the prosecution case.

33. The other witness of fact produced by the prosecution is Pitamber, who was examined as PW-6, who also stated that upon raising of the alarm by the informant, Smt. Jai Devi, from inside the kothari, he rushed toward the house of Munna where Bhola, Chhote Lal, and Badri met him. Mulayam was having a torch. Jai Devi was screaming to save her and that someone was killing them. Then the western wall of the kothari was broken and after making an opening, they saw that Munna was having a moosal and was beating Jai Devi. Then they scolded the accused, Munna, and he left the moosal. Thereafter, they pulled Jai Devi out from the passage of the opening. He also stated that Jai Devi had dictated the report to him regarding the incident, and after being heard, she had put her thumb impression. On being cross-examined by the counsel of defense, he also stated that he did not tell the Investigating Officer that he saw inside the kothari that the accused was inflicting blows to Sri Ram, and if this statement has been recorded by the Investigating Officer, it is not in his knowledge. But he also admitted that the accused, Munna, sustained an injury on his neck. However, he denied the commission of the dacoity in the house of the informant on the date of the incident and he also denied that during the commission of a dacoity, the deceased was assaulted. He admitted that the murder of his uncle was conducted but he does not know whether in that trial the deceased, Sri Ram, was a witness or not. He denied that Munna had encroached on his field. He stated that the report was lodged at about 2:30 in the night, but he did not depose that in the night information was sought from the police station and police personnel arrived there.

34. From this evidence also, it reveals that he did not see through his naked eye that the accused, Munna was inflicting blows to the deceased. He only said Munna was having a moosal in his hand and Jai Devi has specifically denied this fact. Thus, the testimony of this witness, who is examined as an eye-witness, is not sufficient to prove the charge levelled against the accused, as his deposition has been contradicted by the informant and she had stated that she never dictated to Pitamber for the lodging of the FIR and the averments made in the FIR were prepared later on after taking her thumb impression on a blank paper. Moreover, the evidence of PW-6 as well as PW-4 may be circumstantial evidence that after a hue and cry they reached the spot and saw the deceased and Jai Devi, but from their evidence, it does not reveal that they witnessed the core execution of the incident.

35. Here it is to be notable that witnesses should be of sterling quality, as the Hon'ble Apex Court held in the case of Rai Sandeep Vs. State (NCT of Delhi), (2012) 8 SCC 21. The relevant paragraph of the said judgment is extracted herein-below:

"22. In our considered opinion, the sterling witness should be of a very high quality and calibre whose version should, therefore, be unassailable. The court considering the version of such witness should be in a position to accept it for its face value without any hesitation. To test the quality of such a witness, the status of the witness would be immaterial and what would be relevant is the truthfulness of the statement made by such a witness. What would be more relevant would be the consistency of the statement right from the starting point till the end, namely, at the time when the witness makes the initial statement and ultimately before the court. It should be natural and consistent with the case of the prosecution qua the accused. There should not be any prevarication in the version of such a witness. The witness should be in a position to withstand the cross-examination of any length and howsoever strenuous it may be and under no circumstance should give room for any doubt as to the factum of the occurrence, the persons involved, as well as the sequence of it. Such a version should have co-relation with each and every one of other supporting material such as the recoveries made, the weapons used, the manner of offence committed, the scientific evidence and the expert opinion. The said version should consistently match with the version of every other witness. It can even be stated that it should be akin to the test applied in the case of circumstantial evidence where there should not be any missing link in the chain of circumstances to hold the accused guilty of the offence alleged against him. Only if the version of such a witness qualifies the above test as well as all other such similar tests to be applied, can it be held that such a witness can be called as a sterling witness whose version can be accepted by the court without any corroboration and based on which the guilty can be punished. To be more precise, the version of the said witness on the core spectrum of the crime should remain intact while all other attendant materials, namely, oral, documentary and material objects should match the said version in material particulars in order to enable the court trying the offence to rely on the core version to sieve the other supporting materials for holding the offender guilty of the charge alleged."

36. In view of the law cited by the Hon'ble Apex Court regarding the sterling quality of a witness, when we examine the depositions made by PW-4 Mulayam and PW-6 Pitamber, we find that the quality of the testimonies of these witnesses is not of sterling quality. Their testimonies are mostly based on the statement of the informant, who is said to have narrated the story, while she herself has completely denied this statement in court.

37. Now the question arises as to why these witnesses of fact gave evidence against the accused. The accused has stated in his statement recorded under Section 313 of Cr.P.C. that the witnesses were inimical to him, since Pitamber always quarreled with him regarding the field of Lewa, and because the accused was in possession of the Lewa field, he was falsely implicated due to this enmity. It is a settled principle that enmity is a double-edged weapon that can cut both ways. One aspect is that it may rule out false implication, while the other aspect is that it may serve as a motive to take revenge by falsely implicating an innocent person with whom a dispute was pending earlier. In this regard, although it is apparent that there is no documentary evidence on record with regard to any earlier scuffle between the accused and Pitamber, the prosecution's star witness (the informant) stated in her deposition that Pitamber was inimical to the accused, Munna, because Munna had forcibly made an encroachment on the field of Pitamber. Thus, the possibility that the accused may have been falsely implicated due to pre-existing enmity cannot be ruled out.

38. It is also pertinent to observe that no report from the Forensic Science Laboratory (FSL) with regard to the blood-stained clothes and objects found on the spot has been produced before the court. There is not even an FSL report for the blood-stained earth and simple earth which had been collected during the course of the investigation from the alleged place of occurrence. No plausible explanation has been offered by the prosecution as to why this material evidence was prevented from being presented before the court, which also warrants an adverse inference against the prosecution case.

39. There is also a glaring fact that none of the sons of the deceased was examined by the prosecution. It appears from the record that a son of Sri Ram, as well as Bhola and the brother of the accused were residing in that very house on the date of the incident. Yet, the prosecution has failed to offer any plausible explanation for not examining any of them. They would have been the most natural witnesses because if an alarm was raised from inside the kothari, the persons who were inside the house and living adjacent to the kothari would naturally be the first to witness the occurrence. By failing to examine them, this material witness evidence was suppressed and not disclosed to the court and these circumstances weigh heavily against the prosecution for withholding the true facts.

40. Apart from this, another highly important fact is that the prosecution witnesses did not deny the fact that the accused also sustained injuries. The informant explicitly stated in her statement and Pitamber (PW-6) admitted during his cross-examination that Munna had sustained an injury on his throat. Despite this admission, no explanation regarding the injuries found on the person of the accused, Munna, was offered by the prosecution. In this regard, PW-5 also admitted that the accused had an injury on his person when he came to the police station. The Investigating Officer has also stated that the accused was not beaten after his arrest. This clearly establishes that if the injuries were not inflicted by the police personnel after his arrest, they must have occurred at the time the incident took place. Therefore, the probability of the statement given by the informant that 15 to 16 outside miscreants entered the courtyard, committed a loot, and took away her jewellery, cannot be ruled out.

41. It is also very surprising that as per the prosecution evidence, the deceased, Sri Ram, had arranged the marriage of the daughter of his brother-in-law to the accused prior to the incident. This fact clearly demonstrates that if there was indeed any deeply entrenched animosity or murderous friction between them, it would have been highly improbable for them to enter into such a close familial alliance and get their kith and kin married.

42. On a holistic and critical analysis of the facts, circumstances, and the evidence adduced by the prosecution in its entirety, it is manifest that the prosecution case suffers from deeply entrenched infirmities and major discrepancies. The very genesis of the prosecution case has been suppressed and the informant, who was the most natural and injured witness of the incident, completely discarded the prosecution version. By turning hostile, she explicitly refused to support the case in respect of the core allegation that the accused-respondent had assaulted the deceased and herself. The testimonies of other two witnesses of facts, namely PW-4 and PW-6, do not possess the attributes of sterling quality and are legally insufficient to sustain a conviction. Furthermore, a clear and credible motive is completely lacking on record.

43. The Hon'ble Supreme Court while considering the case of Kannaiya Vs. State of Madhya Pradesh; 2025 SCC OnLIne SC 2270, has referred the case of Pankaj Vs. State of Rajasthan, wherein it was emphasised that when the genesis and manner of the incident itself are doubtful, conviction cannot be sustained. The Court held as under:

"25. It is a well-settled principle of law that when the genesis and the manner of the incident is doubtful, the accused cannot be convicted. Inasmuch as the prosecution has failed to establish the circumstances in which the appellant was alleged to have fired at the deceased, the entire story deserves to be rejected. When the evidence produced by the prosecution has neither quality nor credibility, it would be unsafe to rest conviction upon such evidence. After having considered the matter thoughtfully, we find that the evidence on record in the case is not sufficient to bring home the guilt of the appellant. In such circumstances, the appellant is entitled to the benefit of doubt."

44. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the said case also referred the case of Bhagwan Sahai v. State of Rajasthan, holding that once the prosecution is found to have suppressed the origin and genesis of the occurrence, the only proper course is to grant the accused the benefit of doubt. The Court observed as follows:

"8. The aforesaid view of the High Court is devoid of legal merits. Once the Court came to a finding that the prosecution has suppressed the genesis and origin of the occurrence and also failed to explain the injuries on the person of the accused including death of father of the appellants, the only possible and probable course left open was to grant benefit of doubt to the appellants. The appellants can legitimately claim right to use force once they saw their parents being assaulted and when actually it has been shown that due to such assault and injury their father subsequently died. In the given facts, adverse inference must be drawn against the prosecution for not offering any explanation much less a plausible one. Drawing of such adverse inference is given a go-by in the case of free fight mainly because the occurrence in that case may take place at different spots and in such a manner that a witness may not reasonably be expected to see and therefore explain the injuries sustained by the defence party. This is not the factual situation in the present case."

45. Therefore, on the basis of the facts and circumstances emerging from the records available, the learned trial court reasonably and justifiably concluded that the prosecution had miserably failed to prove its case against the accused person beyond reasonable doubt. This Court does not find any manifest illegality, perversity, or jurisdictional error in the impugned judgment and order of acquittal. The findings recorded by the learned trial court are well-founded, legally sustainable, and based on a meticulous appreciation of the material available on the record. The view taken by the trial court is a highly plausible and reasonable view, which is in perfect consonance with the settled principles of law, warranting no interference by this Court.

46. In view of the above discussions, the instant Government Appeal preferred by the State lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

47. The impugned judgment and order of acquittal dated 30.04.1983 passed by the learned Sessions Judge, Hardoi in Sessions Trial No. 746 of 1982 is hereby upheld.

48. Let a copy of this judgment along with the lower court record be sent down to the trial court concerned forthwith for necessary information and compliance.

Habeas Corpus Writ Petition No. 801 of 2026

Rudra Parashar & Anr. ...Petitioner(s)
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondent(s)

Issue for Consideration

Whether respondent no.4 allegedly took the corpus into his custody without the knowledge or consent of mother and whether being a mother of the minor corpus who is below five years of age, she is entitled to the custody of minor corpus

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus Writ Petition); The Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956- Section 6(a)- From the documents annexed to the writ petition, it is apparent that the minor corpus had been admitted to a school at Ghaziabad and that the school fees were being paid by the petitioner. It is also evident that a dispute arose between the petitioner and respondent no.4 regarding the custody of the minor corpus. In this regard, both the parties appeared before Police Station Vijay Nagar, District Ghaziabad, on 15.05.2026, where respondent no.4 made a statement admitting that the minor corpus had been in his custody since 03.04.2026. During the said proceedings before the police authorities, a compromise was arrived at between the parties, whereby it was agreed that, after a period of five days, the custody of the minor corpus would remain with the petitioner for one month and thereafter with respondent no.4 for the succeeding one month, on an alternating basis, until the issue of custody was finally adjudicated by a competent court- A part of the cause of action has undeniably arisen within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court. Accordingly, in view of Article 226(2) of the Constitution of India, this Court has the territorial jurisdiction to entertain and adjudicate the present habeas corpus petition.

Under Section 6(a) of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, the custody of a minor who has not attained the age of five years ordinarily rests with the mother, unless there exist circumstances disentitling her from such custody- No material has been brought on record, nor has any circumstance been pointed out before the Court, which would disentitle the petitioner from having the custody of the minor corpus.

Held- The custody of the minor corpus is forthwith handed to the petitioner who is her mother. In order to maintain the emotional bonding between the respondent and the corpus, the respondent no.4, Akash Sharma is granted visitation rights.(E-15)

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Syed Fahim Ahmed
Counsel for Respondent(s) : G.A., Subir Lal

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. Compliance affidavits filed by the learned counsel for both the parties in Court today are taken on record.

2. By order dated 10.07.2026, the petitioner, Smt. Garima Sharma, and respondent no.4, Akash Sharma, were directed to remain personally present before this Court along with the minor corpus, Rudra Parashar. In compliance with the aforesaid order, both the parties, along with the minor corpus, are present before this Court.

3. This Court interacted with respondent no.4, Akash Sharma, who disclosed that he is employed with the World Bank at Delhi and is earning approximately Rs.4.5 lakhs per month. He further stated that he has admitted the minor corpus to a school at Faridabad, where he is presently pursuing his education. He further submitted that the minor corpus was taken from his custody at Faridabad and, therefore, this Court lacks territorial jurisdiction to entertain and decide the present habeas corpus petition. He also submitted that the petitioner is employed in Mumbai and, being a working woman, would not be in a position to personally look after the minor corpus. Accordingly, he contended that the custody of the minor corpus ought not to be handed over to the petitioner.

4. This Court also interacted with the petitioner, Smt. Garima Sharma, who disclosed that till April, 2026, the minor corpus had been residing with her. She further stated that she had admitted the minor corpus to a school at Ghaziabad, from where respondent no.4 allegedly took the corpus into his custody without her knowledge or consent. She submitted that, being the mother of the minor corpus and the corpus being below five years of age, she is entitled to his custody. She further disclosed that she is working as an Environmental Engineer in Mumbai and is earning approximately Rs.80,000/- per month. She also stated that during her working hours, the minor corpus would be looked after by her parents, who are willing to reside with her at Mumbai for that purpose.

5. This Court also interacted with the minor corpus, Rudra Parashar, aged about 3 years, with a view to ascertaining his upbringing, emotional attachment, and recognition of the parties. During the interaction, the corpus recognized both his mother and his father. He also indicated that his mother takes good care of him and expressed his inclination to reside with her.

6. The petitioner was also directed to take the minor corpus in her lap, and she duly complied with the said direction. During the interaction, it became evident that the minor corpus shared a strong emotional bond with the petitioner. The corpus remained comfortable and at ease in her company, freely interacted with her, and exhibited a clear sense of security and affection towards her. Although the corpus, being only about 3 years of age, is too young to express an independent and informed preference regarding his custody, this Court interacted with him solely for the limited purpose of assessing his emotional attachment and comfort level with the parties. From the interaction so held, this Court is of the prima facie opinion that the minor corpus is emotionally attached to and feels secure and comfortable in the company of his mother.

7. It is also apparent from the material brought on record that the minor corpus had been admitted to a school at Ghaziabad and that the petitioner's parents are available to look after the minor corpus during the petitioner's working hours.

8. A significant issue relating to the territorial jurisdiction of this Court has been raised by Sri Swetashwa Agarwal, learned Senior Counsel appearing for respondent no.4, which has been contested by Sri P.K. Jain, learned Senior Counsel, assisted by Sri Syed Fahim Ahmed, learned counsel for the petitioner.

9. Learned Senior Counsel appearing for respondent no.4 submitted that the minor corpus was in the custody of respondent no.4 at Faridabad and, therefore, the entire cause of action arose outside the territorial jurisdiction of this Court. It was accordingly contended that this Court lacks the territorial jurisdiction to entertain and adjudicate the present habeas corpus petition.

10. Per contra, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner submitted that the treatment records, school admission documents and fee receipts of the minor corpus have been brought on record, which clearly establish that the corpus had been residing at Ghaziabad and was admitted to a school there. He further submitted that both the petitioner and respondent no.4 were called to Police Station Vijay Nagar, District Ghaziabad, on 15.05.2026, where, with the intervention of the police authorities, a compromise was arrived at between the parties. Under the said compromise, it was agreed that the custody of the minor corpus would remain alternately with each parent for a period of one month. However, the respondent no.4 failed to abide by the terms of the said compromise. He further submitted that a copy of the compromise recorded at the police station has been annexed to the writ petition, wherein respondent no.4 expressly acknowledged that the minor corpus had been in his custody since 03.04.2026. According to the learned Senior Counsel, this admission itself establishes that, prior to the said date, the custody of the minor corpus was with the petitioner.

11. Learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner further submitted that the aforesaid admission made by respondent no.4 clearly establishes that the minor corpus was forcibly taken away from the custody of the petitioner at Ghaziabad. He contended that the cause of action, therefore, arose within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court, conferring jurisdiction upon this Court to entertain and adjudicate the present habeas corpus petition. In support of his submissions, learned Senior Counsel placed reliance upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Nawal Kishore Sharma v. Union of India and Others, (2014) 9 SCC 329.

12. I have heard the learned Senior Counsel appearing for the parties and have also interacted with the parties as well as the minor corpus for the purpose of ascertaining in whose custody the welfare and best interests of the minor corpus would be best secured.

13. From the documents annexed to the writ petition, it is apparent that the minor corpus had been admitted to a school at Ghaziabad and that the school fees were being paid by the petitioner. It is also evident that a dispute arose between the petitioner and respondent no.4 regarding the custody of the minor corpus. In this regard, both the parties appeared before Police Station Vijay Nagar, District Ghaziabad, on 15.05.2026, where respondent no.4 made a statement admitting that the minor corpus had been in his custody since 03.04.2026. During the said proceedings before the police authorities, a compromise was arrived at between the parties, whereby it was agreed that, after a period of five days, the custody of the minor corpus would remain with the petitioner for one month and thereafter with respondent no.4 for the succeeding one month, on an alternating basis, until the issue of custody was finally adjudicated by a competent court.

14. From the material brought on record, it is apparent that the minor corpus had been residing with the petitioner and was taken away by respondent no.4 from Ghaziabad on 03.04.2026. Thus, a part of the cause of action has undeniably arisen within the territorial jurisdiction of this Court. Accordingly, in view of Article 226(2) of the Constitution of India, this Court has the territorial jurisdiction to entertain and adjudicate the present habeas corpus petition.

15. It is further apparent that the minor corpus is only about 3 years of age. Under Section 6(a) of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, the custody of a minor who has not attained the age of five years ordinarily rests with the mother, unless there exist circumstances disentitling her from such custody. No material has been brought on record, nor has any circumstance been pointed out before this Court, which would disentitle the petitioner from having the custody of the minor corpus.

16. During the course of interaction, the minor corpus also expressed his inclination to reside with his mother. Although, considering his tender age, such preference cannot be treated as determinative, his conduct and demeanour before this Court clearly reflected that he is emotionally attached to, and feels secure and comfortable in the company of, his mother. This circumstance, coupled with the statutory presumption under Section 6(a) of the Hindu Minority and Guardianship Act, 1956, persuades this Court to hold that the welfare of the minor corpus would presently be best served in the custody of the petitioner. The corpus was very comfortable in the company of the petitioner and was having great emotional bonding with her, as such, the petitioner cannot be deprived from the company of the minor corpus.

17. It is also apparent that the petitioner is financially capable of taking good care of the corpus because she is educated and she is also supported by her parents and this Court is not under any apprehension that she will not ensure the welfare of the minor corpus.

18. This Court also tried its best to have a reconciliation between the spouses, but unfortunately this Court could not succeed in persuading them to reside together in order to ensure the paramount welfare of the minor corpus.

19. In view of the above circumstances, the custody of the minor corpus is forthwith handed to the petitioner Smt. Garima Sharma, who is her mother. In order to maintain the emotional bonding between the respondent and the corpus, the respondent no.4, Akash Sharma is granted visitation rights. He can visit the corpus as and when he desires after prior information to the petitioner at the residence of the petitioner. The respondent can also have interaction through video conferencing with the corpus as and when he desires, after the corpus returns from the school. The petitioner has assured that she will not create any obstruction or hindrance in such meeting or interaction. During school vacation, the respondent will be entitled to claim the custody of the minor corpus from the petitioner and after efflux of vacation, the respondent has assured that he will restore the custody of the corpus to the petitioner. The parties are restrained from taking out the corpus, outside India.

20. Subject to the above, this instant habeas corpus petition is disposed of.

Issue for Consideration

Whether upon enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021, disputes relating to eviction, recovery of rent and other ancillary reliefs in respect of premises governed by the said Act could continue to be entertained by the Court of Small Causes merely because the tenancy had earlier been determined by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, or whether such disputes fall within the exclusive adjudicatory mechanism created under the Act, 2021.

Head Notes

The Transfer of Property Act, 1882-Section 106; The Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021- Section 38(1)-Where a landlord-tenant dispute is instituted after the enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 and is otherwise governed by the provisions of the said Act, the forum competent to entertain such dispute must be determined with reference to the Act, 2021. The mere fact that the tenancy had earlier been determined by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 does not preserve the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes or exclude the operation of Section 38(1) of the Act, 2021- The reasoning adopted by the trial court cannot be sustained. The trial court failed to notice the distinction between the law governing the determination of a tenancy and the law governing the forum competent to adjudicate disputes arising there from. It erroneously assumed that determination of the tenancy under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 preserved the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes notwithstanding the coming into force of the Act, 2021 and the express jurisdictional bar enacted by Section 38(1). The impugned order dated 02.04.2026, therefore, suffers from a manifest error of law affecting the very assumption of jurisdiction and is liable to be set aside.

Held- S.C.C. Suit No.3 of 2021 is not maintainable before the Court of Small Causes and shall proceed no further before the said forum-Respondent-landlord shall, therefore, be at liberty to avail such remedy as may be available under the Act, 2021 before the authority competent in law. Revision allowed. Case Arising From SCC Revision No. 79 of 2025 is directed against the order dated 20.05.2025, whereby the learned trial court rejected the defendants' Application No.51C under Order VII Rule 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure seeking rejection of the plaint. SCC. Revision No.51 of 2026, in turn, assails the subsequent order dated 02.04.2026, whereby the learned trial court rejected Application No.87C raising a preliminary objection to the maintainability of the suit on the ground that, upon the enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 , the Court of Small Causes ceased to possess jurisdiction to entertain the proceedings.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Revisionist(s) : Utpal Chatterji
Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : Ashish Kumar Singh

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

Heard Sri Utpal Chaterji, learned counsel for the revisionists and Sri Ashish Kumar Singh, learned counsel appearing for the respondent.

2. These two revisions, preferred under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887, arise out of SCC Suit No.3 of 2021 (Jagdish Prasad Goel v. Manohar Lal (deceased) through Legal Representatives), pending before the Court of the Additional District & Sessions Judge/Fast Track Court-I, Judge, Small Causes Court, Hapur.

3. SCC Revision No. 79 of 2025 is directed against the order dated 20.05.2025, whereby the learned trial court rejected the defendants' Application No.51C under Order VII Rule 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure seeking rejection of the plaint. SCC. Revision No.51 of 2026, in turn, assails the subsequent order dated 02.04.2026, whereby the learned trial court rejected Application No.87C raising a preliminary objection to the maintainability of the suit on the ground that, upon the enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 20211, the Court of Small Causes ceased to possess jurisdiction to entertain the proceedings.

4. Since both revisions arise from the same suit and involve a common question concerning the maintainability of the proceedings in the light of the provisions of the Act, 2021, they have been heard together and are being decided by this common judgment.

5. The principal controversy raised in these revisions is whether a suit instituted on 20.08.2021, after the enforcement of the Act, 2021, could validly be entertained by the Court of Small Causes or whether, by virtue of the statutory scheme of the said Act, the jurisdiction of that Court stood excluded. It is in that context that the revisionists seek to assail the impugned orders and press their objections to the maintainability of the suit, including the application under Order VII Rule 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure seeking rejection of the plaint.

6. The dispute in the present revisions pertains to two shops bearing old Municipal Nos. 3 and 4, new Municipal Nos. 4 and 5 and present Municipal Nos. 1-1/163/4 and 1-1/163/5, situated near Shanti Bhavan, Railway Road, Hapur, District Hapur. The premises were originally let out by late Narayan Das, the predecessor-in-interest of the plaintiff-respondent, to Manohar Lal, the predecessor-in-interest of the present revisionists. Upon the demise of Narayan Das, the respondent, Jagdish Prasad Goel, succeeded to the ownership as well as the landlordship of the disputed premises.

7. Alleging default in payment of rent and seeking determination of the tenancy, the respondent-landlord served upon Manohar Lal a notice dated 15.07.2021 under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. The notice was duly replied to on 09.08.2021, disputing the allegations levelled therein.

8. Thereafter, on 20.08.2021, the respondent instituted S.C.C. Suit No.3 of 2021 before the Judge, Small Causes Court, Hapur, seeking eviction of the tenant from the disputed premises together with recovery of arrears of rent, damages and other consequential reliefs. During the pendency of the suit, the original defendant, Manohar Lal, died on 12.10.2022, whereupon the present revisionists were brought on record as his legal representatives.

9. Following their substitution, the defendants moved Application No. 51C under Order VII Rule 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure seeking rejection of the plaint. It was principally urged that, the suit having been instituted after the enforcement of the Act, 2021, the Court of Small Causes lacked jurisdiction to entertain it and that, in any event, the plaint disclosed no cause of action against the substituted legal representatives. The application was contested by the plaintiff and came to be rejected by the trial court by order dated 20.05.2025.

10. Subsequently, on 25.02.2026, the defendants filed Application No. 87C once again questioning the maintainability of the suit. The application was founded primarily upon the decision of this Court in Canara Bank Branch Office and Another v. Sri Ashok Kumar @ Heera Singh, wherein, according to the defendants, it had been authoritatively held that disputes of the present nature were governed by the provisions of the Act, 2021 and, consequently, lay beyond the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes.

11. The plaintiff opposed the aforesaid application contending, inter alia, that the question of maintainability had already been adjudicated while deciding Application No. 51C and that the subsequent application was nothing but an attempt to reopen the same controversy solely on the basis of a subsequent judicial pronouncement.

12. By the impugned order dated 02.04.2026, the trial court rejected Application No. 87C, holding that the issue of maintainability already stood concluded by its earlier order dated 20.05.2025 passed on Application No.51C and that the decision in Canara Bank did not alter the legal position governing the controversy. The trial court consequently directed the parties to proceed with the trial in accordance with the earlier directions issued for its expeditious disposal.

13. Aggrieved thereby, the defendants have preferred S.C.C. Revision No.79 of 2025 against the order dated 20.05.2025 and S.C.C. Revision No.51 of 2026 against the subsequent order dated 02.04.2026.

14. In the aforesaid factual backdrop, the rival submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties fall for consideration.

15. Learned counsel appearing for the revisionists submits that the principal controversy involved in the present revisions is no longer res integra in view of the decision of this Court in Akhilesh Kumar v. Sanjay Sahgal. It is contended that the said decision has authoritatively interpreted the provisions of the Act, 2021 and conclusively settled the legal position regarding the forum competent to entertain proceedings instituted after the enforcement of the said Act. It is, therefore, submitted that the view taken by the trial court on the question of maintainability is plainly inconsistent with the law so declared and, consequently, both the impugned orders are liable to be set aside.

16. Learned counsel appearing for the respondent-landlord fairly does not dispute the legal principles enunciated in Akhilesh Kumar. He, however, submits that the controversy in the present case must be examined in the light of the ratio laid down therein and the facts obtaining herein. According to learned counsel, the correctness of the impugned orders falls to be tested on the touchstone of the aforesaid principles.

17. In view of the aforesaid submissions, the principal question that arises for consideration is whether, upon the enforcement of the Act, 2021, disputes relating to eviction, recovery of rent and other ancillary reliefs in respect of premises governed by the said Act could continue to be entertained by the Court of Small Causes merely because the tenancy had earlier been determined by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, or whether such disputes fall within the exclusive adjudicatory mechanism created under the Act, 2021.

18. The impugned order dated 02.04.2026 reveals that the trial court rejected the defendants' objection to the maintainability of the suit substantially on two grounds. Firstly, it held that an identical objection had already been considered and rejected while deciding Application No. 51C by order dated 20.05.2025 and, therefore, the issue could not be permitted to be re-agitated. Secondly, while noticing the reliance placed by the defendants upon the decision of this Court in Canara Bank, the trial court took the view that the said decision did not support the defendants' contention and that the proceedings could validly continue before the Court of Small Causes. Proceeding on the premise that the tenancy had already been determined by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 before institution of the suit, it concluded that the provisions of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 had no application and that the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes remained unaffected.

19. The reasoning adopted by the trial court thus rests on the fundamental premise that once the contractual tenancy had been determined under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the subsequent dispute continued to be governed exclusively by the said enactment, with the consequence that the coming into force of the Act, 2021 neither altered the forum competent to entertain the proceedings nor affected the legal regime governing the dispute. The trial court further held that, since the plaint itself asserted the inapplicability of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972, there was no occasion to examine whether the dispute was governed by the provisions of the Act, 2021.

20. The question that falls for consideration is whether the aforesaid reasoning is consistent with the statutory scheme and legislative mandate embodied in the Act, 2021.

21. The effect of the enforcement of the Act, 2021 on proceedings instituted thereafter, its interaction with the provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, and the question whether disputes governed by the Act, 2021 continue to be triable by the Court of Small Causes merely because the tenancy had earlier been determined by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, have since received authoritative consideration by this Court in Akhilesh Kumar. The principles emerging therefrom, read in conjunction with the statutory provisions of the Act, 2021, furnish the appropriate framework for examining the correctness of the reasoning adopted by the trial court.

22. The Act, 2021 is a special and self-contained enactment governing the rights and obligations of landlords and tenants in respect of premises to which it applies. Besides creating substantive rights and liabilities, the Act establishes a specialised adjudicatory mechanism for the enforcement thereof. The requirement of execution and submission of a written tenancy agreement contemplated under Section 4 is essentially regulatory and evidentiary in character. The absence of such an agreement, or non-submission of the particulars envisaged therein, does not, by itself, exclude the applicability of the Act or denude the Rent Authority of jurisdiction, particularly where the jural relationship of landlord and tenant is admitted or is otherwise capable of being established.

23. Section 38 (1) embodies the legislative mandate in clear and unequivocal terms. Its effect is to exclude the jurisdiction of the civil courts in respect of disputes which fall within the substantive and remedial framework of the Act, except to the extent expressly provided therein. The opening non-obstante clause, read together with the express bar enacted under the provision, unmistakably manifests the legislative intent that disputes governed by the Act are to be adjudicated exclusively by the authorities constituted thereunder. Once it is found that a dispute is governed by the provisions of the Act, 2021, the jurisdiction of the ordinary civil courts, including the Court of Small Causes, stands excluded by virtue of the express bar enacted under Section 38(1).

24. The statutory exclusion contained in Section 38(1) cannot be rendered nugatory merely because, prior to institution of the proceedings, the landlord had determined the tenancy by issuing a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. Service of a notice under Section 106 merely determines the contractual tenancy and furnishes the landlord with a cause of action to seek eviction. It neither determines the forum competent to adjudicate the ensuing dispute nor creates, preserves or enlarges the jurisdiction of any particular court. The forum before which such right is to be enforced is governed by the law in force on the date the proceedings are instituted and not by the law under which the cause of action arose.

25. The jurisdiction of a court is determined by the law in force on the date on which the proceedings are instituted unless the statute expressly provides otherwise. The date on which the cause of action accrued or the tenancy stood determined is relevant only for the accrual of the right to sue; it does not determine the forum competent to entertain the proceedings. While determination of a tenancy under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 furnishes the landlord with a cause of action to seek eviction, it neither creates nor preserves the jurisdiction of any particular forum. The question of jurisdiction must, therefore, be answered with reference to the statutory regime governing adjudication on the date of institution of the proceedings.

26. This distinction assumes particular significance in the present case. The tenancy may have stood determined by the notice dated 15.07.2021 issued under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. However, the suit itself came to be instituted on 20.08.2021, by which date the Act, 2021 had already come into force. The determinative date for deciding the question of jurisdiction is, therefore, the date of institution of the proceedings and not the date on which the contractual tenancy stood terminated. Jurisdiction is attracted by the law prevailing on the date proceedings are instituted and cannot be preserved merely because the cause of action had arisen under an earlier legal regime. Any other interpretation would enable litigants to circumvent the legislative mandate embodied in Section 38(1) simply by issuing a notice under Section 106 prior to institution of the proceedings, thereby frustrating the object of the Act in creating an exclusive statutory mechanism for adjudication of landlord-tenant disputes and introducing a distinction, founded solely on the date of determination of the tenancy rather than the date of institution of the proceedings, which finds no support either in the language or the scheme of the Act, 2021.

27. The legal position may, therefore, be summarised thus. Where a landlord-tenant dispute is instituted after the enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021 and is otherwise governed by the provisions of the said Act, the forum competent to entertain such dispute must be determined with reference to the Act, 2021. The mere fact that the tenancy had earlier been determined by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 does not preserve the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes or exclude the operation of Section 38(1) of the Act, 2021.

28. The further observation of the trial court that, since the tenancy had been determined under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the proceedings continued to be governed by that enactment and, consequently, remained maintainable before the Court of Small Causes, proceeds on a manifest misconception of the legal position. The Transfer of Property Act regulates the substantive incidents relating to the creation and determination of leases; it neither confers nor preserves the jurisdiction of any particular forum. Once the Act, 2021 came into force and the dispute fell within its substantive and remedial framework, the forum competent to entertain such dispute necessarily stood governed by the later special enactment.

29. Tested on the aforesaid legal position, the reasoning adopted by the trial court cannot be sustained. The trial court failed to notice the distinction between the law governing the determination of a tenancy and the law governing the forum competent to adjudicate disputes arising therefrom. It erroneously assumed that determination of the tenancy under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 preserved the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes notwithstanding the coming into force of the Act, 2021 and the express jurisdictional bar enacted by Section 38(1). The impugned order dated 02.04.2026, therefore, suffers from a manifest error of law affecting the very assumption of jurisdiction and is liable to be set aside.

30. Turning now to the order dated 20.05.2025, it is evident that the trial court rejected Application No.51C under Order VII Rule 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure by repelling two distinct objections raised by the defendants. The first related to the alleged absence of a cause of action against the substituted legal representatives, while the second pertained to the maintainability of the suit before the Court of Small Causes in the light of the enforcement of the Act, 2021.

31. Insofar as the first objection is concerned, this Court finds no infirmity in the view taken by the trial court. It is trite that while considering an application under Order VII Rule 11 CPC, the Court is required to confine itself to the averments contained in the plaint and the documents relied upon by the plaintiff. The plaint, as amended after substitution, specifically impleads the legal representatives of the deceased defendant and seeks the reliefs originally claimed against the estate represented by them. Upon the death of a party during the pendency of the proceedings, his legal representatives step into his shoes and represent his estate for the purposes of the litigation. It cannot, therefore, be said that the plaint discloses no cause of action against the substituted defendants. The rejection of Application No. 51C to that extent, therefore, warrants no interference.

32. The second objection, however, stands on an entirely different footing. While rejecting the application, the trial court proceeded on the premise that, since the plaint itself pleaded that the provisions of the U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972 were inapplicable and the tenancy had been determined by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, the suit continued to remain maintainable before the Court of Small Causes notwithstanding the enforcement of the Act, 2021.

33. The approach, however, overlooks the real issue arising for consideration. The question was not whether the Act of 1972 applied to the dispute, but whether, on the date of institution of the suit, the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes stood excluded by reason of the statutory scheme of the Act, 2021. Likewise, the determination of the tenancy under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act was relevant only for the accrual of the landlord's cause of action and not for determining the forum competent to adjudicate the dispute. The trial court thus addressed itself to considerations which were legally irrelevant while failing to examine the jurisdictional consequences flowing from Sections 4 and 38 of the Act, 2021.

34. In view of the foregoing discussion, this Court is of the considered opinion that the trial court proceeded on an erroneous understanding of the statutory scheme of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021. The premise that determination of the tenancy by a notice under Section 106 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, coupled with the admitted inapplicability of the U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972, was sufficient to preserve the jurisdiction of the Court of Small Causes is legally unsustainable. The trial court failed to appreciate that the forum competent to entertain the dispute was required to be determined with reference to the provisions of the Act, 2021, which had already come into force on the date of institution of the suit. The findings recorded in both the impugned orders on the question of maintainability, therefore, suffer from a manifest error of law warranting interference in exercise of revisional jurisdiction under Section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887.

35. However, insofar as the rejection of the objection founded upon the alleged absence of a cause of action against the substituted legal representatives is concerned, the trial court has committed no error. The finding that the plaint discloses a cause of action against the legal representatives, who represent the estate of the deceased defendant, is in consonance with the settled principles governing Order VII Rule 11 of the Code of Civil Procedure and, therefore, calls for no interference.

36. The findings recorded by the learned trial court on the issue of maintainability in both the impugned orders are, therefore, liable to be set aside.

37. Consequently, S.C.C. Revision No.79 of 2025 and S.C.C. Revision No.51 of 2026 are allowed. The orders dated 20.05.2025 and 02.04.2026 passed by the Judge, Small Causes Court, Hapur are hereby set aside insofar as they hold that S.C.C. Suit No.3 of 2021 is maintainable before the Court of Small Causes notwithstanding the enforcement of the Uttar Pradesh Regulation of Urban Premises Tenancy Act, 2021.

38. As a necessary consequence, it is declared that S.C.C. Suit No.3 of 2021 is not maintainable before the Court of Small Causes and shall proceed no further before the said forum.

39. At this stage, learned counsel appearing for the respondent-landlord prays that liberty be reserved in favour of the respondent to institute appropriate proceedings under the provisions of the Act, 2021 in respect of the relief of eviction claimed against the tenant. The prayer merits acceptance.

40. The respondent-landlord shall, therefore, be at liberty to avail such remedy as may be available under the Act, 2021 before the authority competent in law. It is clarified that this Court has not expressed any opinion on the merits of the rival claims and that all questions of fact and law are expressly left open to be urged and adjudicated before the competent authority in accordance with law.

Transfer Application (Criminal) No. 79 of 2026

Satyendra Nath Shukla ...Applicant(s)
Versus
State of U.P. ...Opposite Party(s)

Issue for Consideration

Whether learned Session judge rightly came to a conclusion that transferring the trial to another Court of Additional Session Judge in the same Sessions Division, which is presided by a Presiding Officer, who has recorded the testimony of as many as nine prosecution witnesses, deserves to be transferred to the Court presided by the same Presiding Officer.

Head Notes

The Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973- Section 326, 407, 408 & 482- When an applicant files an application before the Sessions Judge for transfer of a case under Section 408 CrPC and that application is rejected, the applicant can approach the High Court by filing a transfer application under Section 407 CrPC, as is specifically mentioned in the proviso appended to Sub-section (2) of Section 407. However, when a transfer application filed under Section 408 CrPC is allowed by the Sessions Judge, the person aggrieved by the transfer order cannot challenge the same by filing another application under section 407 CrPC. The validity of a transfer order can only be challenged by invoking the inherent powers of the High Court, as acknowledged by Section 482 CrPC

Held- the Courts should give due consideration to the demeanor of the witnesses. When the trial commenced and continued till recording of deposition of PW-9 before a particular Presiding Officer in the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow and the Presiding Officer of that Court had the advantage of watching the demeanor of nine prosecution witnesses, which include all the witnesses of fact, and thereafter that Presiding Officer was transferred to another Court in the same Sessions Division, if the learned Sessions Judge found it appropriate to transfer the trial to the Court of Additional Sessions Judge presided by a Presiding Officer who has recorded the deposition of PW-1 to PW-9, then the Session Judge has not committed any error or illegality and the transfer order does not defeat the ends of justice, warranting interference by the High Court in exercise of its inherent power.
Application dismissed. (E-15)

Case Arising From

Order dated 29.06.2026, passed by the Session Judge, Lucknow, allowing Transfer Application bearing Criminal Misc. Case No.783 of 2026, filed by the opposite party no.2 for transferring Session Trial No. 2707 of 2024 titled State Vs. Anshuman Pandey arising out of F.I.R. No.416 of 2013, Police Station Gomti Nagar, District Lucknow from the Court of Additional SessionJudge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow to the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court No. 4/Special Judge Gangsters Act, Lucknow

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Sushil Kumar Singh, Ayush Singh
Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : G.A., Ayodhya Prasad Mishra A.p. Mishra, Rituraj

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sushil Kumar Singh, the learned counsel for the petitioner, Sri Rajiv Kumar Verma, the learned A.G.A.-I appearing on behalf of the State and Sri Ayodhya Prasad Mishra, who has put in appearance on behalf of the opposite party no.2 and filed his vakalatnama, which is taken on record.

2. By means of the instant petition filed under Section 407 Cr.P.C. the petitioner has challenged the validity of an order dated 29.06.2026, passed by the Session Judge, Lucknow, allowing Transfer Application bearing Criminal Misc. Case No.783 of 2026, filed by the opposite party no.2 for transferring Session Trial No. 2707 of 2024 titled State Vs. Anshuman Pandey arising out of F.I.R. No.416 of 2013, Police Station Gomti Nagar, District Lucknow from the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow to the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court No. 4/Special Judge Gangsters Act, Lucknow.

3. Briefly stated, facts of the case are that the opposite party no.2 filed an application under Section 408 Cr.P.C. seeking transfer of Session Trial No. 2707 of 2024 from the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow to the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court No. 5/Special Judge, Gangsters Act, Lucknow, on the ground that previously the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow was presided by Shri Abhinay Kumar Mishra, H.J.S. and he has recorded the testimony of as many as nine prosecution witnesses. Thereafter, Shri Abhinay Kumar Mishra, H.J.S. got transferred to the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court No. 4/Special Judge Gangsters Act, Lucknow, i.e., within the same Sessions Division. Shri Shashwat Pandey, HJS took over the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow.

4. It was stated in the transfer application that Shri Abhinay Kumar Mishra HJS had conducted substantial proceedings in the trial and he is presiding over the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court number 5/Special Judge Gangsters Act, Lucknow within the same Session Division. The continuance of trial before the Presiding Officer who has already heard substantial part of the matter, would advance the cause of fair trial, judicial continuity, proper appreciation of evidence and judicial economy. The opposite party no.2 relied upon a decision rendered by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Punjab Singh Vs. State of U.P.: 1983 Cr.L.J. 205.

5. The applicant-complainant filed an application for impleadment in the transfer application, which was allowed. The learned counsel for the applicant opposed the transfer application by submitting that the Court where the trial has been transferred has already recorded the testimony of PW-10 and no useful purpose would be served by sending the case to some other Court. It was also submitted that the applicant has not leveled any allegation of bias against the Presiding Officer of the transferee Court, the prosecution evidence is complete and the transferee Court has jurisdiction to conclude the trial.

6. The learned Session Judge allowed the transfer application on the ground that Shri Abhinay Kumar Mishra, H.J.S. has recorded the testimony of as many as nine prosecution witnesses and keeping in view the provisions contained in Section 326 Cr.P.C. and the law laid down by the High Court in the case of Punjab Singh (Supra).

7. Assailing the validity of the aforesaid transfer order, the learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that Section 326 Cr.P.C. specifically provides that after transfer of a Presiding Officer, the subsequent incumbent will have the jurisdiction to decide the trial and Section 326 Cr.P.C. does not provide that after transfer of the presiding officer, in case he is posted in another Court in the same Sessions Division, the trial should be transferred to his Court. The learned counsel for the applicant has submitted that Punjab Singh (supra) was decided keeping in view the provisions contained in Section 350 of the Criminal Procedure Code. 1898, which had since been repealed. Section 326 of Cr.P.C., 1973 which has replaced Section 350 of Cr.P.C. of 1989, does not contain the provisions which was there in Section 350 Cr.P.C., 1898.

8. He has placed reliance on the judgments of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the cases of Ranbir Yadav Vs. State of Bihar: (1995) 4 SCC 392 and Bhaskar alias Prabhaskar and others Vs. State represented by Inspector of Police, Vellore, Taluk Police Station, Vellore: (1999) 9 SCC 551. He has also placed reliance on judgment of a coordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Anil Kumar Agarwal Vs. State of U.P.:(2015) 89 ACC 723: 2014 SCC OnLine All 16193.

9. The undisputed facts of the case, so far as are relevant for adjudication of this transfer application are not in dispute. The learned counsel for the parties agree that the trial commenced in the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow while this Court was presided over by Shri Abhinay Kumar Mishra, H.J.S. The testimony of PW-1 to PW-9 was recorded while the aforesaid Court was presided over by Shri Abhinay Kumar Mishra. Thereafter, he got transferred to the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court No.4/Special Judge, Gangsters Act, in Lucknow Sessions Division itself. Shri Shashwat Pandey, H.J.S. got posted in the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow and he took over the trial from the stage attained by his predecessor. Thereafter the Court recorded the testimony of PW-10. The transfer application was moved on 14.05.2026 on the ground that continuation of trial before the Presiding Officer who had already heard a substantial part of the matter, would advance the cause of fair trial, judicial continuity, proper appreciation of evidence and judicial economy.

10. In Punjab Singh v. State of Uttar Pradesh (supra) a Division bench of this Court held that: -

"29. Section 326 thus deals with part-heard cases and provides for the powers of the Judge and the procedure to be followed by him in respect thereof with reference to the situations arising therein. The part-heard case in an inquiry or trial has to reach a stage where the Judge has heard and recorded the whole or any part of the evidence therein, and thereafter if the Judge ceases to exercise jurisdiction therein and is succeeded by another Judge who has or would exercise such jurisdiction, namely, the jurisdiction to continue the trial, he may act on the evidence recorded by his predecessor or may record the evidence himself, and then conclude the trial. In this regard, if the succeeding Judge finds it necessary that he should re-summon the witnesses or any of them, he may do so, and after such further examination, cross-examination or re-examination as he may permit, the witness or witnesses may be discharged.

31. It is the right of an accused that his case should be decided by a Judge who has heard and recorded the evidence*. Thus, unless the jurisdiction of the Judge to continue the trial is taken away expressly or by necessary implication either under a statutory provision or an order passed to that effect by a competent authority, the Judge shall continue to exercise the jurisdiction to continue a part-heard trial, and he would not be deemed to have been divested of it merely because a change has taken place in his designation. If this be not the true rule,* successive changes in the designation of Additional Sessions Judges would result in successive change of hands in the trial of part-heard cases, which does not seem to be the intention of the legislature behind the provisions of Section 326."

11. The learned Counsel for the petitioner has relied upon the law laid down by the Hon ble Supreme Court in Ranbir Yadav (Supra). In that case, Mr Jethmalani, the learned counsel appearing for all the appellants had submitted that the High Court had no power to transfer the case from the 10th Court to the 5th Court and that too by an administrative order at a stage when, admittedly, the trial had already commenced. He submitted that as per Section 194 of the Code, the power of the High Court to direct a particular court to try a case could be exercised only at the initial stage where trial was yet to commence and not thereafter. He next contended that the Section 407 Cr.P.C. empowered the High Court to transfer a case, but such a power could be exercised judicially only after complying with the requirements thereof and hearing the parties. As, admittedly, the High Court did not exercise such judicial power, the order of transfer whereby the 5th Court acquired jurisdiction, must be held to be void and ineffective. The order of transfer passed by the High Court was not produced before the Hon ble Supreme Court and the Hon ble Supreme Court noted that, had it been produced, the Court would have known the facts and circumstances which prompted the High Court to pass that order and clearly apprehended the source of power. However, from the material on record, it appeared that the order was passed by the High Court in its administrative jurisdiction. The Hon ble Supreme Court held that: -

"12. …Under Article 227 of the Constitution of India every High Court has superintendence over all courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction and it is trite that this power of superintendence entitles the High Court to pass orders for administrative exigency and expediency. In the instant case it appears that the High Court had exercised the power of transfer in the context of the petition filed by some of the accused from jail complaining that they could not be accommodated in the courtroom as a result of which some of them had to remain outside. It further appears that the other grievance raised was that the court was so crowded that even clerks of the lawyers were not being allowed to enter the courtroom to carry the briefs. Such a situation was obviously created by the trial of a large number of persons. If in the context of the above facts, the High Court exercised its plenary administrative power to transfer the case to the 5th Court, which, we assume had a bigger and better arrangement to accommodate the accused, lawyers and others connected with the trial no exception can be taken to the same, particularly by those at whose instance and for whose benefit the power was exercised….."

Mr Jethmalani, however, contended that administrative power could not be exercised at a stage when judicial power was not only available and operational but was equally effective and efficacious. He contended that, if the former was not contained, the latter would be nugatory. The Hon ble Supreme Court rejected this contention by holding that: -

"13. We are unable to share the above view of Mr Jethmalani. So long as power can be and is exercised purely for administrative exigency without impinging upon and prejudicially affecting the rights or interests of the parties to any judicial proceeding we do not find any reason to hold that administrative powers must yield place to judicial powers simply because in a given circumstance they coexist. On the contrary, the present case illustrates how exercise of administrative powers were more expedient, effective and efficacious. If the High Court had intended to exercise its judicial powers of transfer invoking Section 407 of the Code it would have necessitated compliance with all the procedural formalities thereof, besides providing adequate opportunities to the parties of a proper hearing which, resultantly, would have not only delayed the trial but further incarceration of some of the accused. It is obvious, therefore, that by invoking its power of superintendence, instead of judicial powers, the High Court not only redressed the grievances of the accused and others connected with the trial but did it with utmost dispatch."

In Ranbir Yadav (Supra), the Hon ble Supreme Court referred to the legislative history behind Section 326 of the Code. In the Code of 1898 the corresponding section was Section 350 and, so far as was material for the purposes of the case, read as under [Prior to its amendment by Act 26 of 1915]:

"(1) Whenever any Magistrate, after having heard and recorded the whole or any part of the evidence in an inquiry or a trial, ceases to exercise jurisdiction therein*, and is* succeeded by another Magistrate who has and who exercises such jurisdiction, the Magistrate so succeeding may act on the evidence so recorded by his predecessor, or partly recorded by his predecessor and partly recorded by himself or he may re-summon the witnesses and recommence the inquiry or trial.

Provided as follows:

(a) in any trial the accused may, when the second Magistrate commences his proceedings, demand that the witnesses or any of them be re-summoned and reheard;

(b) the High Court or, in cases tried by Magistrates subordinate to the District Magistrate, the District Magistrate may, whether there be an appeal or not, set aside any conviction passed on evidence not wholly recorded by the Magistrate before whom the conviction was held, if such Court or District Magistrate is of opinion that the accused has been materially prejudiced thereby, and may order a new inquiry or trial."

(emphasis supplied by the Hon ble Supreme Court)

The Hon ble Supreme Court noted that the Legislature added the following sub-section to Section 350(1) by Section 4 of Act XVIII of 1923: -

"(3) When a case is transferred under the provisions of this Code from one Magistrate to another, the former shall be deemed to cease to exercise jurisdiction therein, and to be succeeded by the latter within the meaning of sub-section (1)."

The next legislative change in Section 350 of the Code of 1898 was brought about by Act 26 of 1955. By that, in sub-section (1) of the section for the words or he may re-summon the witnesses and recommence the inquiry or trial and the proviso, the following proviso was substituted: -

"Provided that if the succeeding Magistrate is of opinion that further examination of any of the witnesses whose evidence has already been recorded is necessary in the interests of justice, he may re-summon any such witness and after such further examination, cross-examination, and re-examination, if any, as he may permit, the witness shall be discharged."

When the Code of 1898 was repealed and replaced by the Code of 1973, Section 350 was renumbered as 326 without any textual change. However, later on by the Criminal Procedure Code (Amendment) Act, 1978 the section was amended to vest the power and discretion exercisable thereunder by a Magistrate to a Judge also. With the amendments detailed above Section 326 read, at the time the trial in question took place, and still reads as follows:

"326. (1) Whenever any Judge or Magistrate, after having heard and recorded the whole or any part of the evidence in an inquiry or a trial, ceases to exercise jurisdiction therein and is succeeded by another Judge or Magistrate who has and who exercises such jurisdiction, the Judge or Magistrate so succeeding may act on the evidence so recorded by his predecessor, or partly recorded by his predecessor and partly recorded by himself:

Provided that if the succeeding Judge or Magistrate is of opinion that further examination of any of the witnesses whose evidence has already been recorded is necessary in the interests of justice, he may re-summon any such witness, and after such further examination, cross-examination and re-examination, if any, as he may permit, the witness shall be discharged.

(2) When a case is transferred under the provisions of this Code from one Judge to another Judge or from one Magistrate to another Magistrate, the former shall be deemed to cease to exercise jurisdiction therein, and to be succeeded by the latter, within the meaning of sub-section (1).

*(3) ***"*

(emphasis supplied by the Hon ble Supreme Court)

The Hon ble Supreme Court concluded that: -

"20. From a comparative reading of sub-section (1) of Section 350 as it stood prior to its amendment in 1955 and as it stands since then with the change in its numeral and inclusion of the word Judge therein we find that the discretion earlier given to the Presiding Officer of the Court to act on the evidence recorded by his predecessor or partly recorded by his predecessor and partly recorded by him still remains. But so far as the other option is concerned, while earlier he could re-summon the witnesses and recommence the inquiry or trial which necessarily meant a de novo trial he can now only re-summon a witness who has already been examined for further examination and discharge him after such further examination, cross-examination and re-examination, if any. It is evident therefore that now the Magistrate or Judge can exercise his judicial discretion only for further examination of a witness already examined and not for fresh examination of witnesses for a fresh trial. Obviously, keeping in view the inevitable frequent changes in the office of the Magistrate and Judge and in order to provide a speedy trial the legislature has taken away the well-established right of the accused to claim a de novo trial and that of the court to so direct by express words of the amending statute of 1955....."

In the case of Bhaskar @ Prabhaskar (Supra), the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that: -

"15. The archaic concept was that the very same judicial personage who heard and recorded the evidence must decide the case. That concept was in vogue for a long time. But over the years it was revealed in practice that fossilisation of the said concept, instead of fostering the administration of criminal justice, was doing the reverse. Very occasionally the judicial officer of one Court was changed and was replaced by another. As evidence had to be recorded afresh by the new officer under the old system, witnesses who were already examined in the cases at the cost of considerable strain and expenses not only to them but to the exchequer were resummoned and re-examined. The litigation cost thereby inflicted on the parties used to soar up. The process would have to be repeated over again if such next judicial personage also was changed. Eventually it was learnt that the object sought to be achieved by such repetitions, when compared with the enormous cost and trouble, was not of much utility. Hence the legislature wanted to discontinue the aforesaid antediluvian practice and decided to afford option to the successor judicial officer. The legislature conferred such option only on the Magistrates at the first instance and at the same time empowered them to re-examine the witnesses already examined if they considered such a course necessary for the interest of justice. As the new experiment showed positive results towards fostering the cause of criminal justice the Law Commission recommended that such option should advisedly be extended to Judges of all other trial Courts also."

12. In Anil Kumar Agarwal (Supra) the earlier Presiding Officer of the Court of Special Judge Anti-Corruption (UPSEB) recorded the testimony of all 26 prosecution witnesses and 8 defence witnesses and then the case was listed for writing of judgment. At this stage he got transferred. The successor Judge had the jurisdiction to try the offences concerned, he also recorded evidence of some of the witnesses of defence and also decided some applications left to be decided by his predecessor. After relying on the decisions in the cases of Bhaskar, Punjab Singh & Ranbir Yadav and (Supra) without giving any specific answer to the question formulated, the Court found no merit in the transfer application, for the apparent reason that the transfer Court had jurisdiction to decide the trial.

13. In Anil Kumar Agarwal (Supra), this Court had proceeded on the premise that the main controversy is on the issue; Whether transferred Judge have ceased to exercise jurisdiction in that case ? There can be no dispute that the successor Judge will have the jurisdiction to decide the case, as the jurisdiction is vested in the Court and not vested in the Presiding Officer .

14. In the present case, the Session Judge has exercised the power of transfer of trial conferred by Section 408 Cr.P.C., which reads as follows: -

"408. Power of Sessions Judge to transfer cases and appeals. - (1) Whenever it is made to appear to a Sessions Judge that an order under this sub-section is expedient for the ends of justice, he may order that any particular case be transferred from one Criminal Court to another Criminal Court in his sessions division.

(2) The Sessions Judge may act either on the report of the lower Court, or on the application of a party interested, or on his own initiative.

(3) The provisions of sub-sections (3), (4), (5), (6), (7) and (9) of Section 407 shall apply in relation to an application to the Sessions Judge for an order under sub-section (1) as they apply in relation to an application to the High Court for an order under sub-section (1) of Section 407, except that sub-section (7) of that section shall so apply as if for the words one thousand rupees occurring therein, the words two hundred and fifty rupees were substituted."

15. The transfer was neither sought on the ground that the transferee Court has no jurisdiction to decide the same nor has the case been transferred on the ground. Therefore, the judgments relied upon by the learned Counsel for the petitioner have no relevance for examining the validity of the transfer order passed by the Sessions Judge. The grounds pressed in the transfer application were that continuation of trial before the Presiding Officer who has already heard substantial part of the matter would advance the cause of fair trial, judicial continuity, proper appreciation of evidence and judicial economy.

16. The learned Session judge came to a conclusion that transferring the trial to another Court of Additional Session Judge in the same Sessions Division, which is presided by a Presiding Officer, who has recorded the testimony of as many as nine prosecution witnesses, deserves to be transferred to the Court presided by the same Presiding Officer.

17. The applicant - complainant has challenged the aforesaid order by filing an application under Section 407 Cr.P.C., sub-sections (1) and (2) whereof provide as follows: -

"407. Power of High Court to transfer cases and appeals. - (1) Whenever it is made to appear to the High Court*

(a) that a fair and impartial inquiry or trial cannot be had in any Criminal Court subordinate thereto, or

(b) that some question of law of unusual difficulty is likely to arise, or

(c) that an order under this section is required by any provision of this Code, or will tend to the general convenience of the parties or witnesses, or is expedient for the ends of justice,

it may order-

(i) that any offence be inquired into or tried by any Court not qualified under Sections 177 to 185 (both inclusive), but in other respects competent to inquire into or try such offence;

(ii) that any particular case or appeal, or class of cases or appeals, be transferred from a Criminal Court subordinate to its authority to any other such Criminal Court of equal or superior jurisdiction;

(iii) that any particular case be committed for trial to a Court of Session; or

(iv) that any particular case or appeal be transferred to and tried before itself.

(2) The High Court may act either on the report of the lower Court, or on the application of a party interested, or on its own initiative:

Provided that no application shall lie to the High Court for transferring a case from one Criminal Court to another Criminal Court in the same sessions division, unless an application for such transfer has been made to the Sessions Judge and rejected by him."

18. When an applicant files an application before the Sessions Judge for transfer of a case under Section 408 CrPC and that application is rejected, the applicant can approach the High Court by filing a transfer application under Section 407 CrPC, as is specifically mentioned in the proviso appended to Sub-section (2) of Section 407. However, when a transfer application filed under Section 408 CrPC is allowed by the Sessions Judge, the person aggrieved by the transfer order cannot challenge the same by filing another application under section 407 CrPC. The validity of a transfer order can only be challenged by invoking the inherent powers of the High Court, as acknowledged by Section 482 CrPC, which reads as follows: -

"Section 482 - Saving of inherent power of High Court

Nothing in this Code shall be deemed to limit or affect the inherent powers of the High Court to make such orders as may be necessary to give effect to any order this Code, or to prevent abuse of the process of any Court or otherwise to secure the ends of justice."

19. Although the applicant ought to have challenged the transfer order by filing a petition under Section 482 CrPC and not under Section 407 CrPC, instead of rejecting the transfer application on this technical ground after detailed submissions on merit of the application have already been advanced, this Court finds it appropriate to examine the merits of the transfer application in exercise of its inherent powers acknowledged by Section 482 CrPC.

20. In Zandu Pharmaceutical Works Ltd. v. Mohd. Sharaful Haque, (2005) 1 SCC 122, defining the nature and scope of the power under Section 482 observed that: -

"8 ....The section does not confer any new powers on the High Court. It only saves the inherent power which the Court possessed before the enactment of the Code. It envisages three circumstances under which the inherent jurisdiction may be exercised, namely, (i) to give effect to an order under the Code, (ii) to prevent abuse of the process of court, and (iii) to otherwise secure the ends of justice. It is neither possible nor desirable to lay down any inflexible rule which would govern the exercise of inherent jurisdiction. No legislative enactment dealing with procedure can provide for all cases that may possibly arise. Courts, therefore, have inherent powers apart from express provisions of law which are necessary for proper discharge of functions and duties imposed upon them by law. That is the doctrine which finds expression in the section which merely recognises and preserves inherent powers of the High Courts. All courts, whether civil or criminal, possess, in the absence of any express provision, as inherent in their constitution, all such powers as are necessary to do the right and to undo a wrong in course of administration of justice on the principle quando lex aliquid alicui concedit, concedere videtur et id sine quo res ipsae esse non potest (when the law gives a person anything, it gives him that without which it cannot exist). While exercising powers under the section, the court does not function as a court of appeal or revision. Inherent jurisdiction under the section though wide has to be exercised sparingly, carefully and with caution and only when such exercise is justified by the tests specifically laid down in the section itself. It is to be exercised ex debito justitiae to do real and substantial justice for the administration of which alone courts exist. Authority of the court exists for advancement of justice and if any attempt is made to abuse that authority so as to produce injustice, the court has power to prevent abuse. It would be an abuse of process of the court to allow any action which would result in injustice and prevent promotion of justice. In exercise of the powers, court would be justified to quash any proceeding if it finds that initiation/continuance of it amounts to abuse of the process of court or quashing of these proceedings would otherwise serve the ends of justice. When no offence is disclosed by the complaint, the court may examine the question of fact. When a complaint is sought to be quashed, it is permissible to look into the materials to assess what the complainant has alleged and whether any offence is made out even if the allegations are accepted in toto."

21. Section 407 (1) Cr.P.C. confers jurisdiction upon the Sessions Judge to transfer any particular case from one Criminal Court to another Criminal Court in his sessions division if it is expedient for the ends of justice. The Sessions Judge has recorded this satisfaction and has transferred the trial to the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court No.4/Special Judge Gangsters Act, which also has jurisdiction over the trial irrespective of the person who is presiding the Court. Therefore, this Court can interfere in the impugned transfer order only if the order occasions an abuse of the process of law or it defeats the ends of justice.

22. An order passed by the Session Judge in exercise of the jurisdiction conferred upon him by Section 407 (1) Cr.P.C. after giving an opportunity of hearing to the parties and after dealing with their submissions, cannot be said to be an order obtained by or resulting in an abuse of the process of law.

23. There is no dispute that the Court in which the trial was originally proceeding and the Court to which the transferred, both have jurisdiction to decide the trial. The learned Sessions Judge has passed the impugned transfer order keeping in view the fact that the Court of Additional Sessions Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow was presided by Shri Abhinay Kumar Mishra, H.J.S., who recorded the testimony of PW-1 to PW-9 and thereafter he got transferred to the Court of Additional Sessions Judge, Court Number 4/Special Judge Gangsters Act in the same Sessions Division, as the learned Sessions Judge has formed the view that completion of trial by the same Presiding Officer, who is available in a Court of competent jurisdiction in the same Sessions Division, will secure the ends of justice in a better manner.

24. When the Court of learned Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow and the Court of Additional Session Judge, Court No.4/Special Judge Gangsters Act, both have jurisdiction over the trial, the Session Judge has discretion to allocate the trial to any of the two Courts having jurisdiction over the matter. Upon the transfer application having been filed, the Sessions Judge invited a report from the Presiding Officer of the transferee Court Sri. Abhinay Kumar Mishra. He stated in his report that while he was the Presiding Officer of the Court of Additional Sessions Judge / Special Judge ATS, he had recorded the testimony of some prosecution witnesses but the prosecution evidence had not completed and at this stage he got transferred to the Court of Additional Sessions Judge / Special Judge Gangsters Act. He stated that the matter was pending at the stage of prosecution evidence and he had not heard the submissions of the parties.

25. It is settled law that the Courts should give due consideration to the demeanor of the witnesses. When the trial commenced and continued till recording of deposition of PW-9 before a particular Presiding Officer in the Court of Additional Session Judge/Special Judge ATS, Lucknow and the Presiding Officer of that Court had the advantage of watching the demeanor of nine prosecution witnesses, which include all the witnesses of fact, and thereafter that Presiding Officer was transferred to another Court in the same Sessions Division, if the learned Sessions Judge found it appropriate to transfer the trial to the Court of Additional Sessions Judge presided by a Presiding Officer who has recorded the deposition of PW-1 to PW-9, then the Session Judge has not committed any error or illegality and the transfer order does not defeat the ends of justice, warranting interference by the High Court in exercise of its inherent power.

26. Interference with the impugned transfer order would neither serve the purpose of giving effect to any order under the Code nor does the impugned order lead to the abuse of process of court that must be prevented. The impugned also does not in any way defeat the ends of justice. Therefore, in absence of there being any error or illegality in the impugned order dated 29.06.2026, passed by learned Sessions Judge, Lucknow in Transfer Application/Criminal Misc. Case No.783 of 2026 in relation to Sessions Trial No.2707 of 2024 (Crime No.416 of 2013, Police Station Gomti Nagar, Lucknow) and the transfer order not defeating the ends of justice, there is no good ground to interfere in the transfer order by means of invoking the inherent powers of this Court.

27. The petition lacks merit and the same is accordingly dismissed.

Hon'ble Amitabh Kumar Rai, J.)

1. Heard Sri Sanjay Bhasin, learned Senior Advocate assisted by Sri Prashant Kumar, Sri Abhishek Kumar, Sri Ajeet Pratap Singh, Sri Sarvesh Kumar Tiwari and Sri Devesh Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondents and Sri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for Lucknow Development Authority.

2. Learned counsel for the parties contend that the issue involved in WRIT - C No. 4180 of 2025 and WRIT - C No. 13795 of 2020 are the same. As such, the Court proceeds to hear and decide both the writ petitions together. For convenience, facts of Writ C No. 4180 of 2025 are being taken into consideration.

3. At the very outset, learned counsel for the petitioner submits that Writ C No. 13795 of 2020 has been rendered infructuous due to subsequent events and orders passed by the opposite parties after filing of Writ C No. 4180 of 2025. Learned counsel for the petitioner has categorically indicated this fact in paragraph 5 of memo of Writ C No. 4180 of 2025. He prays that the Writ C No. 13795 of 2020 may be dismissed as having become infructuous.

4. Accordingly, Writ C No. 13795 of 2020 is dismissed as infructuous.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner The instant writ petition has been filed praying for the following main relief(s):

"(i) To issue writ or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 24.12.2024 passed by the opposite party number 3 (contained as Annexure number 1 to this writ petition).

(ii) To issue writ or direction in the nature of certiorari quashing the order dated 11.04.2025 issued by the opposite party no. 4/Incharge officer(commercial), LDA (contained as Annexure number 2 to this writ petition).

(iii) To issue the writ, order or direction in the nature of Mandamus directing the LDA to allow the petitioner to deposit the amount as per the rate advertised at the time of advertisement dated 21.09.2007 regarding plot bearing number TCG-01-A-V 4/1 situated at Vibhutikhand, Gomtinagar, Lucknow without any interest and adjusting the amount deducted at the time of cancellation vide order dated 11.07.2022 passed by opposite party no. 3 and handover the peaceful possession of the said plot immediately."

6. The petitioner is a Company duly incorporated under the Companies Act, 1956 and registered in the name of Messers Drosia India Limited and is engaged in the business of real estate and hospitality. The Lucknow Development Authority had published an advertisement dated 21/09/2007 inviting applications for participation in the tender auction for plots for hotel purposes. In the said auction, the bid of the petitioner was for Rs. 12,050/- per square meter as against the reserve price of ₹ 8800 per square meter and accordingly the bid of the petitioner was the highest, but no order was passed directing the petitioner to deposit 35% of the bid amount within 7 days. The petitioner in the aforesaid circumstances himself deposited an amount of ₹ 45 lakhs on 13/10/2007 as earnest money, but the Lucknow Development Authority by means of an order dated 18/10/2007 unilaterally cancelled the auction as the bid price was low.

7. The petitioner being aggrieved by the order dated 18/10/2007 filed a writ petition before this Court being Writ Petition No. 8173 (MB) of 2007, and this Court proceeded to stay the order dated 18/10/2007 on 02/11/2007. During the pendency of the aforesaid petition, both parties entered into a dialogue and the matter was settled between them, and as per the said settlement, the petitioner was to withdraw the writ petition and submit a request to the Lucknow Development Authority to withdraw the order of cancellation of the auction and thereafter settle the plot in favour of the petitioner in terms of the auction.

8. It is in the aforesaid circumstances that a representation was submitted by the petitioner on 15/07/2015 and the vice-chairman of the Lucknow Development Authority passed an order on 18/11/2015 intimating his decision to withdraw the previous order of cancellation dated 18/10/2007 subject to payment of interest. The order dated 18.11.2015 was communicated to the petitioner vide letter dated 3.12.2015. According to the petitioner the order dated 18.11.2015 passed by the Lucknow Development Authority was illegal and arbitrary inasmuch as while setting aside the previous order of cancellation, it imposed a penalty upon the petitioner treating this case as if he had not paid the entire sale consideration from the date of auction till the date of revocation of cancellation. The main contention of the petitioner was that the interest can only be levied after the allotment letter is issued and possession is handed over and not from any date prior and also that there is delay in payment of the instalments. In the present case inasmuch as the possession of the plot was not given to the petitioner, there was no question of levying interest on payment.

9. The petitioner expressed his opposition to levying of interest by the Lucknow Development Authority by submitting a representation on 12/01/2016. The said representation was duly considered and by means of an order dated 11/03/2016 the amount of interest was reduced to simple interest and amount of 50% of deposit which previously was Rs. 11,65,77,329/- was reduced to Rs. 7,86,61,606/-.

10. The grievance of the petitioner to the levy of interest was on account of the fact that according to the petitioner, the penal interest would be levied only when the allotment letter is issued and possession of the plot had been handed over to the petitioner and not at any stage prior. According to the petitioner this aspect of the matter has already been considered by the Lucknow Development Authority in the case of Ms Ganpati Constructions where the levy of interest from 07/10/2013 to 30/05/2017 was waived off by the authority itself as the possession of the property was not given to the auction purchaser, and accordingly wanted his case to be considered in accordance with the order passed in favour of Ms Ganpati Constructions.

11. As the grievance of the petitioner was not considered or rectified, he preferred another representation on 18/04/2016 objecting to the levy of interest from the date of the auction. Despite the submission of representation the petitioner was directed to deposit the amount by means of an order dated 03/04/2017. It is the case of the petitioner that he repeatedly took up the matter before the Lucknow Development Authority, but they only repeatedly told him that certain amounts have to be firstly paid by him before the aspect of possession will be considered. The petitioner, accordingly, made a total payment of Rs. 3,71,01,690/- which was more than 50% of the sale consideration and only thereafter he was communicated that the allotment had been made in his favour by allotment letter dated 03/12/2015.

12. Despite deposit of the aforesaid amount the possession of the plot was never handed over to him by the respondents, but the respondents stated that the entire cost of plot will have to be deposited before the same could be handed over to him, despite the fact that according to the petitioner in all other similar circumstances the possession of the plots were handed over on deposit of 25% of the amount of consideration.

13. During this period, the COVID 19 pandemic had gripped the entire country, and the State Government in such peculiar circumstances had decided to waive the penalty and interest amount of persons who had defaulted. The petitioner also moved an application under the OTS scheme seeking waiver of penalty and interest, but by means of a letter dated 30/12/2021, the petitioner was informed that in case he does not deposit the amount demanded then his allotment would be cancelled. The petitioner kept on making representations against the said demand, and subsequently by means of an order dated 11/07/2022 his allotment was cancelled and the money deposited by the petitioner was refunded after making certain deductions.

14. Against the order of cancellation dated 11/07/2022, the petitioner preferred a revision under Section 41(3) of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973. The revisional authority did not pass any order on the application for interim relief made by the petitioner, while on the other hand, the Authority was proceeding to re-auction the said plot and create third-party rights.

15. In the aforesaid circumstances, the petitioner preferred a writ petition before this Court being Writ C No. 5403 of 2022 which was disposed of by means of an order dated 18/08/2022, restraining the parties from creating any third-party rights, till the interim application in the revision proceedings is decided. The revision was finally allowed in favour of the petitioner on 26/04/2024 and a very categorical finding was given that no interest can be levied for the period 2007 to 2015 while remanding the matter to the opposite party no. 3 for a limited purpose to determine the levy of interest from 2007 to 2015, strictly as per the terms and conditions of the auction.

16. The Lucknow Development Authority in the remand proceedings proceeded to pass the impugned order dated 24/12/2024 and again levied the interest from the date of cancellation of allotment to the date of reallotment which had previously been levied on the petitioner against which he preferred a revision.

17. The order dated 24/12/2024 has been assailed by the petitioner in the present writ petition. The appellant has vehemently submitted that the impugned order dated 24/12/2024 levying interest from the date of auction till the date of revocation of the order of cancellation, that is from 15/10/2007 to 15/07/2015 is illegal and arbitrary and contrary to the order dated 26/04/2024 passed by the State Government passed in the revision preferred by the petitioner as well as terms and conditions of the auction. It is submitted that the Lucknow Development Authority is bound to comply with the directions of the State Government, while the impugned order has been passed clearly in defiance of the revisional order and is, therefore, illegal and arbitrary and deserves to be set aside.

18. The petitioner has relied upon the judgment of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of The Bhopal Sugar Industries Ltd vs Income Tax Officer, Bhopal, 1961 AIR 182 and judgment of this Court in the case of M/s Mayur Continental,Dehradun and others vs Administrator, Nazul Land, Dehradun and others, (1989) 2 UPLBEC 127.

19. It was further submitted that the Lucknow Development Authority could not have levied interest from the date of the auction till the date of revocation or cancellation of the auction in the absence of any conditions in the bid document or any other provision enabling the authority to levy such interest. It was submitted that as per the government order dated 06/02/1997 in case the highest bid price offered is higher than the base price, then the bid should be accepted and not cancelled unless there is some concealment or fraud committed while offering the said bid.

20. It was contended that this Court in Writ Petition No. 8173 (MB) of 2007, had passed an interim order in favour of the petitioner after considering the provisions of the government order dated 06/02/1997.

21. It was also submitted by the counsel for the petitioner that as per the government order dated 06/02/1997 it has been provided that the highest bid cannot be cancelled unless some concealment of fraud is committed in offering the bid and, therefore, it was submitted that the action of the respondents in cancelling the bid of the petitioner itself was illegal and arbitrary and violative of Article 14 of the Constitution of India.

22. The writ petition has been vehemently opposed by Sri Ratnesh Chandra, learned counsel for the Lucknow Development Authority.

23. There is no dispute that during the auction held on 12/10/2007 the petitioner had made a bid for ₹ 12,050/- against the reserve price of ₹ 8,800/- while for the adjacent plot bid of Rs. 35,500/- was received and there was a significant difference in the bid amount and there was a reasonable expectation that in a subsequent auction a higher price would be fetched and therefore, by means of order dated 17/10/2007, the bid made by the petitioner was rejected. The petitioner thereafter had filed a writ petition before this Court being Writ Petition No. 8173 (MB) of 2007, where, by means of an interim order dated 02/11/2007 the order dated 17/10/2007 was stayed, and as the writ petition remained pending, after a period of eight years an application was preferred by the petitioner for resolving the said dispute before the Lucknow Development Authority on 15/07/2015. The vice-chairman of the Lucknow Development Authority gave his approval to the said proposal made by the petitioner on 18/11/2015 but recorded that the terms and conditions of the auction would apply, and payment would have to be made by the petitioner along with interest.

24. The formal communication of the decision of the Lucknow authority was made on 03/12/2015 according to which 50% of the bid amount has to be deposited by 31/12/2015, which was the amount of Rs.11,65,77,329/- and the remaining 50% in four quarterly instalments of Rs. 3,19,26,887/-. The computation of the aforesaid amount including interest was provided to the petitioner vide letter dated 03/04/2017 according to which from 17/11/2007 to 21/03/2017 interest at the rate of 15% was imposed amounting to ₹ 8, 57,43,282/-.

25. There is no dispute that the petitioner had opposed the imposition of interest from 2007 to 2017.

26. In paragraph 22 of the counter affidavit filed by the Lucknow Development Authority, it has been stated that the State Government had allowed the revision preferred by the petitioner on 26/04/2024 and the orders dated 04/07/2022 and 11/07/2022 were set aside and remanded the matter to Lucknow Development Authority, directing the authority to consider the aspect of charging interest afresh after giving an opportunity of hearing to the petitioner.

27. The opposite parties have relied upon condition nos. 1 and 11 of the terms and conditions of the auction notice to impose interest upon the petitioner from the date of the auction till the date of allotment was made into 2017.

28. Clause 1 and 11 of the terms and conditions of the auction notice are are quoted hereinbelow:-

"क्रम सं0-1. होटल / व्यवसायिक भूखण्डों का निस्तारण, टेण्डर एवं तदोपरान्त नीलामी द्वारा किया जायेगा। निर्धारित तिथि को प्रत्येक भूखण्ड के लिये अलग-अलग टेण्डर डाले जायेंगे। इसके उपरान्त निविदाए निर्धारित तिथि को समिति के द्वारा खोली जायेंगी, तदोपरान्त उच्चतम निविदा को आरक्षित विक्रय मूल्य (जो प्राधिकरण के आरक्षित मूल्य से कम न हो) मानकर नीलामी बोली प्रारम्भ की जायेगी। टेण्डर अथवा नीलामी में प्राप्त सर्वोच्च दर ही विचारणीय होगी। उपाध्यक्ष लखनऊ विकास प्राधिकरण को पूर्ण अधिकार होगा कि सर्वोच्च बोली को अस्वीकृत कर दें और जमानत धनराशि वापस कर दें तथा नीलामी हेतु दुबारा टेण्डर आमंत्रित करें। जिन लोगों ने टेण्डर डाले है वह दुबारा टेण्डर डाल सकते हैं। क्रम सं0-11. नीलामी में प्राप्त उच्चतम टेण्डर अथवा बोली के आधार पर ही किसी व्यक्ति को सम्पत्ति का आवंटन पूर्ण नहीं माना जायेगा, राम्पत्ति का आवंटन उसी समय माना जायेगा जब सक्षम स्तर अर्थात उपाध्यक्ष, विकास प्राधिकरण से स्वीकृति के उपरान्त लखनऊ विकास प्राधिकरण की ओर से आवंटन पत्र जारी हो जायेगा। आवंटन के पश्चात समस्त वांछित धनराशि निर्धारित समय में जमा करते हुऐ औपचारिकताएं की पूर्ति करनी होगी अन्यथा आवंटन निरस्त कर दिया जायेगा, यदि कोई टेण्डरदाता बोली स्वीकार होने के पश्चात वांछित औपचारिकताओं की पूर्ति नहीं करता है अथवा भूखण्ड के आवंटन को निरस्त किया जाता है तो नियमों के अन्तर्गत धनराशि कटौती/जब्त करते हुए शेष धनराशि जमा वापस कर दी जायेगी।"

29. The respondents have also relied upon the letter dated 15/07/2015 submitted by the petitioner to justify the levying of interest, stating that the petitioner himself had offered to deposit the same and therefore, the petitioner cannot challenge the same on the principle of estoppel.

30. I have heard the counsels of the parties and perused the record.

31. The first aspect which deserves consideration is the validity of the order of cancellation of the bid of the petitioner vide order dated 17/10/2007. Though the said order was assailed by the petitioner in Writ Petition No. 8173 (MB) of 2007, which was subsequently dismissed as infructuous by means of an order dated 31/10/2017, but as the said order is the genesis of the dispute leading to the present petition, the validity of the same will have a bearing on the present controversy.

32. The petitioner had participated in the auction for purchase of a plot, which was advertised by the Lucknow Development Authority on 21/09/2007, where 11 bids were received, and the bid of the petitioner was the highest having offered the rate of ₹ 12,050/- per square meter against the reserve price of ₹ 8,800/- per square metre. The bid of the petitioner was cancelled only on account of the fact that the adjoining plot, which was a commercial plot, was sold for ₹ 35,500/-. This Court in a writ petition filed by the petitioner being Writ Petition No. 8173 (MB) of 2007 stayed the order of cancellation dated 18.10.2007, after holding that as per the policy of the State Government dated 22/05/2006 the Hotel business has been given the status of industry and it has been provided that price fixed for the hotel shall be at the industrial rate, while it was noticed that the adjacent plot was a commercial plot and naturally such a plot would fetch a higher price than an industrial plot, and therefore found the order of cancellation to be prima facie arbitrary and stayed the same by means of the order dated 02/11/2007.

33. It is also relevant to consider that as per the Government order dated 06/02/1997 in case the highest bid price offered is higher than the base price, then the bid should be accepted and not cancelled unless there is some concealment or fraud committed in offering the said bid. In the order passed subsequently by the respondents themselves clearly mentioned that there were 11 bidders in the said auction and therefore there is no element of collusion or fraud and it is for this reason that the respondents decided to settle the dispute in favour of the petitioner. Accordingly, we find that in the absence of any allegation of fraud or concealment, the bid of the petitioner could not have been cancelled.

34. At this stage, it would be relevant to consider the recent judgment of the Supreme Court in the case GOLDEN FOOD PRODUCTS INDIA vs STATE OF UTTAR PRADESH & OTHERS, 2026 INSC 22 where it has been observed as under:-

"28. In our view, there cannot be any imprimatur of the Court to such arbitrary cancellation of auction by an instrumentality or agency of the State in the absence of there being any fraud, collusion, suppression etc. Merely because the smaller plots measuring 123 to 132 square metres were auctioned and sold at a higher price as compared to the subject plot measuring 3150 square metres which is a large sized plot, could not have been the basis for cancelling the auction insofar as the subject plot is concerned. The demand for smaller plots being higher was sold at a higher price per square metre than the subject plot, where there was no demand for the subject plot as only two bidders participated in the auction. The bid of the appellant was above the reserve price. There was no other reason to cancel the auction sale of the subject plot. Therefore, GDA - respondent No. 2 was under an obligation in law having accepted the bid offered by the appellant to issue the allotment letter instead of cancelling the auction on the basis of irrelevant considerations that too behind the back of the appellant. Expectation of a higher bid in a subsequent auction cannot be a reason to cancel an auction held in accordance with law.

29. The appellant herein as also all bidders would had made all financial arrangements before making technical and financial bids in an auction. The technical bid of the appellant herein was accepted. There was no reason to decline the financial bid made by the appellant which was the highest bid. The financial bid was also over and above the reserve price. There was no reason attributed to the appellant for cancellation of the auction sale. In the circumstances, the appellant had a legitimate expectation to receive an allotment letter vis- -vis the subject plot as it was the highest bidder. Instead, without any prior notice to the appellant the auction itself was cancelled which constrained the appellant to approach the High Court. The High Court has lost sight of these facts of the matter and has simply dismissed the writ petitions filed by the appellant herein which is not correct.

30. We could consider the judgments cited at the Bar as under:

a) In Haryana Urban Development Authority v. Orchid Infrastructure Developers (P) Ltd., (2017) 4 SCC 243, the contract contained an express clause stating that the presiding officer had the right to reject a bid without offering any reasons. Although twenty-seven bidders participated in the said auction and the reserve price was Rs. 106.65 crores and the highest bid was Rs. 111.75 crores for 9.527 acres of land in Gurgaon, the bid was cancelled. However, such a clause is conspicuous by its absence in the present case.

b) In Rajasthan Housing Board v. G.S. Investments, (2007) 1 SCC 477, owing to a news item published in a newspaper that large scale bungling had taken place in the auction due to which the price fetched for the plots was much below the market rate, a direction was issued by this Court to hold a fresh auction. Such a situation did not arise in the instant case.

c) In State of Orissa v. Harinarayan Jaiswal, (1972) 2 SCC 36, there was a direction to hold a re-auction as the power to accept or reject the bid was given to the highest authority in the State and the State Government was of the opinion that the price was inadequate. Possibly, in the facts of the said case, the said direction was issued by this Court.

d) In Uttar Pradesh Avas Evam Vikas Parishad v. Om Prakash Sharma, (2013) 5 SCC 182, the reserve price was fixed at Rs. 1,80,200/- and the respondent therein offered Rs. 1,31,500/- which was much less than the reserve price. Hence, the bid was rightly rejected.

e) In Meerut Development Authority v. Association of Management Studies, (2009) 6 SCC 171, the request of the respondent therein for allotment of remaining 20,000 square metres to them as they had acquired 37,000 square metres of land as per the reserve price, was rejected as the price quoted had been lower than the reserve price for the said remaining land and rightly so.

f) In Indore Vikas Praadhikaran (IDA) v. Shri Humud Jain Samaj Trust, 2024 SCC OnLine SC 3511, this Court distinguished Eva Agro Feeds and found that the bid could not be accepted as the tender committee while finalizing the bids noticed that property tax of Rs. 1.25 crore in respect of the subject land therein was outstanding. On noticing this error, the Board decided to cancel the bid of the respondent therein and decided to issue a fresh notice inviting tenders.

31. The following judgments also require consideration:

a) In M.P. Power Management Company Limited v. Sky Power Southeast Solar India (Private) Limited, (2023) 2 SCC 703, the bid of the respondent therein was accepted and it was observed that public interest cannot always be conflated with an evaluation of the monetary gain or loss alone.

b) In Nagar Nigam, Meerut v. Al Faheem Meat Exports (P) Ltd., (2006) 13 SCC 382, an advertisement inviting applications for a fresh contract to run a slaughterhouse was sustained. In the said judgment, it was observed that the award of government contracts through public auction or public tender was to ensure transparency in the public procurement, to maximise the economy and efficiency in government procurement, to promote healthy competition among the tenderers and to eliminate irregularities, interference and corrupt practices by the authorities concerned. In rare and exceptional cases, for instance during natural calamities and emergencies declared by the Government; where the procurement is possible from a single source only; where the supplier or contractor has exclusive rights in respect of the goods or services and no reasonable alternative or substitute exists; where the auction was held on several dates but there were no bidders or the bids offered were too low, etc., this normal rule may be departed from and such contracts may be awarded through private negotiations . The Government must then have freedom of contract. Some fair play in the joints is a necessary concomitant for an administrative body functioning in an administrative sphere. The plea of the respondent therein seeking permission to modernize the slaughterhouse and therefore, to refrain from issuing an advertisement was negatived.

c) In Subodh Kumar Singh Rathour v. Kolkata Metropolitan Development Authority, (2024) 15 SCC 461, this Court observed that merely because the rates embodied in a contract with the passage of time have become less appealing, the same cannot become a determinative criterion for either terminating the contract or for the courts to decline interference in such contractual disputes. Public interest cannot be used as a pretext to arbitrarily terminate contracts. Merely because the financial terms of a contract are less favourable over a period of time does not justify its termination. It was observed that the mere possibility of fetching a higher license fee was no ground to cancel the tender issued to the appellant therein.

32. An auction process has a sanctity attached to it and only for valid reasons that the highest bid can be discarded in an auction which is otherwise held in accordance with law. If a valid bid has been made which is above the reserve price, there should be a rationale or reason for not accepting it. Therefore, the decision to discard the highest bid must have a nexus to the rationale or the reason. Merely because the authority conducting the auction expected a higher bid than what the highest bidder had bid cannot be a reason to discard the highest bid. In the instant case, no other party had placed a bid higher than the appellant herein. There was no infirmity in the conduct of the auction. No other party had complained about the process of auction conducted by the GDA - respondent No. 2. The bid offered by the appellant herein was the highest and above the reserve price. In the circumstances, the said bid ought to have been accepted by GDA - respondent No. 2 rather than cancelling the same without notice to the appellant herein. Hence, the cancellation of the bid submitted by the appellant herein is quashed.

33. For the aforesaid reasons, the impugned orders of the High Court dated 24.05.2024 and 15.07.2024 passed in the respective writ petitions are set-aside. The appellant is directed to re-deposit the earnest money preferably within four weeks from today. Within two weeks from the date of the re-deposit of the earnest money, the GDA - respondent No. 2 shall make an order of allotment of the subject plot in favour of the appellant herein and take all consequential steps for concluding the auction process in favour of the appellant herein. These appeals are allowed in the aforesaid terms."

35. The law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court for cancellation of auction is extremely clear and in paragraph 32 it has been held that the highest bid can be discarded only on reasonable grounds which cannot be whimsical or bereft of any cogent reason. In the aforesaid judgement, the Supreme Court had also reaffirmed its previous judgement in the case of Eva Agro Feeds (P) Ltd. v. Punjab National Bank, (2023) 10 SCC 189 (Eva Agro Feeds) where it was held as under:

"...mere expectation of the Liquidator that a still higher price may be obtained can be no good ground to cancel an otherwise valid auction and go for another round of auction. Such a cause of action would not only lead to incurring avoidable expenses but also erode the credibility of the auction process itself ."

36. In the instant case, a perusal of the terms and conditions of the tender issued by the respondents in clause 6 it was clearly provided that if an allotment is obtained by fraud and misrepresentation undue influence etc, then it shall be cancelled. If a sale deed is executed on the basis of such allotment obtained by fraud, undue influence etc, then the sale deed will also be cancelled and 50% of the sale price will be forfeited.

37. It is not the case of the respondents that there was any fraud committed by the petitioner or undue influence exerted by him, and there were 11 persons who had participated in the auction and therefore it cannot be said that the auction was hit by any of the conditions, which could render it liable for cancellation, and therefore the order of cancellation of the bid of the petitioner was arbitrary and illegal. Accordingly, we find that the decision to cancel the auction was clearly illegal and arbitrary and when this aspect of the matter was realised by the respondents themselves, they sought to restore the bid of the petitioner, subject to certain conditions.

38. During the pendency of the Writ Petition No. 8173 (MB) of 2007 on the representation of the petitioner the respondents, by means of an order dated 03/12/2015, gave their approval for allotment of the disputed plot in favour of the petitioner, subject to the condition that the petitioner deposits the remaining consideration along with interest from the date of the auction. It is relevant to note that in the aforesaid order, there is no mention of any rule or any provision of law which may enable the respondents to levy interest upon the petitioner from the date of the auction till the date of payment.

39. There is no dispute that the petitioner has been repeatedly contesting the aspect of the levy of interest, restoration of his bid and allotment of a plot in his favour. It is this contention that the levy is contrary to the conditions of the tender itself and the plot should be given to him on the same terms and conditions of the bid amount made by him during the said auction.

40. The terms and conditions of the auction pertaining to the payment to be made by the successful bidder have been provided in clause 10 which is as under:-

"10. नीलामी की कार्यवाही लखनऊ विकास प्राधिकरण गोमती नगर कार्यालय में सार्वजनिक रूप से समिति के समक्ष करायी जायेगी। नीलामी के पूर्व नीलामी के नियम व शर्तें एक बार पुनः सूचित कर दी जायेगी। भुगतान का विवरण निम्न होगाः-

(अ) उच्चतम टेण्डर दाता को कुल धनराशि की 35 प्रतिशत धनराशि बोली गयी बोली/नीलामी की स्वीकृति की तिथि से सात कार्यदिवसों में जमा करनी होगी (इसमें निविदा के साथ जमा जमानत धनराशि समायोजित कर ली जायेगी) उपरोक्तानुसार 35 प्रतिशत धनराशि जमा होने एवं आवंटन पत्र निर्गत होने की तिथि से एक माह के अन्दर 15 प्रतिशत धनराशि पुनः जमा करनी होगी तथा शेष 50 प्रतिशत धनराशि 3-3 माह की 4 किस्तों में 15 प्रतिशत ब्याज की दर पर जमा की जा सकेगी।

(ब) किश्तों का प्रारम्भ आवंटन पत्र निर्गत होने की तिथि से माना जायेगा।

(स) देय किश्तों का भुगतान न करने पर 18 प्रतिशत की दर से दण्ड ब्याज देय होगा।"

41. A perusal of the aforesaid provisions clearly indicates that the highest bidder has to deposit 35% of the bid amount within 7 days from the date of acceptance of his bid and it is only after deposit of 35% of the amount that the allotment letter would be issued to him. It is further provided that the successful bidder has to deposit further 15% of the bid amount within one month from the date of allotment and the remaining 50% has to be deposited in four instalments of 3-3 months alongwith interest @ 15%. In clause 10(b) of the aforesaid terms and conditions, it is further provided that installments will commence only after issuance of the allotment letter. Other relevant conditions are found on perusal of clause 10(c) of the aforesaid terms and conditions which provides that in case the aforesaid installments are not paid within the time prescribed then 18% penal interest would be levied upon the bidder.

42. The challenge to the imposition of interest for delayed payment was made by the petitioner by filing a revision before the State Government which was allowed by means of order dated 26.4.2024. The State Government while deciding the said revision extensively considered the grounds raised by the petitioner as well as reasons given by the Lucknow Development Authority for imposition of the interest imposed upon the petitioner. After considering the rival contentions, the State Government was of the view that there was no reason for the Lucknow Development Authority to have imposed interest upon the delayed payment from the date of auction till the date of issuance of the allotment letter dated 03.12.2025. It further considered that while considering the representation of the petitioner, proper opportunity of hearing was not given and therefore the said order itself is in gross violation of principle of natural justice and accordingly allowed the revision setting aside the orders of the Lucknow Development Authority dated 04.07.2022 as well as 11.07.2022 and remanded the matter for consideration afresh specially with regard to imposition of interest from 12.10.2007 to 03.12.2015 in light of the terms and conditions of the auction.

43. From the aforesaid, it is clear that the Lucknow Development Authority was under a mandate to reconsider the terms and conditions of the auction and only there was any provision by which they could levy interest from the date of auction to the date of allotment, the said interest could have levied.

44. From perusal of the impugned order, we find that only provisions considered were Clause I and II of the terms and conditions and without discussing as to how and under which provision the interest could be levied, the Lucknow Development Authority again levied the interest from the date of auction to the date of allotment. The Vice-Chairman while passing the impugned order has only recorded the fact that on the basis of a compromise dated 15.07.2015, the interest have been levied from 15.10.2007 and his predecessor in the note-sheet has duly recorded the fact that while passing fresh order of allotment, interest should be levied upon the petitioner and therefore he has proceeded to pass the impugned order levying interest on the petitioner from the date of auction to the date of allotment.

45. Accordingly, from the above, we find that firstly as per the terms and conditions of the auction, the interest could have been levied only from the date of allotment as provided in Clause 10 (C). We further find that initially the bid of the petitioner was cancelled and at which stage no allotment letter had been issued in favour of the petitioner. Accordingly, without issuance of the allotment letter, we find that no interest could have been levied upon the petitioner as per the terms and conditions of the auction. We further find that as per Clause 10 of the terms and conditions of the auction, the petitioner who was the successful and the highest bidder was to deposit 35% of the bid amount within 07 working days pursuant to which the allotment letter was to be issued and within one month of the issuance of the allotment letter further 15% of the bid amount was to be deposited by him. The remaining 50% of the bid amount was to be deposited in 3-3 months in four installments along with interest @ 15% and in Clause (B) it was clearly stated that the installment should be payable only after issuance of the allotment letter and as per Clause - (C) penal interest could be levied only when there is a delay in deposit of the installments. Accordingly, it is abundantly clear that without issuance of the allotment letter, no interest could have been levied upon the successful bidder and therefore we do not find any reason or any provision by which Lucknow Development Authority could have imposed interest upon the petitioner for the delayed payment.

46. As already observed hereinabove, after examining the entire matter, we find that even the cancellation of the bid of the petitioner on the ground that the adjacent plot was auctioned at a higher price and therefore in case the disputed plot is subjected to any further auction, a higher price can be obtained. Such a ground is unreasonable and arbitrary inasmuch as it is contrary to the Government Order issued by the State Government itself dated 06.02.1997 which aspect of the matter has been duly discussed in the revisional order dated 26.04.2024.

47. It is for the aforesaid reason that the impugned order levying interest upon the petitioner from the date of auction to the date of allotment is illegal and arbitrary and accordingly set aside. The respondents in the aforesaid circumstances are directed to pass a fresh order requiring the petitioner to pay the amount for which bid was made by him strictly as per Clause 10 of the terms and conditions of the auction within one month from the date a certified copy of this order is produced before the competent authority.

48. The respondents are also directed to comply with the conditions on handing over the possession of the property in terms of terms and conditions of the auction. While on the other hand the petitioner would be under a mandate to pay all the dues as per terms and conditions of the auction and in case the petitioner does not comply with the orders passed by Lucknow Development Authority, the Lucknow Development Authority shall be at liberty to proceed against him strictly in accordance with law after taking due consideration of the terms and conditions of the auction.

49. Keeping in view the aforesaid discussion, the writ petition is allowed. The impugned orders dated 24.12.2024 and 11.4.2025, copies of which are annexure 1 and 2 respectively to the writ petition, are quashed.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhanshu Chauhan, J.)

1. The present writ petition has been filed for the relief that the respondents be commanded not to dispossess the petitioners from the land in dispute and further a direction may be issued to the respondents to expunge the entries in the name of Urban Ceiling in the revenue records and the same be recorded in the name of the petitioners in respect of land in dispute.

2. The case of the petitioners is that the predecessors of the petitioners were the recorded tenure holders of the land measuring 1.004 hectares comprised in Plot Nos. 357, 358, 359 and 360 situated at Village ? Bara Sirohi, Tehsil Sadar, District-Kanpur Nagar (herein after referred to as the land in dispute).

3. It is also stated that although the ceiling proceedings were initiated in respect of the land in dispute under the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976 (herein after referred to as the Act, 1976) but the petitioners continued to remain in possession of the land in dispute.

4. It is further contended that no compensation was paid to the petitioners at any point of time under the provisions of the Act, 1976. The petitioners have also relied upon the government orders dated 02.02.2000 and 09.08.2000 under which if the possession of the land has not been taken at the time of enforcement of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Repeal Act, 1999 (herein after referred to as "the Repeal Act, 1999") then the land holders would continue to remain in possession of the land in question.

5. The petitioners in support of their possession have filed irrigation receipts, the latest pertaining to the year 2015. The petitioners have also filed orders passed by the revenue authority dated 29.07.1998 by means of which the land in dispute was recorded in the name of Kanpur Development Authority respondent no. 3.

6. Per contra, it has been contended on behalf of the respondent State that as the land holders did not file ceiling return under Section 6(1) of the Act, 1976, thereafter notice no. 915 dated 08.07.1996 was issued under Section 6(2) of the Act, 1976. However, no statement was filed by the land holders even thereafter. Subsequently, an order under Section 8(4) of the Act, 1976 was passed on 31.03.1997. Thereafter, proceedings under Sections 9 and 10(1) of the Act, 1976 had taken place and a notification under Section 10(3) of the Act, 1976 was published on 18.07.1998. Notice under Section 10(5) of the Act, 1976 was issued to the land holders on 29.09.1998, which was served upon the land holders. However, as the land holders did not handover the possession of the land in dispute, the possession was taken under Section 10(6) of the Act, 1976 by means of a Dakhalnama (possession memo) dated 11.02.1999. The perusal of the Dakhalnama reveals that it had signatures of the person handing over the possession. Thus, it is stated that the possession of the land in dispute was taken prior to enforcement of the Repeal Act, 1999.

7. The case of the Kanpur Development Authority-respondent no. 3 is that the possession of the land in dispute was taken by the State and subsequently the possession of the land in dispute was transferred to the respondent no. 3 - Authority and the name of the respondent no. 3 -Authority was also recorded in the revenue records. It is also stated that the land in dispute has been developed by the respondent no. 3 - Authority under the Housing Scheme namely, "Jawaharpuram" and the residential plots carved out therein have already been allotted to the public. Further reliance has been placed upon the judgment and order dated 19.09.2018 passed by this Court in Writ-C No. 31059 of 2015 (Jagdish Chandra Vs. State of U.P. & 2 others), wherein the land in question was similarly situated in Village-Bara Sirohi, Tehsil and District-Kanpur Nagar and the order dated 26.03.2015 passed by the District Magistrate/Collector, Kanpur Nagar rejecting the representation of the petitioner in the said writ petition was upheld. Subsequently, the Special Leave Petition filed against the judgment and order dated 19.09.2018 passed by this Court was also dismissed by the Apex Court. Further it is contended that the possession of the land in dispute was taken in the year

1999 and the same was recorded in the name of the respondent no.3 - Authority and as such the writ petition has been filed after a delay of 11 years from the date of taking the possession and is liable to be dismissed solely on the ground of delay.

8. Thus, the contention of petitioners is that the petitioners have continued to remain in possession of the land in dispute after the enforcement of the Repeal Act, 1999 and as such the petitioners are entitled to protect their possession by virtue of the provisions of the Repeal Act, 1999 and the government orders dated 02.02.2000 and 09.08.2000. The petitioners in support of their contention that they are in possession of the land in dispute have filed the receipts of payment made to the Irrigation Department as well as photographs.

9. On the other hand, the contention of the respondents is that the possession of the land in dispute was taken under Section 10(6) of the Act by means of a Dakhalnama prior to enforcement of the Repeal Act, 1999 and the land was also recorded in the name of the respondent no. 3 ? Authority in the revenue records but the petitioners had never objected to the same. Further a residential colony by the name of Jawaharpuram is situated over the land in dispute. It is vehemently contended that the present writ petition filed after a lapse of more than 11 years from being or the possession of the land in dispute and is grossly time barred and is liable to be dismissed solely on the ground of delay.

10. We have perused the records of the case. The respondent State in paragraph 4 of their counter affidavit dated 30.11.2010 have taken a specific stand that the possession of the land in dispute stood transferred to the State by means of a Dakhalnama on 11.02.1999. The relevant part of the counter affidavit is reproduced herein under:-

"4. That statements under Section 6(1) of the Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation Act), 1976, hereinafter referred to as Act, 1976 were filed by Sri Satya Narain son of Mitthu, Sri Shiv Kumar, Shri Ram Kumar and Shri Lala Ram, all sons of Shri Shiv Ram, resident of Village Maqsoodabad, Kanpur giving the details of their land and property owned by them, being statements No. 7570, 7571, 7572 & 7573. On the said statements after completing the proceedings according to the provisions of the aforesaid Act, the benefit of 1000 Sqm. land were given to each of the land holders. It is submitted that no proceedings for taking possession in the concerned files were conducted. Later on, a scheme known as 'Jawaharpuram housing scheme' was started by the Kanpur Development Authority, under which plot Nos. 357, 358, 359 & 360 situate in village Barasirohi, District Kanpur were found to be in possession and owned by the aforesaid land holders. It is relevant to mention here that the aforesaid land holders had not disclosed the details of the said plot Nos., 357, 358, 359 & 360 situate in village Barasirohi, Kanpur in their statements filed earlier under Section 6(1) of the Act, due to which no proceedings in respect of the said land under the provisions of the Act, were initiated. Therefore, again a notice No. 915 dated 8.7.1996 under Section 6(2) of the Act was issued to the land holders for submitting their statements in respect of the said plots. But thereafter no statement were filed by them in response to the said notice dated 8.7.1996. It is stated that according to survey report 5018.2 Sqm. land were found in possession of Satya Narain, 1692.93 Sqms. land was found in possession of Shiv Kumar, 1692.93 Sqms. Land in possession of Ram Kumar and 1692.93 Sqms. and Land in possession of Lala Ram, total 10037.64 sqm. land. It is submitted that the benefit of 1000 sqm. land under the provisions of aforesaid Land to each of the land holder had already been given. As such an order under Section 8(4) of the Act was passed on 31.3.1997 declaring the said land (10037.64 sqm. land) as surplus being beyond the ceiling limit with the land holders. Thereafter, after completing the proceedings under Section 9 and 10(1) of the Act, when no interested person filed any objection under Section 10(2) of the Act then a notification was made on 25.3.1998 under Section 10(3) of the Act for its publication in the government gazette, which was published in the government gazette on 18.7.1998, and the entire declared surplus land free from all encumbrances, were vested in the State Government. Thereafter a notices under Section 10(5) of the Act were issued to each of the land holders on 29.9.1998 for handing over possession themselves, which was served upon them at the level of Tehsil / Up Ziladhikari. When the aforesaid land holders were themselves not handed over the possession of the declared surplus land then the Tehsil staff went on spot and taken over the possession of the declared surplus land on behalf of District Magistrate under Section 10(6) of the Act on 11.2.1999 and prepared Dakhalnama in this connection on spot and on the same date the declared surplus was transferred in favor of Kanpur Development Authority, Kanpur. Thereafter the proceedings under Section 11 of the Act were initiated for fixation of the compensation in respect of the declared surplus land, which is still pending. Photocopy of the Dakhalnamas of the land in question is being annexed herewith and marked as Annexure No. CA -1 to this Counter Affidavit."

11. The petitioners in their rejoinder affidavit in response to the contents of paragraph 4 of the counter affidavit in their rejoinder affidavit dated 01.04.2023, wherein para wise reply of the counter affidavit dated 30.11.2010 has been submitted, have stated as under:-

"That the contents of paragraph no. 4 of the counter affidavit are misconceived hence vehemently denied. In reply thereto it is respectfully submitted that the Satya Narain s/o-Mitthu, Shiv Kumar, Ram Kumar, and Lala Ram all sons of Shiv Ram R/O-village Maqsoodabad District Kanpur had filed the detail statements bearing no. 7570, 7571, 7572 and 7573 and thereafter authorities were found that there was no access urban land and as such the proceedings were completed without issuing any further notice to the owners. Moreover, the Arazi no.-357, 358, 359 & 360 situated at village Bara Sirohi Tehsil Sadar, District Kanpur Nagar were used for only agriculture purpose and cultivation of foods grain has still continuing. The petitioner has already annexed copy of Khasra of relevant years as the annexure no. 01 of the writ petition which is at page no. 22 of the writ petition. From perusal of Khasra from year of 1473, it is clear that this Arazi numbers were duly irrigated through canal for cultivation of the grains and the land are only utilize for agriculture purpose. The petitioner vide his paragraph no. 12 pleaded that the land in question has been irrigated through canal and government itself receiving the payment of water charges. The receipt has also been annexed as annexure no.-5 to the writ petition.

It is noteworthy to state that "The Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act 1976 define the Urban Land vide Section 2-(o) of the Act - "urban land" means,-(i) any land situated within the limits of an urban agglomeration and referred to as such in the master plan; or, (ii) in a case where there is no master plan, or where the master plan does not refer to any land as urban land, any land within the limits of an urban agglomeration and situated in any area included within the local limits of a municipality (by whatever name called), a notified area committee, a town area committee, a city and town committee, a small town committee, a cantonment board or a panchayat, but does not include any such land which is mainly used for the purpose of agriculture."

"It is also relevant to state here that the Village Bara sirohi was initially beyond the Municipal area as well as the areas of agglomeration but later on by introducing Jawaharpuram Housing Scheme the Kanpur Development Authority brought this area under the agglomeration area but the K.D.A did not notified the land of petitioner under the Jawaharpuram Housing Scheme as such no land acquisition proceeding have ever taken place by the authorities.

The allegation of respondents that the land holder does not disclose the details of aforesaid Arazi is wholly misconceived hence denied. The land in question being agriculture land not cover under the definition of Urban land as defined in section 2(o) of the Act.

It is noteworthy to state that alleged notice no 915 u/s-6(2) has never been issued and served to the land owners. The petitioners have no knowledge of any proceeding. In fact the proceeding was only on paper work and no any opportunity was provided to the petitioners. The Authorities passed the Ex- party orders without serving notice to the petitioner. However, after the passing of Ex-party order u/s- 8(4) no proceeding of section 9 and 10 (1) of the act was held. There was no notice under section 10(5) was ever issued and served. The respondent deliberately did not file the copy of notice as well as disclosed the date of the notice or receiving date of the notice. More over, Dakhalnama enclosed with the counter affidavit at page no 10 to 13 has no concerned with the taking of possession from the land owners. From perusal of the dakhalnama, it appears that the Naib Tehsildar, UCL, Kanpur Nagar in pursuance to the order date 31/03/1997 passed under section 8(4) deliver the possession of the land on 11-02-1999 to the Kanpur Development Authority. There is no whisper of the fact on which date the possession have taken from the land owners, even the petitioners have no knowledge of any such activities, there is no signature of witness The document itself Contradictory to the Govt. record of Mutation as annexure no 02 of the writ petition as in the record the name of the K.D.A has appears to be recorded void order 25-07-1998, while the proceedings under section 10(5) has been claimed to be taken place thereafter the Dakhalnama disclosed that the K.D.A has taken the possession on 11/02/1999, thus, prior to 11.02.1999, there was no occlusion to record the name of the K.D.A.

It is also relevant that there was several of shares of the land in question thus without partition of the arazi part of the arazi land could not be taken by the authorities. Since only 1/6 shares was alleged to be declares surplus, therefore, without partition of land under the provision of the Act and Rules, the possession could not be exchanged. This fact is also apparent from the annexure no -01 where boundaries of the land does not disclose and no map of the land which was taken make part of the Dakhalnama.

The Arazi of the land is as large area and without partition of the land the possession could not be possible takeover."

12. We have perused the Dakhalnama the same is signed by the person handing over possession as well as the person taking over possession i.e. Nayab Tehsildar, Urban Land Ceiling, Kanpur and the date of taking possession thereon is mentioned as 11.02.1999. The petitioner in the rejoinder affidavit do not make any mention about the signatures of the person handing over the possession, what to say about any denial of the same. Further, the allegation of no mention of the date on which possession was taken from the land holder is also without any basis, as the perusal of the Dakhalnama reveals that the possession of the land in dispute was handed over to Supervisor Kanoongo/Nayab Tehsildar on 11.02.1999 and after the possession was handed over by the land holder to the Nayab Tehsildar that the Nayab Tehsildar went on to hand over the possession to the representative of Kanpur Development Authority The petitioners in their response to paragraph 4 of the counter affidavit have not disputed the Dakhalnama/possession memo but only state that the same has not been signed by the witnesses.

13. Further, the petitioners themselves admit that the land in dispute was recorded in name of Kanpur Development Authority vide order dated 25.07.1998 and the same was done after the vesting of the land in dispute in the State by means of proceedings under section 10(3) of the Act, 1976, which were published in the State Gazette on 18.07.1998 and we find no irregularity in the same. We also fail to understand as to what took the petitioners 12 years to file the present writ petition, once, the petitioners were aware of the order dated 25.07.1998 by means of which the land in dispute was recorded in the name of respondent no. 3 ? Authority, the petitioners themselves having filed the of revenue authorities orders along with the writ petition.

14. The only document produced by the petitioners to show their possession of the land in dispute are receipts issued by the Irrigation Department but the same too pertain upto the year 2011 and one receipt is of the year 2015. The petitioners have not filed any receipt of recent years, hence, it cannot be ruled out that the Department of Irrigation stopped issuing receipts once development commenced under the Jawaharpuram Scheme by the respondent no. 3. Moreover, the receipts from Irrigation Department can be obtained by depositing the amounts payable and the same are admittedly not in consonance with the revenue records, wherein the name of the respondent no. 3 authority has been recorded since the year 1998. Hence, it is difficult to hold that the petitioners are in possession of the land in dispute solely on the basis of receipts of Irrigation Department. Further, the photographs relied upon by the petitioners in no way establish that they pertain to the land in dispute and, thus, fail to establish the possession of the petitioners over the same.

15. Moreover, the respondent no. 3-authority has filed a lay out plan of the residential scheme Jawaharpuram to be developed in village Bara Sirohi, Kanpur Nagar and also details of expenditure under which the amount of Rs. 174 crores had already been spent upto 30.06.2016.

16. Besides, a Coordinate Bench of this Court in respect of the proceedings under the Act, 1976 pertaining to land situated in Village-Bara Sirohi, Kanpur Nagar had dismissed the writ petition filed by the land holders being Writ-C No. 31059 of 2015 (Jagdish Chandra Vs. State of U.P.), decided on 19.09.2018, wherein this court amongst others had held as under:-

"13. Learned counsel for petitioner did not dispute that in Revenue records of Fasli 1406 to 1411 name of KDA has been entered in respect of land in dispute. He has also placed on record certain photographs which shows existence of roads, installed electrical polls etc in substantial part of land in dispute and also construction of water supply tank, some houses etc., which are not constructed by petitioner but KDA. The de facto possession, therefore, in respect of land in dispute is evidently with KDA. In the entire writ petition, it is not stated anywhere as to when KDA had undertaken all these developmental activities. There is nothing to show that KDA did not acquire possession of land prior to cut off date prescribed in Repeal Act, 1999. Without entering into question whether possession of land in dispute is validly taken or not or there exists proper memo of possession or not, suffice it to mention that KDA is in possession of land in dispute and has undertaken some development activities by constructing roads, installing electrical polls, construction of water supply tanks, houses etc. In absence of anything to show that aforesaid possession of KDA is subsequent to Repeal Act, 1999, we find no reason to disbelieve the finding recorded by District Magistrate that KDA got possession over the land in dispute. If de facto possession of land was taken by the authorities before cutoff date prescribed in Repeal Act, 1999, it will render the ceiling proceedings ineffective and would abate the same."

17. Thus, in view of the facts above he hold that the possession of the land and dispute stood transferred to respondent no. 3 prior to enforcement of the Repeal Act, 1999.

18. There is another aspect of the subject matter in a controversy that of delay, it is contended on behalf of the respondents that the petitioners have approached this court after a delay of 12 years from the date the land in dispute was recorded in the name of respondent no. 3 ? Authority and 11 years after the possession was handed over to the State.

19. It is pointed out here that the respondents have relied upon the case, State of Assam v. Bhaskar Jyoti Sarma and others, 2015 (5) SCC 321. In that case submission was raised by the State of Assam that physical possession has been taken over by the competent authority and it was submitted on behalf of the landowner that procedure prescribed under Section 10 (5) of the Act, 1976 was not followed. It was before taking possession under Section 10 (6) of the Act, 1976, the notification under Section 10 (5) was necessary; thus no possession can be said to have been taken under Section 3 of the Repeal Act, 1999. The question before the Hon'ble Supreme Court was whether actual physical possession was taken over by the competent authority. The State of Assam submitted that though possession was taken over in the year 1991, may be unilaterally and without notice to the land owner. It was urged that mere non-compliance with Section 10 (5) would be insufficient to attract the provisions of Section 3 of the Repeal Act, 1999. The Apex Court while repelling the submission of the landowner had held as under:-

"14 We say so because in the ordinary course actual physical possession can be taken from the person in occupation only after notice under Section 10(5) is issued to him to surrender such possession to the State Government, or the authorized officer or the competent authority. There is enough good sense in that procedure inasmuch as the need for using force to dispossess a person in possession should ordinarily arise only if the person concerned refuses to cooperate and surrender or deliver possession of the lands in question. That is the rationale behind Sections 10(5) and 10(6) of the Act. But what would be the position if for any reason the competent authority or the Government or the authorised officer resorts to forcible dispossession of the erstwhile owner even without exploring the possibility of a voluntary surrender or delivery of such possession on demand? Could such use of force vitiate the dispossession itself or would it only amount to an irregularity that would give rise to a cause of action for the aggrieved owner or the person in possession to seek restoration only to be dispossessed again after issuing a notice to him? It is this aspect that has to an extent bothered us.

15. The High Court has held that the alleged dispossession was not preceded by any notice under Section 10(5) of the Act. Assuming that to be the case all that it would mean is that on 7-12-1991 when the erstwhile owner was dispossessed from the land in question, he could have made a grievance based on Section 10(5) and even sought restoration of possession to him no matter he would upon such restoration once again be liable to be evicted under Sections 10(5) and 10(6) of the Act upon his failure to deliver or surrender such possession. In reality therefore unless there was something that was inherently wrong so as to affect the very process of taking over such as the identity of the land or the boundaries thereof or any other circumstance of a similar nature going to the root of the matter hence requiring an adjudication, a person who had lost his land by reason of the same being declared surplus under Section 10(3) would not consider it worthwhile to agitate the violation of Section 10(5) for he can well understand that even when the Court may uphold his contention that the procedure ought to be followed as prescribed, it may still be not enough for him to retain the land for the authorities could the very next day dispossess him from the same by simply serving a notice under Section 10(5). It would, in that view, be an a academic exercise for any owner or person in possession to find fault with his dispossession on the ground that no notice under Section 10(5) had been served upon him.

16. The issue can be viewed from another angle also. Assuming that a person in possession could make a grievance, no matter without much gain in the ultimate analysis, the question is whether such grievance could be made long after the alleged violation of Section 10(5). If actual physical possession was taken over from the erstwhile landowner on 7-12-1991 as is alleged in the present case any grievance based on Section 10(5) ought to have been made within a reasonable time of such dispossession. If the owner did not do so, forcible taking over of possession would acquire legitimacy by sheer lapse of time. In any such situation the owner or the person in possession must be deemed to have waived his right under Section 10(5) of the Act. Any other view would, in our opinion, give a licence to a litigant to make a grievance not because he has suffered any real prejudice that needs to be redressed but only because the fortuitous circumstance of a Repeal Act tempted him to raise the issue regarding his dispossession being in violation of the prescribed procedure.

17 Reliance was placed by the respondents upon the decision of this Court in Hari Ram case. That decision does not, in our view, lend much assistance to the respondents. We say so, because this Court was in Hari Ram case considering whether the word "may" appearing in Section 10(5) gave to the competent authority the discretion to issue or not to issue a notice before taking physical possession of the land in question under Section 10(6). The question whether breach of Section 10(5) and possible dispossession without notice would vitiate the act of dispossession itself or render it non est in the eye of the law did not fall for consideration in that case. In our opinion, what Section 10(5) prescribes is an ordinary and logical course of action that ought to be followed before the authorities decided to use force to dispossess the occupant under Section 10(6). In the case at hand if the appellant's version regarding dispossession of the erstwhile owner in December 1991 is correct, the fact that such dispossession was without a notice under Section 10(5) will be of no consequence and would not vitiate or obliterate the act of taking possession for the purposes of Section 3 of the Repeal Act. That is because Bhabadeb Sarma, erstwhile owner, had not made any grievance based on breach of Section 10(5) at any stage during his lifetime implying thereby that he had waived his right to do so."

20. The aforesaid judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of State of Assam v. Bhaskar Jyoti Sarma and others has also been relied upon by a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in the case of Shiv Ram Singh v. State of U.P. and others, 2015 SCC Online All 8853 wherein this Court while dismissing the writ petition on the ground of delay and laches had held as under:-

"10. We must also advert to another aspect of the matter particularly. having regard to the recent decision of the Supreme Court in Bhaskar Jyoti Sarma (supra). The petitioner moved the first writ petition in 2002 nearly three years after the Repeal Act had come into force. After the earlier writ petition was disposed of by directing the District Magistrate to pass an order on the representation of the petitioner, an order was passed by the District Magistrate on 10 May 2007. The petitioner thereafter waited for a period of over two years until the present writ petition was filed in July, 2009. If the petitioner had been dispossessed of the land without due notice under section 10(5), such a grievance could have been raised at the relevant time. As a matter of fact, it has been the case of the State all along that a notice under section 10(5) was, in fact, issued in the present case which would be borne out from the original file which has been produced before the Court. The issue is whether such a grievance could be made long after, before the Court. The petitioner had waited for nearly three years after the Repeal Act came into force to file the first writ petition and thereafter for a period of over two years after the disposal of the representation despite the finding of the District Magistrate that possession was taken over on 25 June, 1993. In our view, such a belated challenge should not, in any event, be entertained. However, we would hasten to add that this is quite apart from the fact that we have, independent of this finding, held that possession was in fact taken over prior to 18 March, 1999 consequent upon which the petitioner would not be entitled to the benefit of the Repeal Act."

21. It is also pertinent to mention here that the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of State of Assam v. Bhaskar Jyoti Sarma and others came up for consideration of a Constitution Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Indore Development Authority v. Manohar Lal, (2020) 8 SCC 129, although the question involved in the said case pertained to interpretation of Section 24 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency and Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, the Apex Court while considering paras 15 to 17 of the judgment in the case of State of Assam v. Bhaskar Jyoti Sarma and others (supra) had held as under:-

"This Court held that provisions of the Repeal Act could not be extended in such a case where possession has been taken without following the procedure, and the landowner cannot retain the land. This Court also observed that once possession has been taken over in the year 1991, any grievance as to non-compliance of Section 10 (5) ought to have been made within a reasonable time of such dispossession. By sheer lapse of time, the possession would acquire legitimacy. Thus, the owner or the person in possession must be deemed to have waived his right under Section 10 (5) of the Act. This Court also observed that only because of the fortuitous circumstances of a Repeal Act, which confers regarding his dispossession, being in violation of the prescribed procedure. It is clear from the aforesaid decision that such claim cannot be entertained, and any such dispute raised belatedly was repelled by this Court."

22. In this regard, the Apex Court in the case of Kapilaben Ambalal Patel and others v. State of Gujarat and others, 2021 (12) SCC 95 where the writ petition had been filed after a lapse of 14 years from taking of possession of the land from the land holders. The Hon'ble Supreme Court while upholding the judgment of the Division Bench of the High Court, inter alia dismissing the writ petition on the ground of delay had held as under:-

"17. The Division Bench, in our opinion, therefore, was right in concluding that the writ petition filed by the appellants after lapse of 14 year was hopelessly barred by delay and suffered form laches. We are in agreement with the said view taken by the High Court in the peculiar facts of the present case.

18. Strikingly, in this appeal by special leave, a vague ground has been raised to challenge the said conclusion of the Division Bench. Further, no substantial question of law has been formulated in the appeal by special leave in that regard. Furthermore, in the grounds all that is asserted is that the High Court erred in holding that there was delay of 14 years in filing of writ petition and in not appreciating that the notice under Section 10 (5) of the 1976 Act, dated 23.1.1986, was not served upon Ambalal Parsottambhai Patel as he had already expired on 31.12.1985 and the notice sent to him was returned back on 2.2.1986 unserved with remark "said owner has expired". Further, the legal heirs of Ambalal Parsottambhai Patel ought to have been served with the said notice. From the factual matrix already stated hitherto, these ground, in our opinion, are of no avail to the appellants. It is manifest from the acknowledgement produced by the respondent State that the first notice under Section 10(5) issued to Ambalal Parsottambhai Patel was duly served on 26.12.1985. By the time second notice under Section 10(5) was issued on 23.1.1986, Ambalal Parsottambhai Patel had died (on 31.12.1985). The second notice was also issued to others, namely Bhikhabhai Manganbhai Patel, Natvarbhai Bhailabhai Patel and Jayantibhai Babarbhai Patel. Be that as it may, we are not inclined to reverse the conclusion recorded by the Division Bench of the High Court that the writ petition filed by the appellants was hopelessly delayed and suffered from laches. That is possible view in the facts of the present case.

19. The respondents had additionally relied on the decision of this Court in Larsen & Turbo Ltd (supra), wherein the Court adverted to the exposition in Balwant Narayan Bhagde vs. M.D. Bhagwat & Ors, Balmokand Khatri Educational and Industrial Trust vs. State of Punjab and Tamil Nadu Housing Board vs. A. Viswam (Dead) by Lrs. Regarding the settled legal position that it is difficult to take physical possession of the land under compulsory acquisition. Further, that the normal mode of taking possession is drafting the Panchnama in the presence of Panchas and taking possession and giving delivery to the beneficiaries is accepted mode of taking possession of the land. Subsequent thereto, the retention of possession would tantamount only to illegal or unlawful possession. Reliance is also placed on paragraphs 14 to 16 of the Bhaskar Jyoti Sarma (supra). However, it is not necessary for us to dilate on these aspects having agreed with the conclusion recorded by the Division Bench of the High Court that the writ petition filed in the year 2001 by the appellants with limited relief of questioning the Possession Panchnama dated 20.3. 1986, suffered from laches. The Division Bench of the High Court noted that the learned single Judge completely glossed over this crucial aspect of the matter, and we find no reason to depart from that conclusion."

23. It is further pointed out that as far as the question of delay in filing of writ petition is concerned, the Apex Court in the case of Marinmoy Maity v. Chhanda Koley and others, (2024) 15 SCC 215, which case although does not relate to proceedings under the Act, 1976 had held as under :-

"9. Having heard rival contentions raised and on perusal of the facts obtained in the present case, we are of the considered view that writ petitioner ought to have been non-suited or in other words writ petition ought to have been dismissed on the ground of delay and latches itself. An applicant who approaches the court belatedly or in other words sleeps over his rights for a considerable period of time, wakes up from his deep slumber ought not to be granted the extraordinary relief by the writ courts. This Court time and again has held that delay defeats equity. Delay or laches is one of the factors which should be born in mind by the High Court while exercising discretionary powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. In a given case, the High Court may refuse to invoke its extraordinary powers if laxity on the part of the applicant to assert his right has allowed the cause of action to drift away and attempts are made subsequently to rekindle the lapsed cause of action.

10. The discretion to be exercised would be with care and caution. If the delay which has occasioned in approaching the writ court is explained which would appeal to the conscience of the court, in such circumstances it cannot be gainsaid by the contesting party that for all times to come the delay is not to be condoned. There may be myriad circumstances which gives rise to the invoking of the extraordinary jurisdiction and it all depends on facts and circumstances of each case, same cannot be described in a straight jacket formula with mathematical precision. The ultimate discretion to be exercised by the writ court depends upon the facts that it has to travel or the terrain in which the facts have travelled.

11. For filing of a writ petition, there is no doubt that no fixed period of limitation is prescribed. However, when the extraordinary jurisdiction of the writ court is involved, it has to be seen as to whether within a reasonable time same has been invoked and even submitting of memorials would not revive the dead cause of action of resurrect the cause of action which has had a natural death. In such circumstances on the ground of delay and laches alone, the appeal ought to be dismissed or the applicant ought to be non-suited. If it is found that the writ petitioner is guilty of delay and laches, the High Court ought to dismiss the petition on that sole ground itself, in as much as the writ courts are not to indulge in permitting such indolent litigant to take advantage of his own wrong. It is true that there cannot be any waiver of fundamental right but while exercising discretionary jurisdiction under Article 226, the High Court will have to necessarily take into consideration the delay and latches on the part of the applicant in approaching a writ court..."

24. It is also pertinent to mention here that a Co-ordinate Bench of this Court in Writ C No. 38977 of 2022 (Mithai Lal and others v. State of U.P and others), where the relief of abatement of proceedings under the Act, 1976 and correction of revenue records was sought on the ground that the petitioners were in possession of land in question and no proceedings under Section 10 (6) of the Act, 1976 had been initiated, had went on to dismiss the writ petition on the ground of delay vide judgment and order dated 16.02.2023 where in it was held as under:-

"19. For the reasons aforestated and also in view of the law laid down by Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Bhaskar Jyoti Sharma (supra), Kapilaben Ambalal Patel (supra) and a coordinate Bench decision of this Court in the case of Shiv RamSingh (supra), we do not find any merit in the writ petition. This writ petition is also highly time barred and no reason for the inordinate delay has been given in the writ petition.

20. Consequently, the writ petition is dismissed*. "*

25. Thus, in view of above as the possession of the land in dispute already stood transferred to the respondent no. 3 ? Authority prior to enforcement of the Repeal Act, 1999 and there being substantial delay on the part of the petitioners in approaching this court, thus we have no hesitation in concluding that no case is made out in favour of the petitioners.

26. Hence, the present writ petition lacks merit and is dismissed. No order as to costs.

Writ C No. 16649 of 2026

Syed Rashid Ali & Ors. ...Petitioners
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the petitioners, being merely tenants and shopkeepers and not the owners or title-holders of the shops, had any right or locus to question the road widening or its effect on their properties; and whether the proposed acquisition of the six Waqf mosques was prohibited by the Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991.

Headnotes

Constitution of India, Arts. 14, 19(1)(a), 21 and 300-A – Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, s. 11 – Waqf Act, 1995, ss. 51 and 91 – Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991, ss. 2, 3 and 4 – Road widening and beautification – Acquisition – Tenants and shopkeepers – Petitioners, tenants and shopkeepers of six shops situated at Dalmandi Market/Street, Varanasi, claimed to have been carrying on business in the said shops for decades – State Government issued Government Orders dated 31.03.2025 and 30.07.2025 for widening and beautification of Dalmandi Street – Petitioners alleged that, without issuance of a preliminary notification under s. 11 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, the respondents had commenced demolition of shops and buildings in the garb of implementing the aforesaid Government Orders and were threatening and harassing them with a view to forcibly dispossess them without following due process of law – Petitioners further alleged that six ancient mosques situated in Dalmandi were also proposed to be taken over and demolished for widening and beautification of Dalmandi Street – Petitioners contended that, in view of ss. 2, 3 and 4 of the Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991, the religious character of the six mosques, existing prior to 15.08.1947, could not be altered and their acquisition was prohibited – Petitioners further relied upon ss. 51 and 91 of the Waqf Act, 1995 and contended that proceedings for acquisition of Waqf property were required to be undertaken in accordance therewith – Alleged violation of Arts. 14, 19(1)(a), 21 and 300-A of the Constitution – Respondents contended that petitioners were only tenants and shopkeepers and had no proprietary rights in the shops, that acquisition for public purpose was permissible subject and that the Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 did not prohibit acquisition of religious property for a secular and public purpose.

Held :

Petitioners were tenants and shopkeepers and were not the owners of the shops – Their business in the said shops since the time of their ancestors did not grant them anything more than their tenancy rights – Their rights were limited to their tenancies – Landlords and owners of the premises had not come forward to question the road-widening project or its effect on their properties – When it comes to acquisition of property under the Act of 2013, it is largely the title holder who has locus to object, negotiate a sale or suffer an acquisition – The moment the owner's rights vest in the State either by transfer of land or acquisition, the land vests free from all encumbrances in the State – The tenants, in a situation like this, would hardly have rights to question the acquisition of property – No such notice has been questioned in the petition by the petitioners, nor have they said that they have been served any such notice by the Corporation – It was not the petitioner's case that they were facing any demolition notice from the VDA or any proceedings for demolition under Section 27 of the Act aforesaid had been initiated against them – Any relief, therefore, sought against the Development Authority was besides the point – Six mosques were admittedly registered Waqf, with their own Mutawalli in each case – Essentially, it was the Mutawalli and the Waqf Board who had to protect such properties and their locus was pre-eminent, and not that of the petitioners – Sections 3 and 4 of the Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 had to be harmoniously construed – Section 3 prohibits the conversion of a place of worship of any religious denomination or a sect thereof into a place of worship of another sect of the same religious denomination or a different religious denomination – The Act of 1991 is not meant to derogate from the State's authority to acquire any place of religious worship for a secular and public purpose, subject to the owner's right to receive just and fair compensation – Section 51 of the Waqf Act, 1995 contemplates acquisition of Waqf properties for a public purpose under the Act of 2013 or any other law relating to acquisition of land, if such acquisition is made in consultation with the Waqf Board and subject to the statutory conditions – Petitioners had no right to any of the reliefs that they sought . Advs. for the Petitioner (s) : Mr. Quazi Mohammad Akaram

Advs. for the Respondent(s): Mr. Mahesh Chandra Chaturvedi, Additional Advocate General, along with Mr. Suresh Singh, Additional Chief Standing Counsel for State; Mr. Vineet Sankalp, Advocate for Nagar Nigam, Varanasi; Mr. Ravi Prakash Pandey, Advocate for Varanasi Development Authority, Varanasi.

(Delivered by Hon'ble J.J. Munir, J.)

1. This writ petition has been instituted by six petitioners, who are tenants and shopkeepers of six shops situate in Dalmandi Market/Street, Varanasi. They pray that this Court do issue multiple directions in the nature of mandamus against the respondents, that they say are essential to protect their rights of myriad kind, as would be presently seen.

2. The foremost command the petitioners wish this Court to issue is one directing the respondents not to dispossess them from their respective shops and buildings, situate at Dalmandi Market/Street arbitrarily and illegally, and in violation of their legal as well as human rights.

3. The second and the third reliefs, which the petitioners seek, are in aid of the first, and both of those reliefs are directed to prevent the respondents from deploying workmen, the Police and the paramilitary forces to effect their dispossession, as aforesaid, or harass or threaten them in order to forcefully dispossess them from their respective premises.

4. The fourth relief is a distinct and different relief, by which, the petitioners seek a direction to the respondents to take over and change the character of the six ancient mosques existing at Dalmandi Street, prior to the 15th day of August, 1947, to wit, Anjuman Intezamia Masjid, Masjid Rangile Shah, Masjid Ali Raza Khan, Masjid Karimullah Baig, Masjid Nisaran and Masjid Sangamarmar.

5. The last of the reliefs, which the petitioners seek, is a mandamus directing the respondents to develop any other alternative street nearer the Kashi Vishwanath Dham Corridor in order to widen and strengthen the same for the sake of easy movement and commutation of pilgrims, devotees and tourists visiting the Dham.

6. In substance, therefore, what the petitioners seek is, in the first part, protection of their possession in their respective shops located at Dalmandi Market/Street, where they do business, and, in the second, preservation of the six old mosques, that are likely to give way to the project for widening and beautification of street as part of development of the Kashi Vishwanath Corridor.

7. The facts of this case are that the petitioners are tenants and shopkeepers of shops, which bear the following number :

1. CK43/168-169;
2. CK68/1;
3. CK69/32;
4. CK43/147;
5. CK68/36; and
6. CK43/181

All the aforesaid shops are situate at Dalmandi Market/Street, Varanasi. The petitioners say that they have been engaged in their respective business in these shops for decades. Prior to the petitioners taking up business in these shops, their ancestors were engaged in running the same business in the very shops and premises that the petitioners now occupy. In short, they say that not only their business, but also their business premises are now legacy in their hands. They have brought on record lease agreements, rent slips and electricity bills relating to their respective shops in order to substantiate their claim, all annexed to the writ petition as Annexure No. 1.

8. The petitioners further say that they have been doing active and continuous business in the respective shops at Dalmandi Market/Street for decades, as they say, and in proof thereof, they have produced some still photographs of the shops, which they have annexed to the writ petition. According to the petitioners case, the Dalmandi Market is a busy and dense area, which has existed for centuries. People from all over the Purvanchal visit this market for shopping and purchase of necessaries and other things of use. It is a market that serves not only Varanasi, but also the entire Purvanchal. The Dalmandi Market is located in a stretch of 650 meters, which houses 187 buildings. These buildings have existed, as already said, for a long period of time. The buildings house more than 1000 shops. Dalmandi is a densely populated area, which is dominated by members of a particular religious community, to wit, the Muslims. More than 97% of the shopkeepers and owners of the buildings are Muslims and they have been carrying on their profession and business for decades together. No one has interfered in the peaceful business and occupation of the petitioners and other occupants until the month of July 2025.

9. The petitioners say that they were utterly surprised, as also the other shopkeepers and residents of Dalmandi, when a Government Order dated 31.03.2025, followed by another dated 30.7.2025, were issued by the State Government, allocating a budget of ₹21,588.24 lakhs for the purpose of widening and beautification of the Dalmandi Street. It is pointed out that the Dalmandi Street has a maximum width of 70 feet for the present. The respondents propose to widen and strengthen the Dalmandi Street for easy movement and commutation of tourists, pilgrims, and devotees, who visit the Kashi Vishwanath Dham.

10. The distance of the Dalmandi Market from the Kashi Vishwanath Mandir is about 800 meters towards the east. Adjacent to the Dalmandi is Kodai Chowk and Sonar Gali, which are located at a distance of 100 meters from the Kashi Vishwanath Temple. However, the distance of Dalmandi through Chowk is about 800 meters. The petitioners, therefore, say that Dalmandi is much farther than Sonar Gali from the Kashi Vishwanath Dham Corridor and the Kashi Vishwanath Temple. The petitioners further plead that the Public Works Department seek to take possession of the entire Dalmandi area for the purpose of its beautification, widening and strengthening. The purpose and idea behind the widening and beautification of Dalmandi Street is said by the respondents to be ease of movement in commutation of pilgrims, who come to visit the Kashi Vishwanath Temple, Varanasi.

11. After the Government Orders dated 31.03.2025 and 30.07.2025, have been issued, the respondent-Authorities, their workmen and the Police have been threatening the petitioners and harassing the other shopkeepers and residents of the entire Dalmandi Market/Street for the purpose of forcibly dispossessing them from the buildings in which their shops are located, without resort to any provision of the law, in clear violation of their rights.

12. The next fact that is pleaded is about a different right altogether. It has nothing to do with the petitioners' right to freedom of trade, business or livelihood, or its abridgment in consequence of the State's decision to widen the Dalmandi Street. It is about the right of the petitioners to practice their religion, and more than that, protect old mosques, said to be constructed prior to the 15th day of August, 1947 from losing their existence to the proposed development. It is pleaded that in the Dalmandi area, where old members of the Muslim community are working for the occupation or living, there are six ancient mosques called Anjuman Intezamia Masjid, Masjid Rangile Shah, Masjid Ali Raza Khan, Masjid Karimullah Baig, Masjid Nisaran and Masjid Sangamarmar. All these mosques have been constructed decades ago and decidedly, before the 15th day of August 1947. The petitioners have secured documents regarding ownership and existence of some of the mosques and also photographed them. Copies of the documents relating to these mosques and the original photographs thereof from the Dalmandi Market/Street are annexed to the writ petition as the Fifth Annexure. It is pleaded in paragraph no. 15 that the said mosques are also proposed to be demolished by the respondents, in the garb of enforcing Government Orders dated 31.03.2025 and 30.07.2025 for the purpose of widening and beautification of the Dalmandi Street/Market.

13. The petitioners somehow secured, under the Right to Information Act, 20052 from the PWD, Varanasi information to show that the six ancient mosques are also proposed to be taken over and demolished. The PWD sent their reply that all the six mosques in question are said to be acquired and taken over by the respondents. A copy of the reply from the PWD, Varanasi under the RTI is also on record to the writ petition and annexed to it. It is emphasised that there is no urgency and necessity for public purpose that may move the respondents to widen the Dalmandi Street. It is emphasised that no notification mentioning the purpose of widening of the Dalmandi Street has so far been published by the Government. It is averred that no public purpose, which the respondents say is involved, would be served by depriving thousands of citizens of their right to livelihood and shelter as also their right to worship by demolishing the six ancient mosques located in the area. The proposed decision of the respondents to widen the Dalmandi Street is, therefore, perverse, arbitrary and illegal, and above all, one, in violation of The Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991.

14. It is next pleaded that without issue of a preliminary notification under Section 11 of The Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013, the respondents, in collusion with each other, have commenced demolishing shops and buildings forcibly and without due process of law, all located in the Dalmandi Market/Street, in the name of the aforesaid Government Orders dated 31.03.2025 and 30.07.2025.

15. It is specifically pleaded that for their protection, in matter of acting dehors the law, the other respondents and officers of the Nagar Nigam have manufactured a representation given by one Sanjay Singh, who has written to the Nagar Nigam, that some buildings in the Dalmandi Market are in a dilapidated condition and need to be demolished by the Nagar Nigam. In the garb of acting on the said representation dated 29.01.2026, the respondents, with the aid of the Police and the paramilitary forces, encircled the entire Dalmandi area and demolished 29 buildings from 09.02.2026 until date. A copy of the representation dated 29.01.2026 addressed to the Nagar Ayukt, Nagar Nigam, Varanasi by Dr. Sanjay Singh Gautam is on record of the writ petition as an annexure. The Nagar Nigam have a list of buildings that are dilapidated in the entire city of Varanasi. However, no buildings have so far been demolished, except those located in the Dalmandi Street/Market. A copy of the dilapidated buildings drawn up by the Nagar Nigam, Varanasi is also annexed to the writ petition.

16. The petitioners and other similarly situate persons affected by the illegal demolition of the buildings, where their premises are located, have captured some still photographs of the demolition carried out by the respondents and their workmen, officers and police personnel. Copies of the photographs of demolition are placed on the record of the writ petition. The petitioners have received threats from the respondents, asking them to vacate their respective shops and premises, without due process of law. The respondents threatened human rights of the petitioners as well as have threatened to forcibly dispossess the petitioners from their respective shops and premises, without providing them resettlement, relocation and rehabilitation, which are their legal rights, provided under the Act of 2013. The petitioners are being deprived of the right to livelihood and shelter, pushing them to the verge of starvation.

17. There are other odd pleadings in paragraphs nos. 25 and 26 of the writ petition, which show that the purpose behind the demolition of the residential shops and buildings and the proposed widening is extraneous and directed to target a particular community at the instance of the ruling dispensation in the State. Again, extraneous motives are imputed to the Government and the respondent-Authorities in paragraph no. 27 of the writ petition. It is next said that apart from this, thousands of citizens, including the petitioners, are said to be deprived of their livelihood, whereas only about 30 residential buildings are situate in the Sonar Gali, a far more suitable and easier site for widening and strengthening of the pilgrims route during their commutation and movement, while visiting the Kashi Vishwanath Dham.

18. A Social Impact Study Report prepared by an agency called ENV DAS India (Pvt.) Ltd. Developmental Assistance India Private Limited, Lucknow, that was forwarded to the Land Acquisition Officer, shows that the shopkeepers in the Dalmandi Street are tenants belonging to the Muslim community. They would be deprived of their livelihood, in the event they are dispossessed by widening of the Dalmandi Market/Street, one of the oldest markets. The said report also says that every now and then, demolition drive is carried out by the respondents, curtailing legal and human rights of the shopkeepers and residents in the area. This is emphasised that there are heaps of debris, scattered over the entire Dalmandi area, that have made business difficult for shopkeepers. The business of the petitioners and other men of commerce at the Dalmandi have been ruined by the threats extended by the respondents, the Police and the paramilitary forces who are deployed in the area and patrolling it.

19. It is particularly urged that the Parliament has passed the Act of 1991 with the object and purpose of prohibiting conversion of any place of worship and to provide for maintenance of the religious character of any place of worship, as it existed on 15.08.1947, and for matters connected therewith or incidental thereto. The character that is to be preserved is one that existed on the 15th day of August 1947. Various provisions of the Act of 1991 have been copiously pleaded in order to bring home the point as to how the said Act would be violated, if the six mosques, located in the Dalmandi, are included in the development scheme.

20. It is pleaded that by virtue of Section 4 of the Act of 1991, no acquisition, as proposed by the respondents, could be made. Therefore, any notification or Government Order, making a proposal for the acquisition of the mosques in Dalmandi is per se illegal and arbitrary, besides being one in violation of legal and human rights of the petitioners, apart from other members of the Muslim community. It is emphasised that according to the Social Impact Study Report, 50% of the families reside in Dalmandi and 45% of them live at other places, but have their business there. The Social Impact Study Report also mentions the six ancient mosques present in the Dalmandi. The petitioners allege violation of their fundamental rigths under Articles 14, 21, 19(1)(a) and 300(a) of the Constitution. It is broadly on these pleadings that the petitioners seek relief in the present petition.

21. In the supplementary affidavit filed by the petitioners, there is appended a letter from the U.P. Sunni Central Waqf Board, Lucknow dated 23.04.2026 from the Chief Executive Officer of the Board with the Executive Engineer, Provincial Division, PWD, Varanasi. It is a response to the letter dated 17.04.2026 from the Executive Engineer to the Chief Executive Officer of the Waqf Board, where properties of certain Waqf were intimated to be wholly or entirely affected by some project, with particulars of the premises number furnished to the Waqf Board. In the reply of the Chief Executive Officer of the Waqf Board, six mosques are mentioned with their premises number and the relative Waqf number. The names of respective Mutawalli of the six Waqf are also mentioned. It is said, at the tail end of the letter, that proceedings for acquisition of any Waqf property have to be taken in accordance with Sections 51 and 91 of The Unified Waqf Management, Empowerment, Efficiency and Development Act, 1995.

22. It is the petitioner's case, in paragraph no. 3 of the supplementary affidavit, that the Waqf Board could not issue guidelines/instructions to the Executive Engineer, Provincial Division, PWD, Varanasi, in contravention of Sections 51 of the Waqf Act, 1995. The proviso to Section 51(a) stiputes that acquisition shall not be in contravention of the Act of 1991. Therefore, no acquisition proceedings could be taken of the places of worship, which are within the purview of Section 4 of the Act of 1991. It is also averred that the Waqf Board, in connivance with other Authorities concerned, issued the said letter dated 22.04.2026, saying that said ancient mosques would be taken over in acquisition proceedings. There are assertions in paragraph no. 4 of the supplementary affidavit that the six ancient mosques situate at Dalmandi are covered under Section 4 of the Act of 1991, which cannot be acquired in any mode whatsoever, as also with the consent of the officer bearers/management of the said ancient mosques.

23. Heard Mr. Quazi Mohammad Akaram, learned Counsel for the petitioners, Mr. Mahesh Chandra Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General assisted by Mr. Suresh Singh, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel appearing for the State-respondents, Mr. Vineet Sankalp, learned Counsel appearing for the Nagar Nigam, Varanasi and Mr. Ravi Prakash Pandey, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the Varanasi Development Authority, Varanasi.

24. Learned Counsel for the petitioners has supported the writ petition on the various grounds already noticed above.

25. The learned Additional Advocate General appearing on behalf of the State has submitted that the writ petitioners acknowledge that they are tenants and shopkeepers of different shops in Dalmadi Market/Street bearing numbers CK43/168-169, CK68/1, CK69/32, CK43/147, CK68/36 and CK43/181. In support of this claim of theirs, the petitioners have certain copies of rent agreements, rent slips and electricity bills, out of which, three in number are unregistered agreements on non-judicial stamps in the form of notarial affidavit. The inference is, therefore, clear that they are not owners of the buildings in question, but tenants.

26. A perusal of the writ petition clearly demonstrates that the petitioners have not submitted any application, relating to the reliefs which they seek before this Court by the issue of an mandamus. Under the law governing mandamus, it cannot generally be granted, unless the petitioner has first made a formal demand for justice before the authority sought to be commanded, who has refused to oblige or is completely inactive. A mandamus is an extraordinary prerogative writ rather than a right. It is a settled law that demand for justice and its refusal must proceed with filing of a writ petition, praying for the issue of a mandamus. It must be shown by evidence that there was a distinct demand by the party applying for a mandamus. Reference is made to the consistent holding of the Supreme Court in Saraswati Syndicate Ltd. v. Union of India, Amrit Lal Berry v. Collector of Central Excise and Kamini Kumar Das v. State of West Bengal, where it has been held that before approaching a High Court, the absence of a prior written representation of demand for justice renders the petition fundamentally defective.

27. It is emphasised by the learned Additional Government Advocate that the petitioners have annexed a letter dated 03.06.2025 issued by the Executive Engineer, Provincial Division, PWD, Varanasi, addressed to one Mirza Saif Baig, under the Right to Information Act, 2005, wherein it has been clearly found that land/building, which may be utilised for widening of the road, may be taken after execution of sale deeds, on the basis of mutual agreement, as provided under the Government Order dated 19.03.2015 or acquired under the Act of 2013. The Act of 2013 clearly provides compensation for land owners and rehabilitation and resettlement, entitlement for all affected families, in accordance with the provisions of the said Act, which includes the First and the Second Schedule. Therefore, the apprehension of the petitioners are unfounded. The land/building falling under the area of road widening is being taken up for execution of sale deeds on the basis of agreement and payment of appropriate compensation, and those who do not agree for execution of sale deeds on the basis of agreement, proceedings have been initiated for acquisition of the land/building under the Act of 2013, and in this regard, notification under Section 11 of the Act of 2013 has been issued after completing necessary formalities, that insofar action being taken by the VDA or the Nagar Nigam, Varanasi is concerned, that is quite independent of the State Government acquiring land for road widening in accordance with the Act of 2013. Those bodies are proceeding in individual cases under The Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act, 197311 or The Uttar Pradesh Municipal Corporation Act, 195912. Those proceedings are on considerations relevant under the last mentioned statutes, which the Municipal Corporation and the Development Authority are charged with their obligation of implementing.

28. It is next submitted by Mr. Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General that the petitioner have referred to six mosques in the Dalmandi area in paragraphs nos. 14, 31, 32, 33 and 34 of the writ petition, which cannot be disturbed, in view of the provisions of the Act of 1991. They have referred to the provisions of Sections 2(a), 2(b), 4 and 7 of the Act of 1991. The learned Additional Advocate General submits that neither the Act of 1991 nor the Waqf Act, 1995 prohibits land acquisition under the Act of 2013. The Act of 1991 does not prohibit the Government from acquiring religious land for larger public purposes. Under the Act of 2013, the Government has the sovereign power to acquire any property, including religious property, for public purpose, such as building roads, highways or public infrastructure. The Act of 2013 allows this, provided that fair compensation, and where applicable, rehabilitation are granted. The Act of 1991 is intended solely to prevent conversion of a public place of worship from one religion or denomination to that of another religion or another denomination of the same religion, thus preserving status quo as existed on 15th August, 1947. The Act of 1991 is not a shield against acquisition by the State for public purpose or welfare. Learned Additional Advocate General, in this regard, has placed reliance upon the authority of this Court in Church of North India Trust Association v. Union of India and others.

29. It is further argued that the petitioners have nowhere shown any special authority with regard to the six mosques referred to in paragraph no. 14. It is next submitted that the Waqf Act, 1995 does not prohibit to take over of land of a Waqf, under the Act of 2013, subject only to the provisions Sections 51 and 91 of the Waqf Act, 1995. It is, in fact, permissible under the provisions of Section 51 and 91 of the Waqf Act, 1995.

30. We have heard learned Counsel for parties at considerable length at the motion stage.

31. Upon hearing learned Counsel parties, what we find is that the petitioners have mixed up their rights, some of which they have and some of which they do not. The petitioners are admittedly tenants and shopkeepers of six shops bearing numbers CK43/168-169, CK68/1, CK69/32, CK43/147, CK68/36 and CK43/181, situate at Dalmandi Market/Street, Varanasi. They are admittedly not the owners of the said shops. It is true that they might have had their business in the said shops since the time of their ancestors, but that would not grant them anything more than their tenancy rights. They hold on lease agreements and rely on rent slips, reiterating their status as tenants in six of the shops located in Dalmandi. It is not that since their shops are running for a long time, when their ancestors were doing the same business, that their rights have been enlarged to some kind of a proprietorship.

32. As it appears, Rashid Ali, who a tenant in Shop No. CK-43/168-169, whereof the owners are Haji Mohammad Saleem and Mohammad Saleem pays a monthly rent and the rent receipt for the rent last paid by him relating to the period August to December, 2004 is for sum of ₹1750. There is a photostat copy of the rent agreement annexed by petitioner no. 2, Mohammad Dilshad, who is a tenant in Shop No. CK68/36. The rent agreement is dated 20.01.2023, where the landlord is one Syed Akhtar Ali. A shop is held on a monthly rent of ₹2200. There are similar other rent agreements, where shops are held on whatever are the settled monthly rents, evidenced in some cases by rent agreements, and in others, by rent receipts. The rights of these petitioners are, therefore, limited to their tenancies.

33. We note that the landlords and owners of the premises have not come forward to question the road-widening project or its effect on their properties. We would think that the petitioners are more or less here, in order to protect their business and source of livelihood, rather than proprietary rights. When it comes to acquisition of property under the Act of 2013, it is largely the title holder who has locus to object, negotiate a sale or suffer an acquisition. The tenant hardly has any rights. The moment the owner's rights vest in the State either by transfer of land or acquisition, the land vests free from all encumbrances in the State. May be in the case of a sale deed, arrangement would have to be made about the rights of the tenants, because, upon a voluntary transfer of property by owner to the State for a negotiated consideration, the tenant might become the State's tenant. That might not at all happen in case of acquisition. The tenants, in a situation like this, would hardly have rights to question the acquisition of property.

34. It also appears that in some cases, the Nagar Nigam is taking action under the Act of 1959. That action would be on very different premises. It would mostly be putting down certain structures that are dilapidated, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of 1959. No such notice has been questioned in this petition by the petitioners, nor have they said that they have been served any such notice by the Corporation. It is possibly about some other buildings in the Dalmandi Street, which are dilapidated, but not involved in this petition.

35. Likewise is the case with the action taken by the Development Authority. Their province and powers are limited to the Act of 1973. They usually proceed against a building for demolition under Section 27 of the Act of 1973, if it is constructed without a sanctioned plan or map, or in violation thereof. It is not the petitioner's case that they are facing any demolition notice from the VDA or any proceedings for demolition under Section 27 of the Act aforesaid have been initiated against them. Any relief, therefore, sought against the Development Authority is besides the point.

36. The petitioners, who are tenants in certain shops, as already said, located in the Dalmandi Street, have mixed up another cause of action, and that is about protecting the six mosques located in the Dalmandi area from acquisition. They seem to urge that since they are Muslims, they have a right to protect these mosques, that are Waqf properties. From the primary cause of action involved in the writ petition, which is about protecting shops, wherein the petitioners are tenants, protecting six mosques located in the area, would make us think that the cause of action is rather multifarious, and seeks to agitate very different kind of rights. The mosques are admittedly registered Waqf, with their own Mutawalli in each case. No doubt, members of the Muslim community may come forward in certain cases, but essentially it is the Mutawalli and the Waqf Board, who have to protect such properties. We have, nevertheless, heard the petitioners on this issue as well. If we hear the petitioners on this issue and pass judgment, it might prejudice the rights of the Mutawalli and the Waqf Board, who might have something to say in the matter, and their locus is pre-eminent, and not of the petitioners□.

37. Since the learned Counsel for the petitioners were, nevertheless, very emphatic about their submissions that they have a right to ensure that the mosques are not acquired, as it is a violation of the provisions of that all-time shield, to wit, the Act of 1991, we have considered their arguments in this regard, limited to their rights as members of the Muslim community. They have relied upon the provisions of Section 2(b), 2(c), 3, 4 and 7 of the Act of 1991. These read :

2. Defintions.- In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,-

(b) "conversion", with its grammatical variations, includes alteration or change of whatever nature;

(c) "place of worship" means a temple, mosque, gurudwara, church, monastery or any other place of public religious worship of any religious denomination or any section thereof, by whatever name called.

3. Bar of conversion of places of worship.-No person shall convert any place of worship of any religious denomination or any section thereof into a place of worship of a different section of the same religious denomination or of a different religious denomination or any section thereof.

Provided that if any suit, appeal or other proceeding, instituted or filed on the ground that conversion has taken place in the religious character of any such place after the 15th day of August, 1947, is pending on the commencement of this Act, such suit, appeal or other proceeding shall not so abate and every such suit, appeal or other proceeding shall be disposed of in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1).

(3) Nothing contained in sub-section (1) and sub-section (2) shall apply to,-

(a) any place of worship referred to in the said sub-sections which is an ancient and historical monument or an archaeological site or remains covered by the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958 (24 of 1958) or any other law for the time being in force;

(d) any conversion of any such place effected before such commencement by acquiescence;

(e) any conversion of any such place effected before such commencement which is not liable to be challenged in any court, tribunal or other authority being barred by limitation under any law for the time being in force.

38. They have also relied upon the provisions of Sections 51 and 91 of the Waqf Act, 1995. Sections 51 and 91 of the Waqf Act, 1995 read :

51. Alienation of waqf property without sanction of Board to be void.-(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the waqf deed, any lease of any immovable property which is waqf property, shall be void unless such lease is effected with the prior sanction of the Board:

Provided that no mosque, dargah, khanqah, graveyard, or imambara shall be leased except any unused graveyards in the States of Punjab, Haryana and Himachal Pradesh where such graveyard has been leased out before the date of commencement of the Wakf (Amendment) Act, 2013 (27 of 2013).

(1A) Any sale, gift, exchange, mortgage or transfer of waqf property shall be void ab initio.

Provided that in case the Board is satisfied that any waqf property may be developed for the purposes of the Act, it may, after recording reasons in writing, take up the development of such property through such agency and in such manner as the Board may determine and move a resolution containing recommendation of development of such waqf property, which shall be passed by a majority of two-thirds of the total membership of the Board:

Provided further that nothing contained in this sub-section shall affect any acquisition of waqf properties for a public purpose under [the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (30 of 2013) or any other law relating to acquisition of land if such acquisition is made in consultation with the Board:

Provided also that-

(a) the acquisition shall not be in contravention of the Places of Public Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 (42 of 1991);

(b) the purpose for which the land is being acquired shall be undisputedly for a public purpose;

(c) no alternative land is available which shall be considered as more or less suitable for that purpose; and

(d) to safeguard adequately the interest and objective of the waqf, the compensation shall be at the prevailing market value or a suitable land with reasonable solatium in lieu of the acquired property.

91. Proceedings under Act 1 of 1894*.-(1) If, in the course of proceedings under the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (30 of 2013) or under any law for the time being in force relating to the acquisition of land or other property, and before an award is made, in case the property under acquisition is waqf property, a notice of such acquisition shall be served by Collector on the Board and further proceedings shall be stayed to enable the Board to appear and plead as a party to the proceeding at any time within three months from the date of the receipt of such notice.*

Explanation.-The reference to the Collector in the foregoing provisions of this sub-section shall, in relation to any other law referred to therein, be construed, if the Collector is not the competent authority under such other law to make an award of the compensation or other amount payable for acquisition of land or other property thereunder, as a reference to the authority under such other law competent to make such award.

(2) Where the Board has reason to believe that any property under acquisition is waqf property, it may at any time before the award is made appear and plead as a party to the proceeding.

3) When the Board has appeared under the provisions of sub-section (1) or sub-section (2), no order shall be passed under section 77 or section 78 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (30 of 2013) or under the corresponding provisions of the other law referred to in sub-section (1) without giving an opportunity to the Board to be heard.

(4) Any order passed [under section 77 or section 78 of the Right to Fair Compensation and Transparency in Land Acquisition, Rehabilitation and Resettlement Act, 2013 (30 of 2013)] or under the corresponding provisions of the other law referred to in sub-section (1) without giving an opportunity to the Board to be heard, 2[shall be kept in abeyance relating to portion of the property claimed by the Board, if the Board), within one month of its coming to know of the order, applies in this behalf to the authority which made the order.

Provided that the Collector after hearing the parties concerned shall make the order within one month of the application of the Board.

39. The foremost to be considered is the Act of 1991, regarding which, the submission of the learned Counsel for the petitioners is that it would make the acquisition of the mosques absolutely illegal, because these mosques are in existence much prior to the 15th day of August, 1947. We notice that the place of worship has been defined as a Temple, Mosque, Gurudwara, Church, Monastery or any other place of public religious worship of any religious denomination. Conversion means alteration or change of whatever nature.

40. Section 3 of the Act of 1991 prohibits the conversion of a place of worship of any religious denomination or a sect thereof into a place of worship of another sect of the same religious denomination or a different religious denomination.

41. Section 4 of the Act of 1991 makes a declaration that there shall be no change in the religious character of a place of worship existing on the 15th day of August, 1947. Sub-section (3) of Section 4 provides that no place of worship referred to in sub-Section (1) and sub-Section (2) of Section 4 of the Act of 1991, which is an ancient and historical monument, or an archaeological site, or covered by the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Sites and Remains Act, 1958, shall be covered by the declaration under Section 4.

42. Now, Sections 3 and 4 of the Act of 1991 have to be harmoniously construed, in particular, sub-Section (1) of Section 4. Read in isolation, sub-Section (1) of Section 4 might seem to declare that the religious character of a place of worship existing on the 15th day of August, 1947 is immutable, to wit, if it was a temple, it will remain a temple, if a church, it would remain that, and if a mosque, it would continue to be so. But reading it this way, would be a misconstruction of the scope of the Statute. When Section 4(1) of the Act of 1991 is read together with Section 3, it is evident that there is a prohibition imposed by Section 3 upon any person converting any place of worship of any religious denomination or a sect thereof into a place of worship of a different sect of the same denomination or to that of a different religious denomination. Sections 3 and 4 of the Act of 1991, when harmoniously construed, prevent the religious character of a place of worship belonging to a religious denomination from being changed into a place of worship of another religious denomination, from whatever it was on the 15th day of August, 1947. In short, a temple on 15th August, 1947 cannot be converted to a church or a mosque, and likewise, a mosque or a church to a temple. The purport of the Act of 1991 is not to place beyond the pale of authority of the State s right as the owner paramount of all lands in the territory of India and to acquire and use it for any public purpose, subject, of course, to the owner's right to receive just and fair compensation. That is what the doctrine of eminent domain, after all, means. The Act of 1991 is not meant to derogate from that right of the State.

43. The object of the Act of 1991 also shows that it was enacted to prohibit conversion of any place of worship and when read with Section 3, the scope of the Act is limited to conversion of a place of worship of one religious denomination into another, or from one sect of the same denomination into another. The Act of 1991 does not, at all, go beyond the said prohibition.

44. Section 51 of the Waqf Act, 1995 (as amended by Act No. 14 of 2025) provides, by virtue of the second proviso to sub-Section (1A) of Section 51 that nothing contained in this sub-Section, that is to say, the prohibition on sale, gift, exchange, mortgage or transfer of Waqf property being void, shall affect any acquisition of Waqf properties for a public purpose, under the Act of 2013, or any other law relating to acquisition of land, if such acquisition is made in consultation with the Board. The Board, of course, means the Waqf Board. The third proviso says that the acquisition shall not be in contravention of the Act of 1991, the provision upon which learned Counsel for the petitioner has much harped.

45. We have already held that the Act of 1991 prohibits the conversion of place of worship of one religious denomination into another. It does not derogate from the State's authority to acquire any place of religious worship for a secular and public purpose, like development of a road or augmentation of infrastructure or any similar activity. In this connection, reference may be made to the remarks of the Constitution Bench of the Supreme Court in Dr. M. Ismail Faruqui and others v. Union of India and others, where it has been observed :

80. It has been contended that a mosque enjoys a particular position in Muslim Law and once a mosque is established and prayers are offered in such a mosque, the same remains for all time to come a property of Allah and the same never reverts back to the donor or founder of the mosque and any person professing Islamic faith can offer prayer in such a mosque and even if the structure is demolished, the place remains the same where the namaz can be offered. As indicated hereinbefore, in British India, no such protection was given to a mosque and the mosque was subjected to the provisions of statute of limitation thereby extinguishing the right of Muslims to offer prayers in a particular mosque lost by adverse possession over that property.

81. Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act comprehends the categories of properties known to Indian Law. Article 367 of the Constitution adopts this secular concept of property for purposes of our Constitution. A temple, church or mosque etc. are essentially immovable properties and subject to protection under Articles 25 and 26. Every immovable property is liable to be acquired. Viewed in the proper perspective, a mosque does not enjoy any additional protection which is not available to religious places of worship of other religions.

82. The correct position may be summarised thus. Under the Mahomedan Law applicable in India, title to a mosque can be lost by adverse possession (See Mulla's Principles of Mahomedan Law, 19th Edn., by M. Hidayatullah Section 217; and Shahid Ganj v. Shiromani Gurdwara [AIR 1940 PC 116, 121 : 44 CWN 957 : 67 IA 251]). If that is the position in law, there can be no reason to hold that a mosque has a unique or special status, higher than that of the places of worship of other religions in secular India to make it immune from acquisition by exercise of the sovereign or prerogative power of the State. A mosque is not an essential part of the practice of the religion of Islam and namaz (prayer) by Muslims can be offered anywhere, even in open. Accordingly, its acquisition is not prohibited by the provisions in the Constitution of India. Irrespective of the status of a mosque in an Islamic country for the purpose of immunity from acquisition by the State in exercise of the sovereign power, its status and immunity from acquisition in the secular ethos of India under the Constitution is the same and equal to that of the places of worship of the other religions, namely, church, temple etc. It is neither more nor less than that of the places of worship of the other religions. Obviously, the acquisition of any religious place is to be made only in unusual and extraordinary situations for a larger national purpose keeping in view that such acquisition should not result in extinction of the right to practise the religion, if the significance of that place be such. Subject to this condition, the power of acquisition is available for a mosque like any other place of worship of any religion. The right to worship is not at any and every place, so long as it can be practised effectively, unless the right to worship at a particular place is itself an integral part of that right.

(emphasis by Court)

46. In Yusuf Ajij Shaikh and others v. Special Land Acquisition Officer No. 2, Pune and others, dealing with the issue that we have under consideration, it has been remarked by P.S. Patankar, J. :

8. The new question now raised is whether this acquisition can be dropped in view of the enactment i.e. The Places of Worship (Special Provisions) Act, 1991 (hereafter referred to as the Places of Worship Act). The learned Advocate for the Appellants drew my attention to the Preamble of the said Act which says that this is an Act to prohibit conversion of any place of worship and to provide for the maintenance of the religious character of any place of worship as it existed on the 15th day of August, 1947. This is also to be found in section 4(1).

Section 2(b) defines "conversion" which is as follows:-

"2(b) "conversion" with its grammatical variations, includes alteration or change of whatever nature;"

Section 3 is a charging section. It says that "No person shall convert any place of worship of any religious denomination or any section thereof into a place of worship of a different section of the same religious denomination or of a different religious denomination or any section thereof". The learned Advocate for Respondents submits that this enactment has no application as far as the acquisition of land under the Land Acquisition Act is concerned. The ban is on persons to convert, alter or change from one section etc. to another. This has been done with a view that persons of one community or section do not trespass and usurp the land or religious place of some other religious community or section and convert it into their place of worship. This has been done with a view to maintain communal harmony in the country. He submits that this is also clear from section 6 which provides for punishment for contravention of section 3. Section 6(1) provides for punishment to person who contravenes section 3 with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to pay fine. Section 6(2) and section 6(3) provide for attempt and abetment in that respect. The submission made on behalf of respondents deserves to be accepted. In this case land is sought to be acquired under the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act. No provision of the Places of Worship Act bans such acquisition expressly or impliedly. The provisions of the Land Acquisition Act are not abrogated. It is very, clear that this Act has been enacted for the limited purpose to prohibit and punish one section or community who illegally takes over the land of religious worship of another community or section and changes its character. It is not possible to accept the submission that acquisition of land under the Land Acquisition Act loses its character and therefore prohibited. Under this Act, conversion contemplated by section 3 is by persons of the place of worship of one community or section to religious place of worship of some other community or section. It is not mere conversion as defined. This legislative intent is clearly discernible and done with a view to see that communal harmony is not disturbed by such acts of one community or section or denomination. The injunction under section 4(1) is for the people of all communities to see that the religious character of a place of worship existing on the 15th day of August, 1947 is maintained and continued and there is no conversion. This cannot cover in its sweep the acquisition of land under the Land Acquisition Act. It is not merely because there is a loss of Dargah or the Mosque this would amount to conversion in view of section 3. This is also clear from section 6 which prescribes punishment to those persons who indulge in such conversion. Hence I reject this contention.

47. We were not inclined to go into this issue, because the petitioners rights are very limited and the cause of action, which they essentially canvass, would not logically involve the issue about the six ancient mosques being acquired for any public purpose. But, since the petitioners have canvassed that point much vociferously, we have dealt with it in commensurate measure, without prejudice to the rights of the State, the Waqf Board and the Mutawalli of mosques concerned to suit their rights in appropriate proceedings, if and when the occasion arises. So far as the petitioners are concerned, we are of opinion that they have no right to any of the reliefs that they seek.

48. In the result, this petition fails and stands dismissed.

49. There shall be no order as to costs.

Issue for Consideration

Matter pertains to the maintainability of a writ petition under Article 226 of the Constitution of India challenging the cancellation of a fisheries lease, forfeiture of security deposit and recovery proceedings arising out of a contractual dispute containing an arbitration clause, and whether, despite the writ petition having remained pending for long and pleadings having been exchanged, the petitioner could still be relegated to the alternative remedy of arbitration.

Headnotes

Constitution of India, Art. 226 – Writ jurisdiction – Contractual disputes – Alternative remedy – Arbitration clause – Disputed questions of fact – Fisheries lease – E-tender invited for auction of fishing rights – Fisheries lease granted to petitioner – Agreement executed between parties – Cancellation of lease, forfeiture of security deposit and initiation of recovery proceedings by the Corporation on account of non-payment of contractual dues – Petitioner claimed that actual fishing area made available was substantially less than the area advertised due to overlap with core forest area and State boundaries and alleged breach of agreement by respondents – Petitioner challenged cancellation of lease, forfeiture of security deposit and recovery proceedings – Respondents raised objection as to maintainability of writ petition on ground of availability of arbitration clause and existence of disputed questions of fact – Maintainability of writ petition:

Held: It is well settled that this Court, in exercise of powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, normally does not entertain petitions with regard to contractual disputes, particularly if there are disputed questions of fact involved – Although there is no absolute bar on entertaining petitions involving contractual disputes, the present case does not involve failure of principles of natural justice or violation of fundamental rights – Questions relating to the income earned by the petitioner while carrying out fishing under the agreement, the actual reservoir area made available to the petitioner for fishing and the effect thereof on the adjustments to be made in the installments payable are disputed questions of fact – Such questions require the parties to adduce evidence in support of their respective case and cannot be adjudicated in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India – Mere pendency of writ petition for long and exchange of pleadings does not warrant adjudication under Article 226 where serious dispute of fact exists and materials on record are insufficient or inconclusive – Writ petition not maintainable – Petitioner relegated to remedy under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996 – Interim protection granted for six weeks to enable petitioner to avail appropriate remedy – No opinion expressed as to which of the parties committed breach of the agreement, observations being made only for the purpose of deciding whether the present petition should have been entertained or not. Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioners : Anurag Kumar Ojha, Siddharth Khare
Advs. for the Respondent : Ajit Singh, C.S.C., Santosh Kumar Srivastava

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sudhanshu Chauhan, J.)

1. Heard Sri Siddharth Khare along with Sri Anurag Kumar Ojha, learned counsels for the petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for the State-respondent no.1 and Sri Santosh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the respondent nos. 2 and 3.

2. The petitioner has filed the present petition, being aggrieved by the order dated 28.09.2024 passed by respondent no. 2, Chief General Manager, UP Fisheries Development Corporation Limited, Lucknow, by means of which the agreement for Fisheries Lease has been cancelled and the security amount of Rs. 67,70,825/- forfeited, besides, the petitioner has also been called upon to deposit an amount of Rs.1,82,67,040/- within a period of 15 days, failing which, proceedings of recovery as arrears of land revenue shall be initiated, and the petitioner blacklisted. The petitioner is also aggrieved by the letter dated 07.10.2024 issued by the Manager (Finance and Accounts), UP Fisheries Development Corporation Limited, Lucknow, by means of which the Branch Manager, Punjab and Sindh Bank, has been called upon to release the Bank Guarantee/FDR deposited by the petitioner in favor the respondent- Corporation.

3. The controversy shorn of facts is that the UP Fisheries Development Corporation Limited, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as "the Corporation") had invited applications through e-tender for auction of fishing rights of Sharda Sagar Reservoir, Class I having a total area of 6,880 hectares situated in District Pilibhit for a tenure of 10 years, i.e., upto 30.06.2033. Under the e-tender, the petitioner was required to deposit 25% of the total amount as stipulated within a period of 24 hours from the selection of the bid, the petitioner, in this regard, had duly deposited an amount of Rs. 55,45,221/- on 14.07.2023. Subsequently, the petitioner had deposited the security amount of Rs. 67,70,825/- on 18.08.2023 in the shape of fixed deposit receipts. The petitioner had also deposited a stamp duty of Rs. 27,88,830/- for the purposes of execution of the agreement. Besides, the petitioner had also deposited an amount of Rs. 13,54,430/- with the respondents as contract fees.

4. Ultimately, an agreement dated 29.08.2023 was concluded between the parties for the fisheries lease in the Sharda Sagar Reservoir, Pilibhit. In this regard, an order dated 14.09.2023 was issued granting the contract for the year 2023-24 to the petitioner.

5. However, shortly after the petitioner reached the reservoir to carry out fishing, the employees of the petitioner were detained and the fishing boats seized by the forest authorities on the pretext that the area in which fishing was carried out belonged to Pilibhit Tiger Reserve and fishing was prohibited in the said area. The petitioner, on the basis of a reply to an application under the RTI Act, states that a total area of 683.88 hectare of the Sharda Sagar Reservoir fell in the core area of the Pilibhit Tiger Reserve. Besides there was also a prohibition on any activity within 200-500 m from the place where the water from the reservoir entered the Pilibhit Tiger Reserve, as it was also considered to be the core area. It is also contended that there are six villages comprising roughly 1,000 hectares in the Sharda Sagar Reservoir where there is no water at all, and villagers are carrying out agricultural activities, thus, the petitioner was also deprived from carrying out fishing in this area of the reservoir. Further, no fishing could also be carried out in the area of the reservoir which fell within the territory and jurisdiction of the State of Uttarakhand.

6. Besides, the petitioner has also placed reliance upon records of the National Register of Dams as well as the chart maintained by the Irrigation and Water Resources Department to demonstrate that the total area of the Sharda Sagar Reservoir is 5765 hectares whereas the fisheries lease in respect of an area of 6880 hectares had been granted, which was practically not possible.

7. It is in the above circumstances as the actual fishing area allotted to the petitioner fell much short of the area advertised that the petitioner could not deposit the amounts due under the agreement, and there were defaults on the part of the petitioner. In this regard, several notices were issued to the petitioner by the respondents and the petitioner in response thereto had ventilated his grievances.

8. However, as the petitioner failed to make payments in due accordance with the terms of the agreement, ultimately the respondent no. 2 vide the impugned order dated 28.09.2024 had terminated the agreement and forfeited the security deposit of Rs. 67,70,825/- and further had called upon the petitioner to deposit the remaining amount due being Rs. 1,82,67,040/- under the agreement and by means of another letter dated 07.10.2024, the bankers of the petitioner were called upon to release the bank guarantee/FDR in favour of the Corporation.

9. Thus, the crux of the contention of the petitioner is that the petitioner was never provided the total area of the reservoir in respect of which bids were invited, measuring 6,880 hectares. The respondent, while having failed to provide the required area, had committed a fundamental breach of the agreement. The petitioner in this regard has drawn the attention of this Court to the letter dated 30.07.2024 issued by the petitioner, wherein it was categorically submitted that the area of the reservoir, which should have been 6,880 hectares, was falling short by 1,798.88 hectares, in view of the fact that in the National Register of Large Dams, the area of Sharda Sahayak Reservoir was only 5,765 hectares and an area of 683.88 hectares fell in the core area of Pilibhit Tiger Reserve. Besides, the petitioner has also relied upon the reply to the application under the RTI Act dated 17.02.2024 issued by the forest authorities at Pilibhit Tiger Reserve. The petitioner states that it is not as if the petitioner had not deposited any amount after execution of the agreement, and in fact the petitioner had deposited an amount of Rs. 1,05,15,000/- upto 19.09.2024 other than amounts already deposited at the time of the agreement. Hence, it is contended on behalf of the petitioner that it is solely on account of defaults and breaches on the part of the respondents that the petitioner could not carry out the fishing, and as a consequence, there was delay in payment of installments under the agreement.

10. Per contra, it is contended on behalf of the respondent's no. 2 and 3 that the present writ petition itself is not maintainable, as the petitioner has an alternative remedy of resorting to arbitration by invoking the arbitration clause contained in the agreement. In this regard it is further submitted that the present controversy involves disputed questions of fact which cannot be decided in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. It is further stated that the agreement was executed on," as-is-where-is basis", and it was specifically provided in the tender conditions that, before participating in the auction bid, the auction bidder should himself make a spot inspection of the reservoir. Besides, it is only a miniscule area of the Sharda Sahayak Reservoir, which is not fit for fishing, in comparison to the total area of the reservoir. Hence, it is contended that the impugned order dated 28.09.2024 and letter dated 07.10.2024 has been issued in due accordance with the terms of the agreement solely on account of defaults on the part of the petitioner in making payment of the installments as agreed upon by the parties.

11. We have perused the records of the case and find that no serious dispute has been raised by the respondents regarding the area allotted to the petitioner for the purposes of fishing having fallen short as compared to the area mentioned in the e-tender notice i.e 6,880 hectares. The respondents in their counter affidavit have only given an evasive reply as far as the contention of the petitioner that 683.88 hectares of the area of the reservoir fell in the core area of Pilibhit Tiger Reserve and in the National Register of Dams the total area of the said reservoir was only 57650 hectares. Thus, prima facie, it seems that the contention so raised by the petitioner has force.

12. Be that as it may, even if we take the contention of the petitioner to be correct that the petitioner was deprived of 1798.88 hectares of reservoir area for fishing, we cannot remain oblivious of the fact that the petitioner had 5,081.12 hectares of reservoir area out of the total area of 6,880 hectares available to him for fishing. Further, the agreement between the parties admittedly was executed on 29.08.2023 and was terminated vide the impugned order was dated 28.09.2024, thus, the petitioner had carried out fishing for a period of about thirteen months, which was admittedly available to the petitioner for the purpose. It is not the case of the petitioner that the petitioner did not carry out any fishing whatsoever on account of the shortfall in the reservoir area. Thus, the income earned by the petitioner during this period of thirteen months shall also have to be taken into consideration while adjudicating the disputes so arisen between the parties. However, we are afraid that no figures in respect of the income earned by the petitioner during this while have been brought on record.

13. Moreover, not only is the question of the income earned by the petitioner while carrying out fishing under the agreement, but also the questions of the actual reservoir area made available to the petitioner for fishing and the effect thereof on the adjustments to be made in the installments payable, if any under the agreement are also disputed questions of fact. Further perusal of the impugned order dated 28.09.2024 reveals that an amount of Rs. 91,56,859/- was due from the petitioner in respect of the installments, an amount of Rs. 21,00,000/- was due towards the fish seeds and an amount of Rs.7, 42,420 was due as penal interest for the auction year 2023-24, while the remaining amount was due towards the auction year 2024-25. On the other hand, the petitioner states to have deposited Rs. 1,05,15,000/- upto 19.09.2024, other than the amounts that had been deposited by the petitioner at the time of execution of the agreement dated 29.08.2024. Hence, from the evidence that has been placed on record, it is also not clear as to what is the actual amount to be recovered from the petitioner by the respondents or in the alternative if, any amount is payable by the petitioner other than what has already been paid. Even the question as to whether the termination of the agreement is invalid or is valid and has been made in due accordance with the terms of the agreement is a question of fact.

14. We are afraid all the questions, as mentioned in the preceding paragraph, are disputed questions of fact, which require the parties to adduce evidence in support of their respective case and the same cannot be adjudicated in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. We make it clear that these are only a few questions that have crept in our minds, and there would be many such questions, which would require adjudication by the competent forum.

15. It is well settled that this Court, in exercise of powers under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, normally does not entertain petitions with regard to contractual disputes, particularly if there are disputed questions of fact involved. Although there is no absolute bar on entertaining petitions involving contractual disputes, the circumstances in which such a writ petition can be entertained had been elucidated by the Apex Court in the judgment in the case of Joshi Technologies International Inc. vs Union of India, (2015) 7 SCC 728 and the same reads as follows:-

"69. The position thus summarized in the aforesaid principles has to be understood in the context of discussion that preceded which we have pointed out above. As per this, no doubt, there is no absolute bar to the maintainability of the writ petition even in contractual matters or where there are disputed questions of fact or even when monetary claim is raised. At the same time, discretion lies with the High Court which under certain circumstances, it can refuse to exercise. It also follows that under the following circumstances, "normally", the Court would not exercise such a discretion:

69.1. The Court may not examine the issue unless the action has some public law character attached to it.

69.2. Whenever a particular mode of settlement of dispute is provided in the contract, the High Court would refuse to exercise its discretion under Article 226 of the Constitution and relegate the party to the said mode of settlement, particularly when settlement of disputes is to be resorted to through the means of arbitration.

69.3. If there are very serious disputed questions of fact which are of complex nature and require oral evidence for their determination.

69.4. Money claims per se particularly arising out of contractual obligations are normally not to be entertained except in exceptional circumstances.

70. Further, the legal position which emerges from various judgments of this Court dealing with different situations/aspects relating to contracts entered into by the State/public authority with private parties, can be summarized as under:

70.1. At the stage of entering into a contract, the State acts purely in its executive capacity and is bound by the obligations of fairness.

70.2. State in its executive capacity, even in the contractual field, is under obligation to act fairly and cannot practice some discriminations.

70.3. Even in cases where question is of choice or consideration of competing claims before entering into the field of contract, facts have to be investigated and found before the question of a violation of Article 14 of the Constitution could arise. If those facts are disputed and require assessment of evidence the correctness of which can only be tested satisfactorily by taking detailed evidence, involving examination and cross-examination of witnesses, the case could not be conveniently or satisfactorily decided in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution. In such cases the Court can direct the aggrieved party to resort to alternate remedy of civil suit, etc.

70.4. Writ jurisdiction of the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution was not intended to facilitate avoidance of obligation voluntarily incurred.

70.5. Writ petition was not maintainable to avoid contractual obligation. Occurrence of commercial difficulty, inconvenience or hardship in performance of the conditions agreed to in the contract can provide no justification in not complying with the terms of contract which the parties had accepted with open eyes. It cannot ever be that a licensee can work out the license if he finds it profitable to do so: and he can challenge the conditions under which he agreed to take the license, if he finds it commercially inexpedient to conduct his business.

70.6. Ordinarily, where a breach of contract is complained of, the party complaining of such breach may sue for specific performance of the contract, if contract is capable of being specifically performed. Otherwise, the party may sue for damages.

70.7. Writ can be issued where there is executive action unsupported by law or even in respect of a corporation there is denial of equality before law or equal protection of law or if it can be shown that action of the public authorities was without giving any hearing and violation of principles of natural justice after holding that action could not have been taken without observing principles of natural justice.

70.8. If the contract between private party and the State/instrumentality and/or agency of the State is under the realm of a private law and there is no element of public law, the normal course for the aggrieved party, is to invoke the remedies provided under ordinary civil law rather than approaching the High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India and invoking its extraordinary jurisdiction.

70.9. The distinction between public law and private law element in the contract with the State is getting blurred. However, it has not been totally obliterated and where the matter falls purely in private field of contract, this Court has maintained the position that writ petition is not maintainable. The dichotomy between public law and private law rights and remedies would depend on the factual matrix of each case and the distinction between the public law remedies and private law field, cannot be demarcated with precision. In fact, each case has to be examined, on its facts whether the contractual relations between the parties bear insignia of public element. Once on the facts of a particular case it is found that nature of the activity or controversy involves public law element, then the matter can be examined by the High Court in writ petitions under Article 226 of the Constitution of India to see whether action of the State and/or instrumentality or agency of the State is fair, just and equitable or that relevant factors are taken into consideration and irrelevant factors have not gone into the decision making process or that the decision is not arbitrary.

70.10. Mere reasonable or legitimate expectation of a citizen, in such a situation, may not by itself be a distinct enforceable right, but failure to consider and give due weight to it may render the decision arbitrary, and this is how the requirements of due consideration of a legitimate expectation forms part of the principle of non-arbitrariness.

70.11. The scope of judicial review in respect of disputes falling within the domain of contractual obligations may be more limited and in doubtful cases the parties may be relegated to adjudication of their rights by resort to remedies provided for adjudication of purely contractual disputes.

71. Keeping in mind the aforesaid principles and after considering the arguments of the respective parties, we are of the view that on the facts of the present case, it is not a fit case where the High Court should have exercised discretionary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution. First, the matter is in the realm of pure contract. It is not a case where any statutory contract is awarded."

16. In the case of Union of India vs Puna Hinda, (2021)10 SCC 690, the Apex Court has crystallized relatively narrow grounds in which writ petitions under Article 226 would be an appropriate remedy in a contractual dispute and has held as under :-

"24. Therefore, the dispute could not be raised by way of a writ petition on the disputed questions of fact. Though, the jurisdiction of the High Court is wide but in respect of pure contractual matters in the field of private law, having no statutory flavour, are better adjudicated upon by the forum agreed to by the parties. The dispute as to whether the amount is payable or not and/or how much amount is payable are disputed questions of facts. There is no admission on the part of the appellants to infer that the amount stands crystallised. Therefore, in the absence of any acceptance of joint survey report by the competent authority, no right would accrue to the writ petitioner only because measurements cannot be undertaken after passage of time. Maybe, the resurvey cannot take place but the measurement books of the work executed from time to time would form a reasonable basis for assessing the amount due and payable to the writ petitioner, but such process could be undertaken only by the agreed forum i.e. arbitration and not by the writ court as it does not have the expertise in respect of measurements or construction of roads."

17. On the other hand, the petitioner, while contending that the presence of the arbitration clause in the agreement is not an absolute bar regarding the maintainability of the present petition, the petitioner in support thereof has relied upon the judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Harbanslal Shania and another vs Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. and others, A.I.R. 2003 SC 2120. However, the perusal of the said judgment reveals that the controversy involved arose out of the termination of the dealership of the appellant, which was done in contravention of the principles of natural justice. Further there were no disputed facts involved, apparently, in the said case, which is not so in the present case. The Apex Court in the said case had held as under:-

"7. So far as the view taken by the High Court that the remedy by way of recourse to arbitration clause was available to the appellants and therefore the writ petition filed by the appellants was liable to be dismissed, suffice it to observe that the rule of exclusion of writ jurisdiction by availability of an alternative remedy is a rule of discretion and not one of compulsion. In an appropriate case, in spite of availability of the alternative remedy, the High Court may still exercise its writ jurisdiction in at least three contingencies; (i) where the writ petition seeks enforcement of any of the Fundamental Rights; (ii) where there is failure of principles of natural justice or, (iii) where the orders or proceedings are wholly without jurisdiction or the vires of an Act and is challenged. See Whirlpool Corporation v. Registrar of Trade Marks, Mumbai and others (1998) 8 SCC 11. The present case attracts applicability of first two contingencies. Moreover, as noted, the petitioners' dealership, which is their bread and butter, came to be terminated for an irrelevant and non-existent cause. In such circumstances, we feel that the appellants should have been allowed relief by the High Court itself instead of driving them to the need of initiating arbitration proceedings."

18. Thus, it is evident that there was a failure of principles of natural justice and violation of fundamental rights in the said case, while passing the termination order. However, in the present case, it is not at all so, as admittedly various notices were issued to the petitioner to pay the installments, failing which the agreement would stand terminated and the petitioner has also failed to demonstrate as to how it's fundamental rights have been violated. Hence, the petitioner would not be entitled to the benefit of the law, so relied upon by the petitioner. Moreover, the present controversy also involves disputed questions of fact as already held above.

19. Another contention of the petitioner, in reply to availing the remedy of alternative remedy in the shape of arbitration, is that the writ petition has been pending since long and the parties have already exchanged their pleadings, hence, it would not be in the interest of justice to relegate the parties to avail the alternative remedy at this stage and the petitioner would be subjected to undue hardship in the process.

20. In this regard, we rely upon the law laid down by the Apex Court in the case of State of UP & Anr. versus Ehsan and Anr., 2023 LiveLaw (SC) 887 wherein amongst others the controversy that arose was in respect of the disputed question of possession and as to whether the parties should be relegated to avail the remedy of civil suit and it was held as under:-

"28. We are conscious of the law that existence of an alternative remedy is not an absolute bar on exercise of writ jurisdiction. More so, when a writ petition has been entertained, parties have exchanged their pleadings/ affidavits and the matter has remained pending for long. In such a situation there must be a sincere effort to decide the matter on merits and not relegate the writ petitioner to the alternative remedy, unless there are compelling reasons for doing so. One such compelling reason may arise where there is a serious dispute between the parties on a question of fact and materials/evidence(s) available on record are insufficient/inconclusive to enable the Court to come to a definite conclusion.

36. In view of the above conclusion, the appeal is allowed. The impugned order passed by the High Court is set aside. The first respondent's writ petition is dismissed without prejudice to his right to institute a suit. Parties to bear their own costs"

21. Thus in view of the above circumstances, we hold that the present writ petition is not maintainable for the reason that an alternative and efficacious remedy by resorting to arbitration is available to the petitioner, and more so as the present controversy involves disputed questions of fact which can only be adjudicated after the parties have adduced their respective evidence.

22. Before we part, we are also conscious of the fact that this court, vide the order dated 12.12.2024, had stayed the orders dated 28.09.2024 and 07.10.2024, which are impugned in the present writ petition. Hence, we are of the view that an interim protection should be provided to the petitioner till the time the petitioner avails an appropriate remedy under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996.

23. Thus, for the reasons detailed above, the present petition is dismissed with the liberty to the petitioner to avail remedy under the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996, within a period of six weeks from the date of this order and till then, the operation of the impugned order dated 28.09.2024 and the order dated 07.10.2024, morefully annexed as Annexure No. 1 and Annexure No. 2 to the present petition, shall remain stayed. It is also made clear that the interim protection so granted to the petitioner shall automatically stand vacated after a passage of six weeks from the date of this order.

24. It is also clarified that we have not expressed any binding opinion as to which of the parties had breached the terms of the Agreement dated 29.08.2023. Observations, if any, in this regard are purely for the purpose of deciding whether the present petition should have been entertained or not. Hence, if any arbitration proceedings are initiated, the same shall be decided on it's own merits.

25. No order as to costs.

Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the Corpus is in the illegal detention of private respondent nos.4 to 7, who are the wife and the relatives of the wife, of the corpus

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226 (Habeas Corpus Writ Petition)- The corpus is accused of committing an offence by the private respondents, as such, he cannot be illegally detained by them. It is also evident from a perusal of the instructions received by the learned A.G.A. that the Investigating Officer has made sincere efforts to trace and apprehend the corpus; however, he is absconding and has failed to cooperate with the I.O. The I.O. has approached the Court for obtaining non-bailable warrants against him. The investigation against accused persons have been concluded and a charge sheet has been submitted against the petitioner Omwati and corpus Manish, under Sections 85, 115(2), 352, 351(2) of B.N.S. and 3/4 of D.P. Act, as such, no ground is made out for entertaining this habeas corpus writ petition.

Habeas corpus writ petition is dismissed. (E-15)

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Pankaj Dwivedi
Counsel for Respondent(s) : G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Sandeep Jain, J.)

1. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the corpus Manish aged about 35 years is the son of the petitioner Omwati, who is in the illegal detention of private respondent nos.4 to 7, who are the wife and the relatives of the wife, of the corpus. He further submitted that in this regard an F.I.R. was registered on 18.02.2026 being Case Crime No.74 of 2026, under Sections 115(2), 126(2), 351(2), 351(3), 303(2) of B.N.S. at P.S. Mania, District Dholpur (State of Rajasthan) against respondent no.4 Lakhan Singh but neither the corpus has been traced out nor any action has been taken against the private respondents.

2. Per contra, learned A.G.A. submitted that there is a matrimonial dispute between the corpus and his wife/respondent no.7 Sona. The corpus Manish and his relatives demanded dowry of Rs.2,00,000/- and in non-fulfillment of that demand, the wife of the corpus was subjected to mental and physical harassment and cruelty and was thrown out of her matrimonial home. The relatives of the petitioner also committed sexual assault on the respondent Sona, regarding which an F.I.R. was registered by her on 16.12.2025, being Case Crime No.371 of 2025, under Sections 74, 85, 115(2), 352, 351 (2) of B.N.S. and 3/4 Dowry Prohibition Act, P.S. Shamshabad, District Agra against the corpus and his relatives, in which apprehending his arrest the corpus is absconding. Learned counsel submitted that the corpus is not in the illegal detention of the private respondents, who are the wife and relatives of the wife of the corpus.

3. I have heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the documents available on record and instructions received by the A.G.A.

4. The Apex Court in the case of Union of India vs. Yumnam Anand M. @ Bocha @ Kora @ Suraj and Another (2007) 10 SCC 190 while explaining the nature of writ of habeas corpus has held that the petitioner must show a prima facie case of unlawful detention. It is quoted as under:-

"7. Article 21 of the Constitution having declared that no person shall be deprived of life and liberty except in accordance with the procedure established by law, a machinery was definitely needed to examine the question of illegal detention with utmost promptitude. The writ of habeas corpus is a device of this nature. Blackstone called it ?the great and efficacious writ in all manner of illegal confinement?. The writ has been described as a writ of right which is grantable ex debito justitiae. Though a writ of right, it is not a writ of course. The applicant must show a prima facie case of his unlawful detention. Once, however, he shows such a cause and the return is not good and sufficient, he is entitled to this writ as of right."

5. The Apex Court in the case of Home Secretary(Prison) and Others vs. H. Nilofer Nisha (2020) 14 SCC 161 while delineating the scope and ambit of the writ of habeas corpus, has categorically held that such a writ is not maintainable where there is no allegation or material indicating that he/she is under unlawful or illegal detention. The existence of unlawful detention constitutes the sine qua non for the issuance of a writ of habeas corpus. The relevant paras reads as under:-

"16. A writ of habeas corpus can only be issued when the detention or confinement of a person is without the authority of law. Though the literal meaning of the Latin phrase habeas corpus is "to produce the body", over a period of time production of the body is more often than not insisted upon but legally it is to be decided whether the body is under illegal detention or not. Habeas corpus is often used as a remedy in cases of preventive detention because in such cases the validity of the order detaining the detenu is not subject to challenge in any other court and it is only writ jurisdiction which is available to the aggrieved party. The scope of the petition of habeas corpus has over a period of time been expanded and this writ is commonly used when a spouse claims that his/her spouse has been illegally detained by the parents. This writ is many times used even in cases of custody of children. Even though, the scope may have expanded, there are certain limitations to this writ and the most basic of such limitation is that the Court, before issuing any writ of habeas corpus must come to the conclusion that the detenu is under detention without any authority of law. "

6. This Court in the case of Satendra Kumar Srivastava and Another vs. State of UP and Others 2011 SCC OnLine All 4084 held as under:-

"4. It seems that in the aforesaid crime no. 472 of 2008, after investigation, a charge sheet was submitted, on the basis of which, cognizance was taken and case no. 6864 of 2010 under the aforesaid offences was registered in the court and 82-83 process have been issued by C.J.M. It is at this stage that father has preferred this habeas corpus writ petition because petitioner no. 2 Vandana @ Teetu is not traceable.

5. On the aforesaid facts, it is perceptly clear that Vandana @ Teetu is residing with her husband on her own volition. She is not traceable, ostensibly for the reason that she is residing with her family at a place where the police is unable to lays its hands. Since the Vandana @ Teetu is not in illegal detention, habeas corpus writ petition is not maintainable. In case, a charge sheeted accused is not appearing in court and has been declared to be an absconder, the remedy for the victim is to approach appropriate authorities or this court in an appropriate writ. Habeas corpus writ petition are not meant for such purpose. A habeas corpus writ petition is maintainable only when some corpus is under illegal detention against his or her wish and the person, who is filing the petition is interested in knowing whereabout the corpus, production of the corpus and its release from the cluches of illegal detention."

7. A Division Bench of the Madras High Court in the case of Rajamani vs. The Superintendent of Police and Another in HCP(MD) No.1439 of 2021 decided on 28.09.2021, held as under:-

"1. Alleging that the petitioner's son by name Boominathan, aged about 35 years, was found missing, the petitioner has given a complaint before the second respondent police. But, so far no action has been taken by the second respondent to secure the detenu. Hence, the present Habeas Corpus Petition has been filed.

2.Mr.S.Ravi, learned Additional Public Prosecutor on instructions would submit that the detenu is an accused in a murder case and the trial is pending in S.C.No.134 of 2016, on the file of Mahila Court, Tirupur, and the detenu is absconding, a Non-Bailable Warrant is issued against him and the same is pending for execution.

3.Considering the above said facts, the detenu is an absconding accused and he is not illegally detained as alleged by the petitioner. Hence, the Habeas Corpus Petition is not maintainable and the same is dismissed."

8. A Division Bench of the Madhya Pradesh High Court in the case of Netram Rawat(Baba) vs. State of MP and Others 2024 SCC OnLine MP 8207 held as under:-

"2. Grievance of petitioner is that his son is missing and according to him, he is in illegal confinement of respondent No. 4-Balli Rawat and respondent No. 5-Nathu Singh Rawat.

3. He also referred order dated 9 September, 2024 passed in WP No. 26523/2024 by this Court which was first round of habeas corpus petition which was filed and disposed of when status report was filed.

4. Learned counsel for the respondent-State opposed the prayer. According to counsel for the respondent-State, petitioner himself is a man of criminal background consisting of 22 cases. Corpus is his son-Mahesh. He also bears criminal record of five cases and arrest warrant has been issued against him. Police is in search of him.

*5. Considering the rival submissions and previous status report filed in WP No. 26523/2024, it appears that son of petitioner (corpus) is absconding because of arrest warrant being issued against him. When earlier writ petition in nature of habeas corpus was filed and when fact of absconsion was brought before this Court then said petition was disposed of in terms of directions as contained into. Now, again another petition is being filed as habeas corpus. This appears to be abuse of process of law.When corpus himself is a man of criminal background and is absconding, therefore, no such petition can be entertained. Police shall proceed in accordance with law against erring persons and try to arrest the corpus in accordance with law."

9. From a perusal of the instructions received from the A.G.A., it is apparent that an additional demand of Rs. 2,00,000/- as dowry was made from the respondent, Sona, who is the wife of the corpus. Due to the non-fulfillment of the said dowry demand, she was subjected to mental and physical harassment and acts of cruelty by the corpus and his family members. Besides that she was molested by the relatives of the corpus and as such, in order to save herself from continued acts of cruelty and molestation she returned to her parental home and subsequently, registered an F.I.R. on 16.12.2025, being Case Crime No.371 of 2025, under Sections 74, 85, 115(2), 352, 351(2) of B.N.S. and 3/4 D.P. Act, P.S. Shamshabad, District Agra against the corpus and his relatives.

10. It is further apparent that in these circumstances, since the corpus is accused of committing an offence by the private respondents, as such, he cannot be illegally detained by them.It is also evident from a perusal of the instructions received by the learned A.G.A. that the Investigating Officer (I.O.) has made sincere efforts to trace and apprehend the corpus; however, he is absconding and has failed to cooperate with the I.O. The I.O. has approached the Court for obtaining non-bailable warrants against him. The investigation against accused persons have been concluded and a charge sheet has been submitted against the petitioner Omwati and corpus Manish, under Sections 85, 115(2), 352, 351(2) of B.N.S. and 3/4 of D.P. Act, as such, no ground is made out for entertaining this habeas corpus writ petition.

11. Accordingly, the instant habeas corpus writ petition is dismissed.

Transfer Application (Civil) No. 900 of 2023

Preeti Mishra & Anr. ...Applicants
Versus
Vidya Kant Tripathi & Anr. ...Opposite Parties

Issue for Consideration

Whether transfer of the subsequently instituted suit to the Court at Kanpur Nagar would facilitate a comprehensive, effective and consistent adjudication of the entire controversy between the parties while obviating the possibility of conflicting decrees

Head Notes

The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Section 24- The validity of the adoption deed constitutes the foundational issue in both suits. Consequently, the evidence likely to be adduced and the questions requiring determination would substantially overlap. Any adjudication rendered in one proceeding is likely to have a direct and substantial bearing upon the issues arising in the other. If the proceedings are permitted to continue independently before different Courts, there exists a real possibility not only of duplication of evidence but also of inconsistent decrees in relation to the same document. Avoidance of such a situation is itself a relevant consideration while exercising jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC.

Held- Having regard to the identity of the parties, the commonality of the issues involved, the pendency of the earlier suit before the competent Court at Kanpur Nagar and the overall interests of justice, this Court is satisfied that the present is a fit case for exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure

Application has been filed seeking transfer of O.S. No. 170 of 2023, pending before the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kannauj, to a Court of competent jurisdiction at Kanpur Nagar

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) : Arvind Srivastava, Mohd. Naushad Siddiqui
Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : Rajeev Tiwari

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Mohd. Naushad Siddiqui, learned counsel for the applicants and Sri Rajeev Tiwari, learned counsel for the opposite party.

2. Present application has been filed seeking transfer of O.S. No. 170 of 2023 (Vishnu Kant Tripathi and another Vs. Apurva Shukla and another), pending before the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kannauj, to a Court of competent jurisdiction at Kanpur Nagar.

3. It is submitted that a registered adoption deed dated 30.06.2022 was executed between the parties, whereunder the minor girl child was given in adoption to the applicants. It is stated that ever since the execution of the said deed, the applicants have been taking care of the adopted child and she has settled in their family.

4. It is further submitted that subsequently the respondents started exerting pressure upon the applicants for return of the minor child. In the aforesaid circumstances, the applicants instituted O.S. No. 2465 of 2022 before the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kanpur Nagar seeking a declaration that the adoption deed dated 30.06.2022 is legal, valid and binding upon the parties. The said suit is stated to be pending.

5. It is then urged that thereafter the respondents instituted O.S. No. 170 of 2023 before the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kannauj seeking cancellation of the very same adoption deed dated 30.06.2022. By means of the present application, the applicants seek transfer of the subsequent suit to Kanpur Nagar so that both proceedings involving the same parties and arising out of the same adoption deed may be adjudicated by the same Court.

6. Learned counsel appearing for the opposite parties, on instructions, fairly states that the opposite parties have no objection if the suit pending at Kannauj is transferred to a Court of competent jurisdiction at Kanpur Nagar.

7. The Court has considered the submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties.

8. The power conferred upon this Court under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 19081 is discretionary and is intended to advance the cause of justice. While exercising such jurisdiction, the paramount consideration is whether the proposed transfer would facilitate a fair, convenient and effective adjudication of the dispute. The provision is designed to secure the ends of justice by preventing multiplicity of proceedings, avoiding inconsistent findings on common questions of fact and law, and facilitating a consistent and effective adjudication of related disputes.

9. The jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC is equitable in nature and is to be exercised whenever the exigencies of justice so require. The provision is not confined to cases where hardship or inconvenience alone is established; it equally enables the Court to regulate the course of judicial proceedings in a manner that secures an effective, efficient and comprehensive adjudication of the controversy. The ultimate touchstone is whether the proposed transfer would better serve the administration of justice.

10. In the present case, it is not in dispute that both the suits are between the same parties and arise out of the same registered adoption deed dated 30.06.2022. While the earlier suit pending before the competent Court at Kanpur Nagar seeks a declaration regarding the validity and binding nature of the adoption deed, the subsequent suit instituted at Kannauj seeks cancellation of the very same document. The principal controversy in both proceedings is, therefore, substantially identical.

11. The validity of the adoption deed constitutes the foundational issue in both suits. Consequently, the evidence likely to be adduced and the questions requiring determination would substantially overlap. Any adjudication rendered in one proceeding is likely to have a direct and substantial bearing upon the issues arising in the other. If the proceedings are permitted to continue independently before different Courts, there exists a real possibility not only of duplication of evidence but also of inconsistent decrees in relation to the same document. Avoidance of such a situation is itself a relevant consideration while exercising jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC.

12. The administration of justice requires that disputes arising out of the same transaction or document, involving substantially identical issues and evidence, should, as far as practicable, be adjudicated by the same Court. Such a course promotes judicial consistency, procedural economy and certainty in the adjudicatory process, besides avoiding unnecessary duplication of judicial effort.

13. Ordinarily, where two suits involving substantially the same subject matter are pending before different Courts of competent jurisdiction, the Court in which the earlier proceeding is pending constitutes the more appropriate forum for continuation of the subsequent proceeding, unless compelling circumstances indicate otherwise. In the present case, the earlier declaratory suit was instituted before the competent Court at Kanpur Nagar and continues to remain pending. No circumstance has been brought to the notice of the Court which would justify departure from the aforesaid course.

14. Though the categorical 'no objection' expressed by the opposite parties is a relevant circumstance, the exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC cannot rest upon consent alone. The Court is required to independently satisfy itself that the proposed transfer would advance the ends of justice. Upon a consideration of the facts of the present case, this Court finds that transfer of the subsequently instituted suit to the Court at Kanpur Nagar would facilitate a comprehensive, effective and consistent adjudication of the entire controversy between the parties while obviating the possibility of conflicting decrees. The stand adopted by the opposite parties further demonstrates that no prejudice is likely to be caused to either side by the proposed transfer.

15. The discretion under Section 24 CPC is to be exercised not merely for the convenience of the parties but to ensure the orderly administration of justice. Where the controversy in two proceedings is substantially common and the decision in one is likely to have a material bearing upon the other, transfer of the subsequently instituted proceeding to the Court where the earlier proceeding is pending would ordinarily advance the ends of justice, unless compelling reasons exist to adopt a different course. No such compelling circumstance exists in the present case.

16. Having regard to the identity of the parties, the commonality of the issues involved, the pendency of the earlier suit before the competent Court at Kanpur Nagar and the overall interests of justice, this Court is satisfied that the present is a fit case for exercise of jurisdiction under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

17. The Transfer Application is, accordingly, allowed with the following directions:

(i) O.S. No. 170 of 2023 (Vishnu Kant Tripathi and another Vs. Apurva Shukla and another), pending before the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kannauj, is hereby withdrawn from the Court of Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kannauj and transferred to the Court of the Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kanpur Nagar, having jurisdiction to try the same.

(ii) The Civil Judge (Junior Division), Kannauj shall transmit the entire original record of the aforesaid suit to the transferee Court within a period of fifteen days from the date of receipt of a certified copy of this order.

(iii) Upon receipt of the record, the transferee Court shall proceed with the suit from the stage at which it stands transferred and shall, subject to the provisions of law and after hearing the parties, consider the desirability of hearing O.S. No. 170 of 2023 along with O.S. No. 2465 of 2022, or of adopting such other procedure as may be permissible in law, so as to secure an effective adjudication of the disputes and avoid inconsistent decrees.

Transfer Application (Civil) No. 1009 of 2025

Arshad Hussain ...Applicant
Versus
Nazia Parveen ...Opposite Party

Issue for Consideration

Whether the transfer application is liable to be allowed on the ground that a recommendation had earlier been made for transfer as well as on the ground that the real brother of the opposite party is a practising Advocate at Muzaffarnagar

Head Notes

The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Section 24- Transfer of the case from one Family Court to another within the same district does not furnish any basis for transfer to another district- Merely because a close relative of one of the parties happens to be a practising Advocate in the judgeship where the proceedings are pending does not, by itself, give rise to any presumption that the matter will not receive fair and impartial consideration. Judicial officers are expected to discharge their functions independently and in accordance with law. In the absence of any tangible material demonstrating a real and reasonable apprehension of prejudice, bias, or failure of justice, such a circumstance cannot constitute a legally sustainable ground for transfer of judicial proceedings. A transfer cannot be ordered on the basis of conjectures, surmises, or unfounded apprehensions.

Held- No such objective material has been placed before the Court. The power to transfer proceedings is not intended to be exercised as a matter of routine, and the circumstances disclosed by the applicant do not give rise to any reasonable apprehension that justice will not be done if the proceedings continue before the court where they are pending. Apart from the aforesaid submissions, no other ground has been pressed in support of the transfer application. (Para 8, 11 & 13)

Case Arising From

Application under Section 24 of the C.P.C filed seeking transfer of Divorce Case No.30 of 2024, instituted for dissolution of marriage and is pending before the Court of the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court No.1, Muzaffarnagar, to a court of competent jurisdiction at Meerut or, in the alternative, at Bijnor.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Applicant(s) :Anil Kumar Dubey, Anubhav Shukla, Chandra Bhan Dubey
Counsel for Opposite Party(s) : Jagdish Prasad Mishra

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Chandra Bhan Dubey, learned counsel for the applicant, and Shri Jagdish Prasad Mishra, learned counsel for the opposite party.

2. The present application under Section 24 of the Code of Civil Procedure has been filed seeking transfer of Divorce Case No.30 of 2024 (Arshad Hussain vs. Nazia Parveen), instituted by the applicant for dissolution of marriage and presently pending before the Court of the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court No.1, Muzaffarnagar, to a court of competent jurisdiction at Meerut or, in the alternative, at Bijnor.

3. The applicant, who is the husband and petitioner in the aforesaid proceedings, seeks transfer essentially on two grounds. First, it is urged that upon an application dated 16.10.2025 moved by the opposite party, a recommendation had earlier been made for transfer when the matter was pending before the Court of the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court No.2, Muzaffarnagar. Secondly, it is contended that the real brother of the opposite party is a practising Advocate at Muzaffarnagar and, therefore, in the interest of justice, the proceedings ought to be transferred outside the district.

4. Per contra, learned counsel for the opposite party submits that, upon the earlier application, a report was called for from the Presiding Officer of Family Court No. 2, who expressed no objection to the transfer. Pursuant thereto, by order dated 27.10.2025 passed in the registered Misc. Civil Case, the Principal Judge, Family Court, Muzaffarnagar transferred the case to the Court of the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court No.1, Muzaffarnagar. It is, therefore, contended that the said circumstance furnishes no basis for seeking a further transfer outside the district.

5. The jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC is discretionary and is to be exercised to advance the ends of justice. It does not confer upon a litigant any vested right to choose a forum. The discretion is to be exercised judiciously, upon objective considerations, and only where circumstances indicate that transfer is necessary to secure a fair trial or to prevent failure of justice.

6. The power under Section 24 CPC is to be exercised in circumstances which would lead a reasonable and prudent person to apprehend that continuance of proceedings before the existing court may result in denial of fair adjudication. Mere conjectures, unfounded apprehensions, or subjective perceptions of prejudice are insufficient to justify transfer. The apprehension pleaded must be real, reasonable, and bona fide, and not imaginary or speculative.

7. It is well settled that the power of transfer is an extraordinary discretionary power to be exercised sparingly and with circumspection. The applicant must establish a real, reasonable, and bona fide apprehension that justice is unlikely to be administered fairly by the court concerned. Such apprehension must rest on objective material and must be of a nature that would commend itself to a reasonable person. Vague allegations or speculative assertions cannot furnish a valid foundation for transfer.

8. Insofar as the first ground is concerned, the earlier transfer of the case from one Family Court to another within the same district does not furnish any basis for transfer to another district. The record indicates that upon consideration of the registered Misc. Civil Case moved by the opposite party, a report was called for from the concerned Presiding Officer, who expressed no objection. Thereupon, by order dated 27.10.2025, the Principal Judge, Family Court, Muzaffarnagar transferred the proceedings from Family Court No. 2 to Family Court No. 1 for disposal in accordance with law. Such transfer within the judgeship cannot be construed as conferring any right upon the applicant to seek transfer outside the district.

9. The proceedings are presently pending before a competent court within the same judgeship pursuant to the aforesaid order. The grievance which formed the basis of the earlier transfer thus no longer survives. That circumstance, by itself, cannot justify transfer to another district.

10. The second ground, namely that the real brother of the opposite party is a practising Advocate at Muzaffarnagar, is equally untenable. Apart from a bald assertion, no material has been brought on record to demonstrate any prejudice, undue influence, intimidation, or denial of fair opportunity in the conduct of the proceedings.

11. Merely because a close relative of one of the parties happens to be a practising Advocate in the judgeship where the proceedings are pending does not, by itself, give rise to any presumption that the matter will not receive fair and impartial consideration. Judicial officers are expected to discharge their functions independently and in accordance with law. In the absence of any tangible material demonstrating a real and reasonable apprehension of prejudice, bias, or failure of justice, such a circumstance cannot constitute a legally sustainable ground for transfer of judicial proceedings. A transfer cannot be ordered on the basis of conjectures, surmises, or unfounded apprehensions.

12. To hold that the mere fact that a relative of one of the parties is practising as an Advocate in the judgeship is, by itself, a sufficient ground for transfer would lead to anomalous consequences. If that circumstance were, by itself, to be regarded as sufficient to warrant transfer, the place of trial would come to depend upon fortuitous personal circumstances rather than principled judicial standards. Such an approach would be inconsistent with the presumption that courts act fairly, independently and in accordance with law. The jurisdiction under Section 24 CPC is intended to safeguard the administration of justice where a real and reasonable apprehension of prejudice is shown on objective material; it is not intended to accommodate speculative concerns resting solely on the professional identity or relationship of a person connected with one of the parties, or on generalized suspicions incapable of objective verification.

13. In the present case, no such objective material has been placed before the Court. The power to transfer proceedings is not intended to be exercised as a matter of routine, and the circumstances disclosed by the applicant do not give rise to any reasonable apprehension that justice will not be done if the proceedings continue before the court where they are pending. Apart from the aforesaid submissions, no other ground has been pressed in support of the transfer application.

14. This Court, therefore, finds no sufficient cause warranting transfer of the proceedings from the Court of the Additional Principal Judge, Family Court No.1, Muzaffarnagar.

15. The transfer application is devoid of merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

16. No order as to costs.

Matters Under Article 227 No. 7908 of 2026

Ramesh Chand Sachdeva ...Petitioner
Versus
Alok Prakash ...Respondent

Issue for Consideration

Whether the learned District Judge committed a jurisdictional error in exercising powers under Section 24(5) CPC by transferring S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020 to a court of competent pecuniary jurisdiction, or whether, once it was found that the suit had been instituted before a court lacking pecuniary jurisdiction, the only course permissible in law was to direct return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code for presentation before the competent court. The issue squarely turns on the interplay between the transfer power under Section 24 CPC and the procedure for return of plaint under Order VII Rule 10 CPC.

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908- Section 24(5), Order VII Rule 10- The principal submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner is that once the defect of pecuniary jurisdiction came to light, the only permissible course was return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code and that the evidence recorded by the court lacking jurisdiction became non est. The submission cannot be accepted. Section 24(5) expressly authorises transfer of a suit from a court which has no jurisdiction to try it, and the legislative intent is thereby clear that transfer constitutes a valid statutory mechanism for curing a jurisdictional defect.

Equally untenable is the submission that the evidence recorded prior to the order of transfer necessarily stands obliterated. Sub-section (2) of Section 24 specifically provides that the transferee court may, subject to any special directions contained in the order of transfer, either retry the suit or proceed from the stage at which it was transferred. The statute, therefore, itself contemplates continuity of proceedings after transfer and leaves it to the discretion of the transferee court to determine the appropriate course. Whether the evidence already recorded is to be acted upon, or whether any witness is required to be recalled or the trial is to commence afresh, are matters falling within the jurisdiction of the transferee court in accordance with law. The impugned order merely directs transfer of the proceedings and does not foreclose the exercise of such discretion by the transferee court.

Held- Petitioner has not demonstrated any prejudice occasioned solely on account of the transfer of the proceedings. The grievance projected in the present petition is founded upon the legal proposition that transfer itself was impermissible. Once that proposition is found to be contrary to the express language of Section 24(5) as well as the settled legal position noticed hereinabove, no independent ground survives to hold that the exercise of jurisdiction by the learned District Judge suffers from any manifest illegality or jurisdictional error. (Para 28, 29 & 30)

Suit No. 69 of 2020 was withdrawn from the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut and transferred to the Court of the Additional District Judge, Court No.2, Meerut, for disposal in accordance with law, in exercise of powers under Section 24(5) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Alka Srivastava, Santosh Kumar Srivastava, Syed Shahnawaz Shah Counsel for Respondent(s) : Hemant Kumar

(Delivered by Hon'ble Dr. Yogendra Kumar Srivastava, J.)

1. Heard Shri Santosh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the petitioner and Shri Hemant Kumar, learned counsel for the respondent.

2. The present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been filed assailing the order dated 02.04.2026 passed by the learned District Judge, Meerut in Transfer Application No. 732 of 2025, whereby S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020 (Alok Prakash v. Ramesh Chand Sachdeva) was withdrawn from the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut and transferred to the Court of the Additional District Judge, Court No.2, Meerut, for disposal in accordance with law, in exercise of powers under Section 24(5) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

3. The facts giving rise to the present petition, to the extent relevant for adjudication of the controversy involved, are noticed hereinafter.

4. The dispute between the parties relates to a shop ad-measuring approximately 255 square feet, situated at premises no. 34, Banshipura (Classic Sports), Suraj Kund Road, Meerut City, hereinafter referred to as "the disputed premises". It is not in dispute that the petitioner is a tenant in the disputed premises under the respondent-landlord at a monthly rent of Rs.8,000/-. The relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties is admitted.

5. The respondent instituted S.C.C. Suit No.69 of 2020 before the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut seeking eviction of the petitioner on the ground of default in payment of rent. Upon service of summons, the petitioner entered appearance and filed his written statement denying the allegations contained in the plaint and asserting that he had been regularly paying the rent and had committed no default. The respondent thereafter filed a replication reiterating the averments made in the plaint.

6. During the course of trial, the respondent examined himself as P.W.-1 in support of his case. In defence, the petitioner examined himself as D.W.-1 and also adduced the evidence of two other witnesses. Upon completion of evidence on both sides, the suit was posted for final arguments.

7. At that stage, the petitioner moved an application dated 06.10.2025 under Order VI Rule 17 CPC seeking amendment of the written statement so as to incorporate a plea that the suit, having been valued at Rs.1,06,806.45, was beyond the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut. The respondent filed objections to the said application, contending, inter alia, that the amendment had been sought after conclusion of the evidence and was not maintainable at that stage of the proceedings.

8. Thereafter, the respondent filed an application under Section 24(5) CPC before the District Judge, Meerut, praying that in view of the valuation of the suit exceeding the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court where it was pending, the suit be transferred to a court competent to entertain and decide the same. The petitioner filed objections to the transfer application contending that the application was not maintainable and had been filed by suppressing material facts. It was asserted that the suit, at the time of its institution, had been valued at Rs.1,06,804.45, whereas the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut extended only up to Rs.1,00,000/-, and therefore the suit had been instituted before a court inherently lacking pecuniary jurisdiction. According to the petitioner, Section 24(5) of the Code could be invoked only where a suit had been validly instituted before a competent court and the question of jurisdiction arose subsequently on account of a change in circumstances, and not where the suit was incompetent from its inception. It was further contended that the initial presentation of the suit before a court lacking jurisdiction could not be validated through transfer proceedings, that the trial conducted by such court was void, and that the only permissible course in law was return of the plaint for presentation before the competent court. On these premises, dismissal of the transfer application was prayed for.

9. The aforesaid transfer application came to be considered by the learned District Judge, Meerut, who, after hearing the parties and considering the material brought on record, proceeded to pass the impugned order dated 02.04.2026.

10. The impugned order records that a report had been called for from the concerned Court and that the petitioner had filed objections opposing the transfer application. Upon consideration of the reports submitted by the concerned Court and the Munsarim, the learned District Judge recorded that S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020 was pending before the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut and that its valuation was Rs. 1,06,806.45, whereas the pecuniary jurisdiction of the said Court extended only up to Rs.1,00,000/-. Proceeding on the basis that the valuation of the suit exceeded the pecuniary limits of the Court in which it was pending, the learned District Judge held that sufficient grounds existed for allowing the transfer application and that it would be appropriate to transfer the suit to the Court of the Additional District Judge, Court No. 2, Meerut.

11. Consequently, by the order dated 02.04.2026, the transfer application was allowed, S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020 was withdrawn from the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut and made over to the Court of the Additional District Judge, Court No. 2, Meerut for disposal in accordance with law. Aggrieved by the aforesaid order, the petitioner has invoked the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

12. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned order is wholly unsustainable in law inasmuch as S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020, having been instituted with a valuation of Rs.1,06,806.45 before a Court whose pecuniary jurisdiction extended only up to Rs.1,00,000/-, was not maintainable before the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut from its very inception. It is contended that the proceedings conducted before a Court lacking inherent pecuniary jurisdiction, including the evidence adduced by the parties, are non est in the eyes of law and could not have been validated by invoking the power of transfer under Section 24(5) CPC.

13. It is further submitted that once the trial Court was found to be devoid of pecuniary jurisdiction, the only course available in law was to return the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code for presentation before the competent Court and not to transfer the suit together with the evidence already recorded. Learned counsel, therefore, submits that the learned District Judge committed a manifest error of jurisdiction in allowing the transfer application without appreciating the objections raised by the petitioner, and that the impugned order is liable to be set aside.

14. Thus, the principal issue that arises for consideration is whether the learned District Judge committed a jurisdictional error in exercising powers under Section 24(5) CPC by transferring S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020 to a court of competent pecuniary jurisdiction, or whether, once it was found that the suit had been instituted before a court lacking pecuniary jurisdiction, the only course permissible in law was to direct return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code for presentation before the competent court. The issue squarely turns on the interplay between the transfer power under Section 24 CPC and the procedure for return of plaint under Order VII Rule 10 CPC.

15. Having heard learned counsel for the parties and having perused the material available on record, this Court finds that the controversy essentially lies in a narrow compass, namely, whether the learned District Judge could, in exercise of powers under Section 24(5) CPC, transfer a suit which, according to the petitioner, had been instituted before a court lacking pecuniary jurisdiction, or whether the proper course in such a situation was to return the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code. The answer to the said question depends upon the true scope and ambit of Section 24(5) of the Code vis-a-vis the procedural mandate contained in Order VII Rule 10, and the effect, if any, of the trial already conducted before the court of first instance.

16. The principal contention advanced on behalf of the petitioner is that once it was found that S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020 had been instituted before a court lacking pecuniary jurisdiction, the entire proceedings conducted by the said court, including the evidence recorded therein, stood vitiated in the eyes of law and, consequently, the learned District Judge could not have exercised powers under Section 24(5) CPC to transfer the suit to a court of competent jurisdiction. According to the petitioner, the only course open in law was to direct return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code for presentation before the competent court.

17. In order to appreciate the aforesaid contention, it would be apposite to examine the scheme of the Code governing return of plaint and transfer of proceedings. Order VII Rule 10 of the Code embodies the principle that where a plaint has been instituted before a court which lacks territorial, pecuniary, or subject-matter jurisdiction, the plaint is liable to be returned for presentation before the court competent to entertain the same. The object underlying the provision is to ensure that adjudication takes place before a forum possessing lawful jurisdiction. The provision is procedural in character and seeks to regulate the forum before which the lis is to be adjudicated.

18. However, the provisions relating to return of plaint cannot be read in isolation, divorced from the other provisions of the Code. The Code constitutes a complete procedural framework and, within that framework, Section 24 confers wide powers upon the High Court and the District Court to transfer or withdraw suits, appeals, and other proceedings pending before subordinate courts. The power is expressed in broad terms and is intended to secure the proper administration of justice by enabling proceedings to be tried by a court competent to entertain the same.

19. The width of the power under Section 24 of the Code also deserves notice. The power is not confined merely to cases involving convenience of parties or transfer on administrative grounds. It is intended to enable the superior court to ensure that proceedings are ultimately adjudicated by a forum competent in law. The provision is couched in the widest possible terms by authorising transfer "at any stage" of the proceedings and, by virtue of sub-section (5), even from a court which has no jurisdiction to try the suit. Such legislative language clearly manifests that the provision is remedial in character and is intended to avoid multiplicity of proceedings and unnecessary procedural complications.

20. Significantly, sub-section (5) of Section 24 expressly provides that a suit or proceeding may be transferred under the said provision "from a court which has no jurisdiction to try it". The language employed by the Legislature is plain, unambiguous, and admits of no qualification. The provision itself contemplates a situation where proceedings are pending before a court lacking jurisdiction and nevertheless authorises the District Court to transfer such proceedings to the court competent to try the same. The legislative intent, therefore, is manifest that absence of jurisdiction in the court of origin does not denude the District Court of its statutory power to transfer the proceedings to a competent forum.

21. It is a settled rule of interpretation that where the Legislature has consciously incorporated a specific provision dealing with a particular situation, the court must give full effect to such provision and avoid any construction which renders it redundant. The maxim ut res magis valeat quam pereat requires that every part of the statute should be interpreted so as to have operative effect. Therefore, Section 24(5), which specifically authorises transfer from a court lacking jurisdiction, cannot be rendered meaningless by holding that return of plaint under Order VII Rule 10 is invariably the only permissible course.

22. The contention that in every case where the court of institution is found to lack pecuniary jurisdiction, return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 is the only permissible course, cannot be accepted. Such an interpretation would render sub-section (5) of Section 24 otiose. The settled principle of statutory interpretation requires that every provision enacted by the Legislature must be given its due meaning and effect and that no provision should be construed in a manner which renders another redundant or nugatory. Order VII Rule 10 and Section 24 operate in distinct, though complementary, spheres. While the former provides one procedural mechanism for presentation of the plaint before the proper forum, the latter empowers the superior court to remedy the defect by transferring the pending proceedings to a court competent to adjudicate upon the dispute. Both provisions advance the common object of ensuring that the lis is ultimately decided by a court having jurisdiction.

23. The Code does not treat every defect relating to pecuniary or territorial jurisdiction as fatal to the proceedings. Rather, the legislative scheme demonstrates an intention to preserve and continue proceedings before a competent forum wherever such course is legally permissible. It is in furtherance of this object that Section 24(5) expressly authorises transfer even from a court lacking jurisdiction. To hold that the plaint must invariably be returned notwithstanding the existence of such an express statutory power would not only render Section 24(5) largely redundant but would also compel avoidable duplication of proceedings, thereby defeating the object of expeditious adjudication.

24. The plenary nature of the power under Section 24 is further reinforced by sub-section (2), which authorises the transferee court either to retry the suit or to proceed from the stage at which it stood transferred, subject to any special directions contained in the order of transfer. Thus, the Code itself contemplates continuity of proceedings after transfer and leaves it to the discretion of the transferee court to determine whether the matter requires a de novo trial or whether the proceedings may continue from the stage at which they stood transferred. Consequently, the submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner that the evidence recorded prior to transfer necessarily becomes non est and cannot be looked into by the transferee court does not find support from the statutory scheme itself.

25. The legal position is thus clear that return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 is not the sole or mandatory consequence whenever a defect of jurisdiction comes to light. Where the District Court, in exercise of its statutory powers under Section 24(5), transfers the proceedings to a court competent to entertain and decide the matter, such transfer constitutes a lawful method of remedying the defect of jurisdiction. An interpretation compelling return of the plaint in every case, notwithstanding the express language employed in Section 24(5), would elevate procedural form over substantive justice and defeat the legislative object underlying the provision.

26. The aforesaid interpretation also stands fortified by the decision of this Court in Shiv Shankar v. Mahavir @ Ghura Turha and Others, wherein an identical question arose for consideration as to whether, upon discovery of a jurisdictional defect, return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 was the only permissible course or whether the District Judge could exercise powers under Section 24(5) CPC to transfer the suit to a court of competent jurisdiction. Upon an elaborate consideration of the scheme of the Code, particularly the interplay between Order VII Rule 10 and Section 24, this Court held that the provisions relating to return of plaint are procedural in nature and do not curtail or override the plenary power of transfer vested in the District Court under Section 24. It was further held that Section 24(5) expressly contemplates transfer of a suit from a court lacking jurisdiction and that such transfer constitutes a valid and legally sustainable mode of curing the defect of jurisdiction. The Court further observed that where the jurisdictional defect stands effectively remedied by a lawful order of transfer and no prejudice is shown to have been caused to any party, insistence upon return of the plaint would amount to elevating procedural form over substantive justice.

27. Applying the aforesaid principles to the facts of the present case, this Court finds that the learned District Judge exercised the jurisdiction vested in him under Section 24(5) CPC strictly in accordance with law. The impugned order records that, upon consideration of the reports submitted by the concerned Court and the Munsarim, it was found that S.C.C. Suit No. 69 of 2020 had been valued at Rs.1,06,806.45, whereas the pecuniary jurisdiction of the Court of the Judge, Small Causes Court, Meerut extended only up to Rs.1,00,000/-. Upon noticing the jurisdictional defect, instead of permitting the proceedings to continue before an incompetent court, the learned District Judge exercised the statutory power specifically conferred under Section 24(5) and transferred the suit to the Court of the Additional District Judge, Court No. 2, Meerut, which was competent to entertain and decide the same.

28. The principal submission advanced on behalf of the petitioner is that once the defect of pecuniary jurisdiction came to light, the only permissible course was return of the plaint under Order VII Rule 10 of the Code and that the evidence recorded by the court lacking jurisdiction became non est. The submission cannot be accepted. Section 24(5) expressly authorises transfer of a suit from a court which has no jurisdiction to try it, and the legislative intent is thereby clear that transfer constitutes a valid statutory mechanism for curing a jurisdictional defect. Acceptance of the petitioner's contention would render sub-section (5) of Section 24 largely redundant and would defeat the very object for which the provision has been enacted.

29. Equally untenable is the submission that the evidence recorded prior to the order of transfer necessarily stands obliterated. Sub-section (2) of Section 24 specifically provides that the transferee court may, subject to any special directions contained in the order of transfer, either retry the suit or proceed from the stage at which it was transferred. The statute, therefore, itself contemplates continuity of proceedings after transfer and leaves it to the discretion of the transferee court to determine the appropriate course. Whether the evidence already recorded is to be acted upon, or whether any witness is required to be recalled or the trial is to commence afresh, are matters falling within the jurisdiction of the transferee court in accordance with law. The impugned order merely directs transfer of the proceedings and does not foreclose the exercise of such discretion by the transferee court.

30. It is also noteworthy that the petitioner has not demonstrated any prejudice occasioned solely on account of the transfer of the proceedings. The grievance projected in the present petition is founded upon the legal proposition that transfer itself was impermissible. Once that proposition is found to be contrary to the express language of Section 24(5) as well as the settled legal position noticed hereinabove, no independent ground survives to hold that the exercise of jurisdiction by the learned District Judge suffers from any manifest illegality or jurisdictional error.

31. The supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution is intended to ensure that subordinate courts act within the bounds of their jurisdiction and in accordance with law. It is neither appellate nor meant to substitute the Court's own view for that of the subordinate court merely because another view may also be possible. In the present case, the learned District Judge has exercised a jurisdiction expressly vested by statute and the course adopted is consistent with the scheme of the Code of Civil Procedure. No patent illegality, perversity, or jurisdictional infirmity has been demonstrated so as to warrant interference by this Court in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction.

32. In view of the foregoing discussion, no ground for interference under Article 227 of the Constitution is made out. The petition lacks merit and is, accordingly, dismissed.

Writ C No. 3531 of 2019

Kalyan Health Care Products Pharmaceuticals Co-Operative Society Ltd. ...Petitioner
Versus
State of U.P. & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether the relief claimed is, in fact, a disguised suit for recovery of money and execution of contract though couched as a writ petition, for which remedy lies under the private law as the medicines supplied and non-payment of bills being a disputed question of fact would amount to adjudicating a money claim by embarking upon rival claims

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 226- Every writ petition seeking payment of contractual dues cannot be thrown out and can very well be entertained against the State and its instrumentalities if the amount of money due under contract is admitted and no inquiry is required to ascertain the facts. But, where facts are so disputed that these cannot be decided without leading evidences by rival parties, the Court must lay its hands off while exercising writ jurisdiction- Money claim set up by the petitioner requires adjudication of various disputed questions of fact, such as observance/defiance of procurement policy, utilisation of goods, refund/failure to refund medicine supplied, whether the goods supplied were sub-standard and the issue of limitation- adjudication of the petitioner's entitlement would necessarily require oral and documentary evidence these cannot be substituted by pleadings/affidavits alone, concerning procurement, quality of medicines, utilisation, alleged financial irregularities and contractual obligations.

Held- That it would be inappropriate for this Court to determine the contentious disputed questions of fact that arise for our consideration in these writ proceedings- However, this order will not in any manner preclude the petitioner from seeking these remedies before the Civil Court or any other statutory forum, including arbitration etc.

Petition dismissed. (E-15)

Case Arising From

Order dated 08.10.2018 passed by the 3rd respondent/Chief Medical Officer, Allahabad, whereby contractual dues in lieu of supply of Ayush Medicine have been refused. There is a further, prayer for the issue of a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents to pay the bills for goods supplied by the petitioner, with interest at 18%.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Abhishek Sharma
Counsel for Respondent(s) : C.S.C., Rajiv Sharma

(Delivered by Hon'ble Indrajeet Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Abhishek Sharma, learned counsel for the petitioner, Mr. Girijesh Kumar Tripathi, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondent nos. 1 to 4 and Mr. S.B. Singh, Advocate holding brief of Mr. Rajiv Sharma, learned counsel for the respondent no.5.

2. The jurisdiction of this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India has been invoked by the petitioner challenging the validity and correctness of the order dated 08.10.2018 passed by the 3rd respondent/Chief Medical Officer, Allahabad, whereby contractual dues in lieu of supply of Ayush Medicine have been refused. There is a further, prayer for the issue of a writ of mandamus commanding the respondents to pay the bills for goods supplied by the petitioner, with interest at 18%.

3. Briefly stated, the facts are as follows:-

3.1 The petitioner claims to be a Cooperative Society registered under the provisions of the Cooperative Societies Act, 1965, holding a licence to manufacture AYUSH medicines. The petitioner received a supply order.

3.2 The supply order dated 21.12.2017 was received from the office of the 3rd respondent and in response to the same, the requisite Ayush Medicines were supplied. It is said that Goods and Service Tax (GST) to the extent of Rs.2,00,000/- was also paid by the petitioner. The pleaded case is that, there being no fault or deficiency in supply of medicines, the respondent-State authorities are not justified in refusing the claim for payment of bills of the petitioner.

3.3 In this factual matrix, the petitioner instituted Writ-C No.28503 of 2018 before this Court, which was disposed of vide order dated 24.08.2018 in terms of the following directions:-

"The limited relief pressed before us by the learned Counsel for the petitioner is for an appropriate direction to the respondent No.3/Chief Medical Officer, Allahabad to decide its pending representation, contained in Annexure No.6 to the petition, within a fixed time-frame.

Considering the facts and circumstances of the case, we dispose of this petition with a direction to the respondent No.3 to decide the pending request of the petitioner, referred to above, in accordance with law, within a period of eight weeks, from the date of production of a certified copy of this order."

3.4 In pursuance of the directions issued by this Court the 3rd respondent decided the petitioner's claim vide order dated 08.10.2018 refusing to pass the bills. The relevant excerpts of the order impugned are quoted below:-

"1. औषधियों के क्रय के लिये मिशन निदेशक राष्ट्रीय स्वास्थ्य मिशन द्वारा निर्धारित गाइड लाइन का अनुपालन नही किया गया ।

2. औषधियों के क्रय से पूर्व जिलाधिकारी की अध्यक्षता में न तो समिति का गठन किया गया और न ही क्रय से पूर्व समिति का अनुमोदन प्राप्त किया गया।

3. औषधियों को क्रय से पूर्व औषधियों के आकलन हेतु आयुष चिकित्सकों से मांग पत्र नहीं प्राप्त किया गया।

4. औषधियों के क्रय से पूर्व क्लासिकल व नान क्लासिकल मानकों का भी अनुपालन सुनिश्चित नहीं किया गया, सभी औषधियों एक ही पैथी की ली गयी।

5. औषधियों का क्रय न तो सी०जी०एच०एस० के दर अनुबन्ध से किया गया और न ही मिशन निदेशक द्वारा निर्धारित फर्मों से किया गया (संलग्नक -1)

6. अधोहस्ताक्षरी के द्वारा भी प्रकरण की जांच हेतु एक समिति का गठन कर जाँच कराई गयी। समिति ने भी अपनी जॉच आख्या में वित्तीय अनिमिता का उल्लेख किया है (संलग्नक समिति की रिपोर्ट-2 से 3)

7. अधोहस्ताक्षरी द्वारा समिति की रिपोर्ट के आधार पर एवं वित्तीय अनिमितिाओं के कारण सम्बन्धित फर्म को औषधियों को वापस ले जाने हेतु बीजकों पर अंकित पते पर पत्राचार किया परन्तु पता गलत होने के कारण पत्र वापस कर दिया गया इससे भी फर्म की होने न होने की संदिग्धता प्रतीत होती है (संलग्नक समिति की रिपोर्ट-4 से5)

उपरोक्त कारणों से आपके द्वारा वर्ष 2017-18 में आपूर्ति की गयी औषधियों का भुगतान घोर वित्तीय अनिमितिाओं के कारण नहीं किया जा सका एवं अभी भी भुगतान सम्भव नहीं है।"

SUBMISSIONS ADVANCED ON BEHALF OF THE PETITIONER

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the impugned order does not contain any recital that the medicines supplied were sub-standard or that there was any deficiency. It also does not speak of any financial irregularity in the submission of bills or any inflated claim.

5. It has been strenuously urged that the 4th respondent/Chief Pharmacist/Store In-charge, C.M.O. Office, Allahabad, certified the material supplied by the petitioner to be perfectly in order and further recommended release of payment to the petitioner.

6. The ground of denial of payment as reflected from the order impugned is founded on some inquiry report, which has not been supplied to the petitioner, violating the principles of natural justice.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner further submitted that if there was any fault in observing the rules and regulations on part of the predecessor-in-office of respondent no.3, while placing the procurement order, the petitioner cannot be blamed in any manner on that account.

8. Counsel for the petitioner invited our attention to the recital carried in the order impugned with respect to the firm/petitioner being a non-existent identity inferable from the factum of service of a letter dispatched to the petitioner′s given address for return of medicines. It is ill founded, as a photostat copy of the envelope contained at page no.11 of the counter affidavit does not describe the complete address. Thus, the inference drawn by the third respondent that the petitioner-firm was non-existent is misplaced.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner in order to buttress his submission that there was no deficiency/fault in the medicines supplied, strenuously urged that the averments in the counter affidavit are evasive.

10. Counsel for the petitioner, while assailing the order dated 08.10.2018, submitted that the inquiry report appended with the counter affidavit clearly reflects that nothing adverse has been pointed out against the petitioner in the supplying of medicines.

11. Further, to buttress the submissions advanced as aforesaid, learned counsel for the petitioner relied on the authority of the Supreme Court in M/s Utkal Highways Engineers and Contractors Vs. Chief General Manager and others, 2025 SCC OnLine SC 1400, emphasizing that non-payment of admitted dues may be considered as an arbitrary action on the part of the respondents and for the recovery of such dues a writ petition may lie. Moreover, dismissing a writ petition on the ground of the availability of an alternative remedy after 10 years, particularly when parties have exchanged their pleadings, is not the correct course of law, unless there are disputed questions of fact, which by their nature cannot be adjudicated upon without formally recording evidence.

12. Reliance has also been placed on a Bench decision of this Court in Kanika Construction Vs. State of U.P. and 3 others, Writ-C No.27869 of 2021 decided on 06.01.2022 wherein it has been held that a writ petition would be maintainable to enforce a monetary claim if there is no dispute relating to the amount of money due and payable to petitioner.

13. Concluding the arguments, learned counsel for the petitioner drew our attention to the fact that the instant writ petition is pending for the last 7 years and the pleadings have been exchanged; as such, the claim for payment in relation to medicines supplied be entertained, and mandamus be issued accordingly.

SUBMISSION OF COUNSEL FOR THE RESPONDENTS

14. Learned counsel for the State submitted that Chief Medical Officer constituted a committee of three members to enquire about the claim of the petitioner for payment due on account of supply of medicines, who submitted a report that the financial irregularities and serious financial irregularities were committed in placing the procurement order, setting the norms of procurement at naught, by the then Chief Medical Officer and the then Additional Chief Medical Officer.

15. It is further urged that the then Additional Chief Medical Officer (Store), Prayagraj sent a letter dated 26.06.2018 addressed to the petitioner, saying there that the medicines had been found sub-standard. A reminder dated 11.07.2018 to the same effect was also sent, but such communications were returned by the office of the Postal Department with the remark that the aforesaid firm/accommodation/factory/shop has not been found at the given address. Mere absence of mentioning the name of street on which petitioner′s firm is alleged to be situated cannot be construed as an incomplete address. More so, the denial of the money claim is based on a three-member committee report; thus, no fault can be found with the order impugned.

16. Our attention has been drawn to the letter dated 17.07.2017 written by the Mission Director, Rashtriya Swasthya Mission, U.P., Lucknow along with a list of Central Government/State Government Pharmacies/Cooperatives Manufacturing ASU & H Medicines. The list of pharmaceutical suppliers appended with the letter dated 17.07.2017 does not include the petitioner′s name.

17. For ready reference, the list of Central Government/State Government Pharmacies/Cooperatives Manufacturing ASU & H Medicines appended with the letter dated 17.07.2017 is extracted as under:-

"1. Indian Medicines Pharmaceutical Corporation Lid, Govt. of India Enterprise
2. Oushadhi- The Pharmaceutical Corporation (I.M.) Kerala Ltd. - State Pharmacy
3. TAMPCOL, Tamil Nadu (Ayurveda/Siddha Medicine)-State Pharmacy
4. IMCOPS, Government of Tamil Nadu (Siddha Medicines)
5. M.P. Minor Forest Products Cooperative Federation Madhya Pradesh- State Pharmacy
6. Cooperative Drug Factory, Chilyanaula, Ranikhet, Uttarakhand
7. Uttarakhand State Medicines and Pharmaceutical Ltd. -Subsidiary of CDF
8. Kerala Government Pharamacy (Homoeopathic).″

18. The further submission is that there are serious financial irregularities/bungling noticed by the inquiry committee comprising three members, which coupled with the fact of absence of petitioner's name in the list brought on record by virtue of Annexure No.CA-6, i.e. letter dated 17.07.2017, disentitles the petitioner from claiming payment of their under the contract.

19. The learned State counsel has drawn our attention to the pleadings contained in paragraph no.13 of the counter affidavit to the effect that it has not utilised the medicines supplied, as these were found sub-standard and against the procurement policy so that public money may not go to waste and health of the public at large, suffer.

20. In his concluding submissions, the learned State counsel has opposed the entertainability of this writ petition stating that the instant writ petition may not be entertained for a money claim since various disputed questions of fact are to be thrashed out before deciding the respective claims of parties.

21. In their rejoinder, the learned counsel for the petitioner drew our attention to the registration certificates of the empaneled pharmaceutical manufacturers contained at page no.20 of the counter affidavit have expired, whereas the same was subsisting in favour of the petitioner. Therefore the then Chief Medical Officer allowed the supply to be made by the petitioner.

QUESTIONS/ISSUES INVOLVED

22. This Court in the instant case is faced with the question, whether the relief claimed is, in fact, a disguised suit for recovery of money and execution of contract though couched as a writ petition, for which remedy lies under the private law as the medicines supplied and non-payment of bills being a disputed question of fact would amount to adjudicating a money claim by embarking upon rival claims ?

ANALYSIS AND REASONING

23. Having heard learned counsel for the parties, this Court finds that the money claim set up by the petitioner has been refused by the 3rd respondent, stating various grounds, including financial irregularities practiced in the process of procurement, and that too against the policy.

24. The reasons assigned in the order impugned raise various disputed questions of fact, including non-compliance of the procurement policy. Even the name of the petitioner does not find place in the list appended with the circular dated 17.07.2017, as evident from the record (page no. 20 of the counter affidavit), a fact, which has not been denied by the petitioner.

25. The identity of the firm/petitioner itself has been disputed by respondents, and in our writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India we are not equipped to undertake an inquiry into the matter by commenting upon the fact whether non-mentioning of the petitioner's street in the small town of Bagpat could be said to be such a fatal lapse that resulted in non-service of the letter by which the medicines were sought to be returned.

26. Turning to the next question that it was the Chief Pharmacist/4th respondent, who certified the quality and quantity of medicine received, we find that no such letter has been brought on record by which we could draw an inference in the petitioner's favour. Even if it is assumed that there was certification, the question if the said respondent was competent to certify the quantity and quality of the medicine supplied. The non-compliance of procurement policy can still not be adjudicated, as it has multiple facets of disputed questions of facts. The fault/deficiency/quality in supply of medicine are contractual rights and obligations for which the private law remedies are best suited.

27. As regards the submission of the learned counsel for the petitioner that non-mentioning of the petitioner-firm in the empanelled list for procurement, if registration in favour of empanelled pharmaceutical manufacturers expired, then they might too have been dis-entitled to undertake supply to the respondents, but that would not ipso facto create any right in favour of petitioner-firm. Even if the registration certificate of other firms had expired (about which there is no material before this Court), this Court cannot extend the scope of our writ jurisdiction and conduct a roving enquiry on such matter, which can be decided through private law remedies, involving pleadings and evidence.

28. The authority cited by learned counsel for the petitioner in M/s Utkal Highways Engineers (supra), we are afraid is inapplicable as it relates to non-payment of admitted dues. 'Non-payment' of admitted dues bears twin conditions, i.e. not only the quantum of amount should be admitted, but the contractual obligation and rights should not be disputed to the extent the amount has been admitted.

29. We do not find either in the counter affidavit or in the order impugned. There is no admission by the State respondents regarding the dues or their quantum.

30. In the case of M/s Alaska Tech through its Partner Sanjeet Singh and another Vs. State of U.P. through Principal Secretary Urban Development and others (Misc. Bench No.3861 of 2014) decided on 08.05.2014, this Court has held:-

"At the outset, a preliminary objection was raised by the learned Standing Counsel appearing on behalf of the respondents to the maintainability of this petition under Article 226 of the Constitution.

We are of the view that, in a matter of this nature which pertains to alleged non-payment of dues under a contract for supply of goods, it would neither be prudent nor judicious for this Court, in exercise of its jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution, to grant relief, which is in substance, is a prayer for a money decree. These matters, it must be emphasized, are not those relating to statutory contracts but are purely non-statutory contracts. Whether work has been satisfactorily performed, whether the rates which had been quoted are in accordance with the terms of the contract, whether the goods were of a quality as mandated, and above all, whether the claim is within limitation or otherwise, are issues which cannot appropriately be adjudicated upon under Article 226 of the Constitution.

Increasingly, in cases like the one in hand, instead of taking recourse to the jurisdiction of the ordinary civil court under Section 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure Code, 1908, recourse is taken to the writ jurisdiction under Article 226. That is not permissible. The jurisdiction of the Civil Court is intended to provide the ordinary civil remedy for the adjudication of such claims. As a matter of fact, we also indicated to the learned counsel that even within the purview of the Civil Procedure Code, provisions such as those under Order 37 of the C.P.C. contain an adequate safeguard by laying down a summary remedy or procedure which can be availed of in cases where under a written contract, money is due and payable. Under Order 37, the defendant has to make out a triable defence before being granted even leave to defend the suit.

Hence, in the present case, we see no reason or justification to entertain the petition under Article 226 of the Constitution."

(emphasis by us)

31. It has been the consistent view of this Court as well as the Supreme Court that no interference can be made made under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, where a disputed question of fact is raised. The High Court in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, would ordinarily not adjudicate a matter where the foundational facts are disputed. (see Subhashree Das @ Mili Panda & Others vs State Of Orissa, 2012 (9) SCC 729).

32. In the case of Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Limited and another Vs. Dolly Das, 1999 (4) SCC 450, the Supreme Court has held:-

"In the absence of Constitutional or statutory rights being involved a writ proceeding would not lie to enforce contractual obligations even if it is sought to be enforced against the State or to avoid contractual liability arising thereto. In the absence of any statutory right Article 226 cannot be availed to claim any money in respect of breach of contract or tort or otherwise..."

33. An analogous issue arose before Division Bench of this Court in the case of M/s Amit Traders and another Vs. State of U.P. and another (Writ-C No.34449 of 2019), decided on 24.10.2019. The Division Bench has held that a mandamus sought by petitioner is nothing but the grant of a money decree in the extraordinary equitable jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, which cannot be granted. The relevant paragraphs of said judgement are extracted as under:-

"5. In Kerala State Electricity Board and another Vs. Kurien E. Kalathil and others 2000 (6) SCC 293, Court said that interpretation and implementation of a clause in a contract cannot be subject-matter of a writ petition. Whether a contract envisages actual payment or not is a question of construction of contract. If a term of contract is violated, ordinarily remedy is not the writ petition under Article 226. A contract would not become statutory simply because it is for construction of a public utility and it has been awarded by a statutory body. A statute may expressly or impliedly confer power on a statutory body to enter into contracts in order to enable it to discharge its functions. Disputes arising out of the terms of such contracts or alleged breaches have to be settled by the ordinary principles of law of contract. The fact that one of the parties to the agreement is a statutory or public body will not by itself affect the principles to be applied. The disputes about the meaning of a covenant in a contract or its enforceability have to be determined according to the usual principles of the Contract Act. Every act of a statutory body need not necessarily involve an exercise of statutory power. Statutory bodies have power to contract or deal with property like private parties. Such activities may not raise any issue of public law. When it is not shown that contract is statutory and parties are within the realm of their authority, contract between the parties is in the realm of private law. The disputes relating to interpretation of terms and conditions of such contract cannot be agitated in a petition under Article 226 of the Constitution. The Court further said:

"That is a matter for adjudication by a civil court or in arbitration if provided for in the contract. Whether any amount is due and if so, how much and refusal of the appellant to pay it is justified or not, are not the matters which could have been agitated and decided in a writ petition."

6. Following the above authorities, a Division Bench of this Court in M/S Prabhu Construction Company through its Proprietor Vs. State of U.P. and another (Writ C No. 25075 of 2014) decided on 05.05.2014 said as under:

"In the present case, there is nothing on the record which may persuade us to hold that the contract is a statutory contract. The remedy of the contractor, if he is aggrieved by non-payment, would be to either file an ordinary civil suit or if there is an arbitration agreement between the parties, to invoke the terms of the agreement."

9. The same view has been reiterated in M/S Goyal Stationary Mart through its Proprietor State of U.P. (Misc. Bench No. 10971 of 2015) decided on 27.11.2015, Budh Gramin Sansthan Vs. Bench No. 3898 of 2015) decided on 13.05.2014.

10. The question as to whether in writ jurisdiction under Article 226 of Constitution this Court should entertain writ petitions seeking a mandamus for payment of contractual amount like a decree for recovery of money, repeatedly it has been held that such writ petition should not be entertained and parties must be relegated to avail remedies in common law.

11. Following the above authorities, a Division Bench of this Court presided by me has also taken same view in Writ Petition (Writ-C) No. 42697 of 2002 (M/S Jai Goswami Electric Works Alld. Vs. Union Of India through' D.R.M. and Others) decided on 19.05.2016.

34. We are conscious of the fact, that every writ petition seeking payment of contractual dues cannot be thrown out and can very well be entertained against the State and its instrumentalities if the amount of money due under contract is admitted and no inquiry is required to ascertain the facts. But, where facts are so disputed that these cannot be decided without leading evidences by rival parties, this Court must lay its hands off while exercising our writ jurisdiction.

35. We ourselves have entertained Writ-C No.6580 of 2022 following the guidelines and principles of the Supreme Court rendered in ABL International Ltd. and Another v. Export Credit Guarantee Corporation of India Ltd. and Others (2004) 3 SCC 553 but there the dues were admitted and not being paid only on the ground that the officers, who were responsible for embezzlement of the farmer's money in lieu of supply of paddy had not refunded the money and the money could not be recovered from them. But, the facts in the instant case are altogether different.

36. It is trite law that facts are required to be proved by evidence employing examination and cross-examination of witnesses. These cannot be determined on the basis of affidavits of rival parties. The aforesaid principle is fortified by the observation of the Supreme Court in Sanjay Kumar Jha Vs. Prakash Chandra Chaudhary and others, (2019) 2 SCC 499. The relevant excerpt is reproduced below:-

"13. It is well settled that in proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution of India the High Court does not adjudicate upon affidavit, disputed questions of fact."

CONCLUSION

37. The money claim set up by the petitioner requires adjudication of various disputed questions of fact, such as observance/defiance of procurement policy, utilisation of goods, refund/failure to refund medicine supplied, whether the goods supplied were sub-standard and the issue of limitation; all these are disputed questions of fact involved in this lis.

38. Since adjudication of the petitioner's entitlement would necessarily require oral and documentary evidence these cannot be substituted by pleadings/affidavits alone, concerning procurement, quality of medicines, utilisation, alleged financial irregularities and contractual obligations.

39. In the present case, for the reasons stated above, we are of opinion that it would be inappropriate for this Court to determine the contentious disputed questions of fact that arise for our consideration in these writ proceedings. Thus, we decline to exercise our extraordinary jurisdiction under Article 226 of the Constitution of India. The instant writ petition fails and is, accordingly, dismissed.

40. Parties shall bear their own costs.

41. However, we clarify that this order will not in any manner preclude the petitioner from seeking these remedies before the Civil Court or any other statutory forum, including arbitration etc.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the failure to issue the 'No Objection Certificate' without any reasonable or plausible justification would attract the 'doctrine of malice in law'

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 14, 19 & 226- The District Magistrate's 'No Objection Certificate' for setting up a fuel retail outlet not issued to the petitioner, despite a lapse of more than two years owing to apathetic attitude of the District Magistrate and his office including the red tapism involved in the decision making process which compelled the petitioner to knock the doors of this Court- The action now taken to issue the 'No Objection Certificate' in haste could have been taken at leisure long back- The District Magistrate's office and successive incumbents in that office were sitting tight over the matter for more than two years, in violation of the Government Order dated 30.01.2023 and the later order dated 18.12.2025- The delay in decision-making, without any plausible cause, itself is an indication of malice in law, also exhibiting arbitrariness writ large- Since the 'No Objection Certificate' has now been issued, nothing survives further for adjudication in this petition on merits.

Held-Petition disposed of with the directions to the District Magistrate, Fatehpur, to act with promptitude in all matters where rights of citizens are involved and pay heed to proceedings of this case as a guide for the future and keep the Office of the District Magistrate responsive and in order. Case Arising From

By means of the instant writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for issue of a writ in the nature of mandamus commanding the District Magistrate, Fatehpur to grant a 'No Objection Certificate' in favour of petitioner M/S Ramraj Filling Station situated at 6th Ramganj Pakka Talab, Tehsil Sadar, District Fatehpur for the purpose of installation of a retail outlet of petrol at Khasra No.180 located in Village Udaharanpur, Tehsil Sadar, District Fatehpur forthwith without any further delay.

Appearances for Parties

Counsel for Petitioner(s) : Phool Singh Yadav, Ram Pratap Yadav
Counsel for Respondent(s) : A.S.G.I., Ajay Shankar, C.S.C., Dhurva Kant Chaturvedi

(Delivered by Hon'ble Indrajeet Shukla, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Ram Pratap Yadav, learned counsel for the petitioner, learned Additional Solicitor General appearing on behalf of respondent no.1/Union of India, Mr. Ajai Shankar, learned counsel for the respondent no.2 and Mr. Girijesh Kumar Tripathi, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the respondent nos.3 & 4.

2. By means of the instant writ petition, the petitioner has prayed for issue of a writ in the nature of mandamus commanding the District Magistrate, Fatehpur to grant a 'No Objection Certificate' in favour of petitioner M/S Ramraj Filling Station situated at 6th Ramganj Pakka Talab, Tehsil Sadar, District Fatehpur for the purpose of installation of a retail outlet of petrol at Khasra No.180 located in Village Udaharanpur, Tehsil Sadar, District Fatehpur forthwith without any further delay.

Factual Matrix

3. The facts giving rise to the instant writ petition are recapitulated as under:

3.1. The petitioner applied for the allotment of a retail outlet of the second respondent oil company and, accordingly, was issued a Letter of Intent dated 29.03.2024 by Reliance BP Mobility Limited, Eldeco Corporate Chambers 2, 9th Floor, Vibhuti Khand, Gomti Nagar, Lucknow (hereinafter referred to as the "oil company"). After the issue of the letter of intent, the petitioner was required to obtain and submit a 'No Objection Certificates' (NOCs) from various authorities, namely the Revenue Department, Electricity Department, Stamp Department, Fire Department, Pollution Control Board, and the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI). The No Objection Certificates issued by the respective authorities have been collectively brought on record as Annexure No. 2 to the present writ petition.

3.2. The second respondent/Oil Company, asked for a 'No Objection Certificate' from the office of District Magistrate concerned by virtue of its letter dated 01.07.2024. The District Magistrate's 'No Objection Certificate' for setting up a fuel retail outlet at Lalganj was not issued to the petitioner, despite a lapse of more than two years owing to apathetic attitude of the District Magistrate and his office including the red tapism involved in the decision making process which compelled the petitioner to knock the doors of this Court.

3.3. In the year 2024, when the District Magistrate's 'No Objection Certificate' was asked for, the prevalent policy was governed by a Government Order dated 30.01.2023. Subsequently, the State Government itself issued a revised Policy dated 18.12.2025, whereby the procedure for grant of the NOC was substantially simplified and applicable norms were relaxed but even the mandate of Government order dated 18.12.2025, could not Pursuade the office of the District Magistrate to issue the requisite 'No Objection Certificate' which is evident from the personal affidavit of none other than District Magistrate concerned, as figured in paragraph no.11 of the said affidavit, which unmistakably demonstrates that despite the revised policy, no decision was taken on the petitioner's application.

3.4. In the aforesaid factual background, this Court passed the following order dated 22.06.2026:

"The District Magistrate, Fatehpur will show cause by day after tomorrow why he has not granted NOC to the petitioner for the purposes of establishment of petrol and diesel outlet at Village Udhannapur, Tehsil Sadar, District Fatehpur.

Mr. D.K. Chaturvedi has appeared on behalf of the respondent-Union of India, whereas notice on behalf of the State respondent is accepted by Ms. Priyanka Midha, Additional Chief Standing Counsel.

Put up day after tomorrow.

To be taken up as fresh.

The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to communicate this order to the District Magistrate, Fatehpur through the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Fatehpur today."

4. This Court, being dissatisfied with the instructions furnished on behalf of the respondents, asked for assistance of District Magistrate concerned, since subsequent Government Order referred as 18.12.2025 could not persuade office of District Magistrate to give a quietus to the issue of grant of the requisite 'No Objection Certificate'. Consequently, On 24.06.2026, this Court passed below quoted order:

"Perused the instructions furnished by the District Magistrate, Fatehpur.

There are the matters which require serious clarification that have been left unexplained. In this case, the letter of intent was issued way back in the year 2024 and the government order, upon which the District Magistrate relies, is dated 18.12.2025.

Let all these matter be explained in-person by the District Magistrate, Fatehpur before this Court tomorrow at 2.00 p.m.

Put up tomorrow as fresh at 2.00 p.m.

Let this order be communicated to the District Magistrate, Fatehpur through the learned Chief Judicial Magistrate, Fatehpur by the Registrar (Compliance) today."

5. On 25.06.2026, the District Magistrate concerned filed her personal affidavit appending therewith the requisite 'No Objection Certificate'. Taking note of 'No Objection Certificate' issued in favour of the petitioner, this Court directed District Magistrate to take up the matter with the oil company for further recourse in pursuance to the letter of intent.

6. A perusal of the 'No Objection Certificate' brought on record by virtue of personal affidavit of the District Magistrate reveals that it is preceded by twin conditions. First, the sanction of a building plan/map for the entire area (measuring 4200 square meteres) proposed to be utilised for the retail outlet is mandatory. The second limb of condition is deposit of process fees for sanction of the map. These conditions are said to be in terms of policy/Government order dated 18.12.2025.

Submissions Advanced On Behalf of Petitioner

7. The learned counsel for the petitioner strenuously urged that his fundamental right to carry on trade and business has been infringed on account of a hostile discrimination and apathetic attitude of office of District Magistrate, who swiftly made a clerk the scapegoat without realizing her responsibility, though she exhibited scant regard to the government orders issued for swift issue of a 'No Objection Certificate'.

8. The further submission advanced is, that the right to practise any profession or to carry on any occupation, trade or business is guaranteed by the virtue of Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution of India, subject to the certain reasonable restrictions in terms of Article 19(6) but non taking any decision, by the District Magistrate for a period of more than two years, despite there being no plausible explanation for such inaction, constitutes an arbitrary and unreasonable exercise of power, which is again hit by Article 14 of the Constitution of India. Thus, it infringes the petitioner's fundamental right so guaranteed.

9. No explanation/cause of delay could come forth either in personal affidavit of District Magistrate or she herself could justify her action.

Submission Advanced on behalf of State-Respondents

10. Per contra, learned counsel for the State-respondents vehemently submitted that no further cause of action survives as the requisite 'No Objection Certificate' has already been issued pursuant to the receipt of police report dated 22.06.2026 and in terms of order dated 24.06.2026. The further submission is that the delay in the issue of a NOC was on account of the belated submission of a police report by the concerned police authorities. Since the requisite 'No Objection Certificate' could not be issued with promptitude on account of such delay, the concerned clerk has been taken to task by awarding him the punishment of a censure entry.

11. The record of this case, including the personal affidavit of the District Magistrate exhibits that there is no explanation/cause what to say reasonable and plausible cause regarding the non issue of a 'No Objection Certificate' for an indefinite period which could issued only be after the institution of instant petition, where also initially an attempt was made for protract litigation. Thus, in the background of this case, the principal question that arises for consideration is whether the failure to issue the 'No Objection Certificate' without any reasonable or plausible justification would attract the 'doctrine of malice in law'.

12. The Non-issue of 'No Objection Certificate' without any plausible cause, as evident from the personal affidavit submitted by the District Magistrate before this Court, who could not defend her inaction for a period of two years attracts the doctrine of malice in law and, by itself, indicates the mala fide and arbitrariness. Mala fide and arbitrariness are distinct manifestations arising from the same vice, with the latter being broader in scope and encompassing the former.

13. Any action taken wrongfully and intentionally, without just cause, excuse, or lawful justification, is distinct from personal ill-will or malice in fact and would be construed as malice in law. The District Magistrate concerned has palpably failed, in her personal affidavit, to show any justifiable cause for the non issue of 'No Objection Certificate' for a period of more than two years. Such unexplained inaction would definitely constitute malice in law.

14. Malice in fact requires proof of personal ill-will, or improper motive, whereas malice in law may be inferred when a public authority or an individual acts in deliberate defiance of the law or on extraneous/misconceived grounds. Malice in law in the instant case is writ large as the District Magistrate concerned had absolutely no explanation for the delay in issue of a 'No Objection Certificate' except slashing one petty clerk by her mighty sword.

15. There are authoritative pronouncements of the Supreme Court elucidating the doctrine of malice in law and its effect on the validity of administrative action.

16. It is well settled that malice in law does not necessarily imply personal ill-will, spite or animosity on the part of the authority concerned. Rather, it denotes an action taken without lawful justification, for an unauthorized purpose, or in disregard of the statutory scheme governing the exercise of power.

17. The following decisions of the Supreme Court authoritatively expounds the aforesaid principle:

18. In the case of Ratnagiri gas and power Private Limited vs RDS Projects and others, 2013 (12) SCC 786, the Supreme Court has held:

30. Coming then to the question whether the action taken by the appellant-RGPPL was vitiated by malice in law, we need hardly mention that in cases involving malice in law the administrative action is unsupportable on the touchstone of an acknowledged or acceptable principle and can be avoided even when the decision maker may have had no real or actual malice at work in his mind. The conceptual difference between the two has been succinctly stated in the following paragragh by Lord Haldane in Shearer v. Shields (1914) A.C. 808 quoted with approval by this Court Additional District Magistrate, Jabalpur v. Shivkant Shukla (1976) 2 SCC 521:

Between 'malice in fact' and 'malice in law' there is a broad distinction which is not peculiar to any system of jurisprudence. The person who inflicts a wrong or an injury upon any person in contravention of the law is not allowed to say that he did so with an innocent mind. He is taken to know the flaw and can only act within the law. He may, therefore, be guilty of 'malice in law', although., so far as the state of ins mind was concerned he acted ignorantly, and in that sense innocently. 'Malice in fact' is a different thing. It means an actual malicious intention on the part of the person who has done the wrongful act."

31. Reference may also be made to the decision of this Court in State of AP & Ors. v. Goverdhanlal Pitti (2003) 4 SCC 739 where the difference between malice in fact and malice in law was summed up in the following words:

"11. The legal meaning of malice is "ill-will or spite towards a party and any indirect or improper motive in taking an action". This is sometimes described as "malice in fact". "Legal malice" or "malice in law" means 'something done without lawful excuse'. In other words, 'it is an act done wrongfully and wilfully without reasonable or probable cause, and not necessarily an act done from ill feeling and spite'. It is a deliberate act in disregard of the rights of others'.[See Words and Phrases legally defined in Third Edition, London Butterworths 1989].
.Where malice is attributed to the State, it can never be a case of personal ill-will or spite on the part of the State. If at all, it is malice in legal sense, it can be described as an act which is taken with a oblique or indirect object..." (emphasis supplied)

32. To the same effect is the recent decision of this Court in Ravi Yashwant Bhoir v. District Collector, Raigad and Ors (2012) 2 SCC 407 where this Court observed:

"MALICE IN LAW:
37. This Court has consistently held that the State is under an obligation to act fairly without ill will or malice- in fact-or in law. Where malice is attributed to the State, it can never be a case of personal ill-will or spite on the part of the State. "Legal malice" or "malice in law" means something done without lawful excuse. It is a deliberate act in disregard to the rights of others. It is an act which is taken with an oblique or indirect object. It is an act done wrongfully and willfully without reasonable or probable cause, and not necessarily an act done from ill feeling and spite. Mala fide exercise of power does not imply any moral turpitude. It means exercise of statutory power for "purposes foreign to those for which it is in law intended." It means conscious violation of the law to the prejudice of another, a depraved inclination on the part of the authority to disregard the rights of others, where intent is manifested by its injurious acts.
Passing an order for unauthorized purpose constitutes malice in law. (See: Addl. Distt. Magistrate, Jabalpur v. Shivkant Shukla, AIR 1976 SC 1207; Union of India thr. Govt. of Pondicherry and Anr. v. V. Ramakrishnan and Ors.,2005) 8 SCC 394; and Kalabharati Advertising v. Hemant Vimalnath Narichania and Ors., AIR 2010 SC 3745)."

(emphasis supplied by us)

19. Reference may also be made to authority in the case of West Bengal State Electricity Board Vs. Dilip Kumar Ray reported in 2007 (14) SCC 568, wherein Supreme Court held:

"19. Malice in law. "Malice in law" is however, quite different. Viscount Haldane described it in Shearer Shields, (1914) AC 808 as: "A person who inflicts an injury upon another person in contravention of the law is not allowed to say that he did so with the innocent mind: he is taken to know the law, and he must act within the law. He may, therefore, be guilty of malice in law, although, so far the state of mind is concerned, he acts ignorantly, and in that sense innocently". Malice in its legal sense means malice such as may be assumed from the doing of a wrongful act intentionally but without just cause or excuse, or fro want of reasonable or probable cause. (See S.R. Venkatarcunan v. Union of India (1979) 2 SCC 491)

Analysis and Reasoning

20. The ambit of Article 14 of the Constitution of India was substantially expanded by the Supreme Court by including executive discretion under its ambit. In the case of E.P. Royappa Vs. State of Tamilnadu, (1974) 4 SCC 3, the Supreme Court held that Article 14 gives a guarantee against the arbitrary action of the State. The right to equality is antithetical to arbitrariness. They both are enemies of each other so the arbitrary action in not taking a prompt decision in utter disregard to the spirit of government orders are clearly indicative of the fact that the petitioner is a victim of red tapism in the bureaucratic set up in democracy. The relevant excerpts from E.P. Royappa (supra) is reproduced hereinbelow:

85. The last two grounds of challenge may be taken up together for consideration.

Though we have formulated the third ground of challenge as a distinct and separate ground, it is really in substance and effect merely an aspect of the second ground based on violation of Articles 14 and 16. Article 16 embodies the fundamental guarantee that there shall be equality of opportunity for all citizens in matters relating to employment or appointment to any office under the State. Though enacted as a distinct and independent fundamental right because of its great importance as a principle ensuring equality of opportunity in public employment which is so vital to the building up of the new classless egalitarian society envisaged in the Constitution, Article 16 is only an instance of the application of the concept of equality enshrined in Article 14. In other words, Article 14 is the genus while Article 16 is a species, Article 16 gives effect to the doctrine or equality in all matters relating to public employment. The basic principle which, therefore, informs both Articles 14 and 16 is equality and inhibition against discrimination.

Now, what is the content and reach of this great equalising principle? It is a founding faith, to use the words of Bose, J., "a way of life", and it must not be subjected to a narrow pedantic or lexicographic approach. We cannot countenance any attempt to truncate its all-embracing scope and meaning, for to do so would be to violate its activist magnitude. Equality is a dynamic concept with many aspects and dimensions and it cannot be "cribbed, cabined and confined" within traditional and doctrinaire limits.

From a positivistic point of view, equality is antithetic to arbitrariness. In fact equality and arbitrariness are sworn enemies; one belongs to the rule of law in a republic while the other, to the whim and caprice of an absolute monarch. Where an act is arbitrary it is implicit in it that it is unequal both according to political logic and Constitutional law and is therefore violative of Article 14, and if it affects any matter relating to public employment, it is also violative of Article 16. Articles 14 and 16 strike at arbitrariness in State action and ensure fairness and equality of treatment.

They require that State action must be based on equivalent relevant principles applicable alike to all similarly situate and it must not be guided by any extraneous or irrelevant considerations because that would be denial of equality. Where the operative reason for State action, as distinguished from motive inducing from the antechamber of the mind, is not legitimate and relevant but is extraneous and outside the area of permissible considerations, it would amount to mala fide exercise of power and that is hit by Articles 14 and 16. Mala fide exercise of power and arbitrariness are different lethal radiations emanating from the same vice : in fact the latter comprehends the former. Both are inhibited by Articles 14 and 16.

(Emphasis added by us)

21. In the case of Maneka Gandhi Vs. Union of India, (1978) 1 SCC 248, the Constitution bench of the Supreme Court speaking through his lordship Hon'ble Mr. Justice P.N. Bhagwati, held that the concept of equality enshrined under Article 14 of the Constitution of India is against the arbitrariness of the State action. The Court further expounded the doctrine of the "golden triangle" by holding that Articles 14, 19 and 21 are not mutually exclusive but are interrelated and must be read harmoniously. The delay in taking decision for issue of a 'No Objection Certificate' without any plausible cause is definitely unpardonable, if tested on the anvil of Article 14, 19(1)(g) read with Article 21 of the Constitution of India. The right to establish and operate a retail fuel outlet, subject to fulfillment of the statutory and regulatory requirements, constitutes an integral facet of the right to carry on trade and business guaranteed under Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution. Where the establishment of such an enterprise is unjustifiably impeded by arbitrary and unexplained administrative inaction, the resultant deprivation also bears upon the individual's right to livelihood and to live with dignity, which forms an inseparable facet of Article 21 of the Constitution. The relevant paragraph from Maneka Gandhi (supra) is reproduced hereinbelow:

56. Now, the question immediately arises as to what is the requirement of Article 14 what is the content and reach of the great equalising principle enunciated in this article. There can be no doubt that if is a founding faith of the Constitution. It is indeed the pillar on which rests securely the foundation of our democratic republic. And, therefore, it must not be subjected to a narrow, pedantic or lexicographic approach. No attempt should be made to truncate its all-embracing scope and meaning for, to do so would be to violate its activist magnitude. Equality is a dynamic concept with many aspects and dimensions and it cannot be imprisoned within traditional and doctrinaire limits. We must reiterate here what was pointed out by the majority in E. P. Royappa v. State of Tamil Nadu and Anr. MANU/SC/0380/1973 : (1974)ILL J172SC namely, that "from a positivistic point of view, equality is antithetic to arbitrariness. In fact equality and arbitrariness are sworn enemies; one belongs to the rule of law in a republic, while the other, to the whim and caprice of an absolute monarch. Where an act is arbitrary, it is implicit in it that it is unequal both according to political logic and constitutional law and is therefore violative of Article 14".Article 14 strikes at arbitrariness in State action and ensures fairness and equality of treatment. The principle of reasonableness, which legally as well as philosophically, is an essential element of equality or non-arbitrariness pervades Article 14 like a brooding omnipresence and the procedure contemplated by Article 21 must answer the best of reasonableness in order to be in conformity with Article 14. It must be "right and just and fair" and not arbitrary, fanciful or oppressive; otherwise, it would be no procedure at all and the requirement of Article 21 would not be satisfied.

Emphasis added by us

22. The Supreme Court has read Articles 14, 19 and 21 together as an inseparable constitutional framework, popularly known as the doctrine of "golden triangle". Since infringement of right to practice any profession or to carry any occupation, trade or business is guaranteed under Article 19(1)(g) of the Constitution of India, its infringement automatically attracts the tenets of Article 14 of the Constitution of India, since arbitrariness is antithetical to Article 14; and, as such, an arbitrary infringement of the right of occupation, trade or business in its natural course erodes and subverts the basic facet of Article 21 of the Constitution of India which guarantees right to live with dignity. Thus, an unjustified and arbitrary denial or delay in permitting a citizen to carry on a lawful trade or business must withstand the combined constitutional scrutiny of Articles 14, 19(1)(g) and 21 of Constitution of India.

23. Equality is a dynamic concept with many aspects and dimensions, and it cannot be cribbed, cabined and confined with traditional and doctrinaire limits. From a positive point of view equality is antithetical to arbitrariness. In fact, equality and arbitrariness are sworn enemies; one belongs to rule of law in a republic while the other, to the whims and caprices of an absolute monarch, who possess arbitrary discretion.

Conclusion

24. Before proceeding further, this Court must remark that the learned counsel for the petitioner endeavoured to impeach certain conditions carried in the 'No Objection Certificate', which we cannot examine in the absence of any challenge to such conditions at this stage. We notice that a clerk has been punished with a censure entry, when the higher officers were reminded of their duties. We would say that the action now taken to issue the 'No Objection Certificate' in haste could have been taken at leisure long back. We are also of opinion that the District Magistrate's office and successive incumbents in that office were sitting tight over the matter for more than two years, in violation of the Government Order dated 30.01.2023 and the later order dated 18.12.2025. The delay in decision-making, without any plausible cause, itself is an indication of malice in law, also exhibiting arbitrariness writ large.

25. Since the 'No Objection Certificate' has now been issued, nothing survives further for adjudication in this petition on merits.

26. The oil company/second respondent shall proceed further in the matter on the basis of Letter of Intent issued by them way back on 29.03.2024, contained as Annexure No. 1 to the writ petition, expeditiously.

27. We would expect the District Magistrate, Fatehpur/third respondent, whoever is incumbent, to act with promptitude in all matters where rights of citizens are involved and pay heed to proceedings of this case as a guide for the future and keep the Office of the District Magistrate responsive and in order.

28. Subject to the above remarks, this petition stands disposed of.

29. No order as to costs.

Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973 – ss. 27(1), 27(iv), 28(1), 28(ii) – Unauthorized construction – Demolition – Appeal – Petitioner submitted a building plan before the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority for construction of an Ashram, which was disapproved on the ground that the area lies within a flood-affected area and no permanent structure could be constructed thereon – Petitioner nevertheless raised construction – Authority passed demolition order under ss. 27(1), 28(1) and 28(ii) – Appeal preferred by petitioner under s. 27(iv) dismissed on the ground that petitioner failed to establish that the construction had been raised in accordance with the approved sanction plan – Petitioner challenged the aforesaid orders before the High Court alleging that the action of the authorities amounted to "pick and choose", as demolition orders had been passed against 23 persons but demolition proceedings had been selectively executed against the petitioner and certain other persons – State Government issued Circulars dated 15.01.2025, 17.01.2025 and 25.04.2026 pursuant to the Supreme Court's order dated 13.11.2024 passed in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 295 of 2022, Re: Directions in the matter of demolition of structures and others – Writ petition disposed of with liberty to petitioner to approach respondent no. 4 afresh by raising his grievances – Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority directed to take a decision in accordance with the aforesaid Circulars – Impugned order dated 04.09.2025 kept in abeyance meanwhile.

Held :

A. It is constitutional obligation of the State to protect the life and safety of every citizen and pilgrim within its territory – Right to life guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India imposes upon the State a positive obligation to create and maintain conditions in which human life is not lost to preventable disasters arising from the State's own administrative and intellectual unpreparedness – Institutionalization of crowd behaviour science in academia, administration and policy is a constitutional imperative – Court recommended that the State Government introduce dedicated courses on the science of crowd behaviour encompassing the psychological, sociological and physical dimensions of human crowd dynamics, including theories of collective behaviour, crowd psychology, panic propagation, emotional contagion and the behavioural distinction between religious, political, agitational, recreational and emergency crowds, including crowd flow dynamics and density modelling, crowd risk assessment and safety planning, crowd management policy and law and case studies in crowd disasters – Court recommended that the State Government examine the feasibility of constituting a statutory commission for Uttar Pradesh to advise the Government and development authorities on the aesthetic and environmental quality of urban design and development and, in particular, on proposals for construction that may materially affect the character of an area of historical, architectural or environmental significance – Court further recommended establishment of a dedicated Centre of Excellence for Crowd Science, Mass Gathering Safety and Urban Risk Management to conduct original interdisciplinary research into crowd behaviour, develop and maintain a comprehensive database of crowd-related incidents, near-misses and safety interventions, provide technical advisory services to district administrations, development authorities and event management bodies, design and deliver training programmes for civil servants, police officers, urban planners and event administrators and collaborate with international centres of excellence in crowd science – Court further recommended that the State Government make it mandatory to engage qualified and certified crowd behaviour experts and crowd safety consultants at the planning stage of every major public gathering – Court additionally recommended that the State Government may direct all development authorities to integrate crowd behaviour science and crowd safety norms into their master planning processes, development control regulations and building bye-laws.

B. Writ petition disposed of with liberty to petitioner to approach respondent no. 4 afresh by raising his grievances – MVDA directed to take a decision in the light of the Circulars dated 15.01.2025, 17.01.2025 and 25.04.2026 issued by the State Government in compliance with the Supreme Court's order dated 13.11.2024 passed in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 295 of 2022, Re: Directions in the matter of demolition of structures and others – Impugned order dated 04.09.2025 passed by the Commissioner, Agra Division, Agra, kept in abeyance meanwhile.[Paras 55–61] (E-5)

I- PROLOGUE:

THE PRIMACY OF UNDERSTANDING OVER REACTION

"The governance of large human gatherings- particularly those of a religious, cultural, or congregational nature- has, for far too long, been approached by administrative authorities as a logistical and law-and-order challenge rather than as a complex socio-psychological and behavioural phenomenon demanding systematic academic inquiry, institutional research, and evidence-based policy response. The recurring tragedies witnessed at pilgrimage sites, religious congregations, and mass gatherings across the country- including, most recently, the crowd crush incidents at Maha Kumbh Mela- 2025, at Prayagraj, and crowd crush at Mathura, in 2022- are not merely the product of administrative failure or infrastructural inadequacy but at their root, they reflect a profound and institutionalized ignorance of the science of crowd behaviour: how crowds form, how they move, how they think collectively, how panicky propagates through dense human assemblies, and at what precise point a gathering transitions from a manageable congregation to a lethal crush. Until this foundational deficit is acknowledged and remedied, no amount of deployment of police personnel, erection of barricades, traffic diversion or issuance of standard operating procedures will suffice to prevent the recurrence of such tragedies.

It is in this context that this Court considers it necessary to examine, at some depth, the academic foundations of crowd behaviour science and to assess the extent to which the district administration of Mathura, the U.P. Braj Teertha Vikas Parishad, and the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority have engaged- or conspicuously failed to engage- with this body of knowledge in discharging their respective statutory and constitutional obligations toward public safety."

II- BACKGROUND AND BRIEF HISTORY OF THE CASE:

1. The present petition has been preferred assailing the impugned order dated 04.09.2025, passed by the respondent no.2- Commissioner, Agra Division, Agra, in Case No.RST/01751/2017, whereby the petitioner's appeal has been rejected by the Commissioner.

2. In brief, the facts of the case are that the petitioner claims to be the sole owner and possessor of the property ad-measuring 167.22 square meters, falling in Khasra Nos.64/189, 65 and 66, situated in Village Vrindavan Khaddar, Tehsil and District Mathura. It is further averred that in order to raise construction on the property in question, the petitioner submitted a building plan for sanction with the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority for construction of an Ashram, and the same was disapproved on the ground that the area lies within the flood-affected area, and therefore, no permanent structure could be build up on the plot in question.

3. The petitioner raised the construction. Dissatisfied by the construction, the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority/respondent no. 4 passed a demolition order under Sections 27(1), 28(1) and 28(ii) of the U.P. Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973. Aggrieved by the same, the petitioner preferred an appeal under Section 27(iv) of the Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973. The same came to be dismissed by the Appellate Authority/

Commissioner, Agra Division, Agra, on the ground that despite being given sufficient opportunity of hearing, the petitioner could not establish that the construction had been raised as per the approved sanction plan of the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the impugned action of the authority is arbitrary and discriminatory, amounting to a case of "pick and choose". It is contended that, as is evident from Annexure-10 to the writ petition, demolition orders have been passed against 23 persons for alleged unauthorized constructions; however, such demolition proceedings have been selectively executed only against the petitioner and certain others, namely those placed at serial nos. 4, 9, 10 and 11 in the said list. It is thus argued that similarly situated persons have been treated unequally, without any reasonable classification or justification, rendering the impugned action legally unsustainable.

5. After hearing learned counsel for the petitioner and on perusal of the record, this Court vide order dated 23.04.2026 directed respondent no. 4/Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority (MVDA) to file a comprehensive affidavit. It was further directed that the affidavit should be filed by the Vice Chairman, MVDA, in consultation with its Chairman, and should, inter-alia, specifically contain: (i) the status and action taken by MVDA in respect of demolition proceedings concerning all 23 properties against whom demolition orders had been passed; (ii) the number and details of properties booked by MVDA for unauthorized construction during the last five years; and (iii) the policy framework, statutory guidelines, standard operating procedures, and administrative mechanisms adopted by the authority to regulate, prevent, and curb unauthorized constructions within its jurisdiction.

6. It was also observed that in the recent past, the city of Mathura had witnessed incidents of stampede-like crowd crush during pre-Holi events and other auspicious occasions, resulting in injuries, loss of consciousness, and casualties. The heavy influx of devotees during festivals had led to dangerous overcrowding, raising serious concerns regarding public safety at these historically significant sites. Unauthorized constructions had further aggravated the situation by obstructing rescue and emergency operations, as had been observed on several such occasions.

7. In view of the above, this Court deemed it appropriate to expand the scope of the present writ petition. Accordingly, the District Magistrate, Mathura, was directed to file an affidavit indicating whether a comprehensive plan for crowd and crisis management existed for Mathura. The affidavit was also required to disclose whether any expert body exist in the district for: (i) understanding crowd behaviour; (ii) coordination among stakeholders with clearly defined roles and responsibilities; and (iii) methodologies adopted for effective crowd management. The District Magistrate was further directed to provide details of the strategies and management principles in place for handling crowd-related disasters, for sensitizing stakeholders, and for enhancing institutional capacity through training and awareness.

8. All officers concerned, as referred to herein, were directed to clearly and specifically state in their respective affidavits whether any scientific studies, academic research, or institutional analyses had been conducted by or on behalf of the district administration. Such disclosures were required to include details of any involvement of academic institutions, research bodies, or expert agencies, particularly in light of the recent stampede-like crowd crush incidents reported in Mathura. The affidavits were further required to indicate the scope, methodology, findings, and recommendations of any such studies, as well as the extent to which these insights had been considered or implemented by the District authorities in order to prevent recurrence of similar incidents.

9. The Municipal Commissioner, Mathura, and the SSP, Mathura, were also directed to file affidavits outlining the measures undertaken by Nagar Nigam, Mathura, and the Police to ensure that the city remained safe and livable.

10. In compliance thereof, the Vice Chairman, Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority, District Magistrate, Mathura, and SSP Mathura have filed compliance affidavit. The District Magistrate, Municipal Commissioner, Commissioner, Mathura Division, Mathura, SSP Mathura and Chief Executive Officer, Uttar Pradesh Braj Teerth Vikas Parishad have appeared through video conferencing, and the officers have been heard.

III- FACTS AND FINDINGS EMERGING FROM THE AFFIDAVIT OF THE VICE CHAIRMAN MATHURA VRINDAVAN DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY, MATHURA:

11. From the affidavit filed by the Vice Chairman, Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority, it is discernible that pursuant to Supreme Court′s order dated 13.11.2024, passed in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 295 of 2022 in "Re: Directions in the matter of demolition of structures and others," the State Government issued certain directions vide circulars dated 15.01.2025, 17.01.2025 and 25.04.2026 mandatorily required to be adhered with before executing any demolition order. The directions to the District Magistrate, Municipal/Local Authorities are comprehensive and self explanatory.

12. It is further gathered from the affidavit that in view of the aforesaid Circulars, the Development Authority need to issue fresh notices before executing the demolition orders. The Vice Chairman has in detail examined and explained, each property mentioned in the impugned demolition notification. In most of the cases the application for compounding the unauthorized construction has been pending consideration in the office of MVDA Mathura.

13. It is further gathered that out of referred 23 offending constructions, 01 has been compounded, 03 have been found to be beyond territorial jurisdiction of MVDA Mathura, for 03 offending constructions, the notices have been issued, and for 16 properties, demolition orders are yet to be examined in the wake of newly issued circulars. It is also indicated that in some cases appeals are pending, therefore, no requisite action has been undertaken and the decision on 16 applications for seeking compounding of the offending constructions shall be taken in consonance and in-conformity with building by-laws.

14. It further emerges from the affidavit that over the last five years (2021-22 to 2025-26), the Authority has undertaken enforcement action against unauthorized constructions, issuing 2,453 notices under Section 27(1) of the Uttar Pradesh Urban Planning and Development Act, 1973. Pursuant to these notices, 700 demolition orders were passed, of which 323 were actually executed.

Additionally, 104 properties were sealed, and 212 cases were regularized through compounding. While the data reflects a sustained enforcement drive, it represents merely the tip of the iceberg- the magnitude of the problem is far more serious and grave than what these figures suggest.

15. The details of action taken by the authority against unauthorized constructions over the last five years are set out in the table below.

Sl. No. Year Number of Notices Issued under Section 27(1) Number of Demolition Orders Passed Number of Properties Sealed Accepted Compounding
1 2021 22 624 52 35 2

IV- FACTS EMERGING FROM THE AFFIDAVIT OF DISTRICT MAGISTRATE, MATHURA:

16. The Court directed the District Magistrate, Mathura, to file a personal affidavit addressing three specific questions: (i) whether a comprehensive crowd and crisis management plan exists; (ii) whether any expert/specialized body exists to study the crowd behaviour; and (iii) what methodologies are adopted for effective crowd management.

17. In response to the specific questions, the affidavit discloses that after stampede at Shri Banke Bihari Ji Temple, Vrindavan, on 20.08.2022 during Aarti, in which two persons died, the State Government came into action and subsequently litigation also ensued. The affidavit acknowledges that while Mathura City has remained largely incident-free, Kasba Vrindavan, with its dense concentration of major temples, faces acute crowd pressure during festivals.

18. After the stampede on 22.08.2022, the Government constituted a High-Level Committee (chaired by Shri Sulkhan Singh, former DGP, U.P.) This committee submitted a report on 07.09.2022 recommending three categories of measures: (i) Immediate, (ii) Short-term, and (iii) Long-term. Subsequently, the Hon'ble Supreme Court, by order dated 08.08.2025 in WP (Civil) No. 704/2025, constituted the "Thakur Shri Banke Bihari Ji Temple High Powered Management Committee" under the chairmanship of a Retired Judge of the Allahabad High Court, with the DM, SSP, District Judge, Municipal Commissioner, and MVDA Vice Chairman as members.

19. The affidavit asserts that a comprehensive crowd management plan exists, and implemented through: Multi-departmental coordination meetings chaired by the DM, one-way routing, barricading, and en-marking holding areas around temples, vehicle diversion and restriction of four-wheeler near temples, separate entry and exit gates at Banke Bihari Temple, extension of Darshan hours (12 hrs normal / 18 hrs on special occasions), online Darshan registration, live telecasting of Thakurji's Darshan, installation of steel pipe queue barriers, CCTV deployment, and conduct of structural survey of temple lanes by IIT Roorkee.

20. The affidavit further discloses engagement of expert agencies for designing, and architectural purpose which prepared a preliminary Brij Vikas Yojana Report (May 2019), and preparation of a Traffic Survey and Analysis Report for Green Mobility Zone Study for Mathura-Vrindavan (April 2026).

21. Further reliance has been placed upon multiple departments report regarding ongoing and proposed works: Road widening (PWD), new bypass construction (NHAI-32 KM NH-530B, completed on 30.08.2025), Vrindavan Bypass proposed, development of Parikrama Marg by Brij Teerth Vikas Parishad, bus station up-gradation under PPP by UPSRTC, railing installation in lanes, installation of RO plants, construction of mobile toilets, solid waste management by Nagar Nigam, decentralization of religious sites, parking and rope-way development by MVDA.

22. Following the 2022 stampede, Anant Sharma vs. State of U.P. (PIL 1509/2022) was filed before the High Court seeking a mandamus directing preparation of a proper maintenance plan for Banke Bihari Temple, protecting rights of Vaishnav devotees under Article 25 of the Constitution, and acquisition of approximately 5 acres of land around the temple for public facilities and parking.

23. The affidavit identifies a clear division of responsibilities across agencies: DM is responsible for overall administration, magistrate deployment, emergency medical, disaster planning, SSP shall maintain crowd control, CCTV, barricading, police deployment, Municipal Commissioner shall look after sanitation, water, lighting, MVDA is responsible for parking, encroachment removal, infrastructure, PWD job is road widening, ARTO (transport enforcement), UPSRTC (pilgrim facilities), and Brij Teerth Vikas Parishad (Parikrama Marg, public amenities).

V- FACTS EMERGING FROM THE AFFIDAVIT OF SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE, MATHURA:

24. A conjoint reading of the affidavit dated 03.05.2026 and 18.05.2026 and accompanying documents indicates that the SSP′s affidavit largely mirrors the District Magistrate′s affidavit in its factual narration regarding the 2022 stampede, constitution of High Level Committee constituted by High Court pursuant to PIL No. 1509 of 2022, and the Supreme Court also directed for constitution of High Powered Management Committee. The affidavit further discloses about action plan for strengthening the traffic management system in the Vrindavan area, adoption of effective route system for operation of E-Rickshaws, Autos in Kasba Vrindavan, Prohibition of E-Rickshaws, Autos in Kasba Vrindavan at such places where there is potentiality of crowd traffic congestion. Certain locations have been identified where iron chain barriers have been installed, dedicated Action Plan for Traffic Management on Saturdays/Sundays and Special Occasions/Festivals in Kasba Vrindavan has been in place.

25. Vrindavan has been divided into 5 traffic zones, each staffed with dedicated Sub-Inspectors (Traffic), 34 traffic intersections/crossings have traffic police personnel deployed, 7 E-Rickshaw routes have been designated with fixed fares and vehicle capacity numbers, 34 iron chain barrier locations have been identified and installed to prohibit unauthorized entry of E-Rickshaws and four-wheeler into inner lanes - though several are noted as already damaged, signaling maintenance lapses. On Saturdays, Sundays, and festival days, heavy vehicles are fully prohibited from entering Kasba Vrindavan from 09 specified points, with diversion routes via NH-19 and Yamuna Expressway, 04 primary parking facilities are designated for normal days, with overflow parking at Mandi Samiti and IIT-IAI College. For NH-19 traffic, 05 designated parking areas exist near Chardham Mandir, 06 vehicle diversion points are specified for crisis management, with fire tenders, ambulances, and emergency vehicles explicitly exempted from all restrictions.

26. Vehicle diversion points for crowd control has been identified and vehicles are diverted in accordance with the plan. A report has also been placed with regard to the enforcement action taken by the office of Assistant Regional Transport Officer (Enforcement Mathura) indicating the number of vehicles seized and individuals challaned for various traffic violations.

27. To avoid future crowd crushing stampede, the intensive enforcement action will be taken by the enforcement team against vehicles parked unauthorizedly on the road side, so that obstruction to the movement of vehicles can be prevented and transportation to the devotees will be smooth and easy.

28. Besides the issues related to the traffic diversion and crowd control, the affidavit also highlighted the roles and responsibility of the Public Works Department in widening the roads, office of Assistant Regional Transport Officer for enforcement actions, role of Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority dealing with unauthorized constructions and other issues, role of Uttar Pradesh State Road Transport Corporation to provide adequate facilities at bus stations for devotees visiting Mathura, role of Uttar Pradesh Braj Teerth Vikas Parishad for construction of Parikrama Marg and public amenities. The Nagar Nigam Mathura Vrindavan′s role for installing railings in lane for the convenient darshan of devotees, a smooth supply of clean drinking water, solid waste management, mobile toilets, cleaning arrangements and street lighting facilities.

29. Likewise, reliance has been placed upon a report dated 15.05.2026 prepared by National Highway Authority of India for constructing Mathura-Bareilly highway by-pass providing effective relief to devotees visiting Mathura from traffic congestion. Construction of Vrindavan by-pass etc.

30. After hearing Shri M.C. Chaturvedi, learned Additional Advocate General, assisted by Shri Prabhakar Tripathi, learned Standing Counsel, Shri D.S. Chauhan, learned counsel for Respondent No. 4, and Shri D.K. Gupta, learned counsel for the petitioner, it emerges that the authorities have, on paper, undertaken considerable preparatory work. The police, after identifying traffic-congested locations, have put in place traffic diversion plans. For the purposes of urban development, a ten-year Development Master Plan has also been prepared by the U.P. Braj Teertha Vikas Parishad in addition to the developmental work undertaken by the Development Authority and the National Highways Authority of India.

31. However, it must be clearly stated that the intention of this Court was never to examine or assess the efficacy of the traffic diversion plans or the ten-year Development Master Plan prepared by the U.P. Braj Teertha Vikas Parishad in conjunction with the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority.

32. Upon a close and careful perusal of the order dated 23rd April, 2023, the true purport and spirit of the directions issued thereunder are self-evident. The Court's primary concern and emphasis was- and remains- whether the administration of the city of Mathura has any comprehensive crowd and crisis management plan, grounded in a scientific understanding of crowd behaviour, and capable of anticipating, preventing, and responding to crowd-related emergencies of the nature that have tragically manifested in recent times.

33. This Court is constrained to observe that the State is not bereft of talent, expertise, or resources. What appears to be conspicuously absent is vision- and the selfless commitment to public service that responsible governance demands. The universities and research laboratories of this country are endowed with considerable intellectual wealth and technical capacity that remains, by and large, untapped by the administrative machinery- not because it is inaccessible, but because no coherent policy framework exists to facilitate or mandate such engagement. What is equally disconcerting is that the cities- and religious cities in particular- have been abandoned, whether by act or omission, to the mercies of self-serving priest, land mafias and real estate interests, driven by nothing more than the lure of short-term and often illicit gain. In doing so, it seems, those entrusted with the stewardship of public resources and public spaces have mortgaged the safety, the heritage, and the future of the next generation. It is a dereliction that this Court cannot regard with equanimity.

VI- CRITICAL ISSUES EMERGING DURING THE COURSE OF ARGUMENTS:

34. During the course of arguments, several critical issues of systemic and structural significance have emerged before this Court. First, that the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority prepared its master plan for a period of merely ten years- a planning horizon that this Court regards as wholly inadequate for a city of the religious, cultural, and demographic significance of Mathura. Second, that crowd management in the district has been conceptually and administratively reduced to little more than traffic management- a reductive equivalence that reflects a fundamental misunderstanding of the science and complexity of crowd behaviour. Third, that stampedes and crowd crush incidents have been attributed primarily to the existence of narrow lanes and unauthorized constructions, along with other contributory factors- an attribution that, while not entirely without basis, addresses only the symptomatic manifestations of a far deeper and more entrenched planning and governance failure.

A. The Inadequacy of Long-Term Planning: A Comparative Perspective

35. It is a matter of considerable significance that when the city of Chandigarh was conceived and developed in the early 1950s under the visionary direction of the Swiss-French architect Le Corbusier, the urban plan was designed not merely for the immediate needs of its inhabitants but with deliberate foresight for the city's requirements over the next several decades- incorporating sector-based zoning, dedicated green belts, regulated building lines, and carefully calibrated population density norms that continue to define the city's livability to this day.

36. Similarly, when Sir Edwin Lutyens and Sir Herbert Baker were commissioned to design New Delhi in the early twentieth century, the imperial capital was planned with a long-term architectural and urban vision that accounted for the functional, ceremonial, and spatial requirements of a capital city well into the foreseeable future. The city of Jaipur, founded by Maharaja Sawai Jai Singh II in 1727, was laid out on the principles of architectural eminence, with a grid-based street plan, uniform building heights, and a civic order that was designed to endure for centuries- and which, despite centuries of organic growth and encroachment, remains discernible and functional to this day.

37. This Court is deeply shocked and profoundly concerned that the development plan for Mathura- one of the most ancient, sacred, and visited pilgrimage cities in the world, receiving millions of devotees annually and carrying an unbroken civilizational and religious heritage of over thousand years- has been prepared for a period of merely ten years. This is particularly incomprehensible at a time when the Government of India has articulated its national development agenda through the Viksit Bharat vision extending to the year 2047, and when urban planning frameworks globally are increasingly adopting centennial and multi-generational perspectives. A city that is eternal in its religious significance cannot be governed by a planning document that expires in a decade. The temporal inadequacy of the master plan is not a technical oversight- it is a governance failure of the first order. Mathura, Ayodhya, Varanasi, and Chitrakoot cannot be placed at equal footing with the other cities in Uttar Pradesh.

B. The Nature of Religious Crowds: A Distinction the Administration Must Recognize

38. This Court considers it necessary to record an important conceptual distinction that appears to have been lost upon the administrative authorities concerned. The crowds that converge upon Mathura are, by their very nature and motivation, religious crowds- gatherings of men, women, and children drawn together by faith, devotion, and the desire for spiritual communion. A religious crowd is, in its essential character, a self-regulating assembly. It is animated not by political passion, competitive aggression, or recreational excitement, but by collective piety and shared reverence. The behavioural dynamics of a religious crowd are therefore qualitatively and fundamentally distinct from those of a crowd assembled for a political rally, a sporting event, or a public protest. To equate the two- as administrative practice in this country has long tended to do- is not merely academically imprecise; it is administratively dangerous, because it leads to the application of crowd control strategies designed for adversarial or unruly gatherings to assemblies that are inherently peaceful and cooperative in their orientation, thereby generating unnecessary friction, confusion, and, in extreme cases, panic.

39. The self-regulating character of a religious crowd, however, must not be mistaken for self-sufficiency. A devotional crowd, precisely because of its heightened emotional and spiritual state, its reduced attention to physical surroundings, and its tendency toward collective synchronization of movement during rituals and processions, is peculiarly vulnerable to the effects of spatial constriction, sudden density surges, and the absence of clearly defined and adequately dimensioned pathways for ingress, egress, and circumambulatory movement. It is the duty of the State, and of every authority entrusted with the governance of pilgrimage sites, to recognize and respond to this vulnerability through informed, sensitive, and scientifically grounded crowd management- not through the blunt instruments of police deployment and barricade construction that have hitherto constituted the sum total of the administration's crowd management strategy.

C. Unauthorized Construction: A Hydra-Headed Menace

40. The problem of unauthorized construction is not unique to Mathura. It is a pervasive and deeply entrenched challenge confronting development authorities across virtually every city and town in India. However, its manifestation in a religious city of Mathura's significance assumes an altogether graver dimension, given the direct and demonstrable causal relationship between unauthorized construction- particularly along pilgrimage routes, riverfront ghats, and congregational spaces- and the occurrence of crowd crush incidents, emergency access failures, and fire safety hazards during mass gatherings.

41. The causes of unauthorized construction are multiple, interconnected, and deeply structural. They include: the corruption of regulatory and enforcement machinery at various levels of the administrative hierarchy; fundamental failures of spatial planning, including the absence of adequate provisions for affordable housing, commercial space, and pilgrim accommodation within the formal planning framework; institutional failure manifested in the form of under-resourced, under-staffed, and often complicit enforcement agencies; and, most perniciously, the systematic and sustained interference of real estate developers, construction conglomerates, and what may candidly be described as construction mafias in the planning and development processes of cities- particularly in the pilgrimage cities of northern India, where the unrelenting demand for accommodation, commercial premises, and ritual space creates conditions of chronic supply scarcity that are ruthlessly exploited by those with the political connections and economic muscle to build without sanction and occupy without consequence.

42. This Court observes, with considerable concern, that the development trajectories of most Indian cities have been indirectly but powerfully shaped by the interests of construction lobbies operating in intimate proximity to political authority. In the religious cities of northern India- Mathura, Varanasi, Ayodhya, Prayagraj, Vrindavan- this influence has assumed an especially virulent form, driven by the extraordinary commercial value of land in proximity to sacred sites and the consequent incentive structures that corrode regulatory integrity and subvert planning discipline. Unauthorized construction in these cities is not simply a product of poverty or ignorance; it is, in significant measure, a product of organized, politically facilitated, economically motivated illegality that has been allowed to accumulate over decades through a combination of institutional complaisance, regulatory capture, and political patronage.

43. To confront this menace effectively requires not merely stronger laws- India does not lack for laws- but something far rarer and more demanding: strong, selfless, and incorruptible institutional will. It requires development authorities, district administrations, and State governments willing to act against powerful vested interests without fear or favour; judiciary-supported enforcement mechanisms capable of withstanding political pressure; and a civic culture that recognizes unauthorized construction not as a private entrepreneurial initiative but as a public safety hazard and a collective crime against the urban fabric and the communities that inhabit it. This Court expects nothing less from the authorities before it.

VII- CROWD BEHAVIOUR, PLANNING HORIZONS, AND THE MENACE OF UNAUTHORIZED CONSTRUCTION:

A. The Science of Crowd Behaviour: An Academic Overview

44. The academic study of crowd behaviour is a well-established interdisciplinary field drawing upon social psychology, physics, urban planning, computational modeling, and disaster management science. Contrary to popular administrative assumption, a crowd is not merely an aggregation of individuals behaving independently. It is, in the language of contemporary crowd science, a complex adaptive system exhibiting emergent properties- collective behaviours that cannot be predicted solely by reference to the conduct of individual members, but which arise from the dynamic interactions among them.

45. The foundational work of scholars such as Gustave Le Bon1, who in the late nineteenth century identified the psychological transformation that individuals undergo when subsumed within a crowd, laid the early theoretical groundwork for this discipline. Le Bon's observations regarding the submergence of individual rational agency, the amplification of emotional contagion, and the susceptibility of crowd members to suggestion and panic remain analytically relevant even today, though they have been substantially refined and, in several respects, challenged by subsequent research. Contemporary crowd scientists, including Professor John Fruin2, whose landmark work on pedestrian planning and level-of-service analysis introduced the concept of critical crowd density thresholds, and Professor G. Keith Still, who developed the concept of crowd dynamics modeling and risk assessment tools now widely used in event safety planning globally, have transformed the study of crowd behaviour from a largely theoretical exercise into a rigorous applied science with direct and measurable implications for public safety.

46. Of particular relevance to pilgrimage and religious gatherings is the concept of crowd density and flow velocity- the relationship between the number of persons per square meter and the speed at which crowd movement becomes self-sustaining, uncontrollable, and ultimately lethal. Research has established that at densities exceeding approximately four to five persons per square meter, individual volition is effectively lost; persons within the crowd can no longer choose their direction of movement and are instead carried involuntarily by the collective force of the surrounding mass. At densities exceeding six to seven persons per square meter- a threshold frequently encountered at major pilgrimage sites in India- compressive asphyxia becomes a serious and imminent risk, and the conditions for a crowd crush are fully present. The transition from manageable congregation to lethal crush can occur within minutes, and frequently does so without any external trigger such as fire, explosion, or structural collapse. The crush generates its own momentum, driven entirely by the behavioural dynamics of the crowd itself.

47. Further, academic research has established that crowd behaviour at religious gatherings is qualitatively distinct from crowd behaviour at secular events such as sporting fixtures or concerts. Religious crowds are characterized by heightened emotional and devotional states, a pronounced tendency toward collective synchronization of movement- particularly during rituals, processions, and circumambulatory practices- reduced responsiveness to conventional crowd control signals such as police instructions or public address announcements, and a significantly elevated tolerance for discomfort, physical compression, and adverse conditions, which paradoxically increases the risk of crush injuries and fatalities by suppressing the early warning signals that would otherwise prompt self-regulation and dispersal. These characteristics make the scientific study of religious crowd behaviour not merely academically interesting but administratively indispensable.

48. The question that arises- and which this Court regards as of the utmost importance- is whether the district administration of Mathura, or any of the authorities statutorily responsible for the management of the Braj pilgrimage circuit, have at any point commissioned, conducted, or even consulted such scientific studies and computational models in relation to the major religious gatherings held in and around Mathura. The affidavits filed before this Court suggest, with troubling clarity, that they have not.

B. The Administrative Imperative: From Behavioural Study to Institutional Policy

49. The gap between the state of academic knowledge regarding crowd behaviour and the state of administrative practice in Uttar Pradesh- is not merely a gap of awareness. It is a gap of institutional will, organizational culture, and governance philosophy. The study of crowd behaviour must be recognized not as an academic exercise but as an administrative necessity- a prerequisite to the formulation of any rational, effective, and constitutionally compliant crowd management policy.

50. What is required, at the minimum, is the establishment of a permanent, multi-disciplinary expert body at the district and divisional level, comprising specialists in crowd psychology, urban planning, disaster management, civil engineering, and public health, charged with the continuous study of crowd behavioural patterns at major religious sites and events. This body must be empowered to conduct pre-event risk assessments, commission site-specific crowd flow studies, engage with academic institutions and research organizations of national and international repute, and translate their findings into actionable administrative directives binding upon the civil and police administration.

51. The role of the U.P. Braj Teertha Vikas Parishad is particularly significant in this context. As the statutory body entrusted with the development and regulation of the Braj pilgrimage region, the Parishad is uniquely positioned- and uniquely obligated- to serve as the institutional anchor for crowd behaviour research and evidence-based crowd management planning across the entire Braj circuit. Its mandate cannot be construed as limited to infrastructure development and tourism promotion; it must be understood to encompass the safety and well-being of every pilgrim who visits the sacred sites under its stewardship. A Parishad that constructs ghats, temples, and pilgrim facilities without simultaneously commissioning rigorous crowd flow studies and behavioural safety assessments is a Parishad that is building the architecture of potential tragedy.

52. Similarly, the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority, in its capacity as the spatial planning authority for the district, is obligated to integrate the findings of crowd behaviour science into its master planning, zoning, and development control processes. The width of streets, the design of access and egress points, the location and capacity of congregation spaces, the provision of emergency evacuation routes - all of these are not merely engineering decisions but crowd safety decisions, and they must be informed by a thorough understanding of how crowds behave in the specific spatial and cultural context of Mathura's religious landscape.

C. A Paradigm Shift from Reaction to Research

53. This Court is of the firm view that the prevention of crowd crush disasters at pilgrimage sites across the State- cannot be achieved through the deployment of additional police personnel, the installation of more barricades, or the issuance of more standard operating procedures drafted in ignorance of the science of crowd behaviour. What is required is a fundamental paradigm shift: from reactive crowd control to proactive crowd behaviour research; from instinct-driven administration to evidence-based governance; from siloed departmental action to integrated, research-informed, multi-agency coordination anchored in a deep and institutionalized understanding of how human crowds behave, why they behave as they do, and what specific interventions- spatial, psychological, communicative, and institutional- are most effective in preventing the transition from peaceful congregation to catastrophic crush.

VIII- RECOMMENDATIONS:

54. This Court considers it appropriate to record its recommendations to the Government of Uttar Pradesh, and through it to the relevant academic, administrative, and policy-making bodies, with respect to the urgent need for institutionalizing the study of crowd behaviour and crowd management as a recognized and structured academic discipline within the universities, technical institutions, and professional training establishments of the State.

Reason and Logic: It is a matter of both academic and administrative concern that despite India being one of the most densely populated nations on earth and Uttar Pradesh is the most densely populated state among all States, and despite hosting the largest religious congregations, political rallies, and mass gatherings known to human Civilization- including the Kumbh Mela, which is recognized as the single largest peaceful human assembly on the planet- no structured academic curriculum devoted to the scientific study of crowd behaviour exists in any university or institution of higher learning within the State of Uttar Pradesh, or indeed across most of India. This lacuna is not merely an academic oversight; it is a governance failure with direct, measurable, and potentially fatal consequences for public safety. We need not to be confused with crowd management, though the process of traffic diversion and study of crowd behaviour are two different and distinct concepts.

IX- SPECIFIC RECOMMENDATIONS:

A. Introduction of Crowd Behaviour and Crowd Management as an Academic Discipline

55. This Court recommends that the State Government, through the Department of Higher Education and in consultation with the other stake holders, direct all State universities- and particularly those offering programmes in urban planning, public administration, disaster management, civil engineering, architecture, sociology, applied psychology, and data analysis, to introduce dedicated courses, modules, and research programmes on the science of crowd behaviour encompassing the psychological, sociological, and physical dimensions of human crowd dynamics, including theories of collective behaviour, crowd psychology, panic propagation, emotional contagion, and the behavioural distinction between religious, political, agitational, recreational, and emergency crowds, and including;

(i) Crowd flow dynamics and density modelling- including pedestrian movement science, level-of-service analysis, critical density thresholds, agent-based modelling, and computational simulation of crowd behaviour in defined spatial environments;

(ii) Crowd risk assessment and safety planning- including pre-event risk profiling, site capacity assessment, vulnerability mapping, ingress and egress management, emergency evacuation planning, and post-event analysis of crowd-related incidents;

(iii) Crowd management policy and law- including the legal framework governing public gatherings, the statutory responsibilities of development authorities, police, district administrations, and event organizers, and the comparative study of crowd management regulatory frameworks in other jurisdictions;

(iv) Case studies in crowd disasters- including the systematic academic analysis of major crowd crush incidents in India and internationally, with particular reference to the lessons learned, the administrative failures identified, and the corrective measures adopted thereafter.

B. Having regard to the considerations set out hereinabove, it is recommended that the State Government shall examine the feasibility of constituting a statutory commission for Uttar Pradesh, on the lines of the Delhi Urban Art Commission constituted under the Delhi Urban Art Commission Act, 1973, to advise the Government and the development authorities on the aesthetic and environmental quality of urban design and development in the cities of the State, and in particular on proposals for construction that may materially affect the character of an area of historical, architectural or environmental significance.

56. This Court further recommends that the State Government consider establishing, in collaboration with a leading State or Central university- or, alternatively, with the Indian Institute of Technology, Kanpur, the Indian Institute of Technology, Roorkee, or any other institution of national repute situated within the State- a dedicated Center of Excellence for Crowd Science, Mass Gathering Safety, and Urban Risk Management. Such a Center should be mandated to:

(i) conduct original interdisciplinary research into crowd behaviour at religious, political, cultural, and emergency gatherings;

(ii) develop and maintain a comprehensive database of crowd-related incidents, near-misses, and safety interventions across the State;

(iii) provide technical advisory services to district administrations, development authorities, and event management bodies on a continuous and institutionalized basis;

(iv) design and deliver training programmes for civil servants, police officers, urban planners, and event administrators in the science and practice of crowd management;

(v) collaborate with international centers of excellence in crowd science- including the Crowd Science Unit at the University of Suffolk, United Kingdom, the research programmes of Professor G.

Keith Still, Makkah- so as to ensure that the State's crowd management practices are aligned with the most advanced global knowledge and methodology.

57. This Court further recommends that the State Government, through appropriate legislative or executive action, make it mandatory for all departments, statutory authorities, local bodies, and event organizers- whether governmental or private- to engage qualified and certified crowd behaviour experts and crowd safety consultants at the planning stage of every major public gathering, irrespective of whether such gathering is of a religious, political, agitational, cultural, or recreational character. Such mandatory engagement should apply to, and encompass:

58. This Court additionally recommends that the State Government may direct all development authorities- including the Mathura Vrindavan Development Authority and the U.P. Braj Teertha Vikas Parishad- to integrate crowd behaviour science and crowd safety norms into their master planning processes, development control regulations, and building bye-laws.

59. It must be borne in mind that we hold the urban landscape in trust for those who come after us. If, in a State that is not wanting in land, its cities are permitted to be surrendered to a builder-bureaucrat nexus for the erection of high-rise structures in disregard of planning norms, the generations to come will have neither the means to undo it nor the reason to forgive it. The history of urban development reminds us that a city's landscape, once disfigured, cannot be restored by the generations that follow. Posterity will judge us not by what we built, but by what we permitted to be destroyed.

X- CONCLUSION:

60. This Court is of the considered opinion that the recommendations set out herein above are not aspirational moralities but minimum governance necessities, demanded by the constitutional obligation of the State to protect the life and safety of every citizen and pilgrim within its territory. The right to life guaranteed under Article 21 of the Constitution of India is not fulfilled merely by the absence of active State violence; it imposes upon the State a positive obligation to create and maintain conditions in which human life is not lost to preventable disasters arising from the State's own administrative and intellectual unpreparedness. The institutionalization of crowd behaviour science- in academia, in administration, and in policy- is a constitutional imperative that this Court urges the State Government to act upon with the seriousness, urgency, and commitment that it deserves.

61. Reverting back to the merits of the case, the present petition is disposed of with the liberty to the petitioner to approach the respondent no.4 afresh by raising his grievances, and the MVDA shall take a decision in the light of the Circulars dated dated 15.01.2025, 17.01.2025 and 25.04.2026 issued by State Government in compliance of the Supreme Court’s order dated 13.11.2024, passed in Writ Petition (Civil) No. 295 of 2022 in Re: Directions in the matter of demolition of structures and others. Meanwhile, the impugned order dated 04.09.2025, passed by the Commissioner, Agra Division, Agra shall be kept in abeyance.

62. The Registrar (Compliance) is directed to forthwith transmit a copy of this order to the Chief Secretary along with Secretary, Higher Education; Chairman, University Grants Commission; Secretary, Higher Education, Government of India, for their future reference and record.

THE HON'BLE IRSHAD ALI, J.

Writ C No. 3000016 of 1998

State of U.P. ...Petitioner
Versus
The Addl. Commissioner J Lucknow & Ors. ...Respondents

Issue for Consideration

Whether, in view of Section 38-B of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960, any decision rendered prior to 10.10.1975 shall not bar fresh determination of surplus land under the Act; whether the Appellate Court committed an error of law in holding that the order dated 18.04.1975 in the earlier proceedings operates as res judicata as per the provisions of Section 38-B of the Act; and whether the earlier order dated 18.04.1975, having been passed before the commencement of Section 38-B, i.e. 10.10.1975, could operate as res judicata so as to bar fresh determination of surplus land.

Headnotes

U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960 – Earlier order dated 18.04.1975 – U.P. Amending Act No. 20 of 1976 – Fresh ceiling proceedings – Re-determination of surplus land – Notice issued u/s 10(2) post-1976 amendment – Objections raised by tenure holder claiming earlier order dated 18.04.1975 operated as res judicata – Rejected by Prescribed Authority, but allowed by Appellate Court – Justification:

Held: The amendments introduced by U.P. Amending Act No. 20 of 1976 brought significant changes, particularly in determination of ostensible ownership, treatment of transfers after 24.01.1971 and in the concept of co-tenure holders – The 1976 amendment has retrospective effect from 10.10.1975 and mandates re-determination of surplus land – Fresh proceedings are permissible and required post amendment and earlier findings do not attain finality so as to bar re-determination – Section 38-B of the Act clearly provides that any decision rendered prior to 10.10.1975 shall not bar fresh adjudication under the Act as amended.

Prescribed Authority recorded detailed findings on nature of land (irrigated/unirrigated/grove), validity of transfers, possession and ownership, and status of family members – Those findings were based on evidence and proper appreciation of material on record – Appellate Authority, however, set aside the order without adequately discussing or dislodging those findings – Appellate Authority recorded a bald conclusion that no change in holding was established, without considering the evidence on record and the statutory provisions – Appellate order non-speaking and reflects non-application of mind – Appellate Court erred in law in ignoring the provisions of Section 29 as well as Section 38-B of the amended provisions of the Act – Appellate Authority also misapplied the doctrine of res judicata, ignored the effect of statutory amendments and failed to consider material evidence and findings of the Prescribed Authority – Impugned judgment and order dated 29.03.1997 quashed. Case Arising From

From the judgment and order dated 29.03.1997 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Lucknow Division, Lucknow in Appeal No. 23/1995-96 under Section 13 of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling on Land Holdings Act, 1960.

Appearances for Parties

Advs. for the Petitioners : Umeshhwar Prasad, C.S.C
Advs. for the Respondent : Siddiqui, Rakesh Kumar Srivastava

(Delivered by Hon'ble Irshad Ali, J.)

1. Heard Shri Rajeev Srivastava, learned Additional Chief Standing Counsel for the petitioner and Shri Rakesh Kumar Srivastava, learned counsel for the respondents.

2. The present writ petition is directed against the impugned judgment and order dated 29.3.1997 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Lucknow Division, Lucknow in Appeal No.23/1995-96 under Section 13 of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling Land Holding Act, 1960 by which the Appellate Court has set aside the order dated 30.3.1996 passed by the Prescribed Authority which relates to the land recorded and possessed by the respondent no.3.

3. Factual Matrix of the case is that on enforcement of U.P. Act of 20 of 1976, a notice under Section 10(2) of the U.P. Imposition of Ceiling On Land Holding Act, 1960 was issued to the original tenure holder Sri Shiv Shankar son of Ambika Bux with regard to his entire holding which included the disputed plots of land having area of 44-9-4 in terms of agricultural land to be declared as surplus land.

In reply to the notice dated 2.2.1995, the respondent no.3 Shiv Shankar filed his objections on 09.11.1995. After considering the objections and on the basis of the pleadings the Prescribed Authority framed as many as 10 issues and after giving full opportunity of hearing as well as considering the sale deeds executed by the original tenure holder and further the Will dated 20.6.1980 executed by Smt. Kamla Devi in favour of Sanjay, the Prescribed Authority rejected the objections filed by respondent no.3 vide order dated 30.3.1996.

Being aggrieved by the order of the Prescribed Authority, respondent no.3 preferred an appeal before the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Lucknow Division, Lucknow who vide order dated 29.3.1997 allowed the appeal mainly on the ground of principles of res judicata. Hence this writ petition.

4. Learned counsel for the petitioner submitted that the Appellate Court has committed a manifest error of law in holding that the order dated 18.04.1975 in earlier proceedings operates as "res judicata" as per the provisions of Section 38-B. He next submitted that the Appellate Authority has ignored the embodied principle therein, which itself provided that no finding or decision given before the commencement the section i.e. 10.10. 1975 in any proceeding or any issue (including any order, decree or judgment) by any court, Tribunal or Authority in respect of any matter governed by the Act, shall bar the trial of such proceeding or issue under this Act, in accordance with the provisions of the Act as amended from time to time, and admittedly the earlier order dated 18.4.1975 was passed before the commencement of section 38B, the same could not operate as res-judicata.

5. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the learned Appellate Court committed a manifest error of law in misinterpretating and holding that no change in the eye of law by amending Act 20 of 1976 was made affecting the tenure holder opposite party no. 3, inasmuch as by the said Act the provisions of section 5(1) explanation II and section 5(6) explanation I(a), were amended whereby the criteria for determining ostensible ownership and declaration of a person an a co-tenure holder respectively were changed, which affected the tenure holder, opposite party no. 3 also, as such it was incumbent upon the Prescribed Authority to initiate fresh proceedings in accordance with the provisions of section 38 B of the act, and the earlier order dated 18.04.1975 did not operate as "res judicata".

6. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the Appellate Court committed a manifest error of law and jurisdiction in holding that there was no change in the holding of the opposite party no. 3 due to amending Act 20 of 1976, ignoring the fact and the law that the criteria for determining the ostensible ownership as well as a declaration of a person as a co-tenure holder was changed and applying the said criteria it was evident that on enforcement of U.P.Z. A. & L.R. Act the Opposite party no. 3 alone came to be recorded as heir and thus on or before 24.1.71 the said opposite party no. 3 held the land in question and remained in its cultivatory possession and the name of Smt. Kamala Devi, his mother was recorded subsequently by the order dated 16.8.1972 and the partition suit was filed on 18.1.1971 and was hit by amendment of section 5(1) Explanation I and II, and the opposite party no. 3 continued to be in its cultivatory possession, as in the consolidation proceedings also his name was recorded on the basis of possession over the said land and there was no evidence if the land in question was Sir-Khudkast of the deceased Ambika Baksh and also that there was no evidence to show possession of Smt. Kamala Devi, and as such the opposite party no. 2 was liable to be held an ostensible owner of the land in question, thereby his holding had increased beyond the ceiling area applicable to him.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the Appellate Court has committed a manifest error of law in holding that the earlier order dated 18.4.75 operate as 'res judicata' as so far it relates to determination of land of opposite party no. 3 as grove, ignoring the provisions of section 29 itself according to which the ceiling area is liable to be re-determined in case any grove land loses its character as grove, and since all the plots except plot nos. 531 and 609 of village Pandarva and plot nos. 31 & 238 of village Chithia Buzurg which were earlier held to be grove land have lost its character as grove land as per the findings of opposite party no. 2 the present proceedings are lawful and the earlier order dated 18.4.1975 does not operate as 'res judicata'.

8. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the Appellate Court committed a gross error of law in relying upon the noting of the Revenue officers on the file to the effect that there was no change in the holding as such there was no need to initiate any proceedings without applying its own mind.

9. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the impugned order dated 29.3.97 passed by the opposite party no.1 suffers from non-application of mind and is a non-speaking order, inasmuch as bald finding has been recorded that there is no fact available on record on the basis of which it could be held that there was any change in the land held by the tenure holder, opposite party no. 3.

10. Learned counsel for the petitioner next submitted that the transfer of land through various sale deeds mentioned in the order dated 30.3.96, passed by the Prescribed Authority, were hit by the amended provisions of section 5 sub section (1) Explanation I and sub section (6) explanation 1(a) and as such the same were liable to be re-determined and the Appellate Court committed a manifest error of law in ignoring the same while passing the impugned order dated 29.3.97 in which no mention thereof has been made. Therefore, the order dated 29.03.1997 is illegal and void ad as such is liable to be quashed.

11. In support of his submissions, learned counsel for the petitioner has placed reliance upon the judgment in the case of Himanshu Dhar Singh vs State of UP (WRIT C NO. - 3000084 OF 1993).

12. Per contra, learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the impugned order does not suffer from any illegality and is just and valid in eyes of law. Hence the present writ petition is devoid of merit and is liable to be dismissed.

13. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that the surplus land proceedings against the tenure holder were conclusively decided when the Appellate Court (IIIrd Additional District Judge, Hardoi), vide order dated 18.04.1975, allowed the appeal, set aside the order dated 30.12.1974, and discharged the ceiling notice. The said order attained finality and operates as res judicata between the parties.

14. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that the issuance of the second notice dated 02.02.1995 under Section 10(2) of the Act, after more than 20 years, is wholly arbitrary, illegal, and without jurisdiction. The Prescribed Authority lacked the power to reopen concluded proceedings after such an inordinate delay.

15. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that as per the Transitory Provisions, re-determination of surplus land is to be done where earlier determination was made before 10.10.1975 and could only be undertaken within two years from the said date. The statutory window thus expired around 1977. In the present case, no action was taken within the prescribed period. Therefore, the proceedings initiated in 1995 are clearly time-barred and without authority of law.

16. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that there was no change in the holding of the tenure holder which could justify re-determination under the amended provisions of Section 29. In absence of any such change, reopening of proceedings is impermissible.

17. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that the second notice dated 02.02.1995 does not disclose any special or cogent reasons for reopening the case. Such non-application of mind vitiates the entire proceedings. Moreover, it is a settled principle that concluded proceedings cannot be reopened after decades, as it defeats the very purpose of law.

18. Learned counsel for the respondents next submitted that In view of the aforesaid submissions, Counsel for the Respondent respectfully prayed that this Hon'ble Court may be pleased to dismiss the writ petition with costs, and uphold the order dated 29.03.1997 passed by the Appellate Authority.

19. Having heard the rival submissions of learned counsel for the parties, I have perused the material on record.

20. To resolve the controversy involved in the present writ petition, operative portion of the judgment rendered in the case of Himanshu Dhar Singh (supra) is extracted here-in-below:

"64. In the aforesaid backdrop of the submissions, the undisputed facts and the decisions relied upon by the respective parties, this Court finds that in the instant petition actually there is no challenge to the validity or vires of Sections or provisions of the Act of 1960. Hence, the submission of the learned Senior Counsel that the provisions of the Act should be construed harmoniously and be given prospective application is misconceived.

65. It will not be out of place to mention that the provisions of the Act of 1960 amended by the Amending Act of 1976 has been made applicable retrospectively i.e. w.e.f. 10th October, 1975 and the said provisions have been insulated from judicial review by placing them under Chapter IX of the Constitution of India. For this additional reason as well, there cannot be any challenge to the provisions of the Act as suggested by the learned Senior Counsel. Needless to say that this aspect of the matter was considered by this Court way back in Rajendra Prasad Singh (supra) and this Court does not find that the matter requires any fresh re-determination.

66. Moreover, if the provisions are to be given a harmonious and prospective construction, as suggested by the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner, then the only conclusion that will be evident, would lead to an anomaly. The basic purpose of the Act of 1960 was transitional in nature and was a step forward taken after the abolition of the Zamindari in the State of U.P. Huge land holdings which were concentrated in the hands of few privileged sections, were to be distributed amongst the actual tilling class, landless labourers and to achieve an optimum and widespread use of the State resources to subserve the common good and this would not be achieved.

67. Another anomaly which will set in and that would be that the ceiling limit contained in the Uttar Pradesh Zamindari Abolition and Land Reforms Act, 1950 will get violated. The two Acts of 1950 and Act of 1960 are complimentary and are not supposed to derogate each other. If the ceiling of 40 acres as initially available in the unamended Act of 1960 is retained then it will cause more harm than good and it would result in violating the language and provisions of the Act of 1960, as amended by several amendments which are not under challenge here.

68. Learned Senior Counsel laid heavy emphasis on the transitory Section 19 of the Amending Act no. 18 of 1973 and Section 31 of the Amending Act of 1976. In case if the said Sections are closely examined, it would be clear that the said transitory provision is confined to proceedings which were referable to Section 14 and Chapter III and IV of the Principal Act. Section 14 apparently is a procedural aspect relating to process as to how the possession of the surplus land as declared is to be taken and how it is to be dealt with. This is the stage, after the surplus land has already been declared and the orders have attained finality. Similarly, Chapter III is titled 'determination and payment of amount' and comprises of Sections 17 to 23 and Chapter IV is titled 'disposal and settlement of surplus land' and comprises of Section 24 (which was deleted by the Amending Act No.18 of 1973) till Section 31. These are provisions which relate to payment of compensation and as noticed above relating to disposal of land declared surplus and it has got nothing to do with the determination of rights and declaration of surplus land.

69. The Amending Act of 1976 (U.P. Act no. 20 of 1976) came into force from 10.10.1975 and it required the Authorities to re-determine the surplus land within two years w.e.f. 10.10.1975. It was in furtherance thereof that fresh notice was issued to the petitioner on 15.05.1976 after the Amending Act had come into force. This situation is further clarified by Section 38-B introduced by the Amending Act No. 20 of 1976. Hence, this Court is inclined to accept the reasoning of Sri Pandey, learned Standing Counsel on the aforesaid aspects.

70. Taking a complete holistic view of the Act of 1960 along with Amendments introduced in the year 1973 and 1976, it would reveal that a composite scheme has been brought into play by the Legislature. The submissions made by the learned Senior Counsel for the petitioner appears to be based on disjointed and selective reading of the provisions and is based on tearing observations out of context, from a decision or from the provisions of the Act of 1960. The interpretation suggested does not impress this Court, and it cannot be accepted as it would violate the provisions of the Act of 1960 and it would run contrary to the legislative scheme.

71. Thus, this Court finds that the orders passed by the two Ceiling Authorities cannot be said to be bad for want of jurisdiction or having been passed in contradiction or against the dictum of the Apex Court in Devendra Nath (Supra) and Arvind Kumar (Supra). Thus, the first question is answered accordingly.

79. As the admitted facts would indicate that Appeal No.3/1982 was allowed by the Appellate Authority on 16.09.1983 and again the only issue was regarding the choice and certain plots to be treated as unirrigated and admittedly this judgment dated 16.09.1983 was never challenged. In the fourth round, the Prescribed Authority excluded Plots bearing No.353, 432, 433, 498 and 503 as unirrigated. At this stage, the only issue remained was regarding choice. The decision rendered by the Prescribed Authority dated 27.06.1986 cannot be examined for any other purpose except as to relating to the issue of choice whether it has been properly considered by the Prescribed Authority.

80. As noticed above, 7.3 hectares was permitted to be retained by the petitioner and rest was declared surplus and this finding apparently could not be demonstrated to be erroneous, hence, it does not suffer from any manifest error which may persuade this Court to enter into the factual dispute under Articles 226/227 of the Constitution of India.

84. In this backdrop, the petitioner is attempting to raise issues indirectly by trying to hit at the proceedings which had already attained finality by raising issues of transitory provisions which have no role to play and as already considered, this Court finds that submissions advanced by the learned Senior Counsel have no force and substance, they have been raised only to perpetuate the litigation before this Court and it does not find favour with this Court. Thus, the second question is answered accordingly."

21. Perusal of the above-extracted judgment reveals that fresh proceedings are permissible and required post amendment and earlier findings do not attain finality so as to bar of re-determination.

22. Perusal of the record reveals that Shri Shiv Shankar was found in actual cultivatory possession over the disputed plots of land and as in the consolidation proceeding also his name was recorded on the basis of his possession over the said land and there was no evidence, if the land in question was Sir-Khudkhast of Ambika Bux, and also that there was no evidence to show possession of Smt. Kamla Devi and in these circumstances if any settlement have taken place after 24.01.1971, the same is liable to be ignored and Appellate Court has erred in law while passing the impugned judgment and order dated 29.03.1997 and further ignoring the provisions of Section 29 as well as Section 38-B of the amended provisions of the Act.

23. The Prescribed Authority recorded detailed findings on nature of land (irrigated/unirrigated/grove); validity of transfers; possession and ownership; and status of family members. These findings were based on evidence and proper appreciation of material on record. The Appellate Authority, however, set aside the order without adequately discussing or dislodging these findings, which amounts to improper exercise of appellate jurisdiction.

24. Perusal of the impugned order also reveals that the Appellate Authority has recorded a bald conclusion that no change in holding was established, without considering the evidence on record and the statutory provisions. Such an order is clearly non-speaking and reflects non-application of mind, rendering it legally unsustainable.

25. As far as the effect of Amendments (Act No. 20 of 1976) is concerned, it is noted that the amendments introduced in 1976 brought significant changes, particularly in determination of ostensible ownership; treatment of transfers after 24.01.1971 and in the concept of co-tenure holders. The law is well settled that the 1976 amendment has retrospective effect from 10.10.1975 and mandates re-determination of surplus land.

26. The scheme of the Act is to ensure equitable distribution of land, thus the Appellate Authority erred in holding that there was no change warranting fresh proceedings. Therefore, the finding recorded by the Appellate Authority that earlier proceedings operate as res judicata is contrary to the statutory mandate and is legally unsustainable.

27. The Appellate Authority has also misapplied the doctrine of res judicata. It has also ignored the effect of statutory amendments and has failed to consider material evidence and findings of the Prescribed Authority. In this view of the matter, the impugned order is arbitrary and legally flawed.

28. In the case of Himanshu Dhar Singh (supra) relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner, it has been clearly held that fresh proceedings are permissible and required post amendment and earlier findings do not attain finality so as to bar re-determination. In the above circumstances, the judgment relied upon by learned counsel for the petitioner is fully applicable to the facts and circumstances of the case.

29. Considering in totalities of facts and circumstances of the case, this Court finds that Section 38-B of the Act clearly provides that any decision rendered prior to 10.10.1975 shall not bar fresh adjudication under the Act as amended. The earlier Appellate Authority's order dated 18.04.1975 admittedly falls prior to the enforcement of Section 38-B, therefore order impugned is liable to be set aside.

30. Accordingly, this writ petition succeeds and is allowed. The impugned judgment and order dated 29.03.1997 passed by the Additional Commissioner (Judicial), Lucknow is hereby quashed.

Issue for Consideration

A. Maintainability of an appeal under Section 22 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 against an order rejecting an application for recall of an ex parte release order passed in proceedings under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act.
B. Recall of the ex parte release order dated 22.12.2023 on the grounds of absence of due service or sufficient cause

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972- Section 21(1) (a), 22 & 34(1)(g); The U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Rules, 1972- Rule 22(b) & 25- The conduct of the petitioners, assumes relevance while examining the plea of sufficient cause. The release proceedings had remained pending since the year 2016 in relation to a commercial tenancy. The original tenant had actively contested the proceedings throughout his lifetime. After his demise, the petitioners admittedly inherited the tenancy rights and continued in possession of the disputed commercial accommodation. In these circumstances, a reasonable degree of diligence and vigilance was expected from them in monitoring litigation directly concerning the tenancy rights inherited by them- Order dated 22.12.2023 further demonstrates that the Prescribed Authority adjudicated the release application upon consideration of the pleadings and evidence available on record. It recorded findings that the respondent-landlord had established her bona fide requirement for establishment of a clinic for her son; that the tenants had alternative accommodation available at property No.4/236, Gwalior Road, Baluganj, Agra, from where motorcycle repairing and welding work was being carried on; and that no endeavour had been made by the tenants to secure alternative accommodation despite pendency of the proceedings for several years. The release order, therefore, cannot be characterised as a mechanical ex parte order passed without consideration of the merits.

Petitioners failed to establish that they were prevented by circumstances beyond their control from participating in the proceedings. Their explanation is founded principally upon a generalized plea of non-service and lack of knowledge, unsupported by any reliable material capable of displacing the judicial record

Held- (i) An appeal under Section 22 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 is not maintainable against an order rejecting an application for recall of an ex parte release order, such order being referable to the procedural powers contained in Section 34 of the Act read with the Rules framed thereunder and not being an order under Section 21 or Section 24 of the Act.
(ii) the petitioners have failed to establish either that summons were not duly served upon them or that they were prevented by sufficient cause from appearing before the Prescribed Authority when the proceedings were taken up for hearing. The explanation furnished by them does not satisfy the settled judicial test of diligence, bona fides and genuine inability (iii) the impugned orders suffer from no jurisdictional error, patent illegality or perversity warranting interference by this Court in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

2. The present petition under Article 227 of the Constitution of India has been filed assailing the judgment and order dated 03.02.2026 passed by the Appellate Authority/District Judge, Agra in Rent Control Appeal No.32 of 2025, whereby the appeal preferred by the petitioners has been dismissed as not maintainable. The petitioners have also challenged the order dated 07.02.2025 passed by the Prescribed Authority/Judge, Small Causes Court, Agra in Misc. Case No. 3 of 2024, rejecting their application seeking recall of the ex parte release order, as well as the ex parte judgment and order dated 22.12.2023 passed in P.A. Case No. 16 of 2016, whereby the release application instituted by the respondent-landlord under Section 21(1)(a) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 (hereinafter referred to as "the Act") came to be allowed.

Factual Background

3. The dispute relates to Shop No.4, forming part of property bearing No.4/51, situated at Kachahri Road, Baluganj, Agra, which was admittedly in the tenancy of late Mohammad Shamim at a monthly rent of Rs.500/-. The respondent-landlord instituted proceedings under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act seeking release of the disputed premises on the ground of bona fide requirement, which came to be registered as P.A. Case No.16 of 2016.

4. The release proceedings were initially contested by the original tenant by filing a written statement denying the bona fide need and comparative hardship pleaded by the landlord. In support of the release application, the respondent-landlord filed documentary evidence, including a copy of the notice dated 31.07.2015 issued through counsel to the tenant, a copy of the reply notice dated 28.08.2015 sent on behalf of the tenant, the service discharge certificate and educational certificates of her son, a communication issued by the Chief Medical Officer, Agra regarding payment of honorarium to him, and certain photographs relating to the premises in question.

5. The case of the respondent-landlord before the Prescribed Authority was that the disputed shop was bona fide required for establishment of a clinic for her son, who possessed the requisite medical qualifications, and that the disputed premises, being situated on the main road, was eminently suitable for the said purpose. It was further pleaded that the tenant was carrying on motorcycle repairing and welding work from another property bearing No. 4/236, Gwalior Road, Baluganj, Agra, situated at a short distance from the disputed premises and, therefore, greater comparative hardship would be caused to the landlord in the event the release application was rejected.

6. During the pendency of the proceedings, the original tenant died on 15.12.2020. Thereafter, his legal representatives were brought on record pursuant to orders passed by the Prescribed Authority, and notices were directed to be served upon them through registered post. The record further indicates that thereafter an application bearing Paper No. 23-Ga came to be filed through counsel on behalf of the substituted legal representatives seeking permission to contest and pursue the proceedings after substitution.

7. The aforesaid application came to be rejected by the Prescribed Authority by an order dated 20.07.2023. While doing so, the Prescribed Authority also recorded that despite having full knowledge of the pendency of the proceedings, the substituted legal representatives had failed to adduce any evidence in support of their defence. Consequently, by order dated 25.09.2023, their opportunity to lead evidence was closed. Thereafter, the matter remained pending for final arguments from 09.10.2023, and detailed submissions were heard on 14.12.2023.

8. Ultimately, by judgment and order dated 22.12.2023, the Prescribed Authority allowed the release application holding that the relationship of landlord and tenant stood established between the parties, that the need set up by the respondent-landlord for establishment of a clinic for her son was bona fide and genuine, and that the balance of comparative hardship also tilted in favour of the landlord, particularly in view of the finding that the tenants had another alternative accommodation available at property No. 4/236, Gwalior Road, Baluganj, Agra and had failed to make any effort to search for alternative accommodation during the pendency of the proceedings.

9. The present petitioners, claiming themselves to be the legal representatives of the deceased tenant, thereafter instituted proceedings seeking recall of the aforesaid ex parte judgment and order dated 22.12.2023, which came to be registered as Misc. Case No.3 of 2024. The recall application, however, came to be rejected by the Prescribed Authority by order dated 07.02.2025. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioners preferred Rent Control Appeal No.32 of 2025 before the Appellate Authority. The Appellate Authority, by the impugned judgment and order dated 03.02.2026, dismissed the appeal as not maintainable.

10. It is in the aforesaid factual backdrop that the present petition has been instituted.

Submissions on behalf of the petitioners

11. Learned counsel appearing for the petitioners submits that the application seeking recall of the ex parte release order was maintainable in exercise of the powers conferred upon the Prescribed Authority under Section 34(1)(g) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Rule 22(b) of the Rules framed thereunder. It is contended that the recall application arose directly out of proceedings instituted under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act and, therefore, formed an integral and inseparable part of the original release proceedings.

12. Elaborating the aforesaid submission, it is urged that although the source of power to entertain the recall application may be traceable to Section 34(1)(g) read with Rule 22(b), the exercise of such power is nonetheless in continuation of the proceedings under Section 21 of the Act. According to learned counsel, the recall proceedings are neither independent nor collateral in nature but constitute a continuation of the original adjudication concerning the landlord's release application.

13. It is further submitted that rejection of the recall application has the effect of affirming and perpetuating the ex parte release order dated 22.12.2023, thereby directly affecting the substantive rights of the petitioners in respect of the tenanted premises. It is, therefore, argued that such an order cannot be viewed as merely procedural in character but must be regarded as partaking the character of an order passed under Section 21 of the Act.

14. On the aforesaid premise, learned counsel contends that Section 22 of the Act deserves to receive a purposive and liberal construction so as to include within its ambit an order rejecting a recall application arising out of proceedings under Section 21. Any restrictive interpretation, it is submitted, would leave an aggrieved tenant remediless against an order having serious civil consequences. It is, accordingly, urged that the Appellate Authority committed manifest error in dismissing the appeal as not maintainable.

Submissions on behalf of the respondent

15. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for the respondent-landlord submits that the entire edifice of the petitioners' argument proceeds on a misconception of the statutory scheme. It is contended that the petitioners seek to conflate a substantive adjudication under Section 21 of the Act with a procedural order passed in exercise of the ancillary powers conferred by Section 34.

16. It is submitted that the order dated 07.02.2025 rejecting the recall application is not an order passed under Section 21 of the Act but one rendered in exercise of the procedural jurisdiction traceable to Section 34 read with the Rules. Such an order, therefore, falls outside the scope of Section 22 of the Act, which expressly provides an appellate remedy only against orders passed under Sections 21 and 24.

17. It is further submitted that the right of appeal is a creature of statute and can neither be inferred nor expanded by implication. In the absence of any express statutory provision providing for an appeal against an order rejecting a recall application, no such appellate remedy can be recognised by judicial interpretation. According to the respondent, the legislative intent underlying Section 22 is to confine the appellate jurisdiction to final adjudications under Sections 21 and 24 and not to interlocutory or ancillary orders passed during the course of the proceedings.

18. Learned counsel lastly submits that after the death of the original tenant, the petitioners were duly substituted and had full knowledge of the pendency of the proceedings. Despite such knowledge, they failed to contest the matter, resulting in the ex parte release order dated 22.12.2023. The Prescribed Authority has, while rejecting the recall application, recorded categorical findings regarding due service and the petitioners' knowledge of the proceedings, which are findings of fact based upon the record. It is, therefore, submitted that the petitioners cannot be permitted to circumvent the statutory scheme by seeking an appellate remedy where none exists, nor do the impugned orders disclose any jurisdictional error warranting interference in exercise of supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution.

19. Heard learned counsel for the parties and perused the record.

Questions for determination

20. On the submissions advanced and the material brought on record, the following questions arise for determination:

20.1 Maintainability of an appeal under Section 22 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 against an order rejecting an application for recall of an ex parte release order passed in proceedings under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act.

20.2 Recall of the ex parte release order dated 22.12.2023 on the grounds of absence of due service or sufficient cause.

Statutory Scheme□□

21. The controversy in the present case essentially turns upon the true scope and interplay of Sections 21, 22 and 34 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972, read with the relevant Rules framed thereunder. It is, therefore, apposite to notice the material statutory provisions before adverting to the questions formulated above. The relevant provisions read as under:

"Section 21(1)(a) Proceedings for release of building under occupation of tenant (1) The prescribed authority may, on an application of the landlord in that behalf, order the eviction of a tenant from the building under tenancy or any specified part thereof if it is satisfied that any of the following grounds exists; namely:-

(a) that the building is bona fide required either in its existing form or after demolition and new construction by the landlord for occupation by himself or any member of his family, or any person for whose benefit it is held by him, either for residential purposes or for purposes of any profession, trade or calling, or where the landlord is the trustee of a public charitable trust, for the objects of the trust."

"Section 22 Appeal: Any person aggrieved by an order under section 21 or section 24 may within thirty days from the date of the order prefer an appeal against it to the District Judge, and in other respects, the provisions of section 10 shall mutatis mutandis apply in relation to such appeal."

"Section 34(1): Powers of District Magistrate, Prescribed Authority and appellate and revising authorities

(1) The District Magistrate, the prescribed authority or any appellate or revising authority shall for the purposes of holding any inquiry or hearing any appeal under this Act have the same powers as are vested in the Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, when trying a suit, in respect of the following matters, namely,-

…. ….. …..

….. ….. …..

….. ….. ….

(g) any other matter which may be prescribed."

Rule 22(b) of the U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Rules, 1972

"22. Powers under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 [Section 34 (1) (g)- The District Magistrate, the Prescribed Authority or the Appellate or Revising Authority shall, for the purposes of holding any inquiry or hearing any appeal or revision under the Act, shall have the same powers as are vested in the Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No. V of 1908), when trying a suit, in respect of the following matters, namely-

…. ….. …..

(b) the power to proceed ex parte and to set aside, for sufficient cause, an order passed ex parte;

…. … … “

22. It is also relevant to notice the statutory scheme governing continuation of proceedings after the death of a party. Section 34(4) of the Act, read with Rule 25 of the Rules framed thereunder, expressly contemplates continuation of pending proceedings against the legal heirs or legal representatives of a deceased landlord or tenant. The provisions are as follows:

“Section 34(4) Powers of various authorities and procedure to be followed by them-

(4) Where any party to any proceeding for the determination of standard rent of or for eviction from a building dies during the pendency of the proceeding, such proceeding may be continued after bringing on the record:

(a) in the case of the landlord or tenant, his heirs or legal representatives;

(b) in the case of an un-authorized occupant, any person claiming under him or found in occupation of the building.”

“Rule 25. Bringing legal representatives on record [Section 34 (4)].-(1) Every application for substituting the names of [the heirs or legal representatives, the claimants or occupants] of any person who was a party to any proceedings under the Act and died during the pendency of the proceedings shall be preferred within one month from the date of the death of such person.

(2) The application shall contain the names and addresses and other details of the heirs or legal representatives and their relationship with the deceased and, be accompanied by any affidavit in its support, and thereupon, the application shall be decided after a summary inquiry by the authority concerned.”

23. A conjoint reading of the aforesaid provisions indicates that while Section 21 constitutes the substantive source of jurisdiction empowering the Prescribed Authority to adjudicate the landlord's claim for release of a building, Section 22 confers a limited statutory right of appeal only against orders passed under Sections 21 and 24 of the Act. Section 34, on the other hand, merely vests the authorities under the Act with procedural powers akin to those exercisable by a Civil Court for the effective conduct of proceedings. Rule 22(b), read with Section 34(1)(g), supplements such procedural jurisdiction. Equally, Section 34(4) read with Rule 25 manifests the legislative intent that proceedings continue against the legal representatives of a deceased party and do not abate upon death. It is in the backdrop of this statutory scheme that the questions formulated above fall for consideration.

Question No.1: Maintainability of Appeal under Section 22 of the Act

24. The right of appeal is neither an inherent nor a natural right; it is a creature of statute. It is well settled that such right must be conferred expressly or by necessary implication, and in the absence thereof, no appeal can be maintained. Section 22 of the Act, in clear terms, restricts the right of appeal to orders passed under Section 21 or Section 24. The legislative intent, thus, is to confine the appellate remedy to final adjudications affecting substantive rights under the Act.

25. A careful reading of the statutory scheme indicates that Section 21 embodies the substantive provision governing the rights of the parties. It confers jurisdiction upon the Prescribed Authority to adjudicate the landlord's claim for release of a tenanted building on the grounds specified therein, including bona fide requirement. An order passed under Section 21 thus culminates in an adjudication of substantive civil rights, resulting either in eviction of the tenant or continuation of the tenancy.

26. A careful reading of the statutory scheme indicates that Section 21 embodies the substantive provision governing the rights and liabilities of the parties. It confers jurisdiction upon the Prescribed Authority to adjudicate the landlord's claim for release of a tenanted building on the grounds specified therein, including bona fide requirement. An order passed under Section 21 is, therefore, one determining substantive civil rights and culminates either in release of the building in favour of the landlord or in continuation of the tenancy. It is such adjudication which the Legislature has made appealable under Section 22 of the Act.

27. Section 34, on the other hand, operates in an altogether different sphere. It neither creates substantive rights nor authorises adjudication upon the merits of the landlord's claim. The provision merely confers procedural powers upon the authorities constituted under the Act to enable them to effectively discharge their adjudicatory functions. The powers enumerated therein, including those exercised under the residuary clause read with the Rules relating to recall of orders, are procedural in character and are analogous to the powers vested in a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure for regulating the conduct of proceedings.

28. The distinction between substantive and procedural provisions assumes decisive significance in the present case. While a substantive provision such as Section 21 culminates in an adjudication determining the rights of the parties, a procedural provision such as Section 34 merely regulates the manner in which such adjudication is conducted or, in an appropriate case, revisited on limited procedural grounds. An order passed in exercise of procedural powers cannot, merely because it arises in proceedings under Section 21, be elevated to the status of an order passed under Section 21 itself. The source of the power exercised by the authority, and not merely the subject-matter of the proceedings, furnishes the true test for determining the character of the order.

29. In the present case, the release order dated 22.12.2023 was admittedly passed under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act and was, therefore, appealable under Section 22. The petitioners, however, did not avail the statutory remedy against the said order. Instead, they invoked the procedural jurisdiction of the Prescribed Authority by filing an application seeking recall of the ex parte release order under Section 34 read with the relevant Rules. The order dated 07.02.2025 rejecting the recall application does not adjudicate afresh upon the landlord's claim for release, nor does it determine the substantive rights of the parties under Section 21. It merely determines whether the ex parte order deserved to be recalled on recognised procedural grounds such as absence of due service or existence of sufficient cause for non-appearance.

30. The submission advanced on behalf of the petitioners that the recall proceedings constitute a continuation of the original proceedings under Section 21 and that the order passed thereon must consequently be treated as an order under Section 21, though attractive at first blush, cannot be accepted. The continuity of proceedings does not alter the juridical character of the power exercised. The determinative consideration is the source from which the authority derives its jurisdiction to pass the impugned order. Where the authority exercises procedural powers referable to Section 34 read with the Rules, the resultant order retains its procedural character notwithstanding that it arises out of proceedings originally instituted under Section 21.

31. The further submission that a restrictive construction of Section 22 would leave an aggrieved tenant remediless against an order having serious civil consequences also does not merit acceptance. Hardship or perceived inadequacy of a statutory remedy cannot furnish a legitimate basis for enlarging the scope of a right of appeal which the legislature has consciously circumscribed. The right of appeal being a creature of statute, its existence and extent must necessarily be gathered from the language employed by the legislature. In the present case, the ex parte release order dated 22.12.2023 was itself an order passed under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act and, therefore, was appealable under Section 22. The petitioners, however, did not avail of the said statutory remedy and instead chose to invoke the recall jurisdiction of the Prescribed Authority under Section 34 read with the Rules. Having elected to pursue such procedural remedy, they cannot contend that the absence of an appeal against the order rejecting the recall application leaves them remediless. The Court cannot, on considerations of equity or perceived hardship, create an additional appellate remedy where the statute has consciously not provided one.□□

32. Merely because the recall application arises from proceedings under Section 21 does not ipso facto render the order passed thereon an order under Section 21. Acceptance of such a construction would amount to enlarging the scope of Section 22 beyond its plain language and legislative intent. The Court cannot, under the guise of purposive interpretation, expand the statutory right of appeal to categories of orders which the Legislature has consciously excluded. The right of appeal being purely statutory, its existence, extent and conditions are governed exclusively by the language employed by the Legislature and cannot be enlarged by judicial interpretation.

33. If the contention of the petitioners were to be accepted, every interlocutory or ancillary order passed during the pendency of proceedings under Section 21□including orders relating to amendment of pleadings, production of documents, summoning of witnesses, adjournments, recall of witnesses or other procedural matters□could equally be contended to partake the character of an order under Section 21 merely because such orders arise in the course of those proceedings. Such an interpretation would obliterate the clear legislative distinction between substantive adjudication and procedural facilitation, render the statutory restriction embodied in Section 22 otiose, and defeat the legislative objective of ensuring expeditious adjudication of landlord-tenant disputes under the Act.

34. For all the reasons aforesaid, this Court is of the considered opinion that an appeal under Section 22 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 would not lie against an order rejecting an application for recall of an ex parte release order, such order being one referable to the procedural powers exercisable under Section 34 read with the Rules and not an order passed under Section 21 or Section 24 of the Act. The Appellate Authority, therefore, committed no error, either of jurisdiction or of law, in dismissing Rent Control Appeal No. 32 of 2025 as not maintainable.

Question No. 2: Recall of the Ex Parte Release Order

35. Having answered the first question, the Court now proceeds to examine whether the petitioners have made out any case for recall of the ex parte release order dated 22.12.2023.

36. The consideration of an application seeking recall of an ex parte order is governed by well-settled principles akin to those underlying Order IX Rule 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A party seeking recall must establish either that the summons were not duly served or that he was prevented by "sufficient cause" from appearing when the matter was called on for hearing. These two grounds constitute the recognised and exhaustive bases upon which an ex parte order may be recalled.

37. The principles governing recall of an ex parte order are no longer res integra. The jurisdiction to set aside such an order is founded upon the twin requirements that the applicant must establish either that summons were not duly served or that he was prevented by □sufficient cause□ from appearing when the matter was taken up for hearing. The expression □sufficient cause□, though incapable of precise definition, has consistently been construed by the Supreme Court as a cause beyond the control of the party concerned, to be determined on the facts and circumstances of each case. While the expression deserves a liberal construction to advance substantial justice, such interpretative generosity cannot be extended to condone negligence, indifference, want of bona fides or deliberate inaction. The discretionary jurisdiction to recall an ex parte order is intended to prevent miscarriage of justice and not to revive proceedings where the absence of the party is attributable to lack of due diligence or vigilance. The relevant enquiry is confined to the cause which prevented the party from appearing on the date fixed for hearing, though the antecedent conduct of the litigant may legitimately be considered insofar as it bears upon his bona fides and diligence. (See Parimal v. Veena (2011) 3 SCC 545; G.P. Srivastava v. R.K. Raizada, (2000) 3 SCC 54; Arjun Singh v. Mohindra Kumar, AIR 1964 SC 993.)

38. The explanation furnished in support of recall must be reasonable, plausible and supported by the material on record so as to satisfy the Court that the absence was neither deliberate nor attributable to negligence. The Court is entitled to scrutinize the entire factual matrix, including the conduct of the parties and the probabilities emerging from the record, while maintaining a balance between the imperative of affording a genuine opportunity of hearing and the equally salutary principle that judicial proceedings must attain finality. The power to recall an ex parte order is, therefore, discretionary in nature and must be exercised judiciously upon a careful appraisal of all relevant circumstances.

39. It bears emphasis that a plea of non-service or lack of knowledge must be substantiated by cogent material. The judicial record relating to service carries a presumption of correctness, and the burden rests upon the party concerned to establish, by cogent material, that the service was legally deficient or wholly illusory. □ □□

40. From the settled legal position discussed above, the following principles emerge for determining whether sufficient cause has been established for recall of an ex parte order:

(i) The applicant must establish that his absence was neither deliberate nor attributable to negligence and that, despite exercising reasonable care and vigilance, he was genuinely prevented from appearing before the Court on the relevant date.

(ii) Mere assertions regarding non-service, lack of knowledge or procedural irregularity, unsupported by cogent and reliable material, would ordinarily not constitute sufficient cause. Judicial orders recording due service carry a presumption of correctness which cannot be displaced by vague or unsubstantiated allegations.

(iii) The Court is entitled to examine the overall conduct of the applicant, including his diligence before and after the ex parte order, the promptness with which he approached the Court, and whether the explanation furnished inspires confidence on ordinary standards of human conduct and probabilities.

(iv) The relevant enquiry is confined to the cause which prevented the applicant from appearing on the date when the matter was taken up for hearing. Earlier defaults or subsequent conduct are relevant only insofar as they bear upon the bona fides and credibility of the explanation offered.

(v) While the expression "sufficient cause" deserves a liberal construction to advance substantial justice, such latitude cannot be extended to condone negligence, indifference, want of bona fides or deliberate inaction.

(vi) The jurisdiction to recall an ex parte order is discretionary and must be exercised judiciously upon a consideration of the entire factual matrix. The Court must balance the need to afford a fair opportunity of hearing with the equally important principle that judicial proceedings should attain finality.

(vii) The principle that procedural law is the handmaid of justice does not imply that concluded proceedings may be reopened merely because an adverse order has been passed. The jurisdiction to recall an ex parte order exists to remedy genuine inability to appear and not to revive proceedings where the absence is attributable to negligence, prolonged inaction or lack of due diligence.

41. The true enquiry, therefore, is whether the party seeking recall acted with bona fide diligence and whether the circumstances disclose a genuine inability to participate in the proceedings despite exercising reasonable vigilance. The answer to that enquiry necessarily depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case and must be arrived at upon an overall appraisal of the record, the conduct of the parties and the attendant probabilities. Where the material on record reflects prior contest by the original party, continuation of proceedings after substitution, judicial orders recording due service, participation through counsel, prolonged inaction despite pendency of the proceedings, absence of reasonable enquiry regarding the litigation, and failure to rebut the judicial record relating to service and conduct of the proceedings, the Court would ordinarily be justified in concluding that no sufficient cause has been established for recalling the ex parte order.□□

Application of the Above Principles to the Facts of the Present Case

42. The case set up by the petitioners may now be examined in the light of the aforesaid principles.

43. The release proceedings under Section 21(1)(a) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 were instituted in the year 2016 against the original tenant. The record unmistakably reflects that the original tenant entered appearance, filed a written statement and contested the proceedings on merits by disputing the respondent-landlord's plea of bona fide requirement and comparative hardship. The release application was founded upon the respondent-landlord's case that the disputed shop was bona fide required for establishment of a clinic for her son, who possessed the requisite medical qualifications.

44. During the pendency of the proceedings, the original tenant died on 15.12.2020. Thereafter, the present petitioners, being his legal representatives, were brought on record by order dated 26.07.2022. In view of Section 34(4) of the Act read with Rule 25 of the Rules framed thereunder, the proceedings did not abate upon the death of the original tenant but continued against the substituted legal representatives as a continuation of the original proceedings.

45. Following the substitution, notices were directed to be issued to the substituted legal representatives through registered post. It was at this stage that the counsel who had earlier represented the deceased tenant filed Application Paper No. 27-Ga and appeared before the Prescribed Authority on 20.07.2023 asserting that the substituted legal representatives had not been served through registered post. The Prescribed Authority thereupon required the learned counsel to disclose on whose behalf he was appearing and whether he had received any authority from the substituted legal representatives. The learned counsel stated that he had not been authorised by any of them.

46. Upon verification of the judicial record, the Prescribed Authority found that notices had already been issued to the substituted legal representatives through registered post and that the service report disclosed sufficient service. Accordingly, the objection regarding non-service was rejected. Nevertheless, with a view to ensuring complete fairness, the Prescribed Authority granted yet another opportunity to the substituted legal representatives to file their written statement and fixed 29.07.2023 for the said purpose.

47. The record further discloses that despite the aforesaid opportunity, the substituted legal representatives neither filed any written statement nor adduced any evidence. Consequently, by order dated 25.09.2023, their opportunity to lead evidence was closed. The matter thereafter remained pending for final arguments from 09.10.2023. Arguments were heard on 14.12.2023 and the release application ultimately came to be decided by judgment and order dated 22.12.2023.

48. Aggrieved thereby, the petitioners instituted Misc. Case No. 3 of 2024 seeking recall of the release order dated 22.12.2023. The principal foundation of the recall application was that after substitution no notice had ever been served upon them and that they remained wholly unaware of the pendency of the proceedings until 17.01.2024, when, according to them, they came to know through a person known to them that an eviction order had been passed. It was their case that inspection of the record was thereafter obtained on 19.01.2024, whereupon they first acquired knowledge of the judgment dated 22.12.2023. They further alleged that notices had neither been served through ordinary process nor by registered post; that the postal receipts relied upon by the respondent-landlord were suspicious; that effective steps for service had not been taken after substitution; that despite orders directing fresh steps, the proceedings continued ex parte without ensuring proper service. On these premises, it was pleaded that the release order stood vitiated for violation of the principles of natural justice.

49. The recall application was opposed by the respondent-landlord by filing detailed objections. It was contended that the judgment and release order dated 22.12.2023 was not an ex parte order in the strict sense but a judgment rendered on merits after due compliance with the prescribed procedure; that the plea regarding incorrect description of the legal representatives was wholly misconceived; that the substituted legal representatives had been duly served; that no fresh notice was required after valid substitution and service; and that the applicants had full knowledge of the pendency of the proceedings but deliberately chose not to participate therein with a view to delaying execution of the release order. It was accordingly prayed that the recall application be dismissed.

50. The Prescribed Authority examined he aforesaid objections in the light of the judicial record and found no merit in the recall application. It noticed that notices had been issued to the substituted legal representatives through registered post and that service had already been held to be sufficient by judicial order dated 20.07.2023. It further noticed that, notwithstanding the order dated 20.7.2023 holding service to be sufficient, the Prescribed Authority, by way of abundant caution, granted a further opportunity to the substituted legal representatives to file their written statement. Thus, the grievance that the proceedings were concluded without affording an adequate opportunity is not borne out from the judicial record. The Prescribed Authority also took note of the fact that despite such opportunity, no written statement was filed, no evidence was adduced and, ultimately, the opportunity to lead evidence was closed on 25.09.2023 before the matter proceeded for final hearing.

51. Equally significant is the circumstance that the judicial record does not support the plea that the proceedings remained wholly beyond the knowledge of the tenant's side after substitution. As noticed hereinabove, the issue regarding service upon the substituted legal representatives came to be raised before the Prescribed Authority itself, whereafter the Court verified the record, recorded a finding regarding sufficient service and, by way of abundant caution, granted a further opportunity to the substituted legal representatives to participate in the proceedings. Despite such opportunity, no written statement was filed, no evidence was led and the proceedings thereafter culminated in the judgment dated 22.12.2023. These contemporaneous judicial proceedings lend little support to the petitioners' subsequent plea that they remained completely unaware of the litigation until after the release order had been passed.

52. The plea of complete ignorance of the proceedings also rests entirely upon the self-serving averments contained in the affidavit filed in support of the recall application. No independent material has been produced to establish that the notices were never tendered, that the service reports were fabricated, or that the judicial orders recording sufficient service were erroneous. Mere allegations that the postal receipts appeared suspicious or that service was not properly effected, unsupported by any cogent evidence, cannot rebut the presumption of correctness which attaches to judicial proceedings.

53. The conduct of the petitioners, viewed in its entirety, also assumes relevance while examining the plea of sufficient cause. The release proceedings had remained pending since the year 2016 in relation to a commercial tenancy. The original tenant had actively contested the proceedings throughout his lifetime. After his demise, the petitioners admittedly inherited the tenancy rights and continued in possession of the disputed commercial accommodation. In these circumstances, a reasonable degree of diligence and vigilance was expected from them in monitoring litigation directly concerning the tenancy rights inherited by them.

54. The release order dated 22.12.2023 further demonstrates that the Prescribed Authority adjudicated the release application upon consideration of the pleadings and evidence available on record. It recorded findings that the respondent-landlord had established her bona fide requirement for establishment of a clinic for her son; that the tenants had alternative accommodation available at property No.4/236, Gwalior Road, Baluganj, Agra, from where motorcycle repairing and welding work was being carried on; and that no endeavour had been made by the tenants to secure alternative accommodation despite pendency of the proceedings for several years. The release order, therefore, cannot be characterised as a mechanical ex parte order passed without consideration of the merits.

55. The maxim vigilantibus non dormientibus jura subveniunt-the law assists those who are vigilant and not those who sleep over their rights squarely applies to the facts of the present case. The petitioners have failed to establish that they were prevented by circumstances beyond their control from participating in the proceedings. Their explanation is founded principally upon a generalized plea of non-service and lack of knowledge, unsupported by any reliable material capable of displacing the judicial record.

56. For the reasons discussed hereinabove, this Court is of the considered opinion that the petitioners have failed to establish either that summons were not duly served upon them or that they were prevented by any sufficient cause from appearing when the release proceedings were taken up for hearing. The conclusion reached by the Prescribed Authority in rejecting the recall application is fully borne out by the material available on record and warrants no interference.

Conclusion:

57. Having answered the questions formulated for determination, it now remains to examine whether the impugned orders warrant interference in exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

58. It is well settled that the jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 is supervisory and not appellate. The power is intended to ensure that subordinate courts and tribunals act within the limits of their authority and in accordance with law. It is not an avenue for correction of every error of fact or law, nor does it permit this Court to re-appreciate the evidence or substitute its own conclusions merely because another view may also be possible. Interference is warranted only where the impugned order suffers from patent lack or excess of jurisdiction, manifest illegality, perversity, or such grave procedural irregularity as has resulted in failure of justice.

59. Tested on the aforesaid parameters, this Court finds no such jurisdictional infirmity in the orders impugned.

60. The Prescribed Authority has considered the pleadings of the parties, examined the record relating to substitution and service of the legal representatives, adverted to the proceedings conducted after substitution, including the objection regarding service, the grant of further opportunity to the substituted legal representatives, the closure of their opportunity to adduce evidence and the subsequent adjudication of the release application, and has thereafter assigned cogent and reasoned findings while rejecting the recall application. The conclusions so recorded are founded upon the material available on record and cannot be characterised as arbitrary, perverse or unsupported by evidence.

61. The Appellate Authority, in turn, confined its consideration to the question of maintainability of the statutory appeal and rightly concluded that an appeal under Section 22 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 would not lie against an order rejecting an application for recall referable to the procedural powers contained in Section 34 of the Act read with the Rules framed thereunder. Once the appeal itself was found to be not maintainable, the Appellate Authority cannot be faulted for declining to examine the merits of the controversy relating to service or existence of sufficient cause.

62. No jurisdictional error, manifest illegality, perversity or failure of justice has been demonstrated so as to warrant interference by this Court in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution. The findings recorded by the Prescribed Authority on the question of service and sufficient cause are essentially findings of fact based upon appreciation of the material on record, while the conclusion of the Appellate Authority regarding maintainability correctly reflects the statutory scheme of Sections 21, 22 and 34 of the Act. Neither of the impugned orders suffers from any error warranting exercise of the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court.

63. Accordingly, this Court holds that-

(i) an appeal under Section 22 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 is not maintainable against an order rejecting an application for recall of an ex parte release order, such order being referable to the procedural powers contained in Section 34 of the Act read with the Rules framed thereunder and not being an order under Section 21 or Section 24 of the Act;

(ii) the petitioners have failed to establish either that summons were not duly served upon them or that they were prevented by sufficient cause from appearing before the Prescribed Authority when the proceedings were taken up for hearing. The explanation furnished by them does not satisfy the settled judicial test of diligence, bona fides and genuine inability; and

(iii) the impugned orders suffer from no jurisdictional error, patent illegality or perversity warranting interference by this Court in exercise of its supervisory jurisdiction under Article 227 of the Constitution of India.

64. Consequently, the judgment and order dated 03.02.2026 passed by the Appellate Authority/District Judge, Agra in Rent Control Appeal No. 32 of 2025, the order dated 07.02.2025 passed by the Prescribed Authority/Judge, Small Causes Court, Agra in Misc. Case No. 3 of 2024, and the judgment and release order dated 22.12.2023 passed in P.A. Case No. 16 of 2016 warrant no interference.

65. The petition is, accordingly, dismissed.

66. There shall be no order as to costs.

Issue for Consideration

Whether the authorities below committed any jurisdictional error or material illegality in rejecting the petitioner's applications seeking appointment of a Commissioner under Section 34(1)(c) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure for local investigation of the disputed premises

Head Notes

The Constitution of India, 1950-Article 227; The Code of Civil Procedure, 1908-Section 75 & Order XXVI Rule 9; The U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 1972-Section 21(1) (a) & 34- Power to issue a commission under Section 34(1)(c) of the Act read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC is not intended to be exercised merely because a material fact is disputed between the parties. The jurisdiction is discretionary and is to be invoked only where the Court considers a local investigation to be requisite or proper for elucidating a matter in controversy which cannot satisfactorily be resolved on the basis of the pleadings and the evidence already available on record. The existence of a dispute, however substantial, does not by itself furnish a ground for appointment of a Commissioner- The contention that the issue regarding the applicability of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 goes to the root of the jurisdiction of the Prescribed Authority does not, by itself, advance the petitioner's case. The significance of the issue cannot determine the procedure by which it is to be adjudicated. Whether the premises are exempt from the operation of the Act is undoubtedly a jurisdictional question; nevertheless, it remains a question to be decided by the competent authority upon appreciation of the legally admissible evidence produced by the parties. The appointment of a Commissioner is only a procedural aid to facilitate adjudication where necessary and cannot be elevated to a mandatory requirement merely because the issue involved is jurisdictional in nature.

Held- Impugned orders do not warrant interference. The discretion vested in the authorities below has been exercised upon due consideration of the pleadings, the documentary material on record and the governing statutory provisions. The view taken is in consonance with the settled principles governing the exercise of power under Section 34(1)(c) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC. Petition dismissed. (E-15)

2. The petitioner has invoked the supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India questioning the legality of□ □the order dated 27.11.2024 passed by the Prescribed Authority in P.A. Case No. 17 of 2020 and the order dated 11.09.2025 passed by the Appellate Authority/Additional District Judge, Court No. 19, Agra in Rent Control Appeal No. 17 of 2025, whereby the petitioner's applications seeking appointment of a Commissioner for local investigation of property nos. 32/1/6 and 32/1/7, situated at Old Kutlupur, Chhipitola, Rakabganj Ward, Agra, came to be rejected. According to the petitioner, such local investigation was necessary to establish that the disputed premises constituted a newly constructed building exempt from the operation of U.P. Urban Buildings (Regulation of Letting, Rent and Eviction) Act, 19721.

3. The record reflects that property no. 32/1, comprising sub-numbers 1 to 13 and situated at Old Kutlupur, Chhipitola, Rakabganj Ward, Agra, originally belonged to Umrao Singh and his brothers. It is pleaded that pursuant to a family settlement dated 01.07.1998, property nos. 32/1/6 and 32/1/7 fell to the share of respondent no. 1, Ashok Kumar Jain.

4. According to the petitioner, after obtaining possession pursuant to the family settlement, respondent no. 1 got the old dilapidated structure standing over the property vacated and, after demolishing the same, reconstructed a triple-storeyed RCC building during the years 2000-2002. It is further pleaded that the disputed shop bearing no. 32/1/6, situated on the ground floor of the reconstructed building, was thereafter let out to the petitioner's predecessor-in-interest in the year 2002. Subsequently, respondent no. 1 instituted proceedings under Section 21(1)(a) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972, registered as P.A. Case No. 17 of 2020, seeking release of the disputed shop.

5. During the pendency of the release proceedings, the petitioner filed a written statement and affidavits asserting that the disputed premises constituted a new construction and, therefore, stood exempt from the operation of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972. In support of the said defence, the petitioner moved an application seeking appointment of a Commissioner for local investigation of property nos. 32/1/6 and 32/1/7 to ascertain the nature and age of the construction. The application was opposed by respondent no. 1 and came to be rejected by the Prescribed Authority by order dated 27.11.2024. Thereafter, the release application itself was allowed by judgment dated 19.12.2024.

6. Aggrieved by the judgment of release, the petitioner preferred Rent Control Appeal No. 17 of 2025 before the Appellate Authority/District Judge, Agra. During the pendency of the appeal, the petitioner once again moved Application No. 17-C seeking appointment of an Advocate Commissioner for local investigation of the disputed premises. By order dated 11.09.2025, the Appellate Authority rejected the application holding that adequate documentary evidence regarding the age and nature of the construction was already available on record and that no case for issuance of a commission was made out. It is these two orders rejecting the petitioner's applications for appointment of a Commissioner which are under challenge in the present petition.

7. Learned counsel for the petitioner submits that the authorities below have committed manifest illegality in rejecting the petitioner's applications seeking appointment of an Advocate Commissioner under Section 34 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Order XXVI Rule 9 Code of Civil Procedure, 19082. It is contended that the principle defence raised throughout the proceedings is that the disputed shop forms part of a newly constructed building which came into existence during the years 2000□2002 after demolition of the old dilapidated structure standing over property nos. 32/1/6 and 32/1/7. According to the petitioner, once the building is held to be a new construction within the meaning of Section 2 of the Act, it would remain exempt from the operation of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 and, consequently, the release proceedings instituted under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act would not be maintainable.

8. It is further submitted that the prayer for local investigation was not intended to collect evidence or fill any lacuna in the petitioner's case, but merely to assist the authorities in ascertaining the true nature, age and mode of construction of the building. Learned counsel submits that the disputed premises is a triple-storeyed RCC structure constructed with reinforced concrete pillars, beams and slabs after demolition of the old structure, which allegedly consisted of brick masonry with lime mortar, thick load-bearing walls and other features ordinarily associated with old constructions. According to the petitioner, these physical characteristics could be objectively verified only through a local investigation by an Advocate Commissioner.

9. It is next contended that both the Prescribed Authority and the Appellate Authority failed to appreciate that the issue regarding the applicability of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 goes to the very root of their jurisdiction. Since the determination of such issue depends upon whether the disputed premises constitutes a new construction, refusal to permit local investigation has resulted in denial of an effective opportunity to establish the petitioner's defence.

10. Learned counsel submits that the petitioner had sought appointment of a Commissioner before the Prescribed Authority itself and merely renewed the same prayer before the Appellate Authority after rejection of the earlier application. It is, therefore, submitted that the respondent's contention that the petitioner sought to introduce additional evidence for the first time in appeal is factually incorrect.

11. Learned counsel also disputes the reliance placed by the respondent upon the municipal assessment records showing the year of construction as 1980. It is submitted that the said assessment records neither formed part of the record before the authorities below nor conclusively establish the age of the disputed building. According to the petitioner, the property was assessed in its present RCC form with effect from 01.04.2016 and the recital mentioning the year of construction as 1980 is erroneous, having allegedly been incorporated to avoid the consequences of raising construction without sanction of a building plan.

12. On the aforesaid premises, learned counsel submits that the impugned orders suffer from material illegality, manifest irregularity and failure to exercise jurisdiction vested in the authorities below. It is, accordingly, prayed that the impugned orders be set aside and a suitable direction be issued for appointment of an Advocate Commissioner to undertake a local investigation of the disputed premises.

13. Per contra, learned counsel appearing for respondent no. 1 supports the impugned orders and submits that neither of the authorities below has committed any jurisdictional error or material illegality warranting interference under Article 227 of the Constitution of India. It is contended that the petitioner's applications seeking appointment of a Commissioner were rightly rejected as they were intended merely to collect evidence and improve the evidentiary basis of the defence, which is impermissible in law.

14. Learned counsel submits that proceedings under Section 21(1)(a) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 are summary in nature and are ordinarily adjudicated on the basis of pleadings, affidavits and documentary evidence. It is urged that a commission for local investigation cannot be issued to enable a party to establish facts which it is otherwise required to prove by leading legally admissible evidence. According to the respondent, appointment of a Commissioner is a matter resting entirely within the judicial discretion of the authority concerned and cannot be claimed as a matter of right.

15. It is further submitted that an identical application seeking appointment of a Commissioner had earlier been moved before the Prescribed Authority and was rejected by a reasoned order dated 27.11.2024. Having failed before the Prescribed Authority, the petitioner could not seek appointment of an Advocate Commissioner before the Appellate Authority on the same grounds in the absence of any subsequent event, fresh circumstance or additional material warranting reconsideration of the issue. The Appellate Authority, therefore, rightly declined the prayer.

16. Learned counsel further submits that sufficient documentary evidence regarding the age and nature of the construction was already available on record, rendering any local investigation wholly unnecessary. Reliance is placed upon the municipal assessment records maintained by the Agra Municipal Corporation, which, according to the respondent, indicate that the RCC structure existed since the year 1980. It is further submitted that the electricity connection standing in the name of respondent no. 1 also lends support to the respondent's case regarding the nature and existence of the construction.

17. It is, accordingly, submitted that where adequate oral and documentary evidence is already available to enable effective adjudication of the controversy, refusal to appoint a Commissioner cannot be said to suffer from any legal infirmity. The impugned orders represent a proper exercise of judicial discretion in accordance with the settled principles governing Section 34 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC.

18. Learned counsel, therefore, submits that the petition is devoid of merit and seeks interference with purely discretionary and procedural orders passed by the authorities below in accordance with law. It is, accordingly, prayed that the petition be dismissed.

19. The Court has carefully considered the rival submissions advanced on behalf of the parties and has perused the pleadings exchanged between them, the material brought on record, the impugned orders passed by the authorities below, as well as the statutory provisions and judicial precedents relied upon in support of the respective submissions.

20. In the light of the rival submissions, the following question arises for determination:

21. Whether the authorities below committed any jurisdictional error or material illegality in rejecting the petitioner's applications seeking appointment of a Commissioner under Section 34(1)(c) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure for local investigation of the disputed premises.

22. In order to appreciate the controversy involved in the present case, it would be apposite to notice the statutory scheme governing exemption of newly constructed buildings under U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 and the power of the authorities constituted thereunder to issue a commission for local investigation. Since the petitioner's principal defence is that the disputed premises is a newly constructed building exempt from the operation of the Act and that a commission ought to have been issued to establish the said plea, reference is required to Section 2 and Section 34 of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972, Section 75 read with Order XXVI Rule 9 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. The relevant provisions are extracted below.

"Section 2. Exemptions from operation of the Act:

(2) Except as provided in sub-section (5) of section 12, subsection (1-A) if section 21, subsection (2) of section 24, section 24-A, 24-B, 24-C or subsection (3) of section 29, nothing in this Act shall apply to a building during a period of ten years from the date on which its construction is completed:

…. …… ……

Provided further that where construction of a building is completed on or after April 26, 1985, then the reference in this sub-section to the period of ten years shall be deemed to be a reference to a period of forty years from the date on which its construction is completed.

Explanation I.-For the purposes of this section"

(a) the construction of a building shall be deemed to have been completed on the date on which the completion thereof is reported to or otherwise recorded by the local authority having jurisdiction, and, in the case of a building subject to assessment, the date on which the first assessment thereof comes into effect and where the said dates are different, the earliest of the said dates, and in the absence of any such report, record or assessment, the date on which it is actually occupied (not including occupation merely for the purposes of supervising the construction or guarding the building under construction) for the first time:

Provided that there may be different dates of completion of construction in respect of different parts of a building which are either designed as separate units or are occupied separately by the landlord and one or more tenants or by different tenants;

(b) "construction" includes any new construction in place of an existing building which has been wholly or substantially demolished;

(c) where such substantial addition is made to an existing building that the existing building becomes only a minor part thereof, the whole of the building, including the existing building, shall be deemed to be constructed on the date of completion of the said addition."

"Section 34- Power of various authorities and procedure to be followed by them:- (1) The District Magistrate, the Prescribed Authority or any Appellate or Revising Authority shall for the purposes of holding any inquiry or hearing any appeal or revision under this Act have the same powers as are vested in the Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act No. V of 1908), when trying a suit, in respect of the following matters namely –

(c) inspecting a building or its locality, or issuing commission for the examination of witnesses or documents or local investigation;

…. …… …..

"Section 75. Power of Court to issue commissions.-Subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may issue a commission-

(a) to examine any person;

(b) to make a local investigation;

(c) to examine or adjust accounts; or

(d) to make a partition;

(e) to hold a scientific, technical, or expert investigation;

(f) to conduct sale of property which is subject to speedy and natural decay and which is in the custody of the Court pending the determination of the suit;

(g) to perform any ministerial act."

Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC

"9. Commissions to make local investigations.-In any suit in which the Court deems a local investigation to be requisite or proper for the purpose of elucidating any matter in dispute, or of ascertaining the market-value of any property, or the amount of any mesne profits or damages or annual net profits, the Court may issue a commission to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such investigation and to report thereon to the Court:

Provided that, where the State Government has made rules as to the persons to whom such commission shall be issued, the Court shall be bound by such rules."

23. A conjoint reading of the aforesaid provisions reveals a well-defined legislative scheme. Section 2 embodies the substantive law governing exemption of newly constructed buildings from the operation of U.P. Act No.XIII of 1972. It not only prescribes the period during which such exemption operates but also lays down objective statutory tests for determining the date of completion of construction. Explanation I specifically provides that the construction of a building shall be deemed to have been completed on the date on which the completion thereof is reported to or otherwise recorded by the local authority having jurisdiction, and, in the case of a building subject to assessment, on the date on which the first assessment thereof comes into effect. Where these dates are different, the earliest of the said dates shall prevail and, in the absence of any such report, record or assessment, the date on which the building is actually occupied shall be deemed to be the date of completion.

24. Explanation I further clarifies that "construction" includes a new construction in place of an existing building which has been wholly or substantially demolished, while clause (c) extends the concept to cases where substantial additions are made to an existing building such that the existing building becomes only a minor part thereof.

25. Unlike Section 2, which creates substantive rights and liabilities, Section 34 is procedural. It incorporates, for the limited purpose of conducting inquiries, appeals and revisions under the Act, certain powers exercisable by a Civil Court under the Code of Civil Procedure. Clause (c) thereof authorises the District Magistrate, the Prescribed Authority and the Appellate or Revising Authority to inspect a building or its locality or to issue a commission for examination of witnesses or documents or for local investigation.

26. The manner in which the power contemplated by Section 34(1)(c) is to be exercised is regulated by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure. Section 75 CPC authorises the Court to issue commissions, inter alia, for making a local investigation, while Order XXVI Rule 9 prescribes the circumstances in which such power may be exercised. Significantly, Order XXVI Rule 9 permits issuance of a commission only where the Court considers a local investigation to be "requisite or proper" for elucidating a matter in dispute. The provision, therefore, contemplates local investigation as an aid to the adjudicatory process and not as an independent mechanism for collection of evidence at the instance of a litigant.

27. Equally significant is the use of the expression "may issue a commission" in Section 75 CPC as well as Order XXVI Rule 9. The language employed is clearly enabling and discretionary, not mandatory. Consequently, no litigant possesses a vested or enforceable right to insist upon appointment of a Commissioner merely because an application has been made. Whether a local investigation is requisite or proper is a matter resting exclusively within the judicial discretion of the adjudicating authority, to be exercised having regard to the nature of the controversy, the evidence already available on record and the necessity of such investigation for effective adjudication.

28. Thus, while Section 2 prescribes the substantive criteria for determining whether a building is entitled to exemption from the operation of the Act as a newly constructed building, Section 34 equips the statutory authorities with procedural powers analogous to those exercised by a Civil Court. The substantive enquiry under Section 2 and the procedural power under Section 34 operate in distinct fields and ought not to be conflated. The question whether a building constitutes a "new construction" is ordinarily required to be determined on the basis of the objective statutory indicia contemplated under Section 2, whereas a commission under Section 34 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC may be issued only where the adjudicating authority finds that a local investigation is indispensable for proper elucidation of the controversy and the dispute cannot satisfactorily be resolved on the basis of the evidence already available on record.

29. The interpretation placed upon the aforesaid provisions also finds consistent judicial recognition. In Sanjay alias Mathura v. Onkar Arora3, this Court, while interpreting Section 34(1)(c)(c) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC, held that the power to issue a commission is discretionary and cannot be exercised to enable a litigant to collect evidence, fill lacunae in its case or embark upon a fishing or roving enquiry. The Court observed that a commission for local investigation is intended to assist the adjudicating authority where such investigation is necessary for effective adjudication of the dispute and not to relieve a party of its obligation to establish its case by leading legally admissible evidence.

30. The view taken in Sanjay alias Mathura is in consonance with the long-settled line of authority of this Court. In Ranbir Singh Sheoran v. VIth Additional District Judge, Muzaffar Nagar,4 it was held that local investigation is warranted only where clarification of some ambiguity in the evidence becomes necessary and not for collecting evidence on behalf of a litigant. Likewise, in Son Pal v. Vth Additional District Judge, Aligarh5, it was held that the necessity of local inspection lies entirely within the discretion of the Court. Similar principles were applied in Avinash Chandra Tewari v. A.D.J., Court No. 3, Unnao6,wherein it was reiterated that appointment of a Commissioner is not a matter of right and that the power is to be exercised only where local investigation is necessary for proper adjudication of the controversy.

31. The common thread running through the aforesaid decisions is that the jurisdiction to appoint a Commissioner for local investigation is intended to aid the adjudicatory process and not to facilitate collection of evidence for either party. Such power is liable to be exercised only where a local investigation becomes indispensable for elucidating a matter in controversy which cannot satisfactorily be resolved on the basis of the pleadings and the documentary and oral evidence already available on record. Conversely, where the dispute is capable of effective adjudication upon appreciation of the evidence adduced by the parties, refusal to issue a commission is an equally valid exercise of judicial discretion.

32. Having examined the statutory scheme and the legal principles governing the exercise of power under Section 34(1)(c) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC, this Court now proceeds to consider whether the authorities below committed any jurisdictional error or material illegality in rejecting the petitioner's applications for issuance of a commission.□□

33. The principal plank of the petitioner's challenge is that the authorities below committed a manifest error in declining the prayer for appointment of an Advocate Commissioner despite the consistent defence that the disputed premises constitute a newly constructed building, allegedly reconstructed during the years 2000□2002 after demolition of the earlier structure. According to the petitioner, if the said plea is ultimately accepted, the building would stand exempt from the operation of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 and, consequently, the release proceedings instituted under Section 21(1)(a) of the Act would themselves be rendered incompetent. It is in this backdrop that the petitioner contends that a local investigation was indispensable for determining the nature and age of the construction.

34. It has further been urged that the prayer for appointment of a Commissioner was not intended to collect evidence but merely to enable the authorities to ascertain the physical characteristics of the existing structure, such as RCC pillars, beams, slabs and other constructional features, which, according to the petitioner, would objectively establish that the building was a fresh construction. It has also been submitted that since the question regarding the applicability of the Act goes to the very root of the jurisdiction of the Prescribed Authority, refusal to direct a local investigation has deprived the petitioner of an effective opportunity to establish the foundational defence.

35. The aforesaid submissions, though attractive at first blush, cannot be accepted. As noticed hereinabove, the power to issue a commission under Section 34(1)(c) of the Act read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC is not intended to be exercised merely because a material fact is disputed between the parties. The jurisdiction is discretionary and is to be invoked only where the Court considers a local investigation to be requisite or proper for elucidating a matter in controversy which cannot satisfactorily be resolved on the basis of the pleadings and the evidence already available on record. The existence of a dispute, however substantial, does not by itself furnish a ground for appointment of a Commissioner.

36. Equally, the contention that the issue regarding the applicability of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 goes to the root of the jurisdiction of the Prescribed Authority does not, by itself, advance the petitioner's case. The significance of the issue cannot determine the procedure by which it is to be adjudicated. Whether the premises are exempt from the operation of the Act is undoubtedly a jurisdictional question; nevertheless, it remains a question to be decided by the competent authority upon appreciation of the legally admissible evidence produced by the parties. The appointment of a Commissioner is only a procedural aid to facilitate adjudication where necessary and cannot be elevated to a mandatory requirement merely because the issue involved is jurisdictional in nature.

37. The distinction sought to be drawn by the petitioner between "ascertaining the physical features of the building" and "collecting evidence" is equally devoid of substance. The application seeking appointment of a Commissioner itself discloses that the object of the proposed local investigation was to establish that the disputed premises constituted a newly constructed building exempt from the operation of the Act. The proposed inspection was, therefore, intended to substantiate the factual foundation of the petitioner's defence. Once the purpose of the commission is to prove a fact which the applicant is otherwise required to establish by leading legally admissible evidence, the exercise inevitably assumes the character of evidence-gathering, which lies beyond the permissible scope of Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC.

38. The respondent has also rightly contended that proceedings under Section 21(1)(a) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 are ordinarily adjudicated on the basis of affidavits and documentary evidence and that appointment of a Commissioner cannot be claimed as a matter of right. A litigant cannot invoke the machinery of local investigation merely because it considers such a course advantageous to its case or because it seeks to reinforce the evidentiary foundation of a plea already taken. These submissions are in consonance with the settled principles governing the exercise of power under Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC, as noticed hereinbefore.

39. Learned counsel for the petitioner has also questioned the reliance placed upon the municipal assessment records by contending that the said records neither formed part of the record before the authorities below nor conclusively establish that the building was constructed in the year 1980. It has further been urged that the first assessment of the RCC structure came into effect only from 01.04.2016 and that the recital regarding the year of construction is erroneous. These submissions, however, do not materially advance the controversy arising in the present petition. The Appellate Authority, in its order dated 11.09.2025, while rejecting Application No. 17-C filed by the petitioner seeking appointment of an Advocate Commissioner, recorded that the landlord had already placed the documents pertaining to the municipal assessment of the disputed premises and that the tenant had failed to adduce any evidence to the contrary. Moreover, the question before this Court is not whether the municipal assessment records conclusively determine the age of the building or whether the entries recorded therein are ultimately correct. Those are matters pertaining to appreciation of evidence in the substantive proceedings. The limited issue is whether the material available before the authorities was sufficient to enable them to form the opinion that local investigation was unnecessary. Viewed from that perspective, any challenge to the evidentiary value or correctness of the municipal records cannot, by itself, render the impugned orders vulnerable to interference under Article 227 of the Constitution.

40. Viewed holistically, the petitioner's application for local investigation did not seek elucidation of any ambiguity which the existing record was incapable of resolving. The real object of the application was to secure additional material in support of the plea that the disputed premises constituted a newly constructed building exempt from the operation of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972. The petitioner had already been afforded adequate opportunity before the Prescribed Authority to establish the said plea by leading oral as well as documentary evidence. Having failed to place even prima facie material capable of substantiating the plea of new construction, the petitioner could not legitimately invoke the machinery of local investigation to overcome the evidentiary deficiency in its case.

41. In the facts of the present case, appointment of a Commissioner would not have served the object contemplated under Section 34(1)(c) of the Act read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC, namely, to assist the Court in elucidating a matter which could not satisfactorily be determined on the basis of the evidence already available. On the contrary, it would have converted a procedural device intended to aid the adjudicatory process into a means of collecting evidence or strengthening the factual foundation of the petitioner's defence. Such an exercise falls clearly outside the scope of Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC and would run contrary to the principle enunciated by this Court in Sanjay alias Mathura, as also the long-settled line of authority commencing from Ranbir Singh Sheoran, followed in Son Pal and Avinash Chandra Tewari, that a commission cannot be issued for collecting evidence, filling lacunae or embarking upon a roving enquiry. Equally well settled is the principle that where the controversy is capable of being effectively adjudicated on the basis of the pleadings and the evidence already on record, refusal to appoint a Commissioner constitutes an equally valid exercise of judicial discretion.

42. This Court is, therefore, satisfied that the discretion exercised by the Prescribed Authority, as affirmed by the Appellate Authority, neither suffers from arbitrariness nor discloses any patent illegality, perversity or jurisdictional infirmity. The impugned orders reflect a correct appreciation of the statutory framework contained in Sections 2 and 34(1)(c) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC and are in accord with the settled principles governing appointment of Commissioners for local investigation.

43. The supervisory jurisdiction of this Court under Article 227 of the Constitution of India is intended to ensure that courts and tribunals subordinate to it act within the bounds of their authority and in accordance with law. It is neither appellate nor intended to correct every erroneous decision. Interference with a discretionary or procedural order is warranted only where the authority has acted without jurisdiction, failed to exercise jurisdiction vested in it, acted in patent disregard of settled legal principles, or where the order suffers from manifest perversity, patent illegality or has occasioned a failure of justice. The mere possibility of another view or the fact that this Court may have exercised the discretion differently cannot, by itself, justify interference.

44. Tested on the aforesaid parameters, the impugned orders do not warrant interference. The discretion vested in the authorities below has been exercised upon due consideration of the pleadings, the documentary material on record and the governing statutory provisions. The view taken is in consonance with the settled principles governing the exercise of power under Section 34(1)(c) of U.P. Act No. XIII of 1972 read with Section 75 and Order XXVI Rule 9 CPC.

45. The petition, being devoid of merit, is accordingly dismissed. There shall be no order as to costs.

Head Notes

The Representation of Peoples Act, 1951- Sections-30, 36(2)(a) read with Sections 100(1)(a), 100(1)(b), 100(1)(d)(i) and 100(2)(d)- Election Tribunal is having no authority to verify the correctness of Caste Certificate and it is only for the committees so constituted by the State Government by different Government Orders-Caste certificate cannot be challenged in election petition and can be challenged under the provisions of statutes and in present case, before the Committee constituted under Government Order.

Held- Caste Certificate issued by the competent authority neither can be challenged nor can be scrutinized by the Election Tribunal in Election Petition. In present matter too, there are three Committees i.e. District, Regional and State Level Committee constituted by State Government by different Government Orders for scrutiny of caste certificate, which are only having authority to validate or invalidate caste certificate. Further, Election Tribunal is having no authority to deal with such matters.

Election petition lacks merit and is dismissed. (E-15)

Counsel for Respondent(s) : Ashutosh Mishra, Dinesh Yadav, K.R. Singh, Mohd Rehan Ansari, P.K. Kashyap, Pradeep Kumar

(Delivered by Hon'ble Neeraj Tiwari, J.)

1. Heard Sri Ram Kumar Gautam, learned counsel for petitioner, learned Standing Counsel for respondent no.1 and Sri P.K. Kashyap, learned counsel for respondent no. 2.

2. Present election petition has been filed seeking following relief:-

"I) to declaration and election of the respondent No. 3 Vinay Prakash Gond as a Member of Legislative Assembly U.P. from 335 Ram Kola legislative assembly constituency of District Kushinagar to be set aside and be declared as null and void.

II) To grant such other relied as this Hon'ble Court may deem fit and proper under the facts and circumstances of the existing in the present case."

3. Brief facts of the case are that Election Commission of India, New Delhi (hereinafter referred as 'ECI') vide Notification dated 04.02.2022 declared election for U.P. Legislative Assembly-2022 under Section 30 of Representation of Peoples Act, 1951 (hereinafter referred as ' Act, 1951').

4. Present election dispute pertains to 335 Ram Kola Assembly Constituency reserved for Schedule Caste candidates. The date of nomination form was from 05.02.2022 to 11.02.2022, date of scrutiny of nomination form was from 12.02.2022 to 14.02.2022, dates for withdrawal of nomination form was from 16.02.2022 to 17.02.2022, date of polling was 03.03.2022, date of counting of votes was 10.03.2022 and the date of completion of election was 20.03.2022. Many candidates have filed nomination papers and petitioner was also one them along with Vinay Prakash Gond (returned candidate), respondent no. 2.

5. Case of the petitioner is that Vinay Prakash Gond (returned candidate) belongs to Backward Class whereas obtaining Schedule Caste Certificate dated 30.08.2012 (in short 'SC Certificat') fraudulently and filed nomination papers for the said election relying upon that SC Certificate. Against that, petitioner has immediately filed complaint before the Returning Officer on 14.02.2022 with a prayer to cancel the nomination on the ground of false caste certificate, but the said complaint was rejected by the Returning Officer. Ultimately, election was held on 03.03.2022 in which Vinay Prakash Gond was declared returned candidate i.e. elected candidate.

6. Against the said election, present election petition has been filed. The sole ground so taken is that returned candidate has obtained SC Certificate fraudulently as he belongs to Other Backward Class (in short 'OBC'). It is undisputed that said certificate is under challenge before the District Level Committee constituted by the State Government and till date, no decision has been taken upon the same. Aforesaid complaint is still pending for final disposal. It is prayed that as returned candidate has obtained SC Certificate fraudulently, therefore, his election as a Member of Legislative Assembly, U.P. from 335 Ram Kola Assembly Constituency has to be set aside and declared null and void.

7. A written submission has also been filed by the opposite party no. 2 (returned candidate) denying the allegation so levelled against him. It is specifically stated in the written submission that in the light of Government Order dated 03.12.1987, the ?Gond Caste? is included in the list of SC and 'Kahar Caste' is included in the list of OBC. Opposite party no. 2 belongs to Gond Caste, therefore, he is entitled for the SC Certificate, which was issued in his favour. It is also stated in the written submission that caste certificate so issued to him was subjected to scrutiny by the District Level Committee, there it was found genuine and duly issued by the said Committee. It is also stated that though the SC Certificate issued to opposite party no. 2 is under challenged before the District Level Committee, but till date same has not been cancelled.

8. Present case was heard on so many occasions and an application under Order 7 Rule 11 of CPC was also filed, but the same was rejected vide order dated 29.07.2024. Later on, this Court vide order dated 18.09.2024 has framed issues, which are quoted herein-below:-

"2. In the present election petition following issues have been framed:-

(i) As to whether nomination paper filed by respondent No. 2 was properly accepted by the returning officer or not.

(ii) Whether the Tribunal has jurisdiction to declare that the caste certificate forged or not.

(iii) Whether the caste certificate submitted by the respondent No. 2 in support of his nomination is forged or fake.

(iv) Whether the caste certificate upon which respondent No. 2 has contested the election was valid on the date of election or not.

(v) Whether the election is contested by the respondent No. 2 based upon caste certificate dated 13.03.2018, whereas, in election petition caste certificate dated 30.08.2012 has been annexed which is in question, the consequences thereof.

(vi) Reliefs and costs."

9. Thereafter, the examination in chief of the witnesses was taken on record as well as their cross examination has also been recorded and concluded on 03.04.2026. In light of undisputed fact that SC Certificate of opposite party no. 2 has never been cancelled by District Level Committee or any other Authority authorized for the same, it is agreed and requested by the parties on 27.04.2026 to decide issue number no. 2 first. Thereafter Court has fixed 14.05.2026 and heard learned counsels for parties on this issue. Issue no. (ii) is reiterated herein-below:-

"(ii) Whether the Tribunal has jurisdiction to declare that the caste certificate forged or not."

10. Learned counsel for petitioner firmly submitted that in light of Section 36(2)(a) read with Sections 100(1)(a), 100(1)(b), 100(1)(d)(i) and 100(2)(d) of the Representation of People Act, 1950 (hereinafter referred to as 'Act, 1950'), the Election Tribunal is having enough power to examine the genuineness of every documents submitted along with nomination papers before the Returning Officer. This also includes the genuineness of the caste certificate even if its genuineness is under challenged before the District Level Committee and pending. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance of the judgment of Madhya Pradesh High Court in the matter of Ramlal Kol vs. Moti Kashyap @ Motilal; AIR 2014 NOC 529 MP and High Court of Bombay in the matter of Anandra Vithoba Adsul; Raju Shamrao Mankar; Navneet Kaur Harbhajansingh Kundles @ Navneet Kaur Ravi Rana vs. State of Maharashtra; District Caste Scrutiny Committee; 2021 LawSuit (Bom) 650.

11. Per contra, Sri P.K. Kashyap, learned counsel for opposite party no.2 (returned candidate) firmly submitted that the State Government has issued Government Order dated 05.01.1996 for issuance of Caste Certificate and further Government Order dated 27.01.2011 for constitution of Divisional Level Committee as well as Government Order dated 28.02.2011 for constitution of District Level Committee to verify or scrutiny the caste certificate. He also pointed out that there is another committee known as State Level Committee in order of hierarchy, whose decision is final. He also pointed out that in case of any doubt or genuineness of the caste certificate, it is required to file complaint before the District Level Committee and in case same is rejected, there is remedy to challenge the same before the Divisional Level Committee. Thereafter State Level Committee is the final authority against the order of Divisional Level Committee. So far as present case is concerned, it is undisputed that as on date, SC Certificate so issued is only under challenged before the District Level Committee and still pending for disposal. So far as Election Tribunal is concerned, it is having no authority to verify the validity of the caste certificate duly issued by the authority competent for the same. In support of his contention, he has placed reliance upon the judgments of Apex Court, this Court as well as other High Courts in the matters of Hizwana Bano vs. State of U.P. Thru? Collector and others; Writ-C No. 69019 of 2010, Dayaram vs. Sudhir Batham & Ors; 2012 (1) SCC 333, Navneet Kaur Harbhajansing Kundles @? vs. The State of Maharastra; Civil Appeal No(s). 2741-2743 of 2024, Kumari Madhuri Patil vs. Addl. Commissioner; 1994 SCC (6) 241, Vishwanath S/O. Mahadeo Alte and others vs. Dr. Kalge Shivaji Bandappa and other; 2024:BHC-AUG:21373, Jai Prakash Chaurasiya vs. State of U.P. Thru. Prin?; Writ-C No. 8859 of 2022, Tahira Begam vs. State of U.P.; Writ-C No. 1951 of 2023, A. Raja vs. D. Kumar; 2025 INSC 62 G.

12. In the rejoinder argument, Sri R.K. Gautam, learned counsel for petitioner reiterated his earlier contention and submitted that Election Tribunal is having ample power to examine the genuineness of caste certificate and also to declare the same void, if found false.

13. I have considered rival submissions advanced by counsels for parties and perused the records as well as judgments cited above.

14. There is no dispute on the point that there is a self contained mechanism for issuance of caste certificate and further to challenge the same in case of acceptance or rejection, there is forum starting from District Level Committee to Divisional Level Committee and State Level Committee in order of hierarchy.

15. Learned counsel for petitioner has basically relied upon the judgment of Ramlal Kol (Supra) and submitted that in light of para 39 of the judgment, genuineness of case certificate was questioned and the returning officer ought to have verified as to whether such certificate was at all issued. So far as this judgment is concerned, the same is not in the rescue of petitioner only for the reasons that here there is no dispute on the point that caste certificate so questioned has been duly issued by the competent authority, therefore, there is no occasion for Returning Officer to question the same unless it is cancelled or annulled by the authority competent for the same. He has also placed reliance upon the judgment of Anandra Vithoba Adsul (Supra). Against the said order, matter went up to Apex Court in Civil Appeal No(s). 2741-2743 of 2024; Navneet Kaur Harbhajansing Kundles @ Navneet Kaur Ravi Rana vs. State of Maharastra and others and Apex Court has overruled the same. Therefore, same cannot be taken into consideration.

16. I have also perused the Government Order dated 05.01.1996, which clearly provides mechanism for issuance of caste certificate having Administrative Officers in the Committee. First time this issue came before the Apex Court in the matter of Kumari Madhuri Patil (Supra) and after considering the issue, Apex Court has framed detailed guidelines in the said case which is quoted below:-

"The admission wrongly gained or appointment wrongly obtained on the basis of false social status certificate necessarily have the effect of depriving the genuine Scheduled Castes or Scheduled Tribes or OBC candidates as enjoined in the Constitution of the benefits conferred on them by the Constitution. The genuine candidates are also denied admission to educational institutions or appointments to office or posts under a State for want of social status certificate. The ineligible or spurious persons who falsely gained entry resort to dilatory tactics and create hurdles in completion of the inquiries by the Scrutiny Committee. It is true that the applications for admission to educational institutions are generally made by a parent, since on that date many a time the student may be a minor. It is the parent or the guardian who may play fraud claiming false status certificate. It is, therefore, necessary that the certificates issued are scrutinised at the earliest and with utmost expedition and promptitude. For that purpose, it is necessary to streamline the procedure for the issuance of social status certificates, their scrutiny and their approval, which may be the following:

1. The application for grant of social status certificate shall be made to the Revenue Sub-Divisional Officer and Deputy Collector or Deputy Commissioner and the certificate shall be issued by such officer rather than at the Officer, Taluk or Mandal level.

2. The parent, guardian or the candidate, as the case may be, shall file an affidavit duly sworn and attested by a competent gazetted officer or non-gazetted officer with particulars of castes and sub-castes, tribe, tribal community, parts or groups of tribes or tribal communities, the place from which he originally hails from and other particulars as may be prescribed by the concerned Directorate.

3. Application for verification of the caste certificate by the Scrutiny Committee shall be filed at least six months in advance before seeking admission into educational institution or an appointment to a post.

4. All the State Governments shall constitute a Committee of three officers, namely, (1) an Additional or Joint Secretary or any officer higher in rank of the Director of the concerned department, (11) the Director, Social Welfare/Tribal Welfare/Backward Class Welfare, as the case may be, and (III) in the case of Scheduled Castes another officer who has intimate knowledge in the verification and issuance of the social status certificates. In the case of the Scheduled Tribes, the Research Officer who has intimate knowledge in identifying the tribes, tribal communities, parts of or groups of tribes or tribal communities.

5. Each Directorate should constitute a vigilance cell consisting of Senior Deputy Superintendent of Police in over-all charge and such number of Police Inspectors to investigate into the social status claims. The Inspector would go to the local place of residence and original place from which the candidate hails and usually resides or in case of migration to the town or city, the place from which he originally hailed from. The vigilance officer should personally verify and collect all the facts of the social status claimed by the candidate or the parent or guardian, as the case may be. He also should examine the school records, birth registration, if any. He should also examine the parent, guardian or the candidate in relation to their caste etc. or such other persons who have knowledge of the social status of the candidate and then submit a report to the Directorate together with all particulars as envisaged in the pro forma, in particular, of the Scheduled Tribes relating to their peculiar anthropological and ethnological traits, deity, rituals, customs, mode of marriage, death ceremonies, method of burial of dead bodies etc. by the castes or tribes or tribal communities concerned etc.

6. The Director concerned, on receipt of the report from the vigilance officer if he found the claim for social status to be "not genuine" or doubtful or spurious or falsely or wrongly claimed, the Director concerned should issue show-cause notice supplying a copy of the report of the vigilance officer to the candidate by a registered post with acknowledgement due or through the head of the concerned educational institution in which the candidate is studying or employed. The notice should indicate that the representation or reply, if any, would be made within two weeks from the date of the receipt of the notice and in no case on request not more than 30 days from the date of the receipt of the notice. In case, the candidate seeks for an opportunity of hearing and claims an inquiry to be made in that behalf, the Director on receipt of such representation/reply shall convene the committee and the Joint/Additional Secretary as Chairperson who shall give reasonable opportunity to the candidate/parent/guardian to adduce all evidence in support of their claim. A public notice by beat of drum or any other convenient mode may be published in the village or locality and if any person or association opposes such a claim, an opportunity to adduce evidence may be given to him/it. After giving such opportunity either in person or through counsel, the Committee may make such inquiry as it deems expedient and consider the claims vis-a-vis the objections raised by the candidate or opponent and pass an appropriate order with brief reasons in support thereof.

7. In case the report is in favour of the candidate and found to be genuine and true, no further action need be taken except where the report or the particulars given are procured or found to be false or fraudulently obtained and in the latter event the same procedure as is envisaged in para 6 be followed.

8. Notice contemplated in para 6 should be issued to the parents/guardian also in case candidate is minor to appear before the Committee with all evidence in his or their support of the claim for the social status certificates.

9. The inquiry should be completed as expeditiously as possible preferably by day-to-day proceedings within such period not exceeding two months. If after inquiry, the Caste Scrutiny Committee finds the claim to be false or spurious, they should pass an order cancelling the certificate issued and confiscate the same. It should communicate within one month from the date of the conclusion of the proceedings the result of enquiry to the parent/guardian and the applicant.

10. In case of any delay in finalising the proceedings, and in the meanwhile the last date for admission into an educational institution or appointment to an officer post, is getting expired, the candidate be admitted by the Principal or such other authority competent in that behalf or appointed on the basis of the social status certificate already issued or an affidavit duly sworn by the parent/guardian/candidate before the competent officer or non-official and such admission or appointment should be only provisional, subject to the result of the inquiry by the Scrutiny Committee.

11. The order passed by the Committee shall be final and conclusive only subject to the proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution.

12. No suit or other proceedings before any other authority should lie.

13. The High Court would dispose of these cases as expeditiously as possible within a period of three months. In case, as per its procedure, the writ petition/miscellaneous petition/matter is disposed of by a Single Judge, then no further appeal would lie against that order to the Division Bench but subject to special leave under Article 136.

14. In case, the certificate obtained or social status claimed is found to be false, the parent/guardian/the candidate should be prosecuted for making false claim. If the prosecution ends in a conviction and sentence of the accused, it could be regarded as an offence involving moral turpitude, disqualification for elective posts or offices under the State or the Union or elections to any local body, legislature or Parliament.

15. As soon as the finding is recorded by the Scrutiny Committee holding that the certificate obtained was false, on its cancellation and confiscation simultaneously, it should be communicated to the concerned educational institution or the appointing authority by registered post with acknowledgement due with a request to cancel the admission or the appointment. The Principal etc. of the educational institution responsible for making the admission or the appointing authority, should cancel the admission/appointment without any further notice to the candidate and debar the candidate for further study or continue in office in a post."

17. The Apex Court has held that all State Governments shall constitute a committee of three officers for said purpose and has also held that order passed by the committee shall be final and conclusive only to proceeding under Article 226 of Constitution of India. Apex Court was of the firm view that only committee so constituted is having authority to consider the issuance and correctness of caste certificate. This matter again came up before the Apex Court in the matter of Dayaram (Supra) and after considering the judgment of Kumari Madhuri Patil (Supra), Apex Court has elaborated the functions of Scrutiny Committee, which provides for Vigilance Cell, whose report is mandatory and relying upon the report of Vigilance Report, caste certificate may be issued or cancelled.

18. In one of the matter, caste certificate issued by the committee was cancelled by the High Court of Bombay in the matter of Anandra Vithoba Adsul(Supra) and the same matter came up before the Apex Court in the matter of Navneet Kaur (Supra), in which Apex Court after considering the facts of the case as well as law has held that High Court inadvertently undertook in exercise of jurisdiction under Article 226 of Constitution of India. Relevant paragraph of the said judgment is quoted below:-

"In view of the aforesaid discussion, we are of the considered opinion that High Court inadvertently undertook an erroneous exercise of appreciating evidence in exercise of its jurisdiction under Artice 226 of Constitution of India and swayed itself into a roving inquiry which was not expected as per settled legal position. At the cost of repetition, we again observe that under Rule 13(2)(a) of 2012 Rules, the adjudication on the basis of the documents falls solely within the domain of Scrutiny Committee based on the inputs received from the Vigilance Cell. The Scrutiny Committee is an expert forum armed with fact finding authority. The High Court ought not to have interfered, especially when Scrutiny Committee had followed the due procedure under Rule 12, 17 and 18 of the 2012 Rules and that there was nothing perverse about a finding of fact."

19. In the said case, Apex Court has held that Scrutiny Committee is a expert forum armed with the fact finding authority, meaning thereby ratio of law is that decision so taken by the Scrutiny Committee cannot be interfered by the High Court in Election Petition.

20. This issue also came before the Bombay High Court in the matter of Vishwanath (Supra), in which Court has taken same view. Relevant paragraph is quoted below:-

"Considering the law as noted above, it is to be required to be noted that the returned candidate has caste certificate and a caste validity certificate in his favour granted by the quasi judicial authority i.e. by the Caste Scrutiny Committee. The caste certificate and validity certificates were produced before the Returning Officer at the stage of scrutiny. The reasoned order of the Returning Officer rejecting the objections is not annexed with the petition. The election petitioners have produced incomplete documents which were before the Caste Scrutiny Committee on the basis of which they seek declaration that the respondent No. 1 does not belong to Scheduled Caste Category as claimed by him as "Mala Jangam". This Court in absence of pleading of material facts as to how the judgment of the caste validity certificate is obtained by fraud cannot entertain the EP 3 & 6/24 present election petitions as the Caste Scrutiny Committee under the 2000 Act has exclusive jurisdiction to determine the validity of caste certificate granted in favour of the returned candidate. Enquiry cannot be conducted in the status of the returned candidate and he be declared as not belonging to "Mala Jangam" community scheduled caste as the returned candidate has a caste validity certificate in his favour by the Caste Scrutiny Committee which has exclusive jurisdiction to grant caste validity certificate. "

21. The same issue was also came before this Court in the matter of Hizwana Bano (Supra) and Court while considering the the judgment of Kumari Madhuri Patil (Supra) has reiterated that it is upon the Scrutiny Committee to validate or invalidate the caste certificate. Relevant paragraphs of the said judgment are quoted below:-

"In Kumari Madhuri Patil (supra), the relevant directions of the Supreme Court are contained in direction nos. 4 to 9. In other words, the caste certificate issued in terms of direction no. (1) to be valid, can only be verified by the Committee and not by the Revenue Officers, like Sub-Divisional Officers, Deputy Collector or Deputy Commissioner, in the present case, the respondent no. 2. The respondent no. 2, for the purpose of granting a caste certificate, has to consider what has been set out in para 3 of the Government Order, which is in consonance with the direction no. 2 of the directions issued by the Supreme Court in Kumari Madhuri Patil (supra). It is only in the event, the respondent no. 2 is satisfied, based on the material produced before him that the applicant belongs to the caste / tribe, then only the certificate would be verified. Once that be the procedure, it is not open to the respondent no. 2 to assume jurisdiction to cancel the caste certificate except may be in a case of fraud on the face of the record, as fraud vitiates all actions. Respondent no. 2, therefore, ordinarily would have no jurisdiction to reconsider the issuance of the caste certificate and pass orders cancelling the certificate or otherwise.

When a complainant contends that a caste certificate was wrongly issued or obtained by suppressing facts or the like, then in that event, it would be open to the complainant, even if the complainant is a stranger as long as his rights are affected, to move the Caste Scrutiny Committee, to verify the caste certificate by setting out the reasons and objections as to why the caste certificate should not be verified. Para 3 of the Government Order would show that verification is not only with regard to admission in any educational institution or appointment in any service but also for other reasons. Therefore, whenever a person seeks to rely on a caste certificate for claiming any benefits, he would be entitled to, then in that event, if a complainant intervenes to oppose the verification of such caste certificate or independently applies before the Caste Scrutiny Committee, the procedure for verification shall be followed and necessary orders shall be passed by the Committee after following due procedure.

We may further point out that even if a caste certificate is verified, it does not prevent an aggrieved person from challenging the validity of the caste certificate before this Court, even if he had not complained earlier, as long as he is an aggrieved person and there is material to show that the verification was obtained by suppressing facts or material or by playing fraud on the Committee or the like.

If the issue is now considered in the light of the above discussions, it would be clear that the respondent no. 2 would cease to have jurisdiction, once the caste certificate was issued. The Tehsildar in these circumstances would have no authority to recall or cancel the same, except may be in a case of fraud. Respondent no. 2, however, would have the power to correct clerical or artificial mistakes. The jurisdiction to verify the caste certificate and whether it should be validated or invalidated is of the Caste Scrutiny Committee.

Clearly, therefore, the prayer sought for by the petitioner to direct the respondent no. 2 to decide the complaint, in our opinion, cannot be granted in the absence of jurisdiction vested in respondent no. 2. It is, however, open to the petitioner to move the Competent Authority, i.e. Caste Scrutiny Committee to dispute the validity of the caste certificate issued in favour of respondent no. 3, if not already verified. The Committee can then consider the issue. What happens if the Committee fails to validate the caste certificate, is not required to be answered in the present petition as there is nothing on record to show that the petitioner has filed an election petition challenging the election of respondent no. 3."

22. Again, in the matter of Jai Prakash Chaurasiya (Supra) this Court was of the same view that District Level Committee and Divisional Level Committee have been constituted to look into the validity of the caste certificate. Relevant paragraphs are quoted below:-

"9. The Supreme Court has also dealt with in paras 11 and 12 of the said judgment that the orders passed by Scrutiny Committee shall be final and conclusive only subject to the proceedings under Article 226 of the Constitution and that no suit or other proceedings before any other authority should lie.

10. Though in the case of Kumari Madhuri Patil (supra) was confined only for admissions but the same law has been held to be good in election matters. The State Government has issued Government Orders dated 5.1.1996 and 27.1.2011 where the District Level Committee and Divisional Level Committees have been constituted to look into validity of the caste-certificates of the candidates.

11. In light of the judgment of Supreme Court this Court is of the considered view that adjudication with regard to the case of the returned candidate should have been looked into only by the Scrutiny Committee constituted by the State Government. It is also admitted by the parties that the appeal has been preferred against cancellation of the caste-certificate of respondent No.3 which is pending before the Commissioner and the hearing of the appeal has been deferred till such time as the appellate proceeding are finalized.

12. This Court is of the considered view that law in this regard has been correctly interpreted and applied by the Sub Divisional Magistrate, Raniganj and there is no infirmity in the same and the writ petition is liable to be dismissed."

23. After clarification by this Court, it is apparently clear that guidelines so issued by the Apex Court in the matter of Kumari Madhuri Patil (Supra) for admission in educational institution shall also be applicable in election matters meaning thereby the only committee so constituted by the State Government shall have authority to issue or cancel the caste certificate and it is beyond the competence of Court except under Article 226 of Constitution of India after final decisional taken by the State Level Scrutiny Committee. Now this fact is very much clear that Election Tribunal is having no authority to verify the correctness of Caste Certificate and it is only for the committees so constituted by the State Government by different Government Orders.

24. The validity of caste certificate in the election of Kerala Legislative Assembly came before the Apex Court in the matter of A. Raja (Supra) and while considering in detail, Apex Court has given its finding. Relevant paragraph is being quoted below:-

"64. We deem it appropriate to clarify the position in the wake of the present Judgment. A duly issued Caste/Community Certificate would be amenable to challenge only under the provisions of the statute concerned, and not in an Election Petition. In case no statute governing the field in a State/Union Territory is operative, the Madhuri Patil (supra) guidelines, as modified in Dayaram (supra), shall be followed."

25. Once again Apex Court has clarified that caste certificate can not be challenged in election petition and can be challenged under the provisions of statutes and in present case, before the Committee constituted under Government Order.

26. Therefore, it the light of facts mentioned herein above as well as judgments relied upon, now it is crystal clear that Caste Certificate issued by the competent authority neither can be challenged nor it can be scrutinized by the Election Tribunal in Election Petition. In present matter too, there are three Committees i.e. District, Regional and State Level Committee constituted by State Government by different Government Orders for scrutiny of caste certificate, which are only having authority to validate or invalidate caste certificate. Further, Election Tribunal is having no authority to deal with such matters.

27. Therefore, in the light of such facts as well as law discussed herein-above, this Court is of the firm view that election petition lacks merit and is hereby dismissed.

28. No order as to costs.

29. Before parting with the judgment, this Court records its appreciation for the sincere assistance extended by Ms. Moksha Pandey and Ms. Pratiksha Tiwari, Research Associates in researching the legal issues involved and assisting in the preparation of this judgment. Their efforts are gratefully acknowledged.

Criminal Appeal No. 961 of 2012

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the conviction of the appellant for kidnapping a minor from lawful guardianship is sustainable when the trial court itself recorded a categorical finding that the prosecutrix had gone away and stayed with the appellant of her own free will, and when no inducement or active participation by the appellant in taking her away was established.

HEADNOTES

Criminal Law - Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 - Sections - 164, 437-A, 446 - Indian Penal Code, 1860 - Sections 361, 363, 366, 368, 376: - Criminal Appeal – against conviction and sentence - FIR – under section 363, 366, 368, 376 IPC - complainant's sister (aged about 14 years) went missing after appearing in High School Examination and was suspected to have been kidnapped accused persons – investigation resulted in charge-sheet against the appellant and his brother under Sections 363, 366, 368 and 376 IPC – statement of prosecutrix under Section 164 Cr.P.C. recorded wherein she stated she left home of her own free will due to family beating, married the appellant and resided with him willingly – recovery of prosecutrix after about four months – trial initiated leading to conviction only under Section 363 IPC on the basis of High School mark-sheet showing date of birth as minor – Appellant pleaded that the prosecutrix had voluntarily accompanied him without any inducement or force, as evidenced by her prolonged stay, repeated public visits without alarm, and the trial court's own finding of free will which led to acquittal under Sections 366 and 376 IPC – Court finds that the prosecutrix willingly left and stayed with the appellant for four months without protest or attempt to escape, medical evidence showed no injuries and age above 18 years (with mark-sheet being the sole basis for minority), and relying on the distinction drawn in S. Varadarajan v. State of Madras between "taking" and merely allowing a minor to accompany – mere facilitation after voluntary departure does not constitute "taking" under Section 361 IPC – held that once free will is established and no inducement is proved, the offence under Section 363 IPC is not made out – hence the conviction and sentence under Section 363 IPC are set aside and the appellant is acquitted of all charges – appeal allowed - conviction set aside - directions issued accordingly.

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 04.06.2012 passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Barabanki in Session Trial No. 484 of 2011 arising out of Case Crime No. 575 of 2009, Police Station Kotwali Nagar, District Barabanki.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Smt. Kumari Deepa, (with appellant Amit Kumar Tiwari present in person)
Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri G.D. Bhatt, learned AGA-I.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Subhash Vidyarthi, J.)

1. Heard Smt. Kumari Deepa, the learned counsel for the appellant and Shri G.D. Bhatt, the learned AGA-I for the State of U.P.

2. The appellant- Amit Kumar Tiwari is present in person and he has filed an application for recall of order dated 22.05.2026 passed by this Court issuing bailable warrant against the appellant.

3. The appeal is pending since the year 2012. It was admitted on 17.07.2012, the trial Court's record was summoned and the appellant was released on bail. Thereafter, the appeal was listed on 28.03.2026 and 01.05.2026 but the learned Counsel for the appellant did not appear and, therefore, this Court had ordered the Chief Judicial Magistrate Barabanki to issue bailable warrant for ensuring the appellant's presence before this Court on 22.05.2026. When the appellant did not appear even on 22.05.2026, a non-bailable warrant was ordered to be issued against him and on 10.07.2026 the Chief Judicial Magistrate was directed to issue notice to the sureties of the appellant and to take recourse to the provisions of Section 446 Cr.P.C. Now that the appellant has appeared, his learned counsel is pressing the application for recall of the order dated 22.05.2026 only and she says that she is not prepared to advance submissions to assist the Court for the final disposal of the appeal.

4. As the appeal has been pending for more than 14 years, the trial Court's record is available and previously the appellant had not cooperated in disposal of the appeal by his continuous non-appearance, instead of deciding the application for recall of the order dated 22.05.2026, the Court proceeds to decide the appeal on merits after perusal of the record and hearing submissions of the learned AGA-I for the State.

5. By means of the instant appeal, the appellant has challenged the validity of the judgment and order dated 04.06.2012, passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No. 34, Barabanki in Session Trial No. 484 of 2011 arising out of Case Crime No.575 of 2009 under Sections 363, 366, 368, 376 IPC relating to Police Station- Kotwali Nagar, District-Barabanki whereby the appellant has been convicted for the offence under Section 363 IPC and sentenced to undergo 3 years? imprisonment and to pay a fine of Rs. 1,000/- for the said offence. The appellant has been acquitted of charges under Section 366, 368 and 376 IPC.

The appellant's brother Sumit Kumar Tiwari was also tried for the offence under Section 368 IPC and he has been acquitted of the charge.

6. The aforesaid case was instituted on the basis of an FIR lodged on 31.03.2009 stating that the complainant's sister aged about 14 years had gone to appear in the High School Examination in the morning of 31.03.2009 but she did not come back. Dilip Kumar @ Pappu Gupta resided in a house opposite the complainant's house and he was also missing and, therefore, the complainant suspected that Dilip Kumar had kidnapped her.

7. After investigation, a charge-sheet was submitted against the appellant and his brother Sumit Kumar Tiwari on 13.08.2009.

8. The complainant was examined as PW-1. He reiterated the FIR version.

9. The father of the prosecutrix was examined as PW-2. He stated that three months after his daughter had gone missing, he had gone to Gularia Garda Mohalla and saw his daughter standing outside a house. Upon seeing him, she went inside the home and closed the door from the inside. The appellant's brother Sumit Kumar Tiwari came out and told that she had married the appellant, Amit Tiwari. During cross-examination, PW-2 stated that he has 6 children. One of his daughters has died. He does not know the correct date of birth of any of his children. He also stated that he had got his daughter married to one Pawan Kumar.

10. The prosecutrix was examined as DW-3. She stated that when she was returning after appearing in High School Examination on 31.03.2009, the appellant met her on the way and under the pretext of taking her for an excursion, he took her to Gularia Garda, Barabanki, where he kept her locked inside a house. Whenever she asked him to take her back home, the appellant used to take her to Lucknow. He forcibly married her at Lucknow in a marriage bureau and thereafter kept her at his home at Gularia Garda where he used to commit the misdeed against her. The prosecutrix admitted her signatures on the statement under Section 164 Cr.P.C. but she stated that she had given the statement before the Magistrate under the fear of the appellant.

11. The doctor who had conducted the medico-legal examination of the prosecutrix was examined as PW-4. She proved the medico-legal examination report which stated that there was no mark of injury on any part of the prosecutrix’s body, and the pathological examination report, which was negative for presence of spermatozoa or gonococci. PW-4 further stated that the age of the victim was above 18 years. During cross-examination, PW-4 stated that there could be an error margin of two years in the assessed age, on either side.

12. After analyzing the aforesaid evidence, the trial Court held that no offence was established against the appellant's brother Sumit Kumar Tiwari and the commission of offences under Sections 366 and 376 IPC by the appellant was also not established. However, the trial Court held that as the High School marks-sheet of the prosecutrix was available and it mentioned her date of birth as 05.02.1993, no other evidence will be seen regarding her age. As the appellant had taken the minor prosecutrix away from the custody of her lawful guardian the offence under Section 366 IPC is made out.

13. The prosecutrix was recovered on 24.07.2009, i.e., after about 4 months. Her medico-legal examination report mentions no mark of injury on any part of her body, including her private parts. The hymen was found old torn and healed. Vagina admitted two fingers easily. The pathological examination report was negative for the presence of spermatozoa and gonococci. As per X-ray examination, all the epiphysis were fused and the age of the prosecutrix was opined to be above 18 years. However, the High School mark-sheet of the prosecutrix issued on 23.06.2009 mentions her date of birth as 05.02.1993.

14. In the statement of the prosecutrix recorded under Section 164 Cr.P.C. she stated that her family members used to beat her and therefore, she had gone away with the appellant out of her own free will on 31.03.2009. She married the appellant in Chandrika Devi temple at Lucknow on 02.04.2009. Since then, she was residing with the appellant as his wife. She categorically stated that the appellant did not use force against her.

15. The prosecutrix stated in her testimony before the Court that she stayed with the appellant at Gularia Garda, Barabanki. She used to visit Lucknow repeatedly along with the appellant. Both of them used to travel by roadways bus. There used to be a large crowd and presence of police personnel at the bus station. She used to visit the zoo and other crowded places of her interest. She did not make any endeavor to raise any alarm or to escape on any of such numerous visits. Her statement shows that the prosecutrix had willingly gone with the appellant and stayed with him for about four months without any protest or attempt to escape.

16. During cross-examination, a question was put to the prosecutrix that in the ground floor of the house in which the appellant is said to have kept her, her foofa Rajendra Mishra used to reside and although she expressed ignorance about this fact, she did not deny it. She admitted that Rajendra Mishra is her foofa and his son Divakar is her cousin. She admitted that the stairs leading to the upper floor of the house were from inside of the house. She also admitted that persons residing at the ground floor of the house used to sleep on the terrace during summer season.

17. The father of the prosecutrix stated in his testimony that he had gone to Gularia Garda where he saw the prosecutrix standing outside a house and upon seeing him, the prosecutrix went inside the house and closed the door from the inside. Thereafter, the appellant's brother came out of the house and told that the prosecutrix had married his brother. No person had forced the prosecutrix to go inside the house away from her father.

18. After examining the aforesaid evidence, the trial Court held that the evidence shows that the prosecutrix had gone away with the appellant out of her own free will and the appellant had not enticed her away. Accordingly, the trial Court acquitted the appellant of the charges under Sections 366 and 376 IPC. However, the trial Court held that the prosecutrix was minor and, therefore, the offence under Section 363 IPC was made out. Section 363 IPC reads as follows: -

"363. Punishment for kidnapping. -Whoever kidnaps any person from India or from lawful guardianship, shall be punished with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine."

19. The offence of kidnapping is defined in Section 361 IPC as follows: -

"361. - Kidnapping from lawful guardianship. -Whoever takes or entices any minor under sixteen years of age if a male, or under eighteen years of age if a female, or any person of unsound mind, out of the keeping of the lawful guardian of such minor or person of unsound mind, without the consent of such guardian, is said to kidnap such minor or person from lawful guardianship.

Explanation. - The words "lawful guardian" in this section include any person lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of such minor or other person.

Exception. - This section does not extend to the act of any person who in good faith believes himself to be the father of an illegitimate child, or who in good faith believes himself to be entitled to the lawful custody of such child, unless such act is committed for an immoral or unlawful purpose."

20. In S. Varadarajan v. State of Madras, AIR 1965 SC 942, a Bench consisting of three Hon'ble Judges of the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that:

"11. It must, however, be borne in mind that there is a distinction between "taking" and allowing a minor to accompany a person. The two expression are not synonymous though we would like to guard ourselves from laying down that in no conceivable circumstance can the two be regarded as meaning the same thing for the purposes of s. 361 of the Indian Penal Code. We would limit ourselves to a case like the present where the minor alleged to have been taken by the accused person left her father's protection knowing and having capacity to know the full import of what she was doing voluntarily joins the accused person. In such a case we do not think that the accused can be said to have taken her away from the keeping of her lawful guardian. Something more has to be shown in a case of this kind and that is some kind of inducement held out by the accused person or an active participation by him in the formation of the intention of the minor to leave the house of the guardian. It would, however, be sufficient if the prosecution establishes that though immediately prior to the minor leaving the father's protection no active part was played by the accused, he had at some earlier stage solicited or persuaded the minor to do so. In our opinion if evidence to establish one of those things is lacking it would not be legitimate to infer that the accused is guilty of taking the minor out of the keeping of the lawful guardian merely because after she has actually left her guardian's house or a house where her guardian had kept her, joined the accused and the accused helped her in her design not to return to her guardian's house by taking her along with him from place to place. No doubt, the part played by the accused could be regarded as facilitating the fulfillment of the intention of the girl. That part, in our opinion, falls short of an inducement to the minor to slip out of the keeping of her lawful guardian and is, therefore, not tantamount to "taking".

21. The trial Court has recorded a categorical finding that the prosecutrix had gone away with the appellant and had stayed with him out of her own free will and has acquitted the appellant of the charges of commission of offences under Sections 366 and 376 IPC on this ground. When it has been established that the prosecutrix had gone away with the appellant out of her own free will and it has not been established that the appellant had taken her away or had enticed her away, the offence of kidnapping punishable under Section 363 is not made out and the order of conviction and sentence for the offence under Section 363 IPC is not sustainable in law.

22. Accordingly, the appeal is allowed. The order dated 04.06.2012, passed by the Additional Sessions Judge, Court No.34 Barabanki in Session Trial No.484 of 2011 arising out of Case Crime No.575 of 2009 under Sections 363, 366, 368, 376 IPC relating to Police Station- Kotwali Nagar, District- Barabanki whereby the appellant has been convicted for the offence under Section 363 IPC is set-aside. The appellant is acquitted of all the charges.

23. The appellant is directed to submit a personal bond and two sureties before the trial Court within a period of two weeks from today as per the provisions contained in Section 437-A Cr.P.C., for his appearance before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in case any appeal is filed against this order and the Hon'ble Supreme Court issues notice of the appeal, which bonds shall hold good for a period of six months.

24. As the appeal itself has been allowed, the application for recall (I.A. No.3 of 2026) of order dated 22.05.2026 is dismissed as having become infructuous.

25. Before parting with the case, I put on record my appreciation for the valuable assistance provided by Sri. Madhukar Ojha, Advocate, the learned State Counsel, by explaining the difference between “taking a minor” and “allowing a minor to accompany on her own”, with the help of the relevant case law, which was crucial to enable the Court to arrive at a just conclusion in this case.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the delay and infirmities in lodging the FIR affect the credibility of the prosecution case.

Whether the age of the prosecutrix (and consequently the question of her consent) stands established by reliable evidence.

Whether the essential ingredients of Section 366 IPC stand proved beyond reasonable doubt.

Whether the omission to frame charge under Section 376 IPC despite the prosecutrix's testimony of rape, the non-prosecution of one of the accused persons, hostility of last-seen witnesses and investigative defects cast a reasonable doubt on the prosecution case.

HEADNOTES

Criminal Law – Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 – Sections 374, – Indian Penal Code, 1860 – Sections 363, 366, 376, 361: - Criminal Appeal - against conviction and sentence – FIR – alleged that appellant and co-accused (one of whom died during appeal) along with another co-accused took the prosecutrix from her house to Gorakhpur where she was confined and raped, and cash/ornaments were taken – investigation - statements recorded - medical examination and X-ray done - charge-sheet filed only under Sections 363/366 IPC – charge framed only under Section 366 IPC – conviction and sentence – Evaluation of evidence – Court finds that, delay and absence of definite date in FIR open possibility of deliberation and embellishment; age of prosecutrix not proved by documentary or ossification evidence and rests only on oral assertion; prosecutrix's own admissions that she left on advice of one of accused (who left in trial), removed cash/ornaments herself, raised no alarm during journeys and stay, and existence of long-standing enmity raise real doubt whether "taking" or "enticement" under Section 361 IPC is established - specific intent under Section 366 IPC cannot be inferred from uncharged offence of rape - selective non-prosecution of one of accused lady and hostility of both last-seen witnesses leave prosecution without independent corroboration – held, prosecution failed to prove essential ingredients of Section 366 IPC beyond reasonable doubt - benefit of doubt must ensure to the appellant – hence appeal allowed – conviction and sentence set aside - appellant acquitted and directed to be released forthwith - bail bonds cancelled and sureties discharged – directions issued, accordingly for compliance.
Appeal Allowed. (E-11)

CASE ARISING FROM

Judgment and order dated 28.03.1984 passed by 6th Additional Sessions Judge, Basti in Sessions Trial No. 239 of 1981 under Section 366 IPC, Police Station Walterganj, District Basti.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri G.P. Mathur, R.C. Shukla, Sunil Kumar Singh, Vivek Prasad Mathur
Counsel for Respondent(s): A.G.A., Shri Tripathi B.G. Bhai.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Santosh Rai, J.)

1. Heard Shri Sunil Kumar Singh, learned counsel for the appellant and Shri Purshottam Maurya, learned AGA for the State.

2. The present appeal is preferred under Section 374 of Cr.P.C. by the accused-appellants Jhinkoo (died) and Jhabboo to set aside the judgment and order dated 28.03.1984 passed by 6th Additional Sessions Judge, Basti in Sessions Trial No.239 of 1981 under Section 366 IPC, Police Station- Walterganj, District- Basti, whereby the appellant was convicted under Section 366 IPC and sentenced to undergo rigorous imprisonment for a period of five years.

3. The prosecution case, in brief, is that the appellants Jhabboo, his brother Jhinkoo (since deceased), and a woman named Smt. Kadora were frequent visitors to the house of the complainant Munni ("the prosecutrix"). On Saturday preceding the lodging of the First Information Report on 28.11.1975, Smt. Kadora is said to have called upon the prosecutrix to accompany her to a sugarcane field, where the appellants Jhabboo and Jhinkoo joined them. The three thereafter took the prosecutrix to the Purana Padav bus stand, where certain persons including a woman of Mustafabad and PW-1 Babu Ram and PW-2 Ram Narayan of the prosecutrix's own village are alleged to have seen them. Smt. Kadora did not board the bus. The appellants Jhabboo and Jhinkoo are alleged to have taken the prosecutrix by bus to Basti and thence to Gorakhpur, where they had rented a room. It is alleged that the prosecutrix was confined there overnight, that both accused committed rape upon her by turns under threat of a knife, and that cash of Rs1,500/- and various ornaments and sarees were forcibly taken from her. Jhinkoo, thereafter left Gorakhpur. On the third day, the appellant Jhabboo brought the prosecutrix back towards Basti, where, upon being recognised by one Ramujagir (the prosecutrix's cousin), the appellant fled. The prosecutrix was taken to her cousin's house, her parents were informed, and the report was lodged after her father returned from Kanpur.

4. On these allegations, a case was registered under Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC against all three named persons, namely the appellants Jhinkoo, Jhabboo and Smt. Kadora. The charge-sheet, however, was submitted only under Sections 363 and 366 IPC, and the Trial Court proceeded to frame charge only under Section 366 IPC on 15.12.1981. Smt. Kadora was never arrested or put to trial. Upon conclusion of trial, the appellants Jhinkoo and Jhabboo were convicted under Section 366 IPC. Hence this appeal.

5. The prosecution has examined Babu Ram as P.W.-1, Ram Narayan as P.W.-2, complainant Munni as P.W.-3, Rajdei as P.W.-4, S.I. Gajnafar Ali as P.W.-5, Dr. Pushpa Srivastava as P.W-6, Head Constable Surendra Pratap Singh as P.W.-7 and Dr. R.U. Pandey as P.W-8.

6. The Investigating officer has collected documentary and oral evidences during the course of investigation. Ex. Ka.-1 is the FIR, which has been proved by P.W.-3, Ex. Ka.-2 is the chargesheet. Ex. Ka.-3 is the injury report of Munni Devi, which has been proved by P.W.-6. Ex. Ka.-4 is the x-ray report of Munni Devi, which has been proved by P.W.-6 and Ex. Ka.-5 is the copy of G.D. no.17, which as been proved by P.W.-7.

7. P.W.-1 Babu Ram stated in his examination-in-chief that he had only heard that Smt. Munni had eloped about 6 years earlier. He denied seeing Karoda, Jhinkoo, or Jhabboo.

8. P.W.-2 Ram Narayan stated in his examination-in-chief that about 7 years earlier, he did not see Smt. Munni leaving towards Puraina Padav with Karoda, Jhinkoo, or Jhabboo.

9. P.W.-3 Munni stated in her examination-in-chief, in brief, that Karoda lured her from home on the pretext that Jhinkoo and Jhabboo would provide her food and clothes. She was taken to a sugarcane field and then via Puraina Bus Stand to Gorakhpur, where she was wrongfully confined for three days. During this period, Jhinkoo and Jhabboo repeatedly raped her, threatened her with a knife, and forcibly took her jewellery, 5'6 sarees, clothes, and Rs.1,500/- cash. On the third day, Jhabboo brought her to Basti Bus Station, where she met her cousin Ramujagir, narrated the incident, lodged the FIR, and was medically examined the same day.

10. P.W.-4 Durga Prasad (father of the prosecutrix) stated in his examination-in-chief, in brief, that on returning home from the fields, he found Munni missing, the box lock broken, and Rs.1,500/- cash along with jewellery (necklace, earrings, tika, silver anklets, etc.) missing. Babu Ram and Ram Narayan informed him that Karoda, Jhinkoo, and Jhabboo had taken Munni towards Puraina Bus Stand carrying a bag. He searched for her but could not find her and informed her husband in Kanpur. Later, Ramujagir brought Munni from Basti Bus Station. Munni narrated the entire incident, after which the FIR was lodged at the police station.

11. P.W.-5 Gajnafar Ali stated in his examination in chief, in brief, that on 28.11.1975, while posted as Head Moharrir/Officiating A.S.I. at PS- Walterganj, the case was entrusted to him. On 05.12.1975, he inspected the place of occurrence, prepared the site plan (Ext. Ka-2), recorded the statements of Munni, Babu Ram, Ram Narayan, Shyam Raji, Durga Prasad, and the accused Karoda, Jhinkoo and Jhabboo, and on 24.12.1975 recorded Ramujagir's statement and submitted the charge sheet.

12. P.W.-6 Dr. Pushpa Srivastava stated in her examination-in-chief, in brief, that she examined Munni on 28.11.1975. She found no external or genital injuries; the hymen admitted two fingers, with old healed tears and no bleeding, congestion, or swelling. The smear report was negative, and the X-ray showed fused elbow epiphyses and unfused wrist epiphyses, assessing her age at 17'18 years. She opined that the prosecutrix was habituated to sexual intercourse and proved the medical report (Ext. Ka-3) and supplementary report (Ext. Ka-4).

13. P.W.-7 Surendra Pratap Singh stated in his examination-in-chief, in brief, that while posted as Head Moharrir at PS Walterganj on 28.11.1975, he registered the FIR (Case No. 198) under Sections 363, 366 & 376 IPC on the basis of the prosecutrix's complaint and proved the Chik FIR (Ext. Ka-1). He also proved the corresponding G.D. entry (Ext. Ka-5) made on the same day.

14. P.W.-8 Dr. R.U. Pandey stated in his examination-in-chief that on 29.11.1975, while posted as Medical Officer at Sadar Hospital, Basti and also functioning as a Radiologist, he conducted the X-ray examination of the injured Munni. The X-ray plates bearing Plate Nos. 28/6 and 28/7 were prepared under his supervision and were duly identified by his signatures and thumb impression. He proved the X-ray plates, which were marked as Material Ext. I and Material Ext. II.

15. The grounds of the appeal in brief are that the judgement of the court below is against the weight of the evidence on record and conviction of the appellant is illegal and liable to be set aside. The sentence awarded by the trial court is too severe.

16. Learned counsel for the appellant has assailed the conviction on the broad grounds, which this Court has considered cumulatively. The FIR does not disclose a specific date of the alleged occurrence, and there is inordinate and unexplained delay in its lodging. Although the FIR named three accused and invoked Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC, the charge-sheet omitted Section 376 IPC altogether, and even the charge under Section 363 IPC was not pressed at the stage of framing of charge. Charge having been framed only under Section 366 IPC, without any judicial application of mind reflected on record as to why the graver and cognate offences stood excluded. The FIR itself names Smt. Kadora as the person who instigated the prosecutrix to leave her house and proceed to the sugarcane field, yet she was never arraigned for trial, raising a serious doubt as to the true genesis of the occurrence. The prosecutrix travelled with the appellants Jhabboo and Jhinkoo by bus on more than one occasion, stayed with them for several days, and admittedly raised no alarm at any stage, at the bus stand, during the two bus journeys, or at Gorakhpur, despite the presence of numerous opportunities to do so. Her explanation for this silence was not found satisfactory. There is no reliable documentary evidence of her age. The finding of minority rests on oral testimony alone. The prosecutrix herself deposed to the commission of rape (PW-3), yet no charge under Section 376 IPC was ever framed or tried. She admitted breaking open her mother's box and removing the cash and ornaments herself, and admitted a five-to-ten-year-old enmity between the two families. She further stated that she left her house on the advice of Smt. Kadora. P.W.-1 Babu Ram and P.W.-2 Ram Narayan, cited as "last seen" witnesses, were declared hostile and did not support the prosecution case. The Investigating Officer did not prepare a proper site plan and committed other material omissions and irregularities in investigation. In sum, the essential ingredients of Section 366 IPC were not established by cogent, reliable and consistent evidence.

17. Learned AGA submits that the prosecution has proved the charge under Section 366 IPC beyond reasonable doubt through the cogent and reliable testimony of the prosecutrix, duly supported by the FIR, medical evidence and other material on record. It is argued that the trial court has rightly appreciated the evidence and recorded the conviction, and that the alleged discrepancies, delay in lodging the FIR and defects in investigation are not sufficient to discredit the prosecution case.

18. The following points arise for determination in this appeal:

(a) Whether the delay and infirmities in the lodging of the FIR affect the credibility of the prosecution case,

(b) Whether the age of the prosecutrix, and consequently the question of her consent, stands established,

(c) Whether the essential ingredients of Section 366 IPC namely, kidnapping or abduction of a woman with intent that she may be compelled to marry any person, or in order that she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse ,stand proved,

(d) Whether the omission to frame charge under Section 376 IPC, despite the prosecutrix's own testimony of rape, and the non-prosecution of Smt. Kadora, cast a reasonable doubt on the prosecution case as a whole,

(e) Whether the hostility of the "last seen" witnesses and the defects in investigation are fatal to the prosecution case.

19. It is well settled that delay in lodging an FIR is not, by itself, fatal to the prosecution case if it is satisfactorily explained. Equally, unexplained and inordinate delay, particularly where it affords scope for deliberation, embellishment and consultation, is a factor going to the root of the credibility of the prosecution version. Delay in lodging the FIR often results in embellishment, and prompt filing is a valuable guarantee of the truthfulness of the prosecution version. It is also true that mere delay in lodging the FIR cannot be a ground by itself for throwing out the prosecution case, provided the delay is properly explained on facts. Though, prompt and early reporting of an occurrence gives an assurance regarding the truth of the prosecution version.

20. In the present case, the FIR itself does not specify a clear date of occurrence, and there is a gap between the incident, the return of the prosecutrix, and the eventual lodging of the report. The explanation offered that the mother was illiterate and the father was away at Kanpur explains part of the delay, but does not account for the complete absence of a definite date in the FIR, or for the interval consumed in "consultation" before the report was reduced to writing, which itself opens the door to the possibility of deliberation and embellishment of the narrative, particularly regarding the roles attributed to each accused.

21. The finding that the prosecutrix was a minor of about 16 years rests solely on oral assertion. No birth certificate, school admission register, or medical (ossification) evidence was produced or relied upon by the prosecution. The law requires that age be established through the best available documentary or medical evidence, and oral estimation, standing alone, is a weak and often unreliable basis for such a finding. In Babloo Pasi v. State of Jharkhand, (2008) 13 SCC 133,

Hon'ble Apex Court held that in the absence of reliable documentary proof, ossification test evidence assumes importance in determining the age of a person.

22. This infirmity assumes importance because the ingredient of "kidnapping from lawful guardianship" under Section 361 IPC, which underlies the aggravated offence under Section 366 IPC applies, in the case of a female, only where she is under eighteen years of age, or, if she is of or above that age, where she has been taken or enticed away without her free and voluntary consent. Where a young woman, on the verge of majority or of an age where she is capable of understanding the nature of her acts, leaves her guardian's protection of her own volition, without inducement amounting to "taking" or "enticement" by the accused, the offence is not made out. In S. Varadarajan v. State of Madras, AIR 1965 SC 942, Honble Apex Court held where a girl, capable of knowing what she is doing, voluntarily leaves her father's protection knowing and having capacity to know the full import of what she is doing, and the accused has done nothing to "take" her out of her guardian's keeping, no offence of kidnapping is made out. In Thakorlal D. Vadgama v. State of Gujarat, (1973) 2 SCC 413, it was held that the words "takes" and "entices" mean that the accused must, in some manner, be an active participant in bringing about the minor's leaving the guardian's protection, mere passive receipt is not enough, but where the girl leaves entirely on her own initiative the offence is not attracted. Thus, the requirement of "taking" under Section 361 IPC connotes some active or direct part played by the accused which is the proximate cause of the minor leaving parental protection.

23. On the prosecutrix's own admission, she proceeded to the sugarcane field on the persuasion of Smt. Kadora, a co-accused never put to trial, and thereafter travelled by two buses and stayed for a few days without raising any alarm despite repeated opportunities before fellow villagers at the bus stand, before co-passengers on two bus journeys, and at Gorakhpur. Read with the absence of reliable proof of minority, this evidence raises a real and substantial doubt whether the prosecutrix's leaving her home was the result of "taking" or "enticement" by the appellants within the meaning of Section 361 IPC, or was substantially an act of her own volition, at the instance of Smt. Kadora, in which the appellants' role, if any, was not shown to be the proximate and active cause contemplated by law.

24. Section 366 IPC requires proof that the accused kidnapped or abducted a woman (i) with intent that she may be compelled, or knowing it to be likely that she will be compelled, to marry any person against her will, or (ii) in order that she may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse, or knowing it to be likely that she will be so forced or seduced. Both the act of kidnapping/abduction and the specific culpable intent or knowledge are essential ingredients, each of which must be established by the prosecution beyond reasonable doubt. The burden does not shift to the accused merely because the woman was, in fact, found in the company of the accused. In a prosecution under Section 366 IPC, the specific intent set out in the section must be proved as an essential ingredient of the offence, and cannot be presumed merely from the fact of the woman having been in the company of the accused

25. As noted above, the evidence relating to the very act of "taking" is doubtful. Even assuming some role of the appellant in the prosecutrix leaving her village, the further ingredient that this was done with intent that she be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse is sought to be inferred principally from the prosecutrix's own testimony that she was raped at Gorakhpur. Yet, tellingly, no charge under Section 376 IPC was ever framed against either accused, despite this being precisely the testimony (P.W.-3) on which the prosecution now seeks to found the requisite intent under Section 366 IPC. The Trial Court cannot be permitted, in effect, to import the ingredient of an uncharged and untried offence to sustain a conviction for an offence that depends on proof of intent connected to that very uncharged offence, without the appellants having the opportunity to meet that specific charge at trial.

26. The FIR named three persons and invoked Sections 363, 366 and 376 IPC. The charge-sheet dropped Section 376 IPC, and even Section 363 IPC was not pressed into charge, leaving only Section 366 IPC for trial. Smt. Kadora described in the FIR itself as the person who first called upon the prosecutrix to go to the sugarcane field, and who, on the prosecutrix's own cross-examination, advised her to leave was never arrested, charge-sheeted or tried. No explanation for this appears on the record.

27. Selective and unexplained dilution of the offences charge-sheeted, coupled with non-prosecution of a person assigned a central and initiating role in the FIR, is a matter this Court cannot ignore, since it bears directly on the reliability and completeness of the investigation and the case as presented at trial.

28. Taken together with the unexplained omission of Section 376 IPC despite P.W.-3's own testimony of rape, and the complete non-prosecution of Smt. Kadora, a reasonable doubt arises as to whether the prosecution placed the true and complete picture of events before the Trial Court, or whether the case, as prosecuted, was curtailed and selectively presented.

29. P.W.-1 Babu Ram and P.W.-2 Ram Narayan, cited in the FIR as persons who saw the prosecutrix in the company of the accused en route to the bus stand, were declared hostile and did not support the prosecution version. While the evidence of a hostile witness is not to be rejected in toto and may be relied upon to the extent it supports the prosecution, in the present case these were the only independent "last seen" witnesses cited, and their hostility leaves the prosecution without independent corroboration on the crucial link of the prosecutrix having left the village in the company of the named accused. In Khujji v. State of M.P., (1991) 3 SCC 627 and in catena of judgements, Hon'ble Apex Court held that the evidence of a hostile witness is not to be rejected altogether. That part of the evidence which is consistent with the case of the prosecution or the defence may be relied upon. Thus, merely because a witness is declared hostile, his entire evidence does not stand effaced, but the residue must still be tested with care where it is the sole link on a material aspect

30. In the present case, however, with both cited independent witnesses turning hostile, and with no other independent witness examined to establish the initial taking away of the prosecutrix, the prosecution is left to rest almost entirely on the testimony of the prosecutrix herself, which, for the reasons discussed above, suffers from 'material contradictions' and admissions damaging to its reliability. The Investigating Officer's failure to prepare a proper site plan, and other material omissions in investigation, further weaken the corroborative structure of the prosecution case.

31. It is true that the conviction can, in an appropriate case, rest on the sole testimony of the prosecutrix if it is found to be truthful, natural and inspires confidence, without insistence on corroboration as a matter of rule. The evidence of a prosecutrix, if found truthful and natural, does not require corroboration as a matter of rule, and courts must not adopt an approach that treats her as an accomplice. These principles, however, presuppose a testimony that is otherwise consistent, natural, and free of material as opposed to minor or peripheral contradictions. Where the contradictions and admissions go to the very root of the prosecution case, they cannot be brushed aside as trivial.

32. In the present case, P.W.-3's admissions that she removed the cash and ornaments from her mother's box herself, that there existed a five-to-ten-year-old enmity between the two families, that she left home on the advice of Smt. Kadora, and that she raised no alarm through two bus journeys and several days of residence at Gorakhpur are not peripheral. They go directly to the core question of whether she was "taken" or "enticed" by the appellants, or whether she left of her own volition in circumstances coloured by long-standing family discord. Read with the hostility of the sole independent witnesses and the absence of any charge under Section 376 IPC corresponding to her own testimony of rape, these admissions create a reasonable doubt that this Court cannot ignore.

33. On a cumulative appreciation of (i) the delay and infirmity in the FIR; (ii) the absence of reliable proof of the prosecutrix's minority; (iii) the doubt surrounding the essential ingredient of "taking" or "enticement" under Section 361 IPC, given her own conduct and admissions; (iv) the absence of independent evidence of the requisite intent under Section 366 IPC, compounded by the unexplained omission of a charge under Section 376 IPC despite the prosecutrix's own testimony of rape; (v) the non-prosecution of Smt. Kadora, who finds a central and initiating role in the FIR; (vi) the hostility of both independent "last seen" witnesses; and (vii) the omissions in investigation including the failure to prepare a site plan, this Court is of the considered view that the prosecution has failed to prove the essential ingredients of the offence under Section 366 IPC against the appellant beyond reasonable doubt. It is well settled that where two views are reasonably possible on the evidence on record, the view favourable to the accused must be adopted, and the benefit of doubt arising from the infirmities discussed above must enure to the appellant.

34. In the result, this appeal is allowed.

35. The judgment and order of conviction dated 28.03.1984 passed by the learned 6th Additional Sessions Judge, Basti in Sessions Trial No.239 of 1981 convicting the appellant Jhabboo under Section 366 IPC, is set aside.

36. The appellant is acquitted of the charge under Section 366 IPC and shall be released forthwith. The bail bonds, if any, are canelled and the sureties, if furnished earlier, stand discharged.

37. Let a copy of this judgment be transmitted forthwith to the trial court concerned along with trial court record for compliance.

38. The Registrar (Compliance) is also directed to send a copy of this order by FAX/e-mail to the concerned court through District & Sessions Judge, Gorakhpur within 48 hours for compliance.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

1. Whether the impugned order dated 25.03.2026 taking cognizance and summoning the appellant under Sec. 69 BNS, 2023 and Sec. 3(1)(r), 3(1)(s), 3(2)(v) SC/ST Act is cryptic, non-speaking and without application of judicial mind?

2. Whether an order refusing judicial remand under specific offences bars the Investigating Officer from further investigating and filing charge-sheet under those offences and bars the trial court from taking cognizance thereof?

3. Whether sufficiency of material regarding victim's caste and ingredients of Sec. 69 BNS / SC/ST Act can be examined at the stage of taking cognizance?

CASE ARISING FROM

Special Trial No. 28 of 2026, arising out of Case Crime No. 833 of 2025, P.S. Kotwali Sadar, District Lakhimpur Kheri.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Ajeet Kumar Singh.
Counsel for Respondent(s): A.G.A.

(Delivered by Hon'ble Zafeer Ahmad, J.)

1. Heard learned counsel for the appellant and learned A.G.A. for the State.

2. The present criminal appeal has been preferred by the appellant seeking to set aside the impugned order dated 25.03.2026 passed by the learned Special Judge (SC/ST Act), Lakhimpur Kheri in Special Trial No. 28 of 2026, arising out of Case Crime No. 833 of 2025, under Section 69 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 and Sections 3(1)(r), 3(1)(s) and 3(2)(v) of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act,1989, Police Station Kotwali Sadar, District Lakhimpur Kheri, whereby the cognizance has been taken and the appellant has been summoned.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that the impugned order has been passed without due application of judicial mind and without proper consideration of the evidence collected during investigation. It is further submitted that the order dated 25.03.2026 is cryptic and non-speaking. The learned trial court has also failed to take into consideration its earlier order dated 29.10.2025 whereby judicial remand of the appellant in respect of the offences under Section 69 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, 2023 and Sections 3(1)(r), 3(1)(s) and 3(2)(v) of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act was refused.

4. It is further contended that the Investigating Officer had no authority to add offences in respect of which the trial court had already declined judicial remand. It is submitted that the Investigating Officer by merely recording the statements of two witnesses sought to circumvent the judicial order dated 29.10.2025 and frustrate its effect. Learned counsel also submits that a bare perusal of the First Information Report and the statements recorded under Sections 180 and 183 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita, 2023 does not disclose that the victim belongs to a Scheduled Caste.

5. Learned counsel for the appellant in the support of his submission has placed relied on the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court passed in Sonu v. State of U.P., (2021) 18 SCC 517; Pramod Suryabhan Pawar v. State of Maharashtra, (2019) 9 SCC 608 and Hitesh Verma v. State of Uttarakhand, (2020) 10 SCC 710.

6. Per contra, learned A.G.A. opposed the appeal and submitted that during the course of investigation, the Investigating Officer recorded the statements of two witnesses and on the basis of the material so collected submitted a charge-sheet under Section 69 of BNS, 2023 and Sections 3(1)(r), 3(1)(s) and 3(2)(v) of the SC/ST Act. It is further submitted that while taking cognizance, the learned trial court duly considered the material available on record and followed the settled principles governing the exercise of such jurisdiction.

7. To buttress his submissions, learned A.G.A. placed reliance upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Bhushan Kumar v. State (NCT of Delhi), (2012) 5 SCC 424.

8. The scope of interference with an order taking cognizance and issuing process is fairly well settled. 'Cognizance,' under Section 210 of the BNSS, 2023, refers to the Magistrate's application of judicial mind to the material on record so as to take judicial notice of an offence; 'summoning,' under Section 227 of the BNSS, 2023, is the subsequent and distinct step of compelling the accused's appearance in consequence of that cognizance. The two, though frequently recorded in a single order, are conceptually separate stages of the proceeding. At the stage of taking cognizance, the Court is not expected to undertake a meticulous appreciation of the evidence collected during investigation or adjudicate upon the probable defence of the accused. The jurisdiction is confined to examining whether the material, prima facie discloses the commission of an offence and furnishes sufficient ground for proceeding.

9. Furthermore, while an order taking cognizance need not be elaborate, it must disclose application of judicial mind to the material collected during investigation; and that the subsequent summoning order, being a consequence of cognizance validly taken, requires no separate or explicit reasons of its own. This position stands settled in Bhushan Kumar (supra), where it was held that a summoning order under Section 204 Cr.P.C. (now Section 227 BNSS) requires no explicit reasons, so long as it is evident that the Magistrate took notice of the accusations and applied his mind to the police report and material filed with it, the satisfaction recorded at the stage of cognizance being sufficient to sustain the process issued thereafter.

10. Keeping the aforesaid principles in view, this Court has examined the impugned order as well as the material collected during investigation.

11. A perusal of the impugned order dated 25.03.2026 indicates that the learned Special Judge has considered the police report and the statements recorded during investigation before arriving at the conclusion that sufficient grounds exist for proceeding against the appellant. The learned trial court has specifically recorded that the material collected during investigation prima facie discloses the commission of the offences alleged and that the issues raised by the defence require appreciation of evidence during the course of trial. Merely because the order is concise or does not contain an elaborate discussion of each piece of evidence cannot, by itself, lead to the conclusion that it has been passed without application of judicial mind. At the stage of taking cognizance, a detailed evaluation of the evidence is neither contemplated nor permissible.

12. The contention that the Investigating Officer lacked authority to invoke the provisions of Section 69 of the BNS, 2023 and the provisions of SC/ST Act, 1989 after the learned trial court had earlier declined judicial remand under those provisions also does not merit acceptance.

13. An order refusing judicial remand is passed at a distinct stage of the criminal proceedings and serves a purpose entirely different from an order taking cognizance. Such an order neither amounts to an adjudication upon the legality of the investigation nor operates as a judicial determination that the offences in question are not made out. It certainly does not curtail the statutory authority of the Investigating Officer to continue the investigation, collect further material and submit an appropriate police report under the provisions of the BNSS, 2023. Consequently, merely because judicial remand was earlier declined would not, by itself, preclude the Investigating Officer from conducting further investigation or prevent the trial court from independently considering the police report at the stage of taking cognizance.

14. Reliance placed by learned counsel for the appellant on Hitesh Verma (supra), and Pramod Suryabhan Pawar (supra), does not advance the case for interference at this stage. Hitesh Verma (supra) lays down that an offence under the SC/ST Act requires proof that the insult or intimidation occurred specifically because of the victim's caste, and that it took place within public view, both being matters that turn on appreciation of evidence and are to be tested at trial, not foreclosed at the stage of cognizance where the material, taken at face value discloses the ingredients alleged. Similarly, the test laid down in Pramod Suryabhan Pawar (supra), that a promise of marriage must be shown to have been false at its inception and made in bad faith to attract the offence, goes to a factual determination which the impugned order was not required to resolve at the threshold; it remains a matter for trial. Reliance on Sonu (supra), stands on the same footing and does not assist the appellant at this stage for the same reason.

15. The submission that the victim's caste status is not disclosed from a bare perusal of the FIR and the statements under Sections 180 and 183 BNSS is, likewise, a matter going to the sufficiency of evidence, and is accordingly a matter for trial. It cannot be adjudicated by this Court at the stage of examining the correctness of an order taking cognizance, without weighing the material in a manner impermissible at this stage.

16. For the reasons recorded above, this Court finds no infirmity in the impugned order dated 25.03.2026 warranting interference. The submissions urged on behalf of the appellant, including those touching upon the effect of the earlier order refusing judicial remand and the sufficiency of material regarding the victim's caste, are matters that stand open to be urged before the trial court in the course of trial, and cannot furnish ground for setting aside the order taking cognizance.

17. Accordingly the criminal appeal is dismissed at the admission stage.

18. Any observation made in this order shall not be construed as an expression of opinion on the merits of the case, and the trial court shall proceed with the trial uninfluenced by anything stated herein.

19. Let a copy of this order be sent to the court concerned for information and compliance.

CASE ARISING FROM

Sessions Trial No. 22 of 2017, arising out of Case Crime No. 198 of 2016, P.S. Saidnagli, District Amroha.

APPEARANCE OF PARTIES

Counsel for Appellant(s): Shri Rajesh Kumar Vishwakarma, Counsel for Respondent(s): Shri Anil Kumar Mishra learned AGA

(Delivered by Hon'ble Vinai Kumar Dwivedi, J.)

1. Heard Mr. Rajesh Kumar Vishwakarma, learned counsel for the appellants in support of the appeal, Mr. Anil Kumar Mishra, learned Additional Government Advocate on behalf of the State and perused the record.

2. This criminal appeal has been preferred by the convicts, to wit, Ram Prasad and Chandra Bhanu @ Chandra Bhan, against the judgment and order dated 15.01.2019, passed by the Additional District & Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court-II), Amroha (Jyotiba Phule Nagar), in Sessions Trial No. 22 of 2017 (State v. Ram Prasad and another), arising out of Case Crime No. 198 of 2016, under Sections 302 & 201 IPC, Police Station Saidnagli, District Amroha, by which appellants were convicted under Sections 302 and 201 IPC.

3. Brief facts of this case are that Gangadas (PW-1), Ex-Gram Pradhan, along with Nardev (PW-3), Chowkidar of the village, got a written report (Ex.Ka-1) scribed on 17.10.2016 by Rajpal Singh (PW-4) and lodged the same at Police Station Saidnagli. In this written report (Ex.Ka-1), Gangadas (PW-1) has stated that yesterday, on 16.10.2016, Ram Prasad S/o Thakur Singh, resident of Sundi Mafi Khadar, Police Station Saidnagli, was going to visit his relatives in the morning. Before leaving, over some issue, he scolded his daughters, Dayawati (aged about 13 years) and Dharmwati (aged about 11 years), and then left for his relatives' house. Following this, both of Ram Prasad's daughters went to the field to fetch fodder or straw. Near the field, inside a mango orchard, both hung themselves using their dupattas from the branch of a mango tree. Ram Prasad and his family members, without informing the police, took the dead bodies of the both girls to the Ganga river and buried or disposed them off. He requested to take appropriate action in this regard.

4. On the basis of the above written report (Ex.Ka-1), a first information report was registered at Police Station Saidnagli on 19.10.2016 at 00:10 A.M. as Case Crime No. 198 of 2016, under Sections 302 & 201 IPC, against unknown offenders by the Constable Clerk Atul Kumar Pandey (PW-7).

5. Upon receiving this information, the SHO Mustakim Ali (PW-10), along with a police party and the Circle Officer, Hasanpur, reached the place where the dead bodies of both girls were buried. He sent a letter to the District Magistrate and requested for the appointment of a Magistrate for exhumation of dead bodies of the deceased girls. After obtaining permission from the District Magistrate, in the presence of Jasveer Singh, Tehsildar of Hasanpur, dead bodies of the deceased girls, Dayawati and Dharmwati, were exhumed from the earth. Thereafter, proceedings of Panchnama were conducted by S.I. Lal Singh (PW-13) under the supervision and direction of Jasveer Singh, Tehsildar, Hasanpur.

6. Under the direction of Jasveer Singh, Tehsildar, Hasanpur, S.I. Lal Singh (PW-13) prepared the Panchayatnama of deceased Dayawati (Ex.Ka-9), Police Papers No. 13 (Ex.Ka-10), Police Papers No. 33 (Ex.Ka-11), Photolash (Ex.Ka-12), Letter to C.M.O. (Ex.Ka-13), Letter to R.I. (Ex.Ka-14), and Seal of Sample (Ex.Ka-15). S.I. Lal Singh (PW-13) also prepared the Panchayatnama of deceased Dharmwati (Ex.Ka-16), Police Form No. 13 (Ex.Ka-17), Police Form No. 33 (Ex.Ka-18), Photolash (Ex.Ka-19), Letter to C.M.O. (Ex.Ka-20), Letter to R.I. (Ex.Ka-21), and Seal of Sample (Ex.Ka-22).

7. After preparing the Panchayatnama and other necessary police papers, the dead bodies of the deceased Dayawati and Dharmwati were handed over for postmortem examination to Lady Constable Nazma Begam, Lady Constable Chanchal, Constable Durgpal and Constable Phool Chandra. The dead bodies of the deceased Dayawati and Dharmwati were transported to the Postmortem House, Amroha, for autopsy.

8. Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (PW-12) examined the dead body of the deceased Dharmwati and prepared the postmortem report (Ex.Ka-9). He found the following ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased:-

"Injury No. 1: A bluish bruise measuring 2 cm x 1 cm with abrasion present on the front aspect of the neck.

Injury No. 2: A bluish bruise measuring 3 cm x 1 cm with abrasion present on the front aspect of the neck, situated 2 cm above Injury No. 1.

Injury No. 3: A bluish bruise measuring 8 cm x 5 cm present on the left posterior (back) part of the head.

Injury No. 4: A bluish bruise measuring 3 cm x 2 cm present 10 cm above the elbow joint on the outer aspect of the right arm."

In the opinion of the Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (PW-12), the immediate cause of death of the deceased Dharmwati was Asphyxia due to throttling.

9. Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (PW-12) also examined the dead body of the deceased Dayawati and prepared the postmortem report (Ex.Ka-10). He found the following ante-mortem injuries on the body of the deceased:-

"Injury No. 1: A torn wound (laceration) measuring 3.5 cm x 3 cm between the index and middle fingers of the right hand.

Injury No. 2: A bluish bruise with abrasion measuring 2 cm x 1 cm on the left side of the neck, below the lower jaw.

Injury No. 3: A bluish bruise with abrasion measuring 3 cm x 2 cm parallel to the outer angle of the left eye.

Injury No. 4: A bluish bruise with abrasion measuring 5 cm x 2 cm on the left side of the neck, 2 cm above the collarbone."

According to the Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (PW-12), the immediate cause of death of the deceased Dayawati was also Asphyxia due to throttling.

10. Investigating Officer, Mustakim Ali (PW-10) recorded the statements of the informant and other witnesses under Section 161 Cr.P.C. He also inspected the place of occurrence and prepared a site plan as Ex.Ka-5. He also inspected the place from where the dead bodies of the deceased Dayawati and Dharmwati were exhumed from the ground and prepared a site plan as Ex.Ka-6.

11. After completing all the necessary formalities of investigation, I.O. Mustakim Ali (PW-10) filed a Charge-sheet (Ex.Ka-7) against the appellants, namely, Ram Prasad and Chandra Bhan before the learned Magistrate having jurisdiction. Since the case was exclusively triable by the Court of Session, the learned Magistrate committed the case to the Sessions Court for trial.

12. In the Trial Court, charges were framed against the appellants on 02.05.2017 under Sections 302/34 & 201 IPC. The appellants pleaded not guilty and claimed trial.

13. To substantiate the charges against the appellants, the prosecution has produced a total of 15 prosecution witnesses, namely, Gangadas as PW-1, Smt. Suman as PW-2, Nardev as PW-3, Rajpal Singh as PW-4, Pawan Kumar as PW-5, Nazma Begam as PW-6, Atul Kumar as PW-7, Rishipal as PW-8, Malwati as PW-9, Mustakim Ali as PW-10, Dharmveer as PW-11, Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh as PW-12, Lal Singh as PW-13, Chhatrapal as PW-14, and Shishpal @ Shishram as PW-15. Apart from the above oral evidence, the prosecution also relied upon documentary evidences, marked as Exhibits Ka-1 to Ka-16.

14. After hearing the evidence of prosecution witnesses, the appellants were examined under Section 313 Cr.P.C. In their statements recorded under Section 313 Cr.P.C., the appellants expressed ignorance about the questions put to them. They stated that the prosecution witnesses gave false and wrong statements against them and that they were falsely implicated in this case due to enmity. Furthermore, they stated that they are innocent and have not committed any crime. They also stated that they would not adduce any evidence in their defence.

15. After hearing arguments of the prosecution as well as the defence, the learned Trial Court found the appellants, namely, Ram Prasad and Chandra Bhan, guilty of the murder of the deceased, Dayawati and Dharmwati, and also found them guilty for causing the disappearance of evidence of the offence. Accordingly, the Trial Court has sentenced each of them for life imprisonment under Section 302/34 I.P.C. along with a fine of Rs 10,000/- each. The appellants were also convicted of the offence under Section 201 IPC and sentenced to three years rigorous imprisonment on this count. along with a fine of Rs 5,000/- each. In default of payment of fine, they were also sentenced to three months of additional imprisonment. All the sentences imposed on the appellants were ordered to run concurrently.

16. Aggrieved by the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 15.01.2019, passed by the Trial Court, the appellants have preferred this criminal appeal.

17. Learned counsel for the appellants submitted that there is no eyewitness to the incident and the entire prosecution case is based on circumstantial evidence, with no complete chain of circumstances. It is further contended that, even according to the prosecution case, there is no evidence of last seen, nor there is any witness who had seen the accused persons comitting the alleged crime. All the prosecution witnesses of fact have not supported the prosecution case and stated that the police called the chowkidar, Nardev, Rajpal and Gangadas, the father and brother of the deceased, and upon being informed, they arrived. On the advice of the villagers that both the deceased were minors, their bodies were buried. It is also submitted on behalf of the appellants that all the prosecution witnesses of fact have turned hostile and have not supported the prosecution story. Thus, from the entire evidence of the prosecution witnesses, there is no material to show that the appellants had committed the offence, nor was there any motive for the appellants to commit the offence. All the circumstances are not linked together, and in the absence of a complete chain of the circumstantial evidence, it cannot be said that the appellants have committed the offence.

18. Learned counsel for the appellants also contended that the Trial Court has convicted the appellants on the basis of statements of witnesses recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., which is not substantive evidence under the law and can only be used for contradictions. All the witnesses of fact have denied the prosecution case before the Trial Court. As such, the conviction of the appellants is illegal and without any material on record. Thus, the prosecution has failed to prove its case beyond all reasonable doubt against the appellants. However, the Trial Court has not appreciated the evidence in proper perspective and in the manner countenanced by law and wrongly without the support of any cogent evidence and against the settled principles of law, held the appellants guilty and convicted them for the commission of the alleged crime. Therefore, the impugned judgment and order dated 15.01.2019 is not sustainable in the eyes of law which is liable to be set aside and this criminal appeal preferred by the appellants deserves to be allowed.

19. Per contra, the learned A.G.A. for the State-respondent has vehemently opposed the arguments advanced by the learned counsel for the appellants and submitted that although all witnesses of fact have turned hostile before the Trial Court during the recording of their evidence and have not supported the prosecution story, however, all incriminating circumstances are against the appellants, Ram Prasad and Chandra Bhan. They were legally duty bound to give information at the concerned police station about the incident, if they really were innocent, but the appellants have not given any information about this incident that Dharmwati and Dayawati hanged themselves by using their dupattas from the branch of a tree in the mango orchard. On one side, the appellants have not given any information about the unnatural death of their daughters, Dayawati and Dharmwati, and on the other side, silently buried their dead bodies in the khadar of river Ganga. After obtaining permission from the District Magistrate, the dead bodies of the deceased Dayawati and Dharmwati were exhumed from the burial ground, and postmortem examination was conducted by Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (PW-12).

20. Learned A.G.A. further submitted that according to the postmortem examination and in the opinion of the Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (PW-12), the immediate cause of death of both the deceased girls was Asphyxia due to throttling. All the incriminating and inculpatory circumstances are totally against the appellants, Ram Prasad and Chandra Bhan. This case was a case of honor killing and the appellants have committed the murder of Dayawati and Dharmwati as a measure of honor killing. He also submitted that since the appellants have committed honor killing by murdering Dayawati and Dharmwati, this is a brutal murder committed by the father and brother of the deceased. In spite of the hostility of the prosecution witnesses, there is ample evidence against the appellants. The Trial Court has appreciated the prosecution evidence in the right perspective and legal manner. There is no illegality or perversity in the impugned judgment and order passed by the Trial Court. In view of the aforesaid, there is no force and merit in the criminal appeal preferred by the appellants. Hence, the impugned judgment and order of the Trial Court deserves to be affirmed and the instant criminal appeal preferred by the appellants is liable to be dismissed.

21. In the light of the above submissions and counter submissions of the learned counsel for the parties, we have perused all evidence, including oral as well as documentary, and also gone through the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 15.01.2019 passed by the Trial Court.

22. In the light of the above submissions of the learned counsel for the parties, from perusal of the written report (Exhibit Ka-1), it is an established fact that Gangadas (PW-1), who was an Ex-Gram Pradhan, lodged the written report (Exhibit Ka-1) at the police station, with a view to indirectly throw a curtain over the crime committed by the appellants. Gangadas (PW-1) had filed the said written report about the incident at Police Station Saidnagli. However, after receiving the written report (Exhibit Ka-1), a case was registered against unknown offenders under Sections 302 & 201 IPC and investigation into the crime commenced.

23. The Investigating Officer Mustakim Ali (PW-10) sent a letter (Exhibit Ka-8) to the District Magistrate, Amroha requesting therein for the exhumation of the dead bodies of the deceased Dayawati and Dharmwati, as the incident appeared to be doubtful as narrated in the written report (Exhibit Ka-1). Upon this, the District Magistrate, Amroha nominated the S.D.M., Hasanpur for the exhumation of the dead bodies of the deceased Dayawati and Dharmwati. Thereafter, in the presence of the Tehsildar, Hasanpur, buried dead bodies of the deceased girls, Dayawati and Dharmwati, were exhumed from the burial place near Ganga River and their dead bodies were sent for post-mortem examination to know the real cause of their death.

24. Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (P.W.-12) examined the dead bodies of the deceased, Dayawati and Dharmwati, and prepared the post-mortem reports as Exhibit Ka-9 and Exhibit Ka-10, respectively. On the dead body of deceased Dharmwati, four ante-mortem injuries were found, in which Injury No. 1 and Injury No. 2 were found in the front of the neck; Injury No. 3 was found on the back portion of the head; and Injury No. 4, 10 cm above the right elbow. The cause of death was found to be Asphyxia as a result of throttling. In the same way, on the dead body of the deceased Dayawati, four ante-mortem injuries were also found. Injury No. 1 was on her first and middle fingers in the right hand; Injury No. 2 on the left side of the neck, below the jaw; Injury No. 3 parallel to the left eye; and Injury No. 4 on the left side of the neck, 2 cm above the collarbone. According to Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (P.W.-12), the cause of death was Asphyxia due to throttling. The tongues of both girls were found protruding, and in the case of Dharmwati, fecal matter was found discharged.

25. The above injuries, in the opinion of Dr. Aadesh Kumar Singh (P.W.-12), clearly indicate and establish the fact that both girls were forcibly held by their necks and killed by throttling. According to the doctor, there were no ligature marks or injuries indicative of hanging. Thus, it is established beyond any reasonable doubt that the deceased girls, Dayawati and Dharmwati, were murdered by throttling, and their deaths were homicidal that occurred under abnormal circumstances.

26. The prosecution witness, Smt. Suman (PW-2), who is the wife of appellant no. 2, Chandra Bhan, did not support the prosecution story and turned hostile. She resiled from her previous statement given to the Investigating Officer, recorded under Section 161 Cr.P.C., wherein she had stated that on 16.10.2016 at about 5:00 to 6:00 A.M., her husband, Chandra Bhan and father-in-law, Ram Prasad, had not gone with Dayawati and Dharmwati to collet fodder (straw) in the jungle. Instead, she made a contrary statement asserting that both girls had gone alone to fetch fodder (straw). PW-2 also resiled from her statement given to the Investigating Officer wherein she had stated that she had seen sisters-in-law (nanands), Dayawati and Dharmwati with Pawan in an objectionable condition. She further stated that she had not given any statement to the Investigating Officer that on 16.10.2016, early in the morning at about 5:00 to 6:00 A.M., her husband and father-in-law had gone to collect fodder (straw) with both of her sisters-in-law.

27. From a perusal of the evidence of Nardev (PW-3), it emerges that on the date of the incident i.e., 16.10.2016, he was posted as the Chowkidar of Village Sundi Mafi khadar. He stated that on that day he received information that two daughters of Ram Prasad had allegedly hanged themselves from the branch of a tree in the mango orchard using their dupattas. He further stated that the family members had taken the bodies to khadar of the Ganga River and buried them there. This witness also admitted during his deposition that, along with the Gram Pradhan, Gangadas, he had conveyed the said information to the police station.

28. Rajpal Singh (PW-4), who wrote the written report (Ex. Ka-1) on the dictation of Gangadas (PW-1), turned hostile and did not support the prosecution case. He stated in his testimony that the Daroga Ji dictated the tahreer to him, and he wrote it at the police station.

29. Pawan Kumar (PW-6) also turned hostile and stated that he was not present in the village on 16.10.2016. Therefore, he did not witness who killed and hanged the deceased, Dayawati and Dharmwati, in the mango orchard of Ram Prasad.

30. From a perusal of the evidence of Rishipal (PW-8), it is revealed that the dead bodies of the deceased, Dharmwati and Dayawati, were exhumed from the khadar of the Ganga River in his presence. He further stated that the police and the Magistrate prepared the Panchayatnama of the deceased in his presence. However, this witness also turned hostile and did not support the prosecution's case.

31. Prosecution witness Malwati (PW-9) also proved the fact that the dead bodies of the deceased, Dayawati and Dharmwati, were exhumed from the khadar of the Ganga River by the police and the Magistrate and that the Panchayatnama of the deceased was prepared in her presence.

32. Prosecution witnesses Chhatrapal (PW-14) and Shishpal @ Shishram (PW-15) also did not support the prosecution's case and turned hostile.

33. Thus, from a perusal of the entire evidence of the prosecution witnesses, it is clear that although they did not support the prosecution story and resiled from their statements given to the Investigating Officer under Section 161 Cr.P.C., their evidence nevertheless clearly establishes that the deceased, Dayawati and Dharmwati, were not found hanging. This claim was set up by these witnesses merely to divert the attention of the police and create a false impression of suicide by hanging.

34. It is further revealed that Dayawati and Dharmwati did not die under normal circumstances. Their death was abnormal and their father and brother (the appellants herein) buried their bodies in haste in the khadar of the Ganga river without giving any information to the police. It is also apparent that the appellants managed the prosecution witnesses, causing them to turn hostile and fail to support the prosecution case before the Trial Court.

35. From the record and the evidence of witnesses, it is also revealed that appellants, namely, Ram Prasad and Chandra Bhan (father and brother of the deceased girls), have not given any information about this incident at Police Station Saidnagli. If, according to the defence version, both the deceased, Dayawati and Dharmwati, had hanged themselves using their dupattas from the branch of a tree in the mango orchard and if the appellants were truly innocent, they would have surely given information about this incident at the concerned police station. However, the appellants have not given any information about this incident or occurrence to the Police. This fact indicates and reveals their intention to conceal the crime committed by them.

36. On 16.10.2016, the appellants, with a view to cause disappearance of the evidence of the offence, buried the dead bodies of the deceased, Dayawati and Dharmwati, in the khadar of the Ganga River and went to their relatives' places. Thus, the conduct of the appellants, both before and after the commission of the crime, is highly relevant under Section 8 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872. In the present case, the conduct of the appellants after the commission of the crime becomes relevant and goes against them.

37. The Supreme Court in Vivek Kalra v. State of Rajasthan, (2014) 12 SCC 439, has held:

"9. It is true that PW-5 has stated that the appellant had a good behaviour and had no bad habit. Section 8 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1872, however, provides that the conduct of any person an offence against whom is the subject of any proceeding, is relevant, if such conduct influences or is influenced by any fact in issue or relevant fact, and whether it was previous or subsequent to it. Hence, any behaviour or conduct of the appellant would be relevant if it had nexus with the offence under Section 302 alleged to have been committed by him. This Court has held in Vikramjit Singh v. State of Punjab, (2006) 12 SCC 306 at page 314:

"17. ...Conduct of an accused must have nexus with the crime committed. It must form part of the evidence as regards his conduct either preceding, during or after the commission of the offence as envisaged under Section 8 of the Evidence Act."

The general good behaviour of the appellant and the fact that he had no bad habit have no nexus with the offence alleged against the appellant and are not relevant when other circumstances have established beyond reasonable doubt that it is the appellant and the appellant alone who has committed the murder of the deceased."

38. The Supreme Court in Mandhari v. State of Chhattisgarh, (2002) 4 SCC 308, has observed:

"4. The most culpable circumstance found to have been proved and accepted by the courts below against the accused is that he had himself made a false report of commission of suicide by his wife and admitted in his examination under Section 313 Criminal Procedure Code that he was present in the house at the time of incident. His case was that he heard some sound in the adjoining room and when went inside, found his wife hanging by neck with a sari tied on the rafter of the roof of the house. He then untied the sari, brought down the dead body, first reported the matter to the villagers and then to the police. The post-mortem report prepared on autopsy conducted by Dr. PC Jain (PW-8) shows that there was ligature mark on the neck of the deceased which was anti-mortem. The opinion of the doctor is clear and definite that such ligature mark of 5 cm width in horizontal position cannot be caused by hanging but could have been caused by strangulation. Medical evidence, therefore, completely falsifies the case of the appellant that on his return from the field to his house he had found his wife hanging and thus she had committed suicide. The conduct of the accused is also not natural. When he found his wife hanging by neck he neither raised any hue and cry nor called any villagers living nearby. He all alone brought down the body hanging from the roof. He thereafter did not report the matter immediately. When villagers collected he took a plea that she had committed suicide. He also did not report the matter on his own but, as is deposed by Dilboodh (PW-2), Kotwar, it is on his insistence and of the Sarpanch that he reported the matter to the Police. These witnesses also stated that the wife had complained in the past to the Panchayat that the appellant was ill-treating her and was not providing her food.

5.After hearing learned counsel appearing and on going through the record we find no ground to take a different view of the evidence. The accused in his examination under Section 313 Cr.P..C. had admitted that he was in the house and on hearing a sound had rushed to find his wife hanging by neck. His defence that his wife committed suicide has been found to be false and the same is not corroborated by medical evidence. The above facts coupled with the circumstances that they were not leading a congenial marital life, the unnatural conduct of the accused subsequent to the incident; the spot map (Ex.7) showing that the rafter of the roof to be at such height as was unapproachable for committing suicide - cumulatively lead only to one irresistible conclusion that the accused alone was the author of the crime and had taken a false defence that he had seen the deceased to have committed suicide by hanging herself."

39. In the light of the principles laid down by the Supreme Court in the case of Vivek Kalra (supra) and Mandhari (supra), the conduct of the appellants in the present case is highly relevant. According to the prosecution story and the written report (Exhibit Ka-1), the deceased girls, Dayawati and Dharmwati, were throttled to death. Conversely, as per the defence version, both deceased allegedly hanged themselves using their dupattas from the branch of a tree in the appellants' mango orchard. However, the fact that the appellants, namely, Ram Prasad, father of the deceased, and Chandra Bhan, elder brother of the deceased, remained silent, failed to inform any villager, and did not prepare a formal panchnama, points strongly to their involvement. Furthermore, in the absence of villagers, the appellants carried the dead bodies near the Ganga River and buried them in the khadar with the clear intention of destroying evidence.

40. Thus, it is clear that the appellants are directly and closely related to the crime. The conduct and behaviour of the appellants surely and certainly, without any doubt, indicate their guilty minds. Therefore, in light of the law as laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Vivek Kalra (supra) and Mandhari (supra), the appellants are undoubtedly found guilty of committing the alleged crime.

Consequently, it is established beyond reasonable doubt by circumstantial evidence that no other person, except the appellants, committed this crime and murdered the deceased by throttling their necks.

41. The Supreme Court in Ujjagar Singh v. State of Punjab, (2007) 13 SCC 90, has held in paragraph 17 of the report as under:

"17. ...It is true that in a case relating to circumstantial evidence motive does assume great importance but to say that the absence of motive would dislodge the entire prosecution story is perhaps giving this one factor an importance which is not due and (to use the cliche) the motive is in the mind of the accused and can seldom be fathomed with any degree of accuracy."

42. Thus, a perusal of the entire evidence and circumstances on record unequivocally establishes that the appellants, Ram Prasad, the father of the deceased girls, and Chandra Bhan, their elder brother, committed the murder of Dayawati and Dharmwati by throttling. This act was committed for the sake of honor and dignity of the family by applying high pressure while throttling them, as a result of which, the tongues of both deceased girls protruded out of their mouth and Dharmwati also discharged fecal matter. The complete chain of incriminating circumstantial evidence points exclusively toward the guilt of the appellants. Consequently, it is conclusively proved beyond reasonable doubt that no one other than the appellants committed the offence.

43. We have also gone through the impugned judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 15.01.2019, passed by the learned Trial Court. We find that the findings and reasoning of the Trial Court are based on unimpeachable circumstantial evidence. The Trial Court has thoroughly evaluated the entire prosecution evidence, both oral and documentary. After proper consideration, it successfully linked every chain of circumstantial evidence to find guilt of the appellants in the crime.

44. The Trial Court has evaluated the evidence and circumstances in the proper perspective and lawful manner. The impugned judgment and order have been passed in accordance with settled principles of law, and we find no perversity or illegality in it. In view of the above, the judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 15.01.2019 deserves to be affirmed.

45. Accordingly, the judgment and order of conviction and sentence dated 15.01.2019, passed by the Additional District and Sessions Judge (Fast Track Court-II), Amroha (Jyotiba Phule Nagar) in Sessions Trial (S.T.) No. 22 of 2017 (State v. Ram Prasad and Another), arising out of Case Crime No. 198 of 2016, under Sections 302 & 201 IPC, Police Station- Saidnagli, District- Amroha, is hereby affirmed.

46. Consequently, the present criminal appeal, being devoid of merit, stands dismissed.

47. The appellants are in jail. They shall remain in jail to serve out the sentence awarded by the Trial Court vide order dated 15.01.2019.

48. Let a copy of this judgment and order, along with the Lower Court record, be sent to the Trial Court forthwith for necessary compliance.

ISSUE FOR CONSIDERATION

Whether the prosecution has established a complete and unbroken chain of circumstantial evidence proving the guilt of the appellant beyond reasonable doubt for the offence.

Whether the circumstances of motive, last-seen together, conduct of the appellant, recoveries and medical evidence unerringly point only to the guilt of the appellant and exclude every hypothesis consistent with innocence.

Whether the conviction under Sections 302, 307, 404 IPC and Section 3(2)(5) of the SC/ST Act and the sentences awarded call for any interference.

CASE OF THE PROSECUTION

3. The factual matrix leading up to the filing of the present Criminal Appeal is delineated herein-below : -

3.1) As per the prosecution story, on 24.06.2009, at about 8:00 AM, complainant Nathulal (P.W.-1) went to the house of his relative Smt. Nandrani (aged about 65 years) in Mohalla Nawabganj, Police Station Sandi, District Hardoi. Upon entering her house, he found the dead bodies of Smt. Nandrani (Deceased-1) and her Grand-Son Anshu, (aged about 5 years) (Deceased-2) lying on a cot in the courtyard with cloth (saree/dhoti) nooses tied around their respective necks. In the adjacent thatched room, the bodies of Smt. Babita, (aged about 32 years) (Deceased-3), daughter of Nandrani and her grand-daughter Kumari Gunjan, (aged about 7 years) (Deceased-4) were lying on the floor, also with cloth nooses around their necks. All four persons had been strangulated to death.

3.2) The complainant alleged that the accused Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu, resident of Village Naumalikpur, P.S.- Bilgram, District Hardoi, had been living in a relationship with Smt. Babita (daughter of Nandrani) in the said house for about 1.5 years. On the intervening night of 23/24.06.2009, a quarrel had taken place between Babita and the accused at around 9:00 PM, which was heard and informed by neighbours. The accused was last seen along with the Deceased-1/Babita in her house and was not found there on the next morning, when her dead body was found in the same house.

3.3) Evidently, all four deceased belonged to the Kori community, which is a Scheduled Caste. The accused belonged to the Thakur community.

3.4) On the basis of the aforesaid written information/tehrir (Exhibit-ka-1) of P.W.-1, F.I.R. No. 353/2009 was registered at P.S.- Sandi under Section 302 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)(5) of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, 1989.

3.5) Panchayatnama was prepared of the four dead bodies of Nandrani (aged 65 years), Babita (32 years), Kumari Gunjan (aged about 7 years) and Anshu (aged about 5 years). After preparing the necessary documents, the bodies were sent for post-mortem to the District Hospital. Investigation was carried by inspecting the crime-site and recording of statements of the witnesses under Section 161 of the Cr.P.C. Post-mortem examinations confirmed that all four victims died due to ante-mortem strangulation by ligature (saree/cloth).

3.6) During investigation, the accused was apprehended on the same day at about 4:30 PM from Nandlal Shikshan Sansthan Higher Secondary School, Suganwa, while he was allegedly trying to escape from his hideout at a school. On seeing the police personnels, the accused allegedly fired at them with a country-made 12-bore pistol. He was arrested and from his possession, one 12-bore pistol with an empty cartridge stuck in the barrel and one live cartridge were recovered. On his disclosure and at his instance, a black bag was recovered from the south-eastern corner of the school containing jewellery allegedly belonging to the deceased persons, two mobile phones, and a red purse containing ₹116/-. Separate cases under Section 307 I.P.C. (Crime No.355/2009) and Section 3/25 Arms Act (Crime No.356/2009) were also registered against the accused.

3.7) After investigation, charge sheets were filed and according charges were framed against the accused under Sections 302, 404 I.P.C. and Section 3(2)(5) SC/ST Act, Section 307 I.P.C. and Section 3/25 Arms Act. The learned Trial Court framed charges under the aforesaid Sections, to which the accused pleaded not guilty and claimed false implication due to enmity and property dispute, and claimed for Trial. The Trial of all three connected cases was consolidated.

6. Prosecution in order to prove its case before the learned Trial Court has produced fourteen witnesses, wherein P.W.-1/Nathulal being the Complainant, deposed that he was related to the family of the deceased as his daughter was married into the family of Smt. Malti (P.W.-2), the elder daughter of deceased Nandrani. Owing to such relationship and also being a co-villager, he used to frequently visit the house of Nandrani situated in Mohalla Nawabganj. He stated that deceased Babita, younger daughter of Nandrani, after the death of her husband Sanjay about 2' to 3 years prior to the incident, had shifted to the house of her mother Nandrani along with her children Gunjan and Anshu and was working as an Anganwadi worker. P.W.'1 further deposed that accused Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu had developed intimacy with the deceased Babita and had been residing with her in the said house for about one and a half years prior to the occurrence of the fateful incident. On 24.06.2009 at about 8:00 A.M., when he visited the house of Nandrani, he found the main door open. Upon entering the house, he found Nandrani and Anshu lying dead on a cot in the courtyard with cloth nooses tied around their necks. In the adjoining thatched room, he found Babita and Gunjan lying dead on the floor with ligature material around their necks. Being terrified, he rushed outside and raised an alarm. P.W.'1 also deposed that neighbours, namely Surendra, Pappu and Mohammad Salim, informed him that on the previous night at about 9:00 P.M. a serious altercation had taken place between the deceased Babita and the accused. Subsequently, he got a written report/Tehrir prepared and lodged the same at Police Station Sandi. He proved the written report/Tehrir and also identified the tin board displayed at the house bearing the name of the accused.

In his cross-examination, P.W.'1 admitted his relationship with the family of the deceased. He, however, categorically deposed that the accused had been residing in the house of deceased Babita and Nandrani for about one and a half years before the incident. P.W.'1 also stated regarding the quarrel between deceased Babita and the accused was informed to him by the neighbours of deceased namely, Surendra, Pappu and Mohammad Salim. He denied the suggestion that the First Information Report had been dictated by the police. He further denied that he had falsely implicated the accused due to any property dispute. He specifically rejected the defence suggestion that he or Smt. Malti (P.W.-2) had any role in the occurrence or had implicated the accused in order to grab the property of the deceased family. Nothing substantial was elicited in his cross-examination to discredit his testimony regarding the relationship of the accused with the deceased Nandrani or deceased Babita, the discovery of the dead bodies, or the lodging of the prompt F.I.R.

7. P.W.-2/Smt. Malti, daughter of deceased Nandrani and sister of deceased Babita, deposed that after the death of Babita's husband Sanjay in a railway accident, Babita shifted to her paternal home along with her two children and started working as an Anganwadi worker. P.W.-2 stated that accused Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu developed a relationship with deceased Babita and had been living with her for approximately one and a half years prior to the incident. P.W.-2 also deposed that the accused was exerting pressure on Babita to solemnize a Court marriage with him. Babita was unwilling for such marriage, which became a root of frequent discord between them. P.W.-2 further stated that Babita often complained that the accused was unemployed and dependent upon her earnings and that she had to maintain him financially. Such circumstances created suspicion and insecurity in the mind of the accused. P.W.-2 further deposed that after receiving information regarding the incident, she reached the house and found all four deceased persons lying dead. She also noticed that certain jewellery articles usually worn by the deceased were missing. She identified the recovered articles, including silver anklets, toe rings, amulet, purse, cash and mobile phones, as belonging to the deceased persons, which were recovered from a black bag on the pointing of the accused/appellant.

During her cross-examination, P.W.-2 admitted that she was unhappy with the relationship between deceased Babita and the accused. She further stated that after the incident, P.W.-2 and her family had been residing in the said house. P.W.-2 categorically denied the defence suggestion that she, Nathulal or other family members had committed the murders for securing possession of the property of Nandrani. She reiterated that Babita herself had informed her regarding the intimate physical relationship between her and the accused. She denied that the accused had been falsely implicated. The cross-examination failed to impeach her evidence regarding the relationship between the accused and the deceased Babita, the motive arising from the proposed marriage, or the identification of the recovered articles.

8. P.W.-3/Surendra Pal, an independent witness (neighbour), residing in the vicinity of the house of deceased Nandrani, deposed that accused Vinay Pratap Singh @ Bablu had been residing with the deceased Babita in the said house for approximately one and a half years prior to the occurrence of the incident. P.W.-3 deposed that on 23.06.2009 at about 9:00 P.M., while he was sitting outside his house, he heard and witnessed a heated quarrel between the deceased Babita and the accused near the entrance of the house. According to him, the altercation was serious in nature. P.W.-3 further stated that he did not see the accused leaving the house during the night after the said fight. On the following morning, he came to know that Nandrani, Babita, Gunjan and Anshu had been murdered.

During his cross-examination, P.W.-3 stated that he remained present for a short duration and heard the exchange of words between the deceased Babita and the accused before leaving the spot. He consistently maintained that the quarrel had indeed taken place on the night preceding the occurrence. P.W.-3 further reiterated that he had not seen the accused leaving the house thereafter. No material contradiction or improvement was brought out in his cross-examination. His testimony remained consistent and provided an important link in the chain of circumstances relating to motive and the "last seen" theory.

P.W.-3 being an independent witness, as well as neighbour, with no demonstrated animus against the accused lends significant corroboration to the prosecution case regarding the presence of the accused in the house on the crucial night and the occurrence of a serious quarrel immediately preceding the murders.

9. P.W.-4/Dr. Laxmi Narayan Mishra, the Fingerprint Expert, was posted as 'Senior Scientific Assistant' in the Field Unit, Hardoi. He deposed that upon receiving information regarding the incident, he visited the place of occurrence on 24.06.2009 and conducted scientific examination of the scene. He found a broken steel almirah, plastic briefcase, utensils, plate, bowl and glass at the spot. Fingerprints were taken from the steel cupboard, plastic briefcase, plate, bowl and glass through scientific methods. P.W.-4 proved the fingerprint memo and the report prepared by him during investigation. He identified the fingerprint exhibits and stated that the same were handed over to the Investigating Officer for further examination. P.W.'4 being a formal expert witness, his testimony established the scientific examination of the crime scene.

Nothing substantial was elicited in his cross-examination to challenge either his qualifications, the method adopted by him, or the factum of lifting fingerprints from the scene of occurrence. The defence could not demonstrate any procedural irregularity in the scientific collection of fingerprints.

10. P.W.-5/Dr. Anil Kumar Srivastava, the Medical Officer, conducted the post-mortem examinations of all four deceased persons, namely Nandrani, Babita, Gunjan and Anshu, on 24.06.2009 and proved the said post-mortem reports. P.W.'5 found ligature marks around the necks of all four deceased. In the cases of Babita, Nandrani and Anshu, fracture of hyoid bone and tracheal rings was noticed. Congestion of internal organs was also found. In the case of Gunjan, injury to the right eye was additionally noted. P.W.'5 categorically opined that all four deaths were homicidal in nature and occurred due to asphyxia resulting from ante-mortem strangulation by ligature material. According to him, the deaths could have occurred during the intervening night of 23/24.06.2009.

During his cross-examination, the defence was unable to challenge his medical findings. No suggestion was put indicating any possibility of accidental or suicidal death. P.W.'5 remained firm that the deaths were caused by ante-mortem strangulation.

P.W.-5 provides crucial medical corroboration to the prosecution case and conclusively establishes homicidal death by strangulation.

11. P.W.-6/Head Constable Lalji, (Head Moharrir and a formal witness) proved the registration of F.I.R. on the basis of the written report/tehrir lodged by P.W.'1 (Exhibit-Ka-1). He proved the chik F.I.R. (Exhibit-Ka-8) and corresponding General Diary (Exhibit-Ka-36) entry prepared on 24.06.2009.

During his cross-examination, no material contradiction emerged. The defence failed to establish any delay or manipulation in the registration of the F.I.R.

12. P.W.-7/S.I. Ramesh Chandra Pal, was a member of the police team constituted to apprehend the accused. P.W.'7 deposed that acting on secret information, the police party reached Nandlal Shikshan Sansthan Higher Secondary School, Sungwa, where the accused was hiding. P.W.'7 further deposed that on noticing the police party, the accused fired from a country-made 12-bore pistol with intent to kill them. The police party took cover and succeeded in apprehending him with some force. Upon personal search, one country-made pistol, one empty cartridge stuck in the barrel and one live cartridge were recovered.
